Sewer stink irks city residents

Residents of Adams Street are reporting sewer trouble. They've experienced occasional backups in their basements, and want the city to fix the problem. City commissioners heard a report on the situation Monday.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

A half-dozen Adams Street residents have reported occasional sewer backups in their basements, and the city administration is trying to find the money to fix the problem.

In a report to city commissioners on Monday, engineering consultant Steve Kalinowski said repair costs could range from $270,000 to $500,000, depending on what commissioners determine the city can afford.

Kalinowski recommended a repair plan that would cost the city around $100,000. It would involve replacing 525 feet of the existing 8-inch sewer pipe in major problem areas along the street, and two 30-foot sewer replacements at downstream locations.

"This option will restore the existing system capacity and improve the vertical alignment along the areas adjacent to the homes currently reporting basement flooding," Kalinowski said in a report to city Building Official James Penn.

"This length of new sewer will also provide premium joints that will further reduce infiltration currently experienced through leaking sewer joints in the existing sewer," he said.

He said the problem was identified by using a device to take a TV picture of the line, laid in 1925. "The biggest problem seems to be the vertical alignment of the sewer," he said, coupled with dips in the line that keep flow during storms from clearing it out.

Mayor Ron Loiselle asked what the normal life span of a sewer is. Kalinowski said about 50 years. Loiselle suggested a full replacement of the World War I had scarcely ended when a small group of Irish immigrants founded the parish of Our Lady of Good Counsel in a vacated church at Union and Dodge in Plymouth.

Up until then, one of the "old circuit rider" priests on his way from Milford to the next nearest parish, St. Mary's of Wayne, would stop at the mission site in Plymouth to say Mass at the Grange Hall on Union Street.

Though he's been OLGC pastor for just three years, the Rev. John Sullivan is an authority on the history of the parish, which is celebrating its 75th anniversary. To commemorate the occasion, Cardinal Adam Maida said the noon Mass at OLGC Sunday.

"The cardinal is coming to celebrate with the people," said Sullivan prior to the visit. "As the chief priest of the diocese, he will be welcomed at a reception afterward along with former parishioners — some of whom were parishioners from the beginning — and two former pastors, Father Perfetto and Father Wysocki.

"As I've said to the people, we really are standing on the shoulders of some giants; people who have gone before us," said Sullivan. "Not only the priests and religious, but the families who really struggled to put down deep roots. There is no way OLGC is going to go away. It's here to stay."

With the help of local caterers, Sullivan and fellow priest the Rev. James Livingston prepared a warm welcome at the rectory, or "Heritage House," built in the mid-1800s by Ebinezer Jenkes Penniman on the street that bears his name.

Decorated in Victorian style for Christmas, the home is as beautifully furnished as it might have been in the 1860s when Penniman and fellow abolitionist Mr. Starkweather traveled to Gettysburg to bring back Plymouth's dead and wounded.

This Advent season also marks the 75th anniversary of the naming

Santa, Mrs. Claus to renew their wedding vows

BY KEVIN BROWN

■ Gerry Sindici, an Old Village Development Authority member who owns Robin's Nest Antiques, is putting together the wedding event.

Santa and Mrs. Claus are going to renew their wedding vows — and it's going to happen in Plymouth!

The event is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. at the Old Village gazebo north of Starkweather. A Brownie troop will act as maids as honor, Mayor Ron Loiselle is getting involved and Downtown Development Authority Director Steve Guile is acting as best man.

It's happening during the "Ye Olde Village Christmas" celebration Friday through Sunday in Old Village, the historic north end of Plymouth near the railroad tracks.

Gerry Sindici, an Old Village Development Authority member who owns Robin's Nest Antiques, is putting together the wedding event.

"It celebrates unity, commitment, family ties, and Santa will have a bunch of surprises for kids," he said.

Sindici said the Plymouth Canton High marching band will also be there, and Christmas carols will be sung. There will be free peppermint sticks and hot chocolate at nearby warming centers.

On Monday from his shop on Starkweather, Sindici was busy calling local TV stations to get them interested in the Old Village promotion, even Cable News Network.

"Cameo Weddings is going to perform the ceremony, people can have their picture taken with Mr. and Mrs. Claus at the wedding," Sindici added.

During "Ye Olde Village Christmas," Christmas music will sound throughout Old Village on a new outdoor sound system. The Christmas event has a Victorian theme, which organizers say is fitting as Old Village has several buildings from that time.

The event happens from 6-9 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Cheer Club in need of donations

We need your help, fast, to make Christmas special for some needy kids and families.

So far, donations to our Plymouth and Canton Observer Christmas Cheer Club are lagging way behind the pace set in previous years.

We started collecting your kind donations of toys and food Nov. 24. And by 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, we'd received donations from 43 people and one organization.

Recent contributors to the Cheer Club between late Friday and Tuesday afternoon were the Native West of Plymouth staff — Lisa, Linda, Mary, Diane, Sue and Annette; Ben and Lucy Portelli of Plymouth Township; Juanita Fenkell of Plymouth; Bill and Pat Phenix of Plymouth; and two anonymous donors.

Since starting the Plymouth and Canton Observers' Christmas Cheer Club five years ago, we've collected donations from about 200 generous donors each year.

In just one week — at 11 a.m. Dec. 14 — the Salvation Army truck will be by to pick up your donations. So if you've been thinking about joining our Cheer Club, please do it now.

We've seen kids from Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops with arms full of toys for needy kids.

We've seen representatives of school groups and service groups with boxes of canned goods and more toys. And we've seen scores of families and individuals bringing in donations.

To join the Christmas Cheer Club, just bring in a donation of canned or boxed food, or a new, unwrapped toy. When you come in, we like to ask that you give us your names — so we can print them in the paper.

The Salvation Army will distribute donated toys to kids and use food items to make Christmas baskets. Many food items are used to stock the Salvation Army pantry, which provides food for the needy year-round.

Our office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, at 744 Wing Street in downtown Plymouth. If you have any questions, call us at 459-2700 and ask for Kevin Brown or Jeff Counts.

So if you can find the time, please donate to our Christmas Cheer Club!

Thanks — And Merry Christmas!

Commission OKs tax break for firm

One of Plymouth's top five manufacturing firms wants to expand, and city commissioners on Monday granted their request for a tax abatement.

"We're competing with other communities who tend to grant a great deal more tax abatements than we do," said City Manager Steve Walters.

"We're feeling pressure from our major customers to move to the south," said Edward Baldwin, controller of E & E Manufacturing, 300-400 Industrial Drive. He added the tax break on a planned expansion would allow the company to offer competitive prices.

"As an automotive supplier of manufacturing metal stampings and fasteners, we must grow in order to survive," Baldwin said. "We want to stay here, we're looking for every possible way to reduce our overhead."

The company paid $33,224 in city taxes in 1995. By the 12-year 50-percent tax abatement approved by commissioners on Monday, the city next year would get an additional $1,955, and other taxing authorities, headed by the Plymouth-Canton schools would get an extra $7,780.

Baldwin said a $3.5 million 15,000 square-foot building addition is planned for 1997-98. This phase would include four stamping presses worth $500,000 each, a production welder and $500,000 in more equipment.

The company, which moved to Plymouth in 1963, employs 200 people. General Motors is a main customer, and between 17 and 20 million seat parts a month are shipped to GM, the company reported.

"It gives the management and employees great pleasure to know that virtually every General Motors truck and car on the road today has parts built in Plymouth Michigan," Baldwin said, adding Ford and Chrysler also use E & E parts.

Baldwin said the company projects growing from an annual $25 million in sales to $40 million, aided by the planned expansion.

AEROSPACE

Altitude, speed and time are still shown in modern cockpits by means of a pointer or needle — precisely because this sort of indicator sweeping over a circular gauge is what a pilot sees best, particularly when he also has to keep track of countless other pieces of information.
But digital readouts can for instance provide times to 1/100th of a second and alphanumerical data along with simplifying the setting of programmable functions.
These display principles contribute to the AEROSPACE's design excellence - which, in turn, explains its selection as the personal instrument of many of the world's finest aerobatics teams.

of the parish. When the Rev. Frank Lefevre said his first Mass as pastor in 1920, the Frenchman announced that Bishop J.S. Foley had bestowed the church with the name Our Lady of Good Counsel.

OLGC rebuilt a larger church at Union and Dodge in 1928. In 1932, it burned to the ground, and Mass was celebrated at the Schrader Funeral Home until a basement building on the same site was completed. This was used until Palm Sunday, 1949.

The Rev. William Mooney succeeded the Rev. Victor Renaud in 1942, and it was then that the parish acquired the Penniman Avenue property and began to make plans for a church and school.

On Palm Sunday 1949, the first Mass was said at OLGC's new location at the corner of Arthur and William. In September 1949, OLGC opened its school, staffed by the Sisters of St. Joseph, on the site where a carriage house and bandstand formerly stood.

Mooney was transferred, and was succeeded by the Rev. Francis Byrne.

OLGC's tradition of growing and moving continues. It has purchased from Henry Ford Hospital 35 acres on the northwest corner of Beck and North Territorial, and plans to build a church and school.

OLGC's thriving grade school could be expanded to include kindergarten, preschool, and a maybe even a high school. Sullivan plans to keep the existing school, and perhaps continue to house the older students there so that more could enroll. There are no plans for the rectory to move.

In June, more than 700 families gathered on the future church site for a Sunday picnic to celebrate the parish milestone. They hiked along the Tonquish Creek, explored in the woods, "and the kids came back with turtles and frogs. It gave us a feel for how the early settlers in Plymouth must have felt, discovering the real richness and joy of the land," said Sullivan.

The pastor likes the location of the vacant land, and loves the idea that it's traversed by Tonquish Creek, keeping the connection between the city and Plymouth Township.

"This is probably more our epicenter. As the population continues in the direction of Salem Township, we will be much more centered," he said, while emphasizing the importance OLGC's presence in the city.

Last summer, the priests opened the rectory to the public for the first time to commemorate OLGC's anniversary at a parish open house.

In July, as part of the anniversary celebration, Sullivan took 68 members of the OLGC choir to visit their roots in Ireland, England and Wales, performing in venues including a cathedral in Plymouth, England.

"The Lord Mayor of Plymouth had never been in the Catholic cathedral there for a Mass. Because we had written him, he came for the first time, and attended Mass. Their bishop told us it took the younger Plymouth to accomplish that," Sullivan said.

The pastor looks ahead with optimism. "We're mushrooming," he said. "The Catholic population in this area is just incredible. The church keeps renewing itself. As we celebrate 75 years, we look forward to a great future. There is more to come."

Teacher at Canton High to appear at Ark Saturday

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton High teacher Matt Watroba's students number far more than the teens who attend his classes.

That's because for nine years, Watroba has been filling in metro Detroit's folk music fans on what's happening in folk through his WDET 101.9-FM show "Folks Like Us," from noon to 3 p.m. Saturdays.

Beyond that, he's also a standout performer of folk music, and he'll appear at one of the top folk clubs in the nation — Ann Arbor's Ark, 637 S. Main St. — at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Ark manager Dave Siglin has booked top folk performers from around the world. "I think what makes Matt's show so unique is he brings the same qualities to the stage that he does to his radio show. He's very quick, very witty; he makes you feel very comfortable and he picks really good songs to sing," Siglin said.

"When people go to see his show they see a good family show. The music is great and he doesn't sing a bad song."

Those who aren't up on the folk music scene might ask what exactly is folk music. Some older music fans may recall Leadbelly, Woody Guthrie and the Kingston Trio from the '40s and '50s; and Peter Paul and Mary, Bob Dylan and Donovan from the '60s.

What is folk music today? "It's almost easier to say what it is not," Watroba said.

"It's music where the main intention is not for commercial purposes. It manages to survive even when it's not popular; it exists on concert stages and living rooms because there's a whole bunch of people who like to do it," Watroba explains.

"It was unplugged long before unplugged was cool, music that's accessible and honest, based in a really old tradition."

While the "folk boom" days of the early '60s have passed, folk performers including Mary-Chapin Carpenter and Alison Kraus have attained star status in country music, as have Shawn Colvin, Suzanne Vega and Tracy Chapman in pop music.

"One of the things is it seems to transcend trends. It's honest; it deals with real people," Watroba said.

TOM HAWLEY/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Back on stage: Plymouth Canton High teacher and folk singer Matt Watroba returns to the Ark in Ann Arbor for a performance at 8 p.m. Saturday.

■ 'I think what makes Matt's show so unique is he brings the same qualities to the stage that he does to his radio show. He's very quick, very witty; he makes you feel very comfortable and he picks really good songs to sing. When people go to see his show they see a good family show.'

Dave Siglin

Among some experiences he's had as a radio host was the time a father called for a special request from the hospital room of his daughter who was dying, and several calls from cancer patients to tell him the music soothed them. "The music heals in a lot of ways because it's honest," he said.

Watroba, a Plymouth native, honed his skill as a performer over 17 years. He's performed in the prestigious Ann Arbor Folk Festival, and has worked as an opening act for some major folk performers.

"It took me a good year and a half to feel natural on the radio; the same thing has happened over the years in performance. It probably took me 10 years to feel comfortable. I've learned to have an honest rapport with the audience, how to be myself on stage and how to make that work. I learned a lot of that hosting the open mike at the Ark the last five years," he said.

"It's interesting how all the things in my life tie in together; I educate on stage, in the classroom and as a father."

As for Saturday's show, "I don't plan things very much in advance," Watroba said. "I have in mind doing a tribute to some of my favorite songwriters; I may incorporate some of the stuff I do in high schools, what folk music has meant through the years."

On goals as a performer, Watroba said he'd like to work on songwriting, but a central focus is to carry on the folk tradition.

"One of the goals I have for every show is to have some sort of connection to the audience, to have people leave feeling better than when they came in," he said.

Tickets are $10 for the general public and $9 for Ark members. The doors open at 7:30 p.m.

sewer could be the best long-term answer.

Commissioner Joe Koch, noting that the commission has a 10-year plan to replace city streets, said the city should "not do the same job twice."

Responding to another question from Koch, Kalinowski said the cost to replace streets is about a third of the total project cost.

City Manager Steve Walters said that in determining cost, factors to consider include whether to levy special assessments and how to determine which areas would get special assessments.

Walters is to review options for paying for the repairs, and report back to commissioners.

GOP firm on Engler reform plan

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Democrats attracted a Republican vote here and there to support their amendments, but in the end the Senate's 22-16 GOP majority remained rock solid on Gov. John Engler's welfare reform plan.

The key measure, House Bill 5353, was approved 30-16 Tuesday and returned to the House for concurrence in a minor amendment.

Sen. Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township, tried hard to turn the tables on Republicans when he offered to tie-bar the welfare bill to a GOP-sponsored tax credit bill for working families.

"It fits perfectly with welfare reform," said Peters. "You don't need to hold back welfare reform because we're scheduled to act on the tax credit in the Finance Commitee today, and we (full Senate) can act on it tomorrow."

"It's great, senator," admitted Republican Joel Gougeon of Bay City, sponsor of the tax credit and floor manager of the welfare bills. "But my (tax credit) bill can stand on its merits."

Peters' amendment went down 17-20, with support from all 16 Democrats and Republican David Honigman of West Bloomfield.

Peters also lost with an amendment to require welfare workers to offer clients voter registration forms during orientation. "This will make them full participants in the democratic process. We want to change their perception that their vote doesn't count," said Peters.

"Republicans are afraid that po' folks will vote Democratic," added minority floor leader Virgil Smith of Detroit.

Gougeon objected. "We haven't had money from the federal government," said the Republican spokesman, citing Congress' 1993 Voting Rights Act which requires state welfare offices to serve as voter registration centers without providing the funding.

Peters' amendment went down by another 17-20 vote, this time with Republican Phil Horton of Jackson crossing over.

In the end, all Democratic amendments were rejected. Here is how area senators voted on the final roll call:

Yes (30) — Republicans Michael Bouchard of Birmingham, Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion, David Hongiman of West Bloomfield, Loren Bennett of Canton, Robert Geake of Northville, Mike Rogers of Howell and John Schwarz of Battle Creek; and Democrats Peters of Bloomfield Township, George Hart of Dearborn and John Cherry of Clio.

No (7) — Alma Smith of Salem and six other Democrats, including gubernatorial hopeful Jim Berryman of Adrian.

Sen. Alma Smith, D-Salem, lost her amendment to allow welfare recipients attending college to complete their third and fourth years without registering for work, as the welfare reform bill requires.

Republicans for the most part sat silent as Democrats spun their wheels for three hours. Even Geake, a key architect of welfare reform from the Appropriations Committee, said nothing.

The welfare reform package will:

- Require minor parents to live with their parents, or in an adult-supervised setting, and attend school.
- Sign up for a Work First orientation when their cases are opened.
- Require recipients to agree to a customized "family independence contract" and make progress toward financial independence or else lose their benefits.
- Tie into the block grants bill proceeding through the U.S. Congress. With block grants, the federal government will write lump-sum checks to states rather than set up hundreds of line-item programs.

Rivers to host budget review sessions

U.S. Rep. Lynn N. Rivers will hold "Everything You Want to Know About the Budget."

Rivers will review how the budget is created in Washington, as well as the different considerations, compromises and debates that are involved. A question-and-answer session will follow.

The sessions are free and open to everyone in the 13th Congressional District. They will be 1-2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 10, at Westland Center, Community Room A, 35000 Warren Road in Westland, and 1-2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 16, at Romulus High School auditorium, 9650 S. Wayne Road, Romulus.

For more information, call Rivers' offices in Ann Arbor, (313) 741-4210, or Wayne, (313) 722-1411.

New postmaster finds challenge in his job

By John Barr
Staff Writer

You've heard the old post office saying, the mail must go through, rain or shine.

This describes the work ethic of acting Plymouth postmaster Joseph K. Bodary, who is replacing retiring postmaster John A. Mulligan, who was hired by President Lyndon Johnson in 1965.

This is supposed to be only a temporary position until the office finds a permanent replacement. Bodary hopes he can stay in Plymouth for a few years.

"We do good business," Bodary said. "I'm glad I came. The people here are great, although it's (the post office) not quite as good as what we heard it was. Plymouth is a real involved community."

The Plymouth Township post office, in charge of Penniman and Clipper stations, has 17,394 customers and 42 routes, 2,000 more customers and four fewer routes than he was responsible for at the Dearborn post office, where he had worked since November 1988.

"We have good supervisors and employees here," he said.

Job duties include spending time on the phone, writing reports, overseeing customer complaints, the computer system and schedules, training carriers and clerks and "making sure the mail functions right," he said.

A new function of the office he likes is the new fax machine which can accept stamp orders, which will be good, he said.

"This will get people out of the lobby."

At Fort Dearborn, he also worked as a manager and customer service representative. At that job he was responsible for processing and delivery of mail and window services and supervised 83 employees.

He started his postal career in 1985 in Wyandotte as a mail carrier to that city, and to Southgate and Riverview. He said that working on all details in the Detroit District "helped me tremendously in realizing my goals."

Being Plymouth postmaster is not Bodary's goal. He wants to work at national post office headquarters in Washington, D.C.

"I've been there several times and it's exciting to work there, real active," he said. "I love being at the hub of the country where one can make a difference for the future of the United States Postal Service."

"My kids don't want to go there, though," he said, adding he would take the assignment after his children Jodie, 16, Jeremy, 14, and Jared, 12, are grown. He also considers he might go back to teaching after that point.

Bodary, a single father, said having three children has been "most rewarding and beneficial to my career."

Bodary didn't start his career in the post office, but as a teacher and a salesman. His education differs even more from his first two careers. He graduated in 1979 from Eastern Michigan University with a bachelor's degree in art education. After getting a degree, he taught six years in the Southgate School District and also worked several years for Montgomery Ward.

His career change came about when he discovered he could earn more money working for the post office than he could in two part-time jobs.

"It's been good," Bodary said. "I've never regretted it even though there's been some bad times."

Some of those bad times and most memorable were a shooting at the Dearborn post office a few years ago.

"It was very traumatic," he said. "It's tough when something like that happens because I knew some of the people involved."

In his free time, Bodary likes to bowl, do paintings and sculptures and go on vacation with his children. He also spends a lot of time running them around to basketball practices.

House panel OKs cap on charter schools

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Moderate Republicans — an endangered species in Lansing -- this week began toning down the conservative School Code passed by the Senate last month on a party-line vote.

The House Education Committee Tuesday voted 8-6 to cap the number of public school academies (charter schools) at 75. Currently there are 35, and the Senate attempted to remove the cap entirely.

"I think we need time to evaluate our charter schools," said the woman in the middle, Rep. Penny Crissman, R-Rochester, vice chair of the panel. "We don't even have a full year of these things."

The political lineup:

- Crissman, a moderate, was joined by Republicans Al Kukuk of Macomb Township and Gary Randall of Elwell in seeking to tone down Senate provisions.
- Democrats, including Tom Kelly of Wayne, quietly followed Crissman's lead on the key issue. They are outnumbered on the committee by 8-7 and in the full House 56-54.
- Republicans from the party's religious wing, mainly Jessie Dalman of Holland and Jack Horton of Lowell. They want to create unlimited numbers of charter schools, as free as possible from teacher certification, no-spanking, curriculum, public reporting and union rules.

Somewhere between the two GOP factions is committee chair William Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe. Bryant rewrote the Senate bill to allow 100 charter schools. He said he hoped the bill would be amended on the floor to allow 150.

Crissman brought out the increasing number of bad news stories about charter schools — the group that charged parents an enrollment fee, the Muskegon academy tied by contracts and blood to a church, the lack of oversight by the universities that charter them.

"Until we have a lot of these problems worked out," said Crissman, "we shouldn't expand them."

"Any process we start will have glitches," countered Dalman, a champion of state aid to students attending private colleges. "Yes, we've had two or three or four problems. But 75 (cap on charters) is too restrictive."

Randall said he would rather index the number of charters, allowing a few more each year "rather than picking out a number and carving it in stone." But he had no prepared amendment in writing. Randall said he would prepare one for floor debate.

Crissman won another amendment to take away charter-granting authority from Clark Durant's State Board of Education and the Department of Social Services.

The Education Committee was expected to wrap up work on 75 amendments Wednesday or today, placing the bill on the full House calendar next week.

Rick Simonson, lobbyist for the Oakland Intermediate School District, watched the many hours of proceedings from the standing-room-only crowd on the fourth floor of the Capitol and said things were going as well as could be expected from the public schools' point of view.

The Legislature, under distinctly conservative leadership in both chambers this year, has made rewriting school laws a top priority. Moderates and Democrats fear the hidden agenda is state aid to private and parochial schools, now forbidden by the Michigan Constitution.

Refer to Senate Bill 679 (House substitute) when writing to your state representative, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

County warms up trucks for winter road clearing

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

'Tis the season for snow.

That means getting the salt trucks out on the roads. And Wayne County maintains more than 1,800 miles of roads.

With 131 trucks, it takes about 2½ to 3 hours to salt all the roads the county is responsible for, according to Earl Ollila, engineer of road maintenance for Wayne County.

State highways are the first priority, followed by state trunk lines and county primary roads. If all of the trucks are up and running, all the roads are salted at about the same time, Ollila said.

In the event of a storm, a night supervisor monitors road conditions and a night patrol goes out to observe the road system, that in combination with information from the National Weather Service, determines whether crews will be called in to salt the roads.

When it starts snowing, if crews are late coming out everyone gets stuck, Ollila said.

"The worst storm is when it starts snowing at 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning," Ollila said. The county doesn't pre-salt the roads. The best condition is to have it start snowing at 1 a.m., Ollila said, that way roads are cleared off and wet by the time people drive to work.

How much salt?

The amount of salt that is spread depends on how much snow is falling, Ollila said. The trucks are equipped with a computerized system to regulate how much salt is spread on the roads.

Salt is the best for treating the roads, he said. "There isn't anything else." The county uses sodium chloride or rock salt and buys 100,000 tons a year at about $32-35 a ton, he said. Other mixtures, such as adding calcium chloride mixed with water to wet the salt down, just add to the cost, Ollila said.

For example, the Michigan Department of Transportation is using a calcium magnesium acetate mixture on a bridge over the Saginaw River. The mixture is supposed to be less corrosive, but costs $600 a ton, he said.

"In order for us to keep roads bare in this area in the winter, there's nothing better than salt. It's economical," he said.

How much salt is spread around during the winter? Well, that depends on the weather, some winters only about 60,000 tons of salt are used, but during other winters it's 150,000 tons, Ollila said.

When it's very cold — around 5 or 10 degrees — the salt doesn't act as fast, Ollila said. When it's 25 degrees or warmer, the salt acts quickly, he said.

Because salt melting ice is very slow, and the crews have to do a lot more blading, Ollila said.

The goal is to get the salt out as soon as possible to break the bond between the pavement and the snow and avoid ice packed on the roads, he said. "If you have ice packed then you're all done," he said.

Plowing required

Heavy snowfall — 6 or 8 inches or more — calls for the plows. All the trucks are equipped with blades underneath, but the trucks can also be equipped with plows on the front.

"There's no sophisticated way of dealing with winter storms," Ollila said. But, the county holds training sessions in the fall, called "sensible salting seminars," he said. Workers learn to control the amount of salt, not to throw salt against buildings and people, not to pile snow on railroad tracks and to be careful clearing snow off bridges so it doesn't fall on cars or people below.

After the roads are salted, the county maintains gravel roads in out-county areas such as Canton and Huron townships. First the snow is bladed off and then treated with a mixture of sand and chloride. The chloride keeps the sand from freezing and becoming solid, and the sand provides traction for cars, Ollila said.

Each pass of the truck salts two lanes of roads. For eight-lane roads, it takes four passes, he said. And if it continues to snow, the crews have to go back and salt again.

All the salting, melting, and refreezing adds another twist to winter travel — potholes. The moisture of the melted snow penetrates into the roadway and then freezes in the cracks of the road and expands. That breaks open the pavement little by little, and with cars driving over it and water splashing, pot holes are created "real quick," Ollila said.

Library move

Farmer Jack site a good one

The Plymouth library's decision to move into Farmer Jack will benefit the city and could eventually lead to solving the dilemma of what to do with the abandoned grocery store on Main Street.

Library officials agreed with the owners of the store to allow the library to use the building as temporary headquarters.

The former supermarket, closed in December 1988, has more than 12,000 square feet of public floor space, which compares to space available in the current library.

It will enable the library to move its entire contents to the building and continue to offer the public a full spectrum of services while its current building on Main Street next to city hall is remodeled. Work on that building will start in May and a new library is scheduled to open in January 1998.

The library board will pay $150,000 for the 28-month term of the lease.

Having the library in the vacant building could be an effective way to call attention to the site, which has long been a sore issue for Plymouth officials and residents who question why such a prime piece of property is unused. At times, weeds have grown up through cracks in the parking lot asphalt, prompting some city commissioners to call the site an eyesore.

The reason is economics. Farmer Jack has willingly paid rent to keep the building closed so no grocery competitor would occupy the building.

But when the library moves to the site, more people will visit it and the upkeep should be improved. With more people, more questions will and should be raised about its eventual fate.

Those questions will put pressure on the owners and on Farmer Jack to eventually allow it to be developed or used.

The agreement between the library and the store owners is a good one and will be a benefit to the entire community.

Cheer Club needs donations

It's that time again. The Plymouth Observer is sponsoring its Fifth Annual Cheer Club. Joining is easy. Just drop a new toy or food off at our office between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. We're located at 744 Wing St.

We'll pass those items on to the Salvation Army, which will then distribute them to needy families in the area.

However, donations are running far behind last year's. Maybe it's the lack of snow. We would certainly hope it's not the lack of holiday spirit on the part of Plymouth-area residents.

Each year the Cheer Club has not only helped those in need, but it has also helped parents teach their children the joy of giving. We'll never forget the sight of a little boy who brought in a toy to drop off. It was apparent that he wanted it himself, but with a tear in his eye, he dropped the toy in the pile in our office.

He learned the true meaning of Christmas. And it's a lesson to us all.

Arts funding in for tough times

On balance, Lansing has been less than kind to community arts groups in the last couple of years.

In the new budget, the Legislature appropriated $22 million, nearly 27 percent less than the $30 million recommended by Gov. John Engler, a golfer who is no big fan of symphonic music, art museums, theater and the rest.

To his credit, Engler merged the Michigan Equity Program, a series of line-item sums for politically favored groups, under the Michigan Arts and Cultural Affairs program. There was no point to two separate programs.

As expected, the Detroit Institute of Arts got its $9.7 million and Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall its $1.8 million. But the money now is parceled out by the Arts and Cultural Affairs Commission. Every group will have to apply to the arts council.

It means that the Arts and Cultural Affairs group will be able to slip money to favored causes, but that appointive body is less prone to political hanky-panky than the Legislature. So the change is likely to be good.

It could have been worse. The Senate passed a plan to award arts grants on a population basis, a move that would have equated klompen dancing with ballet. Wisely, the House saved the money for deserving arts organizations.

What is sad, however, is that the governor organized the Arts and Cultural Affairs office under the Commerce Department. It had been under the Office of Management and Budget, and it probably could have gone under the Department of Education. But Commerce?!?

This governor, unfortunately, doesn't see art as art but as business.

The Detroit Institute of Arts, Edison Institute and Cranbrook will enrich Southeastern Michigan's convention offerings and even operate as tourist magnets in themselves.

But the Boarshead Theater in Lansing, John Ball Zoo in Grand Rapids and Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp are hardly tools of interstate economic competition.

The arts affect the human spirit. They don't need economic alibis.

Last week the Legislature began considering a plan to allow counties to ask voters for property taxes to fund the arts. The plan has a sharp downside:

- Too many other needs — jails, public transportation, parks and community colleges — have got in line ahead of the arts.
- County government historically has had little to do with the arts. Counties handle courts, jails, legal records, airports, economic development, sometimes water and sewers. Cities, since medieval times, have been the homes of artists and art patrons.
- The legislative plan is vague, but once again there are special rules for Detroit. The governmental fact of life, however, is that the Detroit Institute of Arts is a department of city government, subject to Detroit's civil service rules and mayoral appointment. Such a plan of governance may be unacceptable to out-Wayne County voters and others in Oakland and Macomb counties.
- The state today may lack money to support the arts, but we can't forget Gov. Engler's political boast that he signed 11 or 12 or 13 or some such number of tax cuts. Does Engler think he can promote a "taxpayer's agenda" (his term) statewide and force local units to raise theirs?

Arts funding is in for a bad time in the forseeable future. Arts supporters, who increasingly have had to learn to write grant applications, now will have to learn lobbying and grass-roots politics.

Food complaint

While I found the article that you wrote for the Monday, Nov. 20, Observer interesting and informative, it is, I'm afraid, not entirely correct. It appears that Mr. Scrooge preferred turkey for Christmas dinner; because it was "the big prize winning Turkey" hanging in the butcher's window that he summoned the young boy to fetch.

I find it necessary to call this to your attention lest any of your young readers grows up believing this inaccurate literary fact. Being an ardent fan of the works of Charles Dickens I feel that he would want this piece of Christmas history corrected.

Jeanette Sullivan, Plymouth

No longer neutral

The pipe bomb in the mailbox gambit in Detroit suburbs was reported recently. At first I thought I was hearing about something happening in Beirut or Bosnia. But the union response was not totally unexpected considering the earlier stoning of policemen, the burning of delivery vehicles, and the continual harassment of carriers.

Remaining neutral in mind and spirit is no longer an option. All of us had hoped for a reconciliation without violence. Calling the anti-corporation, cradle to grave, collectivist mentality, Michael Moore, to town changed the climate of negotiation to confrontation.

The infusion of a socialist personality in employer-employee discussion of wages and working conditions never seems to help.

Neil Goodbred, Livonia

A big thank-you

This Thanksgiving, we had much to be thankful for. One year ago, we weren't certain that Brad would be celebrating Thanksgiving with us in 1995. In August 1994, he was diagnosed with colon cancer that had spread extensively through his liver. Joyfully, Brad did celebrate Thanksgiving with us and is looking forward to seeing our boys' eyes sparkle Christmas morning.

Thanks to all of you who have touched our lives these past 15 months. We loved the oodles of cards that have come our way, the gentle words to our hurting hearts, the hugs that speak more than words, and the many prayers that have never reached our ears but were heard by our heavenly father.

Many of you donated supplies and gave generous donations to the craft and bake sale out at St. Joe's Hospital in Ann Arbor that the St. Joe's Canton Urgent Care sponsored on our behalf. The majority of you remain faceless and nameless to us. Nevertheless, please know that we feel your love and support.

Brad has beat incredible odds by being pronounced cancer free in September 1995. The survival rate past one year of diagnosis is only 5 percent. We praise the Lord for his healing through doctors and chemotherapy, and our hearts are grateful for any way you have touched our lives and helped ease our burden. We ask for your continued prayers as he does run a high risk of recurrence. We're taking one day at a time. And today we are joyful!

Own man

I've got to hand it to my state rep, Gerry Law, for being his own man on the school reform issues. He must be under considerable pressure to toe the Republican line. I'm glad to see that he can represent his constituency — a community happy with schools the way they were before zealots like Clark Durant were anointed.

POINTS OF VIEW

Future of public education looking rather gloomy

GUEST COLUMNIST

MARTHA TRAFFORD

The tip of the iceberg that threatens the vessel of public education is in clear view. But the one commandeering the ship, state Board of Education president Clark Durant, purposely steers the vessel toward imminent disaster.

If the state House sanctions Mr. Durant's chartered course for education, and proceeds full throttle ahead as the state Senate has already done, we can expect catastrophic results for public education.

"Whoever is in a hurry shows that the thing he is about is too big for him," voiced Lord Chesterfield in 1749. Perhaps he envisioned all those years ago, what a group for local PTA parents recently discovered about many of our state legislators. After trying to address their concerns in Lansing over the hasty passage of school reform measures by the Senate, one parent commented thus about one suburban Detroit area senator: "He has taken such a strong stand in favor of schools of choice, he's not only uninterested in our views, but amused we didn't agree with him." Another parent was told by a female House member that "It was politically correct to get the code passed now."

Are politically correct, expedient and rash decisions wise investments in the future education of our children? If not, then are there any stewards of public education left in Lansing, who are willing to take a stand against the radical rogues who are attempting to steer public education in the wrong direction?

At the pinnacle of the menacing iceberg, Gov. John Engler has placed his pet project, unrestricted cross-district schools of choice. Besides encouraging white flight and elitist schools, this proposal will create further economic and educational disparities between districts, rather than narrow them — the concept which Engler touted as the centerpiece of his argument for passage of Proposal A!

Many better-off districts would prosper under this plan — at the expense of smaller and poorer districts, if students left those for "greener pastures" down the road. A study by John Ambler of the school choice plans in Britain, France and the Netherlands, "Who Benefits from Choice?" in the 1994 Journal of Policy Analysis and Management, confirms this: "The primary negative effects of school choice is its natural tendency to increase the educational gap between the privileged and underprivileged."

Another slippery, treacherous piece of the iceberg which has emerged in Lansing is the relaxed high school teacher certification. Under this proposal, anyone can teach high school if they possess a bachelor's degree, pass the minimum skills subject area test, and have five years of occupational experience. Perhaps this feature was added to provide jobs for all those middle management people displaced by corporate downsizing, or for those who are "bored" in their present work. And "the kicker" — thrown in to entice passage of relaxed certification — says an individual has to make NO investment in learning about how children learn, or how to motivate them, or how to teach and manage 30-plus students simultaneously while handling clerical needs, emergencies, and the unexpected. How many caring, dedicated and qualified individuals will make education a career choice — if they can have another job, and teach too? Apparently, the proponents of this measure seek to make education knowledge-centered, when it must be child-centered.

The message being sent out by the governor and some legislators seems to be that only parents of school-age children have a say, an interest and an investment in our public schools. "It isn't accountability to the state but accountability to the parents," voiced Senate Majority Leader Dick Posthumus.

What about accountability to the other three out of four households without school-age children? Nearly every resident of this state contributes to the tax revenues which are used to support education. Our investment — whether one cent or $1,000 — confers on each of us ownership and a corresponding responsibility to promote public education for the good of our community. We must all be stewards of public education for the future of all of us depends on it.

The members of the state House must rise above the lemming-like behavior displayed by their counterparts in the Senate. In our efforts to shape our schools, we must not allow our representatives to further fragment public education, splintering it into this plank for one group, and this one for another. Michigan does not need elitist schools, with people at the helms of classrooms who care naught for the learner, turned into sideshows as parents with video equipment clamber over one another vying for their best shots.

It is time for everyone to send a message to Lansing: streamlining the school code to enhance public education in Michigan is acceptable — gutting public education of the safeguards and standards put in place over the past several decades is not!

School and church ties raise legal, ethical questions

TIM RICHARD

The case against "charter schools" gets stronger and stronger.

The heaviest blow yet comes from the Muskegon Chronicle, which published a two-day expose of Trivalley Academy, a 160-pupil school funded with our tax dollars, and its connection to Holy Trinity Church of God in Christ.

Mike Walsh wrote the series, dipping into federal tax records and Michigan Department of Commerce records. I know Walsh personally, having appeared with him at a Freedom of Information Act seminar and given him a modest hand on a scholarly paper he was writing. He's thorough and trustworthy.

Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, advanced the lofty notion of charter schools in a 1988 speech to the National Press Club. Charter schools, in his theory, were supposed to be public schools operating within the public school system — even in the same building. Their purpose was to introduce innovation into a hidebound system.

Under Michigan's law, the theory was perverted almost instantly. Many of the so-called "public school academies" — all, in Oakland County — turned out to be private schools just seeking public funds.

That's a no-no under the Michigan Constitution, which prohibits public funds aid "any private, denominational or other nonpublic" school. No payments. No vouchers. No subsidies. No grants. No loans. No use of public property. The voters said so.

Walsh unearthed "financial, contractual, personal as well as bricks-and-mortar links" between Trivalley and Holy Trinity. Among them:

- "The church is the school's landlord, through an intermediate corporation used by the church for its 'secular ministry.'" This intermediate, COGIC Center, shares the building and even some facilities within it, such as kitchen, gym and multi-purpose room.
- The church, COGIC Center and Trivallley academy are physically attached under a common roof. Church groups routinely use school facilities, not just after-hours and on weekends, but during the school day when students are present.
- COGIC Center shares membership, governing bodies and officers with Holy Trinity. The church pastor is founder and board president of Trivalley. His son serves the school as "public relations director." The son works for a housing corporation operated by Trivalley's vice president.
- At least one of Trivalley's teachers has been paid directly by the church.
- Trivalley's fax machine is registered to the religious body.
- COGIC charges Trivalley $7.29 a square foot for rent. "The Muskegon Area Intermediate School District, which developed a formula for school rentals, determined an appropriate square-footage rate to be $3.14," said Walsh.

Now you know why the state Senate and State Board of Education are in such a tizzy to take the cap (now 35) off the number of public school academies.

Now you know why they are in such a mad rush to make curriculum standards voluntary instead of mandatory.

Now you know why they want to lower teacher certification standards for charter schools. It's not so they can hire Lee Iacocca to teach business. It's so they can employ their pals and relatives from the church.

Now you know why they want to put a screeching halt to public school annual improvement plans and reports.

Now you know what's behind this rhetoric about "parents' right to choose," "competition," "new ideas" and "stimulate motivation."

The lust for money is behind it. Non-public schools have lost pupils faster than the public schools in the last decade. Non-public schools peaked at 11.4 percent of the market share in 1983-85 and were at 10.4 percent in 1991-2. They want a state bailout, they don't want to meet state teaching and curriculum standards, so they want to lower the standards.

Thanks to Mike Walsh and the Muskegon Chronicle for helping uncover the mess. Yet, I suspect Gov. John Engler knows about the shenanigans and, despite his oath office office, approves.

Welfare debate ignores need

PHILIP POWER

The best evidence of just how far the political debate has shifted to the right over the past few years can be found in the welfare reform bill that is zipping through the Michigan Senate this week.

Trumpeted by supporters as "the most comprehensive welfare reform system in the nation," the plan will require all recipients to work — community service or employment-related activity — at least 20 hours a week within 30 days of going on welfare or lose their assistance.

Gov. John Engler's rhetoric offers a near-perfect summary of the philosophy now dominating most political discussion: "Welfare reform lifts people out of poverty instead of trapping them in it. We've demonstrated that the best welfare program is a private-sector job. By limiting government, cutting taxes and reducing the burden of regulation, we can create a climate of opportunity that will allow aid recipients to leave the welfare rolls for the payrolls."

Ten years ago, such a proposal would have provoked a firestorm of criticism. No longer.

"There is no argument that reform of the welfare system is needed if we want to accomplish the goal of a self-sufficient, productive society," me-tooed House Democratic leader Curtis Hertel.

Even Ann Marston, president of the Michigan League for Human Services (the main advocacy group for welfare and other social programs), could call only for an open public planning process and "a deliberative approach" to changes in entitlement programs that used to be immunized from change, let alone criticism.

How come?

First, the facts are fairly clear. Despite many years' expenditure of countless millions of tax dollars on welfare and other support programs, the numbers of the poor, the jobless, the homeless and the teen-aged single parents keep going up and up.

It's not a big jump to conclude that there is something intrinsic (training for dependency?) embedded in programs like welfare that perversely prevents them from achieving their stated purpose. Therefore, say folks like Engler, let's reform welfare, and you never mind how drastic or untested these reforms might be.

And the Democrats, having advocated and funded such programs for years and years, are not going to cut much ice by arguing that things would be better if we just spent lots more money (a 1980s point of view) or that all the reform that is needed is to tinker around the edges a bit (an early '90s bromide).

The entire spectrum of debate has moved. And because I believe that there is no one political orthodoxy that holds true for decade upon decade, regardless of the ways the society and its economic base have evolved, I believe the Republic is better for it.

Certainly this does not excuse the Engler administration of unseemly haste in driving a very far-reaching welfare reform package through the Legislature with minimum deliberation just to be first to deliver the goods to Washington. After all, ambition is what it is, and many vice-presidential nominations have been compounded out of far flimsier fabric.

In fact, the best evidence of what comes from serious welfare reform comes from Michigan in 1991, when the Engler administration abruptly tossed some 80,000 adults off general assistance on the theory that this would motivate them to find work. Two years later, according to a study by the University of Michigan, only 20 percent had steady jobs, and another 37 percent had found informal work like raking leaves.

The underlying political reality is certainly that it's good public policy to require those on welfare to work, while the stubborn fact remains that the only way to get a job good enough to support a family is to get some serious skills. Doing this is neither cheap nor quick nor easy. Nor will you find much about skills in the package now making its way to Washington.

But that's why, after some years, today's orthodoxy will itself be outmoded and ready for its own dose of reform.

School volunteer honored

Emily Kemnitz, a Miller School volunteer who has been a force in keeping the Miller Woods a nature preserve, was honored as a "District Volunteer in Public School" by the Plymouth-Canton school board recently.

She has collected information about the various trees and plants in the Miller Woods area and as part of the district's elementary science curriculum, she has shared her knowledge with hundreds of students.

Maureen Robinson, a Miller Elementary School second-grade teacher, said, as a result of Kemnitz's efforts, Miller Woods has remained a place of nature available to all the students in the district.

■ She has collected information about the various trees and plants in the Miller Woods area.

"In the 12 years I have taught at Miller School, I have called upon Emily to guide all the second-grade classes through this unique outdoor laboratory. She has done this faithfully and unselfishly, imparting her tremendous knowledge of trees and plant growth to our classes," Robinson said.

She received a certificate of recognition, a pin of the Flag of Liberty and Learning and a dinner certificate from the I Care Committee.

True athletes: A joy for living

Like eagles soaring and gazelles leaping, true athletes declare their joy for living in what they do. Theirs is a joy unleashed. And unabashed.

True athletes do what they do not for money or fame or fortune, but rather for the exhilaration of just being able to do it.

True athletes come in unexpected shapes and sizes. I'm seeing some now, who stand not very tall and weigh not very much. Their diminutive size belies incredible strength, though. And they are only little girls 7, 8 and 9 years old.

They'll be competing, most of them for the very first time, in their sport this weekend. And like the eagles and gazelles, they too will soar and leap and bound and declare joy just by what they do. They are gymnasts.

Governing this weekend's competition is the same organization governing the U.S. Olympic gymnastic teams. So in essence, this is where it all could start.

Typically, girls begin competing at Level 5 and move up from there, one level at a time, depending on scores earned. It takes years to move from Level 5 to Level 10. And already it's taken years of training for the six girls I encountered to enter even these beginning levels of competi-

Crafter creates angels for Tree of Remembrance

By Christina Fuoco
Staff Writer

Hospice of Southeastern Michigan has found an angel in Canton resident Nellie Brackett.

The 82-year-old Brackett made 100 cotton yarn angel ornaments that are hanging on a special holiday Tree of Remembrance at Jacobson's department store in Dearborn to benefit hospice.

In return for a donation of $10 or more to Hospice of Southeastern Michigan, shoppers can take an angel off the tree and replace it with a written message in memory of a loved one. The Tree of Remembrance will be on display through Christmas Eve.

"It's very difficult during the holidays; this gives them something concrete to do. They can come and talk about their loved ones," said Shirley Moore, volunteer manager for hospice's Wayne Suburban team.

Moore met Brackett in October when she came to speak at the Canton Senior Center about volunteer opportunities.

"They came over to the senior center to ask the ladies to make little decorations to put on a tree. I told them, 'I have an angel that maybe you'd like,' " Brackett said.

Brackett made the first 100 angels, approximately 30 at a time assembly-line style, in two months. She trained volunteers to make the rest of the angels, created from white cotton crochet yarn decorated with lace, seed pearls and rhinestones.

Brackett, a crafter all her life, spends her time creating everything from little trinkets to clothing.

"I like to make things; I make everything. I used to sew my own clothes. I just try everything. If I see something I like, I copy it," said Brackett, who moved here two years ago from Lake Havasu City, Ariz., to be with her son.

Proceeds from the Tree of Remembrance benefit patient care programs from Hospice of Southeastern Michigan's Wayne Suburban team. The team, based in Taylor, serves the western Wayne and Downriver areas, as well as parts of Washtenaw and Monroe counties. Other teams serve the rest of the seven-county southeastern Michigan area.

"It's going wonderfully well," said Moore about response to the Tree of Remembrance. "Whether it's a recent death or a few years back, it's a good way to remember them. It's kind of a bittersweet thing. The person is gone, but they're able to remember them in a positive way."

Hospice of Southeastern Michigan, a program of Hospice of Michigan, provides complete care for people with terminal illnesses, and emotional and spiritual support for the entire family. Most patients live in comfort and privacy with their loved ones.

The Tree of Remembrance is on display on the main floor of Jacobson's, 2201 Michigan Ave., Dearborn. For more information, call (313) 291-9700.

What motivates them? What drives them? Pushy, cutthroat parents? Pushy, cutthroat coaches? Fabulous wealth? Superstardom?

In some rare cases, maybe. But seldom do gymnasts reach superstardom. And even more seldom do they get wealthy on account of their sport. And as for parents being pushy and odious, that's not it either. At least not with these six little girls.

Their parents are extremely unpushy. Instead, they're watchful and wary. They constantly watch for flagging interest, flagging spirits, flagging school work, flagging childhood. If these important things flag, then that's it, the parents tell me. No more gymnastics. No more several hours of practice a day, four days a week every week year-round.

The able coach concurs. She, too, is neither pushy nor odious. Kami is gentle, softspoken, and still learning her away around the English language. She came to this country only three years ago from Bulgaria. While in her homeland, she trained as a gymnast for many years. The hard work and joy of the sport and dedication to it won her a place on the Bulgarian Olympic team not just once, but twice.

And even though English is Kami's second language, her first seems to be the language of sportsmanship, discipline, accomplishment, self-confidence and joyful flight through the air.

So the motivation for these young girls seems to come from within themselves. It's the fun and the play of this sport that drives them, even though the preparation (the hours each week spent on strength and flexibility and endurance training) seems grueling to onlookers. But the children rarely complain about it. Kami has explained to them that this is what makes their bodies not hurt or get injured when they fly and leap.

■ They constantly watch for flagging interest, flagging spirits, flagging school work, flagging childhood. If these important things flag, then that's it, the parents tell me.

And so the tiny gymnasts go about making their bodies strong and safe, all the while maintaining a bubbly and hopeful attitude.

The six little girls will compete in the same events as the big girls have, the big girls with familiar names like Mary Lou Retton, Nadia Comaneci, Shannon Miller.

There's the balance beam event. The beam, four feet off the floor, four inches wide and 16 feet long. On this the little girls must execute turns and leaps and stands, some on both feet, some on one, a handstand, a cartwheel and a round-off dismount (head upside down, feet high in the air) — all from four feet off the ground. Which is about the height the little girls stand when they're earthbound.

The vault. First, they run hard for a short distance and then jump hard (as hard as a 50-pound body can) on a springboard. The jump launches them into the air where they fly and then land momentarily on top of the vault upside down in a handstand only to flip over, planting both feet firmly on the the ground.

The uneven parallel bars. They look scary to a regular, terra firma type person, but the gymnasts fly from one bar (7½ feet up) to another bar (5 feet up) and back and forth and upside down with ease and grace and fluidity.

And the event that really catches the eye of the spectators: the floor exercise. Here one sees the flights of freedom and joy, the leaps and the bounds and the revelry of sport.

No matter the judges' scores this weekend, the true athletes will declare their joy for living in what they do. And the six little girls, I'll bet, will soar with the eagles.

The Michigan Academy of Gymnastics at 5870 Hix Road, Westland, hosts the competition Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 8-10. The public is welcome. Call (313) 721-4001 for more information.

Hunt-Soto

Suzan Beth Soto and Curtis Charles Hunt were married Sept. 2 in Naperville, Ill., by the Rev. Duane Heap.

The bride is the daughter of Carol and Dennis DeFrain of Livonia; the groom is the son of Waltraud and Robert Hunt of Warrenville, Ill.

The bride's sister, Laurie Kimbro, as well as nieces Stephanie Hunt, Lauren Hunt, and Christina Saul served as attendants.

The groom's brother Henry Hunt, along with nephews Jason Bossert, Christopher Hunt and Eric Hunt, were the groom's attendants.

Rogacki-Campbell

Paul and Diane Rogacki of Northville announce the engagement of their daughter, Gina Lynn, to Timothy Andrew Kasper, the son of Anthony and Joyce Kasper of Livonia.

The bride received her bachelor of science degree in management from Madonna University. She is employed by Enterprise Rent-A-Car.

Her fiance received his bachelor of science degree in marketing from Madonna University. He is employed by the Ford Motor Company in Customer Parts Operations.

Sales effort honors very special man

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

You might say Kristy Engle is nuts . . . about nuts.

It's not nuts in that she wants to eat every one she sees. No. The Canton resident wants to sell every container of nuts she can get her hands to help Community Hospice Services with its holiday fund-raiser.

It's her way of remembering her grandfather, Charles Smith, who died at the age of 85 in March 1993, a man who loved nuts and sweets and was the focus of her life for many years.

"He taught me what is important — family and the people you love," she said. "He taught me about holding on and letting go, and that's what life is about."

This is the sixth year CHS is selling five selections of nuts — 16 ounces of cashews, deluxe mixed or German almonds, a 15-ounce variety pack and 14 ounces of pistachios — for $10 each.

Generally it's not a big fund-raiser for the agency, but Engle hopes to turn it around. She has lined up friends at two Remerica Hometown Realtors offices — 44523 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, and 42875 Five Mile Road, Plymouth — as well as Mrs. Bee's Flowers, 8565 N. Lilley Road, Canton, to carry the nuts and has been soliciting merchants to display posters promoting the sale.

A member of Canton Newcomers, she also is selling the nuts at the group's December meeting. It was the Newcomers who introduced Engle to CHS when she helped sell raffle tickets last year for its annual benefit for the agency. Engle won a lithograph for selling the most raffle tickets.

"It coincided with the anniversary of his death and it was such a positive thing to do," Engle said. "I just sold tickets and found the community was so generous, so this year I decided to help with the nut sale."

Granddaughter's love

Smith was an important part of Engle's life when she was growing up. She fondly recalls sitting in his lap and having tea parties with him. Next to her mother, he was the most important adult in her young life.

"I would tell him everything and when I left him, I felt grounded," Engle said. "I told my husband Tom he was my anchor."

But in 1982, he was stricken with a disabling stroke and was admitted to a convalescent center. In a reversal of the roles, Engle, then 21, became the most important person in her grandfather's life. Barely an adult, she took on the responsibility of providing for him.

She was dating Tom at the time and remembers the change in lifestyle. After work, she would spend her evenings with her grandfather. There were times Tom would come home with her at 5 p.m. from a day at the family cottage so she could feed her grandfather.

"We weren't going out doing things that other couples were doing," Engle said. "I worked full time and after work I would go there and feed him dinner; I'd walk with him and stay with him until bedtime."

Over the years, her grandfather's condition worsened. He developed a seizure disorder and suffered a second stroke. Initially, he could eat and get up out of bed, but eventually he became bedridden and a tube was inserted for supplemental feeding. When he lost his ability to eat, it became his lifeline.

Tough decision

As his legal guardian, Engle had to make many decisions about his care, even the most difficult one — to let him go. Living at Westland Convalescent Center at the time, he developed pneumonia and several complications. After repeated trips to the hospital, Engle decided that her grandfather should receive only palliative care for comfort.

"I stood in the doorway to his room and said, 'This is it, Grandpa. You're going to stay here,'" she said. "He was so frail and so worn down."

And it was a good decision, according to Engle. Her grandfather experienced the most peaceful eight days of his life. He became more alert and lucid each day. On March 17, when she shaved him and trimmed his nails, she asked if he wanted a shave for two bits.

"He smiled at me, but later I wondered if he smiled or I just thought so," Engle said. On March 18, Smith slipped into a deep sleep and Engle said it was then that she knew he had smiled at her, that "that was his way of saying goodbye."

"It gives me a great sense of peace that I had that week with him," Engle said. "I think of it all as a priviledge now. There were many positive experiences associated with it, and he taught me a lot. He helped me grow. His weakness gave me strength and his struggles gave me courage."

Engle didn't turn to hospice for help after making her decision, but her experience has made her proponent of it. It is one reason why she has taken the nut sale on as a personal project.

"I saw so many families who brought people there and would not come back; I saw so many people die by themselves and nobody should," she said. "Yes, it's easier to walk away, but it's so much more rewarding to stay. For me, it was never a question about being dedicated, I loved him."

The nut sale runs through Christmas Eve, Dec. 24, and in addition to the two Remerica offices, they are on sale at the CHS offices at 32932 Warren Road, Westland, and 127 S. Main St., Plymouth; Decker's Flowers, 8214 Merriman Road, Westland; People's Home Medical offices at 1646 Eureka, Southgate, and 1145 S. Wayne Road, Westland; and The Flower Shop, 7787 Middlebelt, Westland.

For more information about the nut sale, call Cara Gillem at Community Hospice Services, (313) 522-4244.

We Deliver Families.

Some people think birth is a woman's concern. It is, of course, but it's also much more.
At St. Mary Hospital, we think it's a family affair, so we make it easier for the father and the whole family to share the wonder of childbirth; before, during and after.
Before you're due — when your anticipation is growing as quickly as your baby — our prenatal classes for expectant families such as Lamaze, breastfeeding and infant care and safety get your family ready for the new arrival.
And when your baby is born—after months of waiting come down to a single day— we make sure that day is everything you meant it to be. Our commitment to family involvement includes flexible visiting hours; time with your baby; and time for father, grandparents, brothers and sisters. And all the while, you'll enjoy private rooms that combine homelike comforts with the support and security of St. Mary Hospital.
Once you're home, we're as close as your phone, with follow-up and basic infant care information.
So, talk with your doctor about St. Mary Hospital. Or call us at (313) 464-WELL to help you find a physician who's right for you. Because when it comes to families . . . we deliver.

Millions of holiday shoppers are dusting off their credit cards and hitting the malls this month, happily charging everything from toys to tinsel. Unfortunately, many a shopper's holiday glee will become holiday gloom once their January credit card statements arrive.

The American Collectors Association Inc., the trade association for professional debt collectors, offers the following advice to help consumers avoid post-holiday payment shock.

■ Limit spending. Determine how much you can afford to spend on holiday gifts before beginning your shopping excursion. Stick to your budget.

■ Make a list and check it twice. Create a list of people for whom you need to purchase gifts and how much you will spend on each one, making sure not to exceed your allotted budget. As you shop, record each gift and its cost next to the receiver's name, then add up your expenses so your credit card bill won't take you by surprise.

■ Use cash whenever possible. If it is necessary for you to charge a number of gifts, put them all on one credit card, so you won't be juggling several bills in January. Look into applying for a special holiday card with a credit line that equals what you have to spend, and that can be destroyed after the holidays.

■ Be interest conscious. Be wary of department store cards offering deferred payment plans since most charge hefty interest rates. Use a deferred interest card only if interest will not accrue until the first payment is due, and if you will be able to pay off all or most of the bill immediately.

■ Be a savvy shopper. Take advantage of outlet malls and holiday sales. Rather than buying expensive wrapping paper, ribbon and bows from department stores, pay cash for those items at a dollar store.

■ Prepare for next year. Start a holiday savings account and add to each month. Then, throughout the year, hit retailers' clearance sales. You'll find great deals on gifts for 1996 and, by buying a little at a time, you'll avoid last-minute shopping next year.

Consumers who are experiencing problems paying their holiday bills should contact ACA for information on working through their financial difficulties.

Oakcrest Villas: good location at affordble price

Oakcrest Villas, an infill residential project of 24 houses on 4½ acres on Louise off Six Mile Road just west of Middlebelt, offers new in Livonia for $169,900.

Two basic floor plans, a colonial and Cape Cod, are available. Each has a three or four bedroom option and 2½ baths.

Gerish Building of Plymouth, which usually builds higher-end houses, is developing/building Oakcrest Villas.

"A lot of people know me by reputation," Art Gerish said. "Two years ago, I started diversifying a little bit. There is a market there.

"I personally feel Livonia in itself is a high-ranked community," Gerish said. "It has an excellent school system, a lot of facilities, library, parks. It's pretty awesome. It's a highly desirable place to live.

"You can't believe the traffic out here without any kind of grand opening and minimal advertising," he added.

A three-bedroom, 2½-bath Cape Cod of 1,670 square feet carries a base price of $169,900, a four-bedroom of 1,900 square feet, $173,900.

The master is on the main floor. For an extra $2,500, you get an upgraded bath in the master that includes a whirlpool tub and shower instead of just a shower.

The plan also calls for a dining room, great room/nook and kitchen.

A three-bedroom, 2½-bath colonial of 1,907 square feet is priced at $173,900, a four-bedroom of 2,100 square feet, $177,900.

Standard features in the base price of the colonial and Cape Cod include fireplace, two-car garage, full basement, first floor laundry, and dishwasher and range.

The on-site model, the four bedroom colonial, has a living room, dining room, kitchen/eating nook and family room with sloped ceiling.

The upstairs master has a walk-in closet, shower and cathedral ceiling ($1,200 premium). Two other bedrooms, each with a ceiling light, share a second full bath.

The optional fourth bedroom in the model is designed as a loft, partially opening over the family room.

"It's a neat little house, compact," Gerish said.

"It's extremely well priced," said Paul Maceri, sales rep. "Most people have opted for the fourth bedroom."

Oakcrest Villas is served by city water and sewers. It's within the boundaries of the Livonia school district. There will be sidewalks.

The property tax rate is currently $31.31 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $175,000 house in Oakcrest would pay about $2,740 the first year.

"We're getting people who are upgrading," Maceri said. "Their income is up, families are getting bigger."

"Some are also moving down, downsizing because their families have grown," Gerish said.

"They like the community, like the city," Maceri added. "We don't have a bad lot in here. Nothing backs up to a main road."

Kenneth and Sandra Hall, along with children Derrick, Stephanie, Jessica and Ashley, plan to live in a four-bedroom colonial in Oakcrest.

"The location is wonderful, the price is good, it's affordable," Sandra said. "They're nice to work with.

"It's a pretty standard colonial, a lot like we have now (in Westland) only bigger," she added. "It's roomy, what we're looking for. I've heard wonderful things about the school district."

Phil and Ellen Skender and daughter Sara will move into a Cape Cod.

"I grew up in Livonia, live in Livonia now and have a kid in Livonia schools and want to keep her there," Phil said.

"We saw an ad in the paper, went over and looked at the lots and liked what we saw. We looked at a couple of houses the builder had built in Canton and went from there. I think you're getting a quality building for a very good price per square foot.

"I like the master on the first floor," Skender added. "My daughter's getting older and she'll like being by herself upstairs."

The sales office at Oakcrest Villas, (313) 513-4924, is open 1-5 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Home builders are squaring off against insulation companies this week in a battle over the Michigan construction code.

The Senate has passed a bill that builders want. Energy engineers and insulators are fighting it fiercely this week in a House committee.

"We should not consume energy limitlessly," said Jack Gesmundo, president of the national Energy Efficient Building Association. The Delton builder and his group want to beat down Senate Bill 719 and use a new national heating code.

David Fetter, president of Q Technology in Canton and the Michigan Chapter of the Association of Engineers, puts it in consumer's terms. If the insulation industry wins, you'll pay $1,400 more for a new home of 1,500 square feet. But you'll save $51 a month in heating and utility cost, making back your investment in three years.

AAE includes facility managers, electrical engineers, energy managers and materials procurement people. Not only homeowners but commercial building owners would save in the long run if high insulating standards win, Fetter said.

Home builders are fighting back through SB 719, sponsored by Sen. Mike Rogers, R-Howell, and co-sponsored by 15 other Republican senators, including Loren Bennett of Canton, Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion and Michael Bouchard of Birmingham.

SB 719 is on a fast track — introduced Oct. 5, passed 33-2 by the Senate on Nov. 1 and scheduled for action in the House Regulatory Affairs Committee this week.

■ 'People don't analyze the total operating cost of a home. There are utility and heating costs, not just the mortgage.'

Jack Gesmundo

Rogers and the home builders make these arguments for dumping the high-insulation standards:

■ It's just bureaucratic restriction that prevents the buyer from having more window space if he wants it.

■ The up-front cost of high insulation was underestimated by the insulators. A $2,000 increase in the purchase price — when financed by a 30-year, 8 percent mortgage — is really $5,300 total.

■ Builders argue the $51 a month savings in energy and utilities is exaggerated. One builder said the savings are really $5 a month and would take the buyer 60 years to recoup.

The pro-insulation side said builders and buyers need to think out the problem more clearly.

"Most of my clients want energy efficiency in a home," said Gesmundo of the Energy Efficient Building Association. "People

Insulation

don't analyze the total operating cost of a home. There are utility and heating costs, not just the mortgage.

"The construction industry is conservative — 'If we don't all do it, I'm not going to do it. If my grandfather didn't do it, I'm not going to do it,' " Gesmundo said, summing up the builders' attitude.

Following the codes and bills is a legalistic nightmare. Here is a simple guide:

1980 — the state Building Code is amended to adopt insulating standards set by the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers ASHRAE.

1993 — a Model Energy Code (MEC) passed by the U.S. Congress takes effect.

Mid-1995 — the Michigan Construction Code Commission adopts the Model Energy Code. It's approved by the JCAR, the Legislature's Joint Committee on Administrative Rules, after a battle from home builders.

October 1995 — Rogers introduces his SB 719 to require the State Construction Commission to use the 1980 ASRAE code.

Senate passage of the bill shows the Michigan Association of Home Builders' clout. If SB 719 is enacted, it would be the only limitation on the Construction Commission's power to adopt "nationally recognized model codes."

SB 719 itself tells the Construction Commission to use only the ASHRAE code of 1980.

Otherwise, the law continues to empower the Construction Commission to promulgate rules affecting:

- Construction, use and occupation of buildings and structures, including land area incidental to the buildings and structures.
- Manufacture and installation of building components and equipment
- Construction, and installation of pre-manufactured units, the standards and requirements for materials to be used in connection with the units, and other requirements relating to the safety, including safety from fire, and sanitation faciltiities of the buildings and structures."

CLARIFICATION

It was incorrectly implied in the Bridge Valley profile of Nov. 24 that the Clarkston development is to be condominiums. In fact, Bridge Valley is single family platted lots.

Quality control: J.D. Candler Roofing trains its crews on top of its own building.

Roofers learn on the roof

Of life's three basic necessities — food, clothing and shelter — we tend to think least about the roof over our heads. That is, until it leaks.

A sound roof is something everyone takes for granted.

When Kreichelt acquired Candler Roofing in 1984, he learned very quickly that work habits, which affect final quality, varied greatly from contractor to contractor.

Each seemed to have his own way of putting on a shingled roof. Some did a great job, while others did poor work. This variation in quality was due mostly to the fact that crews weren't properly trained in good roofing practices, he found.

Safety also has been a major concern. In recent years, state and federal governments have mandated strict regulations that roofers must follow.

"Since work habits impact both quality and safety, it became clear to us that improvements in both areas could only come about by instituting standard ways of doing things," Kreichelt said.

So Candler Roofing trains its own roofers on its roof.

Before working on residential jobs, Kreichelt's crews undergo an orientation period on the roof.

There, they have the opportunity to look at specific details common to the average roof and to acquire the skiis necessary for completing a quality job.

Most roofs fail because of poor workmanship on the perimeter edge, the starter at the lower edge of the roof, penetrations through the roof and flashing.

"It's not the shingles, it's the detail work," said Chuck Yannatta, general superintendent for Candler Roofing. "We're working to expand each worker's knowledge and instill good work and safety habits."

Woman hits right note with home business

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

After suffering a hand injury that ended her ability to do her factory job, a Westland woman searched around for a business she could start at home.

Now Patricia Pelto has started a service in her Westland home called Synchronized Technological Audio Reproductions Services Inc., soon to be renamed P.L.P. Productions Inc.

She's offering several services including "burning" information and music on to compact discs and CD/Rom. She also has a computer on which she offers work in graphic design, printouts and promotional portfolios. Her brother helped her get set up with the equipment. And, less than a year since incorporating she has had her first success story.

Country musician Ernie Mindel had recorded his work on cassette tape and came to Pelto requesting the work be put on CD. He sent the CD, called "Whispers in the Wind", to Heartland Records, where he won a contract. "He was ecstatic," Pelto said.

For Pelto putting music on CDs is somewhat ironic. "We grew up with music in the house," she said. She also had an interest in performing music, until she ended up a teen-age mother.

After that she gave up music and held various jobs until she found a factory job. That ended when she suffered a hand-crush injury in 1990.

The injury ended her ability to work at the factory as well as her ability to play any musical instruments.

At the time of her injury she had been studying robotics, but found she couldn't continue. So many things turned out to be a dead end that she turned back to her love of music.

Since getting started she has taken on an associate, Jeannette Paul, who is an unemployed, single mother. "The father of my baby kicked me out when I was pregnant. I had to get on welfare," Paul said. But she's glad to be working with Pelto. "She's kind of inspiring me with her business," said Paul, who is volunteering her work.

Home business: Patricia Pelto (left) runs Synchronized Technological Audio Reproductions Services Inc., soon to be P.L.P. Productions, from her home in Westland. Associate Jeannette Paul (right) has been learning the business.

Pelto said she's seen Paul develop her artistic ability by learning computer skills.

"It really kept my mind off my problems," Paul said.

Pelto says she has sympathy for Paul because she came from a similar situation. Now she says other people, especially mothers, on welfare should consider going into business.

Going into business, has meant Pelto can be there when her daughter, now age 13, needs her.

She gets out the word about her business through ads in unions guides, direct mailing, telephone marketing and word of mouth.

Pelto says she has a lot of friends in the music industry who seem intent on turning her into an agent, but she doesn't record the original music or offer studio time. She refers musicians to a studio.

The artist must supply a ready-made tape and sign a form saying it's original music before Pelto will make a CD.

In addition to local musicians she's also had church choruses seek her services.

The cost to make an audio CD is $50, and once the CD is made it's $30 to make duplicates. To put data on CD/Rom it's $125.

Patricia Pelto can be reached at (313) 595-9111. Her pager number is (313) 599-6707.

Set priorities to teach kids money management

BETH ALLEN

Teaching children money management skills is not easy. The first mistake most parents make is not starting early enough.

Another mistake can develop when a parent gives in too often at a child's request while shopping. When the parent's budget won't allow a lot of discretionary spending this can mean disaster.

When should a parent start teaching children money management skills? The sooner the better.

As parents take their toddlers shopping it's easy to buy small inexpensive toys. As the child begins to get older, the toys become more expensive. Family budgets can usually afford small gifts and some discretionary spending. When the toys or clothes become more pricey that's when problems start to arise.

It is not uncommon for parents at this point to tell their children they "can't afford" the item rather than say no. It does not take a child long to realize if their parents want something they buy it.

Parents have no problem whipping out their charge cards, writing a check, or finding some other way to pay. What the child needs to understand is that what the parents are buying is probably not a luxury, but a necessity for the family or household.

What parents should be prepared to say is the truth, the item their child wants to purchase is not a priority for them. This is the first lesson on managing money, setting priorities.

■ As parents take their toddlers shopping it's easy to buy small inexpensive toys. As the child begins to get older, the toys become more expensive. Family budgets can usually afford small gifts and some discretionary spending. When the toys or clothes become more pricey that's when problems start to arise.

Not setting priorities in spending at a young age sets the stage for poor money management skills later in life. Instead of making an excuse or saying no, it is best to explain why. The answer starts with the possibility of needing the money for other expenses that are a necessity.

I remember one day after shopping at the grocery store with my son who was about 2 years old at the time.

He came home very upset with me. For the first time I didn't buy him a Golden Book or small toy on our trip.

The question was asked why didn't I buy him anything? As difficult as it was, I tried to explain to him I did buy him something. He got fruits, vegetables, cereal, cookies and other good stuff. That was responded to with cries and pleading.

It has taken years, but my son now understands that there is more to life than toys. Spending money for all of us should begin with what we need and what are necessities for life.

If we have money left after meeting our life's basic needs, then we can move on to our wants.

For small children, their basic needs are already met and they have already moved on to getting their desires without having to learn the lessons needed to set priorities for the basics.

It would be nice if we could all get what we want when we want it, regardless of cost. That's not practical for most of us. The lessons of spending money should start with fulfilling our basic life's needs and coordinating the priorities that accompany it.

Remember the next time your child asks you for something when you're shopping before you give the usual response of "can't afford," think about the real reason for saying no. Then communicate that message to your child. A lifelong lesson will be necessary, but it will pay off.

Visit O&E On-line's web site; it changes weekly

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

Quite a few changes have occurred on O&E On-Line's web site and some more major changes are in store when the New Year arrives.

A few months ago I wrote about the RealNet service, a very useful real estate web site with powerful search capabilities. Anyone in the new home market can search on-line for purchase possibilities with the greatest of ease. The site also includes articles on new subdivisions written by O&E real estate writer Doug Funke. If you haven't visited RealNet in recent weeks, return to http://oeonline.com/realnet.html.

There's also the Cyberjail feature I wrote about a few weeks ago. Other offerings include: 8 Days a Week, a large listing of entertainment events in Southeast Michigan; a Birmingham Restaurants site; personals; the chance to place classifieds in O&E newspapers; system announcements; and several other options.

A great deal of content also has been added to our web site at the Newsstand, which can be accessed at http://oeonline.com/news.html. Surfers with a graphical web browser will notice a horizontal "Community News" graphic across the top. Click on the graphic and you will be provided with a selection of that week's community news from the 15 Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

One advantage, of course, is that on-line you can read stories from 15 communities in O&E Land without having to buy 15 separate newspapers. Another is that sometimes you can read related stories from various communities that are grouped together. A recent example was the assassination of Yitzhak Rabin. Stories from four of our O&E newspapers were grouped under one heading for ease of access and comparison. A similar approach was taken on a lighter subject, the Beatles. You also can read a news story on-line and link to a related story from a week or two before for background. "Community News" is refreshed weekly with a new selection of stories, so make a return visit each week.

■ One advantage, of course, is that on-line you can read stories from 15 communities in O&E Land without having to buy 15 separate newspapers. Another is that sometimes you can read related stories from various communities that are grouped together.

The Newsstand also offers a sports link that includes schedules of upcoming prep athletic events for Wayne and Oakland counties, Al Harrison's bowling column, Bill Parker's outdoors column, an outdoors activities calendar, sometimes prep standings, and season information for hunters. Then there are some links to national sports sites.

Among the columnists on-line are Philip H. Power, Tim Richard, Jack Gladden, Phil Sherman, Emory Daniels and Sid Mittra, with David Mulley being added very soon. Each column is refreshed weekly and has an archive site of past columns.

There's also a dining-out feature that contains information on area restaurants and reviews of those restaurants by Observer & Eccentric writers. In the near future the Newsstand will include a recipe web site featuring the weekly Taste Buds columns of chef Larry Janes; the O&E Recipe Box, a collection of recipes that have appeared in our newspapers; and links to recipe sites on the Internet. The dining-out and recipe sites also are refreshed weekly.

That's really quite a bit of local content that on-liners may be missing out on if they haven't added the O&E web site to their bookmarks. Once you make that trip, return often because the content is changed weekly and so there's much that the casual visitor will miss.

Save yourself some time rummaging through past issues for a particular column, restaurant review, or recipe. And you can print out recipes or save them to a disk for future use. If there are features you'd like added, or if there are suggestions you'd like to make, send them to newsroom@oeonline.com.

There's some other exciting news I want to share with you in the weeks ahead about special Birmingham and Livonia web sites. But it is now after Thanksgiving, so any time now . . .

You can direct questions to Emory Daniels by E-mail at emory@oeonline.com or by fax at 591-7279. To sign up for O&E On-Line, dial (313)591-0903, at "log-in" prompt type "new" and at "Key:" prompt type GL6NY2. Past columns may be accessed on-line at http://oeonline.com/(tilde mark)emoryd/archive.html.

■ PRECISION TUNE

Precision Tune, a car care center on the southeast corner of Five Mile and Middlebelt in Livonia, opened on Nov. 27. The new Precision Tune will provide diagnostics, repair, brake service, and maintenance of all systems related to engine performance. "Consumers are paying for new car purchases over longer periods and are taking better care of their cars to ensure they'll last longer," said owner Kathy Spencer. "That's the reason why we focus on educating consumers about preventive maintenance."

"Consumer demand for one-stop shopping in auto services has increased, along with a heightened concern for quality work and skilled mechanics," Spencer said. "We strive to meet that demand by having technicians available to answer customers' questions, by providing customers with a written estimate before work is performed and by guaranteeing much of our work for 12 months/12,000 miles."

Three local volunteers have been nominated for a Citizens Insurance Seniors Award.

"It is inspiring to see how much is given, how much is accomplished through the efforts of this year's nominees," said Peter Logan, corporate communications manager for Citizens Insurance. "We are glad to offer some recognition to these outstanding men and women who brighten the lives of many others."

This year, more than 170 men and women across the state have been nominated by friends, volunteer organizations, business associates and representatives of service agencies.

A panel of judges representing business and public agencies will choose 10 finalists to receive Citizens Insurance Senior Awards. Each recipient will win a $500 cash award and a $500 donation to the charity of his or her choice.

Workshop to focus on waste, efficiency

Helping companies and organizations reduce waste and increase energy efficiency is the goal of a Dec. 14 environmental assistance initiative in Livonia coordinated by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

The daylong Waste Reduction and Energy Efficiency Workshop is coordinated by the DEQ's Environmental Assistance Division and the American Automobile Manufacturers Association.

It is at Burton Manor, 27777 Schoolcraft, Livonia.

"The workshop will provide valuable up-to-date information on waste reduction technologies for companies and organizations interested in working cleaner while also lowering costs," DEQ Director Russell Harding said. "We are committed to providing the regulated community with the assistance it needs to improve the environment through effective pollution prevention practices."

"We are pleased to support and provide this opportunity to automotive suppliers," said Larry Slimak, director of AAMA's Facility Environment Department. "There is a wealth of information packed into this valuable event."

The workshop offers five consecutive information tracks:

- Technical sessions: ISO 14000; total cost assessment for pollution prevention; auto project case studies; design of returnables to optimize material handling; printing industry case study; and metal finishers benchmarking.
- Waste reduction resources: how to develop a waste reduction program; how to conduct a waste assessment; results of company waste assessments; and waste reduction coalitions.
- Energy efficiency: energy efficient electrical space conditioning technologies; industrial power quality concerns; advantages of using a natural gas air conditioning system; cost-effective gas efficient case studies; GM's motor challenge; and accelerated curing of applied finishes.
- Clean air/clean water: "Ozone Action" in southeast Michigan; NESHAP standards for halogenated solvent cleaners; Rouge River National Wet Weather Demonstration Project; mercury pollution prevention; and Title V renewable operating permit program.
- Innovative technologies: recycling automotive shredder residue; recycling of mixed color thermoplastics; recycling of polyurethane RIM; and separation technologies.

Other cosponsors are AEP-Michigan, the city of Detroit Water and Sewerage Department, Consumers Power Co., Detroit Edison Co., Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, Michigan Association of Metal Finishers, Michigan Department of Commerce — Public Service Commission, Michigan Manufacturers Association, Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association of Canada, Resource Recycling Systems Inc., Society of Manufacturing Engineers, Wayne County Department of Environment, and Wayne State University.

To register, call the Environmental Assistance Center at 1-800-662-9278. The fee is $50. For more information, call Barb Spitzley at (313) 373-9283.

Plymouth-based firm wins change award

Freudenberg-NOK, a Plymouth-based automotive supplier, has won the newly created Change Management Award.

Freudenberg-NOK was presented with the honor in November during a ceremony held in conjunction with the Change Management Executive Forum at the Westin Hotel in Detroit.

The Change Management Award recognizes Freudenberg-NOK for its awareness of and attention to the ways in which employees are affected by culture change in the workplace. The company has undergone a companywide culture change by implementing a program called GROWTTH, or Get Rid of Waste Through Team Harmony. The program has involved all 3,600 Freudenberg-NOK employees and has helped the company's 14 facilities in North America to boost productivity, enhance quality and speed delivery.

"Receiving the first-ever Change Management Award is certainly a great honor, not only for Freudenberg-NOK, but also for our dedicated employees who have openly embraced our continuous improvement lean systems program," said Joseph C. Day, Freudenberg-NOK chief executive officer. "This dedication has already helped us reach remarkable heights, and is the foundation for ensuring our long-term growth."

According to Day, the GROWTTH program has had significant bottom-line impact since its start in late 1992:

- Saving the company more than $13 million;
- Reducing production lead time by 50 percent;
- Boosting productivity 52 percent;
- Reducing work-in-process inventory 85 percent;
- Decreasing start-to-finish cycle time 78 percent;
- Cutting OSHA reportable accidents in half, and
- Slashing workers compensation costs by 67 percent.

Freudenberg-NOK is part of a network formed between parent companies Freudenberg & Company of Germany and NOK Corporation of Japan.

Retirement resources

Financial planners offer 10 steps to avoid crisis

Chances are, Americans fear not being able to retire comfortably more than the threat of a nuclear attack.

The Personal Financial Planning Division of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) would like to help put those retirement fears to rest, and offers the following 10 steps that individuals can start taking right now to avoid a retirement crisis:

1. Set your nest egg goal. Financial planning experts estimate workers need 60 to 80 percent of their present income to meet their financial needs during retirement. Therefore, you need to determine how much income you'll need to make the most of your retirement years. You'll need to look closely at what you can expect your retirement expenses will be to make an informed decision on what your retirement income should be.

2. Know your sources of retirement income. There are three main sources of retirement income:

■ Social Security. Request a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement from the Social Security Administration by calling (800) 772-1213 (Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.) and asking for Form SSA-7004. The best times to call are early in the morning or late in the afternoon, as well as late in the week toward the end of the month. The PEBES shows your Social Security earnings history, estimates how much you paid in Social Security taxes and your future benefits, and explains how to qualify for benefits.

■ Retirement Plans. Companies today are moving away from pension programs that promise workers a certain monthly benefit based on salary earned and years worked (defined benefit plans). Instead, companies are offering employees the chance to invest in 401K plans, or defined contribution plans, which offer portability as workers move from job to job, but place more responsibility on the individual because it is the worker's choice whether and how much to allocate from his/her paycheck to the plan and generally how that money will be invested. Ask your human resources department or plan administrator for information about your company's pension plan(s) and an estimate of what your benefits will be.

■ Personal Investments. These include Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs), stocks, bonds and savings accounts. Inventory what you've got.

3. Calculate your monthly savings. If you have a shortfall between what you'll need and what you've estimated from the above income sources, figure out how much more you need to save each month to build your nest egg. Make your retirement investment the first bill you pay each month.

4. Max out. Build an adequate savings and asset base from which your retirement will be launched by taking full advantage of tax-deferred savings options — such as 401K plans, IRAs and 403B plans — by putting in as much as you can afford, up to the legal limit. Self-employed individuals can set up a Simplified Employee Pension or Keogh plan. Establishment of such a plan requires much thought and consideration to ensure a proper match of your objectives to the right plan.

5. Start young. Because of the "magic of compounding," the earlier you start saving for retirement the less money you'll have to save each month. If an individual in her 20's opens an IRA investing $2,000 per year, which earns 10 percent compounded annually, and she does not withdraw any funds prematurely, at the end of 20 years the balance would be $126,005.

6. Insure yourself against the unexpected. Make sure you are adequately insured for risks that can eat up your life savings, such as medical expenses and long-term and personal liability. Disaster can gobble up your savings.

7. Diversify your assets. Don't risk your nest egg with just one investment. Some retirement plans have foundered because they were built on owning shares of stock in the company for which employees worked. Instead, for example, aim to own shares of a few well-run mutual funds that use different investment strategies.

8. Hands Off! Don't borrow from your retirement savings for immediate needs.

9. Get smart about investing. Educate yourself about different investment options by reading a book, using a computer software program, or attending seminars. Tailor your investment portfolio to your stage of life. The younger you are the more aggressive your investments can be because you'll have many years to recoup a loss should you incur one. Unless you take some risks, your investments may not grow significantly, or worse, may not keep pace with inflation. As you grow older, you should gradually shift your portfolio into more conservative investments such as growth and income mutual funds and income-oriented stocks.

10. Ask a Certified Public Accountant. CPAs, long recognized as experts in tax and audit work, are also trusted resources for knowledgeable solutions to business and financial planning needs. With the help of your CPA, you can make your future clearer and brighter and avoid a retirement crisis. To obtain a list of CPAs who specialize in personal financial planning, including retirement planning, contact the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants' Order Department at (800) 862-4272, and request product number G00616.

The Personal Financial Planning Division of the AICPA provides members with the information and support necessary to maintain professional competence and expertise in the area of personal planning. The division also administers the Personal Financial Specialist designation program for CPAs who specialize in personal financial planning and have successfully completed an examination, while meeting experience and other accreditation requirements.

The AICPA is the national professional organization of CPAs with more than 326,000 members in public practice, industry, government and education.

Smith Barney offers IRA brochure

Many investors have been making annual investments in their individual retirement accounts for years.

But when it comes time to begin making withdrawals, investors are baffled by the confusing array of choices, and wary of tax ramifications and possible penalties.

"To date, there has been surprisingly little information to help individuals make informed decisions. The burden of making these important decisions falls completely on the IRA owner — and the repercussions of the wrong decision are very often irrevocable," said Ellen Breslow, director of Individual Retirement Planning Services for Smith Barney.

With this in mind, Smith Barney is offering a free brochure, "The Smith Barney IRA Distribution Manual." The brochure is available by calling 1-800-233-7833.

Smith Barney's "IRA Distribution Manual" helps investors:

■ Understand the IRA withdrawal rules — receive income from an IRA starting 59½, without penalty;

■ Avoid unnecessary taxes and penalties that may have an impact on an IRA;

■ Designate a beneficiary for an IRA.

"At Smith Barney, we have received thousands of inquiries from investors confused about IRA withdrawals. People assume that withdrawing money from their IRA will be as easy as investing it. We want to help them fully understand their distribution options as well as the tax liabilities and penalties they can face in the withdrawal process," Breslow said.

Smith Barney's 11,000 Financial Consultants, in nearly 500 offices across the United States, service more than 4 million client accounts representing more than $380 billion in assets. The firm provides investment products including stocks, bonds, CDs, mutual funds, IRAs, insurance and annuities. Smith Barney is a wholly owned subsidiary of Travelers Group, a diversified financial services company engaged in investment, insurance and consumer finance, with more than $113 billion in assets. Through its operating subsidiaries — Smith Barney, Travelers Insurance Companies, Commercial Credit and Primerica Financial Services — the company provides investment and consumer finance services, as well as life and property and casualty insurance.

'STOMP' MOVES TO BEAT OF A DIFFERENT DRUMMER

An American version of the percussion group Stomp has marched into Detroit with its street- and stage-wise show.

Stomp, whose influences range from British street buskers to African drumming to contemporary music and dance, celebrates the noise of the everyday by making rhythm out of ordinary objects.

The eight-member percussion group, which appeared in Detroit last year, began a return engagement at the Fisher Theatre Tuesday and will be in town through Sunday, Dec. 17. Tickets are still available for several shows.

"We basically have a language of our own, a Stomp language," said Fiona Wilkes, a member of the original British cast who is touring with an American cast.

The show is about rhythm, but it is also about movement and communication between performers, said Wilkes, who has a dance background. "Definitely now it's a (stage) show," Wilkes said. Thus the terms "cast" and "performers" instead of "band" and "musicians."

Wilkes spoke last month from Chicago's Belmont Suites hotel, where the group was staying while performing for six weeks at the Schubert Theatre as part of a U.S. tour.

The cast started in Lincoln., Neb., on Sept. 10; other stops included St. Louis, Nashville and Columbus, Ohio. Wilkes joined them in Chicago as a swing performer: She knows three roles, plus troubleshoots and gives post-performance notes to cast members.

Another cast is also on tour in the U.S., and a New York cast is appearing there.

Stomp was founded by Luke Cresswell and Steve McNicholas, who were part of the British buskers Pookiesnackenburger.

The young, frenetic cast "make rhythm out of anything we can get our hands on that makes a sound," said Cresswell. Synchronized brooms, Zippo lighters, wooden poles, trash cans, paper bags, boots, hubcaps and anything else that thumps, bumps, clicks or clacks, everything but conventional percussion instruments, is utilized in this theatrical experience that appeals to every age and generation.

Cresswell was a session percussionist and McNicholas has worked in theater. The two are involved in television and soundtrack work and have directed short films and commercials featuring Stomp.

The Chicago gig kept Stomp busy, Wilkes said, but many cast members have been out to see local bands – and the Second City comedy troupe. "Most of the time is taken up with work," she said.

For the American casts, Wilkes said, 1,000 people auditioned in 10 days.

"Stomp" has been seen on an array of national television shows including David Letterman, Jay Leno, "Good Morning America," "Live! With Regis and Kathie Lee," and "Dateline NBC."

The 8 p.m. Stomp shows on Saturday, Dec. 9, and Saturday, Dec. 16, are sold out. Tickets, as of Wednesday, were available for other shows – 8 p.m. Dec. 7 and Dec. 8 and Dec. 12-15, and 2 p.m. matinees on Dec. 9, 10, 16 and 17 (Saturdays and Sundays).

Tickets can be purchased at the Fisher box office and all Ticketmaster outlets. To charge by phone, call (810) 645-6666. For more information, call (313) 872-1000, Ext. 0.

EXHIBITION

Show spotlights Michigan artists

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

For a third straight year, Canton Project Arts, the township's official arts council, spotlights the best and the brightest of southeast Michigan artists in a gallery style exhibition continuing through Dec. 10 at Summit on the Park in Canton Township. The 55 piece fine arts showing features the work of artists chosen from more than 200 entries.

According to Mary Stephenson, a former assistant curator of 20th century art at the Detroit Institute of Arts who served as juror for the competition, the chosen works display an "authenticity, uniqueness and/or level of mastery that extends beyond the use of the medium." Stephenson, director of the Sisson Gallery at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn, awarded a total of $1,500 in cash prizes based on the premise, each made a strong personal or intellectual statement on the part of the artist. All winners were chosen based on slides submitted by the artists.

A member of the Board of Governors of the University of Michigan's School of Art, Stephenson awarded Best of Show ($700) to Qian Wang of Canton Township for the oil painting titled "Winter on Fox." In the piece, Wang uses light and shadows to effectively portray the quietness of a neighborhood on a snow-filled winter day.

Founded in 1993, Canton Project Arts aims to make art visible and enjoyable for the community by providing artists with opportunities to display their talents in Canton Township. This annual exhibition does just that by showcasing a variety of mediums from painting to photography and ceramics.

"We're excited about the caliber of art. We did a lot of active recruiting this year by placing posters and applications in galleries and arts related businesses in Wayne and Oakland counties," said Tim Haber, show co-chair with Mary Lou Burton.

Soda fountain revisits nifty '50s

Soda Jerk, 1456 Sheldon Road, Plymouth, (313) 459-6182. Open 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday; 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday; 1-9 p.m. Sunday.

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

Tutti frutti, oh Rudy, the jukebox is jumpin' at The Soda Jerk, a 1950s-style soda fountain that recently opened its doors in Plymouth. Owner Nancy McKeon has created some serious time warpage here.

You can sit at the long, gleaming aqua counter or in one of the flamingo-pink booths. You can tap your toes on the black and white tiled floor while the jukebox plays "Jail House Rock." Or you can gaze dreamily at pictures of Marilyn and Elvis while sipping a "Lime Ricky" or digging into an "Earth Angel" sundae.

At The Soda Jerk, vintage '50s decor has been raised to an art form, especially the counter. Its base is inset with glass blocks that light up at night.

"This is cool. Between the lights and the music, you can gauge the crowd. If they're real boisterous, you can put on 'Sea of Love' or 'Duke of Earl.' Then I flip on the neon and they just start dancing and everyone is up again," said McKeon.

Dancing? Groovy! the effervescent McKeon put her staff through two months of dance lessons. Her customers love the spontaneous floor shows and often take pictures. McKeon's 10-year-old daughter, Kathy, knows all the dances. "I like the 'Elvis Rock' the best. I like the one part where you get to twist your leg. It's a neat step," she said.

Sandy Tassell of Plymouth, a self-described Baby Boomer, really digs The Soda Jerk. She stops by two or three times a week. Over a burger and fries, she said. "My husband, Roger, and I think they have the best chocolate malts in town. I love it. The pictures on the wall, the color scheme. I also love '50s and '60s music. When they get out on the dance floor and dance everybody loves it."

So far, everybody loves The Soda Jerk. "A lot of people regard the '50s as the last good time in this country," said McKeon. "When have you ever known of anything that three generations have agreed upon? Seniors love it. They love to play the 'Tennessee Waltz.' The Baby Boomers love it, and the teenagers think they have discovered something so hot!"

"It's just different. There's no other place around here like this," said Lisa Boyer, 19, of Canton. Her friend, Sherri Wood, 28 of Farmington Hills, likes the ice cream. "It's delish! My favorite is cookies and cream with raspberry topping."

"Canton Project Arts is a young group but we're well on our way to having Canton recognized as an art community presenting a high quality show. We had high caliber work last year and this year's show tops that."

Added Mary Lou Burton, "we hope that the exhibitions will eventually open the door for more art in the community."

Due to its' location in the township hall the first two art exhibitions lasted only two days. With the completion of the Summit on the Park community center, show visitors are able to enjoy the talents of local artists for nearly 10 days. Eventually, Canton Project Arts hopes to also host artist-of-the-month exhibits at the Summit in addition to arts education programming.

A fine arts major in college, Burton believes art plays a major role in developing well-rounded adults.

"I've dragged my kids to exhibits since they were young. If you don't have the opportunity to participate in art, you never learn to appreciate it. I've always exposed my kids to art. With art you see things that awaken and excite you," said Burton.

"Thanks to volunteers like Cheryl Statts, Diane Falten, Glone Brunner, Ilene Tarkington, and Sharon Dillenbeck we've been able to bring a fine art exhibition to Canton but we need more community involvement."

Up until two years ago, little if any fine art activities existed in Canton Township. Briefly between 1989 and 1991, the Canton Community Foundation's arts council presented a few arts programs. Not until early 1993 when Canton Township trustees budgeted $5,000 did Canton Project Arts begin to develop and encourage the arts in the community.

Lucky reader wins trip to Las Vegas

Zeda Nathan of Farmington Hills won our "luckiest thing that ever happened to you" contest, and will be traveling to Las Vegas, Dec. 12-13, courtesy of Hamilton, Miller, Hudson & Fayne Travel Corp. in Southfield.

Here's Nathan's story.

"Last October, I was invited into the home of a woman whose wallet I had found," wrote Nathan. "On the wall was a picture of this lady, her cousin and my friend! Kay-Kay (her nickname) and I will reunite this spring. The last time I saw my friend was 30 years ago."

Our special thanks to the over 100 readers who entered our contest. We enjoyed reading your heartwarming stories.

Journey to see holiday lights

■ Grand Traverse Resort, in Acme near Grand Traverse Bay, is hosting its eighth annual Northwoods Festival of Lights December 15-16 and 22-23.

The lighting display on the resort grounds, featuring a fantasy forest and thousands of lights, is free and open to the public.

The festival's main event will be a dinner — a traditional holiday feast — and a Christmas musical revue on each of the three Saturday evenings. The show will feature holiday music and dance by a 12-member ensemble from In Motion Productions.

Weekend packages that include a room for two nights, the dinner and show and a Sunday brunch start at $140 per person, double occupancy. Call the resort at (800) 748-0303 or (616) 938-2100.

■ Battle Creek is touting its high-wattage International Festival of Lights through Sunday, Dec. 31.

The city will be illuminated 5-11 p.m. daily by displays throughout the downtown area and the Lakeview shopping district. The ZooLights Festival, at the Binder Park Zoo, will feature light displays in animal shapes and live animals in natural settings. ZooLights is open 5-9 p.m. daily through Saturday, Dec. 30, excluding Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. Admission is $2.50; children under 2 admitted free.

Other events include an exhibit of Santa styles from around the world through the years, a hologram show and a display of 15 decorated Christmas trees. Admission prices vary.

For more information, call (616) 968-1515 or (616) 963-4407.

Closer to home, the metropolitan area offers Wayne County's own Lightest, along Hines Drive in Hines Park, and the popular display at Domino's Farms, just outside Ann Arbor.

Picture your family skiing

Kids, wouldn't you like to win a winter weekend getaway for your family at Sugar Loaf? To enter our contest, draw a picture of your family on skis, and explain why you think your family should learn how to ski this winter.

Our contest is open to kids ages 3 to 12 (one entry per family). Two grand prizes, consisting of two nights resort lodging and lift tickets for a family of four will be awarded.

Ten runners-up prizes consisting of one night midweek resort lodging and lift tickets for a family of four will also be awarded.

In addition to lodging and lift tickets, the grand prize package will also include Leelanau Sands Casino Super Gaming Player Passbooks worth $50 each. While you're busy learning how to ski, ski better or race, mom and dad can take a break and visit the casino just 20 minutes away in nearby Suttons Bay.

Send entries to: Keely Wygonik, Taste and Entertainment Editor, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Inc., 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia, MI, 48150. Entries must be received by Dec. 11. For more information, call (313) 953-2105.

Winners will be announced on Dec. 21, and notified by phone.

Sugar Loaf Resort, called the "Lake Tahoe of the Midwest" offers a SKIwee (Kid's Klub) for 5-12-year-olds and Pre-SKIwee (Cub's Club) for 3- and 4-year-olds. There are special classes for all levels of ability.

'Leaving Las Vegas' potent cocktail

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

In "Leaving Las Vegas," love means never having to say, "I'll change." The point becomes painfully obvious to Sarah (Elisabeth Shue), the prostitute who hooks up with Ben (Nicholas Cage), a chronic alcoholic who has come to Las Vegas to die.

Only once does she urge him to see a doctor. Usually she lets him wallow in the sauce, which he buys by the shopping cart and guzzles straight from bottle. He can only look at her with sleepy, bloodshot eyes as she leaves each night for her dangerous work.

Painful and relentlessly downbeat, "Leaving Las Vegas" leaves its mark because of its central performances and a very surprising point of view. Leaving behind a long line of Hollywood movies about alcoholism (from "Days of Wine and Roses" to "Clean and Sober"), it works more for what it doesn't do than for what it does.

Ben, for instance, doesn't deliver some long siloloquoy about how his life got to this desperate point. It's there in the face of his employer, who tells him honestly that he's sorry he has to fire him, yet gives him a substantial check which Ben will undoubtedly spend on booze.

His shattered family life? You can tell volumes from the photograph of attractive mom and son that burns atop the pile of his other possessions.

The effect is surprising from Nicholas Cage, whose performances are usually the low point of some very interesting films. Though I'm still aware of his acting, he brings an honesty to certain scenes in "Leaving Las Vegas" that must rank among the best of his career.

He's especially good (and pathetic) in a scene where, in one of her few attempts at rehabilitation, Sarah tries to make him eat a plateful of rice. "I think I'm ready for rice now," he says boyishly, though ends up using his chopsticks to pick an ice cube out of his drink.

Shue's performance, meanwhile, has its own subtleties. Sheer loneliness links her with Ben, the one person in the world more screwed up than she is. She knows he won't judge her while she, in one poignant scene, buys him both a new shirt and whiskey flask as presents.

Though Shue and Cage occupy most of the screen time, there are vivid minor characters, from a woman Ben awkwardly tries to pick up early in the film to the apartment-managing couple who finally say enough is enough and evict Sarah.

In an age where MTV directors regularly make the leap to the big screen, it's not surprising to see composer among the credits of writer/director Mike Figgis. While he doesn't fall prey to the quick-cut music video editing, he does have some scenes that benefit from hip new reworkings of old songs such as "Lonely Teardrops."

After two hours of punishment, the movie leaves us to ponder how we react to those around us headed for self-destruction. Not for all tastes, "Leaving Las Vegas" is a poignant, potent cocktail.

'Money Train' offers lots of action, but plot is confusing

By Bob Thomas
AP Newsfeatures

They're brothers — Wesley Snipes and Woody Harrelson. Not blood brothers, mind you. Woody was adopted by Wesley's mother as a young boy. So the two men grew up together, and now they're partners in the New York subway police.

That's the premise you're asked to buy in "Money Train," no more of a stretch than Arnold Schwarzenegger and Danny DeVito as "Twins." But that was comedy, and "Money Train" has so few laughs, so much action and so much confused plotting that it's sometimes hard to tell the cops from the bad guys.

Snipes and Harrelson take turns posing as reeling derelicts on subway platforms, acting as bait for potential thieves. When they goof up, which is often, they face the wrath of their choleric chief, Robert Blake.

Blake considers the subway his private fiefdom and is fanatical about the schedules of his trains.

REVIEW

A new member joins the squad, Jennifer Lopez, who proves her toughness by taking on Snipes in the gym boxing ring and landing some telling blows. Feminists might question this seeming validation of a female officer's worth.

Both men are smitten with Lopez, and that adds tension to their already rancorous relationship. (They even use a line from the old Smothers Brothers routine: "Mother always liked you best.")

Harrelson is forever goofing up with his boozing and gambling, and Snipes feels constrained to rescue him. When Harrelson is threatened by hoodlums over gambling debts, Snipes hands him $15,000 in cash. Harrelson promptly loses it to an old lady pickpocket in the subway.

The hoodlums threaten to kill his partner, and Harrelson desperately seeks a solution. Well, there's always the Money Train.

"Money Train" may find a market with lovers of the buddy action film, but it is deeply flawed. The dramatic interludes seem like lame excuses for spacing out the violence. The two stars bicker pointlessly, like actors ad-libbing in a drama class exercise.

Snipes reasserts his status as a strong presence on the screen, but Harrelson seems to be reworking his standard portrayal of a screw-up. Blake is properly mean in a role that is essentially a caricature. Lopez adds much-needed freshness; she is a genuine find.

As a director, Joseph Ruben knows how to build suspense, especially with a maniac who delights in immolating cashiers he robs. But he is unable to unravel the inconsistencies of the script, which is attributed to Doug Harrison and David Loughery.

SCREEN SCENE

■ DETROIT FILM THEATRE
Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 833-2323 for information. ($5; $4 students)

"Festival of Animation '95." 7, 9:30 p.m. Dec. 8-9; 1, 4, 7 p.m. Dec. 10. The DFT season ends with this annual compilation of contemporary animation, mostly from the United States. Among the highlights: "The Big Story," a newsroom parody featuring an animated Kirk Douglas; the Oscar-winning "Bob's Birthday;" and an encore presentation of "The Wrong Trousers," an amazing half-hour comedy thriller that could have been directed by Alfred Hitchcock.

■ MAIN ART THEATRE
118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students and matinee; $3 twilight)

"Mighty Aphrodite" (USA - 1995). Woody Allen writes, directs and stars in this story of a father obsessed with discovering the identity of his adopted son's mother. The typically eclectic cast includes Helena Bonham Carter, F. Murray Abraham, Peter Weller, and Claire Bloom.

"Carrington" (Britain - 1995). A true story set in the 1920s England about an unconventional relationship between a painter (Emma Thompson) and an older homosexual man (Jonathan Pryce) with whom she's fallen in love. Playwright Christopher Hampton takes his first stab as director.

"Leaving Las Vegas" (USA - 1995). Just in time for the holidays, Nicholas Cage plays a suicidal alcoholic who finds his soulmate in an abused call girl (Elizabeth Shue).

■ MAPLE THEATRE
4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. All titles play through at least next Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 855-9090 for information. ($6; $2.95 twilight)

"The Crossing Guard" (USA - 1995). In this intense drama written and directed by Sean Penn, an alcoholic jeweler (Jack Nicholson) and his estranged wife (Anjelica Huston) still suffer from the loss of their daughter in a car accident. What starts as a fascinating premise sinks under its own self-indulgence.

"Carrington" (Britain - 1995). See Main Art Theatre listing above.

■ MICHIGAN THEATRE
603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call (313) 668-8397. ($6; $5 students/seniors)

"Citizen Kane" (USA - 1941). 9 p.m. Dec. 11. Still the greatest film ever made, Orson Welles' stunning directorial debut chronicles the life of a powerful newspaper publisher from the points of view of the people who knew him best.

"Canadian Bacon" (USA - 1994). 9 p.m. Dec. 12-13. Flint-born Michael Moore's first feature is also among the last film's completed by John Candy. Here the president (Alan Alda) figures that war with Canada is what the U.S. economy really needs.

PLYMOUTH SPORTS SCENE

Great start

Kari Jackson's first semester at Hope College has been highly successful, athletically speaking.

The freshman member of the Flying Dutch women's swim team, a Plymouth Canton graduate and a standout in both diving and gymnastics, has already recorded team bests on the one-meter board for both six dives (196.75 points) and 11 dives (260.65 points).

The Flying Dutch are 1-0 in dual meets and won the eight-team Wheaton (Ill.) Invitational for the fourth consecutive year Dec. 2.

White Christmas contest

The Canton Parks and Recreation Services is sponsoring a unique type of event — a guaranteed white Christmas contest.

Anyone in the first grade and up, living in Canton, may enter. There is no charge. Entry forms are available at and should be sent to Canton Parks and Recreation Services, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton, Mich. 48188.

The drawing will be Wednesday, Dec. 20. The contest winner will receive just what the contest promises — a front yard of snow, which will arrive Friday, Dec. 22.

That's right. The winner receives a yard full of snow.

Cheer! Michigan

The seventh annual Holiday Cheers to You competition makes its reappearance at Macomb Community College Dec. 16, with cheerleading teams from seventh and eighth grade, freshmen, junior varsity and varsity all invited.

The nonprofit event, sponsored by Cheer! Michigan, will benefit the Rose Hill Center for Mental Health, and the K-9 Stray Rescue League.

Some 125 cheer teams and 2,500 spectators are expected to attend. The fun begins at 9 a.m. at Macomb CC and continues until 8 p.m.

Fabulous finish

Canton outlasts Wayne in battle of best

■ When titans clash, one falls. That's what happened on the opening day of the basketball season, when the two top teams in Observerland — Plymouth Canton and Wayne Memorial — met. It took two overtimes, but the Chiefs prevailed.

By Neal Zipser
Staff Writer

Even though the boys basketball season started Tuesday, there may not be a better matchup in Observerland this season than the Plymouth Canton-Wayne Memorial battle.

The visiting Chiefs pulled off a minor upset by escaping with a thrilling 64-60 double-overtime victory in the first night of action.

Dramatic finishes are nothing new to these two teams, who have faced each other in the nonleague season opener the past several seasons. The Zebras have gotten the better of Canton, including last season when Wayne won 54-52.

This season proved to be different as a confident Canton squad rallied from a four-point deficit in the first overtime to win the game.

Canton's Rob Johnson didn't think the win was too surprising. The junior forward scored a game-high 22 points and grabbed eight rebounds, including a putback that began the scoring in the second overtime and a layup that put the Chiefs up for good.

"We kind of expected to win," Johnson said. "We just wanted to come in here and gain some respect."

"This is a big win for us," Canton coach Dan Young agreed. "Wayne is a good team and one of the best in the area."

Conversely, Wayne coach Chuck Henry wasn't happy with the way his highly touted team opened its season.

"I thought this was a poorly played first game for both teams," Henry said. "Most of our offense was one pass and shoot. Even in overtime when we were up by four, it was one pass and then a shot. We just weren't disciplined enough and the lack of discipline really showed."

Johnson was also one of the Chiefs who contained Lorenzo Guess, perhaps the area's best player. The junior guard scored only nine points and didn't record his first basket until midway through the fourth quarter.

"I was surprised with the way Lorenzo struggled," Henry said. "He made as many mistakes tonight as he did in half a season last year."

In addition to Johnson, senior guard/forward Ron Hunter (19 points, 12 rebounds) gave Wayne fits throughout the game.

A three-pointer by Hunter gave the Chiefs a 38-34 lead early in the fourth quarter and a putback later by Johnson gave Canton a 42-35 advantage. Wayne countered with a 9-2 run, however, and knotted the game at 44-44 with 3:23 left in regulation.

Mach pieces together another winner at CC

By Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

When coach Tom Mach looked at the 1995 Redford Catholic Central football schedule last summer, he didn't know if the Shamrocks could survive it.

The Catholic League's realignment put the toughest AA Bracket teams into the always-rugged Central Division.

In addition to playing traditional rivals and perennial powers Brother Rice and DeLaSalle, CC had to face Detroit DePorres, Orchard Lake St. Mary and Divine Child.

Furthermore, the Shamrocks were coming off a 6-3 season — a good year for most teams but CC's least successful since 1986.

But it all turned out well for the Shamrocks, who rebounded with an undefeated season, winning all 13 games and the Class AA championship for the third time since 1990.

"When I first looked at our schedule, it seemed so hard," said Mach, the Coach of the Year in Observerland. "I didn't know if we'd be able to do it, playing so many big, emotional games against people able to beat you.

"I really have to hand it to our kids. It's really hard to do what we did this year, playing Brother Rice twice; nobody really wants do that."

Again, due to the realignment, CC played Rice in the annual Boys Bowl and later the Prep Bowl for the league championship. The Shamrocks won the first game 26-23 in overtime and the second meeting 17-7.

"That first game was one of the most emotional wins we've ever had," Mach said. "At the end of that game, with a minute-thirty to go, I don't think you could have taken too many bets on us."

The two games with Rice were the only close games CC had in the regular season, but nearly every opponent had the potential to win; thus, the Shamrocks couldn't rest on the previous week's success. In the playoffs, CC won hard-fought games with Livonia Stevenson and Troy in the early rounds and dominated the last two.

Tom Mach

■ 'We had the makings of a good team, but we had to put the pieces together and make the pieces work . . . Everyone we expected to come through did, and we had a lot of surprises from other guys.'

Tom Mach
Coach of the Year

"The way the season ended up, we did a great job, but each game, on paper going into it, was a real tough, hard game," Mach said. "There was no break. Every team was going to be a real battle, and each week it was.

"Plus, '93 was in the back of our minds all year — the fact we had a great team but lost one game and didn't get in the playoffs. Even one loss might have put us in that position; so there was that much added pressure each week."

Mach attributed much of the success to the seniors, who were committed to winning more games and preparing themselves to play each week.

"I knew we were going to be better than last year, but I didn't know how good everybody else would be," he said. "We had the makings of a good team, but we had to put the pieces together and make the pieces work.

"Everyone we expected to come through did, and we had a lot of surprises from other guys. That's the formula for winning the state. Guys you count on have to come though, but other guys on the team have to pick it up a notch."

ALL-AREA OFFENSE

Eric Curl, Stevenson: The Spartans ran the bulk of their rushing offense behind the senior tackle. Curl also starred on defense, where he had 48 tackles, including three sacks. He comes from a football family; his dad is former Michigan State All-American Ron Curl. Bowling Green, Ball State and Toledo are among the MAC schools showing interest.

"He was our pre-eminent lineman," coach Tim Gabel said. "He was absolutely dependable in every sense. Not only is he aggressive and tenacious, but he's smart and knows football. Eric is as good a high school leader as I've seen on a football team. In terms of attitude and work ethic, he set the tempo for the whole team."

Brad Donahue, Harrison: The senior center was a two-year regular and the anchor on a young, inexperienced offensive line. Donahue also started at defensive tackle; he had 70 tackles, including 24 first hits.

"He was like a coach on the field and an inspiration to the young linemen," coach John Herrington said. "He was the guy we depended on to get the blocking right up front."

Jim McFarlane, Redford CC: In one year as a starter, McFarlane established himself as one of the best centers CC has had, according to coach Tom Mach. His play up front enabled the Shamrocks to control the line of scrimmage and the ball.

"He handled everyone he went against and never had any problems with the snap," Mach said. "Centers don't get much recognition and the less you notice them the better they really are. If you bobble the snap, it has to be somebody's fault, and he didn't do that. I think he's going to have a chance to play in college."

WRESTLING

Time will tell with rebuilt Rocks

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

■ PREVIEW

Switching gears, from coaching one sport to another, has some good points, according to some of the Plymouth Salem wrestlers.

Rocks' coach Ron Krueger hasn't been nearly as gruff with them since making the change from coaching Plymouth Canton's girls swim team to coaching Salem's wrestlers.

It is wearisome for Krueger, but no doubt before the mat season reaches its midpoint, his wrestlers will be weary, too.

How good can Salem be? The Rocks surprised some by finishing second to state contender Livonia Stevenson at last year's Western Lakes Activities Association meet, then going on to win their state district title.

However, both of their WLAA champs from last season have graduated; this year's team is small in numbers, short on experience, and young.

"We've got a fine group of kids," said Krueger. "I look at these kids and I can see they all have a lot of talent. It's just going to take time getting it out of them.

There are only 20 Rocks on the varsity, with just three seniors and two juniors.

However, all five are solid. Tri-captains Jeremy Breithaupt, Dave Popeney and Clayton Walker should only get better; Breithaupt (at 151 pounds) and Walker (at 185) were both second at the WLAA meet, while Popeney placed eighth.

The two juniors, Eric Coburn and Sean Hughes, were also successful — Coburn (112) taking third in the WLAA, Hughes (100) finishing fifth.

Other promising sophomores are Daniel Morgan (100), Craig Van Camp (160), James Walker (189), Dan Hamblin, James Green, Sam Boyd and Brad Weimer. The freshmen class has promise, too, in particular Trent Jones (125-130) and Charles Hamblin (heavyweight).

Livonia Stevenson, which ruled the WLAA the past two seasons, isn't as strong this year. But both Walled Lake Western and Central are emerging, Westland John Glenn boasts a strong lineup, and Farmington could be a darkhorse.

And Salem?

"We're only going to get better, the way I look at it," said Krueger. "It takes time with young kids. You've got to be patient with them."

The veteran Salem coach also knows that it will take more than 20 wrestlers to forge another successful season. So he added his sales pitch:

"It's never too late to become a wrestler. And it doesn't cost anything."

New Canton coach faces tough task

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

■ PREVIEW.

This is hardly an ideal position to inherit, but for Ernie Krumm — the new Plymouth Canton wrestling coach — it's nothing new.

The 1985 Canton graduate (he was runner-up at the Western Lakes Activities Association Tournament at 185 pounds as a senior) has been in seemingly hopeless situations before. He took a wrestling program at Manistique HS that hadn't won a dual meet in five years and turned it into a Class C contender.

Krumm visualizes the same type of success at Canton, which he remembers having a "strong tradition."

When he was there and Dan Chrenko was coaching, it did. But for the last few years, the program floundered; last year under Ray Givens, the Chiefs won just one dual meet.

Turning the program around won't be easy, particularly when enthusiasm appears to be lacking. Canton's varsity roster numbers just 20.

"I'm trying to put it back together, at that level," Krumm said, referring to the Chrenko era. "I know what to do; I know what it takes. The question is, can I do it?"

Krumm admits he had doubts about taking the job, even with his Canton connections and eight years of coaching experience. The reason: He currently teaches at Belleville HS, where he also coaches girls track and football.

"Not being at the school was a major reservation of mine," said Krumm. "And I'm still not sure. When you're there, in the building, you can get out, you can recruit, and you can stay on top of things with your athletes."

The problems facing Krumm were substantial from the start. It wasn't just the team roster that wasn't complete; the schedule had just 11 of 16 dates filled.

Krumm took care of that, and not by filling the holes with trips to smaller, inconsequential tournaments. "We're not dodging anybody," he said. Among the tournaments he picked up are at Redford Catholic Central and South Lyon.

The roster, however, remains a huge question mark. "Not having seen them wrestle, it's hard to predict," he said.

The only certainties on the team are seniors Doug Cooper, a heavyweight who finished second at the WLAA finals last season, and Tom Keeling, who will wrestle in the 150-160 range; and sophomore Brent Buttermore, who will be in the 130s.

"There are a lot of ifs," said Krumm. "Who knows?"

Indeed. It may take some time for this team to discover some sort of identity, especially since more than half the roster consists of freshmen and sophomores.

"Once they get a little bit of experience and start to have a little bit of success, hopefully that will breed more success," Krumm said. "If we do that, people will see it and want to be part of it."

Canton committed turnovers on its first four possessions as Wayne built a 54-50 lead. Two free throws each by Hunter and junior guard Nick Hurley tied the game and sent it into the second OT.

The Chiefs took a 60-58 advantage and had a chance to expand the lead with junior guard Donte Scott at the free throw line. Scott was awarded one foul shot, when he should have received two.

The Canton bench alerted the officials of the error 12 seconds after the Scott miss, and the mistake was corrected.

The decision proved important as Scott canned the second free throw. Hurley then stole the ball in the Wayne backcourt and scored on a layup to give the Chiefs a comfortable 63-58 lead.

Hurst led the Wayne attack with 19 points. Senior guard Richard Johnson came off the bench to score 11 and Richard Rashad and Roland Patterson added eight apiece.

Senior guard Mark Bray netted 11 for Canton before he fouled out early in the fourth quarter. The loss of Bray was a concern to Young, who had earlier lost center Matt Ammons to an ankle injury.

"It hurt to lose Bray and Ammons, and I didn't think we'd hang on," Young said. "But the team showed a lot of character and I'm not sure if we would have won this game last year."

Canton hunters score hits

The firearms deer season went out with a bang and the successful hunter reports continue to roll in. Observer & Eccentric area hunters are encouraged to report their success. Please include the hunter's name and city of residence, where the deer was taken (county), means by which the deer was taken, (bow, gun, muzzleloader), and a phone number in case I need additional information. Also include any interesting facts about the hunt. Send the information to 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call me in the evenings at (810) 901-2573. Please remember to leave your phone number.

Believe it or not, a young 12-year-old takes the cake this week for the biggest buck reported. The honor goes to Clarkston's Kyle Post.

Kyle and his father Dennis ventured into Wisconsin in mid-November to participate in that state's firearms deer season. Twelve-year-olds can hunt with a gun in Wisconsin.

On Nov. 19, the second day of the season, young Kyle dropped a magnificant 14-point monster with a 20-yard shot from his 20 gauge shotgun. The five-and-a-half year old buck dressed out at 190 pounds and sported a rack with a 23½-inch spread. It was Kyle's first deer.

Dennis also bagged a trophy buck this fall. While hunting in Wyoming in October, the elder Post dropped an 8-point with a 22-inch spread. The buck was aged at three-and-a-half yeard and dressed out at 200 pounds.

■ Canton's George Fritz shot a 4-point buck during the first week of the firearms season in Michigan while hunting between Gladwin and Harrison.

■ Bob Harwood of Birmingham shot a 7-point buck on Nov. 18 while hunting private land in Alcona County.

■ Clarkston's Jim Rowland shot his fifth deer — fourth buck — in five years of hunting this fall and it certainly was a beauty. Hunting in Oakland County, Rowland dropped a 9-point that green scored 138¼ and dressed out at 200 pounds.

■ Wayne Gallagher shot a 150-pound doe in Oakland County on Nov. 18. The Southfield resident was hunting private property near a corn field when the deer appeared just after sunrise.

■ Canton's Rick Cigile bagged a 5-point at 8:15 a.m. on opening day of the firearms season. Cigile was hunting near Houghton Lake.

■ Fred Cigile, Rick's father, broke a 41-year deerless drought when he dropped a spike at 5 p.m. on opening day. At age 66, Cigile won the oldest hunter award at the Houghton Lake buck pole.

■ Chris Muncey, of Union Lake, shot a 4-point at 9:15 a.m. on opening day of the firearms season. Muncey was hunting private land near Fowlerville.

■ Rod Melzer, of Lake Orion, bagged an 8-point buck on opening day of the firearms season. melzer was hunting with a shotgun on a private farm in Lapeer County.

■ Lake Orion's Tim King shot a 3-point buck on opening day of gun season while hunting a private farm in Lapeer County.

Salem rally stings Monroe

■ BASKETBALL

For the last two seasons, a solid Plymouth Salem basketball team struggled in its opener and lost both times to Monroe.

On Tuesday, the Rocks visited Monroe for another season opener, this time with a young, inexperienced team. Maybe that was better — there was no memory of previous defeats to haunt them.

At least it turned out better for Salem, which made the trip worthwhile by posting a 56-53 triumph.

"You always wonder what's going to happen with a team that's so young, how it will react under pressure," said Salem coach Bob Brodie.

He got his answer at Monroe. The Rocks trailed by seven at the half and, early in the third quarter, the Trojans had increased that to 37-27. That's when Salem started its rally.

"We upped the pressure a bit and they couldn't handle it very well," said Brodie. "Their ballhandling was suspect."

The Rocks outscored Monroe 15-4 in the rest of the period to take a 42-41 lead into the fourth quarter. Salem could never put their adversary away, but the Trojans never caught up, either.

They came close, however. With the Rocks up by four, Monroe made one free throw and rebounded the missed second. In the final seven seconds of the game, the Trojans got off two three-point shots to tie, missing both.

Kirk Craggs' 12 points led Salem, with Nate Gray adding 11 and Andres Lopez eight. Monroe got 18 from Spencer Roecker, 16 from Scott Steinke and 10 from Matt Leach.

Salem's comeback pleased Brodie. "That was our goal," he said.

Now the Rocks get to take their second step of their season-opening, five-game road trip, visiting Southfield Friday.

■ PCA 78, W. Highland 38: Plymouth Christian Academy started its season by hosting the Eagle Kickoff Classic, and for the Eagles it was no challenge as they rolled to an easy triumph over West Highland Christian.

Heart attack claims NRA leader

BY BILL PARKER
STAFF WRITER

The tragic news swept through the outdoor community like a wildfire out of control. Thomas L. Washington, long-time executive director of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs and president of the National Rifle Association, passed away Tuesday of complications following a heart attack.

"It's a tremendous loss to the entire state because Tom was one of the greatest conservation leaders we've ever had," said MUCC president Art Dittmar, of Farmington Hills. "It's a loss not just to the state, but to the entire nation because of his work with the NRA and the National Wildlife Federation.

"But his legacy will continue," added Dittmar. "This is a very, very strong organization he has built in MUCC, and we will continue to carry the fight for natural resources in the state. And his legacy will live on in the Natural Resource Trust Fund as well, which was his brainchild. He was the chairman of that, and it will continue into the future."

According to Dittmar, Washington, 58 and the father of six, hunted on November 15, opening day of the Michigan firearms deer season, near his cabin in the Upper Peninsula. He wasn't feeling well when he awoke on the 16th and was later flown to the Oakwood Medical Center in Dearborn after suffering a heart attack. He underwent open heart surgery Monday night and passed away from complications at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Washington's career with MUCC began in 1963 when he was hired by the statewide conservation organization as an independent contractor selling ads for MUCC's magazine, Michigan Out-Of-Doors. He rose through the ranks and became executive director and publisher in 1974. He held those positions until his death. He was honored for his conservation efforts by many groups including Safari Club International and the Michigan Duck Hunters Association. He was instrumental in getting the Bottle Bill passed, which brought forth refunds on beverage bottles. He co-signed the Tribal Fishing Agreement, worked on the multi-million dollar Luddington Pump Storage Settlement, the Firearms Preemption Act, the State Park Endowment Fund and the Shooting Range Protection Act. He was also a strong supporter of MUCC's statewide education programs.

"MUCC's motto is: Conservation through Education. That was Tom's big push," added Dittmar. "He felt if we could educate people about the wise use of our natural resources that they would support conservation."

Rick Jamison was appointed acting executive director of MUCC. He will carry on in that capacity until the executive committee hires a new director.

United States Senator Spencer Abraham (R-Auburn Hills) issued the following statement upon learning of Washington's death:

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

I'm not in the habit of doing book reviews, but over the past several months I've checked out a few exceptional titles I just have to pass along. With Christmas just around the corner, maybe I can provide you with a little assistance in picking that perfect stocking stuffer for the outdoor enthusiast on your list. Most of these books are available at local book stores and sporting goods outlets or directly from the publisher.

Understanding Michigan Black Bear — The Truth about Bears and Bear Hunting is written by renown Michigan author Richard P. Smith of Marquette and available through Smith Publications, 814 Clark St. Marquette, MI 49855. Cost is $16.50 including shipping and handling

Bear hunting is under attack in Michigan. Animal-rights fanatics vow to bring a ballot initiative to the 1996 election in an effort to end 96-percent of bear hunting in Michigan. Smith separates the proven facts from the emotional fiction about bears and bear hunting. He provides readers with a detailed look at bear management and the important role hunting plays in bear management, the lifecycle of the black bear, how nuisance bears are dealt with, a history of bear attacks and a multitude of other related topics. The book details the anti-hunter's attempts to undermine hunting in the state. It's a must-read book for all Michigan hunters who needs to be informed on this critical battle we're all facing.

Opening Day is written by acclaimed Michigan author Dan Bertralan and available through Envisage Press, P.O. Box 777, East Lansing, MI 48826, (800) 799-7288. Cost is $14.67 and includes shipping and handling.

This book is an adventure/thriller set in the northern woods of the Upper Peninsula. The story focuses on "The hunting Mercers," a family of three generations of hunters. By no choice of their own the Mercers and their hunting companions turn from the hunters to the hunted. It's one of those can't-put-down books and a must in every deer camp. After reading this book you'll watch over your shoulder when entering or leaving the woods in darkness.

Great Lakes Steelhead — a Guided Tour for Fly Anglers is written by Bob Linsenman and Steve Nevala and available through The Countryman Press, P.O. Box 175AP, Woodstock, VT. 05091-0175, (800) 245-4151. Cost is $27 and includes shipping and handling.

This book provides information on steelhead fishing for the beginner or the advanced fly angler. Starting with a biography on the fish, the book takes the reader through every aspect of steelheading including equipment, techniques and basic casts, fly patterns, and a breakdown of some of the opportunities awaiting anglers on the top steelhead rivers in the Great Lakes basin. The authors interviewed 15 of the best steelhead guides around the Great Lakes who offer an abundance of insight into the thrilling sport. There are even tactical summaries and recommended equipment lists for each river covered in the book.

The Campers and Backpackers Bible is written by nationally-acclaimed Michigan author Tom Huggler and available through Outdoor Images, P.O. Box 250, Sunfield, MI. 48890, (800) 735-3476. Cost is $15.95 including shipping and handling.

If you've ever shied away from camping or backpacking because you felt you lacked the required knowledge to enjoy yourself, your time has arrived with this book. Huggler gives you all the information you need on proper equipment, techniques for everything from keeping food fresh to coping with pests, and tips on living off the land. There are sections on recreational vehicles, camping for disabled people, and camping by boat, bicycle or on foot. Huggler even includes addresses of camping equipment manufacturers and state, federal and provincial agencies to contact for information on camping and backpacking opportunities.

Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Aquinas whips Madonna

■ BASKETBALL

This was a wasted trip.

Madonna University's men's basketball team fell behind quickly at Aquinas College Tuesday and never really recovered, losing 89-63. The loss left Madonna at 2-7 for the season; Aquinas is 5-3.

Frank Zielinski, Madonna's leading scorer, did not play.

The Fighting Crusaders got 15 points from both Brandon Slone (from Plymouth Salem) and Jeff Kennedy. Kennedy also had six assists and three steals. Mike Maryanski added 11 points.

Aquinas got 29 points from Brandon Lowe and 14 from Joe Crittendon. Troy Wilbon chipped in with eight points and nine assists.

The Saints led 39-27 at the half and kept pulling away. Rebounding was the biggest difference: Aquinas grabbed 37 while limiting the Crusaders to 24.

■ GRAND RAPIDS JC 68, S'CRAFT 66: "This was a tough loss."

Glen Donahue's first words describing his Schoolcraft College team's loss to Grand Rapids CC were accurate, sure. But one thing is clear: It wasn't nearly as tough to take as the Ocelots' first loss to the same team.

On Nov. 15, SC opened its season at GRCC, and was pummeled 103-57. There was no denying the defeat came at the hands of the state's best junior college team.

And there was no denying that the Ocelots would be pointing to the rematch at SC Dec. 2, and that Donahue would use it as a yardstick to measure his team's progress.

Whether the team has improved by 44 points in 17 days is conjecture; more likely, the team that lost to GRCC by 46 in the opener wasn't as bad as it looked.

"They never had the lead until three seconds left," said Donahue.

SC's first 20 minutes may have been its best half of the season. The Ocelots held a 37-28 lead, with 11 points coming from Aaron Brown and seven more from Tim Burns.

However, SC's cushion could have, and probably should have, been greater. Brown and Burns combined to convert just 6-of-13 free throws in the first half.

Brown finished with 15 points, making 7-of-11 from the line. Burns got just two more in the second half to total nine; Jason Maschke (from Livonia Franklin) scored 10 for SC, with Dave Pavlak netting nine and Naron Burks and Tyris Williams getting eight apiece.

Malechi Allen's 18 points paced GRCC; Kris Magro added 12.

GRCC was 9-of-18 from the line, to SC's 11-of-19. The difference in the game came on the boards: Burks topped SC with 11, with Burns getting eight. Allen had 12 and Magro grabbed 11 in leading GRCC to a 47-35 rebounding advantage, including a 21-11 margin on the offensive boards.

Also, SC hit 13-of-23 floor shots (57 percent) in the first half to GRCC's 10-of-29 (34 percent), but in the second half that switched, with GRCC making 17-of-31 (55 percent) to SC's 12-of-31 (38 percent).

Lady Crusaders sharp, batter Albion

On Tuesday, they evened their record at 5-5 by trouncing Albion 84-63 at Madonna. The game marked the first time Stacey Lamphere appeared on the floor for the Crusaders.

A senior transfer from Oakland University, Lamphere — a 6-foot forward who missed the first nine games due to an eligibility question — made her presence known, scoring 15 points, grabbing nine rebounds and blocking two shots.

The game was never close. Madonna opened up a 45-24 lead by halftime and simply cruised. Freshman guard Katie Cushman had a big night for the Crusaders, pumping in 27 points, dishing out five assists and making four steals.

No one else reached double figures in scoring for Madonna, but all 12 players did score. Angie Negri and Mary Murray had eight points apiece, with Negri grabbing six boards.

Albion got 17 points from Christie Cleland and 12 from Sarah Walbridge. Livonia Stevenson product Karen Groulx had five rebounds and three points.

It wasn't difficult to find reasons why Madonna dominated. The Crusaders outboarded the Britons 41-37, caused 28 turnovers while committing just 15, and made 19-of-43 floor shots (42 percent) to Albion's 16-of-58 (27.6 percent). Indeed, the Brits were just 5-of-27 (18.5 percent) in the first half.

From start to finish, Schoolcraft College's women's team dominated Clark State (Ohio) in in the consolation finals of the Owens Tech (Toledo) Tournament Saturday. Their record improved to 5-4.

Becky Bilicki (from Livonia Ladywood) paced the Lady Ocelots with 22 points, a performance that cemented her placement on the all-tournament team. Jenny Markham (Redford Union) contributed 15 and Amy Pietila netted 12.

"The defense is coming around," said SC assistant coach Joe Miskovich. "The defense is still lacking at times."

The young Ocelots — there's just one sophomore (Pietila) on the team — displayed their shortcomings in Friday's game against host Owens Tech. On Nov. 18 at SC, the Ocelots had been walloped by Owens Tech 77-45; this was a far different game, but unfortunately the outcome was the same: an 83-81 loss.

It was a back-and-forth struggle throughout, with Tech up 39-37 at the half. With 10 seconds remaining in the game and the score tied at 81, SC had the ball. Pietila started to drive to the basket, then decided to dish the ball out to Kristi Engel (Redford Thurston).

Surprise start

Churchill clips Dearborn, 72-70

But the Chargers opened their 1995-96 boys season with 72-70 home-court victory over the Pioneers as junior forward Shawn Woloszyn tallied a game-high 22 points.

Churchill held on for the victory despite making only 13 of 27 free throws in the decisive fourth quarter.

The Chargers were 20 of 40 on the night, but Dwight Andrews helped seal the victory with a pair of free throws with 21 seconds remaining.

Dearborn answered with a three-pointer, cutting the deficit to 71-70, but senior forward Allen Polanski, who added 20 points, hit the front end of a one-and-one to give Churchill the final margin of victory.

Matt Hughes, a senior guard, chipped in with 15 points for Churchill, while 6-7 senior center Jay Van Wagner added seven points and 10 rebounds.

"They surprised us with the press early and we threw the ball away," said Churchill coach Tom Lang, whose team trailed 17-7 after one quarter. "But we we handled it much better from then on and we didn't have much trouble.

■ CLARENCEVILLE 62, S'FIELD CHRISTIAN 45: Deadly free throw shooting enabled Livonia Clarenceville to earn a season-opening victory Tuesday at Southfield Christian.

Senior guard Joe Hernandez added 15 points and five assists. He was 13 of 14 from the foul stripe, including 10 for 10 in the final period as Clarenceville outscored the Eagles, 23-11.

■ REDFORD CC 77, YPSILANTI 60: Senior guard Justin Hoener, out most of last season with a broken leg, scored 20 points and grabbed eight rebounds Tuesday, leading host Redford Catholic Central past the Braves.

Ypsilanti was led by point-guard Stephan Allen, who tallied a game-high 24 points. Howard Allen added 12, all on three-pointers.

CC led 39-23 at halftime, but Ypsi closed the gap by scoring on eight of its first 10 possessions, including four treys to open the third.

■ GARDEN CITY 78, FRANKLIN 47: The Cougars came out smoking in its boys season basketball opener Tuesday, hammering visiting Livonia Franklin.

Senior forward Tim Miller added eight points.

"We didn't play with a lot of defensive intensity," Franklin coach Larry Jackson said. "It's obvious when you give up 60-some points in three quarters. We panicked early and missed a couple of shots and some free throws."

The Cougars, hitting three 3-pointers, outscored Franklin 20-6 through one quarter and increased their lead to 43-19 at intermission.

"Franklin was playing a soft zone (defense) and it was kind of to our liking," Garden City coach Greg Williamson said. "We also shot pretty well, and when we substituted, we didn't drop off too much. We had a lot of interchangeable parts."

Cage outlook

HURON VALLEY

Head coach: Tod Bartholomew, second season.

League affiliation: Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

Season opener: Friday, Dec. 8, at the Michigan Lutheran High School Tip-Off Tournament in St. Joseph.

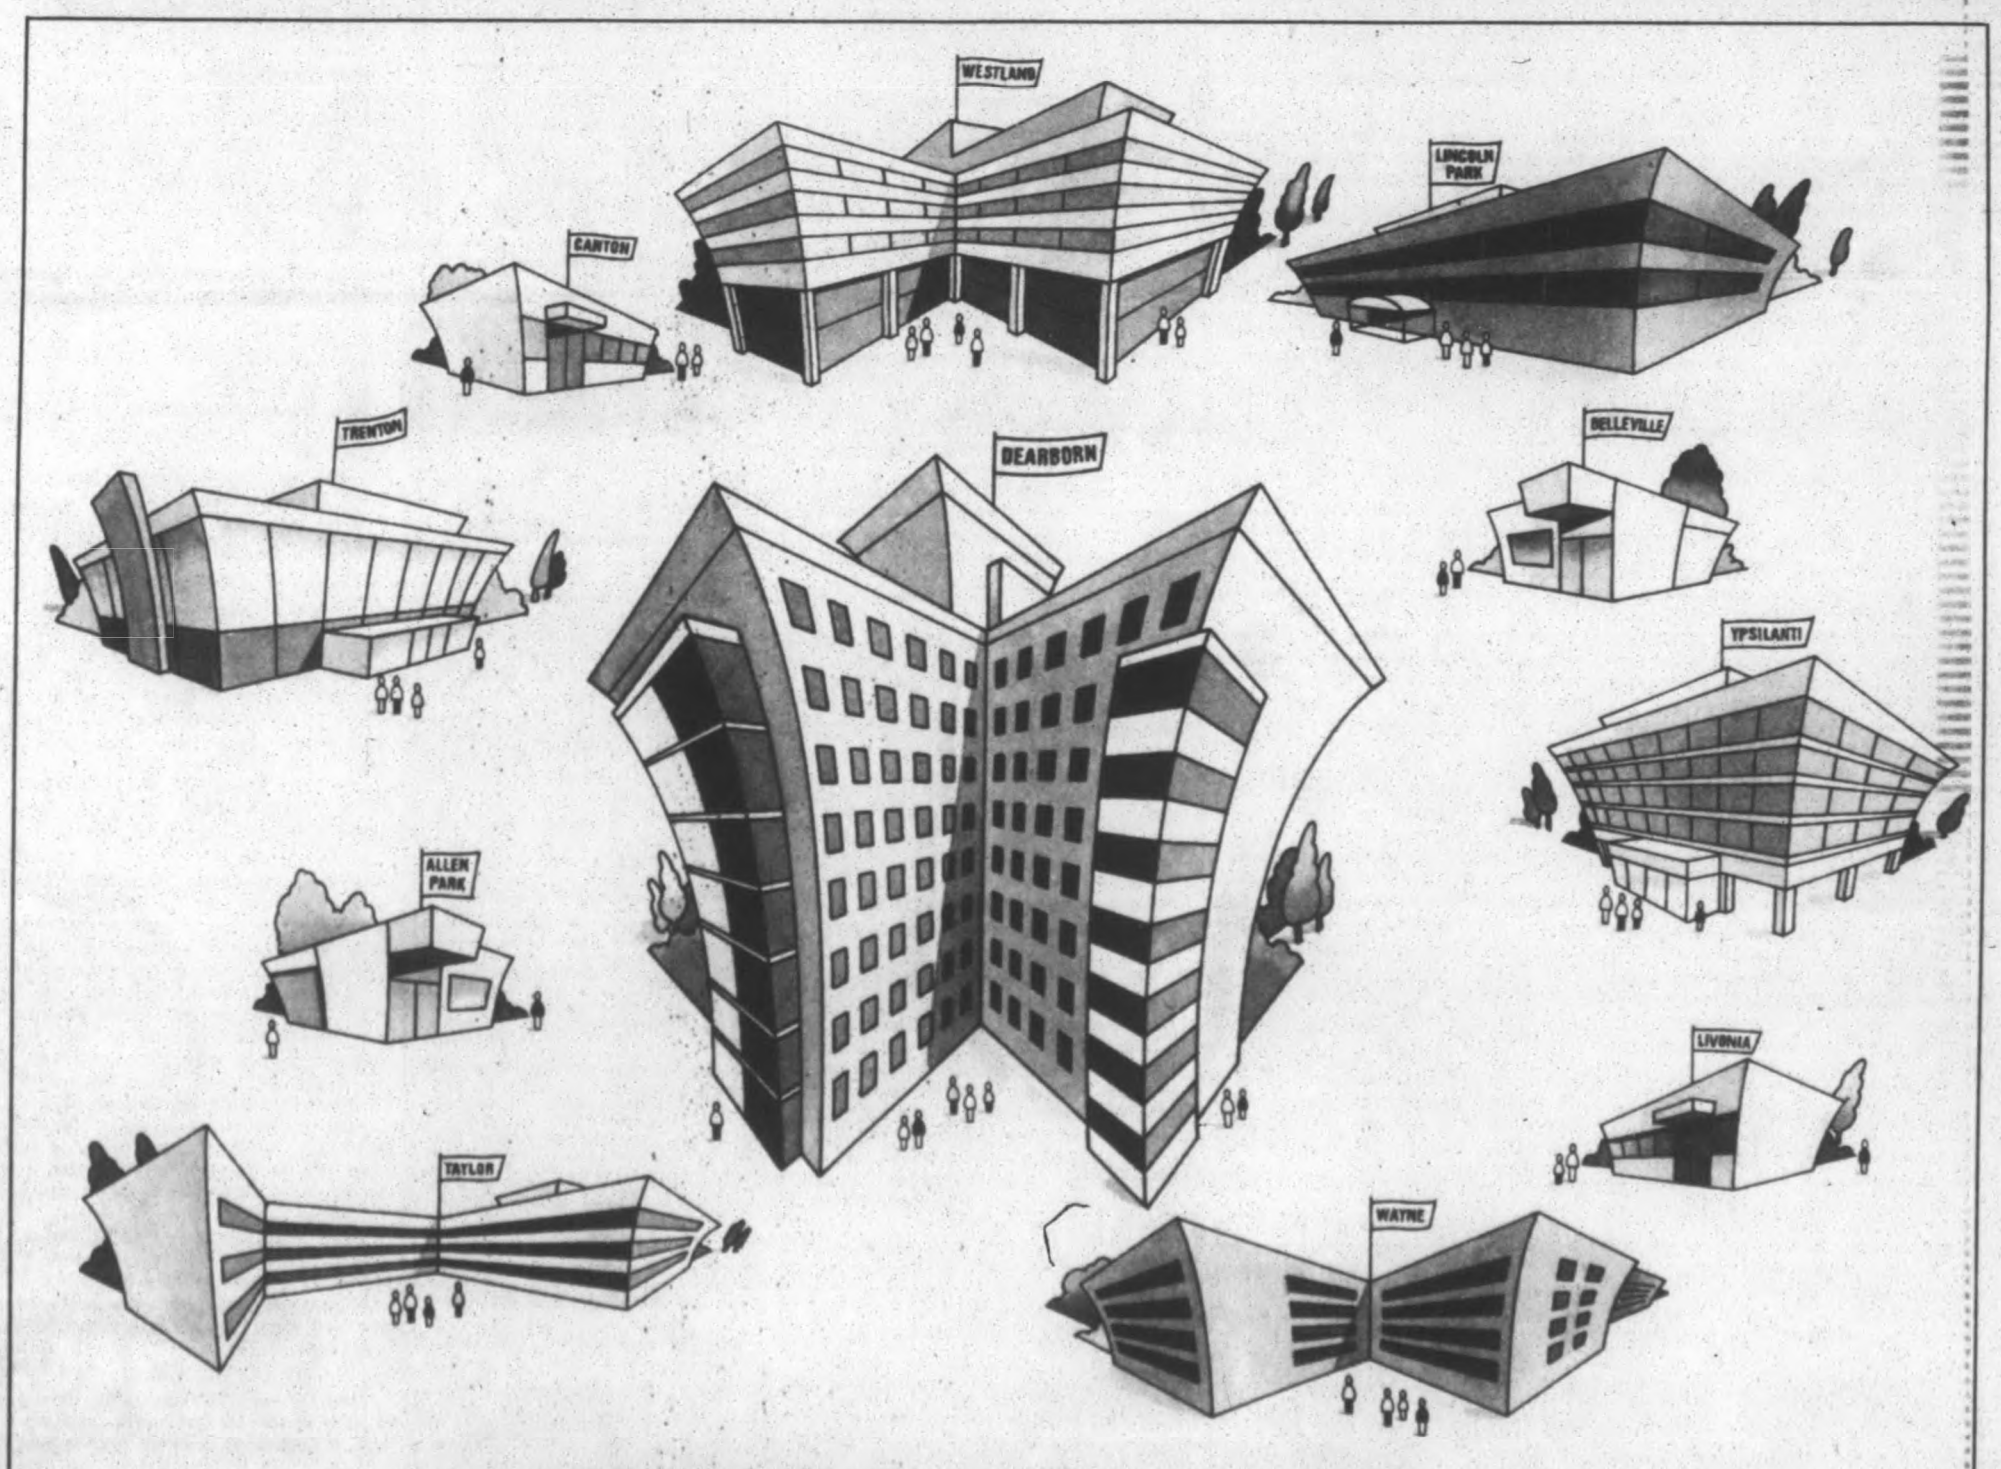
Leading returnees: Scott Ohlsson, 6-2 senior forward/center (10 ppg); Dan Zahn, 5-11 senior guard; Ben Husby, 6-2 senior forward; Josh Hoepner, 6-4 senior center.

Promising newcomers: Ken Lindeman, 6-0 senior guard/forward; John Nielson, 6-2 junior forward; Dan Whitaker, 5-10 junior guard; Curt Guiles, 5-9 junior guard; Steve Gereau, 5-8 junior guard; Mark Frederick, 6-0 junior forward; Joel Hartley, 5-8 sophomore guard; Jeremy Zahn, 5-9 sophomore guard.

Bartholomew's 1995-96 outlook: "I think we have a good chance of being competitive. We have some kids who can play, and they have good attitudes. A goal of ours is to have at least a .500 season.

"We've got to get better on defense fundamentally. And on offense, we have to work on being patient with the motion offense we will be running. We want to get the ball on our first option to Scott (Ohlsson) and pound the ball inside."



Healthcare So Good, It Had To Be Spread Around

"Oakwood" is commonly thought of as our very first facility, Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center-Dearborn. But there's more to Oakwood than that, today. Because there are more Oakwood services in a lot more places than just Dearborn today.

There's now, Oakwood Hospital Annapolis Center-Wayne; Oakwood Hospital Beyer Center-Ypsilanti; Oakwood Hospital Heritage Center-Taylor; Oakwood Hospital Seaway Center-Trenton; Oakwood Hospital Downriver Center-Lincoln Park and Oakwood Hospital Merriman Center-Westland, too. And there are over 30 healthcare and specialty centers throughout Southeastern Michigan.

These branches share the original Oakwood commitment: a dedication to first-rate medical care from some of the finest physicians available, supported by the latest diagnostic equipment and excellent support staff.

Our goal has been to provide you with high-quality healthcare where you need it most. Right where you live.

rocks had such a fine rushing game. His best performance might have been his last when he took on Holt all-stater Steve Robedeau in the Class AA final. Monnette is an A student who can name his school for academic purposes.

"Jeff many times went against a big tackle, but he seemed to handle everybody this year," coach Tom Mach said. "Some guys outweighed him by 30-40 pounds, and he did a tremendous job. In the last game, I thought he did an excellent job on their best defensive lineman."

Mike Sosnowski, Glenn: The senior tackle was a three-year varsity player and two-way starter the last two seasons. Sosnowski anchored another solid Glenn offensive line and also starred at linebacker. He had 47 first hits and 71 assists.

"Mike was one of the hardest workers on our team and one of the best leaders we've ever had in the program," coach Chuck Gordon said. "He has a tremendous work habit and was a real pleasure to coach. He's really smart; he knew what he was doing and rarely made a mistake."

Eric Gilbo, Redford CC: The senior tight end was an excellent blocker, making a big contribution to CC's running game, and he was the top receiver with 24 receptions for 303 yards and three TDs. Indiana has shown interest, as well as Ball State, Bowling Green and Toledo.

"Nobody had more than three (catches), so he was the go-to guy," coach Tom Mach said. "Eric was a great blocker; we ran a lot of times to his side. Any time we wanted to get outside he did an excellent job, giving us that opportunity by blocking the defensive end. He caught some real big passes to keep drives going; he gave us that third-down ability."

Ron Hunter, Canton: This was only the second year Hunter has played football, but college scouts have seen enough to know he can play. Hunter caught 47 passes for 875 yards and 10 TDs.

He is an All-Area basketball player but might opt to play football at the next level. He also returned two punts for TDs and one kickoff for a TD. He had three interceptions. CMU is recruiting him; MSU and NMU are interested, too.

"The kid has made so much improvement in one year, it's unbelievable," coach Bob Khoenle said. "He has great hands and great speed (4.5 in the 40). He's a threat running with the ball after he catches it, and he can jump like a kangaroo; he jumps over people and grabs the football. He's a threat every time he touches the ball."

Richard Rashad, Wayne: Rashad switched from tight end to wide receiver at the end of the '94 season, and it was a good move for all concerned. He caught 30 passes for 387 yards and seven TDs this year. A two-year, two-way starter, he had 43 tackles and three interceptions.

"He's one of those kids who can make the great catch or create a big play to get your team playing at another level," coach Chuck Howton said. "When we were playing John Glenn and the score was tied, he had a great block, and our kids played at a higher level for the rest of the game. He's a good basketball player, but I think his sport will end up being football."

Lorenzo Guess, Wayne: The junior quarterback has started since he was a freshman and holds Wayne career passing records for yards (3,200), completions (200) and TDs (31). He completed 77 of 180 passes for 1,162 yards and 10 touchdowns this year. He also rushed 89 times for 245 yards and three TDs. He played monsterback on defense and was Wayne's MVP.

"I had to agree with (Glenn coach) Chuck Gordon when he said Lorenzo is one of those kids who could probably play on Sunday," coach Chuck Howton said. "He's a terrific basketball player, but I think somewhere down the road he's going to make a commitment to football.

"He can play anywhere on defense. We could put him at noseguard and he would do well."

Rob Johnson, Canton: Johnson can do it all, according to coach Bob Khoenle, and he nearly did for the Chiefs. He completed 82 of 157 passes for nearly 1,500 yards and 11 touchdowns; he rushed 78 times for 628 yards and eight TDs. Johnson still has another year of high school ball, but Khoenle said he will make an excellent college quarterback. He also had three interceptions.

"Rob can run; he can throw well; he makes good decisions and he's a very good kid," Khoenle said. "This kid is top-grade in all areas. As much as he wants to accomplish, he has the ability to do it. He returns punts and he could return kickoffs, too, if we wanted."

John Spolsky, Redford CC: The three-year starter at fullback got the tough yards between the tackles and was the leading rusher with 1,313 yards and 16 touchdowns on 231 carries. He scored a team-high 100 points. Spolsky was one of the top defenders, too. From his noseguard position, he had 54 tackles, which included four sacks and 12 solos. He bench presses 400 pounds.

His first college choice is the Air Force Academy, but he has visited Bowling Green and has had calls from Wake Forest and other MAC schools.

"He was the heart of our football team," coach Tom Mach said. "John is an old-fashioned, Bronko Nagurski type runner. He's fast, very powerful and has tremendous determination. Even after getting hit, he doesn't stop. He drags guys for more yards and does whatever it takes to get that first down or touchdown.

"He was exactly what we needed at that noseman position. He tied up their offensive lineman and the fact they had to double team him freed up other people. He disrupted a lot of offenses."

Jason Granger, Harrison: The senior tailback had the ability to score from anywhere on the field. He rushed for 1,670 yards and 20 touchdowns on 207 attempts. He is second in career rushing with 4,056 yards. Only John Miller has more yards (4,493), but he played an extra year on the varsity and had 218 more carries.

Granger broke his brother Roy's single-game rushing record with 317 yards and is third in career scoring with 290 points. He also returned a punt, kickoff and fumble for TDs.

"He's probably the greatest big-play threat we've ever had," coach John Herrington said. "That he averaged eight yards per carry is unbelievable. This year he had to carry the offensive load and, though people were keying on him, still rushed for more than 1,600 yards."

Jake Siskosky, Farmington: The senior tailback set a new standard for future running backs at Farmington in his three-year varsity career. He holds school records for single-season (1,298 yards this year) and career (3,002) rushing and career points (213). Siskosky was the workhorse, carrying 245 times this year and 555 in his career; he had 18 rushing touchdowns this year, 34 overall. He also played outside linebacker and had one interception and three fumble recoveries, one of which he returned for a TD. He was Farmington's MVP the last two years.

"He's one of the most dedicated players I've had," coach Lauri Niskanen said. "He ran every play as if it was the most important play of the game; he practiced the same way. I think most coaches would agree he was the best two-way player in our league.

"He has the potential to play at the next level. It's a matter of picking the right place. I think he can play in the MAC; if not there, Division II for sure."

Kyle Vessell, Harrison: The senior kicker was 29-of-30 on extra points and 3-of-7 on field goals, with his longest being a 50-yarder, this year. A third of his kickoffs were touchbacks, and 75 percent landed inside the 10-yard line. He was 85-of-87 on extra points and 7-of-11 on field goals in his career. He also became a punter last year when injuries took a toll and averaged 36.4 yards on 24 punts in the regular season this year. Ohio State, Purdue, MSU and the MAC schools like his skill. He is a two-time All-WLAA kicker and team captain.

"He had great range as a kicker, and his accuracy on extra points over two years was tremendous," coach John Herrington said. "He developed into a punter out of necessity and did an excellent job, especially on corner kicks. He didn't have as many chances on field goals, because we were pretty effective at scoring in the red zone the last two years. But he ranks right up there with our other great kickers."

ALL-AREA DEFENSE

Francis Gojcaj, Harrison: The junior tackle was a big reason the Hawks were so tough against the run again. His physical presence made it difficult for opponents to run to his side. Gojcaj was third in tackles (92) with 47 first hits and 45 assists.

"He's a dominating force on defense," coach John Herrington said. "He's almost unblockable, very aggressive and extremely mean. He's a major-college prospect."

Ryan Culloty, Stevenson: The senior defensive end was one of the great success stories of 1995. He worked at becoming a better player and was one of the undisputed leaders on the Stevenson team. Culloty had 66 tackles, including five sacks. Other coaches were impressed by his toughness and hard hits.

"He gave the maximum effort on every play, in every game and every practice," coach Tim Gabel said. "His teammates almost came to hate him, because he didn't take any plays off in practice, either.

"As a junior, he was undersized, a little slow and didn't have much upper body strength, but he rectified all of that in the nine months between seasons. He wanted to start on a football team, and he went after it. There was never any question he had the heart or toughness to play. It was a matter of him working out the other parts."

Jeff Cook, Glenn: The two-year starter at defensive tackle was a fierce competitor, according to coach Chuck Gordon. He had 46 first hits, four sacks and 45 assists. Cook earned All-WLAA honors on offense at center this year. He also averaged 36.5 yards on 11 punts.

"He always practiced all out, and he went full tilt in the games," Gordon said. "He's a guy who really loves to play the game. You knew he would play well every time; you didn't worry about him."

Mike Smiley, Redford CC: The senior defensive end helped to make the Shamrocks a solid defensive team. His 70 tackles included five sacks and 18 solos. He also started at guard and played a key role in CC's dominating offense.

"Mike is a tremendous hitter and excellent leader," coach Tom Mach said. "After teams ran at him a couple times, they tried to go the other way, because he was so tough on the corner. He did a great job as captain, too; he was great in the huddle, leading by example and encouraging the other kids to play harder."

Tom Bish, Salem: The senior lineman overcame injuries to have a good year. He was often double teamed but had 20 solo tackles, 49 assists and three sacks. Bish was an offensive tackle and two-year, two-way starter. Southern Methodist, CMU, WMU and the Great Lakes schools are looking at him as a defensive player.

"He played hurt a lot this year, but he never begged off from anything," coach Tom Moshimer said. "He never asked once to be out of practice.

"He's a very intelligent player and reads keys real well. He's not extremely fast, but he's quick and reacts well. He knows when to come off a block and when to stay on it. He was good at sliding off and picking up somebody else down field."

Nick Shaieb, Harrison: The junior linebacker played bigger than his size and was rated the top linebacker in the area by one opposing coach. Everyone who was asked spoke highly of Shaieb's ability and tenacity. The two-year starter had 55 first hits and 29 assists in nine games. A broken arm kept him out of the playoffs.

He also played fullback and, mostly blocked for Granger, but he did rush 44 times for 239 yards and five TDs. He caught eight passes, one for a touchdown.

"He was the heart and soul of our defense," coach John Herrington said. "He has a great nose for the ball and is an excellent hitter."

Matt Griglio, Glenn: The junior linebacker started every game the last two seasons for the Rockets and was the leading tackler each year. Griglio had 62 first hits, 53 assists and two interceptions. He also played fullback, rushing for 214 yards and one TD on 35 attempts.

"Matt has excellent knowledge of the game," coach Chuck Gordon said. "He's one of the guys we'll build our team around next year. He's a physical player and knows what he's supposed do. He always seems to be in the right place at the right time."

Mike Wilson, St. Agatha: The senior linebacker was the leading tackler for the Aggies with 57 first hits and 43 assists. He also was the quarterback for two years. Wilson completed 51 percent of his passes for 750 yards and seven TDs, and he was the leading rusher with 525 yards and four TDs.

He could play quarterback or linebacker in college, depending on what a team needs, and one school has talked to him about playing tight end.

"We made the playoffs the last two years, and he was obviously pretty instrumental," coach Gary Tuz said. "He has all the tools; he has the size and a rifle for an arm.

"He plays quarterback like a linebacker; he's really intense and very physical. He can take a hit, and he can give a hit."

George Shanlikian, Churchill: The senior linebacker was the leading tackler with 84 solos and 43 assists despite missing two games because of injury. A three-year varsity player, he also started at fullback. Shanlikian can bench press 400 pounds and was No. 1 in the state at the Reebok scouting combine with 30 reps at 195. He wants to study medicine in college, but coach Steve Naumcheff thinks he should consider football, too.

"George typified hard work," Naumcheff said. "Other coaches were certainly aware of his presence and are kind to mention his name as recruiters come through the area.

"Churchill has been through tough times, but George has been a tower of power. He's been real consistent and a real good role model. He needs to play at the next level; he's going to help somebody somewhere."

John Lessway, N. Farmington: He had a good senior year and caught the attention of opposing coaches and college scouts. Lessway was North's leading tackler with 43 first hits, 50 assists and eight tackles for loss. He returned an interception 64 yards for a TD.

Lessway will probably be a running back in college. He averaged seven yards per carry, rushing for 863 yards and seven TDs. EMU is very interested as well as Toledo, Miami (Ohio), Bowling Green, Southern Methodist and Ball State.

"He came out of nowhere, honestly," coach Jim O'Leary said. "We knew he was a decent player, but we didn't expect him to have the kind of year he had offensively.

"He'll run over people and get the hard yards. That's the thing everyone likes about him, and he has better speed than people think. The fact he only carried the ball 124 times, we probably misused him; we should have given him the ball more."

Jeff Backus, Stevenson: Like teammate Ryan Culloty, Backus made big strides as a senior. He played football as a freshman and sophomore but ran cross country a year ago. Coach Tim Gabel knew Backus could help his team last winter when he watched him "run the basketball court with relentless intensity."

Backus was second in tackles with 74 from his cornerback position. He also had three interceptions and three knockdowns. As a wide receiver, he caught the winning TD pass against John Glenn and had some key catches in the playoffs.

"Jeff was spectacular beyond our wildest expectations," Gabel said. "I told (defensive coordinator Conrad Newman last winter), 'He can be our Deion Sanders; he can cover anybody.' I don't recall anyone beating him deep. We really hit the jackpot with Jeff."

Greg Call, Redford CC: The junior safety was another leader for CC. His competitive attitude at quarterback and defensive safety helped to define the Shamrocks as a tough team. Call had 28 tackles, including eight solos, and two interceptions. On offense, he rushed 103 times for 387 yards and eight TDs, and he completed 34 of 74 passes (46 percent) for 514 yards and five TDs.

"Greg's overall quality is that he's a winner," coach Tom Mach said. "He's the type of young man who finds a way to win, whatever way he can. He also makes plays out of plays that aren't really there. He has a great feel for the game when he's on field; he's like having a coach on the field."

Jay Jackson, Glenn: The senior back was a good coverage man because of his quickness, according to coach Chuck Gordon, and was also strong against the run despite his size. Jackson had 33 first hits, 12 assists and one interception.

He rushed for 1,054 yards, averaging 5.4 yards per carry, and 10 touchdowns. He also caught a touchdown pass. Jackson started at wide receiver last year but also played tailback when Brent Washington was hurt. He returned kicks and punts, too.

"Pound for pound, he's one of the toughest guys that has ever played for us," Gordon said. "Teams stacked their defenses to stop him, and he still got over 1,000 yards. He was heckuva player for us; we're going to miss him."

VOLLEYBALL

Madonna goes 1-3 on trip

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

The dreamlike bliss that engulfed the Madonna University team after the first day of the NAIA National Volleyball Championship, held Nov. 29-Dec. 2 at Point Loma Nazarene College in San Diego, gave way to harsh reality on the second.

The Lady Crusaders won their opening match of pool play in straight sets over Seton Hill (Pa.) last Wednesday (Nov. 29), but on Thursday they suffered a pair of defeats against a pair of seeded teams, eliminating them from title contention.

Madonna's 1-3 record in the 20-team national tournament should not detract from a sparkling season, however. Hardly. The Crusaders finished with a 48-14 record, including seven tournament championships.

Best of all, it was a young team, with just one senior (Tiffany Joseph) to be lost to graduation.

"The competition was great," admitted coach Jerry Abraham. "We needed to play at the highest level possible — we had to be at the top of our game.

"We were just a step short."

Madonna, one of the 12 unseeded teams (the top eight were seeded), opened the tournament with a convincing 15-2, 15-5, 15-4 victory over Seton Hill. Kelly McCausland (from Redford Union), Heather Steinhelper and Meg Paris each collected six kills, with Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) getting five.

Martin was also in on eight blocks, while McCausland had four. Steinhelper totaled eight digs, three blocks and two serving aces; McCausland also had eight digs, while Erin Gregoire totaled 11. Paris finished with 24 assists to kills.

From the giddiness accompanying success on a national level, Madonna went to the harshness of playing the tournament's second-seeded team, Puget Sound (Wash.), in its first match Thursday. The Crusaders came up short, losing 15-1, 15-12, 15-7.

Puget Sound didn't lose until the NAIA final, when it was beaten by champion Brigham Young-Hawaii. Puget Sound finished 34-2 for the season.

Martin's eight kills led Madonna; McCausland had five and Erin Comment four. McCausland also had three blocks and six digs, while Martin had two blocks and Comment got 11 digs. Paris totaled 21 assists. Andrea Egans had 21 kills and three service aces for Puget Sound.

The Crusaders had little time to recover, facing Columbia (Mo.) approximately three hours after their loss. Seventh-seeded Columbia brought a 53-3 record with it into the match, and after registering a 3-15, 15-4, 15-6, 15-10 win, that record improved to 54-3.

It was Madonna's pivotal match. A win would have kept the Crusaders in contention, with a win over unseeded Dordt (Iowa) all that stood between them and a spot in the quarterfinals.

But they never got past Columbia. Martin and McCausland both had strong performances, each getting 11 kills with Martin adding nine blocks and McCausland nine digs. Steinhelper finished with four kills, three blocks and 13 digs; Karin Sisung also had 13 digs, with Paris getting 12 and Comment 11. Paris' 32 assists was another team best.

Wu Dan, a member of the Chinese national team who has a pair of gold medals to her credit, led Columbia with 15 kills; she also had four blocks and four aces.

That wrecked the Crusaders' hopes for a berth in the quarterfinals, and made Friday's match against Dordt inconsequential. Which pretty well describes Madonna's lackluster performance in the 15-6, 15-17, 15-3, 15-4 defeat.

McCausland, Martin and Nicole Scharrer did their best for the Crusaders. McCausland's totals: 19 kills, 13 digs; Martin: 12 kills, seven blocks; and Scharrer: 11 kills, seven digs.

But those performances and that of Paris (42 assists) and Sisung (11 digs) were about all Madonna had worth mentioning.

"I said from the start of the season that our passing was the key," said Abraham. "Our passing wasn't terrible, it just wasn't perfect. We weren't quite as sharp as we had been the week before. But these weren't bad matches."

Paws with a Cause

Helping the handicapped: Paws with a Cause, the service agency that trains dogs to help the handicapped, recently received an $8,500 donation from the Plymouth-Canton Civitan Club. Lynn Hoekstra, coordinator of Paws with a Cause, recently accepted the donation from Cheryl Van Vliet of the Civitans, with Russ Johnson, Louie the dog and recipient Mike Tringer. To raise money, Civitans sold candy and held a golf outing among other activities. But it was a $3,500 donation from Johnson, the owner of Canton's Rusty Nail, that helped the group meet its fund-raising goal. Johnson made the contribution in memory of his niece, who used a Paws with a Cause dog for five years before her death.

Miller School pupil wins spelling bee

When Susan C. Merenda, of Miller School, correctly spelled journal, she was declared the winner of the third annual Fr. Victor J. Renaud Council of the Knights of Columbus spelling bee. The bee was held on Saturday, Nov. 4, at the council's hall in Plymouth.

Last year Sarah Greene represented the Renaud council in the state contest where she placed third.

The Penguins, sponsored by Borda, Inc., opened with a 6-1 win over the Grosse Pointe Bruins as six different players scored including Meier, Frank Geluso, Brad Cauchi, Andrew Kruk, McNutt and Scott Allen. Huren and McNutt added two assists each.

In a 6-3 win over Berkley, the Penguins were led by Huren, McNutt and Geluso with two goals apiece.

TEN-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

The 65th Annual "Old Timers" Bowling Tournament took place Nov. 25 at Thunderbowl Lanes. This is always an occasion for old friends and teammates to get together and have a good time bowling with one another — not just for money — but for fun and to show the world that men over 50 can still cut the mustard on the lanes.

It's a real nostalgia trip, as well as a great thrill, to just watch the likes of Eddie Lubanski, Joe Paulus, Tony Lindemann and others take to the lanes along with the greatest of them all, Joe Norris, the former captain of the great Detroit Stroh's team who now lives in San Diego and comes back home every year just for this event.

Norris, still very sharp at age 87, continues to bowl well. In 1927 at age 19, he was the youngest person ever to bowl a 300 game (at the time). He is also the oldest to bowl a perfect game — 67 years later at 87.

In all, there were 700 entrants who bowled. Some found time to stay for the fine buffet dinner served up by Lew Ansara who has taken over the catering at Thunderbowl.

The overall champion for 1995 was Canadian Scotty Laughland, who at age 65, won again with games of 258-246-248 for a whopping 752 series. Neil Beckman of Southfield won the Under 50 category with 265-233-243/741, Howard Davis of Redford Township took third in the 65-to-69 division with 201-215-219/635 and Jarvis Woehlke won the Over 80 competition with 215-259-256/730. Plymouth resident John Raak, 76, took first in 75-to-79 with 189-248-196 which adds up to a 633 pinfall total. It was a great day for all the bowlers. Hopefully, they will all return for more of the same next year.

■ More seniors. The Mayflower Senior Men's Classic League, which bowls on Wednesday mornings, had some excitement as the two opposing anchormen each ran up the first 10 strikes in their second game. Howard Davis and Jim Casteel were battling it out, strike-for-strike, when Casteel was stopped by a four pin on the 11th shot. Davis, meanwhile, rolled his 11th in a row only to be foiled by a stubborn 10 pin and settled for a 299 game.

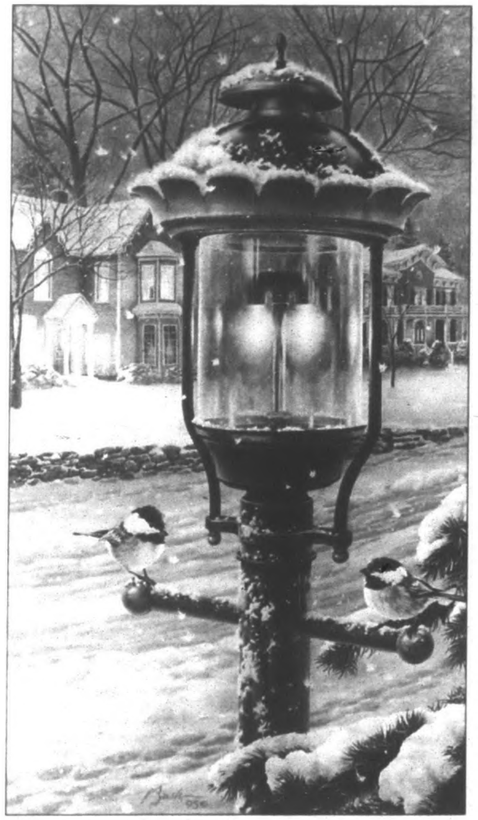
MARKET PLACE



All is calm

Artistic gifts: A trend this year is toward gifts of peace and tranquility that feature peaceful scenes and provoke memories of simpler times. The Wooden Bird gallery carries art-inspired collectibles featuring wildlife, Americana and nostalgic scenes. Among them are rustic cabin sculptures modeled after the art of Terry Redlin from The Homestead Collection, and "Warmth of Winter III" by Darrell Bush, a new print featuring chickadees perched on a Victorian lamppost in a quiet, snow-covered street. The handpainted, cold cast porcelain cabin sculpture shown here, inspired by Redlin's popular "Comforts of Home" painting, includes such details as a basket of red apples, duck decoys, deer rack and old wooden boat. Wooden Bird galleries are at Oakland Mall in Troy, Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi and Summit Place Mall in Waterford, as well as at malls in Sterling Heights and Ann Arbor.

Embracing bench

These decorations have good taste

RUTH MOSSON JOHNSTON

Entertaining means a lot of things — what goes into entertaining depends on the hosts, the occasion, and the specific guests to be included — two or 22?

When I set into motion holiday festivities it begins with cleaning everything but the kitchen (that comes last). Trying to hide the daily clutter (I've been known to not open the mail for weeks, just stack it up into a pile!), vacuuming the multitude of animal hair (we do have six animals living in our house) which reappears the moment we put away the Hoover, and attempting to resume the Shaker appearance of our minimalist historic lifestyle is pure unadulterated pain. Making decorations and major league cooking is the easy part — then, of course, there's the clean up from that!!

At the Johnston household, we love to decorate for the holidays. My artist husband really gets into the holiday spirit — it's hard to hold him back from putting burgundy and gold stared fabric bows on everything including the dining room chandelier and the three wheeled pin striped carriage that holds antique toys and VCR cases when company is not expected!! Last year we were big into gold leaf — I gilded almost everything — nuts glue gunned onto plastic foam balls, a laborious but beautiful wreath made of individually painted dried bay leaves glue gunned onto a circular grape vine to gilded gold painted hand-made paper ornaments.

This year it's au natural — lots of nuts, spice laden plastic foam balls, dried sumac and fruit. Centerpieces will be beautiful trees of fruits and vegetables — all green with burgundy or red accents. Start by using a 12-inch plastic foam cone — using larger vegetables and fruits, place a toothpick in each and work from bottom up using smaller fruits and vegetables toward the top. Use artichokes, apples, limes, firm chile peppers, broccoli florets, Brussels sprouts, and top the tree with a tiny artichoke. In the pockets between the larger items, put in red berries, cranberries or small red or burgundy wired bulbs.

Add to your tables, beautifully iced cookies, fancy unisex gingerbread's, and dramatic truffles on crystal or festive plates -- they make lovely edible decorations.

With all the holiday decorating we do, it's hard to dismantle it January first. We use every excuse imaginable, "We have to leave it up, so in so hasn't seen the house all decorated." Mind you, it's now mid-February. Our record one year was right before Easter!!! One friend did suggest that we put wheels on our Christmas Tree and just wheel it away — now there's an idea!

FRUIT ROCKS
YIELD: 6½ DOZEN

10 tablespoons butter or margarine
10 tablespoons sugar
3 eggs
1¼ tablespoon light corn syrup
1½ teaspoon ground cloves
1½ teaspoon cinnamon
1½ cup sherry or Bourbon
1 1¼ cups flour
2 pounds pecans, shelled and coarse, chopped
1 1½ pounds candied fruit (multicolored)

Preheat oven to 300 degrees.

In a mixer, cream the butter or margarine until light and fluffy. Gradually add the sugar, eggs, spices and sherry or Bourbon, mix well. By hand add in the nuts and fruit.

RASPBERRY CHOCOLATE BOURBON-TRUFFLES
YIELD 20 TRUFFLES

6 ounces semisweet chocolate
2 ounces (½ stick) unsalted butter, cut into small pieces
2 large egg yolks
2½ ounces of additional semisweet chocolate, ground to fine (for coating

See JOHNSTON, 5D

Johnston from page 4D

Place in the top of a double boiler over hot water over relatively low heat. Cover and let partially melt. Remove lid and continue stirring until completely melted.

Remove top pan of the double boiler, add the small pieces of butter, stir with a small whisk melting the butter before adding each piece.

On a piece of wax paper, gently place rounded teaspoons of chocolate — this should equal 20 truffles.

Set out two more pieces of waxed paper — on one sift out raspberry cocoa, leave the other aside for finished truffles.

Coat palms of hands with cocoa — gently pick up one truffle at a time and roll it between your hands and roll in cocoa. Place on the clean wax paper. Coat palms of hands between each truffle.

Truffles are ready to eat.

They can remain at room temperature for two days, after that they should be refrigerated or frozen. If keeping them refrigerated or frozen, always allow truffles to come to room temperature before serving.

COVER STORY

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Looking for new ways to decorate your home for the holidays? Interior designer Kasey Werner-Pierson, head of Scott Shuptrine's Troy Design Studio, advises never throw out the old for the new.

Ornaments that have been in the family for years as well as other keepsakes tie an emotional impact to decorations. Werner-Pierson, formerly of Pierson and Pierson of Birmingham, recycled a collection of Waterford crystal ornaments to trim the eight-foot Christmas tree in Dr. Paul and Karen Clancy's Bloomfield Hills home.

"Add items that have meaning. We didn't buy any ornaments," Werner-Pierson said during an interview at the Clancy home.

"I had one client who saved Christmas cards for years. After backing them with felt, I hung all of the cards to create a theme tree."

Werner-Pierson helped design and decorate the Clancy's sunroom addition where the fresh-cut, not artificial, tree is placed. The decorations' palette is in keeping with the room's color theme of white, gold and bronze. Since trees rarely grow symmetrically in nature, Werner-Pierson compensated by filling bare areas with dried holly branches she had previously sprayed gold.

White doves, silk hibiscus and other preserved leaves emphasize a nature or environmental theme. The tree is a natural complement to the Clancys' cactus, blooming orchids and African violets growing nearby.

"Trees change with the social and political times. You'll find trees take on the style and fashion for certain periods of history. It's a great way to express how you feel," Werner-Pierson said.

Damask ribbons tied on the ends of branches, and gold and white roping draped around the tree instead of garland add a touch of elegance. To make her own glittering decorations, Werner-Pierson took dried materials like branches and sprayed them with gold paint. While they were still wet she shook the natural items in a plastic bag containing granulated sugar.

"What I tried to do, because the sunroom was so beautiful architecturally, I didn't want the tree to overpower it so I decorated it without lights. So often when we do trees, it becomes such a presence. Then when it's gone it leaves a vacant space. I wanted it to blend in with the room.

"It's nothing more than a series of loose bows with wired edges. Buy ribbon with wire edges so you don't have to be artistically inclined to shape the bows."

Karen Clancy's own decorating touches evidenced in other areas of the home also turn to something old for inspiration. A collection of Dickens figures greets visitors in the entranceway while a handful of nutcrackers lines the mantel in the family room. Hung below are Christmas stockings belonging to Karen, Paul, daughter Erin, 11, and son Jeffrey, 13. Even Suzy, the Clancys' Bichon Frise, has a stocking waiting for Santa to fill.

"Christmas is a big deal at our house. We celebrate twice: Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. The Dickens village is my daughter's pride and joy," Karen Clancy said.

Many themes

When it comes to decorating his Redford home and business for Christmas, John Gregory goes all out as well. Eleven trees decked with themes ranging from the Wizard of Oz to Victorian trim his apartment as well as the salon and boutique beneath it.

In the Great Room, a 10-foot tree stands majestically lit with more than 3,000 white lights. Silk magnolias, bird of paradise, butterfly orchids and allium give a tropical feel. To the right of the tree, Gregory even decorated an art nouveau statue in the same palette and theme.

"With white lights you're able to see the color of the ornamentation rather than the color of the lights," said Gregory, who decorated Meadowbrook Hall for four years plus many other businesses and private homes.

Ropes of pearls, silk roses, lace and ribbons, and spanish moss accent the Victorian look of the master bedroom's canopy bed. Dried pods, eucalyptus, oak leaves, faux pheasants, and spanish moss create a nest-like theme for this room's tree.

"It's an earthy look. It looks like a bird built it. I always liked using dried materials to decorate. Pods are a great filler plus they're interesting."

A swag arrangement on top of the baby grand piano in the music room incorporates gold fans, feather spikes, flocked greens, silk poinsettias and gold and black ribbon. Two slim six-foot trees in the adjoining living room took about eight hours each to decorate. Gregory began to install his trimmings Sept. 1. He finished nearly three months later.

Many of the Christmas decorations, including large ornaments and twig reindeer, are available for purchase at the John Gregory Salon & Boutique in Redford. But Gregory agrees with Werner-Pierson about never discarding old ornaments, Christmas novelties or garlands.

"I try to do something different," Gregory said. "By combining the present with the old, you can create a new look."

Artists and crafters make holidays bright

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Wood toys, blown glass ornaments, three-dimensional ceramic tiles, and other handmade art works personalize holiday decorations. MariaLuisa Belmonte curated Paint Creek Center for the Arts' Holiday Gift Gallery with that thought in mind.

More than 50 artists and crafters provide the spark. All you need to add is your imagination.

"I try to keep it gift item prices for a variety of things that would appeal to adults and children. The handblown glass ornaments, some people hang them tiered in front of their windows, all year round," Belmonte said.

City skyscrapers that light up by Douglas Spalding of Royal Oak could create a fantasy city built by you. Use one of Brian Driscoll's wood pull toys as a focal point of an arrangement. Besides creating innovative holiday trimmings, these art pieces would make great gifts of jewelry, pottery and fiber for family and friends.

Even the decorations for the gallery are one-of-a-kind. Belmonte dressed windows and tables with rolls of plain brown craft paper.

There are plenty of decorating ideas here at Paint Creek. Take some home, then begin your creative decorating journey this holiday season.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday. Call (810) 651-4110.

Kwanzaa: Holiday rich in cross-cultural traditions

ESTHER LITTMANN

What is Kwanzaa? How is it celebrated? Where did it originate? These questions plus many more are answered in "The Complete Kwanzaa" (Harper Collins, 1995, $23). Its author is Dorothy Winbush Riley, editor of numerous textbooks on African-American history, former librarian and administrator in the Detroit School System and presently principal of an elementary school.

Created by Maulena Karenga of Los Angeles in 1966, Kwanzaa combines African and American customs to create a holiday rich in cross-cultural traditions and ethical significance.

Karenga's objective was to identify and develop seven core principles "by which Black people must live to rescue and reconstruct (their) history and lives." These principles, called "Nguzo Saba" in Swahili, are unity (Umoja), self-determination (Kujichagulia), collective work and responsibility (Ujima), cooperative economics (Ujamaa), purpose (Nia), creativity (Kuumba) and faith (Imani).

During the week between Dec. 26 and Jan. 1, each principle is affirmed and explored on a separate day, with ritual candle lighting, display of appropriate symbols and inspirational readings. The sixth day of Kwanzaa is also celebrated with a feast for family and friends, and the seventh with an exchange of simple handmade gifts "from the heart."

Unlike Christmas or Hanukkah, Kwanzaa isn't based on the celebration of divine birth or the commemoration of a historical event. Kwanzaa's roots lie in Africa's ancient harvest, an annual event accomplished through the communal efforts of the whole tribe. The same ethical principles practiced by the ancestors of African-Americans — unity, cooperation and purpose — are needed today to create healthy and prosperous communities, Riley writes.

"The Complete Kwanzaa" contains everything a celebrant needs to know to observe the holiday on several levels: ethical, cultural and culinary.

Organized around the seven core principles, each discussed in its own chapter, Riley's guidebook also contains profiles of famous African-American role models who have molded their lives in accordance with the ethical teachings of Kwanzaa. Personal testimonies of Bill Cosby and Michael Jordan are interspersed with biographical sketches of Booker T. Washington, Frederick Douglass and Martin Luther King.

Notable black poets like Howard Thurman remind celebrants that this is the "Season of Remembrance" when "empty vessels of hope fill up again" to "match the darts of despair with the treasures of dreams." Or, like Gwendolyn Brooks, they warn "in music-words devout and large, that we are each other's harvest . . . each other's magnitude and bond." Equally inspiring is folklorist Zora Neale Hurston's story of the legendary High John de Conquer, who rode the winds in his journey to America to breathe hope and purpose into his enslaved countrymen.

One of the finest literary selections in Riley's book is "The Feast of the New Yam," the description of an African harvest festival as told by world-renowned Nigerian author Chinua Achebe in his post-colonial novel "Things Fall Apart."

Like the festival of ancient times, Kwanzaa celebrates nature's bounty with hearty meals shared by family and friends. The author includes 42 traditional recipes in her book, like Chicken Yassa, Stewed Okra and Sweet Potato Pie.

Proverbs and black and white photographs of African art works round out a book that affirms the eternal values and truths common to all mankind, yet does so through the special historical and cultural experience of African-Americans. There is much for people of all races and ethnicities to learn and enjoy in "The Complete Kwanzaa." What a terrific book to own and share during this holiday season!

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

Gift season is upon us again — where, oh where, did the summer go? This cold weather has put us in the mood to think about the special holidays that are upon us. Some of the following gift suggestions can be ordered from the warmth of your home, thus saving time and the necessity of getting out in the weather.

Ideas for gardeners abound. A new and unusual houseplant can fit in most any person's decor and be a reminder of the giver's thoughtfulness. Among Cissus, members of the grape family, are C. rhombifolia, grape ivy, and C. antaractica, kangaroo vine. C. rotundifolia, round-leafed Cissus, has bright green leaves and can be shaped into a wreath.

The Rubiaceae family includes the firecracker vine (Manettia inflata) and can also be twined into a wreath. Its red and yellow flowers add bright color for much of the year.

Other plants that can be trained into this form are assarina, thumbergia, prostrate rosemary, bougainvillea and many other ivies.

Perhaps in indoor gardening set-up would add a new dimension in gardening for a friend or relative. You might consider the American Hydroponics (call (707) 822-5777) or Hydrofarm Lighting & Hydroponics (call (415) 459-7898) systems. Both of these companies are in California.

The set-up can be placed in any location in the home, including the basement, and will provide a place for indoor plants that could include salad greens as well as a place for seed starting.

Year-round gifts

Calendars are most welcome gifts. Chapter's Publishing offers several types. One series is the "wild action photography series." Two of its single subjects are "Trees" and "Hummingbirds."

From Firefly Books, look for calendars with a "weather" theme and others.

Workman is also in the calendar "business," and its selection includes the popular "Gardener's Calendar" by Barbara Damrosch, with a special plant highlighted for each day of the year. Other Workman calendars have subjects such as "The Natural Garden" by Ken Druse, "The Scented Room" by Barbara Ohrback and "Herbs" by E. Tolley and C. Mead. Its Audubon series is outstanding.

You can find all of these beautiful offerings at your favorite book seller. They are all so well done, it will be hard to choose, but that's part of the fun of gift giving, is it not?

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

- Dig a large hole for your live Christmas tree early in the month. Put a barrier around it to prevent someone or something from a bad fall.
- Wait until the soil is frozen before applying winter mulch. It will keep the soil frozen and prevent alternate freezing and thawing.
- Set up a feeding station for the birds; get the children involved. A trip to the library will help the family learn about birds' favorite foods and other interesting facts.
- Protect shrubs with burlap; tie rotes or netting around columnar evergreens so the snow won't break them down. Heavyweight fishing line also works. Get help to secure properly.
- Your discarded Christmas tree can be used as mulch, or covered with "goodies" for the birds.

Good neighbors: Many folks who live near parks and schools say those facilities are big reasons they like living there.

Parks, schools can attract buyers

BY NORMAN PRADY
SPECIAL WRITER

Squeak screech, squeak screech. "C'mon! Get a Hit!" "Where's the Frisbee?" "Where's the mustard?" "Where's the trillium?" Squeak screech.

From the oxidized eyelets of the swing set, from the players of the summer games, from the picnickers, from the searchers for wildflowers, arise the songs of the park, municipal music to most.

And from the school come the unaffected laughter of a town's children, the happy clatter of the playground carousel, and the bright trill of the best-loved bell as it rings the end of the class day.

And if park and school are essential elements of our communities, as they have shown themselves to be since the beginning of America, how does each mix with house?

Is it good, bad, or not much different at all to have park or school next door or down the block? And is a house worth more if, along with bedrooms and bath, it offers kindergarten and baseball field?

The appeal of nearby school was very clear to Karen Voytas of Troy, a Royal Oak native who moved back to Michigan a year ago after a 10-year absence. "School," she says, "was the main factor" in the choice of a location.

"I wanted to be within a couple blocks and not across a major street," she says.

The Voytas family more than reached its goal by buying three doors down from the corner of Jack Street, location of Schroeder Elementary, currently attended by a son, 9 and a daughter, 6, with a son, 4, getting ready to start.

Around the corner, Beechwood Park is said by Troy resident George Halter, who has lived next door to it for 20 years, to be "the best neighbor you could have."

Natural, heavily wooded, and covering several square blocks, the park has neither parking spaces nor playground not picnic grills. It's a wonderful place, Halter says, to stroll and to sit and read.

"I sold a house in Royal Oak that backed up to a park," says Carole Glass, a residential property specialist with Century 21 Town & Country in Birmingham.

"The buyers put in a gate so the kinds could play in the park, and it gave the family more room to entertain."

As for school, Glass cites two identical houses she knows of in Troy, one a few doors from the elementary school, the other about five blocks away. The house farther from the school was in much better condition, but the closer house was worth just as much because of its location, Glass says.

Buyers of near-school and near-park houses, Glass says, can expect to pay premiums of one to five percent.

Desirability of the near-school location, not surprisingly, says Glass, is relative to age. Parents of young children look for these houses, she says, but other factors also influence the choice.

"There's great demand for houses in certain areas because they have sidewalks. Parents can walk with the baby carriage, and older kids can get around the neighborhood without walking or riding their bikes in the streets," Glass says.

The top five factors she has observed in a young family's selection of a house, Glass says, are proximity to the school, existence of sidewalks, presence of other children, closeness to grocery and other shopping, and reasonableness of the commute to work.

"It gives them the feeling the land is part of their property," Ulrych says.

He also cites a case he was involved in where a buyer backed away upon learning that the adjoining park was scheduled for two years of excavation for and construction of an underground water basin, following which the park would be restored.

"They felt they just couldn't live with the work," Ulrych says.

In some instances, says Brent Chamberlain, owner of Renaissance Realty in Farmington, buyers would pay a premium of one to two percent for houses near schools or parks.

But he thinks that the use of the park is less important to buyers than the "peace of mind" that comes from the seeming certainty that the park property will not be developed into something else.

Rather than specific houses near a park having greater value, the general area near a park might be worth more, according to Pieter Vande Vusse of Remerica Pickering and Associates in Westland.

A park he knows of that offers swimming, tennis, softball, playground, picnicking and a nature area increases the value, he says, of all the houses in its area.

Generally speaking, Vande Vusse says, the appeal of park, especially connected to one's own property, is the sense of openness it creates.

Assessment of houses for tax purposes, says Julie Albert, deputy assessor for the city of Westland, is not influenced by nearness of a school or park,. Assessment procedures, she says, are uniform throughout Michigan, controlled by state laws.

The field assessor's worksheet, according to Albert, has no provision to indicate that type of location.

In commercially appraising properties near schools and parks, the "facts" result from all the subjective considerations about buying and selling houses.

In a community such as Westland, says Debbi Moxley, a licensed appraiser, an older population might want to move away from the noise of a school yard, while in Plymouth, for example, a younger population seeks near-school housing.

Appraised values, explains Moxley, operator of Blue Moon Appraisal & Real Estate Consultants, Farmington Hills, are based on reports of house prices paid in the same area and are not predictions of future prices.

Appraisers look, she says, at comparable sales, along with consideration of demographics and trends and other "economic influences."

But relative to values, as Moxley suggests, human behavior can defy measurement, and the market can be unpredictable and difficult to explain.

She recalled the power-tower people, buyers who offered premiums for houses adjoining the locations of high-voltage-line towers.

While others might fear possible health hazards from the high-voltage lines carried by the towers, these buyers sought the extra space that would be open to them around the towers, more than enough, some said, to have full-size baseball diamonds.

"How could they have paid more?" Moxley says. "It's nuts."

Oral land contracts can be OK, but they pose risks

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q.I have always been led to believe that any agreement regarding the conveyance of an interest in land must be in writing under what is referred to as the Statute of Frauds. Is there any exception to that rule?

A. Yes, many times courts have granted enforcement of an oral agreement for conveyance of an interest in land where there has been partial or full performance of an oral agreement.

Where the evidence clearly establishes that the basic terms of an oral agreement have been satisfied and that there is mutuality of obligation and where there has been sufficient performance of the agreement to satisfy the court that in fact there was, in actuality, an agreement, the court will enforce the agreement even though it is not in writing.

Each case has to be reviewed on its own facts, and it is advisable to ensure that any agreement with respect to the interest of land is in writing and preferably, in recordable form.

Q. I bought a house on an artificial lake but am concerned because the township has failed to maintain a dam that created the lake and, therefore, the area where the lake has been existing is returning to its original status.

We have attempted to get the township to maintain the lake, but they refuse to do so.

Do we have any cause of action against them because of the deprivation of our use of the lake?

A. Probably not, based upon a recent court of appeals decision with similar facts. In that case, it was basically established that the governmental agency is protected by governmental immunity. The plaintiff in that case was not able to establish the existence of a nuisance per se.

The court stated that merely because of the loss of lake water in that case from the plaintiff's real estate was not an invasion "of her property and therefore did not constitute a trespass." Courts have held that exposure of existing tree stumps is a nuisance per se.

On the other hand, if the municipality had maintained pervasive sickening odors, courts may well construe that to be a "nuisance" per se, for which the governmental entity would be responsible.

Environmental aspects are also entering into the picture as the court in the case referred to above indicated that returning the property to its "naturally lakeless state and the consequent restoration of insect habitat" does not constitute a trespass-nuisance.

Your computer's talking to you

Have you been listening to your computer?

It's probably trying to entice you into cruising the information superhighway or putting together a business presentation with video and sound; maybe it's just trying to convince you to play one of those new video games outfitted with incredible visual and sonic effects.

Great ideas, right? It pays to listen. However, if you've been listening closely, you also may have noticed that while your multimedia computer's capabilities are terrific, its voice is kind of tinny and flat, and maybe the software's sound effects aren't quite as spectacular as you'd expected.

There's no need to toss the computer or the software — just upgrade the speakers.

While prebundled systems and upgrade kits are the most common way to supercharge a PC's multimedia capabilities, the speakers sold as separate components are often vastly superior sonically — clearer, more musical, more dynamic — to those offered in the preconfigured units or packages. Many of these products are made by the same loudspeaker companies that manufacture home loudspeakers. Well-known brands like Advent and Jensen offer lines of multimedia loudspeakers that incorporate the tenets of good sound reproduction in components for computer use.

Do you want the sound from your computer to be more like the sound from your stereo? The following are some considerations to bear in mind when looking to upgrade your multimedia speakers:

As with home loudspeakers, you'll want a pair of speakers — right- and left-channel — for fuller sound and balanced sound quality.

While some full-range drivers provide speakers with very good sound quality, two-way speakers with a woofer/midrange and tweeter allow for cleaner sound production. A separate subwoofer can be added for deeper bass response.

Multimedia speakers should be magnetically shielded, so they can be placed anywhere — including directly next to your computer without interfering with the monitor's performance.

Most units have a built-in amplifier; intended use will determine the recommended strength. To enable some flexibility, look for amplifiers rated with a minimum of 10 watts RMS. Generally speaking, the higher the power rating, the more volume and power that can be generated from your speakers without strain.

Speakers should be compact for easy placement; there's no reason for them to take over your desk.

Both the Advent and Jensen brands possess many of these recommended features. Lines like Advent's award-winning Powered Partners multimedia loudspeakers offer a broad range of units for optimum flexibility and choice. In addition to the new entry-level AV170 and AV270 and the sophisticated, remarkably clean 70-watt AV570, the Powered Partners line includes the AV522 stand-alone powered subwoofer that adds deep, accurate, desk-shaking bass to any amplified computer sound system and is compatible with any manufacturer's speakers. Advent's AV622 is a three-piece system, incorporating satellite speakers and subwoofer. System components range from $129 to $399 per pair.

Jensen's JPS Series also features speakers of flexibility and performance. The JPS45, for example, is loaded with a headphone jack and individual balance, bass and treble controls. With its amplifier totaling up to 20 watts, the JPS45 is versatile enough to be used for business or pleasure. From $59 to $149 per pair, the five models in Jensen's multimedia line provide strong performance coupled with real value.

If you haven't been listening to your computer, you may want to start: There's a brave new world of sound waiting for you.

For a free brochure on the Advent Powered Partners line or Jensen's JPS Series, call 1-800-323-0707.

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

Buying a new house is an exciting time. However, many people would rather spend a few hours in the dentist's chair than go through the mortgage application process. This is understandable because most house buyers are insecure about their lack of sophistication when it comes to the ins and outs of house mortgages.

Unfortunately, like any business, the mortgage industry has its share of individuals who will try to take advantage of the trust people need to place in mortgage professionals. On the other hand, the public does have an effective weapon against these unscrupulous lenders, thanks to a number of consumer protection laws enacted by the federal government.

If you're thinking of buying a house in the near future, you need to be aware of the consumer protection laws designed to help you get all the information you need to make an informed mortgage decision. Here is a brief summary of the federal regulations important to all house buyers.

The Consumer Protection Act of 1968 was the first in a series of legislative actions designed to provide the consumer with more information about mortgage lending. The major section of this law was Title 1, better known as Truth-in-Lending.

Truth-in-Lending authorized the Federal Reserve Board to draft laws regarding mortgage lending. You may have heard these regulations also referred to as Regulation Z. The regulations require a lender to provide a borrower with complete written information about the terms of the loan and a disclosure of the annual percentage rate (APR).

The disclosure must include the amount of payment, when due and the number of such payments. Information regarding the finance charge and the sum of all payments must also be disclosed.

The finance charge is defined a.s all borrowing costs imposed by the lender. These include interest, points or discount, initial service charge, time-price differential, insurance premiums required by the lender and any underwriting fee. If you have any questions regarding any of these costs, be sure to ask the lender up front. All reputable mortgage lenders will be happy to spend the time with you to explain every detail of your loan. In fact, I always make it a point to issue a guarantee to my customers that the cost of their loan won't exceed my initial estimate. If it does, I pay the difference.

This also relates to a law passed in 1974 known as the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act or RESPA, for short. RESPA requires lenders to provide borrowers with advance disclosures regarding loan settlement costs and charges. Limits were also set on the amount of real estate tax and insurance escrows required by a lender.

The 1976 amendment to this act said mortgage lenders had to supply a "good faith" estimate of settlement costs three days after the application is received. Included with this estimate should be a booklet from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) that contains detailed information on the loan settlement process.

■ the public does have an effective weapon against these unscrupulous lenders, thanks to a number of consumer protection laws enacted by the federal government.

A couple of other regulations deal with important issues for the house buyer. The Fair Housing Act of 1968 was designed to prohibit racial discrimination in the sale and financing of real estate. In 1974, Congress passed the Flood Disaster Protection Act, which requires lenders to disclose whether the real estate being purchased is in a designated flood hazard area.

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act (ECOA) was enacted in 1974. The law prohibits discrimination based on age, sex, race, marital status, receipt of public assistance, color, religion and national origin.

The bottom line for you, the house buyer, is to look into your rights and protections under the law before you buy a house. A little research and knowledge can save you from a lot of aggravation down the road.

Seamless house siding revolutionizes industry

The concept of seamless gutters had people wondering. If rolls of coil could be formed into a gutter, could the coil be formed into siding as well?

Obviously, the answer was yes, and the industry has not been the same since ABC Seamless made the commitment to revolutionize the siding industry.

ABC Seamless set out to be the leader, the innovator, the ones always at the forefront of the industry, and the company everyone else tries to copy.

They did not want to be like the "normal" siding company, putting anywhere from 150-200 splices and seams on a house.

Homeowners were ecstatic with the crisp, clean look of ABC Seamless. They did not understand how steel siding could be installed on a house without any laps or gaps everyone else was offering.

The uniqueness of seamless siding lies in the process of how it is manufactured.

ABC Seamless brings the siding factory right to your house. Each panel is measured, formed and cut to fit your house.

You will have the best of both worlds with ABC Seamless. You get the strength and stability of steel siding, plus you'll have a virtually maintenance free exterior. As the demand for seamless siding became stronger, ABC Seamless decided to become the first company ever to franchise the seamless method.

The first franchise was sold in 1978, and today ABC Seamless has more than 140 franchises in 38 states, making it the world's largest seamless siding company.

More information from the National Franchise Headquarters is available by writing to ABC Seamless, 3001 Fiechtner Drive, Fargo, ND 58103 or by calling 701 293 5952.

Light is the heart that doesn't owe heavy-duty lease payments each month. Especially when the car in question is a new Saab 900.

The 900's 49.8 cubic feet of luggage space carries large cargo with ease. With front-wheel drive, ABS and an optional V6 engine with traction control, you're free to drive in any weather. Not to mention the peace of mind that comes with safety features like dual air bags,* automatic seat belt tensioners and a state-of-the-art safety cage. If your spirit could use something to soar about, see us for complete lease details and a test-drive.
