Counselors are working with Sheldon Road Ford Plant workers to deal with the sight of "real blood" in the wake of a weekend murder/suicide that stemmed from a love triangle.

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

In the days following a shooting that took the lives of two workers at the Sheldon Road Ford Plant and seriously injured a third, a police investigation continued and management and employees did their best to cope with the aftermath.

Dead are Michael Brattin, 43, of Novi and Michael O'Brien, 41, of Canton. Brattin's estranged wife, Sandra, 39, of Livonia remains hospitalized at the University of Michigan Medical Center, where her condition has been upgraded from serious to

All three worked in close proximity in the radiator and heater control departments at Ford.

Police and witnesses said Michael Brattin entered the plant shortly after 5 a.m. Saturday and found his estranged wife at her work station in the heater control department. Brattin grabbed her by the hair and dragged her into the aisle, where he fired a 12-shot, 40-caliber semiautomatic pistol, shooting her twice in the legs and once in the side, witnesses said. When O'Brien, her lover, tried to intercede, he was shot in the forehead, chest and groin.

Brattin then turned the gun on himself, shooting himself in the tem-

The night before the parade, There were all these girls in the hotel and I feel sorry for them. It was loud," Maironis said.

Braun has been with the squad four years and Maironis three years. It was while attending a Universal Cheerleaders Association camp last summer that they were invited to perform at the London parade.

They sent letters to prospective sponsors and asked friends and family for help to raise about $2,000 each to make the trip.

Besides performing in the ninth annual parade, the girls also got to shop at the original Hard Rock Cafe, see Big Ben, Oxford University, Buckingham Palace and other landmarks, ride on the left side of the road and experience British traffic circles.

"We got key chains from all over to pass around to our friends,"Maironis

What was the best part of the trip? "Just making friends," they said.

On some other impressions of England: "The food is bland," Braun said. "The grass is a lot greener, because it rains every day," Maironia

The parade route passed central London landmarks such as the Houses of Parliament, Trafalgar Square and Piccadilly Circus. They were joined by bands and marching groups from around London as well as South Africa, Thailand, New Zealand and Europe

While the weather was mild for most of the trip, it was below freezing parade day. Worse than that, a group of horses preceded the cheerleaders and that meant there were a few obstacles to avoid.

In college, Braun said she plans to study biology and continue cheerlead. ing. Maironis said she'll study psychology, but probably won't go out for cheerleading.

The girls thanked sponsors including the Plymouth Canton High cheerleading and football booster clubs, the evening Kiwanis Club, Focal Pointe, Meijer, Vermuelen Funeral Home, Rose's Restaurant, Chuck 'E' Cheese, F&M Distributors , Plymouth Canton High principal Tom MacKenzie, the Romulus Rotary Club, Jerry Clchowski, Barbara Ciargvino, Dick Flavell and Fred and Jean Flavell.

Robberies reported at businesses

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAPP WRITER

Two Canton businesses were robbed by unknown gunmen in unrelated incidents this past

In the robbery reported at Domino's Pizza, 7252 Sheldon, the gunman pointed a blue steel automatic handgun at an employee and demanded cash. The employee first encountered the gunman in the parking lot at 3:44 a.m. Jan. 7

According to police, the gunman slapped the employee on the back and both went back into the store In the store, the gunman pointed the gun and demanded that the employee open the cash drawer. The employee complied and the gunman left on foot with an undisclosed amount of money. Two other employees also were in the store at the time of the rob-

The gunman was described as a black male in his 30s. He was wearing a burgundy or brown jacket and a stocking hat with holes cut for his nose and eyes, said Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer.

"He had them lay on the floor and then he left through the front door," Colling said.

It's believed he ran on a path through a nearby subdivision and got into a car parked there, Colling said. In another incident on Jan. 8, an unidentified man walked into the Budgetel Motel, 2320 Ford, at 11:20 p.m. and asked if a particular guest was at the facility. An employee told him the guest was not registered.

"He put his hand in his pocket and said, 'See this - give me all the money from the drawer. I don't want any trouble," Colling

The employee, a Southfield resident, complied with the gunon foot, running northeast from the motel. Only one employee was in the lobby at the time but another person was nearby, Colling

The gunman was described as a white male about 45 years old, 6 feet tall, weighing 160 pounds. He was wearing a green jacket, jeans and a red baseball cap. The man also had a graying moustache. His face was not covered, Colling said. If residents have information regarding either incident, they are asked to call Canton police who are investigating both robberies, Another innovation this year is the addition of a Plymouth International Ice Spectacular poster, proceeds from which will defray costs and benefit the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park Marching Band.

The poster is a first for the ice show, hopefully the first in a long series," said Mike Watts, president of Watts-Up, Inc., producer of the Ice Sculpture Spectacular. It features Jim Hindy's dramatic after-dark photo of "Be Bop," last year's award-winning sculpture. The grouping of jazz musicians was carved by Swiss exchange students and finished in the top three in competition.

"Most people don't realize that the ice show is totally self-supporting. It's not paid for by the city or the chamber of commerce." Watts said. "We're printing 3,000 and it would be really nice to sell all of them."

Production of the poster is being underwritten by the Observer Newspapers. "As a local community newspaper, the Plymouth Observer believes in supporting events that help position Plymouth on the map for hosting the likes of the International Ice Spectacular" said Sandy Boulton, promotion manager for the Observer. "This year's additional contribution to the first annual commemorative poster will hopefully help build a keepsake tradition, while supporting the Plymouth-Canton Marching Band.

After viewing the icy creations of celebrity carvers, professional sculptors and culinary arts students from the U.S., Canada, Japan and Switzerland, festivalgoers are welcome to the "Teddy Bear & Model Train" afternoon exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum.

Eligible for the competition were all of Central's nearly 1,000 social studies students in grades six through eight. Finalists included Dan Longpre, Lindsay Stellard, Ross Huff, Brad Wolf, Matt McCaffrey, Claudine Viado, Mark Hjelmstad, Kali Stoner, Jeremy Murray and Kyle Tardiff.

Sixth-grader Brad Wolf and eighth-grader Jeremy Murray made it to the final round of competition, witnessed by 300 classmates in the school cafeteria.

Murray, named the outstanding student in his social studies classes the past two years, answered the most questions correctly and emerged with the win. Should he survive the statewide competition, Murray will vie for a $25,000 college scholarship.

"I was nervous at first, but once I started getting the questions right, I wasn't," Murray said.

Murray said he didn't study. "I just looked at the map once or twice over vacation," he said.

Social studies is Murray's favorite class, and he's thinking about "maybe becoming a social studies or history teacher. I like social studies," he said. "It's just enjoyable. It's not boring like math. It's something you can use; knowing about wars and stuff. All little kids played war in the back yard when they were little, so this is something they like learning about when they get older."

Staging the competition was Margo Panko, social studies department chairman. "This was the first time the whole school participated in the four-year-old contest," said Panko, who moderated the event.

Sledding slides back

Supervised sledding will happen on weekends this winter, as trustees have lifted the sledding ban at Plymouth Township Park.

The township board Tuesday agreed to the plan suggested by Scott Lorenz and other parents - sledding under volunteer supervision.

Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy said the sled run will be moved west to a more gradual hill, for safety reasons.

Safety and potential liability were cited in December when the township administration announced sledding would be cancelled this season, pending a review of the layout of the hill.

When the sledding ban was announced, Lorenz and some other parents agreed to organize volunteers to supervise sledding.

"There was a lot of shock. People couldn't believe something like this could happen. I don't remember anyone screaming or freaking out.

"It's amazing from what I saw that they were still alive at the time they were airlifted to the hospital," said the employee, who like others asked that his name not be used. "O'Brien was shot dead center in the forehead, and Brattin was shot in the temple. There was a lot of blood."

The Brattins and O'Brien had worked at the plant for several years and were well-liked.

"I worked with Mike Brattin on the line. He was always easygoing, and really a nice guy," said a coworker. "He was in supervision for a while, but got out because he couldn't take the pressure of being hard-line.

Another employee said, "There are so many love triangles still in the plant that people have empathy. They think, 'That could be Real blood

"It's a gory thing to see; people think it's not so bad to shoot someone. When you see bodies lying there, trembling and bleeding, you realize it's not like what you see on TV and in the movies. It's much worse.

Psychologists, police chaplains and counselors have been on hand to assist employees dealing with the tragedy.

Plymouth Township police chaplains Hugh McMartin and Tim Schabeck counseled both family members and employees.

McMartin, a lay minister at Risen Christ Lutheran Church, said it was his job to inform employees shortly after he arrived at 7:15 a.m. that O'Brien and Brattin were dead. He also comforted employees, "letting them know there is a loving God, and that in an imperfect world, these things happen. Here are answers to some of the more common questions about the proposal before the State Bar of Michigan to restructure the lower courts. Chief recommendation was to establish a single "tri-al court" to replace the circuit, Detroit recorders, probate and district courts. The State Bar Representative Assembly is scheduled to vote Saturday, Jan.

14, on the proposal.

Q. Most voters are confused about the different kinds of courts. So start with the circuit court - what does it do?

A. Circuit court is a general trial court - civil suits of more than $10,000, criminal cases and serious misdemeanors, and domestic relations (divorce and paterni-

It also hears appeals from lower courts and some state administrative agencies (e.g., drivers li-cense restoration).

Circuit courts were established in 1835, with a Supreme Court justice presiding in each circuit. Today the state has 56 circuits some multi-county (Clinton-Gratiot), most one county (Wayne, Oakland, Livingston, Eaton). Circuit judges are the best paid of

Q. Probate court is a confusing one. Describe it in a nut-

A. Basically, probate court handles affairs of people who can't handle their own. Take kide juvenile delinquents, neglect, abuse and adoption proceedings. Take the deceased — administration of estates, probating of wills. Finally, it handles petitions from the mentally ill and guardian-ships of the developmentally dis-

Established in 1818, probate courts at first had single-county jurisdiction. Today a few probate districts are multi-county. There are 78 probate courts in Michigan's 83 counties.

Probate judges seldom get their names in the papers, but they are the second best-paid of the lot.

Q. And district courts?
They're the newest kind, designed in 1968 to replace the township justices of the peace (who didn't have to be lawyers) and municipal courts.

They handle civil suits up to $10,000, garnishments, evictions, mortgage foreclosures and the like. They also handle pre-trial exams in criminal cases. And they handle misdemeaner cases (less than a year in prison).

District courts may set up a small claims division for informal hearings and traffic bureaus.

Michigan has 101 district courts. Up north, a district may be two or three counties. Eaton and Livingston counties have countywide district courts. The 48th District has seven cities and townships in central Oakland. Large western Wayne suburbs — like Redford, Garden City, Live-nia and Westland — have one district court per community.

Q. You glossed over recorders court and the court of claims. What are they? And wasn't there a political flap over the court of claims? A. You caught us.

Recorders court hears criminal cases in Wayne County. Some 29 judges are elected from the city of Detroit; five Wayne Circuit judges are assigned to recorders court on a rotating basis. Court of claims is a special title given to Ingham Circuit Court when it hears claims against state government. Gov. Jolin Engler and Republicans like Sen. David Honigman say the Ingham court is politically very liberal with tappayers' money and much too proplaintiff.

Q. You said the Bay commit-tee wants full state funding of trial courts. Is that likely to 16 a hot potato?

A. Very likely. Currently, trial courts cost $510 million a year to run. The state pays 30 percent, local units 29 percent, and court revenue from fines and filing fell yields 31 percent. The feds pro-

Jobless numbers shrink

Michigan's unemployment rate fell from 4.6 to 4.5 percent in December, which is lower than it has been since the government began tracking seasonally adjusted data for the state in 1970.

The number of unemployed is at its lowest level in nearly 21 years when 210,000 were jobless in January 1974, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

The number of unemployed fell by 7,000 last month to 213,000.

A year earlier, December 1993. the unemployment rate was 7.3 percent with 349,000 out of work.

In 1994 Michigan's jobless rate averaged 5.9 percent compared to 6.1 percent nationally. And during the year, Michigan's rate was lower than the nation's for eight months.

For the first time, since the current system for measuring labor force estimates began in 1970, Michigan's annual average jobless rate is lower than the nation's.

The drop in unemployment last month resulted from some slippage in the size of our labor force, as some job seekers, who were unsuccessful in finding holiday employment, left the job market, the MESC said.

Michigan's labor force declined by 27,000 in December to Employment also fell, dropping by 20,000 to 4,520,000.

Among the nation's 11 largest states, Michigan had the fourth lowest unemployment rate behind North Carolina (3.3 percent), Illinois (4.2 percent) and Ohio (4.3 percent).

California led the 11 states at 7.4 percent.

ployment rate for the nation was 5.4 percent in December, down from 5.6 percent in November.

Keep eyes open to witness nature

Through the years I have been fortunate to have experienced many memorable moments. These include the birth of my daughter, the moment I knew I was going to have a son, encountering a fox along the trail on

TIMOTHY NOWICKI Isle Royale, encountering a moose along a trail in Maine, and many more.

These are some of the more pleasant memories - we all have memories of those tragic moments, too.

Some of my most indelible memories have delt with wildlife. Though many experiences happened years ago, as I recall each moment today, it seems like it happened yesterday. Fond memories occur more often if you spend more time in the field.

If you dress properly and prepare for a hike so you feel comfortable, both physically and mentally, then all your senses are tuned into your surroundings. By concentrating on your hike you will have a much better chance of discovering something new.

Just the other day, as I left work, I slowly drove past six deer near the side of the road. It sure is a great feeling to have the DDD daily dose of deer. But as I was concentrating on them, I almost missed a great horned owl that was sitting on the very top of a black cherry tree. This large bird seemed out of place on the thin branches supporting it. It looked like they would break at any

As I passed by the owl, I could see its flat, squared head, two "horns" and big chunky body. After I passed the owl I stopped and looked back. Behind the delicate branches and the stocky body of the owl on top was a beautiful peachy-orange sky.

This time of twilight is the time when owls respond. In the evening they emerge from their daytime resting place in an evergreen tree, and in the morning they return to a secure roost to await the next twilight.

Back in 1975, while returning from Big Bend in Texas, I spotted several owls in treetops against the warm glow of the rising sun as I passed through Oklahoma. They too were backlighted and easily identified by their chunky appearance.

Take some time to walk the fields and forest and create your own memories of the natural vide 11 percent for the Friend of the Court operations.

One battleground is the impact on the state budget, which might have to be raised. Well, Engler wants to go down in history as a tax-cutter.

There could be union problems. Full state funding would mean uniform pay scales; the impact on court staffs would be higher wages in Keewenaw rather than lower wages in Wayne.

A second battleground will be the district courts, which earn 83 percent of their costs. In some communities, they are moneymakers. Those communities won't be eager to turn over all receipts to the state.

The argument started after 1980 when the state agreed to take over full funding of Detroit and Wayne County courts, then to fund all other courts tomorrow. But "tomorrow" never came. Outstate politicos are angry.

Q. Granted, voters in metropolitan counties don't known one judicial candidate from another, except for ethnicity of the name. But our local district judge is a known quantity. Will there be any local voter control of judges under the State Bar panel proposal?

A. Some. The state would have to set up new election districts "that reflect racial and ethnic participation in the electorate.' Your local judge could run for the new "trial court" job with an "incumbent" label.

One big difference is that the new system would have nine to 12 "regions" with a chief judge who could assign trial judges and cases wherever needed. That will balance the workload and backup support when a judge takes a vacation.

Kids and stairs are diet musts

he No. 1 most popular New Year's resolution made in the U.S.A. is "lose weight." I heard that on the radio today. I also heard that just about everybody who makes that resolution breaks it.

Well, that doesn't surprise me in the least, given all those terrible diets and weight loss programs out there. Who could ever succeed at those? They're all so complicated. Calorie counting, food weighing, exercise machines, gym workouts, fancy tight bike shorts, fat grams, meal dealing, oldie sweating, pecs, reps, abs, pills, shakes, tofu, futon. Futon? (Scratch that. That's some sort of bed.) Anyway, the point is, it's all too complicated. Too complicated for me anyway. I've found something much simpler. A kind of diet program thing.

First, have four children. (Less than four, it'll work, maybe not as well, but it'll work. More than four? It'll work even better.) You're probably saying, "No way. This can't be. Having children is the problem." On the contrary, not having children is the problem.

For example, when I was just a girl in college and living on good old-fashioned dorm food I hadn't prepared or cleaned up after or even thought about until I was in line with my tray, I sported a butt. One that was actually useful, as in helping to keep my pants up.

But now after having four children, the butt is gone. This diet really works! Why, just the other day I was standing in line at the grocery store and little Joe yanked on my pant leg. I nearly lost my drawers! That's good. It is.

The second thing to know about this diet is

Big 'kids' put feet to the test in dance class

They tip and tap to the music. They sway and step to the music. They even laugh to the music. More and more adults — as in men and women - are discovering that dance classes aren't just for kids.

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

You might find these students stretching at the bar (ballet Barre, that is). You might hear them clicking across the hard wood floor with the crisp sound of metal taps. You might see them wearing tights and leotards or big shirts famous for covering bodily imperfections.

What you won't find on these dancers are those cute little tutus not on these adults who are taking dance lessons for the first time or who are making a comeback after years of abstinence from childhood lessons.

Charlotte Wurster, a 48-year-old Canton resident, had taken ballet lessons as a teenager. After raising five children, this year she enrolled in jazz classes "because I decided at 48 I wanted to feel great.'

Inspired by her children, Canton resident Diane Kapelanski decided "it looked like a lot of fun and I like to dance." Plus her 7-year-old son Billy watched his sister Lisa at a recital last year and announced, "If Lisa can play soccer and take dance, why can't play soccer and take dance?"

Kapelanski enrolled him in a boy's jazz class and made her own announcement: "Well, if you're going to take jazz, I can take jazz." At age 34, it's her first formal dance class.

On the rise

Cindy Blazer, owner of Canton Dance and Performing Arts Center in Canton, has seen an increase in the number of people enrolling in the adult dance classes during her 25 years of teaching.

"It's becoming very popular," she said. "The baby boom generation has found, with all its emphasis on physical fitness they've tried the aerobics classes, they've tried the the step aerobics and they've tried the gyms, and it's boring. I'm sorry,

Patti Foster of Canton agrees: "I love this the greatest form of exercise." At 38, Foster takes tap and jazz lessons from Canton Dance, the same studio as her three girls and her husband who performed in the dad and daughter dance and a comedy number. She also works full time and attends school.

"This is my escape; this is my stress reducer," she admitted. "This is all fun and you can create such good friendships. Everybody's in the same boat and everybody can laugh at each other and everybody can laugh at themselves.'

Not taking yourself too seriously appears to be the key factor in the

that in addition to having a bunch of children, you must also be married to a workaholic. This enables mealtimes to be total disastera. Without another pair of adult hands around to assist with the four or more children, you just don't have the opportunity to actually put food in your own

Between cleaning up milk spills, spooning mushed peas into the baby's mouth, serving another helping of this over here, fetching the crackers over there, scraping peas off the wall everywhere, running to turn the light on in the bathroom for the short child who is afraid of the dark, running back to find that the food is now pretty much gone, makes this diet super-duper effective.

And without fail, I adhere to the following guideline: Be the sole cleaner upper after every meal. This allows the diet to work in two more wonderful ways. First, all the caked on, splattered, dissected meal components serve as very effective eating deterrents. The whole sorry business is just plain gross.

And second, the exercise' Scouring the pots and pans, wip ing down the stove and neighboring walls, sweeping the floor, then on hands and knees vigorously scrubbing the floor after all meals gets amazingly quick results Loads of calories are burned, if by chance any have been ingested in the first place

And a bonus occurs when two or more of the children are either fighting or crying while cleaning is going on. This seems to burn up even more calories. I'm not sure of the scientific explanation for this, but somehow it works.

Living in a two-story house is very helpful. Going up and down stairs a trillion times a day to bring toys up and down, babies up and down and laundry up and down certainly makes expensive stair climbing machines a stupid investment. And this is such a cool thing because the benefits from climbing all those stairs all day long work alongside the number of children underfoot.

There's a tricky formula for figuring this all out, I don't know it. But I do know this: If you've got four children and you live in a two story house, the pounds melt away And I'll bet those of you with just one child living in a high rise apartment, who never take the elevator, see the pounds melt away at an amazing rate, too.

These are only examples. If you choose to do the proportional analysis of stairs to children, know this. It always works out to: the more of both the better. Now if you've no children and live in a one story house with no basement, you'd better have a long house and lazy husband.

So here are the four guidelines that have worked wonders for me: Have children, the more the better; be married to a workaholic; keep a relatively clean house; and have steps, the more the better.

If you want to try this with any diet, consult a physician before you start. And keep me posted.

If you have a question or comment for Karen Meier, call her at 953-2047, mailbox number 1883, on a Touch-Tone phone, or write her at The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Molly Moll, a 44-year-old Southfield resident, had taken lessons from teacher Robert Gatzke who has taught dance for 35 years. Along with a number of his other students, she followed him to the Robert Lee Dance Studio in Garden City when he started teaching there.

"As a matter of fact, our class is a lot of laughs," Moll said. "Robert sometimes expect things from us and we just have to laugh about it. We laugh a lot. I think there were five of us and all of us did it exactly wrong. We were on the floor laughing."

Another of Gatzke's students, Sheila Zatine, 62, of Birmingham, has found that her tap classes have been beneficial in relieving the symptoms of the Raynaud's Syndrome, a circulatory condition she suffers from.

"It's great," Zatine said. "In the winter, after I dance, I can feel my toes!

Westland resident Cecile Mac-Donnell, 46, has skated on a precision team in Livonia for a number of years; she started taking adult dance classes three years

"I've always wanted to take an adult dance class," MacDonnell said, "always, always, always." She began taking jazz and this year started a tap class at Canton Dance where her 81/4-year-old daughter Courtney also takes les-

"I think it's wonderful because then she gets some exercise,' Courtney said. "My mom works every single day and then she doesn't get enough exercise. She always sits in a chair. When she can get up and dance, then she gets some energy,

MacDonnell sees it a little dif-

"I think it's tremendous," she said. "I think it has enhanced my self-confidence. I think you have to have some self-confidence to sign up for this. It's a tremendously interesting thing to talk about. People are always amazed when you say you are an adult dancer."

Blazer agrees.

'No matter if it's a kid or an adult, it just increases their selfconfidence." Blazer, whose two daughters - Justine, 11, and Genevieve, 12 - take lessons at the studio, believes the moms get a lot more from the lessons than the ability to dance.

"We live and breathe for our kids," she said. "The moms are saying, 'Doggonit, I want to do something for myself.' I think it's healthy for the mothers to be a little bit selfish and do something for themselves. It makes better mothers out of them. When they're confident in themselves, they're happier people.'

Not just for women

The moms aren't the only ones who enjoy the little indulgence of dance lessons. Men are beginning to get into the act as well. Many of the dance studios, including Canton Dance and Robert Lee, offer comedy dance productions or dad and daughter combinations as well as the opportunity to sign ers.

up for regular adult classes.

Their daughters love it," said Pat Edwards, owner of the Robert Lee studio for 30 years. "They think it's great for dad to be up there. Canton resident Don Licht, 32. has two daughters, Carrie, 8, and Elizabeth, 4, who take lessons at Canton Dance. Last year, he participated in both the comedy number and dad and daughter dance at the recital.

"I had a lot of fun last year," he said. "I didn't realize how much I liked dancing."

This year he also signed up for a beginnning tap class. As an involved dad, he wanted to spend more time with his girls " so I'm at the dance studio. I thought I would give it a shot."

Picking costumes out for the recital can be a real challenge when it comes to the adult classes according to Blazer and Edwards. For last year's recital at Robert Lee, the mother/daughter class dressed as hobos and pretty much fashioned their own costumes. Edwards found that worked out

For the other classes, "we try to pick something that we feel will look good on everybody, then hope they like it," Edwards said. "It takes a few weeks of them (the students) looking through the books and it boils down to the end and you have to step in and say, 'OK, this is what we're going with.

Blazer has pretty much the same philosophy, but leaves the final decision to her adult danc-

Ice fest

Event warms the community

o matter what the weather, the Plymouth Ice Spectacular leaves a lasting impression on folks around metro Detroit

It's the one event that an out-of-towner is most likely to see. In its 13th year now, the ice festival has carved out a niche as a unique event, its notoriety comparable to the Ann Arbor Art Fairs.

The success of the ice festival boosts downtown business. So what's in it for residents? Yes, there's increased traffic at ice festival time. But it's not just downtown shop keepers who benefit from crowds and a boost to the city's image.

The ice festival helps the downtown thrive, and that's good for everybody — not just the downtown business folks. Because when the crowds leave and the ice festival is over, we still have a special downtown to enjoy.

The ice festival has survived bouts with warm weather, with too-cold weather, and the Gulf War in 1991. That it is now thriving is a Ill The success of the ice festival boosts downtown business. They include former Mayflower co-owner
Scott Lorenz and former city manager Henry

Now, in its 13th year, the ice festival is stronger than ever. That downtown Plymouth is also strong these days is more than a coincidence.

Honoring a champion for peace

he talk in Washington, D.C. and throughout the countryside these days is of reform.

The Rev. King, an ordained Baptist minister born this month in 1929, died by an assassin's bullet in 1968. He was the catalyst for change in forcing this country to examine its attitudes about race relations.

His policy of changing attitudes and laws through a strategy of nonviolence was instrumental in helping shape federal and state civil rights laws enacted in the 1960s and 1970s.

The 1964 Nobel Peace Prize winner, however, should be remembered not just as a leader for the rights of African-Americans but one who wanted equal opportunity for all Americans.

The major thrust of King and other civil-rights leaders was that America has an obligation to not just set high ideals but to live by them and provide equal opportunity for all citizens.

It's important that King, like other reformers before him who have a place in our history books, be remembered in our schools and our community. The classroom and the community are some of the best places to educate young people about King's life and legacy.

We commend those schools, churches and community groups that have taken the time and planned programs for the day, week or month that commemorate and educate.

With the insanity of human beings reported daily in the nation's newspapers and TV news programs, certainly King's teachings of nonviolence and racial brotherhood deserve to be highlighted.

In the Plymouth-Canton district, high school students will see a program focusing on dignity, respect and peacekeeping.

A live presentation in the Canton Little Theatre will feature a singer and dancer performing. It will be beamed live into all the classrooms at 7:15 a.m. for a Martin Luther King Jr. Day celebration.

There will be clips from "Eyes on the Prize," a video about the civil-rights struggle in the '50s and '60s, the march on Selma, and King's role in the civil-rights movement.

Students will also see a laser-disc presentation of King's noted "I Have a Dream" speech." A segment on dignity and respect will follow. At the elementary level, Fiegel Elementary School Principal Barbara Young is making January a "peace month," with activities in all classrooms studying non-violence.

Lee Harrison, principal at Isbister Elementary School, is making Jan. 16 a "peacekeeping plan kickoff" day with a special speaker on hand. Other activities include:

My heartfelt thanks and deepest gratitude go to everyone who was part of this Christmas effort, including paper sellers, doll dressers, contest judges, gift wrappers, basket packers and deliverers, businesses that allowed us to sell papers at their locations and to all those who donated time, gifts, food and cash.

Thanks from the bottom of my heart to all who contributed. May you be rewarded for your efforts with good health and much happiness in the New Year. Hope to see you all again next year!

'We own nothing'

see that more Americans are making more death threats against the president and other government officials.

People are becoming slaves of the government by being over-taxed. We, as citizens, have to push hard just to get by. Taxpayers are getting tired of paying 50-60 percent in total fees and taxes.

The state and federal governments are stealing from citizens. I do not understand. We are told that we own our homes. This is not true as long as the government may tax your property.

It means they are the owners, and we own nothing. Do not pay your property taxes, and you lose your property to the state.

Help for homebound

he service groups of Plymouth are often unsung heroes as they work behind the scenes to provide basic needs for those in need. I'm sure the holiday season brings on the urge to ask their assistance more than at other times, and I was no exception.

I'd like to acknowledge and thank the Colonial Kiwanis Club of Plymouth for helping me purchase a Fisher-Price table and chairs for one of the families I work with. As the homebound teacher for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, I have the privilege and opportunity to visit children at home. These medically fragile children cannot go to the classroom and I am always impressed by the families who care for these children day in and day out. The Kiwanis Club responded to my request for a specific kind of furniture so that I can establish a school-like atmosphere for a 9-year-old child who has not had that experience.

I thank the Youth Services Committee and Dick Raison of the Colonial Kiwanis Club for responding to my request. Thank you, also, to the residents who support the projects of our service groups. Know that your support is recognized and makes a difference in our community. It's a special kind of "feel good" that people in Plymouth watch out for each other and help each other.

Karen A. Tripp-Opple, Plymouth

Reporters should be less nosy and stop prying into people's lives. It is necessary for the world to know about important events, but reporters don't need to know every little detail in a person's life.

Sometimes, this will destroy a person's public image. Reporters do this for a more interesting story, regardless of how degrading it is to the person.

If reporters are trying to show the world an issue, then they should get straight to the point. True, some people like to read all the extra fluff about some person who they don't even know, but they're just being nosy.

I don't mean to be abrasive toward reporters, but they really don't need to push and shove to get every little detail. These trivial details often entertain people, but are not newsworthy. They are unessential to the article itself and have hardley anything to do with the story.

Flip through your TV stations and picture yourself at age 3 or 7 or even 15, watching some of the shows, newscasts and commercials that you see today.

Ask any senior citizen if they think it would be easier to raise their children today than when they did raise their children. I haven't found one who has said yes yet!

Raising a family today is tough, no. argument here. But our children are young for a very short time, and we have much to teach them, learn from them, and enjoy with them before they are adults themselves. We can't wait for society to get its priorities straight. Our families are our priorities.

Strong families nurture respectful, self-confident, responsible and caring people. Family life is where children receive their basic training for life. They receive essential training through our time, energy, love and example. Urie Brofenbrenner, noted professor of family studies, reports that the power of the family is even greater than most of us can imagine, especially in the development of confidence and character.

Families who possess all or most of the following five qualities are able to provide the security and the freedom for their members to become the best they can be for themselves, their family, and for society. These families:

Share values, beliefs and a commitment to their own family. They believe in a sense of greater good in life and that belief gives them strength. They also believe in the strength of their own family. They have family traditions and talk about their collective family memory, from when each baby joined the family to when they camped out in the rain.

Spend lots of time together and discuss thoughts and feelings freely. They eat meals together as often as possible, and don't let the television or the telephone interrupt them. Everyone pitches in on household chores; after all, everyone lives in the house. They allow negative as well as positive feelings but remind everyone that feelings should not always equal actions. "I know you're upset with your brother, but you are still not allowed to hit him." Members of these families share their disappointments as well as their triumphs.

Strong families love each other no matter what. Sure there are bad moments, hours, days or even weeks, but family members let each other know that despite it all, they love each other. They say it and show it often. Family members are allowed to be different and to feel differently than each other. Individual differences are seen as a strength.

Strong families have high standards and clear guidelines for their members. Make sure that everyone in your family knows what the rules and the expectations are. Establish and talk about family rules. Adults in these families teach children right from wrong by word and example.

Strong families are able to face problems and work together to solve them. As with any strong organization, the whole is more than the sum of its parts. The attitude of "together we can handle it" prevails. We all need help outside of our immediate families at some time in our lives. Parents in strong families know to ask extendedfamily members, neighbors or professionals for help when a situation calls

Families that work are at the center of a healthy, caring, prosperous society. As Maya Angelou, noted author, wrote, "At our best level of existence, we are parts of a family, and at our highest level of achievement we work to keep the family alive." Keep up the good work at the most important job that you will ever have — raising a family!

(Guest columnist Elaine Koons is the parent outreach coordinator for Livonia Public Schools).

Name-calling cheapens our politics — and female dogs ike most folks, Lana Pollack misunderstood it when news leaked out that U.S. House Speaker Newt Gingrich had referred to the First Lady as a "bitch."

"It's a female dog, for heaven's sake - it's nothing you should call a person," said Pollack, former three-term state senator from Ann Arbor. A Free Press editorial the next day repeated the error.

Cuss words and vulgarisms change little over centuries. Take the notorious F word, which comes from the old Norse. Eight centuries ago, it meant to penetrate in a degrading way. Today it means the same thing.

In an old English dialect, the words "witch" and "bitch" were interchangeable. What, then, are the characteristics of a witch, since so many female politicians say men are calling them

Psychiatrist Leopold Stein explored the question in a 1959 book called "Loathsome Women" (republished as "Anatomy of Eve"). Stein concluded that many witches of old were condemned because of mental illnesses.

Witches could be beautiful young women who used spirits to obtain power over men; they could be sexually promiscuous women who didn't enjoy sex; they could be wise old hags, or crones; they may have insisted on equal power with men - depending of-

"The history of witchcraft was written by its enemies" — Christian theologians of the 15th century. In their view, witches engaged in obscene rites during which they consorted with the devil. These couplings resulted either in no children at all or in the birth of deformed, ugly, hairy creatures called

TIM RICHARD

Remember Caliban in Shakespeare's "The Tempest." He was the offspring of a witch called Sycorax and the devil. Prospero refers to Caliban as "hagseed" — the son of a hag-

Men sometimes are called SOBs. It doesn't mean they are the sons of dogs but the sons of witches and the devil -

An angry person today tells another to "Kiss my a--," and he doesn't mean donkey. According to the theologians, part of the ritual involved witches gathering around the devil to perform the osculum infame - the infamous kiss of his nether region. In office talk today, you'll hear an employee who fawns over the boss described as a "brown-noser." Same thing.

I met the first lady only once, in the days when she was Mrs. Clinton and not Hillary Rodham Clinton. I was riding with the Arkansas governor to tay Airport to tape an interview of the Clin-ton was going to Metro Airport for a different flight. The governor rolled down the window, gave her a warm smile, waved his hand and said, "Love vou.

She glared and said nothing. I was astounded that she would be so openly cold to her husband in front of the press, even one suburban guy. Some women politicians say they're often called "bitch" but men don't get called similar names. Wrong. State Rep. Maxine Berman of Southfield wrote a book called "The Only Boobs in the House Are Men" in which she refers to the "sperm posse," "paste pearls of piety" (Christian fundamentalists) and "carbuncles" ("skin sores oozing pus, sexist sores on the body politic") governed by "The Order of the Pecker.

Berman describes "the ubiquitous Right to Life lobbyist slithering around the hallways. He's pretty tiny, though very fertile as he once told me.' That's politically correct, of course. Berman may belittle Ed Rivet, but Newt Gingrich can't tell his own mother what he thinks of Hillary Clinton without being told editorially to ast week was a good one for Gov. John

Don't ignore what became of excised welfare receivers

Newly sworn in after his landslide victory last November and still glowing from his new status as proud father of triplets, Engler traveled to Washington to bask in adulation and to advise his fellow triumphant Republicans in Congress to "be bold."

In illustration, Engler pointed to his decision in 1991 to end Michigan's General Assistance welfare payments to 80,000 able-bodied single adults. The $250 million saving matched almost exactly the budget deficit in that recession year. The initiative was featured in Engler's reelection campaign media and, obviously, proved enormously popular with most voters.

Because I've been around too long to believe automatically in anybody's press releases trumpeting success, I kept wondering just what happened to those 80,000 folks cut off from GA. Then I read last week a study by the University of Michigan and the state Department of Social Services, and my eyes widened in surprise.

The report demolished, one by one, a series of ideological assumptions — largely shared by me. I confess - that underlay much of the popularity of the initiative.

Assumption: Most Michigan able-bodied folks on welfare are young black males living in Detroit. Fact: Only one in 20 people receiving GA was a young black man in Detroit. Actually, two out of five recipients were women, 40 percent were older than 40, and 15 percent were rural.

Assumption: The reason most able-bodied people receive public assistance is that they're too lazy to go get a job. Fact: "The majority of former recipients are neither healthy enough to be attractive job candidates nor disabled enough to qualify for disability benefits," with more than 58 percent of all welfare recipients reporting chronic disease.

Assumption: Cutting able-bodied people off welfare will prod them to get off their duffs and get jobs. Fact: "Two years after the cutoff, the number of recipients who were off all forms of while assistance, including food stamps and Mediciald -- 48 percent -- was no higher than the number who had managed to get off assistmore two years before the cutoff." In other words, dumping felks off the welfare rolls didn't make much difference in their likelihood of getting off GA through their own devices.

PHILIP POWER

Assumption: There are lots of good jobs around; just look at the Help Wanted section in this newspaper. Fact: Fewer than 5 percent found work in all four quarters in 1992; only 40 percent got jobs at any point during their first year off welfare. And 60 percent of those who got a job were either janitors or food service work-

The report concludes: "What former recipients need now is what they have needed all along - more investment in jobs, more jobs for minority and older workers, adequate health care and job skills training, expanded disability criteria and greater targeting of resources for community development in impoverished areas."

Sounds like the liberal mantra. And the odds of Gov. Engler (or the Republican-controlled U.S. Congress, for that matter) adopting this policy prescription are exactly zero.

Poor people are not exactly a powerful constituency these days.

So where does this leave us? First, even when you're in total agreement with a political policy that is wildly popular, always be sure to check the facts. More often than not, you'll find the facts don't sustain the ideology.

Second, in the coming debate about welfare and the various government assistance programs, somebody needs persistently to keep coming back to facts. It may be popular budget policy to push poor people off welfare, but doing so should be debated on its own terms and not in some never-never land where actual fact has no relationship to ideological assumption.

As we begin to examine this handwriting we see a rather traditional person. Her behavior usually conforms to the expectations of loved ones and others who are important in her life. Conforming

Although she is tolerant, al-most naive about other people and their views, she appears to be content with a rather restricted personal philosophy. She is not searching for anything new in this

Each one of us has a great need to be loved and appreciated. Some of us have a greater need than others, and this young woman is one of them. Her feelings of good self-esteem depends on outside approval. At this particular time she may be feeling unappreciated. She appears to have a consuming need for visible signs of love. Sincere praise and/or compliments would be music to her ears, especially from the opposite sex: As we move into the New Year wouldn't it be wonderful if we could all give more love and acceptance to each other?

On the job I envision her as a welcome the year of the pig

BY RENEE SKOGLUND SPECIAL WRITER

"Gallant and noble, your friends will remain at your side." - Chinese Zodiac, the

According to the Chinese Zodiac, if you were born in 1935, 1947, 1959, 1971, 1983 or 1995, this is your year. The "Year of the Pig" makes its debut on Jan. 30, and several metro Detroit Chinese restaurants are planning festivities that will last several days.

But wait, why dedicate an entire year to a pig? Considering the Chinese interpretation of the animal's attributes, why not.

Think of all the virtues of a pig, and that's it." said Dr. Chen Oi Chin, executive director of the Chinese American Educational and Cultural Center in Ann Arbor. "A pig has a lot of piglets, and that means fertility. A pig is fat, and that symbolizes the richness of life, the abundance. It is an analogy for prosperity and wealth."

The Chinese Zodiac consists of a 12-year cycle, of which each year is named for a differ ent animal. That animal's characteristics supposedly impact upon the personality, physical and mental traits, and lifetime potential for happiness of the person born under its sign. But a pig, gallant and noble? Fertile and rich? Well, maybe. Still, it's difficult to dismiss the Western concept of a pig's "vir-

According to the Michigan Pork Producers Association, for much of the world, the pig represents moving forward into the new year - a pig moves forward with his snout to the ground, unlike a chicken, which scratches backwards. When asked if the Year of the Pig gives people a license to be fat and lazy, Shen Yu, the energetic owner of New Peking Restaurant in Garden City, laughed. "Not fat and lazy," he said. "Smart. The pig is a smart animal. They don't have to work. They eat and sleep. Not like the ox. They work in the field, don't get good food, and in the end they are killed. And then they are eaten." It's a sure bet, however, that when the Year of the Ox returns in 1997, the pig will be on the negative side of the comparison.

Yu said people in China know how to get the most of their New Year. No "one night" celebrations for them. "Usually in the Chinese New Year, they close for 15 days. They don't do anything. They go to families' houses. New Year's Eve is for their own families, just like here, but the next day they set out." Linda Parker, owner of Hunan Palace in Parmington Hills, agreed. "We are more into the food and visiting friends and family. I think Americans are more into relaxing. Parker, whose Chinese name is E'Lon Huang, is as effervescent as the champagne used in one of her restaurant's specialty dishes, Crispy Shrimp with Champagne Sauce. Along with her "kitchen partners," chefs Jack Dai and T. Shao, she has provided her customers with a Happy Chinese New Year for the past four years. "We like to have a party . We have a reputation for having good food and parties," she said.

Besides multi-course banquets and specialty dishes, most festivities will include a display of traditional Chinese dances, such as the Lion's Dance. "It brings luck to all the people in the room," said Parker. In addition to culturally symbolic dances, most restaurants will have martial arts demonstrations. Some, like Mon Jin Lau in Troy, will have magiciana, fortune tellera, even fireworks.

"It's very festive, loud and colorful. It's a sight on site. I think this is the way the New Year should be brought in. There's nothing that compares to this. The American New Year pales in comparison," said Karen

DePalma's features saxman

Livonia's well-kept secret is that saxman Larry Nozero, who for several years held forth at the old Hunter's Run, is back in Livonia and appears 8 to midnight, Mondays at DePalma's Ristorante, 31735 Plymouth, Livonia (313) 261-2430.

Nozero's mellow, melodic style gained him quite a following in Livonia during his Hunter's Run tenure. Vito DePalma heard of Nozero's popularity from his patrons, and when Nozero returned to the Detroit-area after a fouryear stint as music director of the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, DePalma sought him out.

Nozero applies - his melodic style to an interesting blend of standard tunes and original compositions. With his singing, puretoned alto saxophone, Nozero offers fresh interpretations of some favorite ballads and standards.

Nozero has surrounded himself with a compatible group of musicians who are sympathetic to his lyrical and melodic musical conception. The quartet at DePalma's includes Terry Lower on piano, Ray Tini on bass and Jim Ryan on drums. They supply the supple swinging support for Nozero's clean, uncluttered style. No synthesizers or rhythm machines here. Just the pure, unprocessed sound of four excellent musicians playing good music and having Nozero makes the alto sax sound the way it was meant to round and full, with a slightly dry tone. Nozero maintains a clear, clean pleasant sound in all registers. Each note is clearly articulated, and there are no wasted notes. His style is lyrical and melodic, even at fast tempos.

Nozero has been on the Detroit jazz scene since he was a teenager. and he remembers the days when

Detroit was known as a jazz Mecca. He entered the professional ranks and quickly became a firstcall musician, performing with many prominent enteratainers, including Ella Fitzgerald, Sarah Vaughan, Nancy Wilson, Tony Bennett, Mel Torme, Stan Getz, Dizzy Gillespie, Stan Kenton, Henry Mancini, Sonny Stitt, Marvin Gaye, the Four Tops and Stevie Wonder.

He was among the stable of musicians connected with Motown Records and so was a contributor to the Motown Sound.

Nozero has been on the staff of the Wayne State University jazz studies program since 1982 and continues to teach and perform in clinics at colleges across the country.

In 1989, he was named musical director of the Grand Hotel. With 19 musicians working under him, he coordinated all the music and entertainment for the hotel. He also performed with his own quartet and conducted the hotel orchestra. During his stay at the Grand Hotel, he organized the first four Mackinac Island Jazz Festivals, now an annual event. Nozero has recorded several albums, the most recent of which are "Kaleidoscopin," "Street of Dreams" and "Grand Hotel." Kaleidescopin" hit the national jazz charts in 1992 and stayed in the top 10 for 17 weeks. These albums are available DePalma's.

Well Livonia, the secret is now out. It is safe to tell all your friends.

Film presents 'Tales from Arab Detroit'

The Detroit Institute of Arts will host the premiere screening of "Tales from Arab Detroit: Abu Zayd Comes to America," a documentary film produced by the Arab Community Center and Olive Branch Productions, 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 20 in the lecture hall. Tickets are $10, call (313) 842-7010 or (313) 833-2323.

MITCH

The film tells the story of two Egyptian poets who toured metro Detroit in 1993, reciting the 1,000year-old epic of the lengendary Arab hero, Abu Zayd.

The film points a camera at the Arab community's reaction to these men and their ancient art.

It also asks what it means to be Arab in America today. By capturing the complicated, often contradictory ways in which Arab-Americans balance the demands of old and new identities, "Tales from Arab Detroit" leads its views through a community which thrives on tradition and change.

It's Michigan's only Russian restaurant. 'Da Bear.

Russian Bear, that is, on Orchard Lake Road, north of Maple, in the heart of West Bloomfield's restaurant district.

And like 'da Bears this season. the restaurant started slowly with a few missed plays. It took a while for both the Chicago Bears and the Russian Bear to jell.

Open since April, it occupies what formerly was RIK's, the high-profile northern Italian restaurant which owner Rick Halberg gave up in order to open a smaller spot, Emily's in North-

Russian Bear not only inherited RIK's space, but also its chef - Gary Landon.

"There was a lot of confusion at the beginning," Landon confirms. 'But we've made some changes."

The result is a major menu revision - "We've put in more chicken and vegetarian dishes and more variety." Landon has also lightened up many dishes, "taking the old type Russian fare and putting it into a '90's fashion." And there's a new person in charge of service.

A frequent customer, Regina Baybik of West Bloomfield, testifies to the progress of the restaurant. A Russian immigrant, she's been here 16 years.

The menu was always wonderful," she said. "But the food has gotten much better. And the service is improving.'

She recommends the blini (a small pancake) with caviar (they also serve it with sour cream and jelly) as an appetizer. She also highly recommends the fish dishes and beef stroganoff.

For the tiny, tightly knit metropolitan Detroit Russian community, "it's a place to meet people, dance and have a good time," she Woven ivory runners line the tables echoing the feel of the lace window shades and dividers separating each booth.

Chef Landon's conversion from Italian to Russian cooking was aided by his Polish heritage. And, "I learned a lot from (restaurant owner) Alex Stuck," said Landon, as we sat at one of the cozy, window-side tables sheltered from the snow and cold outside.

Stuck was a restaurateur in Russia, which he left 17 years ago for New York City. He worked at the famous Russian Tea Room before operating a string of coffee shops there. He and his wife, Svetlana, moved to West Bloomfield a year ago to open Russian Russian Bear's Sunday brunch buffet draws from 120 to 180 diners each week. It combines American/Russian dishes, from bagels and lox to eggs benedict to stuffed cabbage and beef stroganoff.

Russian Bear recently reopened for lunch (it was open early on then closed).

For those who aren't familiar with Russian food, Stuck gave a little history lesson. It's based on French cuisine.

And the most popular dishes in Russia also seem to be the most popular at Russian Bear: borsch, a traditional Ukrainian soup with beets, cabbage and vegetables served with sour cream; lamb, pork, fish or vegetable shaslik, which is served on skewers like a kabob; chicken Kiev, a classic breast of chicken, breaded and filled with dill butter, served on a crouton with vegetables and homemade julienne potatoes; and for dessert, apple streudel or cherry vareniki - a pasta stuffed with Michigan cherries in a sour cream

Plan a wedding, or renew your vows in paradise

Valentine's Day proposal this year includes champagne, a diamond ring, and a "Wedding in Paradise." You provide the ring, and Marriott's Frenchman's Reef Beach Resort will provide everything else!

Marriott's Frenchman's Reef has married more than 1,000 couples with its "Weddings in Paradise" program and the resort has an array of exciting new packages available for 1995. Bach ceremony takes place in a gazebo overlooking the Caribbean Sea with sunshine and calm breezes providing the perfect backdrop. The resort's full-time Wedding Director and her staff plan everything from flowers to photography and coordinate all necessary legal requirements.

For more information and to speak with Wedding Director

Norma Kennedy, call the resort toll-free at 1-800-FOR-LOVE.

Each package - the Deluxe, Luxury, Royal, or Tropical - offers couples a variety of amenities to choose from. For example: the Deluxe Wedding features bridal bouquet and boutenniere, photographer and 72 photos with album, a wedding cake on threetiered stand, imported premium champagne, and two witnesses if necessary.

The Luxury Wedding package provides the same features including champagne and a professional video. The Royal Wedding package offers newlyweds a chance to sail the magnificent waters of the Caribbean for a full day with a picnic lunch. And the Tropical package, a perfect choice for a quick and simple island wedding, includes just the wedding arrangements and ceremony (Note - a minimum 3-night stay is required for the Tropical Wed-

Prices for the 1995 "Weddings in Paradise" programs range from $550 to $1,440 depending on amenities selected (see chart below). Weddings can be arranged separately or in conjunction with a 6-day/5-night stay at Marriott's Frenchman's Reef with rates per couples ranging from $2,060 for a Deluxe Wedding to $2,540 for a Royal Wedding from December 18, 1994 through April 15, 1995. Rates range from $1,735 to $2,215 April 16 through June 3, 1995.

Morning Star rates are available on request.

For couples seeking to renew their wedding vows, Frenchman's Reef offers a Marriage Renewal Package available to guesta who plan to stay at the resort for a minimum of three nights. The price of $680 includes minister's fee, bouquet and boutonniere, cake, photos and champagne, and a special service in the gazebo by

He was also, just to keep the oord straight, the single greatest ballplayer who ever lived.

'Cobb," the new film by Ron Shelton, focuses on the final months of Ty Cobb's life. And because only a handful of flashbacks take place on the field, this isn't so much a movie about baseball as how America tolerates its living legends

When Cobb (Tommy Lee Jones) hires a writer to help him pen his autobiography, he wants to be remembered as a misunder-

stood genius, the game of bineball

He gets instead Al "Stumpy" Stump (Robert Wuhl), a popular sports writer who finds the 72year-old Georgia Peach "pathetic, paranoid, and living in past glories." The pistol-packing Cobb actually fires shots at him during that first visit, a warning that the disgusted yet fascinated Stump doesn't heed.

In another Oscar-caliber performance, Jones' Cobb is completely over the top, swallowing handfuls of pills with hard liquor - you never once see him eat and spouting venemous slurs against Jews, blacks, and women.

Other filmmakers would soften his character, make him a cuddly old coot. Ron Shelton, who also directed "Bull Durham," obviously has a love for the game, but he won't be hoodwinked by Cobb's justification that because he's the greatest, he no longer has to play by the rules.

Somehow I thought that more of "Cobb" would take place in the past, but actually there are only a handful of brief flashbacks, usually narrated by Cobb. Beautifully filmed in wide screen, they have the look of crisp hand-colored photography, a nice alternative to the dreamy, yellow-tinged images of the past we usually get.

Its depiction of America circa 1960 is also very believable, from Cobb's Lake Tahoe hunting lodge with bullet holes decorating the doors to the roadside motels where the multi-millionaire prefers to stay.

Like "Citizen Kane" (that equally unflattering portrait of a legendary American), the movie opens with a newsreel-style montage of Cobb's accomplishments. Later, during a testimonial dinner at the Baseball Hall of Fame, Cobb watches that same footage but begins to hallucinate and see his past sins - gambling, wife beating, even murder - played out on the screen. It's a powerful

Though it will probably play better in Detroit (where Cobb en-joyed his initial success), the movie has gotten a reputation as a horrible downer. Actually, it's often hilarious and surprisingly en-tertaining, especially as Cobb insists on driving Stump's car down snow-covered mountain roads.

"Cobb" only fails to score in its portrayal of the sports writer, through whose eyes we see much of the action. He's meant to take the bitter edge off of the movie, but he's so dull that we just look forward to Cobb's dynamic return to the scr

In real life Stump met with Cobb several times over a year. Shelton condenses the interviews into a wacky couple of months where the two are practically Siamese twins. The concept strains.

Overall, "Cobb" begins the movie year with a gutsy, uncom-promising portrait. Baseball movies this good make it a little easier to live without the real thing.

Drama: Legendary baseball great Ty Cobb (Tommy Lee Jones) threatens a patron in Reno while Al Stump (Robert Wuhl) tries to stop him in "Cobb," a Warner Bros. release.

DINK — DINK

The rap/metal hybrid is always risky proposition. Successes in the field like Faith No More and the "Judgment Night" soundtrack are consistently outnumbered by failures (anyone remember Heads Up?) that not only make the successes look bad but almost question the validity of the style itself. It's a fine line between cool and cliche, as bands like the Red Hot Chili Peppers are beginning to learn the hard DINK's eponymous debut (Capitol) packs more rave-style thump and less earthy funk than these bands, which is where it ultimately fails. The fiveman Ohio outfit plays up its musical ties to industrial in its bio, but DINK's mix of hard rock guitar and hip-hop rhythm doesn't recall Ministry so much as a beefed-up EMF.

While the frenetic first single "Green Mind" generates sufficient dance-floor heat to justify interest, too many of the album's other tracks are more concerned with exploring strange sonic textures ("Urban Suicide") and repeating tired jokes, instead of maintaining the metallic groove DINK initially achieves.

Its opening three tracks prove that the band is more than capable of success staying free of techno clutter, but keeping things lively is DINK's biggest problem.

(DINK's show on Thursday, Jan. 19, at Industry, 15 S. Saginaw, Pontiac, has been postponed until Wednesday, Feb. 1. For more information, call (810) 334-1999.)

Eve

- Over The Rhine

The radio-friendly "Happy With Myself' is already on its way to being a major hit, and vocalist Karin Bergquist is getting compared to everyone from Debbie Harry to Patti Smith. The secret weapon to "Eve"

(I.R.S.), though, is keyboardist/bassist/lyricist Linford Detweiler. His words read like a modern day e..e. cummings on paper, when he writes in "Should," for instance, "should I never use/the fingers that find/should I never read/the words on my feet/leading me to you." The good news is that this is as musically satisfying and challenging as those words deserve.

"Conjectures of a Guilty Bystander" and "Birds" showcase the hand's democratically performed musical magic. Guitarist Ric Hordinski and drummer Brian Kelley bring sensitivity and an appreciation for the quiet as markedly as their ability to rock in a manner frequently reminiscent of a cross between Rain Parade and Pink Floyd.

And, yes, there is Bergquist's delicious vocal prowess, on which the band will find its greatest strength in the popular arena. It is a voice with wrap around quality, best demonstrated on "My Love Is a Fever," in which she takes a line "my love is jazz licks" and nails one of the shining moments of pop music, circa 1994.

(Over The Rhine plays the Blind Pig, 206-208 S. First St., Ann Arbor, on Thursday, Jan. 26. For more information, call (313) 996-8555.)

Rhythm of Life — James Wailin'

The only complaint coming from these quarters concerning "Rhythm of Life" (Global Records) is that it may signal the end of the "local band" phase of the evolution of the James Wailin' Band.

It's the nature of the business, and it's our job, as listeners, to wish them well and send them out into the cruel world. A quick listen to this, though, and you just know that in a perfect world, the James Wailin' Band would have nothing to worry

Vocalist Wailin' has a solid set of pipes and delivers the material with an easy and passionate flair. The secret weapon here, though, are the twin guitars of Anthony Musto and semetimes Howling Diable Michael King, two of the wallin-est guitar slingers in town. Working on top of the rock steady rhythm team of bassist Kevin Floyd and drummer Frank Poma, the grooves at work here are the voodoo trance variety.

From the opening rock-steady opener, "Ain't It All Right," a song that just begi for the volume knob, to the Texas-funky "Tell the Truth" to the exquisitively bluesy "Used to Be Her Man," Wailin' and the crew cover all the blues bases. (James Wailin' performs at Moby Dick's, 5452 Schaefer Road, Dearborn, on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 20-21. For more information, call (313) 561-

Fans tune into 3-D's videos

For some Generation X-ers, Tuesday nights have become a time to catch a few videos sans MTV. The video experience has turned the Royal Oak alternative dance club 3-D into one of the most popular hangouts in town.

BY KYLE GREEN SPECIAL WRITER

The night club scene is very much a touch and go, "you're it" attraction, mandated by an unknown club status ranking system.

Tuesday night is the least likely night to do much of anything for some people except reflect on the previous weekend and watch "Frasier," but hundreds of metro Detroit night owls flock to the Royal Oak alternative dance club 3-D for what is slugged Video Appreciation Night.

During the past five years, the night has hosted many musical genres complete with $1 drink spe-

The evening is highlighted with videos from forgotten and current alternative, progressive and techno musical acts with almost whatever else in between for roughly an hour. The simple visual and musical gimmick, which has made and often broken musical careers, has allowed the club to be one of the most popular hangout spots in town.

If 3-D owner, Tom Pearlman, had his way, every night would be a Tuesday night in his club.

There was a time that it was me and six other people," said Pearlman, who also owns the young adult dance club, The Black Cat, in Royal Oak. "When Tuesday grew from six to 20 people I imagined more . . . I started radio ads and I put it prominently in our fliers and slowly it grew."

Popularity explosion Grow it did . . . actually it explod-

The club opens at 8 p.m. with no cover charge until 9 p.m. By midnight it's packed with some of the area's most trendy Generation X-ers and a waiting line that wraps around the front of the building on north Main Street, regardless of weather condi-

Videos from the chosen artists, such as Nirvana, Siouxsie and the Banshees, Soundgarden or genres like the "UK Trends" night, featuring Oasis and Belly videos, usually air between 9 and 10:30 p.m., when the club is about half full.

The videos are projected on a 10foot screen at one end of the centrally located dance floor, allowing patrons to sit or stand while watching the imthrob on the dance floor to their favorite video saviors.

Unable to control his dancing feet during a Cult-themed evening, 26year-old Bill Carter spent the majority of the hourlong show bopping in and out of the projected images.

"It is like a rush," Carter said referring to the video appearance, "when you are out there dancing and there is a video. It feels as if you are at a live

"I usually tend to hang out here, videos are just a plus," the Rochesterbased ophthalmologist added.

The visually themed night is something which is almost a demand from club goers which have grown up with the mass music video appeal of MTV, according to Royal Oak resident Dennis Lembree.

"When I was younger I was into MTV a lot - now I am less interested as much. Here they don't play the mainstream videos, they play the deep cut or low-budget videos," which he would much rather watch, he said.

Planning the night for the vast clientele is difficult, even when themes are plotted a month in advance, according to club DJ "Davo," who has overseen the night for the last four years.

"There are a lot of bands I'd like to do, but they don't have videos (compilations)," Davo said, citing Jane's Addiction and Stone Temple Pilots as examples.

"It is real hard to please people because we have an alternative nature music here," Pearlman said, " but what is alternative music to one is not to another."

Requests are taken and discussed between Pearlman and Davo, who draws from his own video cassette library, borrowed or rented material and from the club's video cassette subcriptions from Telegenics videos.

Rare idea

Video Appreciation Night is a rare idea but not an odd way of attracting the clientele, according to Craig Price, account executive of the New York City-based Telegenics.

"It is the kids who grew up on TV (who are interested), opposed to their parents who grew up just listening to the radio," Price said.

For a $100 monthly basic subscription, Telegenics issues either a oneages. Others move freely, sway or hour video cassette or a more expen-distributed to dance clubs.

sive two-hour long format complete with a video host which airs current Top 40, country, progressive, high energy or urban dance tracks.

Between 12-16 artists are featured on the hourlong cassette, Price said.

The vast majority of the company's circulation list include dance clubs and bars while retail stores and military bases are included, he said, noting that the company was recently bought out by the Los Angeles-based ET Video Link which will expand the cassettes' circulation internationally. The most popular hourlong video cassettes sold, Price said, are the high energy dance-based videos which are

"I just think the whole video market is open in bars because if someone goes in and doesn't know anyone they can watch videos," he said. "As long as the bars are playing them and the patrons are buying, the bars are making money."

rue, Madonna University's men's basketball team is far down the list when it comes to ranking the NAIA's top teams in the Great Lakes Section. But there are some individuals who stand out.

Like sophomore forward Brandon Slone, a Plymouth Salem graduate. Slone leads Madonna and was 10th in the section in scoring through Jan. 8, averaging 18.1 points per game. Slone also ranked eighth in rebounding (6.9) and seventh in free throw percentage (76.5 percent).

Other Fighting Crusaders listed among the Section leaders: Mike Maryanski, a freshman forward, is first (2.0 per game) and Jason McNabb is fourth (0.9) in blocked shots; Jay Dimes ranks just behind Slone in rebounding (6.9); and in assists, Brandon Lemley is ninth (3.8) and Christian Em-

Late basket lifts PCA to victory

BY NEAL ZIPSER STAFF WRITER

It was a game Dan House would have loved - a home game against perennial league power Auburn Hills Oakland Christian.

And although House, who is missing his senior season after injuring his knee during soccer season, wasn't able to be on the court, he was still part of Plymouth Christian Academy's comefrom-behind 52-50 victory over the Lancers.

After a lethargic first half, during which the Eagles committed 20 turnovers and were fortunate to be trailing only 29-27, PCA retired House's No. 23 in an emotional halftime cermony.

With House sitting on the PCA bench for the second half, the Eagles rallied from an eight-point deficit to beat Oakland on a seven-foot baseline jumper from junior Jamie Neil with four seconds remaining.

"The halftime presentation for Dan inspired us," Neil said. "Dan was a key for us last year; he was our leading scorer and the heart of our team. When he got hurt, we knew it was serious. We really miss him."

Neil, who finished with a teamhigh 11 points, was the go-to man when PCA gained possession with 24 seconds remaining. With 14 seconds left, Neil had the baseline open and drove the lane, but he missed the lay-up. He hustled after the rebound, however, and re-set the play.

"The play was designed to go to me, but I wasn't supposed to shoot the ball with that much time left," Neil said. "I had the open lane, and just missed the shot. Thank God I got the rebound.

"It was a special play designed for Jamie but we were running it on the wrong side than we are used to." PCA coach Dan Brandel said. "When you get two shots, though, one is bound to go in."

PCA improved to 4-2 overall and 2-0 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. Oakland, the defending MIAC champ, fell to 3-3 overall and 0-1 in the league.

Junior Mike Roose (nine rebounds) and senior Andy Roose chipped in with nine points each for PCA.

With the Eagles in a tie at the top of the MIAC, Brandel took exception to a suburban newspaper article that said the Southfield Christian-Bloomfield Hills Roeper contest would be an early indication of who would be the league champ.

The league title is a long way from being settled," Brandel said. 'Several teams have a chance, and perhaps Roeper is the favorite because they have a couple 6foot-6 players. No one will go through the league perfect, though.

The Eagles committed 12 firstquarter turnovers, but trailed only 12-11. PCA committed eight more turnovers in the second quarter, yet made seven-of-eight free throws to trail by two at half-

Senior guard Keith Ford scored six-straight points in the third quarter to extend Oakland's lead to 40-32 entering the fourth.

Ford finished with a game-high 15 points for the Lancers. Sophomore Eli Johnson and senior David Rutledge added 11 apiece. The Eagles trailed 50-46 after Oakland's Ben Davis drained two free throws with 2:58 left to play. Those points were to be the last for the Lancers. PCA freshman center Ben Davis (no relation to Oakland's namesake) scored on consecutive layups to tie the game with 1:42 remaining. Both teams exchanged turnovers before Neil's heroics. "I feel we were the better team, but perhaps we stole the game, Neil said. "Oakland has a good team and we look at this game as the highlight of our season. Brandel, who picked up his sec-ond win over Oakland in his nine years of coaching, didn't agree that PCA stole the win. "I can honestly say we have the better team," Brandel said. "We just weren't on track."

A look at the record would lead to this quick conclusion: Plymouth Salem won't be as tough in volleyball as it was a year ago.

What else could one conclude upon seeing a 6 4 record?

Don't be misled. The Rocks are much better than that won-loss mark indicates. Two of their defeats came last weekend - at one of the state's premiere tournaments, a 48 team affair hosted by Portage Northern. Salem reached the gold medal round before suffering elimination; the Rocks went 3-2 for the tourney.

We were real happy with the day," said co coach Allie Suffety. "We played some real good competition But the kids are playing well right now.

What pleased Suffety was the way the Rocks rebounded against Kalamazoo Central, which had beaten them earlier this season. This time Salem prevailed in the first round of the tournament, winning 15-11, 15-6. The Rocks also won their next match, defeating Comstock 15-3, 15-5.

That put them into the second

round, opening against host Portage Northern. A perennial state power, Northern handed Salem a 15-3, 15-7 defeat.

After that, the Rocks showed something both Suffety and cocoach Brian Gilles had been trying to develop - concentration on what's ahead, not behind. "We want them to focus and take on the challenge in front of them," said Suffety. Which they did, battling back to beat Stevensville Lakeshore 14-16, 15-6, Their 3-1 match record put them into the gold medal round (the top 16 teams played in the gold medal section, with the next 16 in the silver medal and the final 16 in the bronze medal; three separate, single-elimination tournaments).

But Salem failed to sustain the momentum gained from its win over Lake Shore, losing to another state powerhouse, East Kentwood, 3-15, 15-9, 15-11.

Shellye Sills had an outstanding tournament for Salem, collectage), 10 solo blocks and 12 block assists. Kelly Johnston was next best for the Rocks with 17 kills.

Karen Gundry had 15 kills and led the defense with 38 digs, with setter Erin Koch getting 14 kills and 66 assists-to-kills, and Paula Dombrowski adding 14 kills. Kim Sheldon (98 percent good serves) and Julie McGurrin (seven aces) led the serving, and Karen Springsteen was a pleasant surprise off the bench with 21

Staying focused will be of utmost importance now for Salem. The Rocks host the Plymouth Festival Tournament Saturday, with Dexter, Bloomfield Hills Lahser, Trenton and Ypsilanti Lincoln competing. Dexter ended Salem's two-year win streak last season by collecting the title.

On Monday, the Rocks open their Western Lakes Activities Association season with a match at defending league champion Livonia Churchill.

Canton falls in semis

One particular obstacle kept getting in Plymouth Canton's path at Saturday's Walled Lake Central Invitational — Jenisen.

The Chiefs opened and closed the tournament the same way, with losses to Jenison. In the first round of pool play, Canton fell 15-8, 15-8; after rebounding to win two matches and split a third, the Chiefs ran into Jenison again in the semifinals.

And although their performance was stronger, the result was similar: a 15-9, 15-11 defeat.

The results of the day (two wins, two losses and a tie) left Canton with an 8-2-2 overall record.

"We took a different approach against them the second time," said Canton coach Melinda Cain of the second Jenison meeting with particular reference to the Wildcats' 6-foot-5 middle blocker. "We avoided her with our serving, and that helped us a lot."

Inbetween meetings with Jenison, Canton defeated Walled Lake Western 15-2, 15-11, and split with Rochester, 12-15, 16-14, to finish second in its pool. That put the Chiefs into the quarterfinals against Westland John Glenn, which they beat 15-7, 15-9.

High school excellence in written expression. North Farmington graduate

Lisa Bagley placed third in the MOWA competition last year. Subsequently, her essay — Following the Goldminers: A New Age Alaskan Adventure - was entered in the national Outdoor Writers Association of America Youth Writing Scholarship competition. She also placed third in that contest and earned a $200 scholarship for her effort.

"It was a great honor to receive this award," she said at the time. "I had written the essay as an extra credit assignment for my Advanced Placement English class at the end of my junior year. I based my essay on a hiking trip I .had taken to Alaska the summer

The top three winners will receive a plaque from MOWA and the top five winners will have their work published in the Woods-N-Water News, one of Michigan's premiere outdoor newspaper. Upon publication, the entries become eligible for entry in the national OWAA contest.

All entries must be postmarked by March 1.

Beware of thin ice

Ice on southeastern Michigan inland lakes was looking pretty good at the beginning of the week, but the forecast for warm, rainy conditions heading into the weekend will most likely render most lakes unsafe again.

The best ice is hard, blue ice. When ice has a grey or white tint, or is full of bubbles and air pockets it's best to stay away from it.

Ice thickness can sometimes be misleading. Thin ice (three to four inches) that has frozen solid and remains frozen is often safer than five or six inches of ice that has frozen, began thawing, then frozen again. Ice that is soft and mushy, or tends to bend a little when weight is placed on it should also be left alone.

It is a good idea to keep a rope, hose or ladder close to any ice being used for recreation.

If a companion falls through, keep the person reasonably calm and try to rescue him/her with an object such as a rope, branch, jacket or boat. Don't put yourself in jeopardy by running out to the person. Extend an object to the person and call for immediate medical help. Hypothermia, or a subnormal body temperature, can be life threatening and can take hold in as little as four minutes.

If you should fall through the ice the first thing to do is to remain calm. If you panic, you'll only do yourself more harm because you won't be thinking clear-

Keep your arms extended so your head doesn't go below the surface and try to roll out of the hole. If the ice breaks, roll again until you get out of the hole, then continue rolling until you are well away from the broken ice. Remember, the added weight of the water will make you heavier and more prone to fall through again so don't try to stand up immedi-

Ex-Main Street pastor gets new assignment

The former paster of Main Street Baptist Church in Canton has been called to a pasterate in Elkhorn City Baptist Church.

Michael York, a native of Arjay, Ky., received the call to minister at the Elkhorn City, Ky., church on Dec. 4. He most recently worked as a campus writer at Clear Creek Baptist Bible College in Pineville, Ky., where he earned a bachelor of theology degree in 1982. He also earned a master of divinity degree from the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary in 1988.

York was licensed to the ministry at Riverview Baptist Church in Calvin, Ky., in 1979. He also pastored at the Madison Heights Baptist Church in Madison Heights, Eastview Baptist Mission in New Orleans, La., Fairfield Baptist Church in Moselle, Miss., and the First Baptist Church in Ewing, Va. He has served as a chaplain for the Santa Barbara Rescue Mission in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Active in several aspects of the Southern Baptist Convention, York served on the Executive Board on the Baptist State Convention of Michigan from 1991 to

The 40-year-old pastor has experience in marriage and family and substance abuse counseling, discipleship training and revival preaching and helped form support groups for substance abusers

He also has led seminars on "A Christian Perspective of Death and Dying," which enables churches to minister effectively to those suffering with grief and

In his personal testimony, York ives credit to caring friends at a Christian coffee house for helping him come to Christ.

"After being caught up in the drug culture for some eight years, I had seemingly hit bottom," he said. Hospice offers children's grief series Community Hospice Services will offer a free children's grief support series, beginning Tuesday, Jan. 31, for children age 6 years and older who have suffered a significant loss of a loved one.

The classes will meet for six consecutive weeks at Douglas Elementary School, located at Hartel and Maplewood streets, south of Warren and east of Middlebelt Road, Garden City.

Class sessions will be 6:30-8 p.m. Tuesdays and conclude with a group memorial service March 7. Classes will be filled on a first come-first served basis.

A special one-hour parent orientation session is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 26, in Douglas School's Instructional Materials Center. Optional parent sessions will be held concurrently with the children's series during the first five weeks of the children's program. "Adults are easily able to identify that they are grieving, while children are not," said Vicki Des-Jardins, director of social services for Community Hospice Services. "They may not be able to identify their emotions or to realize that these emotions are part of a normal grieving process. We can help children to process their grief in a way that gives them skills which will sustain them throughout life."

The series will teach children to identify and express their emotions. Participants will learn how to cope with difficult feelings, how to give support to others and how to receive support from others. Skilled facilitators will lead the children through the series which will cover topics such as reactions and feelings associated with loss, defenses and protecting feelings, support systems, coping and adjusting and affirming one another. The final week of the program will feature a memorial service for the children in which they can honor their loved one. Parents/ guardians will be able to attend optional sessions which will focus on helping parents understand children's grief, how the parents can help their child to heal grief and exploring adult grief issues.

Community Hospice also offers Connections for children 6:30-8:30 p.m. the fourth Wednesday of the month at its Westland office, 32932 Warren Road at Venoy Road, Suite 100.

"I am so happy we can offer tor, at (313) 522-4244.

this program free of charge to children in the community; I'm glad we can play a part in the healing of grieving children," said executive director Maureen Butrico. "I remember well the pain of losing my father at the age of 12. I felt different because I no longer had a father, and I don't want children to have to experience the pain alone.

"I want them to know that there are other people who understand how they feel, and these people can help them through their pain.

MARTY FIGLEY

Ferns add faithful finery to the home

erns are lovely plants that can add a touch of green to many areas of the home. Although some authorities indicate that ferns are difficult to grow, I've had a Boston fern for almost 15 years and it still (as the commecial says) keeps going, and going and going.

It was an anniversary gift from Lew and has been a faithful plant since the day it was delivered - it was large and healthy then, which may attribute to its success. It has been divided twice and shared with friends and relatives, who generally have had success with their divisions.

The fern has been content to sit in a corner with a west and north window where it has resided most of the time. I did put it in a west and south exposure for a while and it did just as well there

In its present location, the large west window is covered with a venetian blind that is kept almost closed to ward off the hot intense rays of the western sun. Since Bostons like a slightly cooler temperature especially at night (65 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit), this is an ideal location.

Watering

When I divided the fern I replaced the soil with a mixture of commercial potting mix with some vermiculite added to help with drainage. I apply Schultz fern fertilizer several times in the fall and spring (when I remember) and water when the soil feels dry to the touch. Occasionally I lug the heavy pot to a sink full of water to give it a good deep soak. Ferns don't like the soil to dry out completely, however, so don't be too lax with watering.

Pour the water directly on the soil, father than the foliage, to avoid the possibility of the lower/under leaves from rotting. If the fronds turn brown, cut that part away

If you summer your Boston fern outdoors, cut away the foliage on the outside of the pot to eliminate some of the messy shedding that occurs with ferns.

Special species

The Boston fern (Nephrolepis exaltata "Bostonenisis") originated in Boston in 1894 as a cultivar of N. exaltata, a fern with long and erect foliage, commonly called "Swordfern," which, although it originated in the tropics, was the original house fern. Because the Boston had a more graceful growth habit, it soon outranked the original in popularity.

From the Boston fern we now have other cultivars -- Boston compacta, Fluffy Ruffle, Roosevelt, Whitmanii, Petticoat and Dallas. My Dallas fern has been with me for at least seven years and it too has required no special treatment.

There are many, many species of ferns and a trip to a well-stocked garden center or florist will give you some ideas of the uniqueness of them. Look for Holly (species of Cyrtomium), with leatherlike leaves; Rabbit's foot (Davallia), with fuzzy creeping rhizomes; Staghorn (Platycerium), with unusual antlerlike foliage; Bird's nest (Asplenium nidus), with wide, leaflike rank Van Dusen's dream-like landscapes of far away places tease the viewer with their beauty and palette reminiscent of French Impressionist

The Lironia Arts Commission exhibits more than 20 of his pastel landscapes Jan. 16-30 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, located on Farmington Road south of Five Mile. Misty, ethereal destinations of Paris, London and the French Riviera provide a romantic getaway for viewers. Van Dusen has visited Paris three times since 1990 as a student of Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association instructor, Leslie Masters. He bathes its architecture in a mysterious atmosphere.

"After three trips to France, working on location, studying color, I feel it's getting through to my work now," said Van Dusen at an interview in his Livonia home. He has lived in the city since 1978, the last three years with a big black cat named "The Gipper."

The beauty and quality of light found in France that the Impressionists so loved has captured Van Dusen's heart as well.

"I like southern France, the area. Paris is a beautiful city and I liked when we went up to Giverny where Monet lived and sketched in his gardens, but I think my favorite is Nice, a favorite of Picasso and Matisse," he said. Van Dusen begins his pastel paintings on paper. with a preliminary pencil sketch made on location. If time allows, he prefers to follow it with a black and white value study and then a color sketch. "I do like a subtle or softer palette, the use of earth colors like after the Venetian school of painting."

Carvings play key role in culture

International Ice Sculpture Spectacular, Native West is hosting an American Indian carving show featuring the spiritual objects referred to by the natives as fetishes Jan. 12-29 at the gallery, 863 W. Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth.

While visitors are thrilling to the sights outside, guests at Native West will be treated to more than 300 American Indian carvings, primarily pocket and table size fetishes, but large scale sculpture by Navajo artist, Brian Begay who visited the gallery during the Plymouth walk creating alabaster carvings on site.

"It's a great tie in with the ice sculptures. Outside you have the great artistic talents of the carvers and inside the Native American carvers work and the meaning behind their carvings," said Annette Horn, co-owner of Native West with husband Ken.

Van Dusen's drawings reveal an underlying mastery of technical skills. He has perspective and composition down to a tee.

"I've been drawing all my life," said the single, 60-something artist who's an equally avid golfer.

"The problem I've had switching was put best by an instructor of mine who said, 'You have facility, now I'd like to see more of you in the work.'

The Livonia Arts Commission. which is currently short of members, hosts artist-of-the-month shows at city hall, the Civic Center Library Fine Arts Gallery and the library's second floor show-cases. Dorothy Wilshaw books the shows at city hall. Van Dusen approached the commission nearly one year ago about exhibiting in city hall.

"There's not too much we object too. I see a lot of artists go into a violent thing. We don't show that because the employees at city hall have to live with this for an entire month. We bring in work that people would buy for their living room, home or office,' said Wilshaw, an arts commissioner for four years.

One of the criteria for exhibiting work at city hall is that all art must be framed. Another is that no nudes are allowed. All arts commissioners have been appointed by the the mayor. They must be residents of Livonia and willing to work to bring the arts into the community. One of the benefits of all that labor is viewing and enjoying exhibits like Van

"I hope people that see my work get a good feeling, set aside the cares of the day. I try to paint to please myself and if I please myself I find I usually end up pleasing others as well.'

Exhibit hours for the shows at city hall are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Focus on movie criticism

Attention film aficionados: The "Film Close-Up" course offered by the Cultural Arts Division of Southfield Parks and Recreation presents the opportunity to critique, explore or even bash the films featured at local cinemas.

This eight-week program will begin Tuesday, Jan. 17. Registration begins the week of Jan. 9 at the Mary Thompson Cultural Center, 25630 Evergreen. Students will be required to pay a $20 fee for the course, plus the cost of their theater tickets.

For more information, call (810) 354-4717.

Students will attend area cinemas weekly for eight sessions, then meet to critique the films. Sets, costumes, music and special effects as well as directing and editing will be discussed. Script interpretation and acting quality will be evaluated.

There is something for everyone from Amish quilting to Oriental painting. Along with a yariety of media, the arts and crafts classes feature scheduling to fit any lifestyle as well as options such as one day workshops and continuing studies.

Watercolor is one the most popular mediums being taught this winter. The Visual Arts Association of Livonia (VAAL) is offering a two part workshop with a new twist, painting watercolor from an Oriental still life. Items from China and Japan used in the setup belong to award winning artist Connie Lucas of Canton Township.

"With this workshop they can stretch their imagination and learn simple design and composition," said Lucas, who earned a master of fine arts degree from Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

Along with emphasizing color, composition and design in painting watercolors, Lucas will briefly discuss the influence of Oriental printmaking on contemporary art. "It started with the Impressionists especially Paul Gauguin. Studying Japanese woodblock prints flattened his forms, simplified his compositions and intensified his colors and as it turns out we end up having influenced Oriental art," said Lucas, a 30-year veteran of watercolor painting.

In addition to Lucas' workshops, VAAL will offer a sevenweek class, "Creative Approach to Watercolor" taught by Edee Joppich of Farmington Hills. Joppich owns the Baystreet Gallery in Northport. A six-week course will focus on oil and acrylic painting on canvas with Birmingham artist Else Pedersen. Other VAAL workshops include marbling on paper with Susan Argiroff of Livonia and watercolor monotypes taught by Lily Dudgeon of Dear-

Lucas will also teach an introduction to watercolor class beginning Feb. 7 through the Plymouth/Canton Adult Education program. watercolor. Starting 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 17, for six weeks. Nancy Dendy of Redford Township will concentrate on oil and acrylic painting stressing technique, color mixing, good work habits and tips for creating stronger paintings and improving drawing skills.

Kay Rowe of Plymouth takes over 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 19, for eight weeks in an introduction to transparent watercolor. Rowe, who has a master's degree from the University of Michigan, will cover direct painting, material selection, stretching paper and color theory.

Creative watercolor with Janis Madias of Farmington Hills is held from 6-8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 19, and runs for six weeks. Taught with a loose free brush the class aimed at freeing your self-expression covers experimental techniques using Saran Wrap, salt and stencil.

"People should take the class for the enrichment of their own life and perspective on everything they look at," said Madias

"It gives you a chance to look into yourself and express a vision that can only be personal.'

That something different medium you might be looking for is Celia Block's six week silk painting class from 10 a.m. to noon Monday, Jan. 23.

Realtors upbeat about merger of boards

BY BECKY BURNS SPECIAL WRITER

Most Realtors are, for the most part, in favor of the planned merger of three area real estate boards, if only because it will make things more cost efficient.

And they can't seem to find much wrong with the rest of the idea either.

There are no negatives," said James Riley of Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate in Birmingham of plans for his board, the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors, along with the Rochester Area Association of Realtors and the South Oakland County Board of Realtors, to combine into one.

"It's a progressive move for the '90s. We're right-sizing the board,"

Riley said. The merger is scheduled to go into effect by May. A six-member task force was formed, with representatives from each of the three boards, to iron out the details.

The new board tentatively will be called the Metropolitan-Oakland Association of Realtors. It will service the more than 2,800 members that currently make up the three boards.

One board will be more cost effective because with one ruling body rather than three, the direct cost of operation will decrease. Also, overlapping committees will be able to be combined. When the boards merge, their assets will also be combined.

"As is the way of all industry today, consolidating and streamlining is in the forefront to keep costs down, said Tony Buhagiar, broker of Re/ Max Riteway Realtors in Southfield.

Buhagiar is a member of the South

Oakland County Board of Realtors.

He said he does not foresee any major problems to result from the merger. And he is not alone in his thinking. "Like any new system that gets put into place, there are going to be rough spots in the road," said Andy Sakmar of Century 21 Sakmar & Associates in Rochester. "These three (boards) are closely related in geography and types of activities, educational and social," he said, adding that the same rules and values pertain to the three boards.

The Realtors, rather than the general public, will be the ones to directly benefit from the new board, with greater access to information and educational services.

"The board serves as a resource for agents. It has very little to do with the customer," Riley said.

He added that customers will benefit indirectly from the greater amount of information they will be able to receive from individual agents about property available in different areas. Now, Realtors tend to be limited to their current boards' boundaries.

Although the new board will be bigger in both area size and membership, it shouldn't cause Realtors to lose their local touch, Sakmar said. "Some of the hometown identity will be maintained in some manner," he said.

One example he gave was helping out local charities.

The merger is just one change that will allow Realtors increased access to information. Boards of Choice, which went into effect this month, remove regional restrictions. Principal brokers now may ioin any Realtor board or association in the state, without regard to market area, and therefore tap into vaster informational sources. Realtors also may join both a primary and a secondary board if they choose.

"Boards of Choice - that in itself is going to bring out a competitiveness. More services at a reduced rate, that's good for agents," Sakmar said.

Another change that took effect Jan. 1 is the new Michigan Association of Realtors classification of all real estate brokers and salespersons as Realtors. All members have voting

Q. Can you give me a list of what you consider to be the areas of potential liability for directors of associations so that I can point out to the other members of the board the exposure that they face and perhaps they will be more business like and less pennywise and pound foolish. A. You have raised a good point. Directors generally are not compensated, but still bear legal risks that include: failure to maintain and repair the condominium property; failure to adequately determine and fund reserves, improper investment of reserves; improper budget management; failure to collect assessments; negligent hiring and supervision; failure to file required reports and returns, premises liability; selective enments; wrongful towing; wrongful filing of assessment liens; failure to correct conditions that violate environmental laws; slander and/or defamation of character; interference with contract rights of others; discrimination; breach of duty of loyalty; self dealing and conflicts of interest.

That should give you a good idea of the type of abuses that sometimes occur in operation of condominium associations by directors.

Q. We note that there are an increasing number of bankruptcies in our condominium project. As a board, we want to ensure that we take whatever steps are necessary to protect the association, to the extent possible, from bankrupt coowners. Do you have any recom-

A. At a recent Community Associations Institute law seminar, it was emphasized that there is a necessity to adopt and enforce a uniform and consistent collection policy in order to show the bankruptcy judge that the association has a procedure for collecting assessments and that it does so consistently and uniformly.

A lien should be perfected against the condominium unit by recordation as soon as the association has any inkling of a bankruptcy possibility and clearly within the mandates of the collection policy.

However, once a bankruptcy is filed, the association may be stayed by the bankruptcy from taking any further action until relief from the bankruptcy court is obtained. You should consult with your association attorney for further details.

Q. We are trying to qualify as an adult community under various changes to the Fair Housing Act and wanted your comments in connection with the feasibility of that endeavor in order to comply with the Fair Housing Act Amendments regarding senior citizens.

A. HUD has not promulgated detailed rules and regulations concerning the various requirements necessary in order to establish compliance with the law in all respects.

My experience in discussing this matter with other association practitioners around the country is to attempt to get an opinion from HUD as to the propriety of your undertaking in advance, to the extent possible. and to otherwise closely monitor the regulations which should be coming out in regard to this type of activity. How HUD is receptive to this type of housing around the country may be different in terms of HUD's enforcement attitude around the country.

Foreign degree isn't good enough

It isn't always easy to establish a professional practice. A foreign-born woman architect finds that she has two strikes against her before she even steps up to the plate.

BY SUE BUCK

Brazilian-born architectural designer Vera Angelico positioning herself for success by starting her own gelico Design Group. The business, located in Plymouth, will also encompass the knowledge acquired in her husband's mail center business.

Angelico, 39, is registered in her country but not yet in the United

"When you aren't registered, you aren't considered a real architect," she said.

Angelico is also co-chairperson of the Michigan Chapter of Women in Architecture, a group which she started locally to bring women and minorities together.

Design consultant: Vera Angelico, an architect in her native Brazil, must upgrade her credentials before enjoying a full practice here.

Almost immediately, when Angelico arrived in 1981, she faced adversity and discrimination. "If I say that my degree is not from this country, it's like I'm not really prepared. Architecture in my country is seen as an art."

Here Angelico says, architecture is viewed from more of a business

Angelico holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in Architecture from the University of San Paulo. A bookstore, a federal building and a summer house for her mother are just some of her accomplishments.

"Everybody knew everybody in a town called Campinas," Angelico said. "It was like Plymouth and Northville. We got so busy on the drawing board.'

Now, as a consultant, she prepares for her registration exam in about three years. "I have been not been able to practice the same way since," she said.

Angelico has gone back to school to get a graduate degree from Lawrence Tech in Southfield.

At a recent conference she attended in Boston, women architects discussed the obstacles they face.

"In architecture, obstacles are more subtle," Angelico said. "In Boston, architects said that they cannot leave for maternity leave, because somebody else will take their place. And, there's the famous glass ceiling."

In a Nov. 1994 article in Architectural Record magazine, research found that little commitment is made to equal opportunity in architecture. Dramatic pay disparities exist.

Said Kathryn Anthony, a professor at the University of Illinois, in the article:"Men with 15 years experience typically earned $10,000 per year more than comparably experienced women."

Anthony found more differences in gender than in race. Experts say that it is critical that minorities be visible in the schools. Also in the article, Cecil Steward, dean of architecture at the University of Nebraska said that while women and minorities account for half of these entering architectural firms, only about 26 percent of women complete their degrees. Only 4.8 percent of architects in the U.S. are hispanics.

In starting her business, Angelico will hire a registered architect, most likely a woman.

"Architecture is my true passion," she said.

"To build my reputation, I serve on all kinds of committees." She serves on the administration building committee for Our Lady of Victory, Northville. "I'm putting the whole thing together for them as a volunteer. I'm doing all the work for them until they hire an archi-

Too perfect?

Trying to be perfect can hurt you

Perfectionism isn't an admirable character trait. The quest actually contributes to physical illness in the individual and creates conflict and dissatisfaction in the workplace.

That's the conclusion reached from a study by Human Synergistics International, a management consulting and training materials publishing firm in Plymouth

"Perfectionism is a way of thinking and behaving that on the surface seems a search for excellence and perfection, but actually brings great unhappiness, massive imperfection and poor health," said J. Clayton Lafferty, a clinical psychologist and Human Synergistics chairman.

"Perfectionism is, in fact, an illness manifested by the establishment of a never-ending series of self-defeating and impossible goals and dooming the perfectionist to an unfulfilled, unhappy and often lonely life," he added

Lafferty and his wife, Lorraine Colletti-Lafferty, also a psychologist, conducted a study of data collected from just over 9,200 managers and professionals over a 10-year period.

Each of the respondents had completed a Life Style Inventory questionnaire developed by Lafferty that measures an individual's predominant thinking patterns

The LSI identifies 12 key thinking styles common to everyone

Four achievement, self-actual ization, humanistic-encouraging and affiliative - are constructive, Laffertv said

The other eight styles - approval, conventional, dependent, avoidance, oppositional, power, competitive and perfectionistic - are counterproduc-

Of people who completed the LSI from 1980 through 1989, nearly 1,650 or 18 percent were identified as perfectionists according to their scores on the survey.

Those individuals described themselves as practical, competent, persistent and enduring, tries to be the best at things, impatient with own errors and tries hard to prove self.

Other characterizations included driven to succeed, de-emphasize feelings, seeks recognition and tends to be perfectionistic.

Individuals scoring high on the perfectionistic scale when considered as a group typically scored lower on the four constructive thinking styles, Human Synergistics reported

The study found that individuals who are perfectionists show a greater tendency to a variety of ill-health

They ranged from headaches and depression to gastrointestinal and cardiovascular problems.

In addition, perfectionists uniformly reported significant difficulties in the workplace and troubled relationships at home, Lafferty reported.

Those include an inability to delegate, alienation from children and multiple marriages

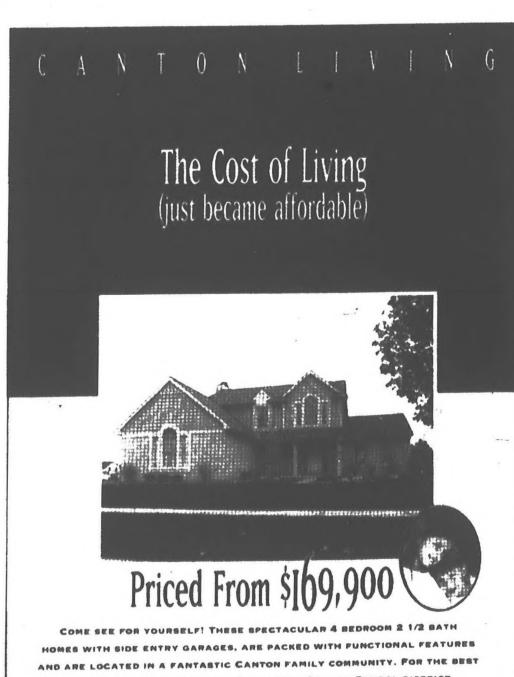

These difficulties and physical symptoms are directly attributable to the stress created by the perfectionist's thinking patterns, Lafferty said.

"What would be a better goal is a real standard of excellence where your self worth isn't tied up," Lafferty said. "Excellence is doing something that can be done.

Perfectionists usually got that way by not able to please a significant adult in their lives, Lafferty said.

"How do you get out? By really challenging where some of those impossible expectations came from," he added. Problems can snowball in the cor porate culture "If an entire organization's goals are based on perfectionistic notations, then goals typically are set unrealistically high, turnover of talented people increases and bottom-line results suffer," Lafferty

Business index up

The Michigan Business Activity Index compiled by Comerica Bank advanced seven points in November to a level of 154, compared with 147 in October.

November business activity in Michigan was 4 percent above year-earlier levels. From January through November, the state's economy was 3.3 percent above the comparable eleven-month period of 1993, reported David L. Littmann, senior economist with Comerica Bank in Detroit.

This latest gain places the state's economy at a record level, both for 1994 and historically," Littmann said. "Consistent with these high operating rates, the state's unemployment rate, at 4.6 percent in November, reflects the year-long strength of the auto industry.'

During November, other components of the index strengthened as well, including seasonally adjusted motor vehicle output and sales, and the average hourly work week in manufacturing. Only the energy components of the index softened.

Tin handles internet news groups

On line, go to the first level menu and type T for Tin.

Upon entering, Tin will load up some 3,722 news groups for you to read and respond to when desired. At first glance, the list of names may appear a bit strange but after awhile you can get pretty good figuring out what are the

EMORY group topics. Usenet has its own system of naming discussion groups. The structure begins with a broad topic name followed by a more focused name. The broad topic names include biz for business, sci for science, comp for computers, rec for hobbies, games and recreation, soc for social, alt for

You don't want to read all 3,700-plus news groups each time you arrive in Tin. Neither do point, answer yes. Type Q to return to the you particularly want to load up all 3,700 so you have to scan through the entire directory each time. So the first thing to do is to subscribe to the discussion groups of interest to list, typing Q will take you our of Tin to the you and unsubscribe to those that you could care less about. To do this, go to the File Manage area on the last menu and upon entering your comments will be read by hundreds or choose option one (1) to manage your files, then option four (4) for manage your news. The list of 3,700-plus will appear on the screen. With the cursor to the left of each subject, type Control K next to each topic you don't want to delete that subject. The remaining topics when you are finished will be your subscription list. Exit and when prompted save. You may end up subscribing to 20-60 news groups.

To read any major group, merely hit RE-TURN when the cursor rests on the desired topic line. A directory of individual postings will appear. Using arrow keys scan up and down the directory and hit RETURN when arriving at one you wish to read.

As indicated when discussing local chat, IRC and Listserv, users will want to lurk behind the scenes and read postings until they get a feeling for what the discussion group is about and to avoid posting a topic that was exhausted the week before. But let's assume you've done that and are ready to respond to a posting. How to do?

Looking at the choices on the bottom of the screen, you would be tempted to pick R for Reply. Wrong choice. That's what makes the Internet so much fun. If you press R, you will end up replying via e-mail only to the individual who posted, not to the entire news group.

Instead, to answer a post, select F for Forward. When you do you will enter Pico, a very handy text-editor for Usenet provided for O&E On line users. Use the Control K key to delete lines in long messages so only the gist of the posting appears. No one wants to re-read a (313)591-0903, at "log-in" prompt type "new" long posting just to read your response. Use and at "Key:" prompt type GL6NY2.

The O for Print does not work for me when I access news through our regular shell account, although I can print postings when I access Usenet through my SLIP account. Try it and if it works, fine. No harm done.

This ends the basic tutorial phase of this column. In the weeks ahead we will visit some special areas of the Internet, look at Internet resources, and discuss special features for youth and other users.
