Madness and mayhem

The last day of school was celebrated in Plymouth-Canton style in the Salem high school parking lot Thursday. Because unauthorized shaving cream fights have broken out in school hallways in the past, administrators decided to sanction this year's events. Canton police and Salem Principal Jerry Ostoin stood by to make sure things stayed under control. Observers said Ostoin had a look of longing on his face. Everyone had a good time, including a photographer who got shaving creamed, royally.

School bus policy

Changes provide more transportation

By Michelle Johnson staff writer

Plymouth-Canton elementary students who live more than one mile from school will be provided with bus transportation in the fall.

The Plymouth-Canton school board approved changes in the district busing policy last week.

Previously, kindergarten through second grade students who lived a mile from school were provided with bus transportation. Busing was available to third grade through high school students who lived 11/2 miles from school.

Families with more than one child attending the same school could have had one child riding the bus and a child one year older walking to

Under the new regulations, middle school and high school students who live more than 11/2 miles from school will also be provided with bus transportation

THE BOARD also voted on temporary busing changes. Busing of elementary students in Lincolnshire apartments will be discontinued as soon as sidewalks in the area are constructed.

Central Middle School students from Beacon Meadows will be provided with busing next year, as will

West Middle School students from Woodlore North.

Families involved in the busing changes will be notified by the school district.

The board considered discontinuing busing in the Eric Pass area near Isbister School, but decided against

"The thing that worries me about discontinuing, is that that area is so busy in the morning," said Dean Swartzwelter, school board presi-

Other board members cited inadequate walking paths along Canton Center Road as their reason for objecting to the proposal.

Candidates mull Hoben's retirement

staff writer

Piston's Coach Chuck Daly and Plymouth-Canton Superintendent John Hoben have something in common. People are speculating about their retirement.

Several candidates campaigning in this month's school board election raised the topic. School district employees and groups including the Committee for Academic Freedom and Excellence have expressed concern about Hoben's plans and about the process that will be used to re-

Hoben, who joined the district as a math teacher and Plymouth High School football coach in 1955, says there's no foundation to the rumors.

"I certainly am not ready to retire. People can get tired, that's always the case. I have two years to go on my current contract, and I'm hopeful I will get an extension," he

Township looks at upgrading ambulance service

By Kevin Brown staff writer

Upgraded ambulance and emergency medical services are being considered for Plymouth Township

Dale Berry, director of Huron Valley Ambulance, outlined his compa-ny's ambulance-EMS service for township trustees Tuesday, and trustees voted to start contract negotiations with the Ann Arbor company.

"You don't have paramedic services in Plymouth Township," Berry told trustees, adding, "It is really becoming the standard in most com-

TOWNSHIP SUPERVISOR Maurice Breen described the difference between EMS services now provided by the township fire department, and HVA's service.

"They have more sophisticated equipment," Breen said, adding HVA is able to provide more sophisticated medical care as a patient is being transported to the hospital.

"The advantage is we can stabilize these people in their homes," Berry told trustees on Tuesday. "I personally see a great need for this. We need to discuss it further," said Trustee Abe Munfakh. Adding that he's worked in Ann Arbor for 20 years, where HVA is based, Munfakh said, "As far as I know HVA does an excellent job."

Trustees voted unanimously to begin talking about the contract with HVA began contracting with the city of Plymouth in December to provide ambulance service there. City of Plymouth Assistant City Manager Paul Sincock said, "We've been very satisfied with HVA. "It's been an excellent working relationship and they've been provid-ing an outstanding service to our residents," he continued.

BERRY SAID HVA was approaching township trustees to seek to begin service in Plymouth Township, because due to few calls for ambulance service in the city of Plymouth, HVA has excess capacity in its ambulances in the city and is losing money by providing the service

"We charge just enough to support our service," Berry said, adding the company is non-profit.

Should the township use HVA,

"The firefighters are going to be able to respond to a (fire) emergency, instead of checking a person into a hospital," Munfakh said.

Berry estimated that 60 to 65 percent of township residents have health insurance, Medicare or Medicaid, and these carriers would pay for HVA services.

Others using the service would be billed directly, he said. To give an idea of what HVA charges for an ambulance run, he suggested many bills fall in the $200-$500 range.

"We do hear a lot of good things about it (HVA)," Breen said.

Move to deregulate. pro wrestling puts Law in center ring

By Kevin Brown staff writer

State Rep. Gerald Law's effort to have professional wrestling deemed entertainment instead of a sport, under state licensing requirements, has drawn lots of attention.

"I got a lot of kidding from different newspapers and commentators last week," said Law, R-Plymouth.

While Law chuckles over the attention his action has drawn, he finds it curious that other measures he is working for — including higher nutritional standards for lunches served to school students announced at the same time - have drawn comparatively little attention.

"Some of the staff people who have worked hard on this (the school lunch legislation) are just devastated," he said, laughing.

WHILE LAW understands the public's interest in an offbeat story, "I don't want the public to think we nd all our time discussing professional wrestling," he said.

The proposed code change came about because Law heads a committee reviewing the state occupational code, he said.

"For this reason it makes sense to delete it."

By removing professional wres-tling from Michigan's occupational code, "We're doing the same thing New York and California have done, and many other states.

"WE'RE NOT saying the people who participate in professional wrestling are not good athletes," Law said.

Professional wrestling promoters would prefer to be de-regulated," he said. Has there been any reaction from professional wrestling, to the proposed code change?

The money was stolen between March 28 and April 1, she told police last week. The Canton man, 33, could have gotten her automatic teller access number because it was written inside her checkbook, which is missing, she told police.

The withdrawls were made eight different times, the police report said. The woman told police the former boyfriend also wrote checks from her account under an alias she had seen him use before.

Police are investigating.

Plymouth motorist told police she was turning left onto Wing at Forest on June 11 when she saw an older model, beige van turning onto westbound Wing.

The van sped toward the woman's vehicle, almost striking it, police said. The man driving the van hurled an object at the woman's car, hitting it below the driver's side window, and shouted obscenities at her.

The man then drove through the stop sign at Harvey and Maple without stopping, the woman said. She drove toward him to get his license plate number, she said.

The man got out of the van and stood in the middle of the street, shouting more obscenities and making vulgar gestures.

There were possible witnesses at the Romeo chocolate shop on Wing, police said. The man was described as white, 6 feet 2 and weighing 250 pounds. He wore blue jeans with a print shirt, and had sandy blond hair and a bushy blond hard.

p.m. June 6 and 7 a.m. June 7, the last day of business for Doug's Plymouth Standard, someone broke in and stole $786 in cash and checks, Plymouth police said. The service station moved to Eight Mile and Farmington Road in Livonia.

Someone broke a window that faced south and removed a horizontal bar to gain entry. Unlocked drawers were rummaged through, officers said. Taken from an unlocked, cast-iron safe in the storage area was a bank deposit bag containing the cash and checks.

The light bulb in the storage area was broken.

There are no known witnesses or suspects, police said.

"I think his credentials speak for themselves," said Hoben. "We talked with many people who had knowledge of his ability and all spoke very highly of him. I expect he will perform eloquently."

Hoben said Goldman initiated "win-win negotiations for Ann Arbor schools, a process Hoben says tries to bring about the best possible re-

"He also has the ability to be a strong leader in personnel place-ment," he said.

"We looked for someone who had some labor law knowledge who could handle arbitration cases. He's personable, very positive and easy going. I would hope people would take a positive approach" to his appointment, Hoben added.

SOME EMPLOYEES have expressed concern about an attorney heading the employee relations de-partment. Several school board cantidates also raised the issue.

Carl Battishill, who along with Les Walker was elected to a four-year term last week, said, "It may be dif-

"It's difficult for employees to be

Goldman, who received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Michigan State University and a law degree from the University of Toledo, said employees shouldn't be should not make any difference in Goldman has been in Kee's office observing for the last month. "My approach is to find out as much as I can about the organization's goals. That gives me a better indication of whether it's a place I want to be, and it gives the people interviewing me the chance to see whether I am the kind of person they want.

"I'm really looking forward to

"Tm going to approach it as a person who is going to do a job the best way I can. The fact I'm an attorney school system and in the community." The Plymouth-Canton district has an excellent reputation," said Goldman, who starts July 2.

Board President Dean Swartzwelter also is impressed with Goldman

The neighborhood was cleaning itself up. The local 4-H Club even helped set up garden clubs where kids, teens and adults could work together on plants and flowers while talking over ways to raise awareness.

For seven decades, Camp Watha-na has been the kind of place where youngsters can come face-to-face with a deer, or explore a series of small, private lakes.

But now the wooded northwest Oakland County site is focus of a controversy that stands in sharp contrast to its tranquil setting.

The 380-acre camp is owned by Detroit Area Council of Camp Fire - the youth services agency known as the Camp Fire Girls before it began admitting boys several years

Detroit Area Camp Fire trustees recently voted to sell the Rose Township site because of an estimated $45,000 deficit - and estimated $250,000 in camp losses over the

"Operating the camp has been a real drain on our finances," said Renee Ahee, council vice president of external affairs. "It's not an issue of selling the camp, it's an issue of keeping the council alive."

All told, she said, the camp would put the council in debt by some 320,000 this year.

But the potential sale has divided trustees from group leaders, the foot soldiers of the Camp Fire organization. Several group leaders have banded together into a new group, Friends and Alumni of Camp Wathana, to block the sale.

'WE'RE UP in arms," said Linda Zakoor, whose group includes young-sters from Garden City, Canton and Westland, among other communities. "Money will come and go but this camp is irreplacable."

Beyond the group in-fighting, the issue also involves potential develop-ment of one of the remaining open parcels in a rapidly-growing region.

Camp Fire trustees are drawn from area business leaders, as well as group leaders.

Some members of the Friends and Alumni group accuse business-ori-ented trustees of being pro-develop-

"If you look, it's the business peo-ple (on the board) who want to sell," said former group leader Pat Atkinson of Inskter.

Abee, however, said no decision has been made on who the new Camp Wathana (pronounced Wathane-a) has traditionally been booked for summer camps by local Camp Fire groups. There, campers make use of its three lodges, dining hall, and numerous cabins.

"The beauty is that we can use the camp when we want to" said Gar-

"If we sold the camp, we'd have to use someone else's camp, but who knows if we'd even be able to sched-

Those who favor the sale, say a recent membership survey indicated interest in the the camp was declining. The survey, however, was disputed by members of the Friends and Alumni group, who said it in-cluded comments from long-inactive Camp fire members.

Fire Council recently sold its own camp. Another Camp Fire campground remains in operation near Monroe.

"Camping isn't the only thing we do," Ahee said. Camp Fire operates programs for children who attend inner city schools and latch key children, as well as anti-substance abuse programs.

Maintaining the camp, Ahee said, would place those other programs in jeopardy.

Members of the Friends and
Camp Fire di-Alumni group accuse Camp Fire di-rectors of not doing enough to promote the camp.

"The camp is just not being used to its full potential," Zakoor said. "They should be doing more to make the camp available to other groups."
Friends and Alumni members also said trustees weren't doing enoug

About $8 in donations for each child who attended the camp last year would more than wipe out any deficit, they said.

Trustees, however, said they're trying their best in an increasingly ompetitive market.

The issue is expected to come to a head during the annual board of di-rectors election June 28. Those who favor saving the camp are expected to run a slate of candidates.

"Whether consciously or uncon-sciously, we've let the board direct us, rather than having us give direc-tion to the board," Hansen said. "But how can you have Camp Fire without a camp?"

GARDENING IF YOU HAVE ARTHRITIS

My mentor Dr. Robinson said: "someone with arthritis can do anything anyone else can do. However, the person with arthritis must do it more slowly and with greater care."

He exaggerated to make a point. He realized that patients with arthritis can't be expected to do everything. What he wanted to show was that such individuals can do more than they realize. What they need to recognize is the necessity for patience and planning.

Gardening presents a good example. Having arthritis means you need to adapt tools to your hands. Using a short-legged stool to sit on and a stout staff to help raise you up allows you a position which substitutes for kneeling on the ground. You may have to change the mix of your garden to flowers from vegetables so you will dig less and trim more. If you change, you can keep your goal of getting out of the house, improving the look of your lot, and enjoying sun and shade.

The same approach of continuing on by improvising more, holds for shopping, and for traveling whether through Michigan by car, or across the nation by plane, train or auto.

Open mind a key to education

To the editor:

The purpose of education is to produce people who are critical thinkers, and have open minds, and have been exposed to a variety of materials. If a student has her/his opportunities narrowed down, to what someone else thinks is appropriate for them to learn, this community is in serious trouble.

"The function of education is to teach one to think critical. Intelligence plus character — that is the goal of true education."

Abortion: Look to women

To the editor:

I am 13 years old and very concerned about my rights in the future, to have an abortion by my will. I become very upset every time I think of growing up, not having the rights I was born with.

If the government decides to make abortion illegal, it might have to face bigger problems than protests. Women could be so desperate they could have the abortion done illegally, in the streets. Without proper care needed, they could die of infection.

See, not allowing abortions won't make people stop, it's a good chance it would cause more harmful effects than before. I strongly urge people to look past the protest, and look at the women.

Sarah Petrere,

Soccer is getting rough

To the editor:

I am writing in response to P.J., the 13 year-old soccer referee from Plymouth, since I am "the woman who wrote a letter that talked about how dissatisfied she was with the referees that had been refereeing her some sources games."

Actually my letter concerned not only our two sons' games, but also the deterioration of soccer as a sport and its causes.

I think you, and anyone associated with soccor, would find the response to my letter in the December 1989 issue of "The Touchline," the MSYSA newsletter, very informative.

The State Venth Referes Administrative.

The State Youth Referee Administrator began by writing: "A more timely letter I have not received." He also states that "on some teams the game has taken a step backward, to a style which is certainly detrimental to the game.

mental to the game.

Soccer should be played in a fair and sportsman-like manner. During the past few years I have noticed the play getting rougher, in fact I have never seen such a change in attitude as I have in the past two or three years."

He goes on to say that "referees must take firm, immediate, and decisive action, and prevent further deterioration of the games."

I would be glad to share my copy of his response with you. He seems to be doing his part to try to ensure referee quality and is very disturbed by those teams who try to injure opponents, etc.

I seem to need to restate and clarify for you certain ideas from my original letter. I did place a lot of blame for violence on the referees because I have seen several referees who don't "begin the game by taking charge and stating what they will not allow."

They also "need to make the necessary calls and have control of the game." In response to your statement that people expect the referee to catch everything that happens: I'm sure our expectations are too high, but as in the case of the headlock which occurred near the ball, it is hard to believe the adult Troy referee did not see it.

If the referees really try to do their best, then the blame can only be placed on coaches and parents who teach attitudes. In my original letter I stated that "coaches and parents and players need to look at their expectations and attitudes."

I am deeply disturbed by the behavior of some parents who yell obscenities and treat everyone, including the referee, with disrespect. It is quite obvious why their offspring display nasty attitudes on and off the soccer field.

I also blame the coaches who are supposed to have some degree of control over the parents of their players. Coaches certainly are responsible for the way their team plays the game: "win at all costs" or "give your best, use good sportsmanship, and have fun."

I am learning that coaches make a tremendous difference in what happens on the field. Some teach their players to cheat to win, and others look the other way. So do some parents.

As much as I want our boys' teams to win, I tell our sons to do their best, keep their heads even when they are roughed up by opponents, and show the other team that they are the better players.

On the soccer field, or while participating in any sport, our young people are forming life attitudes, not only soccer attitudes.

I ask parents and coaches, "What values are you teaching?" I wish all parents would stop to think about what they are teaching their children and that all coaches were like our two sons' coaches.

I also wish all referees would try to be as conscientious as you are trying to be. I know you're doing a difficult job, and I hope you continue and become one of the referees that some of us parents seek out after a game and compliment on a job well done.

Research abortion

This letter is in response to Lana Boroditsch's comments comparing abortion to a television set. It would be beneficial for her and for all "prochoicers" to investigate the reality of abortion.

Find out how abortions are performed and just exactly what abortion does to the preborn child. I urge everyone to educate themselves about what abortion is and what it really does to everyone involved, and then make an informed decision.

Reaching a consensus on terminally ill patients

DR. JACK KEVORKIAN likened his revolutionary concept of assisted suicide to the struggles of Margaret Sanger more than a century ago to promote birth control.

I was in Oakland Couny Circuit Court Friday when Judge Alice Gilbert issued a preliminary injunction against Kevorkian committing any further acts to help a patient commit suicide.

"I'm not a criminal," said the slight, graying, 62-year old retired pathologist in the courtroom packed with members of the press and at least one supporter.

"What I did was ethical. It's no different than Margaret Sanger's policy of planned birth for which she was persecuted and jailed. Planned Parenthood is now a legitimate service."

KEVORKIAN TALKED about back-alley abortions before abortion was ruled a legitimate practice nearly two decades ago.

Revorkian said he wants a rational policy of planned death to erase the vestiges of "dark ages mentali-

"I was the first to kick the door open to a new specialty," he said. "Michigan can be historic by showing the world how to gain enlighten-

Assistant Oakland County prosecutor Michael Modelski characterized Kevorkian's act of providing death to Janet Adkins with his suicide machine a "Keystone Kops" approach.

Adkins, 54, was in the early stages of Alzheimer's disease. With Kevorkian's help, Adkins died in the back of a 1968 van after a series of blunders.

Life is inconsistent. But more and more people seem to be obsessed with death and dying. Opinions on the right to die will become a hue and cry not unlike the conflict over the right to life.

MANY THOUGHTS come to mind. When I was in Ford Hospital waiting for my daughter to come out of surgery, I discovered on the table a National Hemlock Society publication. I was astonished to see literature from a group promoting the right to die and publishing such books as "Common Sense Suicide" and "Drug Dosage Table."

The Hemlock Society was started in London, England, by a man who facilitated the suicide of his wife who was suffering from incurable cancer.

What was the society's literature doing in a hospital where doctors practice the Hippocratic Oath to the ethical letter?

The American right to die movement focuses on the rights of patients to refuse life prolonging treatment. Many of my friends have living wills which record their wishes that no heroic measures be taken to sustain life if they become terminally ill.

HOW MANY OF us have said that we hope somebody will give us a "knockout drop" before we're shuttled off to a nursing home where we may be physically or mentally incompetent?

There are, of course, those who cling to life despite old age, crippling illness, pain and suffering. Who is to decide?

As Kevorkian said, the whole issue is emotional, religious and philosophical rather than medical. Suicide among the elderly rose 25 percent between 1980 and 1985, he maintains.

"I want people to have an option available if needed," he said. "We need good technical help under controled conditions. The suicide rate would plummet to half if this were provided."

"It's better than people blowing

"It's better than people blowing their brains out, jumping off a bridge or pulling a sack over their heads."

THE ASSISTANT prosecutor calls Kevorkian an irresponsible martyr, outcast and maverick.

The court, according to Judge Gilbert, isn't the forum for the establishment of medical ethics, practices or public policy. The case will be heard in court after prosecutors decide if Kevorkian's device is legal.

Sal

Medically assisted suicide isn't illegal in Michigan. But such monumental issues as life and death cannot be decided in a gray area.

Society is still waging a war between the right to life and the right of personal choice in the case of legalized abortions. We don't need another national shouting match over a gut-wrenching moral issue such as the right to die.

According to a couple of local surveys, support for Kevorkian's concept outweighs the opposition. But is this an emotional, knee-jerk reaction?

A 46-year-old Southfield woman, stricken with multiple sclerosis, has sought help from Kevorkian to end her life. How does her family feel about it?

KEVORKIAN, THE judge ruled, is causing death through unnatural means and could attract others to commit suicide. The whole concept opens up a frightening can of worms and possible abuses. It cannot be taken lightly.

If the court isn't a forum to decide medical ethics or practices, what is? Physicians can't make a decision on the right to die the right to die.

Society may reach a consensus on treating terminally ill patients and the proper medical role in humane death. Without a rational, well-thought out consensus, whatever is

WIND WILLIAM CO. CO.

Pat Gross, a 34-year-old Westland resident, triumphantly turned to the Palace crowd after Piston Vinnie Johnson hit the winning basket.

The Palace of Auburn Hills is a roaring sea of fans at the beginning of the fourth quarter with the Pistons trailing, 75-76.

Bedlam rocks Piston Palace

By Raiph R. Echtinaw staff writer

An ecstatic young woman grabbed my arm as I walked toward my motorcycle and screeched in a loud voice, "I can't bleeping believe it! I can't bleeping believe it!"

One might expect that she'd reached the ga-ga threshold by touching one of the New Kids On The Block, but, au contraire, she was thrilled beyond belief because a hoop squad from Auburn Hills beat a similar collection of tall guys from Portland, Ore., for what passes as the world championship of basketball.

The Detroit Pistons' unbeaten record, when televised on "Palacevision," remains unblemished as they beat the Portland Trail Blazers 92-90 Thursday night.

"What's Palacevision?" you ask. It's a Sony JumboTron TV set built into the scoreboard at the Palace of Auburn Hills. More than 15,000 rabid Pistons fans turned out to watch the roundball boys on the scoreboard Sunday before last. Then the place sold out, at $3 a pop, for games Tuesday and Thursday.

People were out in the parking lot two hours before game time beseeching strangers, "Do you have any extra tickets?"

But what's so great about watching the game on a scoreboard when you could be sitting in your own home where the seats are more comfortable and the beer significantly less expensive?

"IT'S AWESOME," said Judy Dul of Redford. "It's just like being at a game only better, like the announcers make fun of the Portland peo-

Judy's friend Anne Marie Rosni, also of Redford, seconded the motion. "It's more fun here," she shouted into my ear to make herself heard. "These are the die-hard Pistons fans."

Livonia residents Mary Beth Marshall and Michelle Larsen were taking a smoke break in the first half. "It's the best party I've had in years," Michelle said. "Party with the true Pistons fans."

Somewhat older than the decidedly teenage crowd, Mary Beth and Michelle engendered a bit of anger with their proclivity to eschew their

"People around us were telling us to sit down," Michelle said. "They're young, so we ignore them," Mary Beth added. "We're having a great time!" Westland resident Tim Hendershot sipped his beer and noted, "It's just like your own house and having a major party. It's just wild." Although modern times have de-valued the English language to the extent that incredible means what good did 20 years ago, the word "wild" still comes very close to de-scribing Thursday's pandemonium.

The place was so darn noisy that you couldn't have heard Dick Vitale talking if he were three feet away, not that you'd want Dick Vitale three feet away from you.

BART SIMPSON signs seemed to be all the rage, with four or five examples floating around. Other signs said, "We love Palacevision," "Bill is our hero" and "This one's for Joe."

Paper airplanes created from R.I.P. Portland signs rained on the Palace floor, some particularly wellcrafted models coming all the way from the upper deck. A guy dressed floor. A Palace attendant distributed ear plugs to members of the media as WLLZ's Michael Fox exhorted the crowd to new levels of fervor.

While one might figure they'd seen the extent of what inveterate, runamok fandom can do to ordinary people during the first three quar-ters of the game, records for insane loquacious behavior were broken when Vinnie hit the hoop that put the Pistons in the champagne zone.

To say the primarily teenage crowd "went nuts" is exaggeration, of course, but in the days of runaway language inflation, it's an understatement.

Total strangers were high-fiving each other. Everyone was on his or her feet, screaming like drunken banshees, which some of them were. Even the normally staid "may I see your ticket please?" ushers celebrat-ed in uninhibited fashion. One removed his clip-on tie and whirled it over his head.

Yet nearly everyone seemed par-ticularly friendly and good natured and the rampaging that plagued Detroit far away.

Everybody just loves the noodle

If there is just one food that comes close to global popularity, it has to be the noodle

Noodles are beloved in every European country, in the Far East, the Middle East and everywhere in between. Even in the Janes gang kitchen, noodles are at least a once-a-week staple that find themselves in everything from spaghetti sauce to pierogi.

Noodles reproduce themselves in just about every nationality. There are the classic Italian raviolis, the Chinese won tons, the Jewish kreplach, the Polish kolduny and the German maultaschen. You name it, and noodles can be a part of just about anyone's heritage.

The USDA, which sets the standards for domestically manufactured as well as imported noodles, describes noodle products as "the class of food prepared by drying formed units of dough made from seminola, durum flour, farina, flour or any combination of eggs, with or without water." Macaroni, in contrast, does not contain egg.

NOODLES ARE made from flour or vegetable starch, either of which is mixed with a liquid to form a dough, then divided into individual strands or pieces by rolling and cutting or through an extrusion device. What enables these noodles to hold their shape is gluten, that tangled network of protein filaments that forms as a wheat flour dough is kneaded.

The more protein in the flour, the more gluten it will develop when moistened and worked. Eggs will coat the flour granules and interfere with gluten formation, so they can act as a tenderizer in noodles. That is why egg noodles are always flat. If shaped, they would tend to oversoften when cooked.

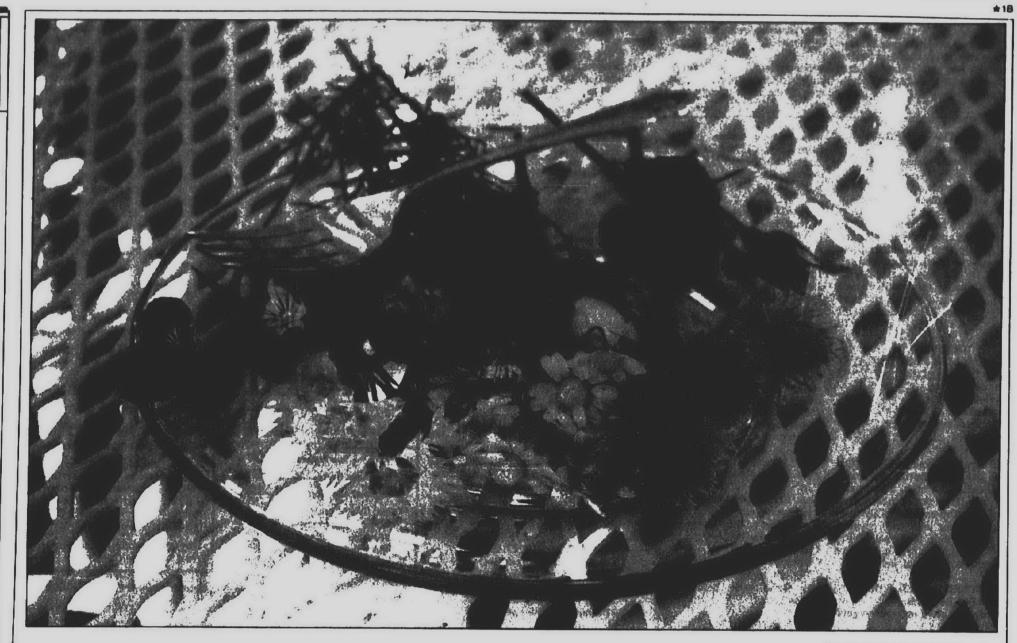

Any pasta maker worth his or her weight in dough knows that seminola flour makes the best noodles. Indeed, in Italy, a law passed in 1967 decrees that all pasta must be made from semi-

While all-purpose, cake, pastry and whole wheat flours are milled from various mixtures of hard and soft wheat kernels, seminola is made exclusively from durum wheat - a different species, which is golden in color and harder than any other wheat. Since most wheat protein is insoluble in water, and of all the commonly grown wheats durum has the highest protein content, seminola will always make the most resilient dough that holds together best during cooking.

Not to be outdone, Oriental cuisines feature noodles that are made from all manners of vegetable starches: rice, corn, seaweed, potato, yam, mung bean, taro and even acorn. First the starch is steamed to create a paste. Then it is frozen, defrosted and dried. After this process, the starch is so easily rehydrated that the noodles generally need not be boiled but just softened by soaking. They will, in fact, turn mushy and gluey if boiled.

IT'S REALLY NOT difficult at all to prepare your own homemade noodles. A few pounds of good seminola flour, a few eggs, a splash of olive oil, a sprin-kle of salt and a few drops of wa-ter are all that is needed to pre-pare great homemade noodles. The difficult technique arises when it's time to roll and cut the odles, but this is where an inex-sive pasta machine can per-

Flowers make meals bloom

By Marty Figley special writer

LOWERS HAVE BEEN used for culinary purposes for centuries and have long been used in Europe and China.

Their use is becoming more popular in this country as cooks discover new ways to use them to enhance the flavor and texture of foods and to make the presentation very special. It's fun to try new and exciting recipes in our own kitchens and be creative.

While doing research for this article, the more I investigated, the more I learned. A Texas friend sent a recipe for Redbud cookies. I hope to share some of the information with you so that you can enjoy new experiences.

Some flowers such as nasturtiums have a great deal of taste, while others are used for garnishing, although they are still edible. Rose water adds a delicate flavor to cookies and other foods, and squash blossoms can be used to hold foods such as chicken salad. Tulips, with their pistils removed, are a delightful treat stuffed with tuna salad. Lily buds added to stirfrys add a unique flavor.

From main dishes to desserts. edible flowers will make any meal more interesting. Conversation will be lively around a table when they are used.

I must caution all cooks to be positive in the identification of the flowers used and to always choose those that have not been sprayed with pesticides. Although many flowers would make attractive garnishes, they may also be toxic. Don't guess, be positive. The botanical names will help, since a particular plant (or parts of it) in a species may be toxic while another one is

Pick flowers at their peak, cut off stems and leaves, wash and drain carefully.

Presented in alphabetical order, here are some of the more interesting and readily available flowers:

Apple Blossoms (Malus spp.) have a delicate taste and can be used as a garnish right from the tree, sprinkled over a fruit salad to welcome spring. The can also be crystalized.

Borage (Borago officinalis) flowers are a bright starlike blue and can be used the same as apple blossoms. Cakes and other desserts and salads are improved by their use, or a single blossom floating on a cup of punch is nice. Borage has been known as the herb of courage for many centuries

Bergamot (Monarda didyma) leaves and blossoms were used to make tea by the Colonists after the British wanted to tax the imported tea. The flowers also make a suitable garnish. Sugar can be flavored by putting a handful of the leaves in a cup or so of white sugar and letting it set for several weeks. Use the leaves when a minty flavor is desired, perhaps on fruit or in a cup of tea.

Calendula (Calendula officinal) is) is often called Pot Marigold. Its bright golden-hued color is used to tint dishes with a saffrony gold, and the blossoms are used to garnish tossed salads or soups. You might want to sprinkle some petals on brown bread and butter for tea sandwiches, which will impart a slightly salty taste. Folklore tells us that their bright colors wards off evil charms of witchcraft.

Chive Blossoms (Allium schoenoprasum and A. tuberosum) are so versatile in cooking, with their mild onion flavor, when used in tossed salads or floating on a clear broth they add a delicate touch. The blossoms can be steeped in white vinegar resulting in a lovely pink, onion-flavored vinegar, handy to use in a dressing or marinade. Its symbolism means usefulness, and that it is.

Daylily (Hemerocallis spp.) often used in Oriental cooking also can be used fresh. A simple preparation is to gather buds while they are still quite green and boil then in salted water for three minutes. Serve with butter, oil and vinegar or a cream sauce. They can be addat the last minute stews. So named because the flowers are open for only one day, they bloom for several months and won't miss the harvesting.

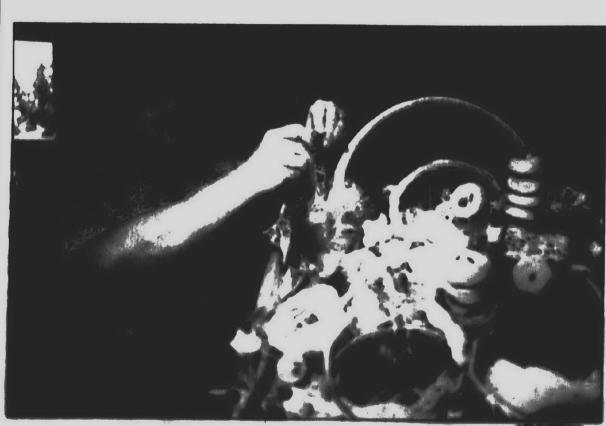

Scented Geraniums (Pelargonium spp.) are used in many culinary recipes. The rose, peppermint and lemon varieties are especially nice. A petal or two placed in the bottom of a well-buttered pan before pound cake batter is poured in will impart a special flavor to the cake. The leaves can be used to flavor sugar the same as is done with Ber-

Family saves 'dough' with homemade pizza

My goodness, the pizza pie has certainly come a long way, hasn't it? Although no one knows for sure, it has been thought that pizza was invented by a frugal Italian housewife from Naples who had some extra bread dough she didn't want to waste. Wouldn't she be shocked beyond belief if she could see the tremendous impact her culinary invention has had in our modern world today? We in Detroit especially feel the effects of pizza profits as two of our city's top professional sports teams are owned by competing pizza mag-nates. And just the other day I heard on the news that a race car sponsored by Domino's Pizza won the Indy 500. I always thought that those cars were sponsored by motor oil or shock absorber companies, certainly not by those that made pizza.

Yes, it is true that pizza has become very high profile and very big business, but if you are tired of or-dering out and paying all that "dough" for your pizza, then this week's Winner Dinner is for you. Submitted by Kathy Husk of Redford Township, this easy recipe for spicy pepperoni and sausage pizza will convert you and your family into homemade pizza lovers. Husk likes to serve a simple green salad tossed with honey-French salad dressing. Sliced, fresh strawberries, either eaten plain or as a topping for vanilla ice cream, complete this favorite family menu.

Native Michiganders, Husk and her husband are the parents of three children. Although she is home fulltime, she looks forward to teaching her weekly water exercise class at Thurston High School in Redford Township. She and her husband enjoy cooking, and together they developed this pizza recipe. Champagne is a wine region in France about 90 miles northeast of Paris. The Romans introduced viticulture in this celebrated region in

Until the latter half of the 17th century, the still wines of Champagne were rivaled only by those of

In their friendly competition with the Burgundians, the Champenois sought to create wines not previously known. They were the first to perfect the production of light-colored wines from dark pinot noir grapes.

FIRST ACCOUNTS of sparkling wines date from 1660, but it is evident that their effervescence occurred by accident.

The first successful, deliberate methods of capturing the bubbles in the bottle were due to the inspired efforts of Dom Perignon (1639-1715) and Frere Oudart (1654-1742) within the monastic orders of Pierry and Epernay, the birthplace of naturally sparkling wines now called cham-

The innovations made by th monks in the late 17th and early 18th centuries remain the fundame principles in champagne production.

These techniques include blending wines from various vineyards to obtain a wine complexity greater than the sum of its parts, clarification of the wine by removal of yeast sediment, and the use of cork as the accepted bottle closure.

EARLY STYLES of champagne were governed by the region's northern location, often receiving insufficient sunlight and warmth to yield

Consequently, adding sugar to sweeten the wine and smooth its rough, "green" edges became common practice.

Jean-Antoine Chaptal advocated adding sugar during, rather than after, fermentation, to increase alcohol content, a practice beneficial to

In 1836, a landmark discovery was made. A pharmacist from Chalons-sur-Marne determined a method for measuring a wine's residual sugar.

This made it possible to assess how much additional sugar was required to make wine of a desired alcohol content.

Since fermentation produces carbon dioxide gas, this also made it possible to calculate the pressure inside a bottle. Too much pressure creates the danger of exploding bottles.

CONSIDERING THE nearly 330year history of champagne production, Champagne Taittinger is a fledgling in the industry.

In 1931, Pierre Taittinger bought Forest-Fourneaux, the third oldest existing Champagne house, and began to rejuvenate the firm and buy vineyards.

In 1970, Taittinger's Comtes de Champagne Rose was created. Vinified in what is referred to as the "rapid cuvaison" method, the skins impart a delicate pink color to the wine over a 48-hour contact period.

Prior to disgorging, the wine is aged six to seven years, more than twice the legal minimum, to capture the fruit and complexity of the pinot noir grape.

IN REIMS, Champagne Taittinger's cellars are situated in underground crayeres, chalk caves quarried by the Romans.

Franklin foiled by Jenison, 3-0

staff writer

Livonia Franklin road to success during its tournament run in state softball playoffs veered slightly off course Saturday at Bailey Park in Battle Creek.

Jenison, a school just outside Grand Rapids, won its third Class A title in four years, derailing the upstart Patriots, 3-0.

"I predicted wrong this game," said Franklin coach Joe Epstein, whose team was making its third championship appearance in six

"As I've said all season long, if we play good defense behind our pitcher and score three runs, we can beat anybody around. Except this time what happened is that the wrong team, unfortunately for us, got the three runs.'

After a near-flawless performance the day before when the Patriots collected 12 hits and made just one error in beating state-ranked Fraser, 8-1, the final was a different

Dawn Warner sent a shot up the middle that ricocheted off the arm of Walters. The ball bounced to shortstop Beth Horstmanshof, who threw to first in time for the out.

CATCHER Tracy Parenti, the next batter, lined out to second.

Karen Brown and Beth Hare each followed with singles, but Walters got the hot-hitting Amporn Wagner to bounce out to the mound to end Walters then went on to retire 18 of the final 19 batters.

"I got excited because the first four balls we hit were right on the nose," Epstein said. "With a bounce here or there, it could have been a different game, but it still comes down to good pitching, No. 1; then good defense, No. 2; and then the third thing is hitting. It just wasn't there for us today.'

In the second inning with one out, Kim Rose sent a liner to right field that handcuffed Kris McComb. Rose raced to third on the error and scored on Stephanie Baker's ground-

Ironically, despite the five fielding errors, Franklin made several brilliant defensive plays. Shannon Eberly made two diving catches in left field. Brown, the center fielder, ran down a shot off the bat of Battjes to end a potentially disasterous situation in the fifth.

"Nobody can go away saying 'I blew the game,' because they all shared in it," said Epstein, whose team bowed out at 19-8

"YOU COME and win as a team. There wasn't one play or player that beat us."

Walters, however, may have been the one player who kept Franklin from winning its second state title.

"After they (Franklin) scored eight runs against Fraser, I knew they'd be coming in hitting the ball," said Jenison coach Jerry Hoag. "But Jenny's done a fantastic job during the tournament. She keeps it (the

ACADEMIC STANDOUTS

The Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference has named its all-league academic at-large team, and a pair of Observerland studentathletes were honored.

Jim Surowiec, a senior swimmer at Oakland University from Farmington Hills (and Redford Catholic Central), and Camellia Fituch, a junior tennis player at Wayne State from Garden City, were among the 20 first-team selections.

Surwiec was an All-American breaststroker and team co-captain for OU; he had a 3.51 grade-point average with a major in history, and was one of three unanimous firstteam picks. Fituch was one of two women selected for the second-consecutive year; she earned a perfect 4.0 grade point with a major in biolo-

Exercise can help relieve depression

Dear Myrna: My 24-year-old daughter has a problem with depression. She also has trouble sleeping. Her doctor has suggested exercise to help her problem. I guess depression is common at her age. Do you also recommend exercise for this situation? This has all made me very depressed.

I am so sorry. As a mother I can understand what you are going through. It's hard to watch children struggle.

Depression is common among young people. In fact, depression is the most prevalent mental illness in the United States today. Last year, the National Institute of Mental Health reported that 25 percent of the women and 111/2 percent of the men in the U.S. will experience depression sometime in their lives.

According to the National Institute of Mental Health, children of 2 years of age have been diagnosed with depression and it is a serious problem of many teenagers and people in their mid-20s.

Several studies do show that exercise can help relieve depression and that people who exercise regularly have fewer episodes of depression than sedentary people. Studies show that exercise has an anti-depressant effect.

In my research, I found a report by Dr. Dwight German, a Dallas Neurobiologist, who states the following: "People jump for joy because movement and emotion are biologically intertwined. Mood elevation that results from exercise is related to some basic survival needs. Under stress caused by fear or by exercise, the brain releases opioid peptides, or endorphins, to lessen pain and produce an analgesic, blissful, effect."

I know that mood and movement complement each other when endorphins activate brain cells that are vital to our physical and mental health. Our brain cells produce the chemical called "dopamine." Through exercise, we activate these brain cells and pump dopamine into adjoining brain regions that regulate movement and Too little dopamine in the brain results in depression and muscular rigidity.

In addition to the biological effects exercise has on depression, researchers have found that exercise can benefit people who have bouts of depression by giving them time out from their normal day a relief from the stress of each day that sometimes leads to depres-

Maybe you, too, should try exercise to get you through your daughter's stress. I can promise you will both sleep more soundly with physical activity during your day. Aerobic activity — rhythmic movement at a steady pace for 30 minutes at a target heart rate is recommended. You can speed walk together, or aerobic dance together or swim together. Call me for further questions you may have.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company Inc. of Bloomfield Township and recent appointee of the President's Council on Physical Fitness, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Camps win popularity contest

Applying such a question to this rather recent mania involving sports camps and a conservative answer would be: Depends

An optimistic reply? How about: Everyone ben

There are as many ways to describe the good — or bad — things involving sports camp as there are kinds of sports camps. One thing that can't be argued: Their popularity is growing, and Growing,

"It's gone from between 300 and 400 to 1,700 in the last seven years," said Greg Kampe, Oakland University's men's basketball coach and director of summer camps.

"I had 90 (boys and girls) in my camps my first year," said Nick O'Shea, who is in the fifth year of sponsoring a summer soccer camp in Livonia.
"I'll have between 300 and 350 this year."

SPORTS CAMPS have become so popular it seems everyone wants to get in on the act. OU added baseball and diving to its list of offerings this summer, bringing its total to 17 sports. Every school, every coach has them. Indeed, a coach who doesn't run at least one summer camp just doesn't want to. And every camp coach will insist theirs is not just an elaborate babysitting service, with more fun than instruction.

Now, a suspicious guy — like yours truly — would figure some coaches have an ulterior motive. Like money; with such a demand, they've got to pulling in big bucks, right?

Or, where college coaches are concerned, perhaps the camps serve as a recruiting tool. O'Shea, who coaches girls' soccer at both Livo-nia Churchill and Schoolcraft College, agreed with both — to an extent. "Oh yeah," he said. "You can definitely make money in it."

But O'Shea is an exception to that rule. Sort of. A standout at SC and OU and a former pro soccer player, O'Shea opened a soccer store in Livonia and started his camps before becoming a coach at either school. So unlike most of his contemporarRisak ies, coaching came after his camps were estab-

AS FAR as recruiting is concerned, consider first that most camp participants are 14 and under. Hard to pick sure-fire collegiate stars at that age, then convince them to come to the school where you coach in another four years.

Not that it doesn't happen. Ask basketball star Chris Wobber.

Chris Webber.

Of course he's an exception. Still, those running camps at SC and OU do some selling.

But as Kampe put'it, in camps at smaller schools the only real recruiting is just making kids aware of the school and the programs it has to offer. "The camps bring Oakland University recognition," he said. A public relations gimmick,

And the money? "This isn't like University of Michigan, where Bill Frieder might pull in a hundred thousand dollars with his camp," said Kampe, only half in jest. "Til make a little bit of money, enough to make it worthwhile. But when I first started my camps, I didn't make anything."

Gary Parsons, the OU soccer coach, easily has the most popular and successful sports camp at the most popular, and successful, sports camp at the school. It's estimated that between 700 and 800 of the total campers this summer will be enrolled in soccer.

And yet, the payoff is minimal. The reason: The university gets over 50 percent of the profits, with the money going into the school's athletic budget.

THE PAYOFF isn't much, either. Kampe figured camp profits would make up about three percent of the athletic budget. "What we make in said.

At SC, the split is different. While no coach gets 50 percent of the money generated by his camp at OU — the division differs per sport, with an average of about 40 percent to the coaches, the rest to the school — at SC the split is 60 percent to the coach, 40 percent to the school.

But understand, while the recognition for the school is nice and the groundwork for recruiting a player sometime in the future is laid, the financial benefits are still there.

fits are still there. Van Dimitriou, the men's soccer coach at SC, has seen his boys' camp grow steadily through the last decade. And the money generated? "It helps," he admitted. "Not only myself, but the college.

"I HAVE a full-time job (as a high school counselor) and this helps supplement the income. I think I could still coach without camps, but it helps. With two kids in college, it helps."

Dimitriou will also run five other soccer camps this summer, and he termed these "the most profitable." Why? There's no split with a school in-

Parents wondering which camp to send their youngsters off to should consider all these things - the motive of the coach running the camp, the size, what's offered, and, of course, the cost.

But most of all, parents should consider what good a camp does their prospective athlete. Because, unlike their predecessors - most summ camps of the '50s and '60s were generalized, with no single sport as a focal point — these camps should teach and should refine.

Do the camps mentioned meet this requirement? Checking the won-lost record of the coach running the camp may not be the best evaluation; instead, find out how school and/or club teams in the area have been affected.

Success there — like soccer in Detroit's suburbs would indicate someone is doing more than babysitting.

DT: Just a 'comic'

MOVING PICTURES

With Big Boy Caprice (Al Pacino) at large, no one is safe, including Dick Tracy's devoted girffriend, Tess Trueheart (Glenne Headly) in "Dick Tracy."

Stylized 'Tracy' holds true to spirit of comic

Walt Disneyworld and Touchstone Pictures staged the ultimate Hollywood premiere Thursday night for thousands of media personalities, contest winners and other glitterati from all across the country. Parades, shows, fireworks - all this for a comic strip character, "Dick Tracy" (A., PG, 105 minutes).

After multiple screenings on 10 AMC screens at Walt Disneyworld's

Pleasure Island entertainment complex grayone was bused to the Dis-ney-MGM Studios for a buffet dinner, entertainment and parade of the film's stars. Dick Tracy (Warren Beatty), Tess Trueheart (Glenne Headly) and Mumbles (Dustin Hoffman) were among those handprint-ing the cement in front of replica of Grauman's Chinese Theater. The evening concluded with spectacular fireworks, narrated by Vin-

And there was plenty of sparkle in (Beatty) steps out of the funny pa-pers to combat the evil underworld. First its Lips Manlis (Paul Sorvino) with his girl, Breathless Mahoney (Madonna), headlining the show at Lips' Club Ritz where 88 Keys (Mandy Patinkin) tickles the ivories.

But had news is just around the corner in the person of Big Boy Caprice (Al Pacino) who sets out to organize the underworld. Naturally, he appointed himself chairman of the board.

MANY OF Chester Gould's original comic strip characters are on hand for what Disney obviously hopes will be this summer's block-buster film. Figuring prominently in the action are Primeface (R.G. Armstrong), Plattop (William Porsythe), Numbers (James Tolkan) and Mum-

Naturally, Dick Tracy's got a few helpers — Pat Patton (James Keane), Sam Catchem (Seymour Castel) and, of course, Chief Brandon (Charles Durning), to whom, as comic strip lovers will remember, Tracy often said on his two-way wrist radio, "I'll get right on it, Chief."
On the homefront, let's not forge

Tess Trueheart (Glenne Headly) and as an extra, added attraction, Kid (Charlie Korsmo). He's a young boy who should be at home but winds up as Tracy's faithful (and helpful) case in point. This cleverly case in point. This cleverly conceived psychological thriller and love story originally played in April at the Detroit Film Theatre. It returns for a limited run at the Maple Theatre in Bloomfield.

Bonnaire, the amoral heroine of films like "Vagabond," is one of the most sensual women in French films

As the film develops along with their intimacy, we question her mo-tives. When a young woman is found murdered in a vacant lot nearby, we wonder if the quietly repressed Hire is behind it. The film keeps an audience marvelously on edge.

THE MATERIAL is based on two sources. Georges Simenson's novel "Les Fiancailles de Monsieur Hire" was originally adapted for the screen by Julien Duvivier as "Pan-ique" (1946). The new film's director, Patrice Leconte, has shown an admiration for both works and then gone off into new directions.

There are also little clues in the mise en scene. Alice, upon entering Hire's little rooms, notices a photograph from his school days. She recognizes immediately that the fat little boy obviously not allied with the others has skipped childhood altogether. He has grown old well before

And the audience is taken into the gaze. Like the woman in the apartment across the way, the movie has a seductive, hypnotic quality that — underscored by Michael Nyman's haunting music - won't let you turn

VIDEO VIEWING

By Dan Greenberg special writer

Two documentaries about areas crucial to world peace, areas of ma-jor significance on the international scene - the Middle East and Indonam) - are now available for home video viewers — "Israel's Shattered ms" (1907, color, no rating, 173 tes) and "Peter Jounings Re-ng From the Killing Fleids"

(1990, color, no rating, 150 minutes).

The first, "Israel's Shattered Dream" is in English, Hebrew and Arabic with sub-titles for those last two languages. It is a much-touted British documentary film, directed by Victor Schonfeld and produced by him and Jennifer Milestone. Unfortunately, both politically and cinematically, it falls short of its highly touted critical assessments.
"Shattered Dream" is a confused

"Shattered Dream" is a confused jumble of historical footage, current interviews and contemporary actuality shots with voice-over commentary by Jack Klaff. In this context, "current" and "contemporary" presumably mean just prior to its 1967 release. The fact that viewers must assume that and have absolutely no way of knowing when the historical footage was shot is a fatal flaw for a documentary which pretends to deal accurately with issue

As any film goer will testify, images may be arranged and re-arranged to prove almost anything. Seen any good science fiction lately?

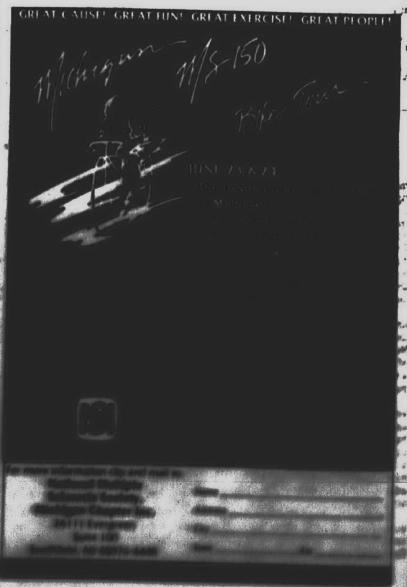

government is still fighting the Vietnam War even though that means supporting — directly or indirectly Pol Pot and the Khmer Rouge. The world seems to have forgotten that these criminals killed at least a million of their own people, the the U.S. left Vietnam. THIS GENOCIDE was detailed in

Sidney Schanberg's Pulitzer Prizewinning N.Y. Times story about his Cambodian photographer, Dith Pran. That story later became an Oscarwinning film, "The Killing Fields." Despite all this, the U.S. government supports the Khmer Rouge in order to continue the battle against the Vietnamese

That premise and the background of the Indo-Chinese conflict is well-defined in the Jennings News Spe-cial. The "Forum" which follows is even more fascinating with an incredible collection of personalities in the studio discussing the issues.

It's a fascinating, carefully moderated exchange that, with the Jennings documentary, ought to be required viewing in every American to be rican ? For a singer/songwriter who has a sure thing, Joel Boyea doesn't sound

"They're going to tear me up," said Boyea, between sips of a Coca-Cola. "The British tabloid press reviews all of Utility's records. I'm interested in what they have to say, but I'm scared."

Boyea is somewhat frightened only because his songs are truly his. Like a diary, they're personal feelings Boyea has captured in music.

Music that the Livonia Bentley High School graduate plans to share with all of Europe. If all goes to schedule, Boyea's first album will be released sometime in the fall on Utility Records, the independent label founded by British political folkie Billy Bragg.

The yet-to-be titled LP will be distributed to all of Europe. Ideally, a major independent stateside will fol-

All the songs are completed, just some remixing needs to be finished. Boyea enlisted the services of Hippodrome cohorts, guitarist Chris Richards and drummer Doyl Dean, on the nine-song project, which was recorded at Dave Feeny's Tempermill Stu-

The music itself is a rich tapestry of electric folk and pop, ushered along with well-written lyrics that at times bleed hurt and uncertainty. The dubbed tape of a rough mix Boyea passes along is simply brilliant.

But back to this Billy Bragg thing. Who, what, where and why? Even Boyea is a bit amazed at what has transpired in the past year.

THE STORY goes like this. Boyea played briefly in high school with a rock'n'roll outfit. He then went to college at Western Michigan University and, for the most part, gave up performing.

With the emergence of Suzanne Vega and Tracy Chapman, though, Boyea got the hankering to play again. He picked up his guitar for the first time in two years and began

Later, Boyea wanted to put together a demo tape. He chose three numbers of his own and another a cover version of a Billy Bragg song. On a whim, he sent the tape to Engwriting songs.

land for Bragg to have a listen.
Then a telegram followed. Bragg's managers wanted Boyea to call them immediately.

"I thought they were going to sue me," Boyea said. "I couldn't sleep the night before. I was really scared.

"I talked to Peter Jenner (Bragg's manager). He said (Boyea in an Englishman's voice) 'No, we're not going to sue you. We like the tape and we want to know if you'll play some shows with us."

As it turned out, Boyea was only able to perform one gig with Bragg in Cleveland. But Bragg and Boyea hit it off immediately, sharing a laugh about the parody rockumentary "Spinal Tap."

In his one gig, Bragg liked what he heard and told Boyea his label would release an album of his work. End of story? Not quite.

ALONG WITH knocking the album into shape, Boyea is tackling that ever evasive skill of performing live. That aspect of being a singer is a new arena for him. He recently made his Detroit debut, performing at the Hamtramck Pub. The show went well, but left Boyea with a task list of needed improvements.

Slowly, he's gaining confidence in his music that certainly will be a sound for sore ears on the hard rock heavy local scene.

For a long time I thought, 'God these songs will never stand up as powerful as other bands because of the volume.' But they do. They're the volume. But they do. They're clean and they're easy to listen to."

Easy to understand, perhaps, but for Boyea they were very difficult to write. His most poignant numbers center around two failed romantic relationships while attending college. In both cases, the women moved away to attend colleges elsewhere.

Without sounding like self-indul-gent melancholy, Boyea expresses his feelings metaphorically as in the numbers "Table for One" or "Pouring Rain." The sound is crisp and almost frentic, but flows with ease.

With college out of the way (Boyea recently graduated with a bachelor's degree in education from WMU), his major inspiration for songs (tenuous relationships: lovers, friends and otherwise) could well have dried up. Boyea, though, sees himself dabblin in the overt political muses such as those of his musical hero Billy Bragg a devout socialist.

"His music is very serious, but he has this funny side to him. He's got a subtle sense of humor," Boyea said.

A secret memo leaked from the U.S. Post Office reveals that every household will soon be assigned their own personal letter carrier. This move means the hiring of 100 million new postal employees and a rise in postage from 25 cents to $450 per

Think I'm joking? According to Tom Parker's "In One Day," Americans now receive 5,000 tons of advertising mail every single day! That's 62 billion pieces a year - and

This deluge of unwanted mail is already causing changes in technology and lifestyle:

(1) The postal service is switching from the traditional Jeep vehicle to a fleet of dump trucks. With a capacity of 15 cubic yards, each dumper can completely bury a bungalow under fast-food coupons.

(2)THE AVERAGE person now spends 15 hours a week sifting mail. To save time, busy families are installing the new "Junk Detector." Attached to your mailbox, it electronically scans incoming mail. Everything with bulk rate postage or Ed McMahon's picture on it is automatically shredded.

Most aggravating mail falls into a few repeating categories like foot doctors and quickie oil changes. Some of the worst offenders are:

The mother wrote of her conflict-ing feelings and frustration in ac-cepting her daughter and addressing her needs within the immediate and extended family. She signed the let-ter "Imprisoned."

Street Scene has a great scene for vou - the finish line and post-race party area at the Roadrunner Classic in Livonia July 28.

Nearly 1,500 runners - some sleek collegiate track stars, some little kids, some grandmothers, some skinny, some fat, some fast, a lot slow - will gather in Veteran's Park that Saturday evening for their choice of a one-mile run or an eightkilometer (4.97-mile) run, followed by plenty of food, cold beer and hours of dancing in the parking lot.

The food and drink and dancing sounds like fun - right? But it's too bad you have to go through all that work to begin with - right again? Wrong. Believe it or not, the racing is fun, too.

Don't look for super hero when looking for Tracy

It's hard to believe he got his start taking a punch at a transvestite. Ahh, but more on that later.

Dick Tracy was born from the front pages of the early 1930s newspapers. It was a time of gangster wars and prohibition when the innocent were often victims.

In 1931 Chester Gould pitched an idea for a comic strip to Chicago Tribune Syndicate president Joseph Medill Patterson. Patterson - who was famous for nurturing comic strips including Little Orphan Annie, the Gumps and Gaso-line Alley — liked Gould's character, an intrepid tough guy called Plainclothes Tracy, but suggested Gould change the name to "Dick" Tracy - Dick being the vernacular for a cop or detective.

THE REST, as the cliche goes, is history.

In his very first appearance, Dick Tracy was called in by the chief of police to look at a lineup of suspects because he was the only witness to a robbery.

Tracy quickly scanned the lineup and determined the culprit was not present. As he and the chief left by way of the holding area, Tracy spied a woman sitting alone in a iail cell and asked if he could see

And then he took a swing at her. The police chief was, not surprisingly, nonplused and demanded Tracy explain himself.

"Take it easy chief - didn't you see how she dodged? You never saw a woman dodge like that did you?" Tracy replied as he ripped off the woman's wig and hat. "Just as I thought. None other than 'Pinkie, the Stabber,' ex-boxer and stickup ace and the man that robbed the hotel."

A fight ensued and Tracy, naturally, won. "Well, there's your man, chief - and when it comes to women, all I can say is you pick 'em rough — plenty rough."

ACCORDING TO Lauren Kline of Tribune Media Services, the syndicate that owns the comic strip, Dick Tracy is currently running in almost 150 newspapers, including 25 foreign newspapers, with a com-bined readership of more than 20

In addition to Dick Tracy's many English-speaking readers, the strip is also printed in Japanese, Spanish

In its heyday, the strip was published in more than 600 newspapers, but Dick Tracy is enjoying a recent resurgence as interest in the character is fanned by the movie. Fifteen new papers, including such notables as the Philadelphia Enquirer, the Houston Chronicle, the Dallas Times Herald and the Rocky Mountain News, have picked up Dick Tracy since March,

Dick Tracy is more than just a comic strip; it is as much editorial as entertainment, according to essavist Richard Marshall, writing in "Dick Tracy: America's Most Famous Detective" (Citadel Press.,

While Dick Tracy emphasizes humor, action, plot and character development, it also presents a morality play with one overall theme - crime is evil; evil must be pun-

"No citizen is safe and too often the decent, hard-working Joe minding his own business is drawn into horrific circumstances; all people suffer from crime, indirectly at least," Marshall writes.

In a world gone wrong, there was a need for a white knight, an avenging angel — Dick Tracy was Gould's answer, Marshall con-

GOULD'S MESSAGE is clear: villains are evil and they do evil things. They shoot innocents, kidnap children, and even assassinate each other, but in Dick Tracy, justice is served. Gould found little in spiration in other comic strips of his time. Tarzan and Flash Gordon. Dick Tracy's immediate predecessors, were heroes out of touch with their readership.

Dick Tracy and the villains he battled were ripped straight from the daily headlines. In fact, Tracy's first Nemesis, Big Boy Caprice, was modeled after the 1920-30s' most notorious gangster, Al Ca-caught on like gangbusters.

Max Allan Collins, the writer of the Dick Tracy since 1977 and perhaps the most knowledgeable Dick Tracy scholar since Chester Gould died in 1985, said Dick Tracy appeals to people because he is a larger than life hero going up against larger than life villains.

"Dick Tracy is nothing without his villains," Collins said.

All heroes must have their Nemesis with which he is compared or the hero loses his mystique, Collins said. If a hero has no challenges, no one who can potentially beat him, people lose inter-

In testament to Gould's creation. few heroes have seen as many of their villains become a part of Americana as Dick Tracy, Collins continued. Flattop, the Brow, Prune-face, 88 Keyes, Mumbles, Mrs. Pruneface, the Blank — the list COLLINS SAID he is often asked about the odd names and bizarre abnormalities Gould gave to Tracy's villains — "Considered silly today, they are actually more significant than people realize.

"You must remember that when Tracy began, gangsters often had nicknames — Baby Face Nelson, Legs Diamond Scar Face — that's where many of Gould's creations.

come from," he said. "A lot of them had a basis in fact."

For example, Flattop is clearly Pretty Boy Floyd — both were ruthless hired guns, both came from the Plains states and both had similar personalities.

The villain's physical abnormali-ties were made to reflect the names, Collins said. "The crazy names and faces is taking reality one step beyond."

And where villains lurk, violence is not far behind, he said.

ic strip was unprecedented, Collins said. Bullet wounds, corpses, burning bodies — all were staples of the early Dick Tracy strips.

USE OF violence was necessary, Gould thought, because although Dick Tracy is larger than life, he is still very much a man and the issues he tackles are often current and real, Collins said. "Gould always considered himself to be in competition with the front page, not the other comic strips.

Artist succeeds after 'brutal' start

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Elise Covlin of New Mexico did a sharp about-face with her career in her mid 20s. That was five years ago when she went from petroleum engineer to furniture artist and as a result she has a love of life and her work that's hard to top.

Now, instead of sitting in front of a computer in a Denver office building, she's building, designing and painting furniture in rural New Mexico. Her furniture is on display at Mesa Arts 32800 Franklin Road, Franklin

Not that it was easy. Her decision to make the change came after a lot of thought and re-evaluating, done while she went for a 7,000 mile bike ride in Australia. "That changes you, you see things differently," said the pretty, slim blond with the aqua eyes and the kind of facial bone structure that will still be great 50 years from

What she had seen before she left was herself sitting in front of a computer "living the same day over and over." What she saw after she returned was herself being an artist and living the kind of life she loved.

She described the process of getting started in business as "brutal," adding, "but, I had a total commitment.

SHE GREW UP in a family that loved and collected art. She had made her furniture for herself when she was 17, "I've been making art ever since I was a little kid," she said. "My father painted, my parents collected - they made regular trips to Taos to collect art. That was a great influence on my life. And believing you can do it is half the bat-when she drove a truckload of her things to a store in Santa Fe "and they bought every piece on the truck." She sent a lot of pictures of her work to a shop in New York City and was told to ship everything. "I work from 6 a.m. to midnight every day of the year," she said " then in the shop building She uses pine and likes to let the wood, particularly the knots, dictate how things will go. She pointed out how she lets the wood grain show through the acrylic paint, which seems to be applied thin so it doesn't for.

Covlin has hit the world market at as throughout the United States. But, ing and her things carry a kind of makes them.

She said she will be shipping more to Mesa Arts in August. Meanwhile she has a show in Chicago to prepare

Now that she has work in many galleries, she's hired a helper who works with her. She does the designs and all the painting and still does some of the building when she feels like it.

Her home and studio are a ranch 15 miles north of Taos where she keeps several horses and two Rhodesian ridge backs (dogs). She said when she started she made smaller pieces such as jewelry boxes (there are some in the current show). The smaller pieces would turn over more quickly. Work smart, plan ahead

Q: I'm getting discouraged at work. I work hard and always have too much to do, yet it seems like I continually have bad luck. The last thing to happen was I got beaten out of a promotion by someone who's only been there half as long as I have. Somehow it seems I'm always a "day late and a

A: From the tone of your question, I'd say you need to learn two lessons: 1) To stay in control of the present by working smart and 2) to plan ahead. I realize this is easier said than done.

Working smart means calculating the value of the results of your actions and concentrating on your most important tasks. (Never underestimate the value of staying organized as one of those important issues.) Since I've written much on Lesson No. 1 before, I will elaborate on Lesson No. 2 to-

Advance planning is vital to success and no business, government or individual can remain successful without it. People don't usually fail because of bad luck - they fail because of lack of anticipation. In other words, they don't plan to fail - they fall to plan.

Planning ahead saves time in the long run. Too many managers come up short on their budgets and are forced to do work the hard way because they failed to anticipate peripheral needs. Some great social events have been missed because of incomplete office work that had to be done.

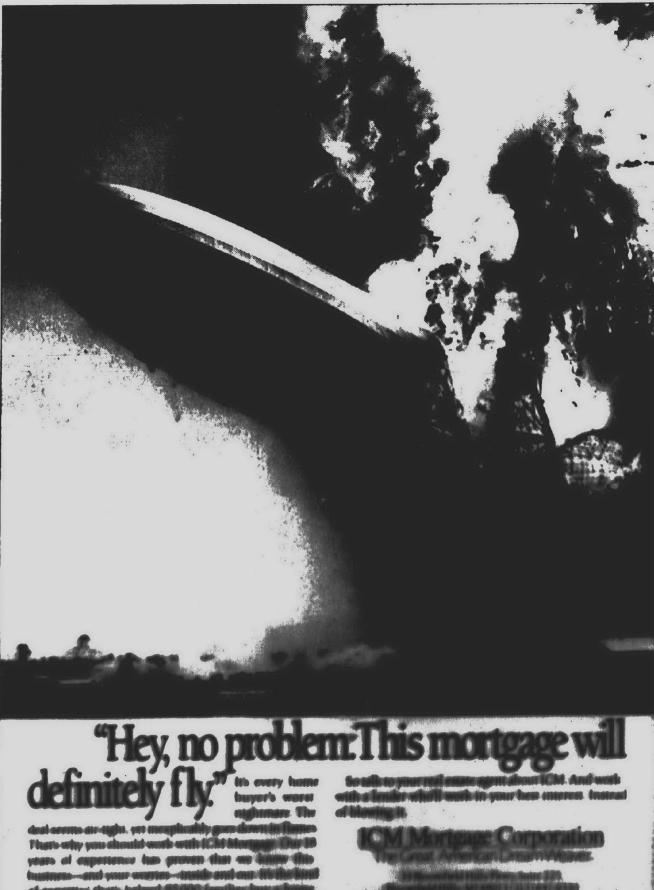

One General Motors executive told me recently after a hiring freeze was lifted another department head complained that before she could fulfill the requirements necessary to hire another person, the freeze was reinstated. When he remarked he had hired someone the day the openings occurred, she asked incredulously, "How did you do that so quickly?" He smiled and answered. Because I had already picked out the individual I wanted and when the opportunity arose, I grabbed

In planning ahead, it is necessary to "question the daylights out of it," as one IBM manager says she does. "You have to keep coming back with questions about how something will work, what will be necessary to accomplish a project, what roadblocks might be encountered, etc. You have to know what questions to ask and just keep pounding away at what may be needed ahead of time — whether it's a sales call, an annual budg or a planning meeting with the vice president she said. If you don't know what questions to as find someone to help you learn them.

A good bidding rule in the game of bridge is know before you bid what your response will be to your partner's answer. Try applying this rule to your life. By anticipating possibilities and plan-

Tower I of Columbia Center in Troy will be joined by a second tower, now under construction, a good sign according to Byron Trerice's Leo R. Tosto. "Once building drops off significantly, people get the perception that local real estate is devaluating."

Rent clubhouse to church?

queries Robert M.

Melsner

Our condominium is thinking about renting out our clubhouse for use as a Sunday school service for a local church. The board says that they will be paid approximately $50 per Sunday and thinks it is contributing the clubhouse for a good cause. Do you have any comments?

This is a particularly controversial issue because the establishment of a church at the condominium may well be a violation of the "commercial activi-" section of the condominium documents. It is more difficult when you consider that there are members of the association who may disagree with the use of the clubhouse for any religious institution of any type. They may argue that the use by the church is no different than a member of the association using the clubhouse for a personal property or a business gathering. Others may argue that it is no different than allowing an aerobics class in the clubhouse because presumably members of the association may be able to use it and renting the use of the clubhouse for a church is, in effect, a good deed. I would suggest that you have your association attorney thoroughly review your condominium documents and provide you with an opinion regarding the legal and perhaps the political remifications of this decision. It may be very similar to the controversy created by the abortion issue.

I am writing in regard to a continuous problem I have had with my basement flooding in my con-dominium. I have lived in the condominium for 1% years and the basement has flooded four times. My unit is 10 years old. Neither the management company nor the association has done anything to resolve the problem. Each time the basement floods, a company has been out to take care of the flooding, but it comes back a year later. Is the association responsible to fix the problem and are the previous owners responsible for any other obligations I me since I was never informed of the problem before buying the unit?

You have asked a very complex series of questions. First, it would be necessary to review your condominium documents to confirm that the condominium association is responsible for taking care of the basement of your unit. In many condominim documents, the passesses of the association has the responsibility to a different replace it if necessary. Assumed the company of case um documents, the basement is a com ain, repair and replace it if ne at is the case, there may be a number of case basement leak problem from rod holes to em from rod holes to im nt drainage. If your association has been un-sasful in obtaining a competent contractor, you

Ranked among the 30 least expensive major office markets, the Detroit area is well below the international average at $24 per square foot, according to a global office market survey by Colliers International Property consultants, released by the Byron W. Trerice Co. in Birmingham.

The international average is $36 per square foot. Byron Trerice is an owner/member of Colliers, a federation of independent real estate firms with more than 100 offices world-

The report lists only market averages. Prices within the market can vary depending on the local community and the incentives a building owner uses to attract investors.

Companies use the report to determine if offices are paying too much, when looking toward expansion to see what they can expect to pay for office space and for general cost comparisons, Tosto said.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN office rent levels and conditions across the world are heightened because there is no stock market for real estate to establish the daily value of space, Tosto said.

Tokyo has the most expensive rental rate average at $192 per square foot and Denver has the lowest rate at $13 per square foot.

Other selected market averages include Toronto and Washington, D.C., the North American leaders, at $49 per square foot; New York at $45; Chicago at $39; Los Angeles at $35; and Cincinnati at $26.

By the way, Jakarta, Indonesia, tops the Detroit area at $27 per square foot.

Several factors cause the lower lease rates, Tosto said, notably the diversification of southeast Michi-

Tosto said the fact that southeastern Michigan is not as overbuilt as other major office areas is also help-

"For example, we may have a two-year supply, but others have a four-year supply," Tosto said. While it's true massive overbuilding would create huge office vacancies and push prices down for tenants, the result would be an unhealthy office market. "Once building drops off signifiunforeseen anti-development measures or an economic crash, office rates in the area should remain stable for two to four years.

Is Your Vehicle Prepared For Vacation Motoring?

The answer will likely be a confident, "Yes," if all the items on this list are checked and necessary maintenance performed. Some of the items listed below will require assistance from a professional mechanic, although many may easily be performed by car owners themselves. A few other service items may require am ore experienced do-ityourselfer.

Will it overheat?

- ☐ Check hoses. They should be firm, but flexible with no cracks, bulges or soft spots. Check connections for leaks.
- Check belts. When pushed with a finger, they should not "give" more than one-half inch. They should show no signs of fraying, wear or age.
- Check radiator coolant. (Do not remove radiator cap.) The recovery tank should be filled to "cold" mark.
- ☐ Check pressure. Test cooling system with pressure to determine if there are any leaks.
- Check radiator cap. It must hold pressure.

Will it keep you cool?

☐ Check air conditioner. If it is not working effectively, it may need a shot of freon.

Will its tires survive?

- ☐ Check tire pressure. Owner's manual will give proper tire pressure for your car.
- Check condition of all tires. There should be no excessive wear, cuts or other abrasions.
- Check spare tire. Its pressure and condition are important too.

Is it wasting fuel?

- Check spark plugs. If they are worn or have dirty deposits on firing end, replace them. Check gap on each to determine if it meets your car's specifica-
- Check air filter and PCV valve also requires periodic replacement.
- Tune up the engine. This includes inspection of points (if equipped), ignition wires, and distributor cap and adjustment of timing and carburetor idle set-

Are its inner workings lubricated?

- Check oil. Examine dipstick and fill if necessary. Change oil at mileage listed in owner's manuel.
- Replace oil filter, when recommended in owner's manual.
- ☐ Check transmission fluid. Check level when engine is running and warm and gearshift is in park.

Is it safe?

- ☐ Check brake fluid. Fluid should be 1/4inch from top of reservoir.
- ☐ Check brakes. Examine brake linings, pads, drums, discs, etc., for wear of degradation.
- ☐ Check all lights. Headlights (low and high beam), tail lights, brake lights, parking lights, instrument panel lights and all turn signal lights must be functioning.
- Check horn.
- ☐ Check exhaust system for leaks.

INTERRUPTED TRIP-The heat of summer can play havoc with cars that have been neglected, and can bring happy vacations to a screeching halt.

- ☐ Check windshield wipers. They should be working and able to clear moisture without streaking, skipping or smearing. If not, replace them.
- Check windshield washer system. Washer pump should be working and reservoir filled with fluid.
- ☐ Check power steering fluid. Examine dipstick when engine is warm.
- Clean windows and mirrors. Visibility is; essential for safe driving.

Will it start?

- ☐ Tune engine, Ignition systems, including spark plugs, wires, timing distributor and coil must be functioning properly for sure starts.
- ☐ Check the battery. If it is not a maintenance-free battery, check the fluid level and fill if necessary. Clean any corrosion from battery terminals. Test battery for charge; winter may have eroded some of its power.

How does it handle?

☐ Check shock absorbers or struts. Worn out shocks alter a car's handling characteristics, make the ride less comfortable and increase tire wear.

- ☐ Check universal joints, tie rod ends, ball joints and steering linkage. Failure of any of these can lead to an acci-
- ☐ Check wheel alignment. Problems can lead to steering difficulty and prematurely worn tires. Many newer cars require alignment service on all four

Why are diamonds considered the ultimate symbol of love?

Nature invests millions of years of great heat and pressure to crystal-lize a single diamond, which is the hardest natural substance known to man. Found in its natural octahedral form, a diamond appears as two pyramids base to base, which in the early ages, could not be split. Thus, the diamond became a natural symbol of an impenetrable bond, representing enduring and eternal love. The mysterious inner fire of a diamond was likened by some to love's pas-

Pigs sprinting around a 150-oval track in pursuit of an Oreo cookie is not something you can see everyday.

But you can see pig racing each day of the Livonia Spree, Tuesday through Sunday, at Ford Field Diamond No. 4. And it's free!

ROBINSON'S RACING Pigs, operated by Paul and Carlota Robinson of Tampa, Fla., made its first appearance at Spree in 1988 and was a crowd favorite again last year.

Oreo cookies are used to motivate the pigs to race up to six times a day. Two races are held for each half-hour show. The animals run at about 15 miles per hour, and so each race lasts only about seven seconds.

p.m. on Tuesday; 5, 5:30, 7, 7:30, 9 and 9:30 p.m. on Thursday and Friday; 3:30, 5, 5:30, 7, 7:30, 9, 9:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Robinson's Racing Pigs have become one of the most successful pig breeding-racing businesses in the country since its debut at the 1985 Florida State Fair in Tampa.

"After that first day we knew we had a winner," said Carlota Robinson. "People were interviewing us from sunup to sundown."

WHEN THE show season ended in 1985, the Robinsons and John Capobianco, manager for Creative Outlet of Florida, Inc., decided to turn the race into a travelling attraction.

The Robinsons organized their 64 pigs into six travelling shows and scheduled performances in more than 30 states and Canada. The pigs now perform in about 100 shows per year. A staff of 16 is evenly divided between the pigs' breeding and racing opera-

Four years ago Carlota Robinson and one of her prize races appeared on "The Tonight Show" to help settle a debate as to whether horses or pigs were smarter.

"People say pigs are stupid, but they aren't." said Carlota Robinson. "People also say pigs are dirty, but they are not. Pigs are actually far superior to dogs and cats, and rank only behind people, chimpanzees and dolphins in intelligence.

You have to show them a lot of love, whatever it takes to get them to trust you. During the show, we point out that pigs have gotten a bad reputa-

The pigs travel in their own horse trailer and even have their own starting gate, fencing, and racing silks.

The circus will feature wild animal shows, high wire acts, and other exciting performances - accented by the antics of clowns Normy and Corky.

The next day, the clowns and other circus stars will vie for public attention while parading from Frost Junior High on Stark north of Schoolcraft to Ford Field at Lyndon and Farmington Spree on Parade will begin 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday. Youngsters who wish to join should be at the staging area 3 p.m. to register for a drawing for a new scooter. Children may ride in decorated bicycles, tricycles, Big Wheels, wagons, strollers, etc.

had to cope with changes in their life patterns. Many changes are self imposed, but others were unexpected and required adaptations. Learning to adjust and regroup has turned into a major energy drain. Amazingly, Community Television, be it Public, Educational or Governmental, has begun to play a significant role during transition periods.

Those in the throes of change need to have their purpose clarified. Questions of one's self-worth, quality of one's skills and reinforced peer acceptance may be jarred. In each area the individual can find an outlet within the Community Television structure.

Examples of groups going through change are: youth during the teen years; high school grads seeking out the work-trade force; college grads making the transition into the business arena; those within the work force seeking to enhance their marketability; people who have been laid off or have been transferred; people with relationship changes such as being single, divorced or widowed and most explicitly - retirement.

Such experiences affect all of us at one time or another. Through television workshops, which are available to the general public, any number of people will gather together seeking something to enrich their lives. All age groups come through the studio doors.

The most beautiful part of the television experience is that everyone is welcome and everyone has some talent that can be developed as new skills are learned. The workshops stress hands-on experience and group participation. Recreation and friendships are readily found as everyone learns the new technology. Laughter is frequent as each person finds out first hand what is meant by 'technical difficulties'.

Individuals with physical and/or mental handicaps are also welcome in this barrier-free environment. The television process uses many levels of concentration and temperment. Frankly, the more unique one is, the easier it is to find one's niche within the production team. their philosophy; or folks experiencing transition may seek out support

Once one enters the television environment ideas begin to come during one's daily life away from the studio. For a period of time everyone and everything becomes an object of a potential idea for a television show. I have always found this stage of the process particularly enjoyable. Imaginations are kindled and a freshness is breathed back into one's life.

This very real participation in Community Television is probably what 'hooks' us all. This may be in the form of talk shows either about serious subjects to inform or just to entertain; debates to air views or challenge positions of which may become public policy; dramatizations to learn through role playing or to characterize a familiar play or a new created work of expression: remote or on-location coverage of live or tape-delayed events; local news reporting or commentary; promotional pieces to encourage a better understanding or an organization's purpose or a clarification or their philosophy; or folks experiencing transition may seek out support groups and/or experts to help them in difficult times.

Providing a greater understanding of a group or a problem is just one of the many uses of Community Television. For example: how should we raise our little children today?; What can we do for teenagers to cut down the huge lapses of time of which they loiter and drive around aimlessly in cars?; When do we listen to one of our nations most valuable resources, our retired population?

The television opportunity opens up the doors to a new lease on life. Each day brings purpose, comradery and an opportunity to learn the skills of tomorrow with rich handson experience and to lend one's own special talent to each project.

All in all the people in transition, you and I will find a haven of acceptance and peace if we would just venture through the welcoming doors of our neighborhood Community Access Television Studio.

Oprah Winfrey to host daytime Emmy ceremonies

Talk show host sets good example for daytime

By ANNE WHETLER

Bright, natural and with a style that's uniquely her own, Oprah Winfrey has breathed new life into day-time television. Her earthy charm and rare blend of humor, spontaneity and sensitivity have endeared her to viewers of her daily syndicated talk show.

This week Winfrey will serve as host of "The 17th Annual Daytime Emmy Awards" ceremonies, to air Thursday afternoon, June 28, on ABC. This marks the second time Winfrey, who won an Emmy in 1987 for Outstanding Talk/Service Host, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Winfrey's sincere interest in people and her quickness to share in intense emotions have made her the success she is today, although that was not always the case.

Winfrey got her start in broadcasting her senior year in high school at WVOL in Nashville, which led to a job at WTVF, the CBS affiliate there. She moved on to become a reporter for WJZ in Baltimore, but her special magic did not work there. She had trouble concealing her emotions while covering sad stories. "I'd be reading something and break in to say, 'Wow, that's terrible!" Finally the station sought another assignment for her — as host oi its morning interview show, "People Are Talking." Winfrey knew she had found her niche. "The minute this show was over, I thought, 'Thank God! This is it! I've finally found out what I was meant to do!"

Daytime heartthrob Jon Hensley, who was nominated for an Emmy in his three-year run as Holden Snyder on As The World Turns and who left the show last year, is returning to the daytime drama this summer. And the return to Oakdale of Holden, the farmboy-turned-businessman, is sure to shake up the life of his old love, Lily Walsh (Heather Rattray).

Her success in that format speaks for itself. In 1984 she became host of Chicago's "A.M. Chicago" on WLS, going up against native son talk show host Phil Donahue. After six weeks she surpassed Donahue in the ratings, after seven months her show expanded from 30 minutes to an hour, and in September 1985, the name of the show was officially changed to "The Oprah Winfrey Show." A year later she signed a multi-million dollar contract for the show to go into syndication.

The talk show host's ability to elicit emotions from her guests and her audiences keeps the show at the

"A lot of people aren't concerned that women's husbands are leaving them or fooling around," she generalized about possible topics of her show. "And I realize that, just to the ear and if you read it in print, it may appear to be sleaze. But I sit there and I look at the pain and experience it everyday that these people go through. And I know, I get 3,000 to 4,000 letters a week that our show helps people to change their lives," she said.

Winfrey is often amazed at how her show helps people open up. Guests tell her they do because her show is easier to face than a one-on-one confrontation.

"Once you've told everybody else, it makes it easier to go to speak to the person one-on-one. That's what they tell me," she said. "The shows I love the most are the shows in which I actually come away and I learn something from them. I'm really stimulated."

Dear Candi: GH has always been the soap of intrigue. Nowhere else could we find so many spies in such a small town as Port Charles. Four of the main characters, Robert, Anna, Shawn and Frisco, have all been a member of the WSB at one time or another. Naturally if you were a spy your entire family would be involved as well.

At least that's what the writers would like us to think. The main focus for the women on the show is to follow the men wherever they go. I'm ready for strong women with "real jobs." Characters with substance would be a welcome change.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748. © TV Listing Inc

'Murder, She Wrote' a reunion for Len Cariou, Angela Lansbury

By Polly Vonetes

June 18-June 24

Q: Would you please tell me the name of the actor who appeared in at least three episodes of Murder, She Wrote as an MI-5 agent named Michael Hagerty? Also some background information please. -M.M. Murphy, St. Petersburg, Fla.

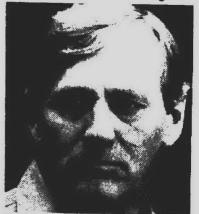

A: Len Cariou has the recurring role of Michael Hagerty on Murder. She Wrote. The Canadian-born actor has devoted most of his distinguished career to the theater, but TV audiences may remember seeing him in Surviving, on ABC Theatre, Madam X on NBC and in Who'll Save The Children? on CBS. He co-starred with Elizabeth Taylor in the filmed version of A Little Night Music, appeared in The Four Seasons and, for Canada's National Film Board, in One Man. He June 17 through June 23 won a Tony for his portrait of the Barber of Fleet Street in Sweeney Todd, starring Angela Lansbury. He is married to actress Heather Summerhay.

Q: Please tell me what you can about a certain singer that I'm very excited to know about. His name is "Babyface." What is his real name, how long has he been in the business, etc.? -Stacey Lewis, Memphis, Ariz.

A: Sometimes, when it seems to take a long time to answer your questions, it could be that the information you seek is not readily available. Your question about singer "Babyface" is one of these. His real name is Kenny Edmunds, he was born in Indiana and was originally a songwriter and producer before taking center stage himself. He and his partner, L.A. Reid. own their own record label called La Face which is based in Atlanta. His current plans do not include a tour.

Q: In the luxury of old age I tend to remember and wonder about "old friends" I never met, but listened to or watched. Can you give me any information about Patti Page and the dance team Veloz & Yolanda, popular in the '30s and '40s? I don't live in the past, but it is pleasant to remember! -Jerry Tierney, Centralia, Wash.

A: Patti Page, formerly known as "The Singing Rage," still makes personal appearances and recently appeared on PBS as hostess of Jukebox Saturday Night II, during the March pledge drive. The dance team of Veloz da Veloz, is married to actor Bernie & Yolanda separated during the Kopell early '70s. Yolanda retired and is Send your questions about the world of living in Los Angeles.
