Recycled mail

To show they're doing their part to help the environment, Plymouth city officials announced Wednesday that they've received their first delivery of envelopes used to mail city-related correspondence that are made from recycled paper. City workers already use recycled copier paper, have switched to paper cups for office coffee machines to replace foam cups, print several publications including the city calendar on recycled paper, and will soon get a shipment of city stationary made of recycled paper.

"We are also finding that it is now becoming more cost effective to use recycled products," said Carol Stone, city purchasing director.

Amoco Oil Co. undecided on station's fate

staff writer

Amoco Oil Co. hasn't determined what it will do with the former Doug's Plymouth Amoco station once contamination is removed from the groundwater and soil in the surrounding area.

The corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Main Street has been on a Michigan Department of Natural Resources list of contaminated sites since 1979.

The cleanup of petroleum prod-ucts that leaked from underground storage tanks at the gas station is expected to take up to five years.

"Once it's cleaned up, then it will be up to Amoco Oil Co. to determine what is the best option for it," said Amoco spokesman Howard Miller. "It's premature to say what that might be."

There is a possibility the station a fixture in downtown Plymouth since the 1920s - could reopen, Miller said.

"We know we've had a long-standing tradition in Plymouth, and would like to keep that as positive as we can and to maintain customer loyal-

Last June, Doug Swatosh, who operated Doug's Plymouth Amoco for 11 years, moved with his employees to an Amoco station at Eight Mile and Farmington roads.

Amoco has since removed underground storage tanks and is pumping and treating groundwater to remove pollutants. Amoco has proposed the use of an air-stripping process to clean the soil.

The DNR has ordered Amoco to drill more wells to determine the full extent of the contamination.

The process — informally approved by the DNR — would not require any excavating.

"In simple terms, it'd be leaving the soil particles in place and giving them a bath with oxygen and water, said city engineer Ken West.

THE DNR has ordered Amoco to drill more wells to determine the full extent of the contamination. Existing wells have turned up pollu-tants south of the Mayflower Meeting House, east of the Box Bar, and underneath Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail.

Last week, Amoco drilled eight additional wells, six inches in diameter, with depths of up to 30 feet.

They put more wells in around the hotel and at least three along both streets. They put some in along the parking structure on the Weideman lot at the hotel," West said.

Work on Deer Street - part of the city's crack-sealing program — is unrelated, West said.

THIS WEEK, Amoco is "investigating potential effects on utilities underground wires and sewers," said Miller. "We've done it once, and we'll monitor them again."

Readings taken by Amoco last February showed evidence of petroleum pollutants being carried through the sewer system into Detroit's water treatment plant.

An engineer with Detroit's Water and Sewerage Department said petroleum pollutants "are prohibited in any amount, because they're flamm-

Striking workers win court battle

staff writer

The Michigan Supreme Court last week upheld the right of striking employees of a Plymouth company to seek unemployment benefits, after they were permanently replaced with new workers.

The claim filed on behalf of 16 former employees of Plymouth Stamping on Ann Arbor Road, an auto parts maker, was approved in 1981 by a Michigan Employment Security Commission referee.

The company appealed that rul-ing before several authorities, who upheld the original ruling. And on Wednesday, the Michigan

Supreme Court also ruled that the employees were "not disqualified for unemployment benefits," under state law

By the ruling, the case has been remanded to the MESC "to determine the number of positions that became available after the employer hired permanent replacements, the date when each position became available, which claimant was entitled to fill each position, and whether the employer notified the union of each vacancy."

THE LEGAL dispute centered on whether the workers had voluntarily left their jobs, attorneys repre-senting both sides said.

In January 1981 the firm permanently replaced the striking workers, the court found. Saying that under state law "all

Church wants to expand

By Kevin Brown staff writer

Members of Plymouth's largest church hope to win city approval for a building addition that some of the church's neighbors oppose.

The proposed addition to Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, 1160 Penniman, which counts 2,400 families as members, would "provide needed social space" for church members and students attending the parish school, said the Rev. James Wysocki.

But some nearby residents say their streets are jammed on Sundays, and maintain that if the addition is used for evening wedding receptions the neighborhood would be disrupted.

Architect Robert Sassak is seeking approval of the plan from the city's zoning board of appeals.

The appeals board's next scheduled meeting is Oct. 4 at city hall.

The planned two-story addition would include a partial basement. Plans call for new parish offices and five meeting rooms on the first floor. and two assembly halls, commercial kitchen facilities and one classroom on the second floor.

Schools join other districts in suit against state

staff writer

Plymouth-Canton school officials decided Monday to join 29 other Michigan school districts suing the state to recover lost state aid.

Plymouth-Canton schools are losing more than $1 million in categorical aid this year that was to have financed special education, employ-ees' Social Security payments, trans-portation, bilingual education, and gifted and talented programs.

Because the district recently went out-of-formula, it receives no general state membership aid. The school system's $68 million 1990-91 budget will be 98.5 percent locally raised

All school districts, regardless of wealth, used to get categorical aid. But payments to wealthier districts are increasingly "recaptured" in Lansing jargon, and given to poorer districts

TRUSTEES VOTED 7-0 to join the suit, but want to be able to withdraw if it looks like the outcome will be unfavorable for Plymouth-Canton.

If the suit drags on more than 10 years, the state still might not have enough money to cover damages, said Errol Goldman, executive director for employee relations.

$50,000 to $65,000 - are another concern. The plaintiffs have yet to decide whether they'll base the perdistrict cost on enrollment, or the amount of lost state aid.

Regardless, the board decided, this will still send a message to Lansing that the district is unhappy with the recapture situation.

"If the ZBA grants joint use, they'll need something less than that," Miller said.

The lesser number would apply if the appeals board agrees with the church that various uses of the property - as a school, church and social center - do not all happen at the same time.

That lesser number of required aces has yet to be determined by the city building department.

THE CLEANUP is expected to take between two and five years and will cost an estimated $500,000.

Plymouth attorney Michael Southerland is suing Amoco on behalf of Ralph Lorenz, owner of Lorenz Square, which encompasses the Mayflower Meeting House.

Southerland contends Amoco's cleanup plan is less than ideal because it would do nothing to prevent the migration of pollutants.

"He makes it sound as if with each passing day, we face the increased possibility of product migrating offsite," Miller said. "That's the very reason at this point we are pumping and treating and discharging into the sanitary sewer and bailing and removing that groundwater." Chuck San Juan, district geologist with the DNR's environmental response division, said he's confident we're well on our way to cleaning up the site. We told Amoco we want the site cleaned up as soon as possible, and they have made a commitment to me they will do what it takes to clean it up." As for criticism regarding the cleanup method, San Juan said, "it's a fair question. But the only choice

we have is to get it on line and see how it works at that time. "We do have technologies that we've utilized in the past involving pumping air through the soils and trying to strip contaminants. CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH ESTHER HULSING, Clerk Note restrictions for mail to troops

If you want to send a little bit of home to troops in the Middle East, keep a few restrictions in mind, said Maj. Pat Filios, public affairs officer at Selfridge Air National

Meanwhile, service personnel would be able to send their mail free under legislation sponsored in Congress by U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, who represents

Be careful that what you send won't offend Saudi Arabia customs officials, who are monitoring incoming mail and destroying items that they consider offensive, like alcohol and pornographic materials, Filios said. DON'T EVEN send goods that contain alcohol, like candy with brandy filling, she said.

And don't send anything that is perceived as pornographic, even fashion magazines, with women in revealing clothing.

"You can send video cassettes,"

The content also must pass Saudi

IF ITEMS found are considered contraband, illegal or offensive, not only are the postal privileges of the individual in jeopardy, but so is the postal service to all service personnel, Filios warned. "Anything that could be considered perishable food is not a good idea," Filios said.

Also, the 12-ounce weight restriction limiting personal mail for Operation Desert Shield has been lifted, Filios said. All sizes and classes of mail will be allowed.

The address for troops in the Army, Navy and Marines is: Opera-tion Dessert Shield, A.P.O., New York 09848-0006. The address for military at sea is the same except for the ZIP code, which is New York 09866-0006.

More information about mailing restrictions in the Middle East is available from post offices and FREE MAIL for troops will be on the way if the U.S. Congress passes Senate Bill 3033. The bill would include letters, postcards and audio and video cassettes.

"Maybe this small step will make their load a little lighter," Ford said.

The Senate approved the bill and the House was scheduled to vote on it Monday, said Mike Russell,

Ford's press secretary. Under current law that dates to World War I, troops get free mailing privileges only during combat.

"We've put these young men and women in harm's way at great risk, suddenly taking them away from their families and friends," Ford said.

A shortage of postage stamps was one of the biggest complaints aired by U.S. troops during a re-cent visit by members of the House and Senate.

The Postal Service estimates the mail courtesy to the troops would cost $500,000.

Program gives greater access to college loans

Michigan families will have greater access to educational loans through a secondary market pro-gram available for the first time.

State Schools Superintendent Don-ald L. Bemis and Michigan National Bank President Peter Thomsen hailed Michigan's new State Secondary Market as a program that enables lenders to make a greater number of loans to college students.

Michigan National, the largest holder of educational loans in the state, is the first lender to sign with the new program, implemented under the auspices of the Michigan Higher Education Student Loan Au-

"The State of Michigan is now offering lending institutions the opportunity to sell their student loan portfolios to the State Secondary Market," Bemis said. "The program gives Michigan lenders the assurance they need that their current long-term loans to student borrowers will not hinder their ability to make future student loans.'

The State Secondary Market program is available to all Michigan lending institutions that participate in federally sponsored student loans under the Michigan Guaranty Agency program.

Ordinance No. 90-3

An ordinance to amend Ordinance No. 90-3 of the City of Plymouth which was previously published on August 9, 1990, deleting certain sections to be replaced with amended sections which will read:

Section 2.3 DEFINITIONS BRUSH - Small trees and shrul

MATERIAL COLLECTION LICENSE - A license issued by the City of Plymouth to a collection agent, which would allow this collection agent the privilege to provide a specific type of solid waste, yard waste and/or

or agent in charge of any premise, whether an individual, partnership or corporation.

PREMISE - A parcel of land, including any buildings, structures or appurtenance within the City of Plymouth, which includes the adjoining street, right-of-way or legal easement, separated from adjacent parcels of land by legal description. RUBBISH - The term "rubbish" shall mean the miscellaneous waste materials resulting from housekeeping and ordinary mercantile enterprises, and includes material such as packing boxes, cartons, excelsior paper, ashes, cinders, glass, metal, plastic and rubber, and excludes hazardous SPECIAL REFUSE - Furniture, washers, dryers, refrigerators and other household appliances, brush, large tree limbs and other bulky refuse items, and excluding construction and demolition debris, that are unsuitable for regular solid waste collection services. Section 2.5 ACCUMULATION OF SOLID WASTE

A. No person in charge of a residential dwelling unit, commercial estabment, or industrial facility shall permit the accumulation of refuse, rubbish or garbage upon their premises for a period that would pose a health hazard, subject adjacent property occupants to an unreasonably offensive odor, or become a public nuisance. The accumulation of refuse, rubbish or garbage in excess of seven days shall be prima facie evidence of posing a health hazard and creating a public

C. In the case of any alley or lawn extension (the area between the sidewalk and the street) where any refuse, rubbish, garbage or sard waste shall exist or be, or has been deposited, it shall be the duty of every owner or occupant or any lot or premises to remove from the one-half (1/2) of said alley adjoining said lot or premises or the entire lawn extension adjoining said lot, all such substances. Section 2.6 UNAUTHORIZED DUMPING AND LITTERING

A. It shall be unlawful to throw or deposit any refuse upon or into any street, right-of-way, alley, portable container, non-portable container. or any other property or premise, public or private, without the permission of the owner, proprietor, occupant, or agent in charge of that

Section 2.7 PRE-COLLECTION REQUIREMENTS - SEPARATION -CONTAINERS.

A. All persons within the City of Plymouth who shall place for disposal, removal, or collection, the following items shall do so in strict conformity with the following regulations: 1. SOLID WASTE - shall be separated and contained in a City solid waste bag, or in any other acceptable solid waste container (as defined in Sec. 2.9), clearly marked with a City solid waste tag. YARD WASTE - shall be separated and contained in a City Yard Waste Bag, or in any other acceptable yard waste container (as defined in Sec. 2.9), clearly marked with a City Yard Waste Tag, provided that during the leaf collection season, leaves may also be placed at the curb for the City leaf collection services.

Section 2.8 CITY BAG AND TAG SPECIFICATIONS D. The gross weight of the solid waste or yard waste bag, when filled with waste, shall not exceed fifty (50) pounds.

Section 2.9 RECEPTACLES A. Provide Receptacles. The person in charge of any buildings, house or structure where refuse accumulates, shall provide and maintain proper refuse receptacles as herein defined, and shall place or cause to be placed in said receptacles, all refuse accumulating on said premises; provided, that bulk rubbish may be stored in a condition properly prepared for collection as specified herein.

Residential and Small Commercial. The person in charge of every single or two family building or small commercial establishment where refuse accumulates, shall provide, keep clean and in place, proper receptacles or a portable type (as defined in Sec. 2.9(D)) to house their bagged solid waste.

Commercial, Industrial and Multiple Residential. The person in charge of every building consisting of three (3) or more dwelling units, and every building used for a commercial or industrial business, shall provide, keep clean and in place proper receptacles of a portable type (as defined in Sec. 2.9 (D)); provided that where the City Manager determines that providely recentables are not practical for multiple (as defined in Sec. 2.9 (D)); provided that where the City Manager determines that portable receptacles are not practical for multiple dwellings, commercial or industrial businesses, he may authorize the use of non-portable receptacles of the type that can be mechanically hoisted by a refuse collection vehicle, and with specifications established and approved by him and as defined in Sec. 2.9(E).

D. Portable Receptacles. Portable receptacles for municipal refuse shall be of metal, fiberglass, plastic or other substantial construction approved by the City Manager, shall have handles or bails and tight-fitting covers; they shall not exceed thirty (30) gallons each in capacity, provided that receptacles used exclusively for yard waste, need not have covers; and provided further, that the City Manager may approve the use of plastic bags of a capacity and quality specified by him for the storage and disposal of solid and/or yard waste. In no event shall the gross weight of receptacle, and the waste it contains, exceed fifty (50) pounds. G. Location of Receptacles. All non-portable receptacles chall be placed and collected in the location designated by the City Manager. Furthermore, they shall be so located that the licensed collectors will not have to trespass on private property in order to pick up such recepta-cles. In no event shall non-portable receptacles be placed in or upon public property, or public rights of way, without first obtaining the City Manager approval in writing. All portable receptacles shall be stored within the side or rear yards of the premises and not be set out for collection prior to twelve on preceding the day of collection, and after the receptacles are emptied they shall be returned to their place of storage on the same day collections are made. Points of collection shall be determined by the City Manager.

Section 2.12 MATERIAL COLLECTION LICENSES

A. It shall be unlawful to engage in the business or practice of collecting or disposing of solid waste, leaves, yard waste, or recyclable material without first obtaining a material collection license in the manner outlined in this Section. Section 2.14 AUTHORITY, COSTS, NOTICE TO REMOVE SOLID WASTE.

YARD WASTE, SPECIAL REFUSE AND/OR RECYCLABLE. A. The City Manager is hereby authorized and empowered to notify, in writing, the owner, proprietor, occupant, agent and/or tenant(s) of any premises, to remove solid waste, yard waste, special refuse and/ or recyclable ("waste or recyclables") accumulated and not disposed of in compliance with this ordinance on such premises (unless the same is on the abutting public property, or public rights-of-way in which no notice is required). Such notice shall be by hand delivery or First Class Mail, addressed to said owner and/or tenant(s) at the last

C. When the City has effected the removal of such waste or recyclable or has paid for its removal, the actual cost thereof, plus accrued interest at the rate of one per cent (1%) per month from the date of removal, shall be charged to the fee owner(s) of the premises and forwarded to such owner(s) by the City, and said charge shall be due and payable

Section 2.15 PROHIBITED WASTE A. It shall be unlawful to place in any container or receptacle any material that might endanger the collection personnel, nor deposit or deliver any hazardous waste or any such waste or recyclable to a disposal site which would be detrimental to the normal operation of collection, incineration, recycling or disposal, for example: gaseous, solid or liquid poison, dead animals, ammunition, explosives, inflamable liquid, undrained garbage of a liquid or semi-liquid nature, whether in containers or not, concrete, dirt, auto, or equipment parts, or any material that possess heat sufficient to ignite any other collected materials.

No motor vehicle shall be dumped or abandoned at any disposal site. B. It shall be unlawful to place leaves, yard waste or recyclables specifically required herein, or by City Commission resolution, to be separated from solid waste, in a refuse container for the purposes of refuse collection, removal or disposal, nor otherwise dispose of the item except in conformance with this ordinance. Section 2.16 WASTE OR RECYCLABLE COLLECTION AND TRANSFER

B. Scavengers. It shall be unlawful to take, remove or carry away anything deposted on such disposal site nor in any other way interfere therewith, except by permission of the City Manager.

C. Unauthorized Dumping. It shall be unlawful to dump or deposit any waste or recyclable in any place in the City of Plymouth except in a collection and transfer site duly designated as such by the City Manager, as provided by Section 2.16(A).

E. Use Permits. It shall be unlawful to dump or deposit waste or recyclables in any collection and transfer site without permission of the City Manager or his agents, which permission shall state the time the dis-posal site is open for use, and shall be issued upon the payment of such charges as the City Commission by resolution prescrib

Section 2.17 ENFORCEMENT. The Director of the Department of Public Works, Inspectors and the Police Department are hereby authorized and directed to enforce this Ordinance. The City Manager is hereby authorized and directed to establish and promulgate resasonable regulations as to the manner, days and times for the collection of waste or recyclables in accordance with the terms hereof. Such regulations shall be effective upon promulgation in the case of waste or recyclables specifically enumerated herein, and upon promulgation but subsequent to the date of the passage of resolution by the City Commission for subsequently added waste or recyclables. The City Commission may, by majority vote, change, modify, repeal or amend any portion of said rules and regulations. The City Manager is hereby authorized to employ inspectors to have the care and control of established collection and transfer sites and to enforce this ordinance. Such inspector may be empowered with police power and duly authorized to issue tickets and shall enforce the rules that are or may hereafter be promulgated for the government and control of solid waste and recycl-

Area abortion activists may debate the merits and flaws of Michigan's new parental consent law, but those most affected by it - unmarried girls 17 and younger - are also debating its effect.

Random conversations with students attending suburban high schools in Wayne and Oakland counties indicate:

· They know someone who has had an abortion or borne a child out of wedlock, either their best friend. an older sister's friend, the friend of a friend or an acquaintance.

· Unlike many worldly issues, they are aware of the new law that requires written consent from a parent or legal guardian or permission from probate or juvenile courts beginning April 1.

• The law is having little impact in altering personal opinions on whether to have an abortion and whether the issue should be discussed with parents.

Many express thoughts reflective of youthful indecision, ideas not yet fully formed or grounded into firm asked: "Are we too young to be sexually active?"

"MY MOTHER WOULD KILL ME if I got pregnant," said Christy. a 15-year-old sophomore with long, lightly permed hair who attends Plymouth-Salem High in Canton. she's Catholic.'

Several months ago, one of Christy's good friends had an abortion. The friend's mother knew and was supportive. Christy also applauds the friend's decision. "Fifteen is too young to have a kid."

Julie, also 15 and another of Christy's friends, joins the conversation. The girls are similar in dress and demeanor but Julie is more versed on abortion. Her best friend had one earlier this month and she knows several older girls, her sister's friends, who have babies but have never married.

"If I got pregnant," Julie said, "I'd go to my mom and I'd tell her I'm way too young to have a kid. She'd be hurt, but she's totally pro-choice. I'd definitly have an abortion."

And if Christy became pregnant? "I don't know if my mom would sign for me. She's totally pro-life," she said, pausing to add, "I'd never Julie counters; "At 15, it's really too much, too emotional, to even carry a kid.

Christy reluctantly agrees. And then, "Maybe we're too young for

HEATHER, 14, a sophomore at Westland's John Glenn High School who is quite certain "I will never need an abortion," is admittedly confused about parental consent.

"I'm for it and I'm against it. I feel sorry for kids who can't go to their parents, but it's not right to get pregnant and then be able to just go do it (abort).

"Especially," adds Nicole, 16 and also attending John Glenn, "if she can afford to keep it." If she became pregnant, Nicole would be "scared" to tell her parents. She's certain they would insist she keep the child. Her best friend is a single mother who dropped out of school.

"She told me, 'I hope this never happens to you.'

In a bathroom at Stevenson High in Livonia, juniors Lynn and Kristen, both 16, and sophomore Kim, 15, discuss parental consent. All three know girls who have had abortions.

They agree consent is essentially correct. Adult input is necessary for a thoughtful decision of such magni-

"Parents, a counselor, some adult, should be involved. We're not mature enough to make the decision alone. Adults, even if the advice is bad, can help. Otherwise it might be regretted later," Lynn said.

In addition, having to confront parents with such information is certain to encourage more responsible sexual behavior, the trio agree.

At Farmington High, Danielle and Monica, both 16, and Kelly and Katie, both 15, also think parental con-sent is basically good but perceive problems.

"BOTCHED ABORTIONS," or even suicide attempts, they said, citing desperate options for girls un-able to obtain parental permission, either because they are too frightened to confront them or parents oppose the procedure and will not give

'When you're pregnant," said Sarah, 14, a sophomore at Farmington High, "you need advice from an older adult. But the law is going to cause upset because some parents will never understand."

Allison, 17, a senior at Seaholm High in Birmingham, also mentions the fear of suicide. "If something as small as bad grades can make a kid do it, something as bad as (having to tell parents about an unwanted pregnancy) will definitely cause it."

Her friend Heather, a 17-year-old Seaholm senior, said abortion should be available on demand at any age. 'Some girls don't get along with their parents and could never get permission. It would be awful to have to go out of state for one, or have an illegal one here."

A trio of senior students at West Bloomfield High said the ultimate decision on abortion should lie with the pregnant girl.

'It's her baby. She's carrying it. It's her life. It's primarily her decision," said Becky, 16.

"Education," Abby, 17, said, "can only go so far. If a person wants one, they're going to do it and if you're old enough to get pregnant, you're old enough to make the decision."

Abby offers an alternative to the new law, requiring proof of counsel from parents, counselors or a like adult, but foregoing written or court permission

"Have them prove they sat down and talked with an adult but leave the final decision to the girl," she

Airport flight patterns near Detroit Metropolitan Airport will be reviewed by the federal government, county officials said Friday, but it is not certain whether new flight patterns would mean more or less noise for individual communities.

Flight patterns, changed last year as a safety measure, will likely change again once the FAA study is completed in December, county Executive Edward McNamara said.

New attitude is needed to achieve peace

In response to breaking off the dialogue between the U.S. and Palestine Liberation Organization, I say that such a dialogue would not solve the problem. Criticizing Israelis for killing innocent people in the West Bank does not solve it.

The resolution is within you. We have seen for the last 42 years much tension, hate and violence in the area. All the diplomatic talks and decisions made by the international community have not produced any positive calm. On the contrary, there is more confusion, more vio-

U.S. President George Bush and Mr. James Baker III will not improve the process of peace or solve problems in the Middle East. Neither has lived in the West Bank. Neither has felt the tremendous suffering you go through.

People involved in the conflict are full of antagonism, hate and cruelty because of the killing and violence committed by the ignorant. Whether President Bush breaks off dialogue with the PLO or puts pressure on Shamir does not matter.

It is time for the Palestinians and Israelis to recognize that neither President Bush nor James Baker can help conditions.

Nobody can help you unless you help yourself by wiping away the memories of yesterday that darken your being. And unless you replace the hate and dislike with a new open attitude - which is possible toward each other.

Let us understand we are one human community, no matter where we are born. With forgiveness, kindness, understanding, affection and consideration, we can produce shelter for all of us. We can stop killing each other to defend our ideas or our nationalities, or to preserve a piece of land. We can make the future safe for our children.

It is time to use your intelligence rather than allow emotion to cripple

During a recent trip to Hudson's, I noticed the sign over the shopping bag dispenser. It states that the fee for the shopping bag goes to the local United Way. It is my hope that the community is aware of the excellent corporate responsibility demonstrat-ed by this program. Hundreds of area residents will benefit via the services provided by United Way

Just in case memories are short, I would also like to remind North Oakland residents that the shopping bag fee donation is the latest of many commitments by Hudson's to this community. From housing, the arts, a food bank, community development and teen programs, Hudson's has "paid back" this region around its Summit Place Mall store.

Because my memory includes grants to Lighthouse as well as those previously mentioned, I salute Hudson's continued generosity.

We urge the president to use his skills of diplomacy to help the countries of the Persian Gulf to solve their deep-seated problems. War is no solution to these problems. And the need for oil is no justification for a world conflagration

The United States should not continue to take the major role in this conflict, but cooperate with other nations in economic sanctions under the United Nations Security Council.

The president should take every opportunity to mediate this conflict and use his influence to help the countries of this region solve their problems.

Strong stand called for on censorship

The ruling of a 24-hour decency

ban has struck close to my heart for I am studying both communications and sociology at the University of

The first amendment gives U.S. citizens a special characteristic that no other country has. That special characteristic is what caused the United States rapid growth and success. Freedom of speech breeds progress. The more ideas a country is exposed to the more people can collaborate and invent newer ideas and so on.

The problem lies with the censorship of culture. Censoring art is the same as censoring ideas. Placing a 24 hour decency ban will limit our ideas and halt our progress that the United States has been so proud about. Thus, we will be truly entering the dark ages.

Sex, urination and defecation are bodily functions the human race cannot do without. Why does the government believe a 17-year-old that hears a song about sex will become a child molester or mass murderer? A person's moral fiber is not formed or destroyed by what he or she listens to, reads or looks at.

One school believes that ideas swept under the carpet will only slap harder when it wears through. In order to deal with something in a mature manner one must confront it.

We are supposedly the freest country in the world and "2 live crew" can not play in a Los Angeles bar to 21-year olds without getting arrest-ed. This is not China, or Russia. What is happening to the United States of

My colleagues and I urge you to please take a strong stand against censorship for the sake of the United States and its citizens.

Petitioners deserve praise

To the editor:

I was surprised and appalled by your editorial of July 19, in which "note with civic satisfaction" that the Patterson-Anderson Tax Limitation Amendment will not be on the state ballot this year. You agreed with our goals to limit school property taxes and to allocate more state budget dollars for local schools. Yet you condemn the whole approach of a citizens' initiative, saying the proposal was "legislative in nature and had no place in our constitution, whatever its merits."

We agree that property taxes should have been limited a long time ago. We agree that the school system should have been better funded by Lansing, so that we didn't have to pay so much in local property taxes. We also agree that the proper body to accomplish those goals is the state Legislature with the leadership of the Governor. However, when the Legislature and the governor repeatedly fail to address an important problem, we as citizens have to act.

Believe me, Brooks and I would much prefer that the Legislature and the Governor did their job, rather than leading a citizens' petition drive to do it for them. Unfortunately, they just haven't done their job.

Your editorial made it seem that you are more concerned about "cluttering" the ballot with a citizens' proposal than the Legislature's unwillingness to address our excessive property tax burden. This does a disservice to the over 50,000 Oakland county voters who signed Patterson-Anderson tax cut petitions, as well as the thousands who helped circulate those tax cut petitions in this area. Rather than condemining these citizens, you should be condemning the Legislature and the Governor for abdicating their responsibilities.

Our constitution wisely allows the citizens the right to propose amendments. Those who exercise their rights to peaceably petition for a change in law should be lauded as patriots, not castigated as scoun-

New ruling on nuclear waste 'an outrage'

To the editor:

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has voted to declare one-third of radioactive waste "Below Regulatory Concern" so that the problem of disposing of radioactive waste from power plants and weapons factories can be partially solved by putting the waste in with ordinary garbage such as coffee grounds and banana

Although it is characterized as "Below Regulatory Concern," such radioactive waste is still capable of causing cancer and birth defects.

This is an outrage! Radioactive waste can and will leak into ground water, soil and air and wind up on our food chain. It could be recycled through the normal waste stream and become a part of such things as cooking utensils and toys. The NRC should be tightening exposure levels instead of loosening

The Biologic Effects of Ionizing Radiation Committee of the National Academy of Science has just released a report showing radiation produces three to 14 times more cancer than was originally thought.

The standards proposed by the NRC for this BRC waste could cause 4,000 extra cancer deaths in the people now living in Michigan and 100,000 nationally.

Michigan must act quickly to keep "Below Regulatory Concern" radioactive waste from entering the landfills and waterways of this State. Contact your state representatives. Also, demand that your congressional representative investigate the Nuclear Regulatory Com-When the NRC allows 50 times

Remark was irresponsible

To the editor:

In his Aug. 16 column (regarding area traffic lights), Tim Richard describes Alan Richardson as a "dismal traffic engineer." I sympathize with his feelings for freq encounters with red lights, altho-80 percent seems an inflated rate. However, this frustration does not in any way justify Mr. Richard's irre-sponsible, malicious attack on a person who, for 25 years, has worked towards the improvement and augmentation of Wayne County roads.

Because he is not a traffic engi-neer, Alan Richardson has nothing to do with traffic signal synchronization. He works in planning, where, surprisingly enough, he plans road projects. I might complain to Tim Richard that my newspaper is often delivered to the shrubbery rather than the porch, but, while I do see Mr. Richard's column in the paper, I calculate that it is unlikely that he is involved in circulation because, surprisingly enough, writers are busy writing the paper.

I hope that he will consider utilizing such vigorous investigative techniques for future columns.

House Dems seek to postpone tax cut vote.

staff writer

If majority Democrats in the state House of Representatives have their way, the Headlee property tax cut bill won't go on the ballot until 1992.

"How long can you expect homeowners to tread water among the tax-eating sharks? The question is not 'if' but 'when,' " said Rep. David Jaye, R-Utica, as he sought to move the measure to this year's ballot. Jaye's effort got 46 votes, 10 short of Richard Headlee of Farmington Hills and Taxpayers United Tuesday filed 223,000 signatures with the Secretary of State for a 20 percent property tax cut.

The petitions ask the Legislature either to pass the measure or put it before voters, preferably this Nov. 6. Lawmakers this week will battle again over the "if" versus "when"

THE HOUSE Thursday rejected Jaye's effort to force a proposed constitutional amendment with Headlee's language out of the Taxation Committee. It is known as House Joint Resolution X.

Soldiers' jobs safe

Civilian jobs will be protected for military reservists and Michigan National Guard members activated during the Middle East crisis,

"The federal Veterans' Re-Employment rights law ensures the rights of reservists and National Guard members to return to their former civilian jobs once their active duty ends," said Jack Barthwell III, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

The law requires employers to put reservists or National Guard members back to work immediately, without loss of seniority, status or pay rate, upon their return from active duty.

It is illegal for employers to discharge reservists or National Guard members because of their military obligation or to discriminate against them with regard to promotions or any "incident or advantage of employment".

Federal law doesn't require employers to pay reservists for time spent away from the job. Additional information on employment rights for reservists or National Guard members is available by writing the U.S. Veterans Employment and Training Service, 7310 Woodward, Room 407, Detroit, 48202, or by calling the service, 876-

JAYE SAID he will try this week to discharge another measure House Bill 5919, with wording identical to the Headlee language - from

If that fails, lawmakers could seek to put the initiative on this year's ballot, which would require amending the election law since the 60-day time limit has passed.

"We could have a special election

(in 1991) that would cost $7 million,"
Jondahl added.

JONDAHL contradicted the $600 million figure given by Taxpayers United as the cost of the Headlee measure to the state. The Headlee measure would reduce property assments and require the state to reimburse local units for lost reve-

Total lost revenue would be $1.86 billion, said Jondahl — 20 percent of the more than $7 billion in property

The state wouldn't have to pay about $350 million in rebates to homeowners whose property taxes exceed 3.5 percent of income. That would reduce the net cost to the state to $1.5 billion, or about 20 percent of the current state general fund budget of $7.6 billion.

Jondahl said homeowners in Macomb County - biggest source of support for the Headlee drive would get a better deal from a House-passed assessment freeze bill. Under it, assessments could rise no faster than the rate of consumer price inflation, while under the Headlee measure, the reduced assesment would begin to rise with real estate inflation.

The Headlee measure would apply to all property - commercial, in-dustrial, residential, agricultural and mining. The House bill would apply to homes.

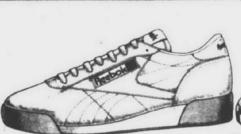

Democrats seeking a delay in voting on the : : : Headlee tax cut plan included John Bennett of Redford and James Kosteva of Canton. Republicans voting to move the plan ahead included Lyn Bankes of Livonia and Gerald Law of Plymouth.

Challah is bread and more

Trying not to become too psy-chological, I'm finding that life's many lessons are frequently revealed to us through various people who, at one point in our lives, touch our souls and our minds for many years to come.

If memory serves me correct-ly, I was close to the age of 8 when I finally realized that the Havermans (Max and Stella), who lived next door, followed what I thought was a strange calendar. They were the only family on the block without a Christmas tree. Even stranger was the fact they celebrated the New Year in September. They didn't go to any of the churches in Wyandotte, instead opting to travel all the way to Trenton, and that was on a Saturday, when all of us were home watching cartoons.

During the formulative years, I never gave much thought about the Havermans. They were old and never had kids my age, but now I can look back and appreciate Max and Stella, especially for their Orthodox traditions and heritages they kept despite a neigh-borhood full of manger scenes and twinkling lights.

One of the traditions I remember best was Stella coming by, always right after school started, carrying a basket lined with the most gorgeous linen napkins I had ever seen. Wearing an equally attractive babushka, she would smile and call us kids together, then give a yell to Max to come

MOMMA ALWAYS looked forward to these visits because it was then that Max and Stella would present Momma with two beautiful, golden-colored loaves of something called challah (pronounced hal-la). Momma would get out the bread knife, make a quick sign of the cross on the bottom of the still warm loaf then pass around a slice to all. Max would pass around a silver-plated dish of honey and we would all take turns dipping the bread into the honey. None of us kids ever knew why we did this, and if someone ever tried to explain, we would have probably just shrugged our shoulders and went on with our play.

But as I look back on those days, I have fond memories of Max and Stella and especially the challah they shared with our family. About 15 years ago, I asked Momma about the Havermans and she told me they were living in a retirement residence in a nearby city. I can remember at this very moment, almost as if it was yesterday, Stella telling the tale of those bygone days and all about challah.

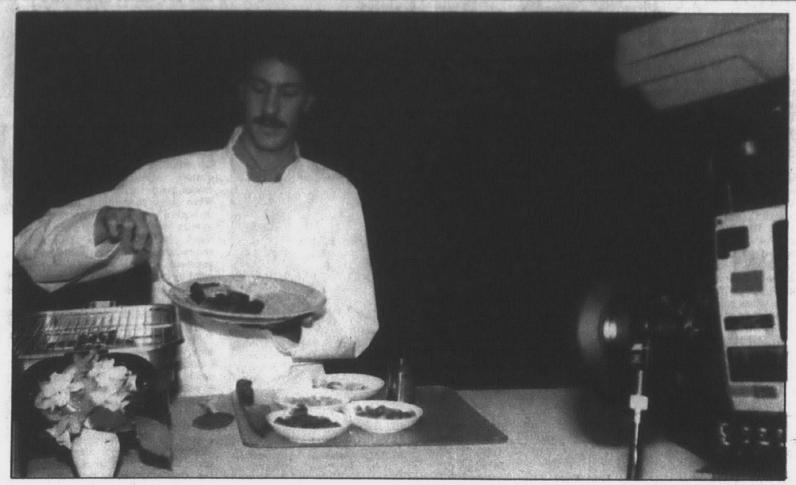

Challah is a lovely-to-look-at, yellow, egg-rich and light-textured bread steeped in Jewish his-

While the word challah has come to mean this loaf of braided bread, the preparation of the dough for baking in the Jewish kitchen is called "the act of challah," in which the woman takes a small part of the dough to burn as an offering. She thereby re-enacts her origin at the Creation, according to the Old Testament, when she sprang from man's rib. The remaining dough may be baked as she chooses, usually in the braided form.

STELLA WENT ON to say that during Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur challah is baked in the form of a ladder, symbolizing the hope that prayers of thanksgiving will mount toward heaven. And little did I know while growing up that when the Havermans came to visit with the bread and honey it was because on Rosh Hashanah it was customary to dip a slice of challah in honey to symbolize the sweetness of the New Year.

Unfortunately, I never got their recipe but, fortunately, I have much more. Both Stella and Max have since passed away, but their legacy lives on.

ET THESE RECIPE ideas roll around on your tongue. Swordfish Annie. Wild mushroom strudel. Sliced melon with blueberry sauce. Fatfree chocolate mousse.

Sound good? Two cooking shows, produced and seen on local cable TV networks in Westland and Southfield, are tickling taste buds. Innovative chefs are the stars, cooking up their own creations for "I TRY to do things that are sim-

Winfrey is seen regularly on the "Occupations and Avocations" show in Westland, which showcases residents with special talents and interests.

In Southfield, a show called "What's Cooking in Southfield?" has viewers drooling over recipes prepared by renowned chefs such as Milos Cihelka of the Golden Mushroom, Chris Carl of the Bijou, both Southfield restaurants, and Douglas Grech, better known as Chef Duglass.

Both shows air on the Channel 8 cable station in their respective communities.

WINFREY, A graduate of Westland John Glenn High School and the culinary arts program at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, created the recipe for Swordfish Annie and named it after his wife, Annie.

For this recipe Winfrey marinates the swordfish in a mixture of fresh lemon juice, fresh thyme and olive oil.

Cihelka created the wild mushroom strudel as a warm first course. It combines fresh mushrooms, seasoned and sauced, in a pocket of phyllo dough.

The sliced melon with blueberry sauce is from Chris Carl. Duglass created the fat-free chocolate mousse, which uses baker's cocoa, coffee liqueur, egg whites and unflavored gelatin.

Winfrey's appearances began several weeks ago. "What's Cooking in Southfield?" has been airing for around three years and features a free cookbook of recipes from the show. Both shows are rotated over several weeks. Feedback from viewers has been positive, said representatives for both shows.

"It has worked out very nicely," said Steve Zieman, Winfrey's producer. "It's something people can

On the table, Auteurs does a lot of oyster pizza. Chicken pizza. Duck pizza was returned to the menu by popular demand. Famie's thin-crust pizza is terrific and will redefine your expectation for this dish.

Among the out-of-the-ordinary ingredients you see here are ligonberries - now used for salad dressing, cake, toppings for pizza enough to strip every Ligon bush in the entire grand duchy of Ligon.

The kitchen is probably best with chicken, and someday it might be Colonel Famie, since he has opened one carry-out chicken shop in Royal Oak and is preparing to launch another this month in West Bloomfield. At Auteurs, rotisserie-style (very moist) chicken with a delicious honey mustard sauce or a not-too-spicy Southern barbeque sauce are at the top of the entree menu. At lunch, the grilled breast of chicken salad with pine nuts (and ligonberry dressing) is AUTEURS ALSO more than capably tackles lamb chops, ribs, whitefish, trout and salmon. The lamb chops feature a popular garnish boursin cheese — and are served with julienne-style veggies with tasty carmelized shiitake mushrooms. The grilled skirt steak is good too. Try it as a sandwich or as part of the mixed grill with cherry-pecan sau-sage and duck (in this dish, the sausage was disappointingly ordinary).

Accompaniments like the roasted herb potatoes, dauphine potatoes, and the tomato-apple chutney seem to be consistently good - well pre-"rad" stuff with pizza. Shrimp and pared and well matched with the main entree. Our only complaint here is that they are often strewn across the plate without appropriate concern for presentation. House-made soups also are worthy of note. The chilled fruit gazpacho is delicious, alone worth the price of admission. Appetizers are intriguingly different, like salmon hash or the signature black bean cake with smoked chicken.

Desserts, made on the premises, are delicious. We especially enjoy the white chocolate mousse dressed with berries - raspberries, blueberries and strawberries - alas, no ligoh - plus kiwi. The fruit tames the sweetness of the mousse

Good Harbor is big winner

harvest event is the annual Michigan State F. gan State Fair Wine Competition.

Of 111 wines entered in this year's competition, 11 were awarded gold medals. Good Harbor Vineyards swept the gold medals, earning a total of four, plus a Best of Show honor for its 1989 Leelanau Peninsula Ries-

The other Good Harbor goldmedal-winning wines are: Trilli-um, 1989 Foch Rose and Cherry

The Best of Show award-winning red wine is the 1988 Chancellor from Fenn Valley Vineyards.

Other gold medal awards went to Spring Splendor (a white French-American hybrid blended wine) from Leelanau Wine Cellars Ltd., Classic Demi-Sec and Hartford Cream Sherry from Tabor Hill Winery, Chambourcin (a red French-American hybrid) produced by Lemon Creek Winery, Village Red (a red hybrid blend) and Solera Cream Sherry from St. Julian Wine Company.

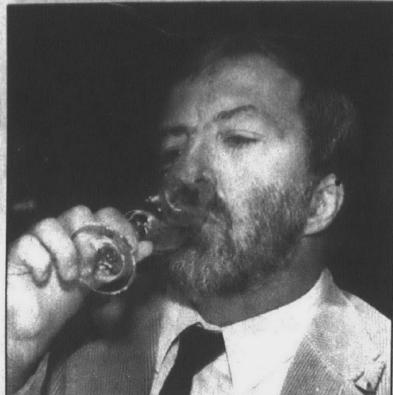

"The wines entered in the competition showed that Michigan's winemakers are using good techniques, and they have access to some quality fruit but an insufficient amount of quality fruit," commented Don Neel, the editor and publisher of Practical Winery & Vineyard magazine.

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1989 Chardonnay, Tabor Hill Winery ($9.75) showcases the bright, appley fruit characteristic of Southwest Michigan chardonnay grapes. With appley flavors, balanced acidity and clean aftertaste, it expresses the potential of Michigan chardonnay at an honest price.

Village Red, St. Julian Winery ($4) is a repeat gold-medal-winning wine. It represents a solid value in an easy-drinking red wine that will accompany a variety of pasta dishes, textured seafood such as salmon and tuna, and herbed chicken. A singular best buy.

STEPHEN CANTRELL/staff photographer

Don Neel, editor and publisher of Practical Winery & Vineyard magazine, tastes one of the wines in competition at Michigan State Fair.

NEEL, WHO PUBLISHES his well-respected trade publication in California, was invited by the Michigan Department of Agriculture and the Michigan Grape and Wine Industry Council as a judge.

"Blending techniques for Michigan's red wines produced from French-American hybrid varieties showed the execution of good skills in both winemaking and blending ability," Neel said. "I tasted some very good red table wines. The rieslings were clean and well made. The clear leader in the competition was the bottling from Good Harbor. The Pinot Gris and Merlots showed a great promise for these varieties in Michigan."

Neel's remarks were echoed by Madeline Triffon, the master sommelier at Detroit's Rattlesnake Club. "The blended Detroit's red hybrid wines showed especially well," she stated. "Fenn Valley's Chancellor was an exciting red table wine. I was pleased to taste the high quality of the dry and semi-dry rieslings and white hybrid blends. I can sell these at competitive prices in the three

With all these positive com-ments, the chardonnay lovers among you are wondering, What about Michigan chardonnay? In all honesty, these wines did not show well, and we tried to learn

One significant problem is the fact that the judges did not know the vintages of the wines they were evaluating. Wines from both the 1988 and 1989 vintages were in the competition. Given the fickle nature of Michigan's weather, vintage variation plays an important role.

ADDITIONALLY, our investigation revealed that several of the wineries bottled their chardonnay entries two or three weeks prior to the competition. When wine is bottled, it goes through a period of one to three months of what is dubbed "bottle shock." During this time, aromas are reduced, flavors are less than generous and the wine is somewhat awkward overall. Frequently, the wine revives in the glass with persistent swirling, but judges in a competition cannot offer this revival period to the wine.

"It's okay if Michigan chardonnays don't show well in a competition," Triffon contended. "I would rather have the challenge of selling the lesser-known hybrid blends and the rieslings than being a midwife for a $30 bottle of Michigan chardonnay. These grapes are expensive to grow in Michigan and that's about the price that we have to charge in the restaurant for the better bot-

Michigan is the fifth largest producer of wine in the United States. There are, however, only 995 acres of wine grapes planted and only 45 of these are chardonnay. The maximum yield is three tons per acre. Juice yield is approximately 160 gallons per ton. Given these facts, it doesn't take a rocket scientist to compute a maximum annual potential of 8,640 cases of Michigan chardon-

Additionally, the oldest plantings are about seven years old. Some vineyards like those at Good Harbor were only three years old in the 1989 harvest.

Sausage, sauerkraut and oom-pah-pah

I've come to the conclusion that life as a wife and mother is definitely on the same par as that of a symmy orchestra conductor.

As I see it, the two jobs aren't that dissimilar, the major difference being that the conductor only has to wave his arms around for a few hours and then can go home while we go on and on, directing the melody of our own lives as well as those of our families and try our best to keep everything in harmony.

As we go through the day, cueing in the various supporting tasks and activities that provide constant and steady rhythm, we have within our hands, through the meals we prepare, the power to create and improvise on our daily composition.

This week's Winner Dinner, submitted by Susan Jones of Birmingham, offers a meal that will transport your taste buds to the home of Bach, Beethoven and oom-pah-pah! Featuring kielbasa and sauerkraut served with home fries and German apple cake, this quick and easy menu is one you will want to repeat over and over

SMOKED SAUSAGE AND SAUERKRAUT DELI RYE BREAD OR PUMPERNICKEL ROLLS GERMAN APPLE CAKE

Recipes

SMOKED SAUSAGE AND SAUERKRAUT

This flavorful dish takes minutes to assemble and is a tasty solution for those nights when everyone is eating at a different time. When buying the sausage, please note that it is now possible to buy sausage with reduced amounts of salt and fat. Dijon, or any other good quality of mustard, is the suggested condiment. You might also wish to serve steamed broccoli and sliced beets for color. This meal serves 4-5 people.

1 bag cold-pack sauerkraut 1 package smoked sausage

Put the sausage in a colander and wash the brine off thoroughly by rinsing it twice with cold water. Place in a 3-4 quart pot. Cut the sausage into 3-inch pieces and bury in the sauerkraut. Add ½ teaspoon salt and cold water just to cover. Bring to a boil and simmer gently for 45 minutes. Pour off and discard the liquid before serving.

HOME FRIES

Peel and slice potatoes that were previously boiled and thoroughly cooled either the previous day or that morning. Preheat a non-stick fry pan, add 1-2 tablespoons oil, the potatoes and a little chopped onion (optional) Season to taste with Lawry's seasoning salt, paprika and black pepper. Fry till crusted, turning occasionally

Boiled or mashed potatoes can be served in lieu of the home fries if you haven't had time to precook the potatoes

GERMAN APPLE CAKE This is a delicious cake which also can be made with fresh peaches or plums in season. For dessert, serve plain or with vanilla ice cream or whipped cream.

It also tastes great for breakfast.

3/4 cup sugar

1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, cut into pieces

1 teaspoon baking powder 1/6 teaspoon salt (optional)

1 teaspoon vanilla extract

1 large egg 3 large Granny Smith apples

Topping:

1 or 2 tablespoons sugar 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine 1 teaspoon cinnamon

1 large egg Dash of salt (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. If you have a food processor, put all the cake ingredients except the apples into the bowl and process with the metal blade until mixture resembles cornmeal. Otherwise, cut the sugar and butter together with an electric mixer or a pastry cutter, beat the egg separately and add together with the other ingredients. Spread the mixture in the bottom of a well-buttered 9-inch round layer-cake pan or, if you want to

Quarter, peel and slice apples. Arrange in layers on top of the crumb mixture. Bake in preheated oven for 45 minutes. Meanwhile, add topping ingredients to food processor bowl and process till sugar dissolves. Spoon over apples and bake 25-30 minutes more or until top is firm remove the cake to a plate, a 9-inch springform pan.

Magic associated with egg through history

Since the beginning of mankind, the egg has been held in esteem as the symbol of life and fertility.

In pagan times, farmers carried eggs into the fields as magic charms to increase the productivity of their crops. The Scots used to place an egg in the baskets where they kept their seeds, to insure their fertility

Eggs, to this day, are still believed by many to be powerful charms. They are used in all kinds of rituals to cure impotence and sterility.

Because they are symbols of new life and seeds of the future, eggs are often used in divination. One method of using them in this fashion is the old New Year's Eve custom of dropping the white of a fresh raw egg into a glass of water and allowing it to stand overnight in a north window. When read the next day, it is said to reveal the events forthcoming in the new year.

The eating of eggs is still thought by many to bring good luck. In the Ukraine, it is believed that when a family, a couple or a group of friends share one egg among them, it will bind them together in love.

BECAUSE OF present-day cholesterol consciousness, eggs have recently fallen into ill repute. But, although the composition varies with the breed of hen and with its diet, the egg is almost a complete food.

It is extremely nutritious and contains easily assimilated proteins and fats. (A certain amount of fat is necessary for life.) It also contains vitamins A, B, D and E (only C is missing); an appreciable amount of iron. and mineral salts such as magnesium, calcium, sodium, potassium, manganese, copper, zinc, and others. The average-size egg contains well under 100 calories.

Egg shells, provided by nature, efficient, environmentally safe, pro-tective packaging imaginable. To top it all off, they taste delicious and can be prepared in countless ways to be served as appetizers, main dishes, salads, sandwich fillings, and desserts — for breakfast, lunch, dinner

Today, we are warned against eating raw eggs. But in rural areas where chickens are fed the right balance of grain and vegetable matter, and allowed space to run free, they are far less prone to disease than chickens raised in commercial barns, never allowed to walk and fed artificial hormones.

People who raise their own chickens eat raw eggs frequently, and eggnogs are popular in such areas not only at Christmas but year round. One recipe calls for two cups of sweetened milk or water and four well-beaten eggs mixed together and flavored with orange water, vanilla or grated nutmeg - and laced with rum or brandy.

The Germans make the following beer eggnog, which they call "bier-grandmother used to beat an egg in a glass with a fork, add a little sugar and vanilla, and fill the glass with cold milk. After stirring the mixture, she would serve it to children, calling it "egg milk."

'Egg toast" was her own version of French toast, but not nearly as refined. She simply dipped huge slices of bread into beaten eggs. Some-times, she used only egg yolks, which had been left over from some recipe which called for the whites only. In this case, she always added a little milk when she beat them up. Then she would fry them in hot bacon fat.

Egg yolks and bacon are both nono's today. But Grandma's egg toast, served with thick slices of fresh tomato sprinkled with dill, salt and pepper, tasted so good - nobody ever thought of putting sugar and syrup on it.

Thirty-something years ago, I bought a book called "250 Ways to Cook Eggs." It contained recipes for shirred eggs, sherried eggs, cold eggs, jellied eggs, baked eggs, eggs in molds, red eggs, eggs au gratin, stuffed eggs, eggs flambe, eggs in nests, and eggs glazed with grape jelly, along with 238 others.

I tried them all. My poor kids never knew whether to expect their eggs floating in soup, or staring up at them with faces on (cloves for eyes, pimento smiles and carrot curls for sarcasm intended, my 4-year old asked me, "Mama, do you still re-member how to fry an egg? I used to like them that way."

Fried eggs are the most difficult Fried eggs are the most difficult of all to prepare for other people. Everyone has his or her own preference as to how a fried egg should look and taste. I hate eggs that are brown and crispy around the edges. Some people love them that way.

Some want their yolks cooked hard some want them runny. Some hard. Some want them runny. Some want the yolks to look yellow, while others want them basted and coated over. It takes a really good short-order cook to please them all.

If I'm cooking for more than two people, I don't even try to fry them right. I resort to scrambled eggs. Even than you can get into trouble if you beat them first and serve them nice and fluffy to someone who wants them pan-scrambled, with the whites discernible and cooked hard.

One of my favorite ways to cook eggs is in an omelet. And one of my favorite kinds of omelets is an oven-

Helen Chen, daughter of Chinese cooking expert Joyce Chen, has written a cookbook called "Stir Fry with Helen Chen."
The 64-page book, published by

Joyce Chen Inc. in 1988, offers 45 recipes for stir frying a variety of foods, including beef, lamb, chicken, seafood, noodles and vegetables.

The book includes chapters on such topics as using the Chinese knife, preparing ingredients, using hot chilis and using chopsticks.

STIR FRYING, the primary cooking method for Chinese food, offers nutritional value, speed, economy and versatility, Chen said.

"The basic prep work is very important," Chen said. "It might take 30 minutes to chop the vegetables and meat, but the dish takes only minutes to cook.

"I think the three most important things about stir frying are to have the right equipment, to have fresh ingredients as well as the right soy sauce and spices, and to understand the technique.

"For instance, stir frying is not just cooking over high heat. You always need a little oil, but I have devised ways to use less oil with the same results."

Helen Chen is the president of Joyce Chen Inc., which sells cookbooks, Chinese cookware and cookstir fry sauces and oils.

The company was begun by Joyce Chen, the author of "The Joyce Chen Cookbook," a popular Chinese cookbook written for Americans. That book sold 100,000 copies and is now out of print.

"Stir Fry with Helen Chen" is available for $4 at gourmet and department stores. It also may be ordered from Joyce Chen Inc., 25 Industrial Way, Wilmington, Mass. 01887. (508) 988-9088.

MANDARIN SWEET AND SOUR

To prepare meat: ing utensils and several flavors of 2 cups cubed lean pork (about 1

1 tablespoon dry sherry tablespoon soy sauce 3 tablespoons corn starch 1/2 teaspoon salt

2 cups cooking oil

Mix thoroughly all the above ingredients, except oil, in large bowl. Separate the pieces and fry in oil (350 degrees) until well done and crisp on the edges, about 8 minutes. Drain oil from fried pork and spread out on absorbent paper. Keep in warm place or low oven.

To prepare sauce: 3 cup sugar 1/4 cup catsup

SWORDFISH ANNIE Juice of 3 fresh lemons 14 cup oil (olive or vegetable) 3 sprigs fresh thyme (or 1 teaspoon

dry) Salt and cracked pepper to taste

Combine juice of three lemons, 1/4 cup oil and thyme in a bowl. Add salt and pepper to taste and whisk to-gether. Pour over fish and marinate for 2-3 hours. Use marinade as a baste while cooking. Makes enough marinade for 4 fish. (Recipe courtesy of Scott Winfrey)

SHRIMP AND LINGUINI WITH GARLIC CREAM SAUCE 1/2 lb. shrimp (any size) 1/2 lb. linguini 4 cloves garlic 3 small shallots

16 cup white wine 1 pint heavy whipping cream 2 medium tomatoes 1 bunch scallions (green onions)

Peel and devein shrimp. Cook linguini according to box directions. Finely mince garlic and shallots. Skin and seed tomatoes and dice into medium-size pieces. Cut scallions at angle (tops only). Add shrimp, garlic and shallots to hot butter or oil. Saute until shrimp are three-quarters cooked (5 minutes). Add wine and cream and cook for 3 or 4 minutes. Add cooked pasta and diced tomatoes. Toss together. Add salt and pepper. Place on serving dish and sprinkle with scallions. Serves 2-3. (Recipe courtesy of Scott Winfrey)

Hawks thwart Canton's bid for upset

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

For the time being at least, Farmington Hills Harrison is still king of the hill in Western Division football.

The perennial champion Hawks were put to the test Saturday by Plymouth Canton and even invited the visiting Chiefs to win the game - but Harrison survived with a 21-15 win in the early-season showdown.

Unlike last year, when the same teams met on the last weekend of division play to decide the title, the Hawks (2-1) must win their next four games to remain the only school to win the Western championship.

"We didn't know much about Northville, because they had a lot of new kids on defense," Harrison coach John Herrington said, anticipating another key game in two weeks with the unbeaten Mustangs. "It looks like it's still a toss-up between us, Northville

"I think (Canton coach) Bob (Khoenle) has done a great job of building the program over there. I picked them as the division favorite, and we feel fortunate to beat them.

"THERE'S NO comparison between this team and the Canton teams of the past," he

The Hawks erased a 15-13 halftime deficit and scored the winning touchdown with 1:43 to play in the third quarter. Senior quarterback Plamen Magdevski tossed his second TD pass of the game, a 10-yarder to Greg Piscopink, and added the conversion run.

But the game remained in doubt until the final half minute with Harrison turning over the ball twice on fourth-quarter fumbles. The Chiefs (2-1), who got another outstanding game from senior quarterback Karl Wukie, threatened but failed to capitalize.

"We had a good shot to win it; we just didn't get it," Khoenle said. "I thought we had the best shot at beating them since I've Wukie, who scored one TD and passed for the other, again led the Chiefs in rushing with 83 yards on 12 carries. He passed for 137 yards, completing nine of 26 passes, but threw four interceptions.

"It was good ballgame," Khoenle said. "We just didn't score when we had the chance. We'll regroup and come out of this. It would have been great to win, but that's the way it is."

HARRISON WAS driving for the clinching TD when it lost the ball on a fumble inside the Canton 5-yard line with eight minutes left in the game.

Harrison's defense had the Chiefs pinned down, but Wukie lofted a 47-yard pass to tight end Sean Bartolucci on third-and-3. Eventually, that possession ended at the Harrison 35 with Andy Smith tipping away a fourth-down pass at the Harrison goal line.

But another fumble gave Canton the ball again at its own 49. Now there was 3:27 re-

The Chiefs got a first down at the Harrison 27 with 1:15 to play, but four passes went incomplete and Canton gave the ball back to the Hawks with 41 seconds on the

"They played us tough the whole day, and when we had the chances to put it away we didn't do it," Herrington said. "We have to get the killer instinct.

"They had two or three guys open behind our secondary, so we did dodge a bullet. But I think we played better against the option in the second half."

WUKIE'S OPTION runs hurt the Hawks as they did Farmington a week ago, but his passing had the Chiefs on top 15-13 at half-

Harrison scored off the opening kick to lead 6-0. Magdevski's 24-yard pass to Roy Granger set up a 1-yard scoring dive by tailback Gary Devine, who rushed 26 times for

But the Chiefs also scored the first time they had the ball. Wukie sprinted 36 yards on second down and covered the final 2 yards of the 60-yard drive. His conversion pass to Jason Riggs made it 8-6.

The teams continued to play cat-andmouse in the second quarter with an exchange of touchdowns.

On fourth-and-6 in Harrison territory, Wukie passed 24 yards to Brett Howell, who had four receptions for 55 yards in the game, for a 15-6 advantage following the PAT kick.

But the Hawks were in the end zone again two plays later. Devine ran 18 yards and Magdevski zipped a 47-yard strike to Dan Hight for the score. Kicker Mark Lebovitz narrowed the difference to 15-13 with 3:53 left in the half.

"I think the turning point was the touch-

First impressions, like football statistics, can be misleading.

Westland John Glenn tailback John Ward dashed 55 yards for a touchdown on the second play of the game Friday, and it appeared host Plymouth Salem was facing a long

Still, the last play of the game saw the Rocks with a chance to win, but undefeated Glenn prevailed 20-14 in the Lakes Division opener for both

In between the first and last series, the Rockets (3-0) dominated the contest with an effective ball-control Salem coach Tom Moshimer said. offense, especially in the first half when Glenn ran 31 plays to Salem's

Ward rushed for 150 yards on 24 carries as the Rockets outgained Salem 245-104 on the ground and racked up 345 total yards to 181 for the Rocks, who dropped to 1-2.

QUARTERBACK Lawrence Scheffer complemented Ward with his passing, throwing for 100 yards and a pair of touchdowns to Steve

"You need to control the ball to keep it out of (Salem tailback Leon) Hister's hands," Glenn coach Chuck Gordon said. "He's dangerous because he's so fast.

"When you beat Salem, you beat a good football team, and it doesn't matter whether it's the last game of the year or the third game," he added, recalling the two met to decide the division title in the eighth week last year. Glenn won that game 7-6.

Hister accounted for most of Salem's yardage, rushing 16 times for 106 yards and both touchdowns on runs of 57 and 8 yards.

The Rocks went 80 yards in 11/2 minutes to pull within 20-14 on Hister's second TD with 1:37 remaining. Salem used a nifty option-pass play with Ed Gundry passing 21 and 15 yards to Hister to fuel the drive. Kevin Craggs then recovered the onside kick at the Salem 49-yard line with just over a minute left, but four passes resulted in three incompletes and an interception by Glenn's Brian

"I THOUGHT we had a chance," "Any time you can score 14 points on John Glenn in a half and have a chance to win, you've got to be doing something right.

"In the first half, we just didn't play. We were lucky to only be down 14-0. You can't put points on the board when you only run eight offensive plays. In the second half, we played very good football."

The Rocks were reeling early when Ward ran for his TD and the Rockets recovered a fumble on the ensuing kickoff. Ward carried the ball on Glenn's first nine plays, and the Rockets moved to the Salem 19 before the drive fizzled.

"Anybody who thought that play would be a deciding factor was crazy," said Gordon of Ward's scoring run. "You're playing Salem. That game will never be won in the first Glenn's suffocating, possessive offense ate up nearly the entire second quarter with a 16-play drive that covered 86 yards. Scheffer passed 10 yards to Fuller with 16 seconds left in the half for a 14-0 lead.

"The kid can throw, he's got good receivers and they're tough up front," Moshimer said. "They're a physically strong football team.

WHEN YOU can control the football to the point someone only has eight plays, you're giving your de-fense a huge lift. That is a good defense when you control the ball like Glenn offensive linemen Tony Prey, Zak Purdon, Sean O'Brien, Jason Hagelthorn, Mike Peterson and Bill Bratcher played a solid game and made the offense work.

As opposed to the first half - Salem didn't run a play from scrimmage until 5:42 in the opening quarter - the Rocks scored in four plays after the second-half kickoff. Hister took an option pitch and ran to day-

But it took the Rockets just five plays to respond, scoring with a 35vard pass from Scheffer to Fuller, who reached back in a crowd at the back and move the ball," Gordon said. "The momentum had shifted. You gotta make something happen at that point."

Glenn chewed up more of the clock with a 12-play drive. Reserve tailback Tad Quattlander, who rushed for 53 yards, had all of his 11 carries on the drive, which stalled at the Salem 31.

THE ROCKS stopped one more Glenn possession before closing within a TD, but the final score also was misleading in that it didn't reflect Glenn's statistical dominance throughout the game.

Fuller caught six passes for 74 yards, and Scheffer was 5-of-11 passing. Salem quarterback Chris Tebben was 4-of-10 for 41 yards. Al Hysko caught two passes for 38 yards.

The Rockets play host to North Farmington in a Lakes showdown at 6 p.m. Saturday, and Salem visits Farmington for a 1 p.m. game Satur-

SHARON LeMIEUX/staff photographer

Kelly Holmes of Canton tries to power past Mercy's Kim Reichard Thursday. The Chiefs were beaten 41-32 in the first round of the tournament.

A glance at the individual scoring totals for Farmington Hills Mercy reveals victory No. 5 in girls basketball was truly a team effort. Modest but vital contributions from a number of players Thursday night resulted in the Marlins defeating Plymouth Canton 41-32 in the first round of the Mercy Hoops Clas-Mercy not only had no one score in double figures - five players had between six and nine points — but different ones provided the big play at key moments

Maureen Paulin led with nine points, Reichard scored seven and Carrie Walton, Susie Atchinson and Kathleen Gerigk chipped in six apiece. Point guard Kathleen Berrigan added another five.

It was the play of Reichard, who came off the bench to shoot 5-of-8 at the free-throw line where Mercy had a decisive nine-point advantage, that helped shut door on the Chiefs, 1-3.

"THE THEME this year has been 'Step up to the challenge,' " Mercy coach Larry Baker said. "It's been someone different every game, and today it was Kim.

We know Kim can score. She

the ball well enough or long enough to get the best shot . . .' - Bob Blohm

Canton basketball coach

does it in practice every day. It was a real nice individual effort.

Reichard scored the last point of the third quarter to give Mercy its biggest lead to that point, 32-27. She scored the first three points of the finale and, following a basketball by Walton, stretched Mercy's lead to 39-29 with a field goal, which all but finalized the outcome with 31/2 minutes left. The Marlins ended up winning despite a poor first half in which they shot 24 percent from the floor and made only seven of 19 free throws.

Mercy improved its field-goal percentage in the second half and was 8of-13 at the line. The Marlins were. 15-of-32 shooting free throws for the game, Canton 6-of-12.

"It's a senior team; they don't need much to get themselves up for a game," Baker said. "I think they were wound too tight for the tournament. We were fighting ourselves offensively. It took us a half, but we got there

WHILE THE Marlins were missing shots (3-of-14 in the first quarter), Canton committed nine turnovers in the opening period and 15 in the first half.

Still, the Chiefs led 10-7 after one quarter and 17-12 late in the second. Gerigk's turn in the spotlight came before halftime when she made two technical free throws and sank a driving layup with 19 seconds left, forcing a 19-19 tie at halftime. "I thought we played a pretty solid game, but we're still not taking care of the ball well enough or long enough to get the best shot," Canton coach Bob Blohm said. "We have to be more patient with that.

"We didn't screen real well tonight, and we let them come inside a little too much. They're an experienced team and it showed.'

Canton point guard Amy Westerhold led all scorers with 10 points. Julie Nicastri, who put the Chiefs in front in the first quarter, added nine points and sophomore center Stephanie Gray seven.

Paulin and Atchinson scored two baskets each in the third period as the Marlins began to take charge. Laure DeMattia's basket gave Mercy a lead (23-21) it never lost, and Berrigan made two important free throws late for a four-point lead, 31-

THE SECOND half was the reverse of the first, with Canton shooting poorly and the Marlins making turnovers.

Mercy shot the same (7-of-17) as the Chiefs did in the first half, but it made seven turnovers in the last quarter alone. Canton was 2-of-16 from the floor in the fourth quarter and 6-of-28 for the half.

"From my viewpoint, the mistakes in the second half were more the result of playing aggressively than playing without confidence," Baker said.

"I was able to vent my frustration (at halftime), and they were able to turn (the poor start) around. That's not something I lose sleep over. That's not a team trait. I just think we were nervous."

Chargers, Rocks stay unbeaten

All the scoring came in the first half Wednesday as Livonia Churchill's boys soccer team won its fifth straight game without a loss, 2-1, over visiting Plymouth Canton.

The Chiefs fell to 6-3 overall. Churchill, the No. 1-ranked team in Class A, got both its first-half goals off restarts. Aaron

Sawicky assisted on both goals. Dario Rauker tallied the first and Mike Gentile made it 2-0 before Canton's Chris Hayes made things interesting when he knocked in a penalty kick past Charger goalkeeper Jeff Cassar. "We had a couple of chances to tie it, but they outplayed us, particularly in the first half," said Canton coach Don Smith. "Churchill is a very strong team, they had more shots. But we played tough and they really couldn't put us away in the second half.'

Churchill had 20 shots on goal, but couldn't add to its first-half lead.

"We looked a little fatigued, we were slow to the ball," said Churchill coach Mark Mason. "We had quite a few opportunities, but we didn't have the sharpness that we've had in previous games. I've been working them pretty hard, so I decided to give them some time off."

SALEM 8, FRANKLIN 1: On Wednesday, the state-ranked Rocks outscored visiting Livonia Franklin 6-1 in the second half to record their sixth straight victory.

Andy Cosenza scored twice and assisted on three other goals for the Rocks. Joe Nunez contributed two goals and one assist, while Jake Baker, Eric Stemmer, Jim Ramsey and Brad Fisch each had one goal.

"I'm very impressed with Plymouth Salem, they're a strong team," said Franklin coach Frantz Lamarre, whose team is 2-3 overall. "We are a very young team. We lack experience with only two seniors, four juniors and starting four freshmen.

Grouse season under way

HE ASPEN THICKET erupted suddenly with a whirl of wings as a half dozen jittery grouse exploded into flight from neath my feet. My heart fluttered like a frantic drum roll and my breathing turned to short, rapid gasps. Adrenalin flowing, I stumbled backward and tripped over a fallen branch. Then, as suddenly as it had begun, the assault was over. Silence again prevailed. The birds had disappeared into the morning sunlight and the only sound remaining was the rhythmic pounding in

Not until the silence had settled back in did I realize I'd doused myself with half a bucket of

I was a child of 6 years at the time of the incident and had been retrieving a bucket of water from an outdoor pump at our camp in the heart of the northern Lower Penninsula. Unfamiliar with the many ways of the wild, the partridge had caught me totally by surprise.

Such a flush would be welcomed by a hunter on the opening day of small game season. But to an unsuspecting youngster, such a fury was about as welcomed as a midnight visit by Freddy Kreuger. The vivid memory remains, however, of my first encounter with Michigan's number one game bird the ruffed grouse.

RUFFED GROUSE, also known as partridge or pats, are found throughout the state with larger concentrations found in the Upper Peninsula and the heartlands of the northern Lower Peninsula They feed on buds, fruit, seeds, leaves and occasionally insects. Favorite meals include June berries, cherries, hazel nuts, dogwood, thornapples and even acorns.

In the central and western portions of the Up-per Peninsula, where much of the cherry and dogwood crop was damaged this year by a late spring snowfall, the birds may also be found in and around blue berry and raspberry thickets.

Saturday marks the opening of small game sea-son statewide as squirrel, rabbit, woodcock and partridge all become fair game. Thousands of grouse hunters will take to the field this weekend after nearly a year of solitude from the traditionally productive Aspen stands.

Last year, Michigan hunters averaged nearly four birds per hunter. A total of 735,740 birds were harvested by 186,740 hunters, according to statistics provided by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources' small game hunter mail

Those numbers are well above the 32-year av erage of 564,000 birds and 186,740 hunters.

The state record harvest was in 1974 when hunters bagged 843,000 birds.

THE OUTLOOK for the 1990 season remains bright, but not quite as bright as last year.

"Partridge are cyclic," explained John Urbain,
DNR upland gamebird specialist, "but no one really knows why. You hear everything from worms to sun spots to predators (as reasons for the up and down swings), but no one really knows for sure. This year's harvest will be down from last year, but it should still be an above average year Field personnel haven't seen quite as many broods as last year. I think we may have peaked last year so it may be down a little for a couple years before it starts to swing back up again.

The woodcock harvest should also be above the 32-year average of 217,000 birds. Last year, hunters bagged 296,190 birds, but Urbain doesn't expect this year's harvest to match that number.

"This year's (woodcock) harvest will probably be down from last year because of the cold spring we had in the Upper Peninsula," explained Ur-bain. "Field personnel have seen a good number of birds, but brood numbers are down a little. Some young birds were probably lost this spring when areas of the Upper Peninsula got anywhere from three to 10-inches of snow in late May.'

Squirrel and rabbit numbers are up, especially in the southern Lower Peninsula, Traditional local hot spots for grouse, pats, rabbits and squirrel include the Holly Recreation Area and Bald Mountain Recreation Area.

Harrison did a better job of containing Wukie, who rushed for 71 yards in the first half, and turned Granger loose on the reverse in the second half. He carried three times for 105 yards, and his 54-yard run to the Canton 15 set up the winning TD.

"We put our ends up on the pitch and tried to take Wukie with the monster," Herrington said. "I'm not sure it was all that effective, because they went away from the option and started throwing.

"They were penetrating so much up the middle I was hoping we could get Roy loose on the outside."

Magdevski was 6-of-9 passing for 101 yards with one interception. The Hawks had 316 yards in total offense, the Chiefs 282. Canton fullback Chris James had 41 yards on 11 attempts, tailback Riggs 21 yards on eight carries. WE WILL NOT

Salem golfers take latest round in rivalry

The latest chapter in the Salem-Canton athletic rivalry was written on the golf course Thursday where the Rocks defeated the Chiefs 216-233. Junior Dave Weaver shot a round of 40 at Brae Burn Golf Club to lead Salem, but Canton senior Kevin Holmes finished with 39 and earned

"It's not as intense, like it is in football," said Salem coach Rick Wilson of the golf rivalry, "but we want to win. There's some pride involved. It's a nice win for us, and our kids are happy about it."

Jason Behnke and Brian Botwinski shot 43 to support Weaver. Ray

Alvarado was next with 44 followed by Jeff Kotlarczyk at 46. Andy Stirling shot 44 and Sean McFarlane 49 for the Chiefs.

Senior Rod Jesena, who was expected to be Canton's top returning player, has a heavy class load this fall and is concentrating on academics rather than playing golf, according to coach Fred Libbing. Salem is 2-1 in dual meets, the Chiefs 1-1.

Canton boys prevail

Plymouth Canton has the edge over rival Plymouth Salem in boys cross country

The results of Tuesday's dual meet - the Chiefs won 18-34 at Cass Benton Park - are evidence of that.

Mike Ream paced the Canton runners with a first-place time of 17:11. The Chiefs captured the top three spots with Jason Crain finishing second in 17:26 and Chris Nelson third in 18:05.

Canton's Jim Carnes was fifth (18:10) and Jason Napolitano seventh Derek Cudini was the top runner for Salem, taking fourth place in 18:07. Also for the Rocks, Andy Hellmers was sixth (18:26), Jayson McDonald eighth (18:37) and Steve Boudreau ninth (18:48).

The top 10 included Dave Yack of Canton in the 10th spot at 18:58.

N'ville gets swim win

Plymouth Salem fell victim to a strong Northville girls swim team and the circumstances of a five-lane pool Thursday night. The Mustangs won every event in their pool and handed Salem a 62-31 defeat in the Western Lakes Activities Association crossover meet. "The way the scoring is in that type of pool, they could go at us pretty tough, and there wasn't too much we could do about it," Salem coach Chuck Olson said.

'We really didn't swim bad. We wanted to spread it out (among individual swimmers). Nobody swam more than three events with the exception of Candi Bosse

Northville is 2-0, the Rocks 1-1. Olson cited five second-place swims as solid early season performances by Salem swimmers. Bosse was runner-up in the individual medley at 2:08.06 and the butterfly at 1:04.82. She also was on the 400 freestyle relay team with Mandi Ras, Megan Andrews and Julie Hickey. The foursome posted a 4:02.63

Ras finished the 50 freestyle in 26.84, and Carrie Vanderweele, Amy Austin, Meg Reilly and Nicole Bosse had a time of 2:04.71 in the medley

"They were good races," Olson said. "We just didn't win anything."

County leaders unveil anti-violence plan

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Violence is a problem in Wayne County - not just in Detroit -county leaders said Thursday in unveiling a comprehensive plan to reduce violent crime.

Homicides have been on the increase since 1984, according to county statistics, with 3,816 slayings reported in the five-year period.

While county leaders acknowledged recent violence outside the Detroit night spot Harpo's drew new attention to the problem, the Wayne County Task Force On Violence Reduction began meeting in March.

Among its findings — Wayne County has one of the nation's highest homicide rates and the highest homicide rate for black males of any state, county or city compiling such

WHILE VIOLENT crime is considered a problem of epidemic proportions in inner city neighborhoods, county Executive Edward McNamara said violence is also a problem in the suburbs.

"It's more publicized in the black community, but it exists in the white community, too," McNamara said.

Domestic violence is considered a major problem in all county communities, McNamara said.

A SYMPOSIUM on spouse and child abuse has been called for December, with all county mayors and police chiefs to be invited.

In addition, a permanent county anti-violence commission will be established to oversee task force recommendations.

Recommendations include:

 Helping hospitals implement counseling programs for victims of violence, especially in teaching them how to avoid being victimized again.

Detroit Receiving Hospital handled nearly 9,500 assault victims in 1988, the last year for which figures firm with Law, Hemming, Essad and are available. Assault cases ranged from a low of 206 in January to a high of 1,036 in July.

• Creating neighborhood anti-violence programs.

Pilot programs will be developed in up to three neighborhoods, task force members said, with anti-violence programs eventually available to all neighborhoods.

Task force members included Clementine Barfield, founder of the Detroit program Save Our Sons and Daughters (SOSAD).

 Embarking on a countywide advertising campaign, similar to national anti-smoking ads, instructing youngsters to turn away from vio-lence. Rap music may be included, task force members said.

"We live in a society where a look can get you killed," said county commissioner Bernard Kilpatrick, D-Detroit. "We've got to tell people to just walk away."

Task force members were aware previous efforts had failed, they said. The difference this time, they said, was that anti-violence pro-grams would become a top priority of all county departments.

WHILE STATE and federal grants may be sought, "there are things we can do right here in Wayne County, without anyone's help," said Vernice Davis-Anthony, assistant county executive for health and community services.

County officials are considering shifting money from the 1988 jail millage to finance anti-violence programs but aren't sure whether they can do so, said county commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster.

"There's all kinds of interesting things we could do, but we aren't sure we'd be given permission to use the millage," Beard said.

Programs would begin as soon as financing could be secured, task force members said.

"We will no longer accept violence and we will no longer accept a lack of action," McNamara said.

Recycling is topic

"Economics of Recycling and In-cineration," a panel discussion featuring environmentalists and waste disposal professionals, will be held 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 18, at Page Middle School, Madison Heights.

'We will no longer accept violence and we will no longer

- Edward McNamara

county Executive

accept a lack of action.'

The public forum features a cost comparison between recycling and trash burning.

The event is co-sponsored by Clean Air Please, Detroit Audobon, Great Lakes Forum and the Southeast Oakland Resource Recovery Authority.

Redford environmentalist Dennis Piper and SOCRRA general manager Thomas Waffen are among the scheduled panelists. Piper is a recycling advocate. SOCRRA operates a Madison Heights incinerator.

The event is free. Page Middle School is on Edwards, north of 12 Mile Road, east of John R.

Additional information is available by calling 542-4180.

Save Your Fun On Water For Ride In Boat

Cars were not intended to be water-borne vehicles, and encounters with flooded streets can only increase the chance of a car malfunction.

During the rainy season, avoid standing water at inter-sections or elsewhere if possible, particularly if it is above the bottom of the wheel rims. However, if you have no alternative but to drive through, here are some tips to help you safely navigate these water hazards:

Drive through the water very slowly. Rapid movement might cause the water to "swamp" or stall the engine, and cloth can help you get moving faster.

If you do stall as you cross a deep puddle, try to coast toward the side of the road and wait for the engine to dry out before trying to start it. Wiping off the spark plugs.

Remember that the car's brakes may be affected by driving through standing water, and you should check their stopping ability before an emergency demands their

Customizing that corporate image

By Joanne Sobczak special writer

Color me professional . . . If only it was that easy.

Monday, September 17, 1990 O&E

In today's corporate society, a lack of visual presence in a professional person can cost an individual a new position or a promotion.

In her book, "The Professional Image," syndicated columnist and founder/president of The Professional Image Inc., Susan Bixler discusses how American corporate life's fast-paced, efficiency-oriented philosophy comes right down to the color of one's shoes. Because time is so valuable, it would not be uncommon for a personal repre-sentative to easily determine one's suitability for the job just by using visual clues.

In short, if a person's dress is out of place - color or style - his or her application may meet the bottom of the trash basket.

Those men and women climbing the ladder to success in the Detroit area don't have to seek out the author to learn how to create their own polished business look. There's plenty of fashion consultants, trained specifically to advise the company professional.

. Like Ernest Drucker, owner of Executive Custom Shirtmakers Inc. in Birmingham.

People put their trust in us to help them portray the proper image," said Drucker, who sees about 5,000 clients annually. And he stands behind the principle his store brochure touts - "Investment dressing . . . because your best investment is you."

"SOME MEN realize it, and some don't, that how one dresses is an expression of one's personality, said the Austrian-born and Parisian-trained tailor. "It is important that the person look their part. Think about your clothing as an in-"The old saying is that you never get a second chance to make a first impression."

vestment in your career.

Drucker has designed shirts and suits for the upper echelon of business professionals as well as for those in management positions and recent college grads embarking on their first interviews.

Drucker frowns on dress codes, calling them an insult to one's intelligence and cramping one's style. He added that he would resent such a policy.

"I had a young man who was in marketing at Ford Motor Co. and was very conscientious about the way he should dress," Drucker said. "He wanted all white shirts with white collars. I tried to tell him a lot of companies are relaxing their rules. The 'only a white shirt and gray flannel suit' days are gone.'

Drucker suggested color and style options that are acceptable corporate dress these days, but if such suggestions can't sway a customer, "then we will change the style of the collar and cuffs."

ACCORDING TO color experts, darker shades convey more authority while medium colors, like blue or tan, make one appear friendlier. Bixler warns against suit colors like green, which detracts from the professional look, and brown, which makes a person look lower class. She recommends basic navy, medium blue, gray and camel.

Drucker agrees, adding that "at a management level, men should wear a single-breasted two- or three-button suit either in a gray or navy pinstripes or muted pattern." Dress shirts can be pale blue, pink, white or beige in a solid or fine pin-

At Alex Davis Clothiers in Royal Oak, Dan Davis and his father, Alex, have rendered the "personal touch" in men's clothing for almost two decades. A large percentage of their customers are GM executives, but they also offer fashion advice for corporate types from IBM, Burroughs, EDS and Chrysler. While the younger Davis said he doesn't deal with it much these days, today's dress code is "conservative.'

"We're talking about your blues and your grays (in suits), white shirts and patterned ties — the 'L.A. Law' Arnie Becker look — the old basic, but there is something different about it," he said. "I don't really find there are dress codes the way there used to be. EDS is more restrictive than GM,, but GM has loosened up a lot from what I

DAVIS BELIEVES that the "newer" employees fresh out of college tend to be more reserved to present a good impression. The younger worker mimics what he thinks is the company image and then after being there a few months — or years — begins to think, "maybe I don't have to be so conservative here," Davis said.

A style not so fashionable in the past, which seems to be returning, is the double-breasted look, according to Davis. He used to special order the item, but for the fall season is making sure there will be plenty in stock to meet demand.

Another popular item, is cordovan shoes. This burgundy-colored accessory has been a big seller at the shop, but the color of the suit determines if the cordovan shoes can be worn, Davis said.

And, women, don't think you're off the hook. What is applicable to the top-notched male executive is also expected of the career-striving businesswoman, although she has a little more leeway. Women can enjoy the same classic styles in suits as men which offer a good cut and

And in addition, the career woman has a wide range of accessories to mix and match. But because there is such a variety, there are often more problems and fashion consultants are sometimes neces-

MARILYN NELSON, who manages Executive Custom Shirtmakers Inc., works with a number of women executives from Ford and GM. Professional engineers, CPAs and in-house attorneys for these firms, some depend on the store's expertise for general fashion suggestions while others have special needs.

"They're looking for something different apart from the polyester blouse," she said. "They want something that looks starched."

The fabric used is mostly a fine cotton that not only produces a tailored look but opaqueness. Material that is too transparent would convey an effeminate appearance not taken seriously by male counterparts, Nelson said.

A tailor-made double-breasted jacket, double-breasted vest and straight skirt is the most popular style. For it, Nelson recommends a blouse with a "fly front" (to cover the buttons), spread collar and French cuffs, accessorized with gold cuff links. A cream or ecru shade is a nice second choice to white with tiny navy or black pinstripes an inch apart, making the stripes hardly visible from afar.

Corporate trends also have changed when it comes to jewelry. Stanford Krandall of Sidney Krandall and Sons Jewelers in Troy said women in general tend to be more conservative on the job than off when it comes to dress and accessories. But that has been changing in the past 10 years.

What to wear . . . or not wear: Corporate life has its standards

By Joanne Sobczak special writer

Detroit Piston's coach Chuck Daly doesn't really have to worry about a particular dress standard in his job, although he is deemed the best-dressed coach in the NBA.

He recalls the last time he was required to wear a tie at work was as a high school teacher - but that was a long time ago.

Gene Taylor, producer of the Dick Purtan Show on WKQI 95FM, remembers not being allowed to wear a bow tie when employed at Channel 4. He does admit that it is important for a company person to project a professional appearance with appropriate business attire.

"But you need something extra, even if it is just being a certain style of pen," he said, a twinkle coming from a diamond stud earring in his left ear lobe. "I guess there wouldn't be any guys at IBM with an earring."

Taylor may be right. IBM spokeswoman Elsie Sche-peler said the corporation doesn't

'We hire the cream of the crop here and these people usually know what to do.'

— Elsie Schepeler IBM spokeswoman have a written dress code; employees use their best judgment and dress professionally for the job they hold.

We hire the cream of the crop here and these people usually know what to do," she said.

EVEN THOUGH Daly and Taylor have audiences and bosses with expectations of their performances which don't include the "power suit," dressing for success to produce that company image is part of many management and executive employee lives.

Ruth Stanton, public relations director at Electronic Data Systems, an independently operated subsidiary of GM and leading supplier of information technology services, was definitely concerned about the company's rumored dress code. She selected a green suit for her first interview there. And when she returned for the second interview with regional director of public relations Tony Good, she dressed in a magenta colored suit. That's when she questioned Good about the so called dress code. He told her, "What you're wearing is fine," she said. And she never gave the dress code another thought. But EDS does have a written dress code that is more open than many people may think. "Some areas of the company dress more conservatively, other areas may dress more loosely," said Stanton, who believes that the gossip about the strict dress standard developed because of client association with the more conservative departments.

"PEOPLE WHO work here wear what makes sense and is appropriate to the climate, to the customer they are dealing with and to the environment that they find themselves."

The EDS written dress code goes something like this:

For men, a business suit in traditional styles - solids or pinstripes in blue, gray, brown and black is appropriate. Dress shirts should be solid or pinstripe in white, light blue or other pastel colors with coordinating ties.

Women wear skirted suits, skirts with blouses or sweaters with appropriate shoes ans no slacks, depending on the department or environment involved. Colors for women can cover the spectrum.

'Singing' the preppy blues

special writer

After the first five minutes of the new film "Metropolitan," you want something nasty to happen to its pretentious, preppy cast of teenage Manhattan socialites. You want them to step down from their ivory Trump towers and get badly beaten in the subway.

That's if you enter "Metropoli-tan," currently at the Maple The-atre, with the wrong attitude. I did. Instead of finding an alternative turn on the brat pack rap session, I was cast into something bordering on science fiction - an alien world where Biff, Bucky and Skip have unlimited financial resources and are able to talk non-stop.

I know absolutely nothing about Whit Stillman, who wrote, directed and produced "Metropolitan." But he has done something pretty unique here. Unlike Francis Coppola's embarrassing study of the grade school social set in his segment of "New

THE MOVIE begins like lowbudget Woody Allen — a lively jazz combo backs images of New York City as tuxedoed teens emerge from a debutante ball. A lonely boy named Tom Townsend suddenly finds himself swept into a tight group of friends who spend the early hours in their parents' posh apartments. The bandy back and forth about

Tom, less financially set, becomes the center of the film and this is where "Metropolitan" becomes extraordinary. Far from the morally superior narrator who looks with disgust at the phonies in "The Great Gatsby." Tom is perhaps the most pretentious and screwed up of the

He says he hates deb parties, but shows up for them anyway. He never reads fiction, but gathers views from literary criticism.

ANOTHER character, Nick, epitomizes the group with his cynical love of the decadance of the rich. He's refreshing in his frankness.

Also refreshing is the total absence of brat pack actors - no superstar offspring from Sutherland, Sheen or Fonda. The no-name performers give their characters a certain authenticity as they pompously drone on about sustaining the lifestyle of the upper class.

Though I'm still not sure if it's suppose to capture or lampoon its subject, "Metropolitan" is - if you stick with it - a uniquely drawn peek into the lives of the filthy rich.

'Postcards from the Edge:' significant disappointment

Oops, my enthusiastic optimism last week about "Postcards from the Edge" (C+, R, 105 minutes) was premature and the film, despite some good moments, is a significant disappointment, particularly given the cast and crew assembled for this Carrie Fisher script directed by Mike Nichols and fashioned from Fisher's novel.

The film opens with Suzanne Vale (Meryl Streep) nabbed by the secret police in some South or Central American republic which, it turns out, is only a scene she's shooting for her latest film.

Vale is so doped up that she can't say her lines clearly so, with great pomposity and what seems like considerable embarrassment for even being there, the director, Mr. Lowell (Gene Hackman), belatedly but "heroically" chases Vale's dresser/drug supplier off the set. It all seems pret-

Dr. Frankenthal then disappears until the end of the film when he sews up Suzanne's mother, Doris Mann (Shirley MacLaine), star of stage, screen and radio, who has just mixed a few too many vodka-fruit specials with her Mercedes and a giant tree trunk.

IN BETWEEN these trips downtown for Dr. Frankenthal's services, there's an awful lot of intense mother-daughter conflict. When Suzanne leaves drug rehab, she has to move back with her domineering mother — source of all her problems in the first place - because no insurance company will guarantee a film she's working on unless she lives with a "responsible adult." Responsible, ha.

Why Vale would want so desperately to work on this film escapes me - it appears to be a Roger Corbut she wants to work badly enough to live with her mother.

Later Suzanne is back working for Lowell looping — that's film talk for re-recording — the dialogue she messed up while on drugs when first we met.

The Sundays could have done better.

The London-based band could have made the best-selling record album of the new decade, sold their soul to MTV and be break dancing with Paula Abdul on tour somewhere.

Instead, the Sundays have settled for being one of the most talked about, written about new band of the year whose "Reading, Writing and Arithmetic" (David Geffen Company/Rough Trade) has been played to death on college/alternative radio. Life's a bite.

But the Sundays will suffer through their muse with a laugh, especially with the humorous aspects sudden success has wrought.

"Once we heard through our record company in Britain that a rumor was circulating in New York that we were junkies," said the very clean guitarist David Gavurin, whose group performs on Monday, Sept. 17, at the Nectarine guitar of Gavurin, the Ballroom. "That's a really good most seem anthemic.

The only drug circulating around the Sundays these days is the dreamy, swirling guitar melodies with vocalist Harriet Wheeler inspiring lucid reminiscences with her soft, heavenly vocals. The doses never grow tiring.

One reason the guitar pop musings are so endearing is the Sundays avoid the cliches, angst and dark humor taken up by other bands of their ilk. The lyrics are impressionistic, at times whimsi-

One might suspect the Sundays' impressionistic yearnings are borne out of the need to escape the hard realities of London life. The band formed in 1988 when David met Harriet at the University of

"What I'd hate to do is claim, 'Oh God, we were suffering," Gavurin said. "We were OK. There were plenty of people much worse off than us.

"There is irony in it," he added. "Part of that, no doubt, comes from the many ridiculous sides of society. It's hard to say what it gets to. What we say when we're describing our lyrics is that we don't write about specific events or specific events in our lives.

"In saying that, I don't think its devoid of any of those things. I think there is political content in our songs. And that comes through things like irony."

Drawing the Sundays to The Smiths is not without merit. There are similarities in the strumming guitar styles of both Gavurin and the Smiths' Johnny Marr.

EYE - Robyn

In a society that rewards smallmindedness as much as ours, a songwriter as imaginative as Robyn Hitchcock is more than a breath of fresh air, he's almost subversive. Since his earliest recordings with the Soft Boys in the late '70s, Hitchcock, a native of the south of England, has shown a flare for vivid, compelling imagery, all while celebrating the joy, scorning the banal and, above all, probing the incomprehensible of this world.

The realm evoked by Hitchcock's songs is one where a rich, fat pussy with nothing to think stares down a plug hole and falls in a sink, where your photograph with Iggy causes you think it might rub off on you, where the bodies of drowned sailors founder upside down beneath the of Hitchcock's immense skill as a roaring waves. And where spikes seduce tomatoes.

The songs on "Eye," (Twin/Tone) Hitchcock's latest album, show the same lyrical range and depth of his earlier work. "Beautiful Girl" stands out as a sweet and simple love song with a joyful melody. "Cynthia Mask" brings together images of Napoleon, Neville Chamberlain and someone named Cynthia. "Clean Steve" tells tales of a guy who bought a new Nick Lowe cassette and played it in the road.

The compelling and plaintive 'Queen Elvis" conveys something of the great misery and redeeming joy of a tranvestite struggling with his longings and the condemnation they elicit: "People get what they deserve/Time is round and space is curved/Honey have you got the nerve/to be Queen Elvis?"

The arrangements on "Eye" are sparse: just Hitchcock, playing guitar and piano and singing. The result is a folksy, softer sound, but, as always, there is ample demonstration guitarist.

Especially noteworthy is "Chinese Water Python," a guitar instrumental that is absolutely beautiful.

- James Radebaugh

KATYDIDS - Katydids

How many of you out there are actually waiting with breathless anticipation for a watered-down version of the Sugarcubes?

No, wait. Let me take that back. Even mentioning the Sugarcubes gives the Katydids more credit by association than they deserve. How about adding some guitars to backed by mild guitars and splotches of '60s backing vocals. Leading off with "Heavy Weather Traffic," its only redeeming feature is a reasonable line of drumming. On to "Stop Start," which is a secondrate paean to inactivity and impatience.

"Girl in a Jigsaw Puzzle" follows and is a lightweight, MOR story of self-pity and loss. In truth, in any other company this song may have left a better impression but in its current context, it suffers by association with all the other songs on this Katydids as a whole are inflicted by one of the greatest sins in music. The only word that springs to mind upon hearing them is . . . nice. To be described as sounding nice in music implies bland, vapid, emotionless and unoriginal. They are competent, there are no highs and a few lows.

Whatever happened to excitement in music?

Even the band dressing up in medieval English, Renaissance-type garb is pretty naff. Do the band a favor. Avoid this record so members can go back to their day jobs.

- Cormac Wright

AION — Dead Can Dance

Dead Can Dance dives into the ancient roots of all music on its latest 4AD release, "Aion." Dead Can Dance has never been known as a cover band. But on "Aion," they cover an Italian 14th century instrumental dance ("Saltarello"), and a 16th century Catalonian traditional piece ("The Song of the Sibyl").

Now, picture if you will the days of King Arthur with the minstrel playing happily in the background. Add a Middle Eastern touch and 'Saltarello" is this song.

It takes a drum beat that is reminiscent of the Middle East and blends it with the minstrel's pipe to create an upbeat, traditional dance piece.

ANOTHER OUTSTANDING track is "The Song of the Sibyl (prophetess)." As a prophecy, it seems bleak though.

Lisa Gerrard portrays the sibyl who knows what's going to happen. But as her voice floats along effortlessly, you can feel her pain at knowing what's going to happen.

Gerrard truly shows the range of her talents on "As the Bell Rings the Maypole Spins." A Middle Eastern melody is played on the bagpipes and Gerrard's voice shrills along with them.

"The End of Words" sounds like a Gregorian chant with a woman's voice incorporated into it. It is rich in harmony and full in sound.

"Radharc," the last track, is the most elaborate and perhaps the best song on the LP. It seems to encompass the rest of the tracks on the album. If each song is one idea, then "Radharc" is all of these ideas put into one song.

"Aion" is the history of all music today, and the future. Dead Can Dance has taken the music of the ancients and made it timeless.

The problem with "Postcards" is that all this is jumbled together in such a scattered way. If it had been recounted as clearly as above, it would have been a much better film. As it is, it seems like a "first" film by a recent cinema studies graduate who got lucky in casting. It's hardly what one would expect from someone of Mike Nichols' stature.

THE CHEAPO Freudian stuff about domineering mother, etc., doesn't wash well and the reconciliation is not very credible. But - and here comes the major cop-out — Shirley MacLaine and Merly Streep are such marvelous performers that all this stupid dimestore Freud is terribly compelling.

Like any chain, a uniformity exists at Yuk Yuk's around the globe. Clubs use an exclusive talent pool of comedians, which consists mainly of Canadians.

Also, Breslin proudly mentions none of his comedians are censored. The more outlandish the better in his

Perhaps this shouldn't come as a surprise. After all, this is a guy who had potty-mouth Sam Kinison as a credit for launching the career of spastic Howie Mandell.

ALL BRESLIN asks of his comedians is they possess originality, poise, brains and "they must look good in a swim suit."

As a result, names like Norm Mac-Donald, Jeremy Hotz and Larry Horowitz don't exactly blow fuses in marquees. Then again, neither did names like Martin Short, John Candy and Rick Moranis 15 years ago.

"They're not household names," Breslin said. "They're a bit too edgy for television at this point. That's the kind of people we like to use."

Which was the original impetus for starting Yuk Yuk's in 1976. Breslin wanted to give unknown comedians in Toronto a place to perform.

So, once a night, stand-up acts did their routines in a basement of a bowling alley. The club was successful enough it moved to Yorkville, Ontario, a suburb of Toronto, where Yuk Yuk's Komedy Kabaret opened seven nights a week. Today, there are six Yuk Yuk's in the Toronto

Some 14 years and 19 comedy clubs later, Yuk Yuk's has infiltrated television. The TV version features taped stand-up routines from Yuk Yuk's numerous clubs.

"Yuk Yuk's — The TV Show" is roommate in Los Angeles and takes seen 11:30 p.m. Wednesdays on

As Breslin's empire has grown, so too, have his critics. He's credited with almost single-handedly creating a scene for Canadian stand-up

YET, AT THE same time, Breslin is said to have a monopoly on Canadian talent with his own booking agency, Funny Business Inc. One for-mer comedian referred to Breslin as 'very Napoleanic" in a Toronto Star

"It's a stupid criticism, to blame someone for trying to be as big as they can be," Breslin said.

"That must be my American side," he said, soting that his mother was born in New York.

People on the American side might remember Breslin as the pro-ducer of Fox Network's "Late Show Starring Joan Rivers." Rivers was eventually let go by the network, but Breslin remained friends with the tart-tongued comedianne and helped out on her latest TV venture, "The Joan Rivers Show.

"I aged about 12 years in the process," said Breslin, who worked his way from comedy coordinator to producer of "The Late Show . . . From my point of view, she (Rivers) was fabulous to work with.

After a 11/2-year stint in Los Angeles, Breslin was glad to get back to Toronto to concentrate on his growing list of clubs. His eye for talent apparently is only exceeded by his shrewd business sense. His latest venture into Windsor would seem to reflect as such. He's quite familiar with the area and opes to draw people from Detroit to

As a club owner, Breslin believes he's carved his own niche.

"There were a lot of people who got into the comedy business who were failing restaurateurs and bar owners and were looking for a cheap way to move their booze," he said. "I came from the more artistic end of it since I am a performer myself. Then I added the restaurant and bar in order to stay alive."

Except these guys on the ice are in their teens, usually hailing from such remote outposts as Plaster Rock, New Brunswick and Copper Cliff. Ontario.

All of them have one goal — making it to the National Hockey League. And Canadian junior hockey is considered the main incubator

The list of OHL luminaries is long - most notable Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds' alumnus Wayne Gretzky and Peterborough Petes' grad Steve Yzerman.

Several area hockey players turned NHL'ers such as Livonia's Al Iafrate (Belleville Bulls), Westland's Adam Burt (North Bay Centennials) and West Bloomfield's Mike Hartman (North Bay Centennials) learned their trade in Canadian junior hockey.

Like the NHL, the circuit is fast and tough. The gloves come off as fast as they do in post-op. Ask Bob Probert, who bruised his knuckles with a number of OHL teams.

"It's physical," said Ambassadors assistant general manager Russ Gregory, perhaps understating things a bit.

IN CANADIAN junior hockey, it's not uncommon to see two pugilists skate to center ice, remove their gloves and helmets and square off.

And, unlike collegiate hockey, players do not wear full-cage face masks. So, a tough guy can't hide behind his mask.

The real punch of junior hockey is the action. Players, realizing this is the cutoff point for the pros, tend to go all out to impress scouts and fans alike.

More than that, the junior game is the fabric of Canadian life as teams play to full houses in quaint arenas in Ontario communities such as Windsor, London, Kitchener and North Bay. From small, barn like structures, Farmington Hills-based computer software company Compuware is importing OHL hockey to the U.S. big city with the Detroit Ambassadors.

Compuware is not new to this. The company owned the Windsor Spitfires 1984-89, winning the OHL championship in 1988 and reaching the Memorial Cup finals (junior hockey's equivalent to the Stanley Cup). Now, Windsor is the main rival as only the Detroit River separates the two teams. Adding to rivalry, two sets of brothers will oppose each other: Jon Stos and Troy Gleason of the Ambassadors and Jason Stos and Trent Gleason of the Spit-

Detroit and Windsor meet eight times this season, four at home and four away. The 1990-91 OHL season campaign Thursday against the London Knights. The Ambassadors will play in the Emms Division along with the Windsor, London, Kitchener, Sault Ste. Marie, Owen Sound and Hamilton.

The Ambassadors hope to parlay the success at the gate other junior teams have had in the United States such as Seattle and Spokane, Wash., Portland, Ore., and Tri-City, (Wash.) which are all members of the Western Hockey League. Those teams average 5,000 in attendance, according to Gregory.

"My only question is will fans drive downtown to see Canadian junior hockey?," said Dave Hall, a sports writer who has covered junior hockey 15 years for the Windsor Star. "I don't know. Fans in Detroit support the Red Wings and they certainly turn out for college hockey. I hope so.'

THE AMBASSADORS, though, are one of the few junior franchises to play in the same city as an NHL team. Junior teams in Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Montreal and Toronto have ceased operation in Gregory doesn't see the Ambassadors in competition with the Detroit Red Wings.

"There's enough hockey fans in this city for this franchise to prosper," Gregory said. Especially in light of the Red Wings success at the gate. Though the team didn't excel on the ice last season, many games at Joe Louis were sell outs. Also, many believe ticket prices ($9-$25) have risen to the point the average family can't

Dress codes aside, corporate life has its standards

Personnel working in a plant atmosphere can wear jeans and loafers. EDS leadership manager Barbara

Clark said her professional wardrobe consists of a variety of colors. She loves red and black. "I think people ought to wear what makes sense and unfortunately, not everybody knows what that is," said

Clark, a Troy resident. "I worked in places that didn't have dress codes and my personal dress was not that much different. "I use colors to reflect my mood and I'm very comfortable in colors. I wear a lot of black as a sophisticated, tailored basic that I can do anything with. It's very versatile." CLARK FINDS shopping for business attire a problem because of her petite size. She said she would "nev-whatever that means - that I didn't Clark has spent nine years with EDS and the first year was at the company headquarters in Dallas, Texas. She changed her clothes seasonally because she got tired of dressing in the "same old things year-round." She added that no one spends $400 on a wools suits in Texas, but they will spend good money

Fashion experts who design for executives say that the professional dress in one geographic location may not be the same in another in terms of colors and fabrics.

While Clark headed north for better career opportunities with EDS, Dennis Maty went south to Florida to enjoy a change in weather and po-

Maty was a plant supervisor at GM's Willow Run factory in Ypsilanti 10 years ago. While there, he had to wear a tie with a shirt that was either white, beige or blue and safety shoes. In order not to ruin their own clothing, creating an extra personal expense, the company provided ap-propriately colored shirts as an option at the supervisory level as well as for hourly workers.

NOW MATY IS a sales supervisor at GMAC in West Palm Beach and the Sunshine State's colors even show up at the executive level.

"You see people in high places in pastel jackets — Palm Beach colors like light rose," said Maty who was stunned by the typical business image of the North while attending an educational seminar at GM headquarters in Detroit.

"All the businessmen wore suits in navy or gray and a few were in brown," he said. "None had beards. I had one for eight years."

Maty said there is no written dress code at GMAC; one's office attire is left to the common sense of the em-

"But a professional appearance is important - jacket, shirt and tie when meeting with a customer," he said. "You can wear just a shirt and tie, if working only in the office. Women can wear dresses, suits, skirts and slacks.

But should an employee's taste in dress stand out, then the worker is approached by the manager and the situation is discussed," Maty said.

It's common knowledge that suits in navy blue and charcoal gray shades are corporate "power" colors. Those shades are stronger on men than on women and have captured the title of "power suits."

Bob Cassey rotates five suits and likes to accessorize with suspenders.

"I DON'T HAVE anything that I particularly consider to be my 'power suit," said Cassey, an attorney and in-house counsel for EDS. "I don't really do a whole lot of strategizing with my wardrobe. I try to present an image that is both professional and open, crisp and yet not fastidious.

Cassey's suits are mostly gray and blue in solids and pinstripes

"People need to understand - and it is a process of aging and maturing a certain image needs to be projected and that you are really operating more effectively, efficiently and competently when you support that image," he said. "I think corporate culture has become a cliche. But I think that a dress standard is something that is reflected by the attitudes that pervade a certain organi-

"A dress standard — and not a dress code because a code suggests rigidity - is your neat and professional look. I think you have a lot of room within which to indulge your personal tastes."

Trials require a definite look, according to Cassey. He takes particular care, if going into negotiations with another party whether it is a settlement of a dispute or the negotiation of a customer contract, probably wearing a navy blue suit, recently pressed to present a crisp appear-

Krandall believes women are using a variety of accessories and more colorful dress to express themselves as individuals, no longer desiring just to blend in.

Men also are wearing more elaborate tie tacs, tie chains and cuff links, said Krandall. There also is an increase in the use of bracelets by men and definitely more sales in diamond rings to the executive male although they still remain quite conservative, he said

American business still seems to expect the professional image, but has relented to, as Krandall said, a "little self-expressions.

EEPLY ETCHED in the works on paper by Douglas Semivan lies the soul of the artist, a combination of poet, philosopher and sailor in love

Dynamic black and white works, with splashes of color, dominate Semivan's exhibition, "Recent Works on Paper," now at the Exhibit Gallery of Madonna College in Livonia, where he is assistant professor of

The 36-piece show includes lithographs, intaglios, mezzotints, drawings, watercolor and mixed media paintings, in which Semivan lures the viewer with abstract depictions of boats sailing through hostile wa-

Just as the ocean influenced Willem de Kooning's abstract art, so the water and sailing ships have greatly effected Douglas Semivan's work.

Semivan graduated with a master of fine arts degree from Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills

Since then, his work has been exhibited in galleries and art museums throughout the states and in England. His work can be found in the collections of the Detroit Institute of Arts, Brooklyn Museum, Toledo Museum and Museum of Modern Art in

"I find paper to be the most pleasing palette of all," said Semivan during the opening of his Livonia exhibition on Sept. 9.

BESIDES THE starkness of black and white, he said he favors use of "hard-punching red, yellow and

"Devotion is a lithograph printed from stone,' Semivan said. "Devotion is the essence of a sailboat."

Here, he uses large, vibrant gestures of color to dominate the picture plane: ultramarine blue, crimson and green. He boldly interjects the opaque colors onto a white background.

In "The Poet Sails (a very small boat)," done in "dry pastel, white oil crayon with lines of graphite stix," Semivan fuses color into a visually strong composition of black, white and gray by adding violet, yellow, fuschia and green.

Once again, he uses the theme that occurs in nearly all his work, the sailboat. "I'm interested in the dynamic effects of the boat moving,' he said. "The movement of the waves as they crash against the hull, the hostility of the sails.'

SHOWN ALONGSIDE "The Poet Sails (a very small boat)" is "The Poet Sails (a kiss upon the brow)." As is the case for several of his works,

"The mirror image is evident also in the works, entitled, "English Red (island maru)" and "Black Maru (line maru).'

In "English Red," Semivan creates an Oriental effect in the composition of blacks done on an off-white background by the addition of one small square of vibrant red. In "Black Maru," he etches waves of black lines on a gray background to mirror those in "English Red.

'What I've been trying to do as an artist for the last 20 years is the same picture over and over, changing a tool here, a brush there," he

To create "Solent," an intaglio, Semivan uses a Black & Decker drill, grinding the copper plate and printing the grinding marks to achieve the turmoil of squalls. "'Solent' is a body of water which is very stormy and turbulent," Semivan said.

SEMIVAN IS now experimenting with painting on wood. "If you're an artist, you have to work through the problems and keep working until the problem is resolved."

Semivan's dedication and exuberance shines through his work and into the classroom, where he is starting his second year of full-time teaching at Madonna College. "This is an excellent college for an art student," Semivan said. "We have an extensive art program here. He said he tries to teach his stu-

Brain affects organization

Q: I'm pretty well organized, but share an office with a person who is not. His desk is always cluttered, he runs late for everything, he can't find things, etc. This affects me directly and is slowly driving me crazy. Any suggestions?

A: Living or working with people who maintain a different standard of order can be difficult. Although there is a wide variety of reasons people have trouble staying organized, the most common is simply that they are right brain dominant. While they are not so readily apparent, these people may exhibit a broad spectrum of other natural talents far exceeding their left brain counterpartrs, but organization (which is so physically obvious) is just not one of them.

Counseling would usually be appropriate for the right brian person with organizational difficulties, but that person has to want to change before such 'sessions would be worthwhile. If that person is resistant to getting help, then the next best step is for the left brain person (you) to get help in learning to live or work with them.

A two-session workshop dealing directly with this problem will be held at the newly expanded Community House of Birmingham on Oct. 3 and 10. Called "Right Brain, Left Brain - Living in Stereo," these sessions will teach right brain people how to better use both sides of their brain and will help left brain people better understand the workings or right brain thinking. Taught by counselor Dolores Lamping, M.A., C.S.W., the goal is more harmonious relationships.

These sessions are designed to complement my own Community House "Organizing for Success" classes, which begin Sept. 27, as well as my "Organizing Your Business Life" series at Schoolcraft College in Livonia beginning tomorrow night,

If you cannot attend those seminars, then perhaps it would be help-ful to read books that explain left and right brain differences.

Many books outline hemispheric diversities, but the only one I know of which deals directly with the difficulties incurred when opposite behaviors clash is, "The Odd Couple Syndrome - Resolving the Neat/ Sloppy Dilemma" by Selwyn Mills, and Max Weisser.

Published by Jamison Publishing Co., this humorous book can be ordered by sending $15 to 90 Schenck Ave., Great Neck, NY 11021. (If readers know of other books on this subject, please tell me about them). In the meantime, try to remind yourself that you are not responsible for the other person's behaviors. By setting yourself apart from him in that way and concentrating on controlling your own behaviors, you may experience less stress.

You can enroll in Community House of Birmingham classes by calling 644-4832 or Schoolcraft College, 462-4448.

The Crossings At Canton. Apartment living just got better.

We're making The Crossings a better place to live and a better value. You'll feel it in the new hallways and newly refurbished clubhouse. You'll see it in the plush landscaping when you enter the grounds. And that's just the beginning. It's the new look and feel of The Crossings at Canton—and it's for you. The Crossings at Canton offers 19 different floor-plans with 1 to 4 bedrooms. And whether you choose a 2-level townhome or a luxury apartment, the renewed beauty of this charming rental community shines through in every one—the result of our recent "Capital Improvements & Upgrading" program. These apartments and townhomes are the largest in the area, yet are still incredibly affordable.

Discover these features at The Crossings at Canton:

· A Clubhouse with sauna,

room, a new party room,

indoor pool, exercise and more!

Yes, they do build 'em, like they used to.

Maybe not along the same lines as this historic centerpiece in Mill Race Village, but with equal care and quality.

And when it comes to telling a prestige audience about your current homes for sale, there is no better place than The Observer & Eccentric's Creative Living Real Estate section.

Here is a newspaper section that regularly features the largest selection of suburban real estate ads in Southeastern Michigan.

Published twice each week on Monday and Thursday for an audience of more than 350,000 adult readers in 24 affluent communities, this popular section has been tailored for our satisfied Realtors who continue to be pleased with the results they receive.

aw means few changes for architects

Local architects apparently will the state will make adjustments." have little problem adjusting to the Although not familiar with Americans with Disabilities Act that requires most new buildings and buildings that are renovated be designed so that they are readily accessible to persons with disabilities.

Existing buildings that do not undergo extensive alteration do not have to meet ADA requirements, but their owners immediately will have to make changes that are readily volved in a snow melting system achievable — changes that are easy mandated by law to further assist to do and are not prohibitively expensive. An example of a readily achievable change for a building might be providing a ramp for wheelchair users to an entrance currently reached by three steps.

Jim Velthoven, an architect with the Detroit area's largest firm, Giffels Associates in Southfield, said Michigan has perhaps the second strictest building code regarding handicapped accessibility next to the state of California.

'Michigan has a strict code," Velthoven said. "After the federal standards are revised and upgraded,

Although not familiar with the new federal legislation, Bill DeMiene, chief designer for Albert Kahn Associates, Detroit's third largest architectural firm, said Michigan laws regarding construction accessi-bility for the handicapped are comprehensive.

"Wheelchair ramps are common, as is parking access. We've been inthe handicapped from the parking lot to the building," DeMiene said. "We've done bathroom conversions, and modified elevators for the blind and wheelchair users. Michigan is certainly a progressive state.

We've increased the depth of vestibules to meet codes. In Michigan, we readily accept the idea that buildings must be made accessible."

CONSIDER SOME of the potential building impediments for a person in a wheelchair: outside walks without curb cuts, revolving doors, doors and corridors too narrow to navigate, desks too low to fit the chair under, inaccessible toilets and sinks, water fountains and public telephones too high to reach. Although most new buildings (and all of those constructed with federal money) are designed to be accessible, many older buildings possess some or all of these hard to use features.

Designing buildings that are accessible to persons with disabilities means better buildings for everyone, a concept known among architects as universal design. The elderly, pregnant women, skiers with broken legs coping with crutches, executives with eye patches after surgery, even kids too small to reach a water fountain or handrail, can testify to inconveniences caused by inadequate design. The majority of building users do not appreciate the constraints that everyday architecture, not designed for accessibility, can place on mobility or job performance.

Disabilities defined in the ADA include: orthopedic, visual, speech and hearing impairments; diseases including cerebral palsy, epilepsy, heart disease, diabetes and cancer; mental and psychological disorders; and recovery from drug abuse and alcoholism.

PROPERLY thought-out buildings designed for accessibility need not be prohibitively expensive. Ellen Harland, an architect and accessibility specialist for the Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliof accessibility, on average, is less than one half of one percent of the cost of a new building.

While it typically is more expensive to retrofit an existing building to be accessible, innovative solutions can save the economic day for specific projects.

"Accommodations come in groups of one," said Barbara Judy, manager of the Morgantown, W. Virginia based Job Accommodation Network (JAN) of America Inc., an international information network and consulting service for accommodating persons with disabilities.

Ratio of land to house cost keeps rising

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

"This land is your land, this land is my land."

If folksinger Woody Guthrie were alive today, he'd have to drastically revise the lyrics to that once popular

In high-priced metropolitan areas, particularly along the waterfront, land affordability is just about extinct. That, in turn, drives up housing

"The land/house price ratio is normally around 32 percent," said Donna Regner, supervisor of construction lending for Comerica Bank.

In 1980, land represented a mere 10 to 15 percent of the total cost of new housing. In 1990, land acquisition can account for more than half the total cost, depending on location.

"If we're talking lakefront property, the land/house ratio could be as much as 50 or 55 percent," Regner said. "The more expensive the land, the more expensive the home. We look at the whole appraised value. I've seen (land) account for as high as 58 percent on a lake in West Bloomfield."

Orchard Lake property is also at premium price, according to Regner. Communities like Livonia and Plymouth hover around 32 percent, she said.

"I've heard some stories that are just wild," said James Bonadeo, president of Bonadeo Construction in Plymouth Township. "It's like an auction. People who have the money will keep bidding until they get what they want. On the lakes, there's just no control over land costs.'

BUILDER TOM Schroder of Cornerstone Building in Novi has seen the land-price-to-house ratio above 70 percent on lakefront property. He has built homes in the Highland, Milford, Brighton area in addition to western Wayne County and Farmington Hills.

"It can get way out of proportion," he said. "In the early '80s land was a fourth or fifth of today's cost."

Many factors account for the tremendous cost of land acquisition, according to Bonadeo. He spun a scenario based on land selling for $20,000 per acre.

Land costs 'can get way out of proportion. In the early '80s land was a fourth or fifth of today's cost.'

— Tom Schroder

'It's like an auction. People who have the money will keep bidding until they get what they want. On the lakes, there's just no control over land costs."

James Bonadeo

"The developer buys 50 acres. First, there's the Department of Natural Resources, who says 10 acres can't be built on. Now your cost is $30,000 per acre.

"Next you go through the township, county and state boards - 21 different boards. This process takes 20 months, during which time you've paid taxes and interest on the prop-

Then you get ready to build houses, and there are more regulations. For instance, safety glass must be installed on any window 18 inches above the floor. That gets costly."

In days gone by, builders were responsible for paving roads in new subdivisions. Today, they must sow seed for 15 feet on each side of the road. They also have to plant trees.

"All these costs are charged off the land," Bonadeo said. "Builders pay for every improvement on a lot. Afterward, the city charges $40 per linear foot for future sewer and wa-

"It's a Catch 22 situation," he said. "It's nobody's fault and it's everybody's fault."

DESPITE THE high cost, Bonadeo says, "land here is almost free compared to the rest of the world."

Consider Japan, where lot costs account for as much as 90 percent of the house price. And Western Europe, where the ratio puts land at more than 50 percent of the total

"Japan is small and mostly rocky," Bonadeo said. "If a builder here doesn't like something, he can go out an extra five miles. We have the land."

Will such ratios catch on in the United States? Industry analysts say no. Banks and builders are too tradition-bound, the profit potential is limited, and the market doesn't want

"I don't think the banking community would accept it, due both to the size of the house and the value of the structure to the value of the loan," says David Jensen, a Denver-based

Unsolved water problems anger owner

I am having a water problem in my basement. The board of directors and management company repaired th but received no permit for the reairs or any inspection and the baseent still leaks. I have been told by Contractor that the work done by the association was not proper. I ontacted the Department of Licensing and Regulation and complained out the management company, and they responded by saying that he agency does not license or regulate condominium management companies. I am concerned that the management company is not working in my best interest to solve the problem of water in the basement ind storage areas. What can I do?

You many wish to write your legislator to discuss whether management companies should be lirensed in this state. Many management firms have real estate licenses because they also are involved in the sale of property. The qualifications for management companies are the subject of national discussions regarding certification and specifications for qualifications including licensing. Many management companies wish to update their qualifications by certification or licensing.

As to your question, it appears that your only recourse, having notified the association board and the management company, is to begin legal proceedings against the association, its managing agent and perhaps the board of directors for damages incurred because of your basement. The board has a responsibility to maintain the premises within its jurisdiction, and the management company has a responsibility to recondos. Can you comment? It appears that not all directors and officers liability policies are alike. While that might not necessarily be a surprise to managing agents, all too often directors of associations look to the bottom line in terms of the price of the policy in determining what insurance company to retain as opposed to the extent and nature of the coverage. This is particularly critical in connection with policies where certain protections regarding director coverage may not be provided by your particular insurance company. It is my recomomendation that each association independently evaluate the extent and coverage of its insurance policies to ensure that it is obtaining the maximum coverage for the directors and officers in the event of the various contingencies including indemnification problems when they arise. As in case of any other service person retained by the association, you normally get only what your pay for. If you skimp on insurance companies, accountants, attorneys or the like, you may find yourself behind the eight ball at a very embarrassing time as directors.

How do you plan a garage sale?

It's easy!

Just follow these simple guidelines:

- 1. Gather together the items you have for sale. Sort them into appropriate categories and price them fairly.
- 2. Place a classified advertisement in The Observer & Eccentric by calling one of the numbers below.
- 3. Hang signs throughout your neighborhood alerting residents to the upcoming sale.
- 4. Decide what to do with all the money you'll have after your sale!

Or, if you love to bargain-hunt and would rather shop then sell, be sure to look for our special garage sale listings every Monday and Thursday in your hometown newspaper. Observer & Eccentric classifieds make it easy to earn money and save money. Discover for yourself, today!

Are You Like Me?

I'm 33, have 2 children, and want the better things in life. My career rewards me well for my efforts. I work between 42 and 46 hours in a well-displayed showroom. I enjoy people and get great personal satisfaction from knowing their lives will be better for having purchased my product. I presently earn in excess of $2500 a month salary plus commission and I'm not the highest paid salesperson in my company. I also have a full benefits package including major medical, prescription, dental, and even profit-sharing. If this sounds like you, we should talk.
