"Raising the level of consciousness is the most important aspect of this," Joyner said. "It's not just a blatant appeal for money, we really think the Canton story is an important story to tell. We want to take resources, financially and intellectually and pool them. And this is another step in that process.

Worker in leather uses his skills in the traditional way

The artisan and master craftsman have all but disappeared.

But there are still those like Philip Hawk of Redford, who use traditional hand tools along with authentic techniques and materials.

Hawk, a self-employed saddler shoemaker, does custom leather work, boot and shoe making, and general repair of horse tack. He also manufactures and sells leather care

'I am not a shoemaker nor a cobbler because I do not repair shoes. My work entails making the shoes with hand tools exactly like the ones used in the 18th century," he said.

Hawk left in 1964 to take a position as journeyman at colonial Williamsburg. He was the master of the shop there, showing the techniques and work of the 18th century in which everything was done by hand.

His primary duties included the organization and supervision of saddle and harness making, as well as the supervision of the boot and shoemaking shop. He researched historical data and compiled meaningful interpretations for the public.

Among his duties were the super vision of craft personnel in pottery, glassblowing, rug hooking, spinning and weaving, jewelry making, candle making, tin work, pewter and blacksmith work.

After two years at the Edison Institute. Hawk found that there was not enough of a challenge to practice his expertise in leather work. His students also were applying for jobs in the highly specialized field and Hawk found himself in competition with them.

In 1974, he joined the faculty of the Bicentennial Summer Institute sponsored by the Michigan State University, and served on the Michigan Council for the Arts and the National American Studies faculty.

During his tenure with the National Park Service bicentennial program on national tour, he had a twoyear contract as a craftsman/actor. He gave seminar lectures on English lecture series on shoemaking, apcolonial crafts and craftsmen, coordinated lectures and demonstrations on early Michigan home construction, and presented 18th century forms of vocal music as performed in the Colonies.

IN 1977 Hawk accepted a position at Scott Colburn's Saddlery in Livo-

During his nine years with Colburn Saddlery, Hawk took time to spread the word concerning his historical occupation. He demonstrated his leather work at the annual Michigan Renaissance Festivals and was a guest lecturer on leather products for various community institutions and organizations.

He also conducted seminars and programs at Schoolcraft College in Livonia and started a bicentennial program at Ferris State College in Big Rapids with a demonstration prenticeship systems, and life and trades in colonial America.

From 1986 to the present Hawk has been self-employed as a licensed saddler/shoemaker with a shop in a section of the Colburn facility at 20411 Farmington Road in Livonia.

TO OBSERVE this master craftsman at work is to see that there is pride in every stitch.

His style of making boots and shoes is the same style fashioned in the United States in the mid-1800s. This type of shoe was called a "straight shoe," which could be worn on either foot.

Beginning March 1, Hawk will teach a special class on strap making and tack repair. The new course will take place 7-9 p.m. Fridays for eight weeks. For more information, call the Continuing Education Ser-

School choice Hot debate soon expected in Lansing

By Tim Richard staff writer

Look for "schools of choice" to be an issue in Michigan in two months or so. Don't look for it to be a panacea. Expect a lot of distrust in the educational establishment.

That's the prognosis for a plan by which parents would choose the schools their youngsters would attehd, and educators would be empowered to offer specialized programs for them to choose from.

"Choice won't be on the front burner for two months," lobbyist Tom White told his boss, the Michigan Association of School Boards, in convention last week

Added Mike Addonizio, the former college professor who is Gov. John Engler's education adviser: We do not have a full-blown program for choice. The governor does not view it as a pancea, not as an end in itself.

"A year of planning would be needed for choice," said Addonizio, pointing to fall of 1992 as a starting date. "The governor and Legislature would be interested in supporting the costs - particularly counseling for families and transportation.

WHITE SAID MASB, which represents the elected trustees who govern school districts, is more interested in funding equity between dismally poor and well-off districts. "Choice detracts from the real issues of finance-and school improvement

In Minnesota, half of 1 percent of parents enrolled their children in a statewide choice program. "Of those, only 20 percent did so for academic reasons. The others were for convenience or athletics, White said.

MASB's interests are getting the state to fund transportation, staff development and parental counseling if a "choice" program is adopted here. "We want to be there if this is imposed," White said.

In this area, many districts are wary of choice, fearing their quality programs would be inundated with applicants from lesser dis-

ADDONIZIO'S words were reassuring to trustees. An economist and former state Senate Fiscal Agency analyst, he used the words "the governor is interested in. when presenting Engler's views.

Engler's goal is improved pupil outcomes, and choice is only one element in that program, Addonizio said. More important elements are state aid, equity between districts and site-based management, he interested in providing state grants for pilot programs, transportation costs and formula aid.

To an Oakland County school board member who asked how a limited number of slots would be allocated, Addonizio replied it would be done by random selection. "Everyone seeking a place has the same chance. We wouldn't let the (receiving) schools choose. In large districts which offer choice programs, they guarantee a family one of their first three choices," he said.

THE STATE WILL come close to giving districts the monetary aid increase they want next fall, it appeared.

Lobbyist White said public schools will need an increase of 4 to 6 percent to "keep pace with inflation" on top of rising retirement

Addonizio said they can expect remarkable by mid-1980s standards" but is good in a period of downsizing state government

Two key lawmakers told MASB is doing better by its public schools than other states

Michigan is the only state not cutting K-12 aid," said Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, chair of the Senate appropriations subcommittee. "It will not occur It is not negotiable. A lot of John's problems would go away if he were to decide to cut education.

'K-12 education is a very important human service," said Rep James O'Neill, D-Saginaw, chair of the House appropriations subcommittee. "Over the last 10 years, alot of money has been diverted from education to other pro-

THE LAWMAKERS said it's unlikely the state would follow through with money for classroom computers, a program started by former Gov. James Blanchard.

"It is not his (Engler's) favorite program," said DeGrow. "School districts were notified they would purchase computers at their own risk. Any (computer) money will come from the K-12 slice of the pie (general state aid)."

"Let's face it," added O'Neill. 'There's been a change in the administration and a change in the Bill would ban assisted suicide

staff writer

A state Senate panel is moving ahead with a bill to make assisting suicides a felony over a buzzsaw of objections from "Dr. Death" - Jack Kevorkian - and his admirers.

"We should move this quickly," sponsor Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, told the Senate Family Law and Criminal Justice Committee.

"I'm not intimidated. I know I'm right. Time will vindicate me," shouted Kevorkian, the media star Witness at whom Senate Bill 32 is

The bill would punish assisted suicide with four years in prison or a $2,000 fine. It would distinguish between assisting a suicide and removing medical treatment.

COMMITTEE CHAIR Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, scheduled a vote at 3 p.m. next Tuesday in 405 State Capitol Building, Lansing, to report out the bill. Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, is a member.

Kevorkian, a Royal Oak pathologist who gained international fame when he helped a fatally ill Oregon woman end her life with his suicide machine last June, blistered the committee and the medical profes-

One court dismissed first-degree murder charges, saying Michigan law was inadequate to prosecute Kevorkian. But another slapped an injunction on him to prevent further

Kevorkian, 64, compared himself to medical pioneers who introduced dissection, the smallpox vaccine, assistance to women in labor and birth

'Legislators, judges and medical politicians are keeping this nation in the Dark Ages," he said, accusing his legion of enemies of "unspeakable barbarity, cowering under church dogma, knuckling under."

KEVORKIAN and his attorney. Geoffrey Fieger of Southfield, advocated a euthanasia law instead. Under it, a "blue ribbon panel" of medical professionals would whether a patient should be allowed to, and assisted in, taking his or her own life.

Kinglet: Pixie of bird world

After spending time in the field over a period of several years, one becomes aware of the usual and the unusual. Last year red-breasted nuthatches were a common sight, but most years they are rare. This winter the golden-crowned kinglet is more common than usual.

In December of 1990 there were 61 golden-crowned kinglets counted within a 15 mile diameter count area. During the 46 years of the Detroit Audubon Society Christmas Counts, there were only four previous years with higher recorded numbers. On the average, only 24 birds are counted. The record of 105 individuals seen in 1973 still stands.

Gold-crowned kinglets and their cousin the ruby-crowned kinglet are the smallest birds found in Michigan, pext to the ruby-throated hummingbird. Yet despite their four inch length and one-fifth ounce weight, they can survive Michigan winters.

These pixies of the bird world are very descriptively named. Goldencrown's have a bright yellow-gold patch on the top of their head. Females have an entirely yellow patch. Males have an orange-red patch surrounded by yellow. Bordering the yellow patch in both sexes is a black perimeter. Ruby crowns are only found in males of the ruby-crowned kinglets. Female ruby-crown's do not have any red feathers on their

Economic slowdown hurts animal world too

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Without checking the headlines, Michigan Humane Society officials can tell the economy is in a reces-

That's because society shelters are rapidly filling with unwanted pets.

"I'd say our intake is up substantially over last year," said Sherry Silk, director of central operations for metro area MHS shelters.

The first several months of the year are traditionally a busy time for area shelters, as pet owners abandon animals given as holiday gifts. This year, however, the situation has been compounded by the economic slowdown.

"Here (at the main shelter) in Detroit, we're hearing so many stories of people who have lost their jobs and are giving up their pets," Silk

MORE THAN 200 animals are available for adoption at MHS shelters in Detroit, Rochester Hills and Westland, Silk said, an increase of more than 10 percent from this time one year ago.

'Included in that, we have about other pets.

10 to 12 purebred dogs," she said. "And you rarely see that many up for adoption.'

Despite the rising number of available pets, the MHS remains selective about the people who seek to adopt animals placed in its care.

"WE WANT them to go to people who will be good, responsible pet owners," she said.

Toward that end, the MHS screens potential pet owners through a written questionnaire, verbal interview and inquiries about the health of people who seek to adopt pets, Silk said, though reasons can vary. Animals won't go to people with a history of abusing other pets, she said. "If they've had three or four other pets who have been hit by a car, then we won't let them adopt,

Nor will animals go to people who use them for anything other than a

"We're not going to allow adoption to someone who's going to keep a dog chained outside as a watchdog," she said. "We want them to become part of the family."

MHS officials would rather see an animal destroyed than go to an irresponsible owner, Silk said.

"Our feeling is it would be better for an animal to be destroyed humanely than to be hit by a car,"

IN 1989, the agency took in 46,741 pets, Silk said. Of those, 6,958 were adopted.

'Some of the others were returned to the owners - this is especially common in suburban areas," Silk said. "The rest, unfortunately, were humanely destroyed."

Adoptions through the Animal Welfare Society, another animal protection agency, haven't increased since this time last year, according to a spokeswoman.

The society is an affiliation of area veterinary hospitals, including Kershaw Animal Hospital, Liyonia

nia. Unlike the MHS, it doesn't destroy animals; however, it handles a much smaller volume of pets.

At present, 14 puppies and six cats are available through society offices.

Like the MHS, the society requires adoptees to sign an agreement calling for humane treatment of the animal and requires pets be kept in-

While puppies and kittens are adopted out of veterinary offices, adult pets are adopted through the owners homes.

Owners can reject applicants on their own, the spokeswoman said, without consulting with the Animal Welfare Society or its member veterinarians. Most applications are accepted, she added.

Pets can be adopted through the Michigan Humane Society's Westland Kindness Center by calling 721-7300. The center is at 32255 Marquette; Westland. They can be adopted through the Animal Welfare Soceity by calling Kershaw Animal Hospital, 421-7878. The hospital is at 9525 Wayne Road, Livonia.

The Friends of the Nature Sanctuary group has extended to March 8 its deadline to turn in petitions calling for the preservation of the Cran-brook Nature Sanctuary.

Previously, the group had set a March 1 deadline for petitions, which are aimed at stopping Cranbrook from selling the 50-acre site between Orchard Lake and Upper Straits Lake and using the proceeds to expand the Institute of Science.

THE GROUP PLANS to present the petitions to science center per-sonnel at 2 p.m. Sunday, March 10, at a ceremony it calls the "March of Petitions." So far, about 1,000 signatures have been collected, said Lorna McEwen, spokeswoman for the group. She said the new deadline will give petitioners more time to collect

The petitions call on Cranbrook to transfer deed to the land to a steward (a person or group) "dedicated to preserving it." Thirty-five acres of the site were donated to Cranbrook in 1969 by owner Howard Lee Ward. The remainder was sold to Cranbrook by Ward in 1978.

The petition asks that the donated portion of the site be given to the steward. The portion bought by Cranbrook should be sold to the steward "for a fee no less reasonable than the sum you paid for it," according to the petition McEwen said the Friends group has received letters from Ward's children and grandchildren opposing

"I am disappointed and saddened for my father who gave this treasured possession to the end that it might continue to be enjoyed by, and of benefit to, many in the future, as a natural science and ecological history book of our area of Michigan, and as a place of beauty and peace — and a very fitting memorial to his mother and father," wrote Ward's daughter, Elizabeth Palmer Ward

WARD'S GRANDSON, Michael E. DeVine wrote: "It is very clear to me that through your efforts you (Friends group) understand the responsibility we share to educate, and to remind some of our neighbors of the importance of woods, flowers, water and animals in a natural pre-

Would-be war support group finds little support

By Greg Kowalski staff writer

Maybe there are too many area support groups for families of troops in the Persian Gulf.

That's the way Kay Manie feels as her attempts to organize a support group have been met with pol-ite apathy. The Union Lake resident has good reason to want to share with others her feelings: Her daughter Sgt. Brenda Casari and son-in-law Spec. 4 Jesse Casari are both stationed somewhere in the Gulf. And she hasn't heard from them since the air war began. "I'm worried about them," said Manie.

She knows that other relatives also are concerned about their relatives in the Gulf. That's why so many support groups have sprung up seemingly everywhere - except in her semi-rural neighbor-

SO MANIE DECIDED to create her own group. She printed up flyers and placed announcements in area church bulletins and newspapers and on cable TV. The result: almost no response.

"I can't get people to answer. One couple came over and said they'd like to meet once a month. I thought we should meet at least twice a month," Manie said. They haven't called back.

Manie admits she has more good intentions than experience in organizing. ("She's actually very shy," said daughter Jamye.) But she is perplexed at the lack of response. Two weeks ago, Manie had a support group organizational meeting in Westacres Library in West Bloomfield. About 10 people attended, but most were family members. Manie wants a broader range of people.

There are at least two support groups in nearby Walled Lake, according to Corinne Lasich, a volunteer with the Walled Lake Military Support Group. Every week about 15 volunteers meet with 35 family members.

"This area is pretty well covered (with support groups)," Lasich said.

Still, Caroline Smith, a wellness program coordinator at Botsford General Hospital, sees a "great need" for the groups. The hospital has hosted group meetings and has a counselor who speaks to individu-als and refers them for further counseling if necessary.

Since hosting a support group meeting on Feb. 16 there has been a steady stream of callers, Lasich

Manie thought of creating a support group while visiting relatives in the Upper Peninsula. By the time she returned home, several groups had already been formed locally, although, she said, "I didn't know then there were other ones around."

SHE BEGAN ATTENDING a group in West Bloomfield and immediately liked it. "There is a closeness there. You can tell people really care about each other," Manie said. Sharing fears and hopes for loved ones in the war "made me feel good," she added.

Daughter Brenda has been in the Army for 10 years and has been daughter was born, and Germany, At 363-4838.

so Guif duty was not unexpected, Manie said. But plenty of other ser-vice people, especially reservists, were taken by surprise by the quick deployment in the Guif. For many families back home, the emotional and economic strain has been great.

While there are early signs that the war might be wrapped up soon, Manie sees a longer-range need for the support groups. "I have a friend who has a son in the Army. He has the idea that his son is coming home tomorrow. I feel sorry for him." In fact, the end of the war doesn't mean an instant ticket trip back to the States for the

"And when they do return, how are they going to handle it?" Manie asked, referring to the long-term psychological damage suffered by many Vietnam War veterans.

"The support groups have to stick together after the war," Manie said. For now, however, she plans to continue to try to organize a support group.
"I still think there are people out there who need someone to talk to," she said.

EMU seeks one-room schoolhouses

College of Education is seeking information about one-room schoolhouses in Michigan to establish an inventory of these 'disappearing' landmarks and provide a network for schoolhouse owners.

The survey, funded by the EMU Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, international education fraternity, the EMU College of Education and the Washtenaw County Historic-District Commission, needs those with information on one-room schoolhouses in Michigan to complete and return a two-page survey to EMU.

According to Thomas L. Jones, executive director of the Historical Society of Michigan, many one-room schoolhouses have been purchased from private homes, some have been converted into museums and a few are used by historical societies to provide hands-on learning experiences for children.

Jones said a 1987 study by the Michigan Department of Education found 21 such schoolhouses still in use by Michigan school districts and added, the survey is an attempt "to find out if that figure is accurate in EMU and the Historical Society plan to form a network of owners who can benefit from sharing information and resources.

Westerman and Jones announced the survey as part of EMU's plan to renovate and create a museum of its own one-room Town Hall Schoolhouse, donated to the University in 1988 by the Geddes family.

The Town Hall Schoolhouse, which EMU relocated from its out-county location to central campus in 1989, has been restored on the exterior and awaits interior completion.

Already, Westerman said, the building symbolizes EMU's history as a teacher training institution, the first teachers' college west of the Allegheny Mountains.

One-room schoolhouse owners and/or those with information about one-room schoolhouses anywhere in Michigan are asked to write: College of Education, Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, Mich. 48197.

tinues to grow." Poling and others praised McNamara's plans to develop county management teams to work with local officials in retaining residents and businesses.

McNamara's plans to gain county control over general assistance welfare payments faces a less certain future.

Beard said the county shouldn't be too eager to assume responsibility.

"Anytime the state gives you something they give it to you with less than full funding," Beard said. "I can see us putting a lot of money we don't have into this."

Plans to convert general assistance to a job training program are also a concern, Beard said.

As far as I'm aware, general assistance is going to be done away with," said Heintz. "I don't know if that's something we'd even get the chance to consider McNamara's infant mortality task force drew strong support from Poling, one of the commission's newest members.

"I wasn't here when they started it last year, but I'd have to say that infant mortality is one of the county's most serious problems," she said.

Manager

Departure can be opportunity

ELL, HERE WE are again. Plymouth will replace a city manager for the second time in less than two years. It just doesn't make for a stable environment. But don't wring your hands over the problem. The impending departure of Gordon Jaeger is an opportunity for the city of Plymouth to make choices that will determine its future.

Plymouth is an endangered species, but one that can be preserved intact if the right steps are taken. Those steps include the consolidation of services between Plymouth Township and the city.

THERE SHOULD BE one fire department, one police department and one department of public works. It makes sense. And it was something that Jaeger pursued.

Plymouth is endangered because it's a landlocked community with a population of about 10,000. And there just isn't going to be an increase in population or of homes that will increase the tax base. That means the city will either be forced to cut services or increase the tax burden on city residents.

And this all comes at a time when the world of retailing is changing, which to us means the commercial districts of the city won't be able to shoulder a larger tax burden. The retail districts may need tax breaks, not extra taxes in order to survive.

Plymouth has its specialty stores that fill a niche in the market, but how much of a tax burden can they assume? If taxes go up, rents will go up. How much will they be able to pay?

There has been some talk in Plymouth about trying to attract a Jacobson's-style store. It's probably just talk. Plymouth just doesn't heve the land mass downtown to support such a store.

Plymouth should face the fact that there just won't be a sugar daddy coming along to pay all the taxes.

WITH THAT OPTION seemingly closed, the consolidation of services looks like the best way to hold down taxes.

Jaeger has been looking at that since he arrived in Plymouth last spring. And, in fact, that's why he was an attractive city manager candidate. He was deeply involved in consolidation in Battle Creek.

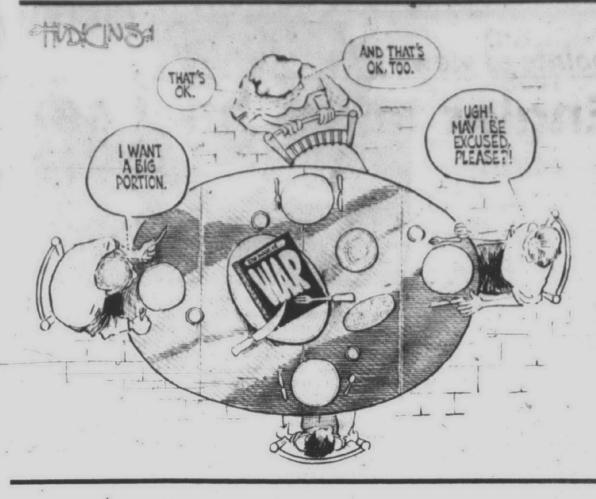

With his impending departure, Jaeger can leave an important legacy for Plymouth: services consolidation.

And it's a legacy that a new city manager, if one is needed, can run with. It's a governmental agenda for the future. With consolidation of services on the agenda, is a manager needed, especially one who would want to stay around for years?

Consolidation of services would eventually mean less work for a manager, although putting the deal together with Plymouth Township would take a steady hand.

The city of Plymouth has an opportunity to come up with a creative solution to its city manager problem. When the search for a new manager starts, consolidation of services should be at the top of the agenda.

It's the only way to go unless Plymouth wants to go the way of the dodo bird.

Engler seeks change in state government

THE TWO great contrasting political executive styles are Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan. As John Engler approaches two months as Michigan's governor, I still can't figure out which he's most like.

Nixon: the ultimate insider — shrewd, clever, calculating, knowledgeable and pragmatic — didn't care much about ideology. His style was to scope out tactically how to attain his objective, then follow through regardless of political philosophy.

Reagan: knew little about details of governance or tactics of maneuver; didn't care. He did know overall philosophy. He defined an overarching ideology and communicated it with so much power as to define the arena for subsequent debate.

Understanding whether Engler is more like Nixon or Reagan provides a way to evaluate the core of a man who, to date, has succeeded in remaining distant and closed to public gaze.

IT'S EASY to argue that Engler is a Nixonian tactician.

Engler's entire career since graduating from Michigan State University has been in the sandbox of the Legislature where the primary rule of survival is that skill in maneuver is more important than substance or philosophy.

There he gained respect as the ultimate insider, a master of legislative and procedural detail. His core was adherence to Republican advantage.

Even his come-from-behind election as governor reminds many of Nixon's style. Engler clearly understood that the only issue that could Understanding add emotional punch to his superlatively organized but passsionless campaign was high property taxes. And his media blitz over the final weekend showed a politician who understood polling data and how to capitalize on it.

TO ARGUE that Engler is more like Reagan requires looking at what he actually has said and tried to do in his earliest days as governor.

First, he consistently has said Michigan's government is too big. At some political damage to himself, he has cut programs — some because they existed rather than in response to results. He has eliminated offices, proposes to consolidate departments, laid off some people and threatens to fire more.

Second, he consistently has said property taxes are too high and should be cut. He has held to this position in the face of a $1 billion-plus budget deficit. He has held to it in the face of criticism that he proposes to pay for his radical philosophy of state government by cutting taxes for the rich and services for the poor.

Phil Pow Phy of state government by caves for the rich and service

That isn't the style of the cunning Nixonian tactician. It is the style of the Reaganesque radical.

THE PRIMARY conclusion I reach about Engler's governorship is just how radical it is.

Engler wants fundamental change in the size of government, what government does and how government is paid for. It makes his agenda unlike any governor's in modern Michigan history.

George Romney (1963-68) was a moderate Republican with a pitchman's skills. Bill Milliken (1969-82) was more of the same but with more class and grace. Jim Blanchard (1983-90) consistently sought the political center, possibly to his own defeat. John Swainson (1961-2) was a transitional governor.

You have to go back to the earliest days of G. Mennen Williams' administration (1949-60) to see an ideological core and a policy vision as far reaching as Engler's.

For Engler the question is

For Engler, the question is whether he can assemble a coalition of support as large and as durable as Williams did in his 12 years in office.

Phil Power is chairman of the company that owns this newspaper. His award-winning column will appear periodically.

War cries Freedom is the right to dissent

Winding down, it's time for us to reexamine our views on freedom and democracy.

Most disturbing during this conflict was the Most disturbing during this conflict was the attitude which dictated that we should be grateful for the right to speak our minds and criticize our government, but we should shut up and go along with whatever the government decides.

In Livonia, city assessor Ron Mardiros saw fit to call for the reassignment of Bishop Thomas Gumbleton, a longtime peace activist who actively opposes the current war.

In Birmingham, an outraged caller complained to this newspaper about a headline that described local reaction to the war as "mixed."

Despite the newsroom truism that reaction to just about anything always is mixed, this caller, a valued reader, thought it a slap in the face of our troops to suggest the country is not 100 percent behind their cause.

FREEDOM IS the license to express dissenting opinions, especially ones likely to offend the status quo. Democracy, if it means anything, says that all the people have an equal say about the course of government policy and a reponsibility to pull for their point of view.

Unfortunately, the war in the Persian Gulf has moved some, with notable passion, to attempt stifling opinions with which they disagree.

The attitude of a recent guest commentary printed in another area newspaper demonstrates the danger from those who wish to snuff out dissent. The writer paints the entire local Arab-American community with the brush of anti-Americanism for failing to denounce a West Bloomfield man of Iraqi origin who has spoken favorably of Saddam Hussein.

Anti-war protesters, to be sure, also can be self-satisfied and a little too sure of their own correctness. But, as yet, we've heard none of them demand that supporters of the war be deprived of their right to express that support.

THOSE WHO would stifle discussion — those who offer the wisdom that now that war has begun we all have a duty to fall in line and support it — seem to think somehow that because lives are on the line the debate that is essential to democracy should be suspended.

Quite the contrary. War is the result of diplomatic failure. Debate is mandatory — before, during and after. The public examination of our goals, and of our consciences, must never stop.

As for the attitude that any questioning of the war or related policies insults our troops, we say not. Americans feel passionately, and correctly, that our soldiers must never be humiliated or shamed for what our elected leaders ask them to do, as many were in the aftermath of Vietnam. But disagreeing with a policy is no insult to the men and women asked to carry out that policy.

If soldiers can face the enemy's bullets and shells overseas, they can face the words "we disagree" at home.

Besides, there's something disingenuous in the assumption that all the soldiers in the Middle East support the war and expect the same from us. We remember news reports in the weeks following the August deployment in which some soldiers clearly questioned their mission. They have that right, and so do we at home.

What might be most disturbing about all of this is that some people actually fear open débate. It's that strange attitude again that democracy is all-important — and heaven forbid we should actually practice it.

Marine happy for support from home

To the editor:

Yesterday I received a letter from my best friend in the Marine reserves. We would both greatly appreciate it if you could publish this letter. Thank you.

Dear friends:

My name is Cpl. James L. Murry, H & S Co. 1st Battalion 24th Marines. My reserve unit, Broadhead Armory-Detroit Michigan was activated on Dec. 9, 1990. I am now stationed in Okinawa, Japan. Because of security reasons I cannot state whether my unit will be going to Saudi Arabia, or when.

I am writing on behalf of many Marines here, and myself. I would like to start by saying "thank you" for your support to the U.S. troops stationed in the Gulf, and anywhere else.

I've read letters and seen the news about our supporters back home, so I felt compelled to write back just to say "God bless you all." It means so much to us that we are not forgotten about. I would like everyone to know that I am just as proud of you, as you are of the troops. To all of the friends and families, we understand this is as hard for you as it is for us. In many ways harder. Be proud of yourselves.

I would also like to tell our supporters why I feel I'm here. Many times, before the war, I have said what I'm saying now. I grew up an American, and have had many great opportunities to do as I wish, simply because I'm an American.

I've seen the children in my community and watched them grow up. If the time ever comes that I have to fight, and possibly pay the ultimate sacrifice, it will be for the children of America. So they grow up with the same freedom and opportunities I had.

The world is in troubled times, and I think too many people take it for granted what a great place America is to grow up and live in. If the last thing I ever see is the children (our future) grow up with the same opportunities I had, it will be well worth the price. I cannot honestly say I understand all of the politics, but I do understand why I'm here, to protect our way of life.

A major help for us to do this job is the support we receive from back home.

I would like to end by saying I graduated from Plymouth-Salem in 1988. I joined the U.S. Marines and went to boot camp in July of 1988. I am very proud of where I'm from because I know you're thinking about us. Remember, we're thinking about you too. You are the reason for us to carry on.

Once again, thank you for your support, and we are proud of you. One more thing I have to add; I love you and miss you Mom, Dad, John and Wendy.

God bless.

Cpl. Murry, James L.; 377 92 8550 H & S Co. 1st BN 24th Marines 111 MEF, FPO San Francisco, Calif. 96602-9474

I know he would love to hear from any friends back home if they would like to write to him or anyone in his battalion. Thank you.

Concern grows Urban sprawl draws reaction

HE OLD CLICHE OF living in a throwaway society has now evolved into the reality of living in a society with "throwaway cities."

That's the concern of Edward McNamara. Wayne County executive. And he's not alone. In Oakland County officials recently held a summit meeting to discuss the causes and consequences of urban sprawl.

In some cases those are fairly obvious. Wayne County is facing the potential loss of two U.S. Congressional seats due to population loss. In outlying areas of Oakland County where the population is growing, attention to infrastructure needs like roads and sewers is siphoning off support for our older suburbs.

The combination of growth in new areas and abandonment of aging ones is ominous.

"We are trying to head off something that could be disastrous," said Joseph Joachim, director of the Oakland County Department of Community and Economic Development.

Now is not the time to twiddle thumbs. So Oakland County's establishment of a Regional Development Initiative is a good move. So is the team approach being set up by Wayne County.

But it's going to take more than talk to solve these problems. Resolve them before they grow unmanageable.

Engler takes heat as 'uneasy head' of state

"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown.

Shakespeare summed it up 300 years ago through the mouth of Henry IV, a king who slept poorly be-ause he was target of a deposition.

As pundits noted after the 1990 elections, people blame governors for everything, whether they're to blame or not. Governors are visible.

The buck stops there.

Gov. John Engler is getting 100 percent of the blame for "the cuts." So let's just sort out the budgets.
PLURAL, "BUDGETS." There are six going on seven: 1. In September, the Legislature adopted and Blanchard signed the general fund budget. 2. Later Blanchard submitted a

"supplemental" budget of nearly have reduced $600 million, 90 percent of it for social services. Republicans said Blanchard had a bad habit of doing that to hide the "bad news." Anyway, it was adopted.

3. After the election, we learned revenues were low by a half-billion. Blanchard, then-Sen. Engler and everyone else agreed to preserve education and cut everything else 9.2

4 and 5. Engler became governor, discovered spending was a half-bil-lion out of whack and submitted two more budget documents: one making transfers, the other an executive order with a quarter-billion in cuts. The transfers actually restored a lot of ADC welfare and mental health spending. Engler preserved programs that got federal aid and would have reduced staff layoffs from

Understand this: Engler's budgets never became law because Democrats on the House Appropriations Committee rejected them.

6. Budget No. 3 (supra) goes in effect. Politically, it now becomes the House Democratic budget - with Engler administering it.

7. This revision of No. 6 is to be a compromise and is going through the Legislature now.

WHO GETS the blame for everything bad? Engler, of course. He asked for the job, didn't he?

Engler is taking the heat for a lot of ADC cuts he never advocated.

On this page, Engler recently took heat for cutting all 125,000 general assistance grants, including those affecting children. A bum rap. His budget would have cut 90,000 adults off GA but retained grants for house-holds with children. The crown is blamed for what never occurred and what it never advocated.

The arts thing is an awful mess. Engler's plan to "zero out" everything that hadn't been spent (No. 5) was rejected. Meanwhile, the state prudently put a freeze on arts grants until No. 7 is passed.

The biggest single line item in the arts area is the Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA). Engler was pilloried by a Detroit paper and his own musical and arts tastes examined via an interview with his ex-wife.

What everyone forgot is that DIA is a department of Detroit city government, its director a mayoral appointment and its budget the responsibility of the mayor and council un der the Detroit city charter.

Fault the rest of Engler's arts budget, if you will, but it's patently unfair to gore him over the DIA. The city of Detroit abandoned both the DIA and the Detroit Symphony years ago in favor of having the largest police force per capita in the nation.

In seeking to cut GA and job training, Engler was cutting Democratic programs. In proposing to eliminate the arts pork barrel, however, the governor is alienating his Cranbrook area Republican constituency. He could be a one-term governor.

King Henry IV never was deposed, but he died, worn out, at 47. Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

Commitment, not site, is what ails the Tigers

I KNEW I WASN'T the only one who was up in arms as I read Tom Monaghan's remarks on why he must move Tiger Stadium out of Detroit.

On a plane to Boston from Metro Airport Friday, I overheard the man in the seat in back of me say to his wife: "Monaghan should keep his mouth shut."

"His (Monaghan's) comments infuriated us and our managers," said Tim Brown, senior vice president of operations of RPM Pizza, franchisers in Oakland and Wayne counties for nearly all Domino's

All this in response to an article in which the Tiger owner blamed poor attendance on fans' perception that it's unsafe to go to the

"Something has got to be done, because Detroit all of a sudden has become one of the worst baseball cities in the United States when it used to be one of the best," Monaghan is reported as saying. "I blame it on location."

I'm confident that although many suburbanites don't go into the city routinely, they have little fear of going to Tiger Stadium one of Detroit's safest areas.

The real reasons attendance is down are: The Tigers are a secondrate ballclub; they do a lousy job at marketing; and they have an uncanny ability to let go of the charismatic people on their ball clubs the team has never been the same since they traded away Kirk

BUT MONAGHAN BLAMES the ball club's ills on the city. And so far he has insisted that the best remedy is a new Tiger Stadium in the suburbs.

That's despite strong public opinion to the contrary; two innovative proposals - the Cochrane Plan commissioned by the Tiger Stadium Fan Club and one more recently proposed by well-known Bir-mingham architect Gunnar Birkerts - to renovate the stadium; and public officials' opinion both from Detroit and its suburbs:

Last week Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara said the county would be willing to help pay for a renovation of Tiger Stadium if the 88-year-old baseball park is kept in

"Our position is that the stadium absolutely must be in Detroit, and our second position is that if the present stadium could be utilized, that's where we prefer to see it," McNamara said.

Also last week the executive committee of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments said struct the stadium or build a new one in the city. The committee said it favors using existing infrastructure over expanding into the sub-

And the Novi City Council recently donned Tiger hats to unanimously pass a resolution to keep the stadium out of Novi and in Detroit. "The success of Novi depends on the success of Detroit," said Novi councilman Tim Pope. "We must stop removing major projects from the city if we want to survive.'

WHICH BRINGS ME to the tremendous gap in philosophy between Monaghan and his rival pizza maker, Mike Ilitch.

Rather than turning his back, Ilitch, a Bloomfield Hills resident, put his faith in Detroit. His Red Wings are firmly entrenched at the Joe. He poured millions into renovating the Fox Theatre, which is bringing thousands of suburbanites back to the city for entertainment and has prompted the openings of other nearby nightlife.

And he very deliberately moved his corporate offices from Farmington Hills to a building adjacent to the Fox - bringing daytime life back to a near-dead row of abandoned storefronts along Woodward

The contrast is stark between these two pizza kings - one who gives back to the city and one who would take away

College teaching varies

Question: My son had a 3.6 grade point average when he graduated from high school last year. He now attends a major university. He is not doing well at all and complains about poor teachers and classes with up to 200 students in them. We assumed he would have excellent teachers because the professors have advanced degrees and must have been good high school teachers to get to the college level. Are we missing some of the facts?

Answer: Yes, you are missing quite a few facts. First an advanced degree, such as a doctorate degree, doesn't guarantee that person will be a quality teacher.

The issue, in your case, is that the university your son chose is basically a doctorate-granting institution, meaning many professors are forced to place more value on doing research, getting research grants and publishing articles than on teaching. Why? Those are the criteria used for promotion and tenure.

RECENTLY THE Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching completed a major study on this issue.

Carnegie asked the faculties of community colleges, liberal arts colleges (Alma, Albion, etc), comprehensive schools (Eastern, Central, etc), doctorate-granting institutions and research institutions a straight-

Only 21 percent of the research university teachers said teaching is their primary focus. Obviously they see research and grant-getting as their major responsibilities.

In the doctorate-granting institutions, the type of school your son attends, only 41 percent of their teachers stated teaching is the major criterion for promotion.

In the comprehensive schools (defined as Central, Western, Eastern) 68 percent of the staff saw teaching as their primary job.

Seventy-six percent of the teachers at the small liberal arts schools (Hillsdale, Adrian, etc.) clearly said teaching is the most important aspect of their job. However, these schools generally don't aggressively pursue huge federal and industrial

As you can see many professors are part of a system that doesn't necessarily reward quality teaching as much as it rewards grant-getting and articles published.

Son's legacy: Pride and joy

By Julie Brown staff writer

John Young doesn't want any parent to go through what he did two years ago. Even so, he knows those with a loved one in the military must prepare for the worst.

Thursday, February 28, 1991 O&E

His son, John, died in a Feb. 20, 1989, plane crash in Florida. Capt. John Young Jr. was an aircraft commander with the U.S. Air Force.

"He's the son men dream of having. I wish I had him back, but I'll never get him back.

"I just suffered it out," Young said of the time after his son's death. "My son was gone and I just had to face the world without him. I just took it step by step.

Young, a Canton resident, doesn't know any families with loved ones in Operation Desert Storm, but his thoughts are with those people.

"I feel very sorry for the parents."
He also worries about the soldiers who are fighting in the Middle East.
The region's sandy terrain makes their work difficult, he said.

"They really don't even know where their enemy's at."

THAT DAY two years ago, Feb.

Hitting Home

20, 1989, is vivid in Young's memory. His son, Young's "pride and joy," died in a peacetime accident at the age of 30. The reality of that death was a shock for Young and other family members.

"I would just say to brace for the worst." He understands that military families want their loved ones home safe and sound. At the same time, they need to prepare for that knock on the door and the worst possible

He remembers and appreciates those who helped him deal with his son's death.

"There were a lot of people that gave me comfort." Friends and neighbors were a tremendous help to the Young family. Many of John's friends from high school came to the funeral.

"It was overwhelming, really. I had a lot more friends than I realized."

Support groups are a help for families who have loved ones in the Persian Gulf, he said. Friends, neighbors and co-workers can help those people get through the day.

"Just give them moral support."
John Young Jr. graduated from Plymouth Canton High School in 1977 and from the U.S. Air Force
Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., in 1982.

HE TOOK some time off from his studies there, coming home to work and help the family after his mother died. He then returned to Colorado to complete work on his degree. Young 'I just suffered it out.

participated in athletics at Centennial Educational Park and at the Air Force Academy.

Young Sr. and his late wife had six children including John. He wants people to remember that John "was a good son. He enjoyed the service. He had fun while he was in service."

Young's son got to see quite a bit of the world while serving in the U.S. Air Force, and was stationed in Germany for two years. His father went to Europe to visit during that time.

"I think about him every day. I'll never get over it as far as that goes. I just try to stay as busy as possible, keep from thinking about it. In a sense, it's still there, though."

Young Sr. had to leave school as a boy to work on the farm and didn't learn to read. He went back to school several years ago, learned to read and is now working on his GED

MOMS

Sounding taps after 50 years

By Sue Mason staff writer

Isabelle Brainard and Genevieve Letke are ready for the end. They don't believe that even media coverage can save them.

In a way, they're fatalists. Even though there are plenty of MOMS out there who could save it, they doubt if any would come forward to do so.

In their mindset, 50 years is long enough.

Brainard and Letke are two of about 145 older women who belong to the last five units of Mothers of Men (and Women) in the Service — MOMS for short. This October, 10 years after the national organization disbanded, the remaining units will close the books on the organization.

"The lifestyle's different now," said Letke. "Back when I joined, a lot of the mothers didn't work. Mothers work now and when they are at home, they're spending time with their families."

MOMS got its start in Dearborn in June 1941. At the time, young seamen were coming to the community to attend the Naval School of Instruction at the Ford Motor Co. They were a long way from home, with nothing to do in their free time. Families began taking in the young men on weekends and soon MOMS was formed.

The organization quickly caught on and by June 1944, it held its first

MOMS UNITS could be found throughout the metropolitan and outstate areas. It spread to Pennsylvannia, New York, Texas, Maryland, Oklahoma, Iowa and other states through the Midwest and along the eastern seaboard:

Communities like Livonia, Plymouth, Garden City and Birmingham had MOMS units. Today, there are just five — No. 63 in Southfield, No. 66 in Troy, No. 17 in Hazel Park, No. 14 in Ortonville and No. 33 in Gingelfville. Brainard and Letke belong to the Southfield unit.

In its heyday, MOMS had 5,000 members; now it has 145.

"Used to be that at one time women fought to be president," said Letke. "But now this is Isabelle's second time."

From the beginning of World War II and continuing during the Korean War and the Vietnam conflict, MOMS dedicated itself to helping service personnel. The organization provided correspondence and "care" packages for troops as well as raising money for gifts for service personnel at the country's Veterans Administration hospitals.

ministration hospitals.

But even as early as the end of Word War II, MOMS was on the de-

"Right after World War II, unit after unit disbanded because they felt they weren't necessary anymore," Brainard said. No one anticipated yet another war within five years of such a global confrontation, she said.

Both Brainard and Letke joined MOMS during the Vietnam conflict. Brainard, who had a son in the service, went to a meeting in the mid-1960s to see what it was like and has been going ever since.

"I'VE HELD an office every year but one," the Westland resident said.

Letke became acquainted with MOMS in 1967 after a friend called her about the group. At the time, she had both a son and daughter in the Air Force. She recalls that a meeting announcement for the Southfield unit was printed in the Redford Record. It attracted some women who came to one meeting and never came back.

"I think they thought we were a social group," the Canton Township resident said. "Our aim is to raise money for the veterans."

Through benefits, where possible, the five remaining units raise money for veterans' services at the state's VA hospitals. They also help out with Children's Village in Pontiac.

"We care about the veterans and we also care about the children of veterans who land there," Brainard said.

Larger units such as Ortonville are able to use card parties and the like to raise money. Troy also has a large unit, but "only a few do anything," Brainard said.

The Southfield unit, with seven members, has resorted to a $25 per member yearly donation to raise money. Seven members have to be present to make a meeting quorum, but as membership has decreased, rules have been changed.

"WE HAVEN'T had a quorum in months," Brainard said.

The twosome admit that disbanding the organization will be difficult. It is Brainard, as president, who has the job of presiding over the final convention.

The MOMS national organization decided to disband in 1981 due to declining membership and the inability to attract new members and leaders. The same is true of the existing units. Today's mothers want support groups rather than MOMS, the women said.

Brainard was ready to end it all two years ago, but decided to give it two more years.

"My minister told me that after 50 years, it's probably run its course, but something will be there to take its place," she said. "There's going to be a lot of tears shed, but I think there'll be a lot of sighs of relief,

Happy campers find information at weekend fair

By Carolyn DeMarco staff writer

A summer camp fair has been scheduled for 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, March 3, at Bloomfield Hills Middle School, 4200 Quarton. The event is sponsored by The Merrill-Palmer Institute, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and All Things Considered magazine.

"Super Summer for Kids: A Camp and Activities Fair" is free and open to all. Families will have the opportunity to meet with dozens of representatives from local, state and national organizations who sponsor summer programs for children. There will also be an opportunity for those seeking summer employment.

For information on camps to be represented, call Elaine Sturman at Merrill-Palmer, (313) 577-5244.

Camp fairs may be the best way to introduce children and parents to the vast number of summer camps out there.

"Unfortunately, many show up at camp fairs and are overwhelmed," said Cliff Borbas, public relations chairman for the Michigan section of the American Camping Association. "They don't know where to start."

He offers some advice for parents of campgoers. "Ask yourself first if it's day camp or residential that you want," said Borbas, operator of a residential camp in the Upper Peninsula. "Is the child ready to leave home? Is the parent ready for them to leave home?"

Cost is always a factor, Borbas said. "How much can the family afford to spend?" There are highly subsidized camps sponsored by youth organizations and churches as well as private camps which may be $400 per week and higher.

Determine what focus you prefer, Borbas said. "Ours is very rustic, very small for those who value a simpler life. Some like a country club atmosphere. In the end, it's what you want for your kids."

In selecting a camp, know what children's interests are, Borbas said, but don't discount one because it offers activities they haven't done before. "Look beyond what they normally do to offer new experiences."

Borbas encourages parents to include the child in the selection process. "If they go willingly to camp, that's half the battle. Discuss the camp guidelines. Get some brochures that match your aims geographically, financially and in activities and narrow it down to the ones they're interested in."

WHERE POSSIBLE, meet with the directors at camp fairs. Get references and cail them. True, camps don't give out names of unsatisfied customers, he said, "but at least you'll get someone unbiased, someone who's not employed by the camp."

As a member of the American Camping Association, Borbas naturally feels ACA accreditation is important.

"In addition to being licensed by the state, these camps have voluntarily been reviewed for accreditation. Every three years, camp visitors (who are managers of other ACA camps) spend a day and fill out a form of 300 questions about the program.

"The camps must provide documentation. It's just additional assurance for campgoers. It's been proven to another association."

Before you attend the camp fair, do that preliminary research on camps, he suggests. The American Camping Association publishes the 1991/92 Guide to Accredited Camps which lists more than 1,900 camps in the U.S. and offers guidelines for selecting a camp. The book is available from the ACA at $10.95 by calling 1-800-428-CAMP.

A free Michigan Children's Camp directory of more than 70 camps (20 percent of all Michigan camps) is available from the Michigan section, American Camping Association, 3208 West Road, East Lansing, Mich. 48823. Call 1-800-852-8368.

Good Citizens do community proud

Honoring outstanding high school seniors isn't a new thing for members of the Sarah Ann Cochrane chapter, Daughters of the American

"It's just something they've done for years," said Doris Richard, Good Citizens chairwoman for the DAR chapter. She's impressed with the qualifications of the students who are chosen each year.

"Oh, extremely. I think they're wonderful. They're really outstanding, all of them," said Richard, a Plymouth Township resident. They're very outstanding, and they have high aspirations."

This year's local Good Citizens

• Annette Whittaker, a senior at Plymouth Canton High School. Whittaker's parents are Terry and Novella Whittaker of Canton.

• Amy Sullivan, a senior at Plymouth Salem High School. Sullivan's parents are Jerome and Nancy Sullivan of Plymouth.

• Kamaljit Bagga, a senior at Northville High School. Bagga's par-ents are Kalyan and Harminder Bagga of Northville.

A senior from L'Anse High School in northern Michigan was also recog-nized as a Good Citizen by the Sarah Ann Cochrane chapter.

The students were honored during a Monday, Feb. 18, tea at the Plymouth Historical Museum. Several students attended with their parents and other family members.

'It's an honor for them to be chosen," Richard said of the Good Citizens. Scholarships are given at the state and national levels by the Daughters of the American Revolution for the Good Citizens.

The students write essays on a different topic each year. This year's theme was "Our American Heritage and My Responsibility To Preserve She's also impressed with the community involvement of the Good Citizens. Many volunteer their time and talents to help others.

"You wonder 'How in the world do they get time?"

DAR chapter members plan to continue to honor Good Citizens each year. This year, there's been an increased emphasis on patriotism in many circles since the outbreak of the Persian Gulfwar.

"People are patriotic now. I think it's good," Richard said. She knows that Americans can at times tend to forget just how valuable freedom is.

Yes, we certainly do, and I do as well as the next fellow. I think we all do to some extent."

Seminar to focus on church growth

staff writer

Evangelism's not a word all Christians are comfortable with.

Often, Christians have faith in God and Jesus, "but have a hard time sharing that faith with their friends, their neighbors and of course strangers," said David Snyder, a member of the First United Methodist Church of Plym-

"It's kind of a scary thought. We want to make this a more comfortable thought.'

Snyder's the evangelism work area chairman at the church. He and others have been working on a "Reach Your Unreached Neighbors" seminar, to be held Saturday, March 2, at the church, 45201 N. Territorial, west of Sheldon in Plymouth Township.

The evangelism/church growth seminar will be presented by The International Bible Society; translation sponsor of the New Interna-tional Version (NIV) Bible. Overcoming the fear of evangelism's one goal of the seminar.

PARTICIPANTS WILL learn how to use the Bible in witnessing and how to reach out to neighbors through the church. The day-long seminar will include practical sessions featuring a variety of learning activities, such as role playing.

We're a growing church. The numbers bear that out and so does our recer. building renovation." said Snyder, a Plymouth resident. "We feel called to reach out further into the community. We want to prepare and enable our people to go out and share their faith.

The church has nearly 1,400

members. Worshipers recently completed an extensive renovation

The Saturday, March 2, seminar's been put together by repre-sentatives of The International Bible Society, Snyder said. Such a program hasn't been held in the recent past at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. The church has had evangelistic speakers who aren't of the fire and brimstone variety, such as the Rev. Pe-

The Saturday, March 2, seminar is open to teens and adults. Registration is $10, $7 for students and senior citizens, including lunch. To register, call 453-5280.

THE SEMINAR is for Christians of all denominations.

"Our faith crosses those boundaries that we've set up as human beings," Snyder said. "This transcends all that. Our faith is much bigger than that.'

The biblical call is for Christians to make disciples of all the world. Snyder knows from his own experience that sharing faith can be

"It is not easy. I don't think it's something you necessarily have to push on people." It's possible to share faith and good news with others without being overbearing.

He's an administrator at Plymouth Salem High School where he runs the student radio station,

"You have to be very careful because it's a public institution." He doesn't push his faith on others, but tends to incorporate his beliefs into suggestions and comments he makes to students.

"It's just something you have to be very careful with."

For some Christians, there's a tendency to think "Sunday is the day we go to church and we're Christians between 11 and 12 o'clock," Snyder said. "We have to remember God comes first seven days a week.'

Evangelism hasn't traditionally been associated with such mainline Protestant denominations as the Methodist and Presbyterian churches. Snyder has found that members of his church and of others in the area have a firm faith and commitment.

"Therefore, they're open to the idea of evangelism." For many, it's simply a matter of learning more about evangelism.

Ministers and priests aren't the only ones for whom evangelism is important. Laypeople too have a vital role to play in developing faith and sharing it with others.

"Evangelism is something each Christian needs to pursue," Snyder

Members of the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth recently completed an extensive building project. "We're a growing church," said David Snyder, evangelism work area chairman. "We feel called to reach out further into the communi-

Other operations touted when car sales dip

By Doug Funke staff writer

Automobile dealers who succeed in the 1990s will increase output of their back-end operations - sevice, body shop and parts. And successful dealers will become even more adept at getting customers to return from one car buy to another.

That's the analysis of Jeremy Anwyl, a Californiabased researcher and consultant to the industry. He pegs the profit margin on gross sales from all operations for most dealers today at one percent or less.

"If you could find 10 percent of the dealers in the U.S. making money on the sales of new cars, I'd be surprised," Anwyl said. "The key is you've got to build up a strong back-end. The service department has to be

"This is a relationship business," Anwyl added. "Going after the repeat sale is a two- or three-year process. The factor I find with the dealer making money is percentage of business coming in for repeat and referral.'

Car sales here are down, way down in some instances, dealers report. Consumers lack confidence to commit to major purchases given the economy and uncertainty about how long the war will last in the Middle East.

So dealers are trying different approaches to pick up

"IN TIMES like this we tend to hunker down, to cut back on some additional expenses," said Carl Fischer, owner of Buick, Mazda, Subaru dealerships in Troy and president of the Detroit Auto Dealers Association.

"We've held off doing some redecorating of the store. We try to emphasize service a little more, do a little more direct mail advertising. We go after used car business a little stronger.'

In January, new car sales at his Buick dealership were up slightly, Mazda sales flat and Subaru down slightly, Fischer said.

Bob Moran, an executive at Pontiac, GMC and Mitsubishi dealerships in Southfield, said tough times are affecting all of his operations.

"People can keep their cars longer than you or I could believe," he said.
"Industry-wide, body shops are down. Every day there are no fewer accidents. If you were laid off and your fender was banged in and you got a check for $400-500, you wouldn't give the money to me, you'd buy groceries," Moran said.

Service and body shop repair orders indicate that people are neglecting their cars, he said

We have oil specials, brake specials. We have a free shuttle and reasonable rental rates," Moran said. "You're forced to advertise differently, advertise less. What we do in many cases is eliminate the shotgun approach all over the city."

Ten to 15 percent of the staff, mostly in sales and office personnel, has been laid off since Dec. 1, Moran said. He recently included a letter to employees with their paychecks emphasizing the importance of quality service in all operations.

BUT IT'S DIFFICULT to sell consumers who clam up, he said. "When people aren't spending money, they don't come in."

So what's a dealer to do? Birmingham Chrysler Plymouth in Troy is promoting itself on a couple of cable TV systems.

"Rather than focus on the price of the car. basically a half hour program explaining who we are from the service department to the parts department," said Bill Kolath, general manager. "Sales - how we can go about financing a car, used cars. It's really to-

"It (campaign) is something we've had on the burner," Kolath said. "We've been setting up a while. Economic conditions didn't stall or force it.

Listen to Gary Marl, general manager and part owner of Livonia Chrysler Plymouth.

"The key becomes did you take care of them (customers) when they were under warranty. Actually, when you get in a slowdown, you can't instantly get competitive. You begin to tighten a little bit. If you need drastic action, you're in trouble.

Prices for service jobs may be reduced to compete with the independent specialty shops, Marl said. Previous buyers of new cars may receive coupons for free maintenance jobs to get them in and let them know the dealer is thinking about them.

"They do know you can do anything. Maybe you'll get something else," Marl said of spin-off business.

EVEN IF dealers don't, Anwyl said, "Oil changes add up very quickly.

Marl painted a rosier picture than some of his counterparts. "All our departments are slightly up other than new car sales," he said. "I won't feel the pinch as

Investor measures the options in game theory, actual market

By Doug Funke

Steve Wingert, a research associate who intends to pursue a graduate degree in business administration, aspires one day to manage investment portfolios.

And if his performance in a recent mock investment competition sponsored by Wall Street Games of Massachusetts is indicative of success, the 23-year-old Southfield resident has a promising future.

the state in the options division by turning an initial stake of $500,000 in play money plus the ability to borrow another $500,000 on margin into $4.8 million — all in the three-month period October through December.

Wingert won $1,250 in real money for his efforts.

Option investors buy and sell rights to buy or unload the actual stock of companies at a strike price within a specific period of time.

A call option is the right to buy at the strike price, a put option is the right to sell at the strike price. The money received by the option seller from the buyer is the premium.

OPTIONS GENERALLY move at a price considerably lower than the stock, itself. So even small movements in price on options markets It should come as no surprise that present opportunities for big profits

"I made a lot of money on takeover stocks, specifically MCA and Square D, all on premiums," Wingert said of the contest

Wingert sold call options on MCA, an entertainment company taken over by a Japanese firm, and on Square D, an electronics firm subject to takeover rumors. He figured the stock prices wouldn't rise any Wingert placed ninth nationally higher to the strike price and they among 8,000 players and second in didn't. The options expired and he didn't. The options expired and he kept the premiums.

Wingert sold put options on NCR figuring the stock wouldn't go lower to the strike price. It didn't and he kept the premiums there, too.

Wingert prefers to sell rather than buy options in game theory and real life. He developed that strategy after losing big in an early foray into the real options market.

"THE POTENTIAL is for big gains, but if the stock goes in the other direction, stays the same or only moves a little bit, potential is for losing," Wingert said

'If (option) buyers are losing 70-80

Abuse often begets abuse

Child abuse, long considered a domestic nightmare, is costing American corporations $3-$5 billion annually as a result of managers who, once abused as children, abuse their own employees.

According to a report by the Bureau of National Affairs, an independent publishing company, managers who were subject to abusive treatment as children, tend to run their businesses by incorporating the values taught to them by their parents. The report, which focuses on relationships between the workplace and family history, reveals one of every four supervisors often yells at subordinates, unfairly criticizes them or engages in other forms of abusive behavior that serves to undermine productivity

"It's really a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde syndrome where a boss acts like a good guy one day and a bad guy the next," said David Mills, executive director of the Children's Trust Fund in Lansing, the state's largest child abuse prevention agency. "For children who are improperly parented, it doesn't end there. Some kids who were abused as children turn out to be Mother Teresa, but the majority of cases are ople who make mean neighbors, mean drivers and exhibit sharp swings in their personality.'

EMPLOYEES ON the receiving end of managerial abuse tend to be "less creative, take less risks, have more health problems and hunker down to stay out of harm's way," Mills said.

Dorothy Mardeusz Chodyniecki, associate executive director of the Judson Center, a family treatment center in Royal Oak, which runs group homes in Beverly Hills, Lathrup Village, Southfield and Troy, said the problem of abuse at the workplace can be corrected.

"In almost all cases of child abuse, the victim suffers from a self-esteem that has been disintegrated," she said. "At the office, this type of person may become obsessed with having absolute control over everything.

"When that person comes here, we assess what hapened to the individual, what skeletons or ghosts are there, and then we work toward finding solutions, which includes rebuilding self-esteem.

Treatment, said Chodyniecki, can take anywhere from three to six months of weekly appointments, depending on the nature of the problem. Costs range from $10 to $45 an hour, and may be covered by health insur-

Several changes in the car-buying experience were forecast by dealers.

Customers may look forward to having cars brought to their houses erships to shop, Fischer projected.

A more low-key relationship be-tween buyer and salesperson with less negotiation on price and few variables like rebates mucking up the process was envisioned by Marl.

Leasing will become even more prevalent than today, opening the new-car market to even more customers, Moran projected.

To avoid potential abuse problems at the workplace, the study urges employers to become more involved in their employees' private lives, and start programs that can reduce domestic violence and improve performance and productivity.

OFFERING AN example of an abusive boss who suffered from child abuse, the study presented an individual who was a "highly trained, technically competent executive" whose subordinates had difficulty with his management style:

"He constantly changes positions and directions, making it difficult to determine where he stands on issues from day to day; he regularly embarrasses employees by scolding them in front of their peers; and he makes fun of those he considers

Earl added most progressive companies have employee assistance programs to deal with such problems, or falling short of that, he recommended companies or employees seek out a family service agency. He also warned there was a tendency on behalf of companies to look at managers' performance from an efficiency level as opposed to one of human relations. A conservative approach to options actually can be a safe way to invest, Wingert said.

'If someone owned GM stock for 20 years, they could have sold call options (to buy) on shares 15-20 percent higher than the current price and receive premium income every couple of months," he said. "The only risk is willing to part with the stock at a higher price.

If the market price falls to around 19 near expiration, you get the stock at 20 when it's put to you. Granted, that's not as good as 19, but you thought 20 was a fair price, anyway.

"I'd say a majority of investors will invest only in mutual funds or stock," Wingert said. "I think a majority of investors are scared of options, and the reason they're scared is they haven't taken the time to learn about it

"I can sell call options at a significantly higher striking price and earn at least premium income.

"I don't use computer formulas," Wingert said of real-life investment strategies. "I read Investors Daily every day. I spot opportunities with two eyes and a knowledge of math. I'll look at most active options, the most up in price."

Wingert, who came to Southfield via Grinnell College in Iowa, was bit by the investment bug while a student in Atlanta, Ga.

"A division of Junior Achievement called Project Business, a member of the community, came to my school . . and talked about his line of work. He kind of opened my eyes. Just introducing it to me got my blood flowing."

amidst war

By Irene McMahon special writer

An open tunnel of concrete resembling a World War I trench leads to the courtyard of the Red Cross-Red Crescent International Museum dug into a grassy hill opening toward the impressive headquarters of The International Red Cross in Geneva, Switzerland.

In the museum's courtyard stand nine bronze sculptures, human in size, draped and faceless, representing prisoners of war. Above are parachute-cloth flags of giant size. One features a red cross on a field of white, the other is emblazoned with an equally imposing red crescent.

These symbols are the only two recognized by the Geneva Convention. The banners filter the light and reflect many times in the floor-toceiling window glass.

Inside, etched on the stone wall and equally reflective, are words from Dostoyevsky's "The Brothers Karamazov:" "Each one of us is responsible to all others for every-

The museum attempts and succeeds in portraying the need for a shared responsibility for events that shape world history. Exhibits and films speak of a Red Cross not stand-ing in judgment, but offering humanitarian services to all.

It was soon after the battle of Solferino in 1858, a struggle to liberate Italy, that the Red Cross was created. The French and the Piedmontese Italians had become embroiled in a

When businessman Henry Dunant arrived on the battlefield three days later, he found thousands of soldiers unattended and dying of their wounds. He mobilized the local population to assist him in caring for the victims and later returned to Geneva to write "A Memory of Solferino." In the museum there is a white sculpture by the American George Segal called "Henry Dunant writing." He called upon states to "formulate some international principle, sanctioned by a convention inviolate in character, which once agreed upon and ratified, might constitute the basis for societies for the relief of the wounded."

His proposal led to the formation of the Red Cross as well as the Geneva Conventions. In 1863 his "Committee of Five" philanthropists quickly became international. Clara Barton was the first American president of the Red Cross.

The Red Cross has set an international style for the city of Geneva which now hosts not only the Geneva Conventions, but the administrative headquarters for the United Nations and World Health Organization as

Now, to retrieve your luggage. The last bag has been belched up onto the conveyor belt, but yours is nowhere to be found. The fact that airlines successfully deliver vast numbers of checked bags to intended destinations on time doesn't impress you as you stand there, claim check in hand, surveying the empty carousel.

You report the bag missing, and the airline immediately puts a tracer on it. With luck, your luggage will be found and delivered to you within 24 hours. If not, what compensation can you expect?

For actual loss, if the bag cannot be found within a reasonable period (often specified as five days), the air-line's liability is limited to the amount listed on the back of your airline ticket.

For domestic flights it's $1,250 per incident (not per bag), set by U.S. Transportation Department regulations. For international flights, it's $20 per kilogram, or $9.05 per pound, of checked baggage, determined by the Warsaw Convention. That's $1,269.80 for the 70 pounds of allowable free luggage.

These amounts are frequently inadequate. And, to be compensated, most airlines require passengers to list contents of lost bags, with receipts or other proofs of value.

Passengers have little recourse.

Most lawsuits are dismissed, resulting in further frustration.

One notable exception involved a technicality: The check-in agent on a New York to London flight hadn't written the luggage weight on the passenger's ticket. The Warsaw Convention states, "If the baggage check does not contain the weight of the luggage, the carrier shall not be entitled to avail himself of those provisions of the convention which exclude or limit his liability." British Airways settled out of court for a sum substantially higher than

You can take measures to protect against loss. If you know the airline's limited liability won't cover clothing, work-related items or other accouterments, you can buy additional baggage insurance - a maximum of $5,000 coverage per passenger - at check-in time. The cost is minimal. Delta, Continental and Northwest airlines charge $1 per each additional $100 of value, American and United charge $2 per each additional $100 of value.

What immediate assistance can you expect if your luggage arrives later than you do? Although you'll have to ask, even insist, most air-lines reimburse you for necessary purchases. No, you can't buy a new suit. But toiletries, medicine, underwear and, depending on the time elapsed between lost and found, a change of clothing or cleaning ser-vices are reimbursable with sales re-

The drive south from Islamorada is a quick lesson in geography and what free souls can do with it when they love water. There are some elegant resorts, like Hawk's Cay Resort on Duck Key near Marathon, or the resort on Little Palm Island, which looks more like the south seas than the United States.

If you stay on the Overseas Highway, however, it still looks like it did in those old Bogart movies. Marinas cluttered with dive boats and fishing boats. Roadside restaurants that serve fresh seafood on picnic tables. Scores of tiny coastal resorts. Herons on an offshore pole. Barefoot beach lovers at Bahia Honda State Park, one of the very few good swimming beaches in the Keys.

There were only a few seagoing souls here when Henry Flagler built his railway down the Keys in 1912, carrying passengers to his grand hotel and by ferry across 90 miles of sea to Havana. One good hurricane wiped all that out but the hotel is still there, now Marriott's Casa Ma-

It participated first in the Danish War, the Franco-Prussian War and the Russo-Turkish War. It was during the latter that the Turks asked Geneva for permission to replace the cross, which offended their Muslim soldiers, with a red crescent on a white background.

The Red Cross was there during the Sino-Japanese War, Transvaal and Boer wars, Spanish-American War, Russo-Japanese War and the Mexican Revolution.

The movement underwent unprecedented growth during World War I, bringing help to a category of victims not yet protected under the Geneva Convention, the prisoners of war Between wars the Red Cross extended its activities to include social services and relief in times of natural disaster. These are shown in photos and films. A cracked pieta-like sculpture entitled "The Humanitarian Gesture" gives theme to these sufferings.

Set into the floor is a radio-telegram of 21,590 words transmitted in 1943 by the United States government to the international committee of the Red Cross, listing the names of German prisoners of war held in the U.S.

Against the threatening background of a nuclear explosion, two stone blocks project rays of hope for the second half of the 20th century: the 1945 Charter of the United Nations and the 1949 Geneva Conventions.

Also, a glass panel illuminates the 1948 Universal Declaration of Human Rights and includes new provisions for the protection of civilian populations.

TO DETAIL ESCAPES the surveillance of Roberta Campion, the free lance director who for the last seven years has produced, directed and choreographed musicals at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills.

This year she is directing a cast and crew of 85 in the Rogers and Hammerstein hit musical "The King and I." In the script, the King of Siam has multiple wives and 67 children, "but we're not that crazy," said Campion, with a director's appreciation for the logistical headache of having 67 children on stage. She has cut the number to 23 children and 23 wives, still a formidable undertaking to cast, costume and coordinate that many young players.

For seven years Campion has pulled together the myriad details for Mercy's musical productions. Packed houses and word-of-mouth praise prove she has the upbeat enthusiasm to develop the talents of her young cast members as well as the raw endurance to survive the schizophrenic demands of producing and directing a huge musical.

"I work about five to six hours a day on the musical alone," she said, as she ticked off responsibilities such as the program, publicity, photos and logo that she oversees, beyond rehearsing, choreographing and directing the show.

A MUSICAL is a long-standing Mercy High School tradition - a tradition Campion remembers fondly from her days as a stage-struck Mercy student. She danced in "The King and I" in a Mercy High School production and went on to earn a bachelor of arts in theater and English and a master of arts in dance and English at the University of De-

Now Mercy faculty such as Larry Teevens, chair of the Music Department, and Michael Bistritzsky, orchestra teacher, under whom she worked as a student, have become her colleagues. She and Teevens choose a show each year that has numerous plum female roles for Mercy's all-girl-high-school students.

"We like to give more kids more chances to be on stage," she said. Male parts, such as that of the king, played by Pascal McGaffey, are cast in open auditions as are children's parts such as the king's stairstep lineup of 23 adorable children.

"This year," Campion said, "we have kids in the show from 32 schools and 23 different communities. Students have to have a good grade-point average to be cast, so we usually have the best students. Most have a G.P.A. of 3.5 and above."

From her command post in Mercy's 1,200-seat auditorium, Campion oversees a rehearsal as Anna (played by Mercy senior Leslie Erin Gaiser) sings "Shall We Dance" and polkas for the first time in her elegant, tealblue ball gown with a voluminous hoop skirt. Within a span of minutes Campion's comments dart from tips on heightening the romantic tension, as Anna and the king discover their love, to costumes, to musical pacing.

Fine examination of the artist's role

Performances of the Theatre Guild production of "The Road to Mecca" continue through Saturday, March 9, at the Theatre Guild playhouse in Redford. For ticket information call the box office at 538-5678.

By Bob Weibel special writer

The Theatre Guild's season of plays about artists continues with a splendid, thought-provoking production of "The Road to Mecca

It is by South African playwright Athol Fugard, who has written much about racial strife (most notably "Master Harold and the Boys"). While this play is set in his homeland, it tells of a different sort of intolerance. It is about an artist's struggle to remain true to her vision, which puts her into conflict with her neighbors.

Peggy Joyce is superb as Miss Helen, an aging artist whom the community views as something of an eccentric. An early widow, she copes with the inhospitable outer world by creating her own inner world.

Miss Helen constructs weird concrete sculptures of owls, camels and other creatures for her garden which she calls Mecca. And she bathes her small cottage in candlelight - creating what she calls "a city of light and color more splendid than anything imaginable."

ONCE FIERCELY independent, the noncomformist but enfeebled

review

Miss Helen is faced with the prospect of giving up her statues and garden for an old-age home

Trying to talk Miss Helen out of this choice is her rebellious and trou bled young friend, Elas, schoolteacher from Capetown. Pa tricia Jones brings great energy and insights to the role of Elsa. At times, however, her anger boils over into badgering Miss Helen, which tends to make her less sympathetic.

Rick Hudson is excellent as the Reverend Marius Byleveld, the villain in the piece. On the surface he appears a harmless pastor looking after the interests of his flock, which in this case is to get Miss Helen into a home before she hurts herself.

It soon becomes quite obvious, however, that the good reverend is really speaking on behalf of a rigid moralistic community which has no tolerance for Miss Helen's lifestyle. The residents will stop at nothing to rid themselves of the village oddball.

Playwright Fugard and director Rebecca Smith combine to show us that we should not be frightened of free thinkers and look upon them as dangerous. On the contrary, the vision artists bring to the world is to be cherished, even if it doesn't agree with our version of the truth.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

Filmmakers, animators speak

By Dan Greenberg special writer

It's often been said that metro Detroit is a major filmmaking center, and the recent "Update 91" proved

Co-sponsored by Detroit Producers Association and Detroit Area Film and Television and Educational Association, Update brings together filmmakers, students, teachers and film buffs of every sort for a daylong exposure to all aspects of film and video production.

Held for the second consecutive year at Oakland Community Col-lege's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills, Update 91 hosted 150-plus registrants who were treated to presentations by, among others, DPA president Shannon Hammed and her partner, Ron Sen-kowski, a 1981 North Farmington High School graduate.

Their company, Lighten Up Films, currently is completing its first feature film, "Let's Kill All the Lawyers," which is also the first movie to be edited via a new electronic system, the Avid MediaComposer. The partners leave early next month for the Cannes Film Festival's second selection round, in New York.

THEIR PRESENTATION included clips from the work-in-progress, a description of the electronic editing system and considerable insight into the trials, tribulations and rewards of independent film production.

Len Radjewski, president of the co-sponsoring DAFT organization, said, "Update is a fine, continuing tradition, which improves each year It's a terrific opportunity for film-makers and film aficianados to learn what's going on in the film and video

One thousand birdhouses head for the city...

When the 1991 International Builders Home Flower and Furniture Show opens at Cobo Center this spring, more than one thousand birdhouses will be displayed.

Who built all of these houses? Seventh and eighth grade students from 36 area schools were busy this winter hammering, sawing and nailing together homes for eight species of birds. House Wrens, Bluebirds, Woods Ducks, Barred Owls, Great Crested Flycatchers, American Kestrels, American Robins and Tree Swallows will benefit from the efforts of these young people when, after the show, these houses go up in a thousand back yards.

The 1991 Best Birdhouse Builder Contest, sponsored by The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, challenges each young carpenter to not only build a winning birdhouse, but to learn about the bird that will call it "home."

Contestants learned that the American Kestrel is our smallest falcon and that the tree swallow's eggs are white.

The actual building of these houses offered a challenge as well.

If you'd like to get the feel of this project, just follow the directions below and you'll have made a nest box for the Northern Flicker. In order to attract flickers, you should begin construction with 1½-inch thick cedar boards and fill the interior all the way to the top with sawdust; this imitates a dead limb with soft heartwood.

This is not a contest, but if you're really serious about testing your birdhouse building skills, you should have your construction finished by April 1 for the birds to nest.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, You make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals, You give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and You are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with You, my loved One, in your Perpetual Glory, Amen. Persons must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After 3 days your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then, promise to publish this dialogue as soon as the favor has been granted.
Thanks, St. Jude, for favors received.

Rocks reach final 5th straight year

staff writer

Plymouth Salem gets another shot at winning the Western Lakes Activities Association basketball championship, and Plymouth Canton gets another shot at Salem.

The state-ranked Rocks will be host to the Chiefs in the post-season tournament final at 7 p.m. Saturday. Salem, which escaped with a 65-62 victory at Canton on Jan. 29, is 17-2 and the Chiefs 12-7.

In semifinal games Tuesday, Salem advanced with a 77-64 victory over host Farmington Hills Harrison, and Canton eliminated defending champion Livonia Stevenson 54-

The Rocks will be playing in their fifth consecutive championship game, having won in 1987 and 1989, but Salem was upset by the Spartans last year. The Chiefs took their only title in 1984 and, in their only appearance since then, lost to Salem in

"It's the brass ring we didn't get last year," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "We're glad to have another opportunity, and we're glad it's in our

SENIOR FORWARD K.C. Kirkpatrick was largely responsible for the Rocks getting to the final again, scoring a game-high 26 points against Harrison, 13-5. The Hawks will play Stevenson in the consolation game at 5 p.m. Saturday in the Salem gym.

Jake Baker tossed in 16 points for the Rocks, Cliff Lee 10, Eric Stemmer nine and John Hoffmeyer

"When they play a triangle-andtwo, he's going to light it up, because he's a great player," said Brodie of Kirkpatrick, adding he has Division I

"He can do some of the things Jake can do, and he can do some things better. Jake is more powerful, and K.C. uses more finesse. Kirkpatrick scored 11 of his 13 basketball first-half points in the first quarter and helped Salem take a 20-11 lead. The Hawks made a critical mistake in attempting to defense Kirkpatrick, according to Harrison coach Mike Teachman.

"I told the players before the game he was left-handed," he said. "He gets the ball in the post and makes that little circle move to his left, and our guys were jumping out on his right and getting the foul from behind. That was basically our big

SOPHOMORE GUARD Jeremy Teachman, who started in place of Roy Granger, who was ill, had 15 points to lead the Hawks, making all nine free throws in the second half.

Blazo Sarcevich tossed in 12 points, but Harrison's big scorers, forward Andy Smith and center Paul Gilvydis, were in foul trouble and held to 11 and 10, respectively.

Gilvydis provided a counter weight to Kirkpatrick's scoring in the first quarter when he had eight points, and the Hawks closed to 21-17 at the end. But he had only two free throws the rest of the game, and Smith, who also had three first-half fouls, had just three points in the Harrison still managed to keep it close at halftime, trailing 35-31, with help from Duan'te Anderson (six points), Sarcevich and point guard Dan Hight, who scored all eight of his points in the first half.

Once the Rocks, who dominated at the start, got the nine-point lead, Brodie began substituting his play-

"We wanted to give some guys a rest and stay out of foul trouble," he said. "(Chris) Tebben was in foul trouble, Hoffmeyer was on the border line and Jake had to come out

"I DON'T KNOW if it was the inability of our players that enabled the Hawks to close the gap), or they were just putting it in the hole.'

Salem outscored the Hawks 22-15 in the third quarter and all but decided the contest, leading 57-46 going in the finale.

After Jeremy Teachman got Harrison within a point, 35-34, with a three-point play at the start of the third, the Rocks outscored the Hawks 17-4 to build a 14-point lead with three minutes left in the quar-

Coach Teachman was upset with the manner of officiating, which he said allowed the game to become physical, which in turn favored the Rocks and their style of play.

Salem was 9-of-15 shooting free throws in the third quarter, 15-of-20 for the second half and 23-of-39 for the game. Harrison was 14-of-16 in the second half and 17-of-21 overall.

The disatisfaction with the officiating was reflected by the technical foul called on Mike Teachman and two technicals and one intentional foul given Hight.

"You cannot expect players and coaches to stand there and take it when there is no call," Teachman said. "You take the shot and get knocked down and there's no call.

"OUR MISTAKES were not caused by us. They were caused by getting hammered. They were running into us and tapping our wrists, and the officials were watching the flight of the ball.

"If someone wants to criticize me for bad sportsmanship, I have the right to sit down with them and watch that tape. (Salem) is a great team and I wouldn't mind losing by two, and basically that was a twopoint ballgame.

"I'm not disappointed at all," he added. "We played so darn hard and

The much-anticipated dual meet between state-ranked gymnastics teams was not much of a duel Monday night.

Though Plymouth Salem is ranked No. 2 in the state and Plymouth Canton No. 3, the Rocks won the season finale with a comfortable, 64-point margin. Salem scored 142.4, the Chiefs 136. The Rocks are 9-0 in dual meets, Canton 10-2.

"There was no pressure on this meet," Canton coach John Cunningham said. "We're about four points apart, and that's a lot in gymnastics.

We had a good meet tonight, but we can be a lot better than we showed. But so can Salem.

Neither team was at its best Monday, partly because the schools were on winter break last week and some team members on both sides had been out of town and had not practiced.

"You're either going to come back one of two ways," Salem coach Kathi Kinsella said. "You're either physically not going to be prepared, so the mental preparation has to be there. Or you'll just blow it. Fortunately, nobody did that."

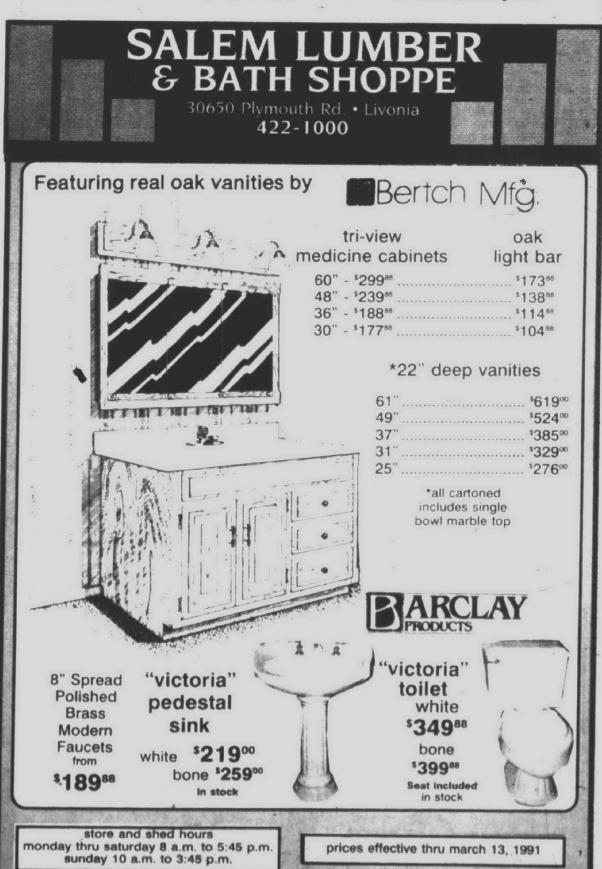

CUNNINGHAM added that Salem has the potential to score around 146 and Canton 140 to 142.

'I expected to be about four points behind, but it ended up being about six," he said. "My kids performed very well for the amount of practice they've had, but that's the problem with having vacation in the middle of the schedule like this. We should be a little rusty. This was not a good indication for either team."

'In a way, it was a chance to see what the other can do," Kinsella said. "In the big meets, there really isn't time to see each other. We always seem to be on an event at the same time."

-Shamrocks miss finals

By Marty Budner staff writer

Like the song, Mike Rodriguez tried to "Put on a Happy Face."

The veteran Redford Catholic Central wrestling coach attempted to take a positive outlook on his team's unexpectedly poor performance at Saturday's Michigan High School Athletic Association Lower Peninsula Individual Wrestling Tournament at the Kellogg Arena in Battle Creek.

But it was tough. "They did the best they could," he

Then, in his next breath, he added, "I thought we'd at least get one (wrestler) into the finals."

Catholic Central qualified five wresters for the individual finals. Only four other schools - Clarkston, East Detroit, Temperance-Bedford and Warren Lincoln - had more.

Although the Shamrocks were shut out of a championship-round appearance, they did manage to pick up three medals. Senior Rob Sylvester took home a fifth-place medal in the 275-pound weight class. Teammates Rusty Fowler (119), a senior who entered the tourney with a credible 51-1 overall record, and junior Dan Kelly (171) each lost their third-place matches and finished fourth.

Junior Dan Rieple (145) and sophomore Jason Krueger (160) failed to

THE MEDALS, however, were of little consolation to Rodriguez.

"No I'm not satisfied at all," he said. "We should have had one man in the finals I think. But, shouldhave, would-have, could-have, that's the way it goes.

"They did the best they could and I can't ask any more of them. I just thought we could have had at least one winner and a couple seconds," he said. "Where we come from, I always expect to get someone into the finals when we come up here."

Fowler won his first two matches then dropped a 6-5 decision to eventual state runner-up Jacob Miller of

After a scoreless first period, Fowler let Facundo escape off the whistle to begin the second period and the Bay City wrestler took an easy 1-0 lead which proved to be the difference in the match. Each wrestler scored a reversal - Fowler early in the third period and Facundo with just 15 seconds left in the final period to win a close 3-2 decision.

"(FOWLER) does that all the time," said Rodriguez of Fowler's strategy to begin the second period. "We spend enough time on our feet that we should be able to take people down regardless of who you are or where you come from."

Kramer, who brought a 36-2 overall record into the meet, went 4-1 during the two-day meet held at the Kellogg Center. Kramer, a senior, was undefeated Friday as he pinned Cedar Springs' Zack Hughes in 4:36 and followed with an 8-3 win over previously undefeated Gary Williams of Fenton.

Defending B champion Ken Buckland of Portland beat the Eagles' lone survivor into the consolation round.

There, Kramer beat Hughes again, 6-5, and pinned Melvindale's Stuart Barringer in 2:01 to take third place.

"It was a great tourney for Jed," Thurston coach Pete Newton said. 'He wrestled one bad match and that's what made the difference. His weight class was the toughest in the state, with three undefeated records. He did extremely well, coming out in third place."

Stafford paces Canton win

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

As the players filed out of Plymouth Canton's locker room Tuesday night, someone offered Mike Stafford a post-game doughnut to eat. He almost turned it down.

The sophomore guard showed no hesitation in accepting Livonia Stevenson's charity during the game, as he led the host Chiefs to a 54-46 Western Lakes Activities Association semifinal playoff win.

With the under-sized Spartans packed into a zone defense, Stafford responded with four three-pointers and a team-high 16 points as Canton earned its way into Saturday's WLAA final against Salem.

Game time is 7 p.m.

We're supposed to throw the ball inside, but the shot was there," said Stafford, who sparked a Chiefs' rally with 11 second-half points. "Coach (Dave Van Wagoner) said at halftime, 'We're up by one (21-20) and we're playing bad.' We just had a bad first half and had to play as hard as we could because we've got more ability and we're in better shape, Canton, 12-7 overall, lost 56-53 earlier this year to the Rocks.

"I WANT TO play Salem again for revenge," Stafford said.

"We knew they were better team," Brodie said. "We looked at the teams they had beaten down the road, and we knew they would be well prepared for this game. We came in with the expectation of a good game, and it took a good effort on our part Chiefs the last time they won the WLAA title in 1984, wasn't concerned who the opponent would be Saturday. Canton got this far by limiting Stevenson's guards Matt Grodzicki and Phil Woods to a combined six points and outscoring the visitors, 14-7, in the game's final five Canton made eight three-point shots, including three in the fourth quarter, and played much of the game without 6-foot-6 center Tony Coshatt because of foul trouble.

Only Stafford managed double figures for the Chiefs, while Jon Paupore and Karl Wukie scored eight points and Coshatt five before fouling out. Junior Derrick McDonald with seven assists and Brett Howell, one of four Canton seniors, led all rebounders with eight.

"We had great seniors then (in 1984) and I've great seniors now, so I'm real excited," Van Wagoner said. 'It seemed like Livonia Stevenson kind of told us, 'If Plymouth Canton's going to beat us, you're going to beat us on the outside shot.' They packed it in on our big guys and we have some guys who can shoot who made some big shots.

"Stafford is going to be one heck of a high school player. He's pretty good right now. He hit some big-time shots and when Mike is open it's usually down.'

STEVENSON, WHICH fell to 12-7 overall, led 38-37 on a Dan Gibbons rebound basket with 6:15 left in the game. A three-point shot by Wukie put Canton ahead to stay, 40-38, and the Chiefs outscored Stevenson, 12-1,

The Spartans had won eight of their last nine games, losing only to Livonia Franklin at home. Colin Stockton led Stevenson with 17 points, including 12 in the second half, and four three-point shots. Gibbons had 11 and Paul Rockwood 10 for the Spartans, who showed no emotion, according to coach Jim McIntvre.

"We didn't have anything going to-night," McIntyre said. "We finally ran into one of those nights where there was no ignition from anyone on the court. It was probably our lowest effort in terms of enthusiasm in 11

"Give Canton credit, but our I'm not sure if they took us to the cleaners, or if it was us. We did not fly at them on their three-point shots, so I'm not sure if he's (Staford's) that good a three-point shooter or if we made him one.

Stevenson jumped out to a 15-9 lead after one quarter and led 20-14 after Stockton's first three-pointer in the second quarter, before self-des-

"I don't know what it was," said Woods. "We're a better team than tonight and we didn't show it. There are so many guys who can score on our team but the whole team struggled, not just one or two individuals. It's disappointing, is what it is.'

Brett Howell wins the struggle for possession of the basketball with Stevenson's Dan Gibbons.

Junior center Chad Varga had 25 points and 11 rebounds Tuesday, powering host Redford Catholic Central over Orchard Lake St. Mary 68-58 in a non-league basketball encounter. Sophomore guard Bob Schneider added 15

Churchill (11-8) will play North Farmington on Saturday in the WLAA tournament and return to Franklin's straight field goals. Churchill led 28-17 at halftime but could only muster six points in the third quarter.

Both teams were stuck in the mud in the third quarter," Price said. "I give my team's defense a lot of credit for only giving up 17 first-half points.'

Senior center Steve McCool led Franklin (10-9) with 19 points, eight coming in the final quarter. Junior guard Brian Johnson and senior forward Scott Bowser added nine points each for the Chargers.

Trenton ousts Churchill from hockey tournament

By Brad Emons staff writer

Trenton's 6-2 triumph over Livonia Churchill in the Class A regional hockey opener was anything but a blowout.

The victorious Trojans (15-6-2) scored three unanswered goals in the final five minutes to oust the Chargers (17-4-1) in state tournament action Tuesday at Wyandotte's Yack Arena.

'We haven't had any breaks all year, it was nice for a change, we were fortunate to win," Trenton coach Skip Howey said. "It was an even game except for the latter part of the third period."

Frustration was the only way to describe the feeling afterwards in the Churchill dressing room.

The Chargers outshot the Trojans, 27-23, and did a credible job of forechecking and back-checking for nearly the entire 45 minutes But the goal that broke Churchill's back came with 4:44 left in the game when Andy Watson, pinned along the boards, flipped what appeared to be a harmless shot toward the net that handcuffed Churchill goaltender Jeremy Niemiec.

THE GOAL pushed Trenton ahead, 4-2.

"He (Niemiec) tried to use his glove when he knows should have used his stick," Churchill coach Rudy Varvari said. "But he (Niemiec) played a good gaine. He made some good saves."

Watson's unassisted effort had a chilling effect on the Chargers, who appeared to be right back in the game after Larry Allen's blistering shot from the blue line beat Trenton goalie Dave Spurr with 6:23 to go. (Colin Gallagher and Jeff King drew the assists to make it 3-2.)

"I told the kids it was going to be a one-period game," said Varvari, whose team was even at 1-all after two periods. "Give Trenton credit. They have good skaters and they're well disciplined. They hit you quick with two goals. They get them in bunches.'

After a scoreless first-period, Trenton's Ken Pierce flicked in a backhand at 6:04 of the second to give the Trojans a 1-0 lead.

But only 50 seconds later, defenseman Tony Dyplowski knifed through the Trenton defense with a couple of nifty stick-handling moves to make

THE TWO state-ranked teams then remained deadlocked into the Dyplowski was called for a tripping penalty with 12:02 to go and Trenton's Steve Nagy capitalized, ripping a shot from just outside the face-off circle. The puck caromed off Niemiec's mask and just under the crossbar with 11:13 remaining.

SHE INVOLVED more gymnasts because it was the last dual meet and also Parents Nights, but those fears were unfounded when the Rocks performed so well. Salem has 13 individuals qualified for the regional meet on vault, 11 on floor, eight on bars and seven on beam.

Canton had fourth place in each event. Johanna Anderson and Kim Rennolds scored 9.1 on vault, Rennolds 8.35 on bars and Heather Murphy, Rennolds and Dawn Clifford 8.5 on beam. Danielle Mirto tied with Salem's Stefanie Angiulo with 8.75 on floor.

Rennolds had an all-around score of 34.5, Anderson 33.85, Murphy 33.15, Clifford 32.65, Mirto 32.6 and Jenny Tedesco 31.35.

"Not that our scores were lower than Salem's, but I thought the scores were low in general," Cunningham said, "The judges wanted to prepare us for regionals. They don't want to inflate the kids' egos with scores they shouldn't have.

"THE GOOD kids will always be good," Kinsella said, "but the background kids like Theresa get left out. I'm real proud of her."

The Rocks will defend their Western Lakes Activities Association title tonight at North Farmington. Cunningham doesn't think they'll have much trouble.

I think Salem is in good enough shape they don't have to look back," he said. "There's nobody chasing them. I think North Farmington will be tough; they should push us."

Kinsella is hoping for good things at the league meet, too.

"I'm hoping we have the highest score of the year," she said. "I know we won't have the advantage of home turf, but I hope coming back off vacation we'll be mentally clear. "Our objective in the next two weeks is not to work hard but to clean and polish and work on the mental preparation. You either have the routines and the tricks or you don't.

"ONE OF THE things they have to realize is you don't win meets at meets. You win meets because of what you do at practice."

Canton suffered its first dual-meet loss Saturday at Traverse City, ending its streak of 23 straight victories. The host team scored 135.1, the Chiefs 134.35 and Freeland 130.7.

Rennolds was the top all-around gymnast with a 35.8 total. Clifford scored 33.3

Rennolds was first on vault (9.0), second on beam (9.2) and third on floor (8.9). Clifford was the winner on beam (9.3). Johanna Anderson placed fourth on beam (8.6) and fifth on vault (8.8) and floor (8.6).

Churchill retains crown

By Brad Emons and Bill Parker staff writers

Livonia Churchill avenged its only Western Lakes Activities Association defeat of the season, spiking city rival Stevenson to win the playoff championship Saturday at Walled Lake Central, 15-0, 15-3.

For the Chargers (38-1-1 overall), it was their fourth consecutive WLAA crown.

"We played exceptionally well all day long," Churchill coach Mike Hughes said.

Churchill ran off 15 straight points against the Spartans in the opening game thanks to three kill shots apiece from Christina Garry and Julie Campau. Teammates Janine Sproul and Keri Hawkins added two each.

Garry, Sproul and Alyssa Belaire all stood out at the net for the Charg-

In the second game, Belaire hadfive kills in eight attempts and Garry added four of seven as Churchill romped to victory.

Hughes also singled out the defensive play of Hawkins, Sproul and Stephanie Speen.

In Churchill's 15-3, 15-6 semifinal win over Northville, senior Amy Baron played superbly despite a heavily bandaged knee.

But it was the play of Garry in the final that had Stevenson coach Lee Cagle buzzing.

"SHE (GARRY) was just unstoppable," said the Stevenson coach. "She was high in the air.

"Our game plan was to establish the middle, then back-set and outside-set, but we didn't block a single ball. They just got the momentum going and we didn't get started.

"It was a great win for Churchill.
The way they played, they deserved it."

Stevenson was riding high going into the finals, having polished off North Farmington (15-3, 15-10), Plymouth Salem (15-1, 15-11), Walled Lake Western (15-6, 15-6) and Farmington Harrison (15-1, 15-5) in

Stevenson, behind the play of senior Laura Zatorski, then bounced host Central in the semifinals, 15-9,

"We didn't make any errors, we couldn't be any more prepared for the final," Cagle said. "But you never know the pyschological or emotional factor that comes into play."

Zatorski, who stood out defensively, also had 17 kills on the day.

Senior Sue Bell led Stevenson with a total of 20 kills to go along with 15 ace serves. Junior Teresa Sarno added 10 kills and 14 blocks, while sophomore setter Patty Diamond recorded 56 assists.

"I THOUGHT we were going to make the finals, but we were inconsistent at time during the day," Central coach Mike Lindstrom said.

The Vikings held first-game leads of 6-0 and 8-2 against Stevenson, but couldn't maintain their momentum.

"They started to roll and we weren't tough enough to hang in there," Lindstrom said. "Stevenson

In pool play, Central defeated Plymouth Canton (15-3, 15-5) and Farmington (15-9, 15-10). The Vikings split with Westland John Glenn (15-0, 15-17) and Livonia Franklin

Forced to play Glenn in a tiebreaker for a semifinal berth, the

The Rockets went an impressive 6-2 in pool play, splitting with Churchill (8-15, 15-13) and Central (0-15, 17-15). Glenn also downed Franklin (15-3, 15-4) and Farmington (15-8, 15-4).

Nikki Wojcik paced the Rockets (11-16-6 overall) with 33 kills and 20 solo blocks on the day. Teammate Kara Beeny collected 19 kills and 10 service aces.

Other Glenn contributors included Kerry Byberg (13 aces serves), Nikki Nagel (29 digs) and Jennifer Massey (50 assists).

"I'm very proud of these girls,"
Glenn coach Linda Jimenez said.
"We set a tournament goal to finish in the top four. We came close. The highlight of the day was the effort we put forth against Churchill."

The WLAA champion Chargers not only had some anxious moments against Glenn, but also struggled with city rival Franklin in pool play.

Down 13-3 in the second game to the Patriots after winning the first game handily (15-1), Garry came to the rescue, serving eight straight points to lead a 12-point comeback.

Churchill, the Western Division champions, reached the semifinals with a 7-1 pool record, defeating Franklin, Canton (15-1, 15-7) and Farmington (15-1, 15-11).

Lensman casts peaceful images in infrared

By Linda Ann Chomin

EDFORD TOWNSHIP photographer William P. Thayer creates black and white, hand-colored images of landscapes and architecture that instill a sense of tranquility in the viewer. From the quiet ruins of an English abbey to the simple architectural space of a doorway in a serene Shaker community, Thayer uses lines, forms, balance, and contrasting lights, shadows and geometric shapes to draw an individual into the striking

Thayer jokingly refers to "a midlife crisis" as being the catalyst that projected him into the world of photography.

'About six or seven years to create his serene, calming photographs, Thayer shoots black and white, infrared film, prints the images on matte paper, then hand-colors the work using "transparent oils that they used to use for portraits."

INFRARED FILM is sensitive to visible light and to red beyond the visible spectrum into the invisible infrared.

Being heat sensitive as well, with infrared film it is possible to photograph seemingly invisible objects by the "light" of the heat they give off. A silhouetted, rocky-mountain at sunset becomes an ethereal, almost impressionistic painting with mountaintop aglow, when Thayer used infrared film for a southwest photograph.

"It's fun to work with infrared," Thayer said, "because it's Thayer's "Water Pot" was shot of a volcano." The water pots catch rain water for household use.

ANCIENT STONE stairs lead the eye upward to the lone, handcolored object: a clay pot in natural shades of brown. A play of shadows and lights, in grays and whites, create triangular shapes that please the eye. Geometric lines predominating the scene provide contrast to the curved lines of the water pot, while complementing each other.

"What I look for in a negative," Thayer said, "if I can get the same feeling (I had) when I was there, the same feeling that came over

The photo, shot in the southwest at sunset, shouts an eerie warning.
"The cactus is back lit and it sort of glows," Thayer said.

A burst of light surrounds the stop sign, drawing the eye to the barely visible lettering, STOP.

THAYER'S SUBJECT matter ranges from landscapes to architecture, but Thayer said "It's mainly architecture, I'm after.

"I did quite a bit of work in the Shaker community," Thayer said. "It has a mystery or quietness about it."

Thayer's black and white photo of a Shaker spiral staircase captures your eye at the bottom of the image. The curves are so strong that they pull the viewer's eye up the snaking staircase. The straight lines of the balustrades contrast the curves of the winding stairs, creating interest and a strong sense of design.

Thaver exhibits his photographs at art fairs throughout the United States at a hectic pace of 25 fairs during spring, summer and fall.

"I really enjoy the art fair, the said. "People will say it's kind of tranquil, or it's peaceful. Sometimes they'll say, it's moody."

Viewing Thayer's images, you are overcome with peacefulne sense of calm that invites you into the world, his photographs create.

Floral carnival set

The Michigan Floral Association will host its 71st annual spring convention and trade show, "A Floral Carnival," March 1-4 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, Dearborn.

A carnival of spring floral arrangements created by the nation's top floral designers will be displayed. Four design shows are planned. More than 3,000 florists from the Midwest will gather to tout their skills, learn about new trends and techniques and shop the trade show. Professional floral designers will compete in a design contest to exhibit the latest in floral trends. The five designers who score the highest overall will compete for cash and the coveted MFA Designer fo the Year title. Floral shop designers will be able to work directly with nationally recognized designers during hands-on workshops.

Industry experts will educate florists on how to build a successful business during business sessions. The trade show will boast 150 exhibit booths.

Tours will stop at floral shops and area wholesalers and greenhouse growers.

The Michigan floriculture industry is made up of 470 greenhouse growers, 30 full-line wholesalers plus specialty manufacturers of floral-related products.

The industry provides 8,000 jobs and contributes $254 million annually to the state's economy. Michigan ranks fifth nationally in sales of floriculture products, according to the Federal/State Agricultural Statistics Service.

More than 540 acres, under greenhouse cover in Michigan, produce $100 million worth of product at wholesale value. Only California and Florida have more covered growing area than Michigan.

The Lansing-based MFA represents 1,100 florists, growers and wholesalers of floral products.

MOST EFFECTIVE on the concert bill was Mendelssohn's "Hexenlied" and Arnold's "Hist!" because Zorn maintained an elevated intensity and managed to project excitement with her animated style. Both songs exhibited her best qualities: her acting ability and the range of her projection.

Every singer depends upon a good accompanist. Gale Kramer is exceptional, always at the right place, with the right shading; supportive, never the virtuoso. Harpist Donna Novack provided the Britten trilogy "Afton Water," "The Winter," and "Leezie Lindsay" with cohesion and rhythmic sparkle.

and "batti, batti," Mendelssohn's "Auf Flugeln des Gesanges," and Copland's "Simple Gifts" were not only beautiful additions to the program but represent the kind of singing she should be doing. They will help her develop the sustaining quality of the melodic line of her voice.

Hopefully, the attractive soprano will continue to develop her opera repertoire.

Learn the business of being

If you're an artist in need of information on turning your talent into an econonically successful business, then plan to attend the Livonia Arts Commission workshop of "The Business of Being an Artist."

Thayer said she currently is "co-curating the 1992 German American Exchange Exhibition where an exhibition by five Detroitarea artists will be exchanged with that of five artists from West Germany."

IN MARCH, Thayer has been honored with the duty of juror for the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair.

initiated the series of workshops and seminars for artists in March 1989. Since that time, guest speakers have revealed information and tips on art topics, which ranged from framing your art to critique sessions.

When I started on the arts commission, I thought we should have someone come in to speak on art - purchasing art, what to look for, buying art to fit not only your budget but your and your home and (buying) something you can live with," Jaye said.

AT THE end of the first workshop, Jaye said, she realized the audience was predominantly artists hungry for knowledge about marketing their work. That is when Jaye contacted the Michigan Council for the Arts and received Nancy Thayer's name.

Since the first artist's workshop two years ago, artists from Birmingham, West Bloomfield, Plymouth, Farmington, Livonia and Canton benefited from Livonia Arts Commission seminars and workshops.

the series of workshops is Canton resident Gwen Dietrich. Dietrich's first one-woman exhibition, "Dogs and Dames," opens Friday, March 15 at Nelson's Gallery in Livonia.

"The workshop helped me to focus and plot a strategy to begin exhibiting and selling my work," Dietrich said.

Dietrich, who works in colored pencil, pastel and watercolor, said the series of seminars and workshops created an opportunity to learn from other artists.

"It helped to listen to the other artists and what their concerns were," Dietrich said.

SOME OF what Dietrich learned from the Livonia Arts Commission workshops included how to compose an inventory list of all her pieces, create a file card catalog on each piece submitted to galleries and establish prices for her work.

"I don't know of any other communities that sponsor workshops where the artist can grow and benefit," Dietrich said.

Therese Jaye concurred with Dietrich "I'd like to see other communities pick up these workshops," Jaye said. "Especially with the (budget) cuts from the MCA, artists will need these types of programs."

At a Livonia Arts Commission-sponsored session last fall, Thayer asked the audience of artists, "What is it you are aiming for, what are you willing to sacrifice for your Jaye said the arts commission preferred that artists planning to attend the "Business of Being an Artist" workshop pre-register by contacting the Livonia City Hall's Community Resources Center at 421-2000.

DSO CONCERTS

Zdenek Macal, music director of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra, returns to Detroit to lead the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in performances of Roberto Sierra's SaSiMa and Mussorgsky's Pictures at an Exhibition

Performances will be 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 28, and Friday, March 1, and 10:45 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. Saturday, March 2, at Detroit's Orchestra Hall.

The orchestra will be joined by violin virtuoso Madori, a Japan native, in performances of Bartok's Violin Concerto No. 2

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will perform "An Evening for America," a benefit concert to assist Michigan families of military personnel in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

Underwritten by ANR Pipeline Co. and co-sponsored by the American Red Cross, WXYZ-TV and The Detroit News, the concert will be at 7:30 Sunday, March 10, at Orchestra Hall.

It is an additional performance of the DSO's Weekender Pops concert already scheduled for that week. Led by conductor Richard Hayman with the Dallas Brass, the program will feature works by George Gershwin, Harold Arlen, Irving Berlin and others. Tickets are $25, $50 and $100.

We are grateful to Pops conductor Richard Hayman and the Dallas Brass, who have graciously consented to perform this additional concert without performance fees in an effort to extend aid to those Michigan families who are bearing the brunt of the war in the Gulf.

'The Southeastern Michigan chapter of the American Red Cross has always provided emergency communications and social services for the families of military personnel," said Robert Miller, Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall chairman.

'Our responsibilities increase significantly in times of armed conflict," said Dr. A. William Shafer, chapter executive director

"Overtures," a group of metro-Detroit professionals organized to support the development of younger audiences for DSO concerts, will hold its fourth event of the season, a brunch at the Detroit Historical Museum, in conjunction with the Sunday, March 17 concert at Orchestra Hall.

The brunch will be at 1 p.m. in the museum's re-creation of 19th-century Detroit streets.

At 3:30 p.m., those attending will move to Orchestra Hall for a concert led by guest conductor Hugh Wolff and featuring renowned pianist Alicia de Larrocha.

On the program are Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3 and Aaron Copland's Fanfare for the Common Man and Symphony No. 3.

The $35 tickets include the concert and brunch. The next Overtures event will be Saturday, April 20. Following the 8:30 p.m. concert, participants will move to Detroit's Clubland for a buffet and dancing

For ticket information for all DSO concerts, call 833-3700

Gardening

It's time to start to think spring

Q. I forced some crocus bulbs this year and wonder if I can dry them and plant them in the garden this fall.

A. Bulbs that have been forced into bloom use a lot of their energy and it will be several years before they will bloom again, if at all. If space is available in the garden, you might plant them and see what develops. The same is true for grape hyacinths and other bulbs.

Q. My paperwhite Narcissus were so beautiful when I forced them into bloom using water as a medium. Can I now plant them outside so that they can be enjoyed another season?

A. Any bulb that has been grown in water has spent all of its energy and it is best to toss them and buy new bulbs next fall. Q. When should I plant seeds indoors to get a head start on the gardening season?

A. Toward the end of this month is fine, just read the package directions. I have found that if started too soon, the plants grow leggy and spindly before the ground has a chance to warm up. Jiffy-7 Peat Pellets are easy to use and can be readily planted in the garden without disturbing the roots.

They also make a compressed growing mix, called Jiffy Miracle Mix, which is packaged in a small box as peat plates, and expand when water is added. The three plates per box expand to six quarts of growing mix.

Q. How do I get forsythia, birch, pussy willows and other early flowering shrubs to flower indoors at this time of year?

A. With a sharp knife take long, 12-15 inch cuttings from a desired branch. Put them in a bucket of water and keep them in a cool (60 F) place in a bright area, and as the buds begin to open, mist them several times a day. When they are blooming, provide 40 F temperatures at night for extended enjoyment. Q. We've been having the "Spring Thaw," what can I do in the garden? A. Check the mulches and add to them as needed. When the temperatures reach 40 F, reapply an in Birmingham antitranspirant on rhododendrons and other broadleaf shrubs to prevent moisture loss. Q. I didn't take care of my garden equipment last fall . . . suggestions?

A. Take lawn mower blades to be sharpened and any other equipment that needs professional attention to the shop now, before spring rush. Sharpen pruning shears, clippers, etc. before it is time to use them.

Santa Claus surprised our family with a Toro Superblower 850. It is an electric model that is a leaf blower/vac/shredder. I'm sure it will make yard cleanup a breeze come fall and help the compost pile. If you wish to order one for a Father's Day gift or "just because," place the order now, because I am told the response to these machines far exceeded expectations. I'll report more about the performance at a later date, but for now, I am

New generation of builders band together to learn ropes

By Doug Funke staff writer

You can learn things the hard way through trial and error. Or you can learn the easy way through the experiences of others.

The New Generation Builders Council, with an emphasis on the second approach, is a loosely organized network organized last year by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan for people new to the business.

They could be builders, developers or suppliers. They may have no family ties to the business or close family associations but not much personal involvement.

Those who think they might be interested in the building industry are welcome. So are seasoned veterans.

We try to provide a more informal forum to learn nuts and bolts of building," said Nancy Bonadeo, a Plymouth building executive in her mid-30s and co-chairwoman of the council.

"We kind of draw a group of people who in some ways wouldn't be comfortable attending large general meetings of the association," said John Bollan Jr., 37, a Troy builder and co-chairman of the council.

Carey Peters, a staff member for the BASM, helped start the council.

"A LOT OF our people are ready for retirement in the next few years," she said. "We need an infiltration of younger people to keep the association going.

'We find a lot of younger builders ... have done field work or were in an office doing book work," Peters said. "They don't know what customers needs and wants are, newest technology, how to supervise subs. That's information they're looking for now.

The council convenes for breakfast about eight times a year. The biggest crowds so far came to learn about plywood and kitchen and bath fixtures.

"We try to have one or two meet-ings a year we call round tables," Bollan said. "It's a cross exchange of ideas, thoughts, questions builders might have who may not feel comfortable addressing a larger group who knows who they are.'

Some third-generation builders, like Bollan, and second-generation builders, like Bonadeo, grow up in the business.

But there's always something to learn, Bonadeo maintained.

"Perhaps it's a disdain from workers on the job you being related to the boss," she said. "It (council) would provide a sharing of common experiences, ideas how one person handled it."

Gregory Benson, 32, is a third-generation builder.

"It's been a pretty fair exchange about what's going on, who's doing what, how sales and traffic are," he said of the sessions. "That's pretty valuable information in our busi-

Then there are the new builders like Carol Lee, 25, of Livonia. She found little fulfillment in inside sales work and as a real estate agent.

Her father, Alex Fedrigo, had built a few industrial buildings as a personal sideline/investment kind of thing, but wasn't even a licensed

THE TWO built a house for Lee, then afterwards, obtained licenses.

She since has established her own building company, Five Star Con-struction, and has built several more

Lee finds the council informative. 'I'm basically going there because it's filled with people who know what's going on," she said. "I'm there to listen. You're in a room with people who do this every day.

"It was strictly a learn-by-mistake thing," Lee said of her initial building experience. "In this business, mistakes cost money so you learn

Simple things that might not occur to a novice like getting trades people on site at the right time can make all the difference in the world, she said.

Robert Hall, manager of the builders sales division for Erb Lumber of Birmaingham, has attended several meetings.

"It gives us a chance to learn about builders' business, meet customers and it gives us a teaching forum as well," he said. "There's a lot to know in this business. Getting the word out is extremely important to

Lee said she's amazed by the willingness of other builders to share information. That will make the industry stronger, bring a community spirit into the industry and make it better in the long run," Bonadeo said. "You may not always want to ask a certain question in front of your competition " Bollan said, "but evrvene is usually pretty open."

"Ti ... a certain camaraderie when you at together," Benson said. "A lot of people are looking over their shoulder. That never bothered enthusiasm that is reminiscent of their popularity a couple of generations ago. And the reasons are the same: A screen-enclosed porch is a pleasant place to enjoy a quiet summer evening.

For the benefits it offers, a screen-enclosed porch is relatively inexpensive to install if a roofed porch is already in place. Aluminum and fiber glass insect screening is available in rolls up to 48 inches wide at local hardware stores and is simply stapled to studs. Many homeowners combine a chair rail Pittsburgh, Pa. 15230. with studs on four-foot (roll width) centers.
