Christopher Columbus visited West Middle School Monday, but he didn't look a day over 45 much less over 500 years old.

Ray Sypniewski, a geography teacher at West, played the role of Christopher Columbus for students marking the 500th anniversary of the famous discoverer's find.

The anniversary has met with mixed reactions as Native Americans and others have shown outrage for the way Columbus treated their ancestors. Sypniewski has made all information, on all sides of the issue, available to his students.

"I wanted them to make up their own minds," Sypniewski said. "I Sypniewski donned a costume made by his wife and used a thick Italian accent to answer students' questions. They did not spare their teacher, hitting him with tough questions about Columbus' sometimes cruel treatment of Native Americans and the introduction of disease to the primitive land.

"He was pretty cruel overall, but I tried to explain that he probably didn't have much choice," he added.

Sypniewski believes in using any method he can think of to teach his students geography. Dressing as historical characters and as people of different cultures a few times each year is what works for him. You have to be a good show to really make them (the students) perk up sometimes," said the 30year teaching veteran.

His own family vacation slides have proven useful in teaching geography. Trips to various archaeological sites may have proved a little boring for his kids when they were younger, but Sypniewski believes now the family has fond memories of the jaunts.

Such trips may not work for all families, he admitted, but for his they worked out well.

Sypniewski has encouraged his students to see the new Christopher Columbus film and to watch the PBS special on his discoveries

Government Consultant Services received the nod after interviews with several firms last week Commission Chairman Tom Yack has been au thorized to negotiate a contract with the firm. which will be for a one year term with a 60 day termination clause.

The firm has a broad base of bi partisan sup port which all three commissioners believed to be important, especially during this election year when many things can change from service effective Oct. 31. The firm had a contract with WTUA through the end of the year For now, WTUA will not hire a new Washington lobbying firm.

Now that we received authorization for feder al grant monies and have the support of our leg islators in Washington we have little need for Washington lobbvists," Yack said

Last week WTUA was notified that the Senate approved a $5 million water grant package which gives WTUA an opportunity to compete for additional federal money next year. The amount of the grant was reduced and some projects were dropped at the last minute to get the legislation through before Congressional recess, but the WTUA project weathered the storm.

Although the grant is much smaller than the original $20 million proposed. Yack believes it to be a great victory.

"We are now authorized for federal funds and if you don't have authorization you don't have anything," he said

The budget for the waste water system did not include any grant monies, so any money received will allow WTUA to pay off its debt more quickly and reduce rates to customers.

Plymouth Township Supervisor and WTUA

Commissioner Gerald Law attended his last WTUA meeting as a commissioner Monday. He is resigning his post along with the supervisor's position. He will be replaced by the new town ship supervisor after the November election.

While most of their peers are saving money for rock concerts, the 'Shining Halos' youth group at Resurrection Catholic Church in Canton is holding fund-raisers to see the pope.

System spurs library shift

BY DIANE GALE STAFF WRITER

A new computer system in Canton's library is the key behind a move to break away from a library federation that local officials say is antiquated.

Canton is among seven communities - Farmington, Rochester, Southfield, Birmingham, Bloomfield and Independence Township - that plan to leave the Wayne Oakland Library Fed-

The inter-library system provides library services to all major communities in Wayne and Oakland counties except Detroit and Highland Park. WOLF allows shared borrowing privileges for residents in those communities.

The seven communities that want to leave the WOLF system are well-stocked and adequately funded by local millages. They want to form Metro Net.

You have to have a stand alone (computer) system, which is one of the reasons we can break away from WOLF," according to Canton Library Director Jean Ta-

She insists that if Metro Net is formed that people from other communities who use Canton's library will have access to the current services

"We have no intention of limiting anyone we currently serve in WOLF," Tabor said.

WOLF is funded by state aid based on a per capita system. It offers member libraries various services, like computerized tracking, book ordering assistance and printing.

"Those of us joining Metro Net don't need all of WOLF services, like the computer networking and consulting services for buying and programming," Tabor said. "Yet, we ultimately pay for those services. We want a cooperative that is scaled down.

We'll be able to use our state aid dollars to benefit the residents of Canton. We would be able to move forward and make decisions quickly that are now cumbersome, because there are different needs.

The breakaway communities have three areas of dispute - residents in larger communities on the WOLF board are not proportionally represented, some funding goes for services that are not used by Metro Net communities and some services are inadequate. The earliest Metro Net would be effective is Oct. 1, 1993. Meanwhile, in a separate issue, Canton's library board is battling by Jan. 1, 1993, Westland resi dents will not be allowed to use anton's materials.

Westland currently pays Livonia, Garden City and Wayne for library services, Tabor added.

In 1990 it was learned that Westland residents represented 7 percent of Canton library's total material circulation. Canton's library board limited Westland residents to one book at a time unless a $100-per-family annual fee was paid. That fee is currently charged to all library users who live outside the WOLF system.

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas has vowed to fight Canton's tough guidelines.

However, Canton officials say the charge is only fair since Canton residents pay for the services through property taxes. Canton levies 1.7 mills for library services. For instance, an owner of a house in Canton, valued at $140,000, pays $119 annually for Incumbent William D. Ford, a Democrat, says it's time for a change - in the White House.

Ford, expecting a victory by presidential hopeful Bill Clinton in November, says that will put him in "the best position ever" to help the 13th District.

Voters will decide who offers the best argument come Nov. 3. In the meantime, candidates are criss-crossing the district explaining their position on a variety of issues. Even the names of Murphy Brown and Dan Quayle are finding their way into the discussion on who should represent the newly-drawn district.

The district includes Garden City, Westland, Plymouth, Plymouth and Canton townships and part of Livonia, among other com-

Three of the five candidates Ford, Geake and Jensen - fielded questions last week as part of an election forum sponsored by the Livonia League of Women

Ford charged that George Bush's administration is 'motivated by profit and greed."

"Bush said he wanted a kinder, gentler nation. All we got was

AAA chief, attorney debate 'D'

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Michigan's Proposal D will either reduce auto insurance costs for almost every driver in the state, or benefit auto insurance companies at the expense of drivers, depending on who you talk to.

AAA President Ron Steffens, whose company is sponsoring the ballot proposal, and George Sinas of the Committee for Fairness and Accountability in Insurance Reform debated the issue last week at an Economic Club of Detroit meeting in Southfield's Plaza Ho-

Before a full house, Steffens said the unlimited medical benefits that auto insurance companies have been obliged by law since 1972 to provide are getting way too expensive. Medical expenses for Michigan auto insurance companies rose 91 percent between 1985 and 1990, he said, mostly because there is no cap on Concomitantly, the Michigan Catastrophic Claims Association's per-car charge to insurance companies for claims over $250,000 has risen from $5.53 in 1983 to $110 this year.

Steffens likewise charged that the FAIR organization Sinas represents is a "front group" of the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association and has "launched a disinformation campaign that puts spin doctors to shame.

Sinas, an attorney, called Proposal D "a confusing, complicated, multi-fine-print document (that) I still do not understand completely." He added that the promised 20-percent rate reduction "is a sham. It's totally illuso-

Sinas pointed out a provision in the proposal that would allow insurance companies to raise rates every six months, alleging that insurance companies would reduce rates initially, but soon return them to current levels.

Another provision, Sinas noted, would allow insurance companies to appeal to the state insurance commissioner for relief if they can prove that the 20-percent rate reduction would impair their ability to earn a "fair rate of return," according to the proposal.

Theoretically then, a given insurance company could short-circuit the mandated rate reduction, but it would then pay the consequences of charging more than its

Acknowledging the great chasm of disagreement between AAA and the opponents of Proposal D. Steffens more or less summed it up when he said, "Your decision will probably come down to one thing: Who do you trust?"

In the audience's case, the answer to that question seemed to be AAA.

When Sinas complained about the window the proposal would open every six months to raise insurance rates, a man in the audience hollered at the attorney. Who regulates your rates?'

Of seven audience members polled by the Observer & Eccentric after the event, six supported

"I think Mr. Steffens did a hell of a job," said Leo Jerome, a Birmingham resident and owner of Key Oldsmobile in Warren. "You can see why the trial lawyers are against it.

Another Birmingham man, who called himself a "neutral observer," but declined to give his name, said Steffens "really well-represented himself. What the trial lawyers are proposing is a planned economy and that tougher restrictions on political action committees.

Geake said he would be accessible to the electorate. He reminded voters that he has lived in the district (in Northville) for 30 years and will continue to do so if elected to Congress.

"My name, address and telephone number are published in the telephone book," said Geake.

Here's a sampling of issues the candidates responded to at the fo-

Election issues

■ Term limitation: Ford opposes term limits because "Michigan residents should not "unilaterally disarm themselves unless the rest of the country is doing

Jensen said he "has no problem with term limits.

Geake supports term limitation. "To argue that Michigan has more clout because of the seniority system is flawed because Michigan, which has a number of longtime representatives, still ranks 48th out of 50 states having federal money being returned," said Geake, adding that, "our founding fathers had no guess we'd have career politicians.

■ The Brady bill, which would impose a waiting period for the purchase of a handgun in all states: Geake opposes it. "If guns are outlawed only outlaws will have guns," said Geake.

Jensen said he "supports the Second Amendment's right of the citizenry to bear arms.'

Ford said he supported the bill "at the request of many police departments through the state." Ford noted that the bill doesn't apply to Michigan, which already has a pre-purchase clearance agreement. Ford said the bill would apply to states like Ohio, which has no such restriction.

Caps on liability

Ford and Jensen oppose any caps on medical liability; Geake supports caps.

"I'm opposed to quick fixes," said Ford.

"I've always supported caps. We have got to do something if we're going to stop our medical professionals from being sued to death," said Geake, adding that on some issues it's like the attorneys against the rest of us. ■ Vouchers for schools: Ford and Geake are opposed; Jensen says he's open to the idea.

"Wherever public money goes so does control," said Geake outlining his opposition to vouchers. ■ Abortion rights: Geake opposes abortion because "life be-gins at conception." Ford and Jensen said they support a woman's right to choose.

"Government has no business sticking it's nose into the decision," said Ford.

■ Constitutional convention: Jensen supports the proposal. Ford opposes it, fearing that special-interest groups would get their hands on the Constitution.

Geake said a balanced-budget amendment is needed and that would be the main reason for calling a constitutional convention.

When asked about the Murphy Brown-Dan Quayle flap, Jensen replied: "Total garbage."

"I have no problem with the woman who has to be a single mother," said Jensen.

Geake said Quayle was right. 'He made a valid point in that the program mocked the importance of fathers. I am probably one of a few people who listened to a tape of the entire speech,' said Geake.

"Get a grip on your masculinity, Danny, and admit there are some thing women can do themselves," said Ford.

■ Line-item veto: Both Jensen and Geake support it. Ford op-

State senators seek to toughen teacher tenure requiremen

After a battle over school strikes, the Michigan Senate has passed three bills reforming teacher tenure, the system by which teachers get permanent job

Bills sponsored by Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, and Joanne Emmons, R-Big Rapids, won 37-0 and 36-0 Senate approval. They go to the House, which has recessed until after the Nov. 3

"A positive step toward bringing more accountability to the system," said Bouchard, who chairs the Senate Education Committee.

The bills would:

Lengthen a teacher's probation time from two years to three.

Require administrators to make annual performance evaluations and development plans for the teachers.

 Shorten the disciplinary appeal process from nearly 1,600 days to 300 days.

"Annual performance reviews wil provide a baseline frame of reference from which to judge a teacher's progress," said Bouchard. "These bills protect teachers' rights to due process while injecting more accountability into the teacher tenure system.

Emmons said boards of education often resort to buying out bad teachers rather than taking a chance on trying to fire them through the time-consuming, money-consuming tenure process. She cited an East Jackson case that required 312 hours of testimony over 81 days and $190,000

Currently the State Tenure Commission has no time limits to hear cases. Parties which lose before the STC may go to the courts, starting with circuit courts.

Bouchard said the reform gives the STC time limits and starts appeals with the Court of Appeals.

Senators rejected 6-31 amendment by Nick Smith, R-Addison, providing that a teacher taking part in an illegal strike would start his or her probationary status all over.

Opponents attack sheriff on ambition, low morale

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano hasn't emerged from the forest yet, but he can see the road up ahead.

In a tough political struggle, Ficano defeated Wayne County commissioner Kevin Kelley last August for the Democratic nomination for sheriff, spending $300,000 in the process. Now he'll duel with Republican Dennis Malin and Tisch Party candidate Daniel Tackett in the Nov. 3 general election.

Although Ficano says he's not taking these foes for granted ("We take everything seriously."), he doesn't plan to spend more than $20,000 between now and the election.

Even then, the 40-year-old sheriff will still outspend Tackett and Malin. Tackett, a 30-year-old private detective, has spent about $2,000 to date and won't add much to that "unless somebody drops a load of money in my lap." Malin, 31, is paying for his campaign entirely out of his own pocket and said he'll spend $3,000 trying to knock Ficano out of office. "I want to run on my merit," he said. "I don't want to buy the position."

The three candidates were interviewed separately by the Observer between Oct. 1 and 8.

Malin grew up in Westland and graduated from high school in 1980. The Dearborn resident works full time as night manager of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel and part time as a security officer at Fairlane Towne Center.

Sheriff criticized

He criticizes Ficano as an opportunist whose main goal is to be the county executive. When Ficano ran for executive in 1986 "he sent everybody (in the sheriff's department) a message, and it was a negative one. (The deputies) felt let down. The majority of the officers feel that (Ficano) doesn't stand up for them."

Malin knows a little about the county deputies because he was a Wayne County sheriff's deputy for seven months ending in 1988.

He was fired on a charge that he lied on his job application but is still appealing the dismissal and may someday be reinstated with

Malin said he knew Ficano well enough back then to include the sheriff on his list of references. He surmises now that a lieutenant whose job it was to do background checks on new hires didn't like Ficano, and therefore didn't like Malin because Ficano was on his reference list.

Dennis Malin Republican

The lieutenant, Malin said, claimed that none of the 12 people Malin listed as references knew Malin. "You can see

Daniel Tackett Tisch candidate

through the whole thing," Malin

Northland Family Planning Clinics and Summit Medical Center are giving away free Sweetest Day cards with a condom and safe-sex message inside.

The cards also are available at Northland Family Planning Clinics in Southfield, Romulus and Clinton Township and Summit Medical Center in Detroit.

"We felt it important to reach women on Sweetest Day and encourage them to take the lead role in promoting safe sex," said Kathy Allen, administrator of Summit Medical Center.

"The cards are fun, but also provide an important educational message," said Allen.

Sheriff from page 8

Ficano agreed with Malin that morale in the sheriff's department isn't as good as it could be, but he said it's a result of the primary battle with Kelley.

"We want to make sure there's some healing in the department," he said.

There are many more deputies to spread the healing around on than there were when Ficano assumed the office in 1982. Back then the sheriff's department had 600 employees, Ficano said. Now it's up to 1,400 with 70 percent of those working in the jails.

New jails

Under Ficano the department has built two additional jails, added a felony-warrants division, park patrol, marine unit and a 40-man narcotics unit that pays for its keep with assets confiscated from not-yet-convicted alleged drug offenders.

In his Observer interview, Ficano declined to rule out a run at higher office in the future, preferring instead to say, "Right now I just want to be the best sheriff I Like Malin, Tisch candidate Tackett doesn't believe Ficano's ambition ends with the job he has now. "No one has ever taken that job seriously," he said. "The only thing the (Wayne County) sheriffs ever did was run for higher off-

Tackett, a Taylor resident, is the owner of an office-cleaning business and an area manager for Tri-County Security. "I'm not a politician," he said. "I want to make that real clear. I only make one promise, that I will not seek any other elected office."

Tackett said the sheriff's department needs a helicopter division, more boats for the marine unit, drug- and bomb-sniffing dogs, a SWAT team and fewer officers working in courtrooms.

Malin said he would increase the sheriff's department "visibility" by putting patrol cars on the freeways. He would also like to hire more deputies, increase the size of the narcotics division and spend more on training.

Youth actities

Ficano said one of his goals for a new term would be to have more youth activities, particularly in the area of anti-illegal-drug inculcation.

He believes that the so-called "war on drugs" is slowly being won, but mostly through influencing youth rather than arresting folks. "It will get done," he said. "(But) not from the law enforcement perspective. You have to change the people's attitude on drugs. It's like turning a battleship around."

Malin also criticized Ficano on his relationship with Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, which he called a

"feud."

In the primary race, McNamara backed Kelley hoping to get rid of Ficano. "(McNamara) wanted control of the office," Ficano said, adding that relations between he and McNamara are now "cordi-

"For the good of the citizens and taxpayers, there has to be cooperation. (But the sheriff's department) will not be controlled by another branch of government," Ficano said.

Organizers get your life in shape

You think you've got it together because you keep track of your work life in a daily diary. But it falls apart when you forget to look at what you've written. There stands your 10 o'clock appointment and you can't remember why she's there.

You need to get organized and the person who can do just that is a professional organiz-

Yes, there are people who will come in, sort out your life, get it organized and work with you to keep it that way. Just ask professional organizer Michelle DuMouchelle.

'A lot of times people don't know where to start and don't have the time to find the solutions," said DuMouchelle. "They know they need help, but don't know we (professional organizers) exist until they find us in the Yellow Pages or through word of mouth.

DuMouchelle, 30, is Simply Organization with offices on Main Street in Plymouth. She also is the southeast Michigan coordinator of the National Association of Professional Organizers which is observing second annual National Get Organized Week this week.

Professional organizing is a relative new field, but is growing by leaps and bounds. According to DuMouchelle, the profession is coming of age in the '90s.

"People realize they can't do it all," she said. "They want to do what they do well and get help with the rest. With the '90s being so busy, anything we can do to give peace of

And peace of mind apparently is what people want.

Getting it together

According to a survey by the southeast

Michigan NAPO members, 68 percent of those questioned admitted that they wished they were better organized. Another 53 percent said they were overwhelmed by paperwork and 54 percent by time commitments. Then there was the 40 percent who feel they're drowning under the clutter.

But surprisingly, only 24 percent of those surveyed had trouble finding what they needed when they needed it.

"People just let time get away from them-selves," DuMouchelle said. "They spend more time planning a two-week vacation then they spend planning the rest of their lives.

DuMouchelle didn't start out her career as professional organizer but rather as a certified public accountant. In working with clients, she discovered she enjoyed working with the people more than the numbers.

She started doing organizing for family and friends, then discovered NAPO. She joined the organization, formed Simply Organization and her business started "snowballing." She's been a professional organizer for three years and uses her financial training to specialize in organizing paperwork.

I've had clients who tell me they can't stand it anymore and when I asked them what they expected of me, I found they expected me to get them organized quicker than I can," she said. "They usually say they think I can do it in a day then they start pulling stuff out of the closets.

Devising ways

DuMouchelle consults a potential client to determine things like the maximum amount time he or she is willing to spend on the project and what things need to be eliminated or added.

She then gets them organized and develops a technique they can use to stay that way. She also keeps in touch with the client to provide an incentive to keep doing it.

"You have to deal with what they've been doing and with what the limits are," she said. "You can't change them; you have to give them a technique they can deal with. They need to have input; they have to tell me what they can do. You can't force someone to do something; you have to work with what they can do or it's a waste of time.'

There is no formal training program for pro-fessional organizers. DuMouchelle uses her financial training and what she has learned at seminars and national meetings as well as in books about professional organizing.

"You learn as you do," said DuMouchelle.
"A lot of people have a talent; a lot come from the secretarial and business fields. They've got a bit of the expertise that's needed to get people organized and have devised ways of us-

The southeast Michigan NAPO members number 11 and earlier this year they applied to become a chapter of ther national organization. DuMouchelle is coordinator of the group and Susan Elder of East Lansing is the acting secretary. Within their ranks is the national secretary, Dorothy Lehmkuhl of Bloomfield Township.

Other members include Cheryl Richards of Rochester Hills and Ann Savell and Jane Smitt, both of Bloomfield Hills.

'I never thought I'd be doing this," said DuMouchelle of her organizing work. "But I knew I didn't want to deal with numbers all my life."

Compromise sought on health care bills

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

State legislators will have to work out a compromise if adopted children are to receive health insurance coverage the day they enter their new homes.

The state Senate and House are advancing slightly different bills.

"This legislation is an important step in our efforts to provide health care to children who wouldn't normally be insured," said Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, sponsor of the Senate ver-

"Adopted children often have to wait a significant period of time before they receive insurance coverage — if they receive it at all. In the interim, they often have to rely on Medicaid.

"These bills allow insurance coverage for adopted children to begin at the time of placement rather than at the time of legal adoption (usually a year later)," Geake said.

The state Senate last week gave 24-12, 30-6 and 30-7 approval to Geake's three bills, one covering each class of health insurer in the

"The Senate Family Law Committee chose Geake's bills rather than (Rep. Maxine) Berman's (D-Southfield)," said a Geake aide. "Bob's bills say you can't treat an adopted child differently from a birth child.

"Berman's bills would have required insurers to pay for all 'special needs' for adopted children to age 18. Hers went away from the original intent. Now (Berman's) are almost an entitlement - coverage in spite of pre-existing con-

New school security chief on job

A former Detroit police officer has become the sixth man in recent years to take on the task of security chief for the Plymouth Canton schools. He said it seemed to be "a job cut out for me."

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

Thomas George is the sixth man in as many years to become chief security officer for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

George joins the district from the Detroit Police Department, where he served on patrol as well as in the narcotics, STRESS, sex crimes and armed robbery units for 25 years until he retired last month.

George said coordinating security at the 305-acre, two high school complex at Joy and Canton Center roads "seemed like a job cut out for me. So far, our largest headache has been parking."

The post will give George — an avid weightlifter, boater and golfer — the welcome chance to work with kids. It'll also mean working days and having some weekends off — considered a luxury by most police officers, he said.

"The hardest part of the job is getting accustomed to the hours. I'm used to working nights," said George, who arrives at work at 6:45 a.m. "I'm starting to adjust."

George replaces Roy Anderson, a former state police officer from Livonia who resigned after just a year on the job.

The late Tim Ford, former Plymouth police chief, became Plymouth-Canton security officer in 1987. Shortly after taking the job, Ford called it "the greatest challenge I've ever faced in my life, just because of the geographic structure. The managerial problems for 4,400 youngsters and 220 teachers are awesome."

When George's hiring was approved by the school board, a trustee asked Errol Goldman, assistant superintendent for employee relations, whether he addressed the reasons why so many people have vacated the job.

Goldman said yes, and that the salary has been increased.

"He said he was happy here, but that AAA made him a pretty good offer, so that's all I know," said George. "The salary is better; it's competitive now. The people I'm working with are treating me very nice; they're very helpful. Everyone is very interested in whether I'm happy and enjoying my job."

Richard Egli, the district's community relations director, said, "I don't think there's been an over-abundance of people in the job. Our security officers have had reasons for going. Jim Collins went to a job that almost doubled his pay with AAA. Another factor you have to recognize is that in most cases, people who've gone into this position have retired from some other law enforcement area. So they're not looking at it as a long-term career."

Egli said he's impressed with George, who oversees a staff of six full-time and seven part-time guards and a budget of $250,000.

"I thought he was by far the most outstanding candidate. Since I've had the chance to work with him, I've felt that confirmed my initial impression of him," said Egli said.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

New on the job: Thomas George joins the school district from the Detroit Police Department.

"He has some excellent background, and I think that puts him in a particularly good position to work with young people here."

George and his wife Patricia live in Detroit and have two sons, Michael, 18, a student at Western Michigan University, and Darrin, a sophomore at Divine Child High School. They plan to eventually move to the Plymouth-Canton area, George said.

A graduate of Riverside High School in Dearborn Heights, George has an associate's degree of applied science from Ferris State University and a bachelor's degree in social studies from the University of Detroit Mercy.

He graduated at age 23 from the Metropolitan. Police Academy and joined the Detroit Police Department.

Local Saturn chief worked way up

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

Karen Tibus began her automotive career as a switchboard operator at Don Massey Cadillac in Plymouth 15 years ago.

Today, she's president of Saturn of Plymouth, Saturn of Farmington Hills and Saturn of Okemos dealerships.

If you're looking for the Farmington Hills Saturn dealership, however, it's not here yet. You've got to wait until mid-December when it's scheduled to open at Haggerty and Grand River, next door to Pace Warehouse.

"I have a lot of respect for all the posts in the store," said Tibus at her Saturn of Plymouth offices.

That's because she's done them all, including a stint as a car washer for the Cadillac dealership, as well as general office, service cashier, sales, assistant to the president and general manager.

The new 16,000 square foot dealership will be able to serve the Farmington, Novi and Lakes area. "I think Saturn fits a lot of family needs," Tibus said.

Saturn, which takes a market approach, allows dealers to pick a particular market area for their stores. Tibus took the Plymouthmeans no one else can build in that area, said Tibus, a Plymouth-Salem graduate.

Tibus likes Saturn's human approach to car sales. When a customer walks in, a receptionist provides a brochure and price sheet. "There are no secrets. Every customer is just as important as the next. Prices are non-negotiable. We are buying the same car at the same price," Tibus said.

Saturn offers no rebates, no incentives. All cars are sold at a set price. "When customers come in, they know what they are going to get," Tibus said.

Saturn doesn't have sales people, it has sales consultants who help customers pick the car that fits their needs. "We get a lot of people who are learning. We want them to go out and compare our cars with other cars.

Prices range from $9,100 to $18,000. Saturn offers three four-door models, two two-door models and two station wagon models, which are soon to be introduced.

Three days after you buy a Saturn, a customer relations person will call you. This isn't someone you've never met before. While at the dealership, the customer relations person was already introduced to you. "She asks for honest feedback," Tibus said.

Five days after your purchase, the Saturn Corp. will call. And 30 days later you will get a survey in the mail, as well as a VIP packet, which includes a picture of you with your new car on a calendar.

Tibus admits there's been plenty of myths that have grown up around the Saturn product. But one of the amenities is a 24-hour road service, available over an 800 number. "And it's not just an answering machine," Tibus said.

With all the hard work and the determination to please customers, Tibus said, the quandry is how do you continue to exceed yourself time and again. "We have a real growth pattern. It's not a one-time shot. Now the question is, 'What are we going to do to make you come back, the second, third and fourth time you buy a car?'

The new Farmington Hills dealership won't have a big back lot for new cars, but if business is great, Tibus doesn't rule out buying property for an additional lot.

"It's been hard times for the auto industry," Tibus said. "The recession has hit. People aren't out there buying new cars. It's tough for people even to service their vehicles.'

Sales have exceeded goals. "We have a great car at a great price. We've done literally no advertising except for the billboard on I-275."

Still, Tibus does little, if any, advertising.

Tibus' Plymouth dealership opened in 1990 but she's still getting a lot of surprised customers - especially when they realize the boss is a woman.

"It's a tough business for females to be in," she said. "You can't be a wife and mother and president of three car dealerships. I am totally dedicated to my work."

EMU enrollment about same as last year

Eastern Michigan University's opening fall enrollment is stable, up less than 1 percent when compared with last year's opening fig-

As of Sept. 14, the official onetenth reporting dete to the state, 25,133 students had enrolled at EMU, representing an increase of 0.4 percent or 109 students when compared with last year's official opening enrollment of 25,024.

Of the 25,133 enrolled, 19,320 are undergraduates, an increase of 107 students or 0.5 percent when compared with 1991's opening number of 19,213. Graduate student enrollment remains nearly unchanged at 5,813, up two students over last year's 5,811.

While the number of first-time freshmen declined slightly by 39 students or 1.7 percent, from 2,268 to 2,229, the number of transfer students increased by 239 students or 13 percent, from 1,803 to 2,042.

The returning student population remained stable, decreasing by 45 students or 0.3 percent, from 0,044 in 1991 to 14,999 this year. The number of special/unknown students (those not enrolled in a particular program) decreased by 48 students, from 98 in 1991 to 50 this year.

Although student numbers are up slightly, student credit hour production declined slightly.

Supervisor race

Keen-McCarthy has experience

oters in Plymouth Township will elect a new township supervisor Nov. 3 in a race that pits Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, the winner of the Republican primary, against Ron Edwards, an independent.

We recommend Keen-McCarthy. As the winner of a crowded primary election in August, she has stood the test of time and has received voter approval.

Edwards faced no opposition in the primary. He is an intelligent man with good ideas about the consolidation of government services. Also, he has a deep concern for the quality of life in Plymouth Township.

We urge Edwards to stay involved in Plymouth politics. He's this area's Ross Perot - an independent with good ideas.

Keen-McCarthy, however, is the better choice

Her background as a hospital administrator will help her deal with the role of supervisor.

She is a political newcomer, a plus in a year where there is deep disenchantment with a political system that seems wracked with favoritism, cronyism and deals that aren't illegal, but that just look too cozy. We're talking about the Western Townships Utilities Authority.

■ Keen-McCarthy is a political newcomer, a plus in a year where there is deep disenchantment with a political system that seems wracked with favoritism, cronyism and deals that aren't illegal, but that just look too cozy.

The $94 million sewer project for Plymouth Township, Canton and Northville makes sense. It will help clean up the environment, spark development and cut the communities' ties to the Detroit system, which is a big polluter. We suspect it will also be cheaper for residents in the long run.

But the project needs to clean up its image. And Keen-McCarthy is the person to help do

She has a broad base of community support, is hardworking and will take the job of township supervisor seriously.

We urge Plymouth Township voters to cast their ballots for Keen-McCarthy on Tuesday, Nov. 3.

Charter changes

Yes vote urged on city proposals

oters in the city of Plymouth will decide three proposed changes to the city charter on Nov. 3.

After studying the proposals, we urge voters to support all three proposals. They are:

Proposal 1: Increase city commissioners' pay from $10 to $50 per meeting, with a 33 meeting limit or a maximum of $1,650 a year. We support the change because the $10 per meeting figure could prevent qualified but not well-to-do candidates from running. Child care costs could eat up $10 in just a couple of hours.

Proposal 2: A change in the requirement that the city set its budget by the second regular meeting during June, rather than in May. The reason for the proposed change is that the tax and state budget information needed to put the city's budget together isn't available in time. Changing the date makes sense.

Proposal 3: A change in the requirement that city department heads live in the city. Such a change makes sense. The city would have a tough time attracting the best people for its administrative jobs if such a requirement stays on the books.

We urge voters to support the proposed changes to the Plymouth city charter on Tuesday, Nov. 3.

Cable the bad guy

omeone should take Leonard Poger's typewriter away from him. Not only is he uninformed about the cable industry, his conclusions make no sense.

He concludes that some small insignificant consumers group was able to move Congress to pass new legislation to re-regulate an industry that has taken advantage of the public for the last seven years.

Wrong. The list of cities, counties, trade groups, consumer organizations and individuals who petitioned Congress for relief would fill a newspaper. Poll after poll indicated a majority of the public was tired of the endless rate increases, poor customer service, a dead ear to complaints and in some communities lousy picture quality.

I suppose the insignificant consumers group, also, was able to convince Congress to override the President's veto.

Mr. Poger's final resolution to get away from cable's high rates is to go out and spend a "couple grand" on a satellite dish get "nearly 100 channels" and not pay the cable company a cable channels, that we all subscribe to cable for, are scrambled from the satellites. To get these channels descrambled you have to pay even more than it cost from the cable company, not to mention your investment for the receiving equipment.

Sound good? It isn't because all the popular

Mr. Poger kind of wanders around the halls of Congress picking up on some other random issues and spending a paragraph here and there on each of them. I'm left confused as to the intent of his column, but if he has a problem with Congress, so do I. Do I trust Congress to always do right by us? Nope. Is Congress accountable to the Public? Yep, even if we don't hold their feet to the fire. Yes, the cable guys should also be accountable and that's why we have re-regulation.

Do I trust the cable companies more than Congress as Poger says he does? In a pig's eye. Jim Kronberg, Canton

Lower premiums can benefit all

dopting an insurer's plan to lower auto premiums isn't great public policy. But it's all Michigan drivers have.

Voting yes on Proposal D, the AAA-backed proposal, should help drive down runaway medical and legal costs that have become an integral part of Michigan's no-fault system.

It will also send a strong message to the state's elected officials, who have ducked controversial issues in recent years, including auto insurance reform efforts last spring.

Under no-fault, every Michigan driver is required by law to carry insurance. That makes car insurance more like a mandated tax than a matter of personal choice.

Proposal D will provide reasonable tax relief for an already overburdened public trying to make do with less real income and higher living

Proposal D offers most western Wayne and Oakland County residents a trade-off: lower premiums in exchange for concessions on medical and other benefits. Unlimited medical expenses paid by insurance companies will be replaced by an adjustable cap that runs from $250,000 to $5 million.

AAA officials say those choosing the minimum coverage will see rate rollbacks averaging 20 percent from Nov. 1 levels. Those choosing the maximum will still save on premiums, but not as much, they say.

Opponents say insurance companies can jack up rates before Nov. 1 and then lower them. We don't see any evidence that this has happened or will in the next two weeks.

The coverage concessions outlined in Proposal D are reasonable and will put Michigan closer to the national norm. The proposed $250,000 floor on medical benefits matches the maximum in nearly two dozen states; the $5 million maximum is nearly five times higher than Pennsylvania's $1.1 million cap, its closest competition.

Proposal D would also move the state closer to the no-fault concept as it was originally envisioned. Passage would prevent anyone judged more than 50 percent at fault in an accident from suing to collect damages, while still covering the at-fault driver's medical expenses.

Rapidly rising medical and legal costs are the spikes that have made sticker shock as much a part of buying auto insurance as in selecting a new or used car. Between 1985 and 1990, autorelated medical coverage costs have nearly doubled, increasing 91 percent. Auto-related legal bills skyrocketed 117 percent.

The Detroit consumer price index rose 23 percent during the same period.

Incumbents draw PAC money

ichigan's congressional delegation returned home last week after the 104th Congress came to its grumpy, increasingly partisan and largely inconclusive end.

Sunday's New York Times called it "the Gridlock Congress" and blamed its lackluster achievements on divided government, partisan wrangling between a Republican president and a Democratic House and Senate. The president vetoed legislation 36 times; he was overturned only once.

The anger felt by most Michigan folks found focus in two public embarrassments. The House cashed members' checks, regardless of whether there was money in the bank to cover them. And the Senate, populated by a bunch of old, white males, was unable to admit that women are often harassed in the workplace.

For most people here in Michigan - out of work, scared about job security, or just worried that the country is headed in the wrong direction - the overwhelming sense is that Congress is out of touch with the daily concerns of ordinary people.

This sense was heightened by last weekend's reports in The Detroit News of the overwhelming amount of political action committee (PAC) money going to congressional incumbents.

Now running at a record pace, PAC contributions to the 11 Michigan congressmen running for re-election totaled $2.8 million as of the July contribution reports. The News estimates that around $4 million will be donated before the election, where "much of the money comes from out-of-state interest groups with business pending before committees on which the congressmen sit."

Challengers are essentially shut out. U.S. Rep. Bill Ford, D-Ypsilanti, the powerful chair of the House Education and Labor Committee, reported $282,950 in PAC money out of $365,941 in total contributions as of July. His opponent, state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, had raised just $1,650 from PACs, out of a total $37,650.

Running as an incumbent state senator two years ago, however, Geake collected $67,000 from PACs. That's conclusive evidence of what really interests PACs. Who cares about principle when there's serious access to incumbent legislators to be bought?

The pattern is about the same for other Michigan members. U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield, picked up just under half of his total of $834,091 from PACs. U.S. Rep. Bob Carr, D-East Lansing, took a little more than half of his total from PACs.

I believe that one reason President George Bush is trailing so badly in the polls is that he has been inside the "presidential bubble" so long that he had no idea how many people were in so much economic trouble. "Too many limousines for too many years" was how Molly Ivins, a Texas columnist, put it.

In Washington, congressmen are surrounded by staff, by lobbyists, by special interest pleaders, by sycophants. PACs fund their re-election campaigns, based not on philosophical stands, but on the utility of incumbency. As I have argued before, as long as members consider the quest for office as acts of their professional career rather than an interlude of public service, the question continues to arise: Are our representatives in Congress more interested in special interest PAC money than in the overriding concerns of folks back home?

Quote was wrong

hank you for the eye-opening lesson that your newspaper has taught me. I used to think that when a newspaper put words within quotation marks it meant that the person quoted said that statement word for word. Your newspaper has supposedly quoted me on two different occa-

The first time was several years ago when I read some remarks word for word from a written statement I made at a Plymouth Canton School board meeting I attended. Since I had read my comments and saved my notes, I knew exactly what I had said. The writer who supposedly quoted me went so far as to make it sound like I was siding on the other side of the issue.

The second time was this past week when I was interviewed by Jeff Counts at President Bush's visit to Plymouth. Although Mr. Counts did have which side of the homosexual issue I am on correct, the words he attributed to me changed my meaning from what I said and believe.

I was quoted as saying, "The Democrats are for the homosexuals and when they take over, a country starts to decline." This is ridiculous. I do not think the homosexuals are going to take over. I do not think Bill Clinton and Al Gore are homosexuals.

What I did say was, "One of the big differences between President Bush and the Democratic party was on homosexual rights. History shows that every nation that has accepted homosexuality and given it the same status as the traditional family, that society has crumbled. It undermines the family and a nation without strong families cannot continue."

Maybe your writer, Mr. Counts, doesn't see a difference in these statements, but I do.

So thank you again for teaching me that quotation marks do not mean that the person quoted actually said what you put in print. I hope others are aware of this when they agree to talk to your writers and when they read your paper.

he melange, band members, teaching personnel, parents and alumni, that constitute the Plymouth-Canton Marching Band are dear to my heart. My daughter, Kara, was privileged to participate, learn, work and compete with this group of professionals for three years. Their dedication, discipline, devotion and drive culminated in the 1990 national championship. Glen Adsit's unflagging leadership resulted in the 1991 national championship.

George Bush missed an opportunity to reach out to a group that epitomizes the very finest in family values. He failed to seize the day (carpe diem) the slogan of the 1990 champions. To the 1991 champions, I say, tell Mr. Bush, "Lip my reeds."

s the parents of a member of the East Middle School Eighth Grade Symphonic Band, we were proud to learn that the band had been invited to perform at the rally for President Bush on Saturday, Sept. 26.

We have been proud of their numerous accomplishments in recent years, under the direction of Paul Reeves. These include the fact that, as a Seventh Grade Band, they earned first division ratings at the District Band Festival last spring. The combined East Middle School Bands were invited to perform in the Plymouth Memorial Day Parade and the Plymouth and Northville July Fourth Parades. They have also been invited to perform at a number of other local events.

We watched proudly as the band stood for nearly four hours in the rain and performed for an enthusiastic audience on Sept. 26. The band members were excited and proud to be part of the historic event.

Unfortunately, this important event was not covered by the local press. The Observer made no mention of the fact that the East Middle School Eighth Grade Band performed - the only middle school band in the country to perform at a presidential appearance this year.

We feel that these students and their director deserve recognition for their accomplishments. We also feel that you owe the band members and their director an apology.

The East Middle School Seventh and Eighth Grade Bands have accepted an invitation to perform during the Salem Homecoming Game on Friday, Oct. 16. We hope to see you there.

am writing to you in regards to your article in Monday's Canton Observer. I was very disappointed not to see a mention of the East Middle School Band's performance for the president. For a middle school to be asked to perform at such an important event should call for some recognition. These eighth grade kids, along with their teacher, Mr. Reeves, were very excited to have such an honor.

They had to be there at 4 p.m. and sit in the rain. They waited anxiously for their turn to play, which was supposed to be at 6 p.m. When they finally did get to play, at almost 7 p.m., they were cut short. No one else had to be cut short. We had to listen to about 30 minutes or more of every other group.

I am not saying anything against the other performers who did great. It's just these are young teens who more or less had a slap in the face not just by being cut short but also by not being noticed by the press.

Don't rub it in

must admit, I was a little miffed regarding your Aug. 10 article that was recently posted on the Greenfield Village Employee Bulletin Board. I quote: "The folks whose job it is to re-create history sit around playing the part of the happy, simple peasant. They sit surrounded by the smell of flowers when in reality it was the smell of pigs and horses that pierced the air in the 19th century. And chances are those quaint dresses were splattered with mud in the spring and rank from the smell of sweat in the summer. The men often had whiskey on their breath after trips to the barn and there were too many funerals for children. We've done a fine job of preserving the graceful buildings of the 19th century and the tools, but a rotten job of telling the real story of how people lived."

Your article implies that Greenfield Village glosses over the hardships that earlier settlers faced. History is in the past. It is dead - yet a very significant part of our heritage. It is who we are. If children or adults can glean a bit of knowledge from Greenfield Village's displays, why knock it? History books are a wonderful, educational tool but to most (I said most, not all) extremely boring. Visitors at Greenfield Village experience the chance of a lifetime the opportunity to visualize what history was really about. The chance to understand how America progressed from point A to point B.

As far as glossing over the "harsh" realities of earlier life such as mud stained dresses, the smell of sweat in the summer and men with whiskey on their breath - would you want to speak, much less get near, an interpreter (Greenfield Village Employee) who stank from lack of today's standards of hygiene or who reeked of alcohol in order to portray history accurately? People live life each day, Mr. Counts. They know what hard work is. Many "modern day" people are dealing daily with substance abuse in one way or another. They know of it firsthand - why rub it in?

In terms of sweating and mud - obviously you are not a regular visitor to Greenfield Village. I doubt if the visitors I have often overheard commenting about our Firestone Farm Staff would agree with you as they watch Greenfield Village men and women in "period costume" handle real horse teams, plow real fields with hand-held or horse-driven machinery and plant real seeds for next years' harvest.

Republican derides Engler on closing Lafayette Clinic

Like a serial movie, the battle over closing Lafayette Clinic raged on in the State Capitol as a key Republican senator split with his party's position of closing it.

"The (Engler) administration and my caucus are totally irresponsible in what they're doing to mental health in this state," said Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, No. 2 in the GOP hierarchy.

Usually a quiet maverick who tries to build bipartisan coalitions, Dillingham went public on the Senate floor recently with his displeasure at Gov. John Engler's decision, supported by the Senate, to close the mental health facility at 951 E. Lafayette, Detroit.

'Tragedy' coming

The issue was a Democratic amendment to a routine community mental health board bill that sought to keep Lafayette open. Lafayette was established in 1954 to train psychiatrists and other mental health professionals and conduct research on such illnesses as schizophrenia. It also treats 90 to 120 seriously ill patients.

"Lafayette is not a hospital serving Detroit. It's part of the mental health system of the state," Dillingham said. "Call the Department of Mental Health and ask what the waiting list is. It runs over 13,000.

"When you dismantle the system without a plan in place, you dump thousands of people dump them on the community mental health system. We are going to see some tragic situations on the streets of this state," Dillingham warned.

The amendment by Sen. Jim Berryman, D-Adrian, went down 18 to 19. Dillingham and 17 Democrats supported it. Opposed were 18 Republicans and one Democrat, Gil DiNello of Macomb County. One Republican was ab-

Engler seeks to turn over Lafayette's research and teaching money to Wayne State University.

Sticking with Engler was Sen. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek. who earned his medical degree at WSU. "If we had our druthers, it wouldn't be closed and would be fully funded. But the policy is a fait accompli (accomplished fact)," Schwarz said.

"My goal is somehow to save Lafayette Clinic - the research and residency training functions, and even a small part of the inpatient treatment functions." Schwarz added.

Senate OKs stalking bill

The Michigan Legislature moved toward making stalking a crime as the state Senate gave final approval to a House bill that's part of a four-bill package

Senators voted 36-0, with two absent, final approval to a House bill that allow judges to prohibit one person from following or threatening another.

'There is a great need for Michigan to follow the lead of 28 other states," said Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville.

Geake and Rep. Dianne Byrum, D-Leslie, are sponsors of the four bills. Others would make stalking a misdemeanor, make aggravated stalking a felony and authorize civil suits for damages caused by stalkers.

"Six months ago," said Geake, "we passed my Senate Bill 719 to criminalize stalking. It seems like a long time. But for victims of this mental terrorism, it must seem even longer.

"However, the result of our negotiations is the most comprehensive and strictest stalking law in the nation."

Geake's two Senate bills have been reported out by the House Judiciary Committee and await full House action after the Nov. 3 election.

CEP rivalry clouds readers' perspective

hey say professional sports fans in Philade'phia are the toughest and most demanding on their teams. Sorry, meet the followers of Plymouth Canton and Salem highs.

Actually, I've been meaning to write this column ever since I became the sports editor in Plymouth-Canton (or is it Canton-Plymouth?) way back in 1979.

Thank God, though, I got out of Dodge ahead of the posse, for more tranquil ground in Livonia-Westland in 1981.

I guess from a distance I'm sticking up for my colleague, Dan O'Meara, the most easy-going, affable, sincere, caring and hard-working journalist I've ever met.

Water normally runs off his back when it comes to criticism. That was until last week when I found this lovable Irishman's feathers a bit ruffled.

It seems the fans and readers from Canton High Chiefs are never quite satisfied, even though if you add things up, they've actually dominated the front pages this year because of their success in a number of sports.

The caller complained: "Why is Salem (girls) basketball on the front page? You never cover Canton.

Editor's response: "It's the first time I've had a reporter there this year after having five of Canton's games covered previously. I'm trying to balance things out, OK?

Heck, even George Bush (like my man O'Meara) doesn't play favorites. He made campaign stops this fall in both Canton and Plymouth.

We all know the Canton girls are No. 1 in the state and Salem is having somewhat of an off-year, but is that any reason to forget the Rocks?

Oh, yes, but don't take the Salem Rocks lightheartedly either.

I remember, once upon a time, when our editorial cartoonist Cliff Wirth mistakenly portrayed the Rocks as chickens instead of boulders in our preseason football tab.

It was an honest error, but something Salem fans took personally.

Anyway, boulders just sit around like big lumps. At least chickens walk and squawk. What would you rather be?

Canton football fans, meanwhile, took offense to econd hilling on our front page recently to the Canton-Salem girls swim meet.

It seems the Chief gridiron followers, basking in the first-ever victory over mighty Farmington Harrison, felt slighted, even though it was their first win of the season.

"Where was your photographer?" one reader demanded of O'Meara.

I guess Canton football fans have trouble reading. They need pictures each and every week to go along with the story. And if that wasn't good enough, "how about some coverage of Canton JV football?

Vikings topple No. 1-rated Chiefs

Plymouth Canton lost its undefeated status and more than likely its No. 1 ranking following a 63-56 upset by Walled Lake Central in girls basketball Tuesday. The Chiefs are 11-1 overall.

BY NEAL ZIPSER

The chant of "Ken, Ken, Ken" was heard throughout the Plymouth Canton high school parking lot Tuesday after a Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball game between the Chiefs and Walled Lake Central.

The chants were yelled by the Vikings as they greeted their coach, Ken Butler, following their 63-56 upset victory over Canton, the top-ranked team in Class A.

'We've had a lot of big wins in our program, but I don't know if you can call this a fluke," Butler said prior to being mobbed by his team outside the

"They deserved to win," Canton coach Bob Blohm said. "They did everything better than we did; they outplayed us. They made a lot of free throws and made a lot of layups.

Those two things can make for a long night.'

The loss was the first in 12 games for Canton, which fell to 5-1 in the WLA'A. Central improved to 8-3 overall and 4-2 in the WLAA.

The Vikings used a mixture of free throw shooting and a running game to pull off the upset, which was not surprising to Central.

"I knew we had a chance against them because their game is similar to ours," said senior guard Cindy Muha. who scored 18 points, including 14 of 15 free throws. "We knew they were fast but we like to run, too."

"Heck, yeah, I thought we could win," added junior forward Kerri Kobus, who tallied a game-high 23 points. "You could call our loss to Livonia Stevenson (60-59 on Thursday) a warm-up for this.'

Muha and Kobus combined for 14 of Central's 15 fourth-quarter points. The Vikings scored all of their points in the final quarter came at the free throw line where they were 15-of-19 for the quarter and 27-of-36 (75 percent) for the game. Canton converted 16 of 21 (76 percent) of its free throws.

"We're a good shooting team and when you have a good shooting team, you'll find they usually are a good free throw shooting team," said Butler, whose team also made 18 of 33 shots from the floor (54 percent).

Plymouth Christian Academy had a close game with Warren Bethesda but held on for a 35-32 girls basketball victory Tuesday at Lowell Middle School.

Plymouth Christian is 4-2 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference and 8-4 overall. Bethesda dropped to 1-5 and 1-10.

CC, 9-2-2 overall, won the Central Division with a 6-1-1 record and will host Riverview Gabriel Richard today in a first-round playoff game. Birmingham Brother Rice, which came in second place during the regular season, also plays today against Madison Heights Bishop Foley.

The winners will meet for the Catholic League championship Saturday at Harper Woods Notre Dame.

"It's a strange feeling for us," said DeLaSalle coach Thaier Mukhtar, whose team fell to 11-4-1 overall and into third place in the Central Division at 5-2-1. "This is the first time we'll be watching it.'

CC beat DeLaSalle 2-1 in the earlier meeting but despite the tie, Shamrocks coach Phil LaJoy believes they are playing their best at the right time. The Shamrocks twice battle back from one-goal deficits and appeared to have broken a 2-2 tie in the second half but a goal by junior Jeff Gardner was disallowed because he was in the goal box.

"We played better as the game progressed," LaJoy said. "We're playing better now, with intensity, and that's all you can ask."

The Pilots took a 1-0 lead in the first half on an unassisted goal by senior forward Tim Fulton. CC junior Rich Walos hit the cross bar on a free kick but the Shamrocks responded with a goal off a corner kick by junior Adam Borchert.

DeLaSalle regained the lead 2-1 with a goal by junior Ken Perlin but the Shamrocks' Anthony Verrino made the score 2-2 before halftime.

"We played harder this game, we're just not very smart," DeLaSalle coach Thair Mukhtar said. "Teams dump the ball in the box all day and we're having trouble clearing the bal. It's been our downfall all season."

DeLaSalle shared the goalie duties between Ariel Mecholowitz and Tim

Defense saves CC in Boys Bowl win

The 48th Annual Boys Bowl football game Sunday afternoon was a matter of give and take for Catholic Central's Brady Pankow.

The senior played a key role in CC's exciting 14-7 victory over arch rival Birmingham Brother Rice before some 6,000 fans at Wisner Stadium. It marked CC's third straight victory over Rice and its seventh win in their last eight meetings.

'It was a vintage Boys Bowl," said CC coach Tom Mach, whose team is 6-0 overall. "It took you way back to the great games that went right down to the wire. Both teams played valiantly.'

And perhaps the prince of valiance was Pankow.

Pankow not only gave CC a second-half spark with some outstanding punt returning, but literally took away what many thought was going to be a Rice touchdown late in the game.

Here's what happened. Rice trailed by a touchdown and had the ball at its own 40yard line with with 1:53 remaining in the fourth quarter. Rice quarterback Derek Canine hit junior tailback Marcus Harvey with a screen pass.

Harvey - one of the quickest backs around - broke into the clear down the left sidelines and appeared to be on his way towards a tying touchdown. Pankow came from the opposite side of the field and pulled Harvey out of bounds at the CC 6-yard line with 50 sec-

The Shamrock defense then stonewalled the Warriors over the next four plays. The goal-line stand was monumental, but it was all made possible by Pankow's play on Harvey.

"He (Harvey) busted through the line and I just pursued," said Pankow. "I caught him from behind. I don't know how. I must have had the angle on him, or something. But I wasn't going to let him score.'

Rice managed a 7-0 halftime lead on the strength of Canine's 6-yard touchdown pass to Mike Sullivan. The score capped a 19play drive that consumed over eight minutes of the half.

While Rice controlled the first half, CC regained momentum right away in the second half.

The Shamrocks took advantage of Pankow's 35-yard punt return to score early in the third quarter. The tying touchdown was a 3yard run by Fred Taylor.

Catholic Central tallied the eventual game-winning touchdown on a 12-yard pass from quartertback Chris Barbara to fullback Jason Krueger.

CC had only 136 total yards in the game, including a 72-yard rushing effort by Taylor. Rice (4-2) had a more balanced offense by rushing for 95 yards and passing for 97 (192 total).

"We gave them a run for their money," said Rice coach Al Fra-cassa. "But you have to give CC credit. It was a good Boys' Bowl."

Grid season in championship phase

and DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITERS

Unlike the presidential polls, the high school football prognostication race is a dead heat going into November.

The candidates can debate all they want, but it's not going to sway the standings going into week No. 7.

The Irishman (O'Meara) and the Welshman (Emons) are an identical 63-24 for the season. O'Meara picked up ground last week, correctly picking 10 of 13 games, while Emons slipped to 8-

Four league championship berths are at stake this week, and there's at least one for each weekend day.

On Friday, Livonia Franklin (5-1) travels to Walled Lake Western (6-0) in a battle for the Western Division title in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Meanwhile, Garden City (4-2) can clinch a share of the Northwest Suburban League title with a win over Dearborn (2-4).

On Saturday, upstart Wayne Memorial (4-2) hopes to unseat host Dearborn Fordson (5-1) in the Wolverine A League.

On Sunday, Redford St. Agatha (5-1) hopes to spoil Center Line St. Clement's homecoming.

So, let the games begin.

FRIDAY'S GAMES (all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Clarenceville at Hamtramck (4 p.m.): With a few breaks here and there, Livonia Clarenceville may be 5-1 right now instead of 2-4. Coach Russ Mackenzie's team has been very competitive in the Metro. Hamtramck (1-5) won for the first time last week, pulling a mild surprise against 4-1 Harper Woods, 18-14. PICKS: Clarenceville grounds the Cos-

Luth. Westland at Lutheran East: Lutheran High Westland coach Dennis Tuomi and his son, an assistant at Harper Woods Lutheran East, exchanged films right in their own home. East (5-1) leads Clarenceville last week, 32-30. Meanwhile, the young Warriors (1-5) are still learning. PICKS: East is a beast.

Ply. Canton at Liv. Churchill: It's been a tough climb for the Chargers (0-6), who are trying to break a 24-game losing streak. The Chiefs (1-5) came back down to earth after beating Farmington Harrison, losing 28-0 to Livonia Franklin PICKS: It's not a hall of fame victory, but

Liv. Franklin at W.L. Western: West ern is 6-0, but not its invincible self after rallying from a 24-14 deficit last week to beat Northville in overtime, 30-27. Arnie Gillert is the bruising senior tailback whom the Patriots' defense must stop. The kicking game will also be a factor as Western has the upper hande with Travis Ilacqua. Franklin (5-1) looked better out of the shotgun last week, scoring a season-high 28 points against Canton. PICKS: O'Meara goes Western style, but Emons sticks his neck out for the Patri-

Liv. Stevenson at Ply. Salem: The Spartans (2-4) rebounded last week with a 35-15 victory over Walled Lake Central, breaking a four-game losing streak, while Salem (3-3) had to fight off winless Farmington with a late score. PICKS: The Rocks still own Stevenson.

W.L. Central at Westland Glenn: Just how good are the Rockets (6-0)? Hard to say, even though their six opponents are a combined 12-24. But one fact is already known. They've already wrapped up the Lakes Division title. Central (3-3) had the only chance left, but the Vikings blew it last week by losing to Stevenson. PICKS: Glenn convincingly, but the Rockets must wait another week to find out where it stands.

Dearborn at Garden City: The Cougars (4-2) grab a piece of their first league title since East and West merged. The Pioneers (2-4) are an obstacle despite an 0-3 league record. The Northwest Suburban appears to be very balanced this season. PICKS: GC is titletown USA.

Woodhaven at Red. Union: The Panthers (3-3) are out of Northwest Suburban contention, but could play spoiler against Woodhaven (2-4), a 10-7 non-league loser last week to Pinckney. RU needs a jolt to pull off a victory, PICKS: RU spoils the Warriors' victory dance.

Red. Thurston at Taylor Truman: The

Class BB playoffs, but injuries to quarterback John Adams (sprained ankle) and fullback Chad Wolshon (broken wrist) could put a damper on things this week against Taylor Truman (4-2), which is also in the hunt behind the running of Siebie Davis. Adams looks like he'll play, but Wolshon is questionable. PICKS: Harry S. sounds right for both prognosticators.

Bishop Borgess vs. Saginaw Nouve (7:30 p.m. at Garden City Jr. High): Nouvel (5-1) is one of the state's top teams in Class CC, while Borgess (0-6) is trying to overcome a rough season. The Spartans will have their hands full in this Tri-Sectional matchup. PICKS: There's nothing novel about Nouvel.

SATURDAY'S GAMES (all 1 p.m. unless noted)

Northville at Farm, Harrison: The Mustangs (4-2) have proven they can play with the big boys in the Western Division of the WLAA. After losing a heartbreaker last week to Western, can they get up for a Harrison (3-3) team which is still searching for some identity in '92? PICKS: O'Meara rides with the Mustangs, but Emons flies with the Hawks.

Farmington at N. Farmington: The Falcons (0-6) came close last week against Salem, while North (3-3) was only close for a quarter against powerful John Glenn. North must get its passing game in gear or Farmington could pull off the surprise. PICKS: North gets back on the Wayne at Dearborn Fordson (1:30 p.m.): The Zebras (4-2) have done well against Fordson (5-1) in the past, especially on the Tractors' home turf. Senior tailback Bruce Calhoun will have to turn it up a notch if Wayne hopes to gain a piece of the Wolverine A League pie. Fordson has won five straight since being demolished by Detroit DePorres in its opener. PICKS: Fordson's Tractors stall Wayne.

Redford CC vs. UD-Jesuit (7:3 p.m. at Clarenceville): The Shamrocks should be able to breathe a little easier after two tough victories over DePorres and Birmingham Brother Rice. University of Detroit-Jesuit (1-5) is coming off a 3-0 loss to Madison Heights Bishop Foley. PICKS: CC rider all the way

SUNDAY'S GAME

Red. St. Agatha at C.L. St. Clement (2:30 p.m. at Center Line High): The Crusaders (6-0) are having a dream season, led by veteran quarterback Phil Doherty and running back Ray Henke. The Aggies (5-1), defending C-Section champs, have a tough defense, led by Liam Shivers. PICKS: The Aggies ironically pass the torch to St. Clement.

Chapman's PAT lifts Steelers

James Chapman's extra-point kick gave the Plymouth-Canton Steelers varsity football game the two points necessary to give the Redford Rangers their first defeat Sunday, 14-12.

Robert Johnson ran 2 yards for the tying touchdown with 1:45 remaining in the game.

Pat Nelson, who passed 31 yards to Mike Hirth to set up that score, also completed a 20-yard toss to Chapman for the first TD and a 6-0 lead. The Rangers took a 12-6 lead with four minutes left.

Salem girls 3rd in invite

Freshman Leah Retherford ran the second-best time ever by a Plymouth Salem girl Saturday, leading the Rocks to a third-place finish in the Ypsilanti Invitational.

Retherford placed seventh with a 20:27 time and was one of six Salem cross country runners to earn all-invitational honors.

"It wouldn't surprise me to see her go into the 19s," Salem coach Mike Krafchak said. "Every time she steps on the field she amazes me. She's a pretty talented kid; she's got tremendous heart.'

Brighton won the eight-team meet with 66 points. Livonia Stevenson scored 73, Salem 74 and Monroe 112.

"For as soft as we came into the race, I thought we ran pretty well," Krafchak said. "(The upcoming dual meet) ought to be a real war with Stevenson.'

Salem's Emily Farrell was 12th (20:47), Stacy Witthoff 13th (20:48), Sarah Hamilton 19th (21:03), Stacy Moore 23rd (21:14), Lynda Sebestyen 27th (21:23) and Courtney Sheldon 33rd (21:56).

"The program is starting to jell," said Krafchak, who was in South Carolina last year on business with his computer consulting firm. "I thought we would be a lot better last year. didn't help.

"This year, being back in town and being able to concentrate on the team, has really helped."

BOYS RESULTS

Plymouth Salem's Derek Cudini was fourth among individual runners and Plymouth Canton was fourth in the team standings Saturday at the Ypsilanti Invitational.

Cudini finished in 16:46 for the seventh-place Rocks. Monroe, Brighton and Dearborn Fordson finished ahead of the Chiefs.

"He was in a good pack coming to the finish line," Salem coach Geoff Baker said. "He was anywhere from second to fourth, so he's working on his finishes and getting ready to run with the leaders when it comes to the big Salem's Justin Richardson was 23rd (17:23), Andy McDonald 46th (18:10), Jared Biniecki 52nd Being 1,000 miles away probably (18:23) and Jamie Miller 58th (18:35).

Shamrocks win division title

Redford Catholic Central won its fourth Catholic League Central Division boys cross country championship in the last five years Monday with a 20-41 victory over host Warren De-LaSalle.

The meet was held at Stony Creek Park.

CC improved to 4-0 in dual meets in the Central Division. DeLaSalle finished the regular season in second place at 3-1. The Shamrocks, who run in Saturday's Sturgis Invitational, are ranked No. 3 in Class A. "I think that's a little high for us," CC coach Tony Magni said. "There's a few teams out there that have run well but the coaches on the panel haven't seen them yet. Once they do, they'll find out about them and that might drop us down a bit." CC's Mike Mittman took first place Monday in 17 minutes, 31 seconds. "He's being very consistent, moreso than anybody," CC coach Tony Magni said.

Canton got to the state's final four in softball and girls basketball last year.

Salem also made the state football playoffs and Salem finished second in the state gymnastics meet . . . the list goes on and on.

Their soccer teams are always state-ranked in both boys and girls, while Salem's wrestling team is always near the top in the

And it was only two years ago when Salem captured the state Class A baseball championship for the second time in school his-

Compare that to Livonia Bentley, a Class A high school which existed for nearly 30 years before it closed. It never won a state title in anything.

The Plymouth-Canton School District also has a trio of coaches - Fred Crissey (Canton base-ball), Fred Thomann (Salem girls basketball) and Bob Blohm (Canton girls basketball) - at or near the top of the list for highest winning percentage in their respective sports of anyone in the state.

There are several factors for the success of both schools.

For starters, they rank as two of the biggest schools in the state, trailing only Traverse City, Mount Clemens Chippewa Val-ley, Westland John Glenn and seven schools from the Detroit Public School League in enrollment.

They enjoy good coaching and get fine athletes from stable homes, creating good competition within its own school district.

But then somebody has the au-dacity to suggest that the two schools should merge their programs, like they do with the Centennial Educational Park marching band, and turn it into a mega athletic power.

That's like suggesting Notre Dame and Michigan should become one football team, or Louisville and Kentucky ought to hook up in basketball.

How about Catholic Central and Brother Rice joining forces, or Westland John Glenn and Wayne

High together as one?
This would be fair wouldn't it? Imagine this dream football matchup - Garden City versus Centennial Educational Park Athletic Factory.

With 4,496 students to choose from, the Centennial Educational Park Athletic Factory could start its own classification and perhaps secede from the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

They could go national, playing other mega powers around the country like DeMatha, Oak Hill, Va., Cincinnati Moeller and Dallas Carter.

Maybe they could get a national TV package and move into a bigger stadium, perhaps build a new arena.

Then they wouldn't have to read or complain about coverage in the Observer anymore because USA Today would give them blanket coverage.

But seriously fans, what gives?

My man Dan doesn't want to have to move to Philadelphia. Lighten up a little bit, please.

Chiefs

The duo of Muha and Kobus converted both ends of seven consecutive one-and-one opportunities to hold off the Chiefs, who received 10 points in the fourth quarter from junior Erica Anderson, who finished with a teamhigh 17 points.

Canton's leading scorer, Stephanie Gray, was held to four points - all scored in the game's first four minutes — before she fouled out early in the fourth quarter. 'We didn't do anything special on Stephanie," Butler said. "We had Bridgette (Norris) on her, and I think the two of them neutralized each other. I consider them both all-state centers.

The Chiefs also lost their other two senior captains - guards Amy Westerhold (11 points) and Christie Saffron — to foul trouble in the fourth.

"(The foul trouble) changed our whole structure of coaching," Butler said. "Two of my best players on the floor had four fouls and if we lost either of them, I would have been in trouble."

"The calls affected the game," Blohm agreed. "You don't want to play a long time without Gray, Westerhold or Saffron.'

The Chiefs trailed for most of the first half before before a 7-0 run midway through the second quarter gave them a 24-23 lead. The game was tied 28-28 at half-

But the first two quarters took its toll on both teams as a total of 25 fouls were called and several players from each team entered the third quarter in foul trouble.

The Vikings outscored Canton 20-9 in the third quarter as Central scored eight times on breakaway layups.

"We wanted to play some transition ball, but I didn't want to get beat down the floor after a basket," Blohm said. "Ken always has a competitive program, and you have to give credit to their offense. They were patient, got good shots and shot the ball well.

The Vikings play Plymouth Salem (6-0 in the WLAA) tonight. Blohm wasn't sure if the loss might help his team now that the pressure of being undefeated is Julie Bermingham scored 10 points and Krista Howe seven for Northville, 1-5 and 1-11. Salem made 12 of 21 free throws, the Mustangs three of eight.

Sophomore Melissa Campeau paced a balanced Ladywood scoring attack with 13 points, seven coming in the opening period.

Sophomore Tara Overaitis added 11 points, while Mary Jo Kelly and Anne Poglits each added nine. The 6-foot-3 Poglits also had six Salem coach blocks. Julie Angell tallied eight Performances of "The Haunting of Hill House," presented by SRO Productions, continue through Oct. 25 at Southfield's historic center, the Burgh. Tickets at the Southfield Senior Adult Center or call 354-9362.

With the advent of Halloween, fall is notorious for intrigue, suspense, mystery and magic for theaters across the nation. SRO (Standing Room Only) Productions is no exception.

DUBATS

Their current of-SALLY fering, "The Haunting of Hill House"

by F. Andrew Leslie (adapted from the novel by Shirley Jackson), is reminiscent of the incertitude children experience when sitting around a camp fire telling (and listening to) ghost stories while being frightened out of their faculties.

Director Nancy Harrower creates an atmosphere full of shivers within the realm of the play, especially since words such as "murder," "suicide," "scandal," and "ghosts" prevail.

Further, the persistent unearthly mood set by the cast, lights, and set establishes wonderful theatrical tension paramount to effective suspense.

The long-vacant, history-laced Hill House is visited by parapsychologist Dr. Montague (Robert Smitham) and his select guests. Smitham's masterful incarnation of Montague is smooth and accurate, displaying range in character from authoritarian to father-figure to henpecked hus-

Montague is challenged by the prospect of discovering the evil presence residing in Hill House, and has enlisted the aid of a woman who experienced poltergeist antics, a telepath, and the skeptical, young heir to the dark, gloomy mansion.

Eleanor Vance, played by Mary Lou Ryzenga, had the misfortune of a childhood episode with poltergiests, and falls easy prey to the evil of Hill

Ryzenga satisfies the character's capacity for fear. As ghests abound, she adamantly argues, 'Really! I'm not afraid!"

Another guest invited by Dr. Montague is psychic Theodora (Anne Benedict) who can guess 19 cards out of 20. Benedict's natural approach to the role provides the believable mood that, yes, ghosts are everyday occur-

Handsome Jerry Rathgeb portrays skeptical Luke Sanderson, the reluctant heir to Hill House. Luke and Dr. Montague offer good, old-fashioned (predictable), masculine protection when the walls shake too much or ghosts moan and laugh too loudly.

Rathgeb as playboy Luke is jovial with an easy manner which compliments the corps of actors.

Of course, no haunted house would be complete without a ghoulish maid to compliment the ominous decor. With a black patch over one eye, Margaret Gilkes renders a delightful Mrs. Dudley, who leaves at dark with the warning, "No one will hear you scream in the night. No one.

Completing the cast are Helen Dejulio as a very garish Mrs. Mortague wielding a planchette (ouija board piece) and her milquetoast assistant, Arthur Parker, played by James Pi-the cast, and provide an element of technical unevenness. Dejulio is a secure actress, but uses heavy technique. Pierce could play his role with a more extended style.

A splendid "brooding" set (Bill Mandt), wonderful, mood-filled lights (Kevin Smith), and diabolical sound (Tom Ferrel) flesh out this fine production of "The Haunting of Hill House.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

The Livonia Symphony orchestra, their sound sparkling in the opening concert of the 19th season Saturday, Oct. 10 performed rousing renditions of dramatic musical works by Gershwin, Grieg and Rossini.

The strings sang sweetly through the air in the first selection on the program, "Overture to The Barber of Seville" by Rossini.

The crescendo in the closing section of the first movement created excitement, electrifying the air and leaving the audience anxiously awaiting the performance of guest pianist,

Ralph Votapek

Votapek, winner of the first Van Cliburn International Piano Competition and Michigan State University's artist-in-residence, did not disappoint with Grieg's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in a minor

The audience was treated to a fine performance of this concerto that many consider as Grieg's masterpiece by an outstanding pianist who has concertized throughout the United over the keys throughout the entire work. The closing section in the first movement of this romantic concerto spotlighted Votapek in a series of well-executed arpeggios. In the hands of this fine performer they became a singing melody.

After intermission, the orchestra presented the Livonia premiere of Gamatria by prize-winning composer, Elaine Lebenbom of Bloomfield

'The Cocktail Hour' lively, smartly staged

Performances of the Theatre Guild production of "The Cocktail Hour" continue through Oct. 24 at the Theatre Guild playhouse in Redford. For ticket information call the box office at 538-5678.

BY BOB WEIBEL SPECIAL WRITER

If you've ever wondered what it's like to be the spouse, parents or relative of a comedian - and be the butt of their jokes - then you will empathize with the family in "The Cocktail Hour," the opening show this season for The Theatre Guild.

It's a lively paced, smartly staged and handsomely decorated production. Director, Dinah Lynch, has put together a cast that gives just the right mixture of fun, pathos and poignant moments in the life of an upper middle class family in up- state New York.

"The Cocktail Hour" is about a son who has come home to ask permission to produce a play (of the same title) about the family. Ordinarily, that should result in no more than minor uneasiness. Playwright, A. IL Gurney, however, doesn't present us with an or-dinary family. These folks are in no mood to make fun of their deep, dark secrets - and they especially do not understand why their son wants to spill the beans.

So why does he feel the need to exorcise the family demons from his gut? Because he feels unloved and strangely disconnected from a family too much in tune with illusion and ritual. He feels warped by a life of country clubs, beautiful clothes — and of course a drink or two (usually more) before dinner as they mellow out with elegant conversation.

Peter Bellanca is impeccably cast as the well-heeled father who is long on decorum and style, but more than a little short on understanding his son's more basic needs. In the end, however, he seems to get the hang of it.

Dianne Sievers is masterful as a seemingly superficial mother particularly adept at asking for "just a splash" when refueling her martini. Eventually, we find she has a "little secret" and there is more to her than just a grande dame of society.

The playwright son, is played superbly by Charles Van Hoose. He combines a nice comedic touch as he struggles with the more serious business of resolving the Oedipal conflict with his father. In the end, love and a certain reluctant respect overcomes his bitterness. And then there is Maggie Patton, who is delightful as the disgruntled sibling sister.

She keeps the sparks flying as one whose lot in life is a minor role; even in her brother's play. No wonder she prefers dogs over peo-

Local talent cast in comedy at EMU

Melanie Peters and Thomas M. Swarthout of Livonia are cast in the Eastern Michigan University Theatre production of "She Stoops to Conquer," playing through Oct. 17 at the Quirk Theatre on the Ypsilanti campus. For tickets, call 487-1221, Monday through Friday, 12:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Peters is a graduate of Steven-son High School. Since arriving at EMU, she has held roles in several plays and musicals in-cluding, Virtue in "Anything Goes," and Katerina Caveliari in 'Amadeus.'

Swarthout is a graduate of Plymouth-Canton High School where he appeared in such productions as "Fiddler on the Roof," "Black Comedy," and Rashomon."

"She Stoops to Conquer" by Oliver Goldsmith, is one of the few 18th century English comedies to survive the test of time.

Using the time-honored human ploy of mistaken identity Goldsmith starts with a plot about two young men who are made to think they are in a tavern, when they actually are in the home of the dignified Mr.

They are are further misled when Kate, a lady of "considerable quality," assumes the role of bar maid in order to persuade the otherwise proper gentlemen to be sociable.

Once doubly confused, the heroes fully exploit endless suggestive possibilities as they encounter such aptly named characters as Jack Slang, Tom Twist, Tony Lumkin and Mrs. Hardcastle.

With this comedy on dishonesty and human relationships, Goldsmith established his reputation as seeing people truly, laughing at some and with oth-

Commissioned in 1989 by the Chabad-Lubavitch Foundation of Michigan, the orchestral work kept the musicians on their toes. Dissonant in nature and leaner in sound, many of the darker instruments came to the fore especially after the climax. The orchestra pulled off this piece beautifully.

The sounds of the city came to life in George Gershwin's "An American in Paris" written in the late 1920s. In the blues theme, the horns sounded sensual.

New concert mistress, Julia Kurtyka eased into this important slot very nicely. The audience left humming Gershwin and looking forward to the next concert.

But it was only the beginning of wonderful performance at the Plymouth-Salem Auditorium, October 9. Following the overture, conductor Russell Reed greeted the modest, yet enthusiastic audience, and made it clear that greater moments were yet to come, including a guest performance by Detroit Symphony members Emanuelle Boisvert and Marcy

Then came Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4. Like all great symphonic pieces, the "Italian Symphony" offers timeless, imediately recognizable melodies and a strong sense for the object of the composer's inspiration, in this case, the countryside and people of Italy circa 1830's.

With precision and genuine feeling, the PSO tooi: its audience to the time and place of Mendelssohn's inspiration. A particularily strong moment came in the symphony's second movement, which according to legend, was in-

The "Double Concerto" isn't, however, what one would call a display piece; the music doesn't accommodate the sort of flashiness one might expect. Boisvert and Chanteaux certainly put their hearts into it, leaving the audience to wish for more.

Happily, there were just des-serts. Beckoned back on by an ecstatic audience, Boisvert and Chanteaux delivered a truly impressive rendering of variations on a theme by Handel. In it, the audience was treated, not only to diverse and wonderful readings of an unforgettable melody, but also to the sheer talent of the guest performers.

Still, we have the PSO to thank for a splendid evening.

novella by the same name, "Aspects of Love" is about all different kinds of love - between a younger man and older woman; between an older man and younger woman; between two women; between a father and his daughter, and two cousins.

What makes the play so hard to follow is that the characters weave in and out of a complicated fabric of love.

Adding to the confusion is the style of this play - there is little dialogue, most of it is sung.

Gauzy ceiling-high sheers, help create a dreamlike, innovative setting. This soap-opera like drama unfolds over 17 years from about 1947 to 1963 in various European cities.

with boyish good looks, is in love with an older woman, French actress Rose Vibert, (Linda Balgord), a striking beauty who has yet to "make it."

"Seeing you on stage has changed my life," he tells her. "Can I make a bold suggestion? Come away with me. I have a villa, you won't believe the view."

She goes and discovers the villa doesn't belong to Alex, but to his uncle George Dillingham, (Barrie Ingham).

George, a painter who copies the masters, learns of his newphew's affair, and leaves his mistress Giulietta Trapani, (Kelli James Chase), a lusty Italian sculptress to check on him.

The three meet, and as luck would have it, Rose receives a telegram (she sends to herself) and tells Alex she must return to the stage. Love-struck Alex says the noble thing — "You can't put me before your career, you can't let feelings interfere, you must Alex joins the army, and Rose moves in with Uncle George.

Does this mean that George has called off his romance with Giulietta? No, in fact Rose and Giulietta get along very well, and even kiss before leaving off stage with George.

It gets better. Alex finds out about Rose and his uncle. He wants to kill her. He shoots, and grazes Rose's arm. Shortly after, Rose convinces George to marry time for school leaf collections. Teachers over the years have made the assignment so that students can get them from the ground but still compare them with those remaining on trees.

A leaf collection is a good way to get students out in the forest and to realize the diversity of leaves and trees found in Michigan.

If students conduct their assignment properly, they will begin by obtaining a good book on tree identification. They will confirm identification by noting characteristics of the bark, twigs and the other trees in the habitat.

Trees do not just grow anywhere, they grow where the conditions are appropriate for their survival

Beyond identifying the leaf of a tree, the student should realize the importance of the trees and the leaves. If it was not for green plants, like trees, all the animals on earth would not be here. Photosynthesis, the process where a green leaf converts carbon dioxide and water into oxygen and sugars is the most important thing a tree can do.

In addition to oxygen and sugars, trees provide food and cover for many types of animals.

Even when a tree is dead it can still provide many things. A well insulated trunk provides shelter for many small animals.

When the tree has fallen to the ground and decomposes, it provides nutrients for new trees in the forest. Dead leaves enrich the soil every year.

A leaf collection should be just a start for learning about forest and habitats.

So, for those who seem to forget if the oak leaf is in the white oak, or red oak group, here is a story to help you remember. Ask yourself the following questions: Who greeted the Pilgrims when they landed in the New World? Native Americans.

What color do we often associate with Native Americans and

Direct sales homes in on customers

■ With more demands on their time, some shoppers are skipping the malls and letting the stores come to them in the form of direct sales companies.

BY GERALD FRAWLEY STAFF WRITER

It started with the Fuller brush man and the concept of the door-todoor salesmen. Knocking on doors and peddling wares to housewives was at one time as common as the crowded parking lots at Oakland Mall.

While direct sellers - as they call themselves now - are not as numerous or as large an industry as traditional retailing, they are a force to be reckoned with.

Their salespeople are your neighbors; their department stores are your living rooms.

Carol Kuhn of Westland, a sales representative with Lady Remington Fashion Jewelry, is among the ranks of a growing number of direct selling representatives for companies that have decided to forego traditional sales outlets.

"I used to be an account representative for Xerox," she said. When she and her husband decided to begin a family, Kuhn decided she still wanted to work.

It's more than just the flexibility offered by direct selling that attracts her and others to direct selling. "The pay is excellent and the fringes are ex-essentially a part-time job.

But pay isn't the only thing, Kuhn said. "You have to be a super salesman to be recognized at a corporate level. They don't do it the same (in direct selling).'

Direct selling companies reward their representative with trips, prizes and bonuses. The direct selling companies also regularly sponsor seminars on sales and business strategies.

"We have a lot of fun," Kuhn said. "We (the direct selling agents) feel appreciated.'

The job is also a social outlet for both the direct seller and the customer, she said. But direct selling is still a business.

Kuhn was recently promoted to region manager. From June 1991 through May 1992, she personally generated more than $100,000 in sales, the highest in the company. Her division generated more than $345,000 in sales, the second highest in the company. She also was appointed to the Lady Remington Advisory Board.

Full menu of life insurance choices merits careful study

BY DANIEL BOYCE and ALAN FERRARA SPECIAL WRITERS

Since this column began, we have been assisting our readers in analyzing their financial needs and suggesting planning techniques that will help provide for a sound future. We often discuss the benefits of life insurance and how it relates to the total plan. This month, we would like to talk about life insurance in general, including the types of life insurance, situations where life insurance is beneficial, and how to determine how much life insurance you need. Although there are different situations where life insurance is beneficial, the primary benefit of life insurance is to provide an accessible liquid source of cash and to provide for your dependents after your death. It may also be needed to pay for funeral and administration expenses as well as federal and state estate taxes.

The most common form of life insurance is called term insurance. With this type of insurance, you are a buying only a pure death benefit. The premium you pay brings you a promise that at your death a specified amount of proceeds will be paid to your beneficiaries. Other than at death, there is no value to the policy.

Term policies are often "renewable" or "convertible." A renewable policy offers a provision that allows you to continue to be insured without annual proof of insurability through a medical

For example, if you had a renewable policy and were diagnosed with cancer, the insurance company would be required to cover you as long as you paid the premiums. Because you are covering the pure death benefit with a term policy, the premium cost grows ever higher as you get older.

friends, your attorney or your accountant to get referrals of insur-

The convertibility feature allows you to switch to a permanent policy, thereby guaranteeing insurability and most likely leveling off the insurance costs.

Term has its place

Term insurance is usually appropriate for those who have a temporary need for life insurance such as to pay off debts or establish an educational fund for chil-

Many people have heard the advice, "Buy term insurance and invest the difference between the lower cost of that term insurance and the higher cost of a permanent insurance policy." That may be good advice for those with the discipline to actually invest that difference for their future. But for many people, that phrase becomes, "Buy term and spend the difference.

All forms of permanent insurance are structured to have affordable premiums late in a policy owner's lifetime. This is achieved by setting up a cash reserve (savings portion) that can be used in later years to offset increasing costs. This savings portion of the policy is your forced investment for your future. Permanent policies generally guarantee a low minimum rate of return on the portion of the premium that is invested, and they provide for higher returns to the extent that the company's assets earn a greater rate of return. This is true of traditional whole life permanent policies.

Form of investment

In recent years, insurance companies have been selling "interest sensitive policies" that allow you to select the types of investments in which your savings portion of the premium can be be invested. Some of these policies also allow for some changes in the face value (death benefit) of the insurance. Different types of policies have different risks associated with

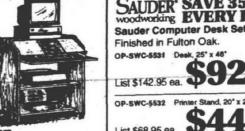

Many people have group life insurance through employers or associations. This is a type of term insurance policy that will cover an entire group. It should be considered when determining how much personally owned insurance is needed, but keep in mind that if you terminate employment, or sometimes after a certain age, that coverage is eliminated or decreased.

Another type of life insurance that is being sold today is a survivorship policy. This policy in-sures the life of both the husband and wife, and pays policy proceeds only on the death of the second of the two to die. It is primarily designed to provide funds to pay estate taxes, which are normally due when the second of a husband and wife dies and the estate is sizable.

How much insurance a person needs depends on the individual situation. Insurance is helpful in paying any expenses of death and taxes, but it is more often used to provide a fund to assist dependents. In determining how much insurance you need, it is a good idea to determine your current liabilities (such as mortgages and other debts), add to this number any future liabilities, such as pos-representatives of L'Arome, said one of the reasons direct selling is succeeding while other forms of retailing are struggling is that people appreciate the extra attention they get.

L'Arome International is a manufacturer and marketer of personal care/health and nutrition products sold internationally through direct selling.

Betty Dunbar said she believes direct selling has nowhere to go but up. "The consumer is interested in this," she said. "More and more companies are going to this approach.

"In the 1990s and 2000s, the store will be coming to you. People just don't have the time to go out to the store.

Dunbar said it's clear people are dissatisfied with the traditional way of doing business, pointing to the growth of cable shopping channels.

"We're just tapping to a market that's already there.

Ron Dunbar added that all the additional attention doesn't come with the expected additional price. People want and need the additional service, and may even be willing to pay an additional price, but a big attraction in direct selling is the customer gets product and additional service at no additional price.

"You go into a store today and you're overloaded. The amount and variety of products is astonishing, and there aren't enough employees to help with questions."

> Tracey Lee Safety for Toddlers

This is possible, he said, because direct selling cuts out the middle man. "At each phase of regular retail, there's a markup," he said. Direct sellers get their products directly from the manufacturer, eliminating the costs added on by the wholesaler.

What was once a job mainly for women with children looking for a second income is evolving into a full-time business for professional women, men and couples.

product updates and networking opportunities.

Combatting overload

The parent company also establishes territories so individual agents don't step on each other's toes, she said. "There is a need for this type of business (direct selling)," she said.

"You go into a store today and you're overloaded. The amount and variety of products is astonishing, and there aren't enough employees to help with questions.

In direct selling, answering questions is a key part of the package. It's particularly important for products and services that aren't necessarily self-explanatory or when many manufacturers provide similar products. People with young children are often surprised at the range of child safety products available. she said. The direct seller can help the consumer wade through the products, decide which ones are really needed and how they

Direct selling is more than just a second income

Direct selling may have started as a way for housewives to get out of their homes and make a little extra money, but the industry is rapidly changing.

John Kiple, president of Lady Remington and a member of the national Direct Selling Associations beard of directors, said the direct selling industry has continued to expand while traditional retail growth has remained flat.

In 1991, direct sales were up 9.6 percent to $12.9 billion in the U.S. while retail was "flat," he said. "That's just here, overseas, the numbers are staggering." "We (at Lady Remington) had our fourth best year ever," Kiple said. Lady Remington specializes in in-home jewelry and accessory fashion shows geared to the active woman with little time to shop. But direct selling isn't just jewelry and housewares anymore. Whether the direct selling strategy is to focus on sales presentation parties or one one-on-one sales, direct selling is rapidly changing from an industry that once catered mainly to women to one that is broadening its scope.

Part of the reason, he speculated, is that people just don't have the time to go out and shop anymore. It's no secret that there are more two-income families than ever before and it just isn't easy for people to find the time to go shopping. Society, he said, is changing. Not only are there people who don't have time to shop, but there are people who don't like to shop.

To reach those people who spend more times in their homes, manufacturers need to change their approach. Direct selling and

The direct sales representative is also changing. Once dominated by women trying to bring a little extra income into the home, today's direct sales representatives cable shopping networks seem to to the career, he said, and some generate incomes in six figures.

"I think there are a couple of reasons for this," he said. "(With the economy) people are unsure of their future right now.'

As a self-employed direct sales representative, people feel more in control of their lives, he said. "They are directly affected by working harder."

mine used to complain that he had to buy two subscriptions to Time magazine, * since he got so mad reading the first one he usually tore it up, and he needed a second copy to finish an article. The first copy ended up next to his TV chair, where he could throw it at the tube during the evening news. Today, given a chance, I figure he would probably be throwing Ross Perot at the set.

For all his failings as a viable presidential candidate, Perot has been doing as good a job as anyone in public life calling attention to certain national problems facing the U.S. manufacturing industry - which by extension means the national issues facing the auto industry.

National problems differ from the usual array of business problems, such as Japanese cars that don't break; or Ford selling more trucks than Chevy.

In fact, while watching the presidential debates, I started wondering what impact federal policy really has on the auto business — exactly what could the government do for the likes of General Motors?

It's a tricky question, since the main reason cars aren't selling is because people borrowed too much, for too long, to buy the ones they already have.

Iraqi soldiers swiped most of the cars in Kuwait, and auto exports to that country are booming today (Bush likes to take credit for this). But mainly you have to wait for them to break down, just like you always did.

Still, the government is soaking up too much of the available capital that ought to be available for private business.

This is the direct result of the huge national deficit, not some vague worry that somebody's children will have to pay someday.

The federal debt makes money expensive in the U.S., particularly in comparison with the Japanese, who built their auto business on virtually interest-free loans.

One legacy of the current administration is that a significant portion of the national debt - a trillion dollars or so — is bailing out failed banks and savings and

Does anybody remember when Chrysler was only asking for a paltry couple of billion or so?

National debt aside, old safety and environmental issues still have a direct impact on the health of the auto business.

Ironically, the safety features that a few years ago were too costly and certain to ruin the industry are of such a huge interest today that they are actually a source of profits.

The new wave of environmental concern, however, is another story. Consider the ramifications of a national policy that attempts to control carbon dioxide - a perfectly natural component of the earth's atmosphere — in an effort to control global warming.

Most of the work done to alleviate car-produced smog in the past two decades has been an effort to convert noxious gases to harmless carbon dioxide.

Cutting or taxing carbon dioxide would mean cutting back all industrial production, not just car

That very issue, embraced by the democratic challenger, would be extremely damaging to the auto business.

There are other auto issues up for national debate: health care and negotiated trade deals both extraordinarily complex and nearly insolvable.

Admittedly, sifting through the issues in this presidential election through the eyes of the auto industry is a myopic approach, but it's at least a short list of issues I'd like to see debated.

On the other hand, maybe we're better off if they stick to the real stuff, like bimbos and what they did on their summer vacation, and leave the car business alone.

Credit Union facts

Michigan credit unions have 3.6 million members, which means more than one out of every three Michigan citizens is a credit union member. Nationally, over 62 million Americans belong to a credit union.

In the past decade, assets held by Michigan credit unions have grown from $4 billion to almost $12 billion. Across the nation, credit union assets have reached $241 billion and grew 11% last year alone.

Insurance:

All Michigan credit unions are insured by the federal government up to $100,000 per member account through the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund (NCUSIF) administered by the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA). The credit union insurance fund is the safest of all federal deposit insurance programs.

Loans:

Although each Michigan credit union establishes a loan policy tailored to the needs of its members, certain general trends are evident. Only one half of one percent of loans from Michigan credit unions can be classified as "commercial" in nature. Over 40% of the loans are small consumer loans, 36% are auto loans and 23% are mortgage loans. At the end of 1991, Michigan credit unions had outstanding loans exceeding $6.8 billion.

Savings in Michigan credit unions total over $10.7 billion. Nationally, over $219 billion are on deposit in credit unions.

Diversity:

Credit unions continue to reflect the diversity of American society. In Michigan, the largest credit union serves over 100,000 members while the smallest serves less than 100. At the end of 1991, Michigan had 582 credit unions.

Uniqueness:

Credit unions are not-forprofit, member-owned financial cooperatives organized solely to meet the financial needs of their members. Directors serve without compensation and more volunteers work at Michigan credit unions than do either full-time or parttime employees.

Common Bond:

Credit unions do not serve the general public. Members must fall within the membership field of each credit union, thereby establishing the "common bond" uniting its members. Currently, nearly 58 % of Michigan credit unions have primary membership fields based on occupation. Nearly 24% are based on association groups and the remaining 18% are based on residential or multiple

Security, Service and cost; Picking a financial institution

Most of us pay lots of attention to earning our money. We work long hours, study our business, research the competition, monitor our boss's reaction, cater to the client's whim and seek diligently for opportunities to make more money. Once we have the money, however, we are sometimes thoughtless of how we han-

Take choosing a financial institution, for example. How did you select where you deposit your money? Was the location convenient? Did your parents save there? Were they offering a free toaster the week you needed a checking account?

Banks, savings and loans (S & Ls), and credit unions are the three most common types of financial institutions for basic services such as saving, checking and personal loans. Banks and S&Ls are business that make profits from their customers for their stockholders. Credit unions are not-for-profit financial cooperatives, owned by their members. Every bank, S & L and credit union is at least a little different from every other and consumers need to choose their financial institutions carefully

There are three basic concerns when choosing a financial institution; security, services and cost. Given the turmoil of the financial world in recent years, security is not to be overlooked. In Michigan, banks, S&Ls and credit unions all carry the same federal deposit insurance coverage; $100,000 per account. Although the national credit union insurance program is better funded than that for banks and S&Ls due to recent problems in those industries, each fund is backed by the "full faith and credit of the federal government."

Services, however, can vary widely between institutions. Begin by making a list of what your needs are from a financial institution. If you're looking to finance an oil exploration project in Siberia costing two billion dollars, you're going to need a major commercial bank. If you want a savings account with a good interest rate, a checking account without too many service charges and low rates on car and home loans, the credit union down the block might be perfect.

Once you've determined your needs, it is time to check costs. There are often significant differences between institutions when it comes to charges, rates and fees. Take your personal list of what services you want from a financial institution and start calling those in your area. Ask for a complete explanation of fees and note such things as minimum balances, charges for writing checks or using the automated teller machine (ATM) and monthly service charges. Be realistic about your needs. How many checks do you write each month? How much will you actually keep on hand in a savings account? Do you use an ATM fre quently? Does your company of fer direct deposit of you paycheck?

Be aware that banks and S&Ls are commercial institu tions open to anyone wit enough money to afford their ser vices. Credit unions, on the other hand, are member-owned coop eratives and you must be a mem ber to use their services. Call you area credit unions to inquire as to whether you may qualify fo membership.

Don't forget to factor in con venience. If you work next doo to a bank, that may save you time. If the credit union on the other side of town has no fee to using an ATM machine, location may not be important.

What is important is that you needs are met effectively withou costing you more than it should You work hard for your money Make certain that it works hard for you by choosing the righ place to put it.

Consumers rate credit unions #1

Consumers have once again picked credit unions as the financial institution with which they are most satisfied according to a pollreleased by American Banker Magazine. The survey also demonstrated that the memberowned financial cooperatives

"This is no surprise to us," said Michigan Credit Union League President Kenyan Bixby, "Credit unions have been rated above all other financial institutions each year since American Banker started taking this survey in 1984.

The survey showed 78% of credit union members were "very satisfied" with their credit union, up from 70% in the 1990 survey. By comparison, 65% of bank customers and 62% of savings & loan customers were "very satisfied." Only 9% of credit union members reported being "very concerned" about the safety of their deposits compared with 12% of bank customers and 19% of savings & loan customers. # Credit Union Membership Keeps Increasing

by a government agency

Nearly all accounts insured up to $100,000

Thirty-six percent of consumers age 18 or older now use credit union services, more than ever before, according to a recent national survey conducted by the Credit Union National Association.

Membership is highest in the 25 to 64 age group, lowest in the 64 plus age group, according to William Austin, Chairman of the Board of the Michigan Credit Union League, the trade association for almost 500 credit unions in the state.

Men are somewhat more likely than women to be credit union members-38 percent of men compared to 34 percent of women. That gap continues to narrow as more women enter the labor force and as more credit unions encourage spouses and family members to join, Austin says.

Thirty-nine percent of black adults and 40 percent of Hispanic adults use credit unions, compared with 34 percent of white adults, Austin reports. Austin notes that there are millions more people eligible for credit union membership.

Consumers who would like to find a credit union to join can start by checking with their employer, church or associations to which they belong to determine if those groups are served by credit unions. It's also a good idea to check with family and relatives who are credit union members to determine if you might be eligible for membership in their credit unions. # Lower credit card rate offered

By offering significantly lower rates, considerably lower fees and member-driven services, credit unions remain the lowpriced credit card leaders, despite recent announcements of lower rates by several large banks and other credit card providers, says William Austin, Chairman of the Board of the Michigan Credit Union League, the trade association for almost 500 Michigan credit unions.

The average interest rate on credit union credit cards was 14.97 percent compared to an average rate of 18.68 percent for bank issued cards, in February, the latest month for which comparable data were available, Austin notes. And nearly two out of three credit unions don't charge annual fees. Of those that do, the fee averages less than $12, compared to a typical bank fee of $20-$25

by a few large banks recently are usually reserved for preferred customers, those who have exhibited consistent spending and bill-paying practices.

On the other hand, most credit unions offer low interest rates to any member who qualifies for a card. "You don't have to be a long-time customer or a big credit user to get good rates at a credit union," Austin says.

Consumer awareness of credit card programs was heightened by recent Congressional and media attention, and many consumers are switching to get better rates and lower fees.

According to one study, 17% of all cardholders have a credit union-issued card, up three percentage points from 1989. Credit unions have grown steadily despite harsh economic conditions and increasingly stiff competition.

About 4,000 of the nation's credit unions, or about 28%, offered card programs at the end of 1991. "Most of the larger credit unions offer credit cards," says Kenyan E. Bixby, President of the Michigan Credit Union League, noting that 90% of credit unions with assets of $100 million or more have card programs.

Consumers who shop wisely can benefit from the movement to lower credit card interest rates, Bixby says. But be careful, he advises. Look not only at teh interest rate offered. To offset lost income from low rates, some issuers may increase annual or other fees or establish minimum charge levels.

Pre-approved loan eases car buying

Going shopping for a car or truck? Consider getting a pre-approved loan before you start visiting dealers, suggests Susan Tiffany, editor of Everybody's Money, the consumer magazine for credit union members published by the Credit Union National Association and Affiliates.

"Some dealers pressure you to buy more car than you can afford, or they may give you a hard sell to finance the car with them," says Kenyan E. Bixby, President of the Michigan Credit Union League, the primary trade association for Michigan credit unions. 'Shopping with a pre-approved loan helps to insulate you from those pressures."

Getting a pre-approved loan also assures that you won't go to the trouble of finding a car to buy and then be rejected for credit, he adds.

A majority of credit unionsand most larger ones-offer preapproved car loans to their members, and often charge less interest than other lenders, Bixby points out. Credit unions also frequently offer free consumer and price information on vehicles to help you select the right auto at a price you can afford.

To obtain a free brochure on how to buy a vehicle on your terms, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to "Car", Michigan Credit Union League, P.O. Box 5210, Detroit, Michigan 48235

Honored artist eyes a career illustrating e's an original thinker and hopes to turn that trait into a career. Livonia artis Michael Sawecki, a May graduate of the Center for Creative Studies College of Art and Design in Detroit, hopes his bachelor of fine arts degree in illustration leads to a career as a freelance editorial illustrator for magazines, newspapers, books and other publications.

"I find the aspect of coming up with ideas that are original especially interesting and challeng-' says Sawecki, 22, a 1988 Livonia Stevenson High School graduate. "To succeed as an illustrator, you have to have good ideas as well as be able to draw.'

Sawecki, 1991 winner of Hagopian World of Rugs' student rug design contest and CCS's Portfolio Day poster design contest, hopes to eventually move to the Southwest.

Inspired by British illustrator Ralph Steadman and American illustrator James Yang, Sawecki so far has found nibbles for his work from the Detroit Free Press Magazine and Detroit Monthly.

"For Detroit Monthly's restaurant section," he said, "I came up with knives to look like sharks and pieces of pie on fishhooks, which the sharks are swimming after.'

Resonant artwork

Two Sawecki pieces are part of "Resonance," the second annual retrospective of CCS alumni work. The juried show runs Oct. 16 to Nov. 20 at Urban Park-Detroit Arts Center in Trappers Alley, Greektown. The public reception is 7-10 p.m. Friday, Oct. 16.

The jurors, all faculty or alumni, chose 85 pieces representing 49 artists from the 548 slides submitted for consideration.

Both Sawecki pieces, "Scanning the Future" and "American Gothic 2000," are the result of class assignments although his personal themes tend to deal with similar themes of authority and technology.

Compelling collage

"Scanning the Future" is a compelling enamel and gouache collage that illustrates a magazine story chosen by an instructor. The story tells of what could happen if corporations find out where you live and what products you buy

"The idea is that corporations know more about you than you want them knowing about you," Sawecki said.

The story tells of self-serving manufacturers buying lists of products charged by supermarket customers. Products are identified by UPC bar

"Scanning the Future" shows a monstrous dictator (representing the manufacturers) flanked by a legion of meek business supporters (perhaps the exedit card issuers or the supermarkets) and watchful eyes." Subservient consumers with UPC bar codes for heads march in step before the dictator, armed with a cash-register scanner wand.

"I figured if I had something in the show, this one might be it," Sawecki said. "It just seems one of the more successful pieces I've done because of the energy. It's something everyone understands and can relate to - corporations or government watching over them.

"It's absolutely wild," said Peggy Krueger, CCS alumni relations director. "It's very amusing and offers a fascinating look at society.'

Sawecki's other piece, "American Gothic 2000," is a stunning photo collage that's a takeoff from Grant Wood's 1930 American classic of an Iowan

"I changed the figures and put the context in the year 2000 - for example, the farmer and his wife have Rubik's cubes for heads - but kept the basic design," Sawecki said.

The farmer is holding a paintbrush instead of a pitchfork. His wife is holding up the world. Floating anchors are carrying away books on ethics and morality that people once looked to for spiritual guidance.

The farmhouse, about to go over a waterfall, is made of dice and cards - a scenario representing the element of chance. "In the future, things will be so predictable from a technological, biological and behavioral standpoint," Sawecki said. "But the home will still be a place where the unexpected can happen.'

Sawecki was surprised "American Gothic 2000" passed muster. "It's a collage with many elements to look at. And it looks stuck together although it looks much nicer in the slide I sent in because the elements are all in one plane.'

'It's very colorful with rich detail," Krueger said. "There's enough activity to attract attention and draw you closer to see the detail.

The show marks Sawecki's first public exposure as an artist. "I think I'll find opening night most interesting, hearing what other people have to say not only about my art but their artwork as well. I think I'll learn a lot."

Bob Sklar is assistant managing editor for special projects.

Solitude: 'Quiet Harbor," a Rick Burger transparent watercolor of a historic house on the Clinton River, captures the essence of sailboats at rest.

Paintings freeze water's solitude

Underneath the works on paper by Rick Burger lies the soul of a sailor unable to escape the allure of the lakes. Just as the ocean influenced Willem de Kooning's abstract art, the lake waters have left their mark on Burger's watercolor realism.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

rtist Rick Burger of Rochester captures in watercolor the solitariness of water - from the quiet beauty of fishing boats resting at the dock to the power of a sailboat's fullblown red, white and blue spinnaker.

A 40-piece exhibition of his work presented by the Livonia Arts Commission, continues through Nov. 7 in the Art Gallery on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Burger will demonstrate watercolor techniques and answer questions about his work 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 27, and Thursday, Oct. 29, in the Art Gallery.

"Rick's watercolor is high-quality, fine technical work," said Jack Olds, arts commission chairman. "His scenes of landscapes capture the essence of a moment."

Watercolors, serigraphs and limited-edition prints comprise this oneman show focusing primarily on the waterways of Michigan.

"I'm into the nautical. There's a little bit of water in all of them," said Burger in an interview at the gallery. "I have a 30-foot sailboat. I love to sail, to be on the water."

An admirer of Andrew Wyeth, Edward Hopper and Winslow Homer, Burger's roots stem from automotive design. After graduating from Ferris State University with a bachelor of fine arts degree in illustration and further studies in industrial design at Wayne State University, he worked for 10 years on the General Motors design staff.

"When you're younger, you don't think, 'I'm going to be a painter.' You go to school with the intention of making a living as an illustrator," Burger said.

The fine art of painting kept beckoning Burger, however. In 1978, he gave up the security and benefits of working for General Motors to paint full time

"I wanted to be on my own, painting. I knew I could make a living at it," Burger said.

Earthen and blue water tones dominate his palette. Even the titles of the artworks, "Quiet Harbor," "Resting" and "Dawn," speak tranquility and peacefulness.

"I paint to make it look good. I paint what I like to paint - water and boats," Burger said. "I like old houses, boats, street scenes.

'Quiet Harbor" focuses on a historic clapboard house on the Clinton River, across from where his boat is kept.

In the past, Burger has worked in egg tempera and acrylic, yet watercolor keeps calling him back.

'I like watercolor. It's spontaneous, the water moves. You get a misty, soft feeling from it," Burger said. "Each one is different, each time I paint, depending on the techniques I use. I can't control how each will turn out.' Sailboats, fishing boats and row boats nestle like sleeping birds at the docks, providing the viewer time and space for restful contemplation.

"I travel a lot. Last fall, I went to Maine and Massachusetts. I quick sketch on the spot to map out the area's landscape, then take the photographs to get the color," Burger said. "The colors are a little more bright than what you see in life.'

Burger begins a painting by laying down a rough sketch. "The sketch is just to go by. A lot of the drawing is with the paint. I develop it with the brush," Burger said.

He works six hours a day, six days a week at his West Bloomfield studio in Crosswinds Mall, where he also teaches private classes in the medium.

For the last 23 years, Burger has exhibited at art shows from Maine to California, including Art 'n' Apples Festival in Rochester, Birmingham's Art in the Park and the Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair.

His work is in private collections as well as those of Chrysler Corp., General Motors, Dean Witter, Michigan National Bank and Detroit Bank and Trust.

Burger estimates that he completes 100 paintings a year and that close to 10,000 of his works hang in private and public collections.

Boo! Cozy up to Halloween with these spooky tales

If things have been going bump in the night around your place lately, don't worry about it. Chances are, it's simply some of the resident ghoulies and goblins, getting geared up for their big night, coming up Halloween is one of my favorite holidays. I like the idea of everybody dressing up in costumes and becoming somebody else for the evening. And I enjoy carving up pumpkins, and easing out treats to mysterious little beggars. But part of the reason I like Halloween is because it gives me a good excuse to go back and re-read (again) at least one of my alltime-favorite tales of terror.

Below are just a few of the ones I keep returning to (You'll-find them all in numerous collections and anthologies):

Robert Bloch, author of "Psycho," has written horror stories for more than 50 years. His 1943 tale, "Yours Truly, Jack the Ripper," is among his best.

Pay close attention from the very beginning to this short story about London's infamous 19th-Century serial killer, who was never caught. As this story goes, Red Jack just may have discovered the secret of eternal life and may be about to strike again.

This time, he's allegedly prowling the streets of Chicago - the November night wind whispers in the shadows and a raggy fog weaves its way through the darkened neighborhood.

through the cemetery where her long-dead fianc elies buried and his body must be unearthed by the community, then moved to another resting place.

First, though, Grandma decides to have a look inside the disinterred casket. What she discovers about her long-ago lover and eventually about herself makes for one of Bradbury's besttold tales. If you're looking for a light-hearted horror story, this is

■ I've said it before, but I'll say it again - Stephen King should write more short stories. One of his best efforts is a riveting little piece of work he sold to "Cavalier" magazine in 1975, titled "Strawberry Spring." In it, a serial killer stalks a small college campus after dark. Perhaps one of the night shadows is "the man or the thing that came to be known as Springheel Jack." Or perhaps that's him now, his "footfalls clicking dreamily off down the winding paths . . . "You may experience just a touch of insomnia after reading this one.

Any list of recommended reading for Halloween would be incomplete, of course, without one of Poe's masterful tales.

One of my personal favorites happens to be "The Masque of the Red Death," a story I was first exposed to when I heard a reading of it years ago, performed by actor Basil Rathbone.

It's about the prosperous Prince Prospero and his favored friends, who sequester themselves in a magnificent castle in an attempt to escape a plague ravaging the less-favored, outside world. They fail, of course, but just how they meet with the Grim Reaper in Poe's many-colored "bloodbedewed halls" makes for abso-veins." A highway is being built lutely unforgettable reading - especially after dark.

"The Doll," by Joyce Carol

Oates, was written in 1980 and first published in the literary magazine, "Epoch."

In Oates' inimitable gothic style, it tells of a college president who visits a strange town and, on a quiet neighborhood street, the dollhouse she played with as a child. Should she stop? Should she ring the doorbell? Should she go inside? Who lives in this place, anyway? Spoooooooky.

Don't forget Washington Irving's classic, "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." The adventures of the lovably comic hero, Ichabod comes across a life-sized replica of Crane, as he grapples with the the dollhouse she played with as a Headless Horseman on a lonely, dark road can provide luscious thrills and chills for almost any age. Shared with others in a party mood on All Hallows Eve, the 172-year-old story is hard to beat. LAST WORDS: An Oct. 23 benefit performance for the Franklin Ringers and Singers will feature short plays bz area play-wrights Pearl Ahnen, Lois Breitmeyer, and Louise Heck-Rabi. The Franklin Bells will provide the music. Curtain is at 8 p.m., in Franklin Community Church, 32473 Normandy Road. Admission is $6. Call 626-6606.

Italian dollmaker to autograph her creations

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

World-renowned dollmaker Brigitte Deval will appear noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 17, at Muriel's Doll House, 824 Penniman, Plymouth.

Deval autographs dolls and lectures as well as crafts them.

Born in Bavaria, Deval made her first doll at age 6. Inspired by her photographer father at an early age, she quickly grasped the basics of sculpting and painting.

'Art Deco Toys' exhibited

"Art Deco Toys," an exhibition of 38 toys from the collection of Lawrence Scripps Wilkinson and the Detroit Antique Toy Museum, runs through Oct. 31 in the Exhibit Gallery on the second floor of the Library Building at Madonna University, Schoolcraft and Levan, Livonia.

A little red wagon, tricycle and scooter, cars, ocean-going ships, board games and a doll house are among the antique playthings displayed from the 1920s and '30s. Art Deco spotlighted surface decorations and machine age materials - chrome, aluminum, anything that glittered or celebrated the automobile.

Lawrence Scripps Wilkinson assembled the 7,000-toy collection over more than 30 years. He incorporated his collection into a non-profit operating foundation, the Detroit Antique Toy Museum, now in its own gallery at the expression with no real life. Her philosophy is that expressions of joy or sadness should only be implied and that the face should be on the verge of expressing emotion.

The doll's blownglass eyes are made for Deval by an Italian specialist. The cotton or silk socks are handknitted by a woman living in a nearby village.

Birmingham board honors Realtors

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER H. Paul Koepke Jr., vice president and manager of the Weir, Manuel, Snyder & Ranke West Bloomfield office, has been selected Realtor of the Year for the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Joy Morris, an agent in the Bloomfield Hills office of Hall & Hunter, was chosen Realtor-Associate of the Year.

Koepke, 57, has worked at Weir, Manuel since 1976. A life member of the Realtors Political Action Committee, Koepke has served as the board's president, treasurer and a director.

The West Bloomfield resident also been active with the board's strategic planning, budget and finance, professional standards, bylaws, political government affairs, and arbitration committees.

"It's an interesting, fascinating business," Koepke said. "You're dealing with a product that makes people happy. It's a great business to be in. I think it will be even better when we come out of this recession thing."

Koepke is a past president of the Broughton Farms Homeown- ship and grievance committees

ers Association and West Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce.

He's married to Sandy and father to Scott and Sheryl.

"I like working with people and helping them become successful, Koepke said of his management responsibilities.

Morris, 48, has been involved in professional activities ever since entering the business in 1986.

The Bloomfield Hills resident currently chairs the board's membership services and equal opportunity housing committees. She's served on programming, memberand has attended several national and state Realtor conventions.

Morris also is involved with the Birmingham-Bloomfield League of Women Voters, United Methodist Women, Focus: Hope and the Lighthouse of Pontiac, a social services agengy.

"I like finding the right house for the right people," she said. "I like working with first-time homebuyers. They're so appreciative. They're into the process from start to finish.

"I do think this is the greatest job there is, the flexibility. You're constantly meeting people."

One of the major benefits of a condominium over a cooperative is the availability of traditional financing. Oftentimes the value of the units increases because they have been converted from a co-op to a condominium. I do note from your question that there are certain provisions that you are maintaining at your co-op that may not be enforceable or may otherwise be in violation of federal and state laws. I would suggest that you retain a knowledgeable lawyer to review your cooperative documents so as to give you an option as to the propriety of the conversion and requirements thereof and the need, perhaps, to change the present rules and regulations of your cooperative to conform with existing laws

I am interested in buying a time share hotel condominium in downtown Park City, Utah. I am advised that the bank has taken over the property. Are there aspects of this transaction that I should be concerned about? The fact that the bank has taken over the property indicates that at one time market conditions were not good for the sale of condominium units. You should determine in fact what the resale of the time share units is as being offered by sellers in the time share condominium at this

You should also obtain a copy of the condominium documents to determine whether the bank is assuming full responsibility for the acts of the original developer, including warranty obligations. You may wish to consult with a local attorney in Park City to confirm that fact. You should also be aware of the other issues that normally are attributable to the purchase of a time share, which include the type and quality of management being offered in the time share condominium, the marketability of the time share unit depending on the week you purchased, your ability to exchange your week at another time share condominium and the physical condition of the condominium project as a whole.

Our bylaws provide that the term of each director shall be for a term of one year and that the director shall hold office until their successors have first meeting. Our bylaws also provide that the officers of the association shall be elected annually by the board of directors and shall hold office at the pleasure of the board. Can an existing board elect officers for a longer period than one year without amending the bylaws?

Since it would appear that the officers of the association serve at the will of the board, it is not inconceivable that absent a provision specifically limiting the duration of the term of office of the officers, that the board can appoint the officers for more than one year.

Ford: a better idea for financing?

Refundable deposits ranging from $63,000 to $135,000 per tenant will allow the building of Henry Ford Village retirement community without the aid of outside financing.

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Low-risk financing?

Yes, says a Baltimore developer, who has formed a partnership with Ford Motor Land Development Co. to build a retirement apartment village in Dearborn using tenants' money to pay for the project.

Absolutely no outside financing will be required, said John C. Erickson, whose firm, Retirement & Health Services, will oversee construction and establish the non-profit corporation to manage village operations.

Ford Motor Land brings the 35acre parcel at Ford and Greenfield and $25 million seed money to the marriage, Erickson said.

Tenants will provide refundable deposits ranging from $63,000 to $135,000 as they move in to finance subsequent construction phases.

Projected monthly rent, in addition to the deposits, ranges from $730 to $1,160 and includes one meal daily. Add $360 for meals for a second occupant.

Groundbreaking was last month with initial occupancy forecast for next summer.

The master plan calls for some 860 independent living apartments, 130 assisted living apartments and 120 skilled nursing beds at a cost of $70 million over five years.

Apartment builders typically get a

Labor, management find common ties

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

Cooperation rather than an adversarial relationship between contractors and trade unionists offers the best way for the construction industry to thrive in the years ahead.

That's the message conveyed by Mike Haller, senior vice president of Walbridge Aldinger, a Detroit contractor, and Tim Nichols, secretary-treasurer of the Michigan State Building Construction Trades Council.

"One thing we have to start doing is linkage between crafts doing the work and management," Haller said. "The best solutions will not come in laboratories, but from people working in the dirt, fumes and in demolished areas."

Haller is president of the Construction Employers Council, a consortium of contractors.

"As we look to the future, let's communicate together," Nichols said. "A lot of you know well in advance the technological changes taking place. If we know, we can train for it. We want to be part of the future with you."

Both spoke during a recent luncheon hosted by the construction activities committee of the Engineering Society of Detroit.

Good things result from interacting beyond the formal bargaining process, Haller stressed. He recalled contract talks from earlier this year.

"First, we met with customers to get their input. Then we met with management from the various trade associations. Then we brainstormed with labor. All this happened before the first negotiating session. The message was clear — we can't increase the cost of doing business."

Agreements were reached without strikes, and wage/benefit increases were slightly below the national average, Haller said.

"I believe it was because of better preparation between labor and management, better understanding," he said.

Nichols stressed training, work quality and safety records union crafts bring to job sites.

"The building trades, if you travel the state, have the best training centers in the country," he said. "Apprentices aren't the only ones who learn there. Journey workers head there on their own time to upgrade skills."

If contractors don't hire union workers and therefore don't contribute toward maintaining apprenticeship programs, future workers won't be as well trained and the industry will suffer, Nichols said.

"Maintenance of existing buildings, I believe, is the place we'll have to focus on jobs in the future," Nichols said. Residential and commercial sites as well as road, water and sewer projects also should present opportunities.

"Building trades are as interested in one job as a thousand," he said.

Heller's long term vision for Haller's long-term vision for the industry includes cross-training and a reduction in craft jurisdictions to about a half dozen plus consolidation of various health care plans.

He also predicted continued reasonableness in collective bargaining, likening a contractor's role in the process to coaching a sports team.

"Management has to start sharing the vision," Haller said. "We're not real good at it in our industry." Several people involved in the construction industry who heard the message agreed with it.

"Pickets get all the publicity, but there is a tremendous positive movement on the cooperative side labor is trying to do," said Chuck Ayers, a construction consultant in Northville.

"Training comes from the organized (craft) section," he added. "Quality and partnering in other industries is catching on in construction."

Cooperation could reduce construction costs, said Don Brockman, a senior vice president with the architectural/engineering firm of Ellis/Naeyaert/Genheimer Associates in Troy.

"If construction can be performed at lower costs, it generates new construction business," he said. "Personally, I had not been aware... of the give and take between labor and management."

"The suggestion I liked was that the negotiating parties brain-stormed before negotiations," said David Lefevre, a project manager for Barton Malow in Southfield. "What they were saying and doing probably wasn't innovative, but they were doing it."

A wide spectrum of interests will be covered through a series of programs in five separate tracks design, marketing, practice, technology and specifying (writ-

TLC can restore wood's finish

Ordinary use, abuse and the ravages of time can damage a furniture finish, but most of this damage is easily repaired. All that's required is some time and a minimum of materials and expense.

In most cases, it's better to preserve and repair a finish than it is to replace it (strip it off and refinish it).

The first step is to identify the finish used on the furniture being repaired. Ideally, you'll overcoat the repaired area with the same finish. Shellac, lacquer and varnish are common finishes. To identify them, apply a solvent to an inconspicuous area.

Start, by applying denatured alcohol. Alcohol will readily dis-solve shellac, and it will slowly soften lacquer. Lacquer thinner will readily dissolve lacquer, and will soften shellac. It will cause varnish to swell, crinkle and lift.

Next, clean the surface using a soft cloth dampened with mineral spirits (also known as paint thinner) or commercial furniture cleaner. This removes built-up dirt and wax and gives you a clearer idea of what the finish actually looks like. After cleaning, you may discover the damage is really just a light scuff. If so, you may be able to hide the scuff by applying paste wax or polish.

You can also hide a minor scratch by rubbing over it with a furniture wax pencil or by applying some liquid touchup solution. Both are available in a variety of wood colors. Touchup solution stains and overcoats in

Crazing and alligatoring describe a pattern of fine, irregular cracks in the finish usually caused by excessive heat or long exposure to sunlight. Alligatored shellac or lacquer usually responds nicely to amalgamation (applying a solvent to partially dissolve the finish). Stroke on the solvent with a fine artist's brush until the finish softens and fills the cracks. Let the finish reharden overnight, then buff with wax.

land in Farmington Hills.

Young people are more mobile. They focus on other things," he said. "Younger couples and singles don't have the resources to fund a cash purchase (deposit)."

Erickson said the deposits were set to allow the partners an 8-10 percent profit margin annually.

The deposits will be returned without interest - when tenants leave. Replacement tenants also will pay deposits to be determined by a non-profit board of directors.

Interest accrued on deposits after completion of all construction will be applied to maintenance and improvements at the complex over time, Erickson said.

"It works because people who own their houses don't mind transferring equity for services," Erickson said. "It solves the problem of ultimately selling the house. We started marketing in July and already have 200 commitments.

The monthly rent would come from Social Security, pensions and other savings, he said.

Rosenhaus envies the partner-ship's marketing niche. "I think it's a great concept. He has no debt service.'

"I think it's applicable, in my

Dean added. General apartment construction remains lackluster here. Pockets of high vacancy rates low mortgage rates prompt renters to own - and a reluctance of institutions to finance due to market softness, federal requirements and nonperforming loans have put a lid on development.

Jonathan Holtzman, co-chair-man of Holtzman & Silverman, blames the slowdown in part on institutions investing in govern-ment securities rather than lending for business activity.

"I think banks are missing out on what their role is," he said. This is a very sad thing.

Money is available now, but at a steep price, said Melvin Kaftan, president of Kaftan Enterprises in Southfield and president of the Apartment Association of Michi-

"The problem is financing is around. We were looking at a project on Drake, but the amount of cash we had to come up with didn't make sense. They wanted 30 percent," he said.

"Right now, they're not in a mood to put out money," Kaftan said. "Insurance companies and lenders are still licking wounds from office development.

Raise of mortgage limits OK'd

(AP) - Congress last week sent President Bush legislation raising the ceiling on FHA-insured mortgages from $124,875 to $151,725 in about 20 of the nation's highest-cost real estate markets.

The bill reauthorizes and streamlines several housing programs in addition to allowing tens of thousands of more potential home buyers to qualify for the Federal House Administration mortgage guarantees.

The bill also would increase the federal government's role in eliminating lead-based paint from homes and start a youth jobtraining program in construction.

While the bill authorizes $855 million for Kemp's HOPE -Home Ownership and Opportunity People for Everywhere - program, actual spending on it next year was capped at $351 million in an earlier-passed bill.

New Yardstick For Passenger Vans.

Don't buy a minivan until you see the new Volkswagen EuroVan. EuroVan is a mid-sized passenger van that seats seven adults and has 23% more space behind the front seats than Toyota Previa. With EuroVan you get more headroom, more legroom, wider seats and a bigger cargo: area, too. All this room in a compact, front-wheel drive van that's fun to drive, easy to park and distinctly European. There's nothing quite like EuroVan. Try one on for size

SUBURBAN LIFE

FAMILY LIFE

Night time is right time for care provider

Child care professionals, listen up! Have the early morning hours of providing child care taken a toll on your good nature? Does it appear that you're up with the birds, or any one else for that matter? Is your center located in an area where there's hospitals and factories nearby? Parents, do you work the evening and/or midnight shift?

If you're a child care director or owner and answered yes, yes, yes, perhaps you might consider extending your child care operation hours, accommodating families who need evening to late night arrangements.

If you are contemplating start-up of a child care facility, consider these facts. There are 713 licensed child care centers and 1,032 registered family/group child care homes in Wayne County, according to Michigan Department of Social Services. But less than 35 centers operate 24 hours or provide late evening or night child care.

Lupus: Life's 'great pretender'

■ Andrea Gray has found she can deal with her illnesses by helping others, one reason why she gladly spends time talking to people diagnosed with the country's least-known major disease, lupus. Part of her "therapy" is working with the Northwest Suburban Lupus Chapter.

Andrea Gray is like many healthconscious Americans. She shuns sunlight and avoids stress. She's 46 years old, slim and healthy looking. But appearances can be deceiving. Gray spends $400 a month on prescription drugs and takes 13 pills a day, just to stay on an even keel. Under the healthy-looking veneer is a

So fashionable: Rick Rizzs (left) and Bob Rathbun may be known as the Voice of the Detroit Tigers, but come Nov. 10, they'll be known as two fashionable runway models.

Tigers' talkers headline Angela Hospice benefit

The season's over for Rick Rizzs and Bob Rathbun, but the fun is just beginning for the newest voices of the Detroit Tigers.

They'll be taking to the runway - the modeling one, that is - in November and the lucky ones will be participants in the Light Up a Life benefit for Angela Hospice.

Sponsored by the Italian American Club of Livonia, the benefit will be 6:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 10, at Jacobson's Laurel Park store in Livonia. The evening will include specialty foods and drinks, fashion shows, entertainment and a raffle.

And the stars of the fashion shows - as well as honorary chairpersons — will be Rizzs and Rathbun as well as Kristi Krueger and Paul Gross of WDIV-TV. This is the second year Krueger has turned been an honorary chair for the benefit. Gross, like Rizzs and Ratbun, is a newcomer.

"This is my very first fashion show; this is a new experience for me," said Rizzs. "Hopefully, I'll have matching pants and shirt.'

The twosome decided to accept the invitation to participate in the benefit as a way of "getting involved in the community." They took over the Tigers' radio assignment with the highly controversial departure of Ernie Harwell and the retirement of his sidekick, Paul Carey. "I decided to do this because this was a worthy cause and I'm sure Bob feels the same way," said Rizzs during a brief stop at Jacobson's late last month.

Rathbun nodded in agreement, jokingly adding that "I wasn't doing anything that night." Well, Bob, you'll find plenty to do that evening.

There will be holiday evening fashion shows, featuring Krueger, for the ladies, and a men's celebrity fashion show of sportswear suits to special occasion dress, featuring the Rizzs, Rathbun and Gross and local notables like Livonia Mayor Robert Ben-

The foundation is heavily into public awareness, doing programs to educate the public and get information out about the disease. It stages Lupus information nights the first Wednesday of the month February through June and September through October at the foundation office in St. Clair Shores.

It also sponsors Lupus screenings around the state at least four times a year as well as provide counseling workshops and series related to patient education and actively supports research at the state and national levels. It also will provide lists of area doctors who treat Lupus patients. That's a hefty load for an organization that derives a fair amount of its funding from memorials and operates with a heavy dose of volunteer help. It gains some money through its Buttrefly of Hope fund-raiser held during Lupus Awareness Month in October.

The butterfly is actually a 10-foot-wide kite, covered with the names of Lupus patients, that's flown during professional kite shows the first Sunday in October on Belle Isle in Detroit and the last Sunday of October at the GM Tech Center in Warren.

The chapters are set up to educate and provide support for Lupus patients. But Ladd balks at describing them as support groups. Such a title implies a beginning and end to a program led by a trained professional. The chapters are led by "lay people who have Lupus," he said.

People can join a chapter for a $14 annual membership fee which actually makes them a member of the state organization. They aren't limited to one chapter, but can move around, attending programs of interest offered by other chapters.

Writing shows he's experiencing conflicting emotions

LOREN

Hello Lorene,
I am a 20year-old male. I have a difficult time believing that you can actually describe that you can actually describe a person by their handwriting. Maybe if you reveal some of my own characteristics my opinion will change.

I do all my writing with my right hand. Thank you.

Plymouth

Today's handwriting suggests a young man who is experiencing conflicting emotions. A strong desire to interrelate with others is matched by an equally powerful desire (or unconscious need) to remain isolated. He wants to be involved and active with people, but often holds back due to ambivalence. Indecision probably arises also.

Another contradiction seems to be when faced with his fear of future challenges and inhibition. At the same time he wants and needs these challenges. Instead of dealing with them spontaneously and unafraid, he exercises caution which translates into fear. Many times he seeks to avoid direct confrontation because he is aware of his vulnerability, so he takes fewer risks and remains with what he knows best.

The above conflicts offer clues to fluctuating moods, marked by current feelings of unhappiness. At times he may withdraw into a shell of depression.

Today's writer is a young man with intellectual interests. His time is spent in efficient ways. His thinking is oriented toward logic and common sense. When learning new information he is able to visualize the entire picture in his mind before putting the information into use. He dislikes being rushed.

Creative ability is suggested in this handwriting sample. Manual dexterity seems to be a strong possibility.

This young man is independent and mature in many ways. He has learned to depend upon himself. He leans toward concealment or protection of his own interests. Security needs are strong.

At times he may think of himself as being different from others, possibly marching to a different drummer. Feelings of isolation and loneliness can overwhelm him occasionally. Other times he may think of himself in possession of special truths or insights.

sion of special truths or insights.

At the present juncture in his adolescent life he has not reached a plateau of confident satisfaction or ease in dealing with other people. Past experiences have conditioned him not to allow others to know him well. He seems somewhat fearful of closeness. With his peers he may vacillate from friendly at times to distant, causing them to wonder where they stand with him.

The wide spacing throughout his letter (line, word and right margin and small personal pronoun I) suggest the possibility of parental problems early in life. It may well be that the home environment was not attuned to his special needs. Someone with a dominant personality seems to have exercised strong control over him. He has always had difficulty expressing his feelings, possibly because he felt no one was listening to him. There is some fluency of expression in this handwriting. I suspect he may be better at expressing himself in writing than speaking.

All of this early conditioning did little to help him develop confidence in himself and probably resulted in the anti-feelings he sometimes experiences against authority and established ideas.

If one has experienced some lack of love and approval early in life, it is not easy to give it to others. Psychologists tell us the past has a very great effect on our present behavior.

However, it is not necessary to remain tied to the past, if one would like to change. The first step is admitting there is a problem. The next is to begin working to correct the things that are preventing one from being the person one wishes to become.

Cultivating a positive attitude about life and living is absolutely necessary. "What the mind can conceive, the body can achieve" is a helpful adage to keep in mind at all times.

I hope this has been helpful to our young man. I would like to hear if his opinion of graphology has changed. If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. common lupus; the northwest De-stress caused flare-ups, making it difficult to get the upper hand with the disease. Rest, she discovered is very important in controlling the disease. Gray has had lupus for more than seven years and understands the feelings people have when told they have the disease. That's one reason why she devotes a lot of her time to educating and helping others as president of the Northwest Suburban Chapter of the Michigan Lupus Foundation.

But she has another reason. "I like doing this kind of thing because it helps me work through my illness by giving back to others," she said. "When you're diagnosed with a chronic illness, it's scary; you want all the information you can find."

When told she had lupus, Gray headed for the library where she copied every bit of information she could find. When she saw a doctor, she asked questions. If he didn't answer them, she found an-

She describes herself as a fighter and has armed herself with the knowledge to overcome lupus and its complications - she has lupus migraine headaches and seizures (not grand mal seizures) and also painful interstitial cystitis, an inflammatory bladder

She uses the monthly chapter meetings to inform and educate members as well as provide support. New members won't find people sitting in a circle, talking about their problems. Rather, they will see speakers who address such issues as the effects of lupus on the family and updates on research.

Helping others

The chapter also maintains a lending library of books about the disease and a tape service, providing cassettes of topics covered at chapter meetings, (The meetings are monthly at the Farmington Public Library.) Members come from communities west of Woodward Avenue over to Wixom and as far south as Westland.

"We try to offer everything we can," Gray said. "We don't want them feeling they're hanging out on a limb. A chronic disease is always scary, and the less anxious you feel about your disease, the better you feel.'

Gray has learned that "you do what you have to" to live with lupus. Her husband, a carpenter. has worked two jobs at times to pay the medical bills. In addition to her three-digit prescription bill, Gray also incurs $175 charges every two weeks for treatment of her bladder disease.

Gray spends a lot of time on the telephone talking to lupus patients. She gets calls at all hours and is glad to have her telephone number "out there so we can get help to people who need it.

We here to offer support, to educate and to increase public awareness, but support is the most important thing. We have a lot of members who are suspect because they don't have enough criteria for a diagnosis. People need that name so they can get themselves psychologically and physically in line, so they feel they're dealing with this now.'

But as upbeat as she may appear, she admits she gets down and depressed. However, she doesn't stay that way for long.

"If people see me looking good, they see that they can be up with this disease. I always look at a cup as half full, not half empty. I like to look at the positives.

Writing shows he's experiencing conflicting emotions

Today's handwriting suggests a young man who is experiencing conflicting emotions. A strong desire to interrelate with others is matched by an equally powerful desire (or unconscious need) to remain isolated. He wants to be involved and active with people, but often holds back due to ambivalence. Indecision probably arises also.

Another contradiction seems to be when faced with his fear of future challenges and inhibition. At the same time he wants and needs these challenges. Instead of dealing with them spontaneously and unafraid, he exercises caution which translates into fear. Many times he seeks to avoid direct confrontation because he is aware of his vulnerability, so he takes fewer risks and remains with what he knows best.

The above conflicts offer clues to fluctuating moods, marked by current feelings of unhappiness. At times he may withdraw into a shell of depression.

Today's writer is a young man with intellectual interests. His time is spent in efficient ways. His thinking is oriented toward logic and common sense. When learning new information he is able to visualize the entire picture in his mind before putting the in-

Seminar has plenty of stitches

If you the kind of person who doesn't mind being kept in stitches, then now is the time to sign up for Schoolcraft College's fall sewing and needlework seminar.

The seminar will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 22-24, in Schoolcraft's Liberal Arts Building.

Back by popular demand will be sewing expert Margaret Islander, owner of the Islander School of Fashion Arts in Oregon, will give hands-on instruction in Pant Drafting and Industrial Shortcuts for the Home Sewer.

Fourteen experienced sewing professionals will conduct one-day workshops on no business like sew business, create your own knitting pattern, serging from A to Z, quilting, surface design and fabric painting, magical machine applique, pattern making and design, beautiful counted threadband sampler, geometric in a faux box (metal work), color and design, smocking, pattern sloper using pivot and slide, beaded embroidered appliques and Omeganeedlepoint.

The registration fee is $7. Each course offered carries an additional charge and an optional lunch is available for $7.50 each day.

To register or for further information, call the college's Continuing Education Services division at 462-4448. Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile Roads, Livoformation into use. He dislikes being rushed.

Creative ability is suggested in this handwriting sample. Manual dexterity seems to be a strong possibility.

This young man is independent and mature in many ways. He has learned to depend upon himself. He leans toward concealment or protection of his own interests. Security needs are strong.

At times he may think of himself as being different from others, possibly marching to a different drummer. Feelings of isolation and loneliness can overwhelm him occasionally. Other times he may think of himself in possession of special truths or insights.

At the present juncture in his adolescent life he has not reached a plateau of confident satisfaction or ease in dealing with other people. Past experiences have conditioned him not to allow others to know him well. He seems somewhat fearful of closeness. With his peers he may vacillate from friendly at times to distant, causing them to wonder where they

The wide spacing throughout his letter (line, word and right margin and small personal pronoun I) suggest the possibility of parental problems early in life. It may well be that the home environment was not attuned to his special needs. Someone with a dominant personality seems to have exercised strong control over him. He has always had difficulty expressing his feelings, possibly because he felt no one was listening to him. There is some fluency of expression in this handwriting. I suspect he may be better at expressing himself in writing than speaking.

All of this early conditioning did little to help him develop confidence in himself and probably resulted in the anti-feelings he sometimes experiences against authority and established ideas.

If one has experienced some lack of love and approval early in life, it is not easy to give it to others. Psychologists tell us the past has a very great effect on our present behavior.

However, it is not necessary to remain tied to the past, if one would like to change. The first step is admitting there is a problem. The next is to begin working to correct the things that are preventing one from being the person one wishes to become.

Cultivating a positive attitude about life and living is absolutely necessary. "What the mind can conceive, the body can achieve" is a helpful adage to keep in mind at all times.

I hope this has been helpful to our young man. I would like to hear if his opinion of graphology has changed. If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Use a full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful and objective feedback is always welcome. If you have two different styles of writing include both.

Walks 'harvest' funds for CROP

Mother Nature cooperated. Conditions were perfect for a Sunday afternoon stroll. But the walkers were doing more than soaking up warm fall weather. They were pounding the pavement, so to speak, for the hungry.

More than 300 volunteers are walkers turned out in Livonia Oct. 4 for the ninth annual Livonia CROP walk and more than 200 turned out at Kellogg Park in Plymouth for the Plymouth-Canton CROP walk.

Charities in the metropolitan area and relief agencies throughout the world benefited from the 10K walk. In Livonia, expectations are to do as well as last year's walk, which raised $15,000. In Plymouth-Canton, organizers anticipate raising more than the $7,000 garnered from the last walk, held in 1990.

"There's a sense of unity among those who walk and they express that in the neighbor-hoods," said the Rev. Jim Spilos, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Livonia. "It's one thing we do together."

Seventy-five percent of the money raised goes to the Church World Services, a multi-denominational relief agency of the National Council of Churches. That money will help in disaster relief in Florida and eastern and southern Africa.

The remaining 25 percent of the money raised will be used locally. In Livonia, that amount will be divided equally between the St. Vincent de Paul Food Depot in Ins along the Cass Corridor.

happiness." The idea of happiness is, of course, nothing new. Americans did not invent it. It has been known in a hundred cultures and experienced universally for millennia. What was novel in the formulation of the founding fathers was the emphasis on happiness as something to pursue, a goal worthy of the greatest effort.

Serious thinkers have not always looked with favor on this phrase. Not that there is anything wrong with being happy - their outlook is not jaundiced - but they have two reservations. First, is happiness really to be the highest goal of man? It is sub-

than, let us say, the idea of duty, or respect for others, or faithful-ness, or honor? And second, can happiness really be acquired by pursuing it? It is not really a rather elusive prize which you can win only indirectly by living in a certain way, and not by direct chase?

But these debates are really academic. Today, we accept happiness as terribly important and for most, it is the highest value that life has to offer. We no longer ask questions about the wisdom of of pursuing it in order to attain it. Indeed, we do not simply pursue it, we are relentless, fanatic, single-minded in our hot chase after

It is important to note that we have changed the word "happiness" to "fun" and with it has come a change in the character of our aspirations. Happiness implies an ordered, harmonious way of life which offers deep satisfaction. Fun conveys different notions. It is escape. It suggests losing oneself consciously in a world where all tensions are released ordinate to, or more important and inhibitions loosened. The pursuit of fun has become America's major enterprise.

I do not want to be cast in the role of the grim-lipped, deadly moralist. There is nothing wrong with a life that provides for occasions of fun, provided that these not contradict the other values that impart excellence and honor to human existence. It is not morally commendable to be a humorless bore. Some diversion or escape is both necessary and welcome in human life.

My concern, however, is with that great number of Americans who have unconsciously transformed fun from occasional entertainment to a lifestyle, from a casual distraction to a consuming passion, from an occasional release to a total immersion in an escape from challenges to which life summons all of us.

Perhaps life in this complicated, dangerous and troublesome world is too deadly serious for most people, but still, that is no excuse for avoiding its problems or withdrawing from its demands.

The word "fun," according to Webster, comes from the middle English fonnen, which means to be foolish or to fool someone. Too much concentration on "having fun" is the epitome of foolishness. And if one spends his life in a nervous, anxious, guilt-laden pursuit of fun, then he fools no one but himself.

One of the most enlightening statements on this subject comes from George Bernard Shaw: "We have no more right to consume happiness without producing it than to consume wealth without producing it."

By lightening the burdens that others carry, by offering comfort to the depressed, hope to the dispirited, faith to the weary, and sustenance to the deprived, we become worthy of the great prize of happiness. It is found not on the path of self-indulgence but, rather, in the way of love, compassion and service.

Remember that quality child care wears more than a daytime label; quality child care program/ service can work well during late hours, but the program services must be appropriate for the hours of operation.

Effective communication to parents is still a vital part of the program. Use newsletters, bulletin boards, memos, quarterly parent provider meetings as well as good old fashioned one-on-one dialogue.

Provider contract, policies or procedures, too, are key components in ensuring a business-like atmosphere. Moreover, communicate to parents that you recognize the importance of minimizing the risk of doing business day or night, by having day care liability/accident insurance.

Almost 30,000 people each year have no place to call home in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. They sleep where they can, not where they choose.

You're helping to change that. Because your donation helps support shelters at the Salvation Army and C.O.T.S. These Shelters provide a place that the homeless can call home.

The United Way supports 145 agencies. Nearly 90 cents of every dollar you contribute goes directly to work, since only 10.4 cents goes toward campaign and administrative costs. Your contributions help the unemployed, the
