Fife and Drum Corps steps sharp

By C. L. Rugenstein

Tis the season for fireworks, picnics, starspangled bunting everywhere, and the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps to make an appearance.

The Corps, long a staple of Plymouth's July 4 parade, will be making several appearances durthe week, with the grand finale being Greenfield Village's Colonial Life Festival July 7-8.

BUT PLYMOUTH'S colonial marching musicians have come a long way since their 1971 beginnings - from red gingham shirts and elasticized brown breeches, to spiffy Continental Army white and blue uniforms.

First, director Mark Petty founded the group with 12 area youngsters.

"He took a pretty rag-tag group of kids to begin with," and trained them to be a first-rate precision marching group, said current director Ed

"He was a real perfectionist, he started the tradition we have for precision in drill and excellence in music," he said. The purpose was to revive the nearly defunct fife and drum corps of colonial days.

Petty had to teach the kids from the ground up, starting with their basic high school band training. He taught the flute players how to play fife, and drummers how to play the ancient rudiments including the color guard, fifers and drummers.

Stutzman has an instructional staff of seven including himself, two drum and three fife teachers. Instruction includes a little music history and a little American history along the way.

Stutzman actively recruits potential members from local middle and high schools. Age limits are 12-18, but the majority are 14-15-year olds,

HE AND parent volunteers make the rounds of local band classes in September, doing a presentation about the corps.

School aid bill shows rich-poor shift

By Tim Richard staff writer

Many suburban school districts will find their state categorical aid cut this fall. The Michigan Legislature last week played Robin Hood with $50 million, closing the gap between rich and poor districts.

Two committee chairmen negotiated the deal in a massive bill that raises state aid by 7.7 percent to $3.15 billion.

"The Senate won the principle," said House Education chair William Keith, D-Garden City. "Categorical aids are back in.

All school districts, regardless of wealth, used to get categoricals. But payments to wealthier districts are increasingly "recaptured," in Lans-

Jennifer Griffith was a minority Thursday night. But as a white worn-an from the suburbs, she didn't feel out of place among the throngs of black people who packed Tiger Sta-dium to see Nelson Mandela.

MANDELA COULD hardly string together two sentences without being interrupted by cheers from the crowd, which was estimated to contain nearly 50,000 people. One person in the crowd wondered aloud if the Tigers were ever greeted with that much noisy adoration.

The school district had said that the pool could be reopened only if a self-supporting operation could be set up by the Y and parks and rec. Costs were pegged at $48,000 to $50,000.

Dual monuments to honor war dead from Korea, Vietnam

staff writer

"In memory of all Korean war veterans."

"In memory of all Vietnam veterans." Dual plaques of cast bronze, measuring 24- by 36-inches each. Set in polished pink granite eight feet tall from South Carolina. Situated in the White Chapel Memorial Cemetery in Troy.

Fitting tributes in a fitting location, a serene garden offering safety in recall of painful times past. For to view the memorial is to recall.

Each plaque is a montage of war, a sequence of horrifying events meticulously researched and executed in exacting detail, a labor that for sculptress Susan Wagner evokes emotion she has difficulty expressing.

An early 1970s graduate in fine arts from the University of Pittsburgh, Wagner sculpts memorial plaques for Matthews International, the world's largest bronze foundry. Her work involves the business of emotion.

"I have a lot of feeling for anything I do, but especially the war plaques," said Wagner, whose recent works include memorials for the Baseball Hall of Fame and Mathew Henson, a black man who accompanied Robert Peary to the North Pole.

WAR PLAQUES EVOKE emotion, according to John Hancovsky, because they "are not just about tanks, airplanes and arms. People are also involved," the men and women who fought and those who lost their lives.

The Korean plaque summarizes the point. "At times, we were greatly outnumbered; but we still fought on and many of us gave our lives for Freedom . . . for Justice . . . and for Peace."

The Vietnam plaque speaks of those who "went to war as kids and lost their youthful dreams," returning

The other side of the memorial honors those who died in Vietnam.

'We thought about it and decided we wanted to honor the Vietnam War vets. We know they feel slighted. In view of our past heritage, we feel this is appropriate. It is the least we can do.'

- David Krall

'as men with the horrors of war instilled in every fiber of their being.'

Hancovsky, who directs artistic effort for Matthews, said extensive research precedes the execution of all war plaques. Written and verbal accounts, photographs and memorbilia are gathered and studied. War veterans, acting as advisers and counselors, authenticate ef-

"Each design is developed in a way as to be reminiscent to the character of a particular war. Each war is different." Hancovsky said.

An horizon of barren hills accents the Korean plaque. A Red Cross tent is prominent and two aircraft, an F-80 and a C-54, reflect those flown in that conflict.

Bamboo shoots punctuate the Vietnam montage, that is also dated with an M-16 rifle and a helicopter. The rifle was first used in this conflict and it is also the first time helicopters were an intregal part of battle.

Each plaque covers the entire spectrum of war military men in full uniform and pathos, wounded warriors in Korea comforting one another and a conterie of Vietnamese vets bearing a stretcher towards burial crosses. The American flag is prominent in each.

HONORING KOREAN AND VIETNAM veterans was a natural step for White Chapel, according to the firm's president David Krall, who will dedicate the new memorial during July 4th ceremonies Wednesday.

The new tribute is alined with tributes to those who fought and died in World Wars I and II. A polar bear, dedicated in 1930, is to World War I infantrymen who fought in Russia and the Four Freedoms Garden, dedicated in 1948, honors those engaged in World War II.

The new tribute rests upon a recently landscaped circle of grass within a boulevard that transcends the White Chapel burial park.

"We thought about it and decided we wanted to honor the Vietnam War vets. We know they feel slighted. In view of our past heritage, we feel this is appropriate. It is the least we can do," Krall said.

One line in the Vietnam plaque reads, these veterans were never given the respect and honor they so dearly deserved from the public or United States government.

The Korean plaque was included after Roy Bemis, White Chapel's superintendent of grounds in Troy, suggested such a tribute might also be appropriate. Curiously, requests for Vietnam dedications are far more common than those for Korea, according to Hancovsky. Vietnam has been dedicated in some 50 separate locations, compared to less than a dozen for Korean. "There is much less interest in Korea," Hancovsky

Once commissioned, the plaques are not exclusive one-of-a-kind. However, mounting is unique in each in-

White Chapel selected sunrise pink granite because many headstones in the park are of the same material.

David Krall, 44, president of White Chapel Me- tising agency, inspect the new memorial dedimorial Gardens, and Rose Szwed, 35, public relations director for the Stone & Simons adver-cated to those who lost their lives in the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

July 4 dedication will be bittersweet for families

July Fourth, a symbolic day of patriotism, will be a special day of sweet agony this year for family and friends who gather mid-afternoon at the White Chapel Memorial Cemetery in Troy to dedicate a tribute to Korean and Vietnam veterans.

A total of 4,105 military men and women from Michigan died in both wars, 1,456 in Korea and 2,649 in Vietnam. The dedication is timed to coincide 40 years after the start of the Korean War and 15 years after the United States withdrew from Vietnam.

The memorial, bronze plaques set in sunrise pink granite, is surrounded by an arch of grass and abutted by memorials to veterans of World Wars I and II. The area is a restful spot, a place of contemplation for those who care, according to White Chapel president David Krall, who extended an open invitation to visit the area.

"It is our hope that those of you to whom these memorials have special meaning will visit our cemetery in future days when you can contemplate in a quiet and personal way the significance of the sacrifices by these

There. Did that scare you? Did it make you jump? It should have, It scared the dickens out of me when I was a kid. That was the point.

That was the point when James Whitcomb Riley wrote "Little Or-phant Annie" in 1885. It was part of a tradition of American scary tales.

GENERATIONS OF Americans grew up on such stories. The "scare" the tales threw into them was fun. It was similar to the scare you get when you take that first giant drop on a roller coaster or when you watch Boris Karloff lumbering around in his crude makeup as Frankenstein's monster.

Being scared, for the fun of it, is part of American popular culture.

That's why I got a bit disgusted when the media jumped all over a story a couple of weeks ago about a Livonia resident complaining to the school board that her first grader had been so frightened by a poem read in class that she had tummy aches and hadn't been able to sleep for months.

The poem, "The Body," from a collection called "Scary Poems for Rotten Kids," followed in the tradition of the scary tale — something that frontier kids thrived on but something that, if you believe this mother and some other parents at the school, some modern kids apparently just can't handle.

That's too bad, and it is, I suspect, the fault of the parents, not something genetically different about to-day's children.

I haven't been able to get my hands on a copy of "Scary Poems" yet, but I did get the other book the Livonia parents were protesting, "Scary Stories to Tell in the Dark."

Guess what? That book is a collection of scary tales from American folklore - the kind I've been talking about - and it includes such classics as "The Golden Arm" ("Whooooo's ot my golden armmmmm?") and The Hearse Song" ("The worms crawl in, the worms crawl out, the worms play pinochle on your snout

My wife and I grew up on such stuff and we loved it. It was scary, yes, but it was an exhilarating kind of fright. And our parents always pointed out that it was only a poem or a story or a movie. And now my daughter, the first grader, wants a copy of the book for herself. She loves it, too.

THE LIVONIA schools (to their credit) didn't crumble to the complaints of these parents who appear to be taking things much too seriously and apparently passing such attitudes along to their children. But the schools did promise to put together some kind of "sensitivity training" for teachers so they'll be able to deal with the "common ground between teaching youngsters who might have problems with certain literature and the district's responsibility for the other 27 kids in Right. How about a "sensibility training" program for parents who are raising kids who don't seem to grasp the difference between fiction and reality?

Fed up with NRA zealots

Pity the poor NRA (National Rifle

In an article entitled "NRA Criticizes Weapons Bill" June 11, the NRA complains that a bill, offered by Sen. William Faust to require that guns that might be found by children be locked up at night "singles out firearms, ignoring poisons, alcohol, farm equipment and knives" and that "bicycle accidents kill more kids than guns." The NRA is being discriminated against.

Aren't you a little weary of the NRA's unrelenting opposition to any and all gun control, including undetectable (by airline radar detection security) plastic handguns, cop killer bullets, mandatory training for first time gun users, waiting periods, registration, background checks and the deadly automatic assault rifles. They also want to repeal machine

The 2 million assault rifles in circulation make up only 1 percent of the gun population, which numbers 20 million. But they are 20 times as likely to be used in criminal activity as all the other guns combined (Cox Newspaper Service/The Atlantic Journal Constitution).

Yet the NRA persists in defending them, while it tries to pass itself off as deeply concerned about the safety of the citizenry.

The NRA budget is over $85 million. It distributed $1,807,360 in PAC money on Capitol Hill. Most of our Congressmen refuse PAC money from the NRA, including Rep. William Broomfield, with the exception of Rep. Bill Schuette, who accepted $4,950 in the 1990 election cycle. Then there are the millions and millions of dollars in pure cash that goes to the lobbyists for the NRA.

Column was to the point

Judith Berne's article in the June 14, 1990, issue of the O&E was very good and right to the point. Too many parents preach to everyone about drinking, then allow it in their homes. I am a mother of two teenagers and we have stressed in our home time and again, "no drinking - the law states - age 21." And hopefully by age 21 with all the guidance and examples we have set they will think clearly about their drinking habits and take the responsibility.

There is no compromise for drinking and driving. The sad part of all of this is a lot of times the drunken driver walks away and the innocent are killed.

I think Barbara Dolliver should not have been allowed to give the commencement speech. It's very obvious her son didn't take her seriously because he would have known to tell his friends ahead of time, "There are no alcoholic beverages allowed for anyone under 21.

One daughter will be graduating from high school next summer and we have already discussed the issue of her friends not drinking in our home. Fortunately both my teenagers are into sports and are very health conscious because of it. They have seen pro ball players die because of overdoses. At this point they do not drink, but we never close our eyes. It's always those graduation parties that seem to say, "It's OK."

Keep up the good work. Many parents read the O&E in our community and it's articles like this that enlighten all of us and make us think just a little bit harder about life.

Kelley: age bias not tolerated

I read with great interest Tim Richard's column that appeared in the Observer & Eccentric Newspa-

Ironically, on this date our President, George Bush, is celebrating his 66th birthday. Tim Richard notes in his column that I am 65, and in a rather discriminatory way relegates me to political retirement. May I remind you that age discrimination is no longer tolerated in this country legally because it has been shown to be a foolish policy. Since George Bush, our very active President, is showing no signs of physical or mental deterioration, you should also note that President Ronald Reagan was much older than President Bush before he ever decided to be a successful candidate for President of the United States.

I WOULD suggest that you have the column that you wrote laminated, and then write me at the Office of Attorney General when you reach 65, and let me know if you still feel the same way.

The column also mentioned Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths and Secretary of State Richard Austin as being too old for public service.

I imagine many members of the ... United States Supreme Court who are older than Lt. Governor Griffiths and Secretary of State Austin would not agree that retirement from public life should be controlled by the age of the official.

Colonists tried out new foods

History books often represent the colonial era as a series of political events, legal proclamations and battle dates.

Yet it was also a time of intense cultural change often reflected in the foods people ate.

Johnnycake was a cornmeal bread substitute for the yeast-raised wheaten loaves New Englanders had known in Europe. Pennsylvania Dutch cooks "invented" a flour-and-molasses-filled pie (shoofly pie) for the harsh winter months when dried fruits, eggs and cream were in short supply.

short supply.

We can credit the early settlers for launching a whole new cuisine. Blending with the likes of foods from the American Indian, the British, Dutch, German, African and West Indian, this cuisine began to form from the bubbling cauldrons and open-hearth fireplaces that not only warmed the body but also the cockles of the heart of every man, woman and child.

The seeds brought to the New World rotted on the long damp journey. The Pilgrims did not realize they had come to the land of Indian corn — an entire continent that had never seen the likes of wheat, oats, rye and barley. Similarly, Indian corn was unknown in Europe and elsewhere around the

We can credit a group of Columbus' explorers, on the island of Cuba in 1492, with enthusiastically reporting the finding of "a sort of grain called mahiz" that could be eaten in a cereal and ground into flour. The word mahiz was from the Taino language, the aboriginal tongue spoken by the local islanders. In Spanish it became maiz and in English, maize.

WE CAN CREDIT the Algonquin Indians with the introduction of beans, pumpkins and squash to the Pilgrims' diet. If it weren't for these Indian tribes, the new settlers would never have dreamed of becoming successful hunters of venison and bear, and searchers of the hard-shelled clam known as the quahog.

I can remember baking my first loaf of bread with Momma, carefully measuring the ingredients from a store-bought bag of flour and what was available then, caked yeast. My first attempt resembled closely the early settlers' attempts at making bread because they were using corn flour (which contained no gluten), and after baking, the loaf resembled a flattened pan bread called johnnycake. Even to this day, with the assistance of a Kitchen-Aid mixer, a temperature-controlled convection oven and easy-read thermometers that can tell me the exact temperature to heat the water, I occasionally end up with a product similar to theirs.

Next week, the Janes gang is invited to a traditional clambake, resplendent with "fruits de la mer." I can only wonder if our host and hostess know that the famed New England clambake developed very early in the colonial period. Of course, to the early settlers, it was nothing more than an adaptation of the coastal Indians' method of cooking clams in a pit lined with seaweed, which provided moisture for steaming the clams. Over the years, New Englanders added lobsters, corn and potatoes and, of course, salt, pepper and hot, dipping butter that make the clambake food so delicious.

THE FOODS my momma and your momma placed on their tables are descendents of what the early settlers enjoyed way back when. The lists of early ingredients enjoyed then and now literally can fill a book by themselves. The codfish, the boiled dinners, the apple pandowdy, not to mention the Southern influences such as fried chicken and pecan pie, are remembered to this day on tables around the world.

HATEVER YOUR budget, whatever your schedule, whatever the occasion, you can rely on hamburger to fill the bill. And what better time to talk burgers than barbecue time.

Few cuts of meat have as much going for them — or you — as hamburger. As far as most of us are concerned, "hamburger" is just another word for ground beef. There is, however, a distinction. And this distinction is one that you should know about when it comes to the shopping scene.

Federal laws specify the amount of fat permitted in the various types of ground beef, so it really is the amount of fat (or conversely, the amount of lean) that will determine the label.

Anyone who has made the trip past the ground beef section of the grocery store or butcher shop has quite a choice between burgers. Do you want hamburger, ground beef, ground chuck, ground round, ground sirloin, ground turkey or, even now, ground chicken? To help you identify the differences, here's the simplified version in plain English (compared to the 19 pages the USDA uses to identify the differences).

HAMBURGER: Any ground beef

Your guide to the grinds bearing this label can legally contain up to 30 percent fat. This fat may consist of the natural fat attached to the beef, plus "loose" beef fat from the trimming process.

the trimming process.

GROUND BEEF: This is where it gets a little confusing. The amount of fat allowed under the law also may be 30 percent fat. The big difference between ground beef and hamburger is that ground beef can contain only the fat attached to the beef. No other fat may be added to reach the 30 percent ratio. Thus, the fat content in meat labeled ground beef is usually less than 30 percent.

GROUND CHUCK: This meat is really lean ground beef bearing approximately 20 percent fat.

GROUND ROUND: This extralean ground beef usually contains about 15 percent fat. GROUND SIRLOIN: This is what GROUND SIRLOIN: This is what most restaurants call ground steak, supposedly containing between 10-12 percent fat.

GROUND TURKEY AND GROUND CHICKEN: These products combine both the white and dark meat of the fowl, combined with usually no more than 15 percent fat, usually comprised of the ground skin.

"Big deal," you say? Ah, but did you know that certain varieties make better burgers? Yep. For a juicy, broiled or grilled burger, your choice should be either ground beef or ground chuck. The amount of fat in both types allows the burgers to baste themselves as they cook. If you prefer to choose leaner cuts, you will probably end up with a less-juicy patty. But, remember, the more fat, the greater the shrinkage.

Ground chuck and ground round are usually reserved for casseroles and other main dish entrees, although the fattier cuts work just as well providing they can be drained of excess fat after the meat has been browned.

Preparing burgers on the grill isn't as easy as choosing the proper cuts of meat. There are a few tricks that can help turn this summer's barbecue into one that will surely be remembered by all.

First off, let's talk about the grill. There are many schools of thought when it comes to choosing grills. Coal fired or gas, lava rock or mesquite? Contrary to what others might think, the Janes Gang has tried them all and, as far as we're concerned, you just can't beat the old charcoal briquettes on an open grill.

IF YOU HAVE YET to get the "old faithful" out from the garage amidst last summers put-aways, now is the perfect time to clean it up and get it ready for the weekend. Remove any old ash and dead coals. Window cleaners and a pail of hot soapy water, combined with a little old-fashioned elbow grease are the best defense against a dirty grill.

best defense against a dirty grill.

If the grill grid still bears last summer's food build up, an easy way to clean it is to place the grid in a plastic bag and add three cups of household ammonia. Tie the bag up and place on a flat surface in direct sunlight. Within two hours, the ammonia will have done its job, and the grid should pretty much wipe clean.

Be sure to rinse the grid well with a garden hose to remove any and all ammonia residues. To keep the grid easy to clean and to help make it virtually stick-free, a light spraying of Pam or other food-release agents, or a healthy brushing of an old rag dipped in vegetable oil will leave an easy-clean coating.

Now that the burgers have been formed and the grill is cleaned and ready to roll, remember that your choice of charcoal will directly affect the overall outcome. When it comes to purchasing charcoal, you get what you pay for Cheaper briquettes made from sawdust fillers are OK, but you just can't beat the

An apple a day may keep the doctor away, but one of Ray's "Bad Apples" will undoubtedly make you feel better. Unlike any other apple you've ever eaten, Ray's "Bad Apples" are hand crafted from chocolate ice cream, filled with Truffles liqueur and hand decorated in an apple red color.

For the last 30 years, Ray's Ice Cream Co. in Royal Oak has been making ice cream delights in antique molds in dozens of shapes to suit almost any occasion ranging from all-American flags for the Fourth of July to Thanksgiving turkeys and Valentine cupids.

Valentine cupids.

When founder Raymond H. Stevens opened his shop in 1958, many of the dairies in Michigan were making ice cream molds. "Today, Ray's is probably the last dairy in the country still making them," Grandson Tom Stevens said. He, along with his dad, Ray Stevens Jr., Uncle Dale Stevens and his son, Art, share the responsibilities, continuing the family traditions and manufacturing techniques for which the shop is fa-

On an average week, the Stevens family makes 1,500 gallons of old-fashioned, homemade ice cream in 40 incredible flavors, eight of which are sherberts. Along with the traditional favorites, there is peppermint, black raspberry, pistachio walnut, and a new favorite, white Russian. That's white chocolate ice cream with mocha fudge.

SEASONAL FAVORITES include rum raisin, pumpkin, black raspberry and eggnog. Each flavor is made using a batch freezer which produces 10 gallons at a time. "We're also one of the last dairies to make ice cream in a batch freezer. We use it because the ice cream is smoother than the larger, commercial machines. It also makes a better product," Stevens said. And how much of those 1,500 gallons is reserved for molding red apples, pumpkins and flags? Well, during December 1989, Ray's handfilled and decorated 22,000 holiday designs.

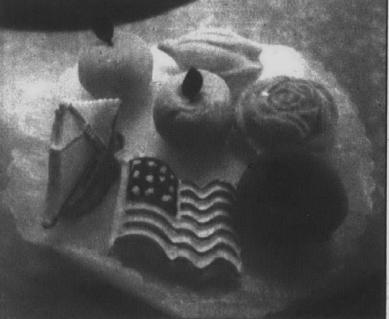

Many of the antique molds in the Stevens collection were bought by Grandfather Ray Stevens when he opened the shop. Since that time most of the popular shapes, apples, oranges and peaches have worn out and been reproduced in a metal alloy similar to the original. Many of the unusual shapes, such as the sailboat, cruiseship, 1940s car, frogs and turties, still are made using the antique molds. Most of the styles and holiday characters, such as a Halloween witch on a broom or a snowman, can be made in the ice cream flavor of your choice, then hand painted including important details such as the wart on the end of the witch's nose.

Cordial fruits are the only ice cream molds which have a filling. After the molds are filled with ice cream, a depression is made in the center. After the ice cream hardens and is removed from the mold, the fruits are injected with 1 ¼ ounces of liqueur, then frozen once more. Later each is colored with an airbrush and food coloring, frozen, then dipped into a batch of icy food coloring to give the appearance of that just-picked-from-the vine look.

The liqueurs are chosen to complement the flavor of the ice cream. Shop specialties are combinations of coffee ice cream with creme de cacao, vanilla ice cream with creme de menthe, and cinnamon ice cream with apple schnapps. Cordial peaches filled with peach brandy are a perfect dessert for a springtime or summer luncheon.

Popularity of these unique desserts has spread beyond our Michigan shores. The Stevenses regularly fill orders from country clubs and

You can ignite the coals in costly intainers available at most seasonal shops, but an old, empty three-pound coffee can with both ends removed works just as well. Igniting the coals this way will make for evenly heated coals and will prohibit cool spots when cooking.

YOU MIGHT BE interested in the kitchen report compiled by the fabled Cooks magazine (July/August 1989) which states, "If you like the flavor of wood smoke in food, stick to wood chips that will produce a strongly scented smoke: mesquite, hickory, maple and oak. For grilling the best burgers in town, after the coals have been heated throughout to a fiery orange glow, disperse them evenly throughout the bottom of a foil-lined grill, with the shiny side of the foil looking at you. My next suggestion for the best burgers will surely provoke some controversy. Personally speaking, when I grill foods high in fat content when I grill foods high in fat content (like burgers), I always place an old, shallow, cake pan under the burgers so that when the fat begins to cook out of the burgers, it can be "caught" without landing on the hot coals. There are two reasons for doing this. First, it makes clean-up so much easier. Second, it eliminates danger-ous fire flare-ups that have been ous fire flare-ups that have been known to turn a grill into a roaring campfire, turning the best burgers into blackened cow-chip look-alikes.

Speaking of fire flare-ups, it is always recommended that you keep a clean squirt bottle filled with ordinary water or broth within arm's reach to quench any sudden fires that might start from the grease released during cooking.

WHEN IT COMES to recommended cooking times for burgers, the only judge is a chef's gut-level in-stinct. There are so many variables consisting of how hot the fire is to the thickness and temperature of the burgers that naming an exact cook-ing time is difficult, even for an exRating poultry burgers

Are turkey and chicken burgers all they are cracked up to be? Contrary to popular belief, ground turkey and ground chicken make pretty lousy grilled burgers. Because both are relatively low in fat (only 15 percent), they have a tendency to dry out on the grill and are hardly flavorful. As a general rule, when the coals just begin to get a gray dust after being red hot, that is the time to begin cooking. Typically, a one-inch-thick burger will take about four minutes for rare, five minutes for medium rare, six minutes for medium (still with some slight pink in center), seven minutes for burgers cooked through but still juicy, and eight minutes or more for a welldone burger.

If everyone in the family requests burgers of different doneness, it's best to "stack" them like pancakes when desired doneness is achieved.

Arthritis Today

ARTHRITIS ENDS: IMBALANCE BEGINS

Physicians treat elderly patients having arthritis of the knee with aspirin or similar drugs and undertake injection therapy as needed. When this approach no longer suffices, knee replacement surgery is in order.

At times, an individual with advanced knee arthritis, unresponsive to medication, is not a candidate for surgery. This situation occurs most often when the person has both arthritis and a movement disorder, such as Parkinsons Disease.

Patients with Parkinsons' Disease lose control over their gait; they must walk with small shuffling steps. Ambulating this way increases the hazard of stumbling and decreases the person's ability to right himself once a fall begins. Individuals with balance problems may undergo knee surgery without difficulty, but afterwards are at increased risk for replacement failure because of this tendency to stumble. With an artificial knee in place, a fall can be a disaster. The artificial knee is rigid, and the impact from striking the ground transmits forces which can shatter the surrounding bone. Reparative surgery may be impossible.

The question of balance illustrates the importance of placing the decision for knee replacement into a network of other medical and personal conditions.

Master of tempranillo grows grape in Spain

Due north of Madrid and 74 miles southwest of Rioja in central Spain lies a growing region stretching for 30 miles along the upper Duero Valley known as Ribera del Duero.

Here, the deeply colored tempranillo grape grows at elevations of more than 2,500 feet. Grapes nurtured by intensely hot days and long, cool nights are not harvested until mid-October. Nowhere else does tempranillo achieve such high concentration while maintaining good acid balance.

"In the Duero, the wine is 100 percent tempranillo, whereas in Rioja it must be blended with high-acid white grapes to balance the characteristic low acidity of tempranillo grown there.

1987 Tinto Pesquera, Spain ($18) highlights cedar, chocolate, spice and red berry characters in the aroma. A distinct American oak nuance adds to the delicious, mouth-filling, round flavors.
While very appealing now, this wine will age for several years.
We recommend it with game, authentic paella and red meats,

Our personal favorite is the 1987

If you get hooked on the 1987, don't worry. The best may still be on its way. The 1986 Reserva Pesquera ($26) boasts berries, spice, cedar and licorice aromas followed by full, broad, palate warmth and a spicy finish.

Sherry production differs from the way most white wine is made. The light, white juice is fermented in barrels where it reaches 12-16 percent natural alcohol. It is then fortified with spirits, adjusting its strength to either 15 or 18 percent depending on the desired quality and flavor characteristics.

After fortification, sherry's unique aging process begins. Not all barrels of wine develop in quite the same way. The essential difference is that some develop a floating yeast known as "flor" and others do not. The finest, most delicate sherries are blessed with this creamy surface yeast and are only lightly fortified to maintain their inherent finesse.

"FLOR" GROWS to a depth of several inches. Because it floats on the surface, it naturally protects the wine from air and the dangers of oxidation. This protective cap that excludes oxygen explains the pale col-

These wines are ready to drink at an earlier age that the darker, heavier sherry styles. Age is not indicated on the bottle because the product is

The blending method in the sherry region employs a "solera." It consists of several rows of barrels stacked on top of one another. At bottling time, a portion of the bottom barrels is removed for bottling. The barrels are refilled with a portion of wine from the level above. The barrels are refilled with a por-tion of wine from the level above. The top row is refreshed with wine from the most recent harvest. Once a "fino" sherry is removed from barrel and the protection of the "flor," its color begins to deepen and the flavors broaden as it matures. Called "amontillado," the wine develops a deep amber color as it ages. Intense nutty flavors develop and it becomes rich and concentrated.

Juan Luis Hidalgo produces light, delicate, bone-dry sherry in Sanlucar de Barrameda on Spain's Southern coast. His speciality is "mansanilla," an elegant fino sherry made possible by humid Atlantic air and a complex "flor" which not only protects the wine in barrel from oxidation but develops a toasty bouquet.

wine in barrel from oxidation but develops a toasty bouquet.

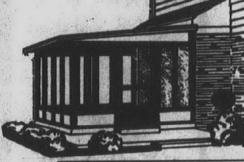

The pale, dry Manzanilla La Gitana (the gypsy woman) ($8) is Vinicola Hidalgo's flagship wine. Lightly chilled it is a refreshing aperitif on a warm summer day. It is also an excellent accompaniment for shellfish, oysters and fried calamari.

'In the Duero, the wine is 100 percent tempranillo, whereas in Rioja it must be blended with high-acid white grapes . . .'

SC cagers look to future

By C.J. Risak staff writer

There wasn't much worth remembering about Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team's 1989-90 season. The Ocelots finished 11-20 overall, 4-12 in the Eastern Conference, struggling both on the court and in the classroom.

So maybe rebuilding the team isn't such a bad idea.

Only two players will return next fall for SC, which means whatever newcomers coach Dave Bogataj can come up with will be called upon to provide immediate assistance. Schoolcraft sports

Bogataj thinks he has the people to do the job.

What's more, the Ocelot coach made a rather rash prediction, considering the problems he's contended with in his three years at SC. "I can easily see us going nine deep," he said, inferring his bench would get plenty of minutes.

NOW, ANYONE familiar with the Ocelots' plight the past few seasons is aware of the difference the team's bench made. Problem was, there wasn't one. Academic problems cost the team seven players at the semester break in 1988-89; last season, five more were lost in January to grades.

Bogataj is hoping his new crop of recruits is better than those in the recent past — both on the floor and in the classroom. With only two Ocelots returning, they'd better be.

It's nice that one of his returnees is leading scorer Randy Watters, a 6foot-5 swingman who came on

Area softball team abounds with talent

By Brad Emons staff writer

HE 1990 edition of the All-Area girls softball team wields plenty of artillery in its arsenal.

The amount of weapons stockpiled leads to an impressive inventory.

Nearly all the players selected by The Observer sports staff for this year's squad come from winning programs and were the keys to their team's success.

State Class A runner-up Livonia Franklin placed two on the first team, along with district and Northwest Suburban League champion Garden City, and also Plymouth Canton, district and Western Division champs (of the Western Lakes Activities Association).

Franklin's Joe Epstein was named Observerland Coach of the Year for the second time, leading the Patriots all the way to the final game of the Class A tourney before losing 3-0 to Jenison.

Sporting a seven-year career record of 138-54, Epstein-coached clubs have played for the state championship three of the past six years. (His 1986 team won the Class A crown.)

This season, Franklin finished second behind Canton with a 7-3 in the WLAA's Western Division, but caught fire in the tournament, winning six straight games to wind up 19-7 overall.

Here is a closer look at the All-Area squad.

FIRST TEAM

Jenny Mayle, pitcher, Liv. Franklin: The right-hander finished 19-6 overall with more than 150 innings pitched with an earned run average just under 1.00. The All-Western Lakes Activities Association pick racked up 141 strikeouts.

The junior hurled four no-hitters and a pair of one-hitters, as she led Franklin all the way to the state Class A title game.

"She kept us in every single game," said Franklin coach Joe Epstein. "It was a matter of us getting runs in order to have an opportunity to win.

"Her control of her pitches gained tremendous improvement from the previous year.

She never walked more than two per game.

"Next year we hope to develop one more pitch and she'll be better than ever."

Kelly Holmes, pitcher, Ply. Canton: Just a freshman, Holmes finished with a 14-2 record and an ERA under 0.80.

In 117 innings she fanned 174 batters and allowed just 58 runs (43 of which were unearned).

She also pitched in Canton's 21-inning loss to Belleville in the regional semifinals where she fanned 22 batters.

"Just a super girl who is only going to get better," said Canton's outgoing coach Dave Racer. "For a freshman she showed a lot of polse. She's also a very good athlete for her age."

Dear Myrna: I am a regular exerciser at your studio. I know you are having a workshop on how to lose weight successfully. However, I will not be there: I've heard your talk will be about cutting way down on eating animals (beef, veal, lamb, chicken, etc.). Do you mean eat-

Let me start by defining a vegetarian for you. For example, most pure vegetarians exclude meat and fish from their diet. A lacto-vegetarian will include milk and dairy products in his or her own diet. An ovo-vegetarian will eat eggs, which many vegetarians consider a nono. A true vegetarian will not eat any food of animal origin or with animal-derived ingredients.

Now, fruitarians are even more extreme; they eat only raw fruit and nuts. (That can get mighty boring.)

My recommendation to you is if you have any thoughts about becoming a vegetarian, please consult a good dietitian. When I say good dietitian, I mean someone sensitive to you, your needs and lifestyle. There are few I can highly trust.

dietitian, I mean someone sensitive to you, your needs and lifestyle. There are few I can highly trust.

Being what I am, semi-vegetarian (eating small portions of chicken and fish once or twice a week), is certainly a healthy way of eating for me. It is not a diet — it is a lifestyle.

There have been many favorable studies to compare the health of vegetarians with the rest of the population. Vegetarians, in general, tend to have different attitudes toward other aspects of life as well. As a rule, they do not smoke or drink alcohol. Exercise is also a part of their daily routine. Interesting enough, my vegetarian diet helps give me the energy to exercise well.

19 frames. A very strange game, golf.

The object is to get the lowest possible score and they don't even have ball returns. You have to chase after the ball.

Golfers have something else called "out of bounds." The bowlers took care of that a long time ago when they invented gutters. Seems to me that golfers have to hit a ball — that is 1.88 inches in diametric part of the control of the co Yer and weighs 1.62 ounces - and get it to go into a tiny hole 4.25 inches in diamand sometimes several hundred

There are really few similarities between the two sports, except that the dis-tance on a lane from foul line to the headpin is 60-feet, 6-inches, coincidentally the average distance that the disgruntled can throw the club. Perhaps the main difference when the two sports are pared is that no bowler ever has to er "fore," as there is very little nce of hitting a fellow player with your bowling ball.

In order to find out more about the game of golf, I found a book on the subject, entitled: "The Official Duffers Rules of Golf," by John Noble.

I found out a lot of interesting things about the game. Golfers can do a thing called a "Gimme." This is where the putt is so easy, it is just assumed that it would not be missed. I would like to try that next time I go bowling and have to just knock down an "easy" 10-pin.
Some of the other duffer's definitions:

Sand trap — the duffers play pen; out-of-bounds — a rude comment made by an nent; addressing the ball - anytime duffer makes a poor shot, he will address the ball using all sorts of bad language; bad lie - when a duffer says he has a nine handicap, he is telling them a bad lie; teed off - the attitude of a golfer who has just been knocked unconscious by a duffer's drive; woods — clubs that the duffer cannot use and the name of the place the duffer goes to look for his

Now, I hope I haven't offended any true-blue golfing enthusiasts. We still have common ground as the end of the game brings the similar meeting of the competitors in the lounge. Bill Padget of Dearborn practices proper arm movement during the day-long fly casting class at the Huntsman Hunt Club in

Fishing on the fly By Bill Parker staff writer

Fly fishing can be a relaxing, enjoyable recreational activity. Not much can compare with the con-tentment of standing streamside on a summer's morning, listening to the forest awaken around you while working a hand-tyed fly through the swift current.

The exhilaration of battling a feisty trout only enhances the experience to the ultimate level.

But without a basic understanding of the fly fishing technique, that relaxation and exhilaration can quickly turn into a mess of tangled anguish.

The Riverbend Sportshop Inc. in Southfield offers daylong beginner fly casting classes which provide a solid introduction into one of America's fastest growing recreational activities.

"We want the students to feel comfortable with the sport," said Jim Toohey, the innovative 28year-old owner of the Riverbend Sport Shop Inc. and one of the instructors of the class. "We want to make the sport enjoyable and remove the complexity of casting. Our real focus is to get people who are uncomfortable with casting, comfortable. Casting is the first big hurdle for fly fishermen."

Toohey, Wally Dabrowski, Brandon Vaughn and Bill McKee — all members of Trout Unlimited — have been teaching the classes for three years. The classes consist of 12 students and three teachers, which enables every student to receive ample one-on-one guidance. Close to 200 students have already been through the course.

"We get more professional peo-ple than anything, but we get peo-ple from all walks of life," Toohey said. "From top executives to Joe Schmo off the street who just wants to get into fly fishing, we get

THE CLASSES cost $90 per person and include all the necessary equipment, lunch and refreshments. They're conducted on a country trout pond at the Huntsman Hunt Club in Metamora, about 20 miles north of Pontiac.

The morning session begins with a short talk and introduction to the sport. The class then moves outside to begin dry casting in a field next to the trout pond. Rods, reels and fly line is provided for the dry casting session, but for safety sake, no

Teachers work closely with the students instructing them on proper arm movement, fly rod position and different casting techniques.

After breaking for a hot lunch provided by the Huntsman - students receive hands-on instruction on basic fly fishing knots. Presentation of bait, fish habits and tips on reading the water are also discussed briefly — enough so that students have a basic understanding of the overall sport, but not enough to boggle their minds with details.

The class then returns to the pond where students have the opportunity to try several different fly rods to see which one feels and reacts best for that individual.

WITH THE proper rod in hand, students resume dry casting and receive some advanced technique instruction on such things as shooting line, roll casting off the water and casting into a heavy breeze.

As the afternoon draws to a close, students begin to get a handle on the technique. Students are then allowed to "wet a line" and use their newly acquired fly fishing technique to catch any of the stocked brown trout lurking in the

First, "Die Hard 2" has a lot of style and a sharply attractive tone. It doesn't linger on the gore and rub the audience's nose in the blood as many films do these days. Quick pacing and Bruce Willis snappy de-

Second, and most important, Willis' valiant deeds, through wildly exaggerated, remain faintly plausible. # An effective drama on AIDS

By John Money special writer

"Longtime Companion' begins with a devastating bomb being dropped on the gay community. On a sunny summer morning in 1981, a small article in The New York Times reported the first outbreak of a mysterious cancer that appeared to be preying on homosexuals.

to be preying on homosexuals.

For a group of friends in New York City, the announcement is remembered with the same chilling clarity as the Kennedy assassination or the bomnbing of Pear Harbor.

"It's a plot cooked up by the CIA to scare us into not having sex," quips Sean, a catty TV soap opera writer, over beers at a Fire Island resort. Ironically, he will be among the first to die.

A SUBTLE, effective drama, "Longtime Companion" drops in on these friends one day a year through 1989 to personalize the AIDS trage-dy. Each goes through fear, denial and finally acceptance of the dis-

Shocked by the loss of another friend, Willy, whose oddysey we're set up to relate to, grows increasingly paranoid. While visiting Sean in the hospital, he frantically scrubs his hands, mouth and face after a casual peck-on-the-cheek greeting. Eventu-ally, he will join other friends as AIDS activitists.

Only occasionally does "Longtime Companion" fall into the melodramatic trappings of a disease-of-the-week TV movie. The slow-paced, often painful, scenes unreel much like a play, not surprising since play-wright Craig Lucas and director Norman Rene (whose "Prelude to a Kiss' has been playing to sold-out houses on Broadway) collaborated on the film.

They derived the title "Longtime Companion" from the term used by newspaper obituaries to describe a surviving homosexual lover.

BRUCE DAVISON, who starred as the rat-loving "Willard" in 1971, highlights the excellent ensemble cast as David, the self-sacrificing lover who fulfills Sean's request to die at home. Campbell Scott (son of George C. and Colleen Dewhurst) plays Willy.

Several actors turned down roles in the film, fearing — as happens to one character, a soap opera star — that they would be typecast as "light."

Studios which turned down fund-ing and distribution for "Longtime Companions" are now regretting their decisions, since the film, which plays here at the Maple Theatre, has ed a wide crossover audience.

Universal Spectrum, like Soul II Soul, is first and foremost a concept, and secondly a band.

"It's a concept, not just music. It's an attitude. We're here to advance and educate people about Carribean culture," said Winfred Julien, guitarist for the band, in a dressing room at Ann Arbor's Blind Pig, "Everyone's talking about Nelson Mandela, but no one's playing South African

In The House of Love the doors lead to a roomful of confidence.

Singer and guitarist Guy Chadwick isn't shy about making bold statements concerning his band, which opens for Peter Murphy on Sunday, July 8, at Clubl Chadwick predicts million-selling albums and The House of Love becoming "the biggest band of the '90s." He sounds serious, too.

"I think we're capable of it," said Chadwick in a telephone interview from London, England. "I know we're capable of it." Or is he?

"It's just that there's so many things you cannot determine or control. It's something I said I don't care about, really.

In the past, Chadwick has admitted he's not so self-assured. Some of his boldness (not to be confused with being cocky or arrogant, which Chadwick is not) could be a facade for insecurity.

jor label debut "The House of Love" (PolyGram) all the more endearing. The House of Love's music has been compared favorably to the blushing guitar sounds the Cure, the Smi the Bunnymen and Lloyd Cole among others.

Comparisons are an affliction of many guitar bands, which for the most part stand on their own but get lumped into categories nonetheless. The next-R.E.M.-or-U2 syndrome is the most common.

In the House of Love's case, such associations are undeniable. Yet the band's music has a lyrical richness to it that lets it stand alone on the mantle.

Besides, comparisons don't bother Chadwick.

"I've always thought of us as a

America is another story. The House of Love's first LP in 1988 was only available on import here but garnered a small audience on college/alternative radio.

THE GROUP'S second LP caused some strife within. Original studio sessions were scrapped and guitarist Terry Bickers left The House of Love. With new guitarist Simon Walker, the band started over and produced an LP they were pleased with.

Among the standout cuts is "Beatles & the Stones," which might be mistakingly considered a tribute to music of the '60s. Actually, the number was written by Chafive years ago before The House of

Instead of lauding the groups of those times, the song details Chadwick's problems with the music business. He admits his lyrics can be vague at times.

"They are on a superficial level," he said. "It depends how much you're into the music."

GOO

— Sonic Youth

Something is frightening on Sonic Youth's latest release "Goo" (David Geffen Company). On the second cut on side two, there is actually a number with, gulp, hooks. Of course, under cross-examination with bright lights focused on their eyes, the members of Sonic Youth would deny this. But the evidence is irrefutable in the song 'Disappearer.' Rest assure, though, Sonic Youthites: This is the closest the New York neo guitar band ever gets to a sellout on this Sonic Youth's first album on David Geffen Records. Otherwise "Goo" is marked by crunching, gutteral guitar sound reshaped by pop images - all the true Sonic Youth hallmarks. This is SY's major label debut after years underground on independent labels. According to the press notes, the band only agreed to sign with David Geffen Co. on the guarantee of creative control. The band goes to great lengths to prove it hasn't relinquished any of its avant-garde might. For example, the number "Mildred Pierce" breaks up mid-song into a series of primal screams and screaches. "Scooter and Jinx" features the dualing buzz of guitarists Thurston Moore and Lee Ranaldo as they duplicate the sound of the Indy 500.

OK, OK, we're convinced. But the guitar blur of "Dirty Boots" and Kim Gordon's deadpan vocals on "Kool Thing" and "Tunic (Song for Karen)" provide the most intriguing moments on this album. One positive effect big record company money apparently had on the band is they were granted more time in the studio. Numbers are more focused and refined as a result. If one has never listened to the sound assault of Sonic Youth, "Goo"

is a nice place to start. - Larry O'Connor

EVERY BRILLIANT EYE

— Died Pretty

Died Pretty is yet another band from the land down under. After making it big (as an indie band, at least) in their native Australia, they are trying to tap in to the big bucks market of America. In 1989, they put out an album called "Lost," which no one seemed to pay much attention to, so, now they're making their second attempt with "Every Brilliant

The title comes from Yeats -"The death of friends, or the death of every brilliant eye that made a catch in the breath" — so we know right away that these guys can read.

The album kicks off with an obligatory rocker, "Sight Unseen." This is an unfortunate choice because it is easily the worst song on the album one that could turn off a casual listener. But, fear not, the album improves. Once their stab at a hit single is out of the way, the band can settle into making the sort of music that they want.

What Died Pretty is best at is doing songs that start off quietly and slowly then build into cathartic choruses. "The Underbelly," for example, starts off with a single guitar and lead singer, Ronald Peno's vocals are almost a whisper. Then, when the song suddenly swings into full force, it is a release. Then for the verse, they swing back into the quiet vocals and single guitar mode.

They are able to put a sort of building passion into their songs by playing with the intensity levels. Their quiet playing becomes a build-up for the inevitable moment when the song will break into cacophonous sound Peno has a deep, soulful voice which, at times, sounds a bit like a country and western singer's (how he picked up a southern accent in Australia, we'll never know). He is equally gifted at belting out fullfledged rockers like "Prayer." All in all, "Every Brilliant Eye" is a spotty effort. When Died Pretty is good, they are very, very good and when they are bad, they just sound like a generic Everyband.

PET SOUNDS — Beach Boys

What becomes a legend most?
For the CD release of "Pet Sounds," the legendary 1966 Beach Boys album, Capitol Records has pulled out all the stops - the booklet contains copious song-by-song anno-tation, session notes, color publicity photos, black and white recording session shots, and includes essays by songwriter Brian Wilson as well as by Beach Boys historian David Leaf. The album also includes three unreleased tracks, though only one "Hang On To Your Ego," amounts to Clearly, Capitol didn't want to drop the ball, as British affiliate

EMI did with its hurriedly released Beatles CDs a few years back. But even in an unadorned state. Pet Sounds remains one of the true classics of 1960s rock Its highlights, "God Only Knows," 'Wouldn't It Be Nice" and the haunting "Caroline No" represent the high-water mark of the Beach Boys musical artistry. It also marked the beginning of their end as a major commercial force. Wilson's songwriting was becoming increas-ingly personal and complex, alienat-ing many fans and, history suggests, not a few of his fellow band members as well.

Though a hit, "Pet Sounds" was one of the group's poorest selling al-bums. But if fans were put off, fellow musicians were awestruck. Paul McCartney, at least intitially, be-lieved the album a masterpiece unlieved the album a masterpiece untouchable by even the Beatles them-on CD, the songs show signs of age (not surprising since they're nearly a quarter-century old) though the group's vocals are generally clear. Bass is booming on some tracks, and may require adjusting on your home stereo, perhaps because they're in mono — the way Wilson initially recorded and mixed them.

Slug it out

In a moment, I'm going to ask you to sing a short but picturesque phrase to the tune of "Chestnuts sting on an Open Fire . .

Perform it correctly, and you will hear the first step in turning an out-dated, irrelevant holiday classic into a cutting edge, socially aware animal rights theme song.

Ready? Here we go: "Slug tracks glistening in the morning sun."

istening in the morning sun . . ." While certain noble animals like humpback whales and spotted owls have large groups of concerned ac-tivists worried about their safety, one somewhat less inspiring creature is virtually ignored by ecology

Of course, I'm talking about the gastropod mollusk, better known by suburbanites as the "slug," by city dwellers as the "poorman's es-cargot" and by personal injury attorneys as "the moving banana peel."

Interestingly, slugs haven't always been in such low regard. Today, to "slug" someone means to punch them. But in the Middle Ages, it meant to present them with a handful of slugs as a gift. No one's quite sure how the word slug became linked with bullets, but it probably dates back to the 1607 "War of the Squeamish," where two armies of sissies fired slugs and table scraps at

In America, the slug is particularly despised by gardeners because it eats their vegetables during the cool dark hours. Even worse, the slugs crawl around on your garden tools, leaving a clear mucous trail which causes the sharp implements to slip out of your hand and penetrate your

INDEED, MUCH OF prejudice against this animal comes from their mode of locomotion. Afraid, or perhaps unable, to ride even the tiniest of motorcycles, slugs move about on a single muscular foot over a mucous trail secreted by an organ called the "Ghostbuster" gland. Trained as we are to abhor even a small amount of mucous dripping from someone's nose, most of us react negatively to seeing an entire driveway full of it. Ironically, it was while wiping my sidewalk with a Kleenex that I discovered something terrible and cruel was being done to

One morning, I noticed their normally graceful trails appeared erratic and confused. Some zig-zagged. Some twisted in crazy corkscrew patterns. Worst of all, some trails led off the pavement into collision courses with trees, road signs and pedestrians.

For weeks, I was puzzled by the carnage. Then, while thumbing through a garden catalog, I found the cause — slug bars. These slugs were sliming under the influence!

The mail order ad read, "New, plastic slug bar. Simply fill with BEER and be rid of the nasty pests.

Top is hinged for easy filling."

Apparently, somebody in the neighborhood is deliberately setting out slug bars — treating the snails to a little free brewski in an effort to save their cabbage crop. Trouble is, slugs are not just social drinkers. They get totally blown away, put on some zydeco music and dance until their antennas droop. And since they're not smart enough to arrange designated drivers, plenty of them are getting hurt on the way home.

TRADITIONALLY, the humane way to get rid of slugs was to shake salt on them and watch them dissolve into a small puddle. Although melting away sounds painful to us, slugs actually prefer this form of death. In fact, the slug equivalent of using Dr. Kevorkian's suicide machine is to voluntarily crawl inside a large order of french fries.

Now, this swift, painless method has been replaced by a slow, lingering death caused by cirrhosis of the liver. Think about it. If you were trying to discourage someone from having a party at your place, would you set out free drinks?

As word of this new happy hour spreads, slugs are sliding in from all over town to check out the action. Please, before it's too late, help me outlaw slug bars.

And while we're on the subject of slime, let's eliminate singles bars,

Life's problems are true dilemmas

I must applaud your response to "C.T.;" you obviously understood my point of view quite well. It's unfor-tunate that C.T. missed it entirely.

I hold no malice toward overweight people, whether it's by medical predisposition or by choice, for that matter. What I do object to for that matter. What I do object to is people or government that would attempt to limit my personal rights without hesitation simply by providing a label of "had" to those rights.

I, therefore, will earnestly defend C.T.'s right to be heavy and expect her to defend my choices of personal behavior, assuming, of course, my choices hurt no one else. I do not smoke my clears in areas that ham smoke my cigars in areas that ban smoking. If asked politely, I will cease, even in areas that allow on the other hand, I notice that C.T. doesn't believe the government can utilize her taxes properly or set them at reasonable levels. She is more than willing to believe the same government doing "studies," The point is that our society is at-tempting to pick a point on a contin-uum that is shades of gray and call it black or white. We would all agree that crime is at one end. But how far that crime is at one end. But how far down that line the law begins to cross over into personal choice is not the same for all of us.

C.T. says we shouldn't laugh at conditions beyond the control of the individual. Others would choose what things we can read or see on TV. I say we are wasting time, money and energy on issues that have no value while ignoring the critical ones, like good government, the environment, etc.

By the way, I don't always drive

By the way, I don't always drive at 55 miles per hour, but I haven't had an accident or ticket in more than 20 years. Having driven in six or seven states, no one drives like Detroiters! The Indy 500 is safer and slower, so going 55 miles per hour here would be suicide.

And variety they've got. Universal Spectrum describe themselves as a neo-world beat band." This means that, in addition to reggae, they play calypso, zouk, soca, salsa and R&B.

What makes us so diverse is that we grew up (in the Carribean) listening to Motown, Steely Dan, Eric Clapton . . ," said Julien.
"We heard more Motown on the radio than Carribean music," added

All this diversity adds up to some exciting mixtures of songs and sounds from around the globe. In other words, these four can play a mean, reggaefied medley of Tracy Chapman's "Baby, Can I Hold You Tonight" and "Fast Car" then segue neatly into a jumpin' calypso tune about, of all things, bananas.

Baron) Joins the list of enraptured admirers.

Since Father Mohr is a radical he reads Schiller, has long hair and plays the guitar - the Prior (Gunther Meisner) - an unpleasant, conniving monk who helps the Baron appropriate local property — finds the Mohn/Magdalene relationship politically helpful in his attempt to convince the archbishop that Mohr must Meisner's performance is worth watching, the photography is pleasant enough and there's some nice music. In fact, the music includes the writing of "Silent Night," which Father Mohr does when he finally realizes he's a priest with a vow of celibacy and must quit messin' with "SILENT NIGHT" was written by a Father Josef Mohr and a musician, Herr Franz Gruber, and first performed on Christmas Eve, 1818, with a guitar accompaniment because the church organ was broken. Just like in the movie.

"Magdalene" is also historically accurate because Father Mohr (in the video) was rooming with a Herr Gruber (Cyrus Elias) and the conclusion follows the historical record.

No matter how factual the rest of the film may be, for the most part "Magdalene" is a travesty. Whether or not the historical figure, Father Mohr, was dallying with a local girl or not, this video is so poorly edited that it is hard to follow and even harder to swallow.

'Magdalene" becomes surreal as Father Mohr, thrown from a carriage, appears to be hallucinating as he lies recovering in the Baron's castle for the last third of the film. The events following his accident are so poorly linked that they only make sense as a dream sequence.
But, as it turns out, Father Mohr never recovers and leaves the castle - life just continues. What only makes sense as hallucinations turn out to be the story continuing in its normal (hah!) sequence.

"Magdalene" is a really strange film. Might not be too bad if you don't pay attention.

reet voIn his 29 years of entertaining De-troit audiences, veteran funnyman/ musician Bob Posch has successfully completed the entertainment loop de

The loop began on a 1961 trip

Posch ran out of money in Detroit. To survive, he sat on a stool, strummed an acoustic guitar, and sang folk songs at "redneck" bars around the metro Detroit area.

When the '70s rolled into town and guys like Bob Dylan faded out of the picture, Posch began to insert some comedy into his routine.

The '80s were pure stand-up schtick for Posch and his longtime friend and straight man John Clouca. It was ha-ha type stuff, Ricklesseque lines with the audience, gorilla suits, anything for a laugh.

Today, Posch has come full circle.

Sure, he'll still do anything for a laugh, and do it over and over and over at his long-running weekend shows at Duffy's in Union Lake, but he and his partner have also returned to where it all began . . . combining comedy with music.

"THE MARKET has gotten too saturated with just stand-up comics, some of whom should be making keys at Woolworth's," said Posch, who when not on stage spends time cracking up potential customers as a manufacturer's rep for a heating and air conditioning company. "I'm an entertainer . . . I just make people Posch and his partner mix stan-dard "stock" material with improvisation to create Detroit's longest running comedy show.

The "stock" material he refers to are the old routines, invented by other comics years ago, and revived

"I'd say that 25-30 percent of my material is original, with the other stuff being material that people are accustomed to . . . like the gorilla suit joke," said Posch, who is married and has three children. "I've never made any bones about it. A big chunk of my material I don't like doing, but I do it and it gets laughs."

Posch likens, the variations be-Posch likens the variations between his own comedy, classic routines he's borrowed and the musical end of the show to a situation a football coach may find himself in. But instead of dealing with yardage, Posch and his partner are dealing with a crowd.

"SAY IF BO Schembechler needs three yards, he's got to have the talent on his team to get it," said Posch. "For comedians, we've got 1,000 people to deal with, so you have to have to material to get those three yards in laughs. It's all in the delivery."

Posch is like a throwback from the old Vaudeville style entertainers, one that will stop at nothing to deliver a laugh. He even had his publicity photograph blown up to life-sized proportions to show his audience the way to their seats.

Anglers tackle art of fly tying

"A SHOP LIKE, this is for serious fly fisherman and people who want to be serious about the sport," said Freeland who is more than willing to lend what he's learned about tying flies over the last 25 years. "People just beginning in the sport can learn a great deal by just sitting down at and talking with some serious fly fishermen."

A bunch of guys sitting around, drinking coffee, and shooting the bull on the finer art of fly tying? Aren't they forgetting something . . . like the ladies?

'Women . . . Absolutely," Toohey said. "The sport takes you to a lot of nice places where you're not just hanging a worm out of a boat. You're actually interacting with na-

Fly tiers are constantly reading and absorbing every detail around a trout stream. Whether it's the color change in the leaves, the certain active period of a specific bug, water temperature and levels, or stream-bed conditions, you could say that their tuned into W-T-R-O-U-T.

"I take a little aquarium net to capture the flies and a 15-centimeter metric rule to measure them," Freeland said. "If you're off by one milland said. "If you're off by one mil-limeter on a four-millimeter fly, chances are the fish won't hit it."

SOME FLY TIERS even go as far as to bring a portable vice that they can stick into a tree stump, their tying equipment, and tie up flies right on the bank of the stream. But most fly fisherman just come pre'I started fly tying when I was 13 and by the time I was 15 I was tying professionally. It takes me about five minutes to tie a fly.'

pared - really prepared.

"I just bring enough flies to stock a large fly shop," said John Maki, who works at Freeland Outfitters.

To purchase a fly in a shop runs between $1.25 to $3. On the average, Maki said, a fly fisherman looses "a couple dozen" flies during a long day of fishing.

Tying your own flies can reduce the rates, but only after you've purchased the equipment needed to get started. Prices range from $50 to $70 to get started with basic tying equipment and materials will run from $150 to $200 for a year's worth of tying. That's base prices. The high end runs into the thousands of dollars.

The rod and reel set up can cost as much as a Yugo, yet reasonable prices for quality start-up equipment can be found. Synthetic materials, such as fiberglass and graphites, give new fly fishermen a relatively inexpensive alternative to the classic (and very expensive) bamboo

Mike Freeland, owner of Freeland Outfitters in Keego Harbor, adds a tuft of a buck's tail fur to a "Lefty's Deceiver" fly he is

Some of the more notable fly fishermen in the area include the Detroit Tigers pitcher Jack Morris, Glen Hanlon of the Red Wings, and Larry Cory, three-time Michigan trout stamp award winner.

COMPARED TO just "Gone Fishin," fly fishing remains an "elite" division of the sport. And of the fly fishermen, the art of tying is even more rare:

"I'd have to say that when 10 people get involved in tying for the first time, four drop out fairly soon," said Freeland. "Of the remaining six, usually half of those will stick with it for some time, roughly 30 percent of the original 10."

Sometimes experienced fly tiers will work on a fly for hours, creating an elaborate bug that looks like something you'd see on the side of an

"Some flies require so much attention that it actually reduces daily stress," said Freeland. "You're so focused that you forget everything

Flies like these rarely hit the water. They're sold and collected as "A fly like that can sell for several hundred dollars," said Toohey.

But it's the little flies, the ones that look so natural, that put the fish in the frying pan, or in most cases, bring the fish up to within reach of the fly fisherman so he can set it

"You never forget your first fish caught on your own imitation," Freeland said of the first brown trout he caught on his first attempt at fly tying. "Your fishing success is directly affected with your progress in tying ability."

The tools of the trade for a fly tier is a vice to hold the hook, a bobbin to hold the thread, the fur from a buck's tail, feathers and tinsel to add attraction characteristics.

The tools of tying

By Pat Schutte staff writer

In five minutes of spinning, snipping, attaching, spinning, snipping and gluing, a professional fly tier can create an intricate work of art not much bigger than a fingernail.

The flies they tie are exact right down to the last appendage and minute eyeball.

The tools of their trade look like a cross between what a pygmy's dentist and what a model ship builder

Like an anvil to a blacksmith, the foundation for the fly tier would have to be his vice. And if it's a Lilliputian-type fly he's tying, he may attach a magnifying glass and high-intensity light to the vice.

From there, they use a bobbin to hold the thread, tiny "hackle" (named for the neck feathers on a gamecock) pliers, itty-bitty scissors, tweezers and a comb.

The hook is first. It provides the substructure for the fly. Hooks used in fly tying are very similar to a small hook you may have attached a worm to at one time or another. One rule exists - the smaller the hook, the smaller the insect the tier is trying to imitate.

nary "sew a button on thread," but a waxed thread is next used to create the main body of the fly. Other thread-like materials, such as tinsel, flosses and wires are added to give the fly added attraction characteris-

A SPECIAL thread, not just ordi-

Then, to many of the flies, feathers are added. The most common types of feathers used include Marabou from a turkey, peacock (the eye part) and hackle.

The feathers give the fly attractive colors and add structure to it. Furs like impala hair, mountain goat and mink tail, are also used with the feathers in the same capacity.

An interesting note about the natural materials used in tying flies is that they all come from birds and animals specifically raised for fly fishing materials. And some of the feathers, normally white ones, are dyed in acid dyes to create the bright pink and chartruese tones not usually found in nature.

There are two classic fly types used in fly fishing, mainly for trout and salmon. The dry fly, or floating fly, which most likely is imitating a may fly or caddis fly, is tied on a light wire hook.

The other fly type is known as a wet fly, or sinking fly. This fly is meant to imitate the larva stage on an insect, and is tied on a heavier wire hook

Other types of flies are used to imitate things like bait fish (long blue and silver feathers) for pike and frogs for bass.

The art of tying one on

There's a method to the madness of fly tying . Here's the step-by-step process of tying a "Lefty's Deceiver" pictured below:

A fly tier starts by clamping a hook down in a vice.

The first material added to the hook is the base thread (continuous nylon filament with no twists so it deesn't get lumpy), which is liberally applied along the shaft of the Next, the Mylar (tinsel-type material) is applied. Mylar is a flat thread and can use different colors on each side. In this case, gold and silver Mylar is applied.

A chartreuse dyed buck tail is then tied on to add volume and noise to the lure. Good for pike, bass and muskie, this also allows the lure to be fished at night. ("Bambi lost his twitcher," jokes John Maki.)

Crinkled translucent fiber with reflective characteristics is added next. Developed for the carpet industry, this material's known as "Crystal Flash." ("Some of this stuff catches fishermen better than fish, "said Mike Freeland.)

The final materials tied on are the peacock feathers, which are put on with an interesting "hand-whip technique" in which the fingers are zipped back and forth in a scissors-like motion. ("This gives the fly a little more contrast and allows it to breathe better in the water, "said at a recent class. Scaglione admits he's not a fisherman, but was invit-ed to go fishing in Alaska with 12 other Nexus distributors. While looking for equipment, he found out about the class and enrolled.

The final step is to coat the tip of the fly with "Head Cement," a polymer-like lacquer applied to car paint. This step holds everything together and adds to the longevity of the fly. Total time to tie this fly: 10 minutes.

"I couldn't believe what a sophisticated sport fly fishing is," Sca-glione said. "It's not anything like when dad took us fishing with a hook and a bobber and you waited all day for the fish to bite."

Scaglione also admitted he "really didn't know what to expect from this class" and "wasn't thrilled about taking it.

"But Wally (Dabrowski) and Jim (Toohey) have given me a lot of insight on what its all about," he said. I would recommend, to anyone who wants to have a little fun, to look into fly fishing.

"I HAD NO idea it would be this much fun. Now I can't wait for a Dick Ward, an attorney from West Bloomfield, has been a fisher-man all his life, but just recently got interested in fly fishing. "My son is a fishing guide in Florida," Ward explained. "He's mastered fly fishing and I haven't. I'm trying to keep up with him.

"This was a great introduction class. I feel I am coming away from here more than just a beginner. I could go out tomorrow and fish. I haven't completely mastered it yet, but I could go fly

John Padgett, an surgeon from Dearborn, was also at the class along with his son, Bill. Padgett has been a fisherman most of his life and went on a fly fishing trip to Ontario's Sutton Bay last year.

"When we went to Canada I found out I was woefully inade-quate," admitted Padgett. "We're going to Alaska next year and I wanted to get a little better. The class has been great and its exactly what I wanted. The instructors are just great, the place here is great and they have great food."

Upcoming classes are scheduled for July 15 and 22. Advanced classes, which include one-on-one instruction on the stream, are also available. For information, call the Riverbend Sport Shop Inc. at 350-8484.

Angels dressed in heirlooms

By Linda Sparkman special writer

AMELA FORSYTHE, owner of Parsnips and Old Lace, has come up with what she thinks is a great combina-

The mix of a few of her favorite activities, combined with her creative talents, has resulted in a profitable business and a unique way of preserving heirlooms. All the while,

"My goal was to do something at home using a talent that I have and be able to stay home with my chil-dren while helping to support them," said Forsythe, a Franklin resident. That was in October 1987, when she designed and sold her first angel she is having a lot of fun.

Today more than a dozen shops carry her products. She sold more than 400 items last year and spent about 10 hours per week producing

Now, she's hoping to be able to "live on this," she said.

"Ten hours a week isn't very much time. If business gets big enough, maybe I'll hire somebody," Forsythe said. "The fun part for me is shopping and designing the dresses. If I could sit here, take out all the pieces, put them in a pile, hand them to somebody and say 'sew it,' I'd love Forsythe has been sewing and doing "all kinds of crafts" since she was in fourth grade and her mother taught her to sew.

"Any time a new craft came out, I had to try it," she said.

HER FIRST ATTEMPT to sell any of her crafts came in 1987, when she took a faceless angel doll, which she'd designed and made completely of antique linen, to the Village Barn in Franklin. The sale was made and Parsnips and Old Lace was born.

Forsythe, a self-proclaimed "garage sale nut," had been passing up second-hand heirloom linen because she couldn't think of a way to use the fabrics and justify her indulgence. But when she spotted a faceless Amish angel doll made of muslin at a craft fair, she thought, "Why don't I make this type of doll, but put all old materials in it?"

Back to the garage sales she went, but this time with a reason to buy the fabrics. She took the fabrics home and laundered, starched and pressed them. Then she cut pieces for her first - and still her favorite - item, a white linen, quiltedwinged angle doll.

The faceless, cloth-bodied doll is still Forsythe's primary item, but she has added colorfully dressed dolls, Christmas ornaments, treetop angels and throw pillows are also included in her line of nine collectibles. They range in price from $12 to "Each one is made unique by using different linen and hair made of antique laces," said Forsythe.

Forsythe encourages customers to special-order items using their own fabrics.

"It's a lovely way to display treasured family heirlooms, rather than have them sit in a drawer," she said. The tag on her crafts puts it this way: "There is a great wealth of beautiful needlework that our mothers and grandmothers lovingly stitched to decorate their linens and clothing. In tribute to this vanishing art form, I use these fabrics and laces as much as possible in my

ALTHOUGH THE PRODUCTS are usually sold as collectible items. shopkeepers have sold angel dolls for thank-you gifts as well.

"It's a good gift for someone who's been an angel to you," Forsythe said. Forsythe has enjoyed the reception her exclusive designs have received. One exciting event came when a woman, planning to open a shop in Brazil, showed up to see the merchandise and bought all the dolls in Forsythe's home at the time. Of the many tasks the business requires, Forsythe found only one a chore." That was making the doll bodies. She found it too repetitive, but solved the problem when a friend recommended a doll maker. Now Phyllis Granger of Royal Oak

One nice thing Forsythe has found is that she can include her two young sons in the home-based business material Forsythe provides.

"I love to have them help me," she said. She hired David, 8, to fold and punch holes in product tags. Her 4-year-old son, Scott, "just likes to come up in the room with me and make his own things," Forsythe said. None of Scott's creations have made their way to store shelves yet, but friends and relatives are enjoying them, his mom said.

Forsythe was born in New Jersey and has lived in Franklin for five years. She is a graduate of Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania and has worked as a research lab assistant, a real estate saleswoman and at the Doll Hospital and Toy Soldier Shop in Berkley, where she picked up tips on making doll clothes and dressing dolls.

Parsnips and Old Lace products can be found at, or special-ordered from, The Village Barn, 32760 Franklin Road, Franklin; Carousel Gallery, 91 W. Long Lake, Bloomfield Hills; and Folkway Trading Co., 844 Penniman, Plymouth.

Ideaphoria hit you lately?

Q: Lately I find myself forgetting things a lot. It scares me and it's embarrassing not to be able to remember where I put things or to remember things I need to do. I'm afraid this might get even worse when I get older. What can I do to help myself remember things?

A: There are many physical and emo-tional conditions that affect memory. If you haven't had a good physical exam re-cently, I would suggest that as a place to

If you are physically healthy, focus on what is going on in your life right now that is stressful or if there has been a loss. When stress is in your life, your thoughts and feelings may be so preoccupied with dealing with that particular stressor you are not paying attention to other things around you.

If you are going through a period of transition (career-wise or in marital status, for example) it would not be unusual to go through a temporary period of absent-mindedness.

WHEN PEOPLE are tired or hungry.

it's more difficult to concentrate. You might increase your self-awareness in terms of whether your forgetfulness is more prominent at such times or if other factors contribute to it.

Loneliness also begets forgetfulness, in the sense that when people are lonely they tend to daydream more. In such cases the person may tell you very vividly about something that happened many years ago, yet not be able to remember where he or she put his or her glasses five minutes ago.

You may just have too many things on your mind and experience overload. People can hold only so much information in their short-term memory at a time. This capacity differs from person to person, and even for the same person at different times of the day, the month and their

AT TIMES when you feel frustrated about your poor memory skills, instead of judging, criticizing or putting yourself down, ask yourself, "What do I need right now?" The answer may be food, sleep, companionship, more time to do things or a good physical checkup.

In addition to the foregoing, the aptitude called Ideaphoria may distract you. Ideaphoria is the rapid flow of thoughts and ideas through the brain.

If you have that aptitude, it could mean you are easily distracted by multi-tudes of thoughts that continually flash through your mind. When you are consumed with "great ideas" it's more difficult to concentrate on the mundane such as where you put something or what you need to do.

To help avert more forgetfulness as you age, exercise your mind every day by reading, writing, playing thought-provok-ing games or doing other activities that encourage you to think.

Where would Her Majesty live in Birmingham?

At Buckingham, naturally. She'd love the royal park across the street. She'd dote on the spacious two-bedroom apartment with fresh new interiors from the most modern appliances to the best lighting fixtures to designer carpeting to contemporary verticals. She'd like the uncommon amount of room and royal way the service staff treats her. After all, a person's home ought to be their palace.

Vho decides on boat wells?

association documents provide for the as-mt of boat wells to individual units. The association is now taking the position that it has a right to transfer the boat wells from one unit to another without the co-owner's approval for "convenience purposes." Can they do that?

It all depends on the condominium documents. More than likely your documents, if established after July 1, 1978, allow for the assignment of boat wells which are limited common elements by a coowner upon the recording of the appropriate amendment to the master deed. Normally, the association does not have the right to reassign boat wells unless they are general common elements and that right is expressly reserved in the condomi-nium documents. If your boat well is a limited common element appurtenant to your unit, only you have the right to assign it, assuming that right is not prohibited under the condominium documents.

We have a problem with our management company interacting with our CPA. There is some bad blood between the two, and the management company refuses to meet with the CPA to go over certain financial details. It has gotten so bad that the management company will not even go to the CPA's office for any association meetings or to assist in the audit. What do you recommend that we

It is imperative that the managing agent cooperants or experts retained by the association to help discharge the responsibilities of the association as directed by the board. The fact that the management agent may have a personal problem with the CPA does not give the management agent any excuse not to cooperate or attend meetings where necessary, unless the management agent does not have a legal obligation to do so, as specifically mandated in the management agreement. While it may be that the association would have to pay the additional costs incurred by the management agent in performing these activities, depending upon the terms of the agreement, to me it seems totally unterms of the agreement, to me it seems totally unreasonable for the management company to refuse to cooperate and even more ridiculous for the board of directors not to insist that the management company discharge its professional and legal responsibilities. If the management company isn't willing to go on the road, the board should tell the management company to "hit the road."

Waste not, want not: Builders eye recycling

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Recycling of building site materials lags behind other parts of the solid waste stream, but there may be hope as the opportunities for such re-cycling become more readily avail-able.

Until then, it's up to the building industry to cut back on its waste and reuse whatever scraps remain.

Builder Association of Southeast Michigan (BASM) executive vice president Irving Yackness said builders are aware of a need for recycling, but they don't have the op-

Building materials like scrap wood, wall board, scrap metal, poly/ polyvinyl chloride (PVC) and metal piping, paints and chemicals don't generally fall in the same categories as the common recyclables.

Loch McCabe, an economist and program analyst with consulting firm Resource Recycling Systems Inc. of Ann Arbor, recently told a gathering of BASM members that there are few options for the builder who wants to be environmentally While communities and the private sector offer alternatives to the private citizen - glass, some plastics and paper recycling is becoming common — builders' options are limited, McCabe said.

comes a viable alternative for construction materials, the builder's

BUILDERS CAN still recycle paper, plastic and glass resulting from office work, but until recycling be-waste.

"If you throw out something you've paid for, you're wasting money right there," McCabe said.

Dave Denske, president of Canton Waste Recycling Inc., is the first to offer recycling services to the builders in this area. "We're experimenting with it, and it's something we're looking forward to." looking forward to."

The increase of waste disposal costs, he said, is the very reason that recycling is becoming a reality, Denske said.

Canton Waste Recycling is accepting only waste lumber, which is ground up into wood chips and distributed as mulch.

Denske is experimenting with concrete and scrap metal recycling on a smaller scale with township residents, but is not offering it as a commercial service yet.

Dry wall and PVC piping present a different problem. "Tve talked to ople about it, but I haven't been able to find anyone to take it yet. We can't recycle anything we can't get rid of," he said.

"It can be very profitable (to recycle waste materials) instead of throwing them out, but we need to have someplace to get rid of it," Denske said. "Everything has a value once it's separated."

DENSKE SPECULATED that recycling will create a great many more companies create products from recycled materials.

Cindy Burgess, Public Administration Research Group in Plymouth, a consulting firm, said recycling, reus ing and reducing waste are not enough. If alternatives to the throwaway society are to work, builders and everyone else must "complete the loop.'

A growing willingness to recycle and be responsible for waste, while admirable, must be complemented by consumer demand for products made from recycled materials.

"You're not doing any good if you're not buying (products made from recycled materials)," Burgess

Burgess said the main obstacle to recycling has always been a lack of interest. It was always cheaper and more convenient to throw out than recycle and so public and private interests have not been galvanized toward a market based on recycling.

"My feeling is it hasn't been sexy enough — but now it's hitting in the pocket book," she said.

There are already some recycled building products available. The Off-ice of Waste Reduction Services, according to spokesman Bill Kesling has obtained and is distributing cop-ies of the Recycled Products Guide, a publication listing manufacturers of products made from recycled materials, Kesling said.
