

Early settlement expected on teacher pact

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

It looks like a teacher strike in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will exist only in memory again this year

Teacher contract talks have been under way on an informal basis in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools since last year. Activity has been stepped up over the last couple of months. The board of education has met informally in closed session after several regular meetings.

Both sides are hopeful that an early. multi-year agreement can be reached within the next few months. The existing contract, which granted teachers a 7 percent increase for two years, expires this summer

"We'd like to be able to expedite. It's less traumatic if you can come to an agreement early," said Superintendent John Hoben.

"One of the board objectives is to have an extended contract completed this year We're optimistic we can accomplish that," said Dean Swartzwelter, school board president

Twenty-two districts in the Detroit area have settled teacher contracts for 1990-91. On the average, teachers received raises of 7 percent. Settlements ranged from 6 percent in Clawson to 10 percent in Lincoln Park.

Livonia Public Schools recently agreed on a contract granting 7 per cent raises for each of three years.

Based on the current state equalized valuation, a 7 percent increase would cost Plymouth-Canton Community Schools $2.66 million. A 6 percent raise would cost $380,000 less

Last June, voters approved a twoyear, 4 mill tax increase that is generating $4.1 million for the district Related story, 2A

this year

"If you divide the county into thirds, Plymouth-Canton is in the middle third, closer to the top of the third than the bottom," said Maryann Ligato-Freydl, executive director of the Michigan Education Association. Ligato-Freydl represents four Plymouth-Canton employee groups including teachers

Entry-level pay in Plymouth-Canton for teachers with bachelor's degrees and no experience is $23,794. In Livonia Public Schools, entrylevel pay is $23,889. In Wayne-Westland Community Schools, beginning teachers earn $22.815. In Farmington Public Schools, entry-level pay is $24,500

The four districts are comparable in enrollment, programming and tax base

AT THE TOP of the scale, teachers in Plymouth-Canton earn $46,403.

Their counterparts in Livonia make $48,275. In the Wayne-Westland district, maximum pay is $45,755. Top of the scale in Farmington is $49,979.

TOM COTNER, a math teacher at Salem High School and the teachers' chief negotiator, so far is optimistic about negotiations.

"This district has really grown up (since the strike in 1983). I hope it will continue," he said.

"Morale is good. The district has healed itself. People are a lot more cooperative on both sides. They're a lot more open on both sides.'

Suspects sought in shooting

Three shots were fired from a car traveling in Plymouth Township over the weekend, narrowly missing a Plymouth man.

At 7:10 p.m. Saturday, a dark Chevrolet two-door pulled alongside James Rzepecki of Plymouth. Rzepecki, 20, was driving east on Schoolcraft just west of Haggerty Road, Michigan State Police said.

"Two white males pulled alongside and fired three shots at him and then they sped off," said Detective Sgt. Robert Silva. "We retrieved one round out of the passenger headrest.

Pay increase not only issue

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

Plymouth-Canton high school teachers are concerned about pay raises, but class size, spending on text books and the question of censorship are also on their minds.

Canton math teacher Ron Carlson said conditions are a lot better than they were 20 years ago when he was hired.

"I've worked in this district since 1969," said Carlson. "We started that year with a horrible strike that lasted into October.

"After that, quite a few contracts were settled only with bitter and hard strikes. People had the feeling they weren't valued or appreciated. "I think that finally has changed. both academically and how we're doing paywise. There are districts that are better compensated. But we're certainly in the upper third."

Carlson would like to see a settlement larger than the last increase of 7 percent.

"Generally, we like to compare ourselves with Livonia. So it would take something certainly larger than 8 or 10 percent to catch up to them. I don't know if that's realistic, but people tend to look to others and say, This is the type of group we belong in '

SEVERAL ISSUES are on the minds of high school teachers.

"A concern here is the suggestion of a possible censorship policy on showing films or using certain materials," said Bill Gretzinger, a build-as far as we can tell," he said. The shooting wasn't sparked by a traffic altercation, he said. Rzepecki "came straight to the (state police) post here and made a report.

THE BULLET that lodged in the headrest came through a window, Silva said. The two other bullets struck the rear driver's side quarter panel.

Silva was awaiting lab results on the bullets, to determine what kind of gun was used, he said.

During the shooting, the victim "said he kind of ducked down and hit the brakes," Silva said.

The Plymouth man's family declined comment on the incident.

The car was returned to the owner, after state police examined it.

"We're hoping to get some information from somebody that say the vehicle," Silva said.

Anyone with information on the incident can call the Michigan State Police post in Northville at 348-1505.

PLYMOUTH POLICE Chief Richard Myers was concerned that state police didn't immediately notify his department of the incident, he said.

His department has a policy of notifying area police agencies when suspects in certain crimes are still at large, he said.

Myers said he discussed the delay in notifying local police with Plymouth Township police Chief Carl Berry, who said he was also concerned that state police didn't immediately notify his department.

A local activist group called Citizens for Better Education has protested the classroom use of R-rated films and other controversial materials in Plymouth-Canton schools.

Commission eyes Vorva settlement

By Kevin Brown staff writer

Now here's a touch of irony.

On Monday - one year and a day from the date City Commissioner Jerry Vorva was fired from the Plymouth Police Department - the commission will discuss a settlement of grievances Vorva filed over his firing and an earlier suspension.

Vorva was the top vote getter among seven candidates running for the city commission Nov. 7.

The commission - except for Vorva who excused himself from deliberating on this matter - will discuss an arbitration settlement in a closed session Monday.

We have been discussing a settlement offer," said Frank Guido, general counsel for the Police Officers Association of Michigan, representing Vorva in the matter.

Asked if he would still seek to be reinstated with the police department, Vorva said, "What I'm going to do would be pure speculation.

"I have to see what they're (the commission) going to say.

"When I first went out on this, I was going to get my job back," Vorva said, "and prove they couldn't do what they did.

"Then I got elected to the city commission," he said.

"I want it to be the best thing not only for me, but for the citizens," he said.

Guido said Vorva's possible reinstatement with the police department is "one of several alternatives that has been discussed. It is probably the least likely because Jerry would have to give up his elected office."

Judgeship could hike court costs

A date in 35th District Court could cost you more, if a third judge is that court costs could rise to pay increased expenses because of a third judgeship.

State Rep. Gerald Law, D-Plymouth, who introduced a bill to a house committee in September to seek a third judge, is asking about the cost.

"What does all this cost?" Law said. "I don't really have a concern, but I don't have any facts and figures.

rise to cover the cost of a third judge

"I don't know if there is any noticeable pattern one way or another' on district court costs rising after a judge is added, said Bill Nelson, court analyst with the Michigan Court Administrator's Office. "It depends on the decision of the local funding unit (local governments)."

MacDonald predicts a 90-100 percent chance the state will add a third judge to the court.

The court serves Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton, Northville and Northville Township.

MacDonald said the case is clear for a third judge to handle a rising case load. There are an average 17,491 cases per year here compared to the 11,883 statewide average, according to figures compiled by the court.

To create that third judgeship, the court administrator's office must first recommend it. The recommendation could come "pretty soon," said Tom Farrell, court spokesman.

Next, the state legislature would have to approve the request, there would be an August primary, and an election in November, before a new judge would join the bench in January 1991.

Law said the state would pay 90 percent of the judge's $91,000 annual salary, while local taxpayers in the area served by the court would pay other expenses sparked by creating the judgeship.

Law estimated renovation of the court building to house a third judge would cost $500,000; MacDonald estimated $400,000.

Local taxpayers would also pay salaries for two new staff positions created by the third judgeship — a court officer and court recorder — about $60,000, MacDonald said.

"Will there be less money for the local communities, will they have to write more tickets?" Law said. Running these operations is pretty expensive. "I'm just a little leary about creat-ing things that create expenses for my local units of government."

"I'd say seven would be accept able," Portelli said. "In industry I would say seven isn't gigantic, but in education, 7 percent is nice." Elementary teachers also are concerned about the implementation of developmental learning," whereby teachers instruct students at whatever rate is best for the student. Developmental programs are in place in kindergarten and first-grade. They're being gradually introduced at higher grade levels

'I'm not sure if it's something that can be addressed in negotiations, but developmental learning takes a lot of time. No doubt about it. A lot more teacher planning is involved." he said

CANDI REECE teaches at Pioneer Middle School, where she's a building representative. A top concern among Reece's col leagues is how the district plans to implement team teaching

In this new form of team teaching, they put kids into groups in sixth grade and they stay together with the same teachers through seventh and eighth grades," said Reece.

Team teaching means science and math teachers work together, as do English and social studies teachers, attempting to complement lessons and work with students.

What teachers are gleaning from districts such as Ann Arbor that have tried the system is that "you need two planning periods. Now we have one," said Reece. "You need a team period, and you also need your own planning period.

"I know this is the philosophy Plymouth wants to pursue," she added. "I'm just worried they'll implement it and we won't have two planning periods. I hope they make sure language on this new concept ensures that the program doesn't fail before it can work.

The assigning of administrators to school buildings also concerns teach-

"I know the shifting of principals is a worry people have," said Reece. People wonder whether they're going to do another mad shift like they did a couple of years ago.

There's a lot of concern about who is going to be promoted if Norm Kee (assistnat superintendent for employee relations) is supposed to be retiring

Administration is a big worry, because we never have any input or have any say.

"I'm not saying we don't want someone who's a disciplinarian. But what if their style isn't our style? There should be a homogenous grouping

"It's important that everyone matches. I know that's a big thing among teachers."

Plymouth's Jim Burnstein does for a living what many of us do in our dreams He writes Hollywood screenplays.

At the moment, Burnstein is rewriting "Renaissance Man," a script for 20th Century Fox The work is based on Burnstein's experiences at Selfridge Air Force base. teaching Shakespeare to soldiers. He was encouraged to write it by Oscarwinner Kurt Luedtke.

It was with actor Ed Asner's encouragement that Burnstein, 38. got started writing made for television movies

Recently, Burnstein was hired to write a project for the Michael Douglas Company

There's every possibility that "Learn to Fall," a play he wrote about a clown and an autistic child. will become a feature film "Learn to Fall" premiered at the Attic Theater in Detroit in 1988.

His agent, Stu Robinson, is the guy who sold "E.T."

For Burnstein, none of this is a big deal. There've been too many hard knocks along the way ever to get too excited or depressed about anything. WHEN BURNSTEIN puts pen to paper, it isn't in a commuter condo with an ocean view.

Burnstein does most of his work in a well-appointed, thickly-carpeted office tucked away in a quiet corner of the home on Church Street he shares with his wife Cynthia and children Gabriel, 10, and Devin, 6.

Weekday mornings sometimes find the screenwriter, leather-bound notebook under his arm, walking to the Cozy Cafe or Mary Ann's to write a few scenes over bacon and eggs.

ALL OF THIS REPRESENTS a drastic detour from the career plan Burnstein mapped out for himself while attending Birmingham Groves High School.

He'd planned to fulfill a goal his dad couldn't when the Depression and World War II interfered.

After graduating from the University of Michigan where he studied under Robert Hayden, America's first black poet laureate, Burnstein enrolled in law school at the University of Wisconsin.

"I was there one day and said.

What am I doing here?' " said Burnstein

'I'd always done well in school, but it was absolute torture to study something I wasn't the least bit interested in I knew I was in trouble when I quoted Lady Macbeth in my first legal writing assignment."

Burnstein and his new wife moved back to Ann Arbor, where Burnstein applied to graduate school at UM.

'I wanted to write, and I wanted to teach Shakespeare."

Burnstein began rethinking his plans to become a college English professor when his old Latin teacher told him. 'I wouldn't let anyone but a person with a Ph. D. in English cut my lawn." " Burnstein said with a laugh

'At that point, I had to be honest. What I really wanted to do was write. And I still wanted to teach. but I didn't have to be Joe College Professor.

Burnstein went to work for a small Detroit-area ad agency.

"I DID ALL THEIR radio and TV ads. It was fun, and it was like stealing. God knows if I sold any products. But I sure had fun with them." said Burnstein.

After a while, events and goals began resembling each other.

"It's funny how what you're looking for finds you," he said.

"Right out of the blocks," Burnstein was hired to write a holiday drama for someone who'd won a grant from the Institute for Jewish Life in Boston.

The script - about a lawyer who moved by the holiday spirit. ers, 'We've got to do this,' " said shocks his wife by befriending a homeless person - was nationally syndicated.

"It was the first one ever out of out Detroit," said Burnstein.

CANDI REECE teaches at er Middle School, where she's a building representative.

A top concern among Resce's col-leagues is how the district plans to implement team teaching. 'In this new form of team teach ing, they put kids into groups in sixth grade and they stay together with the same teachers through seventh and eighth grades," said Reece.

Team teaching means science and math teachers work together, as do English and social studies teachers, attempting to complement lessons and work with students.

What teachers are gleaning from districts such as Ann Arbor that have tried the system is that "you need two planning periods. Now we have one," said Reece. "You need a team period, and you also need your own planning period.

"I know this is the philosophy Plymouth wants to pursue," she added. "I'm just worried they'll implement it and we won't have two planning periods. I hope they make sure language on this new concept ensures that the program doesn't fail

'Administration is a big worry, because we never have any input or have any say.

"I'm not saying we don't want someone who's a disciplinarian. But what if their style isn't our style? There should be a homogenous grouping

"It's important that everyone matches. I know that's a big thing among teachers."

Computers at the high schools are 10-years old and need to be replaced, he said. Eventually, the district also will have to buy classroom sets of calculators in keeping with curricu-lum goals set by the state, teachers said.

"MY GUESS IS, if you want to know what bothers us the most, it's class size," Carlson said.

"Right now, it's very vague. The district has no particular committal to it. Some districts are very exact - if class size goes to 30 from 28, the next person comes in and you have to start another section.

That hasn't been the philosophy in this district. I would like to see the district put a real specific number on it; saying this is our goal, and take steps so this will happen."

Carlson likes to keep his math and computer classes limited to 28 students

He's been successful "this year, and last year. Other years there's been a real severe crunch," he said. "Empowerment," which gives more authority to administrators in individual school buildings, is also a concern.

"It's a national movement," said Carlson. "I would like to think this district is progressive. Where other districts have tried it, there's much more teacher involvement and the possibility of community involvement with the schools

No one involved with negotiations would disclose details regarding bargaining.

But teacher concerns include class size and interpretation of a new law banning corporal punishment. "Looking at class size averages doesn't tell you much, but classes are large, and there are many splits," said Ligato-Freydl.

The larger classes are, the harder it is to provide the individual at-tention that kids need."

'Especially at the elementary level, teachers care a lot about class size," said Cotner.

"A lot of them are real sincere about it. It's obviously a lot easier to teach a class of 25 than it is 30. Most of them feel that way." The corporal punishment law is a concern because "there's not a clear understanding of how it will be interpreted so there will be some kinds of protections in the contract," said Ligato-Freydl.

'This district has really grown up (since the strike in 1983). I hope it will continue.'

> - Tom Cotner teachers' negotiator

The law prohibits the use of physical force unless it's necessary to protect the employee or others from physical injury. Physical force also is permissible if it's needed to control a student armed with a weapon.

Marguerite Vollrath, president of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association, said teachers are looking to other districts, comparing pay and benefits.

"We always look at surrounding districts. We certainly don't want to be non-competitive in this era. We want our students to have the best teachers so they can have the best possible education."

Plymouth's Jim Burnstein does for a living what many of us do in our dreams: He writes Hollywood screenplays.

At the moment, Burnstein is rewriting "Renaissance Man," a script for 20th Century Fox. The work is based on Burnstein's experiences at Selfridge Air Force base, teaching Shakespeare to soldiers. He was encouraged to write it by Oscarwinner Kurt Luedtke.

It was with actor Ed Asner's encouragement that Burnstein, 38. got started writing made for-television movies

Recently, Burnstein was hired to write a project for the Michael Douglas Company.

There's every possibility that "Learn to Fall," a play he wrote about a clown and an autistic child, will become a feature film "Learn to Fall" premiered at the Attic Theater in Detroit in 1988.

His agent, Stu Robinson, is the guy who sold "E.T."

For Burnstein, none of this is a big deal. There've been too many hard knocks along the way ever to get too excited or depressed about anything. WHEN BURNSTEIN puts pen to paper, it isn't in a commuter condo with an ocean view.

Burnstein does most of his work in a well-appointed, thickly-carpeted office tucked away in a quiet corner of the home on Church Street he shares with his wife Cynthia and children Gabriel, 10, and Devin, 6.

Weekday mornings sometimes find the screenwriter, leather-bound notebook under his arm, walking to the Cozy Cafe or Mary Ann's to write a few scenes over bacon and eggs.

ALL OF THIS REPRESENTS a drastic detour from the career plan Burnstein mapped out for himself while attending Birmingham Groves High School.

He'd planned to fulfill a goal his dad couldn't when the Depression and World War II interfered.

After graduating from the University of Michigan where he studied under Robert Hayden, America's first black poet laureate. Burnstein enrolled in law school at the University of Wisconsin.

"I was there one day and said, plans to become a college English professor when his old Latin teacher told him, 'I wouldn't let anyone but a person with a Ph. D. in English cut my lawn," " Burnstein said with a laugh

What I really wanted to do was write. And I still wanted to teach. but 1 didn't have to be Joe College Professor.

Burnstein went to work for a small Detroit-area ad agency.

"I DID ALL THEIR radio and TV ads. It was fun, and it was like stealing. God knows if I sold any products. But I sure had fun with them." said Burnstein.

After a while, events and goals began resembling each other.

'It's funny how what you're looking for finds you." he said.

'Right out of the blocks," Burnstein was hired to write a holiday drama for someone who'd won a grant from the Institute for Jewish Life in Boston.

The script - about a lawyer who, moved by the holiday spirit. shocks his wife by befriending a homeless person - was nationally syndicated. "It was the first one ever out of Detroit," said Burnstein. The screenwriter decided it was time to go for bigger fish.

He got a hold of his cousin, a lawyer in Los Angeles who represented Ed Asner. The cousin said his client and friend would be happy to read Burnstein's material.

Burnstein capitalized on the opportunity. He watched Asner's prodon't you live in L.A.?' gram, the Mary Tyler Moore show,

"I was in Santa Monica once, looking at the ocean. I overheard these guys talking. One was saying, 'I've got to have an agent.'

"I started laughing. I told them, This is a conversation you never hear in Detroit, but can't avoid in L.A. "They asked me, 'You have a house? "I said, 'Yeah.'

- 'You have a wife?'
- " 'Yeah.'
- " 'You have kids?' " 'Yeah.'
  - 'You got like a life?'
- " 'Yeah.' '

BURNSTEIN MOVED TO Plymouth - a place he'd never heard of when his wife got a job teaching in Plymouth-Canton schools in 1977

So he was in a good place at an opportune time when the movie "Word of Honor" was filmed in town a couple years later.

He met the actors and director. who read his work. Before long, Burnstein had three new agents. Burnstein wouldn't trade places with any lawyer. "I've had the opportunity while trying to learn a craft to be home to watch my kids grow, because I teach at night," said Burnstein, an English instructor at Selfridge. "I was there from the time they were babies, and I'm still there six hours every day. That's a part of life you need to learn about. "I'm proud of my kids," he added.

Burnstein's game plan is "to write plays and screenplays forever; 'ill " I'm done. I like a line of Hemingway's that he uses in his first book of a short stories. He says 'I know a few good ones.'

"Well, I think I know a few good's ones. I'd like to write 'em.

A Western Wayne County developer has reached an agreement in prin-ciple with Wayne County on buying 930 acres of county land in North-ville Township for $31,750,000. Plymouth Township-based devel-oper Robert DeMattia, head of a multi-partner bid group, was judged high bidder on the Five Mile and Beck site after negotiations Tuesday night with Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's office.

One-third of the property will be reserved for single family homes and condominiums, DeMattia said. Another third will be reserved for research facilities and offices. The rest of the property will eventually include a public golf course, designed by professional golfer Lee Trevino, an ice area and horse riding area that will tie into nearby Hines Park.

"THIS IS going to bring Wayne County a combination of living, working and recreational areas all in one," DeMattia said.

The near $32 million purchase price will be payable seven months after the county commission ratifies contracts with DeMattia and his partners. In addition, the bid group has set aside $4 million in additional money to clear the land, which once housed the state-run Plymouth Child Development Center.

McNamara estimated the project would bring 1,800 new jobs to the county and add an annual $8 million to county tax coffers once fully developed.

Revenue will be used to renovate the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice, build a new county morgue and move kitchen facilites for the county senior citizen food program, McNamara said.

In addition to the R.A. DeMattia company, partners include the Alexander Hamilton Life Insurace Co. and the Selective Group, both of Farmington Hills and the Heritage Development Co., affiliated with downriver entrepreneur Heirz Prechter.

Congress tackles tax, spending issues

A social security tax cut is "possible but unlikely," according to one area Congressman in close conlact with the issue.

But new clean air and child care legislation are deemed highly likely by legislators who went back to work this last week.

While President George Bush is expected to make new clean air. child care and anti-crime legislation top national priorities in next week's State of the Union address, New York Sen. Patrick Moynihan's proposal to cut Social Security withholding by 1.15 percent dominated national discussion as Congress returned to session.

But U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, D. Southfield, said the Social Security proposal could face a rocky future.

It's helpful in that it points out what a lot of us have been saying all along: the Social Security surplus is being used to screen a bigger federal deficit than we're being told exists," Levin said.

Moynihan's proposal would shrink the surplus, by cutting the money Social Security takes in.

Levin, who oversees government spending as a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, said the plan would pose a problem of its own.

"YOU'RE TAKING away something you're going to have to replace," Levin said. "So you could end up with an even bigger deficit.'

Levin's district includes Redford.

But while Social Security is a major issue before Congress, it won't be the only one.

New clean air legislation, bogged down last year, is still before Congress with acid rain and auto emissions key issues and Michigan Rep. John Dingell, D-Trenton, in a key leadership role.

What kind of improvements utilities and auto makers should install - and how much they will cost consumers - are among the key issues.

"Dingell hasn't signaled what he's going to do, but there's pressure from other Midwestern states not to kill them with acid rain legislation," said Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth. "I think there's a unanimous feeling among the Michigan delegation that our utilities are pretty much on the cutting edge in installing new technology. The feel-ing is Michigan shouldn't have to pay twice.

Pursell's district includes northern Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, said Congress has "already gone further than the auto compa want us to go" with regard to emissions. Ford's district includes southern Livonia, Westland, Garden City and Canton.

While the president is also expected to call for new anti-crime legislation, recent proposals have been few and far between, at least in the House

"THERE'S HASN'T been too much recently." Pursell said.

Levin said Congress is exhibiting a wait-and-see attitude.

"We're waiting to see what the president is going to propose," Levin said. "But, really, on anti-drug measures we've been out ahead of him.

Ford, however, said new anticrime emphasis could be a smokescreen

"There's been an anti-crime bill of some kind or other every year since I've been here," said the 25year veteran Congressman. "Now that they can't go after the Commies anymore there's going to be breast beating among conservatives over crime.

While all three area congressmen said they believed new child care legislation would be enacted this year, they disagreed on just how the program would be enacted

Key issues include whether existing block grant programs will be used to finance child care, taking money away from other issues, or whether a new spending program will be introduced, increasing the budget deficit. Though Democrats included President Bush's proposed tax credits as part of their own two competing bills, some Democrats argue tax credits, in themselves, aren't enough.

Pursell, on one side of the dispute, favored using existing block grant money to finance the program.

EPA's toxic waste hearings scheduled

By Jill Hamilton special writer

Michigan will be on the cutting edge of shaping future environmental policy for the nation this week when the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) holds public hearings in Detroit

The meeting will allow citizens to comment on the EPA's proposed emission standards for municipal waste incinerators.

The hearings will take place 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday and Friday in Room W154 of the the Cobo Convention Center.

Detroit is one of only three cities selected, including Boston and Seattle, for the hearings.

The Thursday hearing will focus on the national ramifications of EPA's proposal and the Friday hearissions limits of toxic metals, toxic organics and acid gases; new incinerator operating standards; a requirement to separate at least 25 percent of municipal trash; and a prohibition on the burning of leadacid batteries.

The Grassroot Alliance for Solid Waste Solutions, a newly formed coalition of environmental groups including Greenpeace USA, several state Public Interest Research groups (PIRG's) and Environmental Action Foundation, strongly criticized the EPA goals of 25 percent recycling as "merely cosmetic in character." The group feels that the EPA is emphasizing disposal, instead of reducing the amount of waste through recycling, or "garbage retention.

Special needs program faces cuts

tell writer

Joanne (not her real name), a high school student at Centens Educational Park, was flunking.

She had lots of problems. She was grieving over her boytriend, who committed suicide. There were difficulties at home, and she was recovering from an auto acci-dent that left her physically and emotionally impaired

Success was eluding her

Fortunately she qualified for the Special Needs Program at C.E.P. The vocational education program gives students individual attention by making use of technicians who nist teachers, counselors and social workers.

Joanne began studying cosmetology, and in her first year placed third in a junior-level hairstyling competition.

In a self-evaluation, she wrote about her dead boyfriend and her philosophy on winners and losers. "Everything I do in here is for Bob," she said. "He believed I could do it. I just want to prove him right.

"I don't care if I win (the compeeryone is good. But the way this world is, there always has to be someone who has to be better than everyone else, and it will always be everyone ense, and it will always be this way. I guess someone has to lead everyone else." The young woman graduated with a diploma and a license to practice cosmetology. She received a $500 Rotary scholarship. For the past 14 years, the Special Needs Program has helped about 130 students a year at C.E.P.

130 students a year at C.E.P.

In the program are special edu-cation students; students with grade point averages below 1.5 on a scale of 4.0; economically disadvantaged and handicapped youth; and young people with substance abuse problems or difficulties at home

HAROLD GAERTNER, Dorothy Sincock and others involved with the low-profile program are deeply concerned about recent funding cutbacks.

"We were at a point where we were getting $60,000 (in locallymatched grant money). Now we're getting $45,000 from the state. It's the lowest it's been in two or three years," said Gaertner.

as we were in the past. I have to think that has had an adverse al-think that has had an adverse al-fect on hids successfully. "We're talking about hids who just don't identify with anyone. They kind of get on this failure mode," Gaertner said. "Funding doesn't have to drop very much in order to cause you problems, because groeness muchems, because expenses usually go the other way.

"People are doubling up. We've reduced programs and reduced hours. We only have one-and-a-half technicians who are full-time. The rest are part-time, and we've had to reduce their hours even more." A technician who retired wasn't replaced.

Sincock, who coordinates the program, feels so strongly about the program that she's offered to retire.

"She knows we're hurting for funds. That's the kind of person she is." Gaertner said

"I explained to her that I understand what she's doing, but that it isn't going to help us, because we have to have leadership in the program.

ership of the program o in the past. And it's a than anyone in the past. And it's a very difficult job ... because it's a political botseat. It takes a person with special sensitivity to work within a school structure that just hasn't provided for these services."

Sincock said, "I just feel it is so important that they keep going with these students. I am concerned on a state level, and with the governor. It seems to me all they need to do is to look at some of the things already established that are working, instead of constantly re-establishing things." ROBERT KENNON, state supervisor of vocational education for special populations, says the federal program is funded using a formula based on enrollment and the number of economically-disadvantaged youth.

'In that district (Plymouth-Canton) you don't have as high a percentage of economically disadvantaged, plus enrollment is going down," said Kennon. "And there's a smaller percentage of dollars out there. That's what's really happening.

President George Bush has been "Mrs. Sincock has done far more dubbed the "Education President."

Counselor writes from experiences

Jerry Goode, counselor at Riley Middle School in Livonia, host and producer of the Detroit TV talk show "Perceptions," has added author to his list of credits.

Goode has written a novel entitled A Dove From the Dark," a psychological and historical perspective of an American Family (the Ferns) who settle on Randolph Street in Northville Raised in northwest Detroit, Goode was a friend of longtime Northville resident William St. Lawrence. They played hockey together which resulted in Goode spending a lot of time in Northville.

He decided to base his story in Northville because it symbolizes a small town with traditional values. The story occurs between 1900 and 1955

GOODE SPENT three years writing the book and then arranged for Authors Unlimited of Los Angeles to publish his story. His job as a counselor at Riley

Middle School helped Goode develop the psychological aspect of the story Other experiences drawn upon in clude work as a professional model, teacher, and athletic coach.

Lending a hand in setting the tone of the book were his wife of 28 years, Joanne, and sons Bradley and Barry His wife was raised in Plymouth also a small town with traditional values. She is an assistant principal at Livonia Franklin High. Son Bradley played the role of an emcee at a ski lodge in the current movie "Ski Lodge.

The Goodes had lived in Livonia for 27 years before moving about a year ago. While living here, Goode served 14 years as a member of the Livonia Library Commission.

NOW LIVING in Brighton, Goode worked in industry for four years after graduating from University of Michigan.

In addition to hosting "Perceptions," which also airs on Metrovision, Goode has been a speaker for groups such as Parents Without Partners, The Bethany Groups, as a note speaker at convention ns. He has er of the National been a men Speakers Association, and the Professional Speakers Association of Michigan

The book is available at Livonia libraries, at The Book Connection and Coopersmith Book Store in Laurel Park Place in Livonia, Little Professor on the Park bookstore in Plymouth, and Bookstall on the Main in Northville.

"A Dove From The Dark" is the story of an American family, beginning with its patriarch, Michael Fern, and extending through his wife and sons, Barry and Tom. It is the story of the evolution of a family and also is a tale of the high wire balancing act required of all caring parents. Where does loving guidance stop and manipulation and control begin? What becomes of the "model child" who is forced into a mold that is against his or her nature? What turns and twists does the inner self take as it struggles to break free?

Study: More money needed to aid homeless teens

By Wayne Paal staff writer

Metropolitan Detroit can barely meet the needs of its homeless youths, at a time when youth homeis growing, according to a new United Community Services report

The report, which studied youngsters age 15-19, calls for nearly $6 million more in state and federal spending to keep troubled teenagers and young adults off the streets.

Increased spending was a good idea whose time probably won't come – at least not from the state and not this year, said state Sen. R. Robert Gente, R-Northville.

"It could be helpful, but we're going to have a tough time just continuing the finance programs the way we have been," said Geake, who oversees program spending as a member of the Senate's social services subcommittee.

The economy has been pretty flat," Geake said. "What increases we'll see are probably the result of inflation, not new priorities."

Among the report's recommendations were $1.2 million more in state financing for homeless youth demonstration projects, raising the current state figure from $500,000 to $1.7 million.

It also called for doubling federal youth and runaway program spending to $10 million for nationwide programs in 1991

ACCORDING TO the report, 204 homeless youths received assistance from Detroit area social service agencies in 1988 - a 25-percent increase over the previous year.

The report also found three agencies, with less than 25 beds combined, available to provide longterm shelter.

Homeless youths - distinct from homeless people in general, as well as from teenage runaways - represent one of the fastest growing social problems in the Detroit area, according to the UCS.

The report, which studied youngsters age 15-19, calls for nearly $6 million more in state and federal spending to keep troubled teenagers and young adults off the streets.

SPACE, HOWEVER, is severely limited

In all of metro Detroit there's only 23 beds." Coleman said. "The waiting list is incredible."

Youth counselors are frustrated because of the lack of space, they said.

What ac need is someplace we can send them to on a long-term basis said Rosanna Pardo, executive director of Casa Maria, a Detroitbased youth services agency. I get really angry when we have to send them back to homes that, in many cases, aren't really homes at all

Casa Maria, affiliated with the League of Catholic Women, Detroit, offers no shelter of its own. Shelters include A Step Forward.

Royal Oak, Alternatives for Girls, Detroit and Ozone House, Ann Arbor. According to the UCS study, 98 homeless youths were served at the area's three shelters in fiscal 1987-88. 126 were turned away for lack of space and 223 were deemed ineligible because they also needed help with drug problems, violent behavior or pregnancy

THOUGH RUNAWAYS and potential runaways are far more numerous, homeless youths appear to be growing at a faster rate.

youths accounted for 13 percent of all youngsters receiving help from Detroit area social service agencies in 1987, according to the study, and nearly 16 percent one year later

They tend to be older than runaways, according to the report, and are more likely to be parents themselves

Homeless youths face a greater than-average risk of health prublems, including malnutrition and depression, and are at greater risk for AIDS than the general population.

"These are people who get by through selling themselves on the streets." Coleman said.

Because no shelters are in suburban areas, it was difficult to determine how large the problem was among Observer & Eccentric communities, Coleman said.

Ford, however, called for a new program, arguing that Republican wouldn't spend enough on day care. "Bush is taking the fundamental-

Red Cross seeks blood donors

January is a crucial month for our community's blood supply, according to American Red Cross officials.

That's because many patients de lay elective surgeries until after the holiday season.

And blood collections in our area during the months of December and January fall 15 to 20 percent below normal collections. This year, in addition to a bitter cold spell and serious flu epidemic there has been a series of major bloodmobile cancellations that will account for an approximate loss of 2,000 pints over the next few weeks.

Normally, in order to supply the 65 area hospitals in southeastern Michigan, the Red Cross must collect a minimum of 1,000 to 1,200 points of blood daily. Red Cross officials said they are dangerously low of types O postive and O negative

Red Cross donor centers are located in Livonia, Dearborn, the Renaissance Center, Bloomfield Township, Ann Arbor, Oak Park, Port Huron, Roseville and Southgate.

For an appointment to donate blood call, call 494-2800.

Teacher pact Early one is good for schools

HEN THE Plymouth-Canton schools went to the voters last June seeking approval of a 4-mill tax increase and the renewal of 8-mills we supported both issues

However, at that time we expressed hope that the millage increase wouldn't be wiped out by a contract settlement with the district's teachers this year.

We wanted the money raised by the tax proposal to improve the education of district students.

And now, from all indications, it looks like the educational gains achieved by the millage increase won't be wiped out. Not only won't they be wiped out, but it appears that the school district and the teachers will reach an agreement early.

To us that's a good sign. Teacher contract negotiations often don't start in earnest until August, just weeks before the students and teachers are slated to return to class.

And when that happens, a tense atmosphere is created. During such a time parents and students worry about the disruption of the coming school year.

However, when contracts are settled early, not only are the fears of parents and students allayed, but voters are sent the message that the administration and teachers are on the same track, they are concerned about the welfare of students.

It's a good deal all the way around.

From what we have learned, there's a good chance that the teachers and the school district will settle on a contract in February or March calling for a 6 or 7 percent raise for the teachers. That appears to be a fair settlement.

The district's teachers have been hanging in there while the district sold the millage increase to voters. And now it's time for them to obtain the raises they deserve.

The teachers waited patiently as the school district waded through the millage mess created by voter rejection of four property tax increases during the previous two years.

We think the teachers should be rewarded for their patience.

Police layoffs

And now, from all indications, it looks like the educational gains schieved by the millage increase won't be wiped out. Not only won't they be wiped out, but it appears that the school district and the teachers will reach an agreement early.

BUT THERE'S more benefits to an early settlement.

The labor peace that it indicates does more than gain the confidence of voters, it gives school district officials the time and energy to plan for the 1990s and the educational challenges to be faced during the decade.

When officials are caught in the throes of long contract negotiations they don't have the time and energy to devote to the upcoming school vear.

Also, they don't know how much money will be available for school programs. It's difficult to plan a school year when it's uncertain how much will be paid to the teachers.

We think that an early contract with the teachers sends a signal to voters in the Plymouth-Canton school district that things are going well. It tells voters they did the right thing when they approved the 4-mill property tax increase last June.

And that bodes well for the school district's future. After several years of millage wars the parents, teachers, school administrators and students need an era of peace, an era of cooperation during which educating students for the challenges of the 21st century is the top priority.

The school district and the teachers will have done everybody a service if they quickly settle the contract.

And the students and parents will have some peace in their time.

Must be a better way to reward our young

IMAGINE GETTING up one morning. looking in the mirror and, instead of seeing that usual happy mug, you see the face that you toted around two decades ago.

That's what happened to me last Sunday as I sat in Risen Christ Lutheran Church down on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township. Oh no. it wasn't any kind of out-of-body or supernatural experience. Nothing like that.

It was much simpler. Much more real.

It made me realize how much too willing this country is to sacrifice its young in war.

As services ended I stood up, turned around and was faced with a young man in military uniform. U.S. Army to be exact. Nothing unusual about that. Lots of kids in the service. But it was the badge he wore that made a difference.

Few in the Army wear it. None of the other branches give it. So it stands out. And it was the badge that made me see myself 21 years ago.

- SOMEWHERE TUCKED away in a drawer is that same badge. It's tarnished and its blue paint is

City's actions affect suburbs

HAT COLEMAN Young does regarding threatened police layoffs in Detroit is of great concern to our communities because when the nation focuses on Michigan, its eves are on Detroit.

The rest of the country doesn't know much about Birmingham or Livonia. When it hears about this region of southeastern Michigan, at least lately, it hears about laying off police.

Don't lay off the police. A strong police force in Detroit benefits more than just that city.

Redford and Southfield, two communities in two counties that share borders with Detroit, need cooperation to continue fighting crime and drug battles. If all interested parties do their part, at least there's hope. Otherwise, a weak link in the chain could set everyone back.

Even some of our communities that don't share borders with Detroit. such as Troy or Plymouth, still have officers that need good lines of communication with Detroit police to solve area crimes. Fewer officers means the remaining members of the force will be forced to either put work aside or forget about it entirely.

That's just on the law enforcement end.

SOMEONE, SOMEWHERE, probably during the sensitive '70s, penned the phrase, "perception is reality."

Much as we may want to believe Young when he says the city is safe, come on in and enjoy it, news reports highlight other realities and give us a different perception - that of a city weighed down with violent crime, frequent shootings, muggings and pervasive drug traffic.

Politics aside, it's hard to accept an invitation to go to dinner or a play in a city that has more than its share of problems now, not to speak of how those problems could escalate with a diminished force.

That doesn't mean the suburbs don't have crime problems. Property crimes are alive and well in Oakland County; grisly murders or car bombings are not unheard of in western Wayne County.

We also have our share of extremely violent crimes and criminals, such as Steve Szeman, who Is accused of a string of sexual assaults in Oakmand County and is expected to plead guilty soon. He already has been sentenced for a similar crime in another state.

* ALL THIS MEANS one thing: crime is everyone's problem. Detroit can't let its guard down.

A few years ago during cutbacks, Michigan State Police were brought in to patrol the freeways in Detroit because there weren't enough officers to handle the job. All communities benefit from state police pa-rols; they augment services that would be serely missed in some communities. One might question the balance of rerouting patrols into Detroit instead of along I-696 in Farmington Hills.

Farmington Hills is just as deserving as Detroit, and vice versa, of those enhanced patrols.

DEVELOPMENT AND BUILDING up Detroit are two more good reasons to keep the force intact.

It's no secret that a lot of suburban developers have built, or are approached about building. businesses and living quarters in Detroit.

Safety is a major concern when the issue on the table is whether or not to invest millions in Detroit. Mike llitch of Bloomfield Hills did just that, revamping the Fox Theatre and moving Little Caesars out of Farmington Hills and into the adjacent office building. But others might not be so optimistic or confident without a feeling of safety.

That might be one small example in itself to consider. To keep the Fox safe during budget cutbacks on the force, officers will have to be redirected from other areas. That will strain an already thin system of coverage, and leave another area of the city more vulnerable than it might need to be.

BUT THERE'S ONE more reason that should be mentioned. Thinning out the ranks may put more officers at risk of personal injury. It's something we never want to see happen, but the chance is there.

Fewer officers could mean less staffing in critical areas, high tempers, tension and then unfortunate results.

There isn't much that can match the sadness of watching police officers from Detroit, the suburbs we serve, and outstate areas lining up for the funeral of an officer slain in the line of duty. Maybe there isn't a direct correlation between fewer police and increased incidents of personal injury, but it certainly increases the chances.

No one wants to see that happen. For the sake of Detroit, the communities that want to enjoy and lend support to the city, and the police themselves, we'd like to see the mayor find a way to balance his budget without laying off police officers.

Parents object Change irks to boundary change parents

To the editor:

We are writing to express a concern with a proposed boundary change which was announced at the Board of Education meeting on Jan. 15, 1990. This would move the children of our neighborhood (New England Village) from West Middle School to Central. For the following reasons, we feel this proposal should not be adopted:

1. This would necessitate the crossing of the very busy Sheldon Road at the intersection of N. Territorial. There is a crosswalk for the students of Bird and West schools to cross Sheldon at Ann Arbor Trail.

2. The children's walk would be increased from a half mile to one mile. 3. This neighborhood has been in existence for over 20 years and has always been associated with West Middle School. Many families moved into the area because of the proximity of the schools.

4. There are only about 20 middle school children in our neighborhood. 5. Presently, our neighborhood Bird Elementary School children can walk home with older siblings or neighbors from West Middle School. We hope the School Board will consider these facts when making their decision on school boundaries.

Steve and Sandy Marulis, Plymouth

Vora raised middle school settlement issue first

To the editor

I was amazed to see that the memo from commissioner John Vos regarding the judgment fee added to the tax bills has received so much press, particularly since Commissioner Jerry Vorva submitted a prior memo to Mayor Dennis Bila on Nov. 10 raising the same questions.

Mayor Bila, acting City Manager Bill Graham, and city attorney Ronald Lowe immediately began to investigate the variable raised by Commissioner Vorva and request documents from the courts and Risk Management Insurance attorneys who handled the case.

I am extremely disappointed by what appears to be "grandstanding" as opposed to sound investigative practices getting the coverage. I hope that the reason the Observer has given commissioner Vos this coverage is because it was not aware of the Vorva memo and previous month's work by the commissioners, administrators and attorney acting as a team to get these answers for the public.

FOR A FARM boy, state Sen John Engler gives Detroit a surprising amount of thought. And for a gubernatorial candidate, he keeps an unusually sharp eye on Eastern Europe. Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, is seeking to make Michigan a state that encourages enterprise in all areas of busines

As the campaign progresses, he will draw a sharp line between his vision of expanding small businesses, particularly in inner cities, and Gov. James Blanchard's propensity to "play favorites" with the Michigan Strategic Fund and Commerce Department promotions.

ENGLER QUOTED a black, female, Democratic, Wayne County commissioner, of all people, when 1 bumped into him recently.

He loved what Alberta Tinsley-Williams was telling her Detroit constituents about the need to start their own businesses. She organized a summer youth project called "Buddies in Business" and said in her newsletter

"The greatest growth and security will come to those courageous enough to step out on their own and provide a needed service . . . There are various groups ready to assist Eastern Europe. People are willing to give their lives, around the world, for market economies," he said.

He's right. In the West Bank and Gaza Strip last fall, one of the most frequent complaints I heard from Palestinians, besides plastic bullets and tear gas, was that the Israeli military authorities wouldn't grant them licenses to start businesses and banks ENGLER CITED the Cubans in Miami, the Hong Kong immigrants to the west coast of Canada and the Vietnamese of San Diego as examples of people with the spirit of enterprise who quickly achieve prosperity in a strange land with a new language.

Q: I recently read of a study in a Detroit newspaper that said white students use more drugs and alcohol than black students, Without sounding racist, this is hard for me to believe if all the horror stories of drug use in the inner city environment are true. Does the study make sense to you?

A: You are making an inference and a conclusion that the study said white children or adolescents use more drugs and alcohol than black children or adolescents.

What the Atlanta-based study by PRIDE surveyed were students enrolled and attending school from grades six through 12. It did not survey all black and white children in grades six through 12. You need to realize that major urban school districts have a student dropout rate of up to 50 percent by the 12th grade, a sad testimony of our national priorities

The suburban dropout rate in most communities for white students

Therfore the survey sampled in the inner cities never reached up to 50 percent of that black student population who had dropped out of school.

The study concluded that 65 percent of the white students said they had used hard liquor once during the previous school year vs. 37 percent of the black students. It also stated that 29 percent of the white students used marijuana vs. 17 percent of the blacks and 7 percent of the white students used cocaine vs. 4 percent of the blacks

Assuming the study is accurate, inner city and suburban black parents have been doing a fine job moniinto educational programs that lead toring their children's leisure time, better than their white counterparts. to a job.

Black children, according to this study, are as able or more able to deal with the drug scene if in a quality educational experience.

Ethnic task forces boost a community

MOST TASK forces are formed after a problem erupts. The group starts out strong and dwindles in

Quite the opposite is true of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Task Force on Race Relations and Ethnic Diversity

When racial problems erupted at local schools last year, this task force was already in place to help deal with them. And a group that started out small and white to open the area to minorities has grown in numbers and diversity.

Members first set about educating themselves - confronting their own prejudices.

Monthly meetings, included watching a Bill Cosby video satirizing prejudices; hearing a successful black attorney depict the frustration of the black male in our society; discussing the film "Do the Right Thing" by black filmmaker Spike Lee; and exploring racial steering in housing.

The emphasis was on blackwhite relations. But this week, they moved on to deal with the largest non-white minority in the area -Asians.

MORE THAN one of every 10 students in the Bloomfield Hills Schoul District is Asian, said Bloomfield Hills Superintendent W. Robert Docking.

Docking served as moderator for a panel Monday morning at Birmingham's Community House. The panel featured members of the Asian-American community.

The 50-member audience heard Lahser junior Bob Park, a Korean, tell how when he moved to Bloomfield Hills from Mount Clemens be experienced racial prejudice for the first time

"Kids there (in Mount Clemens) weren't so much into how you look, what you wear."

In middle school, "I fought a lot," he said. "My dad said, 'beat them with your grades'" but that wasn't enough.

BOB HAD his own methodology - he continued to excel in school, play an instrument - do all the things Asians have the reputation for, he said.

But he added sports - football, wrestling, track.

"People started to accept me in high school. In high school people grow up."

Now his most difficult problem is that his parents say he's losing his ethnic background.

Allison Ordona, a Lahser senior, moved the audience as she touch ingly told how the school's annual multi-cultural retreat helped her deal better with the different signals she receives from her father, a Filipino, and her American mom.

SHE ALSO made them laugh when asked about dating outside her Asian background.

'If my dad said you have to date a Filipino I'd be looking high and low

Do you mind that Americans look at you and don't know which country you are from? a member of the audience asked.

Felicitas Coniconde, a Filipino-American teacher, answered no.

"There is such a difference between (the look) of a Korean and Chinese," Paul Yook, another Lahser student from Korea, said.

JUDY CHEN, a Chinese resident of West Bloomfield, said her son, now a pre-med student at UCLA, was teased and called "chink" and 'slant eye" as a child.

"He lived through it, but he is still shy of meeting new people. "Prejudice exists wherever people exist," she said. "We need to shed more light on the subject. Instead of avoiding it, action, open discussion should take place. The people of Bloomfield Hills are beginning to understand."

WHICH MAKES me wonder why all our communities don't have such task forces. The minority population is rapidly increasing in our suburbs and in our nation.

Meanwhile, a recent University of Michigan study of our suburbs shows more prejudice exists, not

We are all more alike than different," Chen said. We all want to love and be loved, to try to do the best we can and we all have family traditions.

"I'm proud to be Chinese," Chen said, "and I'm just as proud to be an American.

Kids' play has a proud history

By Julie Brown staff writer

THE STORY of a puppet named Pinocchio has stood the test of time Carlo Collodi wrote his story quite a few years ago, but that doesn't mean modern-day children find Pinocchio boring. Members of the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women, are rehearsing for their upcoming performances of "Pinocchio." AAUW members have presented a play for children annually for the past 30 years.

"I think it meets the needs of evervone," said Becky Copenhaver of Canton, an AAUW member who will appear as Pinocchio. "I think everyone will be entertained.

Even adults who attend the performances will enjoy doing so, she said.

PERFORMANCES WILL be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Feb. 15-16, and at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 17. Performances will be in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School, on Joy west of Canton Center in Canton.

Plymouth resident Sharon Belobraidich is directing this year's production. She also directed two earlier AAUW theatrical productions, "Alice in Wonderland" and "Hansel and Gretel.

in Canton. Working with her fellow AAUW members during play rehearsals isn't much like teaching grade school. Belobraidich did teach drama privately for six years.

"That comes in handy.

Plymouth AAUW members didn't appear in a children's play in 1989. Instead, a visiting troupe of actors performed in a production sponsored by the branch.

"Last year, we didn't have a play and I really missed it," said Copenhaver, a kindergarten teacher at Jackson Center in Livonia. "It's fun working with everyone. I missed getting together with everyone.'

Two years ago, Copenhaver and Jan Carson directed an AAUW production of "Jack and the Beanstalk."

THE EARLY part of last year wasn't quite so busy for AAUW members.

'We had a real easy winter last year," said Belobraidich. "We didn't have to build sets." Even so, AAUW members missed working on a play.

Branch members have performed about seven or eight different plays over the years. They try to repeat each play about once every eight years, so that the same children don't see the same production more Judi Richards will appear in the play as Stromboli and Becky Copenhaver will appear as Pinocchio.

ROWSERS AND buyers alike found their way to the Plymouth Cultural Center for the Plymouth Symphony League's Antique Mart. The show was Friday through Sunday, in conjunction with the final weekend of the Plymouth Community Ice Sculpture Spectacular

The antique show opened at 11 a.m. the first day to a crowd of eager customers.

"We had a wonderful group standing in line at quarter to 11, so that was nice," said Judy Lewis of Plymouth, show co-chairwoman with Judy Lore. "We were pleased about that."

This is the fourth year a winter antique show has been sponsored by the Plymouth Symphony League. Proceeds support the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

The league has also sponsored an annual antique show for a number of years during the Plymouth Fall Festival in September. This year's winter show included 22 dealers from throughout Michigan, Ohio and Indiana.

THE SHOW was co-sponsored by the city of Plymouth Cultural Center. Antique dealers had something for just about everyone, including jewelry, china, crystal, silver, antique prints, furniture and linens.

Thriller

Local author writes about international intrigue, adventure

staff writer

Author Sarah Wolf has been writing since the third grade, but it took some time to get her first novel published

Wolf, a Livonia resident, has been writing with publication in mind since 1969, "a long time considering how long I've been pub-lished." Her first published book, 'Long Chain of Death," came out in 1987, and was followed by her second, "The Harbinger Effect.

That book, an alternate Book of the Month Club selection, is an international thriller involving a defection from the Soviet Union.

Wolf spoke at a Thursday, Jan. 18, meeting of the Plymouth branch of American Association of University Women, at Ernesto's in Plymouth.

WOLF DREAMED of becoming a published writer.

"Somehow, along the way, I got married and had kids."

In 1969, her family took a trip to Montana, where her husband's parents lived at the time. The family stopped in Nebrasta, and Wolf was asked by someone she knew there what books she'd recommend Wolf realized she hadn't read anything she'd recommend. Her youngest child started first grade that same year, giving Wolf more time to write.

"I did have an idea for a story that had been rattling around in my mind for a while."

SHE STARTED writing her first book.

By the time Wolf finished, her family was living in Greece, which made marketing the book difficult. Wolf instead went to work on her second effort.

"I didn't have very much luck, but I thought the second book was going to be better."

The years went by and Wolf finished writing her third and fourth non-published books.

At that point, she said "By George, I'm going to write a book that sells if it kills me."

Wolf read books and came up with a list of things she thought a good book should have. She finished writing her fifth book in the early 1980s

WOLF'S HUSBAND was teach ing at Livonia Stevenson High School at that time.

'A lot of teachers who had a lot of experience were getting pinkslipped."

He got that dreaded pink slip. "I said to myself I'd better get serious about this.

Wolf enrolled at the University of Michigan. She earned a master's degree in library science and went to work as a U-M librarian.

SHE KEPT on writing, and finally got the news that a relatively small New York publisher, Walker and Co., would publish her book. She enlisted the help of an agent in getting that book published.

Its original title was "My Brother's Keeper." Wolf knew at that time there was another book by that title. Book titles can't be copyrighted, she said, although giving a book a duplicated name isn't a good idea. Readers may assume they've read the book and not buy it.

She discovered there were about eight published books entitled "My Brother's Keeper." Wolf went back and forth with her editor, and the book was eventually named "Long Chain of Death

Wolf's son thought that sounded lot like the "Texas Chainsaw Massacre" She was worried the book's cover design would be excessively violent

HER BOOK was subsequently published in Great Britain and Japan Wolf was a bit surprised when the British, who are often considered to be reserved and terribly proper, published a rather gory cover. The U.S. edition didn't have such a cover

"Another neat thing that happens when you get published is you get fan letters.

Wolf was pleased to hear from one of her high school English teachers, who was thrilled a former student had become a published author.

Wolf's second book was published by Simon and Schuster, a larger publisher known for doing more in promoting books than Walker does

Mail order tickets will be filled

"It's not always easy, even after the first book."

SHE TALKED about how she researches her books. For "The Harbinger Effect," she did a great deal of reading and talked with a friend who's a former CIA agent

A car chase in the book is set in Montreal. Wolf hadn't been to that Canadian city in many years. She felt she needed to visit again During her visit, Wolf discovered some streets were one way, so she had to make some changes.

Her third book is due out soon. and Wolf recently sat down to work on another book. She doesn't prepare a detailed outline before she starts writing

"I know some of what's going to happen.

WOLF'S FIRST book was published under the name Sarah Wolf. Her second book was published under the name S.K. Wolf. Her publisher was afraid men wouldn't buy an international thriller that had been written by a woman.

"I found out there's a lot of truth to that. That bothered me more at first than it does now.

At one point, Wolf met a middleaged male author from Texas. She learned that man was actually a popular romance novelist - and that he wrote under a female pseudonym

WOLF ENCOURAGED wouldbe authors to keep on writing. Would-be authors have to keep on trying, even going back to the same publisher more than once.

Things are so fluid in the publishing world. People move around a lot

Those attending the meeting enjoyed Wolf's presentation.

I just thought it was wondersaid Luan Brownlee, an AAUW member and Livonia resident. "I just love to hear about the writing process.

Canton resident Pamela Dean was also impressed. She enjoyed nearing about Wolf's work and her efforts in getting books published.

"I think she's one of the best speakers we've ever had," said Dean, an AAUW member.

"I thought she was great," Dean said. "I just find writers fascinating

The children have a chance to interact with the actors, Copenhaver said

"That's what you play to and that's what's fun." She plans to take her costume to Livonia's Jackson Center so her students can see it, and she may read the story of Pinocchio

The story of Pinocchio begins when a wooden puppet is created by a woodcarver named Geppetto. The puppet named Pinocchio undergoes many trials and tribulations because of his mischievousness and disobedience. Pinocchio wants to become a real boy throughout it all.

LEARNING ABOUT the characters and story means children use their imaginations, Copenhaver said. "Plus it's just entertaining. They become involved in it." For many youngsters, it's the first time they've seen a live performance. Belobraidich agreed that seeing a

Antique show draws crowd

Organizers aim for a variety to attract as many people as possible. Lewis said. Many of the dealers participate in both the fall and winter shows sponsored by the league. Early visitors to the event are often likely to buy things, she has found Show organizers publicize the show in magazines and journals for antique collectors and dealers. "So we're not just looking for the ice fest crowd."

Show organizers were concerned about the possibility of the ice festival being canceled, Lewis said, but most likely would have gone ahead with the event if that had happened.

Many ice festival visitors do find their way to the show each year. "Antique buying is impulsive, often," said Lewis, who has bought antiques for many years and is an antique dealer.

She has found that show visitors often spot something they simply must have. If that object is too heavy to cart around during the festival, dealers can often arrange to have it delivered Blaisdell's partner, Beth Kohmescher of Plymouth, specializes in antique lighting. The women participate in about 14 antique hows each year, Blaisdell said.

It's difficult for dealers to know just what show visitors will be interested in

"I don't think you can second-guess the public," Blaisdell said.

The popularity of different items changes over time from show to show. Magazines in large part influence what people seek out and buy, she said.

"And then different areas are interested in uifferent things '

She and Kohmescher have found they sell different items at shows in Royal Oak or Saline than they do in Plymouth.

Blaisdell, who also served as dealer chairwoman for the winter antique show in Plymouth, was pleased with the turnout

"Browsers and buyers, but a lot SEVERAL AREA residents were of buyers the first day," she said

"I don't see much stress in my own life, but I see it in other pastors," said Headapohl, 52, of Garden City. There are so many things to do and

STRESS TAKES its toll as pastors grapple with finances, men growth or decline and unrealized expectations. Most denominations of-fer workshops or counseling to help pastors avoid overload. "We're living at such a rapid pace," said the Rev. John Gordon of

A major red flag is "when it's no longer fun," said Dr. David Russell, pastor of the 400-member Garden City First United Methodist Church. He researched the issue as part of his doctoral studies and has taught classes to his church members.

"I suppose many people think they can recognize stress, but they can't, said Russell, 56, of Garden City. "It gets so you don't want to get up in the morning. There's an inability to laugh, an inability to enjoy yourself."

Even making simple decisions becomes difficult, Russell said. Of course, what's anxiety-provoking for one person may be perfectly acceptable to another.

"The satisfaction comes when you're able to do something constructive to help someone." Russell said."I'm capable and I believe in what I'm doing.

"The down side is two-fold." he added. "The hours can get to you. And there are times when you sacrifice what you or your family had planned because of an emergency in the church."

Several pastors mentioned that their spouses also became active, teaching Sunday school or singing in the choir. The Rev. Robert Clapp, rector of St. Andrew's Episcop Church in Livonia, finds Christian meditation to be helpful.

The Rev. John Zwers of Redford spent 10 years as superintendent of the Detroit Archdiocese Catholic schools during the late 1960s through 1977. In 1978, he was reassigned to St. Robert Bellarmine Catholic Church of Redford Township.

'That (superintendent) was a pressure job," said Zwers, 64. "I got out for a change of ministry.

Zwers enjoys golf and walking. He finds walking gives him energy and makes him more effective.

"I haven't missed a day in five years," he said.

Zwers believes financial worries and disgruntled parishioners can be a great source of stress. Becoming too involved in members' personal problems also is troublesome

'The danger is you make it part of your life," he said. "Not that you're cruel, but not everybody's problems can be your own."

ST. ROBERT'S membership stands at 2,200 families, a growth resulting from new families moving into Redford and Livonia near the church. Finances are stable and the grade school is doing well. A Christian services coordinator visits shutins and tends to people in need.

'I don't feel pressure here." Zwers said. "The people are quite responsive."

REALITY IS not one view but what happens between the two. I want to portray how the uncertainty we face in life is God's invitation to us to trust. Those who follow God's cause will build trusting relationships that create wholeness.

The parking experience comes back to me as a kind of parable. So site forces that operate toward distrust. They drive us into suspicion, defense, withdrawal, reprisal, passivity. These were the forces that dominated Eastern Europe for so long. They were broken in large part by religious people.

The decade of the 1980s was the end of a time when we thought we could wall out evil. The Berlin Wall was one example of the dividing line. The war on drugs was another.

IT WAS impossible to keep drugs out of the suburbs and out of athletics. Slowly, people simply tried to focus on this task of building trust. They will go back to the ancient promises of God such as that found in Leviticus: "I will be your God and you will be my people."

These promises will then be expanded to apply to all humankind. This may ultimately be the only choice we face on earth. Either we learn to trust one another or we cease to exist.

Jury weighs evidence in 2nd Stoddard trial

By Tim Richard staff writer

A federal jury Wednesday began weighing the fate of former banker Stanford C. Stoddard, charged with misapplying Michigan National Bank funds in a Jackson deal.

Stoddard, 59, of Birmingham, was convicted of the same charge in August 1987 and sentenced by U.S. District Judge Anna Diggs Taylor to three years in prison.

But the Court of Appeals overturned the conviction last year because the Jackson institution - Michigan Bank Midwest - wasn't a member of the Federal Reserve System as the indictment said. So the government retried him, calling it a federal case because Midwest was federally insured.

"An impossible conflict of interest," said U.S. attorney James C. Mitchell, of Rochester, describing the relationship between Stoddard as ... chairman of the holding company. Michigan National Corp., and a partner in Amberley Properties, which leased the downtown Jackson property to the MNC subsidiary.

"IF HE FOUND a bargain, he should have given the benefit of that bargain to the bank," Mitchell told jurors in his closing remarks.

Mitchell said the bank paid double the market rate for the century-old building in the depressed economy of 1981, when the town joke was: "The last one out of Jackson, turn out the lights."

The government charged Stoddard set the rental rate of $27,000 a year; persuaded his friend, Southfield attorney Raymond Zweig, to buy it for $41,000; then had Zweig sell it to Amberley a year later for the same amount.

Mitchell said that when bank directors learned of the deal in 1984. Stoddard and his partner, Curt Terova, deeded the property to the bank, throwing in $25,000. "If that's not the act of a guilty man, what is?" Mitchell asked.

NEIL FINK, Stoddard's defense attorney, called the situation "a business judgment gone bad," not a criminal act.

"The government attempted to make this a secret business deal. The bank (Michigan Bank Midwest) closed in 1984. After the bank was closed, every major character was hiding in the grass."

Fink said a letter complaining about the Jackson deal surfaced only after the bank was closed and major players were hiding. "They were his friends when he was on top," he said. 'But Bud (Stoddard's nickname) was not CEO any more."

Fink accused other "players" of changing their stories once indictments were issued to pin all blame on Stoddard

Fink said Amberley Properties gave the bank the building to avoid in litigation, denying any guilt.

"THE RENT was in the ballpark (of the Jackson market)," Fink went on, citing comparable deals.

The defense counsel said the prosecutor was "almost absurd" in his second guessing of the bank's business judgment.

"We don't put the government in a position of deciding business judg-ment. God forbid! This is not price controls. This is not Russia.

"That $27,000 (annual rent) is a pimple. Michigan National invested millions in Jackson.

'Nine years later, the figures that looked so good at the time, they want to give criminal intent."

THE TRIAL began last week, with the government taking three days to make its case.

Stoddard called on only two witnesses, including Brian S. Gordon, a commercial real estate specialist from Farmington Hills and a former Michigan National vice president.

Gordon testified Tuesday that the bank holding company, under Stoddard, was consumer oriented and growth oriented.

"The general feeling was 'put a bank on every corner for every possible corner of the state," Gordon said

Gordon said the Jackson site was 'ideal" - across from the town's leading bank and the Sheraton Hotel in the center of the financial district.

'It's common knowledge that bank customers have negative feelings toward their banks. It might bounce a check, charge a fee they don't like, change a policy. The best place to be is where the customer looks as he walks out the door (of his current bank)," Gordon said.

FINK DIDN'T put Stoddard on the witness stand.

In an interview last September, Stoddard said, "I had nothing to do with negotiating the lease . . . Reuben Bergman was president of that bank. The bank board authorized Bergman to negotiate with Zweig."

He said Zweig bought the building from the trust department of a Jackson real estate firm on behalf of a deceased person. "It was a bona fide outside purchase at $41,500."

Except for Stoddard's family, the seventh floor courtroom in Detroit was largely empty during most of the five-day trial, much of it a lesson in Jackson commercial real estate pricing.

Lawyer's niche: amend home purchase contracts

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

An offer-to-purchase agreement, the contract on which house sales are based, is inherently seller-biased. So house buyers can benefit from having someone in their corner early in the sale.

That's the concept behind the newly formed Home Buyer First Corp., a real estate law practice developed by president Gerald I. Krafsur.

Seller-biased language gives sellers unilateral authority over what remains in the house and dictates the length and type of occupancy retained by the seller after the closing, Krafsur said. The standard offer-to-purchase contract also ignores property inspection and gives no recourse to a dissatisfied buyer.

he said.

Krafsur's plan is to develop a high-volume business in amending offer-to-purchase contracts so they favor the house buyer, rather then the seller. If successful in Oakland County, Krafsur said he will expand the practice into Wayne and Macomb counties, and eventually throughout the entire state.

When contacted by a potential house buyer, most real estate attorneys draw up an offer-to-purchase contract from scratch, Krafsur said. At an attorney's hourly rate, that can be expensive.

HOUSE BUYER FIRST takes a different approach, he said. Rather than write the agreement from scratch, Krafsur amends the original contract

"We have a computer program set up so we can very quickly make changes to the original document, removing the seller bias," Krafsur said. This is done after the real estate agent draws up the offer to purchase but before the contract is signed or presented to the seller.

For a fixed fee of $299, Home Buyers First will prepare or review all the documents a house buyer needs: the offer to purchase, counteroffers, deed, and closing documents.

An attorney also will be present at the closing, Krafsur said. Any consultations can be scheduled at a buyer's house or office on days, evenings or weekends.

Krafsur said he got his idea after years in real estate law. "Most problems can be traced back to mistakes

Gerald Krafsur advises home buyers to see that the purchase agreement reflects their needs and not just those of the seller. "Most chase."

Alan C. Helmkamp, an attorney with Helmkamp, Ellis & Abraham in Livonia, said while most real estate transactions have a great deal in common, each sale also offers something unique. Since each house is made in the original offer to pur- unique, each offer to prucahse agreement should be unique, he argued.

> A HIGH-VOLUME real estate practice may be more difficult to establish than it would appear, he said. But Helmkamp agreed that offer-topurchase agreements are tradition-

Helmkamp said although generalizations are difficult, two areas that differ significantly from sale to sale are the items to be left by the seller and the length and type of occupancy

Net pay sets credit load

Are the holiday purchases you joyfully charged in December coming back to haunt you in the form of monthly charge account statements?

If the bottom line on your credit card bills makes you shiver, you're not alone. The average American owes approximately $1,600 in unpaid revolving debt. For many consumers, that amount is simply too high.

You can determine how much you can carry safely by dividing the amount owed on your credit cards by your annual take-home pay. Under a formula devised by the Farmington Hills-based Michigan Association of CPAs, multiply that result by 100 to get a percentage. The number you arrive at should be no higher than 15 to 20 percent of your annual salary.

For example, Bob's annual takehome pay is $15,000. He owes $3,500 on various credit cards. By dividing his debt ($3,500) by his take-home pay ($15,000), you arrive at .23 or 23 percent. In other words, Bob is over his head in debt.

EVEN IF your current level of debt is hovering below the danger zone, you may be headed for credit trouble. Here are some warning signs to watch out for:

• You take cash advances on credit cards to meet current bills.

 You ignore your credit limits. You charge daily expenses, such as groceries or gasoline.

• When you eat out with friends, you ask them for cash and pay with your credit card.

 You buy items on impulse. • You can't meet the minimum payment on your cards. It's getting harder to pay your debts on time.

• You have to postdate checks so your payments won't bounce.

 Your savings account is slowly disappearing.

If you identify with these statements, it's time to take some lessons in debt management.

First, hide your credit cards from yourself. Forget they exist. If your mail brings you a tempting application for a pre-approved credit card with a limit of $5,000, tear it up: Don't assume that the lender knows your financial situation better than you do. If you are already drowning in credit, another card will only drag you deeper into

IN MANY CASES, debt consolidation via a home equity loan may provide you with an organized way to pay off debt within a specified time period. But if you are truly addicted to credit, the chances are simply too good that such loans will lull you into believing that you have paid your debts and can now resume charging.

Another option is to draw up an austerity budget to see if you can squeeze more cash free to pay your obligations. Try to pay off more than the minimum owed on each of your credit cards. The only way to reduce your balance is by paying off any new charges in full, plus the interest and at least a portion of the previous month's balance.

If you simply cannot find the money to meet your bills, you will probably need help from a CPA or credit counselor. There are more than 350 non-profit consumer credit counseling service that belong to the National Foundation for Consumer Credit and can help you work out a payment plan with your creditors. The non-profit counselors charge only a nominal fee or, in some cases, no fee. For a directory, write to the NFCC at 8701 George Ave., Suite 507, Silver Spring, Md. 20910.

The credit counselor will help you come up with a budget and negotiate repayment terms with your ceditors.

MAURICE HICHARDS, executive vice president of the South Oakland County Board of Realtors, said Realtors are generally in favor of buyers and sellers consulting legal counsel prior to a house sale.

A house is, after all, a big invest-ment for the buyer and a major transaction for the seller so legal advice ensuring that all sides interpret the agreement the same way is not unwelcome

This is especially true in the sale of larger houses, where enormous amounts of money are involved, he said. "We haven't seen a great rise in the number of (buyers) hiring attorneys except for (in sales involving) high-priced properties, which have been seiling rapidly in recent years." •Heimkamp, of Heimkamp, Ellis & Abraham, said the concept of a "Digh-volume real estate" practice is foreign to him and it's difficult to evaluate the idea so early in the pro-

In 90 percent of the real estate cases he takes, Helmkamp said he writes the offer-to-purchase from preximately 48 hours and generally costs between $350 and $400.

Heimkamp added he doubts a dume real estate practice would deal with the finer aspects of real estate law. Offer to purchase revisions after the signing, breach of contracts and other common prob-lems might be beyond the scope of such a service.

LARGE SALES with intense negotiations might also be beyond the scope of a practice specializing in offers to purchase, he said.

Home Buyer First's Krafsur said not everyone needs help in buying a house. In fact, the majority of house sales go smoothly.

But then there are the horror stories," Krafsur said, adding he anticipates most clients will be secondtime buyers who learned the need for an ally the first time they buy a house

Richards said while legal advice is welcome, some sellers may resent a buyer coming in with an offer-topurchase contract provided by an attorney

The standard offer-to-purchase agreement has stood the test of time and been defended in the court system, Richards said, Realtors and sellers are comfortable with it.

If a buyer presents a completely new agreement, the seller will have to judge whether it's worth the cost of hiring an attorney to review the new document.

Sellers are less likely to object to changes in the standard offer to purchase than to a buyer-provided offer-to-purchase agreement, Richards said. It is also possible, he added, that a seller will reject anything but the standard offer-to-purchase agreement if he believes he can sell the house to someone willing to take

Which is why Tony rented a Fer rari for the wedding.

As it turned out, the rental business in 308 Perraris is a little slow for Hertz, but Tony found a guy who ran a one-car lease business out of his garage, charging rates in the neighborhood of renting a light airplane

An owner with mental blinders will kill soundest small business

All of us have a tendency to become locked into standard ways of doing things. This locked-in approach is the result of finding a comfort zone in which to conduct our daily lives.

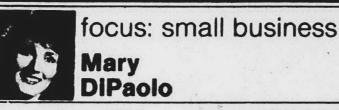

As a result, change can come to represent a threat that individuals avoid. Instead of viewing change as a positive or necessary step toward growth, people prefer to maintain the status quo no matter the consequences.

Business owners and managers who cling to the comfortable way of conducting business often do so long after it becomes outdated, inefficient, and detrimental to the future of the enterprise.

Regardless of the type of business, owners and managers will focus attention on whatever needs to be done immediately. This behavior is often a result of survival.

MOST WILL say they are open to and encourage change, but when faced with doing so, they find change threatens what they are doing today. All too often we permit ourselves to be bound by real-world constraints Before we have a chance to anticipate what might be better or different, we quickly avoid new ideas based on real work concerns. If you hear yourself constantly saying, "It won't work" or "That's not practical" or "We can't afford it" before you've had a chance to think a new idea through, then you've developed a reactive rather than proactive philosophy toward your business.

All creative, progressive thinking that results in effective change starts with the "what-if" process. Asking yourself "what-if" questions is an ideal way to get your imagination started.

IT FORCES you to think beyond the immediate confinements of operating your business. The purpose of the "what-if" process is to force yourself to think differently.

If you question a situation that is an immediate concern to you or your business, the process won't be as effective

To become skilled in the "what-if" creative thinking process, go away by yourself for an hour or so and write down "what-if" questions. Talk to yourself and record your answers on paper. Let your imagination go.

Look for new possibilities in any situation and refrain from appraising your answers. Be as free with yourself and your thinking as possible. By doing so, you will begin to remove many of the deeply ingrained and often inaccurate assumptions you have about yourself, your work and your business.

"What-if" thinking will help generate ideas that can later be realistically evaluated for future consideration

Movin' Theatre on road again

Dy Cathie Breid special writer

MAGINE THE BEST toe-tapping dance tunes from 70 years of Broadway's hit musicals in one show.

Wayne State University's traveling dance troupe called Movin' Theatre celebrates song and dance in its new touring show, "Decades of Broadway Dance."

Bill Wilson of Troy, who is getting his master's degree in directing, coordinates bookings and productions for the company. He says there's quite a bit of singing in the current, high-energy, narrated pro-duction. "Decades" brings together a lineup of the shows that have lit up Broadway marquees and broken house records since the 1920s.

Highlights include the Charleston from the '20s jitterbug from the '40s, a hand-jive number from "Grease" from the '50s and a tap routine from "42nd Street," plus show-stopping tunes from "Singin' in the Rain," "Peter Pan," "A Chorus Line," "Grease," "Applause," "Gypsy," "West Side Story," "Cats" and "Sweet Charity."

EVERY TUESDAY for the next 14 weeks, Movin' Theatre will take to the road to perform at assemblies and workshops at schools, community centers and senior citizen complexes in Southeastern Michigan. Occasionally the Detroit troupe has danced as far from its Wayne State home base as Canada or Ohio.

When Movin' Theatre performs at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts or at the Detroit Institute of Arts Youtheatre, busloads of students from 30-35 schools come to see the fast-paced show. In recent years, the troupe performed at the Fine Foods Festival at Detroit's Hart Plaza and on TV's "Good Afternoon Detroit." It christened a fountain at the Detroit Institute of Arts by dancing in the water.

Nira Pullin, artistic director and choreographer for Movin' Theatre, founded the company in 1977. As a member of Wayne State's theater faculty, she "wanted more opportu- times means fencing.

nities for dancers. I saw so much talent.

> Most years the university Theatre Department presents one musical and a Christmas show with dancing. "I realized that performers needed more training and performing op-portunities in dance," Pullin says, so she started the all-student troupe.

> Movin' Theatre's shows in previous years traced the history of dance through the ages - beginning with Medieval dances of knights and ladies and stepping delicately through the lace-cuff refinement of the Baroque era, to the swirling grace of waltzes into the emphatic beat of '80s music.

> WHEN THE TROUPE put on a workshop, schools sometimes specified interest in a particular era. In addition to teaching a dance and etiquette from the time, the troupe brought costumes and dressed someone in the clothing of the period. Workshops accommodate up to 50 students who may learn the Charleston, the frug or how to do a simple tap routine.

> The WSU theater program aims to familiarize students with a sampling of dances, clothing and etiquette from many eras to prepare them for the varied roles they may play in their acting careers.

Pullin explains, "We're not a traditional dance company because we're part of the Theatre Department." Plays are set in all eras so, We do all phases of dance - all time eras.'

When plump Victoria reigned in England, ladies wore long, full crinolines and flirted with fans. Modern actresses trying out for plays set in Victorian times must move and sit gracefully in voluminous anklelength petticoats and learn to affect the correct, demure "availability" with a fluttering fan.

Actors studying Victorian times learn how to bow correctly and how to take snuff as Victorian gentlemen did. Every era has its dances, its protocol and its fighting styles. Wayne's Theatre Movement classes include fight choreography, which some-

AN ACTOR who couldn't wield a sword with daring grace wouldn't stand a chance in auditions for Cyrano or Mercutio. Fight choreography and fencing demonstrations remain all-time favorites with student audiences, Pullin says. "They love the active ones best."

Kate Kenney, a troupe member from Rochester, says audiences so far this year "like the upbeat songs best." Her personal favorite is the tap number from "42nd Street" because, "It's fun to make the music with your feet." She says she joined the company to learn to pick up dances easily. "I've learned all different styles of dances, so when I go to an audition and they want a tap dance, I have one and can whip it out, or if they want a Bob Fosse style dance, I know one."

Back in 1977, when Pullin started Movin' Theatre, she realized, "There was a market, because I kept getting calls." The enthusiastic market for dance holds steady year after year, and after a season off, the troupe is booked this year for nearly all regular Tuesday shows as well as for some workshops and special events including a performance for the university's Hillberry Theatre.

'But we do have some time left," Pullin says. The group is in such demand that, "If I could take students out of school, I could book them full time." Students, however, juggle other Bonstelle classes and outside work schedules with the troupe's bookings. Members receive performing credit for their labor of love but no pay.

The current company is composed mostly of students majoring in theater, Besides Kenney, it includes another Observer & Eccentric area resident, Michael Serapiglia of Troy. Other troupe members are David Figlioli of Sterling Heights, Annessa Kortes of St. Clair Shores, Allen McCoy of Okemos, Scott Peerbolte of Highland, Jennifer Potocki of Warren, Robin L. Urban of Dearborn, Brent Vance of Detroit and Tracy Washburn of Romeo.

Movin' Theatre dance troupe begins 14 weeks of traveling spring to be part of the troupe. Last fall they worked up the show and ended the semester with a few shake-down performances. During the current winter semester, the troupe performs every Tuesday, often combining a morning show with a movement and dance workshop in the afternoon.

Movin' Theatre charges $500 for a 45-minute show and $100-$150 for a one-hour workshop. Proceeds from performances don't completely cover expenses, however. Pullin says, "People don't realize how much it costs to mount a show."

Transportation, costumes, sets, musical tapes and promotions add up. "One pair of jazz shoes costs $45. We just hope to break even," she says. This year the troupe received a grant from the Dayton Hudson Corp. to help defer expenses.

Bill Wilson coordinates the multiple details of taking the show on the road, which includes arranging transportation for the troupe, the set and costumes. The set must be transported to the site and assembled and struck for every show.

Richard L. Anderson designed 20 lightweight, aluminum parts that make a three-part Broadway marquee to frame the performing area. The side panels act as curtains for entrances and exits and dressing rooms for the quick-change costumes designed by Paula Trimpey.

Kate Kenney describes the basic costumes as Units tops in coordinated, mixmatched colors worn with leotards. Costumes changes for each dance often entail "just adding on little things to set the time of the dance." For '50s, the women wear poodle skirts and sweaters. Kitten ears and mitten paws transform the troupe into felines for the "Cats" number. Uncomplicated costumes and a lightweight, easily assembled set are a necessity for a "road show" that brings Broadway's best dances to a different school or community organization every week.

Gershwin musical 'Oh, Kay!' a cure for winter doldrums

Performances of "Oh, Kay! continue through Sunday, Feb. 4, at the Birmingham Theatre. For ticket information call 644-3533

By Barbars Michaels staff writer

Irrepressible Gershwin songs and dazzling dance routines make "Oh, Kay?" at the Birmingham Theatre a guaranteed cure for the post-holiday blahs. The show is pure infectious fun, so energetic it should be bottled as a tonic.

· Co-produced with the Birmingham Theatre by the Goodspeed Opera House of Connecticut, which specialtzes in breathing new life into vintage musicals, 'Oh, Kay!' is beginning its national tour here before eventually heating for Broadway.

The 1926 misical had its setting moved from the original Long Island (a la Gatsby) te Harlem (a la the Cotton Club) and given an all-black cast. The transformation works beautifully, suitable to he jazzy score and the music-hall-type humor that pervades the dippy plot.

Kay (Pamela Issacs) is a nightclub singer at a Harlem speakeasy who becomes entangled in the club's attempt to hide its latest shipment of contraband booze from a police raid. Somehow the stuff gets stashed at the mansion of wealthy playboy Jimmy Winter (Ron Richardson), who happens to have fallen in love with

review

Kay years ago and has been seeking her ever since

IN THE MEANTIME Jimmy has acquired at least one wife too many (a long story). The comedy ensues as he tries to unsnarl his life, Kay tries to eliminate her competition, and the bootleggers try to protect the booze from being discovered. In between, the kids from the club drop in to dance up a storm.

Richardson and Issacs make an enormously appealing couple, as good to look at as they are to listen to. Richardson doesn't really get a chance to demonstrate the vocal depth and power of his Tony-winning performance in "Big River," but he is believable in the role and handles the ballads with ease.

Isaacs, who reminds one of a young Lena Horne, has a fine comic flair as well as vocal strength. Besides being flirtatious Kay, she poses as a meddlesome maid and a Latin bombshell, changing vocal inflections convincingly.

While Richardson and Isaacs delightfully croon "Someone to Watch Over Me," "Do, Do, Do" and several other less familiar but equally lovely tunes, it is the dancers who really energize the show. Led by the talented Stanley Wayne Mathis and Mar-on J. Caffey as the song-and-dance team who own the Harlem club, the ensemble's frenetic footwork leaves the audience nearly as breathless as the dancers

"Clap Yo' Hands," "Fidgety Feet" (an exuberant Charleston) and "Show Me the Town" allow the dancers to strut their stuff to Dan Siretta's wonderful choreography. Siretta also conceived the new version of the show and handles the musical staging

SURELY THE MOST lovable character in the production is Helmar Augustus Cooper as Shorty, the head bootlegger who poses as Jimmy's butler to keep an eye on the hidden booze. With his merry eyes. pudgy figure, and droll delivery. Cooper manages to make the creaky vaudevillian jokes work without undue camp. He is a constant delight whenever he appears, and happily he appears a good deal.

Brenda Pressly is convincing as Jimmy's stodgy fiancee Constance, and Alexander Barton is imposing as her even-straighter-laced father, the Rev. DuGrass. One wishes his grand operatic voice could be utilized more. Mark Kenneth Smaltz is both menacing and amusing as the everlurking authority figure.

Judy Dearing's costumes and Kenneth Foy's sets, especially the stunning red-hot opening drop, are first rate. Director Martin Connor's pacing and Ted Kociolek's musical direction also are flawless.

Leslie West's new album is called "Alligator."

By Larry O'Cenner staff writer

What do you say to an artist who puts a recipe for alligator chili on his album? For starters, you might offer him a breath mint.

"You ought to try it sometime," said guitarist and chef Leslie West, who performs Thursday, Jan. 25, at the Ritz in Roseville.

Well, we'll pass. Besides, musical palates are geared more to West's latest release on I.R.S. Records, aptly titled "Alligator."

For West, the new LP is a challenge, mainly because he first thought he was doing an instrumental project.

West joined other guitar legends like Robbie Krieger on I.R.S.'s "Guitar Speak" project this past summer. I.R.S. president Miles Copeland asked West to do a solo album with vocals.

No problem. The former member of Mountain ("Mississippi Queen ") jumped into the studio with the likes of Concrete Blonde's Johnette Napolitano and world-renowned bassist Stanley Clarke.

Along with his own material, West puts his touch on classics such as Bobby Darin's "Dream Lover" and Screamin' Jay Hawkins' "I Put a Spell on You."

'It sounds pretty good to me," West said about the album. "I wanttones: hard, heavy and soft. So each could stand on its ows."

EACH NUMBER stands on its own for other reasons, primarily through the help of Clarke. It was a "thrill" to work with the bassist, West said. West has worked with a few, including Jack Bruceand the late Felix Pappalardi

"He's brilliant," West said about Clarke. "He's one of many great bass players I've been able to play with It's probably done more good for me than them. After his Mountain days, West got together with Mick Jones to form the Leslie West Band. He eventually 'fired" Jones, who went on to form Foreigner. West then got his act together, getting off drugs. He tried to reform Mountain with little luck. Lately, he has been the musical director for the scourge-and-offend crowd of Sam Kinison and former Detroit disc jockey Howard Stern.

West is contracted to do four LPs with I.R.S. With one lone, there's three to go. He's not sure what the next one will sound like.

"I'll probably play guitar," West said

Leslie West will perform Thursday, Jan 25, at the Ritz 17580 Frazho, Rosevule. For information, call 778-8150.

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it. Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

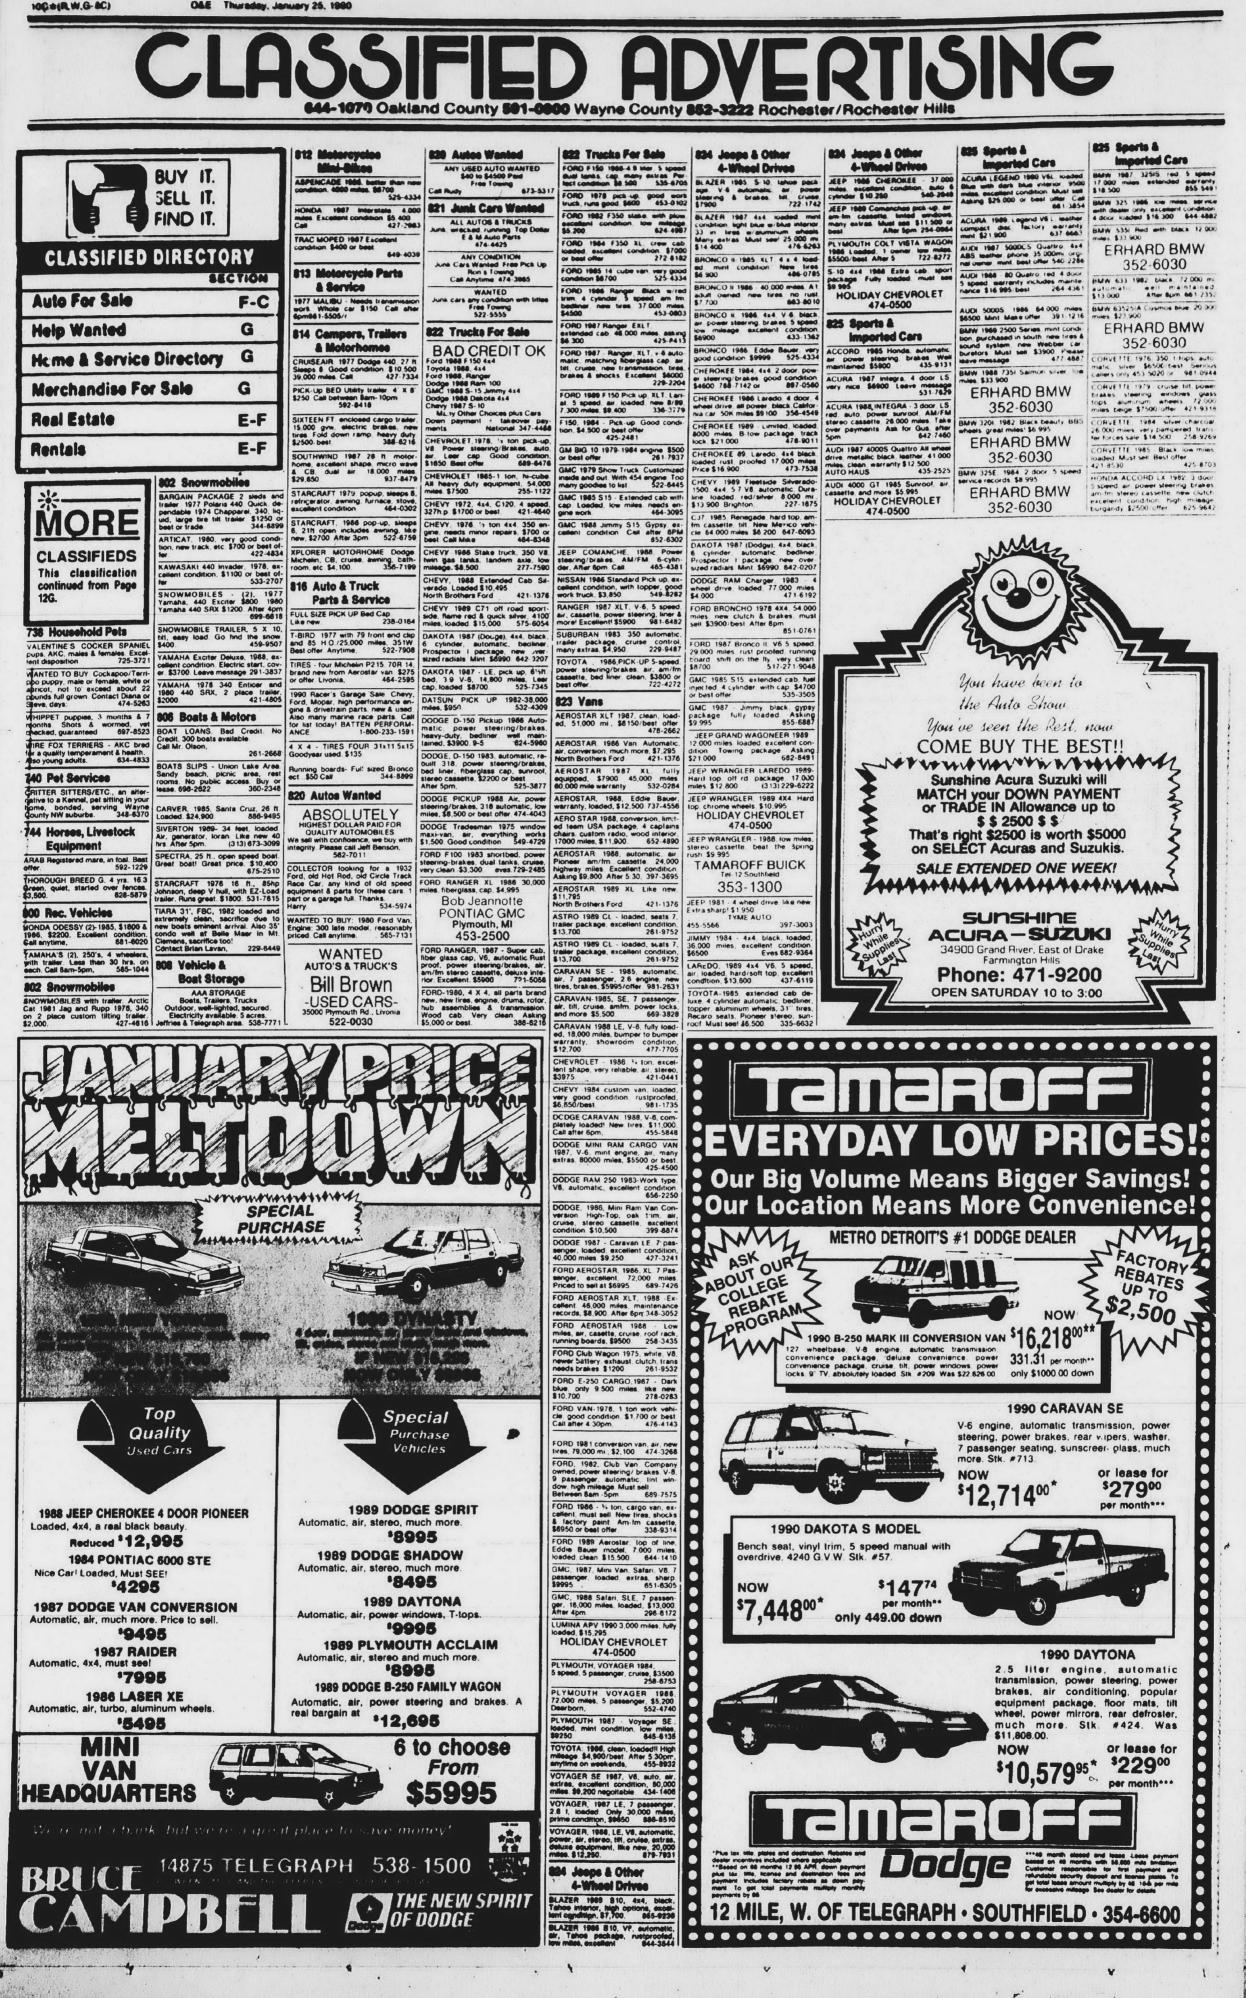

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

Chiefs topple North

Plymouth Canton had never beaten perennial power North Farmington in a gymnastics dual meet

That was until Monday night when the Chiefs snapped a 12year unlucky streak with a comefrom-behind victory.

Canton scored 135.85 in its own gym, and the Raiders achieved a season high of 135.45.

The Chiefs improved to 3-0, while defending Western Lakes Activities Association champion North dipped to 3-2.

"My team was ecstactic," Canton coach John Cunningham said. "My teams have always wanted to beat North, and we knew we had a real good chance at them.

"It was one of those meets that was a real heart pounder all the way.

THE RAIDERS jumped in front with an impressive showing on the vault. Canton closed the gap on the uneven bars and balance beam and pulled out the victory with a strong performance in floor exercise.

The Chiefs won only one event, capturing the meet with their depth. That was all the more difficult, yet impressive, since Canton lost junior Heather Murphy to a migraine headache just before the meet was to start.

Jenny Tedesco had Canton's lone first on bars (8.6). North's Kym Heller and Heather Kahn tied for first place on beam (8.5), with Heller also winning the floor exercise (9.4) and Kahn the vault (9.5)

Canton's Kim Rennolds set a school record on vault, breaking her own standard of 9.20 with a third-place score of 9.25. Jameelah Gater of North was fourth (8.7).

Plymouth Canton girls soccer coach Don Smith hoped Jenny Russell would get some recognition for what he thought was a fine junior season in 1989.

But neither he nor Russell had any idea it would go this far.

Russell received All-America honors recently as a member of the National Soccer Coaches Association MET Life's third team.

'I was just pleased she was voted all-conference," Smith said. Not only did Russell make the All-

Western Lakes Activities Association team, she was named the No. 1 player in the state, which qualified her for automatic All-America consideration

"I WASN'T surprised she was chosen No. 1, but I was surprised she was chosen over some girls who'd already been all-state." Smith said. You know how the voting goes at these meetings.

"Evidently, the coaches felt, as I did, she was a super player. She's definitely deserving. She's a hard worker and sets a perfect example for all the kids."

Russell, a center striker who scored 19 goals and assisted on 13 others last year, is flattered to be placed in such distinguished compa-

"I never really expected it, because Michigan is only one state out of 50, and everybody puts their top player into the pool," Russell said.

"It's a great honor, especially when you go down South and the quality of players they have down there. To be put in a category with them is something special."

Russell, who led the Chiefs to a second straight district championship and 14-3 record, passed some of the credit along to her teammates.

Jenny Russell

"IT WAS A real nice year." she said. "One player will stand out and get the recognition, but I think we had a real team concept.

"You know you're only as good as the team, and I was lucky to have a good team around me."

Russell - the only Michigan player honored by the national committee, which selects six All-America teams - believes she'll be just another player on the field next spring.

"I don't think there will be pressure," she said. "I think I've been the same type of player throughout my career. Some years you get recognition and some you don't. I think I've been pretty consistent."

Russell has played on the varsity since she was a freshman and has career totals of 36 goals and 32 assists. She was a midfielder her first year and played a wing in 1988 when

And to think Plymouth Salem coach Ron Krueger questioned whether the Rocks had enough depth.

Salem. despite not having a full lineup for the Schaible Invitational, placed wrestlers among the six in nine weight classes Saturday and won the highly competitive tournament at Lansing Sexton.

"There were some real good teams there, and we didn't have all of our people," Krueger said. "Besides the first places, you need the seconds, thirds and fourths to win a tournament like that.

"Still, we have some real good kids in our lineup, but I didn't think we had the overall depth. Luckily, (the other teams) were pretty good, and that balanced it out."

The Rocks, who won their third tournament, topped the 12-team field with 159 points. The host Big Reds were second (148), with Clarkston (134<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>), Brighton (129), Muskegon Mona Shores (120) and Charlotte (1154) rounding out the first division. Livonia Churchill was 11th.

SOME OF the "real good kids" in the Salem lineup were meet champions Steve Burlison (160), Pete Israel (171) and Brian Burlison. Churchill's Eric Shellenbarger was the 152-pound winner.

Salem's Dan Bonnett was runner-up at 112, and Scott Martin (103) and Julian Sell (130) won consolation titles. Jeff Shumate (140) placed fourth, heavyweight Ken Coker fifth and Ken Stopa (125) sixth.

Churchill also had two fourth-place wrestlers. Craig Sheply (112) and Casey Krause (130).

The Rocks didn't have Charlie Apigian (152), who missed the tournament with a back injury, and heavyweight Scott Breithaupt, who was sidelined with a concussion.

Salem still didn't have Ron Miller (145), who becomes eligible now in the second semester, and Kevin Smith (119), who suffered a broken wrist in the first week of the season

Plymouth Salem senior Ryan Johnson has given Eastern Michigan a verbal commitment to play college football for the Hurons. High school players can't officially commit until the national signing date of Wednesday, Feb. 14. EMU recruited the 6-foot-2, 216-pound Johnson as a fullback. See story on Pege 3D.

Exercise regimen helps Falcons defeat Canton

by Ray Bottock staft writer

It's not often a bankethall coach credits a victory to an aero-bics class, but Parmington coach Bob Kaump did Tuesday af-ter the Palcons best Plymouth Caston 67-60. Kaump says conditioning allowed his team to be effective in the second half and improve to .560 against Western Lakes Activities Association teams. Farmington, which rebounded from a 20-0 deficit Tuesday, is 4-5 overall and 3-3 in the WLAA. The Chiefs fall to 5-4 and 3-2.

"We are in good physical shape," Kaump said. "Every Wednesday and Friday, Kathy Lipa comes in and leads the team through an aerobic workout. She really works them hard. I think our conditioning from these workouts helped us in tonight's game.

Kaump also credits his team's press for wearing down Canton and forcing the Chiefs to take bad shots.

"We stayed in our different presses throughout the game. I think that made it tough on them, and we were able to close the gap.

CANTON COACH Dave VanWagoner also believes Farmington's press contributed to his team's downfall.

"The Farmington press really hurt us tonight," VanWagoner said. "I believe they played aggressive defense and, therefore, got all the loose balls and rebounds. They wanted this game more than we did. I am disappointed in my team." The Falcons struggled early, trailing 20-9 after the first quarter and 44-40 at halftime.

"Our first half really had me baffled. In so many of our games this season, we play bad early and then come back. I guess we are just not a good first-half team."

Parmington applied its press at the outset of the second half, forcing Canton to make had passes and numerous turnovers. With 5:14 remaining in the third quarter, Farmington's Brian Browne hit a jumper to give the Falcons their first lead, 35-34.

Browne led Farmington's offensive attack, scoring a gamehigh 17 points. He scored eight straight in the fourth quarter to help the Falcons seal the victory.

"WE GO to Browne when we need some quick baskets," Kaump said. "When he scored eight straight, we really needed the points. The kids look for him. He is a good 1-on-1 player. Brian Browne is not just an offensive player. He can also hurt teams with his tenacious defense."

Greg Bjedov contributed 16 points for the Falcons. P.J. Green and Eric Miller added 12 and 10, respectively. "P.J. Green played well for us at both ends of the floor. He and Chris Schmid played good defen Karl Wukie led the Chiefs with 15 points. Tony Coshatt had 12, and Kevin Holmes had 10.

The Chiefs tried to play Farmington's fast-paced style of basketball and at times that hurt them, VanWagoner said. 'We are not a run-and-gun team," VanWagoner said. "Anytime we run and gun, we get into trouble, and tonight it was evident when Farmington pressed. Sometimes we were out of control.

Plymouth Salem's front line was too much Tuesday for host Livonia Franklin.

The Rocks overpowered Franklin underneath the boards, 68-58, and improved to 8-1 overall. The Patriots dropped to 4-5.

Junior forward K.C., Kirkpatrick scored 19 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the way. Junior center Jake Baker and senior center Ryan Johnson added 11 each. (Baker also grabbed 12 rebounds.)

They (Salem) had nice production from their front line," said Franklin coach Rod Hanna.

FITZPATRICK, another 6-2 junior, was in the first platoon that started the Hawks on their way in the first half.

It didn't take Ryan Johnson very tong to make up his mind. Though he was being wooed by a number of college football programs, the Plymouth Salem star committed to the first school he visited Eastern Michigan

Johnson visited the Ypsilanti campus the weekend of Jan. 13-14 and decided that was where he wanted to go, turning down offers to visit Toledo, Wyoming, Cincinnati and Western Michigan.

At first, I left all my options open, but I realized Eastern was the place for me," Johnson said. "I also wanted my family to come and see me play, so they were pretty excited when I picked Eastern."

The 6-foot-2, 216-pound Johnson played halfback in Salem's wishbone offense and was a middle linebacker on defense, but EMU recruited him as a fullback

JOHNSON rushed for 704 yards and 15 touchdowns on 127 carries as the Rocks compiled an 8-1 record and just missed qualifying for the Class A playoffs last year.

When (EMU coach Jim Harkema) sat me down in his office, he said they'd start me at fullback and go from there," Johnson said. "That's what I played ever since Little League, and I'm pretty excited about

"You never know 'til you get there, but they have a shortage of fullbacks and that's where they're going to play me. It doesn't matter as long as I get to play." Tight end and linebacker (inside or outside) also were discussed as possible positions for Johnson, who made 68 tackles, intercepted three passes and recovered three fumbles, returning one for a touchdown, on defense.

Johnson played a number of positions during a three-year varsity career at Salem. He was a fullback in his sophomore year and started his junior season at quarterback before moving permanently to halfback last fall. For two years, he was the starting strong safety on defense.

"I figured his best position on of-fense would be fullback," Salem coach Tom Moshimer said. "He was a natural fullback, and he would have been our fullback if we didn't have (Pat) Bowie. It was a little unfair to Ryan, but we used him where he could help the team."

MOSHIMER is confident Johnson will do well, wherever the EMU coaching staff decides to play him.

"I don't care where they put him. I think he's going to be a success for them," he said. "Eastern is Division I, but the Big Ten is a notch above - and I think he's potentially a Big Ten school's period of football resurgence. Harkema took over the program when it was in shambles in 1983 and guided EMU to its first Mid-American Conference championship and a California Bowl victory in 1987. The Hurons have been MAC contenders ever since.

former area players Mike Boyle (Redford St. Agatha) and Bryan Wauldron (Farmington Hills Harrison) during his visit to EMU, was impressed by Harkema.

"GREAT GUY, great guy," Johnson said. "We shook hands when I told him I wanted to go to Eastern. It was kind of a man-to-man thing. "They offered me a scholarship on Saturday (during his official visit). I slept on it a night, talked it over with my mother and decided that's where I wanted to go.

Before he reports to EMU for preseason practice, Johnson - along with fellow area stars Mill Coleman of Harrison and Ryan Bell of Redford Catholic Central - will play for the East in the annual high school all-star game in early August.

Mill Coleman said Michigan State coach George Peries' decision to remain in East Lansing puts him back to Square One. MSU is one of three schools the All-American quarterback is considering, the other two being Michigan and Colorado

But, if Perles had left to become coach of the New York Jets, it would have upset the apple cart as the Farmington Hills Harrison senior tries to decide where to play his college football

Perles, however, will continue as coach of the Spartans since the MSU Board of Trustees voted Tuesday night to give him the athletic director's job in addition to his current duties as football coach.

"(Perles) said he was going to call me tonight and tell me what the situation is." Coleman said after playing in a basketball game at Harrison High School Tuesday night.

"I KNOW as much as everybody else I know he has the votes to be athletic director

"It stabilizes my recruiting situa-tion again. If he had left, I don't know what the situation would have been at Michigan State, and I wouldn't have had much flexibility because I was only looking at three schools

Coleman said Perles' decision to stay won't cause him to decide before he visits Michigan this weekend

It brings my recruiting situation back to the way it was before," he said

Coleman, considered the top quarterback prospect in the state, said he was surprised Perles apparently thought seriously of leaving MSU since he turned down an offer from the Green Bay Packers several vears ago.

He added he didn't believe Perles was merely using the Jets' job as a means of forcing the MSU Trustees to make him athletic director, too.

'I don't think he's that type of person," Coleman said. "I think the Jets wanted him, and he just went there to listen to them.

CC lineman heads south to Nashville

By Brad Emons staff writer

Heralded Redford Catholic Central tackle Ryan Bell found the Nashville sound to his liking Monday, verbally committing to Vanderbilt University of the Southeastern Conference.

The All-Stater, a 6-foot-3, 235-pound senior, is the first of two All-Observer gridders to make his intentions known this week.

Plymouth Salem's Ryan Johnson, a 6-3, 215-pound fullback/linebacker, announced he will sign with Eastern Michigan University.

Wednesday, Feb. 14, is the first day high school seniors can sign binding national letters of intent.

Although he is not a country fan, Bell's visit last weekend to the academically acclaimed private school in Nashville was music to his ears.

"I see them as having a good future athletically," Bell said. "They started a lot of freshman and sophomores last year.

"They also have a great engineering program, something that Boston College (where Bell also visited) didn't have. It's a great city (Nashville) and a great campus (Vandy). I'm going somewhere where they want me to play. It's the best conference in the country, too. The teams speak for themselves.

BELL, WHO helped lead CC to a 7-2 record last season, will be the first CC player under coach Tom Mach to sign with an SEC school. He carries a 29 GPA.

In other related news, CC wide receiver/defensive back Mike Mathis is leaning toward the University of Cincinnati, but is also planning visits to Boston College and Central Michigan.

All-Observer tailback Dave Owens, also of CC, reportedly has been offered a scholarship by Boston University, but is also considering Navy.

Livonia Churchill linebacker Trent Naumcheff is making a visit this weekend to CMU, where he could join brother Brett, the team's long snapper.

Wayne Memorial's pair of standouts, end Larry Johnson and back Pierre Hixon, are also being pursued.

Johnson has visited Western Michigan, but is also talking with Toledo, Bowling Green, CMU and the University of Louisville.

Dawson siblings have same goal at UM-Dearborn

By Dan O'Mears staff writer

40(P.C)

Divisions among family members is always an emotional issue. In the case of the Dawson family, it also makes choosing sides impossible for the neutral parties. That's why Al Dawson of Plymouth is glad his sons, hockey players Steve and Brian, are on the same team once again.

Steve, a defenseman, and Brian, a wing, play for the University of Michigan-Dearborn and have contributed to the success of the Wolves, who boast a 17-8-1 record.

It wasn't always that way. When they began their college careers, Steve and Brian were on opposing sides.

Steve played for UM-D, but Brian started out at Kent State. After being named Rookie of the Year there in 1987-88. Brian left KSU following his implication in a hazing incident involving hockey players

He subsequently transferred to UM-D and, with that episode behind him, has fit in well with the Wolves. Brian is the team's secondleading goal scorer, and Steve, a junior and three-year starter, is an assistant captain who recently made the school's all-academic team.

THE DAWSON brothers and their UM-D teammates face their greatest challenge Saturday when they play No. 1-ranked Michigan State at 7:30 p.m. in Munn Ice Arena

"Morn (Susan) and I will be there," Al Dawson said, adding they have only one team to cheer for now

"I like it a lot better. We used to have to sit on the red line, and that

hockey

first year they played each other six times. It was sort of maddening to be rooting for two teams.

"(The brothers) came in contact with each other quite a bit. It was the classic confrontation on the ice, with Brian playing right wing and Steve defenseman. They were running into each other quite often."

Brian played with a broken hand for five weeks, but the crack in the bone was only recently discovered. That caused him to miss the recent trip to Alaska, but he'll be fitted with a rubber cast Saturday and will play against the Spartans.

Steve, meanwhile, has been busier than usual on ice. He's been playing nearly 40 minutes a game because of an injury to another defenseman.

BOTH HAVE been playing together on UM-D's power-play unit, and Steve has figured prominently in penalty-killing situations.

The Alaskan trip is also the only one Al and Susan Dawson haven't made. They've traveled to Maine. New York and Colorado to watch their sons play this season.

"It's just like when (former Salem and U-M baseball star) Scott (Dawson) pitched," Al Dawson said. 'If he pitched, we were there."

And the travel has been rewarding from a hockey standpoint, as evidenced by UM-D's record. The Wolves, playing an independent schedule, have beaten Division I opponents Air Force and Alaska-Fairbanks and have played Maine, Western Michigan and Miami of Ohio.

CC trio paces victory

The line of Jesse Hubenschmidt, Paul Pirronello and Keith Bozyk clicked on Saturday, carrying Redford Catholic Central (10-2-2) to a big victory over Grosse Pointe North in a Michigan Metro High School Hockey League game at the Redford Ice Arena, 7-3.

Of CC's 63 goals this season, the trio of Hubenschmidt, Pirronello and Bozyk have combined for 43.

After a scoreless opening period, CC jumped out to a 3-1 lead on pair of goals by Hubenschmidt, both efforts assisted by Bozyk and Pirronello. Pirronello then scored at 12:38 to make it 3-1 (Bozyk assisted).

In the final period, CC scored four more times.

Matt Keenan made it 4-1 from Sean Cartwright and Greg Oszust, while Bozyk, from Pirronello and Hubenschmidt, gave CC a 5-1 advantage.

The Shamrocks added two more before the final horn - Hubenschmidt's third of the night from Pirronello and Bozyk; and Pirronello, Rocks capture 3rd tourney title

The Rocks have their most important dual meet Thursday when they visit league rival Westland John Glenn, but Krueger expressed con-cern about Salem not having a healthy team for that contest.

"IF WE GET anybody close, we're going to hold them (out), because this is only a dual meet," Krueger said The Western Lakes Activities Association meet will be Saturday, Feb. 3, at Glenn.

'But we're sure not going to try and lose it. Neither is (Glenn coach Tom Buckalew) because he's having Parents Night that night."

Steve Burlison's easiest match was the final in which he pinned Brighton's Shannon Browne in 52 seconds. He pinned Damon Michelson of Clarkston (5:37) in the semifinals and defeated Holly's Ryan Croney 9-2.

Israel won three straight decisions: 7-3 over East Detroit's Brian Ratz in the final, 7-2 over East Kentwood's Steve Oliver and 13-7 over Charlotte's Brad Harvey.

Brian Burlison pinned Ron Roberts of Holly (1:42) and scored a technical fall over Earl Pitchford of Charlotte (16-0) before taking the championship with a 9-3 defeat of

Salem routs WLC

Plymouth Salem wrestlers won 11 of 13 matches Tuesday, nine by pin as the Rocks crushed host Walled Lake Central, 61-10.

Scott Martin started strong for Salem, pinning Jay Davenport in 1:36. Dan Bonnett followed with a pin over Mike Grisson in 3:54, giving the Rocks a quick 12-0 lead.

Ken Stopa recorded Salem's next victory, at 125 pounds, with a pin over Sean Rock in 4:55. Julian Sell stuck Sean Jaworski in 3:14 of their match at 130, Jeff Coleman earned a 12-7 decision over Central's Barry Brown and Jeff Schumate pinned Anthony Schneider in 1.35 of the 140 match

At 152, Todd Valentine decisioned Tom McBride, 11-3, while Steve Burlison pinned Mike VanVliet in 1:13 at 160.

Salem's Pete Israel flattened Ed Holmes in 30 seconds at 171, Brian Burlison creamed Todd Johnston in 34 seconds at 189 and heavyweight Ken Coker pinned Central's Chuck Hare in 3:35.

SHELLENBARGER, the No. 1 seed who now boasts an 18-1 record, also had three decisions: 9-1 over Notre Dame's Dan Fooks, 5-2 over Holly's Shawn Kukuk Salem's Martin defeated Dan Winohradsky of Holly for a second time Saturday, 6-2 in the consolation final. Bonnett, following a pair of lopsided wins (14-2 and 17-7) lost a 7-6 decision to Sexton's Asante Cain in the 112 final

Now that Salem has won three tournaments and beaten state. ranked teams such as No. 9 Clarks ton and No. 10 East Detroit, the unranked Rocks might begin to get some statewide recognition

"The teams that are ranked in the top 10 aren't the ones that are going to be there at the end," Krueger said Some teams are going to come up and surprise some people.

"You get what you earn. At the beginning, we weren't ready and still aren't ready to go with the big boys We've gotta get some people healthy and get some mat time for them Maybe we'll catch fire at the end.

Salem will battle No. 2 Lake Orion at the Mount Clemens Invitational on Saturday. The second-division teams in the Sexton tournament were East Detroit (113), Holly (74), Harper Woods Notre Dame (70) Benton Harbor (57), Churchill (53) and East Kentwood (37).

Bedford wins CC Invite championship

By Ray Setlock staff writer

Redford Catholic Central wrestling coach Mike Rodriguez sat slumped in his chair. It was almost the end of what he referred to as a long and frustrating day.

The Shamrocks, who have been state contenders for much of the last two decades, were about to finish fifth in Saturday's 26th Annual Catholic Central Invitational.

Temperance Bedford (289 points) won the invitational. They placed 10 wrestlers in the finals and boasted seven champions.

Jason Walling (heavyweight), Louie Tabai (103 pounds), Al Barnhizer (112), Nick Buchanan (130), Marcus Manz (135), Denver Beck (145) and Brian Wingate (171) all won championships for the Mules.

Holt, led by Charles McDowell's championship at 160, finished second with 163 5

RALPH AMINE'S title at 189 and Steve Swarthout's at 119 helped Warren Lincoln to a third place finish with 140.5.

Birmingham Brother Rice settled for fourth, thanks to Jason Lerdahl's championship at 152. He pinned Kurt Achenbach of Milford Lakeland in the second period.

CC finished fifth with 110.5. Senior Jay Helm (140 pounds) won the nly amni guez discussed his frustration about not just the invitational, but the sea-SOD.

"I really thought we would be able to show a little more out here today," Rodriguez said. "Bedford just came in here and ran away with the thing and we had nothing to say about it. In past years, we would have given them something, but not this time." Rodriguez was quick to praise Helm and his efforts.

"HELM IS just outstanding," Rodriguez said. "I am convinced that he is the best in the state. Today he controlled everybody, including McBroom in the finals. Those two have wrestled before and anytime you do that you become more and more familiar with each other. That makes it harder to win because they have seen your moves. Jay did a good job." Heavyweight Bob Sylvester also made it to the finals for CC, but was pinned by Walling in the third peri-

"I think Sylvester is really coming on strong for us," Rodriguez said. 'I'm just afraid it's a little late."

points, salvaged a 10th-place finish. They placed no wrestlers in the finals. Dan Vaughan's third place finish at heavyweight proved to be the Zebras only bright spot.

RODRIGUEZ says the invitational assured one thing and that was how tough Bedford is.

The Raiders swept the next three places after Tedesco on bars. Kahn and Kristin Szutarski tied for second (8.3); and Gater again was fourth (8.25).

Rénnolds and teammate Johanna Anderson share the school record in floor exercise. Both accomplished 9.2 Monday, bettering the 9.05 recorded by teammate Danielle Mirto in the Northville meet. Kahn was second in floor (9.3).

THE TRIO of Kahn, Anderson and Canton's Dawn Clifford tied for second place on beam (8.6).

This is an indication to me how good these kids are," Cunningham said, "We had a good meet, but we had a couple falls on dismount from the beam, and some of our bar s weren't there. We didn't roi swing bars well with the exception of Jenny. "Hut, on floor, we maxed out. It was an exceptional event. We had to do it if we were going to beat them - and we did." Canton also was third in the 16team Rockford Invitational Saturday. Holland was first (136.55), with Muskegon Mona Shores (132.30), the Chiefs (128.10) and East Lansing (122.60) finishing in the top 25 percent.

SC capitalizes on Adrian collapse

It didn't seem possible. Only 1:38 remained Saturday when School-craft College's Tressa Farkas looped a three-point attempt at the basket defended by Adrian's junior varsity.

The shot went in, but it didn't figure to make much difference. It sliced a 10-point lead to seven; still, there just didn't seem to be enough time

But then Adrian put up a quick shot that missed, and SC answered with a Tricia Lucas field goal. With 1:10 left, the 10-point margin had been halved.

The tide had turned. Adrian missed three-of-four free throws in the final minute - including the front end of two one-and-ones while Lucas hit a triple and Ann Hardy made one-of-two free throws. With :10 left, SC had the

Lisa DePlanche popped in 10 first-half points to keep the Lady Ocelots close. They trailed 31-22 at halftime, thanks to Adrian's freethrow advantage - 11-of-16 compared to SC's 0-of-2. For the game. Adrian was 21-of-35; SC hit 14-of-22

The Elizabeth Stone Gallery, 580 N. Woodward, Birminghgam, the latest member of the "gallery gulch group," has a unique slant. The focus here is original art by illustrators. particularly children's book illustra-.tors.

Stone, who opened her gallery last September, had retired just a few month previously as librarian at Brookside School/Cranbrook. "It's a very, very wonderful extension of the years I had at Brookside," she said.

It was as a children's librarian that she became enchanted with the illustrations in the books, met the artists when they visited Brookside School and discovered that many wanted to sell their art, but had no outlet. The school had bought several fine paintings by children's book illustrators and Stone had been collecting such works herself - buying through the Bush Gallery in Boston.

This is her first foray into the business world and the many things she had to learn quickly leave her undaunted.

"I've always been a person who likes challenge. I'm in awe of what I've done. I love it so much. I haven't a business or marketing background, but I'm learning and my husband is very supportative," she said with a smile adding that his work as a manufacturer's rep in the electrical field doesn't exactly dovetail with her skills, but he does have a great appreciation for art.

HER ENERGY, KNOWLEDGE of children's literature, enthusiasm for her new business and ideas for the future, will certainly carry her a long way. Her stable of outstanding artists is expanding daily. She has more than 30 and a surprising number are local or have local roots -

Elizabeth Stone has found a wide open field for her gallery specializing in illustrators. She doesn't know of another between Boston and California. She's just been invited to do a spe-

Stone is already publishing lithographs. The first is from McDermott's award winning book, "Arrow to the Sun." The second is a delightful scene of animals in a forest, "Tessie and Friends" by Nonny Hogrogian. A silk screen of an illustration by Rosemary Wells is in process and Stone plans to publish others by Hans Wilhem and Susan Jeffers (either Cinderella or Hiawathia) very soon.

McDermott will be back in this area to be the guest speaker for the April 3 luncheon sponsored by the Birmingham Bloomfield Children's Book and Author Society at Temple Beth El of Bloomfield Township.

She stocks a variety of things related to the children's book field in addition to the original art, so that she has a broad price range - art books for children, autographed books for collectors, signed posters and poster/story guide kits for teachers. Coming soon will be birthday cards by children's book illustrators and videos. Whatever the reason they smile a lot while they're there.

Amsterdam to host Van Gogh retrospective

Resident talks about relative

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

One of the most ardent supporters of the the Van Gogh retrospective in Amsterdam, The Netherlands, March 29 to July 29 is Betty Blackford of Birmingham.

Not only does she have an abiding admiration for the great artist and his work and a substantial collection of books and material about him, she has a personal interest. She's family – a direct descendent of the Van Gogh family which, she said, is still going strong in The Netherlands. She noted that there are lots of Vincents on the Van Gogh family tree.

Her great, great grandfather, Johannes Van Gogh (1817-1885), an admiral, was director of the Navy Yard in Amsterdam. He was the uncle of Vincent, the painter. And the young man, 24, lived with his Uncle Johannes and family for 18 months while he was studying for the exams to enter college and major in theology.

Johannes Van Gogh also had a son, Vincent, who was a career military man and it is that Vincent who is Blackford's great grandfather.

Blackford is something of a spokesperson for Van Gogh, the person. Certainly Van Gogh, the artist doesn't need her help, not with his paintings selling in the high eight-figure range.

She said she became keenly interested in knowing more about her famous relative when, shortly after she finished college in the early 1950s, she went to the Van Gogh exhibition in Chicago. There she met Vincent Van Gogh, an engineer, nephew of the famous artist and son of Theo, the art dealer, who was so influential in his brother's life and career

"THAT MADE a real impression on me - once I got going, I got interested in him (the artist) as a person - and I know him." She was seated in the library of her home in front of several shelves of books on Van Gogh. "Oh, he would be obnoxious to live with. He would argue you to death, yet he would be a fascinating person. People are always saying "poor Vincent." He was poor by choice. One of the things in life that makes you happy is to do what you like and do it well."

She said that one of his uncles owned one of the largest art galleries in Europe. Blackford said she digs and scrounges for information about Van Gogh. She has studied his letters and his life, traveled to Holland many times, talked with people there, visited the places where he lived and taken slides of the important landmarks in his short life.

"He believed in himself," she said. "He knew he was a painter — he certainly left a legacy. He was an absolutely beautiful writer. He was very expressive. He wrote in Dutch and French," she said, pulling a heavy book from her library shelf. "Everything known is in here - juvenalia, drawings and paintings." The book was "Vincent Van Gogh," by J.B. de la Faille, published by Reynal and Company, 1970. She has a collection of catalogs from his shows, her earliest, but not his, 1927 Basel, Switzerland,

"People think he never showed his paintings before he died - he was actually represented in four exhibitions. And there was an article about him in one major magazine by a well-known critic, So he was on his way . . . "People think he went mad, but he didn't go mad, right up until the day he died, he was executing those paintings with precision," Blackford said.

AS SHE SPOKE about his early years she said. "He was a lonely child. He kept to himself. He loved nature. Vincent was very lonely as a child."

She, like some of his biographers, thinks this was due in part to a strange set of circumstances. When he was born, his parents were still in mourning for a stillborn child, Vincent-Willem, born a year to the day before he was and registered with the very same number.

Gogh, the uncle whom Van Gogh lived with for 18 months. He is Blackford's great, great grandfather.

Many other museums plan related shows

A major retrospective of the works of Vincent Van Gogh, marking the 100th anniversary of the artist's death, will be held March 29 (date of his birth, 1853) to July 29( date of his death, 1890) in his native country, The Netherlands.

Because of the skyrocking value of his paintings, it is a strong possibility that this may be the last time it will be possible to assemble such a representative body of his work. (His painting, Irises, was sold in 1987 for $53.9 million.) Insurance costs, alone, may prohibit any future shows of this scope.

The retrospective, to be held in Amsterdam, is being compiled from the collections of the Rijksmuseum Vincent Van Gogh and the Rijksmuseum Kroller-Miller. About 120 paintings and 250 drawings will be in the exhibition, about one third of the paintings and about half of the drawings coming from the two Dutch national museums.

Other museums that will be loaning works include Musee d'Orsay, Paris; National Gallery and Tate Gallery, London; Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; Museum of Fine Arts, Boston; Yale University, New Haven; Pushkin Museum, Moscow; and the Kunsthaus, Zurich, Switzerland.

Among the paintings that will be seen together for the first time are The Weaver, The Potato Eaters, The Sower, Sunflowers, The Night Cafe, The Yellow House, The Bedroom, The Arlesienne and The Berceus

It is stated in the advance catalog of the exhibit, "The retrospective ex-hibition will focus on the works that he himself regarded as the core of his oeuvre . . . In his oeuve, we find a series of landscapes, urban views, portraits and groups of drawings af-ter earlier paintings. For instance, for The Yellow House in Arles, he designed a decoration that included neveral sumflower paintings." several Sunflower paintings."

There are many special events being planned in conjunction with the retrospective such as an International Van Gogh Symposium; an exhibition of his letters with drawings, in the late summer at the Rijkesmuseum Van Gogh; a survey exhibition of Van Gogh's influence on modern art at the Rijkesmuseum Van Gogh; and an exhibit, "Van Gogh at the Loom," at the Netherlands Textile Museum, Tilburg. There will be at least four other major related exhibits in other museums in The Netherlands such as: "Japanese Prints from the Collection of Vincent and Theo Van Gogh," Leiden; "Around Van Gogh," Stedelijk Museum, Amsterdam; and a Frans Hals exhibition, Frans Hals Museum, Haarlem. In letters to his brother, Van Gogh expressed admiration for Japanese prints and for the paintings of Hals.

This also promises to be a banner year for publications relating to Van Gogh. A film festival and special TV programs are being planned.

A special easy-to-carry handbook is being prepared in several languages for the benefit of tourists. It will list all the exhibitions and events on Van Gogh for this year and tell which Dutch museums have works by Van Gogh in their collec-tions. It will be illustrated with paintings, drawings and letters by Van Gogh and show where he lived and worked in The Netherlands.

and worked in The Netherlands. Several outstanding artists have offered to design a poster for the re-trospective free of charge and the Dutch ministry of cultural affairs has provided a grant for the develop-ment of ideas for souvenirs from designers.

all about color Helen Diane Vincent

Par a sumber of years l've enjoying country style-fursi-using Laura Ashley fabrics for my dising and living room. Al-igh I still approciate how well he whole thing is put together, I'm paking to make a gradual change mething simpler and more o.ary. At present, the wallsuper is in a pale gold and white stripe; the chints upholstery and dra-pery used a coral and green floral if. There's a pastel colored dhuron the floor, many decorative acories, and a lot of fringe and rufles. What else can I do to achieve any goal, other than remove the scenese, without redoing the two rouns completely?

A. One of the secrets to the county look in general and the Laura Aphley look in particular is to achieve a humble elegance by juxtaposing various elements without any one standing out. This is done by us-Ing a variety of themes and motifs based on some strong underlying scale or proportion as well as very straightforward color harmonies. Most often, the color harmonies consist of one color on a white ground, be two, or three tones of similar colis used in combination. And, as du've pointed out, the look also reies on accessories and detailing such as frings, bows, and ruffles.

You can gradually shift to a cleaner, more contemporary look by using ome of the ingredients already in our possession. A good starting point is your pale gold and white wallpaper. Replace your coral and green floral chintz with a pale apriot and white, geometric pattern in unglazed chintz or other type of abric. Continue with the same heme by adding a pale green and hite for the dining room chairs or ther pieces. When seer in combinaion, these soft colors will fuse and rive the impression of a colorful neutral surrounding. The style of your new slipcovers should be tailored, and all frings and bows are to be removed. Use a solid pale green or gold color fabric for the drapery, or for the pull-up Roman shades at the windows.

You can also explore the color principle of assimilation by using the same gold, apricot and green with grey instead of white. Because grey is influenced by its nearest color, it will look quite different in each combination. In this way you will be adding an additional subtlety, contributing to the idea of a colorful neutral. Your dhourrie will fit in very well with this approach

Q. We're both in our early 20s, about to get married, and have the problem of combining two distinctly different furniture styles and color preferences into one apartment. My boyfriend's furnishings are very basic, functional pieces. For example, his favorite chair is a brown leather recliner that he definitely wants to keep. On the other hand, my furniture is mostly white wicker, with pink and gold chintz for the upholstery as well as the coordinated drapery. How can we combine the two styles and have it look good?

A. Despite all the advice you may have heard about mixing and matching furniture styles, I don't think it's possible in your case. My recommendation would be to reserve the white wicker and pastel colors for the bedroom, then use the functional pieces in the living and dining alcove. Add a soft terra cotta color in two tones for the living room walls. This will soften the functional look, especially if you add accessories in seafoam green or jade to relieve some of the sameness of the warm neutrals. As you grow up together in your marriage, you will find your tastes natu-

Northern Exposure' a promising debut

"Northern Exposure" by Ann duMais McCormick (234 pp. St. Martin's Press. $16.95)

S THIS first novel by Grosse Pointe Farms writer McCormick begins, Dianna Jarrett, a 30-ish San Francisco photographer (and former painter), has just divorced her sec-ond husband, David: "The truth was she didn't love David. She still loved her first husband. Alan Forbes.

Not only does the newly-divorced Dianna still love her dastardly first husband, she intends to leave San Francisco, travel to Boston where the unsuspecting Alan lives, seek him out, and win him back.

Two slight complications: (1) Alan is married (2) His wife is Dianna's best friend, Emily, Hmmm.

NO MATTER. DIANNA gets into her car and heads out, simply following the road before her, something like Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz." (A pair of red shoes figures prominently here, too.) Along the way, she encounters bad weather, bad food, a bad guy, and car trouble. Also, along the way, she picks up a high-spirited hitchhiker named Liz, who dresses like a scarecrow and is also headed for the "red brick city" of Boston. Together, the two women arrive at their shared destination on a rainsoaked day - and find plenty of surprises waiting This is a lively, entertaining, voy age-of-self-discovery novel that moves along at a nice, swift pace from its arresting start to its rather zany conclusion But to McCormick's credit, its touching scenes (especially flashbacks of the troubled Emily's childhood), humor, and life-like characters make it much more than just a page-turner. This is not to say that "Northern Exposure" is perfect. First, it's never quite believable that McCor-her mood could alter her plans") -would really drive 3,000 miles, over coming numerous hazards along the way, so that she can find and win back a man she's heard not a single encouraging word from in more than a decade

SECONDLY, A PIVOTAL character. Leo Chauvin, is rather confusing. leaving a reader to wonder just how he's supposed to be viewed Apparently, judging from the conclusion of Northern Exposure," he's meant to be an appealing type. At the same time, however. Chauvin, a poet and old friend of Dianna's, displays an annoying tendency toward a kind of smug sermonizing, proclaiming to Dianna, on more than occasion, just who she is, along with what, where, when, how, and why, etc., etc. Perhaps Dianna could have figured some of this out without the help of such an all-knowing male.

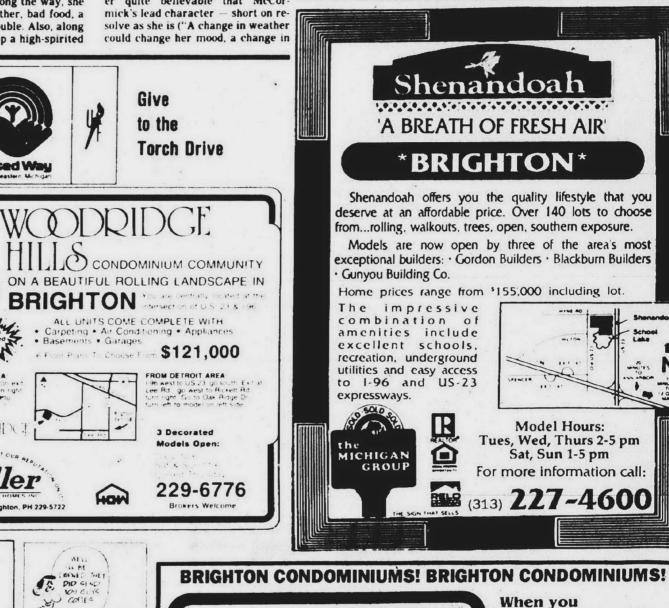

Nevertheless, "Northern Exposure," a book about human relation-

et there be light

Atrium Gallery, Northville's fledgling art gallery, has cast the spotlight on one of its own - Linda Banks Ord in presenting the Northville artist in an exhibit of her works. Ord paints about light. She investigates the effect of light upon the figure and still life forms. She explores shape and volume through repeated application of pigment that mesh and intermingle to create a complex interworking of color. The exhibit will continue through the end of the month. The gallery is at 113 N. Center - around the back - and that's important to remember.

Great coverup

The Village Barn, in the center of Franklin Village's historic district, will host the ninth annual "To Warm Your Heart" Quilt Show 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Feb. 1-3. Peatured will be more than 50 full quilts as well as over 40 wall hanging pieces hand-crafted by the Amish.

The quilt show is sponsored by shop owners (and sisters) Sandy Barr and Sharon Butler, and coordinated by well-known quilt enthusiast Gail Hurn of Indiana. Hurn has a long history of first-hand experience working with the Amish, and over the years, has coordinated many of the Village Barn's successful quilt shows

Those attending this year's show will have an opportunity to view a variety of quilts, including the Baltimore Bride appliqued quilt (consid-ered to be one of the most difficult and rare designs); traditional American Country quilts; and Amish de-signed quilts in bold solid-colors as well as those featuring a more contemporary look using chintz and floral printed fabrics.

New pieces to be highlighted at the show include: handpainted floral full-size appliqued quilts been proportionately rewhich have been proportionately re duced to miniature sizes; crib quilts and quilts made using a series of photographs which are reporduced onto fabric and then sewn together These quilts can be made using full color, black-and-white or sepiatoned photographs.

HURN WILL BE available throughout the show for comments and to answer questions.

All of the items in the show may be purchased and special orders will be taken. There is no admission charge and refreshments will be served. During the three-day event, visitors will have an opportunity to enter a drawing for a door prize consisting of a custom quilted pillow, which will be awarded at the completion of the show. (You need not be present at the drawing to win.)

Established in 1974, the Village Barn is a gift shop housed in a reproduction of a 150-year-old buggy works. The shop is at 32760 Franklin Road, one mile west of Telegraph Road, and just south of Fourteen Mile Road in Oakland County.

DOWNTOWN FARMINGTON

AGNE

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it.

Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

Steady market good sign for housing prices

By Doug Funke staff writer

Prices at the high end of the housing market, according to the national business press, are plummeting in pockets on the East and West coasts.

The shakeout in the financial services and computer industries, a pool of owners wanting to get out fast and a housing supply exceeding demand have contributed to the slump, experts say.

Other factors have been cited overbuilding and buyers wising up to value for the purchasing dollar. Could the same thing happen here?

Not likely, said a sample of real estate people, builders and bankers.

"Michigan had problems in the early '80s. We've diversified. Banks and financial institutions have become conservative," said Herbert Lawson, immediate past president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and president of a West Bloomfield building company

"Our market has been nice and steady. There hasn't been sharp rises. There's been a nice supply, a nice demand," Lawson said.

THE BASM forecasts a 5-percent increase in housing starts this year. Some 12,000 residential building permits were pulled in 1989.

"They (houses) may be expensive, but they aren't unrealistic," said Robert Halperin, construction manager and director of product development for the Irvine Group of Southfield lid on profits in this town. Always

That situation results in an orderly supply-and-demand market less prone to swings in value than if builder profits were unusually high or in no-growth communities, Halperin said.

Douglas Courtney, president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors, expressed a similar view

We've been bucking the market trend," he said. "In the Detroit area. median income typically shows to be very high. At the same time, our median (home) price is one of the lowest in the country.

"Supply and demand have been going at a similar pace," Courtney said.

Warren Gould, executive vice president of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors, touched on the same issue

"WE HAVE reasonable stability here," Gould said. "We haven't had appreciation in property values the East Coast, West Coast and parts of Florida and Texas have had the last five years."

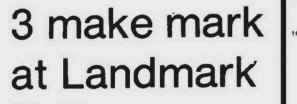

No tremendous rise, no big fall, the reasoning seems to go.

William Yaw, senior vice president and director of marketing for Standard Federal Bank, echoed that philosophy.

"Prices certainly haven't gone through the roof, so there isn't a need to back off." he said.

Diversification of Michigan's economy also should provide a safety valve, Yaw said. "It's not like it used to be when the auto companies went out of whack, the entire economy went to hell in a handbasket.

But Jerry McKeon, immediate

The three top producing retail division salesmen in the local office of Coldwell Banker Commercial Real Estate Services have resigned to start their own firm

Joren Peterson, 27, Bruce Simon, 30, and Michael Lippitt, 29, have established Landmark Commercial Real Estate Service in Birmingham. They will continue to specialize in retail site selection, land and property acquisition and lease negotiations.

Peterson, Simon and Lippitt collectively worked 10 years with Coldwell Banker.

"We wanted to be able to control our destiny a little more," Lippitt said.

"There were no problems. For economic reasons, we decided to work for ourselves," Peterson said.

AGENTS IN an employee relationship usually split commissions with the company. As owners, the trio will have virtually all of any pie they bake to themselves.

The three have no immediate plans to add staff. Other factors entered the decision to split from Coldwell Banker

"Some of our main customers suggested we do this and we did," Simon said. "In a large corporation, certain rigid policies and procedures have to be adhered to. They prefer not to deal with them." Ferritory assignments and personalities can be one problem, they said.

'We do have a territory system here," Lippitt said. "We can change, modify or adapt as we see fit, perhaps giving our clients better service."

Several clients, including Westin Development and Blockbuster Video, made the move with them, the Landmark founders said.

THE PARTING, although unexpected, apparently was amicable.

"I respect all of them," said Scott Elliott, vice president and resident manager of the Detroit Coldwell Banker office in Southfield. "That happens in this business sometimes. However, we still have a lot of clients we're actively working with now and hopefully for years to come

"We don't intend to say anything bad about Coldwell Banker," Peterson said. "It was a good company.

They gave us great training and treated us well," Lippitt said. "They set a standard for us in professionalism and accountability to clients."

December, when the three decided to set sail for themselves, generally is a slow time in the industry, Lippitt said.

"It was a good time to give up our holidays and work on this," he said. "It was an idea that just kind of evolved. We talked about it for a while. Suddenly, we were doing it."

Peterson lives in Bloomfield Hills, Simon in Waterford, and Lippitt in Birmingham.

Major slump unlikely here

past president of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors and sales manager for Hannett Realtors, isn't so sure that the housing market here would remain unaffected by a major slump in the auto industry.

"People I know in the auto business now are hesitant to do anything until they see what's going to happen in the next year or two," McKeon said. "We're far more diversified than five to eight years ago, but we still have a long way to 20.

DESPITE RISING property assessments in recent years, homeowners with long memories may recall that prices dipped here in the early 1980s, McKeon said.

An auto slump that extended to major suppliers fueled that downturn.

"West Bloomfield, Farmington Hills and Troy subdivisions with a lot of similar homes were hardest hit." McKeon said

Because there was little difference between houses in some of those neighborhoods, sellers out-did each other in lowering pricess to sell, dragging down everyone's values, he said.

Other areas - Bloomfield Hills. lakefront property and certain Birmingham neighborhoods like Quarton Lake Estates - seem to be immune from downturns because of their uniqueness, McKeon said.

demand they're not affected by a slowdown of the economy," he said Most builders here finally learned after recessions in the early '60s and early '80s to build to sale rather than on speculation. Halperin said.

PATRICK ANDERSON, an economist with the Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. of Farmington Hills, believes that a 5percent increase in housing starts projected by the builders association this year may be overly ambitious

"All it takes is one or two too many housing projects in a community to dampen prices," Anderson said. "I'm concerned overbuilding of inventory will depress things a little bit

Also, people here seem to be saving rather than spending lately. Anderson added, which may somewhat cool the housing market.

A decline in property listings, sales or median price of a home at sale all indicate trouble.

Those statistics remain fairly solid here.

The Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors reported 4.416 listings last year compared to 4.069 in 1988; 1,964 sales in '89 compared to 1,951 in '88; and a median (half higher, half lower) price of $167,000 last year compared to $152,000 in '88.

The Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors reports a

Love of luxury drives prices up

(AP) - Prices of new homes are going up fast as buyers scramble for larger. more luxurious homes

Better Homes and Gardens Building Ideas magazine reports what's behind rising costs, and what potential homeowners can do about them if they plan to build a home

Just when it seemed inflation had been licked the last three years have seen a meteoric rise in the price of a new house

The median price of a new home in the United States zoomed past the $100,000 mark in 1987. In 1988, it reached a record $112,500. And that figure, though often quoted, actually downplays housing prices. The average new home price better reflects the cost of upscale housing; it stood at $138,300 for 1988.

In many big-city markets even that amount buys only a starter home Larger, better-appointed dwellings trade in the quarter- to half-million-dollar price range.

Although lofty price tags can be intimidating, there is good news, too. First, the increases in home prices are slowing due to softening demand. And second, potential homeowners can help control the costs of the home they build.

For the most part, higher costs stem not from runaway production costs but from the desire for homes that have it all size, luxury and a prime location

Single-family homes grew smartly in the late 1980s, expanding by almost 100 square feet in 1987 alone. New homes also include more features than ever before

THE TREND toward upscale housing gathers its momentum from the luxury-loving baby-boom generation, those 77 million people born between 1946 and 1964

The earliest of the postwar tykes are now well into middle age, and they are ready to move from their present home to something grander. Bankrolled by dual incomes, many of these baby-boom households can afford a home that is very grand indeed

Many economists predict the prices of new homes will stabilize in the 1990s as more baby boomers age beyond their home-buying prime. But for now, a more-is-better philosophy drives the housing market.

When shopping for a new home, keep in mind that many builders have responded to the move-up buyer market by loading up their homes with a laundry list of sales-appeal features, from marble entry floors to multiple fireplaces to lavish master suites and baths

If those are all the goodies that are wanted - and if they are well integrated into the overall design a ready-built new home may be best Often those who opt to build can get more value for the dollar by building a custom designed house. A good architect or contractor can help plan a house that uses space and materials efficiently yet lets one splurge on features that are really wanted.

Of all the luxuries in today's homes, none is more prestigious or pricier - than a good location In many of America's high-growth metropolitan areas, the price of a buildable lot is soaring, pushing home prices up with it.

Of course, land prices vary drastially from city to city. In many smaller cities, typical lot costs are $20,000 to $50,000 or less. In some depressed markets, prices are drop-Ding

IN SOME high-growth markets. land-related fees imposed by local governments can also increase the price of a home - sometimes by more than $10,000. So-called impact fees defray the costs of streets, wa ter and other services to new developments

Those who live in a land-scarce market can't do much about runaway lot prices They can, however, temper their effect.

The traditional way of fighting high land costs is to choose the lesser of two evils a smaller lot or a longer commute
