Rink plans key to hockey team

Plymouth Township will likely be getting its first semi-pro sports team, the Junior Whalers. The class A hockey team will play in a new arena on Beck Road. The township must still give the project final approval before construction could start.

BY JEFF COUNTS STAFF WRITER

The Junior Whalers class A hockey team, formerly the Junior Red Wings, will move to Plymouth Township this fall where they will play 33 games a year, if Plymouth Township gives final approval to build an ice arena complex at Five Mile and Beck roads.

Plans call for a 3,500-seat arena to handle the crowds who come to see the 16- to 20-year-old players, some of whom will end up playing for pro teams. The team has been playing at Oak Park Arena and the Palace of Auburn Hills.

A spokesman from TNT Systems of Plymouth, which is handling the building of the complex, appeared be-fore the Plymouth Township Planning Commission on Wednesday seeking approval for a revised plan to build the arena on the site on the east side of Beck Road. The commission gave the new plan tentative approval.

The new plan includes five more acres of parking to handle the crowds and a higher building because the league in which the Junior Whalers play requires a scoreboard suspended from the ceiling, said Michael Gen-rich of TNT Systems.

Also, there will be a restaurant in the arena to provide food service for the teams and spectators who come to see the Junior Whalers play, he said.

"Construction could start this spring and the team playing in the fall," said Genrich.

Planning commissioners raised questions about the height of the proposed building and the type of material to be used.

Computers help city police fight crime

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

The year 1995 marked what Plymouth Police Chief Robert Scoggins describes as "possibly the most dramatic yoar of change the Plymouth Police Department has ever seen," due to computerization.

In addition, 1995 saw a slight reduction in major felonies in the city.

Last January, Plymouth police began computerizing several areas of its operation, including investigative case work and dispatching.

Scoggins was pleased to learn "we had a slight reduction in part-one crimes (major felonies including robbery, murder and rape). We dropped 10-and-a-half percent. We're very pleased with that crime statistic.

"I just think we are doing a little botter job of investigating and pre-a tremendous emphasis toward inves-tigations," he said. "I think we are seeing some of the fruits of that now."

Considerably fewer people were arrested for drunken driving in 1995. In 1994, police arrested 286 drivers for operating while under the influence of quor. Last year, there were 174

"With the streetscape construction, it seemed as though we had a reduced number of drunken drivers. I think it's because people weren't coming through the heart of town on main thoroughfares. The visibility of our patrol is high there, and that is where we normally make the arrests."

"OLGC took accord place, and won the best essay contest," said Carol Anderson of SME. "They were better than 31 other achools from cities intuding Birmingham, Clayton, Grand Blanc, Ida, lorth Muskopon, Rochester Hills, West Bloomfold and Ypailants."

Gregory Lenhoff, Alexis Thebolt, Laura Adams and Justin Klixhaus created a futuristic model city and placed it in the Andes of South America. With some assistance from OLGC parent and engineer Daniel Sinnott, the students used solar collectors as well as ocean waves and tides to spin a turbine for pages.

Industry was located inside the mountain to minimize its impact on the environment. Housing units were portable so that they could be moved from the rain forest to a more temperate climate, depending on where the homeowner wanted to live.

and Oliver are released.

Sturgill has a prior conviction for possession of a sawed off shotgun, Pomorski said

The shooting occurred at 11:20 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 18, said police spokesman Lew Stevens, at Lot 206 of the College Park mobile home park at 51074 Mott in the extreme southwest corner of Four 7.62-millimeter bullets fired from a Chinese SKS semiautomatic rifle struck the mobile home on Lot 206, Stevens said. One of the bullets also struck the mobile home on Lot 208, Pomorski said.

No one was injured in either mobile home, Stevens said, although seven individuals occupied the mobile home on Lot 206.

One of the individuals inside the mobile home on Lot 206 saw a 1979 Lincoln Continental drive away, phoned the police and reported the incident, Stevens said.

The witness also gave police a name of one of the suspects. which was aired on the police radio, Stevens said.

A Van Buren Township police officer heard the name over the radio and told Canton dispatchers that he knew where the car was probably heading, Stevens said.

So he waited at the corner of Belleville and Ecorse roads and followed the Lincoln after it went by. The officer radioed for help, and the car was soon stopped.

Sturgill and Oliver were found inside along with three male Detroit residents age 16, 17 and 20, Stevens said. Two of the latter three were found to have warrants out for their arrest from the Detroit Police Department, Pomorski said. They were turned over to Detroit police.

The rifle was found in the Lincoln's trunk with one bullet in the chamber, Stevens said.

Church to make changes to house the homeless

CWW will spearhead drive to protect shared revenue

BY BETH SUNDRIA JACHMAN STAFF WRITER

Members of the Conference of Western Wayne have decided to get the ball rolling for a constitutional amendment to protect their state-shared revenue.
2'-The CWW, which represents 18

mestern Wayne County communi-ties, plans to draft language for a petition. This action comes after a joint resolution approved in July with the members of the Downriver Community Conference calling on the Michigan Municipal League to spearhead the effort failed to produce any results, frustrating CWW members.

At a Jan. 12 CWW meeting, Marsha Bianconi, assistant director of the CWW, gave an update on two bills, introduced by Rep. Harold Voorhees of Grandville, that would change the distribu-tion of state-shared revenue.

"All of these bills you see are really just jockeying us around," said Westland Mayor Robert Thomas. "If the MML is not going to get off the dime and do it, maybe we need to spearhead it. I know it's a huge task."

The Downriver conference shares that point of view, said Canton Township Supervisor Thomas Yack, chairman of the who attended the CWW meeting.

There is not enough statewide support among legislators to get an amendment, Hall said. "They look at their budget first. We're the ones that lose," she said.

Daniel P. Gilmartin, executive director of the Conference of Western Wayne, questioned the MML's inaction, saying the group is supposed to work for the local communities.

communities.

In July, officials of the CWW and DCC had a joint meeting sparked by concerns that the formulas for figuring how much money each municipality receives from the state were being changed and revenue was dropping. The changes and shortfalls have made it difficult to plan local budgets, officials say.

Hall asked if members of the CWW are willing to work for an have some language and a game plan for getting those signatures,"

"We have represented here some of the fastest growing town-ships in the United States," Yack

Hall offered to take some peti-tion language to the league. "I agree with everything you've said," she said.

Wayne Mayor Kenneth War-field said officials ought to ask for a true budget picture by having an outside audit. He said outside audits had stopped with the passage of Proposal A.

That is not true. There is an audit every year," said Rep. De-borah Whyman, who was sitting in the audience.

Steven Aynes, city manager of Garden City, said he had worked in New York state and faced a two-year time period where his city lost half of its revenue sharing. "My concern is that it seems like we're heading in that same direction," he said.

Kay Beard, vice chair of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners also attended the most sioners, also attended the meeting. She offered to take petition language with her to the meeting of the Michigan Association of Counties on Feb. 12-13.

Nowak quits to run for Congress

Pat Nowak resigned Tuesday as director of the Michigan Department of Transportion effective February 15, and will announce in mid-March that he is running for Congress in the 9th District (northern Oakland and Genesee Counties) as a Republican candidate.

"St. Patrick's Day sounds real good to me," said Nowak, 57, who will leave Lansing and move to the Clarkston area.

Incumbent is Dale Kildee, Democrat of Flint. "Dale was a teacher at U of D High when I was a student there," said Nowak, who was not in Kildee's class. "He's a decent guy. He's just committed to a philosophy that doesn't work."

Nowak was a county commis-

It looks like Allen Elementary School will be adding a fifthgrade teacher for second semester, which begins today.

Superintendent Charles Little said at last week's board of education meeting that Allen has three fifth-grade classes

The robbery and kidnapping of a Canton couple and the rape of the wife Dec. 28 in northwest Canton was described as a crime of opportunity by Canton Public Safety Director John Santomau-

The man suspected of robbing and kidnapping the couple, who are in their 60s, and raping the woman, before forcing them to drive to the Brightmoor area in Detroit, was arrested by the FBI on other felony charges in St. Louis, Mo.

"He is not fighting extradi-tion," Santomauro said Wednesday night to residents, members of the Northwest Canton Homeowners Association. "He had at the time seven outstanding warrants out of Detroit."

Santomauro and other police officials discussed what they could about the the incident and to address fears and concerns of nearby residents in northwest Canton, where the couple was attacked at their home on Warren Road, east of Napier.

The man, in his 30s, is charged with beating his live-in girlfriend, 47, two days before the Canton incident and sexually assaulting his girlfriend's niece, who is in her 20s. The man's car also was located on Territorial Road, west of Beck Dec. 27 and impounded by the Michigan State Police on Dec. 29, said Capt. Alex Wilson.

It's believed that the man was drawn to the northwest Canton area because his girlfriend, who filed charges in Detroit, works in an industrial park on Sheldon Road in Plymouth Township. Police also suspect the man stayed out in nearby woods before he attacked the couple.

"There is no reason to believe it was a planned attack or that there will be a reoccurrence," Santomauro said. "He did not specifically go out to that area to do what he did."

Wilson told homeowners that it's possible the man brought the shotgun with him that he used in the Canton crime. Canton had no reports of a stolen weapon, though Washtenaw County did.

"Our belief is that the guy was there for another purpose and they came home unexpectedly," they came home unexp Wilson said. "I think this individual left his car to perpetrate a

I think he got lost." Addressing why police did not issue a description or composite of the culprit immediately following the crime, Santomauro said, "there are some reasons in this case why that happened." He reminded residents that the victims have a lot of trauma to overcome. This is a tragic, humiliating type of crime. It is not like an up-front

Residents asked if a recent sexual attack in Superior Township by Ford and Berry roads, in which a man dressed as a police officer stopped a couple, is related.

"Those are things we have looked into," Santomauro said, adding that the investigation continues despite the arrest of a man in St. Louis.

On Thursday, Joseph Turinsky of Wayne County Citizens for Term Limits asked the Wayne County Commission to put the issue before the voters.

"Give us, the people, a chance to vote on this," he said.

'Our turnout for elections is poor. There has to be a reason for this," he said. Term limits will increase voter interest, he said.
"We feel that people that are elected after a while become tired

"I would support term limits for the county executive and county commissioners," McCotter said Friday. He said he would favor limiting the county executive to two terms and county commissioners to four terms - equaling eight years of service in each office, as the executive's term is for four years and sioners' terms are for two years.

"Theoretically, I have problems with them (term limita), but it's the will of the people," McCotter

He said it would probably be easier to get the commission to agree to a term limit for the county executive's job than for the commission, but that that wouldn't be fair. "I would like to give it to both because that would be fair," he said. It would have to be a ballot proposal, and it's too early now, he said. "I think it would have to go on the November ballot," he said.

PUT GRINDING TO A HALT

While everyone grinds his or her teeth at night occasionally, it is estimated that 20 percent of the population grinds its teeth to the point of causing tooth damage. Bruxism (tooth grinding) is responsible for tooth-clenching pressures of 250 pounds per square inch, which is ten times more than the force exerted during normal chewing. To make matters worse, nocturnal tooth-grinding impacts the teeth at unnatural angles. As a result, front teeth can be worn down significantly, and other teeth can crack, chip, or fracture. Bruxism is also a prime contributor to headaches, muscle soreness, and temporomandibular joint (TMI) disorders. While the most cause of bruxism is likely to be stress; the destrictions

Declaring the killer of a firefighter deserved more than five. years in prison, a local prosecutor is asking the Legislature to tight-en the legal definition of "arson." Karen Woodside, the Northville resident who prosecuted the case for Wayne County, persuaded the House Judiciary Committee to move out Senate-passed bills defining arson as burning of property — not just a dwelling house.

"There are only several cases each year statewide that would warrant application of the law." Woodside said in remarks pre-pared for delivery Jan. 17. "But sadly, the notable cases involve firefighters fighting fires."

The panel reported them out unanimously, and they will be before the full House next week.

Woodside retold the story of Juma Reeves, Ronald Williams and Auneray Barber, who allegedly "dragged papers, debris, tires, old mattresses into the unoccupied house, piled them up, and then brought in an accelerant to douse the piles, resulting in an

The Michigan Supreme Court, in its first case in 1995, ruled that arson was defined by the common law -- "burning of another's house or dwelling house or appurtenances" — and had the charges reduced. The high court said the Legislature, not the court, should define arson.

When it came time for trial, two of the defendants who had been released on bond were gone," said Woodside, adding that they couldn't have posted bond if charged with felony murder. Defendant Reeves got five years; Williams is due to get 10 years on Jan. 20; and Williams is still at Woodside said the statute should be simplified to "unlawful burning of any kind" as the underlying felony in a murder case.

The prosecutor would still have discretion, she said, citing the case of a man who was not charged when he accidentally set fire to his house and killed several of his children while trying to thaw frozen water pipes. "He cer-tainly did not have the intent for second-degree murder that was required and was not charged,"

New Ethan Allen has 'easy' designs or those of you who are anxiously awaiting the opening of the new Ethan Allen home furnishings store in downtown Birmingham, here's a preview of what you will find when the gallery debuts next month.

Ethan Allen's new for '96 designs focus on relaxed formality, comfort and style. Premiering this season is the Regent's Park collection, a neoclassic look updated for today's lifestyles.

Crafted in solid cherry with selected decorative veneers. Regent's Park derives its design from the Regency and Federal periods, and features an abundance of details such as reeded bed posts, fluted pilasters with carved motifs and tapered legs with brass casters As lovely and delicate as

And what are the color trends for Spring/Summer '96? According to Ethan Allen interior designers, look for color-infused neutrals like soft-grayed blues and taupes, creamy hues and grayed-greens. For warmth, consider muted greens and brownedreds in nature-inspired motifs.

For timeless fashion hand it to the glove

What can you never have enough of because they tend to get lost or left behind? OK, umbrellas, is a good guess. But, today we're talking gloves. Read on to explore the myths and legends surrounding that humble clothing item, the glove.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO

Historically, the craft of glove making was known as a noble profession. Kings would send their gloves by messenger to acknowledge an invitation to an event they could not personally attend. Knights were gloves to protect their wrists in falconry.

The fastidious Beau Brumrnell kept a special man to make only the thumbs of his gloves, proclaiming that 'a perfect gentleman changes his gloves at least six times a day.

Anstocrats used their gloves to slap each other across the face, duel-challenging over the slightest infractions.

In the 16th century, Catherine de Medicis, queen consort of Henry II of France, made glove-wearing fashionable for women. The practice became a social requirement that lasted through the 19th century, some would argue longer, to the end of World War

Today, gloves are pulled on mostly for winter warmth, boxing, and gardening. The fast-paced lifestyles of the '90s leave little time for fooling with fashion foppery. Yet, it's hard to dismiss the elegance and style of a gent wearing leather driving gloves, a lady in elbow-length silk evening gloves, or a little one in snowflakepatterned mittens.

Gloves are making a huge comeback," according to Karen Dakas at Tender in downtown Birmingham.

Tender carries a large selection of gloves by "Glovemaker to the Stars." Daniel Storto. He's designed hand coverings for Joan Collins, Claudia Schiller, Cher and Goldie Hawn.

At Saks Fifth Avenue this winter, shoppers will find gloves in many lengths, materials and colors. The most popular are satins, velvets, cottons and leathers in one, two, and three-button styles.

It's a good year for buying gloves," said Chickie Fayne of Farmington Hills who works in the accessories department. "There are so many designs to choose from, everything from multi colored suedes to mink-cuffed leathers Hudson's fashion director M. J.

Burns is a big fan of glove-wearing which she was delighted to promote in the fail Fash Bash show. Wearing gloves for style is beginning to be seen again," she said. "But it's a trend that will be around for a while. It's simply, so chic."

Among the gloves it carries, Hudson's features the Portolano line which has been around since its Naples, Italy beginning in 1895. The company was the pioneer of the Italian glove exporters, selling leather gloves to the U.S. and Great Britain as early as 1911. Portolano was a Think Audrey. during the period of World War I and II. Today, factories in Italy and the Phillipines ship gloves throughout the world.

In its company biography, Portolano points out that making leather gloves "is an art." Only the true patrons know the value of fourchettes (the side pieces of the fingers which are shaped for comfort, fit and graceful appearance), mousquetaires (the opening at the wrist on a formal glove, 16-22 buttons in length, which is fastened with small buttons to enable the wearer to remove her hand while keeping the glove on), and cords (classic, precision marked embroidery on the back of a glove that simulates es on the back of your hand). Leather gloves may be made from the skins of pigs, sheep, lambs and goats. However the name is not always derived from the kind of skin from which the glove is made. Kid gloves may be made from lambskin, and doeskin gloves are made from sheepskin.

Modern technology has produced new glove materials for the marketplace like polar fleece, thinsulate, nylon, microfiber polyesters and synthetic down. Outdoor enthusiasts layer their gloves, adding liners and water-repellent shells. Gauntlet cuffs return to protect the forearms from cold and snow in the same way they once protected knights in armour from the ance of a foe.

How gloves are made According to Compton's Encyclopedia, glove making became an industry in 1834 when Xavier Jouvin of Grenoble, France invented a cutting die that made a glove of precise fit possible. A leather glove consists of eight parts: palm and back (one piece); thumb; three fourchettes; and three quirks, diamond-shaped pieces inserted between the fingers. Most stitching is done by machine, though some is done by hand. The glove is then dampened, tailored on a heated metal model hand, and buffed.

It was once said, "there are only three people you should greet with bare hands the Pope, the President, and that rare person who is your very best friend. The rest of the world gets to wait on you!"

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Vintage root veggies are never out of style culinary injustice has taken place. The produce aisles of our supermarkets and specialty food markets have relegated potatoes, carrots, onions and white mushrooms to discreet corners while allowing Belgian endive, purple potatoes and packaged fresh herb blends to take their once-cherished place.

Trendy root vegetables like daikon can be seen along with plain old radishes. Onions are available in many varieties _ yellow, white, red, green, purple, pearl, pickled and pureed.

I can remember being sent to the market to buy potatoes without questioning whether they were Michigan, Idaho, Yukon gold, or Pillsbury Imprisoned by their stodgy images, plain old dependables languish in vegetable bins while everyone talks about chic new ways of preparing the latest imports.

The fact that the "old-fashioned" vegetables are easily grown, available year-round, and readily stored _ in a word, sturdy _ made them standard fare in early American cooking. Unfortunately, this has caused these basic vegetables to be relegated to the domain of home cooking, while the new and exotic gain favor with trendsetting restaurant chefs

But a curious change is afoot: professional chefs are beginning to rediscover that vintage vegetables can be used in imaginative ways.

Mashed potatoes have resurfaced as the ultimate comfort food and are now served with roasted garlic, pesto and even their skins. Whole onions are being roasted, batter-fried and cooked to bring out their natural sweetness, which is perfect for roast chicken, beef, pork or duck.

Carrots, once the bane of children everywhere, are cooked into fricassee, thin cut and fried like potatoes, or angle cut to adorn platters of hummus. Even potatoes, both standard fare and trendy new, are now being stripped of their tin foil jackets and baked in rock salt a la Jimmy Schmidt. What has impressed me most about this movement is that you don't have to be a professional chef to get the same great tastes at home. No new special gadget is needed.

Roasted gems

I recently brought my dented 9-by-12-inch cake pan up from the fruit cellar and tossed some scrubbed, but not peeled, carrots, quartered yellow onions, a few cracked ribs of celery in with a little olive oil that had been infused with some rosemary sprigs left over from my garden. After about 30 minutes of roasting, uncovered, in a 350 degree F. oven, I added a handful of plain white mushrooms, gave the mixture another toss and finished cooking it for another 30 minutes. It was sweet, succulent, tender and everyone in the Janes Gang had seconds, something that doesn't always happen.

Flavor boosters

Last week while visiting friends in Rochester, I had lunch at one of the tonier places in town and enjoyed a cream of celery soup enhanced with a hefty portion of Stilton (bleu) cheese. The celery soup was elevated to new heights with a little Hove being on the cutting edge; last year, I entertained the Rochester Newcomers club with an elegant appetizer of caramelized onions, walnuts and bleu cheese served atop warmed focca-cia. Who would have thought that fried onions cia. Who would have thought that fried onions could be so elegant?

I was invited to dinner at a friend's home in Birmingham; he constantly raved about his recipe for meatloaf. It was good meatloaf, but the mashed potatoes were the hit of the party. They were mashed with their jackets and a hefty handful of pre-reasted garlic cloves, then topped with pesto. My taste buds went ballistic. But again, I remind you that these were nothing more than plain old white potatoes, elevated to new sensations.

By using vintage vegetables in more imaginative ways, you can still benefit from the hardiness that endeared them to earlier generations of cooks. And if nothing more, you can still satisfy the taste of today's diner.

You know the importance of eating vegetables.

Your mother told you to eat them.

"The game is long, there are children around, and people like to get up and walk around," said Diane M. Meakin of Livonia who is planning a party for about 15 family members and close friends. Her "Super Bowl Beans" a hearty combination of hamburger, bacon, seasonings, and beans gets rave reviews. "I like it better than plain baked beans," she said. "It's thicker than chili, and you can serve it in cups with fresh bread and rolls, or as a

She plans to put pretzels with mustard dip and other munchies in the family room where the TV will be turned to the big game. Her "Super Bowl Beans," dips with vegetables, a fruit tray and other finger foods will be in the dining room where guests can help themselves. Coffee and dessert will be set up in the kitchen. Meakin, who is married, and has an 8-year-old son, said she's not really a big football fan, but figures that since the guys would get together anyway on Super Bowl Sunday, it's a good opportunity to get everyone together. "Otherwise the ladies and kids would just be home," ahe said.

Mark Elsholz of Berkley, a chef at Norman's Eton Street Station in Birmingham, served lots of finger foods at his Super Bowl Party last year. "I set up a kitchen buffet so people could munch when they felt like it, and had a small TV by the food so when they were eating they didn't miss a play in the game." Elsholz recommends dusting off your Crock-Pot and fondue pot. "Make chili or meatballs. You can let them simmer all day in the pot and guests can help themselves." Serve an assortment of meats, vegetables and fruits for dunking in a fondue pot. Focus on foods that are simple to serve, eat and clean up. Everybody loves chili. Chick 'n' Sausage SuperChili, a recipe from the Pace Picante Sauce Test Kitchens, combines quickcooking boneless chicken breasts with fully-cooked smoked

Team the chili with corn bread, tortillas or other favorite bread for a winning combination. Chili can be prepared a day or two in advance, and is one of those foods that improves with

Buy a whole boneless pork loin. Place roast in a shallow pan in a 350 degree F. oven. Roast for an hour and 15 minutes or until the internal temperature (measured with a meat thermometer) reaches 155 degrees F. Remove from the oven and let set 10 minutes (temperature will rise about five degrees upon resting). Once cool, chop, slice or shred the meat for burritos or sandwiches. You can also cut the roast into cubes to use in a favorite soup, stew or chili recipe.

"Roasting is so easy," said Anne Roberts, a home economist and director of marketing and education for the Michigan Pork Producers Association. "It's an effortless way to cook, and since you'll be using the roast in different ways, you can cook it the day before. Because pork marries well with so many flavors, it's a perfect addition to a minestrone, onion soup, lentil soup or an assortment of cold cuts, cheeses, condiments, rolls and breads. Let guests assemble their own sandwiches. Boost the flavor of condiments.

"Add freshly snipped dill to mayonnaise," suggests Elsholz. "Mix stone ground mustard with regular mustard, add Cajun spice to Ranch salad dressing."

Handle foods with care. Keep hot foods hot, and cold foods cold.

"Get a kiddle pool and fill it with ice. Put the food in containers and set it on top of the ice to keep cold. You could also put beverages in the pool," said Elsholz. "It makes a nice presentation." Be sure to include dishes made with low-fat ingredients. "We love snacking today as much as ever," said Roberts, "But many parties now include more healthful dishes and

Set out bowls of low-fat baked versions of your favorite chips and crackers. Cut up veggie and serve with salsa and dip. In addition to the standard celery, carrots, green pepper and radishes, try cherry tomatoes yellow, red and purple bell peppers, and even green beans, which are crispy and crunchy.

Party tips

Super Bowl Sunday can send the host or hostess into a furnto make the party fun for you:

• The Lucky Leader - Have one of your quests serve as "team captain" for arriving guests to tree you for last-minute, pregame kitchen duties

Huddle at Home - Assign seating sections for opposing teams. As fans arrive, teams can assemble and form their own cheering sections. Let guests who are there for the food and fun pick a team to root for out of a hat. Award gag prizes for the goofiest or loudest cheering section. . He Party Feels - Protect your players' laps by using big cloth napkins. Try 18-inch squares that can be tucked into shirt collars for a "bib" effect. This will offer more security when eating soups or sloppy sandwiches, allowing total concentration on the

• The Perfect Equipment - Wrap the silverware in napkins so guests can grab it all in one play. Create a menu that requires only a fork or a SDOON.

• The First Quarter Spack - Plan on feeding folks almost immediately after they arrive. Make snacks available during all four quarters, and save the main dish for halftime. Serve bite-sized portions. · Avoid the Bush - Stimulate traffic flow, keeping time-outs to a minimum by dividing the food into serving stations, in different rooms or at different tables. Put the appetizers in one place, the soups and sandwiches in another.

• Keep It Simple - One great dish like a knockout stew or chili with basic "sides" (like bread and relishes) gives the chef plenty of time to cheer

. Ice it Down - Fill a large plastic tub (or your bathtub) with ice and cold drinks, saving refrigerator space and allowing easy access for guests.

. Hire A Home Team - Put the kids to work on the sidelines to help restock cold drinks and replenish snacks.

This was my second year judging the "Winter Freeze" cookoff, and picking a winner was tough. The judging panel, which included former Detroit Piston Bill Laimbeer of Orchard Lake, judged chili made by award-winning cooks.

Of the 44 cooks participating, 23 have competed in the World Chili Cookoff in Reno, Nevada, said Marilyn Frederick of Farmington Hills, head judge, and an award-winning chili cook. Heidi and Ted Hoover Jr. (who placed tourth and fifth) have competed in the World Cookoff several

There was a tie for third place. According to International Chili Society rules, Frederick appointed three judges as "Tie Breakers" myself, Evelyn Cairns, food editor of the News Herald Newspapers, and cookoff chairman, Frank Klancnik, to re-taste the chili containers involved in the tie.

"Having this cookoff upgraded from district level was no easy task," said Frederick.

We called and called," explained Klancnik, Frederick's brother, and Winter Freeze Cookoff Chairman for the past three years. "We gave them a formal proposal, naming a sponsor Allen Park Elks Lodge 2194 - guaranteed accommodations for 40 cooks, and promoted January for the the cookoff, a time when few other cockoffs are held."

In August the International

Chili Society responded favorably, making Winter Freeze a "serious cookoff," and Klancnik went to work organizing with help from family, friends and Elks mem-

The $1,000 raised at the cookoff will benefit the Allen Park Elks' chosen charity - Michigan Major Projects for Disabled Children.

"I started cooking chili in 1987," said Klancnik, who has been to the World Cookoff four times, once as an assistant, three

If you've ever thought of competing, here are some things to consider:

Chili cooks mail order a lot of the specialty spices they use. One of the most popular sources is Pendery's out of Dallas, Texas; call 1-(800)-533-1870 for a free catalog.

International Chili Society rules don't allow beans or pasta.

Chili is chili, it's not stew, soup or spaghetti sauce. Judges consider flavoring (not too hot or mild); the texture of the ment (not too tough or mushy); consistency (not too thick or thin); the blend of spices and how well they have permeated the meat; aroma; and

Childhood rivals meet as adults in 'Big Bully'

Rick Moranis and Tom Arnold star as onetime schoolvard rivals who meet again as adults to discover nothing has changed in "Big Bully" opening Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters.

Davey Leary was the kind of kid who was always getting picked on, chased after, beat up and cut down. Rosco Bigger - known to every cowering schoolyard victim as "Fang" - was the kind of kid who always picked on, chased after, beat up and cut down kids just like Davey.

Now, David Leary (Moranis) is a novelist, returning to teach a semester of creative writing at his former school. Thinking the change of pace would be good for his own rebellious son, Ben (Blake Bashoff), David returns home with high hopes of being welcomed as the local-boy-made-

He's embraced by the small community, reuniting with his old gang and even rekindling his onetime crush on Victoria (Julianne Phillips), now the school's sex education teacher.

But when his son is caught bullying a sensitive kid, Kirby (Cody McMains), David is called into principal Kokeler's (Don Knotts) office to meet with the boys and Kirby's father - a quiet, henpecked, deferential shop teacher (Tom Arnold). After the meeting, as the two dads walk back to their classrooms, David starts to realize with a growing dread that this shop teacher is the dreaded "Fang." And so it begins again. The two grown men abandon all reason and maturity - not to mention a fair amount of dignity - as they regress into an escalating comic battle of greased floors, glued props, see-saw fights and "I'm tellin's" to settle the score.

The Rocks captured the medley relay victory with the team of McLen-aghan, Buchanan, Dettling and Pat Morgan swimming 1:48.18.

Petroskey, Morgan, McLenaghan and Corden combined to win the 200 freestyle relay (1:32.9). Buchanan, Corden, Dettling and Petroskey comprised the winning 400 freestyle relay team (3:25.49).

Salem also took first place in diving as Otto Geiseman scored an impressive total of 295.95 points.

The Rocks looked good early, as Power scored Salem's first eight points — six on a pair of triples. A trey by Andrasjewski gave the Rocks a 13-7 lead.

But Central accred the last nine points of the quarter, the final three coming on a 30-footer by Lynch at the buzzer.

Two more triples by Andrzejewski gave Salem a 23-20 lead, but Central again railied and led 33-30 at half-

Murphy's Law: Alaska lifestyle suits family

Students attending Michigan Technological University in the Upper Penninsula eventually learn to follow hockey, regardless of their background.

Lynn Murphy, formerly known as Lvnn Boyd, found out sooner than anticipated, taking a crash course in the sport as a freshman sports writer for the student newspaper.

Boyd, who covered mostly volleyball and football, was assigned to write about three of Tech's hockey stars.

She didn't know much about hockey, let alone the player wearing a baseball hat and chewing tobacco awaiting the interview.

Being far away from their immediate families is always the toughest part for the Murphys. Family trips must be their biggest expense.

The colder climate took some getting used to, as did the contrasting hours of daylight throughout the year.

Lady Ocelots upset St. Clair

The Schoolcraft College women's basketball team used a 20-4 run midway through the second half to beat last year's National Junior College Athletic Association Division II runner-up, host St. Clair, 99-89.

Ladywood coach regrets quitting

By BRAD EMONS

Lisa McPhee, who was out of town and unavailable for comment following her unexpected resignation as Livonia Ladywood basketball coach, said later she agonized over her decision during the Christmas holidays.

McPhee, who went 14-25 in two seasons with the Blazers, indicated she would like to get back into coaching sometime in the future.

But current responsibilities as a wife and real estate agent didn't allow enough time to be spent developing a program in the Catholic League's tough Central Divi-

Last season the Blazers finished 5-15 and failed to make the Catholic League playoffs.

"If I didn't have to work it would be no problem, but real estate hours are crazy," McPhee said. "Losing showed me I couldn't do this thing right.

"I got along great with the kids and I got plenty of support from the administration. But they need somebody to go in there with the team as their top priority."

McPhee, who resides in Pleas ant Ridge, met with her players last Friday. She also wrote a letter to the parents explaining her deci-

"The juniors were upset; many were crying," she said. "Hopefully they understood that this was the best for them. They were hurt and I was not happy I did it. They don't see it now, but they will.

"I was frustrated when I sat down with the other coaches in the league. It was the commute the league. It was the commute (from her job in Birmingham) and the time. To run a program right you have to start with the grade school camps in June. I enjoyed that, but it's a six-month responsibility when you factor in the season and the summer camps."

The former Saginaw Valley State standout and ex-Harper Woods Regina assistant coach replaced Ed Kavanaugh, who was fired following the 1993 season.

"My dream was to have my own team and now I'm giving it back ... and it's killing me," she said.
"I hope I can go back to it in a couple of years, but right now there's not enough time, especially if I'm starting a family. It's not a decision I wanted to do, but it had to be done and hopefully evervone understands."

Ladywood athletic director Sal Malek, who hired McPhee originally, said he doesn't have a clear-cut candidate or timetable for replacing the coach.

"We'll be out there looking and accepting applications again, Malek said.

1996 Range Rover 4.0 climbs ladder to success

By Anne Fracassa Avanti NewsFeatures

The 1996 Range Rover 4.0 SE is an expensive piece of automotive equipment.

To be exact. $55,000

But it's really, really, really, really, really nice. And roomy. And comfy. And it's a lot of fun to drive.

Especially if you like off-roading. This thing could scale Mt Everest. I'd bet It might fare as well as the Hummer who knows? The 4.0 SE could be considered an expensive European sedan on stilts The comfort level is superb. with plush seating and a suspension you would probably only expect in an expensive BMW or Mercedes-

Even though it looks like a truck. this high-end sport utility drives like a fine sedan.

The Range Rover folks incorporated an electronic air suspension system with air springs, shock absorbers and height sensors at each wheel. It traverses every surface as roadway

ROAD TEST By Anne Fracassa

Michigan, but colleagues have told me they've made this Range Rover 4.0 climb over the steepest of hills and obstacles without the slightest

That's what was so impressive about this deluxe SUV. No matter that you're high off the ground - a whopping 8.5 inches - the vehicle still absorbs every bump to ensure you get a smooth ride.

When it's time to get out, the height-adjustable suspension system inches closer to the ground, making Introduced in March of last year, the Range Rover 4.0 is all new this year and is the flagship of the Land Rover line of premium 4-wheel-drive vehicles. Land Rover, by the way, is a fully owned subsidiary of BMW. All Land Rovers are manufactured in Solihull, England.

On the outside, the Range Rover 4.0 is a smart mix of aluminum and steel. Styling is distinct. Of course it is - all Land Rovers are.

The first Range Rover was introduced to American roads in 1970, but all of them have a familiar look. It's interesting to note that Land Rover spent more than $500 million on the redesign of the Range Rover and changed it for the good.

The 1996 Range Rover 4.0 has permanent 4-wheel-drive. There's also something really different - an "H shift" lever. That means there are two selections on the transmission shifter - low range and high range.

Rather than pushing buttons or shifting a smaller lever, the low and high range are accessed by moving cept that works efficiently.

sion adapts automatically to how you drive by altering its shift sequences. That provides high rpm upshifts and quicker downshifts in the "Sport" mode. This electronic transmission allows you to choose how you want to drive as well, with normal, sport and manual shift modes. That means in the low range, you can also lock the transmission in a certain gear.

You'd expect a vehicle this high off the ground wouldn't be too stable. but nothing is further from the truth, thanks to a high-quality 31mm sway har

What about the wheels? Well, the 16-inch tires have spoked alloy rims.

This Range Rover comes with 4wheel disc brakes and 4-channel allterrain anti-lock brakes with Land Rover's own electronic traction con-

The heating and cooling controls can be individually adjusted by the driver and passenger, allowing individual needs to be met. Rear seats fuel-injected aluminum alloy V-8 engine is rated at 190 horsepower. Mileage is 13 mph in the city, 17 on the highway. Top speed is 116 mph and its towing capacity is 6,500 pounds

Also available on the Range Rover is a 4.6-liter 225 horsepower V-8 engine that was redesigned to improve gas flow for increased performance.

The 1996 Range Rover 4.0 has all the appointments you'd thirst for in a luxury automobile.

Take a deep breath and try these on for size: Leather seats all around, dual air bags, an adjustable tilt steering wheel, an automatic dimming rearview mirror, air conditioning, child locks on the rear doors. double folding 60/40 rear seats, electrically adjustable heated door mirrors, adjustable heated front seats with power headrests and lumbar supports, front and rear fog lights, heated front windshield and rear windows, height-adjustable front and rear seat belts, ignition-off delay for the truck's windows and sunroof, a trip computer and message center, a key-activated "all-close" feature, keyless entry, a security system, headlamps with power washer and wipers, tilt and slide glass sunroof and sunshade, micro-pollen filtration, programmable defrost and ice warning, 120-wat AM/FM cassette with weather band and a full-size spare under the cargo area.

Whew! That's a lot. There is only one option: Rubber floor mats - and that'll cost you about $200.

It's an expensive vehicle, this Range Rover. That's for sure. But buyers will get the most rugged luxury sport utility on the market. If you're in the mood for some fun, check this one out.
