Parking move may aid business

Plymouth city commissioners recommend ending a system that demanded payments from downtown businesses that lack ample parking. The action should encourage businesses, especially restaurants, to locate downtown.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Downtown Plymouth could be a lot more fun place to visit, shop or run a business, thanks to a city commission recommendation last week.

On Wednesday, with members of the city's planning commission and downtown development authority looking on, city commissioners voted 6-1 to recommend elimination of the parking credit system.

By that system, businesses seeking to locate downtown were forced to pay tens of thousands of dollars if they couldn't provide ample parking on their property.

In recent years, city officials realized the parking credit system was driving away businesses that downtown needed to prosper.

And besides that, there isn't a big need to raise money to pay for the creation of parking, because the city already has ample parking.

The commission on Wednesday did not eliminate the parking credit system. Rather, they directed a parking committee to include elimination of parking credits in their overall parking plan.

That plan is scheduled to be presented to the city commission for approval and implementation early next year.

In moving to recommend the elimination of parking credits, city commissioner John Vos said this would "make land more valuable, help generate business and encourage them to move back downtown."

One aspect of the plan to eliminate parking credits is controversial, as it will likely spark lawsuits against the city.

The commission voted to recommend that no compensation be-

Funding of sex-ed film sparks delay

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Adoption of "Considering Condoms," a reproductive health film, was tabled by the Plymouth-Canton school board last week after an audience member pointed out that funding for the movie was provided by a condom manufacturer.

The film was recommended by the district's sex education committee.

Kathy Rucinski, a registered nurse and a member of the sex education committee, informed the board that funding and materials for "Considering Condoms" were donated by Carter-Wallace, which produces Trojan condoms.

Rucinski and other members of the audience said the movie, produced by the National Education Association, contains errors and condones teenage sex.

"The film does not mention that there is any failure rate to condoms," said Rucinski. "The booklet produced by the NEA says there is only a 2-percent failure rate for people using condoms regularly to prevent pregnancy. The figure is actually 15.7 percent.

"The HIV virus is 450 times smaller than a sperm cell," she added, which enables the virus to permeate a condom and potentially infect an individual "every day of the week."

Honeymoon over for township board

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

It was only their second regular meeting, yet critics were already hurling angry words Tuesday at the new Plymouth Township board of trustees.

What sparked the outburst was approval of an annual pay increase for non-union Plymouth Township government employees, trimmed from 5 to 2 percent.

But the approval of any raise at all angered a few residents who often attend trustee meetings.

"You said you'd get this budget under control — Do it now!" said township resident Patty Schmidt.

She tried to mock the board action by quoting one of new supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy's earlier campaign statements on fiscal restraint.

Trustee Charles Curmi said the offering of some raise, while less than the 5 percent employees have routinely expected, was a show of good faith from the new board.

"It's a gesture of goodwill to our employees," Curmi said.

"We're offering an olive branch here," he said, adding that in return employees should offer "a feeling of teamwork and cooperation."

That spirit will be needed, trustees said, as the new board will possibly restructure some jobs as it tries to balance the township budget.

Still, some continued to attack the action.

"Your vote on this is just a continuation of a trend," said Tom Kalis.

"We can appreciate change — That's why many of you are there," he said.

Only Ron Griffith and Mary Brooks remain from the previous board, made up of seven members.

Library news

Based in part on results of a public survey on the issue of expansion of the Dunning-Hough library downtown, the Plymouth District Library board is going to wait before putting the expansion issue before voters.

A board committee had tentatively set March 30 as a date for voters to decide on whether to pay more in library millage for a library expansion.

The survey showed that folks still have a lot of questions about the planned expansion, said library director Pat Thomas.

New brochure

"Our Town is Your Town" is the theme of a new four-color brochure coordinated by the Plymouth community Chamber of Commerce's public relations committee to promote Plymouth.

The committee drew on local talent to put together the brochure which provides information about schools, shopping, services, metro parks and local government for visitors and companies.

The brochure includes inserts about events and a locator map. It's free and available at the chamber office at 386 S. Main across from Kellogg Park.

Remove tree bags

In the city of Plymouth, plastic Christmas tree bags must be removed from trees placed at the curb to be chipped, says Mark Hamar, assistant director of Public works.

Also, the city recycling center at 1231 Goldsmith will be closed Dec. 24, 25, 31 and Jan. 1.

Questions on recycling, tree disposal and other garbage-related matters can be directed to the solid waste-recycling office at 453-1392.

Fisher's 3rd trial delayed; double jeopardy is alleged

BY DIANE GALE
STAFF WRITER

Add another delay in the continuing murder trials of Dr. Charles Fisher, charged with killing his wife in 1984 by wrapping her face with duct tape in a mock burglary attempt in their Canton house.

A hearing for motions was scheduled earlier this month and was postponed until Jan. 22 due to a personal situation by Fisher's defense attorney, Kenneth Mogill.

Mogill said he will ask visiting Recorder's Court Judge Thomas Roumell to rule on whether police conducted an illegal search.

Mogill also alleges double jeopardy, saying Fisher should not be tried twice for the same crime.

"Certainly there should be no third trial," Mogill said.

Regarding Fisher, Mogill said: "He's trying to get on with his life as well as possible, and he's looking forward to having the matter cleared once and for all," Mogill said.

The motions will precede Fisher's third trial. Two juries found him guilty of first-degree murder in the death of Ella Maria Mercado Fisher in their sprawling Thornwood house in a northwest subdivision.

Almost 10 years later, Mercado Fisher's family continues to wait for the legal proceedings to finally end.

"This last year has been a nightmare," Mercado Fisher's mother, Evelyn Mercado, said referring to Fisher's release from prison in January.

The Michigan Supreme Court reversed Fisher's second conviction, ruling that a diary kept by Mercado Fisher should not have been admitted as evidence because it was hearsay. A previous bond was reinstated and Fisher was released.

"It's like eeny, meeny, miney, moe, let's let him go," said Evelyn Mercado, a Florida resident, who has become active in Parents of Murdered Children.

"The victim and the victim's family aren't thought of in the legal system. It's the poor defendant."

"The primary concern is that the defendants' rights aren't violated. After 24 jurors found him guilty of first-degree murder that should be considered before a court lets him out of prison."

Fisher's first conviction was overruled by a judge who said mistakes were made by the prosecutor during closing arguments.

Evelyn Mercado said that the delays have kept her and her husband, Manuel, from getting "our lives back on track. We can't make any plans for the future. Fisher seems like he has nine lives with all these appeals he gets."

Police searching for more clues in morning rape of school girl

Plymouth Township police are still seeking information from the public in their investigation of an abduction and rape Dec. 9.

Since releasing details of the abduction and a composite drawing of the suspect, police have fielded several calls from residents, said chief Carl Berry.

"We've looked at several individuals, but for the most part they have been eliminated as suspects," he said.

Berry said his department is still seeking information from anyone going through the area of Ann Arbor Trail just west of I-275 between 6-7:15 a.m. on Dec. 9.

A 16-year-old Plymouth Canton High student was abducted in the area at 6:45 a.m. that day, while walking to school, then taken to a nearby wooded area where the rape occurred.

Fax machine stolen

A Sharp FO-216 fax machine valued at $429 was reported stolen from a Plymouth Township business on Wednesday.

Thieves broke a window on the south side of Metro West Copy Systems to get inside the building, according to the report compiled by police. The theft was discovered at 7:45 a.m.

Disk drive stolen

A Plymouth library staffer told police that between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Dec. 17, someone unhooked and stole a disk drive from a computer.

Two male suspects were "very loud and carrying on for quite some time," the 45-year-old woman told officers.

The employee saw the young men by the computers and went to call police when she noticed the disk drive was gone.

The suspects checked out some electronic books.

Officers called both suspects. One said he knew nothing about the disk drive and wasn't near the computers.

The second suspect said they were by the three computers in the back of the library. The suspect called back two minutes later to say he meant to say they were near the card catalog computers.

Gas 'n' go

A Clark gas station employee told police that shortly before 7 p.m. Dec. 17, a woman with a white cap in a blue truck, possibly a Toyota, pumped $10.01 worth of gas and drove off without paying.

The complainant, a 50-year-old Plymouth resident, told officers the woman didn't speed away, leading him to believe she may have just forgotten to pay. Officers checked the area, but found no vehicle matching the description given.

"Sixty-three percent of sexually-transmitted diseases occur among persons less than 25 years of age, according to the Center for Disease Control," Rucinski added.

Before audience members commented, board members offered their opinions.

Trustee Barbara Graham said, "I don't oppose the film, but I see very little on abstinence. If we're going to show movies, what are the expectations? What are we trying to accomplish? We're getting closer and closer to what some people might view as controversy."

Trustee Dean Swartzwelder said the curriculum should "give students the tools they need to evaluate their personal circumstance." This will enable them to, down the line, "avoid getting the HIV virus, or to find out if they do have it. I believe that's the health item being represented."

Board member Carl Battishill supported the film. "It behooves us to bring to kids every possibility they can experience if our young people are going to make good decisions. If our committee has made good decisions, I trust them."

More than 30 sex ed committee members approved "Considering Condoms." Rucinski was one of two members who voted against it.

Board member Dave Artley said he'd like to see a list "of the make-up of the committee and their original charge. There is a lot of participation, but as a reminder to us, it would be a good organizational move."

Graham said that despite sex education in the schools, "in the last 20 years, we haven't made any progress in preventing pregnancy or social diseases."

Board president Roland Thomas said if there's a need for a workshop on the reproductive health curriculum, one can be scheduled.

Values conflict

Paul Jackson, a 15-year Canton resident and the father of five, including two teens, objected to "Considering Condoms" and to the sex education policy.

He said he's viewed films scheduled for use in his children's classes and exercised his right to have them excused.

"I wish parents were invited to review that material first. Why not let parents have their say before the curriculum committee makes its recommendation?" he asked.

Jackson said his problem with "Considering Condoms" is its "lack of recognition that premarital sex is wrong. I'm trying to make my children understand values, and this doesn't reflect what I'm trying to present."

Plymouth Township parent Bill Cox objected to the fact that all teens represented in the film were sexually active, and "peer pressure is the number-one reason." With films like this, "peer pressure becomes institutionalized," he said.

"One in three suicide attempts by young people stems from a failed romance," he added. "This film is paid for by a condom manufacturer. They care about their product. If they sell safe sex and make money, our kids will be sick and dying. Our kids are not animals."

Plymouth Township's Dan Berry said the film was "void of any quantifiable information about the known failure rate of condoms."

Rucinski said 10 educational programs in districts across the country are abstinence-based.

"We spend a lot of time and money on the DARE program, teaching kids to say no to drugs. They're doing a good job of getting the message out. The same message can and should go out about sex," she said.

"There's nothing wrong with waiting until you're married to have sex, but we don't tell our young people that," added Rucinski, recently honored by the board as an outstanding school volunteer.

"I care about kids in the district, and I feel abstinence is the very best thing for our kids. If I didn't try to save them from exposure to this film, I may as well give that award back."

Assistant superintendent for instruction Michael Homes requested that Rucinski supply him with information on the abstinence-based programs.

Thomas said the board will take the comments under consideration when it votes on "Considering Condoms," and "Friends Raping Friends: Strategies for Prevention" in January. The board approved the film "The HIV Test: Who Should Take It? What Does it Show?"

Citizens groups debate fence for forested area

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

To fence or not to fence, that is the question. Two citizens' groups are at odds over whether a 4-foot chain link fence should be put up to protect Miller Woods, a climax maple and beech forest in western Plymouth Township.

Emily Kemnitz described Miller Woods as a very special forest that exists in much the same condition it did before people settled here.

"It's an outdoor laboratory. It's very valuable, and it's being abused. People who watch over it feel the abuse is more frequent," she said.

People illegally walk their dogs in the woods, and the concentration of feces and urine harms the wildflowers along the wood-chip trail, Kemnitz said. Also doing damage are off-road vehicles, bikes and loose dogs, she added.

Kemnitz said the Friends of Miller Woods are elated the Kiwanis Club offered to build a fence. Fences have proven effective in other communities with prized forests.

"We've researched it to see what can be done, and we found a fence helps a great deal," she said.

Barbara Korte said the deed restrictions in the surrounding neighborhoods bar fences. "To put a chain link fence up around the woods seems incongruous," said Korte, who would support a more aesthetically pleasing fence. "Also, the Americans with Disabilities Act requires a gate large enough for a wheelchair. So I'm not sure a fence would curtail the bikes and off-road vehicles."

A fence would limit police and fire access as well, she said.

Korte said 128 neighbors have expressed their opposition to the idea. They favor a three-foot post-and-rail fence. That would set aside the area as a special place and it wouldn't be quite as obtrusive.

While Korte and Kemnitz agree the community should accept Detroit Edison's offer to use for parking a lot it owns just east of the woods, they disagree on the effectiveness of a post-and-rail fence. "We don't feel it would stop dogs; we don't feel it would stop very much," said Kemnitz.

Kemnitz added that the chain-link fence has received fire department approval. "Keys for the handicapped gate could be made available at school. There are an awful lot of roots that keep wheelchairs from going along the path, anyway," Kemnitz said.

School board president Roland Thomas asked administrators to decide the issue. "I would like administration to make a recommendation as to what should be done. We are going to have to make a choice here to protect the woods," he said. Thomas said he wanted the recommendation by the first week in January.

Plymouth church looks at moving outside city limits

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

After the new year begins, a steering committee at Plymouth's largest church could again consider a move out of the city.

Chris Salata, a member of the committee at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, said, "We still have a contingent offer" on a land parcel on North Territorial Road east of Beck Road.

He declined to say when the offer would expire, adding no timetable has been set on making a decision on whether to move or not.

"We hope that (a decision) would come early next year," he said, adding that remaining on Penniman in Plymouth is one possibility.

Salata said that after the new year, church committees would bring new church pastor Father John Sullivan up to date on plans. Sullivan declined to comment on the possible move.

In September, former pastor the Rev. James Wysocki said that several church members had toured the proposed site for a new church, adding there was a positive response.

To move, church members would have to agree to a move and the township planning commission would have to hold a public hearing on a church request to move, church officials have said.

The announcement last summer of plans to move the church pleased some neighbors who in recent years fought church expansion plans.

Wysocki said last summer that the present church building could be used to expand programs.

A church flier circulated then suggested the gym "could become a cafeteria."

"The present church could make a beautiful multipurpose facility with room for a stage and bleachers, yet chapel facilities for the children and daily Mass could also be maintained there in walking distance," the flier continued.

Other benefits to the move cited in the flier included elimination of parking problems, handicapped accessibility, "and the opportunity to serve more parishioners as the population of the Plymouth community grows."

Help to save the earth this Christmas season

Don't forget your mother this holiday season — your Mother Earth, that is.

The city of Plymouth's department of public works is offering a list of environmentally sound ideas for residents:

- Wrap gifts in newspaper or comics instead of gift paper.
- After taking down your real Christmas tree place it curbside to be chipped and composted and be sure to remove plastic tree bags.

- Corrugated cardboard boxes should be placed next to yellow recycle bags for recycling. Don't include paperboard such as gift or cereal boxes.
- If you get new appliances, furniture or clothing, don't dispose of old items without calling an organization willing to accept items. Try the Wayne County Family Center at 721-0590.

- Check tire pressure before getting on the highway for holiday trips, as under inflation can waste fuel.
- Participate in the city's recycling program. Call 455-1392 to set up a time to view an eight-minute video on the program.

Plymouth shops offer deals to help boost yuletide sales

Plymouth's downtown business community is touting a preferred customer program this holiday season to boost business.

Applications to join the program are available at all participating merchants and have also been inserted in newspapers.

The free card entitles members to incentives offered by participating merchants, identified by brightly colored decals displayed in store windows. Card members also receive mailings and are the first to hear of special events and sales.

The program is also being touted in the radio campaign "Discover the Exciting Worlds of Plymouth."

Ford lauds Plymouth resident for computerized exhaust tool

Walter Ickes of Plymouth was among 43 Ford scientists and engineers from Europe and North America recognized recently for breakthrough innovations.

Ford Motor Co. honored the recipients Dec. 10 at the 12th Annual Henry Ford Technology Awards program.

Along with some of his colleagues, Ickes was honored for developing and applying a new computerized design tool to improve exhaust system flow resulting in improved catalyst efficiency, durability and reliability.

For more than a decade, Ford has been using gas-oxygen sensors on vehicles to control engine air-fuel mixtures for emissions and fuel economy purposes, but this new item could replace the sensors.

Kalis suggested rolling back raises given by the previous administration to supervisors. "Operating a budget deficit is not change," he said.

Keen-McCarthy answered, "There will not be this adjustment next December," as the township tries to head off a budget deficit.

The raise is for a group of 25 non-union township staff made up mainly of clerical and secretarial employees but also including department heads. Cost to the township is around $21,000 to pay for the raises.

In talking against the raise, Schmidt added, "Maybe they

'I do hope our employees know it's a commitment to them. We do care and that's one of the reasons we've done this.'

(employees) need a dose of reality. "I see people losing their jobs, and you say, 'Let's not disappoint these people,'" she continued.

Besides Curmi and Keen-McCarthy, other board members also spoke in favor of the action.

"I would like to match the 4 percent other employees get," said trustee Kay Arnold, but budget constraints rule out such a raise. "I do hope our employees know it's a commitment to them. We do care and that's one of the reasons we've done this," she said.

Saying that unionized employees have received raises this year, trustee Ron Griffith said "to let that (budget) axe fall on one group of employees is unfair."

offered to those who've already paid parking credits.

City commissioner Doug Miller, who headed the committee studying parking reform downtown, said some members of the committee favored compensation.

"The (parking) credit owners have a property right in those credits," Miller wrote, in a report detailing that argument.

"Therefore, elimination of them constitutes a condemnation which must be compensated."

Presenting the other side of the argument — the side accepted by the city commission — he said that parking credits have varied over the years "without any compensation to previous developers."

"In addition, the recommended zoning changes would make all central business district properties somewhat more valuable in the process of eliminating the existing credits," Miller wrote, "since all properties would have a more flexible occupancy right to change types of tenants and to use all existing building space to its maximum potential.

"Thus, there is no loss of property value from the two events occurring together, and therefore no taking."

Dennis Shrewsbury was the lone city commissioner voting against the recommendation, saying the city should somehow compensate those who've paid parking credits.

S'craft board chair heads for the bench

Family, friends and colleagues — some 250 strong — gathered last week to celebrate Jeanne Stempien's elevation to the Wayne County Circuit Court.

The former chairwoman of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees is the second Stempien to take a seat on the Wayne County Circuit bench. Her brother-in-law, Marvin, a Plymouth Township resident and former state representative from Livonia, also sits on the circuit court.

Stempien, who lives in Northville Township, pledged that "all people will be treated with dignity and respect in my courtroom."

She promised to be the kind of judge that "you will be proud of."

Stempien praised the Wayne County bench for its efficiency and quality of justice. She thanked family, friends and supporters, along with fellow attorneys, women's organization and union members for their help and support throughout the long campaign.

She singled out her colleagues in the legal field for their dedication and hardwork.

"I'm proud to say I am a trial attorney," said Stempien.

Stempien is among three women who were elected to the circuit court in November. Also elected were Denise Page Hood and Diane M. Hathaway.

Stempien, a graduate of the University of Michigan-Dearborn and the Detroit College of Law, is a former teacher. She practiced law with her husband, Greg, at Stempien & Stempien in Livonia.

Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell praised Stempien's efforts as an attorney, board chair, teacher, wife and mother.

McDowell lauded her leadership and research skills and her balancing of professional, personal and public commitments.

In an emotional swearing in, brother-in-law Marvin Stempien, praised Jeanne Nozewski Stempien for her hard work and accomplishments. Both are the second generation offspring of Eastern European immigrants.

"We all know you'll continue to make us proud," said Marvin Stempien, straining to retain his composure.

The Stempien family has produced six attorneys — two are judges, and others who have excelled in education, business and medicine.

duced six attorneys — two are judges, and others who have excelled in education, business and medicine.

The ceremony was a family celebration. Stempien's parents, Louise and Bernard Nozewski presented her with a judicial robe. Her daughter, Nicole Gardner, gave her the gavel. Her brother, Kenneth Nozewski, presented her with the certificate of election while sister, Laura M. Bertus, an attorney, introduced members of the judiciary. Stempien's son, Eric, introduced the public officials and special guests at last Wednesday's swearing in ceremony.

Handling program duties at the swearing-in was Westland District Court Judge Gail McKnight. Also on hand were U.S. Rep. William D. Ford, a longtime Stempien family friend and out-going state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton Township.

Schools look for answer to exam squabble

By M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

School board members received an earful last week from students and teachers unhappy about the prospect of having to take or administer as many as six final examinations in a single day when testing begins Jan. 18.

A letter and petition signed by more than 600 people and presented by Salem teacher Bill Gretzinger says staffers are disappointed a pilot schedule used with success last June isn't an option.

In June, students were tested on shortened school days and allowed to go home afterward. That presented a contractual and workload problem, because middle and elementary school teachers don't give finals.

In their petition, teachers said, "We feel that by withdrawing this program, the administration has decided to punish the students for the lack of a contractual staff agreement. Using regular school days for final exams goes against testing theories and practices as well as the state of Michigan guidelines for student assessment."

"Students may be faced with five days of one-hour exams in each class. This is inhumane, and engineers failure for students, especially those in extremely challenging classes who may be heavily tested each day."

Teachers encouraged the board to re-adopt the June schedule. "There is still time to alter the course of events and show that there is a caring attitude toward the students instead of the harsh and grim attitude now evidenced."

Students spoke up as well.

Marques Nelson of Canton High School said, "If high school is supposed to be preparation for college, what sense does it make to test us on a regular school day?"

A system similar to a college schedule would make a whole lot more sense."

Student Sheena McDonald said the proposed exam schedule adds to students' stress level.

"Students are being brought up in a world where everything is rush, rush. Having all our exams in one day creates more stress and less success. You need to get back to what is really important, and that's the students."

Board president Roland Thomas urged the superintendent, staff and union to work out a compromise.

Errol Goldman, assistant superintendent for employee relations, said the pilot exam schedule was addressed when the board sought — but didn't receive from teachers — a contract modification and extension last spring.

"That was not accepted, so the pilot was implemented one time only, and we did have some problems that resulted in some concerns. We were trying to solve the problems of the high school separately from the middle and elementary schools."

"Unfortunately, when we tried to solve it for high schools, it didn't solve problems at elementary and middle schools. There were concerns about workload. Any solution we come up with has to address various concerns at all three levels," said Goldman.

A memo issued late last week by the Canton and Salem High School principals said the schools will return to a three-hour, two-day exam schedule.

There's less than total satisfaction among teachers about the decision.

"I would think many teachers would much rather have the pilot program," said Chuck Portelli, president of the teachers' union. He said using the pilot testing schedule enables teachers to do a better job with outcome-based education, a district philosophy aimed at helping students achieve above-failing grades, even if it means re-taking tests.

Board honors outstanding school volunteer

Plymouth Township resident Ellen Tucker was recognized as an outstanding volunteer at the Board of Education meeting Monday, Dec. 14.

Tucker was honored with the "Extra Miller Volunteers in Public Schools (VIPS)" award. The award was established by the "I Care" Committee and the Board of Education in 1991 to recognize outstanding volunteers in the district.

Tucker has one child, Ben, who is a sixth-grader at East Middle School. She served on the Parent-Teacher Organizations of Farrand and Allen elementary schools throughout her son's elementary years, as well as serving as an active classroom volunteer. She continues to volunteer at the elementary level. She is also a volunteer at East Middle School, where her son now attends, serving as a member of the PTO, a library volunteer and a band supporter.

A dedicated volunteer, Tucker has served on the District's PTO Council since 1987, representing Farrand and Allen elementary schools and East Middle School. She has served as secretary of the council for the past three years. In the past, she also has volunteered in the district's Community Relations Office.

She was nominated for the award by teachers and PTO members with whom she has worked throughout the years.

"Ellen Tucker is a positive representative of parents who are highly involved in the education of their children and care about the quality of schools," said Nancy Sullivan, Allen teacher. "She is always friendly, efficient and supportive of educational endeavors. She boosts the morale of teachers in thoughtful, practical ways."

Lenore Goshorn, Allen teacher, commented, "Ellen consistently brought in news articles related to curriculum and new ideas she gathered from other schools. She has been an excellent role model for other parent volunteers."

Board Trustee Lester Walker presented the award to Tucker and thanked her for her dedicated service to the students and staff of the district. He presented her with a framed resolution passed by the Board of Education, a volunteer pin, and dinner gift certificates donated by the Plymouth Landing on behalf of the "I Care" Committee.

Airport noise: Commission fumbles, McNamara scores

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County commissioners, many of whom complain that county executive Edward McNamara grabs all the headlines, handed him one Thursday when they couldn't agree on an airport noise-abatement ordinance.

Now, says deputy executive Michael Duggan, McNamara will put in place by executive order what the commission voted down last week.

The commission gave McNamara the power to do so by passing a "resolution" about noise abatement procedures, said commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, who also represents Canton.

Commissioners could have compelled McNamara to comply with the resolution if they passed any of the three ordinances that they voted on, which would have given the resolution the force of law.

"We're not going to wait for the political bickering of the commission to settle out," Duggan said, adding that McNamara has ordered that agreements be reached with Dearborn's two anti-noise groups and that the noise-abatement procedures be put in place as soon as possible.

Few complaints

Although complaints about aircraft noise are down 80 percent since new routes in and out of Metro were instituted Nov. 30, Duggan said, McNamara isn't satisfied.

Among the things to be done are:

- Buying out hundreds of homeowners near the airport in Romulus and Huron Township.
- Soundproofing other houses that aren't quite as close to the airport.
- Buying a global positioning system that's supposed to be able to better fan out the incoming aircraft.
- Establish a citizens airport ad-really noisy jets at Metro than they use right now.

Really noisy jets

This is contrary to Federal Aviation Administration rules, which outlaw the really noisy jets after Dec. 31, 1999, but don't prohibit airlines from using more of them before the deadline.

Only commissioner Maurice Breen, R-Plymouth, supported Hubbard's ordinance. "There's not going to be a significant reduction in noise until you get these planes changed," he said.

McNamara, Amann and Kelley said that the FAA might have cut off federal airport aid to the county if Hubbard's plan was adopted.

"I don't think it's in our best interest to take on the FAA," Kelley said. "By trying to go over and above the FAA we're playing with fire."

The other two failed ordinances would have enacted the aforementioned resolution into law, started an "awareness program" for pilots, established a citizens airport advisory committee, and required that the really noisy aircraft be banned from Metro after Dec. 31, 1999.

could have got the credit for them if it had passed an ordinance last week.

That failure was largely blamed on commissioner Susan Hubbard, D-Dearborn, who chaired the aircraft noise committee.

Hubbard submitted a proposed ordinance purely her own, while the remaining noise committee members co-sponsored the other two ordinances. Hubbard opposed their ordinances and they opposed hers.

This was crucial because the ordinances sponsored by Amann, Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, Kay Beard, D-Westland, and downriver commissioner Edward Boike, failed by one vote.

(Hubbard's ordinance was referred to committee.) Amann accused Hubbard Friday of playing politics with the airport noise issue. "Susan Hubbard, for personal political reasons, is responsible for Wayne County not doing all we can do to solve our noise problem," he said. "Because Susan Hubbard couldn't get everything she wanted, her attitude was, 'We'll get nothing.'

"I think she's afraid to lose this soapbox. Apparently, she enjoys the publicity."

Hubbard said, "I can't think of anyone who likes to be on soapboxes more than Mr. Amann. We passed a resolution, and that's what they wanted. I don't know why they're complaining."

Hubbard's proposed ordinance would have prohibited the airlines from using any more of the

BY PAT MURPHY
STAFF WRITER

Former Gov. James Blanchard has received a strong endorsement as Secretary of Transportation in the cabinet of President-elect Bill Clinton.

That endorsement came Thursday from Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara when he was addressing the City Centre Optimist Club at the Radisson Hotel in Southfield.

The Wayne County executive's talk was informal consisting mainly of McNamara giving his views on a wide range of topics.

"Blanchard is a very capable and qualified person," said McNamara, who first became acquainted with Blanchard in 1970, when McNamara was running for lieutenant governor as Sander Levin's running mate.

Blanchard was his driver, McNamara said. And their association grew as Blanchard became a U.S. representative from Pleasant Ridge and later a two-term governor of Michigan.

Clinton is expected to name his pick for Secretary of Transportation this week and Blanchard is reportedly on the short, short list.

Blanchard has some stiff competition, however. The other commonly mentioned name is William Daley, a Chicago banker who is the brother of politically powerful Richard M. Daley, mayor of the Windy City.

Transportation secretary is an important post, said McNamara. "That secretary is able to control everything that moves . . . as well as the dollars that make things move."

Backing Blanchard

McNamara said he is backing Blanchard for numerous reasons, including discussions in the Chicago area about a third airport. "I'm concerned (if Daley is selected over Blanchard) because (federal) dollars that should go to Metro (airport) will be diverted to Illinois."

Wayne County has plans for upgrading Metro Airport, McNamara said, and turning it into a world-class airport. Those plans would need all the federal dollars available.

McNamara said he and other Michigan Democrats have informed Clinton of their support for Blanchard. They also believe Blanchard has a good chance of winning the position because of their early — and steadfast — support for Clinton during the campaign.

"We were with him through Jennifer Flowers and discussion about his draft status," said McNamara, referring to two issues to haunt the Arkansas governor throughout the campaign.

Clinton carried Michigan in the Democratic primary and the Nov. 3 general election — something McNamara thought would weigh in Blanchard's favor.

Other Democrats, however, note that William Daley also has some heavy political ammunition, namely ties to the Democratic machine of Chicago which helped Clinton carry Illinois.

On other issues

McNamara's talk dealt with a wide range of issues, such as:

■ Clinton's economic summit in Little Rock. "I'm impressed," he said. "That's a good approach and just what we needed."

■ U.S. Rep. Bob Carr, who has helped metro get millions of federal dollars for its expansion. "He's more important to us than Bill Clinton," said McNamara.

■ On Bo Schembechler when he and Wayne County were negotiating about a new baseball stadium. He talked to us "like he was talking to (college) kids worried about their scholarships. That's the only way he knows."

■ On Tom Monaghan, former owner of the Detroit Tigers. "Monaghan wanted (for a stadium) an island, an oasis, surrounded with a 12-foot fence with barbed wire on the top. He wanted fans who would drive off the freeway, watch Monaghan's team and buy peanuts from Monaghan."

■ On Mike Ilitch, the new owner of the Tigers. "He's more civic minded," said McNamara. "He's interested in the future of Detroit as well as his own interests."

■ On casino gambling in Detroit. "Casino gambling isn't a moral issue. If it were, we'd have to get rid of the lottery, raffles and bingo in Catholic churches," said McNamara, who is Catholic. "Casino gambling in Detroit makes sense. What doesn't make sense is businesses in Detroit or Southfield putting guests on buses to go over to Windsor to gamble."

■ On the lack of political leadership from Gov. John Engler, Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young and his office. "Each of us is afraid to take a stand because the other two might take the opposite view. The only way is for all three of us to get into a room and not come out until we have a (consensus) position. . . either for or against casino gambling."

■ On financially strapped Highland Park Community College. "It's just not going to make it. It will probably be closed."

Officials warn: Don't have fire for Christmas

The Michigan Association of Fire Fighters and Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano are encouraging area residents to add to their busy holiday routine by ensuring that houses are safe from fire.

Statistics show that more than 1,000 house fires occur every day in this country, killing about 7,000 people a year.

The firefighters association suggests the following:

■ Talk to your kids about the possibility of fire and teach them two ways to get out of every room.

■ Buy a smoke detector if you don't have one. Check the batteries if you do have one.

■ Don't put Christmas candles on the Christmas tree, or on a window sill, or any place where the kids can get to them. Blow the candles out when you leave a room.

■ Locate your Christmas tree away from sources of heat and clear of exits. Keep it watered all the time.

■ Never put electric lights on a metal Christmas tree. That is a serious fire and shock hazard.

■ If your old set of lights is worn or has loose connections, replace it. Use only outdoor lights for the outdoors.

■ Don't plug a whole bunch of lights into one extension cord. Some fires get started that way.

■ Always unplug everything before you go to bed or leave the house.

Ficano suggests that fireplace owners have their fireplaces checked for a build-up of creosote, a substance that accumulates in chimneys that could burst into flames at high temperature.

The sheriff also wants to remind you that you should drop to the floor if a fire is discovered. Then crawl through the smoke to an exit.

BY PAT MURPHY
STAFF WRITER

Former Gov. James Blanchard has received a strong endorsement as Secretary of Transportation in the cabinet of President-elect Bill Clinton.

That endorsement came Thursday from Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara when he was addressing the City Centre Optimist Club at the Radisson Hotel in Southfield.

The Wayne County executive's talk was informal consisting mainly of McNamara giving his views on a wide range of topics.

"Blanchard is a very capable and qualified person," said McNamara, who first became acquainted with Blanchard in 1970, when McNamara was running for lieutenant governor as Sander Levin's running mate.

Blanchard was his driver, McNamara said. And their association grew as Blanchard became a U.S. representative from Pleasant Ridge and later a two-term governor of Michigan.

Clinton is expected to name his pick for Secretary of Transportation this week and Blanchard is reportedly on the short, short list.

Blanchard has some stiff competition, however. The other commonly mentioned name is William Daley, a Chicago banker who is the brother of politically powerful Richard M. Daley, mayor of the Windy City.

Transportation secretary is an important post, said McNamara. "That secretary is able to control everything that moves... as well as the dollars that make things move."

Backing Blanchard

McNamara said he is backing Blanchard for numerous reasons, including discussions in the Chicago area about a third airport. "I'm concerned (if Daley is selected over Blanchard) because (federal) dollars that should go to Metro (airport) will be diverted to Illinois."

Wayne County has plans for upgrading Metro Airport, McNamara said, and turning it into a world-class airport. Those plans would need all the federal dollars available.

McNamara said he and other Michigan Democrats have informed Clinton of their support for Blanchard. They also believe Blanchard has a good chance of winning the position because of their early — and steadfast — support for Clinton during the campaign.

"We were with him through Jennifer Flowers and discussion about his draft status," said McNamara, referring to two issues to haunt the Arkansas governor throughout the campaign. Clinton carried Michigan in the Democratic primary and the Nov. 3 general election — something McNamara thought would weigh in Blanchard's favor.

Other Democrats, however, note that William Daley also has some heavy political ammunition, namely ties to the Democratic machine of Chicago which helped Clinton carry Illinois.

On other issues

McNamara's talk dealt with a team and buy peanuts from Monaghan."

On Mike Ilitch, the new owner of the Tigers. "He's more civic minded," said McNamara. "He's interested in the future of Detroit as well as his own interests."

On casino gambling in Detroit. "Casino gambling isn't a moral issue. If it were, we'd have to get rid of the lottery, raffles and bingo in Catholic churches," said McNamara, who is Catholic. "Casino gambling in Detroit makes sense. What doesn't make sense is businesses in Detroit or Southfield putting guests on buses to go over to Windsor to gamble."

On the lack of political leadership from Gov. John Engler, Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young and his office. "Each of us is afraid to take a stand because the other two might take the opposite view. The only way is for all three of us to get into a room and not come out until we have a (consensus) position... either for or against casino gambling."

wide range of issues, such as:

Clinton's economic summit in Little Rock. "I'm impressed," he said. "That's a good approach and just what we need."

U.S. Rep. Bob Carr, who has helped metro get millions of federal dollars for its expansion. "He's more important to us than Bill Clinton," said McNamara.

On Bo Schembechler when he and Wayne County were negotiating about a new baseball stadium. He talked to us "like he was talking to (college) kids worried about their scholarships. That's the only way he knows."

On Tom Monaghan, former owner of the Detroit Tigers. "Monaghan wanted (for a stadium) an island, an oasis, surrounded with a 12-foot fence with barbed wire on the top. He wanted fans who would drive off the freeway, watch Monaghan's

Officials warn: Don't have fire for Christmas

The Michigan Association of Fire Fighters and Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano are encouraging area residents to add to their busy holiday routine by ensuring that houses are safe from fire.

Statistics show that more than 1,000 house fires occur every day in this country, killing about 7,000 people a year.

The firefighters association suggests the following:

Talk to your kids about the possibility of fire and teach them two ways to get out of every room. Buy a smoke detector if you don't have one. Check the batteries if you do have one.

Don't put Christmas candles on the Christmas tree, or on a window sill, or any place where the kids can get to them. Blow the candles out when you leave a room.

Don't plug a whole bunch of lights into one extension cord. Some fires get started that way.

POINTS OF VIEW

Story aids understanding

Uncle Jimmy. When my husband and I were dating, he'd hand us the key to his cabin in the woods to use for the day.

When we travelled to Europe on our honeymoon, he presented us with currency from each country we'd visit, so we'd have it on arrival.

When we were struggling newly-weds in graduate school at Columbia University in New York City, he'd fly in to take us out to a sleek Manhattan bistro and to theater.

On our first anniversary, he found out what restaurant we picked to celebrate, called and ordered champagne for us and had the whole tab charged to him.

This graduate of the Wharton School of Business of the University of Pennsylvania worked himself up the corporate ladder to become vice president of Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Ohio.

Single, he lived in an elegant penthouse apartment, filled with art and antiques purchased from friends and on his travels.

And his gift for gardening was evident in the flowers and plants he nurtured both inside and on the encircling patio.

JUDITH DONER BERNE

That's where he was found murdered, nearly 25 years ago, at the age of 62. He was the victim of what police believe was a crime perpetrated by another homosexual.

Yes, Uncle Jimmy was homosexual. Most of his family didn't know that — or, if they suspected, didn't pursue it.

He felt forced to live a lifestyle that was hidden from his straight friends and family, with whom he was otherwise very close.

Evenings and weekends, he drank too much, and when he drank, he cried easily.

I later found out that he turned down a promotion which would have put him at the top of the Ohio "Blues". He was afraid it would hurt the organization if his homosexuality ever became public.

As people opposed to the Birmingham schools' three class hours of information on homosexuality sounded their myths and stereotypes at a public hearing last Tuesday night, I thought about Uncle Jimmy.

I thought about his caring, intelligence, his wide range of interests.

I thought also about his torment, a torment which he didn't feel he could share even with his own family. It was a torment that led to his death.

Myths and stereotypes feed on themselves. The Birmingham Schools' are offering young people a chance to help break that syndrome. And, they are giving people like Uncle Jimmy a chance to live with grace and dignity, instead of having to be ashamed of what they are.

Season focuses in on plight of needy

It was the best of times.

It was the worst of times.

We all know someone who will remember this holiday season with one or the other of these classic lines. For some, the season will be one of great joy and abundance. For others, it will be a season of struggle and despair.

Of course, none of this is new. It goes on every holiday season — in fact, it goes on every single day of the year. It seems this time of the year just brings it into much sharper focus. The nightly news brings us the disquieting images of the downtrodden in their struggle to find a warm bed and a hot meal, let alone chestnuts roasting on an open fire. The same news show will usually close with a feature about a store like Neiman-Marcus offering a life-size Rolls Royce made out of solid Godiva chocolate for only $495,000.

More than any other time, the holidays show that we live in a world of extremes.

Ironically, the richest country on Earth is inhabited by some very poor people. Our economic diversity ranges from multi-billionaires to people who live in cardboard boxes. The vast majority of us fall somewhere in between.

The canyon-esque financial disparity is not the only measure of difference among us. There are people of every economic status who suffer from poverty of health or spirit who are also in dire need of assistance. Lack of money isn't the only thing which makes us poor, just as abundance of money isn't the only thing which makes us rich.

Even in these tough economic times, there are a great many gifts we may possess which can be shared with those less fortunate: gifts such as time, talent or compassion. Most of us have something to offer, even if it is only a few moments of conversation with a lonely neighbor. We can all do a lot more than we give ourselves credit for.

I don't mean to come across as Santa's Bummer Elf or the Ghost of

GARY BELANGER

Christmas Depressant, and I'm not going to dump a sleighful of guilt down your chimney. This is just a reminder, mostly to myself, to work on the "Peace on Earth, goodwill towards men" part of the business, even though that concept seems all but impossible after a December Saturday at the mall. Those words must have been written before the invention of the pre-Christmas clearance sale.

This year I am hopeful of offering more than my good intentions. I am hopeful of counting among my blessings the knowledge that I have done or said something to ease somebody's trouble. Most of all, I am hopeful that if I hear myself saying, "I've got enough to do just to take care of my own," I'll remember who that includes.

I know the crush of the season is filled with so many reminders of the hardship of others that it is impossible not to think about it. I know we can't put a buck in every kettle in front of every store, so we usually brush past the Salvation Army bell ringer, giving nothing more than an apologetic half-smile and an incoherent mumble. I know none of us is capable of solving all of the world's problems on our own, but that doesn't mean we shouldn't do something.

Gary Belanger is a Redford Township resident and school board trustee. His column appears periodically. To reach Belanger from a touch tone phone, call 953-2047 mailbox number 1890.

Students exhibit creative writing

Some of the excuses we teachers receive for student absences are a riot. We share a few with you.

In a holiday spirit, it's a good time to lighten up a bit so here are a couple of your absentee notes from kids that I had on file.

■ Please excuse John for being absent Jan. 30, 31, 32 and dd.

■ Chris was absent because he had an acre in his side.

■ Joe was absent yesterday because he had a stomach.

■ Please excuse Joey Friday. He had loose vowels.

■ Mary could not go to school because she was bothered by very loose veins.

■ John was absent because he has two teeth taken out of his face.

■ My son is under doctor's care and should not take PHYS. ED. Please excuse him.

■ Carl was hit yesterday playing football. He was hurt in the growing part.

DOC DOYLE

■ Please excuse Joyce from Jim today. She is administrating.

■ Ralph was absent yesterday because of a sore trout.

■ Please excuse Blache's absence yesterday. She fell out of a tree and misplaced her hip.

■ Please excuse Wayne for being out yesterday. He had the fuel.

■ Mark was kept home yesterday because he had a loose system.

Needless to say, excuses of this nature are usually written by the children, the future of our nation. As a teacher I received my share of creative written excuse masterpieces. How, as a teacher and a principal, I used to "love" seeing them blush and squirm when I would read the note back to them in a skeptical tone and with a smile on my face.

And, because most kids are good people, the majority would live up to their folly once I suggested a phone call to their parents to verify the authenticity of their "illness."

James "Doc" Doyle, a former teacher/school administrator/university instructor, is president of Doyle and Associates, an educational consulting firm. To leave a message for him from a touch tone phone, please call 953-2047 mailbox 1856.

Arthritis Today

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ARTHRITIS & TENDONITIS

Assume you develop shoulder pain; friends say you have arthritis. When you are examined by a doctor, he informs you the diagnosis is tendonitis. Can one tell, and does it matter?

The answer to both questions is yes.

Take the case of shoulder pain. The doctor can determine you have tendonitis by the way you move your shoulder. If you are able to raise your arm, scratch your back, comb your hair, and put on a shirt or coat in your usual manner, you have tendonitis. All these motions require an intact shoulder joint. If you do well during the day but ache at night, likely you have tendonitis. In contrast, arthritic joints hurt when used, cannot undertake full movement, and feel best when at rest.

The distinction in cause is not always clear. Pain from a tendon injury can be so intense that you will not move the arm. At times you may have inflammation in the shoulder localized to a single site. Then you can move the shoulder despite the presence of arthritis.

However, in most cases the difference in presentation permits a physician to make the correct diagnosis, and to institute the appropriate therapy.

Heat, injection, and light exercise often suffice for a tendonitis. Arthritis usually requires daily medication. A tendonitis may clear on its own, arthritis without medical treatment rarely resolves.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Warm mixed drinks perfect for wintertime

Anytime of the year is a good time for a well mixed drink, but wintertime is particularly good for a well mixed hot drink. Now we're not talking hot Ovaltine here folks. Let's refer to these concoctions as pre-ski drinks that are sure to warm the heart as well as the soul.

Of course, these drinks are not limited to the likes of Jean-Claude Killy and Suzie Chaffee. (Olympic skiers) Let it be known that these drinks were enjoyed by the sedentary couch potato as well as the winter sportsman in our family.

A close relative, who acknowledges the fact that she was not born with a spatula and whisk in her hand, found these recipes delectable and easy to prepare. (This was after reminding her that if one can manage day after day to blend satisfactory amounts of cream and sugar into their morning coffee, one can manage these recipes!)

Measure carefully

When preparing warm potables, be sure to measure all ingredients carefully. Try not to imitate those free pouring bartenders who trust the lick of a wrist and the tip in their pocket.

The subtle blend of flavors that make a warm mixed drink memorable results from a precise combination of ingredients. Use standard measures like teaspoons and jiggers, ounces, cups or liters.

When multiplying quantities for party drinking, try and be as mathematically accurate as possible.

Use fresh ingredients

For the best in concoctions, use the very freshest of ingredients. A fresh squeezed orange will have triple the effect and taste from a quart of re-concentrated flavored water that was sitting in your freezer for one month.

The surviving half jug of wine left over from the holidays will not not have the flavor and kick of a just opened bottle.

Unless a recipe advises to the contrary, don't slice fruit until just before serving. Oxidation will detract from the taste you so painstakingly tried to achieve.

You don't have to use premium wines and liquors because blending overpowers the subtleties that give premium brands their characteristic qualities. On the other hand, cheap substitutes will come off tasting too art or annic so it's best to use a "middle of the road" bottle for making the best.

Serve the drink in a suitable glass, cup or mug and be sure that it is sparkling clean, free from any soap or dishwasher residue. A preheated cup is a real treat.

If you have a microwave and icrowaveable cups, wrap them in a damp bath towel and place in a microwave on high power for 1 minute. Watch out, the towel will be hot! There's little argument that a hot sangria just doesn't make it in a plastic Care Bears' mug.

Heating ingredients

Heat your ingredients very carefully. Slow heating will give your flavors time to marry, but boiling will drive away the flavor and will leave a "urnt" ftertaste.

Boiling also causes the alcohol to evaporate; the result being a unchless punch! Ah, W.C. Fields would have been proud!

For large parties, crock pots wrapped in tree oughs and kept at low heat will keep enough warm oddies at just the perfect temperature for a crowd while a good insulated thermos will keep the mixture sizzling for a romantic ete- tete.

An insulated coffee arafe or thermos will retain the heat even longer if first rinsed with boiling water.

The hostess at Vic Tanny's in Plymouth shared her favorite recipe for authentic Tom and Jerry's Cocktail on a recent visit and it was a sure hit at a recent Janes Gang party.

Darcy is the early morning reeter, and when I mentioned that I was putting together this column, she volunteered to share this old-time favorite.

Prepared with a blend of brandy whiskey and boiling water, the secret is in the batter that tops off steaming mugs.

Festive garnishes

As with just about all the warm ocktails mentioned in the recipes, a cinnamon stick or candy cane inserted last makes for a festive warm holiday ocktail that simply can't be beat.

Another great addition to warm drinks is a sprinkling of cinnamon or a teaspoon of finely chopped chocolate.

These toppings are better left to warm ocktails created with liquor as the weeteness can effect the taste of warm wine drinks.

A word to the wise, after mbibing, stay off the roads and slopes. Drinking and driving don't mix. See Janes-family tested recipes inside.

EAT, DRINK & BE MERRY AT WASSAIL FEAST

Hail the holiday season English style with a wassail feast. It is traditionally held during Twelfthtide, the period between Christmas and the Epiphany, Jan. 6. There's still time to plan a feast fit for a king.

Plum pudding: Susan Weishaar, second year culinary arts student at Oakland Community College with the plum pudding served at the wassail feast.

BY GERI RINSCHLER
SPECIAL WRITER

At Christmas time in Elizabethan England, wassail cups were raised in unison to return the toast, "Wassail — drink hail." The cups were filled with "lamb's wool," a mixture of spiced ale and roasted apples.

After a succession of toasts, one of the elaborate feasts of that era might have included oyster stew, stuffed pike, cinnamon cabbage, mince pies and plum pudding. At the center of the long banquet table would sit, the prized, roasted boar's head surrounded with garlands of laurel.

During the past 10 years there has been a renewed interest in the customs of merry old England, and traditional wassail feasts. The annual wassail feast at Oakland Community College, Or-hard Ridge campus in Farmington Hills, has become such a popular event over the past six years that tickets sold out in early September.

Every fall the culinary students in the hospitality department, under the guidance of instructor Darlene Levinson, plan the menu.

OCC wassail

The dinner which is served family-style is designed and prepared by the students. Professional chef — instructor Dan Rowilson worked with the students to help them perfect their kitchen skills and techniques.

This year the feast began with a marinated beet salad decorated with hand-carved rutabaga roses, a barley salad and plate of garlic spiced cheese. After toasting with a warm cup of wassail, a chestnut woodland soup was served garnished with creme fraiche and a thin potato ravioli.

In between courses, minstrel singers, mimes, magicians and the Renaissance Voices of Oakland Community College performed. Then came the third course. Tender filets of chicken stuffed with fruits and nuts accompanied by a decorative poached pear.

After a few more toasts, the entree arrived. Medallions of beef tenderloin cooked to perfection were plated along with a potato tartlet filled with sauteed mushrooms and onions artistically arranged beside a medley of braised, julienne winter vegetables.

Baskets of traditional grain bread and fruited scones were refilled throughout the evening which ended with a flaming plum pudding.

It's no wonder that many of the same guests return every year. Tony and Anna Marie Galat of Farmington have made this holiday dinner a not to be missed event. This year they brought along the members of their gourmet club.

"The food is wonderful and the entertainment is fabulous," said Tony Galat.

Caterer Mark Stein of the Mark of Excellence in Southfield has been preparing wassail feasts for eight years. He began working with Diane Blake at the Detroit Institute of Arts at their ever famous wassail feasts. This year he designed the menu and catered, "An Evening in England," sponsored by the City of Southfield on December 10.

Traditional foods

"For this event, I chose a very traditional approach to the Elizabethan holiday dinner. As always the vegetables are cut by hand, as there was no uniformity in that era," said Stein.

"The seasoning was robust but it was necessary then to cover up the meat which in those days was not tasty."

His menu for the evening began with a mutton barley soup, beef-leek pie, roast leg of chicken, garlic mashed potatoes and a glorious figgy pudding for desert.

Cognac especially enjoyable during the holidays

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

The holiday season — its glittering ornaments and lights, a cozy fireplace, family, friends and in the evening, while enjoying it all, a taste of fine cognac.

Wine enthusiasts have been smitten by the taste of premium spirits, cognac in particular. If you've not yet become a fan, we're certain you've heard of the "big four" — Courvoisier, Hennessy, Martell and Remy Martin. These houses blanket the world with their product. It can be purchased everywhere. It's good, quite good, but it's only part of the cognac story.

In the Charente region of western France, the cradle of cognac, rests the peaceful town of Jarnac on the banks of the Charente river. Here, life follows the river's nonchalant pace and the rhythm of the vines producing the fruit converted to cognac in the town's cellars.

One dedicated French family has been living in Jarnac and producing cognac before the French Revolution. Cognac A. de Fussigny results from the cognac passion of two people, Alain-Louis and Anne-Marie Royer.

If you know prominent wine industry names such as Italy's Angelo Gaja, Burgundy's house of Faively, Champagne Pol Roger, the Rhone firm of Jaboulet and the Trimbach family from Alsace, you should now include the Royer's and their company A. de Fussigny. The world's best importers and marketers of fine wine and spirits carry these products in their portfolio.

About one-third of the de Fussigny cognacs are sold in North America. Another third is exported to

ROBERT DENTON & COMPANY, LTD.

Fine cognac: Years of barrel aging makes Cognac A. de Fussigny a rich cognac, robust in character yet full of finesse.

At home inventive hosts can easily entertain with wassail bowls and flamed crowns of plum pudding for an after dinner dessert party. The traditional wassail punch which has been served at the Detroit Institute of Arts for some 20 years is quite a potent brew of dry sherry, beer, sugar, spices and vodka.

For a dessert party, you may want to consider a mellower blend of hot cider, spices and a bit of sherry to complement the richness of a steamed fruit pudding.

Although most of the old English holiday dinners in southeastern Michigan occur early in December, in medieval times wassail feasting most often took place during Twelfthtide, the holiday period between Christmas and the Epiphany on January 6th. So you still have time to organize a menu and invite over a few friends.

As you can see, it's an almost anything goes when designing a menu. Levinson of OCC has established a number of guidelines for her students when planning their annual feast.

Menu ideas

"Our dinners always begin with salads made with root vegetables which were evident during the Elizabethan era. The breads were hearty so we generally have pumpernickel and whole grains. We always include a chicken course and a beef course."

Mark Stein recommends making a number of items in advance such as individual beef and leek pies, and a hearty soup such as mutton-barley.

"If you choose to serve a steamed fruit pudding such as a figgy or plum pudding they need to be made in advance," he said.

The recipe inside for Old English Plum Pudding is my personal favorite. The more authentic plum puddings of Queen Elizabeth's day were a stewed mixture of fruits and meats, and could not be sliced into a dessert as we know it today.

This recipe can be made days in advance. After it has cooled wrap the pudding in some cheesecloth which has been soaked in brandy, and cover in aluminum foil. At serving time, set the pudding back into its original bowl, and steam until warm. Wrap the pudding in foil to reheat it in the oven.

To add a bit of whimsy to the festivities, it is customary to hide silver coins in the pudding before steaming to insure good luck. If you decide to do so, it's recommended that the coins first be wrapped in aluminum foil.

Asia. The fraction rounding out the production is sold in Europe.

"The best cognacs come from the best wine," Alain Royer contends. "In the cognac region, grape-growing is as important as distillation techniques." Perhaps Royer's attitude is the reason behind his unique cognac packaging.

"I wanted to have a wine approach," he said. "The label indicates this and the use of the wooden-based cork conveys quality. The A. de Fussigny bottle has no modern imitation. It is a replica of an ancient hand-blown vessel I found in my cellars."

Royer uses his roots and time-honored association with a limited number of owners, growers and distillers to negotiate purchase of inherited, venerable cognac stocks these locals have hidden away in their modest country cellars. The significant quality enhancement offered to the master blend by these treasured cognacs cannot be overstated.

In our opinion, consumers claiming to be connoisseurs, place too much emphasis on cognacs produced from the Grande Champagne and Petite Champagne growing areas. (If you're just beginning to understand cognacs, don't confuse the cognac use of champagne with the sparkling beverage of the same name.) Cognacs blended with large percentages from these regions require years of barrel aging to produce a round, smooth, rich cognac, robust in character yet full of finesse. Understandably, these cognacs are higher priced.

While Royer goes to great lengths to purchase stocks of older cognacs on the open market, he is fond of the characteristics developed in the Borderies and Fin Bois areas.

"I like cognacs from the Borderies because the soil is acid," he said. "This contributes a unique mushroomy character. Fin Bois cognacs have a lively nose. The cognac smells good immediately after distillation and it reaches maturity early."

In his entry product labeled Stars Cognac Reserve ($51.68), he blends 70 percent Petite Champagne and 30 percent Fin Bois cognacs. The average age of the blending elements is eight to 10 years. Reserve is similar to a VSOP or Napoleon category, but with a much smoother almond-like finish and significant concentration of wood.

A. de Fussigny XO ($75.96) is a blend of three cognacs: 10 percent Grande Champagne averaging 14 years; 60 percent Petite Champagne averaging 20 years, and 30 percent Fin Bois with an average age of 15 years.

"XO quality is a benchmark in the eye of the consumer," Royer said. That said, you have to taste it to experience the elegant rounded palate expression with floral and violet accents. The smooth finish is unparalleled.

Several other cognacs round out the A. de Fussigny portfolio: Fine Champagne Vieille Reserve ($106.45) is pure finesse with a dramatic and exciting vanilla character. Heritage ($151.38) is complex and may be compared to Hennessy Paradis, but with a more evolved aroma.

Tres Vieille Champagne ($208.51), is a single cask, 1937 vintage. Normally, to be most interesting, cognacs need to be blended. This is an exception.

While we recommend that the hand-crafted cognac artistry of A. de Fussigny be drunk neat, this holiday season, there's a new wave "cocktail" enjoyment for cognac, particularly in the VS category. The current trend, begun in New York City, is to shake up America's idea of a classic cocktail by serving the Hennessy Martini.

Fill a shaker with ice. Add 2 ounces of Hennessy VS and squeeze in one lemon wedge (½ teaspoon). Stir gently, don't shake. Let settle. Strain into a chilled martini glass. Garnish with a lemon peel.

Gingerbread cookies are ornamental

AP — Gingerbread cookies look beautiful on the tree, if they're not eaten first! When baked cookies are still warm, use a wooden pick to make holes at the top. After decorating the cookies, thread string or ribbon through the holes and hang as ornaments.

ORANGE SPICED GINGERBREAD CUTOUTS

½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup butter, softened
¾ cup light molasses
1 egg
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
2½ cups all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
For the frosting:
4 cups powdered sugar
½ cup butter, softened
3 to 4 tablespoons milk
2 teaspoons vanilla

In a large mixer bowl, combine brown sugar, the ½ cup butter, molasses, egg and orange peel. Beat at medium speed, scraping bowl often, until smooth and creamy, about 1 to 2 minutes. Add all remaining dough ingredients. Reduce speed to low. Continue beating, scraping bowl often, until well mixed, about 1 to 2 minutes. Cover, refrigerate for at least 2 hours.

Heat oven to 375 degrees F. On well-floured surface, roll out dough, one-half at a time, keeping remaining dough refrigerated, to ¼-inch thickness. Cut with 3- to 4-inch cookie cutters. Place 1 inch apart on greased cookie sheets. Bake in a 375-degree F oven for 6 to 8 minutes or until no indentation remains when touched. Cool completely.

In a small mixer bowl, combine all frosting ingredients. Beat at low speed, scraping bowl often, until fluffy, about 1 to 2 minutes. If desired, color frosting with food coloring. Decorate cookies with frosting. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

When it's cold outside, warm up with hot drinks

Bavarian tradition had this wine being made in a crock and then, just before serving, a red-hot poker would be inserted into the mixture. The poker, in addition to heating the wine, made it luminous, thus the name Gluhwein or "glowing wine." If you don't have a poker, heat slowly in a saucepan or over a candle.

GLUHWINE

- 1 quart red, white or rose wine
- ½ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon allspice
- ¼ teaspoon cloves
- ½ teaspoon fresh grated nutmeg

Combine all ingredients in a saucepan and heat gently. Stir until sugar dissolves. Serve in preheated mugs.

What's the difference between gluhwein and glogg? The addition of raisins, cardamom, almonds and water. Glogg originated in Sweden but it's as easy to prepare as gluhwein.

GLOGG

- ¾ cup golden plump raisins
- 1 tablespoon whole cardamom
- 2 teaspoons whole cloves
- 1 cinnamon stick
- 1½ cups water
- 1 quart red, white or rose wine
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup blanched almonds

Rinse and drain raisins. Peel and crush cardamom. Combine raisins with spices and water in a saucepan and simmer 30 minutes. Strain, combine with wine, add sugar and heat thoroughly, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Serve in preheated mugs with almonds and raisins in each cup.

OLYMPIC WINE TORCH

makes 20 servings and looks great in a large punch bowl
3 cups apple juice

- 1 lemon peel cut into thin strips
- 20 whole cloves
- 5 cinnamon sticks
- the juice of 1 lemon
- ½ gallon dry red wine
- ¼ gallon port
- ½ cup brandy

Combine apple juice with the lemon strips, cloves and cinnamon sticks. Simmer 15 minutes. Strain, add lemon juice and wines and bring to a simmer. Heat brandy briefly, ignite and ladle slowly into the hot wine. Serve in preheated mugs. If you have trouble igniting brandy: after heating the brandy slowly, take a tablespoon of it and place it on a sugar cube in a spoon. When the cube has soaked up some of the brandy, light it and empty it into the vessel with the remaining brandy. The sugar will act as a wick, keeping the flame alive!

HOT SANGRIA

2 grapefruit, unpeeled

- ½ gallon dry white or red wine
- 6 cups apple juice
- 1½ cups frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- ¾ cup lemon juice
- 1 lemon, sliced thin
- 1 orange, sliced thin
- 4 teaspoons brown sugar

Cut grapefruit into 8 wedges. Combine with wine and juices and let stand, covered for 6 hours. Add lemon and orange slices and allow to stand for 1 hour. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Remove grapefruit wedges, orange and lemon slices. Heat liquid over low heat. While liquid is heating, peel grapefruit and press fruit wedges in brown sugar and bake until sugar forms a hard coating, about 5 minutes. Place each wedge in a preheated mug or large stemmed glass, ladle in the hot liquid and add orange and lemon slice. Note: it is important to allow the mixture to stand for at least 6 hours with the grapefruit wedges because the liquid will absorb a subtle tartness from the skin!

BULLSHOT

- ½ cup hot beef bouillon
- 1½ ounces vodka
- dash salt
- dash fresh ground pepper

HOT BUTTERED RUM

- For each serving:
- ¼ cup boiling water
- ¼ cup Sanders Caramel sauce
- 1 cinnamon stick
- 2 ounces rum
- 1 tablespoon butter
- fresh grated nutmeg

In each cup, measure the boiling water and caramel sauce and stir to mix using a cinnamon stick. Add the rum and top with a pat of butter. Sprinkle with fresh grated nutmeg if desired.

DARCY'S CLASSIC TOM AND JERRY

- For the batter:
- 6 eggs, separated

- 1¼ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- pinch each of salt, cinnamon and nutmeg

To make the drink:
½ oz. brandy
½ oz. whiskey boiling water
3 large spoonfuls of batter cinnamon and nutmeg to garnish

To make the batter, separate the eggs. Beat the whites 7 minutes with the salt until peaks form. Add 1 cup sugar slowly and beat another 8 minutes until stiff peaks begin to form. Beat yolks with remaining sugar and vinegar for 10 minutes. Fold yolk mixture with the whites.

To make the drink, place liquors in a large mug. Add batter and fill mug with boiling water and stir gently. Sprinkle with nutmeg and cinnamon.

Remember: friends don't let friends drive drunk!

Keep Christmas breakfast menu simple

Christmas morning is a magical time for children and grown-ups alike. And the pile of presents under the tree takes precedence over breakfast. But as soon as the last package has been opened, everyone will be ready to eat.

This is one time when you'll want to keep the menu simple, but festive. To temporarily satisfy post-Santa hunger pangs, start with juice or fruit in front of the tree. (Grown-ups will appreciate freshly brewed coffee or tea as well.) A blend of cranberry and orange juice or pink grapefruit juice has a rosy holiday color. Or surround a bowl of vanilla low-fat yogurt with thin wedges of red and green-skinned apples for dipping.

For the main event, you can't go wrong with either pancakes or muffins. Cranberry-Banana Griddle Cakes get their festive flavor from sweet-tart dried cranberries in the cakes and convenient canned cranberry sauce warmed and served as a topping. For ease, start with a packaged complete pancake mix and add mashed bananas with the dried berries and wheat germ. The kids will love the crunch that honey crunch wheat germ adds.

To keep pancakes warm until you're ready to sit down, the Quaker Kitchens recommend arranging the cooked griddle cakes in a single layer on a cookie sheet. Cover loosely with foil and place in a 250 degree oven.

Easy Glazed Gingerbread Muffins are just as appealing, and they can be baked ahead. Flavored with molasses and spices, the cooled muffins are topped with a tart lemon glaze. When stirred into muffin batter, wheat germ adds a nutty flavor and wholesome texture.

Most recipes can be easily adapted by substituting 1/2 cup of wheat germ for an equal amount of flour.

Whether you decide to serve the muffins, the griddle cakes or both, complete the menu with mugs of hot cocoa and a side of lean ham or Canadian bacon quickly warmed in the microwave oven. Save time by buying the meat presliced at the supermarket deli.

CRANBERRY-BANANA GRIDDLE CAKES

2 cups complete pancake &

waffle mix
2 cups water
1 cup mashed, ripe banana
1/2 cup wheat germ, any flavor
1/2 cup dried cranberries or chopped dried apricots
1 cup whole berry cranberry sauce

Heat griddle to 375 degrees. Mix pancake mix according to package directions; stir in banana, wheat germ and dried cranberries. Cook pancakes 1 to 2 minutes per side. Serve with warmed cranberry sauce. Yield 15 pancakes

GLAZED GINGERBREAD MUFFINS

1 cup wheat germ, any flavor
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1/4 teaspoon allspice
1 cup skim milk
2 egg whites, slightly beaten
1/2 cup dark molasses
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
Glaze:
1/4 cup powdered sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Line 12 medium cups with paper liners or grease bottoms only. Combine wheat germ, flour, brown sugar, baking powder, ginger, cinnamon and allspice.

Add milk, egg whites, molasses and oil; mix just until moistened. Fill muffin cups 3/4 full. Bake 15 to 20 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool slightly; drizzle glaze (below) over tops.

Glaze: Combine powdered sugar, lemon juice and lemon peel; mix well. If desired, add additional lemon juice for thinner glaze. Yield: 12 muffins.

Nutritional information: Per muffin. Calories 180, Protein 5g, Carbohydrate 30g, Total Fat 5g, Cholesterol 0mg, Dietary Fiber 1g, Sodium 140mg. Percent calories from fat: 23 percent.

Christmas breakfast: After the last gift has been opened, bring out the Cranberry-Banana Griddle Cakes. Pancake mix makes these extra easy, and a combination of mashed banana, honey crunch wheat germ and dried cranberries punches up the flavor. The warm topping is convenient canned cranberry sauce.

Plan not to gain weight during the holidays

FLORINE MARK

LIFE SUCCESS
Holiday entertaining may be helpful to your weight loss program.

That's the jolly news from Weight Watchers. One of the best ways to stay in control of your holiday eating is to entertain in your own home.

When you are the host or hostess, you have the home field advantage. You make the rules, design the menu and stay in charge.

One good choice for holiday entertaining is to plan for activities other than eating. For example, have a caroling party, or a holiday walk to enjoy neighborhood decorations.

Beat statistics which indicate the average person gains between two and 10 pounds between Thanksgiving and New Years. The recipe is simple — all it takes is a little know-how, an extra ounce of control and a sizeable portion of planning.

Here are some helpful hints from Weight Watchers.

Drink lots of water. It will help to fill you up and you'll be putting a curb on your appetite.

Learn to be assertive in any eating situation. A simple and polite "no, thank you," or "yes, this is all I'm going to have" will do the trick. Remember it's your choice and your body.

Focus on the "Reason for the Season." Having a good time is not stuffing yourself with food, but filling yourself with hours of fun and surrounding yourself with family and friends.

Plan ahead. If you are going to a dinner party, eat light at lunch and breakfast that day.

Eat slowly. Put your fork down between bites and join in on the conversation. It takes about 20 minutes for food signals to reach your brain and tell you if you are full. Eating slowly aids this process.

Exercise. Every bit of physical activity helps during the holidays. Besides eating greater amounts of food, the holiday season often brings on additional stress. Exercise not only burns calories and fat, but it's also helpful in relieving stress.

High calorie drinks and punches are common at holiday parties. Ask for Perrier or seltzer water with a twist, instead. Sip your beverage elegantly in a wine glass or champagne flute.

Avoid alcoholic beverages. Alcohol stimulates your appetite, and before you know it — you'll find yourself at the hors d'oeuvres table with the munchies.

Share with a friend. If a piece of pumpkin or apple pie a la mode looks too tempting to pass up, share it with a friend or family member. This way you can enjoy it without having to eat the whole thing.

Make sure you schedule some time for yourself. Added stress and the feeling of being overwhelmed can often lead to overeating.

Remember there is more to celebrating than food. Share funny stories, play a game that everyone will enjoy, rent a classic movie or one of the new releases.

Portion control. Selectively choose what you'd like to eat. Sample a variety of what is being served in small portions.

"Seconds? No Thank you." Tell yourself that you will feel better and will have more energy after the meal if you pass on second helpings.

When holiday grocery shopping, stick to your planned list. Avoid impulse purchases such as packaged holiday cookies and goodies to "have on hand" during the holidays. Chances are they will end up in your hand and then in your mouth.

Don't go to a holiday party "famished." Have a glass of low fat milk or piece of fruit before leaving home. You won't feel the need to "fill up" on snacks once you arrive.

Don't eat just because the people around you are eating. If you aren't hungry, nurse some sparkling water or fruit juice.

EGGNOG

¾ cup thawed frozen egg substitute
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
1 ¼ cups evaporated skimmed milk
½ cup skim milk
¼ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon

¼ teaspoon rum extract
¼ cup thawed frozen dairy-whipped topping Garnish: grated nutmeg
julienne-cut orange zest

In large bowl combine egg substitute and sugar. Add remaining ingredients except whipping topping and garnish. Gently fold in whipping topping until blended. Garnish with nutmeg and orange zest before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Note: Store unused portions in a resealable plastic container in the refrigerator for up to three days.

The zest is the peel without any of the pith (white membrane). To remove zest from orange, use a zester or vegetable peeler, wrap orange in plastic wrap and refrigerate for use at another time.

Great big gum ball

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Trying: Jeffrey Cremering, 3, goes way up on his tip toes in his attempt to secure a gum ball from the giant vending machine at Tel-Twelve Mall. But there was a slight problem with his plan. He neglected to put any money in the machine.

Area soldier helps in Somalia

BY JAY GROSSMAN
STAFF WRITER

Army Staff Sgt. Billie Shelton Jr. doesn't know what to expect. But the 1982 Rochester High School graduate is looking forward to Christmas in Somalia.

"The way I see it," said Shelton, "is my own Christmas might be canceled, but I'm giving Christmas to thousands of people."

His army unit at Ft. Drum, N.Y., is expected to join Operation Restore Hope sometime this week. The 10th Mountain Division was ready to leave for Somalia Friday, but more than a foot of snow in New York delayed the flight.

Contrary to what some might expect, Shelton said he and his fellow soldiers have no reservations about spending Christmas overseas.

"Our morale is really high right now. We had four guys in the unit who were supposed to get out, but decided to stay on just so they could go to Somalia," he said.

"I mean, let's face it, most people think everyone in the army is just trained to kill and kill. This is going to show them the other side."

Shelton, 28, joined the army straight out of high school. His military career took him to Kansas, Oklahoma and Germany. He's been stationed in New York since Nov. 1.

Because the army's primary task in Somalia is to provide aid, and not to restore the government, Shelton said he does not expect to engage in combat with local forces.

He made that comment on Thursday, only several hours after French and American troops had a shootout with a truckload of Somalis.

"I'm hoping to avoid that," he said of the confrontation which left two Somalis dead and seven others injured. "But if it happens, it happens. I know we'll be ready."

He knows there could be trouble. But he also knows the enemy in Somalia is not the people — it's starvation and disease.

"The real key that we have to understand is there are people over there who will still die. Some are past the point of help."

Waiting for Shelton when he returns is his wife Sharon, and their two children. The couple has been married seven years; they met on a blind date in Rochester Hills.

"He's doing a great thing and I'm proud of that," Sharon Shelton said. "Being over Christmas, it's going to be hard. But I understand what he's doing. He's going to help a lot of people."

The couple let their children open a few gifts early, just so Dad could be around to see the fun. It's a routine the kids might have to get used to: Shelton spent five of the last six Christmas holidays away from home.

"You don't like it, but you get used to it," said Sharon Shelton. "I guess it comes with being an army man's wife."

Also waiting for him are his parents, still living in Rochester Hills.

"I'm glad to see him participate, but sure we're a little worried," said his father, Billie Shelton Sr.

"We figure there's going to be some danger, probably from snipers. But we've got to do something. We might have hunger in the United States, but it's an entirely different situation over there."

Nation changes its tune

■ The loss of the percussionist and the addition of a bassist, drummer and backup singers has ushered in a major format change for the once techno-driven Blue Nation which now fronts a harder edged, somewhat bluesy sound.

By LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

Transition is a buzz word prevalent in the Blue Nation vocabulary. That doesn't mean chaos and confusion are backup singers in the band, though.

Which is perhaps the most remarkable attribute of this engaging seven-member outfit, which throws everything from dreamy space-age keyboards, primal hard rock guitar, pulsating techno beats, funky bass rhythms to soothing acoustic folk into their musical equivalent of stone soup.

Members have filtered in and out, musical directions have been altered. Yet, in this seemingly constant state of flux, Blue Nation is a wholly sound and focused outfit. Why?

The answer is found lurking around the analytical tones of lead singer, John Sousanis, who ponders questions like thesis statements. Understandable, he majored in history at Harvard University.

"It's not so much dates or anything," says Sousanis, who specialized in 20th century U.S. history at Harvard. "History, as a college concentration, teaches you how to argue. It doesn't even matter what you think so much. You just pick a side and argue it to death.

"A lot of these songs do that," Sousanis jabs the consciousness, not by championing politically correct causes or admonishing injustices of the past, but rather through raising probing questions about our state of being.

In the number "Lay Your Machine Down," Sousanis asks whether one's blind devotion to his job 40 hours a week is really worth it. The riveting "No Law" is not a call to anarchy but debates the expressed purpose of laws, good or bad.

In the final analysis Sousanis hastens to add, "You've got to write good songs, good melodies. If you don't do that well, it doesn't matter what you say."

"We're in the entertainment business."

In that department, Sousanis has plenty of help.

Blue Nation features original members guitarist Dion Sullivan of Almont and keyboardist Nels Highberg of Ferndale, who've been with the band since its inception two years ago.

Bassist Frederick David, drummer Ben Ridley of Warren along with backup singers Alicia Gbur of Grosse Pointe Woods and Marnni Fielder of Livonia have been added this year. Their arrival ushered in a major format change for Blue Nation, which was a techno-driven outfit until the band's percussionist left abruptly.

Since then, the group has gone for more of a harder edged, somewhat bluesy, sound. "I wouldn't say we've gotten any less danceable," Souranis adds.

On stage, Blue Nation is quite compelling. The band bombards the listener with many musical elements, all corralled by Sousanis commanding presence as a lead vocalist.

Alicia Gbur's acoustic strumming and glowing harmonies provide an "earthy" texture while Marnni Fielder raps on sequenced drum pads. The band's bassist and guitarist ramble about the stage while Ridley, who played in Beer on the Penguin for seven years nails the proceedings to floor with an unrelenting drum beat.

The band's has been buoyed by successful gigs at Club X and are encouraged by a recent new music showcase in Atlanta, Ga. Getting signed to a major label is a priority and has become more of a reality in the last 11 months.

"I think the transition was because of the focus," Souranis says. "One thing we've been good at... is knowing how good we were or weren't. You tend to keep a lot of that stuff to yourself."

"I think this year we've addressed our shortcomings."

Frank Allison gets himself some Sox

By LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

Are the Odd Sox in the musical hamper for good? Frank Allison isn't ready to wad them up just yet.

After the reported demise of his previous outfit, brought on by the defections of guitarist Dan Beckett and bassist John Boyle, the wily singer/songwriter has decided to keep the name Odd Sox for his new outfit after all.

His band's debut this month was under the name Woolly Mammoth. Then, suddenly, he changed his mind.

"We were talking about it last night," says Allison. "The guys said, 'Woolly Mammoth' sounds like it's just you... but we're more like Odd Sox."

The reincarnation features guitarist Kevin Allison (no relation to Frank) along with drummer Rob Hejna and bassist Chris Noteboom. Frank Allison is awash with glowing praise about his new crew of Odd Sox.

"I'm looking forward to the change," says Allison, whose new outfit performs at Lili's and Blind Pig this week. "When we all get together we all click."

Still, there's lingering bereavement for the old Odd Sox, which justly earned the reputation as one of this area's top dance/rock bands.

"I know people would come up to me and say, 'Oh Frank, this is so sad and horrible,'" says Allison. "I was right there with them. I didn't want it to end, either."

Frank Allison & the Odd Sox have done well in their five-year span. They packed clubs, released two acclaimed albums "Monkey Business" and "Hokey Smoke" and received sterling reviews from critics, including one in the New York Times.

Such momentum, though, didn't bring the band any closer to being signed. The strain of personal commitments took their toll earlier this year.

"We did everything right from an artistic standpoint," Allison says. "We had the songs. We had the act. We didn't have the business. Usually, a band has some business go-getters. We didn't really have any of that."

Rather than ruminate on the loss, Allison put together an interim group of musicians and performed a couple of gigs under his own name. His first chore was tracking down a permanent guitarist, imperative to the guitar-rooted songs.

Kevin Allison, who is originally from Colorado, made the process easy. He asked Frank about playing with the band; he had performed with the Rocky Mountain rock outfit Midnight Kitchen.

His tight guitar style should auger well with Frank Allison's hell bent flailing. The change in membership also means new interpretations of many Frank Allison & the Odd Sox tunes, which will still be a major part of the playlist.

"With some of the songs, I told the guys to listen to all the tapes and take out what you like and if you can improve it then go ahead," Allison says.

New Sox: Frank Allison changed his band's name, but then he changed his mind and kept the recognized moniker of Odd Sox.

As a result, some numbers like "Remus Road" have been sped up while others have been streamlined. Frank Allison says his songwriting has also evolved during the transition, whittling out the "deadwood while adding some more interesting branches."

Audience reception has been quite good to the new line-up, Allison says. But it begged the question why he didn't initially retain the Odd Sox moniker in spite of the loss of two members.

"I thought of Woolly Mammoth and I liked it," he said Wednesday.

By Thursday, he apparently changed his mind like he changes his socks.

Frank Allison & the Odd Sox will perform Saturday, Dec. 26, at Lili's, 2930 Caniff, Hamtramck. For information, call 875-6555. The band also performs Thursday, Dec. 31, at Blind Pig, 208 S. First, Ann Arbor. For information, call 996-8555.

Trust your gut reaction and limit daughter's excitement

BARBARA SCHIFF

Dear Barbara, I am the divorced mother of a two-year-old daughter. We live by ourselves and my father, her grandfather, babysits with her often. My mother died five years ago and he was depressed until my daughter was born. Since then, he has doted on her; she is the main focus of his life.

This is great for both my daughter and me, because I want so much for her to benefit from the goodness of a grandparent relationship. This will give her depth and continuity about the importance of family ties.

Obviously, this isn't the whole story or I wouldn't need to write this letter. The problem is that I worry because my father is such a physical man. He throws her in the air, tickles her, holds her until she screams and generally arouses her.

He was and is a wonderful father to me but when I was little my mother was around to keep him more subdued. I remember her saying to him, "Bill, stop getting Mary excited," and sometimes she would take me away from him.

When I was little I never really understood why my mother did this, and sometimes I was angry with her for ruining my fun, but now I worry about my daughter getting over-excited when she is with him like my mother worried about me.

Also, my daughter sleeps at his house and although I have asked him not to, he will let her sleep in his bed when she has a bad dream or is upset in some way. Again, I do not want you to think that I think anything funny is going on because I don't. But for a reason I don't understand — it is just a gut reaction — I am uneasy about this. I would appreciate any comments you could make on this subject.

A worried Mom

Dear Mom,

Trust your gut reaction. This is an issue that is generally not well understood, but very important.

Some time ago, a friend said to me that she had taken her daughter to a psychoanalyst (a psychiatrist with further specialized training) who told her that it is essential to her daughter's mental health that she should never see her parents naked, never be taken into their bed and never be physically over-aroused by either of them. This advice seemed so extreme to the friend that she did not return for further appointments. It seemed to her that to stop these activities would be artificial and make it impossible for the family to relate spontaneously to one another. Subsequently, she took her daughter to a different therapist, one with fewer stringent rules.

She asked me why the psychoanalyst had made those recommendations. "It is clear," the friend said, "that most families do not follow such practice and they don't all raise sick kids."

She is right, but the psychoanalyst sees the ones that are affected and wants to protect others, if she (the analyst is a woman) can. Many adults have difficulty relating sexually because they are physically over-stimulated in childhood. This is true even when the stimulation is sincerely affectionate and loving.

The person each of us becomes in adulthood is a product of both nature and nurture. The equation is a complicated one that no one has ever defined. Some children's natures can withstand any environmental stress. At the other end of the spectrum are the children who will have problems despite the best possible conditions.

There are many variations in between. Thus, the amount of stimulation a child requires and can successfully manage is individual to each child.

Learning about our own children, their individual traits and idiosyncrasies, is the best way to establish child-raising guidelines. But, in general, childhood needs to be a quiet time, in a "good enough" environment that will allow for the development of a strong and independent self.

Don't believe it; it's not a small world after all

JILL HAMILTON

After discovering that Japanese people eat fish for breakfast, I decided to go to the local 7-Eleven for some items from my usual

I just got back from a trip to Japan. Although I hear it's a small world after all, it's not that small. Japan is simply a lot different than suburban Detroit.

How do you mean different, you ask? Well, it's like this...

grease, sugar, and/or salt food groups. Although inside, the store did indeed look like a typical 7-Eleven, upon closer inspection, it turned out to be nothing like what I was expecting. For one thing, nothing was recognizable as any food I'd ever seen and, if it was, the manufacturers had rudely written all the names of the food in Japanese.

In the junk food section — roughly equivalent to the U.S. beef jerky section, I think — there were things like dried tentacles and dried squid. Heading over to the nut section, I found a small bag of peanuts. I was ready to buy them until I noticed that mingling among the peanuts were tiny dried minnows.

I headed up to the counter where a hot plate was warming various items, probably chili or hot dogs. Surprise, they weren't chili or hot dogs, but a plate of fresh, warm octopus arm, complete with large suction cups. Yum.

I lived on rice for a few days until I discovered a McDonald's which had teriyaki burgers and 'McFry Potatoes.'

About two weeks before leaving for Japan, I bought some Berlitz Japanese language tapes which I listened to in the car when there was nothing good on the radio. I learned how to say important stuff like "How are you?" and "Where is the bathroom?"

The booklet that came with the tapes said that Japanese people would be happy and flattered, if I even made an attempt to speak Japanese. I don't know if the people were flattered when I tried, but they sure were happy. A bit too happy, if you ask me.

Even when I said "good afternoon" to anyone Japanese, they would immediately start laughing at my apparently wildly humorous mispronunciations and then answer me in perfectly fine English.

I saw practically no non-Asians during the trip. The same is true for many Japanese people, especially those who live in small towns. Consequently, people stare.

When I was walking down a back street in a small town with my mother, a grandmother spotted us, rounded up the grandchildren and started pointing to us, excitedly shouting "guy-geen, guy-geen" which means "foreigners, foreigners." I said "good afternoon" to her in my usual Japanese-like accent and she stared at me as startled as she would have been if her dog started discussing the philosophy of Jean Paul Sartre.

Other than the food I didn't like being unable to communicate and being stared at like the incredible odd looking foreigner, I had a fine time and can't wait to go back.

How Good Is CARE CHOICES HMO?

"Since I Switched, It's Like Life Got Easier."

Kathleen Klein, Farmington

"Care Choices has always been really good for me. Whenever I've had any questions about anything, all I've had to do is contact our local Care Choices office. They take care of everything right then and there. From emergency calls to routine doctor visits, it's all handled. It's like I give them the problem and I never have to worry about it again. And that's been great."

How good is Care Choices HMO? Just ask anybody from this side of the state to the other. For an introduction to the plan here in Southeast Michigan, call Member Services at 1-800-852-9780.

All-American

Her first year of major college soccer didn't slow Ragen Coyne down much.

The former Livonia Stevenson standout, now a freshman at Notre Dame, was named second team All-American. A midfielder, Coyne scored four goals and assisted on seven others, totaling 15 points.

Also named to the all-Midwestern Collegiate Conference first team and the all-MCC newcomer team, Coyne was instrumental in helping Notre Dame record a 13-5-2 record. The Fighting Irish were ranked 16th in the final national rankings. Under third-year coach Chris Petrucelli, Notre Dame captured its second-straight MCC title.

Salem finishes 1992 with victory

Plymouth Salem's boys basketball team ended 1992 with a 58-48 non-league victory over visiting Ann Arbor Huron.

The Rocks, 4-0 overall, are idle until Jan. 5 when they travel to Waterford Kettering.

Junior forward James Head and senior center Brandon Stone tied for team scoring honors with 14 points each. Senior guard Mike Stone added 12 points.

Huron, 2-2 overall, was led by Zaire Phillips' 24 points.

ter and 32-20 at halftime. But the Rocks outscored Huron 14-5 in the third quarter to gain a 44-37 lead.

"We did better at the offensive end in the second half and took better care of the ball," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "We shot the ball way too quick in the first half. We also kept them off the glass better and kept them to one shot instead of four or five shots like in the first half."

PIONEER 71, CANTON 66: Junior guard Matt Paupore scored a game-high 24 points Thursday but was held scoreless in the second half as visiting Ann Arbor Pioneer came away with a non-league win.

The loss dropped Canton to 1-3 overall.

Paupore, who finished with six three-point shots, scored 18 in the first quarter. But Pioneer managed to be tied 23-23 after one quarter and go ahead 44-42 at halftime.

Pioneer outscored Canton 13-10 in the third quarter for a 57-52 lead.

Pioneer, 2-1 overall, was led by Daniel Okonkwo's 23 points. Teammate Ben Wieland added 16.

Paupore's best support came from junior forward Bryan Whittle (14 points) and senior Brad Paskievitch (13 points, with three three-pointers). Tim Moritz and Albert Hollingsworth played solid defense off the bench.

Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner missed the game with the flu and assistant coach Charlie Paye filled in on the sidelines.

Take down: Plymouth Salem's John Svec applies a hold to Redford Catholic Central's Danny Krueger in the 160-pound weight class. Svec pinned Krueger and Salem won the dual meet 36-29 at CC.

Dad Krueger gets best of sons

It was a family affair Thursday night at Redford Catholic Central as Plymouth Salem's Ron Krueger coached against sons Jason and Danny Krueger of CC.

Bragging rights in the Krueger household over the weekend belonged to Ron, not sons Jason or Danny.

The Plymouth Salem wrestling team, coached by Ron Krueger, defeated Redford Catholic Central and sons Jason and Danny, 39-25, in Thursday's dual meet at CC. The victory was Salem's first ever over the Shamrocks.

CC wrestled without a couple of wrestlers because of injuries but the win was sweet, nonetheless, for the Rocks. Salem was coming off two em-

As for Krueger's sons, Jason won his match at 171 and Danny lost his at 160.

After CC heavyweight Todd Lackey defeated Salem's Ryan Guiliani 4-0, Salem responded with five straight wins, including four by pins.

Romeo Cairo began the streak at 103 pounds with a 9-7 victory over CC's Darne Biamni. The Rocks strung consecutive pins together from Scott Hughes (112), 3:02 over Randy Castro; Brian Herald (119), 2:38 over Tom Warahiake; Mark Burley (125), 1:47 over Chris Church; and Phil Mitchell, 3:45 over Steve Borke.

CC pulled close with a 6-3 win by Joe Wojcik (135) over Dave Craig; a pin by Mike Madden (140) in 5:24 over Steve Hughes; an 11-6 victory by Liam O'Donahue (145) over Aaron Lapinski; and a pin by Jay Listarman (152) in 2:17 over Jamie Breithaupt.

Salem's John Svec followed with a pin over Danny Krueger at 160 in 4:35. CC's Jason Krueger defeated Wade Langdon 13-3 at 171 but Phil Haynes helped seal the win for Salem with a pin in 5:02 over Mark Bracken at 189.

Canton splits

Plymouth Canton lost to Brighton 18-54 but defeated Romulus in a tri-meet Thursday. No score was available for the Romulus match since five weights were forfeited by the Eagles.

Senior Nick Spano, a 135-pounder, led the Chiefs with a pair of wins by falls. Freshman Doug Cooper won a heavyweight match by forfeit and the other by pin.

Spano's progress is no surprise to coach Ray Givens.

"When you're a returning state qualifier you are at a different level," Givens said. "He's conditioning well. I expect him to keep zipping through his matches."

Shamrocks win tournament

Let's get this straight: Redford Catholic Central lost its two big guns, Chad Varga and Bob Kummer, to major college scholarships. The Shamrocks return two starters; they are rebuilding.

Troy is one of the state's premier teams, with plenty of experience. The Colts were ranked sixth in Class A.

At least they were prior to Thursday's game against CC in the opening round of the Clarkston Christmas Tournament, played at Oakland University.

The game had the potential to be a lopsided affair. As it turned out, it was — but not quite as planned. It was CC that looked awesome, clubbing the favored Colts 69-43.

In the win over Adams, CC battled back after trailing 21-19 at the half. The game was close throughout the second half, but the Shamrocks did have at least a four-point cushion throughout the final quarter.

Brian Paluk led CC with 21 points. Jeff Gutt added 10. Adams, which slipped to 1-2, got 15 points from Jon Stanley and 14 from Ryan House.

CC's win over Troy (the Colts are 2-2) wasn't nearly so close. The Shamrocks jumped in front 14-6 after one quarter and extended their lead to 29-16 by halftime. A 20-14 scoring advantage in the third quarter pushed CC's lead to 49-30.

Jay Phifer had 23 points for Troy.

■ GREATER LIFE 59, AGAPE 55: Greater Life Academy of Rochester Hills stayed unbeaten in seven games with Friday's win over visiting Plymouth Agape Christian.

Brandon McKelvey led Agape, 3-3 overall, with 32 points. Peter Meunch added 10 points.

Looking ahead:

Rocks tumble

Senior Matt Erickson was the Rocks' only individual champion with a first-place time of 57.73 seconds in the 100-yard butterfly. Erickson also swam anchor on the Rocks' winning 200-yard freestyle relay that finished in 1 minute, 34.40 seconds.

Fred Locke, Mark Levitt and Alec Beard also were members of the winning relay.

Woodie Thomas and Scott Helmstadter each secured second-place finishes. Thomas scored 217.75 points in diving and Helmstadter finished the 100 backstroke in 1:00.52.

Helmstadter also led off the 200 medley relay that took second in 1:43.52. Swimming with Helmstadter were Phil Hoffmeyer, Erickson and Locke.

The Rocks' other second place went to the 400 free relay team of Beard, Joe Ervin, Chris Lynn and Aaron Berlin that came in at 3:40.35.

Turkey Day Bowl brings together good friends

STEVE KOWALSKI

Instead of cooking turkey, Sirvinskis did his best Keith Jackson impersonations prior to and during the Turkey Day Bowl held at Livonia Stevenson.

Sirvinskis, a 1983 Stevenson graduate, is one of many former Observerland football players who played in the ninth-annual flag football game, organized by Don McGinlay, another '83 Stevenson graduate.

Sirvinskis sounded just like ABC-TV football announcer Keith Jackson as he introduced the lineups before the game between the Mean Machine and Horn Frogs.

Mazzoni (Stevenson), Sirvinskis looked like Miami Dolphins' tight end Keith Jackson as he side-stepped an opponent and rammed another 60 yards for a touchdown.

The play gave the Mean Machine a 48-6 lead and was enough for the Horn Frogs to concede a third-straight Thanksgiving Day defeat.

The Horn Frogs had former Redford Catholic Central all-state receiver Ron Wandzel but it didn't matter since it looked like their game plan was drawn up the night before at the Post Bar.

"They must have figured if the fourth string tight end is going to catch a TD pass they might as well give up," said the 6-foot-1, 290-pound Sirvinskis.

A common bond

The Mean Machine is 9-0 in Turkey Day bowls and has beaten the Horn Frogs by a combined score of 147-54. But final scores aren't what this game is all about.

It's about keeping friendships which started as far back as grade school. Thirteen of the 15 Mean Machine players graduated from Stevenson.

Schneider, Tony Thomas and Rich Weber), two from CC (Wandzel and Chuck Crespi) and one from Churchill (Bob Pensari).

Veteran Mean Machine players look forward to the game. Take Jim Gibson, an '87 Stevenson grad who one year went out the night before dressed in his uniform so he would be ready to play when he awoke the next morning.

Some of the other old stand-bys from Stevenson include Sirvinskis, McGinlay, Mike Arakelian, Jim Carlin, John Carlin, Joe Schlabach, Tim Templeton and Brian Youngberg. Bentley grad Jim Panackia and Novi grad Brian Hanley are other Mean Machine veterans.

"This is not always just a football game, it's a bunch of guys who grew up about a mile radius from each other and remained best of friends," said McGinlay, a Michigan State graduate who works as a sales representative for Cerenex Pharmaceutical.

McGinlay plays in recreation flag football leagues in Royal Oak and Plymouth (why don't we have one in Livonia?). The Mean Machine name came from the movie "The Longest Yard," and McGinlay wears Burt Reynolds' No. 22.

Not necessarily because of his looks.

Carlin took the kidding in stride.

"I just kind of laughed," Carlin said. "I'll play the game as long as they have it."

Most of the Turkey Day Bowl players gave up tackle football years ago, but the Mean Machine added Central Michigan's defensive tackle Mike Nettie (from Stevenson) to the roster this year.

Nettie, a two-time All-Mid-American Conference first-team selection, for some reason wasn't invited to a post-season all-star game for pro prospects. No scouts attended the Turkey Day Bowl but Nettie's TD reception against the Horn Frogs was caught on videotape.

"I'll send the scouts some film," joked Nettie.

AL HARRISON

An old tradition crumbled at Town & Country Lanes last week in Westland when the name Sandra Nowlen was added to the alley's Wall of Fame.

For 32 years the names of all the bowlers who had rolled games of 298 or better, or series of 800 or better, have been placed on the wall. And until last week, all the names were men's names.

That changed with Nowlen, who is from Garden City, rolled a 300. She bowled a 769 series, the highest ever by a female in the house and the highest in the history of the Tri-Cities Ladies Association. Her 300 was the fifth in association history and the first since 1989.

Nowlen, a 1984 graduate of Garden City High School, carries a 178 average in the Monday night senior house league. She also competes in the Area Pro Shop Majors at Thunderbolt.

Nowlen, who currently attends Dorsey Business School, has been bowling seriously for only a couple of years. She said she was only a little nervous in the 10th frame of her perfect game. But when she carried a Brooklyn strike with the 11th ball, she knew the 300 was hers.

By now most bowlers have heard about the sudden death of Bob Bittner last week only hours after scoring the perfect game that had eluded him all his life. He was one of the best bowlers in the city, a member of the Stroh's Beer All-Star team, and came close to 300 numerous times.

A week earlier he pitched a 290 and rolled 14 strikes in a row over a two-game span. He's also bowled several 800 series. But no 300.

Bittner was very well-known throughout the bowling community and was well-liked by all.

"He was a great guy and the best Travel League competitor I ever saw," said Bittner's friend Harry Campbell.

Correction: The 1993 Mixed Doubles Classic Tournament starts Jan. 8 and runs through Aug. 29 at Plum Hollow Lanes. First place is expected to pay $4,000, not $400 as was originally reported. For more information, call Lee Snow at 353-6540.

Farmington names new football coach

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

For a guy who's never been a head coach, Lauri Niskanen sure carries impressive credentials.

Niskanen, a physical education instructor at Dunckel Middle School, takes over for Bernie Call, who resigned after three losing seasons. Niskanen was one of Call's assistant coaches last season and the previous two seasons helped coach the junior varsity and freshmen at North Farmington under head coach Jim O'Leary.

Niskanen is 48. "I think anyone who has worked with Lauri had the opportunity to see how well he works with kids," Holland said. "He has a great grasp of what the game is about, is very sensitive to kids at the high school level and knows kids like discipline and being organized. He'll be a strong asset to what we're starting to establish at Farmington High."

Niskanen was a well-traveled college and professional coach throughout the '70s. He was a linebackers coach at Eastern Michigan University ('70) and University of Minnesota ('71), a receiver coach at Kent State University under Don James ('72-'73) and an offensive and defensive line coach at Ferris State ('74-'77).

Niskanen also was an offensive line coach in the Canadian Football League in '78 for the Hamilton Tiger Cats and in '79 for the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Neither one of those stays was memorable.

"I went to Canada and it was either 'Be good or be gone,'" said

Niskanen. "We didn't win (as a coaching staff) so we were fired."

Niskanen gave up coaching to work as a sales representative in the Detroit area from 1979 to 1990 before becoming a physical education instructor in the Farmington schools.

Niskanen and wife Karol have a son, Matt, who is a freshman football player at Farmington and two daughters, Kathryn (12) and Sara (9).

"I'm old, age-wise, but young as far as coaching wise, and I have a young family," Niskanen said. "Most people my age are involved with grandkids. I'm involved in raising my own kids. I talked to (the Farmington players) Friday and told them I prepared for this day and I'm excited about the opportunity to be a head coach. We'll teach them and make them players."

The Falcons finished only 1-8 last season. Niskanen said of the eight losses, "We were in four, out of four."

Several sophomores saw action on the Farmington varsity last fall and Niskanen believes the year's experience will help.

"Our program just didn't have good representation in numbers the last two years from the junior and senior classes," he said. "We picked up the numbers in the sophomore class — quite a few played whether they were ready or not. At one time we had seven sophomores starting on defense."

As for his first name, Niskanen said Lauri is a popular boy's name in his grandfather's native land of Finland.

Niskanen was born in Hancock, Mich., native and raised in northern Ohio and graduated from Ashland College (Ashland, Ohio) in 1967. Niskanen, a football player at Ashland, was an assistant coach at Wadsworth and Barberton high schools before returning to school at EMU, where he earned his master's degree.

Franklin hockey team can't catch league-foe Lahser

Livonia Franklin rallied from a four-goal deficit Thursday, but host Bloomfield Hills Lahser skated away with a 7-5 Suburban High School Hockey League victory at the Detroit Skating Club.

The loss dropped the Patriots to 2-4-2 overall and 1-4 in the league.

Dan Nacinovich paced the victorious Knights with three goals and two assists.

Shane Hastings had two goals for Franklin, while Kevin Bernard, Dominic Catanzarite and Joe O'Connell added one apiece.

Darren Catanzarite and Dave Proctor each collected two assists.

Mark Valente then scored the game winner after a Patriot was called for hooking.

The Knights followed by adding an empty-netter.

On Wednesday, Franklin defeated Saginaw Heritage, 7-2, in a non-league at Edgar Arena.

Goalie Dan Schemanske stopped 27 of 29 shots.

Jeremy Klosowski paced the Franklin offense with four goals, including a short-handed and power-play goal. He also scored what proved to be the game-winner early in the third period to break a 2-2 deadlock. (Franklin went only to outscore the Hawks 5-1 during the 15-minute span.)

Proctor, O'Connell and Mike Tyler also scored for the winners.

Hastings had four assists, while Derek White added two. Scott Weier, Darren Catanzarite and Bernard chipped in with one each.

HOCKEY

leading Livonia Stevenson to the victory over host Bloomfield Hills Andover in a SHSHL game at the DSC.

Stevenson is now 5-3 overall and 4-0 in the Suburban circuit.

Ryan Guskic chipped in with four goals and three assists. Teammate Scott Worthen also had a seven-point night with one goal and six assists.

Mark Magnusson and Ryan Schmidt each contributed four goals and two assists.

Matt Mulcahy
Stevenson coach

Mike Schmidt and Doug Gulau added four and three assists, respectively.

Goalie Daryl Chamberlain, who made 18 saves, recorded the shutout.

Matt Mulcahy said. "We got scoring from every line."

"And I was proud that we did not retaliate and get silly penalties. We got hammered a lot, but only got two penalties."

Shamrocks win tournament

Let's get this straight: Redford Catholic Central lost its two big guns, Chad Varga and Bob Kummer, to major college scholarships. The Shamrocks return two starters; they are rebuilding.

Troy is one of the state's premier teams, with plenty of experience. The Colts were ranked sixth in Class A.

At least they were prior to Thursday's game against CC in the opening round of the Clarkston Christmas Tournament, played at Oakland University.

The game had the potential to be a lopsided affair. As it turned out, it was — but not quite as planned. It was CC that looked awesome, clubbing the favored Colts 69-43.

On Friday, the Shamrocks doubled their win total and evened their record at 2-2 by edging Rochester Adams in the tournament championship game, 48-44, at OU. Troy lost its second straight, falling to Clarkston in the consolation contest 46-45.

In the win over Adams, CC battled back after trailing 21-19 at the half. The game was close throughout the second half, but the Shamrocks did have at least a four-point cushion throughout the final quarter.

Brian Paluk led CC with 21 points. Jeff Gutt added 10. Adams, which slipped to 1-2, got 15 points from Jon Stanley and 14 from Ryan House.

CC's win over Troy (the Colts are 2-2) wasn't nearly so close. The Shamrocks jumped in front 14-6 after one quarter and extended their lead to 29-16 by halftime. A 20-14 scoring advantage in the third quarter pushed CC's lead to 49-30.

Andy Slankster and Paluk each poured in 22 points to lead the Shamrocks' barrage. Gutt added 15.

Jay Phifer had 23 points for Troy.

GREATER LIFE 59, AGAPE 55: Greater Life Academy of Rochester Hills stayed unbeaten in seven games with Friday's win over visiting Plymouth Agape Christian.

Brandon McKelvey led Agape, 3-3 overall, with 32 points. Peter Meunch added 10 points.

Rocks tumble

The Plymouth Salem boys swimming team lost its season-opening dual meet Thursday to visiting Dearborn, 108-77.

Senior Matt Erickson was the Rocks' only individual champion with a first-place time of 57.73 seconds in the 100-yard butterfly. Erickson also swam anchor on the Rocks' winning 200-yard freestyle relay that finished in 1 minute, 34.40 seconds.

Fred Locke, Mark Levitt and Alec Beard also were members of the winning relay.

Woodie Thomas and Scott Helmstadter each secured second-place finishes. Thomas scored 217.75 points in diving and Helmstadter finished the 100 backstroke in 1:00.52.

Helmstadter also led off the 200 medley relay that took second in 1:43.52. Swimming with Helmstadter were Phil Hoffmeyer, Erickson and Locke.

The Rocks' other second place went to the 400 free relay team of Beard, Joe Ervin, Chris Lynn and Aaron Berlin that came in at 3:40.35.

Turkey Day Bowl brings together good friends

STEVE KOWALSKI

Instead of cooking turkey, Sirvinskis did his best Keith Jackson impersonations prior to and during the Turkey Day Bowl held at Livonia Stevenson.

Sirvinskis, a 1983 Stevenson graduate, is one of many former Observerland football players who played in the ninth-annual flag football game, organized by Don McGinlay, another '83 Stevenson graduate.

Sirvinskis sounded just like ABC-TV football announcer Keith Jackson as he introduced the lineups before the game between the Mean Machine and Horn Frogs.

"Keith is my favorite (voice to impersonate), he's the king of college football," said Sirvinskis, a Mean Machine member.

Mazzoni (Stevenson), Sirvinskis looked like Miami Dolphins' tight end Keith Jackson as he side-stepped an opponent and rambled another 60 yards for a touchdown.

The play gave the Mean Machine a 48-6 lead and was enough for the Horn Frogs to concede a third-straight Thanksgiving Day defeat.

The Horn Frogs had former Redford Catholic Central all-state receiver Ron Wandzel but it didn't matter since it looked like their game plan was drawn up the night before at the Post Bar.

"They must have figured if the fourth string tight end is going to catch a TD pass they might as well give up," said the 6-foot-1, 290-pound Sirvinskis.

A common bond

The Mean Machine is 9-0 in Turkey Day bowls and has beaten the Horn Frogs by a combined score of 147-54. But final scores aren't what this game is all about.

It's about keeping friendships which started as far back as grade school. Thirteen of the 15 Mean Machine players graduated from Stevenson.

Schneider, Tony Thomas and Rich Weber), two from CC (Wandzel and Chuck Crespi) and one from Churchill (Bob Pensari).

Veteran Mean Machine players look forward to the game. Take Jim Gibson, an '87 Stevenson grad who one year went out the night before dressed in his uniform so he would be ready to play when he awoke the next morning.

Some of the other old stand-bys from Stevenson include Sirvinskis, McGinlay, Mike Arakelian, Jim Carlin, John Carlin, Joe Schlabach, Tim Templeton and Brian Youngberg. Bentley grad Jim Panackia and Novi grad Brian Hanley are other Mean Machine veterans.

"This is not always just a football game, it's a bunch of guys who grew up about a mile radius from each other and remained best of friends," said McGinlay, a Michigan State graduate who works as a sales representative for Cerenex Pharmaceutical.

McGinlay plays in recreation flag football leagues in Royal Oak and Plymouth (why don't we have one in Livonia?). The Mean Machine name came from the movie "The Longest Yard," and McGinlay wears Burt Reynolds' No. 22.

Not necessarily because of his looks.

One of the Mean Machine's heroes was Jim Carlin, who played despite having his left hand amputated last summer after being diagnosed with skin cancer that is now in remission. Carlin played on the offensive and defensive lines but he also caught a pass, prompting Gibson to compliment him on his "nice hand."

Carlin took the kidding in stride.

"I just kind of laughed," Carlin said. "I'll play the game as long as they have it."

Most of the Turkey Day Bowl players gave up tackle football years ago, but the Mean Machine added Central Michigan's defensive tackle Mike Nettie (from Stevenson) to the roster this year.

Nettie, a two-time All-Mid-American Conference first-team selection, for some reason wasn't invited to a post-season all-star game for pro prospects. No scouts attended the Turkey Day Bowl but Nettie's TD reception against the Horn Frogs was caught on videotape.

"I'll send the scouts some film," joked Nettie.

AL HARRISON

An old tradition crumbled at Town & Country Lanes last week in Westland when the name Sandra Nowlen was added to the alley's Wall of Fame.

For 32 years the names of all the bowlers who had rolled games of 298 or better, or series of 800 or better, have been placed on the wall. And until last week, all the names were men's names.

That changed with Nowlen, who is from Garden City, rolled a 300. She bowled a 769 series, the highest ever by a female in the house and the highest in the history of the Tri-Cities Ladies Association. Her 300 was the fifth in association history and the first since 1989.

Nowlen, a 1984 graduate of Garden City High School, carries a 178 average in the Monday night senior house league. She also competes in the Area Pro Shop Majors at Thunderbolt.

Nowlen, who currently attends Dorsey Business School, has been bowling seriously for only a couple of years. She said she was only a little nervous in the 10th frame of her perfect game. But when she carried a Brooklyn strike with the 11th ball, she knew the 300 was hers.

By now most bowlers have heard about the sudden death of Bob Bittner last week only hours after scoring the perfect game that had eluded him all his life. He was one of the best bowlers in the city, a member of the Stroh's Beer All-Star team, and came close to 300 numerous times.

A week earlier he pitched a 290 and rolled 14 strikes in a row over a two-game span. He's also bowled several 800 series. But no 300.

Bittner was very well-known throughout the bowling community and was well-liked by all.

"He was a great guy and the best Travel League competitor I ever saw," said Bittner's friend Harry Campbell.

Correction: The 1993 Mixed Doubles Classic Tournament starts Jan. 8 and runs through Aug. 29 at Plum Hollow Lanes. First place is expected to pay $4,000, not $400 as was originally reported. For more information, call Lee Snow at 353-6540.

Farmington names new football coach

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

For a guy who's never been a head coach, Lauri Niskanen sure carries impressive credentials.

Niskanen, who has been an assistant coach at the high school, college and professional levels, is the new varsity football head coach at Farmington High School, Farmington schools athletic director Ron Holland announced.

Niskanen, a physical education instructor at Duncle Middle School, takes over for Bernie Call, who resigned after three losing seasons. Niskanen was one of Call's assistant coaches last season and the previous two seasons helped coach the junior varsity and freshmen at North Farmington under head coach Jim O'Leary.

Niskanen is 48.

"I think anyone who has worked with Lauri had the opportunity to see how well he works with kids," Holland said. "He has a great grasp of what the game is about, is very sensitive to kids at the high school level and knows kids like discipline and being organized. He'll be a strong asset to what we're starting to establish at Farmington High."

Niskanen was a well-traveled college and professional coach throughout the '70s. He was a linebackers coach at Eastern Michigan University ('70) and University of Minnesota ('71), a receiver coach at Kent State University under Don James ('72-'73) and an offensive and defensive line coach at Ferris State ('74-'77).

Niskanen also was an offensive line coach in the Canadian Football League in '78 for the Hamilton Tiger Cats and in '79 for the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Neither one of those stints was memorable.

"I went to Canada and it was either 'Be good or be gone,'" said

Niskanen. "We didn't win (as a coaching staff) so we were fired."

Niskanen gave up coaching to work as a sales representative in the Detroit area from 1979 to 1990 before becoming a physical education instructor in the Farmington schools.

Niskanen and wife Karol have a son, Matt, who is a freshman football player at Farmington and two daughters, Kathryn (12) and Sara (9).

"I'm old, age-wise, but young as far as coaching wise, and I have a young family," Niskanen said. "Most people my age are involved with grandkids. I'm involved in raising my own kids. I talked to (the Farmington players) Friday and told them I prepared for this day and I'm excited about the opportunity to be a head coach. We'll teach them and make them players."

The Falcons finished only 1-8 last season. Niskanen said of the eight losses, "We were in four, out of four."

Several sophomores saw action on the Farmington varsity last fall and Niskanen believes the year's experience will help.

"Our program just didn't have good representation in numbers the last two years from the junior and senior classes," he said. "We picked up the numbers in the sophomore class — quite a few played whether they were ready or not. At one time we had seven sophomores starting on defense."

As for his first name, Niskanen said Lauri is a popular boy's name in his grandfather's native land of Finland.

Niskanen was born in Hancock, Mich., native and raised in northern Ohio and graduated from Ashland College (Ashland, Ohio) in 1967. Niskanen, a football player at Ashland, was an assistant coach at Wadsworth and Barborton high schools before returning to school at EMU, where he earned his master's degree.

Franklin hockey team can't catch league-foe Lahser

Livonia Franklin rallied from a four-goal deficit Thursday, but host Bloomfield Hills Lahser skated away with a 7-5 Suburban High School Hockey League victory at the Detroit Skating Club.

The loss dropped the Patriots to 2-4-2 overall and 1-4 in the league.

Dan Nacinovich paced the victorious Knights with three goals and two assists.

Shane Hastings had two goals for Franklin, while Kevin Bernard, Dominic Catanzarite and Joe O'Connell added one apiece.

Darren Catanzarite and Dave Proctor each collected two assists.

Franklin trailed 3-0 after one period, but tied it up at 4:24 of the third period, 5-5, on O'Connell's goal.

Mark Valente then scored the game winner after a Patriot was called for hooking.

The Knights followed by adding an empty-netter.

On Wednesday, Franklin defeated Saginaw Heritage, 7-2, in a non-league at Edgar Arena.

Goalie Dan Schemanske stopped 27 of 29 shots.

Jeremy Klosowski paced the Franklin offense with four goals, including a short-handed and power-play goal. He also scored what proved to be the game-winner early in the third period to break a 2-2 deadlock. (Franklin went only to outscore the Hawks 5-1 during the 15-minute span.)

Proctor, O'Connell and Mike Tyler also scored for the winners.

Hastings had four assists, while Derek White added two. Scott Weier, Darren Catanzarite and Bernard chipped in with one each.

HOCKEY

leading Livonia Stevenson to the victory over host Bloomfield Hills Andover in a SHSHL game at the DSC.

Stevenson is now 5-3 overall and 4-0 in the Suburban circuit.

Ryan Gusic chipped in with four goals and three assists. Teammate Scott Worthen also had a seven-point night with one goal and six assists.

Mark Magnusson and Ryan Schmidt each contributed four goals and two assists.

"They (Andover) thumped us pretty good, but we concentrated on putting the puck in the net. We got scoring from every line." Matt Mulcahy
Stevenson coach

Mike Schmidt and Doug Gulau added four and three assists, respectively.

Goalie Daryl Chamberlain, who made 18 saves, recorded the shutout.

"They (Andover) thumped us pretty good, but we concentrated on putting the puck in the net," Stevenson coach

Matt Mulcahy said. "We got scoring from every line."

Procrastinators: Here's some 11th-hour shopping solutions

The clock is ticking. You've almost run out of time, patience and dollars. But don't panic yet. I'm about to share some great last-minute gift ideas. This is a selection of no-hassle, imaginative solutions to your 11th-hour shopping needs.

You thought you remembered every one of the kids' teachers, but Johnny just informed you that you missed Mrs. Brown, the art instructor. Why not head over to Grunwald's House of Fudge in Plymouth for a tin of hand-dipped chocolates ($7.95)?

House of Fudge specializes in peanut and cashew brittle, truffles, mint smoothies decorated with wreaths and poinsettias ($4.50), and of course mouth-watering flavors of creamy homemade fudge. Featured for the holidays is Traverse City chocolate cherry nut fudge made with American Spoon Food cherries and walnuts.

Rose Morse of Devil's Lake was among the many shoppers sampling confections on a recent weekday. She chose prewrapped gifts of red- and green-striped chocolate-covered pretzels ($3.25) and decorative five-piece boxes of assorted candies ($3.50). "These make perfect teacher gifts," she said. "I also make sure to have some extra tins in the house for my husband's associates. You know, when he comes home at the last minute and says, 'Honey, I need...'" Morse also treated herself to a handful of Christmas tree taffy.

Here's an idea for a delicious hostess gift. Jacobson's specialty store, Sweets and Treats at Great Oaks Mall in Rochester Hills, offers Cinnamon Raisin Twists from the Royal Court Cookie Co. ($5.25). These delectable morsels "for the gourmet nibbler" are a wonderful cross between a cookie and a pastry. Popcorn is always a popular gift, and Sweets and Treats jazzes up the tried and true with unusual flavors such as Cinnamon Pecan Bun Korn Crunch and Chocolate Macadamia ($6.95). The gang at the office will love you.

Of course you can never go wrong with an exclusive chocolate Frango flavor, available at all Hudson's. Try toffee crunch chocolate coffee ($8.25), cocoa ($5.95), or cake ($15).

Art Loft in Birmingham brims with tasteful and elegant gift ideas, and one of the most unusual is a Treasure Candle. Buried within each uniquely shaped candle are crystals, silver charms, pendants or figurines. The candle burns, unearthing wonderful hidden surprises. Ranging in price from about $20-$30, this is a fun and unusual find. The Star of David candle would make a terrific Hanukkah gift.

If you have teenagers on your list, you must see the cozy hand-knit mittens and gloves at Oh Susanna in Birmingham. They come in a wide variety of colors and patterns and are a definite bargain at $7.50.

The perfect stocking stuffer or secret Santa surprise has to be the whimsical ceramic cat or dog pin pictured here ($8). All proceeds from the sales of these charming pins, crafted by Karen Benson, benefit the Michigan Anti-Cruelty Society. Delight a child while helping to save an animal. See these pins at Sandy's Deli in Birmingham, where you can also grab a hot grilled Reuben sandwich and a cup of Matzo Ball soup. How better to end a day of frenzied last-minute shopping?

I need your help in welcoming the new shops to our malls and mainstreets. Please call and let me know your favorite new haunts that have opened in the last four months. Why do you shop there? What treasures do they offer? We'll feature your selections in the Jan. 4 issue.

Here's peeking under your neighbor's tree

Is it too late to get the fruitcake to grandma in Phoenix in time for her holiday breakfast?

Can anyone deliver nephew Johnnie's R.E.M. CD by Christmas so he doesn't think we forgot him again, this year?

And where's Santa when you need him most?

The postal authorities have the following answers to the preceding dilemmas for you:

1. It's too late to send anything you want to arrive by Christmas parcel post (aka fourth class).

2. Dec. 18 was the deadline for First Class deliveries or certain arrival out-state by December 25.

3. Santa is too busy to help you this week, so the postmaster created Priority Mail (two-pounds, two-days, $2.90) to meet your last-minute delivery quandries.

"However, there are private mail services that will make you last minute delivery guarantees," one postal worker who did not wish to be identified explained. "Call around. But don't tell them the post office sent you."

At the malls last-minute shoppers can have their gifts wrapped at service counters set up near the department stores. Many of these wrapping stations send their proceeds to charitable organizations.

With only four days left until Christmas, a long-distance call may be the only present sure to arrive on Christmas Day.

Here's the chance to see what's under your neighbor's Christmas tree.

According to a national survey of 50 retail executives representing stores with annual sales over $19 billion, here's this year's list of the top 10 best-selling gifts:

- CD video units.
- Prepackaged gifts sets of everything from gourmet food to mittens and matching ear muffs.
- "Step" exercise equipment for home workouts.
- New-generation video games: "Street Fighter II" for Super Nintendo and "Sonic the Hedgehog 2" for Sega Genesis.
- Videos: Beauty and the Beast, Sister Act, Fern Gully, 101 Dalmations, and how-to country line-dancing tapes.
- Holiday albums by Neil Diamond, Amy Grant and Garth Brooks.

Men's shopping night: Terry Valentine and his son Bradley, 8, of Westland have their picture taken with Mrs. Santa Claus, Kim Klochko of Dearborn Heights. The pair went shopping at Wonderland Mall's Men's Night Wednesday, and enjoyed complimentary hot-dogs, beverages, and a free gift wrapping service!

NOT JUST FOR SHOPPING...

Malls play expanding role in the community

According to the folks who run the malls, when you make a wish and toss a coin into their fountain, your wish comes true and as a bonus, the money goes to charity. Through the year, but especially at the holidays, malls try to make everyone's wishes come true.

Wonderland Mall catered to men who hate to shop Wednesday night, wrapping their gifts, serving them hotdogs and soda pop, and taking their picture on Ms. Santa Claus' lap.

The evening was light, fun and in the spirit of the season, like all the other community-minded events the mall sponsored this year.

"We raised money for Children's Hospital through a photos-with-Santa benefit," said Kim Fromann, marketing director for the Livonia-based mall. "We had special children's programs co-sponsored by the parks and recreation department. We participated in the Toys for Tots Collection."

Local malls and mainstreets work cooperatively with the communities that support them season after season. However, their leadership role intensifies during the holidays.

Developed as a regional, family-shopping center, the Livonia Mall works closely with the city year-round. General manager Jeanne Hildebrand sits on several boards and committees, bringing a personal commitment to her job.

'City within a city'

"As a mall manager you are running a city within a city," she explained. "You are part of what makes that city succeed or fail. It's just natural that you take part in what's going on in that city."

The Livonia Mall picks up the tab for the city's annual Christmas parade, held in partnership with several community organizations.

The mall is open to early morning walkers, health-o-ramas, church and school performers, the Goodfellows and the Salvation Army.

This year alone they hosted benefits for the Wayne County Reading Council, the Wayne County Child Abuse Program, the Muscular Dystrophy Association, the Michigan Cancer Foundation and the American Red Cross.

The Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn sent a crew of mall employees and a puppeteer over to Children's Hospital last week to read to patients confined for the holidays.

Each child was given a book and cassette tape as a gift.

"We also had a special Santa for the hearing impaired," said Linda McIntosh, director of marketing for the center. "Our Saturday reading program for preschoolers is well attended. But, I'm most proud of the school program we're starting next year, where receipts from purchases are tallied toward earning encyclopedias and computers."

Walking, aerobics

"Since 32 percent of the population of Dearborn is over 60-years of age, our morning walkers club is booming," she continued. "We have about 2,000 walkers who also attend our aerobics classes twice a week."

The Northland Center in Southfield is another regional shopping area dedicated to serving the surrounding community.

General manager Kathy O'Malley also sits on several boards and commissions, dividing her time between Providence Hospital, The Southfield Downtown Development Association and the Boys and Girls Club.

This year Northland Mall hosted benefits for the NAACP's Education Fund, the St. Pat's Senior Citizen Center and Spalding for Children. Northland Mall gives space to Focus:HOPE and the Organizational Rehabilitation Training Center (ORT) to provide a gift wrap service for shoppers during December.

"Laurel Park Place has 'adopted' the Angela Hospice Care Center of Livonia as a favorite charity," said Michael Buescher, marketing director. "This year marks our third Light Up A Life With Love campaign for the center. We have also opened our doors to the Salvation Army bell ringers. We're delighted to have them here. Throughout the holidays we've been hosting local performers giving holiday concerts."

The malls that have fountains, scoop out the coins once a month and give the bounty to neighborhood charities and the Salvation Army.

"What concerns the community, concerns us," Fairlane's McIntosh explained. "I feel we're in a situation where we must support the community that supports us - and we're glad to be of service. It's a wonderful feeling."

Levinson forces whimsy in 'Toys'

JOHN MONAGHAN

If "Toys" really was a toy instead of a movie, it wouldn't be the kind of imagination-inspiring tin wind-up that the movie lionizes. It would be a slickly packaged, but cheaply made plastic doo-da that looks great in the ads but breaks within minutes of leaving the box.

Barry Levinson's latest stars Robin Williams as a second-generation toy manufacturer at odds with his military-minded uncle. The three-star general inherits operations at Zevo Toys at his brother's deathbed and immediately starts to produce a new breed of war toys.

No ordinary G.I. Joes, these tanks, jets and helicopters carry actual explosives and can be flown via remote-control to enemy military installations via unsuspecting kids on video games. He hopes to impress "The Washington Boys" with the concept of a cost-saving midjet military.

Williams is cast as Leslie Zevo, a delightful spright in a bowler hat who refuses to grow up. He has trouble standing up to the general, however, who has no compassion for the company's credo that toys should inspire kids to create and not destroy.

The comedian is surprisingly restrained here, wisely realizing that what this movie doesn't need is more flamboyance. He does get wound up once in awhile, with his best moments coming in asides, including one about "F.A.O. Schwartzkopf" when he witnesses the deadly potential of his uncle's arsenal.

Good must triumph over evil, but a climactic battle between wind-up toys and the military ones is pathetically done, filmed in a grainy slow-motion effect that might have been effective if a real war movie but not here. As with most of "Toys," I was embarrassed for almost everyone involved.

And there is talent here. As Williams' sister, Joan Cusack works in the paper doll department and insists on modeling life-size versions of her designs. Her dresses have flat fronts and backs, with square fold-over tabs peeking up from the shoulders. But even her good work is throttled by the heavy hand of writer/director Levinson.

Levinson is one of Hollywood's most popular directors, but you have to go back 10 years to "Diner" to find a film that really accomplishes what it set out to do (yes, I've seen "Rain Man.")

There's nothing worse than forced whimsy, except for maybe preachy forced whimsy. Levinson blamed television for the breakdown of the American family in "Avalon." Here, he lectures about military toys and video games, a valid message perhaps, but one delivered with all the subtlety of a Sherman tank.

He has compiled a film with top-notch designers, technicians and actors, but he doesn't have a vision strong enough to bind it all together. The costumes and set design are imaginative in the film's opening Christmas pageant, with kids dressed up like tree ornaments and gingerbread men, but you can't help waiting for something irreverent to chop through all that gooey frosting.

Simply put, Levinson doesn't have the touch. He doesn't know when to wax cute or insightful or when to just plain shut up already. I hope there aren't many gifts like "Toys" underneath my Christmas tree.

'Dr. Quinn' a prescription for romance, adventure

Boston meets frontier in family drama

By Dan Rice

In her new period piece TV series, Jane Seymour strays from the customary glamour of her miniseries, but, thank the producers, her romantic image remains intact. The author of Jane Seymour's Guide to Romantic Living manages to pull some heart strings in a frontier setting in Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman, which has a preview on Friday, Jan. 1, then enters its regular time slot on Saturday, Jan. 2.

Shot in soft, warm hues, Dr. Quinn is visually inviting. In the years following the Civil War, Dr. Michaela Quinn (Seymour) is a Boston physician who shares a practice with her father, also a doctor. His death brings an end to her practice in the city, for without his credibility, Michaela is not accepted in her profession by reason of gender. Believing she will only find work in another world, Michaela responds to an ad for a town doctor in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Upon her arrival in the Rocky Mountain mining town, Michaela learns the prejudice against female doctors exists there as well. The Rev. Johnson (Geoffrey Lower), who placed the ad, wants to send her back to Boston when he discovers she's not a man, but Michaela holds firm with the help of two allies: Charlotte (Diane Ladd), the town mid-wife, and Sully (Joe Lando), a tomahawk-toting, enigmatic young man who is a liason to the local Cheyenne tribe.

Michaela finds that getting her first patients is as hard as pulling teeth, but she perseveres, only to have new troubles in her life: Before dying of a snakebite, Charlotte requests that Michaela take care of her three children, played by Chad Allen, Erika Flores and Shawn Toovey. Then Michaela becomes involved with the Cheyenne, who are being forced into conflict by the Army, and Sully, her knight in moccasins, becomes a closer friend.

Seymour, herself the daughter of a doctor, was immediately drawn to the character.

"I like the idea of a woman who is more than just a survivor," Seymour says. "She's a woman who's strong, courageous, and who deals with adversity with the best of feminine instincts."

Executive producer Beth Sullivan is equally thrilled with the casting. "(Seymour) seemed to be the perfect blending of someone who could portray Boston — carry it with her inside — and yet still have the guts to jump on a horse and let her hair fly."

To avoid the harsher weather of Colorado, the series was lensed at California's Paramount Ranch. As for historical accuracy, Dr. Quinn rates better than average. The medical wonders Michaela brings to the frontier consist of only a few powders, ointments and a crude stethoscope, and there is plenty of bite-the-stick anesthesia and kitchen-table surgery for Western-movie fans to appreciate.

Seymour takes her new character and all the trappings in stride.

"I'm an actress. I Play it all. That's what I love to do."

The Marquis Theatre-

An Historic Note

The Marquis Theatre, A Northville historic landmark, is a beautifully restored structure with almost eighty years of rich history and tradition. Elegantly constructed along a Victorian theme, it was built as an opera house and later presented live vaudeville. Charlie Chaplin and Mary Pickford were among the stars who appeared at the theatre. Movies followed live shows, but during those years the theatre was allowed to deteriorate.

The Zayti Family purchased the Marquis in 1971 and began restoration in 1978. Working along with the crew, they discovered many hidden treasures. The theatre's original glass French doors were found intact under plywood panels. Craftsmen removed eight coats of paint to reveal the original splendor of the black walnut ticket booth. The handsome old brass door handles were found backstage and were painstakingly restored to their original condition. They were reunited with the doors, which now stand proudly at the lobby entrance.

The interior of the theatre has been extensively refurbished. The space in the lobby, where the beautifully designed stained glass windows are now located, was once an open space. It allowed patrons, for a mere 5¢, to listen to, and enjoy, the live entertainment of the day. The lushly upholstered seats, with the wrought-iron framework, were chosen to re-create the original Victorian theme.

The year's productions continue a tradition of quality and professional entertainment. The Marquis has presented hit shows (Oklahoma, Carousel, Gypsy, A Little Night Music, Annie, Nunsense, and Driving Miss Daisy); top performers (Count Basie, Woody Herman, The Ink Spots, The Pied Pipers, The Four Lads, The Harmonicats, and the Four Freshmen); and Classical musicians (Flavio Varani, The American Trio, Ervin Monroe). The Marquis Light Opera has become a resident professional company and will regularly present fully staged light-opera and operettas. In recent years the Marquis has been specializing in children's theatre, capturing the imagination of our young audiences with feature shows such as Peter Pan, The Wizard of Oz, Charlotte's Web, Rumpelstiltskin, and many more.

STAR NOTES

Heston twixt heaven and Hell's Kitchen

By Dan Rice

Charlton Heston knows the value of good material. The star of the biblical epics The Ten Commandments, Ben-Hur and The Greatest Story Ever Told now lends his powerful voice to the four-part performance documentary Charlton Heston Presents the Bible, starting Sunday, Dec. 20, on A&E.

The actor worked his way up from a humble beginning. Born Charles Carter, the Michigan native studied on an acting scholarship at Northwestern University before enlisting for a stint in the Air Corps. Back in civilian life, Heston and his wife, Lydia, moved to New York's Hell's Kitchen, where he worked sporadically as an artists' model before getting his first break in community theater.

After his 1948 Broadway debut in Antony and Cleopatra, Heston found work in the new medium of live television, in programs such as Studio One. He crossed the bridge to Hollywood in 1950 with the film noir Dark City. Since then he has made his mark as the lead in many historical dramas, but his roles in fictional films are equally memorable: Ruby Gentry, Treasure Island, Planet of the Apes, Will Penny and Soylent Green are but a few.

Politically outspoken, Heston has served six terms as president of the Screen Actor's Guild and chairman of the American Film Institute, but is not interested in public office.

E! big enough for women, Stern; romantics to get their own channel

E! Entertainment Television is working with the Los Angeles chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) to develop programming addressing a variety of women's issues as they pertain to entertainment. The relationship began when NOW threatened a boycott effort in response to E!'s hiring of abrasive talk-show host Howard Stern.

Howard Stern

An American export to Russian television is CBS Week, a hodgepodge of news, entertainment, reality and children's programming anchored by Dan Rather. After CBS Week's seven-day run beginning Monday, Dec. 21, Russian State Television will air CBS' 60 Minutes on a monthly basis and the reality-based Rescue: 911 every week. By the middle of 1993, these broadcasts will come to combine Russian and American segments and have a Russian host.

American Movie Classics plans to launch a second channel, Romance Classics, in early 1994. The 24-hour premium channel, targeted at women, begins with a library of over 1,000 romance-movie titles and plans to develop original series and full-length specials based on romance novels. Romance Classics will also cover society and celebrity weddings.

On Friday, Joan Lunden serves as host for ABC's coverage of Disney's Very Merry Christmas Parade.

Marcus Allen and the Los Angeles Raiders take on the Washington Redskins, Saturday on NBC.

Conan softens image for cartoon series

By Chris Carpenter

Since 1933, books about Conan, a warrior from an age of wizards and kings, have held the imagination of armchair adventurers. More recently, Conan has become a Marvel Comics superhero and the protagonist of two films starring Arnold Schwarzenegger.

This season, a younger, gentler Conan has turned up in Conan, the Adventurer, a syndicated weekly cartoon saga. Conan is a robust action series strong on fantasy and imagination and light on hacking and gouging.

Though he's more humane, Conan still champions the cause of justice, but quick thinking and some cleverly drawn escape routes allow him to do so minus the bloody swordplay. Where the gore is no more, catty humor and magical meanings abound.

The 18-year-old hero brandishes a sword forged by his father from a metal discovered in the wake of a meteor shower. His friends include the telepathic Needle, archer Falkenar, circus girl Jezmine and the good wizard Greywolf. There's also Conan's black stallion, Thunder, who can outrun any horse. Together, they seek the villain Wrath-Amon, who has turned all the inhabitants of Conan's village to stone. The episodes unfold in comic-book fashion, with flashbacks smack in the middle of a story line.

Conan may speak softly and carry a big sword, but, remembering he could put an eye out, he never uses it.

SOAP TALK

Familiar faces return to daytime

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: What is happening on Days of Our Lives? I was just getting used to the new Carrie and now she is off the show. —A confused Days fan in Oklahoma.

Dear Reader: There was no explanation as to why the show decided to drop Tracy Middendorf, who had portrayed the character since January 1992. Christie Clark, who previously played Carrie, took over the role as of Friday, Dec. 18.

There are some other familiar faces turning up on the soaps. On The Young and the Restless, Cynthia Jordan reprises her role as Paul's ex-wife, April. Jordan originated the role in 1979 then left the show in 1982.

Colleen Dion has left The Bold and the Beautiful and can now be seen as Brett Gardner on Another World.

Dear Candace: I wonder if you could get the three television networks to reduce the background noise on their programs. I can never hear what the actors are saying.

Also, the bedroom scenes are revolting. I am especially disappointed with the actions of the unmarried couples. There is all this talk of abstinence, but then there is no example set on television for children. Sometimes when actors and actresses are kissing on screen it looks as though they are ripping each other's tonsils out.

TV is a wonderful invention but not when it is used to degrade human beings with foul language, sex and violence. Can't the executives at the network see what they are doing to our children? —A viewer from California.

Dear Reader: Many viewers agree with your comments about sex and violence on television. There is too much on television, and I think it is the parents' responsibility to choose the programming their children watch.

I write about the soaps, and these programs are written for adults and contain adult situations. Most of the soap opera producers realize there is a younger audience watching daytime programming, and they try to focus on social issues concerning teenage pregnancy, AIDS, date rape and child abuse.
