Bag tags

There is now a fifth site where city of Plymouth residents can buy garbage bags or tags—Kroger's at 44505 W. Ann Arbor Road.

The price is $10 for a set of 10. Other locations are Danny's supermarket, the fire department, recycling center and department of public works.

Joe Russell, solid waste coordinator, said that residents' yard waste is collected free if placed in either a clear bag or container specifically marked for yard waste only. Residents are asked not to rake yard waste to the curb.

School speaker

Sally Adler will hold a workshop for parents on Thursday at 7 p.m. at Hoben Elementary School, 44680 Saltz Road, in Canton. She will discuss the need for partnerships between parents and teachers.

Adler is the mother of four and is a specialist in family life and child development at Eastern Michigan University.

The workshop is being held in celebration of "The Month of the Young Child."

Rockette show

The Plymouth Salem High School pompon squad and other students will hold a show on Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Plymouth Salem High School auditorium in the school at Joy and Canton Center roads.

The talent show, "Good Times," will feature the Rockettes. Tickets are $4 at the door and $3 in advance. Pompon squad members are selling the tickets.

Geography bee

Two Plymouth-Canton students were among the top 10 finalists in the third annual National Geographic Geography Bee held recently at Central Michigan University.

Steve Decker, a seventh grader at West Middle School, placed second in the contest and Christian Casper, an eighth grader at East Middle School, won sixth place. The students competed against the top fourth through eighth grade geography students in the state.

Decker will be an alternate in the national competition to be held in Washington D.C.

War hero to get red carpet treatment

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The public is invited to a hero's welcome for a decorated Marine who was scheduled to return Sunday from the Middle East.

At 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Mayflower Hotel south entrance, a life and drum and color guard will greet the return of Marine Capt. Douglas Kleinsmith, a former Mayflower employee, said Creon Smith, hotel co-owner.

The hotel's red carpet will be rolled out and a proclamation read upon his arrival at the Mayflower.

City to honor Gulf War veterans July 4

Plans are under way to honor on the Fourth of July all Plymouth community men and women who served in the Gulf War.

The Plymouth Chamber of Commerce recently announced that the Plymouth city manager and Plymouth Township supervisor will read proclamations at the Fourth of July ceremony, and "a token of our appreciation for each of the soldiers" will also be presented, said Fran Toney, chamber executive director.

"The board (of directors) welcomes suggestions from all members of the community for ways to make this special recognition a memorable occasion," said Gerald Triplett, chamber board president.

"We are proud of these men and women and want them to know it," he added.

Those interested in joining the recognition effort may call 453-1540 or write the chamber office at 386 S. Main St.

and his family feel good," said Smith.

Smith stressed that the public is invited, adding that he hopes for a big turnout.

His mother, Carolyn Kleinsmith, said, "I'm glad he made it back and that he made it back alive, I'm proud of what he did."

Kleinsmith, a 1981 Plymouth Salem High graduate, was awarded the Bronze Star for his role in "maintaining his position at an outpost between the border and Khafji (Saudi Arabia) when Iraqi forces crossed the border and overran several outposts," said Carolyn Kleinsmith.

Kleinsmith's brother Jeff Kleinsmith, formerly with the Air Force and now serving in the U.S. Secret Service, said his brother and a group of five remained in Khafji, giving Allied forces the positions of enemy forces.

"They would call in for the big guns," he said, from ships or armed helicopters.

Group to catalog historic buildings

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Those who don't know their history are "doomed to repeat it," the saying goes.

But a group of folks studying Plymouth's architectural history is hoping to encourage residents planning house renovations to indeed repeat history.

"We're going to be cataloging all the properties in the city that are over 50 years old," said Mark Oppat of the city's historic district study committee.

THE PURPOSE is twofold. Noting the architectural style of each house "allows them to do any improvements or additions in the character of the original building style," Oppat said.

Renovations that follow the style of the dwelling can increase property values more than a slapped-together addition, he said.

Also, historic district study committee members plan to come up with a historic district in Plymouth, Oppat said.

OPPAT SAID the cataloging will begin in May, and could take as long as two years to complete.

"I think the primary focus is to get people to appreciate what they have," he said.

"I think the biggest thing is it helps to preserve the heritage of our community," said Douglas Miller, committee chairman. "And those kinds of things tend to increase the value of property and the viability of a commercial district."

Miller offered Northville as an example of a community where attention to historic preservation has helped the town's commercial district.

"I THINK the trick is we need to develop an (historic renovation) ordinance that doesn't force people to do

Airport dispute sparks civil suit

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The fight over Mettetal Airport, which has sparked court action to stop public ownership of the airport, has now sparked a civil lawsuit.

Plymouth city commissioner John Vos has filed suit against Plymouth Concerned Citizens in Wayne County Circuit Court.

He charges that the citizens group, which opposes the joint Plymouth-Township purchase of the Canton airport with federal and state grants, falsely accused him of violating the public trust in his role as city commissioner.

VOS, AN attorney elected to the city commission in November 1989, maintains that a court complaint drafted but never filed by Plymouth Concerned Citizens attorney James Romzek states that city commissioners "ignored the desires of the citizens of their communities . . . inexcusable given the gravity of the issues which they have failed to address and the potential burden they have placed upon the taxpayers of their communities."

The citizens group maintains that locally collected taxes will eventually be used to support the airport. City commissioners and township trustees backing the effort said no such money will be used.

The draft complaint "contains numerous statements, inferences, innuendos, charges and allegations imputing wrongful acts, conspiracy and violations of plaintiff's oath for public office," Vos said in his complaint filed in circuit court.

A retraction was requested "and to date no retraction or apology has been made," he said.

FURTHER, HE maintains the complaint was distributed to the press. It was "calculated to cause great injury to plaintiff's (Vos) professional and public reputation and to hold him up to public scorn, hatred and ridicule," he said.

Judge rules against board immunity in Nalepa case

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Deborah and Lawrence Nalepa of Canton have won a victory over Plymouth-Canton Community Schools in Wayne County Circuit Court.

The Nalepas' 8-year-old son, Stephen, hung himself a day after viewing "Nobody's Useless," a film depicting a handicapped boy attempting suicide, at Gallimore Elementary School in March 1990.

The Nalepas sued, charging school officials including Superintendent John Hoben and the board of education with gross negligence. Recommended for fourth through ninth graders, the film was not screened by staff before it was shown to Stephen's second-grade class.

Attorneys for the district argued that governmental immunity extends to school officials.

Wayne Circuit Judge Samuel Turner ruled that school superintendents, teachers, school board members and school psychologists do not enjoy absolute immunity.

"To be afforded the protection intended for high executive officials, the official must enjoy broad-based jurisdiction or wield extensive authority similar to a judge or an administrator," the judge said.

"In addition," wrote Turner, "the court agrees with the plaintiffs that there exists a genuine issue of material fact for the jury to determine whether the defendants' malfeasance constituted a gross negligence."

NAMED IN the suit are Superintendent John Hoben, director of elementary education Shirley Spaniel; the board of education; Gallimore principal Joyce Deren; school psychologist Jacquelyn Hisey; school social worker William O'Connor; school media specialist Anne Wood-Khafji after the outpost lost its support from circling Cobras (helicopters running low on fuel). Capt. Kleinsmith led his team and 22 men through a salt marsh with the loss of all communication with the main forces to his rear," Carolyn Kleinsmith said.

"For 12 hours he and his team were thought to be dead," she added.

But the group returned to Allied lines, eventually rejoined the battle in Khafji, and were among troops that liberated Kuwait City, Jeff Kleinsmith said.

One member of Kleinsmith's group, Cpl. John Calhoun, personally briefed Generals Powell and Schwarzkopf on the team's work.

A celebration was planned after Kleinsmith's arrival Sunday at his mother's Plymouth house.

Also, he's been asked to speak to the Plymouth Kiwanis, to classes at Plymouth Salem High, and to an assembly at his former grade school, Allen Elementary.

Kleinsmith, a 1985 University of Michigan grad, is married to Astrid, a U.S. Air Force captain. His youngest brother Erik is an Army lieutenant.

Vos files civil suit

"I never gave a copy to anybody; how the press got it I have no idea," Romzek responded.

He called Vos' suit "malicious and frivolous." Vos was not specifically mentioned in the draft complaint, he said.

IF Plymouth Concerned Citizens

"wish to attack me, this is one individual that fights back," Vos said.

The suit was filed in February before Judge Richard P. Hathaway; no further court date has been set on the suit.

Romzek said a court action he filed to stop the two communities from using public money to buy the airport is now pending before the state Court of Appeals.

things they don't want to do," Miller said.

The committee would likely seek voluntary compliance with such an ordinance, he said. Other communities have been successful using the same approach, he said.

"What we'd really like to try to do is generate some public interest in the project," Miller said.

Help from the public will be needed, if the committee is to meet its goal of researching the background of historic houses.

The historic district study committee meets the second and fourth Mondays of each month at Plymouth City Hall. The meetings are open to the public.

No gap in downtown postal service expected

There will be no gap between the time the downtown Plymouth post office closes and a smaller lobby-size post office opens downtown.

That's the word from postal officials in Washington, as relayed to U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell and then to City Manager Gordon Jaeger.

U.S. Postal Service officials earlier announced their intention to build a new main post office to serve the Plymouth community. That building, on Beck Road in Plymouth township, is near completion and expected to open in late June, Jaeger said.

By a plan announced earlier, the postal service is now offering the Penniman Avenue post office building, first to federal government agencies. Should none take it, the building would next be offered to state government agencies, then local.

Jaeger said Plymouth officials have so far expressed no interest in acquiring the building.

If no government agencies take it, the building would be offered for public sale.

During this 90-day period, Jaeger said, "The lobby service will remain there," according to postal officials.

"When it's determined what's going to happen they will seek out the new (downtown) space," Jaeger said.

"There will not be a gap," he continued, between the time the Penniman Avenue post office closes and a smaller downtown site opens.

Homecoming

Paul Faunce, an Air Force reservist called to duty in the Gulf War, returned home to Plymouth on Thursday. For his homecoming, his parents' neighborhood on Harvey Street was decorated in red, white and blue. Above, he holds hands with his daughter, Ana, 10. His wife, Silvia, and son, James, 12, were on hand for the event.

Alatola; and teachers Jane Armstrong, Norma Foster and Alice Brown.

Also being sued are Encyclopedia Britannica Educational Corp. of Chicago, the film distributor; film maker Osmond Productions Inc.; and the Wayne-Oakland Library Federation, which supplied the film.

Hoben was unavailable for comment. Deren said she hadn't yet seen the opinion and therefore couldn't comment.

The district's community relations director Richard Egli said that "because the case is still in the discovery process, it would not be appropriate to comment on it."

"What is happening is very preliminary in the process, so it really isn't at any point when comment would be appropriate. It strikes me as a formality rather than anything substantive."

Deborah Nalepa declined comment, saying "I want to defer to my lawyers right now."

Nalepa's attorney, Mary Katherine Norton, said, "We think the judge's decision was right," also declining further comment.

"Nobody's Useless" is based on the 1896 children's book "The Great Brain." In it, a young boy loses his leg to an infection. Depressed, the boy attempts suicide twice. First he tries jumping off a bridge. Then he tries hanging himself from a loft in a barn. Neither attempt is successful, and the boy eventually is convinced that his life is worth living.

Stephen Nalepa was found by his 10-year-old brother with a belt around his neck hanging from his loft.

Greenhills plans benefit

Greenhills School of Ann Arbor will hold a benefit auction on Friday, April 19, at the Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth.

The co-chairs of the annual event, Gail Buczek and Pam Anderson, both live in Plymouth.

A silent auction will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by a gourmet dinner and the live auction at 8:30 p.m. There are many special items available to be auctioned. The items include: lunch with Ernie Harwell; private ice skating lessons with a Russian star; vacations in Hawaii, Spain and California; and special parties.

The auction is expected to raise $80,000 and profits from this year's auction will support scholarships and enrichment programs for students. Of the current students, about one in seven receive financial aid.

The $75 admission ticket includes hor d'oeuvres, gourmet dinner and complimentary wine. Call 769-4010 for more information.

No suspects in radiator theft crime watch

Sixty radiators valued at $1,000 were discovered missing Thursday from Haggerty Metal Yard in Plymouth Township, according to a report filed with township police.

Police said they have no suspects or leads on the theft from the business at 14050 Haggerty. The report did not state how thieves entered the business.

RING STOLEN: A diamond and emerald ring valued at $1,000 was discovered missing Thursday from a Plymouth Township house, according to a report filed with township police.

The woman filing the complaint said she suspected two people recently doing work in her home. She told police she didn't see both workers at all times, adding she'll pursue charges if the property is not returned, according to the police report.

Detroit faces murder charges

Following the killing of a former Plymouth woman in Detroit, an 18-year-old Detroit man was charged Thursday in Detroit Recorder's Court with first degree murder.

A not guilty plea was entered on behalf of Erik Webster by Judge John Patrick O'Brien, to charges of first-degree murder, two counts of armed robbery and a felony firearms charge.

Nicole Ann Cash, 22, who had attended Plymouth Salem High, was murdered March 29 in her Detroit house after two men forced their way in while she was inside, Detroit police said. Police said the second suspect in the incident remains at large.

"What happened is during the commission of this larceny Nicole Cash was killed," assistant prosecuting attorney Steven Googasian charged.

Webster's attorney, Monsey Wilson, declined comment on the case.

Planners cheer Geer restoration progress

By Julie Brown
staff writer

GEER SCHOOL'S been closed for nearly 10 years, but you can still see the enthusiasm on George Dodson's face when he talks about teaching there.

"Oh, it was like magic," Dodson said of the years he spent at Geer, 1965 to 1967. "I love this school."

Dodson retired as principal of Smith Elementary School in Plymouth a couple of years ago. He's among area residents working on the restoration of Geer School, on Plymouth Road at Gotfredson, just into Washtenaw County.

Thursday was a proud day for committee members. The new cupola was hoisted by crane to the school roof. Students in Bud Amiatek's advanced wood technology class at Centennial Educational Park made the cupola.

"They just did an outstanding job," Dodson said.

RESTORATION WORK began several years ago, and is scheduled to be completed this fall. Plans are to have fourth graders from the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools visit Geer for a week at a time.

"You know, kids learn so many different ways," he said. Attending classes at Geer will help youngsters learn about school days in the late 19th century.

"That's the idea, just a part of our history. They can visualize as well as hear and study about how schools operated in that time," Dodson said. "They get excited about something like this."

Committee members are also excited about the progress. It's mostly interior work that still needs to be done.

"Everything's come together finally and it's an awfully good feeling," he said. "It's been long and arduous. We've had to raise money as we've gone along."

Organizers have held fund-raising sales and social functions. The restoration project will cost a little more than $100,000, he said. Private donations, including those made through the school district's Educational Excellence Foundation, have paid for nearly all the work.

Elaine Kirchgatter, another restoration committee member, is looking forward to the school's opening. She never taught at Geer or had a child attend classes there, but does have ties to the school.

KIRCHGATTER AND her husband are friends of Rita McClumpha's, the last teacher at Geer, and McClumpha's husband. The men are partners in a local veterinary practice.

Visiting a more rural setting and learning about history will be rewarding, Kirchgatter said. The program will give students an opportunity to "understand how people lived in the late 1800s, not just going to school but the whole lifestyle of that time," she said. "Many of our teachers are looking forward to this experience."

That lifestyle included the absence of indoor plumbing, and that's something students at Geer will experience. Plans are to build an outhouse behind the school.

"We wonder how long we can go before the kids want a heater in it," Dodson said with a smile.

While indoors, students will sit at desks reminiscent of those of the late 1800s. A modern furnace rather than a pot-bellied stove will heat the building, and regular lights will be used rather than lanterns or candles.

The fourth graders won't be required to walk the fabled 5 miles through the snow to get to Geer, but will learn about school days in other ways.

"Oh, I think it was harder," Dodson said of school 100 years ago or thereabouts. "They didn't take it for granted back then." Those students left school in early May each year to help out on family farms.

GEER SCHOOL, a one-room schoolhouse, was built in 1880.

"The people out here voted to annex themselves to Plymouth," Dodson said. Geer continued to function as a regular school until the early 1980s.

Kirchgatter was on the Board of Education when the decision was made to close Geer.

"It was a financial decision," she said. "We could not afford to keep it going." School officials wouldn't have been able to provide hot lunches and other required programs at Geer.

Geer wasn't forgotten throughout the 1980s, however.

"The real focus came from the people who live in this area," Kirchgatter said. They joined forces with others interested in keeping the area's historic landmarks alive. The building was in pretty good shape structurally, she said, and that helped things go more smoothly with the restoration.

Some committee members watched last week as the cupola was carefully placed on the roof. A city of Plymouth Department of Public Works crane was used. The white cupola arrived around 10 a.m. Thursday on the back of a Plymouth-Canton Community Schools maintenance truck.

It took a little time to get the cupola to its final resting place on the roof, but it was worth the wait. The brick building now looks even more like an old-fashioned school. Organizers plan to put the original school bell in the cupola.

Chuck Hanlin directs the crane as the cupola is lifted.

One of the workers checks the interior of the cupola.

Restoration committee members Elaine Kirchgatter and George Dodson look through some Polaroid photos of the work being done.

Howard Walker, who attended Geer School from 1908 to 1916, watches the workers.

Battle heating up over state assessment freeze

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Unable to agree on property tax cuts, Michigan lawmakers are edging toward a two-year freeze on assessments — bickering bitterly while they do that.

The state Senate gave 33-0 approval to what Finance Committee chair Nick Smith called "a property tax rollback."

"For 1991, because the assessment process is completed, we amend the Truth in Taxation section of the property tax law and say that voters — not the boards — may increase rates."

Carl Battishill, a member of the Plymouth Canton school board, said the measure would "kill us," and added: "We'll lose $10 million over the next two years."

In 1992 assessments would be frozen at current levels, said Smith, R-Hillsdale.

TO MICHIGAN property owners, already paying $7 billion a year, the bill means:

- $233 million in savings this year. Nevertheless, local units will see a $382 million revenue growth due to new construction.

- $252 million in savings in 1992. Local units will see revenue growth of $414 million due to new construction.

Tax bills, particularly on suburban and Great Lakes residential property, have been soaring because of assessment increases during much of the 1980s.

Smith's chart showed revenue growths of $187 million in 1984, $218 million in 1985, $258 million in 1986, $364 million in 1987, $547 million in 1988, $630 million in 1989, and $725 million in 1990. Without the new bill, he said, revenue growth would be $710 million this year and $682 million next year.

The measure is House Bill 4109. Because the Senate made amendments, the bill goes back to the House for concurrence. Senators voted to give it immediate effect, meaning it would become law as soon as Gov. John Engler signs it.

All area senators voted for it on final passage except Democrats Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills and William Faust of Westland who had excused absences. Republican Doug Cruce of Troy resigned from the Senate two days earlier.

A PARTY-LINE vote of 15 to 19 rejected a Democratic amendment that would have tie-barred the freeze bill with a proposed constitutional amendment (House Joint Resolution H) to cap future assessment increases at the federal consumer price index.

As the CPI has risen 4.5 percent a year, rising suburban housing prices pushed up assessments and property tax bills 10 to 20 percent a year.

The amendment by John Cherry, D-Clio, asked that the two-year freeze bill not take effect unless the Legislature placed HJR H on the 1992 ballot. "We'll look ridiculous going home and saying we need to study this (H) a little bit more," Cherry said.

Smith said the tactic could backfire. If lawmakers failed to get a two-thirds vote to place HJR H on the ballot, the freeze bill would automatically be defeated.

But Republicans said they support the concept of HJR H.

"THE SPONSOR (Cherry) is well intentioned," added Fred Dillingham, R-Powerville, assistant majority leader. "But I've been around these chambers 13 years. We start with an agreement. Then someone says, 'We need one more thing.' And someone else says, 'We need one more thing.'"

"So we take what starts as a simple thing, and it becomes so complicated and burdened that it fails in the Senate or fails at the polls.

"We should work for what we can achieve. This bill is possible. It begins to solve part of the problem. As soon as we compound it (by tie-barring to HJR H), then I have to add amendments also. It becomes compounded, complicated and doomed. Don't let's create a camel."

Voting to reject Cherry's tie-bar amendment were Republicans Mat Dunaskis of Lake Orion, Robert Geake of Northville and David Honigman of West Bloomfield.

Supporters included Democrat George Z. Hart of Dearborn.

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING SPECIFIED SECTIONS OF THE SOLID WASTE DISPOSAL ORDINANCE CHAPTER 72 OF THE CODE OF ORDINANCES

ORDINANCE NO. C-91-02 SOLID WASTE DISPOSAL ORDINANCE

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING SECTION 72.025(B) (3), 72.027(b), 72.070(g) AND 72.075(c) OF CHAPTER 72 (SOLID WASTE DISPOSAL ORDINANCE) OF THE ORDINANCES OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH, ESTABLISHING THE PROCEDURE FOR THE COLLECTION OF COMPOSTABLES FROM APRIL 1 THROUGH NOVEMBER 30 OF EACH AND EVERY YEAR; ESTABLISHING THE LIABILITY INSURANCE COVERAGE LIMITS FOR PERSONAL INJURIES AND PROPERTY DAMAGE FOR ALL SOLID WASTE HAULERS, EXCEPT TOWNSHIP CONTRACTING SOLID WASTE HAULERS, AT A MINIMUM OF ONE MILLION DOLLARS ($1,000,000.00); PROVIDING FOR THE PENALTIES FOR VIOLATION OF THE ORDINANCE; PROVIDING FOR THE SEVERABILITY OF THIS ORDINANCE; PROVIDING FOR THE REPEAL OF ALL INCONSISTENT ORDINANCES; PROVIDING FOR THE SAVINGS CLAUSE; PROVIDING FOR THE PUBLICATION OF THIS ORDINANCE AND THE EFFECT DATE THEREOF.

THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH ORDAINS:

Section 1. That Section 72.025(B) (3) of Chapter 72 of the Code of Ordinances of the Charter Township of Plymouth is hereby amended to read as follows:

72.025(B) (3). Compostables - Compostables shall be placed in approved bags and placed out for collection for the period of time from April 1 through November 30 of each and every year.

Section 2. That Section 72.027(b) of Chapter 72 of the Code of Ordinances of the Charter Township of Plymouth is hereby amended to read as follows:

72.027(b). Collection of Recyclables - The solid waste hauler shall collect all recyclable materials as defined in this Ordinance and shall be responsible to deliver all recyclable materials other than compostables to a material recovery facility (M.R.F.). All compostables collected for the period of time from April 1 through November 30 of each and every year shall be delivered to a composting facility. Recyclable materials shall not be disposed of in a disposal area, as defined in Public Act 641 of 1978, as amended, except as otherwise permitted by this Ordinance.

Section 3. That Section 72.070(g) of Chapter 72 of the Code of Ordinances of the Charter Township of Plymouth is hereby amended to read as follows:

72.070(g). Each application for a license shall be accompanied by a bond running to the Charter Township of Plymouth in the penal sum of not less than the amount of one (1) year's revenue to be realized by the licensee from the Township residents in such form as may be approved by the Township Attorney, which bond shall be signed by an approved surety duly authorized to do business in Michigan, and which bond shall be conditioned on the due observance during the time of the license of all of the laws of the State of Michigan, the Ordinances of the Charter Township of Plymouth and the approved rules and regulations of the Supervisor pertaining to the collection, removal and transportation of solid waste and all legal rights of all persons who are served by or injured by the licensee. Any persons aggrieved by the action of any private collector licensee shall have a right of action on the bond for the recovery of the damages. Such bond shall remain in full force and effect for a period of ninety (90) days after the expiration or cancellation of any such license. Each licensee shall maintain for each vehicle, the security required by law, and additional security sufficient to pay One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00) for one person injured in an accident, and One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00) for all other persons injured in an accident, and shall deposit, prior to the issuance of the license, certificates of insurance with the Township Clerk indicating such coverage. The solid waste hauler licensee shall obtain and keep in full force and effect insurance to protect the public against risk of loss from liability, including damage to property and injury to person, in a sum of not less than One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00) per occurrence caused by the actions or operations of the licensee, its officers, employees and agents. Further, the Township may require of private and Township Contractors other bonds of insurance including Worker's Compensation Insurance to insure the Township that the obligations of the contractors will be sufficiently performed and discharged, and the safety of the Township will be protected in the event that they are not.

Section 4. That Section 72.075(c) of Chapter 72 of the Code of Ordinances of the Charter Township of Plymouth is hereby amended to read as follows:

72.075(c). No solid waste hauler licensee shall dispose of collected solid waste other than by means of licensed solid waste transporting units and at disposal areas or facilities licensed pursuant to MCLA 299.402 et seq.; provided that recyclables shall be transported to materials recovery facility, provided further that during the period of time from April 1 through November 30 each and every year, compostables shall be transported to composting facilities and shall not be transported to any sanitary landfill for disposal.

Section 5. Severability. In any clause, sentence, section, paragraph, or part of this Ordinance, for the application thereof to any person, firm, corporation, legal entity or circumstances, shall be for any reason adjudged by a court of competent jurisdiction to be unconstitutional or invalid, said judgment shall not affect, impair, or invalidate the remainder of this Ordinance and the application of such provision to other persons, firms, corporations, legal entities or circumstances by said judgment shall be confirmed in its operation to the clause, sentence, section, paragraph, or part of this Ordinance thereof directly involved in the case of controversy in which said judgment shall have been rendered and to the person, firm, corporation, legal entity or circumstance then and there involved. It is hereby declared to be the legislative intent of the body that the Ordinance would have been adopted had such invalid or unconstitutional provision not been included in this Ordinance.

Section 6. Repeal. All other Ordinances inconsistent with the provisions of this Ordinance are, to the extent of such inconsistencies, hereby repealed.

Section 7. Savings Clause. The balance of Chapter 72, except as herein amended, shall remain in full force and effect. The repeal provided herein shall not abrogate or affect any offense or act committed or done, or any penalty or forfeiture incurred, or any pending fees, assessments, litigation or prosecution of any right established, occurring prior to the effective date hereof.

Section 8. Penalty. Any person, firm or corporation who shall violate or fail to comply with any provision of this Code, other than Section 72.025, shall be punished as provided in Chapter 1 of the Township Code. Each day that the violation continues after due notice has been served in accordance with the terms and provisions hereof shall be deemed a separate offense. Any person, firm or corporation who shall violate or fail to comply with Section 72.025 shall be liable for a civil infraction and shall be assessed the following civil fines:

- (1) For the first violation, a fine of not more than $25.00.
- (2) For the second or subsequent violation, a fine of not more than $100.00.

Section 9. Publication. The Township Clerk shall cause this Ordinance to be published in the manner required by law.

Section 10. Effective Date. This Ordinance is declared to be an emergency ordinance deemed necessary to provide for the public peace and health and for the safety to persons and property and is to be given immediate effect upon publication.

This Ordinance was duly adopted by the Township Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth at its regular meeting called and held on the 9th day of April, 1991, and was ordered given publication in the manner required by law.

FAA to hold airport noise hearing

Area residents will receive another opportunity to hear about and comment on noise abatement plans for Detroit Metro Airport during a public meeting 4-9 p.m. Thursday in the Radisson Hotel, 8000 Merriman, Romulus.

The Federal Aviation Administration hearing will be held in cycles, said Wayne County "noise czar" Bryan Amann.

"People will hear the entire program no matter what time they come in," he said.

The meeting concerns a proposed noise abatement test promoted by the county and FAA. Jet take off patterns are expected to be spread out over a wider number of communities during the test, reducing noise over Westland, Garden City and Livonia. The new flight patterns could become permanent if judged successful by the county and FAA.

Information on the test patterns, contained in a document entitled, "Draft Environmental Assessment For A Proposed Test of Air Traffic Control Noise Abatement Procedures at Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport," is available at area public libraries. It is also available by calling Amann's office, 224-0832. Information on a second tier of noise abatement procedures is available by calling the office of county Commissioner Susan Hubbard, 224-0934. Building on the information contained in the FAA report, the report includes 37 noise reduction options under consideration by the county's special committee on airport noise. Hubbard, D-Dearborn, is committee chairwoman.

Recommendations range from limiting ground noise to implementing curfews on nighttime flights.

Committee members plan to choose the most realistic options, Hubbard said, and will hold a public hearing on airport noise in June.

Fairlane Hudson's workers join UAW

Workers at Dayton-Hudson's Fairlane Town Center store have voted to join the UAW.

The vote was approved 246 to 232. Of 521 eligible employees, 478 voted. Because of last Friday's vote, 562 salespeople at the Dearborn store will join the union which has already organized workers at the Westland Hudson's store.

The union has won two of three membership elections held in the last year. Workers at the Westland store voted to join the union last May. In October, employees at the Summit Place store in Pontiac rejected the union.

In a prepared statement, Dayton-Hudson president Dennis Toffolo said, "We, of course, wish the outcome of today's vote had been different. However, we respect the process, and will wait for certification before responding further."

Mary Grab, president of Local 35, representing the Hudson employees said, "We're ecstatic, but this is what we expected. We overcame tremendous odds. It's a beautiful win."

Organizing efforts are under way at Hudson's stores at the Oakland and Eastland malls, as well as Flint, according to Bob King, director of UAW Region 1A, the union's top gun in Hudson's organizing efforts.

A National Labor Relations Board hearing officer has recommended setting aside election results at the Summit Place store in Waterford — opening the way for a second union vote.

There, workers rejected the UAW amid charges the company granted raises to select employees and announced new benefits and other perks to dissuade workers from voting for the union.

An NLRB ruling on the hearing officer's recommendation is pending.

Hudson's Westland UAW employees are waging a high profile campaign in hopes of forcing that retail chain's management to the bargaining table.

Last May, the sales staff at the Westland Center outlet voted for UAW representation. Nine months later, there is no contract. Issues are tied up before the NLRB.

While UAW members believe the company is stalling, Hudson's officials say they need time to clarify what they believe was false information given by the union to the NLRB in January.

Compensation varies for Hudson's sales employees. Some receive a commission, others do not. Still others receive Performance Plus, a bonus system for some sales personnel based on sales goals.

Hearing set on baseball safety

A state Senate committee will hold a public hearing this week on Sen. William Faust's resolution asking better safety standards for youth baseball leagues in the wake of several deaths.

The Senate Health Policy Committee meeting begins at 3 p.m. Tuesday in room 402 of the State Capitol, Lansing. Among members is Sen. Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion.

Faust, D-Westland, said Dawn and James Hunt of his district asked him to promote public awareness after their nephew, Ryan Wojick, 10, died in Florida from a pitched ball that hit him in the chest.

"A 1986 Consumer Product Safety Commission report shows at least 23 other children have died like Ryan since 1973," Faust said. "There are pieces of equipment available to safeguard youngsters from these injuries and deaths."

His Senate Resolution 54 urges organizations sponsoring youth baseball to develop guidelines to encourage greater safety measures by using existing products.

Coconut: memories are sweet

Waltzing through the grocery store last week, I stumbled (literally) over a runaway coconut. I probably never would have even noticed it had it not been a 72-degree day and I was wearing shorts and sandals, trying my darndest to rush spring. People have a tendency to notice large rock-like objects, especially while wearing sandals.

Something tells me that a higher power placed that coconut right where I would smash my baby toe against its hard shell. As I bent over in pain with instantaneous thoughts of personal-injury lawyers rushing through my mind, my first response would have been to pick the coconut up and chuck it into an egg-filled dairy case. But as fate had it, as I went to clutch it in my fist, I realized it fit like an old baseball glove.

My hands traversed the pod, noting immediately the wiry skin. It was a cross between an oval and globe shape. The coconut was colored a morel-mushroom mahogany. There was nothing olfactory about it.

Picking up this sole coconut did queue another feeling, however. The last time I enjoyed a coconut, I was in school. I remember Mom bringing one home hidden in the bottom of a grocery bag. It was all we could do to wait for Dad to bring out an old board, a hammer and a nail. We sat in awe as this big hulk of a Dad gently pounded the fat nail into a coconut eye. We could hardly wait for the nail to be removed. The coconut hoisted to our lips, we couldn't understand why we could hear the milk inside but not taste its sweetness.

"PATIENCE" was the only word Dad uttered. Again grabbing the coconut and placing it carefully on the board, another nail was inserted, making yet another air passage. The second hole made for a spigot that would magically shut off the milk simply by covering with a finger.

Thank goodness it was just my twin sister and me. It was hard enough fighting among two, let alone a gaggle of friends.

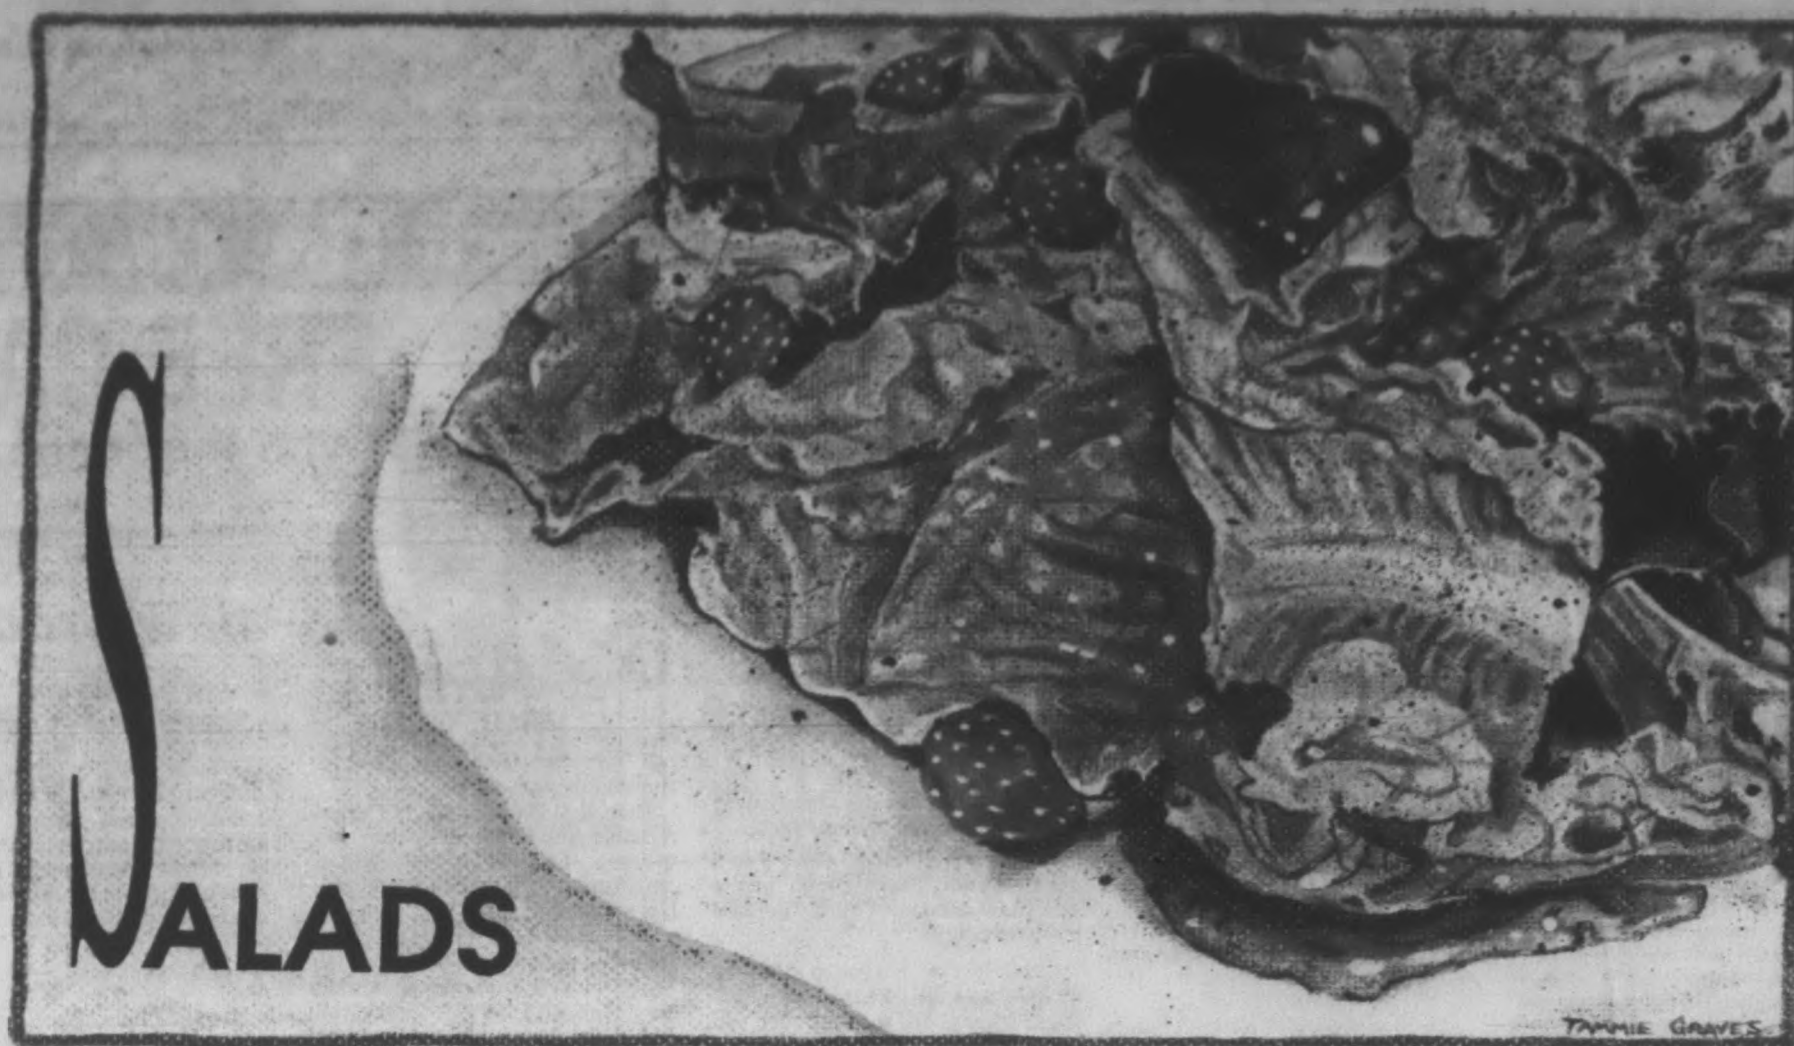

After the coconut was drained of every drop of sweet liquid, I remember Mom getting down on all fours to light the gas oven. As kids, we could never understand why a coconut had to be baked at 375 degrees for 10 minutes before eating. Supposedly, this makes the coconut easier to crack and remove from the shell. This we were never taught in culinary arts school.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent measuring chunks of fresh coconut, interrupted occasionally by asking Mamma to give us a little more of what she had set aside to make Dad's favorite coconut cream pie with.

When was the last time you enjoyed a coconut? You don't need kids to taste this fruit. If you are any kind of a baker, fresh coconut milk in place of milk or water imparts excellent flavor and texture into a cake, pastry or pie crust. Fresh grated coconut makes an intriguing batter for shrimp and chicken. Toasted coconut on cookies and cakes adds eye appeal. You can freeze it in chunks or grated, for later use in recipes.

Or you can do what I'm going to do with mine right after this story is finished: Make my 74-years-young dad a coconut cream pie.

We sat in awe as this big hulk of a Dad gently pounded the fat nail into a coconut eye.

Be daring with salads, homemade dressings

By Phyllis Kreger Stillman
special writer

WITH HEALTH a major concern for so many these days, salads have become an everyday item in most people's diets. Rich in vitamins, minerals and fiber, salads are a low-fat, low-calorie health bonanza (unless, of course, they're drowned in high-fat, high-calorie dressings).

If you're not careful, though, you can get in a rut, serving the same salad day after day. After a while, even diehard salad lovers can become bored. Fortunately, with some imagination and a little experimentation, the daily salad (or two) can become a treat to look forward to.

The first thing to consider is your choice of greens — there should be more to salad than iceberg lettuce. Some other good choices: red or green leaf lettuce, spinach leaves, romaine or Boston bibb lettuce.

You also can bring a tired salad back to life with the addition of new and different ingredients. Along with the usual salad vegetables like carrots, tomatoes, cucumber and celery, try tossing in a few of these extras:

Sliced pickled beets
Slices of apple
Sliced olives (green or ripe)
Grated mozzarella
Sliced fresh zucchini
A handful of raisins

Cubes of cheddar or swiss cheese
Alfalfa sprouts
Frozen peas, thawed and drained
Nuts (pine nuts, walnuts, pecans, toasted almonds)
Crumbled bacon
Slices of pickled hot peppers
Crumbled blue cheese
Sliced fresh zucchini
Sunflower seeds

By varying just a few ingredients, you can have a completely different salad. If you take salad greens and add crumbled feta cheese, sliced beets, red onion, pickled hot peppers, Greek olives and a Greek oil and vinegar dressing, you have a Greek Salad. Take away the feta cheese and beets and add grated mozzarella, sliced pepperoni and croutons with Italian dressing, and you have an Italian antipasto salad.

Fruit salads can be substituted for the usual vegetable salad. One great, simple salad is sectioned oranges and grapefruit with their juice, with maraschino cherries and sliced banana added just before serving. There's also the classic waldorf salad — apples, celery and walnuts in a whipped cream/mayonnaise dressing — which can be varied by adding ingredients such as green or red seedless grapes, raisins, or even cubed chicken for a heartier, main dish salad.

One of the best things you can do for any salad, though, is to make your own dressing. A lot of bottled dressings taste good, but if you look at what's in them, you will find a long list of hard-to-pronounce ingredients.

Calories and fat also can be a problem with bottled dressings. Although there are a wide variety of low-calorie and low-fat dressings you can buy, some don't taste very good, and most contain the same types of ingredients as the regular dressings.

HOMEMADE SALAD dressings are very easy to make, using ingredients you already have on hand. Fresh, homemade dressings don't require preservatives. You can control what goes into them and adapt recipes to fit your needs (eliminate or reduce salt or MSG, adjust spice and herb levels, use reduced-calorie or cholesterol-free mayonnaise and use the salad oil of your choice).

You can make just the amount you want so the dressing will stay fresh. If you don't use a lot of salad dressing, you can cut the recipe to make a smaller quantity. Best of all, of course, is the taste. Bottled dressings, however good, just can't compare with the fresh taste of a homemade dressing.

Variety is, we're told, the spice of life. Variety in the salads and salad dressings you serve will indeed spice up your life and keep you eating healthy instead of reverting back to the bad habits of yesterday.

Olive Garden is unique 'chain' restaurant

Photograph by Jim Jagdfeld

If the Olive Garden restaurant keeps on the way it's headed, it will give chain restaurants a good reputation. With its fresh-from-the-oven breadsticks and homemade pasta, the restaurant provides good Italian meals that compete favorably with those at many of the privately owned restaurants around.

The image of the "chain" doesn't fit here, in part because the parent corporation, General Mills, moves in where other restaurants have moved out. As a result, there's no set cookie-cutter image for the Olive Garden as you will find with places like the Red Lobster, Bob Evans and Big Boy.

Such is the case in Livonia where the Olive Garden moved into a lovely octagonal building two-and-a-half years ago that once housed a higher-priced seafood restaurant. The panorama of glass windows are perfect for the Olive Garden's abundance of plants and friendly atmosphere. The prime location has to be one of the factors giving rise to the restaurant's popularity.

Another factor — oddly — is the breadsticks. Most people we queried mentioned the warm, fresh breadsticks salted with garlic as a prime attraction at this restaurant. It's not that they downplayed the entrees, it was just the thought of the breadsticks was enough to make them point their cars in that direction.

THE BREADSTICKS, we agree, are excellent. And it doesn't hurt that you can have an unlimited supply of them as well as the soup and dinner salad. Who needs a meal after that? Served family style, the "house" salad includes purple onions, tomatoes, black olives, croutons and peppers tossed in the restaurant's vinaigrette dressing. It's a respectable salad that is doused a little heavily with dressing.

Pastas are the restaurant's forte. The crab alfredo ($10.95) is quite good, with a delicious cream sauce that isn't too heavy coating the fettuccini and a generous helping of snow crab. The restaurant serves a respectable tomato sauce with its spaghetti, ravioli and mostaccioli entrees and its tortelloni stuffed with cheese and herbs is very good. All these entrees are priced $5.95 to $9.50 including the salad and breadsticks.

Both chicken and veal dishes are popular here, with the chicken marsala a favorite. We found the chicken to be moist, tender and generally well prepared. Choices include veal or chicken parmigiana, veal piccata and Venetian grilled chicken which is served with a marinara sauce. With these entrees came a choice of spaghetti or fresh vegetable, in this case a steamed broccoli that was done just right.

The combination platters give diners a chance to sample a couple entrees at a reasonable price ($10.75-$11.75). Among the interesting combinations are a Mediterranean entree with cannelloni, tortelloni and cheese ravioli with meat sauce or the "Southern Italian" selection with veal parmigiana, lasagna and baked manicotti.

Be daring with salads, dressings

See related story, Page 1B.

We will give you a few recipes to get you started. Then you can let your imagination take over to create your own personal favorites.

For this salad, use softer greens like red or green leaf lettuce or romaine.

MIXED GREENS SALAD WITH RASPBERRY VINAIGRETTE

Mixed greens
Pine nuts
Crumbled Blue Cheese
Thinly sliced red onion

On individual serving plates, arrange greens, nuts, blue cheese and onion. Drizzle with raspberry vinaigrette.

Raspberry Vinaigrette
1 cup fresh or frozen raspberries, thawed (blueberries can be substituted)
¼ cup white wine vinegar
4 teaspoons sugar
¼ salad oil

In blender combine raspberries, vinegar and sugar; puree until smooth. Put through fine sieve to remove seeds. Pour into small jar; add oil and shake well.

An oriental-type salad.

SPINACH SALAD WITH HOT SOY DRESSING
½ package fresh spinach, washed, well drained and torn into bite-sized pieces
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, washed, dried and sliced
Thinly sliced red onion
Toasted sesame seeds, optional

Arrange spinach in a large bowl; sprinkle with mushrooms and onion. Just before serving, pour on hot dressing and toss to combine and slightly wilt spinach.

Hot Soy Dressing
¼ cup reduced sodium soy sauce
2 tablespoons white vinegar
2 tablespoons oil
2 tablespoons sugar

Heat in saucepan or microwave; stir until sugar dissolves.

This is a nice change-of-pace salad that combines greens and fruit.

MANDARIN SALAD
1 bunch romaine lettuce
2 green onions, sliced
1 can mandarin oranges, drained
¼ cup sliced almonds, toasted

Arrange romaine in a large bowl or on individual salad plates. Sprinkle with onions, and mandarin oranges. Pour on as much of the sweet and sour dressing as you like; garnish with toasted almonds.

Sweet and Sour Dressing
¼ cup oil
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar

Everybody needs a good coleslaw recipe. This one goes great with pork chops or barbecued chicken.

COLESLAW WITH CREAMY DRESSING

Add to shredded red or green cabbage (or better yet, a combination of both) any of the following ingredients, in whatever quantity suits your taste: chopped green pepper, chopped or grated carrot, chopped or grated apple, chopped onion, chopped radish. Combine with enough Creamy Dressing to moisten. Cover and chill at least 1 hour before serving. This salad will keep 4 or 5 days.

Creamy Dressing
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons oil
2 tablespoons vinegar

This is an unusual salad for true beet lovers.

BEET, CUCUMBER AND ORANGE SALAD

2-3 medium beets, cooked and sliced (or use canned)
½ medium cucumber, peeled and sliced
2 oranges, sectioned
1 tablespoon minced fresh dill or 1 teaspoon dried dill
1 tablespoon minced fresh chives

Combine in medium bowl. Stir in dressing and chill. Serve on a bed of greens. Keep several days.

Dressing
Juice of 1 lemon
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 tablespoon honey
¼ teaspoon horseradish
Salt and pepper to taste

Combine in small bowl.

Coconut brings back some sweet memories

See Larry Jones' column Taste Buds, Page 1B.

COCONUT CREAM PIE

One 9-inch pre-baked pie shell
½ cup sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups milk (1 cup coconut milk can be substituted)
4 egg yolks, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup flaked or grated coconut
1 cup sweetened whipped cream

Set pie shell aside. Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt in a saucepan. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and boils. Boil and stir 1 minute. Drizzle small amounts of hot mixture into egg yolks. When temperature is raised, add all hot liquid, return to stovetop, bring to a boil and stir for 1 more minute; remove from heat. Stir in butter or margarine, vanilla and ¼ cup coconut. Allow to cool slightly. Pour into prepared pie shell. Press plastic wrap onto filling and refrigerate 2 hours. Remove plastic wrap. Top pie with sweetened whipped cream and sprinkle with more coconut. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

COCONUT SHRIMPS

1 pound fresh or frozen shrimp vegetable oil
½ cup all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 egg whites
1 ½ cups shredded coconut

Peel shrimp, leaving tails intact. Remove vein. Mix flour, salt, ginger and pepper. Beat egg whites until foamy. Coat shrimp with flour mixture; dip into egg whites. Pat coconut onto shrimp, covering completely. Fry shrimp in hot vegetable oil, turning once, until coconut is golden, about 2 minutes. Drain and serve.

Giant cinnamon rolls are tops for taste

AP — Some things in life are best when they're homemade — and extra-big. Cinnamon rolls, warm from your oven, top the list.

As the aroma drifts from the kitchen, your family will clamor for a freshly baked sample. Just be sure to save enough for breakfast.

You can freeze these rolls by wrapping them, unfrosted, tightly in freezer wrap or foil. Seal, label and freeze for as long as 3 months. To reheat in a conventional oven, wrap the frozen rolls in foil. Heat in a 350-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until warm.

You can also reheat the frozen rolls, unwrapped, two at a time, in your microwave oven. Cook on 100 percent power (high) for 1 to 1 ½ minutes or until warm. Drizzle with your choice of glaze.

JUMBO CINNAMON ROLLS
4 ¼ to 4 ½ cups all-purpose flour
1 package active dry yeast

1 ¼ cups milk
¼ cup granulated sugar
¼ cup margarine or butter
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
6 tablespoons margarine or butter, softened
¼ cup packed brown sugar
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
Maple Nut Glaze or Powdered Sugar Glaze (recipes follow)

In a large mixer bowl, combine 1 ¼ cups of the all-purpose flour and the yeast. Heat milk, sugar, margarine and salt just until mixture is warm (120 degrees to 130 degrees) and the margarine is almost melted, stirring constantly.

Add the milk mixture to the flour mixture; add eggs. Beat with an electric mixer on low speed for 30 seconds, scraping the sides of the bowl constantly. Beat on high speed for 3 minutes. Using a spoon, stir in as much of the remaining flour as you can. (The dough will be soft.)

Turn dough out onto a lightly floured surface. Knead in enough of the remaining flour to make a moderately soft dough, about 3 to 5 minutes total. Shape dough into a ball. Place dough in a lightly greased bowl; turn once.

Cover; let rise in a warm place until double, about 1 to 1 ½ hours. The dough is ready for shaping when you can lightly and quickly press two fingers ½ inch into dough and indentation remains.

Punch dough down. On a lightly floured surface divide dough in half; shape each half into a smooth ball. Cover; let rest for 10 minutes. On a lightly floured surface, roll half of the dough to a 12-by-8-inch rectangle. Spread with 3 tablespoons of the softened margarine. Combine brown sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle half over the rectangle. Roll up from a short side; seal edges. Make a second roll with remaining dough, margarine and sugar mixture.

Slice each dough roll into 8 pieces. Arrange slices, cut side down, on a greased 13-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. Cover; let rise until nearly double, about 30 minutes.

Bake rolls in a 350-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until light brown. Invert immediately onto a wire rack. Cool slightly. Drizzle rolls with Maple Nut Glaze or Powdered Sugar Glaze. Serve warm. Makes 16 rolls.

Maple Nut Glaze: In small bowl, combine 1 cup sifted powdered sugar, 2 tablespoons maple syrup or ¼ teaspoon maple extract, and enough water or milk (2 to 3 teaspoons) for drizzling consistency.

Powdered Sugar Glaze: Combine 1 cup sifted powdered sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla and enough milk (about 3 to 4 teaspoons) for drizzling consistency.

NEW SENSATION

Klondike, one of the top-selling ice cream bars in the Detroit area, has introduced two new super premium ice cream bars, called Klondike Sensation. The new product, for consumers who are concerned about their intake of cholesterol, is 75 to 80 percent lower in cholesterol content, compared to other super-premium ice cream bars, such as Dove and Haagen Daz.

Klondike Sensation is available in two varieties: vanilla ice cream with a thick coating made with milk chocolate, as well as vanilla ice cream with a coating of milk chocolate and roasted almonds.

The new 2.2-ounce ice cream bar is shaped like a plump candy bar and contains less than five mg of cholesterol, compared to 20-45 mg for 2.2 ounces in the other super-premium ice cream bars. It comes six bars to a package.

Klondike also makes regular ice cream bars and light ice cream bars, as well as ice cream sandwiches. In a recent Nielsen survey (March 28), Klondike's light vanilla bars were ranked No. 1 in the Detroit area and Klondike's vanilla bars were ranked No. 2.

Get out the grill soon for a Sunday supper

Ah, spring. Gentle breezes, the smell of freshly cut grass and the gradual unfolding of leaves all signify the renewal and regeneration that occurs each year at this time. Or does it? After all, this is Michigan and we all remember years when snow has fallen furiously up until May.

I can do is cross my fingers and hope that snow and wintry weather will be over for at least another eight or nine months.

As we shift our seasonal gears, there is much work to be done. Yards, gardens, garages and, of course, closets demand our attention and efforts. This week's Winner Dinner, submitted by Dr. Patricia Drake of Livonia, was selected with the thought in mind that here, indeed, is a meal that would be a delicious Sunday supper, easy to put together and a perfect way to inaugurate the outside grill after a tiring but productive day of cleaning and organizing.

The dinner features a cold pasta salad topped with herb-brushed grilled chicken breasts, toasted garlic bread, orange slices for dessert and iced tea to drink.

DRAKE IS the busy wife and mother of a young son, and she knows all about preparing nutritious meals quickly. She has worked as a school psychologist for the Warren Consolidated Schools since 1978. Because Drake grew up and attended the schools in this district, some of the teachers she works with are the ones who taught her.

Within the scope of her job she does a lot of diagnostic testing and evaluation of students and works with the teachers and students' parents in helping to plan services, programs and interventions as needed.

At home, Drake is kept busy with her young son and the family pets. She and her veterinarian husband have a dog, cat, two parakeets and a hamster. Drake is president-elect of the Macomb-St. Clair Psychological Association, an organization that helps design professional programs and provides a network for area school psychologists. She also is a member of the Crohn's and Colitis Foundation, and because her husband has Crohn's Disease she is very aware of diet and nutrition.

Dr. Patricia Drake and her son Matthew, 18 months, with her Winner Dinner.

Thank you, Dr. Patricia Drake, for sharing your menu with us and congratulations on being selected this week's Winner Dinner Winner. Hopefully, the apron you most deservedly won will help squelch future comments and put to rest forever any family jokes about your cooking.

Speaking of jokes, it is no jest that I could really use some more Winner Dinners, so please, poll your family members, find out their favorite meal, jot it down with recipes included and send it my way.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

SPRING CHICKEN PASTA SALAD
GARLIC TOAST

Recipes

SPRING CHICKEN PASTA SALAD

This recipe is a variation of a meal the Drakes had last summer at the Mission Pointe Resort Grill on Mackinac Island. Quick and easy to make, it tastes best when the pasta salad is made in advance, as the flavors of the vegetables and dressing have more time to absorb into the pasta. This recipe serves 4.

4 deboned chicken breasts
12 ounces of your favorite shape of pasta
1 bottle light Italian salad dressing, 16-ounce size
3-4 carrots, diced
1 green pepper, diced
2 cups fresh or defrosted frozen peas
1 cup fresh or defrosted broccoli flowerettes
Anything else you would like to add, such as chick peas, black olives, cherry tomatoes or cheese chunks
1/4 cup olive oil
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon tarragon

Combine the olive oil, lemon juice and tarragon. Brush the mixture onto the chicken breasts. Grill or broil the chicken breasts, basting with the mixture.

Combine the cooked pasta with the vegetables and any other ingredients you would like to add. Pour 1 cup of the salad dressing over the salad and add more as needed for the size of the salad. Refrigerate and allow enough time for the flavors to mix. Serve the cold pasta salad with the hot chicken breasts. Season to taste and garnish with Parmesan or Romano cheese.

GARLIC TOAST

Melt a half stick of butter or margarine in a small pan over a low flame. Watch the butter carefully so that it doesn't turn brown. Mince or use a garlic press to mash 3-4 fresh cloves of garlic. Stir them into the butter or margarine and heat on low for a minute or two, again watching carefully so that the butter doesn't brown.

Slice a loaf of French or Italian bread. Brush the butter mixture onto the slices of bread and place them on a cookie sheet. Sprinkle with a little Parmesan cheese. Place in the broiler until the cheese bubbles and the bread is lightly browned.

ORANGE WEDGES

Dessert doesn't get any easier than this. Simply cut up some oranges into wedges and place them in a pretty bowl. What a colorful and refreshing end to a tasty meal.

Shopping List

Dessert pairs chocolate terrine with spring fruits

AP - Capture the season's best fruit in a fabulous fresh-tasting dessert, perfect for entertaining because you can make it the day before. A duo of spring favorites — tangy rhubarb and juicy strawberries — serve as the splashy backdrop to a two-tone chocolate and orange chiffon. Dress up each serving with fresh fruits, mint and chocolate curls.

Fresh mint (optional)
Chocolate curls (optional)

In a 1 1/2-quart saucepan combine unflavored gelatin and the 1/4 cup sugar; stir in the 1/4 cup water. Stir in egg yolks. Cook and stir over medium heat until gelatin is dissolved and mixture comes to a gentle boil; cook and stir for 2 minutes more. Cover surface with clear plastic wrap. Cool to room temperature, about 1 hour.

In a large mixer bowl beat egg whites with an electric mixer on high speed until stiff peaks form (tips stand straight); fold in the cooled gelatin mixture. Beat the whipping cream just until soft peaks form; fold into gelatin mixture. Divide into two equal portions, about 2 cups each.

Into one portion, gently fold melted chocolate; cover and keep at room temperature. Into remaining portion, gently fold orange liqueur; pour into an 8-by-4-by-2-inch loaf pan, spreading evenly in pan. Cover and chill liqueur layer until partially set, about 20 to 30 minutes.

Carefully spoon the chocolate portion onto the liqueur layer when it is almost set but still slightly sticky to the touch. Cover and chill the terrine about 6 hours, or until firm.

For sauce, in a medium saucepan combine rhubarb, 1 cup strawberries and 1/4 cup water. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 5 to 8 minutes or until tender. Drain, reserving liquid. Discard pulp.

Add enough water to liquid to equal 1 1/4 cups; return to saucepan.

Stir together the 1/4 cup sugar and cornstarch. Stir into liquid in pan. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir for 2 minutes more. Cool. Cover and chill.

To serve, unmold the terrine onto a serving platter. Slice to serve. If desired, decorate with orange sections, additional strawberries, mint and chocolate curls. Serve with sauce. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CHOCOLATE TERRINE WITH SPRING FRUITS

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup water
4 slightly beaten egg yolks
4 egg whites
1/2 cup whipping cream
6 ounces semisweet chocolate, melted and cooled
2 tablespoons orange liqueur
2 cups sliced fresh rhubarb or 1/2 of a thawed 16-ounce package frozen rhubarb
1 cup sliced strawberries
1/4 cup water
1/2 cup sugar
4 teaspoons cornstarch
Orange sections (optional)
Whole and sliced strawberries (optional)

CHERRY & OAK FURNITURE

Developing a special pinot noir in Oregon

"Burgundy is a classical wine region with limited land and strong traditions," contends Robert Drouhin, president of the renowned Burgundy house Maison Joseph Drouhin. "In Burgundy, we produce archetypal wines which must remain true to their predetermined type."

However, in Oregon, Drouhin is free to accept the technical difficulties of growing pinot noir, the wine world's most challenging grape.

Drouhin recently introduced the 1988 Domaine Drouhin Oregon Pinot Noir produced by his daughter, winemaker Veronique. About 1,500 cases are available nationally.

"Our goal is to make a wine as elegant as our Burgundies," Drouhin maintains. "But it must also demonstrate the special traits of an Oregon wine just as Clos des Mouches is recognizable as a Premier Cru from the Cote de Beaune."

In 1961, when Drouhin visited Oregon for the first time, he discovered the potential of growing pinot noir under different conditions from its original Burgundy home. The initial appeal was heightened in 1979, when Drouhin tasted the 1975 Eyrie Vineyard Pinot Noir Reserve. Later that year, the prestigious French magazine Gault et Millau conducted a tasting in which the same wine was more highly ranked than one of Drouhin's Burgundies.

Drouhin's 1959 Chambolle-Musigny won a rematch in 1980, but Ore-

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1988 Domaine Drouhin Oregon Pinot Noir ($34) is a melange of classic pinot noir aromas and flavors showcasing cherry-like fruit. The wine is handsomely balanced and complex. It tastes delicious now and will age gracefully for several years.

You may think that this wine is pricey. Actually, it's in line with the very best from California and Oregon, and if you compare it with the generously fruity 1988 Joseph Drouhin Chambolle-Musigny at $48, you will be impressed with this new bottling from Oregon.

gon's Eyrie Vineyard placed a distinguished second.

In 1986, when Veronique, armed with an oenology degree from the University of Dijon, sought a wine apprenticeship, her father suggested Oregon wineries. Veronique worked at Adelsheim, Bethel Heights Winery and Eyrie Vineyards as her family actively searched for a perfect parcel of land for its Northwest United States venture.

In 1987, a hilltop property, 30 miles southwest of Portland in Dundee, Ore., was studied. The site approximates the same 45-degrees latitude and 500- to 800-foot elevation as produces in France, and since his Oregon pinot noir tasting experiences convinced him of the quality potential of this wine, he exercised his option to buy a 100-acre property, which has since been expanded to 180 acres.

CURRENTLY, 27 ACRES are planted. Additional plots will be put under vines on an annual basis. Consequently, the first three vintages (1988 through 1990) of Domaine Drouhin Oregon wines were made from purchased grapes selected from local growers.

Beginning with the 1991 vintage, made from a variety of oaks from France's renowned central forests.

It is the deliberate intention to avoid oak character from any specific wood but to use the barrel aging period as an opportunity to add delicate nuances to the pinot noir fruit. "Common sense and great care must accompany winemaking," Drouhin states. "The ultimate respect must be given to the soil and the vines."

SHOULDER INJECTION

There is more to injecting the shoulder than placing the needle where the shoulder hurts.

Injecting where it pains may not be best. The shoulder consists of a number of muscles which overlap each other thus allowing fine control of arm motion. This arrangement also permits an inflamed muscle to rest and let a nearby muscle take over.

This substitution works well when the deltoid acts for the supraspinatus muscle. However, if the inflamed supraspinatus does not heal quickly then the deltoid weakens.

The result is that you may hurt down the arm, where the deltoid anchors, when the cause of the problem is in the supraspinatus muscle, which inserts on the shoulder. Placing an injection into the sore deltoid won't help restore the injured supraspinatus.

Second, injection into the shoulder takes more skill than would seem the case. Separate muscles are close together, and a small error in judgment may result in a misplaced injection. Also, the shoulder is deceptively deep in the body; injection often requires a long needle and accurate placement to reach the joint.

Physicians are trained in the subtleties of the procedure, but patients frequently are surprised how the action differs from what they envisioned.

Morton makes pro debut in WLAF

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Playing for the Frankfurt Galaxy of the new World League of American Football, Craig Morton can't help but travel Germany's famous Autobahn.

But Morton, a 1985 Plymouth Salem graduate, stays off life's other fast lane — which includes the nightclubs, women and beer. Morton and his wife, Karen, had their first child (Lydia Anna) three months ago, a month before he reported to preseason camp with the Galaxy.

His wife and baby remain at their permanent home in Hanover, N.H., during the three-month WLAF season.

"The lifestyle (in the WLAF) is geared for the unmarried, single guy as far as after practice is concerned," said the 6-foot, 170-pound wide receiver, who was reached Friday at a hotel in Sacramento, where the Galaxy played Saturday night. "That's fine with me because there's certainly enough guys on the team who are married and not as fast paced."

Morton has enjoyed his stay in Germany, although it's been rather brief, having played the last three games on American soil. After opening the season in Frankfurt with a 25-11 loss to the London Monarchs, the Galaxy bounced back with wins at San Antonio and New York City before Saturday's game at Sacramento.

HE'S BEEN overseas long enough, however, to experience the Autobahn — Germany's highway system which more resembles the Indianapolis 500 race track.

"For the first two weeks there, it was crazy," said Morton. "The two right lanes are for normal traffic, but the other two are full of BMWs and Porsches going 150 miles per hour. You could be going 65 or 70 and these cars pass you like you're standing still. Mercedes, BMWs and Porsches are like a dime a dozen there. Everyone and their brother and sister owns one."

Morton doesn't speak German but said there isn't much of a language barrier, because "many of them speak English and that makes it pretty easy," he said. "They're talking about having an instructor come in and teach us a little German so at least we can ask questions in case we're lost."

Morton last played football in 1988 at Dartmouth, where he finished as the Big Green's all-time leading receiver. An All-Ivy League unanimous choice in both his sophomore and senior years, Morton surprised professional scouts when he told them in the spring of 1989 to ignore his name in the NFL draft.

Morton was getting married in June of that year and said he wanted to devote his time totally to life's newest endeavor.

"I'M A CHRISTIAN," he said. "And I think the Lord has told me that the best thing for me to do is wait a year and get used to being married."

The time off has paid off. After graduating from Dartmouth and getting married, Morton spent the last two years working as a data technician for a Hanover hospital, not far from the Dartmouth campus. He kept in shape working out at his alma mater, mostly running sprints and playing catch in the winter months in Dartmouth's indoor facility.

The WLAF had separate drafts for players by positions, and Morton was the first player chosen in the sixth round of the wide receiver draft. The Galaxy chose five wide receivers before Morton, but only Cedric Gordon (from Ann Arbor Pioneer and Ferris State University) managed to earn a spot on the 40-man roster.

Twelve receivers were invited to camp and only four survived the cut, including Morton, whose original goal was to just make the team. Morton plays behind Gordon and has caught two passes for about 30 yards for Galaxy coach Jack Elway, the father of Denver Broncos quarterback John Elway. He also has played some on the special teams.

It has been a learning process for Morton.

"THIS ISN'T THE NFL, but there are so many guys who miss making the NFL by a whisker and this league is made up of those guys,"

Morton said. "Every player is a pro and if you beat one guy on the line, the guy behind him is very good and so is the guy next to him."

Morton said he is a non-denominational Christian, so he avoids the trash talk on the field among players. He hears it but walks away.

"The worst thing you can do is to play into their hands," he said, "if they beckon you and you retaliate, then they have you where they want you. The best thing to do if they cheap-shot you is forget about it and look for a chance later in the game to get back legally. There's always ample chance."

Morton will make at least $20,000 and up to $40,000 for the season, and he plans to play again next spring before hopefully being invited to an NFL training camp in the summer of 1992. A more immediate goal is to rejoin his wife in New Hampshire after the WLAF season and watch his newborn grow.

"She was a month old when I had to leave for Germany, and the next time I saw her (in San Antonio) she looked twice as big," Morton said. "This summer and fall wherever we are, it'll be nice to share those special moments with my wife."

Salem rocks Harrison

Plymouth Salem received an early season boost toward a possible Western Lakes Activities Association baseball title when it edged Farmington Hills Harrison 3-2 Thursday.

The victory was a positive step for the host Rocks, who improved to 3-0. Harrison (0-1) is expected to contend for the Western Division crown.

Salem was led by senior pitcher Scott Rodgers (2-0), who pitched six innings and struck out 11. Eric Nielson pitched the last inning and earned a save. The Hawks managed a total of seven hits.

"If Rodgers can do this all year, we'll have a great year," Salem coach John Gravin said. "I was impressed with the pitchers on both sides."

Harrison's left-handed ace Gary Devine worked three innings and took the loss. Mike Pesci pitched the remainder of the game.

Rodgers also led the Rocks at the plate, knocking in two runs with a sacrifice fly in the first inning and a double in the third.

Nielson, who had two hits and scored two runs, accounted for the baseball

winning run with two out in the third, giving Salem a 3-1 lead at the time.

Devine went 3-for-4 for Harrison and scored two runs, one on a balk and another on the game's lone error.

WESTLAND JOHN Glenn scored the last four runs Thursday and rallied to beat Plymouth Canton 8-6.

Gary Pierce's two-run single keyed a three-run fifth that gave the Rockets (3-0) a 7-6 lead. Lawrence Scheffer hit a grand slam in the third and gave Glenn a 4-1 lead until the Chiefs (1-2) responded with four runs in the bottom of the inning.

Scheffer also was the winning pitcher in relief of starter John Ward. He worked the last 4½ innings and held Canton to two hits and no runs while striking out five. Ward gave up three hits, five walks and five runs in 2½ innings.

Scott Kennedy went the distance for the Chiefs and suffered the loss. He struck out 10, walked seven and allowed five hits.

Canton's Jason Riggs was 2-for-4. The Chiefs took a 5-4 lead in the third on three bases-loaded walks off Ward and Mike Wougamon's RBI single.

WALLED LAKE Western spoiled the season opener for North Farmington, dealing the Raiders a 4-0 shutout Thursday.

"It was a tough loss," North coach Irv Horwitz said. "They're a good team; we couldn't get the hits today."

Karl Sinclair limited the Raiders to five hits, and he also struck out six while not giving up a walk.

The defending Western Division co-champion Warriors (2-0) had only four hits off North starter Andrew Margolick, who suffered the loss. He struck out four and walked two.

Margolick also was 2-for-3 at bat. Chad Williams had an RBI for Western.

Giuliani slam paces win

The Plymouth Salem-Farmington Hills Harrison softball game was anything but a pitchers' duel Thursday.

The Rocks, thanks to a grand slam by junior Emily Giuliani, routed Harrison 25-14 in a game halted after six innings due to cold weather.

Salem (1-2) outthit the Hawks 11-3. The Rocks tallied 11 runs in the fifth inning.

Giuliani also had a triple and finished the game with six RBI.

"It's better than losing," Salem coach Rob Willette said. "But when you hold a team to three hits, you shouldn't give up 14 runs."

Sophomore Jenny Garvey was the winning pitcher for Salem. She hurled five innings, walking 13 and striking out 10.

Shelly Bouwens, who tossed five innings for Harrison, took the loss. She fanned five and walked nine. The Hawks (0-1) committed seven errors, the Rocks four.

"There were a lot of errors," Harrison coach Mike Teachman said, "but it was important to get playing time for everyone. At the end of six innings, it was 7 o'clock. We said 'Let's go home; it's too cold.'"

Lisa Geary, Jenny Brockhaus, Andrea Najarian and

Jenny Goyette had the Harrison hits.

PLYMOUTH CANTON, behind solid pitching from sophomore Kelly Holmes, nipped Westland John Glenn 3-1 Thursday in a Western Lakes Activities Association softball encounter.

Holmes went the distance for the Chiefs, striking out five and walking just one.

John Glenn outthit Canton 3-2 but committed three errors.

"The errors in the third inning hurt us," John Glenn coach Linda Jimenez said. "It was a good ballgame though. We outthit them, but we outerrored them, too."

Junior Cathy Mruk suffered the loss for John Glenn. She surrendered four walks and struck out three.

Senior Kris Ford led the Canton hitting attack with two hits and one RBI. Sophomore Danielle Mortiere added a triple and two RBI.

"I was extremely happy," Canton coach Jim Arnold said. "Defense is what kept us in the game. Kim Henry made some outstanding catches in center field."

Karen Olack knocked in Glenn's only run with a single. The Rockets scored their only run in the sixth inning after Canton had taken a 3-0 lead.

Scott Rodgers struck out 11 in six innings to earn his second victory of the season for unbeaten Salem. He also drove in two runs in the 3-2 win.

Madonna names new hoop coach

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Bill Potter knows the problems that have plagued Madonna University in its attempt to establish a women's basketball program. And yet, he insists: "The situation is what you make of it."

Potter plans to make the most of his. Last week, he was named the new women's basketball coach as the school — once again — seeks to make a go of it in the world of college athletics.

"I don't see it as a bad situation," said the 29-year-old Potter. "It's like at Oakland CC. We built that program from nothing to a five-time conference winner."

Since 1981, Potter has served as an assistant to OCC women's coach Larry Hojna. The Lady Raiders have won or shared the Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Conference championship in each of the past five years.

Madonna sports

IN ADDITION, Potter was the varsity coach at Walled Lake Western HS for two seasons, 1986-87.

Potter replaces Bob Belf as Madonna's coach. Belf, according to Madonna athletic director Ray Summers, officially resigned last October after the team's schedule was cancelled due to a rash of injuries and academic ineligibilities left the Lady Crusaders with just four players.

"He came with very good credentials," said Summers of Potter. "We looked at him for his recruiting potential."

"He's very systematic, very organized, and he has a lot of contacts in this area. He knows the Western Lakes (Activities Association), he knows the area high schools and he knows the junior colleges."

Potter's knowledge of the JCs will be put to immediate use. Madonna needs to recruit a team quickly, and it's getting off to a late start — again.

Belf faced a similar problem during his 2½ year tenure, constantly battling a reluctant administration. Belf's recruiting efforts were hurt by his not knowing how much money he had available, and the administration's failure to confirm the amount until well into summer.

THE UNCERTAINTY hurt scheduling, too; Madonna didn't start one season until more than a month after other schools.

Potter said he had been assured things would be different. "That's what I was told by a few of my friends," he said, acknowledging he was aware of Madonna's on-and-off-again status. He added that he and Summers had come to "an agreement (on money available). It's all on paper."

"I want to set a new attitude for Madonna basketball. We are going to have a winning program. I have to convince high school athletes that we are going to be around for the next 20 or 30 or 40 years."

Both Potter and Summers are convinced they can put a capable team on the floor for years to come. "It was an administrative decision to either go (with the team) this year or wait a year, like we did with Dave (Racer, and the softball team).

"BUT WE had the (NAIA District 23) schedule intact. I thought it best to go this year."

Summers' thoughts on the approaching season were reflected in his selection process. "I wanted to hear a commitment from (the prospective coaches)," he said. "But I

Nash scores pair in Canton victory

Ayana Nash scored two goals to lead Plymouth Canton past host Farmington in a Western Lakes Activities Association soccer game Friday.

Canton, which led 2-0 at halftime, improved to 2-1 overall. The Falcons dropped to 1-1.

Canton's other goals were scored by Colleen Connell, Britta Anderson, Leah Hutko and Amy Westerhold. Goalie Jori Welchans got the shutout. "Farmington played good defense for a while, but we wore them down," Canton coach Don Smith said.

JUNIOR GOALIE Jenny Emmett collected her second consecutive shutout for Plymouth Salem, which blanked North Farmington 11-0 in another WLAA contest.

Junior forward Mandy Drummond set a school record for assists with five, and she also had one goal.

Senior forward Erin Harvey led the offense with three goals. Junior forward Erin Bagozzi added two goals and one assist, and sophomore Kris Goff chipped in one goal and one assist.

Mackenzie Emmett, Sara Egloff, Charu Sinha and Julie Thomas also scored goals for Salem.

"It could have been worse," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "After about 10 (goals), we tried to keep it down. We have a very strong team, and North Farmington is inexperienced. They played with a lot of spirit and we didn't score until 12 minutes. It was a wearing-down process."

Falcons remain city champs

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Farmington High School will keep the city championship trophies in track and field for another year.

The Falcons captured their fifth consecutive title in the girls meet Thursday, accumulating 72½ points and finishing 19 points ahead of runner-up and host Harrison.

The Farmington boys have a more modest, two-year victory streak after repeating as city champs with a 90-point total and 31-point advantage over second-place Harrison.

"That's OK, we'll take it," Farmington boys coach Jerry Young said.

The Farmington girls success was all the more impressive, because the Falcons did it without their top trackperson, senior Shelli Gaul, who was ill and couldn't compete.

"I'M NOT happy Shelli is sick, but I'm happy we had enough strength to do it without her," Farmington girls coach Bruce Brown said. "Hopefully, it will give the other girls confidence and show them we are more than a one-person team."

Brown also attributed the consecutive triumphs in part to the perseverance and dedication of the team's nine seniors: Gretchen Clappison, Kristin Urevig, Susan Davidson, Jennifer Derwinski, Kristi Bodary, Kerri Owczarzak, Cheryl Casaroli and Deanna Curcio in addition to Gaul.

"Obviously, you don't do it without talent," he said. "This senior group had never lost it, and they wanted to stay after it. We have nine seniors who've stuck with it for four years and, in this day and age, that's pretty impressive."

Farmington's Tammy Allen won

4 chiefs capture titles

Plymouth Canton had four first-place finishers Thursday in the Thunderbird Invitational for girls track-and-field teams Thursday at Dearborn Edsel Ford.

Lana Boroditsch captured first in the 1,600-meter run (5:56.9), and she joined teammates Alicia King, Jennifer Hartke and Christie Saffron to place second in the 1,600 relay (4:40).

Selena Bastine took first in the discus for the Chiefs (98-10), Stephanie Gray won the high jump (5-0) and Jessica Souter claimed top honors in the long jump (15-6).

Canton also had second-place finishes from Aleah Collier, shot put (33-1½); Hoema Okwumabua, discus (96-1); Michelle Lee, 300 hurdles (53.4); Saffron, 800 run (2:35.0); and Amy Smith, 3,200 run (13:09.0).

the high jump, an event Gaul had been counted on to win, and Brown also cited the contributions of Casaroli and freshman Kay Rogers.

Casaroli anchored the winning 400 relay, ran on two others and was third in the 200 dash, and Rogers was first in the 100 and 200 dashes. The latter's performance was especially welcome since the Falcons lost sprinters Carrie Maier and Amy Trunk from last year's team.

"This is really exciting," Brown said. "She ran 13.2 in the 100 and 28.2 in the 200, which are pretty respectable times."

FARMINGTON DID well in the field events and established a lead early in the meet.

Curcio won the discus and Washnock the shot put as the Falcons went 1-2-3 and 1-2 in those events, respectively. Owczarzak was second in both, and Washnock was third in the discus.

Clappison got second place in the high jump, and Farmington's Sue Gibson, Sheri Ylitalo and Maya Sardy finished 2-3-4 in the long jump, an event won by Colleen Heinzmann of Harrison.

"We really came through in the shot and discus," Brown said. "We had to come out of the field events in good shape, because I knew we'd be in trouble in some of those other things. I knew Shelli would win the (high hurdles) for sure."

Other than Rogers winning the dashes, Farmington's only other win after the field events was supplied by Derwinski, who was first in the 400 dash.

Heinzmann, who won two events and scored in four, also won the high hurdles, was second in the 300 hurdles and fourth in the high jump. Teammate Kristi Cornwell won the intermediate hurdles.

"I DIDN'T think we would be that high in the points," Harrison girls coach Mark Babcock said. "We're young, but the kids have showed a willingness to work hard. We're only going to get better as we race more."

North Farmington's Emily Shively was a double winner with first place in the 1,600 and 3,200 runs, and teammate Jenny Weh won the 800. The Raiders also won the 3,200 and 1,600 relays.

Farmington was led by a trio of double winners — Joe Miller, Ben Goba and Jason Tucker — in the boys competition. Miller captured first in the high and low hurdles, Goba the long-distance runs and Tucker the high jump and long jump.

Miller also ran on the winning 400 relay, Tucker the successful 800 relay and Goba the championship 3,200 relay. Ryan Adams had Farmington's only other first place in the 800 run.

"We were real pleased with our performance," Young said. "We thought it would be a lot closer. Being a city meet, you have to assume it will be close, and they usually are."

"To win it by this kind of margin is certainly a surprise and maybe an indication we are a little better than we thought we were."

"WITH JASON Tucker, Joe Miller and Ben Goba, we have three pretty good performers, and if somebody else comes along we should be OK. Hopefully, this means we're going to be pretty good."

Harrison also had a pair of double winners in Tony Shaleb, who captured first in the discus and shot put, and Roy Granger, who won the 100 and 200 dashes. Teammate Dave Gietzner won the pole vault, and Tony Catchings had North's only first place in the 400 dash.

Icers make all-star unit

Six hockey players from Observeland will play for Team Michigan in the Chicago Showcase High School Hockey Tournament, beginning Wednesday (through Sunday) in Skokie and Wilmette, Ill.

Among the players headed to the tournament include defenseman Matt Surowiec and forward Jesse Hubenschmidt (both from Redford Catholic Central); and defenseman Colin Gallagher and forward Jeff King (both of Livonia Churchill).

Tim Capaldi, a forward, and Pat Saunders, a goalie, both from Birmingham Brother Rice, were also named to the squad.

A standing committee from across the state selected Team Michigan, according to the team's general manager A.J. Baker. He added that this was the first time in seven years that Team Michigan selections were not chosen from an annual all-state game.

Twenty teams from across the United States will participate in the sixth annual tournament.

Buffalo, N.Y., is the defending champion, while Team Michigan finished ninth, missing the quarterfinal round by two goals.

Ferris State University coach Bob Daniels, a Churchill High product, will lead Team Michigan, which opens tournament play at 6 p.m. Wednesday against New Jersey.

Baker expects to do well.

"We're in a decent division to advance this year," he said. "Colorado is going to have a good team and New Jersey is very good."

wanted them to be comfortable with it. And, of course, I wanted someone capable."

Summers figures he got all of the above in Potter. "My question (to the four finalists) was, 'Is it feasible to put together a team between now and October?' (Potter's) answer was the most convincing."

Potter is also convinced he can make the Lady Crusaders winners immediately. "Our No. 1 goal is to be in the top four in the district, so that we make the playoffs," he said with confidence. "And then we want to make a good showing in the playoffs, something for the following year."

THAT'S A pretty tall order, considering Summers' assessment of possible returnees from the 1989-90 team: "We don't know who would be interested in staying."

There are four who may be back: Jill Burt, who is currently on Madonna's softball team, Lyndell Ingalls, Lori Creetan and Alice Williams. Any others will have to be signed by Potter.

Potter has handicapped his efforts by agreeing with Hojna not to recruit players he recruited this year for OCC. "It's going to be difficult, but I still have some contacts with girls I used to coach," Potter said.

He also must try to fill in the remainder of his schedule. Only district games are confirmed at this point; non-district games must be picked up.

Potter is confident, though. "All I have to do is find some players and we'll be ready to go," he said.

Hopefully, Madonna's program will survive this time.

'Coffee, tea or me' image bugs flight attendant

Editor's note: Joyce Baker of Farmington Hills is a flight attendant with Northwest Airlines.

By Joyce E. Baker
special writer

Love to work with people of every conceivable nature? Despise routine? Love to travel and wake in hotel rooms not knowing what city you're in or even what day it is? Then I've got just the job for you... Flight attendant!

I've been one for 9½ years, based in the Detroit area. Since I've met so many local travelers who are curious about the job, I thought I'd write about it from an insider's perspective.

Although several people still use the word stewardess, flight attendant is preferred by those of us in the field. There are a lot of male flight attendants and the word connotes professionalism more than the "coffee, tea or me" image that lingers in the public mind thanks to a book of the same name.

reader's report

One thing we are not is a waitress/waiter with wings! We serve food and beverages at 35,000 feet, but our primary reason for being on the aircraft is safety. Service, although a major and necessary feature of our job, is secondary.

Fortunately, the public is rarely witness to our safety training, so they see service as our only function.

There is no typical profile of a flight attendant. Our backgrounds are varied: from entrepreneurs to realtors and attorneys.

Our reasons for wanting the job may differ, but the reasons for remaining in it are similar. We enjoy the freedom to pursue outside interests thanks to the generous time off, and the benefit of low-cost standby travel.

Having to travel for work as well as pleasure can be tiring, and many times the latter is pushed aside. I jokingly say that I'll have to quit flying in order to enjoy traveling again!

Living out of a suitcase has its limitations, and no matter how much fun it can be to go someplace new, packing and unpacking does not get more fun with practice.

I am often asked the same questions about the job, so I'd like to answer those I most frequently hear.

1. Aren't you afraid of flying? At first I was, but once I developed a basic knowledge of aviation and a familiarity with specific aircraft, my fear disappeared.

When I'm working, I'm too busy to think about it, although I may have skeptical moments during a bad thunderstorm.

2. What's your route? One flight to one city in one day is the norm for international flying, but for domestic flying it is not unusual to fly to five different cities on the same day.

Routes are subject to change monthly, but the more senior you are, the more consistently you can hold the same route. My routes have taken me all around the U.S., to Europe and Japan.

3. How much time do you get off? The physical demands of coping with an extremely erratic schedule are justified by the amount of time off we get. An average of 15-20 days off a month, usually not consecutive, is typical.

4. Don't you get tired of being gone all the time? YES! I'm single and not from this area. It is difficult to establish and maintain a personal life when the majority of my time is spent away from home.

In the past four weeks, I've been home three days. I have had to cancel plans at the last minute because I was stuck in some city due to bad weather, a mechanical failure or flight cancellation.

It's a struggle to develop a sense of consistency within this unstructured lifestyle, but it can be done, partly by bidding for the same days off every week.

This job is ideal for married flight attendants because they can maintain a family life at home and time for themselves on the road. For a single person with no family in their base area, the job can foster loneliness.

To counteract this, I spend time off visiting friends and relatives out of state. The rest of my free time is spent in town participating in volunteer activities, pursuing hobbies and socializing with friends.

The travel bug bit me at a very early age. My father used to take my sisters and me to the National Geographic series every Friday night at our hometown auditorium.

My job has since taken me to a lot of those places I used to dream about, but I've barely scratched the surface. Being a flight attendant is... glamorous? No. Adventurous? Yes. When I accepted the job, glamour was not what I expected. I viewed it as a way to help cure my insatiable curiosity about the world and its people, and to that end, I have been satisfied.

Engler's cuts are big topic at annual state travel conference

The communities and associations are screaming about all this, of course, but Travel Bureau director John Savich thinks that it has been a fairly smooth transition as political transitions go. A little restructuring of old habits is not necessarily bad.

Our state travel industry is diverse. We have large business hotels and big cities in the industrial corridor between Detroit and Chicago; resorts with major ski and golf facilities; outstate communities that try to attract a share of the $0 million people who travel in Michigan each year, and hundreds of small businesses tucked into bays and along Great Lakes coastlines up the Lower and across the Upper peninsulas.

All those diverse segments were represented at the conference. Dan Smith of the Upper Peninsula Travel and Recreation Association was there, as were the Stable family members who run Michigamme Lodge near Marquette and Cedar Lodge in Paradise.

Tourism is a $20-billion industry, creating 340,000 jobs and producing state tax revenues of $750,000.

The Mackinac Island contingent was there: Dan Musser from the Grand Hotel, Todd Callewaert of the Island House, Armand "Smil" Horn of Mackinac Island Carriage Tours.

You could work your way south from there: Walter North of the Mackinac Bridge Authority, Stafford Smith of the Bayview Inn, Peter Fitzsimons of Boyne Country, several reps from Grand Traverse Resort, city convention bureau people from Bay City and Saginaw and Kalamazoo.

And, of course, the Frankenmuth contingent was there, led by Wally Bronner of Bronner's Christmas Decorations and Ruth Ann McMahon of Circle Michigan.

Engler talked about tourism as "an engine of economic growth." He squeaked the stories about closing state parks. He said the core of the Travel Bureau budget won't be touched because tourism creates jobs.

I asked Savich what these new directions mean. He had lost his outreach programs and 10 percent of his other programs, a total of $6 million, but still has the resources to beat the bushes in places like London and Chicago for potential Michigan tourists.

Savich thinks this will be a great year for Michigan travelers to stay in Michigan, which has expanded its hotel, golf and other facilities dramatically in recent years and is still a bargain compared to other states.

"When people from Detroit are told the cost of something in Michigan, they say, 'Is it that much?'" Savich said. "When Chicagoans are given the same price, they say, 'Is that all?'"

Weekend travelers find suitable vacation spots close to home

General Butler State Park near the northern border of Kentucky is much closer, but it's still a six-hour drive. Too far unless you use one of those $50 weekend coupons and rent a car.

The obvious choice in state parks was Potawatomi Inn in Pokagon State Park, Angola, Ind. That's a 90-minute drive across the border south of Marshall and Coldwater. A rustic lodge and cabins. Unbelievably low rates. Very popular. So popular that no rooms were available on that particular Friday night.

"Too bad," I said. "You could have spent Saturday in Shipshewana, enjoying the Amish museum and the flea market. In fact, there are nice bed-and-breakfast places in Shipshewana..."

Shipshewana only lasted a few minutes, long enough for us to get into Ontario. "Ever been to Wheels Inn in Chatham, Ontario?" I asked. "She hadn't. 'It's a great place, but you'd better like sports and kids.' Dee was a little nervous about entering another country, but I convinced her she would be safe and comfortable by herself in Ontario, even if she had car trouble or a minor mishap."

"Take the ViaRail train to London, Ontario. Try one of the great Ontario inns, although they are fairly expensive. Go up the St. Clair River on either the Canadian or the U.S. side. Stay at the St. Clair Inn and watch the boats go by."

That did it. St. Clair. Close to home. Lots of places to mosey and poke in the small towns beside the river. Take a ferry across to Canada. Visit the oil museum at Petrolia or Uncle Tom's Cabin in Dresden. Drive down the Canadian side to Windsor and come home through the tunnel or over the Ambassador Bridge.

I rambled on about weekend driving along the north shore of Lake Erie to Leamington or Point Pelee Provincial Park, or going south into Ontario to Put-in-Bay.

Dee listened politely while I got myself all worked up about a weekend in all those fabulous little places along Lake Michigan, or north toward Traverse City.

I was talking her through Dusty's English Inn, 13 miles south of Lansing and four miles north of Eaton Rapids, when I realized I had lost her. "It's a fabulous old brick mansion and the rooms start at $65 a night," I said, but her eyes had glazed over.

My friends quickly learn that it is unwise to ask my advice about travel. I give them too much of it. She had already made up her mind to go to St. Clair.

We started by calling the River Crab, a motel and restaurant owned by Chuck Muer in St. Clair. Each room is different. Each has a view of the river from its front door. The dining room is good and has a fine view of the boats sailing up and down the St. Clair River and the boats easing in and out of the marina.

"That'll cost me $75 a night including a continental breakfast in my room," Dee said.

Next she called the St. Clair Inn, a lovely historic sprawl of red brick beside the river, and asked for their least expensive room. "That's $65 a night, streetside." "It's probably in the annex," I said, "which has simple rooms a few hundred yards down the street from the inn, but great views of the river."

The last time I saw Dee, she was hurrying out of the office toward her car. We had traveled across my desk and through my files, to other states, in the direction of the southern sun, but she picked a place in Michigan, a short drive from home. Not bad.

If you get desperate on Friday mornings in spring, you may have found some getaways of your own. Send us a reader report, maximum two or three pages, and let us know what you recommend for people who want to get away for a couple days during the next few months.

Send it to me at 22000 Springbrook, Suite 206 C, Farmington Hills, 48336.

Waiting for Engler at travel conference

And eventually, he issued three marketing and three community awards.

"Citizens of Milford organized to remove trash and debris from the Huron River Valley... items removed ranged in size from tin cans to major appliances... all supported by contributions of cash and in-kind services... more than 200 volunteers. Accepting today are the two co-chairs of the Friends of the Huron-Oakland, Lucille Mosher and Joan Horvath," he said.

Lots of other things happened at the conference, but that was enough for Lucille and Joan. As they went out the door, Joan said, "Tell your readers to call the township office at 685-8731, ask for Colleen and sign up for the river cleanup August 17. And if you've got any good ideas for getting corporate funding for this project, pass the word."

IRIS SANDERSON JONES

A lazy day up north, waiting for Engler to show up

It was 9:45 a.m. in the Summit Center at Shanty Creek-Schuss Mountain Resort in Bellaire. Lucille Mosher and Joan Horvath of Milford were gathered around the breakfast tables, along with several hundred other Michigan professionals, at the eighth annual Governor's Conference on Tourism.

We were waiting for Gov. John Engler to come in through the fog to give the opening speech and present three Governor's Tourism Community awards. One would go to Lucille and Joan on behalf of the Charter Township of Milford for their innovative efforts to clean the Huron River.

Engler was scheduled to appear at 9 a.m. You can only keep several hundred people waiting so long, even for the governor, so at 9:15 the long lean form of Harold Skramstad, president of Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, and chairman of the Michigan Travel Commission stood up. He lingered over his welcome.

"The Chinese character for crisis is a combination of the symbols for danger and opportunity, he said, setting the tone for a drastically reduced tourism budget. Lucille and Joan could have told him about crisis, about the danger the Huron River was in when they formed the Friends of the Huron and started hauling things out of the water with their canoe crews.

"We met in my living room for the first meeting," Joan said. "Lucille brought the agenda and I made coffee and cleaned the toilets."

They were both on the planning commission at the time. It didn't take them long to bring representatives in from Kensington and Metro parks, from Camp Dearborn and Proud Lake, or to line up three canoe liveries and the services of Milford's retired postmaster, Jack Gillow.

"We put two or three volunteers into each canoe, gave them a poker stick with a hook on the end and a net funnel to scrape the glass off the bottom of the river," Lucille said.

"We gave each canoe a section of the river, handed them garbage bags and told them to meet us at Kensington Park for lunch. We provided lunch."

Li. Gov. Connie Binsfield was at the podium now, making jokes about the weather to fill time. By the time Arthur Ellis, director of the Michigan Department of Commerce, got to his feet, they were saying, "When the governor talks this afternoon..."

None of this seemed to bother the two co-founders of the Friends of the Huron, sitting at a table directly in front of the podium. I guess you develop patience when you haul up racing tires, picnic tables and old shoes ("There's usually only one shoe.") out of the river from a canoe.

The two Milford women have a very practical attitude toward awards. When they won the Earthworks Award from WKBD-TV, "people came from five counties to volunteer to clean up the river."

Their main concern during our whispered conversation at this conference was not whether the governor would arrive, but whether they'd have enough volunteers for their next river cleanup August 17.

We took a brief break. The coffee was still steaming in the cups when the room began to stir as if a breeze were blowing through it. The governor had arrived. He had been unable to fly into Traverse City, so flew to Gaylord, drove to Bellaire and stopped to cut a ribbon somewhere along the way.

He talked about tourism as a $20-billion industry in Michigan. He squelched the rumor that the Department of Natural Resources would close several state parks.

Away for the Weekend

Finding a cure for spring fever close to home

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

It was 10:30 Friday morning when a co-worker burst into my office with a desperate look on her face.

"I've gotta get outta here!" Dee Head of Farmington Hills said.

I know the feeling well. It's called spring fever.

"Where can I go for the weekend on $200? That's got to include transportation, hotel, food, everything."

We pulled out a map and drew an imaginary circle: west to Chicago, north to Traverse City, northeast to Toronto, southeast to Cleveland, south to Lima and Indianapolis. That's about as far as you want to drive on a two-day weekend.

"I usually travel in Michigan, but I want to go south toward the sun this time," Dee said.

"What do you want to do when you get there?" I asked. "Walk in the woods? Go sight-seeing? Ride roller coasters?"

"I'm not much on roller coasters, but I like sightseeing, or just walking around. We go camping sometimes, so I like nature. Or I would be perfectly happy to do nothing. I've just got to get out of here!"

"You like to mosey and poke," I said.

She also likes the sun, so we checked all those fabulous air fares that have been advertised this spring. Unfortunately, most of those tickets had to be purchased before April 8. There are still good fares to nearby places like Chicago, Toronto and Cincinnati if you plan in advance, but none of them work if you decide Friday to leave Friday.

For example: buy a Northwest Airlines ticket to Toronto 14 days ahead of flight time, complete our trip before June 4, and you travel for $103 to $114 round-trip depending on the day of the week you fly. Remember: most good air fares require you to buy in advance, fly midweek and stay over a Saturday night.

There are exceptions. COMAIR, which coordinates its schedules with Delta Airlines, sells a $200 coupon book containing four $50 coupons. Each coupon is good for one flight to any COMAIR destination as long as you fly Saturday, Sunday or Monday morning.

There is no advance purchase required, but limited seating is available. COMAIR flights from Detroit go through Cincinnati. If you fly to Nashville, you will need one $50 coupon for the Detroit to Cincinnati flight and another for Cincinnati to Nashville.

The best buy is obviously Detroit to Cincinnati, $50 each way. Call Delta toll free anytime at (800) 221-1212 or call COMAIR toll-free during Monday-to-Friday business hours (800) 543-7308. Coupon books can be bought at the airport. Or buy a Miscellaneous Exchange Coupon from your travel agent and turn it in at the airport for a coupon book.

As it turned out, Dee didn't want to go to Cincinnati. She couldn't buy a ticket in advance, and any other ticket would blow her $200 budget.

She was determined to go out of state, so our next stop was at a file marked "State Park Lodges." Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky have wonderful state park resorts where you can sleep in nice quarters and spend your days walking, hiking, biking and otherwise enjoying nature.

Pine Mountain State Park was her first choice, but Dee lost enthusiasm when she learned it was in the very south of Kentucky. Too far to drive for two days.

Please turn to Page 5

Ferries like this one regularly take tourists across the St. Clair River to Canada from Marine City.

This is an anchor from a ship wrecked in the St. Clair River in 1900. The Blue Water Bridge is in the background.

Visitors to St. Clair, Mich., can walk on boardwalks like this one and watch the boats go by all day while forgetting about their problems, at least for the weekend.

Travel cuts are big topic at state conference

The eighth annual Governor's Conference on Tourism took place last week here at Schuss Mt. Lodge at Shanty Creek-Schuss Mountain Resort near Bellaire.

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

Travel industry professionals from all over Michigan gathered at Shanty Creek-Schuss Mountain Resort in Bellaire last week to attend the eighth annual Governor's Conference on Tourism.

We had all been in limbo since last fall's elections, wondering what kind of budget cuts the new administration would propose. The proposed arts cuts are dramatic. Would that happen to tourism, even though it is among the top three industries in Michigan?

We're not selling many cars these days, so tourism and agriculture may now be the top two industries in Michigan. To put that in perspective, tourism is a $20 billion industry, creating 340,000 jobs and producing state tax revenues of $750,000.

Arthur Ellis, Director of the Michigan Department of Commerce, which includes the Travel Bureau, made the rumors official at the conference. Gov. John Engler has proposed that the department budget be slashed from $114 million to $18 million. Fortunately, the core of the state program would be left intact.

Outreach grants, which supported tourism activity in community governments and organizations, are completely eliminated from the proposed budget. If Engler gets his wish, you won't see any more advertisements that are cooperative ventures between the state and regional tourist bureaus.

Those booklets that tell you about bed-and-breakfast places, fishing boats and other things, would be available only if their costs are picked up by the private sector.

If you call the toll-free number (800) 5432-YES you will be sent a basic package, limited to save postage, that includes a state travel planning guide, events calendar and map. If you want more, you must specifically ask for it. You may even be given another phone number to call so that you can get it elsewhere.

Steven Seagal plays Brooklyn cop Gino Felino in Warner Bros. action-thriller "Out for Justice."

'Turtles' tops at box office

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

Only two new films opened this week as the system continues to milk the current box-office hits. The first, "Heaven and Earth" (PG-13) is listed as a Japanese samurai epic while the second, "Out for Justice" (R), stars Steven Seagal in a story about a cop and a drug lord. How imaginative!

Through the end of March — the latest figures available — "Ninja Turtles" had grossed more than $46 million in its first two weeks while "Home Alone" is well passed the $250 million mark. "Silence of the Lambs" now shows $90 million in the till after 1 1/2 months. It seems that sadism pays well.

Everybody loves a winner and Oscars continue to attract viewers. The seven that "Dances With Wolves" brought home continues to translate into $1 million dollars a day. Considering that "Dances With Wolves" has been playing for 147 days, that's quite some total for a film they said never would.

"Ghost" is still playing at around 200 screens around the country although its Oscar aren't helping too much since the video cassette appeared March 21.

This year's domestic box office — that's all the tickets sold in the United States and Canada — continues to show significant gains over last year in every category. Number of tickets sold are up 17 percent over 1990 with box office dollars at $1.16 billion, which is almost 18 percent more than 1990's near record total. Of course, average ticket price is up as well, to nearly $4.90.

Add TV, cable, videotape and overseas rentals plus all those T-shirts and toys, and it doesn't look like the recession has struck the movie business. Some might suggest that the entertainment business rises during a mild recession since the urge to escape bad times leads to the box office. There's also more leisure time available when work schedules are trimmed.

STILL PLAYING:

"Awakenings" (B, PG-13, 121 minutes).

Robin Williams and Robert De Niro as doctor and catatonic patient call to mind too many other films. The doctor's special care and sensitivity lead to temporary recovery

Strong women at Maple

By John Monaghan
special writer

For the female protagonists in "Le Femme Nikita" and "The Nasty Girl," the choices they face are literally between life and death. These two foreign offerings, both major hits in Europe last year, are currently on-screen at the Maple Theatre.

In Luc Besson's stylish new thriller, Nikita (Anne Parillaud) is a young hellsion and Death Row inmate who wakes from a supposedly lethal injection to find herself groggy but alive in a dormitory room. Serve France as a secret agent, she is told, or really be put to death.

The resulting film mixes "Pygmalion" and "The Girl From U.N.C.L.E." with disappointing results. It takes almost an hour for Nikita to undergo the laborious physical and psychological reorientation which could easily have been explicated in a montage.

The real action starts when Nikita, placed back in society, begins to fulfill her secret assignments. She may be cooking dinner, sleeping, or making love when the phone call arrives, asking for her code name "Josephine."

Director Besson ("The Big Blue")

is a master of style over substance who works best in raucous action scenes. He does achieve considerable suspense when Nikita has to assassinate someone from the bathroom window while her impatient husband waits in the other.

MOMENTS LIKE these stick with you, along with an opening sequence where Nikita and her fellow punk walk side-by-side through the dark streets of Paris. They literally drag along one of their mates behind them since he's obviously too drugged to walk.

It is not by accident that the First Amendment is number one on the Bill of Rights. Its prominence is directly proportional to the importance of Freedom of Speech, something Thomas Jefferson clearly recognized.

As long as the American people can speak out freely and ask the right questions, tyranny will never succeed in this country. By protecting everyone's right to speak, no matter how much we might disagree with someone or other, we protect all.

But there is a question. Are there any limitations to Freedom of Speech?

That's the question asked — and answered quite eloquently it should be noted — in a new video available from Academy Entertainment on April 25.

"Skokie" (1981, color, PG, 121 minutes) and its all-star cast recount the prolonged First Amendment struggle between an American Nazi group, the American Civil Liberties Union, the village of Skokie, Ill., a Chicago suburb, the Jewish Defense League and Jewish Holocaust survivors, a large number of whom lived in Skokie in the late '70s when Chicago Nazis decided to stage a march there.

Danny Kaye plays Max Feldman, a concentration camp survivor who witnessed the murder of much of his family by the Nazis. To him American neo-Nazis marching in his hometown wearing the Swastika is abhorrent. This time Feldman is prepared to stand and fight alongside the Jewish Defense League.

THE LATTER is the radical group founded in that era by the recently murdered Rabbi Kahane who preached, among other things, that never again should Jews stand passively when attacked as they had during Hitler's reign of terror.

This newspaper you are enjoying is one of 50 Detroit suburban newspapers in a network called SPRING.

SPRING (The Suburban Press RING) is the network of all suburban newspapers published by the Adams, Associated, Heritage, Observer & Eccentric, and Hometown groups.

SPRING delivers advertisers a single, extremely effective way to reach as many as 728,812 households in Detroit's affluent suburbs.

That is about twice as many as you can reach in the daily Free Press, and more than twice the number you can reach in The News.

Best of all is the price — SPRING's flat rate for inserts is just $23 per thousand, regardless of size (approximately half the published CPMs of the DNA and ADVO), and our ROP CPMs are lower, too.

And you place just one order, deal with one rep, provide one set of ROP copy or art, and get one invoice.

All of which is why a lot of advertisers, looking for ways to get more for less, are finding and using SPRING. How about you?

Bill Shapiro: Music fan finds a 'home' on 'Cyprus Avenue'

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Bill Shapiro has turned a few corners in his musical journey, but "Cyprus Avenue" has become his permanent home on the radio.

The show is heard 12:30 p.m. Fridays on WDET-FM 101.9. The program features a diverse mix of rock'n'roll, from the classics of Neil Young and Bob Dylan to the new music of R.E.M. and Eleven Dream Day.

Its gravel-voiced host is a methodical archivist and a wide-eyed enthusiast. He educates without having his nose in the air about his knowledge.

"I'm a fan," said Shapiro, 54, whose program is aired from KCUR-FM in Kansas City, Mo., via satellite to nearly 50 stations on the National Public Radio network. "I'm very passionate about music. When I'm moved by something, I really get into it."

"When someone comes up to me and says, 'Hey, you turned me on to so-and-so,' that makes it all worthwhile."

Though eclectic, a common thread can be detected in the stream of music Shapiro plays on "Cyprus Avenue." He prefers artists who have something honest to say rather than those who merely release a "pure product."

Shapiro receives virtually no promotional releases from major labels. Instead, the tax lawyer by day relies on his own massive record collection, which was started with a 78 of a World War II trench ditty. The first LP he bought, incidentally, was "Johnny Smith's Jazz at NBC."

AT FIRST, Shapiro's musical interests were in pop. Then, in his teenage years, he developed an affinity for jazz.

But it was a young turk with swiveling hips from Tupelo, Miss., who turned Shapiro's sights to rock'n'roll. The then-law student caught Elvis Presley's act on the "Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey Bandstand" show on television.

His interests evolved to the revolutionary sounds of nasal-voiced of Bob Dylan and later the Celtic soul stirrings of Van Morrison and the electrified poetry of Neil Young. But while music was a passion, it was never an occupation.

Shapiro tried the piano and the banjo, but could play neither. "I didn't have the aptitude for it," he said. And, until the debut of "Cyprus Avenue" 13 years ago, he had never worked in radio.

That changed when a friend at the NPR station in Kansas City told Shapiro that if he ever needed a favor, he shouldn't hesitate to ask, in return for his constant fund-raising help for public broadcasting.

"I told her, 'I'd like to do an intelligent show on rock'n'roll,'" Shapiro said. "When I was a graduate law student in New York... I listened to Billy Taylor's radio show, which was an intelligent show on jazz. I thought it would work on rock."

SHAPIRO DID an audition, taping a show called "Ballads by Rockers" that featured ballad music by arena rockers like the Rolling Stones. He was invited back.

"Cyprus Avenue" is the only rock'n'roll show offered by NPR. The show is one of the most popular midday programs in the WDET lineup.

"I'm somewhat mystified by it," Shapiro said. "They moved the show to 12:30 p.m., which is a God-awful time to pick up a radio audience... I ascribe it to the sign that the listening audience enjoys WDET's eclectic mix of radio programming."

Letters he receives cross all demographics, including notes of appreciation from 50- and 60-year-olds who until listening to "Cyprus Avenue" thought rock'n'roll was just noisy racket. A majority of the response, though, lands in the 30-45 age range, Shapiro said.

The show is definitely a labor of love, especially to Shapiro's wallet. He sometimes pays $200 a month out of his own pocket for the satellite uplink. He's toyed with the idea of taking "Cyprus Avenue" to commercial radio, but admits it's difficult marketing a rock'n'roll program.

Dark Carnival: Creative retreat

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Dark Carnival is something of an all-star rock'n'roll conglomerate. But for the band's creator Colonial Galaxy, it was a nightmare.

The genesis of the metallic sounding group was a dream.

The good Colonial remembers a bad dream, one in which he walked into a carnival and found himself trapped inside a freak show. While most would chalk up the experience to some Freudian malfunction or too many Oreo cookies before bedtime, the Colonial used the vision to form a band.

Since 1984, Dark Carnival has carried on the punk traditions fostered by Detroit's forebears with a line-up that's continually evolving. Previous members read like a who's who of Detroit rock'n'roll, including ex-Mutant Art Lyzak and Bootsey X.

Current members of Dark Carnival include Ron and Scott Asheton from the Stooges; bassist Greasy Carlisi from the Reputations; rhythm guitarist Mark Gilder and, of course, leopard striped singer and astrologist Niagara. Rrrr.

"We could only stand each other for a short time," said Niagara with a laugh, explaining the turnover in personnel. "Actually, I really like it. We all get along really well. Nobody tries to steal the scene."

Which is an admirable feat, considering the abundance of talent confined in one group. Like their name, Dark Carnival performs with the same frequency that a midway visits a small village.

THE BAND was intended to be something of a creative retreat for members. As a result, live shows have been few.

Yet, Dark Carnival has still managed to record two live albums, "Greatest Show in Detroit" and "Welcome to Show Business" on Revenge Records in France. Dark Carnival, along with all Detroit rock'n'roll, has a large following among the Francophones.

Stateside, the live LPs are import only and hard to come by.

"People seem to have copies around here," said Niagara, who fronted the snarling punk outfit Destroy All Monsters. "I don't know how they're getting them."

The unavailability of Dark Carnival product should change. The band will enter The Schoolhouse in Ann Arbor to record its first studio LP soon.

The project will feature a conglomeration of songs the creative tandem of Niagara and Ron Asheton have recently constructed. He promises they'll be of the hard

GALA

— Lush

At its best, this fashionable British quartet sets its airy tunes to a rolling beat, adrift in a sea of intertwining guitars, echoing feedback, angelic vocals and thunderous waves of rhythm. But often Lush's sonic ship docks itself in the port of monotony.

Repeating two songs on this 15-track U.S. debut doesn't help to vary its sound, which is pretty much unchord to start with. This collection of Lush's earlier work on trendy British label 4AD is somewhat disjointed. But it displays the band's potential to make melodious mood music in the atmospheric vein of the thier soulmates, Cocteau Twins. Parts of "Gala" were produced by Cocteau Twin Robin Guthrie; others by Tim Friese-Greene of art-rock outfit Talk Talk.

"Gala" is at once silk and sandpaper, brooding and brash, inspired and indifferent. One minute Lush is riding on the sweet cymbal-supported pop sounds of the pretty "Scarlet," and the next they're thrashing about in washed out guitars and flute-like vocals on the aptly titled "Leaves Me Cold."

Lush bases its sound around the ethereal guitar dialogue and falsetto harmonies of Mike Berenyi and Emma Anderson. When the formula works, it works well, as shown on college hit "Sweetness and Light," "De-Luxe" and "Thoughtforms." Unfortunately, many of the tracks mesh together in a slew of indecipherable lyrics sung devoid of personality, over a drone of driving guitars and snare-heavy drums.

Despite its shortcomings, "Gala" is a good introduction to a band that has taken giant strides in only two and a half years together. To hold the claim they've staked among the hip, Lush must now produce a cohesive follow-up.

TAME YOURSELF — various artists

This is a compilation released by the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) organization. All the artists involved are those with strong feeling on this subject and, for the most part, express themselves quite strongly in their material used on this album.

It's quite a healthy list of participants, including Howard Jones, Indigo Girls, Michael Stipe, k.d. lang, B-52's, Pretenders, Jane Weidlin, Belinda Carlisle and more.

It's kicked off with the electro-funk-pop sound of Howard Jones, exhorting us: "Don't be part of it," with lyrics like "save the butcher's knife" and "as long as animals die in testing, we won't find humanity." Jones' contribution is well-produced but fairly predictable.

Next up comes a new band from Canada, Raw Youth. This is the track that has been receiving most airplay, with the video including most of the participants of the entire album. The song is "Tame Yourself" and is a bright, jaunty, acoustic guitar driven number with a dual female vocals delivering a catchy chorus.

This leads into one of the best songs on the album, "I'll Give You My Skin," with Michael Stipe joining with Indigo Girls. It's rich in lyrical imagery and vocal strength from all parties involved. It also features some subtle acoustic guitar playing from the Girls. What keeps this song apart from the others is imagination used to convey the message as opposed to the beat it down the throat mentality of some involved here. k.d. lang steps up next with "Damned Old Dog," which features the intriguing chorus of "Do I wanna be a dog, any diddlin' male will do/If I was a damned old dog, I wouldn't be fussy for you."

Now, along come two well-known, outrageous and well-known for being outrageous females — Germany's Nina Hagen and Dearborn's Lene Lovich. Their song is an electro dance number which features the staged soundtrack of one of the PETA specialties: breaking into experimentation labs to free the animals. Pity about the song, though.

Then, (be still-my beating heart), comes everybody's favorite (?), Jane Weidlin. She sings "Fur," the second best song on the album.

STREET CRACKS

Hollywood doesn't lure Reiser away from his roots

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Paul Reiser is everything one would expect out of a first-rate stand-up comedian: He's upbeat, personable, witty and self-deprecating. Paul Reiser is everything one would not expect in a movie star. He's upbeat, personable... Well, you get the picture.

Not that all people in films are a dour, self-absorbed lot who take themselves and their craft far too seriously. It just seems that way.

Those who landed in Hollywood via the comedy route might begin to view doing stand-up regularly as somehow beneath them. Not Reiser, who's spending two weeks out of the month on the road performing the club circuit.

"I WANT to use it (stand up) as a way down," said Reiser, who performs tonight (April 15) at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle. "I want to end up making keys at Sears. I want to use it to slide out of the business. I figure Detroit is a favorite place to start.

"I always love doing stand up," Reiser said, dislodging the tongue from his cheek. "I think in the back of your head when you start doing stand up you're thinking, 'Stand up will lead to television, television will lead to movies, and movies will lead to a satellite image of my face.' My goal was never to be a star."

But he is. Reiser has a major role in Neil Simon's "The Marrying Man" with Alec Baldwin and Kim Basinger.

REISER NARRATES the movie in which he and Baldwin, along with a group of chums, travel through the Nevada desert for a weekend romp in Las Vegas. Baldwin's character falls for a nightclub singer, played by Basinger.

The New York native has also been featured in both "Beverly Hills Cop" films, "Aliens" and "Crazy People." Of course, Reiser's breakthrough role came as Modell, forever inquiring about the status of the uneaten half-sandwich, in Barry Levinson's "Diner." He also starred in the NBC-TV sitcom "My Two Dads."

Yet, for all his screen success, there's still a need to sit in hotel rooms an hour before show time scribbling lines on yellow legal pads. Once a comedian, always a comedian.

Reiser's latest stand-up tour involves going four to five nights in a row across the country. He'll also tape an hourlong performance in May for Showtime to be aired sometime in the fall.

"You don't suddenly say one day, 'I'm going to stop doing this and I'm going to do that.' You're always moving along both paths. I'm very fortunate to be able to do both (stand up and films)."

BARRY LEVINSON is to be thanked for Reiser's duality. The director gave the actor/comedian/writer his break, picking him to star along with Steve Guttenberg and Mickey Rourke in "Diner."

Reiser recalls the famous casting tale, sitting outside in the hallway waiting for a friend to finish up his audition. The casting director happened to see Reiser and told him to return the next day to read for the part. Four days later, the young comedian was in Baltimore filming.

Since then, Reiser has worked alongside several of the industry's funniest actors, such as Eddie Murphy ("Beverly Hills Cop") and Dudley Moore ("Crazy People").

His latest sidekick, Baldwin, proved quite humorous in "The Marrying Man." Reiser calls the young actor "one of the smartest guys" he has ever worked with.

"There's four guys and we're in the middle of the desert. You're sweating. We'd hurt ourselves laughing, we had such a good time."

NOW THAT he has been in a few films, Reiser has written his own romantic comedy. He doesn't divulge details, only to say the film would be set in New York and centers around "a nasty guy who becomes a good guy."

In order to complete the script, Reiser said he locked himself in a room for four months. Writing is not new for him. He wrote, produced and starred in his own HBO comedy special, "Paul Reiser: Out on a Whim."

Although with Reiser's burgeoning acting career, the time to write new material for a stand-up routine would be at a premium.

"It's funny. The longer you do it, it becomes easier but it becomes harder. You can write more of it, but you become more selective."

In spite of his successes in the movies and in television, Paul Reiser stays in touch with his comedic roots, doing stand-up two weeks out of the month.

Once a child feels comfortable, Kim Jamieson picks up her camera and starts shooting. The end result can be this breath of springtime, a portrait of Natalie Hecht, that hangs in the home of her parents, Paul and Amy Hecht.

Picture perfect

Jamieson style captures kids being kids

By Joanne Sobczak
special writer

Michigan was playing Notre Dame that day and Wolverine fan Ron Siegel wasn't too keen on joining baby son Reid and wife Karen Satovsky Siegel in a common, but often frustrating family adventure. Not quite a trip to grandmother's house, the Siegels were headed to Kimberly Jamieson's home for a shot or two — photographs, that is.

"Being in Kim's home is more comfortable than at a storefront studio," said Karen about the 31-year-old Livonia portrait photographer.

Jamieson is known among the younger set — primarily newborns to six-year-olds and their parents — in the metropolitan area for capturing the naturalness of a child unlike the still life often seen in department store photographs.

"I think it's very important to capture children the way they are and not the way parents think they should be — all prim and proper and posed," said Jamieson. "Kids have so many facets to their personality. They don't always smile. They're not always laughing. They do pout. They put their fingers in their mouths and become shy."

Besides her inborn talent with a camera and a matching maternal instinct for looking beyond the common simpler as alternative gestures to photograph, Jamieson's studio atmosphere contributes to her beautiful little works of art.

"It's important to make kids feel at home," she said. "Where are kids most at home? In a relaxed atmosphere."

SINCE THE client's residence would be the most comfortable place for the child but technically inappropriate for the photographer, she creates a home-like atmosphere "Jamieson style."

As they enter her cozy brick bungalow, customers find themselves greeted by the family dog and cat as well as by 5-year-old daughter Nicole. And kids certainly can get excited about playing with other children.

"When a kid comes through the door and sees another kid, they think, 'This must not be that bad,'" said Jamieson, whose living room and stairwell walls reflect a pictorial history of achievement and significant family events.

In Siegel's case, 17-month-old Reid needed to be preoccupied with something he could best relate to. The ultimate factor in catching that natural look in a youngster is Jamieson's ability to connect with the little person by finding a "common ground." For Reid, it was daddy.

As a warm-up, Jamieson advised dad to get down on the floor and play with his son. What's more natural?

"She began to instinctively shoot pictures," recalled Siegel, a University of Michigan alum. He came dressed for the occasion — the football game not the photo session — in a Michigan cap and sweat shirt. The original outfit selected for Reid was a white shirt and green and blue plaid pants but dad couldn't resist bringing his son's U-M sweat shirt, U-M football and volleyball (oh, and a regular Wilson basketball).

"THEY LOOKED cute together," said Jamieson of her main reason for photographing those father-son moments although pictures were taken later with Reid in his planned shirt and pants set.

Jamieson places a great deal of emphasis on the importance of the parents' role in obtaining all the possible expressions radiated by their child.

"I have his pictures in our home and my desk at work," said Satovsky Siegel, a commercial interior designer, while describing the different poses. "That's my boy."

Jamieson credits the birth of her daughter as the motivating element that led her away from wedding photography (free-lance and when employed at Fox Studios) and into children's portraits. Before that she would never have considered getting on the floor and rolling around as she does with Nicole and her pint-sized customers.

Four-year-old Natalie Hecht was totally intrigued with Nicole, according to her mother Amy.

"Kim's daughter entertained Natalie and she became very comfortable," said Hecht, who has had several bad experiences with store photographers.

Jamieson suggested Hecht bring a white slip, flowers, relevant stuffed animals and Natalie's "blanky" (blanket).

"SHE TOOK pictures of Natalie, hugging her bunny and bear and one of her wrapped in her blanky," said the West Bloomfield resident.

In addition to her camera equipment which includes the best — a $8,000 Hasselblad unit — Jamieson has an ugly hat she calls her "thinking cap" to rouse the older boys and a tickle stick (feather duster).

Denise Hennessy, a former Mary Kay Cosmetics director, remembers when Jamieson's daughter assisted with the feather duster during a family shoot. Nicole kept the whole family laughing with a tickle here and a tickle there, she said.

The "family triangle," where the entire family of four was stacked up one on top of the other in a triangular formation, was Hennessy's idea after some consultation with Jamieson.

"Kim will sit you down and talk to you until you figure out what you want," she said. "She asks you a lot of questions about what the family personality is like."

Hennessy ended up buying "all of the proofs because it was so hard to pick just one."

JAMIESON FAVORS a white or pastel background and enjoys the use of fabrics. Props hold a major significance to this photographic artist. Live and stuffed animals often play a role because, said Jamieson, "you pull out the tender side of people."

"Children react so sincere to animals when they are petting them," she said. "They get so excited when they see them."

Little girls are provided hats, beads, pearls and lacy frills (and parents have to bring some accessories, too) as well as oversized ladies' things like high-heeled shoes and purses.

Boys may be dressed in dad's shirt and tie, adult glasses or sunglasses. Sports equipment is always recommended for a scene. But if daddy's little girl is a tomboy, that's OK. She doesn't have to wear pearls and lace, holding a baseball bat will do — whatever it takes to extract that child's inner self.

Jamieson's repertoire of antics includes "being a kid." She tells of a 2-year-old who clung to his mother, deathly afraid of Jamieson and the picture-taking machine she used.

"I TOOK A rubber spider and threw it at him and he caught it and started laughing," she said. "And for a half hour all we did was throw the spider back and forth at each other."

"Or sometimes, when I pull my background out and want to photograph them, they don't want to step on it. So I start jumping up and down and tell them to hop on their feet." Before the child knows it, he's flopping all over the sheet, she said.

Speech pathologist Claudia Kujawski brought son Alexander to Jamieson, wanting "something unique." They decided that a musician pose would be perfect for Kujawski's already musically inclined 7-month-old, whose father James, a banker, has been a violinist for more than 20 years.

Kujawski went to a children's shop in Troy, called Grandma's Best, and ordered a white tux. The day of the photo session, Jamieson suggested letting Alexander sit on music sheets and permit him to explore the violin in the normal fashion of a toddler. He began plucking the strings.

That moment now adorns the Kujawskis' Huntington Woods home as a wall portrait.

Even though children's pictures are Jamieson's specialty, she does family photography (graduation pictures included) and glamour portraits for the women. She even does pets.

"Kids are like dogs; you have to chase them, bribe them," she said. "But there's nothing in the world that people love more than kids, babies, puppies and kittens. The problem is they grow up and get bigger."

But when that happens to her clients' children, they'll always have that portrait to turn to. What now is their grown-up son or daughter is small once more for just a little while.

KIM JAMIESON

James and Claudi Kujawski's 7-month-old Alexander was dressed in a white tux to fiddle around with a violin and sheet music.

DIA helps youngsters appreciate art

By Jeff Hooten
special writer

EACH YEAR, hundreds of area school children head downtown on field trips to the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Yet for every class that makes the trek, there are many more who can't due to lack of time, money or the distance involved. For many area teachers, the answer is simple: have the museum come to the school.

For 25 years, Art to the Schools has provided just such a service.

A volunteer committee of the Detroit Institute of Arts, Art to the Schools supplies area classrooms with free art appreciation talks based on the collections of the DIA.

Last year, 64 volunteers gave 1,129 talks to 35,745 students.

"Their function is to go out to schools all over the tri-county area and give art talks to fourth, fifth and sixth graders," said Jennie Williams, who works in the DIA Education Department and is staff liaison/adviser to Art to the Schools. "We've zeroed in on that age group as being the most receptive to our kind of talk."

EACH TALK lasts about an hour and is illustrated with slides and reproductions of works at the museum.

"They take what we call 'touchables' if they want to," Williams said. "We have art reproductions and some art materials like brushes that they can take in addition to their slides."

Some volunteers, like Philip Kanat, one of only two men currently active as speakers, prefer to keep things simple. "The only props I use are slides and my blackboard," the Southfield resident said.

"Slides are really the best way of getting a look at an art reproduction," Williams said. "The image is large and the volunteers work with a few well-chosen pieces that they like and that they feel comfortable with."

"But the real heart of the program is what we call the 'inquiry method,' not necessarily just talking 'at' kids about the slides and about art, but asking questions and drawing the information out of the kids, getting the kids to respond and really look at a work of art, maybe for the first time."

KANAT, AT 75, often gives 2-3 talks a week. "The children have reacted the way I've wanted them to react. I've been able to get them to participate."

Art to the Schools offers such art subjects as American, African, Asian, Native American and, new this year, European.

Other topics include "The Ancient World," "Introduction to the Museum," "Art of our Time" (modern art) and "People of the World," a talk developed in response to the needs of social studies teachers.

"Throughout the year, American Art is our most popular talk because teachers see that it fits right into their curriculum," Williams said. "It goes right along with what they've been studying in American history, and gives them a chance to illustrate it with works of art."

Any teacher can request a talk, though most are art instructors, media specialists (librarians) and regular classroom teachers whose students are studying topics such as history, social studies and even language arts.

"Quite often, the volunteers will bring a list of terms or write art terms on the board so that the kids are learning new words that can key in with their study of language arts," Williams said.

ART TO the Schools was formed in the early 1960s by the Junior League of Detroit. By 1965-66, the Junior League joined with the DIA's Founder's Society. The Founder's Society took full responsibility the next year.

What sets Art to the Schools apart from similar programs is the amount of training each volunteer must complete to begin visiting classrooms.

"The volunteers train together with the docents who give the tours in the building," Williams said. "They have the same training, which is art historical. It's like an art history course from cave art to contemporary art. It lasts one school year, September through May."

The class, open to the public, is taught at the DIA one morning a week for two hours. The volunteers must pay tuition, refunded upon successful completion of the course.

The volunteers have access to something that the public does not have access to, Williams said. "It's a special class, just for the trainees, where they'll go around to the galleries and actually look at examples of things they've been seeing in slides — some 'behind-the-scenes' tours."

"They'll also get very special training on how to talk to kids — how to get across this information to kids — techniques of touring and speaking about art."

Art to the Schools volunteer Cyvia Synder (center) of West Bloomfield shows students at St. John Lutheran School in Rochester an example of Native American beadwork.

THE PROGRAM challenges volunteers with training Williams feels is on par with college-level courses.

"I would urge people to volunteer for the program. It would certainly be a great help to the community and the museum and it is a marvelous learning experience," Kanat said.

Elaine Redmond, a former school teacher who has been with program for six years, agrees.

"This program is so nice because you get back so much from it," the Birmingham resident said. "You give your time and you have to train for a year at the museum. It's a big commitment, but at the same time, you're learning so much and because you're down at the museum, you're right there in the heart of things."

In addition to their love of art, another trait that all the volunteers share is a fondness for the kids in the classrooms.

"I've been able to provoke them enough to develop their interest in the museum. And of course, I see my role as simply to stimulate them," Kanat said. "They're good kids. They're kids who are 10, 11 and 12 years old, and they're marvelous to work with at that stage."

"I TRY and relate the objects I show the children to their lives," Redmond said. "They're so used to seeing images on television and in books and magazines, yet they never get to see the real thing."

"Many schools have a regular program of bringing their students down to the museum. But there are hundreds and hundreds of schools, where for whatever reason, the children do not get a chance to come to the museum. Those are the kids I want to reach."

Past and present Art to the Schools volunteers will reunite at the Roostertail in Detroit in June for a special celebration. Yet as the program prepares to celebrate its 25th year, many are concerned state budget cuts now under consideration may bring an end to the program.

"We really have no idea what's going to happen if we have a cut-back," Williams said. "If we lose all of our state funding, which provides half of our budget, we would have to close down. I don't know what that would mean for the (Art to the Schools) program."

"There are only two staff members who work with Art to the Schools, yet by using volunteer labor, we're able to reach 35,000 children annually. Teachers will say over and over again, 'The kids wouldn't have any other exposure like this to the arts if it weren't for your program.'"

"It's been wonderful for the kids to come down to the museum and see everything for free," Redmond said. "But now when I go in the schools, I tell them to hurry down and see because it may turn into this huge warehouse for art and the public may not be able to go in."

"If this is taken away, it's going to be heartbreaking."

To become a volunteer with Art to the Schools, call Jennie Williams in the DIA's Department of Education at 833-7977 or program assistant Dana Lee at 833-7883.

Volunteers play key part

The week of April 21-27 is National Volunteer Week. But the volunteers at the Detroit Institute of Arts are recognized as special every day.

For more than 28 years, this group of volunteers has played an integral role in museum operations. Numbering 500 men and women, they give more than 58,000 hours of service each year in a number of ways.

They work with children in their schools and at the museum, helping increase their involvement and interest in art.

They serve visitors by giving tours, answering questions in the galleries and by furnishing general information at information desks.

They also handle sales in the museum shop, decorate the public spaces, assist office staff and extend museum services into the community.

To join the volunteer committee of the DIA, call the auxiliary services department: 833-0247.

Under the stars DSO, Meadow Brook team up for 15 concerts

The 28th annual Meadow Brook Music Festival, with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in residence, begins Friday, June 14, and continues through Aug. 11.

New this year for the seven-week, 15-concert series will be the presentation of two distinct DSO programs on each of two nights during the seven weeks.

Each week the two programs will be altered slightly to include either different works or guest soloists. Conductors for the two weekly programs will remain the same.

There will be a special July 4 celebration with concert and fireworks.

DSO music director Neeme Jarvi will conduct two weeks of concerts. Special guest conductors include James DePreist, Leslie B. Dunner, Jahja Ling, Bobby McFerrin (conductor and vocalist), Mitch Miller and Yuri Temirkanov.

Jarvi will be on the podium the first two weeks. Civil War historian and Abraham Lincoln scholar Shelby Foote, will narrate Copland's "Lincoln Portrait" on Friday and Sunday, June 14-16. Both concerts will include works by Ives, Schumann, Dvorak and Sibelius.

THE SECOND week of concerts with Jarvi will have a strong local as well as American focus.

On Thursday, June 20, there will be a world premiere of a violin concerto by Stanley Hollingsworth of the Oakland University faculty with DSO concertmaster Emmanuelle Boisvert as soloist.

Pianist Louis Lortie will make his debut with the DSO on Saturday, June 22, performing the Grieg Piano Concerto on a program that includes works by Khachaturian and Mendelssohn.

Neeme Jarvi
DSO conductor

McFerrin, a Grammy-award winning crossover artist, will conduct on Thursday, July 18, and Saturday, July 20. In the first, he will conduct Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and then vocally perform the solo violin part of the Bach Concerto for Violin in A minor.

In the second concert, in addition to the Beethoven Symphony, McFerrin will perform one of the solo parts to the Vivaldi Concerto for Two Mandolins with a DSO violinist. McFerrin, known as one of the greatest jazz singers since Ella Fitzgerald, made his conducting debut with the Boston Pops Orchestra and, with the aid and coaching of renowned conducting teacher Gustav Meier, now dedicates four to six weeks each year to leading major symphony orchestras.

WHEN CLEVELAND Orchestra resident conductor Jahja Lings conducts on Friday, July 26, the soloist will be 13-year-old violin virtuoso Leila Josefowicz, performing the Saint-Saens Violin Concerto No. 3.

Pianist Ivan Moravec, performing the Ravel Piano Concerto in G Major will be the guest when Lings conducts on Sunday, July 28.

Stars of the New York City Ballet and the American Ballet Theatre will be the guest artists for the final concerts of the season conducted by Leslie B. Dunner on Friday, Aug. 9, and Sunday, Aug. 11. Both evenings will conclude with fireworks.

Other special guests will be James

Tocco, pianist, performing works by Leonard Bernstein on Thursday, June 27, and Florence Quivar, mezzo-soprano, performing Bernstein works on Saturday, June 29, with DePreist conducting both concerts.

Nikolai Petrov, pianist will be the soloist on Saturday, July 6. Viktor Tretyakov, violinist, will be featured on Sunday, July 7, when Temirkanov conducts two all-Russian programs.

For a copy of the Meadow Brook Festival Box Office, Oakland University, Rochester, 48309-4401.

Single tickets go on sale at Ticket-Master outlets beginning May 17 and at the Meadow Brook box office on June 1.

Apprentice auditions set

The Michigan Opera Theatre has scheduled vocal auditions for the 1991-92 Young Artist Apprentice Program on Thursday and Friday, May 9-10.

Two apprenticeships will be awarded, each lasting 8-12 weeks. Winners will be considered for programs beginning in September and April 1992.

The apprentice program offers a wide range of performance opportunities throughout the mainstage season. Apprentices perform comprimario (secondary) roles, cover major roles and participate in the chorus of mainstage productions.

When not rehearsing or performing, apprentices are individually coached by the resident music staff. They also participate in master classes under the tutelage of internationally acclaimed singers, directors and conductors from the current Michigan Opera Theatre season.

Interested applicants must submit a cover letter, resume, an 8- by 10-inch black and white glossy photo and two letters of recommendation from professional sources by May 1 to Dee Dorsey, Production and Audition Coordinator, 6519 Second Avenue, Detroit 48202.

Applicants for production apprenticeships will also be considered at this time. For more information on either program, call 874-7850.

How to protect shoulder pads

Q: I'm having more and more problems with shoulder pads. They are nice at first but repeated washing or cleaning causes them to lose their shape. Then I had a really bad experience: At a hotel convention, I spent lots of time getting ready to look perfect and at the last minute threw on my suit coat (fresh from the cleaners), only to find one of the shoulder pads dangling down inside the lining of the sleeve! Can you help me "organize" my shoulder pads?

A: As if we don't have enough to do, attention to shoulder pads has become an added necessity. I did a little research and here are some thoughts:

Suit coat pads are sometimes glued in and repeated cleaning can melt the glue. Monitor them closely and repair them when necessary. (That shouldn't happen on good brands.)

You can cut out and re-sew loose pads back in for each cleaning, but frankly, that's a pain. Some women remove pads permanently and just wear the same pair that Velcro to their bra straps with everything.

Detachable pads that are attached by Velcro to the garment are ideal, but they're only sewn into some clothing. You can make most of them detachable by sewing in Velcro yourself, and you can try to buy only clothes with Velcro pads in the future.

Lillian Agostinelli, alternations supervisor at Hudson's Northland store, was particularly knowledgeable on this subject and emphasized that prevention is your best bet.

She underscores discussing concerns with your cleaners, pointing out pads that need particular attention. If they can't assure your gar-organizing

ment will turn out as you want, look for someone who will give you that promise.

Lillian warns that both cleaners and individuals sometimes press pads out flat. This causes them to lose both their thickness and their curve and can result in unsightly lines showing through clothing.

She said they alter pads underneath by using small gathers to bring the pad into more of a curve, or by loosening material to straighten them out when needed. Rather than putting them in the dryer, she suggests drip-drying your tops so the pads dry into a natural curve.

Shanta Singh of Chase Cleaners at Bloomfield Plaza says they watch pads carefully. On clothes with loose pads, they pin two safety pins along the shoulder seam line from underneath. This helps retain their shape and prevents wadding up. She encourages customers to return garments for correction if they're unhappy with any aspect of their service.

If you're handy with a needle and thread and have the time, I like to loosely tack various points across your pads with matching thread to ensure the inside padding can't shift around during washing or cleaning.

HOROSCOPE

April 7 through April 13

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

You will come near to meeting goals you have set. Give yourself a pat on the back, and do something special as a reward.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Accept only valid criticism of your performance. Someone you know may be envious of your work, and you will know it. Make time for loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Good things come to those who wait, and you will get what is rightfully yours. Expect changes to occur rapidly. Be generous with co-workers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Don't be naive in thinking everything will go your way. Remember, you make your own breaks, and now is the right time to do it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

A long-distance relative may contact you this week about family matters. Be diplomatic, and don't take sides. A financial burden is lifted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Your creative side emerges, and projects you began long ago will now be completed. Focus on home improvement.

By C.C. Clark

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Unorthodox methods bring you recognition at work. Legal matters come to the forefront, commanding much of your attention. Read fine print.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

A short trip may help you feel more like yourself again and give you a fresh perspective on things. Let loved ones know you still care.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Small tasks seem monumental this week, but don't let the slow pace of their completion get you down. Take things one step at a time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Romance and excitement are on the horizon. You may be asked to make an important decision about your future. Follow your heart and your head.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Popularity soars this week, giving you an opportunity to engage in some long-needed social activity. Be careful not to overdo it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

A minor crisis arises, but you bounce back quickly and gain a greater perspective on the situation. Keep a bright outlook on things. © TV Listing Inc.

Academy of Country Music awards 26th year honors

Show could be the last appearance for The Judds

By Christy Bergslien

Three of country music's top stars have been recruited to host "The 26th Annual Academy of Country Music Awards" Wednesday, April 24, on NBC. Clint Black, Kathy Mattea and George Strait will emcee the gala, which is the granddaddy of all country awards programs.

Scheduled to perform are Strait, Mattea, Garth Brooks, Reba McEntire, The Judds and The Kentucky HeadHunters. All are nominated for awards. Strait, Brooks and McEntire will vie for entertainer of the year honors; Mattea is a top-female vocalist nominee; The Judds will compete for vocal duet honors.

Also nominated for entertainer of the year is the inveterate Dolly Parton. Parton, incidentally, has teamed up with Ray Benson, head of the Grammy-winning band Asleep at the Wheel, for the new NBC movie filming in Austin, Texas.

Taking the Kentucky HeadHunters to task in the top vocal group category will be Alabama, vying for its sixth award, Restless Heart, The Desert Rose Band and Shenandoah.

Sadly, the biggest occurrence Wednesday may be the last performance of The Judds. The mother-daughter team shocked the music world last fall after a tearful Country Music Awards ceremony when they announced Naomi Judd is suffering from Chronic hepatitis.

"Our life is a soap opera," Wynona, the younger Judd, has said. To be sure, The Judds have trod a rocky road paved only in recent years by Grammy success.

Naomi Judd was born the daughter of a filling station owner and a housewife in the small town of Ashland, Ky. She rarely remembers her parents ever going out by themselves. Their children were their lives, said Naomi, and "we were the Waltons." Things changed when she was 17 and her 15-year-old brother, Brian, was diagnosed with cancer. Much of the Judd's time was spent on the road seeking treatment for their son. Meanwhile Naomi was left home to attend school and care for her younger siblings.

The death of Brian ultimately tore the Judd family apart. To escape the tension at home, Naomi married a local boy named Mike Ciminella. The week of her high school graduation, she gave birth to Wynona.

Although she "loved motherhood," Naomi said she "hated marriage." After the birth of her second daughter, Ashley, she divorced her husband.

What followed was a long train of jobs (she worked two or three at a time to support her girls), three moves from coast to coast and back again, school, and, finally, a nursing career. In the meantime, her relationship with her oldest daughter remained tempestuous. It seemed all Wynona wanted to do was play her guitar and sing songs. Naomi wanted her to do something with her life. On a whim, the two began singing harmonies together and discovered it was a way to bridge the gap between them.

Then the miracle happened. A chance meeting with a producer at the hospital where Naomi was nursing led to an audition and a contract with RCA. The rest is history.

What will happen to The Judds? After the awards, Naomi intends to take a rest from the entertainment business, with Wynona, 26, continuing on. Like always, you can bet The Judds will hang together and hang tough.

Top country talents Clint Black, George Strait and Kathy Mattea (from left) host "The 26th Annual Academy of Country Music Awards" live on NBC, Wednesday. Scheduled to perform at the showdown are Mattea, Strait, Garth Brooks, Reba McEntire, The Judds, Nine Newcomers and The Kentucky HeadHunters.

FAMILY FAIR

'Orchestra' scores with Moore magic

By Christy Bergslien

You may not think an orchestral presentation is something the kids would be interested in, but Showtime does. The network has come up with a new program, Orchestra, to headline the new series called "The Showtime Family Hour."

"The Showtime Family Hour" will consist of a montage of programs children and adults can watch together every Tuesday evening.

Orchestra is a 10-part series offering viewers an inside look at the world of classical music, providing them with an overview of an orchestra's instruments, performers and compositions.

"How is that fun?" you might ask. The fun comes in with the show's host, Dudley Moore. The network hopes Moore's wit and virtuoso musicianship — he's a classical pianist as well as an actor — will capture the imagination of young viewers.

On the Tuesday, April 16, installment of the show, Moore and conductor Sir Georg Solti discuss their love of the "huge machine" known as the piano and their hatred of "Fur Elise." The two also perform a duet.

'One Man's War' erupts on HBO

By Christy Bergslien

The big event this week on HBO is the world premiere of the new telefilm, One Man's War, Saturday, April 20. Anthony Hopkins (Silence of the Lambs), Ruben Blades (The Josephine Baker Story) and Norma Aleandro (Gaby, a True Story) star. In One Man's War, a South American doctor is driven to revenge after his son is kidnapped and tortured by the thugs of a military dictator.

Not to be outdone, Showtime will televise a cable premiere to compete with HBO's One Man's War. April 20, an all-star cast including Dennis Hopper, Barbara Hershey and Ed Harris lines up for Paris Trout. Violence erupts in a small Southern town when Paris Trout (Hopper), an amoral loan shark and racist in an angry frenzy, murders a black girl. When his wife, Hanna (Hershey), discovers what he's done, it only fuels her anger and disdain for her husband. Determined to leave him, she becomes embroiled in a passionate and deadly affair with his attorney (Harris).

Footage of a great comedienne can be seen Tuesday, April 16, on the Arts & Entertainment Network. Gilda Radner is "Emily Litella" in Gilda!, the film version of her Broadway debut at the Winter Garden Theater. Litella and many of the other characters Radner made popular as a regular on Saturday Night Live can be seen uncensored on the program.

STAR NOTES

'Kelly Bundy' dances to tune of success

By Amy Schmidt

"Who's that gorgeous blonde and definitely post-pubescent girl who plays the daughter on Fox's Married... With Children?" you may have wondered. The woman is 18-year-old Christina Applegate, who is fast making a name for herself as Al Bundy's promiscuous offspring, Kelly. "It's not that Kelly is a tramp," explains Applegate of her character. "It just satisfies her to know she can get what she wants. It's the challenge that keeps her going."

Like her character, Applegate knows what she wants and how to get it. She is already a veteran of stage, television and film, having made her TV debut at the tender age of three months when she appeared in her mother's (actress Nancy Priddy) arms on the daytime drama Days of Our Lives.

Applegate began her formal training in voice and dance at a young age and has appeared on the television series Family Ties, 21 Jump Street, Quincy, Silver Spoons, Charles in Charge and Steven Spielberg's Amazing Stories. She has appeared in numerous features as well. Look for her to play the lead in The Real World.

LET'S TALK

Sherilyn Fenn of 'Twin Peaks' is rising to top screen-dream status

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I would like to know more about Twin Peaks' Sherilyn Fenn. She has the most beautiful screen presence. —Brian Brewer, Morristown, Tenn.

A: A brown-eyed beauty, Sherilyn Fenn is perhaps best known for her starring role in the 1988 film Two Moon Junction. Born in Detroit, she had an unconventional childhood. She and her two older brothers and a younger half-sister and brother spent their growing-up years moving from place to place with their mother, who played keyboards for various rock bands. At 17, Fenn and her mother moved to Beverly Hills. The teen-age, decided to pursue an acting career and studied for a year with various teachers. She appeared in a number of small features, including The Wraith, opposite Charlie Sheen, Prep School, with Virginia Madsen and Out of Control. She played supporting roles in the television movies Silence of the Heart, Divided We Stand and Death of a Sibling. Expect to see more of this young actress. Write to her: c/o Twin Peaks, Audience Relations, 1926 Broadway, New York, NY 10023.

Q: I would like to know more about the late Nat King Cole's family. I know about his daughter Natalie, but does she have any sisters and brothers? Did her mother marry again? —Mrs. Rowena Scott, Rockingham, N.C.

A: Nat King Cole was married twice. His first marriage in 1937 to Nadine

Robinson ended in divorce in 1946. Cole's second marriage in 1948 to Marie Ellington, a singer, was more successful. They had a daughter, Stephanie Natalie Maria Cole in 1949 and later adopted Carol Cole, his wife's niece. I have no knowledge of his widow, Marie, remarrying.

Q: I saw Joan Rivers on a game show, and she mentioned vitamins she took and said she sold them through the mail. Do you have an address I could reach her through? —Nell Thomas, Zionville, N.C.

A: I haven't heard about her vitamins, but they must be great. She has enough energy for three people. Write her: c/o Phil Sammeth Organization, 9200 Sunset Blvd., Suite 431, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Q: There have been a lot of Jeff Chandler movies on TNT and family networks lately in our area. Do you have any information about him? Does he have a family or a fan club? —J.B., Omaha, Neb.

A: Jeff Chandler was born Ira Groschel on Dec. 15, 1918, in Brooklyn, N.Y. Chandler made his feature film debut in 1947, and the ruggedly handsome actor starred in a string of westerns. He was nominated for an Oscar for his portrayal of the Indian warrior Cochise in Broken Arrow. He died at the age of 42 in 1961, a victim of post-operative blood poisoning. His marriage in 1946 to Marjorie Hoshelle ended in divorce in 1954. The couple had two sons, Jamie (1947) and Dana (1949). For fan club information write: National Association of Fan Clubs, 2730 Baltimore Ave., Pueblo, CO 81003.

Q: We would like to know where we can write to tell the producers of Perfect Strangers how much we enjoyed the episode where Larry and Balki played the parts of Jackie Gleason and Art Carney. It was the most hilarious segment we have ever seen, and the cast was magnificent. —Elna and Wally Lampinen, Cedar River, Mich.

A: What a refreshing change for the producers. Write to: Perfect Strangers, c/o Lonmar Telepictures Productions, 3970 Overland Ave., Culver City, CA 90230.
