Perfect weather draws crowds to Fall Festival

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Folks flocked to the 1990 Plymouth Community Fall Festival marked by near-perfect weather.

Temperatures ranged from the 70s to low 80s during the festival weekend under clear to partly-cloudy skies, to make up for a down-pour Thursday night.

"I think it's been a great festival," said Festival Manager Joe Bida on Sunday, the festival's last day, as he surveyed tables filled with festival goers working on boxed Plymouth Rotary chicken dinners.

"It's really been an ideal weekend for it," he added.

Bida and others helping to run the festival said it's likely more people showed for this year's festival than for last year's, marked by rain on a Friday, a main festival day. A financial report detailing how the festival did money-wise is due in October.

"And today's highlight are those great Rotary chicken dinners," was Paul Sincok's message delivered over the microphones set up on the Penniman street stage near the Penn Theater on Sunday, as the assistant city manager and Rotary member kept up a spirited patter between stage performances.

"The weather turned around and the crowds have been steady," he said. "Everything has been going so smoothly."

While some business owners said they weren't pleased by traffic barricades which kept traffic away from the main festival site, Bida praised business owners for their patience.

"It's been great, absolutely great," said Becky Schram from behind a table in Kellogg Park topped with slices of apple, pecan and pumpkin pie.

Nurse Pat Wilson, at a American Red Cross table where free blood pressure checks were offered, said Sunday, "It's always busy here —

It's one of the things you can get free."

So how are folks in Plymouth-Canton doing, blood-pressure wise? "They're watching their diet and getting better and better," she said.

At the nearby tent where first aid was offered to festival goers needing it, Red Cross worker Randy Knapp said that by 2 p.m., nobody had sought treatment for bee stings this year — usually a festival tradition. He said two kids were injured slightly on a ride, and were bandaged and sent on their way.

At a booth on Penniman west of Main, where Plymouth Canton High School Rockettes took turns getting dunked to raise money for their pom-pom activities, adviser Elizabeth Barker said business was good.

"They're going great," she said, adding, "Yesterday, we had (Plymouth Township Police Chief) Carl Berry." He and some other local notables — attorney James Szafran and Canton Township Trustee Phil LaJoy among them — offered themselves up for dunking to help the group.

Plymouth Police Officer Mel Meck, passing out junior Plymouth police badges to kids from the gazebo at the intersection of Main and Penniman, said things had been "nice and quiet" at the festival for police.

At a booth in front of Central Middle School where Ann Arbor artist Michael Page was selling his wind chimes, Page said business during this festival "has been great for us" — better than past years, due to "the weather, probably."

Craft maker Edith Lennox, at a nearby booth, agreed. "We've had a good show, the crowds have been excellent."

Likewise, "We've been doing very well," said Karyn Gniewek of the Mala Wisla dance group, from behind a donut and cider booth shared with the Plymouth Grange on the lawn at the middle school.

Township recycling program 'going very well'

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Eighty percent or more of eligible Plymouth Township residents participated in the first week of the new mandatory recycling program.

Ron Caramagno, general manager of Waste Management Inc. which is picking up those recyclables stuffed in orange plastic bins, said Friday, "It's going very, very well, if we compare it to Southfield and Dearborn."

Here, he said, "They're not putting out as much garbage and they're putting them (bins) out full," he said.

Last week marked the beginning of the township's mandatory recycling program. It's the second mandatory program implemented in the state, as Dearborn started such a program in June. Southfield began a voluntary recycling program the same month.

While they say the program is going well, township officials are still trying to work out a few bugs.

"The comparison I've made is it's like the creation of a new engine," said James Anulewicz, municipal services director. "If you're foolish enough to think it's going to start up and work perfectly the first time, you're not facing reality."

"I'm a tired person right now," Anulewicz said Friday, as township employees have fielded "numerous phone calls" from residents with questions on the program.

He said 5 percent of those calls are from people who object to the mandatory aspect of the program.

"They say they don't like doing it, they shouldn't be forced to do it," Anulewicz said.

Some callers were concerned that when the garbage was picked up, bagged compost and recyclables were left at curbside. Anu-

Hunter displays wildlife prints

people

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Plymouth outdoorsman and Domino's Pizza executive Don Vleck has put together one of the state's most impressive collections of wildlife art.

His collection of wildlife prints, as depicted on state and federal stamps sold to hunters, is being displayed at Domino's Farms in Ann Arbor, world headquarters of Domino's Pizza.

"Tom Monaghan (Domino's owner and chairman) has always told me to live out my dreams, and this is one of them," Vleck said at an unveiling of the collection. "I love the outdoors and now I'm able to give something back."

Don Vleck says his passion for wildlife art was encouraged by his employer, Tom Monaghan. Vleck's collection is now on display at Domino's Farms.

HIS INTEREST in wildlife art started when Vleck was 10, out duck hunting with his father in their native Illinois.

"He showed me his license, and showed me a stamp you have to have if you hunt."

The stamp showed a black Labrador with a duck in his mouth.

Plan for downtown previewed

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

A plan to change the look of downtown Plymouth is OK with Downtown Development Authority members, who will see a final plan tentatively set for presentation Sept. 20.

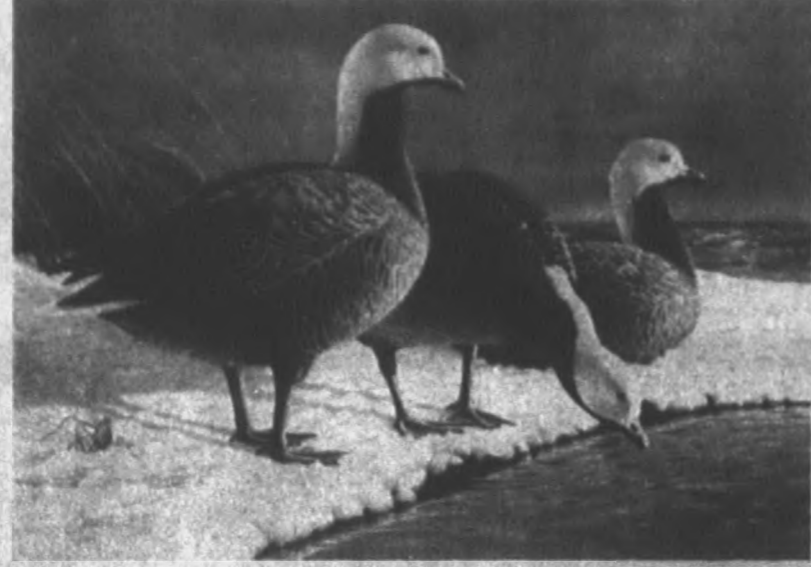

The nearly complete streetscape master plan, put together by architects Schervish Vogel Merz of Detroit with suggestions from DDA members, was previewed Thursday at city hall.

DDA Chairman Greg Goodman and architect Kent Anderson stressed that the blueprints, which detail improvements to the storefronts and sidewalks in the central business district, are but a guide — not the final word on how the city will look.

"We'll have public meetings, they'll be well posted," Goodman said, for residents and business owners. The meetings will be for citizens "not just to witness, but for their in-

"I got my first piece of wildlife art as a Christmas present."

THE PIECE of art — a duck stamp print complete with the actual stamp — came from Kal Jabara's local studio, and Vleck began talking with Jabara to learn more about the prints and to begin seeking them.

That present made him recall the stamp that impressed him as a boy.

"I never really knew there was art that matched that stamp." Vleck now owns a print of that stamp too.

ALL TOLD, Vleck has 125 prints. He owns complete collections of all federal duck stamp prints, the first duck stamp prints issued by each state and foreign country, Michigan's duck stamp prints, and duck prints from the Ducks Unlimited stamp and print program.

The federal duck stamp and print program has been in existence since 1934. Proceeds are used to preserve wetlands as wildlife habitat.

Vleck said that while talking to Monaghan one day about how he was running out of room to display his collection, the Domino's Pizza chairman suggested he display it at Domino's Farms.

"He said it's got to be a lot better than bare walls."

IN 1980, Vleck and wife Valeria — she also hunts — moved to Plymouth. Just two years earlier, he'd begun working with Domino's Pizza Distribution, the division that buys and distributes to Domino's restaurants the food items that make up the pizzas.

"My role is kind of watching for repetitive things (problems)," said Vleck, president of that company. "Is it a glitch in the system? When you hear someone express unhappiness, you want to know at what point did that happen."

Vleck, who said he may try to begin collecting the oil paintings from which duck prints are made, continues to hunt.

"I have a philosophy — You don't take the life of anything you don't eat."

"If they stopped hunting tomorrow, I would just get myself all muddy just sitting and watching."

Resident discovered dead in apartment

A 36-year-old Plymouth woman was found dead in her apartment at 565 W. Ann Arbor Trail Thursday after a co-worker became concerned when she didn't show up for work and went to her home to investigate.

Barbara Grob, who worked as a manager at Silver's at Twelve Oaks, appears to have died of natural causes, according to Plymouth police.

"There's nothing pointing in any other direction. There were no signs of foul play," said Sgt. Wayne Carroll.

"There was no sign of a break-in. It was a very docile scene. The apartment was very neat. It appears she fell asleep watching TV."

A cause of death was not yet available from the Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office. It's believed the woman died sometime "during the last couple days," Carroll said.

Funeral arrangements also were unavailable. The woman's family lives in California and Texas.

Jack Gunsaulus, who operates a business next door to the woman's apartment, said Grob was a "very nice young lady, very personable. Often, she'd park her car on the street in front of my door and say hello when she went by. I never saw her with anyone." Gunsaulus said

Grob lived in Plymouth for about a year.

BUILDING HIT: A 40-year-old Plymouth Township woman was ticketed by police after pulling out in front of a car on Ann Arbor Trail, ricocheting off the car and striking West Trail Nursing Home at about 10 a.m. Friday.

No one was seriously hurt, and damage to the building and the vehicles was minor, said Plymouth Sgt. Wayne Carroll.

The woman, ticketed for disobeying a stop sign, was southbound on Hamilton. She stopped for the sign, but then pulled out in front of a 73-year-old man who was westbound on Ann Arbor Trail.

The woman complained of minor injuries, but refused treatment.

involvement," he stressed.

Improvements include:

- English style forecourt gardens placed between businesses and sidewalks along Ann Arbor Trail and Penniman and some other central business district streets.

- New sidewalks flanked by brick surfaces.

- "Bumped out" curbs at intersections downtown, which sets parallel parking areas along some streets off from traffic lanes.

- Addition of another paved walkway in Kellogg Park toward Main Street, to further tie in the park with the business district.

By the plan, some sidewalks would continue across streets to link various business areas. Also, the clock on Main near Kellogg Park would be moved toward Ann Arbor Trail, as it can be a focal point of downtown, Anderson said.

Goodman stressed that the streetscape changes, which could cost between $2.5 million and $3.5 million, will be paid for by a bond issue.

"The DDA will fund this, it's not going to be coming out of taxpayers pockets," he said.

After the architects present final drawings, "We will try to get support from the community at large," Goodman said. "It's going to be our job to make sure everybody is heard."

Some planned improvements could be rejected by the city commission, he said.

As to when the improvements might begin, "I would hope that by June of 1991 we would have gained the acquiescence of the city commission and have secured a bond issue," Goodman said. "Work would begin shortly thereafter."

"We would have to do the city in quadrants, so there's not disruption of commerce," he added.

He estimated that all improvements would take three years to complete.

Area senior citizens to compete in sports event

For a host of talented Canton athletes, June 1991 will bring a trip to Syracuse, N.Y., and a chance to compete in the U.S. National Senior Sports Classic.

Is Your Child Too Small?

Most kids grow at their own rate. And there's nothing to be alarmed at if they're a little above or below the growth chart.

For some children, though, it's different. For any number of reasons, they just don't grow like other kids do. But if treated in time, many of them can be helped.

And that's the purpose of the Growth Assessment Clinic sponsored by Children's Hospital of Michigan. If you're worried about your child's growth pattern, give us a call at (313) 228-2769.

We'll set up a private screening on Saturday, September 15. And it won't cost you a penny.

Festival offers food and more

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Few people leave the Plymouth Fall Festival hungry. Food booths line the streets of downtown Plymouth, and a number of service clubs and organizations serve meals during the four-day event.

There's more to the annual festival than food, however. Members of the Plymouth-Canton Civitan Club served yaki tori, steak burgers, but also sold photo buttons to those looking for something a little more permanent.

"Anything they want that we can fit on the button," said Joe Henshaw of Plymouth Township, a Civitan Club member. Many people lined up at the club's booth on Main Street, ready to have a photo taken and put on a button.

"Things are going well, a good crowd," said Henshaw, who also serves on the Plymouth Fall Festival board. "People seem to be happy, having a good time."

CIVITANS SUPPORT a variety of programs through money raised at the festival, including Special Olympics and programs for students and senior citizens.

Henshaw, a retired Centennial Educational Park science teacher, enjoyed visiting with festival-goers.

"I see students from years back every year. I enjoy seeing them." Students are a bit older, and are glad to see Henshaw.

"Absolutely, always friendly. I threaten them with taking away the grade if they aren't," he said with a smile.

There wasn't any food to be found at the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women booth on Penniman. AAUW members sold paperback fiction at a price of 50 cents per inch.

"It seems to be going really well," said Pamela Dean of Canton. AAUW members measured books according to their thickness.

"We're generous, yes we are," said Dean, who teaches in workplaces for Grammar Group Inc., a Chicago consulting firm. "We want the community to read."

DEAN WORKED at the booth Saturday morning with fellow AAUW member Delores Ten Broeck of Canton.

"We've had people buying books for their grandchildren, and sons and daughters," said Ten Broeck, a teacher at Miller Elementary School in Canton. The association also holds a larger book sale each spring, and proceeds from the sales are used for scholarships.

Literature wasn't the only thing to be found at the festival this past weekend. Members of the Three Cities Art Club held a show in Kellogg Park.

"We think it's a good way to get to the public," said club member Florence Hirschmann of Plymouth. "Lots of people look, not necessarily buy."

Hirschmann's specialty is oils, and she was among artists who sold works at the show, held Saturday and Sunday. The club has held a festival sale for a number of years.

"I think you want to see more than food when you come to something like this." Art club members always worry a bit about rain during the show, but were relieved to see sunny skies Saturday. They bring plastic coverings to the show just in case.

"I think we're safe today," Hirschmann said. "We deserve it, don't we? Look at all the bad weekends we had."

Arts and crafts items were also available at the Plymouth Community Arts Council's show, held Saturday and Sunday at Central Middle School in Plymouth.

"It's been hectic," said Carolyn Simons of Plymouth Township, co-chairwoman with Chris Szary for the show. "It looks like there's a constant stream of people."

THE JURIED show featured the work of more than 100 artists and craftspeople. Many show visitors were in a buying mood.

"I think there is a lot of gift purchasing, thinking ahead to Christmas," Simons said. "People are looking to put something different in their home for fall."

The fall show is the PCAC's largest fund-raising project, said Simons, who is also the group's board president. Last year's sale raised about $10,000 to be used for scholarships and other programs.

Across the street at the Plymouth Historical Museum, things were going well. The museum was open for extra hours Saturday and Sunday, and there was plenty to see and do.

In southeast Plymouth Township, some residents didn't get the word that pick-up days were changing. And some residents suggested the township was out to make money by selling the clear plastic garbage bags for composting.

"They don't have to buy them from us," Anulewicz said, adding compost can also be placed in containers so marked.

Anulewicz said that while the pickup of compostables was to end in October, officials are considering extending the program into November.

Controversy fuels forum

Officials to speak out on Metro Airport expansion

By M.S. Dillon and Wayne Peel staff writers

Individuals wanting to learn more about the controversial proposed expansion of Detroit Metropolitan Airport will have a chance to quiz Wayne County officials at a Sept. 20 breakfast meeting to be hosted by the Canton Economic Club.

Deputy County Executive Mike Duggan and a team of county experts will speak on the issue — to appear on the Nov. 6 ballot — 8 a.m. at Geneva Presbyterian Church in Canton Township.

Cost of the breakfast is $5. For reservations, call 454-5427.

Thousands of county residents are objecting to the planned expansion because of aircraft noise levels they say have grown intolerable since flight patterns were changed last November.

A group called Citizens Against Aircraft Noise is trying to block the expansion with a counter-proposal on the ballot.

Duggan said county officials "are making an effort to speak to groups across the county. People in Plymouth, Canton, Northville and all of western Wayne County need to understand how important the airport is to their economic future, he said.

"The I-375 and M-14 corridors owe a lot of their development to Metro airport. (Developer) Bob DeMattia will tell you many of the buildings are locating there because of the proximity to the airport. People need access out of town to number of locations on a convenient basis," Duggan said.

If the expansion goes through, it eventually will create 10,000 jobs at the airport and 20,000 related off-site jobs, estimate county officials.

On the ballot will be a proposal to sell $100 million in bonds to fund a 3,200-car airport, a fourth north-south runway and a major flood control program; part of a five- or six-phase $1 billion project.

"If we lose the referendum we almost certainly will see Northwest scale back its operations at Metro," said Duggan. "We have a 1950's airport trying to function in the 1990's, and it's just antiquated.

"We can't expect Northwest to try and operate first-class airline service in an outdated airport. So the bond issue is critical to our future. It means a lot, not just to the people in the hotel, travel, restaurant and rent-a-car businesses, but right on down the line."

A "yes" vote in November will allow the county to sell the bonds.

"One thing that's really critical is that no county tax dollars will be involved," Duggan said. "The bond repayments will be repaid strictly by the airlines. County taxpayers will not be responsible for a nickel."

Some proposed solutions to the noise problem — such as new routes and mufflers for aircraft, are viable, say county officials, who have been negotiating with the Federal Aviation Administration.

"We've been in intense negotiations with the FAA, urging them to form a task force to do an immediate review of routes with an eye to change to give us a break on noise," Duggan said. "I think we'll see some results this week." When the routes were changed, "they didn't think there would be noise problems. They didn't factor in environmental considerations," Duggan said.

Routes could be used that would cause less disturbance, he added.

MORE THAN 19,000 county residents have signed a petition in an attempt to stop the expansion.

Residents of Livonia, Garden City, Westland, Redford, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights and Taylor say the jet noise is ruining their neighborhoods.

Sen. Carl Levin, who considers the noise situation "intolerable," said the new flight patterns were needed because of a series of near misses between large jets taking off and landing at Metro and smaller planes flying nearby.

CAAN spokesman David Esper said, "Our goal is to mount a grassroots information campaign to let people know what the issues are and to reach them one-on-one."

Blocking the bond sale would force the county to come to grips with the noise problem, as well as potential air pollution and traffic tie-ups posed by expansion, said Esper, a Dearborn attorney.

Arrivals and departures have grown dramatically since Metro became Northwest Airlines hub in the mid-1980's, increasing the number of direct routes, as well as the number of flights routed through Detroit.

Metro, which handled roughly 8 million departing passengers in 1985, is expected to handle 12 million this year and more than 15 million by 1995.

Engler team's target: captured boards, too

By Tim Richard
staff writer

John Engler's Republican team will make four state education boards a major battleground as part of his bid to become governor.

"I'd like to represent the Republican philosophy of excellence in education," said Laura Reyes Kopack, a Detroit Edison attorney from Livonia picked for the Wayne State University Board of Governors.

"By 2010, some 32 percent of Michigan will be multi-cultural — black, hispanic, Asian. It will take commitment from all of us to meet that need," said Kopack, the GOP's state vice chair for minority programs. She recruited a group of hispanic students to run for Republican precinct delegate posts.

The WSU campus has been seen two faculty strikes in recent years over the issue of how President David Adamany hands out merit pay increases and has had heated controversy over a black studies department.

Former Gov. George W. Romney, who served on the WSU board that hired Adamany in 1981, warmly encouraged Kopack. Romney said that in the 1970s "the faculty were running the place. The place would have been run into the ground. Adamany got hold of the thing."

THIS WILL BE Kopack's second try for the WSU board. In 1978, while a 25-year-old first semester law student, she came within 1 percent of winning.

"I've worked on boards and have been active in the hispanic community. And I have a selfish interest — with two children," she said.

Engler, the state Senate majority leader and undisputed chief of the Michigan GOP for four years, quietly picked the entire GOP ticket over recent months. The convention had only the job of ratifying his choices.

Engler signalled the importance of the state board and three university board races by personally appearing before caucuses on behalf of Marv Esch, the former Ann Arbor congressman he tapped to run for the U-M Board of Regents. Esch was unable to attend the convention.

"I'm looking forward to him (Esch) beating Phil Power. That'll be kind of fun," said Engler, referring to the incumbent Democratic U-M regent seeking reelection.

LOWELL PERRY, a Southfield attorney hand-picked to run for the State Board of Education, repeated an Engler theme when he told delegates that education in Michigan "is a mediocrity."

"There were only 18 black males teachers certified in the state in 1988. . . We are 44th in state contribution to education. . . We rank 29th in high school graduation rate at 73.6 percent. . . Our ACT (American College Test) scores were 18th among 20 states administering it.

"Educationally, we're on third down and deep in our own territory," said the former University of Michigan football star.

Perry, 59, was typical of the slate which Engler chose. None of the 13 Republican candidates is an incumbent in the office he or she is seeking. The GOP hasn't won a top-of-the-ticket state race since 1978, and it has had only spotty success with the education posts.

Engler told the convention he would seek a guaranteed portion of the budget for schools. To raise the money, he promised to whack prison spending, Commerce Department promotions and the governor's helicopter trips "No glitz — just guts," he said.

ALTHOUGH A political unknown to the public, Perry, now head of corporate relations for Michigan Bell, had been active privately.

"I had been helping John," said Perry. "He called me at work one afternoon and asked me to run. This is my first try for elective office."

Perry was a plant manager for Chrysler before he left in 1974 to be President Gerald Ford's head of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. He knew Ford from their membership in a U-M honorary society.

For 10 years he has been on the board of Detroit College of Law, his second alma mater, and for two years on the board of the privately endowed Starr Commonwealth School for neglected youth in Albion.

"I HAVE A personal reason for running: I shared a dream with my dad," Perry told delegates during Friday night caucuses.

"He was a poor black boy in Montgomery, Ala., in 1916. He wanted to go to the University of Michigan. He took a train to Ann Arbor. He had the dream of becoming a dentist.

Laura Reyes Kopack (left), Livonia attorney and Republican nominee for the Wayne State University board, gets some grandfatherly advice on the convention floor from George Romney, the 82-year-old former governor who also served on the WSU board. In the background is Larrain Thomas, GOP vice chair.

"Dr. Lawrence Perry served 12 or 15 years on the Ypsilanti Board of Education.

"And I view the State Board of Education as a wonderful opportunity to make a contribution to the state."

The state board is split 4-4 between the parties, and there have been partisan splits on the performance of Superintendent of Public Instruction Donald Bemis among other issues.

But neither Perry, Engler nor the other candidates touched on the issues, saving them for later position papers.

THE CONVENTION in Cobo Hall engaged in virtually no controversy, a far cry from the 1986 and '88 battles with Pat Roberson's conservatives. It had Engler's stamp. His top lieutenants made nominating speeches for candidates for the top of the ticket.

But Oakland County chairman Jim Alexander, a Birmingham attorney, stole some of the thunder when he made a seconding speech for state Sen. Connie Binsfeld for lieutenant governor. Alexander donned a blue-and-gold Cub Scout cap, reminding everyone that he knew Binsfeld when she was in den mother 30 or so years ago in an Oak Park Cub pack.

Oakland County Commissioner Nancy McConnell, of Bloomfield Hills, made the seconding speech for secretary of state candidate Judy Miller, a state representative from Birmingham.

"People go to the Secretary of State's office with as much enthusiasm as going to the dentist. There's no pain killer. You wait, wait, wait, and all you have to look at is a smiling picture of the incumbent (Richard Austin), who hasn't had to wait in line in 20 years," McConnell said.

For her part, Miller promised to make the Secretary of State branch offices "more user friendly. Let's get rid of the long lines," she said.

Here's Engler's ticket

Here is the "action team" hand-picked by gubernatorial candidate John Engler and ratified at the Republican state convention:

Lieutenant governor — Connie Binsfeld, 66, state senator from Leelenau County.

Secretary of state — Judy Miller, 54, state representative from Birmingham.

Attorney general — Cliff Taylor, East Lansing attorney, former assistant prosecutor.

State Board of Education — Lowell Perry, 59, Southfield, attorney and Michigan Bell executive, and Dick DeVos, president of Grand Rapids investment company and former Amway executive.

University of Michigan regents — Marv Esch, 63, Ann Arbor, former 2nd District congressman, and Shirley McFee, mayor of Battle Creek and former teacher.

Michigan State University trustees — John D. Shingleton, retired MSU placement director, and Dee Cook, Greenville.

Wayne State University governor — Laura Reyes Kopack, 38, Livonia, Detroit Edison attorney, and Elizabeth Hardy, Detroit attorney and former congressional staffer.

State Supreme Court (nonpartisan ticket) — W. Clark Durant, 42, Detroit attorney and former chair of the U.S. Legal Services Corp., and Judy Hughes, 41, former Barry County prosecutor.

MET slates parents forums

The Michigan Education Trust (MET) will hold public forums to explain the pre-paid college tuition program to parents.

"During 1990, our third year, we will offer both the standard one-time lump sum payment, as well as a monthly purchase-payroll deduction plan," said Robert A. Bowman, MET board chairman.

Community forums about the MET program will be held throughout the state during September and October. For more information about MET or to reserve a place at a community forum, call toll free, 1-800-MET-4-KID.

ALL FORUMS begin at 7 p.m. Here are dates and places of area forums:

• Sept. 18 - Troy Athens High School 4333 John R.

• Sept. 26 - Cass Technical High School, 2421 Second, Detroit.

• Oct. 2 - Gardner Middle School (off Jolly Road between Cedar and Washington), Lansing.

The MET board recently raised prices 7 percent for the 1990 enrollment period and set up a monthly payment plan.

Applications for MET will be accepted Oct. 15 to Nov. 9.

"The monthly purchase plan increases the accessibility of MET for even more Michigan families," Bowman said.

"This year's 7-percent increase is about one-half the increase of last year. This dramatically lower increase reflects restraint on the part of Michigan's 44 public colleges and universities and better-than-expected investment opportunities."

BASE COST for one year of MET tuition for a newborn child is $2,095 under the 1990 full benefits contract. With the new monthly purchase plan, an individual can buy that same year of tuition for $35 a month over seven years. The older the child, the more MET will cost because the trust has less time to invest money before the child is ready for college.

Individuals who bought MET contracts in 1988 and 1989 will not be affected by the MET price increase. Almost 50,000 children are enrolled in the MET program, creating a trust fund with assets of nearly $350 million.

Applications for MET will be available statewide at all treasury offices, secretary of state offices, Meijer stores, McDonald's, Perry Drugs, savings institutions, libraries, video stores and independent grocery stores this fall.

Red Cross blood supply running low

Trying to bounce back from a month of low blood collections, the American Red Cross is preparing for the toughest two weeks of blood collections this summer.

"We are now entering the second full week of having to pull blood from our liver transplant reserve," said A. William Shafer, executive director of Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the Red Cross. "Should a liver become available for a patient in the next two weeks, supporting that lifesaving operation would be very difficult."

More than 1,000 pints of blood are needed, but collections have averaged only 775 each day for the last month, to meet the needs of hospital patients in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw and St. Clair counties. For the next two weeks, daily collections are projected to plummet to only 605 pints a day.

"We have a critical shortage of type O blood," said Shafer. "This morning we had only four units of O-negative on our shelves. We need 50 times that amount to meet patient needs."

The area Red Cross has been importing blood from other Red Cross blood regions. "Normally we import 642 pints of blood each week, but last week we had to increase the amount of blood we imported to 891 pints," Shafer said.

Among nine Red Cross blood collection centers in southeastern Michigan are offices in Bloomfield Township, Livonia and Oak Park.

Donors should call 494-2800 for an appointment at a convenient time and location.

TAKING ARTHRITIS MEDICATION 3X A DAY

Most arthritis medicines require that you take them two or three times a day, because these drugs leave the body quickly. You might think that doctors would urge pharmaceutical houses to develop arthritis medication that patients could take once a day, but physicians have not taken this initiative. The reason is because a drug that can stay in the body long enough to be taken but once a day, also can exert toxic effects for a prolonged period. Therefore, the fact that a drug like aspirin requires you to take it often, is in its favor. If you have side effects, stopping the drug for even a day will rid you of its toxicity. In some instances, you can merely reduce your dosage by one tablet, to end its ill effects. Then you have the advantage of being able to continue the medicine at the same time that you are ending its toxicity. Do not be upset if the arthritis drug you are taking requires that you take a dose 2-3 times a day. That nuisance is really a way of protecting you from harm.

Area Dems support Blanchard, Maynard

By Pat Murphy
staff writer

Delegates from Wayne County are certain that the Democrats will have a triumphant ticket in November, despite the negative publicity that came from a switch in lieutenant governor hopefuls.

At the close of a spirited convention over the weekend, delegates were confident that Gov. James Blanchard and his choice for lieutenant governor, Olivia "Libby" Maynard, will emerge victorious in the general election.

While there were debates and analyses generated the two weeks before the convention with Blanchard's announcement to ask Maynard, rather than incumbent Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths, to share the ticket.

Delegates did not see the Griffiths episode as one that dampened the spirit of Democrats at the Flint convention.

"There's a tremendous spirit of unity," said Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano, one of about 2,000 delegates and guests attending what another delegate described as a "three-day love fest."

"We (Democrats) are up and ready to go," said Ficano. "We're going to win in November."

U.S. REP. SANDER LEVIN said any difficulty about the Blanchard's actions will soon be forgotten. "It may be important to us within the party, but I don't think voters are too concerned. It's certainly the right of the governor to pick his running mate."

As for Griffiths' reported comments and apparent rancor, Levin said, "In light of what's happened, I think Jim's been vindicated." Shirley Poling, a delegate in the 15th Congressional District and a member of UAW Local 735 in Ypsilanti, said she is disappointed Griffiths hasn't accepted the Governor's decision gracefully.

"I admire Griffiths," said Poling, of Canton, "but she's not going out with dignity."

But Democrats closed out the convention with a tremendous spirit of unity that also sends a message to Republicans and the voters," Poling said. "We're thrilled with Libby. She is a woman of Labor... she is a woman of the Democrats."

Indeed, Democrats seemed to be thrilled with Maynard who smiled warmly and was greeted with hugs, congratulations and some tears of joy as she made the rounds of the various meetings and caucuses.

In response to reporters' questions, Maynard said Griffiths' remarks seemed to indicate she "is having difficulty coping" with retirement.

The 54-year-old Maynard refused to dwell on the outgoing lieutenant governor, however. She emphasized that the main opponent in November, Senate Majority Leader John M. Engler, "has been very self-serving (during his public life in Lansing) and mean-spirited. And he has not looked out for the best interests of Michigan."

JOHN W. MOORE of Westland said Blanchard had demonstrated courage by dumping someone he considered less than capable, even though the decision could hurt him.

Blanchard was thinking about the welfare of Michigan when he dumped Griffiths, Moore said. "But it's going to cost him some votes..."

"particularly among senior citizens who might not accept his explanation."

Moore said the Griffiths-Maynard issue, however, was overshadowing other important issues... like the party position on making college affordable for the middle class.

"My son (Paul) graduated from John Glenn High School with better than a 3.5 average," Moore said. "Yet he can't get much help. College is far too expensive for average people and Democrats should be talking about it."

Moore said the party should pay more attention to the increasing tax burden and how it is eroding the middle class.

Delegates not only continued their support of the governor but also seemed to develop what is best described as an increasing awareness that Blanchard took appropriate action on Aug. 24, when he dropped Martha Griffiths as his running mate.

Griffiths — acknowledged as the winning edge for Blanchard when he ran in 1982 — was dropped because of what the governor said is a concern about her health and ability.

But the 78-year-old champion of women's rights was disgruntled about the decision, even using the term "son of a bitch" in reference to Blanchard and the way he handled her demise.

Griffiths showed more bitterness Friday, on the eve of the convention, in an interview with Connie Chung of CBS which will be broadcast at 10 tonight.

In that interview Griffiths appeared to question the abilities and experience of her successor, who was the first woman Democrat to run for lieutenant governor in 1978 and was state party chairperson from 1979 to 1982. Maynard is currently head of the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging.

At a luncheon sponsored by the Democratic Women's Caucus Saturday, Griffiths was more supportive of Maynard, but demonstrated her rancor by telling her fellow Democrats she didn't want any tribute, suggesting it would be "hypocritical."

Griffiths said to reporters, "I hate to have a bunch of hypocrites up (on the podium) talking."

Democrats were shocked and angry, as much by Griffiths' comments as by missing the opportunity to give Griffiths an appropriate tribute.

State Rep. Maxine L. Berman, of Southfield, said she would have to see Griffiths interview with Chung before she would fully believe reports about what the lame-duck lieutenant governor reportedly said.

"But I'm sure we'll get the chance to give Martha Griffiths the tribute she deserves," said Berman, who like Griffiths, is a vocal supporter of women's rights.

'That's the ticket!' claim state's Democratic leaders

By Pat Murphy
staff writer

Democrats have nominated a strong field of candidates that is balanced in terms of geography and gender, according to two candidates from the area who are proud to be part of it.

"It's a good ticket," beamed Donald F. Tucker, a Birmingham attorney who was nominated to the University of Michigan Board of Regents.

"They're all hard workers who represent the wide range of people and interests within our state," said Philip H. Power, chairman of the board of the Suburban Communications Corp. which owns the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Heading the ticket, of course, are Gov. James Blanchard and Lt. Gov. Olivia "Libby" Maynard of Flint. They are bolstered by incumbents Frank J. Kelley for attorney general and Richard H. Austin for secretary of state.

Others nominated in convention over the weekend are:

- Michigan Supreme Court: Patricia Boyle and Michael Cavanaugh, both incumbents.
- State Board of Education: Barbara Roberts-Mason of Lansing and Rollie Hoppood of Taylor.
- Michigan State Board of Trustees: Larry Owen of Lansing and Darnell Early of Lansing.
- Wayne State University Board of Governors: Jim Robinson of and Dr. David Victor.

Libby Maynard (left) received a number of good wishes on new role as lieutenant governor candidate at Saturday's Democratic Convention. State Rep. Justice Barnes of Westland offered Maynard a congratulatory hug.

Tax cut plan gains supporters

AP — A property tax-cut petition drive stands only 12,000 signatures away from its goal after a Labor Day weekend push brought in more than 10,000.

The petition drive headed by tax lawyer Richard Headlee of Farmington Hills has 208,000 signatures and the group hopes to collect 220,000, spokesman Bill McMaster said. "There is remarkable activity out there," he said, adding the group expects to reach its goal.

It needs the valid signatures of 191,726 registered voters to put the plan to cut property taxes before the Legislature.

Lawmakers would have 40 days to approve the plan or it would go before voters.

Because the plan was initiated by voters, Gov. James Blanchard couldn't veto it.

McMaster said the group will turn in 220,000 signatures to make sure it has enough. The group has until Sept. 15 to gather signatures, but McMaster said it will submit them to the Secretary of State's office Tuesday.

That's the day the Legislature returns to the Capitol after the summer recess.

"THERE IS a tax revolt out there. You only need to ask people to sign and they do. As we've maintained all along the big job is getting the petitions in front of the people," McMaster said.

McMaster said the Headlee group expects its plan to win approval in the Legislature.

Headlee's plan would cut property tax assessments from 50 percent to 40 percent of a property's cash value by 1991 and force the Legislature to make up the difference in lost money to schools and local government.

He estimates the plan would cut taxes by $200 million the first year and then by $600 million in the second and following years.

The state budget for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 is $7.66 billion.

I am fortunate to have friends living in other parts of the country who send me weekly food pages from their hometown newspapers.

Last week, as usual, I received a large envelope stuffed with food sections from the Arizona Republic, compliments of John and Christie Gibson, formerly of Plymouth and now heralding from the Grand Canyon State.

One of the features I enjoy most in this particular paper is their "recipe request" column that has readers request favorite recipes from the old days. Seems that one particular reader had been searching for the old version of Rice Krispie Squares.

Following the paper in dated sequence, I noticed that everyone sent in their Rice Krispie Squares recipe that used the typical butter and melted marshmallows. The reader, however, was looking for an older version calling for corn syrup, vinegar, butter and molasses.

LO AND BEHOLD, yesterday, while searching for an oatmeal cookie recipe, I came across an old recipe box filled with my late mother-in-law's hand-inscribed recipes. "Bosso," as I called her, would not have been put into the category as one of the world's better cooks. She could, however, whip up a mean roast beef, complete with lumpy mashed potatoes and slightly overcooked green beans. I miss that roast beef.

I didn't find an oatmeal cookie recipe in the old box, but I did find a recipe for a classic roast beef dinner, complete with gravy, lumpy mashed potatoes and a choice of overcooked green beans, carrots or broccoli. I felt like a kid on Christmas morning opening up my first present. I wonder if she stuffed that recipe in the box knowing that someday I might just find it and spend a few minutes rehashing days that are gone forever.

Artist friends Louie and Wilma Halliburton of Ann Arbor were searching through old mementos when they came across their momma's hand-scribbled notes and favorite recipes. They sent them to me, and after sitting on them for a year or two, I sent them back without even turning a page. After finding "Bosso's recipe box," I now know why they did.

Until today, I didn't even own a recipe box. All of my favorite recipes were either stuffed behind the spices or scattered throughout any one of three filing cabinets, all in no order whatsoever. Until today.

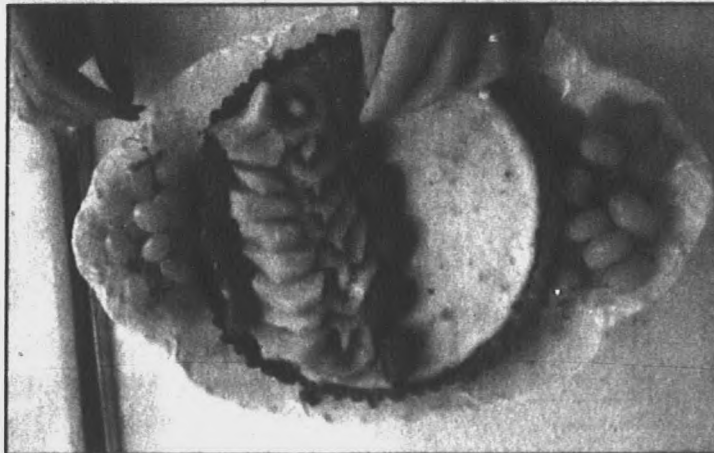

Yep, my momma's got a recipe box. Yesterday, I stopped down for a visit and took a few minutes to glance over some of the treasures hidden within. Recipes I haven't enjoyed since I was a Detroit Times paperboy in Wyandotte. I found the old recipe for "sliders" (not the gut bombs served at most hamburger joints) and for an old family favorite that still gets baked on everybody's birthday, German Chocolate Cake, with a coconut-pecan frosting.

IN ADDITION to the recipes, I found some heritage. Remember "Prem"? How about "Blue Label Karo"? Does "Armour Tree" ring a bell? One of my favorite finds was the "No sugar, no shortening needed for delicious All Bran Molasses Muffins" that came with a P.S. labeled: "Important! During these days of food shortages, help feed your family better." I don't remember, but Mom, Dad and I spent a whole hour remembering the days of food shortages, tinfoil saving and all-day bread-making sessions.

If you know where the old recipe box is kept, make a mental note to someday soon get it out, pour yourself a cup of coffee and just kick back and remember where it came from.

MEALS MADE AHEAD

School bell rings, dinner bell too

By Geri Rineschler special writer

Mills doesn't have a lot of time to spend in the kitchen.

IT'S FINALLY UPON us: September, the time of great Michigan apples, visiting cider mills and creating back-to-school lunches and dinners.

For most of us, meal planning in September isn't any different from any other time of the year. But for teachers and school administrators, it's a time to return to balance work, family and meal preparations.

No matter what your occupation, and whether the month is September or April, organization is the key to successful meal planning.

For one school administrator in particular, balancing work and family and serving healthy, homemade dinners has been a snap.

FROM THE moment you walk into Helene Mills' kitchen, you know that this cook is O-R-G-A-N-I-Z-E-D!

The kitchen in her Bingham Farms house is bright and airy. On the countertops sit two Cuisinarts, a small one for chopping and a large one for shredding, mixing sauces and pureeing veggies.

A few feet away sits a "pro-line" Kitchen Aid mixer. Nearby on the refrigerator is a computer printout of dinner menus for the week.

Across the way, over a cupboard, are a few shelves lined with reference and ethnic cookbooks.

JUST BELOW them, filling the other shelf, are a dozen or so leather-bound, three-ring binders trimmed with gold lettering describing the contents: appetizers, soups, salads, vegetables, breads, poultry and fish.

It's here where Mills keeps the treasured collection of recipes she has cultivated over the years as a wife, mother and professional educator.

Although her three children are grown and have left the nest, Mills continues to prepare nutritional, made-from-scratch meals for herself and husband Ray.

As a middle school principal and family life lecturer and consultant,

WHEN SHE WAS a working mother, teaching-home economics, Mills decided she and her family were not going to be dependent on packaged meals or frozen dinners laden with sodium, chemical preservatives and fat. Nutrition was and is still very important to her.

"As a home economics teacher, I taught nutrition. In order to give my three children nutritionally sound meals and work, I needed to be organized," she said.

Planning the Mills family meals in advance and "pre-preparing" most of it on the weekends allowed Mills flexibility but, most importantly, the time and ability to feed her family home-cooked meals every night of the week.

Organizing menus and cooking on the weekends may not appear to be a time-saving device.

But when you closely examine Mills' approach to meal preparation, it conserves energy by consolidating cleanup time as well as baking and cooking hours. Result: less time spent in the kitchen.

CURIOUS ABOUT how the system works? Stick around for some helpful tips, and shortcuts to serving fresh vegetables, salads, entrees and desserts.

To begin with, you should know that the Millses have a large, deep freezer.

Now that she is only cooking for two, she shops for most of her meat twice a year, except for veal and fish. She also shops for all their paper goods twice a year, buying by the case.

A milkman delivers all the dairy products and a vegetable man delivers fresh fruits and vegetables to her house once a week. This instantly eliminates lots of time spent in a grocery store.

IN HER KITCHEN files, Mills has organized a long list of entree dishes and soups that have become standard recipes over the years to

'Create' memories through cooking

cluded when the recipe is first prepared.

We all know that scents can evoke memories. The fragrance of spices wafting through the house makes us remember our mothers' or grandmothers' kitchens, and perhaps while we cook with spices, we can "create" memories for our loved ones.

When speaking of spices, one generally thinks of any aromatic plant that adds zest to food. These include herbs (which originate most often in temperate zones) and that we grow easily in our gardens and use the leaves fresh or dried, such as mints, basil, chervil, tarragon, sage and thyme; seeds of plants grown in hot or mild climates (or both), such as anise, caraway, coriander, dill, poppy and cumin, or the fruits, barks or roots of various plants which grow naturally in the tropics.

We will address the latter category, those classified as true spices: allspice, cassia, cinnamon, cloves, ginger, turmeric, mace, nutmeg and pepper. Seeds also fit this description, but we will leave that for another time.

Most cooks begin using spices by purchasing them ground. As cooks' culinary endeavors increase, they find that by using the whole spice and grinding or crushing it from that state, the flavor is well worth the effort.

Some of these spices are quite strong, so it is best to use them judiciously when beginning to experiment with their flavors. They should enhance the flavor of a dish, not disguise it. When trying a new spice in a recipe, use the amount given. The next time, the spice can be adjusted (either more or less) to suit your palate. Curried dishes, chili and gingerbread are notable for that one particular flavor, and it will be well-pronounced.

WHEN SPICES are used whole, or in chunks, they need to be incorporated into the recipe at the beginning of the cooking. Ground spices can be added toward the end of the cooking time. Marinades and other uncooked recipes need to have the spices in-

The use of spices began before recorded history of mankind and, again, the aroma of them can conjure up long-ago visions of expeditions of camel trains and, later, ships carrying this precious cargo from one country to another. In fact, the first map of the known world was made because of the spice trade.

Legends of the origins of spices abounded, as the competition among countries for the trade was keen. Used for many purposes, besides the preservation of food, spices were (and still are) significantly important.

 choose from when planning the weekly menus. Among the items are a variety of poultry, beef, veal, pork, lamb, fish and seafood.

To name a few, there are chicken marsala, coq au vin, Swiss steak, London broil, pork fried rice and jambalaya.

Also included on the list are variety meats such as roast duck, soups, pasta and quiche.

Each item is coded with a letter to identify which foods can be "pre-prepared," made from planned leftovers, or "last minute," for those that can be made in 30 minutes or less.

Chicken marsala is one dish Mills prepares in advance and refrigerates or freezes. Pork-fried rice is coded, "left-over," meaning it is prepared from a leftover pork roast.

TO FULLY understand Mills' technique, you will need to look at a few typical menus.

Sunday is generally a family dinner. A Sunday menu includes appetizers, roast turkey breast, baked potatoes, Caesar salad and a fruit flan.

Monday: minestrone soup, tossed green salad with French dressing, crunchy bread and fresh fruit. Tuesday: baked mushroom chicken, a side dish of fettucine, steamed beets and a Waldorf salad.

Wednesday: chicken divan, garden tomatoes, cucumber salad, sliced fruit. Thursday: grilled salmon, green beans, potatoes au gratin and a fruit sorbet.

SUNDAY, WHILE the turkey is roasting, Mills will cook the minestrone soup on the stove top.

While the soup is simmering, she will mix together a batch of salad dressing using a recipe that provides enough to last a week or more.

Halfway through the roasting of the turkey, she will bake Tuesday night's mushroom chicken for approximately three-quarters of the total cooking time.

After removing the chicken from the oven and cooling it for a while, she will refrigerate it covered and finish the last 30 minutes of baking Tuesday just before serving.

AFTER DINNER, while her husband is helping with the cleanup, Mills will put together a turkey divan, using the leftover roast turkey breast.

Needless to say, she allows for extra servings as well as extra baking time when selecting meat and organizing the menus for planned leftovers.

Generally, Thursday and Friday menus are "quick-cook" recipes that only take about 30 minutes to make, such as a salmon steak or hamburgers.

Having made the salad dressing, and lightly golden and when a small knife inserted comes out clean. Cool completely on a rack. Refrigerate or freeze until day of dinner. To freeze: wrap well after cooling and keep in freezer no longer than 2-3 weeks.

Day of dinner of serving time:
 2 kiwi fruit, peeled, sliced thinly and evenly
 2 peaches, thinly sliced
 1 pint fresh strawberries, hulled and sliced
 4 ounces apple jelly

On the day of serving remove flan from freezer or refrigerator, remove from pan and set on a serving platter. Arrange the fruit slices, overlapping each other in rows. Melt the apple jelly in a saucepan on the stove or in the microwave. Brush jelly on the fruit, allowing the excess to fall into the cracks and covering the surface of the fruit flan. Refrigerate at least 2 hours before serving.

Serves 6-8.

BOEUF BOURGUIGNON (Beef Burgundy)
 3 tablespoons oil of your choice
 2 pounds lean beef chuck, trimmed and cut into bite-size pieces
 2 tablespoons flour
 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
 1 cup beef broth
 1 cup burgundy wine
 1 cup fresh mushrooms, sliced
 2 medium onions sliced thin
 Salt/pepper to taste

In a deep skillet or Dutch oven, heat oil; when hot, brown meat. Stir in flour, salt, pepper and thyme. Remove meat, scraping the bottom of the pan and set in a 3-quart casserole dish. Sauté the mushrooms and onions. When tender add to casserole dish. Cover and bake in for 2 1/2 hours in a preheated 325 degree oven. Cool completely cover and refrigerate until day of dinner.

At serving time, remove casserole from refrigerator 15-20 minutes ahead, and warm in a preheated 325 degree oven for 35 minutes.

Serves 4.

Filling:
 2 large eggs, beaten
 8 ounces cream cheese
 1/2 cup sugar

Mary Schurman of Birmingham combines Taco Soup with Hot Curried Fruit for a favorite family dinner.

When schedules vary, try Taco Soup meal

As wonderful as summer is, I always greet the month of September with open arms.

For it is a time of gentle transition from one season to another, marked by clean, crisp air, changing leaves and, of course, the return of the children to school.

After the adagio pace of summer, the cadence of life resumes its more structured, upbeat tempo as organizations come back to life after the summer hiatus, school meetings are once again scheduled and the athletic season begins in earnest.

TO HELP you keep up with the ever-increasing momentum and demands of the month, Mary Schurman's popular and oft-requested recipes for Taco Soup and Hot Curried Fruit will surely become family favorites.

Z Moore wines paired with Pike Street food

Farmington Harrison High School has become known for its championship football teams, but two of its graduates are heavy into food and wine.

Brian Polcyn and Daniel Moore went to high school together in Farmington. Polcyn is owner/chef at Pike Street Restaurant in Pontiac, while Moore is co-owner/winemaker at Z Moore Winery in Sonoma County, Calif.

wines with Pike Street food. Moore owns the boutique winery with his wife, Natalie Zuccarelli, thus the name Z Moore — she gets top billing.

The winery is in a renovated hop kiln in the cool Sonoma County growing region known as the Russian River Valley. Here, Moore buys the distinctive chardonnay and gewurztraminer grapes he needs to produce 5,000 cases of wine annually.

focus on wine
Eleanor and Ray Heald

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

The non-vintage Le Clos from Clos du Val Wine Co. ($6.75) is one of the best bargains in a classically styled red wine to enter the marketplace. It's a blend of 46 percent cabernet sauvignon, 34 percent pinot noir, 18 percent zinfandel and 2 percent merlot from the 1986, '87 and '88 vintages.

Intensely extracted aromas of blackberry, cassis and black pepper introduce a complex wine that's harmonious and approachable with a smooth finish. A great value.

WINE BULLETIN BOARD

The Healds will teach a fall wine class 7:30-9:30 p.m. on five consecutive Wednesdays from Sept. 19 through Oct. 17, at the Oakland Community College Orchard Ridge Campus at Orchard Lake Road at I-696 in Farmington Hills. Total cost, $85. Topics include California, Italy and Champagne. For registration information, call 471-7561.

MOORE MOVED to California after earning a degree in food science from Michigan State University.

"I stayed in California because it was the first place I found where I could swim and ski in the same season," Moore said.

Z Moore Winery is a small, hands-on operation where the owners handcraft a tiny quantity of wine from premium-quality grapes, specializing in only three wine types.

"I was a white zinfandel lover who got my rigorous job training hauling hoses at Milano Winery in Mendocino County," Moore said. "Later, I worked for Hop Kiln Winery in Sonoma. That's where I got turned on to gewurztraminer."

AS SMALL as Z Moore is, it already has two labels. For five years now, Moore has produced a refreshing, spicy, pleasantly off-dry gewurztraminer called Quaff.

"For us this is not a second label," Moore said.

"It is our significant other," Natalie said. "This is a fun wine, seriously made. Drink it at the pool, on a picnic, at the beach, or in front of a fire with someone you love."

The 1989 Quaff ($7) has fresh, spicy, orange blossom aromas, with juicy, fruit flavors that make it a perfect starter almost any time.

Z MOORE also produces an unusual and totally dry gewurztraminer in the style of a crisp, clean Alsace version.

The wine is barrel fermented in 130-gallon, mature oak puncheons that allow the wine to retain its spicy aromas while broadening its palate impression.

Moore's model in Alsace is Domaine Ostertag, where Andre Ostertag has caused a sensation over his barrel-fermented wines in a region that traditionally ferments in large, neutral oak casks or stainless steel.

Whatever he does, Moore is on the right track. His 1989 Barrel Fermented Dry Gewurztraminer ($9) shows spicy ginger and orange blossom aromas with a creamy richness and generous body that pairs well with food.

ON CONSECUTIVE evenings, Polcyn paired this wine with ragout of creamed seafood in crust one night and spicy pasta with tomatoes and Vidalia onions the next.

Oven-steamed salmon with wild watercress and grilled Columbia River sturgeon with mustard cream were the dishes selected to accompany Z Moore's 1988 Chardonnay (available exclusively at Pike Street Restaurant).

The wine's firm, lean acidity was cleansing against the fish.

"I use Montrachet yeast," Moore said, "because I like how it highlights the wine's toasty character."

Z MOORE produces small amounts of red zinfandel, blended with petit sirah, showcasing generous black pepper aromas, forward fruit flavors and a heightened acidity that bodes well for extended aging.

Polcyn created an earthy, peasant-style grilled medallion of beef with braised beef shortrib using some of the 1988 Z Moore Zinfandel (only available at Pike Street) in the reduction sauce.

The combination elevated the taste of both wine and food. Polcyn's stylized food harmonies, created to complement the Z Moore wines, clearly indicate why he was selected as runner-up in this year's Paul Bocuse Best Native American Chef Competition.

THE 1989 Z Moore Select Harvest Gewurztraminer ($6.50/375ml) is a dessert wine that can be enjoyed on its own or with a variety of fruit desserts. Moore likes this wine with dessert because it is not overly sweet.

Polcyn created summer berries in mascarpone that included fresh raspberries, blueberries and strawberries set in a pool of milk chocolate and butterscotch.

The peach, honey and melon flavors of the wine harmonize well with the dessert, and the wine's crisp acidity left the palate clean and refreshed.

Memories linger through spices

ant for embalming purposes, medicine, incense, dyeing fabric and food, and as beauty products.

The world's most popular spice, pepper, comes from a climbing vine, native to India and the East Indies. Black peppercorns include the dark outer hull, and the clusters of berries are harvested while still green, darkening while drying. White peppercorns are left to ripen on the vine, then picked, and the outer hull is removed, revealing the white or light-colored peppercorn, lightening in color as it dries. Whole green peppercorns are not allowed to dry and are preserved in brine.

Perhaps the next popular spice is the clove, the unopened flower bud of an evergreen tree of the myrtle family, and is reddish-brown in color. Whole cloves are used to stud hams, glazed pork or beef, and are often an ingredient in mulling mixes. An onion studded with two or three cloves added to a beef stew the last hour of cooking imparts a special flavor.

GRAYISH-BROWN cassia buds look quite a bit like cloves and are the dried unripe fruit of two cinnamon trees. They are used in pickling, to sweeten the breath, and in potpourris. Cassia quills or bark come from another tree related to the myrtle and are used in the same manner as cinnamon. They can be interchanged with that spice.

Cinnamon sticks, believed to be superior in flavor, are the bark of a tree of the laurel family. The bark is peeled off in long strips with special knives, left to dry for a day, and then the outer layer is scraped off. The inner bark curls up like a quill when drying. A whole quill makes an aromatic stirrer for hot beverages.

Nutmeg and mace come from the same evergreen tree. The fruit first appears looking rather like an apricot, and in the middle the kernel (or nutmeg) is covered with a red network, called mace, which turns golden yellow-orange when it dries.

When sold whole, it is called blade mace, and it is used whole in pickling spice mixtures and to flavor jellies and stewed fruits. It also is used in sachets. The flavor of mace is more delicate than nutmeg and can improve the taste of whipped cream, making it less oily tasting. Try some in macaroni and cheese, or mashed potatoes.

Freshly ground nutmeg is far superior than ground nutmeg, from a tin. Add some in your next spaghetti-sauce recipe, or over a bowl of bananas and cream. Asparagus and broccoli come to life with a speck of nutmeg.

Allspice berries grow on the evergreen pimiento (not pimiento) tree native to Latin America and the West Indies and have the fragrance of cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. When they are reddish-brown and not yet ripe, they are harvested and dried in the sun for several days before they are ready for export.

LONG USED as a food preservative, they are a versatile spice. Add two or three whole berries to your next lamb stew for a taste treat. When broiling a steak, sprinkle it with a tiny bit of allspice to make the meal memorable. The berries also are used in the making of Benedictine and Chartreuse liqueurs.

Ginger is a popular spice and comes from the rhizome of the ginger plant. Fresh ginger is readily available in our supermarkets now, as are the dried roots, which need to be lightly crushed or bruised to extract the flavor.

Another rhizome is tumeric, which comes from a plant of the ginger family and is sold in powdered form. Mustard pickles, chutneys and rice dishes are flavored by tumeric. Try it in place of mustard to add color and interest.

Finally, the vanilla bean, or pod, brought to Europe by the Spaniards, grows on a climbing vine. My favorite use is to put a pod into a quart of white sugar, letting it impart its subtle flavor. Vanilla is used in spiced tea, puddings and cake.

Freshly grated nutmeg is far superior than ground nutmeg from a tin. Add some in your next spaghetti-sauce recipe, or over a bowl of bananas and cream.

To prevent crime in Tucson, police use sensitive, highly sophisticated surveillance equipment: Rose, Gert, Anthony, Ramon, Yvonne, and Tim.

Citizen participation is critical to police effectiveness. Do you care about your neighborhood enough to help protect it?

The Case of the Tucson Tip-off.

In a particular neighborhood in Tucson, Arizona, folks were having a real problem with burglaries and break-ins.

They started talking to each other about what they could do. They got fed up. About 400 people went to the police for advice.

They learned about surveillance. They got to know their beat officers. Citizens and police became partners in crime prevention.

In just three weeks, 17 arrests were made and burglaries went down 30%. And Tucson is only one case where people successfully worked to beat crime. To find out more, write: The McGuffin Files, 1 Prevention Way, Washington, D.C. 20859-0001.

Marlins seize the day, defeat Rocks

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Farmington Hills Mercy basketball coach Larry Baker didn't stand on a desk like Robin Williams in Dead Poets Society when he gave his pregame talk Saturday night.

But he did borrow a line, with some paraphrasing, from the actor and the movie before the Marlins played Plymouth Salem in a clash of state powers at Mercy.

"I told them it was 'Carpe diem' — play for today. Win this one and they can't take it away from you," said Baker after the Marlins defeated Salem 43-40.

The victory over a first-rate opponent not only keeps Mercy unbeaten at 4-0 but serves as a confidence booster, according to Baker. The Rocks are 4-2.

"(Salem coach) Fred (Thomann) said their victory over us last year changed his team's level of play," Baker said. "I look at this game as a real catalyst for us."

"WE HAD beaten three teams, but this is the first one perhaps we weren't expected to beat. This was a big, powerful team that had the potential to take us right out of it."

Mercy shot a low percentage but made up for it with good defense, especially in the second half when it held the lead for all but a few minutes.

Senior guard Kathleen Gerigk led the Marlins with 10 points, including two free throws that gave Mercy a 41-38 lead with 52 seconds left. Carrie Walton scored eight points, Laure DeMattia seven, Susie Atchinson six and Maureen Paulin five.

"(Defense) was the one area of consistency from our point of view," Baker said. "The kids really dug in and made it difficult for them to score under the basket."

"I have to credit Paulin, DeMattia and Walton, who gave away size and/or strength. Our anticipation on the weak side was excellent. We helped each other out and got a hand on some passes."

Yolanda Jackson and Betsy McAllister scored 12 points apiece to pace Salem, but Sarah Ruete was limited to one first-quarter field goal.

THE ROCKS played without two of their best players. Guard Kelly Austin could miss another month with torn knee ligaments, and post player Emily Giuliani was ill Saturday.

Following a 21-21 halftime score, McAllister gave the Rocks their only lead of the second half (27-26) with a three-point basket, but Gerigk's outside shot and Paulin's free throws put Mercy ahead to stay.

"I thought they keyed on (Ruete) and did a nice job taking her out of the game," Thomann said. "Mercy did a great job of preparing for us, and I thought we had something going for us, too."

"I thought we defended the heck out of each other, and they ended up making more shots than we did."

Mercy made the most of its points, winning despite 25 percent shooting (3-of-12) in the fourth quarter. The Marlins got more than their share of right bounces, getting second and third rebounds and pulling the ball out to set up again.

"We played defense more than we would have liked in this game," Thomann said. "That's what teams are going to do — hold the basketball and see if they can break us down. And, to their credit, they made some big shots, too."

SALEM GOT within a point four times in the last period, but the Marlins always thwarted a possible shift in momentum.

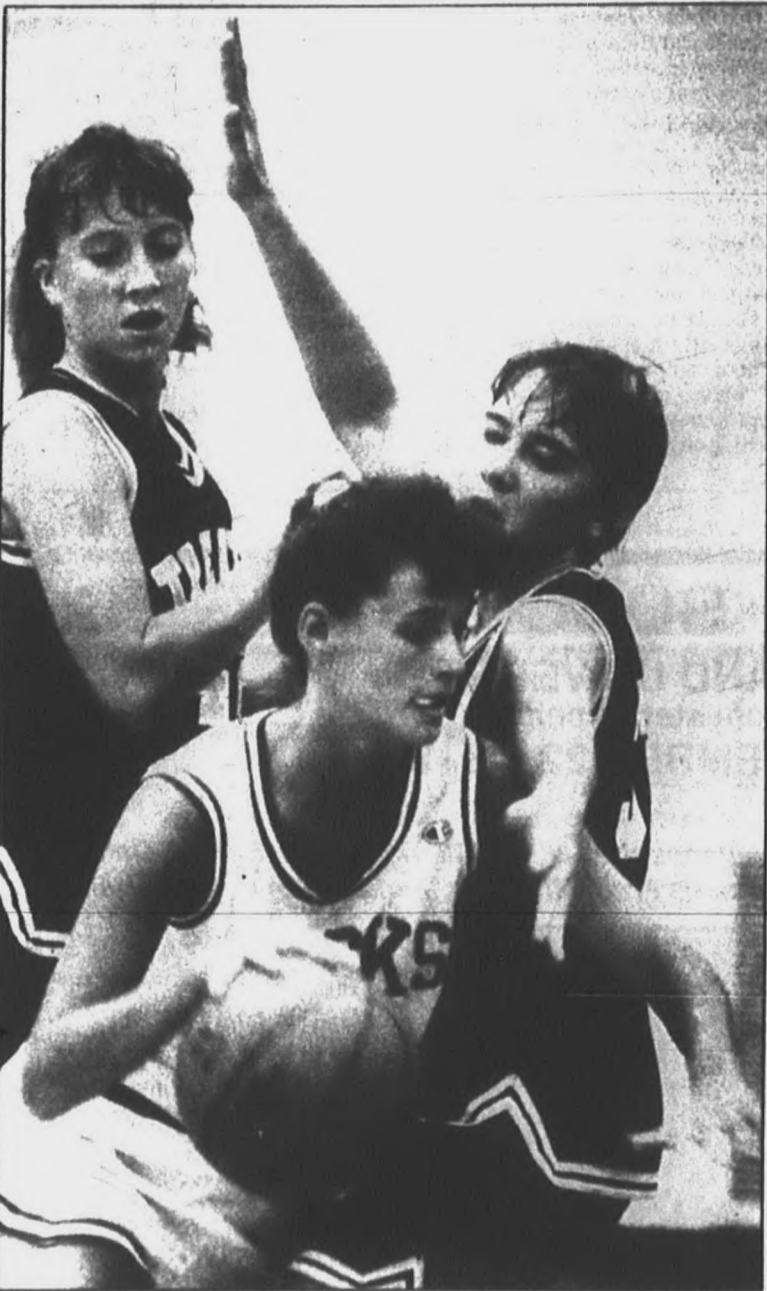

Christie Parmucha put back a missed free throw for a 39-38 score, but Gerigk answered with her free throws, which Baker said was the deciding factor given the pressure of the situation.

With eight seconds left, Jackson rebounded a missed three-point attempt, and her basket made it 41-40. Mercy got the ball up court quickly to Walton, who had an uncontested shot at the buzzer.

Salem defense blocks Trenton

Defensive pressure did the trick for Plymouth Salem's girls' basketball team Thursday, enabling the Rocks to subdue visiting Trenton 47-28.

A 12-4 first-quarter put Salem in control, and the Rocks stayed there. They extended their lead to 23-14 at the half and to 33-22 after three periods, before pulling away with a 14-6 final-quarter spurt.

Pivotal to the victory was Salem's ability to limit Trenton senior guard Kim Hoppes to only six points.

"We played a match-up zone and just tried to key on her," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, whose team improved to 4-1. "We tried to play each possession and hoped to shut them down, while creating our own scoring opportunities. I thought we did a good job at that."

The Rocks also did a good job of getting the ball to sophomore forward Yolanda Jackson, who devastated the Trojan defense with 20 points and eight rebounds. Junior center Darcie Miller was equally effective, netting 18 points and 10 boards, as Salem's inside game wrecked Trenton (now 1-2).

Sophomore guard Buffy Holton topped the Trojans with 18 points.

PLY. CHRIST. 64, CALVARY CHRIST. 13: Jenny Moore and Christin Thomason each struck for 14 points in Plymouth Christian's lopsided victory Friday at Ypsilanti Calvary Christian.

Moore, a junior center, also hauled in 11 rebounds. Robin Schram, a junior guard, contributed 10 points and seven assists and senior guard Tamara Tilly made 10 steals.

The Eagles (now 2-0) led 11-3 after one quarter, 28-7 at the half and 48-9 entering the final period.

Chiefs pay for poor first half, 67-54

By Ray Setlock
staff writer

The Birmingham Marian girls basketball team had a dominating second quarter Thursday, allowing the Mustangs to soundly defeat host Plymouth Canton 67-54.

Marian led 12-5 following the first quarter and 29-17 at halftime. Guard Dana Hudson paced Marian's offensive attack with eight first-half points. She finished the game with 14 points.

"That first half really hurt us," Canton coach

Bob Blohm said. "We didn't convert the baskets when we had the chance, and we certainly had the chance."

Perhaps the biggest reason for Marian's surge in the second quarter was its ability to draw fouls and hit free throws.

The Mustangs converted 11 of 15 shots from the charity stripe in the second quarter.

"I THINK our defense was a little tentative in the second quarter, and that was the big reason for all the fouls," Blohm said. "We were confused about our positioning on defense."

The Chiefs tried to close the gap in the second half but were unsuccessful.

Marian took leads of 47-27 and 51-31 in the third quarter, virtually putting the game out of reach for Canton.

"Give Marian credit for a good game," Blohm said. "But there is no way our defense should have allowed them to score 67 points. Our defense was soft tonight."

Chiefs coast to 2nd victory

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

From the mood of the two coaches, it would have been difficult to tell which team had won the Plymouth Canton-Farmington football game Saturday.

Canton coach Bob Khoenle's undefeated squad was an easy, 43-19 winner, but he didn't particularly like the way the Chiefs went about it.

"We won the game, but I'd like to see the kids pull it together and do it cleanly," he said. "I told the kids we have to start getting it together, because things don't get any easier from here on."

Indeed, they don't. The Chiefs (2-0) take on defending Western Lakes Activities Association champion Farmington Hills Harrison at 1 p.m. Saturday at Harrison.

As for the Falcons, first-year coach Bernie Call saw enough positive things to be encouraged about his fledgling program despite the lopsided loss, which dropped Farmington to 0-2.

"OUR GOAL this week was to play more consistently," Call said, believing the Falcons made strides in that regard. "If we had played this well against West Bloomfield, we could have won that ballgame."

"I think we're 1,000 percent improved, though the score probably doesn't show it. I feel a helluva lot better after this game than I did last time."

The major problem Farmington faced on Saturday was Canton quarterback Karl Wukie, who rolled up 229 yards in total offense, passed for two touchdowns and ran for another TD.

Wukie hurt the Falcons several times with his end runs and wound up being Canton's leading rusher with 88 yards on just six carries. He was 7-of-14 passing for 142 yards, though he did throw two interceptions.

Wukie was one of the four or five players who pulled the Chiefs through to victory, according to Khoenle, and another was certainly wide receiver Brett Howell. He had four receptions for 115 yards — one being a TD catch after falling in the end zone and a 60-yarder that set up another score.

"He had real good concentration on the ball," Khoenle said. "And it was a good thing, too, because we really did not play good football."

CANTON TAILBACK Jason Riggs exploited a weakness on the Farmington perimeter when he dashed 31 yards to the Farmington 1-yard line on Canton's first offensive play. He scored on the next play, and the Chiefs had an 8-0 lead at 9:07 after Wukie passed to Liam Rentz for the conversion.

Riggs finished with 73 yards on 13 carries, and fullback Chris James had 60 yards on 11 attempts. But it was Wukie's long gainers on the outside that did the most damage.

"They have such big people on offense they get out on our small people and blow them away," Call said. "They really hurt us on the corners."

"The rules in football really hurt the small kid in the game, because you can't take a blocker down below the waist. They have to stand up and fight these big kids."

Farmington, aided by a face-mask penalty that put the ball at Canton's 18, cut the margin to 8-6 late in the first quarter. Steve Walter caught the first of two TD passes, this one being a 10-yarder from quarterback Dave Link.

Khoenle thought the Chiefs let up after needing only two plays to score.

"IT WAS TOO easy; we got our touchdown too easily," Khoenle said. "Not to take anything away from Farmington, but that has a bearing on kids psychologically."

"I guess it's just kids. They think they're going to come in here and just win the game. We get on them and pump it up for a while, but they go back to their old habits. Our consistency isn't near where we want it to be."

Howell's 37-yard reception — after he had tipped the ball and fallen to his back in the end zone — capped another two-play drive, and Wukie's 9-yard toss to Roger Eaton following a Riggs interception made it 22-6 with five minutes left in the half.

The Falcons stayed in the game, however. An illegal block on a Farmington punt kept the drive alive, and Link converted on fourth-and-three with a pass to Chris Marting. Todd Wight threw a 25-yard halfback pass to Walter for the TD and a 22-13 score.

But Howell's 60-yard catch put Canton at the Farmington 8 with 19 seconds left in the half, and Wukie's rushing TD gave the Chiefs a 30-13 halftime lead.

Canton extended it to 43-13 with scoring runs of 9 and 1 yard by Mike Wougamon in the second half before the Falcons assembled an 11-play scoring drive against Canton's second-team defense. Ryan Adams ran 5 yards for the TD.

Marting had 49 yards on 11 carries to lead Farmington, and Link was 8-of-21 passing for 88 yards. Canton outgained the Falcons 387-189.

"Our problem is more a coaching problem," Call said. "We're still searching for the best defense we can play with the type of kids we have. The kids are playing their hearts out. We just have to get them in the right places and doing the right things."

Numbers boost Canton outlook

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Canton girls swim coach Hooker Wellman is faced with a pleasant dilemma this year — too many people for one pool.

Wellman has 54 swimmers on the team, making Canton one of the largest teams — if not the largest — in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"We don't have enough space," Wellman said. "We'll have to split practice time and stay a little later, but that's all right."

The Chiefs count 34 letter winners among their large numbers, but the seven who graduated included two of Observerland's best — Nicole Drake, who was eighth in the state in the 500-yard freestyle, and Cassie Cummins. Kristy Brugar and Kelly Rische also were instrumental in Canton finishing third in the WLAA.

But the Chiefs return plenty of veteran swimmers who should see to it that Canton remains competitive in the league.

"WE LOST A lot of strength from last year's team, but I feel we could have a good team," Wellman said.

swimming

Meet results, Page 2C

"We've got some possible depth development, but we're not there yet — and maybe not by the end of the season. We'll be much improved by then, but I'm not sure we can replace the ones we lost. Sometimes it's not just times but the consistency, too."

Seniors Pam Pritchard, Chris Lang, Tami Santomauro, Becky Holsington and Erica Carson head the list of returning swimmers.

Pritchard, who hurt her back last year and couldn't finish the season, is probably the strongest swimmer on the team and will swim freestyle, especially the 200 and 100 races.

Northville topples Rocks

By Dan O'Neare
staff writer

Offense was supposed to be the strength of Northville's football team, and the Mustangs supported that contention Friday night.

The Mustangs moved the ball when the situation demanded it and finished 21-14 winners over Plymouth Salem at Centennial Educational Park.

But Northville's defense showed itself capable of complementing a veteran offense, containing the triple-option attack of the Rocks.

Salem tailback Leon Hister had another fine game, however, as he rushed for 128 yards on 17 carries, giving him 253 yards and six TDs in two games.

But a big chunk of his yardage came on a 58-yard scoring run that gave the Rocks a 7-0 lead midway in the second quarter. Salem had just 33 additional yards on the ground and 251 total.

"WE DO SO many things alike," Northville coach Darrell Schumacher said. "We throw standing up (with quick passes to wideouts in the flats), and they go down the line and pitch the ball. So we've been practicing against ourselves all week."

Schumacher said the Mustangs focused on stopping Salem quarterback Chris Tebben, first of all. He was 6-of-12 passing for 90 yards — an impressive sum for the run-oriented Rocks.

"He kept getting things open for (Hister in the season opener)," Schumacher said. "We wanted to force the ball into Hister's hands and then go after him."

"If you can get the ball to one person, that's a lot easier. When they're optioning the ball back there, you don't know what they're going to do."

football

After Salem started the scoring, the Mustangs responded with a drive that tied the score, and Northville stayed in control offensively until the game had been all but decided.

Junior quarterback Ryan Huzjak led a balanced offense, throwing for 153 yards and two TDs on 11-of-23 passing and rushing for 50 yards on 13 carries. Ryan Kilner was the team's top rusher with 64 yards.

"WHAT COST us the game is they were able to convert on third-and-long," Salem coach Tom Moshimer said. "Our defense would play well for two downs and let them off the hook too many times."

"We did not block well on the option, and they did a great job of defending us. We were moving it early, but it seemed they widened out, took a gamble and flew some people. And they hurt us."

"Northville came to play, and they deserved to win," he added. "I think that Western side of the conference had better look out."

Following Hister's TD run, the Mustangs got a break when lineman Jason Vertrees recovered Huzjak's fumble after the QB rambled 22 yards on first down. Huzjak added a 19-yard run before scoring on a 2-yard push that forced a 7-7 halftime tie.

Northville used up a lot of the second-half clock with a second scoring drive. The Mustangs converted third-and-6 and fourth-and-4 plays along the way.

Bill Kelley's 2-yard run for a TD was nullified by a holding penalty, but Huzjak passed 10 yards to Kelley on the next play for a 14-7 lead early in the fourth quarter.

"WE RETURNED our offensive line," said Schumacher of Northville's sharpness on offense. "When you bring your linemen back, a lot of things can happen. They've been running the offense for a year and a half."

"We're still not set on defense, but overall the kids came to play. We've got a lot of young kids who are starting to play and seniors who are giving them good leadership."

Northville got another break when it recovered a Tebben fumble at the Salem 43-yard line and drove for the winning TD, using up nearly four minutes in the process.

Kelley, who just missed making an end-zone reception on the previous play, burned the Salem secondary for a 28-yard TD catch that made it 21-7 with 5:20 remaining.

Salem answered quickly as Tebben engineered a five-play drive that pulled the Rocks within a TD with plenty of time (3:47) to play. Tebben completed three passes and carried the final 2 yards.

The Rocks held Northville on downs and got the ball back with 1:52 left. But, on fourth-and-1 at the opposing 48, Hister was stopped a nose short of the first down.

"I think (the loss) was an awakening," Moshimer said. "I think some of our younger players got a lesson in life. You have to work hard for success. Sometimes it takes something like this to make people realize that."

Canton, Salem rip soccer foes

Junior midfielder Chris Hayes scored three goals as Plymouth Canton defeated Farmington 6-1 in soccer Wednesday.

Quang Quach, Jason Ripp and Brett Kearney scored the other goals for the Chiefs, who evened their record at 2-2. The Falcons are 0-1.

Ripp also had two assists, and Quach, Craig Miller and Scott Jones one apiece. Mike Giese scored the lone goal for Farmington, which trailed 2-0 at halftime.

Ryan Henkel played the first half in goal for Canton and Jim Bradley the second half.

"For a young team like us, it was a good game," Canton coach Don Smith said. "The Falcons played tough, hard. The score doesn't indicate how close it was."

The Chiefs got a wake-up call, according to Smith, when they lost 3-0 at Trenton on Tuesday. Canton trailed 2-0 at halftime in that game.

"They wanted to show they could play with us," said Smith of the Trojans, "and I guess they did. They won every 50-50 ball. It was a good game; it woke us up."

PLYMOUTH SALEM stretched its unbeaten record to 4-0 Wednesday by blasting North Farmington 5-0.

But not all was good news for the Rocks, who lost defender Tom Baker with strained knee ligaments for at least two weeks, according to coach Ken Johnson.

"Hopefully, he'll be back for the big games," Johnson said.

Baker and Brad Fisch scored first-half goals to stake the Rocks to a 2-0 halftime lead.

Joe Tippman scored twice in the second half, and Andy Cosenza, who got an assist on Baker's goal, accounted for a goal, too.

Salem's Chris Lajoy had two assists, Ryan Fitzpatrick and Ryan Kramer one each.

CEP teams impressive

Plymouth Canton opened the 1990 girls swimming season Thursday with an impressive, 142-44 win over visiting Novi.

The Chiefs dominated the entire meet, winning all 11 events and taking the top three places in six events.

"It's good to get the first one in," Canton coach Hooker Wellman said. "The kids are swimming really competitively, because the team is so large and they are looking for a spot in the lineup. (The meet) was a good indication of how we've been training."

Eight different swimmers captured individual titles.

Headlining the evening was diver Amy Kodrik, who recorded a personal best with 212.05 points in winning the event. Kodrik was given some strong competition from Becky Hoisington, who gathered 201.15 points in taking second place.

In the racing events, Jeni Cooper won the 200-yard freestyle in 2:11.10; Tami Santomauro won the 50 freestyle, 27.36; Chris Lang took first in the 100 butterfly, 1:08.19; Pam Pritchard won the 100 freestyle, 59.04; Janet Roberts won the 500 freestyle, 6:08.67; Nicole Montresor placed first in the 100 backstroke, 1:09.05; and Stacey Belisle scored a first in the 100 breaststroke, 1:21.07.

Santomauro, Pritchard, Cooper and Lang also were vital contributors on more than one relay team.

The foursome combined to win the 200 freestyle relay in 1:49.14. Winning the 200 medley relay in 2:06.24 were Montresor, Belisle, Erica Carson and Santomauro, while Roberts, Lang, Cooper and Lesley Moore teamed to win the 400 freestyle relay in 4:08.18.

Canton travels to Belleville Tuesday for another non-conference meet.

SALEM 116, YPSILANTI 70: Candi Bosse was sweet Thursday in Plymouth Salem's season opener at home, winning one event and swimming a leg on two winning relays.

Bosse took first place in the 100 butterfly (1:05.37). She also swam with Carrie VanderWeele, Amy Austin and Stephanie Long in winning the 200 medley-relay (2:03.16) and later teamed with Julie Hickey, Anne Toms and Long to win the 400 freestyle relay (4:07.50).

Hickey also starred individually, winning both the 50 freestyle (27.48) and 100 freestyle (1:00.85) events.

Salem coach Chuck Olson managed to find a spot for all 47 of his swimmers in the meet, and that was as important to him as winning.

"It's kind of important to get everyone in, and I wanted to give the ones that have been around quite a while an opportunity to see what they could do," Olson said. "It's a task to get everyone in and still win. I feel good about it."

Other first-place swimmers included Toms, 200 freestyle (2:13.02); VanderWeele, 100 backstroke (1:08.46); and Amy Homan, 100 breaststroke (1:18.41).

Chiefs still 1st-division team

and individual medley, Santomauro the 50 freestyle. Hoisington and junior Amy Kodrik provide the Chiefs with one of the top diving combinations around, and Carson's special event is the butterfly.

Other returning team members are juniors Janet Roberts, Beth Yack, Jeni Cooper, Jennifer Hartke, Julie Daoust, April Billins, Stacy Belisle, Nicole Montresor, Dawn Sammut and Lesley Moore and sophomore Sonya McWhirter. All are improved swimmers and doing well, according to Wellman.

ROBERTS, POSSIBLY the top distance freestyler, Cooper and Sammut also are freestyle swimmers. Yack supplies depth in the butterfly and IM. Belisle and Moore are the top prospects in the breast stroke, and Montresor and Billins are the leading backstrokers.

Canton's large team includes 22 freshmen, and some of them could help the Chiefs this year. Jill Mellis, Jill Barnes, Sara Larson, Jennie Frost, Kathryn Yack, Kim Reynolds and Beth Berger are some of the top incoming talents.

"I'm real pleased with the freshmen we've got," Wellman said. "They can swim all the strokes, and I'm confident we're going to be a good team. Maybe not next year but in a couple years."

"We'll be all right this year, but there's some real talent out here that just needs to be trained."

The large numbers and good young swimmers also have created a lot of competition, Wellman said.

"We've got kids who've been here four years and see the handwriting on the wall," he said. "They know if they can't improve there isn't a spot for them, because there's kids everywhere and all of them are fighting for a spot on the team."

CANTON'S 200 medley relay is apt to consist of Montresor, Belisle, Lang and Santomauro, the 400 freestyle unit Roberts, Cooper, Hartke and Pritchard. A 200 freestyle relay has been added this year, and the Chiefs will probably have Cooper, Santomauro, Lang and Pritchard in that event.

North Farmington is a strong possibility to repeat as WLA champion, according to Wellman, but Livonia Stevenson, Livonia Churchill, Plymouth Salem, Northville and Canton will contend.

"We hope to place in the top six — the higher the better," he said. "I hope to see everybody swimming their best times at championship time. Any one (of the above teams) has a shot if they can come together."

Veteran duo leads PS cross country

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

A pair of veterans, John Thomas and Mike Patterson, will try to lead Plymouth Salem's young boys cross country team to another banner season under coach Geoff Baker.

But the Rocks, who last fall won their second Lakes Division title in the last three years, might be hard-pressed to duplicate such success. Salem has 25 runners on its preseason roster, but only five are returning letter winners.

The Rocks placed fifth out of seven teams at Thursday's Ypsilanti "Early Bird Invitational," showing there is room for improvement down the line. Monroe won the Invitational and Canton placed second.

"WE'LL BE DOING a lot of work in September," Baker said. "I hope by the first of October we will be in good shape and standing in the division. We'll need to improve a lot to challenge for the top spot."

Graduated off last year's team are Brendon Masterson, Samir Bhavsar, Dave Hamway and Brian Uryga. But Baker is excited about the return of Thomas and Patterson, each of whom is entering his third year on the varsity. Thomas was seventh overall at the Ypsilanti Invitational and Patterson was 20th.

Both were key performers on a team that last year took sixth place at the Class A meet, third in the Western Lakes Activities Association and third at the regional.

"Both John and Mike are hard workers," Baker said. "They're my captains and will pace the team. With their hard work ethic, they should represent Salem at the state meet."

Whether the entire Salem team can join the pair is questionable. Trying to lend support will be senior Andy Hellmers, juniors Matt Cifaldi and Steve Boudreau and sophomores Derek Cudini and Todd Bolton.

SOME PROMISING newcomers include junior Jayson McDonald and sophomores Matt Erickson and Jamie Miller.

"If we stay free from injury, we could try for a third division championship," Baker said. "Canton and Walled Lake Western will be one-two in the conference and Salem and Farmington next."

Chiefs impressive in season opener

Plymouth Canton made a strong showing in its boys cross country debut Thursday, finishing second to perennial power Monroe in the annual Ypsilanti Invitational.

Mike Ream paced the Chiefs with a third-place finish, running 17:32. Jason Crain was ninth, Chris Nelson 11th, Dave Yack 17th and Shawn McNamara 18th.

"We're real pleased," Canton coach Jim Hayes said. "We had a couple of sophomores at (places) four and five, and they did a heckuva job. It's going to be an exciting season, and we're looking forward to the next race."

Monroe scored 38 points, the Chiefs 58. Pinckney was third with 71 points followed by Belleville (118), Plymouth Salem (120), Sterling Heights Stevenson (131) and Livonia Stevenson (171).

John Thomas finished seventh overall for Salem and teammate Mike Patterson 20th.

Canton's JV squad also finished second with Kirk Stewart and Ryan McClain running first and second for the Chiefs, respectively.

Marian downs Canton

Marian coach Mary Lillie-Cicerone said she was pleased with her team's offense, but she thinks the defense could have played better.

"WE DIDN'T execute well on our half-court defense," Lillie-Cicerone said. "We allowed their big people to get the ball and easily shoot it."

One of Canton's biggest weapons was 6-foot center Stephanie Gray. The sophomore scored 14 points. Senior guard Mary Berna also tallied 14 for the Chiefs.

"Barna played well for us," Blohm said. "Her outside shots were really falling."

Marian forward Carmie Garofalo poured in a game-high 16 points to pace the winners. Center Trina Govan and forward Stephanie Storen added 14 and 10 points, respectively.

The Mustangs raised their record to 3-0, while the Chiefs fell to 1-2. Canton's only win of the season came Tuesday when it defeated host Trenton 42-35. Barna scored 19 points to lead the Chiefs.

Fall bowling leagues ready to roll

THE REGULAR SEASON has officially started, the scores are coming in, and it looks like a great year ahead for the local bowling scene.

There are still many vacancies among the leagues, so any interested parties can get in on all the action. The lanes are basically the same as in the past several years, "short oil" being the prevailing condition. In some instances, the content of the substance that is applied to the lanes may be from newer and better formulas, however, the differences may be hard to detect.

I expect to see a lot of high scoring from all 30 bowling centers being covered in the Observer & Eccentric communities. Again, I ask the league officers to report the scores to the counter and someone will keep up a list and report them. If the scores go unreported, they will not appear in the "Ten Pin Alley."

• A reminder to anyone who would like to win $10,000. The entry blanks are still on the counters at all BCA establishments. Anyone 21 or over can enter and it is free. You might even win a dinner for two at one of the fine "Charley's" restaurants in the metro Detroit area. Last day to enter is Sept. 14.

• The Greater Detroit Bowling Council has finalized its selections for the Bowling Hall of Fame. The inductees will be honored at a dinner (open to the public) Sunday, Nov. 4 at the Polish Century Club. Tickets are $25 each and will cover cocktails and dinner. Cocktails will be served from 5 to 6 p.m. and awards will be presented right after dinner. This year's inductees to the Greater Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame are:

• Harry Campbell — He captained the Stroh's Beer team to two ABC tournament titles, is currently averaging around 217 in the All-Star Classic League and has 11 sanctioned 300 games and three 800 series. Campbell was on the all-city team first or second places from 1969-74, and was a winner of many tournaments locally and on the national level. In 1989, he was voted the GDBA Meritorious Service Award winner and also was chosen bowler's "Man of the Year," by the Michigan State Bowling Association.

• Terry Grant — an outstanding bowler, she has two 300 games to her credit and a 790 high series. She has maintained a 200 average for several seasons, was the Michigan Queens Tournament Champion in '84. Grant has bowled in all seven tournaments, placing fifth in '87, third in '88 and third this year in Bay City.

10-pin alley

She has won many individual, team and doubles championships and was the Detroit all-events champion in 1988. Grant was named to the Michigan Women's Bowling Association Hall of Fame earlier this year.

• Margaret Lewis — She started bowling in 1956 at Twenty Grand Recreation and has organized several leagues and went on to instruct young bowlers. Lewis was the first black female Brunswick certified Bowling Instructor, and the first black to participate in the WIBC Queens Tournament. Her team won two state titles and one in the DWBA Tournament.

• Robert Kwiecien — Not only a great bowler, Kwiecien also was a good promoter of the game. He has won many titles, among them the ABC Doubles Championship; the Fred Wolk's singles, twice; and the father and son tournament with his son Todd. He has two sanctioned 300 games, one in the world five-man tournament in Milwaukee. He received the Gentleman of the Year award during the World Invitational in Chicago.

• Jim Bennett — He is currently vice president of world-wide sales and service of Brunswick Bowling and Billiards Division. Bennett is actively involved in the committee for bowling in the Olympics and "Team USA." He was a member of the board of directors for the National Bowling Hall of Fame and Museum in St. Louis, Mo. Bennett supported and sponsored many bowling events and activities in the Michigan/Detroit area.

• Ron Seibel — A member of the GDBA board of directors since 1971, and president of the association during the 1982-83 season. He has been a promoter of bowling for many years, is a former president of the Lutheran Bowling Tournament, and he served as president of the Old Timers Bowling Association in the 1987-88 season. He coordinated the Bowling Booth at the State Fair and the AARP convention.

• Judge Richard M. Maher — For many years, he's been one of bowling's staunchest supporters. A speaker at many of the local bowling functions, he has worked closely with those in bowling to help "open doors" and be of assistance wherever he could. The judge is always present at the hall of fame and awards banquets.

• Any youngsters 12 and up looking for the best competition can find it in the local traveling leagues. The Western Wayne Youth Travel League is still looking for a few good bowlers, ages 12-21, with about a 140 average or better. They bowl at Plaza Lanes (Plymouth), Town & Country (Westland), Westland Bowl, Wayne Bowl and Lodge Lanes (Belleville).

For further information, call either Norm Kluska at 522-1243, Joyce Zelek, at 453-2388, or Hal Winters, at 459-5380.

For information on the Ward-Burger King Youth Traveling Classic League, call Betty Heider at 542-5690. The Sunday Youth Classic is another good one. Call Ed Wright at 477-5047, or Brenda McDonald at 474-0359.

• Bel Aire Lanes in Farmington has openings for three more teams in the Wednesday 6:45 p.m. Men's Kegler's League. These are four-man teams. Also needing teams are the Thursday 8 p.m. Ladies, Friday 6:30 p.m. West Side Men's, and the Friday 9:30 p.m. Mixed.

Life's a squeal behind the wheel

By Sharon Dergay
staff writer

I'm a car potato.
That's something like a couch potato with tires.
I can balance enchiladas on my lap and sip coffee from a mug secured in a Kleenex box while cruising at expressway speeds.
I can brush on eye shadow, read "Mobile Office Magazine," fix nail polish, and compose full sentences on Hardees napkins at an idle.
And I look forward to the day Michigan revises its driving test to reflect real life driving skills like the "one-handed grope through grocery bags for taco chips while backing out of a parking space at the supermarket" and the "stop eye shadow go/stop blusher go/stop lipstick go" maneuver for busy career women in bumper-to-bumper traffic.
Stopping as close as possible to the bank's ATM machine without scraping off paint will end up replacing parallel parking on the road exam. And the drive-through car wash, oil change and party store will become a normal part of the testing route. When that happens, I'll be prepared because I spend a lot of time behind the wheel sharpening my skills. Some days I don't even get out of the car.
In fact, it's possible to spend an entire day in the driver's seat running errands, dining out and goofing off.

You can be a car potato, too.
Just start your engines, keep an eye on these tips and cruise:

YOUR FIRST destination will set the tone of your behind-the-wheel odyssey, so start with something fun. A parade is a good bet. But which one?

The neighborhood association's "tot'n'trike promenade" may be fine for the amateur, but remember there's no place to put the handlebar streamers and spoke flappers, so you'll lose points for appearance.

Don't even think about entering Michigan's Thanksgiving Day Parade unless you're an expert at driving with an oversized papier-mache head. Even if you master this subtle art of masquerade, the little Shriner car will prove impractical later in the day when you cruise up to the ATM machine or take-out window.

A community parade, like Troy Daze on Sept. 23 or the Rochester Christmas parade on Dec. 2, may be the answer.

At Westland's Festival Parade, you might be lucky enough to find a spot between a marching band and Girl Scout Troop 947 from Patchin Elementary School, like I did this summer.

But before hitting the road (or the brass section, if you're a tailgater), consider car appearance and music.

You're going to drive the car all day, so keep decorations simple. A tasteful monogram on the hood made out of an old bathmat makes a sophisticated statement.

AND MUSIC? You're probably wondering, "Should I tow a child prodigy and his pipe organ on a flatbed or hire strolling accordian players?"

Sometimes a good car radio is all it takes.

Me: I like Elvis Costello.

Friend: Yeah, he's one of my favs.

Me: But we're behind a marching band and we're going to hear their music.

Friend: Oh no we're not. Trust me. They're going to hear ours. Now let's see, where's that tape of "Squeeze?"

Crank up the stereo to full volume. And don't forget to wave to the crowd.

Next, tackle at least one errand.
Maybe you need to drop off dry cleaning at the drive-up window of Birmingham Cleaners.

Or you've finished watching another Bob Hope-Bing Crosby "On the Road" video and happen to be near the Blockbuster Video drop box in Troy.

Or you're ready to take film to Kinetic Photo's drive-through processing lab in Royal Oak.

If it's time to re-stock the fridge with a few simple staples, head for The Beer Depot in Westland, a drive-through grocery store. It's the tunnel of love for people who count soda pop and candy bars among their objects of affection.

Film gore devalues life

Although this column strongly condemned the sadistic and repulsive displays of violence in Sam Raimi's "Darkman" and Jimmy Linton's "Mirror, Mirror," other critics have been favorable in their assessments.

It's a shame that our society has so little regard of life that it spends millions for "entertainment" which depicts death. Mitch Albom summed it up extremely well in his Aug. 5 column headed, "For most people, death no big deal." "Our movie theaters are making people famous for simulated mass executions. All the carnage . . . robs us, bit by bit, of our horror, our outrage, until eventually we become inured to death, particularly the death of strangers. We surrender our compassion. We stop feeling for those who really suffer."

He's exactly right and all those who think gross and graphic displays of death and mutilation are entertaining, let me invite you to the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College in November for a screening of documentary footage shot in Nazi concentration camps during World War II. There will be an opportunity to compare footage of Nazi atrocities with some current horror films. A discussion will follow.

Watch this column for specific details as to time and place.

No new films opened this week but everyone's looking forward to next week's premiere of Meryl Streep and Shirley MacLaine in "Postcards From the Edge." Directed by Mike Nichols from a screenplay by Carrie Fisher based on her novel, "Postcards" should be one of the top at-

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

Jason Patric and Rachel Ward star as a pair of loners drawn to each other in "After Dark, My Sweet."

'After Dark' lacks visuals

By John Moneghan
special writer

He shuffles aimlessly, punch-drunk down a lonely highway. He reaches a four-way stop and, instead of heading straight, turns off to the left. "They were pretty decent to me back there," says the voice-over narration, "until I got restless."

The scene is vintage film noir, straight out of "Detour" or "The Postman Always Rings Twice." And while the evocatively titled "After Dark, My Sweet" touches on the classic noir themes of alienation, femme fatales, shady pasts, and multiple double crosses, the new film lacks the visual style to carry it off.

The source is a pulpy '50s paperback from late writer Jim Thompson. This "dime store Dostoyevsky," as one Village Voice writer hailed him, worked with Stanley Kubrick on "The Killing" and "Paths of Glory" before fading into obscurity. Now several directors are adapting his books.

In the story, an ex-boxer named "Kid" Collins has had one blow to his head too many. In flashback, we watch him kill a man in the ring — take off his gloves and beat the guy's brains out. Now, recently released from a mental institution, he falls head-first into a kidnapping scheme.

JASON PATRIC, hair going every which way and clothes you can practically smell, looks appropriately disheveled as Collins. Though fashionably unshaven, he's rarely romantic or handsome. The ubiquitous steamy sex scene with Rachel Ward is shot in a series of tasteful fade-outs — more nervous and awkward than passionate because you don't know if such extreme emotion will set him off.

Bruce Dern plays Uncle Bud, a tanned, gray-haired ex-police detective with a penchant for bright, wide-collared shirts. He's surprisingly low-key here, as if he's trying to make up for the movie's derivativeness by offering an atypical performance.

"After Dark, My Sweet" needs Dern to jump-start it — a wild character or situation tossed in, perhaps a little humor. Instead, director and co-writer James Foley treats the tone of his source much too faithfully. It's appropriately existential and depressing but not very satisfying to watch.

It's not fair to criticize "After Dark, My Sweet" for being predictable. Still, it's hard not to think back to films like "Blood Simple" which breathed new and exciting life into an antique genre.

Like its boxer protagonist, "After Dark, My Sweet" weaves and wobbles around the screen with painful futility. Collins sums up the film himself in a line that harkens back to generations of film noir losers before him: "I was in a rut but had to follow it to the end of the line."

VIDEO VIEWING

Videos educate, entertain

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

Before the onslaught of video horror releases for Halloween begins, take a look at some of the more redeeming materials released this month. Some of them are so good viewers may even learn something.

Prism Entertainment, associated with Paramount Home Video, has just released three new volumes in its "Tell Me Why" series, a video encyclopedia "designed to capture your child's imagination." Volume 16-18, "Sports and Games," "Science, Sound and Energy" and "Beginnings: Civilization and Government" compliment the 15 previously released tapes.

Retailing for just under $15, these 30-minute tapes in color are billed as "suitable for all ages." Each tape is designed to convey basic information — for example, Volume 18 asks, "Why are there 12 jurors?"

The previously released titles are largely scientific — "Water and Weather," "Gems, Metals and Minerals," "Insects," "Mammals," and "Medicine" although in addition to the newly received "Sports and Games" and "Civilization and Government," Volume 6, "Americana" covers American History.

THESE VIDEOS are based on a series of books and newspaper columns by Arkady Leokum with each volume answering over 50 questions with graphics and film footage. The series has garnered a lot of positive reviews.

While we're improving ourselves, let's do something on video for the environment. MCA/Universal Home Video's Sept. 13 release of "Help Save Planet Earth: Easy Ways to Make a Difference" offers practical and specific information for simple, daily activities which will help preserve our environment.

Hosted by Ted Danson, "Help Save Planet Earth" is a 71-minute, color video priced at $14.95 featuring Beau and Lloyd Bridges, Max Casella, Jaime Lee Curtis, Whoopi Goldberg, Sally Kellerman, Cheech Marin, John Ritter, Sinbad, Kedric Robin Wolfe and Milton Berle. That's quite a line-up.

Practicing what they preach, "Help Save Planet Earth" is produced on reclaimed tape stock and packaged in a sleeve produced from recycled board. An aqueous acrylic coating is utilized instead of the usual plastic coating so that the package itself is recyclable.

A portion of the proceeds from this video will be donated to the American Oceans Campaign, a non-profit, non-partisan national oceans advocacy organization. Here's a worthwhile, entertaining program offering a multitude of tips on how to save and improve our environment. Let's clean up our act, our backyards and the rest of the town as well.

AFTER ALL that education and environmental improvement, it's time for a little entertainment.

Tied in with their environmental salvage program, MCA/Universal is celebrating "Woody Woodpecker's" 50th Anniversary with a special edition of his cartoons. Woody is the official mascot for the national Parks and Conservation Association and as well as several other environmental and "Buckle-Up" safety-belt programs.

Each of the two Woody volumes being released include four cartoons running a total of 30-minutes. They're in color and retail for $12.95.

"Babar's First Step," first televised last year, is a 49-minute tape in which Babar recounts, for his son Alexander, an adventure from his youth. It's $14.95 from Family Home Entertainment who also are releasing "Black Beauty" and "Around the World in 80 Days" on September 13. Both are animated, 63 minutes long and first released on TV in 1989. Suggested retail is $14.95.

If cats are still chasing birds, then it's appropriate that "Garfield" follows Woody Woodpecker in his home video, debut this month. "Here Comes Garfield," "Garfield on the Town" and "Garfield Goes Hollywood" each run 24 minutes and retail for $12.98.

For the grown-ups, three noted foreign films, several Bolshoi ballet performances and a prize-winning independent American film were added to the Connoisseur Video Collection last month.

Both Alain Resnais' "Last Year at Marienbad" (1961, B&W, 90 minutes) and "Les Choses De La Vie" (1970, color, 90 minutes) directed by Claude Sautet and starring Romy Schneider are in French with English sub-titles.

"Chinese Roulette" (1976, B&W, 98 minutes) is a lesser known film by Rainer Werner Fassbinder in German with English sub-titles. "Heat and Snail" (1987, B&W, 98 minutes) won the grand prize at the U.S. Film Festival and was directed by Rob Nilsson who also stars.

The Bolshoi performances, taped in the spring of 1989, feature "The Nutcracker," "The Sleeping Beauty," "Swan Lake" and "Raymonda."

"Without You, I'm Nothing" (USA - 1990). Through Sept. 13. Performance artist Sandra Bernhard's one-woman Off-Broadway show makes it to the screen in an occasionally profound, mostly pretentious discussion of everything from Barbra Streisand to sex.

"Gold Diggers of 1935" (USA - 1935). 9 p.m. Sept. 11-12. Great musical fun from Busby Berkeley, featuring the classic number "Lullaby of Broadway."

"Rebecca" (USA - 1940). Sept. 14-16. A 50th anniversary tribute to Alfred Hitchcock's first American film, about a young bride existing in the heavy shadow of her husband's late wife. With Joan Fontaine and Laurence Olivier.

STREET BEATS

Beyond the lights, Largebeat rocks with a feisty '60s style of sound.

Bright lights and a Largebeat

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

The first thing you notice at a Mr. Largebeat Existence show is the lights — two eerie ultra-violet lights, to be exact. They cast a weird psychedelic glow over the band and the specially painted back-drop. The effect is pure 1960s, reminiscent of lava lights, love beads and groovy music.

"The lights are our claim to fame," said Kurt VanderVoort, bassist for the group. "They're kind of fun, but I keep forgetting the sun screen. I feel like I should have plants on stage with me."

He laughs. But that's usual. VanderVoort is the kind of guy who seems like he laughs a lot. Nearly every sentence he says is punctuated by a laugh, a hearty and booming laugh. That's OK because his jokes are funny.

'The lights are our claim to fame. They're kind of fun, but I keep forgetting the sun screen. I feel like I should have plants on stage with me.'

— Kurt VanderVoort
bassist

Everyone in the band — Jim Gertz on vocals and theremin, Matt Brezinezski on drums and Dave Surovell on guitar — exudes this same sort of friendliness. Perhaps that's why these guys are so popular — they don't have the I'm-so-cool-because-I'm-a-giant-rock-star mentality.

Or maybe it's their '60s sound.

They, none too surprisingly, list the big guns of that era as influences — the Who, the Beatles, Pink Floyd and the Stones.

PART OF that '60s sound comes from Gertz's strange instrument, the aforementioned theremin. A theremin is one of the first synthesizers ever made, but it's not a keyboard. It has something to do with manipulating magnetic fields or some other such scientific thing. Jimmy Page used one in a few early Led Zeppelin tunes and old science fiction movies in the '50s used it to make eerie, outer space sounds.

"I saw a rerun of Andy Griffith," said VanderVoort, laughing, "and they used it to get a weird, spooky sound."

Apparently some people nowadays must like it because Mr. Largebeat is slowly attracting a devoted audience.

"It's the typical cliché," said VanderVoort, "We have a small but loyal following."

VanderVoort credited this to the band's ability to change their song list according to what type of audience they're playing for.

Toadstool works out the warts

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

A band whose subtleties are precious matched with a guy from a pedal to the metal outfit like Soul Asylum — Sounds like a studio tug-a-war leaving more than a few rope burns.

"Welllll, . . . not really," said Brad White, guitarist for the Twin/Tone band Toadstool who performs Tuesday, Sept. 11, at Club Heidelberg. "David (Pirner) is a pretty laid-back guy."

"Dynamics is very important to this band. If we had a little bit more time in the studio, it would've come out more. Like, perhaps, using a little more piano."

Piano?! This is a Twin/Tone band we're talking about here. Loud, raucous, you know, the Replacements and Soul Asylum kind of thing.

But Toadstool is branching off with its own sound, which can be rough and tumble. On the band's debut LP "The Sun Highway," elements such as jazz rhythms, funk and folk are incorporated with the right amount of subtleties to elevate Toadstool beyond the often derivative thrash and trash lot.

THE BOSTON-BASED group has evolved from aforementioned company, breaking with its past. White remembers listening to Toadstool's early stuff and found the band had disturbing similarities to a number of other "rad" groups.

As a result, Toadstool is still defining its sometimes rhythmic, sometimes apocalyptic yet most of the time intriguing sound.

White's guitar style is the hallmark of Toadstool's sound. He can be as loud as a D.C. 10 upon take off. His better moments come when he experiments and veers off into his own private domain such as in the number "Labello Conlessa."

A pair of numbers titled, "Bill's Chin" and "Bill's Gin" are performed in nine/eight time signatures to catch mood of the moment.

"He (Bill) is a fictitious character," White said. "John (Joyce, bassist) and I were walking up the highway after our van broke down."

BRICK BY BRICK

— Iggy Pop

It's a cold, cruel world out there, and Iggy Pop describes it vividly in Brick by Brick, his most recent release.

With a cast of musical heavies providing back-up, Pop sings, croons and talks his way through a listing of society's ills. In "Butt Town," for example, which brings to mind Hollywood, "Everyone's gazing/ at some body part/ that's the nature of art/ in Butt Town."

It is closer to Butt Town than to Detroit that Iggy now lives — as best he can. "I'm sliding like a lizard on my belly and back/ It's a miracle I haven't fallen through any cracks," he tells us.

In one of the more moving songs, he delivers a lecture about America's penchant for getting fat, lazy, and self-important: "We're the undefeated/ TV in the shade/ girls at all our parties/ we have really got it made."

Iggy, who may qualify as an aging rock and roller, came to prominence with the 1960s band The Stooges, one of Michigan's greatest musical exports. Iggy and the Stooges were preludes to punk, and Iggy was known for outrageousness on stage. He would (and still does) dive into crowds, wave something (apparently now deemed) obscene, and generally work himself into a bloodied frenzy.

He has been living a more healthy existence these days, getting healthy, eating right and all that. It shows on "Step By Step," which sounds in spots and snatches positively acoustic and totally West Coast.

It was produced by Oak Park native and studio wunderkind Don Was, and features several other musical whizzes, among them members of the producer's band, Was (Not Was); John Hiatt, who contributes a song; session players Waddy Wachtel and David Lindley, who leads Iggy through a reggae beat on one tune; and Guns and Roses' Slash, who provides the guitar grind.

But lest we think he's getting too soft, he promises that he "won't crap out," in a song that includes an unexpected hail of curses.

— Brian Lysaght

COME DOWN HEAVY

— Thee Hypnotics

Dust off the lava lamp, get out the incense and pop in the latest tape "Come Down Heavy" from Thee Hypnotics and you may feel a bit like you've been caught in a time warp.

This British band believes the height of rock'n'roll was the Detroit sound circa 1969, and it shows in their style.

If history repeats itself it could very likely start on the wings of bands like Thee Hypnotics. There is nothing new here, but what we have is raw rock, void of the polish of today's pop sound.

Vibrant singer James Jones is caught somewhere between the likes of Jim Morrison and Keith Richard. In fact, their song "Resurrection Joe" sounds hauntingly like the Doors. The guitar style of Ray Hanson alone will bring you back to the era of "Hell No We Won't Go."

Their first cut "Half Man Half Boy," seems to bridge the gap a bit, it was a more modern INXS resemblance.

One of the best cuts of the bunch is the Jimi Hendrix facsimile called "Unearthed." Of course this is understandable because Hanson attributes Hendrix as one of his biggest influences. Woodstock never really dies, it's just reborn in albums like "Come Down Heavy."

Here is a band from England with its roots in the American music of the late '60s early '70s, I like that.

This CD package offers 10 high-intensity songs that will interest those who want a no-nonsense, getting back to the basics feeling. They're well-known in London, but just starting to get exposure here in the states.

You may have a problem distinguishing these guys from the multitude of other bands out there trying to capture the same market. But has this style of music been over played? Have we heard enough? Nah, I like that old time rock'n'roll.

So if you're yearning for something new in the spirit of the old, give Thee Hypnotics "Come Down Heavy" a try, I think you'll be pleased.

PRETTY HATE MACHINE

— Nine Inch Nails

As it says on the sleeve, Nine Inch Nails is Trent Reznor.

This album, on T.V.T. records, is his showcase. It is written, programmed, performed and produced by him. Yes . . . I did say programmed!!

Modern music, eh?!

My only exposure to the band was the video of NIN doing their single "Head Like a Hole," which is the lead off track of this album.

Anyone who has seen this band live (the video is filled with footage of the band playing live) will attest to the fact that it would not be a good idea to ask any member to babysit your pet poodle? Mr. Reznor has assembled a touring band that more resembles the cast from Mad Max than a rock'n'roll band.

The song itself also has a searing chorus with enough Ministry-style, chain-saw guitar to ensure instant eviction for anyone playing it above volume 2.

But a great song, nonetheless, dealing with the glorification and deification of materialism: "Bow down before the one you serve/

You're going to get what you deserve."

But what happens? The slide to mediocrity is swift.

It is followed by "Terrible Lie," a song of self doubt, looking for an answer to life, the universe and everything, berating God for not providing those answers to Mr. Reznor, who obviously deserves them.

On these occasions, musically NIN could be likened to an angry version of Depeche Mode without the melodic subtlety, with a penchant for religious undertones.

Reznor focuses on his self-pitying regrets and pseudo-religious paranoia best exemplified on "That's What I Get": "Just when everything was making sense, you took away all my self-confidence, now all that I've been hearing must be true/ I guess I'm not the only boy for you."

With "Head Like a Hole" and a disturbingly plaintive piano riff on "Something I Can Never Have" as exceptions, Pretty Hate Machine is somewhat of a disappointment.

Discovery masters difficulty

Dear Barbara:
How does an adult learn to face difficult situations and stop avoiding them?

Trying

Dear Trying:
I hope that you will sign your next letter "Succeeding."

An adult learns to face difficult situations in the same way that an intelligent child learns. If avoiding a difficult situation to an intelligent child means loss of dessert or TV privileges, then the smart child faces the difficult situation repeatedly until mastery is achieved. The child is then rewarded with feelings of pleasure, high self-esteem, confidence and chocolate cake. Have you ever watched a child playing with a puzzle, succeeding in placing the various pieces in their correct slots, and then beaming with joy as he or she kisses each hand?

Children are curious and investigative. In the back of their mind they believe that they will be rewarded. As you ask the question in the letter, you are afraid that you will get hurt. Your frame of reference is defeat-minded. The healthy child is success-minded.

A higher percentage of adults than children feel defeated before they start. You are in that higher percentage. Why not recapture the childhood joy of mastering discovery?

Toadstool: Loud and subtle

This guy comes stumbling down the highway. He has this big bottle of gin in one hand and a bottle of Sprite in the other. His eyes were lit up and his head was on fire. We said, "Wow."

Unfortunately for Toadstool, the band's debut album has not drawn such a response from college radio programmers. Cuts off "The Sun Highway" are only receiving a minimal amount of air play.

That doesn't appear to bother White too much. If anything, not being labeled as a trendy band seems to validate Toadstool's present course.

"WE DON'T have the impact of a particular sound that is considered chic right now," White said. "I think it's going to take some listening to us or seeing us. I think people have to come to us on our terms a little more."

Obviously, that will take time and touring. In Toadstool's brief two-year history, the band has remained grounded in the Midwest and on the East Coast.

The band formed in Minneapolis where White lived when he met up with Joyce, who performed with another Twin/Tone outfit, the Magnolias, on their first LP.

In the first year-and-a-half, the Toadstool had four different guys on the drum stool. Eventually, White and crew headed to his home town of Boston where they found Scott Sherman, who was a drummer with the Flies.

Finally, Toadstool entered Prince's purple palace, Paisley Park Studios to record the 12-song "The Sun Highway." Soul Asylum's Pirner was selected to produce the project.

"Overall, when you do your first record you take a shot in the dark and let someone lead you," White said. "Dave taught us some studio ethics and some other things."

"For David, it's kind of different. He's more like, 'Is this stuff necessary? Get to the point.' We thought the subtleties, the breaks here and there were important."

Toadstool will perform with the Magnolias on Tuesday, Sept. 11, at Club Heidelberg, 215 N. Main, Ann Arbor. For information, call 994-3562.

"We've learned about 12 old covers," he said. "That way, if an audience doesn't seem very receptive to Mr. Largebeat originals, they can start playing cover tunes."

"In a sense it's like being a chameleon."

For this ability they have been awarded with the usual pittance that musicians earn. VanderVoort recalled a time after playing a gig at an area nightclub when each of the band members had only earned about a dollar apiece. As they were leaving a man approached them asking for money. When they told the man they only had a dollar themselves, the man was shocked and told the band members they were definitely underpaid. He told the band in his day, musicians made good money.

VANDERVOORT AGREES with the assessment — being a musician is different than it used to be. He said that he has noticed a change in the music scene since the early 1980s.

"The bar scene has dried up," he added. "There used to be enough available places to sustain more bands. Now, bars can show more favoritism with bands."

It seems strange this would concern him. After all, Mr. Largebeat Existence seems to be on the good side of favoritism at several area clubs. "We're one of the lucky ones," VanderVoort said.

Indeed. For now, the band is starting work on a new 45 which they will record in a friend's studio. VanderVoort dismissed the band's earlier and mildly successful tape, "Sending Suzie Signals from Space," which was released at the beginning of the year. "It was just a practice for our 45," said VanderVoort.

So, if you own one of the earlier Mr. Largebeat Existence albums and you may think you may own one of their first records, you're wrong. Their real first record hasn't been released yet. So you'll just have to wait.

STREET CRACKS

'In Living Color' star turns laughs

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

There's no truth to the rumor boxer Tommy Hearns asked comedian Tommy Davidson for a rematch. But he should.

Davidson's impersonation of Sugar Ray Leonard is dead on. So is his stand-up routine, which has the comedy world abuzz.

He was recently picked as comedy's "Rising Star" by Rolling Stone magazine, has his own half-hour Showtime special, "Tommy Davidson: Takin' it to D.C.," and is generally lauded for his inventive style of humor. Davidson pulls into Detroit Saturday, Sept. 15, for Laugh Jam 1990 at ClubLand.

YET DAVIDSON'S biggest splash has probably come from being a regular on the Fox Network's surprise smash hit, "In Living Color," where his version of Leonard came to life in the gut-busting skit, "Three Champs and a Baby."

On the weekly half-hour show, Davidson can be seen as Abdul, the turbaned East Indian party store owner who carries an Uzi, or the baggy-drawered M.C. Hammer. You can't touch the success of "In Living Color."

"I knew it was funny," said the soft-spoken Davidson, 28. "All it had to do was get on the air. I knew it would do."

"So, I'm not surprised at all. I am surprised it got on the air."

And, with it, so has Davidson. He was originally tapped to play the role of Prince Akeem in the television version of "Coming to America." The pilot quickly came and went.

DAVIDSON SPENT the next few months performing at nightclubs and appearing on Arsenio Hall's late night show. Then he auditioned for a new comedy show produced by well-known funnyman Keenan Ivory Wayans.

The show has taken off. So, too, has Davidson's career.

"It's a combination of all those things — the writing, the acting. It's a good chemistry. We all work together to make it work. We have a good team of people."

The format is similar to "Saturday Night Live." But unlike SNL, "In Living Color" is limited to only 30 minutes of satire.

THERE'S ALREADY talk of doing a couple of hourlong shows this season, Davidson said.

Time demands, though, would be enormous, he said. To produce an episode of "In Living Color" takes five days of writing and rehearsals along with four to five hours in front of the camera.

"In Living Color" has allowed Davidson to take some chances, developing new characters while still parodying the real ones in life. Stand-up provided the perfect training ground.

"That's straight-up creativity in your mind. You've got to execute and make it work."

DAVIDSON MADE it work in some of the most trying places. He started at a Washington, D.C., topless bar, doing a 10-minute set.

"The audience treated me well. Ultimately, I had to get the hell out of there."

He did. From bare-chested dancers, Davidson was soon opening for Patti LaBelle, Anita Baker, Luther Vandross, Al Jarreau and Kenny G.

DAVIDSON'S HUMOR has been lauded for its originality without resorting to gutter language.

While others impersonate the easy-to-caricature, such as Jack Nicholson and Mike Tyson, he's mimicking people like M.C. Hammer and Sugar Ray Leonard. The latter was quite impressed.

"Yeah, I got the word that he loved it."

Perhaps so would boxing promoter Don King.

Tommy Davidson will perform along with rhythm and blues/jazz performers Pieces of a Dream, and Detroit comedian Downtown Tony Brown, at Laugh Jam 1990 on Saturday, Sept. 15, at ClubLand in Detroit. Tickets are $15. To order tickets by phone, call 645-6666.

Tommy Davidson, who is a regular on "In Living Color," is becoming one of comedy's hottest acts.

Car potato peels out for the day

THE CINDERBLOCK building, decorated with beer and ice signs, has been a fixture on Merriman Road since 1959.

Shawnee Ramsey of Westland is one of the employees who wait inside the darkened passageway for cars, fetching peanuts, bread, chewing tobacco and other essentials off the shelf.

She exchanges cash for snacks as your car slowly rolls through this high calorie assembly line.

If the Beer Depot's beef jerky sticks are making you long for lunch, stow the groceries, skip the fast food drive-through window, (you ate at one for breakfast, right?) and order at one of those eat-in-your-car-and-drip-mustard-on-the-upholstery style restaurants.

Car hops still take orders windowside from A&W in Troy. At Ritass' in Allen Park, you can watch whirlygigs twirl and listen to sea shell ornaments clatter in the breeze. Grab a menu from the Classic Coke six-pack holder that has been flattened sideways and tacked to a canopy support beam. Order the cheeseburger special for $1.40.

AND HEY, just becuz the sign up front says "flash your lights for service," it don't mean you really have to, OK? 'Cuz the waitress sees ya, so keep your shirt on, like, and she'll be there in a minute. Just make up your mind what you want already, 'cuz the kitchen's really busy. And when the waitress says "NO PICTURES," she means it, creep.

Boy, are you messy. You dribbled a gallon of root beer and spilled onion rings on the Turtle Wax finish.

You could use a good hosing. Might as well have your car washed at the same time, too.

You might consider a drive-through place, like the Tunnel O' Suds in Troy, a watery nirvana that requires you to close windows and hoist the convertible top.

But nothing beats a soap-up and rinse-off by a crew of teenagers like the Melvindale High School cheerleaders.

You won't hear the swish of mechanized brushes, but you'll get live conversation like "Gimmie the hose" and "Did you do the window? It looks kinda sloppy."

They'll do a nice job even with the convertible top down. Give 'em an extra few bucks and realize that you forgot to tip the car hop.

IF YOUR wallet is near empty, zip through the automatic teller machine. Or look for the kind of bargains that bring out shoppers in droves to the Southhampton Neighborhood Association's occasional garage sales in Southfield.

Pull into Bob Gilmore's driveway on New Hampshire and he may bounce a free tennis ball your way. While you're admiring his old tinker toys and sunlamp, helpful neighbor Lynn Morrow will give you curbside service.

"Everything is a bargain. This is cute. It's milk glass," she says, handing over a white vase for $1. "The most opportunistic thing about this is getting your garage cleaned out."

George Young, a Detroit actor, association president and author of a how-to book about acting in commercials, may give you a free copy, if you play your cards right.

"It's the most excitement we've seen in 10 years," he says. "This isn't only a garage sale but time for fun in the neighborhood."

But all fun must come to an end.

Finish your grocery shopping with a stop at a roadside fruit and vegetable stand along a country road in Rochester Hills or Canton Township. Then head for Eight Mile and Southfield where vendors hawk thorny roses to motorists.

KEEP CONVERSATIONS while you fork over your $5:

"Who do you sell these for?"

"We just do it ourselves," explains a guy named Ron, who doesn't look like a Moonie or Krishna follower. "I need to work some way. I'm helping that guy over there out. He is from the Vietnam War."

That's about as much explanation as you'll get before the traffic light changes and drivers start leaning on their horns.

Don't bait them into a traffic squabble, hook a fish instead.

Kent Lake at Kensington Metro Park is swimming with sunfish, bass, walleye and northern pike. Just make sure you've got a fishing license. And remember, the beach, nature area and boat rental are off limits. Any shore-fishing areas are fair game for anglers, although casting from the front seat might require the skills of a major league pitcher.

"You have to cast it a good 50 feet," warns Bill Rose, park ranger. "The idea is to get out of the car and enjoy the outdoors."

You can always pay a kid to run your line to the water.

IF A LARGE mouth bass isn't your idea of the perfect passenger, skip the lake and head for solitude at Manresa Jesuit Retreat House in Bloomfield Hills. You can cruise past the placid gazes of religious statues scattered throughout the center, almost touching a few within arm's reach of the driveway.

If your taste runs toward the avant-garde, head for Tyree Guyton's funky street art. The group of houses in the Heidelberg-Mt. Elliott area of Detroit have been reconditioned with a collection of toys, tires, car parts and other junk.

Keep binoculars ready to study detail of each sculpture or to watch a spirited game of soccer at one of nine playing areas in Troy's Firefighter Park.

Use your cellular telephone (or find a drive-up version) to call Door-to-Door delivery service for your picnic at Quarton Lake in Birmingham.

Park on the east side within view of the ducks and wildly flag down the delivery truck.

WHILE WAITER Chris Soechtig serves your entree, light candles and prop the roses in a vase. Save a few crumbs for your feathered friends and dump the plastic containers in a roadside trash barrel at the park.

Before the sun sets completely, find a first-row parking space at the Commerce Drive-in on Richardson at the west end of Haggarty in Commerce Township. The double feature starts at 8:45 p.m.

If it's a holiday weekend, skip the movies and look for community fireworks. Southfield's annual summer festival display keeps the crowd in awe for more than 30 minutes.

And now you're thinking about buying a motorcycle?

Well, that's a whole other story

O&E contest winner becomes entrepreneur

JOHN STORMZAND/staff photographer

Brandon Bogart, eighth grader, is shown in his home workshop. He taught birdhouse making to a group of Flint science and math teachers this summer. He's been doing wood working with his father and grandfather since he was a toddler.

By C.L. Rugenstein
special writer

Brandon Bogart's business is for the birds — bluebirds, that is. Brandon, winner of the Observer & Eccentric's birdhouse building contest last spring, has gone on to make and sell at least nine more — as well as teach 36 Flint teachers how to build them this summer.

"Here was a kid who had an idea (and) . . . he extended it to teaching teachers how to do it for other kids," said Sally DeRoo, Bogart's science teacher at West Middle School in Plymouth. "The fact that he, a 12-year old, was able to work with teachers was wonderful."

DeRoo brought Brandon in as part of the science program she taught this summer for Central Michigan University, as part of the post-graduate science and math institute for Flint teachers. The teachers earned six credit hours for it.

"It was totally unexpected to have a 12-year old teaching," said Hugo Pinty, science and health coordinator for the Flint school district.

"The teachers were very taken with him and enjoyed it — it was a very nice 'wow'."

BRANDON USED HIS MODIFIED pattern of one DeRoo had had in her files for years.

"I just changed the positioning of the back piece to make it stick up a little higher on top, and made the bottom flush," he said.

It was also the pattern for his award-winning birdhouse.

He and his grandfather cut out and prepared the 36 kits he took to the birdhouse-making seminar.

It was a breeze for him. He's been woodworking with his father since he was "two or three — old enough to hold a piece of sandpaper," he said.

He got into the business just because he "liked birds, and liked to work with wood, and found it fun and profitable."

This is the bluebird house that won first prize for Brandon Bogart of Plymouth.

But whether he'll continue it as a profession in the future is open to speculation.

"I'd like to, but it's kind of hard to find time during school," he said.

Right now he thinks he'd like to own his own sporting goods store when he gets older.

But, "I'd kind of like to have a corner (in it) for the bird houses," he said.

SEVERAL OF BRANDON'S bluebird houses went into Sally DeRoo's backyard bluebird run, "way out in the country."

And each house had at least two sets of bluebirds hatched and launched this summer.

While DeRoo's yard is off-limits for "birding" fans, several other areas — notably around state highways and interstates — are not, DeRoo said.

The Michigan Conservationist Club in Lansing would have a list. For information, call (517) 371-1041.

Size of entry determines kind of bird resident

By C.L. Rugenstein
special writer

If bluebirds could dance as well as they sing they'd be dancing for joy in Michigan.

Interest in luring the brilliant-hued songsters back to the state has resulted in an explosion of bluebird housing. The Observer & Eccentric sponsored a birdhouse building contest earlier this year, and shops such as Golden Pond in Birmingham have provided many new domiciles for bluebirds.

Ada Land, owner of Golden Pond, stocks several of the rather plain wooden boxes (that resemble old salt boxes) preferred by bluebirds.

But, said Land, "If you have a neighbor 60 to 100 feet away, forget it. You're not going to attract them. Unless you live near or beside a big, open field your chances of getting them to nest are not realistic."

However, not to worry. Land stocks a number of houses to attract more sociable, urban dwellers such as robins, chickadees, wrens, owls, even ducks.

Ducks? Yes, ducks. Some of the houses are just plain cute, vine covered (courtesy of a little paint) cottages in miniature.

ONE NIFTY MODEL was the blue cedar chickadee/wren house with squat-bowed sides, fish scale red shingles and a little, red heart-shaped welcome sign over the door.

"Cedar is real good, one of the best woods you can use because it's weather resistant," Land said.

Redwood is also good, for people who want to make their own birdhouses — and Land has plans and kits for those, too.

Marilyn Loukes, Land's assistant, does the decorating on the houses, starting with a color wash before the decorative flower and vine painting.

Her brother Darrell Golden of Clio makes them.

But the houses are by no means limited to standard four-walls-and-peaked-roof styles.

Two of the uncommon ones were the beehive and acorn-shaped chickadee/wren houses, about the size of footballs, and an Abe Lincoln log house.

"Chickadees and cardinals are the most fun to watch — chickadees are also more faithful about returning year after year to the same spot," Land said.

To be desirable, the houses have to be built to certain specifications.

Choosy bluebirds must have an entrance 1½-inches in diameter, 6 inches above the houses floor. It should also be placed fence post high, facing an open field.

"The hole in the birdhouse determines the kind of bird you'll get. Wrens like a little smaller hole (1¼-inches) than chickadees" — just big enough to squeeze through, but small enough to exclude bigger birds, Land said.

"If you don't make them exactly to size, the birds will bypass them."

Once you've got the ideal house though you still have to lure them with the right chow.

Land doesn't sell that, but she does sell videos and books about feeding birds, along with the other nature-oriented items in her shop.

The truly gourmet experience for birds is the black (not striped) oiled sunflower seeds — preferably mixed with safflower seeds. Birds love safflower seeds.

Squirrels don't. Neither do the bigger, noisier, messier birds such as bluejays and grackles.

COMMERCIAL BIRD FEED has a lot of stuff like cracked corn that attracts the big guys. That's why it's better to buy food from a shop such as Wild Birds Unlimited, 1220 N. Woodward, in Royal Oak.

Land has a super deluxe feeder to put that special bird food in, too. A two-level with open upper deck and glass walled lower dining room, it has a front porch with spikes to hold fresh fruit and suet. Zowie!

"A lot of people feel you shouldn't feed the birds in the summer because they become dependent on you and won't go out in the fall," Land said. But she has her own philosophy about that.

"The birds have to come a long way (when they migrate). They don't find as much seeds and food in the woods as they used to."

The most kingly house in Land's collection is for a duck, or perhaps, an owl.

The owl/duck box is 18 to 20 inches wide and 20-inches deep. The elliptical entrance hole is 4 by 3 inches, to admit an owl or duck, but exclude raccoons.

The flat back makes it easy to attach to a tree, about 12 to 40 feet above the ground. The hole must face water, which must be at least 2 to 5 feet away from a creek, puddle or pond.

And wood ducks, with their brilliant green and white striped heads, the only tree-nesting duck, are known to inhabit south Oakland County's wetlands.

Of course, you may attract a hooter instead of a quacker, but who cares?

With "birding" (bird-watching) fast becoming a favorite American pastime, a birdhouse could be a worthwhile investment.

They make good housewarming gifts, too.

"When someone is moving into a new home, they should have a nice little house to welcome their feathered friends, too," Land said.

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

Ada Land holds a chickadee/wren house, small, welcome birds that like this Michigan area.

Keep birds in mind

Fall is an excellent season to plant trees and shrubs with an eye to attracting birds. If your neighbors have planted trees that lose their leaves in the fall, you might want to plant evergreens.

Consider growing a pyracantha, bitersweet, or some other berry-producing specimen. Euonymus, holly, barberry, junipers, privet, serviceberry, dogwood, wintercreeper, yews and witchhazel (which blooms in the winter) are some other trees and shrubs that provide birds with good cover and food. Birds need and like cover close to their feeding places in the event a predator approaches.

If there is an area in your yard that can be left in a "wild" state, the natural vegetation will be attractive to the birds. A fallen branch or limb, especially in this area will perhaps catch the snow and provide a haven when winter winds blow.

Strive for quality, not for perfection

Q: My company is pushing the idea of "quality" to the extent that it's almost ridiculous. I work for a large corporation and, because of the Japanese influence I guess, they expect employees to make zero mistakes. At the same time, we are experiencing cost cutbacks with a resulting head-count reduction, which puts more work on those of us who are left. Since I've always heard (and have read in your column) that perfectionism is a waste of time, how do you correlate these two concepts?

A: First let me say that I don't envy your situation. It will be small comfort to know that you are just one of hundreds of thousands of employees who are feeling a similar pinch right now. Stress and pressure is up and morale is down in much of the workplace and there's no relief in sight.

I am encouraging corporations to take a long, hard look at what they are doing to their employees before making drastic cutbacks. I am convinced it's counterproductive to place even more stress on current employees and that they may later regret incurring irreplaceable human resource losses. Don't, of course, hold your breath until Corporate America jumps on Dorothy's Bandwagon.

Now let me discuss the difference between quality and perfectionism. My dictionary defines "quality" as the "degree of excellence which a thing possesses." One of the definitions for "perfectionism" is "extreme or obsessive striving for perfection, as in one's work."

While the descriptions are similar, the words "extreme or obsessive" set them apart. There is quality (or excellence) within reason, and there is perfectionism, which sometimes transcends reason.

I will be discussing this in more detail in my upcoming business seminar series at Schoolcraft College next week. The idea, however, is that you can do high quality work without going to the point of perfection.

For instance, it's excellent to maintain contacts with clients by sending them interesting newspaper articles that might benefit them. It's perfectionism, however, to write and re-write a cover letter 14 times before you get it just right, instead of jotting off a quick handwritten note to accompany the article.

In other words, you need to make sure you do your work well, but it's a waste of time to get caught up in perfecting relatively unimportant things that produce no yield. That's the difference between quality and perfectionism.

You can enroll in Dorothy Lehmkuhl's "Organizing Your Business Life" seminar series at Schoolcraft College by calling 462-4448, or her "Organizing for Success" classes at the Birmingham Community house by calling 644-5832.

The style of architecture known as Queen Anne was incorrectly spelled in a story appearing in last Monday's Creative Living section.

The cut-away drawing of this Tri-Steel "Lifetime" house shows the features of the steel frame construction. They include: 1. bolt-together steel columns and rafters; 2. metal roof purlins; 3. eight-inch steel stud system for exterior walls; 4.

metal framing components for all dormers, roof and porch saddles; 5. metal sub-facia material for roof overhangs; 6. 3 5/8-inch metal studs and track for interior walls; 7. metal furring channels for ceiling surfaces.

Steel frames seeking builder acceptance

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Residential construction is borrowing a page from the office and commercial construction industry manual — steel framing.

Steel frame homes, nearly unheard of in Michigan, may become a more important part of home construction as wood prices rise.

Kevin Adams, a former Farmington Hills resident and a builder of steel frame homes in Onsted near Irish Hills, stressed steel frame homes are not pre-fab or modular homes.

"They look exactly like conventional wood frame homes when completed."

Adams started building homes six months ago and chose steel framing because his background in mechanical engineering leads him to believe there are advantages to steel frame homes.

"The main advantage of steel is the strength of materials," Adams said. Greater strength allows larger spans — which create more open space within the home — and more flexible floor plans because interior walls are not needed to support weight.

Steel frame homes are also more energy efficient because, since the steel frames are wider than wood studs, they permit a greater degree of insulation in the walls and ceilings, he said.

"The insulation also creates a quieter home," Adams said.

STEEL FRAME homes are built so tight they require an air-to-air heat exchanger — a filtering system that allows old, stale air to leave the home while transferring heat from the exiting air to the incoming air.

And finally, there is perhaps an environmental reason for building steel frame as opposed to wood homes, Adams said.

"I used to live in Oregon and if you've ever seen the barren mountains that used to have trees on them, you have to wonder where all the wood has gone."

Adams said that business is still slow, but he's optimistic that steel frame homes will take off.

"I've had a lot of inquiries, but most people are waiting to see some finished homes before making any decisions."

New ideas take time, he said, adding that he plans to build mainly custom homes at first, but intends to branch out into subdivisions as business grows.

William Ku, president of architectural firm Yamasaki Associates in Troy, said that 35 years ago he tried his hand at building steel frame homes because "it was a time of experimentation — it was during the building boom (of the late 1950s and early 1960s) war, and people were building different ways to see what could be done."

ULTIMATELY, it was not practical, Ku said. "You just couldn't compete with the other builders.

"With one or two houses, it can work — it's not so much of a problem, but with larger projects building steel frame homes was too expensive, and the steel was harder to work with," he said.

"It was all right for small-scale building, but not for normal, mass-production housing," Ku said.

The main advantage of steel framing — its strength — was not enough to outweigh the advantage of wood — its cost.

"You would see it in high rise residential housing and commercial and office, but not homes."

Wood has had sufficient strength for most residential homes because load-bearing and exterior walls do not need to hold up as much weight as large apartment, commercial and office buildings.

Steel does offer some advantages because of its greater strength and resistance to termites, Ku continued, but unless the cost is brought down substantially, he doubts steel frame homes will ever catch on.

BUT ALL THAT may be changing, according to Richard Calooy of Tri-

Steel Structure Inc., a Dallas firm that specializes in steel frame home packages.

In the last decade, wood prices have increased and steel prices have remained stable or have fallen, Calooy said.

Furthermore, the quality of wood today has suffered, Calooy said.

"The Grade A wood of today is not the same Grade A wood of yesterday."

In the past, wood frame homes were built from mature trees. Today's wood frame homes are made from relatively young trees, he said. Wood from immature trees warps more and has less strength.

The quality of steel can be made consistent, Calooy said.

Steel frame homes can also be less expensive, he said. Because steel can be pre-engineered, it can be assembled quickly. Also, because less steel is required to achieve the strength and durability of wood, steel is lighter.

In some cases, he said, wood is still cheaper. "Once (the house) gets below 2,500 square feet, it's probably faster and cheaper to go with wood because you can't take advantage of the economies of scale."

In homes larger than 2,500 square feet, steel frame homes are also built at a comparable price to wood frame homes, generally costing $60 to $80 per square foot, he said.

WHILE MATERIALS are slightly more expensive, simplicity and ease of assembly helps even out the costs, Calooy said.

Steel frame homes are sent in component form, and are "stick-built" on site just as a conventional wood frame home is built, but pieces are pre-sized, pre-drilled and labeled for quick construction.

Calooy said geography and traditional building practices dictate the use of steel as opposed to wood framing in homes, which is why Michigan homes are predominantly made from wood frames.

Policies require enforcement

Our condominium has a prohibition on landscaping property without the association's approval. Our developer has allowed purchasers to do almost anything they want around their unit. Now the board has taken over and wants to impose some restrictions. How should we proceed?

This is a classic problem at condominiums because developers who have controlled their associations do not follow restrictions they have established in the documents. This not only leads to potential liability for the developer-director designees on the board, but also creates the problems you mentioned. The association should establish a firm landscaping policy and enforce it. To the extent that the developer has allowed modifications to be made, and those modifications are not within the landscaping plan, attempts should be made to compel the co-owners, to the extent reasonable, to make the necessary changes. Hopefully, the co-owners will understand that the association must maintain a consistent and realistic policy with respect to landscaping, as is the case with any other type of aesthetic restriction in the condominium documents. You may well be advised to consult with legal counsel as to how far you may go in dealing with recalcitrant co-owners under the circumstances.

Our cooperative is considering converting to a condominium. We have heard that it may be a good economic vehicle for us to liquidate our units at a much higher price. Do you have any experience in that regard?

It is not unreasonable to expect at least a 30 percent increase in the value of a unit once it is converted from a co-op to a condominium in certain locations. One of the reasons for the marked increase is that co-operative housing is not as easily marketable because financing is extremely difficult to obtain. Obviously, condominiums are much more widely accepted in certain locales and are readily able to be financed in most markets. In some locales, there is a stigma of co-ops being subsidized housing, which brings down the market value of the units, but is not universal by any means.

Our documents preclude co-owners from operating a business out of their unit. We have three lawyers in our complex who use their homes not only as a passive office but entertain guests or clients there. Is there anything we can do about it?

This is a difficult question. Obviously, your documents do not cover this point, and it may be a good idea to amend the documents to provide exactly what is meant by a commercial enterprise as opposed to the use of a home for strictly residential purposes that may mean, on occasion "doing work at home." To the extent that the lawyer is using his home not only as an office for conducting paperwork, but also for seeing clients on a regular basis, you may have a good argument for pursuing that attorney. Of course, you know what happens when condo queries

you pursue attorneys, it is likely they will fight back. That is not a reason for you not to pursue any co-owner whenever there is a violation of the condominium documents.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney specializing in condominiums, real estate and corporate law. You are invited to submit topics about condominiums that you would like to see discussed in this column by writing Robert M. Meisner at 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Birmingham 48010. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

Attempts should be made to compel the co-owners, to the extent reasonable, to make the necessary changes.

Ad consultant addresses BASM

The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) will offer a half-day seminar on Monday, Sept. 17, to help builders make their advertising more cost effective while increasing sales.

Kevin J. Pfeifer, a California consultant, will conduct the seminar.

The program will include how much should be spent on advertising, how often an ad campaign should run before changing it, the optimum frequency and size of ads, and the basic checklist to review before running an ad.

Pfeifer's presentation also will include setting up an in-house ad agency, how to work more effectively with an advertising agency, and setting up an effective marketing budget.

The seminar will begin with lunch at noon and the program will be held 1-5 p.m. at the Clarion Hotel on 12 Mile Road, west of Orchard Lake Road (at the I-696 ramp) in Farmington Hills.

Registration fees for BASM members are $60 including lunch and $50 for the seminar only. Non-members are $70 for the program and lunch, $60 for the seminar only. For registration information, call 737-4477.

Zingerman's

Last summer at the Fancy Food Show in Atlanta they held a party for the Foods of Spain, called "Catch a Rising Star." I didn't really think about it at the time, but it was a pretty appropriate name. I remember when we first started working with Spanish foods at Zingerman's. It was four or five years ago, when, it's pretty safe to say, the foods of Spain were about as well known in Ann Arbor as, uh, the capital of Albania. Spain wasn't that far removed from the Franco era. I know in my mind I still envisioned a kind of isolated, slow-moving, conservative country, running more than a little behind the rest of Europe. At the time, foods of Spain to most people meant rubbery pimiento-stuffed olives in bottles for dropping into martinis. Not exactly a land of gourmet intrigue, let alone some kind of "rising star."

But even then something about the foods of Spain piqued my interest. At the time I don't think I could really have pinpointed what it was. More of a feeling, I guess, than anything I could have put into words. A lot has happened in the last five years to change my original image of the country. For openers I went to Spain. When I got there I found a fast-paced lively place with all sorts of amazing food, prepared in dozens of distinctive regional styles. For another, Spain's "star" has started to "rise" in the world. The 1992 Olympics, the 500th anniversary of Columbus' voyage, the arrival from Spain of all sorts of great olive oils, cheeses, olives, vinegars...

At Zingerman's we've seen the Spanish star rising as well. Today we stock dozens of different foods from Spain, which rival some of the best of America and Europe. We've seen a loyal and dedicated following develop, which eagerly awaits our annual Fiesta de España and the taste of traditional paella and other Spanish dishes that goes with it. The popularity of Spanish food is certainly on the rise.

But I like the "Rising Star" theme, not just for its obvious Broadway parallels. Because although stars appear to "rise" for the first time as you watch them in the sky, they've actually been there all along. And while the foods of Spain may be gaining well-deserved popularity today, they've been around for centuries. The finest foods from Spain, far from being trendy, have been crafted, eaten, and enjoyed all over the Iberian peninsula for an awfully long time. They just seem to "rise" as they reappear on our horizon.

In fact one of the things that appeals to me most about the foods of Spain is their history. There is really no country in Europe with a more diverse set of culinary influences integrated so effectively into the cooking and eating of the nation. The influence of the Arabs—oranges, rice, saffron, spices. The influence of the "New World"—potatoes, corn, chocolate, tomatoes, chiles. And the influence of ancient Rome—the olive and its oil. Plus the foods native to Spain—amazing cheeses, fresh produce, lamb, beef.

Add to that the history of Spain itself—up until the end of the 15th century Spain was made up of a dozen or more small independent kingdoms, each of which today retains its own distinctive regional cuisine.

Well enough of all this philosophy and stuff. The best thing about the foods of Spain is that they taste so good. So stop by, taste for yourself, and enjoy. Buen provecho!

itasting Spain!
visiting the estate of L'estornell & Lerida olive oils

The dry Spanish sun. Sun. After four weeks of gloomy northern European drizzle, the dry Spanish sun warms our thoughts as well as our skin. This is my first journey into Spain, and it's only a step into a rich and beautiful land. We are in Catalonia, a region in the northeast corner of Spain, bordered in the north by the cool, dry Pyrenées Mountains, in the east by the Mediterranean, and in the south by Valencia, the land of rice and paella.

We are leaving coastal Barcelona and heading west into wine and olive country. The landscape changes quickly. Quickly into a truly Spanish landscape. A landscape low with bushy growth, the warm, dusty soil visible. Certain open fields are bespeckled with color; red field poppies wildly in bloom. This is Spain. It is May.

We travel on the Autopista—the Spanish version of an American tollway. The highway is new, open, and fast. To the north the weird Gaudi/Gothic peaks of Montserrat rise up in great contrast to the surrounding countryside. In an hour we are in the province of Lérida (Lleida, in Catalan). We head south on a windy little road to find the estate of the Veá family, a well-known producer of Lérida and L'Estornell extra virgin olive oils.

The family olive groves are in and around the sleepy, sunny country town of Sarrocca de Lérida. We are met at the estate by our friend Joe Quaid, who works for the Veá family. Joe takes us on a little tour of the family's business. For generations, the name Veá has stood for the very highest standards of quality in the cultivation of olives and the pressing of fine extra virgin olive oils.

Señor Avelino Veá, who now runs this family firm, has maintained and raised those standards. He has introduced the latest production techniques. But he has also rigorously preserved the traditional methods of cultivation and blending, and the traditional family insistence that only the very finest oils shall bear the Veá name.

The conditions here are ideal for the cultivation of the Arbequina olive—the only variety the family grows. The warm summers are followed by winters cold enough to destroy most of the pests that can afflict olive trees. Unusual for these days, no pesticides are used. Only the age-old technique of planting almond trees amongst the olives is applied to limit and control the proliferation of harmful insects during the growing season.

Similarly, no chemical or artificial fertilizers are fed to the trees. Only occasional applications of natural manure and of "virgin" earth, which is brought from high in the hills and packed around the base of the trees, are necessary to maintain the fertility of the groves.

During the growing season, the trees—and there are nearly 10,000 of them altogether, some over 500 years old—are watched over constantly. When ripe, the olives are harvested by hand to avoid bruising. This practice is also rare these days; mechanical shaking into nets is becoming increasingly common, but that technique can bruise the fruit and degrade the quality of the oil, so Señor Veá will not allow it.

Only first cold pressings of extra virgin olive oil are produced by Veá, and all pressing, filtration, and bottling takes place on his own farm and under his own eye.

All the blending is performed by Señor Veá himself. Every day during the production season, he works in his tasting room sampling the oils stored from the season's pressings and specifying the proportions in which they are to be combined. His skill as a blender is renowned; and the success of his company is largely founded on that skill.

After our tour we are taken to lunch by the family. What a Catalan feast! During our three-hour meal we are treated to uncooked marinated cod with black pepper and Veá's luscious olive oil, salad dressed with olive oil and local wine vinegar, Arbequina olives, dry cured ham (which one sees hanging to cure in many local restaurants and stores), a paella measuring a meter in diameter, Penedés wine, Spanish brandy, and Crema Catalana for dessert (a local custard specialty).

It was hard to leave the warm hospitality shown to us by the land and these people. I think you'll taste a little of that same sunny Spanish experience when you use Lérida or L'Estornell olive oil.

Just arrived from Spain. A full-flavored, cold-pressed, extra virgin olive oil pressed and bottled especially for Zingerman's by our friend Fernando Morillo. Made from handpicked Picual olives, filtered and packed into handblown glass bottles. This is Zingerman's first oil from the southern Spanish region of Baena, known throughout Spain for the quality of its oil. The Sierra de Segura oil has a rich, deep, olive flavor—great for salads, pastas, fish... Fine olive oil available at a fine price. With a label designed by our own art department!

CHEESES ¡quesos magnificos!

The cheesemakers of Spain have yet to really get the recognition they deserve from the cheese-lovers of the world. I'm not worried though. They will. Many of Spain's best cheeses remain secrets to non-locals. Even in Spain, each region seems to consume pretty much its own cheeses. An exception, Manchego, is one of Spain's best-known cheeses, and certainly among her finest.

MANCHEGO
SAVE $1.00/LB.

reg. $10.99/lb.
Spain's greatest cheese comes from La Mancha, home of Spain's greatest literary legend, Don Quixote. I firmly believe that Manchego deserves to be considered among the world's great cheeses. Made from pure sheep's milk (only the milk of the local Manchego sheep may be used), Manchego is formed into 8-lb. wheels, pressed, and aged to develop a distinctively tangy, slightly salty, but definitely very full flavor. Manchego is great to just eat as it is, with maybe a glass of Rioja wine and a handful of nuts and a loaf of bread.

MAHON
SAVE $1.00/LB.

reg. $10.99/lb.
One of the things I like about Spanish cheeses is that they are originals—they neither look nor taste like the cheeses of other countries. Mahon, made by hand on the island of Menorca, is a perfect example. Made from local cow's milk, Mahon is shaped to look something like a square pillow. Well aged, it has a good full flavor. About the closest comparison I can think of is an aged Gouda, but Mahon is less nutty than Gouda, with a very distinctive tang to it. A fine cheese.

CABRALES
SAVE $1.00/LB.

Cabrales is a fabulous, full-flavored blue-veined cheese, made in Asturias in northern Spain. Cabrales is made from a combination of sheep's, cow's, and goat's milks, which gives it a flavor unique among the fine blue cheeses of the world. Wrapped in chestnut leaves and then aged in caves in the hills of Asturias, Cabrales is for anyone who loves full-flavored cheese. If you love Roquefort, Stilton, and Gorgonzola, don't miss this Spanish gem. If it gets here, that is. Otherwise...as they say in Spain, "¡ll be here soon."

i vinagres vibrantes!

I think that vinegars are some of the most underrated foods around. I mean if you think about it, they have no cholesterol, they're completely natural, preservative-free, full of all sorts of intriguing flavors. And just a little bit of fine vinegar goes a long way to flavor a salad, a sauce, a soup, or a main dish. The variety of fine vinegars seems almost limitless—there are as many good vinegars out there as there are fine wines, which makes sense since that's what good vinegar is made from. Like any wine-producing country, Spain has its share of great vinegars.

LESTORNELL GRANACHO VINEGAR
SAVE 10%

reg. $5.99/375 ml. bottle
This is another one of the around for ages. The guy who makes it in Catalonia couldn't believe anyone outside the local area would be interested. "Vinegar is vinegar, isn't it?" he asked. Obviously he never shopped at Kroger's. Personally, I couldn't believe how good this vinegar was. Its flavor is unlike that of any other red wine vinegar I've ever tried. Made from the local garnacho grapes, this vinegar really does have the bouquet and depth of flavor of a fine red wine.

SANCHEZ ROMATÉ SHERRY VINEGAR
SAVE 20%

Reg. from $3.99/bottle
The town of Jerez (pronounced "her-eth") and its surrounding countryside is the only place in the world in which sherry can be made. The sherry is aged in oak barrels, sherry vinegar is wonderful. No matter what I add it to, it gives a unique flavor. It's perfect in salads, in marinades (lamb and beef are particularly good), in tomato sauces, and to marinate olives. The more I use it, the more I like it!

Sanchez Romaté has been making sherry and sherry vinegar since 1787. Purveyors to the House of Lords in London, prize winners in numerous competitions, they make very good sherry vinegar. The V.O., aged for over 20 years, is exceptional. It's also an exceptional value—reg. only $12.00 per bottle (and it's on special this month too!).

Fresh garlic and fresh mint

Fresh onion and

Rioja wines of the Basque country are known worldwide. These gorgeous vinegars, made from Rioja wines, reflect the light-bodied, oaky Rioja flavor. Each is seasoned with a mixture of herbs and aged to develop a flavor hearty enough to stand up to traditional Basque (or your own) cooking. P.S. Not only do these vinegars taste good, but the presentation—tall, slender bottles filled with herbs—makes them a great gift!

spanish dishes to-go

SPANISH GARLIC POTATO SALAD
$4.99/LB.

This is about as typically Spanish as you can get. Lots of chopped fresh garlic, lots of mayonnaise (invented on the Spanish island of Mahon, by the way), plenty of fresh parsley, and a little sherry vinegar.

ORANGE AND DILL POTATO SALAD
$4.99/LB.

The Spanish love their potatoes. This is a uniquely Spanish recipe: potatoes dressed with extra virgin olive oil, fresh orange juice, fresh dill, and Spanish capers. Light and refreshing.

SPANISH FIESTA RICE SALAD
$7.99/LB.

Short-grained Valencia rice cooked with saffron, chicken, chorizo, almonds, pimientos, and more. Great for lunch.

PISTOU MANCHEGO
$7.99/LB.

Every country on the Mediterranean has its version of what the French call ratatouille. Pistou Manchego is a slowly simmered dish of onions, zucchini, green and red peppers, tomatoes, and lots of garlic.

OLIVES

i olivos fantasticos!

The Spanish grow and eat olives in huge quantities. In fact they grow more of them than anyone else in the world. There are dozens of varieties grown throughout Spain. Large olives, small olives, green olives, black olives, mild olives, and strong olives. The Spanish eat enormous amounts of them as tapas or with a cold glass of fino sherry or a glass of local wine. At Zingerman's we've obtained three fine Spanish olives, none of which tastes like the ubiquitous "Spanish olive" we've all grown accustomed to in the supermarket.

ARBEQUINA OLIVES
SAVE $1.00/LB.

reg. $6.99/lb.
These olives are tiny—about the size of the nail on your little finger—greenish-brown olives, grown throughout the province of Catalonia in northeastern Spain.

Arbequinas have a distinctive, very nutty, kind of addictive flavor. Catalans love them, but for years they've kept them to themselves. It took us four years of pestering, badgering, and beseeching to get them to Zingerman's. The Catalans just couldn't believe anyone on this side of the Atlantic would like them. ("Americans only like big olives" seems to be the conventional thinking among the locals.) Well, I think they're incredible. But you can taste them for yourself.

SEVILLANO OLIVES
SAVE $1.00/LB.

reg. $7.89/lb.
Over the years these have become one of the most popular olives at Zingerman's. Large green Gordal (the name means "fat," and it's deserved!) olives are marinated in a traditional Seville-style marinade full of the flavors of Spain's culinary heritage—olive oil, cumin, rosemary, thyme, garlic, sherry vinegar, and more. Just the aroma alone is enough to make you want to visit the markets of Seville (I'm serious).

FARGA ARAGON OLIVES
SAVE $1.00/LB.

reg. $6.99/lb.
Another local Catalan specialty, Farga Aragons are nothing at all like the Arbequinas. While the Arbequinas are firm, small, and nutty, these are very black, very ripe, sweet, and soft. Dress them with a little olive oil and some thyme and garlic and serve before dinner with a glass of wine.

In Italy they have "salumeria" shops, which display dozens of salamis and cured meats. In Madrid they have the "Museo del Jamon"—literally the "Museum of Ham"—with a selection of cured hams and sausages every bit as wonderful as the best Italian salumeria. Thin slices of Jamon Serrano with fresh crusty bread and a few slices of Manchego cheese are one of Spain's simplest and most delicious treats.

JAMON SERRANO

reg. $12.99/lb.
Curing Jamon Serrano "Spanish Prosciutto" doesn't do justice to this traditional cured ham. Rubbed with Spanish paprika and crushed red peppers, then aged for 8-12 months, Jamon Serrano is delicious on its own, in a sandwich (that's a "bocadillo" if you're in Spain), sliced and eaten as a tapa, or wrapped around slices of ripe fig or melon. For a special appetizer serve slices of Jamon Serrano rolled around thin slices of smoked tuna or smoked salmon.

CHORIZO

reg. $6.69/lb.
Chorizo is one of the essentials of Spanish eating. Unlike Mexican chorizo, Spanish chorizo is a ready-to-eat, coarse-cut pork sausage (more like a salami in a way) seasoned with garlic and paprika. The Spanish eat chorizo slices as a "tapa"; add chorizo to paella, put chunks of chorizo into soups and stews, or use it to make sandwiches. No matter how you slice it, it's good.

SWEETS

i dulces deliciosos!

One visit to Spain will tell you that the Spanish love their sweets. Many of them aren't made to be shipped over here—churros (long strips of fried sweet dough), helados (ice cream), yemas (the traditional egg yolk candies of Avila)...but we have been able to get our hands on a couple of wonderful Spanish treats.

ROCA CHOCOLATES
COMING SOON!

These are a treat to look at as well as to eat. Made by the Roca family in Catalonia for over 50 years. The family specialty is called "bombons"—little "boats" of dark chocolate, each dotted with a hazelnut, a walnut, a sultana, and an almond. The family takes pride in the care that goes into every facet of the production—the quality of the chocolate, the freshness of the nuts, the packaging, the flavor. Great gift—for yourself or for a loved one.

DONA JIMENA COOKIES
SAVE 10%

reg. from $3.59/box
I'm not sure what to say about these cookies, except that they're really good. They're uniquely Spanish—I've never tasted anything like them anywhere else. That and the fact that we've been trying unsuccessfully to get them to Zingerman's for over four years. Made from Spanish almonds, honey, spices... great for afternoon tea, after dinner, or any other time you like to eat cookies.

TURRON
SAVE 10%

reg. $4.59/each
Turron is about as typical a Spanish sweet as you can get. It's hard to describe to someone who's never had it before. Made from almonds and honey formed into a crisp bar. The Spanish love it, but you can try it for yourself.

Spanish rice for Paella

reg. $2.99/1-lb. bag
Undoubtedly the most famous dish of Spanish cooking, pretty much everyone has heard of paella. What few people know is that it is the rice in the paella which is the most highly prized part of the dish in Spain. To make a true paella, you've got to use real Spanish short-grained rice, grown in the region of Valencia on the eastern coast of Spain.

Can there really be that much difference from one rice to another? In a word, yes. Spanish Valencia rice is unique. Short, round, kind of chubby grains, which absorb plenty of liquid without getting mushy or soft.

Rice was brought to Spain by the Moors over 1000 years ago. Rice is very popular in Spain and the Spanish eat huge quantities of it. Not just in paella, which is really a dish for special occasions, but in Arroz con Pollo (chicken, rice, and saffron), rice salads, rice pudding and dozens of other dishes.

Real paella pans from Spain!

reg. from $10.00/each
I won't say you can't make a paella without a paella pan. But I will say it's a heck of a lot easier with one. To make an authentic paella you need a pan that will allow the heat to escape so that the rice in the pan never steams. That's why paella pans have such short sides, sloping out from the center of the pan. When we first started talking about—and making—paella we never realized how hard it was to get a real paella pan around these parts. Turned out they were few and far between. So we started importing our own.

Made from polished iron, paella pans need to be seasoned. You can do that by boiling some red wine vinegar in the pan for about 30 minutes. Always dry your pan carefully after washing, and wipe lightly with oil to prevent rusting.

SAVE $1.00/JAR

reg. $6.99/jar
When we first started selling Bastarril Pimientos from northern Spain we were lucky to sell a jar a week. Seems most Americans' only contact with a pimiento was the slightly rubbery red thing you find inside olives. I can't really blame people, then, for not wanting to spend $6 on a jar of pimientos. But pimientos really are good! Some pimientos—like Bastarril—are great.

Pimiento is really just a roasted pepper. What makes a good pimiento is a good pepper (there are hundreds of varieties grown in Spain), wood roasting (the wood adds a lot more—and better—flavor than a gas burner), and careful peeling (it's a lot quicker to use water, but you wash away a lot of the flavor). Bastarril pimientos score highly on all counts.

Bastarril pimientos have a delicious, smoky, slightly peppery flavor. I use them in just about everything, from salads, to pastas, to omelettes ("tortillas" in Spain), to seafood dishes. Honestly, they're delicious any way you use them. In fact they'd probably be good in an olive.

ON SPECIAL
$9.99/LB.

reg. $13.00/lb.
Almonds are part of the Arab contribution to Spanish food. In Spain they use almonds in soups, to thicken sauces, in pastries, in salads. And they also toast them with a little bit of extra virgin olive oil and some salt and cumin and eat handfuls of them at the tapas bars to accompany a cold sherry. That's what we do at Zingerman's.

A SPECIAL OLIVE OIL TASTING

THURSDAY, SEPT. 27 AT 7:00 PM.

Zingerman's is proud to announce the visit of Countess Romana Biccocchi-Picchi, proprietress of Tenuta Del Numerouno Estate in Italy. At 7:00 PM we will conduct a special tasting of fine olive oils, including those of the Countess' own estate (one of the most delicious olive oils you'll ever taste!).

Call 663-3400 for details and to reserve your space.
