Schools: Film not influence in boy's death

By M.B. Dillon and Mary Washko staff writers

There is no connection between the death of 8-year-old Stephen Nalepa and the showing of a film in the Plymouth-Canton school district, board president Dean Swartzwelter said Wednesday.

"The school district's investigation has disclosed no information to lead us to believe that a causal relationship existed between Stephen's viewing of this film and his death," Swartzwelter said from a prepared statement.

The children's parents, Larry and Debbie Nalepa, were present at the announcement. The couple was upset and declined to comment on the district's findings.

Debbie Nalepa, prior to the announcement, said she didn't want to comment on whether the family has filed a lawsuit against the district for showing a film the Nalepas believe may have contributed to the boy's March 24 hanging.

The movie, "Nobody's Useless," based on the 1896 book "The Great Brain" by John Fitzgerald, is the story of a handicapped boy who attempts suicide before realizing life is worth living. The film was withdrawn by its distributor, the Encyclopaedia Britannica, March 29.

"We're concentrating on our grieving process right now," Debbie Nalepa said. "This is not the time to discuss it (litigation)."

Swartzwelter refused to comment on reports that the district met with legal counsel or whether a lawsuit has been filed by the Nale-

School attorney Dennis Pollard said Tuesday he met with board members in executive session Monday to discuss the Nalepa case. Pollard said no communication has been received by the Nalepas.

Barbara Graham, a school board member, told the Observer the board discussed the incident and sought legal advice from Pollard on how to respond to a possible suit.

Canton Township police ruled last week that there was no evidence to show the boy committed suicide

Parents of Gallimore students and others angry over Stephen Nalepa's death and how the district has handled the matter attended Monday night's school board meeting.

One parent, Wendy Sielaff, said the district has committed an atrocity.

We were never informed this movie would be shown. To this day, no one has taken time to send a note home saying, 'Your daughter has seen this movie.

"It grieves my spirit heavily to send my four children to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools when irresponsible, negligent people are at the helm of this district.

"The casket may be closed on Stephen Nalepa but we are not closing the case on Stephen Nalepa," Sielaff said. "We will not allow it."

Sielaff attended the press conference Wednesday and demanded the district provide a time and place for all parents to see the movie. She said the board keeps putting off parents on the issue.

Swartzwelter said the distributor has withdrawn the film and the district will need to see if it's available. He said parents may get to see it after spring break. "I'd like to know when and why my daughter was seen by a grievance counselor without our permission," Mike Sielaff told board members Monday.

"I'd also like to know if this movie was seen in conjunction with the Michigan Model on feelings.

The Michigan Model is a state health curriculum addressing such subjects as emotional and mental health, disease, nutrition and substance abuse

Jennifer Weil-Henson, a graduate of Plymouth-Canton schools, called the district's handling of the Nalepa incident appalling.

"I believe in this school district and the competency of its teachers. But to this day, I don't understand why 'Nobody's Useless' was shown," she said.

"I went to Stephen Nalepa's funeral and it was the most horrible thing I've ever seen. We still don't know what was going through Stephen Nalepa's head. But somehow, you do.

"Parents weren't told before or after-that this movie would be shown. The Nalepas didn't even know until they saw it on the news."

Schools take the DARE

Program teaches kids about drugs

By Kevin Brown staff writer

An anti-drug program for children that has gained support throughout the country will be taught to all Plymouth-Canton fifth graders this fall.

While police heading the program are awaiting word on a grant to pay 75 percent of the cost, officials in Canton and Plymouth townships ave agreed to pay for the program.

Gordon Jaeger of Battle Creek could be the most likely choice for next Plymouth city manager.

While finalists Jaeger and Northville City Manager Steve Walters are scheduled to be interviewed by Plymouth city commissioners on Monday, two members of the city manager selection committee suggest that Walters may want a higher salary than the city commission is willing to pay.

'I would suppose that the commission could then and there (after Monday's Interviews) establish a pres and ask the (selection) committee to negotiate. - Ralph Kenyon city commissioner

While officials in the city of Plymouth have not similarly agreed, citing budget constraints, Plymouth fifth graders will be included in the program.

The Drug Abuse Resistance Education program, DARE, was begun in 1983 by police and government officials in Los Angeles. The program seeks to warn kids of the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse, and to have kids understand that police officers are their friends.

Accommodating 450 additional ninth graders and 16 teachers at the already crowded Centennial Educational Park next fall has administrators looking for ways to maximize every inch of space at the high schools.

Plymouth Canton principal Tom Tattan and Salem principal Jerry Ostoin led school board members on a tour of the facility recently. The principals showed the future location of six portable classrooms; rooms scheduled for conversion to science labs; and classrooms with mismatched, old furniture that needs replacing.

The changes "are not ideal, but hopefully they'll make it more livable," Tattan said.

ADMINISTRATION AT CEP has had little trouble convincing school officials the improvements are necessary.

"Essentially the science labs have not been renovated since 1970, and some of them have been used for things other than science,' Superintendent John Hoben said.

"It's really questionable as to whether some of those labs have been adequate. Some are woefully inadequate."

Get ready for the biggest garage sale in town.

The date is Saturday, May 5. That's when city of Plymouth departments - ranging from the police to the department of public works - will offer for sale everything from unclaimed bikes to used desks and air conditioners.

"I don't think we've ever had one before with surplus city property," said Carol Stone, city director of purchasing. The "garage sale" is scheduled to run to 5 p.m., at The Gathering off of Kellogg Park.

The city sale features more than 100 unclaimed bikes now the property of the Plymouth Police Department. Once they're recovered, "We keep them in the department garage for a couple of weeks," said Lt. Robert Commire. "Then we take them over to the DPW. They keep them there for a while," he said, before they're stored in a semi-trailer in Salem Township.

Other items have been stored in various city buildings, including the city parking deck, the fire depart-ment, the DPW yard and the city hall basement.

Items for sale include eight air tanks, a wall mounted bookshelf, a 30-pound fire extinguisher and two 5-pound models, eight air tanks, two medical resuscitators, a portable generator and office chairs. "I think what we're going to do is put a minimum price on them, and if there's more than one person inter-ested, we'll probably have them bid," Stone said.

Proceeds from the sale will go into the city general fund.

The sale opens at 10 a.m.

Grand Blanc City Manager Randy Byrne - who turned down the Plymouth job - an annual salary of $59,500. City Commissioner Ralph (Jack) Kenyon, also on the selection committee, said Jaeger is willing to accept a salary "right around there."

Walters, who earns a $55,578 base salary, said a raise in Northville "has been discussed abstractly, which I advised Plymouth of."

He declined to say what the raise will be, as officials in Northville have not approved a raise. One selection committee member said a raise could push Walters' salary to more than $60,000.

FORMER CITY commissioner and selection committee member Robert Jones said talk of a possible raise for Walters in Northville and its impact on the salary he might seek in Plymouth - has put his candidacy for the Plymouth job "a little bit up in the air."

"At this point, I'm still interested." Walters said.

Both candidates are scheduled to be interviewed by commissioners at 7:30 p.m. Monday, in the commission chambers at Plymouth City Hall, 201 S. Main. The interviews are open to the public.

While Mayor Dennis Bila has said the commission plans to name a new city manager by April 23, Kenyon said the commission could choose a candidate Monday.

"It's time to stand up and make a choice," Kenyon said.

After the interviews Monday, "I would suppose that the commission could then and there establish a preference and ask the (selection) committee to negotiate," Kenyon said.

Jaeger, former Battle Creek city manager who left that post to take an economic development job, "works well with people, he knows how to get things done, he's innova-tive in development," said Rance Leaders, assistant under Jaeger.

Battle Creek has essentially turned around in the '80s. It's really on its way toward being a model city," said a Battle Creek Enquirer reporter.

Walters, a former Plymouth assistant city manager, also has experience in leading a successful downtown development effort.

"He is a very good administrator, he's really got the respect of his em-ployees," said Bob Needham, Northville Record editor.

Schools, police to start anti-drug program this fall

It was sparked by the concept that stopping the sup-ly and abuse of illegal drugs is nearly an impossible sit, and that education can head off drug or alcohol

Uniformed officers will spend a day cach week with kids in a given class, during the course of a semester. "We'll spend 45 minutes to an hour (of class time) with them," said Canton Police Officer Leonard Schemanske, sho is coordinating the joint Plymouth-Plymouth Township-Canton program. Besides teaching, officers eat lunch and go to recess with students to build friendship. The purpose is to have students see police more as friends, than as people to

"DARE to me represents the single program with the most potential for breaking the cycle of substance abuse in our country," said Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers.

While many solutions to drug abuse have been ban-died about, Myers said "The only long term solution is eliminating the (drug) market through education. It is through raising a generation of kids who don't want to be substance abusers."

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry added that DARE "deals with education as opposed to enforce"The parents in the parent-teacher organizations are really looking forward to it," Berry said.

The DARE program has been introduced to some Plymouth-Canton schools kids by Michigan State Police Trooper Robert Garcia, who has been presenting the program for two years.

The full-blown program to begin in fall will involve two officers teaching DARE full time and two officers teaching it part time.

The DARE program was introduced in the Livonia Public Schools in September 1988, and is now taught in all Livonia elementary and junior high schools, in public and private schools.

"It receives rave reviews in all the schools hosted the program to date, without exception, said Jay Young, Livonia Public Schools supervisor of community relations.

"The parents are very supportive of the program and so are city officials," Young said, adding Livonia city council members or high police officials attend DARE graduation ceremonies.

Officers who apply to teach in the DARE program undergo a screening process and once selected, attend an 80-hour training course.

The program has been implemented in 49 states, involving more than 3 million kids in more than $0,000 classrooms.

Relief for PMS Symptoms

PMS stands for premenstrual syndrome - a group of emotional, physical, and behavioral symptoms that affect many women. Specific symptoms include, but are not limited to, depression, anger, irritability, breast tendemess, headache, bloating, and changes in normal sleep patterns and appetite. Nondrug approaches to PMS include dietary changes, exercise, stress reduction techniques, and family member support.

Prescription medicines: Progesterone and oral contraceptive medicines have been used to modify or delay the menstrual cycle. Pain relievers such as naproxen and mefenamic acid decrease the production of prostaglandins - substances which may be in excess when PMS symptoms occur. Diuretics such as spironolactone may help control the bloating and breast pain that often occur just prior to menstruation. Tricyclic antidepressants such as nortripyline may help case premenstrual depression.

Nonprescription medicines: Aspirin, acetaminophen, and ibuprofen provide relief of pain. Pyridoxine (vitamin B-6) is included in some nonprescription medicines based on the theory that this vitamin suppresses the production of prolactin, a hormone found in high levels in some PMS millerers.

the school day so they can see how crowded the halls and bathrooms are. With the ninth graders next year, it's going to be too much," she said. Friday was a typical day for Couturier, who attends classes at both Canton and Salem.

• First hour: Couturier and her "I think they should come during fellow humanities students were joined by a second class to watch "Ben Hur." Chairs were placed in the aisles to accommodate everyone.

No textbooks are used in the class. Handouts and other materials are used instead.

· Second hour: Math teacher Peggy Bosworth reprimands her class of 23 for misbehaving for a substitute the day before. Later in the day, Bosworth teaches an algebra class of 35 students.

"THIS IS one of the smaller writing classes and it's still way too large," said Dvorsky. "Most English teachers think the maximum should be in the high teens or low twenties. Writing classes require more individualized attention."

Dvorsky anticipates that housing ninth graders at CEP will mean teachers won't have use of as many classrooms during planning periods. Bathroom facilities, already inadequate, will become more of a problem, he said.

"The building was constructed poorly," said Dvorsky. Bathrooms are so few and so crowded that teachers resort to using whichever restroom is available, regardless of whether it's the men's or women's room. "It's ridiculous," said Dvorsky

Several of Dvorksy's students say there isn't room for ninth graders at CEP.

"My second hour teacher doesn't have a room. He has to move from room to room," said Tim Sylvester.

A BIG complaint among students is overcrowded cafeterias. At Salem, students routinely eat on the floor.

'You have to wait in line 20 minutes to get fries or pizza," said Sylvester.

"The lunchroom is madness," agreed Canton senior Ryan Gross. 'I can leave fourth hour, so I eat at home or at Taco Bell."

The expedited agreement, which teachers ratified last month, gives pay increases of 5 percent, 4 percent and 5 percent and an additional cost of living adjustment of a maximum 2 percent annually over the next three years. The current contract runs through June.

"I think we owe some gratitude to the I CARE Committee people," said Trustee Barbara Graham. "We

"They should be commended for their work."

"It's been a long process that really started at the end of last summer," said Board president Dean Swartzweiter. "I'm pleased the process has led us to an agreement that will take us through June, 1993."

Canton resident Michael Spencer objected to terms of the contract.

"I work at an automotive company, and our pay raises have been delayed 12-18 months," Spencer said. "I think 4 and 5 percent plus a cost of living allowance is kind of large." Board member Roland Thomas told Spencer there is a 2 percent cap on the cost of living adjustment.

Under the settlement, Plymouth-Canton teachers compare favorably with their metropolitan Detroit counterparts who've signed recent contracts. Currently, entry level pay in Plymouth-Canton is $23,794. Teachers at the top of the scale earn $46,403.

She sure was.

It happened during a play written by a Plymouth-Canton German teacher - and it won first prize at the German Day competition in Ann Arbor recently. Joy Large, who teaches German at Central, Pioneer and West middle schools, took 90 of her students to the March 23 competition at the University of Michigan. They came back with a large share of the awards:

• Pioneer German II students won first price acting in "Little Red Riding Hood in The Ghetto."

 Pioneer German I students won second price with the play "The Berlin Wall."

• West students took third price with the play "Panama City Musicians."

· Central students, John Derbin, Mike Grimmett and John Paluchniak, won third price on the German I level television commercial.

· Pioneer students. Craig Benedict, Henry Bahrou and David Cipolla, won third price on the German II level television commercial.

Twenty Michigan schools with more than 700 students competed in skits, TV commercials and individual competitions.

The judges were professors and of Michigan German Department, Large said.

The three winning plays were teaching assistants at the University written by Large for this competition. About the first-price winning play she said, "It's just a silly thing, but they had a great time."

Earth Day '90 For these folks, it begins at home

- is likely to witness an outpouring of pro-environment sentiment unseen since the early 1970s.

From Washington to Los Angeles, environmentalists, elected officials and movie stars will speak out on environmental issues ranging from the erosion of the ozone layer to global warming, from toxic oil spills to acid rain.

But the environmental movement isn't just a gathering of scientists and celebrities, nor are its issues as remote as the Brazilian rain forest. In almost every town, there are people who are doing their thing - quietly - to preserve and protect the earth's resources.

They could be your neighbor, your friend, your child's teacher or even a member of your city council. Here are some of the people from western Wayne County who are making the environment a personal priority:

Activist

Every time Dennis Piper sees the smokestacks he sees danger - and a wasted opportunity.

"I'm disappointed that they didn't hear what we were saying - but we had no illusion they would," said Piper, long active in the fight to block the Detroit Incinerator. The Redford resident made it his wide, getting them to testify against the controversial trash-burning plant.

"First, I had to educate myself and when I did, I couldn't help but become involved," he said. LATELY, he's also been making it his duty to carry the banner for recycling. Piper sits on three local and regional recycling task forces.

As environmentalists, our ethic is that if you're opposed to something, you must come up with a viable alternative," said Piper, a member of the environmental group Sierra Club. "We have that alternative and it's recycling."

The Detroit Incinerator is the area's hottest - and most expensive environmental controversy, dividing environmentalists and governmental officials.

Even such environmentally aware leaders as county Commisioner Milton Mack, a recycling booster who helps oversee solid waste issues, have drafted statements supporting the incinerator as a safe, inevitable option in meeting the area's waste disposal needs

But for Piper, the incinerator is a risky venture whose time is gone. He plans to be there April 17 when the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission issues its opinion on the trash-burning plant. The commission will decide whether the plant has laid out an adequate plan to bring

Earth Day - Sunday, April 22 duty to contact experts from far and emissions into compliance, or whether to move toward denying a permanent operating permit for the acility

"Right now," he said, "it doesn't look good for the incinerator."

His love for the environment Piper said, began early. Growing up in the hills of western Pennsylvania, he was always close to the outdoors.

SINCE THEN Piper, a writer and freelance television producer, has made environmental issues a key subject of his work.

During the first Earth Day, in 1970, Piper was in the Air Force, stationed in California. "Really, I don't remember much about it (Earth Day) at all."

Yet Piper believes in Earth Day's goals, that environmental policy must spring from a grass-roots movement.

With the incinerator, my concern was science," he said. "We went in with the belief that if the science was good, the right steps would be taken. But that's not always the case. Sometimes, it takes more."

Councilwoman

She doesn't see herself as an activist - and scoffs at talk about being a trend-setter - but Mary Jane Schildberg can't recall a time when preserving the environment wasn't one of her everyday responsibilities. "I guess it comes from growing up in a rural setting." the Maine native said. "We were really isolated, so we had to make do, we had to recycle.

Now, she's spreading that philoso phy as a two-term Garden City councilwoman. "I made the environment a part of my campaign last time," she said. "I think it's inevitable that we'll a recycling program of our own," she said.

BUT SHE'S not content to wait for the city to take action. For Schildberg, the road to a clean environment begins in her own back yard literally.

"We have a lot of trees in our yard, so rather than bagging them and shipping them off we long ago decided to build a compost pile," said Schildberg, an organic gardening enthusiast.

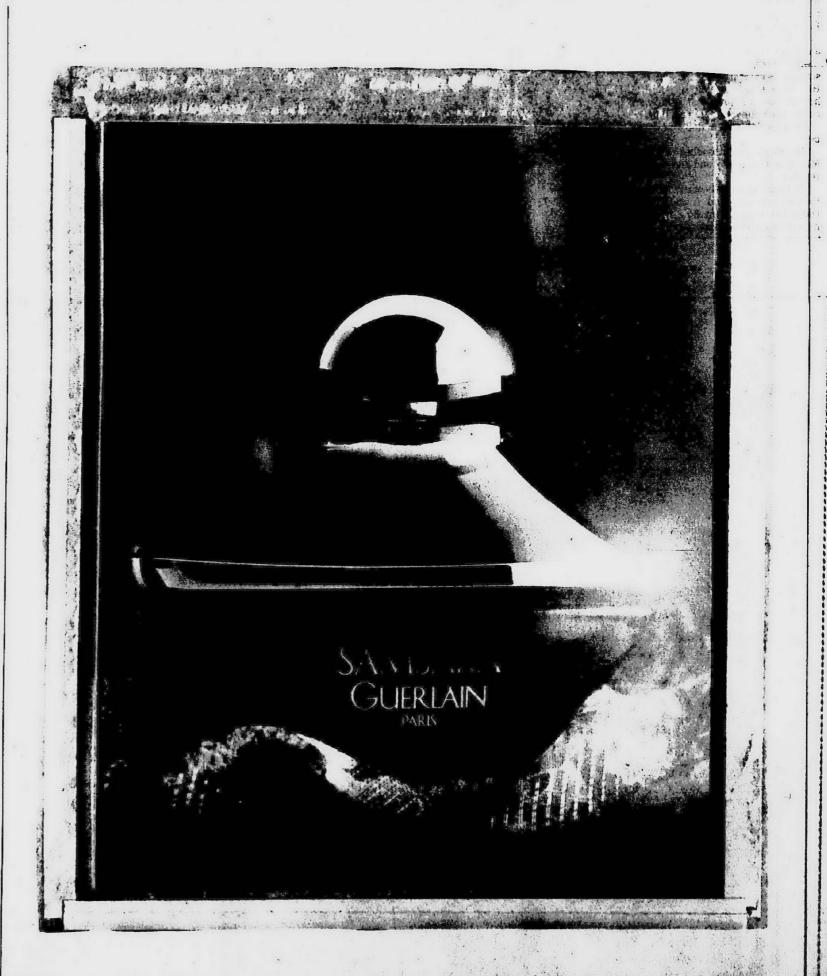

There are some open lots in our subdivision, so right now we're trying to start a neighborhood compost pile," she said.

Even without a city program, she and her husband - Lee Schildberg, a physician - have taken it upon themselves to recycle glass, cans and plastics.

Like Piper, she can barely recall what she was doing on Earth Day 1970. ("I suppose I was doing something with my Scout troop," she said.)

THE MOTHER of two, Schildberg said her sons' Boy Scout projects helped spur family interest in recycling.

Their goal:clean environment

"I remember one time we hung a clean handkerchief outside for about six weeks to check on air pollution," Schilberg recalled. "You couldn't believe how dirty that thing was when we finally pulled it in." While that early environmental project helped spur family interest in the environment, Schildberg also looks to it as a small sign of hope.

"The air quality around here has gotten a lot better since then," she said. "It shows things can get better."

Teacher

When it comes to the environment, John Covert likes to jump in with both feet. The Elvonia Churchill High School teacher has been known to wade into the murky Rouge River to clear logiams during the annual summertime river cleanup.

But it wasn't always that way. Despite a lifelong interest in the outdoors - and a long career as a science teacher - Covert didn't become personally involved with environmental issues until something close to his heart was threatened.

"When they talked about tearing down part of Holliday Park (a nature preserve straddling the Westland/ Livonia/Canton Township limits), then I decided to get involved," Covert said.

Plans to convert a portion of the preserve into a golf course were quickly scuttled, much to Covert's relief.

"I'd hate to see anything happen to it. I've taken classes out there to teach them about nature," he said.

COVERT, with partner Ben Ray, area-wide Rouge River education project. In the classroom, and the after-school Rouge project, Covert said he's careful to teach, not preach.

"That's the dilemma we face as environmental teachers. You want to pass along an appreciation for the environment, but you also want students to make their own decisions," he said. "At the same time, though the situation frequently looks gloomy, you want to give the stu-dents some hope for the future - at least the feeling they can make a difference.

The Rouge project "is a great morale booster," Covert said. "Last year, we had about 200 students participate in the cleanup. You'd see kids who sat back all year long finally getting involved in something."

If there's anything that worries Covert, it's that today's young people seem distant from their environment.

"The outdoors was a big part of my childhood," said the Livonia native, still an avid outdoorsman. "Today, you don't even see kids outside playing ball."

STUDENTS participating the the Rouge project say the environment does matter. And their reasons for involvement aren't all that different from Covert's.

"You look around here and see all the development that's been going on and you feel you have to protect what's left," said Livonia student Scott Westover.

The Wayne County Medical Exam-iner's office ruled the boy's death "undstarminable." A police investi-gation continues into his death, said John Santomauro, Canton director of public safety. public safety.

The day before his death, the sec-ond grader had seen the film "No-body's Useless," in which an infection causes a boy to lose his leg. Depressed, he attempts suicide twice until a friend convinces him life is worth living.

Police and Stephen's parents are concerned the film may have prompted the boy to mimic it.

IN FARMINGTON, the film was checked out of the district media center "several times" in the past few years, but has always been shown to "age appropropriate" groups of students, Flanagan said. Encyclopaedia Britannica recom-mends the film for students in grades four through nine.

He also said it is the Farmington district's policy to preview films before they are shown to students. In Canton, staff at Gallimore Elementary School said the film had not

Add two local communities to the list of supporters for Wayne County's plan to bring an airplane refurbish-ing plant to Metro Airport. Officials in Westland and Canton expect a boost in their own develop-ment if Metro lands the hotly sought refurbishing plant.

"We have several industrial parks and we're within a 9-to-10 mile radius of the airport, so I'm)sure we'd benefit," Westland economic development director Scott Veldhuis said. "Really, this kind of thing can't help but boost development."

Canton Township Supervisor Thomas Yack agreed. "Anything that boosts development at the airport will have a positive effect," he sald.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara said he expected the plant to produce 4,000 jobs - 1,200 at the Romulus plant itself, 2,800 more in related industries in nearby communities.

USING AN estimated $263 million in incentives, Wayne County is trying to lure NWA Inc. the airline's parent company, to build the plant at Metro.

In perhaps the most controversial part of the proposal, the county would make vacant airport land available at almost no cost to the airline.

"That land would have stood there anyway," McNamara said. "The benefits of having this at Metro far outweigh any objections."

Wayne County is in competition with Minneapolis-St. Paul - home base for NWA and the nominal front runner - Milwaukee and Memphis for the $200 million facility. NWA officials are expected to announce their choice before the end of the vear.

Advantages to the Metro site, ac-cording to McNamara, include its low cost and the speed with which NWA could erect buildings. "Our environmental impact statement has already been approved (by the Federal Aviation Administration)," McNamara said. "So, there should be no delays."

INITIAL CONSTRUCTION could be completed as soon as 1992, McNamara said, with full construction a reality by 1996.

Metro is a major Northwest hub, handling domestic and international flights.

Tax breaks from the city of Romulus, lease savings and low interest bonds from the county and job training grants from the state are part of the package.

The county would charge $1 a year on a 30-year lease, McNamara said.

The county would also seek sales tax and user fee exemptions during the construction period.

In all, NWA would save an estimated $263 million in taxes, lease and investment costs, compared with what the project would cost without the exemptions. An additional $4.5 million has been pledged by local financial insti-tutions and moving firms to help relocate Northwest workers, McNamara said. On-site child care services would also be provided.

Area trade unions have also pledged to avoid striking during the plant's construction.

The airline would be given a choice of three airport parcels. An industrial park could be built on nearby land, McNamara said, to house parts suppliers.

THE PLANT would be used to convert a new aircraft, the A320 Airbus, being brought into service by Northwest. Seven hangars, a series of sheet metal, fiberglass and paint shops would be included in the plant.

Various parts of the plan require approval from either the state Legislature, Wayne County Commisson or Romulus City Council.

Senate OKs higher ed aid package

By Tim Richard staff writer

The Michigan Senate has voted 15 universities state aid increases averaging 5.3 percent and 29 community colleges an average of 5 percent for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

'We've moved toward a formula approach - more equal per-stu-dent," said Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, vice chair of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The higher education bill passed last week on a 29-2 vote, with all area senators supporting it, and was sent to the House.

leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant.

Added appropriations chairman Harry Gast, R-St. Joseph: "This is the last of the Senate budget bills except capital outlay. We have not received a single bill from the House.

OAKLAND UNIVERSITY was voted a 5.4 percent increase to $36.7 million or $5,406 per full time equated student (FYES).

University of Michigan Dearborn is scheduled for a 9.7 percent increase to $18.2 million or $3,604 per FYES. Wayne State University is scheduled for only a 4.4 percent boost to $181.7 million. Its $7,925 per FYES

THE COMMUNITY colleges were voted a total of $223 million. It was about the same amount recommended by Gov. James J. Blanchard, but the Senate cut some of the higher individual increases and raised some of the lower ones.

Oakland Community College was voted a 5.04 percent increase to $15.5 million.

Schoolcraft College was raised nearly 4 percent to $7.9 million. Originally it was scheduled for only 2.9 percent.

The Nalepa family has laid part of the blame on the schools, saying their son could have gotten the idea from a movie shown in school on the Friday before his death.

The film, "Nobody's Useless," depicts the plight of a boy who loses his leg to an infection and then attempts suicide twice, once by hanging, because he feels useless.

We suspect the situation will end up in the civil courts. And so does the school board, which went into executive session this week to discuss the legal ramifications of the death.

That discussion should have been conducted in public. The school board closed its meeting, saying that it could go into executive session to discuss pending legal matters. However, a suit has not been filed by the Nalepa family to discuss.

We think the board was getting around the state's Open Meetings Act with its actions.

But there's more than just the act that the board was skirting. There were dozens of parents planation of the movie and the situation.

But that's not the only time the board has skirted the Open Meetings Act. Recently school board members gathered to watch the movie, "Nobody's Useless," in the wake of the death.

Four school board members were scheduled to attend the screening. The school board has seven members, and when four are present there is a quorum, which means that the board could take action on an issue. Such meetings are open to the public.

Prior to the screening, the school officials were confronted by an Observer reporter who asked that the paper be allowed to attend the screening because it would be a legal board meeting.

After that confrontation, school officials changed the screening schedule, and one board member attended another viewing of the movie. We can understand the school district's worries about possible civil litigation and its caution when dealing with the death of a student. However, we think the public deserves an ex-

eath penalty Too much power for government

HRISTIANS observe this Friday as the hanged. We are proud Michigan became the first day when capital punishment was inflicted on Jesus of Nazareth. Biblical accounts indicate Jesus did nothing that we would consider a capital crime. Indeed, the chief Roman official, Pilate, said as much:

"I find no crime deserving of death in him. I will therefore chastise and release him."

Bowing to political pressure, however, Pilate ordered capital punishment, illustrating why the death penalty is too much power to give government.

Michigan got a bad taste in its mouth for the death penalty in its territorial days when a man wrongly convicted in neighboring Ontario was

T IS TIME simultaneously to praise 48th District Court Judge Edward Avadenka while cautioning other judges about adopting Avadenka's approach to a recent case. The robbery and murder case of West Bloomfield resident Ralph Schultz landed in Avadenka's Bloomfield Township courtroom. Avadenka took several steps prior to the preliminary examination that, carried any further, would have looked like prior censorship.

For example, just before a hospital bedside arraignment of one defendant, Avadenka ordered the press to neither take nor print the defendant's picture. He cited two reasons: Schultz's widow had not yet identified the defendant in a lineup, and it would jeopardize the defendant's right to a fair trial.

The First Amendment prohibits prior censorship. However, since we do believe in everyone's right to a fair trial, and since Adell Courts was in custody and not an at-large danger to the public, which would have made the public's right to know paramount, we did not print a picture of Courts rules for coverage; he reminded us the law gave him extensive powers about courtroom coverage.

Likewise, Avadenka called together; media representatives two days before the pretrial of Courts and another defendant, William McMi-chael. Avadenka wanted to establish ground cumstances.

AVADENKA'S MAIN PURPOSE for the meeting was to tell us he would allow no electronic recording, at all, of Angela Schultz or her son, Alan, while they testified. Avadenka warned that criminal contempt charges would result if his order was violated.

At the same meeting, he told the assembled reporters and photographers that he was aware of the public's right to know and had no intention of blocking it. He turned over, to the press, seats in the jury box and the first rows of his courtroom. He could have limited the number of photographers, but instead welcomed all who would abide by his conditions.

Particularly in trials of such emotional magnitude and community impact, but even in smaller cases, we believe the public has a compeling and overriding right to know how the judicial process is working. We will take this opportunity, in this instance, to compliment Avadenka on his approach to media coverage. However, concern about applying these measures in the same even-handed way, and our unwillingness to endorse such precedent, prohibits us from recommending this course of action in other cir-

Let officers do their job

To the editor:

I am writing this rebuttal to a column that appeared in the March 29 issue of the Observer & Eccentric, "Police quick to abuse powers" by Tim Richard.

Again the readers are subjected to the personal opinions of a frustrated, liberal journalist who uses his powers, as an editor, to tarnish the image or blacken the eye of all honest, hard-working police officers. Now, that is what I call "abuse of powers."

American police officers have traditionally been regarded as courageous protectors of the innocent. They regularly face the threat of physical harm or death.

Yet the damaging words of police brutality, complaints of improper enforcement of traffic laws, stories of illicit confessions and maltreatment of prisoners, and news accounts of police bribery, refusals to release ongoing investigative reports to the media and incompetence have altered the traditional image of our "men in blue."

Who has changed - the police or the public?

Unlike other representatives of local governments, the police officer is in view 24 hours a day.

There is no doubt, much of the criticism results from the fact that not targets. he/she has become the uniformed symbol at which a community's pent-up resentment over social conditions can be aimed.

Men and women who accept hazardous public service are no different from any other person desiring the good will and good opinion of their fellow citizens.

Consequently, it is hard for a police officer to accept danger daily, without frustration and ebbing morale, in the face of mounting public disrespect and outright hostility.

We should never forget, in our dealings with a police officer, that he/she may have just spent an eighthour day (or more) confronting drunks, thieves, drug users, suicide and accident victims.

We cannot expect the officer to show the composure of a surgeon, the understanding of a clergyman or the learning of an appellate judge.

And, we cannot impose restrictions on our law enforcement agencies that will render them powerless to prevent crime and apprehend criminals.

I am personally distressed and appalled at the Observer & Eccentric for allowing such shoddy journalism to be printed in your fine paper. So, I implore you, managing editors and misguided sensationalism writers, to support the police; or, if nothing else, get off their backs.

"We don't have an urban policy," complained an east side senator, not once but many times, as the Senate held up action on renewing Detroit's 5 percent utility tax.

IT'S WEIRD how Detroit got into this mess over the utility tax.

The law provides a "sunset" or expiration date of June 30, 1988. Anyone with common sense would read it that way.

Not Attorney General Frank Kelley. He ruled that because there was no mention of the sunset date in the bill's title, the sunset section was invalid.

It's as if you were writing a cookbook with chapters on beans, potatoes and broccoli but the title mentioned only beans and potatoes. Kelley would say the broccoli chapter doesn't exist.

Wayne Circuit Judge Marvin Stempien, a sensible gent, took the common sense reading: The sunset/broccoli chapter does too exist, and the tax expired in mid-1988.

Political question: Will Kelley's fellow Democrats from Detroit retaliate against him at the Aug. 19 state convention? Or just keep bashing the "burbs"?

NOT WRITING ABOUT IT doesn't make it go away.

We got a lot of flack recently for a story on the large number of vacancies at the Crosswinds Mall on Orchard Lake and Lone Pine roads at the north end of West Bloomfield's shopping district.

The situation isn't much different than when we write about the vacant storefronts in Birmingham or businesses moving out of Plymouth or empty offices in Livonia.

We don't have a vendetta against business or the Chamber of Commerce in our communities, as callers or letter writers are wont to say. We merely report on what's going on in a vital aspect of a community - its business district - of which we consider ourselves a part.

Do those who complain about these stories think that no one but the press has noticed those empty spaces? Or that no one else wonders what the problem is?

Science teaching gets low priority

Q: I have children in the second and fourth grades. I was a math and science major in college and work as an engineer. Science teaching at the elementary levels seems to be an after thought. Science doesn't seem to be a priority. What's the problem?

A: Probably 98 percent of elementary teachers have had only one college course in teaching science. A course called science methods.

Only 2 percent of all elementary school teachers have a major in science. Most elementary teachers took majors in reading, language arts/ English or social science.

I believe the majority of elementary teachers were not turned on in their high school higher level science courses. Few if any had ambitions of becoming an engineer. Many elementary teachers feel. I dan Doc Doyle

"Youth Assistance is a diversion program for juvenile offenders,' said Davis, a certified social worker who lives in Canton. The communitybased intervention program includes young people picked up by police for a first or second offense.

IN THE past, those students often didn't learn that what they'd done was wrong.

These were kids that were kind "Our typical kid is a 14- or 15- of falling through the cracks. The message that came down was, hey, it's no big deal," she said. "Kids need to know there are consequences for behavior "

Typically, a teenager who's sent to the Wayne County Youth Home in Detroit has a lengthy record of offenses, Davis said. The Growth Works program is designed to deter criminal behavior before it gets to that point.

Being picked up for shoplifting brings many local students into the program. More boys than girls are in the program, Davis said, although girls are often picked up for shoplift-

The program at Growth Works, a Plymouth Community United Way/ United Foundation agency, began in January 1986. Students as young as 9 on through age 17 have participated.

'The people really come from all neighborhoods in the Plymouth-Canton area," Davis said. Many have well-educated parents who work in various professions.

Young people participate in the program for 16 weeks. Students learn that they're responsible for making decisions.

"I don't believe they're bad kids," she said. "I believe they made bad choices.

Some 90 students went through the program last year. Parents are also required to participate.

He appreciates being able to talk about problems and knowing that those discussions will remain confidential. Lee, 16, has a couple of friends who are in the Youth Assistance program.

"I wouldn't want to go down to the courts." He's grateful that he won't have a juvenile record when he completes the program.

Lee doesn't hide the fact that he's participating in the program. Sometimes, he tells friends he can't go out because he has to go to Growth Works.

THERE WAS one time when Lee thought about leaving the program. Other students in his peer group said things to him that made him angry. "I got really mad and started yell-ing at them." He decided to stay with the program.

Other families have also benefited from being involved. Cyndi, the mother of a son who's not quite 15, is grateful Youth Assistance was available for her family. Her son, a local high school student, recently finished the 16-week program.

"I was having problems with him," said Cyndi, a Canton resident. Her son was angry at his family much of the time. He frequently skipped school.

"There were other problems involved in there too." She discovered her son had been drinking.

Cyndi and her husband were angry about their son's behavior and about his lying to them. She recalled hit-

Cyndi and her husband also have a younger son. When their older son began to have problems, they really didn't know what to do.

"He seemed so level-headed and so reasonable." Their son had had a lot of friends, and Cyndi thought the move into high school would be a good one for him.

BOTH CYNDI and her husband went through the Growth Works program with their son. She remembers one early session when parents were discussing good things about their children. At first, Cyndi was hardpressed to think of anything. Later, she realized her son had many good qualities.

Falco avoids being condescending in his dealings with the students. He points out where they might have handled a situation differently, but lets them know the choice is theirs to make.

Falco's worked with quite a few students in the program over the past several years. He hasn't stayed in touch with the young people, and doesn't know just how they're doing. "You think about that from time to time."

Those running the program have agreed it's best for volunteers to avoid maintaining contact. The program's not designed along the lines of a Big Brothers/Big Sisters arrangement.

He plans to continue working as a volunteer mentor in the Youth Assistance program, and would encourage others to consider volunteering. "It's right for some people. It's right for me."

Winners of the three Remerica Hometown Realtors Scholarships are: Heidi Neuroth, Plymouth Canton, $500; Nicholas Purzer, Plymouth Canton, $250; Michael Krasko, Catholic Central, $250.

THIS IS the eighth year an Invitational Scholarship Ball took place. Many people and businesses in the Plymouth-Canton community contribute to the event, helping provide recognition and scholarship assistance for outstanding high school seniors.

The evening included a social hour, dinner, dancing and the awards presentation. Several people spoke to the honored students, parents, club members and guests.

"I'm very proud of the individuals before us tonight," said Thomas Tattan, principal of Plymouth Canton High School. "This is something that all of us in the community should be proud of."

STUDENTS FACE the challenge of living and working in a changing world, Tattan said. New technology and the information explosion of the late 20th century mean students must be able to cope with change.

Kudos

"What you know you cannot lose, and no one can take that away from you," Tattan said.

It's not enough for students to have skills and knowledge, Tattan said. Students must be willing to use their talents to help others and improve their communities.

"You need to strive to become a better person, but you need to choose to do that," he said. "Selfdiscipline in the future is a must."

Others speaking to the group that evening were Esther Hulsing, Plymouth Township clerk and a Woman's Club of Plymouth member, and Dean Swartzweiter, president of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education. Plymouth Mayor Dennis Bila spoke and presented a proclamation from the city honoring the club and the students.

"If I think Lent is to save my soul more sacrifices, then when Easter comes, I shall not be much better, for a self-centered Lent is an ego trip and not an exercise in repentance.

"The key to Lent is to live like Jesus, for others."

Spoken by the late Father Clem related in Genevieve Casey's recently-published book, "Father Clem Kern - Conscience of Detroit."

Casey, professor emerita of library science at Wayne State University and a resident of Grosse Pointe, interviewed more than 50 people before writing the moving Guard tank. story of Kern's life.

For 34 years, Kern, who died in and poor, the homeless, alcoholics, Skid Row

WRITES CASEY, "Clement Kern was a simple, unassuming man who led a rather uneventful, obscure life. "If I think Lent is to save my soul But when he died, 25,000 people by saying more prayers, making from all walks of life attended his funeral.

"Hundreds, perhaps thousands of people considered Father Kern their very special, closest friend. Projects he started still flower in many parts of Detroit life. Many sensed in him the striking presence of Christ.

"Whether or not the Church will Kern, pastor of Most Holy Trinity ever see fit officially to declare him Church in Corktown, these words are a saint, many people revere him, not for miracles and wonders attributed to him, but precisely for his ordinary deeds."

Casey's book is an engaging account of those deeds. Kern arrived at Holy Trinity in 1943 amid a race riot, hitching a ride on a National

His rectory, perpetually open, soon became a haven for "Knights of 1983 at age 75, served as pastor at the Avenue" - down-and-outers in Most Holy Trinity in Detroit's oldest need of a bed for the night or money neighborhood, ministering to rich for a meal, a house payment or bail.

Casey recounts that when told by a Hispanics, prisoners and denizens of welfare bureaucrat that a family he was helping was "unworthy," Kern responded, "Send them to me at Holy Trinity, because we are all unworthy here."

Kern believed that "only accidents of genes, birth, family, faith, body chemistry, opportunity and friends prevented his being a Skid Row vagrant himself," said Casey. "

EVEN DURING his retirement years at St. John's Provincial Seminary in Plymouth Township, Kern often was seen leaving late at night in icy weather in response to a phone call from someone who had reached a crisis in life.

Kern is buried in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in a grave beside "Curley," a "remarkably dirty, eccentric, unattractive Skid Row resident who came to be recognized as Kern's favorite 'Knight of the Avenue,' perhaps because he was indeed the least lovable," Casey writes.

Dubbed the "Labor Priest" because he worked so diligently for the of Jimmy Hoffa's. He offered Mass science of Detroit."

for him when he went to prison and after he disappeared, explaining that if anyone needed prayers, Jimmy Hoffa did.

Kern conducted a funeral Mass for a friend who was an avowed atheist newspaperman Doc Green.

The poor, whoever and wherever they were, were Kern's special love. But he had a special affinity for the Mexicans, many of whom made their way to Detroit and Holy Trinity in search of employment and a better life.

"Something in his German-American personality responded to the Mexicans - their love of family and children and music and dance, their relaxed indifference to time and their simple, unwavering faith. Af-fectionately, they called him, "El Padre," writes Casey.

KERN BECAME the Hispanic community's most active employment agent, finding them jobs and hood credit union, a guild to help ex-helping them establish businesses. With his friend William Cahalan, Kern set up the Migrant Workers De-fense League. He supported Cesar Chaves and the United Farm Workers, assisting with grape and lettuce boycotts.

Few of Kern's parishioners were black. But it was at his recommendation that the archdiocese organized the Catholic Black Caucus and the Committee on Human Relations. Kern also helped raise money for Jewish charities and spoke frequently at the Temple Beth El synagogue.

Routinely working 18-hour days, Kern strived to fill basic social needs. With the help of volunteers, he operated free legal, medical, dental and podiatry clinics at Holy Trinitv.

Without bothering to notify the archdiocese, he started a parish grade school. He established a neighborpectant mothers, and "Corktown College" - a night school with classes in English and other subjects for adults.

He found housing and jobs for countless numbers of men and women down on their luck.

CLEM KERN was a marvelous fund-raiser, wri.es Casey. He made it his mission to draw the entire community into the process of giving. To this day, the St. Patrick's Day "Sharin' of the Green" Mass raises thousands of dollars for Holy Trinity charities. The celebration has become "a Detroit institution which no political figure would dare to miss," says Casey.

Kern, who was named a monsignor in 1962, enlisted financial help from Detroit's labor unions and from the "Ecclesiastical Shakedown Society," a loose organization of newspapermen, bartenders and bookies.

Writes Casey, "Clem Kern could al-ways call his friends in the Shakedown Society with the message, 'The Church Militant is bankrupt,' and money would pour in."

While he loved spending time with Shakedown Society at the Anchor

Bar, golfing and traveling to Latin America to study Spanish, or to Stratford to see Shakespearean plays, Kern was poorer than many of his parishioners. He depended on the charity of others for clothing, a car and gasoline.

Casey quotes Rabbi Richard Hertz, rabbi emeritus of Temple Beth El. "There was no prejudice in Clem Kern. He was a Catholic with a capital 'C' in the greatest sense of the word - universal, understanding, compassionate and religious, in the sense of religious pluralism, the right of all faiths to approach God, as each one saw fit and saw it possible to do."

More than 40 years ago, the paths of librarian Genevieve Casey and the Rev. Clem Kern, pastor of Most Holy Trinity Church, crossed. Kern needed books for the alcoholics, homeless and poor people he ministered to in Corktown.

"I was head of an agency at the Detroit Public Library set up to provide library services for people who couldn't or didn't use traditional library services. They were institutionalized, handicapped, or for one reason or another couldn't avail themselves," said Casey, professor emerita of library science at Wayne State University.

'Quite a lot of those people included Skid Row people, so Father Kern's beat and mine sometimes were pretty similar. He and I collaborated on a few activities," said the union movement. Kern was a friend author of "Father Kern - Con-the "St. Thomas Aquinas Reading Room" she and Kern established in a storefront off Michigan Avenue.

IN ADDITION to poetry readings and books, the facility for homeless alcoholics provided shelter from eviction and strangers' stares, as well as a place to wash clothes and listen to classical music.

'St. Thomas would turn over in his grave if he saw what we named after him," said Casey, who's written 10 books on library science and gerontology.

Casey's book, available in paperback for $11.95 at Border's, Waldenbooks and Catholic bookstores, is the first publishing venture of Marygrove College. Proceeds go to the Kern Foundation and a scholarship fund for Marygrove minority students. Since its publication in August, sales have surpassed $10,000.

> 'We give money to people who need it for medicine, rent, household needs and other things," said Morris, who administers the "Fund of the Last Resort."

Morris, who critiqued Casey's manuscript, said the book "really captures my brother's life the way he lived it.

"Genevieve Casey did over 50 interviews with government leaders, judges, even down to bums on Skid Row. She interviewed all of them and really got to know him."

'MY REAL FIND was two derelicts from Skid Row," said Casey, who tracked them down to a nursing home. "I was afraid that if I found anyone who'd had contact with Father Kern, they'd be so pickled they wouldn't remember. But these two men remembered him very well." One man, a full-blooded Cherokee Sister Elizabeth Walters, IHM, is serving a six month jail sentence for trespassing on government property. She crossed a white line at Wurtsmith Air Force Base during a peaceful peace demonstration.

Dear Liz

You do not know me though I have heard of you over the past few years. Recently, I read a piece in the Detroit Free Press about you. The picture of you standing next to room EE in the Bay County Jail certainly did not look like the settings in which I remember other women of your religious community who taught me in Detroit many years ago.

Please do not take that as a criticism. On the contrary, I read the ar-ticle and gazed at the picture with admiration. You see, I do have a few things in common with you. It is just that I have not crossed that line.

LIKE YOU, I too am a campus minister. Although Schoolcraft College does not have quite the numbers as Michigan State, I am sure that you would agree numbers are not the issue on college campuses. Rather, students and the people who facili-tate their education are the issue.

Because of people like you, many of the rest of us are more inclined to include in that educational process the kinds of questions that need to be asked. We realize that learning is not only about how to relate to the sys-tems of which we are a part. It is also about challenging those parts of accepted systems that in any way dehumanise even the least among us.

Despite the fact that some magis-trates do not agree, many of those of trates do not agree, many of those of us outside the jail cells have to ad-mit that you do make us think about what really matters. We have been building nuclear weapons for so long that they seem as American as apple ple and estmeal. We have never seen the destruc-tion they wrack. And we have swee become used to the alow destruction

The second second state of the second se

OAE Sports-more than they have already wracked by sucking up the monies and the ingenuity -so badly needed in areas of humanimprovement and even human survival. It is truly frightening what we can become accustomed to and accept without question.

IT'S NOT that we are bad. We are simply about "matters of consequence" and don't stop to look. You cause us to do that, as uncomfortable as it might be. So although I cannot say that I am delighted with the challenge that you throw in our direction, I am grateful that you do it

I had not thought of it before, but you are right, the original apostles of our religion spent time behind bars for following their consciences and challenging the collective conscience of society in the first century. We tend to forget that legacy in a world, where religion is so often divorced in from real-life issues and accused of butting in when it dares to address them.

It does occur to me that whatmade those original apostles - and many of the unnamed women in their company - great was not that they went to jail. Rather, they were great because they remained willing great because they remained willing to name evil, even socially accepted evil, for what it was and call people to a better good and faller vision, even when it meant jail. God bless you for that same will-ingness, and for the way is which your story challenges us to bring our own story challenges us to bring our own story more is line with what we recits so glibly in our crease. As so many of us prepare to commence-rate high holy days, you give us pause to reflect on just what they, rituals are really all about.

Monkey business

There has been no monkeying around at the Detroit Zoo lately. The zoo is dressing up for a new summer season opening in May with a new two-acre, $7.5 million chimp island.

The island will offer an up close look at the zoo's seven wild and four zoo-bred apes. Visitors will explore the island through a trail which leads to viewing ports across a moat to the island. The devices and techniques of the new island will bring visitors to the natural habitat for these threatened and endangered species.

Starting in May, zoo hours will be 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday thru Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sundays and holidays. Admission is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children ages 5-12.

Mi Casa Su Casa

While stopping over in Phoenix on our way to Los Angeles, we organized a one night stay in a bed and breakfast. Our B&B was an adobe house connected to a complex of adobe buildings in Scottsdale, Ariz.

We found the B&B through Mi Casa Su Casa, an organization that rates and rents more than 100 bed and breakfast accommodations throughout Arizona, New Mexico and Utah. They can arrange a home stay, guest cottage, small inn or guest ranch for you.

"Mi casa su casa" is the historic Spanish western welcome: "My house is your house."

According to the literature distributed by Mi Casa Su Casa, their accommodations "have been granted a Gold Medallion certificate as they meet the highest industry standards as set by Bed and Breakfast Worldwide, a Trade Association of Reservations Services."

Each accommodation is listed in their small directory, but I didn't know enough about the Phoenix/Scottsdale/Tempe/Mesa area to choose, so I called and talked to Ruth Young, who established the service in 1980 after her son had experienced B&B's in Europe.

RUTH WAS a cheerful voice with lots of information about how to stay within half an hour of the airport; we were leaving early the next morning and didn't want to brave the Phoenix traffic on the way to our plane.

We went back and forth over the listings. Right location? Right kind of bed? Do we mind being with a dog? Do we smoke? Finally, we chose a private home on a Phoenix street for $45.

"Now, what kind of work do you and your husband do," Ruth asked. She must have heard my hesitation, because she promptly added: "I'm not being nosy, we just like to introduce our guests to our hosts."

"My husband is a travel photographer," I said. "Oh, well, in that case you must go to another place. It has adobe buildings set in date palms, in fact it's on the grounds of an old date farm and its very photogenic."

That raised my rent to $60, plus the $5 sur-

The food, provided by the Auberge du Petit Prince, a popular French restaurant, lives up to the setting. We had an ideal before-the-theater lunch; ginger carrot soup, pate and crusty bread and a flavorful green salad.

A GETAWAY weekend tends to revolve around meals,

We wanted to find a place that would liven up the dullness that the not-quite-winter, not-quite-spring period is famous for. So we went to London for the weekend.

from Farmington. We did some shopping, had afternoon tea and took a pleasant walk along the Thames at twilight. We saw a play, visited an art museum and a few galleries and found several good restaurants with French accents.

We wanted to get away from it all.

charge for staying only one night in an accommodation, but I chose it anyway.

B&B check-in is not until late afternoon, so we saw the town before we turned into the date palms, walked through the gardens and knocked on a door in the adobe complex. Our hostess Pamela Hopkins greets her guests with wine and cheese before leading them to their room.

THE KING-SIZED bed was built atop a raised platform. Our private bathroom was a few feet down the hall. The hall was screened off from the living room for privacy.

We didn't have much time to enjoy Pam's hospitality but enough to get a taste of Arizona hospitality. Her house was our house. She has only the one room to rent, and her guests include both tourists and business travelers.

Mi Casa Su Casa is one of many B&B organizations in the U.S. Its directory includes more than city homes. You can go to Ajo, near the Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument on the Mexican border; to the 1880's town of Bisbee; to Sedona in Arizona's Red Rock country; to Flagstaff near the Grand Canyon; to Page at Lake Powell which has 1900 miles of shoreline amid towering canyons.

Double occupancy rates range from $35 to $45 for a modest home and $65 to $125 for a luxury setting. Send $5 for a directory to Mi Casa Su Casa, P.O. Box 950, Tempe, Ariz. 85280-0950. Or call (800) 456-0682.

You understand, of course, that I'm talking about London, Ontario.

ONE OF London's many charms is that it's so accessible; an easy, two-hour drive from the Detroit area.

The first mile or two off Canada's 402 expressway is lined with familiar fast food outlets and motels so you may feel that you've never left home. But it's not long before the distinctive London look takes over.

London is the home of the University of Western Ontario, Labatt's Brewery, the Grand Theatre Company, a growing art community and the Guy Lombardo Museum. It's a blend of industrial business and a small town character; conservative and trendy, up-to-date and Victorian.

A good example is the Sheraton Amourles, a striking contemporary hotel incorporating a military armory of the late 1800s. There we saw a well-dressed woman, a real Queen Elizabeth look-alike, and a teenager in black tights with spiked purple hair, chatting away in the lobby.

Another charm is that London is so, well, Canadian. You know you're in another country in spite of all the similarities between Ontario towns and those in the Midwest.

LONDON IS an easy town to get around in. Most of its cold weather attractions are in or near downtown, so we left our car in the hotel garage and walked everywhere through a soft, scenic snowfall.

WILLIAM SHOEN

The Verandah Cafe is small and stylish. It fills up fast with visitors who make eating a major part of their get-away weekend.

Like many visitors, we planned our weekend around a play at the Grand Theatre; the provocative "The Road to Mecca" by the South African playwright, Athol Fugard.

Martha Henry is the Grand's artistic director. She comes from the Shakespearean Festival at nearby Stratford. The restored theater is mainly 1970s modern in style, but the ceiling still has its colorful murals and rococco touches of turn-of-the-century decor.

"Girls In The Gang," a musical, will end the theater's current season in May. Call the Grand Theatre for ticket and schedule information at (800) 961-4918.

THE LONDON Regional Art Gallery, all glass and shiny steel tubing, with an aluminum rhinocerous sculpture and a couple of army tanks guarding the grounds, has a varied program of interesting exhibitions.

On the second floor is an attractive cafe called the and London obliges with a variety of rewarding restaurants. Our two dinners, one at the Verandah, the other at Cafe Bruges, were delightful. Both are small, stylish places that fill up fast, so reservations are a good idea.

The Gallery Cafe in the London Regional Art Gallery, Michael's on the Thames and the Sheraton Armouries all serve a lavish Sunday brunch.

If you're in the mood for something different, there's the Laundry Cafe, 590 Oxford Street, offering 62 washers and dryers, a cafe menu, cocktails and big-screen TV.

And Mash McCann's Pub-Restaurant, 784 Dundas St., has entertainment that often includes wet T-shirt contests, Jell-O wrestling and table dancing.

IT'S FUN to browse in London shops. We found bargains in sweaters, mohair blankets and tweed caps.

Try Scott's on Dundas Street for Scottish woolens and the shops along Richmond Row, near the Grand Theatre, for trendy boutiques. The Covent Garden Market, off Market Lane, has Canadian crafts and foods.

Aside from the Sheraton Armouries hotel, there's the Idlewyld Inn, the home of a 19th century London mayor, recently restored to polished splendor, with 26 rooms, aptiques and up-to-date extras, like saunas and whirlpool baths. The downtown Journey's End hotel offers comfortable rooms at economical prices.

When we left, we were already planning another weekend visit for the summer. We want to see London's lovely parks and gardens, the 1834 Eldon House and the Museum of Indian Archaelogy, and take in a London Tigers baseball game in Labatt Stadium.

And of course, there's always the Guy Lombardo Museum.

The Desert Botanical Garden in Phoenix, Ariz., is a great stop to discover the 50 kinds of cactus plants that grow throughout the Southwest.

Phoenix offers an active stopover

By Iris Sanderson Jones

contributing travel editor

How do you see Phoenix in a day when you've never been there before and you don't have a local friend as a guide? That's the kind of problem faced regularly by business travelers with only a few hours to see their destination city before they fly home for another long week at the office.

We landed at Sky Harbor International Airport in Phoenix on Southwest Flight 500 from Detroit at 11:20 a.m. Tuesday, and flew out again on Flight 921 to Los Angeles at 9:20 a.m. Wednesday.

How can you do justice to the 10th largest metropolitan area in the United States in less than a day? You can't. But you can get a lot of travel value for your time if you land with a fistful of tourist literature and a plan.

I HAD never visited the Southwest desert country before, and I saw it for the first time from 30,000 feet in the sir. It spread below the plane in a reddish hase. At first the desert looked like it was dotted with lakes, but they were black shadows from the clouds hanging in the hot sun.

A highway and a river bed snaked side by side across the desert. What looked like flat land materialized into tabletop mesas. The land began to stubble like a 5 o'clock shadow. Trees. Snow-covered mountain trees. Red stope cliffs.

Then we came down through huge, whipped cream, cumulous clouds into the Valley of the Sun.

The Valley of the Sun is a chamber of commerce phrase. It describes the huge flat desert setting surrounded by mountains. Housing suburbs and recreational vehicle parks spread to the horizon, circling the mountains that erupt out of the valley, espe-cially Camelback Mountains, the landmark of the Phoenix area.

The Hohokam Indians never saw the valley from airplane height. But if you visit the Pueblo Grande archeological site you will get a taste of how they lived in this hostile landscape, amid a system of mile-long canals, more than 1,000 years ago. If that ancient culture interests you, plan a since the Detroit area has had a guidebook published. Now a husband and wife team has put together a review of the city and surrounding suburbs, offering a taste of southeastern Michigan.

Don and Mary Hunt, both 45, who founded the Ann Arbor Observer monthly magazine in 1976, wrote the 341-page book, "Southeast Michigan.

The critical review touches on sites and restaurants from Flint to Monroe.

"Detroit is such a complex city. We really struggled . . . to get a bal-ance," he said. "We found the more you know, the more interesting it is. We like Detroit," said Hunt. Hunt

AP - Almost a decade has passed and his wife began work on the book after selling the Observer in 1986.

The book gives readers hints of places waiting to be discovered, but also addresses racial segregation in the suburbs, Hunt said.

They characterize Mayor Coleman Young as having "grown more isolated and arrogant with time," and note how Dearborn Mayor Michael Guido once stumbled into a controversy involving his city's Arab-

American population. Hunt said too many guidebooks are superficial. "One of the things that are off-putting are guidebooks that see sunshine everywhere. It's so unrealistic."

The book is expected to begin showing up in bookstores this for $12.95.

Glass artisans find diversity fuels business

By Doug Funke staff writer

Laurel Clark and Susan Gossman know all about desk accessories, bookends, picture frames and candlesticks made of pieces of glass.

The business partners know about bending large pieces of glass for prototype automobiles.

But perhaps best of all, Clark and Gossman, owners of Lumen-Essence in Troy, know about surviving in the business world.

Income statements look good now as the two prepare to launch a line of glass furniture. But it wasn't that ure along the way. long ago, about 41/2 years, that their commissioned art studio was going nowhere fast.

So Gossman, the brains behind the business operation, jumped at the opportunity when she received a call from a General Motors executive about making a windshield prototype. Keep in mind that Lumen-Essence had never done it before.

"Heck yeah. We thought we could subcontract it," Gossman said. They couldn't.

"THERE ARE other companies that do prototype automotive glass, but for them, it's a real pain in the butt," Gossman said. "It costs too much or takes too long.'

Necessity literally was the mother of their invention. The two learned by doing and by contacting experts in the field, experiencing much fail-

GM liked the job - much to the partners' surprise - and ordered more work, prompting Clark and Gossman to move to larger quarters in Troy. Other automotive clients soon jumped on board.

Now the two are expanding again, buying a large furnace to manufacture glass furniture.

"EVERYTHING HAS taken off like crazy," said Clark, 34, the creative genius behind the operation. 'We've been fortunate. It's been like trying to keep our hands on bouncing balls.

About 25 percent of the business is auto related, 35 percent gift line and the balance divided between com-But because the cash advance had mission work and the new furniture dish through heating and manipulation.

All of the pieces are handmade and one of a kind. Clark's interest in the art was fueled by a class in stained glass. Even now, she constantly experiments with new ideas.

"I like the physical end of it producing, designing, making it and teaching others to do it," she said. "I don't draw at all. I think of them (products), then come out and try to make them. It's pretty much a hands-on kind of thing.

Gossman, 41, educated as a social worker, gravitated into medical adminstration and hooked up with Clark after taking a stained glass class herself.

EACH COMPLEMENTS the other's strengths and neither is afraid to get her hands dirty.

"Susan made the big difference," Clark said. "She brought money with her and business expertise."

"I like immortality," Gossman said. "I'm not an artist. I can come in (the studio) and watch Laurel create immortality. "Laurel and I do most of the automotive bending ourselves," Gossman added. "We're training two guys. They do a lot of it, but they're not experienced enough yet to do it all." Both also attribute their company's success to the efforts of all 10 employees.

"We give them room to create," Gossman said.

Neither are content to rest on past successes. Going into a furniture line will reduce dependence on the auto industry.

Lumen-Essence also has exclusive distribution rights to a glass adhesive that Clark helped develop.

We focus on different things for different reasons at different times," Clark said. "When there's nothing new going on, I'm bored. I want to go out start a bakery or start another business."

"I like the big deal," Gossman said.

If things work out as now planned, the partners will consolidate Lumen-Essence operations in larger quarters in five years.

Taxpayers: It's that time

Deadline gets closer for last-minute filers pression that state and local income taxes are no longer deductible. In states with high tax rates, the

If you're scampering to file your 1989 tax return by midnight, April 16, stop and take a deep breath.

Keep in mind that in the frantic rush to beat the clock, you may make some careless errors. Before you mail your return, the Michigan Association of CPAs advises taxpayers to review the following list of common last minute mistakes that can result in penalties. Failing to file for an extension

Of all last-minute mistakes, perhaps the costliest is failing to file for an extension. If you are simply unprepared to file a carefully prepared and documented tax return, don't blindly rush ahead.

You can request a filing extension by submitting form 4846 by April 16. The one-page form requires you to estimate your tax liability for 1989 and pay any tax due

By submitting the form, you push the filing deadline to Aug. 15, thus gaining an additional four months to prepare and file your tax return. Failing to pay when filing for an extension

While the IRS allows an extension for filing completed tax forms at a later date, any tax due must be paid at the time you request an extension or you will face interest and possible penalty fees, including an 0.5 percent per month penalty on the net amount of taxes not paid by the due date. However, the overall penalty cannot exceed 25 percent of the tax due. In addition, the IRS will charge interest on back taxes.

Failing to report a nondeductible IRA contribution

If you made a nondeductible Individual Retirement Account (IRA) contribution for 1989, be sure to also fill out form 8606 and attach it to your return. If you fail to do so, you become liable for a $50 fine. Forgetting to supply Social Security numbers

On your tax return, you must supply your own Social Security number and the numbers of each dependent who reached age two by Dec. 31, 1989.

Some taxpayers mistakenly assume that this rule refers only to dependent children. In actuality, you must supply a Social Security number for any dependent children or adult you claim, including a spouse or parent.

If you fail to do so, you will have to pay a $50 penal-

Miscalculating totals

Simple mathematical errors may seem relatively insignificant to you but to the IRS they are red flags pointing the way to a carelessly prepared return. Miscalculating totals or transposing figures can draw more attention to your return than you desire. Always double-check your math before signing and mailing your tax return.

Failing to deduct state and local income tax

A good number of taxpayers have the mistaken im-misconception may mean losing a legitimate deduction worth thousands.

You can find out how much state and local income tax was withheld from your 1989 salary by checking your W-2 form. In addition, see if you made any payments last April for the balance of your 1988 state and local tax bill. You should also take into consideration any state estimated tax payments made during the year. Those taxes also are deductible on your 1989 return.

Deducting reimbursed expenses

If you don't want to get into trouble with the IRS, avoid deducting reimbursed expenses.

For example, Jim's annual medical expenses totaled $3,700. As he understood the tax law, these expenses were deductible to the extent that they exceeded 7.5 percent of his adjusted gross income (AGI), which was $36,000. So, on his tax return, he deducted $1,000.

What Jim failed to take into account was that his insurance company had reimbursed $3,000 of his medical costs. As a result, Jim could not deduct a single penny of his unreimbursed medical expenses.

Before you drop your tax return in the mailbox, be sure to carefully review the miscellaneous, medical and casualty-loss deductions to account for any expenses reimbursed by your employer or an insurance company.

Not taking credit when it's due

Ignorance is not bliss when it comes to tax law. If you don't know what a tax credit is, it's time to find out.

A tax credit is far better than a deduction, since it allows you to subtract a specified amount directly from the income tax you would otherwise owe. Credits are avaiable for qualified dependent-care expenses, for the elderly or permanently and totally disabled and for low-income workers who claim one or more dependents.

If you suspect that you may be eligible for one of these credits, a quick phone call to a CPA may ultimately result in significant tax savings. Failing to attach proper documentation

Failing to attach the necessary documents to your tax return may very well invite an IRS inquiry. Enclosed with your return should be a W-2 form, which lists your annual wages as well as the amount of taxes paid during the year.

In addition, you may have to attach to your tax return one or more forms, such as Form 8283 for deducting noncash charitable contributions of more than $500

Mailing an unsigned tax return

Even the smallest mistakes, such as forgetting to sign your tax return, can have serious consequences.

CPAs warn taxpayers that the IRS may treat unsigned returns as if they had never been filed. As a result, you could be penalized 5 percent of the net tax due for each month the return is late, with a maximum penalty of 25 percent.

All 7 steps help small business managers succeed?

"Brainstorming" is the fourth step of the problem-solving process de-veloped by the California-based con-sulting firm of Herb Mitchell Associ-

During this stop, business owners and managers are asked to keep an open mind while brainstorming various solutions to their problem.

"Crasy" ideas may actually serve to trigger a fresh approach to the problem that hasn't been considered before, Mitchell said.

The objective is to form as many tentative solutions as possible.

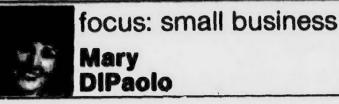

The more possible solutions you form, the more likely you are to in-look at all of the tentative solutions developed in step four and test them for reliability.

Objectivity is an important key to the success of this phase. Business owners will have a strong temptation to pick out the solution they secretly favored all along - or the one that seems the easiest, quickest or least expensive to implement.

This is a serious mistake. To ensure objectivity while testing various solutions, measure each against a common yardstick.

That yardstick should be the com-pany goals and objectives that have been established to identify the firm's future direction. The best solution is one that is in harmony with the organization's goal.

STEP SIX is to select the best solution alternative. This is the step where management earns its ssalary

On the basis of the problem-solv-ing steps already completed, the best possible solution must be selected. Without being overly hasty or hesitant, the evidence should nucover one solution that makes most sense, matches company goals and objectives and needs to be acted

In very few situations will one alternative stand out above all the rest

More often, no one potential an-swer is perfectly clear, but may take the form of a combination of two or more alternatives discovered in step four

If the evaluation of tentative solutions reveals that none of the alternatives is reliable or workable, management must repeat the entire process from step one. In all probability, the problem has most likely been properly identified.

LAST. THE solution selected must be put into action. Even the best res-olution is useless if it goes no further than printed words on paper.

If the problem is corrected after a solution has been acted upon, the "right" answer has been discovered to the right problem. If not, the solution may need to be modified.

Once again, the seven-step process for solving business problems is as follows

Identify the real problem.

- Write it down. Gather information.
- List possible solutions.
- Test possible solutions.
- Select the best alternative. · Put your solution into action.

Following these auto care tips should help the environment

As 'Americans become more and more aware of the need to respect the environment, they are constantly looking for ways in which they can make a difference. But one obvious place they may not have looked may be right in their driveway or garage.

Doing the little things on the family car can have a big effect on improving the environment, said John King, parts and service engineering manager for Ford Parts and Service Division.

"It's amazing how much we can do to make our cars friendly to the environment. On a very large scale, the company and our dealers are taking steps to reduce harmful tailpipe emissions and to recycle and eventually

'It's amazing how much we can do to make our cars friendly to the environment.'

> - John King Ford Parts and Service eliminate CFCs in order to protect the ozone layer. "But there are steps each of us can take individually that, while certainly on a smaller scale, can have an impact. If people properly maintain their cars and don't tamper with the emissions could be reduced by 25 percent, according to the Environmental Protection Agency.

King suggests the following steps be observed to assure that every car on the road is environmentally friendly:

· Follow the manufacturer's recommendations for scheduled maintenance including oil and filter change intervals. Fresh oil reduces vehicle pollution and contributes to improved fuel economy. Using highquality oils reduces engine sludging and improve fuel economy. Air filter replacement promotes fuel economy. Spark plug replacement maximizes engine efficiency. Proper tire inflation improves fuel economy and maximizes tire life.

• Drive in a responsible manner in order to avoid excess gasoline consumption, avoiding "jack rabbit" starts, prolonged periods of idling and speeds in excess of posted levels. • For the do-it-yourselfer, dispose of used oil and other vehicle fluids (coolant, transmission and brake fluid) through recycling centers. · Combine trips to save both time and money. • When the air-conditioning system requires service, make sure to take the car to a service facility that uses refrigerant recycling equip-ment to minimize release of CFCs to the environment. • Use gasoline with detergent additives designed to keep fuel injec-tors clean. Companies that add de-tergents usually advertise this fact. • If the owner's guide recommends 5W30 motor oil for the engine and climate, use it on a regular basis. It can provide a small fuel economy benefit over 10W40 and 20W40 motor oils.

• Have fluid leaks - power steering, cooling oil, brake or transmission - repaired immediately to prevent unwanted release to the environment.

· Keep all vehicle fluids at recommended levels for efficient operation

• Use the air-conditioning system only as required - it can decrease fuel economy up to 1.5 miles per gallon

· Don't tamper with the emission control system.

"These recommendations may seem insignificant, but taken together they can make a difference. The auto industry has made a greater contribution toward cleaning up the air than any other industry, and if more consumers can join this battle, even greater successes can be obtained.

Compared with cars built in the early 1970s, today's new cars emit 96 percent fewer hydrocarbons, 96 percent less carbon monoxide and 76 percent fewer nitrogen oxides. Pre-1983 vehicles, while accounting for 43 percent of the miles traveled in the United States, produce about 84 percent of the pollution, King said.

Meadowlarks are about the size of a robin. They will often stand very erect while extending their head upward and singing to proclaim their territory.

Meadowlarks easy to spot even when flying at 55 mph

Thursday, April 12, 1990 O&E

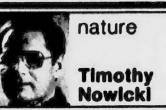

A familiarity with the natural world allows one to predict upcoming events with reasonable accuracy. Discounting the predictable change of season, within each season there is a sequence of events that occur.

Arrival of red-winged blackbirds to cattails along the edge of roadways and other marshy areas is expected on the first warm days in March. It warms the heart to see a friend who has been away for several months return to his summer home

First encounters of spring arrivals is always an enjoyable experience because it foretells that the consistency and stability of nature prevails

MEADOWLARKS are also one of those early spring arrivals. They can often be seen flying along the sides of expressways or in the median separating the roadways.

Even when one is traveling at 55 mph, it is easy to identify a meadowlark. One has to be alert for traffic, but if a light brownbacked bird with shallow wingbeats and white outer tail feathers flies by, it is going to be a meadowlark.

Meadowlarks are about the size of a robin. Their backs are light brown, and their underparts are bright yellow interrupted by a black necklace. As their name implies, they are typically found in open grassy areas.

They arrive from their southern wintering grounds about the same time as their other blackbird relatives. Though they are not mostly black like many other blackbirds, several body structures, such as the bill, have caused scientists to group them together. Northern ori-oles that will be returning soon also are closely related to grackles, cowbirds and red-wings.

#5C

These birds frequently perch on fence poles. They will often stand very erect while extending their head upward and singing to proclaim their territory. A word phrase that simulates the phrasing of the song is "Spring of the Year."

If you get a chance to watch any "Gunsmoke" reruns, listen for the song of the western meadowlark as they ride across the plains. If you cannot, at least take note of the meadowlarks as you drive along the expressways.

The controversial group believes in militant, mass action with violence, if necessary, to further antiracist and anti-imperialist views. In October, InCAR planned to counterprotest the neo-Nazi S.S. Action Group. The neo-Nazis canceled their protest of Farmington resident Derwin Success' peace march for racial harmony two days before the event when they learned InCAR would appear.

INCAR CONSIDERS itself to be "at war" with white supremacist groups and has physically fought them in the Detroit area, said InCAR chairman Larry Goldbetter, Detroit correspondent for the party's weekly newspaper, "Challenge-Desafio."

"We're proud of what we did as far as spreading anti-racist ideas," Davis said, after the pre-trial hearing March 20. Unfortunately, anti-racist views are not necessarily looked at as a good thing, so we're looked at as bad guys quite often. We're happy that the Nazis and skinheads weren't able to march. A lot of neighborhood people came out. We need to have more confidence in people - that they want to be against racism and fascists."

Davis is a 20-year InCAR member. "We've been involved in literally dozens of anti-Klan, anti-Nazi demonstrations," she said. Stewart enters the armed services this month.

'I've never been in trouble with the law except for now," he said. 'I'm a good, law-abiding citizen and I love fighting back against racism. I feel that what I did was right and I would do it again if I had a chance, but not in nine months. I'm going to learn some discipline and come back and take care of society."

ANOTHER INCAR member, Detroiter Eva Ridgell, 29, received 11 days' jail time in October after she was arrested during the peace march on disorderly conduct charges and providing false identification to a police officer. The latter charge was later dismissed. At the had three outstanding misdemea warrants from Detroit, Highla Park and Flint.

The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out—STOP! And try any of these simple alternatives.

You'll feel better . . . and so will your child.

- 1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult . . .
- 2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
- 5. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet, to 20.
- 4. Put your child in a time-out chair. (Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age.)
- Put yourself in a time-out chair. Think about why you are angry: Is It your child, or is your child simply a convenient target for your anger?
- 6. Phone a friend.
- 7. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
- 8. Take a hot bath or splash cold water on your face.
- 9. Hug a pillow.
- 10. Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
- 11. Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list.
- 12. Write for prevention information: National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Box 2866L, Chicago, IL 60690.

Mariette Hartley wants you to discover the explosive values on carpet in hundreds of All-American colors and styles...at the one-and-only Great American Carpet Sale.

But don't delay. Even though this may turn out to be the biggest carpet sale in the country's history, it certainly won't be the longest.

BUSINESS NEWS 591-2300 ext. 325

The business section is published Thursdays. In addition to the story coverage and columns, the section contains several calendars: Business People covers promotions, internal awards and retirements for anyone living or vorking in our circulation area. We will print photographs if space permits. Datebook covers upcoming meetings and courses of interest te business people. MarketPlace briefly covers new businesses, new products and other business-related items. Submit items for these in writing by 5 p.m. Monday. For these calendars call Barry Jensen , ext. 325. For all other items call Marilyn Fitchett, 591-2300 ext. 302

WEDDINGS, ENGAGEMENTS, ANNIVERSARIES

We publish photographs and announcements of weddings, engagements and major anniversaries of local residents or former local residents. These appear as soon as possible, depending upon available space. Forms for announcing these events are available from any of our local offices, or you may model your announcement on an example you've read in the newspaper.

The best reproduction can be made from a 5" x 7" black and white photo, but others are accepted. Please avoid regular or color Poloroid pictures.

PHOTOGRAPHS

Reprints of photographs that appear in the paper are not available. However, if a photograph is used and not needed for our files, it will be made available to the first person calling in. Such photographs will be held in any of our offices for two months, awaiting pickup. To inquire about a photograph, please call the editor who ran the picture i.e.: Sports, Suburban Life, Entertainment, Creative Living, News.

RELIGION

Religious news is published Thursdays. The religion calendar is published on these pages. Calendar deadline is Monday noon. All material must be in writing. For more information call your local suburban life editor.

OBITUARIES

We publish obituaries of local residents and former local residents. Most obituary information is received from area funeral homes. If a local funeral home is not involved, please call the community editor at the appropriate telephone number. All obituaries appear at the discretion of the community editor. Obituaries are printed without charge.

Harris jumps her best to win relays crown

Plymouth Salem's Jennifer Harris had the best individual meet and Farmington Hills Mercy the best team performance Saturday at the Spartan Relays.

Harris won the high jump and was fifth in the 55-meter hurdles, and the Marlins captured fifth place in the team standings.

Harris had a personal best of 5 feet, 4 inches to win the high jump and lead the Rocks to a ninth-place finish

Competing last winter for the Spitfires, an indoor track club started by Salem cross country coach Mike Krafchak, enabled Harris to have a fast start in the spring season, she said.

"My goal is 5-6 this year," she id. "I'm more happy than said. tioned.

"WE WORKED a lot on technique (in the indoor season). Kraf had a lot to do with building up my leg strength. We lifted weights a lot during the off season, too.'

Mercy scored well despite missing a handful of top athletes who were taking the ACT exam.

The Marlins were supposed to compete in the Oxford Relays, but that meet was canceled and Mercy was able to enter the Spartan Relays at the last minute.

Mercy coach Gary Servais praised Lauren Hood, who was third in the 800 run (2:24.7), helped the Marlins take third in the sprint medley, had a personal best of 4-8 in the high jump and anchored the 1600 relay that was eighth.

"She had a pretty incredible day," Servais said. "A lot of people are where they were last year at the end of the outdoor season.

Hood teamed with Dawn DiPonio, Kim Cook and Nicole Pryor in the sprint medley, and the distance medley team of Judi Rosowski, Stephan-Miller, Brooke Mansour and ie Heather Noll took third place with a 14:30 time. Noll also was fourth in the 1600 run with a 5:39.7 time.

HOOD WAS eighth in the high jump as was Brigitte Dery in the 3200 and the foursome of Heather Sullivan, DiPonio, Pryor and Hood in the 1600 relay.

Salem's Harris ran the hurdles in surprised. I'm pretty well condi- 9.1, and teammate Tammy Hickey took fifth in the 3200 run with a 12:04.3 time. Harris also was on the shuttle hurdle relay team that took sixth place, with Cyndi Platter, Theresa Giacherio and Sue Vig rounding out the unit.

> In non-scoring roles, Salem's 800 relay team of Kim Ploucha, Yolanda Jackson, Allison Fyke and Tracy Livermore was eighth (1:58.58), and a pair of ninth places came from Chris Simpson in the shot put (30-9) and the sprint medley team of Tonya Wheeler, Ploucha, Jackson and Livermore (3:12.17). Livermore also was 10th in the long jump (14-3/4).

Salem's dual meet with Brighton was terminated after the 3200 relay Tuesday with the Rocks ahead 23-13.

Harris won the high jump (4-8) and Dana Driscoll the long jump (13-9). Second places came from Jackson in the high jump (4-4), Ploucha in the

Canton boys close 2nd in tri-meet

Plymouth Canton won seven events but came up short in the team score Monday, finishing second to host Livonia Stevenson in a boys triangular track meet.

The Spartans, who also had seven first places, posted 77 team points, Canton 73 and Redford Bishop Borgess 25.

The Chiefs had four winners in open running events, and they were first in two relays.

Josh Walaskay ran the 200-meter dash in 24.1 and Ron Staples the 400 run in 53.9. In the longer distances, Brian Beach did the 1600 in 4:49.3 and Matt Boland the 3200 in 10:32.9.

Staples and Walaskay also figured in Canton's relay victories. Jeremy Rheault, Craig Piwko, Staples and Jeff Pryslak won the 800 in 1:36.9, and Staples anchored the 1600 unit that included Walaskay, Dave Washenko and Brett Kearney and had a 3:39.8 time.

Mike DeJarnett had Canton's other first place, winning the high jump with a leap of 6 feet.

THE CHIEFS had plenty of seconds, too. Those included Dean Benedict in the discus (105-5), Rheault in the long jump (19-1), Pryslak in the high hurdles (17.1) and the low hurdles (45.2), Walaskay in the 100 dash (11.9), Washenko in the 400 run (54.3), Ream in the 800 run (2:10.9) and Beach in the 3200 run (10:33)

In addition, the 3200 relay team of Boland, Chris Nelson, Jason Napolitano and Ream took second place in 8:55.9. Piwko was third in the 200 dash (24.7).

Karl Wukie and Phil Greenshields had a pair of fourth places. Wukie reached 18-8 in the long jump and ran 24.8 in the 200 dash, and Greenshields scored in the 1600 run (5:04) and the 3200 run (11:25)

Other fourths came from Max Corona in the discus (86-5), Benedict in the shot put (36-11), Dennis Monticelli in the high hurdles (18.2), Gary Lewandowski in the low hurdles (45.9) and Nelson in the 800 run (2:16).

Boland, Rheault and Staples have been chosen tri-captains of the Canton team for the 1990 season.

Stevenson had three winners in the field events: John Piasentin in the shot put, Matt Heing in the discus and Adam Samulski in the pole vault (11-0).

Chiefs open with 3 wins in softball

Andrea Welling delivers a pitch for Salem. Stevenson had only five hits, but it was enough to give the Spartans a 4-1 win.

Freshman pitcher Kelly Holmes already has proved to be the varsity softball player Plymouth Canton coach Dave Racer thought she would be.

The Chiefs are 3-0 and all three victories have gone to Holmes, who hurled a no-hitter Monday as Canton swept a double-header from visiting Livonia Churchill, 11-1 and 2-1.

Holmes struck out 11 and walked three in the process. Jenny Sekovich had two of Canton's six hits, two RBI and three runs. Jennifer Vanootighem stole two more bases to make her 9-for-9 early in the season.

The Chiefs won the second game of the Western Lakes Activities Association twinbill with Holmes tossing a one-hitter in the five-inning game. She recorded eight strikeouts and one walk.

Dawn Connor had the game-winning hit in the bottom of the fifth, and Chris Ford, Julie Nicastri and Ester Buzuvis had the team's other hits. Vanootighem had two stolen bases.

Canton defeated Ypsilanti in a non-league game Saturday in which Holmes struck out 12 while giving up six hits and five walks in seven innings Vanootighem had three hits, five stolen bases and one RBI, and Sekovich also was 3-for-4 with one RBI. Buzuvis scored two runs.

LIVONIA STEVENSON took a 4-1 victory Monday from Plymouth Salem, which started 0-1 in the Lakes Division and fell to 0-4 overall.

Kelly Cotter was the winning pitcher, tossing a three-hitter, fanning nine and walking six over seven innings. Andrea Welling was the loser, allowing five hits and throwing a complete game.

Carrie Palmisano had two doubles and Cotter one RBI for the winners, 1-0. Emily Giuliani had an RBI double for Salem.

The Rocks were 0-3 in tournament play Saturday at Allen Park. Salem made 10 errors in losing 18-0 to the host team, Dearborn Edsel Ford escaped with a 5-3 victory and Riverview Gabriel Richard defeated the Rocks 14-1.

on Opening Day

Plymouth Salem let its bats do the talking Monday, pounding 11 hits in support of pitcher Rob Ko-walski and whipping visiting Livonia Stevenson 11-3.

Junior pinch-hitter Scott Bright hit the first varsity pitch thrown to him for a three-run homer in the sixth inning when the Rocks scored four runs to boost their lead to 11-

Salem's Dave Makowiec started the game with a solo homer, and Tracy Ewald was 3-for-3, starting rallies in the five-run fourth inning and the fifth.

Brian Rudolph had two hits, including a two-run single. Scott Niemiec was 2-for-3 and Steve Mantay also had a two-run single.

Kowalski, who drew the starting assignment on Opening Day, worked five innings and .hrew 80 pitches. Kowalski, who gave up five hits, struck out eight and walked two.

"Robbie was throwing into a 30mile-per-hour wind," Salem coach John Gravlin said. "He wasn't as sharp as he could have been, but I'll take eight strikeouts any time."

Eric Nielson pitched the last two innings for Salem, holding the Spartans to two hits. Stevenson starter Sean Hinkel suffered the loss, yielding five runs, five hits and three walks in 3% innings.

John Keblaitis hit a solo homer and Bo Diamond had two hits for the Spartans.

CANTON 17, CHURCHILL 10: Plymouth Canton (2-0) managed to break a 10-10 tie in the fourth inning Monday and defeat host Livonia Churchill (0-2).

Rocks make hit Chiefs, Salem have fast starts

Centennial Educational Park girls soccer coaches Don Smith and Ken Johnson like what they've seen from their teams in their first two games.

Smith's Canton ballclub is 2-0, routing Adrian 9-0 in the non-league season opener Saturday and edging Livonia Franklin 2-1 in Western Lakes Activities Association play Monday.

Johnson's Salem team is ranked No. 5 in the first statewide poll with a 1-0-1 record. After a lopsided victory over Farmington Hills Harrison last Friday, the Rocks tied defending Class A champion Troy Athens 0-0 Saturday.

"The first-year girls had a taste of what it's all about Saturday," Johnson said. "They learned a lot about the speed of the game and what is required."

The No. 9-rated Chiefs, the defending WLAA champions, came from behind to defeat Franklin in the Western Division contest.

Canton's Christina Reilly tied the score before halftime, and All-American Jenny Russell produced the game winner 18 minutes into 'he second

LEAH HUTKO and Amy Tortora assisted on the goals, and freshman goalkeeper Jori Welchans got her second victory and first shutout. Canton outshot the Patriots 11-2 in the second half and 25-12 for the game.

"It was a good test for us, to see what we've got," Smith said. "The girls scrapped back and outplayed them the second half. I think (Franklin) got tired. They didn't seem to use as many players as we did."

The Chiefs got two goals from Russell and freshman Colleen Connell in the Adrian game.

Lynne Nichols and Ayana Nash had a goal and one assist apiece, and Hutko, Erin Morgan and Jenny Davis also scored single goals. Laurie McNamara assisted on two goals, Reilly and Denise Koontz one each.

Johnson was impressed by his team's collective effort in preventing No. 4 Athens from scoring. "The starting defense was terrific for us, with DEFENDERS JENNIFER Marshall, Tracy Shough, Lisa Ferguson and Gwen Gibbish came in for praise from Johnson, too.

'Athens had a couple forwards who did a lot of switching," he said, "so we had Marshall mark (all-stater Lisa) Grace all the time. They were working together really well."

Livonia Churchill is ranked No. 1 in the state, Northville second, Farmington third, Farmington Hills Mercy sixth, Birmingham Marian seventh, Troy eighth and Livonia Stevenson 10th.

Top-rated Churchill tips Falcons By Ray Setlock Losers miss Maier

Farmington team played without All-State forward Carrie Maier, and it was evident the Falcons missed her presence as they fell 2-1 to visiting Livonia Churchill in a key girls soccer match. Maier, a three-time All-Observer selection, is presently on a 10-day European tour with the Midwest Olympic Development team.

Farmington coach Cathy Cole said the team could have used Maier's services, but it has to come together and overcome the loss.

"Soccer is a team sport," she said. "But having Carrie in our lineup against Churchill would have definitely helped our chances."

Churchill, which improves its record to 2-0-1, got on the scoreboard first as senior Nikki Johnson scored early in the game, giving the Chargers a 1-0 halftime advantage.

"I think we know were a good team," said the Churchill coach. "We had a good year last season and lost just a couple of girls. But if we let ourselves get too confident thinks coud go wrong. It's a long season and

Shamrocks begin Defense concerns U-D coach

By C.J. Rieak staff writer

The future of University of Detroit's baseball team may depend on how well it recovers from the past.

In 1989, the Titans finished 30-26-1 overall and were 17-7 in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference regular season. Three-straight wins in the MCC tournament put them within a game of the title and a trip to the NCAA tournament, but Notre Dame swept two from U-D to upset those plans.

Nearly everyone returns from that Titan team. The only player missing is Mike Cloutier (from Birmingham Groves), and U-D veteran coach Bob Miller figures he has signed enough recruits to counter Cloutier's loss.

And yet, questions remain about the Titans. Several revolve around players from areas Miller loves to recruit - Redford, Livonia, Southfield, Westland, Farmington Hills and Birmingham.

Five Titans are graduates of Redford Union. Four others - Rick Tavormina of Westland (John Glenn), Lance Sullivan of Livonia (Churchill), Steve Wujczyk of Southfield (Southfield-Lathrup) and Doug Fitzer of Farmington Hills (Birmingham Brother Rice) - are all key elements in U-D's title plans.

BUT THUS far, in the Titans' 8-9 start (including last weekend's 2-2 split at MCC rival Xavier), the sure things have stumbled and the questions have sparkled.

As Miller described it, "My pitching's been better than I thought it would be, but our defense . we've made too many errors on plays we should have made easily. I thought we were going to score runs and our defense would be OK. We had everybody back from last year, except Cloutier." Instead, several key hitters have struggled but the pitching has been solid.

The mound corps starts with senior righthander Pat Miller, an RU grad who happens to be the coach's son. That's not what's earned him top billing, however, Miller is 2-1 with a 2.83 earned run average, 20 strikeouts and just four walks in 28% innings this season.

MILLER WAS one of the question marks, even though he was 6-1 with a 3.75 ERA last year. Any pitcher who had elbow surgery 18 months ago -

as Miller did - would have to be considered doubtful

"Pat Miller's just pitching great," said the Ti-tan coach. "He's been our best pitcher so far."

The pros are interested, too, according to coach Miller, who counted seven scouts with radar guns clocking Pat Miller at one recent game (for the record, he throws in the 88-89 mph range).

So far, the arm's held up quite well. Miller (the coach) is hoping the same will be true for senior second baseman Dennis Bushart, another RU product.

Bushart hit .287 in '89, with six doubles, a triple, a homer and 25 runs batted in. He made 12 errors in 41 games at shortstop and second, and was named first-team All-MCC.

THOSE WERE the highlights. On May 7, Bushart injured his knee against Notre Dame and was lost for the final 16 games. He's back, and so far he's been better than ever. He's hitting .283 and has just two errors in 15 games, and last weekend he put on a rare display of power, clubbing three homers in as many at-bats against Xa-

"He just had the stroke," said Miller of Bushart's homer outburst. The Redford native had just six in his three previous seasons at U-D. There wasn't a fluke in the bunch. He was our whole offense on Saturday."

'He's wearing a big brace on it, but he's worked hard and looks good out there."

A couple of others have not fared so well for U-D. Mark Thierry, a sophomore righthander from RU, injured his shoulder during the spring trip and is sidelined with what may be a rotator cuff problem. His return to action this season is questionable Sullivan, a junior first baseman, broke his thumb diving for a grounder and will be redshirted this year. Sullivan, who hit .331 with 29 RBI in '89, was batting .278 in six games this season before getting hurt.

THOSE LOSSES have put a damper on the Ti-THOSE LOSSES have put a damper on the Ti-tans' hopes. It also means others are going to have rebounds, a similar finish could be upcoming.

to make up for the missing offense - and so far, they haven't. Big producers last year were third baseman Alan Budnick and Wujcsyk; both are struggling this season.

"He's been a streak hitter this year," said Mil-"He's been a streak hitter this year," said Mil-ler of Wujczyk, the senior outfielder who hit .324 with seven doubles, four triples and two homers in '89. Miller has tried to use Wujczyk at first base, in place of bullivan, but so far the S-L grad in hitting just .184. "I don't know what it is, he gets into these ruts," said Miller of Wujczyk, noting an 0-for-11 streak against Xavier. "Teams are getting him out with a lot of off-speed stuff. He hasn't been disciplined enough at the plate, not like a fifth-year senior should be."

Another Titan who's struggling is Tavormina, the sophomore shortstop. He's hitting just .308 with four RBI after compiling a .328 average with 26 RBI last season. Worse, he's struggled in the field. In '89 he made 21 errors in 45 games; this season, he has 17 errors in as many games.

"HE'S PRESSING like bock," said Miller. "(Tavormina) hasn't been fielding because he's worried about his hitting, and he hasn't been hitting because he's worried about his fielding.

"We had a talk the other day and I told him he's our shortstop, so stop pressing and enjoy the game."

A player whose record is struggling is Fitzer, a junior lefthander. "Fitzer's pitched great," said Miller. "He's really come on. He's taken charge out there. It's a damn shame we haven't backed him up."

Fitzer is 1-2 with a 3.47 ERA and 18 strikeouts As far as his knee is concerned, Miller said, in 231/2 innings. He was the loser in Sunday's 5-2 defeat at Xavier, but four of the five runs he allowed were unearned. His teammates committed four errors behind him.

Mike Stefanski, a junior from RU, has been a plus behind the plate. As a sophomore, he hit .336 with nine doubles and 24 RBI; this season, he's batting .273 with six RBI and has "thrown everybody out (trying to steal)," said Miller. "He's got a great arm.

And U-D has great potential. Last season, the Titans started 13-16-1 and were 4-4 in the MCC before rolling off eight-straight wins, all within the league. They won 17 of their last 27, including 11 consecutive MCC games.

Falcons signal change with 10-5 win

By Brad Emone stall writer

The baseball season is just beginning, but Farmington High served notice Monday that things could be different this year in the Lakes Division race of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Falcons, perennial also-rans, knocked off host Westland John Glenn under blustery and cold conditions, 10-5.

"They took their lumps for two or three years when they brought up some freshman, but it's paying off for them now and I think they'll be right in the hunt," said Glean cosch Norm Hoenes, whose team has ruled the division for years. "Their pitcher (Chris Schmid) is lough and they look like they can swing the bat. They made all the plays, considering the weather, and that's the best I've seen them look in four years."

Schmid, a senior left-hander, worked seven innings to pick up the win. He scattered six hits and six walks to go along with eight strikeouts. He held the Rockets in check over the final four innings, allowing only one hit and one run.

"HE DOESN'T have the fastest fastball," said Farmington coach Kevin Kansman of his ace, "but he mixes it up with a knuckle ball and curve and that's what makes him effective."

Schmid also proved potent with the bat, going 3-for-4. Through the first two games he is 6-for-7.

"He's hot right now and sometimes all it takes is that one guy who can carry you," Kansman said. "He's a good hitter. He was on the varsity as a freshman and the last two years he hit the ball hard, but usually right at somebody."

Glenn, which opened its season Saturday with a loss to Plymouth Canton, scored a pair of runs in the first.

Eric Stover scored on a wild pitch and Lawrence Scheffer crossed home on an infield error.

But Farmington came back with four runs in the top of the second, sending 10 men to the plate. Gary Shelp singled in one run. P.J. Green forced home another when he was hit by a pitch. Kevin Young walked with the bases loaded to ring up another, while Kevin VanOrd scored the fourth run on a passed ball.

Glenn cut the deficit to 4-3 on Stover's RBI single in the bottom of the second, but the Falcons answered with five runs in the top of the third, highlighted by Dave Wil-son's three-rin double. Young and Eric Mil-ler also knocked in runs as each singled.

THE ROCKETS closed to within four, 9-5, on an RBI single by Gary Pierce in the third, followed by Jerry Shippe's run batted in on fielders choice in the fourth.

Farmington added an insurance run in the sixth off Glenn reliever Brian Stephenson, who was the most successful of three Rocket pitchers on the day.

Mark Johnston, the starter, lasted only 1% innings before giving way to Stover. Stephenson worked the final three innings.

We're really looking for somebody on our pitching staff to step up," said Hoenes, "but until that happens we're going to have to score runs to win. This is the worst shape we've been with our pitching in quite awhile and that's unfortunate.

"But we also gave up five unearned runs. Our catcher dropped a third strike, which cost us (in the second inning). Today with had enough on base to score some more runs. Not to take anything away from Farmington, but I thought we could have put more pressure on them."

For the time being, Kansman is not feeling the pressure of being a contender. He's only seeking improvement with each outing.

"WE STILL MADE mistakes and we still have a lot of things to work on," he said. "I think our defense is good. It's solid, but we have to have a few more games to get it down. Each and every player has to work hard individually. There's a little bit of pres-sure, but we just have to worry about going out and executing. You've got to walk before you run."

The Falcons, however, got over a big stumbling block in Glenn.

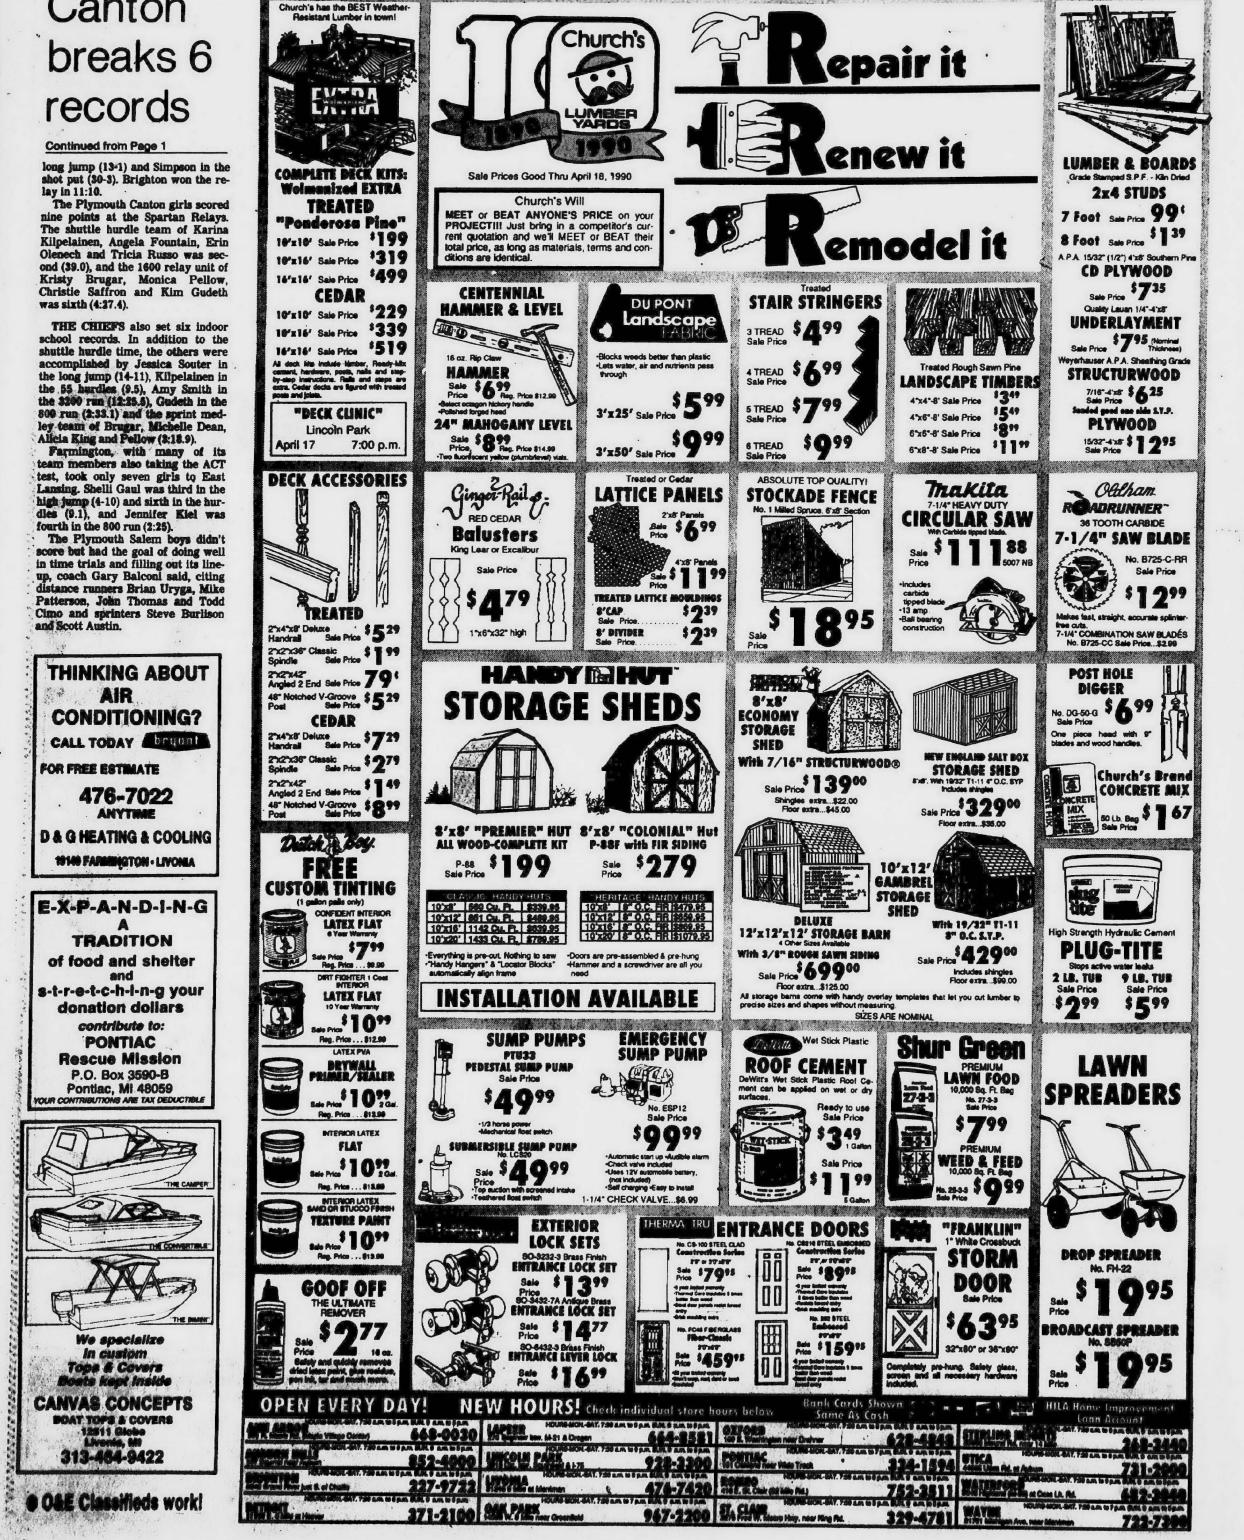

"John Glenn is always good," Kansman said. "But one of our goals coming in was not to be intimidated by them. Last year (when the Falcons were 10-12), we played everybody virtually even except for Glenn. Today we accomplished one of our goals and that was to not be intimidated. I don't think we've every beaten them since the league was formed (in 1983). It was a big day for us no doubt and I'm glad we got the game in."

Traveling thieves take advantage of victim's greed

stall writer

A person's greed can cloud his bot-ter judgment, a fact that traveling thieves know and are more than willing to take advantage of. "There is no free lunch. Nothing is as good as it sounds. Don't pay half of what you think something is worth," said Harold Penza, co-chairman of the Michigan Gypsy Criminal Activities Task Force. "We are in-credibly greedy. Especially when we are over 60."

After spending the winter in warmer southern or western states, spring finds traveling thieves heading back to northern states like Michigan to work their scams.

Speaking at a Neighborhood Waich meeting last week, Penxa outlined the types of crimes commit-ted by traveling thieves and provid-ed insights into how their subculture operates.

"For the first time, this spring with 50 percent confidence, I can say I know what they are up to."

Police recently stopped a vehicle from Florida with improper license plates, he said, with mounted spraying equipment.

"The spraying equipment was so new that they didn't even have any gunk in it," Penxa said. "That's the stuff they spray on your driveway. Then it runs off and makes your grass black."

OTHER PAVORITE scame for traveling thieves include selling shoddy merchandise at cut rate prices, store diversions, a bujo or switching the bag and home invasions, ac-cording to Penza. Home invasions feature someone posing as a utility worker who tells the homeowner that they have been overcharged for water/gas/electrical service.

The phony utility worker offers the homeowner a cash refund but the homeowney's cash rerund but needs change for a large bill. By going to get change, the homeowner lets the traveling thief and an ac-complice know where money is kept. While the fake utility worker distracts the homeowner, the accomplice slips in and out of the house with the cash.

The average age of the victim is 83 to 84 years. They (traveling thieves) know a lot about us," Penza said. "They know that if we are over 79, we keep money at home a lot and don't like banks. They know we put money in a shoe box or under something

WORKING WITH the southeast Michigan utility companies which sent flyers with their bills, Penza said this type of crime was reduced

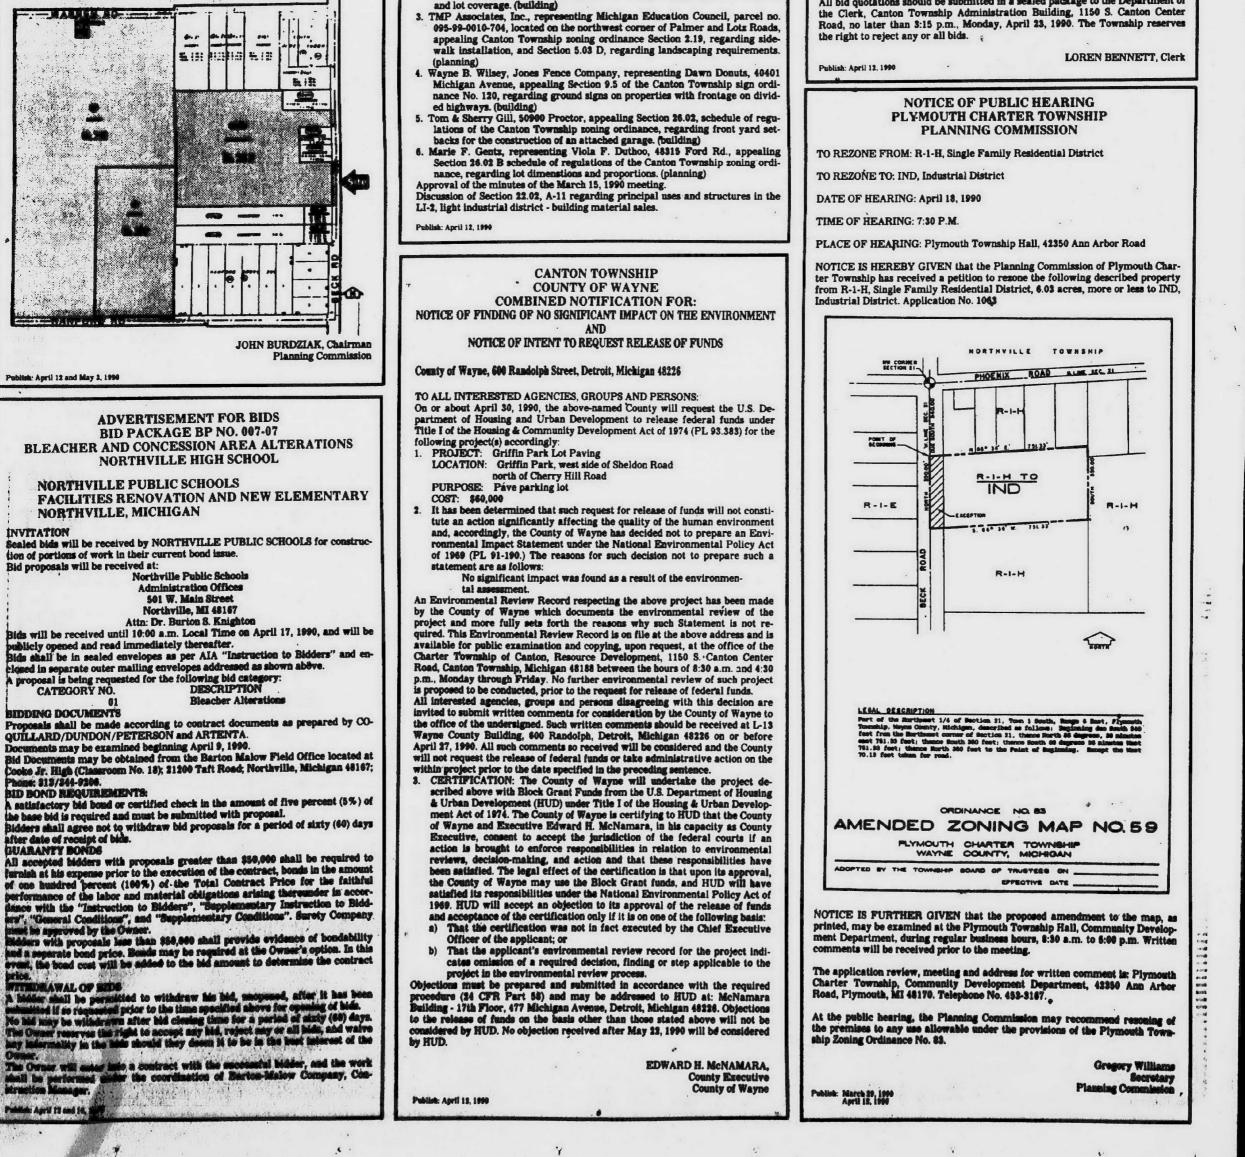

84 percent last year. "I don't think we will see a resurgence of the home invasions," be said. "People need to beware in the spring of the driveway jobs." During interviews with traveling thieves who are in police custody, Penza said he asked how they find their elderly victime.

"The house and yard is all neat, but there are no swings or a basket-ball hoop," he said. "There is a white picket fence or white painted rocks around the yard. There might be a fruit tree. No one under 40 has a fruit tree in the yard." A newly developed scam by trav-eling thieves involves buying a car, Penxa said, insuring it with multiple insurance companies. The car is reported stolen and the thief collects from each insurance company. "The car will be recovered in another state and sold at an auction with a clear title," he said. "A trav-eling thief there will buy the car, put the doors back on and reinsure it with multiple companies."

The record for this scam has been siz times on the same vehicle, Penza said, garning about $500,000.

"The insurance companies don't talk to each other. They are competitiors and they are greedy," he said.

They move their stuff out and use pre-slashed furniture to show the damage. Then they ship the pre-slashed stuff for another family to use."

Credit card fraud is crime committed by traveling thieves which costs millions annually, Penxa said. They don't care what information

"They make a tremendous amount of money and begin working at 16 or

To reduce opportunies for travel-ing thieves, Penza said residents need to key an eye out for strangers, phony utility workers or persons selling door to door.

By LeAnne Rogers staff writer

Whether they are called gypsies or the more current name of traveling thieves, they are a unique kind of organized crime, according to Harold Penza.

"They have specific characteristics and method of operation. It is organized crime. They have a rigid and well defined structure." Penza is co-chairman of the Mich-force, Penza has compiled information about the workings of the gypsy subculture.

'Wait Until Dark' is still intriguing

Performances of the Birmingham Theatre production of "Wait Until Drk" by Frederick Knott continue through Sunday, May 8. For ticket information, call the box office at 644-3533.

Classic old mysteries never seem to die. Instead of fading away they are revieved in an attempt to recreate the thrills they once offered. "Wait Until Dark" at the Birmingham Theatre is a competent production rendered impotent by changing times

The 1966 play by Frederick Knott is a victim of our changing sensibilities. The plot relies on the premise that an unwary traveler accepted a doll from a mysterious woman at an airport. Now a crazed killer (Tony Musante) and his two accomplices are terrorizing the traveler's blind wife (Bonnie Franklin) in an attempt to locate the doll, which holds a valuable drug stash.

Who would be foolish enough to accept such a package in our current age of terrorist bombs and posted warning signs? With random, senseless violence filling the daily news-papers, it seems odd that a hardened killer would go to great lengths to con the woman instead of finding a more expedient way to make her talk. Surely it strains credibility that a blind woman walks around Manhattan without fear of being mugged, routinely keeps her door unlocked, and admits strangers unhesitatingly.

As the blind Susy, Franklin gives her character plenty of spunk and does an excellent job of never letting her blank gaze falter. Relying on her MUSANTE ISN'T given much character to work with. He is sufficiently crazed and coldly menacing, at times edging towards caricature. His two accomplices are at least more interesting, con men conned into unwilling compliance. As the smooth-talking Mike who must earn Susy's trust, Peter Jay Fernandez has a strong, pleasant delivery dechildish mood swings. She explains, for example, that her temper tantrum should be forgiven because she only threw unbreakables all over the floor

Maureen Heffernan's direction is generally sound, and the production moves along smoothly. As an exercise in deductive reasoning "Wait Until Dark" is still intriguing. It just isn't the thriller it once was.

Barbara Michals teaches high school English in Southfield. A theater critic for the last 15 years, she is an inveterate playgoer who regularly catches up on all the

Artist-visionary unites beauty, form, function

By C.L. Rugenstein staff writer

B EING AN ARTIST IS a philosophy, a way of looking at life rather than a conscious act. "A painting or a piece of sculpture is a by-product, the end result of that really," said Michele Oka Doner explaining the philosophy behind her 25year career.

Doner, whose career got its commercial start in Michigan, was in Rochester recently for the opening of her latest exhibition — "Michele Oka Doner at Mid-Career," at Oakland University's Meadow Brook Gallery through May 20.

Doner's public works are found in such diverse places as the entrance to the Hayden Planetarium at the American Museum of Natural History in New York, the sidewalk at the Children's Museum of Manhattan and the 156-year-old Franklin Cemetery in Franklin, not far from where the Doners used to live.

Three new works, textured bronze benches designed to be utilitarian as well as thought provoking, will soon grace the grounds of the University of Michigan's main campus, between the natural sciences and chemistry buildings.

"The benches are circular because I don't think people like to sit lined-up," Doner said.

THE LARGEST IS 10 feet in diameter, the smallest, less than seven feet in diameter, is yet to be determined. They're part of U-M urban planner Fred Mayer's attempts to make the campus more esthetically pleasing.

Despite a prolific career, Doner didn't start formally expressing her inward art until she was accepted in the art school at U-M. High school art classes struck her as being "rinkey-dink — in high school they didn't have a well-developed art department."

Before then, her medium was nature itself; bits of shell, fossils, bone, whatever nature provided along the stretch of ocean near her Miami Beach home.

"It was rich," she said, "the only part of the country that's subtropical."

'An artist is a person who expresses the common needs of the tribe, to articulate certain hopes and fears (as did early cave painters) — will there be enough mammoths for winter, will it rain enough to grow crops?'

- Michele Oak Doner

Her family background is also rich. One grandfather came from a long line of religious scribes.

"But he was the rebellious son," Doner said with a smile, "and went to an art academy in Odessa (Russia,)" later painting wall murals in convents.

She also lived with great art reproduction canvases of works like Rembrandt's "Noble Slav," and one unique Cezanne.

It was a seascape of Odessa, painted in the bottom of a heart-shaped, wooden fruit basket about 10-12 inches across.

"I loved that painting," she said. "I could look in and see the sea and smell the ocean breeze."

HER EARLIEST MEDIUM was sand, which she sculpted with her hands and decorated with bits of shell.

Though she didn't have formal training prior to college, Doner said she worked with her hands and exercised herself visually every day by arranging flowers, or setting the table in different, interesting ways.

She rejects the luxury of artistic isolation — the artist removing himself from the mainstream of common experience to create in solitude.

"An artist is a person who expresses the common needs of the tribe, to articulate certain hopes and fears (as did early cave painters) — will there be enough mammoths for winter, will it rain enough to grow crops?"

"The focus with the situation of dying cities and tremendous social changes is the (return to the idea of the) artist as visionary, the visual expression of the tribe."

Doner is currently working on six public projects in six different cities. She won several commissions through national competitions.

The Herald Square project combines both her Michigan and New York City backgrounds (where she and husband Frederick Doner moved in 1981). The 200-foot long wall, titled "Radiant Site," will utilize 11,000 gold luster Pewabic Pottery tiles from Michigan in the Herald Square subway station.

Another project may give the venerable city of Venice, Italy, a new lease on life.

Doner is working with a new technology as a medium — electromagnetic deposition.

"IT'S AN EVOLUTIONARY TECH-NOLOGY which will allow us to grow barrier reefs where needed" in the same way pearl farmers now grow cultured pearls she said. "I have five small sculptures growing in (Venice's) north lagoon."

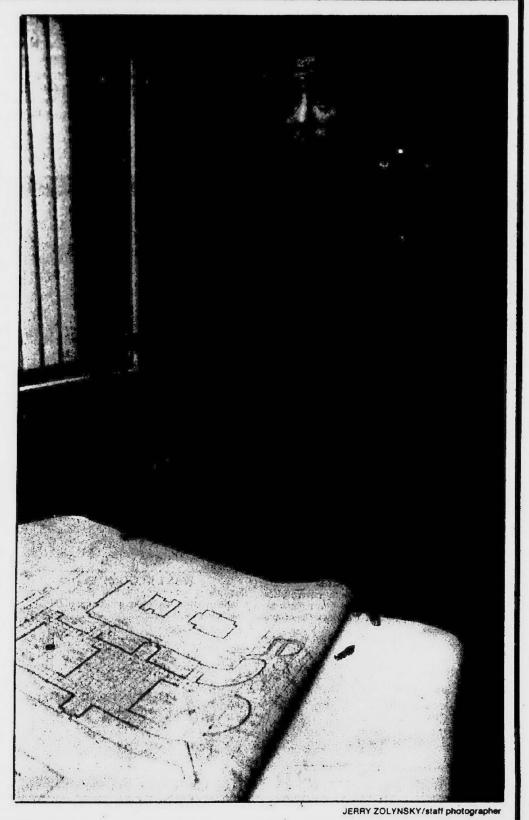

The process uses a carbon anode and cathode — "the cathode is the sculpture in water. It's hooked up to a small car battery, and the accretion builds up" — like the oyster farmer's pearl.

The project was funded by the Samuel Kress Foundation, which seeks to preserve the world's cultural monuments.

It sounds like something from science fiction, but then, as Doner said, "I like to invent new ways to do things."

The exhibition continues through May 20. Hours are 2-5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday, 1-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and through the first intermission when Meadow Brook Theater is in action.

Michele Oka Doner, right, explains her drawings and designs for the benches for the University of Michigan campus.

Michigan Fine Arts

Quilt by Mary Gentry of Ypsilanti won the best of show first prize.

Juror says she responds to risk takers

By Jill Hemilton special writer

An interview with Gracie Mansion is an intimidating proposition.

After all, she maintains not one, but two, successful galleries in New York City where she is recognized for her ability to find and showcase new artists.

Mansion has been written about in every publication from Art News to the New York Times and was described in one article as "the toast of New York."

She came into the public spotlight in 1982 when she opened her first gallery. The Gracie Mansion Gallery, Loo Division, in the bathroom of her East Village apartment. Attention-getting devices like the bathroom opening and even her memorable name (the home of the mayor of New York is also called Gracie Mansion) soon helped her become a media favorite.

Her galleries have a reputation for representing the best in New York City's eclectic new artists and Mansion found many of these new artists from slides. Since she is always interested in finding new talent, Mansion agreed to come to Michigan to be a juror in the 1990 Michigan Fine Arts Competition at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association. How would Michigan stack up?

"I'VE JURIED A NUMBER of shows . .at the Carnegie Museum, the Baltimore Museum . . .," she said. "They're interesting because I get to see things I would not normally see. I never would have seen these artists without coming here."

"Besides," she said, "I have family in Bloomfield Hills."

Mansion had to look through more than 800 slides for this show. She eventually selected 120 pieces from the slides for the Fine Arts Competition, but didn't see any of the actual pieces until the first day of judging.

"The work is very professionsl," she said. "I was really pleased when I saw it in person. There was a lot of really original work."

She's right. The pieces that made it to the finals are especially exciting this year, according to competition organizers. Entries include a broken television with photographs plastered throughout the inside and a funky patchwork quilt depicting scenes of almost everything imaginable — from religious events to violence and oppression.

What does Mansion look for in a piece of art work?

"How I respond to it," she said. "It's very subjective, like buying art. It just depends on what hits a particular chord."

"I LOOK FOR THINGS that are very creative in the way they represent something," she continued. "I respond to risk taking — in subject matStaff photos by Jerry Zolynsky ter, in issues, using a medium in a whole new way or doing it in a more interesting way. In looking at 800 slides, I saw a lot of the same type of images. I looked for people who tried to strike out."

In other words, viewing hundreds and hundreds of landscapes gets a bit old after a while.

"I was most pleased with the photographs," she added, "Something must be a good influence around here."

She praised organizations like the Birmingham/Bloomfield Art Association. "There aren't close-knit organizations like this in New York City. There it's every person for himself."

Mansion said that a young artist should decide what his or her goals are before figuring out whether they should move to New York. "It depends on what you want to do. If you want to make a space in history, go to New York," she said.

"I guess if you're really great, you'll eventually be discovered," she said, "Of course, by that time you may be dead."

Bt. Genericity Parish Choir along with area singers and instrumentalists will present John Ratter's "Requisen" at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow night in St. Genericity Church. The choir will also include singers from other churches in Livonia and from Wayne State University. Christa Grix will be featured on the here.

on the harp. The performance will be conducted by LaV-erne Lieberknecht, director of music at St. Genevieve where she also teaches vocal music in the church school.

In the cauren school. Lieberknocht is completing her master of music degree in choral conducting at Wayne State University. While at Wayne, she has served as assistant conductor to Professor Dennis J. Tini. She is currently serving as as-sistant conductor to guest conductors Dr. Rob-ert Harris and Dr. Marilyn Jones as well as coordinating choral music activities at WSI coordinating choral music activities at WSU.

SOPRANO SOLOIST will be Lisa Lieberknecht, a voice performance major at Wayne University and a student of Carolyn Grimes. Lisa Lieberknecht has been featured soloist with the Wayne State University Choral Union and the Women's Chorale. She was recently featured as soprano soloist with the Wayne State University choruses and orchestra in a performance of Mozart's "Vesperae Solennes de Confessore." She is the daughter of Richard and LaVerne Lieberknecht.

John Rutter, a well-known contemporary English composer, has taken the traditional words of the Latin Requiem and coupled them with the English text of the Burial Service, 1662 of Common Prayer, in this original and very beautiful setting of the "Requiem."

The public is invited. A free-will offering will be taken. St. Genevieve is at 29015 Jamison, two blocks south of Five Mile Road and east of Middlebelt Road. For more information, call 427-5220.

In the world of video games, I am getting progressively worse I used to be the best. To be better than Dad was an unattain able goal - almost irreverent even to think about. But when I look back, I have to say that my boys were just little tots and the video games that I mastered were merely two-dimensional dots and lights with simple eat-or-be-eaten plots, like Pac-Man.

Now the video figures are wonderfully detailed and almost holographic in their realism. It's no longer a yellow dot eating a bunched white dots. It's about warfare, hostages, cyborgs, ninjas and a little pipefitter named Mario.

It's about hand/eye coordination. It's about other worlds and time warps. It's about labyrinths and powers of trolls and dragons. It's about . . . time I hand over the joystick. That's just what I did, too. I am still pretty good at Pac-Man but that's because no one else even wants to play it. I know my boys smile to themselves as they lie in bed and listen to the muffled beeps and sirens of Dad's video game. Perhaps they even chuckle aloud as they picture my mouth jerked to the side and a wild-eved countenance as I try to avoid a video catastrophe.

WELL, PUTTING videos aside, there is an old favorite in the world of art. It's relatively easy to master. It's graphite.

Graphite pencils range from 9B, which is very black, to 9H, which makes a very light gray line. Many artists use just one or two soft pencils (6B and 2B) and obtain the required shades of gray by alternating the pressure on the pencil. Even though this can produce a beautiful pencil rendering, try the use of a full gamut of grays.

When only using one or two pencils, you must lightly stroke the paper to achieve a light gray. This, however shows the grain of the paper and tells the world that it is a pencil drawing.

Save a life.

Use soft pencils (6B, 5B, 4B, 3B, 2B, B and HB) for black or dark areas and hard pencils (H, 2H, 3H, 4H, 5H, 6H, 7H, 8H, 9H) for light or white areas. With these, you can achieve photographic realism that requires viewers to ask how it was done.

HERE ARE two tips that will help you master the graphite pencil medium.

First, do your basic drawing on cheap layout paper. Here is where you do all the work and make all the mistakes.

Remember to look at your drawing in the mirror. The reversed image will show your mistakes faster than an art teacher. Then transfer your corrected and perfected drawing to a clean sheet of good, heavy drawing paper or two or three ply bristol board.

Second, don't rely on an outline to establish a shape or form. In reality, there are no black outlines to define shapes and forms. You see objects because they are of a color, shape or texture different from your surroundings.

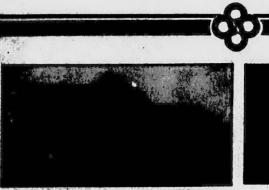

In graphite, you are working only in shades of gray, so use shades of gray contrasting against each other rather than defining every shape with lines.

If you do this, you will be pleased at how realistic your work will become. More than any other medium, people will put their nose right up to the artwork, look and ask what medium it is. Dulling or mat spray gives the artwork such a finished look that often people will mistake it for a print.

Doll auction geared for enthusiasts

Thirty modern dolls valued at more than $7,000 will be auctioned off at 1 p.m. Sunday, April 22, in the Plymouth Cultural Center - but that's only half of the story.

The other half will center on a doll look-alike competition open to area residents with the judging by cele-brated doll artist Yolanda Bello.

The live auction is being sponsored by International Doll Exhibitions and Auctions Ltd., an organization that specializes in the sale of contemporary dolls, and Georgia's Gift Gallery, a Plymouth collectibles shop. Baby, celebrity, fashion, character and musical dolls will be among the lots available for bidding. Estimated bids for individual dolls range from $50 to $1,000.

THE DOLL EXPECTED to realize the highest price is "Jason," a porcelain infant boy dressed in a powder blue clown outfit. Designed by Bello, the doll was the first issue in "Yolanda's Picture-Perfect Babies" collection, an award-winning series marketed by the Ashton-Drake Galleries.

Produced in a limited-edition, the baby doll is no longer being made ary market through another collec-tor or dealer willing to sell. Original-ly issued in 1986 for $48, a "Jason" doll recently sold for $1,150 at an auction in Baltimore, Md.

Dolls will be on display at the Cul-tural Center for inspection by bidd-ers from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Bidding numbers for 250 will be available on a first-some, first-served basis. Limited spectator seating will also be available

The live auction is just one facet of an all-day special event expected to draw hundreds of doll enthusiasts and is only available on the second- and collectors. Registration for the baby doll look-alike contest of cos-turned children resembling dolls Jason, Heather and Jennifer will take place from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. with the winners being chosen by Bello at 3 p.m.

Winners will receive Jessica dolls. the number seven doll in the "Pic-ture Perfect Babies' collection. Anyone interested in entering the doll lookalike contest can stop in at Georgia's Gift Gallery, 575 Forest Ave., Plymouth for photo reproductions of the three dolls.

Try a few plants in containers with a prepared potting mix, and feed plants with a liquid or granular fertilizer after planting.

Some tomatoes do well in hot climates. Check seed catalogs, your agricultural extension service or seed store for the variety recommended for your area and soil type.

Skylights: Do they let sun in or let heat out?

By Doug Funke staff writer

There is another way to bring light and cheeriness into a house besides turning on a switch.

Some buyers are letting the sun shine in - not to mention the moon, stars and other delights of nature through skylights.

'Light expands rooms, whether it's light coming through windows or light coming through skylights," said

'Light expands rooms, whether it's coming through windows or light coming through skylights.'

West Bloomfield builder

Robert R. Jones, president of a West Bloomfield building company.

'We like them, the additional exposure to the exterior we get out of them," Jones added. "We think they're an architectural highlight to any home."

Don Frericks, president of Don Frericks Homes, also includes skylights in some of his models. "I would think in the last seven to eight years particularly they've become more popular," he said.

Gil Behling, president of Troy Building Products, supplies skylights to builders.

"IT SEEMS that people are trying to bring the outside in," Behling said. Depending on how the house sits on a lot, a lot of light is missed in late afternoon or the early evening glow."

"The use of skylights in houses (nationally) has more than doubled since 1982," said Leslie Devore, spokeswoman for Velux, a skylight manufacturer.

A trade association reports that while 600,000 units were sold in 1982, 1.7 million are expected to be sold this year. Devore said. Skylights will cost more than running shingles up the entire roof.

A simple 2-by-4 foot skylight can cost $250 to $400. Figure on another couple of hundred dollars per skylight for labor and finishing touches.

Better quality insulated glass and extras like skylights that can be opened, window treatments and automatic opening systems will boost the price even more.

"YOU CAN get into more expensive domes that can cost $3,000 to $4,000," Frericks said. "There's no limit on what you can spend if you want to do it.' Pella and Anderson are major manufacturers in addition to Velux. People who think about getting skylights usually have two concerns energy efficiency and potential water leakage.

Joseph Duran, Energy Craft Homes president, isn't a big fan of skylights.

"I try to avoid them," he said. "They're terrible. I'd rather see R-44 insulation than a piece of glass."

Duran, who installs skylights if customers insist, will try for a southern exposure placement to get the most out of the sun and passive solar energy

Duran figures that a 16-squarefoot skylight will add about $32 a season to the heating bill.

THAT MIGHT not seem like much when buyers will pay a couple hundred thousand dollars for new houses. But Duran argues that $32 saved here, $32 there and $32 somewhere else adds up.

Others in the business agree that there's more heat loss with a skylight than an unbroken, shingled roof

"You're definitely going to lose heat just like a glass window," Frericks said.

"You're dealing with an insulated fixture, not 22 inches of insulation," Behling said. "So you're going to have some heat loss, but not as much as 15 years ago.

"In the last five years products have improved tremendously by manufacturers," said Jones.

Jill Deacon, a sales representative for builder Larry Baker, said her highest heating bill this winter was $98 for a 3,600-square-foot house with five skylights.

As for avoiding leakage, it's all in the installation, builders maintain.

'I try to avoid them. They're terrible. I'd rather see R-44 insulation than a piece of glass.'

-Joseph Duran, president Energy Craft Homes

"WE'RE HEAVILY focused so we don't have leaks. We're very respectful of them (skylights)," Jones said.

"I'm on the roof myself," Duran said. "I refuse to be called back. The only way to avoid it is to be involved.

What some people perceive as a leak may just be condensation with houses being built so airtight today, said Keith Seefeldt, manager of Benson's Oakland Wholesale.

Homeowners who have skylights speak highly of them.

Lynn and Carol Merritt had 12 skylights built into the glass garden room of their Bloomfield Township home.

"My husband and I are both from Texas and we just moved here from California," Carol said. "We're outside people. We enjoy the patio lifestyle

"Since we're confined indoors so long with the length of the cold season, we thought we'd extend our patio season." she said.

Gardens need attention, not big lots

From Midwest Living For AP Newsfeatures

These days it's not quite the same when Dean Grewell climbs behind the wheel of his John Deere tractor.

The 700 acres he once farmed have shrunk to a 125 by 165 foot lot, and his John Deere is a miniature version of the one he plowed and planted with. But that hasn't stopped this lowian from raising bumper crops in his suburban West Des Moines backyard garden.

Grewell's garden thrives in terraces build up alongside his back-yard fence and in 6 by 6 foot raised

MIDWEST LIVING magazine reports that novice gardeners can cul-tivate bumper crops in small spaces, too. Grewell advises:

 Plant corn about 10 inches apart (two kernels per hill and pull the weaker plant later) in a row.

Grewell staggers plantings over a six-week period through the end of June; then, he fertilizes with 10-10-10 every three weeks after the corn stands a foot tall. When he picks the ears, Grewell cuts off the stalks so they don't continue to rob other corn plants of water and nutrients.

• For continuous production in a plot, Grewell plants cool-season crops (such as spinach, peas, leaf lettuce, radishes) with later-maturing crops (beans, carrots, cucumbers). Gardeners can even replace longseason crops in late summer with radishes and lettuce.

· RAISED BEDS dry out faster, so instead of hauling a hose from bed to bed, Grewell strings a drip-irrigation hose through the garden. He gives his bed about 1 ¼ inches of water a week

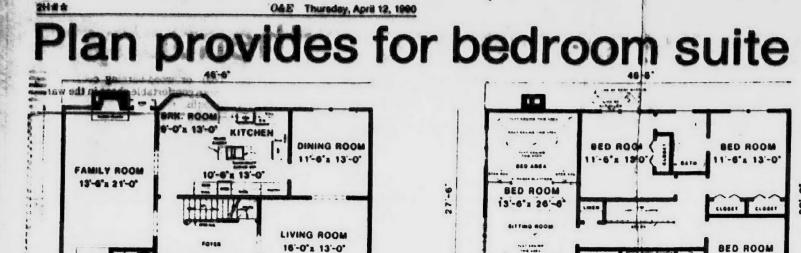

• To save space, grow vining plants, such as cucumbers or melons, on trellises.

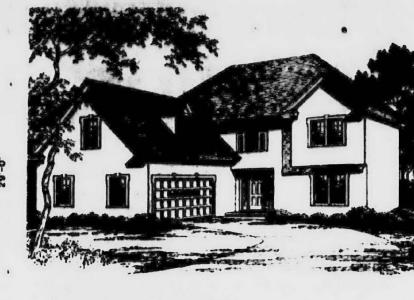

For pole beans, construct a tepes from three 6 foot long laths. Plant cool-weather crops in the sheltered ground underneath the tepee.

The suite includes a full sitting area, bed area, private bath, trey ceilings and a large walk-in closet. There also are three other bedrooms on the second floor. Two of them share a connecting bath, while the other has a private bath.

The first floor features separate rooms for everything: a formal living and dining room, a large kitchen with island surface unit and bay window breakfast room, a half bath, separate laundry, extra closets and a wet bar in the family room.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

The traditional style is appointed by a soaring roof design, cantilevered bedroom, dormer windows and recessed entry. The home is well suited to a narrow lot.

This is a computer generated plan. It includes 3,044 square feet of heated area.

All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and area drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For more information, write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, At-

Skylights: pros and cons

"The real fun part is it can be snow covered outside and you can sit in here and it's just lovely."

Skylights are especially popular in family rooms, bedrooms and in-creasingly in kitchens and interior bathroom suites that have no windows

"I think they've added zest to homes," said Frank Rodriguez, who is building a house in White Lake Township with six skylights — one in each of two bedrooms, two in the great room, one in the kitchen and one in the master bathroom.

The only drawback to skylights that occurred to Rodriguez - keeping them clean.

Builders want both convenience and authenticity

(AP) Many old-house restorers stop their restoration efforts when they reach the kitchen. They just don't want to sacrifice the conveniences of today for the sake of authenticity.

As far as modern appliances go, such as refrigerators and dishwashers, there's not much you can do to get a period look short of disguising them with wood panels.

The stove, however, is a different story.

Restored antique kitchen stoves are sturdy appliances that work re-markably well. One of these old beauties is sure to become the focal point of your room, and, together with the right combination of period features, will give your kitchen the unmistakable feel of years past.

Some of you may remember the glowing cast-iron range that warmed your grandmother's kitch-en. Many of these old stoves had six top burners over a wood- or coalpowered oven, with an open high shelf or warming oven overhead. Often, a hot-water reservoir sat on the righthand side, keeping warm water handy for dish washing and other tasks.

THE DUAL functions these stoves served in years past -- both to cook and help heat the home -- were again realized by conscientious restorers in the energy crunching 1970s.

Although you can still find some restoration shops willing to make a new reproduction wood or coal range from patterns they own, it's usually cheaper to buy a restored original.

Since the firebox setup varies from stove to stove, the first thing you need to know before buying one is what your primary source of fuel will be. This largely depends on your location and what is abundant there.

Since coal burns hotter than wood, a thick lining of fireclay (usually at least 1 to 1 %-inches thick) is necessary in the firebox. Because of this, the firebox is smaller, generally around 14 to 15 inches.

Although the warmth these stoves generate is a welcome addition in the cold winter months, no one wants to heat the kitchen unnecessarily in the summertime. Thus, the two-sea-

Mold, mildew not too unusual in new homes

(AP) I recently moved to a newer bouse and found the basement was damp. I was able to dry things out by running a dehumidifier for a few days. The problem I have is that mold keeps forming on the floor. How can I clean it off and prevent it from forming again?

Mold and mildew spores are always present in the air and thrive in damp locations. A mold buildup is not very unusual in a new house due to the initial high moisture content of the building materials, which eventually dry out.

To address your problem, clean mold and mildew from concrete and tiled floors and walls with a solution of 1/2 to 1 cup of household bleach to one gallon of water. Rinse with clear water, then dry. Wear gloves and avoid skin contact while cleaning.

Also, keep the dehumidifier running to reduce further moisture buildup.

Our garbage disposal can't drain the dishwasher discharge fast enough so there's a momentary backup into the sink. The disposal works fine when used alone, with no backup. The plumbing downstream has been checked and the sink trap replaced. The drain lines appear to be clear. Is it possible to have a par-tial blockage of the disposal? If so, how is it cleaned out?

Sounds like you have some sort of blockage in the drain system. The disposer itself has no way of holding any water so that is most likely not your problem.

To check this, disconnect the power to the disposer, then disconnect the trap.

Look into the disposer's discharge port to make sure it's all clear. Then, with a bucket under the garbage disposer, pour some water through it to make sure it flows freely. Reconnect the drain trap and the electrical power

If the garbage disposer appears to be clear, have a plumber or sewer cleaning company auger out your drain system.

Be sure they use a motor-driven auger type clean head tool and not a hand snake. A snake will puncture a hole in the obstruction but it will not actually clean the insides of the pipe as well as an auger would.

We will be installing a new sink in our bathroom that, according to a plumber friend of mine, will need to be vented with a new vent line. We've both sized up the situation and agree that running the new line through the existing walls will be a very difficult job entailing major demolition and reconstruction. Is there any alternative to venting the sink without this major construction project?

You may be able to use a ventless or antisiphoning, valve. This valve opens automatically to admit air, which prevents water from being siphoned from the trap, then closes to block the escape of sewer gas.

The valve installs behind the trap and solvent-welds to 1 1/2-inch diameter plastic pipe. It can be joined to the same diameter metal pipe if its solvent-weld adapter is discarded. Although the valve meets national plumbing code requirements, it may not meet local standards.

Check before you install it. The valve sells for about $5 at hardware stores and home centers.
