TTM SUMMER FUN PROGRAM

TTM has a FUN summer program for handicapped children with special needs. Children from ages five through seventeen will enjoy learning in this unique educational and therapeutic program.

Our special education teachers and recreational therapists have developed theme-based curriculum for each of the weeks. Entertaining and functional activities revolve around each theme week. Themes include EARTH, NATURE, ANIMALS, FINE ARTS, MICHIGAN, HEALTH AND SAFETY.

This ten week program runs from June 15 through August 27. Activities begin at 10:00 a.m. each day and end at 3:00 p.m. with a one hour lunch period (a prepared lunch is provided by the family). Participants will achieve a measurable success and accomplishment at the end of each day.

Open to children with special needs. Children who require assistance with feeding and/or toileting are encouraged to attend, but must be accompanied by a helper. Admission qualifications for medical, behavioral, and performance levels are subject to approval by TTM Center Administrator. Physician's prescription is required for insurance approval.

Children with special challenges need a chance to learn skills and therapy. However they also need structure and an environment which allows them to have fun and still maintain the skills they have worked so diligently to achieve. If you need additional information, contact the nearest TTM Center. Call today to reserve space in this exciting summer program. Complete the attached registration form and mail it to the Center of your choice.

It's cleanup time

Rouge Rescue is set for Saturday

It's not too late to volunteer for Saturday's annual Rouge Rescue. Volunteers can register up to 8:30 a.m. the day of the event at sites throughout western Wayne County.

Between 2,500-3,000 people are expected to take part in this year's cleanup.

County health officials advise participants to wear gloves and protective clothing, including long-sleeved shirts, long pants and boots.

Volunteers are discouraged from going into the river.

Here is a list of area work sites:

• Livonia — Botsford Park, north of Seven Mile, west of Inkster Road. Sharon Sabat or Susan Wagner, 421-2000, Ext. 221.

• University of Michigan Dearborn — Recreation and Organization Center, at the north end of the UM-D campus. Volunteers will build nesting boxes for animals and birds. Michael Hayes, 593-5338.

• Plymouth — Behind the Tonquish Manor Senior Citizen Residence, west of Harvey, north of Ann Arbor Trail. Jim Penn, 453-1234, Ext. 229.

• Plymouth Township and Western Wayne County Conservation Association — WWCCA Club House, 9700 Napier, between Five Mile and North Territorial. Charles VanVleck, 453-8840, Ext. 225.

• Redford Township Citizens — Lola Valley Park, northwest of Lola and Beech Daly. Karen Hicks, 534-0605 or 534-5441.

• Westland — Holiday Nature Preserve Association, at the preserve, Ann Arbor Trail, west of Hines Drive. Patrick Kobylarz, 421-8190.

• Westland — City Management Corp., Nankin Mills, Ann Arbor Trail and Hines Drive. Stan Jordan, 923-3300.

• Westland — Holiday Nature Preserve, Joy Road entrance, west of Wayne Road. James Gilbert or Bob Patterson, 595-0288.

land County district.

"Not many people noticed that," said Dunaskiss. "Mel was my mentor. He had a real sense of compassion and fairness."

Dunaskiss' conference committee version won 35-0 approval in the Senate and 98-3 approval in the House. All area lawmakers voted yes. The nay votes were cast by Republican Reps. William Bryant of Grosse Pointe, Margaret O'Connor of Saline and Tim Walberg of Tipton.

The law provided a political platform at last weekend's Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament in East Lansing.

Pollack called a news conference at the tournament at Walnut Hills Country Club but didn't bring in Dunaskiss. Nor did she mention that Gov. John Engler would sign the bill into law at the same time.

"This legislation is long overdue," said Engler at the signing. The law took immediate effect as soon as he signed it May 29.

"I'm not certain at this point what changes will have to be made. We've referred it to our by-laws committee, and we're expecting a report within the month," McAuliffe said.

Charles Bokos, president of Western Golf and Country Club in Redford Township, said: "We haven't had an opportunity to review the law to see how it applies."

However, Bokos, an attorney who lives in Westland, said the club will comply with the law. He added that Western has no women voting members.

Universities back grant application

Plymouth-Canton Superintendent John Hoben received endorsements from two universities regarding the school district's request for $6 million in federal funds that would permit the district to become a national demonstration site for high technology in K-12 classrooms.

Sr. Mary Francilene, president of Madonna University, said in a letter to the secretary of the U.S. Office of Education: "Madonna University has the initiative and experienced instructors to serve as part of a network to be established to assist with staff development and training for teachers in the integration of technology as a tool in achieving the instructional goals for the school district.

"We are confident that the implementation of the proposed technologies will have a major impact on the Plymouth-Canton schools as well as the entire community."

University of Michigan professor of education C. Philip Kearney said, "I think the proposal is particularly timely. In focusing on the use and application of technology as a tool for improved learning, the proposal addresses an issue about which there has been a great deal of talk, but too little substantive action.

It is proposed that $15,000 of this allocation be re-programmed to fund a historic district implementation plan.

Citizens are invited to comment on the proposed re-allocation, either in writing or in person at the hearing.

Schools approve construction work

Plymouth-Canton school trustee Carl Battishill warned his fellow board members of financial problems Monday after the board approved numerous bids for school renovation and construction.

"We've approved over $5 million in bids, and we are going to have to face the problem of financing (the district's two new elementary schools.) "With the state removing more and more funding, we should let the community know that in a year and a half, we will need their help," he said.

Voters approved a $59 million bond issue that is paying for school construction and renovation. But staffing the schools will be difficult. The district projects for the coming school year a deficit of between $4.3 and $5.6 million.

The school board also approved the sale of $29.9 million in building and site bonds Monday.

Trustees awarded contracts for additions and renovations to Central and Pioneer middle schools. Mechanical work was approved in the amount of $410,000. Roofing work will cost $98,395. Paving costs will be $19,290, and renovation and expansion work will total $625,637.

Electrical work at the two middle schools will cost $187,700. An elevator at Central Middle School will cost $33,500.

Construction costs at the two elementaries to be built in Canton will be as follows:

- carpentry, $802,000.
- mechanical work, $1.4 million.
- masonry, $1.1 million.
- paving, $115,790.
- electrical work, $744,993.
- steel and iron work, $233,190.
- concrete, $303,000.
- food service equipment, $70,000.
- excavation and grading, $93,150.

DEATH OF THE SALESMAN.

Right now, you get a new kind of help at Highland. Instead of a salesman who's working for commission– you'll find a Customer Advisor who's working for you. Honest advice from a Customer Advisor makes electronics and appliance shopping so much easier. And only Highland has it.

The Highland Customer Advisor is a trained professional who earns his or her salary by making you happy–and earns it whether you buy the basic model or the top-of-the-line–or nothing at all.

So there's no percentage in being pushy. No incentive to switch you from one product to another.

No commission. No pressure. No kidding.

You won't believe the difference this makes. Instead of a salesman on your back–you've got an unbiased expert on your side.

Instead of someone who needs to hype–you've got someone who only wants to help. And when you're looking at a large black box full of chips and diodes, with a whole bunch of specifications on the side–honest advice really matters.

We offer more choices. We offer more help.

At Highland, we have a bigger selection than anybody else in town. So there's at least a chance that you'll find yourself staring at a long row of appliances that look the same, but don't cost the same. Don't worry. The Customer Advisor has a highly–trained eye. Feature for feature, dollar for dollar, he can help you decide what's important to you–and what's an unnecessary expense.

Miracle of miracles, he might recommend a less expensive model than you were thinking of.

And here's another shocker. Nobody at Highland is going to try to scare you into buying more warranty than you need. Our Customer Advisors have no reason to recommend more than you need.

Nobody has a lower price. Nobody.

We check our competitors' prices constantly–to make sure we're the lowest. And they check ours. Anybody who wants to can drop a few prices, run a snap survey and say "Look, we're lower!" But you shouldn't assume that that's still true by the time you see it in an ad.

At Highland, we sell more TVs, more audio equipment, more video equipment and so on than anybody else in Detroit. One reason we do that is we sell at a lower price.

If you buy something at Highland and then see it elsewhere for less–we'll give you back the difference. That's a lifetime guarantee. (Details in store.) And if you ever see a competitor advertise a price below ours, we'll give you a price that's lower still.

The best price. And honest advice.

It's a combination you won't find anywhere else but Highland. Our prices are pushy. Our people are not. Come see. Come save.

Highland®

The Best Price. And Honest Advice.

Faust's forest bill is on its way to House

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

A tax advantage would be closed and commercial forests better managed if the House adopts a bipartisan bill that passed the state Senate.

"The most significant environmental legislation to pass either house" was the way Republican majority leader Dick Posthumus, R-Alto, described the bill sponsored by Sen. William Faust, D-Westland.

"The legislation updates and streamlines the act adopted in 1925," said Sen. George McManus, R-Traverse City, committee chair who praised the bill without mentioning Faust's sponsorship.

The Senate last week gave Faust's SB 390 a 36-0 sendoff to the House of Representatives. All area senators supported it except David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, who had an excused absence.

"It was a three-year battle," Faust said. "The Commercial Forest Act was designed to protect forests, but it has been used as a means to beat property taxes."

Owners of state-designated commercial forests pay no general ad valorem property taxes (based on assessment). They currently pay 38 cents an acre plus 10 percent "stumpage" when the timber is harvested.

The bill substitutes a $1.10 per acre flat property tax each year. The rate is to be adjusted every 10 years. Faust said the bill would increase revenues to local units by $740,000 a year.

Other provisions:

- Forest management plans must be developed by a registered forester and prescribe methods to optimize production.
- A commercial forest fund is created to receive application and withdrawal fees. This restricted fund, controlled by the Department of Natural Resources, will be used to enforce the act.
- Persons who cut timber in violation of the management plan could be fined up to $10,000 and face three years in prison. For cutting amounts worth below $2,500, penalties would be fines of $500 and 90 days in jail.

Residents named to GOP delegation

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

A mix of old and new faces will sit in Michigan's 72-seat delegation at the Republican National Convention Aug. 27 in Houston.

Gov. John Engler has attended before, but this time he will head a delegation 100 percent for President George Bush.

Susy Heintz thought of going for fun. "Bobheintz has a frequent flyer ticket, and I was thinking of going and enjoying myself," she said Friday night before the GOP state convention. But when the at-large delegation list came out Saturday, she was there as a delegate. (She refers to husband Bob as if his two names were one.)

Now Engler's Detroit office chief, Heintz was Northville Township clerk when she was elected a district alternate in 1984. In Dallas, she got her picture in USA Today while wearing a Detroit Tigers cap and reading the party platform. Friends accused her of being the only person to read the platform.

Heintz's alternate will be a new face in Michigan politics: Michelle Engler, wife of the governor.

All three candidates for national committeewoman — winner Betsy DeVos of Ada, the outgoing Ronna Romney of Bloomfield Hills and challenger Andrea Fischer of Birmingham — were placed on the at-large delegate slate.

Laura Reyes Kopack, attorney from Livonia and member of the state Civil Rights Commission, and party patron Max Fisher of Franklin, and Detroit councilman Keith Butler, the only known Republican elected in Detroit, also will attend as at-large delegates.

Here are delegates and alternates from area congressional districts:

11th District

"After 26 years, I decided it was my turn," said Livonian Audrey Greenleaf, whose husband, Harry, has been a district chair, a delegate in 1976 and an alternate in '88.

She long has been active in GOP women's groups and is Livonia co-chair of Joe Knollenberg's congressional campaign.

She was picked — along with Patrick Anderson of Farmington Hills and Judy Riedlinger of Bloomfield Hills — at the new district's Friday night caucus, but the grandmother of two confessed it didn't really hit her until "they sang 'The Star-Spangled Banner' this morning. This is an important position."

Harry Greenleaf is chair of the old 2nd District, Riedlinger of the old 18th District, and everyone acquiesced in the deal they cut: two delegates from the old 18th and one from the old 2nd.

Alternates are state Rep. Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills, Marion Dalton of Bloomfield Township and Southfield City Councilwoman Denise Alexander.

13th District

Delegates were apportioned geographically: attorney Sean Cox of Livonia from the old Wayne 2nd, Lewis Beaver of Westland from the old 15th District, and David Fantera of Ypsilanti, from the Washtenaw County portion.

"I enjoy politics and enjoy being part of the process," said Cox, who has "no political aspirations" of his own. This year he's chairing Thaddeus McCotter's bid for Wayne County commissioner.

Four years ago Cox was legal counsel to the Jack Kemp presidential campaign. He was in the middle of a legal battle by the Kemp-Robertson faction to change the rules so that officeholders couldn't be state convention delegates. The Bush people won the political battle, but Cox's side won the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals battle — two years after the convention.

Despite the cut-and-dried nature of the national convention, with Bush assured renomination, Cox is looking forward to Houston.

"It's my first national convention. The Right to Life issue is going to pop up. It's nice to go down and meet folks. And there will be a lot of jockeying for 1996 — Kemp, Quayle, and I imagine Pat Robertson is going to be a presence."

Alternates will be Abe Munfakh, a Plymouth Township trustee, Norman Weiser of Wayne and Dorothy Webster from the Washtenaw County portion.

AROUND PLYMOUTH

Named to board

The Community Literacy Council, Inc. has appointed the following Canton and Plymouth community members to its board of directors for the 1992-93 term: Janet Campbell, Mary Kay Frey, Rebecca Havenstein-Coughlin, Judy Morgan, Ed Quant, Ed Schulz, Creon Smith and John Young.

Community Literacy Council, Inc. is a non-profit organization that provides free reading tutors to adults and foreign born children who want to improve their reading and language skills.

A candidate

Deborah Whyman, 33, of Canton, has announced her candidacy for the state house's 21st district.

"Elected officials are out of touch with the people," she said. "They have isolated themselves from the votors."

Whyman is a data processing consultant for Ford and has a bachelor's degree in management information systems and a master's degree in business.

Another candidate

Whyman's opponent for the August Republican primary, Dan Calabrese, is getting a little help from his friends.

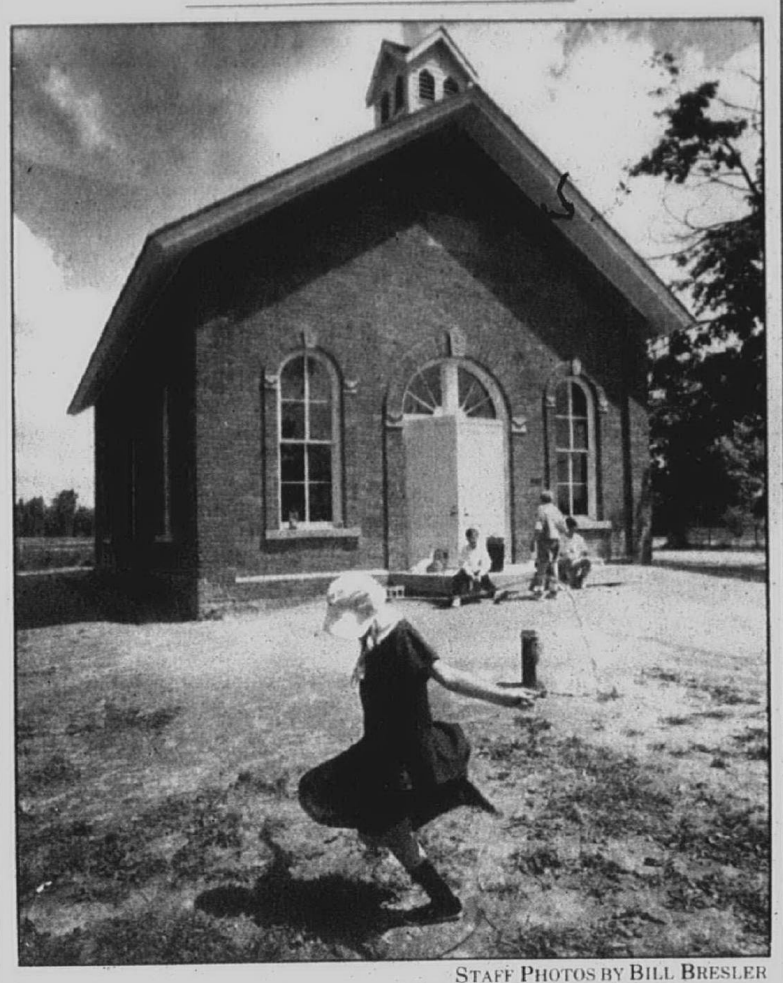

The following people are part of the "Citizens for Calabrese" committee: Dave Artley, Loren Bennett, Flossie Tonda, Bev Yurchek, Fran DiDario and Mildred Murphy.

All they need now is a catchy name.

We got tickets

The Canton Parks and Recreation Services is offering discount tickets to nearby Boblo, Canada's Wonderland, Cedar Point, Crossroads Village, Detroit Zoo, King's Island, Michigan Renaissance Festival, Michigan State Fair, Sea World and Great America.

Geer School dedicated

STAFF PHOTOS BY BILL BRESLER

History in one room: After several years of renovation, Geer School was formally dedicated in ceremonies on Sunday. Community fund-raisers and contributions raised money for the work. The 112-year old one room school house on Plymouth Road is used weekly by fourth graders who get a dose of what it was like in the old days. Lisa Hanson jumps rope as a fourth-grade class from Isbister School takes time out from lessons for some good old-fashioned fun.

Warning to grads: Don't be a statistic

School officials, police and parents are urging the new graduates not to get carried away with partying and use good sense when they're behind the wheel.

With freedom in mind and euphoria at heart, 1,100 Canton/Plymouth high school graduates have been cut loose from the tether of public schools this week, and various adults are taking pains to prevent anyone from getting killed in the process.

Last year they were successful, perhaps because less than three months before graduation Salem High School seniors Tamara Carlson and Michael Fullerton died after the car they were in hit a tree on Napier Road.

To date this year, no seniors have been killed in traffic accidents, so school district officials and police don't have that advantage this year as they inundate kids with words of caution.

So far, said Canton High School Principal Tom MacKenzie, the students have been subjected to "two or three mini talks" on the public address system reminding them to be careful, take extra time at intersections and drive slowly.

Salem Principal Gerry Ostoin has done the same, but "the thing that works the best is to put your hand on their arm and say, 'Take it easy and use some sense when you're driving.' "

Of course, it helps if there are a lot of cops around too. Canton and Plymouth police officers parked their patrol cars around the two high schools on Wednesday when the seniors fled school for the last time, and Joy Road was closed to westbound traffic for 30 minutes.

"The presence of the police slows down some of the activity that might take place," Ostoin said.

Yet another roadblock on the way to death in a fiery crash is the school district's annual awesome party for graduates, to be conducted Sunday night after the graduation ceremony.

The party, which runs from 9 p.m. to 4 a.m., will include games, prizes, a disc jockey and dancing. For more information, call Farrow at 459-3769.

Attorney: Drunken driving laws need clarifying

BY GREG KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Attorney Robert Larin said he isn't out to help drunk drivers avoid jail, but he does think the state's drunken driving laws need to be clarified.

Three area judges agree and have dismissed the results of two alcohol blood tests against people accused of drunken driving. The judges have raised questions about state police drunk driving tests.

One of the cases involved a Birmingham woman; the other involved a fatal accident when a Redford man struck the car of a 19-year-old woman in Milford.

The results of the court decisions could affect the outcome of more than 2,400 drunken driving cases.

"The state police have not promulgated rules for administration of alcohol blood and urine tests," Larin said.

Judge Michael Batchik of Walled Lake's 52nd District Court ruled inadmissible the alcohol blood level measurement for James McGuire of Redford, who is charged in the fatal Jan. 31 crash that killed April Dawn Gibson on South Milford Road.

Police charge that McGuire, 23, crossed the center line and struck Gibson's car head-on.

Larin contended the new state drunk driving laws, which went into effect Jan. 1, clearly state "the department of state police shall promulgate rules for administration of chemical tests."

The old law stated the state police "may" set procedures.

■ 'They're trying to keep inaccurate readings in the law.'

Robert Larin
attorney

"This is something I have been contacting the state police on since summer," said Larin. "They're dragging their feet."

On May 15, the Oakland County prosecutor's office got an emergency rule signed by Gov. John Engler approving procedures for taking the tests.

The state police must set rules that cover how the tests are taken, how they are analyzed and how they are reported. One key question being considered is whether an alcohol swab can be used before using a needle to take a blood test.

Larin questioned if the alcohol on the swab could affect the test results.

Assistant Oakland prosecutor Anica Letica said under the order signed by the governor, alcohol cannot be used as an antiseptic.

However, Batchik ruled before the order was signed by the governor.

Oakland Circuit Judge Fred Mester agreed with Mester when the case moved up to that court.

"The statute is quite clear," said Mester. He said the statute says the state police "shall" establish procedures, something that has not been done.

"It's a matter of due process," Mester said.

Letica said she was surprised at his ruling and, "We're asking Judge Mester to reconsider the matter."

Mester said that while blood alcohol reading McGuire registered cannot be introduced as testimony in his upcoming trial, "there are still counts against this individual that carry just a serious a penalty."

Police said McGuire registered a .22 alcohol level, more than twice the legal limit.

"There will be a day in court," Mester said.

In the case involving the Birmingham woman, 48th District Court Judge Thomas Brookover dismissed an unlawful blood-alcohol-level count because the test measured the level of blood alcohol in relation to the volume, not weight of blood.

In essence, the reading is off on the high side by 5 percent, Larin said. He brought in independent consultant and forensic scientist Thomas Burr to support his contention.

The woman registered a .10, but if the reading is off by 5 percent that would put her below the legal limit, which she was charged with exceeding.

"They're trying to keep inaccurate readings in the law," Larin said.

After long corporate life, director begins new chapter

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT
STAFF WRITER

The Western Wayne County Literacy Council turned a page with the hiring of its first paid director.

Farmington Hills resident and former IBM employee Deb Hoffman heads the volunteer organization, which teaches people to read and is based in Garden City. She started the job May 6.

"I spent nine years in the corporate world, and I was looking for the opportunity to use those skills in another way," said Hoffman. She was looking for more rewarding work.

"I think that I, as an individual, can make a difference."

Hoffman said she is appalled by statistics about adult illiteracy, but is convinced the problem can be overcome with time and effort. One in five American adults reads below the eighth grade level, she said.

Hoffman, a Wisconsin native with a master's degree in business administration, moved to the Detroit area in 1988. She quit IBM after the computer maker offered an employee buyout program. She said she found corporate work was unfulfilling.

WWCLC president Cathrin Chodorkoff said the group is happy to have Hoffman. She was picked from among 30 applicants, who responded to a newspaper ad.

"We've always operated on an entirely volunteer basis. This is the first time in our 10-year history we've had a paid employee," said Chodorkoff said.

This year, WWCLC landed a $16,000 grant from the state Department of Education, part of which will be used to pay Hoffman. The grant money will also be used to buy computer equipment to improve its administration.

The grant is the group's first. Part of Hoffman's job will be to seek other funding, from foundations, charitable organizations or the government.

"There is literacy money to be got out there and she will help us find it," Chodorkoff said.

Last year, WWCLF volunteers put in 7,500 hours tutoring students, Chodorkoff said.

The only requirement of students is that they be 16 or older and that they want to learn to read. WWCLF has students at various reading levels. Some work with a tutor for several years, others for shorter periods, depending on the student's progress.

The organization needs volunteers, Chodorkoff said, and is planning a training program for the fall. The tutor training workshop is usually a 12-hour program held over consecutive Saturdays.

She said the group hopes to do more outreach and publicity. "We need to reach the people who can use our services."

WWCLF shares office space at the Marquette Center in Garden City, and Chodorkoff said the group is looking donated office space in the area.

A committee of parents is working to prevent the kinds of tragedies that have resulted during past graduation seasons from drinking and driving. They've planned an all-night party for Sunday, June 7 at Salem.

Sunday's senior party will be 9 p.m. to 4 a.m. at Salem. Cost is $18 in advance; $20 at the door. The first 800 seniors to buy tickets will receive a souvenir T-shirt.

The party is open to CEP graduates only.

No on millage

Farrow, Graham best for board

Voters on Monday are facing a 1.5 mill property tax request, a school board election and a ballot question on schools of choice.

The Observer recommends voters reject the property tax increase request and the schools of choice question. For school board, Jack Farrow and Barbara Graham are solid choices.

But first the millage request. We're opposed to the tax increase for the following reasons:

- State legislators have school financing in chaos, and because of that the Plymouth Canton school district can't plan its budget for next year.
- Local teachers turned down a delayed raise, whereby the 7 percent salary increase slated for this fall would be cut to 5 percent.
- The school board and administration failed to put the millage increase proposal on the ballot in enough time for the voters to understand the request.

Overall, the board and administration just haven't responded quick enough. A key to obtaining salary concessions from the district's teachers was admistrators taking a similar deal. The administrators didn't decide to do that until late last week, after the teachers voted to reject the salary deal. It's just too late.

Voters should use a no vote on the millage proposal as a club to get the attention of the local school board, administration and state legislators.

There are six candidates on the ballot, running for two slots on the school board. Farrow is the most realistic candidate of the six, is active in school affairs and is a parent with children in the schools.

Farrow knows the state is getting out of the business of financing education. He's looking forward. He is the kind of person needed on the school board.

The Observer also recommended Graham, but not without some reservations. Graham is suspicious of the teaching of sex education and AIDS in the schools. Those programs belong there.

However, she has been a forceful person on the school board, questioning school programs and helping to explain them to the public. Such a voice is needed.

Schools of choice is another matter. Under ideal circumstances, schools of choice would be a method by which parents could take back the schools from professional educators and force the schools to compete for students.

But under the present situation, choice is nothing more than the busing of students from one area to another. It won't improve education.

3 signal a stronger OCC board

Laurence Imerman, Janice Simmons and Sam Yono stand out from the deep, talented field in this year's race for Oakland Community College trustee.

We urge voters to support all three in the Monday, June 8, election.

Imerman, an attorney, impressed us with his thoughtful approach to college issues. We envision the Bloomfield Hills resident as a strong supporter of college technological programs, but not at the expense of sound liberal arts education. Imerman's long involvement with Optimist International, where he's served as a state officer, speaks of his commitment to young people.

Simmons, vice president of marketing and public relations at North Oakland Medical Center, would appear to fill two needs. A former nurse, the Rochester Hills resident pledges to keep a watchful eye over OCC's many health care programs. As a public relations professional, she could also help guide OCC's marketing strategy — a critically important issue as state aid grows ever smaller.

Yono, a businessman who was recently appointed to the board, admits he's still learning his way as a trustee. We wish he'd become a more vocal member of the board. Still, the Novi resident appears to have a good initial grasp of what the college represents and how it can best serve the community. Area Chaldeans are justifiably proud of Yono's board status — he is also chairman of the Chaldean Federation of America. What impresses us most, however, is Yono's stated commitment, not only to minority students, but to OCC students in general.

■ Three of the four current OCC board members are educators. All four are white. Our choices reflect a desire for the board to expand its horizons to include people from other professions and ethnic groups to better serve Oakland County.

Six-year-board member Judith Wiser is an intelligent person with creative ideas. But she has not learned to work as a member of the board, rather than as an individual. Her attitude and comments can create tension and do not always serve the board well.

Three of the four current OCC board members are educators. All four are white. Our choices reflect a desire for the board to expand its horizons to include people from other professions and ethnic groups to better serve Oakland County.

We urge area voters to support Laurence Imerman, Janice Simmons and Sam Yono. They will not only make the OCC board more diverse, but stronger.

State trooper foils duck rescue

BY NINA WISWELL
SPECIAL WRITER

Soft, black and yellow down, a small brown duckbill. These are the characteristics of the mallard duckling in need of being rescued from traffic on the freeway.

I was driving north on I-275 when I spotted the mallard near the freeway. He was wandering among his dead brothers and sisters. The family was destroyed trying to cross.

My heart raced. Thoughts ran through my head on how to save the duckling.

Seeing a safe opportunity to turn around and commence "Operation Duckling," my rescue efforts were foiled by a state trooper. He pulled to the side of the road and I beckoned him to follow. But to no avail, he pulled me over.

Oh yes, the trooper will help rescue the baby duckling, I thought. My image of what a trooper represented overshadowed my distress. And I kept thinking he will help the baby mallard.

As I waited, I watched as he swirled out of his car. Walking straight and tall and with the gravel of the road crunching under his boots, I knew I would have the strength of good on my side.

It didn't take long to shatter my image. Cold and distant, the low, deep voice only stated, "Good afternoon, M'am. Give me your driver's license and registration." I repeated my plea for him to check out the little baby mallard.

Time was lost as he cited me on a violation described as "limited access highway — drove across median." He gave me a tedious lecture on the dangers of the highway. He spent additional time showing me his code/fine book. His priority at the time was misdirected as a hazard was still on the freeway. At any moment cars might try to dodge the baby duck, thus creating additional hazards and problems.

The trooper stated he would attempt to check on the mallard, but he was emphatic in that he wouldn't spend his shift looking for baby ducks — baby children, yes, but not baby ducks.

I went back to the freeway area and found that the last baby mallard had been done in by an automobile.

Nina Wisell is a Canton resident. She went to court to appeal the officer's ticket. She lost.

Seek real story behind census

A lot of the usual hand wringing accompanied the Census Bureau's recent release of the Michigan figures.

The rich are getting richer while the poor are getting poorer. Median income in Oakland County, for example, rose a bit over the past decade, while inflation-adjusted incomes for Michigan residents overall fell nearly four percent. Bloomfield Hills families gained 30 percent; Detroit families lost 20 percent.

The big cause was the restructuring of Michigan's economy away from good-paying jobs in heavy manufacturing. We lost nearly 10 percent of all manufacturing jobs over the last 10 years (Detroit lost 30 percent). Worse, the service jobs that replaced them neither paid as well nor had good benefits.

Poverty in Michigan is increasingly concentrated in households headed by females with children. Nearly half such families with minor children are below the poverty level — two-thirds if children are under 5.

Enter at this point, of course, Vice President Dan Quayle and Murphy Brown and the persistent political quacking about "traditional family values."

The main political move today seems to be moan at length the decline of the traditional two-parent family. Fair enough. But have you noticed that most of those quickest to point the finger of blame never propose much beyond benign and noisy neglect to help out?

(This discussion forcefully reminds me of the comment made to folks who are so anxious to outlaw abortion in order to protect the unborn child: You guys are evidently more interested in the fetus before birth than in the kind of life the child will lead after it's out of of the womb.)

The big story about the census data — and one which the big city media of course missed — is the growth and prosperity of the suburbs regardless of the race or ethnicity of suburbanites.

Nationally, nearly half of Americans now live in suburbs. In Michigan, the communities showing population and income gains were nearly all suburban: Oakland County, Western Wayne County, Livingston County and communities around Lansing.

PHILIP POWER

Many of these communities are still largely white; indeed, the suburbs around Detroit are still among the nation's least integrated.

But change is coming. After all, an interest in finding a good place to raise kids, attend decent schools and live in quiet, safe neighborhoods is not confined to caucasians. Minorities of all kinds — blacks, Asians, Chaldeans — are making the move to the suburbs quietly and without big media notice.

It was not always thus.

Twenty years ago, some suburban newspapers were running alarmist stories about neighbors protesting when black families moved in.

I remember a long meeting with my staff to talk over what to do. We decided that the race of those moving to the suburbs was irrelevant to the news. Most media now follow suit.

And, today, suburbs like Southfield are actively marketing their ethnic diversity. The population of Southfield's schools — more than half black, 10 percent Chaldean, two percent Asian and the rest white — is featured in promotional brochures and videos designed to attract families and teachers of varied racial backgrounds.

It's a big story hidden in the census numbers: from alarmist news stories to promotional videos. It shouldn't be overlooked amid all the hand wringing.

Millage is supported

On Monday you will be faced with two very important decisions that will make a difference in the quality of education for students within the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

This year, we are asking voters to approve an additional 1.5 mills for one year to help lessen the severity of cuts necessary to balance the 1992-93 operating budget. This request is for only one year.

No one likes to pay additional taxes, and we don't like to ask for taxes. But the fact is, with the changes in funding for out-of-formula school districts, the future of our children is at stake. We need the additional funding to help maintain our educational programs for next year.

We expect to have a $4.9 million budget shortfall for the 1992-93 school year. In order to balance the budget, staff cutbacks would include the full-time equivalent of 56.5 teachers, five administrators, three clerical employees, 13 custodial-maintenance employees, 10 aides and 2.2 special education teachers.

An additional 1.5 mills for one year would raise approximately $2.8 million. This money would help reduce the number of layoffs and severity of budget cutbacks. If the millage request passes, our first priority will be to make restorations in the classroom so that we can maintain our educational programs. Cutbacks amounting to $2.1 million will still have to be made to balance the budget.

The cost of 1.5 additional mills is a small price to pay for the future of our school children. The cost to a taxpayer with a home market value of $100,000 is $75 a year or $6.25 a month.

The other major issue on the ballot is whether or not Schools of Choice shall be offered within the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. As your board of education, we do not support Schools of Choice. The main reasons we do not support this concept are because of the additional costs and the lack of educational value for Plymouth-Canton students.

Schools of Choice would require the purchase of additional school buses from a budget that is already in deficit. The additional operational costs required for transporting students, as well as the open-ended costs for administering Schools of Choice, would be a further burden on district finances. The state is mandating planning for Schools of Choice without providing adequate funding. We recommend that you vote no on the Schools of Choice proposition.

On June 8, your vote on these two vital issues is important to the children of the Plymouth-Canton community. The additional 1.5 mills will be used to maintain many of the educational opportunities for Plymouth-Canton students. The money you spend for this one year will be an investment in our community for years to come. All of the 1.5 mills will be raised in Plymouth-Canton and will stay in Plymouth-Canton.

Please make a positive difference in the education of the young people of Plymouth-Canton. Vote no on Schools of Choice and yes on the millage request.

Millage opposed

You are to be highly commended by all concerned citizens for your exemplary editorial stand against the profligate Plymouth-Canton Board of Education budgetary policies.

Surely, Superintendent Hoben could have demonstrated a stronger and clearer stand much earlier by recommending a voluntary 2 percent cut in salaries of all administrative staff. Had the teachers' union seen such a sincere effort on the part of the upper echelon, the entire financial problem would have been resolved without increasing the taxpayers' burden with additional millage.

Shame on the board members who have failed to admit that the three-year teachers' contract negotiated in advance with a 7 percent annual increase was unwise — way beyond the annual inflation rate. And what is this shedding of useless tears about "Robin Hood" misery dealt the school district by the governor? Are our neighbors' children entitled to less education than our own? Who else should decide that question but the state? Wake up voters or you may find yourself really robbed and not by Robin Hood but by your board of education. Vote "no" on the millage increase on June 8th.

Paul Nastoff, Plymouth

Kosteva wrong

It is hard to believe the state Legislature has devised a ridiculous scheme to take the hard earned tax money from the residents in one community and transfer this money to another school district where it could very well be totally wasted.

The taxpayers in the Plymouth Canton community pay high taxes and work very hard, through their local governments, to create a safe, pleasant atmosphere and a productive, efficient educational system which is attractive to both business and residential sectors. After all, your community is only as good as your school system.

What bothers me is that James Kosteva, who represents Canton in the state Legislature has voted for this absurd tax base sharing plan. Maybe Kosteva thinks the Plymouth Canton schools should be punished for some reason; or else maybe the residents of Canton are not paying enough taxes. As far as I know, Kosteva is the only member of the state legislature in western Wayne County whose school district is losing money, to vote for this plan.

The idea that this tax base sharing plan is better than a court ordered plan does not make sense to me because it seems the courts are the only hope we have to save our tax dollars. At least temporarily, this plan is tied up in the courts; also, I do not believe anything could possibly be any worse than what the State Legislature has come up with.

C. Chikeff, Canton

Hoben should retire

Once again the Plymouth Canton school district is threatening the community with teacher lay-offs and higher taxes. I am almost confident that both will occur. This is the easiest solution to a money crunch.

In this era of innovative discussion on school reform, I suggest that John Hoben retire this June and that the school district adopt an administrative teacher empowerment plan whereby teachers could share Mr. Hoben's administrative tasks. A group task force of teachers could replace Mr. Hoben's position. Since teachers possess inherent leadership qualities and high degrees in education, I truly believe they could perform an outstanding job. Teachers schedules could be re-arranged so as to allow them part-time in the classroom and part-time at administrative duties.

I truly believe that the teachers could innovatively suggest some budget cuts that would not sacrifice their jobs. I think it's worth a try in view of the alternatives.

Dolores J. Musson

Recognition for band

I disagree with what you have to say about band members not deserving letters. Anyone who works hard through a sport or an activity deserves a letter.

All kids need and deserve recognition. It makes them feel as if they have accomplished something important and worthwhile. If kids feel good about themselves, they have a more positive attitude about things.

Activities take a lot of talent. Not everyone has the skills or coordination necessary to play a musical instrument or to do a pompon kickline.

Activities are hard work and take dedication. The band practices just as much, if not more, than any sport. And from what I have heard, these practices can be somewhat difficult.

Band members work just as much as any athlete. People should continue to receive letters in activities because they are working just as hard as anyone else to represent our school and make it look good.

Rebecca Roch, Canton

Vote for Graham

Can you guess which candidate co-chaired the I Care campaign in the last millage election that resulted in the 21 percent pay increase to our administrators and teachers over a three-year period?

This same candidate now supports the 1.5 mill increase and at the same time says he can decrease spending. I think not. Don't take any chances, re-elect Barbara Graham. She is the only board member who voted against the tax funded Cadillac for Superintendent John Hoben.

Diane Stamp, Plymouth

Southfield must act

The Rodney King saga has left an indelible duty on some of us to seize the moment and to react accordingly in the arena of community and police affairs.

However, our local city officials appear to have some type of paralysis when it comes to reacting to threshold events in our history.

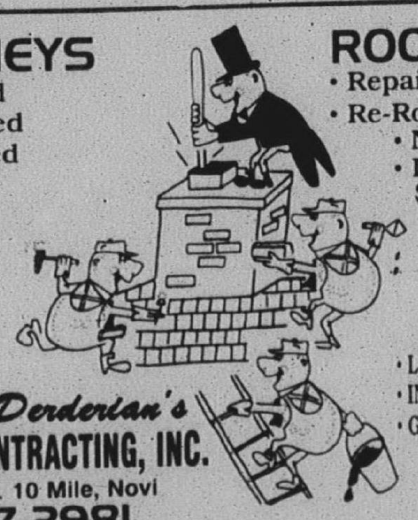

I requested from our city officials that they should release either a resolution or some type of public proclamation rejecting any use of excessive force by our police department. Yet as of this date nothing has come from our public officials.

The disclosure of certain police policies in this area would not diminish the ability of the police to carry out its important law enforcement functions, it would in reality enhance their objectives because the public at large would now be fully aware of its obligations when reacting to significant police actions.

State may join Violator Compact

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

If you're ticketed while driving in another state, it may cost you points on your Michigan driver's license under a bill making its way through the state Legislature.

The Senate passed the bill 24-13 after a short, intense battle and sent it to the House. It would make Michigan part of a 41-state Nonresident Violater Compact. There are currently of the compact that share traffic ticket information.

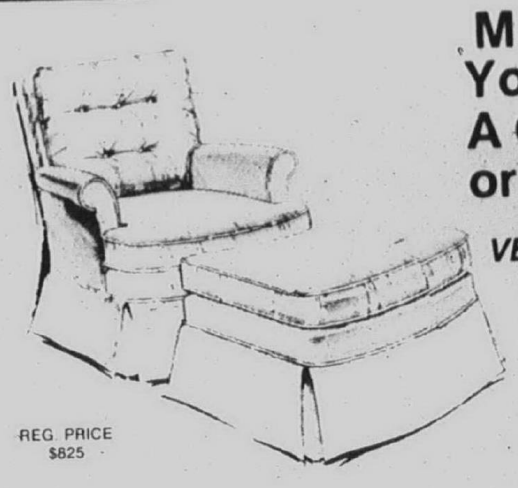

"Under this legislation, we give (Southern) states license to bilk," objected Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

Faxon said Michigan drivers could be stopped in other states' speed traps, have their court hearings delayed, wind up paying fines and be punished in their own state by points, suspension or loss of a driver's license.

"All this does is give our Secretary of State the right to enforce their laws," Faxon said.

But sponsor Vern Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, replied, "There are a few speed traps in other states — very few."

Wheeler wins state title

Tonya Wheeler joined an elite group Saturday when she won the 400-meter dash in the Class A girls track and field championships in Grand Rapids.

The Plymouth Salem junior, who also won the state indoor 600 championship in March, was officially timed at 59.1 on the Houseman Field surface.

Wheeler

Plymouth Canton sophomore Ndu Okwumabua placed seventh (5-0) in the high jump, and Plymouth Christian Academy junior Leigh Nowicki finished fifth in the 100 dash (13.1) at the Class D finals.

Wheeler was fifth in the state at 400 meters last year with a 58.8 time. Her best time this year was 58.2 — a vast improvement upon her 1:13.7 time as a freshman.

"Of the 10 girls who qualified for state, we thought she had the best opportunity to score high based on the experience in her sophomore year," Salem coach Mark Gregor said.

"We were looking at the 400 dash as an opportunity for her to do something great individually. She's done such a great job for us on relays it was nice to see her do something for herself."

Lamika Harper of Detroit Cass Tech had the same seed time as Wheeler and was 10 meters ahead of her on the staggered track, starting from an inside position.

"Tonya exploded out of the blocks," Gregor said. "That told me her concentration level was there. She knew what she had to do and did it.

"She doubled the stagger at 100 meters, was pretty much all alone down the backstretch and coasted to the finish line. She definitely made a statement with her performance.

"She's looking forward to continuing her conditioning program in the fall and is hoping to go back next year and defend her state title."

Plymouth Christian's Nowicki, who ran track for the first time this year after transferring from Ypsilanti Calvary Christian, set a school record of 12.7 in her semifinal heat.

She also was a state semifinalist in the 200 dash and conference champion in the 100 dash and 100 hurdles.

Chiefs on verge of 2nd state crown

Plymouth Canton will play for the state championship in girls soccer for the second time in five years Saturday. The Chiefs won the Class A crown in 1988.

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Christina Stansell began her high school soccer career at Plymouth Canton playing for the defending state champion.

It has taken the Chiefs four years to reach the Class A final again, but Stansell and four other seniors can win a title themselves and also go out as champions Saturday.

Canton (18-0-2) is just one victory from an unbeaten season and its second state title after defeating host Brighton 3-0 in a semifinal game Wednesday.

The top-ranked Chiefs will play Rochester Adams (19-2-1) in the championship game 1 p.m. Saturday at Northville High School. Adams nipped Grosse Pointe North 2-1 in overtime Wednesday.

"I've waited four years for this," Stansell said. "I've waited entirely too long and worked too hard for it to end (short of the goal). Being a senior and this my last year — the last time for all of us playing together — we want to go all the way."

Brighton coach John Davis believes the Chiefs will do just that.

"I can't really see them being beaten in the final," he said. "They're a good, solid team. They've been in the top 10 all year, they play in a good league and they've played all the tough teams."

The other Canton seniors are Danielle Meyka, Amy Tortora, Kelly Reeves and Rebekah Raymor, but the Chiefs have relied on virtually all their players for a contribution this year.

Junior goalkeeper Jori Welchans and junior forward Leah Hutko played key roles again Wednesday. Welchans recorded her 13th shutout, and Hutko, who has scored a lot of big goals in the tournament, got two more against Brighton (20-2).

The Chiefs were outstanding on defense, holding Brighton star Becky Ketola scoreless. She had 46 goals this year, including seven in two regional games.

"She just ate up the defenses over there, so we were hoping to get her free today," Brighton coach John Davis said. "If (the defenders) weren't as fast, they contained Becky and limited her scoring opportunities."

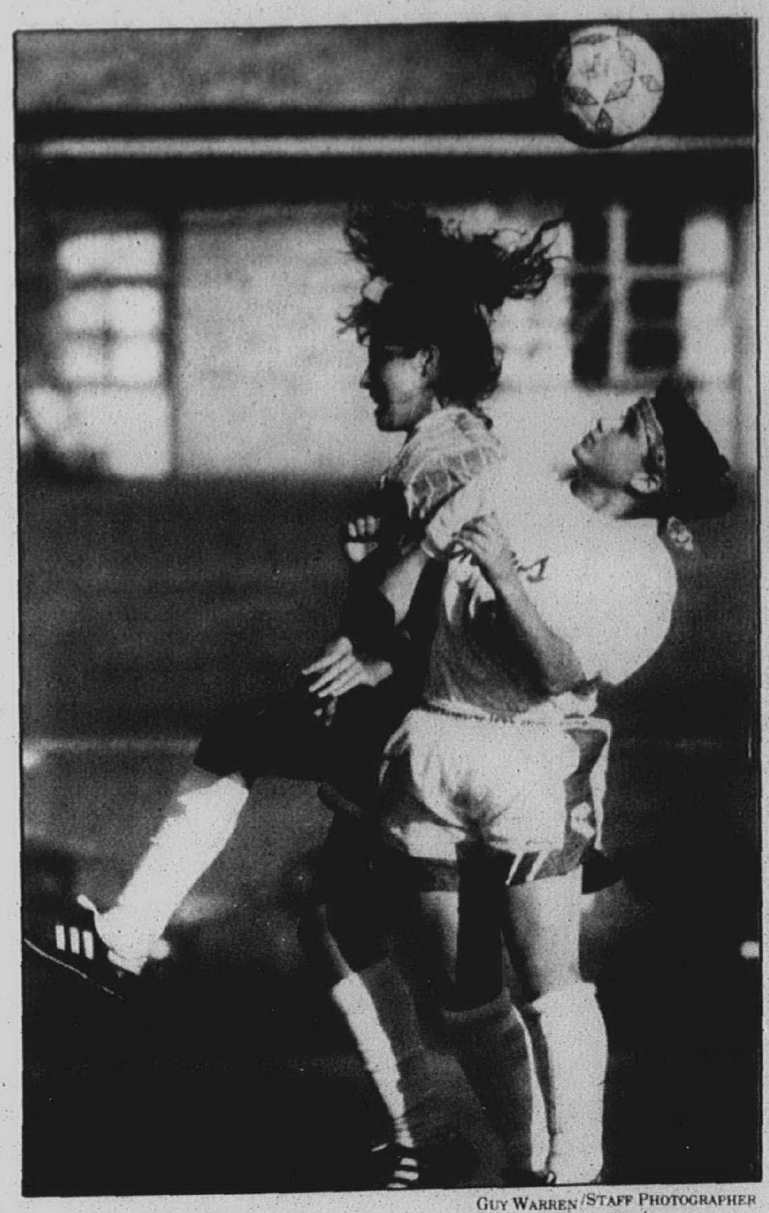

Hutko scored the first goal with a fine demonstration of individual skill. She got the ball at midfield, turned the defender around and went behind her to go one-on-one with the keeper.

"I saw Tortora down the left line," she said. "I thought of going to her, but it looked like she was pretty well covered. I saw my defender coming at me and just decided to go around her."

The Chiefs led 2-0 at halftime after Tortora headed in a loose ball following a shot. Hutko got her second goal midway in the second half, taking a centering pass from Stansell and hitting a line drive into the net.

"We do that before all the games," Stansell said. "She sits in front of the net, I chip the ball from the corner, and she hits volley after volley. It's a good-luck thing and it's paid off the last few games."

Davis said Canton's depth, its ability to substitute and not lose anything in talent, was critical. That was evident in that the Chiefs played over the loss of starting forwards Britta Anderson (knee) and Colleen Connell (mononucleosis).

Chiefs crush Belleville 8-0, win district championship

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Kelly Holmes was chased across the softball diamond Monday before her Plymouth Canton teammates managed to hit her with what remained in the Gatorade bucket.

Thus, it was left for the Chiefs to do in the postgame celebration what Belleville batters could not in the championship game of the district tournament at Ann Arbor Pioneer.

The Tigers not only failed to chase Holmes from the mound but couldn't hit any of her pitches, either. Holmes tossed her third no-hitter of the season in leading Canton to an 8-0 victory and its first district title.

The Chiefs (29-3) will play Livonia Churchill (17-5) at noon Saturday in the regional tournament at Temperance Bedford. Garden City and Trenton meet in the first game at 10 a.m.

The win over Belleville was a long time coming for Holmes and the Chiefs, who were eliminated by the Tigers in district games the last two years, 8-2 in 21 innings and 10-0. Holmes (20-2) was the loser in both games.

"The whole season we've been waiting for Belleville," Holmes said. "This year we were hoping to play them.

"We set a lot of goals this year and so far we've attained all of them. This was the most important goal and, hopefully, we'll keep on going."

Holmes didn't allow more than one baserunner in any inning this time while striking out nine and walking four. The Tigers hit only two balls out of the infield.

She had 21 strikeouts Monday, including 12 in the 2-1 win over Pioneer in the first game, and raised her season total to 250. Holmes is two shy of 600 career strikeouts.

"I definitely didn't expect (the no-hitter)," she said. "Last year it was 0-0 going into the fifth inning, and then they just attacked the ball. This year it was the other way around."

The Chiefs supported Holmes with 13 hits, and the first two hitters in the Canton order swung the mightiest bats. Dani Mortiere and Kate Strahan were among five players with two hits, and each had a double and a triple.

"For Dani to have a bad first game (0-for-4) and come back and crush the ball like she did shows the way she plays the game," Canton assistant coach Larry Bober said.

Canton left six runners stranded in three previous innings (including the bases full in the second) before ending the scoreless deadlock with two runs in the fifth.

Mortiere started the inning with a triple, Kate Strahan hit an RBI sacrifice fly and Sarah Schimmelpfenneg tripled and scored on Renee Dory's single.

"This is a unique team," Canton coach Jim Arnold said. "This team doesn't get going until the fourth inning. They're just slow starters. But once they get going, you can't stop them."

The Chiefs finished off Belleville (16-13) with six runs in the sixth. Mortiere and Strahan had RBI doubles, Dory and Nicole Sequin had single RBI and Julie Nicastri capped the rally with a two-run single.

Dory, Sequin and Michelle Metzger also had two hits apiece. Mortiere, who leads the Chiefs with a .422 batting average, and Schimmelpfenneg scored two runs each.

The Chiefs needed nine innings to dispose of Pioneer (26-5). Two errors by pitcher Lisa Lamberson allowed Sequin to reach base and advance, and she scored the winning run on Metzger's bunt single.

Holly Miller (two hits) doubled and scored Canton's first run with the help of a third-inning error. Holmes tossed a two-hitter and walked four. Lamberson allowed only five hits and one walk.

Rocks tumble in tournament openers

There will be no repeat performance for defending Class A baseball champ Plymouth Salem.

The Rocks were eliminated in the first round of the district tournament at Ann Arbor Pioneer High School when Belleville rallied to beat Salem 2-1 in eight innings Monday.

The Salem girls met the same fate in softball, losing 4-2 to Belleville in the first district game Monday.

Westland John Glenn defeated the host Pioneers 6-1 and claimed the baseball title with a 12-5 victory over Belleville. Plymouth Canton won the district softball championship.

"It's so difficult to defend a state championship, especially when it's something last year's team did," Salem coach John Gravlin said.

"We had a great pitching performance (from Chris Tomas) and wanted to play John Glenn in the final. We were just a little short on a couple things."

The Rocks, who finished 15-10-2, were a competitive team that just missed getting a chance to play for the Western Lakes Activities Association title as well.

"I will remember the '92 team in terms of almost," Gravlin said. "This team was so close to accomplishing some great things. I'm not disappointed at all in the effort. We were just a little short."

Tomas went the distance Monday, suffering his first loss after seven wins and three saves.

Rockets on roll after poor start

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

At one point, Westland John Glenn coach Norm Hoenes feared the Rockets were headed for a loooong baseball season.

And he was right, but not in the way he first thought.

Glenn extended its season for at least another week by winning the district tournament at Ann Arbor Pioneer High School with a 12-5 victory Monday over Belleville.

The Tigers had beaten defending state champion Plymouth Salem 3-2 in eight innings, and Glenn eliminated the host Pioneers 6-1 in the first round.

When his team started with an uncharacteristic 3-6 record, Hoenes figured it was going to be a bad year — a rarity for Glenn.

But the Rockets have won 12 of their last 13 games and have survived to become one of 16 teams still alive in the Class A tournament.

"We were just happy to be here after we got off the such an awful start," Hoenes said. "But the last half of the season we've been playing as well as all the good clubs we've had."

The unranked Rockets (15-7) will play No. 1 Redford Catholic Central (22-3) at noon Saturday in the regional tournament at Temperance Bedford. Lincoln Park and Taylor Kennedy meet in the first game at 10 a.m.

"We really are peaking at the right time," Hoenes said. "I'm real confident with this team. They're playing so much better.

"We started playing defense, and we didn't do that at the beginning of the season. The kids sucked it up and decided they didn't want to be bad anymore."

The Besco brothers — sophomore twins Derek and Brian — played important roles in the championship game.

Batting in the clean-up spot, Derek drove in four runs with a double and a home run, and Brian pitched 3⅔ innings of solid relief, though the win went to starter Chris Kirkey.

The Rockets got to Belleville starter and loser Chuck Coleman for four runs in the first inning with a mix of hits, errors, walks and fielder's choices. Aaron Scheffer and Kirkey had RBI singles.

Derek Besco's two-run double off the center-field fence chased Coleman in the second inning and gave Glenn a 6-1 lead.

But Kirkey got in trouble in fourth and Belleville (18-8-1) closed to 6-5 when Coleman ripped a bases-loaded double off Brian Besco, who was pitching to his second batter.

"I was a little worried there because in the first game we scored early and sat on it," Hoenes said. "I thought here we go again. But when (John) Ward hit his double off the wall, that broke their back. Everybody relaxed and took their cuts after that."

Besco finished strong, allowing only one other hit while striking out five and walking two.

Meanwhile, the Rockets fought back with a six-run fifth to seal the win. After a leadoff triple by Martin Potter and walks to Greg Tamas and Jamie Murphy, Ward cleared the bases with a double and Derek Besco followed with a two-run homer. Mike Bint added an RBI single.

Tamas and Scheffer also had two hits. Tamas, who also walked three times, and Jamie Murphy scored three run each.

In the Pioneer game, Glenn scored five times in the first inning and gave Scheffer a good situation in which to work. He scattered five hits, fanned eight and walked two. After starting the year 0-3, he is 5-4 with a 1.97 earned run average.

"He's one of the best around right now," Hoenes said, adding Glenn has good pitchers and that was never a concern this year.

"A lot of it is because we're playing better defense, and (knowing that) his head is in the game more now. He's got more confidence in the team. If he gets in a little trouble, he plays over it."

Scheffer also helped his cause with two hits and an RBI, but the big blow came from the bat of Bint, who crushed a three-run homer. He also had two hits.

Hoenes was asked if he found it ironic that Glenn, with the state's No. 1-ranked team last year, didn't win the district but did this year with a team labeled an underdog.

"Last year we had four teams with over 100 wins between them (in the district)," he said. "I thought the team that won would win the state. It turned out I was right, but I kinda thought it would be us."

Maybe this will be Glenn's year.

Top-ranked Shamrocks to play Glenn

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

When Brian Hicks transferred to Redford Catholic Central last fall, most everyone he passed in the hallways was a stranger.

Hicks still doesn't know most of his classmates but he has become a popular face around CC — even though he's usually wearing a catcher's mask on the baseball diamond.

"I didn't know anyone and no one knew me," said Hicks, a Garden City resident, referring to the first few months of his junior year at CC after transferring from Dearborn Fairlane Christian. "But since the season started I've gotten a little more recognition around school. A lot of people I don't even know are saying, 'When are you going to hit another home run?' I don't know what to say."

Hicks will have another chance to add to his team-leading nine home runs when the Shamrocks play in Saturday's Class A regional at Temperance-Bedford. CC (23-3 overall) meets Westland John Glenn (15-7) at noon in a regional semifinal; Lincoln Park plays Taylor Kennedy at 10 a.m. in the other semifinal with the championship scheduled for 2 p.m.

Besides leading the Shamrocks in homers, Hicks also has the team lead with 30 RBI and is hitting .418, which is second behind Scott Kapla's .463 average.

What makes Hicks' accomplishments all the more impressive is he started the season without a hit in eight at-bats.

Hicks and current CC third baseman Eric Justice played two years on the Fairlane Christian varsity team before transferring to CC last summer. A veteran of several Little Caesars' travel teams in Garden City, Hicks had to prove himself all over again to CC coach John Salter.

And Salter is a hard sell.

"In the past I've had kids transfer in who were supposedly good players but they didn't pan out so I've always been hesitant about getting excited," Salter said. "Indoors, Brian was hitting the ball well off the pitching machine, but then again sometimes you look good indoors and don't hit so well outside.

"He started the season 0 for eight and struck out a few times and I said, 'Oh, man, he's struggling.' But he kept telling me, 'Coach, I've hit well everywhere I played.' He must have went 10 for 14 after that and he's batted third or fourth the rest of the way."

Hicks and CC ace right-handed pitcher Scott Kapla make up one of the strongest batteries in the state.

Kapla, headed to Eastern Michigan on a baseball scholarship, is 9-1 with a 1.24 earned run averaged and 75 strikeouts in 67 innings. If Hicks continues his improvement, he'll also draw much attention from scouts next year.

"If I work hard I can write my own ticket, being a left-handed hitting catcher," said Hicks, who beefed up to 6-foot-1 190 pounds over the winter months. "I've never doubted my own ability but I've been surprised with the long ball. Usually I'm an opposite field hitter but I've been pulling the ball more this year."

Recalling 1987 Classic

CC and Glenn last met in 1987 when the Shamrocks held on for a 9-8 win in a Class A district final. The Shamrocks, who went on to win the state championship, enjoyed a 9-0 lead after five innings before Chris Scheffer's three-run homer highlighted a furious Rockets comeback.

Glenn reached the Final Four the year before and Rockets coach Norm Hoenes knew the winner of the district would be the favorite to win it all.

What made the high-scoring outcome so ironic was each team had great pitching staffs: CC had senior left-hander Greg Haeger and senior right-hander Doug Martin, each of whom now pitches in the Tigers organization; and Glenn had righties Bill Barber (who was a Division I prospect) and Clint Straub (currently with the University of Detroit-Mercy).

"It was a great game," Hoenes said. "We got to the Final Four in '86 and I said to the players, 'This is our chance. Whoever wins this district will be state champ.' Both had real good teams. We got behind early and never quite caught them."

CC is hitting .326 as a team, by far the team's best average in recent years, according to Salter. Among those hitting above .300 are seniors Dan Gusoff (.338) and Paul Kuhn (.333) and juniors Aaron Rumberger (.319) and Aaron Babicz (.300).

The Shamrocks will likely go with Kapla on the mound and No. 2 man Dan Gusoff is also capable (5-0, 2.02 ERA) should Kapla get in trouble.

Rocks

The Tigers had eight hits, but it was "bleeder city," according to Gravlin. A solid performance by Tomas included six strikeouts and one walk.

Belleville won the game in the eighth when Brian Boike reached base and advanced on two infield errors and scored on Matt Barrett's single.

Sophomore Eric Kida had two of six hits for Salem off Belleville pitcher Clint Kessler, who also had a complete game. He struck out three and walked one.

A fateful omen for the Rocks was the fact senior shortstop Ed Gundry, one of the state's leading hitters with a .509 average, went hitless for the first time this year.

Never be a dirty bird.

Kapla's heroics spark Shamrocks to title

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Redford Catholic Central senior Scott Kapla threw strikes Wednesday afternoon at Tiger Stadium, even from center field.

Kapla, CC's ace pitcher, played the last four innings of the Catholic League A-B Division championship game in the outfield — and it paid off. His throw from center field with no outs in the top of the seventh inning nailed Warren DeLaSalle's Jim Kerr at third base and the Shamrocks went on to win the championship 3-2.

Kerr had stolen second base, and after the throw from CC catcher Brian Hicks sailed into center field, he headed for third base. Kapla picked up the ball and threw a dart to third baseman Eric Justice, who made the tag and kept the score tied 2-2.

"I just got through pitching (the first three innings) and my arm felt real loose," Kapla said. "I was kind of hoping the guy woud run and my eyes lit up. I was just taking care of business."

Senior Dan Gusoff, who relieved Kapla on the mound from the fourth inning on, retired the next two batters on strikeouts and the Shamrocks scored in the bottom of the seventh to take home their second A-B trophy in the last three years. CC is 24-3 overall, while the Pilots are 24-7.

Kapla also contributed a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the seventh that was instrumental in scoring the winning run.

Pat Casey started the seventh inning with a bunt single. Senior Bob Kummer, running for Casey, stole second base and went to third on Kapla's sacrifice fly to the warning track in left field.

With one out and the infield drawn in, Paul Kuhn followed Kapla's fly ball with a single up the middle to score Kummer with the winning run.

The run was typical of the kind CC scored off DeLaSalle pitcher Bryan Gorak (6-3) who allowed only four hits, struck out 10 and walked six.

The Shamrocks stole four bases off DeLaSalle, which lost for the fourth time in five meetings with CC.

"We've been a hitting team, pounding the ball all year," said Salter. "Today we had to change up. Our coaches (Al Moran and Ed Hamacher) noticed Gorak doesn't have a great move to first base. Sometimes you've got to make things happen instead of waiting for base hits."

Gusoff earned the win for the Shamrocks to stay undefeated in six pitching decisions. He allowed an unearned run in the fifth when DeLaSalle went ahead 2-1 but surrendered only two hits, retiring six of the last seven Pilot batters.

The Shamrocks tied the score without the benefit of a hit in the sixth. After leadoff batter Aaron Rumberger walked, pinch runner Matt Roney stole second base, then third, then came home when the throw to third went into left field.

Gusoff's effort allowed Kapla to get some rest before Saturday's Class A regional semifinal against Westland John Glenn at Temperance Bedford. Kapla allowed two hits in three innings, including a leadoff triple in the second, but the Pilots were unable to bring that potential run home.

Mid-America expands to 4 softball teams

The Mid-America softball organization is fielding four teams this summer, including the Motion 12-Under team, which was added for the 1992 season.

The 16-Under division has a pair of Mid-America sponsored teams — the Mustangs and Marvels. There also is a 14-Under entree with the Magic.

Each team will play in Saturday's United States Slow-pitch Softball Association Canton Youth Tournament at Canton Recreation Center on the corner of Canton Center and Cherry Hill roads.

The top-level Mid-America team is the Mustangs, who are 4-4 playing in the Women's Class C League. The Mustangs are led by captain and pitcher Stacy Sinke (Canton), Colleen Wutke (Garden City) and Leslee Dickerson and Julie Jones (both from Belleville).

CC surpasses expectations in state tennis

Redford Catholic Central tennis coach Bob Miller anticipated finishing in the top 10 at Saturday's Class A state meet.

So coming in a fourth-place tie with Birmingham Brother Rice, Grosse Pointe South and Kalamazoo Loy Norrix was all the more satisfying.

The Shamrocks, Rice, South and Loy Norrix finished with 14 points each. Okemos won the championship with 29 points, followed by Ann Arbor Pioneer (26) and Bloomfield Hills Lahser (19). Livonia Stevenson earned one point to tie for 22nd place.

"We were ranked between seven and 10 all year so for us to perform at that level was a step up," Miller said. "The three teams ahead were clearly better so we're very pleased to be a step ahead of the rest of the group."

CC's three doubles teams led the way after advancing at least as far as the semifinal round.

The most success was found by the No. 2 doubles team of Chip Shade and Dave Lombardi, who lost in the finals to Okemos' Andy Dahlwal and Martin Gelbke, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

Shade and Lombardi, who finished 18-2 for the season, won three matches to reach the finals. They beat East Lansing's Denver Hagan and Bill Burke, 6-3, 6-4; Holland's Wade Eldean and Dana Schwartz, 6-4, 6-1; and Pioneer's David Park and Kevin Lochner, 6-4, 6-3.

The No. 1 doubles team of Chris Matson and Dave Gallagher, who finished 13-5 overall, won two matches before losing in the semifinals.

They beat Lahser's Cory Schoebel and Steve Hawkey, 6-3, 6-2 and Holland's Karsten Coskuil and Kyle Van Eenenaam, 6-1, 6-0. Okemos' doubles team of Andrew Perry and Scott Grow defeated the pair from CC, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1, in the semifinal.

The No. 3 doubles of Orin Mazzoni and Matt Gorman also lost in the semifinal of their flight, 0-6, 2-6, to Pioneer's Oliver Wreford and Drew Denzin.

The CC pair (16-3 overall) won earlier matches over Birmingham Groves' Brad Richettini and David Hitsky, 3-6, 6-0, 6-0, and Holland's Andy Van Eden and Chris Boulton, 3-6, 6-0, 6-0.

CC was a regional winner in all doubles and singles flights. All doubles players this year for CC were seniors and Miller was glad he left them in the doubles flights instead of moving them around the lineup.

"It's especially nice for all the seniors to make the semifinals," Miller said. "We had an up-and-down season because our singles players were a little less strong than last year. We could have moved some of our doubles players to singles but it ended up paying off playing the players where they best fit."

CC's Nos. 1, 3 and 4 singles players each won a match. No. 1 Chris Alonte, who received a bye in the first round, beat Grand Blanc's Rory McKinney, 6-2, 6-1, in the second round.

No. 3 Mike Shaya defeated Rich Schaafsma of Grand Rapids Christian, 6-2, 6-0, and No. 4 Jeff Haithcock defeated Grosse Pointe South's Todd Scallen, 6-3, 6-2.

Haithcock's final record is 9-9, while Alonte and Shaya each finished 7-11.

Stevenson's lone point came from its No. 1 doubles team of Kit Mastroberto and Matt Gerlach. The pair, second at the regional, beat Battle Creek Central's Corey Davis and Chris Somers, 7-5, 6-4.

Michigan Eyecare Institute
At The Forefront Of Ophthalmology

The Michigan Eyecare Institute is known for its pioneering breakthroughs. Staffed by specialists who have developed and refined the latest medical techniques, the Michigan Eyecare Institute specializes in treating and eliminating disabling eye disease.
As founders of The Michigan Eyecare Institute, Dr. William Myers and Dr. Mark Rubenstein have been at the forefront of Ophthalmologic breakthroughs. They were the first Ophthalmologists in the state to develop or utilize:
• YAG laser surgery for treatment of secondary cataracts
• Nova Curve lens, designed especially for the YAG Laser surgery
• Excimer laser surgery for treatment of glaucoma
• Radial Keratotomy for correction of nearsightedness
These laser surgeries are fast, virtually painless and they require no hospital stay or recovery time.
The founders of Michigan Eyecare Institute conduct courses in surgery and have lectured on their state of the art surgical techniques to offer physicians throughout North America, Europe, Russia and the Far East. If you are nearsighted, farsighted, or suffer from cataracts or glaucoma, Michigan Eyecare Institute can help.
Complete quality eye care at affordable prices.

Enjoy 'Music in the Park' in Plymouth

The Plymouth Community Arts Council will sponsor a "Music in the Park" concert series, with performances noon to 1 p.m. Wednesdays, June 17 through Aug. 19. The Plymouth Community Band will also present free concerts in the park.

The sound of music will again fill the air this summer at Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

The Plymouth Community Arts Council will sponsor a "Music in the Park" concert series, with performances noon to 1 p.m. Wednesdays, June 17 through Aug. 19.

"It's just a really nice way to introduce the community to a lot of different kinds of music," said Nancy Pilon, a PCAC volunteer who is coordinating the series.

Concerts have been offered for a number of years, and attracted between 400 and 800 music-lovers each week last summer. Many parents bring their children, and those of all ages enjoy hearing a variety of music, Pilon said.

The Plymouth Community Band will also present free concerts in the park, at Ann Arbor Trail and Main in downtown Plymouth. Those performances, which in previous years have drawn some 500 people each week, will be 8 p.m. Thursdays, June 25 through July 30.

"We play a variety of music," said Carl Battishill, Plymouth Community Band director. The band will present light classics, show tunes, marches and such novelty numbers as "The Waltzing Cat" and "The Irish Washerwoman."

"Those are all relatively humorous kinds of pieces," he said of the novelty selections.

The usual array of guest soloists will perform with the band, including George Cavender, retired University of Michigan Marching Band conductor, and Carter Eggers, a trumpeter and professor at Eastern Michigan University. Rachel Folland and Catherine Shasko, winners of Community Band scholarships, will also perform.

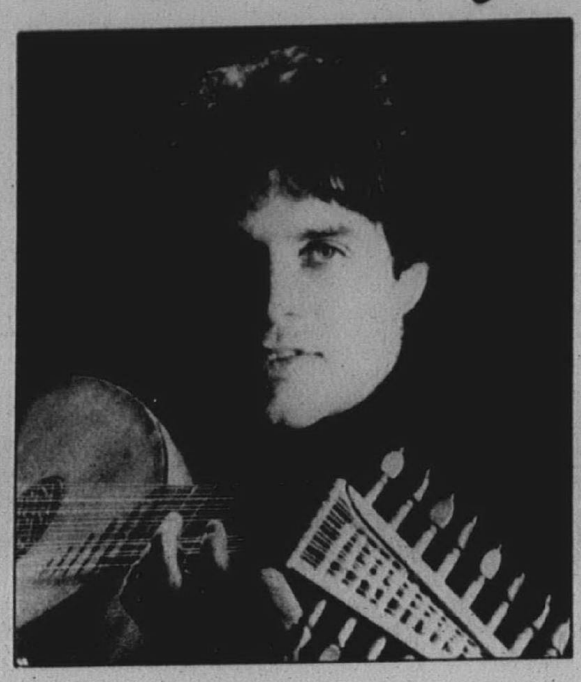

The evening concert series has been offered each summer since 1960, said Battishill, band director at West Bloomfield High School.

"People really enjoy doing this. It's a good summer activity."

Some 40 to 50 regulars play with the band during the school year, and that increases to 60 or more in the summer. Musicians find playing with the band fits in nicely with vacation schedules, Battishill said.

The noontime Wednesday series, sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council, will feature a variety of area musicians, including:

- June 17 — Edinborough Saxophone Quartet, with music ranging from popular to classical, from folk to swing;
- June 24 — Chautauqua Express, a children's show including instrumental performances, storytelling and hands-on participation;
- July 1 — Amadeus Horn Quartet, a French horn group whose members will present music ranging from classical to ragtime;
- July 8 — Marc Thomas, a children's singer and songwriter, in a performance featuring original and traditional songs;
- July 15 — Skylark, an acoustic trio, in an appearance featuring a variety of musical styles and a sing-along;
- July 22 — Onita Jackie Sanders, singer and harpist, performing music from classical, pop folk, blues, Broadway and jazz styles;

Music in park: Guy Sferlazza, known professionally as Guy Louis, will bring his Chautauqua Express children's show to Plymouth's Kellogg Park noon Wednesday, June 24.

- July 29 — Silver Strings Dulcimer Society, presenting a program of traditional folk and dance music;
- Aug. 5 — The Steve Wood Trio, in a program of traditional and original jazz compositions;
- Aug. 12 — Encore, a vocal ensemble of performers with experience ranging from musical comedy to opera;
- Aug. 19 — Just Me & the Boys, in a performance featuring bluegrass, Irish, old-time, French Canadian and folk music.

Musical additions

Three newcomers will be featured this year in the PCAC series. The Encore ensemble includes performers from the Michigan Opera Theatre who will present music from "Les Miserables" and "Phantom of the Opera."

"They have beautiful voices," said Pilon, a Plymouth Township resident.

Another addition is the Amadeus Horn Quartet. "They're going to do ragtime, which is something we haven't had a lot of in the past."

Children's musician Marc Thomas is another newcomer to the PCAC series, and organizers are looking forward to having him participate.

Business sponsorships help to support the concert series, which is offered free of charge. A total of 10 local businesses are assisting this year, Pilon said. Cooperation from city of Plymouth officials also helps to keep things running smoothly.

Staffers from the Penniman Deli will be in Kellogg Park to sell refreshments during the noontime concerts. For information on the series, call 455-5260.

PCAC concerts are canceled if it rains.

Play chronicles AIDS crisis

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

The Attic Theatre will present a special peformance of Larry Kramer's "The Normal Heart," which chronicles the first three years of the AIDS crisis in New York 8 p.m. Monday, June 8.

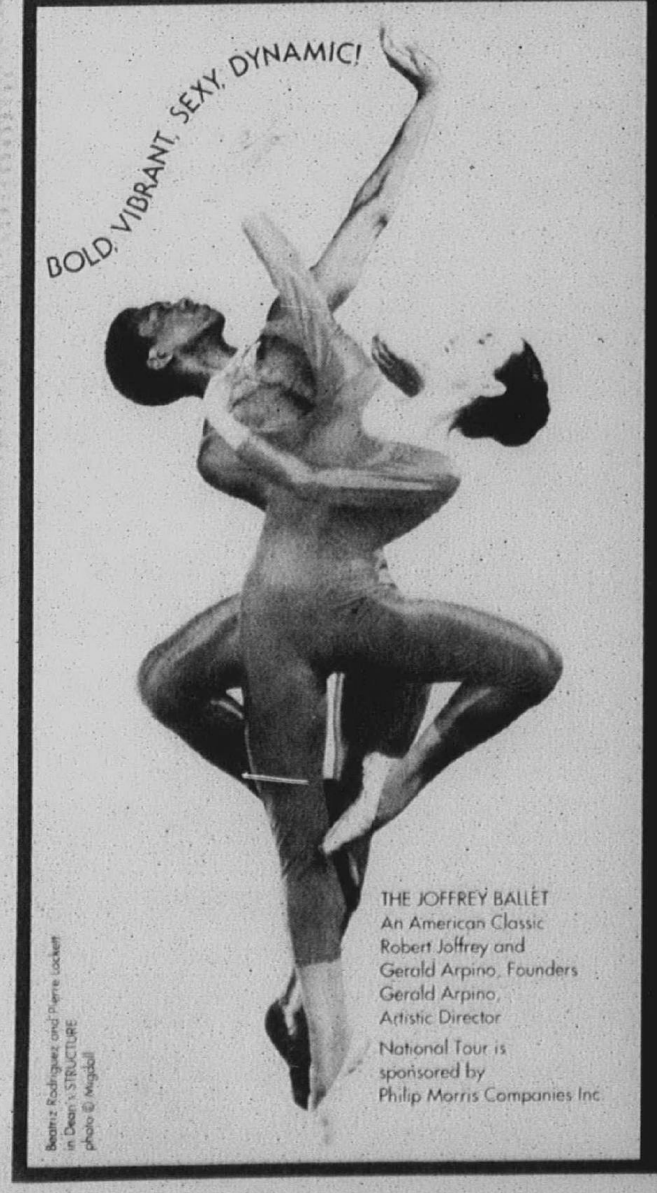

All proceeds will benefit this Wayne State University Student Stage production, which is entered in the 1992 Edinburgh Fringe Festival in Scotland this August. The fund-raising goal is $25,000-$30,000, so far about $16,000 has been raised.

"It is an emotionally charged representation of AIDS' effect on New York's gay community, as well as a powerful indictment against the slow response of the media, the government, and the medical profession," said Jo Anna Norris, manager corporate and foundation relations Wayne State University. She is also on the production staff of "The Normal Heart."

The production began as a workshop production in the Wayne State University Studio Theatre in the basement of the Hilberry Theatre on campus. Directed by Hilberry Theatre company member Ray Schultz, the cast includes Hilberry actors Schultz, Nancy Lipschultz, Dan Welcher of Westland, Michael Serapiglia, David Wolber, Suede Ong, Mark Graham, Michael Charbeneau and Ryan Rich. Welcher performs the leading role of Ned Weeks.

"There were three performances in January," said Norris. "We created an AIDS display for the theater lobby, which had information chronicling the disease since it was discovered in 1981, and current AIDS literature. The whole production was an AIDS awareness and education experience for the audience."

The Attic Theatre is at Third and West Grand Boulevard in Detroit. Tickets are $15. For tickets and information, call 577-6506 or 832-2427. To make a contribution, make checks payable to Wayne State University, Edinburgh Fringe Festival. Send checks to: Office of University Development, attention: Jo Anna Norris, 5475 Woodward, Detroit, MI 48202.

I Solisti Di Zagreb gives polished performance

AVIGDOR ZAROMP

Music, in the service of a national and political cause, demonstrated its power last week at Temple Beth El. I Solisti di Zagreb, until recently, has been considered as one of the world's leading chamber groups from Yugoslavia. Today, its members would not welcome the association with that country. This group is from the Croatian part of the region that is engaged in the most bloody conflict in Europe since World War II and which was the starting point of World War I.

I Solisti di Zagreb was founded in 1953 and directed initially by Antonio Janigro. Since the early '60s, however, they have been performing without a conductor. Their appearance here was part of a concert tour of six U.S. cities to raise funds and appeal for the victims of the war in the Republic of Croatia.

The well attended event featured a program reflecting the group's wide repertoire. As could be expected, a work by a Croatian composer — Fran Lhotka — was included. It would have been of help to include some reference notes of that composer in the program. The rest of the program consisted of works by more established composers.

The first portion of the program consisted of music by baroque masters — Vivaldi, Handel and Pergolesi. The players were joined by the coloratura soprano Cynthia Hansell-Bakic, who sang three arias by Handel. Hansell-Bakic, who was born in this country of Croatian descent, had always maintained her ties with the land of her ancestry and currently lives in Split, Croatia while concertizing extensively throughout Europe and this continent. Judging from her singing of the Handel selections, she seems more suited for the 19th century operatic repertoire.

I Solisti is not the only chamber group playing without a conductor. But few groups feature this kind of polished, meticulous and stylistically correct performance that this group is capable of. In the baroque portion of this program, Vivaldi's Concerto Grosso in D minor — "L'estro armonico" — is among the better known works of this Venetian master — following the overexposed "Four Seasons." It was one of several by Vivaldi that was also arranged by Bach. Seldom does one hear Vivaldi's original version stand on its own with its natural glitter as it did in this performance.

Barber's Adagio for Strings was another popular selection on the program, which benefited from the dedicated soul of the performers. The program concluded with Britten's Simple Symphony.

EMU production dramatizes Leo Tolstoy's 'Fables'

Pam Cardell of Westland appears in "The Tolstoy Story Play," an award-winning story theater play for children and adults at the Eastern Michigan University Sponberg Theatre June 4, 5 and 6.

The play by V. Glasgow Koste, will be presented by EMU's Theatre of the Young. It dramatizes Leo. Tolstoy's "Fables" into new life, wittily translating them into the here and now of today's world.

Children will be delighted by the tales in which the small triumph over powerful, haughty fools; adults will revel in the satire and wit.

Tolstoy is a world renowned author; part of the old Russia of a hundred years ago, he also wrote "War and Peace" and "Anna Karenina."

Show times are 8 p.m. Thursday, June 4, 8 p.m. Friday, June 5, and 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday, June 6. All tickets are $5. Chldren under the age of four will not be permitted in the theater.

For information, call 487-1221, 1-5 p.m.

CLARIFICATION

In Vicki Diaz's review of the Trinity Players production of "Talley's Folly" on May 21, Sarah Hedeen was inadvertently credited with the set, and Vikki Johnson with the lights. Both were created by Mark Barrera. The show continues through June 13, 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at Trinity House Theatre, 38840 W. Six Mile, Livonia. Tickets $8, call 464-6302.

Road repairs on track for Middlebelt stretch

BY SUZY PARKER
STAFF WRITER

It may be bumpy driving on Middlebelt Road, but crews working to put in a middle turn lane on the three-mile stretch between Joy and Ford roads say the project is running smoothly.

"We started last week and so far everything is good," said Chet Purgiel, a foreman with Peter Basile & Sons, the Livonia company contracted to complete the county road project. "We should be done by mid-September."

This week, crews have been working to move over sewer manholes on the west side of Middlebelt Road so the street can be widened. Once this phase of the project is complete, crews will put in edge drains, level off the construction area and pave the entire expanse of the road.

Things have been a little tight between Warren Road and Ann Arbor Trail where traffic is down to one lane in each direction. A few cars have hit barricades around the site where workers are laying steel rods to reinforce the overpass, crew foreman Tom Rotondi said, but as long as drivers follow the speed limit it should not be a problem area.

"Our main concern is people slowing down to 25 mph like it's posted," Rotondi said from the overpass site on Monday. "Right now people are going 40-45 mph and that's not safe for us."

Even though access to the Middlebelt business Wilson Acres Animal Hospital is often difficult, owner Dr. Eugene Wilson said they've had few complaints because they have been giving clients advance notice of the construction.

"The only thing I didn't like is that the county didn't tell us they were going to do anything," Dr. Wilson said. "But I talked to the crew manager for the county and he was real helpful."

The dredged up street has not daunted customers of Tropic Sun Tanning, said tanning consultant Leah Maddern, who noted that the flow of customers has been steady since construction began.

Customer Greg Ostrander of Taylor certainly wasn't deterred.

"I heard there was construction around here," Ostrander said before his Monday appointment at the tanning salon. "But that wasn't going to stop me."

Traffic flows at work site

Local police departments report traffic is running smoothly through construction areas along Middlebelt Road.

Wayne County began the project to add a middle turn lane to the three-mile length of road May 26 and county police say they've haven't received any complaints or issued any tickets.

Sgt. Peter Brokas, head of the Westland City Police traffic bureau, said that city's stretch of Middlebelt Road has been quiet, despite the fact that southbound drivers cannot turn left during the construction.

"We've had no accidents, or even complaints, yet," Brokas said regarding the project expected to be complete by mid-September. "We're going to give it a few days before we begin enforcing the no left turn. We'll let people get used to it first."

Sgt. Cory Coldren, who heads the Garden City traffic bureau, said an adjustment period has been allowed but officers will soon start issuing tickets to drivers who fail to obey no left turn signs on southbound Middlebelt.

"The only complaints have been from Wayne County themselves. The signs are up but people are ignoring them," he said. "With only one lane open, traffic backs up waiting for left turns."

Based on the way the earlier project south of Ford was handled, Coldren said he expects the left turn prohibitions to be in effect on northbound traffic in about six weeks.

"People still have access. It will not be a big problem," he said. "People just have to make a time allottment. Maybe they are used to one right turn and five minutes to the store. Now it will be a couple of left turns, right turn and 10 minutes."

Children's exercise class June 9 at plaza

A children's exercise class will be conducted by aerobic instructor Marcy Berlin Tuesday, June 9, for the Newburgh Plaza Kids Club.

The class will begin at 11 a.m. in the mini-mall of Newburgh Plaza at the southeast corner of Six Mile and Newburgh in Livonia.

Berlin's aerobic class is specifically designed for young children to encourage them to stay in shape.

Kids' Club is a monthly program to provide free fun and educational activities for children 5 and younger. All club events will take place the second Tuesday of each month and will last about 30-45 minutes. Children can register their children at any Newburgh Plaza store or at the event.

Woman recruits supporters for Perot candidacy

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER
STAFF WRITER

Kathleen Bower registered to vote for the first time in her life so she could support his presidential bid.

The 49-year-old, artisically inclined resident of western Wayne County has even penned a poem and designed T-shirts for the candidacy.

She's spent endless hours on long-distance calls to his Houston headquarters and recruited a cadre of others to pound the pavement in their neighborhoods gathering signatures.

All this for a guy who hasn't even officially announced his campaign.

But Bower's efforts are typical of the support H. Ross Perot seems to be generating in Michigan and across the county.

Perot, the billionaire founder of Electronic Data Systems and longtime political activist, has said he'll run as an Independent against Republican President George Bush and Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, the likely Democratic nominee, this fall if backers can get his name on the ballot in all 50 states.

He's already there in Tennessee and Utah. In addition, supporters have turned in petitions bearing the required number of signatures in Delaware, Maine, New Hampshire and his home state of Texas.

Support building

In Michigan, Perot workers need to gather about 26,000 signatures by mid-July to place their candidate on November's ballot.

Bower, serving as Livonia chair for the effort, is confident, saying she see's "a rip-tide" of support building in the few short months she's been working with the campaign.

"He's asking the questions that need to be asked," Bower says of Perot. "He has a voice that needs to be heard."

"All I'm saying is let's give him that chance and then we can all decide whether what he has to say is worth supporting."

But if Bower's words sound neutral, her feelings apparently aren't. The non-candidate has inspired her to a new level of political awareness.

She says Americans are "tired of being treated like they're stupid" by political leaders. And Perot, she says, has shown he's ready to take the public seriously.

She likes his grass-roots, common-sense approach to solving problems, she says. The national telephone poll Perot said he would implement at the White House to help him make decisions is "a damn good idea."

"My voice is too important to give to somebody unless they are truly representing me."

Bower says she first heard about Perot in the mid-1980s, from a neighbor who worked for EDS.

She recalls that some of his philosophy "sounded interesting — but I really wasn't into politics that much so I didn't give it much thought." Since then, Bower says, she's become something of a behind-the-scenes activist.

She peppered the Michigan congressional delegation with letters and phone calls last fall, urging them to reject a bill on search and seizure.

She got involved in the ill-fated campaign to save the GM Willow Run Assembly plant.

And she jumped on the Perot bandwagon one night after seeing early stories about his possible presidential bid on the C-SPAN cable network.

A songwriter

There's a lighter side to Bower's activism as well.

Recently she dashed off "Shaded Smile," a poetic lament to America's current malaise and the man she thinks will change things as president.

Bush and Clinton, the two mainstream candidates, are "more of the same, more of what's hurting this country," Bower says.

RISING RATE CD FOR THE LONG TERM.

FIRSTRATE FUND FOR THE SHORT TERM.

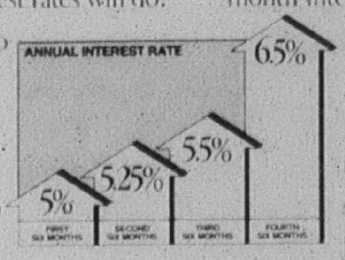

The economy is recovering. But even the experts can't agree on what interest rates will do.

So First of America has two shrewd ways for you to invest. No matter what your strategy.

The long view.

If you think rates will drop or stay flat, you should go with a longer-term investment and get a rate guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. The Rising Rate CD.

It starts at a bonus rate of 5 percent per annum. And you'll end up earning 6½ percent for the final term. You can withdraw part or all of your money in the first ten days of every six-month interval without penalty. All it takes to get started is a $1000 deposit.

Sign up by July 31 and get these bonus per annum rates.

The short view.

If you predict rates will keep going up beyond this election year, invest short term with the FirstRate Fund.

You'll make a bonus return of 5¾ percent per annum from the day you sign up through July 31.

5.75% FirstRate Fund Rate
Sign up now and earn this bonus per annum rate through July 31.

So the sooner you invest the more you'll make. After July 31, the per annum rate is based on the weekly Treasury Bill. So if the T-Bill goes up quickly, you'll continue to benefit from it.

A new deposit of $10,000* is required, and you can get your money seven days after notifying us.

It's a respectable rate of return plus liquidity in these uncertain times.

Of course, your investments are FDIC insured up to $100,000 per depositor. And bonus offers are good through July 31.

tional institutional sales backfired. The recession hit, anticipated growth didn't occur among national customers and the bakery missed revenue from the closed-down retail operation, Awrey said.

On top of that, Awrey lost a major client which had acquired interest in another bakery.

Last October, Awrey's son, Tom, was placed in charge of day-to-day operations and retail sales were resumed in the metro area.

"We had two bright young men, hard-working, intelligent, who made a master plan for the company to streamline," Bob Awrey said. "They had great ideas to expand. The only problem was we closed too much sales volume without adequate replacement.

"The way we were losing money and sales were off, there was considerable concern (about survival). When management changed, there was a groundswell of support. It was remarkable to experience," Awrey said.

Tom Awrey was named president and chief operating officer permanently by the company's board of directors last month.

Recovery strategy

"Our first charge is to get the company turned back around," Tom Awrey said. "We set several goals last October. Number one was to stop the bleeding. We were losing money and the future didn't look good. The second goal was to get into black numbers by the first quarter of 1992."

That basically was done through some layoffs, re-instituting retail sales in metro area stores and growth among national and contract clients.

Awrey does subcontract work for Swanson Foods — the biscuit portion for a sausage and biscuit packaged meal and tops for pot pies. Awrey is looking for more contract work and that big institutional sale — perhaps to a national fast food restaurant — that would rocket revenues.

Tom Awrey wants to show a profit of at least $1 million for this year "while positioning ourselves to a more reasonable level of profit," which he declined to elaborate.

Awrey realized revenue of more than $50 million per year before dropping retail sales, Bob Awrey said. Revenue fell to about $40 million but is now coming back, he added.

Future plans

Bob Awrey, 67, said he intends to stay involved in company business less than during the previous several months but more than before the financial hemorrhaging began.

"I'm really a product and sales person," he said. "I push for new markets. I've been pushing everybody, stirring everyone up."

The highlights of Bob Awrey's career so far?

"Principally, setting up a stock purchase plan for key employees. We transferred a good share from families to active employees. Plus, the constantly changing business, keeping up with trends so gradually we're not in some rut," he said.

When not involved with business, Bob Awrey likes to garden, travel and go to horse races.

Tom Awrey, 38, has worked for the family business virtually his whole life in the plant, maintenance, research and development and driving trucks.

"I think I have a good relationship with everyone in the company I've dealt with," he said. "I think I have a good seat-of-the-pants feel for this business. Our desire is to stay private and independent."

Bakery eyes turnaround from sour '91

■ After re-establishing the Detroit retail trade, Bob Awrey is looking at boosting sales to push his factory operation to full capacity.

A new watch and a fresh start go hand in hand for Bob Awrey and the Livonia bakery that bears his name.

Awrey's wife, Betty Jean, and grown children recently gave him a new watch inscribed for 50 years of service to the company after a timepiece he had received on his 25th anniversary broke.

Earlier this year, Awrey reported a small profit for the first three months of operations after losing $2.5 million during a tumultuous 1991.

"We see a future in frozen food service nationally," said Awrey, grandson of the bakery's founder who now serves as chairman and chief executive officer. "We're starting to serve the vending trade, convenience stores and we have re-established retail in Detroit."

The Livonia plant, which employs some 400, is operating only at about 55 percent capacity, Awrey said, so there's plenty of room for growth.

"It's a fact that people still like to eat sweets, 'that which tastes good," he said. "They talk more than they diet.

"We have a very efficient, high-quality production plant. Now we have to go out and sell more," Awrey said. "I'm a cockeyed optimist. I have a lot of confidence in people here."

That confidence placed in non-family operating managers prior to a brooming last fall turned out to be a mistake, Awrey said.

Reverse mortgages appeal to few individuals, banks

■ 'The individual the program is geared for is an older adult who finds himself in a house-rich, cash-poor situation. Most likely, they're living on a fixed income supply that's not keeping up with the cost of living.'

Brigit Green
Reverse Mortgage Co.

They're called home equity conversion mortgages — or more simply, reverse mortgages. The loans, backed by the Federal Housing Administration, enable homeowners who are at least 62 years of age to tap into their equity to supplement income.

A borrower can choose from among five distribution plans. Unlike a traditional home equity loan, where monthly repayments begin immediately, a reverse mortgage is repaid in one lump sum after the owner or his estate sells the property.

And applicants don't have to qualify as to income or assets.

But few doors are open to prospective borrowers.

Just one lender, Reverse Mortgage Co., a subsidiary of Unity Mortgage Corp. based in Georgia, offers the FHA-insured reverse mortgage in metro Detroit.

That office opened in Southfield last month.

"The individual the program is geared for is an older adult who finds himself in a house-rich, cash-poor situation," said Brigit Green, branch manager for Reverse Mortgage Co. "Most likely, they're living on a fixed income supply that's not keeping up with the cost of living."

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development established a pilot program nearly three years ago to insure some 25,000 home equity conversion mortgages around the country.

Basic requirements

Applicants must own their homes free and clear or nearly so and actually live there, Green said.

A formula taking into account an applicant's age, the value of the house and prevailing treasury bill interest rates determines how much someone can borrow.

Normally, borrowers can tap a third to half of appraised value with an FHA mandated maximum of $101,250 for Oakland County properties and $85,150 in Wayne County, Green said.

"The borrower's age is the most important element," she said. "The older the borrower, generally the more equity you can tap into."

Interest accrues on the outstanding balance based on the rate of one-year treasury bills at closing. As of Tuesday, it was 5.87 percent not to rise more than 2 percent a year or 5 percent over the life of the mortgage.

Borrowers don't include mortgage proceeds as income and don't deduct accrued mortgage interest on annual tax returns, Green said.

The FHA charges mortgage insurance — 2 percent of the appraised home value up front that can be rolled into the mortgage and one-half percent annually on the outstanding balance.

Reverse Mortgage Co. charges a 2 percent origination fee and traditional closing costs like survey, title insurance, appraisal and credit report.

Borrowers or their estates never have to pay back more than what they get at sale even if the property loses value in time.

A session with a HUD-approved counselor is required of all applicants so they fully understand what they're getting into and to cover other personal finance options.

Why no action?

Lack of knowledge about the program and a hesitation to make a major financial move deter many prospective borrowers, Green said.

"When you're working with an older adult, their home — their greatest asset — in most instances, people are very skeptical and inquisitive to what it's all about," she said.

No one besides Reverse Mortgage is in the game here yet.

"I understand there's a demand. We think it's such a small part of the market we prefer to let other players fill that niche," said Michael Lubig, manager of the mortgage department for Standard Federal Bank, the largest mortgager in the state.

NBD is trying to launch a pilot program in the Chicago market, said Paul Swan, first vice president at the bank.

"It's a complex product. It takes a lot of time and effort explaining the complexity of the program to the customer base," he said. "Conceptually, it has a lot of appeal. Practically, the market doesn't seem to be there."

"We think it's a loan that incorporates more risk than we're willing to take," said Al Marshall, manager of business development for First Federal of Michigan.

"We've never offered this product primarily because of involved accounting requirements necessary," said Ariadne Magoulias, spokeswoman for Michigan National Bank.

SUBURBAN LIFE

C

Group offers special care to caregivers

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Never in her wildest dreams did Missy Poppenger expect to be doing those things for her 25-year-old son that she did for him when he was an infant.

Never in her wildest dreams did she think she would join a growing number of people — husbands, wives, parents and children — who must care for an invalid relative.

She may never have dreamed it, but it happened to the Livonia resident. It happened when her oldest son suffered a massive stroke, followed by a brain hemorrhage and two brain surgeries, more than three years ago.

For three months, she literally lived at University of Michigan Hospital so she could be close to her son. Her life and that of her family was turned upside down.

Poppenger knew what she should do; it was advice she has offered many times to participants in grief support classes she facilitates through the R.G. and G.R. Harris Funeral Home. She did the opposite.

"In grief support, I tell them not to make any decisions the first year, but when it happened to me, I pulled out of everything," she said. "I went from being active in the community to caring for a 22-year-old male. I shut my whole life down for 1½ years and I see other people doing it because they don't want to ask for help."

That may partially explain why Poppenger and Kathy Clark, director of senior citizen program for the city of Livonia, are putting their all into a new support group for caregivers, young and old alike.

Out of whack

The idea for the group surfaced at an "Issues of Aging" program that Poppenger does at the Livonia Senior Center once a month. The speaker a few months ago focused on those things that can cause a family structure to get out of whack.

What found talking to participants after the speech was a roomful of caregivers with no place "to go to let off steam."

Clark and Poppenger decided to put the "Issues" program on hold for six months and focus their energies on the caregivers support group. It met for the first time in May and with very little publicity four people showed up.

One participant was a woman who has provided long-term care for husband. She complained that people would call and ask how her husband was, but never inquired about her state of health.

"It's terrible to say, but a majority of the human race doesn't know how to take care of themselves," said Poppenger. "People need to learn how to give people permission to help them. They need to let others know how they feel."

The group meets on the second Tuesday of the month in the lounge of the Livonia Senior Center, Five Mile and Farmington roads. To accommodate caregivers, two meetings are offered at 1 and 7 p.m. They last about 1½ hours.

The first participants have expressed an interest in wanting the group to be a support group to on another and be able to get information they can "trust and rely on."

According to Poppenger, there's and interest in being able to discuss problems and solve them as well as have access to medical professionals who can be questioned about losses and experiences.

"These people struggle with the issues of caring of a family member and their new role," Poppenger said. "I know. It was difficult for me to suddenly have to do personal care for a 22-year-old male that I did when he was an infant. It was hard for me and it was hard for him to give me that permission.

"When they're put into this new role, it can lower their self-esteem. The whole family structure is changed by it."

For men and women

Poppenger stresses that even though the group meets at a senior center, it is meant for caregivers of all ages and for both men and women. She doesn't want "anyone to stay away because of the location."

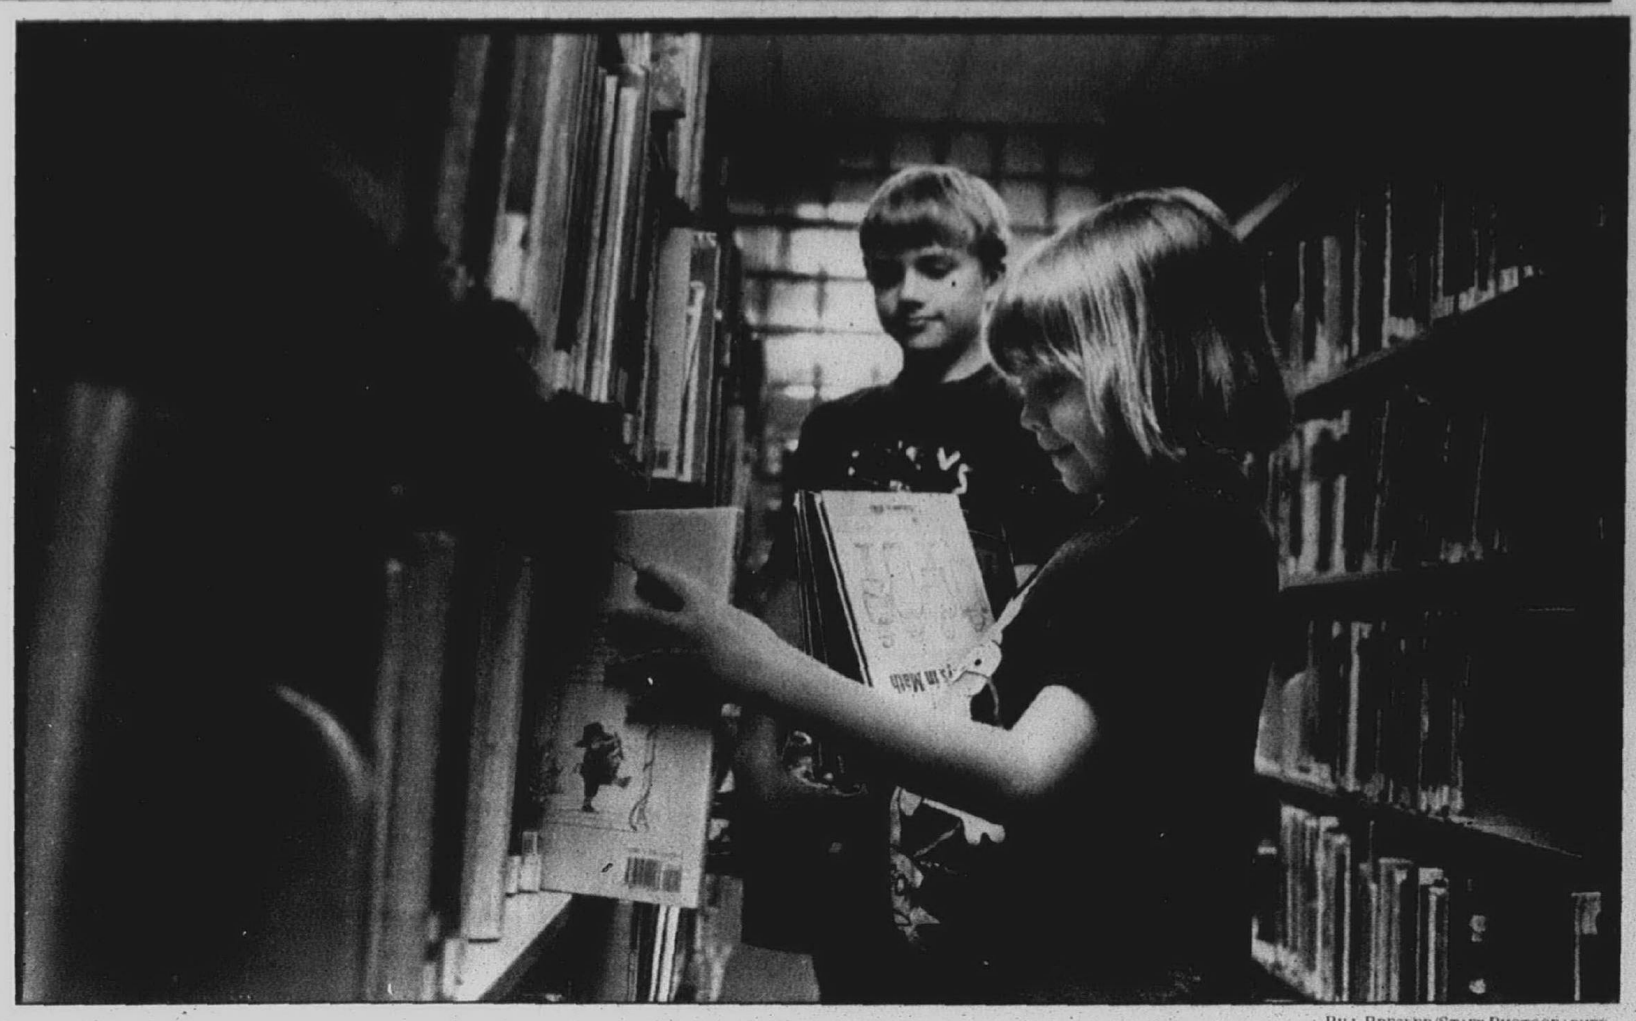

And she also hopes participants will be able to say what they're going through. It is, she admits, a big decision for them to let people into their space.

Poppenger has a lot of experience with support groups through her position as community service representative for R.G. and G.R. Harris Funeral Home. She also is a certified death educator, only one of eight such people in the state, and serves as adjunct counselor and coordinator with grief specialist Dr. John Canine.

"For anyone in the role of a caregiver, it can be a horrible experience," she said. "Your life is turned every which way. They need a lot of backup support from people who can give them good resource information and lift them up.

"I hope people will come and see about this group. Only they can determine if it's right for them. If it's not right, we can find something that is."

The next meetings of the Caregiver Support Group will be at 1 and 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 9, at the Livonia Senior Center, Farmington and Five Mile Road. For more information, call Kathy Clark at 522-2710.

Reading for fun: Plymouth-Canton students will participate in reading programs at local libraries this summer. Danielle and Kevin Blamer were at the Plymouth District Library earlier this week looking for good books. Danielle, 8, and Kevin, 11, are Bird Elementary School students.

Libraries 'book' kids for summer

■ Even before kids have a chance to wail that summer lament about nothing to do, the Plymouth and Canton libraries have come up with the answer. Their summer reading programs are meant to entertain children and keep them "booked" during the three-month break.

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Reading for fun will be the name of the game this summer at the Canton Public Library and Plymouth District Library.

Both libraries will again offer summer reading programs for school-age children and Read-To-Me programs for preschoolers. Registration will begin Monday, June 15, at the library in downtown Plymouth, 223 S. Main, and in Canton, 1200 S. Canton Center, south of Cherry Hill.

The main purpose "is to get kids to read throughout the summer," said Michele Monroe, a children's librarian at the Canton Public Library. "Just for fun, just to enjoy it, to read the things you might not get a chance to read during the school year.

"We have a lot of kids who like to read. They really get excited about the summer reading club, which is great," she said.

Paperback fiction's particularly popular with young readers. Many enjoy books from such series as Sweet Valley Twins and The Baby-Sitters Club.

"In the summertime, the fiction is a little bit stronger." Children enjoy reading stories about other youngsters their own age, Monroe said, including books with a summertime theme such as those about camp. Some read non-fiction, including books on animals, insects or plants, while some choose such classics as "Treasure Island" or "Little Women."

Lighter fiction circulates in the summer at the Plymouth District Library, along with other books that appeal to young readers.

"It's a time to enjoy. Some lighter reading is a good thing to do, back off on the studies," said Pam Rawlinson, assistant library director. The program's been offered for a number of years and is popular with Plymouth-area families.

"The reasoning behind it, of course, is to keep the kids reading throughout the summer." That's particularly important for youngsters who've just learned to read, Rawlinson said, and many local teachers encourage families to sign up.

She doesn't have a problem with students reading lighter fiction, such as Sweet Valley Twins books, in the summer.

"Most anything to get them to read is preferable to not reading at all." Often, after children have read 65 or so books from such a series, Rawlinson said, they move on to more challenging material.

"They start looking for something else. You can kind of steer them."

The Plymouth program, sponsored by the Friends of the Library, has a "Reach for It — Read!" theme, based on the summer Olympics.

The program is for students ages 6-12 who read independently. Plymouth participants will begin reading Monday, June 22. For information, call 453-0750.

Fun-filled sessions

As part of the program, several activity sessions will be held at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer: 1 p.m. Friday, June 26, kickoff program for ages 6-8; 2:30 p.m. Friday, June 26, kickoff program for ages 9-12; 2 p.m. Thursday, July 9, gymnastics demonstration for ages 6-12; 2 p.m. Friday, July 31, final party for all participants.

Advance registration for each session isn't required at the Plymouth District Library.

Read-To-Me programs in Plymouth, for children age 6 and under, will include: 10 a.m. Friday, June 26, kickoff program at the Plymouth Cultural Center; 10 a.m. Friday, July 31, final celebration with a singer at the Cultural Center.

Canton Public Library participants will also enjoy activity sessions. Programs for first through eighth-graders who read independently will include: 2 p.m. Monday, July 6, magic/ventriloquism show; 2 p.m. Tuesday, July 14, musical program; 2 p.m. Wednesday, July 22, program of songs and stories; 2 p.m. Thursday, July 30, program featuring a clown performance.

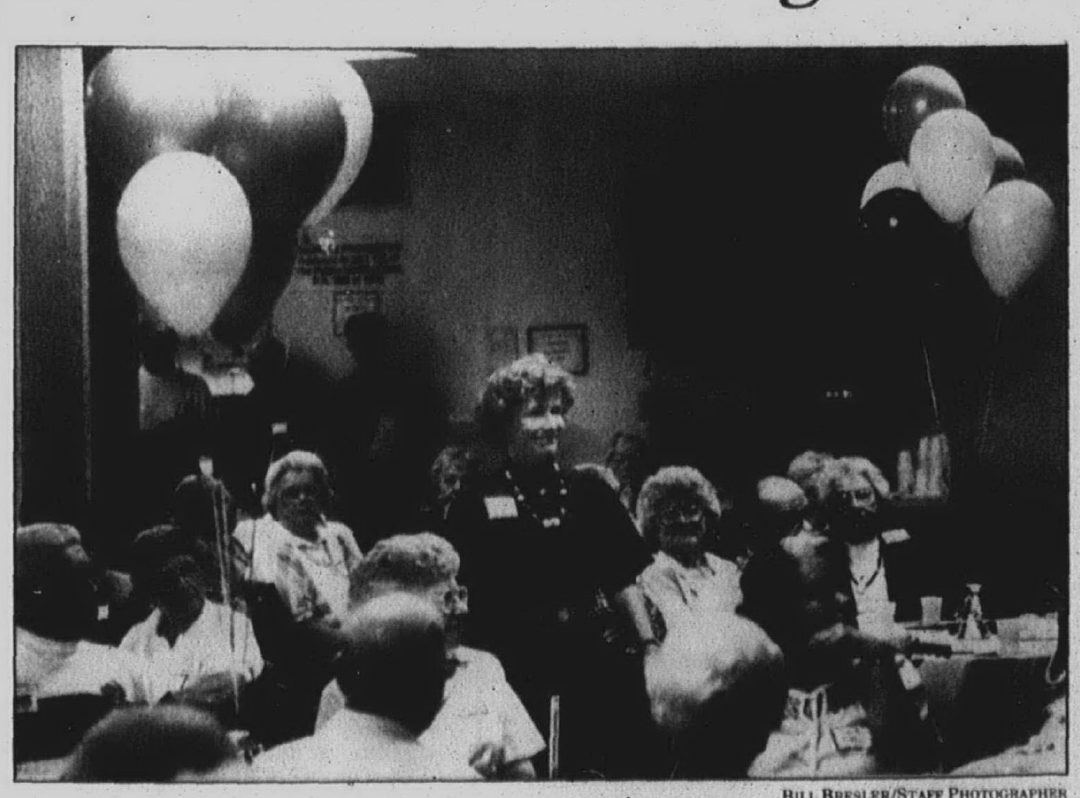

Participants must register by phone or in person for each session. For information, call 397-0999.

Brown-bag story times will be offered for Read-To-Me participants, ages 2-5. Those will be 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Wednesdays, June 24, July 8 and July 22, on the Canton Public Library's south lawn. Advance registration is required for each story time, and can be done by phone or in person. An adult must accompany each child or group.

School-age participants in both communities are encouraged to read books at their own level. When things aren't too busy, librarians enjoy taking time to talk with youngsters about books read.

Kudos acknowledge volunteers' work

Kudos: Sally Rowland, a tax counselor for senior citizens, steps up to receive her certificate. A number of volunteers were honored during the open house.

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Hard-working volunteers in Canton deserve a break every now and then.

Some of those volunteers took time to relax during an open house at the Canton Senior Citizens Center. Volunteers from all walks of life were honored during the Wednesday, May 27, get-together.

"They do so much work for us," said Dianne Neihengen, senior citizen coordinator for Canton Township. More than 100 volunteers, most of them senior citizens, participate in a variety of programs at the center, and about 80 attended the open house.

"We wanted just simply to say 'Thank you' to them because they do a wonderful job," she said. "We couldn't have some of these programs without their assistance. We just couldn't do it."

A flu shot clinic, sponsored by the Wayne County Health Department, is held each fall at the center on Michigan Avenue. Some volunteers help with that project. Others have duties ranging from delivering meals to the homebound to managing softball teams for seniors.

Neihengen knows that the volunteers benefit from their involvement.

"Absolutely. What they tell me is the more they become involved, the happier they feel. We've decided volunteerism is one of the most healthy things you can do, for any age group."

Volunteers received certificates of appreciation,

Programs will feature incentives designed to keep kids reading. Canton participants will receive a lottery ticket for each book read. The program, which has a theme of "Read, Rock and Rap," will also feature weekly puzzles and games. Drawings will be held for prizes at the end of the program.

Plymouth's program will also feature a variety of contests and reading games, in which school-age participants will use the card catalog and reference books to learn about Olympic events. Incentive items, such as bookmarks and balloons, will be given to preschoolers.

■ Some read non-fiction, including books on animals, insects or plants, while some choose such classics as "Treasure Island" or "Little Women."

"I think it is going to be a real good program," Rawlinson said. "We're all looking forward to it."

Rawlinson and Monroe know children won't spend the entire summer reading. There will be time for outdoor activities as well.

"I think they should do both," Monroe said. She hopes students will get into the habit of reading, "to read for fun when they have time or to get information on things around them."

along with congratulations from local officials, including Tom Yack, township supervisor.

Tim De Coninck of Canton and his wife, Margaret, were among those present. He manages a softball team for men age 65 and older. De Coninck, 73, has been the manager for about three years and played on the team for about three years before that.

He knows it's important for seniors to stay active.

"Most of the guys would rather play ball than do the vacuum cleaning," he said with a smile. Most of the senior athletes are involved in other sports as well, such as golf and bowling.

Team members play each Monday and Wednesday, traveling to compete. The exercise is a tremendous help to the athletes, he said, as is the opportunity to associate with people the same age.

"It kind of rejuvenates the spirits a little bit," said De Coninck, a retiree who had his own contracting company in the building trades.

Sally Rowland of Plymouth Township's among the younger volunteers at the center. She works in the income tax counseling program sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons.

"I have been a professional tax preparer and I just thought it was something I could do," said Rowland, who's been involved in the program for about five years. Many of the volunteers she works with are older retirees.

"It's a real service and the people here are just wonderful to work with," she said.

Writer in flux over issues in her life

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Hi Lorene,

I was so excited to see your column in the Observer. I've always been very interested in this type of personal translation.

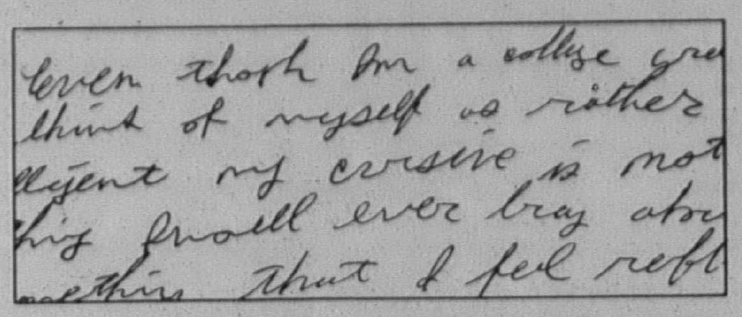

I am a 23-year-old female who is right handed.

I'm not sure if you would like a print or cursive sample so as you can see I've enclosed both.

Even though I'm a college graduate and think of myself as rather intelligent, my cursive is not something I'll ever brag about or something that I feel reflects who I really am. It's always been much easier for me to print.

Thank you for your time. Best of luck!!

S.S.,
Farmington

Thank you for enclosing samples of both your printing and cursive writing. While the printing is a better quality, similar traits appear in both styles. I might also mention that printers are often people with art aptitude.

The many changes in our young writer's handwriting lead me to believe she is still in a state of flux about many issues and elements in her life.

Throughout this handwriting sample are several words which are illegible. In all cases of illegibility, we must determine if there are physiological or technical reasons. If there are not, we are safe to conclude there are unresolved personal problems.

Also pervasive are changes in the slant of letters within words, especially the printing. This suggests she is torn by inner conflicts. Seemingly, she experiences ambivalent feelings in many areas. Her emotions can vacillate rather quickly, resulting in mood swings and unpredictable behavior.

Unfortunately, she has not learned the importance of self-discipline. I think she would find it beneficial to concentrate on developing more of it. Currently, she is inclined to work as the mood moves her, or out of necessity.

Signs of carelessness or hurried performance of her daily tasks appear often. She probably leaves things open or uncovered, just where she last worked with them. Then in hurrying again, she spills and gets upset with herself having to clean up the mess.

This slap-dash work pattern also has her banging, scraping or bruising herself. Subconsciously, this carelessness can be a bid for attention or sympathy.

Her signature is larger than the body of the handwriting and totally illegible. She wants to be viewed as important, but does not want others to know her well.

Feelings of self-worth seem to vacillate. She is too easily affected by circumstances outside of herself.

Carelessly written numerals indicate a careless attitude or ambiguity toward money.

Our young writer is not without goals. She also has a strong need to win, but some of the aforementioned traits may be counterproductive. She may want to take time out and assess the direction she wants her life to move in.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And objective feedback is always welcome.

Volunteers honored

Some "warm and caring" people were the center of attention at the fourth annual Volunteer Recognition Dinner for Hospice Services of Western Wayne County Inc. May 11.

Held at the Park Place in Dearborn, the dinner acknowledged the time and talents the volunteers donate to the agency.

Skillman Interlochen scholarships available

Students from the metropolitan Detroit/Pontiac area who interested in attending Interlochen Arts Academy for the 1992-93 academic year can apply for a Skillman Foundation scholarship.

Scholarships are awarded annually to minority youth from low-income families on the basis of outstanding academic performance, demonstrated by grades, attendance records, teacher/counselor recommendations and testing results.

"The Skillman Scholars Program is a wonderful way for deserving students in any of the academic or arts areas at Interlochen," said Thomas Bewley, director of admissions for the Interlochen Center for the Arts.

"This program is truly a once-in-a-lifetime chance for these kids," added admissions counselor Camille Harris. "It allows them to excel in academics and the arts in a top-notch environment without the financial worries that usually go along with it."

The scholarships provide full tuition, room and board and travel expenses totaling $20,000 for awardees in academics or creative writing, visual arts, theater arts, dance or music, including voice.

Students are eligible if entering the school at the high school level for the first time or if they were Skillman Scholars in the preceding academic year. Scholarships are not awarded on the basis of athletic ability.

The Skillman Foundation was established in 1960 as a private charitable foundation to improve the well-being of the residents of southeastern Michigan, particularly the young, old and disadvantage.

For scholarship applications or further information, contact the Interlochen Arts Academy, P.O. Box 199, INterlochen, Mich. 49643 or call (616) 276-9221, Ext. 472.

WE WELCOME GOD'S MOST ENCHANTING SEASON OF SPRING

His music is his gift from God

BY ARLENE FUNKE
SPECIAL WRITER

Carey Landry uses music to speak heartfelt messages.

Landry, a composer of contemporary religious songs, will bring his "gift of God" to local audiences this weekend. He will present a concert Friday at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church in Plymouth.

"I believe (music) is the way that God reveals himself to me," said Landry, 47, who lives near Indianapolis. "Very simply, it is a gift of God."

Landry, a former Roman Catholic priest, has written many of the hymns used by churches and prayer groups. Two of his well-known songs include "Abba! Father!" and "Peace Is Flowing Like a River."

The concert, at 7:30 p.m., will be at the church, 1160 Penniman in Plymouth. Tickets are $5 in advance or $6 at the door, and $15 per family.

Landry also will conduct a workshop 9 a.m. to noon Saturday at St. Maurice Church, 32765 Lyndon, Livonia. Advance registration, by noon Friday, is required. The workshop, which costs $4, is geared to music directors, teachers and worship commission members.

Sponsors of the two events are Our Lady of Good Counsel and St. Maurice Catholic churches.

Landry, who plays guitar, was at the forefront of the folk mass era so prevalent two decades ago. He began writing songs in the late 1960s while studying theology at Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

"I have always been interested in music," Landry said.

One of his earliest songs, "The Spirit Is A-Moving," became an anthem for people who embraced the changes in the Catholic Church following the Vatican II Conference in the early 1960s.

The song talks of "doors opening," as the Holy Spirit calls people to serve and bear witness to God's message.

"There was a new spirit in the church," Landry said.

Landry, who was subsequently ordained, composed many songs, often drawing inspiration from prayers and Bible passages. Many of his songs were recorded.

■ 'Music can be a powerful inspiration. The text, the words and music combine to reach people in a way that often the spoken words cannot.'

Carey Landry

"There is something extremely precious about each one," Landry said. "Every song initially has some sort of inspiration."

Hope and spiritual healing are strong themes of "Peace Is Flowing Like a River." In "Abba! Father!," God is the "potter," molding his people, the "clay."

Landry's composition, "Hail Mary; Gentle Woman," pays homage to a mother's abiding love, gentleness and wisdom.

"I had my own mother in mind when I wrote about Mary, the mother of Jesus," Landry said.

Although Landry left the priesthood in 1984, he continues — through his music — to inspire and comfort. He has traveled throughout North America, Europe and Australia, performing and leading music workshops.

With his wife, Carol Jean Kinghorn, Landry has created a music ministry geared to young children and teens.

"Music can be a powerful inspiration," Landry said. "The text, the words and music combine to reach people in a way that often the spoken words cannot. You can speak to a lot of people at the same time. Even the instrumentals without words provide a background for prayer."

Friday's concert will encourage audience participation, said Joe Podorsek of Livonia, director of the contemporary choir at St. Maurice, to be featured in the concert.

"It's a really neat spiritual experience — something they will remember for a long time," said Podorsek, 48, who has performed and taught music for many years. He owns a vacuum cleaner sales and repair business in Redford.

The Saturday workshop is geared to helping choir directors, teachers, prayer groups and song leaders use music more effectively to draw in the audience.

In addition to the guitar, Landry blends other instrumentation, including flute, keyboard and synthesizers, along with singing.

According to Landry, many older Catholics weren't accustomed, until recently, to singing hymns. Music ministers can learn techniques to encourage participation.

"They (audience) haven't been invited well enough," Landry said. "It has to be consistent. It just takes time."

Musical message: Carey Landry will present a concert and workshop this weekend. His wife, Carol Jean Kinghorn, works with him, but won't participate in the local events.

The concert will begin 7:30 p.m. Friday at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, 1160 Penniman, Plymouth. Tickets are $5 in advance, $6 at the door, or $15 per family. For information, call 453-0326 or 522-1616. The workshop, 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, will be at St. Maurice Church, 32765 Lyndon, Livonia. Cost is $4, and registration is required by noon Friday. For information, call 522-1616.

Murphy: Family values or sacred cows

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. ROBERT SCHADEN

Even if you do not watch TV sitcoms, you have probably been introduced to Murphy Brown. The introductions have been handled by Mr. Quayle or any number of media commentators. In any case, you know that she is a single parent and that she is not married to the father of her child.

You also know something of the heat-generating discussions that have evolved from Murphy's choice. Mother Brown, of course, is the catalyst, not the issue. The issue raised by the vice president has been labeled with one of those nice phrases, one about which hardly anyone does not have an opinion. "Family values" is the magic phrase.

At the same time, it is a rather dangerous phrase. Its danger lies in the fact that those who use it can labor under the illusion that they are all talking about the same thing, when in reality they are not.

■ Somehow, I am reluctant to believe that putting two parental bodies in every home would restore the family values that some politicians promise to bring back. Voters love people with such power!

The person who stands up and claims to put down family values is rather rare, indeed. But what are these family values over which there seems to be far more flap than there is action?

In my understanding, family values are the values of love, of acceptance, or relational responsibility and respect, of honesty and support that we supposedly learn in the family structure. It would seem to follow then that believing a family to be the best structure for such values to be learned presupposes a support for those other structures in society that support the kind of family about which we wax so eloquently.

To read some of the rhetoric, one would have to conclude that single parenthood is also the single culprit. Of all the single parents I have met, none come to mind who suggest that a competent and loving partner would not be a help in the parenting process. I suspect that Murphy Brown, herself, would agree with that.

Somehow, I am reluctant to believe that putting two parental bodies in every home would restore the family values that some politicians promise to bring back. Voters love people with such power!

In searching for a so-called return to these lost values, do we dare to look beyond the Murphy Browns of our world? Can we admit that while some single parent situations are sadly lacking in the ability to instill the above-mentioned values, other single parents are far more competent in the matter than some sets of two?

Do we dare to look to some of the structures against which many families struggle for survival? Do we dare to look to corporate America which does not consider kindly the employee who dares to put his or her marriage and family ahead of a company that at times acts as if it owns the soul of the employee?

Do we dare to look to a tax structure that is anything but helpful to struggling families? Indeed, do we look to government in general, which seems far more bent on its own agenda than on the plight of homeless families and other disenfranchised parents, single or partnered alike?

Perhaps it will always be easier to scapegoat the Murphy Browns of society than to blaspheme the above-mentioned sacred cows. After all, they do hold the power and the money. Most single parents simply do their best with what they are given.

Meadow flowers brighten landscape

NATURE TRAILS

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

Woodland flowers were late blooming this year because of the cold temperatures experienced this spring. But now, even they are nearing the end of their blooming season. Trillium are turning lavender, while hepatica and skunk cabbage finished blooming a long time ago. And May apple's short blooming season will soon end.

But those who like to watch flowers should not despair, because when the woodland flowers stop blooming, the meadow flowers begin their display.

Pussytoes are one of the first meadow flowers to bloom. The short white clustered blooms resemble the toes of a cat's paw. They also excrete a chemical which prevents other plants from growing too close. Many may pass by this flower because it is not very conspicuous.

In late spring and early summer, however, a very conspicuous meadow wildflower known as hawkweed blooms. This wildflower - introduced from Europe - has very tall stems emerging from a rosette, or cluster of leaves at the base. Some stems may tower up to 2-feet-tall. Set on top of the hairy stem is a cluster of daisy-like flowers.

Flowers may be either yellow or orange-red. Sometimes both colors grow together in the same field. Although hawkweed produces a seed on a fluffy "parachute" which can be transported by the wind to suitable soil, it also spreads by underground roots or rhizomes. Spreading by underground rhizomes can produce a dense patch of plants whose leaves block out sunlight and prevent any other plants from growing. Since cattle do not eat the plant, cattlemen call this plant devil's paintbrush.

ILLUSTRATION BY TIM NOWICKI

Long, lanky: Hawkweed is identified by its long stem emerging from a cluster of leaves at the base. Some stems may tower up to 2 feet tall. Set on top of the hairy stem is a cluster of daisy-like flowers which are either yellow or orange-red.

Years ago it was brought to this country to help cure eye ailments. People would see hawks dive into patches of this plant and they thought it was drinking the sap from this plant to help improve its eyesight. Actually the hawk was catching mice not drinking the sap. But because hawks have good eyesight, early healers used it to cure human eye problems.

As you drive along highways and pass by areas disturbed by construction, look for patches of the yellow and orange hawkweed, they really brighten up the landscape.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

Accent's on fine art at Liberty Fest fair

Color it red, white and blue — the hues of Old Glory on the event's promotional T-shirts.

But Canton's first-ever Liberty Fest Fine Arts Show, Saturday-Sunday, June 27-28, will boast a palette of other shades, too.

The accent will be on original Michigan fine art in a potpourri of media: oils, watercolors, acrylics, marbling, jewelry, pastels, photography, clay.

The art show is part of Liberty Fest '92, a brand-new community festival June 26-28 on the grounds of Heritage Park, a newly enlarged, 105-acre recreation complex at 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

Crafts will be sold at the festival but separate from the art show. "Canton has held typical arts and crafts shows before. With this the first year for the festival, we wanted to have an arts event with a little different angle," said Bob Dates, Canton recreation supervisor.

Make no mistake: The fine art should measure up, even to the most studied eye. The 50 exhibitors will include top local artists like Jim DeArmond of Plymouth, Sue Argiroff of Livonia, Norma McQueen of Garden City, Sherrie Moore of Canton, Bladen McClelland of Redford Township and Hugh Burley of Ann Arbor.

Co-jurors Sharon Dillenbeck of D & M Art Studios in Plymouth and Julie Giordano of J. Giordano Studio in Northville also will display their work. When jurying, they'll pay special attention to quality.

"I don't want any junk. I want the quality to be very high," says Dillenbeck, a professional artist for 15 years. "I hope everybody realizes we have fine artists close to home. We're going to put Canton on the fine arts map."

Committed to the arts

A Canton resident, Dillenbeck isn't content with drawing township residents to her studio in Plymouth's Old Village. In cooperation with the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, she has developed township-based fine arts programs for kids and seniors.

In wake of the depressed economy and the bitter controversy over state arts funding, Dillenbeck and Giordano teamed up to organize last fall's very successful Holiday Gallery Tour in Plymouth and Northville.

Dillenbeck anticipates more than 50 artists will pass muster for a booth in one of the two lighted, 36-space tents at the Liberty Fest Fine Arts Show.

Artwork will range in price from $5 for an unframed reproduction to $500 up for a framed original.

"Artists will be invited to demonstrate their talents in a setting offering a pond or classic cars as a backdrop," Dillenbeck said. "It'll be a real creative environment."

Advanced art students of Dillenbeck and Giordano will serve up face-painting. "They're teenage studio artists who'll receive a quick lesson in how to face-paint," Dillenbeck said.

"It'a way not only for them to make some money but also do something creative as an artist," Giordano added.

Red carpet treatment

The $50 booth fee includes a hospitality area for artists. It also includes hostesses who will fill in for artists on break.

"We're really going all out. We're going to treat 'em right," said Dillenbeck, who does portraiture and creates realistic impressionism in pencil, watercolor and oil.

Their hope is to "give fine artists an inexpensive opportunity to show their wares and one more place to market their work where the overhead isn't too high," said Giordano, who works in the same media as Dillenbeck.

In her booth at the show, Giordano, a professional artist for eight years, will showcase her portraiture as well as her drawings of antique cars, homes and pets.

The $5 jurying fee is purposely low, she said, because "we're just trying to get the show off the ground. We'll recoup our promotional costs, but we don't expect any profit."

A victim of the recession, Giordano closed her two-year-old Northville gallery of Michigan fine art last fall after lease problems and a 30-percent drop in sales.

She calls the Liberty Fest Fine Arts Show a good way to fight the economic downturn.

"Economic times are tough for artists," she said. "It's been a terrible time for most of the artists I've talked to. So we have to do all we can to get our work out there. We can't just sit back and wait for people to come to us."

Bob Sklar is assistant managing editor for special projects.

Accent's on elegance at fund-raiser

■ Three Ford Motor Co. tents will house everything from paintings to country crafts at the annual Spring Elegance fund-raiser for restoration of Nankin Mills on Sunday, June 7. More than 30 artists and artisans will exhibit their work.

Art

Friends of Nankin Mills, in conjunction with the Wayne County Parks Division, will host the fourth annual Spring Elegance art show and country fair on Sunday, June 7, across from the historic Westland mill.

Paintings, pen and ink sketches, ceramics, jewelry, baskets, stained glass, wearable art and country crafts by more than 30 artists and artisans will color the community gathering to raise money for the mill's continuing restoration.

Westland artist Saundra Weed will award first, second and third place, Best of Show and honorable mentions after judging, set to begin at noon.

"Our goal is to get people interested in the mill," said Joe Benyo, Westland City Council legislative assistant. "We'd like people to come down and meet the folks volunteering their time to restore it to what it was, look over the many changes and become interested in the history."

To add flavor to the event, Friends of Nankin Mills will don period clothing.

Art show festivities include face painting by Northville artist Julie Giordano. In the afternoon, square dancing demonstrations, round dancing, Irish step dancing and Scottish sword dancing will delight young and old alike.

"We would like to continue to bring people together and, eventually, we hope the mill will be a community gathering place," said Denise Mehelich Friends vice-president. "We need a nature center there. This serves as one of our fund-raisers held during the year to outfit our nature center in the next couple of years."

Addition planned

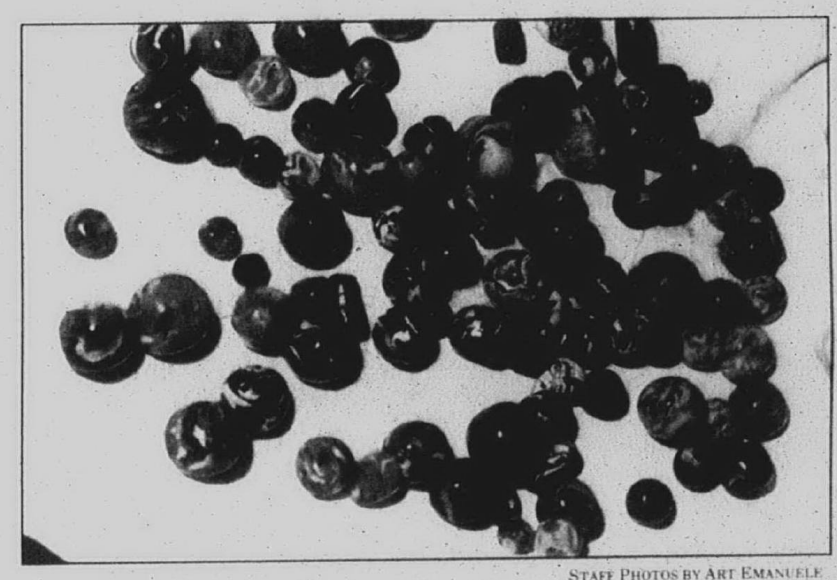

Future plans for the historic mill, a Civil War-era gristmill and once part of Henry Ford's village industries in the Rouge, Raisin and Huron river basins, include an addition to serve as offices for the Wayne County Parks Division now housed in the mill.

Other plans include a naturalist,

Baskets designed as functional art

Lyricism and light playing on the handwoven basketry by Westland artisan Scott Smith draw the viewer across the gallery.

The baskets' sensual curves and contemporary color class these weaving wonders with sculpture as the eye is magnetically drawn through and around the forms.

Crafted from traditional fibers, Smith incorporates handmade paper and burlap into the weaving to decorate the 15 functional baskets on exhibit, with California ceramicist Chris Waldear's plates and bowls, through June 15 at Penniman Showcase of Art and Crafts, 827 Penniman, Plymouth.

"They're all functional. You can use everything I make and they can be customized," said Smith in an interview at the gallery.

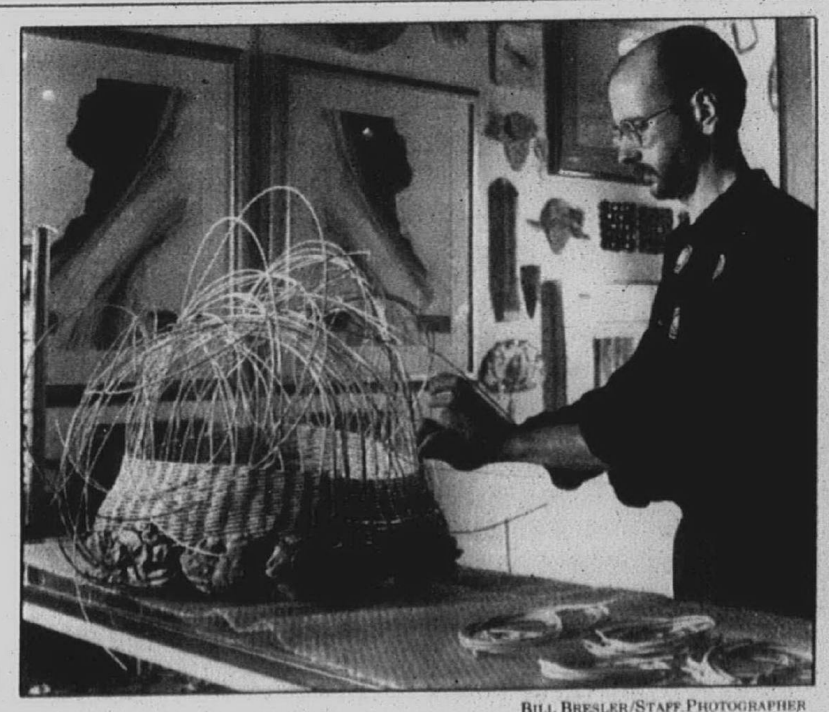

Once woven, Smith paints the baskets with latex house paint in poetic pastels with an emphasis on pink, teal, raspberry, peach, tangerine, aqua, blue and a Southwestern palette of sand colors.

"My latest baskets are following contemporary color trends in the deeper pastels," Smith said.

■ ANCESTRAL ROOTS

Three cheers for the Plymouth Historical Museum, Kathy Petlewski of the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth told a regional meeting of local historical societies May 12.

That's because of the museum's local historical archives.

"Our librarians probably would rather have root canal than see more than one enthusiastic genealogy patron a week," quipped Petlewski, a reference librarian and history buff.

Ninety-five percent of library patrons in search of genealogy, she said, are interested in local historical records.

The library is stocked with a wealth of genealogy resources and materials — from books to censuses to databases — but they're more general in scope.

"We'll tell folks looking for Plymouth history to go to where people concentrate on local history — the historical society at the museum," Petlewski said.

The museum's archives boast such resources as cemetery records, pioneer records, letters, scrapbooks, atlases, maps and displays, she said.

To maximize resources and control costs, public libraries and historical societies should work together and not compete, she said.

■ PERSONAL THEME

Canton artist Sharon Dillenbeck, owner of D & M Art Studios in Plymouth, will showcase 33 of the paintings in her "The Child and Her Environment" series Aug. 28 to Oct. 31 in the Harvest Room at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

"I have two small kids and my life is wrapped around my children. That comes out on canvas or paper," says Dillenbeck, a professional artist for 15 years who creates realistic impressionism in pencil, watercolor and oil. She also does portraiture.

The series is patterned after her kids in action in everyday situations.

cies of palms. Smith prides himself on their sturdiness.

"I've always been fascinated with textile art," Smith said. "My fascination for basketry was sparked in high school when I took a class in weaving."

Smith's interest in the decorative crafts deepened while employed at Greenfield Village in Dearborn in the now defunct crafts department as a full-time broom maker. It was here he would learn and hone skills necessary for weaving the rural baskets of America.

"They're primitive baskets," Smith said. "I love the primitive nature of basketry."

Smith studied textiles, weavings of various forms, and color at Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills and Center for Creative Studies in Detroit.

■ 'I never know what a product is going to look like until it's completed.'

Scott Smith
decorative artist

Seeking sales

In 1981, Smith opened "Basketsmith," a production studio in Novi weaving and selling basketry to more than 40 decorative arts galleries across the country. His baskets were featured in the Neiman Marcus catalogue.

"I was producing 30 baskets a week. The joy had gone out of basketry for me. It became a chore," Smith said.

In 1983, Smith opened Penniman Showcase, one of only three galleries in the Detroit Area focusing on the decorative arts in the early '80s.

Since that time, enthusiasm for the work of weavers, glass artists and ceramicists has grown tremendously, attracting admirers and collectors of fine art as well as simple folk who decorate their homes with the artisans' wares.

"I never know what a product is going to look like until it's completed," Smith said.

Abstract billowing shapes of handmade paper bubble through the precise patterns woven by the smooth fibers, creating a contrast in textures both visually and tactilely appealing. The viewer's eye follows the curving reeds outlining the form and lip of the basket providing rhythm and unity.

Historical roots

From Egypt to China, basket making exists as one of the ancient arts.

While its history is difficult to trace because roots, vines, grasses and vegetable fibers disintegrate over time, scientists have learned that around 5,000 B.C., Egyptians wove baskets for storing corn, according to a radiocarbon test of the corn. They also learned that basket making preceded pottery as a craft in North and South America.

Baskets dated 1-700 A.D. have been found in the Southwest. For thousands of years, North American Indians have used weaving skills to craft baskets from reeds and grasses for storage jars, sleeping mats and boats.

Techniques used in baskets 5,000 years ago are still employed today in African basketry.

In the hands of an artist like Smith, something magical happens in basketry, a subject all too often taken for granted.

Penniman Showcase specializes in ceramics, jewelry, blown glass, weavings, basketry and mixed media.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Wednesday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Cranbrook classes open

Cranbrook P.M., a program of continuing education and outreach, offers a variety of summer classes, seminars and workshops on Cranbrook's Bloomfield Hills campus.

Registration continues until classes are filled. For more information, call Cranbrook P.M. at 645-3635.

A six-week workshop on feature writing, conducted by Corinne Abatt, former Creative Living editor for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, begins in late June.

early Indian displays and displays of stuffed animals now on loan to the schools. Eventually," Benyo said, "we hope to get the generator going again and open up the water wheel gates. It would be a good thing for kids to see, how water can generate electricity."

Built in 1863, Nankin Mills was one of 20 water-powered village industries run by Henry Ford to ensure preservation of a rural way of life. Ford strove to bring mass production and the farmer together because he found industrialized city life unnatural.

Ford bought the three-story mill in 1918 to manufacture stencils for marking car parts. The county acquired it in 1948. In 1958, it became Nankin Mills Nature Center under naturalist Mary Ellsworth. In 1967, it was designated a historic site. In 1979, the nature center closed after budget cuts in the parks department.

The mill is being restored to 1930s vintage and will feature machinery from the Ford era. Last year, the county unveiled $1.5 million in restoration and expansion plans.

Mehelich said future plans include re-creation of Native American activities. "The Indians used to gather in spring to discuss property rights and other concerns."

Necklaces featured

This is the first art show where Cheryl Tash of Westland and Tony Hernandez of Dearborn Heights will exhibit their colorful clay bead necklaces. Tash got the idea for the beads after visiting San Francisco earlier this year.

"There was a fellow there making and selling them. We just wanted to make necklaces for ourselves and started experimenting with the clay beads. Our friends saw the necklaces and asked us to make them and we just ran with it," Tash said. "We're still exploring all we can do with it."

Tash, an art student at Schoolcraft Community College in Livonia, plans to continue her studies in art therapy at Wayne State University. She hopes to eventually work with abused children.

Hernandez, a senior at Dearborn Crestwood High School, will attend the University of Michigan in fall to prepare for an advertising career.

"I like the colors a lot. I like to be creative with them," Hernandez said.

"I think colors have a lot to do with mood. We've also got glow in the dark ones," Tash said.

Swirls of red, yellow, blue and green color the clay beads decorating necklaces, bracelets, pins and earrings ranging in price from $5 to $10.

"I'm excited about the show," Tash said. "I like people and I'm hoping we do well. I want to see what sells and what doesn't."

Show hours are noon to 5 p.m. Nankin Mills is at 33175 Ann Arbor Trail at Edward Hines Drive.

Add zest to your summer reading

BOOK BREAK

VICTORIA DIAZ

Here comes summer and with it a slew of bright and shiny books, newly published just for you. Here are a half-dozen of the best bets to top off your finest summer days:

• "Loves Music, Loves to Dance," by Mary Higgins Clark (304 pp., Pocket Books, $5.99). Clark may not be the finest writer in the world, but she's a crack storyteller, as evidenced in this zippy whodunit about some attractive people who get themselves into some very ugly trouble when they respond to Personals ads. Clark's ninth work of fiction was atop The New York Times bestseller list for many weeks after its release last year in hardcover. (pb)

• "Marilyn and Me," by Susan Strasberg (282 pp., Warner Books, $21.95). A fast-moving, highly readable account of the friendship and rivalry between Marilyn Monroe and actress Strasberg, daughter of Actors Studio director Lee Strasberg. During the '50s, Monroe came to live with the Strasberg family in New York City, sharing a room with the young actress at nights and studying with and "leaning on" Lee Strasberg much of the rest of the time. The author paints a picture of Monroe that's a bit different from previous portraits we've seen. Not surprisingly in these memoirs, Strasberg reveals quite a bit about herself as well.

• "Private Lies," by Warren Adler (336 pp., Avon, $4.99). If you can overlook lines like, "He felt a blast of heat from that old furnace, firing up the passion and possession that had inflamed his youthful soul," reading this sizzling novel about deception and recaptured love among two affluent, middle-aged couples could make for an interesting summer afternoon. Set partially in East Africa, "Private Lies" may remind readers a bit of Hemingway's "The Short, Happy Life of Francis Macomber," although Adler is no Hemingway. (pb)

• "Stardust, 7-Eleven, Route 57, A & W, and So Forth," by Patricia Lear (161 pp., Knopf, $19). Though the title is long, the stories are short in this collection by first-time author Lear. But though short, their impressions are longlasting. Told in a kind of down-home, conversational style, most are set among the cottonwood trees, Dairy Queens and faux antebellum architecture of the new South, where the characters delight in barbecue sandwiches and Razorback ice cream and the dogs have wonderful names like Stardust, 7-Eleven, Route 57, A & W and so forth. The final story in the collection. "Powwow," received the O. Henry Award for short fiction in 1991.

• "Turtle Moon," by Alice Hoffman (255 pp., Putnam, $21.95). Movie rights to this enchanting novel have been sold to Universal and I, for one, can't wait to get in line. This story about a man, a woman, a boy, a dog and an angel may get a little syrupy toward its conclusion, but I don't care. Anybody who can perform the magic that Hoffman performs here with words, anybody who can so often express the inexpressible, is a master. If you believe that we live among miracles, this book is something you absolutely must not miss.

• "Biblioholism: The Literary Addiction," by Tom Raabe (179 pp., Fulcrum Publishing, $8.95). Those of us who suffer from this malady (here defined as "the habitual longing to purchase, read, store, admire and consume books in excess") will find solace in this little tome, plus lots of laughs. But though its final chapter is titled "The Cure," I can personally attest to the fact that reading it will not help advanced cases. (pb)

-LAST WORDS: A number of Michigan authors will make appearances at Borders-Novi during June.

At 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 3, Lansing science fiction writer Michael Kube-McDowell will autograph his latest novel, "Exile." Lev Raphael of Okemos will read his essay from "Hometowns: Gay Men Write About Where They Belong" at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 11.

A writers workshop, headed by Pontiac poet Margo LaGattuta, will be 6:30-8 p.m. Sunday, June 14. At 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 24, Detroit poet M.L. Liebler and Adrian poet Saleem Peeradina will read from their work.

Art show winners crowned

First, second and third place and honorable mention were awarded in two categories, oil and mixed media.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Re/Max teams to help children with speech disorders

Re/Max Realtors, with regional headquarters in Southfield, has teamed with William Beaumont Hospital to help children with hearing and speech problems attend a special preschool operated by the hospital in West Bloomfield.

The Realtors have pledged at least $50,000 to the program this year, freeing up grants that previously provided financial aid to preschool families for other pediatric projects at Beaumont.

More than 200 of the 320 agents who work in the 21 metro Re/Max offices have agreed to donate part of their sales commissions to Communication Station Preschool, said Jason Sherman, Re/Max spokesman.

Other planned fund-raisers include a raffle, golf outing and Las Vegas Night.

Re/Max is the only company in this area that has directed that all donations collected in-house be used for scholarships, said Tina Latorre, a speech pathologist at the preschool.

"We were very surprised, very excited, very relieved by it," Latorre said. "For us, it will actually provide more and more services for needy children."

"Re/Max is literally taking ownership of this project," said Vera Stojanovic, director of Children's Miracle Network projects at Beaumont.

■ The 24 youngsters now involved in the school — who have a hard time understanding and expressing themselves — can receive individual time with therapists as well as socializing opportunities with other children.

The 24 youngsters now involved in the school — "who have a hard time understanding and expressing themselves" — can receive individual time with therapists as well as socializing opportunities with other children, Latorre said.

The cost, upwards of $32 per day, usually isn't absorbed by medical insurance. That's where Re/Max steps in.

"I think it really comes down to what Realtors are about," Sherman said. "It's a grass roots thing. It's a matter of giving back to the community. Ninety percent of the kids are from the tri-county area where we do most of our business. It (assistance) was able to be localized."

Ideas were bounced around last fall at regional headquarters to get involved in some kind of community outreach, Sherman said.

At about the same time, international headquarters decided to get involved with Children's Miracle Network, a charity which has a relationship with Beaumont Hospital.

"We mobilized very quickly," Sherman said. "We got committee members in each of our 21 offices. We printed a certificate of membership for those who join.

"They (agents) are independent business people and are doing this completely on their own accord. It's different with everyone. Some are donating a dollar amount, some a percentage. We're looking at $25,000 from commissions and $25,000 from other fund-raisers this year. We know we'll bypass that."

Gail Bailey, a Realtor with Re/Max Executive, promoted a 100-percent participation level in her Farmington Hills office.

"It was real easy to sell," she said. "Basically, I walked around to all the agents and just talked to them directly. One selling point was kids. I asked, 'If you had kids and didn't have insurance, no benefits, wouldn't you like to have this available?' Everyone was real positive.

"It's a nice way to give back," Bailey added. "It shows we're not just here making money. We're giving back to people who have helped us."

Meeting delays could present opportunities for challenges

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Our bylaws state that the annual meetings of the association must take place on the third Tuesday of March. Many times we do not have a monthly meeting. Is that a violation of the bylaws?

In the old days, certain condominium developer's attorneys used certain days of the month as a designated time for holding the meetings of the association. While I do not believe it would be a serious breach of the condominium documents to have the meeting on a day other than the prescribed date in the documents during the month, I do believe that the longer the meeting is delayed, the better chance a challenge to the holding of that meeting would have to succeed.

Generally speaking, I advise our association clients to have the meeting in as close a proximity to the time set in the condominium documents as possible, and to otherwise amend the condominium documents to provide greater flexibility to the association for having the meetings — for example, to have the bylaws provide that a meeting can take place during the month of March as opposed to any specific date.

I am the president of our condominium association and am having difficulty getting some of the co-owners to clean up around their unit where they have made plantings. We do not have any authority to take any action to get them to clean up the mess that they have planted. Any suggestions?

In the future, it is important to have each modification or approval with respect to change to the common elements embodied in a modification agreement. But if you look at your condominium documents you will no doubt find a provision in them that allows the board to maintain the common elements and to make any co-owner repair or replace common elements that are damaged because of his negligence. More than likely, your documents require that a co-owner assume the responsibility to make good on any landscaping modifications that he or she have done. You should also insure that your have a provision in your documents that allows you to go in and maintain or replace the landscaping at the co-owner's cost with the ability to collect the costs by filing a lien. If you do not have those provisions, you should have your documents revised.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate and corporate law.

Architects toasted, roasted at Cranbrook

■ Architects honored their own Saturday at Cranbrook and listened to speaker Brendan Gill chastise the profession for pandering to pedestrian tastes.

BY DALE NORTHUP
SPECIAL WRITER

What could be a better setting for an architectural awards ceremony than Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills? This educational community originally gave rise to such design luminaries as the Saarinen family: Eliel, Eero, and Loja; Charles and Ray Eames; Florence Knoll; and Harry Weese, all of whom were responsible for shaping the built environment with which we are familiar today. Their creative enterprise continues to serve as a source of inspiration for the designers of tomorrow.

Eliel Saarinen once said, "Always design a thing by considering it in its next larger context — a chair in a room, a room in a house, a house in an environment, environment in a city plan." So it only seems appropriate that the Detroit Chapter of the American Institute of Architects should continue Saarinen's edict for good design with an awards presentation at Cranbrook on Saturday.

The event dovetailed with the 60th anniversary of the founding of Cranbrook by Detroit newspaper publisher George G. Booth. Birmingham architect Robert Ziegelman, president of AIA Detroit, acknowledged that the primary objective of the awards is to focus public attention on the value of excellence in architecture, which is the most public of all art forms. Rather than handing out awards in a private ceremony as in past years, AIA Detroit this year invited students and educators to participate.

And the winners are:

The 25-year award for the Beckwith residence in Franklin by William Kessler and Associates (formerly Meathe, Kessler and Associates); honor awards to Luckenback-Ziegelman and Partners for the Chester Street parking structure in Birmingham; and to Victor Saroki & Associates for the Merrill Park Town-

Basements: knock on wood

BY GERALD FRAWLEY
STAFF WRITER

Houses are made of wood, and basements are poured concrete and concrete block — that's just the way it is in Michigan.

Well, sometimes.

In recent years, Michigan builders have been experimenting with different types of construction materials, and now a Farmington Hills builder is offering permanent wood foundations.

That's right, wood. You know, the stuff that rots, gets eaten by bugs and generally falls apart. Michigan weather would eat it up and spit it out like a wad of bubble gum on a little league baseball diamond.

Wrong.

Joseph Blostic, president of B. J. Enterprises in Farmington Hills, is building a house with a permanent wood foundation outside of Ann Arbor.

Blostic said he doesn't normally build wood foundation houses — in fact, this is the first — and he isn't certain the demand for them will grow in coming years.

A permanent wood foundation is a load-bearing, lumber-framed wall framed with 2-X-6s or 2-X-8s that's sheathed with plywood. It sits on a concrete footing or a bed of gravel or crushed stone. It is constructed much like the standard stud wall.

But there are differences, the most significant being the need to resist backfill and exterior water pressure. For that reason, proper fastening and blocking techniques are critical.

Wood foundations are also specially treated — wood treated for use as an outdoor deck is not suitable for a wood foundation.

There are some advantages to homes with wood foundation, he said.

"For one, it's dryer," he said. Anyone who has every been in a home with a poured cement or concrete block basement can easily attest to the fact that there is a certain amount of moisture in the air, he said.

A wood foundation is also warmer and insulated," he added.

The real plus for homeowners, he said, is the ease of finishing — both on the interior, and in the case of a walkout basement, on the exterior walls.

Installing drywall, paneling or other wall coverings is a fairly straightforward job and can be done by the homeowner. "A hammer, some nails, and that's about it."

Installing over concrete walls or cement blocks requires drilling and anchoring and is much more difficult, he said.

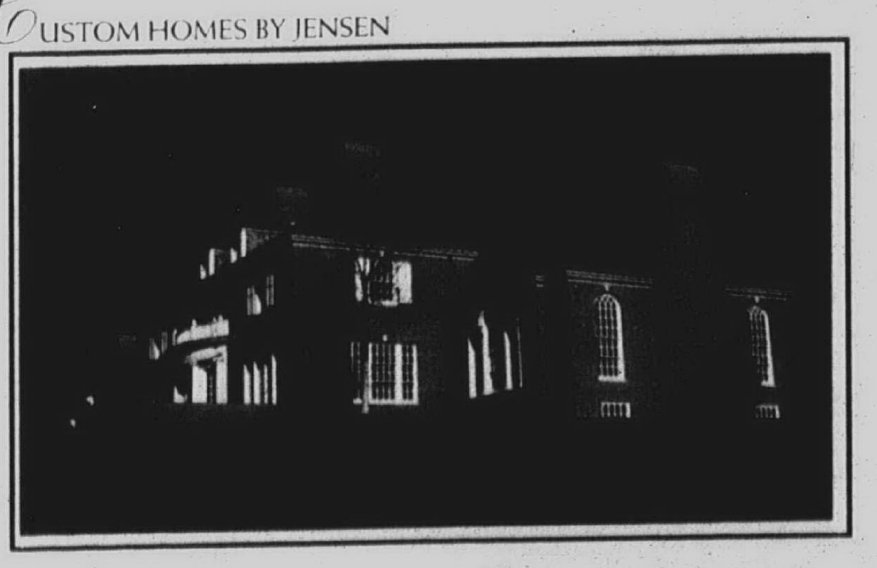

Blostic said in addition to the home he is currently building, a second client is considering a wood foundation. "People do ask about it, but we don't suggest it on a regular basis."

The drawback to the wood foundation, he said, is it's more difficult for the builder to install and is slightly more costly — at least it was for the first basement he built.

Blostic said with experience, the cost of installing a wood foundation would probably fall. Assuming lumber prices remaincomparable to concrete prices, the two would cost about the same.

Interiors honored

Interior architecture awards were presented to Kenneth Neumann/ Joel Smith and Associates for the corporate offices of Great Lakes Gas Transmission, and to Harley, Ellington, Pierce and Yee Associates for a private family chapel in the Midwest. This is the first year that AIA Detroit has conferred awards in the area of interior architecture.

The 25-year award was based on a building that was handsomely built and reflects the formalist style of the 1960s. The jurors admired the simplicity of the plan and the dynamic roof forms. Also taking simplicity into mind, the jurors gave an honor award to the Chester Street parking structure in Birmingham. Although such a structure is considered commonplace in today's urban setting, there is a clarity in the use of basic building materials — brick and concrete.

More noteworthy are the tinted glass cylindrical pavilions housing the stairwells that could be compared to architectural sculpture when lighted at night. The two interior architecture awards were based on timeless qualities and the use of finely crafted materials. These qualities also serve to reinforce the fact that good design can last a very long time.

The honor awards jury was chaired by Portland, Ore., architect Robert Frasca together with two other Portland architects, Robert Thompson and Tom Hacker. Frasca has been responsible for the design of major urban developments in Portland and throughout the Northwest. He is a member of the National AIA Committee on Design. The award recipients were juried anonymously.

Gill lashes out

The highlight of the activities at Cranbrook was a talk by keynote speaker Brendan Gil, New Yorker magazine columnist, who discussed the "Disneyization in Architecture." His talk was a rallying cry against the ills that exist in our society, particularly the built environment. He compared the decline of the Roman empire, with its broken roads and leaking aqueducts, to the infrastructure of American cities today. He condemned society for ducking and looking away as a substitute for thoughtful planning, toil and sacrifice.

With messianic zeal, Gill overtly brought the current status of architecture into question. He emphasized the significance of the 1932 exhibition of modern architecture staged at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City.

■ 'Practicing serious architecture? Don't make me laugh.'

Brendan Gill

As for constructing a wood foundation, Blostic said there are a few special requirements the builder needs to know before installing one. "It doesn't sit on concrete footing like most foundations; it sits on pea rock (which facilitates drainage)," he said. Because of this, getting the foundation level is a little bit more work.

The most important aspect of wood foundations, he said, is the importance of bracing. "All the nail patterns are very tight, and very specific.

Unlike a concrete basement, the wood foundation incorporates the floor, walls and the basement ceiling (first floor), he said. Bracing them all correctly, and getting them square, is critical if the foundation is going to support the weight of the house properly.'

"It's a very rigorous job that frame carpenters wouldn't follow (without specific instructions)," he said. Bracing and nailing that at first seems unnecessary, turns out to be important later in the project.

Someone who wants a wood foundation should find builders experienced in installing them to prevent possible problems later on.

As for durability, there is no reason why a wood foundation basement wouldn't last as long as a poured concrete basement or foundation.

Blostic said he first came across the idea of wood foundations at a builders show, and he was researching into it in greater depth when a client inquired about wood foundations.

Whether wood foundations will become more widely used, Blostic said he couldn't speculate. "You have a tremendous amount of tradition to overcome," he said.

Homearama offers builders exposure

One Homearama down, two to go.

The first of three showcase of idea homes for 1992 conducted by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan ended last week in Oakland Township.

Upwards of 40,000 attended, according to John Scaccia, a Rochester Hills builder and chairman of that show. "It was a very, very good response," he said.

Subsequent Homearamas are scheduled to run today through June 21 at Victoria Park Subdivision in Detroit and this fall at the Vineyards Subdivision in Sterling Heights.

"People go through Homearama for more reasons than just to purchase a home," Scaccia said. "A lot go for landscape ideas, deck ideas, general decorating. Some go to buy furniture. Plan books we give out, people seem to hang on to them for several years.

"Homearama, as far as my company is concerned, gets results. Where else can a builder get that kind of exposure, 30,000-40,000 people?"

None of the models had sold as of the end of the Oakland show, but Scaccia predicted that they would go within a month after people took time to analyze what they observed.

James Bonadeo, a Plymouth builder and president emeritus of the BASM, is chairman of the Detroit Homearama. He expects a different kind of crowd for this exhibition.

"Normally in Homearamas, people come out to see houses decorated. They're not buyers," Bonadeo said. "In this one, we're going to get the curious, but a lot of people who want to buy.

"The Homearama market has been for people who drive Mercedes Benzs, Volvos, BMWs, Lincolns. With this low cost, it's going to be possible for a lot more people in the market to buy. We're going to get all the Ford and Chevy people."

Models in the Detroit Homearama are priced at $80,000-$145,000. Houses in suburban shows typically are valued at several hundred thousand dollars.

Where 10 large models were open during the Oakland Township show, 25 will be presented in Detroit.

"I would look at traffic flow, floor plan, practicality of the house — enough baths and beds, workmanship," Scaccia said. "Decorating is important. Exterior elevations would be very important to me. It has to have curb appeal."

"If I were a buyer and I had three kids," Bonadeo said, "I'd look for a house I could afford and, second, one which would take care of my family. Then you have the aesthetics. Some like ranches, some colonials, some tri-levels. At this (Detroit) showcase, we have something of each."

Orders had been taken for 87 houses in the Victoria Park Subdivision as of Memorial Day, Bonadeo said. "It shows you what kind of market we have in Detroit for the right priced house," he said.

Victoria Park is off Dickerson two blocks south of Jefferson. Homearama hours are 3-10 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon-10 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Tickets are available on site for $6. Discount coupons for $5, good Monday through Friday, are available in advance through Detroit Edison and Standard Federal Bank offices.

Open house: Homearama visitors often are looking for decorating ideas. This room helped the American win the People's Choice award at the Oakland Township Homearama. It was built by James Joseph Enterprises of Rochester Hills.

Weather blamed for housing slip

AP — The housing recovery stalled in April as construction suffered its steepest decline in eight years after helping lead the still-young economic revival.

Analysts suggested it was a temporary setback due to abnormal weather and higher mortgage rates.

The Commerce Department said housing starts plunged 17 percent from the month before to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.12 million units. The drop was the largest since construction fell 26 percent in March 1984.

Most analysts still are forecasting an increase in new single-family homes and apartments this year, but they say the pace of the housing recovery will be far slower than those following previous recessions.

Kent Colton, executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, forecast 1.28 million starts this year, up 27 percent from 1991. Starts jumped 70 percent during the year after the 1981-82 recession, he said.

Nobody is anticipating the kind of surge in activity in the course of 1992 that we saw in 1983 when the numbers took off like a rocket," said Richard Peach, an economist with the Mortgage Bankers Association.

Analysts had expected a slight drop in construction in April after four sizeable monthly advances, including a 6.9 percent gain in March. But the depth of the fall was unexpected.

Housing construction increased 15.8 percent during the first quarter, leading the overall economy to a 2 percent annual rate of growth.

The decline in housing starts, the first since September, was widespread. Construction was off 30.5 percent in the Midwest to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 242,000 units.

Starts were down 16.7 percent to a 265,000 rate in the West and 10.7 percent to a 482,000 rate in the South. They fell 8.7 percent in the Northeast, to a 126,000 rate.

Nationally, construction of single-family houses fell 10.6 percent to a 963,000 rate after slipping 2.9 percent a month earlier. It was the largest since a 13 percent decrease in January 1991.

Analysts said unseasonably warm weather in January and February apparently prompted builders to begin construction then that they otherwise would not have undertaken until spring.

They also noted that Congress was considering a tax credit for some first-time home buyers, leading many builders to boost construction in anticipation of increased demand. The credit was not enacted.

The panel will discuss how work-outs of distressed properties are handled and what opportunities might be present during the work-out process.
