Firefighters key to shared services

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

All this talk about merging the city and township fire departments and saving taxpayers' money could hinge on meetings planned between the township administration and its firefighters.

Township Supervisor Gerald Law said he hopes to meet in the next two weeks with representatives of the township's fire union.

By the plan proposed by the township administration, city firefighters would join the township fire department at their current level of rank and seniority. "We would raise their level of pay to whichever group was higher," Law said.

One potential stumbling block, which the township administration is hoping its fire union will waive, is a contract provision by which township firefighters can apply for a newly created captain or deputy chief slot.

FOR THE AGREEMENT to work, they'd have to waive that provision so the three city fire captains could retain their current rank in the township fire department.

"If there is no agreement to these major union president

items, will the city firefighters come over here without these? I assume no," Law said.

Should township firefighters not agree to the concessions, Law said talks on joining the two departments would likely be over.

Jim Haar, president of the union representing 16 full-time township firefighters, said that while the city and township administrations have talked about merging the two fire departments, only now is the township administration talking about meeting with the fire department union.

Speculation has been that the city needs shared services more than the township, because the city has been having problems balancing its budget.

"The township is in the driver's seat," Haar said, adding he believes the township administration isn't real serious about actually merging services.

"THEY KIND of want to make us the fall guy. If the unions can't agree then they want to say 'We can't do it,'" Haar said.

Still, he said his union is willing to talk with the township administration and listen to proposals.

While township and city officials have said merging fire, dispatch and police could save taxpayers' money, fire stands out as the area where most savings would occur.

That's because the township has yet to hire firefighters to staff the third fire station, completed last year. In effect, city firefighters would staff that third station if the departments merge.

And by bringing in city firefighters now, the township would not have to spend money on equipment for the third station, by leasing from the city instead.

City Manager Steve Walters said savings could range from $100,000 to $200,000 for both city and township.

Talks are also ongoing to merge the fire and police dispatch units of both departments.

Schools won't air test results before meeting

By M.B. Dillon

Seventy-three of metropolitan Detroit's 83 school districts have reported results of a state standardized test administered last fall to fourth, fifth, seventh, 10th and 11th graders.

The Plymouth-Canton school district isn't among them.

School officials say the math, reading and science scores won't be released until they have a chance to first give them to the Board of Education at a meeting Monday, Jan. 13. Administrators and department heads were on vacation for two weeks over the holidays.

Because the scores are public record, the Observer is filing a Freedom of Information request to obtain the results. There is no provision in the Freedom of Information Act requiring that information go through a board before it becomes public.

RESULTS TRICKLED in over several days, with the last scores arriving just before Christmas vacation, said Michael Homes, Plymouth-Canton assistant superintendent for instruction.

"We were one of a handful of districts not to get all our scores back at the same time," said Homes. "They were spread over several days, some of them almost right up to the time school ended."

"We haven't had a chance to look at them in great detail," he said.

It's really important to be able to do that, so that when we talk to the board, building principals, and faculty we have specific information they can look at. That's what we're doing right now. We're preparing."

Part of what school officials are doing is preparing parents for a shock. The math portion of the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test is new this year, and district scores dropped dramatically.

Barbara Church, the district's math and science curriculum coordinator, said the math scores "are very much lower than last year's." But she explained, "the test is not designed to be a basic test, but a problem-solving, much higher level critical thinking test. The test is designed to bring about change, not to measure basic skills."

Homes, who said other district scores held their own, agreed. "The math scores provide a real incentive in what we need to do in terms of looking at our math program. We're looking at both the strengths as well as areas that indicate some need," he said. "The test clearly indicates the fact that mathematics is really changing."

IT'S NO longer good enough for students to demonstrate addition.

Stores get Lions' share of business

By M.B. Dillon

Don't tell fans around here that the Detroit Lions are 0-15 in Washington — dating to 1938, when the Redskins moved there. They think the Lions will make mashed potatoes out of the Redskins in Sunday's NFC championship match-up — despite Detroit's humiliating 45-0 loss Sept. 1 at RFK Stadium.

Fans are flocking to Canton's Old Ball Park, buying Lions memorabilia faster than owner Bob Unis can stock the stuff.

"We've sold out of Lions' division championship T-shirts, but we have sweatshirts. We've got 'Restored' shirts and hats on order," he said.

Other hot items include Barry Sanders and Chris Spielman jerseys, at $69.95 each, which the Old Ball Park receives directly from the team. "Our Spielman jerseys are all gone," said Unis.

"OUR LIONS STUFF" is selling better than ever before. We've got a good deal on No. 16 jerseys (No. 16 belongs to back-up quarterback Chuck Long.) Barry Sanders football cards are really hot," he added.

"We've had to re-stock Lions hats, and we can't even get them. We can't find anyone who has them in stock."

Customers Matt and Greg Thompson of Canton are convinced the Lions will make it to the Super Bowl.

"I think the Lions will win by a field goal," said Matt.

"It's going to be close, but I think they will win by a touchdown or a field goal. It will be really tight," agreed Greg.

"I hope the Lions smear 'em," said Unis. "I think the Mike Utley thing kept them pumped up," added Unis, who also predicts a Super Bowl berth for the home team. Offensive lineman Utley was paralyzed in a game against the Rams in the Silverdome.

City looks at 'friendly' way to force sale of vacant store

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

"Friendly" legal action against the owner of the former Farmer Jack supermarket downtown could be one way to spark some action on the vacant storefront.

That's what City Commissioner Doug Miller suggested to fellow commissioners at their first meeting of the year Monday.

"Is there a process called friendly condemnation?" Miller asked.

He asked City Attorney Ron Lowe "to make some preliminary inquiries, to see if it's feasible."

"IF WE SIT quietly, what is the likely outcome?" asked Commissioner Bill McAninch. When City Manager Steve Walters said Farmer Jack still has six years remaining on its lease, McAninch said, "So we're looking at years of having it sit like it is now."

Lowe said the city could seek advice from an attorney more versed in condemnation law before seriously pursuing that option.

Otherwise, "I think a prolonged standoff is very likely," Walters said. Walters last fall had talked with both building owner Stanley Dickson Jr. and Farmer Jack about one or the other changing their position related to the vacant store.

Farmer Jack has said it doesn't want to sub-lease the building to a potential competitor, while the owner could decline to pay for renovations required by a new tenant at a time when the building is already leased.

"That's an eyesore," said city resident Dennis Knapp at the meeting, adding the vacant storefront contrasted with homes and occupied businesses nearby.

"It's like opening a topless bar in downtown Plymouth — It doesn't go with the surroundings," he said.

McAninch asked that since other communities also have vacated supermarket buildings in their midst, the city should research if legal action has been started elsewhere, and possibly consider intervening.

"The sense of all of us is we don't want to sit here," he said.

Local Realtor K.C. Mueller last month organized a picketing of the vacant store, on Main Street, to show residents' dissatisfaction with the continuing vacancy.

Mueller and some supporters have organized a letter-writing campaign to the president of Borman, Inc., owner of Farmer Jack, to urge action.

The store was closed in December 1988.

was also talking Lions at the Old Ball Park.

"I think the Lions will win by a touchdown," he said. The Lions' loss to Washington this fall doesn't mean much, Kessel said. "It was the first game of the season, and Rodney Peete and Barry Sanders were banged up. They're more prepared now."

AT PLYMOUTH'S TRADING Post, a sporting goods and bicycle store, we're getting lots of requests for Lions stuff," said owner Dave Cook. "We had several caps, and the first thing Monday we had calls asking us to hold them. People definitely are excited."

Colin Campbell, a "true Detroit fan" who works at the Trading Post, is confident about the Lions' chances.

"Detroit is going to blow 'em out. Put that in there. Seriously."

Campbell's boss is a believer, too. "It'll be 24-17 Detroit. It's a new ball game," he said.

Trading Post customer Craig Mooney watched Detroit clobber the Cowboys in the divisional playoffs while visiting his parents in Florida last weekend. "My dad is a big Lion fan, so we had the game on. My mom normally doesn't watch the games, but she got hooked on it and watched it too. I think the Lions will beat Washington; they've got the momentum."

Canton's Angela George, shopping at the Trading Post, said her kids have Lions fever. "I'm really not into it that much, but my kids are. Sunday they had friends over and had pop, popcorn, the whole nine yards. I just sat back while they were going hairy. But I have a lot of faith in the Lions. I do believe in them. They've gone a long way."

NADINE KILLION, assistant manager at Andy's Hallmark store on Forest in Plymouth, said her Honolulu blue and silver Lions shirts and hats are selling briskly.

"They're selling real well, but not as fast as our Michigan stuff. We have a lot of Michigan fans who live here," she said. The Hallmark shop has hats for $13.95, Lions sweatshirts for $24.95, and NFC Central Division champ T-shirts for $12.95.

While Killion admits she's never been to a Lions game and doesn't watch the games on TV, she'd like to see a victory for Detroit Sunday.

"I think they should win. Detroit deserves a winner, and they're already champs — divisional champs — right?"

Canton DDA, property owners working to settle differences

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Initial steps have been taken to drop a lawsuit that has become a barrier to the development of a downtown Canton.

An attorney representing Norman Newman who own 40 acres of the 85 acres in the proposed downtown district bounded by Sheldon, Morton Taylor, Carriage Hills subdivision and Ford Road met with the Downtown Development Authority Monday to hammer out details.

Newman and Dayton Hudson, which owns Target, sued the township board and the DDA.

THE LAWSUIT questioned the validity of the DDA, whether the plan was adopted properly and charged that Newman's investment was being damaged.

The DDA agreed to take the extensive downtown plan that initially included residential, office and commercial developments and boil it down.

"Rather than take a plan for all areas of the district, it now addresses one stage, the perimeter, before we go on and talk about other things," said Newman's attorney, Alan Greene, of Dykema Gossett law firm.

An extensive park area and other amenities were included in the earlier plan. Now, DDA members have agreed on sprucing up the perimeter of the Ford and Sheldon intersections. The vastly diluted plan, also includes crosswalks, safety paths, street trees, stone walls, berms, lighting, recommended signage and erection of banners on light poles in the area north of the Target store.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, who has long promoted the plan, said he agreed to the change, "because it was obvious that we wouldn't come up with a mutually agreed upon plan."

"We're not limiting ourselves in what we could do," Yack added. "It's one small, but important, step for a downtown."

IN 1990 Newman said the plan wouldn't work, because it called for a number of small users. He said he hoped to attract larger developers to the area. At the time, Yack accused Newman of wanting to build one more strip mall.

Newman referred to it as a regional center, with a couple of anchor stores that would include Target.

Before the new agreement goes into effect, the DDA has to develop a new plan within three months. And it must be approved by the Canton Board of Trustees.

Township officials have been working on the downtown district since 1984.

Frank Millington's wit and good health are evident as he entertains a room full of guests with anecdotes.

Shirley Bishop takes Frank Millington's blood pressure every day.

Independent at 91 — with a little help

By Diane Gale
Staff writer

Despite a quick wit and good health, Frank Millington, 91, said if it weren't for visits from an aide from United Home Care Services in Canton he'd have to consider giving up his sprawling house for a nursing home.

Millington has lived in the house overlooking 26 acres at the highest point of Wayne County in Plymouth Township since 1949.

With Shirley Bishop, his home aide, coming in here it keeps me from thinking about going into a nursing home," Millington said. "It's nice to have someone looking up on you, too."

People who don't have visitors, telephone calls or mail delivered are really lonely and lost, he added.

To talk to Millington is to be impressed.

He pokes fun at one of his many visitors telling her that his walk with her out back was "taking a tramp in the woods." Everyone in the room breaks up just as Millington planned. And before they composed themselves he was on to the next anecdote.

MILLINGTON POINTED to his three tractors, said he rides them regularly and explained the importance of having a hobby.

"I just bought a new one," he said. "I'm not over the hill, yet."

Millington doesn't have any serious medical problems, but eight years ago surgery landed him in a nursing home to recuperate. He decided to "get on with life," and returned home.

Shortly thereafter, however, his wife Marion became seriously ill. A home health care professional began scheduled visits to help them remain at home. When Marion died, the visits continued.

Now, two home health aides visit Millington 30 hours weekly.

'We're just trying to keep his life as normal as possible. He's really something.'

— Shirley Bishop,
care giver

And each day is different, Bishop said.

"I relax and she does the work," Millington said. "She brings me my lemonade and I rib her about how she's doing things."

They have breakfast together, shop, work in the garden and take care of other chores around the house.

"I ACT like a companion, too," she said. "And I'm his chauffeur."

Bishop also takes his blood pressure and pulse daily and maintains a health record that she has to file with the company.

Millington refers to her as "ebullient." She keeps everyone happy.

And she makes sure that the dining room table is set just right for each meal, resplendent with candlesticks, centerpiece, cloth napkins and china — just the way Marion used to keep it, Millington said.

"We're just trying to keep his life as normal as possible," Bishop said. "He's really something."

"He keeps me going," she said after listening to another of his stories.

He draws from a varied background.

Born in England, Millington has been a Plymouth Township resident for 42 years. He retired from Cadillac Division, General Motors Corp. after 48 years.

He refers to himself as the eternal chairman. Active in Plymouth Township politics, Millington chaired a half a page full of committees.

And his work isn't finished. He's currently a member of the board of directors for the Out-Wayne County Agency on Aging and remains actively involved with the group.

A past Dale Carnegie instructor, Millington lives his philosophy. "He who hesitates is lost."

Home care offers variety

Home health care can mean a lot of different things for a lot of different people.

There's the extensive nursing care for those who need dressings changed, drugs administered, close monitoring and skilled nursing care.

And there are services to teach newly discharged hospital patients and their families how to perform procedures so they can do it themselves.

Personal care is available for frail or disabled people including daily activities related to maintaining personal health and hygiene, bathing, grooming, eating and moving about.

Therapy, homemaking and companionship services also are offered. Respite care helps family members who care for ill, disabled, or failing loved ones. This can allow caregivers the chance to go out of town on business or take vacations knowing their loved ones are in good hands.

"Health care at home has become a viable option as rising medical costs are forcing doctors and hospitals to send patients home quicker and sicker," said Helen Levandovsky, United Home Care Services community relations director.

"Patients simply respond better in their own home surroundings — they eat, sleep, feel and recover better — and that alone makes home health care a viable option to being in an institution."

United offers two types of care — United Home Care Services Inc. for private pay patients and United Home Health Services Inc. for Medicare patients. Both companies, based in Canton, service western Wayne County suburbs and surrounding communities.

Aid ranges from two hours to 24 hours daily and costs vary from $12 an hour to $28 hourly.

You don't have to be elderly to take advantage of the programs.

Home care is available for new mothers and babies, too.

Frank Millington takes a call from Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerald Law. The supervisor invited Millington to a tour of the township in an effort to point out recent changes.

subtraction, multiplication and division skills.

"What's important is being able to take those skills and apply them to problem-solving kinds of situations," Homes said. "That's what the test begins to get at."

Church predicts "a fair amount of controversy about the math scores when they're released." Meetings have been scheduled to explain why scores dropped so much in one year, she said.

Dr. Susan Rigney of the state Department of Education, architect of the math test, will address interested parents at 7 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 9 in the Little Theater at Canton High School. MEAP results also will be discussed at the school board's 7:30 p.m. meeting Monday, Jan. 13 at the board office at 454 S. Harvey in Plymouth.

Plymouth-Canton students' science scores are "pretty much the same as last year. There was nothing surprising," Church said.

SHEILA ALLES, curriculum coordinator for language arts and social studies, said parents will see a slight decline in fourth-grade reading scores. Scores remained stable in the story portion of the reading test, but the information portion netted lower scores because of the passage that was used, Alles said.

Local private schools, including Our Lady of Good Counsel and St. Peter's Lutheran Day School, didn't administer the MEAP test.

At Good Counsel, students this year are taking a national standardized test, and a diocesan test. The school also is doing an accreditation evaluation this year. Principal Ted Behn said the MEAP measures "just minimum standards."

"In another year when we don't have so many other tests, we might go back to it," he said. "But it's not really a difficult test. The MEAP doesn't give us the results some other tests do."

Greg Hovermale of Plymouth Christian Academy said he's pleased with his student body's performance on the MEAP, but also declined to divulge scores until they're shared with the PCA board and administrative team.

"We just got the scores the week before Christmas, so we've been wading through them," said Hovermale. "This is our first week back."

"Our students did really well. We knew everyone's math scores would plummet this year, but we didn't do that badly," said Hovermale. "And I know how hard the 10th grade math test was, because I gave it. I believe most adults couldn't do it."

Elaine Yagiela, executive director of New Morning School, hasn't yet had a chance to examine her schools results. Because the preschool through eighth-grade enrollment at the school is so low, Yagiela said MEAP percentages don't mean much.

"Our numbers are so small that they're not statistically relevant," she said. Average class size at New Morning School is 12.

State Department of Education officials said they don't expect to have scores from individual districts for several weeks. Test results go directly from National Computer Services in Iowa, which scores the tests to individual districts.

The districts then send the information to the state, said Catherine Smith, employability skills coordinator for the department of education. "We're reading stories in the papers that are news to us," Smith said.

Canton Township, developers behind new golf course housing project

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton's most impressive development plan, a golf course surrounded by houses, took another step toward reality Monday.

The Canton Planning Commission unanimously approved zoning changes from agricultural to residential.

In an unusual joining of hands, three developers, Richard Lewiston, Biltmore Development Co. and Robert Paciocco have agreed to build Pheasant Run residential community. It will be surrounded by an 18 hole golf course to be owned by another unusual partner, a governmental body, Canton.

THE AREA is bounded by Canton Center on the east, Beck on the west, Cherry Hill on the north and 665 acres north of Newton Road.

While township officials are excited about the plan some residents are against it.

"My concern is that you're building all these subdivisions and six years ago we were told there were no sewers, because there was no room and now there (are) all these subdivisions popping up," said Shirley MacDonald, who lives on Beck Road.

Township officials said the sewer capacity would be adequate.

Also, Canton resident Dan West said the people living in Canton should be considered before concerns of future residents and developers.

More subdivisions will mean more schools and higher taxes, West added.

CANTON SUPERVISOR Tom Yack noted that the idea was born out of a number of needs, including increased open space and a chance to blur the north/south image differences.

"For a long time realtors have referred in ads to houses being in north Canton, because that was considered a plus as opposed to the southern portion of Canton, he said.

"We knew that one way to do that was to bring in an amenity and the golf course seemed to be the way to go. It also saves open space. We believe we will bolster the image of the southern portion of Canton and Canton overall."

He added, however, that because someone lives in the residential area surrounding the new golf course doesn't mean they will be given special treatment.

"The course would be owned by the residents of Canton and those people would get the same discount," Yack said, adding that the land for nine of the golf course holes have been donated by the developers.

Future steps for the development include zoning change approval by the board of trustees and a public hearing planned Jan. 22 on development plans.

"One of our goals is to have the same mail boxes in front of everyone's houses," Yack said. "There will be a consistency seen that in Canton has not been seen to date."

The first residents are expected to move in by 1993. And the 18 hole golf course is expected to be operating by 1994.

City needs volunteer cops

The Plymouth Police Department is seeking applicants for its volunteer officer program.

The uniformed officers serve at special events, perform traffic control and other duties for the department.

Police Chief Robert Scoggins said the regular force has been trimmed in recent years, adding the volunteers are needed — especially for special events.

The department keeps "at least 21 volunteers," Scoggins said. "We currently need to fill three to four slots."

With a jar of nickels on his desk and a year in office under his belt, Gov. John Engler can look back on an extraordinary 12 months in which he has reshaped political debate in Michigan.

Like no other recent governor, Engler has become a political lightning rod. Some have praised the zeal in which he's trimmed a huge, expensive state bureaucracy.

More often, he's been vilified in some quarters as a heartless ogre for cutting general assistance, welfare payments and other social programs.

"He's trying to balance the state budget on the backs of the poor and that's just unconscionable," said veteran Westland-area county Commissioner Kay Beard. "The role of government is to do things for people that they can't do for themselves."

But Engler is challenging that philosophy. Like Richard Nixon, also no stranger to public criticism, the governor claims support from a silent majority.

Engler staffers even claim strong backing in Wayne County, the area most affected by recent state budget cuts.

As the governor's second state of the state address approaches, Engler aides boast the governor's message — prosperity through lower taxes and reduced state spending — is gaining favor with Wayne County residents.

"As I go around the county, I'm finding a lot of support, not just in the suburbs but in Detroit, too," said Susan Heintz, the former Livonia-area county commissioner who now heads the governor's southeast Michigan office. "But the message has to get out."

During his Jan. 21 address, Engler is expected to reflect on his legislative victories and, perhaps, spell out an agenda for this year's state and local elections.

Some suburban Democrats are already taking heed.

First term county Commissioner Bryan Amann, who represents Canton and other western suburbs, won't make Engler budget cuts an issue in his own re-election bid.

"You don't hear a lot of about it in public, but a lot of people are quietly supportive (of Engler)," Amann said.

"I judge it by what I hear coming out of Canton, Wayne and Romulus, and there's a feeling that he's done what he told the people he was going to do."

John Santeiu of Garden City is perhaps typical of the governor's quiet supporters.

A 30-year city resident, and operator of a long running family business, Santeiu gives Engler credit for grappling with the state's burning property tax issue.

"I THINK he's probably on the right track, but anytime you do the kind of things he's been doing, it's going to be unpopular," Santeiu said. "I wouldn't want to be in his shoes, that's for sure."

Engler has even gained grudging respect, if not support, from a potential rival.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, a rumored 1994 Democratic gubernatorial candidate, said Engler appears to be the type of politician not easily swayed by public criticism.

He has a game plan, and it appears he's going to stick to it," McNamara said. (For more on McNamara's assessment of Engler, see related story.)

Recent statements from the governor appear to bear out McNamara's assessment.

Presence of a tent city on the Capitol lawn, dubbed "Englerville," hasn't bothered Engler a bit.

"It makes me that much more committed to cutting and capping property taxes and getting the economy moving," he said.

Recalling a 1990 campaign ad, Engler recently showed his nickel jar to reporters, claiming this year's freeze on property tax assessment will save taxpayers some $388 million. At the same time, Engler is containing the campaign to put his 'cut and cap' tax plan on the November ballot.

But while Engler's supporters have been quiet, his foes have been much more vocal.

Jesse Jackson has vowed to keep national attention — and criticism — focused on Michigan throughout this election year.

Another group, calling itself the Emergency Committee for a Moratorium on Evictions and Emergency Shut-Offs, has promised a "State of the People" protest rally outside the capitol while Engler speaks inside.

Criticism is coming from the right, too.

Bill McMaster, head of Southfield-based Taxpayers United for Michigan took exception to Engler's nickel jar and tax cut proposal.

Engler is becoming the master of deception, said McMaster, a one-time ally who is now pushing an alternative tax cut plan. He's up there with that jar of nickels on his desk, claiming he's cutting taxes when it's just not true. The state is spending more now than it did under Blanchard.

If Engler hasn't been able to separate himself from his policies, he's been more successful in separating his policies from their effect.

"I'M HEARING a lot of criticism but the people I'm dealing with are in government," said Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett. "I'm not sure the people know what the budget cuts mean for us."

Livonia has already lost an expected $700,000 in race track revenue under a program canceled by Engler.

State Attorney General Frank Kelley recently ruled state race track grants can't be transferred for other purposes — a victory for Livonia, Northville and other race track communities — but Bennett said it's uncertain whether the grant money will ever return.

Coupled with reduced state revenue sharing, Livonia could lose as much as $2 million, 5.5 percent of its $36 million city budget, Bennett said.

McNamara on gov: Nice guy, no cash

John Engler is a nice guy but it's tough to get money out of him, said Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara in assessing the governor's first year in office.

"Basically, he's a very nice person," said McNamara, a rumored 1994 gubernatorial rival. "But when you start dealing with his people, their answer to everything is, 'We don't want to spend any money on that.'"

Last month, McNamara and Engler went to the mat over health care payments for indigent county residents.

Engler had canceled the "County-Care" program, which provided health care for an estimated 54,000 county residents through a 1987 agreement between the county and Slow Drains?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again!

The secret? Clean drains don't run slow. The "slows", or periodic clogs, are signals that a thick layer of "gunk" is choking your pipes. That's gunk coats the entire length of your pipe, from sink to sewer, or septic.

Conventional drain openers cannot remove this build up. Even a small tunnel through the waste lets them flow through the pipe, leaving the gunk behind!

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes like new — and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean®. It clings and penetrates deep into the gunk. No other product has the Plumb Clean® formula. That is what allows it to liquefy even years of build up. Plumb Clean® will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary. Plumb Clean® is money back guaranteed! Don't be confused. Plumb Clean® is the brand with the guarantee right on the label.

Save Money. A 1 lb. jar of Plumb Clean® holds up to 41 drain treatments. It costs only about 35¢ per treatment!

Independent laboratory studies show Plumb Clean® more effectively breaks down organic waste than all other products tested. So, if your drains have the "slows", get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean® today!

IMAGINE DYING FROM A DISEASE YOU NEVER KNEW YOU HAD.

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it. Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene. And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

IN BRIEF

Fireworks fizzle?

While it might seem a bit early to contemplate the Fourth of July, the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees are now urging local businesses and residents to contribute money to put on the Plymouth fireworks display.

The minimum cost for the show will be $10,000, not including the mandatory insurance premiums that are necessary.

The Jaycees want to thank the local businesses who have contributed in past years, but most other companies doing business in the Plymouth-Canton community have not been heard from, the Jaycees said.

In recent years the Jaycees have been struggling to put on the fireworks display.

Sewer backup

A company hired by the city to examine sewers with video cameras set on the end of long nylon or plastic string caused sewer backups Thursday in the basements of five houses on Union Street.

Some residents already irked over the sewer backup were more upset when some belongings damaged in the sewer backup were thrown out by the company hired to clean up. "There was a lot of damage to goods and materials not salvagable because of direct contact with sewage," said DPW director Paul Sincok.

He said the city is trying to settle the matter in talks with the contractor and its insurance agent.

Variety show

The Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Bands will present its 27th annual talent show called "Variety Is" at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 24, and Saturday, Jan. 25, in the Plymouth Salem High School auditorium.

The bands will also perform a free show for senior citizens on Thursday, Jan. 23.

The marching band will perform the musical program it used when it won a national band competition in November. The show includes student performing groups, solos, choral groups, skits and selections from the Concert Symphony, and Marching Bands from Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools.

Tickets are $3 for general admission and $5 for reserved seating. Tickets can be reserved by calling 455-6953.

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Say "Hi" to Edwin Patrick Rovira Jr., Plymouth's first baby of 1992.

As best as we could tell from contacting area hospitals, Edwin was the first Plymouth baby of the new year, born to mom Susan Rovira and dad Edwin Sr. at 7:35 p.m. Jan. 2 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ypsilanti.

"I enjoyed Christmas this year, and I couldn't have had a nicer gift," Susan said Tuesday at her Plymouth Township home.

Edwin Jr., who weighed in at 7 pounds at birth, wasn't expected until Jan. 20.

BUT WHEN SUSAN went for an ultrasound exam in November, "They said it was due Dec. 19," she said.

The Roviras — Susan is a Plymouth native — met near Baton Rouge, La., Edwin Sr.'s home state.

The couple married in November 1990, and moved to Plymouth Township in October.

Did they talk about wanting a boy or girl? "It didn't matter to me as long as it was healthy — and all the parts were accounted for," Susan said, laughing.

Susan was admitted at 4 p.m., and had the baby just 3½ hours later.

While she said it wasn't a particularly easy delivery, "I'd do it again, let's put it that way. It was worth it."

Several friends have stopped by their house on Ann Arbor Trail, attaching blue balloons to their mailbox and a sign to a garage flower box reading, "It's a boy."

Edwin Jr. looks like his dad, said mom. He's also a quiet guy. "At the hospital, you could hear all the babies crying, and he's just lying there," she said.

Is she happy it's all over? "I'm glad because now I can start a new life, now we can get on with everything."

A rights bite Drunk driving law goes too far

IT DIDN'T take long for the police in Plymouth to take advantage of a new state law allowing them to cut up the driver's licenses of people caught drunk driving.

In Plymouth Township, the license of a Novi man was snipped 40 minutes into the new year.

The new law is a noble idea, but it bites into the Constitutional separation of powers.

We're not condoning drunken driving.

However, the new law basically gives police officers the power to impose street justice on miscreants. The law hands police officers the authority to seize a driver's license and destroy it.

A driver who refuses to take a Breathalyzer test or blows 0.10 or higher, which is legally drunk in Michigan, doesn't get a right to a trial or a hearing of any kind before that decision is made.

THAT OFFICER ALSO has the choice to reduce the charge against the driver to driving impaired, which means the driver keeps his or her license. This puts all the discretion over that license into the hands of police officers.

It takes away all discretionary power from judges — who operate in a public courtroom — and gives it to police officers — who don't. And, those judges must give a 30-day driver's license suspension, without the option to allow a restricted license in any circumstances.

Another concern with the new law is the requirement that courts dispose of a case within 77 days. That limit is meant to make sure the wheels of justice move speedily. Unfortunately, it sticks local judges and police with the prospect of paying overtime.

Also, the defendant's sentence can include paying for the costs of investigating and prosecuting the case.

We would hope this portion of the law isn't abused by judges. Alcoholism is the usual cause of drunken driving and folks suffering from that disease often have more to gain from counseling than from paying court costs.

A person driving under the influence of alcohol should be punished. But the issue of separation of powers is being overlooked.

The new law basically gives police officers the power to impose street justice on miscreants. The law hands police officers the authority to seize a driver's license and destroy it.

Recent Supreme Court decisions have reduced the constitutionally planned distance between the legislative, executive and judicial branches to a role more of kissing cousins. This new law makes the relationship between executive and judicial branches nearly incestuous.

There were other ways of adding teeth to the drunk driving laws that would not have so seriously bridged that required separation of powers. The law could have required that a judge confiscate the driver's license of a defendant at the time of arraignment, which is within 48 hours of arrest. That's not altogether pleasing since someone is being punished prior to a conviction, but it is more palatable than a government employee serving two roles.

WHILE THERE IS a frenzy to eradicate the ills of problem drinking, the orchestrators of the legislation should have stepped back and looked at the bigger picture.

Michigan is putting a bandage on a serious problem without giving thought to the overall cost. Ideas such as "innocent until proven guilty," "judicial discretion" and "checks and balances" among the governmental entities are being chipped away.

Drunk driving laws need teeth, but sure and swift punishment shouldn't eat away at our constitutional guarantees.

Birmingham is among 75 cities throughout the United States and Canada which this year put on the alcohol-free First Night celebration.

BIRMINGHAM GETS its share of knocks from those on the outside looking in on this seemingly wealthy community. It has a reputation for in-breeding and conservatism, for racism and for prejudice.

But it has taken its strengths — its strong arts community, heritage of volunteerism and the beauty of its buildings and grounds — and offered them, for this night, to everyone.

In doing so, Birmingham is helping us throw out the old and stale and build a new, warm tradition for celebrating New Year's Eve.

As a nation that cares for its children's future, we must experiment and innovate.

radical to those who want to stick with "back-to-basic" education. But as a nation that cares for its children's future, we must experiment and innovate.

Administrators in that district are working with consultants in attempts to design a program that will be applicable to future computer changes and educational needs.

With sound planning, this program very likely will succeed. But even if it fails, the district has taken a correct step. To improve education, we must encourage the educators to take risks and, yes, even fail when taking them.

The Plymouth/Canton district is to be commended for this leap into the 21st century. Administrators there hope to make their district a model the nation can follow. We wish them good fortune in this endeavor and hope that other districts follow suit.

Speaking of bashing.....

Competitive troubles signal need to change

IT WAS A lousy way to come into the New Year.

The University of Michigan football team got decisively whupped in the Rose Bowl by the vastly superior Washington Huskies. And the after-shocks of General Motors' announced plant closings and work force reductions were still rattling around the state.

U-M and GM are traditionally among Michigan's strongest assets. That both should face similar competitive troubles at the same time should serve as a cautionary tale.

AS TO THE Wolverines, the suspicion had been growing for years in Ann Arbor that the U-M football program, though successful, was a long way from the top national rank of the 1940s through the '70s.

There was a growth of competition. As population moved to the warmer climes of California and Florida, high school football programs there grew and flourished.

The best competitive test: the Big Ten's continued record of failure in the Rose Bowl against the Pacific Ten. It wasn't just Bo Schembechler's fault; most football observers say the Big Ten simply isn't in the same league.

Bo had a wonderful run in his 21 years as head coach. But like the corporate momentum built up over the years at GM, his long tenure at Michigan may have solidified habits that were once good but are now uncompetitive.

Philip Power

GM FACES a similar challenge for similar reasons.

The rise of competition — first from Europe, then Japan — changed the face of the market.

GM looks as bad against the Japanese as the Big Ten in the Rose Bowl. In 1979 GM commanded 46 percent of the American auto market; in 1991, only 35 percent.

Like Bo stubbornly running play after play into the line, GM first tried to solve the competitive problem by a traditional method: Throw money at it. The company spent $77 billion in new plants and equipment to reduce labor costs. But as Fortune Magazine recently concluded, "Nobody spent as much as GM and got so little for it."

Finally, like Gary Moeller installing a modern diversified offense at Michigan, GM realized it had to fix its uninspired and poor quality product line. In the last two years, it has introduced a record-setting number of new products to uniform raves from the automobile press and consumers.

But with a recession on and the company still 40 percent less productive than Ford, more fundamental steps were required. Hence GM's decision to close six assembly plants, 15 other factories and shrink the labor force by 74,000 blue- and white-collar jobs.

THAT BOTH U-M and GM face fundamental problems of succeeding in today's world can be seen from two quotes:

• U-M star offensive tackle Greg Skrepanak: "We definitely need an adjustment to take our game to the next level." Possibly "adjustment" understates what needs to be done.

• Japanese Prime Minister Miyazawa: "GM is like the Stars and Stripes to the United States, so it comes as a great shock to Americans that GM has been defeated by Japanese cars." Possibly "defeated" is too strong, but make no mistake. GM's downsizing indicates quite clearly that the corporation has no plans to regain traditional U.S. market share in the foreseeable future.

Times change. More times than not, the competition improves. And all too often, the old ways that brought past success do little but hinder future accomplishment. Fundamental change is necessary, if only for survival.

Gary Moeller knows this at U-M, just as Bob Stempel knows it at GM. Let's all hope for their success in this New Year and the future.

Library plans are opposed

To the editor:

The Plymouth District Library Board has allegedly mailed, via CAR-RT sort, to every household in the Plymouth, MI 48170 area a copy of the Dunning-Hough notes Special Edition Fall 1991. I for one never received this mailing nor have many of my acquaintances.

According to a meeting of the board, held on Dec. 16, the various studies and reports have cost taxpayers $24,000.00 to date. The bottom line of the studies and reports: Dunning-Hough Library as a facility is totally inadequate through the year 2005. This meeting was attended by a newspaper reporter, and one resident from Plymouth city and one resident from Plymouth Township.

Affected taxpayers of the area — be advised this board has every intention of pushing the library expansion/demolition to the maximum. They indicated no reluctance whatsoever to commit future taxpayer monies to further their aim — to build a new library — no matter what the state of the economy. Their collective attitude appears to be, "Damn the torpedos/full speed ahead."

I hereby challenge every concerned citizen/taxpayer to become knowledgeable about this issue and make your feelings known.

make your feelings known.

To me, the battle lines are clearly drawn and this elected independent board (responsible to the district voters) has misplaced their collective common sense.

Find out when the next library board will meet and plan on attending. Public apathy on this issue is unforgivable.

Rate increase is called inflationary

To the editor:

I wish to raise a shrill voice in protest against Omnicon's increase in the price of your service.

I decided to compare your rate history with that of another monopoly with which I do business — Detroit Edison.

In November of 1985 I used 510 of their billing units. My bill was $46.70. If I had used the same number of units in November of 1991, my bill would have been $48.25. I make that to be an increase of 3.3 percent.

In the month of November 1985, my bill with Omnicon was $17.30. In January of 1991, my bill for the same service — assuming no increase in the rate for the premium channel — will be $29.20. I make that to be an increase of 68.8 percent.

Your inflationary costs are no greater than those of Detroit Edison, and, in all probability are less. However, living in a monopoly environment with no regulation, you are taking advantage of your situation and your customers.

There are two solutions to the problem, neither of which would be palatable to you. Your utter disregard of what is fair and equitable makes one of these courses of action inevitable and you will have killed the goose which lays the golden egg.

First Night B'ham builds warm tradition

THANK YOU BIRMINGHAM and the Birmingham-Bloomfield Cultural Council for giving us an exiting, refreshing, low-cost, family-oriented way to spend New Year's Eve.

More than 9,000 people from many parts of metro Detroit roved the community, choosing among 125 live performances at more than a dozen sites at the second annual First Night/Birmingham '92 arts festival.

They gathered at midnight in the center of the city to view a laser light show, to count down the old year and to raise their voices (and kazooes) in the traditional Auld Lang Syne.

Birmingham is among 75 cities throughout the United States and Canada which this year put on the alcohol-free First Night celebration.

It's a heady undertaking, requiring tremendous leadership and organization, fund-raising abilities, an army of volunteers and a city willing to put its liability, safety, emergency and clean-up services on the line.

Education Voters say yes to high-tech

INNOVATION IN EDUCATION will be a key to enhancing the economic viability of this nation. Parents, teachers and administrators should take a close look at the Plymouth/Canton district if they want to experience a taste of the future.

Voters in that western Wayne County district recently approved a bond issue that included $12 million for a high technology package that would wean students away from printed books and onto the computer terminal that would feed them the latest information more rapidly and efficiently.

Interactive video, laser discs and computer links to university libraries will give students in this district a leap ahead in learning how to do business on a global scale.

Taxpayers will save money in the long run. School districts adapting this system will free themselves from purchasing tons of paper in the form of new textbooks every five years or so.

Students also will have a better ability to keep up with rapid global changes that today leave traditional publishers far behind.

Replacing books with technology may seem

Educators should teach ethics

Q: When I was in high school and college in the early sixties it was clearly wrong to lie, cheat or steal. It not only was embarrassing but dishonorable. Recently, I heard that 50 percent of high school students admit to cheating in school. Have we lost some of the old time ethics or am I just out of touch?

A: A recent survey reported in the Boston Globe reported that 75 percent of all high school students admit to cheating. For college-age students the number is 50 percent.

You question if there is a difference in ethics and honesty between your generation and today's generation. Look at stealing? A U.S. News and World Report survey asked college-age students if they would steal from their employer. Thirty-four percent said they would steal. Only six percent of people over 45 said they would steal from their employer.

One college ethics professor was amazed to hear one of his class discussions conclude that torture may be wrong from our viewpoint but not necessarily wrong for those in other cultures.

A Harvard University history professor coined the term "no-fault history" when a majority of students in one class viewed the Holocaust as a natural cataclysm - it was inevitable and unavoidable... a "freak" occurrence of human nature.

THE PROFESSOR concluded that these students, if they were sitting in judgment at a 1991 Nuremberg trial, would have let everyone off. Obviously, the Holocaust didn't personally impact on them or their loved ones. What a sad state of affairs.

What's the problem besides the obvious breakdown of the family in this country, a 50 percent plus divorce rate, Savings and Loan crooks in the pockets of politicians, a $50 billion tab for taxpayers to support disability insurance for a population in which half are not disabled. And where has education fit into all this? Has education contributed to this mind set?

Back in your day, morals and ethics were directly taught in literature and social studies and often role modeled by teachers. Many teachers today still work in infusing sound ethical and moral values. But speak too loudly about morals and you may be labeled a religious fanatic.

Today, high school and college students discuss and debate social morality issues such as capital punishment, euthanasia, the ethics of transplant surgery. Critical societal issues students need to sort through. But what ever happened to the issue of one's own private morality... the questions of honesty, decency, personal responsibility, the pitfalls of hypocrisy, physical and (worse) verbal cruelty to others.

There doesn't seem to be any right or wrong in this "rap" culture... just get a "feel good" for the moment high. If it's cheating on a test, so what says 75 percent of our high school population.

IF IT IS SEX... don't sweat it. Yet, look at the price Magic Johnson has to pay. Should health educators come right out and say, "not safe sex... but save sex for marriage." Have I lost it in my gracefully aging years. What an anachronism.

Besides, we have value clarification in schools. Let's ask children what they like or dislike for their own personal preferences in making decisions.

Chemistry teachers don't allow children to fend for themselves in the chemistry lab because they have knowledge of chemicals. Vocational education teachers don't allow children to operate welding gear or electronic equipment before they are trained. And teachers can teach ethics and morals if they chose to do so.

One student in a college psychology class I taught plagiarized his entire term paper. He cheated. I didn't flunk him. Teachers are there to teach, not fail kids. We talked. He agreed to do a second term paper on "The Psychological Factors Inherent in Cheating in School and in Life." An excellent piece of research resulted.

Today, he is very successful in the insurance business and still takes me to lunch once a year.

Can teachers teach moral and ethical standards? I say yes.

Children, from their early elementary years should read and discuss stories that reinforce kindness, goodness and character. In high school, studying and discussing moral classics should not be looked at as old-fashioned.

And administrators and teachers should not be accused of being part of a police state or face lawsuits when they insist on honest and decency from their students.

Facts dispel myths about legal system

By Jeff Stewart
special writer

IT IS HARD to pick up a newspaper or magazine these days without seeing an article claiming that America is swimming in product liability and malpractice claims that are destroying the country's competitiveness and health care system. However, the facts just don't bear this out and people ought to know that before they give away rights that have evolved over two centuries. Let's look at some of the myths that are being repeated so often they are beginning to pass for fact.

● MYTH 1: America is losing its competitive edge due to the filing of millions of lawsuits per year nationwide.

THE FACTS: Americans file fewer lawsuits per capita than did our forefathers in colonial times, and the population rate is rising faster than the rate of case filings. According to the National Center for State Courts, only 2.4 percent of cases filed in the U.S. are tort claims, the balance include every kind of case imaginable including real estate, divorce and business to business cases. When it comes to product claims, the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission estimated in 1988 that 33 million Americans suffered product related injuries resulting in more than 29,000 deaths. Less than 3 percent of these victims ever filed a claim.

A 1991 Rand Institute Civil Justice Report estimated that in 1989 alone, non-fatal injuries cost the U.S. economy $176 billion with only about 10 percent of the compensation paid passing through the tort liability system. This means that 90 percent of the cost of these injuries was passed on to society as a whole and borne by all citizens collectively, while only 10 percent was attributed to wrongdoers. In the medical malpractice field, a 1990 Harvard Medical School study in New York City showed that less than 10 percent of the victims of malpractice ever filed claims.

The Rand Corp. also recently compared the number of claims made by Americans with those of other democracies having similar tort law. They found that the differences in the number of claims filed were statistically insignificant. In fact, while America's product liability tort system is under attack in this country, it is being modeled in Europe. The European Community Council directive of July 25, 1985 calls for American style product liability law to be adopted by each member nation by 1992.

● MYTH 2: Damage awards are getting out of hand, often paying millions of dollars for minor injuries.

THE FACTS: In a study performed by the General Accounting

Office (Congress's watchdog agency), a review of product liability verdicts from every case tried in a five-state sample showed that "in general, damage awards were not erratic or excessive... the size of compensatory awards (which include both economic and in non-economic damages), is strongly associated with injury severity and the amount of the economic loss. In every single award topping $1 million, either death or serious, permanent injury had occurred.

When 20 years of product liability awards were reviewed by Consumer Reports magazine, relying on data from the independent research service by Jury Verdict Research Inc., it was found that the size of verdicts had just barely exceeded the Consumer Price Index as of August 1986 ("The Manufactured Crisis," August 1986).

● MYTH 3: Medical costs are out of control and doctors are being driven out of the state of Michigan by malpractice claims and the high cost of insurance.

THE FACTS: Medical liability costs add about 1 percent to the cost of medical care. As for doctors fleeing the state, a June 1990 report prepared by the Office of Health and Medical Affairs, Michigan Department of Management and Budget, shows that Michigan retains almost exactly the same percentage of its obstetrician/gynecologist physicians (92.4 percent) as its physicians in other specialties (92.5 percent).

Studies showing that doctors educated here tend to flee the state upon graduation disregard the fact that Michigan is one of the leading medical training centers in the country and imports medical students, interns and residents who naturally leave to return to their home states.

● MYTH 4: The country has way too many lawyers with 70 percent of the world's attorneys, even though we have 5 percent of the population.

If the U.S. calculated the number of litigating attorneys the same way the other countries do, there would be about the same relative number of litigators per capita, approximately one for each 14,000 citizens. The article "The Myth of Japan as a 'Land Without Lawyers'" in the International Bar News shows that Japan has about the same number of people performing legal services as the U.S., approximately one for each 700 citizens.

It is time to recognize that the battle over tort reform is a political one, not a moral, ethical or even economic one. When the facts are examined, it is hard to see the basis for overhauling a civil justice system that has been evolving for 200 years.

Jackson is still dishing out baloney, this time plaguing Blanchard's successor, Gov. John Engler, over the General Assistance welfare issue.

Jackson contends that the cure for welfare is jobs.

On his recent visit to Engler's Detroit office, a reporter asked Jackson about "welfare dependency." His floundering reply indicated he didn't know what the guy was talking about.

GENERAL ASSISTANCE, the program Engler and the Legislature ended Oct. 1, 1991, had been funded by the counties - some of them, anyway - until 1976 when state funding and rules were phased in.

GA paid adults with no children, some disabled people ineligible for formal disability programs, those whose unemployment benefits ran out, and parents who no longer were eligible for AFDC because their kids reached 18 and the parents still hadn't learned a job skill.

But go back to Jackson's and the political left's proposition: That job creation reduces the need for welfare.

Here is the average General Assistance caseload for adults without kids and those on the Job Start program:

Fiscal Year 1980 - 74,937.
Fiscal Year 1981 - 104,873.
Fiscal Year 1982 - 103,920.
Fiscal Year 1983 - 127,119.
Fiscal Year 1984 - 141,956.
Fiscal Year 1985 - 124,684.
Fiscal Year 1986 - 109,704.
Fiscal Year 1987 - 98,191.
Fiscal Year 1988 - 93,310.
Fiscal Year 1989 - 92,714.
Fiscal Year 1990 - 100,722.
Fiscal Year 1991 - 99,959.

Blanchard became governor in Fiscal Year '83 and four years later was campaigning for re-election on the basis that 600,000 new jobs had been created.

About half those jobs were filled by people in the unemployment line. A few were filled by previous AFDC recipients. And a very few were filled by those who had been on General Assistance.

In short, Blanchard's "Michigan Miracle" only denied the welfare caseload - which wasn't Blanchard's fault.

Tim Richard

GENERAL ASSISTANCE had a life of its own.

Unemployment today is in the 9 percent ballpark versus 16 to 18 percent in the bottom of the 1979-83 recession. Yet the GA level was nearly the same in FY '90.

The Rev. Lloyd Thiel recently reported that in 1978 the Capuchin Soup Kitchen in Detroit distributed 179,000 meals, and in 1990 it distributed 1,212,000 meals.

If your calculator isn't handy, I'll save you the trouble: a 677 percent increase.

"Anyone who comes to our kitchen six months or more will come the rest of their lives," said Thiel.

Or as the old saying goes: "Give a man a fish, and you make him a dependent slave. Teach him to fish, and you make him free."

Jackson can't grasp that. When Jackson returns Jan. 15, Engler needs to preach to him, not the other way around.

THIS LEAVES us in a dilemma: ● God-fearing folks don't like to see others go hungry, so they give. Even agnostics and atheists are known to share this view.

● But the more and longer we give, the more who wind up as perpetual clients. To pay for the ever-increasing burden, we short-change our schools, colleges, natural resources and the arts.

Far from being a scissorhands, Engler has replaced GA with a new disability program, EDGE (Educational Design for Gainful Employment), a $60 million emergency shelter program, and so on.

Essentially he juggled the programs to maximize federal matching grants. The result of his allegedly conservative action was a $5.9 billion social services bill - the highest in Michigan history.

The cure for welfare dependency? I don't know. But at least some of us know the cancerous phenomenon exists. Jesse Jackson doesn't.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

"People want to avoid the hassle of driving and parking."

"THEY'RE ALSO CONCERNED about the new laws," Jackson said, referring to tougher laws against drinking and driving that went into effect Jan. 1.

Jackson sees the possibility of other business Jan. 26, the day of the Superbowl (in Minneapolis), with or without the Lions. His shuttle is ready to pick revelers up at their door, deliver them to watering holes hosting Superbowl parties and then take them home.

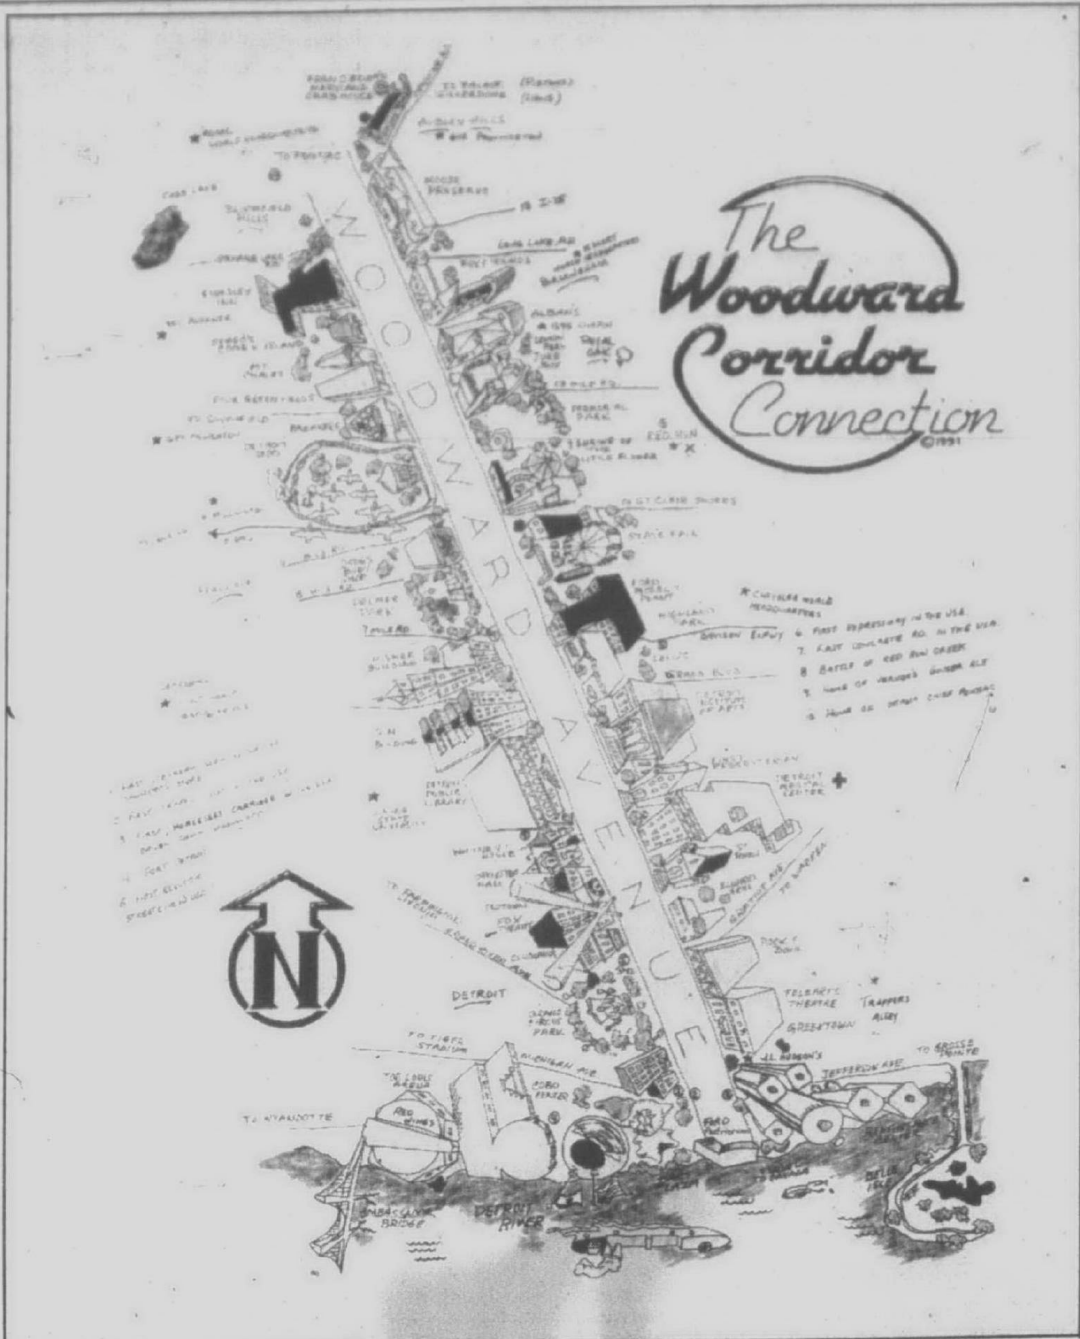

"People just don't want to drink and drive," he said. "And it makes good sense."

Jackson was raised in southern Ohio and attended evening classes at the University of Cincinnati, graduating in 1971. He lived in Birmingham during the last 10 years of his tenure with Chevrolet, during which he was a manager in sales promotion.

That's when the idea — and marketing plan — for the Woodward Corridor Connection took shape.

"I saw a lot of companies and conventions that had out-of-town clients who wanted to see the Detroit-area attractions," Jackson said. "I also saw potential in family reunions, bachelor parties or bridal showers."

AS PART OF his promotion material, Jackson did the research and the drawing for a colorful poster (at left) featuring focal points of the Woodward corridor. It begins at Belle Isle and includes well-known landmarks like Cobo Hall, the General Motors headquarters and the Kingsley Inn.

Braves claim overtime win from Canton

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

It wasn't a very Happy New Year for the Plymouth Canton boys basketball team Tuesday night.

It almost was as the Chiefs rallied from a nine-point deficit in their first game of 1992 and held the lead on visiting Ypsilanti for much of the time but fell in overtime 56-51.

"When it came to winning time in the last couple of minutes, we couldn't pull it out," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said, obviously frustrated by the defeat, which dropped the Chiefs to 2-3.

"This team is real close to becoming a very good team, and we just need to learn how to win at the end of games. We're very disappointed with the loss, but we have gotten better as a basketball team."

Jon Paupore's three-point basket with 17 seconds left in regulation time knotted the score at 45 and forced the overtime.

THE BRAVES (4-2) might have won it before time expired, but Darel Brooks missed a one-and-one free throw chance with 12 seconds left and Johnny Epps, following a Canton turnover and an Ypsilanti timeout, bounced a last-second shot off the rim.

In the overtime, Brooks sank a triple for the first points, but the Braves were given a technical foul when their over-excited cheerleaders ran on the court after the basket.

"I've never heard of (such a call), let alone seen it," Ypsilanti coach Bob Rowley said.

Derrick McDonald made both free throws and scored again (49-48) since Canton kept possession of the ball. McDonald made two more throws with 54 remaining for a 51-50 lead.

Brooks tied it with a free throw, and Keith Grant's three-pointer won the game. Following a Canton turnover in the backcourt, Marlos Long iced the win with two free throws.

"I think we progressed only in the win column tonight," said Rowley, who was not pleased with the play of his team, either, though Ypsilanti won a second straight game without 6-foot-8 center Shannon Williams, who is sidelined by a back ailment.

Rocks coast to easy win

Plymouth Salem took a break from its tough early-season boys basketball schedule Tuesday, whipping visiting Waterford Kettering 62-35 in a non-league game.

The Rocks, who led 11-4 after one quarter and 29-12 at halftime, are 3-2 overall. Kettering is 1-4 overall.

Junior forwards Brandon Slone and Brian Jensen led Salem with 13 and 10 points, respectively. Senior guard Don Fellows scored nine points for Kettering.

points, which included six triples, but seemed to disappear in the middle quarters. He made four three-point shots and scored 13 points in the first quarter as Ypsilanti raced to a 19-10 lead.

"He couldn't continue to shoot like that," Van Wagoner said. "We knew they were going to cool off. If we kept our composure and played good basketball, we were going to come back."

The Chiefs did, outscoring Ypsilanti 20-4 in the second quarter to take a 30-23 lead at halftime.

After making five of 16 shots in the first period, Canton improved to 8-of-13 shooting in the second. Hal Heard, a 6-foot-5 senior forward, paced the Chiefs with 11 points in the first half and 20 overall.

"Hal is our most improved player," Van Wagoner said. "If everyone on our team stepped up and played like Hal, we'd be winning more games."

McDonald added 10 points, Paupore nine (all on three-point baskets) and Tony Coshatt five. Epps finished with 14 for Ypsilanti, Grant eight and Brooks seven.

Salem places 3rd in tourney

Coach Ron Krueger praised the "unsung heroes" on his Plymouth Salem wrestling team for enabling the Rocks to finish third in their own 15-team invitational Saturday.

"You don't win or place in a tournament with your champions," he said. "They're known. People know what to expect from them. It's the rest of the guys and how well they pull through."

Ypsilanti won the tournament with 186 points. Portage Central (178) was second followed by Salem (164) and Trenton (152½). Plymouth Canton finished ninth (113½).

"We finished ahead of Trenton and Belleville — our two old Suburban Eight rivals," Krueger said. "Belleville was missing a few wrestlers, but we're not 100 percent either. It was a real, real good effort on our part."

The Rocks had two individual champions — Scott Martin at 119 pounds and Dan Bonnett at 125. Martin defeated Bryan Berci of Livonia Stevenson 12-1 in the final, and Bonnett pinned Woodhaven's Matt Solomon in 2½ minutes.

CANTON ALSO had an individual winner in 171-pound George Young, who whipped Mike Ko-

maromi of Belleville 10-3. Canton's Andy Strahan (103) and Nick Spano (130) were runners-up.

Martin was in an especially tough weight class but lived up to his No. 1 seeding. The Portage Central coach thought his wrestler, Terry Morrow, should have been the top seed, Krueger said, but the seeding order proved right as Berci defeated No. 2 Morrow 7-2 in the semifinals.

Salem had nine wrestlers who placed in all, including Jeff Shumate, who was second at 140. He had two pins and a lopsided decision before losing to Ypsilanti's Jim Muscato in the final on a fall.

"Shumate wrestled a tough kid in the finals," Krueger said. "Shumate broke pressure, relaxed for a minute, and the kid shot a takedown and put him on his back. Anybody who can do that to Shumate I have to think is a pretty darn good wrestler."

One of the true unsung heroes, according to Krueger, was Brian Killian, who was seventh 103 pounds.

"He lost his first one but came back and won four in a row," Krueger said. "He was seventh but 4-1 on the day, and the kid (Jay Williams of Ann Arbor Pioneer) who beat him won the tournament."

AMONG THE other unsung heroes was John Moran (third at 112), Phil Haynes (fourth at 189) and Dan Phillips (fifth at 130). In addition to them, Josh Viau was seventh at 145 and Pete TenBroeck eighth at 152.

"Moran was third. That means he had one loss on the day. The rest were wins," Krueger said, adding Moran was seeded fourth and ended up one place higher.

"Haynes had two tough losses. He did a nice job for us. I was real pleased with that. TenBroeck did a nice job, coming back and getting points. A lot of kids were not seeded and ended up beating seeded kids."

Krueger found the difficulty of the tournament and quality of competition especially gratifying.

"It was really a good, tough tournament," he said. "A lot of times you have a tournament and it's not real tough. But this one lacked nothing. They were all first-class caliber kids in the finals."

"As a coach, whether you win or lose, you like your tournament to be tough. The teams that were here went away feeling that way."

Rocks remain power

Now that Kim Miller is no longer around, the Plymouth Salem gymnastics team is sure to come down a notch this year. Right?

Nope. If anything, the Rocks could be even better, according to people close to the high school sport.

"I think we'll do just as well without her, because we've gained two new girls who are real good," first-year Salem coach Becky Martin said.

Miller, who won the all-around state title two years ago as a freshman, decided to concentrate on her club competition and not return for her junior season.

The Rocks, who finished second in the state and are ranked that highly again this year, apparently haven't lost a step despite losing Miller.

FOR STARTERS, two-time defending Western Lakes Activities Association champion Salem returns two outstanding talents in sophomore Alysia Sofios and junior Courtney Gonyea. Both competed as all-arounders at the state meet.

Senior Autumn Bunch, an all-area gymnast as were Gonyea and Sofios, and sophomore Sarah Makins are veteran all-arounders, and the Rocks have added talented freshmen Melissa Hopson and Stephanie Skepstrom, both of whom have club experience.

"It's going to be hard because those six all-arounders are really good," Martin said. "It will be hard to pick which ones to compete in the

Canton swimmers capture dual meet

Mike Orris won two individual events and helped Plymouth Canton win two relays Tuesday night as the Chiefs defeated visiting Brighton 99-87 in boys swimming.

Orris posted victories in the 200-yard freestyle (1:52.60) and the 500 freestyle (5:09.97), and he was part of the winning medley and 400 freestyle relay teams.

Mark Ealovega, Craig Steshetz and Jeff Clark comprised the rest of the medley unit (1:44.95), and the freestyle relay included Matt Tentel, Pat Lancaster and Steshetz (3:33.56).

Three other relay members also won individual events.

Clark was first in the 50 freestyle (23.16), Ealovega the butterfly (58.96) and Steshetz the breaststroke (1:05.55).

Lancaster was second in the 100 freestyle (52.24) and Tentel the 500 freestyle (5:31.65).

Canton also got seconds from Steshetz in the individual medley (2:13.33), Joe Foster in the butterfly (1:01.92) and Bryan Lang in the backstroke (1:03.16).

The Chiefs (1-1) are idle for two weeks until they meet rival Plymouth Salem in the latter's pool on Thursday, Jan. 23.

"We're seeing some improvement in our depth," Canton coach Hooker Wellman said, adding he was pleased with the performances Tuesday of Lancaster, Steshetz, Lang and Orris.

"We need to work on our diving and our breaststroke a bit. Other than that, things are where they should be."

Junior Kim Rennolds, following a successful state meet last year, begins her third season with the Canton gymnastics team.

Canton gymnasts talented

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

The good news is Plymouth Canton again has one of the best high school gymnastics teams in Michigan.

The bad news is the Chiefs still have to contend with defending team champion Muskegon Mona Shores and runner-up Plymouth Salem.

Canton finished third in the state last year behind those teams, and the Chiefs will be hard pressed to change the status-quo in 1992, which begins with all three ranked in the same order again.

"Mona Shores is more powerful than last year and so is Salem," Canton coach John Cunningham said, adding the Chiefs "sorta stayed the same. We were good last year, but we had to improve by quantum leaps to catch Mona Shores and Salem."

"(The Athens Invitational on Saturday) will give us a clue where we stand, because we're going to meet teams from around the state."

DESPITE LOSING three all-area gymnasts in Heather Murphy, Johanna Anderson and Danielle Minto, Canton retains enough talent to remain a powerful team. Senior Dawn Clifford, juniors Jenny Tedesco and Kim Rennolds and senior Laura Anderson return with All-America credentials.

Clifford, Tedesco and Rennolds were first-team members of the All-Observer team and compete as all-arounders. Plus, the Chiefs have added sophomore Kim Lewke, a member of the Gym America Club.

"I don't have the depth I had last year, but the nucleus is as strong," Cunningham said.

"The difference is we just can't make mistakes. Last year we could make two mistakes in any event and get away with it. We had six strong all-arounders."

Cunningham will count on sophomores Cara Stillings and Adrienne Brenner and junior Kathy Tiffin to help as all-around competitors.

"We're not dead in the water after four," Cunningham said.

Clifford, who will serve as team captain, qualified for state on vault but excels on beam, having a high score of 9.30 last year. Her best all-around total was 33.90.

"DAWN IS GOING to be our mainstay on beam and vault," Cunningham said. "She gives the other kids confidence. She gets up on beam and there's no fooling around. She's solid."

Rennolds was the only Canton all-arounder to qualify for state, finishing 12th with a 35.40 score. She also was eighth on vault and ninth on floor exercise.

"Kim has been working hard at club and has really improved her skills," Cunningham said. "It's tough when you're really good to sharpen skills. I'm sure part of that is maturity. She's a junior now. As you mature, you get a sophistication that is noticeable."

Tedesco was a state qualifier on bars and scored a season high of 35.05 in the all-around. Cunningham expects her to have a big year in '92.

"Jenny is going to emerge as one of my best gymnasts this year," he said, adding Tedesco has prepared herself through hard work. "In her case, the hard work is going to show. When she gets to meets, she's going to place high."

Lewke does the all-around and is capable of scoring a 9-plus in two or three events. Anderson earned her All-America recognition on bars.

"SHE CAN DO beam and vault, but she is good on bars and that's

Salem still gym power

meets. I can't put six all-arounders in every meet, because it wouldn't be fair to the ones who don't do all-around."

"I have to watch and make sure they get their (required number of) All-American, conference and regional scores."

Having an essentially veteran team and girls with extensive gymnastics experience has made the coaching transition smoother for Martin, an '87 Salem grad who was named to the position after practice had started.

"That makes it a lot easier, because most of them have routines already," said Martin, who replaces Kathi Kinsella after serving two years as an assistant to Plymouth Canton coach John Cunningham.

"I DON'T HAVE to be doing that for them. They're pretty much self-motivated. They know what they have to get done and they do it."

Sofios, who had a late start after a bout with pneumonia in December, was second in the state in floor exercise and 10th on the uneven bars. She also finished eighth in the all-around with a 36.40 total.

Gonyea also scored well at the state finals, placing fifth on the balance beam and sixth on floor. She was ninth among all-arounders with a 36.05.

Bunch qualified for state on the vault, and her best all-around score was 34.85. Makins is "right up there" with the others, according to Martin.

The freshmen are a welcome addition and will bolster the team depth if not more.

"Melissa is very good. I think she will score very well," Martin said. "Stephanie should be another one of the top scorers."

THE ROCKS also return junior all-arounder Stefanie Angiulo and seniors Jenny Wong and Aimee Wong. Jenny Wong competes on vault and bars, and Aimee Wong specializes on bars. Martin said freshman Kristen Atkinson, with a background in club gymnastics, has a lot of potential, too.

Martin expects the Rocks to repeat as WLAA champions and to retain their No. 2 standing in the state, but top-ranked Muskegon Mona Shores could be hard to overtake.

"From what they showed last year, there's no way," she said. "They were just incredible. But I heard most of their girls are not coming back until February. That could have something to do with their club schedules."

Redford Catholic Central was hurting Tuesday, but newcomer Eric Justice helped relieve the pain.

The Shamrocks rallied in the second half to gain a 62-54 Catholic League basketball win at Redford Bishop Borgess in the Central Division opener for both schools.

Justice, a 5-foot-7 point-guard eligible to play his first game after transferring from Dearborn Heights Fairlane Christian, netted only two free throws, but was instrumental in quarterbacking CC to the come-from-behind win.

CC, now 5-1 overall, played most of the night without top scorer Chad Varga, who started, but played sparingly because of a sore upper shoulder.

The Shamrocks were also without starter Brian Paluk, who is out three weeks with a broken thumb.

"He (Justice) definitely gave us a boost," CC coach Bernie Holowicki said of the transfer. "The first time he got out there (second quarter) he was kind of out of control, but when he keeps it in order, like he did in the second half, he can drive, dish and go to the basket. His quickness means a lot. He got trapped a lot, but he was able to split the seams and we got some three-on-two breaks. And he (Justice) caused it."

WITH THE emergence of Justice, 6-6 Bob Kummer was able to go inside and outside.

The senior forward finished with a game-high 20 points, including four 3-pointers to go along with a nice two-hand slam dunk to open the fourth quarter.

The Shamrocks also had three others score in double figures: Tom Laco (16), Mark Gondek (11) and Will Marcoux (10).

A pair of free throws by Gondek with 4:36 to play put CC ahead for keeps, 51-49.

The Shamrocks capped their pivotal six-points on Laco's tip-in with 3:04 left to make it 55-49.

Justice's feed inside to Marcoux with 1:53 remaining gave CC a seven-point cushion, 59-52, and sewed up the win.

"Will (Marcoux) was playing for Chad (Varga) and played the game of his life," Holowicki said. "And when you play the other kids, the next time they're going to be more into it."

On the flip side, Borgess was out of it during the final 16 minutes of action. The Spartans were outscored 37-20.

Borgess trailed during the early stages of the game, but outscored CC 21-11 in the second quarter to take a 34-25 halftime lead.

BORGESS, which led by as many as 13 in the first half, went cold in the second half hitting only seven of 27 shots from the floor (25.9 percent).

"In the middle of the third quarter we lost a step of intensity," said Borgess coach Mike Fusco, whose team fell to 2-2 overall. "We had the shots, but we didn't put it down."

"We didn't get back what we had established in the first half. We always talk to our players about playing for the moment. In the second half our minds were not on the moment. We have to maintain consistent levels of performance."

Senior guard Lamar Westbrook scored 16 in a losing cause, while Jermaine Parker (off the bench) and Darwin Cegers contributed 15 and 11, respectively.

"This was a great win because we were reeling at halftime," Holowicki said.

One key statistic on the night was turnovers. CC had 13 at intermission, but had only seven in the second half.

Borgess, meanwhile, had 21 on the game.

Chiefs drop OT decision to Ypsilanti

BUT LONG WENT scoreless in the second and third quarters, and the Ypsilanti offense was non-existent as the Braves made only four of 26 field goals in the middle periods.

"Marlos is a streak shooter," Rowley said. "When he's on, when he feels it, he's going to hit them. Actually, I think Marlos got a little tired. He was getting banged around on some of the picks they were setting."

"But no one else was doing anything. We just didn't play very well against the zone in the second quarter. They were matching up with us, and we were just standing around and letting them take us even farther out."

After scoring the last 11 points of the second quarter, Canton struggled offensively in the second half, too. The Chiefs were 2-of-12 in the third quarter and 7-of-28 in the last 19 minutes.

Ypsilanti chipped away at the lead with free throws in the third period and used a pressing defense to throw Canton off track.

Long re-emerged late in the fourth quarter to give the Braves the lead again (43-40) with consecutive triples. Epps made it 45-40 before Heard cut it to three.

"I THINK DEFENSE is what brought us back," Rowley said. "We got them into a little different game. It was a slower game in the second quarter, and we got them to play more of a full-court game."

"In the first half, we were passing the ball to the post and running the offense the way it should have been run," Van Wagoner said. "In the second half, their pressure bothered us, and we made some poor choices on shot selection."

Canton was 20-of-57 from the floor for .351, the Braves 19-of-53 for .358. The Chiefs begin Western Lakes Activities Association play Friday night at Westland John Glenn.

Spartans deal 1st loss to Pioneer

Livonia Stevenson on Tuesday handed visiting Ann Arbor Pioneer its first loss of the boys basketball season, 58-48.

The non-league win improved Stevenson to 3-1 overall. Pioneer fell to 4-1 overall.

"We had four decent quarters of effort," Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre said. "The kids came out and matched Pioneer with intensity. All the kids did the little things necessary to control the tempo and handle Pioneer's pressure. Pioneer's got enough talent to make a dent in its league (South Central)."

After playing to a 15-15 tie after one quarter the Spartans outscored Pioneer, 18-9, in the second period to take a 33-24 halftime lead. Stevenson raised the lead to 43-32 after three quarters and held off Pioneer in the fourth quarter.

Senior guard Matt Grodzicki led Stevenson with 17 points, including eight in the second quarter. Senior forward Colin Stockton scored 16 points, while senior guard Ryan Furkas contributed 11 points. Furkas sank three 3-point field goals and Grodzicki buried two. The Spartans had six for the game.

Dan Okomkmo led Pioneer with 15 points and Adam Comstock added 12.

FRANKLIN 64, REDFORD UNION 58: Senior Jeff Witkowski made a 3-pointer with 1:57 left to give Livonia Franklin a 54-53 lead Tuesday, and the visiting Patriots outscored the Panthers 10-5 the rest of the way for the non-league win.

The Patriots are 3-1 overall, while RU fell to 2-3 overall.

The Patriots helped assure the victory with clutch free-throw shooting down the stretch and they finished the game making 21-of-26 from the line.

"That was the best free-throw shooting we've had in my five years as coach," Franklin coach Rod Hanna said. "Our seniors (Witkowski, Keith Roberts, Russ Keberly and Jeff Hunt) really played hard the last four minutes. RU is not a bad team, but we made mistakes defensively and didn't do a good job rebounding."

Roberts led the Patriots with 23 points, including two 3-pointers, while Keberly contributed 15. Junior forward Jason Facione had 10. Witkowski scored all seven of his points in the fourth quarter.

Senior guards Bill Malecki and Paul Nowak paced RU with 17 points apiece, but the Panthers could not hold 45-39 advantage after three periods.

WAYNE 71, TRENTON 37: After playing evenly for two quarters Tuesday at Trenton, Wayne Memorial showed its strength in the second half against its Wolverine A League opponent.

The Zebras, who led only 29-28 at halftime, outscored Trenton, 25-3, in the third quarter and 17-6 in the fourth to win easily. Four players scored in double figures for the Zebras, led by DeMarco Robinson's 16 points and Donte Prewitt's 15.

The Zebras improved to 4-1 overall and 2-0 in the Wolverine A. Trenton is 2-3 overall and 1-1 in the league.

Wayne seniors Rick Barnes and Greg Hartmann contributed 12 and 10 points, respectively.

HURON 70, JOHN GLENN 36: Westland John Glenn made only 13-of-52 field goal attempts and shot even worse at the free-throw line (7-20) Tuesday in losing this non-league game at Ann Arbor Huron.

The Rockets trailed only 16-13 after one quarter but Huron outscored Glenn, 14-6, in the second quarter to open up a 30-19 halftime lead. The onslaught worsened in the third quarter when Huron enjoyed a 19-11 edge to take a commanding, 49-30 lead.

Junior forward John Miller led Glenn with 12 points.

Huron outrebounded Glenn, 32-22, and got a game-high 19 points from Zane Phillips. Teammates Demone Brown and Noah Maurer contributed 16 and 11, respectively.

CLARENCEVILLE 79, TRINITY 59: Dan Nunney led three Livonia Clarenceville players in double figures with 24 points Tuesday as the Trojans routed host Detroit Trinity Baptist.

The win moved Clarenceville's record to 3-1 overall. Trinity is 7-3 overall.

Johnny Kalaj scored 15 points and Mario Hezaj added 10 for the Trojans, who led 42-32 at halftime.

OAKLAND CHRIST. 77, LUTH. WESTLAND 46: Lutheran Westland couldn't overcome a 23-3 deficit after one quarter Tuesday and suffered the lopsided loss at Auburn Hills Oakland Christian.

Senior guard Scott Mehlberg led Oakland with 21 points and teammate Mike Carter added 20. Junior forward Rich Mobley had 15 points for Lutheran Westland. Junior center Kevin Nelson contributed 12.

The loss dropped Lutheran Westland to 1-4 overall, 0-1 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Association. Oakland Christian improved to 4-0 overall, 1-0 in the MIAC.

Pure fun 'Babes in Arms' dazzles audience

Performances of the Birmingham Theatre production of "Babes in Arms" continue through Feb. 2. For ticket information call the box office at 644-3533. The theater is at 211 S. Woodward, Birmingham.

SONGS 10, plot 0, but who cares when the songs are vintage Rodgers and Hart, enhanced with dazzling tap dancing by the talented young cast of "Babes in Arms" at the Birmingham Theatre.

Following last month's production of "The Wizard of Oz," the Birmingham is again offering a bubbly concoction of musical nostalgia that is pure fun.

WHILE "BABES in Arms" is considered an early attempt to have a musical where the songs actually advance the plot, there really isn't much plot to advance. A group of summer theater apprentices are planning to end the season with a show of their own.

Complications include a mean-spirited employer (Carlton Carpenter), multiple romantic entanglements and misunderstandings and a visiting movie star (Michelle Blakeley) and her domineering mother (Lucille Naar), but the plucky young performers see that the show does go on.

ALONG THE way "Babes" features five major hit songs — "I Wish I Were in Love Again," "Where or When," "My Funny Valentine," "The Lady Is A Tramp," and "Johnny

One Note." The remaining six numbers include the lovely ballads "You're Nearer" and "I Didn't Know What Time It Was," plus an amusing "Way Out West of West End Avenue."

Director/choreographer Randy Skinner has created wonderful dance routines that repeatedly draw applause on their own, and the whole show moves along with effervescence. Some of the corny 1937 dialogue is handled with just the lightest touch of camp, and the cast is so endearing that one cares about them despite their thinly drawn characterizations.

As Bunny, co-owner of the theater but struggling to hold on to it, Teri Gibson has a powerful voice that really belts out great renditions of "Way Out West," "The Lady Is a Tramp," and "Johnny One Note." She also delivers her lines with a pleasantly flippant comic style.

Blakely is convincingly vulnerable as Jennifer, the former child film star still living in terror of her mother's wrath, and her voice is lovely in the "Where or When" and "I Didn't Know What Time It Was" duets.

MICHELE PIGLIAVENTO puts lots of heart into Susie as she sings the plaintive "My Funny Valentine." Val (short for Valentine) is the song-writing apprentice Susie is stuck on, but he regards her as "just a kid" and instead pursues Jennifer.

David Gunderman is very fine as Val, singing and dancing in a majority of the numbers and featured in "Where or When" and "You're Nearer." The same for Kevin Pettito's

Gus, who sings "I Wish I Were in Love Again" with Jeanna Schweppe's Terry and also dances up a storm.

Schweppe is cute as the gal who plays hard-to-get. Kim Morgan is hopelessly perky as the slightly bubble-headed Libby, and Jeffrey Kubiawicz and Sam Samuelson also add good support to the singing and dancing apprentices.

Carpenter is amusing as the Scrooge-like boss who keeps threatening to fire everyone, and he is well-matched with Naar's shrewish mother. Oliver Woodall is good as a conceited writer/director/actor, but Scott Willis is weak as Jennifer's true love despite his good voice.

In addition to all the wonderful song-and-dance numbers, "Babes" has one hilarious farcical scene where everything goes wrong for the apprentices backstage and screws up the onstage performance.

'How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying' works

Performances of the Jewish Community Center and Nancy Gurwin production of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," continue through Jan. 19 at the Aaron DeRoy Theatre at the JCC, 6600 W. Maple Road, West Bloomfield. For ticket information call the JCC at 661-1100 or Gurwin at 354-0545.

Exuberant music and a top-notch cast make a winning combination for "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," the current Nancy Gurwin production at the Jewish Community Center.

The Frank Loesser-Abe Burrows Pulitzer Prize-winning musical satirizes the world of big business where everyone strives to do as little as possible, mediocrity is highly prized, and one climbs the corporate ladder based on who you know and cultivate.

AT THE Park Avenue headquarters of World Wide Wicket Company a brash young man named J. Pierrepont Finch (Danny Gurwin) applies for a job in the mail room. Finch was a window washer until a little "How to..." booklet inspired his assault on big business. After unabashedly buttering up all the right people and trading on the inside knowledge he acquires, Finch maneuvers his way up the corporate ladder in record time.

Gurwin is outstanding as Finch. In addition to his strong singing voice, he has a vivacious style and enormous poise. His affable grin and occasional feigned bouts of humility make him a lovable rascal, a reminder that Finch is only capitalizing on the foibles of others. Finch's greatest asset is his unshakable faith in himself, ably conveyed by Gurwin in a winsome rendition of "I Believe in You."

JAC CORTES is very funny as company president J.B. Biggley, letting ting his lively eyes and facial expressions speak volumes. Filled with self-importance and romancing a young floozy on the side, Cortes shows Biggley at his silliest when he extolls his alma mater "Grand Old Ivy" in a duet with Gurwin.

Missy Gallant exudes sweetness and wholesomeness as Rosemary, the secretary enamored of Finch but often ignored. Her pleasant vocal skills enhance "Happy to Keep His Dinner Warm," "Been a Long Day," and "Rosemary," the latter two with Gurwin.

Susan Friedman is excellent as Smitty, the competent and bespectacled secretary that men never seem to notice.

Elaine Keinert is amusing as Miss Jones, Biggley's secretary, whose glacial exterior is quickly melted by Finch's endearing charm.

SAM JUNGGERMANN is wonderful as Twimble, the mail room head who only thinks "The Company Way." Jungermann also doubles as Womper, the plain-spoken chairman of the board.

Charles Greenia is hilarious as Bud Frump, Biggley's whiny nephew and Finch's constant rival at World Wide Wicket, barely suppressing his wicked glee beneath his mild-mannered demeanor.

Among the talented supporting cast of businessmen and secretaries, Richard Schultz as Gatch and Mark Honeyman as Bratt stand out.

As Hedy LaRue, the floozy who tries to be a secretary, Jane Shaffmaster ably captures the stilted enunciation but never quite conveys Hedy's warmth and sex appeal.

Though "How to Succeed" is now 30 years old, the satire remains fresh and pertinent today as exemplified by the bouncy numbers "Coffee Break," "The Company Way," "A Secretary Is Not a Toy," and "Brotherhood of Man."

Director/choreographer Kathi Bush does a fine job throughout, and cannot be faulted for the tedious 24 scene changes that slow things down even though they are handled very efficiently.

The small combo under music director Roger Bingham sounds fine. The very simple, representational sets work very well. With only a few special costumes required, the evening gowns for the "Paris Original" number are the one amateurish flaw to this stylish production.

Companies can collect in data loss liability suits

low companies to seek claims for lost data?

The dispute traces back to 1982 when Independent Management Systems Inc., a small computer service firm that has been located in Birmingham since 1975, sold and installed computers and software to a florist in St. Louis. After Independent guided its client through several system updates, the florist struck out on its own by purchasing a new disk drive from a third party in 1986, but apparently failed to inform Independent of the move.

In the resulting confusion, the florist continued to back up on the new system, but was unaware that a portion of its business records were not being copied. A year later, the disk drive failed and the florist sued both Independent and the third party claiming damages for the cost of reconstructing part of its records and for lost profits and customer good will.

UNDER THE TERMS of its policy, Independent notified its insurance carrier, State Farm Insurance Co., to handle the defense of the action, which is still pending in the St. Louis court system. The insurer entered into the suit in May 1989, but three months later, State Farm filed a separate suit in Oakland County Circuit Court against its client, stating the policy did not provide coverage for the florist's claims against Independent.

"The case really boils down to whether insurance companies are liable to their clients when it comes to lost computer data," said Kator. "In the matter of Independent, our position is the policy should cover the client in cases where they are sued for allegedly contributing to the loss of data."

"In a more general scope, the case can also be grounds for companies to seek damages under a general liability insurance policy when a computer accident does occur. It all depends on the terms of the policy."

While Kator won the opening round in the Oakland County courts, State Farm appealed the ruling to the Michigan State Court of Appeals. The appellate court is expected to make a ruling later next year. In its brief to the court, State Farm claims it is not liable to oversee the defense of its client because the policy only covers property losses, or more precisely, a physical injury to tangible property. Because computer data is stored as a series of numbers on a tape, the carrier contends the loss of data is outside the bounds of the policy.

But in what could be considered a victory for every U.S. company that uses computers to run daily operations, a recent appellate court ruling in Minnesota stated that businesses are entitled to insurance coverage for lost data.

"THERE'S NO question cases like these will become more and more common," said Bruce Burns, founder and president of the Lighthouse Group, a computer service firm in Plymouth.

"In estimates I've seen so far, a computer's hard disk will fail in the first five years of operation. Knowing the extensive damage a faulty computer can do to a company, whether it's a small or large operation, I always stress the need to back-up software programs (computer data) on a day-to-day basis. Otherwise you risk the potential of bringing your company to its knees in a matter of days."

For computer users unaware of how to record daily entries on a separate floppy disk or tape, Burns recommends consulting the owner's manual or hiring a computer service firm to adopt a program. What's more, Kator recommends companies consult with their insurance representatives to see if they are covered from computer accidents, whether it be from an electric surge that can wipe out several files or a disgruntled employee seeking revenge.

In addition, with the recent proliferation of computer viruses, Burns advocates a number of preventive strategies: tighter control over new programs introduced to computers, the use of write-protect tabs on all floppy disks and booting only from hard disks.

Scout cookie sale yields lots of dough

By Julie Brown
staff writer

THE LAST OF the Christmas cookies may not have yet disappeared from your home, but it's not too early to start thinking about ordering Girl Scout cookies. The Huron Valley Girl Scout Council's annual cookie sale will begin Friday, Jan. 10.

Each year, local Girl Scouts sell cookies door to door and from booths. Jennifer Foess, 10, of Canton has been selling cookies each year since the first grade, and knows how popular those cookies are.

"Usually, I start off with going to friends and family," said Jennifer, a fifth grader at Miller Elementary School in Canton and member of Junior Troop No. 726. She goes through her neighborhood selling cookies, and finds that many repeat customers look forward to the sale each year.

Megan Moore, 10, has been selling cookies since the first grade and finds that the Peanut Butter Patties and Thin Mints do particularly well. Other varieties being sold this year are: Praline Royales, a new cookie, Caramel DeLites; Shortbread; Lemon Pastry Cremes; and Peanut Butter Sandwiches.

MEGAN AND Jennifer have a similar sales strategy that they use in dealing with customers.

"Just be nice and ask politely" is Megan's advice when it comes to selling cookies. She's a fifth grader at Miller Elementary School and a member of Troop No. 726.

Kristy Metz, 10, a Miller fifth grader and fellow troop member, also finds that being courteous and friendly helps in selling cookies. She's participated in the sale since the second grade and sells many cookie boxes in her neighborhood each year.

Katie Tolbert, 11, is a veteran of a number of previous cookie sales, and knows it's important to "be friendly and smile." She's been selling cookies since the first grade and is now a fifth grader at Miller and Troop No. 726 member.

She hasn't found that diet-conscious customers who perhaps ate too much during the holidays are necessarily reluctant to buy a few boxes.

"Most people just want the cookies, so they buy them," Katie said. Her dad suggested that people break the cookies in half "so the calories run away."

Jennifer has found that New Year's diet plans don't significantly cut into cookie sales. "I think they're all ready for Girl Scout cookies again," she said.

Jennifer, Katie, Kristy and Megan are friends and help each other out during the cookie sale. They have fun during the annual event, and learn new skills and responsibilities.

THE GIRLS from Miller Elementary School and other local Scouts know how important the sale is. Income pays for camp maintenance and development and provides services and training for troop leaders and other Girl Scout volunteers.

Ongoing and special program opportunities for girls are provided through money raised during the sale, which also supports troop activities and equipment purchases.

"We raise a lot of money," Jennifer said of her troop, which is led by Connie Moore. Troop members previously bought camping equipment with the proceeds from the cookie sale.

Cookie orders will be taken Jan. 10-26 in the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, which includes the Canton-Plymouth community. This year's sales goal for the entire council is 900,000 boxes.

Delivery to customers is scheduled for Feb. 24 through March 8. Price is $2.50 per box. Booth sales at local grocery stores and other sites will be Feb. 28 through March 15.

For more information, call the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, (313) 483-2370.

Dorothy Shaffer and her husband have met some great friends through the Party Bridge Group.

"A very nice group," she said. "We play friendly bridge. A lot of nice friendships have been made through the years."

The group meets 1-4 p.m. each Thursday at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer. It's been meeting for a number of years and began when Chuck Skene, Plymouth's parks and recreation director, wanted to establish such a local group.

Meetings began with two tables of players at the Cultural Center.

"It has grown over the years," she said. Weekly attendance varies, but averages eight to 12 tables with four players at each. Membership isn't limited to senior citizens, but is open to "just everyone who likes to play friendly bridge."

Dorothy and Boyd Shaffer took over about nine or 10 years ago from a local woman who had been the group's coordinator. The Shaffers, Plymouth Township residents, keep things running smoothly each week. She likes the friendliness of the Party Bridge Group.

DUPLICATE BRIDGE tends to be more serious. Party bridge players also enjoy a good game, but the atmosphere's "a little more light-hearted."

ers. Of course, everyone wants to play their very best and do the best they can."

Those who'd like to participate should have a basic knowledge of bridge and its rules, she said, as formal lessons aren't provided at group get-togethers. Players do, however, welcome those who've played bridge in the past and whose skills are a little rusty from lack of use.

"We are just patient with those people. After a short time, they are back in the groove and we're glad to have them. People who enjoy playing bridge are always welcome."

She hasn't noticed a decline in the number of people who play bridge. The fact that every hand is different, and every round is different, gives the game an enduring appeal.

"Oh, yes. I don't see any slacking off. It's a challenging game. If anything, I think it's more popular than ever."

People who've reached a certain age don't necessarily have to stop learning. FOCUS programs sponsored by the Friends of the Plymouth District Library provide a perfect learning opportunity for those whose school days have passed.

Two such programs are planned for January in the upstairs meeting room at the library, 223 S. Main in downtown Plymouth:

• 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 12, a program on the 19th century American home presented by Beth Stewart, director of the Plymouth Historical Museum;

• 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 26, a Plymouth Community Arts Council presentation on that group's "Picture Lady" program.

The FOCUS series began in September 1991 with a two-part presentation on the business collection at the Dunning-Hough Library. That was followed by a two-part program in November on genealogy, including information on resources available at the local library and elsewhere.

"GENEALOGY IS very popular in this community," said Jackie Troutman, program chairwoman for the Friends. Librarians have received a number of requests for information on genealogical research and on financial planning, so series organizers decided to offer such programs.

"We're very encouraged by the response," said Troutman, a Plymouth Township resident.

The Friends group had provided adult programming at the library in the past, but it had been done on a more random basis, she said. Troutman and other organizers decided to start a FOCUS series. Topics are based in large part on questions most frequently asked of the staff librarians.

The art and architecture programs planned for January will include representatives from organizations other than the Dunning-Hough Library. The Plymouth Historical Museum's Stewart will include a number of local artifacts in her Sunday, Jan. 12, slide presentation.

Learning

It isn't just kid stuff at Plymouth's library

"The museum and the library do have a lot of areas where they overlap," Troutman said. The library also has ties to the Plymouth Community Arts Council; the PCAC's art rental gallery is housed upstairs at the Plymouth library.

ARTS COUNCIL volunteers present "Picture Lady" programs to students in local schools, using art prints to increase understanding and appreciation of the work of different artists. The Sunday, Jan. 26, program at the library will give adults an opportunity to learn about the arts council.

A total of six FOCUS programs are being offered in 1991-92, with two remaining programs scheduled after January. The programs offer "exercise for the mind" and also help to make people more familiar with local resources, Troutman said.

"It is a tremendous library, it really is."

Outreach librarian Gerry Barlage has also been impressed with the response to programs offered.

"I think they're beneficial. It's just another way of letting the community know what's available here," Barlage said. She and her colleagues at the Dunning-Hough Library get a number of questions on topics as diverse as financial planning and Victorian architecture.

"People in this community are really interested in that. There's a lot of historical buildings around and people are really interested." Some people who've bought such a home come to the library to learn more about its history and architecture, Barlage said.

She and other organizers decided to offer some FOCUS sessions on the weekend. Some residents have weekday conflicts due to work and other commitments, she said, so weekend sessions were scheduled "to see what our audience might be."

FOCUS programs are offered free of charge, although advance registration is required and seating capacity is limited. To register or for more information, call 453-0750. Programs are designed with adults in mind, although older students are also welcome.

Reaching out

Renovation project opens church's doors to all in community

By Julie Brown
staff writer

The doors of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth have long been open to the community, but getting through those doors has become easier for disabled people.

Making the building accessible to all is the primary goal of a reconstruction project at the church in downtown Plymouth. The project includes adding ramps to improve accessibility for those who use wheelchairs or walkers.

An entrance on the west side of the building provides easier access for disabled people, including access to the elevator.

That elevator won't be in place until early March, said the Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee, senior minister of the congregation. It will provide access to all three levels of the church.

Church members voted several years ago to remain in downtown Plymouth "and to update and adapt our building to the needs of the future." They wanted to continue to provide whatever ministry of compassion they could at that site.

THEIR PRIMARY concern was making the building accessible to disabled people, not all of whom are senior citizens.

"We've got some very young people who are encumbered and need access. We want to make our building totally accessible to everyone."

Church leaders set a fund-raising goal of $500,000, began the Vision 2000 campaign in June 1991 and are close to reaching that goal. Dr. Robert Evans served as chairman for the financial campaign. Linda Luke and Harve Bock lead the church's building and grounds committee. They're working with other church members on overseeing the renovation project.

The reconstruction work began in early September and is close to completion.

"Of course, this was a dream of mine," said Magee, a Plymouth resident who's in his 20th year as pastor of the church and plans to retire this summer. "This is one of my fondest dreams." He's pleased to know the work will be done when he retires.

The project includes restoration and preservation of the building's exterior brick and mortar. That work is just about done, Magee said, although a repellent coating will need to be added in the spring when it's warmer outside.

The project also includes an extension on the main entryway to the new stairway. That provides access from the main floor to the fellowship hall in the basement, and was done to enhance fire safety, he said.

ABOUT 20 PERCENT of the money raised through Vision 2000 will be used for mission work in the U.S. and overseas. A portion of that will be used to assist in building a wing for Alzheimer's patients at Presbyterian Village of Detroit.

Church members are pleased they'll be able to remain in downtown Plymouth for worship and other church activities. The First Presbyterian Church, Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church and St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church have remained downtown, Magee said, although many other churches have moved out of the downtown area as their membership has grown.

The Presbyterian congregation was established 156 years ago in Plymouth, Magee said, and has been in different buildings at the same site on Church Street since that time.

A 1935 fire did extensive damage to the building, which was reconstructed in 1937. Three renovation efforts, including the current one, have since taken place.

The project has been a bit of an inconvenience for church members and staffers, some of whom moved to the nearby Dairy King to work. The construction work created a great deal of dust, and there was concern about that causing breathing problems, so some staffers moved around the corner to the ice cream shop.

"They camped out there," said

Magee, who remained at the church site with several other staffers. Those at the Dairy King jokingly complained that no ice cream was available; that business was closed for the season and was made available to the church during the reconstruction.

Those staffers will soon return to the church building, Magee knows that God doesn't have a problem with their working temporarily in an ice cream shop.

"Absolutely no problem at all. I don't think God minds particularly where people meet."

Phil Tobis and Dwight McCauley of Edwards Glass install new exterior doors in the vestibule at the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

Church secretary Judie Ford and some of her colleagues have temporarily been working in the Dairy King, which is closed for the season. They'll soon move back to the church.

Yuletide fund- raising a success for Salvation Army

Generosity isn't a rare commodity in the Plymouth-Canton community. Contributions to the Salvation Army this Christmas season show that area residents have generosity to spare.

Contributions made during the red kettle campaign totaled $96,060.01 for Canton, Plymouth and Northville, said Lt. Jeffrey Beachum, corps commander for the Salvation Army. That's about $30,000 over what was raised last year and about $15,000 over this year's goal.

"It was an incredibly successful effort," Beachum said of the kettle campaign, which ran from late November through Dec. 24. Money was collected by bell ringers at 18 sites throughout the community.

"Thousands of volunteer hours" made the 1991 kettle campaign a success, said Beachum, a Canton resident. Many service club members, church members, students, business representatives and other volunteers helped to staff the kettle sites.

A MAIL APPEAL ran concurrently with the kettle campaign and will continue through mid-January. That too is going well, he said, and organizers anticipate reaching the goal of $125,000.

The kettle campaign was coordinated by Paul Ross, community center director for the Salvation Army, and Cindy Merrifield, an advisory board member. The kettle campaign and Christmastime mail appeal are tremendously important, said Beachum, who leads the Plymouth-Canton-Northville Salvation Army with his wife, Lt. Alberta Beachum.

"A lot of people give to us largely at Christmastime." Money and non-cash contributions help the Salvation Army provide much-needed services all year long, he said.

Beachum was a little nervous early on during the fund-raising campaign. He feared that the economy's slump might mean reduced contributions to the Salvation Army, but found residents and businesspeople were willing to go the extra mile to help those in need.

Some people are, however, a bit surprised to learn that needy people do live in the Plymouth-Canton community. They assume everyone who calls the area home is doing just fine.

"That's not true. There are all kinds of people that have difficult times," Beachum said. "Those are the people that we see."

Some people have lost their jobs and need short-term help from the Salvation Army, he said. Some have been abandoned by the family breadwinner and need help making ends meet.

Some area residents need help this time of year making utility payments. The Salvation Army's "PeopleCare" program is a cooperative effort undertaken with utility companies to assist those who have difficulty paying utility bills.

The Salvation Army and other local churches provide such help so needy families don't lose their homes and end up on the street.

"We try to keep them from becoming that way," Beachum said.

Roll Call Report

Members of the 1991 session of Congress were faulted for almost everything from worsening the recession to bouncing their personal checks at the House bank.

But whatever they did right or wrong during the 11-month legislative term, they cannot be accused of avoiding roll call votes on the House and Senate floors.

Once again in 1991, the great majority of lawmakers registered high attendance at record votes conducted in the two chambers, according to a survey by Roll Call Report Syndicate.

This includes Michigan's senators and House members from the Observer & Eccentric area.

In the House, where 428 roll calls were held, the average member's voting attendance was 95.1 percent. In the Senate, which conducted 280 roll calls, the average was 97.4 percent. Lawmakers had to cast a yea or nay to be counted in attendance.

Eight House members and 19 senators recorded 100 percent attendance and overall legislative competence. But they support the notion that incumbents who are excessively truant invite political trouble ranging from newspaper editorials to negative television commercials.

SEN. CARL LEVIN, D-Mich., was one of those senators with 100 percent voting attendance. Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., was close behind, with 99 percent voting attendance.

All of Michigan's U.S. representatives had at least 90 percent attendance.

In the Observer & Eccentric area, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, was highest with 99 percent. Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods was next with 97 percent; William Broomfield, R-Birmingham, had 96 percent; Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, had 92 percent and William Ford, D-Taylor, was lowest of all Michigan's state representatives, posting 90 percent.

The lowest attendance among all House members — 36 percent — was registered by Rep. Larry Hopkins, R-Ky., who spent much of the year back home in a losing campaign for governor of Kentucky.

Rep. Mel Levine, D-Calif., ranked second from the bottom with 60 percent attendance. An undeclared candidate in the 1992 U.S. Senate race in California, he attributed most of his misses to the demands of getting his campaign under way.

Voting absenteeism was an issue in the 1990 California race for governor. Republican Pete Wilson, then a U.S. senator, caught so much flak for missing votes that he left the campaign trail only weeks before election day to return to Capitol Hill.

Levine's aides sought to downplay their boss's absenteeism. "He's had excellent attendance" throughout his 10-year House career, said a spokesman. "Mel's been asked this question before, and one of his responses always is that he never misses votes that are close."

Ranking third from the bottom, with 64 percent attendance, was Rep. Robert J. Mrazek, D-N.Y., whose misses also resulted mainly from getting an early start on a 1992 U.S. Senate campaign.

ANOTHER NEW YORK Democrat, freshman Rep. Jose Serrano, acknowledged "politically there could be a problem" over his 87 percent attendance.

Most of his 55 no-shows occurred when he remained in his South Bronx district to speak at more than two dozen school graduations, "telling the kids to stay in school, stay off drugs, showing them what I've done with my life."

Serrano doesn't feel he missed much on Capitol Hill, because "there are a lot of votes that I wonder why the heck they're being taken."

Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., who voted 84 percent of the time, feels many votes are staged for political posturing. He, too, often preferred working in his district to returning to Washington for roll calls.

An aide pointed to "the congressman's growing displeasure with the (Democratic) establishment in Congress" over its scheduling of House business. "He has constituents in Montana, he has family in Montana and he has events that he's invited to in Montana" that sometimes take precedence over House votes.

It's called Very Special Arts Michigan.

And its intent is to hone the artistic skills of physically and mentally disabled students.

Observerland schools interested in taking part in this very special program should call Livonia Arts Commission chairman Jack Olds, Very Special Arts' southeast Michigan chapter treasurer and a state board chairman, at 591-0842.

Affiliated with Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, Very Special Arts Michigan "has never been strong," said Olds, who chairs the statewide programs committee.

"It's the victim of stops and starts. But we've always stuck in there and tried to make it work."

Chapter highlights include scholarships to art camp, an art festival, bringing professional artists into the classroom and helping professional artists build recognition.

Olds, former Michigan Council for the Arts' assistant program director, hopes to bring Very Special Arts' southeast Michigan chapter art festival to Livonia this spring.

The festival draws entries in a variety of media: ceramics, glass, textile, jewelry, prints, paintings. Regional winners will move on to state competition at Western Michigan University and possibly national competition. This year's national competition theme: "The White House."

Olds' motivation for working with Very Special Arts? "It's a feeling of doing something for the community. After all the years I worked on the outside with the Michigan Council for the Arts, this now gives me a chance to work on the inside."

Did you know that three American Revolutionary War soldiers lived in Livonia?

A state historic marker at the Edward A. McNamara Bicentennial Park on Seven Mile honors that.

David Dean was born in 1763 and enlisted in the New York militia in 1778. He settled in Livonia about 1836 and died two years later.

A Connecticut native, Salmon Kingsley belonged to a company of minutemen who aided in the defense of Boston. He came to Livonia in 1825 and died two years later.

Born in New York about 1763, Jeremiah Klumph was a messenger in George Washington's Army. He lived in Livonia from 1836 until he died in 1855.

"These men were a few of the many Revolutionary veterans who settled in the West. All three journeyed with their families and settled in this area," relates the historic marker, erected in 1976 to commemorate the U.S. bicentennial.

Film crew works magic with festival

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

Those who were involved with a film project over the last two years in a small Michigan town had the magic touch — literally.

Beth Winsten of Birmingham, Pamela Conn of Plymouth and Sue Marx of Detroit, all of Sue Marx Films Inc., are co-producers of "It's Magic," a film for National Geographic Television's "Explorer" series. It will air at 9 p.m. Sunday on Turner Superstation WTBS.

The annual "magic get-together" that takes place each summer in Colon, Mich. ("The Magic Capital of the World") is the subject of the 16-minute film. It is the first National Geographic co-production with a Michigan company.

The women are thrilled and excited about the film, its subject and its setting, a small community (population 1,200) near the Irish Hills.

"It's just a feel-good film," Winsten said. "It's not going to save the world, but it might make it a little more cheerful."

"It was a good story about Michigan," Marx said. "It was a story that relatively few people knew about."

"The whole experience of making the film itself and doing the filming at Colon was wonderful," Conn said. "I do enjoy the place a lot. The whole film, the whole experience was fun, it was just plain fun."

"IT'S MAGIC" presents acts and looks behind the scenes of the festival. It features a gamut of performers, young and old. Among those are one whose whole act consists of tearing a newspaper, a funeral home director who calls himself a "gentleman planter," a man who "preaches the message of Jesus" and an English visitor who has the patter down — pat.

Conn told about the pig that presented a special challenge. "There was this pig backstage they tried to dress up like a rhinoceros," she said. "It kept alleviating itself backstage."

"It's just all so magical," Winsten said. "Almost everyone there is a character in their own right. It's more of a sense of the entire place."

The film project came together almost like — well, like magic.

Principal filming took place in August 1990, with final photography completed in 1991.

Watercolorist Billie Thompson of Livonia enjoys painting on the family's kitchen table. Thompson began watercolor classes with Edee Joppich of Farmington Hills in 1972. She has been a Farmington Artists Club member ever since. Thompson continues to study watercolor and sharpen her skills under the tutelage of Donna Vogelheim and Alice Nichols, both of Farmington.

WITHIN THE broad spectrum of art media, bronze and watercolor undoubtedly seem to fall at opposite ends.

But one can be as alluring as the other to the viewer as both must hold to the same principles of design, relationship of shapes and mastery of the medium.

Bronze sculpture takes the viewer into a world of three dimensions while the two-dimensional medium of watercolor delights the eye with a full palette.

Like night and day, the strength of line in James Bouche's abstract bronze sculpture, "Ascension," complements the vibrant palette of Billie Thompson's watercolor, "Fall Festival."

Their artwork, on exhibit Jan. 15-20 in downtown Plymouth, are part of 43 pieces chosen for Plymouth Community Arts Council's statewide fine arts competition, Michigan Art '92.

"I'm very excited about being in the show. This is the first time I'll be showing this piece," Bouche said. "Ascension" was done in memory of my mother."

Bouche's mother died two years ago after a lengthy illness. The contemporary piece, "Ascension," is the second sculpture in tribute to his mother, who strongly encouraged pursuit of his dream to become an artist.

Plymouth to host statewide art fest

Plymouth Community Arts Council will exhibit winning and selected artwork from Michigan Art '92, its third statewide fine arts competition Wednesday through Monday, Jan. 15-20, in Saxton's Showroom, 587 W. Ann Arbor Trail, adjacent to Kellogg Park.

Running concurrently with the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular, the exhibit features 30 two- and three-dimensional pieces by fine artists working in a variety of media through Michigan.

Exhibited media include oil, acrylic, watercolor, colored pencil, clay and bronze sculpture, lithograph and mixed media.

"The Plymouth Community Arts Council is very excited about presenting Michigan Art '92. It gives people a chance to see what Michigan artists are doing and there's a variety of media there. It's a very high quality show," said Doris Chatterley, event co-chairman with Janet Campbell.

Juror for Michigan Art '92 is Mary Stephenson, assistant curator for the Department of Twentieth Century Art at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Livonia artist James Bouche created the contemporary piece, "Ascension," in cast bronze. The 90-pound abstract sculpture stands about 40 inches high. It is priced at $2,500.

Arts commission homes in on exhibit gallery at library

MONTHLY ART exhibits probably will adorn the Livonia Civic Center Library gallery by spring.

Friends of the Library and the Livonia Arts Commission are poised to split the $16,000 cost to equip the glass-enclosed, second-floor gallery with suitable display panels.

"Once we get the panels, we'll have a very fine exhibition area," said Jack Olds, arts commission chairman and liaison to the Friends. "It's a key project right now."

The city council will consider the arts commission's share of the cost next Wednesday. The money will come from the commission's trust fund, not the city's general fund.

The freestanding, slatwall display panels will be expensive enough to accommodate a typical 45-piece individual exhibit and versatile enough to showcase three-dimensional pieces like sculpture and jewelry.

"SHOWS WILL be similar to what we do in the city hall lobby," said arts commissioner Dorothy Wilshaw, who will team with Olds to coordinate art exhibits at the library.

"The gallery will give us more opportunity to showcase artwork although it's probably not big enough for large club shows."

"A lot of people who come to the library don't necessarily have reason to go to the city hall so they miss out on the art exhibits there," she added. "And the library is open evenings and weekends."

Wilshaw hopes the gallery opens in early spring with an invitational exhibit and reception for Livonia artists.

A COMMITTEE is looking into whether the arts commission should consider hosting an annual fine art show at the library gallery. Such a show would be different from the commission's spring Arts and Crafts Festival at Greenmead.

"We'd be able to buy high-quality art at two city-sponsored shows under this scenario, giving us another chance to add to our city collection of artwork," Olds said.

An arts commissioner for 15 months, Olds brings an impressive resume to the commission chairmanship, which he assumed Dec. 1.

He retired about 1½ years ago after 10 years as Michigan Council for the Arts assistant program director. Before that, the former University of Northern Iowa art professor headed the Iowa Arts Council for 12 years.

He's also a regional treasurer with Very Special Arts Michigan, which brings the arts to special education students.

OLDS, AN unassuming ambassador for the arts, sees the arts commission as a source of "excitement in the community."

"A city the size of Livonia," he said, "should be involved in everything from art in public places to special art events for children, the elderly and the general citizenry."

"Art's an enhancement for our quality of life. The arts commission ought to be a leader in providing this type of service."

Working with an $18,000 annual budget, the 15 commissioners, appointed by the mayor, provide such diverse programming as chamber concerts to Music Under the Stars. The Library Show Series ranges from art lectures to magic shows.

The commission has lent a financial lift to selected cultural groups, including the Livonia Symphony, Livonia Public Schools theater students and the Livonia-Redford Theatre Guild.

Says Olds: "We support other arts groups to help them succeed in what they're doing but we also try to initiate activities not done by others."

do wood cuts (social justice issues ranging from civil rights to women's rights) and watercolors (often scenes from his camping trips across the country).

On a recent three-week trip to France and Spain, he made a wealth of sketches, from small towns along France's Loire River to Spain's sidewalk cafes. He hopes these drawings provide fodder for his watercolors.

Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett says Olds "has developed a real good rapport on the art commission and should do a nice job as chairman."

"He's working with an energetic commission that's very conscientious," the mayor added. "I'm looking forward to a very productive year from them."

Bob Sklar is assistant managing editor for special projects.

the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, where he experimented in a variety of media, Bouchee turned to bronze in search of permanence. "I had to find a niche and I found it in sculpture," Bouchee said.

He favors bronze for his sculptures because execution of a piece requires completion of a variety of tasks before reaching a final state.

"It's a wonderful medium to work in and it involves a very complex process," Bouchee said. "Bronze will outlive me and it'll be here for generations. It's been around for thousands of years."

Bouchee began the long process of creating "Ascension" by sculpting it in wax first. The wax model included a framework of channels, built around what would eventually become the actual sculpture. The channels would ensure an absence of air pockets once the molten bronze had been poured and cooled.

"You can sketch in three dimensions with wax," he said.

Over a period of months, Bouchee built up a ceramic shell around the wax, a layer at a time. Once the shell had completely dried, he burned out the wax in a kiln, using what is referred to as the lost wax method.

BOUCHEY THEN cast the piece in bronze. After it cooled, he proceeded to remove one by one the framework of channels necessary for pouring a nearly pit-free surface. Filing and finishing concluded the extensive process.

The contemporary piece was cast at Center for Creative Studies with the help of Jay Holland, professor of sculpture, and Todd Erickson, head of the foundry.

In "Ascension," two vertical lines starting at the base thrust upwards. Geometric shapes at angles leading upward crisscross the vertical lines carrying the eye around and through the space, as should a strong three-dimensional piece.

The hard, smooth element of the bronze contrasts the texture provided by a piece of rope, which binds but does not deter vertical movement. "The rope is the binding that's still bonding the family she left behind here on Earth," Bouchee said.

Bouchee's family supports his decision to become an artist. "My father has been very encouraging throughout my career."

TO PAY bills a year ago, Bouchee began a business with his wife, Tracey, also a CCS graduate. Metro Art specializes in security locks for artwork. It also deals in packaging and transporting of art.

"Eventually I'd like to do commissions full time," Bouchee said.

"When he takes a commission, he puts his whole heart and soul into it," Tracey said.

"I can't think of any better way to make a living than to do something you love," Billie Thompson said.

"Fall Festival," as with all of Thompson's work, is an evolutionary process. Starting with a watercolor wash as a base, she builds up her color through a series of glazes allowing each to dry. "It's better for me to take my time. Your first layer is very light."

Subsequent glazes of watercolor methodically build intensity until vibrant reds, greens and yellows dazzle the eye.

"I like to push a piece as far as it will go, to go for broke," Thompson said. "Watercolor shines through and you can only get that with watercolor. That's something that just seems to fascinate me."

THOMPSON BEGAN her art career taking drawing classes in Farmington's adult education program 20 years ago. From 1972 until 1975, she took acrylic painting classes with Edee Joppich of Farmington Hills. From 1979 through 1988, watercolor classes with Joppich turned the tide for Thompson. It has been watercolor ever since.

She has been a member of the Farmington Artists Club since 1972. In October, Thompson exhibited work in the annual watercolor show at the Scarab Club in Detroit. Now she's involved with painting murals on walls at Roosevelt Elementary School in Livonia.

Thompson believes that to keep growing, she must continue to study. She's taking painting classes in watercolor with Donna Vogelheim and Alice Nichols, both of Farmington.

"I think composition is very important. I will continue learning composition, learning to repeat size and shape," Thompson said. "I seem to do a lot with foliage, leaves and plants. I like some texture and I particularly like nature. Their texture and the color excites me."

IN "Fall Festival," deep red veins in beet leaves shine through the translucent green. A sectioned bunch of carrots divides the roots into dark, lighter and medium values of orange.

The watercolor montage of beets and carrots, some with greater transparency than others, contrasts an opaque green pepper. In the center of the composition, an autumn yellow square of color ties it all together.

"I used the yellow to keep pushing it back. I admire the impressionists, Cezanne and Van Gogh, their use of color," Thompson said. "I will continue pushing this palette, continue to use this palette, and fine pen ways to use it."

Bouchee's bronze, Thompson's watercolor — as different as they are alluring.

OTHER OBSERVERLAND residents appearing in Michigan Art '92 include:

● Plymouth — Tivador Balogh, sepi pencil; Mark Evers, watercolor; Toni Stevens, watercolor.

● Farmington Hills — Janus Benda, watercolor, monoprint; John Harnois, lithograph.

● Farmington — Thomas Keno, pen and ink.

● Canton — Connie Lucas, watercolor.

"Fall Festival" by Billie Thompson of Livonia is one of 43 pieces exhibited in Michigan Art '92. The watercolor was selected in the third statewide fine arts competition sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council. It is priced at $450.

cious enough to come out Sunday and help us set up the exhibition the way she envisioned it when jurying the competition," Chatterley said.

STEPHENSON HAS been an assistant curator and Michigan Artists Program coordinator at the DIA since 1987. She earned master of arts and master of fine arts degrees at Wayne State University and a certificate of museum practice at Horace H. Rackham School of Graduate Studies, University of Michigan.

She has served as a juror for the Ella Sharp Museum in Jackson, Buckham Art Center in Flint, Kalamazoo Institute of Arts, the Scarab Club in Detroit and Detroit Artists Market. She has worked with the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, Smithsonian Institution and the Michigan Commission on Art in Public Places.

A Michigan Art '92 kick-off luncheon at 11:30 a.m. Monday, Jan. 13, hosted by Cafe Bon Homme in Plymouth, will feature Stephenson as guest speaker. She will discuss her role as a fine arts competition juror, including what factors she considers in the selection process.

"Mary Stephenson will tell how and why she chose certain pieces. Then she'll do a walking tour through the exhibition," Chatterley said.

Tickets for the luncheon, including the exhibition tour at Saxton's, are $15. Since seating is limited to the first 50 reservations, call the arts council's office about buying tickets early.

AT AN opening reception 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 14, the arts council will honor winning artists with awards, including a Best of Show and a Purchase Award, totaling $2,000. The $250 Purchase Award will honor a painting selected to permanently include in the arts council's Art Rental Gallery.

Stephenson will pick the Best of Show. She'll work with Therese Gall, gallery chairwoman, to present the Purchase Award.

A sponsor since the competition's inception, Michigan National Bank contributed in part to making cash awards possible.

The Michigan Council for the Arts also is an event supporter.

"Many local businesses including Michigan National, Saxton's and Cafe Bon Homme have contributed in kind to making Michigan Art '92 a reality," Chatterley said.

All artwork in the exhibition is for sale. Prices range from $150 to $3,000.

"We hope the competition and exhibition will become an annual event," Chatterley said. "It originally started because we thought the arts council should encourage young fine artists and Michigan artists in general. There are many talented fine artists in Michigan."

Exhibition hours, beginning Jan. 15, are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Wednesday, Thursday and Monday; to 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday; and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

For more information on Michigan Art '92, call the Plymouth Community Arts Council, a non-profit group promoting and serving the arts since 1969, 455-5260.

Make resolutions in photography

Resolve to bundle up and take more outdoor shots this winter. Monte Nagler took this dramatic scene near Empire, Mich.

A new year is upon us, and as you make up your list of resolutions, don't forget to include your photography.

Begin with that new camera, lens or flash unit you found under the tree by resolving to thoroughly read the instruction manuals and familiarize yourself with all controls and functions.

Check out your existing equipment to make sure everything is in good working order. Now is an opportune time to change all batteries in all of your equipment to avoid a possible future problem.

Been procrastinating on insurance for your camera gear? How about resolving this year to check into an insurance policy? Premiums are inexpensive when compared with the financial and emotional losses if some of your equipment is lost or stolen.

RESOLVE TO take a photography class in 1992 to improve your knowledge and appreciation of photography. Many fine classes are available in the area, probably in your own community.

Browsing through photography books at your favorite bookstore will be a most valuable experience. This year especially has produced a terrific crop of photography books.

And don't forget the many fine photo galleries where you can really begin to look and learn from photographs. I can't overemphasize the importance of looking at pictures and the rewards you can gain by doing so.

Monte Nagler

MOST IMPORTANT, make that all-meaningful resolution to take more pictures in 1992. The more you shoot, the more photographic knowledge you'll gain. Branch out in new areas, too, by including shots of subjects different from what you're used to.

Begin to concentrate more and try to look deeper through the viewfinder. Tune into your feelings and think about what you want to "say" with your photographs. Get into the frame of mind that you are making a photograph, not simply taking a snapshot.

Resolve to take some of your favorite negatives or slides, have them enlarged, get them matted and framed and hang them on your walls. You will find that living with photographs will inspire you to go out and take even more.

To all of my readers, please accept best wishes for a joyous, prosperous and photo-filled New Year!

Monte Nagler is a professional photographer based in Farmington Hills.

• THE ARTISTS' GALLERY

Thursday, Jan. 9 — "Beginnings," a new show for 1992, featuring the works of well-known artists Lili Langerman and Iris Czajkowski, will run through Feb. 29. A party open to the public will take place 5-8 p.m. Thursday. The show will include oils, watercolors and collage, as well as works by gallery regulars. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday, until 8 p.m. Thursday, in Applegate Square on Northwestern Highway between 12 and 13 Mile in Southfield, 353-4707.

• SCARAB CLUB

Thursday, Jan. 9 — The 1991 Annual Printmaking and Works on Paper Exhibition will run to Jan. 25. Opening reception and awards 6-8 p.m. Thursday. The purpose of the display is to recognize achievement among Michigan and Ontario artists.

Also at the Scarab Club, prize-winning sculptor Philip Newton Kellogg of Detroit will be featured in a one-man exhibit through Jan. 31. The exhibit is a retrospective show of sculpture in wood, steel and bronze. Opening reception 6-8 p.m. Thursday. Kellogg's work has been shown in many major museums throughout the United States, and is in private collections in Rochester, Royal Oak and Pleasant Ridge.

Hours are noon to 5 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday, 217 Farnsworth at John R in Detroit's Cultural Center. Call the office at 831-1250 between noon and 5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday.

• DETROIT FOCUS

Friday, Jan. 10 — The gallery reopens after the holidays with Group II from the Review Committee Selections. Two of these Michigan artists — Marcia Freedman and Jacquelyn Ruttinger — placed work on the wall. Works by the other two — Pi Benio and Tzufen Liao — were installed. The exhibition will run to Feb. 8.

Freedman's mixed media drawings are a personalized expression of grief. Using various textures and dark, introspective tones, she creates a somber, thoughtful mood. Ruttinger uses interweaving of form and space, along with airbrushed glazes of interference and iridescent pigments to create works that evolve with regard to the viewer's perspective.

Benio created an installation using linen paper and life-size handmade paper figures. Her work is a response to her frustration with the spirit's ability to soar while the body is incapable of mobility. Liao sardonically juxtaposes fake fur and steel to create a tool whose presence speaks of a kind of illogic.

Opening reception 5:30-8:30 p.m. Friday. Hours are noon to 6 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday, 743 Beaubien, Detroit, 962-9025.

• DETROIT ARTISTS MARKET

Friday, Jan. 10 — The Detroit Artists Market announces its 60th anniversary with the "Select 5 Collect" exhibition by Michigan photographers John Carney, Joanne Leonard, Bill Sanders, Michael Sarnacki and Carl Toth, running to Feb. 7. The exhibit is to honor the artists, inform the audience and encourage the collecting of Michigan photography. Opening reception 5-7:30 p.m. Friday. Pieced work by Dusty Fleming, Cynthia Greig and Carole Zak in the upper gallery. Gallery hours 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 1452 Randolph, Detroit, 962-0337.

• SYBARIS GALLERY

Friday, Jan. 10 — One-person show of sculpture by New York artist Susan Martin, who works with such materials as wax, wood, plaster, lead and paper to create minimal and sensuous forms, will continue to Feb. 8. Opening reception for the artist 6-8:30 p.m. Friday. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 301 W. Fourth, Royal Oak, 544-3388.

• DETROIT GALLERY OF CONTEMPORARY CRAFTS

Friday, Jan. 10 — "Time Marches On," second annual show featuring unusual clocks, will run to Feb. 15. Handcrafted in a variety of media including wood, copper, forged iron and papier-mache, the works range from traditional and architectural styles to whimsical animal heads by artists from across the country. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. Call for additional evening hours. 104 Fisher Building, Detroit, 873-7888.

New TV movie features tricks and treats

The festival has been taking place for about 53 years. It occurs the second week in August in Colon, the home of the Abbott Magic Co.

About 1,000 magicians and fans from around the world attend the event. Among them is world-famous magician Harry Blackstone Jr., a Michigan native.

Famed magicians Doug Henning and David Copperfield have attended. Blackstone told about the time Arsenio Hall couldn't get a ticket and he let him in. Years later, the magician appeared on Hall's TV show.

"We all agreed we love magic," Marx said. "We all fell in love with Harry Blackstone," Winsten said.

"We saw Harry Blackstone Sr. perform," Marx said. "So we decided we would see what this was all about. We just hopped in the car."

THE TRICKS brought many treats. The festival delighted the women.

"We loved it," Marx said. "We said, 'There's a movie here.'"

It happened that a reporter from a New York magazine was at the same event.

"We knew we were on to a great story," Marx said.

The tricks at the festival are more traditional, less flashy, Conn said.

They liked the community, too.

"The people in Colon are so friendly," Marx said.

"A small child can talk to Harry Blackstone on the street and he'll do a trick," Winsten said.

And they got to know Blackstone and his family.

"They're special. Very special," Marx said.

IT WAS hard to get financing for the film because it wasn't about a serious subject.

"In the past we would go to the Michigan Council for the Arts but it's not there any more," Marx said.

At one point it didn't look as though the project would be completed.

But then Mary Jo Bales of Consumers' Power set up a meeting with John Clark, senior vice president of Consumers' Power and president of Consumers' Power Foundation.

"We see 'It's Magic' as a way of offering a striking visual message that documents why Michigan is such an outstanding place in which to live and do business," Clark said.

"The opportunity to work with Michigan's only Oscar-winning documentary company and reach 57 million households on WTBS through the prestigious National Geographic 'Explorer' series is a very exciting partnership for us."

"For a company like Consumers' Power to step forward . . . is a major statement," Winsten said.

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC read about the festival in the New York magazine and called to see "It's Magic." It was impressed that film was used instead of videotape.

"Sue Marx Films is a perfect fit for us," said Patrick Prentice, senior producer of the Explorer series.

"They make top-quality documentaries and they work in film. We look forward to doing other projects with them."

"It's Magic" will be rebroadcast on WTBS. Sue Marx Films plans on having a premiere in the future.

One Abbott employee told the filmmakers that there's no magic, it's all props. But the project could turn anyone into believing in a special magic.

PAMELA JARVI

Pamela Conn (back row) of Plymouth, Beth Winsten of Birmingham and Sue Marx of Detroit, all of Sue Marx Films Inc., are shown here with famous magician Harry Blackstone Jr. The women met Blackstone and other performers while making "It's Magic," to be seen on WTBS Sunday night.

ART LECTURES

"But I Like It," a five-part lecture series starting Sunday, Jan. 12, will help new collectors in developing confidence in selecting artwork.

Experts will cover photography, painting, decorative arts, sculpture and prints and drawing. The series will conclude with a visit to a personal collection that contains many works bought at the Detroit Artists Market.

The lectures will take place at 3 p.m. Sundays at the Detroit Artists Market, 1452 Randolph, in Detroit, in conjunction with the current exhibition. The cost per person is $25 for the series and $7 per lecture.

Light refreshments will be served. Space is limited for some events. Call 962-0337 for information.

The scheduled events are:

— Jan. 12, with the "Select Five Collect and Pieced Work" exhibition. Speaker will be Hope Palmer, adjunct professor in art and art history at Henry Ford Community College.

— Feb. 16, with the Soma/Psyche exhibition and Hilberry/Tsaris collection. Gerry Craig, Artists Market art director; architect John Hilberry, Soma/Psyche curator; and attorney Andronike Tsaris will show their international collection of 20th century art.

— March 22, with the "Message and Medium" exhibition. Bill Porter, instructor of history of design at Wayne State University and the Center for Creative Studies, will be the speaker.

— April 26, with the "Image/Text: Language in Art" exhibition. MaryAnn Wilkinson, associate curator of the Department of 20th Century Art at the Detroit Institute of Arts, will be the speaker.

— Oct. 18, a private off-site tour, open to Artists Market members only. Collectors Gayle and Andrew Camden will open their home for viewing and discussion of their collection, built by many Artists Market purchases.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Check insurance, taxes after mortgage transfer

Don't be surprised if at some point during the life of your mortgage the lender sells or transfers the servicing of your account to another financial institution.

And don't worry, either, if that happens, advises the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

It's a common practice that shouldn't effect terms and conditions of your mortgage including interest rate, monthly payment and due date. The only thing that should change is where you mail the check.

Financial institutions generally sell off the servicing of mortgage accounts to raise cash. Others buy to earn the fraction of a percentage point for servicing and interest on the escrow accounts.

A mortgagor doesn't need your permission to transfer the servicing.

But several procedural things should happen when a transfer occurs.

Expect a termination letter from the institution with which you've been doing business. That letter should identify by name, address and telephone number the firm that will service your mortgage and exactly when you should start sending payments there.

YOU ALSO should receive a letter from the new servicing agent instructing you when and where to mail payments.

If you receive notification only from a new servicer, warns the Mortgage Bankers Association, contact your original servicer to verify that your loan actually has been transferred.

If you have been paying your mortgage through an electronic funds transfer or automatic check draft each month, it's up to you to fill out forms for payment to be sent directly to the new servicer.

The old servicer should notify homeowners insurance companies and taxing authorities about a transfer to a new servicer. But it never hurts to follow up yourself to make sure that's been done.

Remember that escrow accounts also will transfer.

"The transfer servicing market is becoming much more professional," said Daniel B. Smith, vice president and Plymouth branch manager for Republic Bancorp Mortgage. "There were a lot of problems initially. The biggest bitch I hear is taxes and insurance not being paid and in a timely manner."

Republic, which isn't selling mortgage accounts now, has sold about 65 percent of its accounts over the past three years, Smith said.

"IF A LOAN is sold, a customer should take precaution for the first year and really keep an eye on things," he advised. "Make sure taxes are paid on time and make sure payments are posted properly as to interest versus principal."

Toll-free telephone numbers often are provided by servicers, but be aware that larger institutions may be difficult to reach, Smith said.

Standard Federal Bank, the largest in Michigan in terms of mortgage dollar volume, also buys the right to service other mortgages.

"There's nothing another lender can do to alter the (original) contracts," said Robert Spehar, vice president for loan administration and acquisition at Standard Federal.

"It is a normal business transaction," he said, adding that a transfer isn't a reflection on an individual borrower's credit position.

Spehar passed along other advice.

"If their loan is subject to electronic transfer, they want to see if that can continue. It's not contractual, but an accommodation banks make."

"Also, life insurance and disability insurance is not part of a mortgage contract. Most can be transferred but check."

"Pay attention to those hello and goodbye letters. They want to be real concerned about the effective date of transfer, especially at the end of the year, so they get proper credit," Spehar said.

THE MORTGAGE Bankers Association offers the following consumer checklist:

- Keep your servicer informed of changes in your address and telephone number.

- When a transfer occurs, be sure you receive both a goodbye and a welcoming letter. Carefully read those letters and note the new servicer's name, address, telephone number, contact person and payment schedule.

- Make sure that your taxing authority and insurance company know about the transfer.

- Find out which company will be reporting mortgage interest paid for income tax purposes.

- Ask questions and iron out details as close to the time of transfer as possible. If problems subsequently arise, contact the new servicer.

Condo's redeeming qualities has owner confused

I am a co-owner in a condominium whose lien has been foreclosed on by the condominium association. A sheriff's sale was conducted, and I have six months to "redeem" the property. I am not sure what that means. Do I have any recourse?

What apparently has happened is that the association is foreclosing on its lien for non-payment of assessments and has conducted a public auction with respect to your unit. Presumably, the association was the highest bidder at the Sheriff's sale, but that cannot be determined without checking the records.

The redemption period, as it relates to the sale, means that you would have within six months from the date of sale to repay the Register of Deeds the amount bid at the sheriff's sale, together with interest on the amount bid.

It is highly advisable that you contact an attorney. If you do not redeem the property within the appropriate statutory period, you will lose the property outright. If there is equity in the unit, that is, if the value of the unit is in excess of the amount that you owe to any secured creditors, including the mortgage company and the condominium association, that money will be lost if you do not redeem the property.

You should consider selling the property if you cannot afford to pay off the redemption amount before the expiration of the redemption period so that you can use the sale proceeds to pay off the amount owed, thereby at least keeping part of your equity in the property. You should also confirm exactly how long you have to redeem the property before you will have lost your rights.

Our condominium complex is a conversion from an apartment with both upper and lower units. The developer, upon the sale of the two lower units, authorized removal of two existing balconies for replace-condo queries

Robert M. Melsner

ment with 9-X-15 decks. After turnover of the complex to the association, the remaining balconies were found to be unsafe and were replaced with decks, the same size as the original 5-X-8 balconies. A recent buyer has requested approval to enlarge his balcony deck to match the two larger decks. There are may contrary opinions in regard to the propriety of this action. The question presented by an opposing co-owner is: Does the board have the authority to approve an encroachment onto a limited common element with the enlarged deck?

If the limited common element area in which the deck is to be expanded is that of the co-owner who has asked to expand the deck, it is more than likely that the condominium bylaws would allow such extension, subject to approval of the board of directors. But an analysis of the condominium master deed and bylaws would have to be made to assure this fact. If the deck was extended onto general common element property, the board would not have that authority unless specifically given that right in the condominium documents, which is generally not the case as it would be deemed an expropriation of property. You are best advised to get a written legal opinion on this issue before the board grants any approval to any modifications.

Robert M. Melsner is a Birmingham attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate and corporate law.

More jobs and more people will lead to more building activity.

That's the philosophy and focus of Bernard Gliberman, a West Bloomfield builder and incoming president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

He succeeds James Bonadeo, a Plymouth builder, who served as BASM president for an unprecedented three years.

"My main goal is to create jobs in Michigan. That's my thrust," Gliberman said. "Every new job represents a housing start."

Glieberman, 52, who said he's been a BASM member for some 20 years, estimates that he's constructed 8,000 residential units during that time. He's president of Crosswinds Communities and was selected Builder of the Year in 1991 by the association.

"Demographers say there's no population influx in Michigan; people are just moving around," Gliberman said. "We've got to change that. When EDS came to town, housing boomed. We need to bring more jobs to Michigan. To me, that's my most important job as president of BASM."

GLIEBERMAN SAID he intends to meet regularly with county and state commerce officials to promote southeastern Michigan.

"I told the county I'm willing to sit down with a prospect and show them what a town we have," Gliberman said. "I think a businessman gets a comfort there. I think I can get other builders to join me and help out."

"We have a state here when you compare it with other parts of the country and quality of life here, you've got everything you want — great recreation, good schools, culture, very affordable housing, affordable water, affordable utilities," he said.

Bernard Gliberman: "Builders and communities have learned there's a middle ground we can go down to live happily ever after. I think that happens in more and more communities."

"We have to shake the bushes and make companies understand we have a good supply of skilled labor."

Glieberman also intends to keep active on other fronts that affect the professional association of builders, suppliers and others affiliated with the construction industry.

"I'm going to propose to our board of directors that we get more directly involved with legislators," he said. Areas of concern impacting employment generally and the building industry by extension include import/export restrictions, workers compensation and the single business tax.

BASM, WITH some 2,000 members, is the third-largest nationally in terms of numbers even though building activity volume here ranks only 15th or 16th nationally, Gliberman said. "I want to remain number three or move up in membership."

Membership offers all kinds of benefits from informational meetings to reduced-cost medical insurance, he said.

"You join because of networking. When you first join, you talk with other builders, hear what they're doing, attend seminars, meet subcontractors to further your knowledge of the business. If you look at the BASM schedule, there's about a meeting a day."

Technical service staff also is available to provide information on product use, he added.

Builders and community activists concerned about overbuilding still eye each other cautiously, Gliberman added, but both sides seem to have taken a hard edge off their positions.

"We're starting to learn how to co-exist," he said. "Builders and communities have learned there's a middle ground we can go down to live happily ever after. I think that happens in more and more communities."

Glieberman assured that his avocations — ownership of the Ottawa Rough Riders professional football team and an extensive car collection — won't interfere with his building business and his BASM leadership responsibilities.

"As a businessman in Michigan my goal is to get other people in here now," he said. "The state of Michigan should have as its number one priority to do whatever it takes to get more jobs in."

And more jobs means more people and more people means more building opportunities.

Survey seeks dream home specifications

If house designers would just ask me, you may have thought, I could tell them what people really want in a house.

Well, here's your chance. Landmark Designs, in partnership with Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, is asking you to tell them exactly what features and amenities you would include in your dream house. Now in its 15th year of designing houses and writing a house design column, Landmark Designs has learned that readers can always teach them a thing or two. Or more.

WHETHER YOU plan to build a house, filling out the form can help clarify your preferences. And it's an opportunity to let your imagination soar. Landmark Designs has provided the accompanying survey form that includes the same questions architects, designers and real estate agents ask to determine clients' wants and needs.

Readers are encouraged to attach letters, sketches or other comments — the more detailed, the better.

Once the nationwide results of the survey are tallied, Landmark will design a national dream house. And because regional preferences vary widely, Landmark will design a house to meet the specifications preferred by Observer & Eccentric readers.

FLOORPLANS AND artist's renderings of the dream houses will appear on these pages in the spring.

Following publication of these plans, Landmark will provide a free set of working drawings to the first person who is willing to build one of the dream houses and open it to public display for a limited time.

Mail forms to Landmark Designs, Dept. 92, P.O. Box 2307, Eugene Or. 97402. There is no charge to participate in the survey. But those interested in receiving a copy of the national survey results must include $4 to cover the cost of postage and printing. Those persons must include their name and mailing address.

Local builders' optimism triggered

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Last year wasn't exactly a banner one for residential construction here, according to leadership of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, but several factors are in place for a turnaround during 1992.

That was the message Tuesday during BASM's annual news conference on the state of the local building industry.

BASM leaders pin their optimism on declining mortgage rates and a boost in consumer confidence and pent-up demand.

"With lower interest throughout 1991 — really plummeting, especially during the last quarter — and with mortgage companies being extremely cooperative, buyers can find some really sweet deals in new homes," said Robert Halperin, a BASM vice president and Birmingham real estate agent.

According to figures provided by BASM from the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, single-family building permits in southeast Michigan fell to 9,200 last year from 10,700 in 1990 and 12,400 in 1989.

"I THINK that customer confidence, consumerism, was the single biggest factor," Halperin said. "That has been one thing that put a hold on (housing starts) more than anything else. I don't think we even thought of it, absolutely."

Bernard Gliberman, BASM president and a West Bloomfield builder, while not committing to a specific number, said he anticipates that residential building permits issued this year will at least match the 10,700 issued in 1990.

"With interest rates as low as they are, with the movement we already are beginning to see in the marketplace and given competition in the business, there's a window of opportunity right now to get more value at less cost than we have seen in 20 years," Gliberman said.

"A look at Wall Street tells us things are beginning to move," he added. "The stock market usually is about six months ahead of the marketplace, and it has just achieved its highest level ever."

BASM will do its part to stimulate the market by sponsoring three Homearamas this year.

ONE IN Oakland Township will include a Smart House featuring an electronic automation appliance control system. The second will be in Detroit, the first subdivision built there in three decades. And the third, a planned unit development in Sterling Heights, will feature both condominiums and houses.

BASM annually also sponsors the largest local building and home show in North America, Gliberman noted.

"Our goal is to help consumers make informed decisions about new homes and financing so that they can take advantage of market opportunities this year," Gliberman said.

Mark Guidobono, BASM vice president and a Novi builder, briefly spoke about what buyers specifically are looking for in new homes.

"Openness is a feature many seek today, with soaring two-story foyers and great rooms that provide a feeling of spaciousness," he said. "A lot of people want special areas such as media rooms and fitness rooms."

"There also is a trend toward multi-purpose areas that serve as computer or office space, a child's play room and at times a guest room."

"BUILDERS ARE adding more skylights and windows not only for light and air but to enhance the design element of the home," he said. "We are seeing more fireplaces that serve two rooms at the same time, accent lighting in kitchens and steeper roof pitches."

Other touches mentioned by Guidobono — video security systems, motion sensors in rooms and more energy efficient furnaces.

Other topics were addressed.

● Abe Ran, BASM vice president and a Troy developer, noted that developers are aware of the need for more residential lots. They're responding by preparing land in Novi, Canton, West Bloomfield and Sterling Heights in particular.

"Every builder we deal with, they want lots," Ran said.

● Peace seems to have been made between developers and no-growth community advocates, at least from BASM's perspective.

"Planners have to be aware of a happy medium. We do, too," said Irvin H. Yackness, BASM executive vice president and general counsel. "Environmentalists and builders recognize there has to be a balance. Growth is an affirmative thing. It means more jobs, more prosperity for everybody."

These charts show the impact of land costs on the price of a new single-family house. Recent technological advances in house building have significantly increased efficiency and reduced the proportionate costs of labor and materials. In 1949, labor and materials accounted for 69 percent of the cost of a new house. By 1990, the total had dropped to 53 percent. But the drop was offset by a sharp increase in the cost of a developed lot.

'Tis the season for building awards.

The Livonia-based Masonry Institute of Michigan in cooperation with the Michigan Society of Architects will host its 17th annual awards banquet on March 7 at the Northfield Hilton in Troy.

The masonry industry will honor Michigan architects for their accomplishments in design. In cooperation with Lawrence Technological University, the ninth biennial student masonry design competition will also take place.

mESD — The Engineering Society is taking entries for its 18th annual construction and design awards program from professionals in architecture, engineering, general contracting and ownership for projects completed after Jan. 1, 1988.

Entries are evaluated on these topics: land use/environmental considerations; appropriateness of materials; innovative construction materials; quality of overall design; unique engineering systems features; degree of energy consciousness; and end use/socio-economic impact on Michigan.

Entries will be accepted until Feb. 28. Judging will be in mid-March. Awards be presented at ESD's 97th annual meeting in June at the Chrysler Technology Center in Auburn Hills.

mMichael J. Genrich has joined Garrison Co., a Farmington Hills-based design/build general contracting firm as project manager. He previously had been a project manager with the R.A. DeMattia Co.

IN TODAY'S JOB MARKET EMPLOYERS WANT MORE THAN THE SAME OLD B.S.

Every year, over a million new college graduates put on their new blue suits and go job hunting.

All of them have degrees. Most of them have hearty handshakes. But very few have what employers want most — practical work experience.

That's why there's a nationwide program called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work experience in the career of their choice.

So Co-op Education students graduate with more than a degree. They have practical knowledge. And a competitive advantage in today's crowded job market. And that sure beats trying to B.S. your way into a job.

Hotness index registers gains

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Single-family residential building activity is on the rebound nationally and in the eight-county metro Detroit area, according to an analysis of figures compiled by U.S. Housing Markets, a Livonia-based research/reporting service.

Building permits issued nationally for single-family houses and townhouses July through September increased 4.4 percent from the corresponding period last year, the service reported.

In Detroit/Ann Arbor, single-family permits increased 9 percent during the third quarter of 1991 compared to 1990.

(The Detroit/Ann Arbor area includes Oakland, Wayne, Macomb, Monroe, Washtenaw, Livingston, St. Clair and Lapeer counties.)

But when multiple-family construction, basically apartments and condominiums, is included, building permits nationally slipped 4.1 percent and in Detroit/Ann Arbor 7.9 percent during the third quarter when compared to the same period in 1990, U.S. Housing Markets reported.

A hotness index — units permitted per 1,000 population — also indicates an improving market.

In Detroit/Ann Arbor, the hotness index, including the first three quarters this year and the last quarter of 1990, is 3.0 per 1,000. That compares to an index of 2.3 per 1,000 for the first half of this year and the second half of last year and 2.6 for calendar year 1990.

THE HOTNESS index improved dramatically during the third quarter for all nine other Midwest metro areas surveyed by U.S. Housing Markets.

- Chicago jumped from 2.1 to 2.8 per 1,000.
- Cincinnati 3.4 to 4.9.
- Cleveland 2.3 to 2.8.
- Columbus 4.0 to 5.7.
- Indianapolis 4.6 to 5.6.
- Kansas City 3.9 to 4.6.
- Milwaukee/Racine 2.3 to 4.6.
- Minneapolis/St. Paul 4.6 to 5.3.
- St. Louis 2.7 to 3.2.

"The numbers show a moderate but unmistakable single-family upturn in most cities across the country," said Gene H. Bishop, president of Mortgage USA, which publishes U.S. Housing Markets. "The single-family sector is carrying the whole load, however. Multi-family construction is still in a state of collapse."

Lack of financing for multiple-family construction has put the lid on that activity, U.S. Housing Markets reported. Declining mortgage rates have put more first-time buyers in the game.

"THE KEY ingredient in the turnaround is the long-suffering, first-time buyer, who now has a reasonable opportunity to become a homeowner after years of being knocked out of the marketplace," said Jess Hay, chairman of Lomas Financial Group, parent company of Lomas Mortgage.

"The hot air is gone from the resale market after years of hyperinflation in many metropolitan areas," Hay said. "More home builders are returning to the grass roots of housing and addressing the needs of first-time buyers and other buyers

Brian Bragg, editor of U.S. Housing Reports, attributed the improvement in the building outlook to a couple of factors.

"What we've got nationally was inventories worked off," he said. "Builders are not putting up speculative homes any more. You don't take out a whole bunch of permits and wait for sales to catch up. Permits and sales run parallel."

"Now, we're looking at five or six years since the last wave of building nationally. The Midwest was a little later, 1987, '88. People in those houses are ready to move up. Interest rates are down. First-timers are able to buy off somebody who wants to move up, and they buy off somebody who wants to move up. It's a domino effect."

In spite of the third-quarter comeback, residential construction permits of all kinds issued through the first nine months of this year are down 19.1 percent nationally and 22.7 percent in Detroit/Ann Arbor compared to the January-September period of 1990, U.S. Housing Markets reported.

Bedroom as hideaway

AP — When deafened by the roar of the busy working world, come home to quiet comfort. Slip into a bedroom decorated in eloquent and understated tones, suggests Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

Begin with a sense of simplicity derived from the out-of-doors. Imagine dropping out of the rat race and letting a decorating style grow naturally. Then take these simple steps toward creating a relaxing room:

• Unclutter the view. It's a good idea to pare down from time-to-time, clearing the decks of non-functioning possessions. Sell or trade them, or store them until donating them to a better use.

If privacy isn't necessary, uncover windows to let nature's panorama entertain. For privacy, hang simple roller shades or miniature blinds that disappear during the day.

• Brandish the brush. To simplify the room, paint the walls and furnishings white. Coat the ceiling with white enamel that will reflect the light around the room. Then, add white accessories. The beauty of an all-white room is not having to worry about coordinating colors. Also, white cleans and purifies, sets the room aglow, and helps the space seem larger than it really is.

• Touch with whimsy. Hang on to a sense of humor and include it in the bedroom. For tickling the eye, choose one or two accessories that make tongue-in-cheek statements.

Charity bash to pave way for auto fest

By Janice Tigar-Kramer
 special writer

ONCE AGAIN, Detroit's North American International Auto Show (NAIAS) begins Hollywood-style with a black-tie charity preview in the Cobo Conference & Exhibition Center the eve of opening day. This year's star-studded event, which includes a sneak preview of the show itself, is hosted by television actor Robert Ulrich (star of the recent series "Spenser: For Hire"), Detroit's own Grammy award-winning singer Anita Baker, who returns to the show for a second year, and Detroit radio personality J.P. McCarthy. Joining Ulrich and Baker in the two-hour special are the Hinton Battle Dance Troupe and four supermodels from the United States and Europe, who'll add more glamour to an already flashy lineup of new production cars and concept vehicles. The Oak Ridge Boys will appear via a prerecorded performance. Jason Priestly and Jennie Garth of the television hit, "Beverly Hills 90210," also will be on hand.

For the second consecutive year, WKBD-Channel 50 will produce and televise the charity bash live from Cobo Center, 7-9 p.m. Friday, Jan. 10. The show's producer is Sam Riddle, producer of the well-known show "Star Search."

For the second consecutive year, WKBD-Channel 50 will produce and televise the charity bash live from Cobo Center, 7-9 p.m. Friday, Jan. 10. The show's producer is Sam Riddle, producer of the well-known show "Star Search."

SPONSORED BY the auto show and the Detroit Auto Dealers Association (DADA), the charity preview, the auto show's traditional kickoff, brings together executives from the Big Three, auto manufacturing leaders from Germany, Japan, England, Sweden and France, local financial and government leaders and national celebrities. Besides attracting the automotive bigwigs and other notables, the annual charity event this year is expected to raise $1 million for eight local children's charities, according to DADA.

"We're excited again about the charity preview. Last year, we raised over $700,000 for children's charities and this year will be even better," said Rod Alberts, DADA associate vice president. "Support from manufacturers and dealers is tremendous, so in general it's a great event for the city and local communities." Besides the live and prerecorded interviews with leaders of the Big Three, automotive designers and members of the show's organizing committee, viewers at home will see many of the 1992 production cars and trucks and concept vehicles displayed at the fourth annual auto show. The show is open to the public Jan. 11-19.

"MOST OF all the show is for a good cause. But what we've tried to do is bring an entertainment value to the automotive product. All of the entertainment segments have an automotive theme and some numbers are even done on the show floor around or on the cars," said Toby Cunningham, WKBD director of creative services and local programming. Show coverage continues on Channel 50 Saturday, Jan. 11, with live updates and an hourlong special hosted by Ulrich, said Cunningham. Besides the local coverage, highlights of the charity preview will be edited for a one-hour auto show special being sold to about 200 television stations nationwide. This syndicated show airs around the country in February or March. Tickets for the charity preview are $125 per person. Proceeds from ticket sales go to the charity selected by the purchaser. Charities benefiting from ticket sales include Barst Human Services, Boys and Girls Clubs of Metro Detroit, The Children's Center, Detroit Institute for Children, Easter Seal, March of Dimes, Children's Services of Northeast Guidance Center-Assistance League and the Detroit Police Athletic League.

Chrysler's dream car, Viper, marks Motor City debut

By Janice Tigar-Kramer

CHRYSLER'S SPORTY Dodge Viper RT/10 has come a long way in just three years when it dazzled spectators as a concept car at Detroit's North American International Auto Show. Production of the two-seater muscle car, with a mighty all-aluminum 8.0 liter V10 engine, began Nov. 18 at the company's high-tech New Mack Avenue Viper Assembly Plant. Though the Viper's worldwide debut was at the Los Angeles auto show Jan. 2-3, Viper's hometown debut will be during the Detroit auto show Jan. 11-19. The car displayed at Cobo Center will be the second production version made at the Mack Avenue assembly plant.

The Nissan FEV electric concept car has sufficient range for normal daily urban use.

Nissan displays future electric car

DETROIT WILL see the North American introduction of Nissan's new Future Electric Vehicle at the North American International Auto Show.

The FEV is an urban family car that can be recharged to 40 percent capacity in six minutes and 100 percent capacity in under 15 minutes, one-fifth to one-fourth the time of conventional systems.

The concept vehicle is a 2+2 coupe with sufficient range for normal daily urban usage. It has creature comforts and conveniences to which car buyers are accustomed, including ample interior and luggage space.

The FEV was specifically designed as an electric vehicle and features an aerodynamic design.

Powered by an advanced high torque electric motor, the coupe provides performance comparable to today's high mileage economy cars. It boasts a top speed of 81 mph and a cruising range of 100 miles at approximately 45 mph.

Chevrolet's Sizigi could be the family van of the future. Special features include reversible seats and tracks that allow seats to slide forward for more storage space.

Chevrolet unveils futuristic family van

CHEVROLET WILL unveil Sizigi, a concept Lumina all-purpose vehicle, at the Detroit auto show.

Presented as a future possibility for family transportation, Sizigi has advanced convenience and flexibility. Special features include reversible seats, track seating, dual sunroofs, a sliding table with a TV and VCR, a credit-card-type ignition, hidden running boards and halo lighting.

Track seating allows the second and third row of seats to slide forward to provide storage space. Or the seats can be removed for even more cargo room. Driver and passenger seats also have storage space underneath.

The second row of seats revolves 360 degrees so that rear passengers can use a table that slides along a track down the center of the van. The driver isn't disturbed by halo lighting around the perimeter of the passenger area.

Outside, Sizigi has a rounded nose and a curved glass windshield. Running boards provide easy entrance and exit.

Still flashy

Economy no setback for 1992 auto show

By Janice Tigar-Kramer
special writer

FROM THE looks of this year's North American International Auto Show at Detroit's Cobo Center, you'd never guess the nation is in the thick of an uncertain economy.

Participating in the flashy show isn't cheap, yet foreign and American nameplate passenger cars and trucks will be displayed with the same pomp and circumstance as ever. And as usual, it's still the best place in town (or in the world for that matter) to see almost every foreign and domestic vehicle that automakers produce or hope to under one roof.

This year, 57 manufacturers will parade more than 700 production and concept cars and trucks before the public Jan. 11-19 to kick off what car dealers and manufacturers hope will be a robust buying year.

But even if you're not in a buying mood, the show is well worth the $6 admission, said Carl Fischer, show co-chairman and owner of Fischer-Buick-Mazda-Suzuki in Troy.

DETROIT AUTO show goers will see 16 worldwide or North American introductions and 23 concept cars and trucks.

For starters, Chrysler Corp. will debut its sporty Dodge Viper RT/10 (a product of Detroit's high-tech Mack Avenue Viper Assembly Plant) before a waiting audience that will remember Viper as a concept car that stole the show in 1989.

Mercedes will make a worldwide introduction outside Germany for the first time in its history. The prestigious automaker will premiere the Mercedes S Class Coupe priced somewhere between a cool $125,000-$150,000. BMW will unveil two new models here and Ford shows three concept trucks.

"There will be a lot of 'firsts' at the show this year, but no disappointments," Fischer said.

Because of the show's international status, more production and concept cars are introduced in Detroit than in any other host city in the United States.

This year marks Detroit's fourth international show, a status granted in 1989 by a coalition of Detroit auto dealers and industry leaders "who decided it was time to redefine Detroit's position as the center of the auto industry," said Gordon Stewart, show co-chairman and owner of Gordon Chevrolet-GEO in Garden City, Stewart Chevrolet-GEO in Trenton and two dealerships in south Florida.

"A TRUE international show didn't exist in North America at the time, and we found the likes of Ford, Chrysler and GM very supportive of the idea," Stewart said. "I think the big turn came when it was decided that both Lexus and Infiniti would be introduced worldwide at our show."

And because the Motor City show produces an abundance of company executives, it draws an increasing number of "important" foreign and domestic auto writers who not only have influence over which cars consumers check out, but which ones they eventually will buy, Stewart said.

"We really have two shows, a press show and a design show," said Stewart, adding that it is not a "selling show" like Chicago's, for example.

"The show was created to give consumers a non-threatening place to compare cars. Dealers are forbidden to sell at the Detroit show," he said.

Maybe you can't place orders here, but the show tends to start the selling season early by dangling flashy new vehicles before hungry consumers like juicy beef tenderloin. And wise dealers and manufacturers try to get as much mileage as possible from the show, hoping it will generate sales far longer than the nine show days.

WHAT'S THE outlook for passenger car and truck sales? "We're in an industrywide down period right now. But it's the nature of the business to go in cycles and that will never change," Fischer said.

"This is a high-priced consumer item, but people have a love affair with the automobile. The good news is that we have a good product today and the quality gap between domestics and imports is narrow."

'We're in an industrywide down period right now. But it's the nature of the business to go in cycles and that will never change. This is a high-priced consumer item, but people have a love affair with the automobile.'

Concept cars — wild and practical

By Dan McCosh
special writer

WHY DON'T they build that? That's the most-asked question in reaction to the concept cars that salt the aisles of any major auto show. Why, indeed?

The role of one-of-a-kind concept cars — once known as dream cars — is more or less unique to the auto industry.

One could scarcely imagine someone in the computer business putting some future product on display in an environment where new products are born, grow old and die off in discount catalogs within the space of a few months.

In fact, future-oriented concept cars often seem deliberately designed to mislead competitors

Preview days mix suppliers, car makers

By Janice Tigar-Kramer
special writer

SUPPLIER PREVIEW Days at Detroit's North American International Auto Show is one way to bring automotive suppliers face-to-face with the world's automakers — and a darned good way, says Daniel Hayes, show general manager and Detroit Auto Dealers Association executive vice president.

Supplier Preview Days (formerly called Industry Trade Days) will be held Thursday and Friday, Jan. 9-10.

The event gives automotive suppliers worldwide a chance to examine the new cars and trucks firsthand and meet with the automakers and dealers in a central location. It's also an opportunity for suppliers to tour the show with customers and point out their company's contribution to the production and concept vehicles on display.

"First of all, it's an opportunity for the automotive suppliers to see the show and state-of-the-art manufacturing without the crowds," Hayes said. "These days give suppliers a chance to stand back and see the part they play in the whole automotive picture."

THE PROGRAM for suppliers only started just last year after DADA representatives saw how well supplier days worked at other international auto shows. But unlike the other shows, Supplier Preview Days in Detroit is sponsored by the DADA, not the suppliers.

"Three years ago, when we saw the success of Supplier Preview Days in Frankfurt (Germany) and England, we decided it was only logical to do the same in Detroit, where locally there are so many automotive suppliers," Hayes said. "Last year, we called it Industry Trade Days, but no one knew what that meant. So we formed an advisory committee and decided to make it simple. We're calling it Supplier Preview Days, like Germany does."

In spite of its name, last year's two-day program brought 2,325 representatives to the show from nearly 400 automotive supplier companies. This year, requests for credentials (at $30 a head) should reach 4,000, Hayes said.

What makes Supplier Preview Days unique is its informal agenda. Unlike the annual Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) show, where suppliers attend scheduled conferences to learn about new manufacturing techniques and materials used in the automotive industry, Supplier Preview Days encourages suppliers to roam through the show at their own pace to examine the finished products and talk with company representatives.

"I'm sure there will be an exchange of ideas. This is an excellent opportunity for suppliers and manufacturers to interface," Hayes said. "Suppliers might introduce new products to manufacturers, but that's up to the suppliers."

AFTER LAST year's successful premier of Supplier Preview Days, the DADA set up a committee of supplier charter members to discuss how to expand the range of this two-day event.

The involvement of charter members "proves the suppliers see this as an important function in their business practice, above and beyond normal contacts," said Carl Fischer, show co-chairman.

For Joe Bactor, business development and marketing vice president at American Sunroof Corp., last year's Supplier Preview Days was an education.

"By creating new ideas on current production vehicles, as opposed to building futuristic concept cars, we can show the customer the final product right there on the floor. This also offers us the opportunity to bring in components and parts and not just the whole car," Bactor said.

PPG Industries, a major supplier to the automotive industry, will return to preview days this year. "We saw six months worth of people in two days," said a company spokesman.

Daniel Hayes show general manager

Concept pickup debuting

THE FORD F-150 Super Flarside, a concept vehicle based on the Ford Flarside pickup truck, will make its worldwide introduction in Detroit.

The vehicle has a cobalt blue exterior finish with purple highlights. The color is carried through to the grille and bumpers as well as the cab and seven-foot long pickup box.

Dual Power domes in the hood continue the theme as does a new combination front bumper/brush guard with integral fog lights, a unique cab step bar/roll bar with airfoil driving lights, a dual exhaust and 17-inch wheels and tires.

The Super Flarside's tailgate is modified and includes a new "duck tail" spoiler that opens to the pickup box.

You know that car you always wanted?

What you're looking at here is a car that comes with a 1.9-liter DOHC, 16-valve, 4-cylinder engine, aluminum alloy wheels, leather-wrapped steering wheel, and your name written all over it.

Domestic cars span price spectrum

By Janice Tigar-Kramer

NEW CAR buyers or just browsers will have plenty to take in at this year's North American International Auto Show, where about 700 American nameplate and import cars and light trucks will be packed under one roof.

And if you're a serious car buyer, the show is the only place in North America to see almost every car made on display.

Price-conscious buyers still can find a handful of American nameplate cars under $10,000, but expect a wider selection of new cars with a base sticker price of about $14,000-$18,000.

For car buyers looking for price, fuel economy, reliability and good performance (you determine the order), there's the Ford Festiva. The L model, two-door hatchback, has a modest price tag of $6,941, making it the lowest-priced American nameplate car.

Festiva has no new exterior styling for 1992, but look for three new exterior colors — bright aqua, cayman green and brilliant blue.

Standard are front-disc brakes, steel-belted radial tires and a MacPherson-strut front suspension. Festiva comes with a five-speed manual transmission, or add $515 for automatic.

FORD INTRODUCED Festiva to North American consumers in 1987, hoping to attract first-time and import-oriented car buyers; nearly 200,000 cars have been sold in the past three years.

Besides price, part of Festiva's appeal is its outstanding highway fuel-economy rating of 43 miles per gallon, possibly the highest in its class.

Festiva's sportier GL model, also a two-door hatchback, is $7,980. Look for a new GL sport option, including aluminum wheels, six tape-stripe designs, a rear-roof-edge spoiler and sporty fabric for seats and door panels. Power steering isn't available on the L or GL models.

"Our goal is to deliver a reliable, fuel efficient, sporty car at a practical price to first-time buyers," said Ross Roberts, Ford Motor Co. vice president and Ford Division general manager.

IF PRICE is no object, consider the Cadillac Allante with a price tag of $58,470 for the convertible model and a whopping $64,090 for the convertible hardtop (the most expensive of the American nameplates).

The Allante, Cadillac's flagship vehicle, begins its sixth model year in 1992. (The 1993 model makes its worldwide debut at the Detroit show and should be in dealer showrooms in April).

For 1992, Allante keeps its 4.5-liter, tuned port-fuel-injected V8 engine and Traction-Control System. Allante is capable of reaching more than 130 mph and zero to 60 mph in just eight seconds. Its fuel economy rating is 15 miles per gallon for city driving, 22 miles per gallon on the highway.

The 1992 model features a folding soft top with a gas spring-assisted cover and power latch designed for driver convenience. Allante can be equipped with a removable hardtop. Tops are fitted to handcrafted bodies made by Pininfarina of Italy.

Cadillac has boosted Allante's standard Delco-Bose Gold Series Symphony system (including AM/FM stereo, compact disc and cassette player) to 200 watts.

Other features include a Bosch III anti-lock brake system, multiplex wiring, forged aluminum wheels and 10-way seats.

The 1992 Cadillac Allante, the highest priced American nameplate, is available with a folding soft top or a removable hard top.

The Ford Festiva, the lowest priced American nameplate, is Ford's most efficient small car.

Steer into future at Safety Theater

VISITORS TO the North American International Auto Show will get a glimpse of what it's like driving in the year 2010 at the General Motors Corporate display featuring a simulated driving course.

The GM Safety Technology Theater, which allows show goers to experience GM's present and concept safety features and technology, represents a windshield and instrument panel measuring approximately 50 feet long and 13 feet high.

Throughout the nine-day auto show, visitors will take their places before the open theater for a 10-minute narrated "drive" through the roads of today and tomorrow.

Using video and film, the automaker shows the head-up device, onboard navigation, vision enhancement, crash avoidance and holograms for traffic control.

Head-up, an option on GM's 1992 luxury cars, projects turn signals, low fuel warning and other

Change Spectacle boasts a checkered history

By Janice Tigar-Kramer
special writer

VISITORS TO Detroit's fourth North American International Auto Show may wonder "What recession?" as they roam through the expansive — and expensive — displays of nearly 60 of the world's leading auto manufacturers.

As usual, Cobo Center will be filled with elaborate displays that accentuate, spotlight, dramatize and sometimes suspend the new production cars and trucks and innovative conceptual vehicles.

And this year's show will have more worldwide and North American introductions than ever before, promises Carl Fischer, show co-chairman.

When did it begin? Detroit's show, one of the oldest in the U.S., goes back to 1899 when it was billed as a livestock and car show at the Light Guard Armory.

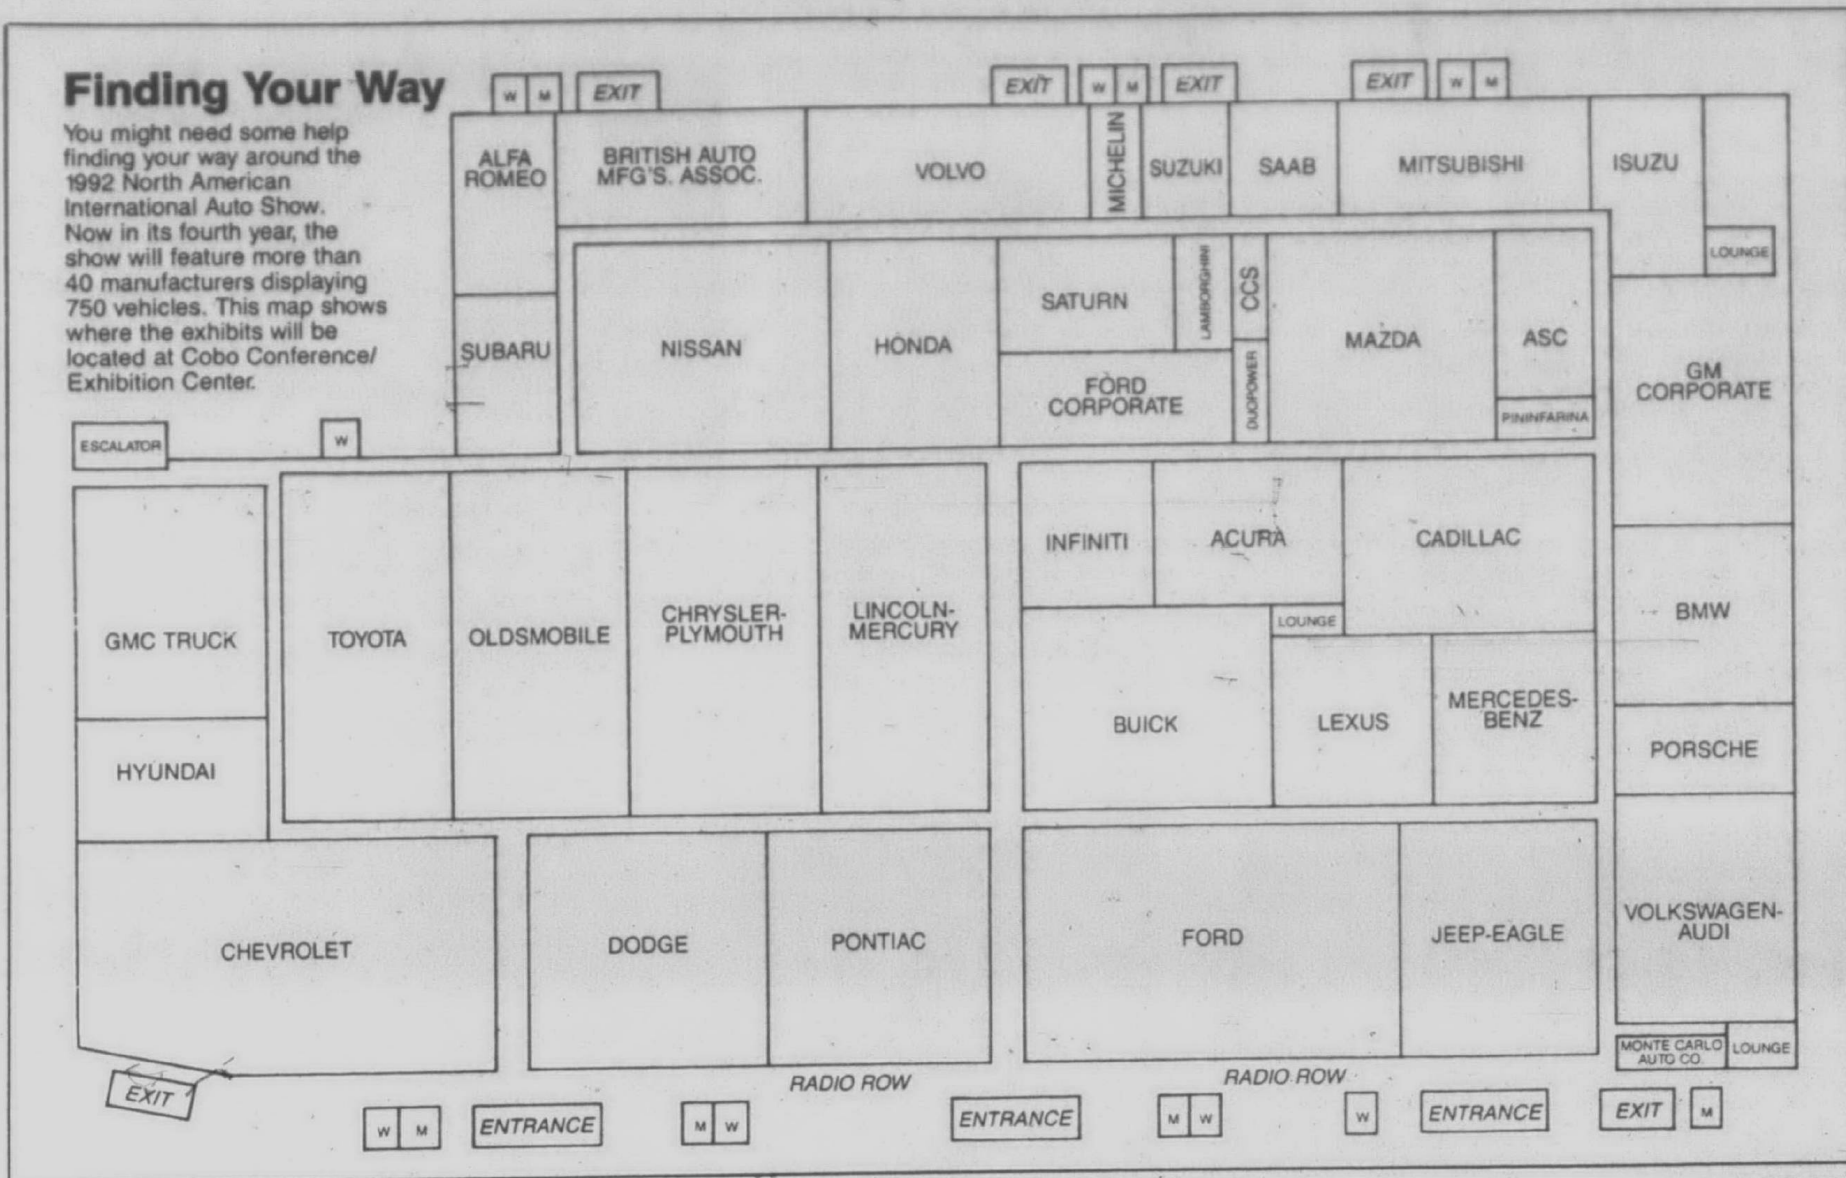

A year later, the first National Auto Show was held in New York. In 1907, the Detroit Auto Dealers Association (which still sponsors the show) put together its first show in Beller's Beer Garden.

THE DETROIT auto show has come a long way from a primitive beginning when it shared floor space with beef tenderloin.

Just four years ago, the show was granted international status when a coalition of Detroit area dealers and auto manufacturing leaders decided to escalate it beyond a big arena for the local dealers to sell cars.

Ford, Chrysler and GM supported the idea and the imports followed. The show's big boost came when Lexus and Infiniti decided to make worldwide introductions in Detroit.

What makes the Detroit show special — besides its international status — is that it's the only international show under one roof. (The Frankfurt and Tokyo shows, for example, are housed in several buildings).

And the environment of Detroit's show is designed for browsers — some want to compare the prices and engineering offered by the American and import automakers; others simply want to see what's new in automotive technology.

THIS IS the second year the DADA will sponsor Supplier Preview Days (formerly Industry Trade Days), giving automotive suppliers a chance to see the show and tour the displays with their customers for two days before the show opens to the public Jan. 11.

In just four years, the show's influence has grown throughout the world. Last year's show brought nearly 700 corporate representatives to Detroit from 27 import automobile manufacturers.

And because the Detroit show includes the Big Three as well as the major import car makers, it draws an increasing number of important journalists who write the "buff books," or auto trade magazines. Last year, more than 250 foreign journalists from 19 countries covered the event. Overall, 967 members of the press attended; at least 1,800 are expected this year.

This year, 600,000 people are expected to attend the show, literally put together by about 13,000 people, including electricians, assemblers, models and automotive reps.

Not in a position to buy? Even so, for just $6 show goes again will be entertained, enlightened and informed by displays put together by the automotive geniuses of the world.

The Chevrolet Corvette Sting Ray III concept car that move with a memory for pre-set positions and features dramatically angled headlights, pedals a longer wheelbase.

Futuristic 'vette taps best of past

THE CHEVROLET Corvette Sting Ray III concept car incorporates the best of past Corvettes while surging into the future.

Born at General Motors' Advanced Concept Center in California, Sting Ray III represents a substantial change from the already exotic Corvette platform. A coil-over-shock front suspension design replaces the transverse leaf spring version.

The design contemplates use of a sophisticated and powerful engine usually found in a Corvette. The gearbox is positioned between the rear wheels for more even weight distribution.

And Sting Ray III's stance is even more aggressive than a production Corvette. The wheelbase is nearly seven inches longer, yet the overall length is two inches shorter.

Lower side sills ease entry and exit and passenger room is greater.

FROM THE front, Sting Ray III's dramatically angled headlights point up the car's extraordinary styling. Even the color is different — dark black cherry.

Inside, there's more room and a cockpit-like area for the driver. Efforts at optimizing driver comfort include the outside armrest being on the seat rather than the door. The seat itself is fixed, but the pedals move with a memory for preset positions. The height of the center console can be adjusted.

Instruments are viewed over the steering wheel rather than through it.

TIDBITS ABOUT automobiles from Copley News Service:

• Save the environment by driving a well-maintained car. Make sure tires are inflated properly to cut fuel consumption, keep the engine tuned and replace the air filter every 15,000 miles.

• Driving at 55 mph on the highway burns at least 15 percent less fuel than driving at 65.

• Most of the materials in old cars that end up in junkyards and landfills can be recycled for new automobiles. BMW is experimenting with recycling techniques at a plant in Landshut, Germany.

• High-tech developments will make it easier for motorists to navigate through traffic. Computerized navigation systems with display terminals will alert drivers to traffic snarls and suggest alternate routes.

THE POWER OF INTELLIGENT ENGINEERING

The sporty Viper RT/10 makes its worldwide debut at the Detroit show. Chrysler unveiled the two-seater as a concept car at the 1989 show.

Dodge rallies around Viper

Shelby Cobra) become a reality in just three years?

"It's simple," said Tony Cervone, public relations manager for design and motorsports. "The public demanded that we build it."

After Viper's overwhelming reception at the Detroit, Chicago and New York shows in 1989, Chrysler was besieged with mail from consumers wanting to know when Viper — a lightweight, classically styled sports car reminiscent of the 1960s — would be available.

Chrysler responded by forming "Team Viper," a volunteer group whose job was to decide if it was feasible to make the car. And could it be done with a sticker price of around $50,000? It could. And in May 1990, Chrysler chairman Lee Iacocca gave Viper the green light.

THE RESULT is a car almost identical to the concept model that wowed spectators in 1989.

Besides the powerful engine packed under a fiery red hood, the rear-drive sports car will pioneer an all-new, six-speed manual transmission that won't be available on other vehicles until 1993.

Twin side exhausts make the car look fast even in a parking lot — acceleration time is 0-60 mph in just 4.5 seconds. A first for Chrysler is the engine's bottom-fed fuel injection system.

Most exterior body parts are made with a resin transfer molding (RTM) composite process, a first for an American-made car. Chrysler also used structural urethane foam trim throughout the interior, another first for a U.S.-produced car. Viper also sports a Chrysler-patented, single-piece windshield frame that becomes a part of the inside instrument panel.

TO CUT the car's development time, Chrysler used preformed tubular steel (a material as strong as stamped steel) for the frame.

to a standstill in under five seconds (if you dare), Viper features a braking system generally found on race cars.

Viper's two-piece cast aluminum wheels (17 in. x 10 in. in front and 17 in x 13 in. rear) reduce the car's unsprung weight.

The soft, fixed top snaps on and stores in the trunk.

First-year production is limited to 200-300 cars, available only in bright red. Next year production could be as high as 2,000-3,000 with additional colors available.

Viper should be available at selected dealers by March or April, said Cervone.

Described by Chrysler as the "definitive example of a classic high performance car," Viper was a bold experiment for the automaker.

UNLIKE OTHER new-production groups from the Big Three, the Viper group included under 100 designers and engineers who worked on a tight budget and production schedule in an unassuming building on Detroit's west side.

The 1993 Ford Probe makes its worldwide debut in Detroit. The new Probe (not available at dealers until June) has an all-new aerodynamic design and powerplant.

Style

New, redesigned cars in spotlight

First of two parts.

HERE'S THE line-up of most of the new and redesigned American nameplate passenger cars you'll see at this year's North American International Auto Show in Detroit's Cobo Center Jan. 11-19:

● BUICK

● Skylark — Completely redesigned coupe and sedan feature a 2.3-liter single overhead cam shaft engine and the highest level of standard equipment ever offered in compact Buicks.

Skylark Gran Sport coupe and sedan include a 3300 V6 engine. New standard equipment includes anti-lock brakes, power door locks, split-folding rear seat and manual remote trunk and fuel-filler door releases.

● LeSabre — The redesigned full-size LeSabre is three inches longer and 2½ inches wider than last year's model. Besides an all-new interior and exterior, LeSabre Custom and Limited sedans have a new powertrain — 170 hp 3800 V6 with tuned port injection and an electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission.

Anti-lock brakes are standard on the Limited, optional on the Custom. New features include a wrap-around instrument panel and flush-mounted glass to reduce wind noise.

● CADILLAC

● Eldorado — Eldorado is more than 11 inches longer, two inches wider and almost an inch higher than last year's model. Rear-seat comfort is improved with an increase in the seat's back angle. There also is more rear seat room and increased knee clearance.

The new model again has the 200 hp, 4.9-liter V8 and 4T60-E four-speed automatic transmission.

Wood-like plastic accents are replaced by real wood features on the doors and instrument panel. You'll see less lettering and ornamentation on the new model.

● Seville — The five-passenger Seville is more than 13 inches longer than the previous model. Wheelbase is increased three inches. Overall roof height is slightly increased.

All exterior panels are new and not shared with other Cadillac models. Only the front windshield is common to Eldorado and Seville. Upfront, Seville features composite headlamps and wrap-around parking, signal and cornering lamps. An all-new grille is chrome plated with light gray inserts.

Front and rear seats are redesigned for increased back support. Base interior features electronic instruments, a column shift transmission, knit cloth seating, power window and door locks and the express-down driver-side window.

The new model has the 4.9-liter V8 engine and 4T60-E four-speed automatic transmission.

● FORD

● Probe — The 1993 Probe will make its worldwide debut at the Detroit show. It's distinguished by an all-new aerodynamic design and all-new powerplants. The new model will be offered in a single configuration (2 + 2) in two series, Probe and Probe GT. For 1993, Probe is lower with a wider track and has a cowl (base of windshield) almost three inches lower than the current model.

● Taurus — The 1992 model receives the greatest redesign since its introduction in 1986. The sedan has an all-new body (except doors) and new interior and mechanical improvements.

There are four Taurus four-door sedan series: L, GL, LX and SHO.

The car's corners are softened and horizontal lines are emphasized. For a sporty look, the wheel openings are fully radiused. Overall length is increased by 3.8 inches, with a slight increase in trunk volume. There are nine new colors and detail changes such as tinted outside rear-view mirrors, new aluminum wheels and wheel covers.

The interior is also redesigned, improving safety and driver comfort. Driver's-side air bag is standard on all models.

● Thunderbird — Ford's 1992 standard and LX models feature an aerodynamic front-end similar to the Super Coupe model. Also new are color-keyed body-side moldings on the standard, LX and Sport models and full-width, tail-lamp illumination. There are four new exterior colors.

The standard 3.8-liter, V6 electronic fuel-injected engine will continue as the base powerplant for the LX while a 200-hp, five-liter V8 is standard on the Sport. A 210-hp, 3.8-liter supercharged V6 engine is standard on the Super Coupe.

● Crown Victoria — In the first major redesign since 1979, Ford softens Crown Victoria's lines to create a sleeker more aerodynamic car.

Among the standard equipment is a driver's-side air bag, four-wheel disc brakes, child safety latches on rear doors, 4.6-liter, SEFI overhead cam V8 engine, tinted glass, air conditioning and an AM/FM cassette stereo radio with door mounted speakers.

A six-passenger Touring Sedan is added to the 1992 line. Functional features include a high performance overhead cam V8 engine, anti-lock brakes with traction assist, performance tires and a touring suspension with special springs, shock absorbers and anti-sway bars for flatter cornering.

The sedan features contemporary styling, cast-aluminum wheels and unique interior appointments, including standard cloth-and-leather seats.

● MERCURY

● Sable — Sable receives its first redesign since its introduction in 1985. Sable has all-new sheet metal on every exterior panel except the roof. The new model features a sleeker front end with more streamlined bumpers and headlamps. The backlight angle is reduced.

The interior also is redesigned to improve driver comfort and safety. Variable assist power steering and brake shift interlock are standard.

Other changes include a redesigned instrument panel, illuminated switches on power windows and door locks and new radios with a control function that returns the radio to a middle setting each time the car is turned off. Variable Assist Power Steering is standard on all models.

You'll also find significant improvements to decrease noise and vibration.

readouts about six feet beyond the windshield; this lets drivers keep their eyes on the road instead of the instrument panel. GM is the world's first automaker to include this safety feature on production cars.

AS THE ride reaches the turn-of-the-century, when there are few gauges on the dashboard, the narrator introduces a concept safety feature called onboard navigation, a map that pinpoints the vehicle's location. And if the driver is approaching a traffic jam, the "navigator" suggests alternate routes.

Into the 21st century, show goers will experience vision enhancement, a concept system that adjusts driver's vision in glare, fog, snow or rain.

By the year 2010, viewers experience crash avoidance, a futuristic radar that alerts drivers to another car or object in the vehicle's way. If an oncoming car crosses the center lane, "Lanelok" automatically steers your car away from danger; "Lanelok" then steers your car back into the proper lane.

The ride ends with holograms showing Hughes satellites that one day may predict traffic data, control toll booths, regulate the traffic on expressway ramps, control street lights and raise and lower train gates.

GM's display, in the northeast corner of Cobo Center between BMW and Isuzu, also includes a concept vehicle and examples of the automakers current and concept engine technology.

The AVX-IV, making its North American introduction in Detroit, is an ultra-lightweight commuter designed to give high fuel economy without sacrificing driving performance and comfort.

It is powered by Toyota's experimental S-2 804 cc two-stroke engine. Aluminum, magnesium and other lightweight materials are used extensively in AVX-IV's body.

Other features of the environmental exhibit include Toyota's chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) refrigerant recovery machine, designed to remove ozone-threatening CFCs from air conditioning systems before servicing and a new environmentally sound coolant, HFC-134a, which will be used in all new Toyota vehicles equipped with air conditioning by 1994.

THE 700-PLUS cars and trucks displayed at Detroit's North American International Auto Show will share the stage with local and national sports and radio and television celebrities, who will meet the fans, sign autographs and field questions from show goers on opening weekend, Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 11-12, at Cobo Center and the adjoining Joe Louis Arena.

Celebrity Weekend features television star Robert Ulrich, host of the show's charity preview Friday, Jan. 10, who returns to the show Saturday for an appearance on Cobo's television stage. Show goers will meet Miss America, Carolyn Sapp, at the Chevrolet exhibit 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

"While we are proud of the increasingly international stature of our show, we never want to lose sight of the local flavor of the event," said Gordon Stewart, show co-chairman. "The presence of Detroit-area sports and media personalities enables us to retain the hometown spirit of the show."

ON OPENING day, Saturday, Jan. 11, look for former Detroit Tigers Milt Wilcox and Willie Horton on Stage Two and Tigers shortstop Alan Trammell on Stage One.

The Detroit Pistons will be well represented. Joe Dumars will meet fans at the GMC truck display 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday. Isiah Thomas appears at the Toyota display 2-4 p.m. Sunday. Pistons Darrell Walker and Orlando Woolridge also will make guest appearances opening weekend.

Professional golfer Johnny Miller meets the fans 2-4 p.m. Sunday at the Chrysler display. Golfer Wayne Levi will appear at the Buick display.

Visitors will meet race drivers Bill Elliott 10 a.m. to noon and Geoff Bodine noon to 2 p.m. at the Ford display. Driver Carroll Shelby and downhill skier Billy Kidd will greet fans at Chrysler. Driver Dave Rosenblum also is scheduled to appear.

"Detroit is synonymous with two things: cars and sports. Given this fact, it only seems natural to bring these two important elements of our community together at an event that showcases our city to the rest of the country and the world," said Carl Fischer, show co-chairman.

Besides local celebrities and athletes, show goers will see television stars Jason Priestly and Jennie Garth, from the hit show "Beverly Hills 90210," at 11 a.m. Saturday at an upbeat music-oriented fashion show of trendy clothing for teens, sponsored by Twelve Oaks Mall, in Joe Louis Arena.

about an auto company's future intentions, since so few of the far-out designs ever make the showroom.

Regardless, to auto buffs there is nothing quite as visceral as viewing a well-thought-out experimental car that embraces either some outrageous performance specification, or genuinely innovative features.

The lack of practical restraints often lets the designer's imagination run wild, with the result a study in impracticality.

BUT OFTEN, the best concept cars are a demonstration of the abilities of the manufacturer — sometimes answering questions that are only beginning to be asked.

The North American International Auto Show in recent years has become both a showcase for new concept cars and a stopping point for some cars that were first introduced overseas and now are making the rounds of the major auto companies.

Nationalism, always implicit in any multinational auto show, is even stronger than usual this year, as a few highly charged efforts by the Germans, Japanese and Americans make clear statements about the future intentions of their respective creators.

One reason is the pending unification of Europe — an event that has most major European carmakers pondering the effect on their futures.

Some, including Peugeot, have already withdrawn from the U.S. to concentrate their resources in their home markets. But others, particularly the major German carmakers, are attempting to establish some clearly European goals that mesh with the future when Europe becomes one huge coordinated market.

BUT THE major goals clearly are in conflict. Audi's awesome high-performance sports car, the AVUS Quattro, is an all-aluminum technological tour de force that evokes images of pre-World War II Germany: high horsepower and high technology.

But it's high-performance theme is a long way from the goals of the growing environmental movement in Europe that threatens to set speed limits on the Autobahn network where a car like the AVUS could be driven flat-out.

The so-called green movement has put considerable pressure on the likes of BMW, Mercedes and Audi. The German automakers built their image mainly on high-performance, the main factor that separated them from the upstart Japanese.

But the upper echelons of speed conflict badly with the environmentalist movement that already has unified Europe on its own. The result is the odd juxtaposition of the monstrous AVUS against the tiny Volkswagen Chico or the BMW E1 electric vehicle — two cars obviously developed to make their manufacturers look soberly responsible.

MEANWHILE, THE Japanese are under the strongest pressure in decades to stabilize world trade routes, but are likewise anxious to demonstrate that their technical capability is being used to solve the world's automotive problems.

The result is a combination of gadgetry (epitomized by the Mitsubishi project car that operates without foot pedals) and technical solutions to air quality, including multifuel vehicles and an electric car by Nissan.

Interestingly, the main pressure to produce environmentally harmless vehicles is coming from the U.S. and Europe, but Japanese carmakers still are anxious to take the lead in developing responsible technology that will prove useful in their export markets.

One result of the European and Japanese efforts is that for perhaps the first time, concept cars brought to the show by offshore car companies will dominate rather than the exercises done by the U.S. Big Three.

THE FEW domestic trendsetters are particularly, however, Chrysler has put together a new coupe powered by an intriguing new two-stroke engine, as well as an electric minivan. More than any other car company, Chrysler seems interested in using concept cars as a basis for its real future product line. Proof is in the introduction of the new Viper, which had its origins in Detroit as a concept car just three years ago.

But the U.S. companies mainly are anxious to launch new cars, not concepts. Chrysler will unveil its striking new LH car lines, as well as the Viper, while GM highlights its new intermediates. Ford is introducing a new range of trucks, plus a new Probe and minivan.

In the midst of this auto recession, it's hardly surprising that the first concern is not future concepts, but raising public interest in the here and now.

BMW's first "purpose built electric car," the E1, is powered by a sodium-sulphur, high-energy battery and an electric motor. It's designed to meet the strictest U.S. environmental standards. The four-passenger E1 can reach a top speed of 75 mph and has a range of more than 155 miles under ordinary driving conditions. A standard power supply can recharge the vehicle in 6-8 hours. Classic styling includes the kidney-shaped grille and circular headlights. Air bags and anti-lock brakes are standard on all BMWs.
