City, township study corridor

Plymouth Township and the city of Plymouth are getting together to look at improvements that could be made to the Ann Arbor Road corridor. Zoning laws need to change for the improvements to happen.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

You could call it the first step toward a streetscape for the Ann Arbor Road plan, but it's more than that.

After Christmas, the Plymouth Township and city planning commissions are supposed to get busy on creating matching zoning ordinances for their respective sides of Ann Arbor Road.

The road is a boundary between the two municipalities. Importantly, officials say, it's a major community entry way.

Because zoning regulations and planning styles differ on each side of the road, its appearance is haphazard and not as grand as it could be, business and government officials have said.

Further, community leaders have said the road should have more that suggests it's the entrance to the Plymouth community.

On Nov. 28, city commissioners and township trustees met to talk about making improvements happen in the Ann Arbor Road corridor. No actual votes were taken at the public meeting.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy said the township government will conduct a hearing in January to hear from residents who live in the corridor.

Both boards reviewed design drawings that suggest some potential improvements for the corridor. "The idea was to look at unifying elements at the intersection of I-275 and Ann Arbor Road that bring it into the

Close Up garners support

BY JOHN BARR
STAFF WRITER

Close Up will stay Close Up as it is, and several teachers were determined to make sure it did, at Tuesday's Plymouth-Canton school board meeting.

Five Plymouth-Canton Educational Park teachers, Bill Gretzinger, Michael McCauley, Steve Williams, Al Sudia and Jim Salczynski, spoke in support of Close Up, a program aimed at getting students involved with government.

They spoke because of their concerns over changing the name of the program and the curriculum, Williams said.

"Some board members are having second thoughts about the content of the program," he said.

He said they don't want history, economics, science, geography and government to be in one class.

A proposed change would have had Close Up be only a government/civics class, said Judy Evola, director of community relations.

In addition, some parents are opposed to students having pay the $800 to $1,000 cost for the Washington, D.C., trip. School board member David Artley was opposed to that.

"That's a lot of money despite fund-raisers," he said. "Cost is the concern. We have to find a way for kids not to be excluded from the program because of the cost of the trip."

But most teachers, including Williams, don't think the cost should get in the way of the class or a trip.

"We should not have less than the best stuff," Williams said. "Teachers have to do whatever they can to make sure students learn what they have to in high school."

The teachers are concerned that the board not undo or change class material, he said.

The program, started in 1983, has been a success, Gretzinger said. It requires things other programs don't, such as community service, he said, adding that students work on political campaigns and help put up Christmas lights.

Yuletide Cheer Club donations picking up

We need more help, fast, to make Christmas special for some needy kids and families.

In just three days — at 11 a.m. on Thursday — the Salvation Army truck will be by to pick up your donations. So if you've been thinking about joining our Cheer Club, please do it now.

Donations to our Plymouth and Canton Observer Christmas Cheer Club have picked up in recent days. But we're still lagging behind the pace set in previous years.

We started collecting your kind donations of toys and food Nov. 24. And by 3:30 p.m. Friday, we'd received donations from 67 people and one organization.

Recent contributors to the Cheer

Club, between Wednesday and late Friday, were Chris Thomason of Plymouth, Nancy Malecki of Plymouth, Norman Hart of Plymouth, Mildred Domke of Plymouth, Nancy and Mike Riemenschneider of Plymouth Township, Andy and Emily Swanson of Canton, Peggy and Chris Soave of Plymouth, Ed and Jenny McDiarmid, Bonnie and Dave Cu-sumano of Plymouth, Harry and Marguerite Fishwick of Plymouth, John Lamphear of Plymouth, Kristine Lamphear of Plymouth, Jenny and Dan Danlovich of Plymouth, Colin and Brett Lampson of Plymouth and two anonymous donors.

Bells are ringing for the Salvation Army

The volunteer bell ringers are making sure the needy in the Plymouth-Canton-Northville communities will not be forgotten at Christmas time.

In the first nine days of standing beside the kettles ringing bells they have collected donations of $20,560.60.

The goal for this year has been set at $200,000 for the kettle drive and Christmas mail appeal.

Martha Schultz, director of the area campaign for the Salvation Army, points out this year's kettle collections will be more difficult because kettles cannot be placed at Meijer or Arbor Drugs. Last year, $32,851.89 was collected at those busy sites.

There are plenty of familiar faces ringing bells in Plymouth. On Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 9-10, the Kiwanis Clubs of Plymouth manned the kettles at Plymouth Kmart.

Journalism discussion on tap

Philip H. Power, founder, owner and chairman of the board of Suburban Communications Corp., will offer his vision of community journalism at the Wednesday, Dec. 20, luncheon meeting of the Canton Economic Club.

Power will explore the rapidly changing world of technology and information and the standards and values that are unique to community journalism.

SCC owns a group of 60-plus community newspapers throughout Michigan, Cincinnati, Ohio and the upper Midwest. It is the parent company of the Observer Newspapers.

The economic club meets in the township's new community center — Summit on the Park, on Summit Parkway (Palmer Road), west of Canton Center Road. Cost is $15 and reservations are necessary and may be made by calling Joan Noricks at the Canton Community Foundation office, (313) 981-3002.

Power's award-winning column appears Thursdays in the Observer Newspapers. In 1993, Power received the Leshar Award, the highest honor in the suburban newspaper industry.

From 1983 to 1990, Power chaired the Michigan Job Training Coordinating Council. He was a member of the Cabinet Council on Human Investment and Commission on Jobs and Economic Development and served as Gov. James Blanchard's primary adviser on human investment and job training.

Power is widely recognized for his innovative redirection and reorganization of Michigan's job training programs as well as for his development of an integrated human investment policy for Michigan. His work is featured in David Osborne's book, "Reinventing Government."

In 1991, Power founded and serves as chairman of the Corporation for a Skilled Workforce, a not-for-profit organization which helps communities, states, employers and others achieve world-class workforce development systems.

Power was elected statewide to the University of Michigan's Board of Regents in 1990. He serves on the board of directors of the Power Foundation, the World Press Freedom Committee and as a trustee of the National Center on Education and the Economy.

The Canton Economic Club, which meets the third Wednesday of each month September through May, is sponsored this year by Rudolph Libbee and the Observer Newspapers.

Chairman of the board: The next Canton Economic Club speaker will be Philip H. Power, chairman of the board of Suburban Communications Corp., which publishes the Observer.

Fitness booster

Hoben teacher takes aim at unhealthy kids

BY JOHN BARR
STAFF WRITER

Michigan children are among the most unhealthy in the nation, and a Canton teacher is trying to change that.

The Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports presented an award to Ron Callison — a former five-year teacher at Miller Elementary School and who is now at Hoben — for the top-notch physical education program he teaches. The council has given Callison an award three years in a row, each time at a higher level than the year before. Two of the awards are displayed at Miller and one at Hoben.

Callison has taught in other Plymouth-Canton schools as well.

Eighty-five other teachers also were honored for helping develop excellent physical fitness programs on self assessment, Callison said, including Leann B. Gross, a physical education teacher at Pioneer Middle School.

Gross was honored for effectively promoting fitness lifestyles. Pioneer, as well as Miller and Hoben schools, has physical education classes that teach more than physical activity and motor skill development. Students develop problem-solving skills and learn to interact socially through lessons on good sportsmanship, perseverance and goal setting.

Callison was nominated by his former principal Samuel Barresi, who is now assistant superintendent of Harper Woods schools, and worked with him at Bird Elementary School in Canton in the early 1980s. Barresi believed that Callison, who developed his programs in 1979, had an excellent understanding of good physical education curriculum and was good at developing children's motor skills and hand-eye coordination. Callison would have children do skipping and hopping exercises, square dancing and parachute playing, Barresi said.

"I think Ron had a real strong rapport and respect for kids," Barresi said. "His program was real strong. I believed his program was exemplary. He always encouraged kids to strive for more."

Callison leads his physical fitness classes in a well-rounded program of "exploration," he said, which includes rhythm, testing, gymnastics, track and field and tumbling.

Callison loves tennis, which he says is a great lifetime sport, as well as others. He believes that popular sports such as football and baseball should not be overemphasized to students.

"I push hard, not just football. I try to push running, walking and swimming," he said.

Many of his students have won the Presidential Physical Fitness Awards. He has developed and used some of his methods overseas as well.

He taught and coached basketball at Gelsenhausen Army Base in Germany in 1981-83. Of this experience, he said it helps to be able to speak German, although most Germans can speak English.

Of course he didn't have to worry about a language barrier a year later in England when he taught physical education teacher and coached tennis. He also taught at Ann Arbor's Huron Valley High School and at Saline High School, which he said had a good athletic program.

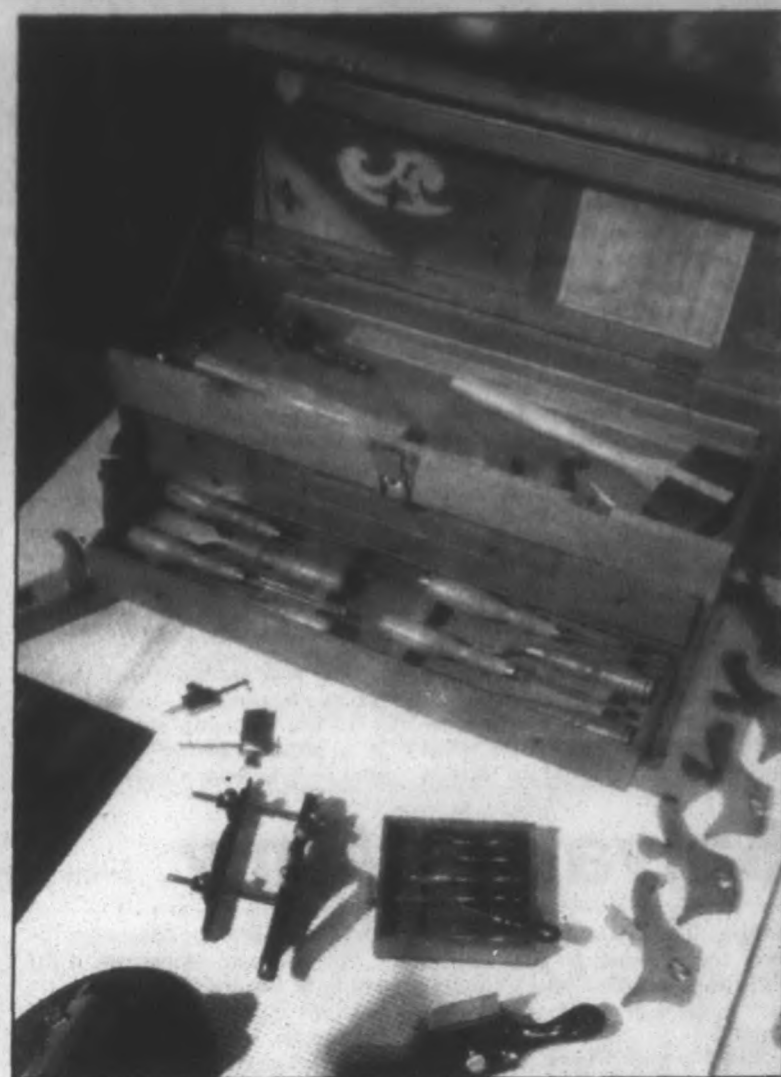

Barresi summed up Callison as "being very conscientious. He would go beyond the call of duty to do extra for children. His attentions were always what was in the best interest of kids," he said.

Despite his experience and awards, Callison remains modest. "I never thought the governor's program was a big deal," he said.

But there was obviously a need for it. The council was formed three years ago to combat high rates of preventable disease among inactive Michigan residents. Inactivity and poor diet results in more deaths than alcohol, firearms, infections, toxins, sexually transmitted diseases, automobile accidents and illicit drug use combined, a report from the council said.

Miniatures have big story to tell

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The turn-of-the-century traveling salesman couldn't carry around iron stoves, threshers or baker's racks to show customers on the road.

So he carried small scale-model replicas, called miniatures, instead. A variety of miniatures donated by area collectors is on display through March 3 at the Plymouth Historical Museum, 155 S. Main St.

The exhibit is titled "Miniatures of Many Sizes." Museum hours are 1-4 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday and 2-5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2 for adults and 50 cents for students ages 5-17. There is a $5 family rate.

While catalogs were used widely in the 1800s, "They were old by the end of the 19th century," said Beth Stewart, Plymouth museum director.

Manufacturers found that by making small-scale replicas of their products, they could get buyers interested in spending money on the real products. Many of the salesmen's samples are from the collection of Bob Lyons of Ypsilanti.

The exhibit also features doll houses donated by Muriel's Doll House of Plymouth, hand-carved doll house furniture, miniature villages, country stores, a peddler's wagon and more.

Some doll houses from the period were made from small produce display crates. The produce supplier would present the store owner with paper designed to look like the inside of a house, which could be laid on crate shelves to transform the crate into a doll house, for the store owner's children, Stewart said.

One display case in the exhibit shows small replica hay rakes, plows and a vacuum cleaner which actually work.

Other miniatures of the period include small hat boxes complete with miniature replica hats inside. "They would use these to give as gifts, because they had to come to the shop to be fitted" with the proper size hat, Stewart said.

Another case depicts carved doll house furniture made by Judy Shellhaus of Plymouth, who formerly taught at Greenfield Village. The replica furniture is carved with an X-acto knife from basswood, a softer wood that is easier to carve. The display also features small replica cane chairs.

Don Wood of Ypsilanti donated for the exhibit his collection of handmade miniature tools, including hammers, planes, vises and more.

For doll enthusiasts, the display includes a collection of miniature dolls including kewpie dolls and more.

Baker's shop: The "Miniatures of Many Sizes" display at the Plymouth Historical Museum features miniatures ranging from this replica shop to dolls and more.

Dig it

It will cost Plymouth Township $13,809 to remove an underground gas storage tank behind the township police station on Lilley Road north of Ann Arbor Road.

"The tank is being removed because it provides a service that is no longer needed and poses a potential hazard of contamination if not removed," said engineering consultant Wendy Brown in a report to the township board of trustees. They approved the action at their Nov. 28 meeting.

The contract includes removal of up to 50 cubic yards of soil around the tank, if leakage has happened. Should further soil cleanup be needed, the cleanup firm, Pickering Environmental, has proposed an hourly fee schedule to do the work.

community, and at Ann Arbor Road and Main Street," McCarthy said.

At I-275 and Ann Arbor Road, a brick tower is suggested by planning consultants, with brick being a theme that ties in with downtown Plymouth's streetscape improvements which feature brick.

Government officials and business leaders agree on a need to tell Ann Arbor Road motorists at Main Street that downtown Plymouth is just a few blocks north of the intersection.

Plymouth Mayor Ron Loiselle said the goal to create identical zoning ordinances for both sides of Ann Arbor Road "is historic in Michigan, there's never been two bordering communities working together this way."

Further plans call for improving the look of Ann Arbor Road between I-275 and Main Street.

"We need to clean that whole area up to make it pedestrian-friendly," Loiselle said.

"By the end of February all the ordinances should be in place. The next thing is the city commission and township board would endorse the plan in concept and funding for additional drawings, then try to develop a time line for funding, whether it be through grants and partial special assessments — that's way down the road," Loiselle said.

Could work begin in 1996? "I would like to see something, but realistically government doesn't move that fast," Loiselle said. "The goal is to see something construction-wise in 1997."

"I'm real excited about it, it's going to be positive," he said.

On the township side, officials at a public hearing in January plan to hear from a consultant on the paving of township roads off up to Ann Arbor Road. "On some streets they do petitions to get paving while some don't," McCarthy said. "We'll look at the cost and impact if all the streets were paved."

"We've had some of the businesses along Ann Arbor Road say after the streetscape, 'You're not going to start tearing up Ann Arbor Road, are you?'" McCarthy said. Improvements would be planned so as not to cause as great a disruption as in downtown this summer.

Earlier ideas to create a boulevard on that stretch of Ann Arbor Road have been scrapped. "We had consultants look at that, it's really not feasible," McCarthy said. That's because a resulting road-widening wouldn't be desirable as businesses are generally placed close to the road, McCarthy said.

"This leads to better citizenship," he said. "Students that are involved look for answers."

It is the most popular school elective and every teacher in the educational park wants to teach it, McCauley said.

This popularity was further proven, Suget said: "Every parent who talked to me said students had found the class they were looking for."

Travel was part of the reason. Classes go to Washington, D.C., every year. This helps students understand government at a higher level and their roles as citizens, Salczynski said.

"They see that government doesn't just do things to them. They see they're a part, see the process at work," he said. The trip encourages uncomfortable students to come out of their shells, he said.

One student was excited when he got to meet Newt Gingrich, he said. Kids are watching CNN for the first time, he added.

The program encourages students to succeed. McCauley's twin sons, both seniors, have been accepted at the James Madison school at Michigan State, he said.

Canton Observers' Christmas Cheer Club five years ago, we've collected donations from about 200 generous donors each year.

We've seen kids from Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops with arms full of toys for needy kids and representatives of school groups and service groups with boxes of canned goods and more toys. And we've seen scores of families and individuals bringing in donations.

To join the Christmas Cheer Club, just bring in a donation of canned or boxed food, or a new, unwrapped toy. When you come in, we like to ask that you give us your names — so we can print them in the paper.

The Salvation Army will distribute donated toys to kids and use food items to make Christmas baskets. Many food items are used to stock the Salvation Army pantry, which provides food for the needy year-round.

Our office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, at 744 Wing Street in downtown Plymouth. If you have any questions, call us at 459-2700 and ask for Kevin Brown or Jeff Counts.

So if you can find the time, please donate to our Christmas Cheer Club!

Thanks — and Merry Christmas!

Suburbs eye grants for youth programs

BY BETH SUNDRA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

Members of the Conference of Western Wayne chose a block grant strategy for providing money to youth assistance programs Friday.

Wayne County is allocating funds from a tax approved by voters in 1988. The Conference of Western Wayne communities' portion would be $311,800.

The money is part of $1 million allocated for youth service programs for fiscal year 1996. The county has proposed that 50 percent of the funds be allocated within the city of Detroit, Hamtramck and Highland Park and 50 percent be spent in out-Wayne County, according to information provided to conference members by Daniel P. Gilmartin, executive director of the conference.

The money will be allocated by the CWW board of directors, who would spread out the money as much as possible, Gilmartin said. "It's up to us to decide how to distribute it," he said.

CWW had two options for how the funds would be distributed. Besides the block grant approach, the CWW could have chosen to have the county issue requests for proposals to area service providers and allocate grants through a grant process.

Last year, the CWW area received $70,000, according to Gilmartin.

The plan will go before the Wayne County Commission on Dec. 21. The proposed start-up date of the contract for services is Feb. 1.

Inkster mayor Edward Bivens raised concerns that agencies which receive the money need to be accountable and whether this satisfied the CWW's concerns about the use of the one-tenth of a mill approved by voters for youth programs.

Jim DeSana, mayor of Wyandotte and chairman of the Downriver conference, also addressed conference members with that concern.

"All of us in the suburbs ought to be concerned," he said.

In 1988, voters approved a 10-year, 1-mill levy. The language in the ballot proposal that voters approved said 0.1 mill should be used to "build and operate a juvenile offender work/training institution."

But Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara decided to spend the money on a program whereby non-violent juvenile offenders are dealt with in their homes instead of incarcerated in juvenile centers.

In 1993, Conference of Western Wayne members were critical that the money wasn't being used to build a new juvenile detention facility and approved a resolution asking that a ballot question be placed before county voters or that the money be given back to voters.

The county is now planning to build a new juvenile detention facility. (See related story on Page 8A.)

DeSana said it concerns him that the county will now be selling bonds to build the facility that will have to be paid for beyond the end of the millage, which runs out in 1997.

He said 79 percent of the millage bill is being paid by the suburbs in Wayne County.

COUNTY NEWS

When the county goes to voters to renew the millage, DeSana urged that suburban Wayne County officials develop their own language or at least participate in formulating the language for any ballot proposal.

He urged that leaders not "take for granted how that money may be spent."

CWW chairman Thomas Yack, Canton Township supervisor, suggested that the conference members should consider a resolution regarding the issue.

Salem's Senior Class Council supports the Salvation Army

Although they have their senior prom to plan, these students also wanted to help out those in their community.

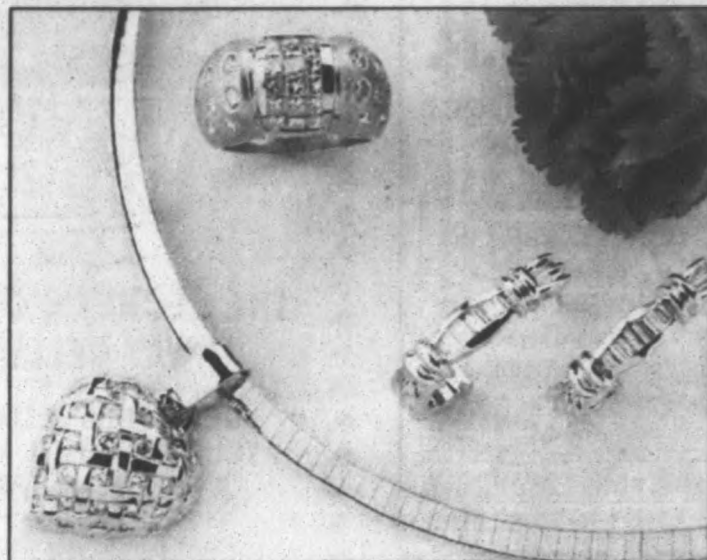

"The Salem High School Senior Class Council recently donated $200 to the Salvation Army in an effort to help feed the homeless," said class adviser Jan Loy.

Students have been raising the money over the past several years with such fund-raisers as candy sales and pizza sales at Plymouth's annual Fall Festival. Money raised is used for planning the senior prom and community service projects.

As the holiday season is now upon us, the Senior Class Council is again working toward helping others. They are collecting travel-sized samples of toiletries to donate to the First Step program.

County has site for new youth home

Action by the Detroit City Council last week gave the green light to Wayne County's plans to build a new juvenile detention facility.

On Wednesday, the Detroit City Council voted 6-3 in favor of a plan to build the facility on a piece of property near I-375 and Macomb Street in downtown Detroit. The city will sell the vacant land to the county for $750,000, according to David Katz, chief of staff to the Wayne County executive.

Construction on the new facility is expected to begin this winter or early spring and take 18-24 months, Katz said. Bid packages are being prepared now, he said.

The site was opposed by a group of residents who live nearby, but Katz said the site is suitable because it is already near several criminal justice complexes, including the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice, the Wayne County Jail, and the old county jail.

The $30 million for the new facility will be borrowed through a bond issue and repaid, in part, through a millage approved by voters in 1988, Katz said.

The 197-bed facility will replace the current facility, formerly called the Wayne County Youth Home, which was built in 1960 and is obsolete, according to Katz. The home was subject to an eight-month investigation by the U.S. Justice Department last year.

Federal authorities said the civil rights of the juveniles in the facility were being violated by a failure to protect them or provide adequate education, medical care, food and other necessities.

A deadline was set to address the problems, and the county made changes to meet that deadline.

Public hearings have been held this year on the proposed site for the new facility, and Wayne County commissioners in November approved a bond issue that includes $27 million to build it.

The current facility is six stories. It houses juveniles ages 16 and under who have been charged with committing crimes.

"The beauty of this building is everything will be on one level," Katz said.

The new facility will include courtrooms and classrooms. It will be "a whole continuum of care" Katz said, and will offer alternatives such as educational programs not just incarceration.

Bill would make killing fetus a felony

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

A state Senate-passed bill would treat fetuses like children — kill one and you go to prison for a long time, perhaps for life.

"The Pregnant Woman Protection Act" passed the Senate on a 29-7 vote Nov. 30 and was sent to the House amid hot rhetoric reminiscent of past abortion controversies.

The bill defines an unborn child as having life at conception. It says: "A person who maliciously causes the death of an unborn child by any assault, infliction of injury, or any other means or action upon the mother, is guilty of a felony punishable by imprisonment for life or any term of years."

Here is how area senators voted:

No (7) — Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township, and Alma Smith, D-Salem.

The floor battle was over Peters' amendment to redefine the beginning of life as the "quickening" of the fetus. Senators rejected it, 10-26.

"Quickening" is the time (at) which there are some signs of viability where that fetus begins to move in the mother's womb," said Peters. "At that point, that child is deemed to be viable. At that time, a crime can be committed against the child... I believe this is a better definition."

Peters said placing life at the moment of conception is "a religious question (that) should not be part of what this Legislature rules on."

Sen. Alma Smith, D-Salem, daughter of a physician, agreed. "We know that 20 percent of embryos spontaneously abort and that, of those, 50 to 60 percent of miscarriages are a result of a defect in the fetus, the placenta or the amnion. We have a tremendously difficult time equating an outside injury with a miscarriage," Smith said. "And yet with this bill, we're creating a first-degree murder situation in a first trimester state of the fetus."

Sponsor of the bill was Sen. William VanRegenmorter, R-Jenison, who guided the bill through his Judiciary Committee as a crime measure rather than through the Health Policy Committee.

"Quickening" is an obscure, antiquated, irrelevant term," VanRegenmorter said in reply to Peters. "It is now known that a fetus is capable of movement long before it is felt by the mother. So we have a real definitional problem if we use the word 'quickening'."

Added Sen. Joanne Emmons, R-Big Rapids: "This bill is about crimes against pregnant women. The Peters amendment would give permission to beat up a woman during the first 15-19 weeks (of pregnancy). I don't believe that's right. Beating up a pregnant woman is a crime and should be punished more severely than just a plain assault."

VanRegenmorter introduced the bill in response to a northern Michigan case where a woman lost an unborn child after a hit-run auto accident which couldn't be prosecuted.

Refer to Senate Bill 515 when writing to your state representative, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Build a pretty house made of gingerbread

I have fond memories of gingerbread even though gingerbread houses never graced the top of our Zenith console television. It was Grandma Janes, who passed on before my 10th birthday, who always seemed to know when our family was coming to visit. Minutes before we entered her home she would pull a pan of steaming gingerbread from the oven. I can remember Grandma Janes uttering something about gingerbread as a medicinal that "relieves respiratory difficulties and strengthens weak stomachs."

The best thing about gingerbread is the sharing. People create gingerbread houses to make other people smile.

Pasty chef Mary Denning of the same named cake shop in Westland has been an avid gingerbread baker since learning the trade in culinary school.

"Memorable gingerbread houses are made with imagination and patience, not with expensive equipment," said Denning, who was preparing to teach a class in gingerbread house construction at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn.

"Some of the houses are very elaborate and can be made with white chocolate, pulled sugar and fancy decorations, but I tend to appreciate the more simplistic homes and winter scenes."

"I've seen castles and cathedrals made out of gingerbread but the novice baker should remember to have fun and most of all, be patient," said Denning who has taught students how to erect everything from simple houses to complex villages.

Gingerbread house construction need not be a labor nor a major expense. There are a number of gingerbread books on the market with the most respected being "The Gingerbread Book" by Allen Bragdon, (copyright 1995, Smithmark Publishers, $15.98.) You can also pick up any holiday issue of a family or women's magazine. Most will have recipes for a construction grade gingerbread (a little denser with less leavening than standard cake like gingerbread) and will also include cut-outs for a basic frame.

Make the gingerbread and allow it to chill for at least an hour while you trace out the frame on shirt box cardboard. I find it incredibly easy to roll out the chilled dough, and precut the forms, then bake on parchment lined baking sheets.

For the most simplistic of designs, figure on a front, back, two sides (with windows) and two roof sections. Architecturally inclined bakers may wish to add dormers, porches, gabled roofs, chimneys and even weather vanes.

If all that sounds confusing, you can skip the making of the gingerbread and use graham crackers which can be carefully cut and trimmed.

"You can even get the youngest involved using sugar cubes as a construction medium," said Jeanne Sarna of Troy who teaches children's cooking at all Kitchen Glamour locations.

Sarna, a certified home economist, has encouraged both her sons Tony and Jeff to be creative in the kitchen.

"When the boys were younger, we'd spend an entire afternoon baking the gingerbread and then spend the entire next day constructing our houses. Sure, we had crumbs and frosting all over the kitchen but the opportunity to spend some quality time creating a family holiday treasure was far more important than worrying about who or what was going to clean up."

While making a gingerbread house Sarna said the boys learned how to use a pastry bag and what different tips could do for the decorating.

Once the gingerbread has been made and cut and a design has been agreed upon, the next step is to procure a large variety of confections to decorate with. You'll also have to whip up a batch of Royal icing (also dubbed gingerbread glue by the pros), buy a pastry bag or two, some couplers, and about $1.99 worth of assorted tips for decorating.

Most kitchen shops sell a pastry bag kit that contains a small reusable pastry bag, couplers and three assorted tips, but price out the individual purchase as sometimes, a dollar or two can be saved.

Making gingerbread houses is fun. All you need is patience and imagination, not necessarily in that order."

Surprise Santa with a special snack

BY RENEE M. SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

This Christmas Eve, good little boys and girls everywhere will leave a special snack for Santa. They know that climbing up and down chimneys with a big sack of toys slung across your back is hard work. Santa can get mighty hungry.

When I was a little girl, I used to leave Santa a bologna sandwich and a bottle of beer. My friend Alyce left him some sliced pepperoni and a bottle of beer. Strange that our fathers loved those same snacks. Of course, we also took care of Santa's sweet tooth and left him a few cookies.

Gretchen Hennen of Canton makes Santa thumbprint cookies on Christmas Eve afternoon, as did her mother and grandmother before her.

"We have a tradition that my mother, Joan, did. Her mother, my grandmother, Sue did it. I remember these from my childhood. I have the handprinted recipe from Grandma Sue," she said.

"I have memories of those specific cookies. Rolling them in egg whites and the nuts sticking to your fingers. Getting to lick your fingers. We definitely have sticky fingers in this house."

Besides Gretchen, the sticky fingers belong to 8-year-old Ashley, 5-year-old Katie, and Nicholas, who will be 2 on Dec. 16. Husband Mike is the only one with clean fingers on Christmas Eve. "He's not a sweet-eater," said Gretchen.

After returning home from Christmas Eve services, the Hennen children place the cookies on a special "Santa" plate Gretchen had as a child and set the place on the fireplace. They include a glass of milk to wash the crumbs down and a carrot for Rudolph.

"That's just part of preparing for bed on Christmas Eve," part of the tradition. I'm looking forward to Nicholas's participation this year," said Gretchen.

Susan Heinbaugh of Plymouth and her daughter Allison, 7, plan on making Santa bread pudding this Christmas Eve. "It's so basic. Everybody has old bread around. Allison really does it all," said Susan. Besides, the quick and easy recipe allows time for other family activities.

The Heinbaughs are a blended family, and Christmas Eve is an opportunity for everyone to come together. "We have children all ages. We go from 25 to 7. Only Allison is at home, but the others do find their way home on Christmas Eve. They know there will be a fire in the fireplace and Sandy Patti will be playing on the radio," said Susan.

The bread pudding recipe comes from Susan's mother-in-law, a Pennsylvania Dutch woman whose family still butchers their own hogs for hams and sausage. The pudding is simple and delicious, with just a hint of spice. Santa's sure to love it. "Our Santa happens to look a lot like Daddy," said Susan.

The Rick and Yvonne Johnson family of Redford celebrates Christmas Eve as if it were a birthday party. All four of their children, ages 14 to two, participate by decorating the bathroom mirror, the family's unofficial bulletin board.

"We'll decorate the bathroom mirror with 'Happy Birthday Jesus.' We'll all add little notes. We'll put balloons around the mirror. It's a huge mirror and that's where everybody goes. That's where all the family birthday messages go," said Yvonne.

Besides a birthday cake for Jesus, Yvonne makes cocoa mounds for Santa's snack. They're everybody's favorite cookie, especially Santa's. "He loves them. He loves chocolate," she said.

This year, Angelina, two, is looking forward to helping her mother make the cookies. "She keeps saying 'me make cookies mama,'" said Yvonne.

On Christmas morning, besides a plate of crumbs, Santa leaves each Johnson child a letter listing things they have done over the year that he's proud of and sometimes making suggestions for improvement. They're usually words to live by. Not a bad exchange for a Santa snack.

Santa's surprise: Light up your Christmas tree with dozens of cookies lovingly baked and decorated by your kids. They'll love all the festive shapes they can make with Christmas Cookie Ornaments, a crisp oatmeal sugar cookie that's easy to shape and delicious to eat.

Stock-up on gourmet goodies for guests

BY DAWN NEEDHAM
SPECIAL WRITER

Figuring out what to cook for dinner or what to serve at a gathering often moves to the bottom of the list at this time of year, pushed behind finding the perfect office exchange gift and the obligatory cookie-baking session.

But with just a little preparation and a well-stocked pantry, entertaining unexpected guests or making a last-minute dish can be as easy as - well, sending a list to Santa and having all the gifts delivered.

There are so many good products on the market one may plan an entire party menu comprised of all premade items. But at this time of year, homemade counts for a lot and doesn't call for a huge amount of effort.

Juliette Jonna, who runs Juliette's Cuisine, a division of Merchant of Vino, has the luxury of all those premade dips, appetizers, side and main dishes that the market sells. But some of her best ideas come from combining items from the store's shelves with a little bit of effort to come up with great meals and snacks.

By using ready-made gourmet products, she said, "it's fast and it looks like you spent half a day on it"

Roasted red peppers, in a jar or made yourself and stored, can be a lifesaver to harried cooks. Jonna suggests serving them on an antipasto platter with small buffalo mozzarella balls, some pickles olives and Parmesan cheese. For another idea, layer mozzarella slices on a serving platter with some roasted peppers and sliced tomato, add sprigs of fresh basil and perhaps drizzle a good olive oil over the lot.

Olives are the "hottest thing right now," Jonna said. She attributes this to the rise in interest in Mediterranean cuisine (helped along by its reputed heart-healthy attributes). A "mosaic of olives" with different colors, sizes and flavors can be matched with cocktails, wine or beer for a post-shopping restorative or a pre-event warm-up.

And for cocktail snacks, forget the old rules about what drinks go with what food. "Everything is so versatile, like the way we dress today," Jonna said. "There's not one format of dressing, like if you go to a cocktail party everybody's dressing differently, not the same like they used to. Food's the same way."

When using gourmet products, you may find that the adage "you get what you pay for" holds true. Some may seem expensive, but compare the cost of a few good items - goat cheese, roasted peppers, an excellent loaf of bread - with a recipe containing a dozen items. Keep in mind the price of your time and changing tastes. "People would rather eat high quality than high volume," Jonna said.

Think easy and fun, too: Invite some friends over to taste a variety of microbrewed beers.

Serve snack foods such as honey mustard pretzels, cajun peanuts, chili-lime tortilla chips.

Master chef Kevin Gawronski, an instructor at the Schoolcraft College School of Culinary Arts in Livonia, said his freezer is his salvation. "I always have some smoked salmon in my freezer, and it just takes a few minutes to thaw and slice and serve with some French bread," he said.

A freezer stocked with some inter-

Bake gingerbread to make a house

See related Taste Buds column on front.

BASIC MOLASSES GINGERBREAD DOUGH

8 cups all purpose flour, unsifted
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
2 teaspoons ground ginger
2 teaspoons nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
1 ¼ cup dark molasses
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¾ cup butter or margarine

In a large bowl, combine flour, cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg and salt. In a 2-quart bowl, stir together the molasses, brown sugar and butter. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally until butter is melted. Pour liquid mixture into flour mixture and stir until well blended.

Form dough into a ball and knead until smooth and pliable. Roll out dough on foil lined cookie sheet to ¼-inch thickness using a lightly floured rolling pin. Cover cookie sheets loosely and refrigerate at least 30 minutes.

Cut out cookie pieces, remove and reserve excess dough. Bake at 350 degrees F. 12-15 minutes or until firm and lightly browned. Cool cookies completely on racks before removing.

Should be enough to make two medium-sized houses.

HOMEMADE ROYAL ICING

1 pound confectioners (powdered) sugar
3 egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tartar

Combine all ingredients in the bowl of an electric mixer and beat at low speed until blended. Beat at high speed 7-10 minutes. Makes 2 cups.

Should be enough to construct two medium houses. Additional icing will be required for decorations and/or landscape.

INSTANT ROYAL ICING

3 tablespoons meringue powder
1 pound confectioner's sugar
6 tablespoons warm water

In a heavy duty mixer, beat all ingredients at medium speed for 7-10 minutes until icing forms stiff peaks. Makes about 2 cups.

Icing tip: Needs no refrigeration. Keep icing stored in airtight containers. If keeping, whip before using again. The icing does dry out quickly so do not leave it exposed.

Keep decorator tips(s) on a damp towel during use to prevent hardening.

esting sausages can give you the confidence to invite guests over at a moment's notice. Gawronski said he often will thaw some sausage and bake it, or pan-sear on the stovetop and finish it off in the oven for a crispy skin. He slices the sausage with a bias cut for presentation, fans it out in a circle on a serving platter and places a cup of sauce in the middle. "It's flavorful, it's nice to look at, and it's fast," he said.

On the non-frozen side, keep a can of crabmeat for inspiration. Gawronski said it's a matter of minutes to get a crabmeat spread on the hors d'oeuvres table. In the food processor, blend an eight-ounce brick of cream cheese until softened, add a 3-ounce can of crabmeat and mix; then fold in a splash of white wine, some lemon juice and a dash of cayenne pepper to taste. Stir in some finely chopped scallions.

"That's very nice served with some toasted pita bread — and I put it right in the toaster," Gawronski said.

Ann Arbor-area chef Krystn Stephens suggests spooning into endive leaves some toasted walnuts, Parmesan and chopped greens (spinach, lettuce, whatever's on hand). Drizzle with a vinaigrette and serve as finger food.

Check out local bakeries for hearty and unusual breads, festive cookies and pastries. Sam and Michel Daher — co-owners of Sweet Dreams, who recently moved their bakery from Livonia to the Bloomfield Plaza, 6558 Telegraph Road at Maple Road — offer a variety of cakes and other pastries.

Their Christmas Log is an edible work of art. Each log is baked from scratch.

Keep your waist during holidays

While the holiday season should be a time of good will and cheer, for many people it is a diet disaster waiting to happen.

Holidays are often equated with

Heart Smart makes sense

Here are some Heart Smart recipes from Faye Fitzgerald, Heart Smart coordinator at the Henry Ford Heart and Vascular Institute.

CAJUN CRABMEAT SPREAD

1 package (8 oz.) lite cream cheese, softened
1 tablespoon nonfat yogurt
¾ cup 1 percent low-fat cottage cheese
½ teaspoon paprika
¾ teaspoon ground red pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon ground thyme
1 can crabmeat (6 Oz.) drained
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
Chili peppers as garnish, if desired
Cocktail bread

In a large bowl, beat cream cheese, yogurt, cottage cheese, paprika, red pepper, garlic powder and thyme until well blended, about 1 minute.

Stir in crabmeat and green pepper. Place in serving bowl, cover and chill.

Before serving, garnish with chili peppers, if desired. Serve with cocktail bread. Yield: 2½ cups.

Nutrition details per serving (Each serving is 1 slice of bread, 1 teaspoon spread.): Calories 27, trace of fat.

MEXICAN QUESADILLAS

¼ pound Monterey Jack cheese, shredded (low-fat, low Sodium, low cholesterol variety)
10 flour tortillas (8-inch)
Sweet pea guacamole (recipe follows)
Salsa

Divide cheese in an even layer among 5 tortillas, leaving a ½-inch border. Top with another tortilla and press lightly to compress.

Heat a 10 inch skillet (medium heat). When hot, cook quesadillas, one at a time in vegetable oil spray turning once, until very lightly browned on both sides (about 2 minutes).

Quesadillas are best served immediately, though they can be cooked several hours in advance and held at room temperature. Reheat them prior to serving by placing them in a single layer on a baking sheet and baking them at 400 degrees F. for 4-5 minutes.

To serve, cut each one into sixths and arrange them on a platter or in a large basket. Serve with guacamole and salsa on the side. Yield 30 appetizers.

Nutrient analysis per serving: 62 calories, 1 gram fat.

SWEET PEA GUACAMOLE

10 ounce package frozen
1 jalapeno pepper
1 Tablespoon olive oil
1½ to 2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
¼ teaspoon ground cumin
1 (2-inch piece) of red onion, peeled

Cook peas according to package directions. Drain well and pat with paper towels to remove as much moisture as possible.

Mince pepper in a food processor or a blender.

Scrape down sides of container, add oil and 1½ teaspoons lemon juice and mix until the pepper is even more finely minced (about 30 seconds). Add peas and cumin and puree, stopping once to scrape down sides of container. Cut onion in half and add to the container. Mix just enough to chop coarsely.

Chill well. Adjust seasonings and lemon juice before serving. Can be made up to 2 days in advance and refrigerated. Yield: 20 Tablespoons.

Nutrient analysis per 1 Tablespoon serving: Calorie 20, trace fat.

an endless stream of parties complete with an array of tempting appetizers and drinks. Unfortunately, many of our holiday favorites are high in fat, cholesterol and calories.

Fear not, one can still enjoy the holiday season without becoming enemies with the bathroom scale.

The holiday season is a difficult time for the weight-conscious. "Think of it as a temporary plateau," said registered dietitian Faye Fitzgerald, Heart Smart Coordinator at the Henry Ford Heart and Vascular Institute.

"A reasonable goal may be weight maintenance rather than weight loss."

Fitzgerald recommends these practical tips to help make it through the holiday season without adding to your waistline or your risk of heart disease.

■ Don't attend a party hungry. Skipping meals can make it difficult to resist high-calorie, high-fat snacks such as nuts, crackers, chips, dips, cheeseballs, pastries, cookies, pate, fruitcakes, etc.

■ If you do choose to eat cheese and crackers, try some of the low-fat or fat-free varieties.

■ Take advantage of bite-size raw vegetable appetizers at parties. These are healthy and can fill you up before the temptation for other high-fat items takes over.

■ Offer to bring an appetizer that is low in calories and fat.

■ Get enough rest. If you're tired, it's easy to eat without thinking.

■ Try a non-alcoholic beverage choice such as fruit juice, club soda, mineral water, low-calorie soda or diet tonic water with a twist of fruit. This helps avoid the "empty" calories from alcohol.

Plenty of sparkle in holiday attire

If you're in the mood to knock 'em dead at the holiday office party, why not surprise all your co-workers this year and trade your tailored suit for a trendsetting dress or pants in winter white, silver or a pale pastel color.

Forget your safe, but boring, little black number or the sparkly red Christmas sweater. Go with fashion's newest, sexiest styles. The sixties styles are "au courant" again. Think Courreges and Quant with nineties flair. No raiding the cedar closet for tired old minis and scuffed go-go boots, instead look for a body-skimming A-line cocktail dress with a "Carnaby Street" look.

Pair it with spiky stilettoes and a mini evening bag for a thoroughly modern take on the Beatles era. Escada Couture, available at Neiman Marcus in the Somerset Collection, offers a pale pink standout with a shimmer of sequins. The sweet satin bow and easy shape take you from the corporate cocktail party to a rockin' New Year's Eve bash.

In keeping with the flirty, feminine silhouette, Moschino designs an eye-catching little Audrey Hepburn silk shirtwaist with flared skirt. The white dress trimmed in black lingerie lace, is from his Cheap & Chic line (at Neiman Marcus). Always sleek and chic, leather is the hottest texture for clothing this season. New styles are sculpted and tailored, and white is the hue of choice.

Jill Stuart interprets this mod look in a white lamb leather single-breasted jacket and matching pant from Saks Fifth Avenue. Wear this shapely ensemble when you want to perfect a certain attitude.

Metallic moods

Shine is a key word for the holidays and nothing shimmers more beautifully than metallic silver. At Tender on Maple Road in Birmingham, a sparkling silver A-line skirt adds luster to your black cashmere sweater or pretty pastel silk shirt. Perfect for the company party, a family dinner or a New Year's celebration.

Ellen Tracy defines evening wear with a femme fatale low-slung ballroom skirt worn with a pewter metallic sweater. She also softens winter's palette with an array of pastel wools and knits. Look for pink, lavender and willow green at Neiman Marcus and Saks Fifth Avenue.

If your party calls for a more formal, long gown, consider a simple white satin sheath by Kay Unger at Neiman's or a velvet corset top paired with a full satin ball skirt from Hudson's.

When you want something completely original, check out Shapes in Royal Oak. Treas Sikowski, co-owner and fashion designer, said Shapes can create whatever you have in mind, for any occasion, in any fabrication. Call (810) 547-4990. For the fashion-forward guy, the ultimate formal expression, white tie and tails by Chaps Ralph Lauren. Worst of wool and satin notch lapels enrich white pique accessories.

Oscar de la Renta introduces his Pour Homme collection. De la Renta toys with split tuxedos for the holiday season. He mixes satin lapels with unexpected gray flannel, dark plaids, corduroy and velvet. A red or blue checked shirt presents a casually formal stance. This youthful, edgy look is "fun," explains de la Renta. "It shows all the different ways of wearing a tuxedo and not looking like a waiter." The formalwear collection is available at Saks.

What to watch for in Malls & Mainstreets next week:

- Independent retailers are pooling their resources to fight the giants for customers and sales.
- Linda Bachrack goes shopping for sparkling holiday accessories.
- Meet the gals behind Belly Basics, a simple box of maternity clothes for before, during and after.
- Retail Details briefs you on changes in the marketplace.

Ski '95: New designs and better fits

In his 43rd year in the ski business, Don Thomas is still amazed at the innovations in equipment, and the high-tech fabrics available for slope attire. He previews the '96 season for shoppers.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Don Thomas' Sporthaus, Maple and Telegraph in Bloomfield Hills, was selected as one of America's Top 50 Shops by Snow Country magazine. The shop offers customers a local and Michigan Ski Hotline through December by calling 1-810-626-2626.

Thomas offers this brief look at the latest equipment in store.

For kids: New products are geared to help kids improve their skiing. The Nordy Boot trains the child to stand the proper way, in a natural ski position. The boot is designed to provide a quicker progression for beginners.

The Try Ski, is a device that only allows skis to go straight or in a V (snowplow) position. Helmets to protect kids heads are also available as they're required on most western U.S.

slopes. Ski harnesses keep the real little ones from ailing out of control.

For recreation: "Fat skis" are 30-percent wider than normal skis. They're designed for extreme snow conditions, taking both powder and crunchy snow well. The "shape ski" has an hourglass design which accentuates turning. The Soloman Pro Link has a shock absorption system built into the topskin of the ski for greater ski to snow contact, improving the edge grip of the ski. This allows for faster speeds, better control and increased precision.

The Goode Ski: The Dave Goode ski marks a major change in ski design. It's twice as strong as current skis, yet weighs only half as much because its made from aerospace quality carbon/graphite composite. Goode designed the skis to be soft longitudinally and have a stiff torsional flex so the ski helps with quicker, sharper turns. It holds an exceptional edge on hard, packed snow.

For Women: Abandoning the unisex designs of years' past, manufacturer's have shifted toward meeting the special performance needs of women skiers. Women's skis take into account the difference in the center of gravities between men and

"There is definitely sophisticated art behind the product, otherwise it would be dumb," Victoria said recently between sips of diet Coke in the Neiman Marcus cafe in the Somerset Collection, Troy. "It's all about confidence. It expresses the childlike joy and freshness that keeps life and love open to discovery. There is no prejudice in our product. The designs are not bound up in any facades. That's why people like it and want to own it."

Victoria and husband Richard live and work in Aurora, New York, a small town in the Finger Lakes district. Their "custom" home furnishings are produced in buildings on their 19th century dairy farm by 200 craftsman who live in the area and artists attracted to their way of doing things.

"When we entertain business guests we have no fine restaurant or opera house nearby to visit, so we invented Camp MacKenzie-Childs," Victoria explained. "Our employees perform skits and sing songs, having as wonderful a time as our guests."

"When we had a fire in 1993, 10 years after we established the business, everything went up in smoke. Many of the townspeople wondered what we would do next. All was presumed lost. But because our company is based on ideas, and fire can't destroy ideas, we rebuilt, stronger than ever."

Fire was just one of many obstacles the couple overcame to make MacKenzie-Childs the multi-million dollar company it is today. Manufacturers insisted that they could never mass-produce enough "custom" products to meet the demand of the mass-market.

"Because we are not tied to conventions, we began experimenting with our own clays and glazes and started our own manufacturing facility in Aurora," Victoria said. "When we decided to expand the company beyond majolica, our first excursion was to Europe in search of glassblowers, then later to the Far East. We worked side-by-side with the Indonesian artisans in rattan wood-carving factories and developed a collection of furniture that takes rattan to a new dimension."

Not bad for two starving artists who decided to go into manufacturing simply to raise the tuition their only child Heather, now 24, needed to attend ballet school.

Victoria grew up in San Francisco, one of four children. Her mother later became a mural painter and her father, a native of Grosbe Pointe, invented insulation among other things. Victoria received a B.F.A. from Indiana University. Then she met and married Richard, of Worcester, Mass. He was also an artist with his B.F.A. degree from Massachusetts College of Art. They decided to earn their master's degrees together from Alfred University in New York.

'When we entertain business guests we have no fine restaurant or opera house nearby to visit, so we invented Camp MacKenzie-Childs . . . Our employees perform skits and sing songs, having as wonderful a time as our guests. When we had a fire in 1993, 10 years after we established the business, everything went up in smoke. Many of the townspeople wondered what we would do next. All was presumed lost. But because our company is based on ideas, and fire can't destroy ideas, we rebuilt, stronger than ever.'

Victoria MacKenzie-Childs

"After graduate school we moved to Stoke Gabriel, Devon England where we worked at a small pottery firm and taught at Devon College. We also designed clothing for theatrical productions. When we returned to New York in 1980, Richard accepted a teaching position at Wells College and I continued designing clothing and working in sculpture."

Their first products sold were the ceramic gifts they made for their home, friends and family. Successful sales figures had the couple convinced they were onto something big and the sky was the limit.

In September 1993, the couple decided to open a three-story store in New York City on Madison Avenue to showcase their visions. The management of their only retail outlet was handed over to friend Margaret Imrie, an opera singer, wife, and mother of three sons with no "official" retail experience.

"It was a scary proposition, but my husband had just lost his job and Victoria and Richard needed someone they could trust, so I got the job," Margaret said. "I adopted the philosophy that life and growth come out of problem-solving as I tackled the day-to-day operation of the store."

Victoria views the windows of the New York store as "empty canvases where the MacKenzie-Childs can relate bigger messages to a bigger audience than seen on Broadway."

"We came out of the fine arts/craft movement but we decided early on we weren't gonna play by the rules," she said. "Our designs would not be contrived. We see beauty in function. We have confidence. We want the adult world to get over itself. Be free. Think new thoughts. The truth is so blatant once you see it — and it doesn't always come academically."

Every detail about MacKenzie-Childs has a unique viewpoint — from its shopping bags which are works of art, to the new line of enamelware, exclusive to Neiman Marcus.

"I just can't explain the magic of these designs," said collector Suzanne Robbins of Troy, who came to meet MacKenzie-Childs at a recent Neiman Marcus promotion. "They make the table festive. They give it a smile. It's like dining at the Mad Hatter's."

LaBelle Provence in Birmingham was recently selected to carry the MacKenzie-Childs line of glassware in its Maple Road shop. Co-owner Leslie Benzer traveled to the New York "camp" to see their manufacturing process first-hand.

"It was a wonderful experience," she said. "They really seem to live the ideals of their business — joy, purity and loveliness. Every inch of their farmhouse is painted with their designs from the floors to the furniture to the ceilings. The artists who make each piece by hand seemed genuine, too. We are very excited about having their work in our store."

Victoria and Richard just decided to abandon plans for two more stores in Chicago and San Francisco and instead enter the Japanese and Parisian markets.

"It just feels right," Victoria said earnestly. "It would be wonderful to see MacKenzie-Childs juxtaposed against another culture."

Last year MacKenzie-Childs won Entrepreneur of the Year Award in the category of Social Responsibility in Manufacturing, sponsored by Inc. Magazine, Merrill Lynch and Ernst & Young.

'Wild Bill' does justice to legend

JOHN MONAGHAN

It opens with a series of action scenes, spread out over some 20 years, that fueled one of the West's most enduring legends. Played by Jeff Bridges with long rangy hair, handlebar mustache, and fancy hat, Wild Bill Hickock greeted each challenge with stoic coolness.

We see Bill battle a begrudged Indian, six-guns blazing as they ride toward each other at full gallop. Bill take on a bar full of cocky soldiers; and finally Bill, as sheriff, keep the peace on the mean streets of Abilene only to shoot his own deputy in the process.

That "Wild Bill" can't sustain this level of energy is no surprise. Yet it does have enough vivid performances and sense of style to entertain fans of the classical

REVIEW

Western.

Modern westerns play like funeral eulogies, larger-than-life stories of steely-eyed brazenness that even Hickock's contemporaries recognize as disappearing from the American West. "You can buy him a drink and shake his hand," an old-timer says to the skeptical young man at the Deadwood bar, "and then tell your grandkids that you met the great Wild Bill Hickock."

The young man remains unimpressed. He is Jack McCall (David Arquette), the man history credits with shooting Wild Bill in the back during a poker game. The famed dead man's hand signals to us that, for Bill, this really is the final roundup.

In the celebrity-stalking '90s, the weaselly McCall takes on a new significance. He is Mark David Chapman, let off with warnings time and time again, finally striking home with the object of his obsession.

"Wild Bill" is written and directed by Walter Hill, no stranger to the western genre. His "Long Riders" was an interesting experiment that cast the Carradines and Keaches as frontier brothers. Some critics hailed last year's "Geronimo" as the best western in 20 years.

Hill gets an amazing performance out of Jeff Bridges, one of the few modern actors who looks completely believable in his western duds. He plays Hickock both as the glaucoma-stricken gunfighter riding out his fame as well as an earlier version shown in arty (sometimes tedious) black-and-white flashbacks.

Ellen Barkin makes a sexy Calamity Jane, a relationship less out of history than out of other movies, including two versions of "The Plainsman" in 1936 and 1966. As the Brit gambler fascinated by the Old West, John Hurt compares Deadwood, South Dakota, to a town out of the Bible, "the part right before God gets angry."

Indeed, this Deadwood actually looks like it has some depth behind the fake facades of the studio backlot. Bill frequents a Chinese opium den, one in a handful of spots where Jack locates his target but finds it difficult to actually gun him down.

The success of "Dances with Wolves" might have signaled the production of more westerns. But it's guys like Hill who work hard to keep this archaic genre alive.

Buffets should be happy

AP — If you're planning a holiday buffet to entertain friends, take care to avoid food poisoning.

Pamela Brady, a foods specialist with the University of Arkansas Cooperative Extension Service in Little Rock, said buffets are a source of concern because food is often left out for long periods of time.

"If it's food that should be kept cold, you should serve it on ice or put it in a small bowl so that you can replenish it frequently," Brady said. "With hot foods, use small bowls or some kind of heater."

Bacteria cause food poisoning, and all they need to grow is the right combination of time and temperature. Temperature control is critical, because bacteria grow best in lukewarm foods.

"We worry about food spoilage at any temperature from 40 to 140 degrees Fahrenheit," she said.

"Our recommendation is that food should not stay in this danger zone any longer than two hours," she said. "If it takes 20 minutes to prepare the dish, the dish only has an hour and 40 minutes to sit out and be served."

For most healthy people, food poisoning generally leads to nothing more serious than nausea, diarrhea and stomach cramps.

Those who run the greatest risk of more dangerous consequences are the elderly and those with weakened immune systems, including those undergoing chemotherapy, AIDS sufferers, diabetics, and children under 2.

Enjoy foods, but enjoy them safely

When we think of winter holidays, beginning with Thanksgiving and ending with New Year's one of the images that comes to mind is the table heaped with all kinds of wonderful foods.

Sharing food and traditions are a large part of the winter holidays. Families look forward to enjoying many traditional dishes at this time of the year.

All the emphasis on food and eating means the opportunities for food borne illnesses are also great. It pays to be careful with your preparation, handling and storage of food so that your family and guests can enjoy the season without contacting food poisoning.

By following some simple tips, you can guarantee safe and enjoyable holiday eating.

■ Preparation — Keep the food preparation area and all utensils clean. Washing your hands a minimum of twenty seconds with soap and warm water is a must before beginning food preparation. Be sure to wash them again after you have handled raw meat or poultry before you touch any other food. Hands can carry harmful bacteria, viruses, and parasites that can contaminate food and cause illnesses.

Wash fruits and vegetables in cold running water to remove any surface pesticide residue, dirt and other impurities. Do not use soapy water — it can leave a residue that might not be safe.

Cutting boards need to be properly used and cleaned to avoid spreading harmful bacteria. Never chop fresh vegetables on a cutting board that was used before for raw meat without first washing it with hot soapy water and sanitizing it. To sanitize, add one teaspoon of unscented bleach to a gallon of water in your sink. Immerse the cutting board in the water for at least one minute. Air dry before putting away.

■ Serving — Because buffets are popular at holiday time, you need to take precautions to keep hot foods hot (above 140 degrees Fahrenheit) and cold foods cold (below 40 degrees). Serve the hot dishes from chafing dishes or on warming trays that maintain the internal temperature of the food at 140 degrees Fahrenheit or above. Nestle dishes of cold food in a bed of crushed ice to keep them cold. You can also preheat dishes for hot food in an oven at 200 to 225 degrees Fahrenheit. Serving dishes for cold foods can be chilled in the refrigerator.

Foods should not be held at room temperature for more than two hours. It's a good idea to keep food warming in the oven or staying cold in the refrigerator and replace the serving dishes regularly. Don't add fresh foods to serving dishes that have been sitting out, replace them.

■ Storage — Refrigerate or freeze leftovers promptly in shallow, covered containers. Leave air space around the dishes in the refrigerator so that food can cool down quickly. Before re-serving these foods, heat them to 165 degrees Fahrenheit. Soups, sauces and gravies should be reheated to a rolling boil.

■ Special Foods — Do not serve foods that contain raw eggs, such as Caesar salad, homemade mayonnaise or homemade eggnog. Raw eggs can contain salmonella bacteria, which could cause illness. Eggs must be thoroughly cooked to kill the bacteria.

If you want to baste meat, fish or poultry that has never been marinated, use a fresh marinade. Never baste cooking meat with the marinade that the raw meat was sitting in — this could contaminate the cooked meat.

If you have further questions about food safety and nutrition, be sure to contact Wayne County Michigan State University extension at 313-494-3013 on Wednesdays from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING PLYMOUTH CHARTER TOWNSHIP PLANNING COMMISSION

TO AMEND TEXT:

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND PLYMOUTH CHARTER TOWNSHIP ORDINANCE NO. 83 BY AMENDING ARTICLE XXII DEFINITIONS, OF SAID ORDINANCE RELATED TO CHURCHES AND REGIONAL CHURCHES, TO EXCLUDE REGIONAL CHURCHES FROM THE AG, R-1-E, R-1-H, R-1-S, R-1, R-M, R-2-A, AND C-1 DISTRICTS, AND TO ADD REGIONAL CHURCHES AS USES SUBJECT TO SPECIAL CONDITIONS IN THE C-2, OS, IND AND PUD DISTRICTS.

DATE OF HEARING: December 13, 1995

TIME OF HEARING: 7:30 P.M.

PLACE OF HEARING: PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP HALL
42350 ANN ARBOR ROAD

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Commission of Plymouth Charter Township proposes on its own motion to amend Article XXII, Definitions, as follows:

I. Section 32.2, Definitions, presently has no definition of regional churches.

Section 32.2 is hereby proposed to be amended to add a new definition as Section 32.2.18.a. as follows:

18.a. CHURCH, REGIONAL. A site used for religious worship which draws its congregation from the regional market in addition to the immediate community. Such a facility has a seating capacity of 1,500 people or more in its sanctuary or main area of assembly for worship. A regional church may also be characterized by any one or more of the following features: region-serving accessory facilities such as high schools, colleges and seminaries; parking for 500 passenger vehicles or more; one or more buildings 100,000 square feet in floor area or greater; or other features. Regional churches are distinguished by their large size of assemblies and resultant traffic surges, large off-street parking lots, retreat and conference centers, and institutional character. Regional churches have negative impacts on single family residential areas because of scale of buildings, parking, traffic and frequency of use, which are different from smaller churches which have traditionally been compatible with single family areas. Because of these impacts regional churches are more compatible with non-residential districts subject to conditions which minimize the impacts.

II. Section 32.2.18, Definitions, presently reads as follows:

18. CHURCH. A building for the sole purpose of holding religious services.

Section 32.2.18, Definitions, is hereby proposed to be amended to read as follows:

18. CHURCH. A site used for the regular assembly of persons for the conducting of religious services and accessory uses therewith. Such accessory uses may include rectories, living quarters for church ministry and other members of the religious order who carry out their duties primarily on the site, religious education classes, day care, outdoor recreation facilities (unlighted), religious office space, youth centers and others. Rescue missions, tent revivals and other temporary assemblies are not included in this definition.

III. Section 5.2.1, AG Agricultural District, Uses Subject to Special Conditions, presently reads as follows:

1. Public, parochial and private schools including nursery schools, churches, libraries, community buildings, hospitals, convalescent homes, municipal facilities, municipal parks and playgrounds and mortuaries excluding park and ride facilities.

Section 5.2.1 is hereby proposed to be amended to read as follows:

1. Public, parochial and private schools including nursery schools, churches (except regional churches), libraries, community buildings, hospitals, convalescent homes, municipal facilities, municipal parks, playgrounds and mortuaries, excluding park and ride facilities.

IV. Section 6.2.1, R-1-E, R-1-H, R-1-S, R-1 One Family Residential Districts, Uses Subject to Special Conditions, presently reads as follows:

1. Public, parochial and private schools including nursery schools, churches, libraries, community buildings, hospitals, convalescent homes, municipal facilities, municipal parks and playgrounds and mortuaries excluding park and ride facilities.

Section 6.2.1 is hereby proposed to be amended to read as follows:

1. Public, parochial and private schools including nursery schools, churches (except regional churches), libraries, community buildings, hospitals, convalescent homes, municipal facilities, municipal parks and playgrounds and mortuaries excluding park and ride facilities.

V. Section 7.2.1, R-M Mobile Home Residential Districts, Uses Subject to Special Conditions, presently reads as follows:

1. Public, parochial and private schools including nursery schools, churches, libraries, community buildings, hospitals, convalescent homes, municipal facilities, municipal parks and playgrounds other than park and ride facilities.

Section 7.2.1 is hereby proposed to be amended to read as follows:

1. Public, parochial and private schools including nursery schools, churches (except regional churches), libraries, community buildings, hospitals, convalescent homes, municipal facilities, municipal parks and playgrounds other than park and ride facilities.

VI. Section 9.2.1, R-2-A Multiple Family Residential District, Uses Subject to Special Conditions, presently reads as follows:

1. Public, parochial and private schools including nursery schools, churches, libraries, community buildings, hospitals, convalescent homes, municipal facilities including park and ride facilities, municipal parks and playgrounds.

Section 9.2.1 is hereby proposed to be amended to read as follows:

1. Public, parochial and private schools including nursery schools, churches (except regional churches), libraries, community buildings, hospitals, convalescent homes, municipal facilities including park and ride facilities, municipal parks and playgrounds.

Bill would let counties levy tax for arts

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

County voters could raise a 1.5-mill property tax for arts and cultural history under a bill passed by the state House and sent to the Senate.

Detroit was the only city given permission to levy an arts-culture tax. A county could set up cultural district itself or join with other counties to form a cultural district.

"The expenditure of tax dollars for the arts is not a legitimate function of government," said Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, who was on the short end of the 86-17 vote. "Far better private sponsorship than government control and the censorship that implies."

Rep. David Jaye, R-Utica, voted no for the opposite reason: The House rejected his amendment to prohibit funds going to "an exhibit that displays human body fluids on religious symbols, displays a sex act, displays the burning or desecration of the American flag, or invites members of the general public to walk on the American flag." He referred to federally sponsored exhibits that raised a furor in other states.

Here is how area lawmakers voted:

YES (86) — Republicans Lyn Bankes of Redford, Willis Bullard Jr. of Milford, Penny Crissman of Rochester, Barbara Dobb of Union Lake, Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills, Frank Fitzgerald of Grand Ledge, Dan Gustafson of Williamston, John Jamian of Bloomfield Township, Gerald Law of Plymouth, Tom Middleton of Ortonville, and Susan Munsell of Howell; and Democrats Maxine Berman of Southfield, David Gubow of Huntington Woods, Tom Kelly of Wayne and Kirk Profit of Ypsilanti.

NO (17) — Republicans Alan Cropsey of DeWitt, Greg Kaza of Rochester Hills, James Ryan of Redford and Deborah Whyman of Canton.

NOT VOTING — Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak, Eileen DeHart, D-Westland.

The House bill, reported out of the Tax Policy Committee headed by Willis Bullard, R-Milford, comes as the state cuts back on arts funding. The Legislature this year cut Gov. John Engler's arts budget by 26 percent.

The bill allows cities of more than 500,000 (only Detroit qualifies), a county or group of counties to incorporate a cultural district with an unpaid board of up to 12 directors. How directors are appointed is up to the local legislative body. Directors may be removed at any time, with or without reason, by the chief executive.

The district may ask voters for a dedicated property tax of up to 1.5 mills ($1.50 per $1,000 of taxable value) for up to 20 years. The tax proposal may go on the ballot only at a regularly scheduled election, and not more than twice in a calendar year.

The board will allocate funds to arts and cultural organizations within its district.

"Art" is defined as "all fine, literary, and performing arts," such as literature, painting, sculpture, music, theater, poetry, dance, opera, graphic art, media arts, and pottery, fabric, jewelry and other craftwork.

"Cultural organization" can be a public or private nonprofit entity involved in advancing art, science or cultural history. These may be zoos, libraries, scientific groups or public broadcast stations.

"Cultural history" means the history of: specific peoples; political, labor, education or other leaders; development of the Great Lakes region and sub-regions; transportation and communication, urbanization, political parties, lumber, agriculture, mining, automotive and other industries.

Dentistry in the 90s

by Herbert M. Gardner, D.D.S. &
Martha P. Zinderman, R.N., D.D.S.

SMOKING AND DENTAL DISEASE

According to research conducted at the New England Research Institute, elderly men and women who smoke are at higher risk for dental disease. Long-term use of tobacco is associated with greater tooth loss, tooth decay, and periodontal disease. And, while giving up this unhealthy habit at any time improves overall health, quitting the habit in later life does not reverse the effects that a prolonged period of smoking has on the teeth of older people. Thus, it is especially important to give up smoking early if smokers are going to apply any benefit of having done so to their oral health. To further compound the detrimental effect that smoking has upon health, researchers observed a "disturbing" relationship between poor physical functioning and tooth loss later in life. It seems that those who experience tooth loss suffer the further ill effects of poor nutrition and related problems.

Smoking affects the whole body and dental health begins with good oral hygiene. This requires the professional care and guidance provided by us at LIVONIA VILLAGE DENTAL ASSOCIATES. We want to be your partner for better oral hygiene. Regular brushing and flossing to remove plaque is essential to keep your teeth and gums healthy. BILL BRENSLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Double-winner: Salem's Dan Hamblin pins Monroe's Jason Smith in the 140-pound weight class, the second win of the night for Hamblin. Earlier, he pinned Canton's Jim Egan, helping the Rocks win both duals on their opening night.

Salem starts fast with 2 wins

With such a small and inexperienced squad, Plymouth Salem coach Ron Krueger had steeled himself for a tough season. In Thursday's double-dual meet season-opener, his expectations might have been premature.

One team's expectations were met. The other's were not.

Plymouth Canton, under the direction of first-year coach Ernie Krumm, figured to have tough going to start the season. Squad numbers were down, and there weren't too many upperclassmen to rely upon.

So Canton's losses in Thursday's season-opening double-dual meet at Plymouth Salem weren't unexpected. As Krumm had said, there were no certainties on his team.

Salem went into Thursday's double-dual, against Canton and Monroe, facing the same problems, and with similar expectations. The only difference was the Rocks had a veteran coach in Ron Krueger.

Still, Krueger had reservations about his team even as they were handling Canton by a 59-23 score in their first dual Thursday. "I kept looking over at their match," said Krueger, referring to the Monroevs-Farmington meet. "After watching (Monroe) against Farmington, I had some doubts."

Those doubts, and at least a few of his preseason reservations, disappeared when Salem handed Monroe a 42-33 defeat.

"Some of our kids stepped up against Monroe," said Krueger. "We're real happy about that."

"We've got a pretty good team when we make weight."

Krueger might have gotten a preview of what was to come in the Rocks' win over Canton. Krumm had expressed some optimism in three of his experienced wrestlers: Brent Buttermore at 135, Tom Keeling at 152 and Doug Cooper at heavyweight.

But the Chiefs got just one win out of the trio — a pin by Keeling of Salem's Craig Van Camp in 3:42.

Buttermore was decisively by James Green, 19-4, at 135, and in what has to be considered a major surprise, freshman Charlie Hamblin pinned Canton's Doug Cooper in 1:22 at heavyweight. Cooper was second at the Western Lakes Activities Association Tournament last year.

Other winners for the Rocks were Dan Morgan, who pinned Vishal Sharma in 1:26 at 103; Sean Hughes, by void at 112; Eric Coburn, who pinned Rob Lente in 58 seconds at 119; Dan Hamblin, who pinned Jim Egan in 1:38 at 140; Dave Popeney, who pinned Kyle Whipple in 1:02 at 145; Jeremy Breithaupt, who pinned Jim Shelton in 50 seconds at 160; Teono Wilson, who pinned Dan Shelton in 38 seconds at 171; Clayton Walker, who pinned Rob Hallerman in 27 seconds at 189; and James Walker, by void at 215.

Winners for Canton were Derrick Rumlill, who pinned Salem's Brad Weimer in 2:29 at 125, and Kevin Stone, who outscored Trent Jones 10-4 at 130.

Of the eight matches Salem won against Monroe, six were on pins. The two matches that impressed Krueger most were Hughes comeback at 119 — he was trailing, then managed to pin Joe Carle in 1:52 — and Clayton Walker, who topped Paul Kyle 7-5 in overtime at 189.

Winners on pins for Salem were Hughes in 4:30 over Brian St. Bernard at 112; Dave Hamblin in 1:13 over Jason Smith at 140; Popeney in 56 seconds over Jason Miller at 145; Van Camp in 1:48 over Jason Broden at 152; and Wilson in 52 seconds over Dave Baker at 171.

The Rocks' other winner was Breithaupt, 9-4 over Aaron Daniel at 161.

The road won't get easier for Salem. On Thursday, Redford Catholic Central and Westland John Glenn will visit for a tri-meet. Canton hosts Ann Arbor Pioneer Thursday in what figures to be another challenging meet for the Chiefs.

Zielinski's stop at Madonna lasts just 7 games

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Have hoop, will travel?

It's a label Frank Zielinski may not like much, but it fits. The 6-foot-8 forward for Madonna University — his latest stop — is off again, this time lasting just seven games.

In fairness to Zielinski, it wasn't his fault. The Birmingham Seaholm graduate enrolled at Madonna for two reasons: He wanted to get into criminal justice, a program Madonna features; and he wanted to play basketball for Bernie Holowicki, whom he's known since childhood.

The latter, unfortunately, won't be realized. The NAIA ruled Zielinski would be ineligible after Saturday's game against Alma, because he had filled his quota of 10 semesters.

"We thought he could play for us for two years," said Holowicki, Madonna's coach.

And one thing Zielinski can do is play. Problem is, he's never seemingly been satisfied playing for long at one school.

Currently a junior academically, Zielinski signed out of high school with Indiana State. From there he went to Ohio University and last year enrolled at Oakland University.

His trouble, as far as the NAIA is concerned, occurred somewhere be-

Jays' pressure sends Salem to 1st defeat

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

Class extended beyond regular school hours Friday as the Plymouth Salem basketball team continued its learning process at Southfield High.

Struggling on offense and defense, the young Rocks lost to a bigger and quicker Southfield squad, 67-49.

Salem coach Bob Brodie rationalized the non-league defeat as one of the many lessons his team may learn this season.

"They learned quite a few things tonight on both sides of the floor," Brodie said. "What they learned will help them because there will be teams in our league this season with this type of quickness and that come at you with pressure twice as hard as we saw tonight."

The Blue Jays (2-0) took the lead for good midway through the first quarter and put Salem away late by dominating the fourth quarter 22-9.

The Rocks (1-1) made only two-of-10 shots in the fourth while committing 10 turnovers. Southfield opened the quarter with an 18-4 run.

"Basketball is a game of runs and you always hope that your team will have more runs than the other team," Southfield coach Gary Teasley said. "When you have a run, you hope to get the job done and we did in the fourth."

Brodie thought it was a matter of the Rocks trying to play catch-up too quickly.

"When you're down late in the game, you try to get it all back at once and I think we may have gotten greedy," Brodie said.

Senior guards Lydell Sheperd and Maurice Watkins paced Southfield with 20 points apiece. Senior center Dennis Coleman added seven points and 10 rebounds.

Junior forward Andres Lopez led Salem with 14 points, but was only 4-of-11 at the free throw line. As a team, the Rocks made only 12-of-28 free throws (43 percent).

"The shooting was atrocious," Brodie said. "I wasn't so concerned about the free throw shooting as much as some of the things being done on the floor."

Salem stayed close early and took its only lead at 7-6. After falling behind by eight after an 11-2 Southfield run, Salem closed the margin to 19-15 with a jumper by Lopez as time expired in the first quarter.

Even though the Rocks made seven-of-nine shots from the floor, the Blue Jays collected seven offensive rebounds and forced Salem into nine turnovers.

For the game, the Blue Jays used its pressure and tough man-to-man defense to force the Salem offense to rush shots and commit 29 turnovers.

"They put on a lot of heat and it was constant," Brodie said. "At times we handled it well, but other times it gave us problems."

It's a small world, especially at the University of Wisconsin, where they've become known as the "Livonia Trio."

Churchill High grads Scott Lamphear and Mike Gentile, along with Stevenson High product Travis Roy, are three reasons why the Badgers (19-4-1 overall) were just a step away from an NCAA men's soccer title.

Wisconsin reached the NCAA Final with a 1-0 victory over the University of Portland State Friday. The Badgers met the winner of the Duke-Virginia game for the championship Sunday in Richmond.

Virginia — where Salem's Tom Baker plays — is the reigning NCAA champion.

The "Livonia Trio" have certainly elevated the Badgers' program since arriving on the Madison campus in 1991.

In games the threesome have started together, Wisconsin is 50-12-6 (.779 winning percentage) versus 9-7-1 (.559) when one of three has started the game on the bench.

Lamphear, a sweeper, runs the defense, while Gentile is a catalyst at midfield. Roy, a forward, is the physical presence and scoring threat up front.

"These guys have meant a lot to this program for four years," Wisconsin coach Jim Lauder said. "Lamphear has just gotten better and better. He's provided leadership for us as a captain and he's also scored some nice goals. He's great at taking players on one-on-one and directing the defense."

"Mike orchestrates things from the midfield. He's been consistent every game. He's an excellent finesse player, but hard to tackle as well. He's been fit as a fiddle this year and hasn't had any injuries. Knock on wood."

"And Travis is strong as a bull. He's a target and is a smart player. He headed out eight corners (vs. SMU) and he plays both ends. We thought he might score 20 goals for us this year, but he's had a lot of assists, and a lot of assists to assists."

Even though he was an All-Stater and helped Churchill to a runner-up finish in the state Class A finals, Lamphear was the less heralded of the three Livonia recruits.

This season, Lamphear earned Big Ten Player of the Week honors after Badger wins over Northern Illinois and Penn State. He had seven points on two goals and three assists.

"This is the biggest highlight of my career — by far," said Lamphear, who also excels as a dean's-list student with a 3.6 grade-point average in chemical engineering. "You work hard all these years to get to a certain level and it makes it all worthwhile. I went to the nationals with Vardar (an under-19 club team), but this is a bigger deal for me. This is much more important. And it's nice to do it in my last year."

Gentile, who scored a goal in Sunday's quarterfinal win, was plagued by a groin injury during his junior year. A hernia operation corrected the problem and he's returned to form, leading Wisconsin in scoring with 20 points on five goals and 10 assists. (Gentile has a total of 52 career points.)

"For anybody who has had injuries, they know how frustrating it can be," said Gentile, a business management major. "I'm injury-free for the first time and I'm enjoying myself. We have a winning attitude with everyone pulling together."

"My role is that of composer of the play. When things get hectic, I direct the game on the field."

The 6-foot-2, 200-pound Roy started the season slowly. He went scoreless during the first five games, but has seven goals and four assists over the last 18. He has 35 career goals and 21 assists for 91 points.

"This definitely ranks right up there as far as national championships," said Roy, a history and political science major. "And there's no doubt about it, when you're at such a higher level, it takes so much more."

Roy, an emotional sort who led Stevenson to the Class A title in 1991, has adjusted to Wisconsin's unique style of play.

"I'm nothing like I used to be," he admitted. "The team is different than any I've been a part of. We're more laid-back."

"I play farther back, and when we check to the ball, we lay it off. It can be frustrating at times, but because we have so many weapons, it's a good system and it works."

Wisconsin, which also scored NCAA victories over Bowling Green (2-0), William & Mary (1-0 in overtime) and Southern Methodist (2-0), have met two of their three seasonal goals.

"We sat down as a team, and our first goal was to win the Big Ten, and our second was to win the regional," said Lauder, whose team was ranked No. 5 nationally in two different polls. "The next one was to get to the Final Four, and win it."

Ironically, the "Livonia Trio" didn't plan on converging all at once to the Madison campus.

"I signed right away and then I read Travis was going there, too, in the paper," Lamphear said. "Mike and I have been close over the years, but I really didn't know where he was leaning because he had his pick of schools."

Gentile, who played on the U.S. under-20 national team, was also surprised Lamphear and Roy landed in Wisconsin.

"I had no idea they were coming here until I read it in the paper," he said. "Things kind of worked out that way."

And things couldn't have worked out better for the "Livonia Trio."

Ocelots lose their 3rd-straight

Trying to turn a program around can have its share of direction changes.

Prime example: On Dec. 2, Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team nearly pulled off a shocking upset, losing to Grand Rapids CC on a last-second shot. Only 17 days before, Grand Rapids had clobbered SC by 46 points.

Four days after the Ocelots stellar performance in the Grand Rapids loss, they played Kellogg

BASKETBALL

CC, a team they had beaten 86-85 less than three weeks earlier. This time it was Kellogg turning the tables, bashing SC 86-73 Wednesday at SC.

The loss was the third-in-a-row for the Ocelots, dropping them to 3-5.

"Give Kellogg a lot of credit," said SC coach Glen Donahue. "They probably played their best game of the season. We didn't shoot well and we didn't pass well. Our defense was all right, it was our offense that broke down."

"I think right now we're on an escalator. We're going up and down. We've just got to learn to keep it on the up escalator."

The Ocelots got 19 points from Jason Maschke (from Livonia Franklin) and 16 more from Rudy Hatfield (Livonia Churchill), who led them with nine rebounds. Tyris Williams added 12 points.

On defense, the Rocks struggled to stop the offensive rebounding of the Southfield front court and the penetration of the Southfield guards.

"We wanted to stop their dribble penetration and didn't, and then we gave up too many second chances," Brodie said.

Southfield capitalized on Salem's poor free throw shooting in the second quarter with a 13-1 run. During that period, the Rocks made one-of-eight free throws.

"I thought their missed free throws really hurt them," Teasley said. "Those shots could have done some damage."

The Rocks made a final comeback attempt in the third quarter, closing a 10-point halftime deficit to 39-37 after a putback by senior forward Kirk Craggs (eight points) and a layup by junior guard Nate Grav.

"We made some adjustments which worked," Brodie said. "Because of their quickness, we wanted to force them to take the outside shot and it was effective at times. I was happy the team reacted well to the adjustments and never gave up."

The Blue Jays put the game away for good early in the fourth quarter after a Andreas Woods jumper and a Watkins triple made it 54-42.

Boxed in: The position Salem's Kirk Craggs was squeezed into wasn't an unfamiliar one for the Rocks.

Taking command

Chiefs in control against Monroe

Methodical.

After Tuesday's big win at Wayne Memorial, Plymouth Canton's basketball team had to get back to basics in its home opener against Monroe. The Chiefs did it well, holding off the Trojans 55-39 Friday.

The victory kept Canton unbeaten through two games. Monroe is 0-2.

Although the Chiefs led nearly the entire game, Monroe managed to keep it close into the third quarter. "They hit a few threes (6-of-14) in the game, and that kept it close," said Canton coach Dan Young.

Still, the Chiefs led 16-11 after one quarter and 28-22 at the half. They increased their advantage to 10 with a surge late in the third quarter, getting six points from Rob Johnson and five from Mark Bray in the quarter.

Johnson finished with 13 and seven rebounds. Ron Hunter led Canton with 15 points; he also grabbed six boards. Nick Hurley had an outstanding all-around game, getting 10 points, 10 assists and eight steals, with Bray totaling nine points, six boards and five assists.

Spencer Roecker topped Monroe with 13 points and seven rebounds.

"We tried to play defense and rebound," said Young. "That was our main focus."

■ PCA 63, Franklin Road 58: Plymouth Christian Academy opened up a big lead early, then withstood a fourth-quarter rally by Southfield Franklin Road Christian in Friday's semifinal of the Kick-off Classic, hosted by PCA.

The victory put the Eagles into Saturday's final opposite Detroit Evangel, which beat Plymouth Agape Thursday. PCA is 2-0 for the season; Franklin Road fell to 1-1.

The Eagles led 19-8 after one period and 31-19 at the half. They expanded their lead even further in the third quarter, taking a 49-35 advantage into the fourth.

But Franklin Road battled back, closing the gap to four at one point. But PCA stopped the rally there.

James Neil's 23 points topped the Eagles; he also grabbed seven rebounds. Mike Roose added 19 points and eight boards, and Jeremy Shia dished out eight assists.

Franklin Road got 14 points from Kevin Damesworth and 12 from Graydon Prophet.

■ CC 78, Bishop Gallagher 64: A big first quarter was all Redford Catholic Central really needed Friday at Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher.

The Shamrocks (now 2-0) jumped out to a 24-8 lead after one quarter. Gallagher closed the gap to 36-27 at the half, but the Lancers could never overtake CC.

Justin Hoener's 26 points paced the Shamrocks. Michael Jordan had 16 and Chris Misiak scored 14. Gallagher got 14 from Julius Curry.

CC's first-quarter lead was built on a fast-break attack, fueled by some strong board work.

tween those stops. Academic woes hurt his eligibility, so he spent time at both Oakland Community College and Schoolcraft College to work on his grades.

Problem was, Zielinski was under the impression he would have to take 12 credit hours to lose one of his semesters of eligibility — which is the rule, according to NCAA standards. So he made certain he took less.

But in the NAIA, the limit is nine credit hours to lose a semester.

"He took some semesters he thought were part-time," said Holowicki. They weren't, according to the NAIA — and now Zielinski's collegiate basketball career is officially over.

Or is it?

In the NAIA with its nine-hour rule, it is. But, as Holowicki noted, "As far as I know, he can go back to an NCAA school (and play)."

The Fighting Crusaders, 2-7 heading into Saturday's game against Indiana-Purdue at Fort Wayne, were looking to turn things around. Dan Perttula, a senior guard from Redford Thurston, was sidelined by NAIA rules because he lacked the proper number of accredited academic hours.

One of Madonna's top players, according to Holowicki, Perttula should rejoin the team in time for the Dec. 19 game at Northwood University.

"We never had the opportunity to play with both of them at the same time, except in practice," said Holowicki. "We really thought with the two of them, we could be something, we could go somewhere."

Now, no one will ever know.

Sadly, Zielinski's short stay at Madonna was further abbreviated by an ankle injury suffered early in the Crusaders' Dec. 1 loss in the opening round of the Pennsylvania University Tournament. The injury was expected to keep him out until after his NAIA eligibility ran out.

"I've known Frank since he was in the seventh grade," said Holowicki. "I knew what a hard-nosed kid he was. I always appreciated him and his tenacity."

"He's got a lot of expertise, he really knows the game. I think he'd make a great coach."

And now he's gone. "It's kind of disheartening," said Holowicki. "But we still got to plug on."

A tough win

Coyne doesn't play in Irish NCAA title run

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

The rings are on their way for Ragen Coyne and her Notre Dame teammates, who broke up one of sports' longest dynasties when they captured the NCAA women's soccer championship the weekend of Dec. 2-3.

The Irish upended nine-time defending champion North Carolina in the semifinals, 1-0, handing the Tar Heels only their second loss at Chapel Hill in 17 years.

Notre Dame went on to claim the championship Sunday (Dec. 3) with a 1-0 victory over the University of Portland (Ore.), finishing the season with a 21-2-2 record.

For Coyne, who starred at Livonia Stevenson and helped the Spartans to the 1990 state Class A title, it's a bittersweet story.

The senior midfielder, who was a second-team All-America for the Irish during her freshman and sophomore seasons before a leg stress fracture kept her out the entire 1994 campaign, saw her playing time diminish down the stretch. (She has 53 career points.)

Simply caught in the numbers

game, Coyne appeared in 22 of 25 games this season, starting 17 with one goal and eight assists, but she did not see action in the final two NCAA contests.

"It's great we won it all, especially when we beat North Carolina before a record crowd (of 7,200)," Coyne said. "But it's disappointing when you're not in there playing."

"It all depended on how the other team was lining up. Cindy Daws (named the tourney's outstanding offensive player) was moved into the midfield so I was the one coming off the bench. It was strictly a coach's decision."

Coyne, a high school All-America and member of the U.S. Youth Soccer Association National team for three seasons, is learning to deal with the ups and downs.

"It was awful when I was out the whole year with an injury," she said. "You see your team doing well and you're proud of it, but you also want to be out there."

Coyne went through rigorous rehabilitation over the summer and reported fit and ready for the 1995 season. She had no side effects from her leg injury.

"I'll most likely come back next season," Coyne said. "We're looking very strong again next year. We should win it all again. Supposedly we have three or four excellent recruits coming in next year so it's going to be even more difficult to make the lineup, but I think it's something worth working for."

Coyne is also pursuing a degree in French and philosophy. She also has thoughts of going to medical school some day.

But wherever Coyne winds up this summer or in the future, it's a good bet she'll be flashing that NCAA championship ring.

1996 Cavalier a value-driven option for first-time buyers

By Anne Fracassa
Avanti NewsFeatures

Did you know you can fit a 12-pack of Diet Pepsi in the glove compartment of the 1996 Chevrolet Cavalier? Even though there are standard dual air bags up front.

It won't keep 'em cold, however, unless it's cold outside as well.

It's already been a year since Chevrolet redesigned the Cavalier and evaluating it the second time around proves this to be a solid, value-driven option for a first-time buyer who wants reliable transportation, plenty of room even for a cross-country trip (I'm talking Michigan to ... Georgia) and a perfect way to get around town on a daily commute.

Evaluated was the Cavalier sedan. All four doors were a breeze to get in and out of — and easy to fit toddler car seats in. Rear legroom won't accommodate a 6-foot-5 person, but it handles the average under-6-foot person well.

The major changes for 1996 are new exterior paint colors and interior fabric for the base coupe and sedan, daytime running lamps, energy-absorbing safety belt retractors, an optional PassLock theft-deterrent system, adjustable guide loops for the front seat shoulder belts, new audio system options and a remote keyless entry option.

A word on the DRLs: GM was the first domestic automaker to offer daytime running lamps in some models. DRLs were designed to make it easier for other drivers to see your vehicle in the daytime.

DRLs go on automatically when the ignition is turned on and goes off when the ignition is switched off or when the driver turns on the headlamps. It doesn't mean you never have to turn your headlamps on in the dark, however — only the headlamps are on. The instrumentation lights and taillamps are off, which saves on energy.

On the performance side, however, there are some important changes: A new 2.4-liter twin cam engine option, enhanced traction control (that's standard with the new 4-speed automatic transmission), onboard diagnostics and a long-life coolant good for five years or 100,000 miles.

The Cavalier is available in five configurations: The sedan, LS sedan, 2-door coupe, Z24 sporty 2-door coupe and LS 2-door convertible.

The ride is nice for a car of this size. Engineers used a computer-modeled body structure that minimizes flex. That allows the suspension to give the driver responsive control without the harsh road feel.

Engineers also tuned the chassis so the driver feels the road accurately and can adjust particular driving styles.

Of course, all the safety stuff is there, including dual air bags, 4-wheel anti-lock brakes, child security rear-door locks and rear-seat safety belt child comfort guides.

A couple of other comfort features are integrated into the new Cavalier. Rear air ducts deliver warm or cold air to back-seat passengers. Lighting slowly dims rather than abruptly cuts off when the key is taken out of the ignition. The rear window defroster clears the critical area for vision quickly.

Don't be afraid when you see you've left your interior lights on — the Cavalier's outfitted with battery-rundown protection.

Gotta change a tire? No problem. There's a storage rack that specifically holds the jack and wrench. Quick in, quick out.

There are a couple of things in the Cavalier normally found only on the more expensive luxury cars. I'm talking about platinum-tipped spark plugs that let you drive 100,000 miles without the first service interval. The Dexron III automatic transmission fluid never needs replacement if you drive like a normal person.

There's also a low-oil level sensor warning light that tells the oil level has dropped, rather than when it's dry. And all body panels (except the roof) are made of two-side galvanized steel to resist corrosion.

The new Cavalier competes favorably with the Ford Escort, Dodge Neon, Honda Civic and Toyota Corolla — the second-largest segment of passenger-car sales.

The competition is tough, but the Cavalier is definitely the one to watch if you're looking for a small car. It's got a big heart and a lot of spunk. Anne Fracassa is senior editor of Avanti NewsFeatures.

Choosing An Automotive Repair Shop

(NAPS) — As fall arrives, many motorists will be having their vehicles serviced before colder weather sets in. Here are some tips from the non-profit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence on finding a good repair establishment.

- Start shopping for a repair facility before you need one.
- Ask friends and associates for recommendations; consult local consumer organizations.
- Arrange for alternate transportation so you will not feel forced to choose a shop based solely on location.
- Look for a neat, well-organized facility, with vehicles in the parking lot equal in value to your own and modern equipment in the service bays.
- Look for policies regarding labor rates, diagnostic fees, guarantees, etc.
- Ask if the repair facility specializes or if it usually handles your type of repair work.

- Look for signs of professionalism in the customer service area, such as civic, community or customer service awards.
- Look for evidence of qualified technicians: trade school diplomas, certificates of advanced course work and ASE-certified technicians on duty.

A note about ASE: the mission of the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) is to improve the quality of automotive service and repair through the voluntary testing and certification of automotive technicians. Certified technicians wear ASE shoulder insignia. Their employers often display the ASE sign.
