City finance director Bill Graham said it could take 90 to 120 days to have a bond issue sold "and have the money in our hands" to begin downtown renovation.

But Jaeger said that by one bill proposed in the Legislature, bonds for such a project would have had to have been sold by March 1.

Downtown renovation by the DDA plan would be divided into four phases: Phase I, along Ann Arbor Trail and Main, Phase III along Penniman, Phase III, along Harvey, and Phase IV, along Harvey and Wing.

City close to hiring Northville manager

staff writer

After talking contract with city manager candidate Steve Walters last week, Plymouth City Commissioner Ron Loiselle said "I'm 99 percent sure" Walters will be hired.

'We reached an agreement which I committed to, subject to the Plymouth commission accepting it,"

Walters, currently Northville city manager, would start as city manager in Plymouth June 1, by the contract ironed out in three hours of talks Wednesday between Walters,

Loiselle and commissioner James

That contract is scheduled to go before the commission for approval at the 7:30 p.m. commission meeting today, at Plymouth city hall.

After contract talks on Wednesday, Loiselle said attorneys for both the city and Walters would review the document.

While Loiselle would not specify the salary for Walters agreed to by the parties - that salary is scheduled to be made public today - he said, "It's slightly higher than what Gordon's (Jaeger, current city manager) making.

Jaeger, whose contract runs through May 1, is making a base salarv of $59,500 per year.

WALTERS WOULD also serve as part-time director of the Downtown Development Authority, Loiselle said. The DDA plans to implement a downtown street-scape renovation project, to boost business downtown.

DDA members in recent months had agreed to plans to hire a DDA director, at a salary ranging from $30,000 to $40,000.

Walters, when interviewed by commissioners May 9, said he works 60-70 hours per week. "If you like the job, it's not much of an issue," he

The Northville city manager since 1973 said he has an open-door policy, meaning citizens are welcome to speak with him at city hall.

Walters, 46, served 31/2 years as assistant city manager in Plymouth from 1967 to 1970. He left Plymouth to serve as city manager in St. Ignace from 1970 to 1973, before assuming the Northville post.

"It's just a real good professional opportunity," Walters said Friday.

'It's a sobering decision, not a whimsical one

"I think it's right for me at this time," he said, adding, "I'm leaving a lot after 17 years."

Group carves out niche at Moscow snow festival

By M.B. Dillon

Steve Walters

It's doubtful the originators of the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular had any idea of just how spectacular their idea would become for their successors.

For five individuals who befriended Russian carvers and took honors at the city's 1990 festival, the experience resulted last month in a memorable trip to the Moscow International Snow Festival.

Traveling to the Soviet Union were Ice Sculpture Spectacular organizer Pam Kosteva, ice sculptors Kevin Roscoe, Peter Slavin and Michael Green, and Plymouth Police Commander Michael Gardner, who coordinated the celebrity-charity carve-off that launched the Plymouth ice fest.

By capturing the people's choice award in Plymouth, New Yorkers Roscoe and Slavin, and Green chef at Grosse Pointe Yacht Club won the right to represent the United States in Moscow.

Eight countries took part in Moscow's festival, which graced Gorky Park with snow and ice sculptures of heights up to 30 feet. And unlike Plymouth's "art for the moment," the Russian carvings weren't threatened by warm temperatures. "It got up to about 10 degrees in the daytime," said Gardner, "The week before we got there, it was 35 below during the day. It's probably

The U.S. contingent returned home with interesting tales outnumbered only by envelope upon envelope of color photos.

The Americans who competed against other countries placed first, and Michael Green of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club placed first in individual competition,' said Kosteva. Green bested 30 individual carvers from Russia, Estonia, Finland, Britain, Sweden, China and Holland

Kosteva organized the judges at the Moscow festival - an experience she said was "hysterical."

'We'd have a meeting, and I would say something in English. The Soviet translator would translate for the Russians, someone else for the Finnish - the only ones who could understand were

So intrigued were Russians watching American ice carvers at work on their award-winning sculpture (pictured above) at the Moscow International Snow Festival that they climbed underneath ropes, irritating the artists and jeopardizing their safety. Plymouth Police Commander Michael Gardner, after realizing the Moscow police were going to be no help, stood in front of a passing transport truck and succeeded in getting military troops to disperse the crowd.

Journalists from Spanish television, Soviet radio and TV and CBS interviewed Pam Kosteva, Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular organizer who took part in the Moscow International Snow Festival last month.

Amoco landscaping project back on track

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

Amoco Corporation's Howard Miller, spokesman regarding the oil company's abandoned service station in downtown Plymouth, says he's very disappointed the area has not been landscaped as promised.

The station, listed among contaminated sites by the state Department of Natural Resources, was vacated

Miller announced in November that the site at Ann Arbor Trail and Main Street would be landscaped with ledge rock and shrubbery, creating "an extension of Kellogg Park," before the year was out.

I have had a heated exchange with people in the district office. I'm very upset that the landscaping wasn't installed prior to Christmas, said Miller, whose offices are in Chi-

"With people walking the streets and window shopping, it would have been an excellent time to have it done prior to Christmas, and certainly before the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

But due to bureaucracies involved, things kind of slid and slipped in terms of timing."

The delay is due in part to problems connected with a utility pole, he said. Before landscaping, Amoco needed to seal trenches dug as part of a DNR-mandated remediation ef-

When I last checked, back about a month ago, the district informed me that even though to the best of their knowledge the utility pole had been taken care of and things were now ready, the landscaper said a lot of the intended shrubberies were now in short supply

'Moreover, the attrition rate, because it's so late in the season, will mean a very small percentage will survive. Consequently, the decision was made to defer until springtime so we'd have a very good chance of installing healthy plants from a wider array that would be available to us," Miller said.

Jaeger plots steps for consolidating services

staff writer

Steps that the city and township can follow to begin sharing some basic services provided to residents are being identified by Plymouth's city

City Manager Gordon Jaeger said that after discussing shared services with township Supervisor Maurice Breen on Wednesday, "I'm going to put together a report that will have the steps we need to take.'

'We'll look at all of the options, and figure out who's going to pay and how much," Jaeger said.

Discussions on shared services, he said, will be joined by two township trustees and two city commissioners. Jaeger said the plan he's putting together addresses consolidating police, fire, dispatch and emergency services in separate phases.

SHOULD POLICE services be joined, Jaeger said the city and township would need just one police station. The Plymouth Township station is the likely choice.

They have more sophisticated equipment" including computer equipment, he said, adding the city and township don't need two jails.

Amoco to keep landscaping promise

"There's no intention to not do the aesthetics; it's just a question of doing it when we can be ensured a higher success rate."

Miller said he knows of no target date, but that landscaping should be under way once nurseries open in a week or two.

Miller added that because Amoco personnel responsible for the cleanup were unavailable, he could offer no information on remediation.

CHUCK SAN JUAN, district geologist in the DNR's environmental response division, said Amoco submitted a clean-up plan March 8.

"We will review it and give our technical comments as soon as possible," said San Juan, who estimates clean-up of the polluted groundwater and soil will take two to five years, minimum.

"From what I can see, they have made an effort to promote the proper technology. Finally after a number of years we are back on track." The DNR first included the Amoco station on a list of contaminated sites in 1979.

Earlier clean-up plans were rejected by the DNR and affected property owners because they addressed just part of the contamination and failed to define the extent of the pollution. Ralph Lorenz, whose Mayflower Meeting House sits on top of contaminated groundwater and soil, is suing Amoco.

As for defining the extent of the contamination, "if they haven't done that, they're real close. It's one of the things the DNR will be looking at," said San Juan.

Amoco and the DNR agree underground contamination has spread east of the Box Bar, south of the Mayflower Meeting House, and across Main Street to the Mayflower Hotel parking lot.

"The only area we are possibly disagreeing on is the northwest. They allege there may have been a source off to the northwest because one of their wells showed some low levels of contamination.

"We don't believe that point is significant or valid," said San Juan. "Clearly they've had a release there, and clearly they are a responsible party, if not the responsible party."

Amoco has "a number of pumping wells and an activated carbon treatment system that will remove and treat organics from the soil and groundwater so the site can be cleaned up."

Filters, air strippers and other equipment will be housed in what served as the station's service bays.

Complicating the clean-up is the fact that the contaminated soil is largely clay.

"Clay is very porous, but at the same time very impermeable," said San Juan, who's hopeful the site will be under "active remediation by the summer. "It's a very difficult problem because other than physically removing the soil, options are limited.

There hasn't been a lot of success remediating clay soils."

San Juan says he "frankly can't understand why it's taken 10 or 11 years for Amoco to get going on the clean-up. I don't understand that, but we are moving somewhere now.

"Clearly they've had a release

there. Amoco can say what they want, but they're responsibile for cleaning up the site. It's up to them to get it done."

Mike Stenzel, environmental quality analyst in enforcement for the DNR, said Amoco potentially is liable for hefty fines.

Civil penalties could total — for each underground storage tank system — $10,000 for each day of noncompliance with a corrective action order. "Amoco potentially could be liable for all costs incurred by the state for taking corrective action to address the problem, damages for full injury done to natural resources, along with enforcement and litigation costs incurred by the state," Stenzel said.

Amoco has more than 100 contamined sites in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties alone, according to DNR records. "Environmentally, they are one of the worst polluters I've ever seen," Stenzel said.

Microwave oven stolen in break-in

A 74-year-old Detroit man, who over a period of weeks has been moving belongings into his new Plymouth residence, told police that someone stole his microwave oven.

The oven, valued at $205, was taken from his Maria Street residence between March 10 and 13.

The man arrived at his home to find the front door forced open. It is not known whether the door was pried or kicked open, but there are scrape marks near the strike plate on the door jamb. The molding was broken away from the dead bolt, officers said.

The man said he would question neighbors to find out whether they saw anything suspicious.

SCHOOL LARCENIES: Two Plymouth-Canton Community Schools employees reported their purses stolen recently.

An East Middle School staffer told police that sometime between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. March 12, someone removed her black leather handbag from an unlocked cabinet in the gym office.

In the purse was $60 in cash, credit cards, a checkbook and sundries. There are no specific suspects, as the office is accessible to the entire student body.

A West Bloomfield woman who works at Smith Elementary School told police that sometime between 12:30 and 3:40 p.m. March 8, someone stole her purse from a file cabinet in her classroom.

The purse contained an eelskin wallet valued at $50 and containing $75 in cash, about eight credit cards, a checkbook and a $700 paycrime watch check. The woman said the classroom was vacant, unlocked and unattended for periods of time on at least two occasions that day. School personnel reported seeing CAR FOUND: A Plymouth Township man, 52, was awakened at 6:45 a.m. Wednesday by Canton police, who telephoned to tell him they'd found his car, which had been stolen overnight.

The 1986 Mercury Lynx was found near Denton Road, the Plymouth Township police report said. The man told police the car was last seen at his home at 10 p.m. the day before.

WINDOW WRECKED: Nine holes were shot in a half-inch thick 6-by-6 foot window at Quicksilver Photo, 1313 Ann Arbor Road, late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

The vandalism occurred between 6 p.m. and 8:45 a.m., the report filed with Plymouth Township police said.

HOW MUCH DID YOU LOSE LAST YEAR ON NON-DEDUCTIBLE INTEREST?

UNLESS YOU ACT QUICKLY, THIS YEAR COULD BE WORSE.

As you know, Congress has phased out interest deductions on most consumer loans. An exception is a loan secured by your home. Which makes it a great time to apply for a home equity line of credit at First of America Bank-Plymouth.

A Special 20% Interest Discount Offer.

When you sign up for a home equity line by April 15, 1991, you'll receive a 20% discount for all interest you pay this year. If you act now this offer could save you hundreds of dollars in interest.

Put The Deduction Back In Your Interest.

The Federal tax laws allow you to use your home equity line of credit for any purpose you want. And in most cases, on loans all the way up to $100,000, you may get to take a tax deduction.*

Take Advantage Of Your Tax Break.

Get your tax break with our home equity line of credit. You may use this line instead of other loans that are no longer fully tax deductible.

You can also access your credit line simply by writing a check. And the payment schedule is flexible, too.

However, using the equity in your home

However, using the equity in your home is not something you should do without careful consideration. Furthermore, there are some items—like normal living expenses, for example—for which a home equity line of credit is definitely not appropriate.

'Salami' spells victory in area bee

By Julie Brown staff writer

It'd be pretty easy to understand why Sarah Packard might want a salami sandwich for lunch.

"Salami" is the word that won the area spelling bee for Sarah, 12, a seventh grader at West Middle School in Plymouth.

"I still don't really believe it," said Sarah, the daughter of Kathy and Dennis Packard. She was one of 28 and effort studying. students who competed in the event, Wednesday, March 13, in the gym at Our Lady of Good Counsel School in Plymouth.

She'll represent the area at the regional competition next month at Lawrence Technological University in Southfield. Sarah prepared for the area spelling bee with the help of her mom and aunt. She got a list of words and spent considerable time

RUNNER-UP FOR the area spelling bee was Jenna McWilliams, 13, an eighth grader at East Middle School in Plymouth. "Caucus" was the word that created some trouble for Jenna, the daughter of Janet and Bob McWilliams of Canton.

Jenna, Sarah and the other students earned hearty rounds of applause for their efforts and determination. During the first round, the 28 students faced the spelling challenge of such words as "illustrate," "fossil." "audible," "demise," "cajole " and "frugal."

Judges were Jerold Meier, princi-pal of St. Peter's Lutheran Day School in Plymouth, and Ted Behn, principal of Our Lady of Good Counsel School. The pronouncer was Rosemarie Shilcusky, school librarian at Our Lady of Good Counsel.

Fifth through eighth graders competed at the area event. A number of public, private and parochial schools from the Plymouth-Canton area and nearby communities participated.

"It's just to encourage the students to develop within themselves the discipline of spelling," said Michele Hazzard, area spelling bee coordinaand The Detroit News. It includes regional and state competition, leading to the national competition in Washington, D.C.

For spelling bees at individual schools, teachers and coordinators come up with lists of spelling words, said Hazzard, a seventh and eighth grade teacher at Our Lady of Good Counsel School.

Sponsors provide word lists for area competition, although coordinators aren't limited to that list. Use of one dictionary's recommended by the sponsors to make the competition as uniform and fair as possible.

Hazzard was impressed with the abilities of students at the spelling bee. She knows that even in this era of computer spell-check programs, spelling skills remain essential.

'I think that it is still an important skill in our day and age," said Hazzard, a Canton resident. "We're always going to have to write and express our ideas." Incorrect spelling and grammar lead to misunderstanding and confusion about those ideas, she said.

Spelling bee participants were able to ask Shilcusky, the pronouncer, for word definitions and examples of word usage in a sentence. As the rounds continued, more students were eliminated until only Jenna and Sarah remained.

MANY PROUD parents and other family members came to the competition, providing an enthusiastic cheering section for the competitors. Words became progressively more difficult, and included "massacre,"

"chalice," "hacienda," "laborious,"

"melancholy," "cranially," "worrisome," and "centrifuge.

Ted Behn, Our Lady of Good Counsel principal, noticed the students were a bit nervous.

'The first round, they seemed really tense," he said. "After that, they lightened up a little bit."

He was impressed with the students' performance at the spelling.

'They're fantastic," said Behn, a Dearborn resident. "We really had the cream of the crop.'

Participants faced the spelling challenge of such words as "category," "intricate" and "frugal."

Ford Motor donates $10,000 to schools-business program

Students in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools received a $10,000 financial boost last week from Ford Motor Co.

The donation was made to the Business-Education Partnership, a joint effort of the Plymouth-Canton business community and the school district. The program is designed to better prepare students for the world of work while enhancing the community's understanding of the schools.

Paul Pietila, manager of Ford's Sheldon Road plant, presented the check at the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce office last week to representatives from the partnership and Superintendent John Hoben.

With him were Jon Huneke, Mark Blair and John Lankford of the Sheldon Road plant's community relations committee.

"WE MADE an appeal to Ford for these funds. Ford Motor Co. does support their employees getting involved where they have a presence at the local level," said Pietila, vice president of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Business-Education Partnership Leadership Council.

The donation represents support from Ford's salaried and union employees as well as the Blackwell Ford dealership.

Pietila said $7,500 of the grant is a "one-time grant for the pilot program to see if this is something we would like to continue.

Unemployment has risen slightly in Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton, according to the latest figures compiled by the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

January unemployment rates were at 3.6 percent in Plymouth, 4.1 percent in Plymouth Township and 4.9 percent in Canton; up from December rates of 3.1 percent in Plymouth, 3.5 in Plymouth Township and 4.2 in Canton

The increases reported in January were also up from those tabulated in January 1990, when unemployment was at 3.5 percent in Plymouth, 3.9 in Plymouth Township and 4.7 in

Seasonal layoffs coupled with job losses in the state's manufacturing industires caused January's seasonally unadjusted jobless rates to climb in each of Michigan's 12 labor market areas, said F. Robert Edwards, director of the MESC. "The construction, retail trade and service industries, along with state and local education, all reported seasonal employment declines throughout Michigan in January." Edwards

"In addition, the manufacturing industry also experienced declines due largely to production adjustment layoffs in the automotive and related supplier industries," he add-

The state's unadjusted jobless rate climbed by more than a percentage point in January, to 8.6 percent from 7.2 percent in December.

reading test were 44.7 percent of Plymouth-Canton fourth-graders, compared to 36.6 percent statewide.

Among seventh-graders, 44.6 per-cent of Plymouth-Canton students placed in the top quartile in reading, compared to 32.8 percent statewide.

Just over 47 percent of Plymouth-Canton 10th-graders achieved scores in the top quartile in reading, com-pared with 37.1 percent statewide.

Scoring in the top quartile in math were 89.6 percent of Plymouth-Canton fourth-graders and 88 percent of the state's fourth-graders. Seventhgraders in the top quartile in math in Plymouth-Canton numbered 77.1 percent, compared to 73.8 percent throughout the state.

In 10th-grade math, 78.4 of Plymouth-Canton students were in the top quartile as compared to 70.6 percent of Michigan 10th-graders.

In science, 67.3 percent of the state's fifth-graders scored in the top quartile compared to 78.5 percent in Plymouth-Canton.

EIGHTH-GRADERS SCORING in the top quartile in science numbered 51.4 percent in the state, and 67 percent in Plymouth-Canton. Eleventh-graders in the top quartile totaled 39.1 in the state and 46.1 percent in Plymouth-Canton.

Of the nine tests administered to Plymouth-Canton students, district scores were down in seven areas from last year.

Plymouth-Canton assistant superintendent for instruction Michael Homes, who presented the results last week, cautions against comparing student scores, as different groups of students take the tests, and the tests change from year to year. "Kids don't necessarily learn at the same time and in the same sequence," he said.

There's room for improvement in Plymouth-Canton scores, acknowledge district officials.

School board member Carl Bat-tishill noted that "the reading profiles in fourth and seventh grade are in need of assistance." He supports the idea of instructional workshops for teachers - something already in the works.

"Teachers will be able to walk away from these sessions with ideas of how they can approach things differently and be more effective," said

Task force targets violence New programs boost countywide effort

staff writer

Reeling from violent crime, especially against young people, Wayne County has adopted a four-part plan to reduce violence.

The plan includes a new county violence reduction office, a new shelter for battered women, stronger ties to hospital and neighborhood groups and a massive public relations campaign.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara announced the plan Friday, acting on recommendations drawn from a just-completed, oneyear county task force study on violent crime.

The program seeks to change the "ethic of violence" in a county that posts the nation's highest death rate for young black males.

"VIOLENCE IS something that is learned, it is something that is taught," county Prosecutor John O'Hair said.

While reducing violent crime in Detroit is a priority, programs would operate countywide.

Reducing domestic violence is another key goal.

"There's definitely a need, but we'd like to see money go to exisitng programs, too," said Judy Ellis, executive director of First Step, a Westland-based agney that operate's western Wayne's only domestic abuse shelter.

First Step assisted an estimated 2,200 western Wayne and downriver families last year, Ellis said.

"Instead of being treated solely as a criminal problem, to be punished, violence would also be treated as a mental health problem, to be pre-

• Safe Streets - The program would increase cooperation between county health and law enforcement officials and neighborhood watch

 Safe At Home — The program, including the new county shelter, would reduce domestic violence. Financing has yet to be arranged. A shelter site has not yet been selected. Like our homeless shelter (scheduled to open in April) it starts with an idea, " McNamara said. "You heard the idea today."

• Safe Treatment - The program would train county emergency room personnel to better handle child and domestic abuse cases, as well as other violent crimes.

"This would be for hospitals like St. Mary in Livonia as well as downtown," McNamara said. "It happens there, too.

• Safe To Say - The public relations arm of the anti-violence campaign will initially feature public service television spots, beginning in Programs would be coordinated through violence reduction director Alan Tumpkin's office. Currently an employee of New Detroit Inc., Tumpkin has headed private and public programs designed to boost opportunities for minority youth.

Financing for county anti-violence programs could come through a new state fund. An estimated $10 million is being taken from the state prison said.

The death rate for Detroit youngsters 18 and under rose by about 50 percent over the past decade, while the death rate for suburban county youngsters dropped by about 10 percent over the same period.

County health director Bernard Kilpatrick called violent crime "a growing problem" in Wayne County" and linked violence to joblessness, racism and other external factors.

Deputy county executive Michael Duggan, who headed the county task force with Kilpatrick, said the county would move quickly to make programs a reality.

Mettetal recall has many reasons

I would like to express my reasons for being against the purchase of Mettetal by the JOA of Plymouth city and township, and why a recall of some commissioners has been considered by myself and others.

A recall should never be taken lightly. It is my belief that the overwhelming majority of politicians today, including the city council, are good people making a conscientious and sincere effort to do a good job that is in the best interest of the public as they see it.

Why then are so many people in-cluding myself, so distrustful of our government and the politicians that run it? Why recall commissioners who work hard and get paid next to nothing in their effort to make Plymouth a better place to live?

My reason for considering a recall is because of my own feeling of powerlessness in controlling what government requires of me. Every government is an extremely powerful institution that can control every aspect of one's life. Even our democratic government could decide with a majority vote not to allow people of a minority religion to attend church if they weren't protected by the bill of rights.

If a local government tells me it is going to use my state and federal tax money to buy an airport I don't want or need, I feel powerless. I feel that way because if I think my money would be better spent sending my children to college, that wouldn't

If I withhold my tax money because I feel I am more right than you, that wouldn't matter either.

It doesn't matter because the tax collector has the power to take the money from me whether I want him to or not, whether I can afford it or not, or whether I am right or not.

This would also be the case even if the majority of the people in the city voted for buying Mettetal Airport. I have little choice in the matter, only one vote among thousands.

How then do you think I feel when it's only seven people that vote, and six of those seven think they know how to spend my money better than I do? Local government's historical track record for the past 30 years is revealing in determining its efficiency. During that time property tax for my house has increased eight times while inflation increased only four

I live in a city filled and controlled in the main by conservative Republicans. But when it comes to what is perceived to be someone else's tax money, it is spent as if we were socialist Democrats. In my job I try through the power of argument and logic to persuade others to buy a computer from my company to improve themselves or their company, and they can choose to buy or not.

They rightfully have the freedom of individual choice that I don't have when it comes to how my tax dollars are spent. I am forced to take a risk and spend money on an airport that only directly benefits a very few and very privileged group of Plymouth citizens. That is why I feel power-

That federal and state money could be much better spent in places other than Mettetal. For instance, my family and I use Detroit Metro several times a year as I'm sure many other people do from Plymouth. It is probably safe to say more people from Plymouth use Detroit Metro than Plymouth Mettetal. I was at Detroit Metro when it had its most recent accident. That accident may have been prevented if Detroit Metro had ground radar. Tax dollars spent for that would much more likely have a more positive effect on Plymouth residents than money spent for Mettetal.

Engler cuts hurt single housewives

Most people think budget decisions are about dollars. To me they are about lives. Presently I am a newly divorced mother in my 40s with a hefty mortgage and work experience that dated back two decades.

I had been a full-time homemaker for 26 years, raising my two children, caring for my husband and volunteering for school projects. Suddenly I had to find a way to support

I didn't know it at the time, but I have joined the ranks of this nation's displaced homemakers. Displaced homemakers are women who have spent years out of the labor force caring for families, and who lose their main source of income, usually through widowhood or divorce. More than 570,000 of us live in Michigan. Entering the work force in midlife is terrifying and difficult.

Fortunately, I heard about School-craft College's Displaced Homemaker Program. It is one of 11 statefunded programs here in Michigan that provide support, assistance, training and job placement to displaced homemakers. The displaced homemaker program gives women like me an alternative to public as-me gain the confidence, the job leads, and the skills to get back on my feet. It isn't easy, but they are helping me get through not only the divorce, but also the after-effects of brain surgery.

The governor has frozen the funds for these programs and has proposed shutting down all of them. The legislature has reinstated them in their budget, but the governor may still veto them. I dread thinking what my life would like without Schoolcraft's program. I hope no other displaced homemaker has to find out. Diana Kelley,

Concerned Citizens ignorant

To the editor:

I read Mr. McAninch's guest column in your March 4 edition. I then read Mr. Herrick's letter to the editor which appeared on Monday, March 11. I agree with Mr. Herrick. McAninch's group, the Plymouth Concerned Citizens, are ignorant. This goes for the whole bunch. How can McAninch say there's contamination at the airport when he admits he hasn't even seen the studies yet? He just jumps to these utterly ridiculous conclusions like the rest of his garbage. He also forgot to mention the fact that the sale won't even go though if the environmental experts don't approve. This was brought out during the commission meeting and he was there He always leaves out facts if it doesn't help his propagan-

If you read Mr. Herrick's letter you will find out who is really being honest with you. If you haven't read it, I urge you to go and get another paper. The truth has to come out some day. Mr. Herrick helps.

This small loud-mouthed group of poem.

people who want to put their noses in our business also brought around some propaganda and left it on my door trying to get donations. Never. They couldn't even tell the truth in the hand out. You ought to hear him and his honchos whine and complain at the commission meetings, what a bunch of nincompoops. Now, we've lost a good mayor because of them.

I am 75 years old and I've lived here over 20 years. Some of them say they've lived here even longer. I've never heard of them before. What have they ever done for Plymouth all the time they've lived here? Nothing. I respect my city commissioners, some of who I've know for many years, and I believe in them. Just look at all the things the Childs, Bilas, Kenyons, Jabaras, Loiselles, Voses and even Vorva have done City commissioners 100, Plymouth Concerned Citizens 0.

War poem touched family

Just yesterday I received a letter dated Feb. 9, 1991 from a serviceman pen pal of mine and my daughter's. Enclosed was a poem he had written in October 1990 which has since been published in the overseas newspaper "Stars and Stripes." We thought it was an excellent poem and would like to share it with the community.

Spc. Adam Rothas is 26 and is in Saudi Arabia. He is a turret parts repairman on tanks and other fighting vehicles. He is married. Also he has two sisters who are officers in the Army - one of which was flying an OV10 Mohawk over in Saudi Arabia.

We've been writing to him since September 1990. My daughter attends Miller school, is 9 years old and in 3rd grade. Her name is Laura. Thank you for your kind attention, and we hope you decide to share his

A Line In the Sand What a wonderful day for a war, And anyone can play. Tis the reason armies from the world round, Are gathered here today. They come to face the tyrant,

On land and seas and skies. And all the while he prepares, And mixes truth with lies. "The land the holds is Holy." So the Arabs tell us so. Though the land seems holier still, Where the precious oils flow. He tells his people their cause is just, It's the foreigners who are wrong. And all the world rolls its eyes, As he sings the Ancient Song. The Embargo takes firm hold, It's his people who pay the price. He assures them of victory, As they live on rats and mice. The camels ignore the tanks And the men who ride inside. Their ancient eyes are mocking In their camelish ride. For thousands of years they have

Armies in this land. Men with rocks and swords, And now rifles in their hands. The men smile and nod, For they know the camel's fate. To end up in a zoo, Or on a Saudi plate. The smile fades for the men know Their own fate as well, If war breaks out the Desert will, Become a pit of Hell. Even so the men stand guard, A line in the sand. And here they stay until such time

Engler says he'll address inequity in school funding

staff writer

School officials got some good news from Gov. John Engler's 1992 budget proposal, but they're waiting for the other shoe to drop.

This spring I will deliver a special message to the Legislature that addresses the disparity in funding per pupil between dis-tricts," Engler said in his budget message.

It remains to be seen whether Engler's other shoe means raising the floor - lifting districts which spend as little as $2,500 per pupil or lowering the ceiling quiring suburban districts to share growth in business taxes.

Two key lawmakers are strongly committed to tax base sharing and vow they will get it. Sen. Dan De-Grow, R-Port Huron, and Rep. James O'Neill Jr., D-Saginaw, say a tax increase is impossible.

They want prospering areas to share half their growth in commercial and industrial property taxes statewide. That would impact suburban districts in Oakland and Wayne counties more than anywhere. DeGrow, who is politically very close to Engler, heads the Senate school appropriations sub-committee; O'Neill heads the House school money panel.

ENGLER'S GOOD news was 4 percent state aid increases for public schools and nearly 4 percent for community colleges and universi-

The hike for schools is on top of picking up increased pension costs. Trustees at a Michigan Association of School Boards convention two weeks ago were fearful the 4 percent hike would include pensions.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS of the 1992 budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1:

• Revenues are expected to rise 5 percent to $8 billion. His property tax cut will cost more than $500 million, leaving $7.5 million for all other general fund expenses. Overall spending will be up 4.4 percent. He's banking on economic recovery beginning in the second quarter of

• Non-education programs are cut 6.7 percent in what he calls a permanent "rightsizing" of state government.

 The Legislature should act to eliminate a scheduled 4 percent pay increase for state employees due Oct. 1. Otherwise, 2,900 jobs will have to be eliminated.

· Arts funding is out except for a small amount in the Commerce Department budget. Grants to the Detroit Institute of Arts, Detroit Symphony and many outstate "equity" programs would go.

• General assistance to 90,000 adults without children would go. ADC welfare benefits would be held so that Michigan's ranking would drop from 10th to 12th or 13th among the 50 states.

· Parents on welfare would lose part of their benefits if their children quit school - a plan he calls "learnfare."

 Prison spending would rise 3.5 percent. An unspecified number of unnamed prisons would be closed. Resources would be stretched by double-bunking of many more prisoners.

• The budget for fiscal 1990, which ended last Sept. 30, actually was $300 million in the red, not balanced as former Gov. Blanchard had boasted.

U-M research team to study stress

A team of University of Michigan researchers has received an $8 million federal grant to undertake the most extensive study ever on the relationship between stress and health.

An estimated 12,000 people will be interviewed by the U-M Institute for Social Research as part of the na-

Interviewees will be asked about three types of stress: acute major stress, resulting from factors such as job loss or death of a loved one; ongoing "role-related" stress, caused by work difficulties; and lifetime trauma, including combat experience, natural disasters or death of parents at an early age.

Respondents will be asked about their physical and emotional health and utilization of health services.

Researchers will try to gauge the association between stress and chronic nightmares, high blood pressure and arthritis

Arrival of spring relates to sun, celestial equator

Spring officially arrives for the northern hemisphere at 10:02 p.m. Thursday, March 20.

The official start of spring often puzzles people. What does exactly determine the precise moment? The answer is the position of the sun with respect to a line called the celestial

The earth's equator is a line that divides our planet into a northern and southern hemisphere. When this equator line is extended out into space it's called the celestial equator and it divides the sky into two hemispheres as well. Earth orbits the sun, but our planet's axis is tilted 23.5 degrees so the sun may appear as much as 23.5 degrees above or 23.5 degrees below the celestial equator.

In June the sun is at its highest above the equator, because the earth's northern hemisphere is tilted its most toward the sun, and we have

. In December the sun is at its lowest point and we have winter.

Obviously there are two points where the sun's pathway crosses the celestial equator. When the sun is traveling from its low point toward its high point, it crosses the celestial equator moving from south to north. The precise moment the sun crosses that line is the official start of

THE POINT of crossing is the vernal equinox. Vernal is the Latin word for spring and equinox means 'equal night.' The length of the day is nearly equal to the length of night during this time. On the vernal equinox the sun rises due east and sets due west. We are rather shortsighted in calling it the vernal equinox. We may be starting spring in the northern hemi-sphere, but the people below the equator are starting autumn.

Jupiter, Mars and Venus are within 90 degrees of each other on the evening of the 21st. These three planets will continue to get closer to each other during the next three months, and they will form a spectacular grouping on June 23.

The moon, approaching First Quarter phase, is three degrees above Mars on the evening of the 22nd. First Quarter phase is officially at 1:03 a.m. on March 23rd. The moon has completed the first-quarter of its orbit around the earth. On the evening of the 23rd, the moon is in the constellation of Gemini, approaching the twin stars Castor and Pollux. (Castor is above Pollux.) On the following evening, a straight line drawn from Castor through Pollux runs directly into the moon. Jupiter is the bright "star" to the east (left) of the moon

The moon is near Jupiter all night on the evening of the 24th and will be below and to the left of Jupiter on the evening of the 25th.

The moon is in Leo the lion on March 26, approaching the bright star Regulus (REG u lus), the 'heart" of the lion.

On the next evening the moon has moved below that star. Mercury is at maximum elongation (greatest apparent angle) from the sun on the evening of the 27th. Mercury is 19 degrees east (left) of the sun and very well placed for seeing. This will be the best evening appearance of Mercury for the entire year.

Venus is easy to see, 24 degrees above due west; Mercury is slightly north (right) of due west and 10 degrees above the horizon, 45 minutes after sunset. Observe Mercury with a telescope from night to night and watch as it goes through phases like the moon! Venus and Mars are 45 degrees apart on the evening of the 28th. In three months they will be within one-quarter of a degree (half of a full moon diameter) of each

FULL MOON occurs at 2:17 a.m. on March 30. The moon will rise in the east, on the evening of the 29th, as the sun sets in the west and be visible all night. The moon is fully lighted by the sun, hence the name. Jupiter is stationary on the evening of the 30th. The planet has been drifting westward through the stars of Cancer and, after tonight, will seem to reverse direction and move eastward from night to night. Jupiter doesn't actually change the direction it is moving, the change is an optical illusion that occurs when faster moving planet earth passes

Jupiter is about 3.5 degrees to the west (right) of a star cluster called the bee hive, so named because the stars resemble a swarm of bees seen through a telescope. To the naked-eye the beehive star cluster looks like a fuzzy patch of light.

Look in the east southeast, two hours after sunset, on the evening of the 30th. The moon is back in the constellation of Virgo, approaching the star Spica once again. On the following evening, the 31st, the moon rises 10 degrees directly below Spi-

EASTER is on March 31 this year, but next year it falls in April. Determining the date of this very erratic holiday is not as difficult as you may think. All you need to know is the phase of the moon and a few rules.

The ground rules for determining Easter were set up in the year 325 A.D. when the Emperor Constantine called for a Council at Nicea for the purpose of calendar reform.

Based on the advice of his Christian council, he decreed that Easter would be observed on the first Sunday following the first full moon that occurs after the vernal equinox (the start of spring). The reason for choosing the full moon, rather than the new moon, was so persons making a pilgrimage to the Holy Land could travel at night by the light of the moon.

Since the start of spring occurs on March 20 or 21, the earliest Easter can be is March 22. But now we have to consider the inevitable exceptions to the rule. If the first full moon to occur after the start of spring falls on a Sunday, then the following Sunday is Easter. If the full moon happens to be on the same day as the vernal equinox, then the April full moon is used. If the April full moon falls on a Sunday, the following Sunday is Easter unless that date is later than April 25, which is the latest date Easter is permitted to fall. If that Sunday does fall after the 25th, then the previous Sunday, the one with the full moon, must be used.

So all things considered, Easter can come as early as March 22, which it last did in the year 1818 and will again in 2285, or as late as April 25, which it did in 1943 and will again in 2038.

This year Easter Sunday is March 31, which is just one day after the full moon. Now, wasn't that simple? Raymond Bullock is the former coordinator of the planetarium and observatory of the Cranbrook Institute of Science, Bloomfield Hills. He now works for a Troy company which specializes in laser displays and special effects.

Beans are special in cooker

Since I have rediscovered the joys of pressure cooking, beans have taken precedent in the Janes Gang kitchen and end up swimming in soups, basking in burritos and getting rehashed in refried bean dips.

For the longest time, beans were considered a peasant food. The only time Momma made them was after a baby shower or funeral when there was a leftover ham bone to cook with. Aunt Phyllis always had a magical touch with a crust-ladened baked bean casserole embodied with brown sugar, ketchup, onions and enough bacon to harden King Kong's arteries. Then there was something called chili which lacked the va-va-va voom, probably because it had more of those canned red kidney beans than any other ingredient. Other than that, our exposure to legumes came from the buffet line at the local all-you-can-eat emporium.

One of the reasons I never came to know beans was the most basic reason that everyone agrees with: time. In order to make most good bean dishes you start with dried beans and they have to be soaked and washed, and picked over and soaked again. Try to cross off a whole day to wait for beans. When I want to cook I want to cook now. Not tomorrow

THEN, OUT OF the blue, I get this new pressure cooker. With it comes a book by Metro Detroit's grande dame of culinarianisms, Toula Patsalis, now spreading the word that I can make black bean burritos in 30 minutes or less using a pressure cooker. Saints be

Now, the March 1991 issue of Gourmet magazine brings forth another reason, for those of you still scared to death that a pressure cooker will explode and blow your armpits off. This is called "the quick soak dried bean method" and is explained in detail. In a nutshell, simply rinse and pick over the beans and cover them with enough cold water to cover by two inches. Bring them to a boil and boil for two minutes. Remove the pot from the heat source, cover and soak for one

Beans are second only to grains as fuel for the human body and have recently been proclaimed by medical researchers to be a nearperfect food. Well, almost as near-perfect as you can get. I guess, mainly because those flageolets bring with them a great desire to reek havoc with one's digestive system bringing forth undeniable flatulence. (That's fancy writing for beans bring on gas).

The folks at Akpharma in Pleasantville, N.J., have developed a new product called Beano. What we're looking at here is an enzyme derived from food grade mold that works on complex sugars, breaks them down to make them more digestable and, in the long run, lowers the power of the gas in dramatic proportions.

Four or five drops of this new miracle additive sprinkled over your gaseous foods (not just beans but broccoli, cauliflower. cabbage and the like) and the ability to propel is literally aired out the window. The manufacturer says any store should have it but the product is most noticeable in health food markets. Suggested retail: $1.95 for a 12-serving jar, $8.95 for a 75-serving jar

Isn't technology wonderful?

Dora Higbie of Beverly Hills enjoys molding and decorating chocolate for Easter.

These are some of Higbie's creations. She melts store-bought pellets of coating chocolate and then uses candy molds.

Making molded Easter candy

By Phyllis Kreger Stillman special writer

HE CANDY in the stores around Easter is a child's fantasy - ornate chocolate baskets filled with small candies; molded chocolate bunnies, chickens and lambs; chocolate Easter eggs decorated with colored chocolate. All of it looks intricate and difficult to make.

Dora Higbie of Beverly Hills has been making chocolates for years, She says molding and decorating choco-late isn't nearly as hard as it looks. "I do it for fun. It's a very relaxing hobby for me.

Chocolate is, in fact, a family tradition. "My mom made hand-dipped chocolates and all kinds of things like this when we were growing up. I guess that's where I got it," she says.

Higbie starts with pellets of coating chocolate bought at candy supply houses or kitchen stores — her favorite is Kitchen Glamor in Redford. The chocolate comes in white, milk and semisweet, along with white chocolate which has been tinted many different colors. (You can color white chocolate yourself, but you must use special coloring agents which are not water based.)

THE CHOCOLATE is melted, over low heat, and molded into different shapes, using candy molds. Hig-bie has hundreds of molds in all different types and sizes, ranging from tiny chickens to big bunnies and baskets. "I collect molds everywhere I go," she said.

You don't have to buy molds, though. You can mold You don't have to buy molds, though. You can mold chocolate in things you have around the house. You could use a plate, for example, to make a chocolate plate to serve dessert. You could use mini-muffin pans to make chocolate cups for after-dinner liqueurs. When looking around the house for things to mold chocolate in, choose plastic because you can twist plastic and the chocolate is easier to remove once its set.

Before you mold the chocolate, you can add nuts, crisps, or flavoring oils like peppermint or raspberry. "You can do whatever you want with chocolate. It's very versatile," Higbie says.

Chocolates can be made either solid or hollow. If you ocolates can be made either solid or hollow. If you want to make a hollow bunny, pour chocolate into the mold and let the outside shell harden to the desired thickness, then pour out excess chocolate.

One nice thing you can do for Easter is to fill a large, hollow shape, such as a bunny or egg, with tiny molded chocolates or other candies. Make a hollow front and whatever candies or treats you want to the middle, and then glue the front and back together using small quantities of the same shade of chocolate.

THE FUN PART, for Higbie, is painting and decorating the chocolates. Molds may be painted with colored chocolate before the milk, dark or white chocolate is poured in. Using a small paintbrush, you can paint different colors over different portions of the mold.

Higbie demonstrated using a chicken mold. She melted several different colors of chocolate in custard cups placed in warm water in a frying pan. Using the empty mold, she painted the feathers with yellow chocolate, the grass with green, and the beak with red. After the colored chocolate set (since it was a thin coating, it only took a few minutes), she filled the mold with milk chocolate and put it in the refrigerator to

Another way to decorate chocolates is to paint mo ed chocolate after it has set. Instead of the smooth, glossy finish you get when you paint the mold first, the finish is rough and textured. Higbie likes the results. "It looks more realistic, not so smooth."

If you want to get really fancy, you can allow the colored chocolate to cool, to about the consistency of frosting, and use a pastry tube to pipe on flowers, stars, or whatever shapes you can think of.

Food's all-American at Machus Red Fox

Chef Leopold of Machus Red Fox makes a flaming dessert, bananas Foster.

At odd moments, the craving for a certain brand of ethnic food overcomes us. We can't live another day without comfort food - good old expenseaccount-style American cuisine done best by places like Machus Red Fox in Bloomfield Town-

The menu favors beef, the white tablecloths are spotless, the service is generally faultless, and the decor is relentlessly red and horsey. The Red Fox's walls are covered with murals and pictures of red-coated lords and ladies in pre-and-post-hunt, along with individual horses

After 25 years, the full-tilt hunt club setting still works, given Machus' solid food and wellbred tradition.

With some of the elite restaurants resorting to more casual and less expensive dining, Machus Enterprises is decidedly determined to hold on to the formal, exclusive - and expensive - end of the business. Its longtime customers like the tradition - the respectful service and the none-toodaring menu. Others see the Red Fox as a place to celebrate a special occasion, a place to be don't feel like dressing for dinner, don't bother with the Red Fox. Suits and ties are a must.

EXPENSIVE IT IS, with lunch entrees averaging about $13 (aside from the $7.25 burger or sandwiches) and dinners priced in the $30-$35 range. With drinks, appetizers, desserts, coffee, the tab quickly runs much higher.

Although the management says that seafood entrees are most popular, the Red Fox offers more red meat than you can find almost anywhere other than a steak house. From Chateaubriand to London Broil, from sauteed tenderloin tips in a Bordelaise sauce to Tournedos Oscar with Bearnaise sauce, Machus knows how to treat beef

We found the Beef Paillard, sirloin that was pounded thin, seasoned (lightly) with pepper, grilled and topped with butter and crisp onion rings to be well prepared and delicious. For a sweeter taste, an entree featuring a shrimp and leek sauce poured over beef medallions was good.

Seafood entrees include excellent Dover Sole, rainbow trout and the ever-popular cold water, broiled lobster tail, priced at $32.50 for an 8-10ounce tail. A dinner favorite is rack of lamb pampered if only for a few hours. Indeed, if you cooked with herb-flavored bread crumbs ($27.50).

The Machus salad is a tradition of its own. mixture of greens, it is always served icy cold, tossed in the restaurant's special creamy and sweet salad dressing and topped with bleu cheese, bacon bits, purple onions, cherry tomatoes and a little fresh ground pepper. Delicious and distinc-

Making molded candy

Cocolates aren't, of course, the only kind of candy you can make at house. Fudge is an old favorite that sy to make once you know a few

When making fudge, you must use cane sugar (like Domino's). The fudge won't set if you use the more common beet sugar. You also should heavy pan, so the fudge won't stic or burn though using a candy thermomis easier and safer, it is possible to make fudge without one. You can tell when the fudge is getting close to the right temperature because the mixture gets thicker, and the boil becomes tighter and lower in the pan. You can then check to see if it's ready, using the soft ball test: Drop a spoonful of the mixture into a cup of water. If, while still in the water, the drop of fudge can be formed into a soft, pliable ball using your fingers, it's ready.

ter the fudge has cooled, you need to beat it until it's ready to put into the pan. When you start stirring the ludge, it will be a glossy mixture. As you continue to stir, it will get very thick and hard to stir and eventually lose its glossy appearance. When it does, immediately put it into a greased pan, shaping with your hands if necessary.

There are some shortcuts. Cooling time can be cut by putting the pan of fudge in cold water. Stirring the fudge can take a lot of time, and energy. If you don't have the patience, just pour the fudge into a greased pan. If it was meant to set, it will do so without stirring.

Along with a recipe for fudge, we're including a few other easy candy recipes.

This recipe is pretty much foolproof and - since you don't have to wait for it to cool before stirring it's quick.

Herbs spark roast beef

AP - With just a few herbs and spices, you can turn basic roast beef into a boldly flavored, company-special entree. To release the heady aroma and flavor of whole herbs and spices, crush them just before using. You can rub herbs in your fingers after measuring, but you will need a spice grinder or mortar and pestle to crush seeds and peppers.
In the recipe below, crushed fennel seed, mustard seed and peppers combine to make a flavorful rub-on coating for roast beef. Serve thin slices of the roast with creamy mushroom-mustard sauce, boiled new potatoes and steamed green

> SPICED ROAST WITH DIJON SAUCE

½ teaspoon fennel seed 1/2 teaspoon mustard seed

12 teaspoon whole black pepper One 21/2-pound boneless beef round rump roast

1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms 1 tablespoon margarine or butter 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour ¼ teaspoon salt

2 tablespoons coarse-grain brown mustard 1 teaspoon snipped fresh chives

1 cup milk

Using a mortar and pestle, crush the fennel seed, mustard seed and pepper; set aside. Trim excess fat from meat. Place roast, fat side up, on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Rub half of the seed mixture over the top and sides of the roast. Insert the air is one of change as the weather swirls around us, coyly leading us on with spring-like weather one minute followed by freezing cold the

It's no wonder that people get edgy at this time of the year, waiting for winter to end and spring to cut loose and finally free us from the confines of our homes. On a personal level I have noticed that even the dinner hour at our house mirrors this wacky month, as lately the boys have been observed roaring into the kitchen like hungry lions and coming out like lambs

This week's Winner Dinner, submitted by Eleanor Miller of Rochester Hills, offers a delicious dinner menu that promises to spice up your life and help combat the blahs. So stash the pork and beans for another meal, be as unpredictable as the weather and surprise your family with - pork and prunes. Served on a bed of white rice, specially seasoned, baked pork chops topped with spiced prunes promises to add variety as well as fiber to your life. Beer bread, hot out of the oven, steamed green beans and vanilla ice cream with homemade hot fudge sauce complete this tasty meal that is surprisingly quick and easy to put together.

Married and the mother of three almost-grown children, Miller is a kindergarten teacher at University Hills elementary school in Rochester Hills. She loves teaching and especially enjoys interacting with her young charges, who are open and dynamic. Her eldest daughter has followed her footsteps and is teaching in Houston, Texas. Her middle son is a cadet at West Point and her youngest son recently became an Eagle scout and is planning to go to the World Jamboree in Seoul, South Korea, this summer.

In her spare time, Miller does needlework and gardening and collects primitive antiques. As a working mom, she prefers to plan ahead and prepare as many meals as she can on the weekend for the upcoming week, making her life a lot more organized and streamlined.

Thank you, Eleanor Miller, for sharing your delicious recipes with

BAKED PORK CHOPS WITH SPICED PRUNES

The sweet and sour taste of the spiced prune sauce adds to the flavor of the pork chops. This dish can be assembled in advance, baked and, in the case of the spiced prunes, reheated before serving. This recipe serves

1/4 cup ketchup

2 tablespoons lemon juice 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce 6 pork chops (or pork loins) 1 small onion, sliced

1/4 cup hot water Combine ketchup, lemon juice, mustard and Worcestershire sauce and rub into both sides of the chops. Brown in a small amount of hot oil. Top with the remaining sauce and onion slice. Add water. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 1-11/2 hours. Serve on a bed of hot rice and garnish with spiced prunes.

SPICED PRUNES

- 1/2 pound dried prunes, pitted 11/2 cup water
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon 3 whole cloves
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar

Simmer the prunes in hot water for 30 minutes or until they are tender. Add the remining ingredients and cook slowly for 10 minutes or more. Serve over the cooked chops.

BEER BREAD 3 cups self-rising flour 3 tablespoons sugar 12 ounces beer

Combine all the ingredients in a large bowl. Add the beer and stir only until the ingredients are mixed. The beer will toam while stirring. Spoon into a greased 9by-5-by-21/2-inch loaf pan. Bake in a preheated over at 325 degrees for 50-60 minutes, or until the bread is lightly browned. Cool slightly before slicing. This recipe yields 1 loaf.

CHOCOLATE SAUCE 1 cup sugar

3 tablespoons cocoa 2 tablespoons flour, rounded

Dash of salt 1 cup milk

1 tablespoon butter 1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine all the dry ingredients in a saucepan. Add milk slowly, stirring to blend. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly and bring the mixture to a boil. Continue boiling for 2 minutes. Remove the pan from heat. Add butter and vanilla. Serve warm or cold over ice cream. Refrigerate the remaining sauce.

Munch the crunch that's found in nuts

actually the dried fruit of a tree. To get really technical, peanuts are legumes, not nuts, and are relatives of beans and peas.

In many places, peanuts are called "ground nuts" because they grow underground, while true nuts come quifrom trees. Brazil nuts and cashews dioare really seeds from inside fruit. Confused? No matter what you call them, they are important. Nuts contribute rich flavor and crunchy texture to many kinds of foods and are great nibbles on their

Nuts are a source of incomplete protein but, added to dishes containing grains or dairy foods, they become a good source of complete protein. Nuts are a good source of vitamin B-6 and some minerals, but they also can be very high in fat.

USE ONLY fresh nuts in baking. To check for freshness, sniff. Any odor indicates rancidity. The high fat content causes rancidity. This means they have been improperly stored.

All varieties of nuts taste better if the skin is removed and they are toasted in the oven before adding to

To toast shelled nuts, place them on an ungreased cookie sheet and toast in a 350-degree oven from three to 10 minutes depending on the size. Watch carefully, and turn frequently to avoid scorching.

Toasting also can be done in a heavy pan on top of the stove. Use a little oil in the heavy pan, add nuts, heat slowly 10-15 minutes until lightly browned, stirring frequently.

TO MAINTAIN best eating quality, nuts need protection. A nut will keep longer if kept close to its original form.

Nuts in the shell retain higher quality than those shelled, and nuts left in their skins keep better than skinned. Nuts that are whole last longer than those chopped; unroasted nuts keep better than roasted; and unsalted keep longer than salted.

Nuts in the shell keep well in a nut bowl at room temperature for a short period of time. Avoid storing nuts in a damp place.

Shelled nuts will keep fresh for several months stored in tightly closed containers in the refrigerator or freezer. When frozen, nuts will keep for a year or longer, depending on the type of nut.

whole nuts, less for chopped.

CRACKING NUTS can be a real challenge. Brazil nuts crack best if frozen for at least 24 hours.

Another way is to cover them with cold water, boil for three minutes, drain, cover with cold water and let stand one minute, drain and crack.

Pecans can be soaked six to eight hours in cold, salted water before cracking. To crack English walnuts, set them on the flat end and strike the pointed end with a hammer. They should snap in half.

CRACKING BLACK walnuts is probably the biggest challenge. Always wear gloves while hulling or your hands will be stained.

Pound with a hammer to remove the hull. Wash and dry nuts, soak 15 minutes in water or place in a wet cloth overnight. Then crack nuts with a hammer

Some people do the hulling by putting the nuts in a bag and driving over them with the car. Then precede with the above instructions.

DIFFERENT NUTS require different prepping prior to using.

Almonds are easier to chop if still warm from toasting. To remove excess salt from packaged cashews, rub with a rough towel or place in boiling water for 30 seconds, drain and pat dry.

Toast hazelnuts (filberts) for seven to 10 minutes at 350 degrees, and rub gently with a towel. Cool slightly and slip skins off with your fingers.

Macadamia nuts are available in jars or cans and often are roasted in coconut oil and heavily salted. You can rinse some of the salt off under running water and rub with a rough

To remove the skin from pistachio nuts, pour boiling water over nuts and leave for two minutes, then drain, and rub with a rough towel

IT TAKES only a little imagination to make plain food company food by using nuts.

Add nuts to baked goods, cookies, cakes, muffins, quick breads or waffles. Use in cheese spreads, sauces, dips, salads and as a vegetable or casserole topping.

They can add just that extra crunch to make a dessert memorable. They are a baker's delight, readily available and certainly easy to use. Make your favorite foods more delicious by adding nuts.

Use imagination for Easter eggs

AP - Coloring Easter eggs is an activity that delights children and adults alike. With a minimum of effort and imagination, you can use or-dinary household materials — pasta, rice, yarn, candles - and turn those eggs into bright decorative objects.

By using some of the following techniques, you will have plenty of decorated eggs to give to friends and relatives or to use as centerpieces for Easter.

The following projects require cleaned white eggs that have been hard-boiled. For coloring, use commercial egg dye kits or mix food coloring with vinegar, varying the intensity of the color by using more or ss of the food coloring. An egg dipper may be helpful, but it is not absolutely necessary.

BATIK EGGS

You will need: a white wax crayon or ordinary candle (birthday candles work well) to make the design; a bleach solution (1 tablespoon of chlorine bleach or baking soda mixed with 1 cup cool water).

1. Dye your eggs any bright or dark solid color by dipping in the dye or food coloring. Allow to dry. Draw a design on the egg with the crayon or dribble blobs of wax from a lighted candle to make a pattern.

2. When the wax has hardened, dip the hard-boiled egg in the bleaching solution. Leave the egg in the bleaching solution until the color comes off up to 10 minutes, depending on the intensity of the base color.

3. Peel off the wax. (Placing the egg in a paper-lined pan and heating briefly in a slightly warm oven will soften the wax.) The color will remain in the waxed areas.

TIE-DYED EGGS

You will need: a piece of cotton cloth about 5-by-6-inches per egg (a cut-up old bedsheet works well) and rubber bands (2 rubber bands per

1. Roll each hard-boiled egg in a piece of cloth, gathering the cloth at each end and securing it tightly with rubber bands. You will vary your design depending on the number of gathers in the cloth.

2. Soak the cloth by dipping the egg in coloring. Put the wrapped egg aside to dry overnight.

3. When dry, unwrap the egg for the finished product. Note: You can experiment by mixing colors or by dipping different sides of the egg in different colors.

> RAINBOW OR VARIEGATED EGGS

You will need: pieces of thin cotton cloth, about 6 inches square; an eyedropper; 3 or more colors of egg dye or food coloring; 2 rubber bands per egg.

1. Slightly dampen the cloth and wrap around the hard-boiled egg. loosely securing the end with the

2. Fill the eyedropper with color.

Drop spots of dye on the egg. Rinse the eyedropper and repeat with other colors. 3. Twist the cloth tightly around the egg so the colors blend. Unwrap and rinse. Wring cloth until nearly dry before using on other eggs.

RUBBER BAND OR TAPED EGGS

You will need: rubber bands or masking tape.

1. Choose a pattern. Set it on the hard-boiled egg with rubber bands or tape. For a simple weaved look, take the rubber bands and secure them over the egg from the top to the bottom of the oval. For a plaid or striped look, take the rubber bands or masking tape and wrap around the egg to form squares or stripes.

2. Dip the egg in dye and let dry. You can experiment with different colors on different parts of the egg, or you can dip the egg in 1 color and then in another.

3. When the color is dry, remove the bands or tape to reveal the pat-

SOPHISTICATED DESIGNS

The following designs require washed and empty or blown-out eggs. Care must be taken in the handling of the eggs so as not to crack the shells. To blow out the egg, take a darning needle or an ice pick and make 1 hole in each end of the egg. One of the holes should be slightly larger than the other. Pierce the inner membrane and break the yolk. Place a straw (to avoid illness from bacteria) over the smaller hole and blow to allow contents to come out of the larger hole. Rinse the egg out and allow to dry before decorating.

GOLDEN OR SILVER EGGS DECORATED WITH PASTA

You will need: blown eggs, un-cooked miniature pasta shells, circles, beans, rice or other dried pasta shapes; liquid white glue; tweezers; pencil; paper; spray-on gold or silver

1. Glue small bits of paper at either end of the egg to cover the holes. Pencil a geometric, floral or other design on the egg. It's helpful to divide the egg in halves or quarters as you are making the design.

2. Using the tweezers, dip the pasta in glue and attach to the egg over the outline of the design. A simple alternative to making the design is to cover the egg with inverted miniature shells or alternate the shells with another shape of pasta, bean or

3. Work half of the egg at a time, allowing the first half to dry before attempting the rest of the egg.

4. When the egg is dry, spray with gold or silver paint.

SPONGE PAINTED EGGS

You will need: blown eggs; small pieces of sponge; acrylic paints.

1. Take the sponge and dip in the paint. Press the sponge over the egg, covering the egg or making a random pattern.

2. Experiment with different colors, layering one over the next, or sponge different colors in various areas of the egg.

3. If desired, fix the paint with an artist's fixative or a polyurethane

BINSEGRAAS EGGS

The Pennsylvania Dutch used the pith of the binsegraas, a rush growing in damp soil, and coiled the pith around a paste-covered egg. You can create your own covered eggs by using scraps of yarn or string.

You will need: blown eggs; glue or rubber cement; bits of yarn.

1. Decide on a pattern. The simplest is to wrap yarn around the egg. using several lines of one color fol-lowed by several lines of another color. Other possibilities are to make small coils of yarn and cover the egg with the coils or vary the design by making a line of coils next to several straight lines of yarn. Try making a series of wavy lines in different col-

2. After you've worked out a design, cut the necessary strips of yarn. Cover half the egg with glue and begin applying the yarn. Allow glue to dry and complete the remainder of the egg.

n fine spirits with cognac from A. Hardy

The French district of Charentes, an hour's drive northwest of Bordeaux, on the Atlantic, is known for butter, cream, shellfish, casseroles

"Cognac produced from grapes grown on chalky soil, double pot-dis-tilled, and aged in oak, has the elegant, delicate aroma and smooth, silky taste of the finest distilled spirits," says Benedicte Hardy, international export manager for A. Hardy cognac.

Hardy, the great-great gran-daughter of the founder Antoine Hardy, whose cognac house has borne his name since 1863, is on a mission to sell America on the pleasures of sipping cognac. Hardy received great attention in the United States last year because her family operated firm offers the world's most expensive spirit - Cognac Perfection, retailing for $3,500 per

Although Hardy's Cognac Perfection is just that, not all A. Hardy cognacs are pricey. In fact, they are values when compared to many of the more heavily advertised brands. Delicate and smooth, A. Hardy cognacs are excellent examples of the region's finest spirit.

flavors and sensations. View the cognac against a bright, white background to observe its color and brilliance. It should have a golden hue without being too dark. Cognac's aroma can be evaluated in two steps. First, hold the glass at waist level and swirl it vigorously. Then, very slowly, raise the glass toward your nose. Breathe in deeply to determine at what maximum distance you can perceive the first perfumes of the cognac. This will help you determine the vitality of the cognac, which is controlled by the more volatile elements of the spirit.

Next, take a bigger sip. Rotate the cognac in your mouth so that your tongue is coated and simultaneously circulate air through the liquid. Your entire mouth and nasal passages will overflow with the aroma.

"Length is the most important characteristic of fine cognac," maintains Hardy. "Oak aging and the spirit give a perfect marriage that is evident even after the glass is emp-

Muskegon Mona Shores was just too good. The top-ranked Saliors scored a state-record 148.95 to outduel Plymouth Salem and win the state gymnastics championship Friday at Ann Arbor Pioneer High

Mona Shores was nearly five points better than the No. 2 Rocks, whose 144.00 would have been an amazing score in any previous year. The results went according to the rankings with Plymouth Canton finishing third at

"They are the best ever, and they are a coming power," said Canton coach John Cunningham of Mona Shores, referring to the fact its top gymnasts are underclassmen. "They're not a flash in the pan. This is going to continue for two or three more years."

Salem had hoped to upset the Sailors, but nobody was going to catch Mona Shores.

'What can I say?" Salem coach Kathi McBride said. "The better team won. The only way we could have won is if they made mistakes, and they didn't make any."

FROM AN individual perspective, the meet would have been a huge success for most gymnasts with Salem sophomore Kim Miller's results, but it was less than what she had hoped.

Miller, the defending champion in the all-around and uneven bars, did well in every event Saturday at the individual gymnastics finals but failed to win an event or repeat as the overall best.

Miller was second on the balance beam (18.70) at Ann Arbor Pioneer High School, tied teammate Alysia Sofios for second in the floor exercise (18.90), was part of a four-way tie for third on the vault (18.70) and finished fifth on the bars (18.25).

'It was lower than I thought, but I guess it was pretty good," Miller said. "It's sort of disappointing, because last year I won and I didn't do that well this year.'

Other area gymnasts who advanced to the individual finals were Sofios and Courtney Gonyea of Salem and Kim Rennolds of Plymouth Canton.

Muskegon Mona Shores dominated the team competition Friday and left an impression on the individual por-

"I thought we had the potential (to qualify more girls individually)," said Cunningham, who took seven team members to state competition. "But just watch the Mona Shores girls and discover why there aren't a lot of

MONA SHORES' Becky Swelnis won the beam championship by two-tenths of a point over Miller and edged Miller and Gonyea by five-hundredths on floor, scoring 18.90 and 18.95, respectively.

Teammate Aimee Goff won the bars title with a 19.05, and the Sailors took the top three places with Heather Schneller (19.00) and Swelnis (18.90) next. Fraser's Dana Komlenovich captured first place on the vault at 18.90.

Swelnis also claimed the all-around championship Friday with a 37.80. Schneller (37.75) was second, and Miller and Goff tied for third (37.15). Miller scored 36.30 to win the all-around last year and 18.25 to win on the Sofios was eighth (36.40) among the all-arounders, Gonyea ninth (36.05), Rennolds 12th (35.40) and Stacey Kamar of Athens 14th (35.15).

"(The Mona Shores girls) have better form than I do," Miller said. "We're equal on tricks, but their form is better and that knocked me down a bit. They were really good. I thought I did the best I could."

McBride thought Miller had a good meet, too. "As I've said, (the judges) don't really want to see new stuff," she said. "They want clean routines. I still think Kim has the harder routines. She did a good job but compared to the competition it didn't look as clean.

"SHE'S STILL my favorite gymnast in the state. No matter where she placed I'm still happy with what she

Gonyea, a sophomore in her second state finals, took fifth on the beam (18.25) and was included in the sixth-'I was hoping I would do better," she said. "It was my lowest meet of the year. I guess I just wasn't on. But I'm still happy no matter how I did.' Rennolds, also a sophomore, tied for eighth on the vault (18.55) and was ninth on floor (18.60). 'She said 'Coach, I only got a 9.3; that means I'll be ninth," Cunningham said. "I told her 'You could have been 43rd, and I still would have been proud of you because you still did a beautiful job.' In addition to sharing second place on floor with Miller, Sofios, a freshman, was 10th on the bars with an

"I missed (qualifying on) vault by one-tenth and beam by five-hundredths," she said. "I wanted to compete in those events, but I came here today to have fun.

This was my first year (of high school gymnastics), and I had no idea it would be so much fun. I hope to come back more prepared next year. I know what to look for now."

bserver announces '91 honor roll

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

TONE OF OBSERVER-LAND'S top wrestling squads earned a berth in this year's state team meet, but the area was well represented at the individual state meet.

Redford Catholic Central sent five wrestlers to the individual meet. The Shamrocks had a pair of fourthplace finishes while Walled Lake Western's Andy Fritz managed to record the lone state title, capturing the 103-pound weight class.

All in all, it was an exciting year of wrestling, and the following wrestlers earned the most respect in Observerland. A panel of area coaches selected the honor squad.

The 119-pound weight class had a pair of worthy candidates, so the honor was shared by Redford Thurston's Jed Kramer and Redford Catholic Central's Rusty Fowler.

ALL-AREA FIRST TEAM

Rob Sylvester, Catholic Central, heavyweight: A senior, Sylvester placed in every tournament he entered and took first in the Romulus Invitational. Catholic League meet and the Class A district. Sylvester, who had a career record of 122-27, was second at the regional and fifth at state. He was 48-11 this season

"I have watched Rob mature from his freshman year, by the pounding he received from Lee Krueger (two-time state champ)," CC coach Mike Rodriguez said. "This in itself is courage. I personally thank Rob for giving this old coach his 500th career win, by pinning Tom Russell of Hazel Park. I will always remember Rob and wish him continued

Andy Fritz, 103, Walled Lake Western: The only state champion in Observerland, Fritz also took first-place in the Class A district, regional, Western Lakes Activities Association and Clarkston and West Bloomfield invitationals. He improved as the year progressed after taking fourth place in the Oakland County meet and third in the South Lyon Invita-

He went 46-3 with 23 pins.

"Andy matured and knew what to expect this year," coach Dick Watson said. "He rode his opponents really well, controlled people when he was on top and able to get off the bottom when

Scott Martin, 112, Plymouth Satook first in the WLAA and first at the district. A two-time league champion, Martin has a 72-25 overall record with his senior year remaining. He carries a 3.5 gradepoint average

"Scott had a very tough weight class this year and placed everywhere he went but couldn't win until the league and district," Salem coach Ron Krueger said. "Scott's a very hard worker and will be one of our captains next year."

Rusty Fowler, 119, Catholic Central: Fowler won every regular-season tournament he entered, including the Battle Creek, Lansing Sexton, Lansing Eastern, CC and Romulus invitationals and the Catholic League meet. Also a district and regional champion, Fowler finished with a 54-3 overall record and took fourth in the Class A meet

He finished his career with a 215-31

"It has taken four years for Rusty to come into his own, and he had an outstanding season after being in the shadow of the Helm brothers (Jay and Matt). Rodriguez said. "We are all very proud of his accomplishments.

Jed Kramer, 119, Redford Thurston: Kramer took an undefeated dual meet record into the post-season before finishing second in the Class B district and was 40-3 this year, finishing his career with a school record 134 wins against 36 defeats. A two-time state qualifier and three-time Tri-River League champ. Kramer this season recorded 26 pins and in the classroom maintains a 3.5 GPA

'Jed was one of the hardest working and most disciplined athletes we've had the pleasure of coaching," coach Pete Newton said. "Jed has the discipline and work ethic to excel as a college-scholar athlete and he proved he was among the best in the state

Ryan Carriere, 125, Livonia Stevenson: Making his second-straight appearance on the All-Observer team, Carriere finished his career with an 85-32-1 record and the school record for pins. A three-time regional qualifier. Carriere was a league champion and also won the Southfield-Lathrup Invitational. He was second at the Plymouth Canton Invitational and second at the Class A district.

Sean Rock, 130, W.L. Central: Rock was 34-5 with 15 pins and was the WLAA and South Lyon Invitational champion. He placed second at Clarkston. Oakland County and the Class A district.

"He did an outstanding job for us this coach Carl McBride said. "His takedown technique is the best I've

Tigers too quick for Canton

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

The book was closed on another Observerland boys basketball season Friday when the last surviving team, Plymouth Canton, lost to Belleville in the final of the Wyandotte regional tournament,

The Chiefs, who had never been that far in the tournament and finished with a 16-9 record, played well in certain respects and made a game of it for a while. But the Belleville defense, which forced Canton into 30 turnovers, was the deciding

The No. 7-rated Tigers (24-1) claimed their first regional championship and will play a quarterfinal game Wednesday in Jackson. Belleville's only previous appearance in a regional final ended with a loss to eventual state champion Romulus in Canton was minus two of its usual starters, sophomore guard Mike Stafford and senior forward Kevin Holmes.

Stafford had another obligation, and Holmes suffered a broken hip in a car accident Friday morning. The 6-foot-4 Holmes, who had to be hospitalized, missed Tuesday's game with a sprained ankle but had been expected to play Friday

"I THOUGHT we did a good job under the circumstances," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said. "Our guys tried as hard as they could. I think we represented Plymouth-Canton and Observerland well.

'After we have a couple days to look back on it, I think we'll realize what a great season we had. We lose four great seniors, but I'd like to think we've established something we can carry into next year.

Junior guard Derrick McDonald scored 20 points, which included three triples, to lead the Chiefs. Brett Howell and Hal Heard, a 6-4 junior who came off the bench to give a solid effort at both ends of the court when Canton needed help, added 10 apiece.

"Hal did a heckuva job, and we feel he's going to be a heckuva player if he works at it." Van

Wagoner said. "He's been doing that in practice, and tonight he stepped up and did it in a game."

Belleville was led by Ron Hunter and Derrick Boles with 22 and 21 points, respectively. Nine players scored for the Tigers, but no one else had more than seven. In addition to the 6-5 Hunter and 6-6 Boles, Belleville started 6-7 Tyrone Hicks up

The Tigers slowly built a 14-2 lead while Canton committed 12 turnovers in the first quarters.

BELLEVILLE'S full-court press didn't bother the Chiefs as much as its half-court defense. Canton used an effective press breaker but was vulnerable to the Tigers' quickness and made most of its turnovers after crossing the time line.

"Belleville's pressure defense does that to you," Van Wagoner said. "It's a relentless defense. For the most part, I thought we did well, but they got some spurts that just just put us out of our game.

"I think their quickness took control of the game. Their defensive pressure took us out of anything we wanted to run all night."

Playing good half-court defense of its own and rebounding extremely well on defense, the Chiefs used that and bad first-half shooting by the Tigers - 11-of-35 compared to 8-of-17 by Canton - to stay close.

Canton closed to 14-7 at the end of the first period and got within 20-19 in the second behind the scoring of Derrick McDonald, who had 13 points in the first half, and the rebounding of Tony Coshatt and Rob Wilson.

"We were up 10-2 but the momentum of the game was not what we wanted," Belleville coach Mike Garland said. "Our kids kept walking the ball up. Once we got them into a transition game, we were able to make some baskets.

"I was pretty confident we'd be able to turn things around, but I'm human. I was quite frightened by the pattern of the game."

WITH THE Chiefs trailing 24-20 late in the second quarter, a pivotal series of events occurred.

Canton made back-to-back turnovers, which allowed the Tigers to create an up tempo. Nathaniel Griffin's basket was followed by Ron Hunter's free throws, the result of an intentional foul on Howell. Van Wagoner became enraged at the call and protested vehemently but to no

The Tigers stretched the lead to 33-23 and Van Wagoner, still hot about the earlier call, was given a technical. Senior guard Karl Wukie was assessed a technical foul simultaneously, too. Linton Macklin sank all four free throws, and Belleville turned a fourpoint game into a 14-point difference with 1:05 remaining. The Tigers led 37-25 at halftime.

There comes a point in time when a coach has to stand up, and I thought that was the point in time I needed to do that," said Van Wagoner, who received his first technical of the season.

"I felt good only being down 12 at halftime. We came here to win, and we felt we could stay with them and maybe pull it out at the end.

"But, once again, their tenacity and pressure took us right out of our basketball game. The type of pressure they put on you not only causes turnovers but also causes teams to go faster than they're capable of

THE CHIEFS hit seven consecutive field goals and shot 75 percent (9-of-12) in the third quarter but couldn't make a run at Belleville, which made eight of 15 shots and outscored Canton 23-21.

Howell's layup got the Chiefs to 54-44 with 1:13 left in the period, but Belleville scored the next six points and led 60-46 at the end.

(Belleville's quickness and a fatigue factor) just started to overwhelm them," Garland said. "But those kids have nothing to be ashamed of. We've pressured some very good teams, and it's happened over and over."

"Chris has played an important role in Farmington High rebuilding its wrestling program," coach Al Beyar said. "He has the style, technique and ability to be a good collegiate wrestler

Jason Krueger, 160, Catholic Central: Krueger took second in seven tournaments, including the Class A district and regional. With his junior and senior years still to come, titles are sure to follow for Krueger, the younger brother of former CC star Lee Krueger, who plays football and wrestles for the University of Wisconsin.

Jason was 50-12 and has a career mark of 82-22

I am most grateful to have Jason in the wrestling room for two more years, Rodriguez said. "After losing in the finals of the Lansing Eastern Tournament, he came back and beat the same guy 22-11 two weeks later. This gave him the confidence to be a contender for the state as a sophomore. Look out Michigan, he will be ready next year.

The highlight of Kelly's regular season came when he beat Clarkston's Damon Michelson, the eventual state champion. Kelly was first in three regular-season invitationals, first in the Class A district and regional meets and fourth at state.

'Dan finally, through very hard work, is starting to come into his own, as a topnotch wrestler who will be very much in contention for the state title next year." Rodriguez said.

Todd Lytwyniuk, 189, Farmington Hills Harrison: A Class B state qualit Lytwyniuk won the WLAA meet, took third at the Oakland County tournament and was third at the Class B district. The senior also placed fourth at the regional.

"Considering Todd (at 178 pounds) was quite small for his weight class, he wrestled well all year against larger competition," Tharnish said. "He capped off a good season by earning the opportunity to compete at the state finals in Battle Creek, which was well deserved.

volunteers

Volunteers are needed at Hospice of Southeastern Michigan to help provide compassionate care to the dying in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties:

Patient assistant volunteers help patients and their families by running errands, lending support and being a friend. Patient assistant volunteers go through a 30-hour training course offered at least eight times a year.

 Clinical hospice volunteers perform patient care tasks such as giving baths, transferring patients and changing linen. They must complete the patient assistance volunteer course and have additional training in clinical skills. Volunteers with nursing skills are particularly Bereavement volunteers make followup telephone calls to bereaved families over the course of 13 months. They must complete the patient assistant volunteer course and have additional training in grief counseling.

· Office volunteers provide clerical support. Volunteers with computer operation or medical transcription skills are in great demand.

 Speakers Bureau volunteers tell the hospice story to groups in the community.

Anyone over the age of 16 is welcome to volunteer. Many assignments are for evening and weekend work, so students and people who work during the day shouldn't hesitate to volunteer.

Volunteers are asked to work at least two to four hours a week and to commit to working for a year. Hospice of Southeastern Michigan, the first licensed hospice in Michi-

Hollywood is - and always was a wonderous place. But beneath Hollywood's slick surface, decay, decadance and despair run rampant and largely unnoticed by the general

The saddest of those chapters began in 1947 when the House Un-American Activities Committee began investigating communist influence in the motion picture industry. HUAC thrashed around and thrashed the film industry to make political capital - the profit of one committee member - Richard Nixon - is

So deep were the wounds of the HUAC investigation - and the blacklist that followed once the Supreme Court refused to overturn the Hollywood 10's conviction for contempt of Congress - that only six feature-length films have been made about the subject.

But now Irwin Winkler has written and directed a superb account of that period and the ways in which greed for political power and professional success use fear and destroy

"Guilty by Suspicion" (A, PG-13, 100 minutes) carefully blends the actual players of this sad drama with a fictional target of all the terror HUAC mustered in the name of Americanism-0892 "Guitty by Suspicion" centers on a fictional character, charismatic, well-regarded director David Merrill (Robert DeNiro), who is named by a colleague under duress.

WHILE EFFECTIVELY representing the political turmoil of the

As it constantly swirls around Merrill, the camera emphasizes his tenuous, ever-shifting position at the vortex of these forces. But despite the emotional, political and production qualities, it is DeNiro's bravura performance as a man fighting for his life and career that makes "Guilty by Suspicion" such a worthwhile, compelling film.

The performance is a good reason to tout DeNiro as Ameica's greatest contemporary actor.

There are some abrupt transitions in the film which might have been smoothed over and there is one strange fault quite a few production moments and references are made to the 1953 Marilyn Monroe-Jane Russell film. "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." This is bothersome since most of "Guilty by Suspicion" is set

Despite those distractions, De-Niro's exciting, entertaining, powerful performance is not to be missed.

Gene Hackman's latest, "Class Action" (C R, 105 minutes) is a disappointing, large-screen "L.A. Law" episode. Hackman and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio are father and daughter. Both are attorneys with daughter reacting to father's bad treatment of her mother. Whatever father does, daughter does the oppo-

When I visited the screening committee of the Ann Arbor Film Festival at this time last year, it was up to its ears in film canisters. And the bleary-eyed cinephiles still had several more nights of viewing ahead.

This time around, with entry deadlines a month earlier, the atmosphere is a bit more relaxed. Many of the almost 300 entries, according to festival director Vicki Honeyman, still come in late.

'We didn't want to stay up until two in the morning for six weeks be-fore the festival," said Honeyman, who screens titles in the back room salon. "We weren't being fair to many filmmakers because we were so tired."

The 29th annual Ann Arbor Film Festival begins Tuesday at the Michigan Theatre and runs through Winner's Night on Sunday. Independent filmmakers from around the world compete in the oldest festival of its kind in North America.

"THERE ARE a lot of experimental films this year, less narratives and more animation," said Honeyman. "To me, they're all little poems

Stew has a musical motivator

special writer

Missionary Stew is the name of a band whose members have decided that they definitely do not want to be missionaries. The name just sort of happened.

'We were writing down names stream-ofconsciousness by looking through a T.S. Eliot book," said lead guitarist for the band, Chris Gallivan. "We looked through it and wrote down words that looked cool.'

The question of whether or not to become musical missionaries actually was a consideration for the band members because they are a decidedly religious band.

"I am a Christian, speaking for myself," Gallivan said. "But I just like to play music. It's not done with a mission in mind. I just want to give people a good show from a good rock band. "I can't say its a band viewpoint but religion does play a big part. Not organized religion, but more like God. It's just a part of life. We don't want to be only a Christian band and we don't want to paint ourselves in a corner. We try to write as honestly as possible."

The Christian beliefs are deeply embedded in most of the band members — "We were all a part of the Christian music scene at one point, but we kind of grew out of it."

They made a conscious decision to stay away from the Christian music scene.

"WE DON'T want to play just for Christians," Gallivan said. Besides, most of the music that the band members were listening to was not Christian music.

'The bands we like are secular," said Gallivan. He added he and his fellow band mates have a "stew" of musical influences. Gallivan himself likes bands like the Waterboys, U2 and Bands that sing about more than just girls, girls, girls," he said.

The keyboardist - Jeff Woods - likes techno musics and was trained for 14 years as a classical pianist. He has played with several symphonies. The singer, Dion Roddy, prefers the sound of '70s music and country-western

Their name has religious overtones and some admit they are Christian, but Missionary Stew members have decided they don't want to be missionaries.

'I can't say its a band viewpoint but religion does play a big part. Not organized religion, but more like God. It's just a part of life.'

- Chris Gallivan

while the drummer, Todd Kulman, is into alternative college music.

When we come together, everyone has to compromise, so we definitely come up with a unique sound," Gallivan said.

The unique sounds of Missionary Stew can be heard on their latest CD, "Childhood." The CD is doing very well. On a Toledo station, it was the No. 2 song for 1990 and area stations like WRIF, CIMX and WLUX, the Oakland University station have all been playing it.

The religious message of the songs is very subtle. If you want to look for religious overtones, they are there. But they are not at all strident or obvious.

THIS IS in line with the band's philosophy about their group. The Christianity is there for those who seek it, but no one is going to shove it down your throat. Remember, they're not missionaries.

Roddy's high, clear vocals add a U2-ish sound to the songs, but the band has tried to steer away from sounding too much like the Irish quartet. Still, many people have commented on the band having a similar sound to U2 but that should be taken with a grain of salt since friends have also compared the band to everyone from Joe Cocker to Air Supply.

(For the record, the band sounds nothing like Joe Cocker or Air Supply, let alone both at the same time.)

Eleventh Dream Day found it was more relaxing to record "Lived to Tell" in a vacant tobacco barn in Cub Run, Ky., and it shows. The album is filled with a steamy batch of catchy melodies.

Dream Day holds onto its sounds

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Eleventh Dream Day is a loud, crunching guitar band and yet has a canny band's first major label release was a resounding success, charting on college play lists across the country.

A tour of the United States and Europe ensued, exposing the band to the whims and wants of the rock'n'roll world. Obviously, a follow-up record would be needed. Opulence was in order. A studio with lots of sand and blue water with all the amenities, yes, that was the ticket. And a producer with some French name, of course. The actual setting for the recording of this beehive of rock'n'roll activity? A barn. A barn?

SAINTS AND

— Kane Roberts

SINNERS

Most Alice Cooper fans will already know that Kane Roberts worked with Cooper on the shock rócker's last album, but you may not know Roberts has also performed with Rod Steward and Berlin.

"Saints and Sinners" was produced by Desmond Child, who has co-written and produced with the likes of Bon Jovi, Kiss, Aerosmith and Alice Cooper.

Kane Roberts' style has always been pretty much straight forward primal rock. But with the versatile input of Desmond Childs, there is more variety to "Saints and Sinners" than Roberts has been known to spawn on his own. Then again, Desmond Child has been known to overcommercialize bands

"Saints and Sinners" is somewhere in between. Most of the songs are good with a vociferous undertone. "Twisted" is such a song. It's pretty good, and pretty predictable. It sounds like a while lot like Joan Jett and the Blackhearts. The songs "Rebel Heart" is a classic sequitur of both Roberts' and Child's influences. There is even a Bon Jovi cut "Does Anybody Really Fall in Love Anymore?" in the package.

Roberts has not only worked in the studio with Alice Cooper, he has contributed lead guitar and vocals on his last two tours. Consequently, Alice Cooper has a sizeable influence on Roberts' material. This is most apparent in songs like "Fighter" and Wild Nights."

All together there are 10 songs in the "Saints and Sinners" package. The songs are pretty much in sync with what Desmond Child has produced in the past.

There is no doubt that the album packs punch, and for the most part, it does it in a propitious way.

This is a hard one to get a handle on. Havana 3 A.M. is a band out of England. There are four guys in the band - Paul Simonon, Nigel Dixon, Gary Myrick and Travis Williams.

song "Death in the Afternoon" uses Spanish guitar sounds and even has Spanish lyrics. ("La banda toca su musica/el escape del matador" - I think it means something about a band playing a song of a matador's escape, but I flunked Spanish not just once, but twice, so you might want to look it up yourself.)

Oh, they try to be unusual. The

(If boringness isn't already a word, it should be.) Their experiments are all attempts at making a diverse sounding record. Now, there's absolutely noth-

what Havana ends up with on this CD. It's more like lack of focus. Remember hits like Mr. Mister's "Broken Wings" or Starship's "We Built This City"? Those songs were just sort of there, in all of their midtempo bland glory. Well, it's the same with "Havana 3A.M."

Havana's songs are better, but not by much. They're almost good, but their blandness is too overwhelming to stir up much excitement

He or she, therapist's sex has no effect on treatment

I have decided to begin therapy. There are some problems I have been avoiding for years that I now effeel able to address.

Do you think it makes a difference whether or not I see a man or a woman? I don't think that I care but friends of mine told me that because I am a woman, it would be better for me to see a woman.

Is therapy more successful when clients see therapists of the same

Dear Jill,

Your question is asked often. Recent research indicates that the answer is no. The sex of the therapist does not have an influence on the success of the therapy

Therapists know that clients tend to treat and tend to have feelings about their therapists similar to the ones they had toward their parents. One would assume then that female therapists would be treated like the client's mother and male therapists would be treated like the client's father. If this scenario were true, then a client could predict greater suc cess by picking a therapist of the same sex as the more compatible parent.

However, the reality is that clients will sometimes relate to male therapists as if they were mothers and to female therapists as if they were fathers. This is further confused because clients will shift, treating the same therapist sometimes like a mother and other times like a father.

It would be nice to have some criterion, like sex, to use as a guide when picking a therapist, but unfortunately, it is not realistic. In each therapuetic dyad, it is the competence and character of the therapist and the client's willingness to change and grow which are all important. These attitudes cannot be easily identified as can one's gender.

"I think it made us more relaxed," said bassist Douglas McCombs, whose band performs Sunday, March 24, at the Majestic Theatre. "We were in a surrounding that was more enjoyable than being locked into a studio. When you wanted to take a break, you could just walk outside. It was nice.'

AS A RESULT, Eleventh Dream Day's LP was brought in at six days of recording. The sense of immediacy is apparent on the blistering 13song effort, the band's second major label release. The group's first Atlantic release in 1989, "BEET," established the outfit as a force to be reckoned with - reaching No. 2 on

So here's the second offering, ripe for examination. The sophomore jinx hasn't invaded the Eleventh Dream Day camp on "Lived to Tell."

The album is a steamy batch of catchy melodies branded with some searing guitar licks. A common mistake made by many bands initially is trying to recreate or refine their music on follow-up efforts. Often they fail. Eleventh Dream Day hasn't deviated from their guitar-strewn path for good reason: They don't have to.

'It's more like 'We do what we do.' If something new happens, it happens," McCombs said. "We have changed through the years. It's not like it's a 10-year plan where we have these goals to meet or any-

"That's the reason we do it. We like the music we play as a group. Any concerted effort to bring about a change would be unnatural.

Eleventh Dream Day has followed a natural course of events since beginning in 1983. Founding members Rick Rizzo and Janet Beveridge Bean met in Kentucky, later marrying. Bean had performed with the well-known Louisville, Ky., based RIZZO AND Bean moved back to his home base of Chicago, meeting up with Baird Figi and McCombs. The band cut its teeth, performing around the Windy City club circuit.

In 1988, Eleventh Dream Day released "Prairie School Freakout." A record deal with Atlantic soon fol-

"We never felt a part of any particular scene in Chicago," McCombs said. "A lot of our friends were in bands, so we belonged to a scene in that sense. There wasn't a Chicago sound or anything.'

In fact, the group feels at home in Louisville as well as Chicago. Touring has made Eleventh Dream Day a welcomed lot in many other cities.

Since the LP was made in a live setting, the buzz is easily translated on stage. Part of Eleventh Dream Day's appeal is taking primal guitar rock'n'roll to the limits without disintegrating into a mess of amplified noise. It's a fine line, especially performing live.

Comedian finds humor in everyday life

Steve Seagren's observations, coupled with his zany animated delivery have put him among the Top 10 comedians in Chicago two years running and earned him a slot on the Showtime Comedy Club Network.

special writer

Steve Seagren finds humor in everyday life, running the gamut from the sublime ("Did you realize that the phone number for 'Hooked on Phonics,' the reading instruction service for illiterates, is 1-800-ABC-DEFC") to the ridiculous ("Doesn't Vanilla Ice's hair look like a gravy boat?").

Observations like these coupled with his zany animated delivery have placed Seagren among the Top 10 comedians in Chicago two years running, and earned him a slot on the Showtime Comedy Club Network as well as headlining at some of the best clubs in the nation.

The 36-year-old Chicago native is a heavy-set cross between David Crosby and Craig Stadler with a walrus mustache, big smile and infectious laugh that connects his furious onslaught of one-liners.

Most comedians become annoying fast by laughing at their own jokes, especially if no one else does. That's not the case with Seagren.

He gets away with his laughter because its part of his routine, not a reaction to it. During a recent Detroit-area performance, Seagren peers out at his audience and says, "Ypsilanti. Who named that, some guy who lost at Scrabble?" He follows the line with a bubbly laugh that draws some more laughter from

HE OFTEN repeats lines that particularly amuse him, along with laughter and wild facial expressions, adding "Don't you get the impression I could do this whether or not you're

His delivery seems so naturally spontaneous, the answer is yes.

"I want to make it look like it's all coming into my head onstage," he said of the importance of spontaneity to his act, "not like I've done this whole thing over and over again every night for the last three years."

day life, and develops them, line-byline, to the far-out extreme, pepper-ing them with hilarious sound effects and cartoon imagery.

His laughter and warm vocal inflections, somewhere in the George Carlin/John Candy area, quickly build a good rapport with an audience. Before the show is half over, he has the whole room doing impressions of Floyd the barber from "The Andy Griffith Show" - a "Gang Seagren first stepped into the spotlight eight years ago at open mike night in a Chicago club.

"I was scared," he admitted. "But I invited everyone I knew so I would have to do it. I was so nervous that everyone thought it was a joke."

Seagren did well enough to come back but said that he wasn't really good at stand-up until he conquered his stage fright, a year or two later.

HIS FIRST big break was getting fired from his day job, he said. After receiving a bachelor of fine arts degree from the Art Institute of Chicago, he had gone to work in a factory, like art student worth his salt. He was even on the bowling team.

But after a couple years of working a print shop and a stage, the factory decided to free Seagren to pursue his dream.

"I wasn't showing up and wasn't

Devoting himself to comedy full time, Seagren got himself an agent and began headlining clubs five years ago, which helped to pay the bills. Then the Showtime gig came in 1988 and led to more exposure and good resume fodder. This April he'll be appearing on an A&E Network special, "Comedians on the Road with John Byner."

When asked what patrons can expect at his Ann Arbor show, Seagren lowers his voice in FM DJ mode and deadpans, "Forty-five minutes of belly-busting jokes, non-stop laughs from start to finish."

As usual, his comment is not far off the mark. From his stage perch, he tells the crowd how sick he's been lately, taking doses of Percodan. "It didn't get me high though," he said. "It just made my furniture real comfortable. I slept in the bookcase, curled up with a good book."

Seagren lets out a good hearty guffaw and repeats, "Curled up with a good book! I write this stuff!"

Steve Seagren will perform Friday and Saturday, March 22-23, at Mainstreet Comedy Showcase, 314 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Showtimes are 8:30 and 11 p.m. Friday and 7, 9 and 11 p.m. Saturday. Reserved seating is $12; general admission is $10. For information, call 996-9080.

Banking on a red, white and blue piece

Mike Benak called his boss, Gary Anoshka, from Washington, D.C., last weekend with good news. The Pentagon gave them the green light. Anoshka was elated.

Now, before you start thinking this is a story about another military contract for high priced hardware, think again. The green light was for the hanging of "The Storm is Over" in the building.

"The Storm Is Over?" Yep, you read it right. The military brass were receptive to putting up a poster in its hallowed halls, a poster that Anoshka is selling wholesale for less than $10. And you thought the top brass

"The Storm Is Over" is the work of Anoshka's company, G.A. Design, better known for the menus it creates than posters. But with the revival of patriotic fervor, Anoshka decided to do something

The idea started fermenting in late January. Working with artist Gary Redfern, and with input from everyone from his wife Mary to Benak, he came up with the design.

"I didn't want just an eagle," Anoshka said. "But I wanted something simple with the olive branch to symbolize peace. I wanted to dedicate it to the people of Desert Strom, but I didn't want to alienate

THE FINISHED piece dances with color and detail — A bright sun slowly rises over the desert sands; storm clouds part to reveal a starry late night sky. A bald eagle, sporting the Stars and Stripes, is perched on an olive tree, its talons firmly gripping a twisted limb. In its beak is the symbolic

But there's more to it. The number of stars on the eagle's shoulders and stripes mixed into the wing feathers match the 13 Stars and Stripes of the original flag.

Blended into the bark of the twisted tree limb are the colors and stars of the Iraqi

The poster is a myriad of color. Redfern used more than 500 colors, applying them by airbrush and by hand to a bristle illus-tration board. A World War II history buff, Redfern even dressed in fatigues to get a

At 38, the Ypsilanti resident is excited about the finished piece, excited at the prospect of it being seen throughout the country, excited at the thought — OK, dream — of it hanging in the White House. That's one of Anoska's goals.

It speaks well for a man who describes himself as a "street artist."

"My work hanging in the White House

Wow, what a blast to my ego," Redfern said. "I'm just an artist. I wasn't formally trained; I'm just a street artist. I've been doing it since I was six. It's all selftaught. I learned by observing."

ANOTHER OF Redfern's work can be seen at the Yankee Air Force Museum at Willow Run Airport. A last minute entry in a contest, he was selected to paint the figure head of the Yankee Lady on the nose of a B-17 bomber the YAF is restoring.

Anoshka has other dreams. He would like to get the signature of Desert Storm commander Gen. Norman Swartzkopf on one of the posters and - in his "extreme dreams" print several million copies of "The Storm Is Over."

The idea for the poster began fermenting in late January at the height of the air war. Working with rough sketches, the two Garys considered using F-15 fighters in the illustration, but shelved it. Too one-side, according to Anoshka, a Livonia resident.

Nervousness took over as the ground war started and it became apparent it would be a rout. And it was "panic city," when the cease fire was announced. In a push to get the poster done, other jobs took a back seat. On March 9, the first 9,000 finished copies of the poster rolled off the press.

By Monday morning, Anoska was elated with initial response to the poster. Local vendors were scooping them up to sell in their stores and Benak, on a two-week swing throughout the country, reported the Pentagon was displaying the poster.

It's good news, indeed, for Anoshka who started G.A. Design after losing his job with the Ford Motor Co. in the later '70s.

ARMED WITH a $175 used plate burner, he set up shop in the basement of his house. Neighbors called it the House of Frankenstein because of the eerie white light that would emit from the basement windows each time he made a plate for the printing

He was ready to give it up when he landed a $3,500 contract to design a menu. One thing led to another and now he has more than 700 clients, including Machus Red Fox, the Palace of Auburn Hills and Marriott to name a few.

This isn't the first time Anoshka has printed a poster tied in with a major event. A visit by Pope John Paul II prompted the publication of a Solidarity poster, but it came to late to cash in on "pope-abilia." It did make its way to Rome and Anoska did received a thank you letter for the pope's Tve got a good team here," Anoshka said, heaping praise on the crew that helped make "The Storm Is Over" a reality. "I wanted to show that we (The U.S.) were strong and we did."

For now, Anoshka plans on having the original artwork framed. He's already matted it in red and blue and plans on adding a white frame. If it can be arranged, he'd like to present it to President George Bush. If not, it'll hang in the office of G.A.

"He did a wonderful job," he said, surveying Redfern's artwork.

Marji Silk's work has appeared in numerous publications. In fact, a photo she took of a statue in the spray of a fountain at the Cranbrook Educational Community was on the cover of Cranbrook's 1989-90 annual report.

Capitol idea

She shoots for D.C. success

staff writer

graph strange things often happen. For example, she was intrigued by the large bronze bust in front of the K mart headquarters in Troy. She carefully set up her shot, took the picture and sent the film out for pro-

What came back was a stunning photo of a face tinted a deep metallic green. But the color wasn't real it was created by the film reacting to the statue's actual color and the fading natural light.

That kind of luck has paid off. Silk's Oak Park home is bedecked with awards and trophies from area and national photo contests. Her work is in constant demand.

And while admittedly, she has been lucky, she also is a talented, hard-working professional who has honed her skills to a fine degree.

For the past eight years she has been studying photography and seeking new techniques to achieve different effects.

The result, in addition to the awards and steady flow of business has brought her an honor few photographers ever realize. Now through March 22 a selection of her works will be on display in a one-person exhibit in the Cannon House Capital Building in Washington, D.C.

The show was arranged by U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, who received one of her photos from a friend. He was so impressed, he hung it in his office and set the wheels in motion for her

IRONICALLY, "I've always had a feeling for color, but wasn't very good with design," Silk said.

Her photos glow with vivid hues and tones, and her compositions are striking. Silk specializes in city scenes and has an affection for neon lights. She loves shooting in the handful of minutes when the twilight

My passion is in color," Silk said. "I think of myself as a painter. I'm not interested in just any color. It must be magic. Color evokes a feeling and a mood in me and in the

Take her picture of the Detroit People Mover. It was shot, typically, in the early evening. The scene radiates pastel colors that somehow don't really seem to be there. A building front in Greektown exhibits a palette of hues. The actually white facade has been tinted pink by surrounding neon lights.

Through long practice, Silk has learned to stage her pictures in advance and position herself exactly for the shot she wants - even if that means a foray into the traffic whizz-

"I always liked taking pictures," Silk said. But she never did it seriously until eight years ago when she took some photos while on a trip. 'That sparked something in my phy.

"I took a course, and my instructor was so enthusiastic about my work I couldn't believe it," she said. That encouraged her to become even more proficient and to master all the technical aspects of photography. (Her camera of choice is a 35mm Nikon, although she's been experimenting with a 21/4-inch format Pentax. Her favorite film is Ektachrome.)

"I stayed up until two in the morning studying new techniques," she

She took more classes, and got straight A's.

Almost immediately, she found a market for her work. Attracted to the neon-lit escalator at the Detroit Science Center, she got permission to photograph it. The center was delighted with the result and converted it to a post card. The center printed 10,000 copies and has them on sale at its gift shop.

Silk's work has appeared in numerous publications, such as Michigan Travel, and The New England Guide. A photo she took of a statue in the spray of a fountain at the Cranbrook Educational Community landed up on the cover of Cranbrook's 1989-90 annual report.

Her philosophy of photography is simple: "First I find a subject that excites me.'

SHE THEN examines the subject from a variety of angles until she finds the look that she wants.

"I compose the scene in my viewfinder, composition is critical," she explained. "I use it to bring the viewer into the photo."

In the process, she inspires her-

"I push it to the max," she said. "I try to capture some magic on the image. My enthusiasm lifts me to another level. It gives me such a So do the awards, sales and achievements that have frequently marked her so-short career. And she see many more milestones ahead.

As she puts it: "Lhave an endless quest to let my ability soar."

Painting-a-day keeps her in the 'now'

staff writer

HER ART CLASSES AND IN HER studio, Leslie Masters sees the world through rainbow-colored glasses. Two strengths come to mind at the mention of her name - her deep involvement with and commitment to the arts and her penchant for using the colors of the rainbow in her work. Both of these strengths will be much in evidence in her exhibition, "Sun," opening Tuesday at the County Galleria in the Executive Office Building of the Oakland County complex, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac. Reception 6-8 p.m. Tuesday. Music at the reception will be provided by her daughter, Elaine Masters, flutist

Masters, former assistant director of the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, still teaches there as well as at Schoolcraft College of Livonia and at the Ann Arbor Art Association. In recent years, her world has widened while her art work has become more focused and the palette richer and stronger. That's the kind of dichotomy a person like Masters thrives on.

Another contradiction is that while as she says, "they are getting more and more abstract as I go along," for her they are filled with meaning and memories.

HOW COULD THAT BE? Well, ever since she and her husband, Frank Villani, moved to a lakefront home near Ypsilanti, she has been watching the sky and the water with increasing fascination, just like her hero, Monet, watched the pond by his home in Giverny, France, recorded its changing moods, and made himself immortal. She made her first visit to Giverny about a year

"It took a year before I knew what I wanted to paint," Masters said as she described her preparations for

Leslie Masters said that one of the moments she wants to remember forever took place while she was swimming in front of her home when the lake was quiet. It was the first time she really noticed the beautiful, changing color patterns on the surface of the water. She tried to capture some of that "bliss" in this painting.

this show, yet when she did, she produced a large body of work. She will be showing 18 large abstracts and many smaller sketches and paintings. "Several of the big ones are just reflections of the sky after the sun goes down with the color still in the clouds . . we have a big pontoon boat and we go out there

Consequently her entire show, (her first in 15 years) representing more than three year's work is based on nature - sun, sky, water. She wrote about the show, "I keep trying to capture light — an impossible task, but a never ending joy.

She recalled that as she focused in on her subjects, "I painted everyday for a year ... I set up a schedule of doing it every day. It's a lot of work - it got to the point where I was glad when it rained."

Her painting of 365 squares, some overcast and gray, but many more with a rainbow of colors, will be in the exhibition, but she may not want to part with it, because it's a visual diary of the sky on every day of that year and in that sense, very personal.

'Then, I didn't realize," she said,

The artist is Leslie Masters. The painting is her visual diary of the sky for a year. She has included the names of the months and occasionally where she was or what she was doing.

Staff photos by Jerry Zolynsky

"how much I would miss it." As a result, she has maintained the discipline of painting each day and will have paintings in the show in which she documented things that happened to her over a month's time. "Once I got used to painting everyday, I couldn't give it up."

THIS FOLLOWS HER "now" philosophy, "It makes you appreciate the everydayness more to stay in the 'now'," she said, adding that she doesn't want to wish her life away, but, rather enjoy and savor each moment. So, she walks out on her dock to see the sunrise each morning and everyday, she makes a piece of art. And she may be out there at night as well. After living in Troy for many years, the bigger, star-filled night sky is another delight.

Masters has a degree in fine arts from Indiana University and is a master's degree candidate at University of Michigan. She has been in individual and group shows at Rubiner Gallery of West Bloomfield, Lafayette Art Center, Lafayette, Ind., Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, Canton Art Institute. Canton, Ohio, Detroit Artists Market and the Pontiac Art Center among

Turn cleanup time into a game

Q: I have two small children who pull things down faster than I can pick up. I try to get them to help but they balk. Can you give me some guidelines for helping them become more organized?

A: Probably even cave women fought that same battle and human nature hasn't changed much over the centuries. What has changed is the amount of "stuff" available for children to misplace.

Rule No. 1 is to move extraneous items out of children's reach. Analyze how many tossed items were actually played with and how many were merely waylaid because they were there.

Pick those latter items up for the last time and put them out of the line of fire.

For instance, if your toddler destroys your stack of magazines every day, stand them up in a book shelf out of his/her reach. Store away your knickknacks (which will save you dusting, too).

Teach them not to become

"savers" and cycle toys regularly. Watch which toys are played with and which just get dragged out and dropped. Store away or dispose of unwanted items.

NEVER SEND preschoolers into a room covered with toys and insist they clean it all up at once. That is far too overwhelming and they will likely cry, "I can't do that!" - and they'll be right.

Instead teach them to break cleanup down into units. Have one child pick up doll clothes and another action figures, for example. Or break down the job geographically, having each child clean up one small specific area

Establish routines of toy pickup at certain times each day when they aren't too tired. Work right along with your little ones.

MAKE GAMES out of cleaning so it's a fun, "quality" time instead of an irritating confrontation.

Have them pretend it's an Easter Egg Hunt or they're solving a mystery by finding "clues" while hunting for certain categories of toys. Provide small rewards for all who cooperate. Use your imagination and your children won't mind helping.

As your children mature, have family meetings during which chores are agreed upon.

Ensure your children aren't the only ones required to do the "dirty work" by taking your own turn at those jobs as well.

Also, get their involvement in deciding what rewards they'll receive for cooperating. Be sure these meetings are upbeat, fun and uncritical.

PUT YOUR children in charge of their own work. If you tell your 6year-old to make his bed, be sure he understands your standards

If he doesn't meet those criteria, explain nicely and ask if he'd like your help. (He will, trust me.) Then ask, "What would you like me to do?", letting him be the responsible party. Finally, compliment him on his specific accomplishment.

Remember that, in the same way children love hearing the same story over and over, they also have to be taught over and over, too. It's difficult now, but they'll profit from your patience throughout their

And it's the community planners bers who are entrusted with that responsibility.

There are no statutory requirements for becoming a planning commission or zoning board of appeal member, according to Michigan Society of Planning Officials executive director Helen Willis.

Normally, when you are appointed they hand you a book and say there you go.'

Generally speaking, these people are not experts in the building field, but are doctors, lawyers, retirees, housewives and business men and

"They come in with different notions and backgrounds - having members with different ideas is important," she said.

But planning know how? Most people have to learn on the job, Willis said from her Rochester office. "That is the primary purpose for MSPO - education.' 'The purpose of planning is to create a community and preserve a quality of life so that people will stay there," Willis said.

FOR MANY YEARS, planning commission and zoning board of appeal members relied on professional staff and paid consultants, but as the job has become increasingly complex, it becomes imperative that planning commission members have a solid foundation on which to make decisions. Willis said.

"Planners are not technicians, and planning is a fairly technical process," she said. "It takes two years for a person to just begin to feel comfortable with the responsibili-

MSPO's educational programs reduce the time it takes to turn a business person into a community

There is tremendous turnover on planning commissions and zoning boards of appeal. With roughly 1,800 planning bodies statewide, with five to nine members each, it's not surprising that more than 10,000 people have attended the MSPO seminars,

THESE PEOPLE help write zonand zoning boards of appeal mem- ing ordinances, approve site plans, approve variances and take testimony from residents on a project's impacts, she said. They prepare community master plans, grant exceptions, create special land uses, review site plans - and those are the simple tasks, Willis said.

> In April, MSPO will present seven advanced seminars to its members on new ways to control development like strategic plans, overlay zoning, performance zoning, open space protection, historic preservation, farmland protection, access regulations, corridor plans tax increment financing and tax abatements - to name just a few, she said.

Willis said all benefit from an educated planning commission - the community, the residents - even builders. "I think they would rather work with a knowledgeable commission than one that doesn't know what

In talks with builders, Willis said that the number one complaint builders have about planning commissions are they are inconsistent. A rule doesn't always apply.

"A good developer and a good planning commission will make a good development." Willis said.

Smith Horton, Plymouth Township trustee and liaison to the planning commission said organizations like MSPO are particularly helpful to new members learning the ropes.

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP has only recently joined MSPO, he said, but there are other ways to educate members on the techniques and tools of planning Plymouth Township has relied on its planning staff, trips to new developments, in-house workshops and a close working relationship between new and old members

History of planning reflects development of region

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

The Michigan Society of Planning Officials as an organization has existed for many years, but its focus has changed as planning and issues have changed.

In 1945, 49 municipal planners from throughout Michigan met to create a forum for the exchange of information on planning practices and principles, to stimulate interest in planning, and to further the interests and purposes of community planning, former MSPO president

Leech wrote in The History of the Michigan Society of Planning Offi-

After formation, MSPO undertook the task of monitoring the planning activity throughout the state and even began lobbying the state legislature for land planning legislation, Leech wrote.

The organization's quick growth in the late 1950s and early 1960s reflected the post-war baby boom. The scope of the organization evolved from essentially an urban planning focus to broad-based planning deand Petoskey city planner Brad signed to accommodate the new suburban growth in townships and small cities, and included such rudimentary concepts as suburban migration; a lack of zoning in townships; sewer, road and water line extensions; annexation; and the planning of new subdivisions, Leech wrote.

> By the late 1960s, MSPO's emphasis returned to the plight of the urban centers. Planners became aware that there were many social problems and consequences of urban planning. MSPO responded to the 'crisis of the cities" by exploring the idea of regional planning, Leech

ALTHOUGH THE idea never took a solid hold, regional planning eventually resurfaced in the form of the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG). Today, suburban Detroit leaders are taking a second look at various forms of regional planning, Leech wrote.

In the 1970s, MSPO responded to a growing wave of environmental and conservation concerns. Its educational and lobbying efforts resulted in several significant acts, including Natural Rivers Act, and a 1971 Amendment to the Solid Waste Act of 1965, Leech wrote.

Other issues relating to land use management were also explored throughout the 1970s.

But by 1980, the group - after noting the decrease in federal and state funding for planning education and promotion - returned to its original course of promoting the education of those planners and zoning members, MSPO executive director Helen Willis said.

'We don't (lobby) - we may give the Shorelines Protection Act, the the pros and cons on legislation, but we do not take a stance on whether it should be approved," Willis said.

> Today, the group has broadened its scope to educate township, county landscape and other land planners,

MSPO accomplishes its educational goals through several means, including its planning and zoning seminars, its annual meeting, a quarterly magazine, a bimonthly newsletter, and an opportunity to share ideas with more than 3,600 members, Wil-

Condominium requires independent advice

We live in a conversion condominium and I am on the advisory committee. The developer has not been cooperative dealing with construction defects and deficiencies that we have discovered at the site and has hired a management company that we understand represent a number of developers in the city at condominiums. The management company has apparently been utilizing contractors affiliated with the management company, including the CPA. Several of us think that the management agent and the developer are in cahoots. What can we do?

The condominium documents should describe the process by which the turnover of control of the association will take place as required by the state condominium act. One of the purposes of the advisory committee is to serve as a conduit for communication between the developer and the members of the association. While it does not have any real legal power, it can serve as a learning experience for those who serve on the advisory committee, many of whom eventually end up serving on the first co-owner controlled board of directors. I would request the developer to advise you as to how many units have been sold in the project and as to when the turnover of control of the board of directors of the associaton will take place. I would also be interviewing new management companies, an independent CPA and other professionals who do not have any legal, financial or economic tie-in with either the developer of the manage-these people even before the turnover. Even if the developer does not fund the retention of counsel, a CPA etc. for the advisory committee in behalf of the members of the association, it should try to raise funds of a volunteer basis from among the members of the association. Your argument to the members of the association will be that the developer in your view is abusing its prerogatives in an unhealthy relationship with the management firm and that it is necessary for the members of the association to retain independent and objective outside assistance to deal with the obvious problems at the condominium project.

We are concerned about the amount of ice that builds up on our streets in our condominium. As a co-owner, I have written the board of directors on several occasions and requested that it provide more salt. It has indicated that economically the association cannot afford to do so. I am worried about slips and falls. What can I do to convince the board to deal with this problem?

One of the responsibilities of a board of directors is to maintain the safety of the condominium project. An item of basic maintenance is to insure those common areas over which the association has responsibility for maintenance and repair are properly attended to, including reasonably attempting to keep the roads and sidewalks from ice and snow. To the extent that the board can take reasonable precautions to avoid icing by way of salting, etc., it should do so. The fact that it claims that it does not have the economic means to do so is really no excuse as the board, in any condominium association, has the ability to increase asessments sufficiently to meet the reasonable needs of the association, whether it be the salting of roads or prosecution of litigation, as the case may be. I would write each member of the board advising them of what you consider to be this precarious situation and reminding them that they may well be deemed personally liable as well as the association. Perhaps you can scare them into submitting to their legal responsibilities even if they have to raise the necessary funds, if that be the case, to properly run the

HOROSCOPE

March 17 through March 23 PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

This a good week to take it easy. Those uptight feelings you've been experiencing will melt away with good old-fashioned fun.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Meeting new people will bring you great joy. Taking up a new hobby or activity now will give you a sense of accomplishment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Concentrate on career concerns this week. When times get tough, make sure you have your facts straight. Be prepared to confront opponents.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Stick with what you know and things will work out. Complete projects you have already started, rather than undertaking new ones.

You will need an outlet for your creative energy. Put excess energy to work doing good for those who are less fortunate than you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
It seems you are surrounded by tension. Avoid conflict because no good will come of it. Know this difficult time will pass quickly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Take a close look at yourself. Certain areas of your life haven't been what you expected, but you have the power to change it all if you want.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
Finances take priority. Managing money well could bring you a big windfall. Don't spend it before you actually have it in your hands.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
A friend needs you to lend a helping hand. Give them all the support you can and listen carefully. You benefit from helping this person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
Don't let friends and relatives get you down. Take off for some time on your own and think about what is really most important to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You inspire one who is close to you.
Your wise words could change this person's life dramatically. Don't get too involved with this person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Don't let your emotions get the better of you. Keep your head together and rely on others to pick up the extra work load.

'Wolves' threatens to run away with Oscar

Costner's western leads the pack

By Amy Schmidt

Tinsel Town's biggest night of the year will culminate Monday, March 25, with "The 63rd Annual Academy Awards." ABC will broadcast the Hollywood gala live from the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles.

Front and center with the most nominations is Kevin Costner and his western drama "Dances With Wolves." "Dances With Wolves." "Dances With Wolves." scored 12 nominations, the same number as 1981's "Reds," and one short of the 13 nominations received by 1966's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

Costner's film is the first western to be nominated since 1969, and would be only the second ever to win. ("Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" (1969) was the last western nominated; "Cimmarron" (1931) captured best picture.)

Runners-up in the most-nominated category are "Dick Tracy" and "The Godfather Part III" with seven; "GoodFellas" follows with six; "Cyrano de Bergerac" and "Ghost" each with five.

Vying for this year's 24 Oscars will be film professionals from 223 movies. The top nominees include:

Picture: "Awakenings," "Dances With Wolves," "Ghost," "The Godfather Part III," "GoodFellas"

Director: Kevin Costner, "Dances With Wolves"; Francis Ford Coppola, "The Godfather Part III"; Martin Scorsese, "GoodFellas"; Stephen Frears, "The Grifters"; Barbet Schroeder, "Reversal of Fortune"

Actor: Kevin Costner, "Dances With Wolves"; Robert De Niro, "Awakenings"; Gerard Depardieu, "Cyrano de Bergerac"; Richard Harris, "The Field"; Jeremy Irons, "Reversal of Fortune"

Actress: Kathy Bates, "Misery"; Angelica Huston, "The Grifters"; Julia Roberts, "Pretty Woman", Meryl Streep, "Postcards From the Edge"; Joanne Woodward, "Mr. and Mrs. Bridge"

Supporting Actor: Bruce Davison, "Longtime Companion"; Andy Garcia, "The Godfather Part III"; Graham Greene, "Dances With Wolves"; Al Pacino, "Dick Tracy"; Joe Pesci, "GoodFellas"

Supporting Actress: Annette Bening, "The Grifters"; Lorraine Bracco, "GoodFellas"; Whoopi Goldberg, "Ghost", Diane Ladd, "Wild at Heart"; Mary McDonnell, "Dances With Wolves"

An Oscar first would occur if Costner wins best director and best actor trophies. No actor/director has ever done so. A win by Graham Greene would be the first win by a Native American. A win by "The Godfather Part III" would be the first win by a "three-quel" and would mean a best picture sweep by the mafioso series.

Two honorary Oscars will be awarded during the ceremonies, one to actress Myrna Loy ("The Thin Man"), and one to the legendary Sophia Loren. Last year's host Billy Crystal, returns as emcee this year, and Bob Hope will make this 27th appearance on the show.

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN Executive Director, SW Oakland Cable Comm.

It was Saturday and we had just moved into our new oftices and studio. Boxes were piled high and we had no phones. I was camped out to oversee the painting contractors for the day. Peeking around the corner were two sets of eager eves with glowing grins on their faces. Meet the co-producers of the new monthly series. "The Cosmic Connection" Jill Turley and Fran McClellan Jill is a counselor at Harrison High School and Fran is in promotion for 96.3 Radio. They have been friends and business partners for years. With all the television options in our area they decided to become reaquainted with us.

Preproducing their show with Joan Lillie of MetroVision, they decided to capitalize on Fran's natural, insightful characteristics and center their show around Metaphysics. Fran has been unusually aware of her capabilities since six years old and at the age of thirty-eight she felt centident enough to pursue learning more of this phenomena. She is a member of the Astrological Association and had training in California.

Jill is a natural organizer who understands production and she also has people skills and professional training which will help to create a very well-tuned team as a production crew.

The objective of 'The Cosmic Connection' will be to develop an awareness and an understanding of the 'Aquarian Age' Guests will include local celebrities such as Michael J. Fox and they are also gathering their resources to bring on movie stars who come to Detroit. The show will encourage residents to be part of a studio audience and there will be a segment for live call-in questions. Evelyn Button, a teacher-lecturer will be co-host with Fran McClennan. Her expertise is in providing Astrological Predictions

A very unusual feature is the introduction of the Tederington family Mary and Todd Tederington have a three month old sen Tory. The family is interested in the Astrological phenomena, which surrounds their lives. An Astrological chart will be created for Tory. The show will feature Tory through home video clips and the shows followers may follow. Tory's development.

The Cosmic Connection program will have expenses Preproduction for Community Television everywhere is a very creative process whereby resourceful people use new found treasures in their attics, cellars and garages; and search for funding to reimburse or funding to underwrite costs or services.

Grants for Community Television usually deal with the material expenses and usually do not allow for labor cost. Every show will have considerations for promotional items such as posters, flyers, newsletters or ads. Most print shops and even duplicating services have artists or staff to assist those of us whose artistic flare leans to a different medium.

Supplies and Materials can add up to include props, new sets artifical plants, cue cards or costumes. Research materials may need to go beyond a library or a supplier and therefore have an expense.

Production Services such as having large 'special effect props hauled: or expenses for talent such as appearance fees; lodging and food expenses if the talent is from out of state; graphics or artwork could be a subcontract and supply expense, special effects such as design cookies or artifical environment inducement such as a fog machine or a fan for a wind effect will have costs. Copyright approved music is usually subscribed to by a studio One may select to secure the rights and poy the fees 'per needle drop' for a special musical score

Grants may also cover miscellaneous expenses for such items as long distance telephone cells mileage for budgeted out of town projects (necessary for B-roll), child care with documented studio or edit schedule, mass photocopying necessary for on-location distribution, or registration fees or entrance fees

Once an organization has established a television grant program there is always a procedure necessary to ask for the funding This may seem belabered however, this process is necessary to assure two things One is that your follow-through will also indicate your serious intent and commitment to your television project. The second, is that money for such grants is a privilege and only those who genuinely need the funds should apply for them. This process will assure the serious producer that their competition for money is playing on a level field

Grant forms and contracts will ask for several levels of detailed information. The first form will have you detail your request for financial help. A

ABC goes to Cuba for Pan Am Games

By Steve Paschal

Discerning fans of television sports received a double shot of good news recently when ABC Sports introduced a series of educational vignettes and announced that it had reached an agreement with the Cuban Government to broadcast the 1991 Pan Am Games from Havana

For decades ABC has hilled itself as the leader in television sports. Although the network faces stiff competition for Nielsen numbers from CBS and NBC, the moves prove 4BC has renewed the commitment to excellence it first made with the ground-breaking Wide World of Sports almost three

The vignettes, which debuted on Wide World of Sports Feb 16 will run throughout the year. They cover a wide range of sports and show the relation ship between sports science and technology
