Teacher pay prompts questions

A local attorney put together a report that states Plymouth-Canton teachers are paid more than their counterparts in surrounding districts. He questioned why the salaries were so high.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Retired attorney Ted Bohlen put some tough questions to the Board of Education regarding the high salaries Plymouth-Canton teachers are paid at a time when another millage request is being considered.

Bohlen compared Plymouth-Canton salaries and test scores to those in Ann Arbor, Wayne-Westland, Livonia and Northville schools and found large discrepancies.

"The entry level salary for Ann Arbor is $28,005," he told the board Monday night. The Plymouth-Canton salary schedule has two figures, one for the first semester, and an increase for the second semester. The entry level at Plymouth-Canton is $30,997, or 10.7 percent higher than Ann Arbor, and for the second semester is it is increased to $31,307, or 11.8 percent."

Ann Arbor and Plymouth-Canton have nearly identical enrollments, yet Ann Arbor employs 1,040 teachers

Firefighter challenges state law

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Can firefighter Bill Warren run for Plymouth City Commission?

Warren filed petition signatures in May to get his name on the November ballot. But Plymouth City Attorney Donald Morgan has ruled that both state and municipal law prohibit a city employee from running for the office.

On Wednesday, Morgan planned to file a petition for declaratory action — a request for an opinion — before a Wayne County circuit judge, said attorney Cameron Miller of Morgan's law office.

The purpose of the filing is to show "that the city attorney's legal decision is correct," said City Manager Steve Walters.

Warren, of Plymouth, is one of six candidates who've filed to run in November. They are vying for four terms on the City Commission — three four-year terms and a two-year term for the fourth highest vote-getter.

The candidates include incumbents Stella Greene and Dennis Shrewsbury. Besides Warren, other commission candidates are stockbroker Craig Brass, Donald Dismuke and Joseph Koch.

Commissioners Robert Jones and Bill McAninch are not running for re-election.

One city official said Warren plans to get the American Civil Liberties Union interested in representing him. Warren declined to return calls to the Observer.

"There is a state statute about conflicts of interest," Walters said. "The legal counsel of the city is making a decision based on the information at hand, consideration of both the state statute and the city charter conflict-of-interest provisions combined with some court precedents."

For example, he said, conflict-of-interest issues would be raised if a city commissioner who was a fireman was deciding how much money to provide the fire department during annual budget considerations.

Also, a firefighter who is serving as a city commissioner could be involved in a lawsuit, Walters said, and as a commissioner could be called on to vote on how to settle the suit.

Commissioners would also be asked to vote on how much to pay firefighters, and how much to give in benefits.

"There are liability issues, or anything viewed as favoring one department but not favoring another," Walters said.

Walters said the city is seeking the court opinion rather than forcing Warren to spend money to seek it on his own.

Walters said the city has asked the court to offer an opinion before the end of September, before ballots are printed.

Renovation funds target of council campaign

The Plymouth Community Arts Council's "Celebrate the Arts" corporate fund-raising campaign is pushing toward its goal to raise enough money to renovate the arts council's new headquarters.

There is an incentive to raise money. The arts council was notified in the spring it will get a Michigan Equity Grant for $50,000 toward the renovation — if it can raise $90,000 on its own.

Randy Lee, arts council executive director, said the campaign is about $30,000 short of its goal. "We've been working for about five months now; we really appreciate the support of the community," she said.

"If there's any civic organization that's willing, we'll be glad to speak to any groups concerning our efforts and levels of giving," Lee said.

A $5,000 donation gets a business's or group's name on a Pewabic Pottery work to be mounted in the lobby of the renovated arts council headquarters.

Possibly this winter, some site preparation work could begin on the new Plymouth District Library approved by voters in November.

Architect Mark McPherson of the firm Merritt, McCallum and Cieslak presented to library board members on Tuesday a preliminary floor plan of the two floors planned for the library. It is to be built on the library site just south of city hall on Main Street.

Board delays hiring administrator

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

An administrative proposal to hire a "network manager" at a salary of $41,700 was tabled by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education Monday. The action came after Trustee Mark Horvath raised several questions about the new administrative post.

As proposed, the network manager would assist Donna Aveck, director for computer services and instructional technology, and David Rodwell, associate director for research and technology. Aveck and Rodwell work with media specialists in school buildings, assisting them with newly installed high technology.

Recommended for the job Monday night was Karen Gearns, a consultant with the district. Gearns came to Plymouth Canton from Barton Malow, the construction firm implementing many of the bond projects in the schools.

As technology assistant, Gearns has acted as the liaison between the school district and vendors during installation of a $12 million voice, video and data network.

■ 'I would have expected a more concrete job description.'

Mark Howarth

Gearns is the wife of Chris Gearns, assistant head of maintenance at Smith Elementary.

Horvath said the board still hadn't receive a detailed job description for the network manager.

"I would have expected a more concrete job description, and our expectations of how they will work with existing staff," said Horvath. Horvath said he was unclear about the need for another administrator, given the fact that aide time has been added to help take the load off media specialists.

Also, said Horvath, "it seems to me that once all the users are trained, at that point, the network manager position goes away."

"That's true if the technology remains static," said Aveck.

Plymouth-Canton schools are now equipped with personal computers, interactive television, laser and compact discs, video cameras and tapes, Xapshot Canon cameras, editing machines, and filming studios.

"One of our key goals," said Rodwell, "is to have on board someone with experience in technology and the ability to communicate well with teachers and children in classrooms. You need someone who understands what's going on when something goes wrong."

"I'm a little uncomfortable with this kind of salary ($41,700) and the fact we don't have a technology curriculum in place at the elementary level," said Horvath. "I have problems adding an administrator when we have issues of class size and an absence of a job description."

Superintendent Charles Little said the district can best be of service to students when a high number of users are competent with technology.

"If you educate the user, you will need fewer repairmen," added Little.

Errol Goldman, assistant superintendent for employee relations and personnel, said Gearns has been earning in the range of $41,700. He added that he posted the job for less than the maximum $45,000 approved by the board for the 48-week job.

Newly-elected Trustee Michael Maloney agreed the motion should be tabled.

"In context of the class-size issue, it would be a good idea to wait two weeks and talk about it," he said.

Trustee Sue Davis said, "I'm curious as to why this is an administrative position. Do we need three administrators in this area?"

"I'm not sure I know what else we'd call it," said Little.

Trustee Barbara Graham said "more information as to the responsibilities of the position possibly is needed. I think we are going to have to justify another position like this.

"They'll have to give us a pretty detailed job description, as well as responsibilities and benefits to the district."

The motion to table was approved, 6-1, with Trustee Jack Farrow dissenting.

A parent at the board meeting said he wished the board would look at issues "through the eyes of a fourth-grader and then ask, 'Is this how we should be spending our money?'

"My son's geography book is eight years old."

Disaster Recovery Team practices getting telephones up and running

Plymouth was a disaster area on Tuesday. No, it wasn't the 95-degree weather, it was a staged mock disaster in which an AT&T Disaster Recovery Team practiced replacing an AT&T central office on Ann Arbor Road.

"Following a major disaster, reliable communications is critical," said Maria Speilman, director of AT&T's Disaster Recovery Program. "Our objective was to restore communications as quickly as possible following a major incident."

To do that, the technicians call a fleet of giant tractor-trailer rigs which are located across the country, ready to respond when disaster strikes were called in, she said.

"Team members are on call 24 hours, seven days-a-week, and they and their equipment can be en route to an emergency incident within two hours of an official call out."

The AT&T Disaster Recovery Program is one of a kind in the communications industry, she said.

The tractor-trailer rigs are equipped with equipment used to restore communications following a major disaster and usually travel by road, but are designed to be shipped by rail or air.

Following an official call out, team members and the equipment arrive within 24 hours of a disaster and work on routing calls around the affected areas, provide communication to the outside world and restoration of normal telephone service.

"The training exercise we have planned for Plymouth will simulate replacing a central switching office that has been heavily damaged in a massive accident," said Spielman.

A central switching office, such as the one in Plymouth, is the heart of a telephone network because it routes calls from one point to another, she said.

Until recently, replacing a center destroyed by fire, hurricane or a tornado would take months, and perhaps more than a year. During that time local customers would have no long-distance telephone service.

Farmer plans big corn roast

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

As area farmer Duane Bordine tells it, he got into trouble with a higher power.

"I didn't get into trouble with the law. I got into trouble with God. God made more corn ripe than I could take care of," said Bordine, of Canton.

That's why Plymouth and Canton and anyone and everyone are invited to a good, old-fashioned corn roast at Bordine's Farm at Ford and Ridge roads 8 a.m.-7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 20.

Proceeds from the roast will go to the Plymouth-Canton Vietnman Veterans. A donation will be required.

It seems the problem with the excess ripe corn stems from a lot of water, a lot of humidity and a lot of high summer temperatures. "It puts everything in advance," Bordine said. "I just don't want all the corn to go to waste."

Guests will be treated to corn cooked, of course, and buttered. Bordine expects there are probably 2,500 ears of corn ready for the roast.

Hearing on tap for sports center

Plymouth Township planning commissioners took the following actions at their July 19 meeting:

- Set a public hearing date for Aug. 16 for TNT Systems Inc.'s request to build a recreation center and sports facility on the east side of Beck south of Five Mile Road and north of Plymouth Corporate Park.
- Approved a request from Ari-el Enterprises Inc. to rezone some single family residential-zoned land to industrial district land, at the south side of Five Mile Road west of Keel Street and east of Beck Road.
- Approved a request from Dowler Ronnisch Co. to establish Pilgrim Motorsports on the north side of Ann Arbor Road, west of CSX and east of Lilley.
- Approved developer Barry Buschman's request for approval of a cluster housing option for land north of North Territorial Road, east of Beck, west of Eaton Estates and south of M-14. The land was previously zoned for single family housing.
- Denied an application to approve an auto wash and oil change business on the east side of Beck Road south of Five Mile Road and north of Corporate Park Drive.
- Denied a request to approve a land split south of North Territorial Road east of Ridge and west of Beck Road and Naples Drive, by Kevin and Karen Lambert and Jerry Steele.
- Approved a land split on the north side of Joy Road east of Mayflower Drive and Canton Center Road and west of Sheldon Road sought by Jon Gutek.
- Approved final site plan approval for Andover Lakes Village planned by the Andover Pointe Limited Partnership south of North Territorial, northwest of M-14, west of Ridge and east of Napier.
- Approved a cluster housing option for Whispering Pine Estates at the northeast corner of Gilbert and Francis west of I-275, east of Haggerty Road, north of Ann Arbor Trail and south of Hines Park, sought by Penniman Development.
- Approved a land split sought by Anchor Homes Corp. for land on the west side of Haggerty Road south of Hines Drive and north of Ann Arbor Trail.

Teachers, administrators hired

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Eight teachers and two administrators — one of whom is a Plymouth-Canton product — were hired by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education Monday.

Brian Wolcott — summer school principal for the Birmingham School District and boys' track and cross-country coach at Groves High School — was named athletic director for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. A 1976 Plymouth Salem High School graduate, Wolcott also taught health and natural resources.

Wolcott is president-elect of the Michigan Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, a 1,000-member professional organization that he says "keeps me apprised of the latest in curriculum development, funding and legislation."

As an athlete, Wolcott played on league, state and world championship teams.

He earned a master's degree in athletic administration from Michigan State University in 1988. Named WDIV Secondary Teacher of the Year for Birmingham schools, Wolcott also won gold medals on the USA baseball team in 1981-82. Wolcott earned an undergraduate degree from MSU in health, physical education and recreation.

He made the Big Ten All-Academic First Team three times and the championship team in 1979. Wolcott was named Most Outstanding Athlete, All-State First Team in 1976.

Wolcott is the brother-in-law of Mike Spitz, a chemistry teacher at Canton High School. His salary will be $74,407.

Nic Cooper, counselor at West Middle School, was named assistant principal at Central Middle School.

Cooper earned his bachelor's degree in 1972 in psychology from Wittenberg University in Springfield, Ohio, and his master's in 1974 in counseling and student personnel from Western Michigan University. He is enrolled in the education specialist program in educational leadership at Eastern Michigan University.

Cooper co-coordinates the community's Drug-Free Schools Grant. A certified social worker, Cooper joined the district in 1974 as a counselor at Plymouth Canton High School. From 1986 to the present, Cooper has been a partner, counselor, consultant and trainer with Cooper, McCoy & Associates, consulting with schools regarding student assistance programs and conflict resolution.

Cooper took a leave of absence for career exploration from 1990-1992.

Cooper's salary will be $64,380.

Also hired were five high school teachers, two middle school teachers, and an elementary teacher.

Jeffrey Brasch will teach math at Canton High School. He has a bachelor's and a master's degree from the University of Michigan. His salary will be $34,101.

Barbara Macek will teach business education at Canton. Macek earned her bachelor's degree at Michigan State University and her master's at EMU. Her salary will be $34,101.

Rebecca Miller was hired to teach social science at Salem High School. A U-M graduate, Miller will earn $30,997.

Renee Schmoekel was hired to teach autistic students at Salem. Her salary will be $52,929. An EMU graduate, Schmoekel has 10 years' experience in Birmingham, Washtenaw and Ingham schools.

Deborah Stearns, who also graduated from EMU, will teach symphony orchestra at Canton. Her starting salary will be $30,997.

Troy Deckebach will teach math at Central Middle School. The EMU graduate will earn $30,997.

Colleen McGurrin was hired to teach Spanish at Lowell Middle School. A U-M graduate, McGurrin will earn $30,997. McGurrin is the daughter of Christine McGurrin, a paraprofessional at Eriksson Elementary.

Susan Gamble was hired at Isbister Elementary. Gamble earned her bachelor's degree at Madonna University. Her salary will be $30,997.

Leaves for the 1995-96 school year were granted for Theresa Harris, social worker at Salem, and Christine Robinette, business education teacher at Salem.

Power outages hit community

Power was restored on Wednesday to portions of the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township after a one-two punch of rain and lightning on Monday damaged equipment and lines at the Detroit Edison substation in Plymouth.

"The outage affected about 1,200 customers in an area bounded by Riverside Drive, Pearl Street and Ann Arbor Trail," said Scott Simons, an Edison spokesman.

He said it started Monday when a wire went down at the substation, and reoccurred on Tuesday again on Tuesday. About 600 of the residents had their power back by 1:30.

To remedy the problem, Edison brought in a portable substation to restore power until repairs could be made. That portable unit was removed on Wednesday morning, with some residents having their power disrupted for about 15 minutes, said Simons.

"We've had these problems all over southeastern Michigan this summer because of the severe weather," he said, adding that wires and mechanical units are affected by the weather.

McPherson also presented a sketch of the finished library and revamped parking areas east and south of the finished library.

Library board building committee member Jim Jabara said some preliminary site work, including the closing of Church Street east of city hall to Union Street, could be scheduled this winter, to save money and get a head start on construction expected to begin in June.

Library expansion plans include removing four houses on Union east of the library. "We're still in negotiations with property owners," said library Director Pat Thomas. The board met in closed session Tuesday to hear an update on negotiations.

New library plans call for the front facing Main to retain a similar appearance to the current library.

The preliminary sketch presented Tuesday shows a lower level to be built roughly 4 to 6 feet below ground, housing adult non fiction, youth non fiction and adult reference sections, quiet study and conference rooms.

The upper level is divided in a bi level format, with a lobby and meeting room and circulation desk off the main entrance on the northeast corner of the building. Adult fiction, youth fiction, picture books and storytelling sections would be on the upper level.

McPherson said the library will be built so a third level can be added if need dictates.

The library board continues to examine potential sites to house the library temporarily, until the new building is expected to open in January 1998.

"We've got a couple of properties that are potentials, one is Farmer Jack's of course," said Thomas. She said the building committee could settle on a site in the next few months.

Thomas said she's suggested to library trustees that the best times to close and move to a temporary site are Christmas or the end of May. "Those are less busy times at the library, if we're going to be closed we want it to be not when kids are doing term papers," Thomas said.

Voters in November approved the levying of nearly 1 additional mill to raise around $7.3 million to build and equip a new library.

While earlier plans had called for city hall giving up some space as part of a new library, the plan presented to library trustees on Tuesday calls for no encroachment into city hall.

upstairs office on Main Street to its headquarters on Sheldon Road at Junction last September.

"Our new building provides possibilities, I think, for limitless art activities that build bridges between nonprofit groups and businesses and families," Lee said.

Since moving to the former church, the arts council has more than tripled activity. The 30 arts classes offered at the building are full, and there has been strong attendance for children's theater events.

The renovation, tentatively set to start Nov. 1, would include replacing permanent auditorium seating with movable seats to create exhibit space, creating more art classrooms and a small kitchen, and removing some interior walls and building new restrooms.

The arts council would still operate out of the building and offer activities there.

Friends remember J.P. McCarthy, voice of Detroit

BY WAYNE PEAL AND TIM SMITH
STAFF WRITERS

The voice that for decades questioned metro Detroit's biggest newsmakers, as well as the nation's, was stilled Wednesday with the death of WJR radio host J.P. McCarthy.

A fixture for decades on Detroit's powerful AM station, the Bloomfield Hills resident built an intimate bond with radio listeners throughout the Great Lakes region.

"J.P. was a part of our family, he was a part of every man and woman's family," said Bill Bonds of Southfield-based WJBK-TV2, McCarthy's sole peer among local broadcast personalities.

Longtime WJR colleague Oscar Frenette, of Bloomfield Hills, called McCarthy's death "a real shock."

"He belonged to an age in radio that I think is passing and where it goes from here I don't know," he said.

About how McCarthy was able to amass enormous contacts for his radio program, Frenette

Victim asks maximum punishment for attacker

BY PAT MURPHY
STAFF WRITER

A Southfield woman put aside anger in Oakland Circuit Court Monday as she faced the man convicted of sexually assaulting her and read into the record a victim's impact statement.

The defendant, too, had experienced pain and suffering in his life, she said.

But she also put aside compassion. He had shown no mercy when he attacked her and two other women, she said. Beside inflicting pain and humiliation, the defendant demonstrated a repeated pattern of deceit and manipulation.

"I believe you are overcome by impulses which you are incapable of controlling and that you are a true danger to society," the woman said as she addressed convicted sex offender Rodney P. Hernandez in a packed courtroom prior to his sentencing. "I therefore formally request Judge (John J.) McDonald to sentence you to the maximum penalty allowed by law . . ."

Citing the need to punish him and protect society, McDonald sentenced Hernandez to 30 to 60 years in prison. Glaring at the defendant, the judge said he had stalked the victim prior to a premeditated attack.

"I have no doubt you did it," McDonald said, referring to the Jan. 4, 1994 assault. "You deny that you did it. You will always deny that you did it."

Hernandez, 40, had been convicted in a two-week jury trail that ended July 20. He was convicted of two counts of criminal sexual conduct and one count of unarmed robbery. He was also sentenced as a habitual offender.

Hernandez expressed little emotion as he stood before the court in shackles and an orange prisoner uniform. In his comments to the judge, he insisted that witnesses against him had lied and that DNA evidence was contaminated.

The media and criminal justice system were biased toward him and never considered him as a

'Mega-miracle'

Animal birthing exhibit returns to state fair

The popular Miracle of Life Exhibit is returning to the 1995 Michigan State Fair and fairgoers can expect more viewing space and more "mothers in waiting" at the state's only animal birthing center.

The Miracle of Life Exhibit, presented by Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine and sponsored by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan and the Michigan Farm Bureau along with its network of county Farm Bureaus in southeast Michigan, features live births of piglets, lambs and calves and chicken hatchery.

More than 3,200 square feet is being added to this year's Miracle of Life Exhibit, expanding the amount of space to 11,200 square feet. Exhibit organizers hope to increase fairgoers' chances of witnessing a birth with the additional viewing space. Also new this year is a free Family Activity and Coloring Book filled with educational games, puzzles, fitness tips and other exhibit information.

"We are extremely pleased to host the Miracle of Life Animal Birthing Exhibit for the third consecutive year," said John Hertel, general manager of the Fairgrounds. "We've made several improvements to the fairgrounds to accommodate the larger Miracle of Life Exhibit. We're very excited about the expanded exhibit because more fairgoers will have an opportunity to get an up close and personal look at animal life and agriculture, one of the major goals of the Michigan State Fair."

Starting on Tuesday, Aug. 22, through Monday, Sept. 4, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily, fairgoers can find the following highlights at the Miracle of Life Exhibit:

- Close to 100 animal births.
- A chicken hatchery with chicks hatching hourly.
- An educational Farm Bureau display on animal nutrition, diet and feed and an opportunity to talk to Michigan farmers.
- Hourly drawings for stuffed animal toys for children 12 and under.
- Career counseling from a MSU pre-veterinary adviser — Aug. 22, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. only.
- Applications for free, basic health care insurance for children provided by the Caring Program for Children.
- Sign language interpreters provided by the Deaf, Hearing and Speech Center Inc., Detroit (A United Way Agency).
- Braille brochures and audio cassettes provided by the Michigan Association of Transcribers for the Visually Impaired.
- A main location in the center of the fairgrounds, across from the Coliseum.
- Educational videos of previous births.
- Photographs and displays of the animal birthing process.
- Brochures about farming and agriculture, careers in veterinary medicine.

McCarthy

chalked it all up to the man's integrity, honesty and ability to relate to his audience.

"He was able to reach out to people, he was knowledgeable whether he was talking about finances, politics or sports."

Further, Frenette said what people "heard on the air is what J.P. was. Very knowledgeable, he just had tremendous connections with various people. This was him, this was J.P."

McCarthy's death, after treatment for a pre-leukemia condition, also robbed the area of one of its most active charity volunteers.

Though best known for his Detroit Police Athletic League golf outing, McCarthy's local volunteer work also extended to Detroit Country Day School, Beverly Hills, and the Southfield-based Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan.

"He was so much a part of his events — they were J.P.," Country Day spokeswoman Marcia Bearden recalled. "He really could captivate an audience."

McCarthy's son, James, known as Jamie, graduated from Country Day in 1987. Two boys of McCarthy's son, John, currently attend the school.

Country Day headmaster Gerald Hansen was Jamie McCarthy's golf coach for four years and occasional golfing partner of McCarthy's.

Hansen heard the news about McCarthy upon returning home from a golf outing Wednesday evening. "I walked in the door and it felt like I got hit by a truck."

One of McCarthy's last public appearances came in April at the Leukemia Society of America's Discovery Ball '95 in Troy. The event raised $185,000.

McCarthy died shortly before 5 p.m. Wednesday at the Sloan Kettering Cancer Center in New York City. He was surrounded by his six children at the time of his death.

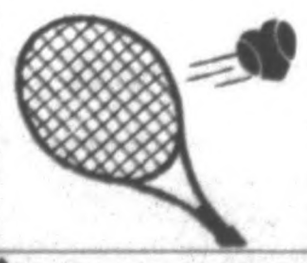

Bone marrow drives continued that day in an attempt to find a match for the ailing radio personality. Drives began weeks earlier with the first reports of McCarthy's illness. No match could be found among family members.

"The chances of matching Joe from an outside donor were very minimal," said Dr. Melvin Lester of Franklin, McCarthy's personal physician. "But he said, 'Mel, let's keep doing it. Let the people go ahead and try because they're going to help somebody.'"

News reports indicated McCarthy was suffering from pneumonia, as well as myelo-dysplastic syndrome, described as a pre-leukemia condition. A Sloan Kettering spokeswoman said an official cause of death wouldn't be released until the family was consulted. She speculated that consultation wouldn't happen until sometime today.

human being, Hernandez said. "They never include the fact I have two children and was struggling to start a business," he said.

But the comments were like other aspects of his life, insisted Oakland assistant prosecutor Paul J. Walton — manipulative and self-serving. A former girlfriend had testified Hernandez stalked social workers because they were vulnerable targets who generally carried cash.

Hernandez claimed the former girlfriend — like others — had lied.

Walton, like the women involved, had hoped Hernandez would plead guilty in other pending sexual assault cases. Hernandez is also charged in the Dec. 14, 1992 rape of a Southfield psychiatrist and the June 22, 1993, attempted assault of a Farmington Hills marriage counselor.

But Hernandez said he wanted trials. His accusers could not positively identify him before, he told the court. And those earlier statements would make future convictions difficult.

Defense attorney Thomas Peralta made no comment about any pending trial. During Hernandez' trial, however, he had tried to convince jurors his client was not the assailant.

If Hernandez insists on trials, Walton said, the prosecution is ready. "We have strong evidence in those cases."

Evidence against Hernandez in his July trial — that lead to Monday's sentencing — was very strong, according to Walton, who said DNA in blood samples was particularly conclusive.

In that trial, Hernandez was found guilty of accosting the 45-year-old psychologist about 10 p.m. on Jan. 4, 1994, as she was preparing to leave after an evening session of therapy. She was grabbed from behind by an assailant wearing a ski mask and carrying knum chucks.

After covering her eyes loosely with duct tape and taking some jewelry, the intruder forced the psychologist to perform oral sex. Instead of submitting, however, she bit her assailant, drawing blood.

Her assailant hit her, the woman testified. But she was able to keep a small blood sample in her mouth for a few moments until police arrived. That blood sample — deposited in sterile gauze — provided conclusive DNA evidence against Hernandez.

The Southfield psychologist said she bit Hernandez out of anger, frustration and disgust. This was the best revenge against the man forcing her to perform a revolting act, she said.

"You (Hernandez) may have had control of my actions and my body," the victim said in her victim's impact statement, "but you never had control of my mind. . . . whatever you did, was to my physical self, not my soul or who I really am, so I could tolerate your violence and dishonor of me."

Even so, the experience was devastating and haunting, she told the courtrooms in a voice that was sometimes resolved and sometimes faltering. "Your violent attack on me has caused profound pain for me, my family and my friends, and has changed us all forever," she said. "What gave you the right to do this to me?"

The woman credited her husband and family for providing the love and support needed to survive her ordeal and to come back against her attacker.

"It is my husband who sees me in my darkest, weakest moments," she said, "when I am overwhelmed with the trauma and sadness of it all. I feel horrible causing him such feelings of helplessness, and am only grateful for his never-ending, loving support, without which I could never recover."

Exhibit

"The farm families in Michigan, who care so much for the animals they raise, are very pleased to be co-sponsors of the exhibit again this year," said Jack Laurie, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau, the state's largest farm organization.

"The birth of animals is a common part of most Michigan farm operations, but for non-farmers, it can be a unique and awe-inspiring event to witness."

The Miracle of Life Exhibit is the first, full-scale animal birthing exhibit staffed by a team of veterinarians and veterinary students in the state of Michigan, according to MSU officials.

"The Miracle of Life Exhibit brings a special aspect of the Michigan livestock industry to the fair," said Michelle Kopcha, project leader, MSU College of Veterinary Medicine. "It is rare for most people to witness the birth of livestock. This project allows us to showcase the role of the veterinarian in the birthing process, while giving our veterinary students a chance to explain the process, care and management of livestock to the public."

The animals brought to the exhibit are within a few days of giving birth, or have a newborn at their side that is less than two weeks old.

"Through the Miracle of Life Exhibit, we hope to provide children and adults alike with the opportunity to view the miracle of birth, while teaching important health lessons about modern birthing practices and sharing messages about the importance of healthy living," said Laurie Allen Marrocco, Blues promotions coordinator.

The birthing exhibit is staffed 24 hours a day by MSU veterinary students who monitor and care for the animals. A MSU veterinarian is on site to supervise the students and to care for the animals that may require assistance during the birthing process.

Exhibitors are needed for October resource fair

The Child Abuse Prevention Council of Out-Wayne County (CAPCO) is seeking exhibitors from the cities of Redford, Garden City and Livonia to participate in its fourth annual "Celebrate Families" Community Resource Fair to be held 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21.

For more information, contact Tricia Cole-Klaes at (313) 721-5901.

This is an opportunity for human service and nonprofit agencies to inform the community of the asgistance and support they offer. Families of all sizes, ages, and cultures have significantly benefited from the wealth of information distributed in the past from "Celebrate Families," according to organizers.

compared to Plymouth-Canton's 250. Class size in Ann Arbor averages 19. The average in Plymouth-Canton is 26.

Ann Arbor's average teacher salary is $49,446, 57th in the state. "Plymouth-Canton's average teacher salary is $54,745 and ranks 15th in the state," said Bohlen. "Ann Arbor, with more revenue per student, $7,509 to $5,402 for Plymouth-Canton, has negotiated a teacher salary on the average of $5,299 less than Plymouth-Canton."

In addition to negotiated raises, Plymouth-Canton's salary schedule incorporates increases with every year of service. A teacher beginning his or her fifth year, for example, earns $40,000. By the end of the sixth year, the same teacher earns $43,162.

In the first 10 years of service, the steps plus increases translate to raises in amounts ranging between 8.7-14.6 percent.

"Wayne-Westland has the same amount for their budget ($90 million)," said Bohlen, "with 175 more full-time teachers, and $2,778 less in average teacher salaries compared to Plymouth-Canton."

A comparison with Northville salaries shows that at all steps of the salary schedule, pay in Plymouth-Canton is 6-15 percent higher.

The average teacher salary in Livonia schools is $56,483, ninth-highest in the state.

"There is no economic justification for such large pay increases, when according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics' numbers cited in the July 17 issue of 'Business Week,' wages and benefits for 90 million private-sector employees, in inflation-adjusted dollars, are 2.8 percent lower than in 1990, and 5.5 percent lower than in 1987. This follows the 1980s when 80 percent of U.S. workers lost ground," said Bohlen.

"It is clear from the Plymouth-Canton Education Association agreement that teacher salaries were maximized over the need to reduce class size, to ensure the high quality education, which is the goal of both teachers and the board."

Bohlen compared standardized test scores in the districts, and found that in nine of nine grade levels and subject areas, Northville students outscored Plymouth-Canton students.

Ann Arbor students topped their Plymouth-Canton counterparts in six of nine categories. Livonia did better than Plymouth-Canton in two categories.

To board members who approved the last teacher contract, Bohlen asked, "Would you tell taxpayers in this community what business in the private sector is granting 13 and 14 percent raises this year?

"To the board, with the defeat of the last four additional millage proposals, and with the salary data presented, do you believe you can successfully pass an enhancement millage proposal in the near future?"

Lastly, he asked, "Why is not possible to find money for textbooks in a $90 million budget?"

Board members thanked Bohlen for his report and said administration will furnish answers at the Aug. 28 board meeting.

Chuck Portelli, PCEA president, didn't respond at the meeting. He told the Observer that the increments in the pay scale are nothing new. "Our increment steps have been there forever," he said. "If you paid me $10,000 versus $60,000, you could hire six of me. But I couldn't afford to live in the community I currently live in. And I live and pay taxes in this community.

"If you have more people at the top of the scale," he added, "the average teacher pay is higher. We have mature teachers. That number should go down. We're hiring 100 teachers, an eighth of our membership."

Plymouth-Canton's budget is salary-driven, Portelli said. "We have laid off teachers to balance budgets. Five years ago, we had 815 teachers."

Teacher Sharon Belobraidich, a PCEA officer, chalked Bohlen's report up to "teacher bashing. It's time," she said. "Salaries reflect the cost of living."

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENT HEARING
Charter Township of Plymouth
Wayne County, Michigan

TO THE RESIDENTS AND PROPERTY OWNERS OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, AND ANY OTHER INTERESTED PERSONS.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that as a result of petitions of property owners within the Township signed by the record owners of land whose front footage constitutes more than 50% of the total front footage of the hereinafter described Special Assessment District and the Township Board of the Charter Township of Plymouth proposes road paving improvements on Clemons Avenue and to create a Special Assessment for the recovery of the cost thereof by Special Assessment against the properties benefitted therein.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth has tentatively declared its intention to make the hereinafter described improvement.

The project consists of approximately 1,285 feet of existing gravel road along Clemons Avenue to be paved with bituminous concrete. The project commences at the intersection of Northville Road and Clemons Avenue right-of-way, and proceeds northeasterly to the end of Clemons Avenue.

That it has further been tentatively determined that the following described lots and parcels of land will specially benefit from said improvement and will constitute a Special Assessment District against which the cost of said improvement shall be assessed:

The project area encompasses Lots 2 through 22 of the Parkway Heights Subdivision as well as the following lots of Supervisor's Plat No. 3: Lots 39a1, 41 and 42, 23f47a2b, 23f47a2c, 23f47b1, 23f47b2a, 23f47b2b, 23f47a2a2, 23f47a2a3 and 23f47a2a4, located in the southwest 1/4 and southeast 1/4 of Section 23, T.1S., R.8E., Wayne County, Michigan.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth shall meet on August 22, 1995 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Hall in the Township of Plymouth located at 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170 for the purpose of reviewing said proposed Special Assessment District, and hearing objections to the improvement, creation of the Special Assessment District, and the Assessment thereon. All persons may then and there appear and make any objections they may have to such improvement and assessment.

Appearance and protest at the hearing is required in order to appeal the amount, if any, of the special assessment to the state tax tribunal. An owner or party in interest or agent thereof, may appear in person at the hearing, or may file an appearance or protest by letter. All parties or agents appearing in person at the hearing or purposes of protest should request the appearance be entered into the record of the meeting.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the plans, specifications, estimate of cost and recommendations of the engineer for said proposed Special Assessment District have been filed with the Township and are available for public examination at the office of the Township Clerk. The estimate of costs of such construction is in the approximate amount of $103,635.25.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that periodic redetermination of cost for the proposed Special Assessment District may be necessary and may be made without further notice to the record owners or parties in interest in the property.

TO THE RESIDENTS AND PROPERTY OWNERS OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, AND ANY OTHER INTERESTED PERSONS:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that as a result of petitions of property owners within the Township signed by the record owners of land whose front footage constitutes more than 50% of the total front footage of the hereinafter described Special Assessment District and the Township Board of the Charter Township of Plymouth proposes road paving improvements on Marlowe Avenue and to create a Special Assessment for the recovery of the cost thereof by Special Assessment against the properties benefitted therein.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth has tentatively declared its intention to make the hereinafter described improvement:

The project consists of approximately 3,500 feet of existing gravel road along Marlowe Avenue to be paved with bituminous concrete. The project area commences at the north right-of-way line of Joy Road and proceeds northward along Marlowe Avenue approximately 2527 feet to the south right-of-way line of Ann Arbor Road. The project area also includes approximately 330 feet each along Marlin, Judson, and Mayville Avenues at their intersections with Marlowe Avenue.

That it has further been tentatively determined that the following described lots and parcels of land will specially benefit from said improvement and will constitute a Special Assessment District against which the cost of said improvement shall be assessed:

The project area encompasses Lots 322 through 407, and Lots 38 and 40, inclusive, of Green Meadows Subdivision and recorded in Liber 61 Page 94 of Plats, Wayne County Records.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth shall meet on August 22, 1995 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Hall in the Township of Plymouth located at 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170 for the purpose of reviewing said proposed Special Assessment District, and hearing objections to the improvement, creation of the Special Assessment District, and the Assessment thereon. All persons may then and there appear and make any objections they may have to such improvement and assessment.

Fall 5K walk to benefit children's home

A special fund-raiser "Fall Into Step" to benefit the children at Methodist Children's Home Society will be held 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 9, in Redford Township.

NBD Bank, Greenman's American Speedy Printing and Kelly Services are sponsoring the fund-raiser, a 5K walk that will take walkers through residential and business areas in Redford Township.

Participants can stroll or walk a quick pace on sidewalks never crossing a busy street. A rest stop will be available halfway through the route. The walk route concludes in Children's Village where walkers will be served lunch outdoors.

A first aid station will be available. Awards and prizes will be given to the walkers who raise the most money.

According to Co-chairs, Marilyn Kell and Jean Holmes, "anyone can Fall Into Step for Fun, Fitness, and most importantly for the children who live in Children's Village." They add, "this is an opportunity for all to raise money for the children, as well as an opportunity for all to tour Children's Village and the newly-constructed cottage."

The new cottage is a planned effort of Methodist Children's Home Society Board of Directors to ensure its mission of meeting the physical, emotional, and spiritual needs of the children in care. Board President Daniel P. Catcher says, "the cottage construction addresses current and future program needs in order to continue quality care for the children."

Methodist Children's Home Society has a 78-year history of delivering residential treatment, foster care, adoption placement, and other child-caring services. The children receive care in a structured, protective environment.

To register for the 5K walk call Kristine Jamison at 313-531-9464.

EVERYTHING FOR YOUR GAME ROOM

At Providence, we know that no two births are exactly alike. That's why we offer so many birthing options. In fact, we're known as "the baby hospital," and it's no wonder. We've delivered more than 200,000 babies through eight generations. And our obstetrical program is one of the largest and best in Michigan.

Choose from a wide range of birthing options at Providence. Our medical staff is committed to listening to and understanding women's needs and wants concerning childbirth. That's why we offer more family-centered birthing options than any other hospital. Giving birth in our Family Birthing Center, the only one of its kind in Michigan, is almost like having your baby at home. In our New Life Center at Providence in Southfield, 12 comfortable labor/delivery/recovery rooms are a direct response to women's requests for a more homelike atmosphere, backed by personal nursing care and all the high technology a major metropolitan hospital can offer. For those women who may require a cesarean delivery or other medical intervention, we also offer traditional birthing suites. Last year we opened an innovative, first-of-its-kind facility for low-risk mothers: the beautiful New Life Center at Providence Medical Center-Providence Park, Novi, where women give birth and return home within 24 hours.

Prenatal and postnatal educational services. At Providence, we're committed to helping families feel capable, before and after birth. That's why we offer health education classes. Expectant mothers and their partners may take advantage of classes such as preparation for childbirth, childbirth refresher, cesarean birth, brothers and sisters, breastfeeding and infant CPR.

Schedule a Providence tour. If you're planning to have a baby, visit Providence and find out about all your options. Ask your doctor about Providence, or call us at 1-800-968-5595 to schedule a tour. To schedule a tour of our Family Birthing Center, call (810) 424-3919. Our friendly and capable staff will be happy to answer your questions.

When it comes to small packages, we deliver.

Our maternal-fetal specialists and facilities provide women with high-risk pregnancies the safest delivery possible. And it's comforting to know that should the need arise, Providence has a level III regional neonatal ICU for ill or premature newborns.

Providence is proud of its staff members who provide care in obstetrics and gynecology to women in the metro Detroit area.

Temple Baptist

Compromise needed on plan

Plymouth Township did the right thing by making a counteroffer to Temple Baptist Church, which is trying to locate a church campus at Ridge and North Territorial roads.

The offer goes a long way toward defusing a hot situation created one year ago when the township planning commission rejected outright Temple Baptist's plan to build the complex, which would have included a church to house its nearly 2,000 members, a recreation building and an entertainment center.

That refusal sparked a $5.2 million lawsuit by the church that township lawyers say can't be won. The suit claims Plymouth Township is violating the church's right to freedom of religion.

Also, it was responsible for another lawsuit against the township filed by the Word of Faith Church of Detroit, which was planning to buy Temple Baptist's site on Telegraph in Redford. That suit seeks an additional $3 million.

In effect, the planning commission decision has opened up the township to more than $7 million in liability that would be paid by all township residents, even those who live miles away from the site.

The bad decision by the planning commission is now coming to full light in the wake of the lawsuits and the compromise position proposed by the township board.

Chances are that the suits wouldn't have been filed, and attorney fees incurred, if the planning commission had been more willing to compromise from the onset.

The complaints against the church were that it would generate too much traffic and noise. The density of development has also been an issue.

Such complaints ring hollow. Church use is at its peak on Sundays, when few nearby residents are going to work and when children aren't going to school.

Also, if traffic is that much of a concern, then a church complex would produce less of it than if the 56 acres were developed into housing. Condos and homes on that much acreage could easily add several thousand new residents to the area. Those residents would be driving to and from work and school on a daily basis, not just on Sunday morning, or for special events.

However, the township board's attempt at damage control is only a first step. With the scent of a winning lawsuit in the air, church officials have rejected any compromise.

The township's proposal was a 2,000-capacity worship center and parking for 667 vehicles. That falls far short of the three-building, 4,000-capacity worship center sought by the church.

It does, though, establish a starting point, and hopefully a compromise can be struck. Both the church and township should work toward moderating their stances and come up with a building plan that will suit both sides.

The freedom to worship in the manner which groups see fit is one of our basic rights and shouldn't be scrapped because of claims of too much development.

Church members, though, should be sensitive to community standards, and the complex planned is a bit too much for Plymouth Township.

The township board decision established a common ground upon which a compromise can be struck. It's now time for both sides to work toward that agreement.

Time to strengthen seat-belt law

Ten years after Michigan became the second state to adopt a mandatory seat-belt law, people are still dying or suffering more severe injuries because they fail, for one reason or another, to buckle up.

We've all heard about the stark examples of the tragic results of not wearing a seat belt.

No one can be certain that wearing a seat belt will always save the person or people involved in an accident, but law enforcement officials believes it does make a difference.

Before Michigan adopted its mandatory seat-belt law, only 25 percent of motorists buckled up. Now, 66 percent of Michigan drivers do, as compared to 67 percent nationwide, according to metropolitan safety officials.

A statewide coalition is attempting to strengthen Michigan's seat-belt law by making its violation a primary citation rather than secondary. As it stands now, officers can't stop scofflaws for seat-belt violation unless the vehicle was pulled over for another reason or unless a child under the age of 4 is involved.

Legislation to make seat-belt usage a primary offense is about to be introduced in the state House. We hope it becomes law.

Tightening that enforcement would undoubtedly increase usage in Michigan as it has done in other states where the usage rate is 75 percent.

■ A statewide coalition is attempting to strengthen Michigan's seat-belt law by making its violation a primary citation rather than secondary. As it stands now, officers can't stop scofflaws for seat-belt violation unless the vehicle was pulled over for another reason or unless a child under the age of 4 is involved.

Seat-belt usage has been promoted in many ways through the years, but it's not been completely successful.

The reason given by many non-users is that they fear getting trapped in the vehicle or injured in some way by wearing the belt. Law enforcement officials call that "a myth that has to be dispelled."

The statistics are in. Seat belts save lives and decrease the severity of injuries. As for air bags, they're designed to supplement seat belts, not replace them.

Look at the statistics; listen to the experts.

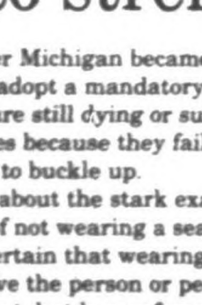

Buckle your seat belt every time you get into a vehicle, whether you're the operator or riding with someone else.

Curbing speeders

Regarding Congress' decision to pass the authority for setting speed limits over to the states, I have read and listened to many comments offered by the general public. Many of the respondents have expressed serious concern about speeds on our roads and highways, some suggesting near autobahn levels. A frequent comment is, "Why can't something be done about those crazies who boldly ignore posted speed limits?" Ironically, many of these crazies have their cars equipped with radar detectors, so they can avoid a ticket, or more simply put, just spit in the face of authority, and maintain their freedom to do as they damn well please.

Speed limits on expressways are one thing, but speeds on residential streets have reached unacceptable levels; 25 mph is now 35-40 mph, 35 mph is 45-50 mph and 45 mph is 55-60 mph. Funny thing, no one seems to know who these crazy drivers are, or admit to being one. Maybe the federal state and local governments should appropriate some money to investigate for extraterrestrials. It is real sad to think that the loss of a loved one, or a permanent disability is not enough to convince those crazies to — SLOW DOWN!!

Romney: her hero

I don't have many heroes. I would like to, but somehow their human feet keep wandering onto paths that transform them into clay, leaving yet another tarnished defender of the good, the true and the beautiful.

This was never the case with George Romney. He was truly a man whose beliefs and values were always integrated into his words and actions, whether the day brought him into the presence of a world leader or an adoring grandchild.

George Romney honestly believed in people and that they could and should make a difference in what happened in their community. He spent many hours in Farmington Hills helping to launch our Farmington Hills Volunteer Center.

He came back later and hosted a "Volunteer Telethon" with Eric Smith. Again he returned as guest of honor at a dinner for Southeastern Oakland County Mayors.

He was helpful in encouraging then Mayor-elect Archer to attend for a positive discussion on "mutual bridge building."

The last time George Romney came to town it was to see our Volunteer Center operation. He was very impressed and encouraged us to move forward with our efforts. I marked Sept. 7 in my calendar as when we would meet again.

It is difficult to know he won't make that meeting. George Romney won't make the many meetings he had scheduled. It will take hours to cancel all the things he had still planned to do. He would have liked that.

George Romney was a giving and caring man. He was very generous with his time for the good of our community. Farmington Hills lost a good friend. The causes of Honor and Justice lost a great champion.

I lost a hero. But we are all richer just to have known him.

Nancy Bates, Farmington Hills

Let issue rest

Are the Monday-morning quarterbacks who say we should issue a formal apology to Japan for dropping atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki right?

Hell, no. They are not right. I visited the ports of those two Japanese disaster sites in 1954 and spoke with citizens of both cities regarding the bombing. There was not one word of hostility toward the U.S. mentioned by anyone I spoke with.

At the time I was a crew member of the light cruiser, U.S.S. Manchester, CL-83, which was on a goodwill tour of Japan commemorating the 100th anniversary of Commodore Perry's opening U.S. trade with Japan.

If they are not mad at us, why should we be mad at ourselves? After all, Japan started the war with us by annihilating our entire Pacific fleet in a sneak attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

If those bombs had not been dropped, which put an instant end to the war with Japan, the U.S. would have had to invade Japan, which would no doubt have cost many more American and Japanese lives, prolonging the war. War is hell, consisting of many mistakes and mass confusion.

Let's not confuse the issue further. It's been over for 50 years. Let it rest in peace.

POINTS OF VIEW

Nurturing environment the key to students' learning

Recently we have seen a number of initiatives from various constituencies around the state designed to "fix" our educational system. They include school accreditation linked to state achievement test scores, higher graduation requirements, a new mission statement from the State Board of Education, charter schools, a lengthened school year, and the reworking of the State School Code.

Until basic issues are dealt with — racism, classism and gender discrimination and their effects on learning, teaching and, therefore, assessment — the educational system will not get fixed.

Children from areas of impacted poverty, unless they are especially resilient, will not do well in school. The promise of a job after earning a high school diploma has been nullified; the hope that discrimination would end has died.

We already make schooling so irrelevant for these victims of discrimination that they give up and disappear. Witness the state's escalating dropout rate.

These co-called corrective measures make no reference to our deeper societal problems and assume that all children and families have equal access to all systems.

Parents are children's first teachers, and if they have the support of the community, the town and its governing bodies, they can teach children what is needed to succeed. Without this support, the job of being a good "first teacher" becomes nearly impossible.

Parents who are unemployed, underemployed, discriminated against, and therefore depressed cannot give what they don't have — the hope and optimism that accompanies learning.

■ Parents who are unemployed, under employed, discriminated against, and therefore depressed cannot give what they don't have — the hope and optimism that accompanies learning.

Our cities are known for areas of compacted poverty where anyone who could find a way out has left. Those who remain are families in isolation.

The transition from home to school is a particularly difficult one for children who live in the context of poverty, and many never resolve this cultural dissonance. Especially in language usage, children are not encouraged to question and discuss issues at home. Yet, this type of behavior is essential for the critical thinking that good schools strive to achieve.

There is no data showing that children can't learn to read, to do math and to think critically if they are given a supportive environment and people who care about them.

Indeed, children from families who society affirms and values learn quite well. Often, however, they are in the same environments with children from the culture of poverty and tension is bound to occur. The playing field is so uneven, and test scores verify this unevenness.

In addition, we are one of the few countries that aims for universal education, including children who need special education services and those who are terminally ill.

This is a tall order and creates resentment among teachers who are asked to do more than is humanly possible.

Teachers' effectiveness lies not in curricula materials but in relationships to their students. The new educational initiatives ignore this reality.

How we train teachers to relate to children is very important. Even the perfect curriculum won't matter if children's minds and spirits are out on the street.

I try to help student teachers understand that they can make a difference, first, at a level of personal interaction. I have seen many children treated badly in public school.

I have watched inner-city teachers greet children with their nose in the air instead of being down on their knees hugging the child. This attitude is the beginning of low achievement.

We have put our emphasis on an impossible task and simultaneously neglected areas that could make a difference.

There is a great belief in our society that if a number is put on any variable or value, it is scientifically valid.

The traditional assessment system is based on this belief, and high school students have learned this value well. They cheat like you wouldn't believe to get grades.

Likewise, teachers teach to tests, and still the students don't do well. Only 175 out of the state's 3,300 schools had test scores high enough to win "accreditation" or state Education Department approval of their programs this year.

No one is looking at the complexity of the problem.

I advocate performance assessment, which is a method of ongoing assessment.

If a child is learning about plants, at the end of the third grade that child should be able to talk and write about how a plant grows. This is antithetical to a test score, and grounded in developmental theory. But our system is "numbers" driven, the measurable test score becomes the easy fix, and the process that leads to mature thinking is not emphasized.

At the same time, kids are confronted by the culture of the street, which is so strong it draws them like a magnet.

The corruption within the system also is available for them to see as the top story on the evening news and exposes the contradictions in our system.

The task of picking and choosing with everything available to them is overwhelming. Without support from caring and respectful teachers, principals and parents, children can't make wise choices.

What seems to work are intensive services and support for families and programs that help them get into a better place.

Advisory council serves homeowners and neighborhoods

Canton Homeowners Advisory Council (CHAC) had its beginnings in the 1980s when a group of homeowners association officers came together in order to share ideas, solve problems and be a common voice for homeowners in Canton.

The idea was a valid one, and even though that original group lost steam a few years later, a new group of Cantonites gathered in the early '90s to regroup and build a new and stronger voice for the people of Canton, and to more efficiently convey information to and from government and citizens.

As the name implies, CHAC is an advisory group. The aim of the group is to be sure that information needed from township agencies is easily available and that homeowners and their associations are able to easily communicate with government at all levels.

Canton, being a township, has a unusual form of government, which is not always fully understood by people moving here from cities. Since each subdivision is managed by a board of volunteers who are responsible for such items as snow removal, grass cutting, park maintenance, and many other facets of daily living, it is important for these volunteers to have a place to ask questions, share ideas and learn from others who have done this job ably.

This is where CHAC fits in. We offer a monthly agenda, usually with a speaker, which aims to update, inform and educate homeowners association officers and residents in Canton. Many of the monthly programs will appeal to association officers who want to hone their skills, learn easier and more appropriate ways to serve their local residents, and to educate and update residents on pending issues in the township through the use of a subdivision newsletter.

Some issues that the CHAC has dealt with include the Ameritech tower, road paving, traffic light installation, the Willow Run airport issue (an ongoing item) and numerous other items.

We are fortunate to have very direct contact with officials in the community who will work with CHAC and listen to our concerns, and who are eager to share information on what's happening at local, county, state and federal levels.

Supervisor Tom Yack, Wayne County Commissioner Bruce Patterson, state Sen. Loren Bennett, state Rep. Deb Whyman and Congresswoman Lynn Rivers have all visited CHAC meetings and shared much valuable information.

The council is fortunate to have dedicated officers and directors who spend a great deal of time carrying out the principles and ideals of this group and who work hard to keep CHAC a vital, active group.

The 1995-96 season will begin in September with a brand new series of interesting monthly programs. The September meeting will be a "getting to know you" program and it is hoped that every subdivision, condo group and non-sub area will send a representative or two to find out who we are and what we have planned for the upcoming season. Any resident who is curious about CHAC is also invited to attend.

Meetings are held on the second Monday of each month from 7-9 p.m. at township hall. If you need an ear to listen, a voice to present a problem, or if you just want to be a well-informed resident of Canton Township, consider attending meetings of the Canton Homeowners Advisory Council.

Nancy Spencer is president of the Canton Homeowners Advisory Council and community volunteer. To submit a guest column, please call Joanne Maliszewski, Canton editor, 459-2700.

Republican House is pulling dirty tricks on environment

The worst thing one can say about congressional Republicans is that they had 40 years to learn the Democrats' lowest tricks, and they learned too well.

Case in point: the U.S. House's slippery effort to gut enforcement of the Clean Air Act, the Resource Recovery Act, the Safe Drinking Water Act and other environmental laws.

First let's give Speaker Newt Gingrich credit where he has earned it. He has brought legislation to the House floor for public votes that his Democratic predecessors wouldn't let see the light of day. And Gingrich has given prominent, visible roles to newer members like second-termer Joe Knollenberg of Bloomfield Township and freshman Dick Chrysler of Brighton. In the old Democratic days, they would have been doomed to obscurity until their seventh or eighth terms.

The GOP did its dirty work in HR 2099, the budget bill for the housing and veterans programs and the Environmental Protection Agency. Legislative bodies pass two basic kinds of bills: policy and budget. The air and water laws are policy. HR 2099 is budget. That's simple enough.

Step 1: The House Appropriations Committee cut EPA's budget by 34 percent. Like it or lump it, at least it was a straightforward decision. The going got nasty, however, when the panel attached 17 "riders" to the bill directing EPA not to enforce certain laws.

No hearings. No input from the public on policy. Just a budget action that has the effect of gutting the laws. Predictably, Democrats howled — and so did some Republicans. Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., said, "I urge my colleagues to follow their principles and once again to prove to the American people that this Congress — and particularly the Republicans in this Congress — are committed to open political processes and environmental safeguards."

Boehlert went on: "We would not be able to enforce standards of air emissions, storm water runoff, wetlands, sewer overflows and 13 or so (others) which are in that particular bill."

Step 2: There was arm-twisting behind the scenes. One week, the House adopted, 212-206, an amendment by Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, to remove the "riders." Voting yes were 51 Republicans, 160 Democrats and one independent.

At this point, Gingrich & Co. halted further voting. Over the weekend, some persuasion went on. At 9 p.m. Monday, Aug. 1, the House voted again, junked the Stokes amendment, and then rejected Stokes' effort to send the bill back to committee on a vote of 198 to 222.

Local lawmakers, by the way, voted the same both times. Republicans Dick Chrysler of Brighton, Joe Knollenberg of Bloomfield Township and Nick Smith of Addison voted against the Stokes amendment. Democrats Dale Kildee of Flint, Sander Levin of Southfield and Lynn Rivers of Ann Arbor voted for.

Interestingly, two Michigan Republicans supported the Stokes amendment: Vern Ehlers of Grand Rapids and Fred Upton of St. Joseph. Remember Fred Upton? He was the chap who was booed so roundly at the 1994 GOP state convention that he had to stop speaking.

You might have missed the EPA story in the dailies and TV news. That was intentional. The common herd's attention was diverted by the Whitewater, Waco and Packwood hearings. Apparently the public and media can grasp a few million dollars, a shooting and sex better than they can grasp sewer overflows and air emissions.

HR 2099 goes to the Senate, where Appropriations Chair Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., vows he'll fix it up. President Bill Clinton vows he'll veto it if it isn't fixed. Moreover, Clinton issued an executive order countermanding the House's rider and requiring manufacturers to make public their toxic emissions.

If Republicans have any alibi for their action, they did a miserable job telling the public. I have pored through several editions of the Congressional Record and the magazine Congressional Digest in vain. Perhaps they don't see the need to explain their action. Ram and jam.

Just like the Democrats used to do.

'D' word that Moms dislike

Item No. 1: A couple of weeks ago Roseanne was in the news. It was because she had her baby.

Item No. 2: A couple of weeks ago a curse word appeared — right here — in the Family Room column.

Now, you might be wondering (and I wouldn't blame you one little bit if you did), how in the world can item No. 1 and item No. 2 have anything to do with each other? What could possibly tie these two things together?

Well, let me explain. About the curse word appearing in some newspapers (by the way, if you didn't see it it was the "D" word). The appearance of the "D" word was purely accidental. My guess? Poltergeists. Or maybe little green men inside the computer. It was definitely something. At any rate, the word wasn't supposed to be there and, moreover nobody meant it to be there.

Now, as for Roseanne (that would be the Roseanne on the family sit-com TV show), she made the newspapers and TV about the same time as the accidental cuss word. And the two things, Roseanne and my cuss word, sort of jumped out at me in a juxtaposition kind of way. And I got to thinking about it.

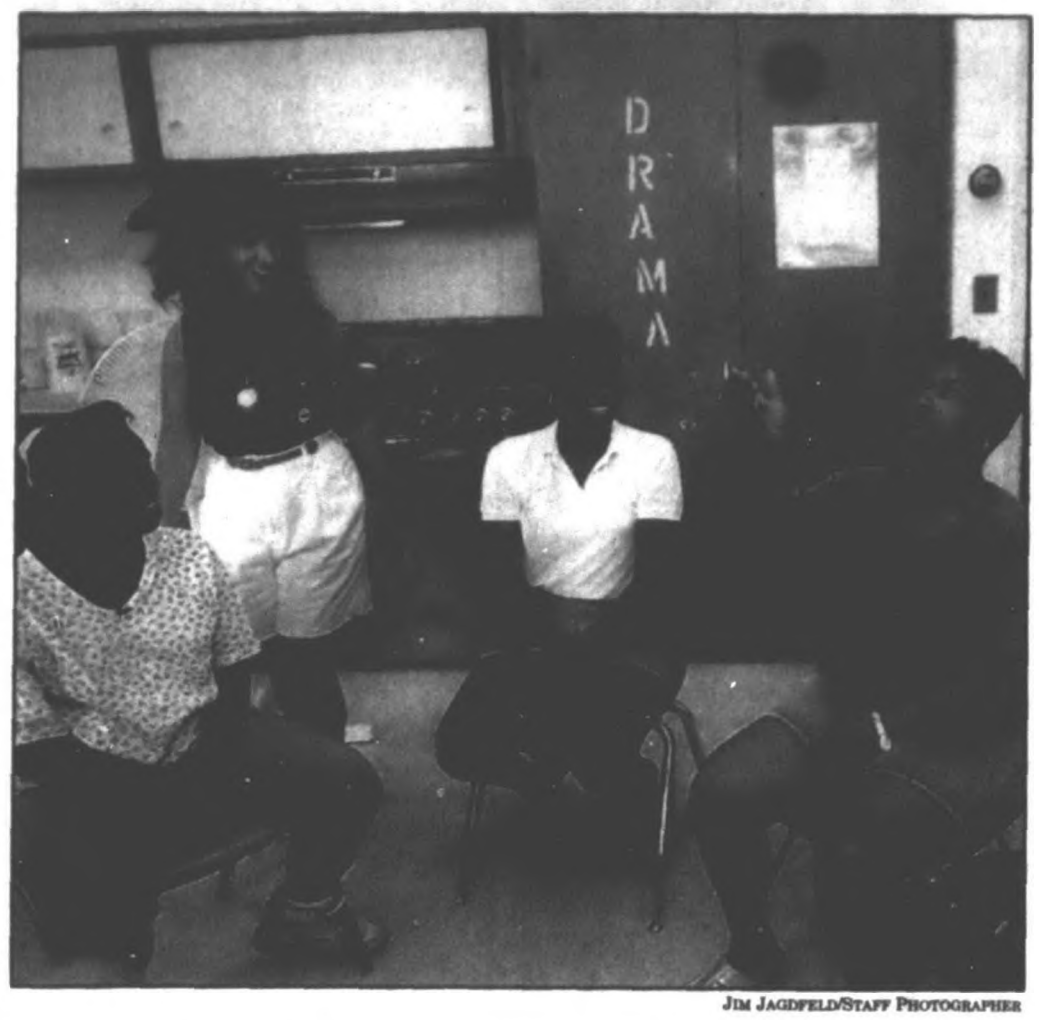

I thought of Roseanne's highly publicized, easy and never apologetic use of the "D" word and every other curse word known to man. And sewer rat.

And I thought of how Roseanne is neither a sewer rat, nor a man. But a woman. And a mom, for goodness sake. She shouldn't curse or swear like that. So publicly and proudly and lucrative

Therapists use the power of music

■ It's a relative unknown profession, but music therapy and its practitioners are finding that with the help of music the lives of the mentally ill, substance abusers and disadvantaged school students can improve dramatically.

The power of music is sometimes vastly underrated. Local music therapists Liz Sands, Cathy Herron and Sara Rubin can attest to that. They witness the miracles it creates every day.

Herron recently worked with an older adult woman who was so severely depressed that she would rarely come out of her room in the psychiatric unit of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. When she did, she would complain about a variety of ailments — sore back, hands and knees, or two broken legs.

"She was very fixated on all of her 'I can'ts,' " said Herron, a Plymouth resident.

Then she turned her on to music.

"I got her into an improvisation group, which is all the instruments," said Herron. "She came into the group and she saw all these things and said, 'I can't do this. You have to have experience to know how to do this.' "

Herron handed the woman a shaker made from a basket and showed her how to use it.

"She took it and she shook it. I said, 'That's all you have to do?' That brought her into the group."

She played not only that but four other instruments ranging from the shaker to the xylophone. The patient was a "changed woman."

"She was little Miss Socialite down the hallway," Herron said. "She was smiling. This is a woman who had no facial expression. She said, 'Wow, this is great. Look we have a band. I never played in an orchestra before.' The group was reinforcing what she was doing, telling her, 'You're doing really well."

Relatively unknown

Music therapy is a profession that's relatively unknown to people outside of psychiatric hospitals, school districts and health care organizations, the three women said. According to Michigan Music Therapists, music therapy is described as "the use of music in the accomplishment of therapeutic aims: the restoration, maintenance and improvement of mental and physical health."

Herron said her goals are similar to that of other types of therapists.

"I'm looking for either emotional expression or providing them structure, some reality base," she said. "Our master goal is to decrease depression, increase socialization, and decrease psychosis.

"If they're hearing voices, or if they're seeing things, we try to get them focused on something else and get them away from their hallucinations. Music is a great way to do that."

Music therapists are required to have a four-year degree in music therapy. The course of study includes work in music therapy, psychology, music, biology, social and behavioral sciences, disabling conditions and general studies. There are few schools in the country which offer degrees in music therapy. In Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Michigan State and Western Michigan universities have music therapy programs.

Music therapists have butted heads with a number of misconceptions about their profession. It's been called " new age " and "trendy " Sara Rubin, a Redford resident who works with substance abusers at the Salvation Army Evangelical Center for Women and Children in Detroit, has encountered people who are off a little bit on their description of her job.

"People have said, 'Oh, you're a musical therapist.' No, you don't put a quarter in me and I move,' " she said with a laugh.

Although it is mostly used to help those with developmental disabilities or psychiatric problems, it is also available in other settings.

"It can be used with any sort of disability or dysfunction (whether it be) physical, mental, or emotional," Herron said. "There's music therapists assisting in childbirth using music to focus and breathe. It works along with Lamaze."

Few in number

Rubin is one of the few music therapists who work with substance abusers. The number is so few that she is writing a handbook to guide other music therapists in their work with substance abusers and psychiatric patients. When she began writing the book, she wasn't sure if there was a market for it. But after presenting her idea to a conference, she realized that her book was a necessity.

"People are hungry for information," she said. "That gave me the impetus to finish the book."

She hopes her book will update the outdated teachings of her profession.

"For me, it's a field that is lacking in immediate progression," Rubin said. "It's so old style. Since it (substance abuse) is an increasing problem in the country, I haven't been able to figure out why it hasn't been expanded."

Liz Sands, a former Westland resident living in Canton, helps to hone social skills or improve the quality of life for students in the Detroit Public School system. Her goals are different than Herron or Rubin.

"Most of my students' problems are physical; I work a lot on motor skills like using their fingers to grasp," she said. "I work on a lot of academic skills because it's a school setting. My kids might need more (guidance about) to wait their turn.

"We want them to express themselves in a practical manner instead of grabbing or screaming."

"Sometimes, we need them to categorize something," she said. "We'll write a rap about spring, for example. I'll tell them, 'Now we're going to list things that grow.' I have them actually write it down and so then that helps them with their writing skills and reading skills which are unfortunately often times lagging."

1954 PA 188 PROCEEDINGS
NOTICE OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENT HEARING
Charter Township of Plymouth

TO: THE RESIDENTS AND PROPERTY OWNERS OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, AND ANY OTHER INTERESTED PERSONS:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that as a result of petitions of property owners within the Township signed by the record owners of land whose front footage constitutes more than 50% of the total front footage of the hereinafter described Special Assessment Distrivct and the Township Board of the Charter Township of Plymouth proposes road paving improvements on Gold Arbor and Southworth Roads and to create a Special Assessment for the recovery of the cost thereof by Special Assessment against the properties benefitted therein.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth has tentatively declared its intention to make the hereinafter described improvement:

The project consists of approximately 5,000 feet of existing gravel road along Gold Arbor and Southworth Roads north of Ann Arbor Road to be paved with bituminous concrete. The project commences at the north right-of-way line of Ann Arbor Road and proceeds northward along Gold Arbor Road approximately 2500 feet to the south right-of-way line of Ann Arbor Trail. Also along Southworth Road from the North right-of-way line of Ann Arbor Road northward approximately 2500 feet to the south right-of-way line of Ann Arbor Trail.

That is has further been tentatively determined that the following described lots and parcels of land will specially benefit from said improvement and will constitute a Special Assessment District against which the cost of said improvement shall be assessed:

The project area encompasses Lots 2,3,6,7,9 through 29,31,32,34 through 75,77,78 and Lots 80 through 100, inclusive, of Tomlinson Estates Subdivision and recorded in Liber 67 Page 32 of Plats, Wayne County Records.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth shall meet on August 22, 1995 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Hall in the Township of Plymouth located at 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170 for the purpose of reviewing said proposed Special Assessment District, and hearing objections to the improvement, creation of the Special Assessment District, and the Assessment thereon. All persons may then and there appear and make any objections they may have to such improvement and assessment. Appearance and protest at the hearing is required in order to appeal the amount, if any, of the special assessment to the state tax tribunal. An owner or party in interest or agent thereof, may appear in person at the hearing, or may file an appearance or protest by letter. All parties or agents appearing in person at the hearing or purposes of protest should request the appearance be entered into the record of the meeting.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the plans, specifications, estimate of cost and recommendations of the engineer for said proposed Special Assessment District have been filed with the Township and are available for public examination at the office of the Township Clerk. The estimate of costs of such construction is in the approximate amount of $212,600.00.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that periodic redetermination of cost for the proposed Special Assessment District may be necessary and may be made without further notice to the record owners or parties in interest in the property.

Here's how to submit your anouncements

Local engagement, wedding and anniversary announcements run in the Thursday editions of The Observer.

Residents of Livonia, Redford, Garden City and Westland, should send their engagement, wedding or anniversary information, with or without photograph, to The Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Residents of the Plymouth-Canton area should send information to The Observer, 744 Wing St., Plymouth 48170.

Preprinted forms that outline the information needed for your engagement, wedding or anniversary announcement are available at either office.

If you have questions regarding your announcement, call Sue Mason in Livonia at (313) 953-2131 or Bridget Moran in Plymouth at (313) 459-2700. For a recorded message with complete information on submitting announcements, call (313) 953-2065.

Indians give former pastor a new name

■ The presentation came almost 37 years ater he was ordained as a priest. His ordination took place July 13, 1958 in Rome, Italy.

When Bishop Alex J. Brunett celebrated Mass at North American Indian Days in Browning, Mont., July 9, 35 of his former parishioners were on hand. Members of St. Aidan's Catholic Church in Livonia, the group traveled to western Montana to see Brunett become an honorary chief of the Blackfoot tribe.

Brunett served as pastor of St. Aidan's for 17 years before leaving in March 1990 to become pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower in Royal Oak. He served there three years before being named bishop of western Montana.

The bishop, assisted by the Rev. Ed Kohler, pastor of Little Flower Parish in Browning, and Deacons Melvin Rutherford and Robert Brenner, celebrated Mass during the annual powwow.

Worshipers in full headdresses and traditional costumes led the opening procession, and Brunett wore a beaded buckskin chasuble for the service, which featured Indian drumming, dancing, singing and gift-giving.

Brunett was presented with three gifts from the Blackfoot community of the Browning parish — his name, Holy Eagle Feather, an eagle feather and a white miter with a bright red beadwork design. The presentations were made in both the Blackfoot language and English by Gertie Heavy Runner and Al Potts, members of the community.

The presentation came almost 37 years to the day after Brunett was ordained as a priest. His ordination took place July 13, 1958, in Rome, Italy.

In accepting his name, the bishop pointed out that "the eagle is a great sign of God," and committed himself to lifting up the spirits and discovering the power of God's love.

According to The Montana Catholic, Brunett told the gathering to be "mindful of the need to 'lift up our spirits like the eagle soars in the sky' and to be enthused about bringing Christian love to those in the community, looking for someone to give hope and care."

The powwow is a celebration of Indian culture and tradition held during the second week of July on the Blackfoot Reservation. Similar events are hosted on several Montana reservations during the summer.

Goodies needed for CHS theme baskets

It may be a tad early for the "wearin' of the green," but the green grass of summer has Community Hospice Services leaders thinking about the 1996 St. Patrick's Day dinner/dance.

Actually, the staff would like the community to do some creative thinking to help make next year's event even better than the 1995 gala.

"This year's dance was the best ever and we know that we will have a hard time topping all the fun," said Vikki Martin, CHS director of development and public relations. "If you were at the 1995 dance, you saw all the extravagant baskets we raffled off. The raffle's success has led us to expand the basket offerings for a 1996 silent auction. Each basket will be designed around a theme."

The CHS staff has come up with a list of possible themes and is looking for groups, clubs and businesses interested in sponsoring a theme basket or designing one of its own.

Donors will be listed in the evening's program and receive special recognition on the basket. CHS will assemble the baskets for donors. Donations of new items and/or gift certificates will be accepted through mid-February 1996 and will be tax-deductible.

The themes that CHS has come up with include Picnic in the Park, Coffee Lovers, Tea for Two, Chocolate Gourmet Delight, Thank Heaven for Little Boys, Thank Heaven for Little Girls, Fun in the Sun, In the Good Ole Summertime, Curl Up With a Good Book, Mother's Day Basket, Beauty To Go, Viva Italiano, Movie Mania, Story Time and Home and Hearth.

Other possible themes are Birthday Bash, Instant Party, Eat Out Once a Month for a Year, Hunting, Fishing, Tennis, Anyone?, Here Comes the Bride, Theater Bound, Family Fun, Gardening, Spring Cleaning, Skiing, Baseball, Family Video Fun, Holiday Magic, Pamper Me Pretty, Dino-Mania, Car Care, Barbie Fun, Romantic Retreat and Fireside Chat.

Included in the list are Home Entertainment, Basket of Cheer, Cocktail Party, Easter, Cruise Package, Baking, Baby/Nursery Needs, Kids' Magic, Stargazer, Rainy Day Fun, Native America, Share a Cup of Cocoa, Creative Kids, Summer Fun for Kids, Let's Be Perfectly Clear, Tiger Fan Club, Wings Fan Club and Pistons Fan Club.

With offices in Westland — at 32932 Warren Road — and Plymouth — at 127 S. Main St. — Community Hospice Services provides a comprehensive program for incurably ill patients and families living in western Wayne, eastern Washtenaw and southern Oakland counties. Care is provided based on need rather than ability to pay.

People interested in helping with the theme baskets can call Martin at (313) 522-4244.

Item No. 1: A couple of weeks ago Roseanne was in the news. It was because she had her baby.

Item No. 2: A couple of weeks ago a curse word appeared — right here — in the Family Room column.

Now, you might be wondering (and I wouldn't blame you one little bit if you did), how in the world can item No. 1 and item No. 2 have anything to do with each other? What could possibly tie these two things together?

Well, let me explain. About the curse word appearing in some newspapers (by the way, if you didn't see it it was the "D" word). The appearance of the "D" word was purely accidental. My guess? Poltergeists. Or maybe little green men . . . inside the computer. It was definitely something. At any rate, the word wasn't supposed to be there and, moreover nobody meant it to be there.

Now, as for Roseanne (that would be the Roseanne on the family sit-com TV show), she made the newspapers and TV about the same time as the accidental cuss word. And the two things, Roseanne and my cuss word, sort of jumped out at me in a juxtaposition kind of way. And I got to thinking about it.

I thought of Roseanne's highly publicized, easy and never apologetic use of the "D" word and every other curse word known to man. And sewer rat.

And I thought of how Roseanne is neither a sewer rat, nor a man. But a woman. And a mom, for goodness sake. She shouldn't curse or swear like that. So publicly and proudly and lucratively. Her children are listening, other people's children are listening. And whether she likes it or not, and I have a feeling she does like it, she's a role model.

And then I thought, "Yucky!" A Mom who swears, deliberately, for everybody to hear and communicates in such a coarse, harsh way, shouldn't be a role model.

Is it just me or do other Moms find that that rough language tra- it is just not very admirable and role-modelable?

Actually, I do see her as a role model. In reverse. For instance, my hand is always on my heart during the "Star Spangled Banner." And crumpling when people enter the room or grumping at them once they've entered is what I try to avoid. And, of course, that tough, rough language stuff, to me, feels wrong. Just because life can be tough doesn't mean language has to be tough. Tough, rough language doesn't look so nice on a mom.

Now, when I, a mom, cursed (albeit inadvertantly) so publicly the other week, I was mortified. That doggone computer had put a word in my mouth. And when I read that "D" word in my newspaper, in my column, and that "D" word was supposed to be the much milder "D-A-R-N," my face turned red. I just don't say that other word, let alone write it. Especially in such a public place as the newspaper. I have children. What kind of example would I be setting for them, if I used language like that in such a place as this?

Now, Roseanne she offends — most anywhere and most anytime. And that's bad. She's a real life Mom. And here she just had another baby. And you know what? I just betcha she didn't even stop using her bad words while she was pregnant. And I think there may even be some kind of surgeon general's warning out about that.

Now, I'm not so naive as to think no one should ever, under any circumstance, let a word fly. Just be sure children aren't within earshot, otherwise they'll follow along. And, and here's another thing, make sure the people who do hear you cursing also are at least occasional cursers themselves otherwise they'll surely notice your lack of verbal intellect and then make quick and hasty judgments against you.

So be careful.

Now, if you happen to be among fellow filthy mouths in a closed-off room, go ahead, let'em fly. Have fun. Have contests even. Maybe a round of Bad Word Scrabble. Or an Invective Spelldown. Or maybe Junky Language Jeopardy. Just remember. No children. No authority figures. No swear word abstainers. And no elders. No clergy. And no strangers.

Now, some might argue that Roseanne, the real mom and the TV mom, has had it rough, so cut her some slack. You know, rough life, rough language. Well, to that I say, how much less rough did Wilma Flintstone have it back in the days when dinosaurs lived right inside houses and wheels on cars were made out of rocks and there was no glass in the windows? Now that's rough. And did you ever hear Wilma swear? Heck no!

I rest my case.

Workshop is for 'home aloners'

Providence Hospital and Medical Centers are offering a workshop to teach fifth and sixth-grade children skills that will make them comfortable when they must be home alone.

The one-hour workshop uses puzzles and games to instruct the children on who to call in an emergency, how to answer the door and addresses other concerns of the older child.

The class will be 10-11 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 22, at the Providence Women's and Children's Center, 33133 W. 12 Mile Road, Farmington Hills. The fee is $5 per child and registration is required. Call (800) 968-5595.

The hospital's Family Birthing Center also is offering a free, two-hour orientation class to introduce expectant parents and their families to the center 7:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 22.

Donations needed for First Step's garage sale

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Have plenty of stuff for a garage sale, but lack the inclination to have one? Then let First Step do it for you.

Western Wayne County's Project on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault is accepting donations of clean, usable items for its first ever garage sale Friday and Saturday, Aug. 25-26, at the Cherry Hill Schoolhouse, Cherry Hill Road at Ridge Road in Canton Township.

The sale will help raised funds for First Step, which provides shelter, support, counseling, education and advocacy programs for those affected by domestic violence and sexual assault.

"It's being done by the First Step staff and volunteers and people in the community," said Michelle Hartman, volunteer coordinator at First Step. "We have people going to the places they work to get donations."

The idea surfaced during a brainstorming session with staff and volunteers looking for a way to raise money in a fun way, Hartman said. Initially, the plan was to have the sale at a volunteer's home, but was moved to the Cherry Hill Schoolhouse site.

"A volunteer was going to let us use her yard and garage, but with the donations from volunteers and staff, we knew it would be bigger than that," Hartman said. "This is the first time we're doing this, so we really don't know what we'll get."

Plans also include a raffle of a quilt, made by a staff member. Only 100 $2 tickets will be sold. Baked goods and beverages also will be served to shoppers for a donation.

The agency is looking for household items, baby clothes and toys, furniture, televisions, knick-knacks and arts and crafts that are clean, usable and in good condition.

Donations other than furniture can be dropped off at Dr. H.A. Hamerink's dentist office at 159 S. Harvey St., between Church and Penniman in Plymouth, between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 20, and 5-8 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 22 and 24. Furniture donations should be dropped off at the school site at 9 a.m. the first day (Aug. 25) of the sale.

First Step is also looking for volunteers to help with the advertising, setting up, pricing merchandise, baking cookies, cleaning up and working at the sale.

The sale hours will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Aug. 25 and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Aug. 26.

The garage sale is one of the many ways First Step is trying to tap community resources to supplement its public funding. This week the agency began selling Koeze nuts through its administrative offices in Canton as part of its fundraising efforts.

At a time when First Step is facing a double digit increase in the demand for services, its public funding has been declining, so the agency must rely on private donations and fundraisers to fill the gap.

For the 1994-95 service year which ends on Sept. 30, the number of clients assisted has increasd 20 percent and crisis calls 15 percent. The number of counseling hours also is up 11 percent as is the number of advocacy hours, up 15 percent.

"We want to raise just as much as we can, so we're waiting to see what happens to set goals for next year," said Hartman. "If all goes well, it won't be the last."

For more information about the garage sale or Koeze nut sale, call First Step at (313) 453-9595.

ANNIVERSARIES

Teahan

George and Anne Teahan of Hale, Mich., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary July 22 with a reception at the Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth.

The couple exchanged vows on July 20, 1945. They have three children — Larry Teahan of Brighton, Sharon Grisius of Livonia and Patti Lindstrom of White Lake — and six grandchildren.

He is a 1982 retiree of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. The couple lives on Loon Lake and winters at W&I Resorts in Mission, Texas.

Schultz

In honor of their 50th wedding anniversary, Roy and Tillie Schultz, their daughters and families hosted a reception July 29 at the American Legion Hall in Livonia.

More than 200 friends and relatives attended from Arizonia, California, Florida, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, Rhode Island and Michigan.

The highlight of the evening was a surprise program sung by their four daughters and narrated by their son-in-law that took them on a sentimental journey.

Their children are Dick and Irene Davis, Amy and Kevin Woodring, Gary and Sue Gates, Steven and Lou Ann Elred. They also have 12 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A reunion picnic was held the next day at the Schultz's Canton home.

Lampton

Henry and Dorothy Lampton of Plymouth celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Jan. 25 at a party given by their children. More than 60 friends and relatives attended.

The couple exchanged vows on Jan. 24, 1945, in Judsonia, Ark. The former Dorothy Brown lived in Bald Knob, Ark., while he lived in Russell, Ark.

The Lamptons lived in Arkansas until they moved to Cheyenne, Wy., in 1948. They moved to Plymouth in 1951. They have two daughters, Jerri Hargrave of Canton and Angela Brey of Livonia. They also have three grandchildren — Jason Price and Stephen and Nicole Brey.

A veteran of World War II, he served in the U.S. Army Air Corps as a military police officer. He retired from the Plymouth Canton Community Schools in 1980, while Dorothy has worked at Sunplastics for 43 years. They are members of Calvary Baptist Church in Canton.

INTRODUCING
The New Life Center at Providence Park
Where families are born...close to home

A COMFORTABLE ATMOSPHERE
Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

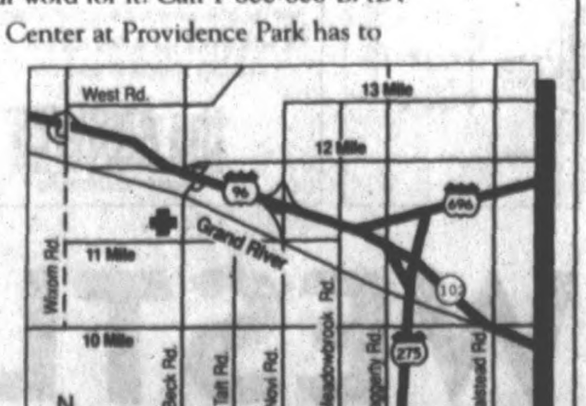

A UNIQUE APPROACH
It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking. And an alternative to traditional hospital births*. The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.

THE CHOICES ARE MANY
From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.

COME SEE FOR YOURSELF But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

*Only pregnant women who have been pre-screened and assessed as low risk by a Providence physician are eligible to deliver at the Providence Park New Life Center.

Distinctive writing shows feeling for dramatic effect

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Lorene,

For a change I thought I'd print because I've had many comments about just that. I am 28, I am right-handed and a housewife and mother. Please tell me what you think.

D.B., Westland

I think we are analyzing the attractive printing of a very nice young woman. Seemingly, she has experienced some unhappiness in the past. Unfortunately, it continues to have a strong controlling influence on her.

As my regular readers know, I rarely select printing to analyze in my column because the research is rather limited. However, her distinctive printing leaped out and consumed my interest until I analyzed it.

When she wrote this letter, she was feeling discouraged. While I hope it is a temporary condition, I need samples written at other times to be certain.

Our writer has a special feeling for dramatic effects. She probably enjoys being before the public. She might also enjoy directing group activities. Both an audience and compliments would add to her performance. The recognition would be welcomed.

She wants to squeeze every ounce of drama out of any situation. Although she may not realize it, she tends to exaggerate sometimes and probably without realizing how far she is going.

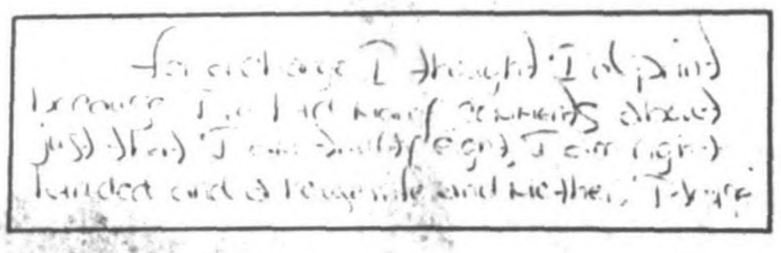

She is extremely aware of the impression she makes on others. She likes to dress in eye-catching fashions. In fact, she may be a tad vain about her appearance.

Creativity abounds in this printing. Art aptitude is suggested.

This woman is versatile and can probably do many things well. However, she appears to lack confidence in herself and her capabilities. She both needs and wants caring people in her life to compensate for the early deprivation she perceives.

This printing suggests she may have spiritual or metaphysical leanings. If so, she might find classes at Unity Church in Livonia that she would like to pursue. The atmosphere is warm and supportive. I hope she is aware of her intuition.

It seems quite possible that this young woman is presenting a personality in her social life that is not a true representation of herself. Her signature is quite different than the text. The signature represents the image you want others to see and the text is the inner personality.

Walk benefits Gilda's Club

As a community service, area congregations are sending teams of walkers to participate in the second annual Family Walk and Block Party for Gilda's Club, Metro Detroit, Sunday, Sept. 17, at Cobo Center in Detroit.

The indoor walk and block party will be at 1 p.m in the Macomb Room of Cobo Center. This year, the 5K walk is in honor of Carol Silverman, a member of the Executive Board of Gilda's Club. It also honors the late Ina Kadish, a board member who lost her battle with cancer on Aug. 7.

Named in memory of the comedian Gilda Radner, a former Detroiter, Gilda's Club, Metro Detroit, will be a free emotional and social support community for all people with all kinds of cancer.

Gilda's Club was the dream of Radner before she succumbed to cancer in 1989. According to her husband, Gene Wilder, she wanted people to have "a place to go, alone or with their families, to learn to shake off feelings of hopelessness and isolation and reclaim their gift of laughter."

For further information on Gilda's Club, call the Gilda's Club office at (810) 851-6557. For walk information or entry forms, call the Motor City Striders at (810) 544-9099. Entry forms also are available at AMC Theaters, Big Boy Restaurants, D.O.C. Optics and Weight Watchers.

MOTOWN EXHIBIT WORKS ITS MAGIC

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

Laurie Dick believes in building bridges. While preparing for the opening of the "Motown Sound" exhibit at Henry Ford Museum, her dream was that the multi-media site would bring Detroiters and suburbanites together.

It only took until opening day Memorial Day weekend for that to happen, the museum's spokeswoman said.

"I was back in the area with (directions on how to do) the Temptations dance. There were some people standing around," said the Westland resident.

"I just took my employee badge off and stuck in it my pocket. I started dancing with a couple of people. A black woman was dancing more than anybody else. Afterward, she grabbed my hand and said, 'Yes. We did it.' "

Her sentiment seconded the emotion of a famous quote by Motown legend Smokey Robinson.

"Smokey Robinson said, 'When we first started out, blacks and whites sat on opposite sides of the auditorium. But by the time they got going hot and heavy, they weren't only sitting next to each other, they were dancing and hugging.' It just happened. At that moment I said, 'Motown music is magic music,'" Dick said.

The two-year exhibition at the music showcases Motown's Detroit years, 1959-1972. A red-carpeted walkway lined with '60s cars and nostalgic scenes of Detroit welcomes visitors to the multi-media exhibit.

Upon entering the exhibit, patrons get a hands-on lesson about creating a record. Costumes by Motown artists are encased in glass. Through the use of video screens, visitors can become members of the Temptations as they learn the famous steps.

The exhibit ends with a "Motown Heritage Walk," which uses artifacts and music to tell the story.

Joe Wolford of Farmington Hills served as construction coordinator for the event and said this was the most satisfying project he's worked on.

The music is so "magical" that it takes two museums to tell the story. While Henry Ford Museum at Greenfield Village hosts the two-year exhibition, Motown Historical Museum at Hitsville, U.S.A., is having a celebration of its own.

The two museums formed the Motown Museum Partnership in 1992 to jointly develop these exhibitions and to encourage greater cultural diversity among museum audiences, programs, and professional staff, Dick said.

"I was fortunate enough to be part of the entourage that escorted Berry Gordy through the exhibit at this site for the first time. Seeing his reaction, his near tears, seeing the reaction of the people who created the video portion (was overwhelming). . . . Berry was very pleased. He was overwhelmed. It was a 'find somebody to hug moment.' "

"That was one of the things we've seen a lot. A lot of the people who weren't the stars but some of the background people, they're getting recognition for a change."

Motown artist Frances Nero of Southfield feels differently. The North Carolina native was discovered after entering a talent contest judged by Berry Gordy in 1965 at the Fox Theatre in Detroit.

As part of her prize she recorded the single "Keep On Loving Me" and "Fight Fire With Fire" on the Soul Records subsidiary. Motown did little to push the single, she said, which frustrated her.

"The management did mention to me that they were going after this new sound. I guess it was the pop sound. They said I had the perfect voice for it, but I had to wait awhile."

The song was re-released in Great Britian in 1991 where it went to No. 3 on the charts, just below Cher and Michael Bolton. Apparently impressed, organizers of the exhibit asked her to submit a photo of her with Gordy, but it didn't make the final cut. That added fuel to the fire, she said.

"There are a lot of artists that helped to make up Motown's background that have been completely forgotten. I think it's tragic. Unfortunately, a lot of people all they counted on was their bosses, and they wanted Motown to do something for them. I'm just fortunate that I'm a person of many means, and I don't have all my eggs in one basket. I still have my future as an artist."

Nero is currently working on an album at Sylvia Moy's Masterpiece Sounds with Ivy Hunter, who wrote "Dancing in the Streets" by Martha and the Vandellas.

Jack Ryan, the Canton-based manager for The Contours ("Do You Love Me?") said he feels the Motown scene was represented fairly.

"We saw it opening night. I thought it was very nice. I thought they did what they could do with the space allotted to them," Ryan said.

"I enjoyed what I saw. There was a nice hands-on exhibit for the average Joe. You can pretend to sing, learn choreography, look at outfits and gold records. (It's good because) maybe people don't know where the Motown Museum is or don't want to go for some reason."

The Spinners' baritone vocalist, Henry Fambrough of Troy, said the Motown story is an important story to tell and he's surprised that it took so long for someone to commemorate the sound.

"It should have been done a long time ago because it meant so much to the city. Motown put Detroit on the map," said Fambrough, whose band's single, "I'll Be Around," was recently remade by rappers Rappin' Fortay.

"All the music was free of cursing. There was no bad lingo or anything. It was happy music."

Working wizardry: Farmington Hills resident Ted Swigon, director of museum services at Exhibit Works in Livonia, brings history to life in displays.

Mr. Wizard has a blast with the past

BY MARY KLEMIC
STAFF WRITER

You could call Ted Swigon Mr. Wizard.

He can send you back in time or put you up close to the workings of science.

The Farmington Hills resident is director of museum services at Exhibit Works in Livonia. His background includes 15 years at the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago, where he was director of exhibits for six years. His philosophy regarding exhibits involves getting into a one-to-one relationship with the visitor, showing what the subject means to him or her, and making the learning experience interesting and fun.

"If you're not having fun the visitors know it," said Swigon, who joined Exhibit Works in June. "You can't fake it because it shows."

Exhibit Works is an exhibit and museum design/building firm. It is also known for corporate, consumer and trade show displays such as the 1995 Ford Division Auto Show exhibit.

"We're thrilled to have a museum man of Ted's caliber on board," said Dominic Silvio, Exhibit Works president. "The Museum of Science and Industry can't be beat for fun, excitement and education, and we look forward to bringing that level of expertise to all of our museum work."

Among the firm's recent museum projects are the Motown and Made in America exhibits at Henry Ford Museum in Greenfield Village, and the National Corvette Museum in Bowling Green, Ky. It is now involved in the Automotive Hall of Fame, which will be built near the Henry Ford Museum.

Touring the facility is like being backstage at a theater and at ground control right before a space launch combined. It's an exciting place, from the colorful planning graphics on an office wall to the machines designed to move heavy vehicles like magic. Here museum exhibits are developed, here auto displays weighing tons are assembled. The place is charged with energy, personified in the person of Swigon, who speaks with an enthusiasm that fills the room.

Gearing up

"It's something unique for the Detroit area," he said of the Automotive Hall of Fame.

Scheduled to open in 1997, the Automotive Hall of Fame will show the people involved in the development of the automobile at all levels, the lesser known as well as the famous.

"Real people did these things, cigar smoking, church going (people).

"Average people came up with good ideas and saw them through for the good of everybody. Ransom Olds was just a guy with a machine shop."

At this stage, the Automotive Hall of Fame is incubating in such forms as diagrams, sketches and a giant timeline bearing pieces of paper with names. It will feature icons, kiosks, a library and vignettes, about 8,000 square feet of exhibits in a building about 20,000 square feet in size. Visitors may look into scenes recreating the lounge where pioneers in the auto industry met to talk over ideas or Woodward Avenue in its cruising glory, or try their hand at cranking a car the way it used to be done to fire up the engine.

Every generation, somebody comes up with better ideas or whole new concepts."

The automobile shows how big ideas can come from everywhere. The notion of controlling an explosion to make a piston rise in a cylinder led to the car. Someone breaking their arm cranking an auto led to the development of the electric starter.

Getting involved

Swigon earned a bachelor's degree in fine arts from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago and a master's degree in business administration from Roosevelt University. He worked on three or four exhibit projects in graduate school.

"It's a blast."

Among his past projects are a display detailing the history of an order of nuns ("Delightful") and work for the Polish Museum of America in Chicago ("That was fun").

Swigon likes to attach the visitor to an exhibit in some way. For example, a display at the Museum of Science and Industry about the working of the eye enabled visitors to see an eye open and close. An exhibit can involve the viewer in something as simple as pushing a button to start a recording.

Swigon savors going to museums all over. One of his favorites was a small museum in Lafayette, Ind., where a magnifying glass hung from the wall so the viewer could use it to examine old photos closely. You had the idea that you would discover something everyone else had missed. The notion could find its way into an exhibit by Swigon some day.

"It was wonderful. You never know when you're going to see something."

■ CHILDREN'S ART

Michigan's largest Children's Art Show, the fifth annual presented by D & M Art Studio in cooperation with the Plymouth Cultural Center, takes place 3-5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 27, at the cultural center, 525 Farmer in Plymouth.

Art Menagerie from the Rain Forest" is the theme of this year's show featuring more than 500 pieces of children's art. Come walk through their rain forest.

You will see pastel parrots, papier mache animals, tribal masks, acrylic paintings and watercolors that could only spring from a child's imagination. This rain forest setting has been created by students ages 3-16 who participated in the 13 art camps held this summer at the cultural center under the direction of D & M Art Studio.

All students in the camp expressed themselves with a quilt square which will be joined together to produce a "Save the Rain Forest Quilt." The exhibition will commence with the unveiling of this spectacular quilt.

■ FIRST MEETING

Making art is a solitary occupation. The majority of artists work in a void secluded from others without support or feedback. If you're a struggling artist in search of camaraderie, the answer could be to join a group of like-minded individuals.

Three Cities Art Club will hold its first fall meeting 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 28, at the Plymouth Township Clerk's Office on the northeast corner of Lilley and Ann Arbor roads. A 35-plus fine arts club, Three Cities welcomes back old as well as new members to this meeting.

Preparation for the club's exhibition in the Plymouth Community Arts Council's Artist and Craftsmen Show held during Plymouth Fall Festival Sept. 9-10 will be the topic of conversation.

Subsequent meetings will be held on the first Monday of the month beginning Oct. 2. For more information, call Sue Argiroff, (313) 422-8106.

■ VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Attention all Observerland art lovers. The Detroit Institute of Arts is looking for you. Gallery Service volunteers are urgently needed to greet and assist visitors in the museum galleries.

A training session is scheduled for 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Sept. 9 in the Holley Room at the Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward. For more information, call (313) 833-0247 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

■ MASTERWORKS OFFERED

The Friends of the Redford Township District Library will host "Masterworks of the DIA" featuring Ruth Lefkowitz of the Speakers Bureau of the Detroit Institute of Arts Founders Society on Monday, Sept. 11, at the library, 15150 Norborne one block west of Beech Daly, two blocks south of Five Mile Road in Redford.

This special evening program is free but advance registration is required. For more information, call the library, (313) 538-4257.

Exhibit showcases couple's Ukrainain folk art collection

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Art is much more than pretty pictures. When history went unrecorded images on clay vessels relayed the story of ancient civilizations such as the Moche, a pre-Inca culture that flourished more than 1,700 years ago in Peru. Since this culture had no written language, the discovery of their artifacts in the royal tombs of Sipan supplied the missing link in knowledge about a culture highly- skilled in fine crafts.

Preserving the past is what Dr. Miroslaw and Anna Hnatiuk had in mind when they began collecting Ukrainian folk art more than 45 years ago.

Ukrainian folk art from their collection remains on display through Aug. 31 in the Livonia Arts Commission's second floor showcases at the Civic Center Library.

Comprised of woodcrafts from the Carpathian Mountains and ceramics, clay from Hutsul and porcelain from the capital of Kiev, the exhibit "Original Art of the Folk Craftsmen of Ukraine" is literally a living history lesson about a strong and proud people who have battled invaders like the Tatars and Genghis Kahn and his Mongol warriors in the late 13th century to Lenin's communists in 1918 and the Germans during World War II.

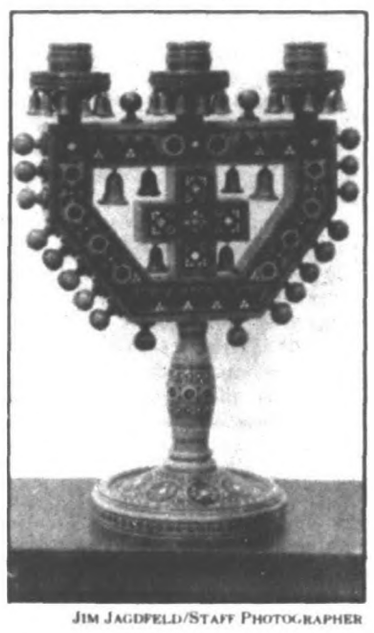

In search of freedom, the Hnatiuks left Zalistchyky in the Western part of Ukraine in 1949. Longing for home, they enlisted family and friends to send or bring them Ukrainian crafts.

It is their hope to one day, with the help of a benefactor, to open the Livonia Museum of Ukrainian Art to educate others about their culture. One-hundred-fifty embroidered costumes, some more than 100 years old, from different regions of Ukraine identify the various peoples of their homeland.

"Ukrainians are hard working and peace loving people. Unfortunately, due to the location of Ukraine, the richness of the country and (being) the bread basket of the world, Ukraine was subject to the expansionist efforts of our neighbors," said Miroslaw Hnatiuk, a retired doctor who until 1983 directed the Cambridge Mental Health and Developmental Center in Ohio. The Hnatiuks have lived in Livonia since then.

"The aspirations of Ukrainians to be free and independent was hindered by the politics of the Russian regime. We wanted to display this art not only because we love and enjoy it but to depict our country, the people, the heritage, the multi-cultural society which was so little known in this country to bring some knowledge," he said.

Ukrainians are known for the beautiful and intricate handwork found in their embroidery, wood craft, and Pysanky (decorated Easter eggs).

A wood candleabra from Hutsul is inlaid with mother of pearl and beads. Wood carvings like this utilize the abundance of the native forests. Hutsuls have developed a special technique of chip carving using glass beads to add color. Geometric shapes are mainly used for the design decorating the plates, chests, boxes and other wood objects in the display. Some have designs burned into the wood, also a common Hutsul technique. A replica of a typical church tells a story of the regions of Hutsul, Boyko and Lemko when houses of worship were elaborately carved of wood more than 100 years ago. Few remain today.

Ceramics document the history and influences of Ukrainian pottery. Painted pots from Trypillia near Kiev date back to the Neolithic (2500-2000 B.C.) period. Although none of them are in this exhibit, their delicate flower designs influenced the contemporary vases and bowls in the cases.

Clay ceramics from the eighth and seventh centuries B.C. found in large quantities between the Black Sea and Central Ukraine are very similar to those found in Greece.

Although pottery declined somewhat in the 14th and 15th centuries by the end of the 15th century new artisan guilds began to appear. By the 17th century, Ukrainian artists had begun glazing both sides of the vessel. Ukrainian thematic and stylistic motifs were introduced into the designs at the beginning of the 19th century. Earthen pigments taken from nature color the pottery even today as is evidenced in the Hnatiuk's clay pottery from Hutsul.

"We were interested in the arts since our youth. Since we left home we were missing the art. We want to pass this from generation to generation like our parents and grandparents did," Anna Hnatiuk said. "Heritage should be shared and preserved."

Laughter abounds at 'The Tavern'

"The Tavern" 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 17-19; 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 20, Adray Auditorium, MacKenzie Fine Arts Center, Henry Ford Community College, 5101 Evergreen, Dearborn. Tickets $8, students $7, senior citizens $6, available at the door or by calling (313) 845-6478.

BY CARL BOOKSTEIN
SPECIAL WRITER

It is a dark and stormy night. Strange noises and a shadow are heard and seen outside the tavern. Gun shots are fired and as the night moves along, one new character after another comes into "The Tavern" — a play by George M. Cohan currently playing at Henry Ford Communtiy College. Several mini melodramas unfold and come together. The pace and momentum quicken and the play draws the audience in more and more as it progresses.

George M. Cohan, well known for his famed musical "Yankee Doodle Dandy," spins an engaging and thoughtful tale with "The Tavern" which presents both farce and greater truth.

As the story unwinds; it is not long before we meet the vagabond, played authentically and energetically by Laurence Fron of Plymouth. With tall felt boots, peasant shirt, long flowing hair and beard, the vagabond is the play's spiritual center. His contagious spirit, laughter and wit are at the heart of this play, and all that goes on unfolds around him.

The vagabond often speaks in riddles that befuddle the other characters while charming the audience. Cohan uses the vagabond to play on words as well as theatrical conventions. The vagabond has insight into each plot twist almost before it happens, while the rest of the tavern's characters remain regularly and repeatedly bewildered until the play's final scene.

"The Tavern" starts slowly yet builds and grows strong in Act 2 with one comic turn after another, each more funny than the last. The character Willum, a seeming simpleton hilariously played by Robert Shipman of Garden City, summed it up best as he repeated "What the hell kind of night is this anyway?" again and again until everyone in the audience is laughing out loud. It is the kind of night where the mystery surrounding a certain woman and the riddle of this vagabond man combine to generate a story that holds the audience's interest with a lot of laughs and a few lessons that can be learned from the vagabond in the process.

Also notable were Andrew Huff of Detroit as Freeman, the tavern keeper and Paulette La Douceur as the flirtatious Virgina, the one character to appreciate the wonder of the vagabond. The direction by Tom Anderson features solid choreography and pacing that work and flow well. "The Tavern" is Anderson's swan song at Henry Ford Community College as he and wife Jennifer who is also the play's technical director and set designer, are moving to Virgina. They will certainly be missed.

Frontier funnies: Laurence Fron of Plymouth stars as the vagabond, caught in the middle of comedy, murder and mayhem on the Wyoming frontier in HFCC's production of "The Tavern." Paulette La-Douceur plays Virgina, the governor's wife.

The bright and buoyant cast of "The Shoemaker and the Elves" teach all a valued lesson when performing this well-known tale, a musical adaptation of the classic Brothers Grimm tale.

The lesson — "it is more blessed to give than to receive" is demonstrated best by unselfish Lockhart and Matilda Cobblestone (the shoemaker and his wife) who help out a number of townsfolk in the city of Clankbottom.

This musical tale begins with the Cobblestones helping an elderly woman by supplying her with a pair of shoes to cover her bare feet. This senior turns out to be a "magical" person who rewards the caring couple's kindness by granting them five helpful and funny elves who create wondrous shoes in the wee hours of the morning.

"The Shoemaker and the Elves" cast members are students of the Marquis Theatre camps. While many stupendous thespians are found in this theatrical production, one of note is Lars Kvalvaag who plays the leader elf, Mortz. Kvalvaag, who recently returned from a national tour of the Broadway musical, "The Secret Garden," has impish-like gestures and movements allowing him to perfectly portray an elf. In addition, his solo, "I Bless this Home," is sung softly and sweetly, and adds just the right touch.

Another topnotch performer is Laura Haeberle who plays Loretta Le Pointe, a ballerina and client of the shoemaker. Haeberle delivers her lines enthusiastically as she shows her fine dancing form on her toes.

Two others are not easily forgotten. Nick Nerio and Laurie Boloven, as the shoemaker and his wife, are cute, quite humorous and "sickenly" lovey-dovey.

The set, which depicts the shoemaker's home and workshop, provides various levels on which the actors perform. The sneaky elves retreat to the orchestra pit when hiding from the Cobblestones; the towns people enter and deliver their lines on an entry and stairs above the workshop, and cast members run off the stage and through the audience. These varying "stages" keep the action moving and help the audience feel a part of the performance.

Also of interest are the costumes, which help portray "The Shoemaker and the Elves" as a fairy tale, or at least something out of the norm.

A variety of hats from bonnets to sailor hats to elves headpieces that fail to stay on the little heads, are the most predominant feature of the colorful costumes. Like the hats,the costumes are not from any specific period, although the play is billed as taking place "a long time ago."

For instance, Mayor Clankbattle's attire is "Roaring '20s" flashing with a "loud" plaid sportscoat and sequined box tie.

The shoemaker wears a velvet waistcoat with knickers, something definitely suitable for Victorian-era royalty, but not the "poor" character he portrays. But then again, this is a fairy tale.

Elvin Bishop plays blues fest

Blues Music Festival '95 starring: B.B. King, Jimmy Vaughan, Etta James, Jay Geils & Magic Dick, Elvin Bishop, 8 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 23, Fox Theatre. Tickets $37.50, call (810) 433-1515.

"How you doin'?" Elvin Bishop asked innocently enough last week, to which I replied that I was hot and sweaty.

"Tell me all about it! We've been through some hellacious hot weather the last couple of days. We went through Death Valley twice in the last 3 or 4 days. We were in Las Cruces, New Mexico, last night. Las Vegas the night before."

Elvin Bishop just naturally knows about hot. Born in Tulsa, Okla., in 1942, he was awarded a National Merit Scholarship in 1959 and set his sights on the University of Chicago. In short order, the physics major was making friends with all the blues players in the musically fertile city. In 1963, he co-founded one of the most exciting bands in the history of the genre — the Butterfield Blues Band. With a front line of a harmonica player and vocalist Paul Butterfield and second lead guitarist Michael Bloomfield, Bishop was largely responsible for bringing the white rock and roll audience to the blues. After recording three albums with Butterfield, he embarked on a solo career that has, thus far, yielded 15 albums, including the 1976 million-selling "Struttin' My Stuff," with a its number three single — "Fooled Around and Fell in Love" sung by future Starship vocalist Mickey Thomas.

These days, he's recording for Alligator, and has just released his third effort on the label — "Ace in the Hole."

Chicago brings big band sound to Pine Knob

Chicago 7:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 18, Pine Knob Music Theatre. Tickets $22.50 pavilion, $12.50 lawn, (810) 645-6666.

SPECIAL WRITER

"My dad loves it. This was his era. The music he cut his teeth on," said Walt Parazaider, woodwind player and founding member of Chicago. His father is an 82-year-old Big Band veteran currently playing trumpet with three different groups. The work ethic was obviously instilled early in young Walter, as was the love of music.

The music in question is found on the band's new Giant Records release, "Night & Day (Big Band)." To call it a musical curve ball is an understatement. Again, perhaps, it's closer to the band's roots than many might suppose. Even at the beginning, when a group of young music majors in their teens and early 20s from DePaul University in Chicago first started kicking the idea of forming a group around, the inclusion of horns was considered essential.

"We sat around my apartment — six of us; Peter Cetera didn't join until six months later — and thought of starting a rock and roll band with horns as an integral part of the sound. Not like James Brown's band, with the inflections,(sings a snipet of Brown arrangement), but interwoven into the whole," Parazaider remembered by phone from a Jacksonville, Florida stop last week.

"Brian Setzer's doing it, and Harry Connick, but no band is doing this," he said, adding that "back in '67 we were playing a few Big Band tunes" in the band's infancy.

Also: "In '74, Duke Ellington asked us to be on a show with him called 'We Love You Madly.' We were doing a version of his 'Jump For Joy' at the time. He had Marshall Royal and Cat Anderson in the band," Parazaider remembers fondly. "Count Basie, Ella Fitzgerald, Sarah Vaughan, Ray Charles and Peggy Lee were on the show. These were all the people that we looked up to! We knew he was sick, but he was actually dying at the time. He was in a wheel chair, and (founding member/trombonist James) Pankow and me ran up two flights of stairs to thank him for letting us be on the show. He stood up, very graciously, and said, 'On the contrary, I want to thank you. You're the next Duke Ellington.' That had such an impact on us. When this idea was first presented, I thought back to those times."

Fittingly, the most adventurous piece on the new disc is Chicago's take on Ellington's theme song, "Take the 'A' Train." Maybe it's a bit of symmetry that accounts for the weakest song here being their take on Ellington's "Don't Get Around Much Anymore," too. The band is largely successful, though, in this tribute to the music of their parent's generation.

From the addition of the Gipsy Kings on Goodman's "Sing, Sing, Sing" to the guitar solo from Aerosmith's Joe Perry on "Blues in the Night," the band offers unique versions of standards without detracting from their original flavors — at least not too drastically. Their "In The Mood" is brassy sharp and funky bottomed at the same time, and versions of "Moonlight Serenade," "Night & Day" and a finger-snapping cover of "Chicago" are tight and impressive.

"The idea came from a fella at another record company," Parazaider says. 'He said 'you're the only horn band out there. Did you ever think of doing contemporary remakes of big band songs, Chicago style?'

"We started researching the music," he said. "We went into record stores and bought Glenn Miller and Benny Goodman records — I mean CDs! We wanted to give it a contemporary feel with a Chicago sound."

The current tour will offer "few surprises" he promises.

Bunuel's 'Belle' still provokes 30 years later

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

Luis Bunuel began his film career in a legendary collaboration with Salvador Dali. "Un Chien Andalou," a short made in 1928, shocked audiences with its surreal, sometimes savage, imagery, including the unforgettable shot of a woman's eye sliced by a razor.

In 1967, the 67-year-old filmmaker was still assaulting the eye — and the sensibilities. "Belle de Jour," his second film in color, told the unconventional (even for France) story of a bored Paris housewife who spends her afternoons as a high-priced prostitute.

Dated but still provocative, the movie has been out of circulation for almost 20 years. It screens this weekend at the Detroit Film Theatre.

"Belle de Jour" opens with star Catherine Deneuve driven by carriage in the country. Her handsome husband comments on her coldness, then drags her savagely through the woods, ties her to a tree, and orders the carriage drivers to have their way with her.

It's only a dream, but soon the woman, who really does have trouble opening up sexually to her husband, grows fascinated with the idea of anonymous intercourse. She gets the address of a Paris bordello and soon finds herself as "the new girl," Belle de Jour, from 2 to 5 in the afternoon.

Her strange clientele includes a candy manufacturer whose surface joviality turns mean when Belle doesn't immediately succumb to him. A disheveled young gangster — a grown-up Artful Dodger with long coat, cane, and gold teeth — becomes so obsessed that he follows her home.

Much of the appeal of "Belle de Jour" lies in the icy persona of Deneuve. Her heavy makeup and blank expression in this and Polanski's "Repulsion" (1964) give her an almost doll-like quality, ultimately making it hard to ascertain her true talents as an actress.

The movie is not explicit by '90s standards, though a lingering negligee scene must have raised some eyebrows in the '60s. For modern audiences, Deneuve's disrobing is more tease than strip, with expensive underwear discreetly shed in shots from behind.

Bunuel laces the film with humor and irony, his psychological clues and foreshadowing so outrageously placed that he must have his tongue firmly in cheek. He refuses to judge his characters' actions, leaving us with our own ambiguous feelings about the woman and the devastating results of her fantasies.

Many other Bunuel trademarks appear, including a fascination with religion, class, and the juxtaposition of the dream world with reality that culminates so masterfully by film's end.

The clothing in the movie might warrant some unintentional laughter since Bunuel's upper class characters dress in up-to-the-minute Yves Saint Laurent. It's the only thing that really dates the Bunuel pictures of this period.

STREET SCENE

Go, cats, go — rockabilly bands rave on

BY TODD WICKS
STAFF WRITER

Ready Freddy, Gorgeous George Valentine, the Professor — these aren't characters from vintage Saturday morning cartoons or the wrestlers your father grew up watching. They're the new breed of Detroit's rockabilly, young and old musicians alike who want to earn their music the respect it deserves.

Still honoring pioneers like Eddie Cochran and Gene Vincent, the leaders of the burgeoning neo-rockabilly scene are also working to put a modern spin on their traditional American music.

These bands may disagree on the importance of the pompadour, the tattoo and the upright bass, but all would agree that today, rockabilly has become greatly misunderstood.

"Everybody thinks that rockabilly was this one narrow thing that the Stray Cats did in the mid-'80s, and it's a lot broader than that," explained Pistol Pete, a singer/bassist from Pontiac and the leader of the Twistin' Tarantulas.

"Most of the rockabilly artists across the States are all working hard to shake that stigma of 'Sha Na Na' and the whole nostalgia thing. We're trying to get it recognized as an American musical art form like blues, swing or jazz."

For the unitiated, however, the Stray Cats aren't a bad place to start. Their hit "Rock This Town" features all of rockabilly's vital ingredients: a minimal but swinging drumbeat, a nifty walking bass line, twangy lead guitar and hiccupping vocals heavy on the reverb. From Elvis Presley's "That's All Right" in the '50s to Morrissey's "The Loop" last year, this peculiar blend of blues and country can be irresistable.

"(Rockabilly) was pushed up big back in the '80s," said Mike "the Professor" Silvio of the Farmington-based Chickenhawk, "(but) there have always been bands doing it.

"It cuts out a lot of the confusion of hard rock and alternative. It's the basics: it's danceable, it's clean, it's honest, it's a good time. People can dance, they can jump, they can shout, they can scream, they can wiggle, they can walk. It's just a lot of fun."

Besides newer bands, there are also a few rockabilly lifers who still call the Detroit area home. Originally from Utica, Johnny Powers hit it big at the legendary Sun Studios in the '50s, later worked for Motown Records and still tours.

"They now say I'm the only artist on the planet to sign with two such legendary labels," he said.

Despite his early success, Powers quit singing for 20 years but was lured back by his cult of European fans in the '80s.

"It's hard to explain how big (rockabilly) is in Europe," he said. "They're really hip to that stuff . . . they still have teddy boys and rockers, just like in the '50s."

On Aug. 19 Powers will test the waters at home when he headlines a rockabilly festival at the Magic Bag in Ferndale to promote his new record "New Spark For An Old Flame" (Schoolkids Records). He hopes for a strong hometown turnout.

"Unfortunately, I don't do that many shows in Michigan," he said. "I would just like to see my home state participate and have fun cruising Woodward like I did in my teenage days. I'd also like to see some of the older people come out and get a little loose along with the younger kids."

One of the younger kids at the Magic Bag that night will be Ryan Racine, except he's not just going to see Powers; his band is opening. Racine and the two other members of the Ann Arbor-based rockabilly group Lucky Haskins are all still in high school.

"Yeah, we have one more year left," Racine said dejectedly. The impending school year will put a sizeable cramp in Lucky Haskins' gigging.

"I guess we'll just do weekend shows, like we have the past couple (school) years," he said.

Although the Stray Cats peaked when he was about 5 years old, Racine still observes a pattern to rockabilly's lifeline.

"It seems like every 15 years or so it resurfaces," he said.

Lucky Haskins also clearly admires his musical elders. "I love Johnny Powers," Racine said. "We played with him before at Sully's. He also had us open with him for Carl Perkins ('Blue Suede Shoes') at Sully's last December. (Perkins) was really great, kind of a grandfather figure."

Singer/guitarist Bill Giorgio of Nobody's Business (also playing the Magic Bag Aug. 19) hopes to create a full-fledged rockabilly scene in Detroit starting with Tuesday night jam sessions at The Office Bar in his hometown of Redford.

"We're trying to build on something we feel is already there, promoting ourselves and any rockabilly band that comes down," he said, stressing the unity such a scene requires.

"We're trying to take something we feel is happening and make it bigger and better, but for all the rockabilly bands."

Awaiting CD release: While the Redford-based rockabilly band Nobody's Business awaits the release of their latest CD, produced by ex-Stray Cats bassist Lee Rocker, they play jam sessions at their hometown's The Office Bar.

Waiting for the final mix of its debut CD (produced by ex-Stray Cats bassist Lee Rocker), Nobody's Business purposely puts the emphasis on the music instead of the look.

"We are into the visual thing, but do we look like every other rockabilly band out there? No," Giorgio said flatly. "We do our homework, but at the same time we try and keep everything as original as we can."

Fashion plays a bigger role for others. Silvio and his bandmates in Chickenhawk gleefully indulge in '50s visuals.

"It's all tattoos, greased-back hair, kids jitterbugging in the audience, it's all that," he said. "It's the look and a big part of the show."

But Silvio will admit that cool clothes and flashy guitars are subservient to the sound.

"The pompadours and stuff are all a part of it, but it still comes down to the music. Heavy metal without long hair is still heavy metal, you know?"

The Twistin' Tarantulas know rockabilly's visual appeal but worry that it overshadows the music.

"Sure, when you go to a Mexican restaurant you like to see a few sombreros hanging on the wall, I understand that," said Pistol Pete of leopardskin shoes and watch chains. "I also understand that the '50s aspect of (rockabilly) is the reason some people like it. But that's not why I like it.

"To me, rockabilly was the first punk rock," he continues with growing intensity. "When it was first being created back in the '50s, this was serious greaser music for hot-rodders and juvenile delinquents. All the geeks and jocks were listening to doo-wop and the Platters and bands like that. (Rockabilly) was rawer and had more energy."

From the respectful youths in Lucky Haskins to the brash confidence of the Tarantulas, Detroit's rising rockabilly scene is host to several distinct personalities. All must co-exist to create the scene Giorgio and Nobody's Business hope for, but it shouldn't be too hard; as those pompadoured demigods the Stray Cats sang not long ago, "Everybody knows that rockabilly rules, OK?"

Nobody's Business, along with Lucky Haskins, Artie Wolff and the Pack and Johnny Powers perform during the "Rockabilly Festival" at 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 19, at the Magic Bag Theatre Cafe, 22918 Woodward Ave., Ferndale. Tickets are $6 in advance for the 18 and older show. For more information, call (810) 544-3030.

Nobody's Business also hosts a rockabilly jam session every Tuesday night at The Office, 15414 Telegraph, Redford, (313) 533-4477.

The Twistin' Tarantulas play every Sunday night at the Magic Stick in the Majestic Theater complex, 4140 Woodward Ave., Detroit. For more information, call (313) 833-9700.

SOUND Bites

Tate's Basement

- Seth Hitsky: singer
- Mike Flaherty: bassist
- Jeremy Shulman: guitarist
- Jim McBroom: percussionist

Seth Hitsky of the Southfield-based Tate's Basement doesn't like what he's seeing in clubs these days. Lyrics, he said, are taking a backseat to the ritualistic aspects of shows such as jumping around and head-banging to loud music.

"I think in a lot of music, lyrics are getting lost. Lyrics are important to me. . . . (Listeners) are listening for just certain things as opposed to the whole. For example, you can read a John Grisham novel and have a really enjoyable read and read something by Henry James and have a hard time with it. You have to work at Henry James but it's a lot more fulfilling (in the end) than John Grisham," said Hitsky who is also an actor who performed in "Angry Housewives" at the Strand in Pontiac, and "The Fantasticks" at Greenfield Village.

He cites a quote by E.Y. Harburg which he said sums up his feelings: "Words make you think, Music makes you feel, Songs make you feel thoughts."

The band which takes '60s heavy metal guitar riffs and vocal styles and melds them into a '90s sound recently released the single "Slave To Him" and "For Fear of Red." Recorded at the White Room studios in Detroit, it's available at shows and via P.O. Box 1151, Birmingham, MI 48012-1151.

Tate's Basement plays an all-ages show at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 17, at the Magic Bag Theatre Cafe, 22918 Woodward Ave., Ferndale, with Vagsam Prom, Affliction, and the Deliranix. Call (810) 544-3030 for more information.

Black Crowes happy with the HORDE

STAFF WRITER

The Black Crowes' success with their album "Amorica" easily could have sent the band on a headlining U.S. tour of its own for the summer. But the band decided to shake a different kind of money maker and head out with the HORDE (Horizons of Rock Developing Everywhere) tour.

"We did a couple of HORDE shows last summer. It was just a good vibe, a real positive thing. They invited us back and we accepted. We thought, 'What a way to spend a lot of the summer,' " bassist Johnny Colt said.

Unlike other all-day festivals like Lollapalooza, the focus is placed strictly on the music — not body piercing, tattooing or shopping. Bands on the main and side stage alternate leaving barely any time for non-musical attractions anyway.

"It's a really diverse musical day. Your attention is focused on music," Colt said.

With this year's lineup ranging from the avant garde funky blues rock sound of Morphine to reggae progenies Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers, the HORDE festival has adopted the original idea of Lollapalooza — introduce fans of, say, Blues Traveler to pop upstarts the Rembrandts. The rest of the day includes performances by Wilco, Red Thunder, and Sheryl Crow.

What sets the HORDE festival apart is fans will be allowed to bring in tape recorders. "Real big microphones" are even permitted, Colt said. The Black Crowes have offered that luxury to fans during their entire "Amorica" tour and make nightly changes for fans who attend more than one show.

"We play a different set every night. We got an open-ended slot. We just get nuts."

The Black Crowes, who expect their next album to be released in spring 1996, explored different kinds of rhythms on "Amorica" than those on the band's first two albums, 1990's "Shake Your Money Maker" and 1992's "The Southern Harmony and Musical Companion."

■ 'It's a really diverse musical day. Your attention is focused on music.'

Johnny Colt
Black Crowes

"We're a relatively young band. It's still a growing process. Because of how the industry is, sometimes it's easy to forget we're still learning and we're still trying to express ourselves as we find a deeper resource of soul music," singer Chris Robinson was reported as saying.

The band, which includes Detroiter/keyboardist Eddie Harsch, took longer to record the album as well, Colt said. Instead of the seven days it took to record "Southern Harmony," the Black Crowes took six months to wrap up "Amorica."

As the record was released it took on a life of its own — partially due to the controversy that the album cover caused. The cover is a picture of a person wearing American flag briefs with pubic hair hanging out. To keep the complaints at a miniumum, the band's label American Recordings changed the background to black leaving only a triangle flag on the cover.

To the band, the cover of Ween's latest album which pictures a big-breasted woman wearing a tight outfit was much more offensive.

"That was my whole point. When I'm doing interviews in Europe, they don't understand. They're like, 'What's the problem?' The funny thing is that people were more upset with the pubic hairs than the way the flag is being used," Colt said.

The sold-out HORDE Festival comes to Pine Knob Music Theatre, I-75 and Sashabaw Road, Clarkston, at 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 20. Scheduled to appear on the main stage are the Black Crowes (9:30-11 p.m.), Blues Traveler (7:50-9 p.m.), Sheryl Crow (6:35-7:25 p.m.), and Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers (5:25-6:10 p.m.). Morphine (9-9:30 p.m.), the Rembrandts (7:25-7:50 p.m.), Wilco (6:10-6:35 p.m.) and Red Thunder (5-5:25 p.m.) are on the side stage.

Tex-Mex heads north to Canton

BY RENER SKOGLUND
Special Writer

Welcome to the Ol' Southwest — funky Tex-Mex style. Don Pablo's, Canton's newest eatery, and a Texas import, serves its salsa in an eclectic atmosphere of vintage warehouse and Mexican border town. "It's upbeat, and we want it to look like a joint," said Greg Farney, assistant manager.

And what a joint it is. A vaulted ceiling, skylights, tons of plants, and an indoor fountain set the tone. Mosey on over to the bright blue cinder-block bar, order a "swirl" margarita, and glance around at the picture gallery, a motley collection of rodeos, round-ups, Texas beauties and Pancho Villa's finest.

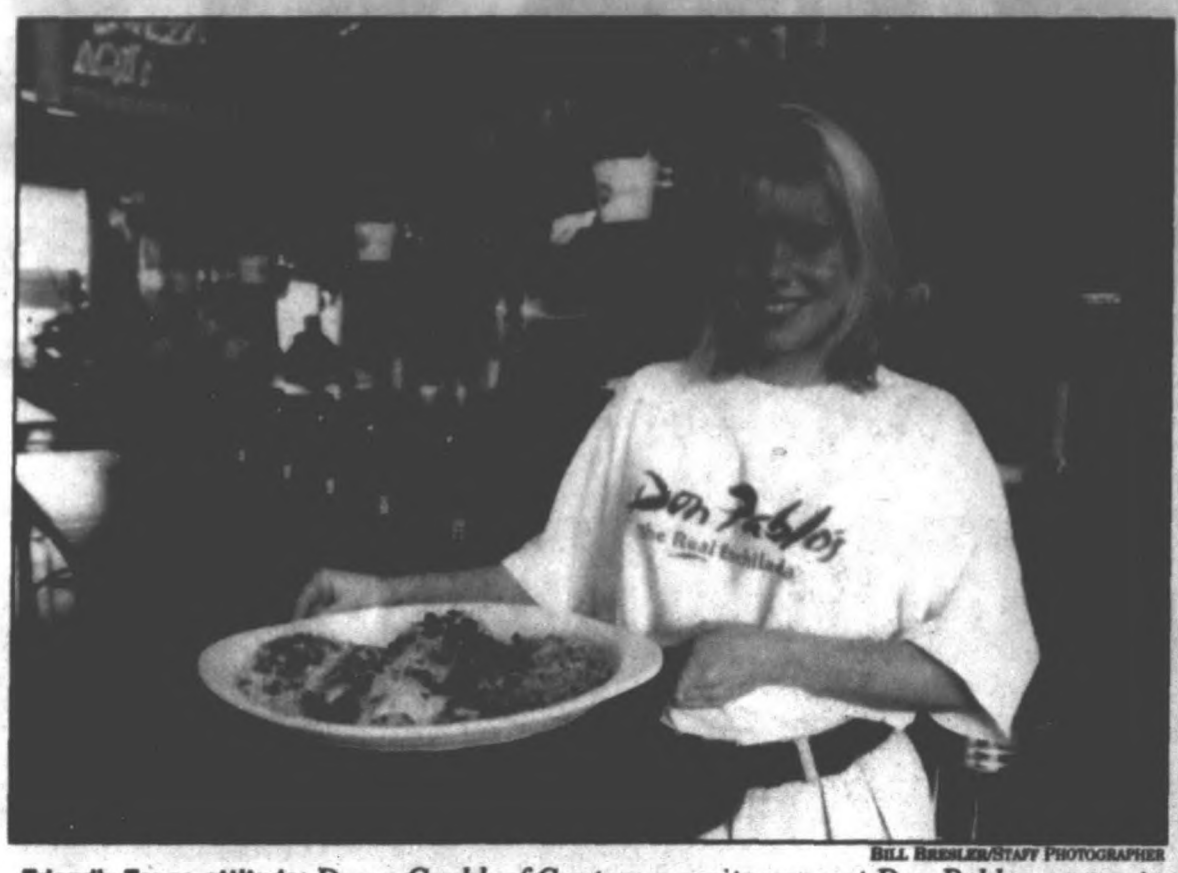

But general manager Ryan Howard who grew up in Novi, knows atmosphere quickly fades without good food and service. "What sets us apart is superior service backed by a fresh, quality product. We make our own salsa and tortillas. We receive our produce seven days a week," he said.

Besides the traditional burritos, enchiladas and fajitas (their best-selling item), Don Pablo's serves some great grilled chicken, steak and fish dishes. "Steak Tampico" is a mesquite-grilled New York strip served with a special cheese sauce, Cancun vegetables, charra beans, and a couple of hot peppers.

Most entrees are priced between $6 and $10, and lunch specials run closer to $5. "You can come in and order a lunch and with a drink you can get out for about $6.20," said Howard.

Paul Petrucci of Inkster spent his last vacation day lunching on chicken fajitas at Don Pablo's with a friend. It was their second visit. "The food is great, the people who work here are courteous, and they give us lots of food. Everything seems to have a fresh taste to it," he said.

Dawn and Rob Stano of Westland also were back for a second time. "I ordered the same thing because it was so good," said Dawn over a huge platter of vegetarian quesadillas. "We both love Mexican food. We were happy when this place opened up."

BILL BRESSLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Friendly Texas attitude: Dawn Grubb of Canton, a waitperson at Don Pablos, presents a "3 Amigos" platter — beef, cheese, chicken enchiladas, rice, beans and black bean garnish.

Since it opened on July 22, Don Pablo's has served about 1,500 customers a day on weekends. The wait can be over two hours on Friday and Saturday nights. Howard suggests calling ahead for a seating forecast and putting your name on a list. Lunch during the week is more manageable. "We turn the tables so fast I haven't had anybody wait yet," he said.

How fast is fast? Noi Promthong, chef and co-owner of the Thai Bistro in Canton, managed to finish an order of Steak Tampico while taking a short break from his own kitchen.

"I eat at a different restaurant every day because I eat Thai food every day," he said. When asked if his food was spicy enough, Promthong picked up the skeletal remains of a jalapeno pepper and boasted, "It was between mild and medium for me."

Howard suggested asking his well-trained staff about a particular dish's heat index before ordering. But don't worry. "We're Tex-Mex, which is a little less spicy than Mexican," he said.

There are currently over 35 Don Pablo's in seven states. They are part of a 50-plus restaurant chain owned by DF & R Restaurants, Inc. of Texas. Michigan now has two Don Pablo's, one in Flint and one in Canton. Soon there will be more.

Farney and Howard agreed on Don Pablo's formula for success: "Tex-Mex food, fun and a relaxed atmosphere. We have that friendly Texas attitude."

Soccer ODP stars

The state's Olympic Development Program in boys soccer seemed well-represented by Plymouth and Canton athletes when announced last week, with 10 players listed. However, it seems some others were omitted.

Drew Drummond and Matthew Simons, both from Plymouth Salem, and George Tomasso, from Plymouth Canton (keeper for the Chiefs' '94 state championship team), were also selected to the 1977 team. They have played in the state's ODP program for the past four years; all three play for the '78 Wolves club team.

Simons was selected to the 30-player ODP regional pool this year. Both Drummond and Tomasso were past region ODP selections.

U-M football news

Now those interested in seeing some University of Michigan football will have easy access to tickets. Ticketmaster will carry "best available" seats for all U-M home games, including the home opener Aug. 26 against Virginia in the Pigskin Classic.

According to U-M Athletic Director Joe Roberson, more than 15,000 seats normally included in the student ticket package are available, since the game will be played prior to the start of school.

There are over 120 Ticketmaster ticket centers, including at Hudson's, Harmony House, Blockbuster Music, Wherehouse Records and Believe in Music.

And don't let traffic prevent you from attending a U-M football game. The Ann Arbor Transportation Authority will once again offer its football shuttle service for all home games.

Cost is $1.50 each way ($3 round trip). Service begins two hours prior to game time and continues until approximately 90 minutes after the game. Drop-offs and pickups are at Gate No. 2 outside Michigan Stadium, and in front of Crisler Arena.

Shuttle tickets can be purchased at the shuttle sites or at AATA offices, located at 2700 S. Industrial in Ann Arbor. Call (313) 973-6500 for more information.

Goal-producer: Lars Richters, a Livonia Stevenson grad who plays for the Detroit Rockers, helped propel the Marauders past Bud Light by scoring two goals in Sunday's championship match.

Marauders maul Bud Light

In the final pregame analysis, the Marauders had one factor in their favor entering Sunday's league playoff final against Flint Bud Light — and revenge, often presented as potentially making a major difference, rarely lives up to such high regard. This time it did.

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

Now, understand that nearly nothing favored the Marauders entering Sunday's final in the Great Lakes Men's Soccer League playoffs against Flint Bud Light.

Stacked against them were the results of their two regular-season meetings — 3-0 and 3-1 losses, both home and away. In addition, five key players were forced to bypass the match to return to their college teams.

Combine that latter factor (a reduced number of available players) with Sunday's plus-90-degree temperatures at Livonia's Jaycee Park, and the ingredients were there for another rout. The Marauders could have pointed to a more-talented roster as a favorable factor — but that was prior to the player losses. And, well, there was vengeance.

Not much, really, which is why the final did indeed produce the anticipated rout. But not the kind expected. This time, it was the Marauders on the plus side, whipping Bud Light 5-1.

The victory allowed the Marauders to complete one of the best seasons in team history. They finish with a 19-3 overall record, including a 10-2 league mark. Of the seven tournaments they entered (indoor

Swift sacrifices, eyes Olympics

■ CYCLING

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

In cycling vocabulary, Tim Swift is called a domestique

Swift

The term means A rider who sacrifices his own chances for victory to help the team leader win.

The 30-year-old Livonia native is the ultimate role player for the Saturn Cycling Team, which is one of the country's top squads, rated only behind Team Motorola, which was seen recently in the Tour de France.

Swift finished second in last year's Tour de Michigan, but that doesn't necessarily mean he's going for the gold for the eight-stage 1995 event, which begins Friday in Muskegon and winds up Aug. 26-27 in Rochester and Birmingham, respectively.

"Last year they (the Saturn team) kind of unleashed me, but we have a stronger team this year," Swift said. "I'm not really a climber or a pure sprinter, but I'm an all-around rider who fills a void.

"I get more satisfaction of out of doing a job and following a game plan. When our guys take first and third, it gives me a lot of satisfaction."

Sacrificing for the team as opposed to individual accomplishments also goes for next year's Olympic Trials.

"It's all individual spots on the Olympic road team," Swift said. "We'll have five different riders in five different disciplines. There will be three selection races and it will be based on points.

"I think every athlete has a dream of becoming an Olympic team member . . . and so do I. But right now, my focus is to help one of my teammates make the Oluympic team.

"I'm paid to do a job."

Swift is looking forward to the $53,000 Michigan event, sponsored by the Blue Care Health Network. Despite year-round travel with the Saturn Team, Pierce is glad to be riding in his home state.

He has a team commitment this weekend in Downers Grove, Ill., but plans to hook up with the other Tour de Michigan riders during the fourth stage Tuesday in Lansing.

"I'm rarely in Michigan, but it's a chance to come home and unwind," Swift said. "It's been fun hanging out at home."

There is also added incentive for competing in the Tour de Michigan.

"I'd like to do well because they're going to give a brand new Saturn away and I'd like to keep it in the family," he said. "I'd hate to see a rider from another team win that car, especially since our (Saturn) headquarters are in Troy."

Despite the unseasonable heat and humidity which has plagued our state in recent weeks, Swift got out for a 100-mile training ride Monday on the open roads near Ann Arbor.

"It's been so stifling and hot, and I'm not a heat person," Swift said. "Most of these stages are under 30 miles. Some guys don't like the short, fast criteriums, but I'll try to make the best of it."

Swift began his full-time cycling career in 1990 after spending his teenage years as a roller speed skater where he grew up right behind Riverside Arena. In 1981 he was a junior national champ and competed at the senior national level.

"I won a lot of trophies and did a lot of in-line skating, but cycling seemed like a natural," Swift said. "I used to go out on my road bike all the time.

"In my first (cycling) race I won $50, and I saw the potential to make money."

Swift eventually left the local road racing scene and hooked up with Team Saturn in 1994 where he added a seventh on the Tour of Willamette.

Travels will take Swift later this year to the Tour de China. In the winter, Swift trains in the Bay Area near San Francisco.

Swift has also stayed injury-free, except for a scary incident two years ago in Tempe, Ariz.

"I crashed at about 30 miles per hour and broke my collarbone," Swift said. "Up until then I had never had a broken bone in my body."

Swift rider: Livonian Tim Swift is a team player all the way as a domestique for Saturn.

Northern trip caps summer of success

BY C.J. RISAK

The champions of the lower peninsula got what they wanted: a road trip to finish their season with a couple of games against someone outside their league.

The Wildcats, winners of the Metro Summer Hockey League (which plays at the Plymouth Cultural Center), traveled to Houghton to take on a team of all-stars from the Copper Country Summer Hockey League last weekend. The result was a split of the two-game series, with the Cats winning the total goals score.

Game No. 1, played Saturday at the Michigan Tech Arena, finished with the Cats on top 12-6. A pair of players the team picked up to fill in for the missing came up big. Dave Daavettila and Aaron Daavettila collected two goals and an assist apiece. Mark Pietila and Robert Poupard also scored two goals each.

Ron Pietila and Scott Hands added a goal and two assists apiece. Tom Larson scored a goal and Brian Hann had two assists. Jim Sexsmith was in goal for the Cats.

The Copper Country Stars got two goals from Pat Mikesch, a goal and two assists from Roger Lewis, a goal and an assist from Bucky Marcotte, single goals from Todd Steinmetz and Jeff Finger, and two assists from Nick Stipech.

In game No. 2 Sunday, the home ice Stars used a superb performance from Mikesch to subdue the 'Cats, 11-8. Mikesch accounted for four goals and assisted on three others.

The 'Cats were paced by Larson and Kurt Pietila, with two goals and an assist each. Ron Pietila contributed a goal and two assists, Rick Pietila added a goal and an assist, and Dave Daavettila had two assists. Mark and Jim Pietila also accounted for single goals.

For the Stars, Lewis had three goals, Jesse Rintala had two goals and two assists, Marc Boxer had two goals and an assist, and both Finger and Steinmetz had two assists each.

Goals by Kurt Pietila and Larson in the final 6:04 of the game did officially make the 'Cats the series winner, by total goals scored — 19-17. But Keith Pietila, who put the series together as the MSHL commissioner and also plays for the 'Cats, referred to it as a "split."

"It worked out real good, actually," he said. "It sounds like they were game to do it again next year.

"As long as there's an interest in it, we'll keep doing it."

And with the kind of season the 'Cats had, next season is something they're already looking forward to.

■ PREVIEW

Imagine losing a scorer with abilities NCAA Division I coaches crave. And a couple of defenders and a midfielder, all starters — and two of whom were co-captains.

The team that won a regional title a year ago might consider this a time for rebuilding. But with Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team, no time is allotted for any such thing. It's reload and keep shooting.

Which is what Ocelot coach Van Dimitriou has done. And he figures this could be one of his all-time best efforts.

"This is an improvement over last year," he insisted. "We've gained in the forward area and in our defensive speed.

"I think our starting 11 and our first few off the bench are as good as we've ever had."

But first, the losses: Fadi Bazzi, the unstoppable scorer, and Chris Hayes (from Plymouth Canton), Tim McCarley (Livonia Stevenson), Brian Mlynarek (Redford Thurston) and Tom Kuzak. All were key starters in '94.

And yet, none will be badly missed, Dimitriou insisted. That's because he has nine experienced hands coming back, one of them — George Abuamsha (Westland) — from the 1990 SC team.

Abuamsha, now 24 years old, is expected to anchor the midfield. In goal is Ari Machlowicz, all-state at Warren DeLaSalle in '93 and part-time starter a year ago at SC.

Then there's SC's second-leading scorer from a year ago, Mo Hijazi (16 goals, 10 assists). Dimitriou is expecting a lot more from Hijazi this season.

Nasser Salame, a midfielder/forward, also returns. So does Doug Walters, another midfielder/forward, and outside midfielder Ryan Phipps (Canton). On defense, David Dinkiewicz (Livonia Franklin) and Chris Graczyk are back at outside marking defenders, and Eric Stoecklein (Canton) returns at stopper.

With such a strong corps of returnees, one might think all Dimitriou need do is fine tune. Instead, he signed a number of players who should upgrade the team considerably.

Start at the forward line, where former Franklin graduate Victor Rodopoulos is expected to have a heavy impact after playing a year at Central Michigan. Another to watch is Wojtek Radz (Farmington), whom Dimitriou called "a natural forward with a strong left foot. He's fast as lightning and he goes to the goal."

At midfield, Dimitriou will have a number of candidates to call upon to join Phipps, Abuamsha and Salame, all expected to see plenty of action. Tawfiq Aldabaadani is a favorite for the other inside midfield spot, but there's also Alex Dzyngel (Farmington Harrison), who missed last season with a broken leg, and Housam Hazime.

Other defenders Dimitriou has lined up are Matt Youngerman, whose family recently moved from Baltimore — where he was a soccer all-stater — to Howell. He could fill the vacancy at sweeper. Dan Martinovski (Harrison) is another defensive possibility.

Others striving for playing time are midfielder/forward Mike Bona (Franklin), midfielder Joe Sisko (Canton), and forward Flavio Serina, who is currently playing in Italy and won't join the team until Monday.

All things considered, it seems an impressive group. Molding them into form is another task, of course, particularly to help prepare them for a more demanding non-region schedule.

Decision Consultants tumbles from AAABA tournament

Decision Consultants Inc., champion of the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoffs, lost both of the games it played at the All-American Amateur Baseball Association national tournament in Johnstown, Pa.

DCI opened Saturday with a 5-3 loss to pre-tournament favorite New Orleans and was eliminated from the double-elimination tournament on Sunday with a 7-3 loss to Lansing.

DCI collected only 10 hits, five in each nine-inning game. DCI batters were no hit through the first six innings of the loss to New Orleans. DCI finished the season with a 23-10 record.

"I don't know if we had a good-enough team to win it, but no way in my wildest imagination did I think we'd go 0-2," DCI coach Mike George said. "I'm disappointed for the kids; for a lot it was their last chance to get there. But just getting there isn't good enough. We had absolutely no offense down there."

Aaron Jones and Brian Hicks provided most of the offensive production. Jones was 2-for-4 each day with two RBI. Hicks went 1-4 with an RBI against New Orleans and 1-1 with a pair of sacrifice flies and two RBI in the loss to Lansing.

Lansing scored four runs in the eighth inning to break a 3-3 tie.

After the first two runners reached base with singles, George relieved starter Joel Hillebrand with Craig Benedict (Plymouth Canton/Madonna University). DCI chose to intentionally walk the next batter to load the bases and create a force play at every base.

But the next hitter cleared the bases with a double and another single made the score 7-3.

"We threw (Luke) Bonner the day before and I felt it would be best to go with Benedict," George said. "Hind sight is 20-20 but I probably should have brought Benny in to start the eighth."

Lansing took the first lead with two unearned runs in the third. DCI countered with two runs in the fourth. Kurt Wilczynski and Don DeDonatis both walked. Jones had an RBI single and Hicks a sacrifice fly to score a run.

DCI almost took the lead, but Jones was called out at home trying to score on a double up the gap by Greg Kiempisty.

"It was a very controversial call," George said. "We thought the throw was high and there was a late tag. The catcher came down with his tag on top of Aaron, whose feet are already on the plate. We didn't agree, but that's part of the game."

Lansing took a 3-2 lead in the fifth, scoring a run following a leadoff triple. DCI tied the score at 3-3, with a walk to DeDonatis, single by Jones and sacrifice fly by Hicks.

DCI was outhit 12-5 in the loss to New Orleans.

DCI starting pitcher Mike Borkowski pitched with good fortune, allowing only two runs on nine hits and seven walks in six innings. None of the walks scored as DCI's defense was able to bail out Borkowski with three double plays.

New Orleans had a 2-0 lead after six innings, and Bonner saved Borkowski in the seventh, coming in after the first two batters reached base with walks.

Bonner struck out the next two hitters and Josh Reeber made a diving catch on a ball hit to centerfield to end the inning without any runs scored.

DCI tied the score 2-2 on an RBI single by Jones and RBI double by Hicks in the bottom of the seventh.

Bonner gave up a home run in the top of the eighth, as New Orleans went ahead to stay, 3-2. An infield error on a play at first base that would have ended the eighth, kept New Orleans at-bats alive.

New Orleans followed with consecutive doubles to make the score 5-3.

DCI got a run in the bottom of the ninth after consecutive singles by DeDonatis, Jones and Craig Petersen.

Two DCI players were left on base when the last out was made.

"With one swing of the bat, we could have won the game," George said.

George, the coach at Madonna University, will now get ready for fall ball which begins the first Wednesday after Labor Day. George anticipates having five to seven weeks of fall ball at Madonna University Park.

Anyone attending Madonna on a full-time basis who is interested in trying out for the team may call George at (313) 591-5029.

Concealed's stay a short one

Well, at least the hospitality was great.

Players on the Livonia Concealed Security Systems baseball team will remember the American Amateur Baseball Congress Connie Mack World Series in Farmington, N.M. more for the way they were treated than for their 0-2 record.

Concealed made a quick exit, losing by identical scores of 6-3 on Saturday to East Cobb, Ga. and Sunday to Cherry Creek, Colo.

Despite the results, fans treated players as if they were big leaguers, according to Concealed coach Lou Pirronello.

"Between games, after games," Pirronello said. "They want your hats, jerseys, gloves, spikes, anything you give them. It's wild. You have to be here to appreciate it. Every game is on radio. The whole town goes absolutely berserk over baseball.

"It was a couple heartbreakers. We were just as good as any of the teams here. Our roster is as loaded, if not more loaded. It's just one of those things."

Players stayed with host families and the coaching staff was put up in hotel rooms. Brian Berryman and Billy Morris, both of Redford Union, had especially-nice accommodations, living with a family that had a built-in pool and a batting cage in the backyard.

The family had several barbecues for the team.

"Most of the team lived at that house," Pirronello joked.

Concealed ace J.J. Putz, a third-round draft pick by the Chicago White Sox, allowed six runs on 10 hits and four walks in 4⅓ innings in Saturday's loss to East Cobb. He struck out three.

Terry Bigham pitched the final 1⅔ innings, allowing no runs on one hit and a walk. Scott Prather, an 18th round draft pick of the California Angels, scattered nine hits with five strikeouts and only one walk to pick up the win.

Aaron Shrewsbury hit a solo home run over the center-field fence for Concealed. Chris Wasen had one hit and an RBI and Mike Cervenak also drove in a run without the aid of a hit. Morris had two hits and scored a run.

Kris Gundrum led Concealed with three hits.

Poor base running took Concealed out of three innings, according to Pirronello. A Concealed runner was picked off first base by the East Cobb pitcher, and two were thrown out trying to advance on the base paths.

On Sunday, left-hander Mitch Jabczenski got the call on the mound and lasted 2⅓ innings before being replaced by Bigham. Cherry Creek scored four runs on four hits and a walk against Jabzenski, who picked up the loss.

Cherry Creek also hit Bigham, picking up six hits but only two runs in 4⅓ innings.

Pirronello said he elected against starting hard-throwing right-handers Berryman, Jake Lawson (Farmington Hills Harrison) and Ryan Kelley because he thought Cherry Creek would have a harder time hitting a breaking-ball pitcher like Jabczenski.

"Some guys might have thought Kelly, Berryman or Lawson should have thrown, but when we watched Colorado play Puerto Rico (in the first game), as soon as Puerto Rico brought in a lefty, they shut Colorado down," Pirronello said. "Mitch hits the corners, has off-speed stuff, he was the guy to go-to. The hitting is just so excellent out here."

Leadoff batter Matt Mlynarek went three-for-three and scored twice for Concealed. Gundrum went 1-4 with an RBI and run scored. Cervenak and Tom Hartley, who had two hits, also had an RBI.

Morris was 1-1 in a pinch-hitting role.

St. Clair is a fishing haven

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

"There he is," exclaimed Harold Leider as he yanked back on his fishing pole and quickly set the hook. "It's a nice one, too," he added, as a huge smile engulfed his round, rosey cheeks.

Five minutes later, Livonia's Tony Brehler slipped the green nylon mesh net under the fish and a two-pound smallmouth was in the boat.

"See, this is the thing about Lake St. Clair. A lot of people think you need a big boat with downriggers and everything else to come out here and fish, but you really don't," explained Leider. "Anyone can come out here and have some fun and catch some fish. And you don't need much more than a hook and a worm."

Leider had invited Brehler and me to join him on an early morning outing recently on Lake St. Clair. He boasted of basic tactics, minimal equipment and great fishing. In fact, as if to underline his point of minimal equipment, Leider forgot his tackle box at home in Rochester Hills.

Armed with No. 6 hooks, a couple split shots and a few dozen night crawlers, we drifted the day away under the warmth of the mid-summer sun over 15-feet of water. And we saw more action than a betting window at Ladbroke DRC.

Fish, fish everywhere

Although we didn't tangle with any of the famous Lake St. Clair walleye we had our sights on, we caught just about everything else including smallmouth and largemouth bass, northern pike, yellow perch, blue gill, rock bass and even a couple sheephead. (By the way, what's the big knock against sheephead. As far as a pound-for-pound fighter, the sheephead ranks right up there with with the best. Personally, I fish bass strictly for the fight, and the sheephead is an equally aggressive battler.)

Leider is an avid angler and cherishes his time on the water. Unfortunately, most of his fishing buddies have retired and moved away. Leider now faces the ongoing struggle of finding an interested fishing partner. Because of this void, Leider is organizing a fishing club in the northern Oakland County.

"I'm not interested in charging dues and having officers and all that. I just want to get some people together who enjoy fishing," he explained. "We could get together over coffee, swap stories and maybe go out fishing."

Anyone interested in hooking-up with Leider can contact him at (810) 656-0556.

Help the Huron

Volunteers are still being sought for Saturday's cleanup of the Huron River. Sponsored by Friends of the Huron-Oakland, the ninth annual event begins with coffee and donuts at 8:30 a.m. The rain date is Aug. 26.

Volunteers are asked to assemble at Kensington Metropark's group camp site on Martindale Rd. Vans will transport volunteers to various canoe pick-up points. Volunteers should wear shoes, gloves and clothing appropriate to the weather. Lunch will be provided.

For more information or to register call Phyllis Motley between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. at (810) 685-7129, or Joan Horvath at (810) 685-7129.

What's in a name?

The Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation is looking for a new name. The current name is long and cumbersome and wildlife enthusiasts who aren't familiar with the organization often confuse it with a government agency or some other conservation organization.

The Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation is a private, non-profit organization that deals with preserving and establishing wildlife habitat. The mission statement of the Foundation states in part . . . our resolve to bequeath future generations a world full of natural experiences. To do so will require the reversal of many detrimental changes and the restoration of degraded fish and wildlife habitats. We will endeavor to complete worthwhile habitat improvement projects in a cost-effective manner.

We will utilize volunteers in unique ways and form innovative partnerships to work for wildlife. Through the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation citizens have the opportunity to restore degraded habitats and provide living space for the wild creatures that enrich our lives.

If you have a suggestion for a new name for the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation send it to MWHF, 6425 S, Pennsylvania, Suite 9, Lansing, MI 48911. The person nominating the winning name will have a choice of the Habitat Sponsor art prints that the Foundation currently has available. The winner will be announced in December.

Anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Furies collect crown with a shootout

■ SOCCER

The Michigan Furies made their shots count in the clutch during last weekend's Umbro National Soccer Championships held at Heritage Park in Canton.

The Furies, coached by Gene Fogel, won the women's over-30 national crown by defeating Texas in a seven-round shootout, 4-3.

The two teams played consecutive scoreless draws during tournament play, including the championship final.

Kathy Mineau (Livonia) scored the game-winner after Peggy Chall (Livonia) tied it at 3-3.

The Furies trailed 2-0 in the shootout and were one shot away from settling for second place, but goalkeeper Julie Campbell (Plymouth) came up with two key saves.

Caroline Trout (Ferndale) and Susie Pacheco (Commerce Township) also scored in the shootout for the Furies.

Pacheco, formerly of Farmington, was reinserted to the lineup during the final minute of regulation play after leaving the match earlier with bruised ribs.

"She (Pacheco) wouldn't have been eligible for the shootout had she not finished the match," said Fogel, whose team reached the final four last year in Salt Lake City. "She said she couldn't play, but could take a shot for us if need for the shootout."

The Furies opened tournament play Friday with a 4-0 win over Maryland as Debbie Pacheco (Lansing), also bothered by sore ribs, scored along with Mineau, Chall and Pam Bielaczyc (Troy).

Campbell posted the shutout.

In round-robin play Saturday, the Furies battled Texas to a scoreless draw.

Other members of the Furies included Bonnie Knight (White Lake), Mimi Ford (Royal Oak), Mary Cavanaugh-Gans (Farmington), Carrie Saxton (Farmington), Sue Minkus (Farmington), Cheryl Becker (West Bloomfield), Cathy Boldt (Royal Oak), Cathy Kansman (Farmington) and Andrea Pfahler (Berkley).

The Furies started their tournament quest June 3-4 by winning the state finals with a 3-0 record. They advanced to the regional on a forfeit win (July 8) over Ohio.

Churchill grad is new Chargers' coach

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Livonia Churchill High principal Rod Hosman wasted little time in hiring a new boys soccer coach.

Former Charger player Chad Campau will take the reins from John Boots, who resigned unexpectedly two weeks ago after going 24-11-4 in two seasons.

The 25-year-old Campau, a 1989 Churchill graduate, is a math instructor at the school.

He coached the Livonia Franklin junior varsity squad last fall and was a varsity basketball assistant under Larry Jackson for the Patriots the past two seasons.

"We're pleased to have a Churchill grad," Hosman said. "He's an outstanding teacher in the classroom and a good, solid young man.

"In addition to his qualifications, I also felt good about his interview.

"And being in our building is the best-case scenario."

Campau, who played at Churchill under John Neff, had 46 players report for practice early Monday morning, including 10 freshmen.

Ironically, Campau had not planned to coach this fall because he had signed up for pair of classes in pursuit of his masters degree.

"I've kept in touch the past few years and watched a lot of Churchill games," said Campau, who is a graduate of Michigan State. "I know a lot of the guys.

"This is basically a dream come true. I wanted to come back to Livonia to teach, and coach either soccer or basketball. I couldn't ask for anything better."

The Chargers open their season Tuesday, Aug. 29, at Rochester Adams, but Campau stressed academics and sportsmanship during his first meeting with the players.

"Being a teacher, I expect them to keep their grades up and behave in the classroom," Campau said. "It's great being in the building because I can keep and eye on the kids.

"I also told them I want them to be responsible on the field. No taunting or trash talking. I stressed something that George Perles tried to impress upon his players . . . 'Keep your mouth shut, play hard and good things will happen.'

"I expect them to play hard every day."

Campau said he understands that high expectations come along with the Churchill program. The Chargers have been runner-up twice in the state finals.

"I don't think you can expect a state title right away, but Churchill has always been successful," Campau said. "We look to make noise in the league (Western Lakes). We have a lot of seniors back and we hope to have a strong season. To be successful, we need good senior leadership."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

■ DEKHOCKEY DELIGHT

Michigan Dekhockey will conduct on-site registration for fall leagues from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

All individuals and teams wanting to participate in the fall season, beginning Oct. 1, should be registered before the deadline of Sept. 15.

Participating age divisions are Chipmunk (4-6 years), Penguin (7-9), Beaver (10-12), cadet (13-15), senior B, C and D (16 and over), senior A (19 and over), and intermediate (30 and over).

For more information, call Michigan Dekhockey at 1800-335-4254.

■ Coaches and referees are needed for the inaugural fall season at Michigan Dekhockey. Referees (ages 12 and up) are paid for each game. Call the above number for more information.

■ FINESSE TRYOUTS

The 1995 season has just ended, with three of the four Finesse slow-pitch travel softball teams having won state championships and the other a state runner-up. One reason for their success: They're already looking to next year.

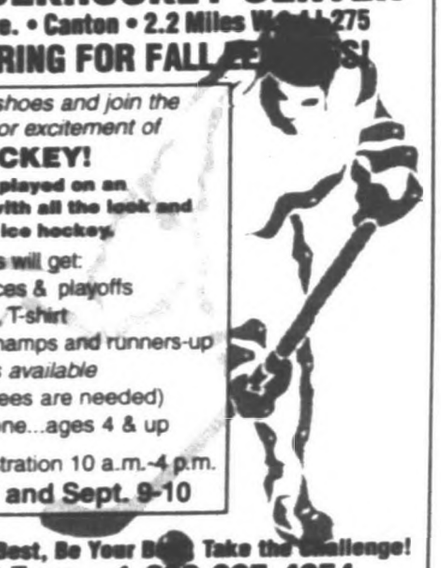

Finesse teams for 16-and-under, 14-and-under and 12-and-under will conduct tryouts for the 1996 season Aug. 19 and Aug. 26 at the Wayne-Ford Civic League, located on Wayne south of Ford. Players should bring their spikes and gloves.

For information regarding different times for the different age division tryouts, call John Tonner (12-and-under) at (810) 624-3187; Bob Bako (14-and-under) at (313) 522-5607; Bill Martin (16-and-under) at (313) 722-4999; or Barry Patterson (18-and-under) at (313) 722-1135.

The Finesse 18-and-under, 16-and-under and 14-and-under teams all won state championships, while the 12-and-under squad was a state runner-up.

He received $1,000 his first year, $500 his second year and $500 again this year.

and outdoor), they won five: the Amateur State Cup, the indoor state title, the state Tournament of Champions, the regional Tournament of Champions, and Sunday's GLMSL playoff final.

And, as satisfying as the previous weekend's victory at the regional Tournament of Champions had been (one of the Marauders only out-of-state titles), this win nearly matched it.

"We were quite upset about (the previous results)," said Marauder player-coach Dan O'Shea (from Livonia Franklin). "The guys played real well. It helped having the win from last weekend — that's the best we've ever performed out of state. It really boosted our confidence."

Still, the Marauders had not been able to beat Bud Light in two previous meetings, and that was when they had sweeper Jeff Thomas, midfielder Adam Pichler (both from Livonia Stevenson), midfielder Mike Gentile, and keeper Kal Kaliszewski (both from Livonia Churchill), regulars during the season. All four returned to their college teams: Thomas, Pichler and Kaliszewski to University of Detroit-Mercy, Gentile to Wisconsin.

And yet, the confidence remained high among the Marauders. "Everyone knew we could win if we wanted it," said O'Shea.

The defense, switched late in the season to a zone alignment, remained basically the same but with three defenders and no sweeper. John Gentile (Churchill) was switched from midfield to be center defender, and he adapted extremely well — indeed, he was credited with keeping the defense focused.

"He reads the game better than anyone on our team," said O'Shea. "He can see the whole field and can make the right decisions."

George Tomasso (Plymouth Canton) filled Kaliszewski's void in goal, and Nick Deren (Stevenson) played regularly up front.

The first goal was netted by Rob Ludwig, on an assist from Deren in the 21st minute. Deren and his ability to "bust things open and force defenses to shift over to him" proved a key factor for the Marauder offense, which had struggled in previous weeks.

It remained 1-0 until the 55th minute (10 minutes into the second half). A penalty just outside the box was assessed Bud Light when Deren was taken down. Lars Richters (Stevenson) fired in the direct kick and the Marauders' lead had doubled.

Richters' goal signaled an outburst. Five minutes after his first, Richters had a second goal, converting a crossing pass to make it 3-0.

Then in the 65th minute, five minutes after Richters' second goal, Bob Hayes (Livonia Franklin) burst through the Bud Light defense to take a Brady Erickson pass. Hayes scored to make it 4-0.

Tomasso's shutout was ruined with 10 minutes left. The Marauders got that goal back in the 83rd when Paul Kaliszewski fielded a long through pass from John Gentile and scored.

Huczek rules division

BY STEVE STEIN
STAFF WRITER

There's a good possibility that racquetball will be an Olympic sport by the year 2000. Jack Huczek will be 17 then, and he would like nothing more than to be on the first U.S. Olympic racquetball team at the Summer Games that year in Salt Lake City, Utah.

For now, however, the 12-year-old Rochester Hills resident will have to be content with winning world and national titles in his age group.

Huczek has captured three world crowns, and he now has five national championships to his credit after winning three at the American Amateur Racquetball Association U.S. Junior Olympic tournament held earlier this summer in Fountain Valley, Calif.

Those three titles made Huczek the first junior (under age 18) triple gold medal winner in the national championships. Huczek won boys under-12 singles and doubles titles and the first under-12 mixed doubles crown.

The 5-foot-2, 100-pounder defeated Trevor Crowe of Oregon 15-6, 15-7 for the singles championship, and he combined with Matthew McElhiney of Florida to defeat Brandon Shoemaker of Ohio and Adam Taylor of Indiana 13-15, 15-13, 11-2 for the doubles gold medal.

Huczek and Crystal Winfrey of Ohio topped Kristen Walsh of Utah and Joel Worthington of Kansas 15-7, 15-8 in the mixed doubles title match.

So, why is Huczek such a demon on the racquetball court? First of all, the only child of high school teachers John and Sharon Huczek could be considered a veteran of the sport despite his age.

He began playing racquetball when he was 2, he competed in his first tournament when he was 3, and he took part in his first national tourney when he was 5.

Sharon Huczek is a former women's state racquetball champion. She used to take Jack to tournaments when he was an infant and apparently that's when he developed a passion for the sport.

"Even when he was still in diapers, Jack would entertain himself by hitting a ball on an empty court or he would watch my matches. I never had to worry about him," Mrs. Huczek said.

When he was 5, Jack competed in the boys under-8 division in the national championships in Colorado Springs. To the amazement of his parents, he defeated a 7-year-old in a consolation match.

"We went out to Colorado mainly for a family vacation and to scout out the competition in the under-8 age group. We didn't expect Jack to beat an older kid," Mrs. Huczek said. "I remember the tournament director there told us that Jack had a lot of potential because he had such great mental maturity for a kid his age."

Another factor in Jack's favor is his versatility when it comes to sports. He loves racquetball, but it doesn't dominate his interests.

He also plays travel baseball and hockey, and the seventh-grader will be on the cross country team at Saint John Lutheran School in Rochester this fall. Oh, yes, Jack also took up golf and tennis this summer and he goes in-line skating occasionally.

Perhaps Jack's forte, however, is his attitude toward racquetball. He's serious about winning, of course, but he's well aware that it's just a game.

"Jack always has a smile on his face when he's playing. Plus, he's a natural. He's good at anything he does," said Jim Floyd of Davison, Jack's coach of three months.

Jack is the first player that Floyd, 25, a former national and Olympic Sports Festival racquetball champion, has ever coached.

"I agreed to coach Jack because he's a lot like me on the racquetball court. I always tried to smile and play to the crowd," Floyd said. "You know, Jack has been very good for me. Because of him, I think I'm going to do some more coaching."

Jack is excited about working with Floyd because Floyd is his racquetball idol. What do the two work on during their training sessions?

"I do a lot of sprints and we talk about strategy," Jack said. "I also focus on my concentration. You can't get mad and lose your focus if you mess up a shot during a match. All you can do is have fun and do your best."

MSU get commitment from Borgess star

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

When Maxann Reese told Michigan State University assistant women's basketball coach Sue Guevara she would attend MSU, she truly was making a statement.

Reese, a Redford Bishop Borgess senior-to-be, wants to show that an All-American high school candidate from Michigan can stay home and attend college. Michigan and MSU have gotten their share of all-staters in the past, but it's hard to remember the last nationally recruited player that stayed home.

Reese

Reese wants her parents, three sisters and two brothers to be able to watch her in person the next four years at MSU. She may sign a national letter of intent during the early signing period in November.

"I don't want them to have to make the 10-hour drive to come to see me play," said Reese, the leading Miss Basketball candidate who is thinking about studying architecture at MSU. "It makes me kind of mad that we girls from Michigan tend to go far away from home. I've played against (MSU freshmen) Tara Overaitis (from Livonia and Dearborn Divine Child) and Nicole Cushman and most of the MSU players on AAU, now I want to play with them."

Reese also is excited about the opportunity to play point guard, which is where the MSU coaching staff has indicated she will play.

Reese has led Borgess to two-straight Class C state championships playing mostly big guard and small forward.

She is a three-time All-Observer first-team choice.

Reese selected MSU over Big Ten teams Purdue, Penn State, Ohio State, Iowa and Indiana University. She also considered the University of Detroit, but didn't give the University of Michigan much consideration.

"When I spoke to coach Guevara, and told her I was coming to MSU, she said, 'Are you serious?' and I said, 'Yeah, I'm for real,' " Reese said. "She said, 'Let me catch my breath.' "

MSU finished 16-12 overall last year and tied for fifth place in the Big Ten with an 8-8 record. Karen Langeland is entering her 20th year as head coach.

The Spartans have never won the Big Ten under Langeland, but finished second three times. The Spartans earned an NCAA Tournament bid in 1990-91 after tying for second place in the Big Ten.

Reese might have considered U-M if the Wolverines had recruited her harder.

"They didn't recruit me enough. I don't think as highly of them as I used to," Reese said.

"It wasn't as if Maxann chose not to be interested in their program," said Borgess coach Dave Mann, a U-M graduate. "All I know regarding Maxann is they didn't recruit her."

PUBLIC HEARING:

ITEM 1: CLASS C LIQUOR LICENSE REQUEST OF CENTRAL CITY DINER, INC.

Supervisor Yack opened the public hearing at 7:32 P.M.

Speaking in favor of the request:

Keith Kwasney, Central City Diner, Inc., briefed the meeting on the credentials of the petitioners and the diner concept.

Randy Blaylock, Central City Diner, Inc., addressed the proposed site plan for the restaurant and hours of operation.

Tom Alonso, Central City Diner, Inc., emphasized that it is a family dining establishment, with 17% of total sales projected to come from the sale of beer and wine. He added that the petitioners feel that the sale of beer and wine is essential to the success of the restaurant.

Carl Murphy, 45411 Danbury Ct., said that there is a need for a quality breakfast restaurant in Canton. He said that he supports the project because it will be owned and operated by people who are concerned about Canton.

Ralph Shufeldt, 44100 Somerset Square, believes it will be an asset to the Canton Center Road area and to the community as a whole.

Speaking in opposition to the request:

Rich Slusher, owner of First Place Bar and Grill, 6166 Canton Center N, said that he would be in favor of a restaurant at that location, but is opposed to the bar competition just down the street from his business.

Lisa Kennedy, 6631 Norwood, said that she opposes a liquor license in her neighborhood.

Motion by Bennett, supported by LaJoy, to close the public hearing. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion by Bennett, supported by LaJoy, that the request from Central City Diner, Inc. for a new full year Class C liquor license to be located south of 6620 N. Canton Center Road, Canton Township, Wayne County, Michigan 48187 be considered for APPROVAL "ABOVE ALL OTHERS"; it is the consensus of this legislative body that the application be recommended for issuance. Motion carried unanimously.

CONSENT CALENDAR:

Motion by Bennett, supported by Kirchgatter, to, effective immediately, allow enforcement at The Crossings at Canton located at 8375 Honeytree Boulevard, Canton, MI for no parking fire lane, stop signs, and all traffic and ordinance violations, in response to their request and in compliance with Local Ordinance No. 68. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion by Bennett, supported by Kirchgatter, to allow the installation of a "Deaf Child in Area" sign(s) on Cherry Hill and also on Burlington in Canton Township; and to authorize the Township Clerk to sign the application; and further, to assume responsibility for furnishing, installing and maintaining the signs. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion by Bennett, supported by Kirchgatter, to set the public hearing date for September 12, 1995 to consider the industrial facilities exemption application of Miesel/Sysco Food Service Company for an expansion at its 41600 Van Born Road site. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion by Bennett, supported by Kirchgatter, to approve the installation of a subdivision entranceway ground sign for the Forest Brook Subdivision, agreeing to maintain the sign when permitted by Wayne County, and to designate the Township Clerk to sign the permit; and further to designate the Township Clerk and Supervisor to sign the agreement with the Forest Brook Community Homes Association, transferring the responsibility for maintenance, improvement, repair and replacement of the sign to the Forest Brook Community Homes Association. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion by Bennett, supported by Kirchgatter, to approve the following budget amendment in the General Fund to appropriate funds for additional overtime expenses in the Building & Inspection Services Division of Municipal Services as follows:

Increase Revenues:
Building Permits	#101-000-477-0000	$ 20,000.
Increase Appropriations:
Overtime-Bldg & Insp Svcs	#101-371-708-0000	$ 20,000.

Motion carried unanimously.

Motion by Bennett, supported by Kirchgatter, to adopt the resolution granting a second extension of the Tentative Preliminary Plat approval for Westfield Subdivision, part of the Westfield Planned Development District, to expire on February 8, 1996. Motion carried unanimously.

Riding still: Jeff Pierce, a Livonia Stevenson graduate, continues to compete on the national cycling circuit even though he's 37 — and he continues to win.

Golden years

Stevenson grad Pierce still going strong

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

■ CYCLING

Don't dare say Jeff Pierce is an old man.

But at age 37, Pierce is certainly one of the elder statesmen when it comes to the national cycling scene.

Pierce, the Stevenson High product, has nearly 20 years experience, including seven years riding in Europe. He has competed and once captured the final stage of the 1987 Tour de France. Pierce also has five years (1981-86) on the U.S. National Team.

Retirement?

"Not yet," said Pierce, who plans to be at the $53,000 Blue Care Network Tour de Michigan next week. "I don't really think about it. I'm not ready yet."

Last week on the 53-degree banks of the Major Taylor Velodrome in Indianapolis, Pierce felt like a kid again.

He and Steve Hegg, a 1984 Olympic gold medalist, combined to win the two-man team time trial, a 90-lap, 30-kilometer event at the Track Nationals.

The victory advances the Chevrolet/LA Sheriffs duo to a berth in the World Track Championships next month in Colombia.

"Thirty-seven (years old) is sweet when you beat all those younger guys," Pierce said. "There were over 200 guys there and it was definitely a highlight in my career because I've never won a national championship. That's been a goal.

"Even though I'm the oldest full-time rider on my team, it proves I still have a lot of juice left."

Pierce, a pro road racer by trade, had done only two weeks of track training prior to Indianapolis.

"I did some (track training) way back when I was with the Wolverine Cycling Club," Pierce recalls. "And there was a guy who built a portable wood track in Del Mar (near his home in San Diego, Calif.), which I've trained on, which is kind of neat.

"I'm far from being an accomplished track rider, but I think I can get faster if I go on the track again. It got me excited again and it's kind of rejuvenated my career."

The down side is that long-distance track racing is not an Olympic event, but Pierce is going to set his sights on competing at the U.S. Olympics Trials next year.

"I'm going to train for it, but I'm going to have to earn it," he said. "I won't get an automatic bid. I'll have to qualify for a spot."

Pierce is almost certain he'll return home sometime for eight-stage Tour de Michigan, which starts Friday in Muskegon.

He has a team commitment this weekend in Downers Grove, Ill., but expects catch the fourth stage, which begins Tuesday in Lansing. (The final stages are Aug. 26-27 in Rochester and Birmingham, respectively.)

"The odds will be high for our team to win anything because it will probably be me and only one other teammate," Pierce said. "It puts our team at a disadvantage. But it's always nice to be back home."

Family Birthing Center of Providence Hospital...
Often imitated - never duplicated.

Many places claim to be birthing centers, but the Family Birthing Center of Providence Hospital has the credentials, It is the only center in Michigan accredited by The Commission for Accreditation of Freestanding Birth Centers, A division of the National Association of Childbearing Centers,

The Family Birthing Center is a unique alternative for childbearing families. The staff is committed to providing each family with a birth experience which meets their individual needs in a safe environment. Our philosophy is based on the belief that birth is a normal process, and routine medical intervention is not needed for most labors and births. We provide a partnership with families that encourages education, participation in decision making and more control over the birth experience, Extended families, including siblings, can participate in the birth event, and mothers and babies are not separated after birth. Your care may be provided by an obstetrician, family practice physician or certified nurse midwife with privileges at Providence Hospital.

In addition to our home-like atmosphere, the Family Birthing Center offers the safety of nearby Providence Hospital with its quality high-risk services in case of a problem.

We offer a comprehensive program of childbirth education, including your choice of normal birth or Christian birth classes, breast feeding education and support, preparation for early discharge and sibling classes.. Our services also include one-to-one nursing care, early discharge with extensive follow-up and a home visit by one of our nurses. Homemaker assistance is also available as part of our program.

We are located in the Fisher Center attached to Providence on Nine Mile Road in Southfield, Come visit us and see for yourself. We want to help make the birth of your child the personal experience it should be. There is a difference.

Tour de Michigan officials excited despite new schedule

BY JIM TOTH
STAFF WRITER

It will be a case of saving the best for last — as well as next to last — when the Tour de Michigan bicycle race rolls through the streets of Birmingham and Rochester.

Traditionally scheduling an early stop in Rochester and the final leg of racing for downtown Birmingham, Tour de Michigan officials were forced to change up slightly for this year's event, which is slated to begin Friday in Muskegon.

Due to a conflict with the U.S. Criterium races to be held in Chicago the first weekend of the tour, the Blue Care Network — sponsor for the Tour de Michigan — elected not to give up the Rochester site. Thus, the final stage is slated for Rochester the afternoon of Sunday, Aug. 27, less than 24 hours following its stop in Birmingham.

"Birmingham has been good to bike racing and has been a joy to work with over the years," explained Mark Elliott, publicity director for Tour de Michigan. "We were caught in a bind because sponsors still wanted a race in Rochester. (Birmingham city officials) made a potential snafu into a really fun thing.

"We had traditionally had Rochester on the first Sunday," Elliott continued. "But Birmingham really loves this race and the city has been an incredible supporter and a wonderful city to work with. It went from a potentially frustrating situation to a real plus."

Following tomorrow's run in Muskegon, the tour will head for Grand Rapids on Saturday for the first-ever mountain bike venue. Mountain bike racing will continue Sunday at Bloomer Park in Rochester Hills.

Racing returns to city streets for the final races: Tuesday in Lansing; Wednesday in Monroe; Friday in Midland; and Saturday and Sunday in Birmingham and Rochester, respectively.

As has been the case with the previous nine Tour de Michigan events, competition opportunities are on tap for every kind of cyclist. Professionals to beginners, children to adults and mountain bike races to road racers will share courses for the eight-stage tour.

In Birmingham, racing begins at 6 p.m. with beginners pedaling for eight miles. The Kid's Mini-Tour & Bicycle Safety Rodeo follows at 6:45, Women, Masters, Juniors takes over at 7:15, Category 3-4 pushes off at 8:15 and the featured Pro/Elite cyclists wind up the stop with 40 miles of all-out racing at 9:15.

Rochester's schedule begins with Women, Masters, Juniors at 10:30 a.m. followed by Beginners at 11:30 and Category 3-4 at 12:30 p.m. The Kid's Mini-Tour & Bicycle Safety Rodeo race begins at 1:30 and the Pro/Elite finale starts at 2:15.

Competition at Bloomer Park will begin at 11 a.m. with Sport Division racing. The Pro/Elite will follow at 1 p.m., Kid's Mini Tour will begin at 3:15 and Beginners at 3:30.

According to Elliott, the Pro/Elite series promises to be an interesting one with racers from Team Saturn, L.A. Sheriffs, Guiltless Gourmet, BiKyle Team and Montgomery Bell vying for more than $50,000 in prizes. Last year, Team Saturn's galaxy of cycling stars soared away from the rest of the field with teammates Jonas Carney and Tim Swift capturing the top two overall spots.

"Although Team Saturn is very well experienced, I don't know if they can control (Guiltless Gourmet rider) Roberto (Gaggiolo)," Elliott said. "It's anyone's ballgame as to who will win the overall race title. I don't know if you can control Roberto or (L.A. Sheriffs rider) Jeff Pierce."

Staff budgets are equal for all U.S. House reps

BY RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Reader Hugh Shelly in South Lyon asks:

"I would like to know who I can contact to find out the total payrolls of U.S. Senators Carl Levin and Spence Abraham and U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg.

"I realize they are saddled with clerical cost of people the U.S. government will not pay off, but if my information is correct, the three have payrolls of close to $10 million each. Abraham is only in office for six months."

That $10 million figure is about what a U.S. senator from Michigan would spend in his entire six-year term. Let's stick to annual figures instead and start with the House.

Equality in House

Knollenberg's chief of staff, Paul Welday, said all House members are allotted a staff of 18, but his boss has chosen to hire only 14 plus a part-timer.

"Joe is on the Appropriations Committee this term and was to be alloted an additional person. But the new members aren't getting that person. We have to do the work with the existing staff," Welday said.

Many say Appropriations, where budgets are written, is the most important committee in the House, and normally its members don't serve on other committees. But Knollenberg also accepted a second assignment, the Education and Economic Opportunity Committee.

In round numbers, each member of Congress — from senior Republicans to a junior Democrat like Lynn Rivers of Ann Arbor — gets the same budget:

- $190,000 for offices — rent, telephone, etc. Knollenberg has offices in Farmington Hills and Livonia, plus a person who travels to senior centers to work on Social Security and Medicaid problems. Travel expenses to the Capitol vary depending on distance.
- $550,000 for payroll. Basic jobs: administrative, legislative, constituent service (Social Security, federal home loans, immigration and family crises abroad) and correspondence.
- $100,000 for franking — the cost of mail.

Welday said Knollenberg turns back money.

BPW clubs to celebrate women's suffrage

The Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs is celebrating the 75th anniversary of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution, giving women the right to vote.

In honor of this event, on Saturday, Aug. 26, BPW local organizations across the state will be gathering in public areas to register new voters. Even through it's not an election year, BPW believes that the celebration of this event is significant.

BPW members are asking for community support either by individuals stopping to register to vote or just to inquire about other BPW programs and accomplishments.

Communities in District 9 of BPW include Detroit, Farmington, Garden City, Plymouth, Southfield, Livonia, Redford, Troy, Wayne and Westland. Founded in 1918, it is the oldest working women's organization in the country.

There are 83 local organizations across the state.

BPW's goal is to eliminate the barriers to women's full participation in the workforce by providing and promoting strategies for women to reach their full potential. Its mission is to achieve equity for all women in the workplace through advocacy, education and information.

For more information about this event or BPW, contact the BPW state administrative assistant at (517) 673-0777.

1812 Battles to be staged on weekend

Hundreds of history buffs will reenact two 19th-century Detroit-area battles this weekend at Elizabeth Park in Trenton.

The Sixth Annual Reenactment of the War of 1812 Battles of Monoguagon and Brownstown will feature encampments, storytelling, dulcimer music and craft demonstrations and sales. Events are scheduled from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

The Battle of Brownstown reenactment is scheduled for 3 p.m. Saturday, and the Battle of Monguagon reenactment is set for 3 p.m. on Sunday. Both battles will be fought using cannons and muskets.

British, American and Indian reenactors and their families will spend the weekend at the park, located on the Detroit River. The will sleep on straw pallets in tèepees, wigwams or tents, and prepare their own meals over open camp fires. All reenactors will wear authentic-looking costumes — from military uniforms to Native American buckskin dresses.

Other scheduled events include 19th-century children's games, a period fashion show, choir performances, cooking demonstrations and drawings for a quilt and musket. Traditional crafts of the 1800s will be sold by blanket traders and settlers. Visitors are welcome to ask the reenactors questions about 19th-century life.

The real Battle of Monguagon was fought in 1812 on the land that is now Elizabeth Park. The park was then called Slocum's Island, and was a gift to the county from the Slocum family in 1919. It was the first Wayne County park.

For more information or a schedule of events, call the Wayne County Park System at (313) 261-1990.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Knollenberg votes no on Bosnia aid

Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending Aug. 4

HOUSE

Bosnia: By a vote of 298 for and 128 against, the House sent President Clinton a bill (S 21) requiring the United States to arm Bosnian Muslim forces in theg war with Bosnian Serbs, following the withdrawal of United Nations forces from the battle zone. The bill directs Clinton to disregard the 4-year-old international embargo on sending arms into the conflict in the former Yugoslavia. Clinton said he will veto it.

Supporter Gary Ackerman, D-N.Y., said: "This is racial, ethnic genocide, make no bones about it, and those who sit and only watch are guilty of participating, are guilty of sins of omission, if not sins of commission . . . This should not happen to anybody's race. This is our race. It is the human race."

Minority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo. said America is committed to provide at least 25,000 troops to protect the United Nation withdrawal that will occur if the embargo is lifted. "Imagine explaining to the American people," he said, "that your kid died in Bosnia to perform a retreat. It will be the biggest retreat since Dunkirk. Is that what we want to do?"

A yes vote was to arm Bosnian Muslim forces. Area representatives voting yes were: Dale Kildee, D-Flint, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor. Voting no: Joseph Knollenberg, R-Birmingham.

Spending Bill: Voting 228 for and 193 against, the House sent the Senate a bill (HR 2009) appropriating $79.4 billion next fiscal year for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and several other executive branch units. The amount is down 12 percent from 1995 in keeping with the path to balance the budget by 2002.

Among deep cuts, the EPA's budget was reduced by one-third to $4.9 billion and its regulatory powers sharply curbed (next issue). President Clinton's AmeriCorps volunteer service agency was abolished, and HUD suffered a 23 percent cut to $19.1 billion and the elimination of several dozen programs. The Department of Veterans Affairs, the third largest U.S. agency with 230,000 employees, received a budget of $37.7 billion, about the same as in 1995. The Selective Service and NASA's Space Station survived attempts to eliminate them.

Supporter Robert Walker, R-Pa., praised the emphasis on space science and exploration and said: "This is a very good bill. It makes significant progress on deficit reduction while also setting wise priorities for the future knowledge of the nation."

Opponent John Olver, D-Mass., said: "This bill typifies the Republicans, agenda — slash funding for housing, education, training and job creation for average Americans to finance tax cuts for the handful making over $100,000 a year."

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Area representatives voting yes were: Joseph Knollenberg. Voting no: Dale Kildee, Sander Levin and Lynn Rivers.

Environmental Issue: The House rejected an amendment to continue EPA regulatory powers at their present level in 17 specific areas including pesticides, wetlands, oil refinery discharges, sewage treatment and stormwater discharges. The tie vote of 210-210 defeated a bid by environmentalists to preserve the regulatory authority within HR 2099 (above). The upshot was to deny the EPA money in fiscal 1996 to enforce certain regulations at the same level as in the past. This reversed a vote on the same issue three days earlier that was narrowly won by pro-EPA lawmakers.

Supporter Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, urged members "to stand up . . . and show that you care about clean water and clean air and pure food for the people of this country."

Opponent David McIntosh, R-Ind., said EPA officials "in the name of their ideology are pushing forward these regulations that actually in some ways harm the environment and certainly cost us jobs throughout the nation."

A yes vote was to preserve certain EPA regulatory powers. Area representatives voting yes were: Kildee, Levin and Rivers. Voting no: Knollenberg.

Cancer: The House rejected, 188 for and 228 against, an amendment to maintain existing EPA authority "to protect humans against exposure to arsenic, benzene, dioxin, lead or any known carcinogen." The amendment was proposed to a bill (HR 2099, above) that prohibited EPA spending in fiscal 1996 to continue certain regulatory activities (see previous issue). Debate centered on whether relaxed regulation would adequately protect the public from toxic discharges from cement kilns.

Sponsor Richard Durbin, D-Ill., said: "To me, it is nothing short of incredible that we are having this debate today. Who in the last election stood up and said, I want less government, I want the EPA out of the business of protecting us from cancer-causing substances? I venture a guess, no one said that."

Opponent Jerry Lewis, R-Calif., called it "a very serious amendment that goes way beyond what this simple language would suggest. It is a desire on the part of a few to give EPA a free hand in a subject area that could have dramatic effect upon our economy."

A yes vote opposed a weakening of EPA authority to regulate certain carcinogens. Area representatives voting yes were: Kildee, Levin and Rivers. Voting no: Knollenberg.

SENATE

The Packwood Case: By a vote of 48 for and 52 against, senators rejected an amendment to S 026 requiring, in part, that the Senate Ethics Committee hold public hearings into charges of sexual and official misconduct against Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore. The panel is nearing an end to its probe of accusations that he made unwanted advances to 17 women, attempted to cover up evidence in the case and illegally sought favors from lobbyists.

A yes vote was to open the Packwood case to public hearings. Michigan Senators Carl Levin, D, voted yes. Spencer Abraham, R, voted no.

Deadbeats: The Senate voted 94 for and two against to require the public disclosure of deadbeat United Nations diplomats and countries that owe an estimated $9 million to landlords, banks, stores, hotels, hospitals and other creditors in New York City. Under this amendment, if the U.N. does not supply the names to Congress and take certain other steps to increase chances of payment, American support of the U.N. will drop by $10 million. The vote came during debate on a State Department spending bill (S 908) that was later sent to conference with the House.

Sponsor Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said his amendment "sheds sunshine on those diplomats who choose to ignore paying their just debts . . . the deadbeats in the United Nations will be known by one and all, and they will be embarrassed into paying their bills."

No opponent spoke against the amendment.

A yes vote was to publicly identify U.N. deadbeats. Michigan Senators Levin and Abraham both voted yes.

Staff budget

based on a state's population. Levin, a three-term Democrat, and Abraham, a first-term Republican, get the same, $1.8 million. The breakdown:

- $1.3 million for administrative and clerical.
- $385,000 for legislative assistance.
- $124,000 for official office expense.

Total staff size is 48, 24 in Michigan, 24 in Washington.

Levin, according to press aide Kathy McShea, chooses to have nine small offices scattered around Michigan to minimize people's long-distance phone calls. Congressional rules limit each member of 1.3 sheets of memo and stationery paper per adult constituent and one mobile office. The rules also specify that district offices must be in federal buildings if possible.

Every senator and representative gets the same pay: $133,600. Vice President Al Gore and House Speaker Newt Gingrich get $171,500; majority and minority leaders get $148,400.

(Interesting fact: The vice president's budget is part of the congressional budget, not the Executive Office, because the VP legally is president of the U.S. Senate. Even his Secret Service protection, provided by the Treasury Department, comes out of the congressional budget.)

No dream job

If you guessed that congressional staff posts are dream jobs, guess again.

A 1991 study by the Congressional Management Foundation showed that although senators' and representatives' salaries are the same, Senate staffers get 25-50 percent more than House staffers. The 1991 average Senate staff salary was $33,094, or 2 percent below the average federal civil servant pay and 28 percent below private sector pay.

Turnover is high, and burnout comes young. The average age of a Senate staffer is 34.6 years; in the American labor force as a whole, 36.6 years; and in the federal civil service, 42.3 years.

Reader Skelly asked about individual officeholders' payrolls. That is only part of what Congress actually spends on itself. The grand total last year was $2.6 billion, of which $1.4 billion went for individual and committee offices.

In addition, $1.25 billion went for the Office of Technology Assessment, the Congressional Budget Office, the Architect of th Capitol, Library of Congress, Congressional Printing Office, Botanic Garden, Government Printing Office and General Accounting Office, the Capitol Police, guides and attending physicians.

In recent years, Congress has put a lid on staff growth. But it overwhelmingly refused to eliminate the jobs of elevator operators.

Meanwhile, the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse issued what one Capitol Hill newspaper called "a stinging indictment of (House) bookkeeping practices, along with a list of 226 recommendations about how to clean up its act."

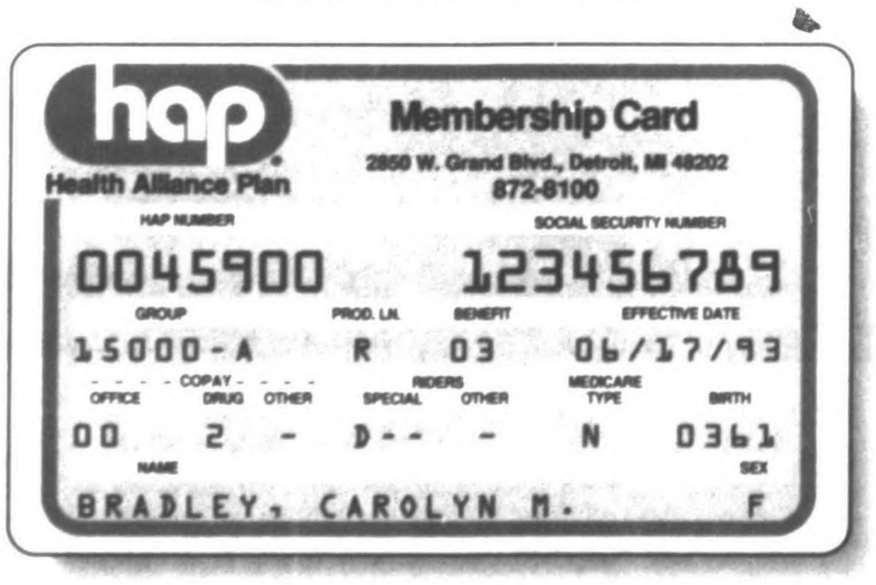

Most changes involved new computer systems and training for staff users plus "replacing ratty office furniture with $33 million worth of furniture that's ergonomically correct." In other words, future congressional budgets will look like many corporate budgets: more for technology, less for staff.

New heart gives area woman a 'second chance at life'

BY MARY RODRIQUE
STAFF WRITER

Martha Harris's birthday is June 23, but chances are pretty good that she'll be celebrating on June 12 from now on.

That's the date the Redford Township woman got a new heart at University Hospital in Ann Arbor.

"I feel good. When you get a second chance at life, you don't forget," said Harris, a former waitress hit midlife with heart disease that progressed rapidly.

She is the first transplant patient of Botsford Hospital's Congestive Heart Failure Clinic. The clinic offers patients community based care and a continuity of health care not always afforded those with serious problems.

■ 'I walked into her room once when she was crashing and I doubted she'd pull through. Weak as she was, she looked up at me and said tell me what's going on. I know she'd do everything possible.'

Christopher Schooley
Botsford doctor

Joint program

Last year the satellite heart transplant clinic opened as a joint program between Botsford and the University of Michigan Medical Center, the first satellite program U-M has established with a community hospital.

"I was doing a cardiology fellowship associated with U-M, and spent time with the heart failure/transplant team there," said Chris Schooley, D.O., director of the Botsford clinic.

"We took the same program and downsized it here. It's much more convenient for the patients."

Martha Harris can attest to that. She lives on Garfield north of Grand River, practically across the street from Botsford, a Farmington Hills fixture on Grand River west of Inkster.

Diagnosed with an enlarged heart in 1991, after several bouts with pneumonia, Harris kept scaling back her waitressing job, first from six days a week to four, then to three days, and finally none. The active wife, mother and grandmother went from a hectic schedule of job, bowling, baseball and gardening to doing nothing at all.

"And last year I was tired all the time," she said.

Meeting the doctor

Schooley met Harris after reading her stress echo test, and consulting with her primary cardiologist to determine if she might be a candidate for transplant.

Two weeks later, in December 1994, Harris suffered heart failure.

"We stabilized her (at Botsford), she was discharged and put on the transplant waiting list Jan. 13," said Schooley.

The usual wait for a donated heart is two years. Over the next several months, Schooley saw his patient weekly, sometimes daily as crisis would arise.

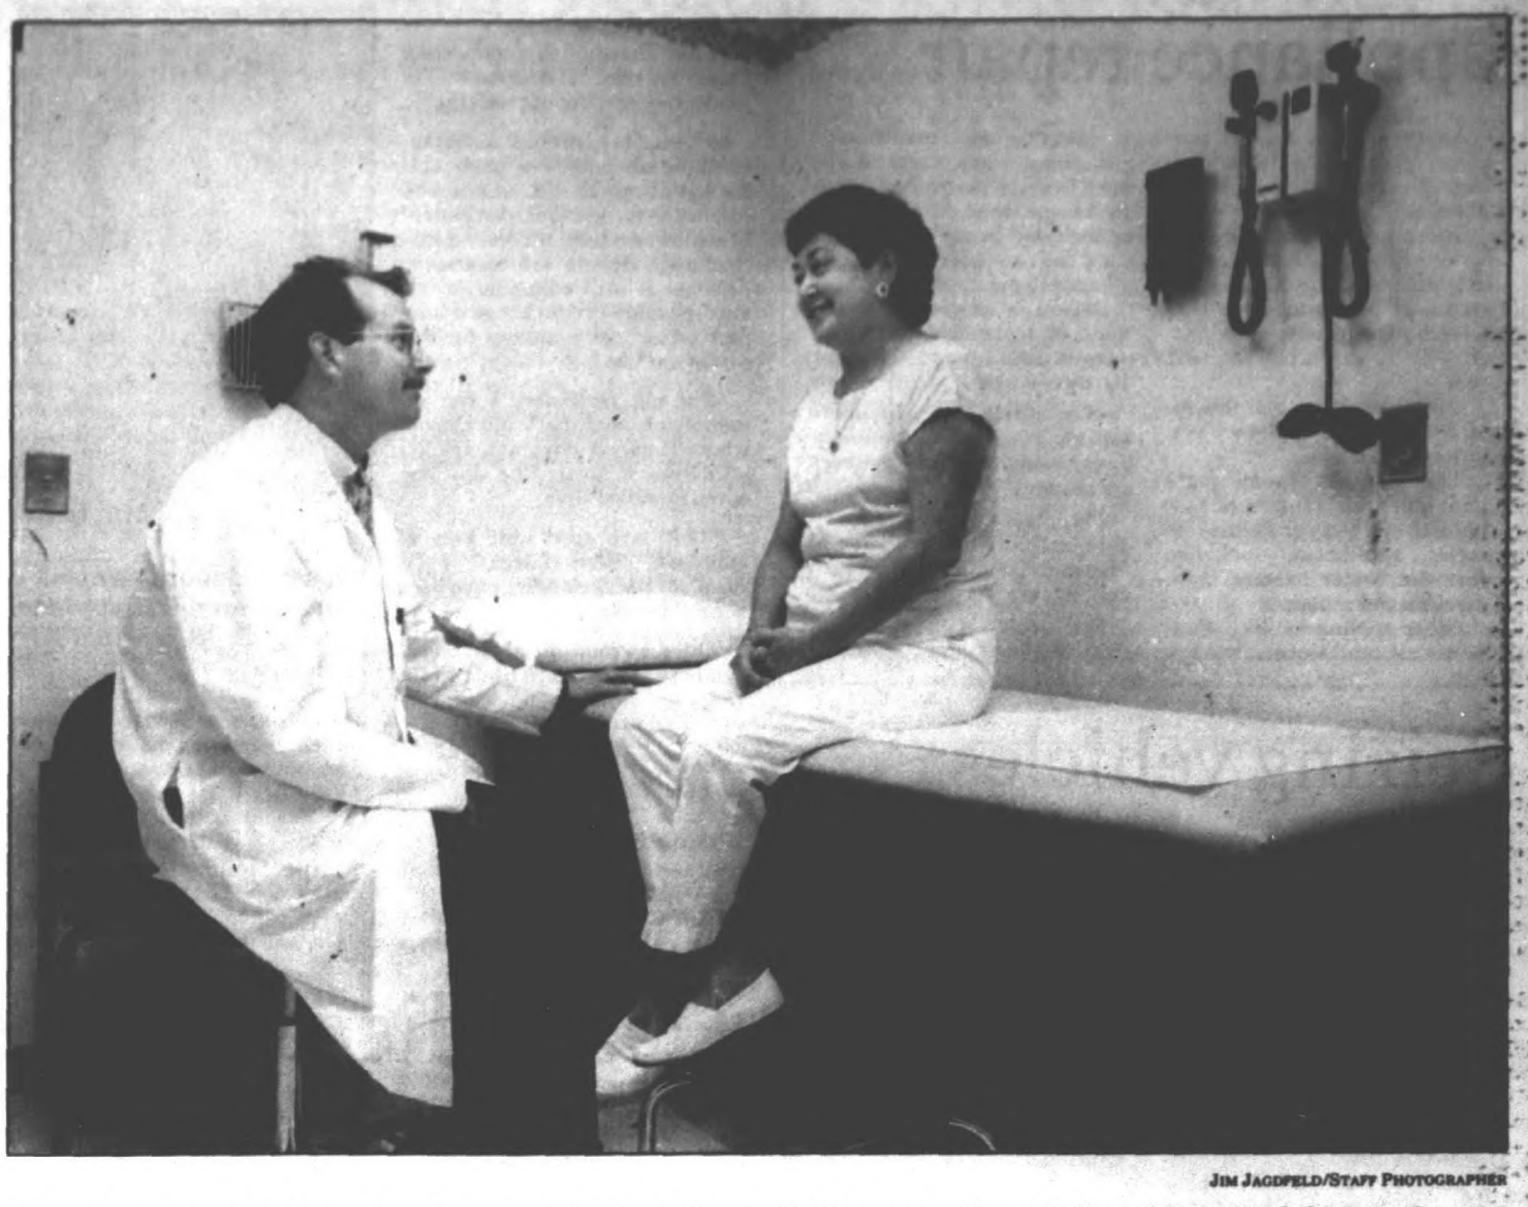

Harris was suffering from idiopathic dilated cardiomyopathy, basically a weakened heart muscle from an unknown cause.

Her oxygen consumption stress test, which measures the amount of oxygen the body takes in during exertion, was critically low.

"Her heart was being overwhelmed," Schooley said. "She had two episodes here at Botsford."

Two days after Mothers Day, Harris was transported by medflight from Botsford to U-M, her heart so overwhelmed it could not maintain a blood pressure.

"At that point you try to stabilize the heart with medication, or use an assisting device to correct the problem; but then you commit the patient to that device until they can be transplanted," said Schooley.

On the waiting list

Harris's status on the transplant waiting list was upgraded.

"The U-M transplant team made a decision to maintain her in the hospital until she could be transplanted," said Schooley.

"At one point, I arrested twice in one day. I kept them busy," said Harris.

During the length of her crisis, Schooley was at her side or on the telephone monitoring her situation.

"He watched me under a microscope. Most doctors don't get that involved," she said. "I think it saved me."

Harris and her husband, Bill, got the news early June 12 that the heart of a 17 year old girl from Grand Rapids, killed in an auto accident, was available for transplant.

So just a week and a half shy of her 48th birthday, Martha Harris got a new heart in a remarkably quick (under three hours) operation. A faint pink vertical scar, no thicker than a fine point marker, is the only visible sign.

Edison gets into appliance repair

A new Detroit Edison program offers seven-day-a-week service to repair household appliances.

The plan initially will offer service contracts to customers in southern Wayne County and gradually be expanded to customers throughout southeastern Michigan during the next year.

Customers pay a monthly fee of $9.99 for an appliance service contract.

The contract covers parts and labor for repairs due to normal mechanical failures on major appliances, including furnaces, water heaters, refrigerators and ranges.

Other appliances, like whole house air conditioners, window or portable air conditioners, microwave ovens, chest or upright freezers, dishwashers and clothes washers or dryers, can be included in the service contract for an additional $2.95 per month per appliance.

Edison is developing a network of technicians who can answer calls around the clock 365 days a year.

After enrollment, customers will receive a toll-free number to call when appliance repairs are needed.

The plan will become available in the fall to residents of Macomb County and northern and western Wayne County.

For further information, call (800) 395-5582.

Seizing vehicles generates revenue for prosecutor

Two programs operated by the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office aimed at eliminating prostitution and illegal drugs seized almost 400 cars and generated $190,000 in July.

Operation Save Our Neighborhoods is a campaign against prostitution that seizes the vehicles of "johns" upon probable cause that sex-for-pay activities have occurred.

In July, the Wayne County Sheriff Department seized 99 vehicles; Inkster Police seized 118 vehicles; and the Detroit Police Department seized 68 vehicles. Owners redeemed 248 vehicles of the 285 confiscated vehicles by paying $161,200. July statistics show a 7.5 percent increase in the volume of seized vehicles for prostitution activities.

Push-Off, an acronym meaning when "Purchasers Use Our Street and Highways, Opt For Forfeiture," seized the vehicles of 109 drug buyers from the streets of Detroit in July, generating $28,800 for narcotics enforcement. Almost half of the cars seized were registered to owners from outside Detroit.

'Already doing more'

"I am already doing more than I was last year," Harris said. "I'm gardening, and I'm out walking."

In December, she quit smoking, breaking an addictive habit she started at age 15. She is now obsessive about her diet, particularly sodium content, which she meticulously records and measures. And she is still adjusting to the anti-rejection drugs that will be a part of her daily routine for the rest of her life.

"I'm not restricted. I can do just about anything," said Harris, whose youngest daughter, age 22, still lives at home. She also has seven grandchildren.

"This is a good unit here at Botsford," said Harris. "If I'd been at U-M, I couldn't have been watched so closely."

Although there are about 50 patients in the Botsford heart clinic, there are currently no other candidates for transplant.

"Some may eventually reach that point," Schooley said.

Complex criteria

Criteria are complex, he added. No longer is 65 the automatic cutoff age for transplant candidates. Improved quality of life, no severe lung disease or severe diabetes, and no underlying malignancy are some of the criteria used today.

"Martha's resiliency is very good," said Schooley. "She was very sick. But she has a spirit and fighting desire to succeed. I walked into her room once when she was crashing and I doubted she'd pull through. Weak as she was, she looked up at me and said tell me what's going on. I knew she'd do everything possible."

Harris was at U-M Hospital for a formal evaluation, the actual surgery, and a followup evaluation by the surgeon. Everything else was done at Botsford. Schooley credits Marcia Kadish, clinic coordinator, with doing an incredible amount of the work involved.

"We talk a lot about changing health care, about cost containment," said Margo Gorchow, a spokeswoman for Botsford.

"The bulk of her care was done here. We are able to offer patients seemless care. There's a sense of security that comes with that. The doctor doesn't disappear when it's over. And there's better compliance on the part of the patient because of the special relationship with the doctor."

In addition to the satellite transplant clinic, Botsford and U-M will be involved in the delivery of other clinical cardiology services at Botsford Hospital.

Heart disease claims many lives

Heart disease is the leading cause of death in Michigan and in the United States. Every 32 seconds, this silent disease claims another life.

Women are just as much at risk as men. Eight out of every ten employees have at least one cardiac risk factor.

The risk factors for heart disease are high blood pressure, smoking, high cholesterol, sedentary life style, obesity, or diabetes.

You can find out if you're at risk and learn how to prevent or manage heart disease through Botsford Hospital's cardiac risk assessment program.

In the first appointment, a medical history and physical exam will be performed by a clinical nurse specialist, a body fat analysis will be done, a nutritional evaluation will be made, laboratory work will be conducted including tests for cholesterol, HDL, LDL, triglycerides, CBC and electrolytes, and a 12 lead EKG will be performed.

In the second appointment, a fitness test which involves walking on a treadmill while wearing a heart monitor will be conducted.

In the third and final appointment, the patient will have a counseling session with a registered nurse to review the assessment results and laboratory data and design an individualized risk reduction program.

Botsford's cardiac care specialists include board certified cardiologists, clinical nurse specialists, registered nurses, certified exercise physiologists, and registered dietitians.

The cardiac risk assessment program costs $150, which is not covered by insurance. The laboratory work and EKG will be billed to the patient's insurance company.

The cardiac risk assessment program does not require a physician's referral. Just call Botsford's cardiocare department at 810-471-8870 to set up an appointment Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Additional programs are available for high cholesterol, high blood pressure, cardiac rehabilitation, congestive heart failure and cardiac support.

Japan Fest is planned for this Sunday

Metropolitan Detroiters will be able to get a taste of Japanese customs and culture at the Second Annual Japan Festival noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 20, at the Southfield Civic Center Pavilion, 10½ Mile Road and Evergreen.

The event features tea ceremonies, flower arrangements, judo and karate demonstrations and Japanese cuisine.

"In much the same way that the Japanese are fascinated with American culture, there is a huge interest in Japanese culture among Americans," said Hidehiro Okayama of the Japan Business Society of Detroit.

The 1995 Japan Festival is sponsored by the Consulate General of Japan, the Japan Business Society of Detroit and the Japan Festival Committee.

Tickets are $6 in advance or $7 at the door. For more information contact Jacquie Manatrey of the Japan Festival Committee at (810) 358-1911 or the Japan Business Society of Detroit at (810) 355-4891

Seniors get freebie at Detroit Zoo

Thousands of senior citizens will receive free admission and parking at The Detroit Zoo on Wednesday, Aug. 30 at the annual Senior Citizens Zoo Day, courtesy of Perry Drug Stores and Rite Aid Pharmacies.

The event marks the introduction of Rite Aid into the Detroit market following the company's acquisition of Perry Drug Stores earlier this year.

"Rite Aid is committed to continuing the strong community outreach programs that Perry had been involved with for so many years," said Martin Grass, chairman and CEO of Rite Aid Corp. "Senior citizens make up a large and important part of our customers and this is an ideal way to say thank you to them for shopping at Perry for so many years. It will also help facilitate the introduction of the Rite Aid name in the community."

Seniors will be treated to free admission and parking for themselves and a companion, free Zoofari Tractor Train rides, entertainment, and access to Senior Alliance Area Agencies on Aging representatives who will be on site to answer questions and provide information on senior citizen services. Perry and Rite Aid representatives will distribute gift bags with product samples and have arranged for a pharmacist to be on-site for advice as well.

The Senior Zoo Day began 13 years ago as Isabella Fiesselmann Day when the then-92-year-old woman wrote to the zoo director saying she longed to see the zoo once more. Fiesselmann was treated to a personal tour of the zoo and an annual day was declared in her honor.

The Detroit Zoo is open on Senior Zoo Day from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and is located at Woodward Avenue and I-696 in Royal Oak. For more information, seniors can call the zoo at (810) 399-7001.

Rite Aid operates 360 drugstores in Michigan and is the country's largest drugstore chain, with 2,800 locations in 23 states east of the Mississippi.

Cancer claims Gilda's Club founder

Ina Joan Kadish, the 58-year-old Farmington Hills resident whose fight against ovarian cancer made headlines, died of the disease Monday, Aug. 7, in Detroit's Harper Hospital.

Born in Brooklyn, N.Y., Mrs. Kadish was the founding member of the Detroit chapter of Gilda's Club, a support community for cancer patients and their families named after Detroit comedian Gilda Radner.

She was the executive director, working out of donated office space to raise funds. It was her involvement with Gilda's Club that kept her focused, friends said. She had a photo album full of pictures recording a star-studded opening of Gilda's Club in New York — an opening she attended between hospital stays.

Mrs. Kadish faced her cancer as stoically as she faced the cancers of her husband and mother.

"She faced life and death with courage, a sense of loving and caring of those around her and a conviction that her final mission was to help others through Gilda's Club," said Betty Pernick, a close friend from Livonia.

Mrs. Kadish was scheduled to have a bone marrow transplant last month on the five-year anniversary of her husband Paul's successful bone marrow transplant for non-Hodgkin's lymphoma. However, a change in her medical condition prevented the transplant.

Mrs. Kadish was also involved with other cancer patients in an ongoing lawsuit against Blue Cross to pay for the expensive procedure they hoped would save their lives.

Mrs. Kadish was active with the Birmingham Temple in Farmington Hills, and was the owner of Quartus Photo Design System.

Survivors include her husband, Paul, a Livonia businessman and a former trustee of the Schoolcraft College board; sons James, Dennis, and Gary Portney; daughter Marcy Portney; stepchildren Ross and Davis Kadish, and Debra Woods; brother Ron Silberman; and six grandchildren. She was the sister-in-law of Rhoda and Bernard Friedman.

Services were Thursday from the Birmingham Temple. Burial was in Adat Shalom Memorial Park. Arrangements were made by the Ira Kaufman Chapel in Southfield.

Memorials can be made to the Ina Kadish Memorial Fund, c/o Gilda's Club of Metro Detroit, 31000 Northwestern Highway, Suite 200, Farmington Hills 48334, or the Michigan Cancer Foundation, 2611 N. Woodward, Berkley 48072.

Plymouth Marketplace marks 1-year anniversary

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

It's been a year of ups and downs but mostly ups for owners of the Plymouth Marketplace at Ann Arbor Road and Lilley.

The three, Jim Tanaki, brother Mark Tanaki and Craig Schmidt, celebrate their one-year anniversary Aug. 17.

"Time goes by fast when you're having fun," said Jim Tanaki.

"Everybody has good quality stuff. Our philosophy was to have the best stuff and the best service."

The project was in the planning stages for over a year. The partners located their store on the site of the former Stroh's warehouse, and had to take down a 24,000-square-foot building complete with cooler for beer storage to make room for parking in front.

Parking remains the biggest problem at the store, which carries such items as fresh produce, fresh flowers baked goods, meats and deli items. There are 40 spaces behind the building, but customers seem reluctant to use them. The adjacent VFW lot is rented for employee parking.

The store has about 130 full and part-time employees. Jim Tanski is pleased with the caliber of his workforce, but noted it's hard to find quality people.

"Kids go to school, they move and find other jobs. Employment has not been the easiest part of the job," Tanski said.

And then there was a legal challenge before the store opened. A competitor, Westborn Market, with stores in Dearborn and Berkley, sued, claiming the architectural design and service of Plymouth Marketplace were similar.

Jim Tanski said the judge cited the distance between the stores and the lawsuit was dropped.

It takes considerable capital - several million dollars - to establish such a business, he said. "It's something that you have to be extremely committed to." They have a private investment group, including Tanaki, his brother and Schmidt along with two others. "We kind of consider them our landlords," Jim Tanski said of the two.

Originally named Roadside Market, the partners changed the name in February when Richard Schmidt left the business to reopen Schmidt's Roadside Market on Joy Road in Canton Township.

Plymouth Marketplace draws customers primarily from Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton, south Livonia, Westland, Novi and Northville. The partners advertise in several publications and use direct mail.

"It's been great. It's been better than what we expected," Tanski said of business. He's interested in getting involved in chamber/local government efforts to improve the Ann Arbor Road corridor.

The three owners bring diverse experience to the business. Jim Tanski, 39, of Livonia had worked as a sales manager for an automotive supplier out of New York state. His job involved extensive travel. "So then it was time to try something different."

Schmidt, 26, of Plymouth Township has been involved in the grocery business a long time. His parents owned the Roadside Market in Canton and he'd worked there since his early days.

Mark Tanski, 32, of Plymouth Township had owned the Cinnacraz stores in Twelve Oaks, Wonderland and Briarwood shopping centers and in Plymouth Township. The stores, which offered cinnamon rolls and specialty pastries, were closed down when Plymouth Marketplace got under way.

"It's very rewarding," Mark Tanski said of working with his brother. "We're too busy to enjoy each other's company. Actually, it's been a lot of fun. My brother and I, we work really well together. You couldn't have a better partner."

The three divide up their duties, with Mark Tanski handling the bakery, cafe, grocery accounts payable, and general buying. His brother handles the meat and deli areas, supervises cashiers and has general administrative responsibilities. Schmidt does produce buying, merchandising, manages people, and handles the floral area. They estimate they put in 95 to 100 hours per week.

The business is truly a family affair, with Mark's wife, Susan, putting in 35 to 40 hours per week and bringing the couple's 13-month-old son, Mark.

Jim's wife, Kathleen, also works at Plymouth Marketplace, getting help from the couple's children, Mary, 12, and Matthew, 9.

Anniversary plans at the store will include a petting farm Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Thursday through Saturday, there will be a coffee clinic featuring prizes and a drawing for an espresso machine as the grand prize. Sales and sampling will be featured throughout the store.

■ RIVET TOOL DEVELOPMENT

U.S. Industrial Tool and Supply Co. in Plymouth is working with University of Michigan-Dearborn mechanical engineering professor John Cherng to develop ergonomic percussive and pneumatic rivet tools that minimize workers' exposure to high vibration. U.S. Industrial Tool and Supply Co. has supported Cherng with grants totaling $25,000, and he has also received $60,000 from the state of Michigan's Research and Economy Development Program for the project. It is designed to reduce riveters experience

■ VULTRON GETS CONTRACTS

Rochester Hills-based Trans-Industries, Inc. announced that its electronic display systems subsidiary, Vultron, Inc., has been awarded two contracts, for $2.8 million and $1.6 million.

The $2.8 million contract is from Highway Service Co. and Rockwell International to supply 43 over-the-highway changeable message signs, which will be installed as part of the "Intelligent Transportation" system of Michigan's Department of Transportation. The signs will operate in conjunction with closed circuit television surveillance, vehicle detection and cameras centrally controlled from the MDOT freeway operations center in Detroit. Upon completion of the project, scheduled for November 1996, there will be a total of 57 Vultron changeable message signs over Detroit area freeways. The $1.6 million contract covers an additional 48 gate indicator liquid crystal displays for the Northeast Illinois Regional Commuter Railroad Corp. The displays are for information systems for the Chicago Passenger Terminal in downtown Chicago. Upon completion of installation in April 1996, there will be 105 Vultron liquid crystal gate indicators in use at the five Metra stations in Chicago.

■ BMW PICKS LEAR

Southfield-based Lear Seating Corp. has been selected by BMW to supply seats for the BMW 3 Series in South Africa. This makes Lear BMW's first supplier of outsourced car seats in South Africa. 'Dream' car becomes reality at Corvette event

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Corvette's "American Dream and Drive Tour" wasn't for everyone. But for potential Corvette owners it offered a perfect introduction to driving the sports car.

Instructors from the Corvette Club of Michigan demonstrated the car's pluses to would-be owners, then switched places to allow the visitors to drive. Chevrolet provided 30 Corvettes Aug. 4-6 at the Pontiac Silverdome, with Mary Wentzel of Milford, formerly of Livonia, among the instructors.

Wentzel took customers out to demonstrate the car's merits. She's the president of the Corvette Club of Michigan, which meets 8 p.m. the fourth Wednesday of each month at Les Stanford Chevrolet, 21711 Michigan Ave., Dearborn.

She described the event as "positive. Everybody really noticed it. You could just tell by the grin on their faces." National Council of Corvette Clubs president Jerry Britner flew in for two days.

Wentzel, who works as a branch manager for Service Centers Corp. in Waterford, races Corvettes, as does husband Bruce. They own four Corvettes, a 1971, 1972, 1990 and 1991. "It's kind of in the blood, I guess," she said.

Fellow club member Paul Jenkins of Canton owns two Corvettes, a 1962 and a 1989. The car began manufacturing in 1953. "It's been around since 1953 and it's got kind of an aura around it of a sporty nature," he said.

Jenkins too enjoyed driving the course as an instructor and then letting would-be owners take over.

"I thought it was great. From a selfish standpoint, I got to tell them about our club," the Ameritech fire protection manager said. "They expanded it quite a bit, more than doubled it." The event, also held in other cities with Detroit as the finale, is in its third year and Jenkins participated once previously.

The would-be owners got to learn a great deal about upgraded options and handling capabilities, Jenkins said.

Those features include ABS (anti-locking) brakes and traction control, said club member John Firment of Farmington Hills, who served as an instructor during the "American Dream and Drive Tour." Drivers were able to try out the cars on a slippery system, both with the system on and with it off.

This was Firment's second year at the event. "My wife and I, Marty, have a true love for sports cars." They own a 1968 Corvette, bought new.

Firment is also a member of the Sports Car Club of America, which doesn't require sports car ownership of its members. Volunteers help out with timing and other tasks at road races. He and his wife use their Corvette primarily for racing and autocrosses, in which drivers drive rapidly through a course of obstacles.

"You can explore the limits of your car," said Firment, who works as a competitive vehicle analyst for General Motors North American Operation. "You get used to reacting correctly under an emergency situation."

In his work, Firment analyzes competitors' autos. He estimated the Corvette enjoys about 30 percent of the U.S. sports car market. "I'd say the Corvette is a standalone especially for North America."

Good things: Chevrolet's Steve McAvoy of Bloomfield Hills heard only positive feedback about the event. "This is wonderful for the customer — no pressure."

Jacobson's CEO: Mark Rosenfeld, chairman and CEO of Jacobson's Stores, was elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the Michigan Retailers Association. Rosenfeld was elected to a new seat on the board following consolidation of the membership of the former Michigan Merchants Council into MRA. Jacobson's had been a member of both organizations. The MRA represents more than 4,200 retail businesses which operate 8,000 stores in Michigan.

References aid college fund search

■ Books such as Lovejoy's College Guide and Barron's Best Buys in College Education not only provide descriptions about universities around the nation, but offer the current tuition prices as well. Public libraries keep the most up-to-date versions of these books in the reference sections.

It's not easy for everyone to afford the prices of colleges and universities.

Because of this, there are several resources available that offer financial aid. Most people are aware that financial aid exists, but not everyone knows where to find it. When you have the information you need regarding the money you will spend, cost cutting for college becomes much easier, it only takes a little effort to find it.

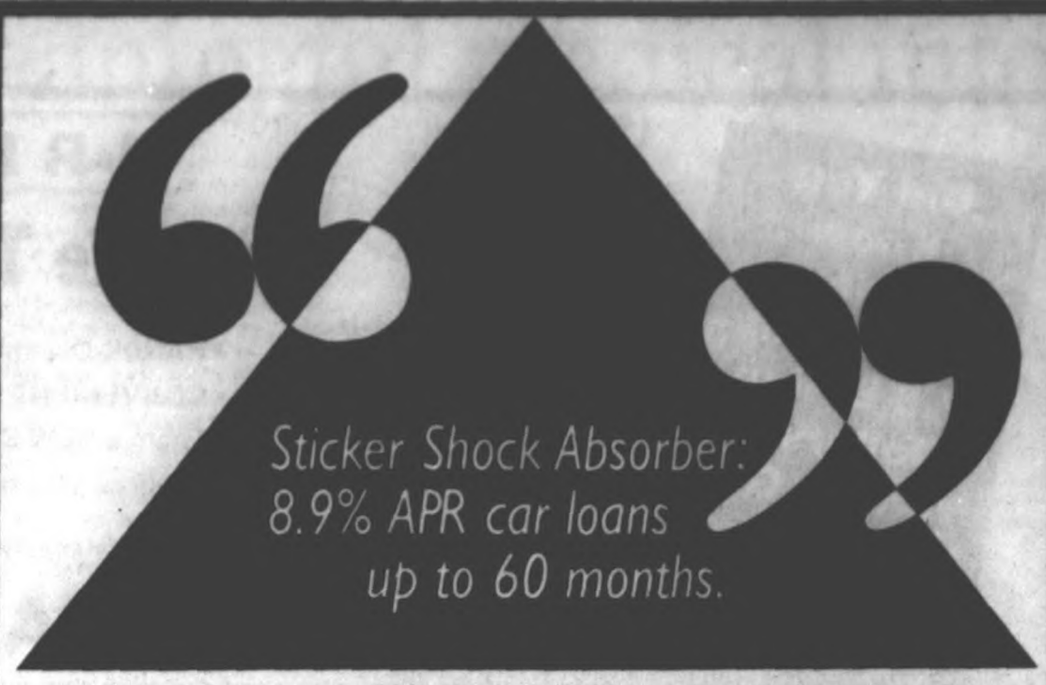

When beginning a search for the prices of college tuition, you can find information in several books available at most public libraries, university libraries, and bookstores. Books such as Lovejoy's College Guide and Barron's Best Buys in College Education not only provide descriptions about universities around the nation, but offer the current tuition prices as well. Public libraries keep the most up-to-date versions of these books in the reference sections, with less current versions available for circulation.

If you think you need financial aid to pay for college, there are several options made to help. The Federal Government's Free Application for Federal Student Aid is available in all college and university financial aid offices, as well as public libraries and high school guidance offices. You can also call 1-800-4-FED-AID to receive it.

The Free Application for Federal Student Aid is important because it is the only way for students to receive any money from the federal government. The application has no fee, and once it is filled out, it makes a student eligible for consideration by the government for funds.

Filling out the application also makes a student eligible for uni-

Venture capital company grows

Liberty BIDCO Investment Corp., Southfield, has announced its acquisition of Farmington Hills-based Great Lakes BIDCO.

The youngest standard BIDCO in the state, Liberty says it is the largest BIDCO in Michigan, nearly doubling its size, and creating a corporation of 75 shareholders and $15 million in assets.

BIDCO stands for Business and Industrial Development Corp., a type of venture capital firm organized under a 1986 state law.

Pearl Holforty, Liberty's founding president and CEO, said the purchase of Great Lakes BIDCO substantially increases Liberty's presence in the industry and creates increased financing opportunities.

"We nvision investing close to $60 million in approximately 100 businesses in the state during the next five years. Adding this to the additional bank financing that becomes available with our subordinated debt, it could mean a total of $150-$200 million of growth capital for Michigan business," said Holforty.

Great Lakes is Liberty's second in nine months. In December 1994, Liberty also acquired Discovery BIDCO in Grand Rapids, merging the two corporations and continuing to do business on the west side of the state as Discovery.

Prior to the Great Lakes purchase, the combined unit of Liberty and Discovery had loaned more than $15 million to 32 diversified companies with investments ranging from $50,000 to $1.5 million.

The purchase of six-year-old Great Lakes enables Liberty to make loans as large as $1 million to businesses seeking growth capital. Client companies include automotive and non automotive manufacturers, construction contractors, wholesalers, and service businesses in fields such as temporary personnel, medical supply services, software development and franchising.

By acquiring Great Lakes, Liberty brings several leading national and regional shareholders to its present strong base of shareholders.

Rick Inatome, chairman of the board of Liberty, explained the significance. "By melding the shareholder groups, we've created a mechanism to give our client companies not only access to capital, but access to a wide network of entrepreneur and corporate executive shareholders; they provide mentoring and leadership of a caliber seldom found in normal financing circles," said Inatome.

BIDCOs provide financing, often in conjunction with banks, considered too risky for traditional bank loans and not of interest to venture capitalists, with monies obtained from private investors and state governments.

New booklet explains Michigan tax system

The 18th edition of the "Outline of the Michigan Tax System," a 30-page publication detailing all state and local taxes in Michigan, is now on sale.

Published by the Citizens Research Council of Michigan, a private, not-for-profit public affairs research organization founded in 1916, the book includes:

- Summaries of the 28 state taxes and 17 taxes imposed by or for local governments.
- A summary of changes in the tax laws enacted during the 1993-94 legislative session and the first six months of 1995.
- A summary of tax collection figures for the past four years.
- All the tax revisions resulting from the passage of Proposal A.

The price is $15 for one copy, $12.50 each for two to 10 copies and $10 each for 11-25 copies.

To order, send a check made out to the Citizens Research Council at 625 Shelby, Suite 1B, Detroit 48226-3220.

For more information, call Earl M. Ryan or Paul R. Good at (313) 961-5377.

EMORY DANIELS

Some of my relatives and friends love to scan medical journals and reference books to gather information about real and imagined illnesses. When the illness is real, the information can be very helpful.

Among the many medical resources on the Internet is Medscape, an on-line resource for better patient care. Medscape, a free Web site for health professionals and interested consumers, can be accessed at http://www.medscape.com/.

This site provides practice-oriented information that is peer-reviewed and edited by thought-leaders in AIDS, infectious diseases, urology, and surgery.

The articles and full-color graphics are supplemented by stored literature searches and links to relevant Internet resources. Medscape has been developed by SCP Communications, Inc., a publisher of medical journals and medical education programs.

A medical publication many users will find informative is the International Journal of Medicine which can be accessed at http://www.cityscape.co.uk/users/ad88/med.htm. The July issue included articles on neurotic disorders, mental health resources, a research round-up, and Ask Dr. Ivan, a question-answer column by Dr. Ivan Goldberg.

A relatively new service is the Prostate Cancer InfoLink which can be visited using this Universal Resource Locator (URL), http://www.comed.com/Prostate/index.html. This Web site will provide persons with prostate cancer, their families and friends, up-to-date information about prostate cancer, its treatment, and personal and social issues related to the disease.

The service will accept articles and is interested in working with prostate cancer patient support groups in sharing information with others.

Some of the general information provided includes what prostate cancer is and what it does, causes, symptoms, and prevention information.

Information is shared on early detection, clinical stages, understanding Gleason grading, pharmaceuticals used, what your family needs to know, talking with you physician, research, literature, and other prostate cancer resources on the Web.

The site also identifies such diagnostic acronyms as PSA, DRE, PAP, RTPCR, and TRUS.

The California Institute of Technology in Pasadena offers a Asthma and Allergy Resource Page on the WWW at http://www.cco.caltech.edu/(tildemark)wrean/resources.html. This site will be helpful to those wanting to learn more about either asthma or allergies. Another source of general information on asthma dealing with Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) is http://www.cco.caltech.edu/(tildemark)wrean/asthma-gen.html.

August perfect time to go job hunting

Contrary to what many people think, late summer is actually a great time to look for a job, according to Manchester Partners International. Here's why.

Late-summer job-seekers can get a head start on those who are taking the summer off and postponing their searches until after Labor Day, said Chas Magee, vice president with Manchester Partners International.

Everybody isn't away on vacation. "That's a myth and just another excuse to put off looking for a job," Magee said. "Most people get only a few weeks of vacation time and then they're right back at their jobs. And by now, you'll find that most managers have already taken their vacations."

Job-seekers may find it easier to conduct networking meetings during a summertime lull in business activity. "It may be easier to arrange a face-to-face networking meeting," Magee said. "Seventy-five percent of the jobs are in the "hidden" job market and can only be uncovered through personal contacts, introductions and referrals. In-person networking meetings are best because they allow job-seekers to make the most complete impression," Magee added.

People are still getting hired. Companies haven't shut down until September and are conducting business as usual. "If they have an immediate need for someone, they'll fill the position now instead of waiting until the fall. You'll miss out on these opportunities if you procrastinate," Magee said.

To get you started on your job search - or back on track - Manchester Partners International offers the following tips:

Be sure to include a list of your career accomplishments on your resume. "Most people fail to include this important item," Magee said. The list should cite three to five specific achievements that can be quantified by using dollar amounts, percentages or other figures. "Answer the three questions that are in the readers' minds: Who trusted you last? What did they trust you with? And were you any good at it?" Magee said.

■ 'That's a myth (vacations) and just another excuse to put off looking for a job. Most people get only a few weeks of vacation time and then they're right back at their jobs.'

Chas Magee

Send a "broadcast letter" - without enclosing a resume - directly to the decision-makers at companies you have targeted. Conduct research on companies with problems to which you would be the solution, Magee advised. Next, find out who is the hiring manager at each company for your desired position. "Then send a letter outlining your skills, experience and accomplishments directly to that person. Don't include a resume. If you enclose a resume, your letter most likely will be automatically forwarded to the company's human resources department by the person's secretary and never reach its intended recipient."

When answering help-wanted advertisements, find out who the decision-maker is for the position, if possible, and send a letter directly to that person. "By doing this, you can increase the likelihood that the hiring manager will see your letter and separate your reply from the scores of other people who responded to the ad," according to Magee.

Do at least one proactive thing per day. "Call someone for a networking meeting who isn't in the mainstream of your discipline - for example, an old teacher, a coach, or your dentist. Sharpen your interviewing skills by practicing in front of a video camera. Strategize answers to potential tough interview questions," Magee said.

Manchester Partners International is an alliance of consulting firms specializing in career transition, individual and organizational performance, with more than 100 offices throughout the U.S. and Europe.

versity financial awards based on need. If a student does not fill out the form, universities may overlook any requests for university funding, and no requests will be considered by the government.

After applying to the federal government for funds, there are still many other resources to look to for money. Books filled with different scholarships and grants can be found in the reference sections of the public libraries and in bookstores such as Border's Books and Music. These books, such as Financial Aid for Higher Eductions; How to Pay Less for College; Scholarships, Fellowships, and Loans; and The Scholarship Book, are shelved together in libraries and bookstores. They contain many different organizations offering funds to students and explanations on how to apply for them.

Additionally, individual colleges and universities offer their own scholarships. The information for these is available from each university's office of financial aid. High school media centers and guidance counseling centers also have lists of awards that are available, and often high school counselors can assist students in filling these forms out.

■ For those that prefer researching by computer, there are software programs listing scholarships available at stores such as Babbage's Software and Egghead Software.

Finally, for those that prefer researching by computer, there are software programs listing scholarships available at stores such as Babbage's Software and Egghead Software. These programs have titles such as Scholarships and Scholarships 101, and contain the same type of information found in the reference books.

I'm sorry, but I just don't like singles bars.

When it came to meeting someone special, I knew it wouldn't happen in a bar. So I placed an ad in the personals. With all the new features, recording the perfect voice greeting was simple. And it didn't even cost me a dime. But best of all, it worked.

Much is being said about the rigorous screening process we put our doctors through.

But don't worry.

Some survive.

It's a tall order. And maybe not every doctor is cut out for it. But then if we're going to make things easier for our patients, we must strive to provide quality doctors. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine a single patient, they must first meet or surpass some rather lofty standards. Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against specific written criteria. (Quality of care is the thing we're measuring here.)

Moreover, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and the results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area.

Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care.

Blue Care Network also works with its personal care physicians to ensure that standards are met.

Oh, and one more thing. After meeting all these standards, the doctors who are selected have the pleasure of repeating this process all over again every two years. For as long as they're with us.

NEW HOMES

Autumn Park features luxury and wide selection

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Houses in Autumn Park at Nine Mile and Beck in Novi will be spacious, luxurious and upscale.

Nine floor plans, all two stories or colonials, have been designed by Dominick Tringali for John Richards, a Birmingham building company headed by John Shekerjian.

Base prices start at $326,900 for a 3,150-square-foot colonial with four bedrooms and 2½ baths and range up to $399,900 for a 4,000-square-foot two-story with four bedrooms, three full baths and two half baths.

Buyers can choose from among 28 exterior elevations that share a Georgian, neoclassical look.

"Our big issue here is quality — quality of construction . . . floor plans," Shekerjian said.

"We're real concerned about design. We're emphasizing the family room off the kitchen, a hearth room as the gathering place for family. Formal areas, I think, are becoming less important to some people."

Many features offered as extras by other builders are standard in all floor plans at Autumn Park.

Those include three-car garage, double oven, microwave and cooktop plus whirlpool tub.

Other standards include fireplace, air conditioning, first-floor laundry, basement, two staircases and hardwood floors in the kitchen.

Each lot will have a custom lamp post out front.

"We wanted to bring back the Americana feeling, go back to sidewalks, houses that are timeless," Tringali said. "I think we have a plan that should meet every need."

Three models are under construction.

The Inglenook, 3,930 square feet, places the master suite on the first floor, three bedrooms, a loft and two baths upstairs.

The master contains two walk-in closets, a dressing area, separate tub and shower and sloped ceiling.

The main level also features a library, living room, dining room, country kitchen with large island, walk-in pantry and butler's pantry connecting to the dining room, and family room with cathedral ceiling and two-way fireplace to the kitchen.

"This is for people who want to live on the first floor, with the master suite but normally don't want to give anything else up," Shekerjian said.

The base price is $392,900.

The Georgian is the largest, most expensive model in Autumn Park at just over 4,000 square feet and $399,900.

A dramatic two-story, Y-shaped foyer showcases a parlor off one end, dining room off the other.

The main floor also has a library, family room, large kitchen/eating nook, butler's pantry and two half baths — one between the staircase and family room, the other off the laundry and kitchen.

Four bedrooms and three baths are upstairs. The master has two walk-in closets, dressing area, separate tub and shower, dual sink vanity and cathedral ceiling.

"There's great flow for entertaining," Shekerjian said. "This house has it all."

The Dartmouth, a colonial of 3,836 square feet, has four bedrooms, three full baths and two half baths.

The more traditional layout on the main floor has a living room

leading to a dining room on one side of the entry foyer, a library at the other end, then the kitchen/eating nook and family room across the back.

Four bedrooms and three full baths are upstairs.

"This house is a little more affordable, a little more conventional," Shekerjian said.

Base price is $377,400.

Eight houses sold during the first three weeks a mobile office was on site, said Joan Krempel, sales director.

"They're very impressed with the particular location, signage and entrances," she said. "The Georgian, they love the foyer. It's something they haven't seen. Some people are excited that each child can have their own bedroom."

Buyers also have a variety of choices in plumbing fixtures.

Autumn Park, in the Northville school district, eventually will be served by city water and sewers. Sidewalks will be installed.

The property tax rate for Autumn Park is $29.26 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $350,000 house in the subdivision would pay $5,120 the first year.

Lisa and Gary Cipriani and son, Jon, will be moving into a Georgian.

"Both my husband and son play hockey," Lisa said. "We bought on the pond there. We like Novi a lot. We didn't want to go outside.

"The Georgian is really different," Lisa added. "I like the columns. I like how the kitchen, butler's pantry is near the dining room. I like two bathrooms downstairs on the main level. Just a different look on the outside, all the detailing, I like that a lot."

Romie and Bob Bruns, along with daughters Crystal and Madison, are getting the Emerson, a two story with four bedrooms.

"We like the two-sided fireplace. We really liked the layout of the bedrooms, with the master having a step up and being in the corner of the house," she said.

Autumn Park, (810) 380-8882, is open noon to 5 p.m. daily.

Metro Detroit office market may be best ever

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

■ 'The mindset of corporate executives is generally up. That means if they're hanging on the fence wondering whether they should expand, upgrade or move to larger quarters, they're probably going to go thumbs up.'

Joel Feldman

The metro Detroit office market — torpedoed a decade ago by speculative overbuilding and a recession — may be in its best condition ever by the end of this year, one forecaster predicts.

Business expansion fueled by corporate confidence in the economy has sparked the comeback, reports Joel Feldman, a broker with First Commercial Realty & Development in Southfield.

Mid-year occupancy rates in Observer & Eccentric communities ranged from 96 percent in Livonia to 83 percent in Southfield, according to Feldman's survey.

Occupancy rate was 94 percent in Bloomfield Hills and Bingham Farms, 93 percent in Farmington Hills and Auburn Hills, 92 percent in West Bloomfield, 91 percent in Birmingham and 87 percent in Troy.

Major gains from the mid-year point in 1994 were noted in Troy, up 9 percent, Farmington Hills, 7 percent, and Auburn Hills and Southfield, 4 percent.

"The mindset of corporate executives is generally up," Feldman said. "That means if they're hanging on the fence wondering whether they should expand, upgrade or move to larger quarters, they're probably going to go thumbs up."

Mayor Dennis Archer also deserves some credit for a perkier market, Feldman said, by bringing attention to Detroit and suburbia with a successful redevelopment empowerment zone campaign.

"We're seeing national interest focused on Detroit," Feldman said. "National and local people feel more positive. Please don't downplay psychological ripple effects. When perception is positive, people are willing to make commitments."

A couple of other factors have come into play to tighten the market, Feldman said.

"There's pent-up demand," he said. "During the recession period, a lot of people wanted to make some kind of move, but the boss said, 'No, no.' Pent-up demand has spilled into action. New deals are cut.

"There's a lot of influx of businesses here from Canada who want to come here due to the discrepency between the Canadian dollar and American dollar," Feldman added.

"One of the major reasons the turnaround has occurred is there's been no construction of any magnitude with the sole exception of Southfield's Oakland Towne Square built in the last three or four years," he said.

"The supply of product has basically stabilized. Demand has increased, increased, increased."

However, things could sour again in a hurry if speculative builders without a tenant base at the time of construction go on another binge, Feldman added.

"Our office market's major enemy, its major danger, is premature introduction of new office facilities of significance before this time next year," he reported.

"If further patience and forebearance rule," he wrote, "the final aftershocks of the past recession should have died down enough by then . . . to permit and even require the next round of new office development, hopefully on a much more limited and monitored basis than before."

Owner givebacks on rents and build-outs for tenants decrease as the market tightens.

"Except for distinct buildings in distinct areas . . . property in the southern part of Southfield, Detroit, some buildings in Troy . . . concessions have basically dried up," Feldman said.

"Landlords in most instances are standing hard and fast on what they're willing to spend to modify office space to satisfy tenants. In Livonia, there would be very little difference between the sticker price and received price."

Regional, national furnishing styles influence tastes

BY BARBARA MAYER
AP NEWSFEATURES

■ Despite any differences that still remain, slowly but surely a sameness is coming over the decorating practices of the country. Features turning up all around the country include the use of special paint finishes and more use of area rugs and ceramic tile floors.

Is there such a thing as a national style in the United States? Or do regional differences play a role?

The answer is yes to both questions.

Some furnishings professionals think the country's rooms are taking on a similar aspect, helped along by the national decorating magazines and the penchant of Americans to take their decorating preferences with them when they move. The growth of national chains also may be playing a part.

"Eighty percent of our fabric line sells well all over the country and there are no major differences in preferences for furniture or accessories," says Farooq Kathwari, president of Ethan Allen Furniture of Danbury, Conn. Ethan Allen markets its home furnishings products in 47 states.

But there are discernible regional flavors.

"Most of the differences in decorating these days can be attributed to different building styles for homes and different climates," says Sue Pelle, senior vice president of Decorating Den, a franchised decorating service with branches all over the country.

In the southwest, for example, houses have much larger windows and windows in unusual shapes, so the window treatments are necessarily distinctive. And rooms decorated in so-called southwestern style are common in the western part of the country where adobe-style houses are often built. The weather makes pastels and bright colors such as aqua and fuchsia and lime green more popular in Florida and other sunbelt states than they are in New York, New England and the midwest.

Local decorators, whose work is seen in decorator showhouses and model homes, are also a force for regional differences.

"Most people in Atlanta want to decorate in American traditional style to match the architecture of our houses, which have Palladian windows, crown molding and wainscoting," says Judith Slaughter,a decorator affiliated with Decorating Den in Atlanta.

Explaining the paradox that clients get their ideas from mass circulation decorating magazines but still opt for a regional look, Slaughter says that typically people only clip pictures suited to the style of their own house.

"They see a room and think: 'My room could look like that,'" Slaughter says.

Some of the traditional cliches about decorating differences still seem to be operative. In Florida, for example, clients are more in the market for easy care and easy maintenance in home furnishings, says Pelle. And in the midwest, people have a tendency to choose something that looks exactly like what they had before.

"In other locales, especially California, people are more adventuresome in their decorating," says Pelle.

Kathwari, however, notices stylistic differences mainly between rural and urban areas. Because they generally live in apartments with limited space, people in cities choose more contemporary pieces suited to limited space, and often prefer furniture that is very functional. In the suburbs, houses are larger and people more likely to select more formal classic furniture and arrange it in a traditional way.

Despite any differences that still remain, slowly but surely a sameness is coming over the decorating practices of the country. Features turning up all around the country include the use of special paint finishes, such as murals, window treatments that don't obscure the view, more use of area rugs and ceramic tile floors and less use of wall-to-wall carpet, Pelle says. Surfaces generally are lighter, cleaner and brighter. The light look is in for kitchens and the dark mahogany look is out.

And "it's silk, silk in everything from ficus trees to philodendron," Pelle says. "With more women working outside the home and time scarce, there seem to be fewer live house plants and more silkflowers and plants that take no care.

"We don't see people ordering huge wall systems or seating pit groups," Pelle adds. "Instead, they are choosing smaller pieces of furniture. And there is more use of metal such as wrought iron and brass beds. One of the hottest products recently has been decorative drapery hardware with rods that look like swords, and unusual brass and metal tiebacks."

Ideas from national decorating magazines that have caught on in rooms decorated by Decorating Den include media areas and the use of special paint treatments for walls and furniture. Other favoritesin high-end magazines, such as antiques, custom-made art furniture, special lighting and original art, are rarely if ever desired by customers of Decorating Den.

"The big thing is home security systems," says Pelle. "Today, very few homes are being built that don't have the option of a home security system. It is a big selling feature in new homes."

The End. Finis. Finito.

Olympian task

Couple master art of renovating old homes

BY BARBARA MAYER
AP NEWSFEATURES

■ With 16 rooms, seven baths and approximately 11,500 square feet of living space on four levels, the house approaches elephantine status, white or otherwise. Yet, it has the kind of architectural detail that is rarely available today, such as 14-foot-high ceilings.

AP — Turning a white elephant into a dream house is the Olympics of decorating. Mastering it usually involves a lot of practice.

Janine and Chip Broadhurst have been "practicing" for more than 20 years. They are now completing their chef d'oeuvre — a 1906 cut stone and shingle house in Greenwich, Conn. It is the fifth and most complicated renovation that they have tackled since buying their first house when they got married 21 years ago.

Over the years, the Broadhursts have evolved a system for assigning tasks. She is the space planner and decorator, as well as a hanger of wallpaper, painter, furniture refinisher and a frequenter of auctions, flea markets, tag sales and local art shows. He is the point man on structural and mechanical systems.

In this particular renovation, both skills were required. While imposing, the house needed a new roof and upgrades of plumbing and electrical systems, work on kitchen and bathrooms and considerable attention to walls and floors.

The Broadhursts gutted the old 25-foot-square kitchen and replaced it with a gleaming white dream kitchen. They also rearranged the floor plan, switching the location of the former dining room and family room and turning the back entrance to the house into its front entrance. The top and ground floors now house bedroom and study space for their 14-year-old daughter, Lauren, and 18-year-old son, R.J.

Beyond these interior changes, they landscaped to create a garden and a better circulation pattern for vehicles.

With 16 rooms, seven baths and approximately 11,500 square feet of living space on four levels, the house approaches elephantine status, white or otherwise. Yet, it has the kind of architectural detail that is rarely available today, such as 14-foot-high ceilings, a unique oak staircase, a living room fireplace that would not be out of place in an English castle, and impressive fireplaces in the reception hall, family room and dining room. Strategically placed columns with ionic capitals and plaster moldings at the ceiling add grandeur to the living room.

Janine Broadhurst's methods and approach to decorating are refreshingly casual. Family and friends have learned not to get too attached to any particular decorating scheme because chances are that she'll live with it awhile and then come up with something even better.

Despite her penchant for doing things over, she is satisfied for now with the 26- by 45-foot living room, which has some captivating architectural detailing. One of the highlights is the white plaster fireplace with polychrome floral decoration, which she restored. A plasterer spent more than a month replacing missing elements of molding by taking castings of intact portions.

A room of this size takes a lot more furniture than the usual living room. This one swallows up four sofas and a grand piano and there is still more than enough room left over for any number of chairs and tables.

"A few good things set the tone," says Broadhurst. Of the four sofas, one is a floor sample and another a consignment shop find.

Eventually, the Broadhursts will replace the windows and find that "perfect" rug for the living room. At that point, new draperies are almost a foregone conclusion.

"I do it all myself so I think I have license to do it as often as I like," says Broadhurst, who spent uncounted hours removing black paint that obscured original woodwork in the house. "Sometimes I buy wallpaper closeouts or go directly to a mill. And sometimes I splurge on furnishings."

Although she doesn't care for decorating rules, Broadhurst does observe one: In each room, she includes a touch of whimsy. In the kitchen, a 1925 Magic Chef stove is the unexpected fanciful touch. She brought the stove with her from her most recent house, within shouting distance of this one. The new kitchen is designed around the stove.

In the family room, she has set up a small child-size table with a breakfast set of old china.

Haunted houses put chill in some house sales

BY VIVIAN MARINO
AP NEWSFEATURES

NEW YORK (AP) — A fabulous Hudson River view, stained glass windows, intricate woodwork and gabled towers drew lots of potential buyers to Helen Ackley's Nyack, N.Y., house when it was put on the market six years ago.

But it was the ghosts, or rather talk of them, that scared off at least one couple who had put down a 5 percent binder on the $650,000 Victorian.

The buyers got back much of their deposit after an unusual legal scuffle in which the 18-room house was declared haunted "as a matter of law" by a state judge. It eventually sold at a slightly lower price.

Mrs. Ackley, 68, who now lives in Orlando, Fla., insists "the taxes are what drove me out, not the ghosts" from the Revolutionary War era who she says were friendly.

Regardless of one's belief in the supernatural world, in the world of real estate, supposedly haunted houses — along with homes in which suicides occurred, crimes were committed or environmental problems once existed — are considered stigmatized properties. They can pose special problems for sellers.

Because residential real estate purchases are often motivated by emotion, homes carrying a stigma frequently sell for less and remain on the market longer than "normal" properties despite the absence of physical defects. (In parts of the country with large Asian populations, there are even "feng shui" inspectors that try to determine a home's karma.)

Professional appraisers use special guidelines to value stigmatized properties.

"You can't look through traditional multiple listing services," said Frank Harrison, president of Harrison and Associates, a Woodstock, Ill., appraisal firm. "It's a relatively exhaustive process."

Harrison, who is writing a book on the subject for the Appraisal Institute trade group, begins by appraising the property as if nothing was wrong. He then checks the discount that comparable homes with comparable stigmas sold at within a 20-mile radius and over the past five years. Often he searches through public records and interviews brokers, an expensive process that can take three to five times longer than normal appraisals.

The amount by which real estate is discounted depends on the type and extent of the stigma as well as how long it remains in public memory.

"I haven't found any real loss attached to suicides . . . but the more sensational, the more gruesome the act the bigger the impact," Harrison said, adding that occasionally the value of neighboring homes may be affected as well.

A few years ago, he appraised a house in suburban Chicago that was the scene of a double murder committed by a spurned boyfriend. Had the crime not occurred, the house would have been appraised at around $120,000, but the fact that the murders made front page news for weeks and the killer was still at large drove down the value to $95,000.

There are some properties, however, that may never be marketable at any price.

The Los Angeles house where actress Sharon Tate and six others were murdered by followers of Charles Manson 26 years ago was recently torn down and replaced by a new house. The Hamilton Township, N.J., house where 7-year-old Megan Kanka was killed by a convicted sex offender was also razed and a park is planned on the site.

It's not yet known whether the vacant Brentwood, Calif., condominium owned by the estate of Nicole Brown Simpson, who was murdered on condo grounds, will be sold at market value.

Some people see investment opportunities regardless of the notoriety.

"I would be inclined to tell my readers (that) if it wasn't too bad of a stigma to buy these properties. You might be able to make a profit eventually after these things fade from memory," said John T. Reed, who publishes Real Estate Investor's Monthly in Danville, Calif.

William O. Keleher Jr., president of Prudential New Jersey Realty, based in East Brunswick, N.J., agreed: "If the price is cheap enough someone will say, 'Hey, I can fix this up and make this a nice place to live and whatever happened before doesn't affect me.' It would take an extreme case to make it unsalable."

A few buyers may actually welcome notorious niches, especially those of historical significance.

"A lot of businesses — bed and breakfasts, inns, restaurants — like the idea of having a ghost," said Dale Kaczmarek, president of the Ghost Research Society, Oak Lawn, Ill., "They see it as an asset."

In fact, organizations like the Ghost Research Society are sometimes contacted by businesses and celebrities for help in locating supposedly haunted haunts.

Barbara Shaunessy, a 48-year-old computer systems specialist, thinks ghosts, real or imagined, add to the charm of a house. Although she's never had an ectoplasmic experience herself, visitors to her seven-bedroom 1806 house in Morristown, N.J., have told her they've seen images of what appear to be Union soldiers from the Civil War.

"The previous owners made a comment that the house will decide if it likes you. They never made any specific mention at the time," she said.

Perhaps one of the stickiest issues involving stigmatized real estate involves disclosure.

Mrs. Ackley claims the stories were fairly well known about her suburban New York home being haunted by friendly ghosts who left little presents for the family. (The gifts, she says, included a gold baby ring and a pair of tiny silver tongs.) She even wrote about it in a 1977 Reader's Digest article.

But the buyers, spooked by the notion of sharing their home with strangers, maintain they didn't find out about the home's history until after casually speaking with someone in town. A state appellate judge ruled Mrs. Ackley should have told them since she deliberately had fostered the belief that her home was possessed.

While disclosure laws vary by state, real estate experts are split on just how much of a home's history should be revealed to potential buyers.

"In a conventional real estate transaction, the seller is the client of the real estate professional, who has a fiduciary responsibility to that client. But by the same token, we're held to standard of fair treatment," said Keleher.

"If there's a home where there had been a tragedy or a murder and the house had been for sale for a long time . . . you just can't take a buyer from out of town and sell it to them. You have to let them know it is a fact that could affect the property value."

Stephanie Nagle, a broker for Prudential First Realty in Beverly, Mass., a few miles north of historic Salem, says her policy is to disclose such information only to serious lookers. "I wouldn't want to attract it as a curiosity property," she said.

The National Association of Realtors advises members to give up a listing should sellers refuse to disclose information deemed important in determining the value of property. Federal law prohibits real estate agents, however, from making unsolicited disclosures that a current or former occupant has AIDS.

You can't find any antiques? Make your own

BY BARBARA MAYER
AP NEWSFEATURES

AP — Can you afford antiques for an old world look? And are there enough for everyone who wants them?

Make them, suggests Amy Howard. A patina of age can be achieved inexpensively with either new pieces or other people's castoffs with decorative techniques that are not beyond the abilities of a beginner, says this decorative painter in Memphis, Tenn.

"An added bonus is that it is a lot of fun to rekindle street finds, yard sale rejects and furniture languishing in the attic by changing the finish or adding some trim," says Howard. She founded Artisan Studios to restore old pieces and to create "instant antiques," such as new panel screens artfully aged with paint.

A number of commercially available products are available to age furniture, including lacquers, glues, and waxes. One of Howard's favorite techniques is to apply gray rottenstone and wax to impart an "ancient" luster to wood.

"We use some old-world methods, such as applying gesso, which is a thick chalky paint-like substance that adds dimension to the surface of a piece of furniture," says Howard. "A gesso surface can be carved for additional ornamentation."

Gesso, some of the lacquers and the most complex faux painting techniques are best left to professionals, but beginners can produce good results through less complicated means.

"The rottenstone and wax application is not all that hard to do, especially on new picture frames or even a shiny new piece of furniture," Howard says.

Amateurs can also tint wax with umber or other colors available at a paint supply store before rubbing it on furniture.

The first secret of successful subterfuge is choosing a castoff that will repay the time and money about to be lavished upon it.

"I look for pieces with good classic lines and an unattractive finish or, in the case of upholstery, an unattractive fabric," Howard says.

Replacing the fabric with an old textile is one of the simplest ways to add a stylish feeling of age to a piece or to an entire room. Old draperies are the best source for long lengths of fabric possibly even enough to recover an easy chair or sofa.

"Don't look at them as drapes, but as cushion covers, dining chair covers, easy chair covers," says Howard.

While desirable long lengths can be quite expensive, especially if they are silk, it is much easier and less expensive to acquire small pieces of old fabric. Howard finds short lengths at good prices at estate sales, charity flea markets, yard sales and country auctions. One recent find, for example, was a piece of 100-year-old French toile (sheer) fabric that she bought for about $35.

"It only takes a half yard or so to make a decorative pillow, and if I don't have enough to cover the chair, I use a different fabric for the back."

When working a piece of old fabric with new, Howard says that a stripe, plaid or check in the same color family as the antique fabric usually works best. Solids and floral fabrics do not seem to produce a good marriage. Howard often turns old or new fabrics inside out, finding that the back which is generally more muted in coloration and pattern is often more interesting than the face of the fabric.

Handwoven rugs are another source of unique fabric fragments. Here again, the rug in good enough condition to be used for the floor is prohibitively expensive — and possibly too valuable to be cut up. It is a rug that is in bad condition with only a few usable parts that is her usual prey. The backs of these rugs often look like petit point and they make good pillow covers turned inside out, especially on mission-style chairs and settees.

Howard recently put many of her precepts to work in her own new home. Much of the furniture in the house consists of old, unloved pieces that Howard and her husband, Gene, have refinished. She also used architectural antiques such as old door knobs and hinges to give her new doors an aged air. The pulls on her kitchen cabinets are old pieces of silverware with screws soldered on so they could be attached to the doors.

Individual iron pickets from old picket fences are recycled as towel bars by turning them horizontally and having dowels soldered onto them at each end so they could be attached to the wall.

Even the stairway carpet runner consists of fragments of kilim rugs and orientals sewn together.

"I used geometric patterns and the same coloration — a faded red and taupe palette — so that the runner would not be too busy," Howard says.

Decorate to make home your comfort zone

AP — The have-it-your-way philosophy has invaded the world of home decorating, with a new emphasis on comfort.

People are taking more control of their lives, working at home and dressing more comfortably now, says decorator and author Teri Seidman. The call for comfortable rooms is part of this thinking, says Seidman, co-author of "Decorating for Comfort" (Villard Books, $24 hardcover).

What exactly is comfort in home decorating and how do you get it?

"Physical ease — easy chairs, conveniently placed tables, good lighting, and enough storage space help to define comfort," Seidman says. "Having furnishings that are in keeping with personal esthetic preferences is also part of comfort."

It is difficult to relax if there are unpleasant odors and noise. Such problems often cannot be fixed with decorating choices, she admits. Home fragrance and white noise machines or sound-muffling window treatments are, however, ways of dealing with the problem, short of structural solutions.

Seidman traces the rise of comfort in decorating to home electronics, which has meant more people spending leisure time at home or even working there.

"Before VCRs and big screen TVs, we went out to the movies. Now the movies come to us," she says. "We use exercise equipment at home when formerly we went to the gym, entertain with home-cooked meals instead of going out to a restaurant."

Many people have to fit more items into a home than in the past: VCR's, big screen TVs, exercise equipment, and home office equipment — computers, fax machines, and file drawers. These new items mean that rooms are furnished differently to accommodate the new activities. Seidman finds that old decorating rules such as keeping the television set out of the living room and having a separate room for dining don't necessarily fit into a comfortable home.

Some typical changes including putting a large-screen TV in the living room, claiming a separate dining room for a different use such as a home office or an exercise area.

Design for special needs initiated a number of the ideas about comfort that are now moving into the mainstream. These include counters at different heights, handles instead of knobs on doors, clocks with larger numerals, low-glare lighting.

While the living room and dining room are the two rooms that have changed most in response to the wish for a comfortable home, other rooms also need rethinking.

"Now that many people have a dishwasher, having a big picture window behind the kitchen sink is no longer important to them," Seidman says. "Instead, they want a nice view from the home office where they spend a lot more time."

Oakland home sales down 21%

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Sales of existing and new houses in Oakland County through the first six months of this year were down by nearly 21 percent compared to 1994 figures, according to a Bloomfield tracking service.

However, the average selling price from 9,760 transactions was up 6 percent to nearly $135,400, according to Advertising That Works.

"Fewer homes are selling, but they are selling for more than comparable homes sold for last year," reported Steven Bartley, president of Advertising That Works.

In Wayne County, the 9,262 sales recorded January through June of this year were down by 8 percent from the same six-month period of 1994, but the average selling price of $88,455 was virtually identical.

Information was obtained from county registry of deed offices, Bartley said.

"Nineteen nintey four was such a good sales year, I didn't expect '95 to match, but I didn't expect to see it this far down," Bartley said of the raw sales numbers.

"Nothing grows forever, be it the stock market or homes sales," he said. "Maybe this is just a down year. Maybe not as many people need to buy houses this year. Maybe they're contented where they are."

Home sales figures are useful as a barometer for businesses that supply or service people who relocate, Bartley said.

"People who move into a house spend more money big time percentage wise than someone who has lived in a house five or six years," Bartley said.

"It could be appliances, carpeting. Plumbers or electricians. Remodeling. It's the local dentist down the street, the veterinarian. People involved with landscaping."

In Oakland County, 6,373 of the 9,760 sales were for more than $100,000 and in Wayne County, 6,373 of the 9,262 sales were for less than $100,000, Advertising That Works reported.

Interactive computers help sell new homes

Interactive multimedia computer programs have created a whole new world of possibilities and now even those in the market for a new home can get a glimpse into the future of home buying when they visit the model home built for the new Pheasant View community of Canton Township.

Lewiston-Crescentini Homes has introduced an interactive multimedia program to show their homes, which are now available for presale.

"The program allows home seekers to explore endless possibilities of home styles, features and mortgage options at their own pace," said Jason P. Lewiston, president of Lewiston-Crescentini Homes. "The level of sophistication computers have reached with interactive computer technology is truly remarkable."

The computer program can essentially take the interested party through the entire decision making process by merely touching the screen. Here's how it goes from there:

Four areas from which to choose appear on the screen: house elevations, mortgage and pricing, the Pheasant Run Golf Course, and the Summit on the Park community center.

The nine available home floor plans and 24 different elevations can be viewed in the first area. The computer shows the homes which range from two to four bedrooms, ranches, cape cods, and colonials. Square footage from 2,000 up to 3,200 is available. Viewers can experiment and change instantly the color of the brick, siding, trim, shingles, shutters or doors. Over 10,000 combinations are available to determine their favorite selection.

The mortgage and pricing area shows the different elevations with pricing information. Viewers can press the screen to see a site map with lot prices and a list of options for a particular model.

Information is provided regarding the down payment, allowing the participant to vary the amount thereby adjusting the mortgage amount appropriately. It gives the figures for zero to two points, various mortgages, taxes and insurance, finally giving the total payment and the suggested qualifying income necessary for the different mortgage options. This entire section can be printed out to take home.

"The program allows home seekers more privacy and control," added Lewiston. "People in the market for a home don't have to reveal financial information and the program gives them just the information they want about the homes."

The Pheasant Run Golf Course area shows a map of the course. A score card appears with statistics for all 18 holes as well as a photo of the clubhouse.

The fourth area for exploration on the computer is the Summit on the Park, the adjacent community center available to residents. The gathering place includes a waterslide, pools, fitness area, child care and other community programs.

"What we have created is a revolutionary new way to go looking for a home," said Michael Lozicki, developer and designer of the program and president of Creative Perceptions, a Bloomfield Hills graphic arts and multimedia production company. "Instead of driving from one end of town to the other to see different color combinations and home styles, you sit still and essentially "play a game." It takes out the guesswork and makes it much more enjoyable and convenient for those in the market for a home."

The model home and sales office is located in the neighboring community, The Fairways at Pheasant Run, which is in its final phase. Pheasant View at Pheasant Run is situated on the same golf course. Home construction begins in september on Pheasant View which features the same models and elevations as The Fairways.

Lewiston and Eddie Crescentini have developed and built homes in Glengarry Village No. 3, Fairways at Pheasant Run and Pheasant View communities in Canton Township.

Interactive shopping: A touch of the screen sets up a multimedia program showing new homes for presale.

JIM JAMIESON/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Making connections: Keith Paul, president of Home Advantage, said his goal is to put the good guys in touch with folks who need help with home repairs and renovations.

Who you gonna call? A contractor!

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

It all started, Keith Paul said, after he and his wife, Debra, came to the conclusion that her grandmother had been ripped off by a cabinet contractor.

So they went to the library and did some research on consumer protectionism. "We looked for ways to help people and it snowballed from there," he said.

What resulted is Home Advantage, a free referral service for homeowners that screens contractors and service firms to make certain they provide quality work at fair prices.

Paul, who isn't a contractor, said he's learned a lot from his father, who's a municipal building inspector.

"I'm a specialist in customer service," Paul said.

"We make sure that the contractors or service firms we refer are honest and have a good track record. That really brings peace of mind to consumers when they are in the market for home improvements," he said.

Upwards of 60 different contractors are on Paul's approved roster.

"We put them through a pretty thorough screening before they can be referred," he said. "We verify licenses. We verify insurance. We check with the Better Business Bureau."

But Paul's most effective investigative tool is the court of public opinion, word of mouth, personal testimonials.

"Where we get most of our information is interviews with customers they (contractors) have dealt with in the past," he said.

"We ask how you rate quality, personal service. Did they do what they said they would do? Did they clean up after themselves? Did you think the price was fair? Would you recommend them to your friends? Would you use them again?

"Most people don't know where to turn," Paul said. "They say, 'I'm scared to call. Can you give me a couple of names or numbers?'

"We give names. They get estimates. They make the choice. They're under no obligation at all.

"There's no fee at all for homeowners. Contractors, once they pass the certification process, pay a membership fee."

He said he can refer more than 250 home improvement categories from appliance repair and carpet cleaning to roofing and window installation.

He said he's provided more than 2,000 referrals.

"We're here for the good guy to get jobs and help homeowners meet the good guys," Paul said.

Only once has Home Advantage had to remove a contractor from its roster since starting in 1993, Paul said.

"We had a company, they were a great company. Air conditioning. From what I hear, it was personal problems. They didn't return phone calls. We followed up. We had to drop them."

Dave McCall of Livonia Home Improvement says Home Advantage referrals don't guarantee work, but are a good way of generating new business.

"If we get a lead, it's not a locked-up deal," he said. "We still have to compete. We still have to sell the job."

McCall said he can think of at least three large Home Advantage referrals that led to an aggregate $80,000 of business that he probably wouldn't have had a chance to get without the leads.

"Everyone in the business realizes people are a lot more educated than 10 to 20 years ago," he said. "The more references, the more referrals we have, the better it is for us."

Judith Condon said she's had three great experiences with Home Advantage, which she first read about in a magazine.

"We had moved to a house and it needed some work. We had been ripped by plumbers at the other house. This was someone we could call and at least give it a try.

"First we called for air conditioning. I was delighted with the service and caliber of work. So I called again, this time for an electrician. Over came this retired guy, honest as the day was long. He replaced a panel. It was a good price, wonderful work. He was neat. He could come that week.

"Then I called for a plumber. The same, excellent service."

Condon said she was impressed that Paul was direct in not giving a referral when he didn't have a contractor for a particular job. "He just didn't give any name to get business," she said.

Bob Kostoff, owner of All Pro Plumbing in Garden City, said he was one of the first contractors to join Paul's service. He figures he's wrapped up more than 100 jobs through Home Advantage.

"People are just tired of messing with unreliable contractors doing the job wrong, overcharging," Kostoff said. "He (Paul) does a pretty thorough check on everybody."F

Home Advantage can be reached at (800) 733-3778.

Nothing necessarily wrong with Mexican time shares

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. I have had some bad experiences with a time share solicitation in various locations in Mexico and, for that matter, in Michigan. Do you have any information on the availability of time shares in Ixtapa, Mexico, and what protections I should try to obtain?

A. As in any other popular resort area, Ixtapa has its share of time share condominiums, as well as full-time condominium projects, both already constructed and under construction.

There is a consumer protection agency of the Mexican government that is designed to assist consumers with problems that arise. My experience recently was generally pleasant. While the solicitation was reasonably aggressive, the solicitors did comply with the promises that they made to induce you to come to hear the presentation.

Moreover, if a time share makes economic sense for you, there are opportunities to take advantage of a time share so long as they understand the ramifications of what they are purchasing.

For example, since no one can own land except the government, the developers of one particular time share have a 99-year land lease. They, in turn, deed to you the right to use the time share hotel unit for, by way of example, 23 years once a year, or 23 times.

Generally, the time share is exchangeable in a program such as RCI, which allows you, under certain circumstances, to trade your time share week for other available weeks at other resorts that are within the RCI system. The cost of the time share, I have found, is negotiable, but watch out for closing costs and other potential hidden expenses.

Also, in Mexico and in certain states, there is a "cooling off" period of five days, which allows you to rescind the transaction. Don't be afraid to do so if you change your mind.

The best advice I can give you is:

Do not sign up for the time share when you are on the premises. Wait until after you have given yourself 24 hours to think about it or time to seek legal advice (or both) and have otherwise explored other time share proposals, full-time condominium proposals and, for that matter, the cost of actually staying in an existing hotel room as opposed to buying a time share.

Q. I am interested in buying a condominium in Ixtapa, Mexico, on the water, if possible. What do you know about this?

A. A number of full-ownership condominiums (as opposed to time shares) are being built on the main beach at Ixtapa. These are priced as $135,000 to $350,000 per unit. One particular site will have two condominium projects consisting of two 67-unit buildings that face the ocean.

Before you buy, you should thoroughly review the documents, understand what you are buying, and be aware of the rules, regulations and restrictions, and what the "cooling off" period may be before you must commit to complete the condominium purchase.

Midwest offered best buys

BY JOHN D MCCLAIN
AP NEWSFEATURES

(AP) — The most affordable housing was found primarily in the Midwest last winter, while the least affordable was concentrated in the West, much of it in California, a trade group says.

The National Association of Home Builders said Midwestern cities filled 13 of the 25 slots at the top of its Housing Opportunity Index in the first quarter of this year. They included Elkhart,Ind., the most affordable of all.

"Conditions in the Midwest, including plentiful land and incomes that are not much lower than those in the Northeast, make many cities there very affordable in comparison to other parts of the country," said Home Builders President Jim Irvine.

Seven Southern and five Northeastern cities also made the Top 25. The Northeastern cities all were in New York state — Elmira, Binghamton, Utica, Syracuse and Jamestown.

Minneapolis and Kansas City, Mo,. were the only cities with more than 1 million residents to rank among the 25 most affordable markets.

The West had 18 of the 25 least affordable markets. Thirteen of them were in California, including San Francisco, the least affordable city. Three more were in the Northeast and four were in the South.

The Home Builders survey of 455,000 sales of new and existing houses in 179 markets found its affordability rating nationally declined in the first quarter to 61.2 from 62.3 in the final three monthsof 1994, because of high interest rates.

That meant a family earning the national median income of $40,200 could afford to buy 61.2 percent of the houses offered for sale in the first quarter. The median is the midpoint, meaning half of thefamilies earned more and half earned less.

"The year started off with mortgage rates above 9 percent," said association president Irvine, a Portland, Ore., builder. "Rates did not drop below 8.5 percent until the end of March."

The interest rate used to calculate the index is a national, weighted average of adjustable rate and fixed-rate loans.

Although fixed-rate mortgages peaked in January, rates for adjustable loans continued to climb, boosting the index rate to 8.15 percent from 7.82 percent in the fourth quarter.

The index measures the proportion of houses sold in a specific market that a family earning the median income in that market could afford to buy. It also takes into consideration differences in property tax rates and property insurance rates in each community.

Elkhart, a northern Indiana city of 41,000, scored an 86 on the index, meaning a family there earning the median income of $41,600 could have purchased 86 percent of the houses sold during the period.

But San Francisco had a 21 and remained at the bottom of the list, a ranking it has held since the Home Builders began the quarterly surveys in early 1991. San Francisco also had the highest median house price, $273,000.

Regionally, in addition to Elkhart in the Midwest, the most affordable markets were Elmira in the Northeast, Pensacola, Fla., in the South and Bakersfield, Calif., in the West.

Rate of slow pays hits low

BY JOHN D MCCLAIN
AP NEWSFEATURES

(AP) — The percentage of homeowners behind in their mortgage payments fell from January through March to the lowest level in 22 years, due in part to low-interest loans, a trade group reported.

The Mortgage Bankers Association said its quarterly National Delinquency Survey showed the seasonally adjusted delinquency rate on one- to four-unit houses was 3.91 percent, down from 4.15 percent in the October-December period of 1994.

It was the lowest since a 3.89 percent rate in the first three months of 1973. Every region in the nation shared in the improvement.

"We're still benefiting from the refinancing boom of 1991-93, when low interest rates replaced older, higher-rate mortgages," explained association economist David Lereah. "Surprisingly, even as these newer loans have aged, delinquency rates have remained relatively low.

"One likely explanation is that the refinanced loans, which make up a large portion of services' portfolios, have already been through the aging process before being refinanced," he said at a newsconference. "Thus, they may not experience the delinquency problems common with the aging of new loans."

Lereah also said consumers' total debt payments — including mortgages, auto and credit card payments — as a percentage of their disposable incomes are at historically low levels. This suggests that they are able to meet their payments more easily.

The durability of brick, combined with the attractiveness of wood styling, creates an exterior with tremendous curb appeal for the two-story Weldon. The recessed front porch will provide a cozy place for warm summer evenings. For cooler times there is a large bay window, complete with built-in seat, that projects out from the dining room and lets you enjoy the view.

This floor plan isolates the master suite on the first floor and has the remainder of the sleeping quarters on the upper level. Along with maximum privacy, the master suite features a large sleepingarea, huge walk-in closet, skylit double basin, protective home security system, and a small back deck with built-in spa — perfect for relaxing after a long day.

The skylit family room is the hub of this home. Here you and your guests can sit in comfort while watching television or discussing the events of the day. The corner fireplace spreads warmth throughout the area. The adjacent hallway leads to the second floor staircase, the entry and the front living room, which has a sizeable front window to admit the available sunlight and nurture the plants you may want to place on the sill.

The kitchen is equipped with a raised dishwasher, pantry and eating bar. Meals may be served here, in the formal dining room, or in the adjoining nook. Sliding glass doors will allow you to breakfast on the back deck when the weather permits.

Between the kitchen and the two-car garage, is a convenient utility room, with recycling center and half-bath. The garage houses the central vacuum system and has a shop area with built-in workbench.

Used-house sales have risen, but worker' pay increases lag

BY JOHN D MCCLAIN
AP NEWSFEATURES

(AP) — Fresh reports show the economy growing moderately without stirring inflation: Existing-house sales rose in June for a second straight month and employment costs increased at the slowest pace on record.

The reports came Tuesday as a new survey showed a rebound in consumer confidence in the economy in July that included expanded plans to buy houses and cars. In June, sales of previously owned houses jumped 6.5 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.78 million, highest since a 3.82 million rate last October, the National Association of Realtors reported.

At the same time, the Labor Department said its Employment Cost Index advanced just 2.9 percent in the year ended in June, matching the smallest gain since the series began in 1981.

The reports fueled the stock market, with the Dow Jones industrial average gaining 45.78 points to close at 4714.45. The bond market, after initially falling on the news, recovered and posted a slight gain.

The Employment Cost Index, which measures growth in Americans' wages, salaries and benefits, also had risen 2.9 percent in the year ended in March.

"The performance of the ECI points to something different about this (business) cycle," said economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch & Co.

"Inflation remains dormant in the fifth year of an expansion," he added. "Indeed, the second quarter performance represented both the low for the current cycle and the low for the history of the ECI."

The index is considered one of the best gauges of inflation pressures, since employee compensation represents about two-thirds of the cost of a product. But Labor Secretary Robert Reich called the anemic compensation growth a "large cloud in an otherwise blue sky" and something that will eventually come to haunt employers.

"Productivity improvements are going into corporate profits, not workers' pockets," he said in an interview. "Workers are consumers. At some point, American workers won't have enough money in their pockets to buy all of the goods and services they are producing.

"The lack of inflation obviously is a plus for all Americans," Reich added. "But it's difficult for many Americans to enjoy it if their paychecks are dropping."

The Labor report showed that wages and salaries, nearly three-fourths of total compensation, rose 3.0 percent in the year ended June 30, the same rate of growth in the 12 months that ended March 31. Wages and salaries thus failed to keep up with the annualized 3.2 percent increase in the Consumer Price Index through the first six months of this year.

The cost of benefits, such as health care and pensions, increased 2.7 percent, slower than the 2.8 percent during the year ended in March and the smallest advance since this series began in 1982.

The June increase in sales of existing houses was the second monthly advance after rising 4.7 percent in May, to a 3.55 million rate, the real estate group reported. Still, sales in June were 5.7 percent below the same month a year ago, the result of slower job and income growth and higher mortgage rates earlier this year.

Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. surveys show that 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 7.53 percent in June, down from 7.91 percent in May and 9.15 percent in January. That helped make houses more affordable.

The monthly payment on a $100,000 mortgage with a 7.5 percent interest rate is $699, while the payment on the same loan with a 9 percent rate is $805 — a difference of $106. The median price of an existing house in June was little changed $115,900, up 2.3 percent from $113,300 a year earlier.

■ 'At some point, American workers won't have enough money in their pockets to buy all of the goods and services they are producing.'

How would this man compose a PERSONAL SCENE ad?

Perhaps something like this:

RELATIVELY intelligent physicist looking for companion, preferrably one who can explain income tax forms.

"The hardest thing in the world to understand is the income tax"
—Albert Einstein

Personal Scene Ads in The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers allow you to record a message in your own voice over the phone. That way when people see your ad in the paper, they can dial your code, hear your message and leave a message of their own. You can call, day or night, to get your messages. It's fast, it's easy, and it helps people find out more about each other. Look in today's classifieds or call your Observer & Eccentric ad taker and ask about our introductory offer. You might find a friend who will do your taxes. One who is, in theory, relatively intelligent.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

Be selective; simplify your interior design

NAOMI STONE LEVY

Simplicity isn't always simple.

Strangely, I have found this to be the most difficult subject I have addressed in this series of articles on interior design. To achieve an interior worthy of admiration, the inclination is to adorn it with extra details. The simplicity of modern as prescribed in that economy of words "less is more" spells SPARSE.

A traditional interior should be just as simple. Fussiness doesn't reflect good taste. Being the devil's advocate, if I wrote a critique on an amateur's room without ever seeing it, I would hazard an educated guess: It will be too busy. I constantly advise not to try to incorporate every superb idea you are capable of dreaming up. Be selective. Indulge only your best thoughts. Simplify.

As one develops an understated room, the basics will fall into place. Sofas, chairs, fabrics, tables, rugs or carpeting, lighting, art and accessories are all requisites for comfortable living. Let's address these individually.

I advocate, whenever feasible, you begin with a wonderful area rug. It can be a flat weave Kilim or Dhurrie or American Indian design. It can also be a divine Persian Oriental rug with a pile. There exist newly designed and remarkable Tibetian pile rugs, as well as artists' interpretations, and, of course, wall-to-wall carpeting in an array of colors. The potential for success will develop from any of these auspicious beginnings.

The colors for your room emanate from said flooring. Color is the prevailing element. You might decide to use only one color — perhaps a dark red or forest green. Another superb and subtle way to go is a neutral taupe, to which you add several secondary colors for accent.

Upholstered pieces are at their best if they have a clean uncluttered silhouette, whether an oversized sofa or a lightweight occasional chair. No cute curlicues. Simplicity.

I love to mix the vintage of the tables and lighting. Several prestigious antiques added to simple forms fresh out of a 1995 furniture catalog are a fabulous beginning. Lamps are almost extinct when executing this simple interior. If hidden lighting isn't practical, locate several delightful lamps that are very spare of detail. Of course I will never give up on my custom-made lamps fashioned from an exceptional vase or jar, never a sculptural item.

Enhance the preceding with a very minimum of breathtaking accessories. Aim high — these must be exceptional. You have it made!

There is a legend about Mrs. William Paley, who was the epitome of a fashionable woman. She is reputed to have had a "rule of 10." When she was attired for an outing she counted each exterior item. After she reached 10 she judiciously removed anything over that number. It may have been three pieces of exquisite jewelry that were the offenders. She may have determined it was a glorious silk scarf, but off came anything over 10. Simplicity was her guideline.

How appropriately her rule of 10 applies to my suggested simple INTERIOR. Perhaps 10 is too restrictive, but removing several awesome articles, painful though it may seem, is the uncompounded look I am espousing.

The art for this endeavor may be the only exception to the rule of 10. As your eye roves the walls, one large and very electrifying canvas is better than a scattered number of paintings or photographs. But if you must use several individual selections I strongly recommend a tasteful and eclectic grouping. This does suggest simplification.

I have the temerity to misquote Mies Van der Rohe. In every case "More is less"!

Learn about art of French faience

La Belle Provence and Solomon Suchard Antiques present "Antique Faience de Quimper," a mini-lecture series on the art and history surrounding Faience de Quimper, Friday-Saturday, Aug. 18-19.

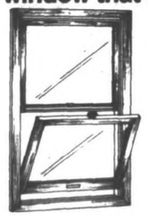

The lectures will take place at La Belle Provence in Birmingham, given by Blake Kemper of Solomon Suchard Antiques. Limited seating is available. Advance reservations include cappuccino. Cost is $2.50 for advance, pre-paid reservations, $3 at the door, $10 for advance, pre-paid reservations for the entire series. For reservations or more information, call (810) 540-3876.

Cannas add vivid touch to summertime gardens

MARTY FIGLEY

I remember the canna bed in the yard when i was a child and the way the tall stately red blooms added a vivid note to the landscape when some of the other flowers had lost their "oomph." The exotic-looking green foliage was a perfect backdrop.

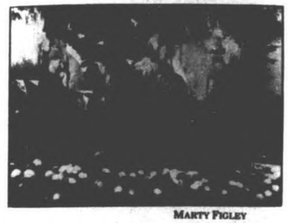

Now modern hybridists have developed blooms that range in color from ivory and yellow through rose and salmon to scarlet and crimson red. Some varieties have bronzy or even brown foliage. I believe the reds make the strongest statement, and those are the ones that evoke memories.

Cannas, Cannaceae, have thick, fleshy, tuber like roots that produce the tropical-looking plants. They are natives of Central and South America.

Generally these large plants are used in beds, but they also add an interesting accent to a perennial border. Dwarf cannas have also been developed, and they are a little more versatile as to where they will fit in the garden design.

When the foliage starts to wither or frost brings them down, dig the roots and store them in a cool, dry place until next spring. Keep the rhizomes just moist enough to prevent shriveling. Next spring after danger of frost is past, plant them in very rich soil. Be sure the hole is generously deep and plant the rhizomes four to six inches deep. The shorter varieties need to be 10 to 12 inches apart, while the taller ones need to be up to 24 inches apart. When they start to grow give them plenty of water and after they are actively growing, feed them an all-purpose fertilizer according to package directions.

If you want to grow cannas from seed, be aware that the black seed is very hard and must be soaked for 24 hours (or notched with a knife) before sowing.

The common name, Indian-Shot, refers to this seed, which looks somewhat like the pellets in shotgun cartridges.

If you are facing bare spots in the landscape at this time of year, you may wish to fill the spaces with chrysanthemums to carry the seasonal color through the fall. Soon the plants will be available at the nurseries waiting for you to select just the right plants for your garden.

The bloom colors run the gamut: lavender, orange, pink, red, salmon, yellow or white, and more are being developed each year. The green-lobed foliage will fill in the bare spaces very well until the plants begin to bloom and the spread of some is 24 inches wide. Heights range from 12 to 36 inches.

Chrysanthemums require rich, well-drained soil and prefer a sunny area to bloom well.

The grower has done all the pinching necessary by the time you select them at this time of year. Some people grow them in the pots during the summer and treat them as annuals, while others carry them through the year in their gardens. They need to be mulched before winter to help them survive.

Yoder Brothers Inc. is famous for its chrysanthemums. Their Yoder Prophets series includes more than 70 varieties. Look for Anna, Barbara, Christine, Donna, Linda, Lynn and Stephanie. These are excellent flowers; it usually takes five years for a mum to be added to the lineup.

Sometimes we may wonder just why certain plants bloom at certain times. It has to do with the phenomenon of plants flowering in response to day length, Yoder Brothers said. Mums are considered short-day plants because they flower when the days are shorter in the fall.

Their botanical name, Chrysanthemum x morifolium, has recently been reclassified to Dendranthema x grandiflorum within the scientific community. Gosh! Sometimes I wish those people would leave well enough alone.

FloraStar, a subsidiary of the Professional Plant Growers Association, Lansing, has awarded Yoder's "Christine" as an outstanding variety. Other winners are: a mini-cyclamen, "Miracle Salmon," from Goldsmith Seeds; a double impatiens, "Pink Ice," from D.S. Cole; and a lantana, "Patriot Rainbow," from American Daylily.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

Repairing your microwave yourself is dangerous

JOE GAGNON

I would like you the reader to know and understand how your microwave works and how it accomplishes such fast cooking. I feel these two things are very important.

First, to help you cook better and second, to possibly save your life.

Let's begin with cooking which is really not so much different than the old-fashioned fry pan. When food is heated the molecules are put into motion, rubbing against each other and this produces a cooked product. In a microwave there is a magnetron tube which emits a wave into the oven cavity which is absorbed by the food.

Years ago, it was discovered that this wave moves the molecules at ten times the speed of conventional cooking. It is no harder to understand why it cooks so fast than what I have just said. Many people have asked if the wave is still in the food while they're eating it and is it harmful. Once the wave is absorbed by a food it is turned into energy and is no longer a wave. It has done it's job much like a light bulb performs.

The micro cookbook mentions many times that standing time after a product has been cooked has to be considered. The reason being that food cooked by microwaves has molecules which are still moving like crazy after you shut off the product. This is especially true of the larger items which take longer to cook and need more standing time. Food may appear to be perfectly done when you shut off the microwave only to be overcooked when your serving your guests.

Now, as simple a man as I am, folks, I understand this logic of cooking with a microwave and believe you me, thanks to a former employee, June Menig, I'm an near-expert.

Let's go back to the magnetron tube, so you can understand why you shouldn't use metal inside your microwave. When radar is used for tracking location and speed of moving objects, a tube is used which is designed to send a wave and to also receive a wave. The magnetron tube in a microwave oven will send a wave but is unable to receive one.

This means that if you use metal in the oven, or run it empty, the wave will reflect back up the channel where it came from and cause damage to the tube. Just remember that there should always be something in the oven cavity which will absorb the wave instead of reflect it. You will add years of life to the product by this rule.

Shopping for a new microwave means knowing what you will use it for. The size of foods you cook will determine the size of the oven cavity you want. The wattage output will determine the speed at which it cooks and your paycheck will determine how many dollars you want to spend. You can spend less than a hundred dollars today for a microwave or more than $300.

You be the judge by simply knowing what you will use it for. Locate your microwave on a separate circuit where there is plenty of room for good air circulation all around it. Do not place items such as books, knickknacks, etc on top of it, and leave room for air movement behind it.

cooked repeatedly to form a hardened spot which acts like metal. Use a tooth brush and keep the door seal area clean of debris. Gently clean the ceiling area which we seldom look at and try boiling a dish of water which will steam up the entire oven cavity making it much easier to clean the interior.

Odor problems can be cured by boiling two cups of tomato juice and letting them stand for two hours. Never use an abrasive soap or material to clean the inside of the oven cavity. Don't slam the door and push the touch pad controls gently and your microwave oven may last longer than you do. Love and tenderness are the secrets to long life.

Repairs by the homeowner can either be money-saving or death-causing, depending on your good common sense. I have many times on my radio and television programs told consumers that they can change the fuse in their microwaves. The fuse looks like the old-fashioned car fuse and is in a little holder which is visible once you figure out how to remove the casing to get to it. You should seek advice from a servicer on how to do this before the attempt is made.

HOWEVER, if you touch anything inside that microwave while it is plugged in, you may fry yourself to the kitchen floor. This happened years ago in California, where the corpse was removed but the bottom of his feet stayed on the floor. Graphic, I agree, but I hope it gets my point through to the reader who thinks he or she can fix anything.

A young man with 10 years of experience in repairs of microwave ovens was in his shop working on a consumer's oven. While he was testing the product a customer came in the front door to buy a part for her refrigerator. He looked up to the front parts counter at the same time that he noticed a wire was loose leading to the magnetron tube.

Before he left the operating product to take care of the walk-in customer, he touched the wire to see how loose it was. He never made it to the front parts counter, folks; he was thrown to the floor and lay motionless and unbreathing.

Through the quick action of the customer this young man had his life spared. You see, the customer happened to be a nurse and surely saved his life. Even so, the young man was in a coma for three weeks, and on a lung breathing machine for three months. It burned him up so badly inside that he was never the same again.

The moral of this true story is simple — If you don't know what you're doing, you may suffer.

YPSILANTI HERITAGE FOUNDATION

Tour site: The 162-year-old Perkins house in Superior Township is featured on the Ypsilanti Heritage Foundation's 18th annual Historic Home Tour noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 20.

Historic homes extend welcome

BY SUSAN B. TAUBER
SPECIAL WRITER

The Ypsilanti Heritage Foundation's 18th annual Historic Home Tour features six single-family houses, each with a special history of its own.

The Historic Home Tour takes place noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 20, regardless of weather, during the Ypsilanti Heritage Festival. Tour tickets are available Sunday at the ticket booths in Riverside Park and in front of the Ypsilanti Historical Museum, 220 N. Huron. Tickets are $8 for adults, $7 for seniors and $5 for children 12 and younger.

Only small groups of people will tour each house at a time.

"That way visitors will have a chance to see interesting details and learn a home's history," said Peg Du Fresne, chairwoman on the Historic Home Tour Committee of the Ypsilanti Heritage Foundation. "Several guides will be on hand at each house to give information about its history and architectural style to the public."

Du Fresne suggested visitors plan on driving to the different houses and to allow two to three hours for the complete tour.

"We selected the homes for the tour primarily because they were excellent examples of restoration."

This is in line with the purpose of the YHF, a non-profit organization dedicated to the idea that one of Ypsilanti's greatest resources is its wealth of historic architecture.

Two houses, however, are real attention grabbers. One exemplifies a restoration that follows every design rule from its past. The other is owned by a man who admits to breaking all the rules of interior design for a historic house.

Museum quality

The Perkins house at 3401 Berry Road in Superior Township represents a house featuring almost museum-quality restoration, Du Fresne said.

"At 162 years old, it is the oldest house on the tour. It also is one of the most outstanding examples of Greek Revival architecture in the Midwest."

Known as Springhill Farm, this house is owned by Brad Perkins. Perkins is a professor of history at the University of Michigan. When he and his wife, the late Nancy Perkins, bought Springhill Farm in 1987, it already had been moved from its original location on East Michigan Avenue onto acreage in Superior Township. Its former owners, Charles and Kottie Hagler, moved it after buying it for $1. Then they began its long restoration.

"We bought the house because we had purchased so many antiques over the years and never had the proper setting for them. Structurally, the house was in good shape, but the inside wasn't quite authentic," Perkins said.

So their task began. Perkins gives credit to Nancy for researching for the proper methods to restore the interior.

"She discovered colors that are slightly unusual but authentic. They date back to a time when people used vegetable dyes in prints," he said.

This is the first time Springhill Farm is open to the public since the Perkinses completed the interior. Visitors will see authentic 19th century furnishings in the house, which has served as part of the nursery, tavern, brothel, prohibition era speakeasy, apartment house, trenching business headquarters and condemned building.

Breaking rules

Warren Lewis is the man who broke so many rules when he decided to renovate his residence at 410 Oak, a house in Ypsilanti's Historic East Side, noted for its 19th century architecture. It also was a condemned structure when Lewis bought it.

"It was a shack when I bought it 10 years ago," Lewis said. "I used to have to put pots around the floor when it rained. Although it was once a school house, it was very poorly constructed. There were no studs in the walls."

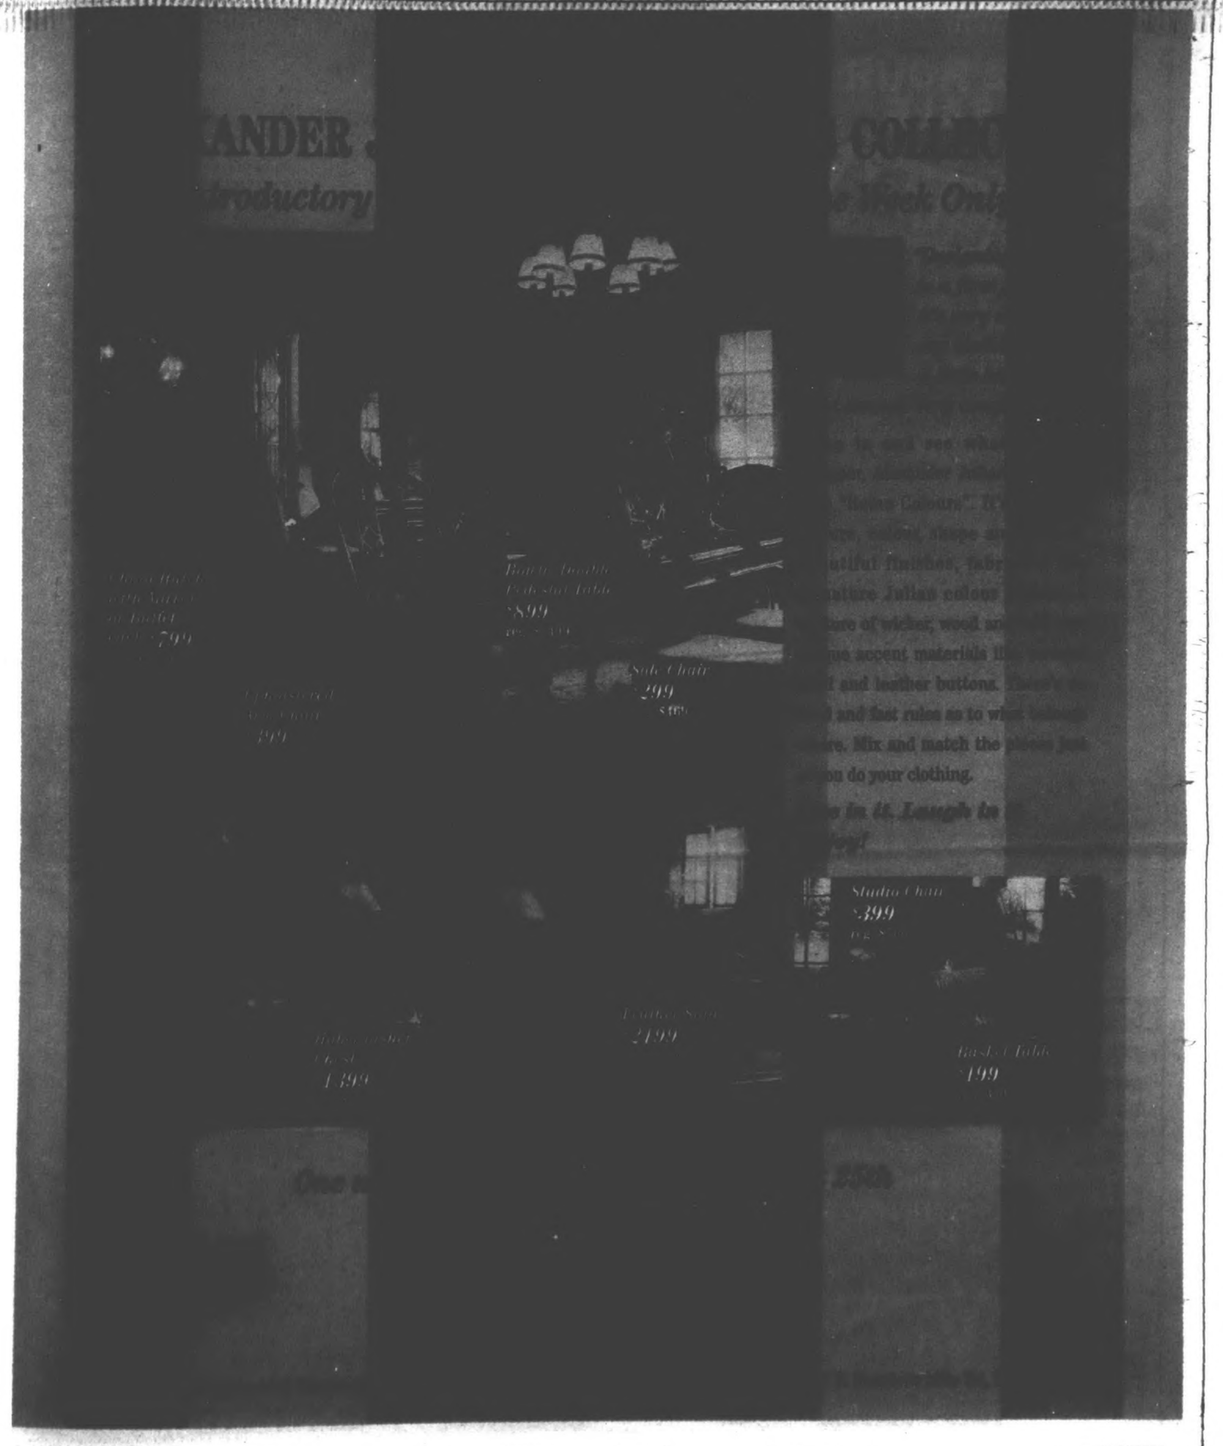

Lewis, an interior designer with Workbench, restored the exterior of the house to its authentic 19th century style. The same certainly isn't true of the 800-square foot interior. He tore down walls and ceilings to make larger rooms and a loft bedroom. He used dark colors for the tiny house, contrary to the rule of using light colors in small spaces.

"This isn't a house for everybody," Lewis said. "I chose colors very few people can live with, such as midnight blue, emerald green, black and char brown. There aren't any drapes except for the dining room, which is meant to be dark and intimate."

Not wanting the house to look too serious, Lewis added a border of the dancing Rockettes from New York's Radio City Music Hall to the emerald green living room walls, setting them off with tiny, sparkling footlights.

Other highlights of this house are Lewis' eclectic grouping of art deco, contemporary and Victorian furnishings, including the 1915 stained glass window and the 1925 art deco lighting fixtures in the dining room. His gardens in the narrow, deep lot were designed to "keep out all signs of urban sprawl, which is filling out all around us.

"All I can see are sky, trees and plants," he said.

Going for detail

Three other houses on the tour also are from Ypsilanti's Historic East Side. Terry and Mary Ann McDonald's house at 315 N. Grove is an example of a Folk Victorian Wing and Gable style house from the early 1890s. It resembles a typical late Victorian working man's house, with its vertical lines, peaked roofs and charming front porch.

The house at 309 E. Cross is owned by Jonnie Bryant and Mark Namatevs. It recently received YHF's prestigious Historic Structure Marker, which recognizes the house for its authentic restoration of a simple Wing and Gable style house, dating back to 1860. The house was considered uninhabitable just more than a year ago. The owners salvaged as much historic detail as possible, including the parlor's tulip wood floor and the original front doors.

Ypsilanti's mayor from 1898-99, Don Lewis Davis, once lived at 322 Maple, the Wing and Greek Revival style house from 1850. Its current owners are Jim and Marjean Rose Soraruf, who have been restoring the house for the past four years. They have tackled such projects as removing the asbestos siding, restoring the original wood siding and adding interesting antiques and architectural pieces. This is a must-see house for anyone interested in putting an addition on a historic house.

Although Ypsilanti's West Side contains 12 early 20th century Post-Victorian houses on Linden Court, only one is included in the Historic Home Tour. This is the 65-year-old house at 122 Linden Court, owned by Roger Maki, Lorelei Crawford and Edward Schramm. It still contains its original architectural feeling, with its plaster walls, solid wood floors and open, sunny interiors. Its owners, however, have added their own touches without disturbing the architectural balance. These include a second floor walkout deck over the garage and living space in the attic.

The Ypsilanti Heritage Foundation will use the proceeds from the Heritage Home Tour to benefit its annual scholarship program to the Historic Preservation Program at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti, to help its Historic Structure Marker Program and to the development of an educational program for the Ypsilanti School District. The program's intent is to enhance student awareness of and appreciation for historic architecture.

'Edelweiss' pendant is fun but not valuable

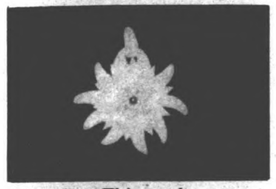

NANCY AND FRANK BOOS

Dear Nancy and Frank,

I bought a pendant at a rummage sale. It's one piece, but three layers in the form of a flower. I think it could be ivory. There's a tiny circle in the middle with a magnifying glass behind which is a picture of a large structure on a hill. Can you tell me something about this?

Dorothy from Beverly Hills

Dear Dorothy,

What you have is an "Edelweiss" pendant. Edelweiss is a perennial herb of the aster family, bearing white wooly leaves and flowers. It grows in very high altitudes in the Alps and the Andes mountain ranges. The name comes from the Latin word "Leontopodium" or "lion foot" and is a derivative of the German "edel" meaning "noble" and "weiss" meaning white.

This may give us an idea of highly regarded this little plant is, as it grows under the most difficult conditions. It fights for its survival in high mountain ranges where it can easily be too dry, too wet, too cold, etc.

This representation of strength, excellence and purity is incorporated by the Alpine people into souvenirs of every sort, including lace, china, decorations for clothing and as it applies to you, jewelry. You state that under the structure pictured is found the words, "Andenken an Andechs." Andenken is a memory or recollection and Andechs is a quaint town outside of Munich, Germany, which boasts a family owned brewery.

One can imagine that the city folk went to Andechs for holidays and pleasant family outings, commemorating such excursions with local souvenirs, one of which you now own. We feel it is probably not ivory, as ivory wasn't a popular medium for souvenirs of this type (too expensive and too difficult to work).

Rather, we feel its most likely celluloid or plastic, more often used for this purpose. We think its rather fun and exciting to imagine the history of the piece and to enjoy wearing it. Not to disappoint you; however, we feel your enjoyment will be greater than your monetary reward, as this piece would probably bring $35 to $55 in a retail store, somewhat more if it is, in fact, ivory.

BOOK BREAK

VICTORIA DIAZ

Do books seem a little too weighty in mid-August? If you prefer summer reading in smaller bites, delve into some of these tasty offerings in current magazines.

■ CATS (August): "Once Upon a Cat's Tale" just begins to scratch the surface of cats and their roles in literature through the years. Joan Loshek's article goes way back to Aesop'sfable, "The Cat and the Mice," to show how long storytellers have been casting cats as important players in their tales. On through the ages, such notables as Shakespeare (reputedly not fond of felines), Sir Walter Scott, Gautier, Mark Twain, Rudyard Kipling, Colette, Hemingway, and Tennessee Williams wrote of cats.

And, of course, who can forget Poe's short story, "The Black Cat," in which, it could be said, the cat tells the tale. Loshek also writes about the major role of the cat in kiddy literature.

■ METROPOLITAN HOME (Sept./Oct.): In a touching essay, titled "The Haunting," novelist Harlan Greene ("Why We Never Danced the Charleston," "What the Dead Remember") tells of past homes he's loved, and the no-nonsense North Carolina colonial (it "looks like a house a kindergartner would draw") currently shares with his terminally-ill friend, Olin.

"'For us, it is a dreamhouse," he writes, "If not the house of our dreams . . . For it is really a heart's, not a house's, chamber door you are opening when you come in."

Even though her article contains nothing remotely literary, you should delve into Paula Wolfert's tasty story, "Eating Weeds," in the Weekend Kitchen section. Find out how to prepare all the succulent purslane, dendelion, amaranth, and nettles that await you in your back yard. Or, if you can't uncover anything so wild on your property, Michigan's Fox Hill Farms (517-531-3179) can send you weeds through the mail.

■ MICHIGAN LIVING (August): If you really want (and need) to get away from it all before the togetherness of cold weather sets in, check out Dixie Franklin's account of a 1,300-mile Circle Tour around Lake Superior. Her odyssey begins at the Soo Locks, then takes readers westward on the Circle Route past Pancake Bay, Wawa, White River (long-ago home of the bear that inspired A.A. Milne's "Winnie the Pooh"), amethyst mines near Thunder Bay, the artists' colony at Grand Marais, plus other lakeside spots.

Then, for an armchair tour of close-to-home islands, go with Terry Phipps to "Islands of Refuge: Michigan's Remote Secrets." From Mackinac to Drummond, Thunder Bay, Manitou, and Beaver Islands (and with a glance at High, Gull, Whiskey and Squaw, North, Garden, and Hog Islands, too), readers may discover island-hopping is easier than they thought.

■ MODERN MATURITY (July-August): You don't have to be middle-aged to tune into "Crime Pays," Susan Goodman's telling interview with mega-mystery novelists Tony Hillerman and Sue Grafton. Among other revelations, learn why former screenwriter Grafton hates Hollywood and moviemakers, and vows she will never, ever sell a single, solitary movie right to Tinseltown. You'll also learn why the candid Hillerman can't wait to see what film producer Robert Redford (who's optioned all Hillerman's Navajo stories) will make of his work. ("It's like you've done a water-color and a sculptor takes over, a totally different form," he says. "They make a bad movie, so what.")

INVITING IDEAS

Serve up real bouquets of summertime salads

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Caught up in a visual feast of garden grandeur — I love to add colorful edible flowers to my summer salads or stuff squash blossoms with a combination of fresh chives and chevre cheese. Summer salads can be creative, elegant and as complex as you choose to make them.

Not all garden flowers are edible. Carefully check identification sources — make sure the flowers you pick are not poisonous. Edible flowers should also be bug and pesticide free. Organically grown flowers are the safest bet — flowers bought from a florist or specialty store are usually sprayed with toxins. In most cases, the blossoms and petals of flowers should be used, not leaves and stems (nasturtium leaves are an exception) — small flowers can be used whole. For larger flowers, use the petals.

Anise hyssop flowers, arugula flowers, basil (sweet) flowers, borage, calendula, carnation, chamomile, chervil flowers, chive flowers, dandelion, daylilly, dill flowers, lavendar, marigolds, mustards, mint flowers, nasturtiums, pansies (only in small amounts), rose petals, rosemary flowers, sage flowers, snapdragons, squash blossoms, thyme flowers and violets.

Asian flavors and fruity vinaigrettes marry well with summer greens and an accent of peppery nasturtiums. Here are a few dressing recipes to try.

GINGER SOY SALAD DRESSING

¼ cup light soy sauce
¼ cup green onion, white and green parts, thinly sliced
¼ cup celery, sliced thin — leaves remaining
3 tablespoons rice vinegar (good quality)
3 tablespoons fresh ginger root, peeled and thinly sliced
½ teaspoon prepared ketchup
2 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons lemon zest
freshly ground black pepper

Place all ingredients (except black pepper) in a blender or food processor bowl fitted with a steel blade — process until smooth — add black pepper to taste. If adding nasturtiums, you may want to hold off entirely on the black pepper.

Yields 1¼ cups.

VERY BERRY VINAIGRETTE

1 cup light olive oil
⅓ cup raspberry vinegar
2 medium cloves garlic, peeled
½ cup frozen blueberries
Sea salt

In a blender or food processor fitted with a steel blade — add the olive oil, vinegar, garlic and blueberries — process until smooth. Add salt to taste. Yields 1½ to 2 cups.

SHRIMP PESTO PASTA PETAL SALAD

Salad ingredients
3 cups pasta (uniquely shaped) cooked according to package instructions (keeping it al dente) — drain and let cool down
3 cups cooked shrimp — chilled
½ cup edible flower petals
Dressing ingredients
2 cups fresh basil leaves, washed and thoroughly dried
¾ light olive oil
2 tablespoons pine nuts
2 garlic cloves, peeled
½ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon sea salt
freshly ground black pepper

Place the basil leaves, light olive oil, pine nuts, garlic and salt in a blender or food processor fitted with a steel blade — process until well blended (scraping the basil from time to time) — pour into a bowl and add the freshly grated Parmesan cheese — set aside.

Place the cooked pasta and chilled shrimp in a large mixing bowl. Add enough of the pesto dressing to coat the salad thoroughly. Toss lightly using rubber spatulas — not to break the pasta. Add the edible petals and serve.

The pesto dressing is best at room temperature, but can be frozen for future use.

Squash blossoms are great to stuff — make a rice salad using wild rice and chicken (mayo based) and fill up those beautiful golden blooms — try stuffing blossoms with a soft cheese and smoked salmon mixture. Neuchatel cheese and dried fruit — endless possibilities. A delightful accompaniment to a salad might be tempura battered and fried squash blooms — not for those concerned about cholesterol.
