Township straddles the fence

Neighbors try to avoid barrier for Miller Woods

By Kevin Brown staff writer

Some neighbors of Miller Woods in Plymouth Township have agreed to delay action to seek a fence around the 10-acre site

The controversy over a proposed fence for the woods, owned by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, has pitted two groups of neighbors against one another.

At a meeting Monday with township Municipal Services Director James Anulewicz, both sides agreed to "work to eliminate some of the problems out there and negate the need for a fence," Anulewicz said.

Both sides plan to review the situation in 90 days, before a final decision is made on a possible fence for the site, off Powell Road east of

The Friends of Miller Woods, joined by the Colonial Kiwanis Club of Plymouth, wants to enclose the area with a $16,000 chain link fence covered in green vinyl, to prevent off-road vehicles from entering.

Plant specimens have been ruined by youths on motor bikes and by people who have dumped appliances and garbage in the woods, say members of the friends group.

But another group of Miller Woods neighbors, the Ridegewood Hills subdivision homeowners association, says the fence is not needed, as their members have noticed no off-road vehicles in the area

'None of our people have observed that - We've asked them," said Rudy Blancke, president of the homeowners association

'Aesthetically, it would be bad. It would be a deterrent to an other otherwise open area," said Blancke, who said he's seen deer in the woods.

Friends of Miller Woods was scheduled Wednesday to ask the planning commission for approval to put up the fence, on the wooded area. But at the meeting Monday, both sides agreed that the motion before the planning commission would be delayed for 90 days, Anulewicz said. We agreed to give them a chance," said Evelyn Edgar, of the friends group. She said township officials agreed to draw up an ordinance "that would give them a way to ticket someone that is doing something wrong in there

If that doesn't work, the Kiwanis Club - which plans to pay for the fence - can return to the planning commission to seek approval.

'The woods need to be protected, and fencing is the only way I see to do that," said Bob Evans, a Kiwanis Club member, before school trustees

We don't want to restrict access, but knowing all the development taking place all over, there will be kids who could damage this with wheeled vehicles," added Harold Fischer, another Kiwanis Club mem-

The barking of Collin Wood's dog Bo alerted her to a fire, which she narrowly escaped without injury Saturday.

Dog is 'best friend'; saves teen from fire

By Kevin Brown staff writer

Good dog, Bo! Collin Wood, 17, survived a fire that destroyed her family's Plymouth Township condominium Saturday morning.

And both Collin and township

Fire Chief Larry Groth say Bo, a 16-month-old shelty, probably helped her escape injury

"If it hadn't been for that dog, I don't know what would have happened," she said.

Wood, a senior at Plymouth-Canton High School next fall, added, "I'm almost positive he did save

Was Bo a hero? "In my opinion he was," Groth said. "She's very fortunate to be alive today At about 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Wood awoke to the sound of the dog barking. "I guess it was because the smoke was coming under the door. he woke me up," she said.

The smoke was caused by a kitchen fire, started after a coffee pot was left on in the kitchen of the Wood family condominium, on Ann Arbor Road just west of Sheldon. The rest of the family had gone out for breakfast. "It burned through the counter into the counter top," Groth said.

After waking, Collin said she noticed Bo was shivering, and picked him up to comfort him.

'I kept hearing the house creak, I thought that people were in the house. But it was probably the fire that was creaking," she said.

Soon, "I opened the door - It was just filled with black smoke," she said. The smoke kept her from escaping.

"I went to the window and 'If it hadn't been for that dog, I don't know what would have happened.'

- Collin Wood

First to arrive on the scene was a Plymouth Township policeman, who couldn't reach the second story bedroom because of the fire and smoke. Groth said

But soon after, firefighters arrived on the scene.

"They came and put a ladder up and I handed them the dog," Collin said, before coming down the ladder herself.

One firefighter was overcome by smoke, and treated at McCauley Urgent Care and released. "Her (Wood's) face had the black soot on it," Groth said, but she didn't require medical attention.

Five trucks and 14 firefighters responded to the call, and returned to the station at 2 p.m. Groth said the fire caused a $30,000 property loss, and another $30,000 loss in the family's personal possessions.

There was also $10,000 in damage to a condo unit to the west, damaged by the fire, Groth said.

"That's not the first time in the township a dog has saved a family," the chief said, by barking to alert them of a fire.

On Tuesday, Collin hugged the og in the family's room at Plymouth Raddison Hotel, as her mother Jean made phone calls in search of a house to rent.

Collin stressed that firefighters were helpful, and said that in addition to being active in pom-pon and student council this fall, "I also want to talk to students about fire safety.

City opts for bag-tag plan to cover rising trash costs

By Kevin Brown staff writer

The trash bag-tag program touted by the city of Plymouth's administration has won initial approval from city commissioners. On Monday, commissioners directed city officials to draw up an ordinance to set out how the program will be implemented in Plymouth, sometime in September or October.

"The resolution directs the city manager and city attorney to continue taking steps to implement the bag-tag program for residential and small commercial users," said City Manager Gordon Jaeger.

The program was touted by the city administration as a way to deal with rising costs charged by the Arbor Hills Landfill in Salem Town-

In the program, residents would be charged an estimated $1 per tag or bag accepted by city crews. The tags or bags will have the city seal and be sold by the city and possibly by specified outlets, said Paul Sin-cock, assistant city manager. City officials will seek to educate residents on the program through fliers and by talking about the program with community groups, Sincock said.

The administration will continue to consider options for the major commercial (trash) program that would meet the needs of business and continue to provide a clean community," Jaeger said.

The resolution passed by commissioners cites "the escalating costs of the collection and disposal of waste, the inability of the city to continue to levy the full costs to property owners, and the desire of the city to improve its city-wide recycling pro-

Tougher penalties for drivers caught with open intoxicants could ease Plymouth's cruising problem, say some city officials.

But Mayor Denis Bila and some city commissioners say that mandating the issuing of tickets part of the proposed policy — could take discretion away from officers on the street.

Police Chief Richard Myers explained the proposed policy to city commissioners on Monday. He said it was sparked in part by the comments of young alcohol abusers now in treatment pro-

"They have told us, "You're (police) not doing us any favors by pulling us over and dumping it (alcohol) out and clearing us out," "Myers said.

Myers suggested that by writing tickets each time open intesticants are found in a car stopped a problem with alcohol.

Myers said the proposed policy "is not age-specific. There's a lot of people in their '30s with the cocktail in their console.

Chief: Get tougher with drinking drivers

Myers said Tuesday he would discuss the policy - which will probably be implemented on a trial basis "to see how it works" - with the two district judges.

GENERALLY, Myers added, the policy has been in practice in the city the past two years. "This is just a way of formalizing it," he said.

"If we crack down on them, we might help solve our cruising problem," added Commissioner "The situation is not getting any better," he said "Maybe it's worth a try."

Commissioner Mary Childs added, "There are a lot of parents who aren't aware that their kids are on the road to alcoholi But Commissioner Jerry Vorva, a former police officer, said "Not every kid is an alcoholic," adding, "I don't want to see officers do a whole lot of paperwork when it isn't necessary '

Vorva did agree with Myers that parents should be contacted each time a youth is stopped for drinking in public or in a car

"WE SHOULD always take the least necessary action instead of the greatest," Vorva said, adding the writing of tickets could generate administrative costs, "and we could end up getting no money

Bila said, "I agree with Jerry on this." He said that mandating a new policy won't help identify

Fund-raisers planned for DARE this summer

If you're interested in taking a DARE for kids, get out a pencil and your calendar.

The Community Flip for the Drug Abuse Resistance Education pancake breakfast is planned for 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, July 28, at 500 S. Harvey, Plymouth.

The program is sponsored by Community Federal Credit Union, in conjunction with the Plymouth/Canton DARE advisory board, the Michigan State Police and the Plymouth-Canton schools.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for children.

Proceeds go to DARE programs aimed at showing youths how to resist peer pressure to experiment with and use harmful drugs.

"The unique feature of Project DARE is the use of police officers as instructors and fesource persons," according to Canton officer Leonard Schemanske, a DARE instructor.

IN ANOTHER program DARE is sponsoring a car wash 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 23, at the First of America Bank, 41652 Ford Road, Canton. For more information, call Money will go to buy DARE Tshirts, baseball caps, bumper stickers and other informational material. Students will be instructed in the DARE program.

It is believed that this fall, every fifth grader in the Plymouth-Canton school district will have 17 weeks of DARE instruction one day a week for one semester, Schemanske said.

The bank is located on the north side of Ford Road west of Haggerty

Anyone interested in washing cars should call DARE officers at 397-

Four Questions to Ask Your Pharmacist

A large number of consumers routinely ask their pharmacists about over-the-counter (OTC) products for headache, cough, cold, skin ra.h, PMS, arthritis - the list goes on and on. When talking with your pharmacist about such products, ask these four questions

1. Will this medicine cure my health problem? While most OTCs do not cure health problems, relief of bothersome symptoms may be achieved.

2. How much should I take? The U.S. Food and Drug Admi requires that doses for adults and children be printed on OTC product package materials. Discuss the dose with your pharmacist

3. How long should I take the medicine? This has much to do with the nature of the condition. If symptoms "come and go," as in the case of fever che, and colds, a few hours or days of there

Bargain-hunters to find unusal items at garage sale

By Leonard Poger staff writer

If you are a garage sale fan looking for bargains in computers, windmills, lawnmowers or printing presses, the parents of the Penrickton Center for Blind Children have something for you.

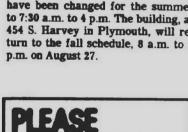

Donna Green, whose son is one of the 25 Detroit and suburban students at the private school, said she has been working for the past five months on what she describes as "more than just a garage sale."

It has become a mission for her and volunteers working on the project, scheduled for 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. today, tomorrow and Saturday at St. John Lutheran School, on Wayne Road south of Glenwood in

"We held our first sale two years ago and raised $2,000," said Green, 45. "The next year, we doubled our proceeds to $4,000. Now we want to double it again."

Board changes office hours

Office hours at the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education building have been changed for the summer to 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. The building, at 454 S. Harvey in Plymouth, will return to the fall schedule, 8 a.m. to 5

ALL THE items at the sale are donated, including food to be served to bargain hunters for the three days.

Green has been working with 10 to 12 parents on the sale. Also helping are laid-off General Motors employees who are performing community service work in the company's Job Bank program.

Area businesses are donating items for the sale or sending in checks for the school's support, Green said. Donated items are kept in five large storage lockers in the Proceeds from the event will be used to support the Penrickton School, which has an annual $550,000 operating budget. The center has 35 full-time and part-time employees, including eight professionals The school, on Eureka between Beech Daly and Inkster roads in

Taylor, is privately operated and receives no money from any governmental agency, said Kurt Sebaly, the school's executive director

Money comes through donations from civic and service organizations, a mail campaign, individual contributions and the annual garage

The school doesn't charge parents any fees, but requires that they become involved in the center.

THE EVENT this week will help provide needed money for the school's students, said Sebaly and Green, whose son, Nicky, 7, has been at the facility for three years.

Nicky, who lives at the school during the week and comes home on weekends, has been blind since birth. He is partially deaf and developmentally disabled and had a severe behavioral problem.

Sebaly and Green agreed that the behavior problem has been virtually eliminated and that Nicky is making progress in other areas Green took time out from taking

"Nicky came to our home as a foster child when he was only 2 months old. He is totally blind and deaf in one ear, but as we grew to know and love Nicky, we decided to adopt him.

Initially, the parents were led to believe by professionals that Nicky was untrainable.

"Although his behavior was erratic, we thought this wasn't too unusual, considering his handicaps. We didn't understand the full extend of his disabilities. His teachers felt that he was stubborn, hot-tempered and very manipulative

BUT SHE then heard about the Penrickton Center from a teacher who knew about the center but had never visited it.

Making substantial progress,

Nicky can now ice skate, roller skate, bowl and swim, said his mother

"Nicky may never be 'normal,' but Penrickton has given hope that he will continue to develop." She described the center, which opened in 1952, as a "miracle," not just another school. "It is a place of love and understanding in a sometimes hostile world of misunderstanding." About two years ago, Green, the mother of three birth children and five adopted children, decided to repay the school by organizing and working on the first garage sale. With the proceeds doubling last year, the project became a source of pride for what Green calls a small group of "housewives." 'This year, we wanted to do even more. Although we could never repay the school, we would like to make it possible for the school to do even more than it already has for more and more children.

"This can only be done with more

AMONG THE volunteers for the sale who don't have children at the center was one elderly man in Green's Garden City neighborhood who collected items for the sale for three months and delivered them to the sale's location.

He also gave Green a rusty tobacco can filled with coins. Among the coins was a silver bar valued at $125, Green said.

"This act of love, and many more like it, make all of the work (on the garage sale) worthwhile," Green

Volunteers are "overwhelmed" by the generosity of others in helping make the garage sale a success, she

Green and other Penrickton Center parents will find out this weekend how local bargain hunters will contribute to the success.

Area group plans campaign to protect U.S flag

The Southfield-based American Freedom Coalition of Michigan soon will launch a statewide campaign, lobbying federal and state legislators to pass a constitutional amendment to protect the U.S.

"Save Our Stars and Stripes" will commence as soon as the amendment is introduced into Congress with people encouraged to write or call their congressman in Washington D.C.

If the effort is successful there, the focus will shift to Lansing, where organizers are hopeful that Michigan will be one of the first states to ratify the amendment.

During the summer we will be networking with various patriotic and veteran's organizations to plan our strategy," said Edward Taub, vice-president of the AFC of Michigan, an educational and lobbying organization headquartered in Southfield. He also is director of

'We cannot afford to let our flag and nation be shamed. The flag is like a holy symbol to the nation, similar to the cross for Christians and the Star of David for Jews. It's that important to us and we want to protect it," Taub said.

THE SOSS CAMPAIGN is being initiated in response to a recent Supreme Court decision, which struck down a federal law that makes flag burning a crime.

Coalition president Pollie Pinkins, a math teacher at Denby High School in Detroit, said AFC of Michigan "will continue to work for a revival of moral, religious and patriotic values whenever a relevant issue arises.

"The flag issue is a hot potato and we think it's worth fighting for," Pinkins said. "After all, it's one of the few national symbols we've got.'

The coalition was founded in 1987 as one of 50 state chapters. It has 10,000 members in Michigan and has previously been involved in the "Ollie North Slide Show" tour.

Use of drug fund sparks county controversy

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Members of the Wayne County Commission audit committee are investigating what they believe could be a potential misuse of money and material set aside for new offices for the sheriff's Drug Enforcement Unit.

But a county executive's spokesman said the issue involves little more than a borrowed air condition-

The situation arises from an auditor's report on construction work at a county building on 640 Temple, De-

County Auditor General Ramona Henderson said her April 23 inspection of the site produced evidence material - including a cooling unit - was being diverted from the as-yet unfinished fifth floor Drug Enforcement Unit office to a seventh floor office being built for the county Air Pollution Control Division and possibly to other, unnamed county

Use for any other projects, warned Henderson in her report, could cause the federal government to revoke future contributions of seized drug assets earmarked for Wayne County.

Audit committee chairwoman Kay Beard, D-Inkster, said she called for a meeting with Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and heads of the county building, management and budget, purchasing and air pollution departments and divisions to discuss the situation.

"I don't want to accuse anybody," said Beard. "I'm not sure whether it was incompetence, poor judgment or bad management. We're trying to get to the bottom of the issue.

The committee has also requested county records involved in both con-

Deputy county executive Michael Duggan, however, said the situation was a non-issue.

"The issue is we borrowed an air conditioner for a couple of days and we returned it," he said.

Duggan said county workers moved an air conditioning unit from the county-owned building's fifth floor because finishing the air pollution offices took priority.

"We're trying to get them (air pol-lution control) in new offices by Aug-ust," Duggan said. "What happened was the air pollution offices are being evicted from their current ng on Jefferson," Duggan said.

"The problem is, we don't know how much has been used and what its dollar value is," said unit Commander Melvin Turner. In addition to the cooling system, the audit report indicated more sheet metal had been bought than was apparently needed by the Drug Enforcement Unit offices. The material was being stored on the fifth floor and all material stored in the building was inadequately protected.

Delay in construction of Drug Unit offices was apparently a concern for both the auditor and Beard. Henderson reported that material bought as long ago as October 1988 had not been installed.

Beard said a drug lab promised with the new offices was "badly

The future, according to the famous line from "The Graduate," could once be summed up in one word: plastics.

Today, the future could lie in plastics recycling.

From Washington to local city halls, elected officials are grappling with ways to reduce America's prodigious solid waste output. And plastics recycling ranks high on every-

"It's definitely an important is-sue," said Daniel Gilmartin of the Conference of Western Wayne, a multi-government group considering a recycling plan for western Wayne

Plastics recycling also weighs heavily in a state plan to reduce the waste going into Michgian landfills by 80 percent within the next 15 years. The state has created a $3 million Plastics Recycling Fund from the $800 million Quality of Life Bond issue approved by voters in

Recycling plastic goods — even those involving such made from scarcely recycled polystyrene - is an achieveable goal, said a spokeswoman for the Council for Solid Waste Solutions, a Washington-based group affiliated with the plastics in-

"WE HATE to quote figures, but information we've seen indicates recycling plastic bottles could increase from 20 percent to 50 percent by 1993," said council spokeswoman Susan Vadney. "We've even seen figures indicating polystyrene (the material commonly used for coffee cups and fast food packaging) which was at zero last year could grow to 25 percent by 1995."

Nationally, plastics recycling is like the morning sun: rising in the East, streaming slowly into the Midwest but not yet visable in the West.

"New Jersey and Rhode Island are leading the pack in recycling generally, not just for plastics," Vadney said. "At the same time we haven't seen too much being done in Western

Because of its 12-year-old beverage container recycling law, Vadney added, Michgian is already ahead of many other Midwestern states.

Michigan's ability to remain in the forefront could lie in its ability to attract plastic recycling plants.

One plant, operated by Clean Tech, a division of Plymouth-based Plastipak Packaging Inc., began recycling operations March 1.

The Dundee plant, south of western Wayne, near Monroe, has been accepting milk jugs and clear plastic containers. Its goal is to recycle them into new bottles.

Company officials said the plant could recycle 24 million pounds of plastic goods a year. Clean Tech has qualified for $900,000 in state grant money to buy equipment.

That figure has caught the attention of governmental officials, Gilmartin said.

"We've talked a great deal with them," he said.

Recycling's success, Gilmartin added, could depend as much on trash haulers as on communities themselves.

"I hear a lot of the haulers that serve our communities are taking it out of state," Gilmartin said.

Plastics currently account for about 13 percent of the material now stored in landfills, said Wayne Koser, environmental quality analyst for the Michgian Department of Natural Resources. "A lot of this stuff can be used three and four times, so why create new (plastic) resins?"Koser said. Gilmartin appeared to agree.

"There's a lot of plastic out there, what we need are ways of managing

Both the classroom and home programs provide more than learning activities. They provide mental health care, dental and physical ex-ams, and teach nutrition. Children in the classroom program receive breakfast and lunch and brush their teeth. Metzner said the children and their parents learn to change their eating habits through this part of the program.
"We teach foods that are most nutritious," she said. "Money is scarce

so we need to spend that dollar wise-ly. A bag of chips, which sells for $2.50, can also buy something more nutritious like fruit or vegetables." Saving money is emphasized in the program since many of the parents are out of work or in school them-nelves. Family income plays a large selves. Family income plays a large part in determining the child's eligi-bility for the program. Foster chil-dren and some handicapped children are also eligible.

The children are taught with the HI-SCOPE method. They plan their activities carry them out and then

Vote keeps Amtrak rolling

Here's how Observer & Eccentric area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending June 8.

AMTRAK VETO By a vote of 294 for and 123 against, the House achieved the two-thirds majority required to override President George Bush's veto of a bill (HR 2364) giving Amtrak the federal subsidy it needs to stay in business. The Senate also must reject the wate if the bill is to prevail. A Senate veto if the bill is to prevail. A Senate vote was upcoming . The bill authorized an annual av-

Tax-payers last year covered about 30 percent of the rail passenger agen-cy's budget. Though Bush has long opposed the federal payment, he based his veto on the ICC provision.

Override supporter Edward Madigan, R-III., said "the taxpayers ought to be allowed to put a little money into a rail transportation system," considering how much federal money subsidizes air trav-

Veto supporter Dana Rohrabacher, R-Calif., said passengers in areas unprofitable to Amtrak "should take the bus rather than look to the rest of America to subsidize their ride."

A yes vote was to fund Amtrak. Michigan voting yes: Dennis Her-tel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-

Michigan voting no: William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

By a vote of 312 for and 86 against, the House sent to the Senate a bill (HR4653) making it easier for American companies to get U.S. government clearance to sell certain computers, telecommunications systems and other high technology to countries in Eastern Europe and the Societ Union.

Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary would be major beneficiaries of this bill to relax Cold War-era restraints on exports. The bill eases controls based on national security and does not deal with those based on foreign policy.

Roll Call Report

Supporter Toby Roth, R-Wia, said "maintaining superpower status in the 1990's means being able to compete economically" for new markets with forces such as Japan and a reunified Germany.

Opponent William Dickinson, R-Ala., said the bill is a policy rever-sal in that "trade and economic considerations, not national security, will drive our export controls" on sensitive technology.

A yes vote supported the bill.

Michigan voting no: Pursell, D-Plymouth, Ford, D-Taylor, and Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS EX-PORTS By a vote of 348 for and 45 against, the House broadened the range of telecommunications products that can be sold under a bill to liberalize the Export Act of 1949 (above). The amendment enables American manufacturers to sell entire systems including service, latitude they say they need to compete with Germany and Japan for customers in emerging democra-

Voting no: None. Not voting: Ford, D-Taylor.

SENATE

CRIME BILL DEBATE By a vote of 57 for and 37 against, the Senate fell short of the 60 votes needed to limit debate on a mas-sive anti-crime bill that had been on the floor since May 21.

threatened the bill. It was attribu-ted mainly to lobbying by the Na-tional Rifle Association, which op-poses a provision outlawing certain semi-automatic assault weapons. But a few votes against ending de-bate were from liberals concerned that the bill world expand the federal death penalty. Senate leaders were trying to salvage the bill.

Nothing that most votes against cloture were cast by Republicans, Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Main., said "let there be no mistake or misunderstanding as to where the cause lies for no crime

Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kans., said a crime bill "is within their grasp" if Democrats show more flexibility on acception amendments.

A yes vote was to move to final passage of the crime bill.

Voting yes: Carl Levin, D-South-field and Donald Riegle.

AIDS AND FOOD HANDLING By a vote of 40 for and 53 against, the Senate failed to table language aimed keeping AIDS-infected persons out of food-handling position.

The vote endorsed a Housepassed proposal making it legal for employers to transfer workers infected with a communicable disease from food-handling jobs at no loss of pay. It instructed Senate conferees on disability rights legislation (HG 2273) to accept the

David Durenberger, R-Minn., said the House provision runs con-trary to "all medical knowledge about the spread of AIDS."

William Armstrong, R-Colo., said "people who have communicable diseases should not be working at the salad bar.

Not a shot is being fired in the big-gest state school aid battle in years

The issue is whether the state will stop making $600 million in pay-ments for Social Security, pensions and other "categorical" aids to wellneeled districts which get not gener-

"The House is being tough, and the Senate's being tough," said lobbyist Jerry Dunn, who represents many out-of-formula districts in the western Wayne County suburbs.

THE ISSUE is before a so-called conference committee - three senators and three representatives whose job is to work out a settle-

vill

"We're in a stalemate. Everybody is digging in," said Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, a member of the conference panel.

Keith was sponsor of the House version which seeks to reduce categoricals and use the money in the general state aid formula.

Other members are Reps. James O'Neilly D-Saginaw, the House's school finance expert, and Don Gilmer, R-Augusta; and Sens. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, William Sederburg, R-East Lansing, and Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

New state aid fight emerges

REP. MAXINE Berman, D-Southfield, represents an out-of-formula district and formerly taught in another, Oak Park.

"Only one-third of House members have out-of-formula school districts in their legislative districts," said Berman. "A few have all out-of-formula districts," she said, pointing to the Observer & Eccentric suburbs.

"So there's not much feeling in the House for the problems of out-of-formula districts

"But the majority of senators have at least one out-of-formula district; they have a more balanced perspec-

If they lose categorical aid, out-offormula districts either must dip into working capital to balance their budgets or seek property tax increases from voters

NO MEETINGS of the conference committee on the state aid measure, Senate Bill 830, have been called. That could change at any moment, because the chair can call one at a moment's notice

The stalemate over school aid is having an impact on another conference committee handling Senate Bill 827, public employees school retirement. That panel is chaired by Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy.

million shortfall. It can come out of their bill (830) or this one," he said ste meeting Tuesday.

GOV. JAMES J. Blanchard has joined Keith's team opposing cate-gorical aids to out-of-formula districts, which generally have large property tax bases.

"Given the resources," a budget staffer told lawmakers, "we felt the most responsible use of the money ws to put as much as possible in the school aid formula."

The budget aide said the $44 million shortfall was due to school districts' hiring many new service personnel in recent years.

The out-of-formula districts are waging a battle to keep their categorical aids, but some lawmakers concede privately the end of the road

Keith says only 70 percent of school districts currently receive general state aid.

"If we took every dollar on the state level that we have available for K-12 schools and put it in the formula," he said at a recent rally on the Capitol steps, "we would equalize close to 90 percent of the children in this state and bring 80 districts tht are out of formula back into formula."

Cruce said he almost had a deal Tuesday morning with Rep. Morris Hood, D-Detroit, chair of the conference panel on the regulatory bill. "I told him I'd compromise at $18 million," Cruce said. "He agreed, then came later and said he couldn't agree. The wheels came off the Hood called a sudden meeting of the conference committe at 1 p.m. Tuesday, precisely the same time Cruce was holding a previously scheduled meeting on the pension bill. Hood said he would keep calling meetings twice a day until the matter is settled.

"I've got other meetings," Cruce said. "This is a lousy use of my time." THE SENATE isn't meeting at all this week, and the House is holding only brief morning sessions, as the conference process moves on.

Tax-cut petition leaders launch drive for signatures

AP — Two property tax cut peti-tion drives still need thousands of signatures as they move into their final days, but organizers said they remain optimistic.

Patrick Anderson and former Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson launched an "action plan" recently to get the signatures they need.

So far, their petition drive has collected about 110,000 signatures. Anderson said they're shooting for 300,000 to make sure they get the 239,657 valid signatures necessary to put their plan on the Nov. 6 ballot.

He added the drive recently got a boost by getting the endorsement of the Michigan Association of Realtors and regional Realtor groups, which have sent out thousands of petitions.

The Patterson-Anderson group will have 100,000 petitions out by the end of this week, he said, adding if only 40,000 come back in by the July adline, that should do the trick.

Meanwhile, Taxpayers United had gathered about 170,000 signatures as of last week, said Peggy McMaster.

Markell, involved with the elderly since 1984, is active in Generations Unlimited, an organization that promotes intergenerational exchanges

The elderly like to see little ones in small doses. They have a lot to share, a lot of wisdom to pass along," Markell said. And children who are exposed to the elderly are more able to accept and appreciate such lessons in wisdom.

American House residences have long provided opportunities for such exchanges. A number of houses receive regular visits from honor students and scouts. The Birmingham American House hosts monthly visits from Derby Middle School students. The Farmington Hills facility encourages visits from Forest Elementary and senior high students and promotes a pen pal program.

One of the older exchanges is Adopt-a-Grandparent at American House Westland. Funded by a grant from the Wayne-Westland School Foundation, the program is five years old, according to 20-year

Gas station The city should purchase it

LIKE TO SEE the city buy the abandoned Amoco gas station at the corner of Main and Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth, but we suspect that it will stay vacant for some time to come.

The station closed earlier this month because of what owner Doug Swatosh called negative publicity over allegedly leaking fuel tanks.

The nearby Mayflower Hotel is suing Amoco for the leak and claims a more than $300,000 loss in business. The site has been on the state Department of Natural Resources list of contaminated sites since 1979, but Amoco has refused to acknowledge that the station is the source of the

However, the site offers little parking for a business, and if parking was allowed, it would add to the congestion of the intersection.

We think the station, which has a colonial facade, could be easily converted to a visitors' building or be used as an office for the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

Turning the station into a visitors' center would remedy another complaint, the lack of public restrooms downtown. The station has them and they could be open to the public. We suspect there will be plenty of public de-

Cream wars

Let's give the kids a break

CHOOL OFFICIALS at Plymouth-Canton High School last week established what we hope will be a new tradition: a schoolsanctioned shaving cream fight.

For several years now what educators call unsanctioned fights broke out on the streets of Plymouth and this year's organized soapy battle was an attempt to schedule the madness.

Leave it to educators to regulate the spontaneity out of a fun event. However, the fight was still fun, according to most accounts.

We're aware that not everybody in Plymouth thinks that shaving cream battles are an enjoyable sight. We hear complaints about the mess and the cans being discarded in the streets.

But we like to keep things in perspective. There are a lot of really dangerous things in which kids can get involved, especially during spring graduation season.

There's drinking and driving and drug taking.

We think kids need alternative ways to have fun, and shaving cream wars are one fun way to end the school year. The shaving cream washes away with water, and getting plastered with it

We think it's time Plymouth residents give kids a break. It's just shaving cream, it's like the pie throwing scenes in slapstick comedy.

In the words of Bart Simpson: "Cool your jets."

Warning labels

Trend of intolerance dangerous

FEW WEEKS ago the recording industry announced, with little fanfare, the creation of a uniform label that will be used to warn parents of "explicit lyrics" on recorded albums.

Little outery ac probably in part because the decision to use the labels is, on its face, a voluntary one.

But it should be protested in the strongest

First, there is little that is voluntary about the industry's adoption of the labels. Record companies have been pressured strongly for at least two years by groups such as the Parents Music Resource Center (of Tipper Gore fame) to censor lyrics that these groups find offensive. And with 21 state legislatures considering bills to require record labeling, it's clear the industry's action was meant to pre-empt outside meddling.

THIS ATTACK on song lyrics, which has occurred nationwide, goes hand-in-hand with efforts by other groups, local ones among them, to stamp out thoughts and ideas they don't like. In Plymouth a Christian group called Citizens for Better Education has decided it will purge the schools of books that convey "satanic" ideas. A crusade against a high school play recently hit Rochester

There seems to be a mood of intolerance out there that tells some people they do good when they impose their values on others. Nothing could be further from the truth, however, and our Founding Fathers knew that so very well. Tampering with other people's rights to read, write. say or hear what they please is an affront to our nation's most fundamental principles

The arrest in Florida June 10 of members of the 2-Live Crew rap group that performed songs a federal judge has ruled are obscene shows just where this intolerance can lead. The image on the evening news of two young men being led into a police van, not for what they did but for what they said, was a sad commentary on the current od of America. This country was meant to be er than that ren "voluntary" actions such as the labels the record industry has adopted are more than a symbolic affront to our freedoms. The ratings en to movies, after all, are voluntary, but just releasing a movie without first submitting s ir a rating Very few theatern will touch it, and ed exposure means dimini hers, in affect, are punished mor

There seems to be a mood of intolerance out there that tells some people they do good when they impose their values on others. Nothing could be further from the truth.

THIS HAPPENED to two very worthwhile films, "The Cook, the Thief, his Wife and her Lover," and "Tie Me Up, Tie Me Down," which showed recently at the Maple Theatre in Birmingham. Although they are well-made thoughtful movies, and hardly pornographic, each faced an X rating. The film makers were forced to release them without ratings, and to a necessarily smaller audience.

Lucky for us we have the Maple. Others aren't so lucky

How long will it be before record stores give in to more pressure and promise to restrict the sale of records that bear warning labels? Or quit selling them altogether? When that happens, the labels won't seem so "voluntary."

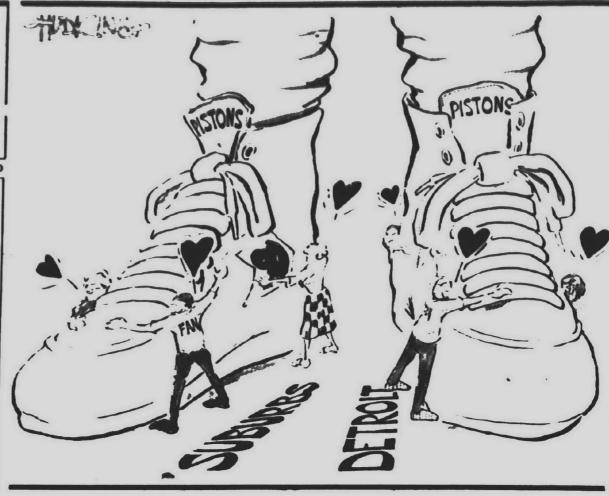

And just what makes a lyric explicit? Whose values will determine when a child's parents need to be warned? The censors' values may not be our values, and ours may not be theirs. The reason freedom of expression is so important is that what one person considers obscene, another may consider very valuable.

A point that is seldom raised in the debate over song lyrics is that the range of ideas and emotions explored and expressed in recorded music in the past 10 years at least, has grown complex It could be argued quite credibly that makers of recorded music today are dealing with issues every bit as imporant, and probably more diver gent, as those that are dealt with in many respected newspapers and magazines (which, we concede, in many cases is a sad commentary on the state of the press)

If a sexually explicit lyric warrants warning parents, will politically explicit lyrics be far beid? Will musicians who advocate socialism or anarchy, or other ideologies outside the mainstream, be labeled"

W PARENTS are doing their jobs children liffand expagare to even the most abnosins. But if children don't receive sound moral instruction at home by their parents, all the warning labels in the world won't provide it

Don't look to Washington for solutions to problems

A SMALL dinner party. Candles sparkled off wine glasses. Dessert

The country's stuck in the mud We need some leadership, some vision, an agenda. I just hope the president and Congress can come up with it." said a senior business executive whose company employs tens of Heads nodded gravely. Conventional wisdom.

Rubbish, I thought.

To think the solution to our nation's problems will come out of Washington is both naive and ma-

Naive because Washington, whether ruled by Republicans or Democrats, is concerned solely with what goes on in Washington, not the rest of the country. Visit DC. People ask, "What's going on out there in the real world?'

Masochistic because Washington, whether run by liberals or conservatives, is at bottom nothing more than a vast monument to enduring bureaucracies. The vast changes sweeping our economics and government mean an end to the central role HISTORICALLY, bureaucracies evolved to coordinate and control many individual transactions - Social Security claims, tax payments, property tax payments to the bank, ordering a car at the dealer, children's report cards from school.

But today, when the personal co puter, phone modem and voice mail are becoming common, the need for bureaucracies - ravenous, centralized, inflexible - is fast disappear-

The vast changes sweeping our economics and government mean an end to the central role of bureaucracies.

While Washington remains captive to its bureaucracies, the real action is in the real world. Examples:

• In Minnesota, a new law lets parents choose their child's school anywhere in the state, eliminating residence requirements and forcing schools to compete.

· Near Miami, Fla., an experiment in "school-basing autonomy" lets 32 schools be managed by teachers and parents, not central school bureaucrats. A similar test is under way in Rochester, N.Y.

 Michigan's State Board of Education is developing a core curriculum - setting out what kids should learn in our schools. But the plan is that school districts will be free to choose how to achieve the defined educational outcomes. (Indeed, Gov. James Blanchard recently called for abolition of the State Board of Education, in part on the ground it is excessively centralized and bureaucratic and unresponsive to parents and teachers.)

• In New York, a company called America Works is paid $5,000 by the placed in a job (average salary: $14,000), but only after the employee has stayed seven months. Taxpayers win: The fee is less than half the $12,000 per year to keep a family of centralizing are cropping up.

I THINK this issue will come to the fore in politics, too. The start is that the workings of government - especially the federal - have become less and less efficient. Next came the Republican charge that Democrats were apologists for taxing and spending, regardless of results.

Michiganians from both parties are working on new models of how governments might work. Community self-help groups, funded by diversion of local property taxes and managed by networks of personal computers, are being designed

Certificates of minimum skill attainment are being talked about as a precondition of jobs for youth. Not far off is a rule requiring that those who collect unemployment checks also be enrolled in training pro-

Never has politics been so filled with imagination and experiment. But you would never know it if you lived and worked in Washington.

THE PISTONS TRIUMPH in the 1990 NBA championship series was more than a victory to this native

I kept thinking that the back-to-back wins would give the Motor City the boost it needs and make a lot of

For a brief, shining moment, I thought, Detroit could revel with its championship team instead of wallowing in the tragedy of drugs, murder, racism and economic depriva-

Although I've lived in Southfield for more than 25 years, I still consider Detroit the mother city from " where we migrated.

HOW CAN we ignore our roots? Motown is still our town, although some leaders believe in cutting off the umbilical cord and leaving Detroit and its problems to whom it may concern.

That brief, shining moment of victory faded as quickly as it came. Detroit once more attracted national media attention.

Yes, Detroit was on the top of the mountain in the NBA. But once more, the headlines screamed of violence and death even as the city celebrated the Pistons phenomenon.

"It wasn't the fans who caused all the disturbances," George said. "It was a few hoodlums looking for an excuse to act out. The celebration turned into scattered explosions of violence."

It's ironic that the trigger for all the mayhem was a positive happening rather than a negative one. It makes no sense.

Thousands of people in Detroit and other communities partied after that last, nail-biting game. That night, we were all Detroiters at heart, the invisible line between us swept away in a moment of glory.

What a shame that once again the mother city got bad publicity, and that many suburbanites are saying, "We told you so. Detroit is a lost

And once again, we are turning our backs on Detroit's problems. Suburban leaders don't want to be painted with the same brush. It's all about "image." The suburbs have an image to defend and Detroit has an image to live down.

MEDIA COVERAGE of Detroit's problems has been condemned as negative sensationalism. New Detroit Inc. has asked for a moratorium on stories about the negative aspects of Motown.

The media is blamed for portraying violence and crime whether it be in Detroit, Southfield or Livonia. Mayor Coleman Young would have preferred all stories focused on the Piston's victory and the fans' cele-

I would have liked to keep that feeling of pride, elation and "Three cheers for Detroit" enthusiasm that I experienced when the brave Pistons whipped the Trail Brazers.

It's a lot more satisfying to see the world through rose-colored glasses than to face reality. But you can't cover up the facts, no matter how

YOU CAN'T rationalize that it's the image, the perception of crime that we fear. Violence and crime are harsh realities. We can't begin to fight them if they're swept under the rug in the name of community pride.

Robert Trojanowicz, director of Michigan State University's school of Criminal Justice was quoted as saying. "Detroit is more complex in terms of economics, the political rhetoric, a government that is closed, that is reluctant to openly talk about problems and build bridg-

Other analysts blamed Friday's violence on desperation on the streets of the city, poverty, alienation, low self-esteem, little hope for the future and pent-up emotion.

They talked about anger in the souls of people hemmed in by perceptions of dead-end lives.

A PSYCHOLOGIST who spoke in Southfield about drug abuse said the same thing about Detroit youths who use and sell dope to make them feel powerful among the haves rather han the have-nots.

I don't know if all these explanations for lawlessness are valid or if they're excuses to take some of the onus off of the celebration that turned into tragedy.

I only know that the spirit of Deoit, its very heart, is sorely damaged. And those of us in the suburbs will have another reason not to go

Once again, Detroit has lost respect - respect for itself and the re-spect of others. The city evidently has failed to deal with its own prob-

But it seems to me that all of us in the Detroit metropolitan area are responsible for one another. We share in the glory and the triumphs. But we disassociate ourselves when our parent city is ailing.

It's like letting your own mother or father down when they're sick or in trouble. It's time to stop worrying so much about image and to become part of the healing process Detroit so sorely needs

Abandoning the city doesn't make us superior. It just makes that invisible line between us more impossible

Book-lovers find bargains galore

By Julie Brown staff writer

HE WORK of authors ranging from William Shakespeare to Barbara Cartland was available for the asking this past weekend at Tanger Elementary School.

The school doesn't usually house such an extensive selection of literature. The used book sale sponsored by the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women, brought many book-lovers to the school's gymnasium to do some browsing and buying.

"I think it's going very well, considering that we're in a new place," said Carol Davis of Plymouth Township, an AAUW member who worked on the book sale.

The sale was Friday-Saturday, June 15-16. In previous years, it has been at Westland Center the first weekend in May, but AAUW members weren't able to use that facility this year.

"A lot of people have asked what happened," said Davis, who was in charge of old and rare books for the sale. "That's what it's been for a long time, but not this year."

SHE AND other AAUW members were pleased with the turnout for the two-day event. Some book-lovers were already waiting in line when the sale got under way Friday morning.

"We were really pretty crowded."

Some book dealers were waiting in line first thing

Friday. It's customary for book dealers to show up when the sale begins each year, Davis said.

DEALERS WEREN'T the only people who found their way to the sale. Avid readers also showed up. Plymouth resident Sharon Coll has been to previous AAUW book sales at Westland Center, and was glad she came to this year's event.

"There's a huge selection," said Coll, who was looking for some novels to read.

"Anything that's good" is what Coll likes. "Just a good, meaty novel."

AAUW members got some rather detailed requests about books, and did their best to answer those questions. One sale visitor wanted a specific hardcover book about Abraham Lincoln, although that didn't ring a bell with Davis.

BOOKS WERE sorted into categories — including mysteries, literature, cookbooks and children's books — making it easier for book-lovers to find what they wanted. Many sale visitors appreciated that, Davis said.

"We got some really great old and rare (books) this year."

Vacation visits can help absent father keep in touch

Since one year of age, Angela Crooks, now 17, has boarded a commercial jet three times a year and traveled from New Hampshire to Michigan for holiday and summer vacations with her father, David Crooks of Livonia.

Aside from weekly phone calls, the visits are their only contact, a father-daughter relationship forged by miles of separation when Angela's mother moved her to New Hampshire shortly after a divorce 16 years ago.

"It's the only fathering I've ever had; I've had no control or involvement in her life other than when she was here," Crooks said of his only

The visits have meant personal sacrifice for Crooks, something his daughter may never realize. In 16 years, he has never made vacation plans of his own. They always center on Angela's visits.

Air fare and other costs have been enormous, especially in the begin-ning when she was too young to fly alone and Crooks had to both collect accepted that, and in my opinion, I'm luckier than most," he said. I'm luckier than most," Throughout the years, his support payments have remained low, allowing him to more easily assume huge travel expenses.

In spite of the effort and expen

Crooks said he has made no lasting npression in his daughter's life.

T'VE HAD NO INFLUENCE, other than maybe in personality or something like that," he said. "There just has not been enough time spent

More frustrating, now that Angela is a teen, she is increasingly reluctant to leave friends, a social life and summer employment in New Hampshire for dutiful visits with a father she knows only slightly.

Based on an 11-year study of disrupted families, done by the University of Pennsylvania, the problem of maintaining contact with an absent father affects millions of children. (Mothers are absent less than 10 percent of the time.) And the problem of on-going paternal contact is compounded when fathers no longer live

In Crooks' case, his ex-wife decided to move away. Had he legally protested the move under Michigan court rules of 1963, the relationship with his daughter might be decidedly tiffere t today. Children of divorce nay no be moved out-of-state without jude ial permission

Crooks consented to the move at the advice of legal coun:el.

Such advice is not uncommon, according to Birmingham attorney Richard Victor who specializes in family law. Too often, Victor said. attorneys involved in divorce action are poorly informed about domicile rules and once invoked, it is nearly impossible to repeal a ruling once a move occurs.

VICTOR IS presently representing a non-custodial father who is challenging a proposed move to California by his ex-wife, maintaining "the paternal relationship will be irrevocably impaired" by such a move. The child now lives one week in three with his father.

"Divorce is volatile; there are no courses on how to behave," Victor said. To assist in making sound decisions in issues of importance, like residency, Victor co-founded SMILE, a new support group for families in the process of divorce.

During a decade of visits to his fa-ther in Virginia, Indiana, Missouri and Texas, Eric Reynolds of Bir-mingham recalls a single trip, the time his father had remarried. Rey-nolds' parents divorced when he was 6 years old and his father moved away shortly after.

"I don't remember my feelings but suddenly, I had a second mother," said Reynolds, now a 20-year-old senior at the University of Michigan,

Visits to his father continued until age 16, when Reynolds decided to "even things out" between his natural parents and live with his father. The arrangement lasted one year. The two have had only occasional contact since.

IN RECALLING the many, trips back and forth, Reynolds said it was emotionally draining, years of anxie-ty and apprehension over impending visits, sadness at leaving either parent and overall, "pretty difficult. I basically felt torn apart."

During the earlier years, "I didn't exactly know what was going on." In later years, his father, short on cash and wanting to see the boy, asked Reynolds to help with the cost of air

"It was very uncomfortable, Reynolds said.

Still, Reynolds is luckier than many. Based on the University of Pennsylvania report, less than half of the 1,000 children in the study maintain regular contact with absent fathers and a quarter have no contact.

"It's a real nice Father's Day gift for me," said a West Bloomfield businessman, anticipating the arrival of two sons from California the Divorced five years ago, his wife was awarded custody of the boys, now 12 and 15 years old. The following year, she requested judicial approval for a move west with her boy-

Airlines help kids handle flying alone

staff writer

One commercial airline pilot refers to it as "mailing children."

A flight attendant said it signals a change in seasons, from spring to summer and then to fall.

Northwest Airlines has given it a name — WorldKid.

They are children ages 5 through 11 years who travel alone, almost always to visit an absent parent who lives far away. (Children under 5 years must be accompanied.)

Beginning this month through August, the airline will transport some 1,000 youngsters daily, unaccompanied minors who last year acted for 1 percent of Northwest's total passenger load. In 1989, 100,000 children traveled alone.

For some, it will be their first solo voyage. Many others are seasoned travelers. At least half will shed tears, both coming and going.

"I've seen it many times, kids getting mailed back and forth between (disrupted) families," said Steve Cramer of Birmingham, a veteran pilot for an airline that services Detroit's Metropolitan Airport. "For a deal."

Finding a Dentist In a new community isn't easy...

In both instances, they leave behind a parent, Cramer added.

ELAINE WARREN of Westland, a flight attendant with a major carrier for 13 years, predicts the change in season by the increase in young children traveling alone. June signals summer vacation has arrived.

Warren said she and others who fly for a living attempt to make the journey as pleasant as possible, consoling children who are upset and occasionally providing babysitting chores when family or guardians are late in meeting the flight.

Northwest WorldKid policy caters to the young set. Children traveling alone are seated first, normally placed forward in the cabin. Parents may board and help them settle in. Flight attendants provide individual briefings on flight procedures.

Northwest also implements chainof-custody control. At each point of transfer, from parent to gate agent to flight crew and back again, signatures are required of adults-incharge. The procedure is also available for youngsters 12 years and older at an additional cost of $25.

"I'm never afraid or worry about their safety; the airlines are great," said Toni Masterson of Westland, whose children are experienced fly-

During the past 10 years, her son and daughter have visited their father in Florida, Illinois and Arizona. This summer, it's Nevada.

Quiet time: what we need

Summer has begun, but I am still rent word that stands for this quiet, doing too much. I look forward to the time, when I can stop running and just git. I call it the switch from "doing" to just "being." But it is a most difficult switch to make.

Messile this is metal and still rent word that stands for this quiet, reflective time is meditation.

Maybe this is why so many of us go to a cottage up north. There we can leave the business behind. We can stare out upon nature, hopefully, and just be ourselves. The place that we go has no television and no telephone. We have resisted getting

I remember the day that my young son ran home to this cottage to proclaim the fact that it was possible to receive television. He had always thought that we were too far north to get the signal.

We need relief from the pressures of the world, a time for just being instead of doing. Religion plays an important part in this ability to phase in and out of activity. The cur-

THIS IS A time of retreat. This is a time for listening to nature and to God. This is a time for presenting ourselves before the creator of all that is. At this moment, we can forget all our roles, our titles, our re-sponsibilities and soak in life. The Grubb Institute in London, England, tells us that religion has this function of helping us switch from the active to the receptive. This is their theory of oscillation. Religion helps us to make the switch from active to receptive. The traditional name of this is the Sabbath; "and God rested on the seventh day."

During this receptive time, we can just be ourselves. We no longer have to control life. We have left the pressures to organize behind. But, be-lieve me, it is a very difficult switch for most of us to make. The old need

The Rev. David Stewart remembers being called to the ministry at age 16.

"The Lord called me to be a pastor. At that time, I didn't want anything to do with it and ran from it.

It wasn't until he was in his mid-30s that Stewart realized the ministry was where he belonged. Stewart, 41, recently became the associate pastor at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth.

He previously served as pastor to three small churches in Peck, Buel and Melvin in Michigan's Thumb area. He took that job following his May 1986 graduation from Asbury Theological Seminary in Wilmore, Ky., where he earned a master of divinity degree.

Serving as pastor at three United Methodist churches took some effort. Stewart traveled from church to church, preaching at Sunday services at each one.

By the third time, I was really good and really hoarse," he said with a smile.

STEWART'S RESPONSIBILI-TIES at the Plymouth church will be primarily in youth programs, do some preaching, handle some pastoral care duties, and officiate at funerals and weddings.

His predecessor, the Rev. Doug-las McMunn, left to serve at two Methodist churches in the Iron Mountain, Mich., area in the Upper Stewart brings extensive government experience to his work at the Plymouth church. He worked for 61/2 years in regional planning at an agency in the Upper Peninsula's Houghton-Hancock area. He then served for about 61/2 years as the controller for Iron County, also in the Upper Peninsula.

Stewart attended Adrian College and earned a bachelor's degree in geography from Eastern Michigan University. He earned a master's degree in urban planning from Wayne State University.

While in his 30s, Stewart began to give serious thought to entering the ministry. He'd recommitted his life to Christ, and found himself in positions of leadership within his church.

"I just began to seek God's will. God called me to it."

RETURNING TO school took some getting used to for Stewart, who grew up in northwest Detroit evangelization and visitation. He'll and graduated from Cooley High School. He was accustomed to a technical writing format he'd acquired working in government, and had to learn to write in an academic style again. Studying Greek and other subjects took time and effort, and his first semester was particularly tough.

"I really relished the experience." His graduate work at As-bury Theological Seminary was demanding yet rewarding.

Stewart and his wife, Ellen, are now making their home in Canton. They have two children, Kirk, 151/2, a Centennial Educational Park student, and Elizabeth, 13, a Central Middle School student. Ellen Stewart has taught adult education classes and is currently job-hunt-

"Receiving this appointment's like coming back home," Stewart said. "My mother's prayers were answered.

His parents, John and Esther Stewart, live in Redford Township. His wife also grew up in northwest Detroit and graduated from Cooley High School.

has taken a little getting used to for Stewart. He preached his first sermon at the Plymouth church on June 3, talking about Abraham being called to the promised land, "not knowing where he was going yet having faith in God." Modern-day Christians too are challenged to be doing what God wants and to go where God wants them to go.

Stewart's found his work in government helped prepare him for the ministry. He has administrative training and experience working with people. His goals include "just basically expansion of the youth and evangelization programs in the church."

He finds working with young people rewarding. He's found the church is able to help meet their spiritual needs.

Teens are exceptionally open and searching, especially during the junior high years. Our job is to

The downtown area of Katmandu is filled with bustling markets, palaces and temples. Local Nepalese make good use of the day, knowing they must beat the home-by-dark curfew.

Shangri-La

By Sally Davis special writer

Shangri-La is a fictional Eden where people never age unless they leave. It's somewhere in the Himalayan Mountains. We were headed for Nepal, at the foot of the Himalayas, perhaps to find eternal

The morning of our departure from Varanasi, India, to Katmandu, Nepal, began with a 6 a.m. visit to the river Ganges. To witness the spiritually uplifting process of prayer and immersion into the holy river at sunrise was rejuvenating for us as well as the devout.

Our boat paddled slowly and silently past people bathing, holy men at prayer along the banks and others who were washing clothes. The cremation ghats (steps) reminded us of our own mortality.

Returning to our hotel, we had a quick breakfast before leaving for our flight to Katmandu. Goodbye to India until our return to Bombay for our flight to the United States.

WHEN WE arrived in Katmandu, we enjoyed the cooler temperatures and the clean and modern airport. Our hotel, in the far suburbs, was luxurious, with lovely grounds, gardens and fountains.

Our tour started with a hasty excursion to the downtown area and the old city, with its market, palaces, temples and Durbar (government) Square.

Trying to beat the home-by-dack curfew, people were stepping at a lively pace throughout down-

Returning to the hotel, we had dinner and anticipated the next morning's flight over Mount Everest. This is why we had come: to see the beauty and enormity of the highest mountain in the world.

HOWEVER, OUR anticipation turned to frustration as our tour escort told us the plane might not be flying. He would let us know later in the evening.

"Later in the evening" came, with an ominous message that the flight had been canceled due to a strike by the Royal Nepal Airlines. We were flexi-ble, quoth he, and could take the flight at a later time. A murmur of hope passed among my group.

A new day dawned with the same old message. We were not going to see Mount Everest. Not this

Our escort had arranged for a bus to drive us there and to wait two days while we explored the jungle and nearby historical sites.

Royal Nepal Airlines was still having difficulties.

ACTUALLY, THE whole Katmandu valley was having difficulties. Political unrest and civil disturbances were escalating to dangerous proportions. Within a short period of time, we were confined to the hotel grounds.

The next day, escorted by a museum guide, we were able to visit the Archeological Museum of Nepal, a 15-minute hike from the hotel. He led us through back alleys and terraced levels to reach It wasn't particularly interesting, but it was something to do, since there was no transportation and nowhere else to go, except a Monkey Temple atop a steep hill, an hour's hike in the hot sun.

LATER IN the afternoon, we learned we would not be going to Tiger Tops either. Our dream trip to Nepal had rapidly turned into a nightmare.

We decided that if we had to be stuck, what better place to be stuck in than our hotel? It had everything, including Nepal's only casino. Not to wor-

This market in downtown Katmandu is always filled with fresh fruits and vegtables from local vendors.

Unrest was everywhere in Nepal. Putting it simply, the people want a two-party system of government, with the king as a benevolent figurehead.

Early that morning, the king had fired the prime minister. The people's joy quickly turned to anger when he appointed another.

AT LEAST 25,000 people stormed the palace. The military, who were armed with rifles and tear gas, took control. They battled the citizens, who had only sticks and stones for weapons. Roadblocks were set up and the fighting continued

We were advised the next morning that a daylong curfew was in effect. The curfew would end at 4 p.m. and resume at 6 p.m until 7 a.m. the next morning. Our bags were packed in case a plane got through during the two-hour "window" in the cur-

THE U.S. EMBASSY'S request for emergency phone numbers and next-of-kin forms from our tour escort was enough to add a few gray hairs.

Two young women from western Canada were stretched out on the deck, broiling in the summer sun. Micky and I wore loose long-sleeved shirts, floppy hats and a quart of sunscreening lotion.

Was it too hot to vacation in the Caribbean? It was our first time in emerald seas, and we didn't know the answer to that one yet.

Day Three. The young bikini-clad pair were still in their skin but they too were wearing hats, sunglasses and lotion. When we snorkeled in the warm waters off a sand beach, we kept our bodies completely underwater so we wouldn't sizzle. When we startled a giant Manta Ray from its afternoon nap at the bottom of the sea, it waved its fins and we got back into the hot sun like a rocket.

Was it too hot to vacation in the Caribbean, as all our friends had warned us it would be? Summer rates ch lower than winter rates, and we were determined to find out. So far we were sunburned but hap-

About 10 a.m. the next day, two nine-passenger vans arrived. Our en-tire group of 16, plus our escort, three people from another group, the driver and luggage, squeezed into our groaning vehicle. We were getting out of Nepal.

The following day was Constitution Day, the day celebrated when the present king's father had installed the Nepalese Constitution. The dissenters were promising to destroy it and all other legal documents pertaining to the government.

IF WE didn't get out when we did, I don't know when we would have. It was imperative that we and all other foreigners leave the country. Both vans left under police escort. The curfew was in effect, but permits had been issued to vehicles transporting to the airport.

As we drove through, the city was deathly quiet. A few incautious Caucasian young people who opted to stay dared to come out. From vantage points inside of their homes, locals-watched our vans pass.

Broken glass all over the streets glittered like polished diamonds. Our driver dodged piles of broken bricks. Remnants of fires blackened the curbsides and gutters.

WHEN WE arrived at the airport, we quickly sent two from our group to stand in line for boarding passes. Two planes were supposed to be there; one from Delhi and the other from Bangkok. Neither had arrived. We were to be on the second one. Royal Nepal Airlines has five larger transport planes in its fleet.

We took turns standing in line. A couple of hours later, we were issued boarding passes, which allowed us to go upstairs to the departure lounge.

There was no food or water or pop to quench our thirst. We bought up whatever candy was left from the candy stand, so we would have something to keep us going.

By the time they spotted us we were a patch of floating cloth, with only our hats and sun glasses visible above the water line "Come on in! Join the party!"

You've heard about people who dream they are walking naked down the street. None of the semi-naked fun-lovers on the beach were the least bit self-conscious. We, on the other hand, were too embarassed to get out of the water with our clothes dripping around us.

There was a happy ending. They cajoled; we swam closer. Sooner or later we had to stand up, like shipwrecked ghosts, and join them.

After drinking some Club Med rum punch we didn't care what we wore or whether it was too hot to vacation off-season in the Caribbean.

The truth is that the Caribbean is hot year-round and not much hotter in July than it is in January. The reason we go to the Caribbean in winter has nothing to do with the Caribbean. We go because its too cold to stay home, because we want to get away from the snow. We stay home in summer because it's wonderful here in Michigan; why go somewhere hotter? But that is changing.

Drug tests in use

By Raiph R. Echtinaw staff writer

Many Oakland County-based companies have turned to drug-testing and treatment programs to combat drug abuse that affects job perform-

However, their methods and degree of intrusiveness vary. Some companies require everyone they hire to test negative for drugs, while others only test employees who seem to have a problem.

Some companies offer counseling or treatment programs for employees with drug-abuse problems, while others simply fire employees who test positive for illegal drugs.

Electronic Data Systems, an information handling company, requires all new hires to submit to a urinalysis test. However, in general, once an employee is hired, he won't be asked to take another drug test unless there is reason to be suspicious, according to company spokesman Tony Good.

'We're selling expertise," he said. "It's unfair to our customers if anyone working for them is not 100 per-

SOME EDS EMPLOYEES, however, are subject to unannounced random drug tests. Company officers, security personnel, pilots and airplane mechanics are among the few EDS employees who are tested several times a year, Good said.

"To be doing the kind of things they've got to be doing for EDS, they've got to be sharp.'

While he couldn't supply figures, Good said few potential new hires have been disqualified for drugs and few randomly tested employees turn

Nevertheless, EDS initiated an experimental employee assistance program last August to "help our employees with depression, marital conflicts, alcohol and drug abuse." EDS insurance picks up between 80 and 100 percent of the cost.

Troy-based K mart Corporation tests only employees hired to work at its distribution centers. These people must pass a urinalysis test fore they're hired. Further testing can be required if an employee is suspected of illegal drug use.

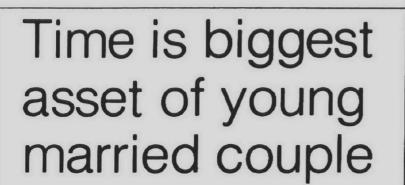

'There is a greater risk of accident with the heavy equipment used in the distribution centers," said Janet Potter, public communications coordinator. K mart headquarters staff and store employees are not tested.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON Life Insurance Co. of Farmington Hills has a program similar to that at EDS. Since last June, all new hires are tested for illegal drugs. If they fail the test they aren't hired.

In addition, current employees who "definitely have impaired performance" can be forced to submit to a urinalysis and sent to a counseling program, according to company spokesman Jeff Kulesus.

"We don't want to fire people," he said. "We want them to be productive employees. (If we don't help them) they'll just take their problem to the next location." Still, employees who don't submit to the counseling are fired.

Another local company, Charley's Restaurant Group, began a drug testing program in January. Like EDS, the company uses the most accurate, i.e. expensive, urinalysis test available: $90 each.

Little by little, it is important to build a solid financial foundation. Our financial profile this month provides Rob and Shirley Bell of Canton with directions on how to begin building their financial future step by step.

Rob and Shirley are the youngest couple to be profiled in our monthly column. He is 23 and has iust completed his first year as a physical education teacher. Shirley is 22 and just graduated from college last month. She will be starting a job soon as an assistant store manager. Their incomes are $21,000 and $15,000 respectively.

Married in December, they are living in an apartment and would like to buy a house within two years and start a family in four to five years. Rob will begin work toward a master's degree in educational administration by taking summer classes

We applaud and encourage their interest in financial planning at the beginning of their careers. A comment we frequently hear from pre-retirees is that they wish they had started planning years earlier. Shirley's father encouraged them to write to us and pursue the possibility of receiving advice in this column. To their credit, they followed through on his advice.

ONE OF THEIR major strengths is the fact that they will shortly have two incomes. They project they will be able to save almost one-half of Shirley's income when she begins work next month. This will allow them to strengthen their current financial situation.

Right now, they have nothing to fall back on if a major expense unexpectedly materializes. Not only do they have no emergency reserves, but they have not worked at establishing their credit history. This limits their options should a financial emergency arise.

Shirley's extra income should first be directed toward establishing an emergency fund of approximately $3,000 to $5,000 in a bank or money market fund. They also want to pay off a $700 personal loan. This can be easily accomplished when the reserve is in

Once those two goals have been achieved, they can start a fund to establish the down payment for a house. They should be able to accumulate that down payment within two to three years

THEY SHOULD also take steps to establish their credit-worthiness. This could be important when they apply for a mortgage. Also, it gives them an emergency outlet to fall back on if they truly

Actually, although they do not realize it, they do have a short credit history. By virtue that they are paying back their auto loan on a timely basis, they have begun to establish a positive credit record. But they should take steps to broaden their credit history.

For example, at some point during the next year, they may want to buy some relatively small items on credit even though they may have the cash in hand. Paying back this loan on time will strengthen their credit history

THEY MAY also want to apply for a major credit card. Although Rob has been offered credit cards in the past, they have avoided them for fear they might be taking too many financial obligations.

It is true that credit cards can be abused. By using them improperly, some people become financially strapped or worse. Used prudently, a credit card can be convenient and can help to reinforce a good credit record.

In a way, credit can be compared to alcohol - some people can handle it well in moderation. Others avoid it entirely as a matter of principle, and still others get hooked on it and abuse it until it ruins their lives. Rob and Shirley need to do some self-assessment to decide if they can successfully handle this responsibility.

A MAJOR GAP in their financial situation is their lack of any insurance for their possessions.

They were under the mistaken impression that they had to own a house to obtain such coverage. But there is a form of homeowners insurance specifically designed for renters.

They should contact their insurance agent with whom they have their auto insurance to find out about such coverage. It is relatively inexpensive and would stand them in good stead if they ever

As an additional part of their financial foundation, we would recommend that they create written wills. It is the most important document they need in their current estate planning. When they have children or when their circumstances change, they should review and update their estate plan with

Although they both have modest group term life insurance at their places of work, they might want to consider buying some insurance that is personally held. Certainly this should be done when they buy a house. Due to their ages and good health, the premiums would be relatively low

ALTHOUGH RETIREMENT is far into the future, Rob should give some thought to contributing $75 per pay period into a tax-sheltered annuity (TSA) - this type of retirement plan available to employees of non-profit organizations, such as schools, hospitals and churches. Contributions to this plan are tax-deductible, and they grow on a tax-deferred basis.

With the magic of compounding over the next 40 years, a TSA started now and added to regularly will grow to a significant sum in the future. If necessary, most TSA plans allow the participant to borrow against the plan to pay for a major purchase such as the down payment on a house. Thus the participant has access to this money if

By starting early, Rob and Shirley have a major financial advantage over their peers. If they continue to show the foresight that prompted them to write us, we have no question they they will be successful, both financially and in other aspects of their lives.

Michigan National Bank, however, does not test employees once hired. For them there is an employee assistance program with which they can get confidential counseling and/ or treatment.

Workers staying free of drugs — for the most part

By Ralph R. Echtinaw staff writer

Many county small business owners and managers say they haven't been plagued with employees high on drugs.

"To be honest, I haven't (had a problem)," said Larry Reynolds, assistant manager of Foland's in Rochester. "If there has been, it hasn't been at the surface. I think I'd be able to tell.

"We've got a good bunch of kids here. As a manager you kind of keep an eye out for it. Unless we've got a bunch of people really pulling the wool over our eyes, I don't think (there's a problem)."

Damman Hardware of Troy manager Paul Amoroso concurred.

"I've been with Dammons for eight years and can't remember one incident of drug related problems," he said. "That would be cause for immediate dismissal.'

However, not all local business people are so lucky. Cindie Gade, owner of Aunt Clara's, a Rochester bakery, said she had to fire a female employee last year for suspected drug abuse and theft.

"We had a suspicion (that she was using illegal drugs) because we had money problems," Gade said. "Her behavior patterns were bad. Sometimes in the mornings she looked like she crawled out from under a rock."

'I'm a little more skeptical of people. I'm a little more selective (about who I hire).'

> - Cindie Gade owner of Aunt Clara's bakery

GADE SUSPECTED the employee was in debt for drugs because some people came into the bakery and said she owed them money. Then cash began to disappear from the register, although no one could prove who took it.

"Nobody saw her do anything." Gade said. Altogether, about $450 was missing

"I'm a little more skeptical of people," Gade said. "I'm a little more selective (about who I hire).'

Some employers said they're confident they could tell if one of their charges was working high.

"With a smaller business, you're pretty much closer in touch with your people," said Dave Daenzer. who has managed Radio Shack stores for eight years. "If there are any changes (in employee behavior),

I think I'd pick them up here." Joanne Spreitzer, manager of Bloomfield Market in Bloomfield Township, hasn't had a problem with drugged employees recently, but themselves.'

past experience has taught her to screen applicants carefully. Three times since the early 1970s Spreitzer has dealt with employees on illegal drugs. An employee whose parents Spreitzer knew collapsed in front of a pizza oven, apparently overcome by the effect of the drug he was using.

Spreitzer said the young man's parents told her to take him directly to a treatment center.

"He didn't know what was happening until he got there," she said. As it turned out, the fellow ultimately recovered.

SPREITZER SAID she commiserates with drug-abusing employees, but can't see an alternative to dismissal.

"It's so unfair to have a substance abuser take advantage of those who are giving their employer a good effort," she said. "They had a problem, but they just had to work it out

Spreitzer's employees have to work around some potentially dangerous equipment like meat slicers, knives and ovens.

"You could literally lose a hand (if you work high)," Spreitzer said. "I suppose down deep in my heart I was thinking of their safety (when I fired them).

Experience, it is said, is the best teacher, and Spreitzer is a good ex-

"I try to screen them as best I can," she said. "I try to look for things that they would cart back and forth (to work) themselves. If it's 90 degrees, why is he wearing a longsleeve shirt?'

Spreitzer recently noticed a roach clip hanging from a job applicant's rear-view mirror. "I knew right away that wasn't the kid I wanted to hire." she said. Julie Williamson, manager of the Orchard 14 Soft Cloth Car Wash in Farmington Hills, said "from time to time I've had an employee who had a (drug) problem."

But she doesn't consider that sort of thing a firing offense unless they do drugs on the job.

One employee in particular was "so strung out and not thinking clearly," Williamson said, that she offered him a leave of absence if he would get help. The employee quit, but got into a treatment program and returned to the car wash six months later.

ONE SOMEWHAT flippant Bloomfield Township pharmacist who declined to give her name seemed unconcerned that her employees might be using illegal drugs. "We do have people who abuse drugs here," she said. "Several people come in here that have smoked marijuana and take diet pills."

On the other side of the spectrum, you might find Delores Dabrowski, owner of Video Junction of Rochester. With a chiropractor husband, Dabrowski takes a holistic approach to drugs. She doesn't tolerate them, legal or otherwise.

"This is a pure workplace," she said. "We do not take drugs whether pushed or prescribed. We encourage our employees to take vitamin therapy.

A fervent non-smoker, Dabrowski also maintains a nicotine-free staff. "A smoker wouldn't come here to work because of the attitudes (of my employees)," she said.

While some Oakland County small-business people admit having had an employee with a drug problem, most replied to questioning like Joanne Huston did.

The manager of Thingz of Rochester, an unusual-gift shop, said, "I have never had anybody that's worked for me that had a (drug) problem. We've had a couple that didn't want to come to work now and then, but it wasn't because of drugs."

tic notions in the auto business is building a hot car in the back of your garage, putting it into production in consequing from so called skunk some small shop and then filling the orders coming from people pounding on your door after you take the world championship at LeMans

Even boardroom types at the mathe notion Even before someone horrowed the words "skunk works from the cartoon Lil Abner to describe in house projects presumably unfettered by corporate egos and bottom lines, there were substantial numbers of neat cars put out by peo ple who weren't exactly aiming to make a mint for the stockholders

the world championship, for example Or the original corvette program, or even the original Continen-

Living and the SVO Mustang which had their brief day in the sun after

THEN THERE was the Toyota MH2 and the Mazda Miata, both successful sports cars done in corpojor auto companies aren t immune to rate sponsored back-alley opera-

> you might argue Ferrare Lamborghim Maserati and maybe even Porsche fall in the categuly as Well

Now comes thrysler's Bob Lutz. who has been teasing the press for a half dozen years or more, even before he got to Chrysler, with back-Ford's GT-40 program that led to alley projects that seemed like a great idea at the time

Lutz' interest goes a bit beyond automobiles. He is, for instance, a former Marme Corps fighter pilot who recently held up a flight of the corporate jet while he was wandering around in an airplane junkyard full of neat stuff like a defunct B-47

I noticed this because I was look ing at the neat old airplanes, too, and figured the plane wasn't going to leave as long as Lutz hadn't returned

Lutz is one of those auto executives who has a passion for fast machinery, which is something you would expect all auto executives would share. Not really, since a genuine interest in the product seems to have the same effect on boards of directors deciding who the next chairman will be as finding large Frump holdings in your portfolio has on people reviewing your Visa appli-

But I digress It's as the father figure for a new auto skunkworks program where Lutz may yet find his identity

THE PROGRAM will produce the Viper sports car, a 400 hp. two seater that has a spiritual resemblance to Carroll Shelby's old Cobras The resemblance is not strictly coincidental, since Shelby was trying to sell a similar concept to Chrysler a few years ago, which was to have resurrected the Cobra mystique and performance (A well-tuned Cobra could do 0-100 mph in under 10 sec-

The Viper is the brainchild of Chrysler styling as much as anything being blessed with the kind of looks that provide a visual statement of speed, rather than the esoteric aerodynamic nonsense that plagues most cars today

The plan is to do a more or less handmade frame, have the engine built up of scrap parts from a truck engine and some work done by an Italian casting firm and then bolt it together at a supplier

If this seems a little crude, it also seems cheap and do-able. The result is a factory-sponsored car built in someone's garage, which ought to do good things for the company, like fit-ting neatly into Chrysler's image machine, which is getting a little rusty these days, and lure more dreamers into the showrooms.

Ironically, it is the rough-andready approach to getting the car built that makes it likely it will survive more or less as shown to the public on the last round of auto shows, where it stunned the design world while touring as a concept car.

Now Lutz is saying the Viper is harbinger of a new way of building niche cars, hitting a target market in a hurry and all that. It's a good thing to say to make the project sound serious to the board.

Otherwise he seems to be having too much fun

The recent death of an Al zheimer's patient by using a do ityourself suicide kit raises an ex tremely important question: If I am sick for a long time, who in the world will care for me? I will dis cuss this issue in detail at a retire ment seminar (see details below) Here are some random thoughts on this subject.

Medicare - Not Hardly

Even after Medicare pays its share of health costs, you may still owe large debts to hospitals, physicians and other service providers For instance, Medicare does not cover the biggest catastrophic cost of all - long term nursing home care which averages about $25,000 a year. Nor does it cover the following (1) private duty nursing (2) skilled nursing care beyond 150 days (4) treatments outside the United States: (4) dental work. (5) most memunizations; (6) cosmetor surgery. (7) routine foot care, (8) ever and hearing exams; and (9) prescription glasses and hearing aids

The Answer: LTC

The gaps in Medicare can be cov ered by a long term care (1 11) in surance. But selecting the right polisy can be very complicated there can be confusing words, exclusions. and differing costs for various coverages to understand. Even more important, long term care does not refer only to nursing home care. It can be provided in your own home if you need help with activities such as bathing, walking or doing chores finances and you

Sid Mittra

Here are some grave statistics to demonstrate the need for long-term care insurance. By 2000, more than 8 million Americans aged 65 or older will need some long-term care due to disability or chronic illness. Those aged 85 or older are the most at risk for needing long term care

It is also estimated that two out of five people aged 65 or more risk entering a nursing home. Half of them will need to stay about six months or less and half will need to stay an average of 2.5 years

More than 100 companies offer rivate long term care insurance toty No policy provides full coverte for all expenses. In addition, any policies do not increase the inminity amount as the cost of care icreases over time Several newer theirs do offer increased benefits wer time to allow for increased

140 coverage also is offered as and of individual life insurance poliies Under this arrangement, a certhat percentage of the policy's death benefit is paid for each month the policyholder requires long-term hach policy is priced differently. Today, individual policy annual premiums range anywhere from $250 to $2,500, depending upon sev-

Some Key Questions

Here are some of the questions you must ask before deciding which policy is the best for you:

- What services are covered? · How much does the policy pay.
- Does the policy offer a means for increasing benefits to account for
- expected future costs? If so, how? • Is Alzheimer's disease cov-

Dissatisfied pregnant woman now leases maternity clothing

Two years ago, Yvette Kotlarczyk was pregnant and dissatisfied with the choices of maternity clothing available to the professional working woman.

"I felt lost in a sea of tent dresses and casual clothes whenever I went shopping. Kotlarczyk said. 'And on the rare occasion when I found a suit that was appropriate for work, it was either much too expensive or looked awful on me."

An executive secretary at a Detroit actuarial firm, Kotlarczyk began creating her own designs during her free time.

"I used to enjoy sewing as a hobby, but it quickly lost its appeal With two teenage daughters and a baby on the way, all I could think about was the time I was forced to spend behind my sewing machine every week."

After the birth of her daughter. Kotlarczyk came across an article in Income Opportunities magazine that changed her life She read about the owner of a company in Portland, Ore., who was making it big in the maternity leasewear business. Six months and several phone calls later, she made the transition from employee to employer by investing $10,000 to become the exclusive Michigan distributor for ProCreations Maternity Leasewear.

Mary DiPaolo

As a distributor, Kotlarczyk days she received all the support and benefits typical of a franchise relationship without any of its limitations. "When customers have suggested new design ideas or service, I've been free to act without needing to call Portland for approval."

In business since November, Kotlarczyk projects sales will be in the high five-figure range by the end of the year.

Targeting a core market of pregnant women between 26 and 40 who earn between $25,000 and $75,000 a year, Kotlarczyk's company leases maternity clothing designed for individual clients on a custom basis. Available in sizes 2 to 24, the clothes have weekly rental fees ranging from $2.75 for blouses to $8.95 for business suits.

Each rented garment may also be replaced, free of charge, if a client grows out of it during the minimum nine-week contract period. Recently, Kotlarczyk added resort clothing, outerwear and formal dresses to the line based on increased demand.

"It takes three weeks to fill custom orders," she said, "but we've had many situations where customers see finished garments that they like and have altered to fit immediately.'

Future plans include giving customers the opportunity to buy custom garments or rent formal dresses and resort wear on a shortterm basis. "We've also been approached about carrying after-5 accessory items on a rental basis, which we're now working on."

The latest Mutual Fund Fact Book issued by the Investment Company

The first thing you should decide is whether you are a long-term investor or a trader.

Mutual funds are basically long-term investments, and if you aren't planning on holding the fund for a number of years, there is a big ques-tion as to whether you should buy it in the first place. There are funds that allow you to switch from one kind of fund to another as you believe opportunities in the market are shifting. It's hard to find evidence that individuals are any more successful shifting from mutual fund to mutual fund than

Most individuals who are making a long-term investment in a mutual fund are likely to decide that they want a fund that emphasizes growth to a considerable extent, That, after all, is the reason why most of us invest in stock rather than bonds.

There are a lot of listings where growth funds are separated as a group and their particular objectives are briefly described. You should be able to find some of these in your nearest public library. The Lipper Analytical Services is widely avail-

Wrestlers meet to help youth program

Professional wrestling returns to the Redford Arena Saturday in a fund-raiser to benefit Redford Assisting Local Youth.

The matches will begin at 8 p.m. and the doors of the air-conditioned ice arena will open at 7 p.m.

General admission tickets are $5 and ringside seats are $7. All proceeds will help support the youth counseling program operated by RALY and the Redford Youth

THE MAIN event will feature a Michigan Heavyweight Championship and the Great Lakes States

Michigan Heavyweight Champ Ricky Cortez of Garden City will bring his 228-pound frame into the ring against the 300-pounds of Iron Mike Wayne of Boston, the Great Lakes states champion.

Cortez has wrestled six world champions and none have ever defeated him. Included in the six are Buddy Rodgers, Lou Thesz, Bruno Sammartino, Killer Kowalski, Don Leo Jonathon and Art Thomas. Cortez, who has never been beaten on TV for 10 years, has beaten the likes of the Sheik, Gorgeous George, Lou Klein, and Leaping Larry Chene.

Also appearing will on the card from Topeka, Kansas, will be the tag team of the Kansas Outlaws who will take on The Flying Tigers of Lit-tle Chicago, one of wrestling's most exciting teams, said Tom O'Connor of RALY. The Kansas Outlaws have been virtually unstoppable in recent months, he said, and so "this bout is sure to be a humdinger."

The arena's concessions tand will be open, parking will be free, and there will be enough wrestling action to make Saturday a night to remember, added O'Connor. The show will last about two hours.

Tickets are available at RALY offices in the Redford Community Center, Hemingway at Capitol, at the Redford Ice Arena, 12400 BEecvh Daly, and at other locations in Redford. For information call

In other bouts, Spike O'Toole of Elkhart, Ind., will wrestle Steve Gordon of Pittsburgh, Mid-West Heavyweight champion Big Jim Lancaster from Dayton, will be challenged by Max Klever of Houston.

Lancaster, more than 6-feet tall and 375 pounds, has special advice promises these professional wr for his opponents: "Wrestling is not tling matches will be entertaining.

for sissies. If you can't take it, then you'd better get out." His most effective move is the Big Splash.

Malcolm "Heavy Metal" Monroe, 318 pounds from Buffalo, N.Y., will wrestle Billy Curtis of Cincinnati.

The matches are being billed as professional wrestling even though a state lawmaker, Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, has introduced a bill in Lansing to have pro wrestling designated as entertainment. Sidestep ping the political issue, O'Connor promises these professional wres-

McDonald's satisfies neighborhood; gets OK to build

By Tedd Schneider

staff writer

McDonald's will build a restaurant at the southeast corner of Joy and Merriman, ending a three-year battle waged by neighborhood residents and developers over the fate of the

The fast-food giant won special approval for the restaurant from the Westland City Council Monday. Construction is expected to begin late this year or early in 1991, according to company officials. A 7-Eleven store has already been approved for the adjacent property. Residents who have fought previous projects expressed some nagging concerns but said overall they are satisfied with changes in the site plan worked out after a series of meetings with McDonald's repre-

Councilman Thomas Artley cast

the only dissenting vote, citing prob-lems with additional noise, traffic and "perhaps even fumes."

"McDonald's would certainly be a better citizen there than what (was previously) proposed and what is going (directly) on the corner (the 7-Eleven)," Artley said. "But I still don't think (the site plan) addresses homeowners' needs.'

BUT OTHER council members praised McDonald's for its cooperation with the city and residents.

Residents on Cooley, which backs up to the property, and other nearby streets have played a vocal role in development of the site.

McDonald's has agreed to increase the height of a wall at the south end of the property from six to seven feet and add a gate to the wall so residents will be able to maintain their vards.

Other barriers have been moved further away from residents' property lines, to create a greenbelt and prevent access for vandals, said Alan Helmkamp, an attorney representing McDonald's.

A corporate spokesman said last week the restaurant would probably be open 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. during the week and until midnight on Fridays and Saturdays. But, he said, if the hours "do become a nuisance to neighbors, certainly we can talk about it and adjust them."

McDonald's will also pay to have a sidewalk installed in front of several homes and has agreed to a "No Left Turn" sign in front of the Merriman entrance for safety reasons.

Wilhelmina Lawson, who has acted as spokeswoman for local residents, said Monday she was pleased

"in general" with the changes.

BUT SHE SAID attempts to place commercial projects in the area have resulted in years of "assaults on residents and the integrity of this neighborhood."

She was critical of the adjacent 1 convenience store and said it's latenight patrons would be tempted to "sit and visit" in the McDonald's parking lot when the restaurant was

The 7-Eleven property is owned . by Glenn Shaw, who sold a portion of the site to McDonald's for an undisclosed price last January. His efforts to build a strip mall failed when Blockbuster video backed out as the major tenant.

Area residents have been fighting commercial development of the d property since 1987 when Burger ! King announced plans to build a resame taurant on the site. That fast-food-, chain refused to accommodate residents' and city council requests limiting hours of operation.

Color helps nature survive

mals are adaptive, that is they help the animal to survive. Many animals, such as female birds are brown or grey so that they do not attract producers to the nest Comattract predators to the nest. Cam-ouflage coloration is also very effective in insects such as moths.

Coloration other than camouflage is also adaptive in animals. Distinct colors and patterns help individuals distinguish one species from another. Some areas of bright color are only exposed during aggressive encounters. Exposing them all the time would nullify their effect.

There is also some evidence that brighter colors may be an indication of fitness, or health, or the ability to defend a territory. Females that must choose a mate will choose the one with the brightest colors.

Colors of animals are also produced in different ways. Pigments in feathers, fur or skin can produce various hues. Many colors are created by the configuration of the structure. Iridescent colors are formed in this manner.

Though we can give reasons for the many shades of an animal, legends and stories passed down through the ages to explain this phe-nomenon are just as colorful.

Though we can give reasons for the many shades of an animal, legends and stories passed down through the ages to explain this phenomenon are just as colorful.

According to a Native American legend, butterflies got their colors after the Great Spirit had created the beautiful mountains, valleys, and streams for people to see. The Great Spirit wanted his people to enjoy nature and to seek it out often, so he created piles of colorful pebbles and hid them in the streambeds so people would have to intentionally look for

These pebbles were all the colors of the rainbow, and when he saw how beautiful they were, he decided that they were too beautiful to hide. So he summoned the South Wind to breath life into the brightly colored pebbles. As the South Wind blew, the pebbles began to rise from the stream on colorful wings. These were the first butterflies and moths.

It seems that through the years, men seeking to explain the unknown have developed many explanations to answer the same question.

Summertime

Shock Absorbers Receive Punishment From Vacation Loads, Potholes, Bumps

Spring is traditionally a time to perform routine maintenance and get the family car ready for summer driving, especially vacation travel It's also a good time to carefully examine the effects of winter's potholes on your vehicle's suspension

Many vacations involve loading the car with the family luggage, sports equipment and perhaps towing a boat or trailer Good suspension performance is vital to a smooth comfortable ride and an enjoyable trip. Not to mention safe handling, better control. and less tire wear.

It's a common belief that shock absorbers do the most to improve a car's ride quality. While they do make a difference, the primary suspension part affecting ride quality actually is the springs The springs carry the vehicle's weight, support it when making turns or stopping, and absorb bumps and

The function of the spring becomes more critical as you add more weight to your vehicle. Some shocks, such as air shocks, may help, but they put stress on the shock mounting bolts. which aren't designed to carry weight.

The best place to compensate for the effects of additional loads is the coil springs. There are two options to consider with coil springs: install heavy duty models, or ones with a variablerate design. Heavy-duty springs will help with the loads, but leave the vehicle with a harsh ride when empty. The variable-rate coil spring design offers the advantage of increasing its resistance as weight is increased, automatically adjusting to the load. The result: a smooth, comfortable ride when loaded or empty.

The variable-rate design coil spring was introduced by Moog Automotive, Inc., a leading producer of steering and suspension parts. Available are applications for both the front and rear where coll springs are used.

Another suspension problem is sagged springs. Springs are the only parts on the vibicle that work 24 hours

VALUE OF SPRINGS-Springs carry a vehicle's weight, support it during turns or stopping and absorb bumps and dips. As weight is added, springs are even more critical. This vehicle would benefit from variablerate springs.

fects many other steering and suspension parts and can lead to poor handling, alignment problems and shortened tire life.

To check for sag, have a professional mechanic check your car for proper height. The procedure isn't difficult. but requires a trained expert to accurately measure and determine the condition of your springs.

This is especially important for many of today's front-wheel-drive vehicles. The suspension system used in most is lighter and has fewer parts. Damage caused from sagged springs or excessive bottoming out (when you get a bone-jarring jolt from a big bump) can be very expensive.

If components absorb sustained impact, their life will be severely shortened. This is because bottoming ipper strut mounts, which can out produces an impact absorbed by ck absorbing ability time they can sag-actually lowering mitted to other suspension parts. A the ride height of the vehicle This afvariable-rate spring in the front will seldom bottom out

Alignment angles are also affected by bottoming out, and accelerated tire wear is the result

Front-wheel-drive vehicles with severely sagged coil springs can also CV (constant velocity) joints. These joints deliver power from the transmission to the front wheels and are usually very expensive to replace. Replacing sagged springs by installing variable-rate springs can help prevent this costly damage

So when you get your car ready for summer driving, don't ignore the suspension system-especially the springs. The advantages of the variable-rate coll spring design will not only restore ride height, but also automatically adjust to varying toads. Whether on the front or rear, they'll resist sagging and bottoming out, and reduce sway and dipping, You'll enjoy better handling and a smoother ride.

FLOODED OUT-Splashing through flooded streets is not in the best interest of any autom Avoid such streets, if possible, but if you must drive through them, do so slowly, with patience and

Save Your Fun On Water For Ride In Boat

Cars were not intended to be water-borne vehicles, and encounters with flooded streets can only increase the chance of a car malfunction.

During the rainy season, avoid standing water at intersections or elsewhere if possible, particularly if it is above the bottom of the wheel rims. However, if you have no alternative but to drive through, here are some tips to help you safely navigate these water hazards:

Drive through the water very slowly. Rapid movement might cause the water to "swamp" or stall the engine, and

If you do stall as you cross a deep puddle, try to coast toward the side of the road and wait for the engine to dry out before trying to start it. Wiping off the spark plugs, wires; and other parts of the ignition system with a dry cloth can help you get moving faster.

Remember that the car's brakes may be affected by driving through standing water, and you should check their stopping ability before an emergency demands their

Miss Soccer leads All-Observer squad

Last year, Troy Athens clipped Northville 1-0 in the title game and upset a six-year streak in which a WLAA team had won the state championship. But thanks to Stevenson's victory, the coveted crown is back where it belongs in the center of the hottest soccer area of the state.

With the abundance of talent in Obsererland, selecting an All-Area team is no easy task. But a panel of area coaches finally agreed on an all-star cast that would make a concrete winner out of even the losingest coach.

The players on the 1990 All-Area team combined for 132 goals and 90 assists this season, led by Farmington's Carrie Maier, recipient of the Miss Soccer Award. Five other members of the team earned All-State recognition and three received All-State honorable mention.

Rangers claim rights to goalie

Mike Gilmore hadn't thought nuch about playing profe tockey until Priday.

The Farmington Hills resident went to Michigan State as a walk-on goalkeeper, worked his way up from third string and is currently the backup to Jason Muzzatti.

But Gilmore's long-term prospects got a shot-in-the-arm last week when the New York Rangers selected him 18th overall in the NHL supplemen-

Gilmore, who appeared in 12 games for the Central Collegiate Hockey Association champion Spartans, expects to remain at MSU for the time being, however.

They more or less drafted me to get the rights," said Gilmore, a 1986 graduate of Redford Catholic Central and former Compuware Junior

"I TALKED TO one of their scouts (Dave McNabb), and he told me they liked my development so far and are eager to see what happens next year. He said they've been watching me the last couple years and believe I'll develop some more down the road."

Gilmore, who was redshirted his first year, is a junior academically with two years of eligibility remaining. Muzzatti will be a senior next season, and Gilmore appears to be the heir apparent the following year.

"I've got one more year left on my undergraduate, and I'll take graduate courses my last year of hockey," he said. "I want to get my undergraduate out of the way before I decide to do anything NHL wise."

"I don't want to count anything out (after next season), but I'm probably looking at playing the next two years here. Education is pretty im-

"That's what my parents sent me to college for, not to be an NHL player," he said, "although maybe that will happen."

LIKE ALL aspiring athletes, having that opportunity would be a dream come true for Gilmore, who won 11 straight games before dropping a 3-2 decision to Lake Superior State in the final regular season game. Gilmore, who earned a partial scholarship, had a 2.71 goals-against average last season.

"I always hoped some day I'd have a shot at it," he said. "Now that they've drafted me, that changes things a bit - that maybe after college is over I might play in the farm

"(Being drafted) told me some people were actually interested in my ability. It's nice to know people at that level have some interest in

Pat's place: Pitt

Penguins select former CC player

There's no denying Pat Neaton his place, at least for the fext three years — a place which happens to be cold and slick, full of bumps and bruises and hard work.

rently a member of the University of Michigan hockey team. He was a big reason the Wolverines enjoyed one of their finest seasons ever in 1989-90; a freshman defenseman. Neaton collected three goals and 23 assists in 42 games, the secondbest scoring totals among U-M

The Wolverines' 24-12-6 record attracted some attention. So did their players in last Saturday's National Hockey League draft. Six were drafted: five freshmen and one freshman-to-be.

Neaton was one of the draftees. He was picked by the Pittsburgh Penguins in the seventh round. His teammate and roommate, freshman defenseman Chris Tamer from Dearborn Heights (Crestwood), was also chosen by Pittsburgh, in the fourth round.

NEITHER WILL be playing pro soon, however. That's not the way the NHL operates. Pittsburgh will retain both players' pro rights. The Penguins could sign them now, but why? The thinking is to let them develop at the collegiate level, then sign them after they graduate. Which suits Neaton fine. The former Redford Catholic Central student (he left CC after his junior year and graduated from Toronto's DeLaSalle prep school) has plenty of plans between now and then.

For instance: Neaton is currently at St. Cloud (Minn.) University attending a hockey camp that will help determine which U.S.-born players go where, as part of nation-

"Making a college team and making the Olympic team and getting drafted, those are all goals everyone has when they're young," said Neaton, recalling his childhood ambitions. "They're always out there."

BUT, IN Neaton's mind, first things first. He has work to do between now and his pro debut. "My size and stuff (6-foot, 180 pounds). I have to work out hard. Plus, my education has always been a goal I

"I definitely want to get my degree, and I'll work hard at hockey. Then, whatever happens with hockey, I'll have my degree.

His selection in the seventh round neither surprised nor disappointed him. "It was expected," Neaton said. "I figured I'd go in the middle rounds somewhere.

"If you're picked in the middle rounds, you have to work like crazy But, as Neaton added: "If you can play, it doesn't matter what round you're drafted in."

While his size may be a drawback, his talent is not. An offensive-minded defenseman, one of Neaton's strong points is his ability to move the puck quickly up the ice. He was the quarterback on U-M's power play much of last season, quite a responsibility for a

"The coach (Red Berenson) showed a lot of confidence in me, putting me in there," said Neaton "That helped a lot."

NEATON WAS teamed with David Harlock, another freshman, on defense. The twosome were U-M's second defensive unit, which meant the freshmen were often on the ice in pressure situations. Harlock was also drafted, by the New Jersey Devils in the second round.

When the camp at St. Cloud University ends this week, Neaton will be on his way back to Ann Arbor, where he and Tamer will continue to work out as Neaton tries to bulk up. On July 5, it will be back on the road, this time to the 10-day Olympic Festival training camp.

Hockey has become a year-round activity for Neaton. But he doesn't mind. "It's fun. It's something I enjoy, but it does fill my time. My freshman year, everything just flew by. It was over before I knew

And before he knows it, he'll be signing a pro contract with Pittsburgh after his senior year as U-M. How well Neaton performs - both for the Wolverines and other national teams - in the next three years will determine the amount of that contract.

She owns a career .924 save percentage and a career, 1.21 goals-against average. Larabell earned All-State honorable mention and was selected to the All-Catholic first

"Renee had an outstanding season," Mercy coach Henry Klimes said: "Without Renee playing her best in the district and regional finals, we wouldn't have advanced to the semifinals. She has great hands and the talent to be one of the best

Michele Minton, senior, Salem, forward: With 17 goals and 17 assists this season, Minton pushed her career totals to 78 goals and 35 assists.

Minton is a two-time, first-team, All-State selection. She earned all-conference honors in the WLAA.

"She was a co-MVP this year and one of our tri-captains," Salern coach Ken Johnson said. "She was a team leader on the field. She is very fast and has developed into a terrific scorer.

Jenny Russell, senior, Canton, forward: A four-year starter for the Chiefs, Russell compiled 57 goals and 33 assists during her high school career at Canton including 19 goals and 10 assists

She received Class A first team All-State honors in both her junior and senior years. Russell, an All-American last year, will attend Kalamazoo College in the fall. She was also an all-conference selection in the WLAA.

"Jenny Russell is a true team leader and not only on game day," Canton coach Don Smith said. "She's the first to practice and the last to leave. Jenny gives 147 percent of herself not only in sports, but in her school work as well, where she holds a 3.8 grade-point-average."

Amy Trunk, senior, Farmington, forward: Trunk totaled 73 goals and 53 assists during her four-year career, finishing this season with 13 goals and 13 assists. She earned all-conference, all-county and all-state honorable mention hon-

Rockers schedule rally during Spree

Soccer enthusiasts can help welcome Detroit's newest professional soccer franchise, the Detroit Rockers of the American Indoor Soccer Association, at a "Rocker Rally," 2 p.m. Saturday at the Ford Field Bandstand as part of Livonia's Spree celebration.

Rockers team owners and players will be introduced at the rally, which is sponsored by the Livonia Jaycees and Livonia Paragon Soccer.

Among the dignitaries scheduled to appear are Major Indoor Soccer

League All-Star and former Detroit Express All-Star Andy Chapman, and Drago, the MVP of January's American Indoor Soccer Association's All-Star game against the Soviet team, played at Detroit's Joe Louis Arena.

Drago, born in 1960 in Zagrelo, Yugoslavia, played for five years in the rival Major Indoor Soccer League before joining the AISA last year as a member of the Hershey Impact. While in the MISL, Drago scored 166 goals and dished off 96 assists. Last year he led the league in scoring and set a record for the number of points in one sensor at 167. record for the number of points in one season at 167.

CHAPMAN, born in 1959 in London, England, played 10 seasons in the MISL and scored 339 goals and 185 assists. He also played on the 1982 American Soccer League champion Detroit Express and led the league in scoring that year with 23 goals.

Various area soccer teams will also be honored at the rally including the Livonia Wolves '76, national boys indoor champs; the Livonia Hawks under-19, women's national champs; the Livonia Stevenson girls Class A state high school champs; the Livonia Paragon, state men's indoor champs 1990; and the Redford Marauders, men's national and regional champs.

Free Rocker pictures, autographs and souvenirs will be handed out to the first 500 fans, as well as season tickets, soccer balls and Rocker warm-ups to be raffled off.

Admission is free, and the rally will be held at the Ford Field bandstand (weather permitting), or at nearby Edgar Arena. For more information call 471-0111.

Duffy's on LCBL roll

Duffy's Plumbing won three games last weekend to improve its Livenia Collegiato Baseball League record to 7-3-1.

The team swept a double-header from Total Travel Values on Sunday, 11-4 and 13-5, after beating Tom Hoiser Ford 6-1 on Priday.

Todd Pracassi and Mike Siwajek had six hits apiece to lead Duffy's, which amassed 27 hits in the twinbill Sunday. Siwajek also racked up six RBI and Pracassi three.

In the first game, in which Duif-fy's outhit Total Travel 17-9, Fracassi went 4-for-4 with one RBI, and Siwajek was 3-for-5 with an inside-the-park home run and three RBL.

with the (daytime) children's series concerts. It differs in its evening performance, in its age recommendation of 7 and up, and in its musical programming to appeal to all ages.

The opening family concert also is hilled as a behind-the-scenes look at into preparing one of these pieces, and what went on with the composers when they were working. It will see how different parts (of a piece) came together. It didn't just always exist. Somebody had to put it together." This applies to the performance as well as a composition.

MAESTRO DANIELS, a professor of conducting in the graduate school at Oakland University, programmed the concert with this in mind. "We tried to put together pieces that are fun to play and to listen to. I will speak to the audience directly, and played by the orchestra, along with the discussion," he says. Daniels also previews the selections.

The concert opens with British composer Benjamin Britten's "Young Person's Guide to the Or-chestra," which certainly is "not exclusively for young people," Daniels says. It is for everyone.

Based on a timeless and memorae theme by another British com-ser, Henry Purcell (1659-1695), it is written on several levels and gives a range of the technical and expressive capabilities of the instruments of the four families of the orchestra (woodwind, strings, brass and per-

The sound of big bands, bebop and more will come alive in Hart Plaza this July and August as the Graystone International Jazz Museum once again presents the "Blue Mon-day" concerts in conjunction with the Detroit Recreation Department. This is the third consecutive summer for the "Blue Monday" celebration, and kicking off this year's lineup Monday, July 9, is drummer "Pistol" Allen and the Magnificent Eight. Other concerts in July feature Teddy Harris Jr., with the New Breed Bebop Society Orchestra, featuring vocalist Norman Thrasher, on July 16; guitarist Calvin Brooks "Smooth Flight" with vocalist Hari Paris, on July 23; and Jimmy Wilkins "Swinging the Blues and More." featuring vocalist Joan Crawford, on July 30. All "Blue Monday" concerts are in Hart Plaza Mondays at 7:30 p.m. and

Prince Khovansky signals his Perian slave girls to dance. "It starts out slow and languorous and then beomes kind of wild toward the end," Daniels says.

This opera was left uncompleted. Rimsky-Korsakov, a contemporary of Mussorgsky, finished and oreches-trated it. Korsakov also taught Stravinsky, the Russian composer whose Infernal Dance" from "The Firebird" follows. Consequently, Daniels says, "There are two Russian dances representing two generations of Rus-

Next piece is from Hungarian composer Bela Bartok's "Hungarian Sketches." The sketch to be performed depicts a "slightly tipsy"

The concert concludes with a 60second piece. While cute and clever are not usually coupled to describe a musical composition, these words do illustrate American composer Paul White's "Mosquito Dance" from his "Five Miniatures." The instruments of the orchestra imitate the sound of a mosquito buzzing for a minute around and around until a slapstick is heard, and the music ends.

Daniels hopes "there will be some thing to capture everybody's imagination. When I was a kid, I grew up in this little town, and I never saw a real orchestra until I was in my teens. It's great to be in a place where there is a great symphony orchestra like the Detroit Symphony right here and, for that matter, community orchestras, and on TV. I envy kids today. I must say."

His first introduction to symphony orchestras was the old 78 RPM record. "I was a teenager with a disposable income when LP's were coming in," he says. "And when they came in, the 78 records went on sale. I remember saving my allowance and buying the 'Rite of Spring' (by Stravinsky). It was a famous piece. I'd read about it, but I'd never heard

Tres Vite, modern cafe that is the joint endeavor of Chef Jimmy Schmidt and Little Caesars President Michael Ilitch, has opened in the Fox Centre Building in downtown Detroit. The interior design combines custom woodwork, Italian lighting and an exposed kitchen. Photo blow-ups from the Paris restaurant scene of the '50s are hung on the walls. There is furniture crafted by Michigan artisans and Memphis Collection chairs. Menu at the casual, moderately priced eatery (average $6 for lunch, $14 for dinners) features grilled entrees, homemade breads, pasta and desserts, with an emphasis on seasonal ingredients.

Shore dinner

A shore dinner will be presented at the special monthly dinner at 7 p.m. Monday-Tuesday at the Lark in West Bloomfield. The menu includes codfish beignets, clams casino, oysters provencal, soft-shelled crab with sherry cream sauce (or a choice of clam and leek soup), champagne and cranberry sorbet cocktail, roast Maine lobster, lemon mousse in a pecan shell, coffee or tea and a bonbon, for $67.50 per person. Reservations are required.

Wine selections

A winemaker dinner will be at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the Restaurant at the Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn. The dinner is co-sponsored by the hotel ad Rombauer Vineyards of Napa Valley, Calif. A four-course gourmet meal will complement the fine wines of Rombauer. Cost is $52 a person. Reservations are required. Also, for wine-lovers, to celebrate the grand opening of the Ritz-Carlton in Sydney, the Dearborn hotel has two Australian wines on its regular menu during June. A 1987 Saltram Mamre Brook Chardonnay and a 1984 Sal-tram Mamre Brook Cabernet Sauvignon/Shiraz are each $28 per bottle, or $6 by the glass.

New steakhouse

The Grill has been transformed into an authentic steakhouse at the Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn. Beef steaks, chops and seafood are on the dinner menu of the 70-seat restaurant. Servers in white dinner jackets and long white aprons present the new menu, which is highlighted by 11 grill selections and eight house specialties. The grill's club-like setting includes mahogany woodwork, 18th and 19th century artworks and a marble fireplace. The Grill Luncheon Buffet, for executives on the go, continues this summer.

Summer menu

Executive Chef Max Weeks has introduced a summer menu at the Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn. Dinner choices include Atlantic Red Snapper with Fennel in a Saffron Broth, Beef Tenderloin Medallions with Corn and Asparagus Relish with a Port Wine Sauce and Baked Cornish Hen with a Bean and Spinach Cassoulet in a Rosemary and Thyme Glaze. The luncheon menu also has a lighter flair for summer. Several low-sodium, low-fat and low-cholesterol sections, labeled Fitness Cuisine, are offered for both lunch and dinner.

Drama powerfully interpreted

Ensemble Theatre production of Slow Dance on the Killing Ground" continue through Sun-day, July 1, at the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield. For ticket information call the box office at 788-2900.

As its title suggests, "Slow Dance on the Killing Ground" is not the most conventional of dramas. As skillfully presented by the Jewish Ensemble Theatre, this little-known play by William Hanley is powerful, puzzling and thought-provoking.

Set in a small Brooklyn candy store in 1962, on the same day that Adolf Eichmann was hung for war crimes, the drama explores guilt and the universal need for love and acceptance. Circumstances bring three very disparate characters together for some soul-searching.

Glas (David Fox), a non-Jewish German who purports to have been a political prisoner in a concentration camp, now leads a quiet existence as the owner of the store. Randall (Roosevelt T. Johnson) is a very strange black teen who comes bounding into the store late at night, clearly hiding from the law. In Act I the pair does a slow dance, circling each other with accusations and hostility.

The first act ends with the sudden arrival of Rosie (Stacie Passon), a young woman who got lost on her way to an abortionist and faints as soon as she reaches the store. In the remainder of the play, Rosie will serve as the catalyst that brings Glas and Randall to confess their truths and reach new understanding while both try to convince her to forget the abortion.

ALL THREE performers are excellent, but Johnson's role is clearly the most demanding. Super-charged with energy most of the time, Randall is a manic-depressive who occasionally runs out of gas and changes his whole persona. Incongruously dressd in dark glasses, top hat and short flowing cape, Randall all but swings from the light fixtures as he nervously hops around the small store. He mixes mispronounced big words with an exaggerated streethip style of speech, his delivery at

Polio changed conductor's musical focus

special writer

James De Preist, guest conductor with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at Meadow Brook Festival this evening and Sunday, works from a sitting position for a valid reason.

In 1962 when he was 26 years old, he went to Bangkok as conductor on a State Department tour and returned a changed person. "I had met (Leonard) Bernstein before I left and he said the tour would be good because in the course of the tour I would be able to do all the things I could do and find the one thing I couldn't do without. And that was

"I contracted polio on the tour, but I had no frame of reference of doing any serious conducting before I had polio. So the career with polio began at the same time. The polio was irrelevant as far as I was concerned. It helped me focus, certainly, during the time when I was in the rehabilitation center.

Both of this week's guest soloists, pianist Garrick Ohlsson (Thursday) and violinist Itzak Perlman (Sunday) are two of his "oldest friends."

De Preist said, "Itzak is important to me for a variety of reasons. He was one of the first artists I worked with and I was standing up conducting in Stockholm and he (also afflicted with polio) said, 'What are you standing up for?' and I had no real answer. So from that point I sat down to conduct and it was freeing. Because when I was standing I had to worry if a gesture I would make would throw me off balance. So, I owe Itzak that.

Garrick and I are just sort of like hand and glove. I know what he's going to do. He knows what I am going to do

WHAT STOOD OUT in conversation with De Preist is his enthusiasm for life and for his music. A Phildelphia native, he came from a home where music was "just a natural part There was singing, piano lesand we listened to the Metropolitan Opera and Toncanini broadcasts cal, but only his aunt, internationally known contralto, Marian Anderson, pursued a musical career. Once he was a teenager, she gave him scores and recordings of symphonies, which gave him "a daily opportunity" to

He remembered receiving Schubert's C Major Symphony ("The Great") and the "Unfinished" Symphony." "Schubert was obviously important to her," he said. Then she presented him with the scores of Beethoven's Second, Fourth and Sixth symphonies which he still carries around with him. He described James De Preist ber influence as essentially "sublimi-

He said while his aunt, at 93, no longer performs, "We just have fun together . . . and share experiences of places and people." He had just been to a meeting at WETA-TV about a documentary on his aunt whom he visited before coming here.

LIKE THE DETROIT Symphony Orchestra and its audiences, the late Antal Dorati, conductor of the DSO in the late 70s, has a special place in De Preist's life. They met when Dorati judged the Metropoulos International Conducting Competition in 1964 in which De Preist took first "In the midst of the euphoria . and dinner at 21," Dorati pulled me aside and said, 'You know, I want you to realize there will be careers that will go along faster and careers that will be flashier . . . you must keep focused on the music-making and let the career take care of it-

De Preist served as assistant conductor under Dorati at the National Symphopny Orchestra. He said Dorati didn't "bury" him. "I had the opportunity to do real repertoire, and do it in New York. Yeah, I owed him a great deal. I owe a lot of people a lot." he said.

De Preist is carrying on that tradition in Oregon where he is principal conductor of the Oregon Symph through his orchestra's program for assistant conductors. He said,"... let the people conduct and, if you can be helpful, help them say what they want to say, not what you would do if you were there." De Preist said he had originally planned to be a lawver and he graduated with a degree in economics from the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce. While he was studying composition with Vincent Persichetti at Phildelphia Conservatory of Music he majored in film at the Annenberg School of Communica-

Aviva Robinson talks about how the paper-making process is a new and exciting form of art for her.

Artist finds new med

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Think of Aviva Robinson's art and you think painstaking precision made more accessible by a fine, often subtle, sense of color. Control, above

Well, a funny thing happened on the way to the studio. From all the paper cutting she did to create those precise sculptural forms, all that careful, exacting work, she developed the modern bugaboo of wrist muscle repetition, carpel tunnel

One operation later, doubtless followed by warnings about never picking up a pair of scisors again, she's still making excellent art. Instead of cutting paper, she's making it and for what some viewers might think she loses in precision, she gains in emotion.

In truth, it's quite amazing how Robinson has taken to paper making, turning this, like her paper cutting, into a sculptural form and adopted her eye and skill with color to the new medium.

"I took two-paper making workshops a year and a half ago . . . but, it was six months before I got something I liked," she said as she stood by some of the pieces in her first show of this new work at Robert Kidd Gallery of Birmingham.

SHE TAKES OVER at the point where she buys the pulp. She speaks with great enthusiasm about pouring the pulp, the vacuuming process and watching it take shape over the forms she

"I've never had so much fun before," she said. "I'd been working so technically for so many years, this quick result is a high. It takes about 20 minutes." That of course, doesn't include the coloring, the drawing, painting and sometimes incising which she does on these works.

She is elated with the results she has gotten and her satisfactions with her art at this moment. Like any fine artist in any field, she has been a professional long enough to know immediately what she wants it to do and how it should look. The fun of paper making is the surprise and delight of pulling off the covering after it has formed and seeing what happened.

THE LOOSENESS WHICH COMES with this medium is also a welcome change for her. There is a level of happenstance in it that was never there previously and that makes for a freer style and looser approach that suits her well. It's a more laid back kind of art. She still does the geometric fans and bands of graded color, but these are a part of the work rather than the sum total.

After she told her story about the problem, the operation and the challenge of a new medium, she said, "It's fun to come out of it with some-

Now, we're talkin' ugh-ly

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

Take it from a person who looked at hundreds of pictures of ugly bathrooms on a recent afternoon: One person's pit is another's palace.

A couple from Birmingham, who own an otherwise gorgeous English stone colonial, complained about what was indeed a horrible color scheme in the bath off their master bedroom.

But a visit to their fully functional facilities would probably seem like a weekend at the Hyatt to the West Bloomfield woman whose bathroom sink is a plastic foam tub with its handle hooked onto a faucet.

These were but two of more than 400 entries in an Ugly Bath contest, sponsored by Herald Wholesale Inc. and other companies that deal in home and bath accessories.

The rules were simple: Send in a picture and, in 100 words or less, a description of the pitiful privy.

THE FIRST prize, worth at least $7,000, was a remodeled bathroom. That went to the McGaffey family, whose six members share a single bathroom in a home near the University of

"Hoping for hot water from the bathroom sink is a pipe dream," their entry said. "When my 3-year-old runs out yelling the sky is falling, I know it is true."

Their peeling ceiling hangs above cracked walls and loose floor tiles. And there's a crack in the toilet.

'We've all been watching this toilet slowly deteriorate," Mary Lou McGaffey said.

THE McGAFFEY family got an architect friend to certify their bathroom is deserving of preferential treatment.

"I can honestly say that in all of my 20 years as an architect, I haven't seen a bathroom more in need of renovation than the McGaffey's," their neighbor, Ted Berlinghof, wrote in a letter attached to the contest entry.

"You really have to be in it to realize what those photos mean," said McGaffey, who still couldn't believe her good fortune a few days after being notified that she was the grand

"The bathroom will outdazzle the rest of the house and will be a real incentive to get the rest of the house in order.'

THE IDEA for the contest was hatched by Janice Katz, whose husband, Gerald, owns Herald Wholesale, on Coolidge near Eight Mile in Oak Park.

Though she had nothing to do with choosing the winner, she said she was pleased the McGaffeys were chosen. Mary Lou McGaffey is a divorced mother of eight, five of whom still live

"We just thought it was fun, but now I can see it was more than fun. We are really going to impact a family's life here,' Janice Katz said.

A few weeks after an advertisement for the contest ran in area publications, the store had received less than a dozen entries, and Katz thought maybe the idea was a bust.

"All of a sudden - I think people were getting their pictures developed - we started to get 40 a day," she said:

She was still getting entries the day after the winner was picked by a panel of judges, made up of journalists who write about interior design. The co-sponsors were Perspectives in Laminate and Virginia Tile.

IF THE contest participants were as handy with a toolbox as they are with the written word, they wouldn't need help with their lavatories.

Janice St. Pierre of Royal Oak wrote a four-stanza limerick that began:

"There once was a lady named Jan. She tried to fix up her can. She worked night and day on such little pay. She really could use a hand."

JOHN DISCHLER/staff photographer

One family said it got 10 phone calls from people urging them to enter. Several said of their baths, "Must see to appreciate." And others simply cried, "Help."

One photo showed a leopard toilet seat. Another seat had red and white stripes. A contestant said of his tub, "Would you feel clean after you bathed in here?" And another said his medicine cabinet "needs a cure."

JOE AND TONI Grinnan, the Birmingham couple with the English colonial, also have a sense of humor about their bath, which they referred to as the 'torture chamber."

"A previous owner, with a serious dungeon fetish, did the place up in his favorite shades of navy, purple, black, dark brown and red," they wrote.

And they included a warning about the photos in their entry materials: "If your constitution is strong, peruse the pictures." The bath features a free standing sink, above which there is a mirror suspended by gold chains. A closeup of the blue, pur-ple and black tiles was captioned, "This may be the ugliest ceramic tile ever produced." The title of the Grinnan entry, by the way, was "Why we should win your contest or rent a port-a-john.'

THEY WEREN'T alone in their belief that outdoor plumbing would be an improvement over what their house has to

"My mother-in-law walks to the corner gas station to use their clean restroom," said the entry by Jerry and Judy Olli of

And their in-laws aren't the only ones who prefer to meet their bodily needs elsewhere.

"Our dog, Goldie, won't drink out of the toilet," the Ollis said. The Beaudrie family of Trenton took second place and will receive a $500 gift certificate from Herald Wholesale. Ten third place winners will get $100 gift certificates, and 25 fourth place winners will receive "Goodie Bags" from the

Marty Figley

Here are several books that should please the youngsters.

Workman Publishing has recently released "The Garden Book and The Greenhouse" (a real, small plastic one) by Wes Porter, a just-the-right-size book and 'house' for children 10 and under. It tells how to plant seeds, transplant, and care for more than over 20 plants. Included are understandable lessons in botany. What a wonderful way to introduce a child to gardening at any time of the year.

A Book-of-the-Month-Club selection, it is one in a series of Workman's "Hand in Hand with Nature" series. The complete kit is $9.95, paper cov-

Organize those prints and negs

How many times have you searched for a hox of dides or set of prints from that special occasion years ago only to be stymied as to where you put

Do you have boxes of loose slides and drawers full of loose prints that are totally disorganized? You're not alone. Many photographers regard the filing and storage of negatives, slides and prints as a disheartening task to be avoided.

Imagine how convenient it would be to have an appearant of the storage of the organized filling system, to have your prints and negatives orderly, neat and readily available. It's easier than you think.

Over the years cardboard boxes will emit discernable amounts of gases and peroxides that will tarnish the silver in films and prints and cause fading and loss of picture detail. The same is true for brown paper envelopes often used to hold prints and negatives. Glue in the seams of many envelopes can cause discoloration if it gets too close to the emulsion of a picture.

EVEN RUBBER bands wrapped around a roll of negatives or stack of prints contain compounds that can cause damage.

Here are some ideas on how to avoid these dangers and assure the safety of a photographer's most valuable possession - pictures and nega-

Negatives: Care in preserving your prints must naturally begin with your negatives. Store them in transparent polyethylene holders which in turn can be stored in vinyl binders. Larger negetives can be placed in polythylene sleeves and housed in small steel cabinets.

Polyethylene will resist moisture and won't decay or grow misty with age. Furthermore, contact sheets can be made of the negatives without removing them from the holders.

Prints: Sunlight fades and bleaches some color prints. To avoid this, spend a few extra dollars and have a Cibachrome or Fuji "Super Gloss" print made from your favorite slides or negatives. They will last for many years without any fading and will give you prints of superior quality.

When mounting your prints, be sure to use acid-free rag board. Acids in regular mounting boards will eventually cause discoloration to the board as well as your print.

When buying a photo album, make sure the pages are made of an acid-free material.

Finally, never hang photographs (or any art-work) where direct sunlight will strike them. Slides: The biggest enemy to color slides is moisture. In an atmosphere of more than 60 percent humidity, fungus can form on your slides and damage them. Storage methods for slides should therefore provide for circulating air. Most slide trays and metal slide storage boxes are specifically manufactured to permit air circulation and thus reduce moisture.

Preserving your photographic memories is easy. A few simple measures will ensure that they'll be around to enjoy for a long time to com: Monte Nagler

Where would Her Majesty live Birmingham?

At Buckingham, naturally.

She'd love the royal park across the street. She'd dote on the spacious two-bedroom apartment with fresh new interiors from the most modern appliances to the best lighting fixtures to designer carpeting to contemporary verticals.

She'd like the uncommon amount of room and royal way the service staff treats her. After all, a person's home ought to be their palace.

The Crossings

Apartment living just got better.

We're making The Crossings a better place to live and a better value. You'll feel it in the new hallways and newly refurbished clubhouse. You'll see it in the plush landscaping when you enter the grounds. And that's just the beginning. It's the new look and feel of The Crossings at Canton - and it's for you.

The Crossings at Canton offers 19 different floor-plans with 1 to 4 bedrooms. And whether you choose a 2-level townhome or a luxury apartment, the renewed beauty of this charming rental community shines through in every one—the result of our recent "Capital Improvements & Upgrading" program. These apartments and townhomes are the largest in the area, yet are still incredibly affordable.

DRESSED FOR SUCCESS?

Developers are now realizing that a building can be more uniquely designed to serve as a drawing card for the potential lessee.

The Pierce Building, above, in downtown Birmingham has a pedestrian presence with a plaza. Combermere Stage, left below, in Troy has a stagelike presence. First of America, right below, was designed with a strong architectural theme.

By Dale Northup special writer

HE PLETHORA of surrounding commercial buildings is exactly that - commercial - in taste and design. For the most part, these buildings are stereotyped with horizontal bands of precast aggrearound all four sides.

This is nothing new. Mies van der Rohe, America's "less is more" advocate, visualized this type of design in 1921 as a reaction against the extraneous use of ornamentation prevalent in architecture around the turn of the century. He also wanted to "have an architecture that anybody can do." His omen continues to bear fruit and satisfies commercial developers' cost effectiveness with a pedestrian countenance.

Admittedly, these developers have to work within a fixed budget while, at the same time, showing a net capital gain on their investment. But they also have become cognizant of a more competitive market indicated by a discerning prospective tenant who is seeking an identifiable address.

With a few more bucks added to the budget, developers are now realizing that a building can be more uniquely designed to serve as a drawing card for the potential lessee. Why not enhance spending eight hours a day in a building that has a visual sense of place? Sometimes the magic kingdom of business is better served with a yellow brick road, which could wind around the building to become a crenelated parapet at the top and perhaps facilitating a crowning glory of success. Wasn't that the name of a book - "Dress for Success"? Why not expand the circumference of the business image from the beltline to the building?

INTO SUCH A visionary setting have come a number of buildings that are realistic attempts at establishing some semblance of business identity.

The Benjamin K. Pierce Building, by Luckenback, Ziegelman and Partners of Birmingham, on the corner of Brown and Pierce in downtown Birmingham, supplants a pre-existing building and incorporates another one. The 77,000-square-foot, three-story building is clad in Indiana limestone with a polished black granite base. The seams of limestone intersect at the vertical and horizontal junctures, thus serving to define squares and the scale of the building. They also help frame the square windows that punctuate the facade

One of the interesting features of the building is a concave facade at the corner of a busy intersection, helping to resolve a problem with motorists' sight lines. In addition, it serves to define a pedestrian plaza that immediately links the building with the community. On the Brown Street side, the building steps back, yet the facade on the ground level is continued with a colonnade behind wnich is another landscaped plaza.

The new operations center for First of America in downtown Royal Oak by Hobbs & Black of Ann Arbor, is a 180,000square-foot, four-story building that has a similar facade treatment to the Pierce Building in Birmingham, raising the question of who was looking over whose shoulder.

MORE IMPORTANT, both buildings work in a contextualist manner. Clad in a reddish-orange brick and limestone, First of America has strong link with the downtown cityscape, the intention of Hobbs & Black. The pilaster treatment of the piers on the middle two floors gives the building a classical appearance and extends to the ground floor framing the display windows behind which are 30,000 square feet of retail space further linking the building with the retail district.

The Atrium Building in Brewery Park in downtown Detroit is a joint venture by Kirco Realty of Troy and River Place Properties. Designed by Gensler & Associates of Denver, the four-story building consists of 144,000 square feet that rests atop a plaza level under which is parking for 900 cars. The entrance is marked by a mock gable clad in brick and limestone behind which is a six-story atrium with a tinted glass enclosure. The piers supporting the skylight over the atrium are encased in black columns with gold leaf capitals serving to define the floor. The building is an interesting amalgam of modern and post-modern elements. Brewery Park offers the amenities of suburbia in an urban setting.

For a commercial building the Combermere Stage Building in Troy is probably the most bizarre. Adhering to its function as a filming studio, it has a facade that could function as a movie set for a western movie. Owner Vern Hammarlund sought an idenity of this building that would separate it from another building he works out of down the street in a light industrial park in Troy. Working with Troy architect Art Kalajian, Hammarlund studied older commercial buildings on the west side of the state, a cross-section of buildings along U.S. 12, to create an old-time flavor.

Unlike so many small, light industrial buildings with false fronts over a concrete block box, this one is unique. The viewer is suddenly transported in space and time much as at Greenfield Village. Kalajian has melded some interesting elements. The brick detail is accentuated by arches, a string course of projecting soldier formations and topped with wooden cornices and a gable framing what else — a stage coach. The dream of filming, which takes place inside, extends outside.

Builders fight code changes

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

BOCA codes, the building regulations model on which many communities base building requirements, are the subject of a growing national debate pitting builders against the materials manufacturing industry.

Caught between them are the building professionals who will actually make the decisions.

Builders say if they lose, the end result will be higher housing costs. Building supply manufacturers contend that a victory for them will mean better, safer buildings.

According to Dick Morris, BOCA has come under increasing pressures from outside interest groups to enact changes that, while beneficial to the proponents, will eventually drive up

"Unreasonable code changes must be challenged." Morris is the construction, technology and code specialist for the National Association of Home Builders.

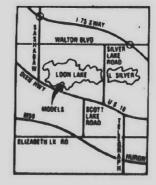

Each year, BOCA (Building Officials and Code Administrators) members gather to consider changes to the codes that are used as a model for local ordinances.

BOCA WILL HAVE its annual meeting Sunday-Friday, June 24-29, to discuss changes that will address general construction, light, ventilation, space, plumbing facilities and fixtures, mechanical, electrical, fire safety, responsibility of peo-

Builders can reduce indoor polluting materials B

special writer

Bubble, bubble: radon gas, smoke, bacteria, mold and mildew, carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide, formaldehyde, pesticides, asbestos, lead.

What sounds like a modern-day witches' brew is in reality the list of major pollutants in the home, according to the Environmental Protection Agency

Many of these airborn contaminants can be eliminsted with sound construction practices. A booklet recently published by the EPA and the Consumer Products Safety Council (CPSC), entitled "The Inside Story: A Guide to Indoor Air Quality," lists a set of guidelines for owners to consider when build-

The premise is to prevent indoor air problems before they occur, and the first recommendation is for the owner to express concerns about indoor air quality to the architect or builder and enlist cooperation in taking measures to provide a healthy environment. Two major topics that should be on the list for discussion are specifying and purchasing building materials and furnishings that emit low amounts of pollution, and providing an adequate amount of ventilation.

The EPA/CPSC report reccommends the follow-

• Use radon-resistant construction techniques, which include providing proper drainage and sealing foundations in new construction.

 Choose building materials and furnishings that will keep indoor air pollution to a minimum. For instance, exterior grade pressed wood products can be used instead of interior-grade for floors, cabinetry and wall surfaces.

EXTERIOR-GRADE pressed wood is made with phenol-formaldehyde, which has a much lower emission rate compared to urea-formaldehyde used

Proponents of the code change argue that townhouses are no different from apartments — there are common areas and adjoining walls — and therefore fire sprinklers should be required in townhouses, according

NAHB supports an amendment to the BOCA code (B106-90) that would eliminate the need for fire sprinklers in apartments of two stories or less and apartments of four stories or less and a basement, Morris said.

NAHB argues these apartments are already protected by smoke detection systems and fire sprinklers are redundant. Another argument is that many areas do not have adequate public water supplies — fire sprinklers can fail from lack of pres-

Wood's versatility leads to popularity

Wood, one of the world's oldest building materials, is aging well.

Processes to improve its wearing and weathering qualities and a new appreciation of its natural insulating qualities contribute to its continued popularity as a building and remodeling material.

The trade association for makers of wood windows and doors as well wood for outdoor use both report healthy and growing sales, despite the fact that housing starts dropped

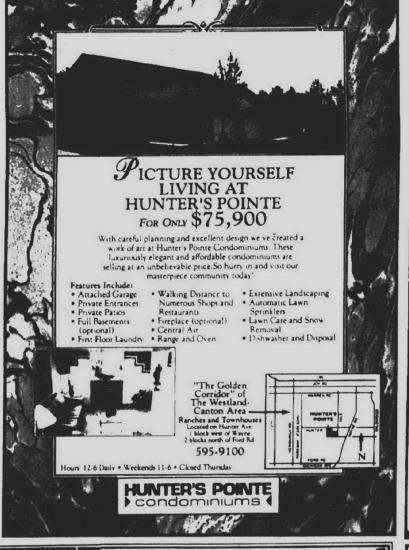

Because of its honeycomb-shaped cell structure, wood is a natural thermal insulator containing a high percentage of insulating-rich air within the wood fibers," says John W. Shoemaker of the National Wood reported a 20 percent rise in sales last year.

The association's research on wood doors showed that wood expands and contracts less than steel during temperature changes, thus erstripping.

Wood's aesthetic quality also contributes to its popularity, Shoemaker

Paint can dramatize rooms

ing tips are all that is needed to change walls from drab to dramatic.

The following suggestions from Window & Wall Ideas magazine can even help a novice achieve professional results.

The first step in any painting project is choosing a color scheme. Color can work magic on a room. It can create a mood, accentuate furnishings, or add visual interest. When choosing colors, keep in mind these tips:

· Neutral colors, such as cream, gray, and white, are soothing colors. Light colors are airy and expansive; use them to help make areas appear larger. Dark colors can create a cozy feeling in an oversize room.

 Using contrasting or accent colors can lend interest to a room. For example, a favorite piece of furniture or art will stand out against a wall painted a contrasting color. In addition, interest can be or accent colors on moldings.

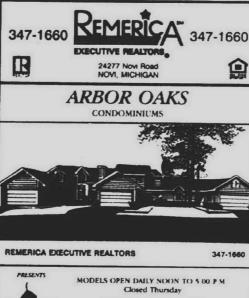

(AP) The proper materials and some basic paint- both shorter walls are painted a darker color than the longer walls. Use bold, bright colors selectively to draw in a wall or lower a ceiling.

Paint is available in various types. The following information will help determine which one is best suited to specific needs.

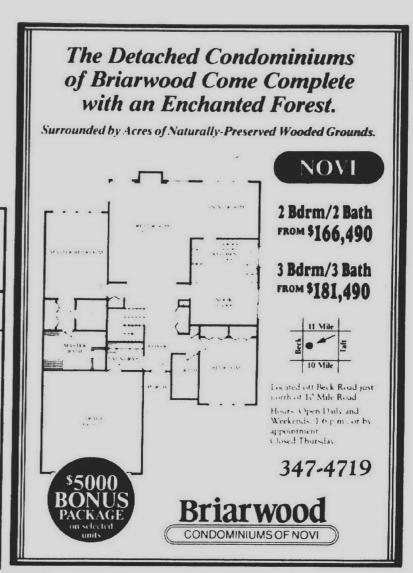

For almost all interior projects, choose between water- and solvent-thinned paints. Water-thinned, or latex, paints include acrylic, thixotropic (dripless), epoxy, urethane and polyurethane. All are relatively quick drying, odorless, easy to apply and non-flammable. Latex paints come in a variety of Solvent-thinned, or alkyd, paints include oilbased, or resin-based enamels, which produce durable, easy-to-clean surfaces. Solvent-thinned paints are often preferred where constant upkeep is necessary, such as in a kitchen or bath. Enamels in the highest gloss ranges are usually solvent-thinned.

Texture paint, available premixed or in a powder added to a barren room by using contrasting colors form that requires mixing, produces a rough, patterned surface. Similarly, sand paint is mixed with Color can seemingly alter a room's propor- coarse granules that produce a grainy effect. Both tions.
