Big, little air wars began, ended in '91

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

It was a year of big changes worldwide, and Plymouth had its share.

During the Plymouth ice festival, on the evening of Jan. 15, the Gulf War heated up. The war sparked strong feelings among local residents, some of whom had relatives in the U.S. military in the Middle East.

The war ended more quickly than most expected and there were no local casualties, as the U.S. won in just weeks.

By then, another "air war" was making news. A joint effort by Plymouth and Plymouth Township to maintain Mettetal Airport by getting grants to buy and run it met stiff local opposition.

Residents opposed to the airport purchase said it could cost taxpayers in the long run. They formed a group called Plymouth Concerned Citizens.

Meanwhile, a smaller group of residents formed a pro-airport group, and the issue divided government trustees in Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton.

Plymouth Mayor Dennis Bila resigned in part because of the Mettetal issue. Anti-airport activists Bill McAninch and Dennis Shrewsbury were elected to the Plymouth city commission in November, as the public soundly rejected a ballot issue related to public maintenance of the Canton airport.

But a few months earlier, Plymouth and Canton townships had ended their differences and agreed to seek to run the airport together. That pretty much ended the airport controversy.

Also in local politics, long-time township supervisor Maurice Breen left to take a seat on the county commission, and state Rep. Gerald Law took Breen's supervisor seat.

An explosion Dec. 13 at Cygnet Automated Cleaning in Plymouth Township blew out walls of the firm in the Metro West Technology Park. While 11 employees were in the building in the morning blast, none were seriously injured. Still, four employees sought hospital treatment, and 40 employees of a nearby business sought treatment for throat or sinus irritation as a chemical released in the blast got into the building's ventilation system. Fire officials said serious injury was avoided because the roof collapsed onto stacked metal drums, allowing employees to escape. The cause of the blast is still under investigation.

sure they get a chance to buy new $200,000 homes in Canton.

Tent people

Campers wait for dibs on dream homes

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Sean Degen didn't expect people to be waiting to buy homes in Canton.

By Diane Gale
staff writer

The term tent people took on a new meaning last week in Canton's exclusive Fox Run subdivision, under construction on Beck between Warren and Ford roads.

Campers, mostly people staying in their cars, planned to spend the night outside the subdivision model home to get first dibs on just the right lots. House prices run from $192,000 to $220,000.

The subdivision, like others on Canton's west side, give other communities a run for their money. Real estate people say Canton offers more house. And when you go to west Canton tack on an upscale image.

"There's always been a stigma (about) living in Canton," said Fox Run sales manager Sean Degen.

"Actually we're getting people switching from Plymouth to Canton, because of the price and the amount of home you're getting."

Recession. You'd never suspect it last week as prospective home buyers were clamoring to walk through the Fox Run model.

When Degen showed up for work Thursday he found six cars parked outside the model waiting for Friday morning when sales would start on phase two of the project.

"I thought I told them the wrong day," Degen said. "I knocked on one of the windows (of a car) and said: 'We're opening tomorrow. And they said: 'I know.'"

Degen based the popularity of the houses on the floor plans, side entry garages and lots backing up to park lands and trees.

THE 64 lots in phase one went on the market in February and there are five lots unsold. The second phase of construction has 110 lots.

Sun can't melt ice show fun

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The trend toward more melt-proof events continues for this year's 10th Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular Jan. 15-20.

New director Mike Watts, who has put on the Downtown Hoedown and the Plymouth Music Festival, also plans to put a little more pizzazz into the annual event.

WATTS IS TRYING to round up sponsors for a "get-rid-of-the-winter-blues" dance complete with a live band tentatively planned for the Mayflower Meeting House.

Also, "I think our light show is going to be of great interest to everybody."

In contrast to last year's laser light show, which lasted 15 minutes each night, Watts plans to have changing colored lights shine on sculptures in the park at night to enhance their beauty.

"There are a lot of other things we want to do but the funding isn't there," Watt said.

That's one reason that this year, the ice festival is getting more corporate sponsorship — from Budweiser, First of America Bank, MCI and WCXI-AM, the official radio station of the ice spectacular.

Watts is still seeking sponsors, who can reach him at 459-3264.

"We're going to try and maybe add some additional entertaining type things to the spectacular, we're just going to try new concepts and update it a little bit, bring it into the '90s," he said.

"If the weather doesn't cooperate, there will still be things for people to come to town and see," Watts said, as several melt-proof events have been scheduled.

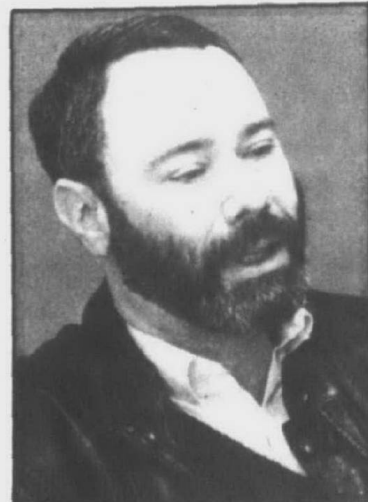

MORE ICE SCULPTURES are scheduled to be displayed in The Gathering, away from the sun, as is some carving, scheduled for the parking deck.

A gingerbread house display and cooking demonstration have also been scheduled.

The 1992 event will again include local and Japanese and Russian ice carvers, displays, prizes, banquets and family activities.

The festival attracts between 400,000 and 500,000 people annually and is considered a premier event by professional carvers.

Hospital helpers get Christmas off

Volunteers who regularly donate time to help patients at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia got a Christmas break last week, thanks to members of a Birmingham group, the Brotherhood of Temple Beth El.

Group members came to Livonia last Tuesday and Wednesday to take over duties the regular volunteers normally do so that the volunteers could have Christmas Eve and Christmas off.

Members of the Jewish group spent the two days taking ice and water to patients, running errands for staff members, helping make and deliver patient meals, and performing light clerical duties.

They also visited with patients, offering a caring ear, a friendly voice and a warm touch over the Christmas holidays.

"The idea began well over 20 years ago and it gives us great pleasure," said Eric Canvasser, co-chairman of the Brotherhood of Temple Beth El.

Canvasser and co-chairman Ray Abrams supervised the volunteers at the hospital both days.

Group members helped St. Mary regular volunteers enjoy the Christmas holidays home with their families, said St. Mary spokeswoman Melissa Rozek.

Members of the Brotherhood group were not the only Jewish persons lending a helping hand over the Christmas holidays. Other area Jewish groups also helped serve food at soup kitchens.

Stand by Mettetal Airport still in holding pattern

By Diane Gale
staff writer

The fate of Mettetal Airport is in a holding pattern as officials from the townships of Canton and Plymouth work out details of a federal grant that will cement a Joint Operating Agreement between the communities.

However, wording in the JOA agreement that gives Canton the option to end the JOA after 10 years from the start-up is a major stumbling block for the Federal Aviation Administration.

CANTON SUPERVISOR Tom Yack, Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerald Law and Canton Clerk Loren Bennett met with FAA officials recently to talk about progress on the grant that would pay for the airport.

"The FAA doesn't want to get in a situation where they're putting out money and people are walking away in a few years," Law said.

He added, "You can get a grant and you can walk away from it."

Law said that both sides are trying to hammer out wording of the agreement that was reached last August.

And that's not going to be easy, Yack said.

"From the very outset we felt that because the airport is in Canton" community officials should have a strong hand in the control

"When you get into federal grants," Yack said, "local control is sometimes lost. No one has a problem with the way the airport is today."

'An airport for 10 years is better than no airport at all.'

— Tom Yack
Canton supervisor

The FAA views the 10-year provision as too short, Yack said adding that the federal agency preferred 20 years and beyond. "An airport for 10 years is better than no airport at all," Yack said.

Other JOA provisions said:

- Canton could terminate the operation of the airport;
- Canton could cause the sale of the airport;
- Mettetal will be acquired jointly by the townships using 90 percent federal money and 10 percent state money.

- A board will be established that will have 50 percent of its members from Canton;
- The airport will be self-efficient. There will be no contributions by the township.

Residents' concerns about the airport expanding or accepting jets were also discussed at the meeting with the FAA. No one is going to make the runway longer or expand it, Law said adding that the appearance and some safety features would be improved.

"It's a win situation for the community," he said. "It's in the hands of the federal government."

Yack added: "They're coming from the position that we're from the government, trust us."

Schools test pupils for gifted program

The Plymouth Canton Community School District will screen students for admission to the Talented and Gifted Program in January.

Third grade students in the district will take the cognitive abilities test from Jan. 21 to Feb. 7. Parents will be notified of the test results in March. Parents of eligible third graders will be notified of further screening.

Parents of second graders and fourth through seventh graders who believe their children may be academically gifted may nominate them for screening. Nomination packets will be available in elementary and middle school offices from Jan. 6-17.

Nomination packets include a nomination form, a parent inventory, a teacher inventory and a list of learning characteristics of gifted students. Parents must return the nomination form and parent inventory to their child's school no later than Jan. 21. Parents are responsible for asking their child's teacher to complete the teacher inventory. Teachers must return the inventory by January 21.

The TAG program is located at five classrooms at Allen Elementary School and at four classrooms at East Middle School. Students in the program are transported from their schools to the TAG location.

For more information on the TAG program, please call the TAG office at 420-5357 between noon and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Big and little wars began, ended in '91

More worry was expressed by local officials and residents this year about the economic health of Plymouth. Reasons for gloom included the continued vacancy of the former Farmer Jack's on Main, the announced closing of Fred Hill's downtown store, and the moving of U.S. Post Office operations from the city to Plymouth Township, causing some to worry about whether some postal service would remain downtown.

On the good side, a new downtown festival, the Plymouth Music Celebration, had a successful first run in Kellogg Park. And while a building exploded earlier this month in a Plymouth Township industrial park, there were no serious injuries. The high school band took another national title.

What follows is a detailed look at 1991 in pictures. Everybody have a great 1992!

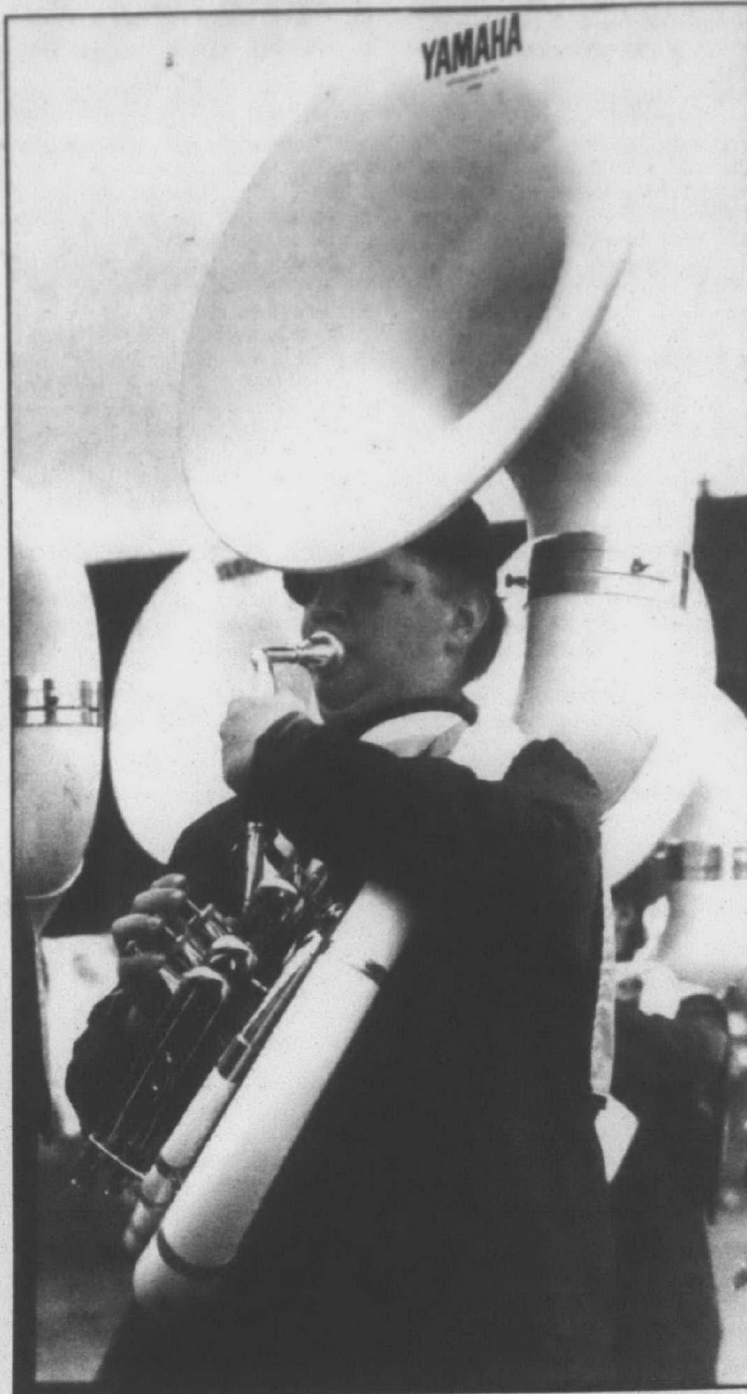

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

The big flap over Mettetal Airport settled down Aug. 28, when Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerald Law, center, and Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, far right, held a press conference to announce that their respective townships would seek to run the airport together. The announcement soothed strained relations between the two townships, as Canton had planned to file suit to stop the earlier Plymouth-Plymouth Township effort to operate the Canton airport. Also at the press conference were Plymouth Township trustees John Stewart and Abe Munfakh, and Canton Clerk Loren Bennett.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

An ice festival and outdoor light-laser show had just finished in Kellogg Park at 7 p.m. Wed., Jan. 17, when the war started in Iraq. Just off of the park, having dinner in the Box Bar, was Barbara Murphy. Her son Paul was serving in Saudi Arabia. "I've listened to everything I can; I still can't come up with a reason," she said, as others cheered on U.S. troops.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

The Plymouth Centennial Education Park Marching Band finished second at the state competition Oct. 26 at the school, and won first place in the national competition Nov. 15 in the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis for the second year in a row.

GUY WARREN/staff photographer

After just one year in the post, Plymouth city manager Gordon Jaeger, above, resigned May 1, saying the Mettetal Airport flap took attention away from more important things, including shared services talks with Plymouth Township. Like plenty of area teens, right, Danielle Tupta, Lisa Christensen and Aimee Pond trekked to downtown Plymouth during warm weather as the city was a mecca for teenage "cruisers." While most cruisers just checked out each other, some were ticketed or arrested for a range of offenses, from drinking and driving to trespassing.

Something for people of all ages is being offered this winter by the Family YMCA branch which serves Westland, Garden City and Canton Township.

A Christmas vacation day camp is being held now through Friday as well as a New Year's Eve overnight to allow parents to have their children in a fun environment for the night.

The overnight, which will start at 8 p.m., Tuesday, will include swimming, indoor games, snacks, TV and noisemakers at midnight. The event is geared for youngsters from 3½ to 12. The Y staff will serve an evening pizza with breakfast to consist of juice and doughnuts.

Children should be dropped off at the Y, 827 S. Wayne Road near Cherry Hill, at 8 p.m. and be picked up the next morning at 8. Youngsters should bring a sleeping bag, bathing suit and a towel.

Fee is $12 for Y members and $18 for non-members.

The Christmas vacation day camp will be held today (Monday), Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at the Y for $12.50 a day for Y members and $14.50 for program members.

THE DAY camp, designed for elementary school-aged youngsters, will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and include swimming, games, crafts, bowling, gymnastics, floor games, fitness exercises and outdoor activities. Children are asked to bring a bathing suit, towel and winter outdoor clothing and a lunch. The Y will also provide child care services from 7-9 a.m. and 4-6:30 p.m. at no extra charge.

The new winter schedule, described in a 12-page publication available at the Y, also includes a mid-winter day camp the week of Feb. 24-28 when the Wayne-Westland school district classes are closed.

The Y is hoping residents will make a "healthier new you" a 1992 New Year's resolution and enroll in Y physical fitness programs.

The Y will sponsor an open house for prospective new members from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 11. There will be free open swimming for the public from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2-4 p.m.

The Y has issued a public invitation for prospective members the week of Jan. 4-11 to visit the complex of buildings and services.

A MAJOR program planned for preschoolers are weekly mini-sessions, to run between Jan. 13 and Feb. 25. There will be themes for each session, ranging from Frosty the Snowman to a Valentine party. The program is held from 12:30-2 p.m. in the YMCA PAL room or 6:45-8:15 p.m. in the YMCA Yellow House.

Fee is $4 per class for Y members and $6 per class for program members.

The Y offers swim lessons for all ages, starting at 6 months of age.

Classes are offered for different ability levels. Fees range from $16 to $20 for Y members and $32 to $38 for program members.

Interested persons may contact Charles Killingbeck at 595-1077. Fee is $325 per team.

Karate lessons will be held the first of each month. There will be classes for children between 4-7; youths between 8-14 and those 15 and older. All classes are Tuesdays and Thursday evenings. Fee is $25 a month for Y members and $35 a month for program members.

IN THE Y's fitness program, there will be classes in aerobics; water exercise, body toning and calanetics exercise.

The weight room is open free to members and $5 a day for program members. The room, which opened just over a year ago, includes weight machines, computerized bikes and a flex stepper machine.

The Play and Learn (PAL) program will be held for those between 2½ to 6 during weekday mornings.

Day care services are provided from 7 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. weekdays for $14 a day or $65 a week for full Y members. Tuition is due one week in advance. The program's winter care will start Jan. 13 and continue through Feb. 29.

Competitions include one for individual professional carvers, another for individual student carvers, and a third for a Carver's Classic national team title.

Also scheduled for this year's ice

Campers stake out new homes

"They're very popular and excitement was created in phase one," Dean said.

Inside the model, sitting at the kitchen table, Pamela Dean played cards with her daughter and children of friends. They planned to spend the night.

"We want the house very badly and we want to get the right lot," Dean said.

Four families were there together. Two families want to be near the court and the other two families want to be near one another.

Dean and her friends weren't alone.

Before the houses even went on sale, Degen said, he had a waiting list of about 60 families.

In 1898, the New York World hailed The Salvation Army kettles as "the newest and most novel device for collecting money." Now, 100 years after the first kettle was set out, instead of just providing Christmas dinner, the money raised is also used to provide grocery checks so families can buy and prepare their own dinners at home. And this is important when times are as tough as they are, because you never know who will need that extra bit of help...it could be your neighbor, a friend, a relative, or it could be you. Help The Salvation Army, join us in standing together to help meet the needs of those going through difficult times. Contact your local Salvation Army or stop by a kettle for more information.

IMAGINE DYING FROM A DISEASE YOU NEVER KNEW YOU HAD.

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it.

Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

FIGHT SOME OF THE WORST DISEASES OF OUR TIME. Support the American Diabetes Association.

Discover new worlds with the new year

The old world is behind us. The new world is ahead of us. No use looking back because the world will never be the same again. Might as well go forward and discover new worlds. That's what Christopher Columbus did 500 years ago in 1492. He didn't know where he was going either.

I've been thinking about beginnings and endings lately, and I keep running into that word: "discovery." We're at the end of the worst travel year in recent history, thanks to the economy and the Persian Gulf War, and we've discovered a lot of things about ourselves.

Columbo '92 concentrates on Columbus' birthplace city of Genoa, Italy, May 15 to Aug. 15. Expo '92 April 20 to Oct. 12 in Seville is called The Age of Discovery. The Summer Olympics July 25 to Aug. 9 in Barcelona are dedicated to Columbus.

Three tall-ship replicas of the Pinta, Santa Maria and Nina are on the high seas and begin a tour of coastal United States from Miami Feb. 7. Columbus never set foot on the mainland of North America, he didn't even know it was here, but we'll celebrate him all over the country anyway.

But as every traveler knows, it takes more than miles to make a discovery. You can do it within a few hours of home when you discover something previously unknown on a country road.

Place to be is 'SoBe'

Trendy art deco area attracts visitors from around the world

By Martha Spence
special writer

Sandy beach, a sparkling ocean and people chatting in French, German, Spanish and English. Where are you? Europe, maybe? No. Try Miami's trendy South Beach area nicknamed "SoBe."

It's like New York's Greenwich Village, attracting visitors and artisans from around the world.

Since 1985 the square-mile historic district has had a $150 face lift that makes it the most spectacular art deco district in the country. Ocean Drive and its surrounding area are lined with pastel shaded hotels, dating back to the 1920s. The major restoration has lured film producers (the backdrop for many scenes from the Miami Vice series) and European fashion photographers.

In 1980, 52 percent of Miami Beach's population was over 65, but it's only 30 percent today. Girls in hot pink spandex shorts speed by on roller blades. Young couples cruise the strip on bikes. Jamaicans with tightly braided dreadlocks pass by an elder orthodox Jewish man with his long beard and traditional black garb.

ART DECO buildings depict classic styles from early 1900s Mediterranean to 1930s Streamlined Moderne: curved corners, round "portable" windows, pipe railings, horizontal racing stripes and key-stones dyed in green or pink.

The lobby of the Essex House hotel off 10th Street and Collins features a baby grand piano amid tall potted palms. Geometric multi-colored mirrors share walls with a mural of Indians canoeing in the Everglades.

The Essex has terrazzo floors, wrought iron handrails, flamingos etched into glass windows, lacquered ceiling fans and porthole windows that create a cruise ship atmosphere. Rooms start at $65. Call toll-free (800) 553-7739.

The Park Central Hotel, in the hub of Ocean Drive activity, has rooms with mahogany ceiling fans, palm printed carpets, period furniture and authentic black and white photographs from the '30s. Summer rates start at $60, winter rates at $95. Call (305) 538-1611.

The Cavalier, which epitomizes the classic styles of the era, has wicker chairs potted palms, mirrors, tile, brass and an elevator with a porthole window. Upstairs, stucco walls in a rainbow of colors brighten rooms that have walnut bed headboards, russet carpets and art deco paintings. Winter rates range from $45 to $87, summer, $32 to $75, including breakfast. Call toll-free (800) 338-9076.

THE MAIN attraction of South Beach is surf and sand. Miami Beach marina has boats for charter, for fishing and sailing enthusiasts. Check out the museums and art galleries, especially Bass Museum, and two tours: the Art Deco District walking tour offered each Saturday morning by the Miami Design Preservation League and the Old Town Trolley Tour that runs daily stopping at several Miami Beach landmark attractions.

The News Cafe is the most popular place to see and be seen. They claim the freshest salads in town. Lulu's on Washington Avenue specializes in chicken-fried steak, fried catfish and "real" mashed potatoes, lumps and all. Looking for fine Italian pastas? Head for Mezzanotte on Washington Avenue, where the Italian music has inspired couples to dance in the aisles. For seafood lovers, Joe's Stone Crabs is unbeatable.

Tropics International is noted for its cool jazz, reggae and funky blues. Right next door at the Breakwater Hotel you can sip a cocktail at the pink and blue neon-lighted bar. Le Loft has one of the most upscale, lavish interiors and music selection to match its clientele.

There is the Friday night concert series at the South Pointe Park Amphitheater. Bring a picnic and blanket and enjoy an evening under the stars to the sounds of jazz, rock or classical rhythms. Also, the Jackie Gleason Theater of the Performing Arts features the best of Broadway, renowned orchestras and dance companies.

Whether your pleasure is simply shopping, people watching or being a beach bum, there are endless ways to spend hours in the "City by the Sea."

It's a big Thing

Redford man pays $22,000 for Addams Family box

AP — A Redford businessman paid $22,000 Monday for "Thing's Box" from "The Addams Family" television show, outbidding a California collector whose bid was made by a paddle-wielding Thing.

The wooden-hinged box was among a small collection of entertainment pieces auctioned at Christie's, which estimated it would sell for $3,000 to $4,000.

The box was sold to Anthony Magnoli, 25, via a telephone bid, said Christie's spokesman Todd Merrill.

Magnoli confessed in a telephone interview he wasn't an ardent fan of the television show: "I wasn't even born when it was on but I caught it in reruns." And he hasn't seen the new movie: "I could care less to be honest with you."

So why shell out $22,000? "Because I'm an investor and I've got a real good feel for these things," said Magnoli, a single, self-employed businessman who runs the Thunderbird RV center and dabbles in stock trading.

"JUST LIKE Star Trek, there's going to be a second, and third and fourth Addams Family movie, and then it'll go to videotape and have international rights. It's going to be a big deal and I see it as a good, long-term investment."

It was his first television memorabilia investment. Magnoli said he usually invests in baseball cards and comic books.

Now that he's got the box, which was sold by the wife of the late Jackie Coogan (TV's Uncle Fester), will he proudly display it at work or home? Nope.

"I PLAN to just put it in the closet with my other memorabilia and let it appreciate."

Other items auctioned included Orson Welles' working script from "Citizen Kane," which sold for $11,000, and an original Charles Addams cartoon, bought for $3,740.

An afternoon session of antique toys from the bankrupt toy purveyor Mint & Boxed, also yielded a world's record for a toy.

An anonymous telephone bidder bought an 1870 "Charles Hose Reel" tin fire truck for $231,000, more than double the previous record of $104,500.

But it was "Thing's Box," one of six originals from the 1964-1966 television show "The Addams Family" that captured the most attention, especially when James Comisar made his bid using Thing's hand.

Comisar, of Beverly Hills, Cal., who owns an extensive television and movie memorabilia collection, recently bought one of the body-less hands used in the new, top-grossing movie "The Addams Family."

"He put the paddle in Thing's hand and bid with the hand," Merrill said.

"It's going to be a big deal, and I see it as a good, long-term investment."

UM-D prof aims to speed mail delivery

AP — A University of Michigan-Dearborn professor hopes his computer program will help the U.S. Postal Service decipher handwritten addresses that can be hieroglyphic to a computer.

Researcher Malayappan Shridhar has received a $234,000 postal service grant to develop a program to help computers scan and unravel scribbled addresses, the greatest hindrance to automatic mail sorting.

Nearly one in six pieces of the nation's mail has a handwritten address and must be sorted by hand. The Postal Service said those estimated 1 billion letters and packages slow delivery and make it more expensive.

To streamline the process, Shridhar and his fellow researchers are analyzing more than 20,000 handwritten labels in a campus laboratory.

Mail that carries typewritten or computer-generated addresses gets sorted about 10 times faster than do pieces with handwritten destinations, Postal Service spokeswoman Susan Moore said.

The Postal Service hopes Shridhar's program will be used nationally in 1997 or 1998 to identify at least 60 percent of handwritten addresses.

Meanwhile, Shridhar admits he's stumped by some scribbles.

"WE CALL it doctor's writing," said Shridhar. "Only a pharmacist can understand it."

The professor of electrical and computer engineering is working on software that will detect the difference between printed and handwritten numerals and letters.

When the computer confirms an address, it will affix a bar code on the mail to prepare it for automatic sorting.

So far, it's a picky program. One letter Shridhar recently analyzed spelled the town of Bradford, Mass. with a capital B in an ornate style that pleased the eye but peeved the computer.

Another letter carried a ZIP code in which the numerals 2 and 0 were touching. Shridhar's computer read them as a single character and rejected the hybrid.

"There (are) bells and whistles all over the place," he said.

Westland man selected as the 'Bowler of Year'

Paul Grauzer of Westland won the title of Bowler of the Year in the Stroh's Beer Michigan Majors Bowling Association.

In just his second season of competition, Grauzer tallied 127 points to take the honors. Points are awarded on the basis of tournament finishes, top three money and average leaders and 300, 299 and 298 games.

Grauzer was the only member to win two titles in 1991. He also piled up points by making it to the finals on six occasions.

Grauzer set a record with $5,590 in earnings. He rolled one 300 game and averaged 224 over the course of 156 games.

If you remember when all bowlers were asked to participate in the Bowling Charities Tournament, everyone made a generous contribution.

Winning the tournament was secondary to the fact that bowlers were helping several local charities.

I have a copy of the letter sent to Al Winkel, proprietor of Woodland Lanes in Livonia, thanking him for the donation to the Parents of the Visually Impaired.

The money raised has helped this group to buy special technological equipment for the V.I. Program of the Livonia Public Schools.

Talking computers with braille printers and talking calculators are among those items that have been incorporated into the resource room programs.

A special thanks to Wanda Simons of Livonia for letting me know and she also wants to thank Gloria Mertz of the Greenfield Mixed League won two patches at the same time with an all-spare game of 189, coupled with another pair of 189's earned her a triplicate patch as well. Congratulations!

Tracy Lectka as the new girls softball coach. Lectka, who pitched Livonia Franklin to the 1986 Class A state title, is the perfect replacement for her father, Ron, who died last month of cancer.

Also, scheduling Friday afternoon home football games are a great idea for those of us who hate working late Friday nights.

Tom Teeters, volleyball coach at Livonia Ladywood and Schoolcraft College: I know you're not a fan of red meat, but those new burgers at McDonald's are 91 1/2 percent fat-free. After a big win on the road, why not let your girls (who aren't all vegetarians) purchase one?

Observerland athletic directors: Spring season is less than three months away. Remember to send in those schedules early - we need them for "The Week Ahead."

Farmington Hills Mercy volleyball coach Ann Kolnytis: If you get mad at one reporter this year, coach, don't take it out on the rest of the media.

As for myself, I'm still mulling, but I will promise to be less critical - after today.

Ted Nugent no 'Weekend Warrior'

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

Ted Nugent has registered more than 600 bow kills during his hunting career including 18 white-tailed deer and 17 squirrels this fall alone.

"I was slapping a guitar around when I was just a little kid," he said. "I started taking lessons when I was like seven or eight, and that's just the time in life when you can grasp anything, anyway. Hunting and guitar playing went hand-in-hand and still do to this very day."

Unlike the rock stars who have fallen to the lure of alcohol and drugs, Nugent has successfully avoided both. And he credits his love for hunting with his ability to stay straight.

"The reason Ted Nugent is in line and the reason Ted Nugent takes care of himself and keeps his brain intact is because I'm a hunter," he said.

EIGHTEEN DEER in one season sounds like an awful lot. So what could be possibly do with so much venison?

"The first thing I do is take the back straps. We eat all the back straps," Nugent said. "I'm donating upwards of a half dozen deer to the Hunters for the Hungry campaign. I make about 100 sticks of venison salami each year and give them away as Christmas presents. The rest of the meat we consume. See, we don't buy any domestic meat at the Nugent house. We only eat what I kill so we use all of it."

The fact that Nugent's so proficient shouldn't send anyone into a State of Shock. After all, he hunts, "150 days a year, minimum," and he practices by shooting, "about 100 arrows a day."

NUGENT'S ROCK-N-ROLL success has spanned more than two decades. But the Stranglehold rock-n-roll had on him in the early years of his career has lessened recently so the self-proclaimed "Whackmaster" can spend time promoting and protecting the sport of hunting.

In 1988 he started the Ted Nugent World Bowhunters Club in an effort to shed some positive light on bow hunting.

"Every time hunting was talked about, every time conservation was talked about the real hunting conservationists in this country got the short end of the stick. Nobody was representing us... It was simple. I wanted some fair play. They give celebrities an open-door policy and whether I like it or not, I'm a celebrity, so here I come."

Nugent's latest project is his first book, Bloodtrails: The Truth About Bowhunting. The book details 120 bow kills and is available by mail-order through the Ted Nugent World Bowhunters headquarters in Jackson, Mich.

HUNTING IS A sacred activity to Nugent.

"I don't know exactly what it is, but there's a force deep in my soul that drives me to go. Like the geese go south and like the deer prepare for the winter, I feel that same drive because my senses are finely tuned. Being a participant in God's scheme of man and nature, that's what a hunter is."

Nugent's love for the outdoors was apparent in his early music, indicated by such classics as Migration (1969), Great White Buffalo ('72), and Tooth, Fang and Claw ('73). That outdoor accent continued throughout his career right up to the release of Fred Bear ('89), a song Nugent wrote after the death of Fred Bear, his close friend and hunting idol.

"Fred Bear is the best thing I've ever written in my life. I think, maybe the finest song ever written, period," Nugent said. "I can hardly get through it when I play it."

It's a known fact that "The Nugent" is motivated by hard driving rock 'n' roll. But it's also safe to assume that he's equally driven by another powerful force — the always-present Call of the Wild.

Spacek is great as Loretta Lynn

The rise from poverty and obscurity to wealth and fame is a traditional American success story. Director Michael Apted's 1980 film "Coalminer's Daughter" retells that tale following the life of country singer Loretta Lynn.

In a wonderful performance, Sissy Spacek plays Lynn who is first seen as a 13-year-old living with her large family in rural Kentucky during the 1940s. Before long she is being courted by returning serviceman and all-around carouser Doolittle Lynn, played by Tommy Lee Jones.

Both the Lynns are shown as strong and feisty but not without flaws. Whatever problems they have had in their relationship over the years, the two are shown as still very connected to each other. The film shows the shifts they've undergone with the balance of power moving from one to another over the years.

The strongest and most evocative scenes in the film are the early days in Butcher Hollow, Ky., showing the endless cycle of poverty in the Appalachias. A local moonshiner sums it up for Doolittle, telling him there are three choices: "Coalmine, moonshine or move on down the line."

LORETTA'S FATHER, played with dignity and strength by Levon Helm, is a coalminer worn down by hard work, low wages that end up being spent at the company store and coal dust. He is a devoted family man, heartbroken that his favorite child is losing childhood years to marry at 13 and cutting off her potential to do more with her life.

Helm's character really personifies the tragic dilemma of impoverished rural areas. If he chooses to stay on land he loves and where his family has lived for generations, he is in effect choosing a lifetime of constant struggle.

It's totally in character when he reluctantly consents to Loretta's marriage but makes Doolittle promise never to hit her or take her far away from the family. As it turns out, Doolittle breaks both promises among others.

Doolittle, with his eye on the world outside Butcher's Holler, is an interloper into Loretta's family. The family spends an evening together in their lantern-lit home, listening to a battery-operated radio. At the family's encouragement, Loretta's taciturn mother entertains them with a squaw dance. The merriment ends abruptly when Doolittle, who has quietly let himself in, is noticed.

After some early marital difficulties, Loretta and Doolittle end up living in rural Washington with their four children. She gets a guitar for an anniversary present because her husband likes the way she sings to the children.

INITIALLY, IT'S Doolittle's drive that gets her singing career going, getting a record pressed, taking the promotional photograph and staying up all night to put together publicity packages. You can see the moment ambition kicks in for Loretta during an angry and heartbroken scene during a return to Kentucky for her father's funeral.

All of the characters and performances are genuine, including Beverly D'Angelo as country singing star and Loretta's close friend Patsy Cline. Spacek and D'Angelo do fine jobs handling their own singing.

Probably my only complaint about the film is the quick and unexplained resolution of Loretta's abuse of some type of medication. She forgets the words to her songs, shares a rambling monologue with a speechless audience and collapses. After a little time back on the farm, she's as good as new. That may be quibbling. Overall, "Coalminer's Daughter" is an honest and enjoyable story about real people.

Alexia Keogh starred in director Jane Campion's "An Angel at My Table," a look at the life of Janet Frame, who survived terminal shyness and years in a mental hospital to win much-deserved recognition by the literary world.

Strong movies filled screens in '91

Only a small handful of films this past year have resulted in box-office smashes. But so many memorable mainstream and independent films have flickered across Detroit-area screens that the annual list of 10 favorites has grown to 15 — when you count memorable re-releases.

In no particular order, there's: "An Angel at My Table" — In the year's most moving portrait, New Zealand filmmaker Jane Campion focuses on the life of Janet Frame, whose terminal shyness made her an outcast. The film traces her working class origins and years in a mental hospital to her much-deserved recognition by the literary world.

"Terminator 2: Judgment Day" — Who cares how much it cost? For inspired action sequences, the sequel to the 1984 action classic really delivers, with Schwarzenegger reprogrammed to protect a boy from a new terminator who can take any shape it wants.

"The Commitments" — Alan Parker directed this wildly entertaining tribute to soul music as performed by a scrappy Irish band. Few of the actors here are professional, but their honesty and humor is refreshingly real.

"Beauty and the Beast" — Disney has entered a new era of quality animation, retelling the classic fairy tale with hummable songs by Alan Menken and Howard Ashman. Just try to keep a dry eye at the end.

"Boyz n the Hood" — This low-budget film about life on the mean streets of south central Los Angeles is still holding at area theaters. Writer/director John Singleton offers the screen's most honest depiction ever of black urban America. "Paris Is Burning" — Jennie Livingston's eye-opening documentary takes us behind closed doors at New York City drag balls, where black and Hispanic gays dress up like women and straight professionals in cut-throat "voguing" competitions. "Impromptu" — Judy Davis plays George Sand, the cross-dressing French novelist whose relationship with the frail Frederic Chopin effectively turns the tables on traditional courting rituals. Directed with wit and a touch of "Amadeus"-style irreverence by Broadway director James Lapine.

"Silence of the Lambs" — Jodie

Foster is an FBI trainee out to capture a serial killer in this nail-biter from director Jonathan Demme. Admittedly trashy material is handled with style and great performances, especially Anthony Hopkins as "Hannibal the Cannibal" Lecter.

"Barton Fink" — The writer-director team of Joel and Ethan Coen are still confusing lots of folks with their surreal story of a naive playwright (John Turturro) tackling his first assignment in Hollywood. Quit trying to figure out why it took so many top awards at Cannes. Take the film at face value, both as a spoof of Hollywood or as a David Lynch-style nightmare, and you'll have a great time.

"The Vanishing" — This obscure Dutch thriller took three years to finally get released in the States. It was worth the wait. A young man obsesses for years about his girlfriend's mysterious disappearance, only to get a chance to relive what happened to her. The film slowly winds its way toward a truly cryptic conclusion.

Old movies returned with unparalleled fanfare this year, primarily due to the efforts of the Fox Theatre, Detroit Film Theatre and Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Kubrick's "Spartacus" (1960), Welles' "Citizen Kane" (1941), Griffith's "Intolerance" (1916), Vigo's "L'Atalante" (1934), Godard's "Breathless" (1960), along with the DFT's tribute to late director John Cassavettes, were all epic revivals.

"Thoroughly Modern Millie" (USA — 1967), 1 p.m. Dec. 31. In this slapstick musical set in the 1920s, Julie Andrews plays a young woman who moves to the big city, falls in love with her boss, and uncovers a slave ring working out of a Chinese laundry.

MAGIC BAG THEATRE CAFE, 22918 Woodward Ave., Ferndale. Call 544-3030 for information. ($3; $2 students and senior citizens)

"The Commitments" (Ireland — 1991), 7 and 9:30 p.m. Dec. 30. Alan Parker's highly entertaining look at a group of young musicians who form Ireland's first blue-eyed soul band. Full of superb covers of classics from Aretha Franklin, Otis Redding and James Brown.

MAPLE THEATRE, 4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. Call 855-9090 for show times. ($6; $3.50 twilight)

"Madame Bovary" (France — 1991). French "New Wave" director Claude Chabrol tackles Gustave Flaubert's novel about Emma Bovary, whose longing for romance results in several lustful flings and luxury spending trips on borrowed money.

MICHIGAN THEATRE, 603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call 668-8397 for information. ($5; $4.25 students and senior citizens)

"Prospero's Books" (Britain/France — 1991), through Dec. 31 (call for show times). Peter Greenaway's revisionist retelling of Shakespeare's "The Tempest," with John Gielgud mouthing most of the parts. Like most of the director's works, it's an exercise in overkill, here with countless naked bodies bathed in unnatural light. The title texts, which pop up in windows over the other imagery, are truly inspired, but the film can't help but grow dull after while.

"Madame Bovary" (France — 1991), through Dec. 31 (call for show times). French "New Wave" director Claude Chabrol tackles Gustave Flaubert's novel about Emma Bovary, whose longing for romance results in several lustful flings and luxury spending trips on borrowed money.

District's 'A' students can get free SC tuition

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Garden City High Schools seniors who graduate with a straight-A average can attend Schoolcraft College for free under a new school district program.

Project Renaissance provides special privileges for Garden City high schoolers who earn high grades. The project began this fall.

Its biggest benefit — a full tuition Schoolcraft College Renaissance Scholarship — awaits any student who maintains a perfect 4.0 average from grades 9-12.

But there are benefits for other high achievers, too.

Students who maintain a 3.5 average or better through their high school career will receive a $1,000 Schoolcraft scholarship.

"THIS IS really a big incentive for our students to look locally when they consider a college," Garden City Superintendent Michael Wilnot said. "We have a good relationship with Schoolcraft exemplified by the fact they maintain a campus in our district."

Garden City students need not attend Schoolcraft College-Radcliff to be eligible for the scholarships. They are also good at Schoolcraft's main Livonia campus as well as satellite campuses in the Clarenceville, Livonia and Plymouth-Canton school districts.

Those districts don't yet have a similar agreement with Schoolcraft, but they soon might.

"We're not recruiting anyone, but if a district expresses interest I'm sure we'd work with them," college spokeswoman Sandra Florek said.

Even with the scholarship offer, it's uncertain whether Garden City's honor graduates will choose Schoolcraft over a four-year college or university. Wilnot, however, said district figures show a large number of district graduates will attend Schoolcraft at some point after high school.

Project Renaissance is a nationwide motivational program for high school students. The Garden City program was adopted through the efforts of high school principal Geraldine Kiessel, Schoolcraft president Richard McDowell and a variety of local business leaders.

Benefits are awarded after each marking period. Students receive specially colored "Privilege Cards" based upon their grades.

card good for a variety of benefits ranging from preferred parking to discounts at area clothing stores, hair salons and fast food restaurants. They also earn special discounts at Fairlane Town Center, Dearborn.

Students maintaining a B-plus average receive a blue card good for slightly lesser discounts from the same merchants. The same is true for B and C students, who receive orange and white cards.

Students with perfect attendance records are eligible for a $100 U.S. Savings bond.

"We want to show our students there are benefits in working hard," Wilnot said.

Ice show time

The Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular, Jan. 15-20 in Kellogg Park, is an annual January highlight in southeastern Michigan. The 10th annual show features more than 400,000 pounds of block ice, carved into intricate designs such as the pictured pagoda. A light show 6-9 p.m. each night will bathe the sculptures in colored lights. A gingerbread house and free long distance phone booth are among the other highlights.

DNR seeks info in swan's death

A $2,000 reward is being offered to anyone providing information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who killed a male trumpeter swan, an endangered species, the last week of November.

The bird was found dead near the Flat River State Game Area in Montcalm County, near Greenville, said Roland Harmes, director of the Michigan State Department of Natural Resources.

The fine for killing a trumpeter swan is punishable up to $1,000, 90 days in jail and $1,500 restitution per bird.

The reward money is being offered by the DNR's Report-All-Poaching program, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs and the Michigan Audubon Society.

Anyone with information should call the RAP hotline at 1-800-292-7800. People reporting information may remain anonymous.

The swan that was killed is one of 38 two-year-old trumpeters released this spring by the DNR's Natural Heritage Program as part of a five-year effort to restore the species in this state. The released trumpeters, originating from eggs collected in Alaska and donated by zoos, were hatched at the Michigan State University Kellogg Bird Sanctuary near Battle Creek.

Trumpeters released in Michigan are marked with numbered, green wing tags or yellow neck collars.

Trumpeter swans are the largest waterfowl species in the world. They were eliminated from Michigan and other Midwestern nesting areas by the late 1880s primarily because of hunting.

The trumpeter swan restoration effort is funded by citizen contributions to the Nongame Wildlife Fund "next to the loon" on the Michigan tax form.

lic service."

The university presentation honored Purcell's activity on behalf of health care, basic scientific research, transportation and the environment.

In addition to the recent honors from U-M, Purcell has received honorary degrees from Madonna University, Clearly College, Adrian College and Eastern Michigan University. He holds both master's and bachelor's degrees in education from Eastern Michigan.

SUPRASPINATUS TENDINITIS

Shoulder "bursitis" is rare; most sudden shoulder pain results from tendinitis of the supraspinatus muscle. It begins in the upper side of your shoulder blade bone (the scapula) and anchors into the top outer part of the shoulder bone (the humerus).

Supraspinatus tendon pain often comes on suddenly and can be intense. Abduction, the movement you make when you put on a coat or reach in a cupboard, is the motion at fault. Over time you will ache over all the shoulder area, as other muscles try to spell off the painful supraspinatus and only succeed in straining themselves. Later yet, as tension continues on the supraspinatus, you will develop pain at night. The cause of shoulder tendinitis is past injury. You noted no problem immediately because there was sufficient uninvolved tendon remaining to compensate. Eventually a trivial action will bring out the impairment as other tendon fibers are strained beyond their capacity.

Treatment consists of injection at the site where the tendon is injured, anti-inflammatory medication to decrease irritation at the location of the tear, or physical therapy so that heat and massage can initiate healing.

In time, treatment brings resolution. No matter how great the discomfort at the moment, you can look forward to return of painfree motion in the future.

Cooking no labor for chef

I'll be honest. I have to give credit where credit is due. As a chef, food writer, cook and patriarch of the Janes Gang, I only wish I had the time to play in the kitchen all day. When I meet readers at groceries and restaurants over town, the most asked question is always, "Where do you get your ideas and recipes?"

I'll answer this with a four-part response. First, I love to cook. Cooking is not work, it is an opportunity for me to create something. I liken it to an artist with my knives and utensils as brushes and food as the paint. I got to play scientist by wondering how a roux will thicken a sauce. I get to play mathematician when I triple a recipe and convert 1 1/2 teaspoons times three. I'm a nutritionist when I create a meal using all the food groups, and an environmentalist when I recycle cans, jars and throw my scraps on the compost pile.

Next, I listen. I listen to what the great chefs of our day say and do. I watch cooking demonstrations more than some guys watch football. I've learned from some of the best in the business. Giuliano Bugialli, Master Chef Milos Chielka, the venerable grande dame, Julia Childs, and last but certainly not least, my momma. This lady can make an award-winning pie crust using a bag of flour, some Crisco, water, salt and only her hands. The only cookbooks she owns are torn scraps of yellowed paper crammed into an old shoebox cum recipe box. I've watched Madeline Kamman debone chickens with a few swift "en gardes" and learned how to flag fold escargot in fillo from a seventeen-year-old garde-manger at a suburban restaurant. I'm one of those proverbial people who look over other people's shoulders. I listen, I watch, I learn.

There is little doubt that the third reason for my culinary success is that I love to read. I read cookbooks like a CEO reads the Wall Street Journal. I get every cooking magazine available and read them cover-to-cover. I read everything I can get my hands on when it comes to food. I read nutrition labels, ingredient listings, press releases and product development information. Friends send me food related clippings from all over the country. Favorite culinary authors are M.F.K. Fisher, Rose Levy Berenbaum and Robin Mather. I relish the opportunity to get stuck by a train so I can read or ponder something about food. In enjoy "reading" menus, and can pretty much tell when a chef writes the menu for kitchen convenience or creative abilities.

The last reason I simply enjoy cooking to its fullest is the simple fact that I have all the proper tools. I'm a gadget freak. I can turn a cucumber into a palm tree in 30 seconds. I slice, dice, whirl, chop, blend, puree, mince, rice, frappe, saute, broil, bake, deep fry, microwave, shred, steam, liquify and beat with the flick of a switch. Imelda Marcos' shoe collection has nothing against my kitchen gadget drawer. I have pizza bricks, oven mitts, sandwich makers and bread bakers. I can't imagine what I would do without my Cuisinart and Kitchen Aid. How did the pilgrims survive? I have to venture on down to mommas to clear my head and light the gas oven on my hands and knees to keep from buying more from Williams-Sonoma and Kitchen Glamor. This is truly the technological age when they can mass produce a machine that will roast and grind your coffee, then brew it to perfection and monitor the heat for proper holding.

Why do I love what I'm doing? Because I hear from folks like you who say they read me and try some of the things I suggest. That's the biggest compliment of all. And with the help of all those listed above, I thank you.

Toying over new gadgets in the kitchen

By Joan Boram
special writer

THE HOLIDAYS are over, the wrapping paper and ribbon are ironed and put away until next year, and post-holiday letdown has begun. Or, it would have begun if you weren't preoccupied with that chrome-plated gizmo on the kitchen counter.

Sure, it was a gesture of love and affection and confidence that once you find the "on" switch, you'll be able to cope with instructions written by a Japanese engineer. And who could have guessed that you'd rather have a cashmere sweater set?

AS WITH any other relationship, first you get used to having it around, and gradually you grow to love it.

"People often call me at the Oakland County Extension Service to ask about a new kitchen machine that isn't working right," said home economist Lois Thieleke. "The first question I ask is, 'Have you read the instruction book?' You'd be surprised how many times I hear, 'No, do you think it would do any good?'"

"It would do a lot more good than putting the machine on the phone so I can listen and tell them if it's working right, as a few people have offered to do."

If you're intimidated by your new toy, take heart. There are people out there whose existence is brightened by regular use of kitchen gadgets.

Sandy Zeskind is a self-proclaimed gadget person. "If they make it, I probably have it," said the West Bloomfield resident.

"I've been taking cooking classes, mostly at Kitchen Glamor, for 10 years, but I just never felt comfortable with yeast. So when the first Panasonic bread machine came on the market, I went right out and bought one. It only made one 1-pound loaf, though, and that's not very much for a family of 5."

"Then last year they came out with a newer version. It makes a 1 1/2-pound loaf and, with this one, you can stop the machine midway in the process and improvise, adding nuts or cheese and then either put the dough back in the machine, or finish the process by hand."

Casserole recycles leftovers

With 1991 only one day away from being over, and not a minute too soon, I might add, I find myself reminded of Charles Dickens opening words in "A Tale of Two Cities."

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the age of belief and it was the age of incredulity, it was the season of light, it was the season of darkness, it was the spring of hope, it was the winter of despair..."

Written in 1859, those same words could be used to describe the world today. For 1991 was a year of dramatic ups and downs marked by joy and sorrow, war and peace, fear and hope. And of all these things, it is hope that fills my heart as a new year begins, that things will get better for all mankind.

This week's Winner Dinner, submitted by Kathy Wilson of Livonia, will help you start off the new year by making use of leftover turkey or ham. After all, just as history repeats itself, so does food!

Married and the mother of three children, Wilson's family loves her "Leftover" Cheesy Noodle Casserole, which she likes to serve with a salad, toasted pita bread and apple crisp.

Wilson grew up in Dearborn and has worked for year and a half as a secretary for Casco Products in Novi. Because she works full-time, Wilson carefully plans her menus and often prepares meals in advance by cooking in the evening after dinner or on weekends.

Some of her resolutions for the new year are to exercise regularly, make more "free time," and do more things for herself. She and her family plan to be home for the holidays, but are looking forward to

"My father-in-law, Marvin Zeskind, used to go into my kitchen and kind of caress the bread machine, so I gave him my old one. Now we share breads and recipes."

ZESKIND HAS logged 40 hours of bread-making classes with Larry Galbraith at Southfield adult education. She now makes more bread by hand than with the machine. "But I still love the machine."

The Zeskind family feasts on freshly-made pasta from a pasta machine, and the Zeskind teen-agers snack on apple and banana chips from a brand-new dehydrator ("No additives," Zeskind said).

Zeskind admits that she doesn't have an espresso machine or an ice cream maker yet, but you can bet she will soon.

"Espresso/cappuccino machines were extremely popular gifts this holiday season," said Harry Tatsalis, gadget buyer at Kitchen Glamour. Krupp makes a combination espresso machine and drip coffee maker that operates separately or simultaneously, as you prefer.

"But the surprise best seller was the stainless steel pressure cooker. They've been vastly improved since our mother's version; for one thing, they have relief valves in two different places, so they don't explode any more."

"Working women are switching from microwaves to pressure cookers for after-work meals. You don't lose flavor or color with a pressure cooker like you do with a microwave."

"A lot of people received a Cuisinart combination convection/microwave oven, if sales are any indication. Both ovens can be used simultaneously, and the microwave has a turntable, so foods cook evenly."

Jacobson's stores featured some really nifty small gadgets, boasts buyer Sandy Mattison.

"One of my favorites, and everybody else's, was a sandwich maker that crimps a regular bread sandwich all around the edges, creating a pocket sandwich. Ideal for people who like bean, or other drippy, sandwiches."

"Kids loved the Mickey Mouse waffle maker, which makes two waffles at a time shaped like Mickey Mouse heads.

"Compactness is the latest trend in kitchen gadgets. The Quick-Prep hand blender and the new Cuisinart Mini-Prep food processor can do a lot of kitchen tasks and will fit in a drawer when not being used."

If you're terminally intimidated, both Jacobson's and Kitchen Glamour's professional staff will gladly give advice. But before you panic, let Lois Thieleke give you one last bit of advice:

"BEFORE YOU decide the relationship is hopeless, give the machine another chance. Don't just make something once and decide that you weren't meant for one another. Make at least two batches. If it's still a bomb, maybe the recipe needs adjusting. Don't just put the machine on the shelf. Work with it. More often than not, you'll be glad you did."

This is what the bread looks like when it's done cooking in the machine. You can stop the machine midway in the process and improvise, adding nuts or cheese and then either put the dough back in the machine, or finish the process by hand.

OBSERVER & ECCENTRIC WINNER DINNER

Recipes

"I made up this recipe around Thanksgiving," said Kathy Wilson. "We had a big turkey and lots of leftovers."

When her family said they couldn't eat another turkey sandwich, Wilson said she started trying to think of something to do with the turkey.

Wilson's "Leftover" Cheesy Noodle Casserole is a variation of another family favorite — tuna casserole. It can also be made with leftover chicken or ham.

Not only is this casserole a good way to recycle leftovers, it's perfect for busy families who don't have a lot of time to fuss with dinner.

Wilson assembles her "Leftover" Cheesy Noodle Casserole early in the morning and refrigerates it until the dinner hour. While it's baking, she's relaxing.

The apple crisp can also be made in advance and reheated before serving. For quick salads, combine greens, and your choice of seedless vegetables like shredded carrots and purple cabbage. Store in an airtight container. Slice tomatoes and cucumbers, but store them in separate containers. Add to salad just before serving. Your greens will stay crisp.

This recipe serves four to six.

Chef shares peanut soup and other favorite recipes

Here are some of Larry Jones' favorite recipes to start your new year. See taste buds column on Taste front page.

PEANUT SOUP
2 quarts good, homemade chicken broth or stock
6 oz. tomato paste
1 cup smooth peanut butter
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
Heat the broth in a large saucepan. Combine the tomato paste with the peanut butter and cayenne and a little hot broth to mix well. Stir into the simmering broth, and simmer slowly for 20 minutes or until the oil from the peanut butter rises to the top. Skim off the oil. Serve hot or chilled. Garnish with bits of chopped red pepper or pimento and finely chopped nuts.

3 dozen mussels, scrubbed and de-bearded
1 clove garlic, minced fine
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 1/2 cups whole Italian tomatoes
6 finely chopped anchovies
1 teaspoon oregano
1 tablespoon chopped parsley.
Prepare mussels, set aside. In a heavy saucepan, saute garlic in olive oil. Add tomatoes, anchovies, oregano and parsley and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered for 30 minutes. Add mussels, stirring constantly but gently to combine in the sauce. Cover and allow mussels to steam in the sauce for about 4-5 minutes. Discard any unopened mussels. Place on a plate and dust with fresh grated Parmesan.

CHEATERS HONEY BUNS
1 loaf frozen white bread dough, thawed
1/2 cup butter or margarine

1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons heavy cream
1/2 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
1/2 cup shredded coconut
Allow the dough to rise in a greased bowl until almost doubled. Cream butter and sugar together. Blend in honey and milk. Add nuts and coconut. Mixture will be very thick. Roll or pat out the raised bread dough to a 15 x 10 inch rectangle. Spread with 1/4 of the filling mixture. Roll up starting with the 15 inch side. Seal edges by pinching dough ends together. Cut into 12 slices. Place slices, cut side up in a greased 9 x 12 inch baking pan. Allow to rise until almost doubled in size, about 2 hours, covered. Heap remaining topping in the center of each roll and bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 20-25 minutes or until golden.

MUSSELS IN MARINARA

Plug in bread machine, warm up pressure cooker

See related story on Taste front.
SQUASH, CARROT OR PUMPKIN BREAD
1/2 cup scalded, cooled milk
1 cup cooked and mashed squash, carrots, or pumpkin, or 12 oz. of frozen squash (thawed) or canned pumpkin
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
4 1/2 cups flour
1 package yeast
Put ingredients in machine and proceed according to instructions. If desired, add 1/2 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS
4 green peppers
1/2 pound ground beef
1/2 cup cooked rice
1 medium egg
1/4 cup water
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup tomato soup
Slice tops off of peppers and clean. Mix remaining ingredients, except tomato soup, thoroughly. Fill pepper shells lightly with meat mixture. Place on rack in pressure cooker. Cook according to instructions in book.

Pizza snack super any time

AP — Here's a pizzalike snack that's supergood, supersimple and super any time — from brunch to late at night! It's based on Boboli (BO-bo-lee), a round, flat, bubbly pre-baked bread. Look for Boboli in the frozen, refrigerated, or bread sections of supermarkets or specialty food shops.

1/4 cup crumbled Gorgonzola cheese or blue cheese
1 tablespoon snipped fresh rosemary, oregano, or basil or 1 teaspoon dried rosemary, oregano, or basil, crushed
Fresh rosemary, oregano, or basil (optional)
Place Boboli on a lightly greased baking sheet. In a small bowl stir together oil, garlic and pepper. Brush generously over bread. Sprinkle tomato, cheese and desired snipped herb over bread.
Bake, uncovered, in a 400 F. oven for 10-15 minutes or until warm and cheese is melted. Cut into 12 wedges. Top with fresh herb bundle, if desired. Serve warm. Makes 12 servings.

ZESTY ITALIAN PEASANT BREAD
One 16-ounce package Boboli (Italian bread shell)
1 to 2 tablespoons olive or cooking oil
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 medium tomato, peeled, seeded and chopped

Wine columnists toast new year with humor

In harmony with stock-taking that occurs at the end of the year, we've assessed presentations in our column. We've been far too serious! Wine is fun.

To make amends, we offer the following tongue-in-cheek wine compendium presenting a straightforward method of enhancing one's reputation, making a big sale or just raising an ego.

Realize that ordering wine in a restaurant can be fun, especially when you vary your technique. Practice and have some fun in the coming New Year!

Entertaining a client:

● Ask the waiter or sommelier for a wine recommendation with no intention of taking the advice. Your client will be impressed and the wine steward will applaud your choice because he'd like a generous tip.

● Explain to your client the intricacies of matching wine and food.

Diplomatically criticize the wine steward's suggestions as being too fruity for the sauce or too low in acid to complement the fish.

● Remark how unfortunate it is that American restaurant personnel are no longer educated in fine wine the way they are in Europe.

● Remember that when all else fails, judge a wine by the far right-hand column. Be sure it is expensive enough to impress your client while at the same time explaining that good wine can be found at moderate prices.

● If the wine is red, ask that the bottle be decanted. When the cork is presented, remark on its length and how only great producers spare no expense when selecting this Portuguese product.

● When a small sample of the wine is poured for your judgment, check the color, swirl the wine, smell twice, taste by drawing air through the wine, ponder a moment, then ask

focus on wine

Eleanor and Ray Heald

the waiter to pour some for your client so he/she may judge. Explain to your waiter how this selection complements the chosen entrees.

Dining with Mom and Pop:

● If you are paying, don't even look at the wine list. Explain to your folks that wine is meant to be consumed as an everyday table beverage. Note that you think it is a waste of money to spend more than $5 on wine and order a carafe of house red or white.

● If the waiter pours you a wine sample to taste, tell him not to be so stingy and fill the glass.

● If Mom and Pop are treating, change your approach. There has to be one wine on the list that you can't afford. After all, they can't take it with them.

● Let your folks know that you are glad to introduce them to the finer things in life and point them toward the old French Burgundies and Bordeaux.

When the bottle is opened and the cork presented, have a little fun, bite the cork while watching the waiter's face.

If your parents dislike the wine, explain malolactic fermentation and how it adds complexity to the wine. Encourage them to consider this a unique, educational opportunity.

Impressing a date:

● Chat with the wine steward about an appropriate wine selection. Compliment each suggestion and ask if the wine was barrel fermented or vinified in stainless steel. If barrel fermented, inquire about the origin of the oak. The rite of handling the wine steward is important and should not be overlooked as a means of raising your stature in the eyes of your companion.

● Make up a story about your last visit to San Francisco and Napa Valley wine country. Refer to the winery owner or winemaker by name. Remark how the soil in these vineyards determines the outstanding quality of the wine.

● If your date does not like the wine, agree. Then explain that the emerging stylistic changes in California make it difficult to make an informed selection. Reject the wine and substitute a sweet chenin blanc!

Wine Selections of the Week

Gewurztraminer is a grape used to produce delightfully spicy wines. Some of the best that we have tasted are produced by Z-Moore, a small Sonoma County winery specializing in gewurztraminer. The Z-Moore 1990 Quaff ($8) is semi-dry with aromas of citrus blossoms and lychee nuts. It is a great aperitif! If you prefer your wine bone dry, try the Z-Moore 1990 Barrel Fermented Gewurztraminer ($11). This wine boasts depth and flavor with the complexity of barrel fermentation and aging. The wine goes so well with oriental cuisine that Mon Jin Lau (Maple and Stephenson) has it on the wine list.

Keeler sixth graders show off culinary skills

Sometimes I'm asked to help judge cooking contests. Recently, Mike Sophia, a sixth grade teacher and safety/service squad director at Keeler Elementary School in Redford invited me to the 5th annual Sophia's Safeties Bake Off.

"It gives the kids something to do besides watch TV," said Sophia. This year there were six entries. The students were all sixth graders. A bake off is also planned for the fifth graders.

Voting was by secret ballot. Judges graded the original holiday desserts on a scale of one to six with six being the best, on looks, texture and taste. It wasn't easy. All of the desserts were good.

This year there was a tie for first — Heather Steinmueller, 11, and Jessica Maciag, 11 both won $5 for their efforts.

If you like brownies and mint, you'll like Jessica's recipe.

BROWNIE DELIGHT

- 1 box brownie mix
1 1/2 cup butter or margarine
2 cups confectioners sugar
3 tablespoons green de menthe or 1 teaspoon peppermint extract and 2 drops green food coloring

GLAZE

- 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
Coarsely chopped Andes mint wafers to sprinkle on top

Bake brownie mix in a preheated oven according to package directions in a 13 x 9 inch pan lined with foil. Spray with no stick cooking spray. We used cake-like recipe. Cool, but don't cut.

Beat half cup room temperature butter or margarine and 2 cups confectioner sugar, peppermint extract and food coloring in large bowl with electric mixer until smooth and spread over brownies.

To make glaze, stir in one cup semi-sweet chocolate chips and 6 tablespoons of butter or margarine in a saucepan over low heat until melted and smooth. Cool, pour over brownies. Before glaze sets, sprinkle with coarsely chopped mint wafers. Makes 12 to 24 brownies.

Happy New Year, and thank you for the comments, calls and support. They say time flies when you're having fun, and it certainly has since I took over the Taste/Entertainment editor post in August.

Microwave oven great for cooking vegetables

AP — It's no secret that microwave ovens and vegetables make a great team.

What you may not realize is how easily the microwave oven cooks a creamy sauce for vegetables — no constant stirring, no hard-to-clean pans and, best of all, no lumps.

HERBED MUSHROOMS AND ARTICHOKE

- One 9-ounce package frozen artichoke hearts
1 pound fresh mushrooms, halved
2 tablespoons water

- 1/4 cup sliced green onion
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon granules
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
Dash ground nutmeg
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup shredded process Swiss cheese
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1/2 cup coarsely chopped pecans, toasted

Place frozen artichoke hearts in a colander. Run under cool water just until separated. Drain; cut in half lengthwise.

In a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole combine the artichokes, mushrooms and 2 tablespoons water. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 8 to 10 minutes or until tender, stirring twice. Drain; return to casserole.

In a 4-cup glass measure combine green onion and margarine or butter. Cook, covered, on high about 2 minutes or until tender. Stir in flour, bouillon granules, thyme and nutmeg. Stir in the 1/2 cup water. Cook, uncovered, on high for 2 to 3 minutes or until mixture is thickened and bubbly, stirring after every minute until mixture bubbles, then every 30 seconds.

Add cheese; stir until melted. Stir in sour cream.

Fold the sour cream mixture into the artichokes. Cook, uncovered, on high about 2 minutes more or until heated through, stirring once. Top with pecans. Makes 6 to 8 side-dish servings.

Treat friends to marvelous holiday beverages

The holiday season is with us once more. Holidays mean entertaining, and entertaining means serving refreshments.

Along with all those fancy cookies, cakes, and other goodies, beverages are necessary. Coffee and tea are just not special enough to suffice.

Recently, a group of friends got together in my kitchen, and came up with some marvelous new holiday beverages to excite even the most blasé appetites.

Today more and more people are shying away from alcoholic beverages. Therefore, these recipes, as written, contain no alcohol. I defy you to tell the difference.

However, if you prefer, brandy, rum, or other spirits may be added to these concoctions.

Nothing is more festive than a hot Wassail bowl. One of the oldest Christmas customs is the English tradition of toasting each other with a drink of Wassail.

Our recipe for "Waz-ale" is a woody-less, boozy-less substitution that really tastes like the real thing. You can, however, substitute real beer for the imitation, and even add a bit of rum, if that is your preference.

The "Rudolph" and the "Fairy Godmother," (which are my two favorites), contain ice cream, and are most attractive when served in a brandy snifter.

For your health-conscious friends, try serving the "Alpine Yodeler" in a mug or a beer stein. It tastes so good, you won't believe that it's really good for you as well.

If there is someone in the crowd who is diabetic, make the hot cranberry punch without sugar, and add

kitchen witch

a NutraSweet sugar substitute just before serving.

WAZ-ALE

1 gallon apple cider
1 can (6 oz.) frozen lemon concentrate
1 can (6 oz.) frozen orange juice concentrate
5 (12 oz.) bottles Miller's Sharp (or other non-alcoholic beer)
2 cups brown sugar
2 tablespoons apple pie spice

2 tablespoons pumpkin pie spice

Mix all ingredients together in a large kettle, and heat to almost boiling. Simmer uncovered for 15-20 minutes. Serve hot. Garnish waz-ale bowl with lemon and/or orange slices, or apple rings.

THE RUDOLPH

1 part canned mincemeat
1 part vanilla ice cream
1 part liquid non-dairy creamer

(available in dairy or frozen food section in most stores)

Mix ingredients well in an electric blender, and serve in a brandy snifter. Garnish with a red maraschino cherry.

THE FAIRY GODMOTHER (or, Cinderella's Pumpkin)

2 parts canned prepared pumpkin pie mix (You can use plain canned pumpkin, and add your own spice, if you wish)
1 part vanilla ice cream
1 part liquid non-dairy creamer

Blend together, and serve in a round glass.

THE ALPINE YODELER

1 part plain yogurt
1 part apple cider

Blend together, and serve with a salt shaker on the side, so that guests may add salt to taste, if they prefer.

HOT, FRESH, CRANBERRY PUNCH

4 cups fresh or frozen cranberries
4 quarts water
10 whole cloves
4 cinnamon sticks
1 small (6 oz.) can concentrated frozen orange juice
1 small (6 oz.) can concentrated lemonade
2 cups sugar

Combine cranberries, water, and spices in a large kettle. Simmer about 15 minutes, and strain. Stir until sugar dissolves. Serve hot, garnished with orange or lemon slices.

'Great Pretenders' winning drink apple delicious

The winning drink was the apple of the judges' eyes. A runner-up melted the panel's hearts with hot fudge sauce, coffee and ice cream. A third tempted taste buds with cider, orange juice and whipped cream.

While ingredients differ, the 20 drinks in AAA Michigan's "Great Pretenders Party Guide" have one thing in common: all are non-alcoholic.

The free guide, now available at all AAA Michigan branch offices, is designed to provide holiday party planners with alternatives to alcoholic beverages.

"In the last 10 years, 266 people have been killed in 230 vehicle crashes during the Michigan Christmas and New Year's holiday periods," said Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager. "And 43 percent of those fatal crashes involved alcohol."

"THE 'GREAT Pretenders Party Guide' assists people in celebrating the season safely and helps 'Bring 'Em Back Alive!' during the holidays," Basch added.

Winning drink recipes were selected during the "Zero-Proof Mix-Off" contest conducted earlier this year in Frankenmuth. "A Bavarian Holiday" theme spurred contestants to think of Germany's snow-covered mountains and fairy-tale castles for inspiration.

The winning recipe, "Bavarian Apple Strudel Christmas Creamy," blends apple pie filling, cider and ginger ale into a warm drink perfect for a winter evening in front of a fireplace.

The 11th annual guide also includes recipes for Bavarian foods, tips for safe holiday parties and a summary of new drunk driving laws that take effect Jan. 1.

"The holidays are a time for family and friends, not tragedy," Basch said. "It's important that party planners focus on a theme or food instead of alcohol. We also want to encourage designated drivers and remind hosts of their responsibility to make sure all guests arrive home safely."

The "Great Pretenders Party Guide" and contest are part of AAA Michigan's "First A Friend Then A Host" alcohol awareness campaign.

ents. Heat until steamy (do not boil). Pour into mugs. Top with whipped topping.

Sprinkle on strudel topper. If desired, garnish with apple slice skewered on cinnamon stick.

THE BURGOMASTER'S CHEERFUL "SPIRITS"

1 quart soda

Traditional dish perfect for New Year's Day buffet

New Year's celebrations in the South always call for serving up black-eyed peas in one form or another. Legend has it that these little peas bring good luck and prosperity for the whole year to come. Andouille Sausage with Hoppin' John takes this legend to heart in an easy entree that serves well for a New Year's Day buffet.

Hoppin' John has long been a popular black-eyed peas and rice choice for New Year's Day. Most often served as a side dish, with sausage added, it becomes a substantial main dish. Andouille sausage makes an extra spicy addition to this dish. French in origin, andouille is the traditional sausage used in Cajun cookery. This fully-cooked sausage, cut into thick rounds resembling coins, adds to the wealth and good luck of the dish, and also provides more nutrition and flavor.

Cooked in one pan Andouille Sausage with Hoppin' John, is easy to prepare when using convenient frozen black-eyed peas. Or it may be prepared in the traditional manner using dried black-eyed peas. Which ever method you use, this dish is a great addition to a New Year's Day buffet table or as a main dish for any family meal.

ANDOUILLE SAUSAGE WITH HOPPIN' JOHN

Preparation time: 15 minutes
Cooking time: 28 to 36 minutes
12 ounces fully-cooked andouille sausage
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 ½ cups water

¾ teaspoon salt
1 package (16 ounces) frozen black-eyed peas
½ cup rice
1 bay leaf
½ cup julienne-cut red bell pepper (2x¼-inch strips)
1 tablespoon chopped fresh cilantro
Heat oil in frying pan over medium-high heat until hot. Add onion and garlic; cook 2 to 3 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender, stirring occasionally. Add water and salt; bring to a boil.
Stir in black-eyed peas, rice and bay leaf; return to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 20 to 25 minutes or until peas and rice are tender. Meanwhile cut andouille sausage crosswise into ¼-inch rounds.

Add sausage and red pepper to peas. Continue simmering, covered, 6 to 7 minutes or until sausage is heated through and red pepper is crisp-tender. Remove bay leaf; stir in cilantro. Let stand 5 minutes before serving, 6 servings.

Note: Eight ounces (about 1½ cups) dried black-eyed peas may be substituted for frozen black-eyes peas. Soak peas in cold water overnight before cooking. Follow procedure as above using a Dutch oven; increase water to 3¾ cups and salt to 1 teaspoon. Cook black-eyed peas 1 hour before adding rice and bay leaf; follow remaining procedure as above.

Molly is frightened and alone. Fortunately, help is just inches away.

Molly needs your help. She was brought to us by someone who found her shivering in an alley between two garbage cans. Perhaps, like many stray animals, Molly was abandoned by her owner. But chances are she never had one.

Sadly, Molly's story is not unique. The Michigan Humane Society is filled with cage upon cage of animals who have been abandoned, abused, or are simply unwanted.

But with your help, these otherwise tragic stories can have happy endings. Because every time you make a donation, you're making a difference in the life of at least one animal.

You could be feeding a litter of kittens for a month. You could be sending out the rescue vehicle that saves three dogs from freezing to death. Or you could be helping prosecute a case of animal cruelty. Your donation can also help buy these homeless animals what they need most: The chance of adoption.

So in this season of giving, please give Molly and others like her that chance. The Michigan Humane Society is filled with so many animals in such desperate need of help.

But when you send in your donation, help is on its way.

'Davis Rules' leaves ABC, Murphy's Law behind

Comedy finds new home at CBS

By Suzanne Gill

Funny thing about ABC. They seem to have more comedies than sense. The network has four half-hours in the Nielsen top 10, but with dogs like "Baby Talk" and the rapidly deflating "Who's the Boss?" and "Growing Pains" still on the air, there hasn't been room for several other series the network still has in production. A case in point has been the Randy Quaid-Jonathan Winters comedy "Davis Rules," about a junior-high-school principal, his dad and three kids, which had the red-carpet treatment just last January, being introduced in the prime half-hour following coverage of Super Bowl XXV.

A similar situation existed two years ago for "Coach," the series starring Craig T. Nelson and Shelley Fabares, which was put aside after a well-received spring season in favor of "Chicken Soup." When the "Soup" soured, "Coach" came off the bench. Since then, the series has become a top-10 hit.

This season, the loss of "Good & Evil" and the semi-retirement of "Sibs" made room for a drama, "Civil Wars." So Carsey-Werner, the producers of "Davis Rules," who were completing production of their second set of 13 episodes in December, agreed to let the series be sold to CBS, where a time slot could be found on Wednesday nights. After a Dec. 30 preview, "Davis Rules" officially debuted on its new network Wednesday, Jan. 1.

"I was really happy to hear that CBS picked up the show," says Quaid. "It was sort of languishing over at ABC. We were making these shows week after week, but we never knew when we were going to be on the air, and they couldn't really find a place for us.

"So when Marcy (Carsey) announced that we'd been sold to another network, and that we were going to be on the air on Wednesday nights, it was just great news for everybody."

The sale makes sense for CBS, struggling to be thought of as a purveyor of quality comedy, and struggling even more since Redd Foxx's death put "Royal Family," one of the darlings of its new season, into the shop. While not a breakaway hit for ABC, "Davis Rules" has established name value, and it provides a much needed partner for "Brooklyn Bridge," another CBS property still seeking an audience.

With the move, Quaid becomes one of the few actors to have worked for all three major broadcast networks. (He spent a season on NBC's "Saturday Night Live" in the mid-'80s.)

The Texas native's career started with a part in "The Last Picture Show," which led to two other films for director Peter Bogdanovich, "What's Up, Doc?" and "Paper Moon." Of those early days, Quaid says, "I've had a lot of self-doubts. The first time I ever saw myself on the screen was in dailies for 'What's Up, Doc?' and I thought, 'Oh, my gosh. My ears are too small, my nose is too big' — all these really critical things. I couldn't understand why they had me out here doin' movies. But I've been really pleased with the way my career's turned out," he reflects.

And no wonder. In 1972, he earned an Oscar nomination for his portrayal of a kleptomaniac sailor in "The Last Detail," with Jack Nicholson and Michael Moriarty. He has Emmy nominations for "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "LBJ: The Early Years," which also netted him a Golden Globe.

"I've done a lot of different things and played a lot of different characters. I've played leading men as well as character roles. I really consider myself more of a character actor than a leading man."

Quaid's other credits include "Midnight Express," "Fool for Love," "Days of Thunder," the cable movie "Dead Solid Perfect" and, on the stage, "True West," which co-starred his brother Dennis. Last year he took on the comic role of Feet Samuels in PBS' "Bloodhounds of Broadway," a Prohibition-era romance in which he was paired with Madonna. "I liked working with her," Quaid says. "I think she's just wonderful."

For all this, Quaid was initially reluctant to make a series, partially because it is so easy to be struck in a bad show. "I had been resisting television series for a long time," he says. "When Carsey-Werner offered this to me, I told them no and hung up the phone and thought that was it, but they came back. They asked me to come to their office, and they presented the idea.

"They were so enthusiastic about it, and the character sounded like a character I would like to play, and Jonathan Winters playing my dad — he's always been a real idol of mine, ever since I was a kid. So it felt right, and I decided to do it.

"I had just done about 13 movies back-to-back over a three-year period, and I was burned out on movies. I thought it would be nice to have a place to go to work every day here in town."

What more could an actor want — except to see his show finally get on the air?

BITTS AND PIECES

Whoopi named host of 'Grammys'; 'MacGyver' wraps it up

And the winner is ... Whoopi Goldberg, selected to be the host of the 34th Annual Grammy Awards. CBS will air the music industry's most prestigious awards ceremony Tuesday, Feb. 25, from New York's Radio City Music Hall. Whoopi's no stranger to the awards, she took home a Grammy for Best Comedy Album of 1985, the live recording of her one-woman Broadway show.

Whoopi Goldberg

Can't beat the real thing — a huge advertising budget. To ensure that everyone and their dog knows about CBS' coverage of the 1992 Winter Olympics, the network is launching "the most extensive awareness campaign in our history," this according to George Schweitzer, their senior vice president of marketing. "We will be everywhere," Schweitzer proclaimed, "on television and radio, in magazines and newspapers and in thousands of retail outlets."

Schweitzer also announced that CBS will join forces with Coca-Cola for a massive Olympics-themed promotion in which a grand prize of one million dollars will be offered on each of the 16 nights of the network's broadcast of the games. The "Coca-Cola Medals & Millions" campaign is expected to "generate billions of media impressions." Just try and ignore it.

This one's a show-stopper. The final episode of ABC's MacGyver will air in February, bringing to an end the brain-powered exploits of the resourceful hero with an aptitude for science. The series had simply become too expensive to produce, and its star, Richard Dean Anderson, was ready to move on after his seven years on the popular show. But Anderson won't be resting on his residuals — he's made plans to try on the role of TV producer, as well as to serve as the honorary captain of the U.S. hockey team for the Winter Olympics (That's all the Coca-Cola you can drink, Richard).

LET'S TALK

Reader wants to write Abdul, Roberts, Magic Johnson

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I am 13 years old. I was wondering if I could have the addresses for Paula Abdul, Julia Roberts and Magic Johnson.

I also read the letter from the person who wrote about shows wasting food while other people go hungry. Please don't leave my article out, because I feel strongly I know what I'm talking about. The earth was a gift and we're wasting it. We know we need to recycle, but some people don't because they know they won't be around in the future. But if you were living in the future, you would wish the earth's resources hadn't been wasted. I just wanted to tell the world about recycling. —Oscar Chavly, Rock Springs, Wyo.

A: Thanks for your comments. Write Abdul c/o Virgin Records, 9247 Alden Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90210. Write Roberts c/o ICM, 8899 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90048. Write Johnson c/o Los Angeles Lakers, P.O. Box 10, Inglewood, Calif., 90306.

Q: To whom is Arnold Schwarzenegger married? Has he been married more than once? How many children does he have? —LaVon Cummings, Chanute, Kan.

A: The actor married NBC news-woman Maria Shriver on April 26, 1986. They have one child, a daughter named Katherine Eunice (born while Schwarzenegger was filming Total Recall). This is his first marriage, and it seems to be a happy one.

Q: Can you tell me about Patrick Swayze? Where can I write him? —R. Caron, Prescott, Ariz.

A: Swayze was born on Aug. 18, 1954, in Houston. His career began as a dancer under his choreographer mother's tutelage. He went on to dance on Broadway and made his feature film debut in Skatetown, U.S.A. He starred in various other films before becoming an "overnight success" in Dirty Dancing in 1987. He is married to actress/dancer Lisa Niemi. You can write him c/o Triad Artists, 10100 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90067.

Q: There is a program on NBC called The Adventures of Mark and Brian. Could you please tell me where I could write to these guys? I recently moved from Southern California and I listened to Mark and Brian on KLOS daily, so I'm very excited to see they are on a national program. —Larri I. Erstad, Truth or Consequences, N.M.

A: Write to the adventuresome duo c/o NBC, 30 Rocketteller Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10112.

Q: I would like more information on the guy who played in Hardball — the one with all the hair and the tight jeans. Where can I write to him? —Jackie Lertwich, Sparta, Tenn.

A: The actor's name is Richard Tyson. He is an Alabama native who — believe it or not — once attended the U.S. Naval Academy, where he played on the football team. An injury forced him off the field and, eventually, into acting. He arrived in Hollywood with $100 and took a room at the YMCA. Nothing panned out, so he took yet another track, earning an MFA at Cornell University. A role in the film Two Moon Junction and guest spots on China Beach led to the Hardball lead in 1989. Tyson likes Humphrey Bogart, basketball and water sports. His dream is to open a Shakespearean theater company. Write him c/o Triad Artists, 10100 Santa Monica Blvd., 16th Floor, Los Angeles, Calif., 90067.

Q: I would like the address for Richard Grieco. —Jennifer Sullivan, Coleyville, Kan.

A: Write Grieco c/o CAA, 9830 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

SITIAIR NOITIEIS

By Lisa Otoupal

ABC's newest cop show, The Commish takes a lighthearted look at the problems facing a suburban police commissioner. While it may not have the same punch as Law & Order or L.A. Law, it does have something those shows don't: a strong focus on the characters' families. Heading up the commish's family is his wife, Rachel, played by Theresa Saldana.

While still in her teens, Saldana began her career on the New York stage, working summer stock and dinner theater until her first feature-film role in Nunzio. Her big TV break came with a starring role in the series Kojak.

Saldana moved to Los Angeles and, in just six weeks, was starring in I Wanna Hold Your Hand as Grace. Her next major film was Defiance with Jan-Michael Vincent, then came the role of Jake LaMotta's sister-in-law in Raging Bull.

In 1982, the actress was brutally assaulted. During her recovery, she founded Victims for Victims, a self-help group that received recognition as one of the leading victims' groups in the United States. Her efforts earned her a Presidential Commendation and, in 1984, the lead in NBC's Victims for Victims: The Theresa Saldana Story. Her book, Beyond Survival, which deals with the experiences of victims (her own included), won the Christopher Medal.
