4 GOP hopefuls want Law's job

With incumbent Gerald Law not seeking election, four Republican challengers seeking the Plymouth Township supervisor job will fight it out in the Aug. 4 Republican primary. Two candidates also seek the township clerk job.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The weather has been relatively cool, but this summer's Republican primary election battle for the Plymouth Township supervisor job is heating up.

The landscape is filled with campaign signs. Printers of political fliers are getting plenty of work. And the charges and counter-charges are flying.

Greater Plymouth has been a traditional haven for Republicans, so the winner of the four-way race Aug. 4 should run a strong campaign against independent challenger Ronald Edwards in November.

There are no Democrats seeking office in Plymouth Township.

The political battle among Republicans began when Gerald Law left the state House to be appointed supervisor by trustees when longtime supervisor Maurice Breen left to become a county commissioner.

Some political opponents charged cronyism. And when newspaper stories revealed some Western Townships Utilities Authority contracts for professional services were awarded without seeking bids, political challengers turned their guns on Law.

After 12 years in politics, Law decided not to run, and eventually four candidates came forward to file petition signatures to run for supervisor.

The candidates are:

- Stephen Boak, a prominent local attorney and former chief of operations in the Wayne County prosecutor's office. Boak stresses a background in administration, and a need to restore public confidence in government.
- Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, a former associate administrator at Oakwood Hospital who ran unsuccessfully against Law in the Republican state House primary in 1990. She questions spending on such items as the former Friendly Restaurant for township offices and stresses she's not one of the "good ol' boys" who have run the township government.

- Charles McIlhargey, township building director, who said he got in the race when he realized who else was running. McIlhargey's background in township and city government includes having served as a Nankin Township trustee, clerk, and as Westland council president. He stresses background in

City will promote events, downtown with radio jingle

STAFF WRITER

Plymouth has a new theme song. Actually, it's more like a jingle, complete with plenty of empty space in the middle for radio voice overs.

If the promotion campaign begins in September as planned by the downtown development authority and chamber of commerce, those voice-overs will detail the latest downtown event — like Art in the Park, the ice festival, or Plymouth Thanksgiving.

The theme song is titled "Discover the Exciting Worlds of Plymouth."

The words aren't hard to remember, since those are the only words, followed with "ooh oohs" from a female chorus.

To pay for the radio campaign, the DDA is asking business people to each contribute $600, and the DDA will match their contributions.

For those who don't have $600 up front, some payment plans are offered.

PLYMOUTH

To begin the program, "We have to sell this to 100 contributors," said City Manager Steve Walters.

After the song was played Wednesday for about 100 local business people gathered at the Mayflower Meeting House, there was applause.

"Personally, the jury's out on the tune," commented Dave Flahay of Aunt Clara's Cookies, smiling.

Still, he said he liked the promotion idea.

"I think the suburban areas have been overshadowed by malls," he said, adding a campaign is needed.

"I think it was good, it was professionally produced," said Doug Zemmin of Wild Wings, who agreed a promotion campaign is needed.

But Zemmin said his biggest concern was some shopkeepers' avoidance of long hours, suggesting something should be done to get shop owners to stay open longer on weekends.

Jim Doyle of Doyle Marketing which is producing the radio spots said surveys have revealed that of potential shoppers living near Plymouth, only 15 percent identify the city as their main shopping area.

"We want to create excitement, get people to shop Plymouth and give them reasons to come back," he said.

The best way to do this is to capitalize on the number of visitors who come to town for special events.

Doyle also suggested starting a preferred customer card plan.

Customers could fill out a form and get cards entitling them to discounts, while businesses get a mailing list of customers they can hope to lure back to town.

The meeting included DDA member Fred Hill walking among the business people, leading them in singing the new theme song.

Neighbors of Smith Elementary School in Plymouth say they're all for fixing up the playground.

But about 20 neighbors came out to the city commission meeting Monday, saying they were concerned about parks and recreation department plans to schedule organized soccer games on a redone playground on weekends.

"Is Smith School going to become either in theory or in practice a city park for organized games?" asked Diane Kimball, one school neighbor.

Most neighbors indicated they didn't mind soccer practices.

But some said the scheduling of organized games would result in traffic congestion. There is no major street feeding the school.

Neighbors also said more noise than is already generated at the school would follow.

After an hour filled with comments from neighbors against organized soccer there, from parks and recreation director Chuck Skene, who said he was flexible, and comments from members of a committee organizing the playground renovation, the commission attempted some action on the matter.

Commissioner Doug Miller proposed a resolution putting the commission on record as opposing organized soccer games on weekends.

But commissioners rejected this, saying it could be seen they were favoring Smith School neighbors over neighbors of other schools where organized soccer is scheduled.

Such a precedent, said commissioner John Vos, "could come back to haunt us later."

"It seems to me that 8 year old kids playing soccer for three or four hours on Saturday is not going to hurt anybody," said commissioner James Jabara.

"Quite frankly, it's a shame that a field that size is sitting idle," he said.

Jabara said that while the city struggles with cruising and trying to find things for kids to do, "Here we're trying to provide activities for 8 year old kids. I'd like to see that happen."

Engineering firm leaves city after 10 years

BY ANNE SULLIVAN
STAFF WRITER

Wade Trim, a 10-year fixture in the city of Plymouth, has moved to a new facility in Plymouth Township.

After a decade in the city with business booming, representatives of the engineering consulting firm, said the 5,000 square foot building on Ann Arbor Trail could no longer accommodate its needs.

"We moved from downtown because of our success," said Bob Wade, chief executive officer Wade Trim. "We outgrew it (the building on Ann Arbor Trail). We have over 8,000 square feet in the township."

Plymouth assistant city manager Paul Sincok said he's happy the building will be occupied quickly.

"We're sad to see a longtime downtown entity move out," said Sincok. "But we're glad to see the building is still seen as a positive entity in downtown." The Plymouth building was sold to Kraft Bell, a training company.

Wade Trim works mostly with municipalities as consulting engineers, architects, planners, surveyors and environmental scientists. It employs 260 people in seven locations in Michigan and one in Florida. The Plymouth facility is the company headquarters and houses 20 employees in marketing, human resources, finance, accounting, computer and printing capacities.

One of the local projects Wade Trim designed is the Livonia Basin on Middlebelt, north of I-96, a water retention basin.

The basin is a 2.2 million-gallon underground storage tank. The tank stores storm overflows when the city of Livonia sewer system is at capacity, and releases the overflow when the system can handle it.

Wade Trim looked at sites for its new facility in other communities. After considering other locations, the firm selected Plymouth Township because it was the only place they found that could accommodate their needs, according to Trudy Noble, marketing manager at Wade Trim.

Staying in the community caused little disruption to employees and customers, and was a plus in the site selection, according to Wade.

"Our exchange and phone number is the same," said Wade. "The only thing that changed was our address."

Wade Trim holds a five-year lease in the Spinnaker building behind Bob Jeannotte Pontiac in Plymouth Township.

The move was completed July 15.

"After moving this time, I may never move again," said Wade.

• John Stewart, a current township trustee and self-employed lawyer. Stewart has become a strong critic of WTUA bidding practices, points to his work to get an enforceable noise ordinance sought by residents and role as special prosecutor to close the Plymouth Rock Saloon.

Township voters on Aug. 4 will also choose a new clerk, as longtime clerk Esther Hulsing is retiring.

Running for the post are two candidates. They are:

• Marilyn Massengill, administrative assistant to Hulsing who promises a smooth transition if she's elected.

• Denise Radtke, longtime administrative assistant to U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell who stresses her ability to work for residents, gained from her job with Pursell.

Township treasurer Mary Brooks is running unopposed.

While commissioners rejected Miller's resolution, a majority said they supported scheduling organized games elsewhere on weekends.

Plans for a school playground renovation effort include new play areas, new blacktop, a new baseball diamond and soccer field, and playground drainage into a nearby creek to eliminate standing pools of water after rain storms.

Also planned is the planting of trees to screen neighbors from the playground and improve scenery.

The money to pay for the playground renovation, which will cost about $40,000, was raised from donors and businesses after attempts to get a state grant failed.

Man who helped woman is accused of sex offense

An employee of a Plymouth business is accused of committing criminal sexual conduct against a woman after he helped bandage her fingers.

The victim is employed at a neighboring business. When she cut her fingers July 18, it was suggested that she go to Gold and Silver Goods for bandages.

After she entered the store and asked for a bandage, an employee there pulled out a condom, according to police reports. He then found bandages and helped to put them on the woman's fingers. After he helped her, he reportedly fondled

Artist loses $1,000

An exhibitor at the Art in the Park fair lost nearly $1,000 worth of jewelry Sunday.

The Farmington Hills artist had a booth at Penniman Avenue and Harvey, and as she looked away, someone walked off with a whole tray of handmade necklaces and bracelets.

Plymouth police have no suspects.

During the past week, nearly a dozen violations have been issued against CSX Transportation for blocking major roads with trains.

In each instance, major roads were blocked for seven to 10 minutes.

The railroad representatives have 20 days to appear in Plymouth district court, where they will be fined for the violations.

Plymouth Legionnaires attend state convention in Grand Rapids

Plymouth Legionnaires Jim Maahs, Bill Nicholas, Jim Barbour, Cornelius VanBoxen, John Cenzer, Bob Patow and Vic Riblett, were in Grand Rapids last week as delegates to the American Legion, department of Michigan 74th annual convention.

"Not only did we elect our state officers for 1992-93," said Jim Maahs, delegation chairman and commander of Plymouth's Passage-Gayde Post No. 391, "We also accomplished a lot of work and adopted a number of resolutions that will be forwarded to the Legion's National Convention in Chicago later this year."

Most of the resolutions adopted were to ensure the economic stability of our country's veterans, and also the mandating of the flying of the recognized POW/MIA flag at all governmental and public buildings.

Delegates from all over the state, including a good number from the Upper Peninsula were there. They came knowing the work to be done and expediently accomplished it." Nicholas is a veteran attendee of more than 12 state conventions.

Before the close of the convention, Plymouth Township residents

Jim Barbour and John Cenzer were sworn in as members of the department of Michigan Executive Committee by virtue of their election as 17th District commander and alternate commander. (The 17th District is composed of Legion Posts in Plymouth, Northville, Novi, Livonia, Rosedale Park and Redford). Plymouth Post Commander Jim Maahs will also serve the 17th District during 1992-1993, as its judge advocate.

Ceremonies mark new industrial park

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies were held Tuesday, July 21, for a new light industrial park to be built on Sheldon Road immediately north of Ford Motor Co.'s Climate Control Plant in Plymouth Township.

The 44-acre project is being undertaken by Ford Motor Land Development corporation in a venture with the Plymouth-based R. A. DeMattia Co. and will become a part of DeMattia's adjacent Metro West Industrial Park.

Local and state governmental officials will attend the ceremonies along with Ford Land Chairman Wayne Doran and Robert DeMattia, president of the DeMattia firm.

The Ford-owned property is located on the west side of Sheldon Road south of Five Mile Road, northwest of the city of Plymouth.

"Based on the success of similar developments in the area, we believe this project has excellent potential," said DeMattia.

The site is a platted state-certified industrial park with roads and utilities to each lot. The improved lots will be sold for build-to-suit projects to accommodate office, warehouse and light industrial needs.

CLARIFICATION

A story on recycling in Monday's paper should have said recycling bags can be picked up at the city's DPW yard at 1231 Goldsmith off Sheldon Road near Highland Appliance.

Residents received discount coupons with fliers in the mail. The city has issued no citations in connection with its recycling program.

Candidates outline issues in supervisor race

Boak

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Stephen Boak said the incumbent Plymouth Township supervisor needed to be challenged.

And when incumbent Gerald Law decided not to run, "At least from my perspective no qualified candidates stepped forward."

An attorney and township resident for 19 years, Boak said experience as chief of operations in the Wayne County prosecutor's office would serve him as township supervisor, as he supervised more than 120 lawyers, 50 clerical employees and investigative staff.

"We need to streamline our township government and eliminate nepotism, cronyism and lax business practices. I have the wherewithal and the intelligence to make meaningful changes; we must restore public confidence in our government," Boak said.

Boak is also a lieutenant colonel in the Army reserves.

On the issue of the Western Townships Utilities Authority, Boak calls for "a more strict adherence to a bidding process" in awarding contracts.

He approves of the project. "It was futuristic thinking, it was just done in the wrong way."

On the issue of the city and township sharing services, Boak said, "One of my first agenda items as supervisor would be to reopen talks with the city."

"By the end of this century, shared services will not only be a nice thing to do, it will be the only fiscal responsible thing to do," Boak said.

Some critics have suggested that auto dealer Don Massey could win favors if Boak is elected. Massey's lawyer, John Thomas, is a law partner with Boak. The township has denied rezoning for a Massey car dealership along the north side of Ann Arbor Road west of Haggerty, and the decision is being challenged in court.

Boak said he's not been involved,

Stephen H. Boak

adding, "The court will determine what will happen, it won't be the supervisor. If I were supervisor I would not vote on anything to do with that."

Boak said he "absolutely" would follow the township's current land use plan, adding he's absolutely against building strip malls in the west side of the township.

Keen-McCarthy

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Kathleen Keen McCarthy said she's running for supervisor because citizens should give back to the community, and because change is needed.

"The people of Plymouth Township are tired of the machine that has controlled our community. Now, people are saying we need a change. We will no longer tolerate the musical chairs, the repeated public embarrassment, and unanswered allegations that threaten the reputation of our whole community," she said.

Keen McCarthy ran unsuccessfully for the state House against current supervisor Gerald Law in the 1990 Republican primary. She is a former associate administrator at Oakwood Hospital.

"I believe that I have the management training and experience, and the honesty and integrity needed to help restore our community's reputation and our belief that open, honest government can exist."

Keen McCarthy, 40, said the township faces the challenge of balancing its budget as revenue sources shrink. She suggests that the township look at making more money through a new golf course agreement, and look for "cost benefit in every area."

She criticizes former supervisor Maurice Breen's decision, backed by township trustees, to buy the Friendly Restaurant building at Ann Arbor and Lilley roads, to expand the township offices. "I can't fathom what the plan was," she said.

Kathleen A. Keen-McCarthy

As supervisor, Keen-McCarthy said she would encourage people to get involved in government.

Keen-McCarthy, 40, married, is a resident since 1974.

McIlhargey

STAFF WRITER

Charles McIlhargey said he decided to run for supervisor "when I saw the field that was already running."

"The candidates are so negative out there. We have a beautiful community, well planned, our average home is $250,000," he said.

McIlhargey, Plymouth Township building director for the past four years, was a successful businessman who'd retired at age 48 after founding and operating a coin laundry business.

During that time, he also served as a trustee, then as elected treasurer in Nankin Township, worked on the city charter when Nankin became Westland in 1966 and was elected president of the city council.

McIlhargey stresses his experience in government, and said, "I am strongly committed to fostering a government that is open to input from all citizens and not special interest groups."

To those who charge he is tied to the township's current and former leadership, he bristles. "I've issued (developer) Bob DeMattia tickets, I've issued every developer tickets," he said, when they've violated building ordinances.

McIlhargey said he disagreed strongly with former supervisor Maurice Breen over the effort to seek grants to buy Mettetal Airport. "You don't tell people in another community you're going to take their airport over."

Charles McIlhargey

Under Breen and Law, he said, "I ran a building department and did my job."

Stewart

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Trustee John Stewart, running for township supervisor, says, "It's time to put the voice of township citizens back in the supervisor's office."

The recent controversies over Mettetal Airport, cronyism in financing the WTUA sewer system, and the police fire department venture with the city show that the current administration is not listening to citizens, nor working in their best interests," Stewart said.

Elected trustee in 1988, Stewart in his campaign literature touts his effort on the township board to get an enforceable noise ordinance, and his work as special prosecutor to get the Plymouth Rock Saloon closed for selling to minors.

Stewart, 42, is a self-employed attorney.

"We need to get the township's financial house back in order and improve the quality of basic public services," he said.

On questions over the Western Townships Utilities Authority, he said creation of WTUA "appeared to sound like a good idea, being independent of Detroit."

When some charged cronyism in the awarding of some WTUA contracts, Stewart supported an audit of WTUA operations. "It appears construction costs were at least 25 percent inflated," he said, adding, "I'm calling it a Cadillac sewer."

The auditors said that while competitive bids weren't sought for some services, costs weren't necessarily higher.

Saying there may be environmental benefits to WTUA, Stewart added, "Let's keep it going, but let's have business-like procedures."

On shared services talks between the city and township, Stewart said, "If there's a cost benefit we should continue to explore it."

John Stewart

But because the township has recently bought a new pumper truck and acted to hire three new firefighters, "The cost benefit has seriously declined," he said. "I would look at it."

Race for township clerk to be decided in primary

Massengill

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Marilyn Massengill, administrative assistant to the Plymouth Township clerk, said she can make a smooth transition to the job of clerk, if elected.

Massengill, 57, points to seven years of experience working in the clerk's office, in the jobs of administrative assistant and deputy clerk.

"I know the job," she said, adding she has also worked in the township building and planning departments.

Considering the recent controversies surrounding our community, I see a need for an administration and board that will be responsive and maintain a communicative relationship with the citizens of the township," Massengill said.

On the issue of the township and city of Plymouth merging services,

"It will only be a benefit to the township only if it will save taxpayers money, and benefit our firemen," she said.

"I don't think it's going to pass because I don't think our two unions are going to agree."

On questions raised over the Western Townships Utilities Authority project, Massengill said, "I think the project was an excellent idea, we'll lose a lot of money if we continue with Detroit."

"I think we should have gone out for bids. I think that's something the township needs to start doing on anything that's over $1,000."

Township planners have done a good job planning development she said, adding the land use plan should be followed.

If elected clerk, Massengill said,

Marilyn Massengill

"I'll make sure that voters can register as easy as they can."

Massengill has completed classes sponsored by the Michigan Association of Clerks and expects to soon be certified as a Michigan municipal clerk.

Radtke

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Denise Radtke said she'll bring a combination of administrative know-how and knowledge of the community to the office of Plymouth Township clerk, if elected.

"My whole life I've been involved in the community," said Radtke, 57, Plymouth field representative to U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth since 1977.

As clerk, I will place a priority on serving the best interests of township residents, both as an administrator and as a member of the township board," she said.

In her job with Pursell, Radtke said she regularly met with elected officials and residents, solved problems and gained an understanding of issues facing the community.

"We are faced with new challenges - balancing growth with preserving our residential atmosphere, maintaining quality services while keeping property taxes down, and working effectively with our neighboring governments," she said.

Radtke suggests that the township government "should look at maybe more boards and commissions" to get more citizens involved in government. She said it's possible, "when you look at DARE and see all the volunteerism this community is able to do."

On the issue of the township and city of Plymouth sharing services, "I believe the (fire and police) dispatch is very very viable," she said, adding, "I haven't seen anything of substance" in proposals to merge the two fire departments.

She favors maintaining the current township land use plan. "I do not believe in strip malls," she said. "The only piece right now that future boards will have to deal with is St. John's," she said, adding, "If we're not very careful about what goes in there we're going to lose a lot of open space in Plymouth Township."

On questions raised over the

Denise Radtke

Western Townships Utilities Authority project, she said it's a good idea "to get us away from Detroit (water and sewer). Their rates are going to skyrocket."

"Our oversight role is going to increase because of the perception of impropriety," she said, as some have alleged cronyism in awarding some WTUA contracts.

Sunny outlook keeps him smiling

BY LARRY O'CONNOR

Whether it's with him or at him, whether you want to or not, chances are Sonny Eliot did make you laugh.

With an ever-present cherubic smile and brick of white chalk, the Farmington Hills resident has elicited giggles and guffaws from a generation of viewers as a TV weather man.

His schtick has always been a hailstorm of one-liners, odd phrases, home spun witticisms and over all silliness. His weathercasts have become legend.

Fog became "phawg," when things turned chilly it was "temperatures are sliding faster than a fatboy on a bobsled" and a thermometer reading in Eagle River was usually followed by a quick "squeak" on a piece of the Keweenaw Peninsula.

Today, he still draws laughs, but it's a more of a faint chuckle.

Eliot, who keeps his age guarded, works at WWJ-AM as a science editor and hosts a radio segment sponsored by Little Caesars "Treasury of Trivia" heard on 10 stations around Michigan. He spends his free time golfing, reading and flying his Cessna 210 and haranguing his wife of 30 years, Annette.

Eliot appears to enjoy his role as Detroit TV weatherman emeritus. He hasn't changed, but notes times have changed in this era of political correctness and dour seriousness.

Most people are afraid to laugh," said Eliot, sitting at his cubicle in WWJ studios in Southfield. "They're afraid to laugh at the cornball stuff. Everything has to have meaning nowadays."

"I'm the release. I'm the one they can say, 'Listen to that dummy. Listen to that punster. Listen to that guy who doesn't know the difference between a good joke and a bad joke.' But I know."

Even when others didn't.

Humor helped

And it's humor that has helped usher Eliot through some very trying times. He was a prisoner of war for 18 months in Germany during World War II. His B-24 was hit by a German plane, leaving Eliot to bail out. He was captured and imprisoned.

To keep his and other prisoners' spirits up, Eliot organized entertainment revues in the mess hall. The German commandant, named Mueller, would even allow the prisoners to go into costume shops.

"He was wise enough to know if you kept the inhabitants relatively happy you had little trouble," said Eliot, who is Jewish but fooled his captors by telling them he was a Lutheran.

"It was a sheltered life. People who performed enjoyed it because it was truly a captive audience."

Then in 1982, Eliot was uncermoniously dumped by Channel 2 five minutes before he was to go on the air. His 34-year career in television and his role as a TV weatherman dating back to the early '50s with WWJ-TV Channel 4 came crashing to a halt.

He succeeded Bill Kennedy as host of Channel 50's afternoon movie and unsuccessfully auditioned at Channel 7 for "Good Afternoon Detroit." Then Eliot faded away from TV.

The reason given by then-Channel 2 general manager Bill Flynn was research showed Eliot attracted a 50 and over audience, not the kind of magnet that draws advertisers. The same case would be used a few years later to remove friend and fellow Farmington-area resident Ernie Harwell as a Detroit Tigers radio announcer.

"I think they didn't really realize what a treasure he is," said Eliot, who has a photo of Ernie hanging above his desk at WWJ. "After they made the mistake, they had a full season of baseball to correct the mistake and they didn't."

On future township development, he favors "closely following the master plan."

"I think we've done a good job of that," Stewart said.

He proposes twice monthly meetings of the city and township planning commissions. "The city is the heart of your retail industry area," he said. "I want to preserve and help promote the type of businesses we have."

"I want to emphasize I want to move Plymouth Township forward," Stewart said.

McIlhargey said he tried to enforce building codes uniformly no matter who the developer. He has a case pending in federal court with the U.S. Post Office, cited because they did not put in the proper fire alarm — the kind the township requires of other buildings.

On the Western Townships Utilities Authorities project, McIlhargey said he recalled sitting on the Nan-kin Township board 30 years ago, when Detroit "kept increasing our rates and we had no say in it."

WTUA is a good project, he said, adding, "I would have had some type of bidding process" for professional services that were not bid.

On shared services talks between the city and township, "I will protect Plymouth Township first and foremost and I want to make that clear," McIlhargey said.

"If we can work out something to save us money and then money, I'm all for it," he said, but added the potential benefit from merging services is probably overrated.

He supports involving township employees in a team effort to improve services without raising taxes by implementing a cost reduction program.

McIlhargey said he strongly backs following the township's master land use plan. He also supports having the district library board build a branch to serve west Plymouth Township, rather than build a new main library in the city.

McIlhargey is 56, married, and an eight-year township resident.

Dem contenders address issues in county clerk race

Thirteen Democrats and three Republicans are seeking their respective party nominations for Wayne County Clerk in the Tuesday Aug. 4 primary.

Each candidate was asked to submit biographical data and answer questions related to the office.

The following Democratic candidates responded and are profiled here: David P. Cavanagh, Ethel Fiddler, William R. Griggs, Teola Hunter, Thomas P. O'Rourke and Ed Wilson.

David P. Cavanagh

Name: David P. Cavanagh
Hometown: Grosse Pointe Woods
Age: 36
Occupation: Wayne County Commission First District (includes Harper Woods all five Grosse Pointe municipalities and east side of Detroit).
Education: B.A. Eastern Michigan University
Professional Affiliations:
Civic Activities:

1. What is your plan for making the clerk's office more efficient? Be specific.

I intend to be an extremely active county clerk. I will look to examples provided by other counties across the country in order to apply technology to the Wayne County Circuit Court. Select and process jurors less expensively. Reduce costs. Identify potential funds for purchase of new technology and identify funding to provide employee training. Work closely with county sheriff and judges to analyze criminal information tracking system.

2. What special qualifications do you have for this job that set you apart in such a large field of candidates? Be specific.

My experience on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners since January 1987 has provided me with familiarity with the inner workings of county government. Chaired the committee on audit first year in office. The audit responsibility enabled me to become familiar with the clerk's office, the sheriff's office and the other important service arms of county government.

Name: Ethel Fiddler
Hometown: Hamtramck
Age: 46
Occupation: Hamtramck City Clerk
Education: St. Florian High School, Hamtramck Beauty School, International Institutes of Municipal Clerks (MSU Campus)
Professional Affiliations: International Institute of Municipal Clerks; Association of Wayne County Clerks; Michigan Association of Clerks, Michigan Municipal Clerks Association

1. What is your plan for making the clerk's office more efficient? Be specific.

The county clerk's office is primarily recordkeeping in nature. Accurate, up-to-date recordkeeping is a must. Honest and good work ethics are essential. If all this is done in a timely manner, I foresee no major problems in this office.

My goals are trouble-shooting problems, implementing solutions and working with people, increasing efficiency in both economic and social issues concerning Wayne County — truly regarding each issue personally. If elected, I would be an active participant in the duties of county clerk.

2. What special qualifications do you have for this job that set you apart in such a large field of candidates? Be specific.

I am qualified because I have served as Hamtramck City Clerk for the past five years. I feel that city government is comparable to county government on a smaller scale. In my first year as city clerk, we conducted six elections — five were local city and school elections, and one was a special state election. During that experience I became well aware of the importance of guidelines and deadlines and accurate recordkeeping necessary to conduct an election in a fair and honest manner. Since that time, my office has updated procedures, computerized records and eliminated duplication of data. My office is run in a timely and efficient manner.

Name: William R. Griggs

Occupation: Wyandotte City Clerk
Education: B.S. in business administration from Wayne State University, M.A. in recreation and parks from WSU.

of board of directors of the National Wheelchair Athletic Committee (1971-1976), appointed by Gov. James Blanchard to the Michigan Job Training Coordinating Committee 1985-1986.
Civic Activities: Michigan Municipal Clerk's Association, International Institute of Municipal Clerks, Polish Legion of American Veterans No. 7, Polish Roman Catholic Union.

1. What is your plan for making the clerk's office more efficient? Be specific.
Improve computerization hardware and software in the county clerk's office to allow the interfacing of information to and from local clerks.

Provide greater cooperation on expediting vital records between units of government by utilizing fax machines and standardized forms.

Lobby the state Legislature to liberalize voting to allow communities to process all registered voters by absent voter balloting: U.S. mail.

Exchange students seek host families for summer

Michigan families are urgently needed to host 14 French boys who want to spend four weeks experiencing American style living.

Evelyn and Julian Prince of West Bloomfield, state coordinators for Nacel Cultural Exchanges, are looking for host families for the 14 boys who are part of the 157 French, Spanish, and German exchange students scheduled to arrive on Friday, July 31.

Currently, 168 Michigan host families are enjoying the first group of Nacel French and Spanish students during the month of July.

"These students who need families are wonderful boys," Evelyn Prince said. "They are eager to make friends with their American hosts and to share in their everyday lives. They dream of coming here, but now they are nervous. Unlike the other students, they don't know who their host family will be."

"They have chosen Michigan and will be severely disappointed if enough families do not volunteer to welcome them," she said.

Families don't have to speak French to be a host family, since the students have had from four to eight years of English language study.

Their parents supply the children with pocket money and pay for their transportation and insurances, she said.

The program organizers match students with prospective families according to general interests and specific activities they would like to participate in. Some American families take their guests on trips; others share their everyday life.

"This is the last chance for international fun this summer," Julian Prince said. "From the Detroit area to Muskegon, from Lambertville to Sault Ste Marie our host families are having a ball showing how we live in America."

For example, in White Lake,

PEOPLE

Mich., host families and guests will celebrate Halloween in July, complete with costumes and trick or treating. By lending a helping hand to these exchange students, families can brighten up their own summer," he said.

Nacel Cultural Exchanges is a non-profit organization listed with the National Association of Secondary School Principals and approved by CSJET. Nacel is the largest Summer Homestay program between Europe and the U.S. Nationally more than 94,000 students and families have been served since 1969, while locally there have been more than 3,800 participants since 1980 when the Princes first brought the program to Michigan.

Families interested in hosting a French boy from July 31-August 28, or a French or Spanish student during the school year, should phone Evelyn or Julian Prince at (313) 626-6641 or the Nacel national office at 1-800-NACELLE (622-3553).

1. What is your plan for making the clerk's office more efficient? Be specific.

• Serving the public, face to face. The Wayne County Clerk's Office, for most citizens is a service bureau. People use the clerk's office to obtain important documents. And as a result, they should be treated as important customers.

• Serving the public through improved technology. As the rest of our society settles into the information age, too much of the clerk's office is still built on 3-by-5 cards. We should make public records more accessible by exploring new technology.

• Serving the public by increasing cooperation and controlling costs. The clerk's office has been a rogue elephant in county government for a decade now and its lack of cooperation with other branches has unnecessarily slowed the pace of county reform.

2. What special qualifications do you have for this job that set you apart in such a large field of candidates? Be specific.

My legislative experience as the first woman speaker pro tempore in the Michigan House of Representatives has made me familiar with the demands of government and taught me the value of cooperation and of leadership. My private sector experience as a small-business owner has taught me the importance of serving the customer, which is vital in a service-oriented position such as county clerk; and my background in education has taught me the importance of teaching children from the earliest age their responsibilities as citizens — which includes the vital importance of registering and voting.

Five Minutes Before A Race Is A Bad Time To Lose A Contact.

After ripping a contact lens just five minutes before one of the biggest races of her life, Olympic Silver Medalist Judi Brown-King experienced what thousands of people do every day. The feeling of being handicapped by their eyewear. That's why she decided to have Radial Keratotomy.

"And now after the RK surgery my vision is 20/20."

For some people, it takes an experience like Judi's, while others put up with years of frustration before finally making the decision to end their dependency on glasses and contact lenses.

Since 1982, Dr. Castleman has been performing Radial Keratotomy at our Ambulatory Surgery Center, approved for eye surgery by Medicare and the State of Michigan.

See for yourself how Radial Keratotomy is changing the way people live, work and play. Call us toll free, 1-800-999-7772 and ask for our free video tape about RK.

1. What is your plan for making the clerk's office more efficient? Be specific.

I plan to implement and update the computer network. When I recently asked for information from the clerk's office, everything had to be found manually. Physical layout of the clerk's office presently is not designed to service the public.

2. What special qualifications do you have for this job that set you apart in such a large field of candidates? Be specific.

I have more experience with the county than all other candidates for the clerk's office combined. I know the county legislatively and administratively. As managing director of the Wayne County Road Commission, I managed over 1,500 employees and controlled a budget of $135 million.

As a Wayne County commissioner, I learned the political process of the county and the state. Coordination and cooperation between these two levels of government especially when the clerk's office is funded by both the county and state.

Ivy leaguers eye birth of society club

By WAYNE PEAL
STAFF WRITER

When Bill Warner was in New York recently, he stayed at the Harvard Club, attended a fund-raiser at the Cornell Club and thought to himself, "I wish Detroit had something like this."

For most of this century, it did.

But the venerable University Club, a Detroit landmark, is now in Chapter 11. Warner is among the suburbanites campaigning for its revival — though in slightly different form.

"We'd like to see it come back as the Ivy Club, serving members of the nine Ivy League Schools, their seven sister schools and the service academies," Warner said.

Doug Graham, a young Dartmouth grad, proposed the idea a few months ago. Since then, Warner and other area Ivy grads have been trying to whip up support.

"We're sending out questionnaires to the 30,000 graduates who live in the area," said Warner, a West Bloomfield resident, Harvard grad, and Ford Motor corporate staff retiree.

When he says area, he means suburbs. An estimated 95 percent of area Ivy grads live outside the city of Detroit.

The club springs from an earlier time, providing comfortable, even elegant lodging and dining for traveling gentlemen of means — in stark contrast to the flophouses of the day.

Hard times befell the club recently for a variety of reasons, but mostly because of its aging membership. "Our goal is to get young people interested in the club," Warner said. "After all, they're the people who are going to Detroit for concerts and events."

Traditions remain, but despite its banquet room, squash courts and apartments for visiting students and grads, Warner said the century-old club won't turn into a suburban oasis in the midst of the city.

"We see this as an important step in reaching out to Detroit," he said. "For instance, we can begin mentoring programs for Detroit youngsters."

Ivy League schools, among the nation's best, find a place for students regardless of their ability to pay, Warner said.

"We see ourselves as opening doors for Detroit youngsters who otherwise might never have even heard of Ivy League schools."

Sewer tour

Construction sites along the Western Townships Utilities Authority system were viewed on a recent tour by officials in Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships.

They toured the route, which begins just south of Six Mile Road in Northville Township, continues north to Seven Mile Road along Haggerty Road then south along Haggerty through Plymouth and Canton townships to Michigan Avenue.

Included in the tour were visits to a Northville subdivision where extensive piping is laid, and tunneling work beginning near Cherry Hill and Ford roads just south of Warren Road in Canton.

Officials also viewed two pump stations at Haggerty and Joy roads and at Haggerty Road and Michigan Avenue. At both sites, exterior masonry is going up and mechanical equipment is being installed.

When complete, the $94 million sewer project will transport sewage from the three townships to the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority treatment plant, and take treated water from that facility to the Rouge River.

Board honors 2

Plymouth Salem High School senior and track athlete Tonya Wheeler and the school's track coach Mark Gregor were recently honored by the board of education.

Wheeler was honored for being the most valuable athlete on the Salem girl's track and field team, undefeated since her freshman year and the all-time leader in scoring in the history of the team. She's also the 1992 state indoor champion for the 600 meter dash.

Gregor was honored for being named coach of the year by the Michigan Interscholastic Track Coaches Association for the Class A Girl's Region 8, for being named Observerland Coach of the Year for 1992, and for leading the team to runner up in the state regional competition.

The honors were read in the form of resolutions before the Plymouth Canton Community Board of Education.

Golf outing to benefit non-profit organizations

The annual Designated Driver Celebrity Open is set for Thursday, Aug. 27, at The Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth. The golf outing will feature many well-known sports and media celebrities and all proceeds will benefit non-profit organizations.

Among them will be Sparky Anderson's CATCH (Caring Athletes Team for Children's and Henry Ford Hospitals), which provides quality of life items and services for sick and needy pediatric patients at Children's and Henry Ford hospitals; TEAM Michigan (Techniques for Effective Alcohol Management), which provides training for alcohol servers and promotes alcohol awareness to sports fans, servers and facility owners at sporting events; and the Safety Council for Southeast Michigan, which provides safety information and training to prevent injury and illness at work, at home and on the road.

The Texas scramble golf event will begin with a shotgun start at 10 a.m. for the four-person teams plus celebrities, and end with an awards presentation, silent auction and buffet dinner at 5 p.m.

The silent auction will feature unique and autographed items. There will be three flights of Texas scramble, but one flight will be set aside for a team to challenge another team using the scores of each team's best golfer - the designated golfer.

There are no restrictions on low handicappers. The challenging teams elect the scoring method. The designated golfers will play with their teams but they will play their own ball while the teams play Texas scramble. The designated golfers' scores will determine the winners of the challenge matches and the team's scores will count against all other teams for prizes.

A new car will be the prize for a hole-in-one on a par three. Prizes for low team score, longest drive, closest to the pin, and most hazardous will be given as well.

Designated Driver Celebrity Open tickets are $95 for individual entries and $500 for sponsored teams. This price includes golf, cart, continental breakfast, lunch, reception with a buffet dinner and the silent auction. Entry to the silent auction and buffet dinner is $30.

For more information, contact Ed Ratzberger at 313-557-7010 or Brenda Hale at 313-930-4281, or write: The Designated Driver Celebrity Open, 21700 Northwestern Highway, Suite 110, Southfield, MI 48075.

Plymouth was well-represented, too. As patrons waited for just 90 minutes, artist Tom LeGault of Plymouth created traditional lighthouses and landscapes painted in a pink mist.

Plymouth artist Gordon Eddy took just 10 minutes to do charcoal sketches for customers.

On display and for sale were paintings, pottery, jewelry, basketry, Chinese brush painting, photography, "wearable" art, weaving, woodcrafts, calligraphy and leaded glass.

Making their debut this year were silhouette cuttings, weathervanes, furniture, woodwork, fabric batik, marblizing and jewelry.

POINTS OF VIEW

Poverty still leaves way open to civil unrest

Though the cold war is history, anyone who watched scenes from the recent Los Angeles riot knows that the chance of civil insurrection given the poverty, hunger and homelessness among Americans is real.

Twenty-five years ago on July 23, 1967, even as American troops fought a hot war in Southeast Asia, Detroit erupted in flames and violence. It took a coalition of troops, police and firefighters in a total effort to finally quiet the city.

"We may be able to pacify every village in Vietnam over a period of years," said Mayor Jerome Cavanagh as the riot waned, "but what good does it do if we can't pacify the American cities?"

Cavanagh's son, Mark, now a Michigan Appeals Court Judge, with offices in Southfield, was almost 14 when the city exploded. "I remember it clearly," he said.

"Shortly before the riots, I took a drive with my dad. I asked him to show me 12th Street and I remember how vibrant and busy it was. It was like another culture for me. Within a few days the riots began."

Judge Cavanagh said his father, and others, reacted with great shock, because they believed the mayor had made great strides toward shaping Detroit into a model city.

"After things quieted down, New Detroit was born and those involved didn't just throw money at the problems but took an active part. I think this planted seeds for change we are still undergoing."

Most metro area residents will never forget that summer 25 years ago and the impact of the riot.

Even before that Sunday in July, it had already been a long, hot summer.

The flames of Watts in Los Angeles and Newark in New Jersey still smoldered. Residents struggled to build a new life in the cooling embers. In Detroit, all summer long people had said: "It can't happen here."

Didn't Detroit have the largest black home ownership in the nation?

Didn't the auto plants that lured laborers give work and a regular paycheck to residents?

And this was a union town. Workers had protection, equality.

Yet, starting with a routine police raid on an after-hours drinking spot at 9125 Twelfth Street, a neighborhood accustomed to raids, came the conflagration that enveloped what was then the nation's fifth largest city in the worst of all riots to that time.

Police, Michigan National Guard units, and U.S. Army personnel all were involved in ending the violence, as were firefighters and neighboring police departments.

By the time the riots were quieted, the bells had rung for 1,682 fire runs, and thousands were homeless.

At the height of the tension, when blackout conditions prevailed, a reporter recalled that someone lit a cigarette and a 4-year-old child was killed in the volley of shots that followed.

A time of shock and tragedy, the effects of the July riots are not yet wholly resolved though we have lived 25 summers since.

Even now, the scars of those violent days are visible on houses crumbling but not rebuilt, and storefronts whose emptiness stares out from broken windows and doors.

In some places, renovation was contemplated, but never quite made it past the blueprint stage. Only in a few buildings, the ruins were leveled and renewed again.

Who can count how many of the riot's refugees live in better housing today than before July 23, 1967?

These days, people leave the city for the same reasons their parents and grandparents came — to seek jobs and a better life. Some of the victims have fought and scratched for the chance to cross Eight Mile and settle in pleasant suburban communities.

Los Angeles' bloody riots recently, 25 years after Watts, give food for thought about whether bloody insurrection could happen again here.

Detroit's motto "Resurget Cinerebus," means "It shall rise again from the ashes." Twenty-five years have brought some changes. Some can be labeled progress.

But have the city, the area and its citizens risen far enough?

Shirlee Iden is a reporter for the Southfield Eccentric.

Suburbs must aid in reviving Detroit's future

My mother jumped into the car, pursued by some unspoken fear.

"We're going home," she said to the stares of the car's other three occupants, all just beginning a two-week vacation through the country's south.

The reason became clear as she unfolded the local newspaper she had picked up at the gas station. "Detroit like bombed city," screamed the lead headline.

It was July 1967. The newspaper explained that a late-night raid erupted into a riot, with smoke from the flames being seen for miles. Protective of home and hearth, my mother rejected our pleas not to return.

We lived in Inkster at the time, a very segregated community. Blacks lived south of Michigan Avenue, whites lived north. Not much has changed since then. Oh, sure, Inkster has become more integrated. So have Westland, Southfield and Lathrup Village — to a point (some say it's 10 Mile).

But the metropolitan area has been proven by many studies still to be one of the most segregated in the country, according to Mary Work, vice-president of New Detroit Inc. The studies have been based on where one lives.

In fact, the metropolitan area is developing into a financial caste system, with upper and lower classes defined by the whims of the auto industries and Governor Engler.

It's incredible that GM thinks a little counseling will help it's Ypsilanti plant workers pay their bills when the doors slam closed for the last time.

It's unconscionable for the governor to turn people out on the streets in the middle of winter, and also label himself pro-education when all he does is a magic act with a sword instead of facing reality.

But this is about the riots. "What are you doing home?" asked our neighbors as we pulled into the drive. As my parents explained, they laughed. "You should have stayed," they said.

Suburbanites already had cut the umbilical cord to Detroit, a fact that probably still hinders the image of not only the metropolitan area but the entire state, according to Work.

Troops were called in and the riot, born out of what Work said was "disenfranchisement in making decisions," a white police stress force and lack of jobs, was eventually quelled.

New Detroit was born, and the University of Detroit, which I attended at the time, was designated an "urban school" by the president.

Who that designation was supposed to make feel good I never did figure out, but I reckoned it must have meant something more than what was going on at the Catholic girls' high school in Detroit I once attended, where all we did was sing "We shall overcome," and then stare in disbelief when two blacks registered during the spring of my senior year.

And while Detroit was far enough away not to concern our Inkster neighbors, I was left fretting over a sentence in a Detroit daily. "Never again will people be free to barbecue in their backyards," it said.

It was a little thing, but summer backyard barbecues were an important family tradition that I didn't want to lose. It never occurred to me that the black community had lost a lot more.

Attempts in the last 25 years at redevelopment and to resolve segregation may have helped Detroit from erupting again this summer, a la Los Angeles, where Work said conditions are similar to those found in Detroit during that long, hot summer. And it was the desire to hold onto what has been achieved that helped keep things cool here, Work added.

Problems still exist

But there are symptoms that indicate Detroit still needs to be kept in a gerontology care unit. Work said that the city currently is about 75 percent black. She admitted that blacks who can are following jobs into the inner ring of suburbs.

There are highways leading out of the city, but little effective transportation permitting the homeless and unemployed a chance at those jobs. A successful six-month Operation Care program transporting Detroit residents to job sites is about to expire, Work said.

There are ways to resuscitate Detroit, Work said. Public and private efforts could help pick up the needs of those "left without a network of services."

But until suburbanites are willing to cross the city line, psychologically as well as physically, Detroit will remain confined to a respirator for its next breath.

Remembering: Troops patrol Dexter during the 1967 Detroit riots, near where they had massed at Central High School. Katzman Drugs, which had been owned by a Southfield resident, Harry A. Katzman, since 1933, was sold within a year after the riots. "He was a neighborhood fixture," said West Bloomfield resident Ruth Goldstein, a teacher at Detroit's Brooks Middle School. "We used to say 'Let's get ice cream cones at Uncle Harry's.' It was an excursion." The Katzman family, both living and deceased, now numbers 1,500, according to Goldstein. A family reunion last year drew 250.

"Get involved with the problem," encouraged Work. She said the "us versus them" attitude extends beyond the suburbs to Lansing. "There needs to be more understanding that the (problem) is bigger than where we live," she said.

Work suggests that joining committees and boards, such as the Detroit Urban League, is a good way to find out what is really going on.

"There's a lot that still needs to be done," she said.

And a lot of unspoken fears to be eased.

business administration, (5) associate's degrees business related, certified as municipal clerk. Worked as Canton Township Clerk for four years, 26 years of professional experience, currently accountant at General Motors Corp.

1. What is your plan for making the clerk's office more efficient? Be specific?

Implementing the most cost-effective elections at all levels. Possible job consolidation would lower overhead expenditures. While not necessarily eliminating jobs, I would certainly implement a study to quickly decide where waste is occurring and place associates in areas where they are most productive.

2. What special qualifications do you have for this job that set you apart in such a large field of candidates? Be specific.

I have been involved in civic activities for a number of years. My skills in managing people and problems as well as budgets and dollars at my present job with Kmart will enable me to do the best job possible. After many years in management as well as the executive level, planning and execution are still the bottom line. These two factors lead to outstanding customer service for the taxpayers and voters.

'Bird' still a hit with Tigers' fans

Long before Larry Bird gained fame, there was Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, the one-year pitching sensation of the Detroit Tigers.

That's news to Eric Crozier, an 11-year-old Redford resident who showed up Sunday at Livonia Mall to get an autograph — but he wasn't sure from whom.

Fidrych and Hall of Famers Maury Wills and Orlando Cepeda were there to sign autographs for the Swift Premium Ekrich autograph tour, which raises money for charities and retired major league ballplayers who played when salaries were modest — not astronomical.

"My dad thinks he (Fidrych) was a real good player — he said he used to do a lot of footwork," said Crozier, who wasn't aware Fidrych had a nickname. "I mostly asked him for pointers because I'm a pitcher too."

Fidrych, whose hair is still curly but not as long, runs into quite a few youngsters who know the former Tiger only because of what their parents tell them. Their parents remember a 6-foot-3 lanky right-hander with flowing blond curls who in 1976 was Rookie of the Year and the talk of the baseball world at age 22.

Fidrych won 19 games, lost nine and his fresh approach to the game (talking to the baseball, grooming the pitcher's mound before each inning) helped sell out Tiger Stadium each time he pitched. He was the starting pitcher for the American League in the All-Star Game and led the league with a 2.34 earned run average and 24 complete games.

A 1977 rotator cuff injury slowed Fidrych's progress and after trying several comebacks he retired in 1982 after being released by the Boston Red Sox. He finished with only 29 career wins and 19 losses but remains a fan favorite.

Mike Mireles, a Livonia resident, brought his two sons to Livonia Mall to meet their father's favorite pitcher in the '70s.

"He provided excitement for a couple of summers and that's all you can ask," Mireles said.

Fidrych appreciates the fans' attention.

"The Detroit people are beautiful," said Fidrych, who has visited the area three other times in '92 to speak at corporate functions. "I always have a blast. It's nice to walk up the runway at the airport and have people say, 'Hey Mark, it's nice to see you again.'"

"Some people today brought old articles, scrap books for me to sign, took pictures. That's how they know me. They don't know me as 'Mark,' they know me as 'The Bird.'"

By the time "The Bird" had his wing operated on and fixed for good, it was 1986. Unfortunately for Fidrych, he was already 32 and beyond his prime.

Although Fidrych wishes rotator cuff surgery had been available in 1977 ("It's a pretty popular operation, today," he said), he has no regrets about not getting rich quick as a major leaguer. His 1976 rookie salary was $21,000 and he left the game before any players started making more than $1 million per year.

"Hey, I made it to the 'big's,' and life goes on," he said. "I have no regrets about anything. I got to play."

Fidrych turns 38 next month and lives at home in Northboro, Mass. with wife Ann and their 5-year-old daughter. He owns an asphalt and gravel business

Rozum double gives Mustangs triple

Lisa Rozum of Canton and Livonia Ladywood High School had the game-winning hit in the final, helping the Mid-America Mustangs win their third consecutive state championship in girls 16-and-under softball last weekend.

The Mid-America Mustangs won their third consecutive girls 16-and-under state softball championship Sunday at Liberty Park in Sterling Heights.

Lisa Rozum's two-run double in the bottom of the seventh inning enabled the Mustangs to edge the Westland Finesse 5-4 in the championship game and complete a three-peat effort.

"It looked very grim (with the Mustangs behind 4-2 going into the bottom of the seventh)," Mid-America coach Ron Movinski said. "But with a couple of key hits it all came together. Lisa came through at the plate."

In the seventh, Stacy Sinke walked and moved to third on Heidi Wahl's double. Katy Duncan produced an RBI single followed by Rozum's game-winning double.

Leslee Dickerson walked and scored the game's first run on Julie Jones' RBI double in the first inning. Colleen Wutke hit a leadoff triple in the fourth and scored on Sue Huber's sacrifice fly, making the score 4-2.

Rozum, Wahl and Wutke had two hits apiece in the final. Sinke was the winning pitcher in all four games, putting her tournament record at 14-6. Both teams had 10 hits.

"It was a thrill to win three in a row," Movinski said. "I never felt so exuberant in all my life. In the Southgate tournament (July 11-12), the girls finally started to come together, and it showed this weekend in the state tournament."

The Mustangs began the tournament Saturday with a 13-1, mercy win over the Sterling Heights Cardinals. Sinke tossed a four-hitter and walked none.

Dickerson was the top hitter, going 4-for-4 with four RBI. Wahl was 3-for-3, Wutke hit a two-run homer and Huber had two hits. Tricia Kesner and Duncan knocked in two runs each. Wahl also scored three runs, Nikki Wisniewski and Kesner two apiece.

Wutke was the hitting star in the next game, a 7-1 victory Saturday over the Clinton Valley Travelers. She had three hits and five RBI, driving in two runs with a homer and two more on a triple.

Dickerson had two hits and scored two runs, and Huber had an RBI double. Sinke allowed eight hits but walked none again.

The Mustangs edged the Southgate All-Stars 7-6 on Sunday to reach the championship game.

Mid-America led 6-0 after three innings before the All-Stars rallied with four runs in the fifth and two in the seventh. Southgate outhit the Mustangs 13-11, but Sinke refused to issue a walk once more.

Jones and Huber were 2-for-3 at bat, and Wutke had four RBI without the benefit of a hit. Carah Best added a three-base hit.

Other team members are Stephanie Smith, Amy Geary, Jennifer Jacek and Amy Yocum. The Mustangs are managed by Jim Elliott. The other coaches are Kathie Long, John Sinke and Bob Smith. Ray Knickerbocker is general manager for the four Mid-America teams.

Right stuff: Craig Benedict was in the right pitching groove Monday, leading Horton Plumbing to a 3-0 victory over Tecumseh (Ontario).

Horton-Plumbing falls shy of district playoffs

Horton Plumbing-Canton just missed qualifying for a post-season Connie Mack baseball tournament Tuesday.

Canton, which won its last four games to finish 10-7 in the Little Caesars Baseball Federation, was the seventh-place team but only the top six go to either a NABF or AABC tournament.

"When we had four games left, I told the kids we still had a chance to make the playoffs but they had to win all four and they did," Horton coach Mark LaPointe said.

"We got better as the summer went along. We were one of the younger teams in the league, and we were competitive with older teams. I had a lot of 16-year-olds and some 15-year-olds playing for me in the 18-and-under division."

"We had an outstanding effort all season, and that will bode well for the Canton baseball program next spring. We're going to be a solid ballclub because of the experience these kids have gotten the last two summers."

Horton completed its season-ending surge Tuesday with a 13-5 victory over South Farmington in which Scott Valimont pitched a complete game. He allowed eight hits but walked one while striking out five.

Mark Schankowski, Todd Pniwski, Eric Marcotte, Brad Paskievitch and Matt Horn fueled the 12-hit attack with two hits each.

On Monday, Craig Benedict pitched a four-hit, complete game as Horton blanked second-place Tecumseh (Ontario) 3-0. He struck out four and walked none.

Canton broke a scoreless deadlock in the fifth inning when Ryan Ostach scored on Chris Johnson's single. Horn hit a two-run single in the sixth.

Sam Brannock made three outstanding catches to rob opposing batters of hits, LaPointe said.

In the sixth, Tecumseh had runners at second and third with no outs. Pniwski blocked a ball that could have scored a run. Then Benedict retired the side with a strikeout, popout and groundout on which Ostach made a fine play at shortstop.

In a game suspended from Saturday because of rain, Horton defeated the Windsor Titans 7-3 earlier Monday.

Paskievitch started on the mound Saturday, but he had pitched Sunday and needed rest Monday. Horn picked up in the second inning and finished the game, allowing six hits, striking out seven and walking none.

Johnson drove in two runs with a double and Paskievitch one. Adam Gilles, Pniwski and Schankowski had RBI singles, and Ryan Fordham added a sacrifice fly.

On Sunday, Paskievitch pitched a five-hit, complete game as Canton defeated visiting Kensington Valley 7-3. He struck out three and issued no walks. Marcotte hit a two-run single, and Pniwski (double) and Johnson (single) had one RBI each.

Hines Park stays in contention despite sweep

Walter's Appliance took over sole possession of first place in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League Sunday with a doubleheader sweep over Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury at Ford Field.

Walter's won the opener 7-2 and the nightcap 2-0. They are 17-9-2, giving them 36 points and a slight edge over second place Delwal (17-9-1, 35 points). Hines Park falls to 16-11.

In the first game, Mike Coleman (from Madonna University) was solid on the mound for Walter's, going the distance and striking out three. He allowed four walks and five hits.

Walter's tallied six runs in the third inning, sparked by a pair of two-run singles from Craig Overaitis (Livonia Franklin/Madonna) and Eric Stover (Westland John Glenn).

Jeff Paluk was the starter and loser for Hines Park, giving up six runs in 2 1/2 innings. Keith Bozyk (Redford Catholic Central/Adrian) relieved Paluk in the third.

In the second game, Louie McKaig (Madonna) gave Walter's its second solid pitching performance of the day, tossing a three-hitter. McKaig stuck out one and surrendered a pair of walks.

Kevin Young (Farmington/Central Michigan) provided the winning run with his solo homer in the second inning. Paul Pirronello (CC) scored the other Walter's run.

Despite a brilliant pitching effort, Scott Rodgers (Plymouth Salem/Kent State University) took the loss. He went Delwal plays six

Early season rainouts with Little Caesars and the Tecumseh Green Giants forced Delwal to play six games in four days last weekend.

Delwal made the most of its chance to close in on first place by taking four of the six. On Monday, Delwal used a two-run fifth inning to defeat Tecumseh 4-2 at Novi High School.

In the fifth, Mike Schwartzberger led off with a double. Bill McCaig was safe on an error and Mike Pesci (Farmington Harrison) loaded the bases with his fielder's choice.

Chris Munson then put Delwal ahead 3-2 with an RBI single. Jason Valente followed up with a sacrifice fly to knock home the fourth and final run.

Delwal had four hits, including two solo homers from McCaig and Tom Kretschmer (Oakland University).

Gary Morris (Orchard Lake St. Mary's) earned his second victory, allowing three hits and only one earned run in five innings.

On Sunday, Delwal swept a twin-bill from Ann Arbor Wendys at Novi, winning the first game 6-2 and the second game 13-0.

In the opener, Delwal scored four runs in the fourth inning to break a 2-2 tie. The big hit was a three-run homer from Kretschmer, his league-leading fifth of the season.

Billy Hardy and Chad Chapman each added two hits for the winners. Chapman belted his third homer of the season.

Brian Feldman went the distance and held Wendys to just three hits, while striking out four.

In the nightcap, Delwal smacked 11 hits and ended the game after five innings due to the mercy rule.

Chapman paced the hitting attack with two hits and three RBI, including his fourth homer of the season. Kretschmer added two hits and three RBI and Noah Bremen two hits and two RBI.

Schwartzberger, who was catching his fifth game in three days added two hits, including his first homer of the year.

McCaig was the winning pitcher, throwing a two-hitter and striking out five.

On Saturday, Delwal lost both ends of a doubleheader with Little Caesars, dropping the opener 1-0 and the second game 2-1.

In the first game, Mark Van Ameyde won the pitching dual with Mark Temple (North Farmington). Despite taking the loss, Temple managed to toss a five hitter and strike out five.

Dave Roman's RBI single in the fourth proved to be the game-winner for Caesars.

In the second game, Delwal left 10 runners on base and Todd Boike suffered his first loss of the season.

Roman once again knocked in the winning run with his sacrifice fly in the sixth, scoring Aaron Mach.

On Friday, Delwal edged Walter's 4-3 at Ford Field thanks to Derek Wirebaugh's fifth victory of the season.

Wirebaugh went 6½ innings, striking out two and yielding just a pair of walks. Boike got the final out in the seventh for the save.

Munson broke a three-all tie in the sixth with an RBI single, scoring Valente. He finished with three hits. Schwartzberger and Kretschmer each added two hits.

Steve Ross (CC) suffered the loss for Walter's, going the final 1½ innings and allowing the winning run. He relieved starter Dave Wood.

Walter's tallied all of its runs on a three-run double by Young in the sixth.

Little Caesars didn't play its scheduled doubleheader with Tecumseh on Sunday because the Green Giants had a prior commitment.

In addition to its affiliation with the LCBL, Tecumseh is also a member of the Ontario Baseball Association.

A make-up game in that league forced a cancellation of the doubleheader with Caesars.

The Mid-America Magic combined for 54 runs in five games to capture the USSSA girls 14-and-under softball state title Sunday at Liberty Park in Sterling Heights.

Cassie Entsinminger, Lauren Wright, Jenny Clulow and Jessie Jenkins provided much of the offensive power while Marci Dupont and Allyson Woodruff also contributed some clutch hitting.

Theresa Jacek played a key role in the Mid-America success, pitching all but five innings in the five games.

Other members of the Magic roster are Jennifer Henning, Marissa Eanes, Audrey Zoccoli, Becky Knight, Tara Biro, Nicole Kovachevich, Wendy Roberts, Danielle Frazier and Becky Uryga.

The Magic is managed by Kim Hewitt, and the coaches are Tom Palmer, David Jacek and Linda Frost.

Mid-America defeated the Sterling Heights Dodgers 12-1, South Farmington Fever 4-3, the Clinton Valley Travelers 21-16 and the Fever again in the final 11-1. The Magic had lost the first game of the double-elimination championship series to the Fever.

Concealed heads to district tournament

The Concealed Security Connie Mack baseball team gained momentum for today's AABC district with Monday's 9-4 win over Kensington Valley at Capitol Park.

Concealed Security, which finished the Little Caesars League in a four-way tie for third place at 12-5 (23-12-1 overall), opens district play at 10:30 a.m. today at Kyte Monroe Field in Macomb (Harper Road between 13 and 14 mile roads).

Dan Scutchfield picked up the win in Monday's game against Kensington Valley. Scutchfield allowed only one earned run, walked four, scattered four hits and struck out 10. Matt Green (Farmington) and Chuba Gregory led the 14-hit Concealed attack with three hits and two RBI apiece. Geoff Keathley had a pair of doubles and an RBI and Paul Kuhn (Redford Catholic Central) delivered two hits.

Concealed beat Garden City 10-3 Sunday at Garden City Park. Dan Gusoff pitched a five-hitter with seven strikeouts and four walks and Mark D'Antonio and Scutchfield hit consecutive home runs in the fifth inning to lead the way.

Craig Petersen (Madonna University) had two hits and two RBI while D'Antonio had two hits and drove in three runs.

D'Antonio allowed only two hits Saturday as Concealed won a pitcher's duel over visiting Ypsilanti, 3-2. Charles Winters was one of the few hitting heroes for Concealed, delivering an RBI single during a three-run second inning.

Concealed rallied on Friday but fell short in an 8-7 loss at home to Westland. Mark Rutherford (Livonia Churchill) and Brian Hicks (Redford Catholic Central) were Westland's big contributors at the plate with two hits each.

Scutchfield didn't last past the third inning and suffered the loss. Gusoff clubbed a home run and had three RBI for Concealed. Petersen was 3-for-4 with three RBI while Kuhn also collected three hits. Green had two hits and an RBI.

Concealed beat Livonia 13-3 Thursday at Capitol Park.

Chad Zann (Madonna) improved his pitching record to 5-0 with a four-hitter, 12 strikeouts and four walks over seven innings.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON—A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help ease world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Although other studies and scientists may not agree, researchers in Europe found that the ingredient, a natural plant colloid, actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories.

While the project of National Dietary Research, aptly named Food Source One, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the formula which has since been improved with other natural colloids has been a windfall for some overweight people. A Metairie, Louisiana nurse lost 71 pounds. She stated "I never had to sacrifice the foods I dearly crave!" "Food Source One is very easy and anyone could do it," says a Niagara Falls, New York woman who lost 26 pounds and 15 inches. "The results are great," she added.

Food Source One tablets are part of National Dietary Research's comprehensive plan to bring a rapid end to obesity in this country. A variety of nutritionally sound diet plans, specially prepared by NDR, accompany each bottle and provide a natural, drug free alternative for confronting the problem of obesity.

Pilut's goal keeps Kings undefeated

The Kings rallied in the third period Monday to defeat the Huskies 11-10 and maintain their unbeaten record in the Metro Summer Hockey League.

The Kings, who trailed 10-7 early in the finale, are atop the MSHL standings with a 7-0-1 record. The playoffs begin tonight.

Mitchell paced the Kings with four goals and had one assist. Pilut finished with one goal and four assists, teammate Joe Sellers two goals and three assists.

Mark Isel also had a four-goal game for the fifth-place Huskies (3-3-3), who got a pair of goals from Pat Hultman.

The Kings had an easier time of it Sunday, rolling over the Bulldogs 15-5 as Chris Smith and Mitchell scored four goals each. Pilut had a big game with three goals and seven assists, and Sellers was right behind with one and six, respectively.

Eric Zimmerman had two goals and one assist for the ninth-place Bulldogs (1-6-1).

The second-place Wolves (6-0-2) stayed close behind the Kings with a pair of ties, 9-9 with the Canadiens on Tuesday and 6-6 with the Huskies on Monday.

Joe Burton scored three goals and assisted on two others to lead the Wolves against the Canadiens. Darren Stoodly had two goals in each game.

Joe Bonnett registered four goals for the fourth-place Canadiens (4-3-2) and added three assists. Brian Cronan was a major playmaker with four assists.

In the Wolves-Huskies game, Bob Breach also scored two goals and Tim Osborn recorded six assists. Doug Stromback had two goals and three assists to lead the Huskies.

The Broncos (6-3-0) won a pair of games earlier this week to remain a solid first-division team.

Chris Tamer and Joey Pemberton scored one goal and had one assist apiece as the Broncos edged the Huskies 4-3 Sunday. Mark Chapelli was the game's top scorer with two in a losing cause.

Grant Patterson tallied two goals and five assists Tuesday to lead the Broncos past the Lakers 9-6. Teammate Mario Muzzuca scored twice and had one assist.

Ian Crockford (three assists) and Darrell Mason scored one goal each for the Lakers, who were in eighth place with a 2-6-1 record.

The Lakers got their second win Sunday when they won a 13-12 shootout with the Wildcats, who led 6-5 entering the third period.

Crockford (four assists), Tony

Molina and Gordie Brown scored three goals apiece to help the Lakers rally and win.

Jack McCoy had three goals and four assists, Jim Hubenschmidt two goals and six assists, for the last-place Wildcats (0-8-1).

The seventh-place Spartans evened their record at 4-4-0 with a pair of wins, 7-6 over the Canadiens on Tuesday and 4-3 over the Falcons on Sunday.

Dave Weaver had two goals and Dave Garbarino three assists in the game with the Canadiens, who got three goals (one assist) from Bonnett, a goal and three assists from Brian Cronan and two goals (one assist) from Chucky Carvey.

Matt Dialak and Paul Tachke-bitch scored one goal and had one assist apiece in the Spartans' win over the sixth-place Falcons (4-4-1), who got the same from Brian Mulcahy.

Madonna resurrects men's hoop program

By C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Bill Sharpe knows what he's getting into. He should, anyway. He's been through it before.

Sharpe, a Canton resident, was signed last week to restore Madonna University's men's basketball program for the 1993-94 season. The 43-year-old Missouri native has plenty of collegiate experience, including the last four years as an assistant under Joe Zabrzinski at University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Sharpe aided Zabrzinski in bringing UM-D's program back to varsity level last year. It wasn't the first time Sharpe had helped build a program from scratch: In 1973, he put together the first men's basketball team at Maryville College, an NCAA Division III school in St. Louis.

He'll need all that experience at Madonna. When Whitlow left in 1988, he said a lack of administrative support was a key factor. Whitlow did not want to have to spend time fund raising for his program. When he left, the program was canceled.

Sharpe has a different attitude. "I'm going to have to do fund raising," he said. "That's a reality. It's going to have to happen because a small college can't support athletics. I just assume I'll have to do that. In fact, I offered to."

Indeed, Sharpe has already begun. A boys basketball skills camp is scheduled for Aug. 10-14 at Madonna (cost is $75; for further details call 591-5138).

Starting from scratch

Much more will be needed, to be sure. But if nothing else, Sharpe is confident.

"Two years ago, I went to Ray (Summers, Madonna's athletic director) and asked him when they were going to get a men's basketball program. He told me in a couple of years, and I told him I wanted to be the first to submit a resume."

Sharpe's enthusiasm had its effect.

"I think we're getting an experienced coach and a proven recruiter who knows the NAIA," said Summers. "His recruiting philosophy is well-suited to ours. Like (Duke's Mike) Krzyzewski, he stresses academics. He's also like (Georgia Tech's Bobby) Cremins in that he'll take the marginal student and work with him."

Sharpe, who played basketball at MacMurray College in Jacksonville, Ill., until injuries to both knees sidelined him, knows the importance of education. He had his scholarship revoked but went on to get his bachelor's degree at Webster University in Missouri and his master's at the University of Michigan.

"I hope (my recruits) understand the reason they're here," said Sharpe. "The major thing you have to do is prepare them for an education. I want to run a squeaky-clean program emphasizing academics."

Emphasizing local recruits

As far as recruiting goes, Sharpe has defined his area of concentration. "I've got to go to Livonia and the Catholic League," he said. Bringing in local people has to help put the program in the public's view, and recruiting the Catholic League should help the caliber of play. Also, as Sharpe said, "We're a Catholic university."

Although the program's reinstatement is being met with optimism — as Summers said, "When I say everyone's excited about it, I mean everyone from the administration on down" — it won't come easily. Summers said Sharpe would have the same of financial support as the school's other varsity sports (baseball, volleyball, softball and women's basketball).

But that hardly guarantees success. At St. Mary's College in Orchard Lake, men's basketball was dropped as a varsity sport last spring just a few weeks after winning the NAIA District 23 championship for the second-straight season. St. Mary's was expected to be ranked among the top 10 teams in the country next preseason. And it was the only varsity sport the school offered.

"It's hard to compare that with our institution," insisted Summers.

Of course, there's a positive way to look at that, from Madonna's viewpoint. Madonna now reigns as the only small Catholic college in the area, which should aid recruiting.

And that, without doubt, is the light in which Sharpe would choose to view it. After Maryville he left coaching for several years, then took an odd path to get back into it.

A year to get settled

"Four or five years ago, I made up my mind I wanted to get back into it," he said. So he became a part-time security guard at the Palace. "I wanted to see, and learn from, the best players around," he said.

The move paid dividends when he aided one of his work mates, Kyle Lynch, with his jump shot. Lynch was a player at UM-D, and when an assistant coaching position there opened up, Lynch suggested to Sharpe to apply. Zabrzinski hired Sharpe after a phone interview.

"What can I do to repay Joe?" said Sharpe of his former boss. He smiled as he answered his own question: "I can beat him. That will show him he taught me well."

Justin LaBond (22), David Moore (23), Frank Engel (23) and Joe Jouppi (22) won a championship in the Gus Macker 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament in Gaylord June 20-21. All four are Cantor residents.

The team won four games to reach the final but suffered its first loss in the double-elimination tourney, 20-11. By playing man-to-man defense and limiting the number of two-point perimeter baskets, the locals were able to win the rematch and the title, 20-18.

called Mark Fidrych Inc. and keeps a low profile with his family.

Fidrych plays a few "Upper Deck" Oldtimers' games each year but doesn't keep up much with the players or teams of today.

"Sometimes I watch games at 'The Legion,' in town with the guys," said Fidrych. "We don't have bars in Northboro, we have 'The Legion.'"

There is talk that a movie about Fidyrych will be made and I say cast Fidyrych in the leading role. Fidyrych still looks like he can fit into a uniform — "I never got heavy, that's just the structure of my body," he says. And we all know there isn't an actor out there who could groom a pitcher's mound or talk to a baseball (with an East Coast accent) any better than "The Bird."

Nifty restaurant has 1950s charm

By KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

It's not a big place, but Rocket Eddy's has a lot to offer. The 1950s theme restaurant, which seats 28 people, is more than just a hamburger joint.

"I pride myself on top quality. I'm here day and night," said

Anthony Donofrio of Sterling Heights who recently purchased Rocket Eddy's with his brother Joseph.

"The staff is friendly. We look for people who like to joke around and talk to customers. We want a happy atmosphere."

If you're a fan of Rocket Eddy's, don't worry. The new owners didn't change a thing. The decor and prices are the same. Sandwiches range from 95 cents for an Eddy Junior (Slider) to $2.95 for a B.L.T.

Super salads like the Chicken Coupe De Ville and tuna are $3.95. Chili and soup are $1.75 a bowl. Old-fashioned malts are $2.35, shakes $2.25, sundaes $1.95 to $2.50.

Chicken Coupe De Ville is a mound of fresh lettuce, tomatoes, carrots, and celery, topped with grilled chicken strips and honey mustard dressing. Chicken gyros — chicken strips served in pita bread with lettuce and tomato and honey mustard or ranch dressing, are popular items. Donofrio makes the honey mustard dressing himself, and invented the chicken gyro.

Look on the wall above the counter for daily specials like chicken gyros, homemade one-alarm chili, (extra hot sauce is available), and soup including minestrone, clam chowder, beef vegetable and chicken noodle.

Rocket Eddy's
2897 Orchard Lake Road
Keego Harbor, (313) 683-7171
Hours: 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday.
Menu: Sandwiches, homemade soup and chili, old-fashioned malts and milkshakes.
Credit cards: Not accepted

Try the famous Original Rocket Eddy Burger, a 1/2-pound ground sirloin patty with choice of tomato, lettuce, pickles and mayo. Smaller appetites will enjoy the Eddy Junior (slider). A loose Chicago-style burger is also available.

Top your burger with chili, grilled onions, American or Swiss cheese for an additional 30 cents per item.

Other sandwich offerings include tuna, Rocket Eddy's Coney Island, Best Dressed Breast of Chicken, bacon, lettuce and tomato, and grilled cheese with or without bacon.

On the side, there's french fries, Eddy's Seasoned Curly Fries, made with Idaho potatoes, chili fries, onion rings and side salad. The side salad is made with lettuce, celery, carrots, purple cabbage, cucumber and tomato.

I saved the best part for last. Rocket Eddy's is one of the few places around that still knows how to make malts and milkshakes. They're served right from the tin cup they were made in. Of course they have root beer floats, and Boston Coolers, made with Vernor's.

Save room for dessert, chocolate or strawberry sundaes, a special Turtle Nut sundae (with homemade chocolate fudge brownie, ice cream, hot fudge, nuts, and whipped cream), cheesecake (topped with strawberries), pie, Twinkieberry shortcake, banana splits, and Mama Louise, yes she is Anthony and Joseph's mother, makes the cheesecake and pies.

Carryouts are available, and there's a booster chair for kids.

Pianist tackles difficult works at recital

AVIGDOR ZAROMP

The Steinway Society of Michigan was established in 1989 by a group of individuals dedicated to fine piano music, and its performance. It is featuring various events to raise money for its activities.

Members consist not only of professional pianists, but people from all walks of life who appreciate piano literature.

A recent event took place at the Cranbrook House library and featured pianist David Syme in a recital of works by Beethoven, Chopin and Liszt. Syme is a prominent pianist from this area who has been concertizing extensively in this country and Europe with several recordings to his credit.

Among his teachers was Mischa Kottler who has inspired many award-winning masters of the keyboard, and is still an active practitioner of this refined art.

I have heard Syme on numerous occasions, and have been impressed with his capability. He dares to tackle some of the most difficult and challenging works in the repertoire, such as the massive Liszt Sonata in B minor on this program.

No performing artist is immune against occasional lapses and weaknesses, and Syme has his share. His major one is in his heavy handed approach which tends to hamper his handling of high speed technical passages. The Beethoven sonata in F major, Op. 54, is among his two-movement sonatas which are off the beaten track. Syme demonstrated appreciation for its first movement's expressive and intimate quality, but the octave triplets were laden with too much weight.

The fast passages in Chopin's Scherzo in B minor were moving at an impressive tempo with credible accuracy, yet they sounded constrained, lacking some of the required freedom and agility. It was as if the speed encountered an undue amount of inner resistance. Far better in that respect was the 'Harp' Etude, which preceded it.

Liszt's sonata is among those works that prove to be a stumbling block to some of the most acclaimed pianists. It is in one continuous movement which can be only loosely divided into separate segments. As such, it is more of a Fantasy than a traditional sonata. Its performance requires a penetrating artistic insight and appreciation, in addition to its knuckle breaking technique.

In this performance, Syme mastered the former aspect to a greater degree than the latter. He was at his best in the contemplative passages. Among the more technical portions, I found the fugue to be impressively well done. In other spots, however, there were too many missed notes and fudged octaves. He did manage to play the fierce double octave passages with impressive speed.

The failure to attain perfection in this devilishly difficult work does not detract, however, from Syme's impressive pianistic credentials.

Stratford's 'H.M.S. Pinafore' delightful

The Stratford Theater Festival production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" continues in repertory at the Avon Theater through Oct. 18. For ticket information, call the Detroit box office at 964-4668.

As we all know the secret to becoming the ruler of the queen's navy is to never go to sea.

The secret to rousing Gilbert and Sullivan is to go for broke and have a high old time doing it.

The Stratford Theater Company has a marvelous time doing "H.M.S. Pinafore" and they pass on their delight to every member of the audience. Here is a production that is uproariously funny, sprightly and constantly in motion and musically joyful.

W.S. Gilbert had a way of deflating pomposity and attacking the British class system that made the upper crust laugh at themselves as vigorously as the lower classes. And, since the world is still full of pretentious rich people who mistakenly assume their money gives them an elevated station in life, Gilbert's lyrics are still bitterly funny. Sullivan's music is still fresh, inventive and charming.

Any good Pinafore must have a stand out Sir Joseph Porter, the First Lord of the Admiralty who, of course, never went to sea. Douglas Chamberlain is a great Sir Joseph, mugging and prancing and singing with impeccable diction through the funniest songs ever written for the stage. Chamberlain is good naturedly pompous, both loveable and impossible just as he was intended to be.

He leads a fine company of comics through director Brian MacDonald's non-stop choreography. There is no stiff choral singing here; every song gives way to a dance from the jaunty, spiffy Pinafore crew to Sir Joseph's entourage of his "sisters and his cousins and his aunts."

The plot is absurd, merely a device to spit in the eye of the class system, nepotism and other topics that never seem to lose their appeal. As is tradition extra lines are added to Sir Joseph's famous song to poke fun at the U.S. Senate and the Canadian Prime Minister.

In addition to Chamberlain, the production has fine work from Michael Brian, who as dashing Ralph Rackstraw provides the romantic lead and a strong sweet tenor on "The Nightingale"; Marsha Bagwell as the misnamed Little Buttercup who has fun running the scales with her voice and alluding to her secret; Joanne Hounsell as the object of Ralph's affection who also gets to sing a pretty song; and David Dunbar as the proper English captain who never goes astray, well hardly ever.

Berthold Carriere, in English sailor garb, has his orchestra rip through the Sullivan score with authority and wit.

Add some flying balloons, dancing boats, and the theater's most endearingly ridiculous denouement and you have capital entertainment, what?

Mitzi Gaynor to perform at Meadow Brook

The lazy days of summer at the Meadow Brook Music Festival are packed with cool concerts. Upcoming events include George Benson on Wednesday, July 29, Santana on Thursday, July 30, Seals & Crofts with special guest Little River Band on Friday, July 31, and Mitzi Gaynor on Wednesday, Aug. 5. All shows start at 8 p.m.

Guitarist/vocalist Benson authored the first song in history to simultaneously hold the number one spot on the jazz, pop and soul charts. Benson's song, "This Masquerade," off his album "Breezin'" demonstrated his ability to bring jazz-based music to the pop and urban charts. Earning three Grammy Awards, "Breezin'" remains the best selling jazz album of all time.

Some of Benson's most popular singles include "On Broadway," "The Greatest Love of All," "Give Me the Night," and "Turn Your Love Around." Tickets are $25 and $15.

Carlos Santana, known for three decades for his unique blend of jazz, blues, rock, pop and gospel music, is one of only eight acts to have hit the LP Top 10 in the 1960s, 1970s and 1980s. His new LP "Milagro" is an expression of the healing powers of miracles and a tribute honoring the memories of Bill Graham and Miles Davis. Tickets are $27.50 and $17.50.

A "Summer Breeze" will blow through the Meadow Brook Music Festival when Seals & Crofts reunite for a summer performance. The pair will render classic songs in their melodic style.

Special guest Little River Band, the first Australian rock group to gain global success, will showcase their vocal harmonies with Top 10 hits like "Take It Easy on Me" and "Lonesome Loser." Tickets are $25 and $15.

Detroit native Mitzi Gaynor is touring with her own high-stepping stage presentation called "The Mitzi Gaynor Show." Gaynor packs in a collection of songs, dances, production numbers and comedy in two flamboyant hours. Tickets are $27.50 and $15.

Tickets are on sale at the Meadow Brook box office and all Ticketmaster outlets, including Hudson's and Harmony House. To charge by phone, call 645-6666. For concert information, call 567-6000.

Detroit native: Mitzi Gaynor takes the stage at the Meadow Brook Music Festival, Aug. 5.

Being a father inspires keyboardist to write song

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

As a young man, George Lilley of Rochester (George London is his stage name) dreamed of being a superstar musician. He spent several years on the road traveling and performing at various places. All that changed five years ago when his son, Brett, was born.

"I started thinking about another career. I decided to teach piano and found I enjoyed teaching young kids. Then I decided to go back to school, and chose science as my major."

Lilley said he loves being a father. Another son, Mark was born in May.

Lilley has a bachelor's degree in music, and decided to become a science teacher because "there's a big demand and a job market for science teachers." He has another year to go at Oakland University in Rochester, and will soon be student teaching.

But don't think for a minute that he has given up his music. In fact, being a father was the inspiration for "It's a Boy!" one of the songs he wrote for "I Just Need Your Love," a collection of original songs recorded by Leather and Lace, the band he plays in. The song just won an honorable mention in the "Billboard" magazine song writing contest.

Lilley, a keyboardist, plays accordion on the song "It's a Boy!" a tie-in to his childhood when he played accordion.

Six nights a week, he works as a musician. During the day, he attends classes and studies. "My wife Kathy is very supportive of my career."

His songwriting talent blossomed in the Navy when he started writing songs to send home to his girlfriend. He also learned how to play acoustic guitar.

A little over a year ago, he joined Leather and Lace. They perform 9 p.m. to 1:40 a.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and 8:30 p.m. to 1:10 a.m.

Sunday at the Alibi-Inn, at 14 Mile and Gratiot in Clinton Township.

Other band members are Mary Lou Livingston, bass and vocals, Liz Bell, drums, Jerry Nagel, acoustic and electric guitars, pedal steel.

Lilley and Livingston co-produced the tape, available at the Alibi for $5.

The tape of original songs includes a country song, a couple of pop ballads, and a rock and roll song. It's upbeat, and enjoyable listening.

"We play a variety of music, oldies, country, rock and roll, and originals. It all depends on the audience," he said.

Being a house band has its advantages. "You don't have to spend time moving equipment, and hustling work, but you don't get your name out," said Lilley, who is hoping the newly released cassette tape will help.

"What happens, happens," he said. "I enjoy what I'm doing."

GOP commission candidates speak out on issues

Incumbent Maurice Breen and challengers Patrick Downes, Thaddeus McCotter and Clayton Stacey are candidates in the Aug. 4 Republican primary for the 10th district Wayne County Commission seat. The winner will meet the Democratic nominee, Michael Caffrey of Plymouth, in November.

The district includes Livonia, west of Middlebelt, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville Township.

Because theirs is the only contested race, the Republican challengers were invited to respond to an Observer questionnaire about the issues and their qualifications. Here are their answers:

- ☐ Name: Maurice Breen
- ☐ Hometown: Plymouth Township
- ☐ Age: 59
- ☐ Occupation: Wayne County Commissioner (10th District includes Livonia, Plymouth and Northville)
- ☐ Education: B.A. Wayne State University, J.D. WSU
- ☐ Professional Affiliations: Michigan Bar Association, Michigan Republican Lawyers Association, Michigan Catholic Lawyers Association, Republican National Committee
- ☐ Civic Activities: Friends of the Rouge, American Legion, Knights of Columbus, Senior Alliance, Plymouth Elks, Plymouth Rotary, Amvets, Growth Works, First Step, AARP, SEMSAS.

BREEN

1. Are you satisfied with the current level of county services?

What services should be added, privatized or deleted? Be specific.

No one appears satisfied with the level of government services. There is an ever increasing demand to increase service levels but conversely a demand to reduce the taxload. The current level of service is improving as the county administration and commission attack the repair of the capital assets.

County road repair generates the most complaints. However, we will significantly improve the county road system with the new funds being generated at the state and federal level. Public transit is a disaster and will not measurably improve without a countywide approach.

2. Do you support the 0.5 mill tax increase on the Aug. 4 ballot? Be specific.

I opposed the 0.5 mill tax proposal at the commission level and I oppose it now that it is on the ballot. My opposition is based on the following

- Wayne County is too heavily taxed right now.
- There is no crisis in health care for the indigent.
- The $13 million raised would not increase the level of healthcare.

3. What should the county commission do to promote economic development throughout Wayne County? Be specific.

Wayne County plays significant role as the primary recipient of state and federal job training funds, as well as the coordination of economic development grants.

I believe its role should be as a receptor for all 43 communities of private entrepreneurial goals. The county agency is best suited to sort out the barrier to development in Wayne County. It could act as a clearing house. It has the capability of storing, coordinating and retrieving demographic information together with the control of county and state roads.

DOWNES

1. Are you satisfied with the current level of county services? What services should be added, privatized or deleted? Be specific.

Economic development must be expanded. If we don't, businesses and people will continue to leave the county. Given Detroit's status, only the county can provide the leadership necessary to turn this area around. Privatized road maintenance works elsewhere and lower property taxes. The commissioners are paid $45,000 and work part time.

2. Do you support the 0.5 mill ballot. Why? Be specific.

No. This is a perfect example of the commissioners acting as a mini-congress. They want the money then they will adopt a plan. First they should cut medical costs by using services which analyze health costs. The private (Ford) and public sector (Massachusetts) save money with this program, so should we.

3. What should the county commission do to promote economic development throughout Wayne County? Be specific.

Develop under-utilized resources. If developed, southwestern Wayne County would allow us to compete with surrounding areas for attracting new businesses, or prevent businesses from relocating. There is no magic bullet, but other areas should shoulder the burden placed on this (10th) district.

- ☐ Name: Thaddeus G. McCotter
- ☐ Hometown: Livonia
- ☐ Age: 26
- ☐ Occupation: Attorney
- ☐ Education: Finished first in the college of liberal arts, summa cum laude with honors, from University of Detroit, B.A. in political science. J.D. from U-D School of Law. Alumni of Catholic Central High School
- ☐ Professional Affiliations: Secretary and free legal counsel for the Citizens Allied for Representative Elections. Former Livonia Youth Commissioner. Volunteer for the Rouge River Rescue, Livonia Heritage Fair, Livonia Spree, Livonia Fall Fest, Livonia Arts and Crafts Festival, Walk for Mankind.

- ☐ Civic Activities: Schoolcraft Community College Trustees since 1989; past chairman of the Wayne 2nd Republican Committee; Member of the Monaghan Knights of Columbus; Livonia Cultural League; Livonia Symphony League; Livonia Jaycees; Livonia Republican Club; Schoolcraft College Foundation; Wayne County Young Republicans; Michigan Irish Causcus

McCOTTER

1. Are you satisfied with the current level of county services? What services should be added, privatized or deleted? Be specific.

County government must be brought back to basics: namely, maintaining safe streets and solid roads without increasing taxes. I will cut the commission's annual expense account and carefully investigate privatization of the state's road maintenance contract to determine if money will actually be saved without reducing the quality of services.

2. Do you support the 0.5 mill tax increase on the Aug. 4 ballot. Why? Be specific.

We must stop adding straws to the camel's back. Another millage will further debilitate Wayne County's weakened tax base. Poverty is a tragic reality we must never accept as permanent. That is why Wayne County must, restrain taxes and attract new businesses: so that indigents might one day become employees.

3. What should the county commission do to promote economic development throughout Wayne County? Be specific.

Restrain taxes, provide efficient services, and stop emphasizing major development at the expense of small businesses. Small businesses form the backbone of a tax base and provide commercial centers where individuals share a sense of community. Without small businesses, a ring of major projects will be but an empty shell.

- ☐ Name: Clayton A. Stacey
- ☐ Hometown: Plymouth
- ☐ Age: 63
- ☐ Occupation: Real Estate salesperson
- ☐ Education: B.S. Education, University of Detroit
- ☐ Professional Affiliations: Michigan Road Builders Association (retired)

STACEY

1. Are you satisfied with the current level of county services? What services should be added, privatized or deleted? Be specific.

The County should take a more active and vigorous role in controlling environmental problems. The board of commissioners should assist and guide the county executive.

The County should encourage new industries by making the county a competitive, safe and an attractive place to do business.

2. Do you support the 0.5 mill tax increase on the Aug. 4 ballot. Why? Be specific.

Yes, because everyone is entitled to health and mental care and if they cannot afford it then they should receive it at no charge. Health care is everyone's problem.

3. What should the county commission do to promote economic development throughout Wayne County? Be specific.

Wayne County must be a leader, set examples and provide the environment for growth to save the county's economy and tax base. The county must protect the other cities and townships so that they will not decay like Detroit.

New neighbors?

Maybe they're a young couple like this one, who have just moved in down the block, or maybe they're an older couple who bought the house next door.

It's always fun to get acquainted with new folks when they move into the neighborhood and sort of exciting to welcome them with plate of cookies or a bunch of flowers from your garden.

It's a good feeling to let them know what days the trash is picked up on your street and that you can be counted on to keep an eye on their place.

Neighborly stuff. Like the paper you're reading right now. They'd probably like to know about it, too. The fact that it has a lot of hometown news that they'd enjoy reading. Along with classified ads for buying things they'll need and selling things they don't need in their new home.

So if you should greet a new neighbor before we do, say "hello" for us and tell them to give us a call for home delivery.

A photographers' picnic: Shooting not-so still life

BY TIM SMITH
STAFF WRITER

Wearing black lingerie, boots and a smile, professional model Colette Long leaned back against a large boulder on Cass Lake's sandy beach Sunday as a swarm of photographers zoomed in on her with their cameras.

She reclined and moved her eyes from lens-to-lens, tilting her head back here or shifting her pose there. Always smiling, always following instructions.

"Lay down on a rock, you know?" laughed Long later, summing up the world of modeling. "But it's fun, you get to meet a lot of people. . . you must be doing something right when they all come to you."

According to 17-year-old model Sherry Kecskes of Bloomfield Hills, it's a real kick to dress up in many different outfits, "vogue" and smile for the cameras. And it didn't bother her one bit to be surrounded by a dozen photographers in the blink of an eye.

"I love it," said Kecskes, a senior this fall at Bloomfield Hills Lahser High School. "It's a rush. It just makes you smile bigger and give that extra effort."

Long, Kecskes and about 30 other models showed up at West Bloomfield's Kaleva Park (on Cass Lake) to don colorful, stunning outfits and bathing suits; pose in a variety of natural settings — hey, there's Andrea hugging a tree. . . wait, there she is posing in the lake — and give a host of amateur and pro photos all the shooting practice 25 bucks can buy.

All in good taste

It was all done in tasteful fashion as part of Alan Lowy's 22nd Annual Photographers/Models Picnic, an event designed to help younger models build portfolios while at the same time giving camera bugs something more interesting to photograph than still life or cars. (A total of about 225 models and photographers attended.)

"What we get from this is they (photographers) enter our pictures into a contest and we get 8-by-10's," Long said. "It pays off, instead of paying big bucks (Normally, from $75-per-hour on up) for a studio."

According to Lowy, a veteran commercial and creative photographer with a Farmington Hills studio, the picnic has become successful over the years because a top priority is for photographers to act in a professional manner. The park was crawling with private security Lowy recruited for the event.

"We wouldn't be doing this for more than 20 years if we had major problems with it," the Southfield resident said.

Even though about 65 percent of the picnic's photographers were amateurs, none could be described as "rank beginners," Lowy said.

Meanwhile, participating photos also were "strongly encouraged" to donate their pictures to the models, via Lowy's studio, where the photos will be processed.

And they all do, according to Lowy and several other photographers, who described the picnic as a great vehicle to improve their abilities — a place to experiment with various lighting conditions, settings and subjects.

Practice, practice

"This is good for practice," said Dearborn's Fernando Puente, "attending his fourth Lowy picnic. 'I get to try different lenses. . . I like the outdoor shooting.'"

According to another photog, 56-year-old Emery Chiszar of Lincoln Park, the event helps everybody out: Models get free photos to get their careers rolling; amateur and intermediate photographers learn to master their chosen craft and adapt to conditions. "The sun's peek-a-booming one minute, and it's not the next."

STAFF PHOTOS BY DAN DEAN

Beginners all: Three amateur photographers line up to shoot aspiring model Sarah Nunez of Plymouth. All participated in a workshop in West Bloomfield designed to give would-be models experience working for photographers, and amateur photographers a chance to test their skills with live subjects.

Chiszar said it was a plus to know the women he would be photographing were there entirely of their own free will.

"For one thing, to get ladies I know to pose, well, they won't do it. They're self-conscious," he said.

Even though all of the models wanted to be at Kaleva Park, not all expect to make a career out of it. For every Kris Malesky there's a

Garden City's Malesky, 19, standing out on a beach dock waiting for a photographer to start clicking, said she has hopes that "the right person will see me at the right time who likes my look."

If big-time modeling success doesn't come, Malesky said it will have been worth it because of the attention it brings her.

"I think it's glamorous," she said. "You get to dress up, you get to act. You feel really beautiful when you do it, and feel really good about yourself."

Economist at work: Karl Gregory, a professor at Oakland University, has been appointed to Gov. John Engler's Council of Economic Advisors.

Firms here get state funding for research

Four technology-based firms in Observer & Eccentric communities have won state research grants of upwards of $50,000 each from the Michigan Strategic Fund.

The companies — R S Technologies, Advanced Technology Incubator and Climax Research Services, all of Farmington Hills, and Air Gage of Livonia — were among 15 in Michigan to receive state funding. Nearly 60 applied.

"We do require 25 percent hard cash match and pre-prototype research," said Sharon Woollard, program manager for the research grants administered through the state commerce department.

"We fund pre-seed capital research so when they get done they can go to venture investors... and say, 'What we need now is development money,'" Woollard said.

"We're trying to build a long-term, collaborative working relationship between business and universities on new product development and research," she added.

Companies, and their projects are diverse.

• R S Technologies proposed developing a torque-sensing element to be used in industrial assembly tools for tightening threaded fasteners.

The company has an alliance with a tool producer to fund development work. Wayne State University is involved with research now.

"We make torque devices and instrumentation used in industrial tools to tighten nuts and bolts on assembly lines," said Ralph S. Shoberg, who started the company in October.

Advisory position to suit economist, professor just fine

■ A member of the academic world with practical business experience will be among those advising Gov. Engler on his economic policy.

It's easy to see why Karl Gregory, a Southfield resident and a professor in the school of business administration at Oakland University, has been appointed to Gov. John Engler's Council of Economic Advisors.

Gregory, 61, brings a wealth of experience in government service, the private sector and academia to the recently-named panel.

"I would expect he (Engler) might ask us how we perceive Michigan's climate for attracting and retaining business firms and how that climate might be improved," Gregory said.

"I suspect he may also ask about the impact of three aspects of government-economic policy. One, how to raise revenues, how that may be improved. Secondly, the impact on the expenditure side. And, perhaps, our thoughts on the impact of state regulating policies."

Among those on the five-person council are David Littmann, a Bloomfield Township resident and senior economist for Comerica Incorporated, and George Eads, a Troy resident and vice president of product planning/economics at General Motors.

Gregory served as a staff economist with the office of management and budget in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and in the Congressional Budget Office in the mid 1970s.

He was a member of a U.S. trade advisory committee during the Carter and Reagan administrations and has had policy-making and staff roles with the Federal Reserve Banking System.

Gregory was a founder and chief executive officer of First Independence National Bank of Detroit. He currently teaches small business development and strategic planning at OU.

Economic differences

Economists don't always agree on policy because so many variables other than mathematical computations go into their work, Gregory said.

"We bring various values to analysis," he said. "Secondly, we come out of different life experiences. We bring different data to issues. We differ in our disciplines within the field of economics."

Economic policy touches us many ways daily whether we're aware of it or not, Gregory said.

"Through our lifetime, we're impacted by the economy perpetually. At birth there's a need for health services to deliver us. Even before that, we can get pre-natal care and those who can't get it can have illness throughout their lifetime."

"That gets to the group at the end. How do we leave the world — what kind of departure we can enjoy?"

"More important, between those events, the quality of life has a lot to do with the set of economic opportunities we're each exposed to," Gregory said.

"A lot of economic variables affect quality of life — skills and level of education we're able to achieve, employment experiences, avoiding spells of unemployment, access to a safety net."

"Public safety, good housing are results of economic policy — public and private," he said.

Overcoming problems

Gregory is fairly optimistic about overcoming problems in the future.

"First, it will take a much stronger support of education systems. Retaining firms of all sizes within the state now and attracting many more."

"It's going to take placing more emphasis on leading industries of the next century — communications, biotechnology, scientific research, informational systems, genetics."

"Better forms of transportation," he continued. "It's going to take overcoming some factors causing urban sprawl."

"Before the decade is out, I can well conceive there will be a wider understanding of the fact that the big city of Detroit is greatly impacted by what happens in the suburbs and vice versa," Gregory said. "We can't have a great metro area with a decaying core."

Gregory currently sits on boards of directors with the Detroit Urban League, Minority Technology Council of Michigan, Greater Detroit Business and Industrial Development Corp. (BIDCO), United Way of Southeastern Michigan and Michigan Center for High Technology.

"Karl seems to take a practical, broad, involved view of economics," said Robert Spencer, president of Detroit Economic Growth Corp. "He's an academic, but not so much so that people don't understand. He's pretty good with people. He's not a dry numbers guy."

"And he's involved himself in some practical things like First Independence National Bank. I'm always attracted to someone in the academic world who gets his hands dirty and tries to make things work," Spencer said.

He's exploring the possibility of supplying auto manufacturers with devices to give torque feedback on power steering systems.

"We have experienced people here," Shoberg said. "Personally, I have a very strong track record of making things happen."

That includes founding GSE, which subsequently was sold to Core Industries headquartered in Bloomfield Hills.

Advanced Technology Incubator proposed developing an electronic product to significantly improve viewing of X-ray films by radiologists.

The radiology department at Henry Ford Hospital is making personnel and equipment available to Advanced Technology for research.

"We are not incubating chickens but ideas," said Zvi Yaniv, who founded the firm in January.

"We have people who have proven themselves in industry. We bring ideas in, develop prototypes, then put the right executives and right investors together and spin off the company," he said. "My strength is to make an idea happen."

Yaniv, who started Advanced Technology after serving as president and chief executive officer of Optical Imaging Systems in Troy, said that state officials encouraged him to apply for a grant.

Yaniv projected that some 15,000 X-ray machines nationally could be retrofitted with his product at $2,000-$3,000 apiece to provide better viewing.

Climax Research proposed developing a procedure that would convert sludge waste from a plating process into an alloy that could be used as an additive in cast iron foundries and stainless steel production. Climax is collaborating with Wayne State on the research.

Four metallurgists who worked in an Ann Arbor laboratory for a Colorado mining company formed their own firm in 1987 rather than move West when the company retrenched operations.

"If we had moved to Colorado, we would have had to change our field of expertise," said George Eldis, an owner. "There would be no more work in iron and steel."

As it is about half the firm's work today is with aluminum, he said.

"Our product (now) is test data, reports on failure analysis," Eldis said. "The ultimate goal, indeed, is to set up a plant to do the conversion operation. That's kind of a new direction for the business."

Air Gage proposed developing a high-precision sensor measurement system to be used in manufacturing applications.

The Industrial Technology Institute, a non-profit think tank, is collaborating with Air Gage in research and development.

"We're trying to develop a product that can measure a profile and cross section of a part ... using special light, a video camera and a computer," said Leonard Bieman, manager of the project.

Air Gage, founded 27 years ago, employs more than 200.

Companies that want to be placed on a mailing list for information about applying for grants next year should contact Woollard at 517-335-2139. Details will be forwarded in late fall.

U.S.-Mexico free trade holds promise

AUTO
McCOSH

When the Canadian customs guy asked me for identification the other day, I pulled out a U.S. passport, which made his day. Finally, he's thinking, someone is treating us seriously, like a real foreign country.

The cavalier attitude most of us in Detroit have towards the Canadian border is partly because maybe half of us have relatives there, and more than a few U.S. residents tend to assume Canada was made a state shortly after we took in Alaska. In the U.S. auto business the bilateral trade agreement signed with Canada in the late 1960s has made the U.S.-Canadian border the most open in the world.

The U.S.-Canadian auto pact, in fact, made Canada a unique trading partner for the U.S. auto manufacturers. Basically, the treaty dropped all tariff barriers, in exchange for a share of production sourced in Canada, plus a negotiated percentage of Canadian content. When it was first adopted, the effect was to cut the cost of a car in Canada about 30 percent. A handful of Canadian plants were built as well, with the majority of their output ending up in the U.S. The Chrysler minivan is as good an example as any.

In the past year or so as resentment over U.S.-Japan trade relations builds, Canada has been dragged into the debate and labeled a 'foreign' country by those ignorant of the terms of the trade pact. The elements of U.S.-Japan trade friction — including Japanese restrictions on U.S. capital investment, import barriers, etc. — are a dramatic contrast to the long-term relationship with Canada.

Even more surprising is the reaction to the current efforts to bring Mexico into a broad North American trade pact — a major issue in the U.S. presidential race.

Most often the notion of free trade with Mexico is seen as a prelude to moving auto plants south of the border, with a corresponding loss of U.S. jobs.

This is a real enough concern, since everything from seatbelts, to seat cushions, to Chevy engines already has been moved from Michigan to Mexico — even manufactured goods made in minimum-wage plants.

But in fact, there is nothing much preventing U.S. auto companies from moving to Mexico right now.

The restrictions that a trade pact could change are on shipping U.S. goods to Mexico, including U.S.-built automobiles, not the other way around — very much like the situation in Canada in the early 1960s.

The high tariff barrier against imported cars erected by Mexico means that virtually all cars sold in Mexico must be built in Mexico, and the surplus production ends up in the U.S.

A carefully negotiated trilateral trade pact could result in a very healthy North American market for the auto business, including a boom in U.S. production, with a profound effect on the Mexican economy.

Unfortunately, the same folks that built the one-way street to Japan are at the table, and there is no sign that an agreement as beneficial to the auto business as the U.S.-Canada pact is in the works.

Rookie season had its walks, hits, errors

BY JOHN FERRY
SPECIAL WRITER

This is the rookie season in Little League Softball for my two daughters. And it's been an exciting one filled with runs, hits, walks (lots of walks) and a comedy of errors.

Our teams are the Twins (10-year-olds) and the Cubs (9-year-olds). For my wife and I, this is also our rookie season as Little League parents.

The Twins have been the surprise team of their league. They recently finished the season with a 9-0-1 record. Last season, they didn't win a game until the playoffs. How does a team without a victory all year make the playoffs? Hey, it's Little League.

Only a botched call this year by a slow-footed, teenage umpire wearing plastic wrap-around sunglasses prevented the Twins from a perfect 10-0 record.

But why complain about umpires in Little League? In fact, the restraint exercised by Little League coaches when umpires blow calls would set a fine example for some of their Major League counterparts.

It's more enjoyable to complain about opposing coaches. If you've seen Little League, you've seen them. They yell at their own players which is embarrassing for the players, their teammates, parents and just about everybody within earshot. (Remember, the players we're talking about are young girls.)

For the Cubbies, it's been slightly different in wins and losses, but just as much fun for players and parents. The team finished up at 2-8. The major difference between the Twins and the Cubs is the age of

Girls find niche in Little League

Baseball is the national pastime and on the professional level, it's a men only game. But when it comes to Little League, you'll find the girls taking to the field with their male counterparts.

claims, women once had a league of their own. But fast forward to 1990s suburban American Little League, and girls often play alongside boys. Often just as well or better, but rarely in the same numbers.

"At first you hear (the taunts) but the majority of girls taught properly can play good competitive baseball," says Rich McLaren, Livonia junior baseball commissioner. "I've coached 14 years and it's always been mixed leagues."

Over the past few years, however, the number of girls in the three-tiered Livonia hardball league has dwindled to a dozen — out of 960 ball players.

"I have no idea why there are so few girls," McLaren said.

While girls are under represented in hardball — in Westland and Garden City, for instance, there isn't a single one — their ranks swell in softball leagues and T-ball throughout the metro area.

"To my knowledge, we've never had girls; they've never tried out," said Tony Graham, president of the Garden City Youth Athletic Association. "T-ball is mixed and then the young ladies move into softball."

For older girls in the overwhelmingly male ranks, life can be tough.

Witness Kasie Methena, by all accounts an ace pitcher in the major division of the Redford North Central League.

Some prejudice

"There was one coach who seemed a little prejudiced with me," said Kasie, 12, a Hilbert Junior High student. "I could've made the all-star team but I struck out one of his best players and he didn't vote for me."

Kasie's coach/manager Mike Gatterer agrees.

"There was one incident after the season where Kasie didn't make the all-star team. One manager kept her out — he was the only one who didn't vote for her — and I believe that's because she's a girl," Gatterer said. "I've been coaching for 10 years and she's one of the easiest kids to coach I ever had. She loves baseball."

"When (boys) would heckle her, that would get her pumped up and she would play even better. She was batting near .500."

Kasie joined the team "because I thought it could be as good as the boys. Sometimes after school I would go to the ball diamond and practice a little."

And she found herself pitching the maximum allowable six innings per week.

"There were no other girls on her team, none," said Kasie's mother, Helen Cassalman, who attended every game of the Yankees major division. "She is good. She's played the past two years. She's been pitcher, catcher and third baseman."

"Oh, you'd hear other players say, 'You're not going to let a girl pitch you out,' things like that. But there was a lot of support from her coach."

In the North Redford minors division, Larry Moran coached 12-year-old shortstop Rena Laverty.

"Lots of boys see a girl out there and they think — easy strikeout," Moran said. "But Rena could smack the ball and play with the rest of them."

Rena's parents, David and Irene Laverty, cheered her on at every game.

Big passion

"She didn't feel intimidated; she knows the game. Baseball is a big passion for her," said her mother. "And she always had really good coaches."

Another passion for the Pierce Middle School seventh grader is collecting baseball cards. Jose Canseco is her favorite player, the Oakland A's her favorite team.

Guild clicks with knitting enthusiasts

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

It wouldn't be at all inappropriate to call members of this group close-knit.

Monthly meetings of the Woolgatherers Knitting Guild offer opportunities for both friendship and learning. The group, which has approximately 35 members, is for knitters of all ages and experience levels.

"We were looking for a way to communicate and educate and share with other knitters," said Jeanine Lowe of Plymouth, who, with Marge Lewandowski and Mildred Fluhart, founded the guild several years ago. It was chartered in September 1990, and had begun meeting that previous spring.

Meetings are 6:30 p.m. the third Thursday of each month, year-round, at the Salvation Army, 9451 S. Main, south of Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth Township. (For information, call 420-4022.)

During a recent meeting, members worked on a variety of individual projects, the gentle clackety-clack of knitting needles mingling with the sounds of conversation.

Items knitters create include hats, mittens, afghans, shawls, sweaters and baby things. The time needed to complete a project varies, depending on the knitter's skill and the item's complexity.

Knitting may be thought of as an activity for older women, but the group's membership reveals that isn't always the case. Lowe, who's "under 40," did some knitting as a girl but didn't find it to her liking.

"I hated knitting as a child. It was too slow, too slow-moving," said Lowe, who's done needlepoint for years and had a yarn shop in Plymouth during the 1980s.

Lowe, who's been knitting for about 12 years now, is pleased to see the age mix in the Woolgatherers Knitting Guild. The group includes some spinners, who create their own yarn for projects, and some weavers.

"We're trying to get more beginners," said Lowe, who has four grown sons.

"That's not what we want at all. We want to encourage and motivate," said Lowe, a dental hygienist in Plymouth.

Woolgatherers Knitting Guild president Karen Rumpitz, a Plymouth Township resident, taught herself to knit when she was in her 20s.

"I started when my kids were younger. Then I stopped." She found it difficult to continue knitting without any support or instruction from a group.

Rumpitz, 45, moved to Plymouth about eight years ago and joined the local Newcomers Club. That club had a Yarncraft group, whose members worked on various projects. One woman was a knitter.

"So she started teaching us and I got back in," said

Rumpitz, a homemaker who'll begin classes at Schoolcraft College this September, possibly pursuing a career in occupational therapy.

She'll become a grandmother later this summer, so knowing how to knit means she can create baby items. Rumpitz finds knitting relaxing.

"It is for me." During football season, her husband watches games and she's able to keep busy with various projects.

"I can't just sit there and watch TV, so I knit or crochet." In addition to baby items, she's done several sweaters and afghans.

Rumpitz has noticed a renewed interest in home-crafts. Many Woolgatherers Knitting Guild members have small children and full-time jobs outside the home, but still find time for projects.

"It kind of amazes me," said Rumpitz, who has four grown sons.

Like Lowe, she encourages new knitters to join. Rumpitz sometimes meets beginning knitters in yarn shops, and encourages them to attend a Woolgatherers meeting.

"They'll say 'Oh, I'm not that good.' We don't want to discourage new knitters."

Taking a lesson or two at a local yarn shop's a help to a beginner, Lowe said. Because the guild meets just once a month, a brand-new knitter would probably benefit from getting some basic instruction.

Knitting Guild members believe in getting involved in the community. They've donated money to the Plymouth Historical Society and made lap robes and legwarmers for residents of the West Trail Nursing Home in Plymouth. Members try to pick one or two groups each year to help, Lowe said.

The Woolgatherers Knitting Guild, which is affiliated with a national guild, has members from nearby communities, including Livonia, Dearborn, Farmington, Garden City and others.

the players. The older players simply have the edge in skills and experience.

Having fun

Even though the Cubbies may not have a winning record, they're having fun. The team had some very fine individual players and received a lot of parental support.

Our Twins and Cubs coaches and their staffs have been great to the players. They've taught the girls the rules as well as the fundamentals of playing the game. On and off the field, the players have received a lesson in good sportsmanship.

Things looked ragged in May during most of the practices but the coaches, who are volunteers and parents, showed a lot of patience while working diligently on the basics of throwing, hitting, fielding and base running.

For many of the girls, this is the first time they've ever played baseball. They're eager to learn and eager to please the coaches.

For the coaches, this has to be the Grand American Experiment: teaching the basics of baseball to little girls, then sending them out in matching uniforms (ponytails sticking out the backs of caps) to play the national pastime in front of families and friends on a summer evening.

Wholesome sight

As a parent it's a beautiful and wholesome sight. As a Little League parent who has been a big baseball fan for more than 30 years, this is an experience that is exciting and fun; a rite of passage in parenting.

My daughters take dance lessons from September to June. Now they're playing ball games every Monday and Wednesday evening. It's a grueling but fun schedule for the entire family.

After all the hard work in May, the teams came together quite nicely, especially the Twins who have a blend of slick fielders, contact hitters and girls who have been playing for a few years.

Major League Baseball teams have administrative positions, such as general managers and traveling secretaries. In our family, my wife fills both roles.

For starters, she contacted the league back in February and successfully placed our daughters on teams with all the savvy of Tigers ex-GM Bill Lajoie.

The Cubs were a brand new team being formed so she placed our 8-year-old on an expansion team. It also helped that the coach who was forming the team is the father of a classmate of my daughter's. Our 10-year-old was placed on an established team (the Twins) that needed players. For starters, those were some pretty good GM-player personnel moves.

The logistics

Then there's the logistical nature of Little League - just like every extracurricular activity (swimming, soccer, dance, etc.) - getting the kids and parents to the practices and the games. This is where the traveling secretary function comes in, a function at which my wife excels. The schedules are tacked to the bulletin board in the kitchen and written on calendars at home and work.

Just as our 5-year-old son's spring soccer season was winding down in May, Little League practice started picking up. I took the Saturday soccer games at noon and then relieved my wife at the Cubs 1 p.m. practice sessions. Then, I would meet her after work at the 6 p.m. Monday soccer games and she would head over to the Twins 6 p.m. practice.

On Fridays in May, our 10-year-old went to the Twins practices right after weekly dance practice. Coincidentally, the coach's daughter was in the same dance class. As you can imagine, some of these players are light on their feet and have developed a keen sense of coordination from years of dance lessons. This can only help their agility in the field and on the base paths. Who would have thought ballet lessons would actually help in turning the double play? How many boys teams can make that claim?

The real fun and excitement started with the opening of the regular season in early June. Games were scheduled at 6 and 7:30 p.m.

Colorful array

One of our teams wears Kelly green jerseys with green hats, white pants and matching socks with fake stirrups. The other team is 'decked out' in a blue and gray ensemble. Other teams wear jerseys of black, red, maroon or gray. It's a colorful scene when these teams take the field against the backdrop of summer in full bloom. It could be Anywhere, U.S.A.

The pregame festivities are very similar to what you might see at Tiger Stadium or Ted Simmons Field in Southfield. Both managers meet at home plate with the umpire to exchange lineups and discuss ground rules. One of my favorite rules prohibits jewelry like earrings and necklaces, something the Major League also should enforce.

Once the game starts, spectators are in for a treat. The fielders harmonize in a high-pitched female brand of chatter ("hey batter-batter") that is actually pleasant sounding after the initial shock of hearing something you've never heard before wears off.

Most of us parents line up lawn chairs along the right or left field lines in "box seat" territory. Then we settle in for the game, proud of the fact that our daughters are learning and playing the nation's grand old game and absolutely thrilled when they hit the ball or make a play in the field.

Jack Ferry, a former sports writer in suburban Philadelphia, works in public relations for a financial services company in Southfield.

Bennett-Turner

Teresa Turner of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mark Bennett of Indianapolis were married June 12 on a cruise ship headed to the Bahamas.

Parents of the couple are Harvey and Helen Schroeder of Traverse City, Mich., and Dan and Sharon Bennett of Chelsea, Mich., formerly of Canton.

The bride is a graduate of Central Michigan University, where she studied broadcasting. She is employed as an account executive with WXIN-TV in Indianapolis.

Her husband is a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and of Alma College. He will graduate in April 1993 from Indiana University with a master's degree in business administration. He is employed as marketing director at C & S Acquisition in Indianapolis.

A reception was held Aug. 8 at Domino's Farms in Ann Arbor.

Following a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the newlyweds will make their home in Indianapolis.

You analyzed my co-worker's handwriting a while back with very accurate results.

L.V., Livonia

Today we are examining a very simplified handwriting style. This always alerts us to a high level of intelligence and sophistication. This is indeed a thinking/intuitive type young woman.

There are so many positives here I hardly know where to begin my analysis. So I'll start with her discipline which is well developed. She has learned the proper utilization of her time. She can quickly differentiate the essential from the superfluous. After she strips away non-essentials, she can get to the core of a situation or task, solving it in the most efficient manner. She also can initiate and act on her own ideas without encouragement from others.

Our writer is independent and self-directed. Her attention span is good and she can focus in with precision, organization and accuracy. Creativity and originality are freely expressed and emotions are kept under control. Seemingly, she prefers to work out thoughts in solitude and does not need assurances from others to apply herself to a task.

All of the above qualities make her a valuable employee. She is probably best suited to work on her own than as a team player.

There is an element of modesty in this handwriting. Although she is not one to seek center stage, she sometimes feels a lack of appreciation. At such times, love and assurances from those who mean most to her would be appreciated.

In both appearance and her work area, she is tidy, neat and clean. Her tastes probably run to the plain as opposed to the fancy. She appreciates functional equipment.

Our writer is somewhat complex and cannot be quickly read like "The Firm." It seems quite possible that in her past there is either a traumatic experience or deprivation.

I see two other major contradictions within our writer's makeup. This in itself is not surprising since we all have some of these. Carl Jung has said, "It is only where conflict exists does there exist also the possibility for change and a new developing order." Changes do not emerge from static situations in our lives.

With this thought in mind I would like to draw attention to the first area of conflict. Her desire and need to interrelate with others is matched by an equally strong desire to remain alone or isolated. The other conflict I see is her inhibition and fear of the future challenges in the face of one who has both the need and ability to handle challenges.

I hope by bringing these to her attention she will begin to put the wheels in motion and work through these limitations.

The tad of humor in her writing should be helpful in putting things in perspective.

I also want to comment on the printing she included. I suggest our writer has an art aptitude. Two different styles also suggest versatility. The experts say that "if printing is not used in a job situation or in art work, then it may be an effort at concealment."

Reliable research on printing is rather limited, so I leave the choice to her and hope she will apprise me of the meaning in her case.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And objective feedback is always welcome.

Clever card player keeps 'em guessing

By Woody Boyd

I first became acquainted with Perry Johnson of Farmington Hills a score or more so years ago when he was becoming a talent to reckon with at the table. In those days, his bidding was somewhat inventive and such incaution on occasion caused catastrophes. In defense of this style, Perry had an uncanny confidence in his presence and position at the table and the aggressive nature of his way succeeded because of a remarkable ability to play his pasteboards extremely well. Actually Perry just loved to bid and his methods took full advantage of preempts and modest high card holdings. Shaped hands were treated with similar regard if he felt they had extensive playing power and this sometimes left a partner and always his opponents trying to solve a first class Agatha Christie mystery about his holding. The dynamic world class Zia Mahmood champions this accelerated fast moving style that leaves everyone wondering, but one can't discredit the exceptional results which support his exciting techniques.

A couple of years ago Perry did something in my opinion that was truly remarkable. He sought out the expertise and experience of a world class champion to discipline and season him in expert play. Not that he hadn't already tasted such table behavior and academics from earlier days of national play, but now the desire was motivated to prove competence, not to gratify his psyche. I believe Steve Landen of Southfield, a superb player in his own right, may have helped Perry resolve that determination. As Steve recently said, "Perry's the type who must have purpose and his is to be very good at anything he has an interest in."

That champion was the affable Jeff Meckstroth and the development of their partnership has been unprecedented and rewarding for both. In the spring of '91, they came very close to capturing the prestigious Cavendish World Invitational Classic, one of the most grueling two-day pair games staged each year.

Then this spring everything fell in place in Pasadena and they ran away with the NADC Open Pairs, winning the event by better than three boards. That's somewhat like Count Fleet's 15-length victory at the '41 Belmont Stakes.

I asked Perry for one of his favorite hands and as you could expect, it is a witty bit of Johnson fancy which took a pinch of good luck and produced a pound of glory.

North made a fine call over West's pre-empt and kindled Perry's next call. Pre-empts crowd the bidding and gave N/S no room to explore. Under the circumstances four no trump, ace asking, was certainly the superior call as Perry's high cards were the quick taking type and some elevation above game in spades seemed reasonable.

It was luck that the missing high trumps were finessable. That West had the singleton diamond queen and Perry guessed it. That North had a singleton heart. Other than that, the hand was routine. Perry even said he would have been disappointed if he'd only won a dozen. Such confidence should be in the Smithsonian and it's one of the reasons he's a winner.

Choir takes music on the road

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Choir members from Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church in Plymouth do most of their singing close to home. That wasn't the case in June.

Parish Choir members traveled to Germany, Austria and France to sing at several cathedrals. About 45 singers from the 67-member choir went on the June 18-29 trip, along with others from the Plymouth parish and a few from churches in neighboring communities, including St. Genevieve and Our Lady of Victory.

"It was a very exhilarating experience," said Ray Maly of Salem Township, a choir member at Our Lady of Good Counsel and a Ford Motor Co. retiree. He and the others sang at several churches and at a concert hall in Germany.

Maly, a bass, noticed the "reverberation, or bounce, if you will, of our voices." There was a five- or six-second delay before the sound of their voices would return to the front of the large cathedrals.

"It was really a beautiful sound," he said.

The choir trip was in the works for two years, said Michele Johns, director of music at Our Lady of Good Counsel. A recording was sent to the music director at each church, along with a photo of the choir, and invitations to perform came back.

"Many choirs go to Europe now and they sing in different places," said Johns, who's on the music faculty at the University of Michigan, where she teaches organ and church music.

Rare opportunity

It's much more unusual for an American church choir to be invited to perform at the Salzburg Cathedral in Austria or the Strasbourg Cathedral in France.

Choir members rehearsed for some time prior to the trip, and used that music during services in Plymouth. In Europe, they sang sacred music, primarily in Latin, English and German.

Their performances included American folk music and spirituals, along with European music. Rehearsals didn't stop once they got to Europe.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Musical ambassadors: The group that traveled to Europe included Pat Pulkownik (left), Michele Johns and Ray Maly. Choir members visited Germany, Austria and France.

Choir members rehearsed for some time prior to the trip, and used that music during services in Plymouth. In Europe, they sang sacred music, primarily in Latin, English and German.

a local Realtor. Even on the buses, choir members perfected their singing.

She'd been apprehensive about singing in front of several thousand people. "You're not only representing your parish, you're representing Plymouth." Learning to sing in Latin took some effort.

"We forgot those words, and some never learned that," she said.

Pulkownik was particularly impressed singing Mozart's "Ave Verum" in Baden, a village near Vienna. The Austrian composer wrote that for the church there.

The group included more than 100 travelers. A few children and a number of spouses of choir members accompanied the musicians. Maly's wife and Pulkownik's husband, both Parish Choir members, traveled to Europe.

About one-third of the choir members couldn't go on the trip due to work or other commitments. Travelers pretty much paid their own way, Johns said, although private donations made it possible for some to attend and improved the sound of the choir.

Handbell Choir members also performed during the trip. European churches don't generally have handbell choirs, she said, and listeners enjoyed hearing those performances.

Johns particularly enjoyed the cultural exchange. "We received as much as we gave," she said.

Rehearsing and performing kept the group busy, but members found time to do some sightseeing. Many visited the site of the Dachau concentration camp.

"We had quite an experience with it," Maly said. A museum at the site included photos from the concentration camp, and he was surprised to find such openness.

That evening, choir members sang at a nearby concert hall. Maly met a man who'd grown up in the area and felt guilty about the Nazi atrocities.

"He said, 'We hope you people don't judge us on what you saw this afternoon.' He started to cry."

Pulkownik remembered seeing concentration camp pictures as a child at the end of World War II. She didn't particularly want to visit the Dachau site, but did and was struck by the similarities between Plymouth and that German community.

"We could be just like Dachau. It was a very sobering thing." The German people must live with the knowledge of their role in the Holocaust, she said.

World travelers

For Johns, the trip was her 18th visit to Europe. Pulkownik had also visited Europe previously, and Maly had been to the United Kingdom but not to the continent.

"Most of them had not traveled overseas," Johns said. Seeing the excitement of the first-time foreign travelers was rewarding for the others.

Many Europeans they met spoke English, although group members made an effort to communicate in the local language. Pulkownik was able to use her knowledge of French. The group had some German lessons before leaving, learning some common expressions.

"It's nice to see the smiles on the local people when you attempt to use their language too," Maly said.

Pulkownik, a longtime Plymouth resident who's worshipped at Our Lady of Good Counsel for decades, was particularly impressed with the cohesiveness that developed among choir members on the trip. That's true even though many have known each other for years, she said.

"The beauty of the area was very striking, and the architecture," Maly said. He was impressed with the sense of history in the Bavarian Alps and elsewhere.

"They revere the buildings so much," Johns said. Many had been damaged by World War II bombing, but even buildings put up to replace others had architectural styles from an earlier era.

Several group members took along video cameras. That tape will be edited and shown on Omnicom Cablevision and made available to parish members.

This fall, choir members will continue performing at Our Lady of Good Counsel. No trips to Europe are currently in the works, although some have talked about the possibility of visiting Italy to sing.

Members of the Baha'i community in metropolitan Detroit are lauding a Congressional resolution urging the government of Iran to "emancipate" the Baha'i community, the country's largest religious minority.

The resolution also emphasized that the U.S. government considers Iran's treatment of Baha'is as a "significant element" in any developing relationship between the two countries and condemned the execution of a Baha'i leader in Tehran's Evin Prison in mid-March.

The Iran's Islamic government has executed some 209 Baha'is and imprisoned thousands of others solely because of their religious beliefs, according to Baha'i spokeswoman Gloria Smith.

The Garden City resident welcomed the congressional action and urged continued international pressure to persuade Iran to extend internationally recognized religious rights to the Baha'i community.

"The murder of one of Iran's most prominent Baha'is, without even the pretense of formal charges or a trial, shows that Iranian Baha'is continue to be vulnerable despite the reported ascendancy of 'moderates' in Iran," Smith said.

The congressional debate was led by Reps. Lee Hamilton (D-Indiana), William Broomfield (R-Michigan), Ben Gilman (R-New York) and John Porter (R-Illinois), who expressed concern that the Iranian government continues to deny the Baha'i community legal recognition and the basic rights to organize, elect leaders, educate its youth and carry on the normal activities of a religious community, Smith said.

The current resolution is the fifth such congressional action regarding Iranian Baha'is adopted since 1982. More than 80 House members co-sponsored the measure, introduced by Rep. Wayne Owens (D-Utah). The U.S. Senate adopted a similar measure in January.

The Baha'i religion is one of the fastest growing religions in the world with more than five million followers. There are some 300,000 Baha'is in Iran and an estimated 110,000 adherents in the United States, according to Smith. The religion had its origins in Iran in the mid-19th century.

The Garden City Baha'i community sponsors "The Baha'i Faith," a television show seen on WGPR-TV, Channel 62, at 6:45 p.m. Sundays. For more information about the Baha'i faith, call the Baha'i Office of Public Information for Southeast Michigan at 442-2527.

Summer sky features northern lights

RAYMOND E. BULLOCK

Summer is an excellent time to look for the aurora borealis (northern lights). The aurora is caused by solar activity; charged particles, called ions, are emitted by sunspots and stream off into space. When the ions come into contact with the earth's magnetic field, they spiral down toward the north (and south) magnetic pole.

As they spiral along, they interact with the atmosphere and make it glow. While it isn't possible to predict a specific date or time to look, in summer the northern hemisphere is tilted toward the sun, giving the North Pole maximum solar exposure, and improving the chances of seeing the aurora. After July 22, the moon rises earlier in the morning each day, allowing for dark skies for aurora hunting after sunset.

The moon is in the constellation of Aries the ram on the morning of the 23rd. The star six degrees above the moon is named Hamal (ha MAL), which is Arabic for (not surprising) "the sheep." Hamal is also known as Alpha Arietis; it is the brightest star in Aries, hence it is named with the first letter in the Greek alphabet.

Four degrees to the right is Sheratan (Beta Arietis), a star of about the same brightness. Below and to the right of Sheratan is fainter Mesarthim (mee SAR tim, Gamma Arietis). Mesarthim is one of the best known double stars, having been discovered by Robert Hooke in 1664. Can you "split" this star and see both components with your telescope or binoculars?

Follow the moon through Taurus starting on the morning of the 24th when the moon is riding on the "back" of the bull. On the next morning the moon is four degrees below the Pleiades (PLEE a dees) star cluster (the bull's 'shoulder') and eight degrees above Aldebaran (al DEB a ran, the bull's red 'eye').

To the right of the moon is another red object that looks a lot like Aldebaran. This, however, is not a star; it's the red planet Mars.

Mars and Aldebaran are often confused because they have similar color and brightness. Mars, the moon and the Pleiades form a nice triangle on the 25th. To the left of the moon on the 26th are the two stars that mark the bull's horns.

The South Delta Aquarid (a QUARE id) meteor shower peaks during the pre-dawn hours of July 28. This shower is named for Aquarius, from which the meteors (shooting stars) appear to radiate. Aquarius will be rising in the east around midnight and is west of south at 5 a.m.

This is not an especially spectacular shower; a patient observer can expect to see about 20 meteors each hour on average. What's nice is there is no moon in the sky to scatter light and wash out the fainter meteors. Next month's Perseid shower, which has a much higher average, will be hampered by the full moon.

New moon is at 3:35 p.m. on July 29. The moon is located between the earth and the sun and is not visible. It returns to the evening sky as a thin crescent on the 31st.

Look due west 30 minutes after sunset. Seven degrees above the moon is Jupiter; 18 degrees to the right of the moon is Venus, which appears to have replaced Mercury. While officially an evening object, Venus will be difficult to see in July and won't become better placed for another three months.

An excellent aid for learning constellations and keeping up to date with the sky is the monthly 'Sky Calendar.' A one-year subscription is $6.00 and is available from the Abrams Planetarium, Michigan State University, East Lansing, 48824.

Raymond Bullock is former coordinator of the planetarium and observatory at the Cranbrook Institute of Science, Bloomfield Hills. He now works for a Troy company which specializes in laser displays and effects.

BOB SKLAR

Livonia artist to show top work in Southfield

Livonia artist Stan Hensch will show 35 of his best pieces at the Southfield Civic Center Gallery, on Evergreen, north of 10 Mile.

The one-man show of oils, collages, watercolors and mixed media will run July 27 to Aug. 7 in the Southfield Parks & Recreation Department.

Subject themes will include landscapes, portraits, abstracts, realism, still life and jazz. Hensch's work is priced from $150 to $500.

A selection of Hensch's handmade book jackets also will be on display.

An avid collector of great books, the retired art teacher has done a design, an author's portrait and lettering for more than 1,500 books. He specializes in biographies of writers, artists and historical figures.

Hensch makes the covers, he said, "from all different materials — cloth, wallpaper, sandpaper, watercolors, oils, acrylics, old photos, photo montages."

"I thought he was quite talented — in the structure of his paintings and in his colors," said Helen Gale, Southfield's cultural arts division programmer. "We try to be careful in choosing talent."

In all his work, Hensch stresses strong composition to achieve rhythm and harmony. "There are a lot of parallels in art and music. That's why I enjoy each so much."

Hensch looks to Henry David Thoreau for inspiration — "his philosophy of the individual being very important in society as against mass thinking, his identification with nature."

"He went to live in a little shack on Walden Pond for two years to experiment, to get away from the maddening crowd. His writings are very inspirational for artists and people who think independently."

Varied inspirations

A Visual Arts Association of Livonia member, Hensch has exhibited at the Detroit Institute of Arts, the John Herron Art Museum in Indianapolis, the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair and Livonia City Hall.

Art is "sort of a reason for being," Hensch said. "When I don't paint, I become guilty. I have this desire, this drive, to express myself."

Other inspirations range from music to art. "Jazz and classical music inspire me very much as do artists like French cubists Cezanne, a post-impressionist, and Braque, a contemporary Picasso," Hensch said.

Jazz is a special love. Hensch writes biographies of jazz greats and renders their portraits for Michigan Jazz Record Collectors newsletters. Some of his jazz drawings have appeared in International Association of Jazz Record Collectors journals.

Hensch enjoys working with texture — leaves, twigs, sandpaper, wallpaper, cloth — to create collages.

The 1978 collage, "The Odyssey of a Jazz Musician," salutes Lester "Prez" Young, who played tenor in the Count Basie Orchestra from 1939 to 1944.

Hensch mixes acrylics, photographs, records, even a whiskey bottle label, to capture Young's legendary career on canvas. Soft colors deftly frame this penetrating portrait of a sterling jazzman who died at 44 in 1959.

"Prez was a kind of seminal figure in the world of jazz," Hensch said. "His style — changing chords, bending notes — was so unique as an instrumentalist."

A longtime teacher

A near-lifelong love for drawing led Hensch to teaching.

"I didn't think becoming an artist would be a practical way to earn a living," said Hensch, who retired in 1982 after 30 years as an elementary school art teacher.

He considered studying art in Europe on a fellowship but decided that was a pipe dream.

"I liked children so went into art education," he said. "That worked out and I never regretted it. I enjoyed motivating kids to bring out their best, to take pride in their work."

Before coming to Livonia schools in 1959, Hensch taught in Manistee, Northville, Birmingham and Plymouth.

Hensch honed his artistry at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh and the Art Institute of Chicago. He received a master of fine arts degree from Eastern Michigan University in 1963.

Over the years, Hensch has sold about 30 pieces through commissions or shows. In 1963, the Michigan Education Association bought his oil, "Moonlit Alley," to hang in Lansing.

His newest work: a watercolor landscape of Hines Park. "It might be hard to recognize as Hines Park," Hensch said. "I've taken artistic liberties — flattening out the picture plane, doing it in two dimensions instead of three."

Bob Sklar is assistant managing editor for special projects.

Vintage cars reflect passion for painting

More than 500,000 art lovers are expected to descend on Ann Arbor this week for the largest fine art fair of its kind in the country. Farmington Hills artist Tom Hale is among the participants. He's in the State Street Area Art Fair.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Internationally recognized artist Tom Hale creates shiny red, black and silver Rolls Royces, Duesenbergs, Pierce-Arrows, Packards, Cords, Chryslers, Cadillacs and Fords that kindle the imagination.

To authentic detailing, Hale adds purely abstract lyrical shapes reflected in the chrome and highly polished surfaces to echo surroundings.

His cars, with their inherent beauty and excitement, bring to light Hale's lifelong love affair with the automobile.

Acrylic paintings featuring these classic collector's cars, as well as landscapes of old copper mining towns and romantic portrayals of once majestic trucks and cars now relegated to rust in abandon, will be shown by the Farmington Hills artist from Wednesday to Saturday, July 22-25, in booth 547M on Maynard at the State Street Art Fair in Ann Arbor.

"I really do love what I'm doing," Hale said in an interview in his new 700-square-foot, cedar and glass studio, designed and built by Brian Bunetta of The Dream Maker Housing Corp.

"I like playing with realism and abstraction in the same painting. I like to have the viewer use their imagination. It's all a reflection of what's behind."

Working at a six-foot oak drawing board, its surface colored by hundreds of paintings that have gone before, Hale talks about the how and why of his art.

"Initially, I want to grab the viewer to get them to the canvas."

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

After 25 years of working with clay, artist Barbara Gibson finds its versatile yet unpredictable essence new and exciting.

Wall sculptures, functional serving dishes and sculptural bowls by Gibson are on display in booth M411 on Main Street in the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans Summer Art Fair through Saturday in Ann Arbor.

"Clay is one of the most incredible materials. It bends to what you want to make and everyday you do it, it's still a surprise when you open the kiln," Gibson said in an interview at her Livonia studio.

Gibson, after earning a master's of fine arts degree from the University of Michigan in 1985, returns to her roots in clay — slip-casting to reduce weight and increase speed, creating sculptural bowls architectural in nature. Abstract designs, china-painted in silver, rim the edges.

"I'm a bowl person, not a vessel person. I'm happy-est when I'm doing bowls," Gibson said. "Out of all the disciplines of the arts, clay is the most technical. Slip-casting lets us build lightweight and fast. That's important when you do 70 shows a year."

Gibson also slip-casts a variety of forms that she assembles into mini wallhangings, popular with the Ann Arbor crowd.

"We do large wall sculptures, too. That's why we originally went back to slip-casting, to make them lighter so they could hang on the wall without any problems," Gibson said.

■ BLUE RIBBON

Livonia photographer Jim Morpheu won a blue ribbon at the 101st International Exposition of Professional Photography in Mt. Prospect, Ill.

His "Innocence" and more than 2,500 photographic works constituted the world's largest annual exhibit of professional photography. A panel of 70 eminent photographers judged the more than 6,000 entries.

In January, Morpheu won a blue ribbon for the photograph in the Detroit Professional Photographers Association competition in Royal Oak.

Owner of LaMoore Photography Studio in Livonia since 1981, Morpheu specializes in portrait and wedding photography.

■ NEWBURG NOTES

The Livonia Historical Commission is busy writing a teachers brochure that tells about spending a day at or just touring Newburg School at Greenmead Historical Village.

The brochure will be distributed to all first through sixth grade teachers at the start of the new school year.

"Most field trips are planned the first couple weeks of school. So we need to be ready to send the brochures out the minute school starts," said Sue Daniel, commission chairwoman.

The one-room schoolhouse dates back 131 years. A curriculum, circa 1910-20, has been written for each level.

Classes that spend the day dress in costume and learn from McGuffey's school readers amid the formality of an earlier era.

The school boasts a woodburning stove, old-fashioned desks with inkwells, Webster's blueback spellers, old dictionaries, a small library, a hand school bell and a vintage globe.

Studies include the 3 Rs as well as social studies, music and penmanship. Two 15-minute recesses feature period names.

When I do a painting, I use a variety of things to give them impact, color, drama, values, design and composition," he said.

In a chrome bumper on a 1956 Ford, Hale creates reflections of a red car, silhouettes of people standing in front of it and the treed landscape behind.

"I try to see how far I can push some of these concepts in the painting," Hale said.

Although born in New Jersey, Hale grew up in Michigan. He has drawn cars since age 7. A graduate of Art Center College of Design in Los Angeles, Hale worked 20 years as a styling designer for General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors.

Compelled by an inner necessity to communicate in paint his impressions of the automobile, Hale picked up a brush 18 years ago and hasn't been able to put it down, given the opportunities the highly polished chrome and sheet metal afford him. In 1985, he made the decision to pursue painting full-time.

Hale manipulates the acrylic medium with mastery, handling it like watercolor, from washes to opaque. Sun-splashed and viewed from an angle, Hale's classic cars, painted with a passion and a fascination for light and reflections, reveal a certain kind of power.

Hale gives credit to Micki, his wife of nearly 30 years:

"Nothing would happen without Micki's support, her unselfishness. That's so important to me because it gives me the freedom in the studio to be creative and explore. I want people to know it's not just Tom Hale that makes the art."

Hale uses a full palette of color in his paintings. "I don't paint out of a tube. I paint with the whole spectrum of colors. I mix it right on the palette."

As he spoke, Hale automatically picked up a recycled illustration board to use as a palette. After searching through dozens of paint tubes piled on the side of the drawing board, he chose a red, green and white.

Squeezing a dab of each onto the palette, Hale dipped a brush into a paint-covered jar holding water and began mixing colors on the palette to get the exact hue he was after. "I like blending the red and green. You get a marvelous gray, not the flatness you get from mixing black and white."

While working, Hale tries to put himself into the painting.

"It's an inherent thing for me to look at cars. I attend a lot of classic car shows all over the country. When I paint, I picture I'm looking at the car. I know a black car changes dramatically with the light. I try to put myself right there into the environment," he said.

"If I'm unsure of something, I'll make a sketch. Other paintings I can visualize it in my head; that gives me enough to go on."

Hale's artwork has gained the attention of auto company executives. Chrysler Corp. chairman Lee Iacocca recognized Hale's talent in 1988 when he presented three of his paintings to government officials and business leaders in China and Japan.

Return to roots: Clay artist Barbara Gibson has returned to slip-casting her larger sculptural pieces, reducing the weight of the pieces and increasing the speed of production.

"The mini wallhangings are our bestseller. They're a lot of fun. Each is like a collage. We've had people buy five to do a grouping if they have 20-foot walls."

Clay by Gibson is a family affair. The "we" Gibson refers to includes son Alan and daughter-in-law Lori.

"I'm excited because this is the second generation. My son was 15 when he began to help me. He's been my business partner for 10 years. I do 35 shows a year and Alan does 35 shows a year," Gibson said.

"Lori's been with us three years. We joke about when they were picking a wedding date, Lori said it had to be after Ann Arbor."

Clay is their life. The Gibsons breathe clay like others breathe air.

"It's a lifestyle. We live it seven days a week, 52 weeks a year. It's a hard life. It's very physical," Gibson said. "We're the last of the gypsies. It's total freedom."

Clay by Gibson operates two fully-equipped studios, a smaller one in Livonia and a 3,500-square-foot studio in Clewiston, Fla. They work 12 months a year. "We stay there all winter building up stock and doing shows," Gibson said.

Gibson constantly searches for new ideas and new markets. "We pick a new state every year, then do four or five shows there to see what the market is like," Gibson said.

"We do a lot of different work. I'm on to something new constantly. I constantly want to do new work. I keep trying different forms. I was working with the pastels, now I'm going with the more intense jewel colors, the teals, reds and blacks."

Gibson uses original glazes and commercial. After slip-casting objects in original plaster or rubber molds, Gibson paints the forms all white, then works on the surfaces. Before completion, a piece may be fired a total of four times.

"Commercial is wonderful because it's consistent. It's colorful," Gibson said, "and the colors remain uniform."

Gibson first became interested in clay after watching a Dearborn neighbor working in hobby ceramics 25 years ago. She began by pouring molds for the price of lessons. When she wanted a kiln and couldn't afford it, she made Charlie Brown figures.

After moving to Livonia 22 years ago, she instructed 125 students a week in the craft of slip-casting. From there, she "bought a potter's wheel to do real ceramics."

"I taught myself to throw. I sat there night after night, hour after hour," Gibson said.

After earning bachelor's and master's degrees, she studied welding at Washtenaw Community College. Through it all, she continued to do art fairs.

"It's the crafts person educating the consumer about art, not the galleries," Gibson said. "Now, it's professional people who have degrees doing the art fairs."

A member of the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans since 1981, this is Gibson's 10th year in the Summer Art Fair.

"Ann Arbor is our home show. We'll take both lines, the functional and sculptural," Gibson said.

Mixed media: Slip-cast sculptural bowls are kiln fired three or four times before completed. Rims, which are painted by Barbara Gibson, flash with abstract designs in silver. Removable rubber tubing adds contrast with black color and smooth texture.

Ann Arbor fairs boast local, national artists

SPECIAL WRITER

Grab some sensible shoes, sunglasses and slather on the sunscreen: you're about to experience fun, art and entertainment through Saturday at the largest celebration of arts in the country — the Ann Arbor Art Fairs.

You won't have to travel far to see the nearly 1,000 artists exhibiting paintings, drawings, printmaking, ceramics, sculpture, glass, fiber, photography, jewelry, 2-D and 3-D mixed media, metal and wood, or for people watching and food. The fairs started Wednesday. They feature 35 artists and artisans from the Observer & Eccentric area.

Three art fairs in all add festivity to Ann Arbor's streets during the dog days of July — the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, the State Street Area Art Fair and the Summer Art Fair sponsored by the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans.

The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair has delighted fair visitors for 33 years. This year, the juried features 197 artists, 63 of them new to the fair, from 36 states and Canada. Twenty artists working in a variety of media demonstrate their talents in locations throughout the fair.

Celebrating its 25th anniversary this year, the State Street Area Art Fair features 240 artists, 90 of them new. Organized by a group of State Street merchants, the juried fair takes place in the heart of the State Street Shopping District.

"We offer new artists a chance, new talent the opportunity, to exhibit their work at an art fair, in some cases for the first time," said Kathy Krick, State Street art fair director.

Screening prospective artists for innovative approaches, State Street's nine-person jury waded through 1,000 applications in 1992. "We started with 30 artists, and an antique fair the first couple of years. In 20 years, we've really come a long way," Krick said.

"This year, we have a real high response for the fiber arts. The wearable arts are really in demand."

Her one-of-a-kind contemporary clothing, created from textured, heavy tussah silk enhanced with stamped geometric patterns, semi-precious beads, antique buttons and handtwisted fringe, can be seen on musicians like Carly Simon.

"Ann Arbor is an interesting show to do, a cross-section of people attend, a lot of gallery owners. People come from all over the country," Wayne Gaffield said. "This year, I'll have big body-wrap shawls for someone who goes for drama."

The 22-year-old Summer Art Fair features 540 booths with 563 exhibiting artists, 30 new this year. Sponsored by the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, the fair includes an Imagination Booth on Liberty, between Ashley and Main, where families can create works of art for free.

"We're trying to encourage more community involvement. We have over 100 volunteers in our information booths this year," said Shary Brown, Summer Art Fair coordinator.

"People can find artists in their regular locations again this year. We pride ourselves on year after year being able to return to the same spot for a favorite artist."

The Ann Arbor Transportation Authority provides shuttle and trolley service during the fair from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Thursday and Friday and 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday. Visitors to the fair are encouraged to park free at Briarwood Mall and Pioneer High School and take the shuttle bus. Fares are $2 for adults ($1 each way). Children 7 and under ride free.

The Art Fair Trolley operates between the three fairs, charging 50 cents per passenger, or free with a shuttle ticket.

The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair is on S. and E. University and Church Street.

The State Street Art Fair lines N. University, Liberty, Maynard and William.

The Summer Art Fair is on State Street, between S. University and William; Liberty Street, from Ashley to Fifth; and Main Street, from William to Huron.

Ann Arbor Art Fairs hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, July 23-25.

Point-and-shoot cameras can help your creativity

NAGLER

Most of my photography columns deal with cameras where the photographer has control over aperture, shutter speed, depth-of-field, etc.

With interchangeable lenses and a full range of accessories, you might call these "take charge" cameras.

Well, for those of you who may not want to take charge and who want a simpler, easier to operate camera, consider the "point and shoot."

Point and shoot cameras can give you excellent results if you follow some simple guidelines and put a little thought into your shots.

To begin with, always hold your camera steady, tuck in your elbows and gently squeeze the shutter. Point and shoot cameras do not have a very fast shutter speed so it's important to get it steady.

Remember with point and shoot cameras, you're not looking through the picture-taking lens, so make sure your fingers are out of the way! This goes for camera straps, too. If your camera has a lens cap, make sure it has been removed.

All metering is done automatically on point and shoot cameras. So, for proper exposure, place more ground in the viewfinder so you won't underexpose. If you want to darken the sky and clouds for a more dramatic effect, then place more sky in the viewfinder.

The brighter sky will "call" for less exposure and a darker picture will result. Many point and shoots have flash that function when needed so it's easy to get proper exposure.

Another nice feature of point and shoot cameras is auto-load, auto-wind and auto-rewind after your last shot. You really can't go wrong.

Using good compositional rules applies to point and shoot cameras just as much as to larger more professional cameras.

For example, use framing techniques such as overhanging tree branches and lead-in lines such as a winding river or weathered fence. Use the "thirds" rule of subject placement so that the subject isn't smack in the middle of the viewfinder.

Remember that point and shoot cameras use small apertures so your pictures will almost always be sharp from front to back.

And, of course, like any camera, use vertical or horizontal formats depending on which best fits the subject.

Be creative with point and shoot cameras. With some thought, planning and an understanding of your camera's features, you can add many memorable shots to your photo album.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills.

Steady does it: Monte Nagler steadily held a point and shoot camera to produce this sharp and properly exposed photograph taken at Kensington Metro Park near Brighton.

Turn a small space into a garden oasis

BY ARLENE FUNKE
SPECIAL WRITER

Muriel Strebe hates weeds and bare, nondescript land. Come spring, the retired schoolteacher begins planting flowers and seeds along the parking lot at the Redford Township condominium where she lives.

"It's something to make it pretty," said Strebe, who used to teach at Coolidge Elementary School in Livonia. "It's a very small space, between where the cars are parked and the fence."

In Farmington, William and Lucille Burmeister have planted a small garden near their patio at Kensington Apartments. "We look for colors — nice things that go together," she said.

It's easy to have a showcase garden when one's yard is spacious. But beautiful flowers and dwarf trees can transform a small space into an oasis.

Balconies, front stoops, windowsills and tiny yards have possibilities.

"It's important to have a plan," said Janie Krause of Auburn Oaks Nursery in Rochester Hills. "Look at what your friends have. Bring pictures to the nursery."

Keep it simple, said Patricia Stephanoff, a master gardener and buyer at Harold Thomas Nursery in Livonia. Avoid extreme heights and don't overwhelm the space.

According to the experts, it's easier to purchase plants rather than relying on seeds. Books, magazines, catalogs, classes and nursery personnel can provide information.

Planting outdoors should not begin before mid-May, Stephanoff said.

Other advice? Research which varieties flourish in sun and which need shade.

Prepare the soil for proper drainage. Krause points out that areas near courtyards or parking lots may have a thin layer of soil with blacktop underneath.

Dwarf varieties are plentiful and especially attractive in small gardens, often accented with statuary.

Annuals must be planted each year. Perennials will automatically bloom for two years or more. A mixture will produce variety and continuous growth.

Stephanoff likes ornamental vegetables — kale and cabbage — which have pretty flowers and a long growing season.

"They aren't especially edible," Stephanoff said. "They look great."

Pest control is easy in small spaces. If your plants become infested with bugs, mix a tablespoon of dish soap in a gallon of water and spray onto the leaves.

Each year, the Burmeisters go to a nursery and buy flats of flowers to be planted around their patio. Last year, they received second prize in a gardening contest at their complex.

The Burmeisters favor petunias, which like sun. The couple also seeks flowers that don't grow very high.

"When you don't have a whole lot of space, you have to know where to put them (the flowers)," Lucille Burmeister said.

Strebe enjoys fresh-cut flowers in her home. She concentrates on varieties that are relatively inexpensive and don't require constant fussing.

Strebe's garden has tulips and daffodils in early spring. Other varieties come later and she has flowers right into fall. She's especially fond of pansies and marigolds.

Her planting area is limited to the space between the fence and the parking areas. Several of her neighbors have planted both flowers and vegetables.

Strebe cultivates several sections. Regular maintenance is required since the soil layer is thin and dries out quickly.

During trips to Kansas and Iowa, Strebe gathered seeds from pretty sunflowers and black-eyed Susans growing along roadways. She planted them in her garden and they have sprouted.

"I don't have a plan," Strebe said. "I just hate to see bare ground or weeds."

Musical salute: This 1978 collage, a tribute to Lester "Prez" Young, a tenor player for Count Basie during the World War II years, will be among the 35 pieces of artwork that artist Stan Hench (above) of Livonia will feature in a one-man show July 27 to Aug. 7 in the Southfield Parks & Recreation Department, on Evergreen, north of 10 Mile.

Fourteen of the finest automotive artists in the world have been invited to show their work at the 1992 Meadow Brook Invitational Automotive Art Show, part of the 14th annual Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook Hall, at Oakland University in Rochester Hills.

Their art will be on view at the art preview Friday, July 31, in the Shotwell-Gustafson Pavilion on the grounds of the Meadow Brook Estate. The artists will be on hand to meet and greet patrons. This year, each artist will present three pieces of art never before shown.

The Invitational Art Auction will take place Saturday, Aug. 1, directly preceding the elegant Concours Banquet. All the art in the show will be on display and for sale in a special tent on the Concours grounds Sunday, Aug. 2. For more information, call 370-3140.

The Concours d'Elegance is a major fund-raiser for the preservation of Meadow Brook Hall. It will include showings of international vintage autos, a fashion show and a luncheon.

Featured artist this year is Jay Koka of Toronto. Among the invited artists are two from Michigan: Tom Hale of Farmington Hills and Camilo Pardo of Grosse Pointe.

Other invited artists are Ken Eberts, John Francis Marsh, Hector Luis Bergandi, George Bartell, Dennis Brown and Larry Braun of California; Bill Neale of Texas; Stanley Wanless of Oregon; Ken Dallison of Ontario; Jim Finnell of New Mexico; and Randy Owens of Virginia.

Auction items will include Koka's original featured art as well as representative art from each invited artist.

In this year's featured art, Koka, an internationally acclaimed automotive artist, shows a 1937 Bugatti Atalante nestled under the semicircular library windows of the Meadow Brook mansion in early evening, with light filtering from the windows of the mansion.

The 40-by-55-inch acrylic was challenging because it required a kind of painstaking detail unusual for a large painting, Koka said. The work will be reproduced as the official poster of the 1992 Concours d'Elegance.

Judges for the art exhibit are Wayne K. Cherry, executive designer, General Motors design staff; Carl Olsen, transportation design chairman, Center for Creative Studies; and John J. Zolomij, curator, Raymond E. Holland Automotive Art Collection, Allentown, Pa.

Tailor furnishings to fit need: designer

Wonder why some homes seem to nurture intimate conversations while others encourage activity or leisure?

Part of the answer lies in how the furniture is built and designed, says internationally renowned designer M. Fillmore Harty of New Hampshire, a former Bloomfield Hills resident.

Gorman's will host Harty's return visit Friday-Saturday, Aug. 7-8, as he offers insights and advice on how to tailor environments to fit individual needs.

Harty's Preview designs are one of a kind; even the frame is customized for each piece. While some manufacturers work with a predetermined frame work, Harty designs each support structure to fit the piece.

The major fashion exploration at Preview is away from the casual overscaled forms and into multifunctional curvilinear sculptural form.

"Here multidepth seating may be used well as 'snuggle-in corners,' or built-in chaises that may also be used for dual intimate conversational seating," Harty said.

"We find that these curvilinear sectionals set themselves from the normal rectilinear character of most rooms and provide a far greater illusion of space. This character of form provides visual and functional uniqueness from all sides while living in the interior space as a large example of floating soft sculpture."

Harty also consults on industrial design projects and was previously with the Ford Motor Lincoln Interior Design Studio. The Dearborn native is a graduate of Pratt Institute in Brooklyn.

Harty has been active as a consultant industrial designer, the last 15 years of which have been devoted exclusively to furniture design.

Gorman's has carried the Preview line for years.

Founded in 1940, Gorman's integrates state-of-the-art contemporary art in its Southfield and traditional furnishings through its Drexel Heritage stores in Troy, Fairlane and Grand Rapids. It also operates Gorman's Clearance Center in Southfield and Gorman's Business Interiors in Southfield and Midland.

Replacement costs market value linked for coverage

AAA of Michigan, which insures 232,000 houses throughout the state, is the latest company to say no more to total replacement coverage for structures whose market values are substantially below replacement cost.

That means homeowners who live in areas with isolated sections of older houses may be out on a financial limb if their residences are destroyed by fire.

AAA's Market Value policy — launched this spring — is the company's only standard offering for houses whose selling price on today's market is less than 50 percent of what it would cost to rebuild the dwelling.

A house with a market value of $25,000 that would cost $50,000 or more to duplicate after a fire would be insured only for $25,000.

The policy would cover all theft and casualty losses up to that amount, said Nancy Cain, a AAA spokeswoman.

"There are a number of other companies, in fact, who have done this before we got involved," Cain said. "It (Market Value) cuts down premiums for everybody. To replace older homes, many with wooden floors, marble and lead glass, costs so much money."

AAA expects that only about 5 percent of its homeowners policies — most on older houses in urban areas — will be affected. Consumers can buy more coverage through policy riders, but at a hefty price.

Without insurance, homeowners are on their own when it comes to repairing damages from fire, theft and vandalism and for liability from injuries sustained on the premises.

Few, if any, houses in Oakland County communities like West Bloomfield, Rochester Hills, and Birmingham would be affected.

But homeowners in Redford, Farmington Hills, Livonia, Southfield and Westland — who live in isolated areas of older, smaller structures — could be impacted, said Jay Hughes, owner of Mayfair Realty in Livonia.

"I would think this could hurt some people," said Ruth Clevers, president of the Western Wayne Oakland Association of Realtors. "There are small pockets in the low price range in many areas."

State regulations allow insurers to sell market value policies. Other companies that do so include Allstate, Citizens and Transamerica, said Jean Carlson, a deputy commissioner with the state insurance bureau.

"A lot of people buy insurance because they have to have it for other things. Until they have a loss, they don't read the contracts. I can understand that a lot of people don't know about it or wouldn't know about it," Carlson said.

Policyholders should never hesitate to contact their agents with specific questions and concerns, Cain said.

The state insurance bureau will send a free publication for consumers — 1991 Guide to Homeowners and Renters Insurance — if requested through P.O. Box 30220, Lansing 48909.

Condo act allows for change in management companies

The members of our condominium association are preparing to take over control of the operation of the condominium from the developer. The present management company for the condominium association is one that was procured by the developer and is inter-related with the principals of the developer entity. We do not feel comfortable having this management company continue in managing the affairs of our condominium association, but the management contract provides that the condominium association will be responsible for paying the management fees for the duration of the contractual period, which is almost another year if we terminate the contract early. Any suggestions?

The Michigan Condominium Act expressly permits the board of directors of a condominium association to void a management contract with the developer or affiliates of the developer any time within 90 days after the transitional control date for any reason.

Thereafter, the contract may be voided on 30 days' notice "for cause." The board of directors should send a letter, by certified mail, requesting a return receipt, to the managing agent notifying it of the board of directors' intent to void and otherwise terminate the management contract on the date desired by the board of directors.

Again, this date must be within 90 days of the transitional control.

I bought three condominium units at a campground condominium in northern Michigan. The board of directors is telling me that my trailer is too large because it extends beyond the six-foot boundary setback requirements. I really enjoy staying at this campground, but I do not wish to downsize my trailer. Is there any way to resolve this problem?

Yes. If your condominium documents expressly permit the relocation of boundaries between adjoining condominium units, then you may wish to make written request to your board to amend the master deed to relocate your unit boundaries to enlarge the condominium unit to bring you in compliance with the setback restrictions. Typically, campground condominium documents allow for the relocation of boundaries between adjoining units. The Michigan Condominium Act allows for unit boundary relocation by recording an amendment to the master deed, provided the condominium documents expressly permit this, and mortgage approval on the affected condominium units is obtained.

NOW is the right time to Buy a Home!

Purchasing a home has always been a wise decision, but current market conditions are making it even more attractive to buy now.

EXCELLENT FINANCING IS AVAILABLE NOW

Interest rates are lower, and mortgage lenders are offering a wide variety of financing options. Low interest rates mean you can get more for your money.

- 30-year fixed mortgages are still available as well as many other financing alternatives.
- First time buyers are encouraged to purchase now through financing packages offering small down payments.

YOUR HOME IS YOUR BEST INVESTMENT

Purchasing a home is the best way to build a solid financial foundation. A home not only provides you with warmth and comfort, it also serves as a secure investment.

- Today, homes in the area continue to be a wise investment.
- Equity in your home can be used as collateral, thus providing you with additional financial security.
- Home ownership provides you with a sizable tax advantage because interest paid on mortgages is fully deductible. Property taxes can also be deducted.

Association formed

Architects & Planners and Carne Associates, both of Plymouth, has announced the association of the two companies to provide a wider spectrum of services. Programming, design, planning, construction documents and construction management services are provided through the association.

Principal architects of the firms are David E. Schaff, Scott L. Sherman, George J. Hartman and F. Erick Carne.

Drafting contest

The Michigan Society of Architects and the Mechanical Airhandling Contractors, a division of the Sheet Metal and Air Conditioning Contractors National Association, based in Troy, are sponsoring a drafting competition for all unlicensed architects, engineers and drafting personnel employed by a state architectural, architectural engineering or consulting engineering firm.

Three cash prizes will be awarded in each of the 10 categories for a working drawing that is either hand- or computer-generated. Contestants are limited to one entry. Deadline is Aug. 28. Winners will be announced in October. For information, call Sharon A. Havlick at SMACNA, 649-5450.

Attention grabber: The 62-foot high overstage structure and the adjacent three-story masonry tower that serves to mark the entrance in this early rendering of the high school is a popular architectural motif often used by Perkins & Will.

Architects' trademark on Troy High

Geometric clarity is central to the design of Troy High School by a Chicago architectural firm. Each major discipline — academic, art and physical education, will have its own area joined by a major corridor.

BY DALE NORTUP
SPECIAL WRITER

Mention the name of the Chicago architectural firm Perkins & Will to a local commercial building contractor and you would probably draw a blank stare. Contractors are often more interested in their own identity on a construction site sign than the name of the architect. Add further to the scenario that architects don't sign their work. That is, their name isn't etched on the cornerstone of a building they designed. But Perkins & Will has made an indelible imprint on American architecture, particularly with the many classroom buildings they have designed in the U.S.

Their most recent achievement is the new Troy High School. Undercurrents of Perkins & Will in Oakland County date back to 1938 when the firm (then called Perkins, Wheeler & Will) collaborated with Eliel Saarinen and son Eero on the design of the Crow Island School in Wilmette, Ill.

During one of their joint formative meetings at Cranbrook, one of the designers from PWW, John Boyce, recalled:

"It was very stimulating. You know how architects are — they like to doodle and scribble. I became sort of an architectural secretary and gathered up all the bits of paper. Soon after we returned to Chicago, beautiful elevations came down from Cranbrook. They were eight-scale but established the character of the building. . . ."

The school spearheaded the adaptation of functional design complementing elementary instruction and departing from the more architecturally traditional schools of working parts of a whole.

"We want it to be the most functional and beautiful school in the world," said Carlton Washburne, pioneering superintendent of the Winnetka school system. "We want it to crystallize in architecture the best of our educational thought and to house appropriately the best educational practices we can evolve."

Crow Island became the prototype for many more school projects planned by Perkins & Will and helped establish them as one of the major architectural firms in school design. Among the more recent are

Carrillo seeks niche in international building

Gabe Carrillo knows the language and customs. He has the training and work experience.

Now he's trying to establish a niche in the building industry representing construction interests of medium- to small-size companies here in Latin America and around the world.

Gabe Carrillo seeks new markets

Carrillo, president of CAZ International, runs a small office in Southfield. He's 53, lives in Farmington Hills, has been on his own for about a year and still is searching for that initial big break.

"The first year is filling forms and letting people know about yourself," he said. "The second year, you're starting to get business. If you make it five years, you're on your way."

"We started here to become, number one, a designer. That provides quick turnaround as far as fees are concerned," Carrillo said.

"Then we'll go to construction management. We have know how, technology, computer programming. Number three will be design/building. Number four, and that's what I'm really excited about, is program management."

"Quite honestly, there aren't many competitors to what I do," Carrillo said. "What we want to do is represent American companies setting up facilities in Latin America."

"We can go out there and brief them, deal with labor laws, hire an attorney, help decide where to locate a plant, how to locate a partner if they want, suppliers. I speak the language. The water doesn't bother me," he said with a smile.

Carrillo, born and raised in Colombia, earned degrees from National University in Colombia and Purdue University. He said he speaks Spanish, Italian and Portuguese and has a working knowledge of French.

He looks for clients through referrals from the Purdue Alumni Association, which has an active Latin American chapter, and through contacts with the World Bank.

"Networking, networking, networking is the key," Carrillo said. "You go to every invitation you get, trade shows. You go to Washington to find out what's going on overseas. I do that four or five times a year. I do a lot of networking with the Michigan Department of Commerce."

Carrillo, reluctant to talk specifics about job possibilities due to competitive pressures, said he expects to be involved in putting up 1,200 pre-fab housing units in a country he declined to identify.

He said he's also part of a consortium bidding on a major construction project in Mexico that could keep him busy for up to five years.

"I've had construction people, engineers, of all kinds working with me for 60 years," said H. Fred Campbell, owner of Campbell Development of Southfield. "He ranks among the very top as to ability, responsibility and trustworthiness."

Carrillo has built and renovated plants in Latin America for Coca Cola and designed and managed government projects in Saudi Arabia. He came to Michigan to take a job with a Japanese firm in 1988, then moved to Campbell for a couple of years before yearning to strike out on his own again.

"I just ran out of room at the top," said Carrillo, who's experienced major differences between working projects in the U.S. and developing countries.

"Availability of materials, quality and quantity, that's the big problem," he said. "Skilled labor is more readily available in the U.S. They have trained people, but not in quantities we have here. But they're willing to go that extra mile."

"You may find better engineers down there," Carrillo added. "Here, we tend to be specialized. Down there, they're multi-faceted. They have a broader engineering experience. A structural engineer has to know how a water pump works, repairing equipment, everything."

Interest rates fail to boost housing

(AP) — The recent Federal Reserve cuts in interest rates likely will provide a quick — but only modest — boost to a struggling housing industry, analysts say.

The Fed's cuts earlier this month in the discount rate and the federal funds rate are pushing mortgage rates down further and renewing confidence among home builders, whose industry is extremely interest-sensitive.

"Loan applications have jumped dramatically," said Warren Lasko, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association. But he said many of the new loans would be used to refinance existing mortgages.

Still, if people are refinancing at lower rates, they would have more money to spend on things other than mortgages. This could spur the economy since consumer spending represents two-thirds of the nation's economic activity.

Lasko also said the Fed action would spill over into the housing industry. But he added, "the effect on sales and starts will be tepid at best" because of continued high unemployment and its effect on consumer incomes and confidence.

David F. Seiders, an economist with the National Association of Home Builders, said the rate cuts will not produce any dramatic increase in housing activity because of "the lousy job market."

Unemployment surged to 7.8 percent in July, the highest level in more than eight years.

The Fed responded to the unemployment report by cutting the discount rate, which the Fed charges for loans to commercial banks, to 3 percent. It also dropped the federal funds rate, which banks charge each other for overnight loans, to 3.25 percent.

Mortgage rates declined after the Fed's action.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Co. reported Friday that for the week ending July 10, the rate had dropped to 8.13 percent, the lowest since July 20, 1973. That's down from the average 8.29 percent for a 30-year fixed-rate mortgage when the Fed acted.

Seiders said the housing sector will plod along at a level well below that of 1983 and 1984, the years following the 1981-82 recession.

Located in the Golden Corridor of Novi on Novi Rd. between 9 and 10 Mile Roads.

Cranbrook connection: The architectural firm of Perkins, Wheeler & Will collaborated with Eliel and Eero Saarinen on the design of Crow Island School in Willmette, Ill. It bears a similarity to Perkins & Will's new Troy High.

a high school in Santa Fe, N.M., an elementary school in El Paso, Texas, and now the 284,000-square-foot Troy High School.

Demographics provided change

According to Bill Brubaker, Perkins & Will vice chairman, changing demographics has initiated the need for new school construction across the country. But once the need has been established, the design of a new school plays a paramount role in the educational process. It's not simply a matter of supplying demand, but creating a physical plant that will best satisfy the educational needs of the students in a meaningful learning environment.

How then did Perkins & Will attempt to design a school that acts in the best interests of 1,600 students?

The site consists of 71 acres, 10 of which have been left undisturbed to create a balance between the high school and its natural surroundings. Within the 284,000-square-foot structure, a congruity is established in the floor plan with a major corridor axis serving as a connector for the minor axes that lead to three areas of instructional activity: academic, physical education and art.

Entering the high school on a circular driveway of Northfield Parkway, a fan-shaped, 750-seat theater with a semi-circular glass-enclosed lobby comes into view. The 62-foot high overstage structure make the theater the first notable part of the complex. Adjacent is a narrow rectangular three-story masonry tower that serves to mark the entrance of the high school. This is a popular architectural motif often used by Perkins & Will on their educational buildings and can be traced back to a similar tower at Crow Island.

Light story

The entrance vestibule, adjacent to the office, is immersed in light from clerestory windows and circular light wells. The high school takes full advantage of indirect light with similar window arrangements particularly in the library where the play of light from the clerestory windows highlights the curvilinear walls. The bookshelves in the library are illuminated with tall vertical windows, further enhancing the literary resources of the high school. Natural light is considered a source that uplifts the human experience and will play a role in the learning environment of Troy High School.

What is particularly noteworthy about the high school is the functional, geometric clarity of its architectural form that characterizes 20th century modern architecture. Such a quality has stylistic antecedents that date back not only to Crow Island School in Winnetka but earlier at the Bauhaus in Germany where function was at the core of their curriculum.

The interplay of exterior wall planes of the building are further defined with the horizontal lines of flat white brick. The building as a whole is an interplay of form and space in which this educational facility synergistically interacts with the surrounding community rather than being self-contained and distant.

The high school also physically symbolizes the many directions that education must pursue, open to new ideas as well as projecting into the 21st century.

Designers instill humor in furniture

The trade show at the Javits Center, now in its fourth year, has become a magnet for furniture makers working on the edge and for small design-oriented companies.

For the bedroom, Aris Paganakis created a bed, vanity mirror, chest and bedside table of maple with cherry trim and red edging of aniline dye. Oddly rounded, they look as if they were reflections in a fun-house mirror. No wonder. They were inspired by the illustrations of Dr. Seuss, says Paganakis, a woodworker in Easton, Pa.

My designs begin with a whimsical approach," he says. Out of the corner of your eye, you can see my bombe chest dance. To add fun, I drench my work in color."

Jonathan and Nicole Goldman of GoldmanArts in Boston turned slipcovers for folding chairs into fanciful creatures vaguely resembling dinosaurs. Pointy scales of ripstop nylon run down the back of their Hairy Chair Covers." The covers come in bright colors with contrasting scales."

Their Rose Table" is a conversation piece. The top of a small rectangular table is a window box filled with red fabric roses. When an electric fan hidden below is off, the flowers droop, as if parched. When it is on, they perk up and sway gently in the breeze.

Jeff Crewe and Jane Corbus of Amazing Wind Machines Inc., in Littleton, Mass., create wind sculptures. These droll figures with propeller mechanism and moving parts, are powered indoors by a fan or outdoors by the wind. Designs include an oarsman in a boat, a snapping lobster and a dog wagging its tail. Each piece measures from 15 to 27 inches long and comes with a display stand.

The furniture Harry Segil designs looks like makeovers from the Salvation Army. That from Amy and Christopher Clavelli actually is reclaimed and refurbished cast-offs.

Segil, of Harry Art Furniture and Design of Los Angeles, spiffs up his overstuffed seating and chrome dinette sets with lavish fabrics, bright colors and shiny finishes. The styles were borrowed from the 1920s through the 1950s. The colors, though, are definitely the '90s.

A lot of people are afraid of color," says Segil, a darling of some of the Hollywood film crowd. But I use it to transform funky old designs and make them contemporary."

The Clavellis, of Clavelli Designs in Brooklyn, N.Y., scour second-hand shops, garage sales, even dumps, then bring their finds home and repaint them in fanciful colors and patterns.

We work on pieces like those which many designers in their 30s grew up with," says Christopher Clavelli, an actor turned furniture painter. My mother threw them out, my father hates them. We're giving them a second life by painting them."

The Clavellis also will redo privately-owned pieces. In fact, they prefer it because finding old furniture isn't easy.

We just got a large order for chairs, and I don't have enough and don't know where I'll find more," Clavelli says.

The Shakers are a quite sober sect, but there's a quiet humor in the Shaker-like cabinets and tables designed by Marcus Santoro and Janice Melone of Santoro Melone, New Haven, Conn. The maple pieces are simplicity itself. The complexity is in the surface treatment — usually a collage on the exterior finish or hidden in a drawer.

A nice thing about humor is that it has no age limit. At 86, Eva Zeisel is most likely the oldest designer in the show.

Camelot fit for a king

Whether you call the exterior passage a covered porch or a veranda, the Camelot has a long one. It begins in front of the utility room, goes past the dining room, living room, entryway, and den before wrapping around the master bathroom and terminating at the deck next to the master suite.

The interior is also spacious. Amenities in the master suite include a skylight, an elevated spa, twin basins, a walk-in closet, and an additional vanity outside of the bathroom.

A vaulted den or office is the only other room to the left of the entryway. Family living areas are at the center of the home.

There's room for plants to flourish in the garden window in front of the kitchen sink. A lengthy-raised eating bar with a vegetable sink provides partial separation between the kitchen and family room. Ovens, cooktop and dishwasher are all built in. If desired, a desk could be tucked into the alcove between the ovens and the refrigerator. A small powder room is nearby, close to the nook as well as the entryway.

Fireplaces warm the family room and the bayed living room.

Each of the three additional bedrooms have walk-in closets. The guest room has a private bath. Each of the other two bedrooms has its own basin and share access to a separately enclosed tub and toilet.

For a study plan of the Camelot (332-120), send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307, Eugene, Or. 97402, including the plan name and number.
