New plan muddies millage iss

A new state school reform package backed by Gov. John Engler turned out to be a curve ball for Plymouth-Canton schools. The package ensures that $5,000 is spent on each child annually, but muddies the waters for a proposed 4-mill property tax increase on the June school ballot.

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

If finalizing next year's budget hasn't given Plymouth-Canton school officials a headache, it will now.

Superintendent John Hoben was among those listening in Lansing Monday as Gov. John Engler outlined a compromise school finance plan that voters may see on the ballot in a statewide June 1 election.

If the measure, which would partly switch reliance for school funding from the property tax to the sales tax, does end up on the ballot, it creates questions about Plymouth-Canton

Lots of questions

Many questions remain unanswered, say Hoben and Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business, who plan to meet with their attorneys to discuss how to proceed.

What's proposed is as follows: A constitutional guarantee of $5,000 per pupil in annual revenue.

Local school boards would have the power to levy up to 20 mills to fund K-12 school operations. Districts could levy, with voter approval, an additional 5 mills.

Additional funding would come from the state. State revenue would be gleaned from an increase in the sales tax from 4 to 6 percent. Property assessments would be constitutionally capped at 5 percent or the rate of inflation, whichever is less. The property tax assessments for 1994 would reflect levels effective in December

Busing concerns parents

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

Plymouth-Canton school officials have wrestled for months with how to make ends meet in the 1993-94 budget. Among options they've considered is eliminating bus transportation, which would save about $1.4 million next year.

Plenty of unsolicited suggestions were offered to the board Monday night at an explosive meeting attended by about 350 people.

Responsible for the standing-roomonly crowd in the Plymouth Canton High School Little Theater were the district's bus drivers, who distributed fliers last week notifying students and parents that transportation was on the board's cut list.

When school board president Roland Thomas outlined the revised list of proposed cuts, it was evident the elimination of busing was no longer a consideration.

Nonetheless, citizens' comments took two-and-a-half hours, and several individuals spoke to the busing is-

The Hilltop Golf Course clubhouse was condemned Friday, and attorneys for Plymouth Township and the course manager are trying to agree on temporary facilities for the season.

On March 9, township trustees approved placing a temporary clubhouse at the golf course, as the clubhouse was then called unsafe.

But the action on Friday means the current clubhouse can't be used by the public. The township is seeking to locate at least one temporary trailer at the site. The course operator would like several.

"Effectively the course is shut down right now; it is an unfortunate situation," said Ronald Burke, attorney for course manager John Jawor.

Burke said Hilltop has lost some business from those who run golf outings because of the uncertainty over the clubhouse, and some who have golf leagues at Hilltop are also calling. with concerns.

Township building director Charles McIlhargey found last fall the current clubhouse was structurally unsafe, as Jawor has sought a new clubhouse, but township officials say budget constraints rule out quick action on building one.

"I don't blame the present administration, nor is it the fault of my client," Burke said, on the current lack of a clubhouse at Hilltop. "The inspector did what he had to do."

Burke and a township attorney met Monday to discuss the situation. The township attorney was unavailable for comment Tuesday morning.

"I think the township is trying to work something out," Burke said. "We're just exploring what we can and can't do."

Burke said it was possible but not certain that Jawor - who had a liquor license at the clubhouse now condemned - could use it to serve customers out of a temporary facility.

"One trailer isn't going to do it," Burke said.

Township supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy said the township plans to hire a consultant before the township goes out for bids on a golf course operator, as the current agreement with Jawor is set to expire in November.

McCarthy said the township would like to find a course operator willing to build a clubhouse as part of their contract. She said Jawor is free to bid on a contract to operate the golf

Jeff Howell was disgusted.

"I'm very liberal and reading this stuff makes me angry. It's meant to promote violence," said the 29-year-old Plymouth Township resident.

Howell was shopping at Kroger in the Harvard Square shopping center at Sheldon and Ford roads Sunday and walked to his car to find a white supremacy newspaper on his car.

"It was on a number of cars — about 40 copies altogether," Howell said of the two-page paper called "New Order," with a swastika through the Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro. "We've got intelligence on these groups, though. They tend to go in cycles and the cycles depend on membership and recruitment."

Distribution of the papers, Santomauro said, could mean that there's a recruitment drive in the area. The time of year is significant because it generally appears that such groups come out in the spring, he said.

As long as the group distributing such materials isn't creating a public disturbance, there's

Student design contest sparks new ideas for Ann Arbor Road

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

A waterfall at the railroad tracks over Ann Arbor Road?

That was one of the most striking concepts hatched by students Saturday at the Ann Arbor Road Charette design competition.

And while that's one idea not likely to fly with officials seeking to improve the Ann Arbor Road business corridor, organizers of the competition said Monday they had plenty of fresh ideas to look

The competition attracted about 80 university students from the University of Michigan, Michigan State University and the University of Detroit. The idea for the charette, or design competition, was sparked last fall. Planning commissioners from both Plymouth and Plymouth Township said they were seeking ideas on renovating the Ann Arbor Road business downtown Plymouth and elsewhere. The road marks the city-township border, "They had a lot of great ideas," said David Schaff, city planning commission chairman and an

"I can't say enough positive things," said township public services director James Anulewicz, who said on Monday he was still fired up about the

"There were some pretty wild ideas, but even in wild ideas you can look for the excitement in the effect of those ideas," he said.

An idea shared by several students was a need to draw attention to the intersection of Ann Arbor Road and Main. One drawing showed a structure built "right over the entire intersection much like a French Arc De Triumph would be," Schaff said.

James Anulewicz said those who have concerns about today's youth 'can rest a little easier.'

■ After working with the students, township public services director

"They (students) had to organize their ideas, it was a challenge," said Robert Grese, of the U-M school of natural resources. "I know they enjoyed working with some of the middle school students. I think everybody was impressed with how smoothly the whole charette was run."

Some student designers focused on the branch of Tonquish Creek that flows near the intersection and some suggested underground roads or berms.

For the students, the chamber rounded up pizzas, donuts, fruits, cookies and submarine sandwiches and for dinner, lasagna.

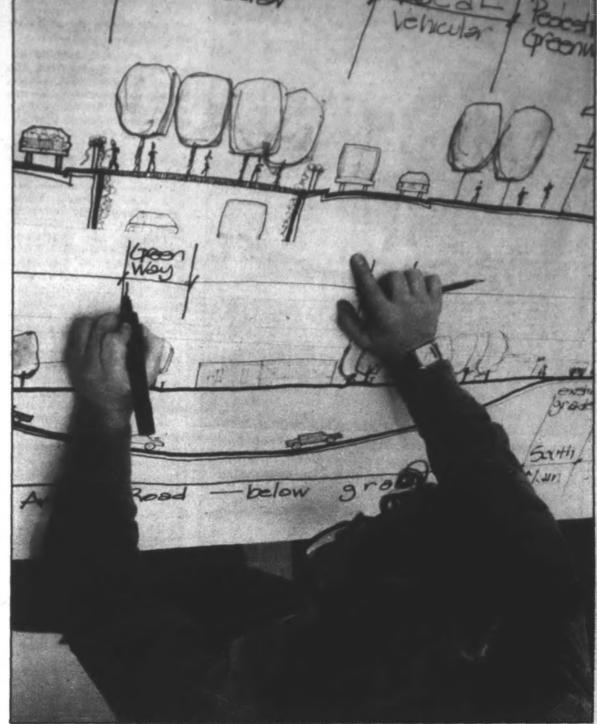

"It was a fantastic experience for the students, said Anthony Bauer, a professor in the MSU department of geography who participated.

"Several had an opportunity to really just pull together all their training from courses," Bauer said. "And they enjoyed the opportunity to be away from faculty critiques.

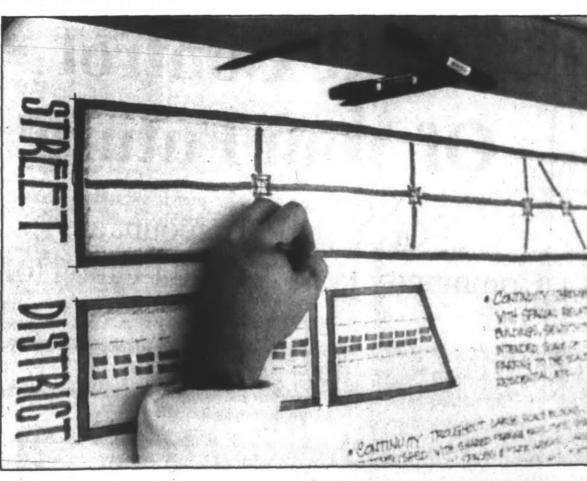

While Bauer said he didn't expect city or township officials to use a student suggestion as a blueprint for design changes, Bauer said, "An experienced professional might see something.

Schaff and Plymouth Township public services director James Anulewicz — a master of ceremonies for the event Saturday - plan to review the drawings before presenting them to the planning commissions and business community.

Winning the $1,000 first prize was the U of M green team. The $500 second place prize went to the MSU Z team and a $250 third place prize went to a University of Detroit team.

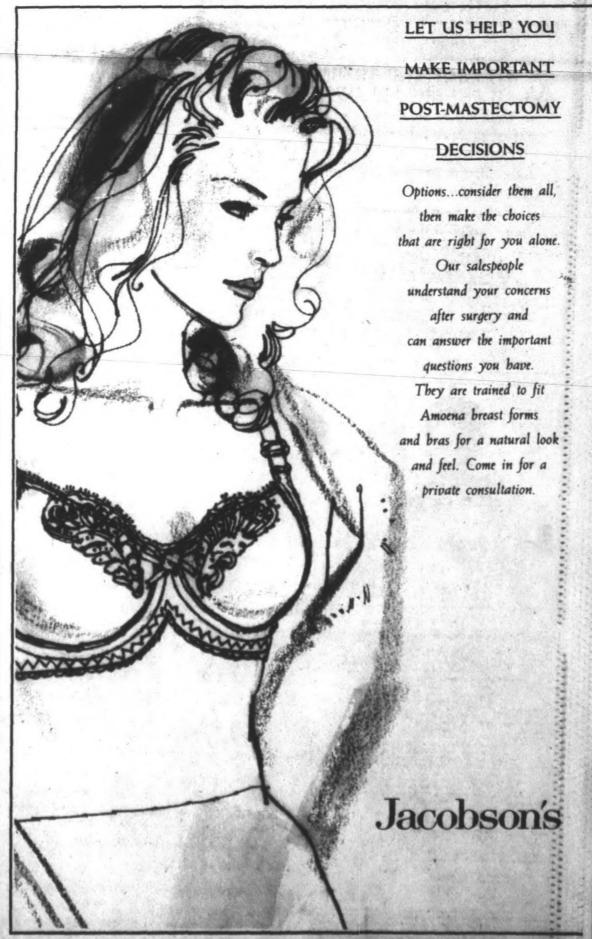

Design time: John Walewski, a landscape student at the University of Michigan, displays his idea for an improved Ann Arbor Road corridor.

Hands on: The competition helped Jim Ptacek, a University of Detroit student, come up with his drawing.

parking lot before the meeting offered a glimpse of how large a problem traffic could be if parents had to drive kids to school, Schloop said.

Without busing and without extracurricular activities (an item on the cut list) what is going to bring people to this community?" asked Connie Tary of Plymouth Township.

Walt McInerney of Canton said there's no way parents can comply with educators' pleas for more involvement in their children's education if they're driving to and from school. "We are busy people. If you require us to drive our kids to school, it's that much less time we have to spend with our children," he said.

Donna Hospodor of Plymouth

Township said that without bus drivers, her son would have to walk to school, passing the area where a female student recently was assaulted.

Donald Horne of Canton said that since he moved here in 1985, there've been four fatalities on Cherry Hill Road near his house. Eliminating busing would further endanger students, he said.

■ The $5,000 per-pupil expendi-ture would be indexed to change each year with changes in the sales tax and lottery revenue.

Plymouth-Canton schools would raise, by levying 20 mills, roughly $40 million, with an addi-tional $35 million coming from the state to meet the guaranteed $5,000-per-pupil expenditure. The district could raise a total of about $50 million by levying an extra 5 mills.

Legislation to help contain K-12 operating costs would include requirements to bid out school employees' health care insurance; reform teacher tenure laws; and bid out transportation, maintenance and grounds services. School districts whose teachers strike would lose 1/180th of their state aid for each day of a work stoppage.

There's support

Unlike school finance reform packages proposed earlier, Engler's appears to have sufficient support and momentum to materialize, say observers. State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, sits on the Education Committee and was present at a Republican caucus last week in which the compromise was hammered out.

It appears to be "one of the best attempts to give property tax relief and address the inequities of not giving schools the necessary financing." Vorva said. "What actual form it's going to take is not easy to determine, but right now it looks like one of the best efforts to do something about the key is-

The vote on the plan is expect-ed within the week. If Engler's plan doesn't get the support of a two-thirds legislative majority, it could still end up on the ballot with a successful petition drive.

As the numbers are worked out, it will become clear whether this is a "true tax break or a tax shift. I haven't seen final numbers. I've run the numbers on my own, and it looks like there's the potential for it to be an overall tax reduction," said Vorva, adding that he's concerned about whether the sales tax might unfairly burden low-income people.

"I'm very pleased the governor has come through and shown that kind of interest and concern."

Until details are worked out, the jury is out with Hoedel as well. "There are so many unclear things about it, but it's less of a reliance on the property tax, so it does help the schools out. I've been saying for a long time we do need to lower property taxes and increase income and/or sales taxes to make up the difference. It takes the burden of the property taxes off, which is really very up-permost in most people's minds."

Tom Yack, Canton Township supervisor and a former Plym-outh-Canton school board mem-ber, likes what he sees.

"One thing I like about it is that it puts together some neces-sary general school finance reforms with educational reforms like bidding out health care and transportation, teacher tenure re-form, and revenue losses for eacher strikes.

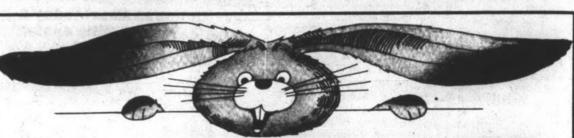

"I'd also throw in another one; a change in the school bond program that has allowed them (administration) to deal with the teachers' union by giving them more money to settle contracts without work stoppages."

While the district would lose a lot of money immediately, "the old days of adult ed being a money maker" will be history, added Yack. "Maybe we will get out of the recreation business."

The provision allowing districts to levy 5 additional mills presents 'a way of recovering those dollars to get back to go," he said.

Engler, said Yack, "made a commitment to do something, and I see this as him fulfilling that promise. He promised he was going to put something before us and he did. We said no, and he is still on the hook. This is a step in the right direction.'

Imagine yourself someday, about 80 years old, arthritic, living in a tiny apartment off a small pension, no family to speak of and

There are plenty such people living in the tri-county area right now, and for some, the only link to the outside world comes from a small social service agency based in Detroit called The Reuther

With a 1993 budget of about $320,000 and a paid staff of 10, the organization provides food, clothing, companionship and entertainment to more than 9,000 senior citizens in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

Funded almost entirely by the United Way now, the 40-year-old center has seen better days when state and federal grants accounted for a large share of a budget that bested a half a million dollars in 1980.

We could not survive without the United Way," said Reuther Center director Ellen Preisman (pronounced prize-men). "They are absolutely our financial underpinning."

The Reuther Center's most visible enterprise are three senior centers, open to anyone 55 or older in Detroit and Pontiac. Seniors can get free legal advice and blood pressure checks at the centers, or engage in a plethora of recreational activities like pinochle, shuffleboard, billiards and pancake brunches

Other seniors serviced by the center are home-bound and poor. Volunteers deliver food and clothing to these people, while other volunteers pledge to make regular phone calls to certain seniors so they have someone to talk to occasionally.

"We're finding more a cople like this," Preisn metimes they don't have kids. Sometimes they outlive their families. Sometimes the kids aren't

His favorite part of the center's method of operation is that every penny of contributions are given to needy

"There's no expense money taken out of any contributions, he said. "We like that. There's no skim-off"

Bird School secretary honored as Extra Miler

Barbara Shobe, secretary at Bird Elementary School, was named an "Extra Miler" at the Board of Education meeting held Shobe has been employed by the district since 1977. She has been the secretary at Bird Elementary School for nearly 10 years. She also worked at the E.J. McClendon Educational Center as assistant bookkeeper and secretary to the executive director of finance.

"Mrs. Shobe's skills, attitude and commitment are exemplary, said Bird Principal Claudia Kulnis. "Her efficiency in the office enables me to spend more time on instructional issues and affords me the opportunity to be in closer contact with teachers, students and classroom activi-

Shobe was nominated for the award by the Bird School staff, the Parent Teacher Organization and the Student Council. In addition to her secretarial duties, she is referred to as the resident computer whiz, counselor, public relations representative and troubleshooter.

She is known for helping with many school projects and programs, such as the School Store, Field Day, Young Authors Cele-bration, Science Fair, the Publishing Center, Apple Aides, the Student Council, Junior Great Books, and the "Students Run the School Day," as well as many special assemblies and fund-ra-

"Barb always goes that 'extra mile' when it comes to helping with PTO activities, school activities, fund-raisers and committees at Bird School," said Linda Kato, Bird parent. "She is an inspiration to the people around her and no matter what the question,

Mrs. Shobe's skills, attitude and commitment are exemplary. Her efficiency in the office enables me to spend more time on instructional issues and affords me the opportunity to be in closer contact with teachers, students and classroom activities.'

Shobe's dedication is best described in nomination letters written by Bird students.

"Mrs. Shobe is not only a great secretary, but a great friend," said a letter from the Student Council. 'When an injury occurs, Mrs. Shobe is always there with a smile on her face.

Bird student Nic Kato wrote, "I think Mrs. Shobe goes more than an extra mile. Mrs. Shobe gives you information, makes phone calls for you and helps you with any problems you might have. All the while she is kind and polite."

The award was presented to Shobe by Board Trustee Lester Walker. He presented her with an "Extra Miler" certificate, a cloisonne pin of the Flag of Learning and Liberty and a dining certificate for two donated by the Mayflower Hotel in Plym-

New plan calls for sales tax increase

She said BLT members were happy with the turn of events.

The "e" alternative wasn't in bill form this week, but its main elements are these:

School operating property taxes, which now average 34-plus mills statewide, would be reduced to 20 mills. That would give a big break to districts like Clarenceville and Wayne-Westland, where rates are 47 mills, an average break to Livonia, where the rate is about 34, and a small break to Bloomfield Hills, where the rate is about 24.

In a special election in June, state voters would be asked to raise the constitutional limit on the sales tax from four cents to Schools would be guaranteed

By legislative act, the state would cap increases in assessments at 5 percent or the rate of consumer price inflation, whichever is less — a boon to area sub-urbs and Great Lakes shoreline towns. Current CPI inflation is about 3 percent.

Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, re-cently introduced a more complex variation of the plan. It calls for equity between districts within regions of the state.

The Michigan Head Injury Alliance is throwing its third-annual Starlight Extravaganza

The fund-raiser beings at 6 p.m. on Saturday, March 27, at the Fairlane Club in Dearborn.

About 22 items will be sold through the live auction and another 235 through the silent

Items in the live auction include: a cocker spaniel puppy; quilts; suites at Auburn Palace and Joe Louis Arena; use of a Cadillac for two months; vacation packages in Bellaire, Harbor Springs and Crystal Lake; and "Coach for a Day" package with the Detroit Pistons.

Items in the silent auction in-clude: jewelry, a television, a spa, dinners, vacations and overnight packages.

Last year, the group raised $30,000. The goal this year is to top that.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the Michigan Head In-jury Alliance and enable the group to continue its efforts to aid survivors of head injuries and their families. Funds will also be used for brain injury education and the development of

Faust falls short in bid to amend auto insurance bill

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Democrat William Faust and Republican Fred Dillingham fell four votes short in the state Senate as they tried to make the auto insurance cost cutting bill, in Faust's words, "even more in the consumers' interest.'

"I know there's a 'no amend-ment' strategy," said Dillingham, of Fowlerville. "I hope it's not a 'no read' and 'no listen' strategy,' said the senator who has become increasingly estranged from the GOP this year.

The Faust-Dillingham substitue lost, 16 yes to 20 no, Tuesday as the bill advanced for a final vote. The debate wasn't over the merit of the amendments but whether it was folly to amend the House-passed bill at all.

Sen. Paul Wartner, R-Portage, who worked on a bill to reduce auto insurance rates for 31/2 years, warned against amending the bill in the Senate because: "If it's amended, it will go to conference committee. It will be stonewalled (by those opposed to the reform). That's exactly what they want."

Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, ridiculed the idea of rejecting amendments. "The Senate is a dead body. What are we doing here? Four people have decided (no amendments). The rest of us must be dead," Faxon said.

In the House two weeks ago, all 55 Republicans and 11 Democrats succeeded in passing House Bill 4156. Backers fear that sending it back to the House for agreement to amendments would allow the Michigan Trial Lawyers Associa-

Koivisto, the Upper Peninsula Democrat, jumped his party's ship to support the House ver-sion, handled floor management of the bill.

He praised the section dropping unlimited medical benefits (catastrophic claims) and substituting a required $1.1 million in insurance for every driver, with insurers required to sell up to $5 mil-

"If unlimited coverage is such a good idea, why is no other state copying it?" he asked. Cata-strophic claims coverage cost $3 when instituted in the early 1980s' and costs $118 today.

On average, auto insurance costs will drop 16 percent. Those who choose the "Cadillac" ($5 million) will pay zero to 5 percent less. Those who buy "bare bones" coverage can save upwards of 30 percent, Koivisto said.

"If I'm wrong, a year from now I will stand up and apologize. If I'm right, you stand up and apolo-gize," Koivisto told opponents.

Historical license plates expire April 15

Historical Michigan license plates issued between 1956 and 1988 will be history in a few

On April 15, historical license plates issues before Jan, 1, 1988, will expire. The Michigan State Department is urging owners of antique cars or motorcycles to ob-tain new plates before driving their vehicles again.

"After issuing Michigan histor-ical license plates for more than 35 years, the time has come for us to place them on a regular renewal cycle," Secretary of State Richard Until 1988, Michigan historical license plates have been issued as non-expiring. According to Austin, the Historical License Plate program was revised to improve law enforcement and to allow the state department updated computerized records and processing.

The revised program will also allow historical vehicle owners to submit historical license plate applications and pay registration fees in Secretary of State branch

Two weeks after the application is received in Lansing from branch offices, applicants will receive the license plate, an expiration tab and proof of registration. Authentic plate applicants will receive only the proof of registration and an expiration tab.

If an historical vehicle owner has an authentic historical license plate, Michigan will allow that plate to be registered. An authentic license plate must be from Michigan, issued during the year that the vehicle was manufac-

The authentic plates, which are often collected or traded by car club enthusiasts, must be registered with the Secretary of State if used on a vehicle.

License plate renewals by mail will still be allowed. The fee for a historical license plate is $15 for a five-year registration period.

The Secretary of State branch offices may not issue temporary registrations.

The new plates look like the old ones - yellow letters on a navy blue background. But the new plates bear an expiration tag.

To qualify as a historical vehicle in Michigan, a vehicle must be at least 25 years old, owned solely as a collector's item, and used only for historical club activities, parades, car shows and other limited special events. It may not be used for routine transportation.

To register a historical vehicle, proof of ownership must be pre-sented. The Secretary of State prefers a title. Proof of Michigan no-fault insurance, a completed application and a $15 fee must also be provided. If applying for an authentic license plate, a pho-tocopy of the plate must also be

Students learn how to make peace

School rooms are often full of kids playing rough house with each other. Such an atmosphere isn't the best for learning, so teachers are teaching them how to make peace.

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

Don't be surprised if someday an Isbister Elementary School graduate steps off a plane in Geneva, Switzerland, to take part in international peace talks.

With his staff, Isbister Principal George Belvitch is teaching peacemaking skills to students in hopes that they become mediators adept at resolving their own conflicts.

"It's extremely important that school kids learn to get along in order to learn. If there's a lot of conflict and negative behavior, it's very difficult to teach children," said Belvitch.

While teachers have their own individual styles of classroom management, "we wanted a common thread as a building." Belvitch has adopted the techniques of "cooperative learning" experts Roger and David Johnson of Minnesota and incorporated them with a few of his own lesson plans. After sharing his knowledge with fifth- and now fourth-graders, students at Isbister are settling their own disputes on buses, on the playground, in school and at home. That's not to say teachers and principals still aren't mediating the more serious disputes, he added. Michelle Ginther, 10, of Plymouth said she thinks the skills will help her and other students in the future. "If you disagree a lot, you can work it out just by talking, instead of not seeing the person for a long time," she

Amy Retherford, 11, and Carla D'Ascenzo, agreed. "You can keep most of your friends instead of losing friends every week."

Students have learned from Belvitch that "the purpose of negotiating is to reach an agreement both people like. A wise agreement must be fair to both sides. To find a fair agreement, you need to negotiate.'

A boy and girl are being chosen in each Isbister class to act as mediators for a day or week, during which time the "mediator" has the option of wearing or displaying a special mediator T-shirt.

EDWIN J. WENSLEY of Spring Arbor College has been named to the Academic Honors List for the fall semester of 1992, earning a grade point average of 3.5 or above on a 4.0 scale. He is a junfor majoring in music education and is the son of Ed and Lois Wensley of Plymouth. Spring Arbor Gollege is a private, four-year Christian liberal arts institution located west of Jackson. The College is affiliated with the Free Methodist Church of North America and is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges.

SCOTT LEFURGY, a senior at Plymouth Canton High School, has been selected to participate in the 1992-93 Michigan Youth Chamber Singers, part of a youth program at the University of Michigan School of Music. Scott, the son of Clark and Sarah Lefurgy in Plymouth, sings tenor and is a member of the State Honors Choir and was a national merit finalist. He is one of 45 students selected in mid-September to participate in the Michigan Youth Chamber Singers. The youth ensembles, conducted by full-time U-M faculty, include the Michigan Youth Symphony, Michigan Youth Band, Michigan Youth Chamber Singers, and the Michigan Youth Jazz Ensemble. A combined total of 240 students from 59 Michigan cities were selected from a talent pool of 450 musicians. Along with the chance to perform, students are offered college counseling and master classes and recitals by additional U-M faculty, as well as opportunities to audition for School of Music and Interlochen Arts Camp scholarships. The ensembles give two performances a year, in the fall and winter, that attract 1,000 concert-goers annually. The next concert for the Michigan Youth Band, Michigan Youth Symphony and Michigan Youth Chamber Singers will take place at 7 p.m. Monday, March 29, at Hill Auditorium on the U-M central campus. For information about the next Michigan Youth Jazz Ensemble concert, contact the School of Music at (313) 763-1279. EAST MIDDLE School students received awards

Growing reform

What plans must involve many school finance reform schemes that plain citizens need help in bushwhacking a trail through them. It may be a jungle out there, but it's clear what is going on here. More money is needed for the schools. The situation has become so desperate that the Kalkaska district has sent students home for the year — 10 weeks early.

ichigan's landscape is growing so

But changes in the way education is financed could happen, if a compromise plan being pushed by Gov. John Engler gets through the Legislature this week. The reform package would raise the sales tax by 2 percent and lower property taxes to 20 mills. Another 5 mills could be levied at a district's discretion.

Enough money would be raised to guarantee every Plymouth-Canton pupil - and Michigan student — $5,000 per year while granting property tax relief. Assessment increases would be limited to the lesser of the rate of inflation or 5

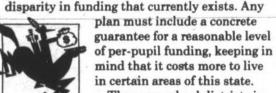

While the plan holds promise for Plymouth Canton schools, it muddies the waters of a school millage election slated for June 14. At that election, voters are being asked to approve a 4-mill property tax increase for two years.

That would raise about $8 million to restore $5 million in cuts made last year when a 1.5mill property tax proposal failed. It would also give the schools money to make improvements.

But there are questions about the need for the millage, if the Engler plan is pushed through. School officials are concerned about the mess and rightly so. There have been so many plans looming over Lansing that promise reform, but never deliver.

There's no one plan that would solve all the problems faced by Plymouth Canton schools. However, here are characteristics that any flowering of change in state school funding must include:

Equity: There is no excuse for the huge

There are school districts in crisis, near their local taxing limit. But wellfunded districts, particularly those in the metropolitan suburbs, shouldn't be robbed of their good programs to help.

The Robin Hood plan to rob suburbs of their hard-earned business tax growth is an abomination that, thankfully, is being strangled in the courts. The new legislative Robin Hood plan to rob suburbs of their costly residential tax base is losing steam. The Legislature's continual paring away of categorical aid and pension funding is a breach of trust and still a cost of living. A dozen times in the last 20 years, Michigan voters have said no to property tax cut schemes. Much as high taxes are disliked, people fear other tax schemes even more, and they don't want change at the cost of hurting their schools.

Good education is our highest priority. If the property tax were cut, the money would have to be made up elsewhere. Groups who look at state business growth rates for extra income probably also can't recognize a desert when they see it.

Not idle talk

our criticism of the current negotiations between Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville, Northville Township, and Canton is unwarranted. Your newspaper has, for the past several months, criticized the local governments for "talking" but doing nothing.

There has been discussion in this community for years about shared services and joint services to reduce costs for everyone, especially Plymouth Township and the City of Plymouth. The government of Plymouth Township was firmly under the control of a political group of people for years, and nothing was ever done, nor any progress made in that area.

The most recent previous supervisor did nothing to promote the process of negotiations on this question.

Supervisor Keen-McCarthy has been in office for less than four months. She and Mayor Jones and administrators from both entities have been meeting regularly on this subject, and have made marvelous progress. We are closer to agreement than has ever been the case for years. In addition, the negotiations and discussions have involved all parties, including the representatives of the employees involved.

Yes, we are "talking." But it's not idle talking. It's real, honest, serious negotiating, taking into consideration the best interests of the taxpayers of both the city and the township, as well as those of the employees.

All of this has been reported publicly at our City Commission meetings, but there have not been interested persons from the local newspapers present to know what progress is being

Dennis F. Shrewsbury, Plymouth

am opposed to government spending on wasteful programs. But our local politicians and the group "Plymouth-Plymouth Township-Canton Concerned Citizens" are feeding the Plymouth-Canton Community disinformation about the State/FAA proposal to purchase Mettetal Airport. Let's set the record straight.

In their flyer this group asked, "Do you want millions of your federal and state tax dollars spent on a small recreational airport that will only benefit a very few?" They didn't tell you that the money to purchase the airport has been collected from the aviation community and that no new taxes have to be collected. The few who will benefit from the purchase of Mettetal Airport have already paid.

The public will benefit, if for no other reason than maintaining a reliever airport to Metro Airport. This is one of the reasons why the FAA is willing to provide 90 percent of the funding, Mettetal Airport is a designated reliever airport for Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

Both federal and state governments collect taxes from the aviation community earmarked for the purchase and improvement of public use airports and the aviation infrastructure. Federal funds have been collected for years and have largely gone unspent. The federal government annually tries to raid this huge trust fund for FAA operating expenses, not infrastructure improvements mandated by the federal legislation. The aviation community supports the taxes for the Airport and Airways Improvement Fund, provided the funds are spent for airport and airway improvements.

Go ahead, ask why the money isn't being spent. Because of the unified federal budget. It goes this way, any taxes collected for any trust fund and not spent for intended purposes, tends to show the federal deficit lower than it really is. They're playing a big shell game with trust fund monies, including social security funds.

This group then twists the truth when they make the next statement "The state and FAA deny the airport will be expanded, however, last year the FAA would not agree to Plymouth-Canton's requirement for non-expansion.

Canton politicians, in their effort to eliminate Mettetal Airport, put forward a proposal to use trust fund money to purchase the airport, then turn the property over to the Canton government to "do with as they may" after only 10 years. In business, actions such as these are considered fraud, but our politicians don't have any ethical problem with this funds diversion.

The aviation community knew that the FAA would not go for this deal, in fact the aviation community opposes this type of deal. The FAA has always required fund recipients to continue aviation operations as a condition of funding. Don't let the politicians and the "Concerned Citizens" fool you, they didn't expect the FAA to accept the deal either, but it was their way of trying to delude the citizens.

Tom Wilson, Plymouth

Bill isn't mean spirited disagree with columnist Jack Gladden. I do not think that the bill to cut welfare payments to parents who won't get up and get their kids to school is mean spirited at all.

I think it is mean and irresponsible of the parents to not care enough to get their kids to school. Why should the state keep paying peo-ple who are so irresponsible? Besides, the less dependent you are on government for your comforts, the harder you will work to obtain them yourself, for the most part.

It's time people stop making excuses for their conditions and take responsibility for their improvement and the betterment of their children. If they are responsible parents, what is there to worry about? If the almighty dollar gets their attention, then good. It will be in everyone's best interest.

Janice Brown, Bloomfield Hills

Move the board

he location for the bulletin board at the Salem Township Hall needs to be changed. It is necessary to walk around the building to see what events are taking place. It would be a service to the community to move the board to a more visible place, possibly next to or above the veterans memorial. This would help the citizens to be better informed on meetings of township importance.

"Elections are not won in campaigns," Staebler used to say. "A campaign is far too late. Elections are won 18 to 24 months before the election, when the ground is chosen and the issues are framed.'

I'm getting the distinct impression the (very) Republican Gov. John Engler is listening more to old Democrat Staebler than most of his likely opponents next November.

The first two years of Engler's term of office were unremittingly partisan and right wing. His main purpose in governing was to cut taxes and slash government spending. General assistance for 80,000 "well bodied" single adults was eliminated. Mental hospitals were closed. General Motors decided to shut the Willow Run plant, in part because Michigan government refused to compete to "outbid" Texas. Democrats started calling Gov. Engler "mean spirited." His personal approval ratings

And in November, Engler watched the Republican president and friend, George Bush, lose the election because he was widely regarded as having no clear plan to fix the economic mess. Engler's only known plan for fixing Michigan's economy, to cut property taxes by 20 percent, was soundly defeated at the same time.

It didn't take the governor long to do a Uturn. Starting with his State of the State speech in January and continuing with his detailed 1994-95 budget proposals last week, Engler has started to build the base for re-election by abruptly changing long-held positions. Some

To me, there's only one way to read Gov. Engler's recent series of initiatives: Having solidified his support among conservatives during his first two years, his job now is to reach to the middle ground

It's smart politics. Very smart.

Bus service confusion

ust read the article regarding Plymouth Township's use of Community Development Block Grants and I would like to provide some clarification on the senior van and transportation programs.

The senior van provides rides to seniors age 60 and over who are residents of Plymouth Township or the City of Plymouth. The area covered by the van is the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township and there is no charge for the service. The new van will be chair lift equipped. Seniors should contact the city or Township hall to request tickets for this ser-

The senior transportation system provides door-to-door service (via a contract with University Transportation) to seniors age 60 and over who are residents of Plymouth Township. This service will take seniors to Plymouth, Canton, Livonia, Northville, Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti for doctor visits, shopping, visiting relatives, education and social activities. The charge for this service is $2 each way.

I just wanted to clear up any confusion. Thanks for letting residents know about these services he enclosed cartoon by Arkie Hudkins in your paper results in the following comments. . . . from 1971 through 1984 I was a federal narcotics agent and executed as the first man through the door and affiant approximately 500 plus search warrants.

Currently the Legislature is considering a no-knock authority" for law enforcement to be utilized in the execution of search warrants.

Under current law and procedures law enforcement personnel are required to identify themselves, state their purpose, wait a "reasonable" amount of time and then may use force to enter the premises. The proposed change would eliminate the identification and statement of

However, as depicted by any local TV coverage of a police raid and/or viewing of TV police "action" shows — search warrant executions are made quickly. In reality, police upon nearing the front porch area begin to identify themselves, state their purpose and demand entry. Any wait — in the vicinity of the front porch area — in real time is very brief.

Drug evidence by its nature and in small amounts can be easily destroyed prior to seizure. A search warrant is only one tool in the police investigation inventory and is not a panacea solution. Law enforcement is a risky business and search warrant executions are dangerous. However, "no-knock authority" is not the answer.

Rather than "no knock authority" the key elements to a successful police raid are good planning and timely execution.

Removing the requirement for police to identify themselves and state their intention could inadvertently result in future injuries.

The federal government in the early 1970s experimented with "no knock authority" because of the many firearms encountered during raids for drugs. However, it resulted in the infamous Collingsville, Ill. raid of a "wrong location" and follow up lawsuits.

The Legislature should just say no to any "no knock authority" — it's a dangerous issue which can only back-fire as proven by the federal government in the early 1970s.

read with a great deal of interest, your editorial (March 15, 1993) regarding Governor

Engler and his ongoing campaign to privatize our state parks.

Replacing Engler

You have probably noticed that his scheme goes way beyond the park system. During his time in office, he will use every means at his disposal to grease the skids to insure that his associates become wealthier at the expense of the rest of us.

His so-called property tax plan will not benefit the vast majority of homeowners and will actually increase the overall tax burden on the working people of this state.

This "fine gentleman" does not appear to be content until he devastates the school districts that have worked hard to be financially and academically responsible to their communities.

Since this governor is already a lost cause (and hopefully run out of town on a rail after the next election), it is extremely important for the Senate and the House of Representatives to be held accountable, if they turn out to be nothing but stooges for Engler and his cronies These men and women must come up with plans that are realistic and fair to our people. If they fail to do the job then we can always give the Governor some traveling companions.

Thought provoking would like to thank Jeff Counts for his thought-provoking editorials in the Observer & Eccentric. Whenever I see his byline, I know I will read something topical, straight-forward and often amusing. I appreciate the way he speaks his mind, writing about topics the way he sees them. While I certainly do not always (agree), I do not think that it is the point to agree but to think about an issue. His editorials have certainly generated a great deal of thinking on my part about subjects which might otherwise never come to my attention. Again, thank you.

am a senior at John Glenn High School. I want to express my concerns about the upcoming millage proposals that the public will be voting on April 5. When I was a sophomore I was directly affected by a millage failure. I am active in my high school and some of the activities I have participated in are: varsity track, varsity gymnastics, marching band, class officers, National Honor Society, Students Against Drunk Driving, Satellite yearbook staff, French Club, and the school improvement team.

In the 1990-91 school year each of these, as well as all other extra-curricular activities, were weakened in some way. In addition to my own experiences, the elementary schools lost a portion of the fine arts programs, the junior high school day was reduced to five hours, and many district employees lost their jobs. From a student's point of view, that year was very difficult

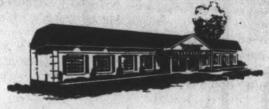

I am now a senior and, though I will not be returning to high school next year, I have a deep. concern for the quality of education that will be available for those whom I will leave behind. I cannot imagine going through another year as I did as a sophomore and I cannot understand why the voting public would allow that to hap-

My request is simple. I am merely asking all voters to support the school district with a vote in favor of the millage proposals. I am not asking this for myself, but for the children who do desperately need your support. I am asking this for the students who only want to learn and have the same great opportunities that I have been fortunate to experience through a strong, supportive, well-rounded educational system.

Please, vote yes and help to insure a strong educational base for children that dream of their future and need this as much as I once

Region profile outlines new challenges

Southeastern Michigan's population is shrinking, aging, diversifying and becoming tougher to

Its median income is stagnant, but its property values are soar-ing. The gap between job loca-tions and the people who need them is widening.

The federal government is "withering away" as it puts more of its revenues into debt service and welfare programs, less into helping local units.

"A downer," said a surprised John Amberger, executive director of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, after seven panelists analyzed the region's past and future on SEMCOG's 25th anniversary.

SEMCOG is a planning and road money allocating agency serving seven counties surrounding Detroit. Born in the '60s in the federal freeway planning movement, SEMCOG is the only place where county, city, township, village and school officials talk common problems under one

Dorothy Beardmore, State Board of Education president, said schools' jobs are becoming tougher because children who would have died are surviving with "special needs," alcohol and family problems affect learning, and television has resulted in a "passive" generation with fewer verbal skills.

"Political power has shifted to the west side of the state," said William Rustem, vice president of Public Sector Consultants. An official in Gov. William Milliken's administration until 1982, Rustem said there is more "smart" development of land and more resistance to taxes today.

James R. Flaherty, partner in the public accounting firm of De-loitte & Touche, said there is an accelerating move toward consolidation and global companies. But as middle managers are perma-nently displaced, there is more "niche retailing" by small shops.

Cooperation good

On the plus side, Livingston County Drain Commissioner Richard Rudnicki saw more cooperation between local governments in attacking problems of water pollution, transportation and air quality. A vice chairman of SEMCOG, Rudnicki saw the regional air quality plan as the result of "a solid partnership, working well."

E.A. Jackson Morris, SEMCOG chairman, said the last 25 years have been characterized by the region's loss of its automaking monopoly, the environmental revolution and the change of the federal government "from financial helper to regulator of local govern-

The profile

SEMCOG, a federal depository of census information, produced a "Regional Profile of Southeast Michigan" which showed:

Population shrank 3.1 percent from 1970 to 1990 - to 4.6 million, Michigan's population rose 4.7 percent and the nation's 22.3 percent in those 20 years.

The median age of the population increased four years to 32.8 years since 1980. Household size declined to 2.66 persons versus the national average of 2.84.

Racial diversity grew. The region is 76 percent white, 21 percent black and 2.6 percent "other." Percentages of Hispanic and Asian populations are smaller than the national average. Arabs and Chaldeans number 80,000, the nation's largest concentration.

Educational attainment is higher than the state average but lower than the national. Of people 25 and older, 19.2 percent in southeastern Michigan had earned a bachelor's degree versus 17.4 percent statewide and 20.3 percent nationally.

Regional employment gained 218,700 from 1980 to 1990 but lost 66,700 of those jobs in 1990-91. ■ Manufacturing jobs fell 124,000

Chiefs have talent to contend again

Soccer veteran: Senior forward Colleen Connell is one of 14 returning players on the Canton team and one of four captains.

With most of its soccer team returning following an outstanding season, the Plymouth Canton girls hope to challenge for the Western Lakes Activities Association and Class A state championships again this year.

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

Nobody should be surprised if Plymouth Canton is playing for the Class A girls soccer championship again this year.

The Chiefs, who were runners-up last season when they lost 1-0 to Rochester Adams in the final, return 14 players from a team that was ranked No. 1 in the last coaches poll and finished 18-1-2.

"We're looking forward to a good season," said Canton coach Don Smith, who begins his seventh season with an 84-17-9 career record. "We'll definitely be a hard team to beat

"It's a matter of winning the big ballgames. If we win a few of those and get something going, we'll be hard to stop."

Among the returning players are all-area standouts Jori Welchans and Leah Hutko, both of whom will serve as captains with fellow seniors Colleen Connell and Kathy Bahr.

Strong senior leadership is a positive feature of the 1993 team, Smith said, adding the four captains have played on the varsity since the ninth grade and are well drilled.

Welchans earned all-state honors following an outstanding junior season in which she posted 13 shutouts and compiled a 0.48 goals-against average, giving up just 10 in 21 games.

She definitely makes us a better team," Smith said. "What worries me is the defense might rely on her to do more than she should. We work hard on everyone pitching in and doing their part to stop some of those shots,

The Chiefs are solid on offense, led by Hutko, who had a great tournament run and scored a team-leading Canton lost starting forward Amy Tortora, one of four seniors (all starters) to graduate. She contributed nine goals and one assist, but the Chiefs will be as well balanced offensively as they were last year.

Connell will start at one forward and either junior Mandy Salin or sophomore Melissa Tomei at the other. Connell had 11 goals and seven assists, Salin eight/seven, Tomei three/five. Senior Erika Swegles chipped in five goals.

Junior Britta Anderson (six/seven) will sit out this season after having reconstructive knee surgery but is expected to return next year, Smith said. Junior Angie Page rounds out the forwards.

"It will be tough marking us because we'll be able to score from a lot of places," Smith said, adding it won't matter who starts because of his rotation system.

The same holds true for the midfielders in terms of depth and unit strength. Christina Stansell graduated but the Chiefs return starters Alyson Noune (junior), Amy Westerhold (senior) and Becki Cifaldi (senior). Junior Robyn Vachow is an experienced halfback also.

"We should be seven deep, so I should be able to run people in and out and keep people fresh," Smith said. "We'll be able to put a lot of pressure on the other team's mid-

Baseball infield is covered with a tarp.

10:15 a.m.: Seats are filling up quickly in the 12,000-seat barn. Tickets are only $8 for all three games.

11 a.m.: Tip-off. High school basket-ball at its best. Ben Davis (24-2) versus Columbus North (17-8) in the first game. Bill Stearman has been the North coach since 1952. Scott George drills a three-pointer to start the game. The 10,000 or so fans go wild. Jason Montague counters with a three-pointer for North. What a start.

12:30 p.m.: Ben Davis holds off North, 67-60. Ben Davis guard Donald Mallory handles the ball just like Isiah

12:45 p.m.: No. 1 Anderson (25-2) takes the floor, led by a chief and a squaw, who stand at attention at midcourt. It's a sea of Green and Red. The Indians bring about 6,000 fans of their own. Cheerleaders do flips and actually get fans involved in cheers. New Castle

Madonna University women's basketball coach Bill Potter is encouraged about his third recruiting class and not just because it includes Central Michigan transfer Shawn Bannon.

Potter has added six players to a team that finished 13-18 overall and earned the first NAIA District 23 playoff berth in the school's history. Potter believes the newcomers should make the Crusaders more athletic.

"We totally went for athletes," Potter said. "We'll definitely be more exciting this year and we'll press more.'

Potter got a head start on his recruiting class when Bannon transferred in last December from CMU, where she started at guard for two years. The 5-foot-3 Bannon, a Livonia resident and Dearborn Divine Child graduate, was COLLEGES runnerup for the Miss Basketball award in 1990.

The Crusaders are losing three seniors, including starting guards Kim Kibbey and Stephanie Niebauer (16 points per game) and starting center Cheri Sangre-

'We feel real fortunate," Potter said. "The circumstances were that Shawn wanted to become a nurse (after leaving CMU) and what better school than Madonna to study nursing? She'll probably be the best guard I'll coach at Madonna. She's very hard nosed and gets into the action which is what we're looking for. She knows what it takes to win."

The Crusaders also signed three high school seniors, including Livonia Ladywood guard Tracy Pryzbylski, who lives in Canton. Pryzbylski was the point guard for the Blazers, who advanced to the Class A quarterfinals before losing to eventual runnerup Charlotte.

"She ran the show over there (Ladywood), slowed it up when they needed to and dished the ball off," Potter said. "She is one of those players that just bugs you (the opponent). You love having her on your team, but you wouldn't want her guarding you."

The other two high school signees are Rachel Emery, a 5-9 guard from Fairview High School near Mio, and Deanna Vudz, a 6foot center from Dearborn St. Alphonsus.

Emery, who has a track background, telephoned Potter about playing at Madonna and later sent a tape of her play at Fairview. The tape was convincing, Potter said.

"She'll definitely help our pro-

Vudz is a shot blocker, according to Potter.

We needed a stopper in the middle and that's what we got," Potter said.

The Crusaders also added a pair of junior college recruits who have the ability to run the floor: 6-foot forward Vicki Koenig, an Oakland Community College transfer who played at Sterling Heights Stevenson; and 5-9 for-ward Denise Williams, an Alpena Community College transfer.

Potter recruited Koenig when he was an assistant at OCC. He spotted Williams last year at a Gus Macker 3-on-3 Tournament.

Koenig averaged 14.5 points and 11.5 rebounds for OCC; Williams averaged 12.5 points, nine rebounds for Alpena.

Koenig was a state qualifier for the 440-yard dash in high school.

(13-11), a cinderella team, is coached by Sam Alford, father of Indiana's former No. 1 son Steve. The Trojana also have a healthy following. It's a sea of green on their side.

1:50 p.m.: Anderson pulls away from New Castle, 85-67. The final starts at 8:15 p.m. 4:30 p.m.; Too many hot dogs and too many games. It's time for a little rest and relaxation at the McWhorters. Little buddy J.B. sug-gests a jog. Not even 12 yet, he takes me on a strenuous 5-mile jaunt which leads us close to Ben Davis High, tonight's finalist. 7:15 p.m.: Back to Hinkle. What an atmosphere for basketball. The place is crowded. It's almost capacity, about 12,000.

Anderson brings even more people for the night session. It's a different world down here. A preliminary to the game is a slam-dunk contest.

8:15 p.m.: Both teams are playing in a frenzy. Kojak Fuller, Ande 5-foot-7 dynamo, is getting off, but Ben Davis leads at halftime. Nicknamed the Giants, Ben Davis cheerleaders chant: "We are, B.D.!"

8:51 p.m.: Another side-show, three-point shooting contest at half-

9:38 p.m.: Anderson is history de-spite Fuller's 47-point performance. This guy plays like Calvin Murphy. He's so fast. He hits 18 of 36 shots from the field. Nobody can block his jumper. Ben Davis, though, celebrates after a tough struggle. The Giants prevail, 69-62. Players are exhausted, some cramping up continuously during the second half. Playing two games in one day is pretty de-manding, but the Giants are elated. They are going to the Hoosier Dome for the Final Four.

10:49 p.m.: Time for J.B and I to stop at Wendy's for a small frosty. Midnight: Let's see, that's seven games in two days.

11:30 a.m. (SUNDAY): The end is near. Final day of action. The Hoosier Dome looks even more crowded. Cars are backed up for miles.

12:49 p.m.: Indiana goes up by 13 on Xavier. Looks like a blowout. 1:43 p.m.: Xavier makes come back, Aaron Williams drives baseline, whirls and puts down a reverse dunk. The Musketeers are within one, 59-58, with five minutes to play. Hoosier fans look frightened. Could this be another upset? 2 p.m.: Indiana hangs on, 73-70.

Rich Weiler, a retired Big 10 official and supervisor for the Mid-Continent Conference, looks puzzled by some of the calls. Indiana does not commit a foul for 11 minutes. Xavier fans cry home-cooking. The fouls in the second half were 15-5, but the Hoosier fans don't care. They can breathe a little easier. Meet me in St.

2:19 p.m.: Xavier coach Pete Gillen addresses the press. He refuses to alibi. "We gave it our best shot," he says. "Indiana will win it all."

2:38 p.m.: Hoosier Dome dark. Power outage. Knight continues to ramble despite lights and mikes going off. Somebody in the press room blurts out that the transformer at the substation across the street blew. Power should be on line soon. Knight quips: "Must be Purdus engineers who wired this place." Oklahoma State-Louisville game is suspended with 18:49 to go in the first half.

3:10 p.m.: Back on line, OSU-Louisville game resumes. Cardinal fans are in abundance. They make their presence known.

3:18 p.m.: There's Dick Schultz, head of the NCAA, sitting in the first row behind the press tables at midcourt. Guess who's sitting only four seats down from him? Sean Sutton. Wonder if they had anything to say to each other.

Madonna diamond teams seeking higher ground

If there is a dry baseball field somewhere in the Midwest, Madonna baseball coach Mike George is going to find it. Well, he's going to try, anyway. Madonna was supposed to christen its new field (Madonna University Park at Five Mile and Hubbard roads) this weekend with three games against College of St. Francis, Ill. Instead, the Crusaders will pack up and head to Chicago to play St. Francis once on Saturday and twice on Sunday.

Madonna, 10-3, will send its top three pitchers at St. Francis, which was ranked No. 13 in the pre-season NAIA poll. Senior right-hander Shaun Hayward (1-0) will pitch Saturday, junior right-hander Lou McKaig (1-0) and sophomore left-hander Jeff Kugleman (1-1) will work on Sunday.
"St. Francis is a good team,"

George said. "They are 3-13 right now, but they played a major college schedule on their spring trip.

Madonna will stay on the road next week, playing at Grand Valley State on Tuesday and at Wayne State next Friday.

The home opener will now be April 3 against Aquinas (1 p.m.). Softball in Chi-townn competitors in the Wayne-Westland Youth Traveling Classic League. Many of the top youth bowlers are involved in one of three popular travel igues, while others prefer to stay home local center. Either way, the talent shows up at an early age.

The up-and-coming stars from the Observer & Eccentric communities are: Joe Niemczycki, 17, of Farmington Hills with a 197 average; Derick Jasper of Livonia with a 190; David Capaldi of Westland, who now bowls for the University of Michigan and averages more than 200; Jason L. Johnson of Canton with a 182; Jeff Mendoza, 16, of Livonia with a 190; Scott Wright of Farmington Hills with a 182; Chris Brugman, 13, of Civonia with a 185; Robbie Lhamon, of Farmington with a 185; Tamika Glenn, 17, of Farmington Hills who averages ore than 190; and Julie Wright of Farmington Hills with a 196.

Glenn and Wright, who have enjoyed success in local and state tournaments, ave aspirations to make it to the Ladies Pro Bowling Tour.

With this kind of talent developing, the future of bowling looks very good for our area.

What's an Irishman to do on St. Patrick's Day? Mike Moyer of Westland had the per-

For the past three seasons, the Farmington Hills Mercy soccer team has grown accustomed to winning, but the two-time Catholic League winners and three-time district champions might see changing times this season.

Mercy coach Deepak Shivraman, entering his third season, is concerned how his team will fare with a stronger schedule and against improved league competi-

"It may be a tough season for us," he said. "In the league, Birmingham Marian has several excellent players and will be very good. Bishop Foley and Livonia Ladywood are also good like usu-

"Our schedule is also very tough. We play Rochester Adams, which won the state Class A title, and will face Birmingham Seaholm.

The Marlins, who were 14-4-3 overall and 5-1-2 in the league, will be without their leading scorer from a year ago, Tania Macioce, who tallied 22 goals and eight assists. She plays for the University of Notre Dame.

Also gone are defenders Shannon Gibbons (Central Michigan) and Leslie Santiago.

Mercy does return senior Carrie Dziadosz, who was second-team all-area. The center midfielder, who had six goals and 16 assists, has already received a scholarship to play at Temple University.

"Her job is to set up people," Shivraman said. "She led us in assists last year and she understands her role. She's looking very strong."

Dziadosz is joined by five other key returnees. Senior Beth Ziobro will lead the defense. She recorded four goals and three assists last season — good numbers for a player at her position.

Junior Flannery Campbell (four/10) will be at left midfield, and junior Anita Wilhelm (two/ five) will play forward.

Sophmores Margaret Wirth (forward), who had 10 goals and 11 assists in her rookie season, and Heather Richards (midfielder), who recorded six goals and six assists, give Shivraman cause for optimism.

"They were both surprises last season," he said. "I had no idea what Margaret was capable of doing. She is very talented and will assume the leadership role after Carrie leaves."

Chiefs

in the midfield and might move Bahr from defense to halfback

"Cifaldi is an opportunistic scorer. She scores when the opportunity is there, but Noune and Westerhold definitely will be looking to score. They like to get up there and mix it up.

The Chiefs were most affected by graduation and player losses on defense. Starters Danielle Meyka (first-team all-area) and Rebekah Raymor graduated, and Amy Toms, who replaced Bahr the last half of the season, moved to Cincinnati. A knee injury put Bahr on the sideline, but she is fully recovered, according to Senior Kelly Reeves is the only returning starter from the end of last season, but Canton has experienced defenders in junior Erica Anderson and Bahr. Canton has added "some other young players who are going to do a good job,' Smith said.

"Actually, we're a lot deeper back there," Smith said, adding the ability of the new players could allow him to move Bahr to halfback. "Usually, I let the defenders go a long time until they really need a break, but I think we'll be able to substitute a little

The Chiefs, who won the Western Lakes Activities Association title and went the entire season without a loss until the final game, will be eager to get back to the championship game.

But they might have to convince some doubters along the way. Smith said some coaches thought the Chiefs were overachievers who experienced good fortune.

"We didn't have a star and they thought they should have been able to stop us," he said. "But team-wise we were pretty solid, and that should hold true again this year."

Both of Mercy's goalkeepers re-turn. Amy Watroba (1.09 goals-against average) recorded six shutouts and played 1,173 minutes in the net. Her backup is sophomore Beth Chmielewski. She had six shutouts last season to go along with a 1.00 goals-against average. Sophomore Sienna DeAgostino (defense), junior Theresa Cisco (fullback) and freshman Anne Foerg (midfielder) will see time on the field this season.

"The key to our success will be our style of play," Shivraman said. "We don't rely on one or two players to score. Everybody had at least one assist last season. Sticking together as a team is a strong point.

The Marlins open their season at Woodhaven on Monday.

Farmington Harrison

Unlike Mercy, a team used to winning, Harrison has found itself at the other extreme.

Since 1980, the first year girls soccer began at Harrison, the Hawks have never enjoyed a winning season, and that trend is apt to continue in 1993.

A total of 12 players - eight starters - graduated off last season's 1-10-1 squad. The team scored only six goals for the entire

"Our last graduating class was actually one of our better classes even though the record didn't show it," Harrison coach Glenn Breuhan said.

Key losses included all-division sweeper Molly Horton and stopper Kelly Choinski. Also gone are both of the goalkeepers, Jen-nifer Bahns and Lesil Jensen.

Harrison's two leading scorers do return. Junior Carrie Earle (two goals and two assists) will start at center/midfield and sophomore Amy Spurlock (three goals) at forward.

Other returning starters are senior sweeper Cassie O'Sullivan and senior midfielder Janelle Kohler (one/one).

Four sophomores will battle for the remaining starting positions. Stopper Kristen Wolters, defender Maria Pinsky, defender Laura Westberg and forward Jenni Japenga will all play this season.

Sophomore Monica Sklar, last year's junior varsity goalkeeper, will start in the nets. Senior Michelle Japenga will back Sklar up.

Crusaders have successul spring trip

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY STAFF WRITER

Madonna University baseball coach Mike George has a sore throat. He is congested. His head throbs. His nose is running. Breathing is a struggle. The man is a walking advertisement for Nyquil.

And he's never felt better.

"I feel real good about my base-ball team," he said on Monday, three days after a week in Cocoa Beach, Fla., where his Crusaders won 10 of 13 games. "For the first time I have enough talent and enough depth where I can do some things, move people around. I'm always optimistic, but I feel like if I can push the right buttons, we have a chance to be real successful this year."

The Crusaders averaged 5.3 runs on the trip, scoring nine or more in four games. Three players hit .400 or better: senior catcher Steve Coffell (.466), sophomore designated hitter Jeff Kugelman (.438) and junior first baseman George Leung (.428). Senior second baseman Joe Brusseau hit .350, junior catcher Chris Gajewski hit .300 and shortstop Jeff Miller hit .297.

"We are going to be a better hitting team than we showed," George said. "We will be a goodhitting team and we are going to hit the long ball, especially in our park (Madonna Park on the grounds of old Bentley High School). And we are going to run more than we have in the past (Madonna stole 27 bases in 29 attempts in Florida)."

Madonna pitching allowed just three runs per game in Florida, with two shutouts. George was especially pleased with his top four starters. Kugelman and senior Shaun Hayward emerged as the team's aces. Hayward was 1-0 in two starts, allowing two earned runs in 14 innings. He struck out 11. Kugelman, 1-1, allowed two runs in 13 innings and fanned 13. Juniors Louie McKaig (1-0, three runs in 9% innings) and Mike Coleman (1-0, four runs in 111/s innings with 16 strike outs) will be the Nos. 3 and 4 starters.

The biggest surprise was the emergence of junior Sean Henkel as the team's closer.

"I've never been big on closers," George said. "I've always been one to let guys finish what they start. But Sean asked me to give him a chance and he really came through."

Henkel saved a school-record four games, pitching 61/2 innings of scoreless relief.

"This is a very focused team," George said. "They want to win and they know how to win. But I still have concerns."

Still fresh in George's mind is his teams' penchant for starting fast and finishing slow.

"We seem to always finish with a puff instead of a bang," George said. "Part of the problem was attitude and the other part was conditioning."

George has hired a weight and conditioning coach (Tim DeBeliso) and put the team through a rigorous high-impact aerobics program. The Crusaders run every day. In Florida, they ran after double-headers, after a triple-header. Conditioning won't be a Attitude won't be either.

"I'm not the same coach that I was before, I'm doing things a lot was before, I'm doing things a lot differently," said George, in his fifth year at Madonna. "I have more confidence in my coaching ability than ever before and we are going to win or lose doing things the way I want to."

Pouting and bickering, George has made clear, will not be toler-

"We had some problems last year that we won't have again," he said. "We have so much talent on this team, these guys know that if they don't produce they won't play. And the guys who aren't playing better stay positive and be helpful, because if they become a hindrance I will get rid of them."

George said the team passed its first attitude test in Florida. After winning five of its first six games, Madonna was hammered twice on Tuesday: 10-2 by Alvernia (Pa.)

and 8-2 by New Hampshire.
"We could have folded up right then and there," George said. "But we had a meeting and talked about regrouping and setting things right." The next day, Kugelman pitched a five-hitter and Madonna scratched out a 2-1 win over Alvernia. The Crusaders went on to win its last four games of the deeper pools to meet standards, but there's no problem with the depth on this year's All-Area boys There's talent galore among the first team and at-large selections, including several from schools in Livonia and Farmington which aren't able to swim at their own pools because they aren't deep enough by Michigan High School Athletic Association standards.

The area had a pair of state champions — Westland John Glenn's Matt Martin and Livonia Stevenson's Alex Goecke.

The future looks promising as well, considering there are five juniors and one sophomore among the nine first-team selections. Following is a profile of each member of the All-Area team:

FIRST-TEAM INDIVIDUALS

Jonathan Kershaw, N. Farmington, 200-yard freestyle: A junior, Kershaw is a repeat choice for first team All-Area in the 200 freestyle. He was fourth in the 200 freestyle (1:43.2) and sixth in the 100 freestyle (47.23) at the Class A state meet. His times in both events were the best in the area. Ker-shaw placed first in the 100 freestyle (48.78) and second in the 200 (1:46.9) at the WLAA meet.

"He's a very dedicated, hard-working swimmer," North coach Jon Teal said. "He'll probably be highly recruited next year, just like Karl (Kozicki)." Karl Kozicki, N. Farmington, 200

All-Area team showcases top swim talent Individual medley: Another junior, Kozicki earned his way on the first team this season after being honored as an atlarge choice a year ago. Kozicki placed second at the Class A meet in the 200 IM (1:56.13) and third in the 500 free-style (4:37.38). Both were lifetime bests. He also was WLAA champion in the 200 IM (1:57.6) and 500 freestyle (4:42.62), the latter being a league meet record. Some area schools might need in the 200 IM and his best 500 freestyle time is a school record.

"Karl is probably our hardest working swimmer and has come around as a team player this year," Teal said.

Fred Locke, Salem, 50 freestyle: A junior, Locke was WLAA champion in the 50 freestyle (22.45) and placed seventh in the event (21.65) at the state meet. Locke also was a member of Salem's three state-qualifying relays. Locke has helped establish school records in the medley relay (1:38.39); 200 freestyle relay (1:27.91) and 50 freestyle (21.65).

"Fred had one of the finest seasons of any Plymouth Salem swimmers ever," Salem coach Chuck Olson said. "Hard work and dedication made Fred one of the state's best freestyle sprinters."

Matt Martin, John Glenn, 100 butterfly: The only reason this senior isn't a repeat selection is because he was trying to qualify for the U.S. Olympic Trials during the 1991-92 season. Mar-tin failed to qualify but made the most of his senior year on the high school circuit at John Glenn.

Martin established a state record by winning the butterfly in 49.49 in the Class A meet and set another record in the backstroke prelims (50.29) before having the record erased by Dearborn's Jeff Neumeyer in the finals.

Martin had Observerland's best times in the butterfly (49.49) and backstroke

(50.39)."He just makes my whole year," Glenn coach Ron Staples said. "His work ethic is above and beyond. He's a kid, in coaching, you dream about that comes around only once in 10 or 20 years. He has so much power in his arms and legs that he just hydroplanes. He just accelerates and snaps through the

Jeff Clark, Canton, 100 freestyle: Clark's first-place finish in the 50 free-style at the MISCA meet was a spring board for the rest of his season. Clark took second in the 50 freestyle and third in the 100 freestyle at the WLAA meet and came in sixth (21.68) in the 50 freestyle at the state meet. He was ninth in the 100 freestyle at the Class A meet and swam on the 400 freestyle relay team that placed 11th at state Winning the MISCA meet in the 50 freestyle gave Jeff a lot of confidence," Canton coach Hooker Wellman said. Being an all-state swimmer will give Jeff more confidence for next year. Jeff works very hard in the pool and the weight room. He's a great example for other kids around him from our team."

Jason Fowler, Canton, diving: Fowler led area divers from the start of the season to the end. He placed 12th in the Class A regional and 21st at the state meet. His best score was 243.90 points. Wellman believes Fowler, only a sophomore, has a chance to challenge at the state meet in the future.

"Jason has changed physically a lot from last year," Wellman said. "He's stronger and with better body control. He has the time and ability to become a state-level diver.

James Leslie, Catholic Central, Catholic League champ in the backstroke and was on the 200 freestyle re-lay. He had the state's best time with a school-record 4:35.73 in the 500 freestyle at the state meet but ended up finishing cond overall. Leslie also was fourth in the 200 IM (1:56.69) at the state meet.

He set a school record last year in the backstroke and helped set a school record in the medley relay. He's a repeat All-Area selection.

"James is afraid of no competitor." assistant coach Bob Kravutske said. 'His will to win is the highest I've ever seen, and he will make a great allaround college swimmer."

Ryan Freeborn, Stevenson, 100 ackstroke: Freeborn took third in the backstroke at the WLAA meet, and he had his best time in the event at the state meet (54.74). He has played key roles in the Spartans' successful relays which earned All-America recognition.

"Ryan has always been there for us," Stevenson coach Doug Buckler said.
"Ryan worked very hard to swim fast and I will miss him. I will always remember him as a leader, as a swimmer and as a great young man.

Alex Goecke, Stevenson, 100 breaststroke: Goecke, a repeat All-Area selection, was an undefeated Class A champion in the breaststroke (56.89). He gained momentum earlier in the season with championships at the MISCA meet and his fourth-straight WLAA title. His best time was nearly five scoonds better than the second-best time in

FIRST-TEAM RELAYS

Stevenson, 200 medley relay: Ryan Freeborn, Alex Goecke, Gordy Gate-wood, Jeff Buckler hold the school record (1:36.57), which gained second place at the state meet. They also were second in the MISCA (1:40.45) and second in the WLAA (1:39.27) meets.

"We knew all year we had one of the best medley relays in the state so we did not try to get all fired up until the state meet," Buckler said. "You only have so many good swims, and we wanted ours to be at the state meet. As a relay team, they worked very hard and I am very proud of them.

Stevenson, 200 freestyle relay: Buckler, Goecke, Freeborn and Gatewood swam a school-record time of 1:27.09 that was good for fourth place at the Class A meet. They took third at the MISCA meet (1:30.09) and won the WLAA meet (1:29.32).

"All year long we talked about finishing in the top six at state and making All-American and the boys did just that," Buckler said. "They worked real hard all year for their swims at state and it paid off."

North Farmington, 400 freestyle relay: Adam Kammer, Kozicki, Ker-shaw and Steve Bocknek were seventh in Class A (3:14.05) and won the WLAA meet (3:17.3).

AT-LARGE INDIVIDUALS

Mike Orris, Canton, 200 freestyle: enjoy a solid dual-meet season, WLAA meet and state meet. He was a state qualifier in four events, taking fifth in the 200 freestyle and ninth in the 500 freestyle. He has already set varsity records in the 200 free (1:43.36) and 500 free (4:44.01) and backstroke (57.06).

"I'm extremely proud of Mike in that he never gave up after being so sick," Wellman said. "He showed our team and other teams a lot of will and charac-

Gordy Gatewood, Stevenson, 200 individual medley: Gatewood was second in the WLAA and sixth in Class A in the 200 IM. Gatewood has been allstate six times in his career, including twice in IM, and three times swam on All-American relays. He was first-team All-Area last year.

"Gordy was a leader and one reason why Stevenson has done so well in swimming over the past years," Buckler said. "Gordy will be a winner in whatever he does. I had a lot of fun coaching

Paul Magoulick, Catholic Central, 50 freestyle: Magoulick's best time in the 50 freestyle (22.19) earned 20th place at the Class A meet. He also swam on the 200 freestyle relay team that was Catholic League champion.

"We're just beginning to see the real talent Paul has," Kravutske said. "He's future all-stater, a very intense

Steve Reinke, Catholic Central 100 butterfly: A Catholic League champion in the butterfly, Reinke qualichampion in the butterfly, Reinke quali-fied for the state meet a second-consecu-tive season. He also swam on the 200 medley relay that was first at the Catho lic League meet. His best time (55.50) was third fastest in the area. Steve has great natural ability and can swim any event," Kravutske said. Craig Steshetz, Canton, 100 freestyle: Steshetz set four Canton varsity records in four years with the team. Steshetz was a Class A qualifier the last three years and this season was a quali-fier in the 50 freestyle and 100 breaststroke and on the 200 medley and 400 freestyle relays. He placed third in the 50 freestyle and fourth in the breaststroke at the WLAA meet.

"Craig has outstanding swimming talent," Wellman said. "He has shown great leadership qualities and plans to swim in college at Eastern Michigan

Daryl Ballios, Canton, diving: The sophomore placed 13th at the Class A regional and was third in the WLAA meet. His highest point total of 238 was second best in Observerland. His chances of making the state meet the next two years are promising since he barely missed qualifying this season.

"Daryl is also greatly improved in his diving skills and like Jason Fowler has the time and ability to become one of the state's better divers," Wellman said.

Scott Brown, Farmington, 100 backstroke: Brown, a sophomore, holds the school record in the backstroke (56.54). He also swims on the school record-setting medley and 200 freestyle

"Scott's a young swimmer with a lot of untapped potential," coach Ross Ban-dy said. "He has a chance to be one of the best swimmers Farmington High School has had."

Dan Barnett, Wayne Memorial, 100 breaststroke: Barnett broke a school record in the breaststroke (1:01.86) and was a Wolverine A Conference champion. Barnett's best time in the 200 IM (2:09.8) was voted the Outstanding Performance at the Wolverine meet. He's also a member of the school-record 200 free relay team.

"Dan is a real hard worker, both in the pool and classroom," coach Mike Gruber said. "Dan set realistic goals at the start of the season and worked very hard to attain each one. As a coach he's the kind of kid you love to work with."

AT-LARGE RELAYS

Salem, 200 medley relay: Scott Helmstadter, Alex Beard, Matt Erick-son and Fred Locke set a school record (1:38.39) with a ninth-place finish at the Class A meet. They also placed fourth in the WLAA (1:41.77) and gave the Rocks a boost in each dual meet.

"The Salem medley relay always got the team started fast," Olson said. "All four swimmers were very capable and experienced."

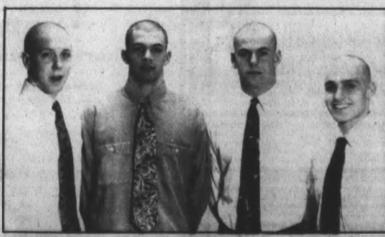

Salem, 200 freestyle relay: Fred Locke, Matt Brickson, Alex Beard and Dave Bracht had a Salem record time by finishing seventh in the Class A meet (1:27.91). They were second in the WLAA (1:30.91) WLAA (1:30.91).

"The 200 freestyle relay was one of the few events in dual meets I counted on for a win and continued to swim at peak level right through the state meet," Ol-

Schoolcraft shines in 'family' drama

Performances of the Schoolcraft College Theatre Department production of "Long Day's Journey Into Night" continue through April 10 on the campus in Livonia. Dinner is at the Waterman Campus Center and performances at the Liberal Arts Auditorium. For ticket information call the college bookstore at 462-4409.

Schoolcraft College's theater department is celebrating its 10th anniversary with a stunning production of Eugene O'Neill's autobiographical master-piece, "Long Day's Journey Into Night." Riveting perfor-mances and skillful staging, together with superb lighting and a fine setting, make for an evening to remem-The driving force behind this classic theater piece from the 1920s is the feeling of "family." Rarely has a theatrical family appeared more real than in this "Journey." Characters interact with subtle nuances. Lines are delivered with such spontaneity that none seem memorized - and what delicious arguments. They seem to build to a crescendo with characters talking at the same time until one is shouted or coerced into submission. They're bone-chilling real.

Tension and a spirit of recrimination fill the stage from beginning to end as the dysfunctional Tyrone family lays bare its soul in the space of one day. The Tyrones love each other for who they are - yet hate each other for what they've become.

At the center of it all is John Drouillard as James Tyrone, a big, barrel-chested Irish Catholic father. Drouillard gives a powerful and commanding performance as a no-nonsense head of a household. Mr. Tyrone is a successful Broadway actor who made money in real estate. His one great flaw is cheapness. He even scrimps on proper medical care for his family, and it threatens to destroy the family he loves so much.

Jerri Doll is marvelous as his mentally unstable, drug-addicted wife, Mary Tyrone. One moment charming and effusive, the next psychotic and suspicious, she rides the roller coaster of emotions seeking the source of her pain.

Their sickly son, Edmund Tyrone, is played by Matthew Riopelle. In reality, Edmund is a surrogate for Eugene O'Neill. Riopelle is incisive as a young man afflicted with consumption (or tuberculosis) and a father with whom he cannot connect. Riopelle slumps in odd corners of the stage. If only he would enunciate more clearly at the beginning of some speeches. It detracts from an otherwise strong performance.

There's also a drunken son, James, played by John McPhail. He is the epitome of a man of little ambition who gets by on his good looks and the charity of others. McPhail's caustic, self-hating speech near the finale is a high point of the evening. Stephanie Lockhart turns in a lively performance as the Irish maid,

It still works in Charles Nolte's new retelling, but this new version is an awkward, flaccid, plodding exposi-

The trouble, as Nolte notes in the program, begins with the book. It is more a philosophical treatise on good and evil done up as a story. Most of Hyde's horrors are suggested rather than dramatized. The story is from been a grabber on the viewpoint of Jekyll's solicitor, stage and screen who gives us Jekyll's misguided dualsince shortly after ist views through a prism of Victorian respectability. Hyde's sins, except for a fatal caning, are not spelled out.

gested in the "lewd crimes" of the But he errs in having Jekyll tell the story, which creates a problem of logic at the end. It also never allows us to see the good Dr. Jekyll that shields the evil Mr. Hyde. Nolte also has Jekyll lecture to the audience about the reasons for his experiment, a device that grows more tedious with each repetition.

The script contains some peculiar Victorian notions. Physical deformity is linked to mental and moral deformity. Evil is reduced to sexual sadism. Is this only in Jekyll's mind?

To enliven the story, Nolte, who also directs this production, has added expressionistic slides and a set that also suggests expressionism in its distorted doors and creaky stairs. It doesn't substitute for a well told

Peter Gregory Thomson does well in the difficult lead. He is matinee idol handsome as Jekyll and a bucktoothed, hunched, hairy, disheveled Hyde and he does it all before our eyes. He is saddled with those speeches that never ring true. The Jekyll of the script is never a nice man. He is ill-tempered and almost childish rather than tortured.

Liz Zweiler gives a touching performance as Hyde's chosen victim. It she had more to do in a livelier music hall setting, we would have more empathy for her fate.

With a lushly romantic score, some of it the most beautiful show music ever written, Stephen Sondheim's "A Little Night Music" gets a handsome, high-quality production at the Jewish Community Center's Aaron DeRoy Theatre. The Nancy Gurwin production features talented vocalists and engaging

Set in turn-of-the-century Sweden, "A Little Night Music" examines different views of love. For some it is a cherished ideal, for some just a game, and for some only a fond memory.

For aging Fredrik Egerman (Kors H. Van Mourik) marrying an 18-year-old is an attempt to capture his youth. But after 11 months of marriage Anne (Lynne Sherwood) his second wife, is still virginal.

When Fredrik is unexepectedly reunited with a former mistress, the famous actress Desiree Armfeldt (Jane Shaffmaster), both start to re-examine their ideas

Meanwhile, Fredrik's son Henrik (Eric Parker), studying for the priesthood, is hopelessly in love with Anne, and Desiree's current lover, arrogant Carl-Magmas (Erich J. Jungwirth), is possessively jealous of her renewed interest in Fredrik. Add in Carl-Magmas' unhappy wife Carlotte (Lori Murphy) and Anne's lusty maid Petra (Ilana Rosenbaum) and ship them all off for a weekend in the country under the watchful eyes of Desiree's mother (Nancy Gurwin), an aged courtesan, and her young daughter Frederika (Sarah Beth Radke).

The beautiful Sondheim score is written completely in waltztime. While the plaintive "Send in the Clowns" is the best known song in the show, other particularly good numbers include "Night Waltz," "The Glamorous Life," "You Must Meet My Wife" and "A Weekend in the Country."

Jungwirth, Murphy and Rosenbaum have particularly strong voices, and the chorus of Gary Lee Temple, Cather Zucker, Maggie

Clennon, Will Rodgers and Lisa Jacobs also sounds very fine. Only Shaffmaster's voice seems thin among all the vocal talent. Radtke is noteworthy as a youngster with strong stage presence.

Director Kathi Bush and music director Martin Burwell once again are successfully teamed, and the show flows seamlessly. Since Sondheim's lyrics tell most of the narrative, it is a pleasure to have them well-enunciated and never overpowered by the musical

Visually the production works well also, with Patricia LaFromboise's frothy costumes and set designer Leonard Walkowicz's floor and sliding panels in soft shades of aqua, mauve and lime

Here sat folks from all walks of life, gathering in a place of worship to listen to a symphony that celebrates goodwill to mankind.

The orchestra burst forth with the arousing first movement. The second movement, a scherzo, capIt was familiar — I realized I had last heard it while viewing Stanley Kubrick's film adaptation of "A Clockwork Orange," which, with its "ultra-violence" is the antithesis of the music's uplifting sentiment. George Bernard Shaw 'reappears' in drama

George Bernard Shaw - the great Irish playwright, wit, reformer, and self-professed social prophet - will "reappear" at 7:30 p.m. Friday, March 26 at Oakland Community College, Royal Oak Campus, 739 South Washington, as Mark McPherson stars in his reason for bringing in a play about Bernard Shaw now is its relationship to March being Women's History Month. Many people may not realize that Shaw was an active feminist who spoke out for the 'new woman' and equality of women."

Schools honor couple

Canton Township residents Don and Jan Kelm were recognized as outstanding volunteers at the Board of Education meeting held on Monday, March 22.

As volunteers at Fiegel Elementary School since 1985, the couple were honored with the "Extra Miler Volunteers in Public Schools (VIPS) Award." The award was established by the "I Care" Committee and the Board of Education in 1991 to recognize individuals who make a difference in the Plymouth-Canton schools.

Board trustee Jack Farrow presented the award to the Kelms and thanked them for their dedicated service to the district. They received a framed resolution passed by the Board of Education, volunteer pins, and dinner gift certificates donated by the Plymouth Landing on behalf of the "I Care" committee.

The couple has one son, Bryan, who is a seventh-grader at Lowell Middle School, and twin daughters, Elizabeth and Laura, who are fourth-graders at Fiegel.

Jan Kelm currently serves as president of Fiegel's Parent Teacher Organization. Through her work as PTO president, she plays a leadership role in all of the school projects. She also coordinates the parent-operated Publishing Center, which prints more than 2,000 pieces of work by students each year.

Don Kelm spearheaded the annual "Fathers' Fall Bar-B-Que" at Fiegel and serves as chairperson of this event, which attracts more than 600 participants and includes more than 60 fathers who serve as volunteers. He also serves as Fiegel's DARE parent coordinator and has organized an evening program which allows working parents to attend their children's DARE graduation.

"The efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Kelm have resulted in wide parent support and involvement for our school, as well as increased learning opportunities for our students," said Barbara Young, Fiegel principal.

REFINANCE

If you originally financed your house at a high rate of interest, come into Old Kent and let us take a look at your mortgage. You may be able to refinance your home at today's lower interest rates — and save thousands.

If you have an adjustable rate mortgage, you may want to switch to a fixed rate so that your interest remains low and doesn't change even if the rates do. Or, if you have a land contract, this may be the time to convert it to a mortgage.

There's absolutely no obligation, so don't put it off.
Find out about refinancing your house before the rates go back up!

WHILE RATES ARE LOW.

Last year one person gave us everything she owned.

Without your donation we couldn't have accepted.

Please read the handwritten note on this page.

It's from a homeless woman. It was left at our door in the middle of the night along with two dogs, Two Face and Magic, pets this woman loved but could not care for.

And could not keep.

Fortunately, we could care for Two Face and Magic. We took them in, gave them food and a warm place to sleep, and found them homes with the two families you see pictured above. This story had a happy ending.

But we get more and more cases like this each year. It's sad. And it gets worse. Some people don't care about animals as much as the woman who left this note.

Some people don't feed their pets. Some maliciously abuse animals in other ways.

Which is why we need your help.

Happy endings for animals like Two Face and Magic only begin with your donation.

Please send us your check today. All we can ask is what a homeless person asked of us: help.

While the auto makers have been experimenting with a num-ber of alternative fuels to comply with the legislation, electric remains the most viable means of zero-emission travel to date.

We've had electric vehicles in our fleet before, and they have proven to be fairly reliable, but I think legislation is starting to drive the industry," said John Ol-sen, electric vehicle program manager for Detroit Edison in Detroit, and a Troy resident.

"In the spring, we'll take delivery of 10 Ford (electric) Ecostars high-tech anti-theft devices, which are gradually replacing the old standbys like The Club or chaining your Mustang to a park-

The basic principle was invent-ed by my daughter, who once came back to her car just as it was being driven away by someone else. She had one of those remote door locking devices they give you so you can work the door locks from a distance, so she immedi-ately punched the button and locked the guy inside, which didn't have any effect on much of anything, but was a start.

Now one company is offering a global service that essentially does the same thing via satellite, but allows you to dial up a tele-phone number and disable the car after you find it missing. You still don't have the car, of course, but at least you have the satisfaction that somewhere out there, the guy

Then there are the tracking systems, like the Teletrac system

Farmington Hills. These are the type that theoretically let the police locate your car by tracking a signal after it is stolen. The signal is silent, which means that when you get to work and are surrounded by police with their guns drawn, it is probably because you tripped it by accident that morn-

In fact, there is a growing move-ment to monitor the location of all cars, allegedly in the interest of traffic control. A $70 million system is being installed in Oakand County that will provide interactive monitoring, which means that traffic can be monitored and directed to improve traffic congestion. A similar net-work already is collecting tolls on highways out East. Both tracking systems could just as easily locate your stolen car, or even turn the guy in when he gets to a toll

We are, of course, locking ourselves in against the crooks with these devices, instead of locki the crooks up, just like party storeowners have to.

Notice: Public Participation for Regional Long Range Transportation Plan From: SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments The Southeast Michigan Region is federally mandated to revise its Long Range Transportation Plan (LRTP) as a result of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act. The LRTP looks ahead 20 years at the transportation needs of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair, Monroe, Livingston and Washtenaw

This plan is being revised with input from federal, state and local government levels and must be completed by October 1,1993. Local elected officials will make decisions about how to prioritize spending of transportation dollars for road reconstruction, road improvements and the building of new roads. Policy decisions must also be made about other forms of transportation - buses, airports, bicycles and trains for example. In addition, the 1990 Clean Air Act identifies Southeast Michigan as a moderate non-attainment area. The LRTP must support efforts to reduce regional hydrocarbon emissions by 15% by 1996 as required by the Clean Air Act.

Public participation is a vital ingredient in the revision of the LRTP. Elected officials must have some sense of the public will if a comprehensive plan is to be developed that addresses regional transportation

Public information meetings will be held to provide an opportunity to comment on the goals and objectives

Owner of four car dealerships, Mel Farr believes he's just coming of age as a businessman.

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITES

Some people know him as Mel Farr Superstar, a fast-talking car sales-man who "flies" with a magic cape in his TV advertisements. Others remember him as an all-pro running back with the Detroit Lions.

Farr, a Bloomfield Hills resident, actually is soft-spoken, owns an airplane, maintains a sporting interest in football and has his name on four automobile dealerships that last year grossed $118 million.

Tonight, Farr will formally receive the Executive of the Year Award from the Oakland Executives Association, a professional group formed to promote business in Oakland County.

"He built a highly-successful busi-ness, weathering all kinds of recessions and economic downturns," said Chuck Hammond, executive director of the Detroit Zoological Society and an executive-of-the-year committee "On top of that, he's found time for leadership roles in many community organizations. The more the group talked about Mr. Farr, investigated his background, the more they were impressed."

Farr is pleased with the award. "It means people are paying attention to what I'm doing. It says I'm on the right track.

Farr, 48, has specialized in breathing new life into financially troubled dealerships. "It wasn't by design. It was the only thing available," he said of his niche.

All four of Farr's acquisitions -Ford dealerships in Oak Park and Fairfield, Ohio, a Lincoln-Mercury dealership in Waterford and a Toyota dealership in Bloomfield Hills - ei-

Off-season work

Farr worked in a management training program at Ford for seven years during off-seasons learning the intricacies of the auto business. At the same time he finished his college degree at the University of Detroit.

William Clay Ford, owner of the Lions and a high-placed executive with the auto company, didn't give him any special assistance, Farr said.

"Back then, I couldn't say I wanted to be head coach of the Lions, general manager of the Lions, because no blacks were holding those positions," Farr said. "When I started working for Ford in '68, Ford put in its first black dealer and that became a tangible goal for Mel Farr.

Panel has good intentions, but struggles over mission

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

Community advisory panels make good business sense. Just ask Olin and BASF, two chemical companies in Livonia.

Olin, which packages and distributes swimming pool chemicals from a warehouse here, launched an advisory panel last spring as part of a corporate responsibility initiative.

"We got involved to educate the community about what we are and what we're doing," said Wendell W. Gay, plant manager. "It was a needed thing to be in partnership with the community.

BASF, which manufactures raw materials used to make foams, asked to climb aboard last fall.

"We have the same interests as Olin," said Jim Strickland, BASF plant manager. "We joined forces. We do things together as partners we probably couldn't do alone."

Panelists, including healthcare professionals, educators, people living near the plants and representatives from adjacent businesses, were chosen by a consultant.

They've toured both Olin and BASF and now are tryiny to develop a a long-term mission.
"I can't tell you what we're going to do. We don't know. We're still grasping at information," said Jim Lee, a panelist who lives near the plants. "We haven't come out of our shell yet. It's an adventure for us."

The panel may some day be an outreach organization, but that remains to be determined, Lee said.

"We're there together to assure for emergency preparedness and give the community the right to know. If someone has a question, they can come to the panel, they can grab one of us, and we can get it to Olin or BASF," Lee said.

"When I was asked to join, I did it with the idea of finding out more about how a chemical plant affects the community," said Joan Olds, a nurse. "I'm very concerned about the environment.

"The (initial) purpose as far as panel members were concerned was being educated," she said. "I guess I've been reassured. I'm assuming as we go along, it will become clear what our purpose can be in the community.

Olin and BASF provide meeting sites, refreshments, information and pay for the services of Mary Roehr, a research analyst at Wayne State University's Center for Urban Studies and liaison between the companies and panel.

"We're sponsors; we don't guide it," Strickland said. "We provide a meeting place, information. We're not there to determine what's going to happen.

"If we were running the meetings, there would be a tendency to think, 'Here comes the propaganda now'," he said. "I don't think there's been a reluctance on anyone's part to share information.

Roehr sees her role as an intermediary and facilitator.

"After orientation needs are addressed, panel members will have enough information to be able to advise the companies on other issues - environmental issues, relationships with the community, questions of safety and employee training," she said.

The advisory panel already may have made an impact on Olin. The company is looking into selling a byproduct of its packaging process after a panelist made that suggestion during a tour of the distribution center.

"How does the old saying go you can't see the forest for the trees," Gay said.

Sponsors of the competition include General Motors, Detroit Edison, Electronic Data Systems, the Department of Energy, the Edison Electric Institute and Hughes Power Control Systems, a GM subsidiary.

"Professionals from various disciplines will bring a unique contribution to the planning process," said John Dabels, director of market development for GM Electric Vehicles and chairman of the competition. "By linking these groups in the planning phase well in advance, our cities can develop practical solutions to support electric vehicles."

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

Child size has a place in playtime

Several weeks ago, I discussed the importance of learning and continuing education for adults. I have been fortunate to have taken advantage of many opportunities, experiencing learning in a variety of settings, including those that were somewhat uncomfortable for me.

We like most children should allow ourselves to take in information in a sponge-like manner. In other words be capable of becoming open-minded — absorbing a little at a time, if you have to, but absorbing or taking in information in an ongoing

I had the pleasure of attending a recent child care professionals conference in New Orleans, where I attended a workshop that was quite thought-provoking. As an early childhood educator, I am aware that the use of space in a child care setting, school or even at home affects a child's cognitive play.

However, this workshop outlined and described the "time element" factor involved in children entering complex play, based on room arrangement and space.

Early studies showed that more complex forms of play, like role playing, require a certain amount of warm-up time before children get into them.

And a team of graduate students and educators from the College of Human Ecology at the University of Tennessee found that spatial scale affects temporal experience, neurological functioning, information processing and timing of behavior.

By combining those two avenues of research, it's been deduced that changes in the experience of time and information processing, as well as changes in the timing of behavior, suggests that child-sized environments for play activity lead to a quicker onset of complex play behavior in children.

Attention space should be increased in childsized environments, then children can spend a greater percentage of their overall play time in complex play activity.

The experimental condition of the study involved a small encloser within a normal room. Height was determined based on an adult seated at a 30-inch high table with an eight-foot ceiling compared to a child seated at a 20-inch high table.

That translated into a ceiling height of five feet. The length of seven feet and width of five feet of the enclosure was determined by table size and appropriate circulation space.

The table space itself was determined by the number of children who could be observed in the enclosure at one given and the area itself was equivalent to a room eight feet by 11 feet for an adult seated at a table.

The researchers used eight sessions for the study, alternating between two in a full-sized room and two in the child-sized room. And the results, they say, were encouraging despite the small size of 11 children.

What they found was that the children did enter into complex cognitive play quicker and spent a greater percentage of their overall play time in complex forms of play.

They also found that children sustained those forms of play longer in the child-sized environment than they did in the full-sized environment.

The research suggests that, aside from the implications for design of environments for children, there is the potential to design child-sized environments for children with attention deficit disorder.

More studies are planned, but the bottom line is that where children play has an effect on how and how long they play.

Con game

Conventions pair fans with authors

For people like Brent Carpenter and Gary Reed, comic book conventions are more of a meeting of the minds . . . of publishers like themselves, artists and writers and those of dealers, collectors and most importantly, the readers.

BY PATRICK KEATING

Comic book writers, artists and publishers will take over the Dearborn Civic Center this weekend.

That's when they will meet with dealers, collector and readers to exchange ideas and information at the semi-annual Motor City Comic Con.

For local companies, such conventions can mean attracting new readers. For some, it's a chance to go one-on-one with the fans.

"I think it's been incredibly beneficial . . . because it's kind of like a grassroots thing," said Brent Carpenter, president of Foundation Studios, a small Detroit-based production firm, which publishes Gauntlet Comics. "It gives people a chance to know about a book they might otherwise not have looked at when they go into a bookstore." he said.

Gary Reed, publisher of Caliber Press, Foundation's parent company, sees conventions primarily as a venue for fans to meet the guest artists and talk to the publishers about upcoming projects, while Ralph Griffith, a writer with Romulus-based Arrow Comics, favors the one-on-one point of view.

"You're actually able to talk to them and tell them what differentiates you from the competition," Griffith said.

Like Foundation Studios and Caliber Press, Arrow Comics relies primarily on local talent — "That's what we strive to do; always promote the local folks," Griffith said.

The person making the interaction possible is Michael Goldman, who has made a name for himself with small comic books and sports card shows, usually three every two months.

Good business

Goldman, who is based in Southfield, has been running conventions for seven years, and bigger conventions like the Motor City Comic Con for three years. The business, he said, has been good.

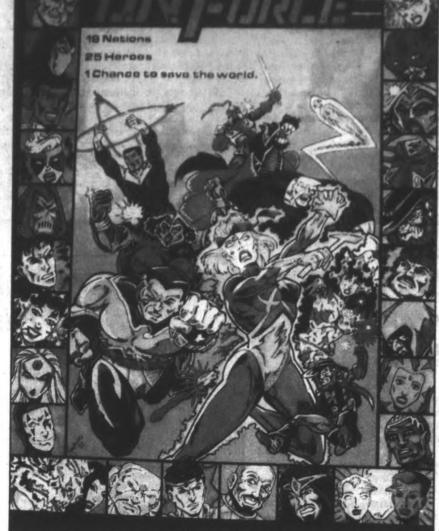

"Our attendance is growing with every show," he said at the October 1992 convention. "In March ('92) we set a record for any show we ever had and we broke that record by more than 20 percent this time."

In addition to his work in the Detroit area, Goldman also runs smaller market shows in East Lansing and Cleveland, Ohio.

By October 1993, Goldman will be moving the Motor City Comic Con down Michigan Avenue to the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn.

What Goldman may have hit on is a comic book version of a rock concert on a small scale.

According to a representative of Reddig, Ill.-based Fathom Press compared meeting a publisher at a convention is like seeing a rock group in concert: "You want to get their album after you've heard them live. I think it's very important to make that contact. Plus, I like to see the people who read what I do."

STAFF PHOTOS BY BILL BRESLER

Super heroes: Local artists are providing the impetus for such comic books as "U.N. Force," published by Caliber Press in Plymouth.

In addition to local and regional publishers, representatives from national companies also come to make contact with their readers.

Steve Saffel, editor of Marvel Comics' fanzine "Marvel Age" says readers who go to the conventions help shape marketing decisions and the directions the books take.

"At a convention like this, we get to talk to the fans, and all of it goes into the mix of the decision making process," Saffel said. "This is where we find out face-to-face what our fans think of what we're doing."

At a con

One of the main features of conventions is the buying and selling of comic books. The Motor City Comic Con features a large dealers room, where local as well as out of state retailers come to sell their merchandise.

According to Lauren Becker, a clerk at Time Travellers, a comic shop in Berkley, the conventions serve as a meeting place for dealers and shop owners. The dealers here in Michigan, he said, "are really close knit."

A few dealers come in from out-ofstate like Jim Williams of Cleveland who attended the October 1992 convention. For him, conventions help attract customers.

"The more people who know about it, the better," he said.

Another convention feature is panel discussions. Here artists and writers talk with readers about a variety of subjects related to comic books. At the October 1992 convention, one panel looked back on the "Golden Age" of comics — the 1930-40s.

"We had no idea that this was the beginning of an industry, which, you see, has just blossomed into a huge publishing concern," said Martin Nodell, who created the character of the Green Lantern in 1940.

Nodell, who also was the art director of the Pillsbury Doughboy advertisements, sees the ideas of today's comics are generally more widespread than what was done in the '40s.

"... The stature of comics has come up greatly, and I personally feel that the art today is a heck of a lot better than it was early on." Nodell said. "The stories at that time were much more direct and more like doing a storyboard. But today, you'll have a full page that will go from upper left to lower right, and you've got to figure out what the spaghetti is in between."

See CONVENTIONS, 3C

In progress: Gary Reed, publisher of Caliber Press, looks over artwork in progress for upcoming comic books. He sees conventions primarily as a venue for fans to meet the guest artists and talk to the publishers.

"It illustrates the enormity of the epidemic by showing the humanity behind the statistics," said Michele Drengberg, Valdez' co-chair. "It provides a positive and creative means of expression for those whose lives have been touched by the epidemic."

Those are two of three goals the NAMES Project has for the quilt. The other is to raise money for people living with AIDS and HIV by donations to direct care service organizations.

Large undertaking

The chapter is responsible for bringing the quilt to Detroit, its first showing here since 1988. It's a hefty endeavor, considering the chapter must raise some $33,000 to cover the cost of renting Cobo Center plus fill 900 volunteer shifts.

Through a series of fund-raisers, the first held last month at the Gem Theatre in Detroit, as well as panel sponsorships — $15 for a panel and $120 for 12 by 12 section (three panels) — and cash donations, ranging from $16-$99 for a friend to $1,000 for a major contributor, the chapter hopes to meet the financial commitment.

Several HIV/AIDS organizations — AIDS Interfaith Network, FRIENDS Alliance, Midwest AIDS Prevention Project and the Wellness Networks to name a few — have pledged assistance and volunteers to help, but even more people are needed to help set up and tear down the display, act as overnight security, provide emotional support and serve as greeters to the quilt.

Some of her goals are at a level of challenge. However, it may be difficult for her to remain focused on them. Other goals might be considered pie-in-the-sky. Incomplete projects are noted.

As a youngster, it appears she received a great deal of criticism regarding her personal appear-ance. This made her sensitive and a little self-conscious. Criticism continues to be hurtful.

Authority figures are not easy for her to accept. It is quite possible she experienced difficulty with an authoritarian personality very early in life. She has not completely resolved this, even though she has tried to free herself from past influences.

A dislike of friction causes her to compromise in order to keep the peace. Other times, however, she can be rebellious. And while this may sound paradoxical, both attitudes co-exist within her. Naturally, this tends to cause indecision at times.

Her manner of thinking and assessing new information is methodical, logical and slow. She does not like to be rushed, nor have to meet pressure deadlines. Manual skill is suggested in her handwriting. Also some interest in structure and form. Music can provide relaxation.

Interest in material gain can be seen here. Attempts at thrift are not always sustained for long periods. Then she finds herself spending more than originally planned.

Our writer leans toward concealment and protection of her own interests. Feelings of selfworth often fluctuate. However at the time she wrote this letter she seemed to feel she had exceeded her family in some way.

Elwood and

Family and friends will be the guests of Elwood and Edna Manns at the Botsford Inn when the couple celebrates their 60th wedding anniversary.

The couple exchanged vows in a private ceremony on Easter Sunday - April 16, 1933 - at Asbury Methodist Church in Traverse City. The former Edna Kellogg, she was a teacher at the Ogdensburg School, and because of her teaching contract, the marriage was kept quiet until the end of the school year, when she left to join her husband in Detroit.

An employee of the Haley Funeral Home, he lost his job as the result of the Depression, but soon found employment at the Maus Funeral Home in Detroit. Tenyears later, in 1943, he opened the Manns Funeral Home in Detroit, moving the business to Livonia in Thirty-two-year residents of Livonia, the Manns have three children, daughter Sally and two married sons, Dickson and wife Joann of Brighton and Charles and wife Marj of Livonia. They also have six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The Manns are active, as elders and deacons, in St. Paul's Presby-

Even the men turned out for Woman's Club anniversary

BY JULIA HOGLEN SPECIAL WRITER

Dear Jon:

In the middle of a Michigan March what could possibly be worth going out for?

Well, Jon, if you were a woman, you wouldn't have missed the 100th anniversary of the Woman's Club of Plymouth. Even a few guys showed up.

A snow storm couldn't keep the most influential women of the last century from gathering to celebrate their contributions to more than 21 charitable and civic organizations which have enriched our community, promoted scholastic ability, encouraged ladies to become leaders, and propelled many a husband into prominence.

Eight past presidents were there: Maxine Willoughby, Nancy Tanger, Ester Hulsing, Betty Childs, Grace Rix, Key Wood, K.C. Mueller and Joyce

We were treated to the strain of 'America Sings," by the 54-member Cadet Choir from Central Middle School, directed by Joyce Large. Anybody who's anybody turned out for the lavish luncheon, and on this rare occasion, men were welcome - Harry Roebuck, Ed Rix and Harold Wright.

One city commissioner, Bill McAninch, looking quite spiffy, claimed he was chosen to read the city's proclamation due to the fact that he was as old as the original charter members!

Tom Yack, supervisor of Canton, praised the group for its credibility and longevity. Dr. Fred Vosburg, who gave the invocation, expressed thanks to the generous and loyal service of the Woman's Club our community had been very blessed.

John Hoben, superintendent of schools; Thaddeus McCotter,

Wayne County Commissioner, Dr. E.J. McClendon, past school board president with wife, Ruby, Chuck Childs and guest speaker Carl Pursell, accompanied by his wife Peggy, were among those privileged to be invited.

Judge John Garber was unable to make it, however, his mother, Helen Garber, 95, was the oldest member there.

But it's the women who hold the power in this high tea society. From their membership came Michigan's first elected woman official, Judge Phobee Patterson, Plymouth's first woman mayor, Ruth Whipple, Plymouth city commissioner Stella Greene and in 1992, Plymouth Township's first woman supervisor, Kathleen Keen-McCarthy.

And the club's tradition of commitment continues as women like Betty Pint, Linda Courtney, Janice Groat, Christ Witwer, Mary Maro, Ruth Jacobs and Marian Kehrl, strive to better themselves and the community in which they live, awarding more than 150 scholarships to area stu-

Celebritity watching

Yes, Jon, in Plymouth. What does it take to make an old country inn into a landmark restaurant? Just ask Sam Messina, the owner of Ernesto's. The secret is in the sauce, head chef Ernie DeMichele's tempesto sauce to be exact, a sauce that has found its way into hearts as far away as South Dakota, Texas, New York, even Japan!

So it was no surprise when Marlo Thomas, after an evening performance at the George Burns Theater, hubby, Phil Donahue, and Grosse Pointe Notre Dame alumni friends, when looking for a place where they could all meet and eat, remembered the man be-hind the fabulous food at Picano's and found themselves once again, guests of the "maestro," this time, in Plymouth.

In Sicilian family style, Chef Rick Desmet prepared lamb, chicken and pasta, loaded with Marlo's favorite vegetarian vegetables. They raved about the "Shrimp Ernie" appetizer and reminisced about the days when Marlo's Dad, Danny Thomas, smoking his huge cigars and Ernie would sit at Chuck Joseph's, late into the night, and how being married to a Silian woman meant they could count on Rosemarie Thomas calling every few minutes to check and see if everything was all right!

My bet is that a guy like you would be more likely to venture out in the cold for something you could sink your teeth into - like hot, fresh-bake goods, which you could have sampled to your heart's content at the grand opening of the Breadwinner in downtown Plymouth.

It was quite a day for the whole Jaroch family, one that they had hoped and worked towards for more than a year, choosing a Plymouth location over Ann Arbor or Grosse Pointe. Brothers Eric, Mark and Greg spent eight months with the then-president of the Chamber of Commerce, Pat Pulkownick, looking at the Plymouth market and finding just the right location.

For Sheldon Moldoff, an artist who drew Batman, Hawkman and The Flash in the 1940s, appearing at conventions is the nicest part of the business.

"The fans remember you; they respect you," he said. "They're interested in the Golden Age or comics in general. It's been a rewarding experience."

Brian Hotton, an artist and cocreator of the recently formed Image Comics agrees. "Comic book people are the politest people in

When comic books first appeared in the 1930s, no significant value was attached to them. a result, very few survived, and those that did, because of their rarity, are extremely valuable."All America Comics No. 16" in which the Green Lantern first appeared was listed in the 1992 edition of Robert Overstreet's "Comic Book Price Guide" at $25,000.

By contrast, comics published today have little chance of becoming as valuable since so many copies are printed and collected.

Those readers who buy multiple copies of "hot" titles, hoping to make money, could instead be losing it.

"If you're collecting comics, you're collecting paper," Loebs said. "And anyone who tells you otherwise is trying to take your money away. If you don't enjoy the comics you're collecting, then you shouldn't be collecting

That's not to say money can't be made. One panelist at the October convention said that if people who "go out and buy this thing at whatever its face value is, and three months later, sell it for five times that much - which they can do - then it does have, in the short term, a legitimate speculative value." For the most part, when a specific title is expected to be highly sought after, enough copies are supplied to meet the demand. "Superman No. 75" in which that character died is a prime example. Thousands of copies were printed, artificial and short lived. On rare occasions, however, demand can outstrips supply of a modern comic book. One such case involved the four-issue mini-"Batman: The Dark Knight Returns," published in so any increase in value will be

At that time, Batman was not a "hot" character, and only a few thousand copies of the series were printed. It was an unexpected hit, and the following year, issue No. 1 was listed in the "Comic Book Guide" at $25. The title increased steadily in value and was listed in the 1992 guide at $45. Considering such a response to a comic book, Sharon Kattuah Bartonek, a marketing representative with DC, may be on the mark when she says that, from a publisher's point of view, the primary focus of a convention is "mostly to be available to meet people, and establish a contact, establish trust . . . so they know that we're not just a company." For comic book enthusiasts, the March convention will be Saturday and Sunday, March 27-28, at the Dearborn Civic Center, Michigan Avenue west of Greenfield Road, Dearborn. The featured guest will be Neil Gaiman, creator of DC Comics "Sandman.

Issue No. 19 of that series, in which William Shakespeare performed "A Midsummer Night's Dream" to a delegation of Faerie, won the World Fantasy Award, the first time a comic book had ever received such an honor.

The chapter is looking for teenagers to be greeters since schoolaged youth have been targeted as the "fastest-growing at-risk group for acquiring the HIV virus," Val-

"Awareness is one thing we hope to accomplish at Cobo," said Valdez. "The emotional impact of the quilt brings the tragedy of this disease to a very personal and private level.

"People at the display are confronted with people who have lost their battle with AIDS, not simply statistics. They are faced with the fact that the disease affects all sectors of our society."

The chapter hopes to raise $100,000 for direct assistance to people living with AIDS or HIV through donations from visitors to the display. There will be donation bins and merchandise tables set up throughout Cobo.

"The impact of the quilt is such . . . unless you've experienced it, it's hard to explain . . hard to believe people will walk out of Cobo and not feel a need to donate to the organizations," Valdez said. "I find it hard to believe people can't see this quilt and not want to give.'

This will be the largest showing of the quilt during 1993 - 300 sections or 2,400 panels, will be spread out out throughout Cobo Center. The panels will be coming from San Franciso and from displays at Kent State University in Ohio and Rutgers University in New Jersey. Some have been made by metro area residents who requested they be displayed in Detroit, Valdez said.

Visible symbol

The quilt got its start in San Francisco in 1987 when a group of people, headed by Cleve Jones, decided to create a visible symbol of the devastation caused by AIDS. Today, the quilt has almost 23,000 panels for the famous - actor Rock Hudson, rock singer Freddie Mercury, fashion designer Halston - and not so famous like the nameless children remembered on the Kingswood

More than three million people have viewed the quilt since its inception and as the visitor's list continues to grow so does the quilt. In its entirety (with the walkways between sections) it is the size of 13 football fields and covers 14.2 acres. But its panels represent only 14 percent who have died from AIDS in the United States, 2 percent worldwide.

And it will continue to grow. Panel-making sessions are planned for March 28 at Friends Alliance, 18040 Coyle, Detroit; April 3, at the Downriver YMCA, 3211 Fort St., Wyandotte, and Thursdays at Ste. Anne de Detroit, 1000 Ste. Anne St., Detroit.

The chapter also will accept new panels during the display.

"We hope to inspire action and participation from those who view the quilt as well as open a pathway for those now suffering with HIV to access the assistance they need," Valdez said, a sentiment shared by Detroit City Council President Maryann Mahaffey, who with Mary Fisher are the display's honorary chairs.

"This quilt drives home to you that these were human beings, that this is a waste of life and a waste of talent we can't afford to continue.'

To make donations, volunteer to help or get more information about the quilt write the NAMES Project/Detroit Metro Chapter, P.O. Box 303, Taylor 48180 or call 753-NAME.

Do you realize that many Christians believe that Jesus came to earth to bring peace. Most have never noticed what Jesus said in Matthew 10:34: "I came not to send peace, but a sword." Jesus never said he came to give peace on the earth. If you're interested in really knowing what the Bible teaches, then you should find a church that emphasizes what the Bible says. We live by every Word of God. Come see for yourself.

54 hours on 'Hail Mary Express

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

I honestly didn't know what to expect as the rumble of the diesel engine escalated and the bus pulled away from Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church in Dearborn Heights at 5:15 p.m. on Friday, March 12. Forty-four people ranging in age from 21 to 82 had come together from places like Redford, Westland, Livonia, Farmington and cities throughout southeastern Michigan.

They had congregated for a pilgrimage to Conyers, Ga., a small town about 20 miles southeast of Atlanta. It is there on a farm that Nancy Fowler has alleged, since 1987, to having apparitions of the Virgin Mary. While Fowler reportedly has daily visions with personal messages from the Blessed Virgin, she receives a message for the United States on the 13th of each month. The messages for the United States range from a call to return to prayer and church to warnings for mankind to amend its ways to a plea to end abortion.

Common, although inexplicable, phenomena at Conyers and other Marian sites around the world are the sun pulsating or "dancing," hazy Mary-shaped images and "doors to heaven" captured only on film and rosaries changing color from silver to gold regardless of their expense or the type of metal used in their construction. Some of the rosaries reportedly have been examined by jewelers and gemologists who can offer no explanation for the rapid change in appearance.

On the 13th of each month, the crowds flocking to the farm have multiplied. On Feb. 13, the multitude reached nearly 50,000 and many buses and cars had to be turned away.

The first time I heard of Conyers was last December when I was writing a story about Bruce and Lois LaPointe, who had made the pilgrimage to Conyers on the 13th of each month since learning of the site during the summer.

The sincerity and quiet demeanor of the couple impressed me and piqued my curiosity to learn more. As a writer, I strive to search for the facts and present them in an understandable fashion. My college chemistry background makes me more inclined to search for proof, logic and or-

The LaPointes had shown me her mother's rosary that had changed from silver to a bright golden color literally while they held it in their hands at Conyers and described their own personal feelings of awe and inner peace, all logic and order dissipated. I had to find out for myself what was transpiring on the farm. And so it was that I found myself among the passengers on that bus. Little did I know that the events of the next two days would change my life in such a profound way and so dramatically alter the story I thought I would tell.

No sooner were we on the road when Rose Havercroft of Fenton, the tour organizer, led the group in a variety of spiritual hymns. The last time I could remember singing on a bus was for an away football game in high school. The major difference, besides the average age of the passengers, was that back then the songs seemed to center around "99 Bottles of Beer on the Wall."

The spirit that Friday evening chef, cooking 100 hot dogs on a portable grill in the cramped confines of the bus's baggage compartment.

was reminiscent of the highly charged atmosphere that electrified those high school transports. That spirit was to remain with us even during some very tense moments that weekend as we headed into the worst snowstorm of the century.

Peaceful feelings

As I talked to the passengers, it seemed that most were seeking some kind of peace at Conyers. This was Havercroft's second trip to the apparition site. Last September she experienced very peaceful feelings — "It was a feeling like I didn't want to leave."

Mary Lou, a 52-year-old middle school secretary from Grosse Pointe Park was able to make her first pilgrimage to Conyers thanks to a cancellation.

"I am coming to be renewed," she said. "I would imagine I would come back with peace. To me it's like a retreat. You don't have to be Catholic. Mary is calling everybody. There are many roads to heaven.

My own seat mate was a 28year-old, recently baptized Lutheran. A mechanic at Ford Motor Co., Marilyn had learned of the Marian apparition from a mutual friend of Bruce LaPointe who also works for Ford's. After considerable turmoil in her life, she had "come back to God."

Living with her mother in Westland, this was her first trip anywhere by herself and she was apprehensive but had felt a strong desire to experience the peace she had heard of and to honor the Blessed Mother.

Many were going out of love for Mary. As Sister Mary Pius put it, a deeper faith and devotion to Mary." Still others were primarily curious about the happenings at Whatever the personal reason for the pilgrimage, by 7:30 a.m. Saturday we found ourselves at a dead stop on I-75, 25 miles north of Chattanooga, Tenn. We had been halted by the worst snow storm that area had seen since

Making due

By 11 a.m., with the snow falling at the rate of an inch per hour and buffeted by the gale-force winds, we all realized we would not make it to the apparition site by noon, if at all.

Since the apparition allegedly appears between noon and 1 p.m., we all began to pray 15 decades of the rosary as though we were joining those in Conyers at 11:45 a.m. A decade consists of three different prayers — "Our Father,"
"Hail Mary" and "Glory Be to the Father" — and the rosary has enough beads to pray five dec-

As I counted each prayer on the beads, my mind focused on a very close friend who was in the hospital, dealing with a difficult pregnancy. Along with nine other rosaries from family and friends, I carried hers in its zippered case in my bag. I had intended to bring them to the Holy Hill at Conyers where it is said that all things are blessed by Mary.

I had examined all the rosaries before I packed them in individual sealed bags, but hers was particularly noteworthy because one of the chains had unhooked from the central medallion. It was made of crystal beads connected by a silver chain and had a silver crucifix and medallion.

By the end of the prayers, many people expressed the belief that although we were unable to make it to Conyers, Conyers had made it to us. Mary's presence was felt by many on the bus.

I certainly felt that sense of calm and peace. But it wasn't until I spoke with one of the stranded motorists who had come in to use the bathroom that I realized the lack of fear for our safe return that we possessed.

The young woman had come into work with her husband that morning and they were desperately trying to return to their home in Chattanooga. She turned to me with tears streaming down her face and said, "I'm so afraid. Aren't you afraid?" It gave me pause to think for a moment and I replied, "No, I truly believe God has his hand on each of us.'

One of the most remarkable and incongruous events was the delightful picnic we had in the midst of the storm. Because so many buses had been turned away from Conyers the previous month, Havercroft reasoned that say something nice about some-one," Oscar Oscar Wilde cooed, "then come right over here and sit here by me!"

Power of words: They can hurt, heal

There is some-thing invitingly delicious when we start to hear derogatory words about someone else. We feel a little better or smugger or self-righteous when we hear all about the foibles and failings of another. It does some thing for our egos to tell "what's wrong" with another person.

We feel we are exercising our prowess in intelligence when we can stand back and critically analyze where another has gone wrong — either in their personal life or in a professional capacity. Or we think we are being humorous when we ridicule another or make fun of another's shortcomings or characteristics.

Words wound people everyday heated words, belittling words, dishonest words, thoughtless words. Words are weapons.

Undisciplined, unexamined speech surrounds us. According to the insights of theologian Lee Philips, we find that there are "heated words that accuse, unwarranted words that blame, belittling words that blame, mean words that sour, dishonest words that deny, timid words that hide, cheap words that disgrace, thoughtless words that sear and hasty words that harm."

Most of us have experienced the structive effects of undisciplined speech. A grown-up called us "stupid" or "lazy" or "a bad kid" when we were little. Some-how it can stick with us all these years. One friend has spent her last 30 years trying to prove to her fourth grade teacher that she could achieve something in her life after being told how hopeless a case she was

This friend has spent much of her adolescent and adult life pur-suing academic degrees and professional excellence to distraction to compensate for the wounded feelings of inferiority that those probably unintentional, careless words etched into her.

Mispoken words have been likened to a "blow torch from hell" which can cause destruction. It takes moral maturity to exercise disciplined speech. What a difference a few encouraging words can make. "You can do it," "Good for you," "Thanks a lot," "You've made a big difference in my life" are effective tools. Each phrase can effectively build up a healthy community of people living and working together.

Our words can carry with them the amazing power to heal, to lift up, to bless, to build up, and to help re-create. We each have the power to discipline our speech so that as Lee Phillips also portrays, we can use "kind words that cheer, uplifting words that in-spire, tender words that comfort, wise words that guide, affirming words that build, forgiving words that heal, encouraging words that challenge, thoughtful words that redirect and appropriate words that explain."

What a difference a few well chosen words can make when we It's been said that "Silence is not always golden - it sometimes can be yellow." Disciplined speech also reflects the wisdom to know when it is appropriate to speak up and to address a certain issue without attacking the per-

Disciplined speech also requires that we develop the art of actively listening to another person as well.

When we read the words in our headlines, we may often wonder what we can do to help change the world for the better. What can just one individual personally do about Angola? Or the mayor's race in Detroit? The "snowacane" and its devastation? Major health care issues?

But we do know that discip lined speech in our everyday lives can help significant transforms tion take place in the world right around us.

we might wish to skip our break-fast stop and eat something once we reached the farm. With that in mind she had loaded apples, oranges, chips, lemonade and 100 hot dogs and buns on the bus.

While two of the passengers blocked the gusting wind with umbrellas, Nick Ciolino of Dearborn Heights climbed into the luggage compartment under the bus and lit the gas grill Havercroft also thought to include and roasted 100 hot dogs. We all agreed they were the best tasting dogs we ever had.

Turning back

By 5 p.m., our very talented and resourceful bus driver had managed to maneuver around two jack-knifed semis and various other stranded cars and trucks to enter the northbound lane of I-75. BillMcKinney, a native Detroiter, had relieved the first driver around 10 p.m. Friday in Dayton, Ohio. He was nothing short of gifted the way he handled the coach. Often, it appeared that we were the only moving vehicle on the slippery, snow-covered trail.

We knew we were relatively unique when we passed a National Guard vehicle with the snow flying from shovels as the guardsmen attempted to dislodge the truck from the ditch.

Snowplows were non-existent in Tennessee. The little yellow road graders were frequently spotted stuck and in ditches. When I asked McKinney if he had ever seen anything like this, he said he had seen some pretty bad storms in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

"But," he pointed out, "there was help. They had snowplows and salt trucks there. Here, they have nothing.'

By 8:30 p.m., we had made it a short distance to Cleveland, Tenn. There, trying to ascend a steep hill, the bus slid into a ditch. Without a complaint, many of the passengers got out and literally pushed the bus out.

"I never had passengers get out and push my bus before," he admitted. He opted to back the bus down the hill and parked in a combination gas station/convenience store where he rested for a few hours.

-At 2:15 a.m. Sunday, McKinney shifted our temporary home into gear and we soon found ourselves stuck once more. This time we slid off the entrance ramp of 1-75. "pushers" disembarked again but one woman and her blanket saved the day. As the pushers pushed and the tires spun in place, she tossed her blanket under the back wheels of the bus. The blanket spewed out from under the wheels as the bus lurched forward. She continued to retrieve and throw the blanket under the wheels until we were back on track.

2-lane trek

We continued on our journey after having breakfast in Knoxville. Police were turning traffic away from the northbound entrance ramp of I-75 and were not recommending another route through the foothills of the Great Smokey Mountains.

Determined to get us all home, McKinney chose a dismal little snowy path that had once been a two-lane highway. We bumped and slid along until we reached the highest point in that area when the bus, unable to make it up the steep incline, once again slid off the side of the road, this time toward a ravine.

McKinney knew he would need a running start to make it up the mountain. Unwilling to risk the passengers' lives, he had us disembark. He backed down that mountain so far that we could no longer see him.

The engine roared as the bus propelled up the mountain like a rock out of a sling shot. Although most of us had not brought boots (it was only supposed to rain), we walked the half mile up the mountain to our waiting bus. Fortunately, a man in a pickup truck was kind enough to make several trips to bring the older people up to the bus.

Once back on 1-75, it was smooth sailing. Although disappointed that we were not able to make it all the way to Conyers, no one complained and many expressed interest in making the pilgrimage by bus again (preferably in warmer weather). The spirit of the people on that bus was nothing short of inspiring.

We dubbed our tour bus the Hail Mary Express with Angel Bill at the helm. The time had actually passed quickly and had been filled with prayers, singing, testimonials and jokes, good and

By the time we reached Ohio, two of the women noticed that their rosaries had begun to turn gold. One of the rosaries was quite remarkable since the only links that changed were the three on either side of the beads between each decade.

One pilgrim said the color change was indicative of some-thing more profound that we sometimes fail to recognize.

"There's no new miracles in the world," she said. "Rosaries changing color are not the thing. Miracles take place in us, within the people around us. When you see an alcoholic who stops drinking or someone stops smoking or someone is cured of cancer and the doctors don't know why that's a miracle.

"People don't realize it. We're being given these hugs and kisses from God. We don't even recognize them. They go by us and it's not until you see this rosary that turns gold or the miracle of the sun that you realize it."

It was 11 p.m.. when the bus fi-nally pulled into the church parking lot. Those 54 hours on the Hail Mary Express had been truly amazing. The spirit of Conyers had indeed infiltrated our cramped quarters.

When I finally reached home at midnight on Sunday, I carefully unpacked and examined each rosary. Of the 10 I had taken with me, one had actually started to

The Christ figure on the cruci-fix had turned a golden color while the crucifix itself had remained silver. By the next morning, some of the silver links had changed to a golden color as well.

It seems the one who most needed a little miracle was the one to receive the blessing. It was the rosary belonging to my hospi-talized friend.

I learned later we were not the only ones to make it to Convers. That all those who had arrived at the farm earlier in the day were sent away by the police by 11 a.m. due to the storm and dangerous road conditions.

But for those who don't make the trek, the monthly message can be heard by calling (404) 922-

BOB SKLAR

Ex-automotive stylist shows automotive art hat started out as a lunch-hour hobby while working as an automotive stylist blossomed into a new career for John Krieger of Plymouth.

In 1979, Krieger left the security of Chrysler for the challenge of becoming a full-time fine artist. And he never looked back.

He paints classic cars in a style dubbed painterly realism: "A painting isn't so abstract or impressionistic that you can't easily tell what kind of car Krieger strives "to make a viewer-participant piece of art rather than something that looks like photographic realism.

Business has become better every year," said the 1969 Livonia Bentley High graduate, who styled cars for Cars & Concepts in Brighton and then Ford before moving to Chrysler in 1977.

"Most of my clients tend to be repeat customers." Krieger and Roger Hardnock of Canton join 11 other artists and designers in showing their work in "Automobiles and Art." The exhibition continues through April 30 in the UAW-GM Human Resource Center, 2630 Featherstone, Auburn Hills. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

Gallery Automania in Rochester assembled the free exhibition of antique and race cars rendered in paintings, drawings and prints. The gallery carries Krieger's work at prices ranging from $100 for a limited-edition print to $1,000 for a small origi-

"He uses unusual color combinations and a unique print format that make his work very much fine art," said Bill Michalak, Gallery Automania owner. "The drawings themselves are very realistic but kind of ethereal in the use of pastels." While at Chrysler in 1977, Krieger, who earned a B.F.A. in industrial design from Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, remembers "other people painting landscapes on their lunch hour, so I started to do it.' Then he entered competitions hosted by such galleries as the Scarab Club in Detroit and entered exhibitions hosted by such groups as the American Watercolor Society in New York City.

"I had a lot of feedback and a lot of people were interested in what I did, so I pursued it," he said. "Soon it became more interesting than my other work. And I stayed with it."

Cars a passion

Krieger, a regular in the Eyes on the Classics fine art show for automotive designers in Grosse Pointe Shores, didn't start to paint cars until leaving Chrysler. "I just love cars and felt compelled to paint them," he said.

His favorite cars to capture with brushstrokes include modern muscle cars like the '66 Cobra, '67 Corvette and '69 Mustang as well as muscular classics from the '30s like the Dusenberg and boat-tailed Auburn.

He also enjoys Cadillacs, Fords, Chevys and Buicks from the '50s — "overstyled cars, with big fins and exaggerated grilles. They had an awful lot of character and really relate well to paintings."

Despite his craving for cars, Krieger never lost his love for landscapes. He does impressionistic landscapes in acrylic, tempera and watercolor. "Sketches for good automotive designs often have indications of landscaped backgrounds," he said. "I did them so much and people seemed to like them so much that landscapes sort of became the content of my lunch-hour paintings."

Krieger has five pieces in "Automobiles and Art." The pieces are part silk screen, part painting, part pencil drawing.

One piece is a large acrylic and tempera on museum board of two Cadillacs: a '57 Eldorado and a '34 Caddy custom built for the Maharaja of India.

"You see the brush strokes, they're intended to be seen, and you see how a lot of the paint is applied," Krieger said. "The colors are exaggerated and striking. And the details are only partially complete, like half a headlight, so that the eye can put it all together. This lets viewers put a little bit of themselves into my artwork."

His rendering of a 1930 SJ Dusenberg resulted from combining silk screen, tempera and pastel pencil on paper. It's part of a 25-piece limited edition in which no two pieces are the same.

"I used the same line drawing of the car but the images — the backgrounds, colors and pencil work - are radically different in each," he said.

Krieger's three other works are screen prints on paper — one of a 1941 Cadillac emblem, the other two of a 1937 Ford and a 1929 Auburn.

The emblem is part of a 60-piece limited edition with the same image divided into three color groups: yellow, black and red.

To create the Ford and Auburn, Krieger chose a process that involves applying multiple colors of ink to a screen image of a car, then printing the image and applying three other solid color screens.

"The background becomes part of the car," he said. "They sort of flow together. There's no complete edge, no complete line, around the car. Your eye completes the line. It's very dramatic."

Heartfelt snapshots capture a way of life in inner-city barrio

Photographs documenting life in the southwest Detroit barrio are the focus of a 50-piece exhibition by students of Livonia photographer/educator Carlos Diaz at Urban Park Gallery. The images were created during a 12-week workshop last summer.

amily, friends and community lie at the heart of "Through Their Eyes; Visions of Life," a photography exhibition by 19 south west Detroit youth at Urban Park Gallery, 508 Monroe, in The Alley (formerly Trapper's Alley), Detroit.

Pensive portraits of brothers and sisters, school friends playing in the streets, well-cared-for homes standing alongside burned-out buildings tell their stories as do happy scenes of birthday parties and manicured rosebushes.

The black and white images, universal themes that educate the viewer to multicultural experiences, resulted from a 12-week photography workshop held last summer with Livonia photographer/educator Carlos Diaz.

Diaz conceived the project in cooperation with Casa de Unidad Cultural Arts and Media Center. He guided the students, ages 11-14, in weekly sessions focusing on documenting their way of life in a lowincome urban setting that's primarily Hispanic. "I tried not to dampen the intuitive way of reacting to their environment. My best photographs come from my heart and not my head," said Diaz, an associate professor of photography at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit.

Well-known for his images documenting the life and everyday struggles of the common man, laborer and low man on the totem pole, Diaz needed a break from his own work two years ago after his highly acclaimed "Unemployed Autoworker" installation closed a monthlong run at the Creative Arts Center in Ponti-

Diaz's longtime dream of conducting a photo workshop for disadvantaged youth in the Detroit barrio would finally come to pass.

'Coming from a working-class background where the arts were not a priority, I wanted to give these kids what I had never been provided with. I wanted to stimulate children through the arts," Diaz said.

Brass quintet plays on special chemistry

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

Five minutes after meeting the Livonia Symphony Orchestra Brass Quintet, you realize there's a chemistry among trumpeters John Davidson of Garden City and Brian Moon of Birmingham, trombonist Bruce Sole of Livonia, French hornist Carl Karoub of Northville and tuba player Michael Andrew of Ann Arbor. Witty remarks, snappy comebacks and camaraderie abound.

"It's personality, the individual chemistry, that makes it work," Davidson said. 'If you don't have that together, it doesn't work.' On the other hand, maybe it's the instruments' natural design that makes members of this brass quintet fun-loving and boisterous.

"It's the nature of the instruments," Karoub said. "A brass quintet is a louder, more powerful group with a wider range of decibels that can project without amplification.

For this quintet, it's more than likely a little of each that makes them special: chemistry and instrument coupled with years of studying, performing and practice.

Karoub stands as the group's elder statesman, with nearly 50 years playing horn. "I've done everything from rock to symphony. When you've been at it almost a half a century, you're never through learning and rehearsing something new.

No single member controls the quintet. It's definitely a group effort. "We're a chamber group. We all contribute ideas and suggestions. There's really no leader," Karoub said.

M ART ASSISTANCE

To help fund an endowment for Michigan stu-dents attending one of the United Negro College Fund's 41 colleges, Jacobson's is offering original limited-edition lithographs and signed posters of "The Planting" by Emil Weddige. The Universi-ty of Michigan faculty member contributed the work to UNCF.

Proceeds from sale of the works will go into UNCF's new endowed scholarship fund. Prices are $1,500 for a framed lithograph, $1,200 for an unframed lithograph and $100 for a poster.

Weddige's work is sold exclusively at Jacobson's. The Livonia store is at Laurel Park Place, Six Mile and Newburgh.

Soft toy designer Phebe Phillips of Dallas will visit the Children's Department at Jacobson's in Livonia 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, March 27.

Test skill at photograms photogram the simplest kind of photograph to make. You don't even need a camera or enlarger. All that's required is a room that gets dark, photographic paper, developing chemicals, trays and your imagination. Of course, a regular darkroom with an enlarger will give you more flexibility, but it's not really

How do you make photograms, which, as a note of interest, have been around since the mid-19th Century?

The process is so simple even a child can produce them. Under safelight conditions (you can use a safelight bulb in a table lamp), lay out a piece of photographic paper. Now, using your imagination, arrange objects on the paper such as scissors, keys, cardboard cutouts, etc. You'll find many everyday household items that can be used.

Turn on the normal room light for just a few seconds to expose the paper. Whatever you've placed in the path of the light will create a white silhouette once the paper is developed. (A brief note on developing: All that's required are three trays of chemicals - developer, stop bath and fixer, used in this order.)

You may have to experiment to get a proper exposure time but this won't be hard to do.

For those with darkrooms, use your enlarger as the light source, exposing with a time long enough to produce a rich black on the uncovered areas of the paper.

The sharpness of the edges of the silhouettes depends on the thickness of the object. Flat objects such as a key will produce crisp, easily recognizable shapes, whereas a more three-dimensional item will result in a softer image, perhaps adding more mood to your photogram.

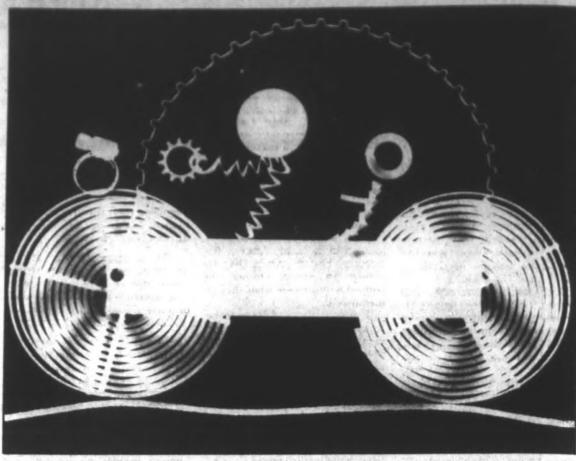

Many amateurs will make a few photograms as a means of introduction to the darkroom but won't continue because the process appears too easy and too lim-

This need not be true. By allowing your imagination and creativity to flow, you can come up with many exciting photogram

For example, use translucent or transparent objects to give you varying degrees of gray tones in the finished print. Also, anything that reflects, refracts or diffuses light is worthy of experimentation. Broken glass or crumpled cellophane can make photograms of unusual interest. If you have an enlarger, how about superimposing a negative right onto the photogram?

I made the photogram of this automobile" by using such simple objects as washers, metal filings, a ruler, film reels and a piece of string for the roadway.

The snapshots of life in southest Detroit depict life grounded cultural heritage: Mexican-American, African-American, Anglo and Arabic.

"I emphasized I wanted them to photograph people, places and things. If they became locked into one area, I asked them to start taking photographs walking around the neighborhood or in their house," Diaz said.

Diaz was unconcerned with hether the kids were paying atention to the technical aspects of photography. From the beginning, he had made the decision not to teach a basic photography course.

"I didn't want to talk photography talk. I told them if you're excited about something, take a photograph of it, but if something's bothering, take a photo-graph of that too," he said.

summer classes at Earhart. "I wanted the kid who somehow didn't fit in. I didn't want students with prior photographic experience," Diaz said. "I wanted them to be enthusiastic or interested in the idea of taking photographs."

As part of the workshops, Diaz conducted exercises to develop their senses and observation skills. In one of the early sessions, he jumped into the classroom in costume with a monster mask laser gun in hand. After a few minutes, he left. When Diaz returned in street clothes, he popped a quiz to see what they remembered

'I wanted them to learn to become sensitized to their environment. I wanted them to develop their seeing, their hearing, senses of smell and touch," Diaz said.

Besides training the eye to observe, Diaz taped cans of sardines and cat food under the students desks in an effort to hone their sense of smell. For touch, he placed beans and other objects on their seats before class.

'I wanted them to pay attention to surface quality, the softness and hardness of an object," Diaz said. "The best artists in the world are the artists that are aware (of their senses). I think that's far more important than teaching technical skills.'

Every two weeks, Diaz brought in guest speakers, who in addition to serving as role models, encouraged the young photographers. It was important to Diaz that the professionals included not only men but women and people of col-"The workshop gave them a sense of self, a sense of encouragement that something I do can be valued," Diaz said. "That's why the exhibition is important. They began to take pride in their ability to create, that their creations can

The exhibition opened with a eception March 12 at which the students received albums of their photographs along with certificates of achievement.

We know the importance that culture and people's heritage plays. They came to know that, They came to sense that. They took pictures of what was very important to them — their family members, their friends, their community," said Casa de Unidad co-director Marta Lagos.

"The photography was a vehicle for them to explore their artistic creativity. To have the exhibit in a well-known gallery, it gave them a sense of importance and a place to show their outstanding work."

Casa de Unidad Cultural Arts and Media Center aims to identidevelop and preserve the Hispanic/Latino cultural heritage of southwest Detroit and to create awareness of this heritage within southeast Michigan.

Sale of prints of the students work will go toward raising the money needed for the project to continue this summer. Prints are available at $50 each at Urban Park.

"This is something that was different and normally wouldn't be shown in a commercial gallery," said Dave Roberts, Urban Park director.

"This is high quality and worthy of exhibit. It demonstrates the talent within an average child. It demonstrates there's talent within all of us. It shows the everyday life of the southwest Detroit youth and gives us the opportunity for sponsorship."

"Through Their Eyes; Visions of Life" continues through April 12 at Urban Park Gallery. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday-Saturday and noon to 7 p.m.

Home life: Earhart Middle school student Amalia Rosales photographed "Woman Cleaning," depicting her sister sweeping their southwest Detroit apartment.

Content matters:

Photographer Carlos Diaz deliberately did not teach technical skills in his student workshop. "I tried not to dampen the intuitive way of reacting to their environment," he said.

The Romance Writers of America's Greater Detroit Chapter will sponsor a conference for aspiring novelists.

"Tapping the Source IV" will be Saturday, April 24, in the Radisson Plaza Hotel, Southfield.

Keynote speaker Emma Merritt will lead a workshop on writing the synopsis. The former RWA president writes historical and serious romances and has published 35 books. In 1992, she was awarded the Romance Writers of America Volunteer Service Award.

Luncheon speaker Rosanne Bittner of Coloma has published 29 historical and Indian romances. She will lead a workshop on researching and writing the historical saga.

Other authors attending will include LaVerne Coan of Canton, Joan Avery, Peggy Hanchar, Allison Hart (Jennifer (Jennifer Greene), Ruth Ryan Langan of Farmington Hills, and Shelly Meinhardt (Shelly Thacker) of Redford Township.

Editors will include Barbara Rayczek of Harlequin Books and Barbara Alpert of Bantam. Agents will include Rob Cohen and Allison Mullen.

In addition to oneon-one appointments, editors and agents will offer manuscript critiques and present a workshop related to their area of expertise.

For a conference brochure, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Marianne Evans, 533 Walnut, Royal Oak, MI 48073.

Contemporary art topic of DIA talk

"Unlikely Minds in Conversation" is the kickoff event in a new series of innovative programs planned by the Detroit Institute of Arts' newly formed Forum for Contemporary Art.

Joining Museum of Modern Art curator Robert Storr in conversation will be Felix Gonzalez-Torres, a photographer and conceptual installation artist who lives and works in New York. They will discuss informally between themselves and with the audience a range of provocative issues on "art and the politics of art."

"Unlikely Minds in Conversation" will be presented 7 p.m. Thursday, April 1, in the Lecture Hall of the DIA. Admission is $5 general, $3 for students, free for members of the Friends of Modern Art. For information about tickets, call the DIA at 833-2323. For more information about the event, call 833-0247.

Immediately after the conversation at the DIA, the audience may join the speakers at the avant-garde Willis Gallery, where a timely exhibition, "Honor the Earth," will be on view. Live music and complimentary refreshments will be offered. The gallery is at 422

W. Willis, two doors west of Cass Avenue.

The Forum for Contemporary Art is the newest branch of the DIA's well-established auxiliary support group, the Friends of Modern Art.

Gonzalez-Torres was born in Guaimaro, Cuba, in 1957, and lived for a time in Puerto Rico before moving to New York. He has exhibited in both national and international shows, and is a member of Group Material, an art collaborative dedicated to cultural activism.

In his recent, widely publicized project, sponsored by the Museum of Modern Art, the image of an empty, unmade bed (reflective of personal loss and the political loss of privacy) was emblazoned on 24 billboards across New York City.

Storr is the first curator appointed at the Museum of Modern Art whose primary responsibility is contemporary

During his tenure, he has undertaken a much-acclaimed reinstallation of the museum's post-1960 collection that gave equitable representation to men, women and minority artists. His 1991 exhibition of installation art was also admired for its fresh point of view.

parties and nonprofit events.

The group especially enjoys giving school concert demonstrations. "If someone wants to sponsor us to go to schools, we introduce the instruments, demonstrate the instrumental range of sounds, explain the mu-sic and give clinics," Karoub said.

For the five musicians, it's obvious music is their life.

Take Karoub. He earned a bachelor's of music degree in performance at the University of Illinois, where he studied with Phil Farkas. Later, he earned a master of music degree at Wayne State.

Karoub performed with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra two years and the Dallas Symphony for three. In the '60s and '70s, he played with Motown entertainers like The Supremes, Stevie Wonder, The Temptations, Gladys Knight & the Pips and Burt Bacharach.

After a 30-year career as band director for the Allen Park and Lincoln Park school systems, he retired in 1991, but not from music. He is assistant conductor for the LSO and the Allen Park Sym-

"It's been a great career, performing, teaching and recording. As long as the phone rings," Karoub said, "I'll continue to play." Karoub estimates he spends about 15 hours a week practicing. "If you take a vacation, you have to take your horn with you. My horns are my hobby. That's why it's enjoyable.

Davidson nods in agreement. "It's the only thing I do that I enjoy," he said.

Davidson practices up to 20 hours a week. It depends on his jobs as a free-lance trumpeter and his trumpet repair and customiz-ing business, Custom Brass Repair. He also spends time on designing his own trumpet.

Davidson studied trumpet at Boston Conservatory of Music and through Harvard's extension program. He has toured with the Four Tops and the revival of "Hair." Besides the quintet, he plays with Detroit Concert Brass and Farmington Hills-based Group du jour. His forte is teaching trumpet as is Moon's, who teaches at Cranbrook Educational community in Bloomfield Hills.

Moon began studying trumpet at 9 with his father, Benny Moon. He earned a bachelor's of music degree in trumpet performance at Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. He later played with the Teatro Communale under Ricardo Muti in Italy for one year, but homesickness brought him back to the states.

He has performed with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy, Boston Symphony under Arthur Fie-dler, Detroit Symphony and Detroit Concert Band. A free-lance trumpeter, he performs with the Michigan Opera Theatre orchestra and Group du jour. He leads the Moon Trumpet Ensemble.

Moon has a story to tell about practicing: "It's a Doc Severinsen story. If I take one day off, I know it. If I take two days off, the band knows it. If I take three days off, everybody else knows it.'

Quintet members have become intrigued with their instruments through a variety of ways.

"I picked up a junk trombone on a shelf one day in fourth grade. That was the start of my playing," said Sole, who attended Eastern Michigan. Sole taught music six years in the L'anse Creuse school system. Today, he works in retail management because, he says, "there are a lot more good musicians around than there are jobs.

After work, he performs with the Metropolitan Symphonic Band, Novi Concert Band and Scandinavian Symphony.

Besides the lack of jobs, Sole says the job of a performing musician cuts heavily into your home life: "It's always tough on spou because you're never home on hol-

Andrew, youngest quintet member whose graduating this year from the University of Michi gan School of Music with a bache lor's of music degree in tuba per-formance, sees the plusses of performing. He enjoys the camaraderie of playing tuba with the smaller group.

"I love performing and I'm not, playing against a hundred other people. I'm playing with four other instruments although I have to tone it down so I don't overpower the other players.

Andrew began studying trum-pet in fifth grade but switched to tuba in eighth. He credits his parents' support and the help of scholarships "for really getting me going."

The LSO Brass Quintet, as guest artists, makes its debut performance with the Livonia Symphony Orchestra in Ewald's "Symphony for Brass" Friday-Saturday, March 26-27, at the Livonia Civic Center Library Auditorium, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Flower show takes 'A Walk on the Wild Side'

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER Take a walk on the wild side for a taste of spring at the fourth an-nual Ann Arbor Flower and Garien Show March 25-28 at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds, 5055 Ann Arbor-Saline Road, Ann Arbor.

All proceeds from the show help develop and maintain display gardens and educational and environmental programs at the University of Michigan Matthaei Botanical Gardens, 1800 N. Dixboro, Ann Arbor.

Tickets are $7 for adults and $3 for children. They are available at all southeast Michigan Kroger stores, Matthaei Botanical Gardens, Keller & Stein, 42158 Michgan Ave. in Canton, and Sparr's Florist, 42510 Joy, Plymouth. Thursday, March 25, is Seniors

Day with tickets priced at $6. "It's a premier shows in as far as the New York Times rated us one of the 12 top flower and garden shows in the country," said Margaret Vergith, promotion coordinator. "This year's theme is sort of playful and whimsical but will educate the person coming in for ideas for the home garden."

Visitors should wear comfortable shoes as they will be walking a great deal.

'It's really a wonderful show. You can get a lot of ideas. It's nice to spend the time there," said Livonia resident Nancy Sanner, who will compete in the forced bulbs horticulture division.

Creativity abounds in the form of more than 200 horticultural exhibits offering inspiration for the garden, home and landscape and the promise that spring can't be far behind.

"You can compare it to an art museum. People do flower arranging as an art and the art of landscape designing," Sanner said.

Butterflies roam free in this year's feature garden produced by Abbot's Landscape Nursery of Ann Arbor in cooperation with Matthaei Botanical Gardens. Painted Ladies and Zebra Longwings will light on Queen Anne's lace, thistle, heliotrope and hol-lyhock in a greenhouse, which is part of the quarter-acre exhibit, "Gardening for Wildlife." A moonlight garden by Cran-brook Gardens Auxiliary will feature a romantic spot with fugitive light emanating from a selection of white blooming plants. Sculp-ture and water reflect the surrounding display. Eight other plant societies also will showcase

Lectures and demonstrations throughout the show will focus on the art of bonsai, gardening with native grasses, exotic flowering house plants, and living with shade and loving it.

Observer & Eccentric nature co-lumnist Tim Nowicki will talk about attracting wildlife to the garden.

Other scheduled speakers include Marilyn Hempstead of Fox Hill Farm discussing herbs, botanist Fred Case (native plants for wetlands, ponds and bog gardens), Matthaei assistant curator Dr. David Michener (penning and Chinese gardens) and master gar-dener Jerry Baker.

Not to be missed is a serene and contemplative contemporary Zen garden by Alexander Nursery of Mount Clemens along with eight other exhibits by profession-

"You might get ideas for growing plants in a new way," Sanner

The Livonia Garden Club president will compete in one of 45 artistic design, horticulture and special entry classes for trophies and blue ribbons with a pot of narcissus. Her entry took its start from 30 bulbs and a dash of loving care.

"You have to winter them in the garage, then pot them," Sanner said. "I have three pots started - March 14, March 16 and March 18 - from which I will choose one pot to enter."

Sanner took a class in forcing bulbs several years ago at Matthaei Botanical Gardens. Since that time, she has also forced tulips to exhibit in the Ann

"I have always enjoyed flowers, the beauty of them. I like the col-ors, the white and yellows and greens," she said. "It's nice to go and see green things at this time of year. It reminds you that spring

Founded in 1969, the Livonia Garden Club became a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan in 1970. The club's nearly 60 members provide com-munity services in Livonia such as monthly garden therapy for residents of the Middlebelt Nursing Home and flower garden maintenance at Greenmead Historical Village.

"A Walk on the Wild Side" in-cludes a Standard Flower Show produced in cooperation with the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan and adhering to the guide-lines of the National Council of State Garden Clubs Inc.

The Green Thumb Cafe will of-fer hot and cold food plus bever-ages. The show is wheelchair ac-

Low mortgage rates, stable prices lure buyers

Thinking of selling your home? This could be a good time, according to figures from the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors, the state's larg-

Local sales of previously owned homes in January closely paralleled increases reported nationally of almost 15 percent, and ranks above the 11 percent reported for all of the Midwest.

"Early indications point to continuation of a strong market throughout the year," said William Deacon, association president.

"While a broad choice of available properties will remain, buyers will not have as many to pick from as a year ago. During the past six months, the number of listings has dropped 6 percent, and we think this trend will con-

The association covers a wide area including Novi, Farmington, West Bloomfield Township, Orchard Lake and Commerce Township in Oakland County to Livonia, Northville, Redford Township, Westland and Garden City

The median price in January, with half selling for more and half selling for less, was $84,500, which is down from $86,000 during the same period a year ago. The national median price in January was $103,700.

Recent publicity on skyrocketing property tax assessments may delay some purchases, particularly among first time buyers, but won't be a strong impediment to sales growth, Deacon predicted.

"Part of the increase will be offset by declining mortgage inter-tion by increased deductions on federal taxes and higher returns from the state's homestead property tax credit," Deacon said.

Not only are more first-time buyers taking the plunge, but homeowners ready to move up the housing ladder are adding to the 'Favorable market conditions for the spring selling season can be expected to attract more sellers into the market," Deacon said.

While continuing the westward more centrally located South Oakland County Board of Real-tors, covering Royal Oak, Clawson, Troy, Beverly Hills, South-field and Ferndale hasn't shared in the national trend.

"In 1992, sales were down 3.5 percent for the entire year over 1991," said Jack Kessler, office manager for the South Oakland Board of Realtors.

"For February 1993, listings were down 19 percent and sales down 2.8 percent over last year,'

Condominiums challenge municipal refusal to collect trash

What are your comments?

condominium it was required to obtain private service. Our tax bill contains a "solid waste item" on it. We pay $2,000 annually for private collection.

You have raised at least two issues in your question. The first is column you wrote of paying a hotly debated question as to taxes for gar-bage pickup, whether a municipality can provide certain services to singlefamily homeowners but not to a but then becondominium or apartment comcause of being a plex. This is the subject matter of litigation around the country and is being looked at in this state by several of our community associations' clients.

The argument is that the municipality is unnecessarily discriminating against condominium owners by collecting a tax but also requiring that the association rebage pickup.

The second question involves the propriety of the garbage pickup cost being assessed to the individual homeowner when it is generally a responsibility of the condominium association. Again, there may be a serious question as to the propriety of the co-owner having to pay the solid waste charge if the condominium association is responsible for doing so.

tain private companies for gar- getting the board to agree to conduct a physical audit of the common areas. There are a number of problems with the sewer system as well as the roof on the clubhouse. Our board is still comprised of two representatives of the developer who are thwarting our efforts. How can we convince the other people on the board of the need to move forward?

Directors of associations owe a fiduciary duty to discharge their responsibilities in regard to the rights of the association against the developer for alleged construction defects and deficiencies. The fact that the developer still maintains a seat on the board does not relieve that board member of his fiduciary responsibilities owed to the association.

In any event, those directors who are affiliated with the developer should disqualify themselves from participation in any of the deliberations of the board of directors on the issue of developer

On the other hand, the other directors must understand their responsibility to conduct a physical audit and if there are problems connected to the developer, the association is obliged to determine whether the developer can be held responsible and is prepared to accept responsibility recognizing that the association has various legal remedies avail able to it in the event the devel er is not prepared to meet his responsibilities.

A new look for an old salon

■ Hair salon owners are used to performing makeovers on clients, but when it comes to redoing their place of business, it's a whole new ballgame.

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

The challenge was to completely remodel and make over a narrow 1,000-square-foot hair salon in a shopping center while keeping the shop open.

The result — a stunning new look and a business that continues to thrive.

Michael Kugan, owner of Le Salon in Rochester Hills, marvels at the surrealistic Atlantis look that some $75,000 and a whole lot of attention to detail produced.

"Everything we did was to maximize space as well as bring it up to the '90s," Kugan said. "Hairdressing is an art. We wanted to project that in the decor.

"The other thing we wanted to get away from was the traditional beauty shop — mauve grays, flowered walls. The old salon was more representative of a rat's maze, a lot of corners."

Kugan removed the suspended ceiling, painted the girders black and hung fluorescent light fixtures, halogen lamps and a fan from the inner roof. That necessitated upgrading the electrical system.

He built a mezzanine walk-up for his washer/dryer and storage. He moved some sinks that meant moving water and sewer lines.

Kugan built a small riser platform on one side of the main portion of the shop, installed new drywall and hired a muralist, Eddie Kulczycki, to create a Greek/Roman Empire look in ruins.

All work was done over an 11-month period between closing time Saturday afternoons and re-opening Tuesday mornings.

"The biggest challenge we had from a design standpoint was to make the place look larger than it was," said Josef Roisman, a Franklin designer. "We had to create an illusion of space where there was none.

"The trades had to get in and do their jobs and stop at a certain point to allow the business to open. The trades could not have continuity. They had to go, stop, start, pull ladders out, rehook things. It was very, very difficult."

And expensive. Roisman figured that it cost 35-40 percent more to work around regular business hours than it would have to close down for the remodeling.

Gene Vennettilli, owner of Construction Services Group in Rochester Hills, served as general contractor.

"Every time you start something you always open a can of worms," he said. "You have to cut up the floor to run plumbing, find the main sewer line. When we started to move the hot water tank — it was 150 gallons — I said, 'No way are we going to move that upstairs.'

The solution was two smaller tanks, one upstairs on the newly-built mezzanine, the other downstairs.

"It was just too difficult to do without closing the store," said Vennettilli, who specializes in building custom homes. Kugan had been in his small shop in Campus Corners for nearly 13 years when his lease came up and he had the opportunity to move into a place almost three times the size in the same shopping center.

As money started running out near the end, Kugan began to put in finishing touches on the cheap. Aluminum gutters sprayed with mahogany primer were used as moldings. Plastic urns purchased for less than $10 were spiffed up with a marble finish.

"I don't know that I'd ever do it again," Kugan said of the massive project. "That's 11 months, every weekend. I already have a job and starting work (remodeling) at 5 p.m. Saturday or seven Sunday morning, and meetings during the week to decide what to take care of, it's a lot of work."

But all's well that ends well. Kugan also manages to keep things in perspective.

things in perspective.

"Regardless of what you do your salon in, you're only as good as your last haircut," he added. "That's the bottom

Kugan said his landlord, Stuart Frankel, was a fairly easy sell.

"He just kind of stood back and let us do it," Kugan said.
"The big thing with him, I think, is he knew we were going to improve the space."

A new appearance: Michael Kugan, proprietor of Le Salon in Rochester Hills, said his remodeled shop now has a surrealistic Atlantis look. Regular business hours were observed during the facelift.

Get the facts on exterior treatments

(AP) — Your home's exterior essents an image to the world. Before deciding what's best for your new home, Home Plan Ideas magazine presents some basics on exterior finishes to help you make an informed decision:

Once a standard for ranches, colonials and other house styles, wood-plank siding is now seen primarily on custom homes be-cause of high initial cost and the amount of maintenance required. Today's top grades of cedar or redwood are usually stained for a natural wood look, but these woods are also the best for holding paint if that's the type finish you want.

Wood-plank siding may be installed in horizontal, vertical or diagonal patterns. Bevel (or clapboard) siding and drop siding are the most popular horizontal patterns. Bevel siding consists simply of long boards attached to the side of the house from the bottom up, with each new board overlapping the preceding one. Boards should be nailed to the studs through the wall sheathing using corrosion-resistant nails.

Drop siding differs in that the boards lie flat with their upper and lower edges fitted in a tongue-and-groove pattern.

Vertical and diagonal patterns are usually some variation of board-and-batten construction. A narrow strip of wood (batten) is used to cover the joints between plywood or board panels.

The cost of wood-plank siding. which is sold in random lengths, covers a broad spectrum. Advocates of aluminum and vinyl siding are quick to point out the cost of repainting. If you spend an average of $2,000 repainting every three years, you will have spent more than $20,000 on repainting during the life of a 30-year mortgage. This is a primary reason why most wood-plank homes today are stained to preserve natural hues or left to weather over time to a gray tone.

Plywood popularity

Other popular woodsiding options include plywood panels and hardboard siding. Plywood panels are thin sheets of wood bonded together with a waterproof adhesive. Typically, these are four-footwide sheets with a surface veneer pattern separated by vertical grooves. These wood veneers may be redwood, cedar, fir or pine; they can be bought unfinished, prestained or prepainted.

In recent years, plywood panels formed to look like lap siding have grown in popularity because they're cheaper and quicker to put The range of finishes and thicknesses available makes plywood paneling one of the more popular siding options today. It is also graded by the American Plywood Association; this assures more control over what you're Hardboard siding is sold in sheets or in planks to be installed as lap siding. It's a resin-bonded ground wood material that is impact-resistant but doesn't offer the variety of tones or shading provided by plywood or lumber. Impact resistance and price are its chief selling points, but hardwood siding isn't graded by an industry group. Its appearance can simulate clapboard, shingles, shakes or other finishes.

Metal siding, either aluminum or steel, is sold in the form of extruded strips with flanges so that adjacent strips can be locked together.

Aluminum siding is popular because it is lightweight, fire resistant and immune to attack by termites. It also comes with longterm guarantees of up to 35 years. Drawbacks include easy denting and noise caused by wind, rain or hail. Because it conducts electricity easily, all metal siding must be grounded. Metal siding may be installed over old surfaces, but uneven walls need furring strips.

Steel siding weighs about twice as much as aluminum, costs a bit more and comes in shorter lengths.

These sidings reduce maintenance but aren't truly maintenance free. They should be washed yearly, and after many years they need touch-up paint or even an entire new coat. Some new varieties feature fluorocarbon surface coatings that help to repel dirt and prevent color fading.

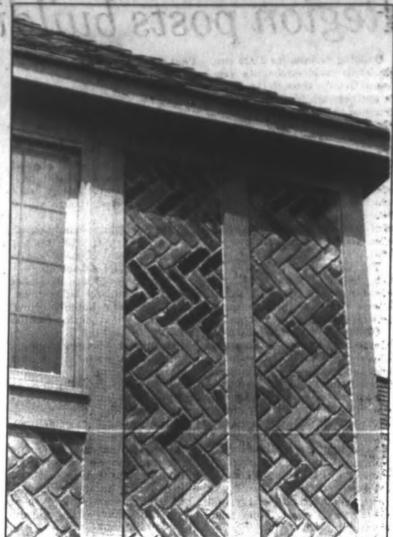

Vinyl siding doesn't dent or conduct electricity the way metal siding does. Available in a variety of colors and embossed textures, vinyl siding is extremely easy to wash and is less likely to lose its gloss than painted metal. The color also runs throughout the thickness of the product, so scratches aren't so noticeable. Because it expands and contracts with temperatures more than other materials, correct installation of vinyl siding is important to avoid buckling or rippling. It's best to install it in hot weather.

Think resale

Brick and stonework are expensive but can increase the resale value of your home. They're popular because they look solid, require little maintenance and are fire resistant.

But brick and stone are seldom used today as structural walls because of the expense. They require extra-thick foundation walls, and craftspeople able to install them are becoming harder to find

Region posts building gains

Building permits for 2,925 single family residential units were ssued October through December in southeastern Michigan, an increase of 13 percent from the comparable period in 1991.

Fourth-quarter activity brought the '92 year end total here to 13,738 units.

For all of last year here, single family residential activity which includes houses and townhouses but not condominiums or apartments - rose 16 percent from permit activity reported in

The figures were reported by U.S. Housing Markets, a Livoniabased research publication of Lomas Mortgage USA, a national servicer of residential mortgages.

Oakland, Wayne, Washtenaw, Macomb, Monroe, Livingston, Lapeer and St. Clair counties were included in the Detroit-Ann Arbor listing.

Fourth-quarter numbers here were the second highest among Great Lakes areas surveyed, trailing only Chicago's 5,888 permits.

But all other areas surveyed, Milwaukee-Racine (60 percent), Indianapolis (38 percent) Chicago (31 percent), Columbus (27 percent), Cincinnati (25 percent) and Cleveland (21 percent), had higher percentage increases.

Nationally, Detroit-Ann Arbor ranked seventh in number of single family permits issued for the year, just behind Minneapolis-St.

Paul and just ahead of Riverside-San Bernardino, Calif.

Single-family construction here last year was at its best level since 1989, U.S. Housing Markets reported.

Its capsule summary: 'Worst of market's job losses probably over, but 1992 showed of nearly 13,000 paychecks. Unemployment rate sharply improved, though still 7 percent.

"Best new single family devel-opment sales under $120,000, but good up to mid $200,000 range. Action slow $300,000 and up.

"Good sales north in Rochester area, Oakland and Orion townships. Western suburbs Novi, Northville, Plymouth, Canton bustling.

"Good market for new condos. "Rental apartment market overbuilt. Vacancies high, rents flat. Occupancy generally in 85-88 percent range, but lower in some areas of heavier recent development and in complexes older than "Overbuilding most apparent in western locales, Novi, Wixom, Plymouth, Ypsilanti and in M-59 corridor north and northeast. Landlords aggressive, advertising concessions such as low move-in costs, 13th month free on 12month lease.

1,000 population during the last four quarters — put Detroit-Ann Arbor last among Great Lakes areas for the period ending Dec.

Indianapolis led the way at 7.6 units per 1,000 population, Co-lumbus 7.4, Cincinnati 6.4, Milwaukee-Racine 5.2, Cleveland 4, Chicago 3.9 and Detroit-Ann Arbor 3.6.

Jobs is the single most important factor propelling new housing starts, said Sandy Tolbert, senior vice president for Lomas.

"Factors such as mortgage rates and housing price inflation or deflation will stimulate or depress the housing market, but these tend to be relatively short-term

"Job growth leads to household formations across the income spectrum, providing the economic muscle as well as the positive psychological climate for homebuying all the way from entry level up to luxury custom.

Sales barometer: The report sows that the "best new single-family development sales (are) under $120,000, but good up to mid-$200,000 range. Action slow (for houses) $300,000 and up."

Garage apartment highlights house

Vertical siding draws the eye skyward, creating an impression that the Vangelder is even larger than it is, Galvanized steel roofing enchances this effect. But with close to 3,000 square feet of living space, plus a two-car garage, this is not a small home.

A self-centained living unit over the garage could be rented out as a separate apartment or outfitted to serve as a family room and home office. The complex has a bedroom, a kitchen and a sitting area with a small dining bay.

The main floor of the home is up a half-flight of stairs from ground level. Standing in the spacious entry, you see a large coat closet to the right and two stairways to the left. Descending steps lead down to the garage, and the ascending stairway climbs to the self-contained unit.

It's one step down from the entry to the sunken living room and den. Both rooms have sliding glass doors that open onto a wide wrap-around deck. A corner fireplace provides warmth in winter.

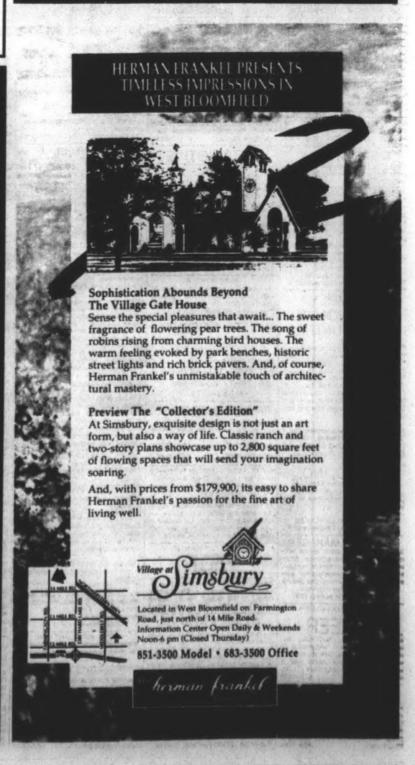

Living room, dining room and den flow together, but the dining room is one step higher, on the same level as the kitchen. Skylights brighten the living room and dining room, and both are expanded by vaulted ceilngs.

The large country kitchen is open to the dining room.

For a study plan of the Vangelder and $9 to Landmank D.

For a study plan of the Vangelder, send $9 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 23307-OE48, Eugene, Or. 97402, specifying plan name and number.

HINIRINISICINIPIE

By C.C. Clark

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

You may too emotional about the situation you are in to deal with it logically. Try going to an outside source for a different perspective.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) Overindulgence in food and drink could be causing you problems. Get your life back in control and do what is right for your body and soul.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) Don't let your emotional side get the best of you, especially when dealing with colleagues. It is probably best to keep them guessing.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22) This is a good time to get away and think about what you want to do with the rest of your life. Be more accepting of those around you.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) The wheel of fortune is spinning for you, and it is important you adapt to different situations. Pay your dues and know that all will turn out well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) It is time you recognized the way you have treated others and make amends. You must learn to trust the people close to you or risk being alone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

You will receive an important letter or document that could change the way you look at life. This is a good time for prosperity and successful ventures.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21) You do not need to try so hard to get others to like you. Everything has a way of working out for the best, but it may take longer than you would like.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) You have the ability to look above your present situation and see things as they will be. You have the power to get the job done, so trust yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) You must look within to find the answers you seek. There is a possibility that plans will be postponed. You may be headed in the wrong direction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) There could be an upheaval in your family situation, and tears could be shed. Do not be afraid to speak your mind and do what you think is right.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20) You will soon reap the rewards of your hard work. Be patient when beginning new projects. Many good things are happening.

Diana's private pain goes public in 'Her True Story'

Biographer Morton Diana, and David Threitain uncannily prim as Charles, tells all

By Chris Carpenter Truth is indeed stranger than fiction, as most television movies bear witness.

Diana: Her True Story, based on the book of the same name by Andrew Morton, is, if not the definitive word on Prince Charles and Princess Di's marriage, at the very least a more credible and wellproduced effort than the recent entries in this burgeoning genre. The miniseries airs in two-hour segments on Sunday, April 4, and Monday, April 5.

Morton has managed to wrest an amazing amount of inside information from the palace walls, and he has almost single-handedly changed the way many Anglophiles now see their role models, he admits.

"I think an uncritical reverence has been exchanged for a sort of critical respect now," he says. On film, Serena Scott Thomas, as Diana, and David Threlfall, effectively keep Diana: Her True Story from slipping into soap-opera status. The result is ultimately quite a sad story, for which the final chapter is yet to be written.

'The monarchy is a useful institution that shouldn't be thrown away," Morton notes, "But having said that, the monarchy as we know it is effectively over. We all thought of it as representing the virtues of idealized Christian standards. Obviously, those standards have gone right out the window."

It's the acclimation to those standards that initially suffociates Diana in the first hour of Her True Story and sets the tone for the remainder of the movie. Before the last teardrop falls, Diana conquers bulimia, shattered dreams and a run-in with "the other woman" to come out a survivor.

In 1980, at age 19, Diana Spencer is shy but popular, and she keeps her relationships few and innocent. But Charles plays the field furiously. with pressure to marry everpresent. "You've courted half the girls in the country," Prine Philip snaps one afternoon, "how long does it take to fine a Protestant virgin?"

After a half-hearted courtship. Charles clumsily asks Diana to marry him, though both have grave misgivings about Diana's ability and desire to enter public life.

"It was far too much to ask of her." Morton says. "But it's exercising the joy of hindsight to say she should have been well aware of what she was getting into."

One bit of royal grief Diana could never shake is Camilla Parker-Bowles, a married friend of the Windsors who maintains a persistent, flirtatious presence near

That betrayal, coupled with her insufferably insular lifestyle, leads Diana to agree to an unprecedented meeting with the queen to discuss a formal separation. The business of the country now becomes her only tie to Charles.

Now busy with charity work and her children, Diana appears to have found the strength to make Her True Story a less unhappy one.

Barry's music makes movies more memorable

By Dan Rice

One of Hollywood's busiest composers works in London. On Monday, March 29, PBS' Great Performances presents John Barry's Moviola, a visit with the man whose music helps us know and remember characters from James Bond and Elsa the lion to King Kong and Howard the Duck.

Barry is the only Englishman to have won five Oscars, honored for his memorable themes for The Lion in Winter, Out of Africa and Dances With Wolves, and twice for Born Free. Scores for the latter two films also earned him Grammys, as did his work on Midnight Cowboy and The Cotton

Barry, who started out as a rock 'n' roll trumpeter, began scoring films in the late '50s,

Fans lament soap stars' passings

By Candace Havens

Many readers have written in to ask about the recent deaths of several favorite daytime actors and actresses. It is never an easy task to report bad news, but here are some pertinent details:

As the World Turns' head writer, Douglas Marland, died of complications from abdominal surgery March 6 in Norwalk, Conn. He was 58

Marland began his writing career on Another World and had won numerous awards for his writing on ATWT. Guiding Light and General Hospital. He had worked as an actor in several feature films, television shows and on the stage.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests any donations be sent to the American Indian College Fund, 21 West 68th Street, New York, N.Y., 10023.

Joy Garrett, best known as Jo Johnston, the matriarch of the Johnston family on Days of Our Lives, died on Feb. 11 at age 47.

Garrett suffered from a serious liver ailment for several months and had slipped into a coma at one time. She regained consciousness, but her health continued to deteriorate.

The actress was a favorite of the cast and crew on the show, and a spokesperson from Days comments, "It is very tragic. She will be missed."

Garrett is survived by her parents, Clarence and Kathleen Garrett, and her fiance, actor Tom Allard.

Donations can be made in Garrett's memory to the Theatre Scholarship Fund, Texas Wesleyan University, 1201 Wesleyan Street, Fort Worth, Texas, 76105

Michael David Morrison, who portraved Caleb Snyder on As the World Turns, was found dead in his apartment on Feb 13. He was 33.

The coroner's report listed a combination of alcohol and drugs in Morrison's system. His wife was reportedly visiting family in Idaho when the tragedy occurred.

The young actor originated the role of Caleb in June 1988 and had been on and off the show since then. He had recently signed a new contract to work full time on the series.

Morrison is survived by his wife, Amy McDonald, and son, Matthew.

BUTS AND PIECES

Lorrie Morgan turns to drama: young people's shows tackle prejudice

Country singer Lorrie Morgan ("What Part of No") makes her dramatic acting debut in the one-hour special Proudheart. Morgan plays a blue-collar single mother who returns to her hometown of Proudheart, Tenn., to take charge of her late father's debt-ridden gas station. The program will air this summer on The Nashville Network.

Women in the 20th century: The essence of their lives, loves, work and play is the focus of A Family of Women. a four-hour documentary being developed by Turner Broadcasting System. The VU Productions project will draw upon the collections of photographs and diaries of the Schlesinger Library at Radcliffe College, the nation's largest archive on the history of American women. Using the format of fictional characters experiencing real events of the last 100 years, the program is set to air on TBS in the spring of 1994, in conjunction with the library's 50th anniversary.

Ron Reagan and Andria Hall have been named as the first correspondents for a prime-time news magazine in development by Fox News. Reagan has served as host for a series of cable documentaries as well as his own latenight talk show Hall was co-anchor and producer of WCVB-TV in Boston's news magazine Chronicle for eight years. Other correspondents will be amed later.

Racial tension is a matter well considered by the youth of America, and two network programs in production offer them food for thought. Crosses on the Lawn, a CBS Schoolbreak Special, tells the fictional story of a town divided by prejudice when affirmative action influences the hiring process of a sorely needed new industry ABC Saturday Morning Specials presents South Central: Kid to Kid, a project in which six ethnically diverse groups of 11- to 18-year-olds from the Los Angeles area express their views on race relations through self-produced video vignettes. South Central airs May I, on the anniversary of last year's riots in the city.

Faith Daniels serves as host for Is Your Number Up?, Friday on PBS. The program focuses on cholesterol.

Saturday on NBC, Martina Navratilova hopes to compete in the semifinals of the Family Circle Cup.
