Cable guide increased

Cable TV subscribers in Plymouth and Canton will pay 75 cents more per month if they want to keep getting a cable TV guide.

Lisa Boland, general manager of Omnicom of Michigan, said just 18 percent of subscribers in a just-completed survey said they used the cable guide.

"That prompted us to review our guide policy," Boland said.

"Our guide costs have gone up and a couple of other costs have gone up. And if it's just 18 percent, it's money poorly spent," she continued.

The charge becomes effective in July.

"Many of our customers have told us that weekly newspaper guides are more timely for sporting events," she said, adding the cable guide is prepared two months in advance.

Subscribers who have three movie channels or a similar premium service will not be charged, Boland said.

"We don't make anything off of that 75 cents," she added.

Here's a chance for you, the reader, to become part of our news team.

No, we're not asking for traffic reports, we're asking you to call and tell us about any special event or something that's just plain interesting for our special section called "Picture a Day in Plymouth."

It's something we here at the Plymouth Observer are excited about. Beginning at noon on Friday, May 18, a team of eight photographers will blanket Plymouth and Plymouth Township for 24 hours to focus on the daily lives of residents of our community. The result will be published as a special section on June 7.

We want pictures of real people doing real things. Yes, maybe we'll take a picture of the mayor, but then again maybe not. We're looking for pictures of your child's birthday party, your son cutting the lawn, your daughter fitting into her prom or wedding dress, your grandparents wedding anniversary.

We're looking for people doing the things, work or play, that make up daily life. And that's what's special about this project. Journalism usually takes aim at the tragic, the sensational and the news makers.

But it often doesn't take a peek into the back yards to see what's cooking on the barbecue.

We're also looking to photograph the things that make Plymouth unique. Sure, we'll be out in Kellogg Park, in Old Village, and the neighborhoods of Plymouth Township. But we're also looking for out-of-the-way places.

If you have an event or an everyday scene that will happen during those 24 hours please drop us a note or phone 459-2700.

We know Plymouth is a great place to live, and we know you have the ideas that will help us reflect what the Plymouth community is in 1990.

Power outage keeps kids home

Nearly 5,000 students got the day off Thursday when high winds downed a power line to both high schools and Pioneer Middle School.

Dick Egli, community relations director, said students arrived for school at 7:30 a.m. The power went off at 9:30 a.m. and students were sent home.

Power was restored at about 3 p.m.

Township denies Saturn dealership

Massey says project makes sense for busy Ann Arbor Road

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Don Massey's plan to build a Saturn auto dealership on Ann Arbor Road is a bit out of this world for some Plymouth Township residents.

But Massey, whose request for rezoning was turned down unanimously last week by the township board of trustees, said the dealership makes sense for busy Ann Arbor Road.

He'll continue to seek to build the dealership in Plymouth Township, he said.

"When you get knocked down you get back up and fight," Massey said.

RESIDENTS FILLED the main meeting room at township hall Tuesday night, urging Plymouth Township trustees to reject the plan.

Residents said it would increase traffic and endanger their children, and encourage more commercial development near the site, just west of the Bill Knapp's restaurant on Ann Arbor Road west of Haggerty.

"We turned down an application for rezoning because the township master (zoning) plan doesn't call for commercial development in that area," said Maurice Breen, township supervisor.

"There were no circumstances that convinced them (trustees) that that could change."

There have been several proposals in recent years for commercial development in that area — most recently, an office complex at Southworth and Ann Arbor Road, Breen said.

"The board has always been very consistent" in maintaining residential zoning in that area, he said.

"THERE IS no reason that selling four or five Saturns a day is going to create a traffic jam on Ann Arbor Road," said Massey, who plans to consider his next step this week.

"We own all the houses from Bill Knapp's to the Elks (on the north side of Ann Arbor Road)."

He planned to remove two houses west of Bill Knapp's restaurant, to clear the 3.7-acre parcel on which the dealership was to be located.

"No one would want to buy that property and build a house there."

Massey has trouble renting the houses, he said.

"No one will rent because of the traffic . . . It is not a viable neighborhood.

"If we should fail, we could attempt to go to Canton or Westland."

McKENNA ASSOCIATES INC., the township's planning consultant, concluded in January that "the proposed zoning would be in conflict with the one-family zoning on parcels located to the north, south and west.

"The planning commission has studied the subject parcel and land to the west . . . and has concluded that the medium density residential designation should remain, although cluster-condominium development may be considered appropriate."

Recycling to become a part of trash day

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Plymouth Township residents sometime this summer will likely begin separating recyclables from their trash at the curb.

The pick-up of recycled trash was a main feature sought by township officials in a contract with a new trash hauler, approved by the board of trustees on Tuesday.

The big increases in trash dumping fees levied by the Arbor Hills Landfill and passed on to township residents in the past year won't continue under the new contract, said James Anulewicz, municipal services director.

"Substantially, the rates are going to maintain themselves," he said, over the five-year term of the contract with Waste Management of Michigan, effective July 1.

Sometime between July and October, township officials will require residents to place newspapers, tin and recyclable glass and plastics in one container at the curb.

Bio-degradable bags, probably made of paper, will be provided for residents to bag grass and leaves and other materials suitable for composting, by the plan developed by township officials.

The plan follows an awareness that recycling is good for the environment.

But besides that, the state Department of Natural Resources is demanding that cities and townships come up with incineration or recycling plans to reduce dumping in crowded landfills — or lose their right to haul trash to dumps.

Anulewicz said township trustees went with Waste Management of Michigan instead of another top bidder, Browning-Ferris Industries, mainly because Waste Management has a facility for breaking down and separating recyclables.

"BFI is in the process of constructing one — they weren't able to show us one right now," he said.

Schools look at ways to ease overcrowding

By Mary Washko
staff writer

Overcrowding at the high schools and projected pupil enrollment have forced the school district to look at expanding school facilities with one possibility being a third high school.

Board president Dean Swartzwelter said in terms of growth three options are being considered.

One, would be to convert Central Middle School into a third high school.

But Swartzwelter said there is a wave of pupils at the elementary level that would need more middle school space in a few years.

A second alternative involves adding another phase onto the high school complex possibly between phase three and Plymouth-Salem High School.

SWARTZWELTER SAID that could accommodate high school students or the ninth grade.

The final option is to build a separate new high school in the district.

Swartzwelter said the board isn't leaning toward any one option, adding it is waiting for recommendations from the administration and the citizens' committee.

If the bond and building plan is approved, Swartzwelter said work could begin in January 1992.

Superintendent John Hoben was asked at the May 7 work session to review the three options and develop more specific ideas.

While Swartzwelter said no decisions have been made and research continues, board members all agree facilities need to be expanded to address overcrowding and projected growth.

Trustee David Artley said he wants to wait for the superintendent's recommendations before he settles on a decision. But, he said, a new high school that would cost $35 million is the least attractive option.

"I WOULD prefer a classroom building with a cafeteria rather than an entire high school," Artley said. "But we may find out that's what the community wants."

35th District Court renovation OK'd

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

A 35th District Court renovation, paid for with proceeds that normally go to local governments, has been approved.

The court building authority last week approved witholding $600,000 in 1990-92, in proceeds normally returned to the communities it serves — Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton, Northville and Northville Township.

The renovation is needed to add a third judge to the court. Authority members expect that third judgeship will be approved by the state legislature in 1992.

"We wouldn't do anything (begin construction) until we have the approval of the state legislature," said District Judge John MacDonald, a strong advocate of adding the third judgeship.

The five communities served by the 35th District Court, in Plymouth Township, all send representatives to the building authority board.

While local governments won't get the share of court fees they would have, spreading costs over three years means "There will be much less impact than if they tried to take it in one year," said William Graham, Plymouth finance director.

Graham added that the impact on the city budget "will be minimal, because the court has a steady growth rate."

A rising caseload has made the court the third busiest district court in the state, District Judge James Garber said in March.That's when the court advisory board voted 4-1 against creating a third judgeship, for 1991.

Top among concerns of those voting against the judgeship — Canton's representative voted for it — was the cost to each municipality to fund court improvements now.

That advisory board action came about a week after State Sen. Bob Geake, R-Northville, said time was running out for the Senate to approve creation of new judgeships recommended by the state Court Administrator's office. Those judgeships included a third for the 35th District Court.

'We wouldn't do anything (begin construction) until we have the approval of the state legislature.'
— District Judge John MacDonald

Of the $600,000 to be set aside for renovation, MacDonald said, "Hopefully, that's more than enough."

While the state would pay 90 percent of the third judge's annual $91,080 salary, taxpayers in the five communities served by the court would pay other expenses sparked by creating the position.

Those expenses would include renovation of the court building, estimated at $400,000-$500,000, and salaries for two new staff positions created by the third judgeship — about $60,000 for a court officer and court recorder.

No power didn't dim talent at festival

The festival was moved into the cafeteria of Plymouth Canton High School, where some sunlight made it easier to see.

THERE'S A saying in show business: "The show must go on."

Organizers of the Plymouth Community Arts Council's awards festival can attest to that. They didn't let a power failure stand in the way of their event.

The festival was scheduled for the evening of Tuesday, May 8, in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School. The power went out at the school, so a last-minute change of plans was required.

This is the third year such a festival has been held to honor student winners of various Plymouth Community Arts Council awards.

"We have quite a crop of talented students here," said Beth Lurtz, the council's general chairwoman for awards. Choosing each year's winners isn't an easy task.

THE FESTIVAL was moved into the cafeteria of Plymouth Canton High School, where some sunlight made it easier to see. The lights did come back on, although not before members of the Plymouth-Canton Middle School Honors Band and the Middle School Orchestra decided they had to cancel their performances.

There was no music during the festival, but an abundance of talent was still on display. Winners of the Damaris Student Fine Arts Awards were among those honored.

That program for middle school students is named in honor of Damaris "Dee" Schulte, a local artist. This year's winners shared a total of $1,500 in awards.

Awards were given in art, creative writing, photography, piano, organ, other instrumental music, voice and dance. The council also sponsors an Isbister Awards competition for student artists each year and those students were recognized.

August Raschke, who received the Margaret E. Wilson Scholarship, was honored during the Tuesday, May 8, program. Raschke will use the $350 award when she begins her studies in dance and engineering at the University of Michigan this fall.

Jeremy Rheault, winner of this year's $1,000 Joanne Winkleman Hulce Founder's Scholarship, was unable to attend the awards program. Winners of the Jeanet M. Allison Memorial Scholarships for Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp were honored at the festival. Those 13 students will share a total of $575 in awards, to be matched by the camp.

As part of this year's Earth Day celebration, the arts council sponsored a "Save Our Earth" poster and essay contest. Winners and students who received honorable mentions were recognized at the festival.

"We had so many wonderful entries," said Jo Hulce, who helped in founding the PCAC in 1969. Winning entries from that competition will be used for 5-by-7 inch notecards to be sold to raise money for PCAC school programs.

The Plymouth-Canton Middle School Honors Band will perform at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 14, at Lowell Middle School, 8400 Hix, Westland.

Schools weigh options to ease overcrowding

The Plymouth-Canton School District saw its greatest growth during the late 1970s and early 1980s when residential and commercial building began, Swartzwelter said.

For the 1989-90 school year the district had about 15,000 pupils. That's down from 16,500 students in the 1979-80 school year.

Hoben said growth leveled off during the past 10 years, but it's expected to increase again in the 1990s.

"There was so much growth in the late 1970s that we had to have year-round school in some of the elementary schools," Swartzwelter said. In 1976, three new elementary schools were also built. In 1983, the year-round school ended.

Hoben said the district has lost between 250 to 300 pupils during the past two years. He credits that to the graduation of the district's largest class last year. The class of 1988, with 1,300 students has been the largest class since it began kindergarten, he said.

Swartzwelter said, "It all depends on the number and age of families coming into the district."

"The only thing that is clear right now is that there will be growth," Swartzwelter said. "It's just going to be a matter of how much growth."

Cyclists brave rain to raise money for abused kids

By Diane Gale
staff writer

About 200 bicyclists from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties mounted their two-wheelers and hit the back roads of Canton. The event was a warm-up for the state Magic Ride, June 9, in Lansing.

Riders with a cause didn't let rainy, chilly weather get in the way Saturday in Canton during the Magic Ride for child abuse prevention.

About 200 bicyclists from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties mounted their two-wheelers and hit the back roads of Canton. The event was a warm-up for the state Magic Ride, June 9, in Lansing.

THE WEATHER didn't dampen the spirits of committed riders.

Sue Weber of Westland said bicycling to raise money to fight child abuse was worth getting out for an early morning ride before work.

And even though a nail punctured her tire early in the ride, Weber said, it was fun while it lasted.

"The fresh air even smelled good," she said. "They should can it. I like the rural setting."

Julie and Bill Windhorst, representing the Michigan National Bank loan division, got on their bicycle built for two about 9 a.m. and planned to log 56 miles for more than $350.

"You don't get many chances to ride for a good cause," said Dale Brantigan.

He raised $100 and planned to cycle 28 miles. All pledge money raised is returned to a child abuse prevention program in the rider's county.

Carrie George and Becky McKinney, both of Westland, raised $300 between them and expected more pledges.

"My husband plans on coming in a couple of hours to find us and see if we're still alive," McKinney said. "A lot of people are still waiting to see if we made it."

PATTI BREHLER, who holds a tandem bicycle record, spoke to 28 metro area Girl Scouts about safety. The Clawson resident rode 35 miles to get to the starting line at Canton Township Hall, and she planned to ride 100 miles during the Magic Ride.

"Ride with traffic, because you're part of traffic," she said.

Kitty VandenBrulle of South Lyon gets a first hand taste of the effects of child abuse every day at the Wayne County Probate Juvenile Division where she works. She raised $100 and planned to ride 28 miles despite the cold.

Paul Reynolds of Westland said he and his wife, Gloria, hoped to ride 56 miles "if the weather holds out."

The ride was a family affair for the Spencers of Dearborn. J., Carol, Kristen and Kent usually take their bikes to Edward Hines and were ready to put in 16 miles in Canton.

AREA CELEBRITIES took to a "challenging" one-mile ride.

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, had his 3-year-old daughter Jessica on the back of his bicycle. The legislator has two sets of twins.

Where are the other kids?

"I'm waiting until they make a quadruple bicycle seat," he said.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, who borrowed his daughter's bicycle for the day, was presented a $500 check from Omnicom Cablevision, which operates in Plymouth and Canton. Employees raised half the money, and the company matched it.

Arriving moments after the "celebrity" riders took off, Maryann Mahaffey, president of the Detroit City Council, put a plastic bag on her head to ward off the rain and was interviewed for Omnicom by Bill Joyner of the public relations administration group, which organized the area Magic Ride.

Man accused of growing pot quits teaching job

By Darrell Clem

James Spinelle's resignation prompted the West Bloomfield Board of Education to drop charges, brought by Superintendent Seymour Gretchko, seeking dismissal of the Plymouth man.

A West Bloomfield High School teacher accused of growing marijuana resigned Thursday, the same day school officials were to decide whether to fire him.

James Spinelle's resignation prompted the West Bloomfield Board of Education to drop charges, brought by Superintendent Seymour Gretchko, seeking dismissal of the Plymouth man.

Spinelle's letter of resignation, submitted by his attorney during a special school board session Thursday, caught officials by surprise. The embattled teacher failed to attend the hearing that he had earlier requested.

"Obviously we had anticipated that he wanted to fight (the charges)," Gretchko said after the meeting.

SPINELLE'S ATTORNEY, Steve Amberg, refused to respond to questions, saying, "We have no comment."

The school board issued a two-paragraph statement saying Spinelle has been "unconditionally severed from employment." The board will stop paying his salary and benefits on June 14, though his resignation was dated Thursday.

Spinelle, 47, and two Southfield men were arrested March 15 when federal authorities raided a Southfield house and seized 388 basement-grown marijuana plants. They were released from custody, pending an expected federal indictment on charges they intended to grow the marijuana and sell it.

Spinelle has been suspended with pay since his arrest.

"While the Board of Education has drawn no conclusions as to the truth of the various news reports about Dr. Spinelle's involvement with drugs, it nonetheless wishes to emphasize to its students and staff that it considers any involvement with drugs a very serious matter which will not be overlooked or treated indifferently," the school board said in its prepared statement. "The board is committed to maintaining a drug-free environment in the West Bloomfield Schools."

In another development, school officials settled a grievance in which the West Bloomfield Education Association had sought money for Spinelle's retirement under the district's voluntary severance incentive plan. The association agreed to withdraw the grievance.

"We did not buy his resignation," Gretchko said. Spinelle will remain eligible for state retirement benefits, however.

SPINELLE HAS admitted that he and the two Southfield men were growing the marijuana for personal use, though he has flatly denied they intended to sell it.

Gretchko brought charges for Spinelle's dismissal before the school board on March 26. Specific details of the charges, discussed in closed-door sessions, will not be made public, Gretchko said.

School board members said they never considered other options, such as suspending Spinelle for the remainder of the school year but allowing him to return this fall.

"That scenario never came up," board member Sharon Lipton said.

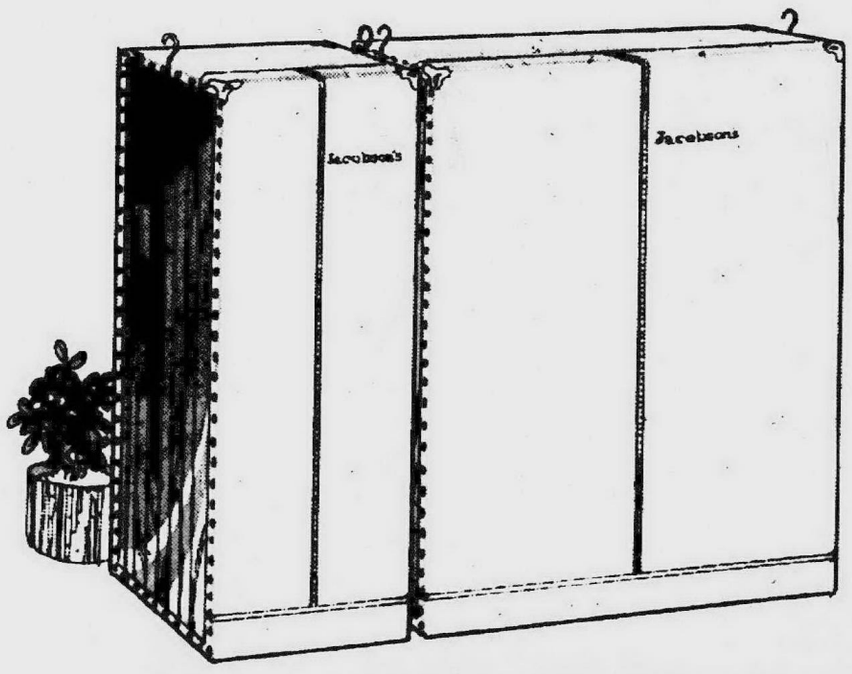

Following his arrest, Spinelle came under fire from school officials who said the teacher's arrest came as a shock because he had spoken against drugs at school. Spinelle, a history teacher, had taught at the high school for 20 years.

Some school officials and students voiced concerns that the school district's anti-drugs message might lose some its credibility. But Gretchko indicated Thursday that he believed the incident will have no long-term effects.

Keep hands off Central

To the editor:

I had wondered why there had been no letters to the editor in response to the articles in print about the conversion of Central Middle School to shops, offices and condominiums. I wondered if I was the only person who was angry and upset by this carefully orchestrated campaign to give control of the setting and flavor of our city over to developers.

What I discovered was not apathy but there but an attitude that the idea was so preposterous that the city planners could not possibly be serious in forwarding this plan. Clearly the community had spoken out many times in the past against such use of this property and financially the school district would suffer from such a transaction.

As recently as 1986 the citizens of this city sent a message to the community and the school administration that they wanted Central to continue as an active part of the school system when they voted to fund $1.6 million for renovations for this building. This made the school good for the next 20 years. (If you haven't been inside lately take a look, it's wonderful.)

If this building is sold to developers for $5 million, deduct the $1.6 million we just poured into it and you get $3.4 million. Central is the most flexible building in the school district.

You wouldn't be eliminating just a middle school but also a high school. That's just what we need now to ease the crowding at CEP. So just when we need more high school space, we're going to sell Central for $3.4 million and face having to replace it for a mere $35 to $50 million?

Somebody's not thinking straight. But maybe there's a reason for thinking crooked. Ask yourself why the names of the developers are being kept secret? Who's friends are they? Why did the city fathers approach Central Baptist Church next to Central months ago to buy their property? Why bring up this plan again when the citizens have clearly said, "No" before? Why is a city council member being quoted that the plan is already "in cement" and the "little people" can't stop it?

As I sat last Tuesday evening out behind Central, I saw families playing tennis, people jogging on the track and no less than four baseball games going on. What a wonderful picture of a community at play.

So once again, I ask who is in control of our city — the developers or us? Petitions can be circulated.

Academic freedom the key

To the editor:

If we as a people want to improve ourselves, our children must grow up to be better than we are. They must know more, understand more, and be able to comprehend things that we, the parents, cannot.

If we restrict the education of our children to only those things that we agree with, our children will never learn what we don't know. Our society will stagnate and eventually decline. History has proven this to be true many, many times.

That is why I strongly support the principles of academic freedom. I want my children to develop their own understandings of the world, separate from mine. I do not want the public schools to teach only what I agree with. If my children are to grow up to be better than me, they must be exposed to ideas other than mine.

These are the main reasons that I am opposed to the views of the Citizens for Better Education and the school board candidates they support, Diane Stamp and Robert Anderson. If we curtail academic freedom in our public schools, as they advocate, I believe we will destroy our own future.

Mr. Anderson's talk of eliminating the teaching of values in our public schools is, in my view, particularly dangerous. Values are what we use to decide what to do with our knowledge. Giving someone knowledge without values is like giving a 2-year-old child a loaded gun.

Ideally, values should be taught by family and church, but given the realities of today, many children receive no positive values at all outside the schools. Teaching values in our public schools gives at least some sense of values to those who have none and serves to sharpen the understanding of values for those who already have them.

Every day, I work with people who have values very different from mine. My children need to learn how to do the same. Having different teachers expressing different values is an excellent way to learn how to work with people different from you.

I have no doubt that Diane Stamp and Robert Anderson are sincere in their views; they honestly think they know what is best for the community. My only problem with them is that I think they're wrong.

Jack Farrow,

Social ills on teaching agenda

To the editor:

Yes, Robert Anderson, you were correct in your open letter published April 30. There are problems in our nation and our community which need our attention and effort to resolve.

Yes, in too many cases parents and some churches are not doing their parts. We also agree that schools, public or otherwise, cannot solve all social ills.

This, however, is where our agreements end. How can you say that an institution of our society such as public schools should not at least attempt to solve some of the problems of our society?

An obvious example would be illiteracy. A natural solution to this is in the schools. Of course schools alone cannot solve this. I'll elaborate later on. Environmental issues, for another, affect all of us. Schools cannot be divorced from these. A list could go on and on.

As to your mention of spiritual ills, I know of nowhere in which public schools are attempting this. In fact, as I understand it, the Supreme Court has made some very definite decisions that prevent this. It is impossible, however, for these not to overlap to some extent.

It is a fallacy to suggest that schools should have no bearing on raising our children. You try to rationalize this by saying no conscientious parent would allow the schools to do this. With all due respect, I suggest that the conscientious parent would work with the schools, not against them, in child rearing. This could only help raise a more rounded, less stressed child.

"When more parents start parenting and when more educators start educating we will witness improvements."

This is a statement you made in your letter. You are presenting an over-simplification of our society with this. Our society is too complex to think that all that is needed is for parents to parent, teachers to teach and churches to preach.

All of these must work together, each fulfilling their individual roles — each drawing on the other's strengths.

Mr. Anderson, supporters and members of Citizens for Better Education, citizens of Plymouth-Canton, it would be wonderful if we lived in a Utopia where everything went the way it should.

We don't, however, and to be realistic, I respectfully submit we never will. We will stay further from this as long as groups work against one another and spend their time looking for the faults and not the goods.

Planet in critical condition

To the editor:

I must express my amazement of the success of Earth Day. It has made me and millions of other people aware that our planet is in a critical state.

However, that is all it did. The real test still lies ahead. If the ways of people are not permanently changed, then Earth Day was a failure. We must treat every day as if it were Earth Day. If we accomplish that, we have the ability to heal the planet that we ourselves have wounded.

We can do this by recycling anything that can be recycled, reusing things until they can't be used again, and buying products with the least amount of packaging. Compost heaps, no matter how bad you may think they look, are also a big help in our fight to save the world.

There are many other ways to help our environment. Be creative!

To summarize, we started this fight with our environment long ago, and now, we must take the environment's side, and win the fight.

State board needs more attention

Tim Richard

QUESTION: FOR WHOM did you vote in the 1988 State Board of Education election?

Huh? you probably replied defensively.

The State Board of Education is likely to become visible this year given the bitter 4-4 Democratic-Republican split over Don Bemis' performance as superintendent of public instruction.

"IT SHOULD be (more visible)," Gov. James J. Blanchard told me last week in an interview. "It generally isn't."

Blanchard said the eight-member board had been bipartisan in Gov. William Milliken's years (1969-82) and his own early years when Democrats held a majority. Blanchard now sees Republicans as misusing their position to "embarrass" Bemis.

Republicans screened their 1988 candidates on the abortion issue, Blanchard said.

E. Spencer Abraham, Republican state chair, thinks voters will pay more attention to state education candidates as "the failures in public education — the dropout rates, the failure of those who graduate to meet certain standards — become clearer."

Abraham, interviewed at a GOP dinner at Schoolcraft College, dumped the ball into our lap: "I would hope the media will cover them more thoroughly. There's a tendency to let them slide."

JOHN ENGLER, Blanchard's probable Republican opponent on Nov. 6, said the Bemis evaluation will be an election issue. Engler said Bemis "simply isn't suited to head Michigan schools.

"The two Democratic candidates who are running are employees of the two major teachers unions," Engler said — Barbara Roberts Mason of the Michigan Education Association and Rollie Hopgood of the Michigan Federation of Teachers. "Some people feel it's a potential conflict of interest."

Legally, the two union officials probably have no conflict of interest because they have no contractual relationship with the state agency.

Morally and politically, however, Engler has a point. The notion of a school employees union official serving on a school policy-making board reeks.

HOW THE BOARD evaluated Bemis is interesting, if you like messy politics.

On April 18, the eight state board members rated him in five categories for a total of 40 marks. There were zero "excellent" marks, zero "poor to fair," three "good-excellent," five "fair-average" — and 32 "average-good" marks.

You see the pattern.

A Republican member who knows parliamentary procedure quickly moved that the board consider his performance "satisfactory." The four Democrats voted yes, the four Republicans voted no, and the GOP motion failed for lack of a majority.

DOROTHY BEARDMORE, a Republican board member from Rochester, put a different spin on it.

"It was not a satisfactory performance. Right in the middle. Barely average. Run of the mill. We want more than that. Just in the middle of the heap is not acceptable."

For narrow legal reasons, the board couldn't dump Bemis. But one can see the cloud over his head.

Bemis is close to Blanchard, who, the story goes, advocated his hiring.

ON INDIVIDUAL qualities, the board rated Bemis high on implementing board goals, knowledgeable on enforcement of laws, good on hiring minorities and women and working well with the governor.

In short: The board thinks he's Blanchard's guy but no leader.

Blanchard and the GOP's Abraham are right when they say the media can do a better job covering the State Board of Education. But their own campaigns highlight the top of the ticket, not the education posts.

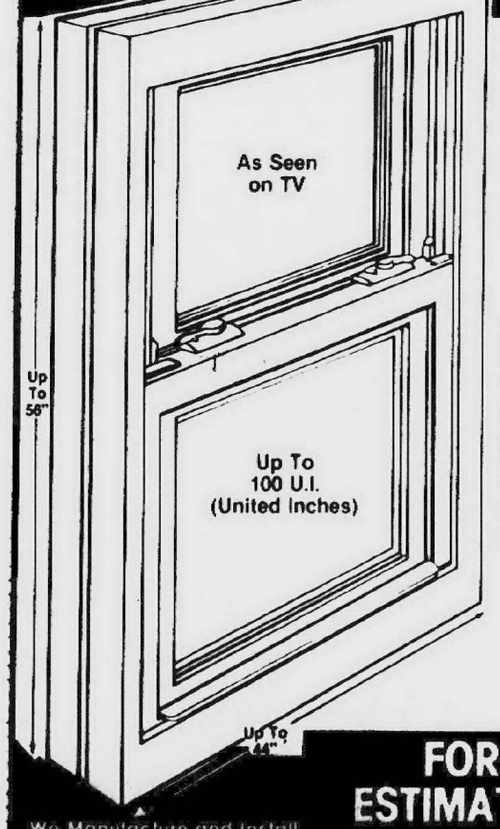

And when we in the media do write about education posts, readers yawn.

The car was parked on Ivywood, the police report stated. The investigation was closed, for lack of a suspect.

RECYCLING?: A Dearborn Hieghts man was cited for littering Tuesday after Plymouth Township police noticed the garbage truck he was driving was spilling trash on township roads.

As the truck crossed railroad tracks north of M-14 on north Beck Road, the officer saw more trash fall to the road, including newspapers and tissue. The incident happened at 8:40 a.m.

SURPRISE: A Plymouth Township man got a surprise May 6, when he came across a mobile phone while cutting his backyard grass off of Canton Center Road.

Sky's the limit in Challenge Fest fun

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Firefighters, kite flyers and artists join the leagues of participants in this year's Canton Challenge Fest held May 25 through June 3.

Among the 30-some events, the fireworks presented by Burda Brothers, scheduled Saturday, May 26, are expected to be the top draw.

"Just don't miss it," said Russ Courville, festival chairman.

"It will be bigger and better than last year and last year was the best we've ever had," Courville said. "It is probably the best fireworks show in western Wayne County."

BACK ON the ground, Canton and other area firefighters will drench each other during the waterball contest Saturday, June 2 as they vie to keep a ball suspended in air by the force of water fired from hoses between noon and 5 p.m. behind Canton Township Hall.

Kite enthusiasts can watch the best in the field as three men, billed as the world champion kite flying team, the Windjammers, fly as many as 47 kites simultaneously from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 2 behind township hall.

The wide variety of events are designed to draw people of all ages to get involved in physical activity.

"We want to get the people of Canton together as a family and to get together in a competitive manner for physical fitness," Courville said.

He plans to spend time with his 13-year-old son Brian participating in the remote control car competition in the parking lot behind township hall beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday, June 2.

If you're interested in emergency safety equipment the Midwest Medical Flight helicopter — used to transport victims to hospitals when minutes decide life and death — will be available for viewing June 2 and 3 at township hall. Other emergency vehicles also will be available, said Bill Joyner of public relations administrative group, hired to organize the event.

BASEBALL DIAMONDS around the township will be batting for attention during the baseball tournament.

And for a taste of art, view the juried art show June 1-3 inside township hall. All art forms will be represented, Joyner said. To enter the show call the Canton Community Foundation, at 455-3645, before May 15.

A challenge was extended by Elias Brothers Big Boy to all Canton restaurants to donate 5 percent of their income for the entire day May 26 with the proceeds going to charity.

Other events will draw participants to the used book sale, junior golf tourney, tennis tournament, fishing derby, rotary walk/run for literacy and fishing derby are on the roster for the weeklong festival held at various places throughout the township

Work permit system revised

The Michigan Department of Education, with the Department of Labor and local school officials, recently revised the procedures and combined the forms necessary for minors to obtain a work permit. The new procedures and single form will take effect June 1.

Youths 14-17 are required to have a work permit to be legally employed. One exception is golf caddies, who may apply for a work permit at age 11.

The new form applies only to applicants seeking a new work permit as of June 1, 1990. Minors now employed with a valid work permit need not reapply.

The new work permit form will simplify the process for employers and minors. As in the past, a work permit may be obtained at the Vocational Technical Education Office, room V-22 at Plymouth-Canton High School.

Madonna promoting ties with Taiwanese students

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Think rush hour on I-96 is a problem? Fred has a story for you.

"You know, traffic here is pretty good," he said. "Not as bad as it is back home."

Fred is, indeed, a long way from home. The Taiwanese businessman is one of 30 such professionals currently completing a master's degree at Madonna College, Livonia.

Shu-An Kao (he uses the Anglicized name on his visits to the U.S.) hails from Taipei, a teeming city of 2.5 million — roughly twice the size of Detroit.

But he's not here to teach about Taiwan; rather, he's here to learn American ways.

"WE WANT to absorb as much of the culture as we can in the short time we're here," said George C.C. Huang, another of the Taiwanese professionals currently attending Madonna.

Toward that end, the group has toured area GM and Ford plants, attended a taping of the local television show "Kelly & Co." and "attended a lot of parties," as Huang put it with a smile.

Their crash Detroit-area tour also includes trips to the Detroit Institute of Arts, Greefield Village and Tiger Stadium.

Though they say the field trips were nice, group members added they came to Madonna to complete their degrees.

"We're working toward business administration degrees," said Teresa Liang, another member of the Taiwanese delegation.

Under a college-to-college exchange program the students began their studies at Tamkang University, Taipei and came to Madonna for their fourth, and final, term.

The program is fairly unusual for both the U.S. and Taiwan.

"In Taiwan we really don't have too many programs for business professionals to go back and get another degree," Huang said.

While all of the students can read English, many aren't fluent in speaking the language.

Nonetheless, college officials said they've been a welcome addition to the Livonia campus.

"It's been a real pleasure having them here," said college spokeswoman Andrea Nodge. "They're so polite and they have such a desire to learn."

All are top executives in their home country.

Kao, for instance, is a senior administration specialist with China Rebar Co, Ltd., a conglomerate involved in the textile and hotel industries, among others.

A member of his nation's military, he's been to the U.S. on three previous occasions, studying and training with U.S. Navy and Marine personnel in Washington, D.C. and California.

Huang is an assistant general manager with Teco Electric & Machinery Co., Ltd., a manufacturer of electronic engines. Liang is a sales manager for Alptech Logic Products, a manufacturer of computer products. After leaving Madonna, she'll spend the next six months in Frankfort, West Germany, on her company's behalf.

Students are nearly evenly divided between manufacturing and service industries.

A second group, including school administrators, will come to Madonna in July.

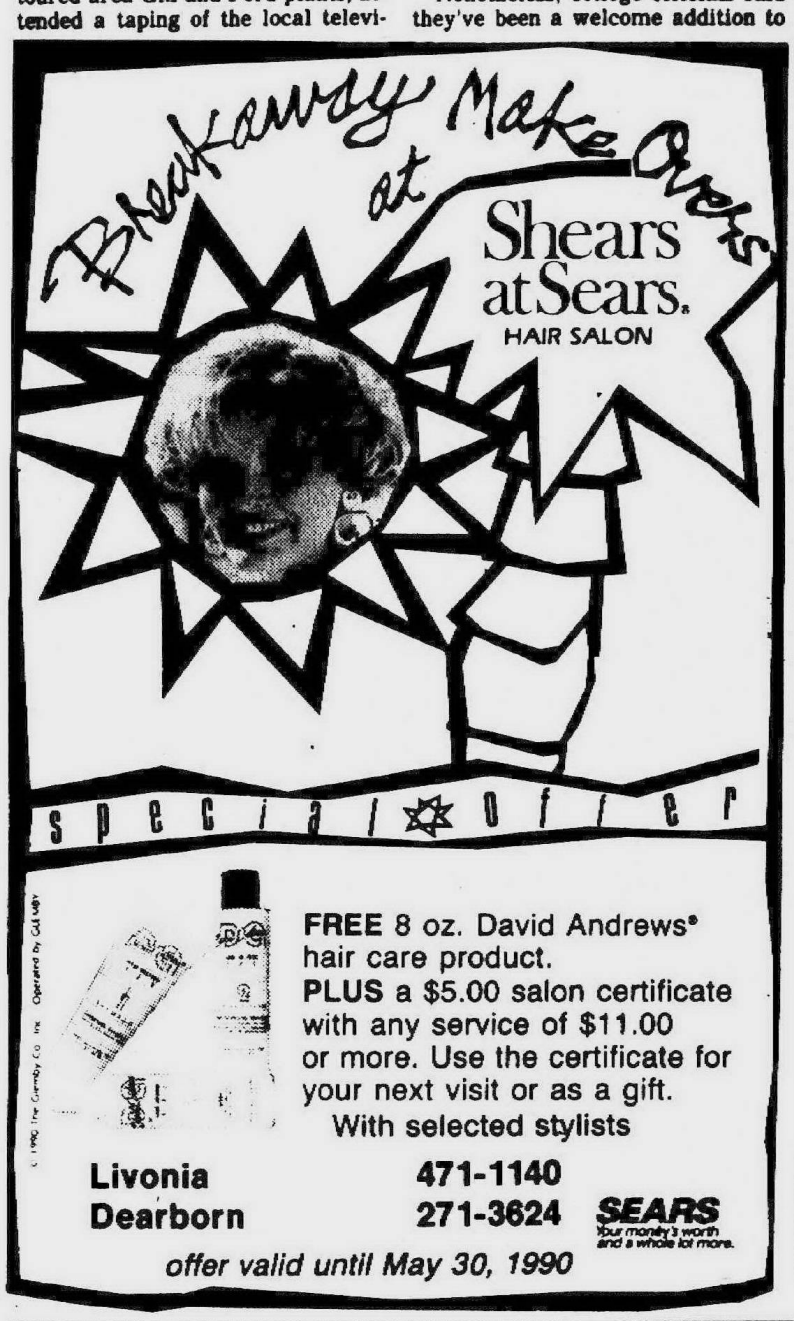

All students are 25-45.

"It's never too late to learn, right?" said Huang.

Are you a YUD or a YUS?

I never really considered myself a yuppie. Sure, I drank premium brands, owned a wok and ate tofu, but I still held onto the pink plastic flamingo that to this day graces my front lawn. I think it was more a matter of being questionably radical.

Now the Lempert Report, the leading marketing analysis newsletter, has coined new buzzwords that will sure make their way into the '90s vocabulary.

Are you a YUD or YUS?

Both groups comprise the Baby Boomer generation (those born between 1947 and 1967 who make up as much as one-third of the population).

The YUDS, or Young Urban Destroyers, are those Boomers who don't feel like the environmental issues affect them. They weren't politically active in the '60s and they are no more conscious now. YUDS won't even try to claim they were at Woodstock. These are the people who purchase disposable diapers, disposable razors and other artifacts from a "disposable" society. Their philosophy is, "Why shouldn't I make my life easier?"

The YUSES, or Young Urban Saviors, on the other hand, never stopped caring or believing they could make a difference. They may be caught in the maelstrom of mortgages and childrearing, but they still dutifully separate their garbage for recycling and deep down inside they do believe that they can effect change. Even more importantly, they take personal responsibility for making that difference.

TO A DEGREE, giving a marketing newsletter like the Lempert Report credit for conjuring up yet another set of cliches is redundant in itself. I never enjoyed belonging to a group and to this day try to steer clear of getting labeled as an activist through group involvement.

But in all honesty, I cannot deny my feelings toward the environment, especially when there's a major or campaign movement that is without a doubt making environmental issues the "cause" for the '90s.

In retrospect, however, I am amazed by the sheer number of Yusses, Yuppies, Dinks, Dorks and whatevers who continue to spin their wheels in mountains of trash without taking the time to even try to make a difference.

For example, last week, for the first time, I brought my own bags. No big deal, especially because with all the bags stuffed under the kitchen sink, there was literally no room for more. So here I am, at the checkout line, where I hand my own bags to the bagger and announce, "I brought my own bags," secretly hoping that Vanna White will appear from behind the display of toilet paper and plant a kiss on my cheek and thank me.

Guess what?

I asked the cashier just how many folks like me bring their own bags or boxes to the store. "You're the first," was her reply. "C'mon, surely you jest?" was my reply. "Nope."

SO, I ASKED the bagger the same question. Ditto the response.

Thinking my cashier and bagger lived in a cave somewhere without television, radio, books and no outside communications, I went down the line and asked each and every cashier and bagger how many people bring their own bags. Dittos, again.

If you are one of those so-called Yuses who still thinks you can make a difference, do it. If you separate your cans, bottles, plastics and other recyclables, get down on your hands and knees and spend five minutes getting the bags in order from under your kitchen sink. Better yet, if you don't have any bags, pick up a couple of canvas bags or those cool, European string bags. Just do it.

Michigania sells food products

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

STATE PRIDE and Michigan heritage are expressed through the wonder of culinary fare artfully prepared by creative Michigan producers.

Such foods as dried tart cherries, bing cherry tea, Joy's pungent tomato relish or Carrie's aromatic curry dip are especially timely now, during the annual statewide celebration of Michigan Week.

What better time to explore and enjoy foodstuffs that are expressly Michiganian, and what better place to experience them than at Michigania, an attractive basement shop in Birmingham that carries only Michigan-made goods, including unusual mouthwatering fare and other unique cookery items.

Take Carrie Wager's dip, a commercial enterprise based on a family recipe first marketed in 1959 by grandparents Stanley and Blanch Wager of Pellston. Sold as Wager's Curry Dip, the snappy sauce comes in jars topped with polka-dotted cotton of deep green.

"It's a marvelous looking jar so it sells well," said shop manager Gail Bahl, a self-confessed native of the Buckeye State who settled in Bloomfield Township some 14 years ago.

Still, Bahl gushes forth with culinary detail of the Great Lakes State: Carp River of Leland produces the widest variety of genuine Michigan condiments, dried cherries by American Spoon in Petosky are the most-popular prepared food and Michigania is the only retailer in the state to carry Malted Pancake Flour milled by F.S. Carbon in Buchanan.

"PEOPLE IN MICHIGAN really take quité a pride in their state," Bahl said, based on the shop's success. "We opened our doors from scratch 18 months ago and response has been tremendous."

Michigania also displays blown glass, puzzles, candles, pottery jewelry, books and more, all Michigan produced. These items are most often purchased by tourists yearning for an authentic touch of Michigan, according to Bahl.

"Foods are more for people who live here, for themselves or for friends who have moved away. They're thrilled to find it all in one place."

One popular find at Michigania is Michelle Marshall's Mucky Duck, a pub-style sweet and tangy mustard. Relying on her own expertise, Marshall created Mucky Duck through trial in error from the kitchen of her Franklin home some five years ago.

"At Christmas, I sell it by the case. It goes out of here hot," Bahl said, with Marshall de-

PIGS IN THE BLANKET
Saucijzebroodjes
by William H. Vande Water

2½ cups white flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons salt
⅓ cup lard
1 egg
⅓ cup milk or more
1 pound pork steak and 1 pound veal steak, ground together
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix and sift ingredients. Cut in the shortening as for pie crust. Beat the egg and add milk to dry ingredients. More milk may be needed to make a soft dough of proper consistency to roll out to about ¼-inch thickness. Season the meat and make into small rolls about 4 inches long and ½-inch in thickness. Wrap each roll with the pastry, pinching ends. Bake in hot oven 20-30 minutes, in bake pans, until brown.

The first Italian to set foot in what is now Michigan was probably Henry de Tonti who explored the Great Lakes in 1678. The 1890 census showed 338 native Italians in Detroit. Today, the metropolitan area boasts nearly 100 Italian organizations.

Seafood still a star at Charley's Crab

When the original Charley's Crab restaurant on Pine Lake burned down in 1975, faithful customers mourned the loss of a restaurant that mixed comfort and elegance, an unsurpassed view of an inland lake and premium seafood dinners. The fact that its replacement was built alongside an expressway exit in a bustling suburb and as an appendage of a hotel was more than most fans could bear.

But seafood scion Chuck Muer proved the skeptics wrong. He turned the view inward, building a restaurant that still balances comfort, elegance and fine seafood dining. Whether seated in the rich and stately main dining room with its vaulted ceiling and fireplace or alongside an upstairs balcony, a diner can't help but enjoy the ambience as well as the food.

Although the menu could be characterized as fish and potatoes (Muer gave redskins a new life), the fish isn't just any fish. It's extraordinarily fresh and the selection is unsurpassed.

Preparation is excellent — though with no frills. Charley's — or any Muer establishment for that matter — isn't where you go to have your swordfish topped with a delicate sauce or your yellowfin tuna wrapped in a pastry puff.

This is where you select from a long list of fresh fish (catfish, shark, bluefish, mahi-mahi, perch) and order it broiled, sauteed or grilled. The addition of Cajun spices is about as "fancy" as it gets. We recently tried a thick cut of yellowfin tuna cooked Cajun-style and loved it — as much for the quality of the fish as for the spicy treatment.

AT ONE TIME or another, nearly every Charley's customer has ordered the "bucket" — a steamed lobster, crab, mussels, steamers, corn on the cob and redskins. Simple, good, plentiful and reflective of Muer's style.

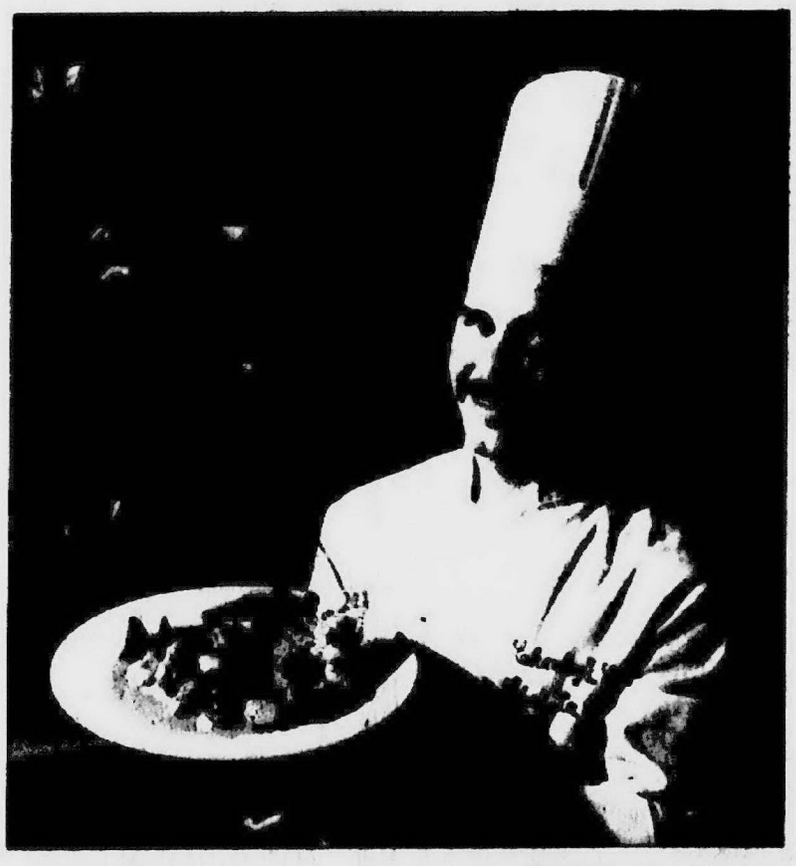

That's not to say you won't find gourmet dishes now and then. We noted one such entree — salmon in parchment paper — on the menu recently. But that's not what you expect to find here.

Soups, on the other hand, have that special gourmet touch. Charley's Mediterranean-style chowder is excellent. The shrimp gumbo is wonderfully seasoned and is loaded with shrimp. At lunchtime, soup and Muer's deliciously salty bread is all you need.

Salads are good, ranging from the ultra-simple wedge of iceberg lettuce with Roquefort French dressing to an excellent spinach salad with honey-mustard dressing.

Because you can overdose on seafood-only dinners, we often skip the appetizers and move right into chowder. But don't overlook the appetizers entirely. They are perfect for when you stop by for a drink. The mussels a la Muer are deliciously steamed in garlic butter, wine and herbs. Clams Casino, Oysters Florentine, escargot in a pastry puff — we've tried them all at one time or another and have found them excellent.

No doubt we will hear a lot about Muer and his seafood dynasty this year as he celebrates his 25th year in business. But forget about the hype. Just visit Charley's when you have a yearning for good, simply prepared seafood.

livering cases of newly prepared mustard nearly daily.

Other notable fare in the shop includes Christoff's tantalizing pasta and salad marinades prepared in Lowell, hearty Bountiful Bean Soup Mix prepared by Fragrant Hill Farms in Clarkston and Sanders' excellent dessert sauces.

Jabar's vinaigrettes, meticulously bottled with select slices of lemon and snips of parsley or plump peach wedges, is prepared by Julie Stumbaugh of Farmington and partner Barbara Klaserner Benjamin Twiggs of Traverse City is noted for colorfully packaged cherry teas.

Other rare finds include Green Pepper Preserves, tasty as a bread spread or served with cream cheese and crackers, by Brownwoods in Central Lake, American Spoon Foods' plum and cranberry ketchups or curry Salad Splash; and Carp River's varied chocolate sauces, Wild Horseradish or Backwoods Barbeque.

"A UNIQUE LOOK at a little known corner of America" reads the cover of Mrs. Chard's Almanac entitled "Hollyhocks and Radishes." The volume, one of Bahl's newest editions in a varied collection of cookbooks featuring Michigan cuisine, costs $14. It has quickly become a good seller.

Another popular perennial is "Best Recipes of Michigan Inns & Restaurants," featuring such delectables as Fettucine a la Maria from Ristorante di Maria in West Bloomfield and Mussel and Corn Chowder or Venison Steaks with Mushrooms from the famed Golden Mushroom in Southfield.

Of particular interest is Carole Eberly's "Our Michigan: Ethnic Tales & Recipes," printed in Lansing. Germans from Russia, seemingly a contradiction in terms, settled by the thousands in Saginaw where they founded Michigan's sugar beet industry at the turn of the century.

Eberly's book also contains adapted recipes from Michigan's first inhabitants. Corn Pone, Pumpkin Soup and Baked Acorn Squash perfected by Ottowa, Potawatomie and Seneca Indians.

Michigan's shape, a hardy hand complete with thumb, has been incorporated into cooking mitts — with detailed maps of settlements and byways — by John Kelly from Traverse City. Kelly also provides aprons with the same detail.

A cutting board of oak wood by Hickory Dickory Dock of Lansing and cookie cutters also incorporate the hand-and-thumb shape.

"WE CAN DO one for $10 or for $200," Bahl said of baskets or wooden crates specially prepared and packed with a variety of goods.

One deluxe breakfast basket is particularly eye-catching, containing Caron's pancake flour, American Spoon Foods' blueberries and Jasper's sugar based syrup. A mitt and cutting board complete the ensemble.

Prices of individually bottled condiments begin at around $4 each. Michigania is located at 205 Pierce. For more information, call 647-1444.

1 pound peas, shelled
Pinch sugar
Pepper
½ cup stock
Salt
1 cup dry white wine
1 pound vermicelli
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Put the butter, the fattest part of the ham and the chopped onion in a saucepan. Cook over low heat so that the onion does not brown. Add the peas, sugar, a little pepper and the stock. Raise the heat to high and boil the mixture, stirring constantly, to cook the peas quickly. When the peas are almost tender, add the salt, wine and the remaining lean ham. Reduce the wine over high heat, then remove the pan and keep the contents warm. Cook the vermicelli in plenty of boiling salted water. Cook until firm to the bite. Drain and turn out onto bright plates. Toss with the ham and peas mixture. Serve accompanied with Parmesan cheese.

Sojourner Truth, an old black woman, brought Battle Creek its first national attention by the simple act of choosing it for her home in 1856. Born of Negro slaves in 1797, she could neither read nor write. But she was a brilliant orator who relied on wit, banter and humor to promote anti-slavery, women's rights and temperance.

SWEET POTATO PUDDING MARSHMALLOW TOPPING
by Mother Waddles

3 sweet potatoes, medium
3 or 4 eggs
2 cups sugar, or more
1 can evaporated milk
1 tablespoon vanilla flavor
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ stick butter or margarine
½ cup flour
1 tablespoon baking powder

Wash and boil potatoes with skins on. When tender to fork, take off fire, run cold water over them until cool enough to handle, then peel. Put in mixing bowl and mash with a potato masher. Add all ingredients except milk, butter and marshmallows. When ingredients are mixed, add milk gradually and beat as you add. Melt butter in baking dish. Pour in pudding mixture. Cook in preheated oven at 375 degrees. Lay marshmallows on top when done and put back in oven to brown.

The early Bohemian wedding in Michigan was the Mardi Gras and an earthquake combined. The wedding celebration was a cooperative effort calling on the willing assistance of friends and relatives. It involved feasting, alcoholic beverages, musicians, and makrias, a sort of hybrid card game. It was big stuff.

Nutritionist emphasizes the well-balanced meal

family-tested winner dinner

Betsy Brethen

I love the television commercial where the bearded prophet appears out of nowhere with coffee cakes in his hands and utters those infamous words, "Let them eat cake."

My sons wish he would pay a visit to our house, too, and say, "Let them eat cookies, cake and candy." Believe me, that would really make their day.

With the current emphasis on eating more healthfully, it is not surprising that food manufacturers and grocery stores have jumped on the bandwagon. Today's shopper is faced with more choices than ever before and, quite frankly, having to select between products whose packages scream out claims such as "low in fat," "high in fiber," or "no cholesterol" can be downright confusing.

This week's Winner Dinner Winner, Gail Posner, works very hard at cutting through the confusing wording on package labels and teaches people how to make intelligent choices when grocery shopping. The mother of two young boys, Posner is a registered dietician who conducts group tours, pointing out healthy food choices to make in the supermarket.

IN ADDITION to leading the information-packed tours, Posner also has a private practice in Southfield where she counsels clients on nutrition and develops individualized eating plans for them that match their needs and lifestyle. Formerly the assistant director of dietetics at the University of Michigan hospitals, Posner truly knows the importance of eating a well-balanced meal. Her recipes for heart-healthy chicken and vegetable rice, Ramen noodle salad and chocolate-topped strawberries are nutritious as well as delicious.

Thank you, Gail Posner, for taking time out of your busy life to share your family's favorites with us. Continued good luck with your career and congratulations on being this week's Winner Dinner Winner.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

Recipes are printed the same size so that you may clip and save them in a three-ring binder.

HEART-HEALTHY CHICKEN AND VEGETABLE RICE

Low in fat and calories, this dish is loaded with flavor. Although quick and easy to assemble, it also can be made in advance and reheated before serving. This recipe makes 6 ample servings.

Recipes

1 package broiler-fryer chicken pieces (3-3½ pounds)
1 large onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, chopped, or ½ teaspoon minced garlic
3 cups water
1½ cups uncooked brown rice
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes, cut into quarters
2 teaspoons salt, optional
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon instant chicken bouillon
½ teaspoon black pepper
¼ teaspoon saffron or ground tumeric
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper (or up to 1 teaspoon for a spicy dish)
1 can (15 ounces) artichoke hearts, drained and cut in halves
1 package (16 ounces) frozen peas and carrots

Cook and stir onion and garlic in a frying pan sprayed with a vegetable cooking spray (Pam). Spray a large covered roaster with a vegetable cooking spray. Add water, rice, tomatoes, salt (optional), paprika, bouillon, black pepper, saffron, cayenne pepper and the sauteed onions and garlic and stir to mix. Wash chicken and remove skin and all visible fat. Place the chicken, meatiest side down, in the rice mixture. Cover pan and cook for 3-3½ hours in a 350-degree oven, or until the rice absorbs all the liquid and the chicken is cooked. If white rice is substituted, the cooking time will be shortened by an hour.

Prior to serving, cook peas and corrots; add drained artichoke hearts. Heat a few minutes to warm artichoke hearts. Remove chicken from the rice mixture. Mix peas and carrots and artichoke hearts into the rice. Place on a serving platter and top with the chicken.

RAMEN NOODLE SALAD

This tasty salad makes creative use of Ramen noodles and the little seasoning packet that comes with them.

1 head iceberg lettuce, or mixed salad greens, torn into bite-sized pieces
6 green onions, chopped
3 stalks celery, chopped
8 mushrooms, sliced
2 small tomatoes, quartered
1 can (11 ounces) mandarin oranges, drained and rinsed thoroughly
1 package (3 ounces) Oriental-flavored Ramen noodles, uncooked and crumbled

Dressing:

2 tablespoons canola oil
1 tablespoon sugar or equivalent artificial sweetener
4 tablespoons red wine vinegar
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon of seasoning mix from Ramen noodles

Toss lettuce, green onions, celery, mushrooms, tomatoes and oranges together. Mix dressing ingredients together. Prior to serving, crumble Ramen noodles over the tossed salad, add dressing and toss.

CHOCOLATE-TOPPED STRAWBERRIES

½ cup low-fat sour cream
½ cup low-fat vanilla yogurt
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
1 tablespoon unsweetened cocoa
1 quart fresh strawberries, washed, hulled and chilled

Combine first four ingredients in a small bowl, stir well, cover and chill thoroughly.

Divide strawberries among 4 individual dessert dishes, reserving 4 strawberries for garnish. Spoon ¼ of chilled chocolate mixture over individual servings of strawberries and garnish with reserved berry.

Notes

clarification

Larry Janes offers follow-up comments on the "Gordon girls" pirogi story (Taste, Monday, May 7.)

Some readers called to say that pirogi was misspelled and that it should read "pierogi." While we're not disagreeing with you (and especially those of you with Polish heritage), Webster's New World Dictionary clearly spells pirogi without an "e," but does offer the version with the "e" as an alternate.

Also, a few readers requested additional information on filling the pirogi. As per the Gordon family recipe, they enjoy pirogi filled with sauerkraut, potato or cheese. You can use 1 tablespoon of drained kraut, 1 tablespoon seasoned mashed or fried potatoes, or 1 tablespoon cottage cheese, ricotta or other cheese. You also can use a mixture of any two.

The pirogi then can be cooked in rapidly boiling, lightly salted water or broth for 4-6 minutes, or pan fried in lard, oil, margarine or butter over medium heat until lightly golden. Traditionally, pirogi is served with sour cream.

Five top amateur chef soup recipes were submitted by Virginia Karnafel of Redford (her recipe is for a One Pot Chowder), Gail Bliss of Ann Arbor, Barbara Palin of Gaylord, Mina De Kraker of Holland and Dorothy Wonacott of Elk Rapids.

The finalists will serve their soups to a panel of final judges Thursday at Kalamazoo's Black Swan Inn. One winner will be named in both the professional and amateur categories and each receives $500.

Close but no cigar

A group of 28 golfers from throughout western Wayne County who tried their luck at Tuesday's $1 million hole-in-one shootout sponsored by the Wayne County Parks. While no one walked off with the big prize, Tom Koenig of Dearborn earned a $500 gift certificate for placing his shot closest to the pin. Second place finisher Gary Dolenga of Novi received a $200 gift certificate. Third place finisher Wayne Lehtimaki of Garden City received a $100 gift certificate for finishing third. Other area finalists included Jeff Orzal of Westland Steve Postal of Canton Township, Paul King of Garden Gity, George Yonish of Westland, John Seiter of Livonia, Herb Bryson of Redford Township, Hugh Humpert of Livonia, David Carlson of Westland and Don May of Canton Township. Each received a $25 gift certificate. Certificates were provided by Las Vegas Discount Golf and Tennis, Canton. The hole-in-one event raised $5,300 for the Friends of Wayne County Parks, a private group committed to park restoration. Finalists were drawn from more than 500 golfers who participated in preliminary shoot-outs. Golfers shot from 151 yards on a specially-designated hole at Warren Valley golf Course, Dearborn Heights.

MADD honored

Wayne County Mothers Against Drunk Driving was among 16 volunteer groups receiving 1990 J.C. Penney Golden Rule Awards for metro Detroit.

Wayne County MADD received a $1,000 corporate grant as one of five top prize winners. Oakland County's Foster Grandparents program was among the other winners.

Wayne County MADD was honored for its Project Graduation, Project LifeRide and Red Ribbon campaigns to focus public awareness on drunken driving.

As a winner, Wayne County MADD is now eligible for a $5,000 national award from the retailer. The awards program recognizes excellence in voluntary public service projects.

ARTHROSCOPY OF THE SHOULDER

You may be aware of the technique for looking directly into the knee with a scope, called arthroscopy. This development permits orthopedists to see and even repair knee damage which, in the past, required an open operation.

Arthroscopy also is available for the shoulder.

A number of conditions involve the tendons, cartilage, and capsule surrounding the shoulder joint. In the past, diagnosis of tears and disruptions of these structures depended on x-ray techniques, which often failed to reveal the presence of these problems. Furthermore, following diagnosis, the patient faced the need for an extensive and long operation.

Shoulder arthroscopy permits the physician to see the structures of the joint clearly and in certain cases undertake immediate repair.

However, arthroscopy is expensive and complications such as bleeding and infection can follow from it. In addition, shoulder arthroscopy requires the patient to go under general anesthesia, which itself can be a hazard. Thus, arthroscopy is in order only after traditional methods of treatment and diagnosis have failed.

Still, the availability of this procedure provides hope for a return of function and a freedom from pain when previously no such expectations were possible.

How a neighborhood drugstore in Dearborn got to be 100 stores strong.

A lot of things have changed since our president Eugene Applebaum opened the first Arbor store at the corner of Michigan and Greenfield in Dearborn in 1963.

Back then, we were called Civic Drugs, and we were truly a "neighborhood" drugstore. Then as today, prescriptions were the focus of our operation, in addition to everyday needs including health and beauty aids, cosmetics, photofinishing and greeting cards.

As the chain grew, we became known as Arbor Drugs. Today, all 100 Arbor stores are known for excellent service and overall convenience in a clean and uncluttered setting.

With innovations like Arbortech™ Plus, Picture! Picture! and Picture!Plus!, we have become one of the most respected and fastest growing retailers in the nation.

As we open our 100th store, located in St. Clair Shores, Michigan, we continue to pay a great deal of attention to the same principles we did when we opened our first store.

- Listening to our customers and providing good service are as important to us as they are important to you.

ARBOR

"The drugstore with a difference!"

Homelike and close to home.

"The LDR room was just like a bedroom in a home or a hotel room – so comfortable and very private. The nurses were great, too. They went out of their way to make everything wonderful. And they let our baby stay with us after the birth. We were very happy with everything."

Northville residents Toulla and Jeff Palazeti and their daughter Maria.

Do you know where the most comprehensive single-room maternity care unit in Michigan is?

It's a lot closer than you think. Just ask your neighbors.

St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor is less than a 35-minute drive from Plymouth, Canton, Westland, Northville, Livonia and Novi. We also have obstetricians and gynecologists in your neighborhood at the McAuley Health Building in Canton and the Arbor Health Building in Plymouth.

Salem stumbles

Bad timing.

What else can you call it when your team goes against the division leader, just two days after an emotional, two-point triumph over a city rival, and a key team member is missing?

You could call it a loss. Which is how Plymouth Salem will have to refer to its dual meet with Livonia Stevenson Thursday — a 76-52 defeat that left Stevenson unbeaten (3-0) in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Lakes Division and gave Salem (2-1 in the Lakes) its first dual-meet loss of the season.

What bothered the Rocks the most — the schedule, the loss of Tracey Livermore to a suspected stomach muscle pull, or the little-bit-of-everything weather conditions?

"It could have been that," Salem coach Mark Gregor said when asked if Tuesday's meet with Plymouth Canton hurt Thursday's performance.

"I think it was a combination of that and one of our top girls (Livermore) being hurt. And our 800-meter relay was disqualified."

WHICH ADDED to Salem's woes. The Rocks won the race, but the hand-off between lead-off runner Kim Ploucha and Tonya Wheeler was ruled out of the zone.

If the other factors didn't ruin Salem's already thin hopes, the disqualification did.

"I sort of had high expectations," Gregor said. "Judging by the way we finished up, I thought we could have beaten them."

LIVERMORE'S ABSENCE was no minor loss, either.

She is Salem's top long jumper, scores in the 200-meters and is a part of the 800 relay team. With her missing, Stevenson's Emily Mageski was able to win the long jump (15-feet, 3½-inches).

"We would have made up points right there (with Livermore)," Gregor said. "It's a shame it had to happen at this point of the season, too."

The extent of Livermore's injury was uncertain. If she is out long, it will lessen the Rocks' hopes for a WLAA title.

"It does diminish our chances," Gregor said. "But hopefully she'll be back and be healthy."

SALEM DID get some fine performances in weather that included rain, snow, hail and extremely high winds.

The best belonged to Jennifer Harris, the Rocks' only double-winner in individual events.

One of those wins came in the 100 hurdles in 15.4, breaking the school record of 15.5, set by Cindy McSurely in 1981.

Harris also captured the high jump with a leap of 4-10 — the Rocks' only win in four field events.

SALEM'S OTHER winners were Yolanda Jackson in the 100 (12.54); Andrea Kinnelly in the 200 (29.04); Tammy Hickey in the 3,200 (12:14.4); and Ploucha, Wheeler, Kinnelly and Jackson in the 400 relay (55.7).

Stevenson's top performer was Tracey Clark, who had a hand in four first-place finishes.

Clark collected top honors in the 800 (2:39.11) and 1,600 (5:41.43). She then teamed with Jennifer Pfander, Gail Grewe and A.J. Koritnik in the 3,200 relay (10:32.78) and with Debbie Walsh, Julie Martin and Nicole Todd in the 1,600 relay (4:27.5).

The win kept Stevenson's dual record perfect at 5-0. Salem slipped to 3-1.

CANTON 106, CHURCHILL 22: The crazy weather that invaded the area Thursday couldn't keep Plymouth Canton from crushing Livonia Churchill Thursday at Churchill.

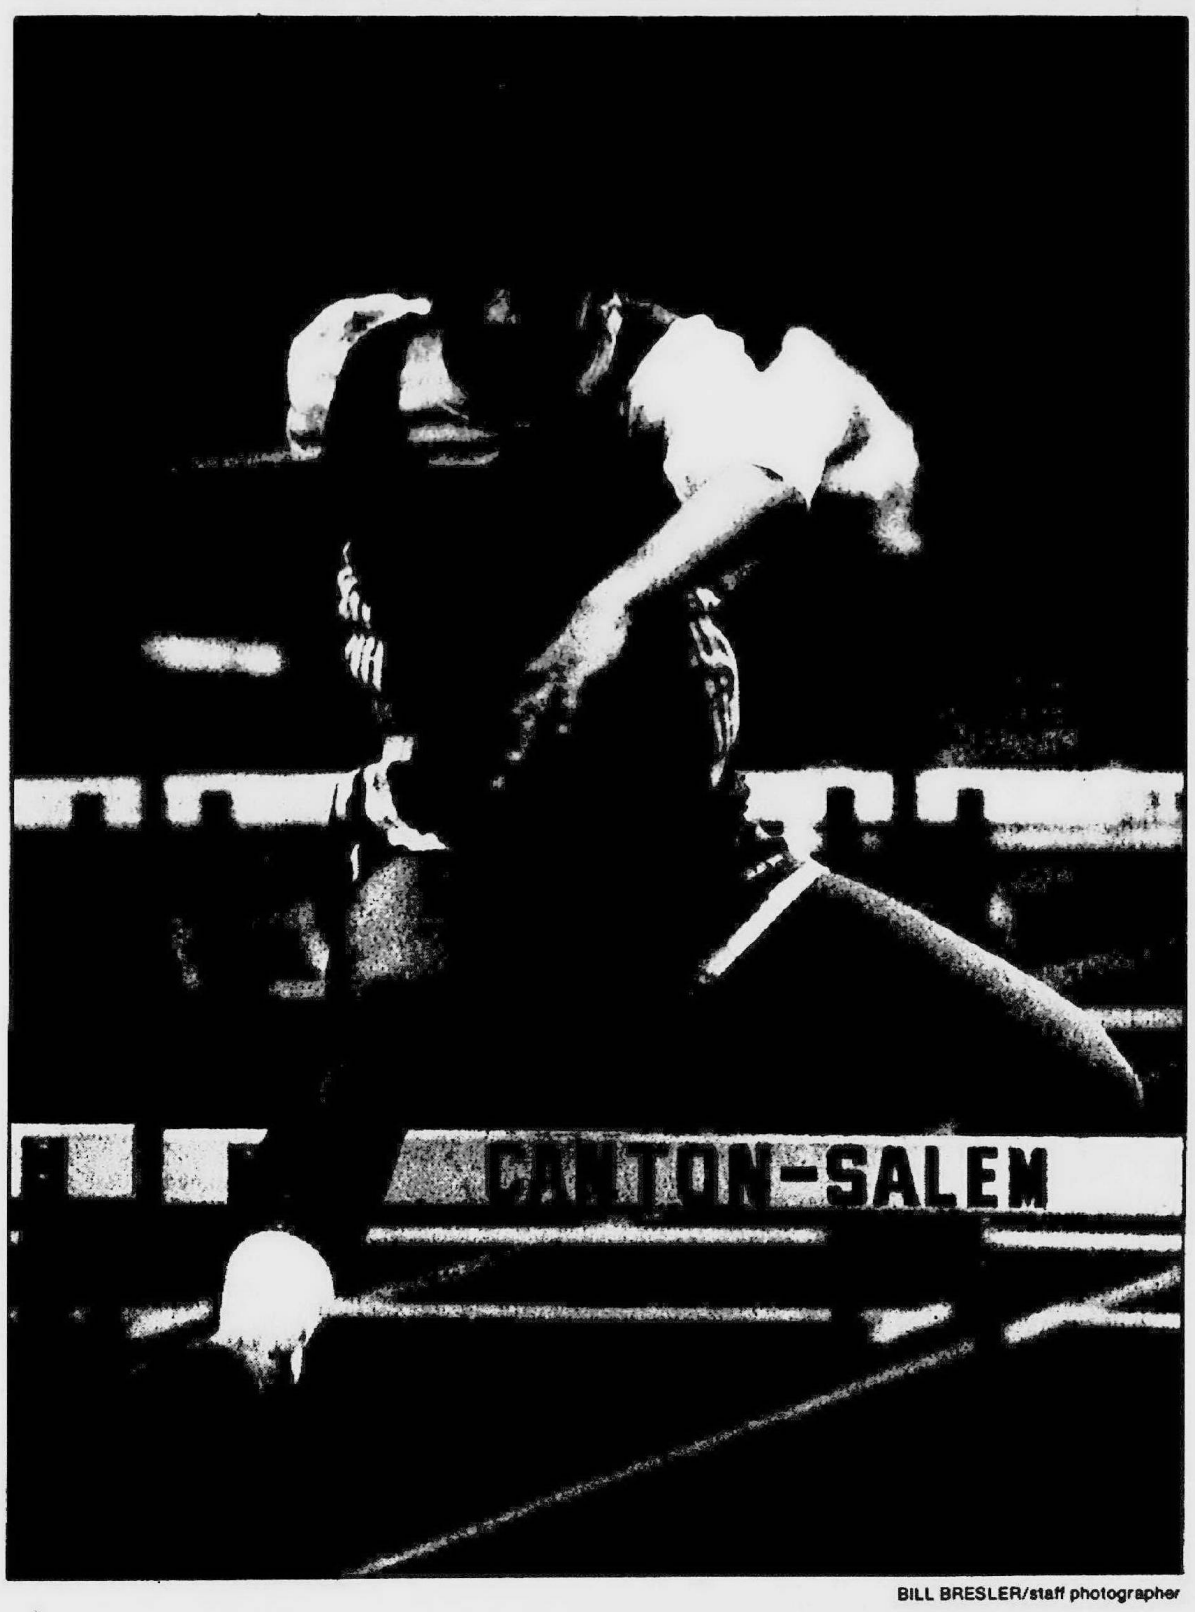

The Chiefs won 15 of 16 events, with 10 girls combining to win 11 individual events.

Their only double-winner was Ifoema Okwumabua in the discus (89-feet, 10½-inches) and shotput (30-4). Okwumabua also teamed with Jessica Souter, Karina Kilpelainen and Charlene McFaul to take the 400-meter relay (56.1).

Canton's other winners were Stephanie Gray in the high jump (4-10); Kilpelainen in the 100 hurdles (17.1); Angela Fountain in the 300 hurdles (54.0); Alicia King in the 100 (14.0); Kristy Brugar in the 200 (29.6); Kim Gudeth in the 400 (1:03.7); Adrian Garrow in the 800 (2:46.0); Missy Jasnowski in the 1,600 (6:01.0); and Amy Smith in the 3,200 (12:55.7).

The Chiefs also swept the relays. Brugar, Angie Sarrault, Michelle Dean and King combined in the 800 (1:58.1); Jessica Frank, Jennifer Sobolak, Elissa Labelle and Angie Sarrault teamed in the 1,600 (4:54.9); and Jasnowski, Lori Penland, Erica Carson and Christie Saffron took first in the 3,200 (11:24.8).

The win improved Canton's overall record to 3-1. The Chiefs are undefeated in three Western Division meets.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Jenny Harris was one of Salem's bright spots Thursday. Harris broke the school record in the 100-meter hurdles, winning the event in 15.4.

Depth keys Canton

boys track

Livonia Churchill got more firsts, but Plymouth Canton's boys track team got the dual-meet win, 72-65 Thursday at Canton.

Josh Walaskay's victories in the sprints — he won the 100-meter dash in 11.7 and the 200-meter race in 23.5 — were instrumental in the Chiefs' victory.

So were his contributions in Canton's three relay wins. Craig Piwko, Karl Wukie, James Holmes and Walaskay teammed in the 400 (47.5); Piwko, Paul Chudyk, Jeff PX4069

Rotten weather kept Plymouth Canton's softball team from getting in a complete game Thursday, but the Chiefs did play enough innings to record a 7-2 victory at Northville.

The five-inning win went to Stacey Thompson, who surrendered one earned run on three hits and four walks, striking out four. The game ended early because of poor weather, which included rain, snow, hail and high winds.

Jenny Sekovich led the Chiefs' attack X4073

Chiefs stay perfect

softball

Rotten weather kept Plymouth Canton's softball team from getting in a complete game Thursday, but the Chiefs did play enough innings to record a 7-2 victory at Northville.

The five-inning win went to Stacey Thompson, who surrendered one earned run on three hits and four walks, striking out four. The game ended early because of poor weather, which included rain, snow, hail and high winds.

Jenny Sekovich led the Chiefs' attack with two hits, two runs batted in and two runs scored. Jennifer Vanootighem added two hits and Renee Dory had a hit and scored twice.

A four-run third inning gave Canton a 5-0 lead, which proved to be more than enough for Thompson. The Chiefs improved to 15-1 overall, and they remained unbeaten in eight Western Lakes Activities Association Western Division games. Northville slipped to 4-4 overall.

Rocks outhit Vikes

baseball

Plymouth Salem scored five runs in the seventh inning Thursday to cushion its lead and defeat visiting Walled Lake Central 14-8.

Salem improves its record to 10-7 overall and 6-2 in the Lakes Division.

Jeff Belisle earned the victory for Salem, pitching four innings. Eric Nielson hurled 2⅓ innings of relief before leaving the game with a broken nose and Dave Makowiec finished, getting the final two outs.

The Rocks were explosive with the bats, belting four home runs, two of which came from Scott Rodgers. Makowiec and Nielson had one a piece.

"Our pitching wasn't good," Salem coach John Gravlin said. "But we played great defense and had good hitting."

Salem gathered 14 hits. Scott Niemiec had three hits and four RBIs to lead the attack. Tom Noonan also chipped in with a two-run single.

Scott Hess started on the mound for the Vikings and suffered the loss.

Rob Zelinski paced Central offensively with three singles.

Salem wins a rout

It figured to be a typically hard-fought, closely-played soccer match between two top-notch Western Lakes Activities Association teams Friday when Livonia Stevenson traveled to Plymouth Salem.

It wasn't.

As Stevenson coach Mary Kay Boots summarized, "They beat us all over the field." And on the scoreboard as well. The Rocks wrecked Stevenson 5-1.

The win left Salem at 7-1-3 and in the fight for first place in the WLAA's Lakes Division, with once-beaten Farmington. If Stevenson had managed a win, three teams would have still been in the race.

No such luck for the Spartans, who are now 6-4-1. Salem led 2-0 at the half and surrendered only a penalty-shot goal to Regan Coyne.

The Rocks got two scores from Erin Harvey and single goals from Sara Hayes, Michele Minton and Erin Bagozzi.

Strong recruiting class fortifies SC

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Describe Schoolcraft College's volleyball program any way you like — the best get better, winning attracts winners, or even the easiest way to get to the top is to start there — but there's no doubting nothing helps recruiting like success.

Tom Teeters has had a lot of success in his tenure as coach at SC. From the looks of his newest recruiting class, it will continue.

Teeters has signed a half-dozen high school seniors, including a pair of all-state players, to bolster a team that finished fifth in the National Junior College Athletic Association last year.

But despite their impressive credentials, Teeters remains cautious. "I'm real pleased with it," he did admit. And which of his newcomers has the best chance to step in and contribute immediately, particularly since three starters (Alicia Love, JoAnn Kolnitys, Kirsten Stelzer) and one key reserve (Cathy Coak) are gone?

"We don't make those decisions too early," Teeters replied. "I don't think any of our positions are fixed."

STILL, IT could be difficult keeping some of his recruits off the floor. They include:

- Kari Domanski, a 5-foot-9 do-everything from Livonia Ladywood and a first-team Class A all-stater;
- Lisa Domke, a 5-7 outside hitter-middle blocker and a Class C all-stater from Rogers City;
- Renea Bonser, a 5-10½ setter-middle blocker from Livonia Stevenson;
- Kari Van Deusen, a 6-0 outside hitter from Waterford Mott;
- Stephanie Jandasek, a 5-8 setter-outside hitter from Brighton and daughter of former SC coach Joe Jandasek;
- Kim Laginess, a 5-7 setter-outside hitter-defensive specialist from Monroe St. Mary's.

There are certain obvious attributes with all of Teeters' recruits. Versatility is foremost, and the leader in that regard is Domanski.

"She's very versatile," acknowledged Teeters. "And her upper body strength shows through in her blocking, her arm swing and her setting.

"I'm very much looking forward to coaching her for another two years and watch her progress. If she progresses half as much as she did at Ladywood (where Teeters also coaches), she'll be a great asset to the team."

DOMKE COMES from a top Class C program in Rogers City, and, according to Teeters, "She was their best player for the last two years. She's a very strong athlete and a very strong defensive player. She's gutsy and she has a good jump. She's an Alicia Love-type player because of her speed and defense."

Bonser also has solid credentials, with Stevenson's winning tradition.

Kari Domanski
Ladywood star

Renea Bonser
Stevenson standout

"Renea's done really well for (Stevenson coach) Lee Cagle. She comes into our program with great skills.

"I'm looking at Renea as a middle blocker. She's got a good arm swing and good passing skills. Her strength will be in hitting and blocking. And I think we'll be working on a spin serve with her. With her height and strength, she's got good potential there."

With Love gone, getting someone with a good spin serve is a key for Teeters. "We're going to miss that," he said. "I hope we can develop bits and pieces of her in other players."

VAN DEUSEN BRINGS size to SC's program, a rare commodity. "She has heighth, the capability for spin serves, blocking ability — and she's got a pretty good pass," said Teeters. "She needs work on her speed. I think we can develop her through skills and weight training."

Jandasek is certainly familiar with Teeters. "I've known her since she was 4 years old," he said. An all-league performer with a long background in the sport — her father, a teacher at Livonia Franklin, still helps coach at Brighton HS — Jandasek has extensive experience and knowledge of the game.

"I hope we can improve her strength," said Teeters. "We want to improve her outside hitting and groom her for that."

Jandasek suffered a knee injury a year ago, but recovered in time for her senior season at Brighton.

Laginess, too, may need work before she can step into the lineup. "I think her strength will be in her passing and defense," said Teeters. "We're working on her jump."

What Laginess doesn't need help with, however, is motivation. According to Teeters, all six of his recruits possess "a good work ethic."

With outside hitters Angellette Love and Elena Oparka and setter Jenny Sproul returning, all the necessary components are present to make SC — 43-9 last season — a winner again.

VOLLEYBALL NOTES: The Kentwood Volleyball Club captured a Michigan AAU tournament for 18-and-under teams by defeating SOVA 12-15, 15-11, 15-10 in the final April 28.

SOVA, consisting mainly of Schoolcraft players, reached the final of the eight-team tournament by beating the Crusaders of Livonia 16-14, 15-12 in the semis. Kentwood, made up of the Class A champ East Kentwood team, advanced with a semifinal win over Alm, from Lansing.

SOVA, coached by Teeters, was led by Sproul, Domanski, Bonser and Angellette Love.

The 14-and-under SOVA squad was even more successful than its older counterpart, collecting the title in an 11-team tournament at Madonna College April 28.

For the 14-and-under SOVAs, four high school freshmen were outstanding: Elizabeth Gunn, Julie Brogran and Valerie Adzima, all from Ladywood, and Debbie Schrader, from Taylor Truman. Also, Amanda Ault, a 13-year-old at Livonia's Our Lady of Sorrows, was a valuable contributor.

Mercy's Gaza finds she's just swimming in success

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Garden City's Michele Gaza will go to great lengths to become a better synchronized swimmer.

She and her mother, Marlene, make three to four trips per week to East Lansing so Michele can train with the coach, Sandy DiMaya-Pawelak of the Sea Sprites Club.

The trips, though, are well worth the miles as Michele returned recently with a first and second place medal from the U.S. Synchronized Swim, Inc. North Zone (Section B) championships, held April 28-29 in Indianapolis, Ind.

The 15-year-old Gaza, a sophomore at Mercy High School, took first in the Solo event (13-14 age division) and second with partner Madeleine Smith of East Lansing in Duet, qualifying her for Nationals, June 22-24 in St. Louis, Mo.

"Michele's a very dedicated and hard-working person," said DiMaya-Pawelak, a 1982 graduate from East High and former University of Michigan swimmer. "She's very coachable although sometimes she gets frustrated, but she loves it. Her mother wouldn't drive her in three or four times a week if she didn't like it. She does a lot of her homework in the car."

WHEN THE GAZAS, which also include father Mike, aren't driving to-and-from Lansing, they're heading off to the Livonia Y or Ann Arbor Pioneer High so Michele can do additional training.

"I'm at a pool every night," Michele said.

"She's (Michele) never said 'I don't want to practice,'" said Marlene.

The sacrifice was made after Michele's home club, the Garden City Synchronettes, disbanded.

"I got started because my sister (Beth) did it and so did a lot of people on my street," said Michele, who began seven years ago. "When the club closed, I just couldn't sit around. I had to go somewhere else."

Many of Gaza classmates and friends at Mercy can't understand why she spends so much time traveling to meets and missing school activities to practice daily.

"I've tried to explain to them it's not a vacation," said Michele. "A lot of times I have to miss things happening on Friday nights. I just tell them I've got to practice, but they can't see why."

Gaza's long-range goals are to swim in college and have an opportunity to try out for the U.S. National Team. (In July, Gaza will swim in the Junior Nationals in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.)

"IT'S BEEN fun, but it's hard, too," said Michele. "It's not a wimpy sport."

Most competitive routines last four minutes.

Sometimes Gaza is underwater for 50 seconds. The sport combines ballet, gymnastics and swimming.

"The solo event is the hardest to swim," said DiMaya-Pawelak. "It's a difficult event, but Michele is developing nicely.

"Synchronized swimming depends on muscle development and coordination. Strength is important. You do weight training and running. Where the coach comes in is the technical part. You can practice on your own, but only a coach can see where the body should be positioned."

There are few breaks during a three-day zone competition.

"A lot of it is mental, it's not like racing at all," said Michele. "You have to do a lot of thinking and a lot of it is repetition. It's also very tiring. But I enjoy the travel and meeting people from other teams."

Gaza stays in shape 12 months a year. She trained last fall with the Mercy High School swim team.

THE COST to keep a synchronized swimmer going is not cheap.

Marlene Gaza has never sat down and figured it out, but some of the expenses go toward costumes ("We're like figure skaters, we have decorative suits with glitter," says Michele), coaching, pool fees and our course, gas.

Hunting opponents gaining in clout, support

Bill Parker

ANTI-HUNTERS are a bigger topic among the hunting fraternity than the upcoming fall hunting seasons. The media has been saturated in recent months with anti-hunting views ranging from feature stories in U.S. News and World Report to television productions on ABC's Nightline.

But not much has been written or televised in defense of the hunter, most likely because our biggest backer, the National Rifle Association, is preoccupied with gun control issues.

The anti's are a well organized group which will not rest until its ideological and often misguided views are forced down the throats of all Americans. The anti's will not rest until our hunting rights have been abolished.

The anti's are gaining national attention partially because they are affiliated with high-profile organizations and spokespersons such as the Humane Society and Bob Barker. Many times, however, the anti's are not telling the truth while the hunters end up paying the consequences.

In the past, we hunters have not had any high-profile spokespersons, but fortunately, times are changing.

ROCK-N-ROLL STAR Ted Nugent rose to local hunter hero status with his involvement in the proposed Milford hunting ban (which was defeated). Nugent's fire for the support of hunting remains alive and well. He's "locked, cocked and ready to rock" in behalf of all hunters and hunting priviledges.

Last year, Nugent, an avid bow hunter, began the World Bowhunters organization, headquartered in Grand Haven, Michigan. The goal of World Bowhunters is to spread the truths about hunting to uninformed individuals and to provide a focal point in which outdoorpersons from across the nation can join forces to fight the anti-hunting sentiment head on.

Nugent calls on all hunters to spread the truths about hunting and game management and to fight back with letters and calls in an organized effort when the anti's begin spreading untruths and exaggerations.

What started out as a newsletter to inform members of World Bowhunters about issues and club happenings has evolved into a monthly magazine for rocker, hunter and now publisher/outdoor writer, Nugent.

FROM THE FIRST issue of the magazine, which was published in December of 1989, to the most recent April issue, World Bowhunters has provided hunters with informative and entertaining reading.

Information featured in the first four issues of the magazine includes: updates on legal issues surrounding hunting, hunting and safety tips, advice on making hunting videos (by the lovely Mrs. Shemane Nugent), stories on hunting trips, and reviews on hunting equipment. There is also a scrapbook page in each issue which features photos of successful hunts by members of the club, an editorial by the publisher himself, a column called "Pet Peeves" which explains basic hunting rules and sportsmanship standards to beginner hunters, and last, but certainly not least, the "Gomer Award" in which Ted personally rips "the most bizarre example of the anti-hunting zealots plots to permeate the left-slanted press and media of this country". And let me assure you, the Motor City Madman writes some "gonzo" replies.

WORLD BOWHUNTERS magazine is an informative, entertaining magazine which should appeal to most hunters; firearms or archery. Occasionally, Nugent's hard-hitting attacks on anti-hunters appear over zealous, but he's only fighting fire with fire. The bottom line is his love and support for the sport of hunting.

Ocelots reach regional golf

One single stroke has transformed Schoolcraft College's golf team, from program builders to respectable challengers.

And at the conclusion of today's National Junior College Athletic Association Region 12 tournament at Bedford Valley Golf Club in Battle Creek, Ocelot coach Carolyn Steffen wouldn't be at all surprised if her team took another step up the ladder — to contender.

In their initial season last year, the Ocelots "had one individual make it as far as the regionals," noted Steffen. "This year, the whole team made it. I'd say that's progress."

And she'd be right, although advancing to the regional tournament was accomplished by the slimmest of margins. The top six teams at the 13-team Michigan Community College Athletic Association Tournament at Gull Lake View Golf Course in Augusta Tuesday and Wednesday qualified for the regional.

SC FINISHED sixth — by one stroke.

Lansing CC captured the state title, shooting 950 in the 54-hole tourney. Grand Rapids CC was second with 961, followed by Kalamazoo Valley CC (969), St. Clair County CC (978), Oakland CC (981) and SC (986). Muskegon CC was next at 987, with Glen Oaks CC close behind at 989.

Other team scores were Macomb CC, 1013; Alpena CC, 1049; and Delta CC, 1083. Mott CC and Henry Ford CC had golfers in the tournament, but neither had enough for a team score.

Andy Kurncz topped the Ocelots and was the tournament leader after the first round, firing a 75. He followed that with rounds of 85 and 79 to finish at 239, earning him all-state honors (awarded to those scoring under 240).

Kevin Zaschak narrowly missed the all-state squad, scoring 242 to place second among the Ocelots. Chris McMahon was next for SC at 245, followed by Dewey Steffen (265) and Jeff Vos (275).

The state results left Carolyn Steffen optimistic regarding the regional. "I'm just proud of the entire team," she said. "I certainly believe in miracles, major or minor."

Farmington blanks Fordson

Friday's eruption helped ease Wednesday's frustration for Farmington's soccer team.

The Falcons pounded Dearborn Fordson 7-0 Friday at Farmington, with six players accounting for the seven goals. Farmington completely dominated the action, allowing Fordson just two shots on goal while bombarding the Tractors' net with 34.

Sue Gibson got two goals to lead the Falcon attack. Margaret Martin, Sue Clinard, Tonya Slicker, Jody Perris and Julie Dugan each found the net once for Farmington, which improved to 8-1-1 overall.

Unfortunately, none of them could put the ball into Northville's net Wednesday, forcing the Falcons to settle for a scoreless tie against the second-ranked team in the state.

Farmington, playing at home, again dominated play, outshooting the Mustangs 15-1. Mandy Cannon was in the goal for both Falcon shutouts.

FRANKLIN 3, NORTH 1: Cheryl Waller notched her fifth goal in two games, but it wasn't enough to save North Farmington Friday at Livonia Franklin.

Kelly Kershaw assisted on Waller's score. Leanne Adle was in goal for the Raiders, who slipped to 4-6-1 with the defeat.

Waller victimized Farmington Harrison Wednesday at North, drilling the Hawks for four goals in the Raiders' 6-0 triumph.

A 16-2 shot advantage kept North in control. The Raiders dominance also allowed Adle to come out of the net, where Julie Stone replaced her. Adle played the final 15 minutes of the match at forward — and scored a goal.

Lisa Handziak also netted a goal for North.

ALL THE GREAT names in women's bowling — Aleta Sill, Robin Romeo, Lisa Wagner, Jeanne Maiden, Cheryl Daniels, Leanne Barrette, Betty Morris, Donna Adamek, Dede Davidson, Cindy Coburn, Lorrie Nichols, Carol Norman, Judy Soutar, Leila Wagner and many more will be in this area for the Seagrams Coolers $120,000 U.S. Open next week at Satellite Bowl in Dearborn Heights.

In all, 240 bowlers will be competing for honors and prize money, with the champion pocketing $24,000, the largest on the pro tour.

There will be 96 of the best ameteur bowlers in the field, along with some familiar names from the Observer & Eccentric coverage area including: Mary Mohacsi and Dawn DiVitis from Livonia, Tina Barber of Westland and Marilyn Lueck of Canton Township.

Most of the professionals will be present for the Pro-Am event Thursday and Friday, May 24-25. Any league bowler, male or female, can compete for prize money in this event. Bowlers will be teamed in a no-tap format. The event is a lot of fun to enter. It's enjoyable to get a chance to bowl with the best women bowlers in the world. If you are so inclined, just come down to Satellite Bowl and get in on the action.

QUALIFYING ROUNDS will be held at 9 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday. After 24 games, the top 60 players will advance to the eight-game semifinal round on Tuesday morning.

The top 24 bowlers will then go on to eight-game match play at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, followed by 10 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The top five players, after 56 games, will then compete for the $24,000 first prize on ESPN (live national television) in the stepladder finals Thursday evening.

Tickets are available for all phases of the competition, with a special package offered to those died-in-the-wool bowling fans who would like to watch the entire event.

The U.S. Open has been considered the top event in women's bowling and is the richest in terms of prize money.

The defending champion is Robin Romeo of Van Nuys, Calif. She will be hard pressed to repeat, due to challenges from local ladies like Aleta Sill, Cheryl Daniels and Dede Davidson, who have all been top winners on the pro tour.

This could even be the year of the ameteur, as a very strong contingent will be giving it their best shot.

For more information and further details, call Mark or Diane Voight at 278-7400.

• Next week's bowling column will feature "Everything you wanted to know about bowling shoes."

• Trivia fact: Approximately 70 million American's bowl annually, with about 9 million being involved in a regular league. The average bowler is 33 years of age. The Midwest is a hotbed of bowling, with Michigan boasting more bowlers than any other state. More than two-thirds of all U.S. bowling leagues are now coed. Bowling has more registered, due-paying participants, than any other sport in the world, bar none!

• The Greater Detroit Bowling Association will be holding its annual meeting at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, May 20, at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park.

Every league should have a represenative present. The meeting will include the election of officers and approval of the 1990-91 budget.

There will be refreshments and door prizes.

The authorized league represenative should automatically be the league president or secretary.

Meritorious service awards will be presented to this writer, for providing a service to the bowling community with this column and to Vince Meli, who has promoted bowling for over 50 years in the Metropolitan Detroit area.

The meeting will also include a fun tournament for all delegates and officials in attendance.

• If you are a league secretary, make sure that you have completed final averages for the yearbook and returned them to the association. There are a lot of leagues not yet accounted for.

• At 9:30 p.m. each Tuesday, there is a "King of the Hill" competition held at Bel Aire Lanes in Farmington. Any league bowler can enter. The entry fee is $10 and the prize money depends on the number of entries. Last Tuesday, Steve Kay beat Steve Hermna 180-165 for the top prize of $100. This is a handicapped event.

Imagine you're a parent, checking on your baby in the middle of the night. You wait for the sound of breathing. A cry. A coo. Anything.

When SIDS (Sudden Infant Death Syndrome) takes a victim, there is only silence.

It's commonly known as "Crib Death." The death of a seemingly healthy baby for no apparent reason.

SIDS is the number one cause of death in infants from one week to one year old . . . causing more deaths than cystic fibrosis, childhood cancer and heart disease combined. Over 7,000 babies each year.

This killer strikes quickly, quietly, with no warning. A SIDS baby dies within seconds, usually while he's sleeping. He suffers no pain. He doesn't cry out.

One of the most disturbing facts about SIDS is that there's no way to predict it. No way to prevent it. Not yet.

But there is hope. With your help we can find the cause and the cure.

Donations of your time and of your dollars will make a difference. You can help save a life. Then we can all hear the sweet sounds of a baby's cry.

Shaping up

Tired of hearing about his spare tire, his resemblence to the Pillsbury Dough Boy and similar comments about his physique, Bill Parker is fighting back. Well, not necessarily fighting. He's huffing, puffing and sweating — profusely at times — to get in shape. And Street Scene will be keeping a close eye on the progress. See Page 6D.

Finding exotic dinners

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Does sauteed alligator or braised wild boar get those glands salivating?

No, huh? You'll take the hamburger, fries and a Coke?

Diners really aren't as bland as burgers, but even the area's top chefs scoff at exotic foods just for the sake of being exotic.

"We had alligator and rattlesnake on the menu before, but we don't go too far into exotic," said Milos Cihelka who presides over the kitchen of the Golden Mushroom in Southfield.

"For one reason, the (meat) is already cut up — you don't know what you're getting. It could be donkey or horse," he said. "For another, I like to serve food I like to eat myself, not just to be spectacular or exotic."

At the Golden Mushroom, exotic translates into white Italian truffles (at $400 a pound) and Beluga caviar at the same price.

"We do a tremendous amount of game each night for dinner and two or three times a week for lunch — buffalo, venison, pheasant and wild boar."

The game is most likely to be roasted for dinner and served in stews or pot roasts at noon. Cihelka claims that rattlesnake tastes like chicken and alligator "like turtle. It needs to be braised to make it tender."

MOST FOLKS probably haven't tasted 25-year-old balsamic vinegar from Italy, but it's one of the specialties for sale at Zingerman's Deli in Ann Arbor. There's also Michigan strawberry preserves from the Leelanau Peninsula (early glow variety grown for flavor only), dried wild blueberries, air dried Swiss beef and raclette from Switzerland.

"Raclette is a cheese from Switzerland that's melted and put on boiled potatoes, to be eaten with pickled onions and cornichons, which are little pickles," said Ari Weinzweig, who owns the deli at 422 Detroit St. at Kingsley.

Zingerman's has 100 varieties of cheeses, including some from Ireland, England and handmade goat cheese from upstate New York. The varieties of sausages include Spanish chorizo (the kind used in paella) and Mullard — not Mallard — duck pate.

"It's a French delicacy, the best you've ever tasted," Weinzweig said. "It's handmade by a woman whose father is a chef in southwestern France, where this is a real delicacy. Another related product she makes and we carry is rillettes — cooked, shredded duck blended with duck fat and spices."

Zingerman's also carries a wide variety of old-fashioned beans and chipitoes, smoked, dried jalepeno peppers from New Mexico.

At MacKinnon's in Northville, smoked leg of wild boar is offered, with an emphatic recommendation by chef Tom MacKinnon.

"It tastes like wild pork, but the smoking takes away some of the wild taste," MacKinnon said.

OPAH, A 200-pound fish from Hawaii, is being sliced into steaks which are then charbroiled.

A cup of 'coffee' the high tech way

By Todd Schneider
staff writer

No longer, it seems, are people satisfied with just a decent cup of java.

We're in the '90s after all. If we're going to toss down something as unhealthy as a caffeine-laden cup of coffee it had darn well better be pretty special. Right?

So we drink espresso. Or cappuccino. Or at the very least coffee made from freshly ground gourmet beans.

And we process this gourmet selection in high-tech coffee mak-

"Rosalie Goes Shopping" (D, PG, 95 minutes) is supposed to be a satire on conspicuous consumption in America but despite the size and scope of the target, this broadside misses the mark. That's a shame since 5 percent of the world's population (U.S.) consumes 30 percent of the resources. Something should be done before we eat ourselves into oblivion.

Overblown, insane films with heavy-handed satire are not the answer.

"Rosalie Goes Shopping" also suffers from a strange, sometimes surreal structure as well as sophomoric camera work and a weak plot that meanders around before crash landing of its own dead weight.

Rosalie (Marianne Saegebrecht) is a German peace bride married to an American soldier (Brad Davis) who had served in Germany. They now live in Stuttgart, Ark., with their seven children. There's a cheap play on her longing for the good old days in Germany, a thread throughout the fabric of this film.

Supposedly, this points out the superiority of European values. But it doesn't. Europe's right behind us with environmental and consumption problems.

Hubby pilots a crop dusting plane and Rosalie goes shopping for gourmet foods (and lots of other stuff) so number two son, Schnukki, can practice being a chef. There's another boy, the oldest, a soldier in the American Army, twin daughters, a younger daughter and an older daughter, Barbara.

ROSALIE'S family videotapes everything and eats superb haute cuisine prepared by Schnukki. Watching them is much like surreptitiously watching weird neighbors perform bizarre acts in the middle of the night. Hardly amusing satire, particularly Dad who is the biggest grinning idiot to hit the screen in a long time. Extremely excessive behavior is embarrassing and not at all humorous.

Although Dad makes a good wage flying his crop duster, it's not enough for this family's living standard. But credit is the American way, so Rosalie scams on 43 credit cards when she isn't kiting checks. A major flaw right here: If Rosalie was as good at this as the film pretends — and if the point is that credit in America is a flawed system waiting to be abused — then why is she continually hounded by creditors? Why do town merchants demand cash?

The answer is that no one thought out the plot or concept very carefully as in the instance when Rosalie adds a "1" and raises a check from $1,400 to $11,400 and nothing more is said about that event.

She needed the 11 grand to buy Barbara a computer for her birthday. Barbara was justifiably angered when Rosalie sold Barbara's car to cover some other debt. That was Rosalie's style, pay big interest so no one will complain that she stole the principle.

FOR REASONS which escape me, Rosalie regularly confesses her sins to the local priest (Judge Reinhold). Near the end, just when every reasonable expectation is that "Rosalie Goes Shopping" will collapse of boredom and foolishness, Rosalie gets hooked on Barbara's computer and quickly becomes a world-class hacker and fraudulently sets up multi-national corporation, among other equally incredible capers.

Her rationalization to the priest — "The big coporations do it all the time." — is as convincing and makes as much sense as aerial point-of-view camera work for land-based sequence. Rosalie should have gone shopping for a screenwriter and a director with common sense.

"Chattahoochee" (C+, R, 95 minutes) snuck into town a week earlier than first listed for an exclusive run at the Towne Theater.

The film was inspired by a true story — a Korean War veteran runs amok and is committed to the Florida state psychiatric hospital after which the film is named. The hospital is a real snake pit with terrible conditions and brutal guards.

The problem with "Chattahoochee" is that such a film needs to tread delicately amidst such grievious suffering. Unfortunately, it is about as heavy-handed as they come. There's far too much cheap melodrama, particularly in shot composition.

FOR EXAMPLE, after one assault by the guards, the hero is borne away in a crucified position with all the pomp, ceremony and brutality one associates with Christ's march to Calvary. In this instance, while not sacrilegous, it certainly is presumptuous.

As well, the wife's sexual needs play far too prominent a role and one is never quite sure whether that or his Korean combat experience drove him over the edge. All told, it's a shame such an important topic is handled poorly.

"Class of 1999" (*, R) is another futuristic disaster film with public schools as battlefields. While the producers contend that this is the coming trend, one suspects "Class of 1999" is more exploitation than exploration of problems facing urban school districts in America.

STILL PLAYING:

"Camille Claude" (R).
Oscar nominated (best actress and foreign film) story of Auguste Rodin's mistress, a sculptress in her own right.

"Cinema Paradiso" (A , 120 minutes)
Excellent story of Alfredo (Phillippe Noiret), the projectionist in a small Sicilian town just after World War II.

"Crack House" (*, R).
Woman living in dangerous, inner-city environment struggles to survive.

"Crazy People" (C-, R, 90 minutes)
Ad exec (Dudley Moore) proves that mental patients are nicer than sane people but weak and underdeveloped structure undercuts that humorous thought.

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

'Cook' leaves a bad taste

By John Monaghan
special writer

Each night, the entourage arrives at the swanky, red velvet-drapes restaurant. Albert, an ill-mannered gangster who sells "protection" to local eateries, talks non-stop, food flying from his mouth, physically and verbally abusing everyone in sight.

After almost two hours of the British-made "The Cook, the Thief, His Wife and Her Lover," the audience feels beaten, too.

Though artistically rendered with a palette of colorfully lit theatrical sets and glorious wide screen, Peter Greenway's morbid study of sex, violence and fine cuisine leaves a very nasty taste in your mouth.

The movie could be called "The Kitchen, the Dining Room, the Bathroom and the Parking Lot" because the action takes place almost solely in these settings. Greenway makes up for space limitations by bathing his striking sets in green, yellow, red, blue and purple lights.

A stark white bathroom with pink accents gives off a hypnotic, almost three-dimensional effect. A warehouse-sized kitchen is the most amazing piece of work, with tables heaped high with fresh fish and walls strung with large copper kettles.

IT'S HERE that Albert's battered wife takes a lover. She first eyes him across the restaurant, reading a book. After interrupted intercourse in a bathroom stall, she whisks him away into a back room, where they make love atop recently plucked goose feathers.

The cook offers his assistance. He likes the woman and quietly seeks revenge on Albert, who regularly insults his customers. In one of the film's cleverest stabs, patrons only react to the abuse around them when Albert dumps a bowl of hot soup on their heads. Nothing short disturbs their meal.

Food is the guiding force in "The Cook, the Thief . . ." Controlling the restaurants beats power over banks, according to Albert, who feels a bonding with other great leaders (like Napolean and Hitler) because he shares their voracious love for seafood.

Peter Greenway, a prolific independent filmmaker known for his maddeningly symbolic work, is a regular at festivals and art houses. His first film to get wide exposure is bold and expertly handled, but also pretentious and calculated to elicit extreme disgust from just about everyone.

"The Cook,the Thief . . ." is currently enjoying an extended run at the Maple Theatre in Birmingham.

Drive-In to Michigan:

A sticky night at the drive in is nearly a thing of the past. That's why Frank Uhle, a projectionist at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor, has taken the fun indoors by scheduling his fourth edition of Frank's Drive In Movie Night.

The features include Roger Corman's "It Conquered the World" (1956), with Peter Graves and Lee Van Cleef battling mind-controlling Venusians. It's followed by "The Cool and the Crazy" (1958), where marijuana-smoking turns teenagers into psychotics.

In between features, Frank unreels amazing artifacts from his growing collection of films. There's snacktime promos with dancing hot dogs and unnaturally colored pizza and pop. Preview trailers advertise movies like "The Bloody Brood" (1961) and "Rock, Baby, Rock it" (1957).

The only thing missing from this nostalgic night at the drive in is the mosquitoes.

VIDEO VIEWING

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

It's interesting how quickly entertainment media reflect political, economic or cultural changes in the world. With the end of decades of Cold War conflict, the change is dramatic, the implications wide-ranging and spy movies are suddenly very different.

HBO consistently produces and releases pretty decent films for its cable channel, motion pictures and comedy and concert performances that quickly arrive on the video racks for home viewing.

Two HBO video releases on May 9 deal with Cold War terrorism and spies who are losing their rationale for snooping. Both films are 1989 color productions with well-known casts. Neither is all that great but both have their moments and are worth checking out for entertainment and for their interesting sociopolitical ideas that go beyond the shooting and chasing.

The first, "Red King, White Knight" (106 minutes) is not rated but probably deserves an R. It looks at the great changes sweeping Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union since Gorbachev instituted glasnost.

What does glasnost mean to hardline Communist officials, in particular KGB types, who have thrived on Cold War activities and the budgets associated with hi-tech lurking in the dark? Well, comrades, there's political unemployment as well as technological and economic ramifications.

TO AVOID the poorhouse, a KGB officer, Tulayev (Tom Bell), organizes a plot to assassinate Gorbachev. Clancy (Gavan O'Herlihy), an IRA terrorist, is to be the hit man. Naturally, the CIA gets wind of these doings and sends in a special agent, Stoner (Tom Skerritt).

Here things get cornball and confused as it turns out that Stoner is a retired, former hot-shot maverick agent with a chip on his shoulder and the burden of his wife's death on his soul.

Since all these matters are highly sensitive, Stoner is sent "unofficially" into the unnamed Eastern European country (Hungary) where Tulayev is plotting. If caught, Stoner will be disavowed, disowned and neither rescued nor ransomed. Not to worry, he gets around pretty easily and calls Washington from a pay phone.

Hungary just happens to be the station where Stoner's wife was murdered and where Stoner had an affair with Anna (Helen Mirren). In the background of these unbelievable coincidences is a retired KGB type, Szaz (Max von Sydow).

Some of the acting isn't too bad — von Sydow is appropriately dismayed at the proceedings. Skerritt, however, tends to posture and mug too much. Bell is quite hard, as he should be.

THE REALLY interesting facet of "Red King, White Knight" is the American CIA Committee discussion whether or not the President should be informed and advised to call and warn Gorby. As it turns out, peace is bad for a lot of people's business.

The other side of the ocean gets into glasnost as well in "The Cold Front" (R, 94 minutes), starring Martin Sheen as John Hyde, a Drug Enforcement Agent doing some secret stuff in Vancouver. He and his Royal Canadian Mounted Police Detective partner, Derek McKenzie (Michael Ontkean), get involved with the CIA and the KGB, both of whom are trying to eliminate a rogue terrorist/assassin, Mantha (Kim Coates). Sound familiar?

Right — and so does the well worn plot device of an ex-wife and the husband's guilt and longing. In this case, Hyde's wife, Amanda (Beverly D'Angelo), conveniently sings in a local supper club where Mantha hangs out. The sax player has some pretty neat solos.

It gets pretty murky insofar as figuring out who is doing what to whom but it is clear that too many CIA and KGB types find peace and the crumbling of the Berlin Wall bad for budgets.

THE FILM concludes with the usual — and in this case fairly well done — chase sequence. Amanda runs through dark, lonely streets; Mantha chases her. Hyde chases Mantha. Hyde corners Mantha high up on bridge girders. They fight — and so on.

Both films are fairly entertaining but of greatest interest are their very clear messages. Entertainment media have a lot to say about what's going on in the world.

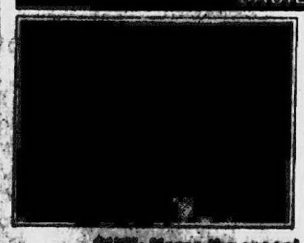

The world, in particular spies and businesses that deal in confrontation, may not be able to afford peace and good will to all men, women and children. Now, that's depressing.

STREET BEATS

The Laughing Hicks — John Novak, Rob Felenchak, Ted Smith and Dave McGlinnen — play some of the most complex rhythmic music patterns around.

Breaking rules

Hicks go for audience participation

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

At a concert given by a usual local band, the rules are pretty much set — the band performs and the audience passively listens, or maybe dances, if they are extra riled up.

These rules of concert behavior simply don't hold true at a Laughing Hicks concert because, well, the Laughing Hicks are a bit different from other bands.

John Novak, the Hicks' lead singer and strange man extraordinare, puts it this way, "I'm pretty much a fruit on stage, a noodle."

We're not going to argue with that assessment because it pretty well sums up the situation. Novak is into making a concert a participatory event. Instead of remaining on the stage, like most other lead singers, Novak spends half his performance time roaming around in the audience.

He seems to enjoy strolling up to unsuspecting members of the audience and singing right into their faces to get a reaction. More often than not, the audience members are delighted to be singled out and yell things back to Novak and wave at their friends.

On the other hand, some audience members at a recent concert at Cross Street Station seemed a bit hesitant to walk near the stage for fear of suddenly being made into part of the show. Since the path to the restroom at Cross Street leads patrons in front of the stage, we'd venture a guess that a lot of people were ignoring nature's call that evening so that they wouldn't have to step into the limelight.

"WE'RE TRYING to outrage and amuse everyone at the same time," said fellow Hick Rob Felenchak.

They are doing just that. Consider Novak's dancing. It, too, is quite unusual. At first glance, he appears to be dancing wildly in random patterns and, in the process, looking not unlike a schizophrenic ostrich.

Upon closer inspection, his dancing begins to make sense. His weird, seemingly haphazard gyrations and staccato, angular movements are exactly in time to the music.

Pretty amazing, considering that the other Hicks — Ted Smith, Dave McGlinnen and Felenchak — play some of the most complex rhythmic patterns around.

"(My dancing) was labeled as 'geometric,' " Novak said. "I've listened to a lot of jazz rhythms that aren't based in 4/4 time and it's hard for me to dance to regular rhythms."

The Hick's difficult rhythmic arrangements are reminiscent of King Crimson's experimentations. Their skillful playing of unusual time settings is something a casual listener might not notice, but, the other musicians hold in awe.

One local musician, upon hearing the Hicks, remarked, "These guys are great musicians — those songs are really impossible to play."

> 'I've listened to a lot of jazz rhythms that aren't based in 4/4 time and it's hard for me to dance to regular rhythms.'
> — John Novak

NOVAK SINGS/TALKS through the songs Frank Zappa-style. This is not necessarily due to lack of vocal talent — it is because the Hicks consider their songs to be poems. If Novak says the words instead of singing them, audiences are more apt to understand the lyrics.

"People say they like it because they can understand what the words are," said Smith.

The lyrics combined with Novak's movements help to get the Hick's often politically charged messages across to the audience.

"I try to act out songs to a certain degree, I think of them in a way that can be told with the body in mind," said Novak.

That said, all of this meaningful movement doesn't add up to a rigidly choreographed show. At a Laughing Hicks concert there is a feeling of being on the edge, that anything could happen. That's probably because anything can, and in fact often does, happen.

"If I start to go off on a tangent, I will start improvising . . . making up poems in my head," said Novak.

This doesn't bother the rest of the band because they seem to have an almost unearthly creative link to each other. This band harmony serves them well whether they are improvising in front of an audience or working out arrangements for new songs.

"JOHN SAYS things like "I want this to sound like ice,' " said Felenchak, referring to the band's song writing process. What is amazing is that the rest of the band understands such nebulous descriptions as this and will, in fact, play something that does sound like ice.

This adds up to material that is almost dauntingly creative. Audiences who are used to the easy-to-swallow, hey-dudes-let's-party genre of music will find themselves initially taken aback by the Hick's extremely challenging music.

Challenging music, yes, but ultimately satisfying. These guys are truly a ground-breaking quartet.

REVIEWS

DAYS OF OPEN HAND
— Suzanne Vega

There weren't a lot of record companies beating down a path to Suzanne Vega's door six years ago. They probably concluded that her brand of folk-oriented rock had little, if any, potential for sales. However, those bottom-liners have been proven wrong.

Her debut album, "Suzanne Vega," quietly sold about 200,000 copies with little or no promotion. "Solitude Standing" followed in 1987 by going gold and launching probably the most unlikely Top-10 single in recent memory, "Luka" — a song about child abuse.

Vega's third album, "Days of Open Hand," shows a small — but not significant — move toward a more radio-friendly sound.

Despite bringing in the considerable talents of Hugh Padgham (The Police, Phil Collins), who mixed the album, "Hand" shows that Vega is in control of her musical direction, and she has no intention of selling out.

Working with collaborator Anton Sanko (who co-produced as well as co-wrote more than half the tracks), Vega the poet continues to fill her songs with rich imagery and provocative themes. This is most evident on the tracks "Room Off the Street," "Big Space" and "Fifty-Fifty Chance."

"Chance" is the gem of the album, featuring a string arrangement by Philip Glass that perfectly compliments the story of a woman's ordeal at a hospital bedside.

"Tired of Sleeping" and "Men in a War" open the album with the most pleasant music we've ever heard from Vega, which almost detracts from the stark images brought forth in the lyrics.

"Book of Dreams" sounds like a single from the opening chord and is downright anemic compared to the other 10 tracks.

Overall, "Days of Open Hand" is another strong effort from the Buddhist who cut her musical teeth in Greenwich Village.

STAY SICK!
— The Cramps

Well, as the title hints, The Cramps are indeed staying sick with their latest release. Cramp fans should be pretty delighted as this is the band's first record in three years. We won't try to venture a guess as to how they spent their artistic hiatus.

Our friends guitarist Poison Ivy, vocalist Lux Interior, drummer Nick Knox and bassist Candy Del Mar prove themselves once again to be, as the press release says, "leaders in skull-fracturing rock-and-roll disease."

Well, we certainly can't argue with that claim to fame. Let's scan some of the song titles — hmmmmm, let's see, there's "All Women Are Bad" and um, "Bikini Girls With Machine Guns" and of course, "The Creature from the Black Leather Lagoon." Yup, sounds like "rock-and-roll disease" all right.

Since this is a family newspaper, there aren't too many Cramps tunes that we can go into very deeply but there are a few songs we can discuss. They do a very Crampe-like cover of the ever-popular ditty, "Shortnin' Bread." (Come on, you remember that song — "Mama's little baby loves shortnin', shortnin', etc . . . ") By "Cramps-like," we mean psychotic vocals backed up with distorted 1950s style music. The Cramps sound like "Beach Blanket Bingo" gone awry.

Let's check out the chorus to "The Creature from the Black Leather Lagoon." Mr. Interior sings, "Black Black/Black Black League/Smash Smash/Black Black Leather/Kill Kill/Black Black Leather/Crash Crash/Black Black Leather/I'm the creature from the Black Leather Lagoon."

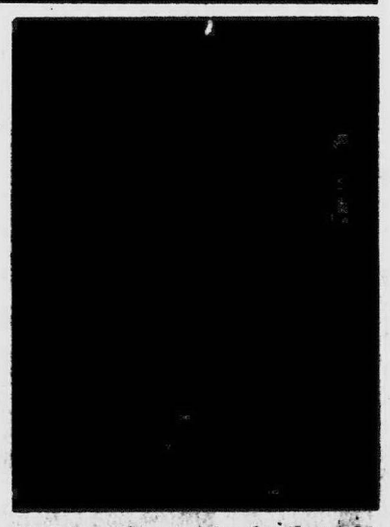

Another point of interest on this album is their version of "Old Time Rock'N Roll." The only thing is, The Cramps changed the words in the song just a bit. Their version is about, of course, "G-- D— Rock 'N Roll."

The songs range from ditties about decpatition to tales of invading from outer space to, again, things better not discussed in polite company. The album pretty much covers everything that is offensive — sadism and misogyny are two of their favorites.

Yes, yes, we know The Cramps are just sharing one big joke with us, but, the trouble is that, after 10 years, the joke isn't funny any more. Actually, it was never funny in the first place.

VIOLATOR
— Depeche Mode

Depeche Mode once again grabs the hearts and feet of the dance crowd and hit the top of the college charts as a result.

For a band that was dismissed after the departure of its only songwriter, Vince Clarke of Yaz and Erasure fame, Depeche Mode has certainly turned things around into the faces of its critics.

Martin Gore stepped up to the forefront to accept that responsibility. "Violator," the band's latest release on Sire, once again features all songs written by the aforementioned Mr. Gore.

Leading off with "World in My Eyes," it dispells any fears about on hearing the term "electro-dance." Depeche Mode treats the format with liberal doses of mature intelligence.

As a matter of fact, what is a curiousity is that the band's main audience is teenage girls, an audience known for its fickleness and general attraction to non-cerebral bands. Gore's lyrics are subtle in their examination of relationships and the world around him.

From the expressions of love/bravado in "World in My Eyes" — "Let me take you on a trip, around the world and back, and you won't have to move, you just sit still, now let your mind do the walking and let my body do the talking" — to the fear and paranoia of "Waiting for the Night" — "I'm waiting for the night to fall, I know that it will save us all, When everything's dark, keeps us from the stark reality" — to the pseudo sexism of "Blue Dress" — "Put it on, and don't say a word, put it on, the one that I prefer . . . say you believe just how easy, it is to please me, because when you learn, you'll know what makes the world turn" — and the confessions and revelations of "Clean" — "Now that I'm clean, you know what I mean, I've broken my fall, put an end to it all, I've changed my routine, now that I'm clean."

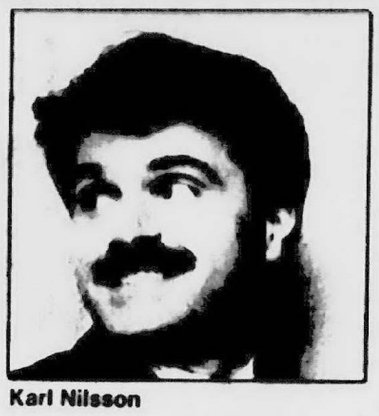

As purveyors of electro pop with intelligence, Depeche Mode leads the field.

"Violator" is a consolidation of that.

FEAR & LOAFING

Sleeping sickness

Karl Nilsson

Did you have trouble waking up this morning?

Did you hurl your Proton alarm clock against your marbleized wall?

Did you kick the dog?

Did you tuck a grapefruit rind under your arm and shove your briefcase down the disposal?

Don't worry, you're not losing your mind. You're just tired. Dead tired. And you're not alone.

According to James Maas of Cornell University, this whole bleary-eyed country is so tired that "many of us are literally walking zombies."

Why is America yawning? We work too much, play too hard and stay up too late. The Latin term for this workaholic behavior pattern is Labor Omnia Vincit which means "Labor conquers everything except premature death from a heart attack."

FOR YEARS, the suburbs were called "bedroom communities." People worked in the city and slept in the suburbs. Nowadays, nobody sleeps anywhere. Our bedrooms have been converted to home offices, home gyms and walk-in closets.

With apologies to Mr. Sandman, sleeping just doesn't fit our lifestyle anymore. It's not entertaining. In computer lingo, it's down time.

In the old days, before credit card debt, humans spent about one-third of their lives sleeping. Now, by converting those eight wasted hours to working, a go-getter can double his income.

Unfortunately, lack of sleep produces side effects like headaches, irritability and mass murder. If you're going to work 'til dusk and party 'til dawn, you'll need to make some major adjustments.

Plan A is to "Grab Sleep Whenever Possible." President Kennedy was able to take brief naps in the Oval Office and wake up refreshed. Likewise, you can catch sleep in your off moments — like riding the elevator (20 seconds), waiting for the elevator (20 minutes) and getting stuck in the elevator (20 hours).

Plan B is to "Get a job where you're paid big bucks to sleep." To earn more while you snore, try to land a gig like:

(1) SPINNING RECORDS at a classical music station. Put on Wagner's "Ring of the Nibelung" and sling a hammock between the speakers for some serious shut-eye. If the audience sleeps through opera, why can't the DJ?

(2) Working as an extra on a "Rambo" movie. For $200 a day, you can play a dead body in a war flick. You punch in, get punched out and slump over a boulder. For the next six hours, you're paid not to move!

Honorable mentions for "best jobs to perform while sleeping" include skipper of the Exxon Valdez, Speaker of the House and manager of the Detroit Tigers.

Remember the movie where Jimmy Stewart played Charles Lindbergh on his solo flight to Paris? For 33 lonely hours, he fought drowsiness, but finally doozed off. Just seconds before crashing into the Atlantic, a stow-away house fly woke him up!

That buzzing insect saved his life. Today, an electronic version of that pest can save your job.

Now in stores, the new "Work Alert 5000" lets you sleep at your desk without fear of detection. Worn like a hearing aid, the tiny unit contains a motion detector and heat sensor. If someone enters your Confidence Zone, a mild shock jolts you awake. A more sophisticated model lets you snooze in the presence of coworkers, but wakes you only if Management Breath is detected.

TO COMPLETE the illusion, I recommend a pair of little plastic cups that snap on over your eyelids. When the boss peeks into your cubicle, he sees a painted image of your eyeballs staring purposefully ahead in unblinking concentration.

Such technology is wonderful, but remember, nothing can replace a good night's sleep. Technology causes gastrointestinal disorders, infertility and, worst of all, late night TV shows like Arsenio Hall's.

Year after year, we overachievers are building up a cumulative sleep loss. Sooner or later, all this sleep deprivation is going to catch up with us.

One morning in the not too distant future, an entire generation will oversleep — by about six years.

Smoking: It's no laughing matter

Dear Ms. Schiff:

Re: Smoker vs. Non-smoker

As I can see by your photo you are not a fat person, so I can see where you might enjoy Ed C.'s letter regarding smoking. So "many of the things you say are true that I had to laugh."

Did you laugh at the part about those who are overweight? I myself am a fat person as my friends tell me. My condition is medical as I'm sure are thousands who are predisposed to obesity.

Or did you laugh at the part he describes as "genetic makeup portends high chance of having a handicapped child?" My sister-in-law has such a child who is now 23 and goes to work every business day and supports herself.

Or did you laugh about people who live in flood areas? My basement fills with water after a hard rain, but I don't think it's funny. It doesn't stop the city from raising my taxes, but does nothing in the last 12 years to help me with my problem.

And when was the last time Ed C. drove 55 miles per hour? A long time, I'd venture.

And what is this country all about? Free choice? So that makes it right for Mr. Ed to blow his smoke in our face. Government studies prove second-hand smoke is more dangerous than the person smoking.

You and Mr. Ed C. sure find some funny things to laugh at, but to me they are very serious problems that millions of people suffer with everyday!!

Well, I'm not laughing!!! If you wish I enclose my phone number or you can appologize through your column.

Up until now I found your column to be enjoyable.

C.T.

Barbara Schiff

Dear C.T.,

First, I want to thank you for reading my column. I hope you will continue. Second, I want to apologize for any hurt you may have experienced as a result of reading it. Third, please continue reading so that my position can be clarified in your mind.

I laughed when I read Ed C.'s letter, not at any person, but at the idiocy of life. As I understood Ed C., he was saying that our society discriminates against smokers because of their "cost to society." He doesn't say that smokers are not a burden, but that many other groups, e.g. people who live in high-prone earthquake areas, people who live by flooding lakes and overweight people, are also a burden. He says if society can allow them to indulge their fancy, why not indulge smokers, too.

That was an odd perspective to which I chuckled. Mental health workers know that laughing at ourselves helps us adjust to the quirks and dilemmas that life holds. It is a sign of mental health.

Ed C.'s reference to overweight people was taken to mean people who are overweight because they are indulging themselves, not those who have no control over the situation. As strange as it must seem to those of us who do not smoke, some smokers must feel as misunderstood as you do, and the same lack of self-control.

It is unfortunate for any person to feel the victim of an unwanted condition. But the question of the relationship between psyche and soma "how does an organic condition affect psychology" and vice versa is complicated. We know that concentrations of hormones and nuerotransmitters are inherited. They can determine temperament, but we also know that in Japan it is believed that each person can control his anger. There is also a low rate of violence in Tokyo. Are Japanese imposing control or were they born with the genetic makeup for this attitude.

I could not be a psychotherapist without feeling sympathy and empathy for people. But I have witnessed that when this response is accompanied by a push for growth, change can be produced. I am aware that therapists are prejudiced on one side of the psychological component of problems. This is true not only because it is the field in which we work, but because we do see results from psychological therapy that can't be explained by a change in genetics.

I would never want to hurt a person with a genetic problem, through the paper or in my office. However, until an honest attempt at change is made, it is impossible to know the extent to which (even genetic) predispositions can be modified. I have seen people fight predispositions to become altered from the original.

I hope that you have read through and allowed me the indulgence of this explanation. I hope, too, that you have accepted my sincere apology.

Tempting the taste buds with ever so exotic foods

MacKinnon's pet gripe on trendy foods is arugula, a salad green he dismisses as "a bitter weed."

It tastes like endive," he said. "Who wants to eat an endive salad?"

For MacKinnon, a product has to go beyond trendiness and taste good to be accepted. Wild turkey tenderloins would qualify.

"It's the piece right on top of the bird's ribs," he said. "It's juicy and tender, but very different — it doesn't taste like turkey."

A new twist on pastas is four color striped noodles. MacKinnon's offers a ravioli with one spinach side and one tomato side of pasta. Another exotic offering is sauces laced with cherry pepper — the peppercorns come from Michigan's cherry capitol, Traverse City.

"It adds sweetness with a hint of sour," MacKinnon said.

His new place, the Macomb Inn in Utica, offers a chicken ballantine, chicken breast stuffed with chicken and cherry raisins and wrapped in a puff pastry. The inn, a renovated 130-year-old house, is on M-59 and Van Dyke near the Palace of Auburn Hills. MacKinnon commutes the 32 miles between his two establishments daily.

Keith Famie, proprietor of Les Auters in Royal Oak, doesn't prepare much in the way of exotic foods.

"I detest alligator," Famie said. "Lion tastes more like cat. I think some things are better looked at than eaten."

FAMIE DOES prepare a good amount of game "grouse, pheasant, buffalo — grilled and sauteed, depending on the cut of meat."

Michigan has always been big on game, particularly during the harvest and hunting seasons, Famie said.

New on the fruit scene and Les Auters menu is 4-inch-baby pineapples grown in California. Famie fills them with a pineapple mousse and offers them for dessert.

An exotic — make that eccentric — twist at Les Auters is the so called Crayon Club. Diners are encouraged to draw, doodle or sketch while they wait for dinner. An entire wall is devoted to the results.

"We had one artist from New York in here who drew the entire scene of the Berlin Wall coming down with the east meeting the west," Famie said. "You have to come in and see it."

During the age of hi-tech mania, vintage accessories create a feeling of warmth and a connection to calmer, less stressful times. Here, a miniature crystal perfume bottle makes an interesting necklace. Pinned to the shoulder is a miniature antique enamel picture frame that can be worn either as a broach or used as a free-standing frame. Decanter necklaces in clear crystal or black, $39; antique frame, $44. Ceci Orman Jewelry, West Bloomfield. Phone 855-5560.

Comics do double duty for Joey

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Many comics that Joey Bielaska brings to town have been known to do double duty.

They appear at Joey's Comedy Club in Livonia or at Joey's Comedy Club and Sports Emporium in Allen Park. They also appear on Joey's "Spotlight on Comedy," a cable TV show.

"We have fun with it," said Bielaska, a Plymouth resident who serves as the show's host. "We have a real good time with it. No one gets paid for this. We all chalk it up to experience."

The show's been broadcast on Omnicom for just over a year. Producer Pete Smith recalled meeting Bielaska at the Omnicom studio during the annual "Baskets of Love" telethon for the Salvation Army.

"I asked him for a card and said I would really like to do a show," said Smith. "I think it's worked out really well."

Bielaska, 32, appears on the show with Chip Karnaby, the Ed McMahon-type sidekick, and with musician Jeff Antalose.

MANY COMICS who appear at the clubs appreciate the chance to do the half-hour TV show as well.

"Every time they hear about it, they want to get on it. It's just really good exposure for a comic," Bielaska said.

Joey's Comedy Club in Livonia opened in February 1988 and the Allen Park club opened in the fall of 1989. Bielaska and his brother, Ed, were the original owners. They took on a couple of partners when the Allen Park club opened.

Headliners from the two comedy clubs appear on "Spotlight on Comedy," as do local comedians who are performing at the clubs. Shows often include an interview with another guest; a man who'd developed educational games appeared on one show.

"We brought him on to promote that," Bielaska said.

Rehearsal for the show is minimal. Comics generally have a set routine, and Bielaska asks them about that in advance so he knows what to expect.

"It falls together for some reason and it does really well. What I like about it is we're real relaxed."

Bielaska writes some material for the show and Chip Karnaby does some writing. Bielaska and the others get together in advance to talk about their ideas for the show.

"I think it's quite a privilege to be able to do this right here," said Bielaska, a 1976 Plymouth Salem High School graduate.

HE AND THE others enjoy working with Omnicom staffers and with student interns from the Specs Howard School of Broadcast Arts.

The show is taped Saturday afternoons before an audience at the Omnicom studio in Canton Township. Performers have to concentrate on playing to the camera.

Their material has to be clean, and that can take some getting used to for comics accustomed to appearing at clubs in front of adult audiences. Bielaska recalled one taping where a local Boy Scout troop was in the audience.

"Then we really had to clean it up."

Smith, the producer, has also found it challenging to keep the show clean.

"I don't like to bleep and if I do have to I will."

Most times, taping is done at Omnicom, although Smith would like to do more live remotes, along the lines of David Letterman's show. During last year's Plymouth Fall Festival, Bielaska went from booth to booth to sample the food, and that was used on "Spotlight on Comedy."

"We really do have a lot of fun," Smith said. "So far, it's been going very well. It's fun, it's simple and it keeps people interested."

Mike Anthony, 1989 Mr. Michigan, gives Bill Parker individual instruction as part of his shape-up program at the One-on-One Athletic Club in West Bloomfield.

When all else fails . . . exercise!

By Bill Parker
staff writer

"What's that, an inner tube around your waist?"

"Get that refrigerator off your back and you could run a little faster."

"Oh, gaining a little weight, hey Billy? Ha, ha!"

"You look like the Pillsbury Dough Boy."

I've heard it all and I think I've had just about enough.

I admit I've filled out a little more in some spots than others, but I feel I'm a product of my environment.

See, when I graduated from high school some 13 years ago I sported the trim, firm physique of a typical jock. I was in good physical condition back when I enjoyed a daily dose of athletic competition. But 13 years of relative inactivity has taken its toll on this now soft, unconditioned body.

It started when I became a part-time bartender trying to make ends meet back in 1980. Working in such an environment has its pitfalls — such as being able to indulge in the beverage of your choice (Budweiser was my choice) on a daily basis.

A few years later, after furthering my education, I landed a job that keeps me nice and comfortable. I write sports. I sit and watch others sweat, then go back to the office, sit down and write about how hard those athletes worked.

I'll be the first to admit that pushing a pencil for pay has worked wonders for the development of a plump posterior.

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH. I've said it for several years, but I've decided to do something about. This time I will.

Since this is National Physical Fitness month, I've decided the best time is the present. I'm going on a weight-loss program.

Forget the grapefruit diet, diet pills and diet milkshakes. I'm going for the real thing — permanent loss. And I'm going to lose weight the old fashioned way — by working it off. Sweating it off. That's right, I'm going into training.

Through the coordination of the Package Deal Inc., I've been set up on a 90-day training program at the One-on-One Athletic Club in West Bloomfield.

The concept of training at One-on-One is that members receive personal instruction throughout their training program. I've been fortunate to land one of the best as my personal instructor/trainer, Mike Anthony, the 1989 Mr. Michigan.

And I'm going to lose weight the old fashioned way — by working it off. Sweating it off. That's right, I'm going into training.

My objective isn't to bulk up and contend with Anthony for the Mr. Michigan title (that's an unrealistic goal; Anthony is huge), but rather to trim down my weight and firm up the muscles I know I have lurking somewhere beneath the inches of camouflage (fat).

According to Anthony, you don't have to spend your entire life working out in a gym to develop and maintain a trim, firm physique.

"If you devote one little hour a day it will make all the difference in the world," Anthony said.

I'LL BE training one hour a day, four times a week for the next three months to see if Mr. Michigan can pass his toughest challenge yet — turning this soft, round body of mine into a lean, mean, muscle machine.

The program I'll follow will include warm-up on the Lifecycle, then an hour of intense workout on Nautilus machines and free weights. I'll also be watching what I eat.

"Think natural," said Anthony when asked about what foods I should eat. "Try to go easy on the dairy products and sweets and watch the red meat. Just use good judgement. You know what's good for you; things like fruit, vegetables, chicken, fish, turkey."

I'll be checking in with my colleagues at Steet Scene on a periodic basis and reporting the details of my anguish . . . er, I mean my program, so stay tuned and watch the pounds melt away.

But please, don't send any cinnamon rolls.

Bill Parker's 90-day program starts with a warm-up on the life cycle, then an hour of intense workout on Nautilus equipment and free weights.

Coffee makers like these available at Sharper Image at Twelve Oaks not only brew coffee, but grind the beans and make espresso and cappuccino.

'90s coffee makers do more than perc

ers that do everything from ground the beans to brew the coffee in a ready-to-carry thermos.

That 4-cup hotpot without a switch (to turn it off, you yanked the plug) or even a "dial-a-brew" control may have been good enough to get you through college. But now that you're established you're ready to move on.

The choices are myriad and the prices are, well . . . who's going to throw $40-per-pound Jamaican Blue Mountain blend into a $15 coffee pot, anyway?

A the Sharper Image store in Twelve Oaks mall, Novi, you can drop $169 for a combination coffee/cappuccino/espresso maker from Braun. The sleek Euro-style machine designed by Braun's Thomas Haslacher comes in black or white and will brew eight cups said James Bobco, assistant manager.

The capuccino portion of the machine includes a steamer valve to warm milk, Bobco said.

AT HUDSON'S Oakland Mall store in Troy, it's straight coffee most of the customers are after, said Joe Mariani, who works in the Marketplace department.

"The cappuccino seems to be for special occasions, or for people who drink an awful lot of coffee and want something different," Mariani said.

The store's "bread and butter" coffee maker these days is a Krupps 12-cup model with timer, he said. For $99.95 you get to stay in bed a few extra minutes each morning while the machine brews the stuff by itself (provided, of course, that you put the grounds and water in the night before).

Krupps Thermal Aroma model is the maker preferred by James Wertheimer, who owns the Coffee Beanery Ltd. franchise at Westland Center.

But Wertheimer said the machine — which was introduced last year and brews coffee directly into a transportable insulated carafe — hasn't been a big hit with customers. He's currently discounting it 15 percent from its $89.95 introductory price.

"What happens (with a non-insulated carafe) is that the coffee sits on the burner and begins to burn," he said. "But I guess people really like to see the coffee being brewed and you can't do that with this one."

THE STORE also stocks a Mill-and-brew machine by Melita that grinds the beans and then brews them. That one goes for $174.99.

Even the venerable and formerly low-tech Mr. Coffee has gone upscale.

The newest Mr. Coffee model, introduced in March, includes a microchip and a high-powered heating element that will brew 10 cups up to 35 percent faster than previous models.

The expert, as its called, allows the user to constantly control the coffee temperature and features a pause and serve valve so you can pour a cup before the brewing cycle is complete.

The $79.99 (suggested retail price) machine also uses an environmentally friendly filter made from chlorine-free paper. The production technique requires half the number of trees to turn out the same number of filters as previous models, the maker said.

The only thing they haven't gotten rid of is Mr. Coffee himself, Joe DiMaggio. Thank goodness.

Medical records worth saving

Q: How important is it to keep old medical records? Should they be transferred when you move? Do I need to keep my bills? I've heard of people keeping diaries during major illnesses like cancer. Is that necessary?

A: I talked to Dr. Hector Inchaustegui, formerly a private practice internist and now medical director for Select Care.

He told me the most important thing about medical records is the patient being well informed about diagnosis, treatment and possible complications. Medical terms are particularly important because they can be so easily confused. It's good to write down this information, but don't rely too much on papers because they can get lost, burned in fires, etc.

Studies show the most successful survivors of major illnesses are people who are most well informed. A diary can help keep information straight as well as fill the great need for seriously ill patients to ventilate their feelings. Dr. Inchaustegui said survivors also use the technique of repeatedly setting short term goals. They set their sights on the graduation of a child in two months, for instance, rather than thinking in long range terms. Happily, these short periods often stretch into many years of survival.

When moving, you can ask your former doctor for a summary report of your records. If more specific information is needed, records can be requested later. Doctors keep former patients' records five to 10 years, and they are rarely needed beyond then.

When traveling carry necessary medical information in your wallet, which is the first place authorities will look in case of an accident. Despite his doctor's admonitions, one patient instisted on traveling too soon after a heart attack. That doctor outlined the problem in a note for his patient to carry in case of emergency.

Once completed, the only reason to keep medical bills would be for tax purposes. Check over bills carefully before paying, however, because ludicrous mistakes sometimes happen. One hospital billed a man for speech therapy after treating him for a broken finger.

I think it's good to create one place for all your medical information. This is useful for recording exercises recommended for certain ailments or for minor symptoms you want to discuss with your doctor on your next visit. Include your blood type; doctors, hospitals and patient account numbers; dates and diagnoses of illnesses; X-rays taken; medications prescribed and any side effects experienced. Allergic reactions could also be recorded, along with inoculations, blood type, a history of blood pressure and other miscellaneous data.

You can order the first year of Dorothy Lehmkuhl's Organizing columns, "Vol. 1," by sending a $5 check and a long self-addressed envelope with 65 cents postage to Organizing Techniques, 6165 Worlington, Birmingham 48010.

Where would Her Majesty live in Birmingham?

At Buckingham, naturally.

She'd love the royal park across the street. She'd dote on the spacious two-bedroom apartment with fresh new interiors from the most modern appliances to the best lighting fixtures to designer carpeting to contemporary verticals.
She'd like the uncommon amount of room and royal way the service staff treats her. After all, a person's home ought to be their palace.

Developers plan on subdivision diversity

Winding roads, rolling terrain appeal to buyers

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Attractive residential subdivisions usually start with a good plat or site plan design — the physical layout of roads and individual lots.

Cookie-cutter neighborhoods with straight, parallel streets, one house behind another on relatively small lots have faded into development history.

The trend now is for lots of different shapes at least 60 feet wide on winding roads, and, where possible, various grades of topography.

"The overall goal . . . in recent years has been to maintain light and air — to preserve open space, green areas," said Dale Countegan, director of planning and community development for Farmington Hills.

That's what buyers crave, too, developers maintain.

"They want creativity, privacy, as much as you can give them, a statement when you come into the development either through landscaping or an entrance," said David V. Johnson, chairman and president of Victor International in Southfield.

"WE LOOK for things that attract the general public — rolling terrain, streams, whether we can create some ponds," said Bob Paciocco, vice president of PAMA Investment and Contracting Co. of Plymouth.

"Rather than a straight entrance from A to B, we put in curves. It gives more character to the sub," he said. "Rectangular lots of the '50s and '60s are pretty much gone."

Community planners and political officials have established stricter density, setback and landscaping requirements to help promote that open look.

But perhaps the biggest impact on platting and site plan development has been the emergence of the state Department of Natural Resources to protect wetlands.

Some municipalities like Rochester Hills and West Bloomfield also have adopted local wetlands ordinances.

DEVELOPERS have responded with more creative plats for traditional subdivisions and site plans for condominium projects. Planned residential or planned unit developments have become popular.

In those situations, some setback and density requirements are relaxed in exchange for saving unusual land features.

Tree preservation has impacted subdivision layouts, too.

Since last year, developers in Farmington Hills have contended with a tree protection ordinance.

"That's a common element to a community," Countegan said. "You just can't cut them without some sort of oversite."

Actually, all lots aren't created equal, even within the same subdivision. Lots with many trees or parcels that back up to woods often sell at a premium.

"A premium lot is a lot that maybe backs to a park area, stream, open space," Paciocco said. "Corner lots aren't too desirable. People don't want to be exposed on two sides.

"CUL-DE-SACS are very popular. The only traffic is people who live there.

"We try to come up with as many (cul-de-sacs) as we can. Those are the kind of lots that get a premium. You end up with fewer houses, but they bring more money with a premium and the end result is the same," Paciocco said.

Lot prices can vary by more than $30,000 within the same subdivision.

"If you develop on a lake and sites are close or contiguous (to water), they would be more of a premium," said John Shekerjian, a partner in the John Richards Development Corp. of Bloomfield Hills.

"Others further away from a major street might be more valuable," he said. "Some lots may open up to an out-lot or large common area.

"A lot is not premium because it's nicer, but costs more to develop," Shekerjian said.

LOTS ALONE can account for more than half of the total cost of building a new house, especially on lakefront property, Johnson said.

But there's no accounting for specific tastes. That's why Johnson includes plenty of options when he plats a subdivision.

"Some like a corner lot, some a pie-shaped lot for kids to play on, while the guy next door might want the pie reversed for a big frontage to show off," Johnson said.

He and other developers just don't slap a land-use plan together when they acquire property. "We spend time looking at a piece from the ground, from helicopters," Johnson said.

Plats or site plans originally submitted for review generally don't come through the approval process unchanged.

"DENSITY, that's one of the first things I look at," said George Wilhelmi, Westland's planning director. "Usually, you cut out a number of lots to create livable space. We've got some cases of triangular lots where actual utilization of the lot would not really make it livable," he said.

"We like at least two entrances. If there's only one, we ask them to make it as short as possible then put in a perimeter road or loop road," Wilhelmi added.

"We're always looking at landscaping, protection of trees, layout, how it flows, traffic implications," said Countegan.

Shirley Barney, community development director in Plymouth Township, said traffic circulation in regular subs, open spaces in residential unit developments are her biggest concerns when reviewing plat or site plan proposals.

A community's multi-step plat or site plan review process usually consists of administrative review, planning commission review, at least one public hearing and ultimate approval by a city council or township board.

Evictions vs. foreclosures

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

I am considering a co-op as opposed to a condominium. I have been told that the cooperative association can evict me if I do not pay the monthly assessment. Is that true?

Unlike a condominium, when you buy a cooperative you are a renter of the cooperative unit, having signed a proprietary lease for that unit. If you default in your obligations to the cooperative association of which you are a member, the cooperative association can institute eviction procedures against you in landlord/tenant court to evict you from the premises. You may also be deemed to have defaulted in your obligations as a member of the corporation and your interest in the cooperative association can be terminated. In a condominium, if you do not pay your assessments, the condominium association must foreclose against your unit in the same manner as a mortgage company would foreclose if you defaulted in your mortgage payments.

I am a broker and have a listing with a client who has turned down at least two offers concerning the sale of his recreational condominium. In both instances, the offer was close to what was being asked and the terms and conditions were reasonable. My listing agreement is about to expire, and the seller has indicated that he would verbally guarantee me any future sale should I come up with it. What do you suggest I do?

It seems to me from your question that you do not accept the credibility of the seller's desire to sell the property in a timely fashion. If your seller is playing games or if he is refusing to sell the property to persons on the basis of race, color, creed, national origins, sex, marital status or other prohibitive category, you may be well advised to terminate your listing agreement with him as soon as possible and disassociate yourself from him in all respects. Also, as you should know, contracts for commissions in this state must be in writing to be enforceable.

Lighted 'goop' marks 25 years

(AP) — The Lava Lite, a fixture in hippie crash pads of the 1960s, is celebrating its 25th birthday.

Retailers across the country say demand for the lamp, filled with a secret solution of oil, water, wax and other chemicals, has steadily grown since sales dropped to their lowest point in 1983.

"We carried it as a Christmas item, and it did very well," said Alan Freeman, a buyer for the Sharper Image in San Francisco.

When introduced in 1965, the lamp became popular among a group that was known for its recreational drug use.

But Christopher Baldovin, marketing director for Chicago-based Haggerty Enterprises, the lamp's manufacturer, points out that sales have rebounded during a national war on drugs, an indication past sales were not dependent on drug users buying them.

The lamp's new-found popularity centers among 18- to 24-year-olds, in addition to former hippies, according to retailers, and now sells for about $50.

SPENCER GIFTS, a 450-store nationwide retailer that targets the young-adult market, carries the item in every store, all year long.

"It's what we call a basic item — we sell them day in, day out," said Spencer Gifts' official Beth Schlansky in a telephone interview from the company's New York offices.

Although they have been the butt of humor, they also have been praised by the American Institute of Architects.

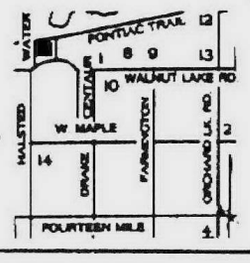

A lantern-like glass chamber lit from the bottom, the lava — a goop of 11 non-toxic substances discovered by accident by English inventor Craven Walker — gurgles slowly to the top, then settles gently back at the bottom, where the cycle begins again.
