Light gets OK

A plan to light the Plymouth Vietnam Veterans Memorial near Kellogg Park was approved by city planning commissioners nesday.

A group of Vietnam veterans, and veterans of other wars, looked on as the commissioners . unanimously approved the proposal.

While some veterans and commissioners said proper flag etiquette calls for the U.S. flag to be lighted if it flies at night — as planned at the memorial — the city engineer is to review the lighting plan so the flag light won't disturb neighbors of the memorial, at the corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Union.

"I would assume the light will be on all night," said Commissioner Douglas Miller, after the meeting.

"I'm telling you it's a real emotional point," said Greg Huddas, president of the Plymouth-Canton Vietnam Veterans of America, chapter 528. The chapter has 45 members.

"I have seen people die for that flag. I have seen the enemy try to capture that flag - I would like to see that flag lighted all night," Huddas said

The plan calls for lights which illuminate the Vietnam-Korea memorial to be timed to turn on at dusk and go off at around midnight.

Area eateries 'pretty clean'

Editor's note: This package of stories on restaurant inspections is the first in a series. We will look at restaurants in Plymouth and Canton Townships in the future.

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

Ever wonder what goes on behind closed doors in the restaurants you frequent? Afraid to ask?

In Plymouth, you needn't be, according to Nancy Workman, public health sanitarian whose territory includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville

The food licenses of three of the 25 restaurants in the city of Plymouth are being held because of excessive violations, Workman said. They are the A&W, Cloverdale and Mayflower

But overall "restaurants in the Plymouth area are pretty clean and well-run. I've had the area three or four years, and I'm pretty confident in the restaurants," said Workman, who's inspected all the listed Plymouth restaurants within the last year.

The health department checks restaurants on an impromptu basis, monitoring such things as food quality, employee hygiene and the condition of equipment and utensils, plumbing, refuse disposal, ventila-tion and lighting.

Points are subtracted from a perfect score of 100 for each violation on a checklist of 44 items. For the majority of violations, one or two points are lost

Four or five points are subtracted for each "critical" violation.

Critical violations include such things as keeping food at improper temperatures; allowing employees with infections or poor hygiene to handle food; washing dishes in an unsanitary way; using an unsafe water source or water that isn't the proper temperature under pressure; and improper storage of toxic materials.

There is no designated "passing grade." Some restaurants without food licenses have scored higher than licensed establishments.

Excluding church halls, schools, pizza and ice cream outlets, there are 25 eating establishments in Plymouth. The average score of Plymouth restaurants is 80.

There are no problems at all with the city's church halls and schools," said Workman. "They're used so seldom, they're kept up really well."

Mayflower remodels to earn food license

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

The Mayflower Hotel has operated without a food license for more than two years, according to the Wayne County Health Department.

"Their 1988 and 1989 food licenses were never approved because their kitchen wasn't approved," said Nan-cy Workman, public health sanitarian who inspects Plymouth restaurants for the county.

The hotel's 1990 license is being withheld pending a complete kitchen remodeling to include the pantry, bakery, downstairs bar, Steak House, dining room and the Roundtable Club, Workman said.

"It's going to be wonderful when they're through. I'm looking forward to it. They were just so out-of-code it was time it be brought up to code. It's a very old building. The structure and equipment are old, which causes a number of cleaning problems," she said. "I'd like to see more space, which would give them easy cleanability." The hotel has never been threatened with closure by the health department. "That would only happen if we got no effort from them," said Workman. "We usually don't hold licenses like that, but we've been working with them for two or three what's inside No time to waste: Township gears up for recycling

By Kevin Brown staff writer

Mandatory recycling starts for Plymouth Township residents on Sept. 4.

Since trustees approved an ordinance June 27 setting that start-up date, township officials have been working out details.

"Some of the garbage (and recylables) pick up days may be changing," said municipal services director Jim Anulewicz, when the program begins.

Between Aug. 27 and 31, department of public works crews will deliver containers that homeowners can fill with recyclables - newspapers; green, brown and clear glass; cans and bottles; and plastics with a recycle symbol on the bottom.

Information on the recyling program will be placed in the containers

Residents are asked to remove the lid and bottom of cans and flatten them, and to crush plastic, Anulewicz said.

To inform residents about the recycling program, "Our August (township) newsletter will be totally dedicated to recycling," Anulewicz

We're going to try to get a hold of officers of various homeowners groups," he added, and meet with them to explain the program.

Anulewicz will present a slide show on the program to trustees at their 7:30 p.m. meeting Tuesday at township hall, so trustees can better answer questions from the public on the recycling program.

In its early stages, recycling won't make money for the township. But recycling will reduce the amount of trash going to the Arbor Hills Landfill in Salem Township, which has nearly doubled its rates in the past year.

While residents will violate the new township ordinance if they put recyclable trash in

Jaeger, Yack discuss joint police, fire force

Joining Plymouth and Canton's police and fire departments was the subject when Plymouth City Manager Gordon Jaeger and Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack met Wednesday.

Jehovah's Witnesses want to sell property

By Kevin Brown staff writer

The leaders of the Jehovah's Witnesses Plymouth Congregation want to move and sell their property to the United Auto Workers, for use as an office-meeting hall.

But some nearby homeowners are against the sale, because it would require rezoning the church land on the southeast corner of Sheldon and Junction from residential to office use

Some said a rezoning could encourage others to seek office zoning along Sheldon, where homes now stand

"I would like to see it stay residential," said Doug Ringer, of Shel-

JOSEPH WHITE, also of Sheldon, said the number of people going to the congregation hall "is sporadic, it's really not a problem. But to rezone that to office so that the congregation can sell easier is not my problem."

Their comments came Wednesday before city planning commis-sioners, who set a public hearing for the rezoning request for Aug. 8.

A homeowner behind the Jehovah's Witnesses hall said he'd re-cently spent thousands of dollars to improve his property, and claimed his land value would fall if the parcel was re-zoned to office use.

The public hearing will be con-vened before commissioners vote on whether or not to approve the rezoning request.

Some commissioners suggested they could be against the idea.

Commissioner Richard Moyer suggested that commissioners consider the nearby homeowner, "who bought a house and thought that was a church."

"In the past, we haven't rezoned a single parcel (in a subdivision) -That's spot rezoning," said Com-

Commissioner John Maloney pointed out that churches are allowed in a residential-zoned area, but not offices. "In theory, it's got to go back to residential," he said. In their application for rezoning, the Jehovah's Witnesses maintain that between 10 and 180 people visits the congregation on various

In contrast, they say one or two secretaries would use the UAW off-ice on weekdays, adding there would be monthly UAW meetings.

Tom Kayfes, presiding overseer for the congregation, said they plan to sell because, "We just want a more modern building and we're outgrowing that one."

He said the congregation, which includes members from Plymouth, Northville and Novi, is looking for land to build a new building near Five Mile in Plymouth.

Organizers say there's room to roam at Ann Arbor's art fair

By Kevin Brown staff writer

There are certain myths about the Ann Arbor art fair, say organizers.

"One of the myths is it gets bigger and more crowded every year," said Susan

The former Plymouth Community Arts Council director handles public relations for the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair at South and East University, scheduled Wednesday through Sunday.

That fair, founded in 1960, is joined by Two other fairs - the State Street Area Art Fair on North University, William, Maynard, Liberty and Thompson streets, and the Summer Art Fair on Main, Liberty and State streets.

The attraction of the annual art fair the state's biggest - includes a variety of arts and crafts for sale, and people-watching as an estimated 300,000 to 400,000 usually show for the fairs "depending on the weather," Froelich said.

"People come back for their favorites (artists). They want to know ahead of time is this or that artist in the fair this year," Froelich said.

How is the original Ann Arbor Street Art

Fair distinguished from the other two fairs? "We probably make a stronger attempt to be more heavily into the fine arts," Froelich said, including drawing, print making and Of the 120 artists invited to the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, 80 are typically invited back from the previous year. "During every fair, a committee provides score for each artist," Froelich said. Other artists - around 1,400 - apply for the remaining 40 spots.

Of some standout artists invited to this year's fair, Froelich names Jerry Birda of Grand Rapids, who makes miniature ceramic replicas of diners, and Daniel Roache, who creates aluminum wall sculp-

"We don't have the pristine atmosphere of a gallery," Froelich said, as artists are assigned to 10-by-10-foot booths. "But we also make a stronger attempt to educate people," she said, as 20 artists give demonstrations of how their work is created.

"That makes it easier for people to talk to the artist, and the artists seem to like that. They like the feedback, and talking to people to see how they're responding to their work."

As to profits the artists take home after the festival, "I guess the general public assumes they make oodles of money," Froelich said. While she said a small percentage will make $8,000 to $12,000, she said most artists probably make around $600.

Because street parking is limited, the Ann Arbor Transportation Authority offers shuttle buses to fair sites, from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday from the Briarwood Mall and Pioneer High School at Main and Stadi-

Froelich said the largest crowds are usually on Wednesday morning and Saturday.

Items valued at more than $2,000 were taken from a Plymouth Township church late Tuesday or early Wednesday, according to a report filed with Plymouth Township police.

If you're looking for Plymouth's cleanest restaurants, the Sweet Afton Tea Room and Connie's Catering are right up there.

The Sweet Afton Tea Room, which received a score of 99 on the Wayne County Health Department's 100point scale, "is spotless.

The Plymouth Manor, with a score of 94, does such a good job Workman would recommend it for your wedding reception. Everything is brandnew and up to code.

THE TACO BELL at 409 N. Main Street at Mill scored 93. On her last inspection, Workman found no critieal violations.

"They just need more space. There's too much in there and it creates a cleaning problem." The other Taco Bell, at 1327 S. Main, was rated 84. Space is a problem there, too. They needed a hand wash sink in there, and they need to keep the ice covered." The restaurant also needs to provide a shield for the lights "to prein case the light gets hit with the handle of a broom or mop."

McDonald's on Ann Arbor Road received a score of 92.

'They are very clean. They know food handling. We never have a problem with McDonald's."

THE SIDE STREET Pub scored

89 when last inspected.

Workman has "had to do a little pushing" there, she said.

Mary Ann's also was advised to keep food covered in coolers; to paint all wooden shelving, to clean inside the coolers; and to hang up mops not in use.

HARDEE'S AT 150 Plymouth Road scored 84.

"Overall, they're good. The only critical violation was improper storage of toxic cleaning items."

The Cozy Cafe scored 83. They're really good. They have a pretty nice operation there. They know what they're doing. They had just one critical - not keeping the hand wash sink in the kitchen available at all times. There was a mop in the way when I was there.'

The Plymouth Cultural Center also scored in the 80s.

"They got an 82 for their snack bar and kitchen operation. They keep it up pretty nice in there."

THE MAIN STREET Deli was rated 79. "Their problem is too much equipment in a small area. That presents a cleaning problem. Also, employees were smoking in the back kitchen area. Being so small, there shouldn't be smoking back there at all.

The back screen door needs to be self-closing and latching. If it's ajar, insects and mice can get in."

Frank's Deli at 696 Mill, formerly The Old Village Sausage Shop, received a 78. It's in the midst of remodeling, adding equipment including a grill with a convection oven, Workman said.

Restaurants fix violations to pass county inspection

By M.B. Dillon

The food licenses of the A & W restaurant at 516 W. Ann Arbor Road and Cloverdale Farms Dairy at 447 Forest are being withheld by the Wayne County Health Department.

Cloverdale is in the midst of a complete remodeling of their facility," said Nancy Workman, public health sanitarian who inspects Plymouth restaurants for the Wayne County Health Department.

"It has to be brought up to code. It's going to be a nice place when he's done." Cloverdale received a score of 51 of a possible 100 points when last inspected, Workman said. John Kownacki, Cloverdale's new owner, preferred not to comment. A & W received a score of 76. "A & W needs some work. They have old equipment that needs to be brought up to code," said Workman. "It hasn't been maintained the way it should be."

WHEN WORKMAN last inspected the A & W, chicken was being stored at improper temperatures. Also, chicken was being thawed at room temperture instead of in the refrigerator or under cool running water, she said.

A & W owner Bob Kwasny was out of town and unavailable for com-Wazer's American Chinese Cuisine at 413 N. Main also scored low.

"The main violations have been taken care of, but he's had a lot of repeat violations," said Workman, who scored Wazer's at 53.

Wah Wong, Wazer's owner, has worked at Kyoto restaurants, at his dad's Lichee Gardens in Wyandotte, and at his own sushi bar in Dearborn. He notices that "every inspector is different. Some inspectors will let you off on a lot of things, others like you to do it their way."

Wong objected to being charged $150 by the health department to have his new exhaust system checked. The same ventilation inspection in Oakland County would cost $30, he said. "It's outrageous. I complained to them," Wong said."For each revision, I have to pay them."

Cafe Bon Homme at 844 Penniman scored 59.

Their main problem is that the kitchen is too small for the amount of food preparation they do," said Workman. "All the storage is downstairs, which is fine, but upstairs they don't have the space they need, which causes problems.

They have a cleaning problem underneath shelves, equipment and in corners and along edges."

When Workman last inspected Cafe Bon Homme, she noted several critical violations that were corrected by the next day when she revisited the restaurant. Raw meat was stored on an upper shelf, above food that could be contaminated by drippings, and food in the coolers wasn't being kept cold enough.

BOB HILTON, co-owner of the Cafe Bon Homme said health department personnel have always been "very cooperative, helpful and very necessary. We have no complaints." Some of the restaurant's difficulties stem from the fact that it's housed in a 100-year-old building, Hilton said. "Our first inspection we got an 87, and I felt we should be higher. If we're good on the little things, we'll be good on the big things. If we slide on the little things, then we'll slide on the big things."

In December, Randy Lorenz of the Mayflower told the health department that even though the hotel was "as anxious as ever to update our facilities, our future planning is at a standstill as a result of problems we are experiencing with Amoco Oil at the Meeting House. "I will be in and out of there frequently, inspecting different stages of their remodeling," she said. The hotel has until mid-July of "something we have to discuss. It's possible they could receive one, then again, they can't get a license until a six-month inspection" is done, Workman said. "It all depends."

Sports writer off base on soccer game

To the editor: C. J. Risak's July 9 sports editorial c. J. Risak's July 9 sports editorial regarding this summer's World Cup soccer tournament reminded me of a story that my father once told about his first experience with watching a World Series match in which Don Larsen threw his perfect game.

"I was watching the game, and the Yankee pitcher kept throwing the ball, and nobody was hitting it. Everyone was glued to the TV set and nobody was doing a damn thing!"

k my dad a few years to realize what everyone was making such a fuss about during that afternoon in New York, but he eventually learned to appreciate the many subtleties and inherent beauty behind the game of baseball. It is unfortunate, however, that a journalist such as Mr. Risak has chosen to voice similarly gnorant comments, to thousands of erverland readers, about the equally beautiful game of soccer.

occer is a sport that Mr. Risak to know little or nothing about. Sure, it has an occasional dud game like any other sport (look at last week's All-Star Game or the Super Bowl for an example), but don't tell me that the World Cup had "very little drama" to it. The Cameroon-England quarterfinal match and England-West Germany semifinal contest were two hard-fought nail-biters where the hopes and dreams of an entire nation were riding on the outcome. If that isn't drama, then I challenge Mr. Risak to define the term.

And as for his statement that soccer players "are always falling down and rolling around in the grass," has Mr. Risak ever stopped to think why they might be rolling around? Has he ever felt what it is like to have someone trip you with a swift kick in the ankle while you are running at full speed? I didn't think athleticism and overall team discipline needed to successfully com-pete in the sport of soccer. Believe it or not, the game is much more intri-cate than simply consisting of 11 guys playing "a zone-like defense surrounding their own goal" or "end-less minutes of mindless probing by the team with the ball." These statements make it clear that Mr. Risak has a long way to go before he picks up on the subtle beauty of this challenging sport.

Maybe during the next few years Mr. Risak will learn to appreciate the amazing amount of individual

My faith in Mr. Risak is not entirely lost, however. The World Cup is coming to the United States in 1994, along with a major professional league, so Mr. Risak will have to put up with soccer whether he likes it or not. Hopefully between now and then he will get a chance to see what soccer is really all about. Heck, if my Italian father can learn how to watch a baseball game, then Mr. Risak can certainly grow to appreciate the world's most popular sport.

EMS workers are heroes

Reading Diane Gale's article on June 18, 1990 concerning the American Legion honoring Fire Chief Mel Paulen's brave and heroic rescue of two-year old Scott Allen Kittle reminded me of some other heroes serving our community that many times go unnoticed — the EMS Units

Many times I have seen these well-trained professionals giving ev-erything they have in attempting to save lives and prevent physical and mental damage from occurring as they are being thrown around in the back of these units while rushing to a hospital. There are many people that have these fast-acting professionals to thank for their lives.

If something ever happened to me or my family where a Canton EMS Unit responded, I know we would be in the hands of professionals that never think of themselves this way,

Slow group a problem for parade

To the editor: I attended a parade today in I attended a parade today in Plymouth to celebrate our country's independence. The parade was good. The variety of the units and placement, no musical groups right next to musical groups, was well planned. What was not well planned was the placement of a slow moving group second to the last in the parade just ahead of the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corp. The slow moving group, Plymouth/Canton Chiefettes caused a mile long gap in the parade. a mile long gap in the parade. Roughly about 25 percent of the viewers south of the reviewing stand on Main Street and on Hartsough left because they thought the parade was over. Some people stayed because they knew the Fife and Drum Corp would be coming.

For future reference I would recommend that the slow moving groups be advised to do their short program, if they are flexible. If they aren't flexible or haven't trained to march at a faster pace, they could be placed behind faster moving groups, perhaps at the end of the parade where the Chiefettes finished.

Environmental groups praise vote on bill

To the editor:

Recently the Michigan Senate held an important vote on SB 375, a bill that would force polluters to pay for cleanup of contaminated sites.

There were votes on two versions of the bill. One was a strong bill, backed by the environmental community that would make polluters pay their fair share for toxic waste cleanup and would have resulted in

The other had been so severely weakened that it was worse than no bill at all. Both were defeated.

The Senate will have a chance to consider these and similar bills

Recycling is worth the effort

Recycle: A word for the '90s. Finally, awareness has risen concerning the increasing problem of waste. Nationwide, we're advised to invest in recycling companies and to buy recycled products. Locally, recy-cling centers have sprung up in many surrounding communities. Communities such as Southfield, beginning voluntary recycling, and Dearborn, beginning mandatory re-cycling, have recognized the need for action. Our neighborhood school began recycling products taken in by students. Now Plymouth is investigating a bag and tag program for its

Let's keep the wheel turning. Find acceptable land for composting. Begin recycling pick-up in all communities, and refuse pick-up of certain large items, thereby, forcing residents to dispose of these items in other appropriate ways.

People from Southfield and Dearborn who were interviewed on television expressed positive feelings toward helping the environment. No one described the recycling efforts as a burden. As a "recycler" myself, I have reduced curbside waste from three bags to one bag. Much of what I used to throw away is recyclable.

We have all worked together for other causes and I am sure we can continue to show support for this serious problem.

Cable viewers are asked to air gripes

To the editor:

City Commissioner John F. Vos III would like all cable television users in the Plymouth-Canton community who are experiencing service and/or reception problems with Omnicom Cablevision to contact him immediately. The Plymouth City Commission will be reviewing the contract between Omnicom Cablevision and the Plymouth area community to ascertain if the vendor is living up to its side of the contract in terms of both quality service and quality television reception.

There have been a number of public complaints regarding the recep-tion on Omnicom Cablevision channel 22 (local WJBK-TV, CBS-TV affiliate) as well as other channels. A petition is being circulated at the present time to be filed with the Plymouth City Commission by some citizens regarding their complaints in this regard.

Canton is a nice change

I was intrigued by the "Look at Suburban Crime" in the June 28th edition.

However, I do not agree with the assertion that "our communities more closely resemble the major city they straddle than the rural towns they once were."

I moved to Canton one year ago, after living in Detroit all my life. I can tell you that Canton in no way resembles Detroit. Plain and simple Detroit is a jungle. One cannot safely walk down a Detroit street, even in the so-called "good sections." Neigh-bors watch each other's homes constantly to prevent burglaries. The elderly are being robbed and beaten on city streets and in bank parking lots on Social Security days.

Living in Canton is a relief. I can leave my car unlocked in front of my home during the day. I can take walks, both in the daytime and evening. I no longer fear sitting outside in the evening. In short, I can live in Canton. I merely existed in Detroit.

It is a shame that our beautifulcommunity cannot be crime-free. However, I can honestly tell you that Canton is a pleasant change from

Batteries can be recycled

I read a news feature in the O & E regarding the Plymouth recycling center and how it is unable to handle lead-acid storage batteries. The article suggests that the consumer try an auto service center or a retailer of new batteries.

I do not know what kind of background research O & E reporters do for news features, however, the West-Northwest Yellow Pages carries many advertisements for companies that buy batteries under the listings of scrap metal and batteries.

At this point I should add that I am a buyer for Haggerty Metals. We have bought since our opening all types of lead-acid storage batteries. Occasionally we advertise in the O & E classifieds and draw an excellent response when we mention batteries in our advertisements.

Now that I think about it, no O & E reporters or city officials have in-quired about car batteries so they probably do not read the classified advertisements.

Legal wars on in teacher suspension

By Diane Gale staff writer

After seven and a half years of legal wars, Central Middle School teacher Scott Kurtz continues to fight a school board decision to suspend him without pay after a fight with a student in 1982.

And the legal confrontations haven't ended yet.

The Michigan Supreme Court ruled earlier this month that Kurtz's constitutional rights were not violated by an alleged conflict of interest between two attorneys.

cer, Dennis Pollard, and school su-perintendent John Hoben's attorney, Bill Albertson, worked in the same Birmingham law firm.

Kurtz will ask the Supreme Court to reconsider the decision, according to his attorney, Steve Amberg.

"We regret that it is taking this long, but it will probably take additional time," he said. The legal battle began when the Plymouth-Canton school board held a hearing shortly after the 1982 incident. The case went to the Tenure Commission, which decided The school board's hearing offithe board hearing was tainted by a conflict of interest between the at-torneys. It ordered Kurtz reinstated with back pay.

The Ingham County Circuit Court agreed with the Tenure Com-

However, the Court of Appeals reversed the decision and Kurtz ap-pealed to the Supreme Court and lost.

Kurtz's suspension was based on an October 1982 incident involving a teenaged student, John James of Plymouth.

James reportedly entered Kurtz's classroom without permis-sion while Kurtz was out of the room. When Kurtz returned, James failed to answer his questions about why he was in the room and they began to fight.

Kurtz used a karate-like chop to cause James to hit the floor and then "struck his (James") head on the floor several times," according to the school board's ruling. Kurtz denied that he hit the student's nead against the floor.

The board ruled that because of Kurtz's actions, James suffered bruises on his right side and lumps on the back of his head, dizziness and vomiting.

Form follows function.

In the case of Livonia's Madonna College, officials believe the college has been functioning as a university for years. That form could soon be reflected in a change of status —

"We've broadened beyond this mpus," said Sister Mary Franci-se, president of Madonna, which eks university status.

"The scope of program offerings re have, the size of the student population and the level of preparation of our faculty is very similar to that of a university. It encourages us to recognize the (institutional) level Madonna has achieved."

Reaction to the change has been favorable so far, according a preliminary survey of the faculty by the college's University Study Task Force.

"The results were positive — it was a way of introducing the change, and if (the faculty) had any concerns or wanted to produce input, to do so," said Sister Francilene.

A more comprehensive survey will be sent to 14,000 alumni, friends and benefactors in the August issue the school's quarterly report, ladonna Now." That's the one the task force will be looking for.

Results from that and their rec-ommendations on the change will be ered by the task force, a lot of colresented to the board of trustees in January 1991.

"WE'VE HAD several meetings so far," said the Rev. John Sajdak, task force member and assistant profes-sor of philosophy at Madonna. "The main question was: "What is the difference? between a college and a

The differences between a college and a university are not formally nailed down, Sajdak said. "It seems to be extremely fluid," he said.

It depends on the accrediting asso-ciation to which a college belongs, he Generally, universities are considered to be broader in scope, offering several areas of study, master's degrees and three doctorate degree programs.

Universities must also have a certain percentage of faculty with doctorate degrees.

A university can consist of several colleges. Madonna's five major divisions could become individual colleges — of nursing, business, humanities, science and technology and social sciences - with a change to university status. In all, Madonna offers 50 different programs including one for for the handicapped, within the five divisions.

Colleges generally offer only a baccalaureate degree, with no post graduate programs.

leges call themselves universities despite that distinction, said Sajdak. The main cause of concern for some faculty members was the perception of universities as primarily earch institutions. Said Dr. Leon Levitt, chairman of the management, marketing and economics department, "I think their fears are groundless. Our philosophy as a teaching institution would not change."

Sr. Francilene said they would respect to the control of the contr quest faculty members to do more research but, "it would be subser-vient" to teaching and liberal arts.

Greater prestige and the opportu-nity for wider support are among the advantages of changing from college to university status said Sr. Franci-

It would also give the school higher visibility to attract more students, nationally and internationally.

"Most foreign countries define 'college' as being more a vocational school, and a two-year school in Madonna currently has an exchange program with Lansdowne College in London, England, and is looking to expand its international outreach.

"IN THE graduating class this year we recognized we had students graduating from 15 other nations," including India, Cameroon, Tanzania and Nigeria, said Sr. Rose Marie.

Another characteristic of universities is that they write a lot of grants Last year the college won a grant over 12 other colleges to provide an on-site bachelor of science degree program at Michigan Bell in South-field. Madonna faculty travel to the site where 300 people are enrolled in

They just won a Title III Strength-ening Institutions Programs grant from the U.S. Department of Educa-tion to subsidize doctoral studies by

A disadvantage of the change is concern that the school would be lost in bureaucracy and become imper-sonal, said Sr. Francilene.

"We want to continue with the staff, faculty and students working closely together," to maintain the intimate campus atmosphere.

If the board of trustees approves the status change in January, the school will have to apply to two other sources: the state board of education, and the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, the na-tional accrediting organization for this region. Both must also approve the change of status.

"MOST PEOPLE seem to be in favor (of the change) as long as it doesn't mean some sort of radical change from what we've been doing," Sajdak said. "The feeling is we've been doing the work of a university, all we have to do is change the name."

Sr. Francilene added, "People say Madonna is one of the best-kept secrets around. Well, it's time for the secret to be out."

Governor talks taxes, schools

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Gov. James Blanchard stresse

Gov. James Blanchard stressed his property tax reform package Friday, in an appearance before local city and township leaders.

But it was the "other" part of the plan — a proposal for giving more state money to less wealthy school districts — that caused the most concern.

Blanchard said his plan, limiting school property taxes to the rate of inflation, was the most responsible of the numerous tax-limiting plans under discussion in the state Capi-

"This is a very substantial pro-posal," Blanchard said.

In other comments, the governor said he would lean toward an equity plan that would take away increases in state money already given to wealthier, out-of-formula school districts and distribute it among less-financially secure in-formula districts.

In-formula districts don't receive state aid for direct classroom expenses, but they do receive money for 29 "categorical" programs. "I'VE ALWAYS felt the idea of cutting distributions (altogether) would be a mistake," Blanchard

Cutting increases means that wealthier districts, like Livonia, South Redford and Plymouth-Can-ton, could lose additional state aid for employees' Social Security ben-efits and pensions, as well as other select programs.

Losing any or all of that aid is a concern for those districts.

"I'm really in a quandary," said state Rep. Justine Barns, D-West-land, whose district includes por-tions of the out-of-formula Livonia and in-formula Wayne-Westland

"LIVONIA SAYS don't take away from us but give them (Wayne-Westland) more from someplace else," Barns said. "But where do you find that money?"

Barns, like Blanchard, addresse the Conference of Western Wayne legislative forum Friday in Dear-born. Livonia, Westland, Redford, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton are conference members.

In other comments, Blanchard continued to boost a state constitutional amendment that would dedicate lottery money to schools.

Though lottery money already goes to schools, the governor said, mandating it through a constitu-tional amendment would restore taxpayer confidence in the lottery system.

Tiny, tea sandwich not wimpy

To quote Andy Warhol, "Everyone is famous for 15 minutes. Quite frequently I will be stand-ing in line at the grocery store or walking through a mall and get stopped by folks like you who usually say, "You don't look at all like the picture that runs every

Being almost six foot seven, with weight apportioned to height, I get noticed. Come to think of it, it's kind of hard not to get noticed when you're my size. Yes it is true that I get paid to eat. It's a tough assignment, but somebody has to do it.

But you don't have to be a cardcarrying, 98-pound wimp to enjoy tea sandwiches. You know what I'm talking about. Those frilly lit-tle sandwiches that used to have their crusts removed and were spread with the likes of watercress, cream cheese, avocado and other tasty fillings and were more commonly enjoyed during Gatsby-era garden parties. Tea sandwiches are experiencing a rebirth and once again are finding their way to the trays of experienced hosts and hostesse around metro Detroit. At one time only reserved for serving with tea, these demure little sandwiches are now making headway in upscale picnic baskets and coolers all over town. But forget the boiled ham slices and olive loaf - these sandwiches are being stuffed with unusual mixtures that will please the palates of 8 to 80-year-olds.

THE FILLINGS have pretty much stayed the same, with the usual watercress and pate-like ground meats. What has taken on a noticeable change are the wrappings.

Gone are the days of Wonde bread slices trimmed of their crusts. Instead we have stone ground wheats, fortified ryes that could accompany a hearty winter soup, delicate sourdoughs and crusted French baguettes. Pita bread triangles closed with frilly elongated wooden toothpicks and soft corn and flour tortillas are presently the rage - not to be outdone by footlong sub-type sandwiches that have the eater slicing off a desired wedge with a wooden-handled, serrated bread

Pair these little finger sandwiches with a bag of chilled grapes and a few slices of imported cheese, and today's kitchen culinarian can wrap up a tasty lunch or light dinner with minimal exertion and maximum raves from any who partake. You don't have to be Upper-East-Side Manhattanish and supply china cups and plates. A few bottles of trendy German beers or wine coolers or a randomly picked assortment of sparkling waters can do for these sandwiches what $60 per pound tea would do.

The Janes Gang got pretty tired of ironing our red and white checked damask picnic tablecloth and instead switched to a brightly colored flat sheet on which to spread the repast. To keep the picnic basket as light as possible for traveling, the sandwiches can either be stacked in plastic containers lined with lettuce leaf or, for a little added presentation, wrapped in pastel-colored tissue and tied with thin matching rib-

WHEN IT COMES to fillings for the assortment of breads, it's best to remember that anything that travels should not have mayonnaise or salad dressing, which spoil easily. Always remember to "keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold."

For a zesty alternative to mayonnaise, try a blend of four parts imported mustard to one part olive oil. This will act as a stabilizer when trying to hold chopped meats and poultry inside a sand-

Poached fish a summer treat

special writer

AMES BEARD ONCE said, "The ultimate in summer din-ing is cold salmon." Although there are more than 200 edible species of fish in American waters, none of them share the culinary spelendor of the cold poached salm-

Yet other finned friends like the haddock, whitefish, trout and red snapper are equally as delectable when poached whole. According to many food historians, the coastal Indians used salmon as a mainstay for their diet. The whole fish was salted, dried, smoked or baked but never poached, at least as far as we can

To complete the menu, add a simple mixed green salad (oak leaf lettuce, red leaf lettuce, arugala and radicchio) and a vegetable accompaniment. In less than 60 minutes, you will have transformed a "quick cook" meal into a dinner designed to serve grand chefs the likes of Escof-

Simply, a whole fish or fish fillets are poached by submerging them into a flavored liquid. Bring the liquid to a quick boil, then reduce the temperature to a lower heat. The liquid can be plain water or sea water. Most often the liquid is a mixture of water, vinegar, wine or milk, seasoned with herbs or vegetables, commonly known in the culinary world as a court bouillon.

FOR DECADES, the classic French chefs recommended adding fish bones and trimmings to the court bouillon, which then becomes a fish fumet.

The reason was that the strongflavored liquid could be strained after poaching and used as a base to make an aspic or a sauce to glaze the chilled fish. Many of the "young" chefs of the '90s prefer to season the court bouillon with a variety of flavors, depending on the variety of

Some, like those at R.I.K.'s Total Cuisine in Bloomfield Township, will poach a salmon or salmon fillet in chicken stock with water and wine and mixed vegetables.

Elwin Greenwald of Elwin's Tu-Go, opening early August in downtown Royal Oak, poaches tuna for a tuna nicoise in a mixture of fish chopped shallots, parsley and bay leaf. Sometimes to give it a special flavor or a hint of Provence, France, he adds a pinch of lavender tea leaves. After poaching, "I reduce the poaching liquid and use it as a base for making a vinaigrette," says Greenwald. This is tossed over the vegetables when the tuna nicoise is

No matter which court bouillon recipe you choose, always simmer the liquid first and allow it to cool before submerging the fish. Immers ing a whole fish in court bouillon will cause the skin to rupture. But you may submerge chunks or fish steaks into the hot liquid.

The key ingredient, of course, is to select a very fresh, firm-fleshed fish. Very fat fish such as mackerel or herring or soft fish such as a bluefish

IF YOU OWN a heavy-gauge fish poacher, by all means use it. Be careful that the fish you select fits comfortably on the poaching rack. If you don't own a fish poacher, whole fish can be prepared in a long or oblong, covered roasting pan fitted with a removable rack.

Ideally, when preparing the fish for poaching, the head and tail should be intact, and evisceration should be done through the gills. Most of the time, fish markets open the abdominal cavity completely. In that case, you will need to wrap the fish in two layers of rinsed cheesecloth.

Once the fish is wrapped, set it on the fitted rack and lower into the cold court boullion. Place the poacher over medium-low heat, making sure the pan is centered on the front and rear burner on top of the stove. Bring the liquid to a boil. As soon as the liquid begins to boil, reduce the temperature. It is best to keep the temperature of the poaching liquid between 180 and 200 degrees.

There are three techniques to use fish. I like to use all three in combiation. The standard test was developed by the Canadian Department of Fisheries. It recommends measuring the thickness of the fish before cooking at the thickest point. Allow 10 minutes of cooking time for every inch. The perfect internal temperature of cooked fish should measure 140 degrees.

A small, instant meat thermometer works well, without puncturing a large section. Any fish, whether poached or baked, should barely flake when pricked with a fork. Gen-

Frozen yogurt: Choices keep growing

By Larry Janes special writer

Remember the old saying,"I scream, you scream, we all scream for ice cream?" Well, that might have been the norm years back, but with the proliferation of yogurt shops sprouting up faster than summer weeds, move over ice cream, here comes something a little healthier and with a lot less fat.

roasting pan with removable rack.

Unless you've been living in the boonies with your head stuck in a cool Michigan foundation basement, you must have tried frozen yogurt. While a trip to the ice cream store of yesteryear offered a choice of chocolate, vanilla, strawberry and an occasional blue moon hand-dipped ice cream in a funnel-shaped, creamy yellow cone for just pocket change, today's ice cream shops are changing fast.

Most ice cream shops offer choices of hand-dipped ice cream, softserve ice cream, frozen yogurt and, now, even new nonfat frozen yogurt. Before, it was shoved into a cone or plopped into a shiny, stainless steel, bleached white-paper-cup-lined bowl. Period. Now it can be a plain cone, sugar cone, waffle cone, bowled, flurried, avalanched, dipped and drizzled with everything from carameled walnuts to crushed Oreos. And the list keeps growing.

Take, for example, Sandro Scopone and his newly opened Polo Yogurt and Cafe on Seven Mile Road just west of Farmington Road in Livonia. Forget about the mega-bucks that went into the sleek contemporary decor, Scopone wants his shop to feature what he thinks is the best frozen yogurt money can buy, Honey Hill Farms.

Whole, poached, chilled salmon comes to table on serving board. Garnish is Italian and regular parsley with lemon.

BEFORE OPENING, Scopone and his partner, Tony D'Orazio, spent a weekend in Grand Rapids sampling 30 to 40 different brands of yogurt (some of us have it rough, eh?) only to decide on the Honey Hill Farms brand because of its rich taste, creamy texture and tasty sugar-free offerings. Knowing that man does not live by ice cream and frozen yogurt alone, Scopone also imported a classic espresso/cappuccino machine direct from Italy for what has to be the finest demitasse cup of imported coffee in town. All of this is in addition to the 12 flavor options of Guernsey Dairy handpacked ice cream.

The flavors at Polo Yogurt change weekly but there's always the standard chocolate, vanilla and two more flavors in addition to two sugar-free frozen yogurt options. Rumor has it that soon Polo also will branch out to light deli offerings and homemade soups.

But what's really new in frozen yogurt offerings? Alan Bell, sales manager for Frosty Yogurt Products in Troy, says that the future holds some interesting twists. With the introduction of Olestra and Simple fat substitutes without the fat, coupled with Nutra Sweet, consumers can look for healthier options with reduced calories and better taste.

Health-conscious consumers soon will be able to partake of soft-serve frozen yogurt containing only 10 calories an ounce. That works out to a 50-calorie cone in flavors that would have Mae West asking for more. In addition, Bell claims the hottest item in frozen yogurt on the West Coast is self-serve ice cream and frozen yogurt shops. Self-serve is already flourishing in many grocery stores. Customers soon will be able to serve themselves, get just what they wanted and pay by the pound, contrasted to being served by a pony-tailed teen

Always looking over his shoulder and trying to keep up with customer requests is Evans Spyros, owner of Hugley's, in Orchard Place mall just

When eating at the local ethnic restaurant, don't let your good food sense fly out the window.

Following are some tips for ethnic eating so you don't have to let out your belt another notch.

CHINESE FOOD generally has a low-calorie reputation. However, it can be high in fat because of the nt of oil used for stir-frying or

Because of cholesterol, limit the egg foo yung dishes and lobster sauces. These are made with egg olks. Many Chinese restaurants will be happy to make your dish without ium glutamate (MSG) or without salt, and serve the soy sauce

GREEK FOOD IS generally prepared with generous amounts of olive oil, which is a monounsaturated fat (the good kind). But still look for menu choices not loaded down with oil. Pita bread, tzatziki and feta cheese are lower in fat. (Feta can be high in sodium.)

Tomato sauces are rich in vitamin C, and many recipes call for low-fat seafood and lots of vegetables, tomatoes, onions and beans.

PASTA, TYPICAL Italian fare, can be great for low-fat diets as long as you limit the cheese, meat, butter many Italian dishes, this oil still con-tains about the same amount of calo-ries (120) per tablespoon as any other kind of fat.

JAPANESE CUISINE has a large selection of low-fat dishes. Seafood and lots of vegetables are the mainstay of many recipes. Many dishes are made with tofu, which is a very nutritious alternative to meat.

Ask for sauces on the side and ask about the preparation method. Soy sauce is a standard ingredient in Japanese cooking. At 343 milligrams per teaspoon, go easy.

However, steer clear of coconut milk and opt for yogurt rather than cream-based dishes. Indian Mulliga-tawny (vegetable soup) is a great way to start the meal.

MEXICAN FOOD IS not off limits to a dieter, but keep it simple. Try rice and beans. They are high in fiber, low in fat and a great vegetable

Many Mexican dishes use whole grains such as tortillas, which are made from corn. Make sure they are baked and not fried.

Request cheese, sour cream and guacamole served on the side so you can control the amount

Good choices are chicken tacos, burritos and enchiladas. Eat as much lettuce, tomato and salsa topping as your stomach can handle. Refried beans are sometimes fried in lard, so ask the server about the preparation.

Seafood and berries make meal special

Although Mrs. Paul's Fish Sticks were frequent finger food fare when my sons were younger, today they can still be a bit skittish when it comes to eating seafood. While lob-ster, shrimp and anything they catch are sure to be happily and quickly consumed, there are other kinds of fish that they simply don't touch. Anything served with skin is immediately suspect, and if the entire head is still on, forget it.

This week's Winner Dinner features a recipe for Seafood Fettucine that is made with scallops, shrimp and pasta. Submitted by Gail Silver-man of West Bloomfield, it is one of her favorite meals as it is easily put together at the last minute, and her three children love the mild taste of the seafood mixed in with the pasta. Served with a mock Caesar salad, crescent rolls and strawberry shortcake, this dinner promises to be a swimming success for you and your family as well.

A trained medical assistant, Silverman works in a pediatrician's office one day a week. During the school year, she does a lot of volunteer work at her children's school, Green Elementary. Her boys recently finished their baseball season, which kept their family busy four nights a week. They are now enjoying a slower, more relaxed pace as they swing into summer.

Like so many women today, Silverman finds that her days are full and busy ones, and keep her on the go with little time to cook. Her husband periodically pitches in, though, and takes over the kitchen, creating wonderful stir-fried creations . . . and more than a few dirty pots and pans. SEAFOOD FETTUCINE

Light and refreshing, this dish is easy to prepare and is versatile enough to be served to company as well as to your family.

As a timesaving hint, cook and peel the shrimp and scallops in advance for an even faster preparation time. This recipe amply serves six.

1 pound fresh shrimp (Imitation crab legs make an excellent substitute for those who don't eat seafood.)

1 pound bay scallops

1 tablespoon salt 1-2 tablespoons olive oil

1/2 cup butter 2-3 tablespoons lemon juice

1 package fettucine (12-ounce

Microwave the shrimp on high for three minutes, then half turn and continue for another three minutes. Repeat this procedure with the scallops.

If you don't have a microwave, drop the shrimp into boiling water, reduce the heat at once and simmer 3-4 minutes. Repeat for the scallops. Peel and devein the shrimp and wash well. If the scallops are large, cut them in half and rinse. Refrigerate until mixed in with the pasta.

While the shrimp and scallops are cooking, add salt and olive oil to water in a large pot and bring to a boil

Add the fettucine and cook according to package directions. Drain well. Melt butter and add lemon juice and mix with the pasta. Add the seafood to the pasta mixture.

Sprinkle with chopped parsley and season to taste. Garnish with Parmesan cheese and MOCK CAESAR SALAD

Real bacon bits add a subtle variation to this classic salad.

1 large egg, coddled

1 clove garlic, minced 1/2 cup oil

2 tablespoons real bacon bits 1 cup (approximately) grated Parmesan cheese

1 tablespoon lemon juice 1 head romaine lettuce Pinch of salt

Pinch of pepper

With the exception of the bacon and lettuce, whisk together the above ingredients. This dressing is best at room temperature. Tear the lettuce into small pieces, wash well and spin dry. Add the dressing just before serving and garnish with the bacon bits.

CRESCENT ROLLS 2 packages (or eight rolls) of Pillsbury Crescent Rolls, prepared as directed

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

What's summer without this classic dessert?

1 package shortcake dessert 1 small container Cool Whip

1 quart fresh strawberries, washed and hulled 1/4 cup sugar (optional)

Defrost the Cool Whip as directed. Clean and prepare the strawberries and sprinkle with the sugar. Mash the berries down with a fork to help bring out the juices. Just before serving, dollop the Cool Whip onto the dessert cups. Arrange the strawberries on top and enjoy.

Grilled foods and wine easy to put together

Summer meal planning usually means light, refreshing menus to take advantage of the outdoors.

Evening cookouts that allow you and your guests to kick back and bask in the waning rays of sun call for light, crisp, well-chilled wines that emphasize bright fruit flavors.

Grilling on the deck is fun and low-key because food preparation is simple and may be shared by friends and family. It is comforting to know that wine selection is also easy because there are few bad matches when pairing grilled foods and wine.

There are a few things to remember, since it is easy for the selected wine to be overwhelmed by the intense flavors of grilled meats and vegetables.

ALWAYS TRY TO balance both the weight and texture of wine and Serve white and light red wines cool. Chilled wines are more refreshing and tend to contrast well with smoky, grilled fare. Select white wines that show some spice and red wines with low tannin. Light red wines are fruity and refreshing when lightly chilled. This is not the time to serve a big red wine at room temperature.

White wine suggestions include dry, Alsace riesling, pinot blanc or gewurztraminer, as well as the trocken orhalb-trocken styles from Carrosany. Sauvignon blanc from Germany. Sauvignon blanc from Sancerre in France's Loire Valley or California have the acidity needed to cut through most flavors from the Chardonnays emphasizing fresh fruit and high acidity are less expen-sive and more versatile than their oaky, barrel-fermented counter-parts. We suggest chardonnays from France (Macon or Chablis), Califor-nia or Michigan. Do not spend mega-bucks on a reserve-style chardonnay for a barbecue.

Red wines that can be chilled emphasize fruit rather than tannin. Included are French Beaujolais or Cotes du Rhone, Italian Dolcetto or Barbera, and California pinot noir, gamay beaujolais or merlot, plus lighter-style cabernet sauvignon and

THE TEXTURE AND smokiness of grilled tuna, swordfish or salmon make great companions for fruity red wines with good acidity like Beaujolais, pinot noir or meriot, even when seasoned with herbs like basil, fennel or fresh cilantro. Yes, you read that correctly - red wine

Sauvignon blanc is a particular favorite for summertime entertaining It has plenty of flavor and a palate-cleansing acidity that make it great for grilled breast of chicken. Because sauvignon blanc has a natural herbal note, it can handle fresh herb seasoning. A fruity-style sauvignon blanc is fabulous with grilled chick-en salad garnished with melon and and game birds make attractive contrasts for dry riesling, pinot blanc and gewurztraminer from Alsace. These wines show good acidity and attractive floral and spice aromatics. Even salty or sweet and sour dishes make it with these bracing white wines.

When grilling, try a little gua-camole on the side. Avocado intensi-fies the flavor of the wine, while the wine's acidity cuts through the avo-cado's richness.

Some wines are best with simply prepared meats without fancy mari-nades or sauces. Grilled steaks or lamb chops work well with a young cabernet sauvignon or Cotes-du-Rhone Villages, since the fat in the meat tames the tannin of the wine. Older reds work best with roasted

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1988 Zind-Humbrecht Pinot d'Alsace ($11) is produced from pinot blanc grapes. It's fresh and alive with multi-dimensional aromas and flavors that will enhance grilled or smoked foods. The fin-ish is long, crisp and clean. Sim-ply delicious.

1968 Beringer Fame Blanc ($9) is a ringer for a Sancerre from the Loire Valley. In a true French style, it sports lime citrus and herbal aromas with generous tropical fruit on the palate. It's drinking excellently now.

Try a grilled rock cornish game hen, lightly seasoned, with the William Hill Silver Label Chardonnay or a crisp Macon-Villages.

If your menu includes barbecued pork or beef ribs with a spicy sauce or a roast with rosemary, theme or garlic, you need a red wine. Califor-nia zinfandel, Italian Dolcetto or French Rhone wines offer earth, spice and fruit to handle more complex preparations. If pork, veal or lighter meats get to the grill, select a lighter red like the Clos du Bois Mer-

Don't forget that vegetables are easily prepared. Try grilling onions, zucchini, mushrooms, peppers, to-matoes, eggplant or sweet corn. ACK ROBERTS, it appears, is beginning to get a handle on things.

Now in his fourth year as executive director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association, Roberts has been able to mesh some of his agenda with a diverse group of 712 member schools.

Roberts hasn't been able to push all his ideas upon the member schools — and realizes that's nearly impossible - leaving the job to the 18-member Representative Council.

However, he can help regulate and enforce the rules of the MHSAA, offer training programs for officials and coaches, raise the consciousness of sportsmanship, and enlighten its members about educational abuses.

Roberts, who met with the Observer and Eccentric sports staff Thursday, covered a variety of topics: Transfer rules, expansion of the football playoffs, travel restrictions, state championship venues (such as The Palace), drug testing, out-of-season activities, sportsmanship and reporting viola-

Roberts may be conservative in his approach but progressive in his thinking about the way high school sports are conducted. Following is a look at all the topics he discussed:

 The transfer rule had been challenged severely during his first few years, but the MHSAA has withstood those challenges in litigation, he said. Another problem, however, cropped up recently about so-called "foreign exchange" students, but according to Roberts, "we've tightened some of those things up.

• Travel restrictions have also come up, for instance the staging of the "Big Michigan Shootout," a holiday basketball tournament at The Palace. Promoters of the game have entertained thoughts of bringing teams in beyond the 600-mile (round trip) travel restriction limit, many from states other than those bordering Michigan (Wisconsin, Indiana and Ohio). "The more travel, the more television, the larger the trophies, the more excessively the program is treated," said Roberts, "the more likely people are to break rules regarding recruiting, regarding season limitations, and the more likely individuals are to specialize in a sport, which studies say are not

The local favorite outdueled the odds-on favorite Saturday at the 42nd annual Michigan Mile at Ladbroke DRC.

Beau Genius, a horse trained by DRC's own Gerry Bennett, edged heavily favored Opening Verse in one of the most thrilling Miles in recent memory. Making a strong run down the backstretch, Beau Genius beat Opening Verse by a nose and gave the 11,493 fans in attendance reason to smile - even if their money was on another horse.

The win was the seventh straight for the Canadian horse, who is making his owners (Dr. Brian Davidson and Joseph Shiewitz) and Bennett very proud. The guaranteed $300,000 purse included $180,000 for the winner.

"This is unbelievable. I'm very pleased and have no words to describe it," said Bennett, DRC's leading trainer. "This is the greatest thrill of my life. No money can buy a thrill like this. This was a win for everyone in Michigan, not just for our jockey (Ricardo Lopez) or the REAU GENIUS, with odds of 9-2. paid $15.20 to win, $4.80 to place and $2.60 to show. His time for the 1%mile course was 1:48.8

Opening Verse, considered one of the finest handicap horses in North America, also had an advantage in jockey Angel Cordero Jr., a Hall of Fame rider. But Lopez, a native of Panama City, Panama, showed he was ready for the challenge.

Lopez, who won the 1985 Michigan Mile with horse Badwagon Harry, is used to the Winner's Circle, having won his 1,000th U.S. race at DRC in 1988. None of the previous victories, however, compared to this one.

Known as the Midwest's best sprinter, Beau Genius put any doubts to rest about his ability to race longer distances. In contention the entire way, Beau Genius took the lead for good with about one-sixteenth of the course remaining. Coming in a distant third was Western Playboy, ridden by jockey Randy Romero.

The sloppy course, muddled by heavy rains earlier in the day, might have affected some of the horses. Not Beau Genius, Bennett said.

"THIS HORSE don't mind tough situations," Bennett said. "He's never been beaten in the mud and he loves the mud. He's the best horse I've ever had and outside of today, I've never asked a horse to run as hard as he did. He had to run all-out to win today."

He also had kind words for Lopez. "Ricardo is right there with all the best riders," said Bennett. "He's very intelligent and a very strong finisher. Very few jockeys can outrun him, horse to horse, down to

The second-place finish disappointed Cordero, a 47-year-old in his 30th year of racing. He ranks third on the all-time list with 6,678 wins, trailing only Bill Shoemaker and Laffit Pincay Jr. But on Saturday, he had to take a back seat to Lopez, Beau Genius (1:48.8, paid $15.20 to win); 2. Opening Verse; 3. Western Playboy; 4. Clever Trevor; 5. Triteamtri; 6. Mercedes Won; 7. Matthew's Moment.

Last year's winner was Present Value, a long shot who paid $100.60 to who weighed in at 116 pounds - six pounds lighter than Cordero.

Cordero believes his added weight had something to do with his secondplace finish.

The difference in the weight made a difference in the race," said Cordero. "The winner did a helluva job, though, and I don't want to take anything away from him. It was pretty tight coming down the stretch.

"THE WINNER was running best at the end. Coming back to Michigan was OK. We won one race (The Livonia Stakes earlier in the day) and came in second in another one. Opening Verse is a very nice horse and I'm proud to be his rider."

Bob Raymond, public relations director for DRC, called Saturday's Mile the best he's seen since he started the job in 1985.

The rain, which fell most of the early morning hours Saturday, didn't have an adverse effect on the turnout at the gate, Raymond said. The betting handle for the Mile of $309,990 topped last year's on-track betting total by nearly $100,000, Raymond said.

He estimated that the day's 12 races could attract more than $2,000,000 in bets.

"I think we're very happy with the attendance, considering the weather conditions," Raymond said. "The betting is going very well, and we're on par to having a record handle, as far as our on-track and off-track betting is considered."

The stretch duel between Beau Genius (right) and Opening Verse (3) went right down to the wire before Beau nosed ahead for the Michigan Mile win.

The Hawks, champions in Michigan, defeated the Beechmont Blitz, the Ohio champ, 2-0 in the final of the second largest all-girls tournament in the country.

The Hawks reached the semifinals after beating a Connecticut team and two New Jersey entries. The Livonia-based team whipped the Ohio runner-up, Hammer F.C., 4-0 in the semifinal.

Mantle team stumbles

Plymouth Salem won its fourth consecutive Mickey Mantle baseball game Tuesday, but the win streak fell apart Thursday.

After beating host Redford Union earlier in the week 12-7, Salem was dealt a 17-4 setback by visiting New Boston Huron.

Tom Davey pitched only a third of an inning Thursday, allowing eight runs on four hits.

Salem's defense, however, made errors on three straight ground balls. The Rocks made four of their five errors in that inning.

Jeff Belisle drove in a run with a double, Davey had an RBI single and Salem scored its other runs on ssed balls.

ON TUESDAY, a five-run fifth inning gave Redford Union a 7-6 lead. but Salem rallied with three runs in the sixth and seventh innings.

Belisle smashed a two-run homer in the sixth, and Chris Tomas followed Ed Gundry's double with an

Roberts leads MHSAA into '90s

"I look at those attention grabbing things, I'm looking at the big picture and it's not good for kids."

The expanded state football playoffs has also been a hot topic.
The expansion from four to eight classes gives more schools a chance to qualify, which has been well received by members of the coaches

"Personally I was not for expan-sion," Roberts said. "And at some upper administration levels it's not as well received, but it gives some of the smaller schools a chance to procede. There's less enthusiasm out-state, but in places like Macomb County it's been received very well."

Having enough venues for an ex-panded playoff format has also become a concern, but Roberts said all semifinal sites will be played on ar-tificial surfaces with the first and second round sites being hosted by the top point getters.

Roberts also said that Friday night semifinal games have been eliminated in favor of Saturday afternoon times. Last November, Roberts was well aware of the criticism he received for allowing a game between Farmington Harrison and East Grand Rapids to be played un-der icy conditions at Flint's Atwood

"We will double up twice on Saturday, 11:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. if necessary," said the MHSAA director.

 Roberts was posed a question regarding the issue of drug testing for athletes in the Melvidale Schools.

Jack Roberts MHSAA executive director

The MHSAA chief has been made aware of studies revealing that eight percent of high school students have used steroids

"It seems inappropriate to test just athletes because those figures are no greater than the average student," he said. "Drug testing is expensive and philosophically I have difficulty with it. It's no greater problem for the athlete then the general student population. What I was surprised about is that study said girls used (steroids) just as much and that surprised me.

 Perhaps the most touchy subject Roberts has faced is out-of-season sports activities, primarily sum-

Roberts has advocated a blackout period in the month of July, but the Representative Council has differed, urging individual conferences and leagues to examine the policy.

"What a lot of school districts object to and I object to is a group of players and their coaches going as a unit to play 25 or 30 games in the summer, that destroys the integrity of it and what interscholastic sports is meant to be," Roberts said. "It requires specialization that I was talking about before. Those youngsters don't have the choice to choose something else in the summer. Some do have talents and needs in other areas than basketball.

"Some people benefit from that ri-gorous schedule, but large numbers do not. Some schools want our office to lead the charge to eliminate those things. We're not in position to lead the charge. We're looking to the leagues and conferences to lead that

• As for sportsmanship, Roberts said he's raised the idea and "a lot of schools have responded very well by taking the initiative."

"The schools have taken on the cause better than I anticipated," he said. "We've seen some positive results. We don't get any less reports about poor sportsmanship, but we're getting less reports about less significant acts now; to me that's prog-ress. The standard of what we toler-cation standards during the '90's, as well as educate coaches. But for now, Roberts says his staff does not have the resources to properly get the job done.

Concerning rules enforcement, Roberts' principal investigator (be-sides himself) is Jerry Cvengros, an assistant director and former football, athletic director and principal from Escanaba. Of the 10 violations that occurred last year, nine of the schools reported themselves, a good sign according to Roberts.

As for the future, Roberts is looking ahead to the '90-91 school

"We have to remind our schools that regulation and control is OK," he said. "We were created, the MHSAA and all other state associations around the country, not to run tournaments or to do sportsmanship campaigns, but the main reason we were created was to control, to limit the interscholastic program in an educational framework, to eliminate excesses of inter-state and limit national competition that occurred back in the '20's.

"I have to keep reminding myself of that, but that's OK. Aggressive coaches, parents, and booster clubs, and the media, they'll all promote the program, but the unique function is to control the program and keep it in the proper framework. And I don't apoligize for that. Even with the corporate sponsors for our tournaments, we have to keep reminding myself. That's my biggest challenge facing us this decade. But somebody's got to do it. That's our rudder. That's why we were created, to limit the excesses. Bigger is not better."

The Bakes Conference standings are: 1. Bulldogs, 4-0-1; 2. Spartans, 2-1-3; 3. Lakers, 2-1-2; 4. Wildcats 0-6-0. The Eagle Conference standings are: 1. Huskies, 3-1-1; 2. Falcons, 3-1-0; 3. Wolverines, 1-2-2; 4. Broncos, 0-3-1.

a month/36 months

It's a great time to improve your driving. Because you can get a 36-month lease on a new Sedan de Ville - America's most spacious front-drive sedan - for just $398 a month.

Up to a $2,000 cash bonus. You can receive a $2,000 cash bonus direct from Cadillac when you purchase a new Cadillac Seville or Eldorado. Or a $1,500 cash bonus direct from Cadillac on a new Cadillac Fleetwood, De Ville or Brougham. See your dealer for details.

Whichever of these Cadillacs you choose, your investment is protected by 24-hour Cadillac Roadside Service® and backed by Cadillac's 4-year/50,000-mile Gold Key Bumper to Bumper Warranty.

But act promptly. Because the selection of these luxurious Cadillacs continues to diminish. And you don't have to be Arnold Palmer to appreciate outstanding drives like these.

Don't confuse Pontiac the rock group with Pontiac the car. The former doesn't want the sleek styling of the car. It wants to be a rock band, pure and simple. And by all accounts, the band passes even though it isn't a torch carrier for underground music. For more on the group, see Page

Making a 'Drive' for a 'three-peat

By Pat Schutte special writer

They shuck and jive, throw bombs from the shotgun, juke, hit, snap and boot field goals.

Football . . . America's most explosive team sport.

the fall is at an arena near you.

And what's usually reserved for Arena football. They call it the

The eight-on-eight energy game is compacted onto a field not much larger than the surface of a bockey rink and contained at both ends with huge nets that keep the ball in play on kicks and passes. Arena football puts the fans right on top of the action — football in your lap.

"This is excellent," shouted Scott

"indoor war." They could have called it "microwave football."

The eight-on-eight energy game is na football that missed its mark on the field and found its way to his seat in the seventh row at Joe Louis Are-

> Arena football, better known as Arenaball, was the brainchild of Jim Foster, who, while watching an indoor soccer game at Madison Square Garden, came up with the idea for the hybrid of American football.

The league has been in existence since 1987, starting up with four teams. It averaged 11,279 in atten-dance for the 12-game regular season, a record for first-year arena

The abridged version of American football caught the attention of Red Wings owner Mike Illitch, who put together a team for the 1988 season.

Winning their 12 regular season games, the Detroit Drive went on to capture the Arenaball championship trophy with a 24-13 victory over the Chicago Bruisers.

LAST YEAR, the Drive won its second Arenaball championship with a 39-26 victory over the Pittsburgh Gladiators in front of 12,046 fans at Joe Louis Arena. These days, the Drive averages 10,516 fans a game, well above the league average of

So the Detroit Pistons aren't the only team that has a chance for a 'three-peat."

They go all out to make the whole evening as entertaining as possible. Beginning with a truck pull-type announcer's introduction of the players, one by one they sprint out of a tunnel and billowing fog and race down a strobe-lit gauntlet as "Fanfare for the Common Man" by Emerson, Lake and Palmer charges up the fans.

"Introducing the starting lineup for your Detroit Drive," shouts the announcer just as if "Bigfoot" was going to crush some junk cars.

"Yeah, Yeah," responds the crowd.

A spotlight picks up each player as he exits the tunnel and follows him across the darkened floor, where he meets his fellow teammates with a round of high fives. Shades of the old indoor soccer league and the Detroit Lightening's amazing disco ball and laser show.

When the curtains are drawn on the theatrical opening, fans are treated to some real football. Al though you may compare Arenaball to the NFL, much in the same way the CBA is compared to the NBA (like the minor leagues or something), the hitting, athletic ability and intensity is at the same level as the NFL. And you get to see more end zones and the padded walls that line the field, no more than a coupl of feet from the boundaries, the game showcases another interesting feature that you don't see in the NFL. Most of the athletes play offense and defense.

"You have to make a lot of adjustments," said Greg Orton, a Universi ty of Nebraska graduate in his third year with the Drive. He plays both the offensive and defensive line. "Defense is always attack, attack, attack, while offense is much more passive," he said. "It's kind of like high school, when a lot of us played both ways. You have to be in a lot better shape to keep up."

Teammate Robert Banks of Ann Arbor and Adrian College agreed.

"You don't see the big 300-pound plus players playing Arena football like you would see in college and the NFL," he said. "You see much more versatile athletes playing this game."

Many of the players hold college degrees and play Arenaball pretty much as a hobby. (You won't find mega-buck contracts here. All players make $500 per game.) Others use it as a chance to be noticed by the NFL or scouts for the stagnant International Football League.

The main draw for these players, though, is their love of competition and the game of football.

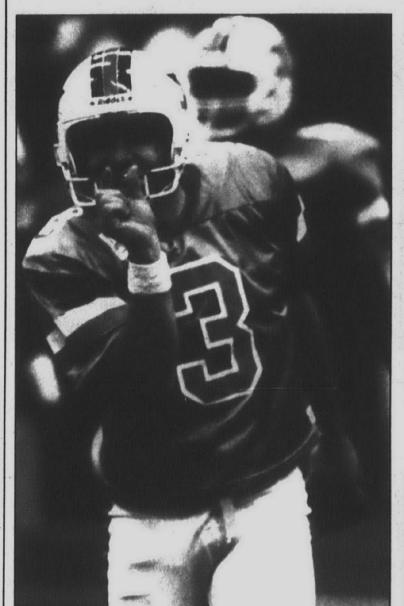

ASKED WHETHER or not he had aspirations for making the NFL, veteran Detroit Drive and USFL Michigan Panther place kicker Novo Bojovic said no. Football provides him with "special feelings that keep the memories alive," he said.

Arenaball. "The Indoor War." If you can't wait for the Lions, Wolverines or Spartans to begin their seasons, you may want to score some seats at Joe Louis Arena on Friday, July 20, for an 8 p.m. plastic-poppin' showdown with the Albany Fire-

Photos by BILL HANSEN

Darrell Grymes pulls in an over-the-shoulder pass as the Detroit Drive football fans look on with approval.

Field goal kicker Novo Bojovic indicates that his point after attempt made it "by this much."

'You don't see the big 300-pound plus players playing Arena football like you would see in college and the NFL. You see much more versatile athletes playing this game."

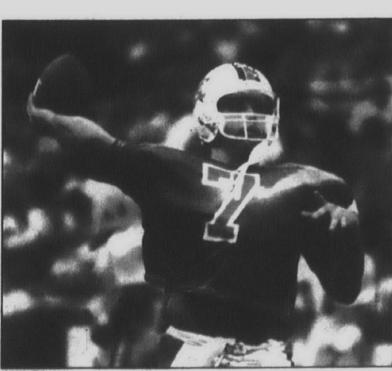

- Robert Banks

An opponent tries to wrestle Lynn Bradford to the ground after a sizeable gain.

'Defense is always attack, attack, attack, while offense is much more passive. It's kind of like high school when a lot of us played both ways. You have to be in a lot better shape to keep up.'

> Greg Orton Three year veteran of the Detroit Drive

Quarterback Art Schlichter cocks his arm before throwing a bullet of a pass downfield.

Just the facts

At a glance, here's the differences between the National Footbal League style of football Americans are used to seeing each weekend during the fall and Arenaball that's played during the summer.

The Field: In the NFL, players traverse a field 100 yards long and 150 feet wide. In Arenaball, it's 50 yards by 85 feet

Scoring: Scoring is the same in both leagues except Arenaball allows two-point conversions by pass, run or drop kick.

Field Goals: Arenaball field goal attempts are the same as in the NFL except the ball is still alive if it rebounds off one of the nets on either side of the goal post.

Kickoffs: Kickoffs in the NFL are from the 35-yard line and from the goal line in Arenaball.

Punting: Allowed in the NFL, but a no-no in Arenaball.

Game Clock: Unlike the NFL, the clock doesn't stop for out of bounds plays in Arenaball or for incomplete sses unless in the last two minutes of play each half.

Sam Wheat (Patrick Swayze) is a ghost who realizes that he can be heard by psychic Oda Mae Brown (Whoopi Goldberg) in "Ghost."

'Ghost: It's the sleeper movie of summer 1990

According to the smart money, the movie to beat this summer is Jeff Daniels and John Goodman in "Arachnophobia" (B-, PG-13, 95 minutes). That's hard to believe given the $82 million box office for "Dick Tracy" after only 24 days. "Arachno-phobia" isn't bad but let's nominate "Ghost" (A-, PG-13, 105 minutes) as the sleeper of the summer.

Sam Wheat (Patrick Swayze) is a New York banker, living with - and loving - artist Molly (Demi Moore). Friend and business associate, Carl Bruner (Tony Goldwyn), help Sam and Molly refurbish a loft (rather rapidly and effortlessly) in very high Tragedy strikes as an unknown as-sailant kills Sam during a street robbery. But Sam's spirit remains on earth to protect Molly who, it turns out, is in great danger. "Ghost" is attractive, amusing, entertaining, an intelligent film that defies easy categorization.

It's warm and inspiring, portray-ing the very best kind of romance, as Molly and Sam's love transcends physical boundaries. His unfinished business in this world is twofold — to warn Molly of the danger she faces and tell her he loves her, something he'd failed to do properly while

BOTH ARE important tasks, and the film's sensitive interpretation of these emotions touches our hearts with good feelings, particularly when Sam achieves that second goal. Sam's struggle to contact Molly generates some excellent comedy as Oda Mae Brown (Whoopi Goldberg), a medium who doesn't realize she has the power - and an attitude. Goldberg's performance is finely tuned comedy and one of her best screen roles

Keeping the comedy flowing, West Bloomfield resident Sondra Rubin, mother of scenarist Bruce Rubin, makes a cameo appearance as a nun. But, beyond the laughter and romance, there's a serious thriller.

The mysterious danger that killed Sam proves to be a real threat to Molly. While that is an important thread in the film, the main task of "Ghost" sets for itself is represent-ing the difficulty of communication between physical and spiritual. With excellent production values, the film evolves as a sensitive metaphor for the pain and ultimate acceptance in the loss of a loved one.

As well, scenarist Rubin was in-spired by the challenge of translat-ing into 20th Century idiom the dilemmas faced by Hamlet when he saw his father's ghost and learned of the tragic crime that ended the king's life.

THIS INTRIGUING comedy/romance/thriller/ghost story ought to attract a wide audience. "Ghost" is emotional, entertaining and literate, with fine performances by the principals and excellent special effects. That, after all, is what movies are

Our hero, Dr. Jennings, is scared silly of spiders. Boy, has he got his work cut out for him to save the town. "Arachnophobia" has terrific spider sequences, but the edge is tak-en off the horror with comic relief by the town's exterminator, Delbert McClintock (John Goodman), a very funny "Rambo" style bug-killer. "ARACHNOPHOBIA" IS an elaborate production, although one wonders if it is worth all the effort (see related story) for the excitement generated? Certainly, fans of "creature from hell movies" will not be disappointed. Nor will they notice that the terrible spider kills everyone on contact — except for the hero. Jeff Daniels wrestles with that big bad bug for 10 minutes". . . and

The group's latest, "Home," (PolyGram/London) has received mixed reviews. Some have lauded its charm and Celtic/soul renderings while others have been critical of the band trying to be too large in musical scope.

"I'm not one who depends on reviews," said Liam O'Maonlai, lead vocalist of the group that performs on Thursday at Saint Andrew's Hall. What I think myself and what others close to us think is more important to me. I can get the worst review imaginable and it doesn't bother

Compared to the band's debut album "People," this effort is better produced. That was a conscious effort on part of Hothouse Flowers, which felt in the past they labored too long trying to pick off the lint of imperfection.

This time the band tried to capture a more natural setting where the music would evolve from the confines of sterile studio environ-

MOOD RING — Second Self

Granted, sometimes just getting a record deal with a major label is enough to satisfy many upstart barids. Not Second Self.

"Mood Ring" (EMI) is a strong major label debut by this Detroitarea quartet and provides hints of potêntial yet to be tapped. Second Self does this in several ways by proving itself a hard-rocking foursome in the style while showing a gentler, melodic side as well.

ing a gentler, melodic side as well. Out of all this, though, comes a side of Second Self never revealed before. This band has soul. The setting of Muscle Shoals Studios in Birmingham, Ala., obviously didn't hurt.

One can easily suss out the streetcorner harmonica on "Aunt Jenny (Bless My Soul) or Greg Giampa's gritty, rhythm and blues guitar stylings on "Trapped Beneath the Stone" as evidence. Like sincerity at the funeral service of a mass murderer, soul cannot be faked.

To their credit, Second Self's music comes straight from the guthoried, though years of dogged tour-ing and unfetered persistence to suc-

And to succeed, one obviously needs a hit. Certainly, "Red October! is palatable to even the most cynical AOR programmer. This number has it all — atmospheric guitar, uplifting lyrics, scintillating hooks, and by far, lead singer Michael Nehra's best vocal work.

Other than this very obvious attempt to curry favor with the commercial airplay man, Second Self rides on the emotion of the moment.

Things get a little acoustical on "I Stand You Spin" and "Untitled," which provides the album's most introspective pieces. Otherwise, it's a four-prong attack as Second Self seizes the moment they've waited for a long time.

One can sense the desperation lyrically in "Trapped Beneath the Stone," "Mind Over Matter" and "Lock Me Away." Though in "Lock Me Away" Michael Nehra gets demeanor points for the primal Steven Tylere squeal mid-song. What Second Self doesn't need is more comparisons to other famous bands. The group has shaken free of its U2-Alarm albatross that plagued them in the early going.

Besides, judging by this album,
Second Self is best when being itself. - Larry O'Connor

SHOUTING QUIETLY

— Bradford

Bradford is a city north of Manchester in Great Britain. What does this have to do with the band at hand? Probably, about as much as this latest release has to do music today. Rather irrelevant, real-Bradford, the band, appears to be following a well-worn path already taken by the Smiths, the Housemartins and Elvis Costello. The five-man contingent sounds, in essence, like the sum total of the 1980s pop guitar

Then again, if one prefers to get a little nostalgic this is the potion for the emotion

Vocalist Ian H. somehow manages to sing in his best Roland Gift/Elvis Costello style. The guitar work is a carrousel of shimmering acoustical pieces and pristine electrical strumming - reminiscent of the Housemartins.

Lyrics? Listen to this angst: "He was the one they all kicked/On the school corridor/And his bag ended up in the trees/And his footprinted blazer on floors/Called him a goon and called him a clown." Change the "he" to "I" and you have Morrissey bathing in self-pity.

Of course, the formula wouldn't be complete without some political lament about the Land of Thatcher. On "Greed and Peasant Land," "I dragged my butt across the town/ Past empty mills and sad fashion clowns/I walk this Land of Dope and Tory/That would be funny if it wasn't so true."

On one note, Bradford deserves due for having a melodic sense. Songs such as "Always Torn" and 'Adrift Again" possess an easy feel to them that are alluring.

Too bad that can't be said for the rest of the product.

— Jeff Lynne Contrary to the title of Jeff Lynne's debut as a solo artist, the former ELO leader isn't resting. He has been practically everywhere in the music business since he had a significant hand in the making of George Harrison's 1987 platinum comeback LP, "Cloud Nine."

That album triggered Lynne back into the rock mainstream. He followed up with session work for numerous artists, showed up as a member of the Traveling Wilburys and helped Tom Petty crank out his mega hit, "Full Moon Fever." Almost as a postscript then, Lynne found the time to craft "Armchair Theatre" for Reprise Records.

ALTHOUGH SEVERAL wonderful songs are on this collection, primarily the lilting "Lift Me Up," the melancholy "Don't Say Goodbye" and "What Would It Take," it is obvious that Lynne had to stretch a bit to come up with enough material.

To flesh out the LP, Lynne dipped into the past for chestnuts like "Stormy Weather," "September Song" and "Don't Let Go," the latter complete with a thundering bass line.

Although Lynne's covers are competent enough, they (especially the first two) seem to prevent the album from achieving the kind of musical cohesiveness found on the earlier hit LPs he produced.

It should be noted that Lynne's versatility as a musician is displayed prominently on "Armchair Theatre." On various tracks, the bearded one is credited with playing everything. That means guitar, bass, keyboards and drums.

Meanwhile, the anti-pollution message many rockers are subscribing to these days is found here, on the folk finale, "Save Me Now."

"One day the earth woke us and said Boy, I feel half dead. Someone's churning up the poison and it's getting in my head. Sometimes I wish my guests would move away somewhere, 'cos I'm burning up all over I can't even breathe the air. Save me Off that worthy note, Lynne probably resumed work as a Wilbury or on other endeavors.

Anyways . . . Your response to "Betrayed" (June 4) was the height of irresponsibility and, might I add, brevity. She writes that a best friend told her that her husband was having an affair. She also received a letter telling her the same thing. You then proceed to give her an answer that you must have spent all of five sec-onds thinking about.

Were you late for a deadline? Don'trock the boat" was your best effort? There is clearly something going on with her husband. Since when is "not making trouble" a prerequisite to staying married?

I think you did the woman a real disservice by your flip answer. Honesty is crucial in any relationship. You essentially told "Betrayed" to "shut up" and be a good little girl.

Surprised and Disappointed

Dear Surprised and Disappointed,

Thank you for your honest letter. Your objection to the picture above the column is a valid one. I've never really been pleased with it, but it seemed like a good idea at the time I started this column. Rest assured, the picture will be changed.

Now, let us focus on your reaction to the letter by "Betrayed." You extracted the part where a friend told her that her husband was having an affair and that she also received a letter telling her the same thing.

Fortunately, I spent much more than five seconds thinking about this letter and the plight of the witer. In-cluded in the contents of this letter were the very important sentences which you seemed to ignore. IN ONE OF the best executed and most grueling - sequences, a Roman leader (Jack Hawkins) has the prisoners test their mettle. The thumping drum and cracking whips are accented by Miklos Rozsa's score, which remains consistently effective without becoming bombastic. Director William Wyler, who already had epic tales like "Wuthering Heights" (1939) and "The Best Years of Our Lives" (1946) under his belt, brought a personal touch to all the pomp and circumstance. He established a bitter relationship between the two former friends - Messala (Stephen Boyd) and Judah - that lasts even beyond their chariot duel.

And, of course, there's considerable presence of Charlton Heston, at the time fresh from playing Moses in "The Ten Commandments" (1956). He approached his roles with such conviction that even a dog food label would sound meaningful from his

Perhaps the most amazing thing about "Ben-Hur" - and what sets it apart from other Biblical epics of the '50s - is its relatively subtle handling of the life of Christ. Jesus is shown powerfully but peripherally, usually from behind. He first meets Judah, a slave, on the road and offers him water. Judah later returns the favor during Christ's walk with

Whether it's Elvis impersonations or his spontaneous cornedy routines, Rob Schneider has them all shook

The San Francisco-raised comedian has graduated from performing in small clubs as an underage laugh hound to writing skits for "Saturday Night Live." He's even dabbling in acting, recently seen as a nerdy his-tory student in a "Coach" episode with Craig T. Nelso Sure, those are all fine entries on the comedy resume. Of the latter, though, Schneider was more thrilled to work with Shelley Fabares, who had starred in several Elvis films.

To Schneider, stories about The King are like flies to a frog: He can't snap up enough of them.

"She told me that when she saw him he was the most beautiful per-son she had ever seen," said Schneid-er, who bears a resemblence to Elvis Presley. "She said he was a porce-lain doll."

In his travels, Schneider came across a woman who lived with Elvis and received a ring and a gun from the rock'n'roll legend. Another person he met knew someone who worked in the office where they pre-pared his body for burial and related how they couldn't fit a shirt on him because of his girth.

IN HIS stage act, Schneider has been known to pull out a copy of "Elvis and Me" by Priscilla Presley and read passages.

"One time, someone come up to me afterward and said (Schneider in a southern drawl), 'You're pretty funny, but you shouldn't make fun of the King like that,'" Schneider said.

"He was serious." Schneider got his blue suede shoes in a knot over Elvis when he was in high school. Because of his likeness to the rock'n'roll icon, he did an impersonation in a talent show and the audience loved it.

His career in comedy was already in gear. At 15, he performed a standup routine in one nightclub in San Francisco for $30 a night. He decided to hang around after his routine, but was physically removed because he was under age.

Otherwise, the city has been a gateway of comedy for him.

"The audiences are great," he said. "That's why comedians seem to come from there

"When you're starting out, that's important because you're trying to gain your confidence. They give you a little creative space. They tend to want to see something different."

Schneider didn't jump into comedy full-time until 1984. His career mickly took off performing stand.

quickly took off, performing stand-up on "Late Night With David Letterman," "HBO Young Comedi-ans Special" and "Evening at the Lately, Schneider has been writing skits for "Saturday Night Live." Though the show is in summer hiatus, he's been coming up with ideas for next season. One bit is a parody commercial for the "Esophagizer," a takeoff on the Adominizer that is design to "firm up those flabby spots around the neck.

Last season, Schneider worked on five SNL shows. He wrote one sketch on a homophobic convention for the controversial show that featured comedy's foul-mouthed Andrew Dice Clay. The Dice Man declined to do it.

WITH THE cast unsettled for next season, Schneider obviously wouldn't mind stepping in as a regular memChevy (Chase) as a writer. I hired Garret (Morris) as a writer," Schneider said. "It just evolved from there. I'm just happy to be writing."

Elvis still rears his head occasionally in Schneider's stand-up set. But, for the most part, it's a steady stream of comedic consciousness as he's been known to develop new skits right on stage.

He enjoys the writing aspect of comedy. The real fun, though, comes on stage when he can act out his ma-

"I think if an audience is giving me their confidence I can take it farther - and I will," Schneider said. "If they continue going with me, you don't know how far it will go.

"You have to give a little bit. I'm not going to hit you over the head with it. You have to go with me a bit and get lost with it."

Rob Schneider will perform Friday and Saturday, July 20-21, at the MainStreet Comedy Showcase, 314 E. Liberty, beneath Seva Restaurant, Ann Arbor. For information, call 996-9080.

Rob Schneider has made a name for himself with two things — his Elvis impersonations and or his spontaneous comedy routines.

Architecture: an Indian Village lure

This is the second of a three part series on residents in Detroit's historic Indian Village.

ON AND Sandy Phillips were The Georgian Colonial house they bought on Irohad been carefully tended since it was built in 1917, so they were spared the restoration work that other Indian Village residents in Detroit have so often encountered. "The house was designed by archi-tect William Stratton, the husband of Mary Chase Stratton, who founded

"It was commissioned by Detroit businessman Allan Shelden, and is a pretty close copy of Carter Hall, in Williamsburg, Va. Shelden had been stationed in Washington during World War I, and while there, developed an appreciation for Williams-burg's architecture."

as a housewarming gift. The formal dining room is 26 by 22 feet, with 11-foot ceilings. The dramatic foyer, easily the size of a small house, is two stories high.

PERCHED ON her ladders like Michelangelo in the Sistine Chapel, Phillips, who has a fine arts background, applied Williamsburg colors bought at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn.

The foyer is old rose. In the dining room, traditional furniture and a collection of antique pewter plates are set off by stunning dark green walls and rich, cream crown moldings and woodwork.

The living room, considerably larger than the dining room, is paneled in pecan wood, and is practically care-free.

"I just wipe with a dust mop once in a while to get rid of cobwebs.

The house also incorporates five fireplaces, 12 bedrooms (five for servants), a butler's kitchen complete with silver vault, a kitchen, a sun room, a library, and a patio with a swimming pool.

YOU COULD easily have 100 for cocktails on that patio, and the Phillips often do just that.

"We had 27 people stay overnight for a family reunion last summer, and you'd hardly have known they were here.

"One of the problems with a house of this vintage, though, is that standard dimensions have changed over the last half-century.

"For example, we needed awnings for 40-odd windows. They all had to be custom-made."

SANDY IS known in the community as the "cheerleader of Indian Village," and it's easy to see why. Her enthusiasm is contagious.

"It's a true neighborhood, a real community, not a suburb.

"We're an eclectic group, but we have in common an appreciation of the village and its significant architecture, and a dedication to preserving them as a vibrant community."

Here's a sampler of time savers

DEAR READERS: Although this is not usually a "tips" column, last week I promised to print some timesaving ideas written to me. Thanks to Mary Sue Livingston of

Troy for an impressive list:

• "Rather than take time away from sightseeing and fun vacation activities, I type address labels in advance and take them along as well as stamps for postcards I wish to send to friends on a trip. (Columnist's note: When my brother went to Europe years ago, many friends exclaimed, "Send me a card from there." With his unique sense of humor, he took a long a rubberstamp made in advance, which said, "Having a wonderful time. Wish you were here. Bob.")

• "Organizing and remembering everything to take along on a camping trip is a lengthy process. Rather than repeat that effort for each out-ing, I made a master checklist, ran off duplicates of it and use a new copy, which I cross off and discard after each trip.

• "I try to take and make tele-phone calls in the kitchen (or on a portable phone to take me there). where I can combine lengthy conversations and being put on "hold" with boring tasks - cleaning the stove is while waiting."

 "One can spend lots of time fig-uring out exactly which items have been "used up" and need to be included on the shopping list. The family is trained that whoever takes the last container of something adds it to an ongoing list kept in a central loca-

• "Our family draws names for holiday giftgiving. To avoid the lastminute rush, we exchange names in the summer so that we can take advantage of summer art fairs and seasonal sales.

• "Another time-consuming chore is figuring out how many annuals to plant in the garden each season. Why not keep track of how many flats of which flowers were purchased from season to season to serve as a point of reference?

· "Nagging isn't pleasant for either the nagger or the naggee. Save repeating yourself and keep a running list of household chores to be done posted on the refrigerator or some other spot where it is a reminder

Builders look to rental agencies to fill apartments

Your landlord has raised the rent again, and this time it's the last straw. Maybe you're ready to move up to fancier digs but you're not in a osition to buy.

Perhaps you're a transferee looking for a nice rental or you just want a new place to hang your hat.

For whatever reason, you need an apartment and you need one now. What you don't want to do is spend a lot of time looking. Welcome to the world of locator

They can work in a couple of different ways, but the service is always free to tenants. In some cases, service providers, like Apartments Unlimited, work with apartment owners on a commission basis. In others, like Central Leasing Center, the owner of several properties will set up an office to represent all of his holdings at one location.

THEN THERE are specialty directories like Apartment Shoppers Guide, essentially a book of advertisements offered free to con-

Convenience is the big attraction for tenants.

"They can go through papers, make phone calls, do all the driving around, or we can show them all the properties," said Kathy Staub, a sales manager for Apartments Unlimited in Canton. "It's going to save them time and money.

Apartments Unlimited also has area offices in Southfield and Troy. "It's kind of a matchmaking operation, if you will," said Tom Sweeten, an owner of the company.

"We list apartment buildings in our system, a computerized data base coupled with laser disc photographs of properties. People (em-ployees) here have visited properfamiliar with proper-

R&T Management, a subsidiary of Rosin & Co., intends to close its Central Leasing Center which opened just over two years, said Barbara Katz, a property manager for the While each of Rosin's seven complexes has a manager's office, the centralized leasing center was established so no potential tenants would be missed, Katz said.

A problem recently developed in that would-be tenants made it to the Central Leasing Center but not al-ways to one of the complexes to which they had been referred, she

"IT WAS something that seemed to be the mode of the future," Katz said of the center's launching. "If one wasn't getting traffic, the leasing center would direct to that particular complex."

"You're running an office out of another office. It's an around the clock

Relocation Assistance in West Bloomfield finds housing for out-oftown transferees as part of a broader mission to settle newcomers in the metro area.

Its fee is paid by corporations. Some apartment owners also may pay commissions to Relocation Assistance for a referral if tenants

'We don't work for apartments. We work for corporations," said Ilene Chait, owner of Relocation As-

"Some (clients) prefer a narrow set of choices, some like to exhaust anything possible," said Thelma Stalburg, manager of the apartment division for Relocation Assistance. We discuss with them what their needs are. We save them a lot of time in the course of interviewing them and introducing them to the area," she said.

Staff members are familiar with several hundred complexes in the area, Chait said. About half of their clients end up in houses, half renting apartments.

Even newly-constructed apartments show up in locator services.

"Any new property normally advertises quite a bit," said Susan Deakins, associate publisher of Apartment Shoppers Guide in Southfield. "Most have large set-up advertising budgets."

NEW PROJECTS advertised in her shopper's guide include Citation Club in Farmington Hills by Beztak, River Oaks West in Novi by The Solomon Group, Westbury Village in Auburn Hills by Kaftan Enterprises and Village Green of Madison Holtzman/Silverman, Heights by Deakins said.

About 22 percent of the listings in the monthly guide are for new complexes, she estimated.

Sweeten reported that upwards of 20 percent of tenants who go through Apartments Unlimited are looking for brand new living quarters.

"Right now, there's certainly more apartments than people to oc-cupy them," he said. "Generally, location is the most important factor. Most want to be close to where they want to work or play. Next is eco-nomics — what can I afford in this

The Fourmidable Group of Farmington Hills and The Solomon Group of Troy are among owners of new complexes which have a working relationship with Apartments Unlimited, Sweeten said.

Newness doesn't seem to be a top priority for transferees with whom she deals, Stalburg said.

"The difference (in demand) between one five years old and brand new isn't that great," she said. "Most of it centers around proximity to the work place, the money they want to spend and amenities.

'What they're looking for is a good looking attractive building. If it's newer, that's a plus," Stalburg said.

sizes of condos. Monthly charges are based on the footage of the units. My size condo pays $60 more than most. My grounds are no larger and the driveways are the same. But when it was painted and the roof was replaced, charges were prorated the same for everyone. Is this the rule for most condos? I protest every year. They say that's the way it is in the bylaws and can't be changed.

It is my assumption that the assessment for the roofs was allocated among all the co-owners equally, even though the percentages of value are different and the co-owners are paying different assessments on a normal basis for the units. There would appear to be an inconsistency in the manner in which the association levied the additional or special assessment. I would consult with legal counsel cies of the association. In addition, to the extent that the documents are 17 years old, it may be next to impossible to amend the documents, depending on the policy of the association regarding recent changes to the Condominium Act, as they relate to the amendment of condominium documents. You should consult with an attorney regarding these issues or, at least, encourage your board of directors to do so to determine the viability of such changes.

If you have made every reasonable effort to present your claim as documented to the developer and have been unsuccessful, you should consider the various legal remedies you have available, including the institution of legal proceedings. While the township may be helpful to willing to deprive the developer of the right to develop additional phases until the problems are corrected at your project, generally speaking, that does not result in a permanent and satisfactory resolution for the association. The township is not in the position, normally, to satisfy the needs of the association in this type of problem. Oftentimes, developers respond to the association if they realize that it is serious in pursuing them, and that is has both the legal and financial wherewithal to do so. Oftentimes, developers are impressed with the quality of the consultants, experts and legal counsel, which has been retained by the association to
