Temple Baptist sues township

Temple Baptist Church has filed suit against Plymouth Township over its denial of plans to construct a new church near Ridge and North Territorial roads. The church contends the township is engaging in religious discrimination.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Temple Baptist Church is suing Plymouth Township and the township planning commission over the rejection last month of their plans to build a church just southwest of Ridge and North Territorial roads.

"We're following the apostle Paul's example in appealing to Caesar," said church pastor Brad Powell.

Powell said the suit was filed Wednesday in Wayne County Circuit Court.

"The flat simple truth is they're trying to regulate the way people should worship in Plymouth Township," Powell said.

In denying the request to build the church, the planning commission maintained it would be so large as to cause traffic problems for nearby residents and therefore not suited to the area. The church maintains that denying a church based on size is religious discrimination.

The church planned by Temple Baptist would hold 4,000. Now in Redford, Temple Baptist is known for scheduling major programs during the holidays and Christian concerts during the year.

"Plymouth Township only wants churches where 200-300 people can worship at a time," Powell maintained. "Boy, if that's not trying to withhold our freedom to worship in this land I don't know what is," he said.

"There's absolutely no land use issue we didn't meet, the Constitution offers us the freedom to worship as we

By 11 a.m. on Saturday morning, Shon Dwyer and her nephew Zachary, 5, were flopped down on a blanket in the middle of Kellogg Park. For Dwyer of Plymouth, it was just a quick break in what promised to be a long day of fun and excitement at the city's annual Fall Festival. Even the weather, at a comfortable 70 degrees without a cloud in the sky, was cooperating.

"We started with the pancake breakfast and then went on to the pet show. We're just planning our next move," said Dwyer, recapping the morning's events while watching her husband play in the park with nephew Nicholas, 2.

The Plymouth Kiwanis Club pancake and sausage breakfast and the annual Optimist Club pet show were only two of the day's scheduled events.

Rehab costs high for Highland building

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Action Distributing, which is talking with trustees of the former Highland Appliance facility about buying the building, would have to spend more than $1 million to make it usable, company spokesmen told city commissioners on Monday.

Action president Tom Celani said that besides facility and landscaping improvements, asbestos and underground diesel fuel tanks must be removed before the company can occupy the site.

"There have been some very surprising things that have popped up," Celani said, in examining the site. He said underground fuel tanks on the site date back to when Western Electric, which built the facility in the 1950s, had a light manufacturing plant there.

"There's no way we'll move into the building unless it's 100 percent clean," Celani said, adding lending institutions demand that a site not be contaminated.

He appeared before city commissioners Monday because the beer distributing company is asking the city to create a tax abatement district for the site. Creation of the tax abatement district would allow Action to seek a 50 percent tax abatement for 12 years on taxes on equipment and improvements to the site.

Commissioner John Vos said he recently toured the former Highland facility, and agreed that extensive renovation was needed. "They don't have any problem meeting that test of obsolescence," Vos said.

But Commissioner Dennis Shrewsbury said that while he didn't doubt Action's contention that significant improvements are needed to make the facility usable, "I would like to make that decision based on something hard and fast."

Businesses given incentives to improve buildings

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Downtown business owners are getting an incentive to improve the look of their building facades.

The incentive is a Facade Improvement Program recently adopted by the Plymouth Downtown Development Authority.

DDA officials say that if businesses get behind the program, improvements will enhance the downtown's image and appeal.

The incentives for downtown business owners include low interest loans offered by three local banks: First of America, the National Bank of Detroit, and Commerce Bank.

The DDA will pay up to half the cost of design renderings," said Steve Guile, DDA director. The DDA provides a list of approved designers who can do the drawings, to interested business owners.

Bank loans are limited to $20,000 with a floating prime interest rate for five years. To become eligible, a business must have the renovation design approved by the DDA and city Historic District Committee. The loans are approved by banks or other financial institutions using the usual credit checks.

City Manager Steve Walters, in the early '80s as Northville city manager, saw positive effects from a facade improvement program there. "We probably had 10 or 15 projects. It certainly upgraded the property and made it more attractive for tenants," Walters said.

"Once you got four or five of these property fronts upgraded, there was a good snowball effect over time," Walters said.

"The first thing a potential customer is presented with, before they see the products or services of any business, is the exterior visual image of the building," Guile said. "This is especially true of downtown retailers, whose businesses aren't hidden in a mall setting."

"Customers receive an image of what is inside by what is outside. This image is the result of signs, paint colors, awnings and other exterior elements," Guile said.

The program is timed to coincide with the start of street and sidewalk renovation downtown, beginning in the spring. Because streets and sidewalks in front of a downtown business are being torn up anyway, it's a good time to do facade improvements, according to the DDA.

"When the streetscape construction begins, these type of adjustments can be made easier and cheaper," Guile said.

Applications for the program are available at the DDA office in Plymouth city hall.

Pulitzer Prize winner to sign books in Plymouth

Come and meet former Plymouth resident and Pulitzer Prize winner Joseph B. White, author of "Comeback: The Fall and Rise of the American Automobile Industry." 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 18 at the Little Professor on the Park, 581 S. Main Street in Plymouth.

White is living in Belgium where he is news editor of the Wall Street Journal Europe. He was born in New York on July 7, 1938, and raised in the Catskills community of Gallicoon, N.Y. After graduating from Harvard in 1959, he took his first reporting job with the Vineyard Gazette in Edgartown, Mass. From 1982 to 1986 he covered government and growth issues as a reporter for the St. Petersburg Times in Florida. Later, White covered the Connecticut legislature for the Connecticut Law Tribune.

In 1987, White moved to the Wall Street Journal as a reporter in the Detroit bureau, where he became deputy bureau chief in 1990. During his years in Detroit, he focused on covering the upheaval at General Motors. In 1993, he shared the Pulitzer Prize for best reporting with bureau chief Paul Ingrassia for their coverage of GM's boardroom revolt in 1992. The two also won a Gerald Loeb Award for their coverage of GM.

Drawing on their experiences and insights from covering the car industry, White and Ingrassia co-authored "Comeback: The Fall and Rise of the American Automobile Industry," which will be published by Simon and Schuster on Sept. 28. The book is an anecdotal account of the American auto industry between 1983 and 1993 — an unprecedented period of upheaval in which the industry almost died and then revived itself.

Money stolen

Nearly $12,000 was stolen recently from a bank teller machine inside the Kroger supermarket at 44505 W. Ann Arbor Road.

Plymouth Township police are interviewing two suspects in the theft, one of them a store employee, police said.

The theft happened at about 12:15 a.m. A tray that normally holds cash inside the machine was found outside the supermarket, police said.

Original plans for the meeting to be at Plymouth Township Park were cancelled because the park closes at 8 p.m. Yard signs for several candidates will be available.

Dodge Ram van taken

A 1992 Dodge Ram van was reported stolen Tuesday morning from the Fox Hills used car lot at 111 Ann Arbor Road.

According to the report filed with township police, the van had been locked. It was discovered stolen at 9 a.m. Police have no suspects.

Karen Trueman and her 14-week old black Briard dog watched the stage intently during the Plymouth Optimist Pet Show, one of the many events held during the city's Fall Festival.

She and her dog, Jake, or "Je m'appelle Jake de Lindman," as he is formally known, arrived too late on Saturday morning to enter the show, but decided to stick around anyway.

Jake, the son of a world champion French sheepdog, is accustomed to attending pet shows, although perhaps of a different type. But that didn't bother either him or owner Trueman of Plymouth, an animal lover who tries not to miss any animal shows.

"This is fun for the kids and they are all so cute," said Trueman, who hopes to enter Jake in the contest next year. "The kids really have a good time."

And they were having a good time. On stage, children of all ages cradled pets in a variety of sizes and shapes and species. Long- and short-haired guinea pigs, black rats and mice mingled with peacocks, parakeets and parrots, all competing against each other in categories ranging from most colorful to most unusual.

Despite the exotic mix of animals, it was typical fare for the annual pet show, a favored event of both area children and adults, including 10-year-old Scott McEvilly of Canton. Scott entered his 3-month-old long-eared bunny Buster in the most unusual pet category.

"He's definitely very unusual. He chases me like a dog, and will dance with my hand. But right now he's kind of shy with everyone around," Scott said of the animal's reluctance to perform. But Buster didn't need to perform and the bunny walked away with a second-place award, making Scott a very happy pet owner.

There were other happy pet owners at the show, held between 9:30 and 11 a.m. in the bandshell at the corner of Penniman and Union.

Sarah Shumaker, 8, of Plymouth took a first place in the unusual pet contest with her green parrot, Kiwi, who spent most of the show resting comfortably on Sarah's shoulder.

For Sarah, the pet show is an annual family activity. Sarah's brother David, 11, entered his parakeet Cheerio in both the Smallest and Most Colorful categories, and also brought along his guinea pig, Sandy. Brother Andrew, 7, and his guinea pig, Taffy, took home a Most Colorful prize. And the whole family took home smiles including mother Cathy.

"This is our third year at the pet show. We love it. We are taking the pets home now and coming back to enjoy the festival without them," she said.

Fest from page 1A

Saturday's Fall Festival schedule had all the makings of a great day for kids and adults alike. Polish dancers, a juggling and ventriloquism show, a performance by the Plymouth Youth Chorale and a puppet show were just a sampling of the featured events.

Dwyer, a longtime festival-goer, was pleased with the variety of offerings and planned to attend as many as possible as she attempted to occupy her visiting nephews.

"We're going to do it all, this keeps them busy," she said.

Meanwhile, Nicholas was busy scheduling his own agenda while enjoying the sun. "I like the Velcro wall and the moon walk best of all. But the pancakes this morning were good, too," he said.

The pancakes were also a hit with Shawn Ruman of Canton. Shawn, 7, was attending the festival with his brother Kyle, 3, and parents John and Gail Ruman. Newcomers to Canton, the festival was making a good impression with the Ruman family, who planned to spend most of the day enjoying the activities and children's rides.

"This is our first trip to the festival and it's really a lot of fun," said Gail, a recent transplant to the area from New Jersey. "We plan to just hang out here for most of the day, get something to eat. There's a lot of good food here. We know we won't go hungry," she said, eyeing the food booths.

It was doubtful that any festival-goers would go hungry this year. Despite the mid-morning hours, the grills were fired up and the smell of yaki tori, stuffed cabbages and shishebob wafted through the air while hungry customers lined up.

Over at the Plymouth YMCA booth, Mike Reuter looked anxious as he waited for the arrival of the Italian sausage. Dressed in his full Indian regalia complete with feathered headdress, the Canton resident and member of the Indian Guides was ready to start dishing up the festival favorite, except for one small problem, the sausage hadn't arrived yet.

"This is my first time out, but I know they expected a good crowd. I'm sure it will be here any minute," he said, looking around.

A good crowd was indeed expected, and Friday evening's attendance numbers added to the high hopes of festival organizers and participants.

Wife killer could be out in 3 years

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Under an agreement worked out at his pretrial hearing Sept. 7, convicted murderer Leonard Tyburski could be freed from prison in three years.

Tyburski, now serving a 20- to 40-year sentence for the 1985 freezer murder of his wife, pleaded guilty at the pretrial before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Dalton Roberson.

Formerly of Canton, Tyburski was granted a new trial in a 4-3 Michigan Supreme Court ruling in July. The high court affirmed a 1992 state Court of Appeals ruling that Tyburski did not receive a fair trial because Detroit Recorder's Judge Richard Hathaway did not properly question potential jurors in light of the worldwide publicity about the case.

Tyburski, who was remanded into custody, will be re-sentenced Nov. 18 before Judge Roberson.

He pleaded guilty after learning that doing so could result in a lesser sentence.

Tyburski's attorney, Randall

Karfonta, was unavailable for comment.

Tyburski testified at his trial that he beat his wife's head against a basement beam and put her body into a freezer in September 1985 after an argument about an affair she had with their daughter's 18-year-old boyfriend.

The murder was discovered when the couple's 20-year-old daughter, Kelly, questioned her father's story that her mother took the freezer key when she abruptly walked out on the family. Nightmares about the freezer haunted the daughter and she finally opened it Jan. 2, 1989.

The Supreme Court ruled that the lower court "was put on notice of the high likelihood of media-induced bias, yet its manner of questioning appears to have focused on qualifying jurors, rather than on discerning bias. Its manner of limiting and conducting voir dire and its failure to ask probing questions was prejudicial to the defendant."

United Way leaders optimistic

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Community United Way officials are confident this year's fund-raising goal of $750,000 will be met.

"I'm completely confident we'll be able to get there," said Doug Wood, campaign chairman for 1994-95. "To be successful, you need a good team around you. I think we've got an extremely enthusiastic team and I'm encouraged."

Wood, a Plymouth Township resident, spoke at the Plymouth Community United Way kickoff/agency fair, held Wednesday, Sept. 7, at the Ford Motor Co.

Sheldon Road plant. Representatives of United Way-funded agencies attended, providing information about their programs and services.

The theme of this year's campaign is "With your help... the possibilities are endless." The Sept. 7 get-together had an automotive theme, complete with a collection of classic and antique cars on display on the auto plant grounds.

Fred Hill served as master of ceremonies for the evening. Rex Tubbs, Plymouth Community United Way president, was among the speakers. "We are lucky in Plymouth. Our United Way really works," Tubbs said.

"We have been raising more money every year, a lot more money," Tubbs said. "The need is great in the Plymouth community and yes, we are ready for the challenge."

The evening included presentation of proclamations honoring the Plymouth Community United Way from both Plymouth Mayor Pro Tem Ron Loiselle and Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy. Wood, materials manager for the Ford Motor Sheldon plant, introduced those businesses involved in the Pacesetter campaign.

"We have very little overhead, we have very little administrative fees," Wood said of the United Way.

He praised his campaign volunteers for their enthusiasm. "They're well-versed in what they do, experienced."

There's also a Loaned Executives program in which executives from such companies as Ford and Detroit Edison take time to work on the campaign. About 20 people are involved in that way in the Plymouth Community United Way campaign, Wood said.

"Again, it's done by volunteers," he said. "I'm encouraged."

The 1993-94 United Way goal, which was met, was $520,000.

Celani agreed to provide the commission with something in writing on repairs that are needed. Commissioners agreed to delay a vote on creating the tax abatement district until their next meeting, Sept. 19.

For Action to win the tax abatement for renovation, the commission must first create the district, then approve a request for tax abatement.

Celani said that renovations included removing several ceiling supports and reinforcing the ceiling to make up for the removal of posts.

To neighbors of the facility, Celani said 75 percent of the beer stocking the warehouse would be brought in by rail. He said trucks would operate at the facility between 5 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

Mayor Doug Miller said that in meeting with company officials, they raised the idea that they intend to be a good neighbor. Miller said that was welcome, as some past tenants of the building had been less cooperative with neighbors.

Celani said the company plans to re-landscape the site, and replace fencing in the front with wrought-iron fencing. "We want to make it look like a 90s building," he said.

The company also seeks to put an electric sign on top of the building facing the freeway with the time, temperature, messages on community events and the company's name.

Celani said that while Action plans to occupy most of the building, they would seek a tenant or tenants to occupy the rest.

wish. We feel very clearly our rights have been violated," Powell said.

Township residents had packed planning commission meetings and study sessions over the summer on the church plan. Several said the traffic generated by the church would be too much for roads to handle, and urged planning commissioners to reject the development.

Temple Baptist has offered to pay for nearby road improvements to help meet traffic congestion concerns.

Township attorney Tim Cronin was unavailable to comment Friday on the township's response to the suit.

Powell said that challenging the planning commission's decision "is not a personal issue we have with any individuals, this is not a move of anger."

"When they made the motion to deny, it was really an issue of religious discrimination, they stated the structure was not compatible with their definition of a church," Powell said.

Northville hosts annual Victorian Festival

Northville's sixth annual Victorian Festival will be Sept. 16-18.

The Victorian Festival, sponsored by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, celebrates the town's heritage. Northville, founded in the early 1800s, came of age during the Victorian period. The community retains much of the flavor of that period today. Historic homes and a renovated downtown welcome visitors and festival-goers.

The festival begins with a kickoff parade 6:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 16. For the next two days, the streets will be closed to automobile traffic as townspeople, artists and business owners turn back the clock and transform the community into a turn-of-the-century festival complete with period costumes, free horse and carriage rides, storytellers, medicine man shows, strolling musicians and more.

Visitors can enjoy shopping, old-fashioned games and food booths. Activities and events take place 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

An Art Market, sponsored by the Northville Arts Commission, features more than 50 fine artists.

Historic Mill Race Village, nestled between a town green and Mill Race Pond, will be open for tours during the festival. All festival events are free and open to the public except for Saturday evening's costume Victorian Ball and the Sunday afternoon Victorian Tea. Reservations for these events can be made by calling the Chamber of Commerce office, (810) 349-7640.

The festival has grown in popularity each year. More than 10,000 people attended last year's festival and the same turnout is expected this year.

County officials set code of conduct

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER

The new Wayne County ethics ordinance will "level the playing field," said commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, and provide a means for regular scrutiny of the purchasing process and vendors seeking county contracts.

Wayne County commissioners unanimously passed the ethics ordinance Aug. 18 after two months of discussion.

The County Commission approved 1,800 contracts last year, said Amann, who also represents Canton Township. Some 300-500 of the county's 4,800 employees — basically managers or those who have direct contact with purchasing — will be required to twice-yearly provide a list of names of immediate family members and their place of occupation within the previous year.

The ordinance is actually an amendment to the Ethics in Public Contracting ordinance already in existence, said Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-DeARBORN Heights, who also represents Redford Township.

The 22-page document, approved after 11 drafts, requires department heads to disclose names, occupations and place of employment of their immediate family — defined in this case as spouse, children, parents, sisters and brothers.

"I think it sends a positive message to the community," said Plawecki.

Mac likes it

"We supported the ordinance," said Mike Duggan, deputy county executive, who works for Executive Ed McNamara. "There was no formal method before (to disclose), and it got used politically." Now people will have the name lists to refer to, Duggan said.

The measure was introduced by Commissioner Susan Hubbard, D-DeARBORN. Plawecki and Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-LIVONIA, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township, were among the seven supporting commissioners at the time of introduction.

"We should have done it a long time ago," said Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Westland, who also represents Garden City. The ordinance will be in effect by Jan. 1, by which time the managers will have compiled name lists.

The county clerk will keep these names on file for three years. They will be available to the public.

The ordinance is "transaction-based" and mirrors the state ordinance on ethics, McCotter said. Perceived conflicts will be judged on a case-by-case basis, taking into account the actual impact and financial gain that would be derived, he said.

An ethics board, which will consider any infractions and make recommendations, is expected to be appointed by January. "It's always better to have a number of people to be objective and get a proper answer," Beard said.

Debarment from competing for county contracts for up to three years is one consequence for vendors found to have misrepresented their interests, along with termination of contract and recovered compensation. County employees face reprimand, suspension with or without pay, and termination.

"If you get debarred by one county, it kills you anywhere (else)," Amann said.

In the annual disclosure statement, a county employee who is a lawyer must also disclose any compensated appointment by a judge, court administrator, magistrate or clerk of the Detroit Recorder's Court to serve as legal counsel, advocate, conservator or public administrator for any party. This includes an individual, corporation, estate, trust, conservatorship, partnership or joint venture.

"If a county employee has received such an appointment within the previous 12 months, he or she shall also disclose and refrain from acting and voting upon individual budgetary matters concerning the appointing court and the matter shall require a two-thirds vote for adoption," the ordinance says.

Schoolcraft offers feast fundraiser

The Schoolcraft College Foundation presents a "feast of the season," with its third annual "Culinary Extravaganza" 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 18, in the College's Waterman Center on campus, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

Tickets are $40 per person, available by calling (313) 462-4417. Visa, MasterCard, Discover, and personal checks are accepted. All proceeds will fund culinary arts scholarships.

More than 80 of the finest restaurants and beverage corporations in the Detroit metropolitan area will participate.

A new silent wine auction and entertainment by "Signatures" and "Star Trek" will be featured this year.

Raffle prizes include: first prize, two tickets to anywhere in the continental United States on Northwest Airlines; second prize, two tickets on Northwest Airlines to Chicago with a three-night stay at the Chicago Marriott; third prize, a fur coat; and fourth prize, a diamond tennis bracelet. Prizes will be awarded at the event. Raffle tickets are three for $10, and can also be purchased by calling (313) 462-4417.

This year's honorary chairman is Joe Muer, co-chairs are Joyce Costanza of Station 885 in Plymouth and Joyce Green.

Here's the list of participating restaurants and bakeries.

Entries sought for scholarship competition

Entry materials are now available for the 54th Westinghouse Science Talent Search, a high school science scholarship competition.

All U.S. high school seniors are eligible to participate. To qualify, students must write a report on an independent research project in science, mathematics or engineering and submit it for judging.

Entries must be received by Science Service by Dec. 1.

Interested parties must request entry materials from Science Service at 1719 N Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036, or by phone at (202) 785-2255.

Westinghouse has been the sole sponsor of the competition since 1942.

To date, the corporation has awarded scholarships of nearly $3 million to more than 2,000 young scientists and recommended more than 15,000 semifinalists to colleges and universities.

Search candidates are judged by a board of eight scientists from a variety of disciplines.

Three-hundred semifinalists are selected from a field of nearly 2,000 entries. From this group, 40 finalists receive all-expense-paid trips to Washington, D.C., where they participate in final judging.

Final judging for the present competition takes place March 8-13, 1995.

During the final judging in Washington, the judges place primary emphasis on open-ended questions designed to elicit evidence of the students' scientific creativity.

Westinghouse awards a total of $205,000 in scholarships to the top 40 winners.

First prize is a $40,000 scholarship. The second-place winner receives a $30,000 scholarship, and the third-place scholarship is for $20,000. Three $15,000 and four $10,000 scholarships are also rewarded. The remaining 30 finalists each receive $1,000 scholarships.

To date in the history of the program, five finalists have gone on to win Nobel Prizes and two have won Fields Medals, the Nobel equivalent in mathematics.

Three have earned the National Medal of Science.

Nine Search alumni have won MacArthur Foundation Fellowships.

Officials trying to reduce fees for beautification

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Two Wayne County commissioners are trying to change the law so homeowners associations won't have to pay county fees for adding aesthetic appeal to their subdivisions.

A proposed ordinance submitted by commissioners Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, and Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, would stop the Department of Public Services from billing homeowners associations for reviewing plans for the planting of trees and shrubs and for the erection of signs in the right of way.

Amann, who also represents Canton Township, said he recently heard a complaint from Paul Helmstetter, president of the Glengarry II homeowners association, located in Canton Township. The public services department billed the association $807 for reviewing plans for planting of trees in the subdivision, Helmstetter said. "We felt this was improper for the county to charge homeowners associations like this. Eight hundred and seven dollars seems a little excessive."

Said Amann, "My attitude is that the taxpayers have already paid once for this service, and it's inappropriate to double dip them. My big concern is that there have been subdivisions (with the same problem) that have not bothered to call me."

Amann said he has heard similar complaints from the homeowners associations of the Holiday Park and Windsor Park subdivisions in Canton Township. McCotter, who also represents Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Northville Township, cited a similar situation in a subdivision of Northville Township, where residents want to put up wooden street signs.

"It is totally wrong charging residents for services they've already paid for by their taxes," said McCotter in a press release. "And we'll do everything we can to stop it."

Russ Gronevelt, the director of public services, said the fees charged to homeowners associations and others are based on a strict accounting of the costs involved.

Reviewing plans for tree planting might seem like a 10-minute job at first, but officials have to consider how the trees, when full grown, might affect visibility for drivers.

"It's more than reviewing plans," Gronevelt said, and usually involves a visit to the site.

Also, Gronevelt noted, if the public services department has to absorb the cost of reviewing plans submitted by homeowners associations, the money will come out of the funds used for road work. But we're not talking about a whole lot of money either. Homeowners association permits are "a very small fraction of the permits that our permit section would review in a year," Gronevelt said.

McCotter invites homeowners associations with questions or comments regarding the proposed ordinance to call him at (313) 462-6152.

Amann can be reached by calling 224-0944.

McNamara to explain, defend ballot proposal

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Observer-area city and township officials are joining forces with Downriver city and township officials to question county Executive Edward McNamara about a tax proposal he has placed on the Nov. 8 ballot.

The date, time and place of the public meeting with the Conference of Western Wayne, the Downriver Community Conference and McNamara has yet to be set. A Saturday in late September has been suggested.

The CWW, which includes Redford Township, Livonia, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township, wants more information on McNamara's plan to use a 1-mill, 20-year tax to create an environmental cleanup program and to support county parks.

If approved by voters, the tax would raise about $29 million a year and be distributed in the following manner each year.

- $4 million off the top for environmental cleanup.
- The remaining money would be divided in half.
- One half would be returned to each city and township from which it was taken to be used for parks.
- The other half would be put into the county parks budget, except for $1 million, which would be used for upkeep on Belle Isle.

Deputy county executive Michael Duggan estimates that Observer communities would receive the following amounts of money per year for parks spending if the proposal passes: Livonia $1.3 million, Westland $527,000, Canton Township $520,000, Plymouth Township $381,000, Redford Township $376,000, Garden City $185,000 and Plymouth $113,000.

Many officials at the CWW meeting Friday said they don't have an opinion on the ballot proposal yet.

"It's a little premature (to be) for or against it," said Wayne Mayor Ken Warfield, who is also running for county commissioner to represent Canton Township. Warfield added that his decision will be based on how many proposed contamination cleanup sites are in western Wayne County. Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack doesn't like the idea of taxpayers getting back less money than they pay. "It's like the federal government," he said. "You send money to someone way over there and get a little bit back."

Livonia Mayor Bob Bennett seemed to agree. "I don't want a mill that's going somewhere else," he said.

Symphony, opera team up for concert

The Livonia Symphony Orchestra and the Verdi Opera Theater of Michigan will team up on Sunday, Sept. 18, to present an Inaugural Concert Celebration in the new Italian-American Banquet Center on Five Mile Road, just east of I-275.

Featured at the 4 p.m. program "Favorite Opera Melodies" will be opera singers Irina Lekhtman (mezzo-soprano), Jack Morris (tenor), Dina Valle (baritone) and Valerie Yova (soprano). The LSO, under the direction of Francesco DiBlasi, will open the program with the Overture to the Barber of Seville. Many popular and classical excerpts from operas by Verdi, Puccini and Rossini will be heard. The program will conclude with a special arrangement of Italian songs and an audience sing-a-long.

Tickets to the 4 p.m. program and afterglow are $15 per person. A $25 patron ticket will also include name printed in the concert program.

The concert is sponsored by Alitalia Airlines and Mr. and Mrs.

Rehearsing: Portraying the famous quartet from Verdi's opera "Rigoletto" are (from left): Dino Valle as Rigoletto, Valerie Yova as Maddalana, Irina Lekhtmana as Gilda and Jack Morris as the Duke of Mantua. The singers are getting ready for the Sept. 18 concert at the Italian-American Club in Livonia. Accompanying the singers are the Livonia Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Francesco DiBlasi.

Antonio C. Rea at (313) 981-6565. The Italian-American Club is comprised of more than 600 families from throughout Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw and Livingston counties.

Nature's miscalculations can be amusing, amazing

NATURE TRAILS

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

One of my favorite Gary Larson cartoons is the one where a male deer is jumping over a log. He appears unconcerned about the log and oblivious to the limb overhead that he is about to hit with his antlers. It's funny to me because we never think of a graceful runner like a deer running into a tree, a limb, or even stepping into a hole. In fact, its amazing how deer and other animals can travel through dense brush and twigs with little difficulty. That is why when you get a chance to see a miscalculation, or surmise a miscalculation by an animal, it is so noteworthy. A friend of mine told me a funny story about a white-tailed deer he was watching. He was watching the deer, but the deer was watching him, too. Evidently the deer was uncertain about him because it did not immediately turn and run. Instead, it turned its head toward my friend to keep an eye on him, while it continued to walk forward. Evidently the deer was concentrating so much on my friend that it walked into a tree. My friend said the deer shook his head, regained his composure and then proceeded through the forest as though nothing had happened. That reminds me of a few circumstances in my life. In another situation, a patron of the Independence Oaks Nature Center brought in some photographs she had taken earlier this spring of two red-tailed hawks that had fallen to the ground. Each bird had its feet grasping the other's. One bird was upside down on the ground and the other bird was on an angle wedged between a tree and a fence. A very unstable arrangement for such a noble bird. The patron indicated that there was a noticeable size difference between the two birds. In birds of prey, like the red-tailed hawk, males are smaller than females. I suspect the pair were in the middle of their courtship flight and grabbed hold of each other's feet as many birds of prey do. When their feet are entangled they have little, if any, flight control. Typically, after falling through the air, before hitting the ground, the two birds release their hold and fly off to continue their courtship.

For some reason, these two birds could not, or did not, release their hold and they both fell to the ground. I can just imagine the first bird was thinking the second bird was going to let go, while the second bird thought the first one was going to let go. As a result, both birds ended up in a compromising position. What a way to start a "marriage." Most of the time when squirrels jump through the trees from branch to branch they land with extreme accuracy. They seem to know what twigs will hold their weight and how to adjust for the bending of twigs as they land. Even while swinging down and up on a tenuous twig, they seldom seem to lose their balance. But there are times when the confident squirrel sails through the air only far enough to grab hold with its front feet. Unceremoniously, the squirrel twists and grabs for a branch. Sometimes ending in an upside down position holding on for dear life. It may seem funny to watch this miscalculation, but it's even more amazing how well the animals recover from such mishaps. It shows their incredible skills and coordination that enable them to survive in the wild.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Plan for busy nights make it now, bake later

If I had a job jar, it would be brimming with things to do. I have a tendency to start a project, then finish it days, weeks and sometimes months later.

I am utterly amazed at what can be accomplished when I concentrate on the task at hand. Last week for example, even with the modern day convenience of a self-cleaning oven, I made time to thoroughly clean the stove top and oven.

It would have been easy to flick the switch and set the timer to do the dirty work. But after pulling the stove out from against the wall, and locating three wooden spoons, a thermometer and two attachments to my electric whisk, it was clear - the old workhorse needed more than a compensatory wipe down.

I lifted the top, removed reflector pans from under burners, and for the first time in two years, cleaned all the crud that fell into the bottom drawer. After making a fast jaunt over to the hardware store for oven cleaner, and a pair of rubber gloves, I scrubbed for two hours. Now I have a stove that looks as good as the day I bought it.

Yes, I know that I still need to vacuum the coils under the refrigerator, get the smelly potatoes out from underneath the sink and remove what's growing in one of my vegetable crispers. But for now, I will be happy with a clean stove.

The list goes on, from weeding the garden to reorganizing my pantry. I am totally awe of my mom, who to this day removes and dusts everything in her kitchen cabinets twice a year, whether they need it or not.

Headstart meals

Speaking of things to do. It really does pay to set aside an afternoon for cooking a batch of meals to enjoy this week, and to freeze for later. Life is complicated enough without having to worry about what you'll make for dinner tonight.

Yesterday, after opening the door to a lower kitchen cabinet, and having 18 pieces of Pyrex slide out, I thought it was time to locate some recipes, use up what's left in the pantry, and freezer it before the next major grocery shopping trip.

With school starting, fall and winter clothes to clean and unpack, and other fall chores that must be done, there just isn't enough time left on some days to cook dinner. Making something ahead of time that you can reheat with minimal fuss has graduated from the olden days when calorie-laden cooked sausage, egg and cheese casseroles (otherwise known as frittatas) were de rigeur.

Here are some ideas for good meals that the entire family will appreciate, and the chef will enjoy making.

For example, at my house, tonight's leftover mashed potatoes will be mixed with some finely chopped grilled vegetables, an egg or two, and a sprinkling of Mrs. Dash's seasoning for tomorrow night's potato pancakes.

Yesterday's meatballs were mashed and mixed with some cottage cheese, Parmesan cheese, chopped tomatoes, stuffed into a hollowed-out giant zucchini, and baked for today's lunch. Thank goodness for leftovers, but what is made up today can still taste as good tomorrow or even the day after with a little know how.

Rules to remember

First off, remember that one major rule that each restaurateur goes to bed with every night: keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold.

Anything that makes its way into a casserole dish for use at a later date should be refrigerated immediately. Germs and bacteria love to commingle in room-temperature foods.

Herbs have a tendency to overpower a dish that is made well in advance, especially after being frozen. Sauces, gravy, stuffing, and purees should be made as naturally as possible with the addition of herbs just before cooking for optimum results.

When refrigerating or freezing, take extra caution in covering the food to reduce contamination. Foods high in acid (tomatoes, lemon juice, and vinegar) should never be covered with plain foil as the caustic properties of the acid will eat away at the foil.

For best results, cover the food first with plastic wrap and then foil or freezer wrap. Be extra cautious of foil containers that you will be storing and serving food in as some will prove disastrous to any high-acid food.

Climb up to make healthy food choices

Scale the new food pyramid to make healthy choices from all of the food groups - breads, vegetables, fruits, dairy, protein and fats. For good health you need them all.

BY BARBARA WILSON
SPECIAL WRITER

The United States is finally catching up with most every other country in the world by throwing out the old "four basic food groups" when talking about diet and nutrition. Now, the pyramid is in with a whole new set of rules to make us healthier.

The Human Nutrition Information Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture has adopted the new Food Guide Pyramid as a means for measuring a better diet.

"As well-intentioned as the basic four was it created generations of fat Americans," said Jacquelyn Bowman Cutright, an educator in the area of world food issues, and author of a new cookbook utilizing the pyramid called "Break the Habit Cookbook." (Cross Border Productions, $16.95).

The pyramid groups foods differently and lists the daily serving requirements for an adult as: 6 to 11 servings of bread, pasta, cereal and rice; 2 to 5 servings of fruit and vegetables; and 2 to 3 servings each of protein and dairy products. Use fats, oils and sweets, which are listed in the small tip of the pyramid, sparingly.

"It may seem overwhelming when you think of 11 servings of something each day, but when you learn some recipes that incorporate the requirements, it's not that difficult," said Cutright, a resident of Hazel Park.

Cutright is familiar with the food pyramid because it is loosely employed by most other countries and she has discussed the plan, higher in breads and pastas than the original guidelines, with her classes.

The pyramid isn't designed to be a diet, but Cutright said if followed closely most people will naturally lose weight.

Dietitians have been telling Americans to eat well-balanced meals and the weight will come off without limiting your menu.

"I lost weight this way without even trying," Cutright said. "And the meals are filling and good."

As a busy mom, Cutright said she uses the one-dish meals featured in her cookbook frequently. Her family enjoys them and they are easy to prepare. Many recipes can be prepared in 30 minutes or less.

"There are real advantages to us becoming cooks again," Cutright said. "It is

Mom's meals pretty to look at, good to eat

BY SANDRA DALKA-PRYSKY
SPECIAL WRITER

Even a busy schedule doesn't keep Jo Ann Marsh of Southfield from making her family a "good tasting and good looking" supper.

A fine arts teacher for Bloomfield Hills' West Hills Middle School, Marsh believes that presentation is just as important as taste when it comes to serving food. "Not only does the food have to look and be appetizing, but it should be served on a table that has been attractively set."

Her husband, Tom, Labor Relations Director for the City of Southfield, and sons, Matthew Rooks, 16 and Douglas Marsh, 13, have come to appreciate the "little touches" that Marsh adds to the table. They include either placemats or a table cloth, cloth napkins, and always, fresh flowers, sometimes in favorite containers handed down by family members. "When I use these, we usually have a family history discussion," Marsh said.

In addition to pleasing the eye, Marsh said she tries to make meals that are pleasing to the palate. "And they have to be fast and easy, because I don't have a lot of time to spend in the kitchen," said Marsh, who is also the adviser for the school's yearbook staff and art club, a calligrapher, and party decor consultant. She's also finds time to support her sons in their various activities, and to visit her 94-year-old Aunt Bea.

"I like to make casseroles and one-pot meals, especially in Crock Pots," she said. "No matter what I make, I usually have to double the recipe to meet the appetite demands of two teenage boys."

One of the family's favorite suppers is Crab and Rice Primavera.

"I like this recipe because it's made in one pot on top of the stove. Also, it's fast and easy," said

Marsh. And, according to the men in her life, it is really good.

No matter what the main course is, she always adds a green salad with lots of vegetables and rolls or bread. She combines iceberg and romaine lettuce because her family likes the different textures and flavors.

Dessert usually doesn't immediately follow the meal but is served later in the evening. Unless it's Buried Treasures, which is a favorite treat that can't wait.

Marsh often skips dessert. Tom usually chooses fresh fruit, and the boys regularly have ice cream and chocolate chip cookies, which are freshly baked by Doug from a commercial mix.

"While food and presentation is important to us, our most favorite supper is when we're all together as a family," said Marsh. "While we might not be able to accomplish this during the week - especially with everybody's busy schedules - we always try to have meals together on the weekends."

Veggie pizza: Deep-Dish Vegetable Pizza makes a nutritious and very filling meal.

Veggie pizza good 2 ways

Pizza is one of the best-loved foods in America and it can be one of the most nutritious. A single, modest serving of pizza provides at least 26 percent of the daily recommended intake of protein, 28 percent of the calcium, 10-22 percent of B vitamins, and 15 percent of vitamin A.

Although some commercial pizzas get up to 32 percent of calories from fat, you can make wholesome, delicious pizzas at home using fresh, lower fat ingredients. It's as easy as pie.

If you have the time and inclination, you can make a whole-wheat pizza crust, but frozen pizza dough and precooked shells like bobolis are available in most stores. You can also use plain bagels, pita pocket bread, English muffins, French bread, Scandinavian flatbreads or even matzohs as a foundation. The real key to nutritious pizza is picking the right toppings.

Take a low-fat approach to cheese, using part-skim mozzarella or other reduced-fat cheeses. Or, you can skip the cheese altogether and brush your pizza shell with a little olive oil before adding vegetable toppings.

Almost any vegetable is delicious on pizza. Make a ratatouille pizza with eggplant, bell pepper, garlic, tomatoes and Italian herbs. Or, sample a Mexican pizza with corn and mild green chilies (with salsa and a bit of shredded Monterey Jack cheese). For a gourmet pizza, top with asparagus, marinated artichoke hearts, red pepper, tomato sauce and a sprinkling of crumbled blue cheese.

Meat adds a lot of fat to pizza, so lighten up on the traditional pepperoni and Italian sausage. Instead, use chicken, turkey or lean ground beef. Shrimp also makes a delicious low-fat pizza topping.

Deep-Dish Vegetable Pizza, a recipe from the American Institute for Cancer Research, makes a nutritious and very filling meal.

DEEP-DISH VEGETABLE PIZZA

Pizza dough for one 18-inch pizza

- 1 teaspoon vegetable oil
- 1 cup tomato sauce
- 1 teaspoon garlic, finely chopped
- 1 teaspoon oregano
- 1 teaspoon basil
- 1 teaspoon olive oil
- 3 small onions, sliced
- 1 cup mushrooms, sliced
- Salt and pepper to taste

- 1 pound broccoli, chopped into 1-inch pieces
- 1/2 pound part-skim, shredded mozzarella cheese

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Divide the pizza dough in half and roll out to two 9-inch circles that are 1/4-inch thick. Lightly brush two pie pans or glass pie dishes with vegetable oil, and place dough rounds in them.

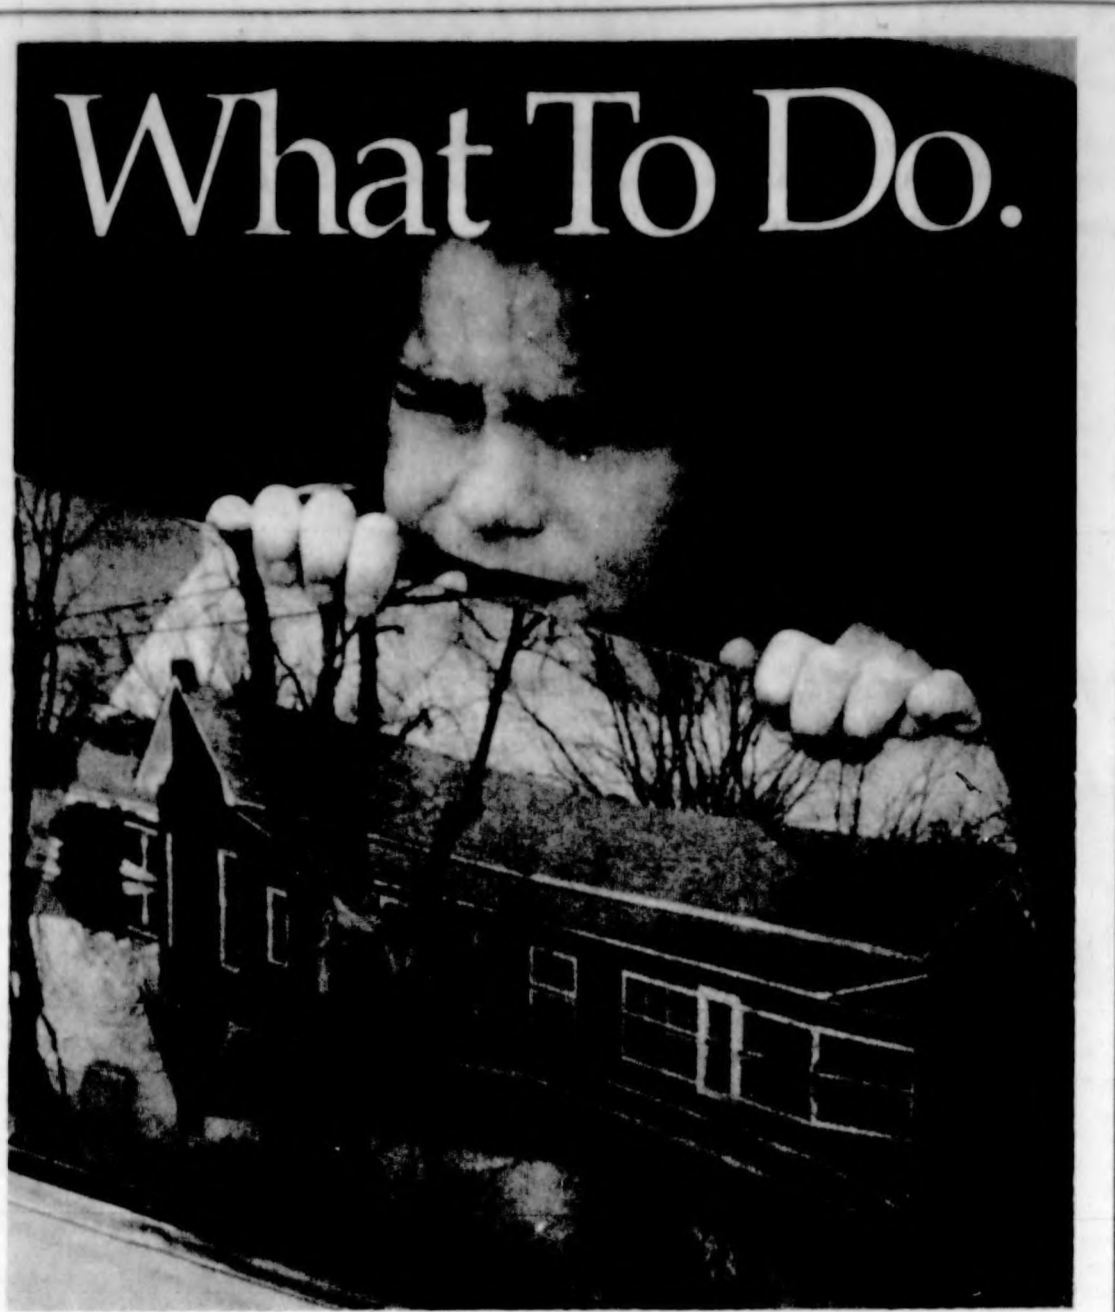

In a small bowl, mix together the tomato sauce, garlic, oregano and basil.

In a skillet, heat the olive oil over medium heat; add the onions and cook over medium to low heat, stirring until tender, 5 to 10 minutes. Add the mushrooms and brown over medium heat, stirring until the liquid evaporates.

Steam the broccoli over boiling water for 5 minutes until tender yet still slightly crisp, then drain and run cold water over it. Drain again and set aside.

Spread the tomato mixture over the dough, cover with the broccoli, then with the mushroom and onion mixture. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake for 30 to 40 minutes or until the crust is browned and the top is bubbly.

One quarter of each pizza contains 235 calories and 7 grams of fat.

Cuffs and collars soften up styles

Pretty. Graceful. Feminine. Soft. These are adjectives that have been missing for so long in the fashion world. The new glamour is not about crinolines or skin-tight skirts or Marilyn Monroe's sex kitten appeal. Rather, it is about softening up simple silhouettes.

It's about rich browns, not harsh blacks. It's about lush velvets and downy mohair. It's about A-line shapes and curvy jackets.

Just when you thought your daughter would never wear anything but faded jeans, she opts for a streamlined jumper or a bias-cut dress. The look is unadorned and sophisticated, but the textures and the lines are pretty and feminine.

Add an accessory

The real beauty of the new chic, polished suits and dresses is their ability to be enhanced by wonderful accessories. You embellish your outfit according to your taste in scarves and shawls. Wrap and layer to your heart's content. The selection is endless, from chenille mufflers to faux fur stoles to feather boas.

At a recent fashion show, Hudson's models added marabou collars, cuffs and stoles to tailored business suits. Bright fuchsia and purple capes revved up classic day dresses, with wool plaid scarves. Fringed shawls swept over leggings and trousers. Patricia Underwood designs her fall/winter hat and scarf collection in a layer of colors and innovative textures. Shades of burgundy, heather and chocolate color her malleable hats in cashmere, chenille, mohair and faux fur. Knitwear, scarves and a gossamer shawl complement the hats. Underwood's distinctive accessories will be presented at a trunk show on October 21 and 22 at Scott

Gregory in Applegate Square, Southfield were knotted around cowl-necked sweaters over leggings and trousers.

Caped crusaders

At Robert Mann Furs, also in Applegate Square, the exquisite scarves could dress your piano or a sofa as gracefully as they drape your body. A flocked black velvet on chiffon adds elegance to the simplest slip dress ($300), while a fringed black and taupe design in the same fabrication takes an unadorned jacket uptown ($180). A chenille oblong scarf in muted coppers, emeralds and sapphire, glistens with jet beads. Put on the Ritz in a cashmere cape-style one-button jacket with nutria collar and cuffs ($960).

These are but a few of the accessories that Robert Mann displays to enhance his knitwear, wool coats, shearlings and furs. Look for cashmere scarves ($120), Italian wool capes ($215) and merino wool shawls ($245). To change the entire look of an outfit, try adding a giant square wool challis scarf scattered with autumn leaves and flowers.

These gorgeous works-of-art by Saldarini are available at Hersh's on The Boardwalk in West Bloomfield ($180-$250). Adrienne Landau's black silk velvet cape with lace fringe will grab your attention at Nelman Marcus, the Somerset Collection, Troy ($875). Its allure is not limited to evening wear. It's stunning with tailored herringbone pants and a fitted jacket. More capes from Malo — they're heathered cashmere in two shades of brown ($1,420). For pure fun, grab Andrea Jovine's red wrap with zig-zag trim ($202). She throws it over a black ribbed turtleneck and knit.

No need to buy a scarf-tying video. Keep it simple. Just toss a fringed shawl over your shoulder, circle layers of cashmere around your neck or let a cape fall casually across your back. You're wrapped and ready to go.

Benny's car ran out of gas on a desert highway. He began to walk, but soon was crawling, dizzy with thirst. Finally a car stopped. "Water! Water," gasped Benny.

"Gee, I'm all out," said the driver, "but I've got some beautiful ties for sale. Like to buy one?"

"Water, Water!" gasped Benny.

"Look, there's a restaurant five miles ahead. You'll be OK," said the tie salesman, and he drove off. Benny crawled to the restaurant and collapsed at the maitre d's feet.

"Water, Water!" gasped Benny.

"Sorry," replied the maitre d'. "You can't come in without a tie!"

Jacobson's men's shop has a new attitude

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Last year, during its 125th anniversary, Jacobson's took a long hard look at itself. If the Michigan-based upscale department store was going to survive another 125 years, some changes would have to be made.

With Nordstrom's and Parisian's poised to enter the home field as direct competitors, Jacobson's decided it would need to find its niche and fight hard to keep it. As vice-president of the Men's Division (which makes up about 16-percent of Jacobson's sales,) it became Jeffrey Senn's job to attract new, younger, and more contemporary shoppers to the very traditional Jacobson's Men's Store.

"We saw that the world is changing very quickly and guys are more in tune with what's happening all around them and not just in the Midwest," Senn said. "They travel. They read magazines, watch movies. They think, I'd like to look like that, or I'd like to have that item. To attract their business, Jacobson's needed to bring in new designers and give more prominence to the men's contemporary collection."

The trend toward more casual dressing at work also dictated that Jacobson's expand its men's clothing departments.

"These clothes are really more an attitude than an age," Senn explained. "If a guy is 50-something, hip, travels around, he'll like what he sees in the new contemporary collection." Must-have items for the contemporary man include 3-button, unconstructed jackets that may or may not be worn with a shirt and tie. These have great drapability and mix well with denim. ## Designer adds sass to career clothes

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Ah, it's the life. Cynthia Steffe rises early each morning, grabs a no fat breakfast and heads out the door of her New York apartment to work out at the health club.

Next she heads over to her Seventh Avenue design house where she is building an international reputation for clothing that offers "luxury without excess."

Between meetings with staff, consultations with suppliers, and garment inspections at various stages of production, Steffe sketches and gives interviews to publications like

"Harper's Bazaar," "Savvy" and "People Weekly."

"Oh it's not as glamorous as it appears," she said over orange juice and English muffins at The Townsend Hotel in Birmingham recently. "It's actually a very long day, usually 10 or 12 hours. My job is very heavy on administration with 30 employees to supervise. Then, I continue to sketch and design through the evening, sometimes until 10 p.m."

Steffe is a calm contrast to the whirling world of high fashion where a new product must be presented every five months and competition is ferocious for the dwindling fashion dollar. As she explains, her attitude comes from a solid Midwest upbringing in Boyden, Iowa. She is one of five daughters who learned to sew with her chin on mom's sewing machine.

"My mother made most of our clothes and my dad had quite a bit of farmland," she said. "He also invented things and I guess I got my drawing ability from watching him sketch school. When we took vacations to any big city, I'd say, 'This is for me!'

After high school Steffe headed to New York and the Parsons School of Design. She modeled to pay her tuition and quickly singled herself out among her peers. She received two awards that brought her to the attention of designer Donna Karan. She was named "Student Designer of the Year," and was presented with the Donna Karan Gold Thimble Award.

She began her career as an assistant to Karan, and Louis Dell'Olio at Anne Klein & Co. Two years later, Steffe landed the premier spot at Spitalnick to design for the Evan Picone label. While still a student, she met Richard Roberts who worked in the fashion industry's business end. The pair decided to marry and become business partners as well, and in 1988 Steffe left Spitalnick to launch her own label. She sells the Cynthia Steffe Collection in specialty department stores around the world.

Hudson's decided to launch Steffe's bridge resource collection, Frances & Rita (named for the couple's mother's) at Hudson's in Summit Place, Waterford; Oakland Mall, Troy; and Twelve Oaks, Novi. She came to town recently as the featured designer for Hudson's fall career night. "The Frances and Rita line is priced from $98 to $240, targeted to career woman who want a little more fashion and detailing in their clothes," Steffe explained. "There is lots of value for the price in these pieces. The clothing is made in New York, just blocks from our office, so we make sure each piece that goes out is perfect."

Hudson's spokeswoman Chris Morrisroe said Steffe sold 20 pieces of her fall line in the Summit Place store after just an hour of working with shoppers.

Henley's, and sweaters that layer well, and voila! you're a man of the '90s.

Michael Hinz manages the Jacobson's Men's Store in downtown Birmingham which produces the highest sales for the chain. Hinz argued that although the casual look sounds easy, it takes some fashion expertise to pull it off because it is a very sophisticated, studied look where you must know how to blend garment textures, colors and patterns.

"That's where Jacobson's come in," Hinz said. "Our sales associates can offer advice, take merchandise to the home or office, and provide the personal service other stores cannot."

In addition to the traditional man's lines carried by Jacobson's, like Hugo Boss, Burberry's, Hart, Schaffner & Marx, Perry Ellis, Tommy Hilfiger, Nautica and Polo, new designers like Wilke Rodriquez, Tom Tailor, Tommy Bahama, Johnny Cotton, Arnold Zimberg and Linea Dome will be available at most stores. Additionally, Jacobson's will sell men's clothing by Nine Twenty East, Synergy, French Connection, True Grit, Chromies and Miska Design Resource.

"It's important that our traditional customer knows we're still the Jacobson's that served him well in the past," Senn said. "We're just heading in a new direction, with a new point of view."

Ties

have got to be a wee bit nervous

Will the necktie become the next exhibit in the museum of extinct fashions?

Not to worry, said Gerald Andersen, director of the Necktie Association of America based in New York City. Neckwear manufacturers see the global shift to casual dressing as merely the opportunity to sell more "relaxed" tie designs.

"Hey, even The Gap is selling ties now," Andersen pointed out during a telephone interview. "By using textured and seasonal fabrics like knits and woven wools, designers can give ties a casual feel that coordinates well with chambray shirts, sweaters and sportswear."

Andersen said more than 100 million ties are sold in the U.S. every year. However, he hinted that sales in 1994 could be flat for the first time in four or five years.

"Most tie manufacturing companies are small, entrepreneurial," he explained. "The top four, in terms of sales, would be 'Superba' in Los Angeles, 'Wimco' in New Orleans, 'Ronda' in New York City and 'Mallory & Church' in Seattle. We have about 100 firms in the association and dozens of suppliers who also belong."

Silk ties command 60 to 65-percent of tie sales, according to Andersen, with 4-inch widths the preferred size. This fall, sports motifs like golf and hunting, are favorites with tie designers, as are conversational and statement ties. The spring and summer featured ties festooned with cartoon and television characters and art from museum walls.

Andersen said there is also a renewed interest in clean, elegant, classic designs like houndstooth checks, geometrics and horizontal stripes. Paisley and plaid designs are best worn with sportswear according to the experts.

Mark McClellan of Livonia considers himself an expert on neckwear. So much so, he opened The Tie Man, a neckwear emporium on Five Mile, east of Middlebelt. McClellan's brief history of the tie supports his belief that the tie will never die as an article of men's fashion.

"As far back as the 1600s neckwear was worn as protection," he explained. "As the years went on the tie evolved into a status symbol. By 1860 no well-dressed man was seen without one. In 1880, the Four In Hand Knot became the accepted way to fasten a tie. The knot was adapted from the way coach drivers handled the reins on four-horse carriages.

"The Four In Hand knot was small, but it leaned, so when the Windsor Knot, named after the Duke of Windsor was created, it quickly became a standard. It stays symmetric but it's large. The Shelby Knot evolved as symmetric but smaller, and now the No Knot, from Chicago, is gaining popularity."

■ AUCTION TOTALS
Livonia Mall's fifth annual Celebrity Auction to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association raised its grandest total ever—$23,300. The Saturday, Aug. 30 day-long affair offered hundreds of autographed items donated by celebrities to shoppers with the highest bids. 100-percent of the proceeds went to "Jerry's Kids."

Jerry Lewis sent a letter of appreciation to the event's chief organizer, Livonia Mall's marketing director Bill Checks. Over the past five years, the mall raised over $83,000 for the MDA through Checks' dedicated efforts. Checks said he was touched by Lewis' acknowledgement because he does the auction "strictly for the kids." Checks immediately turned the words of praise over to his supporting staff, the Livonia Mall Merchant's Association and all the volunteers "who came to work for free for the kids." Checks singled out two 12-year-old girls who worked all day long at the auction, serving refreshments, running items back and forth, and helping clean up afterwards.

"Tristan Phelps and Alexandria Gendron are to be commended for their part at the auction," Checks said. "These girls worked hard and the community can be proud of them."

■ COFFEE BAR PLANNED
The Jacobson's store on Maple Road in downtown Birmingham will open an espresso bar on the lower level near the Miss J department on Nov. 15. Company spokeswoman Janice Hayes said the new coffee spot will have seating for 40 and serve beverages like cappuccino and espresso, and light sandwiches and salads.

Hayes also said a "menu of Jacobson's services," will also debut in various forms at all stores, enumerating the services available throughout the department store. The menu will appear on signs in elevators, enclosures with purchases, and on tabletops and placemats in the restaurants.

HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)

If you are frustrated by your inability to make decisions, just think how those around you feel. Don't worry so much about trying new things.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)

Someone you are close to may have an opposing view about an important matter. This is not the end of the world. You can agree to disagree.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)

You will have an opportunity to learn a new skill or hobby that could prove fun and profitable. Keep your mind open when discussing financial matters.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)

Your problems may seem insurmountable, but they are not. You must be strong and listen to your inner voice. You know the best course of action.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)

Did you let someone talk you into something that wasn't such a great idea? It is time to cut your losses and move on with life.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)

You simply don't feel as though you can take on any more responsibilities, but you may have to. You will learn from the experience.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

You may be wasting your energy on an unimportant project. Take a moment to take a step back and get a better picture of what is going on.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)

There are times when you wish you could be far, far away, and this is one of them. Give yourself time to adjust to new situations.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)

You will begin to come out of a depressed and anxiety-laden state. Do some of the things that bring you the most joy.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)

Someone close to you has caused more problems than you would like to think about. It is time to get tough and do what needs to be done.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

The wheel of fortune is spinning and it could point to good things for you. Many areas of your life will begin to improve, and you will be happier.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

You are searching for something important, but you haven't really figured out what it is. There is a need to work on your spiritual self.

It doesn't take a weatherman to forecast fate of Blue Skies

By PETE BUCCI

Where have all the profits gone? This is the question twentysomething business partners Russell Evans and Joel Goodman ask themselves in the premiere of Blue Skies, Monday, Sept. 12, on ABC.

It may also be the question ABC executives will be asking themselves if the network continues to produce tired, hackneyed situation comedies like this one.

Their business, the Blue Skies Trading Company, is a nature-oriented mail-order house. Played by Matt Roth and Corey Parker, respectively, Russell and Joel discover their accountant Kenny, who is also Joel's cousin, has spent all of their first-year profits.

Answering their ad for a new accountant is Ellie Baskin, an attractive Harvard MBA with amazing credentials. Ellie, played by Julia Campbell, is prepared to turn down other offers, including the White House, to work for these hip capitalists.

While Russell is willing to hire Ellie, and even make her a partner, Joel fears the potential love triangle that may result, especially since he envision himself ultimately being left out in the cold.

Joel does agree to — actually insists on — the partnership, because he and Russell made a rule banning inter-company dating in an earlier debate on the issue.

There is little in the pilot of Blue Skies that could be considered new or unique. It bears much resemblance to NBC's Wings, especially in the relationship between the main characters.

However, Judd Pillot and John Peaslee, the executive producers of Blue Skies, insist this relationship will be different.

"Blue Skies will not be about a triangle the way a lot of shows are," Pillot says. "It's really a catalyst to get these people together."

"We use their attraction to her as a way for them to bring her in as a partner, because we wanted the three of them to be equals," Peaslee says, describing the relationship as a "limited triangle."

They also acknowledge the obvious twentysomething focus of the show. ABC is not alone in trying to reach that segment of the audience this year. Fox's Wild Oats also centers around four twentysomethings, and NBC's Friends focuses on that age group as well.

The relationship between Russell and Joel is an easily recognizable one as well. Russell is the smooth, confident ladies' man, while Joel plays the unsure, semi-neurotic foil.

The pilot has all the other trappings of a typical sitcom, including the not-all-there employee. This one spends the show standing in a tub of ice water to test a new pair of fishing boots.

However unoriginal, the show could be salvaged with clever writing and consistently funny jokes. Unfortunately, it has neither.

In all fairness, there are some genuinely humorous lines, but they are so few and far between that viewers could actually forget to laugh.

The biggest drag on the humor is the predictability of the jokes. It's as if the writers feel the targeted Generation X audience will not get the jokes unless they see them coming far in advance.

Another factor working against Blue Skies is its time period, which will result in numerous pre-emptions on the West Coast for Monday Night Football. The producers say the network will take this into consideration when looking at its initial ratings.

Blue Skies is not completely devoid of potential, however, so it could avoid an early Chapter 11.

In addition to funny jokes, the characters could use more depth. The introduction of Ellie's father, a powerful tycoon who is also competing for her attention, could offer a fresher, more interesting storyline.

The most likely key to the success or failure of this show will be the writing. If it isn't improved soon, the forecast for Blue Skies could get downright gloomy.

LET'S TALK

Delany makes 'Exit to Eden'; Roddy, Malcolm not related

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I am a big fan of the Lifetime show China Beach, and I think Dana Delany is great. Could you please tell me what other shows or movies she has been in and also where I could write to her? —S.W., Westernville, N.Y.

A: Delany starred in the short-lived yuppie sitcom Sweet Surrender, which ran on NBC in 1987. Among her films available on video are Almost You, Housesitter, Light Sleeper, Moon Over Parador, Patty Hearst and Oliver Stone's zoocy miniseries Wild Palms.

This fall she plays a dominatrix in a big-screen adaptation of Anne Rice's erotic novel Exit to Eden. Write to the two-time Emmy winner C/O ICM, 8942 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90211.

Q: Are Roddy and Malcolm McDowell related? Does either have children who do or do not act? —P.R. in Peru, Ind.

A: Roddy McDowall, who turns 66 on Sept. 28, has never married and is childless. Malcolm McDowell has a nonacting (at this time) child from his former marriage to actress Mary Steenburgen.

Q: I was curious to know whether Timothy Daly is married. Where can I write to him? —K.R., Plattsburgh, N.Y.

A: Write to the married actor C/O Wings, NBC Television Network, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Q: Can you please tell me where to write to producer Stephen Cannell? —Ms. B. Horne, Washington, Pa.

A: C/O Cannell Distribution Co., 7083 Hollywood Blvd., Fourth Floor, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

Q: I heard that Saved By the Bell was going to have a last movie where Zack and Kelly get married. Is this true? Also, is Byrds of Paradise going to be on next season? —C.C., Atwater, Ohio.

A: The Bell movie originally was announced for the end of last season. As of this writing, Saved By the Bell—Wedding in Las Vegas is set to air Friday, Oct. 7, on NBC. Despite good reviews, Byrds of Paradise drew disappointing ratings that the network deemed too small to justify the high cost of producing the hour-long series.

Q: Please help me. I just found out that my favorite author, R.L. Stine, has a series on Nickelodeon. Where can I find a fan club address for him and his books for young adults? —K. Downey, New London, Minn.

A: Any questions about Nickelodeon programming are best referred to Nickelodeon Viewer Services, 1775 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10019. The people there are exceptionally responsive to questions from viewers. Good luck.

Q: Why is Sister, Sister not coming back in the fall? I don't think it had poor ratings, because all my friends in the fourth grade loved it. Can you also give me the show's address so I can write to the cast? —Candace Machele Stokes, Mt. Olive, N.C.

A: Relax, Candace, and tell your friends that your fave show will be back later this season. Write to the cast C/O ABC Television Network, 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Century City, Calif. 90067.

TV SPORTS

NFL season into full swing with week 2

BY JEFF PLASS

Now that all the fanfare and celebration of opening week is out of the way, the NFL is ready to get down to business.

On Sunday, Sept. 11, Fox offers a doubleheader, with regional coverage followed by a national telecast.

Regional games include the Detroit Lions at the Minnesota Vikings in a matchup of NFC Central opponents, the Los Angeles Rams visiting the Atlanta Falcons for an NFC West duel, and the San Francisco 49ers traveling to Kansas City, Mo., to take on the Chiefs.

The national game features the Washington Redskins venturing to the Louisiana Superdome to take on the New Orleans Saints.

NBC offers a regional coverage doubleheader. Matchups include the Buffalo Bills visiting the New England Patriots and the Pittsburgh Steelers at the Cleveland Browns in the early Monday on NBC, Stacy Haiduk and Robert Ulrich star as tragic lovers in A Perfect Stranger.

Game 2 pairings include the Houston Oilers at the Dallas Cowboys and the Seattle Seahawks at the Los Angeles Raiders.

"Buddy Bail" makes its 1994 debut on national television Sunday, as TNT presents the Arizona Cardinals, under new head coach Buddy Ryan, playing host to the New York Giants.

On ABC's Monday Night Football, Sept. 12, the Chicago Bears take on the Philadelphia Eagles.

HIGHLIGHTS

Paul Gross (pictured) and David Marciano star in the pilot of Due South, Thursday, Sept. 15 on CBS.

Gross portrays a no-nonsense Canadian Mountie and Marciano plays an irreverent Chicago cop who doesn't mind bending the rules.

Despite their conflicting philosophies, the two policemen are able to work together to track down a murderer.

Gross and Marciano reprise their roles when Due South returns as a series, premiering Thursday, Sept. 22.
