Promoter: Festival must adjust

Plymouth's annual Fall Festival needs more events that appeal to younger people. That's what Joe Bida, longtime festival promoter, says is needed. He also has some thoughts on the competition for festival-

BY KEVIN BROWN

To stay strong, Plymouth's Fall Festival organizers should key on two things First, the festival should appeal more to teens. And there shouldn't be so many food booths and food events that organizations end up losing money from competition

So said Joe Bida, long time fall festival publicity chairman, who's talking again about stepping away from festival organizing after this year.

"I enjoy working with the group,

but when you get around 71 years old, you learn there's no way you can satisfy everybody," said Bida, a former mayor and department of public

In the future, Bida added, festival organizers "should maybe think about moving it," as the festival site downtown is getting crowded.

The 38th Plymouth Community Fall Festival opens Friday and runs through Sunday.

Bida was with the city department of public works when the festival started in 1956, as the Plymouth Rotary held a chicken barbecue to raise money to buy playground equipment.

"It started with a community barbecue; they sold 500 chicken dinners," Bida said. In 1958, the festival site was moved to downtown. For a time, sand was laid on Penniman Avenue and charcoal placed on top of that to cook chickens.

The sale of chicken dinners peaked at 16,000 dinners in the late 1960s. The Sunday chicken barbecue has become "the largest chicken-selling

Festivaloffers fall fun

The Plymouth Fall Festival gets under way Friday night and runs through Sunday, offering food, entertainment, an arts and crafts show and more.

Here's a quick look at some of the events:

- More than 80 artists and craftspeople will display their handiwork during the Plymouth Community Arts Council Artists and Craftsman Show held at Central Middle School, Main and Church, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.
- The City of Plymouth Volunteer Firefighters Association will teach children of all ages important steps to follow if they are in an emergency situation. The fire safety house will be on the corner of S. Main Street at Penniman Avenue. Hours are: 1-10 p.m. Friday; noon to 10 p.m. Saturday; and noon to 6 p.m.
- The Optimist Club Pet Show is Saturday. The dog competition is 8:30 a.m. The unusual pets will be on stage at 10 a.m. If you have a cat you should report to the festival stage at 10:15 a.m.
- The annual Plymouth Community Fall Festival was started by the Plymouth Rotary Club more than 38 years ago, and that tradition continues on Sunday when club members will cook about 15,000 chicken dinners at The Gathering near Kellogg Park. The dinner will be sold from noon to 5 p.m. and include half a chicken, an ear of corn, roll and beverage for $7. Advance discount tickets are available from any of the 130 members of the Rotary Club. Also, club members will be in booths in various locations during the festival. You can eat in the park or you can get your order to go at the Outpost at West Middle School on Ann Arbor Trail and Sheldon Road.

Woman reports man ran her car off road

A 19-year-old Plymouth woman told police that a man about 40 with a bad complexion and gray ing hair ran her off the road on southbound Mill about 2:30 p.m.

She said the man pulled out in his car directly in front of her and made an obscene gesture and yelled before pulling behind her car and pushing it forward.

The woman told police she put her car into park because she was afraid the man was going to push her out into Ann Arbor Road. After the woman and the man got out of their cars, the man pushed the woman backward, swore at her and said, "Get back in your car or I'll push you into traffic."

The woman said she wants to prosecute.

The number of League mem-

To keep the local group going, "We're looking at a number of options," she said. One is creating a new local group with members from a wider geographic area.

McAninch said part of the problem with getting the work done that a local League group takes on is that many members work or have families to tend to.

Prince said younger members weren't being attracted to the local League chapter. She said that while the League has traditionally included several men members, their numbers were also down.

Prince said that some groups, including homeowners groups and the Plymouth concerned citizens groups, had been doing voter profiles and sponsoring candidate debates - services the League has performed.

Prison policy

Prosecutor hopes to jam revolving door

Wayne County chief assistant prosecutor George Ward is sick and tired of seeing Michigan residents bounce in and out of prison 10 times or more while government makes little, if any, attempt at rehabilitation.

We just simply re-prosecute the same guy until we're blue in the face," he said of the current system. "The net effect is that we're wasting a ton of taxpayer money.

Recently Ward won what he called a "breakthrough" decision in the courtroom of Wavne County Circuit Judge Cynthia Stephens when the judge agreed to attach conditions to the parole of a habitual offender convicted of five felonies and four misdemeanors.

Ward, a Plymouth Township resident, had been appealing the two-year parole of Bloomfield Hills resident Alex Persichino, who was sentenced in May 1992 to one to five years for auto theft and fleeing a police officer. The parole board recommended Persichino for parole 11 months after he was sentenced.

In the belief that Judge Stephens was unlikely to keep Persichino in prison, Ward requested that conditions be placed on his parole to straighten him out.

Judge Stephens' order says that Persichino "is on parole until he 'earns' his way off parole as evidenced by further order of the parole board.

To whit, Persichino is now re quired to attend weekly Alcoholics Anonymous meetings "without fail" for three years, hold steady, full time work for two years and "prove that he has not incurred a single violation of the traffic laws of any state or city," according to the court order.

Ward called Stephens' decision "a strike at the revolving door" and said he will seek similar arrangements in the future. "If we were stockbrokers we'd all be indicted for churning our customers' accounts.'

In a sworn affidavit, Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano agreed with Ward. "Each year in Wayne County, law enforcement

new crimes committed by former prisoners discharged from prior unserved maximum sen-. . necessitating repetitious proceedings and repetitious expenses at the local level for the same offenders," the affidavit says.

Ward would like to see the parole board do what it already has the power to do under the law: to throw parolees who commit crimes back in prison to finish out the sentence they were assigned in the first place.

The way it is now when paro lees commit crimes, they're tried and convicted, then jailed for the new crime, rather than the old one, Ward said.

This adds to the expense of the criminal justice system because a man is prosecuted, convicted and jailed a second time when he could simply be reincarcerated under the terms of his original sentence for violating parole.

Ward and Ficano agree that parolees should be required to show concrete evidence that just as Judge Stephens has required Persichino to do.

These paroles should be structured with self-improvement terms and conditions, Ward said. "Isn't that good psychology, to make you earn your way in the world?'

So why doesn't the state's 10member parole board take the advice if it's such a good idea?

Ward believes that the state corrections bureaucracy sees it as an overcrowding problem. If parolees who commit crimes are tossed back in prison, the state's got a problem with too many prisoners.

But if parolees who commit crimes spend six months to a year awaiting trial in the county jail, the problem is the county's, again and again in many cases.

The parole board is "more than happy to have a new case instituted," Ward said. "So they relieve the burden on their sys-

Teen finds summer job just a bowl of cherries

If you ask Christian Skoglund, 15, of Canton or Angela Standhardt of Birmingham about their summer jobs, they're likely to say they were "the pits." Liter-

Standhardt and Skoglund, longtime friends, spent most of their summer "working cherries" in the Traverse City area. They soon learned, however, that the local expression for harvesting and processing one of Michigan's most popular fruits really meant having no life.

While their families vacationed, the teens worked 10- to 12-hour night shifts six and seven days a week preparing cherries destined for commercial markets here and abroad.

Standhardt, a liberal arts student at Loyola University, worked as a "sorter" for Great Lakes Packing, a processing plant located in Kewadin, a small town about 15 miles north of Traverse City. Her job required a good eye for bad cherries, which she described as "bruised and pale."

She also needed strong arches. Except for a five-minute break on the hour, she stood in front of a conveyor belt her entire shift, scrutinizing cherries on their way to being sugared and packed into 30-pound containers. But sore feet were the least of her worries. She had been warned by former sorters that she might get motion sickness.

"Some of the kids told me I might need Dramamine," she said. "I didn't, but it was difficult staring down at all those cherries for so long. I couldn't relax once I got home.

Standhardt's shift usually ended between 4 and 5 a.m. Afterward, she'd toss off her hairnet and go out for breakfast or a swim with some of her co-workers. She willingly sacrificed valuable sleep time for a chance to socialize.

"I'd have no life otherwise," she said, waving a pair of purplestained hands in front of her for emphasis. "No life."

Skoglund, a sophomore at Plymouth Canton High School, had no energy left to eat or swim after he emerged from the orchards each morning at 6 a.m. His job as a "tarp puller" on one of the 12-person crews that worked for Cherry Ke Inc., also in Kewadin, left him with aching shoulders and stiff hands

He had to pull out yards of heavy canvas tarp from a mechanized roller and lay it around each ed cherries. tree. After the "cherry shaker," a specially designed truck with a long arm and pincers, shook the cherries off the tree, Skoglund would guide the tarp back toward the roller. As it rewound, the cherries would bounce into a tank of cold water. At least that's how it

Skoglund, who earned the nickname "Mountain Man" because he broke all the branches that got in his way, threw out half his clothes when he got home. They were stained beyond salvage and smelled like sulphur and ferment

Standhardt didn't have to throw out as many clothes, but she's still applying lemon juice to her hands. She hopes they fade to a pale lavender before school

"Guess I won't be doing any hand commercials for awhile, she said.

Both Standhardt and Skoglund admitted to positive experiences besides receiving a large dose of the American work ethic and honing their sense of humor.

"I met some really nice people," said Standhardt. "Maybe I'll do this again next year if they do."

Skoglund told of chasing deer during his breaks and gazing up into a black sky to watch meteor showers. Then he became more

'I learned about people. How they act, how they work, what they're really like. You're always with them.

The family that owns the two companies for which Standhardt and Skoglund worked plans to throw an appreciation picnic soon. They probably will serve cherry pie, cherry ice cream and cherry-topped cheesecake, all those luscious concoctions that wouldn't be possible without the efforts of people like Standhardt and Skoglund.

Standhardt and Skoglund would like to attend. But they'll ask for hamburgers. A little mustard, maybe some ketchup, a few onions. Skip the cherries.

Writer Renee Skoglund is Christian's mom.

Communication Is The Key To Any Good Relationship.

Especially This One . . .

Your relationship with your obstetrician/gynecologist is one of the most important ones you'll ever have. Good communication with your doctor is the key to making your pregnancy and the birth of your baby one of the most special times of your life.

You want a doctor sensitive to your beliefs, yet professional enough to make medical decisions quickly and responsibly. At Meadowbrook Obstetrics and Gynecology, Dr. Steven J. Friedman believes in giving careful consideration to your needs and desires while doing everything possible to ensure a smooth, safe pregnancy and delivery.

He encourages discussion of any prenatal and birthing concerns ranging from cravings and varicose veins to amniocentesis and epidurals. He pays close attention not only to your body and the baby growing inside, but also to your thoughts, feelings and questions too.

Dr. Friedman will communicate various birthing and prenatal options, ensuring that everyone — doctor, patient and family — has all the information necessary to make educated decisions at this momentous time in your life.

Why not get the latest relationship in your life - the one with your new baby - off to a great start? Select an obstetrician/gynecologist who cares about communicating with you.

case backlog. With haste borne of necessity, Talbot processed all of these "real hard-nosed cases" in 20 working days. In one day alone, Talbot heard 53 pre-trials. "It was ugly," he said. "We were spinning

By convincing defendants to enter plea bargains and waive jury trials among other things, Talbot reduced the number of cases awaiting jury trial by almost 25 percent.

So the idea is that seven circuit judges will try about 340 cases before Nov. 25, Talbot's self-imposed goal. That's about 48 trials per judge, or about six trials per day based on the Sept. 8 starting time. Each judge would have about 1.2 days on average to try each

"When Rick Kaufman and I first looked at this we were scared stiff," Talbot said. "I can say now we should shut this thing down by Thanksgiv-

Circuit judges to help clear backlog

The circuit judges assigned to hear all these cases are William Cahalan, Michael Callahan, Richard Hathaway, Susan Beike Neilson, James Rashid, Michael Stacey and Edward Thomas.

Kaufman said that only the Circuit Court's efficient processing of civil cases has made it possible to cut seven judges loose for this special duty.

In 1985 Wayne County Circuit Court had more than 17,000 civil cases that had been pending more than two years, Kaufman said. As of right now there are 194.

The administration system Wayne County Circuit Court uses to process civil cases has been "adopted exactly" by the

Washington, D.C., Circuit Court and more recently by the St. Louis County Circuit Court, Kaufman said.

The credit? "It was a team effort. But I hope I played an important role.

It's too soon to tell, Kaufman added, if additional circuit judges should be added to the group of five that helps the Recorder's Court judges, although, "anything is possible down the road."

Talbot said that accelerating the criminal trial process isn't necessarily a matter of adding judges and courtrooms. It might be that the restricted pipeline can be cleared by tweaking the administrational procedures. Besides, Talbot said, no system is forever.

"The systems you put in place probably need a change every five years," he said.

Y kicks off MS exercise program

An exercise and support program for people with multiple sclerosis is being formed at the Livonia Family YMCA.

The program, a combination of water exercise, discussion and socializing, will be held Fridays from 6-8 p.m. Water exercise is set from 6-7 p.m. and group discussion from 7:15-8 p.m.

An orientation meeting is scheduled from 6-7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 17, at the Y, 14255 Stark Road, north of Schoolcraft.

Doris Colling, a former Livonia resident and former employee at the Livonia Chamber of Commerce diagnosed with MS six years ago, is excited about the new program.

It was Colling who approached Y officials to suggest the program.

"I know this group might not be for everybody with MS but I am sure there are lots of others like myself who will benefit,"

said Colling. The Livonia Family YMCA is working in cooperation with the St. Mary Hospital physical therapy department to train Y staff. The new group will also provide information from experts about new medication and new treatment available to those with MS.

"I'm glad that someone out there is willing to offer such a program," said Sue Wilson of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. "We get a lot of calls asking for this kind of program."

Call the YMCA at 261-2161, Ext. 312 for more information about the orientation.

Dedication scheduled

o commemorate a landmark legal case involving a Plymouth cow in the 1800s, the State Bar of Michigan and the Suburban Bar Association of Western Wayne County held a dedication ceremony for the placement of a landmark today at 11 a.m. in Kellogg Park.

The ceremony commemorated the case concerning "Rose of Aberlone," a cow sold by a Plymouth man to the Hiram Walker distillery in Windsor. The Plymouth owner won his suit to keep the cow, when it was discovered she was able to produce

Flymouth Former Tiger makes a new pitch

■ Pat Sheridan is remembered for a two-run eighth inning homerun for the Tigers in 1987, but these days he's interested in a different kind of pitch, insurance. He has a new agency in Canton.

BY DIANE GALE STAFF WRITER

It's going, going and it's out of the park.

You might remember the thrill of watching Pat Sheridan save the day in 1987 with a tworun eighth-inning homerun during the Tiger's American League playoffs.

The outfielder became known for coming through in dramatic moments during baseball history. In 1985, when he was playing with Kansas City Royals, his ninth-inning pinch homer tied game two of the American League playoffs against Toronto and in game seven of the same series he also hit a home run.

"My first big league hit was a home run off of Milt Wilcox," he said.

He was drafted by the Kansas City Royals in 1979 out of Eastern Michigan University. In 1982, however, he pitched his first major league disappointment when he ripped his hamstring during spring training.

He got called back up to the majors in 1983.

"I was pretty nervous for probably the first month," said Sheridan who also played for the New York Yankees and San Francisco Giants. Sheridan ended his career in 1991.

The 35-year-old star traded in a baseball bat for insurance contracts with Conrad Insurance Agency and opened an office in Canton Professional Plaza on Canton Center three weeks ago.

'We came from Dearborn to Canton," he said. "Dearborn is overgrown and Canton is a growing area."

The company is affiliated with a number of agencies including Citizens Insurance Company of America. Sheridan holds a 50 percent share of the Citizens contracts signed in Canton. It's only fair considering he signed Citizens through his affiliation with Ernie Harwell, a Citizens Insurance spokesman who lined up the deal.

Sitting behind a desk in a yet to be decorated office, the Farmington Hills resident describes the adjustment of pulling in "checks with a lot of zeros" to selling insurance. He got his insurance license in 1986 when he was still playing ball. It turned out to be a good decision.

After he retired his bat, he took 12 months off to enjoy life, golfing and to take it easy. But that got old and bor-

'All your friends are at work," said

One of the biggest changes is the money.

"When you're in baseball you kind of take for granted what you see figurewise compared to the real world," he said. "They give you $55 a day to eat for road trips.

Playing the major leagues was a dream come true for a young boy living in the City of Wayne who played ball every chance he got.

"I played baseball all the time," he said adding with remorse in his voice that youngsters aren't as devoted to the sport as they were when he was idolizing the 1968 Tigers World Series team, especially Al Kaline.

"No one is out there playing," Sheridan said adding baseball can be slow moving and youngsters are probably looking for faster action sports, like hockey - a sport he enjoyed but didn't pursue, because he wasn't a strong skater.

He decided to give up baseball when "I felt was going backwards."

Looking to the future, Sheridan and his wife, Melanie, are expecting a baby in November. They also have a 4-year-old daughter, Paige.

Former mayor Guenther dies at 83

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Harold Guenther, 83, who se-cured the clock for downtown Plymouth and was an effective mayor in the 1950s and early '60s, died Wednesday.

"To my mind he was one of the best mayors the city had,' former said mayor Joe Bida.

"Certainly Harold Guenther was one of the statesman of the community," said Paul Sincock, assistant city manager Guenther began serving the city commission in August 1954. In April 1957 he was elected mayor, and served in that position until Guenther donated the clock off of Kellogg Park to the city in 1987, in honor of his son Peter who died two years earlier.

Guenther was a Plymouth Rotary Club member since 1952 and a past president. He was a member when the Rotary started the chicken barbecue which evolved into the Plymouth Fall Festival. and was always a top ticket seller, Sincock said.

Guenther owned C.D. Sparling & Co. in Plymouth, a company

He also served on several city boards and commissions through the '60s, '70s and '80s.

Guenther was born July 31, 1910, in Sheridan, Wyo. Survivros include his wife, Geneva of Plymouth: three sons, Michael of Plymouth, Torbett of Plymouth and Kim of Northville; and three

Fall Festival

New ideas needed for event

f there were a face to go with Plymouth's annual Fall Festival, it would be that of Joe Bida

A former Plymouth mayor and DPW director. Bida has been the mainstay of the annual fall event. So, when Bida said recently that the Fall Festival needs to spruce itself up to appeal to young people, we listened. The Fall Festival, which runs this weekend, is a tradition in the Plymouth and Canton communities that dates back to 1956 when the Plymouth Rotary Club held a chicken barbecue to raise money for playground equipment.

During the ensuing years, community groups in Canton and Plymouth have used the festival as a major fund-raising venue. But the centerpiece has always been the Rotary chicken barbecue on Sunday.

For more than 25 years, the mix has worked for Plymouth, but let's face it, even the best event when served up on the same plate year after year gets stale. The Fai! Festival needs new window dressing, as Bida said.

This year Bida brought back karaoke and added new entertainment in the form of the Don Allen Trio, the Renaissance Chorus and For more than 25 years, the mix has worked for Plymouth, but let's face it, even the best event when served up on the same plate year after year gets stale. the Detroit Edison Enviro Magic Show.

For next year, Bida suggests a dance at the Mayflower Hotel. It sounds like a good idea.

But we didn't hear the name of Mike Watts mentioned. It should be. Watts took over the Plymouth Ice Festival two years ago, and has managed to put new life into the event. He put colored lights on the ice sculptures and started a celebrity ice carving contest.

Also, Watts nearly single handedly started the summer music festival in Plymouth, which features blues, jazz and country music.

Watts is a Plymouth resident and professional music promoter who has taken an interest in his community. He is a resource who should be used to help plan future Fall Festivals.

We'll be looking forward to the start of Fall Festival on Friday and to the next festival, but we'll also be looking for a new and improved

ver the past few months, I have read many front-page articles dealing with public education and its funding with great dissatisfaction. As a teacher, I have been personally offended at the paper's distortion of the facts surrounding these concerns.

One piece that I found particularly offensive was the one in which Rep. Vorva was given front-page coverage of his political posturing on the millage issue.

While he is entitled to take a stance on this question, as a member of the Michigan Legislature he is the person the community has empowered to make changes and reforms. But, he along with your staff writers, seem to appropriate the blame for an inequitable system to the teachers. That is absurd.

The best example of a misrepresentation of facts was the recent article about teachers' alleged "double-dipping." This would make a text-book example of arrogant reporting for a high-school or college journalism course. Just because some teachers defer payment of the wages they earn from a contract that runs September through June, does not make them abusers of unemployment benefits. I noticed that your reporter quoted Rep. David Jaye in the article. Is this the same David Jaye that was reprimanded by the Michigan Legislature for carrying a concealed weapon on the floor of the Michigan House and also has been cited for driving under the influence in Macomb Coun-

These are just two of the many articles that have been presented to the public in an effort, apparently, to malign the educational community. Well, I don't need to hear it.

After spending last year laid-off due to cutbacks in state aid to public schools, I am returning to the classroom. I am going in to give my students the best education I can give them In order to do that, I may have to see that some of my students get a snack in the morning because they didn't get breakfast at home; that they have a hot lunch because they haven't been provided with one from home; that they get a warm coat for the winter months; and/or that they receive the emotional support from me while their parents are divorcing, abusing or just neglecting them.

I don't care to come home on Mondays and Thursdays and be confronted with headlines that declare to my neighbors and friends that I am being overpaid for doing a substandard job.

So, I reiterate my request to have my subscription to The Observer & Eccentric Newspaper be cancelled.

Keeping it secret

he Wall Street Journal recently (Aug. 17) published the names of all the members of the House of Representatives who refused to sign the petition prepared by Representative Inhofe to "reform the secretive discharge petition" process.

Apparently, bills are regularly sent to the Rules Committee and there they remain until 218 members, a House majority, sign a "discharge petition." The game that is played is that this list is secret. All the leadership has to do to prevent a matter from going to the floor for a vote is to pressure one or two of the supporters to withdraw their support of the bill's discharge so that the required 218 is never reached.

This permits representatives to publicly support popular bills (i.e., a balanced budget amendment and line item veto), while secretly and quietly withholding their names from the discharge documents that would help them to become law.

Inhofe's bill would make this secret list public. Unfortunately, it is also held up by the same tactic. To bring light to this problem, Inhofe disclosed the names of the 223 members who have not signed the discharge petition for his bill. Rep. William Ford is one of these mem-

This is not a partisan issue. It's simply an issue of accountability to the citizens of this country. As the Journal stated, it's time to convince the House of Representatives to "give up their secret rites." Please address this matter in your paper and encourage citizens to write Congressman William Ford and ask him to support Inhofe's bill.

Mettetal questioned

t is unfortunate that the process used to purchase Mettetal Airport was flawed regarding the following:

1) Why has no one publicly seen a profit and loss statement of the operations at Mettetal Airport; 2) Why was it not reported that thousands of yards of contaminated soil along with five underground storage tanks were removed from the property at Mettetal Airport a yearand-a-half ago; and 3) Why were the citizens of Plymouth and Canton Townships denied the opportunity to vote on whether or not to buy Mettetal Airport.

Yes, there were significant omissions in the process and in the future we will know who is responsible.

■ Districts will be allowed to levy local taxes, probably on property, possibly on income. Lansing can't levy $6 billion in state taxes to replace the lost local revenue.

Engler has to determine what homeowners will take back without throwing him out of office. It's a tricky game, but when it comes to political chicanery, Engler has proven to be a master magician.

■ Income taxes will likely go up. We all know what happened to the sales tax proposals of 1989 (both) and 1993 (Proposal A). If voters reject still another sales tax hike, the Legislature will have no option but to raise the income tax. ■ The single business tax will have to yield when school property taxes are eliminated. No more revenue. Business will get a $2 billion cut way can the state get away with shifting the entire burden to individuals and consumers.

Business doesn't even want to think about replacement taxes. At a hearing in the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce building, small business owners told a House Taxation Committee everything wrong with the SBT and that taxation stifles jobs. They displayed an astounding inability to grasp that they'll have to pay something. "Sin" taxes won't do the job. It's fashionable to babble about socking smokers and drinkers, but the state can't drag $6 billion out of them. Smoking, and tobacco taxes, are declining. Alcohol taxes that are too high will be evaded in the black market.

Party time is over. We need public schools, We need better public schools. We need to prepare kids in public schools for the workforce which will mean curriculum and equipment changes.

Unless we can find a way to tax dreams at $1, hallucinations at $5 and delusions at $10, homeowners and business people should plan to pay new taxes for their schools.

Major TV networks hoodwinked us with the Cable Act

don't know how Congress got hoodwinked into passing the 1992 Cable Act, but the broadcasters must be dancing in the streets over it. They never did like having to compete with cable; now they have a law that lets them penalize those of us who have committed the unpardonable sin of wanting more viewing choices than the broadcast networks provide.

Why else would the local ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox affiliates refuse to let cable carry their stations without compensation? Broadcasters are compensated for their programming costs, through advertising. This has been the unspoken pact between viewers and broadcasters since broadcasting started—the public paid a little more for goods and services, which provided manufacturers with the advertising dollars they use to support programming on broadcast networks.

Since broadcasters set their advertising rates based on viewership, why would they want to damage themselves by making it harder for anyone to watch their programming? The only explanation that makes sense is that they want to penalize cable subscribers, by making it harder for cable subscribers to watch broadcast programming.

Ultimately, of course, this self-damaging strategy doesn't make sense unless broadcasters see some long-range monetary benefit in it — after all, punishing cable subscribers doesn't pay any bills. Since their money comes from advertisers, they must believe this strategy will help them get more advertising dollars.

GUEST COLUMNIST

KAREN J. GOULD

How could punishing cable subscribers do this? The answer lies in the 15 percent of advertising dollars now spent on cable networks. (Even though cable networks make most of their money from subscriber fees, some of them supplement those fees with advertising.)

If the broadcasters' "penalty" causes even a few subscribers to drop cable because of the inconvenience or the cost, broadcasters can use this drop in viewership to convince advertisers not to advertise on cable.

When cable networks lose advertising dollars they only have two choices: Make it up in subscriber fees, or let their programming quality suffer. Either way, they'll lose viewers — cable systems will drop the network either because they can't raise prices to cover increased fees (thanks to the 1992 Cable Act), or they don't want to waste channel space on poor programming that nobody watches.

The more viewers cable networks lose, the more advertisers they'll lose . . . draw your own conclusions as to where it will end.

We can't change the fact that the Cable Act is now the law. But we can make certain that the broadcasters don't benefit from the unfair advantage they got written into that law.

Our local cable company is, so far, refusing to let local broadcasters make subscribers pay "twice" — which means they may not be carrying Channels 2, 4, 7 and 50.

I say, stand your ground. I will happily put up with the inconvenience of an A/B switch to prevent a return to the bad old days when broadcasters had a monopoly on my viewing choices.

Karen J. Gould is Plymouth resident and an advertising consultant. She previously worked in the cable industry.

Brochures show continuing ed is alive and well verything's up to date at the local community colleges — Oakland and Schoolcraft. You can tell from from the catalogs from OCC's Orchard Ridge Campus and Schoolcraft's two campuses for their "continuing education" classes.

They don't call it "adult ed" any more. Some courses are for kids. Moreover, many older adults take regular credit courses to earn associate degrees. Half the graduating students at our community colleges have grey temples and bifocals.

When he was chancellor at OCC, Steve Nicholson used to say that community colleges enroll more people with bachelor's degrees than graduate schools.

Looking at the brochures, you can see why.

OCC's Womencenter has a series that is realistic if depressing: legal clinic, divorce support group, incest survivor support group, math anxiety for women, "mended and moving on,"

There's a page of social and religious consciousness activities: work in a soup kitchen, nonviolent conflict resolution, global awareness lectures, even retreats conducted by Catholic priests.

A series of concerts features artists from Spain, France, Brazil, Germany and Israel. That would be eye-opening. In the U.S., our classical music tastes are oriented toward northern Europe, and we neglect a lot of superb Latin American music.

The "distinguished speakers" series has no great orators but three people who are in the thick of Michigan government: state Sen. Debbie Stabenow, Democratic gubernatorial hopeful; L. Brooks Patterson, Oakland County executive; and Joe Knollenberg, a freshman congressman with decades of political experience.

There are long lists of courses in the real estate and insurance fields; personal finance courses; and the inevitable computer courses on systems, word processors, spread sheets, graphics and publishing.

Besides the traditional arts and crafts courses, OCC has one on "marketing your arts & crafts."

There are a couple of pages of gourmet dinner offerings and culinary arts courses that seem to add inches to your waistline just reading about them, followed by two more pages of fitness and recreation classes.

Traveling? Study Italian and Russian.

Schoolcraft, under President Dick McDowell, is keenly aware of how many people are getting out of the corporate rat race and into their own businesses. Four new courses are: employment law, creating employee handbooks, discrimination in the workplace, sexual harassment in the workplace and the Family Leave and Medical Act and the Americans with Disabilities Act.

That's followed by a column on starting a business, what it takes to "make it big," franchising, finding capital and (get this) "taking your business global."

Schoolcraft's folks must have been reading our Barry Franklin's fitness columns. The culinary basics section has new offerings on European bread making and pasta cooking along with the reliable courses in wild game preparation, vegetarian cuisine and "chocolate, chocolate, chocolate." I don't dare even look at the gourmet dinners.

Schoolcraft's most famous personage may well be Don Morelock, who teaches piano teachers. The music program has a youth piano project, guitar, opera and community choir courses. There are free faculty recitals and an artist in residence who is a top chamber musician.

We don't cover it much in a community newspaper, but there's a big harness racing industry out here, so Schoolcraft has 11 appropriate courses, including hoof care.

Yes, there is a Womencenter and many of the same offerings as OCC. The language offerings are extensive: Polish, Japanese, Italian, German, Russian, French, Mandarin Chinese and Spanish. My Spanish teacher last year was a former Peace Corps volunteer who had worked in Bolivia.

Your brochures should have arrived during August in the mail. If you lost them, call OCC's continuing ed office at 471-7520 and Schoolcraft's at 462-4400. You'll want to look at both.

Summer's end sheds light on mistrust of lawyers

abor Day in Michigan always gives me a slightly sad feeling, a regretful look backward at summer's coming to an end.

The corn may be ripe, the tomatoes luscious. But the rich gold light we get at this time of year always comes to me tinged with the hollow sound of the cicadas.

And for those who shut down their cabins Up North over the weekend, the last slap of the screen door closes out another summer season.

I spent some time this summer at our cabin in the Upper Peninsula, five miles from the nearest phone. Returning to the hurly-burly of the real world reassured me that life hadn't changed that much while I was out of touch.

The politicians still are fussing and fuming about taxes and school quality. The UAW and the auto industry still are negotiating. The Tigers still are not quite in contention.

And thanks to Dick Aginian's auto accident in Florida, I know trial lawyers still infest the Dick is president and CEO of the company that owns this newspaper. A perverse fellow, he took part of his vacation this year in Florida, where an elderly gentleman swerved his car across the median and slammed into the front end of Dick's.

Dick and Diane, his wife, are a bit bruised but OK. Upon their return to Michigan, they started getting a lot of mail from the Florida ambulance-chasers. Dick shared some with me.

One outstanding example was a slick, fourcolor brochure featuring a smiling lawyer standing before what looks like a law library.

The accompanying letter urged Dick to retain the lawyer: "My job as YOUR Accident Attorney is to quickly obtain compensation for such expenses as ambulance bills, hospital bills, doctor bills, lost wages, rental car expenses, and property damage . . . Except for costs, I receive no attorneys fees unless YOU RECOVER DAMAGES!"

PHILIP POWER

Another letter ended in boldface type: "Protect your rights, speak to no one but an attorney. Do not hesitate to call!"

Evidently, the good ol' boys in Florida have quite a system worked out. A publication called the Florida Reporter scans newspapers and other public records and prints the names and addresses of people who have had accidents. Then the ambulance chasers go to work.

(For the record, the correct term for the activity of encouraging people to sue others is "suborn." For most lawyers, it has a fairly unethical ring to it, evidently unheard in parts of the Florida bar.)

Persistent readers of this column will recall my general views about lawyers in general and the plaintiff's bar in particular. I'm glad to see the problem is, if anything, worse in Florida than it is here in Michigan. Let the record also show that Dick and Diane survived a head-on collision with only minor scrapes and bruises, thanks to seat belts and an air bag.

Buckle 'em up! Hope you had a safe holiday.

Voucher supporters say public schools overspend

In center ring were the referees six Republican state senators and a representative - studying education reform in the wake of their repeal of $6 billion in local property tax revenues.

I have very mixed emotions about 'choice' or voucher," said Rep. Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak, whose district includes part of Troy. Citing her own father (fourth grade) and mother (eighth grade), the veteran lawmaker asked: "How do you have schools of choice and include all children? Not all parents care. And those that do care can't always provide transportation.'

The GOP hearing drew more than 300 combatants and spectators Tuesday evening to the steamy auditorium of Royal Oak's Kimball High.

Focus: vouchers

Center of discussion was the voucher system, prohibited in 1970 when voters amended the state constitution. With vouchers, state money would follow a pupil into any school, public, proprietary or religious. Supporters see it as a way to keep kids out of the state's employability curriculum and away from outcomes based testing.

"I'm disillusioned," said Birmingham mother Carol L. Pope, chair of Friends of Michigan Schools in Oakland County. She deplored public schools' emphasis on "attitudes, not cognitive skills; social-behavioral and attitudinal outcomes. It's more political than educational," she said, charging the Michigan Education Association union had taken over school reform. "Get that solid core curriculum," Pope told lawmakers. But she was hooted when she charged public school teachers are making "$43 an hour for part-time work.

"Go back to classical education - Greek and Roman philosophers, logic, math, Tacitus, Plato, Aristotle, Plutonius," said Troy mother Charlene Femminineo.

She said the state should assign schools $2,000 and reward successful schools whose pupils exceed minimum state assessments with more money.

Countered Dante Lanzetta, former Birmingham mayor who works in survey research: "Ask any parent if he really wants a child to go into the world with a 16th-Century education. They won't make it. We kid ourselves if we think otherwise.

Joseph Marinelli

"Teachers are the only people I know who have a large advisory group - people who would not dream of telling a surgeon or auto mechanic what to do, but will tell the teacher how to teach.

Progress already

'We've already made major educational reforms," said Dorothy Beardmore, former Rochester school board member now in her second term on the State Board of Education.

Business, industry and university educators contributed to the massive research base that went into the model curriculum, she said. "The employability skills profile was developed by business," Beardmore added.

Beardmore, one of the GOP's chief movers and shakers on educational change, said Michigan has moved toward recertification of teachers every five years and identified entrylevel standards for new teachers.

Asked why so many community college students need remedial work, Beardmore said, "Those students do know the basics add, subtract, multiply, divide. But to use that knowledge - they haven't learned. They may not know which they should do. That is why the MEAP tests have been changed."

MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) has been changed to emphasize problem solving rather performing individual steps.

John Richter, a Southfield employer who has interviewed 40 job candidates, agreed with Beard-more that job seekers often don't know which step to perform. "They can't think logically," he

But to LeAnn Goldman, a Birmingham mother, the state's model core curriculum "places increased emphasis on non-acadmeics, social views, emotional health. There are lessened factual academic assignments, no European history, no American history before 1860" and too much modern pop literature with "undesirable role models."

Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, questioned her about the teaching of values: "I get complaints. What values are we supposed to teach? Aren't we supposed to teach kids it's bad to lie and that democratic government is good?"

Goldman quoted her daughter as saying that if she writes about 'a particular view on euthanasia, she'll get a better grade."

Honigman: "That's the teacher, not the state. Who determines the values to be taught?" Goldman: "If we can't come to agreement, let's drop it." Honigman didn't drop it: "I don't think you really want a value-free education."

New money

Voucher fans generally at-tacked public schools for over spending but offered no ideas on how the state should replace the 65 percent of school revenue after the property tax is repealed in

Former teacher Lynn Ehrle of Plymouth advocated a graduated income tax (7.5 to 9.5 percent), a higher use tax on hotels and a higher sales tax on restaurant

"Every state has higher hotelmotel taxes. Eighteen have 12 to 15.75 percent," Ehrle said. "Michigan's restaurant tax is 4 percent. That's unheard of elsewhere. They charge 7, 8 - 11 per-

Joseph Marinelli, Livonia superintendent of schools, asked the state to give all schools a "foundation grant" and a limited local revenue source for districts that want to spend more.

Beardmore said the State Board advocates:

- Foundation grants, adjusted for local cost differentials, that will follow a child into any public school. Such grants would provide 70 to 80 percent of school revenue.
- Limited local authority to raise additional revenue.

Kari Van Deusen led the attack with 12 kills. Defensively, Van Deusen totaled 14 digs. Mo Paulin (Farmington Hills Mercy) contributed nine kills and 17 digs, while freshmen Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) and Kelly McCausland (Redford Union) added eight and six kills, respectively. Julie Woods had 13 digs.

Setter Mazie Pilut finished with 36 assists to kills and had six straight unreturned serves in the second game.

SC opener a laugher choolcraft College's men's soccer team officially opened its season with little in the way of a challenge, treating Region 12 newcomer Southern College to an 11-0 thumping in Hillsboro, Ohio.

Fadi Bazzi, Matt Lividini, Vince Troiani (Livonia Churchill) and Joe Perron (Plymouth Salem) each scored two goals, while Andy Cosenza (Salem), Tom Kuzak and Ryan Piper added one Troiana and Tim Lampi (Livonia Stevenson) had three assists each. Matt Stabile (Stevenson) and Gordie Collins shared the goalkeeping duties.

Area talent boosts U-D program

The University of Detroit-Mercy men's soccer team, its roster filled with former Observerland high school talent, posted a major upset last weekend when it defeated Oakland University 1-0.

BY C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

As upsets go, most wouldn't even consider this. University of Detroit-Mercy is, after all, a member of the NCAA's Division I; Oakland University is NCAA II.

So UDM should beat OU in men's soccer, right?

Wrong. The lines dividing the NCAA's I and II in collegiate soccer are not nearly as defined as in basketball or football. Fact is, OU has dominated men's collegiate soccer in this state for more than a decade, no matter the division.

So Saturday's score certainly did qualify as an upset — UDM 1, OU 0. It may also have signalled a changing of the guard. Without question, there is an abundance of soccer talent in suburban Detroit, and that pool is growing. Now it's just a matter of where those players plan to go.

The Titans are an attractive prospect. They won Saturday with a young, collegiately inexperienced team, going against one of OU's supposedly best teams ever - most of the Pioneers on the field played a year ago, when the team reached the NCAA II Tournament semifinals.

Granted, there were notable absenses for OU: midfielder John Gentile (Livonia Churchill) is still recovering from a hamstring injury, and Dominic Scicluna (Redford Catholic Central) was out of action.

But there still should have been enough to beat a UDM team that started six freshmen.

Young, local talent

For Morris Lupenec, the win was both personal and pivotal. Personal because the UDM coach played and coached at OU; pivotal because it may have a major impact on his vouthful team.

"Whenever you beat a team of that stature, it's a sign your program is headed in the right direction," said Lupenec, who shares the OU singleseason goals scored record with current Pioneer Eli Tiomkin.

Most of the players Lupenec is relying upon are local: Three of his starters are from Livonia (a fourth, defender Scott Wiggins of Livonia Stevenson, is sidelined until midseason with a broken leg), one is from Plymouth (Salem HS) and another is from West Bloomfield. Three of the five are freshmen; the other two are sophomores.

"We had a a good grasp on recruiting," said Lupenec, who also coaches club teams and works in the Olympic Development Program. "We were lucky enough to get some good players. The big-time programs out there aren't willing to give up the money for some of these guys."

Veteran runner: Junior Kathleen Landelius was an all-area standout for the Canton girls cross country team last year.

Canton runners prepare to regain girls WLAA title

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

Not too many years ago Plymouth Canton was the premier power in Western Lakes Activities Association girls cross country.

The Chiefs, who were 3-3 in dual meets and finished seventh in the 12team league meet, had been perennial champions in the WLAA Western Division but took a back seat to Walled Lake Western in recent years.

But that could change this season since the Warriors lost some of their top runners and Canton returns all of its best. The Chiefs just might regain the WLAA throne, too.

'Anytime we don't win the Western Division championship, it's a down year for us and we were unable to do that the last two season." Canton coach George Przygodski said. "After the last few seasons, we definitely have a little more potential and once again will be a competitive force in the WLAA.

Canton's top runner a year ago was junior Kathleen Landelius, who was sixth in the league, 14th in the regional and 34th at state.

The Chiefs have an excellent onetwo combination with Landelius and iunior Laura McWilliams, who was 20th in the WLAA and poses a consistent challenge for Landelius.

"The two of them battled each other all last year," Przygodski said. "One won 50 percent of the time, and the other won 50 percent of the time.

"If one fell down, I think the other would, too. You aren't going to see one run past without seeing the other.'

Canton's outlook for 1993 got a major boost with the return of senior Lana Boroditsch, who missed all last More cross country, 3B

season with an injury but had an outstanding year in track and is healthy

Boroditsch holds the school record on the Cass Benton course with a 20:11 time. Landelius is fourth (20:23) on the list and McWilliams eighth (20:43).

"We have three quality runners there," Przygodski said. "Lana went to state as a freshman and sophomore. Kathleen went last year and Laura just missed."

Canton also returns seniors Erin Hindman and Melissa Bastine and juniors Meghan Barresi and Raegan

The lineup was made even stronger with the addition of three newcomers who will round out the top six: junior Tracey Cavin, an excellent middle distance runner in track, and freshmen Becky Wolfrom and Beth Knight.

"They're going to have a very big impact on the program," Przygodski said. "They will have an immediate impact and be very good runners.'

Bastine would be in the top seven but is recovering from mononucleosis and should be ready to run later, Przygodski said. Barresi and sophomore newcomer Casey Swanson are battling for the No. 7 position.

The roster also includes first-year runners junior Becky Bockstanz, a sprinter in track, freshmen twins Nicole and Danielle Guignard and freshman Rachel Burt.

The Chiefs begin the season today with a dual meet against Plymouth Salem at Cass Benton.

Blazers lose showdown with Flint NW

BY NEAL ZIPSER STAFF WRITER

While playing basketball for Flint Northwestern and the University of Tennessee, Tonya Edwards enjoyed a lot of success on the court. As a prep hooper, Edwards won two state championships, was named all-state four times and set the all-time career scoring record in Michigan.

However, as a coach, she has suffered only frustration against Livonia Ladywood - until Tues-

In her previous two seasons as the Wildcats' coach, the Blazers had the better of her team, beating them twice. But Tuesday Northwestern got to return the feeling, handing host Ladywood a frustrating 67-63 defeat. "This is the first time I've beaten them in three ears and it feels good," Edwards said. "They've had our number. But this is a new team for us and a new beginning."

The Wildcats (3-0) also helped soothe another loss suffered against a Catholic League Central Division power: Birmingham Marian, in last season's Class A final Tuesday's frustration was felt by the Blazers, who fought back from an early 12-point deficit to take a one-point lead, only to lose it. Their comeback continued deep into the fourth quarter, when they narrowed the gap several times to two points. But whenever Ladywood tried to rally, the Wildcats found a way to score and extend their lead.

BASKETBALL

Northwestern, the top ranked team in Class A, used an impressive inside-outside attack that handed Ladywood, the No. 4-ranked team in Class A, its first loss of the season after two wins.

"We were right there with them but couldn't get over the hump," said Ladywood coach Ed Kavanaugh. "Disappointed? Not at all. It was a fun game. The better team won tonight."

Close, but not quite

Junior forward Tara Overaitis, who sparked several of the Blazers' rallies, agreed with her coach that the loss was nothing to lose sleep over.

'We're not looking at this game like a loss," said Overaitis, who scored a team-high 18 points. 'We're looking at this game like a learning experience. We definitely want to see them later in the season, but tonight, we just treated them like any Northwestern proved early that it was no ordinary team. The Wildcats dominated early and jumped out to a 21-11 lead at the end of the first quarter. The culmination of the outburst was a triple by senior guard Nicole Massey.

We didn't come out as strong as we usually do and we didn't do the little things it takes to win a game," Overaitis said. Massey led the Wildcats with 18 points, while

Larecha Jones and Kotrina Peterson chipped in with 17 and 13 points, respectively. Melissa Campaeau netted 13 points for the Blazers, while Anne Poglits (14 rebounds) and Kerry Duggan added 12

The Wildcats extended their lead to 12 in the second before Ladywood awakened. The Blazers scored 10 unanswered points in a span of 1:32 to cut the score to 23-21.

Northwestern reopened its lead to 38-31 but an Overaitis layup and two free throws by Campaeau closed the gap to three.

That momentum carried into the third quarter as a turn around jumper by Overaitis in the paint gave Ladywood its first, and only, lead at 39-38. That's when Massey made the key shots of the

Promoter: Festival must adjust

Plymouth Observer

Plymouth's annual Fall Festival needs more events that appeal to younger people. That's what Joe Bida, longtime festival promoter, says is needed. He also has some thoughts on the competition for festivalgoers' dollars.

BY KEVIN BROWN

To stay strong, Plymouth's Fall Festival organizers should key on two things First, the festival should appeal

more to teens. And there shouldn't be so many food booths and food events that organizations end up losing money from competition.

So said Joe Bida, long time fall festival publicity chairman, who's talking again about stepping away from festival organizing after this year.

"I enjoy working with the group,

but when you get around 71 years old, you learn there's no way you can satisfy everybody," said Bida, a former mayor and department of public works chief.

In the future, Bida added, festival organizers "should maybe think about moving it," as the festival site downtown is getting crowded.

The 38th Plymouth Community Fall Festival opens Friday and runs through Sunday.

Bida was with the city department of public works when the festival started in 1956, as the Plymouth Roat 16,000 dinners in the late 1960s. The Sunday chicken barbecue has become "the largest chicken-selling

votes to disband

Regardless, some traditional activity to educate local voters on issues should continue, members say, as there are local residents who belong to the state organization.

Cathy Price of Canton, a league member, said the group voted to disband because the public wasn't interested in using their service, because members were busy with jobs or family, and because other groups were performing the same services for the public. "You have to look at the extent to which you are making a difference,' Price said, adding deciding to disband the group "was a very regrettable action. "The problem was we had a lot of members, 40-some, but from what I gather there were too few people to do the work," said Beverly McAninch, who helped found the local group in Still, McAninch said the League of

Woman reports man ran her car off road

A 19-year-old Plymouth woman told police that a man about 40 with a bad complexion and gray ing hair ran her off the road on southbound Mill about 2:30 p.m.

She said the man pulled out in his car directly in front of her and made an obscene gesture and velled before pulling behind her car and pushing it forward.

The woman told police she put her car into park because she was afraid the man was going to push her out into Ann Arbor Road. After the woman and the man got out of their cars, the man pushed the woman backward, swore at her and said, "Get back in your car or I'll push you into traffic.

The woman said she wants to prosecute.

dents - emotions still are running high

The district learned Thursday - the same day teachers voted 2-to-1 to defer their raise - that it will receive more in state aid - between $1.3 and $1.9 million - than anticipated. The K-12 education budget was approved by Thursday by the Legis.

"I want to know how the state gave us $1.5 million the day after our vote," said Canton Close Up teacher Mike McCauley. "It must have been a fluke.

Steve Marsh, a speech and English teacher at Canton, said, "Our district planned wisely. They thought they were going to have to pay a lot more in social security. (The state is reimbursing the district for part of its social security costs. The schools had anticipated having to pay the full amount and budgeted accordingly.)

"The day we decided we would forego our 3 percent raise until next year, the district discovered this. I'm not trying to point a finger and say shame on you guys, but suddenly they need my $1,100, I know that," said Marsh, who coaches debate and "I think teachers separated the issue. They didn't say, 'If we forego our raise, we will get extracurricular activities back.' That's like saying we will work harder for less money. We knew it meant 30 teachers and counselors back." It also meant that counselors - out of the classroom in some cases for 10-12 years - wouldn't be thrown back into teaching because of

As Marsh was talking in the Canton High School general office, government teacher Stacey Champagne walked in, all smiles. She was back on the job for the first day, having been recalled Friday. "I'm just glad people like Steve voted to defer their pay,'

"It's good news for education that we're putting our youngest, most enthusiastic and energetic teachers back in the classroom," said Marsh.

Back at work: Stacey Champagne, a government and Close Up teacher who was pinkslipped, is all smiles on her first day back on the job. Champagne was recalled after teachers voted to defer their pay raise.

Separating the issues:

Speech and English teacher Steve Marsh says re-hiring teachers was the central issue in the Plymouth-Canton Education Association's decision to defer its pay raise.

Teachers showed they 'really care' — students

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

Relief, joy and apprehension might be the words to best sum up the emotions at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park since teachers voted to defer their pay

The pay freeze was part of a plan devised by booster club parents to save extracurricular sports and staff positions after the millage failed Aug. 17.

This was the first time in the 20 years I've been here that I thought we weren't going to have activities for kids, and that's critical," said Salem High School principal Jerry Ostoin Tuesday. Ostoin had just come from a meeting in which a student's substance abuse problem was discussed. "We had a full cadre of professionals, including a psychologist and counselor. I think of what we'd do without them.

They're of vital importance. "There are still some people who aren't here that we would like to get back to help us, but the critical, life-and-death people are back," he said. Ostoin said it saddens him that among those who won't be recalled are some of the youngest, most hardworking teachers he's ever dealt with: teachers who go to students' homes when there are problems and attend student activities on their own time. "People don't hear about these teachers," he said.

Salem junior Sarah Stewart said teachers and counselors taking a pay freeze "really shows what they care about. I think that's what teachers should live out - caring about students. Education shouldn't be stopped by money," she added. "A lot of improvements should be made. We need different types of lessons. The future for us will be a lot dif-

Candy Lazette, also a junior at Salem, said she's glad to see the student services center restored. There are a lot of kids with lots of problems. They need people who care.

Clarence Broadnex, a Salem sophomore, said he's happy to see sports back. He's an offensive and defensive lineman now looking forward to playing football. "I

Prosecutor hopes to jam revolving door

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Wayne County chief assistant prosecutor George Ward is sick and tired of seeing Michigan residents bounce in and out of prison 10 times or more while government makes little, if any, attempt at rehabilitation.

"We just simply re-prosecute the same guy until we're blue in the face," he said of the current system. "The net effect is that we're wasting a ton of taxpayer

Recently Ward won what he called a "breakthrough" decision in the courtroom of Wayne County Circuit Judge Cynthia Stephens when the judge agreed to attach conditions to the parole of a habitual offender convicted of five felonies and four misdemeanors.

Ward, a Plymouth Township resident, had been appealing the two-year parole of Bloomfield Hills resident Alex Persichino, who was sentenced in May 1992 to one to five years for auto theft and fleeing a police officer. The parole board recommended Persichino for parole 11 months after he was sentenced.

In the belief that Judge Stephens was unlikely to keep Persichino in prison, Ward requested that conditions be placed on his parole to straighten him out.

Judge Stephens' order says that Persichino "is on parole until he 'earns' his way off parole as evidenced by further order of the parole board.

To whit, Persichino is now required to attend weekly Alcoholics Anonymous meetings "without fail" for three years, hold steady, full time work for two years and "prove that he has not incurred a single violation of the traffic laws of any state or city,' according to the court order.

Ward called Stephens' decision "a strike at the revolving door" and said he will seek similar arrangements in the future. "If we were stockbrokers we'd all be indicted for churning our customers' accounts.

In a sworn affidavit, Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano agreed with Ward. "Each year in Wayne County, law enforcement officers make many arrests for new crimes committed by former prisoners discharged from prior unserved maximum sentences . . . necessitating repetitious proceedings and repetitious expenses at the local level for the same offenders," the affidavit says. Ward would like to see the parole board do what it already has the power to do under the law: to throw parolees who commit crimes back in prison to finish out the sentence they were assigned in the first place. The way it is now when parolees commit crimes, they're tried and convicted, then jailed for the new crime, rather than the old one, Ward said.

This adds to the expense of the criminal justice system because a man is prosecuted, convicted and jailed a second time when he could simply be reincarcerated under the terms of his original sentence for violating parole. Ward and Ficano agree that parolees should be required to show concrete evidence that they've become good citizens just as Judge Stephens has required Persichino to do.

These paroles should be structured with self-improvement terms and conditions. Ward said. "Isn't that good psychology, to make you earn your way in the world?"

So why doesn't the state's 10member parole board take the advice if it's such a good idea?

Ward believes that the state corrections bureaucracy sees it as an overcrowding problem. If parolees who commit crimes are tossed back in prison, the state's got a problem with too many prisoners.

But if parolees who commit crimes spend six months to a year awaiting trial in the county jail, the problem is the county's, again and again in many cases.

The parole board is "more than happy to have a new case instituted," Ward said. "So they relieve the burden on their sys-

Teen finds summer job just a bowl of cherries

If you ask Christian Skoglund, 15, of Canton or Angela Standhardt of Birmingham about their summer jobs, they're likely to say they were "the pits." Liter-

Standhardt and Skoglund, longtime friends, spent most of their summer "working cherries" in the Traverse City area. They soon learned, however, that the local expression for harvesting and processing one of Michigan's most popular fruits really meant 'having no life.'

While their families vacationed, the teens worked 10- to 12-hour night shifts six and seven days a week preparing cherries destined for commercial markets here and abroad.

Standhardt, a liberal arts student at Loyola University, worked as a "sorter" for Great Lakes Packing, a processing plant located in Kewadin, a small town about 15 miles north of Traverse City. Her job required a good eye for bad cherries, which she described as "bruised and pale." She also needed strong arches. Except for a five-minute break on the hour, she stood in front of a conveyor belt her entire shift, scrutinizing cherries on their way to being sugared and packed into 30-pound containers. But sore feet were the least of her worries. She had been warned by former sorters that she might get motion sickness 'Some of the kids told me I might need Dramamine," she said. "I didn't, but it was difficult staring down at all those cherries for so long. I couldn't relax once I got home. Standhardt's shift usually ended between 4 and 5 a.m. Afterward, she'd toss off her hairnet and go out for breakfast or a swim with some of her co-workers. She willingly sacrificed valuable sleep time for a chance to socialize.

"I'd have no life otherwise," she said, waving a pair of purplestained hands in front of her for emphasis. "No life."

Skoglund, a sophomore at Plymouth Canton High School, had no energy left to eat or swim after he emerged from the orchards each morning at 6 a.m. His job as a "tarp puller" on one of the 12-person crews that worked for Cherry Ke Inc., also in Kewadin, left him with aching shoulders and stiff hands.

He had to pull out yards of heavy canvas tarp from a mechanized roller and lay it around each tree. After the "cherry shaker," a specially designed truck with a long arm and pincers, shook the cherries off the tree, Skoglund would guide the tarp back toward the roller. As it rewound, the cherries would bounce into a tank of cold water. At least that's how it was supposed to work.

"I hated it when I'd slip," said Skoglund, whose hands and legs were covered with scratches and bruises. "All these cherries would fly up in the air and land all over me. And mud, and everything. One night I fell three times.

Skoglund, who earned the nickname "Mountain Man" because he broke all the branches that got in his way, threw out half his clothes when he got home. They were stained beyond salvage and smelled like sulphur and fermented cherries.

Standhardt didn't have to throw out as many clothes, but she's still applying lemon juice to her hands. She hopes they fade to a pale lavender before school starts.

"Guess I won't be doing any hand commercials for awhile,' she said.

Both Standhardt and Skoglund admitted to positive experiences besides receiving a large dose of the American work ethic and honing their sense of humor.

'I met some really nice people,' said Standhardt. "Maybe I'll do this again next year if they do."

Skoglund told of chasing deer during his breaks and gazing up into a black sky to watch meteor showers. Then he became more

There are getting to be too many criminal trials in Wayne County for the 29 Recorder's Court judges to handle. There are so many defendants awaiting trial that seven Circuit Court judges have been temporarily relieved of their civil dockets in order to help try a backload of 450 criminal cases, all of them awaiting trial for more than six months.

Since 1987 the Recorder's Court has been aided by five rotating Circuit Court judges who help try criminal cases. But with crime becoming so popular, a logjam of cases has developed at the big end of the funnel. Therefore, the seven additional judges were assigned to clean up the mess.

Circuit Judge Michael Talbot's job was to conduct pretrial examinations on the 450 case backlog. With haste borne of necessity, Talbot processed all of these "real hard-nosed cases" in 20 working days. In one day alone, Talbot heard 53 pre-trials. "It was ugly," he said. "We were spinning around."

By convincing defendants to enter plea bargains and waive jury trials among other things, Talbot reduced the number of cases awaiting jury trial by almost 25 percent.

So the idea is that seven circuit judges will try about 340 cases before Nov. 25, Talbot's self-imposed goal. That's about 48 trials per judge, or about six trials per day based on the Sept. 8 starting time. Each judge would have about 1.2 days on average to try each

"When Rick Kaufman and I first looked at this we were scared stiff," Talbot said. "I can say now we should shut this thing down by Thanksgiv-

Circuit judges to help clear backlog

The circuit judges assigned to hear all these cases are William Cahalan, Michael Callahan, Richard Hathaway, Susan Beike Neilson, James Rashid, Michael Stacey and Edward Thomas.

Kaufman said that only the Circuit Court's efficient processing of civil cases has made it possible to cut seven judges loose for this special duty. In 1985 Wayne County Circuit Court had more than 17,000 civil cases that had been pending more than two years, Kaufman said. As of right now there are 194.

The administration system Wayne County Circuit Court uses to process civil cases has been "adopted exactly" by the

Washington, D.C., Circuit Court and more recently by the St. Louis County Circuit Court, Kaufman said.

The credit? "It was a team effort. But I hope I played an important role."

It's too soon to tell, Kaufman added, if additional circuit judges should be added to the group of five that helps the Recorder's Court judges, although, "anything is possible down the road."

Talbot said that accelerating the criminal trial process isn't necessarily a matter of adding judges and courtrooms. It might be that the restricted pipeline can be cleared by tweaking the administrational procedures. Besides, Talbot said, no system is forever.

"The systems you put in place probably need a change every five years," he said.

Y kicks off MS exercise program

An exercise and support program for people with multiple sclerosis is being formed at the Livonia Family YMCA.

The program, a combination of water exercise, discussion and socializing, will be held Fridays from 6-8 p.m. Water exercise is set from 6-7 p.m. and group discussion from 7:15-8 p.m.

An orientation meeting is scheduled from 6-7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 17, at the Y, 14255 Stark Road, north of Schoolcraft.

Doris Colling, a former Livonia resident and former employee at the Livonia Chamber of Commerce diagnosed with MS six years ago, is excited about the new program.

It was Colling who approached Y officials to suggest the program.

"I know this group might not be for everybody with MS but I am sure there are lots of others like myself who will benefit,'

said Colling. The Livonia Family YMCA is working in cooperation with the St. Mary Hospital physical therapy department to train Y staff. The new group will also provide information from experts about new medication and new treatment available to those with MS.

"I'm glad that someone out there is willing to offer such a program," said Sue Wilson of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. "We get a lot of calls asking for this kind of program."

Call the YMCA at 261-2161, Ext. 312 for more information about the orientation.

Dedication scheduled

o commemorate a landmark legal case involving a Plymouth cow in the 1800s, the State Bar of Michigan and the Suburban Bar Association of Western Wayne County held a dedication ceremony for the placement of a landmark today at 11 a.m. in Kellogg Park.

The ceremony commemorated the case concerning "Rose of Aberlone," a cow sold by a Plymouth man to the Hiram Walker distillery in Windsor. The Plymouth owner won his suit to keep the cow, when it was discovered she was able to produce

Former Tiger makes a new pitch

■ Pat Sheridan is remembered for a two-run eighth inning homerun for the Tigers in 1987, but these days he's interested in a different kind of pitch, insurance. He has a new agency in Canton.

BY DIANE GALE STAFF WRITER

It's going, going and it's out of the park.

You might remember the thrill of watching Pat Sheridan save the day in 1987 with a two-the Tiger's American League playoffs. The outfielder became known for coming through in dramatic moments during baseball history. In 1985, when he was playing with Kansas City Royals, his ninth-inning pinch homer tied game two of the American League playoffs against Toronto and in game seven of the same series he run eighth-inning homerun during also hit a home run. 'My first big league hit was a home run off of Milt Wilcox," he said.

He was drafted by the Kansas City Royals in 1979 out of Eastern Michigan University. In 1982, however, he pitched his first major league disappointment when he ripped his hamstring during spring training.

He got called back up to the majors

"I was pretty nervous for probably the first month," said Sheridan who also played for the New York Yankees and San Francisco Giants. Sheridan ended his career in 1991.

The 35-year-old star traded in a baseball bat for insurance contracts with Conrad Insurance Agency and opened an office in Canton Professional Plaza on Canton Center three weeks ago.

"We came from Dearborn to Canton," he said. "Dearborn is overgrown

Sheridan reminisces about his ball days in his Canton insurance off-

and Canton is a growing area."

The company is affiliated with a number of agencies including Citizens Insurance Company of America. Sheridan holds a 50 percent share of the Citizens contracts signed in Canton. It's only fair considering he signed Citizens through his affiliation with Ernie Harwell, a Citizens Insurance spokesman who lined up the deal.

Sitting behind a desk in a yet to be decorated office, the Farmington Hills resident describes the adjustment of pulling in "checks with a lot of zeros" to selling insurance. He got his insurance license in 1986 when he was still playing ball. It turned out to be a good decision.

After he retired his bat, he took 12 months off to enjoy life, golfing and to take it easy. But that got old and bor-

"All your friends are at work," said Sheridan.

One of the biggest changes is the money.

"When you're in baseball you kind of take for granted what you see figurewise compared to the real world," he said. "They give you $55 a day to eat for road trips.

Playing the major leagues was a dream come true for a young boy living in the City of Wayne who played ball every chance he got.

"I played baseball all the time," he said adding with remorse in his voice that youngsters aren't as devoted to the sport as they were when he was idolizing the 1968 Tigers World Series team, especially Al Kaline.

"No one is out there playing," Sheridan said adding baseball can be slow moving and youngsters are probably looking for faster action sports. like hockey — a sport he enjoyed but didn't pursue, because he wasn't a strong skater.

He decided to give up baseball when "I felt was going backwards."

Looking to the future, Sheridan and his wife, Melanie, are expecting a baby in November. They also have a 4-year-old daughter, Paige.

Former mayor Guenther dies at 83

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Harold Guenther, 83, who secured the clock for downtown Plymouth and was an effective mayor in the 1950s and early '60s, died Wednesday

"To my mind he was one of the best mayors the had,' said former mayor Bida. Joe

'Certainly Harold Guenther was one of the statesman of the community," said Paul Sincock, assistant city manager.

Guenther began serving the city commission in August 1954. In April 1957 he was elected mayor, and served in that position until April 1961.

Guenther donated the clock off of Kellogg Park to the city in 1987, in honor of his son Peter who died two years earlier.

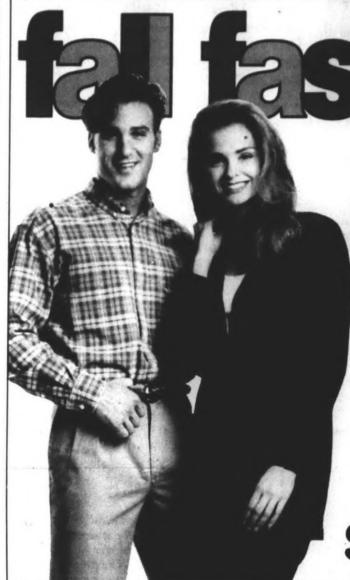

Guenther was a Plymouth Rotary Club member since 1952 and a past president. He was a member when the Rotary started the chicken barbecue which evolved into the Plymouth Fall Festival, and was always a top ticket seller, Sincock said boards and commissions throug the '60s, '70s and '80s.

Guenther was born July 31, 1910, in Sheridan, Wyo. Survivros include his wife, Geneva of Plymouth: three sons, Michael of Plymouth, Torbett of Plymouth and Kim of Northville; and three grandchildren.

Services had yet to be sched uled Wednesday.

New ideas needed for event

f there were a face to go with Plymouth's annual Fall Festival, it would be that of Joe Bida.

A former Plymouth mayor and DPW director, Bida has been the mainstay of the annual fall event. So, when Bida said recently that the Fall Festival needs to spruce itself up to appeal to young people, we listened. The Fall Festival, which runs this weekend, is a tradition in the Plymouth and Canton communities that dates back to 1956 when the Plymouth Rotary Club held a chicken barbecue to raise money for playground equipment.

During the ensuing years, community groups in Canton and Plymouth have used the festival as a major fund-raising venue. But the centerpiece has always been the Rotary chicken barbecue on Sunday.

For more than 25 years, the mix has worked for Plymouth, but let's face it, even the best event when served up on the same plate year after year gets stale. The Fai! Festival needs new window dressing, as Bida said.

This year Bida brought back karaoke and added new entertainment in the form of the Don Allen Trio, the Renaissance Chorus and the Detroit Edison Enviro Magic Show.

For next year, Bida suggests a dance at the Mayflower Hotel. It sounds like a good idea.

But we didn't hear the name of Mike Watts mentioned. It should be. Watts took over the Plymouth Ice Festival two years ago, and has managed to put new life into the event. He put colored lights on the ice sculptures and started a celebrity ice carving contest.

Also, Watts nearly single handedly started the summer music festival in Plymouth, which features blues, jazz and country music.

Watts is a Plymouth resident and professional music promoter who has taken an interest in his community. He is a resource who should be used to help plan future Fall Festivals.

We'll be looking forward to the start of Fall Festival on Friday and to the next festival, but we'll also be looking for a new and improved ver the past few months, I have read many front-page articles dealing with public education and its funding with great dissatisfaction. As a teacher, I have been personally offended at the paper's distortion of the facts surrounding these concerns.

One piece that I found particularly offensive was the one in which Rep. Vorva was given front-page coverage of his political posturing on the millage issue.

While he is entitled to take a stance on this question, as a member of the Michigan Legislature he is the person the community has empowered to make changes and reforms. But, he along with your staff writers, seem to appropriate the blame for an inequitable system to the teachers. That is absurd.

The best example of a misrepresentation of facts was the recent article about teachers' alleged "double-dipping." This would make a text-book example of arrogant reporting for a high-school or college journalism course. Just because some teachers defer payment of the wages they earn from a contract that runs September through June, does not make them abusers of unemployment benefits. I noticed that your reporter quoted Rep. David Jave in the article. Is this the same David Jaye that was reprimanded by the Michigan Legislature for carrying a concealed weapon on the floor of the Michigan House and also has been cited for driving under the influence in Macomb Coun-

These are just two of the many articles that have been presented to the public in an effort, apparently, to malign the educational community. Well, I don't need to hear it.

After spending last year laid-off due to cutbacks in state aid to public schools, I am returning to the classroom. I am going in to give my students the best education I can give them. In order to do that, I may have to see that some of my students get a snack in the morning because they didn't get breakfast at home; that they have a hot lunch because they haven't been provided with one from home; that they get a warm coat for the winter months; and/or that they receive the emotional support from me while their parents are divorcing, abusing or just neglecting them.

I don't care to come home on Mondays and Thursdays and be confronted with headlines that declare to my neighbors and friends that I am being overpaid for doing a substandard job.

So, I reiterate my request to have my subscription to The Observer & Eccentric Newspaper be cancelled.

Keeping it secret

he Wall Street Journal recently (Aug. 17) published the names of all the members of the House of Representatives who refused to sign the petition prepared by Representative Inhofe to "reform the secretive discharge petition" process.

Apparently, bills are regularly sent to the Rules Committee and there they remain until 218 members, a House majority, sign a "discharge petition." The game that is played is that this list is secret. All the leadership has to do to prevent a matter from going to the floor for a vote is to pressure one or two of the supporters to withdraw their support of the bill's discharge so that the required 218 is never reached.

This permits representatives to publicly support popular bills (i.e., a balanced budget amendment and line item veto), while secretly and quietly withholding their names from the discharge documents that would help them to

Inhofe's bill would make this secret list public. Unfortunately, it is also held up by the same c. To bring light to this problem, Inhofe disclosed the names of the 223 members who have not signed the discharge petition for his bill. Rep. William Ford is one of these mem-

This is not a partisan issue. It's simply an issue of accountability to the citizens of this country. As the Journal stated, it's time to convince the House of Representatives to "give up their secret rites." Please address this matter in your paper and encourage citizens to write Congressman William Ford and ask him to support Inhofe's bill.

Mettetal questioned

t is unfortunate that the process used to purchase Mettetal Airport was flawed regarding the following:

1) Why has no one publicly seen a profit and loss statement of the operations at Mettetal Airport; 2) Why was it not reported that thousands of yards of contaminated soil along with five underground storage tanks were removed from the property at Mettetal Airport a yearand-a-half ago; and 3) Why were the citizens of Plymouth and Canton Townships denied the opportunity to vote on whether or not to buy Mettetal Airport.

Yes, there were significant omissions in the process and in the future we will know who is responsible.

Thank God for the Concerned Citizens for keeping Mettetal Airport from becoming a liability to the taxpayers of the local units of gov-

Brace for new school taxes

he celebration is over. Now Michigan taxpayers must brace themselves for a return to reality and paying property taxes for public education.

A delirious party at Greenfield Village, among taxpayers groups and in corporate Michigan, on Aug. 19 witnessed Gov. John Engler signing a law eliminating $6 billion in property taxes after mid-1994.

But the hangovers have set in. Now it's time to replace that revenue so that public elementary and secondary schools, along with intermediate school districts, don't lose 65 percent of their revenue. That means new taxes or increases in old taxes. The governor intends not to replace all $6 billion in lost revenue, entertaining visions of massive cost savings through the magic wand of "privatization." Privatization of public education is as big of a pipedream for our robust governor as the abolition of property tax is for homeowners. The only realistic and equitable way to fund public education is through the property tax.

We offer these educated guesses as to what will happen between now and Dec. 31.

■ Districts will be allowed to levy local taxes, probably on property, possibly on income. Lansing can't levy $6 billion in state taxes to replace the lost local revenue.

The mood in the Legislature is to raise the floor on resources per pupil, perhaps to something like $4,800. Most suburban districts are spending far more — $5,000, $6,000, up to $9,000. They would be ruined if the ceiling were lowered to $4,800.

So look for suburban districts to be allowed to levy local property taxes. How much? Well, the current statewide average is 34 mills-plus.

Our political mathematical instincts tell us the new limit will tally in at 17 mills.

Engler has to determine what homeowners will take back without throwing him out of office. It's a tricky game, but when it comes to political chicanery, Engler has proven to be a master magician.

■ Income taxes will likely go up. We all know what happened to the sales tax proposals of 1989 (both) and 1993 (Proposal A). If voters reject still another sales tax hike, the Legislature will have no option but to raise the income tax. ■ The single business tax will have to yield more revenue. Business will get a $2 billion cut when school property taxes are eliminated. No way can the state get away with shifting the entire burden to individuals and consumers.

Business doesn't even want to think about replacement taxes. At a hearing in the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce building, small business owners told a House Taxation Committee everything wrong with the SBT and that taxation stifles jobs. They displayed an astounding inability to grasp that they'll have to pay something.

"Sin" taxes won't do the job. It's fashionable to babble about socking smokers and drinkers, but the state can't drag $6 billion out of them. Smoking, and tobacco taxes, are declining. Alcohol taxes that are too high will be evaded in the black market.

Party time is over. We need public schools. We need better public schools. We need to prepare kids in public schools for the workforce which will mean curriculum and equipment changes.

Unless we can find a way to tax dreams at $1, hallucinations at $5 and delusions at $10, homeowners and business people should plan to pay new taxes for their schools.

Major TV networks hoodwinked us with the Cable Act

don't know how Congress got hoodwinked into passing the 1992 Cable Act, but the broadcasters must be dancing in the streets over it. They never did like having to compete with cable; now they have a law that lets them penalize those of us who have committed the unpardonable sin of wanting more viewing choices than the broadcast networks provide. Why else would the local ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox affiliates refuse to let cable carry their stations without compensation? Broadcasters are compensated for their programming costs, through advertising. This has been the unspoken pact between viewers and broadcasters since broadcasting started - the public paid a little more for goods and services, which provided manufacturers with the advertising dollars they use to support programming on broadcast networks.

Since broadcasters set their advertising rates based on viewership, why would they want to damage themselves by making it harder for anyone to watch their programming? The only explanation that makes sense is that they want to penalize cable subscribers, by making it harder for cable subscribers to watch broadcast programming.

Ultimately, of course, this self-damaging strategy doesn't make sense unless broadcasters see some long-range monetary benefit in it - after all, punishing cable subscribers doesn't pay any bills. Since their money comes from advertisers, they must believe this strategy will help them get more advertising dollars.

GUEST COLUMNIST

KAREN J. GOULD

How could punishing cable subscribers do this? The answer lies in the 15 percent of advertising dollars now spent on cable networks. (Even though cable networks make most of their money from subscriber fees, some of them supplement those fees with ad-

If the broadcasters' "penalty" causes even a few subscribers to drop cable because of the inconvenience or the cost, broadcasters can use this drop in viewership to convince advertisers not to advertise on cable.

When cable networks lose advertising dollars they only have two choices: Make it up in subscriber fees, or let their programming quality suffer. Either way, they'll lose viewers - cable systems will drop the network either because they can't raise prices to cover increased fees (thanks to the 1992 Cable Act), or they don't want to waste channel space on poor programming that nobody watches.

The more viewers cable networks lose, the more advertisers they'll lose . . . drsw your own conclusions as to where it will end.

We can't change the fact that the Cable Act is now the law. But we can make certain that the broadcasters don't benefit from the unfair advantage they got written into that law.

Our local cable company is, so far, refusing to let local broadcasters make subscribers pay "twice" - which means they may not be carrying Channels 2, 4, 7 and 50.

I say, stand your ground. I will happily put up with the inconvenience of an A/B switch to prevent a return to the bad old days when broadcasters had a monopoly on my viewing choices.

Summer's end sheds light on mistrust of lawyers

abor Day in Michigan always gives me a slightly sad feeling, a regretful look backward at summer's coming to an end.

The corn may be ripe, the tomatoes luscious. But the rich gold light we get at this time of year always comes to me tinged with the hollow sound of the cicadas.

And for those who shut down their cabins Up North over the weekend, the last slap of the screen door closes out another summer season.

I spent some time this summer at our cabin in the Upper Peninsula, five miles from the nearest phone. Returning to the hurly-burly of the real world reassured me that life hadn't changed that much while I was out of touch. The politicians still are fussing and fuming about taxes and school quality. The UAW and the auto industry still are negotiating. The Tigers still are not quite in contention. And thanks to Dick Aginian's auto accident in Florida, I know trial lawyers still infest the Dick is president and CEO of the company that owns this newspaper. A perverse fellow, he took part of his vacation this year in Florida, where an elderly gentleman swerved his car across the median and slammed into the front end of Dick's.

Dick and Diane, his wife, are a bit bruised but OK. Upon their return to Michigan, they started getting a lot of mail from the Florida ambulance-chasers. Dick shared some with me.

One outstanding example was a slick, fourcolor brochure featuring a smiling lawyer standing before what looks like a law library.

The accompanying letter urged Dick to retain the lawyer: "My job as YOUR Accident Attorney is to quickly obtain compensation for such expenses as ambulance bills, hospital bills, doctor bills, lost wages, rental car expenses, and property damage . . . Except for costs, I receive no attorneys fees unless YOU RECOVER DAMAGES!"

PHILIP POWER

Another letter ended in boldface type: "Protect your rights, speak to no one but an attorney. Do not hesitate to call!"

Evidently, the good ol' boys in Florida have quite a system worked out. A publication called the Florida Reporter scans newspapers and other public records and prints the names and addresses of people who have had accidents. Then the ambulance chasers go to work.

(For the record, the correct term for the activity of encouraging people to sue others is "suborn." For most lawyers, it has a fairly unethical ring to it, evidently unheard in parts of the Florida bar.)

Persistent readers of this column will recall my general views about lawyers in general and the plaintiff's bar in particular. I'm glad to see the problem is, if anything, worse in Florida than it is here in Michigan.

Let the record also show that Dick and Diane survived a head-on collision with only minor scrapes and bruises, thanks to seat belts and an air bag. Buckle 'em up! Hope you had a safe holiday.

Voucher supporters say public schools overspend

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

In the challenger's corner were voucher fans calling for schools of choice, lower teacher pay, Latin and Greek, parental control.

In the defending champ's corner were Michigan business and the current educational establishment pushing employability

In center ring were the referees six Republican state senators and a representative - studying education reform in the wake of their repeal of $6 billion in local property tax revenues.

'I have very mixed emotions about 'choice' or voucher," said Rep. Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak, whose district includes part of Troy. Citing her own father (fourth grade) and mother (eighth grade), the veteran lawmaker asked: "How do you have schools of choice and include all children? Not all parents care. And those that do care can't always provide transportation."

The GOP hearing drew more than 300 combatants and spectators Tuesday evening to the steamy auditorium of Royal Oak's Kimball High.

Focus: vouchers

Center of discussion was the voucher system, prohibited in 1970 when voters amended the state constitution. With vouchers. state money would follow a pupil into any school, public, proprietary or religious. Supporters see it as a way to keep kids out of the state's employability curriculum and away from outcomes

based testing.
"I'm disillusioned," said Birmingham mother Carol L. Pope, chair of Friends of Michigan Schools in Oakland County. She deplored public schools' emphasis on "attitudes, not cognitive skills; social-behavioral and attitudinal outcomes. It's more political than educational," she said, charging the Michigan Education Association union had taken over school reform. "Get that solid core curriculum," Pope told lawmakers. But she was hooted when she charged public school teachers are making "$43 an hour for part-time work.

"Go back to classical education - Greek and Roman philosophers, logic, math, Tacitus, Plato, Aristotle, Plutonius," said Troy mother Charlene Femminineo.

She said the state should assign schools $2,000 and reward successful schools whose pupils exceed minimum state assessments with more money.

Countered Dante Lanzetta, former Birmingham mayor who works in survey research: "Ask any parent if he really wants a child to go into the world with a 16th-Century education. They won't make it. We kid ourselves if we think otherwise.

Beardmore, one of the GOP's chief movers and shakers on educational change, said Michigan has moved toward recertification of teachers every five years and identified entrylevel standards for new teachers.

Mo Paulin (Farmington Hills Mercy) contributed nine kills and 17 digs, while freshmen Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) and Kelly McCausland (Redford Union) added eight and six kills, respectively. Julie Woods had 13 digs.

Area talent boosts U-D program

The University of Detroit-Mercy men's soccer team, its roster filled with former Observerland high school talent, posted a major upset last weekend when it defeated Oakland University 1-0.

As upsets go, most wouldn't even consider this. University of Detroit-Mercy is, after all, a member of the NCAA's Division I; Oakland University is NCAA II.

So UDM should beat OU in men's soccer, right?

Wrong. The lines dividing the NCAA's I and II in collegiate soccer are not nearly as defined as in basketball or football. Fact is, OU has dominated men's collegiate soccer in this state for more than a decade, no matter the division.

So Saturday's score certainly did qualify as an upset — UDM 1, OU 0. It may also have signalled a changing of the guard. Without question, there is an abundance of soccer talent in suburban Detroit, and that pool is growing. Now it's just a matter of where those players plan to go.

The Titans are an attractive prospect. They won Saturday with a young, collegiately inexperienced team, going against one of OU's supposedly best teams ever - most of the Pioneers on the field played a year ago, when the team reached the NCAA II Tournament semifinals.

Granted, there were notable absenses for OU: midfielder John Gentile (Livonia Churchill) is still recovering from a hamstring injury, and Dominic Scicluna (Redford Catholic Central) was out of action.

But there still should have been enough to beat a UDM team that started six freshmen.

Young, local talent

For Morris Lupenec, the win was both personal and pivotal. Personal because the UDM coach played and coached at OU; pivotal because it may have a major impact on his youthful team.

Whenever you beat a team of that stature, it's a sign your program is headed in the right direction," said Lupenec, who shares the OU singleseason goals scored record with current Pioneer Eli Tiomkin.

Most of the players Lupenec is relying upon are local: Three of his starters are from Livonia (a fourth, defender Scott Wiggins of Livonia Stevenson, is sidelined until midseason with a broken leg), one is from Plymouth (Salem HS) and another is from West Bloomfield. Three of the five are freshmen; the other two are sophomores.

"We had a a good grasp on recruiting," said Lupenec, who also coaches club teams and works in the Olympic Development Program. "We were lucky enough to get some good players. The big-time programs out there aren't willing to give up the money for some of these guys."

In the past, there wasn't enough talent for all. Now there is. Among the UDM starters against OU were sophomore midfielder Dario Rauker, from Churchill; sophomore defender Mike Solan, from West Bloomfield; freshman keeper Kal Kaliszewski, from Churchill; freshman defender Jeff Thomas, from Stevenson; and freshman midfielder Truskowski, from Salem.

Veteran runner: Junior Kathleen Landelius was an all-area standout for the Canton girls cross country team last year.

Canton runners prepare to regain girls WLAA title

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

Not too many years ago Plymouth Canton was the premier power in Western Lakes Activities Association girls cross country.

The Chiefs, who were 3-3 in dual meets and finished seventh in the 12team league meet, had been perennial champions in the WLAA Western Division but took a back seat to Walled Lake Western in recent years.

But that could change this season since the Warriors lost some of their top runners and Canton returns all of its best. The Chiefs just might regain the WLAA throne, too.

"Anytime we don't win the Western Division championship, it's a down year for us and we were unable to do that the last two seasons," Canton coach George Przygodski said. "After the last few seasons, we definitely have a little more potential and once again will be a competitive force in the WLAA.

Canton's top runner a year ago was junior Kathleen Landelius, who was sixth in the league, 14th in the regional and 34th at state.

The Chiefs have an excellent onetwo combination with Landelius and junior Laura McWilliams, who was 20th in the WLAA and poses a consistent challenge for Landelius.

"The two of them battled each other all last year," Przygodski said. One won 50 percent of the time, and the other won 50 percent of the time.

"If one fell down, I think the other would, too. You aren't going to see one run past without seeing the other.'

Canton's outlook for 1993 got a major boost with the return of senior Lana Boroditsch, who missed all last More cross country, 3B

season with an injury but had an outstanding year in track and is healthy

Boroditsch holds the school record on the Cass Benton course with a 20:11 time. Landelius is fourth (20:23) on the list and McWilliams eighth (20:43).

"We have three quality runners there," Przygodski said. "Lana went to state as a freehmen and conhomore. Kathleen went last year and Laura just missed.'

Canton also returns seniors Erin Hindman and Melissa Bastine and juniors Meghan Barresi and Raegan

The lineup was made even stronger with the addition of three newcomers who will round out the top six: junior Tracey Cavin, an excellent middle distance runner in track, and freshmen Becky Wolfrom and Beth Knight.

"They're going to have a very big impact on the program," Przygodski said. "They will have an immediate impact and be very good runners."

Bastine would be in the top seven but is recovering from mononucleosis and should be ready to run later, Przygodski said. Barresi and sophomore newcomer Casey Swanson are battling for the No. 7 position.

The roster also includes first-year runners junior Becky Bockstanz, a sprinter in track, freshmen twins Nicole and Danielle Guignard and freshman Rachel Burt.

The Chiefs begin the season today with a dual meet against Plymouth Salem at Cass Benton.

Blazers lose showdown with Flint NW

By NEAL ZIPSER STAFF WRITER

While playing basketball for Flint Northwestern and the University of Tennessee, Tonya Edwards enjoyed a lot of success on the court. As a prep hooper, Edwards won two state championships, was named all-state four times and set the all-time career scoring record in Michigan.

However, as a coach, she has suffered only frustration against Livonia Ladywood - until Tues-In her previous two seasons as the Wildcats'

ing them twice. But Tuesday Northwestern got to return the feeling, handing host Ladywood a frustrating 67-63 defeat. "This is the first time I've beaten them in three years and it feels good," Edwards said. "They've Tuesday's frustration was felt by the Blazers, who fought back from an early 12-point deficit to take a one-point lead, only to lose it. Their comeback continued deep into the fourth quarter, when they narrowed the gap several times to two points. But whenever Ladywood tried to rally, the Wildcats found a way to score and extend their lead.

BASKETBALL

Northwestern, the top ranked team in Class A, used an impressive inside-outside attack that handed Ladywood, the No. 4-ranked team in Class A, its first loss of the season after two wins.

"We were right there with them but couldn't get over the hump," said Ladywood coach Ed Kavanaugh. "Disappointed? Not at all. It was a fun game. The better team won tonight."

coach, the Blazers had the better of her team, beat-Close, but not quite

Junior forward Tara Overaitis, who sparked several of the Blazers' rallies, agreed with her coach that the loss was nothing to lose sleep over.

"We're not looking at this game like a loss," said Overaitis, who scored a team-high 18 points. "We're looking at this game like a learning experience. We definitely want to see them later in the season, but tonight, we just treated them like any

Northwestern proved early that it was no ordinary team. The Wildcats dominated early and jumped out to a 21-11 lead at the end of the first quarter. The culmination of the outburst was a triple by senior guard Nicole Massey.

We didn't come out as strong as we usually do and we didn't do the little things it takes to win a game," Overaitis said.

Massey led the Wildcats with 18 points, while

Larecha Jones and Kotrina Peterson chipped in with 17 and 13 points, respectively. Melissa Campaeau netted 13 points for the Blazers, while Anne Poglits (14 rebounds) and Kerry Duggan added 12

The Wildcats extended their lead to 12 in the second before Ladywood awakened. The Blazers scored 10 unanswered points in a span of 1:32 to cut the score to 23-21.

Northwestern reopened its lead to 38-31 but an Overaitis layup and two free throws by Campaeau closed the gap to three.

That momentum carried into the third quarter as a turn around jumper by Overaitis in the paint ave Ladywood its first, and only, lead at 39-38. That's when Massey made the key shots of the

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Last week, our, um, fearless prognosticators refused to differ on their 16 picks.

This week, each agreed to let me write this column. What are they thinking?

Well, for the record, Danny Boy and Brad went 13-3 and this week the pair promise to make things interesting and take different sides. The top matchup of the week features Westland John Glenn playing Farmington Hills Harrison at 1 p.m. Saturday at Harrison.

Emons and O'Meara disagree about who will end up 2-0 after Saturday's game. Just a hunch, but it probably has something to do with Emons working out of Westland and O'Meara working in Farmington.

FRIDAY'S GAMES (all times 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Garden City (1-0) at Dear. Edsel Ford (0-1), 3:30 p.m.: Ford is picked to win the White Division of the Mega Conference but the Thunderbirds are coming off a 21-10 season-opening loss to Howell. They return Brian Stone, the Most Valuable Player of the Northwest Suburban League last year. Garden City got by Dearborn Heights Crestwood last week as running back Jason Workman enjoyed a big game. Pick: It's a Ford.

week. Lutheran Westland swamped Marine City Cardinal Mooney, 34-0, in the season opener and is looking to avenge last year's loss to Harper Woods. This is a crossover game in the Metro Conference. If it's close, Lutheran Westland can win it with a strong kicking game. Pick: Lutheran Westland

W.L. Central (1-0) at Livonia Churchill (0-1): W.L. Central shut out Milford 23-0 in the season opener while Churchill was shut out in its opener against Dearborn, 10-0. Roger Wilson, a running back/kick returner and all-division choice last year in the Western Lakes Activities Association, leads Central, which is picked to finish third in the division. Pick: Churchill remains winless in the '90s.

Ply. Salem (1-0) at Northville (1-0): Salem is coming off an upset victory over Belleville and Northville won its season opener against South Lyon. The Rocks defense was especially impressive. Pick: O'Meara takes Salem and Emons goes North(ville).

N. Farmington (0-1) at Ply. Canton (0-1): Canton lost to Monroe in OT, 12-6, in the season opener. Ryan Ostach, a wide receiver/defensive back is someone for North to worry about. North moved the ball against Pontiac Northern but is still looking for its first points of the season. Pick: Canton forgets last week's Farmington (0-1) at W.L. Western (0-1): Western, the Class A runnerup last year, failed to get in the end zone in last week's 7-0 loss to Novi. Where's Arnie Gillert? Even though Farmington lost to West Bloomfield 22-13 the Falcons' offense was more explosive than it's been in recent season openers. Heck,

Lutheran Westland coasts in grid opener

O'Meara flies with the Falcons, while Emons goes with Western.

Redford Union (0-1) at Taylor Truman (0-1): Despite a season-opening 25-0 loss to 1992 Class A playoff qualifier Romulus, Taylor Truman is picked to finish second in the White Division of the Mega with five three-year starters returning. Redford Union looks forward to facing a smaller team after getting manhandled across the line of scrimmage by Livonia Stevenson in a seasonopening rout. Pick: Truman.

Taylor Kennedy (0-1) at Wayne Memorial (0-1): Wayne had no offense against Adrian, losing 23-7. Kennedy lost to Taylor Center in three OTs, 26-20. Pick: Wayne.

Thurston (1-) at Trenton (0-1): Redford Thurston put it in full throttle in the second half of a 37-7 rout over Redford St. Agatha last week. Wyandotte beat Trenton 6-0. The Tractors have lost 28 straight games but their defense isn't bad and they're much bigger than what Thurston's used to on the line. Pick: Thurston.

Detroit Lutheran West (1-0) at Clarenceville (0-1): Lutheran West, a Class D playoff qualifier with a 10-1 overall record last year, beat Southgate Aquinas 16-8 in the opener. Livonia Clarenceville, a 12-6 loser last week to Centerline St. Clement, will have its hands full against the Western Division favorite in the Metro. Pick: Lutheran Redford St. Agatha at New Haven: The Aggies hope to have more success than last week when Thurston rolled over them, but New Haven is a tradi-

SATURDAY GAMES (all times 1 p.m. unless noted)

Livonia Stevenson (1-0) at Franklin (0-1): The Spartans were impressive last week, gaining more than 400 yards in a rout over Redford Union. The Patriots played Sterling Heights Stevenson tough but the kicking game was the dif-ference in a 21-12 loss. Pick: O'Meara goes with the Patriots, while Emons picks against his alma mater and takes the Spartans.

Westland John Glenn (1-0) at Harrison (0-1): This is a matchup of teams with similar styles. Who has the most weapons? Glenn had an easy time in its season opener against Detroit Murray Wright. Harrison dominated Dearborn Divine Child in the first half before gaining a 21-7 victory. Will the absence of tailback Scott Gurke (knee injury) hurt Harrison this week? Pick: Emons likes the Rockets. O'Meara saw shades of the old Hawks last week.

Redford Bishop Borgess (0-1) vs. East Catholic (1-0) at Detroit Denby: East Catholic beat Sandusky 14-0 and is picked first in the Catholic League C-Section after going 7-2 team last year. East Catholic has a pair of huge linemen. Damon Mayer (6-feet, 340 pounds) and LeRoy White (6-31/2, 285 pounds) who are sure to make Borgess adjust. Pick: East Catholic.

Redford CC vs. Windsor Brennan at Livonia Clarenceville: Tailback Freddie Taylor, fullback John Spolsky and the Shamrocks' huge line should have no trouble running over Brennan for the second year in a row. Pick: CC.

"They want to do the things they came close to doing last year like getting to the state meet. But they have to run faster than they did last year to do that.'

The Chiefs also return juniors Brian Crocket and Colin Astley and sophomores Eric McClain, Brandon Hartke and Ryan Portrey. Senior Matt Demey, a firstyear runner with a track background, will help the team, according to Spitz. "I remind the younger guys, if anything happens to the varsity guys, they might have to step in for somebody this year or in the future," Spitz said. "I tell them to watch the older guys and know where they have to be at some

"Whether its the next five or 15, I want them to see, if they're not scoring now, that will be their role in the future. The day and meet will come when they have to step in and show what they have learned."

The Chiefs, who were fourth in the regional, lost Dave Yack and Shawn McNamara to graduation but should remain a WLAA contender. Yack was third in the WLAA and 31st in the state.

"I want us to be competitive," Spitz said. "I've been around long enough that I'm not going to say I expect us to win it all.

"Our biggest challenge is to keep everybody healthy because, if you don't, you lose the opportunity to (achieve your goals). If you start getting hurt or sick, you'll see your goals go down the drain in a hurry.

Canton starts today with a dual meet against Plymouth Salem and runs in the West Bloomfield Invitational Saturday.

Schoolcraft women claim tournament championship

The outcome was much better than anyone could have expected - even Nick O'Shea.

Of course, as coach of the Schoolcraft College women's soccer team, O'Shea is expected to find some fault with his team's performance. So he did, noting the Lady Ocelots needed to be in better condition; they 'didn't mark man-to-man well,"; their "movement in the final third (of the field) wasn't what it should be,"; and they've got to move the ball quicker, we have to have people move better without the ball."

Considering his remarks, it's surprising to learn that SC actually won the Monroe CC Tour-nament in Rochester, N.Y., last weekend. The Ocelots did so by beating Burlington CC (from Pemberton, N.J.) 6-0 Saturday and tying Monroe 1-1 Sunday.

The Monroe game wasn't easy, by any means. Monroe was one of the NJCAA's top teams in '92, and had 10 players returning from that squad. Monroe scored first, too, getting a goal off a corner kick midway through the first half when SC keeper Jenny Emmett (from Plymouth Salem) was bumped and lost the ball.

But SC hung tough. Andrea Zawislak (Livonia Churchill) tied it 10 minutes into the second half, collecting a through pass from center midfielder Amanda Thomas and beating her defender, and the Monroe keeper, to tie it.

Even though O'Shea thought Monroe was the better-conditioned team, he was pleased with the Ocelots performance through two 15-minute overtime periods. "During the overtime, our desire negated their conditioning," he said.

SC earned the tournament title based on goal differential. Danielle Priebe, a freshman from Churchill, earned defensive player of the tournament hon-

Indeed, entering the tournament O'Shea's biggest question concerning his team was who to put at sweeper and at center adequate at center mid, he felt Priebe could be better. The problem was, who would replace Priebe at sweeper?

His question was partly answered during the tournament by Thomas' fine play. "We're a solid team with Danielle back and Amanda in the middle," he said. "Still, I would like to have (Priebe) more involved in the play, handle the ball more.

"But in big games like this, (Priebe) will probably be at

In the win over Burlington, the offense clicked. SC scored twice in the first half, getting goals from Dee Lorenz and Kelly Greaves. Kara Kramer broke the game open with two goals in the second half, both on 25-yard shots. Tara Shook (Rochester) and Priebe finished the scoring.

Although there's still plenty of room for improvement, O'Shea knew his team had delivered at least one message to a major opponent - Monroe. "We showed we can hang in there with the big-time teams," he

Power in the making

Among those coming off the bench are freshman midfielder Adam Pichler, from Stevenson, and freshman defender Brian Spuck, from Salem.

In the win over OU, it was Truskowski who got the game's only goal with just over six minutes left. Pichler assisted. It marked the first time in six tries that UDM defeated OU.

"In my book, we're 100 percent better than last year," said Lupenec, now in his second season. The Titans were 7-11-1 in

'92. "We had a lot of bits and pieces last year."

That was due to his late hiring, which cut into his recruiting time. The difference this season? "It's the talent," Lupenec answered.

While the win over OU was impressive, it does not make a season. The Midwestern Collegiate Conference will be difficult, with Evansville and Notre Dame (Notre Dame visits UDM Tuesday). And then there's the MCC Tournament.

"We're very young, and we're going to make freshman mistakes," admitted Lupenec. "My goal is to ultimately win the MCC. My goal is to get into the NCAA Tournament. But you never know how long that will

With good friends, and a supportive family backing him, Cooney kept going to auditions, trying to get parts.

"My mom encouraged me," said Cooney in a phone interview from his apartment in New York. "She was real supportive, even when things were tough. I was ready to give it up when she bought me a plane ticket to go to an audition for 'Jesus Christ Superstar,' in New Hampshire."

Cooney got the part. He performed the role of Jesus and Judas in two separate productions of the show. Other parts followed. When things got tough, his family and friends stood behind him. "My brother sent me money in New York," said Cooney. "I would eat macaroni and cheese for three weeks."

Cooney was last seen performing the role of Marius in the Broadway company of "Les Miserables." Getting the part was a lucky accident, according to Graden. "He was trying out for 'Cats' and there were a lot of people at the audition. On the way he passed a room where they were auditioning parts for

'Les Miserables.' There wasn't anyone there so Dan asked if he could audition. He did, and got the part.' Cooney has been on the road with riches story of Eva Peron who was born dirt poor and became one of the richest and most powerful women in the world when she married Juan Peron, president of Argentina in the 1940s. Eva Peron died of cancer at age 33, and her legend lives on. "Evita" is like a documentary put Coorey read Eva Peron's, and some of Guevara's biography to help pre-pare him to portray Che. "It's a fan-tastic role," he said. "His range is immense, he's very passionate and angry about what Eva has done to her country. He's all over the stage, there's a huge emotional range. It's really a blast to do, but it's very demanding. I've got to be in good shape, I'm constantly singing and running."

Revolutionary: Dan Cooney, a John Glenn High School graduate, portrays Che Guevera in "Evita," opening Sept. 14 at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit.

Valerie Perri portrays Eva Peron. She premiered the role on the road in the First National touring company of the show in 1982; David Brummel plays Peron.

In the show, Che ranges in age from 17 to 24. Cooney is 25. He said he's looking forward to coming home, to visit his mother and father, brothers, and their families.

"My dad was more skeptical of my career choice," said Cooney. "In a very caring and loving way he encouraged me to do something more grounded. When I didn't, he said 'do your best kid.' Now he's very excited and has all friends coming to the

'Witchboard 2' a supernatural murder mystery

BY KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER

"Witchboard 2: The Devil's Game," opening Friday at suburban movie theaters, is "not just a straight horror film, it's fun," said Ami Dolenz, one of the leading characters.

"It won't save the world. It's like going on a rollercoaster. It's fun to get scared."

"Paige opens the closet door and it falls out," said Newman, who plays Elaine Louden, Paige's landlady. "She whimsically picks it up and starts to play with it. She becomes intrigued, then entrapped. Almost immediately, the pointer starts spelling out words.'

Through the oujia board, Paige is contacted by the spirit of Susan Sydney, the former tenant who claims she was murdered in the apartment. Unsure of herself, but fascinated by the seductive power of the board, Paige returns nightly to the ouija board to investigate the mystery - unaware PREVIEW that her contact is opening the door to powerful evil that she can never control.

"I befriend Susan. She's a very strong woman. She helps bring out some of my stronger traits. I trust her, but then she turns on me," said Dolenz.

Paige's dreams are soon filled with horrible visions of Susan's death - and a series of brutal murders that has the whole building gripped with

Each nightmare is more terrifying, each murder is more shocking than the last - and each is taking her one step closer to solving the mystery and confronting the ultimate terror face to face. "Susan wants to possess me," said Dolenz.

The dialogue in "Witchcraft 2" is what attracted Newman, best known for her work on "Saturday Night Live!", to the script.

"There's not an excess of horror and gore," said Newman in a phone interview. "I thought the dialogue was funny. It was very unique. Elaine lives in the 1960s. She's kind of the comic relief in the story.'

Newman and Dolenz both praised writer/director Kevin Tenney. "He's very creative, he's an actor's director," said Dolenz.

"Kevin develops the characters. Paige is someone who needed a change. The ouija board is used as a tool for change. Elaine is forced to deal with certain realities. She was traumatized by her parents death and got stuck in the 1960s," said Newman.

"Witchboard 2" a sequel to the cult classic "Witchboard" released in 1986, is a Republic Pictures release. Tenney said his goal was to capture all the imagination and terror of the original, and at the same time do something totally new.

Instead of a gothic house in the suburbs, Tenney chose a gritty downtown loft; instead of college students, young professionals. But, like the original, the heart of the story is the strange and supernatural powers of the ouija board.

Dolenz, 23, is the daughter of actor-turned producer/director and famed "Monkee" Mickey Dolenz. She made her big screen debut in a feature role in 1987 with Patrick Dempacy in "Can't Buy Me Love." Her debut in a leading feature film role was in 1990 when she starred in "She's Out of Control," with Tony Danza. Her latest film credits include "Rescue Me" and "Miracle Beach.

At the heart of "Kalifornia" is the American preoccupation with psycho killers, fueled in part by the mainstream success of "Silence of the Lambs.

Jonathan Demme, the director of "Lambs" and the road picture "Something Wild," could have done wonders with a movie like 'Kalifornia.'

Here instead, we have music video director Dominic Sena, who confirms all of our worst fears about young directors in the wake of MTV.

Walking in during the opening credits, I had to ask the person seated next to me if this was the right movie. An aerial camera, surveying a warehouse area on a lightning-streaked night, looked like something out of "Blade Runner.'

Sena offers more shots from high above, whether it be building or blender, and we soon realize the visual acrobatics add up to absolutely nothing.

He does best when the travelers actually make it to a handful of the murder sights. Brian, writing a book on serial killers, wants the experience of actually standing where the murders occurred. These locales - a farmhouse, a meat packing plant, a warehouse - take on eerie lives of their own, especially when captured in Carrie's camera flashes.

Pitt is almost unrecognizable behind the scruffy beard and greasy hair, a far cry from the James Dean-style characters he played in "A River Runs Though It" or even "Cool World." For the waifish Lewis, this is almost a

Lopez 'adjusts' to business in Germany

Waking up to the sound of FBI ing around in the agents rumm office downstairs is not a familiar experience to many U.S. auto executives, but that is pretty much what is going on in Germany these days, the aftermath of former GM purchasing czar Ignazio Lopez eloping from GM to Volkswagen at the beginning of the summer. The move from Bloomfield Hills to Wolfsburg was something more than geographic. Even more than jumping from one 'corporate culture' to another, as Fortune magazine might put it. Germany, as it turns out, takes big business ethics seriously.

For those who have not been following the saga of Mr. Lopez, the story started with a dry, bean counting kind of guy brought in as hired gun from GM's European operations to cut costs. His methods, mainly tearing up contracts and demanding price cuts from suppliers, rankled more than a few, which would be expected.

In retrospect, it also wasn't too surprising that he ended up tearing up one last contract - his - in a bewildering exit from GM in favor of a juicier job at Volkswagen.

All that would have been a minor blip in GM corporate politics, save for the significant number of executives who chose to follow Lopez to VW. The brain drain was quickly followed up by GM charging that along with the loy-alists, Lopez had taken along some top-secret GM documents.

Now, in a country like the U.S. that merely writes off a trillion or so in questionable bank loans as part of the 'national debt,' the idea of prosecuting for a couple of missing papers seems ludicrous. The Germans, however, aren't laughing.

For one thing, VW is at least partly a state-owned company, with a separate board of directors representing the public investment. Lopez reports to a management board, and that board, is, if not in turmoil, at least unsettled.

Secondly, the track record of Germany enforcing the integrity of its banks, and by extension, it's major corporations, is a hard line indeed, with prison sentences commonplace for charges that in the U.S. would be marginal civil suits.

The German government is interpreting GM's charges against VW as something that ultimately will affect German national interests, not the least of which is the pending U.S. trade pact with-Mexico, where VW currently manufactures most of its care-bound for the U.S.

GM itself is also nearly as im-portant to the German economy; as VW, mainly because of its extensive Opel operations.

All of which begins to explain the involvement of the German government and the police investigation of GM's charges.

As for Lopez, he finally admitted he did see some strange papers when he unpacked his stuff. but he didn't read them and shredded them immediately.

Like he didn't inhale.

PEPTIC ULCER DISEASE, YOUR RISK

Peptic ulcer disease is one of the common disorders of the Digestive tract. It represents a break in the mucosa (lining of the stomach and duodenum). In a majority of the cases there is a high acid secretion associated with the development of ulcers. Smoking, alcohol consumption, and use of aspirin or other non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAID drugs) have been implicated as Most recenlty a bacteria called Helicobactor pylori has also been implicated as a significant factor as well. These factors may have an additive effect when they coexist, aspirin increased the risk for gastric ulcer in patients of all ages, whereas the use of NSAID drugs increased the risk only in people who are older than 55 years of age and more in females particularly. Coffee in excess might help ulcer formation. Identification of these risk factors is important for successful treatment and prevention of recurrance and complications of peptic ulcer disease.

Friendly skies takeoff point for charter company

Flying at the drop of a hat to an out-of-the way destination can be a tough find for business travelers unless they hook up with the entrepreneur offering a charter service from Oakland-Troy airport.

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Clement Levy's will.

Not many planes offer several seats for the price of one.

Clement Levy's will. It took 21/2 years to receive FAA approval, but Levy finally got the air charter arm of L&W Flying Services off the ground in February. The 55year-old Troy resident may be short on assets, but he'slong on enthusiasm and dreams. "An airport as important as Oakland-Troy right in the middle of the Golden Corridor deserves a charter operation," he said. "Over the last three years, people have come in from Pontiac and Detroit and taken customers away from Troy. There's a

Filling a niche

Levy, manager of the small airport for several years, decided to step in and fill the void.

The charter service is a natural progression of his varied business interests, and, as things shook out, didn't necessitate a large infusion of capital.

Levy, owner of a machine shop in Warren, is a recreational pilot who already owned a twin-engine Piper seating six. He used it for business trips to places like a Caterpiller plant in Peoria, Ill., and a General Dynamics facility in Lima, Ohio.

Levy already owned a hangar at Oakland-Troy and employed a couple of pilots on a contractual basis to provide flying lessons and a mechanic to take care of his plane.

Friends helped prepare the charter application/manual required by the FAA. Levy figures he spent $40,000, less than half of what that process could have cost.

His biggest upfront cash operating expense so far is $5,000 for a liability insurance policy. He anticipates spending about $14,000 for pilot training, $14,000 for fuel and $8,000 for pilot fees this year.

'Economically, I'm very strong, stable," Levy said. "The corporation isn't debt heavy. It's not top heavy, either. Yours truly is working gratis without a salary.

Market-oriented

Levy expects that the bulk of his business customers will come from southeastern Oakland communities like Troy, Birmingham and South-

Mark Stavropoulos, owner of Wolverine Carbide across the street from Oakland-Troy Airport, has used the service upwards of a dozen times for business and pleasure.

"I had to go to Rochester, N.Y., and checked around and found it would cost around $700," Stavropoulos said. "I chartered the whole plane for $950 and two of us went. It left when I wanted to leave and returned when I wanted to come back.

"Parking at Metro - all this adds up," he said. "Granted, going to Chicago probably would be cheaper going commercial, but for some of these smaller towns, it (L&W) is really economical.

Time is money in the business world, Levy said.

B immediately - right now - an airline is not at your disposal," he said. 'We are. We serve 24 hours a day. We don't give you just one seat.

'Charges are based on miles and waiting time," Levy said.

"If you were to call an airline and tell them you want to go to Buffalo right now, they'd probably quote you a figure of $500. By the time you got to Metro, we'd probably be there (in Buffalo)." All at a cost of $933 round trip plus $30 per hour for waiting time, he said.

Up and flying: Clement Levy (center) and pilots Bob Nadelberg and George Gorial are working to make a go of an air charter business at Oakland-Troy Airport.

Convenience sells

"This becomes addictive, the only way to travel," said Bob Nadelberg, a Farmington Hills resident and pilot 'Typically, you're going to find a charter comes in best when you have to make your own timetable or go to an out-of-the-way place.'

Levy is eyeing another plane, an eight-passenger, twin-engine model, and one day hopes to have as many as five planes in service. He intends to pay cash for a second aircraft and, if necessary, would rather take on private investors than take out loans for future expansion. "You don't make money owing money to a bank. That's my philosophy," he said. "Our break even point is about $50,000, but we project sales of $100,000 after we're established," he said. "Once we're all equipped with proper aircraft, there is a half million dollars in charters in Troy.

So far, Levy said he averages about two charters per week. He hasn't done much promotion yet but expects to start knocking on doors of potential business customers soon.

The Oakland-Troy Airport is his biggest selling point, Levy said.

Future of business may depend on will

BY MARY RODRIQUE STAFF WRITER

More than a third of Detroit area executives who manage small and medium size businesses don't have a will, a national survey reports.

"From a planning standpoint, hav-ing a will is critical," said Dan Boyce, certified financial planner with the Center for Financial Planning in Southfield. Business is very illiquid from a planning standpoint. Without a proper plan of disposition, business could be worth substantially less, leaving the family in jeopardy. In a survey of 79 executives representing business organizations with up to 1,000 employees, 38 percent of all participants admitted they don't have a will. The study was conducted by Grant Thornton, a national accounting and management consulting firm with offices in Southfield. "An attorney should be involved;

it's not a do-it-yourself operation with business involved," said Boyce. Without a proper plan of disposition, a business could be worth substantially less, leaving the family in jeopardy. I tell everyone if they don't have a plan for their estate, the state of Michigan has one for them with hard and fast rules."

"I would have never guessed that so many business people who are accustomed to making decisions affecttant to establish the value of the ing the futures of their organizations and employees would neglect their families by not having a current will,' Albright said.

The study also found that only 15 percent of Detroit area executives purchased life insurance to cover estate taxes, which can be as high as 55 percent of the estate's value. Insurance can be particularly critical for family-run businesses, which are sometimes forced to sell off assets simply to pay the taxes. Just 22 percent of local respondents have set up estate plan trusts to provide for their surviving spouses and families. One fifth (20 percent) have drawn up living wills. The majority have not taken steps to enable others to make legal decisions on their behalf by signing a durable power of attorney or health care power of attorney.

"One of the great mysteries of life is the length of it," said Boyce. "Why not get (a will) into place and not worry about it?

"Also if there are minor children involved, the question of guardianship comes up if both parents die. If there are assets and both parents die, the question is who handles the assets and for how long. State law says the money goes to the survivor at age 18. The majority of 18 year olds probably couldn't handle it.

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

Picture this: A profile of your child

While many child care providers prepare for the return of children enrolled and make way for new preschoolers, don't forget to draft or update child profile sheets.

Child profile sheets give specific information pertaining to each enrolled child's special interests, favorite toy, toileting and other habits, as well as some key factors regarding the parents' view of child care practices. For child care providers, it's a gem of a reference which provides essential information that's beneficial when meeting individual needs.

This handy sheet can be a life saver for substitute care givers. Profile sheets should be kept in each child's file. It will be necessary to update the sheets as you, the child's parents or guardian, observe his or her growth.

Include the sheet in the center or day care home application-enrollment packet. It's OK to give parents a copy for their records. It may serve as a reminder to parents of their responses and brings it to their attention when reviewed for changes.

Here are some sample questions that should be included on the child profile sheet. (Some questions to include can also profile parents' child rearing techniques.)

Questions for parents can include: (1) What would you like most for your child to experience with us? (2) What does your child enjoy doing most?

(3) Does your child have any particular fears?

(4) Do you consider your child shy or outgoing? (5) What are your child's favorite toys?

(6) About what things does your child express the most curiosity? (7) Does your child play with other children?

(8) What is the marital status of the child's

(9) List the names and ages of other children in

(10) Who also cares for the child? (11) What language is spoken in the home?

the family.

(12) What words are spoken in the home for toileting? (13) Does the child take naps? For how long?

(14) Does the child have allergies? Explain.

(15) How is the child disciplined? (16) Has the child had previous preschool experiences?

For the child care provider, fill in the blanks works well in communicating to parents feelings and thoughts about such things as rest times for the children, messy activities and child cleanliness and what and how much children should eat

Other areas that should be covered are out-ofdoor play and exercise, quiet, indoor activities for children and how children should be disciplined when they do something wrong. Be sure to include, and encourage, comments on other subjects.

Mathaei sets training for new docents

Persons interested in becoming docents at the Matthaei Botanical Garden's (Conservatory) and the Nichols Arboretum can sign up for a joint training program that will be offered this fall.

The training program enables docents to lead insightful tours at each of the institutions for visiting groups and individuals. Persons who enjoy plants and nature and are enthusiastic about sharing their interests with children or adults are candidates for being a docent.

Kathy French, interpretive botanist at the gardens, will teach the training course, which provides a base of fundamental botanical knowledge, plant information, technique and practice opportunities needed for participants to become effective docents.

Iguanas at work: The 2 Iguanas from Earth — Nancy Douglas (left) and Renae Bernard — perform at The Grand Cafe in Farmington.

A couple of strange animals are on the prowl in downtown Farmington on Tuesday nights. The 2 Iguanas from Earth perform at The Grand Cafe in the basement of the Cook Building.

By LARRY O'CONNOR

One has chased a dream from New York to Los Angeles. Her partner has charted a course of life experiences from Farmington to Miami.

Time and direction dictated that their paths would eventually cross. A joint love of music would lead them to sing about it as The 2 Iguanas from Earth.

Just as diverse as the band's name and their experiences, though, are the venues Renae Bernard and Nancy Douglas find themselves in.

The pair has performed their edgy acoustic music before leather-clad hordes in dimly lit, smoky bars sandwiched between thrash metal

They've opened for pop star Eddie Money at Pine Knob, a converted ski slope, and sang the National Anthem Aug. 11 on the diamond at Tiger Stadium.
On Tuesdays, the gem gig has been playing above the din of clattering coffee cups and pinging silverware at The Grand Cafe in Farmington.

"I love to play, and I love to get out there," said Bernard, who is a graduate of Livonia Bentley High and the chief songwriter."Coffeehouses just started popping up, Added Douglas, a Farmington High graduate, "Farmington's never had a venue for entertainment. Fads and fashions kind of passed through Farmington, but they never stayed.'

The 2 Iguanas from Earth are staying for a while, though. The duo's engagement lasts through September at the recently opened coffeehouse.

The relaxed, reflective atmosphere punctuated by the aroma of cappuccino coincides with The 2 Iguanas' own state of mind.

The return home is a respite from forays for fame and fortune.

Bernard went to New York and Los Angeles on modeling and acting jobs. She had cameos in films such as "Night Hawks" and "Marrying Man," and even had a bit role in a rock music video. "I was a hooker in the video," Bernard said with an embarrassed laugh.

She came back to the area in 1989.

"I had a bad situation with one individual (musically) for 10 years, Douglas said. "I never thought I'd pick up a guitar again.'

Douglas saw the ad, and the two clicked musically. They've since moved in together and have aspirations for a recording contract.

For Douglas, returning to downtown Farmington brings back memories. During a recent performance, she dedicated a song to a couple she recognized in the audience.

Her stepfather was Howard Thay-er of the Thayer-Rock Funeral Home. She recalls a pleasant childtime," said Douglas, who can resemwhen her long hair dangles in her eyes while performing. "When they ran out of room, they would put a body in my room, and I would go and stay with my grandma.

What a beautiful day. I hope it's a pleasant one for you. I was reading your column this morning and I would love an analysis of my handwriting. Is there any hope for me? (Only kidding!) If I may,

I'd like to tell you a little bit about me. I am 30 years young. I have a wonderful job working as a legal secretary to a district court judge. I am divorced but am currently involved in an extraordinary relationship with a very special man whom I love

In closing I would like to thank you kindly for offering me your analysis. I can't wait! L.R.,

Our writer is an intelligent young woman who can see and act on the essentials. She has set goals for herself that are challenging. In routine matters she works with speed and efficiency. Perfection is often her aim to avoid cen-Hi, Ms. Green, Outwardly, she assumes a posture of poise and calm. Her thoughts are often repressed and emotions are held in check. Spontaneity is limited as she keeps a cautious distance from others.

This is a very independent thinker! She rigidly adheres to her personal philosophy and is not too receptive to the ideas and/or opinions of others.

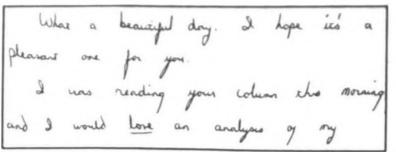

This young woman is disinclined to take risks. She feels more secure with what she knows best. She can be intimidated by situations that do not conform to patterns of her past. Security is a high priority of hers.

To understand her we must consider her early training. Unfortunately, not everyone in her past was loving and accepting of her. She perceives some emotional deprivation from the formative years, which has caused her to be somewhat distrustful of people.

Our writer is observant and a tad suspicious. Not too much escapes those watchful eyes of hers.

Friendships do not come easily. She is clannish and carefully chooses both projects and people as a way of protecting herself.

She seems to enjoy having her way and wants to control those she cares about. Her true motives may sometimes be hidden.

An aversion to authority figures is seen in this handwriting and probably started very early. Included here might be a parent, boss, religious adviser or almost anyone who tries to enforce strict obedience. Her dislike of authority may have a way of creating problems for her. My next statement may sound contradictory, but she sometimes adapts to the demands of the moment to avoid having to make decisions.

Orderliness along with deliberate patient attention to details was drilled into our writer and are a residue of early discipline.

This is a sequential thinker who leaves as little as possible to chance. She relies on practical methods more than hunches.

Presently, she appears to be experiencing some anxiety with regard to herself. She may feel unappreciated and apprehensive about something happening in Nature's grandeur provides enjoyment for her. Each new season brings beauty and wonder.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, signature and handedness are all helpful. And feedback is always welcome.

metro Detroit.

A few years ago, the group had two dozen members and met in people's homes. Today, the organization has at least six members with triplets.

Palaian attributes the growth to the increased use of fertility drugs for women who have difficulty conceiving or carrying to term. In addition, some women are having babies later in life, which sometimes results in multiple births.

Lisa Mollenkamp of Redford and McGinty both had taken fertility drugs because of prior miscarriages.

Mollenkamp and her husband, Brian, have four children, the oldest of which are 8-year-old twins. Andrea and Brandon.

"Because they are boy and girl, many people don't know they are twins," said Lisa Mollenkamp. 32. "Sometimes I forget they were both born the same day.

"Andrea is the little mother. She likes to plan things for them. She keeps an eye out." Brandon is easy going, a bit shy and fond of sports. They are devoted to each other, but have many separate friends.

At Vandenberg Elementary School in Redford, Andrea and Brandon are in the third grade and are assigned to different classrooms.

"Every one of their teachers have been just exactly what they needed," Mollenkamp said.

To help keep track of permission slips, notes, projects and special school days, Mollenkamp purchased bulletin boards for

As children get older, they want to assert their individuality. Andrea and Brandon don't like "together" birthday parties.

Palaian, too, has encouraged her twin daughters to develop their own tastes. They don't dress the same. And, like the Mollenkamps, they have blossomed by being in different classrooms. Palaian makes sure Lisa doesn't get overlooked. All three girls attend Eagle Elementary School in West Bloomfield.

Mollenkamp and Palaian look for ways to economize. Both have traded used clothing. Mollenkamp shops at the Eastern Market in Detroit for bargains on fruits and vegetables and spaces out shopping trips for back-toschool supplies. She takes her children to Wayne County Health Department clinics, where immunizations are free

Both Palaian and Mollenkamp receive discounts from their pediatricians for their twins.

Parenting twins is hard, but "a wonderful experience," Palaian said. "I wouldn't change it for the world."

McGinty considers her go-go schedule a small price to pay for a houseful of babies. When you go through fertility problems and have trouble, it's all worth it," McGinty said. McGinty spent much of her pregnancy confined to bed, battling toxemia and high blood pressure. The triplets, born prematurely, needed special care.

When teachers of reigion confuse REGENERATION and CONVERSION, they error by applying conversion commands to unregenerate as conditions for obtaining salvation. First. salvation is NOT OF WORKS (Eph 2-8-9). Second, sinners are DEAD TOWARD GOD and the dead cannot perform any works (Eph2-1). Third, sincers, export cases from sin (Aph4-4). Jeremes. sinners cannot cease from sin (Job14:4); Jeremial 13:23; Matt 8:18, until God gives them life.

Temple reaches out with music

BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

What does a church with a 3,500-seat auditorium downen it's trying to reach out to the community? Book some concerts?

That's what Temple Baptist Church in Redford has starting doing, but you won't find the likes of the Red Hot Chili Peppers or Goober and the Peas performing there. Its concert schedule features Margaret Becker, Michael Card and Steve Camp, some of Christian music's better known

"Music is a big part of our ministry," said Wayne Curtis, Tem-ple's director of outreach. "We're trying to reach out to the community in a way where you can sit back and learn in a fun atmosphere and it's quality entertain-

Curtis describes Temple's auditorium as "the best kept secret in metro Detroit." It has served as the setting church music/drama presentations at Christmas and Easter, benefit concerts for groups like the Detroit Rescue Mission and nonprofit WUFL radio and movies like the upcoming premiere of Worldwide Pictures'
"Come the Morning," a Billy Graham production.

And Curtis is now starting to book more and more Christian music acts. Not that the church wants to get into the concert business. Temple, according to Curtis is a purpose-driven church and its purpose is to really care for the people and their needs. The church also has a need - to rebuild its dwindling membership and the concerts are one way of introducing outsiders to Temple.

"We like to introduce people to Temple with these kind of events," Curtis said. "It's someplace where they can have a good time and there's spiritual sustenance, something that can really help people . . . and we've been helping people for 20 years." Temple, an independent Baptist church, has an eight-point strategy for the future and the first four points involve reaching out and touching people who are "looking for an open door." The church invites them to the appropriate door - like the concerts thereby enhancing their awareness of what Temple is all about, Curtis said.

On the offensive

Discussion started three years ago about doing concerts on regular basis, the idea being "to start taking Temple into the 21st century on the offensive," Curtis

The first effort was a performance by Ray Boltz in July 1992. Since then noted Christian music performers Steve Green, Michael English, Wayne Watson and Bruce Carroll have appeared at Temple. In fact, English will be back Sept. 11, performing in the Detroit Metro Area Praise Celebration '93, with Bill Gaither and Friends, the Gaither Vocal Band, The Cathedrals and Mark Lowry. Curtis also has lined up three major concerts for September and October for Temple. Steve Camp and Band will be at the church Saturday, Sept. 25, followed by Mary Becker and Band and special guest Troy Johnson Satur-day, Oct. 2, and Michael Card — The Acoustic Tour Friday, Oct. 22. All three concerts will be at 7

Camp is a pop rock artist with strong message. He has been singing contemporary Christian songs for many years and his music has a strong emphasis on getting young people to hear his message. Curtis describes Card as the "Dan Fogelberg of Christian rock.

"He really puts an emphasis on Christ in his music," he said. "His music is like folk, acoustic music; you'll really enjoy it."

Future shows

But that isn't then end of the concert schedule. Future dates include Buddy Green, a contemporary Christian country singer and special dramatic artist Max McLain. Curtis also is hoping to book "the hottest thing in Christian music," Steven Curtis Chapman and African-American inspirational singer Larnell Harris.

"Christian contemporary music is as big a business as they come," Curtis said. The music has a powerful message behind it and it's good for the kids.'

Curtis also has scheduled a benefit concert for Detroit Metro Youth for Christ for Thursday, Sept. 9. The concert is free and will feature the Maranatha Singers. (Call 533-3900 for information).

Temple isn't looking to just attract young people; it's also looking for families. Last year, the church presented the religious answer to "Sesame Street Live" with the "Agapeland Tour" featuring famous Christian cartoon characters.

But the biggest musical undertaking for Temple is its Christmas and Easter concerts that include the 150-member choir, 20-30-member orchestra and drama team. The Christmas concert attracted 14,000 visitors, while more than 10,000 saw the Glory of Easter program.

Scheduling is a big undertaking; in fact, hard work, according to Curtis. Everything from the performance to selling tickets and publicity is done at the church. Not quite a concert promoter on the scale of TicketMaster, it can get pretty hectic in the church office when hundreds of members line up after Sunday service to by Easter or Christmas tickets, he

With Camp, Becker and Card concerts, however, advance tickets ($10 reserved or $8 for groups of 10 or more) are also on sale at the Agape Booksellers stores in Canton, Center Line, Mount Clemens, Taylor and Ypsilanti, Family Bookstores in Dearborn, Novi and Sterling Heights, Crossroads Bookstore in Ann Arbor, Daystar Music in Pontiac and Discount Bible in Taylor. Tickets also are available at the door at $12 each.

Curtis credits Temple's strong move to reach out to the commu nity to the church's new pastor. He says the church has been "blessed with a pastor (Brad Powell) with a vision.'

And for now that vision includes more music programs with a spiritual sustenance.

Letter to my daughter, the new bride

THORESEN

You did it!!! You are now married to a wonderful young man. And I've been thinking so much about you and Dave and what your wedding and marriage means and the importance of stable family units in our society today. What words of wisdom could I possibly pass along to you as you face an ever-changing world so full of conflicting values and competing voices? What can I share with you that might help you weather some of the storms that every couple faces? How can I convey to you how important a healthy family life is and how it takes certain attitudes and committed work to build a partnership for life? Many of my thoughts focus on a phrase you'd probably squirm at. It may sound too religious. But our secular world today is often impoverished when it comes to describing some very real and basic human experiences. So I'm going to use this phrase, even though you may not be very comfortable with it, because this is the phrase that keeps coming to me. It is "the power to bless." It is a power we all possess and can use in remarkable ways.

That phrase surrounded me on one of the summer mornings as I finished doing the beading on your wedding dress. An old Aztec saving kept running through my mind: "We are lent to each other for such a little while." I love the perspective that it brings. It says that we are gifts to one another from a loving Creator. It says that we are walking and talking blessings to one another - not to be possessed, not to be changed but simply to be appreciated and enjoyed and loved and valued for the unique selves we are.

It calls forth gentleness in overlooking the foibles and minor irritations that all of us bring to relationships. It tells us to gratefully treasure who we are with, to bring forth health and healing and productivity, and to relish the time together. It also suggests that we find creative ways to continually bring blessings upon one another.

We surely experienced that sense of blessing during the preparation for your wedding, didn't we? People came forth and helped in so many ways. One Sunday, your aunts and paternal grandmother came and sewed beads and pearls on your wedding dress. Even your cousin Rob put on a few — which endeared him in a new way forever!

Dave's mother came over and we spent an afternoon sewing pearls and sequins on your gown as we shared stories of your childhoods and our wishes for your future. I included crystals from your Grandmother Rest's necklace,

'An old Aztec saying kept running through my mind: "We are lent to each other for such a little while."

knowing that she's very much a part of all of this, too. She had made my own wedding gown and created one of those many mother-daughter bonds that I so often took for granted. Sewing the pearls and beads on your dress rekindled some of those old ties and activities that seem to be passed from one generation to another. The power to bless became so real as friends came by. Bev with her twin 16-year-old daughters took turns and added beauty and love to your dress. Sally relished our ritual and she intentionally named a wish for you and David as she hand-stitched her blessings for you. These include: love, joy, peace, strength, hope, much happy laughter, listening hearts, good fortune, health, patience, humor, honesty, courage, discernment, unity, trust in one another, intelligent decision-making, sustained interest in each other, happiness and loving intimacy.

I hope you won't think that I am telling you to hang up your hiking boots and put away your plaid shirts and baseball caps. Roles are not the issue here. You've always had a mind of your own and would never allow yourself to fit into anyone's prescribed role. And I applaud you as a woman of integrity for that.

I'm not saying that you put on the role of domestic engineer, if that's not comfortable for you. What I want to convey to you is an attitude that can enhance any of the lifestyles and roles that you and Dave may choose. It's something that I experienced with your wedding - and something I've believed in for a long time. It's a gift that my parents gave to me, it's one that your father shares, and in many ways it's the best gift I can pass along to you. And that gift is available to each person. It is the power to bless. We have the most remarkable power in the world. And we can use it every day, like your relatives and friends have done, to convey well wishes for the around us. And what a positive difference that can make for the beautiful time you are lent to one another and for others who know spends more and more time in the field there is a much greater chance of encountering natural phenomena that are particularly interesting. It also affords the observer a chance to compare and contrast events from different areas and different animals.

Recently I had the opportunity to watch 30 dragonflies circling in an area the size of a large car. They circled back and forth at a very slow speed. If they flew much slower they would not have been able to stay aloft. Such a concentration of fiveinch long dragonflies was hard to miss and certainly attracted my attention. When I first saw them I did not understand why they were concentrated in such a small area. Then as I watched them I saw something light colored, backlit by the sun, rise into the air only to be grabbed by a dragonfly.

As I approached closer to get a better look, I saw more of these rising objects get plucked from the air. Upon closer examination in the midst of the circling dragonflies, it turned out that small, red colored ants developing wings were rising into the air. During this time of the year male and female ants develop wings for their courtship flights.

Ants with wings are not proficient at flying and as soon as one took flight it was grabbed by a dragonfly. There was no competition between the two combatants. It was like spitfires shooting down hot air balloons.

While standing among the dragonflies fluttering by, I could hear their wings beating and a couple times I saw two dragonflies collide as they tried to grab the same

The concentration of the ants attracted this group of dragonflies that are typically territorial. But since there was so much food for them, why spend time trying to chase others away.

This event reminded me of a similar situation I wrote about in August of 1986. Down the block from our house my family and I watched several migrating nighthawks concentrated at a neighbors's home. Ants with wings were emerging from the lawn and rising into the air. As they flew up, the low flying nighthawks grabbed them out of the air. They too were attracted

Livonia gallery tracks local winds of artistry

he's not an artist, only an art buff. She's not a headline seeker, only a doer. But to be an art buff and a doer is to be someone special. Laura Hardy runs Nelson's Gallery, a Livonia fine art and custom framing gallery.

She specializes in works by Michigan artists, including lithographs by Kathleen Chaney Fritz of Grand Rapids and Rick Burger of Rochester. Both capture water scenes in watercolor.

But works by local artists dominate her small gallery at 16376 Middlebelt, tucked in Terrence Corners, between Five and Six Mile.

Gwen Dietrich, Diane Mitchell and Dan Collins of Canton, John Shannon of Wayne, Christine Wong, Jeannie Poulet, Ed Ferguson and Russ Bloomfield of Livonia, Roger Hardnock of Westland and Randy Lentz of Redford are just some of the Observerland artists whose images have graced the gallery.

"I added the fine art gallery four years ago, after meeting so many promising new artists," said Hardy, who joined the staff in 1987. "I not only wanted to help them gain exposure but also build a consignment base for the business.'

Sales climbing

Since 1990, Hardy has withstood stiff competition from higher-end galleries, a lagging economy and road construction on Middlebelt.

Thanks partly to a longer mailing list, more calendar listings and increased referrals, sales are starting to rise.

'They're up 15 percent compared to the same time last year," Hardy said. "Framing orders are way up and consignment sales are growing. It'll take a while to build back up but people seem to be willing to spend again on art. I've noticed a distinct change from the past 21/2 years.

Her livelihood's at stake so she's not about to sit back and wait for patrons to just walk in.

A believer in spurring opportunities, Hardy held a summer sale to move lithographs, serigraphs, posters, framed prints, even scrap matboard.

The Artist of the Month will resume in October with Carl Angevine, an award-winning surrealistic painter who teaches art at the Redford Senior Center. His acrylics feature sporting and structural themes

An art instructor in many community education programs, Angevine says he "hopes to renew public interest in many forms of fine art by teaching students how to enjoy art while developing their personal talent.

"His work is very introspective," says Observer arts writer Linda Ann Chomin. "You see a lot of different thoughts in it. He uses a lot of windows to give you insight into different subject matter.'

Art As Gift

Ever the improviser, Hardy plans to host another Art As Gift this fall. It'll be patterned after her 1992 multi-week celebration of the arts, which included art demonstrations in several media. She's also considering a winter children's art event.

Meanwhile, Hardy continues to offer a variety of artwork on consignment: landscapes, flowers and geisha girls by Livonia watercolorist Christine Wong; paperweights, glass vases and petroglyphadorned bowls by Livonia glass artist Joe Wisniewski; pet portraits, people and country scenes by Redford oil painter Laura Bird; European scenes and local landscapes by White Lake photographer by Mari Flynn.

There's even folding screen furniture by Robert Mekus of Redford. "Our in-house artist, Janel Agar, will custom design a piece of his wood furniture and give it to him to make if a client so chooses," Hardy said.

A Livonia painter, designer and airbrusher, Agar renders custom abstracts in oil, watercolor and acrylic. "She also paints in realism and surrealism," Hardy said. "She's pretty versatile in her

The Canton artist will bring her latest series of watercolors, "Value in Violets and other Whimsies, along with oils from "The Child and her Environment" series to the 22nd annual Artists and Craftsmen Show Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 11-12, at Central Middle School, Main and Church streets, Plymouth (See related story, Page 2D).

"I've always had a love affair with violets," said the Art Institute of Pittsburgh graduate. "If you're looking at violets, do you see yellow? Do you see green? I see yellow, green, blue and gray. When I go to paint them, my whole palette is filled with color."

Dillenbeck's initial series of paintings, begun nearly seven years ago, consists of impressionistic oils. "The Child and her Environment" focuses on daughters Kristen and Erin. Dillenbeck has pictured them riding carousels and browsing pumpkin patches.

Watercolors soon mesmerized her brush. She originally used a technique called glazing, where layers of color are applied separately. Light tones went down first followed by darks.

The sheer translucency of spontaneous watercolors won her over the minute she bought that violet. Until six months ago, Dillenbeck had felt unfocused. Her father's death nearly two years ago brought deep soul-searching to Dillenbeck realized she had spread herself too thin. As owner of D & M Art Studio in Plymouth, she has spent untold hours teaching art instead of making it. That simple living violet rekindled her enthusiasm for Plymouth Community Arts Council's 22nd annual Artists and Craftsmen Show, a primary fund-raiser, makes Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 11-12 an opportune time to do advance Christmas shopping while helping the arts.

Find that special gift for a family member or friend in the juried show at Central Middle School, Main and Church, Plymouth.

Held in conjunction with Plymouth Fall Festival, the show runs 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. General admission is $2; seniors and students, $1; and children younger than 12, free.

"It's our major fund-raiser for the arts council. As with every other arts organization, the proceeds will be used for operating funds," said Carolyn Simons, event co-chair with Chris Szary. Both are from Plymouth.

More than 100 exhibiters will offer oil, acrylic, watercolor, photography, jewelry, calligraphy, wood items, soft-sculpture animals and clothing.

Several exhibiters will provide demonstrations of their particular media. "It's very high-quality arts and crafts. We have about 25 new artists this year and the student booth is back," Simons said.

The student booth allows budding young artists and crafters to try their hand at entrepreneurship.

Three years ago, Dillenbeck founded the first summer art camps in the area. They continue to follow teaching philosophies she honed over the years.

Beyond all that, the key ingredient remains, "most of my drawing pencils don't have erasers.'

Working in pastels, Dietrich had a one-woman show, dubbed "Dogs & Dames," at Nelson's in 1991 and took part in last year's Art As Gift.

The support Hardy gives emerging artists via gallery exhibits is invaluable. At a small gallery like Nelson's, these artists can learn how a gallery is run and how shows are set up. "So there's a lot to be gained by individual artists on that level, artists who hope to step up to larger galleries," said

Dietrich, a graduate of Parsons School of Design in New York.

Showcasing local artists also is a good way to introduce them and their styles to the community.

From Dietrich's perspective, Hardy excels at matting, framing, showing and selling fine art. As Dietrich put it: "You can't ask for anyone better." Bob Sklar is assistant man-

Whatever you choose, take advantage of the photographic possibilities of people at work. Go to work on it!

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then his mailbox number, 1873. His fax number is 644-1314.

On the job: Suwon, Korea, is where Monte Nagler came upon this fan maker. A telephoto lens enabled Nagler to keep his distance yet "move in close" for a photograph showing not only the work itself but the concentration of the worker.

BIRMINGHAM BLOOMFIELD ART

ASSOCIATION

To Sept. 18 — The First International Colored Pencil Exhibition, the first juried show worldwide dedicated exclusively to the colored pencil medium. Ellen Sharp, curator of graphic arts for the Detroit Institute of Arts since 1966, is juror. Hours: 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday, 1516 S. Cranbrook Road, Birmingham, 644-

Colored pencil makes artistic point

BY MARY KLEMIC STAFF WRITER

Artists working exclusively in colored pencil really get the lead out.

Colored pencil's versatility equals or surpasses that of any other medium. It produces works with sharp focus, vibrant hues and apparently smooth textures.

Mum sale nearing

Volunteers at Oakland University's Meadow Brook Estate Greenhouse are having their annual hardy mum sale 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10, and 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 11, at the greenhouse, on Adams on the OU grounds in Rochester Hills.

For more information, call the greenhouse at 370-4510.

The mums will be $3 or four for $10. All proceeds will go to the preservation and restoration of the historic greenhouse.

The unusual greenhouse, built in 1914 by automobile pioneer John Dodge, has seven rooms with a basement under three rooms and features a goldfish pond. It is open to visitors for a $1 donation 9 a.m. to noon Monday-Thursday, or to groups by appointment.

in Birmingham, invites viewers to "witness the power of the pencil." Sponsored by the Colored Pencil Society of America, it is the first juried show worldwide dedicated solely to the colored pencil medium.

Colored pencil is an underrated medium, said CPSA founder Vera Curnow of Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

"That's why we created the society," she said. "Everyone tends to associate (colored pencil) with children's art. They see it as a . . tool to get to an end product."
The CPSA, started in Michigan, is 21/2 years old and has 1,000 members from 11 countries. The BBAA exhibit was juried by Ellen Sharp, curator of graphic arts for the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Works in the show are paintings, not drawings, Curnow emphasizes. Artists mix and blend the pencils to achieve various colors. Viewers are often startled by the works and think the paintings are done in a medium other than pencil. "They just can't believe it's really pencil."

The pencil works at the BBAA have the richness of oil painting and the clarity of photography. Still lifes, abstracts, portraits and realistic and fantasy settings are among the subject matter.

Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday-Saturday. Call 644-0866.

Insurance provided to home sellers

Hall & Hunter Realtors of Birmingham is offering an expanded package of services, including a free liability insurance policy for sellers who list their houses with Every seller listing their home with us will now be offered a membership in Homeowners Association of America," said Dennis Wolf, Hall & Hunter president.

"The homeowner receives free errors and omissions insurance coverage to relieve the risk of after-sale problems, specifically lawsuits," he said.

The policy, purchased by Hall & Hunter for sellers, carries a $5,000 deductible and provides up to $25,000 of coverage relating to problems that arise during or immediately after the selling trans-

Disputes covered by the policy would relate to knowledge and disclosure of defects.

"If they're latent, the seller had no idea, they would be totally covered up to the limits," said Jerry McKeon, sales manager and partner at the realty firm. "It would cover legal representation, court costs and settlement costs.

Hall & Hunter's package also includes a 12-minute video containing helpful hints on preparing the home for sale and a booklet, "Moving on, Your Guide to Changing Homes" that answers frequently asked questions about the selling process.

"We just figured it was a tool to hopefully get more people looking McKeon said. "It's something other companies aren't offering."

Sellers who list with Hall & Hunter also are advised to purchase a separate home warranty policy to insure against mechanical breakdowns during ownership changes, McKeon said.

It makes the house more mar-

"I can recall numerous times in my 16-year career where a seller replaced a hot water heater, furnace or major appliances while their home was on the market," McKeon said.

Both Wolf and McKeon believe that errors and omissions insurance and home warranty policies are timely coverage with the new seller's disclosure law taking effect in January.

"The Realtors pushed hard for this law because they believe it will protect all parties involved in a real estate transaction including the seller," McKeon said. "However, some suggest there may be greater exposure to the seller, which we don't believe is true.

"If the seller completes the disclosure honestly and completely, and the buyer acknowledges receipt of this disclosure, the seller should have less problems than

"However, if a problem should arise, then the seller can enjoy the comfort of this errors and omissions coverage and the buyer can move into the home without the worry of having to replace or repair major mechanical items," McKeon said.

Rights Act as it relates to the licensing and disclosure requirements. Based on a memorandum issued by the Michigan Department of Civil Rights, a sales person should not offer any information regarding the presence of group homes whether licensed or unlicensed.

The presence of a group home, according the Civil Rights Department, should not be the subject of comment at any point in the advertising or sales process. If the salesperson is asked if there are any group homes on the block or in the neighborhood, tell them to check with the local building code enforcement official or DSS licensing official.

If an inquiry about group homes is for a clear purpose, consistent with the law, it would be difficult to establish discrimination. If, for example, an inquiry was clearly made to establish availability of a group home for a family member, that would be permissible.

I am a real estate broker who presented an offer to a listing broker on behalf of the purchaser. The offer was countered by the seller with language contained in the offer to the effect that the seller gives the agent/broker three days to obtain written counter. Prior to receiving the written acceptance of the counteroffer, a better offer was presented to the seller and the seller withdrew the counteroffer prior to the three-day period. Do I have any claim for compensation because of wrongful withdrawl of the counter offer?

The legal issues that you have raised are basically: Can the seller withdraw the offer and is the broker entitled to a commission if the offer is properly withdrawn.

A recent Michigan Court of Appeals decision similar to yours held that the seller is entitled to revoke the offer despite the language of the sales agreement. The agreement was nothing more than a utilateral offer granting the purchaser three days to secure acceptance. Such an offer would become binding only upon the purchaser's securing of a written acceptance upon the terms provided by the seller, or, the purchaser paying some consideration for the three-day time period.

This event did not occur prior to revocation and the counter offer was properly revoca-

Also, you probably won't be entitled to a commission without a special agreement.

Careful application saves garage floor

(AP) - Questions by homeowners, answers by Popular Mechanics magazine:

My cement slab garage floor is starting to wear and show rough spots. Is there a way I can apply a topping layer to renew the surface?

You can top a slab, but you must be careful about getting the topping material too thin. Topping over hardened concrete should not be less than two inches thick at any point.

To top a concrete slab, clean the surface with muriatic acid or concrete cleaner (available in point and hardware stores). To then the surface of any slab has a shiny, smooth surface. a wire brush and fullngth muriatic acid to do this. ext, mix a slurry of cement, and and water and scrub this onto the surface with a throwaway scrub brush. Apply the concrete topping mix on top of the slurry before the slurry starts to dry.

We are repainting our texared ceiling and we're having a difficult time trying to get an even finish. Are there special considerations to be aware of when doing this type of job?

Yes, there are. Here is some background on this type of ceiling and tips to help you with your job: Spray-textured ceilings became the most popular ceiling finish about 30 years ago. Early texture materials were odd blends of taping compounds, perlite or vermiculite and whiteners, all mixed with water. The resulting texture finish was a super-porous material that absorbs paint unevenly.

All spray texture finishes are. even today, mill mixes, meaning they are a mixture of powder ingredients that must be mixed with water. Painting such finishes is about equal to painting a sponge: there is heavy and unequal paint suction.

To overcome this paint suction you must apply a good sealer. Use an alkyd (oil) sealer and apply it with a long-nap roller.

■ The easiest way to seal — or to paint - a ceiling is to cover the entire floor with a canvas cloth or tarp. Buy a roller and extension handle to apply the sealer or paint.

Apply a generous coat of sealer, and check the ceiling from several angles. Sighting from various angles will help you detect any missed spots or "holidays" in your sealer or finish coats.

For the past six to eight months there has been an odor of stagnant water from our washing machine. Could the fault lie in the filter?

Since your clothes apparently smell fresh and clean and you only notice the odor around the washer, we think there's something wrong with the drain, not the filtering system.

Check to see if your drain line is properly fitted with a trap in the wall, under the floor or wherever it leaves the house. Also, check for a broken or leaking drain line under the floor or in the wall. You should also look for any leaks or drips from the drain lines under the machine.

A simple way to trap a drain line and to block foul-smelling sewer and water gases is to replace your current machine hose with a longer one. Let the drain hose loop down almost to the floor in back of the machine, then up and out to the drain pipe or tub. This deep looping bend puts a natural trap in the drain line which holds a "plug" of water and prevents stagnant gases from venting back into the room.

I have a Whirlpool refrigerator model EET171EKDR4. The problem is a high-pitched scream or whistle whenever the unit runs. It sounds like a slipping belt or a dry bearing. What is causing the noise?

The noise is probably coming from the evaporator or condenser fan motor. If the sound is in the area of the compressor, underneath the refrigerator, the condenser fan motor may be the culprit. If the noise is coming from inside the refrigerator, look for a bad evaporator fan motor.

The whistle is usually caused by a motor that has either dry or worn bearings.

Going underground with wood

■ While concrete basements still rule the roost, wood has a vocal contingent of backers lauding its strengths.

BY CHRIS McCosky STAFF WRITER

Jim Nawrot has nothing to gain by pushing the virtues of wood basements and foundations. Although the Livonian has built 180 of them in the past, he no longer makes his living as ground has no ill effect on them."

He teaches people how to build now. Nawrot is the person to answer this question: Can you think of anything bad about wood basements? Is there anything that makes them dangerous, unsafe or otherwise unattractive to perspective house builders?

"No," Nawrot said after several moments of reflection.

"Completely. Just like any room in the house. There is no dampness or mustiness like you get in concrete

Are they safe and strong?

"Yes. They are completely engineered and designed, and there is no settling or racking with wood foundation." tions. And I truly believe the wood is stronger because it's pliable and has movement. Experts say they will last at least 120 years."

Are they more expensive to build?

"No, they are easier and quicker to build and the cost is about the same. Studies have shown that houses with wood foundations cost about 35 percent less in heating costs than the concrete ones. And with concrete, you have to figure about an extra $2,000-$4,000 to prepare it for finishing. Wood basements are ready to finish."

Buying the right energy-efficient windows for your own particular needs goes beyond considering just the R value of the glazing system. The window frames also should play an important role in the buying decision, as should the location of the house and where in the house the new windows will be installed.

For example, a window on the north side of a house in a cold climate should be designed to save energy. Those on the south side should save energy and allow as much solar energy as possible to pass through. Here are some points to consider when shopping for new windows:

■ Energy ratings. Most manufacturers provide both the center-of-glass and the entire window energy ratings. Obviously, the entire window R value is a better indicator of performance. Don't be confused if you see a U value alongside the familiar R rating. They are actually different sides of the same coin. R values measure resistance to heat transfer - the higher the better. U values measure heat transfer - the lower the better. To keep everything straight, convert U values to R values by dividing the U value into 1.

Shading coefficient. This rating tells how much solar energy a window captures. A single pane of glass has a shading coefficient of 1. A blocked window would be rated at 0. So, if reducing cooling costs is important, pick a window that has a low shading coefficient. Tinted windows are good choices, but low-e technology designed for warm climates can also produce low shading coefficients while providing clear glass.

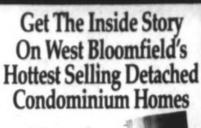

■ Handling light. Besides letting heat energy pass through, windows also allow light into our homes. Now all windows do this equally.

Dearheart wishes you were there

The Dearheart's arched, multipaned windows over the door make for a dramatic entrance, framed by a high-gabled entry portico and flanked by sidelights.

Kitchen, family room utilities and a bathroom are clustered at the left end of the house, next to the three-car garage. Formal spaces are at center, and sleepi areas are to the far right. The master suite, an open loft, and an office (or sixth and seventh bedrooms) are upstairs.

A bridge at the top of the stairs overlooks the living room and the foyer. Both the living room and family room have a fireplace, woodbox and wide hearth.

Cupboard and counter space in the sunny, spacious kitchen is augmented by a long eating bar and a work island with cooktop. French doors in the family room open onto a deck that spans the back of the house. Two compartmentalized bathrooms serve the four bedrooms downstairs.

Why the big secret?

Getting carpenters to learn this craft has been tough, he said. But there's more to it than that. The concrete industry has lobbied against them, and the wood industry has done almost nothing to promote and market them, he said.

"The key is education," Nawrot said. "Once people hear about these foundations, once they see them and see how wonderful they are, they don't want anything else. They'll never go back to concrete foundations.

The No. 1 national source on wood foundations lives in Rochester. Warren Koch, who owns Permanent Wood Foundations Systems and has been involved with wood treatments for more than 40 years, built the first wood basement in Michigan in 1973 and has been designing them across the country ever since.

"That first one was in Calhoun County on a piece of land between lake and a swamp," he said.

'And that house is still dry."

Koch admits that he could talk for a month straight about all that goes into the designing of wood foundations and never re-peat himself. But he'll break it down into a few key concerns:

Why doesn't it rot? The biggest misconception is that water destroys wood. "That's an old wives' tale," Koch said. "You need three factors to destroy wood: water, air and temperatures above 40 degrees. You could submerge a stud in water and leave it for 1,000 years, pull it out and still use it. It would be water-logged, but it would still hold up. The reason: no air."

Fungi and insects are what eat at and destroy wood. For them to exist, fungi and insects need water, air and temperatures higher than 40 degrees. The design of wood foundations eliminates all the conditions necessary for wood to be destroyed.

The foundation is built onto eight inches of pea gravel and a sump that provides an unob-structed drainage system. There is no hydrostatic pressure on the walls or floor, thus there is no liquid water.

The system consists of structurally engineered, treated stud and plywood walls fastened with stainless steel nails, caulked at the seams and wrapped with a plastic vapor barrier. Koch also uses metal framing straps to bolt the foundation to the rest of the house, making it better protected against wind than traditional poured foundations.

With the studs already in place on the inside, finishing chores like wiring, plumbing, insulating and dry-walling are much easier.

Only three kinds of wood can be treated for foundations, Koch

The Quaint, Country,

Community of WIXOM

said: Southern yellow pine (used most because it is the strongest), Ponderosa pine and red pine.

In Michigan, the wood is treat-ed with a water-soluable chemical CCA (chromated copper arsenate), which is forced into the wood at high pressure. Other areas of the country can also treat wood with either ammonical copper ar-senate or zinc ammonical copper

"As long as that chemical is there, the wood cannot rot," Koch said. "It preserves it."

Is it safe?

The chemically treated wood brings out two other concerns: Is it flammable? Is it toxic?

The treated wood, Koch said, is actually harder to burn than ordinary wood. Plus, it is backed by a non-combustible material: the

"Wood foundations carry the same insurance rates as poured concrete foundations," Koch said. 'It is very difficult to burn.'

As for being toxic, Koch laughs. "These foundations are completely environmentally safe," he said. "There are no off-gases, no odors, no arsenic. If you were to eat a complete shell-fish dinner, you would take in more arsenic than if were to eat a two-by-six board 12-feet long. You might die of splinters, but not arsenic.

For more information about wood foundations, contact Koch (651-4207) at 3890 Ellamae Road, Oakland 48363; or Nawrot (462-0944) at 16380 Aldrich Court, Livonia, 48154.
