CSX claims city is railroading it

The CSX railroad company is suing the city of Plymouth over fines they're being forced to pay when slow-moving trains are ticketed. The railroad company said that in 1990 more than 571 citations were issued, resulting in fines of more than $127,410.

For years, the city has been issuing tickets when trains take more than five minutes to clear a crossing.

Now, CSX Transportation Inc. is fighting back.

The railroad company filed suit last month in U.S. District Court, claiming that the city ordinance by which tickets are written is illegal.

The suit, filed July 14 before Judge George LaPlata, asks the court to stop the city from writing more tickets.

CSX also seeks "further relief as this court deems appropriate," according to the court complaint.

City attorney Ron Lowe declined comment on the case, as the city has yet to file its response in court.

The railroad company maintains the city issues an average of eight citations each week to CSX trains.

"In the past four years, Plymouth has received substantial revenues as a result of its enforcement of the Plymouth ordinance," the court complaint alleges.

To comply with that ordinance, CSX "would have to spend over $1 million to improve the tracks in and around Plymouth and add of upgrade required equipment, to permit the safe, smooth, timely and efficient interstate operation of its trains," the complaint continues.

The railroad company said that in 1990 more than 571 citations were issued, resulting in fines of more than $127,410.

In 1991, the railroad paid more than $59,950 in fines, according to the court complaint.

The company maintains that during any 24 hour-period, 25 to 46 freight trains pass through Plymouth, "includ-

Parking rules chill business other restaurant owners Plymouth needs, yet shuns.

It's the latest chapter in the saga over the city's too-strict parking ordinance. Most everyone wants it eased, but nobody can quite figure out how to do it.

After fighting with city officials for months — over parking the city required him to provide even though scores of downtown parking spaces sit vacant — restaurateur George Juncay in recent weeks gave up.

He'll probably go to Northville, Livonia or Canton, said his Realtor, Pat Pulkownik — just like four or five other restaurant owners she's tried to bring here.

All are turned away by parking requirements that say restaurants must provide sufficient on-site parking or pay tens of thousands of dollars for "parking credits."

Last fall when businesses in downtown Plymouth were closing, some said the city could retain business by easing strict parking requirements.

A city parking committee headed by city commissioner Doug Miller has studied the problem, and Miller said change is sorely needed.

But the problem facing those who want to change parking requirements is this: How do you satisfy business owners who've already paid thousands of dollars to the city for parking credits?

Supervisor recount hangs on county decision

A ruling on whether to recount the Aug. 4 Plymouth Township Republican primary could come sometime this week or possibly Monday.

That's according to the elections division of the Wayne County clerk's office.

Charles McIlhargey, the township building director who lost to Kathleen Keen-McCarthy in the township supervisor race by 21 votes, requested the recount on Monday.

McIlhargey has said he's seeking the recount to satisfy campaign workers.

Once the Plymouth Township clerk notifies the county clerk that a recount is being requested, the county board of canvassers meets.

They determine if the reason given for requesting the recount is valid.

If a recount is approved, the county performs it, and has 30 days to complete it, according to the county elections office.

The board of canvassers is scheduled to meet on Monday to certify results in Aug. 4 primaries around the county, and could choose to rule on a Plymouth Township primary recount then.

An elections office worker said the board of canvassers could also choose to convene before Monday to rule on the request for a recount.

School district delays sale of land to developer

Plymouth Township residents upset about the Plymouth-Canton school board's plans to sell a wooded parcel adjacent to Plymouth Township Park received some good news at Monday's board of education meeting.

The district is putting on hold an offer from The Selective Group of Farmington Hills, a development company interested in building a subdivision on the property off McClumpha between Ann Arbor Trail and North Territorial.

The board agreed to delay the sale until October, giving the township — which has right of first refusal — time to appraise the land and perhaps come up with the funding necessary to make an offer. The 17-acre site, initially appraised at $850,000, contains a climax beech and maple forest that several homeowners' groups want preserved as a nature and wildlife area.

Also at the board meeting, superintendent John

Hoben announced that financial problems will force the school to make administrative changes.

"We are going to have to do more with less, and it will require some changes with administrative structuring as well as our overall structure," said Hoben.

"We are trying to achieve more coordination and cooperation using site-based decision making."

One benefit will be to further empower teachers, said Richard Egli, community relations director. "This will bring basic communication from the classroom to the principal to the administration, rather than have communication as it typically goes from administration to the principals to the classroom," he said.

Details will be ironed out at an administrative council meeting next week. One of the changes will involve directors of instruction working on a K-12 basis, rather than at elementary and secondary levels. "This way there will be a team of people working across elementary and secondary lines, which increases communication," said Egli. "Middle school people will have a better understanding of what elementary people are doing, and vice versa."

ing all trains traveling interstate from Toledo, Ohio to Saginaw, and those traveling interstate from Kentucky and West Virginia to Michigan power plants.

The trains most often cited originate from Kentucky and West Virginia, according to CSX. They deliver coal to the Consumer Power Co. in West Olive, Mich.

The complaint alleges, "The same CSXT train is often cited more than once, receiving citations for each grade crossing it took more than five minutes to cross on a single journey."

"CSXT cannot comply with the Plymouth ordinance unless CSXT increases the speed of its trains over Plymouth rail grade crossings or shortens the length of its trains before entering Plymouth," the complaint continues.

But because of the geography of the area, type of track used, and federal regulations governing the make-up of trains, CSX can't increase train speed or how trains are made up, the company claims.

CSX alleges that the city ordinance violates the supremacy clause of the U.S. Constitution "because it is pre-empted by acts of the U.S. Congress," places an undue burden on interstate commerce in violation of the Constitution, and violates the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Act.

Old-fashioned and built to stay that way

Anyone who says time travel is impossible never walked into Stuart Hoops' house.

Hoops' family goes back more than 160 years in Canton, and he still has most of their things, including a vernacular Queen Anne house built in 1904 when the Civil War was less deeply buried in history as World War II is today.

Hoops has filled the 12-room brick house with antiques dating back to 1830 when his great-great-grandfather, William Smith, built a log cabin on the east side of Sheldon Road south of Palmer.

"I like stuff that has history to it," Hoops said. "I like stuff that's interesting."

Recently, Hoops applied to the Canton Historic District Commission to designate his house a historic landmark. If approved, the Smith-Hoops house will join 11 other old township houses with historic designations.

Built for $2,058.76, the house (assessed at $64,000 today) incorporates a wealth of material from the family's previous abode that stood for 70 years on the other side of Sheldon Road. Many of the oak and hard maple joists, for example, were salvaged from the older house.

An upstairs door, taken from the other house, still bears two teasing, amatory jackknife carvings that link Hoops' grandmother, Ruby Smith, with two alleged suitors. The carvings, Hoops said, are likely the handiwork of one of Ruby's three sisters.

The basement walls are two feet thick and made of field stones bonded together with mortar. Many of the red bricks that comprise the outside walls are handmade.

Since there was no access to electricity on Sheldon Road in 1904, gas lines were built into the walls to feed lamps in every room. The lamps are still there, but Hoops lights the house now with electricity that was finally put in in 1924.

The rooms are so rife with antique furniture, old style drapes, wallpaper, photographs and such that it's almost a shock when one spies some new-fangled gadget like a stereo or television set. "I find (new things) boring," Hoops said.

Indeed, the Copper Clad Malleable Range Co. oven in the kitchen, circa 1920, is a cast-iron wood-burning stove that's still used to stir up eggs in the morning gathered from the 100 chickens kept outside.

The dining room is comfortably occupied by grandmother Ruby's dining room table and chairs. The parlor seems a haven for old chairs, including one dating back to the 1870s when it was a birthday present for great-great-grandfather George Smith Sr.

From the vantage point of George's chair, one can see his engraved silver coffin plate, circa 1857, hanging on the wall in a handsome frame.

On the living room wall is a painting of the old family dog, Bob the St. Bernard, who died before 1920. A radio from the 1930s still works, as does a Westinghouse fan from the '40s.

Historic house: Stuart Hoops, whose ancestors have lived in Canton since 1830, stands in front of his vernacular Queen Anne house. Hoops has asked the township to declare the 88-year-old house an historic landmark.

Hoops began collecting antiques 31 years ago at the age of 9. He started with kerosene lamps in the same way that a space shuttle pilot might have begun with paper airplanes. "I grew up around these old houses and farms," Hoops said, "and I always liked this stuff."

Even outside, the two-acre Hoops estate (once more than 160 acres in extent) feels more like a period movie set than a 1990s domicile. What with the brick smokehouse, the former ice house, the three-hole outhouse (no longer used), the garden, the chickens and the five honking geese, you feel like putting a piece of hay in your mouth and spiking your vocabulary with words like dang and shucks.

The country life is not entirely idyllic, however, considering the varmints that regularly ravage Hoops' garden. "We have so many woodchucks now and they eat everything," he said. Even the occasional chicken who doesn't seek the sanctuary of the hen house in the evening is usually eaten by one predator or another.

Hoops thinks the urbanization of Canton over the last several years is to blame, driving the wildlife as it does away from developed areas.

Ergo, this walking dictionary of things historic plans to leave town eventually and set his course for rurality of a greater degree.

"When I got the house (in 1979) I knew what was going to happen in Canton," he said. "I knew I wasn't going to stay forever."

Long, tough probe seen for fatal plane crash

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

National Transportation Safety Board representatives investigating the airplane crash in northern Michigan that killed Tamara Behiry, 36, of Plymouth Township, her 2-year-old son Brenton Perry, and Livonia pilot Robert Lee Shirley say it will take six to nine months to determine the cause of the crash.

An autopsy on Shirley, 67, was incomplete, and NTSB air safety investigator Bob Vallaster could not say whether the pilot may have suffered a heart attack. It also wasn't known whether a mechanical malfunction may have occurred. But Vallaster said evidence at the site revealed "no mechanical discrepancies, other than considerable plane damage."

Pilots who flew with Shirley out of Canton's Mettetal Airport said the Cessna 172 he was flying was in good working order. The four-seater was one of several planes owned by the Mettetal-based Safety Flying Club to which Shirley belonged, said Livonia pilot Tom Ranta.

"The club's plane had nothing mechanically wrong. They were in A-1 shape, as far as I know," said Ranta.

Pilot in good health

Shirley had no known health problems, Ranta added.

He was in good health. I understand he was a jogger. He was slim; there was no fat on that man. He had medical clearance to fly."

Problems with the weather and/or fuel may have played a role in the accident, Vallaster, who pegged the flight's departure time from Mettetal at about 9 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 1, and the crash two hours later at 11 p.m., said local residents reported heavy rainfall at the time the aircraft was heard overhead. Wind speeds were minimal at 10 knots.

"Two witnesses who heard the plane both recounted that the engine sounded loud and that the aircraft sounded low as it overflew their houses. Both had the apprehension it might strike their houses," said Vallaster.

The witnesses have cabins on the Manistee River, about half a mile from the crash site in a heavily wooded area used by nearby Camp Grayling for military training.

No fuel smell

Major Jerry Foehl, public affairs officer at Camp Grayling, said rescuers who reached the site five days after the crash did not notice any strong odor of fuel surrounding the wreckage, distributed over 400 feet of jackpines.

"Not noticing fuel is probably normal. It would have evaporated, or maybe there wasn't much. If I were to speculate, I think it (low fuel) may have played a part in the whole thing," said Foehl.

Vallaster said plane damage was so severe it was impossible to determine how much fuel remained in the tanks. No radio communication or distress calls were received from the Cessna.

"Both tanks were substantially opened up. Fuel lines all over the aircraft were wrenched apart as the aircraft broke up," said Vallaster. Shirley and Behiry, who were flying to Manistique in the Upper Peninsula to surprise Behiry's father, planned to refuel in Pellston, but perhaps changed their minds and decided to refuel sooner in Grayling, Foehl said. That may have been the case, as the plane was headed south when it crashed under power.

Vallaster also heard accounts that Manistique was the ultimate destination. "I also heard Pellston was the intended refueling stop. But they never got as far as what might have been an intermediate stop," he said.

Child may have survived

Foehl said it appears both adults found still strapped into the front seats in a what little remained of the cabin — died upon impact.

It's thought that Behiry's son survived the impact. "It's real speculative, but implications would indicate to me the boy was loose from the aircraft and probably did not die on impact. He had no visible injuries, with the exception of an indentation on one side to his thigh, which might have indicated a broken bone." The boy, who was dead when the wreckage was found Saturday, could have died of dehydration, exposure or internal injuries.

Foehl said he'd learned of no problems concerning Shirley's health or flying abilities. "For a person in good condition, 67 is not old," he said.

The wreckage indicated the plane hit hard, under power. "There's no doubt about that," said Foehl. "It didn't cruise to a stop. The engine and battery were propelled about 50 yards. By this time, the aircraft had come apart, hitting the first tree. Then from there, the rest of the aircraft bunched up or rolled up."

The crash location was first observed by a civilian pilot who radioed Camp Grayling after flying over the remote area, said Foehl. "He was still airborne when he called our operations people. We had an aircraft that led the rescuers into the site by helicopter."

North Flight Ambulance workers, DNR officials and Crawford County sheriff's deputies were able to drive to within 300 yards of the site in Frederic Township on two-track roads.

Final word on the cause of the crash will come from the Washington-based NTSB board, said Vallaster. "Technically, they are the only ones empowered to determine probable cause," he said.

Somber mood

The mood at Mettetal is somber this week, said Ranta, who chatted with Shirley at the airport the Tuesday before he died. "It kind of hurts. You hear something like that, and you just don't feel like flying. You kind of think about it for a few days."

Canton Foundation eyes $100,000 from fund drive

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

With its endowment fund virtually drained, the Canton Community Foundation has announced a drive to raise $100,000 in three weeks.

A group called TEAM 100, which has 14 members, is supposed to raise the money between Sept. 2 and 23 beginning with a breakfast at Palermo's and ending with a foundation birthday breakfast.

"We're definitely going to have to work very hard to reach this goal," said foundation president Phyllis Redfern. "It's not going to be easy."

The foundation's director, Bill Joyner, is more confident. "It's do-able. It's attainable, and it will happen," he said. "I know the people of Canton are good-hearted."

According to a foundation press release, 100 community leaders will be part of TEAM 100, but Redfern said they might not get that many. "I'm not sure if we'll have 100, but we'll have quite a few."

Indeed, they've shared a fair number of heavy hitters. Among the 14 are Township Supervisor Tom Yack, clerk Loren Bennett, realtor Joe Van Esley, attorney Bruce Patterson and the reverend Bill Myers.

■ 'It's do-able. It's attainable, and it will happen. I know the people of Canton are good-hearted.'

Bill Joyner foundation director

Although specific tactics haven't been set yet, Redfern said the TEAM will ask just about every resident and business in Canton for money. "We're trying to hit everybody one way or another," she said. "The key is letting people in the community know that we need people to help people."

Joyner said that the Foundation, in its three-year existence, has never tried to raise more than $60,000 at one time. "But our programs are so large now that we can't function with less than that amount ($100,000)."

For example, a counseling service that began in January turned out to be so costly that CCF had to clean out its endowment fund, or savings account, to cover the bills.

The fund had $10,000 in it at the beginning of the year, but the $2,000/month cost of the counseling service whittled the fund to a pitance.

Although the counseling service cost is down to $1,500/month now, Joyner expects it to rise again when school starts. Also, the service's $250/month rent, paid by Van Esley until the end of 1992, may have to be picked up by CCF after Dec. 31.

The idea behind the endowment fund is to have enough money in it to run CCF's programs off the interest and dividends generated.

Joyner estimated that the board of directors will put up to $20,000 of TEAM 100's collection into the endowment fund. He also expects to have $50,000 in the fund by the end of 1992. But CCF needs $1 million in the fund "before it will be of any value to us," Joyner said.

However, Joyner promised that CCF will have that amount before he steps down as director. "Before I leave here we will have it," he said. "The best way this community can get rid of me is to give me your money."

Other members of TEAM 100 are Bob Paciocco, Richard Duwel, Mitch Howard, Jack Demmer, Norm Cepela, Pat Haggerty and Redfern.

Taken was baseball equipment in a bag and tools from the truck bed, according to the report. The theft was discovered at 8:30 a.m. Police closed the case for lack of evidence or suspects.

"I can't tell you the number of businesses that come into this town, restaurants, and nice ones that would love to be in downtown Plymouth," said Pulkownik, who owns The Patrician Group Inc.

"The Coney Island is just one guy who was determined enough to take it all the way through," she said.

"The rest say it's not worth the trouble, it's too expensive to open up a business here," Pulkownik said.

"Frankly, I've stopped talking to restaurants," she said.

"Sometimes, you get people with various proposals and they blame a lot on the parking situation," said planning commission chairman David Schaff.

Still, he said, city officials need to ease parking requirements. The planning commission held a public hearing Wednesday to hear from business people on the matter.

Pulkownik, also president of the chamber of commerce, said she understands that the city can't just waive parking credits.

"There are a lot of people who have paid for parking credits, who have a vested interest. They look at their property as more valuable because they paid for the parking," she said.

Pulkownik said city officials studying changes in the parking ordinance shouldn't be faulted for moving deliberately.

"I think there are well-intentioned people on the parking committee doing research trying to come up with an equitable solution. You better be sure you have done this equitably and very fairly."

City officials say they have to come up with something to please downtown business owners who've already paid thousands of dollars for parking credits, or the city could face lawsuits.

"They're going to have to have Solomon's wisdom to come up with something that is equitable for both parties," Pulkownik said.

Cops try to raise public awareness of police role

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW

Although you can't earn college credit for it, the Canton police are taking reservations for a free 16-hour "Citizens Police Academy" course beginning Sept. 12.

The course is designed to give Canton residents 21 or older insight into the duties and responsibilities of police officers. It includes police station tours, a weapons demonstration and presentations by the Special Operations Team, narcotics unit and evidence technicians. The students will meet from 8 a.m. to noon on four consecutive Saturdays at the Canton police station. Call 397-5344 to sign up.

Why do the police want to do this?

"Our feeling is that this is part of what we try to do," said police chief John Santomauro, "to bring an awareness of what these officers are doing out on the street, some of the frustrations the officers deal with, some of the stress."

According to police department spokeswoman Tammie Colling, "Surveys have been undertaken by some major cities and the findings were unsettling on just how naive many people are about both the role of the police officer."

The first citizens police academy was founded in 1985 by the Orlando police department. "The response to the academy was positive and the results powerful," Colling said.

"The citizens did not become 'junior police officers,' but rather the program fostered feelings of 'us' as opposed to the typical 'we-they' attitude."

Santomauro said that all over the country "there's a fascination with what police people do," but television and movies "tend to overstate some of the things we do."

Doing more with less

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

With 38 fewer staffers, the state Civil Rights Department resolved more discrimination cases than it received last year.

And with three fewer offices, it cut processing time from 14.6 months to 12.1. How?

"Case management. A strategic plan," replied Laura Reyes Kopack, the Livonia lawyer who co-chairs the eight-member panel.

Kopack, vice president of a Detroit Edison subsidiary, joined the CRC a year ago when Gov. John Engler named six new members. The panel named her co-chair with Arthur Lombard, Grosse Pointe Farms resident and professor at the Detroit College of Law. Another area resident on the CRC is Harry G. Hutchison IV, Lathrup Village resident who teaches law and economics in the University of Detroit Law School.

Engler was able to clean house because his predecessor, Democrat James Blanchard, had held up all appointments in 1990 so they wouldn't become election year issues.

A Spanish-speaking politico, Kopack since 1973 has risen through the ranks of nationalities groups to reach not only her leadership role in civil rights but to become first vice-chair of the Michigan Republican Party and a national convention delegate.

9.2 percent cut

Like most operating departments of the state, Civil Rights took a 9.2 percent budget cut last year that forced it to eliminate 38 of its 226 jobs and close three of its 11 offices — Pontiac, Jackson and the Upper Peninsula.

Yet director John Roy Castillo was "upbeat" about the result. "In fiscal 1991, the Enforcement Bureau resolved a total of 5,900 complaints. The total caseload has been reduced to 5,482 or 374 fewer complaints than reported in fiscal 1990."

Some 1,169 claimants got cash or annualized awards of $4.3 million, an average of $3,700.

Biggest case: The CRC ordered Pinckney Community Schools to pay gym teacher Douglas Rutherford $28,000 for his sex discrimination complaint. Because he was laid off before a female with less seniority, Rutherford collected more than $20,000 in lost pay and $8,000 for mental distress.

'More with less'

Kopack said she and Lombard made "doing more with less" their top priority. Items:

- The intake process of complaints has been computerized. Each of the two main offices (Lansing and Detroit) is on-line with eight regional offices. "A case that was filed in Lansing could be located in Detroit. It can be brought up on a computer in Detroit. It saves travel time and expense in assigning staff," Kopack said.

- If an employer is "stonewalling" a case — failing to provide information to the CRD staff — the department now enters default judgments. "It's similar to a default judgment in court," said Kopack.

Job complaints top agency's caseload

Michigan's CRC, created by the 1963 Constitution, is the first state civil rights agency in the nation.

It enforces constitutional bans on discrimination on the bases of religion, race, color and national origin, and two state laws which prohibit bias on the bases of age, sex, marital status, height, weight, arrest record and handicap.

Bad times bring more complaints. "There is a relationship," said director Castillo, "between the economy and affirmative hiring, the economy and the spirit of cooperation, and the economy and the backlash from desperate people who have nowhere to turn."

Of the 5,463 complaints filed last year:

- 92 percent involved job discrimination.
- 3 percent housing.
- 2 percent public accommodations.

"Women continue to file more than half of all new complaints (54 percent)," said enforcement bureau director Edward J. Chastang Jr.

"Blacks of both sexes filed 61 percent of the total. Whites filed 34 percent; Hispanics, 4 percent; Asians, 0.3 percent; and Indians 0.5 percent."

Race was cited in 37 percent of complaints; sex in 12.2 percent; age, 9 percent; physical handicap, 7 percent; national origin, 4 percent; and retaliation, 3 percent.

Couple asks boycott for fired restaurant manager

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER
STAFF WRITER

A Livonia couple believes the fired manager of the Bill Knapp's restaurant at Laurel Park was "doing the right thing" by removing some items from the menu Thursday in the wake of a chainwide food poisoning incident.

Mike and Mary Camillieri would like to see the Battle Creek-based chain reinstate longtime general manager Jerry Thompson.

"This is totally unfair. He was protecting the city of Livonia and the people eating in the restaurant," Mary Camillieri said Monday.

"I hope people boycott that restaurant and then maybe they'll bring him back."

No complaints were made about food served at the restaurant, on South Laurel Park at Six Mile or a second Livonia location on Plymouth Road, according to company officials and the Michigan Department of Health.

Camillieri said the couple dines frequently at the family restaurant. They made Thompson's acquaintance four years ago when the restaurant agreed to donate syrup for her son's sixth grade pancake breakfast, she said.

Camillieri said she learned of the incident from a television news report Friday night.

Thompson, 32, of South Lyon said he has received more than 100 phone calls of support from customers since he was let go Friday.

'This is totally unfair. He was protecting the city of Livonia and the people eating in the restaurant.'

He had worked for Bill Knapp's for 15 years at six or seven locations, Thompson said. He was manager of the S. Laurel Park restaurant since it opened six years ago.

"I see what I did as being overly cautious. I think they see it as 'this guy has this food in there, we could be sued.'"

Specifically, Thompson said he ordered an assistant manager to stop serving and put aside possibly contaminated cold foods after receiving a company directive via fax machine shortly before 9 p.m.

Thompson wasn't working Thursday but an assistant manager called him at home concerning the directive.

The directive, he said, made no mention of holding back the items but suggested employees "please throw out the food after closing" at 11 p.m.

Instead of throwing it out, Thompson said he sealed the food

Friday morning, planning to send it to the health department for inspection, then went out and spent $400 replacing it.

A supervisor came to the restaurant and dismissed him before the lunch crowd arrived, he said.

He plans to contact a lawyer regarding the firing, he said.

A company executive confirmed the manager's dismissal was related to the food-poisoning incident but declined to discuss details of the firing.

"The discharge is connected, but I don't know that it's really relevant to any kind of a news story," said Richard Higgins, Bill Knapp's board chairman and chief executive officer.

The health department on Friday, identified the contaminant as shigella, a non life-threatening infection.

The health department reported the contaminated items included salads and other uncooked foods kept refrigerated. The items are believed to have come from a central food preparation facility that services 37 Michigan restaurants and several in other states.

Shigella infections are characterized by diarrhea, crampy abdominal pain and fever.

There have been 15 food poisoning complaints dating back to July 24 from Bill Knapp's outlets in Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Holland and Battle Creek, Higgins said.

Some people were hospitalized. All recovered.

United Way sets $63.6 million goal for 1992 campaign

United Way of Southeastern Michigan Board of Directors approved a goal recently of $63.6 million for the 1992 United Way Torch Drive campaign.

Last year's United Way Torch Drive raised $62,723,591 for health and human services in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

"With increasing unemployment and cuts in both state and federal funding to many agencies, more people are relying on United Way agencies than ever before," said Kenneth Whipple, United Way board chairman. Whipple is president, Ford Financial Services Group, Ford Motor Company.

"While the traditional needs of the community — such as helping the mentally and physically handicapped and feeding the hungry — continue to grow, newer problems, including Alzheimer's Disease, AIDS, and homelessness, have been added."

Leading this year's campaign effort is 1992 United Way Torch Drive general chair James B. Fitzpatrick, vice president, communications and marketing, General Motors Corp.

"Metro Detroiters have always pulled together in difficult times and while $63.6 million represents a considerable challenge, the success of the 1992 campaign is more vital than ever before," Fitzpatrick said.

"We need everyone's support this year to meet our community's growing needs."

man, president and CEO, Detroit Edison Co.; Jerome B. York, executive vice president of finance and CFO, Chrysler Corp.; and Stanley A. Seneker, executive vice president and chief financial officer, Ford Motor Co.

Vice chair for loaned executives is Beth McDermott, sales vice president, AT&T, Inc.; vice chair for Audit is Edward M. Parks, managing partner, Plante & Moran.

Nature columnist shows off some really 'wild' flowers

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

It's the season for wildflowers, so I thought I would prepare you for some really "wild" flowers. These flowers are derived from legitimate white wildflowers known as (starting top left counter-clockwise) indian-pipe, native to Northern Hemisphere forest; snakeroot, a number of plants reputed to be remedies for snakebites; turtlehead, North American plants with showy tubular flowers; ox-eye daisy, a sunflowerlike perennial plant and partridgeberry, trailing North American evergreen with red berries. Names in nature can be fun with a little imagination.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

Handicapped help

Better accommodations for handicapped was the focus of a seminar Aug. 6 at Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth. Presenters included Chris Abbey, vice president of the Computability Corp.; Timothy Koury, safety director of Blue Water Plastics; and Martha Russell, president of Martha Russell and Associates.

The purpose of the seminar was to encourage the use of job accommodations for those with physical disabilities.

Balloon fest

About 50 of the best balloonists in the Midwest and the nation will be airborne Aug. 22 and 23 at Domino's Farms in Ann Arbor Township.

The hot air balloons will be launched in waves both evenings from a helicopter pad in the middle of the 300-acre setting of farm land, museums and World Corporate Headquarters for Domino's Farms.

The event is being staged by Scott Lorenz, long time organizer of the Plymouth balloon festival.

NAACP meeting

The 56th Annual Michigan State Conference of the NAACP is scheduled for Sept. 11-13 at the Royce Hotel, formerly the airport Hilton, in Romulus.

Registration, $90, includes admission to all programs and seven meals. Youth and student rates are also available. For more information, call the NAACP-Inkster Branch, event host, at 595-3550.

David Marks, 11, of Plymouth, has won first prize in the 1992 National Cued Speech Association writing contest.

The contest was nationwide, for deaf children who use cued speech to communicate. David won in the 11-14 age group category. Prizes were closed captioning decoders for television.

Waterford Dam:
When the Waterford Dam failed, Waterford Lake and Six Mile and Northville roads drained, and vegetation grew in its place. Sediment traveled downstream, causing silt buildup in tributaries as well as Phoenix Lake.

Silt filling lake as dam is debated

Construction of a new dam at Lake Phoenix could help solve a pollution problem, but the state Department of Natural Resources and a local developer are at odds over how much water it should be required to hold.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

To the dismay of those who value clean water, healthy fish and wildlife in the Middle Rouge, time has done little to solve the problems plaguing Phoenix Lake and the other waterways in Edward Hines Park.

Ken Carr of Dearborn remembers fishing at Phoenix Lake in Plymouth Township in 1969. "I remember as a kid catching blue gill and then throwing them on the grill. They smelled like turpentine and ignited when I tried cooking them," said Carr, who still catches fish in Phoenix Lake but wouldn't eat one, based on what DNR officials tell him about the risk involved.

Walker Van Dyke, 17, represents a new generation of residents discouraged about the environmental abuse.

Van Dyke's house backs up to the lake, and he used to enjoy rowing in the tree-lined, man-made impoundment. No longer.

Van Dyke, a graduate of Catholic

Central High School, a year-and-a-half ago erected a sign that says "HELP! — SAVE THE LAKE" on an island created by silt. The sediment has been collecting in the contaminated impoundment since the Waterford Dam west of Northville Road and north of Six Mile failed.

"I put the sign up because I wanted people to be aware the lake was filling up with silt because of the dam on Six Mile that broke, but nothing's happened," said Van Dyke, adding that the lake near Northville Road, Hines Drive and Five Mile is so shallow that it probably will take only a year for it to completely fill up with sediment.

"I was hoping that something would come of it, but nothing has. I'm more mad that nothing has happened between the community and the bureaucracy. We are supposed to work together," he said.

Gari Sipple's backyard in Northville Township borders a tributary of Phoenix Lake that used to be deep and wide enough for canoeing. Silt build-up has made boating impossible, and driven wildlife away, says Sipple, who's worked on the problem with local officials but met with little luck thus far.

Dam is privately owned

The Jonna Cos. of Bloomfield Hills own the 70-year-old dam as well as about 39 surrounding acres zoned multiple residential in Northville Township.

MESC program offers pool of temporary summer help

Summer is finally here. And for many it is time to tackle fix-up and clean-up projects around their homes or businesses.

"For those who may not have the time or ability for these projects, we have a ready and inexpensive solution," F. Robert Edwards, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC), said. "By phoning MESC at (313) 876-JOBS (876-5627), we can quickly supply any Detroit metropolitan area business or homeowner with temporary workers who are prepared and willing to help them get the job done."

SERVICES

"Through our casual labor program, we can offer home and business owners real labor savers," Edwards explained. "The workers we refer can be a great help in completing odd jobs that need doing but don't require a great deal of specialized skill."

The types of jobs for which MESC can refer temporary workers include: painting, doing yard and garden work, window washing, cleaning homes and offices, stocking shelves, taking inventory and doing general labor.

"We screen the workers before we refer them to a potential employer," Edwards said, "to ensure they have the skills required for the job."

MESC's Job Service does not charge a fee to either the employer or the worker. Employers pay the workers directly at a recommended rate of $5 an hour for at least four hours work.

In addition to finding temporary workers for homes and businesses, Job Service can also help employers find qualified professional, managerial, technical, skilled and unskilled workers for their job openings.

The company would like to repair the dam, but is being required by the state to build a dam capable of handling a 200-year rain levels, as opposed to 100-year rain levels, said Frank Jonna, executive vice president of Jonna Cos.

"We feel it's a plus for our property, and would like to see it back for the residents," said Jonna. "We are ready to cooperate with whatever it takes to try and replace the dam."

The firm has asked repeatedly for help from the county and state, "but there's been no offer of assistance of any kind," he said.

While the cost of rebuilding the dam hasn't been pinpointed, it's a major factor, he added.

"The current dam is designed for a 100-year spillway. The state would like to see the capacity of any new dam designed to a 200-year capacity. The biggest difference is that we could possibly repair the existing dam to meet the 100-year requirement. A dam with 200-year storm capacity means we have to construct a new one."

How much would that cost?
"Pick a number," he said.
"Whatever dams are worth. We hope to try to put some estimates on it, but at this time have not come up with any numbers. It would have a very straining affect on trying to develop the property. It puts a big burden on it."

Tough state regulations

John Dexter, chief of DNR's dam safety unit, said the Waterford Dam must meet 200-year storm capacity under a new state law.

"The hazard potential of this dam is listed as high. That's why the greater flood discharge," said Dexter. "This dam was found to be able to likely cause the loss of life, should it fail, based on the park downstream."

The difference in cost of building a 100-year versus a 200-year dam isn't that great, added Dexter.

"My own personal feeling is that it's not going to change the cost very much. It's not a super requirement in my eyes."

Whether the DNR has the authority to enforce a dam owner to rebuild is open to debate, Dexter said. "If it was a matter of severe damage being caused downstream, possibly we would have the power to require the owner to take major measures to correct the problem."

"In this particular instance, it pretty well failed, and there wasn't much you could do there to prevent damages."

In the past, property owners have sued dam owners in Michigan over failed dams and lost.

"On several occasions, other dam owners have been sued by surrounding property owners to replace the dam and it's been found that the dam owner didn't have responsibility for maintaining the dam to benefit other people."

"You can be wishy-washy and go both ways on this question, but that's the ultimate answer. The facts change every day."

Van Dyke doesn't care who's to blame for the situation.

"Right now, everyone is pointing fingers," he said. "I'm saying, let's forget who's at fault and just do something. This is one of our best lakes."

Recount needed Supervisor race under cloud

Both Charles McIlhargey and Kathleen Keen-McCarthy deserve a recount in the Plymouth Township supervisor race, which McCarthy won by 21 votes. A recount will clear the air for McCarthy, if she is deemed the winner. The same goes for McIlhargey. Such a narrow victory gives the critics in the community ammunition for the next four years.

McIlhargey has requested the recount, and we urge county and local officials to cooperate. It's important to Plymouth Township residents to have a supervisor who clearly won the race. That's because the current supervisor, Gerald Law, was appointed to the job when former supervisor Maurice Breen left the job to become a county commissioner.

Added to that political stew is the furor caused by allegations over spending and that the WTUA sewer project was a bed of nepotism.

There's also the long-simmering Mettetal Airport issue. It was a legacy left by Breen. He wanted Plymouth Township to seek federal money to buy it and turn it into a municipal airport. The proposal sparked sharp public opposition.

But there's another question lingering from the election. And that's the number of spoiled ballots. There were about 750 of them in Plymouth Township. That's a lot of votes. It means that about 750 people went to the polls to try to become part of the political process and were

■ Every vote cast should count. It's the job of township, county and city clerks to ensure that nobody is cut out of the voting system.

We understand how it happened. Folks just don't understand that they can either vote in the Republican or Democratic primary, not both. Such a system angers some, but it would be chaos to allow people to vote in both primary elections.

Election officials said many of the ballots were spoiled by voters who attempted to cross over. That, however, shouldn't be blamed on voters alone. Election officials share a portion of the blame. A system should be devised to make voters better aware that crossover votes spoil a ballot.

Every vote cast should count. It's the job of township, county and city clerks to ensure that nobody is cut out of the voting system.

We also urge Plymouth Township to move quickly on a recount so that McCarthy or McIlhargey, if it turns out, will have a clear mandate to govern. The township for too long has had a cloud over it.

It's time to clear the air. A recount will do that.

Board oversteps its authority

If Michigan politics has one sacred cow, it's the right of voters to make final decisions on laws. "The people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and to enact and reject laws," says our state constitution.

So we were more than a little offended when the state Board of Canvassers refused on July 23 to certify for the ballot the "Lower Rates Now" auto insurance proposal.

No one suggested there were too few signatures. Backers needed 205,000 and collected 634,000.

Rather, for the first time in history, the Board of Canvassers majority conjured up a new requirement. "I think people signed a petition thinking they were going to get a rollback. I don't think that's going to happen; I think just the contrary is going to happen," said Democratic board member Michael Pyne. Democrat Bernice Shields agreed.

With Republican Gail Torreano voting yes and Republican Jim Alexander having the grace to abstain because of an apparent conflict of interest, the canvassers stabbed the sacred cow and rejected the petitions two to one.

Fairer minds on the state Supreme Court promptly slapped down the canvassers and directed them to certify the proposal for legislative consideration and, if need be, the ballot.

Whether the "Lower Rates Now" proposal will or won't work is up to voters to decide. The proposal by AAA Michigan, the auto insurer, will be flyspecked by its enemies and gilded by its friends in the three months ahead. So be it.

It's not up to an appointive board in Lansing to pontificate on the plan's merits.

What's worse, Pyne and Shields have confirmed the public's fear that a signature-counting body is playing partisan politics with our sacred cow. Obviously, partisan influence was used on the two Democratic canvassers.

So extremely partisan was the Pyne-Shields position that even the office of Attorney General Frank Kelley, a Democrat, said the canvassers lacked authority to address the merits of the proposal.

We also label as bunk and hokum the notion that the "Lower Rates Now" plan is tainted because an insurer advanced it.

The Michigan Constitution places no limits on whether a corporation, union, church, charity or witches coven drafts a proposal. It requires only that petitions be signed by registered voters equal to 8 percent of the previous vote for governor.

And the notion that Big Business is exploiting the constitution is just plain wrong. AAA Michigan isn't owned by oil sheiks or Wall Street. It is owned by its 1.5 million members, who, at our last inspection, were local human beings.

At this point we make no recommendation on whether the "Lower Rates Now" proposal is beefsteak or b.s. It deserves to be considered by the state Legislature.

And if, as usual, legislators are too deadlocked to decide, then it deserves to be considered by the three million voters who will troop to the polls Nov. 3.

Recycling success

Thank you for the excellent coverage of Plymouth's new curbside trash collection and recycling program. The headline was misleading and didn't reflect the contents of the article.

We are pleased with the high level of participation of residents in the new program. We are happy with the fact that about 40 percent of households have participated in recycling by using The Recycling Bag TM in the first two weeks. Based on our experience in other communities, we expect more than 70 percent of Plymouth households to be using what we believe is the most convenient household recycling service available.

As with any new service, a handful of participants have questions. However, only 1 percent of those participating prepared their materials improperly. This reflects the City of Plymouth's success in educating residents prior to the start of the program, and the residents' commitment to making the program successful.

Many residents were surprised that they would actually put The Recycling Bag on the curb along with trash bags. This is understandable. Ours may be the only recycling service in the state that collects trash and recyclables at the same time and with the same truck. Your story on what takes place at our Solid Waste Processing and Recycling Facility helps explain how the system works. As time goes by and people become used to the new service, we expect the questions to disappear.

Our "co-collection" system increases efficiency and ultimately lowers costs for both trash collection and recycling. In the process, the hundreds-of-thousands of pounds we recycle every week in our $3.5 million facility helps conserve natural resources and reduce the use of landfills for waste disposal. Ultimately, it's a "win-win" situation.

Lack of reform worries folks

With the surprising results of last week's Michigan primary elections still rattling around, it's important to sort out the individual trees from the overall pattern of the forest.

Tree No. 1: Incumbents, especially those considered to be out of touch or corrupt, are out.

Few observers expected longtime western Michigan Congressman Guy Vander Jagt, chair of the GOP Congressional Committee, to lose a primary. But earlier this year, more than 100 Republican leaders had said he no longer represented their interests. They turned out to be right.

Incumbent township officials in Plymouth and Northville who got tangled up in insider dealing through the Western Townships Utilities Authority scandal got bounced.

Tree No. 2: Never, never underestimate the power of the anti-abortion folks in Republican primary elections.

It now seems clear that Joe Knollenberg sneaked by his better-known opponents, David Honigman and Alice Gilbert, in the 11th Congressional District GOP primary thanks to a grass-roots campaign in which many of the more than 1,000 volunteers were abortion foes.

This is only the latest indication of the power of the anti-abortion movement in the Republican Party. For further evidence, just watch the state GOP convention Aug. 29.

Tree No. 3: Parties that allow their primary elections to be heavily swayed by single-issue activists risk defeat in the general election.

Dominated by the liberal turnout in its presidential primaries, the national Democratic Party for the last 12 years has insisted on nominating left-of-center candidates for president. This year, Bill Clinton may have a chance because he is in the most conservative wing of his party and, hence, closer to the views of most Americans than most Democratic activists.

In the 11th Congressional District of Oakland and Wayne counties, Knollenberg may yet beat Democratic nominee Walter Briggs in November. But you can bet hard money now that a lot of upscale, pro-choice Republican voters will give Briggs' pro-choice position a close look before they vote. Even though the district is at least 55 percent Republican, it could be a close election because of Knollenberg's ties to the anti-abortion movement.

The basic outline of the forest, however, is largely unchanged by the primary results.

Our political system is still in crisis, infested by careerist professional politicians who make it their life's work to seek and hold elective office. This new class is sustained by single-interest groups which, through political action committees (PACs), bribe candidates to their position through campaign contributions.

Each of these special interest groups holds a blocking veto against policy which threatens its particular interest. The results are two: political gridlock and a widespread feeling among ordinary folks that "politicians aren't interested in folks like me."

Political reform — a part-time Legislature to eliminate the careerists and public financing for campaigns to reduce the weight of special interest bribery — is still needed.

Frankly, I doubt that we'll find many candidates talking openly about this once the campaign heats up. But they should.

RTL endorsements select congressional winners

We in the media had it wrong. We thought the backlash against "negative" media advertising decided the 1992 primaries. It's our bias because we deal in printed words and broadcast images.

Two factors decided most of the contested congressional races Aug. 4:

• Endorsements by Right to Life, the anti-abortion group.

• Grass roots politicking — phone calls to favorably inclined voters and knocking on doors, much of it by RTL.

Your immediate response, I know, will be to cite the apparent knockout blows David Honigman and Alice Gilbert dealt each other in the 11th Congressional District's messy Republican primary. Not so fast! Let's take the big races in numerical order:

1. Both parties fielded three candidates in our northernmost district. RTL endorsed Democrat Bart Stupak and Republican Philip Ruppe. Both won.

5. Again both parties fielded three candidates. RTL endorsed Democrat James Barcia of Bay City and Republican Keith Muxlow of Brown City. Both won. In the state Senate, Barcia is an obscure backbencher while one of his opponents, John Cherry, is minority floor leader. Conventional wisdom would have made Cherry an easy winner.

7. In a four-way GOP primary, John Schwarz, one of the state Senate's most respected members, figured to win. Sen. Nick Smith of Addison is pretty much a maverick and some days a nagging joke. I surveyed state convention delegates and found two Schwarz buttons for every Smith button. But RTL didn't like the way Schwarz, who considers himself pro-life, backed away from the "informed consent" abortion bill. RTL endorsed Smith, who won.

8. In another four-way GOP contest, RTL backed state Rep. Margaret O'Connor, a lone wolf running on a shoestring. She ran a strong second behind Brighton's Dick Chrysler and ahead of high-roller Sanford Pensler. An RTL lobbyist wasn't entirely unhappy: "Very frankly he (Chrysler) was an endorseable candidate."

9. Still another four-way race in Genesee, Lapeer and Oakland counties was won by RTL-endorsed Megan O'Neill, who was barely articulate compared to the likes of attorneys Michael Baliah and Chuck Forrest.

10. State Sen. Doug Carl had RTL's endorsement in this Macomb County district and won the GOP primary two to one.

11. Joe Knollenberg used retiring Congressman Bill Broomfield's endorsement in his skimpy advertising, but RTL members placed 13,000 calls on Knollenberg's behalf, and he won.

13. State Sen. Robert Geake of Northville credited his victory in a six-way race to grass roots campaigning. "I am the only candidate who campaigned hard in every community in the district," he said. Yes, and he also had RTL's endorsement.

RTL lobbyist Ed Rivet is careful not to claim too much credit. "We have no idea how well each local group worked. We just gave them our list (of phone numbers)," he said.

RTL's success in state legislative races is harder to gauge because local issues often overshadowed the abortion question, but Rivet estimated the success rate at two to one "where we went head-to-head with NOW or MARAL" (National Organization of Women and Michigan Abortion Rights Action League).

Pro-choice folks will assert at this point that winning a primary isn't the same as winning the general election, which of course is correct. My purpose is not to tout RTL doctrine but to point out that grass-roots politicking can be more important than media blitz and blitz. And RTL certainly played the game effectively.

Corrections: Fax prices in Houston are $1 to $2 a page, not $12. A typographical error dropped a hyphen in a recent column. And a reader was kind enough to inform me that Macy's, though not as tall as the old Detroit Hudson's, still ranks as largest in square footage.

Most memorable Olympians are those who try

As a former member of a U.S. team, I feel a nagging need to inflict upon you one last Olympic commentary. It had been my own obsessive longtime intent to win Olympic gold and break the world 400-meter record. While I came closer to both goals than most who tried, my peak years as a world-ranked runner were between Olympics.

In 1956, I was injured in a semifinal 400-meter race in national competition. While I outran the 1956 Olympic 400 champ 3 out of 3 the following year in times faster than he had run winning the gold medal, the ultimate joy of doing this in the Olympics maddeningly eluded me.

Having devoted a lot of time to planning for my teaching and comparatively little to my track training, I missed qualifying for the national quarterfinals by a tantalizing 10th of a second in a 1960 comeback. By 1964, I had been paid to coach, which in those innocent days barred me from further competition.

I indulge myself in this mixture of boasting and belly-aching as validation of my international credentials to nominate my "Most Memorable Athlete" at Barcelona.

Derek Redmond of Great Britain came close when, after ripping a hamstring in a 400-meter semifinal, he limped to the finish line crying and leaning on his fence-leaping father. So did Ron Kartaugh, who showed up for his 200-meter medley race wearing a black swim suit and the straw hat his father had worn when he suffered a fatal heart attack during the opening ceremonies.

Janet Evans, the multi-gold-medal swimmer of the 1988 Games, came very close — particularly when the press pronounced her a failure for winning "only" silver in her initial race and she then bounced back to win gold.

Jaded journalists are nothing new. Former NCAA All-American Milt Plum was written off as a "bum" when he quarterbacked the Lions. The same sportswriter applied the same insult to several top boxing contenders and to a winning miler who failed to break four minutes. Local reporters tut-tutted when I brought home silver instead of gold for NCAA and NAU photo-finish, quarter-miles, and I still wince at the memory of a one-minute, 11-second 600-yard race I ran being described as "good but not gaudy." (The world record then was just under 1:10.)

Since the purpose of the Olympics isn't to win but to take part, my Most-Memorable Olympic Athlete Award goes to Mirsada Buric, the dauntless Bosnian who braved sniper fire to continue her training runs through the deserted streets of Sarajevo. Although eliminated in the 3,000-meter semifinals, she fulfilled her Olympian resolution to "take part" — a resolution which even a revolution couldn't prevent.

P.S. Regarding my predictions of victory for Detroit-born 400-meter champ Quincy Watts and our world-record-breaking U.S. 1,600-meter relay team: Never question the clairvoyance of Telford's Telescope!

National champs

The Michigan Elite boys under-19 soccer team, coached by Wayne Worosz, dominated the action as it rolled to the championship of the AAU National Junior Olympics tournament last week in Rochester, Minn.

Elite surrendered the first goal in its first match, against Tulsa (Okla.) Aug. 5, then won the next five games by a 29-0 score.

In the championship match, a 6-0 win over Bismarck, Dave Nordwall (Livonia Stevenson) scored twice and, with the score 4-0, keeper Matt Stabile (Stevenson) switched to a field position and scored twice. Other goals were netted by Matt Lividini (Riverview Gabriel Richard) and Dominic Vella (Livonia Churchill).

Vella, who scored 10 goals in the eight-team tournament, was named MVP. He and Lividini, who had 11 goals, were joined by Wayne Worosz (Redford Catholic Central), Mike Presley (Plymouth Canton) and Jason Seitz on the all-tournament team.

Four other team members are from Stevenson: Adam and Ryan Carriere, Bill Lanspeary and Tim Lampi.

Vardar won the U-17 boys AAU title. All-tournament players from Vardar included Mike Wtowiak (Canton), Mike Giese (Farmington Hills) and Tom Baker (Plymouth Salem).

A Finesse finish

Finesse Shampoo, an 18-and-under girls softball team, traveled to the World Tournament in Lexington, S.C. to do battle with 50 other teams and came home with a fourth-place finish.

Two of Finesse's players were named to the all-tournament team: Lisa Selmi from Redford Thurston (.500 batting average, two triples, one homer and eight runs batted in in the tournament); and Cindi Lehnis of Plymouth and Dearborn Divine Child (.591). Kristy Walker (.412) of Livonia Ladywood also played for Finesse.

Bud Light jolts Marauders

The reign of the Redford Marauders as the best club in the Great Lakes Men's Soccer League ended Sunday, when they were upended in the championship match by Flint Bud Light. The defending champs had finished atop the league during the regular season.

About all the Redford Marauders got out of Sunday was a suntan.

The Marauders weren't pleased with the way they played soccer, losing to Flint Bud Light, 2-1, in the Great Lakes Soccer League First Division championship game at Livonia's Bicentennial Park. The loss was the first of the season for the Marauders, who are the league's three-time defending champions.

The sun was out and the temperature soared into the 90s but the Marauders weren't able to step up their intensity level against Bud Light, which finished second during the regular season.

"It's beautiful for suntanning, but the thing is we weren't used to the heat," said Marauders' goalkeeper Brian O'Shea. "But they are a very good team. They always had numbers up (on attacks). We didn't come out and play the best we can or should."

Marauders' manager John Pettersson, who doubles as league commissioner, had mixed emotions afterward.

"It's great for the league (having Bud Light win) because it proves there's competition and no one team is dominant," Pettersson said. "As a manager this sucks because we own the cup. But we'll be back."

Steve Burns' goal midway through the second half broke a 1-1 tie and gave Bud Light its first-ever Great Lakes crown. Bud Light scored another goal in the second half that was called off because of a hand ball.

Burns was able to get open in front of O'Shea when Marauders' defender Chris Speen fell inside the box area.

"The man was open, that's all I know, and he one-timed it into the open corner," O'Shea said.

The Marauders beat Bud Light 1-0 in the regular season and they've historically been the team to outcoach Tom Saxton's teams from the post-season playoffs.

"My message going in was to match the Marauders' intensity and finish our chances — and we had a lot of them," said Saxton, who also coaches the Michigan State University women's team. "We haven't been able to get over the hump against them and I attribute that to how hard they've played to go with talent. We beat a very good team."

The Marauders took the first lead of the game on a penalty kick by Livonia Churchill graduate John Gentile about 10 minutes into the game. Bud Light's Brett Christianson tied the score with a goal before halftime.

Take down: Bud Light's Steve Burns gets knocked off the ball by the Marauders' Lars Richters, a former Livonia Stevenson standout who played with the Detroit Rockers last spring.

Bud Light carried the play most of the second half and the Marauders' chances to rally suffered when forward Rob Ludwig was given a red card for arguing with a referee.

Brian O'Shea made several fine saves in the first half to keep the score tied.

"The difference was they wanted it more; normally we come out playing a smart game," said Dan O'Shea, who was out with a leg injury and filling in as coach. "They were coming up with all the 50-50 balls. On paper these two teams are very even."

The Ann Arbor Chilliers beat Jalisco 2-1 in the Division II final. The Red Wings won the Division III crown, also by a 2-1 margin over the Plymouth Blast.

Ex-Franklin star Donnelly makes strides with Kings

By BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Living in Los Angeles, despite all of its beautiful trappings, can at times be unsettling.

But when the National Hockey League Kings open training camp Sept. 10, Livonia Franklin High product Mike Donnelly can put aside the strikes, riots, earthquakes and coaching changes to concentrate on his job.

And although he spends his off-season back home in Livonia, southern California — Marina Del Rey, to be exact — is where he's settled in nicely, coming off his most productive year as a pro.

True, LA was knocked out early in the playoffs by Edmonton, but Donnelly made his mark on the Kings' third line, scoring 29 goals during the regular season.

"I want to prove now that I can be an offensive player in the league," said the 1981 Franklin grad. "I want to be a 30-plus goal scorer. I'd like to contribute offensively better every year. I had 29 goals last year, but none on the power-play."

The speedy Donnelly killed penalties and was matched up throughout the season against the NHL's other top scoring lines.

"Sometimes I was in a checking role, but we were able to get a lot of scoring opportunities because of it," said Donnelly, who led Michigan State to the 1986 NCAA title. "I was on the third line, but I got a lot of ice time."

Coaching change

When the season ended, the Kings made a coaching change. Tom Webster was replaced by Barry Melrose, who was at Adirondack of the American Hockey League, Detroit's top farm club, last season.

"It's undetermined what he (Melrose) expects of me and what my role might be," said Donnelly, who had stints with the Rangers and Buffalo before coming to LA. "I don't think I have to prove anything, I just want to have a good, strong training camp."

Donnelly, 28, says he owes Web-

WSDP benefit

Winger Mike Donnelly of the Los Angeles Kings, former Livonia Franklin High standout and All-American at Michigan State, will sign autographs 1-3 p.m. Saturday at the Old Ballpark of Canton, at 42807 Ford Road (southwest corner off Lilley).

Donations are $4 per person. All proceeds will go toward student radio station WSDP-88.1 FM, which broadcasts high school sports events for the Plymouth-Canton Schools. For more information, call Bob Unis at 981-7505.

ster a great deal.

"I'll never forget what he's done for me," Donnelly said. "He had a lot of confidence in me and he personally motivated me. He gave me a chance to play."

Donnelly's best season as a pro nearly ended prematurely.

In late March, the NHL players walked out, seeking a better collective bargaining agreement. After a brief strike, an agreement was reached in principle, saving the season and the Stanley Cup playoffs.

"We heard different rumors every day," Donnelly said. "We were in limbo. We didn't know whether to work out, or kick back. I worked out once per day, but the rules from the (players) Association said no skating."

"I felt a little uncomfortable, but I didn't want Bruce (McNall, the Kings owner) to take it personally because he's been great to us. At the time, it had to be done. It was nothing personal against McNall or Mike Ilitch (the Wings owner), it was against the whole NHL. I think we did the right thing by striking, but it would have been a big mess going into this season if we hadn't settled."

Los Angeles riots

If the strike wasn't unnerving enough, the riots in LA after the Rodney King verdict sent another jolt through the Livonia native.

"I came home early in June," Donnelly said. "I had my lease paid and left six weeks early."

"Once the riots started, everything was closed at night and I stayed near my house. It was scary. You didn't know when the next thing was going to happen. Things calmed down once the National Guard came in. When I had to go and pick up my mail and my skates (at the Forum), I saw the streets lined with National Guardsmen. It was scary, for sure."

Donnelly made it out of LA and missed one of the biggest tremors in years.

He's spent the summer working out with former Wing, now Washington Capitol Kevin Miller (also of MSU).

"I've been dedicated to that (working out) and leisure activities during the off-season," said Donnelly, who rarely turns down a round of golf. "I spend a lot of time with my family and I have a condo here in Livonia."

Donnelly also got the opportunity to play in a charity hockey game this summer in Lansing with his father Mike, 49, who still laces up the skates and plays three times per week.

But soon Donnelly will head back to Los Angeles and face the grind of an 84-game (up from 80) regular season schedule.

Kings future

"Overall, our talent is as good as anybody in the league, I feel," Donnelly said. "But sometimes we rely on too much talent, and not enough on hard work. Sometimes we just show up. The key thing for the Kings' improvement is a better work ethic."

Los Angeles loses future Hall of Fame defenseman Larry Robinson to retirement, but the Great One, Wayne Gretzky, is still around.

Seattle slewed

Madonna recruit opts for Mariners

By NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

Madonna University baseball coach Mike George thought he had caught one of the state's premier athletes in Rob Valentino, but it will be Valentino hoping to catch his life-long dream.

Valentino said Tuesday night he will forego a baseball scholarship to Madonna to sign a professional baseball contract as a catcher with the Seattle Mariners. Valentino made his announcement public Wednesday at Novi's Grand Slam USA.

"It's been a dream of mine ever since I could pick up a baseball," said Valentino, a June Dearborn Divine Child graduate. "It's shocking and it hasn't settled in yet. I just wanted a shot to play in the pros, and I couldn't let this golden opportunity pass me by."

Madonna's loss of its top recruit was viewed positively by George. Valentino, who pitched in the Michigan High School All-Star game, would have pitched and played the field for the catching-rich Crusaders.

Madonna wasn't planning on trying Valentino at catcher with Steve Coffell and Chris Gajewski returning after sharing the position in '91 and two recruits (Steve Zann and Jason Butler) slated to play catcher.

"We hate to lose a kid like Rob because we had great plans for him - he's a great kid," George said. "(But) in the long run, (his signing) helps because I think it shows people that we can attract that type of player to Madonna."

"Even though he'll never play for us, it says that we have the ability to recognize talent. And even though he hasn't played an inning for us, there is mutual respect."

Terms of the contract were not disclosed but there was a signing bonus. Also in his contract was the equivalent to a full-ride scholarship to college. Valentino will begin taking classes at Madonna in the fall before heading to Arizona in March '93 for Seattle's spring training.

Catching scouts' eyes

Valentino, also a Class B all-state basketball player, was the Catholic League Male Athlete of the Year after he led Divine Child to the Class B crown with a .425 batting average and a 10-2 mark and a 1.04 earned run average on the mound.

But Valentino's 85 mile per hour fastball didn't impress the professional scouts enough.

"He wanted to stay near home and play baseball, and he decided Madonna was the best place around here for that," said Mark Falvo, Valentino's coach of three years at Divine Child. "He was a border line pitcher. But he was a coach's dream as a player. He would do anything and play anywhere."

And it was the "play anywhere" attitude that opened the doors to Valentino's future. While playing this summer, like the previous 11 summers under his father's coaching, his Dearborn American Legion team lacked a catcher.

"Our catcher had tendinitis in his elbow and my father asked for volunteers," Valentino recalls. "I volunteered and it was a lot of fun."

Valentino wasn't aware Mariners scouts Ken Madeja and Glenn Murdock were watching — and the two liked what they saw.

"We have been following Rob since he was 15 years old," Murdock said. "He lacked a little as a pitcher, but he is such a good athlete. We think he has potential with the bat and good catchers are hard to find."

Murdock and Madeja invited Valentino to try out at a camp in Toledo on Sunday, and they watched him again at an individual tryout Tuesday.

"He was head and shoulders above the other catchers there (in Toledo)," Falvo said. "His time (throwing) to second base was consistently 1.9 seconds. The major league average is 1.8. That opened some eyes. He had 61 career stolen bases in high school and will be one of the quicker catchers around."

An eye on the future

The six-foot-three, 195 pounder righthander will be assigned to a rookie camp. Until then, Valentino has a lot of work to do.

"I realize I am learning a new position and making it to the pros will take time," Valentino said.

Valentino has the support of his former coach, parents and George.

"Mike called my parents the other night and said he supports whatever I decide — he's been great," Valentino said.

The team also won the Gaylord Tournament in June.

Walter's splits pair in Johnstown

Walter's Appliance is 1-1 after two rounds of the All-American Amateur Baseball Association 20-and-under Tournament in Johnstown, Pa.

The Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoff champs rebounded from Monday's 11-7 opening-game loss to Schenectady, N.Y. to beat the Bayside Yankees of Long Island, N.Y., 13-7, as Farmington High product Kevin Young went 5-for-6 with three doubles, a triple and two RBI in a game played Tuesday at Highland Field.

Young, an outfielder who will be a sophomore this fall at Central Michigan University, keyed a 10-run Walter's outburst in the fifth inning with a triple and double.

The LCBL champs sent 14 batters to the plate during the up-rising.

Other big hitters in the victory include Aaron Mach, three hits and one RBI; Jason Gabel, two hits and two RBI; Mike Giacomantonio, Eric Stover and Paul Pirronello, two hits apiece.

Rodgers wins game for Caesars

Little Caesars lost its bid to advance in the National Amateur Baseball Federation-College Division tournament after being ousted by Buffalo, N.Y., 9-5, in the finals Sunday at the Bishop Gallagher High Sports Complex.

Caesars, the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League regular season champs, opened regional play last week with a 10-5 win over Buffalo as Scott Rodgers, the Plymouth Salem High right-hander now pitching for Kent State, went seven innings to pick up the victory.

The Macomb Mustangs then scored an 8-0 mercy-rule win over Caesars, but the Livonians rallied with an 8-0 (mercy) and 10-2 triumph Saturday over the same east side team.

Mark Van Ameyde hurled the shutout against Macomb, tossing a four-hitter to go along with six strikeouts.

Buffalo then rallied to beat Caesars in the final, advancing to the College Division World Series this week in Dayton, Ohio.

ter's manager Mike Keller said. "Once we booted the ball we started to throw it away all at once."

Schenectady scored seven unearned runs, but Walter's was only down one after six innings, 8-7, before the upstate New Yorkers put it out of reach with two runs in the eighth and one in the ninth.

Mach, the Henry Ford Community College standout picked up from LCBL rival Little Caesars, struck out with the bases loaded in the eighth to end a threat (after clubbing a solo homer earlier in the game).

Jeff Pendell and Giacomantonio (also from Caesars) each collected two hits and an RBI in a losing cause.

Walter's used three pitchers with starter Mike Coleman (1½ innings) suffering the loss. Louie McKaig pitched six innings, allowing three runs. Sean Henkel finished up.

Cameron Smith, who pitched three scoreless innings in relief, picked up the save for Schenectady. Mark Lavenia, who worked the first five innings, gained the victory.

Walter's out-hit Long Island, 19-7, including eight extra base hits.

Winning pitcher Todd Boike, a pickup from Delwal, went nine innings to pick up the win. He struck out five and walked three, while allowing five earned runs. Bayside took a brief 4-1 lead after three innings after Todd O'Rourke belted a three-run homer.

Monday's opener, however, was a nightmare for Walter's at Pete Vuckovich Field.

The Livonians committed five errors, including three errant throws. "That was the telling tale," Wal-

Diamonds beat Commanders in 'Incredible' games

The Diamonds, of Farmington Hills, swept a doubleheader Tuesday at home against the Canton Commanders, 8-7 and 13-7.

The win improved the Diamonds to 8-6 in the Incredible Girls Fast Pitch League.

Amy Lagrow managed the only hit for the Commanders in the second game against Diamonds' winning pitcher Melanie Cheney. The game lasted only five innings because of a time limit.

Cheney struck out 10 and ran into some trouble because of 10 walks.

The Diamonds won the game with three runs in the bottom of the fifth. Cheney's two-out single with the bases loaded scored Kandra Faleries with the winning run. Lori Singer also had an RBI single during the fifth and the Diamonds were helped along with five walks and a Canton error.

Michelle Romig led the Diamonds' hitting attack with two hits and an RBI.

The losing pitcher for the Commanders was Jacki Nicastrì.

In the opening game, the Diamonds scored six runs in the third to break open a close game. Amber Lagrow was 2-for-2 at the plate but suffered the loss on the mound for the Commanders.

Meagan Stephan was the winning pitcher for Diamonds and Rachel Allor earned the save in relief. Faleries had a hit and two RBI, while Romig and Kathi Fitzpatrick had one hit and an RBI apiece. Jennifer Cassidy also contributed a single.

Holappa 2nd in 'Heart of Hills' race

BY MARTY BUDNER
STAFF WRITER

Dina Spagnoli lives in Arlington, Va. But she's beginning to make a name for herself in Bloomfield Hills.

After placing second last year, Spagnoli raced to victory in the seventh annual "Heart of the Hills" 10k run held Saturday morning in Bloomfield Hills. Spagnoli won with a record women's course mark of 38 minutes, 49 seconds.

In the men's race, Ferndale's Guy Murray was the overall winner with a time of 33:42.

A record field of 790 racers competed in the 10k and two-mile runs that started and finished at Bloomfield Hills Andover High School. Although it was a bit windy and overcast for the start of the race, runners crossed the line in rather pleasant weather conditions.

And everything was very pleasant for Spagnoli, an ex-cross country and track participant at the University of Tennessee. The 22-year-old

RUNNING

Spagnoli first learned about the race from her boyfriend who lives in Plymouth. She placed second last year and was determined to win this year's race.

"I ran a personal best of 39:20 last year at the time and finished second in this race," said Spagnoli. "This is one of the races I kind of pointed to this year. I really wanted to win it this year, and the money doesn't hurt either."

Spagnoli, who, like Murray, won a $200 savings bonds for winning their respective 10k divisions, said she improved her road-racing performances since last year. She figured her familiarity with the challenging, hilly course — considered one of the top 50 in the state by Michigan Runner — was a key to victory.

"I know the course and a lot of others didn't. I think that kind of worked in my favor," said Spagnoli.

"I think it's a real pretty course, but it's hard. I had to control my pace and maintain it up the hills."

"This is a fun race," she said. "I wanted to finish this race on a good note because it will probably be my last race of the year."

In the men's race, Murray ran with two other competitors through approximately half of the course. At about the three-mile mark, Murray made his break and no one was able to catch up. Matt Holappa, from Plymouth finished second, five seconds behind Murray at 33:47.

"I kind of hung back early, then, at almost the three-mile mark, there was a flat area and I took advantage of it," said Murray.

This marked the first 'Heart of the Hills' race for Murray who is originally from the west side of the state and has been an assistant track and cross country coach the past three years at the University of Detroit-Mercy. He said he enjoyed the course.

"I haven't run on a course like this in a long time," said Murray. "There were a lot of hills, especially around the first half of the course."

It gets pretty steep in some places. "But it's a good course and I like it. I think I'll have to start training out here," he quipped.

In the men's age division, local winners from the Observer & Eccentric coverage area were Eric Randall of Auburn Hills (19-under), Holappa of Plymouth (20-29), Phillip Beuckelaere of Farmington (40-49) and John Sotir of Redford (60-90). The lone local women's winner was Amy Parker of Troy (19-under).

Race director Tony Sakorafis was very pleased with the record attendance that included 245 race-day registrants.

"This was the biggest one we've ever had and we were really lucky with the weather," said Sakorafis. "We were kind of worried about the number of volunteers we were going to have, but everyone came through with fly colors."

"We'll miss Larry's leadership this year, no question," Donnelly said. "The guy has so much experience. He comes to the rink every day working hard and keeping everybody laughing. I bet he could still play."

And what effect has Gretzky had on Donnelly's career?

"He provides leadership on and off the ice," said the Livonian. "Just practicing with him and watching him each day makes everyone better. He's able to raise everyone's game."

The Kings, who play to sellouts nearly every night, appear to have stolen some of the thunder away from the NBA Lakers.

"The support in LA for hockey is amazing," Donnelly said. "And so far we've provided good entertainment."

Gone Hollywood?

Being the entertainment capital of the world, Donnelly has also rubbed shoulders with actors, other pro athletes and entertainers.

"I guess it's an added perk to meet them," Donnelly said. "You could get caught up in that stuff, but we have a busy schedule ourselves and travel a lot. You meet tons of celebrities, you'll see two or three big names in the locker room after the games. It's a great opportunity to meet people like that and you find they're normal people just like you."

"Mary Hart (Entertainment Tonight) is at a lot of games. She has two seats right next to the penalty box."

Mike Donnelly

'You meet tons of celebrities, you'll see two or three big names in the locker room after the games.'

Mike Donnelly

"I've met guys ranging from famous rock-and-roll musicians to John Candy. He (Candy) is around a lot. He and his brother came back on a road trip with us once and we watched 'Planes, Trains and Automobiles' (in a flight movie). It was pretty funny."

Donnelly is an entertainer as well, looking to make his mark in the NHL.

"I'm looking forward to this year," he said. "I want to bring the Cup to LA."

Oceania Inn features authentic cuisine

By KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Deciding what to eat at the Oceania Inn in Rochester Hills is no easy task. Everything smells and looks wonderful, and there are over 100 entrees on the menu.

Oceania Inn takes its name from a restaurant in Hawaii that owners Paul and Amy Leung discovered on their honeymoon. It has a comfortable, relaxed atmosphere.

You'll feel like you're stepping into a Chinese garden. Aquariums, soft lighting and music help create a tranquil setting for a delicious authentic Chinese meal.

"We serve a lot of unique foods like a whole crispy chicken, shrimp nest, and steamed fish," said Leung who opened his first restaurant, the Dragon Inn, on Main Street in Rochester in 1972. He has since sold that restaurant, and opened Oceania Inn in 1975.

Two others followed. He opened an Oceania Inn in 1977 in Drayton Plains, and in Warren in 1990.

Leung said he likes seafood, and there are consequently a lot of seafood dishes on the menu at Oceania Inn including steamed lobster, shrimps with garlic sauce in shell, fried crab with spicy salt, and deep fried and stir fried scallops.

Some of the other unusual items on the menu are fresh pineapple with lychee and lemon sauce with your choice of beef, duck, crispy breast of chicken, breaded lobster, crabmeat, shrimps and scallops.

Chef King Chor Leung, a distant cousin, was trained in Hong Kong and worked in a floating restaurant. Seafood is his specialty.

All the stocks at Oceania Inn are made from scratch, and they don't add MSG to their cooking. Their motto is the food "should smell good, taste good, and look good."

Another good starter, especially if you're with a group, is the Pu Pu Platter, a combination of fried shrimp, barbecue ribs, barbecue chicken wings, chicken in foil, Bora steak, and shrimp toast.

Besides the usual Wonton and Egg Drop soup, choose from a variety of soups including hot and sour, seafood bean cake, and spicy seafood with rice noodle.

Diners have their choice of traditional Chinese dinners, Cantonese-style dinners, Szechuen food, and American favorites like broiled sirloin steak, breaded frog legs and assorted sandwiches.

Ballet is bright spot in DSO season

AVIGDOR ZAROMP

As a result, future DSO involvement in these events seems dubious at this time. The Meadow Brook management reportedly suggested that future slots for the DSO be exclusively on weekdays, when attendance is habitually low rather than on the better-attended weekends.

The DSO presence at the Meadow Brook Music Festival has been greatly diminished this season, due to poor attendance. The attempt to appeal to wider audiences by diluting the content hasn't born much fruit either.

Amid these discouraging signs, there were some bright rays of light last weekend when associate conductor Leslie Dunner presented ballet selections by Tchaikovsky, some of which were especially choreographed for the DSO. The four dancers consisted of Evelyn Cisneros and Anthony Randazzo from the San Francisco Ballet, and Kyra Nichols and Philip Neal from the New York City Ballet.

To make room for the choreographed display, the orchestra was compressed into the back stage area, where it remained even for the purely orchestral selections on the program. This aspect tended to blunt the sound of the Danse de Cygnes (Dance of the Swans) allegro and the Capriccio Italien.

However, it was clear that this weakness was due to the stage arrangements and was no reflection on the otherwise excellent performance. Dunner, who joined the DSO a few years ago, is increasingly emerging as a conductor of high capabilities, convincing leadership and refined taste.

Among the other short dances for Swan Lake, concertmaster Emanuelle Boisvert shined in the Danse Russe, and trumpet player Stephen Anderson performed impressively in Danse Napolitaine.

The dancers, who were literally kept on their toes much of the time, elicited much applause between segments for their graceful and spellbinding performances. Short ballet selections may not substitute for a full production, but this program nevertheless delivered a sense of satisfaction and fulfillment.

The pairs of dancers proved to be very compatible, with each dancer able to anticipate the other's smallest gesture. Their most daring acrobatics, including fast spins and high leaps, seemed to be carried out with natural ease, as if the human body were designed to perform these feats as a matter of course.

The program concluded with three choreographed selections commissioned by the DSO and featuring familiar themes — the Waltz from Sleeping Beauty, the Waltz from Symphony No. 5 (which was done here at a considerably

'The Dining Room' offers lively vignettes

Performances of "The Dining Room" presented by SRO Productions, continue through Aug. 23 at Southfield's historic center, the Burgh. Tickets at the Southfield Senior Adult Center or call 354-9362.

SALLY DUBATS

Playwright A.R. Gurney Jr. has a fondness for the American upper class and a passion for the witty manipulation of words which float tripping into the air, and this is keenly evident in his long-running, off-Broadway hit comedy, "The Dining Room." Standing Room Only (SRO) Productions has a fondness for respecting the award-winning serio-comic's work and has created a memorable and funny version of same.

Joel Grossman debuts as a director in this complex SRO show, and he captains a talented cast. The play is complex, as it must weave through many vignettes without disturbing the pace and be able to set a comic or dramatic tone in an instant. Grossman accomplishes the desired effect with the materials.

"The Dining Room" pokes fun at the upper crust while quietly commenting on the decline of reverence for the dining room in our American lifestyle. Each actor covers a wide range of materials, portraying different characters ranging from children to the elderly, from comic to tragic.

Lynn Varga is excellent in every expression. Varga shifts from a side-splitting, spoiled 4-year-old birthday girl to a woman on the edge with acting which is controlled and seasoned.

Joseph F. LoGiudice uses his fanatically mobile face to create a myriad of characters, including a staunch and stoic father and a gamut of adolescents and naughty little boys.

A touching and well-interpet-

Time to talk: John Alwardt and Sarab Kamoo find themselves conversing under a table in SRO Productions' "The Dining room."

ed scene between Varga and LoGiudice unfolds when a young boy is confronted with the loss of what seems to be his only friend. The family maid, who has seemed like a mother to him, is seeking employment elsewhere.

Sarab Kamoo and Judie Rosati work particularly well together in a comic scene which depicts the bane of all mothers, letting their daughters choose between fun and responsibility. Kamoo's character is the petulant daughter, whining, "Saint Joan wouldn't go to dancing school in a million years!" "Yes, and look what happened to her!" says Rosati, the firm mother.

John Alwardt performs well the stereotypical yuppie/preppy characters, but would fare better with an occasional extended persona for added unpredictable comedy. There is little difference between his mannerisms as a son listening to a father's funeral wishes in one scene and a macho carpenter working on the dining room table while flirting with its owner in another scene.

Xan Smith makes his first stage appearance in "The Dining Room" and shows promise while creating alternately earnest or comical characters.

The set, designed by Joel Grossman, Marje King, Margaret Gilkes and Bill Mandt, is functional and utilizes the space well. Vicky Yost, Bill Mandt and Mike Johnson add some impressive and imaginative details to create an upper-class American setting.

The scenes of "The Dining Room" tell a never-ending, American tale of family struggles and joys. SRO productions tells the story well.

Sally Dubats of Madison Heights is an actress, director and teacher, who teaches at community theaters in the metropolitan area. She is artistic director of West End Productions, headquartered in Southfield.

faster pace than during a regular orchestral performance) and the Waltz from Eugene Onegin. The Waltz from Eugene Onegin involved all four dancers and was one of the peak choreographic features on this program.

The large audience that turned out for this event provided another upbeat element in this most fulfilling event of the season. Only a steady audience presence, however, carries the hope of halting the demise of this series. Even so, it may already be too late.

Proper Painting Techniques Add Longevity

When house paint blisters, peels, cracks, flakes or mildews, the tendency is to blame the painter. More often than not, the painter is responsible—not for being a bad painter—but for being unaware of the problem.

Professional painters and paint company researchers know the worst enemy of paint. It is this aggressor that the average homeowner needs to battle when doing his own painting.

The interior of the average home produces a large amount of moisture throughout the year. It is out the winter, but during the winter, however, that moisture plays havoc on exterior painted walls. Moisture accumulates on the inside of the walls, where it is eventually drawn through to the outside by the heat of the sun. When moisture goes to work on wood siding and the paint covering it, the result is trouble.

To combat the negative effects of moisture, first find the source. Depending upon your particular circumstances, it could be improper venting; water leaking from the roof, gutters or plumbing; or rain getting into siding through seams and gaps around doors and windows.

After locating the source of moisture, eliminate it by sealing up all cracks, openings and leaks. Then provide proper ventilation by installing roof or on interior walls can also help. With the moisture problem solved, it's time to take a look at the second enemy of paint—poor surface preparation.

Lack of proper priming, applying new paint over chipped, cracked or chalked paint, or a heavy build-up of old paint is a guarantee that problems will soon follow. Applying a second or third coat before the previous coat completely dries can also lead to trouble.

Begin all painting jobs by properly priming wood and metal surfaces. If the old paint is damaged, use a scraper, paint remover or power sander to remove all loose paint. Then, either featheredge the remaining paint areas or use a filler or caulking to smooth the surface before priming. If you intend to give your house a second coat of paint, be sure to wait until the first coat has had plenty of time to dry. The improved appearance of your home and the money saved by a paint job that lasts are well worth the extra effort.

Leaky Roof Syndrome

Roof leaks are one of the worst emergency home repairs. While repairs need to be done outside, leaks are generally only noticed during bad weather. One course of action is to use pots, pans, buckets, etc., to catch the water and then wait for the weather to improve. That, however, is not the best approach. You need to locate the source of the leak while it is still raining. If you wait until everything has dried up, you might look forever for the source of that drip.

If possible, look on the underside of the roof (from the attic, for example) for the spot where the water is going through the ceiling. This point of entry is rarely directly over the spot so you but mark the spot later. Follow the drip (or wetness) to what appears to be its source. Look for water stains on rafters and, in the daylight, for pinpricks of light in the roof. Take a very careful look around the roof (chimney stack or vent pipe). Areas where two roof slopes meet, such as valleys, dormers and ridges, deserve special attention. When you think you have found the source, mark it.

At this point, all you may be able to do is find the source. If the problem is so bad it needs immediate attention, staple, tack or nail a sheet of plastic or building paper over the damage. Weigh the risk of venturing onto a wet and possibly windy roof against the potential water damage.

Once the weather has improved, get on the roof and look for the source of the problem. The way to locate it on the outside is by driving a thin nail up through the roof from the spot you marked inside. The most likely places for leaks to develop occur where asphalt or wood shingles appear cracked or worn, or where slate or tile is broken or even missing. Take a careful look at all places where there is wall-mounted ventilator ducts and fans in moisture-producing areas. Vent tubes or under-lap vents can help relieve the moisture build-up in a wall. Using a vapor-proof paint

Choosing an Insulation Contractor

Most people are willing to do their own weatherstripping, caulking and other smaller insulation projects that help keep energy bills down. However, many do not have the inclination, time or physical ability to conquer major insulation projects involving attics, crawl spaces, basements and outside walls. A competent contractor can get the job done with a minimal amount of fuss.

Although most contractors are conscientious and honest, it is important to take certain steps in choosing one to fit individual needs. First, locate a number of reliable contractors. Do not be afraid to contact the small businessman. Often he can give you equally good service at competitive prices. For a list of contractors, turn to the newspaper under "Air Conditioning—Heating Contractors." Other sources include the local chapter of the National Association of Home Builders or Home Builders Association Areas with local offices for government-funded or non-profit home improvement assistance centers will also have a file on reputable area contractors.

From these sources, choose three or four contractors. Narrow each one's business reputation. Upon request, most contractors will gladly furnish you with a list of past customers. Call a number of these customers and ask how satisfied they were with the completed job. See how long the contractor has been in business. As a rule of thumb, the longer the better. Call the Better Business Bureau and give them your list of choices. They will tell you if and how many complaints have been made against each contractor.

Finally, get cost and time estimates from each contractor. With all these factors in hand, you can now make an informed decision.

work you want done, make a list. Check off each job on your list as you read the contract. See that the warranty is also included in the written contract. Furnace Efficiency

You want your furnace or heating system to run efficiently so that you stay warm during the cold weather and save money at the same time. Performing preventative maintenance can help keep your heating system operating more efficiently, longer and safer. Here are some things you can do:

- Make sure your exhaust system or chimney is free of debris. Exhaust gases can be trapped in bird nests, leaves or other materials. This also the danger of such obstructions.

flashing (the metal seams around objects protruding through the roof), such as chimneys. Also examine areas where different roof slopes meet or where skylights exist.

Small leaks often can be fixed with a liberal application of roofing tar or with caulk squeezed from a caulking gun.

Shingles which are torn, cracked or missing can often be made leak-proof by sliding a piece of flashing up underneath, nailing it in place and then covering the nail holes and edges of the flashing with roofing tar. Force the flashing up with a block of wood. You may need to do this on several adjacent courses.

Repairs which involve more than applications of roofing tar can become complicated and are probably best left to professionals. The same is true for repairs in which the shingles are excessively worn, cracked, lacking their gravel coating or, if wooden, covered in moss or split. Asphalt and wood shingles do not last forever. Their deterioration and replacement is eventually unavoidable. Although slate and tile are considerably more expensive, they will last much longer.

Use a pair of pliers to pull it straight out, and also use a small block of wood on either side to prevent damage.

If removing the dirt and excess paint does not allow the window to slide freely, replace the parting strip and the stop. Then force a block of wood (slightly wider than the gap between them) into the groove and hammer it up and down. hammer the stop further out from its original position for even more space.

Lubricating with a silicone stick lubricant can help. This procedure works well for wood as well as metal windows. Windows that slide on aluminum work more smoothly by rubbing the aluminum with fine wire wool.

If the procedures mentioned above still don't loosen your stuck window, it may be time to consult a professional and/or have a new window installed. Many window problems can be solved yourself, and preventative measures, like lubricating the frame and avoiding excess paint buildup, can keep you from getting stuck.

If the window is already open but gets stuck, try to close it from above. Avoid pulling down from the bottom part or pushing up on the top part—if the window is stuck hard enough, you may break the frame. You'll have to try something a little more complicated if the above procedure fails. The next step is removing the window. It's possibly the most off the

Binoculars will help skygazers enjoy August feast

RAYMOND E. BULLOCK

SKY WATCH

Full Moon shines officially at 6:27 a.m. today.

The August full moon had various names to native American Indians; two of which were "Grain Moon" and "Corn Moon." When the moon is full it can be said to be at opposition and, just as in the case of Saturn's opposition the previous week, rises at sunset, is visible all night, and sets at sunrise.

Mercury will be visible on the morning of the 16th, six degrees above the east northeastern horizon. Look 45 minutes before sunrise. If you can't spot it, look due east and locate the star Procyon (PRO see on). It is rising due east, eight degrees above the horizon. It's brighter than Mercury and will be easier to find. Mercury is 18 degrees to the left of Procyon.

About 26 degrees to the right of Procyon is an even brighter object: Sirius (SEER ee us) the "dog" star, the brightest star in the night sky. Procyon means "before the dog" because it rises before Sirius. Sure enough, you'll find Procyon's altitude is five degrees greater than that of Sirius.

Use binoculars and try for Venus and Jupiter again on the evening of the 17th. Look toward the west, 30 minutes after sunset. The two objects are now five degrees apart; Venus is still just three degrees above the horizon.

Mercury is at maximum elongation on the morning of the 20th. It is 18 degrees to the west (right) of the sun, and is seven degrees above the east northeast horizon 45 minutes before sunrise.

The moon is at last quarter phase at 6:01 a.m. on Aug. 21. It is beginning the last-quarter of this particular orbit around the earth. On this morning the moon is just one degree from the Pleiades (PLEE a dees) star cluster, the "shoulder" of Taurus. On the 22nd the moon forms a triangle with Mars (to the lower left) and Aldebaran (to the lower right).

Venus and Jupiter are 0.3 degrees apart on the evening of the 22nd. The next conjunction between these two planets, which are among the brightest objects in the sky, occurs on Nov. 8, 1993, but the apparent distance between the two will be slightly greater. Look 30 minutes after sunset and use binoculars for a better view.

The twin stars Castor and Pollux (Pawl lox) form nearly a straight line with the moon on the morning of the 25th. Castor is five degrees above Pollux, the moon is about twice that distance below Pollux. On the next morning an alignment occurs between Mercury, the moon and Procyon; the moon is about 20 degrees to the left of Procyon, and Mercury is six degrees to the left of the moon. Drawing a line from Procyon through the moon will make it easier to locate Mercury.

New moon is at 10:42 p.m. on Aug. 27. This is the closest new moon of the year. The moon's orbit around the earth is elliptical (oval), and this month's closest point coincides with the new moon phase. The new moon is located between the earth and the sun, so it is not visible.

The moon returns to the evening sky on Aug. 30. It is five degrees below and to the right of Spica, just a few degrees from where it was at the beginning of the month. Notice, however, that where Spica was over 20 degrees above the horizon on Aug. 3, it is now only nine degrees above it.

An excellent aid for learning constellations and keeping up to date with the sky is the monthly "Sky Calendar." A one year subscription is $6.00 and is available from the Abrams Planetarium, Michigan State University, East Lansing, 48824.

ESL courses at Madonna

Madonna University's English as a Second Language (ESL) department, in conjunction with the office of continuing education, will offer five courses this fall enabling students to develop their proficiency in English language skills.

Designed to serve metro Detroit's growing international population, courses may be taken by members of the local community or by college students in conjunction with other courses. A Madonna University placement test will determine initial placement in classes.

"English Skills for Academic Success," will emphasize basic principles of grammar, sentence-level and simple paragraph writing, literal level reading and conversational speaking and listening. It will be offered from 7-10 p.m. Thursdays, Sept. 10 through Dec. 17. The course may be taken for three continuing education units at a cost of $170, or for two academic credits at a cost of $290.

"Intermediate Reading and Writing," held on Tuesdays, Sept. 8 through Dec. 15, covers complex sentence structure, grammar, informational reading and beginning formal speaking. Cost is $230 for 4.5 continuing education units or $435 for three academic credits.

Designed to expand grammar skills, develop knowledge of organizational patterns used in writing compositions, "Advanced Reading and Writing" will be held 1-4 p.m. on Tuesdays, Sept. 8 through Dec. 15. Cost is $230 for 4.5 continuing education units or $435 for three academic credits.

"Advanced Academic Reading and Writing" provides practice in skills required for successful completion of university courses. The course will be held 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Fridays, Sept. 11 to Dec. 18. Cost is $230 for 4.5 continuing education units or $435 for three academic credits.

Developed to help advanced ESL students prepare for the demand of academic lecture comprehension and note taking, "Advanced Academic Speaking and Listening" will be held 12:30-3:30 p.m. on Thursdays, Sept. 10 through Dec. 17. The course will help students predict, evaluate and organize information in lectures. Formal speeches will be practiced, videotaped and evaluated. The cost is $230 for 4.5 continuing education units or $435 for three academic credits.

Auto gadgets: 'This is getting scary'

AUTO TALK

DAN MCCOSH

As far as I know, there is no museum of automotive gadgets, which stores for posterity such 'innovations as the first self-dimming headlights, the detachable ashtray, and the primitive first attempt at sticking a religious statue to the dashboard.

Still, the automobile has always been a repository of such features, loosely grouped by development engineers under the buzzword 'comfort and convenience.'

Today these are getting a little scary.

About six months ago, the folks at Buick invited me to look at some advanced features they were working on, including a couple of new engines, sunroofs, etc. But the one that sticks in my mind was a car that automatically adjusted itself to the driver.

It does this by responding to the remote locking device that hangs on your key chain.

When you unlock the doors, it not only lets you into the car, it resets the rear-view mirror, adjusts the electric seats, sets the steering wheel, and even tunes the radio to your favorite station.

Several different sending devices can be programmed individually, which means the car responds differently to each family member. Kind of neat, but also a little spooky.

A little later, Chevrolet demonstrated a new system that lets you carry a little programmed transmitter around in your pocket that unlocks the doors every time you approach the car, hands-off, and locks it as you walk away. Except for the obvious problem when you are mowing the lawn near your car, this seems handy when you come up with two bags of groceries.

But the really weird idea is combining the two systems, so that as you approach your car it wriggles and re-sets, adjusting itself completely to the approaching driver.

If all this is getting a little Freudian, Toyota is working on an air-conditioning system that checks your body temperature and sets itself accordingly. Back in the labs is a setup that monitors a driver to see if he is getting drowsy, and pokes him to wake up.

There is a company in New York that has developed a seat that measures hundreds of pressure points on your posterior and adjusts the seat for medically correct comfort.

The trend here is obvious.

Cars are becoming surrogate spouses, or at least one of those doting persons you see on the cold-remedy commercials.

Your car is on the verge of taking care of your every need, stroking and soothing.

The self-adjusting seat even accounts for getting tired and letting your posture droop, adding a tad of lumbar support when it is called for. Sit up straight, stop slouching, your car tells you.

Do want this to happen? Or are we seeing some insidious effort to get us to respond to our cars at some new emotional level?

A gut feeling of joy from stabbing the accelerator on a big V-8 apparently isn't enough anymore. Now we seem to want a car that understands us.

A sort of Dr. Joyce Brothers on wheels. If this keeps up, bartenders and therapists could be right out of business.

LOCAL AGENCY WINS HIGH HONORS WITH REGIONAL INSURANCE COMPANY

The Amerisure Companies, a Michigan-based insurance company, recently recognized the Ralph C. Wilson Agency for having met the criteria for four agency recognition award programs, namely the Premier Partners, the Ambassadors Group, the Regional Excellence Group and the Five-Star Personal Lines program. These programs recognize agencies for production, profitability, professionalism and long-term potential in both Commercial Lines and Personal Lines. This agency stands alone among the over 200 state-wide agencies of Amerisure as having won all of these prestigious awards. In addition to these honors, Rolph Carey, president of the agency, is also president of Amerisure's Agents' Advisory Council which was formed to elicit feedback on issues from their clients.

Mr. Carey attributes the success of the agency to their 60-year history as a large, flexible, independent agency in Michigan. He further notes a unique feature of the agency as having separate operational divisions. The divisions cover such services as property and casualty, life and benefits, personal lines, specialty coverages such as equine insurance, and claims handling which allows them to focus their individual expertise to their clients' needs.

Yaw said the bank has 186 ATMs, 127 of which are operated independently from the institution's 119 state branch locations. He declined to reveal the number of machines with cameras, citing security reasons. Cameras are concealed.

In seeking legal redress for an ATM crime, Patrick Burkett, an appellate lawyer for Sommers, Schwartz, Silver & Schwartz in Southfield, said it was highly un-help, then there's no case," said Burkett.

While extenuating circumstances may come into play, Burkett said such crimes are rare, and liability resulting from such incidents rarer still. Area banks say they follow federal laws in securing ATM sites. Most are located adjacent to a busy street, bushes and shrubs are kept to a minimum, and most have one or two spotlights. Magnetic cards that operate the machines have a four-digit personal identification number that must be verified before a machine allows access to an account.

Recent laws in New York City requiring tougher security measures at automated teller machines are not likely to be adopted in metro Detroit.

In recent years, several people were murdered after they were abducted from or taken to cash machines in New York City. The new laws, both stringent and expensive, call for the use of surveillance cameras and other security measures.

Closer to home, two teenage assailants, after murdering a Rochester Hills couple in their home two years ago, used a magnetic card they found in the home to operate a local cash dispenser. But the criminals were soon apprehended and are now in jail.

"Unless there's an outbreak of automated teller machine crimes, or some heinous act involving a cash machine which gets a lot of media attention, I don't see tougher security measures being passed," said Ray Van Hoeck, vice president of the retail banking group for the National Bank of Detroit.

The bank operates 206 cash machines in the state, 25 percent of which have surveillance cameras. Another 10 percent have locks that check the cards of people entering a cash machine vestibule against computerized bank records. Overall, there are 4,000 automated teller machines in the state.

"These types of crimes are few and far between. We haven't had one incident involving a cash machine," said Chief Robert Scoggins of the Plymouth Police Department. "Of course, we have a small area to patrol, and we're very visible."

For convenience sake: Use of automated teller machines is on the rise. Existing security measures and users' common sense have kept the incidence of crime low.

Across the state, there were 240 bank robberies last year, up from 200 in 1990. The records division of the Michigan State Police Department does not categorize such crimes by type. Both the city of Rochester and Rochester Hills reported no robberies involving cash machines have been committed since the murder incident two years ago, and even then, the cash dispenser was a case of one crime leading to another.

teller machines, or ATMs, have steadily proliferated, and can now be found at most bank branch sites as well as large office buildings, grocery stores and retail outlets. Although security measures such as surveillance cameras and card-access locks are in place at area cash dispensers, their presence is far from universal.

The new laws in New York City, adopted two weeks ago, are blanket restrictions. In addition to requiring cameras at all machines, either a card-lock or security guard must be in place. Better lighting, large windows in at least one wall, mirrors to let customers see behind them and electronic surveillance signs are also called for.

Because the improvements will cost tens of millions of dollars to implement, banking officials here say it is highly unlikely any new laws would be so restrictive. What's more, there is no guarantee the laws would curtail such crimes.

Second opinion hotlines attempt to dispel some investment clouds

By GERALD FRAWLEY
STAFF WRITER

Your broker says he's got a hot tip.

"There's a new company on the coast and, are you ready for this, they manufacture glow-in-the-dark toilet seats!"

"This is going to be the next big thing. Everybody's going to want one, and we have an opportunity to get in on the ground floor. Now it's a little risky, but for a song you can..."

You're skeptical. I mean, this is your broker, and he's been a good one in the past, but glow-in-the-dark toilet seats?

As they say in the medical profession, this calls for a second opinion.

That's where a relatively new service — investment advice over the phone — comes in.

One such service, My Asset Advisor, is a phone-in financial advice hotline offered by Asset Advisory Services, a registered investment adviser in Farmington Hills.

Steven M. Zimberg, a certified financial planner, said the genesis of the idea is the non-commission, fee-only financial planning service concept, of which he has been a proponent since he began as a financial planner in 1981.

Dialing for dollars

Zimberg charges $29 for the first 15 minutes and $25 for each quarter hour after that.

"The hotline evolved because it's an easy, noncommittal way for someone to talk to a financial adviser without the fear they are going to pull you in and spend all of your money," he said.

Zimberg said he thinks there's great potential for services like his, not necessarily because financial planners, insurance agents and brokers are dishonest, but because of the way they have been conditioned.

"Everyone thinks they have the best policy, mutual fund, whatever," he said. That means they may be less inclined to thoroughly research other options.

'The hotline evolved because it's an easy, noncommittal way for someone to talk to a financial adviser without the fear they are going to pull you in and spend all of your money.'

Steven M. Zimberg
Certified Financial Planner

Zimberg said the purpose of the hotline is to provide second opinions — much like someone in need of a medical procedure might seek a second opinion from another doctor — on investment ideas.

Most of the advice given over the hotline concerns general ideas and then focuses toward the specific.

Changing times

The fact that many brokers, insurance agents and financial consultants also work on commission, rather than a flat fee, may also color their judgment, he said.

"Commissions have fallen a lot since only a couple years ago," he said. "If, for example, a financial planner was making 8 percent several years ago, and the commission is only 2 percent, he has to generate four times as many sales to take the same thing home to his family."

Zimberg also stressed he doesn't think a single opinion will be as valuable in the future as it was in the past.

"I think it's a fundamental concern. If an investment of $10,000 in 1975 is worth $1 million today — so what? An investment's past performance is no guarantee for the future."

Zimberg believes the runaway profits of the 1980s are unlikely to return.

He said people who call the hotline are difficult to categorize. "They are people with a pressing concern, but aren't confident enough to make a decision themselves," he said.

"Many people have been burned in previous investments."

401(k) service

General financial advice isn't the only thing people can obtain over the phone.

401(k) Advisors Inc. in Livonia dispenses advice on the fastest growing segments of the retirement plan market — the 401(k) plan over a 900 number.

Richard C. VandenBrul, certified investment management consultant, started 401(k) Advisors because, despite the tremendous popularity of the plans, few participants know enough to invest in them wisely.

Most recently, VandenBrul was senior vice president of Harbor Capital Advisors, the sponsor of the Harbor Fund, a family of no-load mutual funds and a subsidiary of Owens-Illinois, which has a 401(k) plan with approximately 6,300 participants.

"Most of the participants were not putting the money into the area that would most likely grow," he said. When he tried to put together some information to be given to employees, he was told by corporate lawyers that it would constitute investment advice.

"That would open us up to liability," they said. VandenBrul realized that literally thousands of 401(k) participants throughout the country were in a similar situation.

Not too long after that, VandenBrul said he was reading about the proliferation of 900 numbers. "I said that's the answer."

He has also written a booklet, "How to Invest in Your 401(k) Plan," which is available for $15 by writing 401(k) Advisors, P.O. Box 530854, Livonia 48153-0854.

VandenBrul said it is likely that for future retirees, 401(k)s will be the only retirement plan. From 1985 through 1990, 60,000 defined bene-

Radio readers keep impaired well informed

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Anita and Tom Hinks had been Recording for the Blind volunteers for several years, recording textbooks at Wayne State University for visually-impaired students. When that program moved to northern Oakland County, the Plymouth Township couple decided to seek another volunteer opportunity.

"We just started looking for another place and found this one," she said of the Detroit Radio Information Service, a subchannel of public radio station WDET-FM at Wayne State in Detroit.

The radio reading/information service is for blind and visually-impaired listeners. There are about 1,500 closed-circuit receivers throughout the metropolitan area, some in private homes and others in hospitals and nursing homes where there are multiple users.

Volunteers like Tom and Anita Hinks and Ed Weidenbach of Canton are the backbone of DRIS. The men are readers, coming to the studio each Wednesday to read The Detroit News. She prefers to work behind the scenes.

"My voice I don't feel is pleasing enough to the ear for people to listen to regularly," said Hinks, who helps out with clerical tasks and computer work. "I think it's very fulfilling to know that you're able to help out. It gives you an interest outside the home."

DRIS volunteers come from all walks of life. Anita Hinks is an office manager for Kmart Corp. in Plymouth. Her husband, who's been involved in community theater for many years, is a Unisys Corp. computer engineer in Plymouth. They have two grown sons.

Ed Weidenbach volunteered with Recording for the Blind for many years. He moved from that to volunteering for DRIS, then returned to Recording for the Blind before that program moved out of Detroit.

"I looked for a volunteer opportunity that would still be on campus," said Weidenbach, a copier salesman for Copy Duplicating Products in Southfield. "As it turns out, DRIS was alive and well and stronger than ever."

Weidenbach has no broadcasting experience, but enjoys being on the radio and using his voice.

Dedicated volunteers

The service has about 125 volunteers who do on-air reading, along with a core group of substitute readers, said Kim Walsh, DRIS director of promotion and development. Some volunteers help with clerical work or special events.

The service has been available for 14 years, and is designed "to assist blind and handicapped individuals in having the same kind of information that their sighted peers have," Walsh said.

The closed-circuit broadcast service offers reading of more than 100 current publications, both local and national. A number of national publications are broadcast through the In-Touch Radio Network, based in New York City.

"We go back and forth from local to national," Walsh said. Department and grocery store ads are read, along with TV listings, short stories and other information.

DRIS is on the air 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Broadcasts can't be picked up on a regular radio, although some area cable channels broadcast DRIS material as background to community service announcements. Much of the material is broadcast live, some taped.

DRIS is available, free of charge, to people unable to read or hold regular printed material because of a physical disability. Users must be registered with a library for the blind and handicapped, or be certified by a doctor, social worker or other professional.

Kids find freedom on horseback

Problems tend to fade away when these special youngsters climb on their horses. It's all because of the Tollgate 4-H Exceptional Equestrian therapeutic riding program, which serves southeast Michigan.

BY LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

What someone can't hear, where someone cannot agilely step, when one is not able to express something in words, the beauty and gentle grace of a horse in full stride becomes a liberator.

So the 350 children and adults with physical, emotional and mental disabilities in the Tollgate 4-H Exceptional Equestrian program have come to realize. All they have to do is climb aboard.

In three years of being involved in the program, Cindy Richards of Plymouth has witnessed children go from wheelchairs to walkers to being able to walk on their own. More so, therapeutic horseback riding injects self-esteem and confidence into those faced with personal hurdles every day.

"A horse is not real judgmental," said Richards, who is a program coordinator and a Plymouth resident. "It doesn't care if you have braces, if you are in a wheelchair... It (therapeutic horseback riding) allows them to form a bond with the animals and they can later learn to trust other people. They get a real sense of freedom."

The Tollgate Exceptional Equestrian program is the third largest of its kind in the country, serving southeast Michigan.

Benefit on Sunday

This Sunday, Aug. 16, a benefit polo match and auction will take place noon to 4 p.m. at the Detroit Polo Club, 2770 N. Milford Road, Highland Township. Proceeds from The Tollgate Challenge Cup II, sponsored by Roush Industries in Livonia, will help the program.

Last year, the fund-raiser brought in $18,000. Organizers hope to raise $25,000 this year.

The Tollgate Exceptional Equestrian program costs $150,000 a year to run with two paid staff and 300 some volunteers. Though it costs $80 for an eight-week session, many students are on scholarship.

"We haven't had to turn anybody away yet," Richards said.

Rather, the therapeutic horseback riding program has been able to turn around those whose self-esteem is usually fragile at best.

Joanna LaPrad, 19, of West Bloomfield is a member of the Advanced Exceptional Equestrian Drill Team, which will do a demonstration Sunday as part of the Tollgate Challenge Cup II program.

Though she is hearing impaired, LaPrad marvels at the ability of others who are physically challenged and able to overcome their fears.

"There's kids here who are not able to walk and who are in wheelchairs," said LaPrad, who will attend Oakland University in the fall. "There's a girl (who has cerebral palsy). She wasn't really confident and, after a session, it was amazing."

"There's a lot of kids who are really physically impaired. They're scared. They're scared to get on the horses. They end up loving it."

LaPrad herself admits she was a bit intimidated about climbing on a horse at first. She's afraid of heights, and because of the hearing impairment, balance can be tricky. "Luckily, it was a fat horse, so I knew I wasn't going to fall over," she said.

Advanced team

She rides five times a week and is a leader on the Drill Team and helped choreograph the routine for Sunday's event, which will include starbursts, pinwheels and a series of criss-cross movements called "thread the needle."

Her mother, Pat, also rides and is a volunteer with the program.

In the last year, LaPrad said she's become less self-conscious about her hearing impairment.

Bonnie Richards of Redford Township has seen the same transformation with her two sons, Jonathan, 14, and Ryan, 10. Jonathan has a learning disability and difficulty with motor skills. Ryan has a closed head injury resulting from an automobile accident.

They started out with two volunteer walkers at their side and another person leading the horse. Today, they ride by themselves.

"The horseback riding has helped (Jonathan) there, because he has to tighten the reins," Bonnie Richards said. "Balance wise and posture, he's made great improvement."

"Emotionally, after the accident, that was (Ryan's) greatest need. It gave him the confidence he needed at time."

Traced to the Greeks

Therapeutic riding has been traced back to the Greeks, who were said to send wounded soldiers via horseback to expediate their recovery. British hospitals were said to do the same during World War II.

The North American Riding for the Handicapped Association has 460 accredited riding programs in the United States, involving more than 35,000 riders with disabilities.

Cindy Richards of the Tollgate program notes therapeutic riding is not a replacement for physical therapy, but it makes the rehabilitative process more bearable.

"It still might hurt, it still might be a little painful," she said. "Somehow, it (riding) is a little more fun."

Campers have fun even on rainy days

BY JULIE BROWN

This summer's rainfall hasn't dampened the enthusiasm of Plymouth YMCA day campers. It has, however, called for some changes in plans.

"It's hard when we have to stay in the pavilion all day to keep them interested," said counselor Melissa Rockwood, 19, of Plymouth Township. She and other counselors carry blankets in their cars; when it rains, campers bundle up and sing songs in the pavilion at Plymouth Township Park.

The day camp for kids ages 5-11 has been offered for many years by the Plymouth Community Family YMCA, which also sponsors a summer day camp for preschoolers. Sessions, held weekdays at the park, include sports and games, crafts and other activities. Counselors-in-training, who are age 12, help to keep things running smoothly.

"It's been a fun summer," said counselor Sherisa Dahlgren, 20, of Plymouth Township. "We get to play."

School-age campers enjoy using the kickball fields and fishing in the pond at the park. They've also held barbecues.

Some days, they travel down the road to Central Middle School in Plymouth to swim in the pool. They've gone to play miniature golf, "depending on the weather," said Dahlgren, a junior at Ambassador College in Texas who plans to go into psychology.

Weeks at camp have different themes. A recent one was "International Week," with campers playing a variety of games from different countries.

Counselors try to do more than be babysitters. Their goal is to provide a place where children can have fun and learn. Many of the kids have parents who work full time, so those youngsters are at camp every day.

"They learn to interact with other people," Dahlgren said. Weekly camp attendance averages 35 to 40 school-age kids.

"They get used to seeing the same kids every day," said Rockwood, a sophomore at Michigan State University.

Many of the youngsters have participated in the YMCA camp in previous years. Some of the counselors are also veterans. Rockwood's worked at the camp part time the two previous summers and is now a full-timer. Dahlgren was a YMCA counselor last summer.

"The kids are really responsive here," she said. She and other counselors don't have much trouble with disobedient kids and don't have to raise their

Her fiancé is a graduate of Ohio State University, where he earned a bachelor of arts degree, and of the University of California at San Francisco. He is employed as a paramedic/firefighter in the bay area.

October ceremonies are planned in Alameda, Calif., and at Point West, Holland, Mich.

Hohulin-Martin

Mr. and Mrs. James Hohulin of Morton, Ill., announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Jill Ann Hohulin of Morton, to Kenneth Glen Martin of Plymouth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kaywin L. Martin of Plymouth.

Mr. and Mrs. John Martin of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Christine Marie Martin of Plymouth, to Michael John Timmis of Farmington Hills, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Timmis.

DRIS also operates a personal reader referral service, in which volunteer readers are matched with listeners who need help reading mail, bills or other material.

Keeping in touch

Many listeners are seniors who want to remain in contact with things they've grown accustomed to, Walsh said. Others are younger, including some who have such learning disabilities as dyslexia.

DRIS readers work in studios at WDET, using equipment provided through a $50,000 grant from the Skillman Foundation. Generally, two readers work together, alternating on-air duties.

"Most of our volunteers are not professional broadcasters," she said. "They learn from each other as they go."

Some volunteers produce special DRIS programs. Tom Hinks, for example, decided to start a science fiction program.

"I've always been interested in science fiction," he suggested such a program, and now produces "Spaces," broadcast each Friday for a half hour.

Hinks knows firsthand how valuable such a service can be. His father is legally blind, has a little peripheral vision but isn't able to read. He lives in Florida, which means he can't receive DRIS broadcasts, but does use books on tape.

The YMCA provides summer-time child care weekdays from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., with early-morning care offered at the Grange building in downtown Plymouth. The program's been a tremendous help to two-income families, the counselors agree.

Campers also give the program high marks.

"It's fun," said Kristen Brown, 10, a fifth grader at Hoben Elementary School in Canton. "I like when we go up the hill and play kickball. I like the organized games and stuff."

Kristen participated in the YMCA camp last summer. Kaz Pumphrey, 5, of Canton also likes camp, but sometimes has other things on his mind.

"It's fun, but today I wanted to stay with my mom," said Kaz, who'll start kindergarten this fall. He likes playing on the swings, and enjoyed making paper Japanese masks. He occasionally finds something at the park worth taking home.

"Yesterday, I found a rock here, a pretty one, and we gave it a bath."

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,
Your column in the Plymouth Observer & Eccentric is fascinating! How long have you been a practicing graphologist? I would like to learn the fine art of handwriting analysis. Where did you study?

Any information you can give me regarding classes (or an apprenticeship with you?) would be appreciated.

I am 33 years old and right handed. We most recently moved here from Indiana due to my husband's job transfer and I am unemployed, but considering returning to college for a fresh career start.

Thanks for any insight you can give me.

M.B., Northville

Dear M.B.,
I am so happy for your interest in handwriting analysis. I have been a practicing graphologist for about 25 years, but no longer teach any classes. Most of my training was received in Livonia. But I have continued with self-study anywhere I find new books or workshops.

Welcome to Northville! I feel certain you will find it a most enjoy-

Your column in the Plymouth Observer & Eccentric is fascinating! How long have you been a practicing graphologist? I would like to learn the fine art of handwriting analysis. Where did you study? able place in which to live. I suggest you inquire at local boards of education to see if they currently offer classes. Northville, Plymouth, Livonia and Canton are all in close proximity to you. Oakland Community College, while farther away, has an on-going program and you may want to contact them.

Good luck in finding a class. It will open a whole new world for you!

Now let us turn to this handwriting. There is an element of rigidity here which suggests that flexibility is somewhat limited. It also suggests a rather intense approach to life and living.

With the high level of energy you possess, you will not be content to sit around waiting for things to happen. You enjoy a challenge and are an effective problem solver. Reliable and steady, you can focus in on your goals with will power and determination.

Your material imagination can provide you with resourcefulness. You feel optimistic about these goals. However, they may be set at a level which is too easily accomplished.

This next observation may sound paradoxical but you seemed tired or discouraged at the time you wrote this letter. I feel it is probably a temporary situation. The herculean task of moving and getting settled in a new area may be the culprit. Once you get settled in I strongly suspect you will be eager to embrace your new lifestyle and become very involved with neighbors and friends.

At this particular time, your interests appear to be focused on all the little demands of daily life. Details seem to assume a rather important role.

A penetrating and curious mentality can be seen here. You do not just accept everything you read or hear. Your analytical mind must consider all aspects before deciding what you can accept and what you cannot. Logic and systematic thinking also come into play often.

You tend to expect the same high degree of discipline from others as you do for yourself. You appear to be a bit judgmental of those who do not measure up to your personal yardstick.

A strong need for people in your life cannot be missed. And while you are clearly able to stand on your own two feet you do seek emotional support from those around you.

Seemingly, you are prone to imagine slights or hurts that result from criticism of your personal appearance. Possibly this is the residue from past criticism, but it can be counterproductive to developing positive relationships.

Past experiences have also taught you not to show your feelings too freely and to employ restraint in your responses. However, you are not one to back away from confrontation. Sarcasm, which is your defense mechanism, is freely used when you find yourself in a threatening position.

Your penchant for planning and the implementation of that planning should go a long way toward getting you off to a smooth transition in this move.

New church is dream come true

By JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

For 17 years, worshippers at the Nativity of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church have held services in a renovated ranch house. That'll change before too long, with the construction of a new building under way.

"It's been a dream to build a new church," said the Rev. Michael Varlamos, priest for the Plymouth Township parish, on Five Mile between Haggerty and I-275. "They've been waiting for such a long time."

The groundbreaking for the building, on the same site as the ranch house now being used, was last November. Construction work began a few weeks later. In mid-July, the bishop of the Detroit Diocese of the Greek Orthodox Church presided over the blessing of the cornerstone.

"It's coming along," Varlamos said. Parish members hope to have the masonry completed soon, and have the metal trusses and ceiling in place by the end of August.

After that, construction workers will concentrate on enclosing the building. Interior work will be done during the winter, and worshippers hope to hold Easter 1993 services in the new building.

The facility will be just over 12,000 square feet, and will include a meeting room and offices, Varlamos said. The church is a copy of a 14th century Byzantine-type church. In fact, the architect traveled to Greece to do some research.

"Very little of it is contemporary," the priest said.

The building will be in the shape of a cross and will face toward the east, as is traditional for a Greek Orthodox church. The left portion will house a small chapel dedicated to a saint, not yet chosen by church members. That area will be used for weekday worship.

The right portion will have a baptismal font and small altar.

The first phase of the project will cost about $1 million, Varlamos said. That will include some of the furnishings, although Greek Orthodox churches include a great deal of art work that'll be added gradually.

Most likely, worshippers will begin with an icon screen for the front of the sanctuary next year, and add on after that. Parishioners are providing much of the financial support for the project, and some will donate various icons.

Icons: Greek Orthodox churches include a great deal of art work, according to the Rev. Michael Varlamos, priest at Nativity of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church.

Dream come true: Construction is under way at the Five Mile site of the new Nativity of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church.

For many years, church members have participated in the Plymouth Fall Festival, selling such foods as shish kebab and Greek pastries. They'll continue that fund-raising tradition this September, with some of the proceeds supporting the building project.

"It's being built to the glory of God," said Varlamos, who grew up in the very church he now serves as priest.

The church was founded 17 years ago by a small group of Greek Orthodox families, and now includes about 225 families. For Varlamos, nearly 30, who served as an altar boy and in youth organizations at the parish, it's been rewarding to see the construction work begin.

He doesn't even mind the occasional inconvenience and the noise construction has created. "Actually, it's a joyous pain in the neck."

He grew up in Livonia, graduated from Bentley High School in 1980 and attended a seminary in Boston. He'd planned to go to Greece to do doctoral work, but heard from the local bishop about the parish being available. Varlamos discussed it with his wife and decided to return to his hometown area, arriving at the church about 3 1/4 years ago.

Prior to his arrival, church members had considered building a community center with banquet facilities, and then using the proceeds to finance construction of a church. They discovered the sewer capacity at the site wouldn't allow such a project.

His predecessor as priest was transferred to Buffalo, N.Y. For about half a year, the parish had no priest and membership dropped.

"Now things have been regenerated. The people are committed once again," Varlamos said. "It's a growing parish. We're very happy."

God gives love equally, so should we

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. DAVID STRONG

My son purchased a beautiful glass vase this week. It was made in Yugoslavia. He said to the salesperson, "Maybe I could get this at a better price in Yugoslavia, but I wouldn't want to go there now." The salesperson did not catch the reference to the terrible war going on in that nation.

Most of us seem to be oblivious to the terrible war that is going on in that place. It seems so far away. Now that half a million refugees are streaming into western Europe we might begin to take notice.

This terrible war is a specter of what could happen in many places in the world, even in America. Imagine that the war in Yugoslavia were going on here. One suburb would be designated as the place that all Irish Catholics must live. Another suburb would be reserved only for English Protestants.

Everyone of Oriental heritage would have to move to one community. Those who have come from the Middle East would have to be sorted out by national origin and religion and assigned places to live. Every community would become a ghetto.

It is hard to imagine the horror of such a reality. The animals of this planet would seem to be enlightened creatures compared with such human folly.

This is what racism and intolerance is all about. Fear becomes the pervading sin. In such manner fear can destroy civilization and the human gift of love.

A woman told me recently about her grandfather. He was a slave. After being freed he lived most of his life in Alabama. He passed down to his family a kind of wisdom which is wonderful.

He said, "Know that those who misuse and hate you because of your color are ignorant people. Feel sorry for them. Pity them. The hate within their souls will destroy them. To their evil you return good."

must be added an important point. Who will prevent bigots from unleashing their venom of violence upon others?

The issues of respect and equal treatment and opportunity must be founded upon sound religious values. People are born unequal. Yet God's love is equally given to every human being. It is easy to acknowledge God's love. It is very difficult to put this into practice by acknowledging that every human being is a brother and a sister.

We can look at the horror of war in Yugoslavia and say "pity them. It can't happen here." We cannot be certain that it won't happen here, if people of moral wisdom do not commit themselves to understanding and healing.

Intolerance and fear wound the human community. The wounds go deep as we know from the Nazi incursion. Persons of wisdom and courage are needed to hold back the tide of intolerance.

Diversity is difficult to sustain in any community because of the intolerance and fear that comes from all directions. Today, the gift of diversity and community is the greatest gift we can offer to one another.

Indeed, diversity is the greatest gift that God has to offer to us. Diversity challenges our ability to love, to reconcile, to communicate and to understand. Diversity challenges our tribal brain which constantly threatens to take us back to the extinction of species, the human species.

For human beings, extinction is not primarily a physical matter. Genocide indicates an inability to discern spirit in the midst of diverse appearances. It feeds upon the fear of losing one's own identity. It is a most narrow vision of life.

There is a blindness that infects the American body politic. Few of our leaders seem to be taking the issues of intolerance and discrimination seriously. Perhaps there is a fear among politicians that to mention issues of race or equality would lead to the turmoil of the 1960s.

Yet the issue is just under the surface. Religious people must address this primary issue of fear which underlies intolerance and the unwillingness to confront it.

Passersby can't miss the new roof and 23-foot-high cross which tower above the trees surrounding Divine Savior Community Church on Joy Road, west of Hix Road, in Westland.

Beneath the roof is nearly 5,500 square feet of new construction for the Catholic church, which serves 660 families primarily from Westland, Plymouth, Livonia and Canton.

The construction for Divine Savior's church expansion project took a little more than a year and $2.1 million to complete.

Parishioners began celebrating Mass in the new space the weekend of July 11-12. The Rev. Alexander Kuras, pastor since 1980, led a spirited procession from the former worship space into the new building. The celebration included a special song of tribute, "Today We Enter the House of God," composed for the occasion by music minister Mark Kesson of Plymouth.

The expanded portion of the church houses the parish's first permanent worship space since it was founded in 1973. The newly constructed space also includes a chapel, reconciliation room, gathering space, restrooms and administrative offices.

Outside, the 45-foot-high cedar-shingled roof appears to hover in the air among the densely wooded grounds, an effect designed by the architectural firm Sauriole, Bodde, Wagner of Sterling Heights. The firm has worked on numerous church designs, including St. Richard in Westland and St. Rene Goupil in Sterling Heights.

"Not only did we need a permanent worship space, but also the old building lacked both visibility from Joy Road and identity as a Catholic church," said Kuras. "Our new structure provides a beautiful solution."

The former worship space, attached to the east end of the newly constructed building, is now being used for classrooms, meeting rooms and parish activities.

When the parish began, it was known as "the Catholic Community along Joy Road." Masses were held at Fiegel Elementary School across the street. The parish dedicated its first building in 1978.

Now, 14 years later, the parish will re-dedicate the expanded facility at a ceremony planned for Nov. 6. Archbishop Adam J. Maida will preside over the dedication.

Throughout the parish's history, the word joy has remained a constant theme that will be highlighted in song, decoration and other elements of the dedication ceremony this fall.

"It was a part of our original name and is the basis for the parish logo," said Adele Mihalik, a founding member of the parish. "With the addition of a permanent worship area and larger space to accommodate more families, we are definitely filled with joy!"

Natural Light: Natural light floods into the new worship space from windows in the 45-foot-high ceiling at Divine Savior Church of Westland.

Have a pleasant try at perfection

Many of Hollywood's finest have dabbled at bridge with unusual enthusiasm and some of them have become accomplished.

Lou Holtz of Sam Lapides story fame and Lea Brown of "The Band of Renown" were certainly two of the glitzy city's greats. The ageless George Burns once played a fine game, but since Gracie's passing he only has time for girls.

Billy Wilder, producer of the unforgettable "The Apartment," still plays to this day twice a week and his game is commendable. Don Adams of TV's "Get Smart" is another who has taken the game seriously.

But the two whose comedy and glory are legendary were Groucho and Chico Marx. Groucho was by far the star at gin, but Chico was the leader at bridge. As a partnership they would play any game, with anyone for any amount.

Both were often accused of purposely diverting their opponents concentration with their wonderful wit and whimsy. Charlie Goren once said that it was practically impossible to keep a straight face when they were in a stake game against you.

Their defensive playing conventions were unprecedented if not comically unethical. As Chico would say to his brother, "If you like my lead, don't bother to signal with a high card, just nod your head."

Chico, as dummy, once placed his 13 cards in play composed of four queens, a king and a jack. As he did so he was heard to say, "I always bid, sometimes more with less." With this trash he had opened the bidding and shifted Groucho's response which landed them in a precarious three no trump that Groucho somehow successfully managed.

On another occasion, Chico and his matchless mustached brother challenged West Coast star Lew Mathe and Goren to a leviathan-sized stake game. Chico wanted to hold the match at the Rose Bowl for he knew it would draw a big crowd, but gambling laws restricted play for pay in public places so wiser minds decided on the men's locker room at The Wilshire Country Club.

This wasn't satisfactory for the Marx brothers as the fire marshal's ordinance limited attendance to 62, but Chico agreed to make the best of it. As he later stated, "It was a close match until the first deal, but we did pretty good."

It seems that he had sold kibitzer tickets at $50 a head. George Burns was actually there and recalled that after the Marxes had paid their card losses they still had $2,100 left from the gallery's gratuity.

It was at this propitious incident that Chico introduced "The Braille System" as both loved to bid it gave them a better chance to foolingly feel their way around. On today's hand, from that match, Chico once again displayed his genius in a delusive series of bids that was especially dexterous. It fashioned the only lead the comedians enjoyed that afternoon as the pros took charge thereafter and showed the Marx Brothers something about bridge.

Some of you may wonder what in the world is going on when you read the bidding for Chico's four heart call was almost as abnormal as the hand. His intention after originally passing was to convey a specific message. His was a cue bid of a partner's opening call — a high caliber splinter showing first round control of that suit and superb support for clubs.

Give it some thought. What else could it mean? Imaginative, I agree, but if he really had heart support he would have shown it over Goren's informative double by redoubling or raising hearts. The star of "You Bet Your Life" read it perfectly and let Chico take command.

Six spades by Goren and Mathe is only off 1100, but Chico would have none of that, bidding seven clubs and a plus 2140. This, of course, produced a big round of applause from the men's room paid attendance and the Marx Brothers loved it.

Women artists eyeing fine art invitational

As original ideas go, it's a winner. A fine art show featuring investment-quality works of up to 10 local professional women artists is on the drawing board thanks to an idea that came to mind for Plymouth gallery owner and art instructor Sharon Dillenbeck two years ago.

"The purpose of such an event would be to let people know we're out there, that there are quality women artists right here, close to home," said Dillenbeck, owner of D & M Art Studios in Plymouth and co-juror for the first Canton Liberty Fest Fine Art Show in July.

Other planning committee members include Canton artist Gwen Dietrich (pastels), Livonia artist Sue Argiroff (marbling), Garden City artist Norma McQueen (landscapes) and Northville artist Julie Giordano (realism). They'd like to add to their ranks a three-dimensional artist — perhaps a sculptor.

An Art Institute of Pittsburgh graduate and a professional artist for 15 years, Dillenbeck creates realistic impressionism in pencil, watercolor and oil.

The Canton resident envisions a melding of diverse artistry in a multitiered group committed to showcasing their work in a setting classier than a typical art exhibit.

Preliminary plans call for the by-invitation event to be held in the Marriott Hotel at Detroit Metropolitan Airport this fall. Each artist would display about 30 original pieces. "We're going to have to pull on our reputations to get people there," Dillenbeck said.

A timely opportunity

Argiroff, a retired Livonia teacher and a professional marbler and instructor for seven years, says there's "a lot of very good women artists out there but who are all struggling to do their own marketing. I think the timing's right for this kind of show. It's done annually on the east side of town."

Marbling is the art of floating paints atop an Irish seamount bath, then transferring them with a special rake or comb to paper, leather, fabric or wood. Argiroff has studied under Rose Marie Starke at David Messing's Art Store & More in Livonia and internationally renowned marbler Polly Fox in Taos, N.M.

Dietrich, a graphic designer and illustrator by day and a professional artist by night, sees the invitational "elevating the status of women artists."

A graduate of Parsons School of Design in New York, Dietrich hopes the event "motivates other women to discover and develop their individual talent, to believe in themselves, to have goals and pursue them. It's so important to work at something you love, to find that spark of creativity within yourself."

A fatherly inspiration

Although she does one-woman shows and exhibits at fine art fairs, Dillenbeck says folks who know her best as an art teacher aren't familiar with her artwork unless they visit her gallery.

The death of her father last Christmas inspired her to pursue the dormant idea: "He was my real inspiration, my soul mate, in doing all that I do with art. He even helped me pick out the building for my gallery. 'Without him, I felt kind of like an island, wondering what to do next. I decided I was going to give it 200 percent or I was going to quit.'"

Strong sales at Plymouth's Art in the Park in July also buoyed her spirits.

Come Sept. 1, Dillenbeck plans to change her 3-year-old gallery into a studio gallery primarily for her work. She'll move the kids' art classes and camps she offers to the Plymouth Cultural Center.

D & M started as a cooperative but neither that nor the present multiuse gallery have worked out.

"I want to paint here, have private lessons here, maybe show the works of a select number of artists here," Dillenbeck said. "I've got to do it smarter."

A popular art instructor in Plymouth, Canton and Northville for budding artists of all ages, Dillenbeck has a simple philosophy:

"We give them the means to see art better, we give them all the materials, we teach techniques, then we let them create. We don't grade on creativity, just following technique. Art is a matter of taste in most instances anyway."

Dillenbeck continues to work on her "The Child and Her Environment" series, running from early September through October in the Harvest Room at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. The 24-piece watercolor and oil series, showing kids in all walks of life, is four years in the making.

Many of the pieces are patterned after her 7- and 9-year-old daughters in everyday situations. "Skittles," for example, is an oil showing the kids in costume as Raggedy Ann and a clown, sitting as models for a senior-citizen art class.

Art shows to help boost symphony season

SPECIAL WRITER

Visual art students at Livonia's Bentley Center believe in supporting all of the arts. So they're teaming up with the business community to promote the Livonia Symphony Orchestra's 1992-93 season.

Artists Mary Brennan, Sophie Rainko and Ruth Melvin of Livonia, Mona Campbell of Westland, Eleanor Perry of Dearborn and Kaoru Ienaga of Novi will exhibit six floral watercolors Aug. 14-18, at Livonia Mall, Seven Mile and Middlebelt; Aug. 18-28 at Wonderland Mall, Plymouth and Middlebelt; and Aug. 28-31 at Laurel Park Place, Newburgh and Six Mile.

"We thought it was a nice way to mix the arts and what nicer way to attract attention to the symphony display than with paintings," Brennan said.

"The symphony's very enjoyable and I thought if there was something I could do... so I volunteered. We're all working together. Olin Corp. owns the booth, our teacher Marilyn Campeau had the paintings mounted and matted, and the three malls are donating space so that the symphony can have a display on its new season."

Brennan, a LSO season ticket holder for two years, volunteered to help Laura Tew, LSO board member and Olin Corp. plant manager, with the orchestra's publicity at the end of last season.

"It was Mary Brennan's idea. She wanted to help the symphony. She came to me and said, 'Wouldn't it be neat to have the visual arts saluting the performing arts?'" Tew said. "I think to combine the talents of these wonderful artists with our community orchestra is just a natural."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Three Observerland artists will showcase their work in the Harvest Room at Schoolcraft College, on Haggerty, north of Six Mile, in Livonia.

Canton artist Sharon Dillenbeck will exhibit her "The Child and Her Environment" series early September to Oct. 31. The 24-piece watercolor and oil series shows her kids in action in everyday situations.

Art Beat

Livonia marbler Sue Argiroff will follow with a 30-piece display of her art form on fabric, clothing and paper Nov. 2 to Dec. 20.

Farmington Hills artist V. Janus Benda will feature her mixed-media paintings from January to early May.

Argiroff, 3 Cities Art Club president, organized this three-part exhibition to "enhance the room. Sales are probably secondary. The purpose is for people to appreciate the art that's in the area."

"The reason we chose their art is because our chefs have a real strong bent toward having American art displayed in the Harvest Room," said Stephanie Hall, Schoolcraft publications specialist.

"Sharon will show a lot of autumn themes. Sue's marbling is very contemporary and the most unusual of the three. Janus does landscapes, florals and structures in everything from watercolor and oil to collage and pen and ink — a whole range."

Harvest Room hours are noon to 1:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday starting in early September.

MAT AND FRAME

A workshop on matting and framing your artwork will be held 7-9:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 26, in The Art Gallery at Sheridan Square, 30116 Ford Road, in Garden City.

The fee is $10. The instructor is Daniel Showalter. To register, call 261-0379 or visit the gallery between noon and 5 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays.

On Saturday, Aug. 15, Demgen will demonstrate how she achieves reflective qualities in oil, acrylic and watercolor from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the atrium outside the new gallery space.

The opportunity to watch her create reflections opens a window of insight on everyday subjects ranging from lakes to teapots.

"I want to be able to show all three styles — oil, acrylic and watercolor. The reflective objects show my reflection techniques. I will demonstrate using liquid frisket for watercolor. The frisket saves the white for me," Demgen said in an interview at her Livonia home.

"I will show a controlled wash technique where you turn your work upside down to allow the paint to run to give reflections of distant trees, land masses and clouds. For the public, it's a small example. It's a trigger for the imagination."

"Still Life with Candles and Oranges" by Demgen employs flat planes of color, contrasting the delicacy of a lace scarf and reflective crystal bowl.

"For acrylics, I will demonstrate hard-edge painting techniques," she said. "My intention was to make the objects in this still life so large that it wasn't reality."

In oil, Demgen will spotlight a wet-into-wet technique used in the landscape, "White Trees on the River."

"I'll be showing how to paint a wide brush background," Demgen said.

White, barren trees in the foreground accent the winter scene with an icy coldness. "I love adding the white," Demgen said. "It's the last thing you add but it's the frosting on the cake."

Working at a French easel, Demgen uses a palette knife to create texture in a painting of Germany's landscape. "There are a lot of layers of paint in this landscape," Demgen said. "I'm using a palette knife to add texture."

The easel was a retirement gift from colleagues at Livonia Churchill High School. Demgen retired in June after 27 years as an art teacher in Birmingham and Livonia schools. The last four years, she taught gifted visual arts students in the Creative and Performing Arts program in Livonia.

Demgen earned her master of fine arts degree from Marygrove College in Detroit and a bachelor of science degree from Wayne State University.

As a professional artist, Demgen has painted for more than 30 years. She specializes in commissioned work.

Demgen has exhibited in one-woman shows at Livonia's Greenmead Historical Village, Livonia City Hall, Marygrove College and, for the last 20 years, the Livonia Board of Education.

This is her third solo exhibition at Atrium Gallery.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

camaraderie behind the LSO's 19th season. In addition to the main exhibits, the orchestra displays the watercolor at the first concert of the season Saturday, Oct. 10.

"If you're interested in art," Brennan said, "you're interested in all fields of art, music, the performing arts."

Although she painted in high school, Brennan set down her brushes to raise a family. After her husband died in 1986, she resumed art studies through the Livonia Public Schools continuing education program.

"We appreciate the opportunity to have art classes at Bentley Center and wanted to share our work with another civic group such as the LSO," Brennan said. "Both groups are involved in the arts. It seemed very natural, and light and airy spring flowers go with music."

Melvin's "Wild Rose," a watercolor on paper, waited a lifetime to bloom.

"I retired and painting was always something I wanted to do. This was a good project to get involved with the symphony. After all, we're all in the arts," Melvin said.

Rainko joined the watercolor class last fall. "We just thought it would be a good idea to come to the aid of the symphony," Rainko said. "The paintings were all done from life. I just picked a branch of crab apple in spring, then painted it on location."

There are as many reasons for painting as there are members in this small group, composed primarily of senior citizens.

"It's relaxing and it's something you created," said Perry, an art student for two years.

years ago, joined the class in January.

"I took the class to learn English. My English teacher said it's good practice but I'm concentrating when I draw," Ienaga said.

Laurel Park Place Mall, a Schostak Brothers venture, strives to support the arts in Livonia. It annually co-sponsors a taste-bud teaser benefit (Oct. 18 this year) with the Livonia Symphony Society.

"It's a nice opportunity to see the visual artists we have here in the community. It's a unique idea: they go hand in hand and it's an educational event," said Michael Buescher, Laurel Park Place marketing director. "It falls in line with our ongoing support of the community."

Tew stresses that with all the innovations "it's going to be an exciting season."

In addition to the Series A concerts at Livonia Churchill High School and Series B chamber-style concerts at Livonia Civic Center Library, the LSO has added Series C for children. Tickets are $3 for children, $5 for adults.

"With our new children's series, we can honestly say we have something for everyone," said Livonia Symphony Society president Ken Kelsey of Farmington Hills.

Also available this year is a family ticket with a $40 savings for a family of four, Tew said.

"The LSO is proud to receive the support of the artists. This demonstrates that all the members of the art community share the love and joy of creativity," said Francesco DiBlasi, LSO music director/conductor.

Tune into piano sale

Wayne State University will have its first-ever piano liquidation sale noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 30, in the Schaver Music Building at Cass and Kirby.

Parking is available. Preview showings may be arranged by appointment only. For more information or to make an appointment, call the music department at 577-1795.

Most of the more than 50 pianos are year-old, institutional-grade instruments on loan from the Kawai Piano Co. to the university for student use under a program developed by David Magidson, dean of the College of Fine, Performing and Communication Arts, chairman Dennis Tini and Professor Peter Schoenbach of the music department.

Kawai sells the instruments to the general public after 12 months of use at prices substantially less than retail.

The instruments, in a variety of colors and finishes, range from uprights and studio pianos to baby grands and smaller grands, on up to a $35,000, 7 foot 5 semi-concert grand.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Baby boomers expected to bypass retiree locales

Demographers are predicting that among those seeking a new home for retirement, many will avoid sunbelt retirement communities. They will opt instead for areas offering a lower cost of living, open spaces, four-season weather and rigorous outdoor activities.

Century 21 Real Estate Corp. reports that the trend toward alternative retirement areas is already starting now that many prebaby boomers are shopping for final retirement destinations.

Oscoda is the only Michigan area cited by Century 21 brokers among the 13 areas they say typify popular alternative retirement spots.

"As people from Wurtsmith Air Force Base leave Oscoda because of the base closing, more and more quality homes have become available at affordable prices. Combine the low purchase price of a home with a relatively low property tax rate, and it is easy to see why the Oscoda area is a favorite of older adults," the report says.

"The 'sunrise side' of the state is an affordable option for people who want property on or near the Great Lakes but have been 'priced out' of Lake Michigan areas. With two interior lakes, the famous AuSable River and Lake Huron on the doorstep, fishing and water sports are plentiful.

"In addition to a low crime rate and numerous community and civic organizations, Oscoda offers quality health care services at nearby Tawas City. People can spot bald eagles in the Huron National Forest and experience the lumber industry of days gone by. Cross country skiing, snowmobiling, fishing, hunting and antiquing are just a few activities to enjoy on the eastern shore of Lake Huron."

The report says Oscoda homes average $70,000 with lakefront properties higher. A typical "retirement" home would have 1,400-1,800 square feet with three bedrooms, two baths, two-car garage and fireplace and average $85,000. Although prices have depreciated approximately 20 percent due to the base closure, Century 21 predicts they will come back within the next few years. The report says Oscoda's retiree population is expected to increase by 25 percent within the next five years, with many relocating from the Detroit area, southern and western Michigan, Ohio and Canada.

While the number one criteria for retirement places used to be a paradise climate, it is now a low cost of living and that includes the cost of the areas' homes, according to David Savageau, author of "Retirement Places Rated."

"People who are including relocation among their retirement goals are more affluent, better educated and in better health than earlier generations of older adults," he said. "They want to continue working, perhaps by practicing their professions as part-time or seasonal consultants."

central to the selected alternative retirement spots' projected popularity.

- Areas selected by Century 21 are:
- Brick Township, N.J.;
 - Chewelah, Wash.;
 - Crestline/Lake Gregory, Cal.;
 - Eufaula, Ok.;
 - Fredericksburg, Texas;
 - Galena, Ill.;
 - Guntersville, Ala.;
 - Hamilton, Mon.;
 - Haywood County, N.C.;
 - Minocqua, Minn.;
 - Ozark County, Mo.;
 - Southside, Va.

Environmentalist opposes condo's choice of insecticide

Our condominium is thinking about spraying trees with an insecticide that I believe is potentially toxic and may be prohibited. The excuse that the association is giving is that it will save the association thousands of dollars in shrub replacement costs. As a homeowner and environmentalist, what can I do?

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Ascertain exactly what the board intends to do and determine whether there are any prohibitions on the use of that insecticide in your municipality or whether it has otherwise been determined to be toxic.

If either is the case, I would demand that the board retreat from the position of utilizing a toxin. If it will not, I would go immediately to court to seek a restraining order against the association or seek the municipality's intervention. You could start the case as a class action suit in behalf of the other members and ask for reimbursement of your costs and attorney fees as well as

■ If the board is within its rights, you can make your protest.

But if the board is within its rights, you can make your protest, but it will have the right to do what it is undertaking even though you may not like it.

In our deed the association has the authority to regulate each property owner's use of certain common facilities. The deed said that in that association was formed, the lot owners would be bound by rules and regulations concerning the use of the development facilities. There is no express provision giving the association the right to impose assessments on the property owners to fund the maintenance of these facilities. Can our association impose any assessments on these members?

In a recent Pennsylvania Superior Court case, it was held that implied in the regulations, concerning the use of the facilities, it is the necessity for rules concerning the maintenance of these facilities. The court went on to say that in that case, although the deed did not explicitly spell out the exact obligation of the lot owners with regard to the payment of dues for maintenance and repairs, it held that the owners were obligated to contribute for the repair and maintenance. The analogy is residential communities to many governments that are dependent on assessments to maintain and provide essential recreational facilities.

Simply put, the court was saying that when owners are allowed to utilize roads and other common areas, there is an implied agreement to accept the proportionate cost for maintaining and repairing these facilities. While the result is not guaranteed in Michigan, the association should seriously consider pursuing the owners for assessments after getting a legal opinion.

BUILDING SCENE'S NAMES & PLACES

Business development choice

Frederick J. Liesveld of Birmingham has been named director of business development for Campbell/Manix. He will be responsible for negotiation of design/build contracts.

He formerly was the business development manager for R.A. DeMattia Co.

Campbell/Manix will participate in the groundbreaking of Cadillac Loosleaf Products office and manufacturing facility in Troy on Aug. 21. It will provide the design, engineering and construction for the project.

Liesveld

New banking step

Robert J. Joseph of Bloomfield Hills has been appointed manager of the Bank of Bloomfield Hills' newly formed commercial mortgage department.

Joseph, a commercial mortgage specialist, has more than 18 years of banking experience. Most recently he served as senior vice president at Huntington Bankshares, where he oversaw Michigan and Ohio commercial placement offices.

Previously, he served as vice president and manager at Empire of America. He serves on the income property committee of the Michigan Bankers Association.

The department offers consulting and brokerage services to commercial real estate developers and owners seeking to receive permanent loans or sell properties.

Joseph

Contracts awarded

The Plenda Cos. of Farmington Hills will design and build an addition and renovate the current space of Carrier & Gable in the Farmington Freeway Industrial Park. Plenda will also design and build an addition to Richard Tool & Die, 28600 Grand River.

Retirement option

Botsford General Hospital and Botsford Continuing Health Center have announced plans for Botsford Commons, 90 privately owned homes, 48 apartments and 50 assisted-living units.

It will be built on the grounds of Botsford Continuing Health Center (formerly Farmington Nursing Home) at Tuck and Folsom roads.

Individuals will own their own homes and pay a monthly association fee for services such as 24-hour emergency medical call, transportation, trash removal and grounds maintenance. Other services, such as meal preparation, will be available on a fee-for-service basis.

Developer is Botsford Development Corp; architect/planner is Bowers and Rein Associates of Ann Arbor; consultant is the National Retirement Corp.

Studios question

Great minds are said to think alike, and a group of University of Michigan faculty is hoping enough academicians will think they want to live in a new condominium development for retiring staff.

The group has staked out 17 acres in an 80-acre privately owned plot in Ann Arbor Township to build a 100-unit condominium building. The rest of the Washtenaw County plot would be developed into single-family homes. The condos would go for $100,000-$200,000.

The Universities of Virginia and Minnesota have similar communities.

To qualify for the Ann Arbor condominium, potential residents must be at least 50 years old and have some present or past work relation to the university. They also must have $1,300 as a downpayment.

The association hopes work starts on the site next spring and that it can be finished a year after that.

New house sales surge

New home sales jumped 7.9 percent nationally in June, breaking a string of four consecutive declines. Sales were pulled up by rebounds in the Northeast and West.

Sales totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 572,000 last month, up from 530,000 in May, said the departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development.

Sales had dropped 0.9 percent in May, an improvement over an earlier estimate of a 5.6 percent drop. They fell 3.6 percent in April, 11.5 percent in March and 6 percent in February. They had risen 15.4 percent in January.

Because of the big increase at the start of the year, sales for the first six months of this year, 314,000, were 18 percent higher than the first half of 1991.

Looking ahead, economists are expecting July to show some pickup because mortgage interest rates have been falling in response to an interest rate reduction by the Federal Reserve on July 2.

Regionally, sales of new homes jumped 30.3 percent to an annual rate of 86,000 in the Northeast. They were up 28.9 percent in the West to a rate of 147,000.

In the Midwest, they fell 2.9 percent to 101,000. In the South, sales dropped 2.8 percent to 239,000.

The median price of a new home, meaning half the homes sold cost more and half less, was $122,500 in June, up from $111,000 in May and $119,000 a year ago.

Societal changes hasten country club renovations

Today's country clubs must appeal to a wider membership, who seek more diverse activities than the founding members. Transforming aging country club facilities into those that are functional and aesthetically appealing requires more than a cosmetic approach.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Kenneth F. Evangelista approaches renovating a country club like remodeling a home. Maybe that's why the Birmingham architect has been so much in demand by area clubs in recent years.

Evangelista has put his professional signature on Orchard Lake Country Club, Forest Lake Country Club and Bloomfield Hills Country Club and is in the process of putting together plans to remodel Pine Lake Country Club, all in Oakland County.

"Most were built in the early 1900s," Evangelista said. "They don't seem to function the way people use them today."

"Years ago, most people lived in the city of Detroit and drove out to the country to spend a day or a weekend here. It would be almost like someone's big house they'd go to."

"Over time, usage changed," he said. "Women came into the club more frequently. Kids came out. It evolved from the way it functioned as an original club. It didn't offer what members needed — swimming, tennis. Dining rooms were too small, kitchens too small."

Just like home

Evangelista developed an appreciation for large historic houses from his father, Joseph, an architect who designed stately homes in Grosse Pointe.

"I've always taken the approach that a country club is an extension of the home," said Evangelista, 44. "You use it in the same way. It's just bigger. You have the same usages — sitting areas are like living rooms. You have kitchens, dining areas."

"Everything's just on a grander scale. Spaces are larger. Just trying to keep proportions and aesthetics to fit spaces is the task of the architect," he said.

Virtually every renovation involves updating the mechanical plant — heating, air conditioning, electrical and plumbing, Evangelista said.

"Clubs are spending $500,000 to $5 million depending on how much work they need," he said. "Normally they appoint a small committee that serves as a cross section of the membership. Lots of times, people involved are in construction so they have a working idea of what it takes to do."

Wish list and finances

"By interviewing people who work for the club, management, people who use it, we develop a program as to what we perceive their needs are. After developing a wish list, we develop solutions."

"They like to do a master plan... they can follow through generations," Evangelista said. "Then whatever they feel they can afford and get approval for, we'll do part or all of it."

Some recent projects identified by Evangelista:

- Orchard Lake Country Club — Created a new formal dining room. Totally renovated kitchens, employee areas, service entrances and loading dock.

- Forest Lake Country Club — Completely redid interior and exterior including window treatments, brickwork, stairway entrances. Also, renovated pool and pool building plus a new tennis building.

- Bloomfield Hills Country Club — Renovated north wing of existing clubhouse including ladies lockerroom and a small dining room.

Evangelista also has put together plans to redesign Pine Lake Country Club from a more contemporary to traditional look.

Appearance follows function

"Most efficient function is the priority," he said. "Appearance comes after you know the function," he said.

"The challenge is to prepare a plan that appeals to everyone. You have 300 people who all don't use the club the same way. Some are drinkers, some are non-drinkers. Some like to dine formally, others informally."

"Second, is to make something that fits." It isn't always easy to get a traditional appearance and conform with modern building codes as they apply to ramps, stairways and railings, he added.

Charles Knighton was president at Forest Lake when members narrowly voted to improve the club facilities beyond a $1 million plumbing and electrical update.

A big concern was the main dining room, which seated fewer than 100.

"Before we redid the club, we weren't getting membership. It was a pretty shabby place," Knighton said. "We weren't pulling in members with company accounts that drop in a lot of revenue for clubs."

"They're all happy (now)," he said. "Before we had to fight to keep membership full. Now, we have an 18-month waiting list."

Richard Vining was on the building committee for renovations at Bloomfield Hills Country Club.

Changes involve women

"We were trying to make it fit in with the building scheme," he said of the women's lockerroom, lounge and dining area. "The club was built in 1909. It needed to be updated. We gutted the second floor right down to the walls."

"We put a program together. Ken did our layout work, he did our renderings. We did a cost study. We had an interior decorator give us some ideas on themes. Women worked with us from beginning to end," Vining said.

Evangelista figures he's the right guy with the right experience at the right time to deal with major renovations.

"Clubs have run into the point where they've run out of Band-Aids. They have to be fixed," he said. "They've realized they must spend money or they won't be able to use the facility."

Big changes: Differences before and after renovations at Forest Lake Country Club are readily apparent in these pictures. Notice especially the roof lines, windows and brick treatment.

Home builders stress ripple effect of tax break for buyers

SPECIAL WRITER

(AP) — With new-housing demand remaining weak, and with some units in the existing-home market remaining unsold for most of a year, you might think the last thing the economy needs is more homes.

But it is not that simple. And because it isn't, legislators look to the home-building industry to spur the economy.

In what the National Association of Home Builders calls "a bold step to reinvigorate the economy," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., has proposed a $2,500 tax credit for first-time buyers of both new and existing homes.

NAHB president Robert "Jay" Buchert likes the idea, of course, because his members would benefit. But is Buchert justified in saying that the proposal is also the "perfect prescription to revive the sluggish economy?"

The home-building industry has long promoted the idea that its fortunes and those of the overall economy are intertwined, and perhaps with justification, since weakness in housing is often the first indication of recession.

If housing is a recession's first and often most extreme victim, then it follows — or so goes the argument — that a recovery in housing may also be the precursor of economic recovery.

The NAHB does its part to encourage that thesis. Housing construction, it says, "stimulates the economy directly by generating jobs, wages and tax revenues." That stimulation, it says, then "ripples" through the economy.

The construction of 1,000 single-family homes, says the NAHB, generates 1,759 worker-years of employment in construction and construction-related industries; $45.7 million in wages; $18.8 million in federal, state and local tax revenues; and $1.6 million in first-year local property taxes.

The ripple of demand for materials feeds strength to lumber producers, wall board manufacturers, asphalt shingle fabricators, paint manufacturers, pipemakers, distributors of refrigerators, sinks, tubs and garbage disposals.

The NAHB contention is convincing, but the questions remain:

Does the country need more housing? If it does, why hasn't there been more demand for housing from potential buyers?

Much weakness, economists say, is a result of general economic uncertainty rather than any disinterest by buyers. Unemployment and job insecurity are extremely high. Wages have barely risen. Political uncertainty prevails.

While conceding that there seems not to be a great demand in the marketplace, the economists say the potential is there, especially at the lower end of the price range. The trick, they say, is to realize that potential.

It is through statistics such as these that the housing people identify their cause with that of the nation's economy. Help us, they say, and you'll be helping yourself and your family. You help end the recession, find jobs for people, raise revenue, aid the poor.

Guide to mowing based on growth

AP — Mowing and watering your lawn are usually done whenever you have the time, rather than on a fixed schedule. But this routine isn't necessarily best for the grass.

Instead, let the lawn dictate when you mow, using the one-third rule. This rule stipulates that most grasses grow best if you don't cut more than one-third of their height at one time. Cutting more than one-third leaves too little leaf to gather sunlight and drive the photosynthesis process.

Let's say you mow the grass to a height of two inches. When it reaches three inches, mow it again. The one-third rule reduces mowing time by nearly a third, and the clippings are small enough that they don't need to be bagged.

Leaving short clippings on the ground is preferable to bagging them. Clippings don't add significantly to thatch because they are 90 percent water, and the 10 percent of the plant matter adds nutrients to the soil as it breaks down.

Will you need a mulching mower? Not if you follow the one-third rule faithfully. But there will be times when the grass has gotten ahead of you, and a mulching mower would be a big help. A good compromise, however, is a bagging mower that can be used without a bag.

Finally, don't mow your lawn too short. While some warm-weather grasses can be cut as low as 1½ inches, cool-weather grasses should never be cut shorter than two inches in the cooler months and 2½ inches to three inches during the hottest months.

Start to plan yard from the ground up

(Ap) — You have just moved into your new home and are eager to start giving your yard that "lived here for a long time" look. That's understandable, says an article in the current issue of Building Ideas. Before you draft an overall planting or decking plan, consider the following points to help you avoid costly — and time-consuming — mistakes:

- Start a garden notebook where you can accumulate information such as plant names, locations and bloom times.

- Start walking, watching, and working in your yard as soon as possible. Enjoy knowing that it is wise to start small and go easy. Place plants where success seems most likely.

- Experiment. When you get a packet of petunias, put half in one spot and half in another and see where they do best.

- Consider all these early plantings as temporary. If necessary, put treasured plants into large pots and move them around the yard to see where you like them and where they like to be.

- If you have a glaring need for shade, plant one or two key trees 20 to 30 feet to the west or south of your home's main living areas. Buy the largest trees you can afford — you'll soon recoup the cost if you have air conditioning, and the increased comfort from shade on hot summer days is priceless.

- Soak up information, impressions and experiences, whether you are in a new climate or another section of your old block. It will also take a full cycle of seasons to find the best location for a patio, which views to screen and which to enhance, where shadows fall, where the wind blows cold in the winter or breezes are most pleasant in the summer.

- Look at what is growing in the neighborhood. Flowers and ground covers that do well in front yards on one side of the street should do well in the backyards on the other. See what kinds of trees are most common, and which grow and look best. Also check the selection of plants at a nearby nursery. If something you like is missing, ask why. After a long-distance move, visit your county agent and pick up bulletins about growing plants in that area.

- Call in an expert to help you decide which trees to save if you are building a new house around trees already on the property. Protect trees not only from contact with the building machinery, but as much as possible from soil compaction. If you must change grades more than a few inches, build a well or a terrace for several feet around the trunk of an affected tree, or it could slowly die.

- Prune branches higher on maturing trees to get more light, air circulation, room to mow without ducking, or to open up views. This work will help you when it comes time to decide on final plans and to determine which, if any, trees to move.

- Don't wait for the conveniences you need. If sodding isn't an option, you can plant a temporary lawn of ryegrass that will green up in three weeks. When it's time to plant or sod a permanent lawn in the fall, till under the ryegrass and then improve the soil by adding fertilizer, organic matter or sand.

- If you need a path or a patio, make a temporary one with pine needles, wood chips or tanbark. By putting old cardboard, plastic or newspapers underneath, less mulch is needed.

- Test the placing. If you like it, you can lay flagstone or pour concrete the second year. If not, experiment.

- Build the simple and portable. If you don't want to wait a year for a deck, build a small one that you can move to a new place or incorporate into a larger deck at a later date.

- As the first year ends, select the best and most practical of these ideas and make a formal plan. Or, share your ideas with a landscape architect or designer, who can help you form a plan that can be implemented over several years.
