Back to school

Students can bid summer vacation adieu after today.

For Plymouth-Canton students and staff, Tuesday marks the first day of school.

There'll be a morning session only.

The first day of the 1991-92 school year for teachers is today.

Afternoon kindergarten begins Wednesday.

Wednesday is the first full day of school in the district.

What's new in Plymouth-Canton schools this year?

Electronic calculators, for one thing.

They'll be available for all elementary and middle school students.

New math texts await middle school students.

At Centennial Educational Park, Macintosh computers and laser printers have been installed in math labs.

High school students also will crack new American history, French, Spanish, computer programming and algebra textbooks.

Football fans will notice capital improvements as well — new bleacher footboards in the CEP stadium.

Downtown library

Most of the 15 residents who attended a Plymouth District Library Board meeting Monday supported the board's desire to expand the library downtown, board president Carol Davis said.

The board had asked residents to come to the meeting at Dunning-Hough Library prepared to tell board members where an expanded library should be.

"Basically they said what we already are saying, they'd like to keep it downtown," Davis said.

"They also said they didn't want it to cost too much money," she added.

On Sept. 16 the board is expected to hear an architect's report on the feasibility of expanding the present library on Main Street versus seeking a new site for a new library.

Possible sites include the former Farmer Jack supermarket, the Penniman post office, the Starkweather School parking lot area, Davis said.

Once the board agrees on a location, it will go to the voters with a funding plan — either a bond sale or a millage increase, Davis said.

Voter registration

If you want a say-so in the Sept. 24 Plymouth-Canton school election and you're not yet registered, you need to register by the end of business hours today.

On the ballot will be a $59.7 million bond proposal for new school construction and capital improvements.

For more information on registration and the election, call Plymouth-Canton Schools elections clerk Bernice Nichols at 481-3135.

Mettetal vote expected Wednesday

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Once and for all, this Mettetal Airport business could be settled Wednesday.

That's when Plymouth Township trustees are scheduled to vote on whether to take federal money to buy the Canton airport.

ON THE EVE of that vote, airport backers Wednesday rounded up state and federal aviation officials and some involved in other small Detroit area airports.

They took part in a Community Aviation Forum to present the pro-airport side. The program, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, provided a sharp contrast to a program presented by airport opponents in July.

Among the speakers were Federal Aviation Administration officials Peter Sirini and Dean Nitz. They challenged the contention of airport opponents that the FAA will have its way with Mettetal once Plymouth Township accepts a grant to buy it.

"You will make the decisions on day-to-day management," Nitz said. "You will decide when it will be improved, how it will be improved."

"We have no intention of expanding the runway," Sirini said, adding it will remain 2,550 feet, its present length.

But FAA officials said that for safety reasons, the runway would be shifted 300 feet to the south. An existing 300 feet of pavement ending near Joy Road would remain, mean-

Canton to launch lawsuit to stop airport purchase

By Diane Gale
staff writer

During a special meeting Friday, Canton trustees approved launching a lawsuit to stop the public purchase of Mettetal Airport.

In the past couple of weeks, Canton has spent $10,000 to $15,000 for the law firm Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone to prepare the suit that attempts to stop Plymouth and Plymouth Township from buying the privately owned airport in Canton.

THE LAWSUIT could cost anywhere between $20,000 and $100,000, according to Canton Supervisor Tom Yack.

For Canton the race against the calendar is on since Plymouth Township is expected to accept a federal grant to buy Mettetal at its meeting Wednesday.

In a resolution approving the lawsuit the following points were stressed:

• The Canton community is best served when the future of its land is determined by the people in Canton, rather than outside communities or outside agencies;

• Attempts by parties outside the Canton community to buy Mettetal

Cops kill 1, arrest 3 in bar holdup

Man shot trying to flee robbery

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

One suspect was killed and three others were arrested Friday following a botched daylight armed robbery at a crowded Plymouth Road bar.

Police said Friday afternoon they hadn't identified the victim, shot by a Livonia Police patrol officer as he tried to flee the Good Time Bar parking lot in a 1988 Chevrolet Corsica sedan.

The car plowed into an unoccupied, parked pickup truck after the shooting.

THE DRIVER, about 30 years old, was pronounced dead at the scene from a single gunshot wound to the upper body, police said.

Three suspected accomplices were scheduled for arraignment Sunday on armed robbery charges at Wayne County's out-county district court in Westland.

One man surrendered, a second was subdued by officers in the parking lot and the third was captured on foot in a residential neighborhood immediately south of the bar, police said.

Police said several patrons were assaulted by the armed suspects and one man was taken by a Livonia EMS crew to St. Mary Hospital with head injuries.

The man was apparently kicked in the head by one of the suspects.

"It seemed like they had a plan. It just didn't work," said a bar patron who asked not to be identified.

Witnesses and police said there were 20-30 people inside the bar at 35085 Plymouth when the incident began shortly before 10:30 a.m.

The bar is a popular hangout for Ford Motor Co. employees who work at the Livonia Transmission plant a few blocks west at Plymouth and Levan.

A number of patrons Friday were plant employees who had just cashed paychecks on their lunch break, witnesses said.

THE SUSPECTS were inside the

Lawyer attacked after meeting on Mettetal

A Plymouth lawyer who says she was struck in the face by a woman after a Mettetal Airport forum Wednesday and said she plans to file charges with police.

Carol Levitte said she was struck in the face after the meeting at the Plymouth Cultural Center. During the meeting, billed as informational only, Levitte tried to ask questions but was shouted down by backers of the save-the-airport effort. Levitte said that when she went up to tables set up in front of the room to ask more questions, she was approached by a woman who told her she shouldn't be acting the way she was.

When Levitte responded, the woman hit her in the face. Levitte said she will seek charges of assault and battery against the woman.

ing 2,850 feet of pavement would be created.

Plymouth City Commissioner Jerry Vorva — who opposes the commission's participation in joining the township in running the airport — asked what would happen if a pilot treated the remaining pavement as a runway.

SIRINI SAID that pilot could face a civil penalty, and if the infraction was serious enough "could lose his pilot's license."

While the forum was geared to stressing the positives of Plymouth Township buying Mettetal to keep it open, one point made by airport supporters was rejected.

When Plymouth Township Trustee South Horton asked if Mettetal's existence keeps commercial planes high above Plymouth-Canton, Sirini said no.

"Mettetal doesn't have any effect on airplanes flying to Metro Airport," Vorva asked later.

"That's right," Sirini said.

Richard Jackson of the state bureau of aeronautics also addressed the runway expansion issue raised by airport opponents. "We are not trying to do anything to expand that runway," he said.

'We have no intention of expanding the runway.'

— Peter Sirini

Jackson also addressed concerns over environmental testing at the airport. "That property is now environmentally safe," Jackson said. Nitz agreed.

Addressing the question of potential liability stemming from airport operations, Plymouth Township attorney Brian James said, "There is no substantial risk." He compared the potential risk posed by airport ownership to the risk the township government takes on when it owns its own government buildings.

Paul Preston, Mount Pleasant city manager and former city manager of South Haven, which sought FAA grants to expand its airport, urged Plymouth Township to get in the airport business.

AN AIRPORT attracts business and creates jobs, he said. "I personally find that the FAA and the Michigan Aeronautics Bureau never dictated to me what we could or couldn't do.

"I really and sincerely believe it would be a mistake to let it get away from you," Preston said.

Anna Main, owner of the Big Beaver Airport in Troy, said she's had problems on occasion with some of her airport's neighbors.

"All a neighborhood needs is one crank to stir up everybody," she said.

Some raised a "hue and cry" when she paved her runway, saying she'd bring in transport planes, others complained when she put in runway lights, saying planes "would be flying all night." Neither happened, she said.

"Don't think they (the FAA) are on the side of unwanted expansion," Main said. "We have found that the FAA is your best friend, they are concerned with safety."

Plymouth Township Trustee Ron Griffith asked what the FAA would require if trustees closed a financially failing airport. John Wagner of the state bureau of aeronautics said the airport generates around $250,000 per year and should continue to make money "with prudent management."

Nitz said, "We would object to the closing of the airport," adding the FAA could encourage the township to seek airport sponsors if the airport was financially troubled.

would take control away from local forces;

• Mettetal serves as an asset to the community as a private facility but would be a liability if placed into public ownership;

• The Canton board has consistently opposed public ownership of Mettetal;

• And, the future of the property could have a serious effect on the tax base of the community and school district.

THE BOARD voted 5-1 in favor of the lawsuit. Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter cast the sole dissenting vote and trustee John Burdziak was absent.

"My concern is the dollar amount we already have spent and we will continue to spend from the local taxpayers' money," Kirchgatter said.

Yack said if Plymouth and Plymouth Township don't reconsider their stand on buying the airport, "legal fees will be mounting on all sides, not just Canton Township."

Clerk Loren Bennett placed blame on Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

"We are not the aggressor here," Bennett said. "We are forced to defend ourselves. We are trying to prevent something from happening to the citizens of Canton Township. I would like to appeal to the two communities that they stop their actions."

Before voting on the lawsuit, the board met in a closed session with attorneys to talk about the lawsuit.

Marty Burnstein, an attorney representing the owners of Mettetal, the Klochko family, argued that the closed session violated the Open Meetings Act, because the act refers to pending litigation.

"There is no lawsuit, yet," he said.

AN ATTORNEY representing Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone said that a previous lawsuit Canton filed is included in the open meetings act and that lawsuit would be discussed during the closed session. Therefore, he said, the closed session is justified.

The first lawsuit was denied in Wayne County Circuit Court and is in the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Canton resident and airport supporter Sue Fannin asked Yack if he believed the township had a good chance of winning the lawsuit.

"Anytime you enter a lawsuit all you can do is make the best estimate of your position," Yack answered.

Man reports car stolen from store's parking lot

A Canton man said he left his car in the parking lot of Kmart on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township at 6:30 a.m., and returned at 6:30 p.m. to find it stolen.

The case was closed for lack of leads.

bar for several minutes before pulling four guns and announcing the holdup, witnesses said.

Patrons were herded against the wall and ordered to disrobe, according to police and witnesses.

"They told us to throw all our clothes in a pile," the patron said. "People were upset and didn't really know what the hell was going on."

The owner of the bar activated a silent alarm shortly after the holdup was announced and officers arrived about the time the suspects were exiting the building, police said.

Detective Sgt. Ken Marlow said Friday individual patrons told police they were carrying anywhere from $80 to several hundred dollars at the time of the robbery.

All money taken from patrons and a cash register was believed to have been recovered at the scene, Marlow said.

Marlow declined to comment on whether the suspects were familiar with the business or its patrons.

A NEIGHBORHOOD bike rider said he saw the frenzied conclusion to the incident while riding home on the opposite side of Plymouth Road.

"I figured it was a blown tire," said Rick Czarnota, 21, who was returning home after riding his 10-speed to a nearby bank.

"I looked around and saw the cop with his gun drawn. He was shouting for the other guy (sitting in the passenger seat of the Corsica) to get out."

"It was crazy," Czarnota said. The officer who fired the shot was identified by police only as a patrol officer.

Marlow said the shooting, rare for Livonia, would be fully investigated.

From preliminary police reports the shooting appeared justified, Marlow said.

Man gets probation in rest stop arrest

A 62-year-old Livonia man, who told Michigan State Police that he was a school teacher, was sentenced Friday to probation for disorderly conduct at the I-275 rest stop in Canton.

Thomas Edward Sullivan pleaded no contest to the charge of being disorderly on May 23 at the rest stop. Visiting Judge E. Patrick Murray fined him $250 plus court costs. His case will be under advisement for six months.

A spokesman for the Livonia School District said Sullivan does not teach in the district. Court records do not say where he is employed. Sullivan's attorney, Eileen Scheff, declined to comment.

Plymouth prepares for fall fest

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Thirty-five years ago, members of the Plymouth Rotary Club decided it would be nice to host a community picnic at Hamilton Park.

The idea was to raise money to buy playground equipment for children who used the park. Rotarians served up 500 chicken dinners at their one-day event at Hamilton Park, which, ironically, is now known as Jaycee Park.

LITTLE DID the Rotarians know what they'd started.

Five hundred dinners would amount to a drop in the bucket at the modern-day Plymouth Fall Festival, which evolved from that chicken dinner in 1956.

It's expected that 12,000 plates of barbecue chicken will be served up Sunday, Sept. 8, the last day of the festival. The event gets under way Thursday, Sept. 5.

The fall fest is sponsored by local non-profit organizations and coordinated by the volunteer Plymouth Community Fall Festival Board of Directors.

Proceeds are used to fund charitable activities sponsored by the community's non-profit organizations.

Fall Festival President Zan Kafila said the 36th annual festival will feature everything last year's did, "hopefully improved upon."

"We have some wonderful entertainment coming up. Due to the generosity of the eight car dealers in the area, we were able to provide some real quality entertainment. It's wonderful, considering that economic times haven't been so good," said

Kafila, who succeeds her husband Gene as festival president. The Kafilas are the second couple to have served in the volunteer office. First were Sue and Larry McElroy.

RESPONSE FROM area business people was overwhelming as well, said Kafila.

"Twenty-seven local merchants contributed funds to help us with our expenses. Response was terrific," she said.

The Plymouth Fall Festival is put on without the involvement of commercial entities, she added.

"We are the only festival totally run by volunteers. The volunteers represent the service clubs for which they volunteer," she said.

"Because we are not professionals in doing this, we have to rely on our instinct and hope to do a job," said

Kafila, past president of the Plymouth-Canton Civitan Club. "We hope the community enjoys, understands and is proud of the festival."

Here are some festival highlights straight from the prez:

"Friday night, we have a wonderful band; Innovation. They play all kinds of music; all kinds. They can go from '50's and '60's to current music," said Kafila. "They're a real audience pleaser. They're a wonderful listening and dance band." Innovation will play in Kellogg Park beginning at about 6:30 p.m. Friday.

"Saturday night we have Bob Durant's Big Band. They're terrific, too," said Kafila. "The Step-Brothers will play '50's and '60's music."

"We're going to have the Tim O'Hare Irish Dancers Saturday, and contemporary music following them late in the afternoon.

"We'll have the Polish Centennial Dancers Saturday afternoon and again in small groups performing in and around the park area.

"Thursday night is tagged as senior citizens' night," she added. "We'll have the Canton Seniors Kitchen Band, and the Felicity Strings, who play dulcimers. The Plymouth Community Band also will perform Thursday.

"We'll have more entertainers strolling around the park this year. On Sunday we will have the Sweet Adelines, and on Saturday, the Dixieland Band," she said.

"ON SATURDAY and Sunday, we'll have the Clowns Around Redford and gymnastics demonstrations. A dance troupe called Sidekicks and karate experts will do demonstrations Saturday and Sunday. We'll have speakers set up on Main Street to project the sound all over the park.

"It's going to be fun. The board this year has been very organized and has worked hard," added Kafila. Kafila also had praise for residents and businesses who good-naturedly put up with disruption caused by the festival.

"The festival manager, Joe Bida, and the assistant festival manager, his son John Bida, have gone above and beyond with the things they're doing," added Kafila.

"They're a terrific team. It's been a lot of work, but it's fun. We want everyone to be part of it and have fun. We just hope the weather cooperates."

The Step Aside Band plays for a couple at the festival.

Area golfers can swing year-round under bubble

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Imagine playing golf on real grass and real sand while it snows outside.

Construction of four nine-hole golf courses with the longest hole about 78 yards will begin this fall at Michigan and Beck.

And by November 1992 golfers can defy Michigan weather while being protected by a polyester dome.

THE MAIN difference between the real thing is that it's not the size of an actual golf course. Each nine holes covers one acre.

"Our charter is to produce real golf in real situations," said John Lorey, president of American Golf Domes Investments.

They use real golf balls with real clubs, however, players are limited to four clubs and wooden clubs are banned.

"It's like you're playing a regular golf course and only playing 78 yards out and sometimes only 28 yards," said Lorey adding that a similar site is being built in Mt. Clemens.

Golf Association executive director Jeff Rivard said the concept is "kinda like golf. I think obviously that in the winter it will have appeal."

Indoor golf ranges have done well, Rivard said, however he was unsure how well a course will do.

"I'd be more interested in hitting some balls than working on my game" on a small scale indoor course, Rivard said.

LOREY SAID Canton was chosen for the indoor golf dome mostly because of the large population in a 20 mile radius along with its proximity to the airport.

Lorey also said he enjoyed working with Canton officials and was impressed by the township's master plan.

A golf course under a dome is not a new idea, Lorey said adding that they've been around for about two years.

Englishman Michael Thompson started developing the idea in the late 1980s when he introduced an automated and simulated golf game. He built a driving range enclosed by a dome in Madison Heights in 1980.

The problem he saw, Lorey said, was that there was no competition without the game. Thompson decided the time was right to see if grass would grow indoors and he began working with a Michigan State University scientist. He opened the first domed golf course in Flint.

In Canton the plans are to build three air structures for one 18 hole course and two 9 hole courses. There also will be a driving range and club house offering babysitting for golfing parents.

"Canton will be our big showcase for the company and we have a lot of international people who want to look at it, particularly the Japanese. We're also dealing with European contacts, too."

THE BIGGEST drawback to playing the golf, Lorey said, is that it takes too much time, sometimes almost six hours.

"By the time you get done on a weekend you've put in a full day's work. When you study the reasons why people don't play golf or quit it's because of time."

Under the golf dome, the smaller courses allow players to get in nine holes in one hour.

"We're also trying to appeal to a broader sector of the market to make it affordable to a lot of people."

Design picked out for area veterans memorial

John Spencer of the Canton Veteran's Memorial Association displays a computer graphic design near the south end of Canton's township hall, where a veterans memorial would be erected.

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton is another step closer to erecting a veterans memorial and now the marathon begins to pay for it.

The design has been chosen and it combines three plans submitted by John Sheehy, Barry Burton and W.T. Mannion during a memorial contest, according to John Spencer, Canton finance director and member of the Canton Veteran's Memorial Association.

FIVE BRANCHES of the armed forces will be etched into dark rose granite with a star in the center and a metal eagle on top.

It's dedicated to those who served in the armed forces during war and peace time. And it's to go up on the lawn at the south end of the administration building.

"When I was growing up it was the Cold War, but it probably wouldn't have been so peaceful if it weren't for the armed forces," Spencer said.

The wording of the inscription hasn't been finalized, however, it will say something like: "Dedicated to those who served in the Armed Forces to defend freedom."

The difficult task lies in paying for it and coming up with appropriate fundraisers.

"We're looking at it costing somewhere in the range of $50,000 to $60,000 covering the monument, site work and paving," Spencer said. "We may do it in phases, depending on the money."

TENTATIVELY, the schedule is

to start building the monument next spring and complete it by fall 1992.

Ironically, the veterans committee held its first meeting the night Desert Storm began. "They started about 15 minutes before us," said Spencer, adding that the committee is looking for new members and volunteers.

The committee is in the process of getting incorporation papers in order to set up a bank account and non profit status for the fund.

However, anyone who is interested in donating to help build the memorial sooner should send checks to the Canton Memorial Fund, Canton Administration Building, 1150 S. Canton Center, Canton 48188, in care of: John Spencer.

So far the committee has received a donation from the Vietnam Veteran's American Chapter 528, and a $100 pledge was made by Canton Supervisor Tom Yack.

Plymouth agenda

The board of trustees is scheduled to discuss, among other items, a resolution to accept a federal grant to allow the township to purchase Mettetal Airport in Canton Township.

Pet show, craft fair set at mall in September

A family pet show sponsored by the Michigan Humane Society will kick off the September activities at the Livonia Mall.

The show will be from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 7, at the mall at Seven Mile and Middlebelt.

Persons may register their dog or cat by calling 476-1166 or at the mall management office. The registration fee of $5 is payable to the Michigan Humane Society.

Obedience demonstrations by the Trainers Academy will be at 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. and grooming demonstrations by Posh Pups at noon and 2 p.m. on Sept. 7.

The Livonia Jaycees Craft Fair will be Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 7-8.

A baseball card, sports collectibles, comic book, stamp and coin show will be Friday through Sunday, Sept. 20-22, at the mall. Making appearances will be Gordie Howe and son Marty Howe 1-4 p.m. Saturday Sept. 21, and Ted Lindsay 1-3 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 22.

An Arts and Crafts Show featuring original works of art and homemade crafts on exhibit and for sale will be Wednesday, Sept. 25, through Sunday, Sept. 29.

The Livonia Mall is planning the ninth annual Holiday Parade to be held on Saturday, Nov. 23. The theme for this year will be "All Wrapped Up for the Holidays."

The mall invites any business, organization, group or individual to participate. Floats, clowns, costumed characters, bands, marching groups, and volunteers are needed.

Anyone interested in the Holiday Parade may call Bill Checks or Jan Morrow at 476-1166.

Seminar helps prepare for builders' licensing

A 16-hour seminar to prepare people to pass the state builders' licensing exam will be offered in Livonia in September.

The evening seminar is offered by the Michigan Builders Institute in cooperation with Livonia Community Education, beginning Monday, Sept. 16, in the Bentley Center at Five Mile and Hubbard in Livonia.

The course is designed for people in the building trades who are now working without a license and who want to obtain one as well as for those who want to subcontract the building of their own homes.

The seminar charge of $140 per person includes all materials.

Registration is required no later than Thursday, Sept. 12, with the Livonia Community Education program. Those interested should call 523-9287 during school hours to register.

The course instructor is a licensed builder with extensive experience teaching builders' pre-licenses classes.

Volunteers bring puppy love to seniors

Volunteers willing to spend an hour each month visiting senior citizens at area nursing homes are needed by the Pet-A-Pet program sponsored by the Animal Welfare Society.

Pet-A-Pet is an animal visitation program whose volunteers and their pets pay regular group visits to nursing homes in the metro area.

Animal visitation programs have proven to be beneficial in the health care of the elderly who especially enjoy the unconditional love a pet can offer, said coordinator Ruth Curry.

"The response, the smiles and communication that occurs between the residents is marvelous," said Dr. Kathy Morris, a Redford veterinarian associated with the Animal Welfare Society.

"It's very heart-warming to think about people who are lying in bed and may not be able to hear or see but who can still feel these warm puppies and kittens."

Volunteers may bring their own pets if they are friendly, in good health, and have current vaccination records. For more information, call 535-0410.

Auditions scheduled for youth orchestra spots

Livonia Youth Philharmonic will hold auditions for musicians for its youth orchestra on Aug. 28, 29 and Sept. 4, 5.

The auditions for musicians at three orchestra levels will be 4-9 p.m. each day in Faith Lutheran Church, 30000 Five Mile one block west of Middlebelt in Livonia.

Rehearsals are Saturday mornings at Livonia Churchill High.

There are openings at all levels for string players and selected brass and winds.

Music director Andrew Sewell invites young violin, viola, cello and bass players to audition.

The junior and advanced string orchestras accept students with as little as one year of lessons and provide introductory orchestra training under the leadership of Melissa Gerber, a string specialist and graduate of University of Michigan.

Membership is open to musicians in the communities surrounding Detroit. To schedule an audition appointment call 453-8887.

Sewell is conductor of the Scandinavian Symphony and the Lake St. Clair Symphony and is a University of Michigan graduate.

Prosecutor tells lawmakers to keep tough drug penalties

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The drug war peaked in 1989 in western Wayne County. The prosecutor's office credits Michigan's tough prison sentences — mandatory life for dealing in 2.2 pounds — and forfeiture laws.

George Ward, chief assistant prosecutor, urged a state Senate panel to resist judges' efforts to "browbeat" them into reducing penalties. He also praised a program allowing the seizure of cars of suburban drug users.

"The argument carried by the media that mandatory (life) penalties were intended for 'kingpins' and are being applied to those who are less than kingpins is groundless," Ward said last week.

"The statute was not intended for 'kingpins.' The kingpins live in Columbia, Miami or other port cities. Rarely could a Michigan court obtain jurisdiction over a kingpin.

SOME LAWMAKERS and relatives of small dealers serving life terms want to ease the penalty, but Ward wants to keep it.

"The statute was intended for exactly who it's being applied against — big-quantity offenders. And as Wayne County statistics show, the statute is working.

"Indeed, it appears to be having precisely the deterrent effect intended," Ward told the Senate Committee on Criminal Law, headed by Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo.

In reply to a question from Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, Ward said the state Court of Appeals has upheld a law allowing forfeiture of real estate. "There's a substantial connection between real estate and cocaine," said Ward, referring to the Macomb County "Mother Lode" case.

FILLING IN for Prosecutor John O'Hair, Ward praised a program for punishing casual drug users by seizing their cars. The program, called "Push-off," should become a household word, he said.

"Its day-to-day operation (that) just involves street officers and a couple of paralegals at the Wayne County prosecutor's office. To date it has seized 545 cars. And not one has resulted in a court challenge," Ward said.

Under Push-off, the county seizes the user's vehicle. The user can redeem it for $750 plus expenses for a first offense. Of the 545 seized vehicles, owners of 130 have redeemed them for a total of $97,000.

So far, the sheriff's department has seized 314 vehicles, Westland police 27, Detroit 24, Livonia 5, Redford Township 2, Canton Township 1, Northville Township 1 and State Police 57.

"WE ARE FAR from declaring total victory," Ward said, but he cited these case numbers as showing a downward trend:

- Suburban narcotics warrants peaked at 1,140 in 1989, slipped to 1,041 in '90 and are expected to be below 1,000 this year.

- Cases involving 650 grams (2.2 pounds) of drugs peaked at 53 in 1989, dropped to 34 last year and only 10 for the first six months of 1991 (estimated to reach 20 for the year) in all of Wayne County. Convictions result in mandatory life sentences without parole.

- Cases involving 225 to 650 grams peaked at 61 in '89 and dropped to 39 in '90 and 16 for the first half of '91.

- Drug arraignments in Detroit alone showed a 20 percent drop over three years, and the murder rate has declined steadily from 616 in 1988 to 533 (annualized) this year.

THE SUBURBS produce three times as much value in confiscated drug dealer assets as Detroit — $1.9 million so far this year compared to less than $500,000 in Detroit.

"The head of our out-county warrant office estimates that 85 percent of all out-county felony crime has drug involvement," Ward said, adding the estimate may be low.

Ward, a Detroit lawyer who chaired the Wayne County Charter Commission a decade ago, credited the school program called DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) with changing students' attitudes.

COMMANDER Rudolfo Thomas of the Detroit police said his narcotics division is busting 10 to 15 crack houses a day.

"We have a decrease in crack houses," he said, estimating the current number at 1,000 to 2,000. "Some are going to Kalamazoo and Ohio."

"We can tell very well in Kalamazoo when you have a crackdown in Detroit," said Welborn, whose district touches that western Michigan city.

Both Thomas and Ingham County Sheriff Gene Wigglesworth asked for a state "no knock" law for crack house raids. "I've been on five raids where officers were shot because we gave them warning," Wigglesworth said.

Madonna lecture to focus on ethics

Michael T. Timmis, an attorney and businessman, will kick off the 1991-92 season of Madonna University's Michael F. McManus Distinguished Business Lecture Series.

Timmis will discuss "Ethic in the Workplace," at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 7 in the Kresge Hall on the Madonna campus. The 90-minute presentation will be followed by a question-and-answer period. The lecture is free and open to the public.

A senior partner in the law firm of Marco, Timmis and Inman, Timmis is co-owner and vice chairman and general counsel for Talon Inc., owner of F&M retail stores.

He was recently named by Crain's Detroit Business as one of the "Ninety Leaders of the 90s." In addition to retail concerns, Talon Inc., formed in 1973, maintains extensive interests in manufacturing and real estate in 15 states and employs approximately 6,000 people.

GRADUATING WITH highest honors from Wayne State University Law School in 1965, Timmis edited the Wayne Law Review while in law school and went on to serve as adjunct professor of that department. He received the school's Distinguished Law Alumni Award in 1979.

In addition to his legal and business involvement, Timmis holds memberships in professional associations, is a director of numerous corporations and serves on the boards on many charitable organizations.

Michael F. McManus, founder and chief executive officer of Header Products Inc. in Romulus, established this lecture series in his father's memory and to acknowledge his father's entrepreneurial success. Michael F. McManus Sr. was a manufacturing agent for more than 50 years in the Detroit area. His sales efforts helped establish the Chicago Rivet and Maching Co.

S'craft offers quality management courses

Schoolcraft College is offering a series of quality management seminars to help individuals and organizations meet industry-mandated production standards, learn the latest quality engineering methods and gain access to the latest innovations.

Four sessions are planned. They are:

Robust Function at Lowest Cost from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 3, 4 and 5. The seminar explores techniques that enable timely, cost-effective development of high quality products. Learn how to design with reliability, durability and high performance and avoid costly design reviews and type testing. Fee is $500.

Statistical Process Control I examines techniques directed at improving customer satisfaction and preventing defects through team efforts. Basic statistical concepts and methods will be presented. The four-week course meets from 8 a.m. to noon Saturdays beginning Sept. 21. Fee is $200.

ASQC Refresher Course/Certified Quality Engineer prepares participants to take the certified quality engineer exam. Review topics include quality cost auditing, reliability management and engineering, statistical quality control, design of experiments and regression analysis. The class meets from 6-10 p.m. for 10 weeks starting Monday, Sept. 23. Fee is $125.

Introduction to Computer Numerical Control introduces developing, entering, editing and running a program using training machinery. Topics of definition, advantages, requirements of numerical control and preparation of drawings for programmers will be discussed. The class will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays, Oct. 12 and 19. Fee is $150.

Classes meet at different locations. To register and for more information, call continuing education services at 462-4448.

Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads.

Study says more airport space needed

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Every county needs more airport space, a regional planning agency says.

"Since 1959 in southeastern Michigan, we've closed 30 airports and opened zero," said Carmine Palombo, a staff member for the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

The draft plan covers 21 general aviation airports — used for freight, business and recreation. It doesn't address passenger travel, handled by Wayne County's Metro and Detroit's City Airports.

General aviation is expected to grow 42 percent — from 1.3 million flights in 1988 to 1.8 million in 2010, Palombo said.

THE STUDY finds "an over-reliance on privately owned airports, with half (10) of the public use airports owned privately."

"Privately owned airports can be readily closed, thereby weakening the regional system."

The broad-brush plan is in the hands of 500 local chambers of commerce, planning commissions and libraries in the region.

SEMCOG is asking for their comments before final action by its 140-member General Assembly in October.

The plan leaves specific expansion plans and financing to individual local units.

IN WAYNE County, Mettetal-Canton "should become publicly owned and expanded to 'basic utility' status with a 2,700-foot runway. It would play a very significant role in the regional system at that level," the study says.

Willow Run's runway should be extended to 9,400 feet to fulfill needs for long-haul cargo capacity. The county-owned facility is in Van Buren Township.

Detroit Metropolitan, owned by the county, will provide "some small amounts of general aviation traffic over the next 20 years."

City Airport, on Detroit's east side, has some short-haul passenger service but is primarily a general aviation facility. Current usage justifies a 7,000-foot runway or a new runway of 6,000 to 6,500 feet for general and passenger aviation.

LIVINGSTON County should expect the fastest growth in the region, especially of turbo-prop and business jet aircraft.

The study recommends that publicly owned Livingston County Airport be expanded to "transport category" (runway length of 5,400 feet for everything but large planes) by lengthening its runway and adding navigational equipment.

Privately owned Brighton Airport probably cannot expand due to land use constraints, the study says.

OAKLAND County, with five airports, is expected to see "an exceptionally large growth in turbine-powered aircraft" by 2010, the study says.

Oakland-Pontiac Airport's main runway needs lengthening from 5,400 to 7,000 feet and a parallel runway.

Troy-Oakland Airport can't be expanded but could use more service facilities.

A third publicly owned airport is needed in the "transport" category — 5,400 feet of runway to handle all but the larger passenger and cargo planes. Spencer Field near Wixom should be considered for public ownership.

WASHTENAW County is expected to see great growth in turbine-powered aircraft.

Ann Arbor Municipal, the only airport serving the county, is recommended for development to "transport" category with a 5,400-foot runway and improved navigational equipment.

If it can't be expanded, the county should construct a new transport category airport elsewhere, the study says.

MACOMB County has no publicly owned, public-use airport and needs a "transport" category airport with 5,400 feet of runway and a "general utility" airport.

The study recommends public acquisition of Berz-Macomb before the demands for commercial and industrial land result in its piecemeal dismantling.

Romeo Airport is a second candidate for public ownership and development as a transport category airport.

Mutt march on Sept. 14 to benefit humane society

Registrations are being accepted for the Michigan Humane Society "Mutt March" Saturday, Sept. 14, in Hines Park.

Participants obtain pledges from friends and family for each mile they walk of the five mile course — a $1 per mile minimum is suggested.

While walkers are encouraged to bring their dogs, pets must show proof of inoculations to participate. Pets must be leashed at all times.

Walkers will gather 10 a.m. at Nankin Mills Station, Hines Drive and Ann Arbor Trail.

The walker bringing in the most pledges will receive a 25-inch color television.

Pledges benefit MHS animal care services. To register, or for additional information, call the Westland Kindness Center, 721-7300.

Bob just didn't make it as hurricane

TWO PEOPLE were killed last week when swimming in the Atlantic Ocean. They made the mistake of going in the water as Hurricane Bob was bumping along the East Coast. Some would state the obvious: It's not real smart to go swimming when a hurricane is headed your way. But who can blame them when the storm is known as Bob.

It's a fine name to go through life with. It's easy to spell, nobody mispronounces it and it's never offensive, a great benefit in our politically correct times.

But let's face it. Bob is a wimpy name for a storm. It sounds like the guy who lives next door or your brother-in-law, but not the name of a storm that has the power to smash houses and blow large sailboats 10 miles inland.

Who do we have to blame for this? The government, of course. It was bad enough that the National Weather Service caved in to the demands of women's groups and decided several years ago that the equal opportunity concept should be applied to storms.

Jeff Counts

I REALLY don't disagree with it. Men can be equally as unpredictable as women, and they're usually more violent.

However, storms were much more ominous when they had women's names like Cathy or Denise. They gave headline writers a chance to show off their literary skills.

You had headlines like: "Cathy careens along Gulf leaving 10 dead in her wake," or "Denise pounds East Coast: 10 dead in her wake."

Such headlines conjured up images of a good looking blonde knocking the guys in a singles bar dead with her looks. Devastating is a word you think of when you see either a good looking woman or a storm. It has nothing to do with perceived sexism, it's just what comes to your mind.

Denise can devastate, but Bob just seems to bump along.

Anyway, back to the weather service. You would think that even after turning to Jello in front of the feminists, it would at least have the sense to use better names for storms than Bob. I suspect that the person who picks the names is one of those spreadsheet geeks who has every name in the language plugged into the computer and the names just pop out when needed. Let's just hope he didn't plug in Chip and Muffy.

MAYBE THE weather service should hire a poet or an old headline writer to name the storms.

I'm certain they'd come up with male names like Kurt or Adolph. A poet or headline writer knows that folks would be certain to get out of the way of a storm with a Germanic sounding name.

Most Latin sounding names would work, too. Tony, Nick and Guido all have that unpredictable sound to them that should be applied to a storm.

French names, unless they're women's names, don't work. "Pierre threatens East Coast" just doesn't work much as a storm warning. You envision a storm named Pierre stopping in Cuba for a glass of wine and a debate about socialism. A French storm would be entirely too biased to threaten anyone or anything.

SCANDANAVIAN names like Sven or Eric have that seafaring sound and lend a wonderful Nordic flavor to a hurricane blowing in from the ocean.

I'd love to go back to the days when Bertha bashed or Susie left them shivering. But it's not going to happen. I can accept that. But for safety's sake, let's leave Bob, Bruce and names with pretentious spellings like Geoff out of the computer.

They don't scare anybody. If Bob had been named Thor, the two swimmers might not have drowned in the ocean. I kind of doubt it, but you never know. At least it's worth a try.

Testing questioned

Doc Doyle

Q. I am a fourth grade teacher getting ready for school this fall. This summer I took a testing course in graduate school and the course confirmed my suspicions that the standardized tests we give children do not all measure the same skills at the same grade level. One test will measure a skill that is not measured by another standardized test until a later grade. Am I right in this observation? What does that mean to teachers in the trenches?

A. You are right according to Tudor Marketing of San Diego, Calif. Tudor Marketing is developing a series of Grade Level Examinations on computer disks that assess what children should know when they leave, i.e. the fourth grade to be successful in the fifth grade.

Tudor Marketing found that subtraction of decimals was tested at the third grade level on the California Achievement Test, at the fourth grade level on the Stanford Achievement Test and at the fifth grade on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills.

Sequencing of events, in the language arts section, was an eye opener. Sequencing is when a young child reads or reviews a story and places the events in a logical manner. The skill determines if the child can think logically, reason and understand events as they occur in a specific order.

Sequencing was tested at the third grade level on the "Stanford" and at the fifth grade on the "California" and at the seventh grade on the "Iowa."

THIS MEANS that your elementary school curriculum best adopt itself to the expectations of the external standardized test your district uses.

For example, let's say a district uses the California Achievement Test. The CAT assesses subtraction of decimals at the third grade level.

Let's assume the district's third grade teachers "cover" subtraction of decimals but generally have assumed subtraction of decimals is a skill to be fully "mastered" by students in the fourth or fifth grade.

Subtraction of decimals by all third grade students on the standardized test probably won't occur and the results will harm the school building and district's test scores.

If this same district used the "Iowa" test, where subtraction of decimals is measured in the fifth grade, the children should produce better scores on the subtraction of decimals section, and the school and district tests scores would look good.

It's the same with "sequencing of events." Sequencing is measured at the third grade on the "Stanford," at the seventh grade on the "Iowa." Guess which school district will do better in sequencing? You got it — the district using the "Iowa" where children receive four more years of practice until they are tested on the skill.

TESTING COMPANIES will point out these are "norm-reference" tests and children are not supposed to master all the questions.

I personally believe homemade tests by the district's teachers, called criterion reference tests, make the most sense. This type of test is based on "outcomes," skills children must have to be successful at the next grade level.

Teachers meet, develop the tests, and all agree who will take the responsibility for mastery of clearly defined, specific skills, knowing some students still will have problems. I used this process in a district years ago and it worked.

In fairness to testing companies, some have banks of questions school districts can use to develop criterion reference tests.

To answer your question, what does standardized testing mean to teachers in the trenches. Unfortunately, it means teachers will probably still use the same lingo. "Your fourth grade child scored at the 78 percentile or better than 77 percent of the children in math throughout the United States on the day this test was given."

Schools must deal with the whole person

To the editor:

Thank you for your recent article on Public Act 25. It addresses the "whole" problem in the schools.

In the past, schools have dealt mainly with the intellectual development of the child. Now, thank goodness, we realize that we are whole persons, and, as much we need to be educated as a whole, using many holistic teaching methods such as whole language, cooperative learning, global education, and wellness education (Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education). Now we can solve society's ills in the schools at last.

Why has it taken us so long to place the spiritual development of the child in the schools, where it belongs. Parents have been negligent in their duties, as any teacher educated by the state can tell you. Finally, we have untied the hands of our teachers and given them total reign over the whole child. This is necessary for us as a society, as a world, as simply part of the collective consciousness of the universe.

The world cannot be saved until we learn to be as one with each other and the planet we live on, our mother, from which we came. Many of the techniques finally being taught in the schools can at last train our children properly on this issue.

Critical thinking skills will teach them to think critically (or to criticize) what they have been taught by parents. Then these children can be retrained and properly socialized. How else can we have unity and cooperation, and be spiritually as one, unless we all think the same?

That wonderful wellness program, the Michigan Model, should finally be adopted by our board. We've been using it for years, but we need to show it due respect and officially adopt it.

People need to understand what illness really is — it is dis-ease, being ill at ease with ourselves. If we learned balance and harmony with the universe and others, our energy flow would not be hampered and we would never become dis-eased. The model teaches our children this.

Children are taught critical thinking and, more important, how to feel. Feeling is very important in opening the intuitive pathways. This is essential to psychic healing.

There are xenophobic absolutes who may complain about these forms of teaching. But they are merely extremists who still believe there is a right and wrong. They have not yet been enlightened to understand that their right/wrong thinking mode shows they have not yet reached neutrality, so they are out of balance with the universe.

We who understand need to be continually supporting the schools. For those who do not understand, read Marilyn Ferguson's book, "The Aquarian Conspiracy: Personal and Social Transformation in our Time." Chapter 9, Flying and Seeing, will explain education's transformation. It is a must for any parent with school-age children.

Politics to blame for budget stalemate

By Tim Richard
staff writer

As kids head back to school, state politics is the last thing on their minds.

But for school boards, teachers unions, Gov. John Engler and legislative leaders, politics is the biggest worry. Michigan still has no budget for fiscal 1992. The Republican-run Senate and Democrat-run House are at a stalemate.

"It's time (Democratic House speaker Lew Dodak) stopped playing Russian Roulette with the budget and got the job done," Republican Gov. John Engler said last week.

Dodak said his party would submit "continuation" budget bills — extending 1991 spending patterns into fiscal 1992, which begins Oct. 1 — in case the stalemate isn't resolved.

THE ISSUE, as Dodak sees it, is Engler's insistence that the state Administrative Board can make budget transfers without approval of the Legislature.

Meanwhile, 18 budget bills are tied up in House-Senate conference committees because the House passed one version and the Senate another.

The biggest controversy surrounds House Bill 4267, which would require wealthier suburban school districts to give part of their business tax growth to poorer districts, both near Detroit and outstate. Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, is the only area member on that panel. A bitter foe of tax sharing, Faxon is in a bipartisan minority.

Faxon also is on the conference committee handling the House school aid bill. Other conference committees on education budgets are looking at House Bill 4574, community colleges; HB 4579, general education; and HB 4583, higher education.

Dodak told reporters he is instructing the conference committees to move ahead on budget bills, with the proviso that they be tied to the "continuation" bills if his battle with Engler remains unresolved.

A conference committee has six members: two Republicans and a Democrat from the Senate, two Democrats and a Republican from the House.

LAST WEEK both chambers held brief sessions Thursday morning, the first time in three weeks they had gathered. They will meet again in three more weeks — Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Said Engler: "I sent him (Dodak) a balanced budget on March 7. We've already waited over five months."

Some effects:

• School districts can't make hiring decisions on teachers who were pink-slipped in June. School districts' fiscal year began July 1.

• Colleges and universities are raising tuitions "to compensate for the uncertainty," Engler said. Part of that uncertainty is due to Engler's decision to delay '91 fourth-quarter state aid payments to fiscal '92.

• The Michigan Education Association reported dozens of districts have yet to resolve contracts with teachers and staff personnel.

• Michigan joins a long list of states with budget problems, with one difference: No one here is proposing a major tax increase.

Preschool music class at SC

Schoolcraft College is offering preschool music adventure, an introduction to rhythm movement and music making for children ages 4-6. The class will meet from 5:15-6:15 p.m. beginning Wednesday, Sept. 11. Music games, folk songs and rhythm instruments will be used to develop coordination, concentration and creativity. The class prepares students for further music study such as piano, band/orchestra, singing and dance. No instrument or outside practice is required. Fee is $90.

Registration and orientation will be at noon, Saturday, Sept. 7. For more information, call continuing education services at 462-4448. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty Road between Six and Seven Mile roads.

WHEN TO COME IN

Physicians who treat arthritis won't concede that Americans are "soft." The problem is just the opposite: On matters of joint pain, you wait too long to be seen.

Part of the delay stems from hope: that tomorrow your swollen knee or painful shoulder will improve and not need special attention. Part of the delay comes out of a reluctance to ask for help from family, friends or employer. However, too often the delay results from an attitude that you should tough it out, show resolve, and maintain your independence.

If pain that used to end in a day is ongoing, you may be in a flare. Other signs are increasing stiffness, unending tiredness, and joint swelling at a site not previously involved.

If you are experiencing such changes, your physician likely would prefer that you set aside pride and see him soon. The reason is that as a flare continues, it recruits more joints as both inflammation spreads, and uninvolved joints become painful from overuse. Also, the longer the flare, the more your fatigue, and the greater the difficulties that therapy must overcome.

If your arthritis worsens, schedule an early appointment with your doctor. At the least you will become educated on your arthritis; at best your efforts will bring a return to well being.

Canton sees '91 potential

Experienced team brightens outlook

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Canton won a division championship in girls basketball for the sixth consecutive year with a young team last season, and the Chiefs hope they can build on that success in 1991.

Bob Blohm, beginning his third year as the Canton varsity coach, has seven returning players from a team that finished 13-8, including leading scorer and rebounder Stephanie Gray.

The Chiefs lost only one starter, Mary Barna, and with the experience they have coming back are expected to contend for the Western Division title in the Western Lakes Activities Association again.

But Blohm isn't about to let his players rest on their laurels or Canton's reputation for being a winner. He has a point, in fact, when he cautions the Chiefs are still a young team with only two seniors, seven juniors and two sophomores.

The veteran players are seniors Julie Nicastrì and Renee Dory, juniors Gray, Christie Saffron, Kelly Holmes and Amy Westerhold and sophomore Britta Anderson.

"BEING A young team last year and making the strides we did was good," Blohm said, "but what happened last year has little to do with this year. Other teams have improved so we have to continue to improve, too."

If things go well, however, Canton would like to regain its past stature from the great years of 1988-89 when they won back-to-back WLAA titles and were 41-6. The Chiefs reached the Class A semifinals in 1989 with all-stater Susan Ferko leading the team.

"I don't know if I consider this a veteran team yet," Blohm said. "We're looking at a lot of players with only 21 games at the varsity level, and the only player back from that (1989) group is Nicastrì. We've got a lot of ground to cover to get to that point."

"Game experience is really the key. You can practice and practice but you have to put them on the floor and let them compete. We still have a ways to go in terms of becoming a good basketball team."

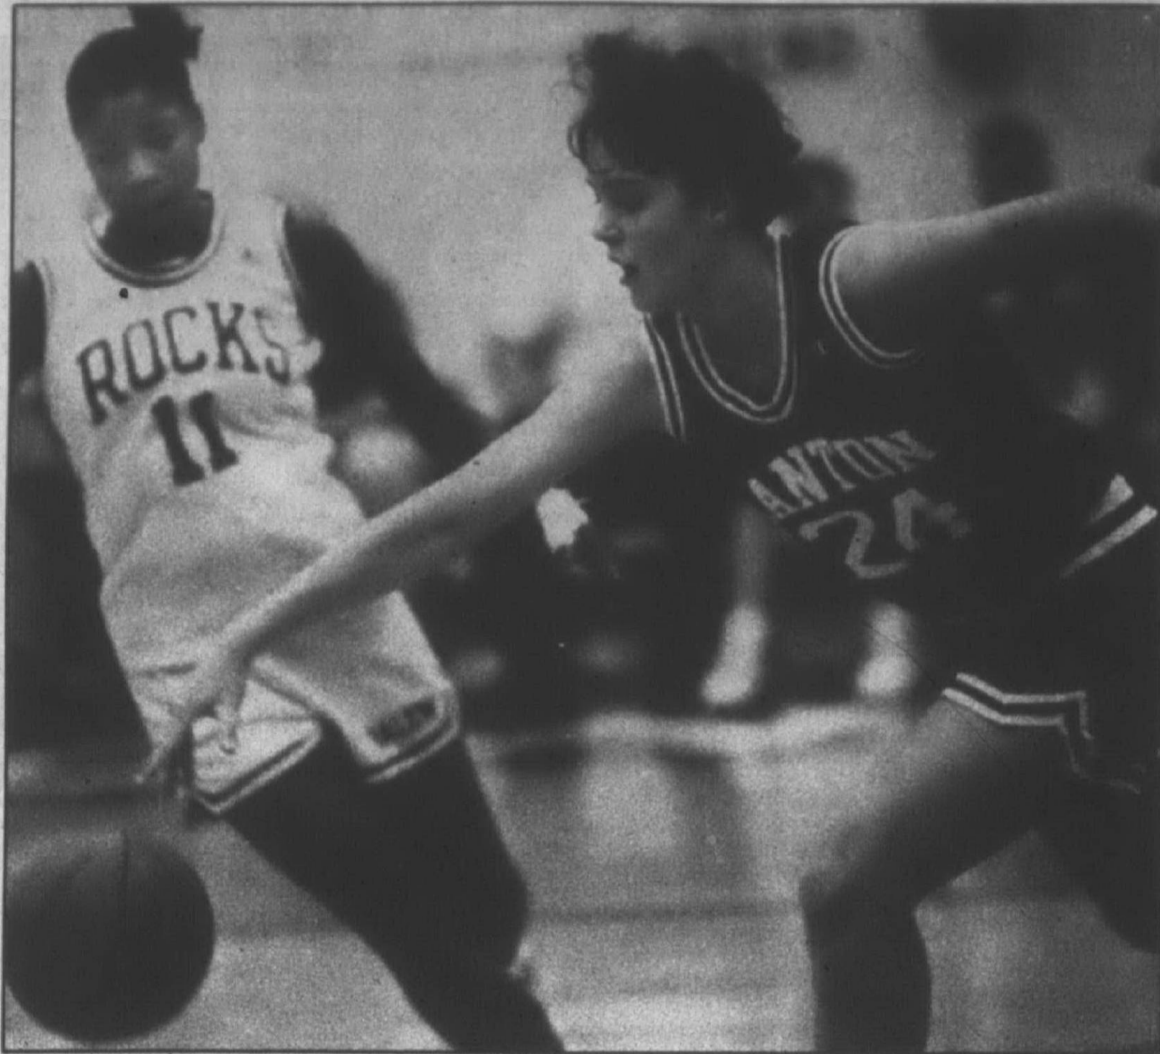

Canton will play a rugged schedule that includes excellent non-league opponents and a competitive lineup of WLAA teams.

The Chiefs open Tuesday, Sept. 3, at home against Trenton and also face Birmingham Marian, Flint Powers and Waterford Kettering. Plymouth Salem, Northville, Livonia

Stephanie Gray is one of three experienced players on the Canton basketball team. The 6-foot junior was the leading scorer and rebounder during a 13-8 season a year ago.

Franklin, Walled Lake Central and Livonia Stevenson should be improved or as good as last year.

"BY THE END of the year, we want to be playing some good basketball, and hopefully your schedule prepares you to do that," Blohm said. "Our schedule should really challenge our players to improve their game throughout the course of the year."

Canton has plenty of height — Gray stands 6-feet, Nicastrì and Holmes 5-11 — among its post players, who can match up with any team in the league.

Gray led the Chiefs with 15 points and eight rebounds per game, and Nicastrì averaged eight and seven, respectively. Blohm would like to see Nicastrì and Holmes increase their scoring this year.

"I would like to see more scoring from (Holmes) at the high post," Blohm said, adding one of her strengths is her ability to score from outside. "Nicastrì has demonstrated she's a great defender and rebounder, but we need to get more scoring from her. She needs to be 12 or 13 a game."

"I would like to see (Gray) do more offensive rebounding and scoring. She's a great free throw shooter, and we need to get her to the line. Both kids (Gray and Nicastrì) have the strength to get the ball and put it back up."

Canton has more height up front than in 1989 when Ferko, Stacey Thompson and Jennie Clark played there, but the Chiefs still need to work at rebounding, Blohm said.

"I'M REALLY hoping, between those three kids, we can look at maybe 500 rebounds," he said. "They can divide it up anyway they want, but they need to be more aggressive. Rebounding really has nothing to do with size. It has to do with positioning and timing."

"Our challenge is 'Can we continue to rebound with good teams and more importantly, can we defend good teams?' We gave up a lot of points in the transition game, and we hope to cut down on that."

Canton's regular lineup had Anderson (5-6), who averaged five points, and either Westerhold (5-4) or Saffron (5-5) starting on the perimeter along with Barna. Other perimeter players are Dory (5-5), sophomore Alyson Nune (5-0) and juniors Jori Welchans (5-6), Karrie Drinkhan (5-7) and Christie Anderson (5-6).

"We need to complement our inside scoring with perimeter scoring," Blohm said. "I'm hoping Nune, Anderson, Saffron and Westerhold can step up and hit the 15-footer and put some pressure on the perimeter defense."

"Our perimeter shooting has improved but it has been spotty. The only way it can continue to improve is if the kids continue to fire the ball

Salem runners solid

By Ray Setlock
staff writer

Plymouth Salem girls cross country coach Mike Krafchak will be accumulating more than his share of frequent flier miles this fall.

Krafchak's work in the computer field took him to Florence, S.C., but that will not change his coaching status at Salem. He plans on commuting back and forth for weekend meets.

"It will be tough, but I love these girls and I love this coaching job," he said. "I can't just leave this team."

Krafchak will travel to Michigan every weekend while his assistants will run workouts during the week.

"It won't be that bad," he said. "I have family to stay with in Garden City."

"I'M SUPPOSED to move back to Michigan within the next year and would like to maintain my coaching status at Salem. That's why I'm going through all of this now."

Krafchak's traveling might be worth it this season, as the Rocks expect to have a successful campaign, led by junior runner Stacy Witthoff.

"Right now Stacy is our No. 1 kid," Krafchak said. "She has a great work ethic and works hard to stay in condition all year round."

Last season, Salem finished third in the conference and third in the region. The Rocks were 13th in the state.

"I already think we're better than last year," Krafchak said. "We have a good group of kids."

Though Salem has plenty of talent, it remains a young team since two of its top four runners, Emily Farrell and Julie Cutting, are sophomores.

"EMILY IS IN excellent shape," Krafchak said. "She is only a few seconds behind Witthoff."

"Cutting is developing into a nice runner. She was small last season but has put on some size and should have a good season."

Junior Corey Gulkewicz, one of the team captains, is also being counted on by Krafchak. She was Salem's top runner at the state meet, finishing 54th with a 21:35.5 time.

"Corey is our money runner," Krafchak said. "She does well in big events."

Other runners expected to contribute for Salem include junior Kelly Morante, sophomore Katie Hied and senior Beth Turomsha. Farrell, Cutting, Morante and Turomsha also ran for the Rocks in state competition last year.

"I am really excited about this team," Krafchak said. "There are some talented girls on this team, many of whom have bright futures."

"This is a good team and we'd like to go as far as we can. Any of our top four girls could carry us. It will be interesting to see how we finish."

Chiefs hope hard work has reward

By Neil Zipse
staff writer

Plymouth Canton might not be as talented as some of the area's other girls tennis teams, but talent alone won't be the lone determining factor as to how the Chiefs perform.

"We have a lot of different girls playing this year, and they have been a great bunch of hard-working girls," Canton coach Carol Michaels said.

The 13-year coach believes the good work ethic her players have shown in preseason practices could make her "pleasantly surprised" as the season progresses.

The Chiefs finished 8-4 last season, which was good for a fourth-place finish in dual meets and sixth place overall in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

THE CHIEFS won the WLAA championship two years ago and also had Western Division titles in 1984 and 1985.

"Farmington Harrison will be very tough this season as will Livonia Stevenson and Northville, who are always good," Michaels said.

Madonna volleyball expects big year

Program primed for '91

By C.J. Rieak
staff writer

For three seasons, the low rumbling was constant; something was building at Madonna University. Just how big a project it would turn out to be was uncertain, although, as time progressed, it grew in magnitude.

Now the project is near completion. This should be the season a determination can be made as to its success.

If that sounds like pressure being applied to a still-unfinished job, well, it is. Because Madonna's volleyball program, under coach Jerry Abraham, is entering its fifth year. He will have his first-ever recruited senior class. He will have more depth, more experience and more talent than in any of his previous four seasons.

The Lady Crusaders have been gaining momentum for four years. The roof is completed; all that remains are the ornate, final touches.

"WE HAVE 13 players who can play," said Abraham following the second of three daily practice sessions last week. "This is a very talented group. They are constantly, in practice day after day, challenging each other."

"We have a combination of youth and experience. And this is the first time we've had seniors."

All the components are in place, beginning with all-NAIA District 23 player Tonia Smith, a 5-foot-9 junior left-side hitter from Walled Lake Central HS. Smith, said Abraham, "could be a candidate for district player of the year. She's a key player for us."

But Smith is hardly the Crusaders' only weapon. This is a team that went 34-18 in 1990 and finished second in the district playoffs to perennial champion Northwood Institute. They didn't accomplish all that by being a one-player team.

INDEED, ONLY one starter is missing from last season's squad: Stacey Girard, a left-side hitter who dropped out of school. Her position should be filled quite adequately by Elena Oparka, a 5-9 junior who played at Schoolcraft College in '90; sophomore Evette Sluder, a 5-9 sophomore from Wayne Memorial; or Sue Bell, a 5-6 freshman from Livonia Stevenson.

The middle-hitting is what pleases Abraham most. It was strong already, with all-district player Dana Hicks-Finley, a 6-0 sophomore from Milford-Lakeland, and two-year starter Kristy McFadden, a 6-1 senior from Redford Bishop Borgess, returning.

Now it's even better, with the addition of 6-0 freshman Julie Adams, from Temperance-Bedford HS. "She's big and strong, and she'll challenge for playing time," said Abraham. "She balances us in the middle. It's the strongest we've ever been there."

On the right side, Abraham can call on several experienced players. Melissa Mars, a 5-10 junior from Borgess who "plays with a lot of enthusiasm," is the leading candidate to start, said Abraham. Mazie Pilut, a 5-10 sophomore from Borgess who is battling 5-5 senior Penny Baker (Lincoln Park) for playing time at setter, is another possibility.

SO IS freshman Maureen Paulin, a 5-9 Farmington Hills Mercy graduate from Livonia. "She's an excellent all-around player," Abraham said of Paulin. "She attacks well, she serves well, she's very strong defensively. Like Sue Bell, she comes from an excellent program."

Senior Jenny Sladewski, 5-6 from Stevenson, is the top returning defensive specialist. But there's depth there, too, with freshmen Carrie Jenkins (5-7 from Lapeer East) and Paulin.

In an effort to improve his veteran corps, Abraham implemented a tough off-season strength and conditioning program. It's already paid dividends. "We're stronger and in better shape physically at this point (of the pre-season)," he said. "We're able to demand more of them in practice."

EARLY CONDITIONING may be necessary, considering Madonna's schedule. The Crusaders open this weekend at the Mesa State College Tournament in Grand Junction, Colo. Others competing in the five-team tournament are Brigham Young-Hawaii, Fort Hayes State (Kansas), Azusa Pacific (California) and host-team Mesa State. All are ranked in the NAIA's pre-season top 20 poll.

"We have a very challenging schedule," said Abraham. Included is the district slate. Defending champ Northwood won't abdicate without a fight: "Northwood returns almost everybody, and they picked up a couple of recruits," said Abraham.

The rest of the district teams could be equally challenging. "It should be a very competitive league this year," predicted Abraham. "There were not a lot of seniors last year."

Still, with the nucleus Madonna returns, there's no reason not to expect a Crusader campaign that stretches into the NAIA tournament's latter stages.

Bowlers recognize sponsor

THE EVENT WAS the 55th Annual John P. Gavie Invitational Tournament.

It could have been aptly called the "Who's Who in Local Bowling Circles," Monday night, Aug. 19, at Thunderbowl. One of the highlights of the opening ceremonies was a presentation to Lew Ansara of Farmington Hills.

10-pin alley
Al Harrison

In fact, the tournament was held in honor of Ansara in recognition and appreciation for more than 20 years of sponsorship of the all-stars. This tournament is recognized as the official kick-off of the bowling season.

It is the starting signal for the H & L Distributors Tuesday All-Stars at Thunderbowl and the Schaefer Beer Thursday All-Star Traveling Classic.

Ansara is the honorary president of both leagues. His own team, Ansara's Big Boy, always regarded as one of the top teams in the city, set some new scoring records along the way last year.

Nobody has ever been more deserving of being honored than Ansara. His name has probably been embroidered on more bowling shirts than anyone around as he has sponsored many teams, a few leagues and numerous tournaments. Lew has been one of local bowling's biggest supporters and boosters.

Lew is a fine bowler in his own right, having competed in some of the top leagues in the area. The Ansara family has the Big Boy restaurants in Livonia, Garden City, Westland and Redford. Not very many businessmen know the real value of sponsorship in bowling. The Ansaras sure do, and the money they spend for bowlers is well appreciated among the bowling community.

As for the bowling tournament, there were too many high games and great names in bowling to list them here, however, the media team comprised of certain bowling writers easily dispatched the "Sponsor" team from the Schaefer Beer Co.

By the way Lew, I'd like a "Brawny Lad" sandwich and fries.

• What's in a name? There is a new high performance ball coming out this fall from AMF. It will be called the "Sumo." I haven't seen it yet, but I don't think it will be any larger than most other bowling balls.

• Earlier this month, the Greater Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame committee met to vote for the individuals deemed worthy of selection. Aside from the bowling accomplishments, the criteria for selection includes congeniality, dress code, promotion of the game, conduct on and off the lanes and good fellowship.

The final selections by category: Men — Bob Chamberlain; Veteran's — Bob Goike and Jack Born; Women — Yvonne Barnes; Meritorious Service — Robert Wissmuller.

The hall of fame dinner will be held on Nov. 3 at the Ukrainian Cultural Center in Warren.

• Now for the rest of the story: There was the incident reported here two weeks ago in which an 88-year-old Detroit was robbed of his bowling ball, bag and new shoes.

Mary Mohacs, owner of "Right Approach" pro shop at Merri-Bowl Lanes in Livonia, read about the incident and contacted the gentleman to let him know she would replace his gear with all new equipment free of charge. I am happy to report that this man came in to the shop and has his bowling outfit, all new.

Nice going, Mary!

• Happy retirement wishes to a long-time bowling buddy, Irv "Flying Tiger" Kemper, who is packing up to move to Tucson, Ariz., with his lovely wife Mary. Irv has been a Masonic League bowler locally for the past 30 years and will be missed. He was on championship teams with me in 1965 and again in '89.

• In case you missed it, the ABC has a brand new type of award this year: a wrist watch to commemorate a game bowled of 100 pins over average. This is a very attractive award, and an attainable goal for many bowlers.

• Look for the Observer & Eccentric personal bowling scorecard at all area bowling centers. These are handy to keep a record of your league scores, or if you're not in a league, you can still have a log of your open bowling scores and use it to compute your bowling average. They are free of charge.

Personally I have kept such records for 32 years of league bowling. I know exactly how many 300 games, 600 series, and in which houses, I have bowled.

• Anyone who walks into the West Bloomfield Lanes on Orchard Lake Road will be pleasantly surprised at the updated surroundings. Owner Larry Sisson went all out with his pocket book this summer to make things the best that they can be for all his bowlers.

• Aug. 18 was the date of the latest Stroh's Beer-Michigan Majors Tournament, held at Cherry Hill North in Clarkston.

Jon Putti, of Redford, came in fourth; Arnos Mathis, Southfield, 10th; Larry Walker, Garden City, 11th; Nunzio Marino, Livonia, 15th; Tim Detherage, Canton, 19th; Ed Grant, Rochester Hills, 21st; Larry Franz, Redford, 23rd; Jon Reed, Redford, 26th; Tony Stipeck, Redford, 29th; Keith Kwiatkowski, Birmingham, 36th.

The first match of the stepladder finals will be shown on PASS Cable TV Sept. 7th. The next tournament is slated for Sept. 21-22 at Monitor Lanes in Bay City.

For further information, call Ken Charrette at 775-3414.

Area players help state soccer team

The record doesn't exactly reflect it, but the first-ever Michigan under-19 boys soccer team to compete at the national AAU championships performed splendidly.

The tournament, held in Tallahassee July 31-Aug. 2, attracted 20 teams from throughout the nation. Still, it was no Florida vacation for the Michiganders. For various reasons, several members of coach Wayne Worosz's team had to cancel at the last moment; just 13 made the trip.

Which proved to be Michigan's downfall. The local team won its first three games, beating eventual gold medalist Port Austin, Texas, 1-0, in the opener after keeper Dave Glaser stopped a penalty kick.

After that, Michigan ripped Athens, Ala., 10-0, with Joe Nora (from Redford Catholic Central and Plymouth), scoring four goals and Mike Weiskirch and Craig Hageman each netting three. Michigan then rolled past Lake Odessa, Texas, 8-1, with Hageman and Weiskirch getting two goals apiece.

But Michigan's fortunes nosedived in its next match, against the Tallahassee Rovers. Injuries sidelined four players during the game; Michigan finished with just nine players and lost, 8-0.

Michigan was still without the four injured players when it met the defending champs from Escondido, Calif., who beat the locals 6-1. In its final game, Michigan needed a win over Cut Hills, Tenn., to reach the medal round, but even with its full team Michigan fell short, 2-1.

Other team members were Jason Carmein, Bob Mainhardt, Brandon Miller, Eric Petker, Jason Seitz, Nate Stovall, Wayne Worosz, Phil York and Steve Loveday. Seitz and Nora were named to the all-tournament team.

Craiger wins title

After losing the first playoff game, Craiger won two straight to capture its eighth straight Canton Babe Ruth baseball championship.

The Dry Clean Company threatened to end Craiger's streak with an 8-4 win in the first game. Winning pitcher Nirav Kher, who allowed five hits and struck out six, also hit a home run and had three RBI. Tony Vadehra was 3-for-3 with three RBI, while Zack Fowler led Craiger with two hits.

Craiger battled back with an 11-6 win over Dry Clean. Chris Kennedy, only 13, pitched a complete game for the winners. Dave Kapla and Nick Stankov each were 3-for-4 and Kapla highlighted the win with a two-run homer and three RBI.

Brian Lemkie, J. Rozum and Zack Fowler added two hits each. Lemkie and Rozum batted in two runs apiece.

Rozum started and went five innings with four strikeouts as Craiger clinched the title with an 8-7 win over Dry Clean. Craiger trailed 7-6 after six innings but scored two runs in the seventh to win. A walk to Ryan King with the bases loaded forced in the winning run.

Dave Kapla came on in the sixth and seventh innings, struck out three and preserved the win. Kapla was also 3-for-4, while Rozum, Jay Wasalaski and Keith McDonald collected two hits each; McDonald also had two RBI.

Craiger was coached by Terry Wasalaski, with help from Mike Stankov. The team had an 11-8 record to raise its eight-year total to 108-28. Other team members included Matt Abbott, Jeff Korczyk, Joe Niemienski and Mike Brannan.

in practice and get the repetitions." Blohm hopes hard work, individual improvement and practice will help the Chiefs develop a good chemistry and have a successful season.

"WE'RE A YOUNG team and young teams need to build skill, learn to be a team and deal with competition," he said. "We need to take what we have and apply it and challenge ourselves." "Nobody gets better in any competitive endeavor unless they work at it. Our players have good work habits, and I think that will help us become a real good basketball team."

Chiefs rebuild tennis lineup

Gone from last season is first singles player Leanne Gurchak, third singles Reetika Aulakh, the first doubles team of Gina Fuerst and Lorena Sanford and third doubles player Jennifer Schaefer.

Michaelis is uncertain of her starting lineup, but senior Denise Gildo is a good bet to hold the first singles position. She was undefeated at second singles last season.

Senior Jennifer Davis, last season's fourth singles player, will probably jump to second.

Former second doubles players senior Dorothy Pao and junior Pam Reynolds will battle sophomore Ellen Gaston for Canton's remaining singles positions.

Juniors Shazia Ahmed, Kelly Caulfield, Lynne Cessante, Kelly Blanche, Anne Zachary and senior Cindy Jones will compete for the doubles positions.

The Chiefs begin the season Thursday, Sept. 5, at Ypsilanti. They play host to Farmington on Monday, Sept. 9, before meeting Livonia Franklin in their first Western Division match Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Chain's future is 'Out'

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

A band on the run? Not in Chain Reaction's case.

Up to this point, the four-man outfit with former Westland residents Eric Harabadian and Bob Drzdzewski might be classified as a bunch of shut-ins. Instead of being familiar faces on the club circuit, they have been something like studio monks, busy producing their latest effort, "Out of the Ruins."

The cassette release features a taut combination of 1960-70's experimental hard rock guitar virtuosity grounded in blues-based rhythms and mixed in with New World sensibilities. Inflections of jazz, reggae and Latin interspersed throughout.

"How I see our sound is we're a rock band who also does blues that is influenced by jazz and world music," said vocalist and guitarist Harabadian.

Er, right. That's what we were trying to say. Anyhow, the buzz phrase here is alternative but commercial.

CHAIN REACTION has spent five years trying to perfect this notion. Live appearances have been limited, though the band is trying to line up dates in September in order to promote "Out of the Ruins." Also in the works is a video special that will appear on local cable outlets.

Already, cuts from "Out of the Ruins" are getting air play on "Detroit Music Scene" and on Judy Adams' show on WDET-FM. College stations such as WHFR-FM at Henry Ford Community College and WORB-FM at Oakland Community College have played selections from the cassette as well.

All of this vindicates members of Chain Reaction, who don't buy into the fashion or the enlightened attitude of an alternative outfit. If anything, they resemble your average Joe musicians sitting in Harabadian's living room.

Familiarity apparently breeds quiet confidence. Harabadian and Drzdzewski started jamming together 10 years ago.

Drummer and percussionist John Slitti joined the group three years ago and bassist Max Jardine only a few months ago.

From a progressive base, Slitti and Jardine play a large role. Both have been heavily influenced by world music.

Slitti began to fancy himself as a percussionist a few years ago, dropping names like Tito Puente and Chain Reaction has spent five years coming up with a sound that is both alternative and commercial. The end result is "Out of the Ruins."

Mongo Santa Maria and jazz fusion artist Dave Weckl as heroes.

"I TRIED to imitate (former Led Zeppelin drummer, the late) John Bonham," Slitti said. "I found percussion more absorbing."

Likewise Slitti's partner in rhythm, Jardine, mentions the names of jazz artists such as Billy Cobham and Jean Luc Ponty.

These world sensibilities are melded with traditional forms of rock'n'roll brought forth by Drzdzewski and Harabadian.

"I think the key is we listen to a wide variety of music... We're all coming from a progressive base," Harabadian said. "I've always had eclectic tastes, so in a way, it's a blending of sounds."

Band members say they can pull it off because ego levels are kept to a minimum. Usually, Harabadian brings a rough sketch of a song into rehearsals and the rest of the group helps flesh it out.

Harabadian has a knack for writing ballads and love songs, but his lyrics can take a social commentary as well. The blues-tinged number "Innocence Lost" focuses on runaways while "Where's the Beauty" delves into the subject of homelessness.

All of which bear more than a hint of authenticity in their concern. Harabadian is in the process of earning a master's degree in social work from Wayne State University and does counseling with children.

But the band members stress they want to keep things entertaining.

"We're in it for the fun of it first and foremost," Drzdzewski said. "If you don't love it, you start to hate it and you'll either quit or become a wedding band."

Missed chances kill 'Dead Again'

Despite some nifty twists, "Dead Again" is another misfire attempt at reviving the spirit of Alfred Hitchcock. Where the master of suspense would collar you and lead you through an emotionally complex thriller, actor/director Kenneth Branagh rarely masters up that kind of involvement.

And it's too bad, because the basic premise had possibilities. Branagh stars as Mike Church, a private detective in Los Angeles who specializes in locating missing persons. His attempt to uncover the identity of a woman with amnesia (Emma Thompson) leads to some shocking revelations.

Under hypnosis, the woman regresses to a past life, back to the time when she was the victim in a notorious 1948 murder. As the wife of German composer Roman Strauss, she was stabbed in her bed with a pair of expensive scissors. Detective Church, we discover, may be the murderer reincarnated, ready to strike again.

"It's the karma credit plan," says the whacked-out psychiatrist played by Robin Williams. "Buy now, pay forever."

BRITON BRANAGH, the Oscar-nominated talent behind "Henry V" in 1989, has packed plenty into his American debut. If nothing else, "Dead Again" is extremely cinematic. It employs a constantly moving camera and jumps from the present to extended black-and-white sequences in the past. The actors play dual roles.

Branagh fares best as the pointy-bearded German composer with a sagging career and a violent temper. As a modern-day detective, his character is a washout. According to the scriptwriter, simply having him drive a vintage sports car and collect antique furniture is all the character clues they need to give him.

Thompson, so memorable as George Sand in "Impromptu," is more comfortable with her roles. As the amnesiac, she is vulnerable and speaks through her eyes. As pianist Margaret Strauss, she is bold, beautiful, aristocratic and almost open to the invitations of a handsome journalist (played by Andy Garcia).

Branagh has assembled an amazing supporting cast. Robin Williams goes uncredited as a former shrink who now runs an inner-city grocery store. As a running gag, Garcia's character is in constant need of a shave, even when he's interviewed at age 80. Derek Jacobi is wonderfully quirky as the antiques dealer who practices hypnosis on the side.

SOME OF THE ideas work. The hypnotist, we discover, uses the buried memories of elderly clients to track down valuable antiques. And among Branagh's other cinematic treats, banner headlines float across the screen during the opening credits, immediately bringing us up-to-date on the Strauss murder.

And there is a corker of a plot twist. I won't give it away, but will warn that it, too, is a disappointment because Branagh just drops it and lets it lay there. He could have done so much more.

Which pretty much sums up the entire movie. "Dead Again" takes itself so seriously and is so earnestly crafted that it has no time for fun. The dialogue, especially in the love scenes, borders on embarrassing.

The film will strike a chord with some audiences, the same ones that consider "Somewhere in Time" and "Ghost" among the modern classics. The idea of love going beyond time and death is always a popular one, even when it arrives in such a blandly wrapped package.

Hoskins is good in 'Good Friday'

There's a Rolls with a driver, a yacht the Queen Mother wouldn't look down her nose at, a penthouse London apartment and a gorgeous upper-crust girlfriend. What more could a crime boss want?

How about a deal with a shady American money man for a Thames riverfront development, including a new Olympic stadium, that will legitimize your ill-gotten financial empire and make lots more money?

That's the position gangster Harold Shand finds himself in on a pleasant Good Friday morning. Life is good for Harold, played by Bob Hoskins, who has headed his crime operation without any major conflicts for a decade. But things are about to hit the fan.

The first sign of trouble is a bomb that blows up Harold's driver and narrowly misses dear old Mum, who was taking her time at church services. A close associate is murdered, and bombs keep going off.

"The Long Good Friday" follows Hoskins' efforts to close his deal with the Yank and retain control over his suddenly threatened empire, as soon as he can figure out who is attacking him.

WITH HIS pit bull demeanor, Hoskins is terrific as the cockney gangster whose ruthlessness and arrogance got him the power and material success he attained. Those are the same qualities that dictate where he will end up.

Hoskins' Harold Shand is the kind of guy who will weepily reminisce about a murdered friend, who he was planning to force out of the "corporation" anyway, and later kill another associate in a rage.

Early on, Hoskins seems like the underdog who made good and not really like a bad guy. In a telling moment, Hoskins despairs about what he could have done to deserve his current predicament and asks for ideas about who might be responsible. His associate reminds Hoskins that he had killed all his rivals.

This 1979 film has none of the romanticized view of organized crime found in "The Godfather." Hoskins pays his underlings well to keep their support. It's good for business.

When he's threatened, his basic self-preservation instinct kicks in, and he terrorizes anyone who might have the information he needs. That includes some associates hauled in for a private meeting in a meat-processing plant.

AS HIS organization continues to take hits, Hoskins describes the situation as being "like a bad night in Belfast." The American gangster, concerned about the problems with his British counterpart's organization, says, "It's like a bad night in Viet Nam."

Helen Mirren is very good as Hoskins' upper class girlfriend, who is savvy and able to add the social graces he lacks. She starts to crack under the strain as the real violence of their world start to break through.

If you pay close attention, you can start figuring out who is giving Hoskins so much grief, although there are a couple possibilities. The problem for Harold Shand is that once he figures out who his enemy is, he doesn't understand that they play by different rules — until it's too late. There is a great silent shot of Hoskins when it all becomes clear to him.

Freezer pies are no sweat

By Larry Janes
special writer

With the unusually hot weather we have been sweating over lately, I can't imagine why anyone would want to spend an afternoon in the kitchen baking pies when refreshing alternatives like fridge and freezer pies take minutes to prepare, and bring raves from friends and family.

Contrary to popular belief, today's prepackaged pie shells aren't really as bad as momma said, and let's face it, on a hot, humid day, who wants to spend time making a pie shell anyway?

IN ALL honesty though, with a food processor and a package of Oreos, wonderful crusts can be prepared in seconds. The best thing about using Oreos is the old rule: "use one, eat one," which is half the fun. Add 2 tablespoons of chilled butter or margarine or for a more adult taste, a splash of liqueur and you can press a pie pan crust in 2 minutes flat. Even dieters can produce elegant and mouth-watering crusts using graham crackers (bread exchange) or those dietetic cookies that taste pretty cruddy by themselves, but made into a crust and frozen come out not half bad.

If you want to make the crusts as exciting as the filling, and you have central air conditioning, try adding some shredded coconut, finely chopped walnuts, chopped fruit or shaved chocolate to the crust mixture. While experimenting with the recipes for this column, I took a pre-baked, frozen pie crust and brushed it down with melted chocolate, then chilled it till the chocolate set. This not only made a flaky, fattening and fantastic crust, but the chocolate prevented the crust from getting "soggy" when filled with ice cream, pudding, mousse or whatever.

AS FAR as fillings are concerned, the simple addition of ice cream or the more complex mixtures of egg whites, gelatins and whipped cream top the charts as favorites. A simple crust filled with ice cream and then topped with fudge sauce, whipped cream and cherries can "chill out" the steamiest of summer desserts. Sure, homemade ice cream or those "premium" varieties that sell for $3 a quart are best, but when adding toppings, flavors, liqueurs, nuts and fruit, basic store bought simple flavors work best. Chuck the ice milk. Freezer pies with the creamiest textures are made with real ice cream. To soften ice cream or sherbet, let it stand at room temperature for about 15 minutes. If only using part of the ice cream, remove the amount needed from the container, return the container to the freezer and let the ice cream in the bowl soften. To speed the softening, break up the ice cream and stir. Under no circumstances should the ice cream melt or it will contain ice crystals after the pie is refrozen. Yours truly experimented with homemade ice cream, premium ice cream, cheap ice cream, sherbet and dietetic ice cream. Smoothest results came from homemade and premium varieties.

PLAIN, UNADORNED sherbets picked up the flavor of liqueurs and flavorings best while cheap ice cream and plain dietetic desserts made for plain tastes, that could easily have been spruced up with the addition of fresh fruit and toppings. But why top dietetic desserts with toppings that far out-calorie their bases? This seems as silly as adding club soda to a glass of wine. Some people will do just about anything to reduce caloric intake.

City slickers find fresh produce at community markets

By Larry Janes
special writer

IF YOU are looking for the freshest and finest vegetables this summer at a price that just can't be beat, you should be checking out the local farm market scene.

Anyone living in metropolitan Detroit can take a short drive to many community farm markets, with some being even a bike ride or jog away.

The granddaddy of all the community farm markets is the Eastern Market at I-75 and Gratiot, just north of downtown. If Saturday-morning crowds are any indication of quantity and quality, this is it. Come early for the best quality, stay late for the best buys.

THE CHENE-FERRY Market and Royal Oak farm markets are also bursting at the seams with dozen-for-a-dollar corn, and bushels of tomatoes, cukes, and other summer vegetables. The Chene-Ferry Market is another oldie, but goodie, just off the I-94 freeway at Chene, northeast of downtown Detroit.

The Royal Oak farmers market is on 11 Mile Road, just east of Main, and is open Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays. Both are worth the drive, and are open all year.

Getting a little more personal are the small community farm markets. Plymouth has a winner on its hands with a Saturday-morning market just across the street from the town square in what is known as "the Gathering." In addition to farm goods on the western front are wonderful cheesecakes, and some of the best homemade bread and muffins in town.

Westiders can also enjoy the Livonia farmers' market now at the historic Wilson Barn on the corner of Middelbelt and West Chicago. This old homestead used to be the home of the Wilson Dairy Farm and residents who lived in the area for a few years remember when cows used to graze along Middelbelt Road. My, how times have changed.

My last visit to the Livonia farmers' market found a great selection of fresh herbs, most still in the pot for sunny windowsills, an abundance of corn, tomatoes, the ever-present zucchini, and some of the best local honey this side of town. Although this market is only open Saturdays, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. May through Oct. 12, farm fresh produce is always in abundance. Come fall, the property is taken over with pumpkins, cider, and crisp apples.

THE CITY of Northville also operates a quaint farm market on Thursdays, right across the street from Northville Downs on Center Street at 7 Mile Road. Operating also from May through October, a recent visit found baskets of fresh berries, and the usual summer produce, all way below grocery store prices, and undoubtedly twice as fresh.

A Saturday trip to Ann Arbor wouldn't be complete without a stop at the fabled Ann Arbor Farmers' Market on Detroit Street just south of the Amtrak depot. Again, produce abounds, but as only in Ann Arbor, you can find organic produce as well as natural foods and herbs. An early summer visit found a hanging herb basket that has done nothing but prosper on the Janes Gang's sunny deck.

Why venture to a small local farmers market you ask? Anyone who has ever visited and browsed the stalls of the local farmers knows that those tomatoes weren't picked last week. They were picked that morning. The fresh corn on the cob is still damp with dew as the sweet smell draws you in for a closer look.

These are the farmers who know that smaller zucchini taste better, and have fewer seeds and strings than some of the pseudo baseball bats at the grocers.

One of the niceties of community farmers markets is that you'll probably run into a few neighbors toting field-fresh goodies in their wagons and string bags. Speaking of which, seasoned marketers know the importance of small wagons, plenty of tote bags and luggage carriers for added convenience. Save a tree and bring your own bag — that also helps keep the farmers' prices down.

Many communities sponsor farm markets in and around metropolitan Detroit.

Nearby markets include the Lansing Municipal Market, 333 N. Cedar, Lansing, open year-round, Tues., Thurs., and Sat. 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. May through October; and the Oakland County Farm Market, Pontiac Lake Road, west of Telegraph, open Tues., Thurs. and Saturdays, 6:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Some community markets operate only during harvest times. Call the local city hall for definitive hours and times of operation.

For a farm market and U-Pick Directory, write to the Michigan Department of Agriculture Center for Agricultural Innovation and Development, P.O. Box 30017, Lansing 48909, or call (517) 373-1058. Copies of the directory are also available at the Michigan State Fair.

Insightful look at country markets

By Keely Wygonik
staff writer

Beautifully illustrated, and ripe for the season, "The Farm Market Cookbook," (Doubleday, $25) by Judith Olney, is a cookbook with a social conscience... and a cause — namely promoting fresh, healthy, pesticide-free foods.

While flipping through the book's 277 pages you can almost smell the dill, and see the stalls heaped with mountains of ripe peaches, melons, tomatoes and corn. The author, who was born in Michigan, writes from the perspective of someone who regularly shops at farm markets and loves them.

OLNEY VISITED one-third of the nation's 2,000 farm markets to write the book. It is a wonderful collection of reports on small-town and big-city markets and their trends; profiles and conversations with vendors and farmers; recipes and adaptations of the foods Olney sampled; and growing and cooking tips.

Two Michigan markets are featured — The Lansing Farm Market, and Eastern Market in Detroit.

As a child, Olney visited the Lansing market with her mother twenty-five years later, the memories are still sweet.

"About the only thing really different," she writes, "was a covered ramp connecting the two buildings, and the fact that the point on the 500-pound scales under the ramp now gave swift confirmation of adulthood."

Of the Eastern Market she writes "It reminded me a bid of the old Les Halles district in Paris — lots of specialty stores along the side streets that spun off from the market sheds, the beginning of a set of restaurants open long hours that served good, solid food."

Anyone who's ever been to a farmer's market will love this book. If you're not a cook, but are curious about people, you'll like "The Farm Market Cookbook." The book is interesting and heartwarming, and gives rich insight into a way of shopping that is, for many of us, just a memory.

Judith Olney, author of "The Farm Market Cookbook" lists the following reasons to shop at farm markets:

- Pets rather than bags of pet food.
- Aisles not so crowded.
- Checkout people knowledgeable.
- No recorded background music.
- No children whining for "Marshmallow Critter Puffs."
- No preservatives to retard spoilage.
- No jammed wheels on shopping carts.
- No squashed lettuce on linoleum floors.
- Produce makes car smell nice on the way home.

For those interested in starting a farm market, Olney suggests they send for a booklet, "Greenmarket, the Rebirth of Farmers' Markets in New York City," Greenmarket, 24 West 40th St., New York, N. Y. 10018. "It will tell you how," she says.

Use cookies for cool pie crusts

See Larry Janes' column Taste Buds, Page 3B.

ANY CRUMB CRUST makes a 9-inch crust
 1 1/2 cups favorite crumbs (Oreos, graham cracker, glazerganap, Vanilla-wafer, etc.)
 1/2 cup melted butter or margarine

Combine ingredients and mix well. Press into a 9-inch pie plate. Crust can be baked at 350 degrees for 8 minutes or frozen until firm.

STRAWBERRY MOUSSE PIE

1 9-inch crust
 3 cups fresh strawberries
 1/4 cup strawberry red pop
 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
 2 eggs, separated
 1/4 cup sugar
 1 cup whipping cream

Wash and hull berries. Mash or puree in processor or blender. Pour pop in a small pan. Sprinkle with gelatin to soften. Add egg yolks and 1/4 cup sugar, stir until well blended. Stir in strawberry puree and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Place in refrigerator to cool. Chill. Meanwhile, beat egg whites till stiff, gradually beat in 1/4 cup sugar. Fold into chilled strawberry mixture. Chill. Whip cream and fold into the strawberry mixture. Spoon into cooled crust. Freeze for at least 3 hours. Garnish with fresh strawberries.

LEMONADE PIE

1 prepared crumb crust
 1 6-oz. can lemonade concentrate
 2 eggs, separated
 1/2 cup sugar
 8 drops red food color (optional)
 1 cup whipping cream

Remove half of lemonade concentrate from the can. Let stand at room temperature while whipping other ingredients. Reserve remaining concentrate for another use. In a small bowl, beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in 1/2 cup sugar. Continue beating until stiff peaks form. Place in a large bowl. Place egg yolks in the small bowl, add remaining sugar and beat until thick and pale yellow. Mix in food color, if desired. Fold this mixture into egg whites. Beat cream until thick, fold thawed lemonade concentrate into the cream and fold into egg mixture. Spoon into prepared crust. Freeze immediately. Serve frozen.

CHOCOLATE CHIP MINT PIE

1 9-inch chocolate cookie crust
 4 (1 oz.) squares semisweet chocolate
 2 cups whipping cream
 1/4 cup powdered sugar
 1/4 cup white creme de menthe or peppermint schnapps

Melt chocolate in a small pan over a double boiler. Meanwhile, combine cream and powdered sugar in a large bowl. Beat until stiff peaks form. Fold in creme de menthe or schnapps. Chill. Drizzle melted chocolate over whipped cream and fold in. Spoon into the crust. Freeze 3 hours.

HALF AND HALF PIE

1 prepared 9-inch crust
 1 quart vanilla ice cream
 1 quart orange sherbet
 1/2 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
 1/2 cup chocolate chips
 2 tablespoons vegetable oil

Place ice cream and sherbet in separate bowls. Stir to a spreading consistency. Spread half the vanilla ice cream in the crust. Top with all the sherbet. Spread with an even layer of vanilla ice cream. Sprinkle with nuts. Freeze immediately. Melt chocolate chips with the oil over low heat until melted. Remove pie from freezer and drizzle chocolate mix over pie. Freeze immediately. Freeze 4 hours.

Alexander Valley wine is rich

Use of an American Viticultural Area on a wine label requires an 85-percent varietal minimum in the bottled wine. An AVA is defined by the Bureau of Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms as "a grape-growing region with established boundaries, soil, climate, elevation, and/or other geographical features which distinguish it from the surrounding areas."

Occasionally in this column, we'll focus on AVAs and their importance to a wine consumer. We are beginning with Alexander Valley.

LOCATED IN northeast Sonoma County, Alexander Valley is an arm of the Russian River Valley extending northwest of Healdsburg to the Mendocino County line. The valley is named after Cyrus Alexander, who settled there in 1845 to raise cattle and sheep.

Since the beginning of the century, Alexander Valley has been renowned for grapes, pears, peaches, apples, oranges and lemons. A wine-growing revival began in the mid-1960s.

Blessed with deep, fertile soils, Alexander Valley is cooled in summer by fog that flows in from the Santa Rosa plain and is retained by a narrowing at either end of the valley. The fog and river influence account for a 20-degree Fahrenheit temperature difference between warmer Cloverdale in the north and cooler Healdsburg to the south. Cool climate varietals such as chardonnay, riesling and gewurztraminer have been extremely successful in the southern end of the valley near Healdsburg, while the warmer reaches of the valley are able to ripen sauvignon blanc and cabernet sauvignon.

EARLY RIPENING chardonnay, grown in Alexander Valley, tends to produce wines rich in ripe fruit flavors. Late-ripening cabernet sauvignon thrives in the valley warmth to produce soft wines that can stand on their own as 100 percent varietals.

"Chardonnay and cabernet sauvignon thrive side by side, partly because the Alexander Valley has a unique combination of soils, warmth, rainfall, and fog intrusion," said Bob Young, who made his first Alexander Valley plantings at Robert Young Vineyards in 1963.

"Most white grapes in Alexander Valley are planted on rich, valley-floor soils. We monitor our crop loads carefully and when we think it is necessary, we bunch-thin to a level within the vine's ability to produce a good crop."

Red varieties are generally planted on the hillsides. Bob's son, Jim, explains, "Thinner hillside soils, which are quite rocky in places, are more suitable for cabernet sauvignon because they cause the vines to be less vigorous. Consequently, we get smaller berries, less canopy, and intensely-colored grapes."

RED WINES produced from Alexander Valley grapes are rich, big, fruity and forward, with soft tannins providing a broad spectrum of flavors. Frequently, the wines show a chocolate component with a hint of herbaceousness typical of the region.

Alexander Valley chardonnays are intense and forward with a pineapple-peach fruit perception. The wines have adequate acidity and are easy to drink.

Some of the best gewurztraminer comes from Alexander Valley. This is due to the fact that the tempera-1988 Clos du Bois Cabernet Sauvignon ($16) is blended with 18 percent cabernet franc and highlighted by coffee, chocolate and vanilla aromas and flavors. Impressive harmony of all elements makes this a likable wine.

1987 Ferrari-Carano Cabernet Sauvignon ($19) is a blend of all five Bordeaux red varietals and accents ripe red currant fruit with hints of spice. This wine has plenty of stuffing with well-extracted cherry flavors and is a wine for current drinking.

ture drops rapidly at about 5 p.m. daily during the growing season, and that the valley experiences very cool nights.

The melon-pear quality of Alexander Valley sauvignon blanc is appealing.

Goopy chocolate cake is a farm market find.

See related story, Page 3B.

CHOCOLATE GOOPY BUTTER CAKE

For the topping:
 9 ounces soft whipped cream cheese,

at room temperature
 3 ounces bittersweet chocolate, melted
 1 egg
 One 1-pound box confectioners' sugar, sifted

For the cake:
 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
 1 cup sugar
 1/4 cup cocoa powder
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 1 stick butter, melted

2 eggs
 1/2 cup milk
 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Butter a 9 x 13-inch cake pan.

Prepare the topping first. Whip together the cream cheese, melted chocolate and egg. When smooth, stir in the sifted confectioners' sugar. Set aside.

To make the cake, mix the dry ingredients, preferably in the bowl of a mixer.

In another bowl, stir together the melted butter, eggs, milk and vanilla. Slowly add the liquid ingredients to the dry ingredients; beat for 3 minutes. Pour the batter into the prepared cake pan. Gently spread the cream cheese topping over the cake. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 40 minutes. Cool the cake completely, at least 4 hours, before cutting. The cake will stay moist and delicious for 3 days. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Hot dogs are a hit with baseball fans

Batter up! Baseball and hot dogs are two American favorites that continue to attract more fans every year.

During the baseball season, the number of hot dogs sold at ballparks averages approximately 80 percent of the attendance. On some occasions, hot dog sales even outnumber the gate.

But you don't have to be at a ballgame to enjoy the best in hot dog cuisine.

Create your own baseball legend by mixing types of cheeses and by substituting salad dressings and shredded vegetables for the traditional condiments.

Other Ideas:

• Bases Loaded: Serve mini-bites of hot dogs on dinner rolls. Cut split franks in half. Load bun as a Reuben with sauerkraut, Swiss cheese and Thousand Island dressing; corn relish and mustard; baked beans or any favorite topping or combo.

• Dugout Special: Split hot dog in a bun filled with your favorite slaw or grated garden vegetables.

• Leadoff Double: Broiled hot dogs filled with two types of cheeses.

• Pitcher's Mound Dog: Hot dog served with everything.

CATCHER'S SPECIAL
(Yield: 8 servings)

8 hot dogs
8 hot dog buns, split and toasted
1 1/2 to 2 cups barbecue sauce
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
Combine barbecue sauce, sliced onion and hot dogs in large skillet. Cook gently over medium heat, covered, for 8 to 10 minutes, or until dogs are heated through and onion is transparent. Serve in toasted, buttered buns.

10TH INNING PIZZA PUPS
(Yield: 8 servings)

8 hot dogs, cut 1/4 through
8 hot dog buns, split

Catcher's special gives the hot dog a barbecue twist with sauce and thin slices of onion.

4 tablespoons melted margarine or butter

1 tablespoon chopped fresh oregano or 2 teaspoons dried oregano
1 small onion, chopped
1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese
8-10 pepperoni slices, cut into 1/4s
1/2 cup pizza sauce

Add oregano seasoning to melted margarine or butter to blend. Brush on top and bottom halves of split buns. Toast until golden.

In small bowl, mix together onion, cheese and pepperoni pieces. Toss well. Place hot dogs on broiler pan and fill with approximately 1 tablespoon pizza sauce. Top with pepperoni-cheese mixture.

Broil 10 inches from heat source until cheese melts and hot dogs are heated through. Serve in buttered, toasted buns.

Casserole is ripe for summer harvest

See related story about farm markets, Page 3B.

Looking for a recipe that uses all the summer harvest goodies that the entire family will love? This recipe heralds from Momma Janes' Classics and looks as colorful as it tastes. It's similar to Ratatouille.

teaspoon dried salt and pepper to taste

Lightly salt eggplant and place in a weighted colander to remove excess water. In a heavy skillet, add onions and garlic and saute over medium heat until golden. Stir in olives, peppers, zucchini and tomatoes. Stir in eggplant.

Sprinkle with basil and simmer, covered over a very low heat for 40 minutes. Uncover and raise temperature to a low, rolling boil. Simmer uncovered for 20 minutes to reduce and thicken slightly. Season with salt and pepper if desired.

At this point, momma always poured the mixture into a lightly greased casserole and topped it with some seasoned breadcrumbs or finely grated parmesan and popped it under the broiler until golden and bubbly.

SUMMER VEGETABLE CASSEROLE

2 1/2 cups diced eggplant
1/4 cup olive oil
1 large onion, sliced thin
2 cloves garlic, finely minced
1/2 cup pitted black or Nicoise olives (optional) 4 green or red peppers, cut julienne
2 medium zucchini, cut into 1/2-inch slices
4 medium tomatoes, skinned, seeded, and quartered
2 teaspoons chopped fresh basil, or 1

Follow up-to-date methods for safe canning, freezing

Whether it's fresh picked from the garden, or bought at a farm market, there's nothing tastier than locally grown fruits and vegetables. You can't stop the temperatures from falling, but you can save some of the harvest for later by canning or freezing.

Home food preservation is again gaining popularity with consumers concerned about sugar, salt and additives. Canning is not a time to express your creativity, however. Strict methods and procedures must be followed to ensure a safe product.

The first step is to buy a new canning book. Don't use a book that is older than five years. If you're using grandma's 100-year-old pickle recipes use the same ingredients, but update the preserving method and procedure.

FOODS FALL into two categories, high acid and low acid. High acid foods are generally all fruits plus tomatoes, sauerkraut, and pickled vegetables. Acid in these food products guard against growth of bacteria, and can be safely canned using the hot water bath method.

Use any kettle large enough so the jars are completely immersed and surrounded by water. The jars should be held off the bottom of the kettle to prevent breakage and so the heat can thoroughly penetrate the product.

Low acid foods are all vegetables, meats, poultry, seafoods, soups or combination foods. These must be processed in a pressure canner. Harmful elements of certain bacteria thrive in low acid and cannot be destroyed at boiling temperature of 212 F. Low acid foods must be superheated to 240 F. Botulism is the deadly food poisoning caused by the clostridium botulinum. If the spore of the botulism is not killed by a high temperature, the risk of fatal food poisoning is very great.

MANY PEOPLE who do not want to deal with the pressure canner opt to freeze their produce. Freezing is probably the simplest and least time consuming way to preserve foods.

Freezing retards growth of microorganisms, slows down enzyme activity, and oxidation. However, there are some other food spoilers to be aware of in freezing.

Formation of ice crystals can be prevented by drying food better before freezing, and freezing food quicker. Freezer burn is caused by improperly packed foods. Packaging is very important for good results.

Blanching vegetables before freezing stops the enzyme action, locks in color, flavor and nutrients. Blanching does not mean cooking, it means giving food a short heat treatment. It can be done in the microwave, just follow the directions in a microwave cookbook.

home economist, Cooperative Extension Service

FOR TOP of the stove blanching, have a large kettle of water boiling, add the prepared vegetables, count the exact time of starting when the product hits the boiling water. When the time is up, quickly submerge the product into cold water to stop the boiling action. The quicker this can be done, the better product you'll have later.

Blanching times vary, depending on the amount you want to freeze. Follow the directions in your favorite cookbook.

There are certain vegetables that are best completely cooked before freezing. These are beets, pumpkin, winter squash and sweet potatoes. Cook as you would to use; then cool, package, and freeze.

COOKED OR raw tomatoes can be frozen. Core tomatoes for freezing. Freeze raw tomatoes whole or cut in pieces. Pack into containers leaving one-inch head space. For cooked tomatoes, peel, cover, core and cook till tender. Place pan in cold water to cool. Pack into containers and allow one-inch head space, label, and freeze.

Fruits and flavoring products such as pepper, onions, horseradish, mint and other herbs do not need to be blanched before freezing. Cut into desired sizes, package air tight and freeze. Spread packages out in single layers to freeze quicker.

There is no need to can or freeze with salt or sugar except when making pickles or jams and jellies. The teaspoon of salt added to a jar of vegetables does not help preserve the product, it only adds to the flavor. Sugar can also be deleted from the canning of fruits.

CUT FRUIT into desired size, put in a kettle, add a little water and heat slightly before filling the jars. The heat activates the natural sugars in the fruit so the product ends up tasting very natural, and very sweet.

Ascorbic acid or lemon juice added to the product before canning or freezing will help keep the light color.

The keys to safe food preservation are to follow up-to-date canning and freezing procedures exactly. Don't waste your time, money and energy having to throw out food that has spoiled. Just think how good that food will taste when the snow is piled up to the windowsill.

For more information about canning and freezing, call 858-0904, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Freeze cabbage, cucumbers, onions

Make use of fresh cabbage for cole slaw for the freezer. Often home grown cabbage will swell and crack which does not make for good keeping qualities for winter storage. Freeze it.

FREEZER COLE SLAW

1 medium head cabbage
Shred and mix with 1 teaspoon salt. Let stand 1 hour. Add grated carrot and 1 green pepper, chopped.
Mix together
1 cup vinegar
1/4 cup water

2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon whole mustard seed
1 teaspoon whole celery seed

Combine and boil 1 minute. Cool to lukewarm and pour over slaw. Put in containers and freeze. Cole slaw with thaw in a short time when removed from freezer. It can be refrozen.

CUCUMBERS AND ONIONS FOR THE FREEZER

25 pickle cucumbers
10 onions
Syrup
3 pounds of sugar
3 cups of vinegar

Slice the pickle cucumbers and onions paper thin. Soak in ice water for 24 hours with a weak salt solution. This makes enough sliced pickles and cucumbers to fill a vegetable crisper in a refrigerator. Keep in refrigerator 24 hours, or in a cool place.

Heat the vinegar and add sugar, stir until sugar dissolves to make syrup. Drain pickles and onions, place in containers, and pour cool syrup over them. Seal. Freeze. These will be usable during the winter months.

Travel agents meet, track industry news

The Michigan chapter of the American Society of Travel Agencies (ASTA) met recently at the Botsford Inn, Farmington. All the local travel industry professionals were there as well as industry reps from airlines, cruise lines, convention bureaus.

Abraham Over of KLM's Southfield office (known to his friends as Bram) announced that KLM has applied for permission to fly from Detroit to the Netherlands, "hopefully by Jan. 1." Carolina Miranda of USAir's Southfield office had good news: you can change USAir's "non-refundable" tickets for a $75 penalty.

That's what industry associations are for, to spread the word. Here's a word you may not have heard: if you buy a cruise at a rate designed for Florida travelers only, you may be caught in the spot check made at the gangplank and forced to pay a higher rate.

The two main agenda items were the introduction of new officers and a seminar on cruises. The new president is A. Carlene Howe, general manager of Hudson's Travel Service in Southfield. Her officers are: first Vice President Gloria Schuler of Morely's Travel Service in Saginaw; second VP Dean Markwardt, president of Suburban Travel in Rochester Hills; Secretary Joan Brooks, district manager of Carlson Travel in Farmington Hills; Secretary Dena Moonen, vice president of Royal Oak Travel.

Here are some newsy tidbits from local cruise reps who were part of the ASTA seminar:

Lori Purcell of American-Hawaii Cruises: "Free upgrades if you book before Sept. 30. Our packages of three days at sea and four days on land are still the best way to see Hawaii. The Nov. 3 and Dec. 7 cruises commemorate the 50th anniversary of Pearl Harbor."

Randi S. Hoffmann of Premier Cruise Lines, which is associated with Walt Disney World (One of their three ships is the former Love Boat): "We've extended our special so you can get a free upgrade at Walt Disney World through Dec. 20 or a discount on a cabin."

Maureen Morrell of Norwegian Cruise Lines: "The Sunward Two has been sold. In October we launch the new Sunward, formerly the Royal Viking Sky."

Mary Bergsman of Royal Caribbean Cruise Lines and Admiral Cruises: "The Monarch of the Sea, sister ship of the Sovereign of the Seas, will be launched Nov. 17. Group space is already sold out."

Judy Petschler of Commodore and Crown Cruise Lines: "The Crown Jewel will be launched next fall. We carry 700 passengers, so you won't have to get in line at 9 p.m. for the midnight buffet." That little dig at the big ships got a cheerful razz from the other cruise reps.

Colleen Flynn of Carnival Cruise Lines: "Carnival Airlines will resume three times a week flights to Nassau Jan. 27, 1992, offering three-, four- and seven-day packages to the Crystal Palace."

Patty Crichton of Holland American and Windstar: "We expect Alaska to be even bigger next year than it was this year. Detroit is the number one source of passengers for Holland America."

Riding the rails through California wine country

Charlene Baloskey of Livonia sent this report about a recent trip on the Napa Valley Wine Train.

By Charlene Baloskey
special writer

"Welcome to Napa Valley" the sign reads "our wine is bottled poetry."

We are on Highway 29, on the way to another kind of poetry, the Napa Valley Wine Train, a luxury train that offers daily dining excursions through one of the world's premier wine-growing regions.

Lunch trains operate daily, dinner trains every day except Monday, on 36-hour round trips between Napa and St. Helena, Calif. The lunch train is the most popular because it allows passengers to see the valley in daylight.

The valley is particularly beautiful in the fall when grapevines are heavy with purple Cabernet or green Chardonnay grapes, and grape leaves are brilliant red and orange.

San Francisco millionaire Vincent DeDomenico, who gave America Rice-A-Roni, the San Francisco treat, bought rights to the Southern Pacific tracks in 1987 and had eight vintage railroad cars refurbished to sophisticated 1920s and '30s standards by local craftspeople and began service in September 1989.

Our Pullman car, vintage 1915, was a burgundy-and-champagne colored coach with mahogany paneling, crystal chandeliers and etched glass partitions. The train rolled slowly past wooden barns, Victorian houses and turn-of-the-century schoolhouses. Roses bloomed beside the tracks. Grapevines trailed gracefully over low trellises.

We passed 25 of the more than 200 wineries that are the heart of Napa Valley.

The wine train is not a guided tour, so no chipper, loud-speaker voice exhorted us to look at the Mondavi Winery on our left or the Christmas tree farm on our right. Nothing detracted from the feeling of serenity.

Shortly after boarding, I moved from the lounge car to the dining car for the first lunch seating. The wine train has two meal seatings on each trip; you can eat on the way to St. Helena or on the return trip.

The dining car was a scene from a romantic old movie. Lunch was served at linen-covered tables set with bone china, sterling silver and crystal stemware. The lunch train price of $55 includes salad, dessert and a choice of entrees: broiled salmon in wine sauce, filet mignon in Cabernet and Roquefort sauce, grilled chicken in Chardonnay and tarragon sauce.

Napa Valley wines star in all the dishes as well as on the considerable wine list. Near the end of lunch, executive cook Ken Schloss invited us to visit the onboard kitchen where he and a crew of six prepare meals. Creating culinary magic in a rolling kitchen requires some ingenuity, but Schloss has come up with workable solutions like using ordinary squeeze bottles to apply those extraordinary wine sauces.

After the main course, the friendly waitstaff moved us efficiently back to the lounge car for dessert and coffee (the Chocolate Decadence was sensational).

The five-course candlelight dinner, which costs $65, is even more elaborate than lunch. Dinner service includes hors d'oeuvres, a sorbet course, and an even wider choice of entrees. The dress on the dinner train is semiformal and the setting romantic as twilight settles over the Napa Valley.

On Saturdays and Sundays, the wine train also operates a champagne brunch train ($55) and a family car with special rates for children and an optional a la carte continental breakfast. Prices include the train, meal, taxes and service charges but not wine.

The train leaves Napa, about an hour's drive from San Francisco. A shuttle service also runs to Napa from San Francisco area hotels.

For more information call toll-free (800) 522-4142.

Food served aboard the Napa Valley Wine Train is prepared in the kitchen car.

Wine country perfect for picnics

By Charlene Baloskey
special writer

"When I heard you were from Michigan, I had to come over and introduce myself. I lived in Redford and West Bloomfield and attended the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit," Mary Danieluk said.

Mary is the wine buyer for the Oakville Grocery, a fine gourmet shop on Highway 29 in the Napa Valley of California. I met her while I was browsing the walnut-pistachio baklava and looking for a good place to have a picnic. The perfect picnic requires a great location and great food. The California wine country provides both.

More than 60 Napa Valley wineries have picnic sites, each with its own personality. I knew about the wooded grandeur of Rutherford Hills, the flowery elegance of Vichon and the one-stop convenience of V. Sattui with its on-site delicatessen. Was there another great winery picnic site nearby?

Mary Danieluk and her husband, Douglas, know a lot about wineries. They lived in the burgundy area of France for three years while Douglas studied winemaking, and they have been using their skills here in the Napa Valley. People stop to buy lunch ingredients at the Oakville Grocery, or order lunch boxes 24 hours in advance for about $12.

Mary sent me to a charming, secluded picnic site at Villa Mount Eden, a small, but prestigious winery off the beaten path (from Highway 29 drive east on Oakville Crossroad.)

Villa Mount Eden's narrow dirt driveway winds through fields of grapes, passes a farmhouse and a white clapboard winery, and ends in front of a small courtyard with trellised rose bushes, ivy-covered doorways and three picnic benches. The winery dogs, Daisy and Sheba, who had been sleeping in the sun, strolled over to greet us.

The beauty of this winery is its serenity. In an area dominated by large wineries and crowded parking lots, Villa Mount Eden stands out as a peaceful, friendly oasis — and as a perfect picnic site. "People like this place because there's no traffic," said Barbara Harriman, assistant hospitality manager.

Barbara said the picnic benches are available to customers who buy a bottle of wine.

For information on picnic sites, check area tour maps, or contact the Napa Valley Chamber of Commerce (707) 226-7455.

European air fares cut

It's getting to be a game, isn't it? Every year we hold our breath in anticipation, knowing that the airlines will offer dramatically low fares to Europe during the fall season. This year, with sales off because of the Persian Gulf War and the recession, it was inevitable.

There are only minor differences between British Airways, Northwest Airlines and Delta Airlines: buy your ticket before Sept. 18, fly after Oct. 8, don't expect a refund. The fare to such cities as London and Frankfurt is $446 round trip from Detroit, it goes down to $386 if you fly Dec. 25 through March 15, minor variations in between. Stay six days to six months.

British Airways also has a special fare if you buy by Sept. 11, fly from Oct. 15 through Dec. 1 and return by Jan. 4: $518 round trip.

HOROSCOPE

August 25 through August 31

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)

Extra burdens placed upon you this week may make it necessary for you to collect on favors owed you by others. Eat right and get plenty of sleep so you'll be at your best.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

An old love may contact you this week. There's a chance your current romantic interest could find out about the event, so watch what you say and be careful what you do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)

You've been making plans for the future, and now they will begin to pay off, both financially and personally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)

You've been blaming someone at work for something that's really your own fault. Take responsibility for problems you have created.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)

Religious beliefs and values come into play. Remember that all your actions, at home and at work, reflect on you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

You've been working hard to the point of overdoing it lately. Take a few nights off to enjoy yourself by seeing a movie or going out to dinner.

By C.C. Clark

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)

This is a particularly creative time for you, and your endeavors now will pay off handsomely later. Prospects for new employment look good.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

You won't get your way this week when you desperately want it, and the result could be an altercation with a loved one. Rethink your position.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Your negativity is misplaced this week. Others around you are putting forth their best effort, and you need to realize it and encourage them.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

For some born under this sign, the week could potentially abound with employment opportunities. Make the most of them by preparing carefully.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

Vacation plans will turn out spectacularly if made now. Two short trips could be as much fun as one long one. A major purchase could occur.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)

If things get tough at work, don't despair, and don't take your problems home with you. Think about all the good things.

NBC hopes to breathe new life into 'Real Life'

New season to feature harder-hitting stories

By Amy Schmidt

She may be America's TV-journalism sweetheart, but how have real ratings treated NBC's "Real Life With Jane Pauley?"

"Lousy," says Steve Friedman, producer of "NBC Nightly News" and now "Real Life With Jane Pauley." "That's why we're changing it. Most people who saw the show last year thought she was great and the show wasn't."

"Real Life" makes its season premiere on a new night, Friday, Sept. 6, and the new producer plans to do right by his star. There's no reason not to, given the fact that Pauley holds more audience appeal than just about any other female journalist on TV. "If you just do an acceptable program, she's enough to carry you over the top."

Part of the problem has been that "Real Life" lacks a format. People don't know what they're going to see when they tune in, says Friedman. This year's new model will feature additional journalists building an ensemble news group around Jane, a signature piece by Pauley at each show's end, and tougher issues.

"I think what they did last year was what I would call 'nice pieces,'" says Friedman. "What they tried to do is only deal with little problems affecting a lot of people. When they talked about real life, it was with real people not in real trouble. There was very little conflict and very little emotion," says Friedman.

Last season's profile of Pete Rose went so well, Friday's premiere episode will feature another celebrity—talk-show host, Oprah Winfrey, her life, her loves and her successes. The following week, how to spot steroid use by sons, brothers and boyfriends will be the topic, and "scud-stud" NBC correspondent Arthur Kent will be on hand putting out oil fires in Kuwait.

"Friday night is definitely going to be a more hospitable time period for us," says Pauley. The former "Today" host admits her husband, cartoonist Garry Trudeau, might be watering geraniums in the yard, she could be reading inside, and both would forget to watch her show on Sundays. "Sunday is just an odd time, not to mention highly competitive, so Friday will definitely be better for us. But the flip side of that is that the expectation will be higher, too."

As the new television season begins to fire up, "Real Life" will face opposition from ABC's "Family Matters," CBS' "Princesses," starring Twiggy Lawson, and "America's Most Wanted" on Fox.

"Real Life" will aim for an older "thirtysomething" audience, leaving "Family Matters" and "Princesses" to the kids. Pauley believes Friedman will also draw a bigger following with more promotional spots this season than last. "I call Steve the 'promotion meister.' He believes in banging the drum, so we'll probably get the drums banged a little better," says Pauley.

Friedman, however, is careful to point out that all news and information series take time to find an audience, and that no program including "60 Minutes," "20/20," and "PrimeTime Live," scored big its first year. "What we're going through, everybody else has already gone through," he says—but no matter what the ratings, don't look for Deborah Norville to sub-host anytime soon.

LET'S TALK

Mister Rogers puts on his top hat

By Suzanne Gill

In this week's series of five new episodes of Mister Rogers' Neighborhood, host Fred Rogers explores the magic of dressing up and playing make-believe. The fun begins when cast member Maggie Stewart dresses up as Mr. McFeely to invite Mister Rogers to the neighborhood costume party.

Rogers, who tells his young viewers "It's you I like ... Not the things that hide you," will make and wear masks, try on hats and crowns and swap clothes with his friends in his neighborhood and the Land of Make-Believe to help children have a clearer understanding of who's who and why.

"All children, when they're young, need help in learning what makes them who they are as individuals," says Rogers. "It's not easy for any of us to understand just what it is that makes us lovable. We may confuse who we are with what we have or what others see in us."

Columnists are your conduit to the stars

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I read your article every time I get the paper. Here is my question. If you wanted to write stars or wanted some information about one of the stars, and you had no idea how to get a hold of them, even though you knew three or more movies they were in, how would you get in touch with them? It is very important to a friend of mine to get in touch with Christian Slater. —A.C., Kellyville, Okla.

A: I guess if you wanted information on different stars, you could write to someone like me. You could also get some of the addresses of the various fan clubs from magazines focusing solely on celebrities. Those, however, are clubs frequently set up by other fans of the celebrity. After you send your letter, you get the standard pack of photos, stickers, etc. There are also official fan clubs. I would say your best bet is to keep writing to me or to others who do this kind of column. (I would prefer you write to me!) I can help you with Christian Slater. You can write him c/o CAA, 9830 Wilshire Boulevard, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212. The important thing to remember is entertainment columnists have very busy schedules and get a lot of mail.

Q: I would like to know how old Vicki Lawrence (Mama's Family) is, and what show did Willie Aames play on? Was it Eight Is Enough or Family? —Mrs. Mendell Coles, Auburn, Ky.

A: Vicki Lawrence was born on March 26, 1949, in Inglewood, Calif. Willie Aames played the part of Tommy Bradford on Eight Is Enough.

Q: Could you please tell me the name of the movie (it may have been a made-for-TV movie) starring Roy Thinnes, Joan Hackett and Arthur Hill. The movie is about Thinnes, a doctor, who is sued by Hill over a car accident where Thinnes' wife and child were either killed or injured. Thinnes seeks revenge by killing or attempting to kill Hackett, Hill's wife, in the movie. Eventually, Thinnes falls in love with Hackett and kills himself instead. —Tibor Bohn, Kew Gardens, N.Y.

A: The only movie I have with all three of them in it is called The Other Man, and it was a made-for-TV movie.

Christian Slater

It originally aired on NBC on Oct. 19, 1970. According to my reference material, it's the story of the neglected wife of a district attorney who drifts into an affair with the ex-con he helped put away. After her lover is found murdered, the wife can't help feeling her husband is the killer. Does this sound right to you? If you liked the story, it's from a novel by Margaret Lynn.

Q: I would like to know about Jeff Wincott of Night Heat. Could I have his address so I can write to him? I am also a big fan of Joe Penny of Jake and the Fatman. —Laytoya Powe, Meridian, Mo.

A: You can write Jeff Wincott c/o Shapiro and Associates, 15301 Ventura Boulevard, Suite 345, Sherman Oaks, Calif., 91403. And the address for Joe Penny is c/o Viacom Productions, 10 Universal City Plaza, Universal City, Calif., 91608.

Q: I have been watching Wimbledon. I am a fan of Boris Becker and Gabriela Sabatini. Would you please let me know where I may write to them? —Larry Wade III, Nacogdoches, Texas.

A: You can write Becker c/o TV Enterprises, 251 East 49th Street, New York, N.Y., 10017. You can write Sabatini c/o ProServe, 1101 Wilson Boulevard, Suite 1800, Arlington, Va., 22209.

Send your questions about the world of entertainment to Let's Talk, Features Dept., P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009. Because of the volume of mail, only questions of general interest can be answered.

Barker scores high for 'fur flap'

By Amy Schmidt

In a recent interview with Bob Barker for the Daytime Emmys (he served as host and also won his sixth Emmy), the conversation turned to his anti-fur campaign. Barker, remember, in 1987 created what came to be called the "fur flap" when he quit hosting pageants because the contestants wore furs.

"Hey, that has worked!" said Barker, obviously pleased to talk about it. Indeed, it has worked. Live Aid, Farm Aid and Nancy Reagan's "Just Say No" to drugs campaign have come and gone, but Barker's pet project (pardon the pun) has had lasting impact.

"There are people who say that it got more media attention than any single incident in the animal rights movement," said Barker. "From that day forward, we began to concentrate our efforts on educating the consumer. Once consumers know the animal torture involved, they're not interested in buying furs, and today the fur industry is on its last legs."

Cruelty to animals used in movie productions is Barker's latest concern. 1987's Project X and this year's Wild Hearts Can't Be Broken are among the films, he contends, in which animals suffered mistreatment. And please don't even mention The Adventures of Milo and Otis, a Japanese-made, dog-and-cat film released last summer.

Rockers pay tribute to John Lennon

By Dan Rice

Imagine there's no murder. Musical luminaries come together for A Tribute to John Lennon, premiering Sunday, Aug. 25, on The Disney Channel. Paying their respects to the great "peacenik" are Paul McCartney, Ringo Starr, Elton John, Michael Jackson and Billy Joel, with son Sean and the widow Lennon. Where's George?

Music resounds evermore. For a cool jazz blast from the past, join A&E on Tuesday, Aug. 27, for Jazz on a Summer's Day, filmed by Bert Stern at the 1958 Newport Jazz Festival. Not only will you groove to performances by Louis Armstrong, Thelonius Monk, Anita O'Day and Mahalia Jackson, you'll also get a look at the swingin' hepcats and be-boppers of the day bewildering the Newport socialites.

Leap back another generation with The Discovery Channel's The American Documents: The Age of Ballyhoo, also beginning Tuesday. Narrated by Gloria Swanson, this outline of American lifestyles in the Roaring '20s stretches from the old folks down on the farm to the flappers in the big-city speakeasies. Twenty-three skidoo.

Returning from simpler times to the perilous present, we journey into the Amazon rain forest in The Kayapo: Out of the Forest, airing Monday, Aug. 26, on The Discovery Channel. Kayapo follows one Indian community's sophisticated efforts to protest the proposed construction of a hydroelectric dam.

John Goodman discusses his role in Barton Fink on Tuesday's Entertainment Tonight.
