Bush pins 'gridlock' tag on Ford

President Bush went hunting in Canton on Tuesday. But it wasn't for pheasants, it was for a Ford. Bush took aim at longtime Democratic congressman Bill Ford during the first visit of a president to Canton in recent history.

STAFF WRITER

"Give 'em hell," shouted the Canton Township faithful, and George Bush did.

"I'm a little tired of congressmen that talk one way in Michigan and vote different in Washington, and I'll give you an example," the Republican president said Tuesday, targeting Bill Ford, D-Ypsilanti, chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee and a 28-year veteran of what Bush calls the "gridlock Congress."

In steaming Heritage Park, Bush said Ford "stood against schools of choice and just about every education reform I have put forward. And what's worse, the governor of Arkansas (Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton) agrees with him.

"Should parents have freedom of choice on where to send their kids to school? The governor and the congressman say no. I say yes.

"Do you want to say 'enough' to a Baghdad bully like Saddam Hussein? Gov. Clinton waffled; Congressman Ford said 'no way.' I say yes.

"Do you want a balanced budget amendment to discipline both the Congress and the executive branch? Gov. Clinton and Congressman Ford say no, and I say yes.

"Do you want to limit the terms of congressmen? Gov. Clinton and Congressman Ford say no, and I say yes, it's about time," Bush told the crowd of 5,000, many of them waving symbolic brooms.

"Let's do what those brooms say and clean House," Bush said, mentioning GOP congressional candidates Dick Chrysler of Brighton, Megan O'Neill of

While Bush faithful cheered, some Clinton backers protested

Just outside the Bush campaign rally Tuesday at Canton's Heritage Park, a few hundred demonstrators joined more than 1,000 supporters.

Along Cherry Hill, about 20 demonstrators held placards with slogans reading "Serbia-New World Horror" and "Pro Bush Pro Croatia."

About 30 Clinton supporters gathered outside the Canton Township hall, holding red, white and blue "Clinton for President" signs as lines of motorists waited, seeking parking for the rally.

"I don't think Bush has done a good job," said LAW member Roger Koronas of Wayne, who sported two large Clinton buttons.

Koronas said he was against Bush's free trade pact with Mexico, and the president's health care plan. "My brother died because he couldn't get health care," Koronas said.

Nearly, more than 50 Ford Willow Run plant employees gathered, holding signs with anti-Bush slogans.

Holding a placard reading "Quayle

For President? Don't Risk It" was Mark Kapell of Pittsfield, a 14-year Willow Run worker scheduled to lose his job next spring.

"I think we need a change of leadership in this country," Kapell said.

Carrying a Clinton banner was Robert Rome of Canton, who recently formed a Canton Democratic Club, and is a Democratic 16th Precinct delegate.

"I think he's here because he's losing ground in an area like this," Rome said.

"I think there's another part of the country being ignored," he said.

But Bush supporters outside the rally far outnumbered the demonstrators.

"We got here late," said Janis Acosta of Wyandotte, explaining why police around the rally perimeter wouldn't let her and hundreds of others inside as the president spoke.

"I think he's a good president. He's the most experienced man for the job," she said.

With her were Jenny McNeill of Troy, and Nicole Leveque of Farmington.

"He's a good president and he will continue to be," McNeill said.

Leveque said she was undecided. "I don't think he's done enough for the country," she said.

"I'm not sure that Clinton can do better, but we need to find somebody who can."

Also arriving late for the rally was Steve Landis, a salesman from Algonac.

Engler, Geake in limelight

An exuberant Gov. John Engler escorted President George Bush, who was driven in a black limousine to within feet of the Heritage Park stage as bands played and the crowd cheered.

Before introducing Bush, Engler addressed a sea of eager faces shouting

POLITICS

"This could be the Houston convention, you're that excited."

"Michigan and America need George Bush in the White House for three simple reasons," said Engler. "One, America needs jobs. Who do we trust to get the economy moving and to create new jobs?"

"Who do we trust to make this world freer and safer than ever before? We need a president we can trust, a proven statesman and world leader. Our president has a plan to triple-charge the economy and strengthen the auto industry, cut taxes, cut government spending, and keep the lid on inflation and interest rates, making it easier for you to buy homes and afford two cars. Under the leadership of President Bush, America is again the number one exporting country in the world."

Democratic presidential hopeful Bill Clinton would take away jobs, raise government spending, and increase taxes, putting jobs at risk, said Engler.

The governor praised Bush for his work in the international arena. "More people are free today thanks to President Bush than ever before in the history of the world," he said. "He has a vision for our nation, an agenda for change at home and across the globe."

Before Engler's speech, state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, told an enthused audience that "as the Republican candidate for Congress from this area, I'm ready to help President Bush get results for American taxpayers."

"With liberal Democratic career politicians out of the way," said Geake, "we can turn this country around and put Michigan back to work. We can cut taxes for American families, we can cut spending and get government back to basics. We can protect the values that made Americans great."

Geake attacked his Democratic opponent, U.S. Rep. William Ford.

President attracted to area by Reagan Dems

By BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

Michigan is considered to be a critical state in the November race to the White House and both candidates are expected to make several visits here. But what brought President George Bush to Canton Township Tuesday?

Canton is not a big city. It is not home to a major corporation. Actually, Canton is a fairly typical American community, more affluent than some, less affluent than others. There isn't a high crime rate. There is no extreme poverty.

The area we know as Canton Township, however, is very independent politically and therefore up for grabs by both parties. Bush is putting his dibs in early.

"There is a strong contingent of Reagan Democrats here and the Republicans will try to win them over," said Supervisor Tom Yack, who admitted to having no "corner on wisdom or insight" on the matter.

The township vote could easily swing to the Republican side helping the party on the state and national level.

Bush, who has blamed many of the country's economic problems on the Congress, may have seen this visit as an opportunity to knock out a strong Democratic veteran of Congress. Due to redistricting U.S. Rep. William D. Ford, who has been in office since the early 1960s, will face his toughest competition yet in Republican Robert Geake.

Republican Gov. John Engler has a similar mission which involves gaining a Republican majority in the state Legislature and centers on Canton Township. He hopes to defeat longtime state House of Representatives member James Kosteva with Republican candidate Deborah Whyman. Since state legislative district lines were also redrawn, Kosteva may also face his toughest race ever.

"(The Republicans) see the possibility of winning a seat in Congress and the state House," Yack said. "A visit by the President couldn't hurt."

Kosteva expected a visit from Bush, and said he would try to maintain momentum in his campaign by constantly forcing issues and experience to the forefront. Matching the campaign monies that are expected to be supplied to Whyman from the state party may prove to be more difficult, he admitted.

Whatever the strategic reason for the presidential visit, Yack said it was worth the effort.

"Having the candidates here helps to develop a better understanding of the issues and more interest in the election," Yack said.

He added that such events draw young people into the campaign and may encourage the development of more educated voters in the future.

Bush backers crowd Heritage Park

By BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

It was a case of leave your protest sign at the door as President George Bush delivered a 20-minute address to a group of more than 5,000 supporters crowded into Heritage Park in Canton Township.

Mostly Bush Quayside supporters braved the nearly 90-degree heat for the rally Tuesday afternoon.

A small contingent of Willow Run auto workers and proactive supporters attended the event to protest, but were told to leave their signs at the gate. They remained in the back of the crowd and their shouts were drowned out by the call of "four more years."

"It was very exciting," said Canton Clerk Loren Bennett. "For the president it was a campaign stop, but I consider this a presidential visit."

The crowd was made up of young and old alike anxious to catch a glimpse of Bush. Many of the youngsters were even too young to understand.

Amy Hauch of Canton said she doesn't follow politics and isn't really a Bush supporter, but "Mom + Denise Hauch thought it was important that they attend."

A member of the Young Muslims for Faith and Action said he is too young to vote now, but believes it is important to become involved. Jariq Hateez, 15, of Northville was with a group of young people asking that Bush consider taking a stronger stand in Sarajevo.

"We will be voters soon and we could not do this in our own country, so it is good that we are here," Hateez said.

Melissa McLaughlin, Republican candidate for Canton Township trustee, said she thought the event was a fitting way to close out the first season for Heritage Park.

"It's really great to have the president here. It means a lot to the community," McLaughlin said.

The last time a U.S. president made a trip to Canton Township was 1834. Andrew Jackson came to the area to designate it as a land grant territory. Bush has now been to the Plymouth-Canton area three times, twice as vice president.

Brenda Larcinese and her family attended just to get a glimpse of the president. From their vantage point, they could barely hear the speech.

"My husband just loves Bush and it's neat that the kids can look back and say they saw him," she said.

The Young family of Canton agreed that attending the event was even more important than the words that were said. They don't agree with everything the Republicans say, but they respect the man who is president of the U.S.

Most people in the crowd were pleased with the words they heard from the president.

"He appeals to all ages and has since the 1960s when he first came on the scene and that is important for the party," said longtime precinct delegate Gerry Lutz of Ann Arbor.

GOP turns Canton hall into White House annex

By BARBARA WILSON

It seemed that a secret in Canton Township — the hundreds of extras brought in — had plenty to do Monday as they prepared for President George Bush's visit.

Members of the beautification committee were beautifying township workers were hoisting flags and cleaning up Heritage park, safety personnel were planning and contractors were building a platform, ramp and stage.

Township had had to become a functioning White House annex and press headquarters for the first time and a half-hour visit of the president and Republican presidential candidates.

Township Clerk Loren Bennett said they knew about the visit nearly a month in advance, and it was a difficult secret to keep. Preparations, however, had to wait until the Republican campaign team and Secret Service arrived in town and a final schedule for the President was confirmed.

Nearly 60 new telephone lines had to be installed to accommodate television and newspaper crews, as well as White House operations in case of an emergency.

It's quite a blending of people, said Lt. Larry Stewart of the Canton police division.

Meetings on security began in earnest Friday as Secret Service personnel arrived in town. The entire Canton police force was on hand for the visit as well as the President's bodyguards, representatives of three branches of the armed services and Michigan State Police.

Everyone has their own issues to deal with, but we are basically working toward the same outcome, Stewart said.

The township meeting room was transformed into a press briefing room where Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater coordinated the visit with the national press. Carpeting was brought in for the office and furniture was placed just as a diagram sent earlier had indicated. Another room was converted into an office for the White House staff and Heritage Park became a fortress surrounded by security officers.

"I was told there would even be

Jogger reports indecent exposure

Police were called to the parking lot of the Lakepoint Village Apartments on Shadywood at 9:30 a.m. Friday, after a woman jogger said a man exposed himself while talking to her.

The woman, 28, said she was finishing jogging and entering the parking lot when a man in a car asked for directions. It was while he was talking to her that she noticed the man was naked and masturbating, according to the report filed with police.

She told police the man drove off toward Wil-

Plymouth Township police were called to the

As the officer arrived at 11:10 p.m., the woman approached him and said she'd struck the open door of a car parked along Tavistock near Joy Road.

The officer said he noticed a smell of liquor about the woman, and after testing her blood alcohol level arrested her for drunk driving.

Cops are teachers at 'Citizens Police Academy'

BY RALPH R. ECHINAW
STAFF WRITER

Although you can't earn college credit for it, the Canton police are taking reservations for a free 16-hour "Citizens Police Academy" course beginning Sept. 12.

The course is designed to give Canton residents 21 or older insight into the duties and responsibilities of police officers. It includes police station tours, a weapons demonstration and presentations by the Special Operations Team, narcotics unit and evidence technicians. When it's all over, students will be allowed to ride in squad cars if they want to.

The students will meet from 8 a.m. to noon on four consecutive Saturdays at the Canton police station. Call 397-6344 to sign up.

"Our feeling is that this is part of what we try to do," said police chief John Santomauro, "to bring an awareness of what these officers are doing out on the street, some of the frustrations the officers deal with, some of the stress."

According to police department spokeswoman Tammie Colling, "Surveys have been undertaken by some major cities and the findings were unsettling on just how naive many people are about both the role of the police officer and the nature of police work."

The first citizens police academy was founded in 1985 by the police department in Orlando, Fla. "The response to the academy was positive and the results powerful," according to Colling. "The citizens did not become 'junior police officers,' but rather the program fostered feelings of 'us' as opposed to the typical 'we-they' attitude that has been prevalent between police and residents."

Santomauro said that all over the country "there's a fascination with what police people do," but television and movies "tend to overstate some of the things we do."

So Canton's police chief aims to bring officers closer to township residents in other ways as well.

Within the next two weeks, he said, the selective enforcement unit (including motorcycle patrols) will concentrate on specific areas of the township with high crime rates, such as the mobile home parks.

It's time to give Bush's policies a chance, said Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, Republican candidate for Plymouth Township supervisor.

"I like what he had to say and we should give him time to make those policies work," Keen-McCarthy said.

Protestors were not so impressed with the president's words.

"When he said stricter emission standards would result in lost jobs in the auto industry, he was showing himself to be the most regressive president ever," said Rachel Solom of Ann Arbor.

Willow Run workers said they would be at Bush's every turn and would be fighting "tooth and nail," according to Suzanne Jackson.

Bozian and Croatian activists united with Muslim groups to make Bush aware of their concerns for their country.

"War is being waged on the babies in our country and we want the president to do something about it," one protestor said.

City workers put tents up to serve as concession stands to benefit the Canton Community Foundation and Republican volunteers distributed tickets to the event outside township hall. Mums replaced summer flowers in pots lining the sidewalk and walkways were swept.

Students find substance-free dorms to their liking

STAFF WRITER

They may have been created simply to pacify lawmakers, but drug- and alcohol-free dorm rooms at state-funded universities in Michigan have taken on a life of their own.

In 1989, David Honigman, then a state representative, at the request of some concerned Birmingham and West Bloomfield residents, introduced a proposal which would have required state-funded universities to provide special housing for those who don't want alcohol use in their room.

Nervous about the new bill, universities quickly created their own "substance-free" housing to comply with the bill, and figured that was the end of the issue. But it wasn't.

Now, many universities that initially set aside a small percentage of rooms for substance-free housing are finding that demand for the rooms is quickly outpacing supply.

At the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, for example, housing administrators started with 500 substance-free undergraduate room assignments, which were quickly filled. The following year, the university offered 1,400 such slots — and received 2,100 applications for them. This fall, U-M has set aside room for 2,000 students in substance-free housing, 20 percent of the university's total undergrad enrollment.

Under most universities' programs, students who opt for the special housing are expected to refrain from drug and alcohol use while in the room; they are not, however, required to abstain once they have left the dorm.

Not just teetotalers

"It's not a contract of teetotalers," said Alan Levy, director of public affairs for U-M's housing division.

Still, some schools do take the

'Oftentime, parents are the ones filling out the requests. If students are up there (in substance-free housing) drinking, it means their parents filled out the forms.'

Colleen Tompkins
Eastern Michigan University

ideal of physical well-being fairly seriously. At Oakland University in Rochester, the substance-free dorm of Anibal House is known as Wellness House for its attention to overall health.

The dorm, which has been filled to capacity since it was declared substance-free, offers a weight room, healthy food and developmental programs.

"It's a lifestyle choice for the students," said Jean Ann Miller, assistant director for student development at OU.

More and more students are making that choice; at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, the number of alcohol-free rooms leaped from 50 to 500 in three years.

Most university representatives offered two explanations for the demand. The optimistic view is that students are becoming more aware of the hazards of substance abuse.

"My gut feeling is, students are getting more education about alcohol," said Colleen Tompkins, who handles housing for Eastern Michigan University.

There is also a more pragmatic explanation.

"Oftentime," Tompkins acknowledged, "parents are the ones filling out the requests. If students are up there (in substance-free housing) drinking, it means their parents filled out the forms."

Not for parents

Indeed, Western Michigan University has started asking parents not to fill out the forms.

"They want the best for their son or daughter," said Cheryl Nickel, who directs housing for WMU. "But we used to get parents who thought their son or daughter didn't smoke, so they'd check that on the form. Then, we'd end up with a smoker rooming with a non-smoker."

Alcohol-free housing isn't an issue at Grand Valley State University in Grand Rapids for one simple reason: all dorms are, by the University's rules, alcohol-free. The policy, which has been in effect since the mid-80s, has met with overall acceptance, according to hall director Jackie Rhodes.

"Parents love it," she said. "Students are students, and they'll try to get around it, but they understand it."

The rule extends to those over 21, which Rhodes said is necessary for the plan to work. If the off-age students are drinking, she explained, "it's too easy for underage students to get access."

Only one school reported a lack of interest in alcohol-free housing: East Lansing's Michigan State University, the state's largest and the last to implement the option. Only 2 percent of students choose to have an alcohol-free room.

MSU's director of housing and dining service, Charles Gagliano, said he "would have absolutely no idea" why the option had failed to catch on.

Still, most state-funded schools report wide acceptance of the housing policy, and predict it will probably be around for a while.

"I started out thinking it was going to be a fad," Levy said. "But I don't think so anymore. I don't think it's going to go away."

Old school ties

College job programs not just for young grads

BY WAYNE PEAL
STAFF WRITER

Back to school takes on new meaning in today's troubled job market.

Thousands of students are returning to college as they pursue advanced degrees or alternative majors, all while awaiting that all-important job offer.

But there's a way to make those old college ties work for you without stepping back into the classroom.

Many area colleges — Oakland University and the University of Michigan-Dearborn among them — offer continuing job counseling to grads.

"We have about 200 alumni on our active list, but I'd say another 200-300 come in a year and don't register with us," said Bob Thomas of Oakland University.

It doesn't matter when or if you graduated, either.

EDUCATION

we opened in 1964," said Jean Pike of Schoolcraft College, Livonia.

Oakland Community College goes the other one better, offering counseling to all county residents.

"We view ourselves as a community organization and that is a part of it," OCC spokesman George Cartsonis said.

Now that you know where to look, what kind of a job should you look for?

How about health care.

"Health care, physical therapy, nursing, medical technology, they're all strong," Thomas said.

The trend carries over to all area universities and community colleges.

"Nursing is currently our most popular major," said Lou Brohl, admissions director at Madonna University. Almost one-third of all students at Madonna's campus in Livonia are enrolled in nursing programs.

Nor has high tech cooled off.

"There's still a big demand for people with computer skills," Pike said.

Business related majors are also a safe bet, according to OCC's Cartsonis.

"There's always going to be a demand for accountants," he said. "There's always going to be a demand for people with business skills."

For potential engineers, the news isn't as good.

"We used to have automakers come in here and do block hirings, but those days are over — at least for now," Thomas said. "Ford is still hiring, but on a much smaller scale. GM and Chrysler aren't doing much of anything."

College and university spokesmen, however, advise job-seekers to be flexible in developing job skills.

"We've heard from employers who are looking for people with specific skills, but not necessarily a degree in the field," said UM-D placement director Janet LaRose.

That also means being flexible in job expectations.

"A common stumbling block for students is they see salaries alone as a measure of success," LaRose said. "Sure, you can brag about your salary, but we tell them to look at benefits, too."

Of course, that advice only pertains to those still lucky enough to have a job choice. For others, the advice is simple: A job beats no job.

"Even a part-time job can build your experience," LaRose said.

In the meantime, you can always go back to college.

mograms for women who cannot afford them.

Volunteers sought for review panel

Volunteers are needed to serve on the Wayne County Foster Care Review Board. Volunteers will be named to serve on one of the six boards currently operating within the county.

The Michigan Legislature established the foster care review board program in 1984 in an effort to improve children's foster care programs throughout the state.

The Wayne County Review boards meet monthly to review a representative sample of cases of children who are placed in foster care as the result of abuse or neglect. The purpose of each review is to determine that efforts are being made by the state Department of Social Services, juvenile court, or private child placement agency to establish and carry out the plan for permanent placement in a timely manner.

Currently, foster care review boards are operating in Genesee, Ingham, Jackson, Kent, Lenawee, Muskegon, Oakland, Saginaw, St. Clair and Washtenaw counties.

Board members will be selected to reflect a cross-section of the population of the county. Volunteers must live in Wayne County. Employees of the department of social services, juvenile court or a child placement agency are ineligible to serve on foster care review boards.

Some residents urged to reduce lead exposure in drinking water

Residents in 36 metro area communities including Garden City, Livonia and Westland are urged to take precautions because elevated lead levels have been found in drinking water.

Testing conducted by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) January through June of this year indicated lead concentrations in some first draw samples to be above the lead action level of 15 parts per billion (0.015 milligram of lead per liter of water).

Officials said that the relative risk is believed to be minimal under normal water use conditions but they recommend that residents let the water run about 15-30 seconds from the tap before using it for drinking or cooking.

Flushing tap water is a simple and inexpensive measure you can take to protect your family's health. It usually uses less than one or two gallons of water and costs less than 50 cents per month. To conserve water, fill a couple of bottles for drinking water after flushing the tap, and whenever possible, use the first flush water to wash the dishes or water the plants.

Other recommendations include:

- Try not to cook with or drink from the hot water tap. Hot water can dissolve more lead more quickly than cold water. If you need hot water, use water from the cold tap and heat it.

- Remove loose lead solder and debris from the plumbing materials installed in newly constructed homes or homes in which the plumbing has been recently replaced by removing the faucet strainers from all taps and running the water 3-5 minutes.

Lead in drinking water, although rarely the sole cause of lead poisoning, can significantly increase a person's total lead exposure, particularly the exposure of infants who drink baby formulas and concentrated juices that are mixed with water. The EPA estimates that drinking water can make up 20 percent or more of a person's total exposure to lead.

Lead enters drinking water primarily as a result of the corrosion, or wearing away, of materials containing lead in the water distribution system and household plumbing.

If you have any questions about how we are carrying out the requirements of the lead regulation, call your local water department or the state Department of Public Health at (517) 335-9216 or the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department at 224-1416.

Host families needed for exchange students

Host families are urgently needed for high school students from Germany, France, Spain, Brazil, Hungary and Poland for the school year beginning in September.

Some 200 applicants are still waiting for an American family to offer them a home. Potential hosts can be single people, a childless couple, or a couple with children of any age. The hosts provide a room and food, natural parents provide spending money, and American Institute for Foreign Studies (AIFS) provides insurance and support services.

The English-speaking students, ages 16-18, will arrive in the United States in the next week and return home either in mid-January or mid-June 1993. They will attend the host family's local high school.

For more information, call Gideon or Lynne Levenbach at (313) 453-8562 or Amber Crowell at 1-800-322-4678.

The city of Plymouth's largest church is considering a 39-acre site in Plymouth Township, the Rev. James Wysocki has announced.

The Rev. Wysocki, pastor of the church, was unavailable for comment Tuesday. He told parishioners on Sunday that the church has plans to move to the site, according to a parishioner who attended the service.

The site is just south of North Territorial and a half-mile east of Beck Road.

Wysocki said the site recently became available. The idea to acquire the site "is endorsed by the parish council and the Focus GIFT steering committee," Wysocki said.

He said a consensus of support for the purchase must come from parishioners in the next few months before it can happen.

Some neighbors of the church in recent years have opposed plans to expand the church school, adjacent to the church in a residential neighborhood just west of Plymouth city hall.

The Community Flip for the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program in Plymouth and Canton Aug. 1 was a big success, organizers report.

The annual event helps raise money for materials for the program, which seeks to head off drug and alcohol abuse by teaching kids in elementary and middle school grades to resist peer pressure and to know police are on their side.

■ A Plymouth ham radio operator helped victims of Hurricane Andrew in Florida by using his radio to help with communications. The radio traffic helped link people in the Dominican Republic with folks in Key Largo or Plantation.

damage caused by Hurricane Andrew to a fellow ham in the Caribbean.

"This fellow was in the Dominican Republic inquiring about some people in Key Largo and Plantation. There wasn't anyone in that area," said Hill. "Net control in New York had some information, so I relayed it to them."

Hill — president of the Stu Rockafellow Amateur Radio Society and the city's liaison with local ham radio operators — was monitoring the storm's progress, ready, like hams across the country, to be of help.

"These hams aren't getting paid. It's a public service," he said. "The idea is just to help someone who needs help."

Because the hurricane toppled telephone lines throughout the Miami area, specialized hams with Hurricane Watch Net "are furnishing communication where there is none, between Red Cross and various agencies. They're also getting information in and out of the area to the national hurricane center in Coral Gables.

but can't understand what is said,
"they might ask for a relay."

Hill and his wife, Frances, also a ham, transmit and receive via a 50-foot tower in their backyard on Adams Street.

Their Florida room is equipped with a low band general coverage receiver, nine transceivers with a variety of frequencies, an amplifier, hand-held radios, a clock that keeps Greenwich time, a scanner, power meter, control box and computer.

Hill also uses his equipment and expertise to assist Skywarn, a group of tornado spotters affiliated with the National Weather Service.

From the national hurricane center in Coral Gables, Hill received updates on Andrew, including its latitude and long.

itude, enabling him to chart the storm's progress on his North Atlantic hurricane tracking map. According to Hill's calculations, the storm center, with winds clocked at 140 miles per hour, had moved a little over 100 miles between midnight Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday. The hurricane was 210 miles southeast of New Orleans heading north-northwest by 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Hill also uses his radios in place of the telephone to keep in touch with friends.

One buddy, Larry Ayres, is retired from Stahl Manufacturing and lives in Ocala, Fla. "We keep in touch one a week on the radio, just to make sure each other is still alive," said Hill with a laugh.

Founded in 1961, the Stu Rockafellow Amateur Radio Society is now 60 members strong. Members set up tents and use portable equipment the fourth weekend of June each year in Plymouth Township Park. The public is welcome to watch as hams and Red Cross representatives set up their equipment and test their emergency capability.

"We're the only federally licensed hobby there is. Our main emphasis is public service."

NAACP meeting will draw 400

The 56th Annual Michigan State Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People meets Sept. 10-13 in Romulus. The group includes persons from Canton and Plymouth.

More than 400 from across the state and the country are expected for the conference at the Royce Hotel, formerly the Airport Hilton.

The conference theme is "The NAACP — Standing Up Today — For Tomorrow." Seminars and formal presentations are scheduled from civil rights luminaries including outgoing NAACP national executive director Benjamin Hooks, pioneer African-American broadcast journalist Mal Goode, and NAACP-Detroit branch executive director Joann Watson.

The conference is planned locally by NAACP-Inkster branch president Edward Bivens, Jr. and conference general chairwoman Helen Diete-Spiff.

"We've been charged with a large task, but state conference officials and past conference organizers have been very gracious and helpful in our planning stages," Diete-Spiff said.

"We'd like to encourage every person in the area who values his or hers civil and human rights to consider joining us for this occasion," she said, adding, "Everyone's welcome."

"All will leave the conference energized to continue the fight for civil rights. We've still a long way to go and have a lot of work to do," Diete-Spiff said.

Bivens added, "The Rodney King incident is still fresh in our minds as the bitter memory of the Detroit riots which celebrated its 25th anniversary last month."

"Racism and discrimination in this country is alive and kicking. And we need the input of all individuals, age, ethnicity, creed, gender or religious affiliation not withstanding to band together as a united majority to protect the rights of those in minority."

Almost 500,000 Americans of all races are members of the NAACP, the largest civil rights organization in the world. It's also the oldest, founded in 1909.

Book focuses on helping men, women get along

BY SHARON DARGAY
STAFF WRITER

She meanders toward the topic when she talks.

He thinks she should get to the point.

She's frustrated because he isn't listening.

He is listening, but his nose is buried in the newspaper.

She tries to change the way he listens. He tries to change the way she talks.

"I've worked with one couple where the wife, in the face of her husband's behavior which was unempathetic, said 'I can't understand how a human being and normal person wouldn't respond to me in the way I want him to respond,'" said Norman Goldner, a marriage counselor and University of Detroit Mercy professor.

"You'll find people playing the blame game. 'If I have to ask you why should I change?'"

"That's infantile behavior."

But the unyielding behavior is characteristic of the way men and women, unaware of gender differences, respond to each other.

The differences appear at an early age and influence the way they behave as adults.

Goldner and wife Carol Rhodes, a practicing psychologist, demonstrate the influence of gender differences in male-female communication in their new book, "Why Women and Men Don't Get Along: A Guidebook for Women Frustrated By Men's Behavior."

The book is available for $14 from Somerset Press, Box 4386, Troy 48099. B. Dalton Bookseller, Waldenbooks, Border's Books and Barnes and Noble also carry it.

The work is aimed at women who want to better understand men, but the couple has received many letters from male readers.

Women are more interested in relationships and more of them buy self-help books than men do, according to the authors.

Other gender differences appear at an early age and increase as children grow older, Rhodes said.

"Girls face each other and look at each other while playing. In fact, when little children are playing with each other, little girls will shy away from boys," Rhodes explained. "If three little girls have a disagreement, they'll all go home. If three little boys disagree, they'll start fighting and keep playing."

Mettetal Airport

Purchase deserves new look

Now that Mettetal Airport has been grounded by the Federal Aviation Administration, local officials will have time to regroup and think the darned thing through again.

After elections are over in November, let's hope there's a new move to buy the airport with FAA money. If the airport isn't purchased, it's going to end up as another industrial park or strip mall.

There's enough of that type of development around the Plymouth and Canton communities. Mettetal will be history unless Tom Yack, Canton Township supervisor, and the new Plymouth Township supervisor get moving in November.

Public purchase of Mettetal became involved in election year politics in Plymouth and Canton. Being pro-airport became a political liability.

It was first backed by former Plymouth Township Maurice Breen who has been recently characterized as the local Darth Vader of Plymouth politics.

The problem is that even a Darth Vader has good ideas. And Breen is anything but Darth Vader. Yes, Breen may have been involved in some cronyism when it came to the sewer project, and there was a land deal in which he probably shouldn't have been involved. Unfortunately all that spilled into the Mettetal issue.

A good idea suffered because of the people backing it. Then there was the anti-airport group. It was composed of some well meaning folks who were worried about any financial liability that would fall on either Plymouth or Canton.

And then there were the others, folks who somehow believed Mettetal would be turned into a jet airport or that planes would be falling from the sky. That was one of those cheap emotional arguments. As we all know, the chances of getting hit by a speeding car with a drunk behind the wheel are thousands of times higher than that of being hit by a plane.

But the pro-airport folks also were carried away. They used the argument that small airports are endangered and should be preserved.

If that is true, then there should be federal money around for some years to come. We think that's true even though an FAA official said the agency has washed its hands of the airport.

We support the move to buy Mettetal. A small airport gives a community an identity and diversity. With politics behind them, Yack and the new Plymouth Township supervisor should take a serious new look at the airport.

2 anti-drug plans miss mark

Of two anti-drug plans supported by Gov. Engler's administration, one is patently unconstitutional and the other equals the distance gained running on ice. The Legislature shouldn't waste its time on either proposal.

The first plan, backed by Engler's drug czar, would eliminate the right to automatic appeals if a convict pleads guilty to a crime. Czar Robert Peterson, Engler's coordinator of drug programs, basically says automatic appeals clog the courts and are costly.

(He estimates a savings of $400,000 in attorney fees and a $2 million savings at the Supreme Court level if automatic appeals were abolished.)

George Ward, chief assistant Wayne County prosecutor, agrees, particularly on the backlog argument. "Under the Michigan Constitution, a defendant has rights... the effect of a guilty plea is to waive those rights."

What's forgotten here is that the right to appeal, under any circumstances, is guaranteed by the Constitution. That right is not to be meddled with; it exists for a reason.

The purpose is to guard against incorrect accusations that result in unjust prison and/or death sentences. One cannot put a price tag on an appeals process because that could rob an individual of the only avenue legally available to prove his or her innocence.

And with some factions in Michigan still pushing for the death penalty, the spectre of mistakenly executing innocent people just because they were denied appeals looms large and is frightening.

The other proposal, Senate Bill 1034, again according to Peterson, would allow citizens to sue drug dealers, allegedly to drive them out of business.

This sounds a bit like suing the Mafia, or any other enterprise that operates outside the law. By definition, these people operate illegally. Why does Peterson think they would submit themselves to, and abide by, a legal proceeding?

Peterson's idea also allows the government to absolve itself of the responsibility of governing. We elect leaders to make and enforce laws. What Peterson appears to be saying, though, is that in this age of getting government off the our backs, here's something the government used to do that you can now do for yourself.

If we have to do things such as suing drug dealers ourselves, then we question why we need the leaders we have.

Finally, citizens already have the right to sue anyone they wish. No one needs the approval of the Engler administration to file a suit against anyone they please. It's redundant.

If the governor really wants to govern, instead of tampering with the Constitution or abdicating responsibility in favor of letting the public do its own fighting, then more tangible, realistic solutions to the drug problem — instead of these hollow proposals — are welcome.

ARKIE HUDKINS

News Item: Governor Engler really likes Senate Bill 1034 which would allow ordinary citizens to sue drug dealers.

LETTERS

Not listening

The editorial board of the Observer seems intent upon portraying Deborah Whyman as a single issue candidate. The editorial board has not been doing its homework. Ethics reform, education, and job creation are some of the many issues of concern on Deborah Whyman's campaign literature. The abortion issue is not mentioned.

Prior to the primary, this literature was distributed to voters throughout the 21st State House district. Deborah Whyman scored a solid win in the primary because she was able to get out her whole message to the voters. It is unfortunate that the Observer's editorial board was not listening.

Christine Wofford, Canton Township

Highly educated

A reader's letter reprinted in your July 27 issue states that the people protesting a recent bear wrestling in Canton were idiots. A Vegetarian Times poll shows that 84 percent of vegetarians/animal rights activists have attended college, 18 percent have done post-graduate work, and 4 percent have doctorates. Hardly an idiotic lot.

The labeling shouldn't surprise me, however, since the reader has a good teacher in Ted Nugent, who is known for his juvenile name-calling towards anyone who does not endorse his violent way with animals.

The reader also missed the point of the protest as indicated by his statement that the bear couldn't be harmed wrestling the world's biggest man. Plain and simple, such an event is animal exploitation. It certainly is not natural for a bear to be confined and transported all of its life to smoky bars with shouting beer drinkers in it.

Alter board selection process

Michigan Democrats and Republicans will gather this weekend at their respective conventions.

Among other things, delegates will nominate candidates for the boards of the University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Wayne State University.

The Michigan Constitution requires our three flagship universities to have governing boards elected by the people. Only 12 percent of the boards for public, multi-campus universities nationwide are elected; most are appointed by governors or legislatures.

Whether our system works well is a currently relevant question.

MSU, for example, recently was torn and badly damaged by a savage power struggle between members of its board, football coach George Perles and president John DiBiaggio. DiBiaggio resigned this summer to become president at a smaller private school. Rumor has it that past board disunity is hindering the search for a successor.

I happen to know something about this, as I ran (successfully) for election to the UM board in 1990.

The system is bizarre. Nobody knows who you are or what office you are running for, let alone what your credentials are or what your views on higher education might be.

Media coverage is almost entirely lacking. Radio and TV totally ignore the races. Newspapers seldom cover what the candidates say. Excepting the Detroit News and Free Press and the Booth Newspapers, editorial analysis and endorsements are perfunctory.

And because candidates and their positions are unknown, few people bother to vote for the education posts. In 1990 the average falloff from the vote for governor to university boards was 18.4 percent.

Should the system be changed? Attempts have been made. The arguments for appointment sound pretty good.

The election turns into a popularity contest, often determined by presidential or gubernatorial coattails. The political process at state conventions often is erratic, selecting candidates who are sometimes good and sometimes not so good. Many able and qualified people decline to submit to the nonsense or scrutiny (you pick) which inevitably accompanies a partisan race.

But no system is perfect.

Appointing governors can be inattentive or swayed by favoritism or big contributions, or even corrupt. A 1991 survey taken by the Governing Boards of Colleges and Universities found that two-thirds of presidents were not consulted by appointing governors and that 25 percent thought appointments were made with "little or no care."

In my view, there are real advantages to electing boards. Candidates must campaign, which is an eye-opening reality test for many. And electing board members confers legitimacy on their functions, a standing that in Michigan has produced considerable independence for universities against the whims of the Legislature.

Maybe a good solution would be to return to the system used before the 1963 Constitution was adopted, in which school elections — both local and statewide — took place in the spring of odd-numbered years. With no big races on for president, governor, Congress or the state Legislature, the news media paid close attention to candidates. Voters were informed.

And, most observers say, the overall quality of university governing boards was better than it is today.

POINTS OF VIEW

Time for understanding to come out of closet

"I always tell them, would you choose this life? Every day I fear for my job because I work for a conservative company. Would you choose a life of religious persecution? Would you choose a life where people look at you like you're the scum of the earth?"

A lesbian

That was an excerpt from articles which appeared in the Suburban Life section of our papers on "Being Gay — When Do You Know?"

Recently, a local woman called to tell us those stories had given her the courage to bring up the subject with her son, whom she had suspected of being homosexual.

Both were relieved at finally being able to discuss his five-year secret. She called to thank us and to ask for information on a support group for parents of homosexuals.

They still hadn't come to grips on how to tell her husband, she said.

Those same articles prompted another caller who left a message. Why do we continue to do articles on homosexuality? he asked. Is it because someone on our staff who is gay is pushing for this?

Well no, sir. The idea for the story came from a dialogue at an April Birmingham City Commission Meeting. There, city officials passed a Fair and Open Housing ordinance which prohibits discrimination because of color, religion, sex, marital status, age, national origin, handicap or sexual orientation.

Adding sexual orientation was a late-hour decision which prompted debate from the audience. Some considered it a "moral" issue. They said they believe that people "choose" to be homosexuals.

We wanted to see if that were true. So we asked.

Our small sampling, of homosexuals and those who counsel them, showed quite the opposite. They knew at an early age they were "different." They would have been oh so happy to have been "normal."

JUDITH DONER BERNE

Reporter Larry O'Connor talked to Keith, 34, who waited until his early 20s to come out, though he suspected at age 7 that he was different. In his teens, "I had a girlfriend, but I had strong feelings for the guys I was hanging around with. I kept praying, 'God take these feelings away.'"

O'Connor talked to Cathy, 27, who realized in second grade she wasn't the same as other girls. She tried therapy, then a different church, to rid herself of what she had been taught was aberrant behavior.

And he spoke with John, now in his mid-40s, who realized he was different in his late teens but repressed those feelings for 20 years.

When he did begin a relationship with a man, he felt an initial sense of loss, because he'd never have "a wife and the 3.2 kids, the traditional family life."

Few young people, much less adults, would "choose" that kind of anguish. Most of the time it's too painful to talk over with parents or friends. No wonder gay and lesbian students are three times more likely to commit suicide than other students.

Now some progressive school districts are offering help.

The National Education Association last spring held a workshop on "Affording Equal Opportunity to Gay and Lesbian Students Through Teaching and Counseling."

Goals are to help teachers, counselors and administrators understand homosexuality, and deal with homophobia, violence directed at homosexuals, stereotyping and inappropriate teaching and counseling.

The Birmingham Schools sent Frank Colasanti, Jr., a counselor at Groves High School, who will use the information to help students who are coping with their sexuality.

Some school district residents object. As one resident, Pat Kendro, told the school board: "They (schools) should stay out of it. This should be private."

We could call on the old turnabout used so successfully against both Vice President Dan Quayle and President George Bush on the abortion issue. What if it were your child — or grandchild — who faced this situation?

That child fumbling for his sexuality needs to talk to someone. In an ideal world, it would be his family. But in the real world, he or she knows full well those aren't his family's values.

Councilman spells out 'family values' meaning

Republican orators, with one exception, apparently did a poor job defining "family values" last week in Houston.

To some, the Grand Old Party was preaching morality, the church's job, when it should have been dealing in economics. To others, abortion falls under family values because it prevents unwanted families. To still others, it raised the marital fidelity question.

Let me offer one newsman's unofficial grasp of the Republican buzzword:

A man marries a woman — not another man — some time before the first baby arrives. Abortion never occurs to them. The man supports his family. The couple keeps the kids clean and sends them to school on time. They take the kids to church, and mom gives some time to PTA.

Sometimes things sour between the mom and dad, and they split. Dad still supports them and sees the kids on weekends. If they don't live happily ever after, at least they aim toward that ideal.

The Rev. Keith Butler, a Detroit councilman, spelled out government's role in promoting family values somewhat more bluntly than did the prime time orators.

Butler spoke of "providing incentives for families to stay together, discouraging births out of wedlock and requiring able-bodied welfare recipients to enroll in job training."

Butler mentioned a housing preservation program "so that tenants and renters can own their own home, sink roots deep into their neighborhood and grab a piece of the American dream."

What are anti-family values?

TIM RICHARD

Mom gets pregnant at 15 and has four kids by the time she's 21. None of the fathers marries her or pays a penny of support.

The first baby has a low birth weight and other complications because of mom's youth and lack of pre-natal care. Another baby is accidentally shot by someone driving past a crack house.

A third child is a truant from school, joins a gang and lands in prison after fathering a few kids of his own. The fourth one begins reproducing at 14 ... and her daughter at 13.

After the last child reaches 18, mom is no longer eligible for AFDC and begins collecting general assistance (until it was abolished).

The government, in Mario Cuomo's words, becomes family, providing AFDC, Medicare, rent supplements, WIC, food stamps and more. Their social worker advocates setting up voter registration booths at the DSS office.

Except for Butler, most GOP orators pussy-footed around the topic. Half of Republicans and two-thirds of Democrats, I suspect, were unclear what the code phrase "family values" implied.

Vice President Dan Quayle was counter-productive in explaining family values when he picked on unwed mother Murphy Brown. His target was a mature woman with a high-paying job. In real life, 90 percent of unwed mothers become clients of the social services lobby.

And since it's unwise to pick on women, Quayle should be targeting the males who have fun and run.

That is how one newsman interprets this year's buzzword. No orator came close to spelling it out bluntly, so I sat down and read the platform, particularly pages 10 through 34.

Not all Republicans embrace — or even understand — "family values."

Not all Democrats hold anti-family values. You as a voter will have to decide (1) whether family values are important and (2) whether the candidates in your district do or don't subscribe.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Area congressmen split on education funding bill

HOUSE

Yes on education bill: By a vote of 279 for and 124 against, the House passed a bill (HR 4323) providing $800 million annually to the states in hopes of spurring major reforms in elementary and secondary education. Local schools would use the money to develop innovative programs — consistent with statewide reform plans and federally set achievement and curriculum goals.

The vote sent the bill to House-Senate conference and set up a pre-Election Day showdown between the Democratic Congress and "the education president." The White House objects that the bill fails to finance non-public schools initiatives or promote school choice — the option to enroll at the best public schools regardless of location.

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Area representatives voting yes were: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield. Voting no: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

No to GOP alternative: By a vote of 140 for and 267 against, the House rejected a GOP alternative to the Democratic school improvement bill (above). The GOP plan differed mainly by permitting federal financing of private school tuition, allowing parents to enroll their children in public schools in other neighborhoods and in advancing President Bush's New American Schools plan to pay for an innovative school in every congressional district.

"This is reform," said Nancy Johnson, R-Conn. "The Congress has to have the courage to reform."

Opponent Charles Hayes, D-Ill., said federal promotion of school choice will mean "less access to education for our economically disadvantaged students."

A yes vote supported the Republican alternative for educational reform. Area representatives voting yes were: Pursell, Broomfield. Voting no:

Hertel, William Ford, Sander Levin.

Yes to limiting 2 airlines computer dominance: By a vote of 230 for and 160 against, the House sent the Senate a bill (HR 5466) to keep United and American airlines from using their dominance of the computer reservation system to unfair advantage over competitors.

Most travel agents use an American or United CRS to check flight availability and sell tickets. Other airlines charge that factors such as biased software design and contractual terms tilt bookings in favor of United and American.

Supporter Norman Mineta, D-Calif., said "the health of the nation's commercial aviation industry is at stake."

Opponent Pete Geren, D-Texas, said the bill "would destroy a valuable property right without justification and without compensation."

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Area representatives voting yes were: Pursell, Hertel, William Ford, Sander Levin. Voting no: Broomfield.

Yes on agriculture appropriations: By a vote of 299 for and 100 against, the House passed a bill (HR 5487) appropriating $60.5 billion for the Department of Agriculture and related agencies in fiscal 1993. About 80 percent of the amount is mandatory spending on entitlement programs such as commodity support payments and food stamps. Most disputed during debate was $148 million for the market promotion program that promotes the food exports of U.S. companies.

Supporter Vic Fazio, D-Calif., said the MPP is justified in view of the $1.5 billion that European governments spend to promote their exports around the globe.

Opponent Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., asked why MPP "should be subsidizing already huge advertising budgets of corporations like General Mills, McDonald's, Sunkist and Oscar Meyer?"

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Area representatives voting yes were: Hertel, William Ford, Sander Levin. Voting no: Pursell, Broomfield.

Yes to new farm program: The House voted 249 for and 144 against to provide $1 million for a new Agriculture Department anti-discrimination program in HR 5487 (above). Sponsors said the "outreach" will bridge language barriers and other obstacles to minority members entering farming or receiving federal farm services.

Supporter Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, said "government has a legitimate responsibility" to help present or potential farmers who have been held back by discrimination.

Dan Burton, R-Ind., questioned why a new program is needed when government agencies and private organizations already exist to prevent and redress discrimination.

A yes vote supported a new $1 million program in behalf of minority farmers. Area representatives voting yes were: Hertel, William Ford, Sander Levin. Voting no: Pursell. Not voting: Broomfield.

SENATE

Yes to more bilingual ballots: By a vote of 75 for and 20 against, the Senate passed a bill (HR 4312) to immediately increase the number of counties where voting registration forms and ballots must be printed in a language in addition to English.

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Michigan Sens. Carl Levin, D, and Donald Riegle, D, voted yes.

PLYMOUTH SPORTS SCENE

Kicks win soccer title

The 1982 Plymouth Kicks premier soccer team won the boys under-12 division of the Maumee (Ohio) International Soccer Festival last weekend.

The Kicks were led by a defense that did not allow any goals and an offense that scored 20 goals in the five-game tournament.

In preliminary games, the Kicks defeated the Genesee Black Hawks 6-0, Perrysburg (Ohio) 4-0 and the Bedford Mules 2-0. In the semifinals, the Kicks whipped the Columbus (Ohio) Power 5-0 and blanked the Maumee Express 3-0 in the final.

Dan Wielechowski scored two goals and Andrew Kogut one in the final. Kogut was awarded a team star for an outstanding overall performance in the tournament.

The Kicks had a successful summer, having also won the Findlay (Ohio) Tournament and reached the finals of the Columbus Invitational. Michael Slack, Nick Bostic and Kirt McKee were recognized by the team for outstanding play in the Columbus tournament.

The Kicks compete this weekend in the Dearborn Soccer Tournament and the following week in the Troy Soccer Tournament. They travel to Cincinnati later this year to face the top teams from southern Ohio and Kentucky.

Other team members are Jacob Gray, Patrick Griffin, Jeremy Hornak, Chris Longpre, Aaron McDonald, Jason Mayol, Aaron Rypkowski, Brett Stinar, Ken Szydlowski, Brian Wozniak and Tim Zdrodowski. The Kicks are coached by Paul Kogut and Watson Zdrodowski.

Boys win Macker tourney

Matt Mair, Aaron Duca, Tom DeMetsenare and Tony Fernandez made up the winning basketball team Saturday in the boys 13-and-under division of the Gus Macker Tournament at Oakland University in Rochester.

The boys, all students at Pioneer Middle School, were undefeated in five games. They also were awarded the Sportsmanship Trophy in their age group. The team was sponsored by Video Place in Plymouth.

Canton remains force in girls hoop

Hoop season: Amy Westerhold is one of four third-year varsity players who could lead the Canton girls to another winning basketball season.

The 1992 basketball season holds much promise for the Plymouth Canton girls, who return 10 of 13 players from a successful campaign in which the Chiefs made a run at the state title.

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton had one of the best girls basketball teams in Michigan at the end of last season, reaching the Class A semifinals before losing to state champion Detroit King.

Since most of the players on that team return, including the five starters, the Chiefs will be among the finest in Observerland and possibly the state again.

"Expectations and state rankings don't mean too much, because it's a long season," said coach Bob Blohm, who has taken the Chiefs to the Final Four twice in the last three years.

"It's so hard to look down the road to November and say 'We're going to make a great run here.' You set goals for the team and things you want to improve and hope you're there when November comes."

"It's been my experience, regardless of how many you have coming back, it's a new season for them. The challenge is 'Can they continue to lift their game and be a better team fundamentally.'"

The Chiefs, who were 21-5 and runners-up to Plymouth Salem in the Western Lakes Activities Association, will count heavily on 6-foot-1 senior Stephanie Gray in the post again. She averaged 18 points and nine rebounds while earning All-Observer honors.

"We know she's going to get a lot of pressure at the low post, so she needs to be a better passer from there," Blohm said. "We look for her to get 4-5 offensive rebounds per game for scores."

"She's a good scorer from outside but knowing full well, if she does that, she has to get to the basket and rebound the ball. (Not doing) that will put pressure on the defense."

Six-foot senior Kelly Holmes, an all-state pitcher for Canton's state runner-up softball team, started in the post, but she is still recovering from a broken collarbone she suffered playing softball this summer. Lisa Nicastri, a 5-10 junior, who finished last season on the varsity, also returns.

"Kelly is good screener and medium-range shooter," Blohm said. "She can rebound the ball and had a good tournament. All three kids give us a pretty solid corp at the low post."

The Chiefs also return four perimeter players who rotated at the guard and wing positions: 5-6 senior Christie Saffron, 5-5 senior Amy Westerhold, 5-0 junior Alyson Nounne and 5-7 junior Britta Anderson.

However, it's uncertain whether Anderson, who was second in scoring with 10 points a game and averaged five rebounds, will be able to play since she has not fully recovered from a knee injury last spring during soccer season. It's a wait-and-see situation, according to Blohm.

With Holmes and Anderson unable to play, 5-7 junior Erika Anderson, who was on the varsity late in the season, will be the fifth starter when the Chiefs begin the 1992 campaign against defending Class B champ Flint Powers at 3 p.m. Saturday in the Canton gym.

The list of 10 returning players includes Jori Welchans and Christie Anderson, a pair of 5-7 seniors. Joining the

Cross-country trek takes PCA runners to Lansing

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Coach Steve Bauslaugh and his Plymouth Christian cross country team always have a theme to fit their purpose when they make their annual preseason run.

The Eagles made a "run to the border" last year, running from Taco Bell in Plymouth to the Ohio border in seven days.

This being an election year, Bauslaugh and Co. departed Tuesday for the state capitol in Lansing.

The 36-year-old Bauslaugh, a veteran of 19 marathons, has only four runners on his team, so he was planning to participate along with seniors Eric Jefferies, Scott Franz and Sunil Bhat and sophomore Kirk Baxter.

Each one was to run 18 to 20 miles total, using a relay format and traveling the back roads 85 miles to Lansing. They camped overnight Tuesday in Brighton. The team followed the bike path along I-275 to the Ohio border last year.

"We'll run the last mile together," Bauslaugh said. "When you turn the corner from Michigan on to Pennsylvania Avenue, you see the state capitol ahead and it's a pretty neat site. I don't think they'll forget. We'll take a lot of pictures of them on the capitol steps."

The Eagles had hoped to meet Gov. John Engler, but ironically he was in Canton during President George Bush's visit Tuesday.

"We'll give the governor our relay baton and a message," Bauslaugh said. "We'll tell him we support him and will be praying for him. Government officials get criticized a lot, and people are pretty hard on them."

Bauslaugh hopes to have five or six runners by the time the season starts.

"Once school starts, we get a couple more runners," he said. "We're looking for more depth. That seems to be the weak point on our team right now."

Sophomore Russ Robillard, who has a job commitment, and senior Chris Martin, a thrower on the track team who runs for conditioning, are expected to join the team.

Junior Jenny Weigand, who was the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference champion at 800 meters, will run cross country for the first time to stay in shape, also.

The Eagles were division champs in the American Division, but the MIAC is all one this year after the departure of Lutheran Westland and Lutheran Northwest. That means PCA will be competing mostly against larger schools.

Jefferies is the top runner, having been to the Class D individual race the past two years and finished 23rd last year.

"He had a good summer of running and is looking good early in the year," Bauslaugh said. "If he stays away from injuries, I expect him to do really well at the state meet."

Chiefs plan WLAA title defense

BY NEAL ZIPSER
SPECIAL WRITER

The increasing popularity of golf pleases longtime golfer Fred Libbing, as a player and as a coach.

With Michigan ranking No. 1 in the country in the number of public golf courses and people realizing the benefits of golf in business and recreation settings, the Plymouth Canton coach appreciates the trends he sees.

"I've been in golf for more than 40 years," said Libbing, now in his seventh year of coaching. "I started out as a caddy and have seen the sport grow. It's a great sport for students to learn to be competitive."

The popularity is also increasing the chance for the Chiefs to repeat as Western Lakes Activities Association champions.

Even though Canton lost seven golfers, six experienced golfers return and another 53 tried out for the squad.

"I am sure I will be able to find a couple good golfers with all those people trying out," Libbing said. "I think we have a good chance of repeating as champions."

The Chiefs did lose their two top golfers from a year ago in Jon Paupore (39 average) and Mike Ross (42). Paupore is now golfing for Eastern Michigan University.

Junior Andy Uthoff, who shot an impressive 74 in a practice round on Monday, is Canton's most improved golfer.

"He has been dropping his scores and has grown physically and matured his game," Libbing said.

Juniors Derek Baer (40 average) and Matt Paupore, along with senior Brad Paskievitch, give the Chiefs four strong golfers. Juniors Adam Gilles and Todd Blakney also return.

"All are capable of shooting in the low to mid 80s," Libbing said.

If the Chiefs repeat as WLAA champions, Libbing wants to see a better performance in the post-season regionals. Canton finished 13th last year.

"I think we can finish in the top five this year, and I thought that last year, too," Libbing said. "We just blew apart in the regional. I think we were tired but I do want to see us do better this year."

Salem golfers rebuild

By NEAL ZIPSER
SPECIAL WRITER

Plymouth Salem captured the Lakes Division golf title in the Western Lakes Activities Association last season by going unbeaten in five dual meets and finishing 9-2 overall.

The Rocks also had six experienced golfers last season, all averaging in the low to mid 40s.

It might have been Rick Wilson's easiest season of coaching in his 10 years at Salem.

This season will be different. Salem's top seven golfers graduated, leaving Wilson with no experienced players returning.

"We don't even have a returning letterman," Wilson said. "Our returning golfers are unproven and none have varsity match experience. This will be a big-time rebuilding year."

Gone are Dave Weaver (41-stroke average), Brian Botwinski (41), Jeff Kotlarczyk (43), Jeff Hopson (44), Joe Gumbis (45), Kurt Singleton and Ray Alverado.

Returning are juniors Josh Edgar, Jeremy Fox and Bryan Proctor and sophomores Alex Bain, Mark Wesner and Chris Weidman.

Rounding out Salem's roster are junior Jack LaGrow, sophomores John Porte and Brian Covington and freshmen Nick Macy and Ryan Andrzejewski.

"I'm not sure yet which six will compete," Wilson said. "None of the six returnees have come forward yet. I think they are all capable of shooting in the low to mid 40s. But I think they will be pushed by the new golfers and that is good."

The only goal for this season is to improve, Wilson said.

"Improvement is the only thing I want to see," he said. "I'm not going to put number pressure on them, as in where they will finish or what they will shoot. Each golfer has a lot of work to do."

That work will make this season his most challenging as a coach, Wilson said.

"With the six seniors last season, I just had to let them tee it up and then see what happened," Wilson said. "This season, we don't have a golfer who can carry the team. I have 12 kids who need a lot of help, and my time per player as a coach is spread thin."

"The golfers are going to have to become students of the game. None of their games need to be overhauled, but they all need refinement on their techniques. They have little things that need correcting."

Wilson's golfers also will have to learn the tricky greens at Hilltop Golf Course, which is known to give inexperienced golfers some trouble.

varsity are 5-6 sophomore Amicie Crayton and 5-5 junior Robyn Vachow, both former JV players.

Rebounding will be especially important for Canton since Blohm plans to start one post player and four on the perimeter. That and team defense are primary goals.

"Defensive rebounding needs to improve, because we didn't do a real good job of it last year and we're not doing too well right now," Blohm said.

"We gave some teams easy scores, and we need to shut that down. We're not a real big team so we have to block out. I don't think you can be a championship team if you can't rebound the ball."

The experience among the small, aggressive guards will benefit Canton defensively in the open court.

Saffron, who averaged six points, 4½ rebounds, three assists and three steals, and Westerhold (eight points and three steals) begin their third season on the varsity as do Gray and Holmes.

"Saffron and Westerhold will be the key to our defense," Blohm said. "The perimeter kids, led by the ones who have been around for three years, are real important defensively."

"Those kids have to be able to apply pressure consistently. We got better at that last year; we didn't break down. We have continue to build on that this year and make it better."

Blohm hopes for more perimeter scoring to take pressure off Gray inside and allow her to pass back from the post with a threat to score.

Blohm knows he has the makings for another quality team, but the Chiefs have to prove it first, he said. Plus, they must survive one of the toughest district tournaments in the state again.

Borgess cagers trounce Panthers

By C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

What would you expect in the first game of the season, played at the end of summer?

Something had to be hot.

And in the second game of Tuesday's Redford Union Tournament, pitting the host team against Redford Bishop Borgess, it wasn't just the temperature that soared. The pace was extremely hot — the heat didn't slow these girls down a bit.

In the end, though, it was Borgess that adapted better. The Spartans simply beat RU in almost every phase of the game in rolling to an impressive 62-43 victory.

The win earned Borgess a shot at the tournament title, which will be decided tonight when the Spartans take on Redford Thurston. The Eagles advanced with a hard-earned 48-44 triumph over Redford St. Agatha in Tuesday's first game.

St. Agatha and RU will meet in the consolation game at 5:30 p.m., with Thurston and Borgess following.

RU's new coach, Marty Lowney, admitted his players may not have taken the right attitude against Borgess, a team the Panthers blasted in last year's season-opening tournament. Borgess finished that game a year ago with just two players; everyone else had fouled out.

"I think we came in expecting it to be a little easier," said Lowney. RU was 17-6 last year, Borgess 9-13.

Borgess hit 35 percent from the floor, RU connected on 27 percent. But at the line, the Spartans were awful, making just 5-of-19 (26 percent); the Panthers were 17-of-25 (68 percent).

Mercy cagers lack varsity experience

By STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

When Liz Weber starts at point guard tonight for the Farmington Hills Mercy basketball team, she'll join select company.

Weber will become only the third freshman to start the season opener in Larry Baker's 17 years as coach.

The starting role not only reflects Weber's talent, it also shows Mercy's youth.

The Marlins last fall reached the Class A state final before losing to Detroit Martin Luther King. Graduated from the 18-12 team are Laure DeMattia, Kathleen Berrigan and Mary Bieniewicz, who accounted for about 70 percent of Mercy's scoring.

Mercy plays a rugged schedule, starting with tonight's 7:30 home game against Walled Lake Central.

"The first thing that jumps out at you about us is our youthfulness and the strength of our schedule," Baker said. "The returning seniors provided the nucleus to last year's team. This year we're working hard to find our own identity and there's less certainty about our roles."

Mercy's team resembles the one put on the floor two years ago by Plymouth Canton, now a state title contender.

Mercy has five returning seniors who lettered in '91, but Baker wouldn't be surprised to see Weber and 6-foot sophomore center Julie Angell lead the Marlins in scoring.

The 5-1 Weber led Farmington St. Fabian last year to the Catholic Youth Organization championship and already is the Marlins' best three-point shooter, according to Baker.

Mercy also has a capable point guard backup, junior Maggie Clinton, who filled in nicely for Berrigan during parts of the Class A semifinal win over Saginaw last year.

"If Liz wasn't special, she wouldn't be playing," Baker said. "But she's got to earn her spurs, too. Hopefully, she can continue our legacy of great point guards."

Angell, meanwhile, grabbed a combined 29 rebounds in last year's district games and scored 18 points against Birmingham Marian and 16 against Saginaw later in the tournament. All that came after being promoted from the junior varsity.

"Bringing up Julie Angell and inserting her in the lineup proved to be a catalyst for our tourney run," Baker said.

A trio of seniors who lettered on last year's team is expected to bolster the frontline. Katie Heffernan, a 5-8 senior forward, averaged about five points per game and will start for a third straight year. Baker said Heffernan has been one of the most steady Mercy scorers in preseason.

Dana Wade, a 5-10 senior post player, and Marshelle Brooks, a 5-8 senior post player, also return after grabbing 85 rebounds apiece a year ago.

Rebecca Calice, another senior post player returnee, is expected to contribute when she recovers from a stress fracture suffered earlier this month.

The shooting guard is a three-way battle between 5-4 senior Valire Jones, 5-4 junior Zandre Simmons and 5-6 junior Nadine Cichonski, the most valuable player on last year's JV.

"I'm looking for someone to do the job at both ends," Baker said. "Valire is the most experienced with the best skills, but she's been inconsistent during practice. Zandre has come on defensively, and the other girl with her hat in the ring is Nadine."

A trio of sophomores — Piper Metz (forward), Felicia Brooks (post) and Glenda Lee (a guard and transfer from Southfield High) — could also challenge for playing time, Baker said.

The Marlins are among tough company in the Catholic League's Central Division. Harper Woods Regina is the defending champion and returns most of its players, Birmingham Marian has one of the state's best players (Stephanie Storen) and Livonia Ladywood is a rising team.

"This sure will provide big-time growing pains for our young players, but that's the best thing for them," Baker said.

Promising newcomers: Mary Daly, 5-4 sophomore guard; Patti Maldonado, 5-7 sophomore guard/forward; Melissa Sochacki, 5-7 junior forward; Jenny Jenkins, 6-0 junior center.
Fuhs' '92 outlook: "We need our seniors to step forward and make plays. My biggest concern is lack of experience, and because of that, we make mistakes."

"We'll probably be more aggressive and get everyone to play hard all the time."
"We have a new system put into place and it's been different for them. We're emphasizing work ethic, technique and fundamentals."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN

Head coach: Mary Jarvis, first season.

Jarvis' '92 outlook: "All the girls are very hard workers and have great attitudes, but we're young and inexperienced."

"We hope to win our fair share of games, but this is basically a rebuilding year for us."

LIVONIA STEVENSON

Head coach: Wayne Henry, first season.
League affiliation: WLAA (Lakes Division).
Season opener: Tuesday, Sept. 8, at Belleville.

Last year's overall record: 14-7.
Notable losses to graduation: Teresa Sarno (All-Area forward).

Leading returnees: Mo Drabicki, 5-6 junior guard (All-Lakes Division and third-team All-Area); Lori Shingledier, 5-6 senior guard; Julie Martin, 6-1 senior center; Jen Turbiak, 5-10 senior guard; Karen Groulx, 5-11 senior forward.

Promising newcomers: Patty Diamond, 5-11 senior forward.

Henry's '92 outlook: "Our team strengths are depth, size and quickness — if we learn how to use it."

"Our weaknesses are a lack of confidence, inconsistency and inexperience inside."

"We'll be respectable. How good depends on how fast we improve."

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN

Head coach: Pat Bennett, eighth season.
League affiliation: WLAA (Lakes Division).

Season opener: Thursday, Sept. 3, at home vs. Trenton.

Last year's overall record: 12-11.

Bennett's '92 outlook: "Our team strengths are size and quickness."

"Team weakness is a lack of experience. This team is dedicated to improving their game and will look to total teamwork as the success of our season."

WAYNE MEMORIAL

Head coach: Chuck Henry, third season.
League affiliation: Wolverine A.
Season opener: Tuesday, Sept. 3, at Livonia Churchill.

Last year's overall record: 9-12.

Leading returnees: Tanisha Dixon, 5-0 junior guard.

Henry's '92 outlook: "We have four girls returning who enjoyed a lion's share of the playing time."

"We have speed at a couple of positions, but we're not lightning (quick) overall."

"A team weakness is rebounding and depth at the inside position. We're so small. We'll be playing essentially four guards."

"Going into the season we hope to contend in our league. It looks like Fordson (Dearborn), Trenton and Wyandotte are the teams to beat. We hope to contend for the last upper division spot."

LIVONIA LADYWOOD

Head coach: Ed Kavanaugh, 14th season.
League affiliation: Catholic (Central Division).

Season opener: 7:30 tonight at home vs. Harper Woods Lutheran East.

Last year's overall record: 12-9.

Promising newcomers: Anne Pogits, 6-3 sophomore center; Melissa Campeau, 5-9 sophomore guard/forward; Enn Lucas, 5-7 junior guard.

Kavanaugh's '92 outlook: "Among team strengths are size, depth and speed. We've made notable improvement in skills over the summer and should be able to score some points."

"We will be competitive in all levels of play."

LIVONIA CLARENCEVILLE

Head coach: Bob Wolf, second season.
League affiliation: Metro Conference (West Division).

Season opener: Tuesday, Sept. 8, at Redford St. Agatha.

Last year's overall record: 5-16.

Notable losses to graduation: Leandra Hoffman.

Promising newcomers: Wendy Roy, 6-0 sophomore center; Pam Inzano, 5-10 sophomore forward; Sarah Gentry, 5-4 sophomore guard; Kelly Dietl, 5-4 sophomore guard.

Wolf's '92 outlook: "We finally have some size and people who can do some work inside."

"I'm optimistic. If we get things together and work as a team, we should be competitive. With the talent we have, we hope to do better. Last year we relied on too much Leandra (Hoffman) and that sometimes takes away from other players. Everybody became tentative, but now all five are going to have to do some scoring and rebounding."

LUTHERAN WESTLAND

Head coach: Ron Gentz, second season.
League affiliation: Metro Conference (West Division).

Season opener: Tuesday, Sept. 1 at Whitmore Lake Tournament.

Last year's overall record: 13-8.

Notable losses to graduation: Three starting guards including Kristen Strang (first-team All-Michigan Independent Athletic Conference); Lori Gentz and Stacy McGhee.

Leading returnees: Mindy Hardy, 6-0 senior center (8.5 points, 6.5 rebounds per game); Lon McKay, 5-10 senior forward (8.6 points, 6.6 rebounds); Sarah Pfeiffer, 5-10 senior forward (injured last half of '91); Leslie Turgeon, 5-6 senior guard.

Promising newcomers: Amy Gentz, 5-6 sophomore guard; Jenny Pruchnik, 5-11 sophomore center; Enn Cicero, 5-8 junior guard; Stephanie McGhee, 5-5 junior guard; Jenny Brauer, 5-10 junior forward; Emily Schroeder, 5-8 sophomore guard.

Gentz's '92 outlook: "We have overall good size and our team speed is improved."

"A weakness is inexperience at guard."

"We should be competitive. If we get consistent play from our big returning girls, and if the young guard become seasoned soon, we could be better than 1991. We go into the Metro (Conference) and we'll likely be in the middle."

HURON VALLEY LUTHERAN

Head coach: Harvey Kightlinger, third season.

League affiliation: Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

Season opener: Tuesday, Sept. 8, at Ann Arbor Greenhills.

Last year's overall record: 7-11.

Notable losses to graduation: Nancy and Nicole List, Sandi Dengel.

Leading returnees: Brenda Mayworm, 5-7 senior forward; Rachel Doletsky, 5-8 junior center; Rachel Wichmann, 5-2 sophomore guard.

Promising newcomers: Amy Haines, 5-6 junior forward; Nicole Kightlinger, 5-8 freshman forward; Michelle Ruhn, 5-5 freshman forward; Marie Vandenberg, 5-2 freshman guard; Emily Wichmann, 5-1 freshman guard.

Kightlinger's '92 outlook: "Our team strengths are quickness, positive attitude and improved shooting."

"A team weakness is inexperience."

"This is a question mark year. Brenda Mayworm is our only senior and she could start for any program in the state. However, she is coming off knee surgery that kept her out most of last year. She received conference honors as a sophomore and looks to be returning to that form. We are very young with seventh freshmen on the team. The attitude has been great and I believe we may surprise some people before the year is over."

Baker was the winning pitcher as the Americans won 18-16 in nine innings. Mackie was 2-for-2 with a triple and one RBI. She also scored a run.

Baker was the starting pitcher and worked a total of 3½ innings. She returned in the ninth to earn a save, too.

Harrison falls short in hoop opener

Farmington Hills Harrison rallied in the last quarter Tuesday but couldn't catch host Brighton and lost its season debut in girls basketball, 46-41.

The Hawks, trailing 18-17 at halftime, were outscored 16-6 in the third quarter before cutting the deficit with an 18-12 advantage in the finale.

Harrison senior center Heather Hopkins scored a game-high 14 points but was held to one in the second half after Brighton switched to a box-and-one defense against her. She also had four rebounds.

Krista Snow scored eight of her 10 points and Becky Macek seven of her nine in the fourth quarter for Harrison. Macek led the Hawks with six rebounds.

"The perimeter girls started to play aggressively and look for shots on offense" after Brighton shut down Hopkins, Harrison coach Peter Mantyla said.

"Offensively, we made a lot of mistakes. Their defense took us out of a lot of things we wanted to do, and we didn't do a good job of adjusting to it."

The Hawks trimmed an 11-point deficit to two with 1½ minutes to play, but 24 turnovers was a big negative to overcome. Jill Krips scored nine points and Jenny Anguish eight for Brighton.

"We need to do a better job of taking care of the ball and getting into what we want to run no matter what anybody is doing against us," Mantyla said.

Bill to legalize crossbows bad idea

GREAT OUTDOORS

BILL PARKER

The liberalized 77-day archery deer season we enjoy here in Michigan may be in jeopardy unless concerned archers can head off a pair of bills that would legalize crossbows for the archery deer season.

Introduced this spring by senator Joseph Conroy (D-Flint), SB 932 would redefine the term bow to include crossbow and SB 933 would authorize the use of a crossbow during the archery deer season. The bills are currently resting in the Senate Committee for Natural Resources and Environmental Affairs. But the committee could take action on the bills as early as September.

Bow hunting is an extremely challenging sport for the archer. A bow is a self-limiting, short-range weapon. It is hand-drawn, hand-held, and hand-released. To be a successful bow hunter, the archer must first learn the weapon's potential and the range in which it is effective. The draw and release of an arrow must be as instinctive as drinking water. But these tasks can only be accomplished through considerable practice — which is half the fun of the sport.

The thrill of bow hunting is in the chase. It's gaining the know-how and the hunting prowess to encounter your quarry at very close range. It's not how far you can shoot an arrow, but how close you can get to the game. The national average kill shot with a bow is less than 20 yards.

A big difference

The crossbow may have a time and a place in the woods, but it isn't during the archery season in Michigan, which is what proponents of the bill — mainly the crossbow industry — are shooting for.

"If crossbows are allowed during the archery season, with the increased kill, the season (length) would be in jeopardy," said Tom Morang, MBH District 10 Governor. "Bow hunting is supposed to be a challenge. It's not supposed to be easy. We want to keep bow hunting as it is right now."

By comparison, a crossbow is closer to a gun than a bow. It has a stock, a trigger, sights and it is carried fully loaded. Click off the safety and squeeze the trigger.

A bow is most effective at ranges of 30-yards or less while a crossbow is capable of producing three-inch groups at ranges of 60-yards or more with very little practice. Bows have pull weights averaging 65 pounds and less while most crossbows are set at pull weights of 150 pounds or more.

Once a crossbow is sighted in it shoots much like a rifle. Minimal practice is required. And the trigger eliminates the possibility of human error on the release. It is much easier to shoot something that is already cocked at full draw rather than having to draw down on your quarry when it moves into range.

It doesn't take a rocket scientist to realize how much of an impact such a weapon would have on the success rate during the archery season.

The battle rages

"We already have a problem with some legislators who say we don't need a 77-day season," explained Jerry Keck, editor of the Michigan Bow Hunters News and a member of the crossbow committee for the Professional Bowhunter's Society. "If crossbows are legalized there is no question it would ruin our season as we know it. We don't feel crossbows should be legalized any more than we feel a 30.06 should be legalized during bow season."

This isn't the first time there has been a push to legalize crossbows. Bills have been introduced in the past that called for legalization of crossbows for handicapped hunters and legalized crossbow hunting during the firearm deer season.

"Since the late 70's they've been trying to get their foot in the door here in Michigan," Keck said. "We know the industry will never be happy if crossbows are just legalized for the handicapped or for the firearms season. There are 500,000 deer hunters in Michigan who haven't come around to archery and these are the people the industry wants to get to. In Ohio, the crossbowers got their foot in the door and they took over the archery season."

In Ohio, where they have a fraction of the number of hunters and deer that we have in Michigan, crossbows were legalized for use during the firearms deer season in 1976. (The season bag limit in Ohio is one deer whether it is taken with a firearm, bow, crossbow or muzzle-loader.) Crossbow hunters experienced marginal success that year, taking just 27 deer.

By 1981 the number had risen to 193. Crossbows were legalized for the archery season in 1982 and Ohio crossbow hunters took 446 deer. By 1990 the crossbow hunters had overtaken the archery hunters 6,494 to 5,593 and last season crossbow hunters took 9,401 compared to just 7,708 for archers.

Lets face it, with the number of hunters we have in Michigan and the liberal bag limit crossbow hunters would have a huge impact on the harvest numbers during the archery season.

"I urge all bow hunters to write to their senators and express their views," Keck said. "We've been fighting the crossbowers for a long time and this is the biggest push they have ever made. Once they get their foot in the door they're here to stay. They started at the end of the Ohio season now they run the whole season. We don't want that to happen here in Michigan."

EXERCISING OPTIONS

MYRNA PARTRICH

Dear Myrna: I enjoy your column each week and all fitness reading. I am a 'doer' also at 48 years. I do some form of aerobics each day and about three or four classes per week. Do you feel step classes are any harder on your knees and calves than other low to medium aerobic classes? Thanks for your opinion on this. Also, I alternate with my stationary bike and walking to keep it pretty safe.

— Dianne Eisenberg

Sounds like you have a great exercise regiment, Dianne. By giving yourself variety, you use more muscle groups; therefore, your all around training is safer and more effective.

Step aerobics is another safe and effective method of aerobic training we now have available. Let me give you a little history of step aerobics to help answer your questions.

Gin Miller, a nationally certified aerobics instructor living in Atlanta, invented the 'step'. Like so many athletes, time caught up with Gin and she sustained a serious knee injury.

Gin's physical therapist advised her to do conventional 'step up' exercises to help rebuild strength in her knee. She started with an old milk crate, working out by stepping up and down three times a day. When her knee was fully rehabilitated she returned to teaching classes and started incorporating step routine into low impact classes.

Did this take off? Wow, did it!

Now it is common to find almost one-half of the classes taught today in a studio setting are of a step nature.

You asked if step classes are any harder on your knees and calves than other low impact classes? If step classes are taught properly, there should be no injuries:

- Step up not too high — your leg bent to step up more than 90 percent (remember you are not climbing a mountain).

- Pace should be slow enough so that you have time to step in the center of the step and down flat on the floor.

- To protect your calves against excessive muscle overload you must step down with your heel, every step you take.

- When a step routine calls for a pivot on the step you must lift your entire body to effectuate the move.

Now a little more background on stepping. Gin Miller sold her idea to Reebok, in turn, developed and marketed the concept. Recently, Reebok wanted to know just how their program fared.

Research was conducted by acclaimed fitness consultants Drs. Peter and Lorna Francis at San Diego State University. Stepping tested up against treadmill workouts. Volunteers walked and ran on treadmills, then performed a typical step routine. Both the oxygen volume and used and impact forces applied were measured.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company in Bloomfield Hills and an appointee to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and to the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Chewy barbecue ribs, the kind you get your hands messy eating are a specialty at family-owned Alexander The Great restaurant in Westland.

"We sell up to 2,000 pounds of ribs a week," said Tom Tomovski who owns the restaurant with his wife, Pauline.

The ribs are trimmed of fat, cleaned, seasoned and cooked on an open fire rotisserie. Then they're sauced with the family's special homestyle barbecue sauce, and put under a broiler until cooked through.

The tangy sauce is offered for sale for $3 in the restaurant. Besides ribs, it also tastes good on home fries.

"We're here everyday. I work days, my husband works nights," said Pauline. "We believe in consistency, quality, and cleanliness. If a customer comes in 10 times, they should get 10 good meals," said Tom. Their children, Zana 16, and Zak 13, help out at the restaurant too.

Alexander The Great which is celebrating its 15th anniversary in September, is one of a vanishing breed of family-owned and operated restaurants. The Tomovskis are active in the community, and belong to the Westland Chamber of Commerce.

Their restaurant is comfortable and suitable for special family dinners, but casual enough to wear jeans to. There are booths which offer privacy and a place to unwind after a busy day.

Pauline planted the flowers outside, and designed the homey interior in relaxing shades of blue and mauve. The blue carpeting is new, so are the booth coverings. Pots of variegated pothos hang from the ceiling creating a cheery atmosphere.

There's a little bit of everything for everybody on the menu. The kiddie menu features spaghetti, fish and chips, hamburger & fries, grilled cheese, barbecue ribs and fried chicken.

The lunch menu features more sandwiches, and entrees like beef kabob and orange roughy. Dinner features barbe-

Forced out of their homes by Hurricane Andrew, more than 100,000 people have found refuge in American Red Cross shelters in Florida, Louisiana, Texas, and Mississippi since the storm hit on Monday, August 24, 1992.

Disaster assistance offered by the Red Cross also includes paying for what they need most—from groceries, new clothing and rent, to emergency home repairs, transportation and household items. This assistance is given free—as a gift from the American people.

Therefore, the Red Cross is appealing to the general public for assistance in the form of financial contributions. To contribute to the disaster relief, send a check or money order to:

Disaster Relief Fund

Box 33351 Detroit MI 48232-5351

Bank card contributions can be made by calling 1-800-842-2200. For corporation or business donations, call 833-2632. All donations will go directly for the relief of disaster victims.

Note: Because of the great need to provide basic needs to disaster victims and the changing face of the disaster situation, the Red Cross has placed a moratorium on tracing requests. When this moratorium is lifted, the Red Cross will assist people in locating their friends and family members in the hurricane areas.

GM could use its clout to force changes in health care

white-collar and retired employees. The first reaction is "join the par-

The table on which my computer sits is currently inundated with partially paid medical bills, which no doubt affects my objectivity when I read about how GM is planning going to cut its health benefits, mainly for its ty," since I am one of those white-collar employees who has seen medical benefits dwindle for years. Still, the announcement came with the usual misleading statements about the true state of auto company corporate health plans, and it irked me anyway.

There is no question that health care premiums are escalating faster than any other portion of the payroll, but what seems to be missing in most of the debate is that they are, in fact, part of the payroll.

Corporate axmen like to kid themselves that cutting benefits isn't quite the same as cutting pay. And too many employees think the corporation is somehow "paying" for benefits separate from their salary.

The reality is that "company paid" benefits are part of the payroll sheltered from income taxes. Co-payments are not sheltered, and hence cost the employee roughly $2 of pre-tax income for every dollar the company saves. Usually, these "co-pay" deals don't seem like a huge portion of your paycheck, but it is, in my mind, a particularly dumb way of attempting to save money. (Like I said, I am looking at uncovered medical bills and eyeing my own co-pay statement).

All that aside, the effect of health care costs today is supposed to be costing GM about $1,000 per car. That's a peculiar figure, since it skyrockets when GM production and productivity drop, as well as when medical insurance costs rise.

A better way of looking at it is that GM's medical costs ought to be about 8 percent of payroll — a level of some concern, but not its primary cost problem.

U.S. auto companies' hiring-to-the-grave health benefits today are legendary compared to those of most Americans. Auto industry health benefits today cost an amount equal to roughly two-thirds of the entire take-home pay of a minimum-wage worker.

Most of the Big Three's offshore competition has health care costs at least partially offset by national health programs, a fact that puts the United States in a poor competitive position. The irony here is that the co-pay proposal would increase the tax burden for GM employees — the opposite of gaining any kind of federal subsidy.

As one of the biggest corporate players, GM long has been in a position to arm-wrestle with the medical establishment and force some reform in the whole industry, rather than fool around with stopgap cost-cutting.

Given the tone of the national election, it would seem an appropriate time to do so, unless the strategy is to lay back and let the government do it for them.

"The biggest drawback is public exposure of everything you do," Gunn said. "It's expensive to administer. There are strict regulatory requirements. It's demanding on management's time."

Investors usually must have a pipeline or window to the investment community to get in on the ground floor of an initial public offering.

"Typically, the investment banker who underwrites the security, goes to its clientele," Gunn said. "That's when you get a cold call from a broker and he says, 'I've got a great opportunity.' People in New York have contacts with people around the world."

Gunn conceded that the route Somanetics took to go public was quite a bit more convoluted than usual.

"It was complicated by the (Persian Gulf) War; a lot of stockholders were in the deal before the initial public offering — the company was still evolving," he said.

The best time to go public is when the stock market is hot, said Dean Gulis, research director for Roney & Co, a brokerage firm.

"The most important factor is receptivity. You have to be in a position where the public wants to buy your stock," Gulis said.

"The most important thing is a buoyant stock market. Usually you associate that with low interest rates, or declining, anyway, a robust economy, a growing economy," Gulis said.

"Only companies that have a great story and a great opportunity can go public," Gunn said. "People are interested in explosive opportunity when they invest in initial public offerings."

But after going public, some companies decide to return to private status.

D.O.C. Optics, headquartered in Southfield, went from a public to private company earlier this year with a stock repurchase strategy.

"One of the reasons we went private was so we don't have to give out information," said James A. Lies, chief financial officer.

Fretter, based in Livonia, has announced that it's studying the possibility of going private from public.

Highland from NEXT PAGE

In its bankruptcy petition filed Monday, Highland Superstores listed 18 creditors to which it owes more than $1 million.

Highland Appliance also named the more than 1.7 million customers who hold extended warranties as its largest creditor. Other creditors include companies like National Bank of Detroit, Manufacturers Bank (now merged with Comerica), Sony Corp. and Whirlpool Corp.

The root of Highland Superstores' problems stems from an ambitious expansion plan in the 1980s that eventually saw the firm grow to more than 80 stores.

After public demand for electronics waned — the falloff in VCR sales in the late 1980s in particular — Highland Superstores began withdrawing from some of its more far-flung markets like New York, Minneapolis and Texas.

In January of this year, Highland Superstores began implementing a plan to eliminate $20 million in expenses annually that included a company-wide layoff of approximately 500 at both the corporate and retail level.

Wineberg said the newest move is not expected to result in any further layoffs at the retail outlet level in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. "In the case of our downsizing, certain non-store support area may be affected."

In a prepared statement issued Monday, Highland's president and chief financial officer Ira Mondry said, "We have been unable to achieve the out-of-court financial restructuring of the company we had originally hoped for. We intend to seek the support of our creditors in the formulation of a reorganization plan that will allow us to emerge from Chapter 11 as soon as possible."

Mondry added, "Chapter 11 will give us the opportunity to deal more effectively with certain burdensome obligations, such as closed store leases."

Steve Hertzberg, an attorney representing the trade creditors of Highland Superstores, said he and his clients were surprised by the company's plans to file bankruptcy, which they learned of Friday.

"There have been two deals we've negotiated with them in the past months, and they've come back to us both times to say they couldn't meet the cash flow obligations (of the out-of-court reorganization plans)."

For now, customers in areas served by remaining stores should notice little difference in merchandise quantities.

Hertzberg said that despite the disappointment of the trade creditors in Highland's latest actions, suppliers will probably continue shipping merchandise to the retailers.

LOCAL AGENCY WINS HIGH HONORS WITH REGIONAL INSURANCE COMPANY

The Amerisure Companies, a Michigan-based insurance company, recently recognized the Seed-Roberts Agency for having met the criteria for three agency recognition award programs. These programs recognize agencies for production, profitability, professionalism and long-term potential. This agency is one of only three others among the over 200 statewide agencies of Amerisure to earn this many awards. In addition to the awards, William Brunett, president of the agency, also serves on Amerisure's Agents' Advisory Council which was formed to elicit feedback on issues from their clients.

Mr. Brunett attributes the success of the agency to its dedication to clients' servicing and long history in the area. This year they are celebrating their 30th anniversary. The agency was founded by Bill Roberts, Sr., Chairman of the Board, who was a former mayor of Birmingham. They specialize in all areas of insurance. Mr. Brunett further notes that the agency currently insures many successful companies and individuals in the Greater Detroit Metropolitan area.

It's a winding path to financial backing

■ Securing capital is essential for entrepreneurs struggling to get a product to market. For Troy-based Somanetics, manufacturer of computer-based medical diagnostic and monitoring equipment, the question was how to gain more visibility for shareholders and would-be investors.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

An idea, a plan, the money. Financial backing is the big stumbling block when it comes to birthing new businesses.

Unless they're exceptionally rich, entrepreneurs can go only so far on their own resources and by tapping family, friends and other kindred spirits.

Then they have to hook up with a bank (highly unlikely without a track record), make connections with a venture capital group (still difficult with strings attached) or sell shares of stock to the public.

Somanetics, started by Gary D. Lewis in 1982 and subsequently located in Troy, went public in April 1991. Last week, the company moved from the NASDAQ small cap issues to the regular NASDAQ national exchange, gaining more visibility for shareholders and would-be investors.

Somanetics makes and sells computer-based medical diagnostic and monitoring equipment. It recently received clearance from the Federal Drug Administration to market its product. It has yet to post a profitable year.

"Management teams usually are so strained for cash that they will take money under any terms," said Raymond Gunn, chief financial officer. "Gary said no to a lot of people. Strings were prohibitive."

Lewis said he raised upwards of $250,000 from his own resources, family and friends during initial research. Money from other high-profile individuals, whom he declined to identify, produced another $4.4 million as the concept evolved.

Then it came down to taking the prototype to the production phase and more money was needed.

Enter a Boston venture capital group that provided some $500,000 and a New York underwriter that provided a bridge (temporary) loan of $1.45 million.

But a year later, Lewis, looking for the best financing plan to move forward, exercised an escape clause, paid off the underwriter and venture group, and issued stock and warrants — options to buy stock.

Somanetics went public.

"The primary reason was not so much the control issue, but with venture capital we weren't going to really raise enough to get the job done," Lewis said.

"Venture people want to know up front what their exit vehicle is. They want to take their money out at very nice returns, which is fine. We were concerned it would force us to create an exit vehicle sooner than we wanted," he said.

The initial public offering netted some $6.5 million. Warrants called for redemption in May brought in an additional $11.8 million. Redemption of additional warrants in February can potentially raise another $15.5 million.

Somanetics has 4,000 stockholders. Lewis is the single largest stockholder but does not own a majority of shares. The stock closed at 4% on Tuesday.

"We wanted to build a business," Gunn said. "We look for more long-term players."

But there are both advantages and disadvantages to going public.

"It improves the overall financial position, debt-to-equity ratio," Gunn said. "It cleans up the balance sheet and enhances the ability to raise capital. Presence in the marketplace gives credibility... and helps you attract quality people (employees)."

Highland turns to Chapter 11 to retrench

BY GERALD FRAWLEY
STAFF WRITER

It's still a war out there in the appliance retail industry, and Highland Superstores is falling back to regroup.

With the intention of beefing up its remaining stores in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, Highland Superstores is concentrating its resources by closing its 19 stores in the Chicago-area market.

Company officials hope the move will allow the firm to bounce back to profitability after several years of financial turmoil that has seen Highland Superstores weather store closings in Texas, Minneapolis, Minn., and New York.

The Plymouth-based electronics and appliance retailer filed a petition to reorganize under federal bankruptcy laws, Chapter 11, in United States Bankruptcy Court for the Eastern District of Michigan Monday. The company is seeking protection from its creditors and permission to exit the Chicago market.

Danette Wineberg, vice president of Highland Superstores, said in concentrating its resources on its remaining stores, the retailer will continue to offer "outstanding buys, the most sought-after brands and the most professional customer service organization."

"We have traditionally been well-entrenched in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, while Chicago, as one of our newer markets, was still in the developmental stage," Wineberg said.

Close call leads to new outlook on the good life

By REBECCA HAYNES
STAFF WRITER

When Larry Clark quit smoking more than two years ago he thought his health problems were over. "After smoking a pack or more a day for 20 years, I thought I had really done something great," said the 41-year-old Canton resident.

But the pounds began to add unwanted layers to a body frame Clark admits was already overweight. He had trouble sleeping because of persistent snoring and he developed a painful cyst on his tailbone, common to overweight people, he said.

"In March (of 1990) I went into Botsford for elective surgery to have the cyst removed," Clark said. "It's a routine outpatient procedure — in at noon and out at five."

But Clark never made it to the actual surgery. After being put to sleep but before the surgeon began, Clark went into respiratory arrest.

"My throat just collapsed and I stopped breathing," he said. "They took the endotracheal tube that they put in after you're asleep back out, and I started breathing again."

Clark didn't start breathing again on his own when it happened a second time. And an ear-nose-and-throat surgeon who happened to be available had to quickly perform a tracheotomy, making it possible for Clark to breathe through his throat.

"I ended up in ICU for three weeks," Clark said. "I got out of the hospital in April and I went back to work in May. If it hadn't have been for that ear-nose-and-throat surgeon I probably would be planted somewhere right now."

Gaining weight

During his hospital stay and recuperation, Clark shed 40 pounds. But once he was up and around and back at his job as a sales representative for a pharmaceutical company, he gained back that 40 pounds plus 40 more.

"I was up to almost 300 pounds (by Feb. of '91) and I developed a really bad heartburn condition that kept me up at night," he said. "When I went to see a doctor about the heartburn, he told me I'd probably kill myself if I didn't lose some weight."

After talking with his wife Suzann, Clark decided that losing the weight on his own was the only way he wanted to go. The expense of joining one of the many diet programs wasn't something they wanted to add to their budget.

"I'd have Dynatrim for breakfast and for lunch I'd have a can of Ultra SlimFast," he said. "Then dinner would be real low-calorie and I virtually eliminated fat from my diet."

Reading a slew of books and magazines on nutrition gave him enough information to make intelligent decisions about food, and in the first four months he lost 60 pounds.

"At that point I knew that without exercise I wasn't going to do much better, so I started walking gradually and fooling around with weights because I had liked doing it in the army," Clark said. "By the summer I was going three miles a day fast, and I found I could actually reset my metabolism by exercising."

School daze: What do kids need?

By JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Nancy Weycker and Marilyn Griffith have a pretty good idea of what movies are popular with kids.

As teachers, they see fads come and go. School supplies based on the "Batman" and "Beauty and the Beast" movies are popular, said Weycker, a second grade teacher at Fiegel Elementary School in Plymouth Township.

"The lunch boxes always change too," said Weycker, a Canton resident. "From year to year, different things will be popular."

Griffith, a kindergarten teacher at Nankin Mills Elementary School in the Livonia Public Schools district, noticed that the popularity of "Batman" items waned awhile after the first movie was released, and returned with the sequel's release. The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles still have considerable appeal among the younger set, she said.

"Trolls are the latest thing. All the kids will have their trolls," said Griffith, a Livonia resident. "It goes in cycles."

The teachers agree that starting the year with the right supplies can help children feel more comfortable and do better academically. Districts are required to provide the basics, such as pencils and paper.

Weycker sends home a letter to parents at the start of each school year, with recommended supplies listed. She suggests that parents wait and plan on doing some school supply shopping soon after classes have started.

Individual preferences

"The teachers are going to have different things they want." As a parent, Weycker sometimes made the mistake of shopping for school supplies too early, and then having to go back for forgotten items.

She suggests that younger grade schoolers have a pencil box filled with crayons, pencils, erasers and non-permanent markers. A small bottle of glue or a glue stick is useful, as is a small pair of scissors — designed for left-handed use if needed.

Upper-elementary students generally use pens, rather than pencils, Weycker said. When she taught fifth grade, she had students bring in pocket folders for each subject. She's found that large notebooks with separate folders inside take up too much room in desks, and doesn't recommend that parents buy those.

Griffith encourages parents to provide something children can carry books and papers in. "Most kids nowadays want backpacks." She prefers sturdy plastic bags without zippers for younger children, but many choose backpacks instead.

"They want to be like the big kids and have a backpack."

Most youngsters now wear gym shoes all day year-round, but those who don't will need a pair for gym class, she said. Clearly labeling items — such as boots, shoes, coats and mittens — helps teachers.

"It would make it so easy sometimes," said Griffith, who suggests that parents use a laundry marker to put the child's name on an inside label of clothing.

Weycker also appreciates such labeling. One year when she taught kindergarten, many of her students had Barbie lunch boxes, and knowing which lunch box was which was a challenge.

Keeping costs down

School supplies don't have to cost a small fortune. Paul Baerwalde of Livonia, who teaches third grade at Woodworth Elementary School in Dearborn, has found that common, everyday household items come in handy.

She fills children's book with magical memories

By JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

It's been a few years since Kathryn Osebold Galbraith's girlhood in Plymouth. Even so, she has fond memories of school snow days.

"Snow days as a child were always so magical," said Galbraith, a children's author who now lives in Tacoma, Wash., with her husband, Steve. Many adults also enjoy the change of routine that accompanies a snowstorm.

"That's why I wanted to include the schoolteacher and the bus driver throughout," she said, referring to her newest book, "Look! Snow!"

A school snow day's the subject of that picture book (Margaret K. McElderry Books/Macmillan Children's Book Group). The book, for preschool and early elementary school-age children, will be available in September.

It's the ninth children's book Galbraith has published. She published her first in 1976, and combines writing with her duties as executive director of the Tacoma Philharmonic.

"Look! Snow!" was completely different from her earlier books. Galbraith had the concept for the book, and wrote to her editor asking if the publisher would accept a wordless picture book from a non-illustrator. She got the OK, provided that the book told a story.

Story time: "Look! Snow!" is the newest book by children's author Kathryn Osebold Galbraith, who grew up in Plymouth and now lives in Tacoma, Wash. Her first book was published in 1976.

ENGAGEMENTS

Anderson-Tibus

Roger and Elaine Anderson of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Wendy Renae Anderson of Plymouth, to Joseph Edmund Tibus of Novi, son of Barbara Tibus of Walled Lake.

The bride-elect is employed as a reservation sales agent for North-west Airlines in Livonia.

Her fiancé is employed as a sales representative for the Brighton Ford and Mercury car dealership in Brighton.

Schrader-Scoggins

Ken and Sally Schrader of Fairfield Glade, Tenn., originally of Plymouth, announce the engagement of their daughter, Peggy Joyce Schrader of Coppell, Texas, to Lee Scoggins of Dallas, Texas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Scoggins of Henderson, Texas.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. She attended the University of Tennessee in Knoxville and is employed as a flight attendant with American Airlines.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Stephen F. Austin State University, where he earned a bachelor of business administration degree, specializing in management. He is employed by Air Products & Chemicals Inc. in Dallas, Texas.

Seeing results

Good results encouraged Clark and he actually began increasing his daily calories, but adding them through carbohydrates, eating a lot of fruit.

"By the time I went back in to see the doctor in August, I'd dropped 115 pounds," he said, grinning. "The doctor looked at me and thought something was wrong. He thought I had cancer."

Now Clark is up to an hour of weightlifting five days a week. And he runs five to six miles every day after work, no matter what the weather. Recently he ran his first competitive races, 10Ks in Ann Arbor and Plymouth. He did so well that he's now caught the racing bug.

He's kept himself within a few pounds of his goal of 180 for nearly a year. And weight isn't the only thing Clark has lost. He's brought his once-high blood pressure under control and his cholesterol level, which at its worst was close to the 300 pounds he used to weigh, is now down to under 120.

Suzann said the family was a little resentful when her husband first began his quest to shed pounds. And their three daughters, Erin, 15, Andrea, 12, and Kristin, 10, weren't eager to give up the foods to which they were accustomed.

"I felt like he was asking us to give up everything," Suzann said. "But if I want to make a meal of meat and potatoes, he'll fix something else for himself."

Testing willpower

Clark is proud of the fact that he hasn't had a cheeseburger in nearly two years. He almost never eats red meat, and in fact, doesn't eat much meat of any kind.

Rice cooked with beans is a frequent dinner and lunches usually consist of a handful of dried apricots, cranberries and unsweetened banana chips. Breakfast is still a diet milkshake, and he eats two apples every day for fiber and the feeling of fullness.

"He eats like a horse now," Suzann said, laughing. "It's been good because we're all eating healthier."

At night he snacks on rice cakes and more dried fruit. Other favorite snacks are bread and sugar-free Jell-O.

"I buy all different types of bread, but I never use butter. I have sugar-free jelly," Clark said. "I also eat a lot of salads, but I don't eat regular salad dressing, only fat-free."

He does allow himself occasional treats, like a piece of cake for his daughter's birthday, but he clings strictly to his no- or low-fat philosophy.

"I don't think I'm on a diet. I just eat differently," he said. "If I broke down and had a cheeseburger I'd say to myself 'OK, I had the first one, now when do I handle having the second one?'" working together, and has found that communication is strengthened when parents keep up with what's going on in school and help provide supplies. Even such things as paper towel rolls can be saved and used for class projects, he said.

Weycker's found that digital watches aren't the best choice for younger students still learning how to tell time. They tend to do better with simpler watch designs.

"In our age of high technology, sometimes we forget about the basic things like that."

Computers and calculators are provided in area classrooms, although some youngsters like to bring a calculator to school. Having a computer at home can help, Weycker said, but parents shouldn't feel pressured to spend that kind of money.

"Having one at home doesn't hurt," Griffith said of computers. "My kindergarten kids probably know more about them than I do. These kids are very versed on the computer."

Grade school students use calculators, and some testing is designed with calculators in mind, Griffith said.

"That's the future, computers and all the electronic stuff. Our schools are certainly different than they were a long time ago. I think it's for the better with all of this."

Under pressure

Some parents feel pressure to buy all kinds of things for children. Griffith said that was true even for her when her children were younger.

"Because of fads, the kids really seem to have to have all of this." The educators know that attitude's the key when it comes to learning.

"Accept your child for what he is," Griffith said. Pushing children to do too much too soon does more harm than good.

"It takes the joy of learning out of it for them. They all just develop differently, and they do things at different times." Reading to children regularly is a tremendous help, Griffith said, as is exposing them to different experiences, such as museum visits.

Kids who've visited the library in the summer and done such things as used maps to help with vacation plans tend to do better in school, Weycker said.

"For every page, I wrote what was going to happen on the page." The 32-page book doesn't include many words, but Galbraith was kept busy writing a description for each page.

"It was sort of like writing a film script." There's action in the story, but not much dialogue.

Galbraith's growing-up days in Plymouth have provided a source of inspiration for much of her writing. The daughter of the late Charles and Gertrude Osebold, she attended Our Lady of Good Counsel School in Plymouth and graduated from Plymouth High School.

Having a stable childhood and living in one place for years gave her a strong sense of place and location. "I think that's made a difference."

She attended the University of Michigan, earning a bachelor's degree in English literature and a master's degree in library science in 1970. Galbraith still has family ties to Michigan. Three brothers and their families live in the state, as do other relatives.

"Definitely. It's still home base," said Galbraith, who visited most recently last year. With the current airfare wars, she's hoping to make another trip east this year.

She remembers spending many happy hours at the public library in Plymouth as a child and teenager. "That was really important, having a good library system."

She'd thought about "Look! Snow!" in terms of Michigan, but used the names of Washington state schools in the story. The Seattle-Tacoma area gets some snow, but nothing like what Michigan experiences each winter.

"So that's what makes snow days so special here."

The book was illustrated by Nina Montezinos, who worked with the editor and art director at the New York City-based publisher.

"Interestingly enough, no, I never spoke with her," Galbraith said of the illustrator. After her editor approved the idea for the book, it took about three months to find the right illustrator.

Galbraith found the first samples weren't quite right. "They were good, but not quite what I had in mind." Some more work was done, and the color illustrations turned out just fine.

Galbraith was pleased with the illustrations Montezinos created, and hopes she'll go on to do other children's books.

Food for thought

"Look! Snow!" could be used by teachers to encourage early elementary school-age youngsters to write about their own snow-day experiences, she said. "I think that's the magic of a wordless picture book."

These days, Galbraith's working on a sequel to two of her earlier books, 1990's "Roommates" and 1991's "Roommates and Rachel" (Margaret K. McElderry Books/Macmillan). The main characters in those books, sisters Beth and Mimi, must adjust to the arrival of a new baby sister, Rachel.

Writer accepts responsibility to get what she wants

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene, After many years of enjoying your column, I have decided to have my handwriting analyzed. I am a 52-year-old female and I am right handed. My handwriting hasn't changed much in the last 25 years, but prior to that, it changed somewhat every few years.

I was not very healthy as a child and spent a great deal of time in bed and would practice handwriting to pass the time.

Thank you for analyzing my handwriting.

K.G., Livonia

An extremely busy lady is portrayed in today's handwriting. Due to her many involvements she appears to be experiencing difficulty planning and organizing her daily routine. This might be a good time for her to out her values and bring her priorities into focus.

Our writer's self image has an inordinate amount of resentment and inflexibility in its foundation. Seemingly, she has been terribly hurt, possibly as far back as the teen years. She finds it virtually impossible to forgive and forget the source of her unhappiness. Continuing to carry this resentment causes tension and aggressive feelings on her part, however.

A very competitive nature can be seen here. She appears to be channeling subconscious energies into her work and daily activities. She is willing to accept responsibility to get where and what she wants from life. And she tends to feel she can do her job as well as, or better than anyone else.

People are absolutely essential to her feelings of well being. She wants to be important, to be loved and to make her place in the sun. Seemingly, she needs above average levels of support from those around her. And while she appears to have an active social life, it also involves some tension on her part.

With all this activity and sociability she leans toward concealment and protection. While she adapts to the outside world, she rarely ever discloses her inner life.

Her thoughts are often dominated by her emotions. She is well acquainted with social mores and will generally conform to what is expected of her.

Feelings of security are very important to our writer. She does not willingly deviate from the tried and true and is inclined to stick with what she knows best. In totally new situations she may be somewhat uncomfortable, although others would not know it.

This is a woman of intelligence who perceives herself as being somewhat different than others. She may also think of herself in possession of special insights or truths. However, insight into her own personality may be somewhat limited.

This writer has an artistic sense of proportion. She is concerned with the way things look, and may have a preoccupation or delight in structures, forms and aesthetics. She is not without creativity. Her tastes probably lean toward the fancy as opposed to the plain.

My handwriting has not changed much in the last 25 years, but prior to that, it changed somewhat every few years. I was not very healthy as a child.

A tad of humor weaves through her handwriting lending enjoyment to her life.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are also helpful.

Teens lend a hand for Habitat

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Teens from Geneva Presbyterian Church can be forgiven if they're taking it easy these days.

The students have certainly earned some rest-and-relaxation time, following an Aug. 3-10 Habitat for Humanity missions trip to Missouri. The 21 students and several adult helpers from the Canton congregation worked on two homes for low-income families.

Many of the students participated in a 1991 summer missions trip to West Virginia. Some have since moved on to college, but many decided to invest the time and effort required for this year's trip.

Jaclyn Conklin, 15, was among those who went to West Virginia to work on the Habitat for Humanity housing project last year.

"I liked it so much that I just had to come back again," said Conklin, a junior at Plymouth Salem High School.

She spent her time in Missouri spackling, sanding, painting and shingling. Conklin also worked on siding for one of the two homes, put up drywall and helped build a porch.

"I loved the trip," Conklin was surprised to see the housing conditions, but found the conditions were worse last year in West Virginia.

This year's trip took the group to the Branson, Mo., area. Work for the Mountain Country Habitat for Humanity program was done on two homes in rural areas, Merriam Woods and Kimberling City, in southwestern Missouri.

Workers from Geneva didn't have to start from the beginning; the homes were framed and roofed before the group arrived, said Jim DeLong, one of the adult helpers. Group members did finishing work, such as painting, spackling and putting up drywall.

Earning their keep

The trip's been in the works for some time. Students spent the year raising money, holding car washes, bottle drives and other projects. A "Rent-A-Kid" auction — in which students volunteered four hours apiece for yard work, housework and other tasks — helped to finance the trip, as did a formal dinner theater program, complete with valet parking and candlelight dining, at the church.

"I think it was a big undertaking," said Carol Bunch, another adult helper who accompanied the group. Students had to work hard and make wise choices in order to reach their fund-raising goal of more than $4,000.

Many of the students had some idea of what to expect in Missouri, based on their earlier Habitat for Humanity trip. "We saw some pretty good areas here," DeLong said.

The students and adults come from comfortable middle class and upper middle class homes. "This is their perspective on the world," DeLong said. "It's a different perspective when you work on these projects."

We all tend to become complacent, he added, and such trips help people realize how fortunate they are.

"A lot of them felt really good about being able to help someone," Bunch said. Members of the family who'll live in the larger of the two homes worked with the Geneva group, and the students enjoyed meeting them.

An eye-opener

Selena Bastine, 17, went on last summer's trip and this year's. "I had a lot of fun. It was great," she said.

"It totally changes your life," said Bastine, a senior at Plymouth Canton High School. "You can't explain it, almost. It makes you really appreciate what you have."

Even such simple things as being able to take a shower take on new meaning after such a trip, she said.

Chris Niemiec, 17, participated for the first time this August. He's a senior at Catholic Central High School in Redford and worships at St. John Neumann Catholic Church in Canton.

"I've never done anything like that before," Niemiec said. "The people down there treat you with real respect."

He appreciated the hospitality the group found in Missouri. Niem-

Helping hands: The Habitat for Humanity missions project took these students and advisers to Missouri in early August. The Geneva Presbyterian Church group hopes to participate in another missions trip next year.

iec knows from his own experiences that those who call teens self-centered aren't on target. "They're wrong."

The students worked in four groups, each with a student leader. There was no sexism when it came to dividing up job duties, with the girls and women doing their share of heavy-duty tasks. Extensive knowledge of construction and home repair isn't required of Habitat for Humanity volunteers.

Group members, who traveled the more than 700 miles in several vans and a Jeep, hope to participate in another Habitat for Humanity project next summer. They're not sure just yet where that will be.

Students were hard at work during their time in the Show Me State, but found time to see a show in Branson, which is known for its country music theaters. The big-name star shows were sold out, Bunch said, but group members received free tickets for a local show as thanks for their efforts.

"It was very good," she said of the performance.

High school mission trip participants were: Laurie Knapp, Owen Crosby, Katie Ryan, Eric Stoeklein, Melissa DeLong, Selena Bastine, Holly Shelley, John Mincher, Chris Collins, Tracey Fannin, Autumn Bunch, Mindy Andrews, Josh Stickney, Matt Mosley, Chris Niemiec, Mark Colburn, Andy Morelli, Melissa Bastine, Jaclyn Conklin and Laura Rivard.

Advisers were: Jim Crosby, Jim DeLong, Dave Bunch, Carol Bunch, Bob Colburn, Ryan Crosby and Pam VanderWeele.

Taking a break: Some of the workers from Geneva perch on the porch of one of the two homes.

Morality and values collide in politics

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. ROBERT SCHADEN

Some things I wondered about as I was looking for a moral perspective... Why is the anger directed at welfare cheats, who bilk us of hundreds of thousands of dollars expressed so much more often and louder than that directed toward the fat cats who legally and illegally walk away with so much more of other peoples' money in the pockets of their custom-made suits?

Such anger leads many to want to disband the whole welfare system, a suggestion that is seldom made in regard to banking, savings and loan institutions or other systems that attract the kind of cheat who projects a more acceptable image than one might find among those who make their money on welfare fraud.

Or what would happen if the same politicians who speak so sanctioniously concerning family values were to work to implement programs to support families in their struggles.

Single mothers are parents, too; they have families. Often they struggle in a system that is more attuned to only one of the many kinds of families that make up our nation. They need help in dependable child care while they go out to support the needs of their children who will be a large part of tomorrow's adult population.

Can churches simply point to the sermons that spew from their pulpits or the picnics they hold as proof positive that they believe in family values?

What about support for families who do not fit the mold, those who are not accepted in other circles, families with a gay young adult child, families battling alcohol and other drugs, families who for a variety of reasons do not find their way to a pew on Sunday morning. Spirituality is always more challenging than religion.

Also, I sometimes wonder if those who are for choice can really honor the choice made by those who oppose them and are the proponents of life really ready to enhance all life even at cost to themselves.

And is sex education a misnomer? With the reluctance to teach values in schools — there's that nasty word again — most sex education isn't. The attempts in this direction are more often than not focused biology classes. Why not just call it for what it is, genital education. Sex education is human and it is relational, but those two concepts again raise values from the shadows.

We accuse politicians of saying what we want to hear, but is it possible that most of us are open to hear only those things that we want to have said. This may be why people seldom read books or articles or listen to talks by those with whom they disagree. To do otherwise may cause thinking to happen.

And finally now that the two big conventions are over... have we already made up our minds on all the issues and all the candidates, let alone the main players.

Perhaps undecided is a good place to be. It is true that any other position may spare us the rhetoric to be bantered about between now and November, but it would also close us off to consideration of many truths we may do well to hear.

Moral perspectives are hard to come by in some things. Perhaps too many of us have the final answer before we even know what we are talking about. As one individual told me in regard to one issue, "Don't confuse me with facts; I have already made up my mind and this is a free country."

It is indeed, sir, but wouldn't life be marvelous if we were to use our freedom with a more open mind.

Feeding station offers interesting look at bird behavior

young to the feeders. They provide anticipation for those returning in the spring, and they provide excitement when a never before seen bird appears.

There are always things going on at a feeding station. In spring the adults take seed from the feeders and feed their mates as part of courtship. In fall they take the seeds and feed their young. But sometimes the young they feed may look different than their own.

My wife called me to the feeders the other day because she saw something strange. A cardinal was

According to a government survey 84 million people feed birds. If you have a feeder you can understand why so many people feed birds. They are colorful, they are around all year, they are active, they change color, they bring their feeding a non-descript grayish bird that was definitely not a young cardinal. It turned out to be a young brown-headed cowbird.

Brown-headed cowbirds are known as social parasites. They lay their eggs in other bird's nests and let the host species care for the young. A cardinal is only one of more than 150 species that have been parasitized by a cowbird.

Female cowbirds watch the activities of host species like finches and warblers very carefully. Then in the early morning when the host species is gone, she enters the nest and lays her egg. A single female cowbird may lay 10-12 eggs, some reports say it may be as high as 40.

Many host species do not recognize that it is in the nest. A handful of species like the yellow warbler recognize a cowbird egg and will then build another nest of the original nest in order to avoid incubating the cowbird egg. But most species do not have that capability.

Young cowbirds hatch out earlier than most young of their host. This makes the cowbird bigger and more aggressive in begging for food and ultimately results in the death of the host species young. The cardinal we saw feeding the cowbird accepted it as one of their own.

One factor that has been proposed to help explain the decline in our songbird populations is the increase in habitats suitable for cowbirds. Large tracts of forest are being segmented, which allows access by cowbirds to more host species they would not have had access to before. One study found that non-parasitized nests raised 1.5 young per nest, but those that were parasitized raised only 0.5 young per nest.

Watching bird feeders can lead to many interesting observations regarding our feathered friends.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

Antique fest bolsters Plymouth Symphony

It's a valued lifeline for a cultural gem: the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. This year marks the 30th anniversary of the Plymouth Symphony League's fall antique show, held each year during the Plymouth Fall Festival. And the women of the league have lost none of their zest for boosting the 85-member orchestra. "It's something to be preserved," says Jill Licata, league president. "Most towns aren't lucky enough to have their own symphony. Having one really helps in the cultural education of the community." The antique fest traditionally boasts American and European wares: folk art, estate jewelry, linens, quilts, rugs, lamps, primitives, silver, brass, copper, country fare. "The symphony and the arts give our community a sense of stability and culture," says Peggy Blaisdell, a league board member, antique show co-chair and an antique collector for 16 years. "We all feel they're a necessary plus to have." Antique show co-chair Judy Lore, a league board member, says "the more variety a community offers, the better it is. And a symphony provides something for young people and the schools as well as its patrons."

Fund-raising savvy

Despite the PSO's upbeat reputation, the league wisely isn't sitting back, waiting for unsolicited contributions. Like other non-profits, the league has learned by experience that aggressiveness is the hallmark of success. That's why the membership is so quick to flash volunteer spirit at fund-raisers like antique shows, home tours, fashion shows, auctions, garage sales, card parties, flower sales and luminary sales. The league expects to donate $22,000, or 22 percent, of the society's 1992-93 budget of $99,000, says Kiyo Morse, administrative coordinator for the society. League members "provide a stable financial base," Morse said. "The revenues they generate are always exactly what they say they'll bring in." State support is expected to weigh in at $4,600. That means the society must generate another $76,400 through tickets and contributions.

A Michigan accent

This year's antique show, featuring 25 Michigan dealers, will run from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 11 and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12 at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer. General admission is $3. Antiques range in price from $5 to $2,000. The small number of dealers doesn't mean the show is short on quality. Says Farmington Hills dealer Pauline Work, a dealer for 50 years who now sells Victorian jewelry and silver with daughter Jacki: "We do shows only, we don't have a shop. So through the years, we've sorted out the better shows based on how we do financially and once the customers seem to enjoy. I've done this show since its inception and we're well satisfied. That speaks for itself." The Plymouth show's preview reception, including hors d'oeuvres, will be 7:30 to 10 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 10. Tickets, $15 per person, will be sold at the door and include admission all three days. For its 47th season, the Plymouth Symphony will stage 10 performances. At Plymouth-Salem High School, works by Shostakovich, Mendelssohn and Brahms, with violinist Emmanuelle Boisvert and cellist Marcy Chanteaux of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, will be featured Oct. 9. Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker," with guest dancers Dawnell Dryja and Michael Finegan and the Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company, will be performed Dec. 11-13. At Novi High School, Still's Afro-American Symphony, and jazz selections featuring the Jack Broken-sha Quartet, will grab the spotlight Nov. 13 along with Anthony Iannaccone guest conducting the world premiere of his "Night Rivers." Works by Copland, Barber and Saint-Saens will be showcased Feb. 12 along with Thomas Peelen guest appearing in the Michigan premiere of his "Concerto for Organ and Orchestra." Beethoven's ninth symphony, featuring the Great Lakes Quartet, will headline the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth performance March 19. Cole Porter tunes will highlight the benefit pops concert at Fox Hills Country Club April 2-3. PSO's chamber concert at the Plymouth-Canton Little Theatre will be Jan. 29. The hard work of the Plymouth Symphony League obviously doesn't go to waste.

Friends team up to create furniture

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER
SPECIAL WRITER

Just 10 years ago, Tom Holliday of Livonia and Grant Fletcher of Dearborn were buddies at Livonia Bentley High School who played bass and drums with a local band.

Today, the two run a successful business called InteriArt, a custom contemporary furniture company that uses Holliday's skill as a furniture maker and Fletcher's marketing know-how.

Holliday calls the furniture "exotic, useable art." Fletcher describes it as "timeless contemporary." Both are correct.

InteriArt offers the latest shapely, Euro-style cabinetry in the form of wall units, bedroom sets, desks, kitchen cabinets, dining and accent tables.

Mall will spotlight fashions and ballet

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Livonia's official dance troupe, the Livonia Civic Ballet Company, teams up with Laurel Park Place to present "A Fall Fashion Ballet" Saturday, Aug. 29, in the Livonia mall, Six Mile and Newburgh.

Eighteen dancers of the 24-member company will perform a variety of numbers, ranging from the classical ballet of "Coppelia" to the lighthearted dance of "The Comedians" at 1 p.m. in the North Court.

Mini performances by the company continue 1:30-3 p.m. in the South and Center Courts along with informal and freeze modeling of fashions shown by Laurel Park Place stores this fall.

"We're really excited. This is their first performance here. It's a tie-in with our fall fashion show," said Michael Buescher, Laurel Park Place marketing director. "There'll be one major performance at 1 p.m., then little mini performances throughout the afternoon."

Founded more than 25 years ago by artistic director Jean Gloria Newell, the company has performed at the Power Center for the Performing Arts in Ann Arbor and Madonna University in Livonia as well as with the Oakway Symphony, now known as the Livonia Symphony.

"It was almost a natural. It's wonderful way of promoting the company and letting the community know that we're here," Newell said.

ART SHOWCASED

Livonia Arts Commission spotlights a 60-piece exhibit by members of Art Block Inc. through Friday, Aug. 28, in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Paintings in oil, acrylic, watercolor and pastel delight viewers with still life, florals and landscapes of Michigan and other areas of the U.S. as well as Nova Scotia.

Art Block Inc. is an organization of artists whose main goal lies in promoting realism in the visual arts. Their definition of realism means "the treatment of subject matter in a manner easily recognizable to the general public without slavish dedication to duplication."

"It's a nice show," said arts commissioner Dorothy Wilshaw. "The prices range from $80 to $1,200."

"I was looking for a business to start so I talked to Tom, and here we are," said Fletcher, a second-year student at the Detroit College of Law. "It was something we've always wanted to do."

"I wish we'd done this long ago," Holliday said. "I enjoy coming to work. I wouldn't mind being here the rest of my life."

Both Holliday and Fletcher, formerly of Livonia, did their homework before opening the business this spring in a 1,200-square-foot office/workroom in Livonia.

Since high school graduation in 1983, Holliday, 26, has studied building construction at the Livonia Career Center and has worked as an apprentice furniture maker at two local companies. He also picked woodworking techniques from his father, who built Early American-style furniture in the family garage as a hobby.

Fletcher, 27, earned a history degree from the University of Detroit and, before a recent layoff, was school and community programs coordinator at Greenfield Village in Dearborn. For several years, he blew glass at the village.

"Maybe the layoff was the best thing that ever happened," he said. "We like what we're doing."

The two started InteriArt with a comparatively small loan of $10,000 to cover rent, advertising, insurance, tools and startup supplies. Fletcher invested $5,000 of his own. They expect to repay the $15,000 in about two years. For now, any profit is reinvested in the company.

"We deliberately started out lean and plan to stay that way. We bought just enough to get started," said Fletcher, who has the company's legal work done by college friends.

The orderly shop includes the basics — a table saw, air compressor, router, glue system and sander and small hand tools. Fletcher's parents donated a 1950s kitchen table and an old work bench now used to lay out small jobs.

Holliday does most of the work on a large table where cabinets and other pieces are cut and built of particle board. He cuts the radius of curved pieces from bending birch and applies the laminate with the glue system.

Since each piece is custom made, the sky's the limit when it comes to design and materials, Holliday said. For contrast in an all-white piece, for example, he likes to inlay a border of colored laminate or metal. He uses Corian, marble or granite for desktops and countertops.

"I love designing something that's out of the ordinary," he said. "If you ask me to do the impossible, I'll find a way."

Among the company's innovative designs is a 60-inch round table in white laminate with a built-in lazy Susan in black to match the table base. Another is a large Greek Revival-style wall unit with a pitched top, simple lines and glossy white laminate columns.

For the client who wanted a table base that resembled "just-released pick-up sticks," Holliday placed nine randomly angled dowels, painted bright colors in a hexagon-shaped laminate platform.

While Holliday set up the shop last May, Fletcher had 5,000 advertising fliers distributed in south Oakland County. In just weeks, they received a surprising 2 percent response. They followed up with a local newspaper ad that resulted in calls the day it appeared. Right now, jobs are mostly by referral.

Fletcher makes advertising decisions and writes in-home estimates. Holliday submits scale drawings of the custom pieces for customer approval. The two rent a truck for deliveries and installations.

Both admit starting a small business in a recession is a bold move but, so far, the risk has paid off.

"We're finding that people are remodeling with a wall unit or an entertainment center rather than looking for another house," Fletcher said. "Making better use of your space is a lot cheaper than the cost of moving."

For a laminated wall unit (about 7 feet high by 10 feet long), expect to pay $1,500 to $3,000 installed. A small, z-shaped accent table starts at $100. Every piece is signed.

Holliday and Fletcher expect business volume to grow and, when the time comes, they'll hire one or two furniture makers. But both say the shop will always be small, always in one location. "That way we'll be able to see everything that goes out the door," Holliday said.

Shooting the rapids

Ballet from page 1D

"We have some beautiful senior dancers and some wonderful junior dancers. The junior company will perform a character number and 'Coppelia,' the senior company, 'The Comedians' and dances set to music from the movies like 'The Godfather' and 'Edward Scissorhands.'"

Arnell Janet Newell, assistant artistic director, choreographed the dances set to music from the movies. "She really has a knack for choreography and she really has a knack for picking music," Newell said.

Jean Gloria Newell studied ballet in New York, where she became a member of the Joey Harris Ballet Company. She danced on Broadway in productions of "Oklahoma" and "High Button Shoes," with national touring companies, and on the straw hat circuit.

In the true sense of the word, Newell is a professional in the dance world, covering the bases as performer, teacher and choreographer. She opened Miss Jean's Dance School, the second dance school in Livonia, 33 years ago.

Newell, an executive board member for the Cecchetti Council of America and one of the foremost authorities in teaching the Cecchetti method of ballet, travels throughout the country as a permanent examiner.

She's well versed in ballet teaching methods, including Russian. She has choreographed musicals for Livonia Stevenson High School, Players Guild of Dearborn and Wyandotte Community Players.

Arnell Newell studied with Desmond Kelly and Alain Dubruiel of the Royal Ballet, Edward Villella, New York, Paul Sutherland, New Jersey, and under Tony-nominated choreographer Michelle Affaf. She has worked with Broadway dancers Louie Trisoliere, John Anzalone, Germaine Edwards and David Tome.

Arnell studied dance with her mother, Jean, for more than 20 years. She also attended Cranbrook Theater School in Bloomfield Hills.

In April, Mayor Robert Bennett proclaimed the Livonia Civic Ballet Company the official ballet company of the city of Livonia.

"It's quite an honor for us," Newell said. "When I moved to Livonia 33 years ago, you can believe me when I say I've worked to put this company on the map."

Newell will continue promoting the Livonia Civic Ballet Company as a semi-pro company. She said it's important for these young dancers to be given the opportunity to dance professionally.

The company eventually would like to perform with the Livonia or Plymouth Symphony or even a youth symphony, she said.

It also would like to give demonstrations for school children to see what dance is all about, why it's a help to the athlete and a help to just about anyone.

Tuesday, Sept. 1 — An exhibit of original serigraphs by British artist Roy Fairchild will be featured through Oct. 16. Living and working most of the year at his country home in Grayshot, Fairchild frequently travels throughout Europe to find new sources of inspiration. Fairchild has been much influenced by the textural qualities of Persian art, particularly the intricate pattern work of Oriental rugs and tapestries. The crumbling plaster work of Italian fresco painting has also suggested subtleties of texture and tone that he has brought to his own rich surfaces, actually using plaster as a base for acrylic and oil overpainting. In recent years he has devoted most of his time to printmaking. Individual silkscreens are made by hand for each of the colors. The image they bear and the colors they take can be modified throughout the proofing process until perfect compositional and color balances are achieved. Hours: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Saturday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday, 29203 Northwestern at 12 Mile in the Franklin Plaza, Southfield, 356-5454.

Fall workshops to home in on creative arts

Christine Unwin of West Bloomfield is handling a series of creative art workshops that begins in September. One takes place in Plymouth.

For more information, call 669-4736 or write Unwin at 6850 Brookshire Drive, West Bloomfield 48322. A $50 deposit is required for registration.

Workshops by Nita Engle will take place Sept. 11-13 in Detroit suburbs, Nov. 13-15 in Raleigh, N.C., March 5-7 in New Orleans and in May in Seattle. The cost is $450.

A workshop by Donna Vogelheim, "Composition, Color and Contrast," will take place Sept. 18-20 at the Comfort Inn, 12 Mile and Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills. Cost is $175.

Participants will learn how to make rich, dark washes, how to mix warm and cool grays and how these subtleties influence their total effectiveness in expressing the moods of a painting. Vogelheim will demonstrate each day and give participants personal attention while they paint from a set-up that includes fresh flowers, patterned material, lace and glass.

"Seeing the Light," a workshop by Linda Doll, will take place March 8-12 at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth. Cost is $300. Doll will explain what happens when an object is bathed in sunlight and how to achieve glowing color. Participants may work from photos or a still life set-up. Doll will demonstrate each day.

Unwin will present a cruise workshop to Italy, France and the Greek Isles May 14-28. Katherine Chang Liu will present an Alaskan cruise workshop in July. Participants may cruise and paint on their own or join in a workshop.

Participants in James Soares' workshop Aug. 8-12 will paint on location for two days. Soares' demonstrations and lectures will consist of an explanation of composition, color, light and its properties, how light creates color and shadow variations, and how to achieve luminous color by undertones and over-glazing. Cost is $300.

A workshop by Judy Morris will take place Aug. 16-20 in suburban Detroit. Cost is $300.

Workshops with Unwin next year are scheduled for Oct. 5-9 in Santa Fe, N.M. (workshop cost $300), and Oct. 26-29 in Cambria, Calif. (room, meals and workshop cost $450).

Give objects a whimsical look

Mixed media artist and cartoonist Nancy Drew, who took art lessons from sculptor/painter Glen Michaels at the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills when she was in elementary and high school, will transform any portable object with her whimsical paintbrush in a five-hour paintathon noon to 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12, at her The Real Nancy Drew shop in the 12 Oaks Mall in Novi.

For prices starting at $40, the public may bring any favorite object, such as a chair, lamp or raincoat, and watch while Drew perks it up with her colorful paints. A portion of the proceeds will benefit the Neighborhood Revitalization Project of the Lighthouse of Oakland.

As a special bonus, Drew will paint portraits on 100 percent rag paper (22 by 32 inches) for $100. She will also personalize T-shirts and sign collections of her cartoons ("A Fine Line") and other published works.

SOS!

Help save outdoor sculpture

Save Outdoor Sculpture! (SOS!), a nationwide initiative to document and increase public awareness of America's outdoor sculpture, is seeking volunteers to help survey outdoor sculpture in the Detroit area.

It's billed as the largest arts and cultural volunteer project ever launched to save these cultural resources from gradual destruction by acid rain, vandalism and corrosion.

Save Outdoor Sculpture! hopes to catalog the nation's outdoor sculpture and help make Americans responsible stewards of this legacy.

The project is a joint effort of the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of American Art and the National Institute for the Conservation of Cultural Property.

Michigan SOS! is coordinated by the Marshall

M. Fredericks Sculpture Gallery at Saginaw Valley State University.

The Metropolitan Detroit SOS! is located in and coordinated by the City of Southfield's Division of Cultural Arts.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Low interest rates hit mortgage-backed bond market

(AP) — A welcome trend, for homeowners is giving investors in mortgage-backed securities a bad case of heartburn.

Spurred by last month's drop in rates to the lowest levels in 19 years, Americans are rushing to refinance, taking out new low-interest home loans to prepay old mortgages.

The savings can be substantial — by trading in a 30-year fixed mortgage loan at 10 percent for an 8 percent one, the average homeowner saves about $200 a month on a $100,000 loan, not counting extra refinancing costs.

But for owners of mortgage-backed bonds, the prepayments spell trouble. When a homeowner prepays a mortgage, investors in the securities that finance the loans get back their principals prior to maturity — and are forced to reinvest at today's lower interest rates.

The result is that investors fearing an unexpected return of principal have been dumping their mortgage-backed securities, flooding the market with excess supply and driving down prices.

The decline in mortgage-backed bond prices is even more precipitous than in the previous rush to pay off mortgages early this year, just after the Federal Reserve lowered short-term interest rates in December. The most recent Fed easing was on July 2.

"There seems to be a mad rush for the exits this time around," said Gregg Patruno, vice president in fixed-income securities at the First Boston Corp.

Back in January, many bond investors underestimated the volume of mortgage prepayments and were stuck holding the securities when the actual flood occurred in the spring, said Patruno. Banks usually take at least one month to approve a mortgage application.

This time around, however, the market remembers "its wake-up call in the spring," said Patruno.

Worst-hit by today's prepayment fears are the derivative mortgage securities called "interest-only" strips, which separate interest and principal payments generated by pools of home mortgages. Investors in these bonds earn only the interest on home mortgages backing their securities.

Prices of these securities plummeted 30 percent in July alone — one of their biggest one-month drops ever.

The sharp decline isn't that surprising considering how risky these securities can be. When homeowners pay back their loans early, all interest payments to the investors disappear, and holders lose their investment.

For investors in mutual funds, the plunging prices of mortgage-backed bonds can mean negative returns at a time when other bond funds are soaring.

Hurt the most were funds invested in adjustable-rate mortgages, which typically include more interest-only strips to help boost overall returns. The worst performing fund in this category was the Ranieri Adjustable Rate U.S. Government II fund, which lost 0.80 percent in July, said Morningstar Inc., a Chicago research firm that tracks mutual funds.

Losses were lower for funds invested in fixed mortgages, which generally include fewer interest-only strips.

Three of these mortgage-backed funds had negative returns in July, said Morningstar: Fidelity Mortgage Securities lost 0.23 percent, Fidelity Spartan Ginnie Mae was down 0.13 percent and Cardinal Government Obligations lost 0.11 percent.

In contrast, the average Treasury fund was up 3.3 percent in July, boosted by falling interest rates that made existing government bonds worth more.

Despite problems, experts say the worst may be over for mortgage-backed securities.

Until now, "Mortgages performed very well relative to Treasuries," said John Rekenhale, editor of the Morningstar Mutual Funds newsletter. "I don't think everyone should necessarily bail out of mortgage securities."

Court notes 'racial preference' in advertising campaign

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

I am in the process of developing a long-range condominium project and will be advertising the development over a period of years. I have heard about a case where a developer was sued for using white models in his advertisements even though the advertisements included the Equal Housing Opportunity logo, they contained no discriminatory language, and there was no intrinsic evidence of discriminatory intent. I was told that the developer had instituted affirmative housing plans to obtain FHA financing, but still the court held that there was an issue of fact precluding summary disposition on the issue of potential liability to the developer. Do you have any knowledge of that?

Yes, I am aware of a case where a developer was sued under the Fair Housing Act. It was alleged that the all-white advertising campaign indicated a racial preference in violation of the act. Apparently, over a two-year period, the developer had run 70 advertisements containing 132 models, none of whom was black, in a metropolitan area where the black population was 26 percent.

The court determined that while the developer had not demonstrated discriminatory practice in its business, the developer may be held liable for punitive damages, where a defendant acted with knowledge and disregard of a federally protected right.

Since the court was unable to determine the developer's degree of knowledge of the law, it held that there was an issue of fact precluding summary disposition by the developer on the issue of punitive liability requiring a trial. Under these circumstances, I would strongly recommend that anyone encountering a long-term advertising campaign take this decision into light.

I recently bought a quad-level home built in 1965. Is there any way I can get a floor plan of the house?

You may wish to check with the building department of your municipality to determine if they have a copy of the plan and specifications that presumably would be filed by the builder. Try to find out who the builder was to see if he is still in business. You may also wish to contact the architect.

Cestar has more than 25 years of experience in the construction industry including senior management positions.

R.E. Dailey & Co. is a subsidiary of Perini Corp.

Top Michigan builders

Several area companies have made their way to Professional Builder magazine's list of the top 400 developers in the country.

They are: PHM Corp. of Bloomfield Hills, ranked fourth with $887.1 million in revenues; Holtzman & Silverman of Farmington Hills, 46th, $166.7 million; Crosswinds Communities, West Bloomfield, 153rd, $59.9 million; Selective Group, Farmington Hills, 232nd, $38.4 million; Edward Rose Building, Southfield, 289th, $29 million; BBC Group, Farmington Hills, 331st, $23.9 million; Classic Construction, West Bloomfield, 337th, $23 million; Arco Construction, Southfield, 352nd, $21 million.

New Generation meets

Builder/utility relations will be the topic of a seminar sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan's New Generation Council. Bill Steele of Detroit Edison and Calvin Talley of Consumers Power will discuss what the utilities are doing to ease the builder's job in the application and inspection process, time frames for installations and customer service.

The program will be held 5-6 p.m., prior to the BASM general membership meeting from 6-8:30 p.m. at the Somerset Inn, 2601 W. Big Beaver in Troy. For information, call 737-4477.

Village Green noted

Village Green Management Co., Farmington Hills, ranks 25th in the National Real Estate Investor magazine survey of top multi-family property managers. Village Green manages more than 19,000 apartments in the Midwest. Parent company is Holtzman & Silverman.

The Franklin: Built by J.B.A. Homes of Troy, this split ranch has a Homearama asking price of $232,500.

Old world touch flavors Homearama

■ If September is coming, it must be time for the fall edition of Homearama. Here's a preview of what local builders will be showcasing at the parade of homes in Sterling Heights.

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER

There's a taste of the craftsmanship and family values of old Italy in many of the Homearama/Condorama homes this fall.

Fathers and sons, a mother and sons, a brother with brother, and sons who have learned the trades by hard work are just some of the combinations in this showplace.

Thirteen homes, including attached and detached condominiums, are featured in Homearama/Condorama Fall 1992, the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan's 10th annual showcase of idea homes in the Vineyards subdivision, on Ryan Road, south of Hall Road (M-59), in Sterling Heights. The event has been extended to run through Sept. 27 and begins Sept. 3.

John Falzetta moved to the United States in 1954 from Italy, where he was a furniture maker. He formed Canyon Construction, Troy, in 1983 with his partner George Torrente. Falzetta is participating in this Homearama because it's something his son, Michael, company vice president, wanted to do.

Office upturn fails to materialize

Vacancies in office buildings in Observer & Eccentric communities continued to hover around the 20 percent mark through the middle of this year. Weighted average asking rents in the suburbs remained the same.

Those were conclusions reached in quarterly surveys taken by Cushman & Wakefield of Michigan and Grubb & Ellis, Southfield-based property management firms.

"Since the beginning of the year people have been anticipating an upturn. I'd say it has yet to materialize as far as expansion or demand for office space is concerned," said Keith D. Sant, vice president and branch manager for Cushman & Wakefield.

"It's related directly to the economy," he continued. "Most people are not fully confident in recovery at least through the first half of the year."

"I think people still feel demand will pick up. At this point, it's a matter of when. I think prospects for the auto industry in this area — what really drives the metro Detroit economy — are bright. Suppliers, engineering firms, are starting to inquire about new facilities," Sant said.

Vacancies in suburban markets dipped slightly to 19.6 percent from 20.8 percent between the end of March and the end of June, Cushman & Wakefield reported. The vacancy rate was 20 percent in June of 1991.

Cushman & Wakefield's report indicated that vacancy rates midway through this year compared to last were down slightly in Southfield and Farmington Hills, up slightly in Livonia/Novi and Troy and virtually unchanged in Birmingham.

The average weighted average of asking rental rate in suburbia was $16.83, Cushman & Wakefield reported, almost exactly matching the $16.88 in effect at this time last year. Southfield is the largest submarket in the area with 16.4 million square feet of space, according to Grubb & Ellis. Its vacancy rate of nearly 25 percent was the largest among markets surveyed.

Other observations reported by Grubb & Ellis:

- Many tenants in both the Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham markets renew in their present facilities. In that market, available space generally is limited to smaller rather than larger pieces.

- Absorption of tenants into top-of-the-line and Class C buildings has increased to the detriment of mid-quality buildings in Southfield.

- Availability of large blocks of sublease space along the I-275 and I-696 corridors, including Livonia and Farmington Hills, will continue to attract companies seeking to cut costs and relocate in a high-tech environment.

- Several large, unidentified tenants are looking for space in the Troy/Auburn Hills office market. Spaces as large as $250,000 square feet are available along the Big Beaver corridor.

Among observations reported by Cushman & Wakefield:

- Rental rates in Troy were on a downward trend as landlords aggressively sought tenants.

- Oakland Towne Square in Southfield, the only building currently under construction in metro Detroit, has preleased only 10,000 of its 486,000 square feet.

- The J. West Hunter Building in Birmingham finally was completed but had yet to sign a tenant.

- Newer Class A buildings along I-275 are pulling firms from other offices in the Livonia/Novi market.

- Weighted average asking rents in Farmington Hills remained competitive with a slight increase from June of 1991.

"We've been asked before (to participate), but this is more a subdivision where an average person could buy into," Mike Falzetta said. "It's reasonably priced."

Falzetta calls these homes the most expensive in Sterling Heights.

The home, featuring a barrel vault ceiling in the family room, a curved balcony and an angled kitchen, is named after a wine-growing region in California. Upstairs in the boys bedroom, a Lionel train runs along the sill.

Falzetta applauds the mixed-use character of this subdivision, where condominiums serve as a buffer to the main road and density goes from high to low.

John Altadonna of J.B.A. Homes, Inc., Troy, likes the site location and its related wildlife.

His model, the Franklin, is a 2,150-square-foot, split ranch, single-family home priced at $232,500. A three-sided Majestic cove fireplace divides great room, nook and hearth room.

"Ambience is important, starting with the foyer," Altadonna said. "When I walk into the foyer, I like an open airy feeling, a feeling that welcomes you into a home."

"The unique layout has spacious rooms with a lot of light," Altadonna said.

Milton B. Rotenberg and John E. Barber of JAD Homes, Bloomfield Hills, present two attached ranch condominium homes, the Burgundy and the Angelica, both priced from the mid-$130,000s and about 1,450 square feet. Both can be built with optional lofts.

"Condo living is lifestyle, and lifestyle is part of the plan," Rotenberg said.

Today, condominium owners are not just empty nesters. They are younger, married couples and singles, he said.

Half his condominium customers are empty nesters and the other half are single women, a group that he sees increasing, Rotenberg added.

"Every unit has its own private entry," Rotenberg said. "This is an upgrade of a development we did in Clinton Township in 1987-88. People are looking for an easy lifestyle."

"With this subdivision, you can be close to the grandkids and not have a 3,000-square-foot home to take care of. This is what a planned community is like. Architecturally, we maintain the dignity of the site."

The JAD condominiums feature circle-top windows, first-floor laundry rooms and fireplaces.

"We're the best builders in the world — we're Italian," said Anthony L. Fierimonte, a partner in Sorrentino Builders Inc., Clinton Township, with Michael A. Sorrentino and Christopher B. Sorrentino.

The company utilizes a German troubleshooting, quality-control system called the Deming method to improve and spot check the building process.

"This was a way that got all the glitches out so that we don't have to go back (to correct them) after closing," Fierimonte said.

The home features a Jacuzzi whirlpool in the bath and on the patio, a cathedral ceiling and loft over the gathering room, a first-floor library and a three-car garage. "We have stained woodwork with a cozy, comfortable Grosse Pointe look," Fierimonte said.

John Roselli, owner of Dynacraft Custom Home Builders Ltd., Mount Clemens, calls himself "the new kid on the block" when discussing his first participation as a Homearama builder, spurred by mutual friends.

He has worked his way up in the trades, first as a rough carpenter with supervision from his father, Giuseppe, while working on a degree in finance and then as a licensed builder.

Several Roselli family members are involved in the Beverly Ann, a 2,500-square-foot, ranch-style, single-family home, priced at $229,900. His mother, owner of Madeline's Draperies, is providing the drapery and blinds for the model and his brother, David, is landscaper.

Roselli's home is one of three Homearama homes that feature outside steps leading from the basement, like those found in old farmhouses, prompting clients to say: "It brings back memories."

Roselli, kiddingly calls it, "the bomb shelter."

"It's great for bringing big things into the house (like lawn furniture) or for when you've been working outside and don't want to track dirt into the house," he said.

It also provides easy access to the basement work area — for winemaking, as an example, Roselli said.

There's no wasted space in Roselli's house. Closets, cabinets and storage areas are built-in, where possible. The first-floor laundry has three built-in hampers.

Roselli insulates garages and basement walls and places basement pipes off to the side walls to facilitate finishing the basement, which has extra high ceilings.

Michael Garofalo of Petra Building, Novi, knows Sterling Heights inside and out. He was born and raised there.

His home, the Wellington, a 3,150-square-foot home, priced at $230,000-$265,000, is the most expensive home in this Homearama.

The Cape Cod single-family home, with brick and stucco exterior, has a great room with a two-story ceiling and wet bar. The first-floor master bedroom and bath features cathedral ceilings, a walk-in closet, a step-up Jacuzzi tub flanked by Roman columns and a separate shower and two sets of stairs.

"It speaks for itself, it's a gorgeous house," Garofalo said.

'Problem of confidence' for buyers

(AP) — Construction of single-family homes and apartments fell 2.8 percent in July, the government said Tuesday, but analysts predicted that the lowest mortgage rates in nearly two decades will halt any further erosion.

Robert Villanueva, an economist for the National Association of Home Builders, said surveys of the organization's membership early this month showed that builders plan to boost construction modestly.

"Not a surge," he said, "but certainly a solid increase."

In July, however, housing starts fell in every region except the South, which posted a slight gain.

Many analysts had expected construction to rise last month following the sharp drop in mortgage rates after the Federal Reserve slashed two short-term interest rates on July 2. Fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages now are below 8 percent for the first time in nearly 20 years.

Instead, the Commerce Department reported, housing starts dropped to 1.12 million at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, down from a 1.15 million rate in June, when they fell 3.8 percent.

"It really does show how cautious builders are," said economist David Berson of the Federal National Mortgage Association. But he said the low rates and an increase in new home sales in June, the first in five months, should improve confidence.

An increase in the number of applications for building permits in July also suggested renewed housing activity. Applications, often a barometer of future construction, rose 3.7 percent for the first advance in five months.

Still, most analysts expect housing activity to remain muted this year, although improved over last year, when starts fell to 1.01 million, the lowest since 1945. So far, starts are 21 percent above the first seven months of 1991.

"People are still worried about jobs and incomes," Berson contended. "It's really a problem of confidence."

David Lereah, an economist with the Mortgage

Bankers Association, agreed that growth in residential construction will be modest.

"Low interest rates have done all they could for the housing market," he said. "We need help from other sectors of the economy."

The commerce department report showed that single-family housing starts dropped 4.1 percent to a 959,000 annual rate after falling 1.9 percent in June.

But apartment construction rose 6 percent, to 160,000 units, after declining 14.7 percent a month earlier.

Regionally, starts were up only in the South, a slight 0.4 percent advance to a 457,000 rate.

They plunged 7.7 percent, to 275,000, units in the West and 5.5 percent, to 120,000 units, in the Northeast and were off 1.5 percent, to 267,000, in the Midwest.

TLC for decks

(AP) — Whispering breezes and the tangy scent of barbecue can make life on your deck seem heaven-sent. But a few splashes of rotten wood or a few niches carved by hungry termites can cloud your sunny perceptions in a hurry.

Here's how to plan to save your deck:

- Sketch your plan of attack by first determining what wood species was used in your deck. Most common are redwood, Western red cedar, and cypress heartwood — all possess tremendous natural resistance to rot. Other untreated woods are easy prey for decay. Softer pines — firs, spruces, and hemlock — are usually pressure-treated with preservatives for an added injection of strength.

- But all decking needs backup protection. Heartwoods and other finished woods require immediate treatment. Pressure-treated lumber can also be treated immediately.

- Liquid protection is easy to use but tough to select. There are many water coats, sealers, repellents, and preservatives to choose from.

- Water-repellents prevent moisture from penetrating and causing mildew, warping, and decay. Experts suggest oil-base products, and some companies also offer alkyl stains.

- Mildewcides, or wood preservers, guard against mildew fungi. The mildew, usually gray or black, thrives in moist, shaded areas.

- Pigmented sealants reflect sizzling ultraviolet rays, which can crack your deck and sap the color. Protectants include colored or semi-transparent stains, bleaching stains for a weathered look, or clear natural-wood products that show off the grain.

- Insecticidal additives can quash bug woes. Specific termite-control products may be needed in severe cases. Most homeowners can defeat pests by maintaining good airflow around the lumber, keeping the deck clear of standing water and debris, and not letting vegetation or the ground stay in contact with the wood.

If you need only water protection, an all-purpose product may not work as efficiently as one specifically designed for that problem. Otherwise, choose a product that covers all of your needs.

Prepare the deck surface before applying a protectant: Sweep it, wash it, and let it dry thoroughly. Scrub away most discolorations with a household cleaner or bleach. To keep your deck fresh, reapply protective coats every year or two.
