The leak in a Buckeye Pipeline Co. line near Haggerty Road and Schoolcraft occurred about 11:15 a.m. Friday, prompting citizen complaints about a strong odor and bluish liquid in a drain near the intersection. The pipeline was shut down about 8 p.m. Friday for repairs that were continuing Saturday.

Officials from the Department of Natural Resources, Wayne County and the Marine Environmental Agency investigated the incident, and authorities remained on the scene to prevent the spill from entering the Rouge River.

The pipeline was expected to be repaired late Saturday.

Bing honored

Lowell Middle School health and physical education teacher Geraldine Bing was named the school district's "Extra Miler" last

With the district since 1981, Bing was described by Trustee David Artley as a "caring and sensitive person who consistently strives for excellence in teaching.

"Because she's very sharing about what she does, but very private about doing it, we probably don't know all the things she does to help others. Nevertheless, we appreciate the results which they produce.'

Bing received a framed certificate, a Flag of Learning and Liberty pin and a dining certificate for two from the Mayflower Hotel.

Several people question move to level houses

staff writer

The wisdom of a school district plan to demolish two homes on Ann Arbor Trail to make room for parking is being questioned by several people interested in buying and moving the vacant turn-of-the-century

The homes, both in poor condition, are to be removed to make room for parking to accommodate an expanded board office. A $925,000 addition for the building at 454 S. Harvey recently was approved by the school

The district solicited bids, requiring parties interested in buying and moving the homes to pay all costs and complete the job in 45 days.

No formal bids have been received, and school officials now are seeking demolition estimates.

Plymouth Township resident Marin the past, said, "if the district has good business sense, they should pay us to remove the houses instead of paying someone to demolish them. After all, these people are paid to spend money wisely." The district would save money that way, he said. "The dump fees alone are astronomical. Say they get an estimate for $8,000 or $10,000. If they give me $5,000, I will remove it for them and they won't have to worry about it. I'm going to make them an offer.'

Jamie Flora, a Plymouth manufacturer's representative who's restoring an 1846-vintage home in Canton, also is interested in the houses.

'I don't know what it would cost to tear them down, but why not take that money - if the schools are really interested in historic preservation and donate it" to someone who'd move them, Flora asked.

"They could be nice houses

Flora said his intent "would be to put together a little group of turn-ofthe-century homes" on a parcel he owns at the corner of Warren and Morton-Taylor in Canton.

Flora is hesitant to pursue the idea, though.

I'm stupid enough to spend money on stuff like that."

Two-year-old World Books are now outdated, but students learn to use their information as reference points.

By A. Girall Bedford staff writer

As Ellison Franklin bombards her students at East Middle School with questions about Eastern Europe, they are quick to answer

But it's not because of what they have read in their textbooks.

The changes taking place in Eastern Europe are a challenge to Plymouth-Canton social studies teachers. Because of the changes, history texts are obsolete and teachers have to find other material that will show the students how and why the communist governments keep falling - and what it

Even if we bought them today," Franklin said, "next week, our textbooks would be old."

The walls of Franklin's class are full of posters and photographs that reflect world events. The face of Winnie Mandela and posters with titles like "The Walls Come Tumbling Down," and "1989. The Year of Change," remind the students of the struggle for freedom in

FRANKLIN, who teaches sixth. seventh and eighth grade American and world geography, has several aides to complement the books One of them is the Junior Scholastic magazine, a bi-monthly publication that covers recent events

The magazine covered the strug gle for democracy from country to country as it was occurring and it coincided with the geography book's units, she said.

Her students also read an issue of National Geographic magazine devoted to the opening of the Ber-

She said the students were impressed by his account of how a chain-linked fence stretched through the countryside, dividing it in two nations

THE SCHOOL subscribes to 'News Current," a film and teaching guide with information about world and national events.

Franklin's students have just finished a unit with the theme "Do all people struggle eventually to be free?" The students learned about the fight for democracy in China and South Africa

She said she gives extra credit to the students who bring in editorial cartoons and newspaper articles reflecting the changes

This is done by other area teachers. Patrick Oiszewski is a seventh and eighth grade social studies teacher at East Middle School. His world regions students also bring newspapers and magazines clippings to do class "I've been having the students do current events because the textbooks are so far behind," he said

HAVING TO read obsolete textbooks is not necessarily harmful to the students, said Franklin

"People who teach social studies use books as references," she said adding that when children read books and see that the information is wrong, "it tells them that our world is changing all the time and they learn not to think that just because it's in the book it's carved in stone. They learn to be not just students, but citizens, analytical and critical thinkers and listeners,"

Earl Harrington, a seventh grade teacher at Central Middle School in Plymouth, said his students also focus on current events and make forecasts about what they is will happen next in Eastern

"I think the kids realize how significant this is and they're always bringing things in," said Harring-

Franklin does not share his opinion. "They can't possibly under-stand the magnitude of the events because of their youth and lack of world experience." But she said she tells them that when they get old and talk to their grandchildren, they'll be able to tell them that; they were alive at a time of changes that affected the course of world history.

The Wayne County Medical Examiner's office ruled Thursday Briggs death was a suicide, while Nalepa's was "undeterminable." A police investigation continues into Nalepa's death, John Santomauro, director of public safety said.

Debbie Nalepa viewed the film last Tuesday after hearing for the first time the film was shown the day before Stephen's death.

The mother said the film was not appropriate for second-grade pupils. The Encylopaedia Britannica recommended the film for fourth through Plymouth-Canton school board members also watched the film. Three trustees watched the movie Tuesday, three others on Wednesday and one Thursday.

When asked if the district was trying to avoid the state's Open Meetings Act by having no more than three members watch the movie at a time, Community Relations Director Dick Egli said "yes."

Under the act, if four or more officials meet it is open to the public.

Most board members said they didn't want to comment on the film until the police investigation is complete. Egli did say the board met with its insurance representative to review the incident.

President Dean Swartzwelter said, "I think it's a very good film, but it's open to varying opinions. It doesn't seem likely the film would trigger something like that."

"Nobody's Useless" is based on the 1896 book "The Great Brain" by John Fitzgerald and shows how a boy helps Andy Anderson overcome his depression over losing his leg to infection. During the 29-minute film, Andy learns that despite his handicap he can be useful.

But, Debbie Nalepa contends the scenes in which he tries killing himself were treated "lightly" in the film and did not show any fear or the results if Andy had been successful.

Andy first asks a friend to tie him in a sack and throw him from a bridge. When that fails, he tries to hang himself in a barn, which also fails when his friend cannot budge a bale of hay.

third judge is needed now, Breen

"We certainly could look at that as a group and come up with a worthwhile solution so that would not be a burden on anyone," Yack state, District Judge James Garber said.

Ron Lowe, Plymouth's city attorney and representative to the court advisory board, said, "We were looking at $80,000 to $100,000 and maybe more that wasn't going to come back to us," if the judgeship was created.

The advisory board action came roughly a week after State Sen. Bob Geake, R-Northville, said time was running out for the Senate to approve creation of new judgeships ministrator's office.

Those new judgeships recommended by the Court Administrator included one for the 35th District Court, as a rising caseload has made the court the third busiest in the "The last we'd heard from Lansing is that the bill will not pass, period," Garber said.

District Judge John MacDonald was a vocal supporter of creating that third judgeship now. "We had been operating on the premise that everyone (communities served by the court) was in agreement."

"It's a disappointment," he said, but added he understands concerns

Lowe and Breen said the advisory board will seek a way to set aside court proceeds in a separate fund to be used to pay for court expansion needed to house a third judge.

While the state would pay 90 percent of the judge's $91,080 annual salary, taxpayers in the five communities served by the court would pay other expenses sparked by creating the judgeship.

Those expenses would include renovation of the court building, estimated at $400,000-$50,000.

Local taxpayers would also pay salaries for two new staff positions created by the third judgeship about $60,000 for a court officer and court recorder.

He said last fall, "I like what I'm doing, but if they keep jacking up the (judges') pay it will be kind of hard

The salary for the job will be based on experience and credentials Bain said The commitment's about 20 hours a week, with a flexible work schedule. Froelich chose to give three months notice, to help keep things running smoothly. Arts council activities are tied closely to the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools calendar, she said, and having a new director start in June will be better than waiting until fall

She's also working with PCAC leaders on finding a new facility for the council, which is currently housed in an office at 332 S. Main in downtown Plymouth. The arts council received an equity grant from the state of Michigan for a building, and negotiations are under way to lease and use the Wilcox Mill in Plymouth Township.

Froelich plans to keep in touch with friends she's made through the PCAC. She's enjoyed working with Pauline Norman, administrative assistant, and with council volunteers.

a donor who helped fund in part the resteration cost," they wrote.

"I think it would be nice to see the fountain made out of large stones," wrote Laura Freeman of Plymouth. Then fill it up with bond water, water lillies and goldfish.

She suggested a planter around the outside and keeping the sprayer in the center.

Kevin Lydon of Plymouth cast his suggestion, excerpted here, in verse: Let's turn Kellogg fountain into a fast food joint!

"We'll put in a statue with geysers Spewing forth gallons of soda pop

The cruisers could come to a drive-up window. "Aye the world would have an interest in it, "Come see the Fountain of Youth" in Plymouth."

B. Bowman of Northville suggested an "aesthetic Japanese fountain constructed of appropriate rocks and trickles of water.

"It would grace the park as well as show an awareness of our Japaand in the area Among local business people, Alan Saxton of Saxton's Garden Center said a statue in the fountain would be OK, "If there was some reasonable eye appeal and not something too esoteric. Maybe something with some significance to the Wilcox. House.

Margaret Wilson, owner of Computer Time on Penniman, said, "I think the fountain is pretty as it is. I'm not sure that the money (for a statue) couldn't be better spent elsewhere.

Doug Swatosh of Doug's Plymouth Amoco said, "I think they could enhance the park," but said the fountain - built by the Rotary of which he's a member — is fine as is.

Asked if he'd go for a statue in the fountain, Box Bar bartender Scott Anderson said, "It would be better than just a boring old fountain."

"I think the fountain could be enhanced," said Main Street clothier Fred Hill.

Hill suggested a sculpture, rather than a statue, for the fountain. "It could be contemporary," he said.

"I tend to look at the park in total. I don't think we can do something there (the fountain) and ignore the

High school exchange sorts fact from fiction

staff writer

Picture an environment City or suburban.

How much is real, fiction or merely your own perception?

Some 350 students from public. private and parochial metro area schools met and tried to determine just that about each other at the sixth City/Suburban High School Conference and Exchange last week at the Mercy College Conference Center in Detroit.

The program, sponsored by New Detroit Inc. (NDI), attempts to close the knowledge gap between city and suburb — and between races.

In one workshop, a Detroit student spoke about his surprise when the parents of a Chaldean girl he was dating told him that he could not continue to see their daughter because he is black. "Before that, I had only seen it in movies," he said. "IF YOU are brought up believing these (bigoted) things, it's harder to change," said another student. "It begins in the home."

Clarenceville was the Observer and Eccentric-area high school from western Wayne County to participate Oakland County participants included Southfield, Southfield-Lathrup, Bloomfield Hills Andover and Lahser, Avondale, Detroit Country Day and Farmington Hills Mer-

During the two-day program's first day, conference participants divided into small groups headed by trained adult and student group leaders for workshops and discussions.

"Through various role-playing demonstrations in the workshops, students can learn how to deal with racial slurs, racial or ethnic jokes and how to root out their own prejudices," said Vivian Buffington, director of NDI's Race Relations Division and coordinator of the high school exchange program.

Teachers and counselors from 20 schools participated in a related pro-

"TEACHERS OPERATE out of the same perception as a lot of the students," said Audrey Brosnan, pastoral minister at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills who participated. "There's a lot of hidden bias. I think it would be interesting for teachers to exchange schools, too." Racism is not just a black-white issue but extends to all minorities, Brosnan said. Teachers also compared notes about learning equipment and textbooks, she said.

A popular segment of the work-shope features group drawings in which city and suburban students create images of what they see as the other's environment. The resulting stereotypes are then examined and the students discover a truer picture of each other's lives.

Perceptions of some suburban students about Detroit were: Detroit Mayor Coleman Young and corrupt city government, crack houses, overcrowded prisons, rap groups, street gangs, lack of police and every citizen armed with a gun. Perceptions of city students about the suburbs were: happy, whelescene families, no drugs, swimming pools, satellite dishes, swing sets, pathosets, Porsches, windows with curtains and professionally landscaped social settings. Students discussed inter-racial dating; anti-Semitism; sports team bias; freedom to observe Martin Luther King's birthday; being a new minority student in school; and news groups are setting to the school; and peer-group pressure that profi-

Recycling is important for future generations

Pifty to 70 percent of the nations waste is made of recyclable material. We sate presently only recycling of percent of this waste. Recyclable material, consists of paper, cardboard, glass, aleminum coss, glastic bettles and newspaper. Our local trash dump will be filled within five years. Where will all the trash ge? This problem has not been taken seriously. Does anybody really care or is it easier to sit back and let nomeone sies handle the problem?

We must take action for our future environment. The average American uses the equivalent of seven trees every year in paper products. That totals one and a half billion tress for all of America.

If that is not frightening to you, maybe the fact that we have lost 25 percent of the world's forests over a 30 year span will enlighten you.

Canton Recycling takes in corrugated cardboard, newspaper, glass, plastic failt jugs, plastic bottles and came. Recycle Ann Arbor recycles ditto paper, computer name. ditto paper, computer paper, xerox paper, notebook paper and colored

The little extra time that it would take to recycle would make a big impact on our society. Once our community takes a stand others will soon follow. Do you want your children living in a realm of trash? Do not be environmentally ignorant — recycle. We can make a difference.

There's no place for young people in Plymouth

It seems there must have been a choice. Commissioners heeding the loudest voice. To whom must Plymouth's youth appeal so they become the squeaking wheel?

Mayor Bila, can't you hear the cries of cruisers every year? If those funds, in fact, are meant to help out Plymouth when they're spent, I find your judgment rather poor for keep-ing all those youth ignored. The young and old of Plymouth locked at war amidst this paradox.

Story on religious cults was misleading

To the editor:

I must express my serious disappointment with your article "Prefensor describes horror of religious cults," by Tim Smith en Feb. 1.

A small misority of the many academics who have studied the deprogramming controversy endorse the "cult brainwashing" theory which the deprogrammers use to justify their actions, yet your article presented this minority view as if it were the only view on the subject.

Let me direct your attention to an article by Professor Larry D. Shinn, of Bucknell University in Lewisburg, Pa. Unlike many of the self-appointed "anti-cultists," Dr. Shinn is a genuine expert in these matters and reflects the majority view among academics.

Any chirative report on the deprogramming centroversy must at least refer to the position taken by Dr. Shien and the many other academics who do not support the "anti-cult" movement, as well as the condemnation of depregramming by the National Council of Churches and the American Civil Liberties Union.

My office is in touch with dozens of psychologists, sociologists, and lawyers who, like Dr. Shinn, reject the claims of the deprogrammers. I hope their views will be represented in future articles in the Observer &

Dining out on pasta perfect

If you're anything like me and frequently order pasta when dining out, there's a good chance you've tried Mamma Mucci's pas-

Whether you prefer the trendy Midtown Cafe in downtown Birmingham or the upscale and leisurely Cafe Bon Homme in downtown Plymouth, the pasta being heaped on the plates has the smack-of-the-lips-approval from Mamma Mucci herself. Yes, there really is a Mamma Mucci.

I've got to tell you about the neat story of how Mamma Mucci discovered me. Anyone who reads this column on a regular basis probably feels like they know my momma. So, back last summer, I got this call from Vince Mucci, Momma Mucci's son. He told me he likes the stories about my momma, then began to tell me about his. Little did we know that both families know the same folks from Wyandotte and that Uncle Cosmos' daughter used to hang around with my older sister Rosie.

To make a long story short, I was cleaning off my desk (like I try to do at least twice a year) and I came across Vince Mucci's number. I made an appointment to stop by and check out his operation and right off the top, I was floored with the cleanliness, the product quality and the fact that not only did I meet and talk to Momma Mucci herself but also met brother Frank who is Momma's right-hand son in charge of production. Talk about a family

SO YOU'RE PROBABLY saying that pasta is pasta is pasta, right? Hardly, at least with Momma Mucci's business. Momma learned from her momma in the small village of Montelongo, Italy, which is part of the famed Abruzze Region. She learned how the choicest ingredients make the best pasta. A peek in the storeshowed 100-pound sacks of only high-quality seminola durum wheat flour. Most packaged pastas use a blend but not Momma Mucci. While watching Momma pack fresh angel hair pasta from the cutter, I noticed son Frank standing in the corner actually breaking fresh eggs into the roller machines. No powdered or bulk eggs for this operation.

What really impressed me was the fact that unlike most pasta processors who use extruder-type machines to force the dough through metal dies, Momma Mucci uses hand processed machines that first roll the dough into sheets, then cut it, resulting in a texture that can't be beat. Needless to say, it's also the most authentic pasta available today on the market. Now for the bad news.

Seems that Momma Mucci's pasta, which is made in the old basement Kresge Commissary in downtown Plymouth, is solely a manufacturing operation. That means that folks like you and me have to search it out in retail outlets or enjoy it in various restaurants. So far, this great pasta is available only in and around the Plymouth community.

LOOK FOR IT at the Cheese and Wine Barn, Penniman Deli and the Porterhouse Meat Market in Plymouth. Mancuso's Quality Market and the Shopping Center Market in Northville stock the stuff and last, but not least, you might be able to find it at the Food Emporium in Livonia. For the not so timid and shy, if you happen to be dining at one of Detroit's better restaurants, ask if you can purchase some.

In addition to the Midtown Cafe and Cafe Bon Homme, you will be smacking your lips on Mamma Mucci's own pasts when at the of Hogan's in Troy and Township, Italian Cu-mouth, Panache in Bird E.G. Nicks in West not to mention about

Daily fare: prizeworthy meals

staff writer

ODAY'S EXECUTIVE chef is a new breed of gourmand, a stylized expert of ambitious culinary ideals, laboring within the increasingly competitive world of country club

Today's scene is more "selective and demanding" than ever, according to Michael Connery who, five months ago at the age of 25, was named executive chef at Bloomfield Hills Country Club.

A member of the prestigious culinary team from Michigan that in 1987 scored 13 gold medals in Olympic food competition in Germany, Connery is a rising new star on the scene, incorporating award-winning pates and poached meats into daily fare for members of the club.

"It used to be chefs went to country clubs to retire," said Connery, a 1987 graduate of the Chef de Cuisine program at Oakland Community College.

No longer, judging from Connery's creative use of fresh fruits or natural juices to spice general sauces or sugar to create uniquely flavorful "heart smart" entrees low in cholesteral and carbohydrates.

"My number one ideal is taste." he said, adding that rarified taste is the result of complementary seasoning and preparation technique.

AT AGE 51, Larry Daniot has been executive chef for six years at Western Golf Country Club in Redford Township.

While he concedes today's executive chef is a new breed of gour-mand, he laughs at the notion of "retirement." The job, he said, is enormously demanding.

"Menu planning. Parties. Lunches. Dinners. You're very busy. It's very different from restaurant work. Your diners are paying dues and they expect good food and food service," Daniot said. He works 10 to 11 hours daily.

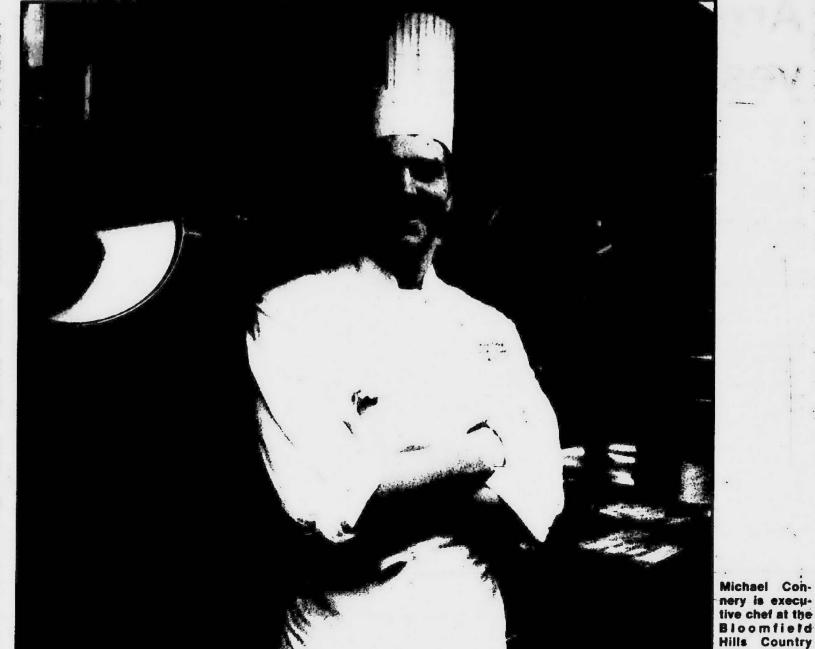

In January, Daniot and a crew of cooks, assistants and pantry girls spent a full week preparing for the club's annual evening for men, including a full complement of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres and a sit-down meal for 600 diners.

Daniot's crew also provides daily a choice of some 30 entrees, two specials and a fish catch of the day.

Daniot's cuisine ideal: "the bestquality food possible."

Robert Dalecke, exécutive chef at Franklin Hills Country Club as of one month ago, trained as a chef at Grosse Pointe Yacht Club and, more recently, the Lark, a gourmet restaurant in West Bloomfield.

In describing the difference between food preparation for a country club setting of buffets and large parties, and individual entrees more common at a restuarant, he speaks of "bigger production, higher volume and more kitchen staff."

"Quality can go down a little. You have to work to keep standards up to par," he said, maintaining self-imposed high standards with such delicacies as fresh sauces of chutney or

"I like current trends towards lighter cuisine," Dalecke said.

EXPERIENCE IS THE key to fine personalized cuisine, according to award-winning executive chef Kevin Brennan of Orchard Lake Country Club. "When you're younger you catch ideas from different cookbooks or talking shop with peers. You run with the idea. Then, as you grow with experience and begin knowing Michael's hired a former chef and a night cook from the Money Tree as part of its own efforts at upgrading that began last summer. Since July, the menu has changed and a former popular chef, Patrick Gearin (also a onetime Money Tree chef), has returned.

By paring down the dinner menu to 10 entrees plus a few daily specials, the restaurant will deliver dinner promptly, promises manager Charlie Laurencelle, son of the co-owner and restaurant's namesake, Michael Laurencelle.

The service is indeed fast and attentive, but Michael's could use a little more attention to food preparation if it expects to compete with similar restaurants in its price range. While the entrees sound exciting, ours tended to be overcooked and dull.

THE MEAL STARTED out well with an appetizer of "housemade" lamb sausage with grilled vegetables. The sausage was deliciously spicy, among the best we've tried. The presentation, however, was less interesting. The sausage, served in a large hamburger-like patty, was accompanied by a few slices of onion, carrots and succhini that had been grilled dry.

On to the salads, which were very good - fresh, crispy and composed of a variety of lettuces with tomatoes, cucumbers and purple onions. Both the Dijon vinaigrette and tarragon vinaigrette dressings were

The grouper turned out to be a fillet surrounded by fresh strawberries and lightly coated with a mild curry sauce. The sauce was mild and a flavorful complement to the fish, but the fish itself was overcooked to

The grilled lamb chops were a bit overdone also and were served with a gravy-like, intense sauce. The shrimp were a disappointment. The two shrimp were topped with chevre cheese and rosemary and wrapped in phyllo - a treatment that could be terrific. Here, they were overdone and nearly flavorless.

OUR ENTREES WERE served with potatoes that had been quartered and cooked in the skin and with steamed veggles. The potatoes were good, but the veg-gles were a bit soggy — and everything appeared to have been spooned onto the plate without much thought to presentation.

The dinner menu offers several other entrees worth

I don't know how weekends are at your house, but at ours they are wild. With three boys playing hockey, we have had six games every week, with four of them falling on the weekend, throughout the entire win-

And, as the seasons change, so do the sports, the result being that we spend a lot of time away from home and in the car going from game to game to game.

I recently heard that there is a new cookbook out that has nothing but recipes for meals that are cooked under the hood of the car. Besides giving the term "meals on wheels" a new meaning, do you realize the possibilities?

Dinner can now be prepared while you drive. I already can envision excusing myself during halftime, periods, innings or whatever, to go check on dinner

No driving Miss Daisy for me. I will be driving meatloaf, pot roast or maybe even a "car"-serole.

ALTHOUGH THIS WEEK'S Winner Dinner can't be prepared under the hood of your car, it is one of those great meals that only take a few minutes to put together.

Left to simmer for three or four hours, Carrie Obloy's vegetable beef soup will quickly fill your home with the most wonderful aroma.

Obloy, the busy mother of four, is a full-time homemaker and lives in Troy. She enjoys having children around and currently watches one little boy at her home. Her soup recipe is one her mother served to her and her two brothers when they were young.

Accompanied by crunchy onion bread, this dinner surely will become one of your family's favorites, too.

Thank you, Carrie Obloy, for sending your "super soup" recipe my way and congratulations on being this week's Winner Dinner Winner. Enjoy your apron.

MOTHER M'S SUPER SOUP

FRESH FRUIT SALAD

This soup literally takes minutes to put together and lends itself to being served for Sunday night dinner. I recommend that you make it one day, refrigerate it, and then, the next day, carefully skim off all the fat. Use half the soup for one meal and freeze the other half for another dinner.

2 meaty beef shanks

1 veal or beef knuckle bone 2 cans beef broth, 101/4-ounce

2 cans beef consomme, 101/4ounce size 5 cups water

1 can low-sodium green cut beans, 15-ounce size 1 jar pearl onions, 10-ounce can stewed tomatoes, 28ounce size

1/2 package very thin egg noo-

1 cup red wine, optional

Combine all ingredients, except for the noodles, in a large pot or soup kettle. Allow to cook and bring to boil, stirring. Reduce heat and simmer for 3-4 hours. Remove the bones and . cut off the meat. Dice the meat and return it to the pot. Add the dry noodles and cook until the noodles are tender. Be sure not to add too many noodles or you will be sorry; it will be too thick. Refrigerate and skim off the fat. when it has congealed. Reheat and serve. Makes 8-10 servings.

ONION BREAD

Take 1 loaf of fresh, unsliced Italian bread. Slice into 1/2-3/4-inch slices but do not slice all the way through the loaf. Place thinly sliced onion rings and butter or margarine on each slice. Wrap in aluminum foil and bake at 325 degrees for 20 minutes.

Wine speak is the way to discuss the grape

Communicating taste, smell, aroma and nuances of wine is unquantified and unscientific.

Even if a wine writer objectively describes a wine, descriptors like hemmy, lyches nuts or corked may not be part of a consumer's wine vocabulary.

Waxing poetic and describing a wine's "prismatic luminescence" doesn't tell you whether the writer liked the wine, much less whether rou will. The use of sophisticated terms does not make the wine better. Understanding basic terminology will help you communicate your wine taste experience to others and make you feel more comfortable about wine. Acidity - The principal fruit around those who enjoy talking acids found in grapes are malic acid and tartaric acid. They keep the wine crisp and fresh.

Lack of acidity leaves a wine flat, dull and uninteresting. Excess acidity produces a tart wine.

An apple exemplifies the impor-tance of acid in a wine. When an apple is green, it tastes tart and puckery in the mouth. If overripe, the apple tastes dull and flat. Baten when ripe, the apple tastes fresh, crisp, clean and balanced.

Volatile Acidity - Acetic acid (the same acid found in vinegar) is produced in a wine when it spoils. The aroma and taste are unmistakable. However, low levels of volatile acidity add a special complexity to some red wines.

Oxidation - Air is the enemy of wine. Contact with air causes a chemical reaction known as oxida-

An apple serves as a good analogy again. An apple sauce darkens with air contact. Wine does too. Additionally, it develops the smell of sherry.

Oxidation is particularly noticeable in white wines. A sound white table wine is pale yellow with a Nose - The smell of a wine is frequently called the nose. Connoisseurs divide the nose into two terms, aroma and bouquet.

Aroma is the smell of the wine related to the grape variety. Bouquet is the added color that is produced during fermentation and aging.

Tanains - Substances leached from grape skins, seeds and stems during fermentation of red wines are known as tanning.

White wines have low tannin levels because the juice is separated from the skins and seeds before fermentation begins.

Tannins are odorless, but they give wine an astringent, bitter taste. Tannins are antioxidants, and their presence explains why red wines can be aged longer than most whites. A red wine's bitter taste and astringent feeling gradually mellow with age.

Residual Sugar - During fermentation, grape sugar is converted to alcohol and carbon-dioxide gas. If the sugar is not completely fermented, it remains to sweeten the wine.

Residual sugar is found in the sweet white wines of Sauternes and Germany, as well as the fortified wines, Sherry and Port. Residual sugar in a chardonnay is uncomplementary to food.

Malolactic Fermentation - This bacterial fermentation may follow the alcoholic fermentation.

During this reaction, malic acid (a strong acid) is converted to lactic acid (a mild acid) and softens the Malolactic fermentation is accomplished in all red wine production, but it is the winemaker's choice in white wines, particularly chardonnay, where its introduction adds an attractive buttery, even butterscotch character and richness.

Sur Lie - Translated literally from the French as "on the lees," this is a method of aging white wines on the sediment (lees) remaining after fermentation.

Extended barrel fermentation on the lees contributes a richer, creamier texture and more fragrant, toasted oak and vanilla flavors.

Chardonnav grapes offer a more vinous character to the wine that benefits from judicious use of oak barrels for agBalance — In a white wine, the relative concentration about and residual sugar determine its balance. If the wine is oak aged, this adds another dimension. Factors contributing to balance is a red wine are acid, oak and tannine. It is important to note that a wine with all components in perfect bal-ance may be uninteresting.

Frequently, when one component is emphasized over the others, the wine attains a special taste quality that holds your interest and hurries your return for another sip.

Let's use the following description for the aroma of a cabernet sauvignon to learn whether you're tuned in to wine speak:

"The wine highlights green olives and is weedy, vegetal, oaky and var-letal with the taste of ripe fruit."

These descriptors are contradictor ry. The stated aroma descriptors relate to unripe fruit and the taste descriptor represents mature fruit.

Have fun practicing wine speak. You'll notice its frequent use in future columns.

Salem's Baker earns hoop accolades

Jake Baker had an outstanding junior season for Plymouth Salem, leading the Rocks in scoring and rebounding.

While there are no giants on the squad, Wayne Memorial's Kevin Hankerson, Plymouth Salem's Jake Baker and Redford Bishop Borgess' Randy White can play in the post.

Hankerson led the Zebras to the Wolverine A Conference title, and Baker was the main reason the Rocks got to the final round of eight teams in Class A.

Baker also can play on the perimeter as does Farmington Hills Harrison's Andy Smith, the classic swingman. More will be heard from these two since both are juniors.

Borgess: A knee injury during the Catholic League playoffs ended Respert's prep career prematurely, but by then the senior guard had already earned all of Fusco's respect. Respert, who signed early with Michigan State, averaged 22.1 points, 7.3 rebounds and 4.5 assists per game for Borgess.
Respert underwent reconstructive knee

"I'm not going to back down, saying he may be the best ever to come out of Borgess." Fusco said. "He's only going to get better. One thing I noticed about him this year is he became more assertive and took over more.

People know he can score, but he's quick and a good detender. He appears to be a quick nealer and could be ready next season at MSU."

The Rocks were 23-3 and won district and regional championships, becoming the first Observerland team in 15 years to advance to the Class A quarterfinals.

Brodle, who has a 101-40 record in six years as Salem's head coach, has been named coach of the year by the Observer for the job he did in guiding the Rocks to such heights.

Salem's 23 victories is a school record, surpassing the 1974-75 and 1986-87 teams, both of which finished 22-3. Brodie's teams have won three division championships, two league titles and three district crowns.

"You're only as good as the players you coach," Brodie said. "You always try to make adjustments for who you have in the program, but it's the kids who make or break the season. We were fortunate to have good play-

Russell leads soccer charge for Chiefs

Canton prepares title defense

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

When you talk about the talent on Plymouth Canton's girls soccer team, you begin with senior Jenny Russell

She was voted the No. 1 player in Michigan last year following a 19goal season and subsequently was named an All-American.

If the Chiefs are to repeat as Western Lakes Activities Association and district champions, Russell will spearhead the effort.

"I think she's ready," Canton coach Don Smith said. "She just hustles so much and plays so hard. I hope she doesn't put too much pressure on berself.

"She's so good because she plays with such intensity. If she keeps that up, she'll help the team one way or the other."

RUSSELL SETS a good example for the other players, Smith added and that will be especially beneficial this year since the Chiefs, who were 14-3, lost seven starters to graduation and have a lot of young players.

"I think Russell gets the others playing well," Smith said. "She sets the tone, and they respect her because she plays so hard.'

Russell, who also had 13 assists and played half the year with a bro-ken wrist, will be joined on the forward line by junior and returning starter Ayana Nash and junior Lynne Nichols. The latter moves from halfback in place of former allarea forward Shannon Meath, who had 13 goals and five assists.

Nash had four goals and three assists last year, Nichols five goals and three assists from her midfield position. Serving in a back-up role is Col-leen Connell, a scrappy freshman with a lot of potential, according to

"I hope playing with Johny Rus-ell really purks her up," said Smith I Council, adding he is undecided

the Chiefs have a lot of inexperience is the reason for the uncertainty.

"SHE'S A defender everywhere else except when she plays for me," Smith said. "It depends how the young girls come along."

A key to Canton's success the last two years — the Chiefs were Class A champs in 1988 and were upset by East Lansing in a first-round regional game last year — was its strong midfield, but Canton graduated Jenny Steinhebel, Molly Menard and Candi Jones.

The Chiefs do return junior Christina Reilly and sophomore Christina Stangell, both of whom played a lot in Smith's system of rotating half-

"They're pretty experienced, but that's where we lost most of our peo-ple," he said. "That's why we might go to four midfielders, because we'll be young all the way across. We'll just have more of them. We'll crowd the area and hope we can break out."

Senior Becky Shankle also returns, and the new halfbecks are junior Jonny Huchaba, sophomore Amy Tortora and Jonny Davis and fresh-man Leah Hutko. All but Hutko played on the JV team last year, though Tortora suffered a broken leg playing indoor soccer and was hurt most of the season.

"We're going to keep them fresh," Smith said. "They'll get better as the season goes on.

"WE'LL START with a lot of scrappiness to keep the other teams from dominating and hope, as the season goes on, to be able to do some overlapping. We'll have to do a lot of supporting and filling gaps, because two people up front isn't a lot when you're trying to score. "Ones like Russell will be marked very tight," he added, "and you have to give them time to run around up there and tire out the opposition."

Canton returns two defensive starters, senior Erin Morgan and junior Laurie McNamara. Morgan moves from fullback to stopper, and McNamara stays at fullback.

"If she comes through for us, we'll be pretty strong back there," said Smith of Morgan. "She should have a

The Chiefs graduated Chris Zawacki and Tricia Greenhalge, and their replacements are apt to be sophomore Danielle Meyka, who played JV ball, at fullback and freshman Kathy Bahr at sweeper. "She'll be very good, no doubt about it," said Smith of Welchans. "She has very good hands and reacts very well. Some of the other kids are going to be surprised to see how well she does hack there."

"We

Salem gets large turnout for tennis

By Mike Stewart staff writer

If the 1990 Plymouth Salem boys tennis team can't repeat last year's impressive, 10-1 league slate, no one can blame it on a lack of interest.

In fact, said 12th-year coach Judy Braun, based on turnout alone - 52 players showed up in hopes of making the team - there's never been more interest.

"I'm pretty sure that's a record for us," Braun said. "I don't ever remember that many kids trying out."

Unfortunately, as impressive as the turnout is, it hasn't made Braun's job any easier. Not only does she have the unenviable task of telling some 38 of the hopefuls they won't make the team, but she still isn't sure if the remaining players can fill the shoes of last year's graduates.

But don't interpret that as a criticism of this year's squad. Because the Rocks are forced to practice outside in less than perfect spring conditions, Braun hasn't been able to accurately assess the talent - though the Rocks open their season Saturday at the Bay City Tournament.

"WE'RE NOT really seeing the guys play at their best yet," Braun said. "We're really struggling with the weather."

Gone from the 1989 squad, which finished second in the Western Lakes Activities Association tournament, is Rich Cundiff, last year's No. 1 singles player, and Matt Lore and Scott Hobbs, the No. 1 doubles team.

Also missing are the Nos. 3 and 4 singles players, Wade Garrard and Chris Marschak, as well as Jeff Elliot, half of the No. 3 doubles team.

But the Rocks return some strong players, and the squad looks to have a very solid freshman crew coming through the ranks as well.

'We're not really seeing the guya play at their best yet. We're really struggling with the weather."

> - Judy Braun Plymouth Salem coach

Returning from last year's varsity team are senior Ryan Bannan and juniors K.C. Kirkpatrick, Prakash Cinnaiyan and Jeff Rearick. Up from the JV ranks are Mohit Mistry, Doug Bender, Kevin Clough, Wilson Lee and Lou Manolias. Plus, junior Mike Mulder will be returning to this year's squad after competing two years ago but missing last season.

In addition, Braun said the freshman class is so strong; it will seriously compete for slots on the varsity team. The freshman class includes Fred Staten, Jason Grimm, Joe Perron, Kevin Laber and David BRAUN POINTS to year-round play and participation in club competition that has made this year's younger players stronger.

"It's not like a few years ago when kids were coming out to the varsity level to learn tennis," she said.

Braun likes the looks of this year's squad but wouldn't make any predictions about the league.

"A team like Canton will come out roaring because they can practice indoors," she said. "We peak late but, by the time the conference tournament comes along, we should be

Farmington still talented

In the hig meets last year, sobody could snach Farmington's girls track and field team, which won Western Lakes Activities Association and regional championships.

The Falcons might not duplicate that success this year, but Farmington; with enough top-flight athletes returning, will be among the WLAA contenders again.

The Falcons, however, must get along without some key members of the last team and will-have a thin lineau that lacks the depth needed for deal meets.

"We're optimistic; we just have a lot of unknowns," coach Bruce Brown said. "But we've got some definite knowns. We have some kids who are going to do well. We'll show who are going to do well. We'll show up with what we've got and see how

The top returnees include senior distance runner Jennifer Kiel, junior hurdlers Shelli Gaul and Susan Davidson, senior sprinters Carrie Maier and Amy Trank and junior thrower Kerri Owexarzak.

BROWN EXPECTS Kiel to have another good year. She qualified for state in the 1600- and 3200-meter runs and holds the school record of 5:17.0 in the former. Kiel was regional champion in the 3200 and runner-up in the 1600. Farmington's success in girls cross country has always had a carry-over effect in track, and other members of the WLAA championship cross country team will help to make distance running a strength. Juniors Jenny Derwinski, an all-area cross country runner, Gretchen Clappicon and Cheryl Casaroll and sophomores Carrie Walter, Allison Davis and Jodie Van Ord offer support for Kiel. Joan Muller is a freshman prospect. The Falcons were hurt most by graduation in the sprints.

Jennifer Reed, who is competing for the University of Michigan women's team, Angle Forge and Nicole Tocco helped to make Farmington's 400 and 800 relays the best in the area and were good in open events, too. Those three also combined with Gaul to win the 800 relay at the re-

"The great unknown is really our sprints," Brown said. "We lived off Angle Forge for four years. I don't know what we can do, but we'll see what life is like without Angle.

"You could always count on Angie, and we were fortunate when Jennifer Reed moved in (for her senior year). We can't look back on it. We just have to have younger kids come through."

MAIER AND Trunk ran on the sprint relays when available the last three years, but they also play soccer at Farmington. They missed the league and regional meets because of the soccer team's extended run in the state tournament.

"They'll help us if we don't have a conflict," Brown said. "Last year we had enough depth that we could work around that. Right now we don't seem to have that depth."

Brown hopes funior Kristy Bodary will help in the 200 and 400 and sophomore Sherri Ylitalo in the 400. Sophomore Mattle Kinsey is another possibility, but her workouts are limited by a sprained ankle.

Gaul was the WLAA champion in the 100 hurdles and runner-up in the regional with a school-record time of 15.5. Davidson was sixth in the same event at the regional, and Dawn Montrose placed sixth in the 300 hurdles in the WLAA. "I'd say hurdling has to be one of our strong suits," Brown said.

Farmington lost one of the area's top high jumpers in Julie Lawton, but Gaul has jumped 5 feet. Clappison adds depth in that event.

OWCZARZAK WAS fifth in the regional in the shot put (31-0) and sixth in the discus (94-0). Junior Deanna Curcio competes in both events, also. Kerri usually takes a place for

Brown said. Gibson has long jumped more than 14 feet, but she plays soccer, tob, and might not be available for all meets. The relay situation, especially with the loss of the sprinters, is up in the air, according to Brown. 'It just depends who we have on a given day," he said. "We don't have enough Jennifer Kiels. I'd like to run her in six events."

The Falcons, with a 4-1 record. were runners-up in the Lakes Division of the WLAA and were 6-1 overall last year. Livonia Stevenson. which won the Lakes title, should be the team to beat, according to

Hawks to play DePorres in opener

By Den O'Moors

staff writer

Michigan's high school version of the Kickoff Classic will include Farmington Hills Harrison

The Hawks, defending state champions in Class B, will play perennial Class C power Detroit De-Porres in the season opener on Saturday, Sept. 1,

Harrison has won the Class B crown the last two years and will take a 26-game winning streak into its 1990 opener. DePorres was upset by Schoolcraft in Class C playoffs last year but had won that title five times in the previous eight Farmington Public Schools has declined to schedule parochial school teams, but athletic di-rector Ron Holland encountered the same difficulty he did a year ago trying to find non-league opponents for the Hawks, according to Harrison coach John Herrington.

We've rejected playing any Catholic League schools except in the playoffs, but we just couldn't get a game," he said, adding Oak Park was granted its request to be released from its contract for the opening game.

TT'S TWO traditional teams; the kids said it would be fun," Herrington said. "But we've gotta stop Shannon McLean. I'm not looking forward to that. He could be the No. 1 recruit in the state next year."

The 6-foot-2, 215-pound-McLean plays fullback and linebacker for the Eagles.

The contest also will pit Harrison sophomore Roy Granger against his former team. The wide receiver started at DePorres as a freshman and transferred to Harrison, playing on state championship teams at both schools.

The Hawks had to find a new opponent for the ninth week, too. Harrison opened last year at Saginaw Arthur Hill and finished against Farming-

In their final regular-season game, the Hawks will travel north to play Standish-Sterling, a small Class B school of 593 students, on Saturday, Oct.

'Supposedly, they're going to have one of their best teams," Herrington said. "Their coach said they want to upgrade their program, so they're going to play us. They'll probably be great, like DeWitt."

DEWITT, ANOTHER small Class B school. nearly upset Harrison in the state final last November, but the Hawks rallied in the last two minutes to win 28-27.

Under the newly expanded playoff format, Harrison will be classified as BB with an enrollment of 905 students. Standish-Sterling and DeWitt (537) will become single-B teams in football.

Herrington added he will get to coach Harrison's former all-state quarterback Mill Coleman one more time.

Coleman is one of the players and Herrington one of the coaches for a national high school allstar game to be played Saturday, July 7, in Reno, Detroit Mackenzie fullback Jerome Bettis will represent Michigan, too. Coleman has signed to play for Michigan State, Bettis for Notre Dame.

The business section is published Thursdays. In addition to the story coverage and columns, the section contains several calendars: Business People covers promotions, internal. awards and retirements for anyone living or working in our circulation area. We will print photographs if space permits. Datebook covers upcoming meetings and courses of interest business people. MarketPlace briefly covers new businesses, new products and other business-related items.

Submit items for these in writing by 5 p.m. Monday. For, these calendars call Barry Jensen , ext. 325. For all other items call Marilyn Fitchett, 591-2300 ext. 302

WEDDINGS, ENGAGEMENTS, ANNIVERSARIES

We publish photographs and : announcements of weddings. engagements and major: anniversaries of local residents or former local residents. These appear as soon as possible, depending upon available space. Forms for announcing these events are available from any of our local offices, or you may model your announcement on an example you've read in the newspaper.

The best reproduction can be made from a 5" x 7" black and white photo, but others are accepted. Please avoid regular or color Poloroid pictures.

Reprints of photographs that appear in the paper are not available. However, if a photograph is used and not needed for our files, it will be made availble to the first person calling in. Such photographs will be held in any of our offices for two months, awaiting pickup. To inquire about a photograph, please call the editor who ran the picture i.e.: Sports, Suburban Life, Entertainment, Creative Living, News.

Religious news is published Thursdays. The religion calendar is published on these pages. Calendar deadline is Monday noon. All material must be in writing. For more information call your local suburban life editor.

We publish obituaries of local residents and former local residents. Most obituary information is received from area funeral homes. If a local funeral home is not involved, please call the community editor at the appropriate telephone number. All obituaries appear at the discretion of the community editor. Obituaries are printed without charge.

CREATIVE LIVING

News of the arts appears every Thursday. Notices of gallery shows must be legibly written and submitted by the 5 p.m. Monday deadline. For more information, call the appropriate Creative Living editor.

BUILDING SCENE 591-2300 ext. 302

Construction and building news appears every Monday and Thursday. All information related to this subject should be submitted to Marilyn Fitchett, editor, one week prior to publication.

591-2300 ext. 305

Entertainment pages appear Thursday and include feature stories, theater and other entertainment reviews. T Talk restaurant news column, and the UPCOMING of which deadlines each Thursday (for tiems to appear the following Thursday). Submit all information to Ethel Simmons, entertainment editor.

All questions about movie reviews, which appear every in our STREET SCENE section, should be directed

Radio daze

There was a time when people gathered around their radio to listen to soap operas, shows like "The Lone Ranger," "Ames and Andy" and "You Bet Your Life." Now people gather around their TV sets for estertainment. But there's a group of people keeping radio drama alive on public radio. Find out more on Page 6D.

Filling the void until opening day

staff writer

The unthinkable won't really happen, thank goodness. There will be major league baseball this sea-

But it's still going to be a few weeks before the teams come back north. How can eager Tiger fans pass the time? Don't bother with the tractor pulls on ESPN. Relief can be as close as your nearest video store.

Baseball has been a frequent movie topic. But the wise consumer will choose carefully.

Highlight films are a safe choice. In addition to historical overviews of the sport, there are also individual highlight films featuring the game's most notable teams — including the Tigers. (And the 1984 World Series film is still available.)

Highlight films, though, are pretty safe and predictable. More venturesome fans head straight for the theatrical releases.

Even though plenty of baseball movies are available for VCRs, the sport hasn't been especially wellserved by Hollywood.

The game's most dramatic moment, Jackie Robinson's heroic. breaking of baseball's color barrier has only been told once - in a forgettable, low budget film starring Robinson himself.

Babe Ruth, the game's most colorful figure, was dealt an injustice by the much-panned 1948 film biography with William Bendix badly miscast in the title role. (Though a new, perhaps better, version with beefy "Roseanne" star John Goodman has been rumored.)

MANY BASEBALL films fail because their lead actors, while talented, just aren't believable as athletes. Tony Perkins in "Fear Strikes Out immediately comes to mind.
Even Robert DeNiro isn't exactly convincing in the much-praised

Bang the Drum Slowly." Objections aside, several baseball movies really do stand out. Perhaps tellingly, most of them are fantasies, rather than biogra-

I've seen just about every baseball film ever made. Here are my

1. "The Natural" - Many critics called a big strike three on this Robert Redford vehicle upon its 1984 release, particularly because it turned the amoral anti-hero of Bernard Malamud's 1950s novel into a shining knight for the feelgood 1980s.

It looks much better in retrospect. Redford is convincing as a ballplayer - if an aging one and his terse acting style fits the part well. As a fantasy fable, this ranks right up there with "Batman" and Randy Newman's musical score is brilliant.

If you've seen it before, see it again to savor the performances of Robert Duvall, as a merciless sports columnist, and veteran character actors Wilfred Brimley and Richard Farnsworth, as Redford's manager and coach.

DRAWBACKS - The altered ending does muddy things up a bit - but with a movie this enjoyable, who cares?

Special bonus - Look for reallife ex-Tiger Phil Mankowski and former Rookie of the Year Joe Charboneau in (very minor) supporting roles.

2. "It Happens Every Spring" -There were numerous, sentimental baseball-fantasy films released in the late 1940s and early 1950s. This one, starring Ray Milland, is the best of the lot. Milland, as a mild mannered, decidedly non-athletic, college professor accidentally invents a substance that makes baseballs avoid wood. In the process, he becomes a big time baseball star. Eventually, he loses his magic potion but wins the game and gets the girl anyway. Drawbacks - It isn't yet available on VCR, but check your local outlet and cable and UHF station listings - it's a TV staple.

Special bonus - Just imagine how good Dan Ackroyd would be in a remake.

3. "Long Gone" - A broken down minor league ballplayer, a sexy female bent on seducing him . . . hey, haven't we seen this before? Well yes, it is somewhat like "Bull Durham" and it does lift a scene or two from "The Natural" and even from "A Solider's Story," where baseball was a peripheral part of the action. Nonetheless, this made-for-HBO movie ses a certain charm of its

FOR MY MONEY, William Petersen (last seen as Joe Sr. in the Kennedy mini-series) is far more convincing as the weary jock than was Kevin Costner. Co-star Virginia Madsen, one of Hollywood's sexlest, least-heralded actresses, also cian Teller (in a speaking role yet! and ex-Laugh In star Henry Gib son as a dim-witted pair of father and-son club owners.

Drawbacks - The ballfield as locker room language, often peppered with obscenity, is au thentic - but it might be a ta strong for young viewers and thos turned off by such salty verbiage. 4. "Pride of the Yankees"

One of the few baseball biopic worth remembering. Hollywood legend suggests Gary Cooper has never even set foot on a baseba diamond until called upon to play New York Yankees great Lo Gehrig. But Cooper, the epitome of the strong, silent type, is believ able as the strong, silent (and trage ically doomed) Gehrig. This is great male tear-jerker, on the or der of "Brian's Song."

SPECIAL BONUS Ruth, Gehrig's teammate and ri val, is portrayed by the only actor who could do him justice, Rut

Drawbacks - None really but bring your Kleenex.

5. "Bingo Long's Traveling All Stars and Motor Kings" — As wit "The Natural," the film softens th hard edges of the novel on which was based. Still, Billy Dee Wi liams and James Earl Jones ar convincing as barnstorming Negri League ball players in the pre- an post-Jackie Robinson era. Their disappointment in being left be hind as younger blacks are finally invited into the major leagues i palpable, their love for the game

Drawbacks - The mix of come dy and drama doesn't alway

Special bonus - Jones is ex pected to return to the scree when the award-winning pla "Fences" comes to the big screen.
That's the heart of the line-up. The bench-warmers include:

1. "Major League" — The Cleve-land Indians win the pennant. OK, it's another fantasy. While too this is an enjoyable, if slight, comedy. Charlie Sheen is especially en joyable as a fast living, fast throwing young pitcher. Maybe he should be back in a sequel.

2. "EIGHT MEN Out" - This is of the scandal that broke when eight members of the Chicago White Sox were accused of throwing the 1919 World Series, told in documentary style by filmmaker John Sayles. The lack of a strong central character and the failure to take a stand, either exoperating the ballplayers or damning them, seriously hampers what could have been an outstanding Charlie Sheen gets billing, though David Straithairn nearly saves the day as tormented pitcher Eddie Cicotte.

3. "Dama Yankees" - Made back in the 1950s, when the New York Yankees really did win the pennant year after year, this musi-cal still holds up well. (Although "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" with Gene Kelly and Frank Sinatra is a lesser-seen alternative.)

Pullum's: A bit of Jamaica close to home

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

"Come to Jamaica," the ad says. At Pullum's Place in Detroit, Jamaica comes to you in a bottle.

Sure, any bar can throw on a few gaudy calypso records and serve up rum and Cokes with umbrellas.

But for a real taste of the Islands, just ask Carmen Allen of Southfield. He helps operate "reg-gae night" on Fridays at Pullum's along with fellow Southfield resident Barry Williams.

Allen pulls an unmarked, corked bottle off the shelf. In the vessel are bits and particles of Irish moss, pimento leaves, China brush tree, raw wainuts and peanuts along with the some fresh ginger. The concoction swirls around in 200 proof rum. Allen smilingly calls it "Island Tonic." No takers so far, The bot-tle has sat on the shelf for more

"That will put curl in your hair,"

Allen offers a less toxic alterna-tive. He calls it "The Islander Surprise," which is one of several non-alcoholic drinks offered at the international juice bar.

"The Islander Surprise" consists of mango juice, papaye, guava, grapes and coconut on top. The Orange Whip is gut to shame.

No asktrays or peanuts atop this bar, just mounds of exotic looking fruit. Allen dutifully names each one in the stack, pointing to papers, mango, and pickled pear and kiwi with his knife.

"I go everywhere, mon," said Allen, who is originally from Mandeville, Jamaica. "I spend two to three days getting everything."

Also, of the alcoholic variety

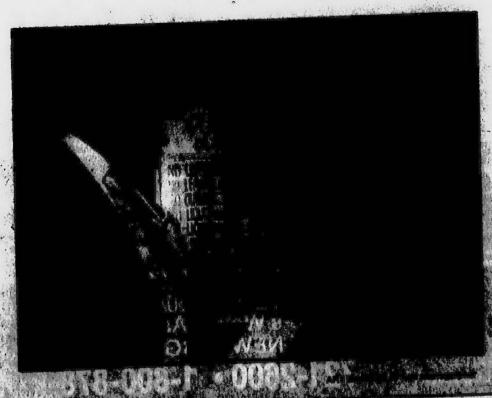

there are island favorite beers of Red Stripe, Guinness, Heiniken and Corrona. In the works is a mix drink called "Pullum's Punch," which consists of fruit juice and rum and will be served in a sea

Fans of hard-boiled detective novels will enjoy "Love at Large" (A-, R, 85 minutes), a light-hearted, romantic satire of Mike Hammer and all the other pulp-fiction tough guys sitting in their fourth-floor walk-ups waiting for lush blondes with big cases - "at least a C-note a day, honey, plus expenses."

This time it's a slightly ditzy but extremely appealing brunet, Miss Doian (Anne Archer), with lots of money who wants our hero, Harry Dobbs (Tom Berenger), to follow her mobster-love-object, Rick (Neil

Mr. Dobbs ("Call me Harry.") is the quintessential down-at-the-heels gumshoe. If he has an office, we never see it. He receives Miss Dolan's call in the bed of his jealous girlfriend, Doris (Ann Magnuson).

Tom takes Miss Dolan's case but follows the wrong Rick, Frederick King (Ted Levine). He's not the mobster of Miss Dolan's affection nor is he the accountant that his wife (Annette O'Toole) thinks he is. Neither is he the rancher that his other wife. Ellen (Katè Capshaw) thinks be is.

While Harry is following the wrong Rick and trying to sort all this out, he, in turn, is followed by Stella Wynkowski (Elizabeth Perkins).

Berenger is nicely situated amidst these five lovely ladies in the best pulp-fiction tradition. Whether intentional or not, these women bear considerable resemblance to other actresses - O'Toole to Meryl Streep, Magnuson to Shirley MacLaine, Capshaw to Jessica Lange and Archer to a number of stars in the Hollywood of old.

BERENGER PLAYS the whole thing with a whimsical intensity that highlights the mild but pleasant satire. His performance is keyed to the thought, "Isn't this fun?" Yup, it sure

Despite a murkey, somewhat disorganized opening and a sappy ending, "Opportunity Knocks" (B+, PG-13) is pretty funny with "Saturday Night Live's" Dana Carvey as Eddie Farrell, a small-time con-artist. He and his partner, Lou (Todd Graff), live by their wits and a variety of small cons.

But con games aren't paying well and the boys have a big tab with their bookle. Turning to burglaries in the night-time, Eddie stambles into the Malkin family. Father Milt (Robthe Maikin family. Father Mill (Rob-ert Loggia) is CEO of a folial fix-tures manufacturing company. Most important in the Milkin family is the chughter, Annie the doctor. (Palis Campbell). "Nuns on the Run" (B, R, 95 minutes) is a "devine" comedy, starring Robbie Coltrane and Eric Idle, both Monty Python alums.

Bryan (Coltrane) and Charlie (Idle), two washed-up bank robbers. decide to take money from a botched bank heist and start a new life by going straight. But they end up going straight to St. Joseph's College -The Brides of Christ Nunnery.

In order to elude their gang, a rival oriental gang and the police, they "become" nuns.

Transvestitism is in this season and the film is a mix between "We're No Angels" and "A Fish Called Wanda" - with some dry and wry British humor mixed in alongside classic slapstick routines.

Charlie and Bryan in hiding with the nuns get a whole new perspective on religious life. Bryan falls in love with a bumbling, myopic blonde. Charlie is the brains of the outfit trying to figure a way out of their predicament.

Idle and Coltrane work well together in the Laurel and Hardy tradition including a hilarious interpretation of the Trinity by Idle only minutes after Coltrane relates the story. These jokes made at the expense of Christianity are mild and fairly obcure hence the entertaining, enjoy-ble film shouldn't prove offensive. (Reviewed by Jason Brown)

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

Mall series honors Mitchum

To some, Robert Mitchum is just a poor man's Bogart, a droopy-eyed tough guy whose off-screen antics are more exciting than what he offered to the screen. You can, however, discover some real gems in his iong and prolific career.

Two of his best films highlight the month-long tribute to Mitchum at the Livonia Mall. Shown at 10 a.m. over the next two Tuesdays, "Night of the Hunter" and "Thunder Road" are the kind of movies so rarely shown on the big screen that they may be worth a morning sick call to

In the Charles Laughton-directed "Night of the Hunter" (1955), Mitchum had his greatest role as a psychotic preacher. On one hand, he has the word LOVE tattooed across the knuckles, on the other hand HATE. He's got plenty of the latter for a pair of children whom he's convinced have hidden away a stolen cache of money.

In an attempt to get closer to the situation, he marries the children's widowed mother (Shelley Winters at her thinnest and loveliest). In the film's most unforgettable composition, he lectures her about sin beneath the shadowy cathedral ceiling of their honeymoon bed chamber.

Had "Night of the Hunter" been more successful, Charles Laughton may have gone on to direct some equally fascinating films. The only critic who had anything really good to say about the picture was James Agee, who wrote the screenplay.

Mitchum penned the story of "Thunder Road" (1958), which plays the following week. He is cast here as Lucas Doolin, king of Tennessee moonshiners, who refuses to hook up with the powerful syndicate trying to muscle in on the generations old

Making runs to the city in a souped-up Ford, Doolin eludes both marauding Treasury men and the marauding Treasury men and the Mob. When a thug races alongside him, Doolin casually flicks his everpresent cigarette (no one smoked more than Mitchum) outside the pas-senger seat window and into the

This film proved a success (according to legend, it still plays at some Southern drive-ins) and produced a hit title song, which the actor both wrote and sung. Mitchum's son Jim debuted here in the role of Doolin's younger brother.

The Trouble with 'Henry'

If "Night of the Hunter" kept '50s critics guessing, "Henry: Potrait of a Serial Killer" has modern critics walking out in protest. Those who can stomach it - including Roger Ebert and the New York Times' Caryn James - are praising it as a stylized examination of a killer's mind. It premiers this weekthd at the Tele-Arts Theatre downtown.

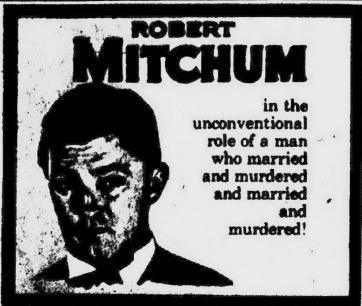

Director John McNaughton saw a "20/20" report of Henry Lee Lucas, a Texas killer responsible for countless deaths. He made the low budget film, loosely based on Lee's life, in 1986. An MPA X rating has held

'Well said," added lead vocalist Liz Thomasian of Southfield.

Well said, indeed. But let's get to the crux of the matter. Anyone can use some monosyllabic words and sing about the environment and other great sociological issues of our day. Can this band play?

THE QUESTION is answered succinctly in a nugget of a demo tape. There are five songs, all different and all encompassing.

SOMETHING ABOUT Henssler, he is a former member of the Necros, a hardcore outfit of noteworthy mention in the 1980s. The Necros released a few-critically-acclaimed albums and toured with the likes of Megadeth and Circle Jerks.

Big Chief offers a new creative outlet for Henssler and his band-

> Along with drummer Mike Danner, guitarist Mark Dancey, Durr and O'Brien, Henssler has figured out the equation. Many bands, including several local outfits, cite MC5 and Iggy and the Stoogies as influences. This leaves several leatherclad, pale imitators.

Not so with Big Chief. Why? They play their music in the spirit of the aforementioned gods of guitar grunge. In Big Chief's case, one of the key ingredients is funk. Rememers? Big Chief does.

"Disco killed funk," O'Brien said. "John Travolta screwed up funk: Blame it on John Travolta."

OF COURSE, Detroit funkmeister George Clinton still reigns and Big Chief is a converted lot.

Plans include covering an entire album of Clinton's in the future. Their hero has even given his bless-

"He told us to keep the funk alive," Henssler said.

Henssler is quick to add, though, funk is only one "flavor" in the Big Chief sundae. Heavy metal - in the Black Sabbath and Jimi Hendrix sense of the word - is also an undeniable influence.

"The real loud, crunching guitars have always appealed to us," Hens-to fulfill some 14-year-old's fantasy about destroying women or having a macho stance.'

There are few very stances in Big Chief circles. One is limiting the number of local appearances. The band will perform Friday, April 6, at Saint Andrew's Hall. The group opened for Soundgarden there a few months back.

If things go well, Henssler said Big Chief won't have to play in the area again for another three months. A tour of Europe would be more appealing at this point.

The British music press, in particular, has taken a fancy to metal/ punk groups from the States. Big Chief believes they have the stuff to satisfy appreciative European ears.

IN THE meantime, though, the band is putting together an album hopefully to be distributed by a major record label. The signing of Sub Pop's Soundgarden by A&M offers

- Lisa Stansfield

According to modern folk lore, disco died somewhere during the late '70s. But, every year or so, someone comes out with an album that sounds darn similar to disco.

This music is not, of course, referred to as disco. Instead, it is called by some sort of euphemism like "dance music" or "exte mix-o-rama." In other words, people leve to listen to disco music as long as they don't realise that dance mixes of the 1990s are pretty much exactly the same thing as disco mixes of the 1970s.

In the case of the new album, "Affection," by Lies Stansfield, several terms are used to describe the remarkable disconnected music. Among markably disco-esque music. Among the euphemisms, "club beats," "strjdent demi-house groove" and 'sprightly soul."

A proce release for Stansfield's al-A press release for Stansfield's album says, "You may believe you've heard her before only because Lisa is the voice you've always wanted to liear." Or maybe it's because we have heard the same staff before—in the disco era, the "Flanklance" dra, in every era where disco music, by any name, has been popular.

Lisa Stansfield in billed as being unique because, get this, she is a white woman singing soul music. This is unique? Anyone who had littered to anyone from Pat Boone to the Reiling Stones known that its nothing new for a white person to rip off the music created by black peo-ple. Even if it was a new concept, it doesn't seem like something anyone would want to brag about.

Stansfield doesn't break any new ground, either lyrically or musically, on this album. The songs are all about a craxy little thing called love. Love for yourself, love with a friend, relationship-type love, love, love, love, love. Whatever your love-song needs happen to be, Stansfield, like the Hallmark Card company, has just the thing for the occasion.

Stanefield can't seem to figure out whether she wants to be Michael Jackson, Anits Baker or Doma Summer. It's odd, her image seems very calculated as far as appearance goes — she even wears a painted on beauty spot. Too had you can't paint on mutical talent or originality.

It's been several years since Ladman did any substitute teaching. Her work as a comedian takes her to New York, Boaton, San Francisco, Seattle, Minneapolis, Chicago and other major cities. She's seheduled to appear Friday and Saturday, April 6-7, at the MainStreet Comedy Showcase in Ann Arbor.

"I wanted to do stand-up since I was 13." While she was teaching school, a friend of Ladman's was becoming successful as a comedian. He knew Ladman wasn't happy teach-

"I'm pretty careful about it, and I try to feel good about what I'm say-Ladman's material changes with the times. She doesn't throw material out and start all over, but does make changes as needed.

"It's an evolving process."

She's appeared three times on NBC's "Tonight Show" and has appeared on specials broadcast by HBO, Showtime, Arts & Entertainment and others.

"I love doing stand-up on TV," Ladman said. "That is where I'm happiest. You can do much more intelligent material."

She also enjoys live performing, but isn't as enthused about the travel.

DOWN THE road, Ladman envisions "more writing, more acting, less road work, hopefully a family."
She can't see herself becoming esticated, but does enjoy time spent at home.

"I'm very much of a homebody, but I'm very driven and I love my career. I can't separate that from my life." -

She's not sure she'll stay in New York or Los Angeles in the future.

"I'm very open. You can be happy anywhere really when you have friends and family, and you can do your work. So I'll see."

Paul Reiser: Rising star of TV, films

By Pat Schutte staff writer

Let's say that you need to hire a stand-up comedian. You put an ad in the Daily Laugh and in a few days you've got hundreds of resumes. Next thing you would do is to throw them all into a swimming pool.

If you do, Paul Reiser's would be the one that would sink to the bottom of the pool. At 31, Reiser has about the thickest resume on the stand-up circuit. His movie appearances alone brag like crazy.

It begins with the movie "Diner," (a must-see cult classic) in which Reiser played the insect-like mooch, Model, then as Eddie Murphy's rowdy pal from Detroit, Jeffrey, in Beverly Hills Cop."

Reiser's versatility then landed him the role as the sinister Burke, opposite Sigourney Weaver in "Aliens." And he also played Martin Short's best friend in the recent film "Cross My Heart."

'OK, he's been in a few good movies," you say. "How do we know that he's funny? What kind of material does he use?'

Reiser plays Michael Taylor, a fi-nancial adviser, who along with Joey Harris (Greg Evigan), a semi-starying artist, inherit a 12-year-old daughter, that one of them has

If you can't recall Reiser from the other comics." said Seinfeld. Reiser may or may not work as hard as the other comics, but, he sure appreciates them.

"Jay Leno's at the top of his career . . . he's really peaking," Reiser said. "Steven Wright said 'Just one sentence and you'll never know where you'll end up . . .' That's tal-

Well, if talent is as talent does, then Reiser's done a lot. His show "My Two Dads" won the People's Choice Award for the best new TV comedy. He also wrote, produced and starred in his own HBO comedy special, "Paul Reiser: Out on a Whim," and is also a regular jokethrower on "The Tonight Show" and "Late Night with David Letterman."

Reiser first did stand-up during a try-out for the comedy club Catch a Rising Star. He was influenced by a Freddie Prinze routine he saw on TV in 1974.

He went back to college at the State University of New York at Binghampton, where he was studying music, and performed as a local stand-up. And after a stint in his dad's health food hunters. Reiser found his way back to New York and made a name for himself as a madup comic, working such notable clubs as the Improv and the Comic

The big screen will be home again to Reiser this month as he plays Dudley Moore's colleague in Paramount's comedy, "Crary People."

Lynn Tousey watches while WDET Production Manager John Patouhas adjusts her microphone to eliminate "pops" and help create a sound that makes listeners feel they are in the room during Public Radio Collective radio dramas.

Radio: A drama of the mind

By Anahid Derbebien special writer

Radio theater. It blossoms on the airwaves in vivid color. But dare we use our minds and our imagination to explore such a brilliant world? Can we be lured to invent again . . . imagine again . . . dream again?

Yes, according to the Public Radio Collective. a WDET volunteer radio theater production company. PRC has been delivering radio theater to listeners' doorsteps with meticulous ingenuity since 1979. John Patouhas, PRC director and one of the founders, remembers when he and partners Bill Hale and Vicki Lange first established the collective.

"It was like venturing into a swamp," he said. "We weren't sure if we were going to fall into the water or if it was just going to be up to our ankles. We took it step by step, one day at a Radio theater was popular up to the early 1950s and slowly faded out with the advent of television.

Television, according to Patouhas, forces the viewer to accept what's on the screen. Radio drama, on the other hand, "gives you the basics — the dialogue and sound effects — you do the rest, up here, in your mind. The trick is you have to do it on your own. It's not all laid out for you."

One listener may visualize the main character in a crisp, clean outfit; another may imagine a dirty tattered garment. However, small or large the detail, each person imagines it differently, Patouhas sald.

"Everybody paints a different picture," he said. "That's what radio drama is all about. Radio drama is marvelous for young people. Television removes their imagination.'

BETWEEN 25-30 volunteers, including the actors and actresses, technicians, directors, writers and production assistants, work on each production. What comes first in the radio drama is production, with Patouhas "trying to find the best for everyone."

"We can work for four hours on a one-minute scene," he said, praising his production crews. 'We all respect and lean from each other."

WDET radio strongly supports the work of PRC and its productions, Patouhas said, adding thatgeneral manager Caryn Mathes is "responsible for the life of radio drama" at the station's sound and editing equipment. PRC works with compact discs rather than records, since hearing a scratch during a broadcast can "ruin the illusion." And it's the illusion that helps create successful radio theater, Patouhas said.

"Sound effects and dialogue don't have to be balanced," he said. "But how they merge with each other is important."

"THE SOUND effects are going to paint the mental picture of where the actors are," added Anthony Hamilton, a professional screen actor and voice-over artist.

Patouhas' humble nature and push for the best possible productions transmit to those around him. As he sees it, "if you're going to work on a radio drama production, it's for the love of a lost art form, not ego. It's just a lot of fun."

PRC began by performing the classics — Christmas Carol," "Treasure Island" and "Titanic" were among the time-honored favorites that graced the air waves. "Arlantis: The Beginning" was interesting PRC production in that it included high-tech alien sounds as well as some more common ones - pig, lamb and bvillager sounds.

Hamilton has appeared in several PRC productions. He and his wife, Fiona Berisford, both worked on the "Titanic" production. Hamilton got the part of the captain and Berisford played an Irish maid.

"PRC brought radio drama back to Detroit." Hamilton said. "I was brought up with radio drama: it was all we had. But it was slowly becoming a lost art."

Scripts addressing contemporary issues are beginning to take focus at PRC. The classics will always be a part of the productions, but the collective has decided to move forward, Patouhas said.

"WE'RE OPENING the door to a new avenue because we need to progress," he said.

To do that, PRC began utilizing original scripts a few years ago. A script competition turned up three winners whose topics included a mystery, a comedy and science fiction. PRC packaged the three scripts into one-hour micro-dramas for presentation.

The collective also held another script competition for young people. The winner was chosen from an age range of six to 16 years.

"For them, it was like a dream," Patouhas said. "The success of radio theater is largely dependent on original scripts with imagination. That's the key."

PRC's newest production is "Whale Music," which will air this month. It's a joint English-American production. According to Patouhas, England is known for its radio drama facilities. A case in point was recording a scene that took place next to pond. The English production team actually went to the pond.

And Patouhas plans to pursue similar joint productions with other countries to continue producing "inventive" productions.

PATOUHAS DELIGHTS in the community involvement in radio theater. Restaurants and food companies provide meals for the cast and crew during tapings and rehearsals, and people often drop in to help with anything that needs to be done, he said.

Such support is helpful, since each production tables three to four months to complete, he added.

Hamilton suppr working on the productions. PATOUHAS DELIGHTS in the community

Hamilton enjoys working on the productions and watcomes in set from the listening andience. He wants to know what people think of the

"It's just sort of a funny thing," he said. "One bels that they're (the actors) doing it is a sort of rold."

void."
In addition to his work with PRC, Patoni also conducts seminars at radio stations on to start a radio theater company. He also attends workshops and seminars to learn a about the art form.

"You'd be surprised how many jumple lo radio drams," he said. "We want to bling it that lost art. "Yes, there's telephoon, but the

And the winner

The envelope, please .

The hoopla is over with. Hollywood's big night is a fading memory. And if anything, it was memorable for Oscar's show of independence. The amount of money earned at the box office wasn't as big a criteria for nominations as in previous years and what some might call artistic films won their just due this year.

Granted, the odds-on favorite for best movie, "Driving Miss Daisy," won, but it didn't walk away with truckload of statuettes. And the Irish-made "My Left Foot," the story of paralyzed artist Christy Brown, won two major awards for best actor and best supporting actress

Well, there's still one envelope left to open. The one with the name of the winner of a trip for two to Hollywood, the grand prize in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers-AMC Theaters Oscar contest.

Like the Oscars, this year's contest was full of sur-

After counting 40,000 entries and getting the results for the six categories - best actor, actress, movie, supporting actor and actress and director - it turned out that four had the correct answers.

And considering that anyone seeing a movie at an AMC theater can enter, it was a pleasant surprise to find out that those four lucky people were from the Observer & Eccentric readership area.

With four correct entries and no Price Waterhouse around to sort it all out, the judges resorted to the tried and true method of coming up with the grand prize winner - toes 'em in a hat and draw.

That worked, but there was a slight problem. The grand prize winner, it was discovered, was 15, a few years shy of 18, the minimum age for entering.

By default the prize reverted to the second choice, but wonder of wonders, that perfect prognosticator also turned out to be under age. Well, that left just two entrants, who luckily met all the requirements. And so, without further ado, the grand prize winner is Scott Pollack of Livonia.

Pollack will wing his way to sunny southern California with a guest via Northwest Airlines for a six-night stay at the Pacifica Hotel in Los Angeles, arranged by Your Mans Tour. The trip includes use of a Sudget Rent-A-Car while in L.A.

Walking away with the second-place prim of an AMC gold pass was Carol Herdegen of Birmingham. And now Oscars 1990 is truly over.

It's easy to initiate recycling

Q: I work for a small company which throws away a lot of office paper. Is there some way it could be recycled? How do we start, or is that only practical for big compa-

A: Any size of business not only can, but I feel should, participate in a recycling program. It's relatively easy to do and a typical plan works like this:

A small receptacle is placed at each desk or work station to receive specified types of paper. This receptacle can take the form of a desk-top "In-basket," a satellite container hanging on the side of an existing wastebasket or a separate rectangular box or bin sitting on the floor where papers can lay flat.

When it is full, the individual is responsible for emptying that container into a central repository, often placed near the departmental copy machine. Custodial people usually move the department collections to a stockpiling area, where the papers are picked up by a recycling company. These businesses buy the paper from the collectors, and either process it themselves or bale it and sell it to a mill for processing into a useable product.

A MINIMUM AMOUNT of paper will have to be stockpiled before most haulers are willing to pick it up. That amount will vary from one broker to another. Great Lakes Paper Stock Corp. of Roseville specializes in large quantities, while Allan Blum Co. of West Bloomfield deals in large and small pick-ups.

Blum also works out programs to credit schools with paper picked up from parents' companies, creating a tax contribution for the business and fund raising for the children.

Acceptable items also vary with the mill. They may include 1) White paper - typing, ier or natural-colored manilla folders without labels) stationery with colored ink, and lightweight white boxes, 2) Colored paper - copier, NCR, legal, steno and notebook paper and colored stationery, and 3) Computer paper - white, green and blue bar paper. Staples and paper clips should be kept to a minimum.

ITEMS NOT RECYCLABLE include carbon, blueprint, waxed or glossy paper; gray cardboard, paperboard or boxboard. Glue and adhesives, considered the "kiss of death" in recycling, include Post-in notes, stickers, glue-bound books or reports, etc.

Windowless white envelopes sealed with water soluble glue are recyclable, but not those which are pressure sensitive. Rubber bands, spiral binders or metal fasteners are also unacceptable.

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers began recycling its Livonia office papers this year and collected over a ton of paper the first month. The plan has now been extended into The Birmingham office, with plans to include its other plants in the near future. Nelson Paper Co. of Romulus hauls its paper

Oakland County began phasing in its office paper recycling program 18 months ago and now Midstates Fibers of Detroit hauls a semitruck load away from its North Telegraph service center every three weeks. Chrysler, EDS and other major companies are also joining forces to recycle as much office waste as possible.

Besides reducing waste, you acatually get paid for this paper. Prices vary according to some 70 grades such as computer paper, white bond, colored bond, etc. Unseparated lots will be valued at the lowest grade included. Larger volumes also command better

YOU WON'T GET rich but don't overlook ossible savings in trash charges as well. With landfill dumping prices as high as $500 per load, your business may save money with smaller volumes of trash.

Newspapers must be sold separately. Because there are not yet enough mills to han-dle it nor enough markets created for the current glut of newsprint, it sells for less than 88 per ten.

Look under Waste Paper or Recyclers in the yellow pages to find the best waste paper recycler for your needs. I commend you for

Cities more receptive to redevelopment

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

There currently appears to be little need for government assistance in land assembly, but anti-development pressures in the suburbs are coalescing with redevelopment pressures from the more urban areas.

As little as five years ago, people saw little need for redevelopment, said Oakland County director of economic development Joseph Joachim. Land in the suburbs was plentiful and the tax benefits of construction were welcomed by most communities.

Today, the story has changed, he said. Roads, sewer and water systems in the west and north of southeastern Michigan are overburdened, and the already developed areas have seen their tax bases move away from the urban areas.

THE MULTI-USE project at I-696 and Woodward Avenue in Royal Oak, Joachim said, is a good example of the advantages and problems faced by redevelopment.

Once assembled, the redevelopment will create jobs, increase the tax base and improve the city's south side, Joachim said, but the $100 million office, housing and hotel project has been burdened by land assembly problems.

Costs to assemble land necessary for the project have been higher than expected, property condemnation has been challenged, and state land for the project has been difficult to acquire.

"What we want to do is make this whole process run smoother," Joachim said.

GOVERNMENT'S ABILITY to acquire land has been limited to two methods — condemnation, which allows a municipality to take property for the public good, and outright purchases.

The condemnation law has positive and negative aspects, said Lewis McDaniels, Royal Oak director of community and economic development.

On the positive side, condemnation allows a community to acquire land quickly. If the land's value is disputed, the municipality can take the land and settle the debate in court.

ON THE negative side, McDaniels said, are the potential costs of legal

For example, the government — after an independent appraisal of the property — sets the value of a parcel at $500,000 and takes the property. The owner, who decides the property is worth more, files a lawsuit claiming the property is worth $1 million.

During the court suit, the municipality is responsible for further appraisal costs, court fees, its legal expenses, and when the court makes a decision, the property's value.

If the court decides that the property value is $750,000, the municipality is responsible for that $750,000 plus one-third of the difference between municipal estimates and the final judgment, which is paid to the property owner's attorney.

THE CONDEMNATION laws could be changed to limit the amount paid to attorneys, McDaniels suggested Condemnation laws were written to protect an individual's property, he said, and governments must be careful a project is for the public good and that compensation is fair.

Adjustments might also be made to the Tax Increment Financing Act (TIFA) and the downtown development authority (DDA) laws, McDan-

As long as the desired property is within the established districts, TIFA and DDA monies can be used to assemble land, but there are difficulties.

FOR EXAMPLE, municipalities

FOR EXAMPLE, municipalities would need to borrow money against the expected taxes gained from the DDA and TIFA districts to pay for the land. Even after the money is borrowed, however, it still takes time to buy and assemble the land.

Trading municipal owned property with the desired property could work, but few municipalities own expendable land.

State loans and grants like the Michigan Land Assembly Fund are extremely useful to communities interested in redevelopment, McDaniels said.

He suggested the state could increase the funds that are available and county governments might be able loan money. The Michigan land assembly fund has been useful to Royal Oak and other communities, McDaniels said, but the money has been limited.

Land assembly new approach to development

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Redevelopment, a key to controlling urban sprawl and alleviating nogrowth pressures, is unlikely without land assembly — amassing parcels into a larger package that encourages new construction.

Redevelopment is the best of both worlds. No-growth advocates in rural and suburban areas prefer development elsewhere and urban areas appreciate the additional tax base.

But there's a problem. Developers don't want to build in developed areas because it costs too much to put land together.

GOVERNMENT, ACCORDING to Oakland County director of economic development Joseph Joachim, will need to lend a hand in assembling larger parcels in developed areas.

Residents, city planners and municipal officials are beginning to see the drawbacks of uncontrolled growth, and are beginning to redirect growth back to areas that were either abandoned or underutilized, he said.

Land assembly is a high priority of the Greater Detroit Economic Development Group (GDEDG),a consortium of leaders from Detroit, Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties, Joachim said.

ties, Joachim said.
"We're trying to design something equitable and workable."

Quite simply, development cannot occur on the cookie-cutter parcels of the past, Joachim said.

Piecemeal development has resulted in small, separately owned parcels that are useless to developers who build larger projects to take advantage of economies of scale.

PROPERTY AND development costs are expensive, but throwing land assembly costs into the equation makes redevelopment undesirable, Joachim said. In such cases, developers naturally prefer construction in rural areas.

"The way to encourage developers is to make redevelopment costs in urban areas comparative to green field development costs," he said.

State funds could be used to clear and prepare land for development, Joachim said. But there are relatively few state funds available though there are some untapped sources, he

Nearly $45 million of the $800 million in bond funds approved in November 1988 for environmental and recreation uses has been earmarked for cleaning up contaminated urban areas to allow for redevelopment, Joachim said.

Many potential redevelopment sites remain abandoned because previous uses have contaminated the property, he said.

DEVELOPERS ARE unwilling to buy such property because ownership — under current Michigan and federal laws — transfers liability for cleaning the site.

Before federal funds were cut in the early 1980s, Urban Development Action Grants (UDAGs) picked up the expenses of clearing land for redevelopment, he said.

Currently, the Michigan Urban Land Assembly Fund is the only real tool available other than the condemnation of property, which is often challenged.

THE LAND assembly fund engrently has $1.2 million available, said John Iverson, director of the Commerce Department area development division.

The land assembly fund is a revolving fund that loans money to communities for industrial and commercial redevelopment. In total, the fund has $7.3 million available for land assembly for industrial or commercial projects, Iverson said.

PROJECTS MUST meet certain requirements, Iverson said, but obtaining low or no-interest loans from the fund are not as difficult as most believe.

Projects must be in areas where unemployment and state equalized value is 70 percent or less of the state average and population growth is 75 percent or less of the state's average population growth.

"There are very few communities that don't qualify for the requirements," Iverson said. "You'd have to be a very successful area not to com-

Loans are repaid after 10 years or if the project is leased or sold.

Land assembly became a priority only two months ago so little has been accomplished, said Gloria Robinson, director of the Wayne County planning division and chair of the GDEDG land assembly technical committee.

gun reviewing Michigan law and public and private projects for possible solutions to the land assembly problem.

The technical committee probably

The technical committee probably won't have any concrete proposals for several months, Robinson said.

THE TECHNICAL committee has been talking to builders to determine their willingness to redevelop, she said.
