Four Plymouth-Canton elementary schools have been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools.

They include Eriksson, Smith Miller and Bird.

Miller and Bird have been accredited in the past. The recognition is a first for Eriksson and Smith

"Eriksson and Smith have now joined the growing league of schools whose purpose is the continuing quest for higher levels of quality education," said William Bushaw of the NCA.

Unlike the state accreditation process which bases accreditation on just test scores (on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program exam), the NCA has set numerous requirements. (Bird is the only Plymouth-Canton school with state accreditation.)

"Schools must meet such membership criteria as a pupil/professional staff ratio of 20 to one; specific staffing requirements in administration, counseling, media and support personnel; and spending approximately $9 per pupil in the media center, said Helen Finelli, NCA information specialist.

"More important, member schools must engage in a continuous school improvement process that will be monitored periodically by a team of

"Accreditation provides a yardstick by which a community can measure its schools," said Finelli.

Plymouth-Canton school officials were pleased with the news.

We are really excited. It is a stamp of approval. This signifies that the school has the resources, personnel and leadership necessary for effective education " said Eriksson Principal Judy Ireson, who traveled to Chicago to accept the NCA plaque of membership.

Helping: Naomi Rundell is comforted by Jeanne McLoughlin as Plymouth Rotary Club members help repair the Plymouth home in which she has lived for 20 years.

Rotary Club fixes Plymouth home

Naomi and Bill Rundell could hardly believe their eyes. The mother and son watched in amazement as more than 60 volunteers recruited by the Plymouth Rotary came over Saturday and spent all day and evening painting and refurbishing their Deer Street home.

"It was like a God-given gift," said Naomi Rundell, who cares for her son and lives on a fixed income. "It is hard to describe. It's a great thing that has been done for you. It was unbelievable. I knew from February that they would do it in April, and still, I really couldn't comprehend what all the workers were doing.

The Plymouth residents hardly recognize their home. It's got a new porch, plumbing, windows, linoleum, carpet, as well as new copper wiring, lights, sod and shrubs.

Traditionally, the NCA evaluated high schools "to let colleges know about the quality of their programs," said Finelli "Not many elementary schools sought certification, but it's becoming more popular," said Finelli. Elementary and middle schools began seeking accreditation in the 1970's, she said.

The number of Michigan K-12 school districts in which all school buildings are accredited by NCA has increased to 68

Plymouth-Canton's high school(s) have been accredited since 1916. Finelli said.

Of the Michigan elementary middle and high schools that applied for accreditation this year, 79 received it, while 53 have "candidacy status

"If a school has a certain number of violations of our standards, they can be placed on candidacy status until they correct them." said Finelli

Accredited schools must meet standards for teacher preparation, school facilities, resources and school improvement

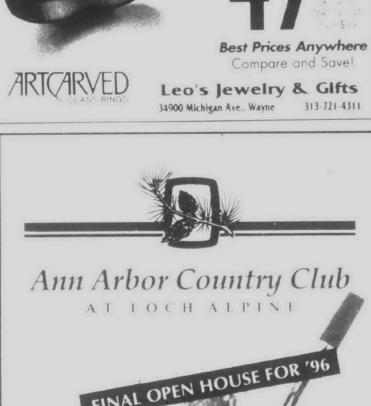

Among the requirements: kindergarten teachers must have credit hours in early childhood education, while other teachers must hold a state teaching certificate, there must be no more than 25 kindergartners in a session, unless a full-time aide is provided; and school must be in session 181 days.

Schools also must have an improvement plan with target goals that can be measured for student achievement, said Ire-

"Curriculum is a really big piece Quality programs have to be accessible to all students. Barent and student involvement also are requirements, as are improvement programs for staff and curriculum assessment.

None of the 170 guests — dazzling in jewels, evening gowns and tuxedos — would have been surprised had Humphrey Bogart or Ingrid Bergman strolled into the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's "Night in Casablanca"

Friday's extravaganza was celebrated in honor of the PSO's Golden Anniversary at Plymouth Township's Fox Hills Country Club, transformed for a night into "Rick's American Cafe." Guests posed with a 1940-vintage car that helped set the mood and carry guests back in time Symphony supporters forked out $100 per ticket for the fundraising soiree, which featured entertainment by the Matt Michaels Orchestra and Elaine Glow Trio. Michaels — who accompanied Barbara Streisand at the Caucus Club when the singer was launching her career — heads up the jazz program at Wayne State University.

Looking classic in a white jacket right out of "Casablanca," Plymouth's Fred Hill emceed the event, spicing his remarks throughout the night with lines from the film favorite.

A special reception with appetizers and an open bar preceded a dinner of sliced herb-crusted roast beef tenderloin and pan-seared salmon derloin and pan-seared salmon.

"Casablanca" aficionados were even able to watch the movie classic, being shown in room at the country

"It was a wonderful dinner served by a very nice waitstaff," said Pat Derderian of the PSO.

Chaired by Kathy Aznavorian, the gala featured a special tribute to community supporters Esther and Ken Hulsing, who helped found the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra in 1945. Ken Hulsing served as president of the Plymouth Symphony League.

The Hulsings' long record of community service was recognized by U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, who sent a written tribute, and by the symphony board which presented the Hulsings with an engraved plaque, commemorating them for their many years of commitment to symphonic music.

Local government was represented by Plymouth Mayor Ron Loiselle; Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter; Canton Supervisor Tom Yack; and Plymouth Township Trustee Kay Arnold, representing Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy.

A raffle chaired by symphony board member Don Soenen raised $6,000. Winners pocketed cash and airline tickets good for travel anywhere in the U.S.

Every guest received as a table favor an edible Plymouth Symphony "CD," in a CD case wrapped in gold foil. The chocolate treats were donated by eight local businesses.

"The night was a definite success," said Derderian, adding that ad sales from a Casablanca program also helped fund PSO's "Endowment 2000" program.

The PSO recently received another shot in the arm with a $45,000 grant from Chrysler — funds to be used for technical purposes.

The PSO got its start when Plymouth residents Evelyn and Carl Groschke invited a group of friends to their home to play their instruments and share their common interest in music.

Symphony gala: About 170 people attended a benefit for the Plymouth Symphony. The crowd, above, was brought to its feet when a special award was presented to Kenneth and Esther Hulsing, left, by Plymouth Township board member Kay Arnold.

Washington's obit in old paper

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

If Canton resident Bill Harper hadn't told his brother not to throw away a suitcase-full of family memorabilia, he would have missed out on quite a treasure.

"I said, 'say what!' Harper exclaimed when he unfolded what was an old yellowed newspaper.

That newspaper _ the Ulster County Gazette _ was dated Saturday, Jan. 4, 1800. The newspaper had absolutely nothing to do with Harper's family. But it was devoted to the death of first U.S. President George Washington.

"The paper has held up remarkably well. It was with my grandparents' marriage license," said Harper, who retired from trucking less than a week ago.

At first Harper assumed the newspaper was from Illinois where his family lived. "But then I started seeing references in the paper to Rochester. And to me Rochester is New York."

Harper started investigating. He traced the paper to Ulster County in New York. "I want to call this paper and see if it's still in business," he

The newspaper has only four pages and the middle section is devoted entirely to George Washington. But it is not at all like today's newspapers. While Washington's obituary is included it is not the dominant article in the middle portion. Instead a majority of the news about Washington is a letter by the U.S. Senate about the first president with a response from then-President John Adams. The middle section also contains a poem about Washington written by an unidentified girl.

The front page of the newspaper is dominated by U.S. Congressional news, but it is in resolution and letter form. Also on the front is an extract from a letter from Lt. Col. Henry Clinton to Lord Grenville regarding the movement of troops.

The back page of the newspaper boasts advertising similar to today's classified ads. One ad was to hire an apprentice, another was to sell a female slave. There was also a notice that someone's red bull had strayed, a lost was watch, and a second notice from a husband who declared he was no longer responsible for his wife's debts.

Harper figures the newspaper has been handed down in his family "My grandparents weren't that old to get the paper," he said.

A find: Bill Harper was looking through an old suitcase when a found an old newspaper that noted the death of George Washington.

Now that he has the newspaper he's been calling a number of places to find out what it's worth. One place told him it was only worth $20-$50. He doesn't believe it. He also plans to call the University of Michigan.

"If it's worth a large amount of money. I'll sell it If it isn't, I'll keep it," said Harper, who also found old family photographs from the 1800s, as well as his grandfather's pocketwatch. "All of this stuff was in a big pile. I was at my brother's house and he said it was just a bunch of old photographs and he was going to throw it all out."

Harper is amazed by the condition of the newspaper, which appears to be printed on something similar to a yellow-colored onion paper. "You can read it as though it was printed this morning. I can't imagine there are too many of these papers."

Florists to 'petal' skills at show

When the first Michigan International Women's show comes to the Novi Expo Center May 2, through 5, area florists won't be letting any grass grow under their feet.

"We're going to show visitors how to use flowers for special occasions and to enhance the home to make things brighter," says Ray Mierzejewski, chairman of the floral display and owner of Piccadilly Petal'er in Canton.

The show will feature a cornucopia of products and services of interest to women, including financial and investment services, health care, the automotive industry, cosmetics and beauty

"We see this as a great opportunity to demonstrate to today's busy women the joy - and ease of using fresh flowers and how to take care of them so they can enjoy them longer," says Betty Haran of Troy's Professional Allied Florists Association of Metropolitan Detroit.

Seminars and displays will show how to say it and what's new - with flowers. A bridal display will showcase the latest in silks.

"Because the show is aimed at professional women," we're trying to portray the comforts of home and keeping a home for the modern woman," says Cathie Nance-Buzzy, manager of Dinser's Florist and Greenhouse in Novi.

"We feel that we can offer a lot of services to women, like simple to elaborate arrangements for parties they are having, especially for today's women who don't have the time.

The theme of the floral display is French Chateau with a contemporary flavor, says Mierzejewski, using arbors, doors, a gazebo, pond, shrubbery and trees in tones of teal and

"They're going to be hit by this blaze of color - a 25 by 65 foot wall - right when they walk in,"

says Mierzejewski. Mierzejewski is no stranger to things European. His shop is European styled. It features readily available _ some 40-50 buckets _ of fresh flowers which the customer can personally select.

He's something of a "late bloomer" in floral circles. A victim of the downsizing craze, he's a former foreman with a major oil company, used to dealing not with flowers, but truck drivers.

After three years, he's on track to success and enjoying the change. Seminars will run on all four days. They

County parks to offer canoeing on Rouge River

Beginning Saturday, May 4, Wayne County Parks will open the doors to its canoe livery.

The n'ew county-operated canoe livery was open on weekends last October, marking the first time since 1956 that local families had the opportunity to explore the river by canoe.

"The opening of the canoe livery is an important symbol for our efforts to clean up the Rouge River," said County Executive Edward H. McNamara.

"We plan to make the Rouge a national model of how to take a river that once was thought to be polluted and return it to a state where people can use it and enjoy it. The Wayne County Parks livery is located on Hines Drive between Joy Road and Stark Road in Livonia. It will be open seven days a week, from 8 a.m.

However, Plymouth Township should resist any move to require that fences be placed around ponds or wetlands. Any such move, would spark lawsuits and neighborhood dis-

While we should all be concerned about the safety of children, the ultimate responsibility should be in the hands of parents, not govern-

It 's up to parents to teach children about the dangers of wading into water. Parents should also be reminded that traffic on subdivision roads poses more dangers to young people than does water.

Taking on ponds and wetlands is an expensive proposition. Just the fencing would come with a high price tag. Maintenance of such fences would drive the cost even higher.

Fencing ponds would change the look of subdivisions. That would spark battles in neighborhoods. The design and type of fences would become an issue.

Also, aesthetics and property values are at stake. Although some parents may see the ponds as a problem, other residents see ponds and wetlands as an attractive asset in their subdivision. Living near water is an attraction, often making a home near it worth more

They also provide recreation to a neighbor-

Unfenced ponds and wetlands are important to wildlife. While the birds will have no problems, a fence would restrict the movement of wildlife such as deer, raccoons and other small animals that use wetlands as a source of water and food. Those animals would be forced to find other sources of water.

Also, requiring that wetlands be fenced could create sticky legal issues. The prime one would revolve around the cost of fencing and who would pay for it. Chances are the township would look to developers or subdivision associations to pay those costs:

Setting up such a system would be sure to anger some residents to the point where they would file lawsuits.

There are housekeeping issues. Fences are trash collectors, especially on windy days. Another maintenance issue is the cutting of weeds. Fencing in a wetland would make it difficult to get equipment inside.

This isn't to say the life of a child isn't worth some inconvience. It is. However, as one township official pointed out, studies show that 89 percent of children who drown do so in Any measure to require the fencing of ponds and wetlands in Plymouth Township would create an entire different set of problems and expenses.

It's not worth it to the township to get involved when there hasn't been a serious

Dear Readers:

Inside today's Observer you have an opportunity to read about outstanding students from your hometown high schools. Wait until you meet this Observer Academic All-Star Team representing the Class of 1996.

This is the 12th annual All-Star Team we have selected since we began this very important event. The 1996 team is among the most academically accomplished.

"The schools are sending their best and brightest to us," said Larry Boehms, principal of Troy High School and chairman of this year's judging committee.

"Every year it gets to be more of a joy for us the quality of students seems to increa

Selection to the team has always been based solely on the numerical combination of grade point average and either SAT or ACT scores, whichever is higher. Scoring is done by a committee of the Michigan Association of Secondary Principals from throughout our circulation areas and headed by Larry Boehms of Troy High School.

Dale Coller, principal of Livonia's Stevenson High School, is the longest-serving All-Star judge. We're honored to have him on the committee and we've included a special feature in this year's section on him. You can read about Coller and his 35-year career in education and his thoughts about today's students in this year's special section.

Our special thanks to Madonna University, the exclusive sponsor of this special section the last two years. The Livonia-based university offers a strong liberal arts foundation with solid career preparation and a commitment to serving others.

Students on the 1996 team will head to many colleges and universities including the University of Michigan, Michigan State University, Harvard, Northwestern, Western Michigan University and Duke after graduation to study political science, pre-med, engineering and science.

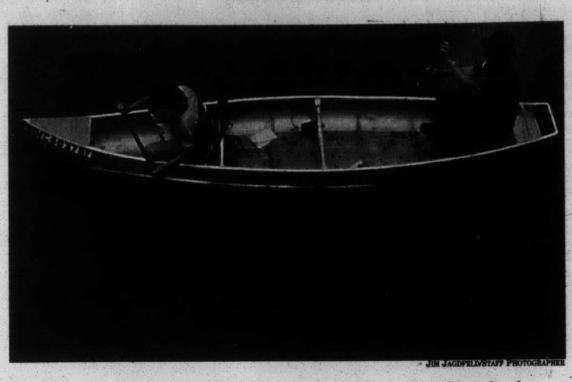

They have set high goals and have accomplished much during their busy and very productive high school years.

The one thing they all have in common is outstanding academic achievement coupled with unparalleled extracurricular involve-

Helpful section

I am writing to you in appreciation for the function your publication, the Plymouth Observer, serves in the lives of my wife and myself. In particular, I'm very grateful for the inclusion of audition notices in the Thursday "Arts and Entertainment" section. Since I first noticed this section about nine months ago, I've landed roles in two musicals (Secret Garden" with Grosse Pointe Theater and "Evita" with Avon Players of Rochester) in the Metro area. I was able to be more selective about roles I pursued. Please keep this feature and expand it if possible.

My wife and I thank you for the service your publication provides to us and the community.

"Evita" begins its four-week run on April

A thanks

On behalf of the staff of the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show, thank you for your superb coverage and continued support of the show. More than 27,000 people from Michigan, the Great Lakes States, and Canada came to smell roses and hyacinths, view topnotch landscape displays, and shop the marketplace. We hope this show will sustain them until the real show by Mother Nature arrives in the weeks to come.

Library cooperation

While township and city agencies are meeting to strive for cooperation between our communities, two local libraries have worked together to save local tax dollars.

This week, when the Canton Township Library replaces its carpeting, it will pass sufficient parts of the old carpet to the Plymouth District Library for use at its interim location at 705 S. Main, formerly Farmer Jack.

During the resurfacing of the Canton Library's parking lot, part of their carpeting was damaged. However, there is enough undamaged carpeting remaining to make the temporary Plymouth facility much more comfortable.

Isn't it wonderful when local governmental units are wise enough to work together and save dollars? And do.

Not controversial

Regarding Arts and Entertainment, Section B, page 1, Feb. 18, 1996: Entertainers who express themselves in "sly giggle(s)" and "extremely personal questions" may be hot numbers to some people, but not to me.

The interviewer who describes a part of their act as a "pitstop" was probably more accurate than she realized at the time.

The Red Hot Chili Peppers may compliment themselves on being controversial ("We like to stir the pot of controversy . . . It's not even like a conscious thing.") but snickering lyrics and audacious behavior don't qualify as controversy. That area of discussion is limited to intelligent and informed exchanges of opinion.

These victims of the "typical American society of oppressed sexuality" are reaping material success, but at what cost to themselves and their fans!

Court decision sound

I agree with the federal court's decision on assisted suicide because it supports the premise of our Constitution -- every man has the unalienable right to his life, liberty, property and the pursuit of happiness.

Our Constitution is a document limiting the rights of government, not the rights of man. The Constitution did not and could not enumerate all of mans' rights. They follow logically from the premise of the Constitution.

The opponents of the decision are also correct when they say the Constitution did not and could not create such a right; it did not. Man's rights are unalienable; he is born with them. They are his choice to exercise or not as part of his nature.

The bear facts

City dwellers should mind their own business

The animal rights folks are making the rounds with petitions aimed at stopping the practice of putting out

The idea is that hunters shouldn't be able to put out food for the bruins and then later show up and shoot the animals while they're having dinner.

It's one of those ideas that has great appeal in suburban Detroit when an earnest friend or neighbor shows up with a petition in hand. I really can't blame people for signing them, with that idea in mind.

However, there's a whole other side to it. One that I was exposed to last er. It's the guys who tend to the

It's not pretty. It involves hauling five-gallon pails of rotten meat and anything else that's not fit for human consumption through the woods in 90 degree heat.

Actually, I was headed fishing on the day I became a bear baiter. I was tossing my rod into the Jeep, and ready to head to the Fox River when I noticed a friend with whom I was staying hauling plastic buckets to his truck.

It looked like he was making a trip to the town dump. So, when he asked if I wanted to accompany him, I wasn't enthused.

"I'm going to bait my bear traps,"

It was one of those outdoor activities that I had never engaged in and probably won't ever have the chance to do again, so I jumped in the pickup truck and drove off.

· Riding with a local in the Upper Peninsula is always an experience. Even though I know the area, we were quickly on unfamiliar roads that went from gravel to two-track and then to nothing.

We came to a stop at a downed tree. That's a sign there's something on the road. Locals often drag trees onto a road to ensure that tourists don't go down them.

Anyway, we put on hip boots and started walking a trail, each carrying two buckets of rotten food and several bottles of molasses.

It was a hot August day and after about 50 feet I was sweating and by 100 yards I probably smelled like one of the buckets I was carrying.

The eastern Upper Peninsula is low and brushy. You can hardly see more than 25 yards in front of you.

My companion took note that we were using the same trails used by the bears when going to feed at the piles. I hoped it wasn't lunch time.

"I don't even hunt them anymore," he said. "They look too much like a human when they are skinned and hung up."

I admitted that I've never had much of a desire to shoot one myself. It's a lot of work to drag a 200-to 400pound bear out of the woods, even with some help.

My companion said he rents out the piles for about $200 a day during hunting season. To do that he has to drag in the rotten food for the bait piles several times a week during the summer months. He said he has done the math on how much money he makes off of them and it really doesn't pay that much. There is also the time it takes to get the correct permits from the state Department of Natural

After about a 30-minute walk, we arrive at the first site. He dumped one of the five-gallon pails over, put a log on top of it and poured the molasses on it to attract the bears.

The syrup was on his hands and arms and we stopped at a swamp to

After about two more hours of this, we were back at the truck. "I don't know how many more years I'm going to do this," he said.

It was an understandable sentiment. It's hard, sweaty work done by people who have chosen to live ind remote places where bears still live. These are people who are just trying to augment their meager incomes with a few extra dollars.

They should be left in peace by us urban folks with big cars and big incomes who pretend to know more about the rights of bears than these folks.

State term limits law will soon cause trouble

On paper, term limitation looks good. Citizen participation, not career politicians. Fresh ideas. Government close to the people. Rah!

But some people who see government up close are beginning to see severe problems, particularly in the state House of Representatives, where a three-term limit kicks in, in 1998.

Paul Hillegonds, retiring speaker of the House, said last week that three terms, six years, are too short. By losing veterans, the House will lose its "institutional memory" — a fancy way of saying that those who don't remember the past are doomed to repeat it:

Future speakers and committee chairs will be members with only four years experience. The day they take their leadership posts, Hillegonds said, they'll be "lame ducks." He wondered aloud whether the House will be able to do long-term thinking if members will be gone in six years.

House members will be more dependent on staff and lobbyists, he said. They will be pushed around more easily by the governor.

Hillegonds reminded me of former Rep. Bill Keith of Garden City. Keith spent many years working on a reform of Michigan's branch banking and interstate banking laws, only to have then-Gov. James Blanchard veto his bill late in the session. Keith put in two more years whipping it into shape. And Keith is but one example.

Hillegonds could have run one more term in his safe Holland district but chose to retire "for the good of my district." His successor will have one term of seniority when the full impact of term limits hits the House in 1998 and will be better positioned for leadership when 85 new state representatives come to town.

TIM RICHARD

David Adamany, president of Wayne State University, warned lawmakers to devise a formula for funding universities PDQ, so that the higher education budget doesn't become a matter of political bargaining after 1998.

"With term limits, institutional memory will disappear from the State Capitol, and funding arrangements are likely to become highly predictable, and even chaotic," Adamany

"We will regret the day we voted in term limits," agreed Sen. John J.H. Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, who chairs the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on the higher education bud-

Actually, lawmakers have been trying to devise a formula, based on program offerings and student numbers, for decades - unsuccessfully. So it looks like universities are in for porkbarrel chaos after 1998.

My own study of House voting patterns convinces me we will have more ideological and partisan splits when junior members take over.

Remember the school finance reform package that voters overwhelmingly favored 2-1 in 1994? If it had been up to the freshmen and sophomores, many of the tax bills never would have passed. Lawmakers with three terms and more of seniority were able to reach bipartisan compromise. They had learned to think in broad, statewide terms.

Michigan has been a middle-of-theroad state for many generations. The hard-nose conservatism of low-seniority Republicans and the bleedingheart liberalism of low-seniority Democrats doesn't match the way Michigan voters behave.

Three terms are too few for state representatives. Ten terms are too many because one becomes a law unto himself, arbitrary and jaded. Five terms - one full turn of the census clock - would be far better.

Unfortunately, we shall be well into the 21st Century before most people figure it out.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

State budget troubles loom

Gov. John Engler gets back from Europe this week. Between jet lag, recent stories suggesting he no longer is a top pick for vice president and a first-class problem with his budget, he may wish he never had gone away.

Time cures jet lag. There's nothing Engler can do about the vice presidential nomination: it's Bob Dole's call. But Engler can do something about the budget mess, although don't hold your

The seeds for the budget problem were sowed last February, when the Engler Administration assumed Congress and President Clinton would enact welfare reform along the lines that the governor had been pushing in Washington, thus saving the state some $320 million. That hasn't happened, and nobody I talk to thinks it will happen any time soon. So the Engler budget is $320 million short, right off the bat.

And when legislators got back from their Easter vacation last week, people started noticing there was a problem.

According to Engler, who certainly doesn't want a budget crisis blowing up in the middle of his campaign for vice president, there's no cause for worry. "I'm prepared to wait some time. I think this could go on throughout the year," he

According to folks in the Legislature who now have the responsibility to enact some kind of budget, time already is running out. "At some point, we've got to say welfare reform simply isn't going to happen; let's look at the alternatives," said Sen. John Schwarz, chair of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on higher edu-

Here's an example of why people are getting

Engler's original budget proposal called for a 5 percent increase for colleges and universities. That got the governor a lot of good ink about being a friend of colleges and universities, especially when it looked as though this level of state support would keep tuition increases at a low 2-3 percent for the year.

That hurts a lot of people. Parents of kids oing to college, for one. Engler's good friend, Michigan State University President Peter McPherson, for another. McPherson made a big deal last year about holding MSU's tuition increase below the rate of inflation, and if Engler's original budget gets busted, McPherson winds up with egg all over his face.

The preliminary posturings already are taking place on what could be as big a fight over higher education appropriations as last year.

Engler's flacks are saying the whole thing is President Clinton's fault, which is partly true. Conservatives, including the editorial page at the Detroit News, are arguing that the thing to do is hold the lid on spending, regardless. University presidents are wringing their hands. Democrats are gloating that, at last, Engler finds himself in a box.

There-is great logic to start figuring out "what if," especially when it comes to things like college tuitions. But I doubt the political realities - Engler's conservative base, mixed with his political ambition - will allow people to do any

Instead, expect the pressure to build, the rhetoric to heat up. I expect it won't be until a lame duck session of the Legislature - well after Engler is or is not nominated for vice president, well after the election determines what party controls next year's Legislature and after some more numbers are in - that it all will be sorted

In the meantime, college presidents will have a tough time figuring out what to bill parents for tuitions. If I had a kid in college, I'd be suggesting a high-paying summer job.

Look who's turning 100

The 100th installment of the "Family Room" will appear right here in two weeks. This fact came to my attention the other day and I couldn't believe it! One hundred!

That much time has gone by? One hundred weeks? One hundred Thursdays? No way!

The time has absolutely flown by. I mean it. The clock has sprouted wings, the calendar, too, and off they went. And I've tried catching them, but they keep flapping away.

It's a scary thing. And whenever I mention it, I get a nod of the head and a melancholy reply, "It only gets worse as more time passes." The more time passes the more it passes quickly. And

And then I think of the gas gauge in our van. That's right, the gas gauge. The one that takes forever to move from FULL down to the next marking, and then after that it takes a little less time to move to the next marking and then after that it seems as if a big hole gets punched in the tank and all the gas leaks out all at once and there I am - out of gas. That's the way time is.

I don't know how this time thing happens nor do I know the reason for it. I just know it hap-

Now, here's another thing about time that's so curious - the future. Indeed, the speedy present, the gas gauge effect of time, is definitely beyond me, but the future is even more "beyonder" me. For instance, 100 weeks ago I would never have

Bit of history - bit of sharing

■ The Rev. Steve Rottgers who has the task of starting a new church in the Canton community sees a bit of early Christian history in their temporary worship site, the formal chapel at the L.J. Griffin Home.

BYCHRISTINAFUOCO

All Saints Episcopal Church and the L.J. Griffin Funeral Home, both of Canton, have struck up a temporary partnership that reflects religious history. For the past several months, the Rev. Steve Rottgers and his congregation have met in the funeral home's formal chapel. Rottgers compares this arrangement to the early Christians meeting at the cata-

This is historically and traditionally one of the best places to meet," he explained.

The early Christians met in catacombs to avoid persecution from Romans who were "pagan people not of the Christian faith and had a fear and a desire to move the issue of death out of their lives," Rottgers said. "The catacombs were an easy and safe haven because of the Romans' belief in wanting to avoid

Most of the modern burial practices, including headstones come from early Christian traditions which "shows how the church in many ways is wedded to the funeral history.

"That's how you get that tie-in of funeral home and church together," Rottgers said

"I had just left the church in Virginia and I was on a six-week sabbatical," he said. "The first week I was given a trip to Israel and Rome. When I got off the plane in Rome, a member of (this area's) diocese asked me what I did and I told him I just completed starting up a church. He told me, 'We have one we want to start up in Canton.

Besides the catacomb tradition, Rottgers incorporates more history into his services.

"I'm using water from the River Jordan for communion. There's a lot of stuff from the holy land that we've been incorporating into the new church."

Observance is for motherless

Motherless women will unite in the Detroit metropolitan area, New York and 14 other cities nationwide for the first Motherless Daughters Day Saturday, May 11, the day before Mother's

On that day, motherless daughters throughout the United States will come together to honor their mothers and commemorate their lives as part of Mother's Day weekend.

At 3 p.m. EDT nationwide, motherless women will be linked by a "Circle of Remembrance" as participants in each individual city join hands and acknowledge their mothers by name.

'Mother's Day is often a difficult time for women who have lost their mothers," said Hope Edelman, author of "Motherless Daughters" and "Letters from Motherless Daughters." "We hope to give them an opportunity to celebrate their mothers' lives rather than mourn their losses."

In the metropolitan Detroit area, motherless women will gather at 1 p.m. for a luncheon at Meadowbrook Hall at Oakland University near Rochester.

The event will feature guest speaker Dr. Ellen Grumeretz, a Birmingham psychologist who specializes in issues of loss and has been a motherless daughter since age six. Dr. Grumeretz also facilitates motherless daughter support groups.

Women need not be members of the ntional Motherless Daughters organization to attend the luncheon. There is a minimal cost for the luncheon, and a voluntary donation for the Motherless Daughters organization will be accepted.

Mary Ann Court, 34, a motherless daughter and coordinator for the local Motherless DAughters Day, found plenty of comfort in the "Motherless Daughter"

"The first Motherless Daughters Day will bring women and girls together who share the common bond of losing their mother," she said. "We are sisters of a kind."

The Motherless Daughters organization, based in New York, is a not-for-profit organization designed to offer support, services and information to women and girls who have experienced early mother loss.

For more information, about the first national Motherless Daughters Day Observance at Meadowbrook Hall, call McCourt at (810) 546-4411.

Time and life have unfolded themselves and they've twisted and turned and there never seems to be map to give me an idea of what lies ahead. But ahead I go, we all go, faster and faster all the time.

Yikes! It's like a wild Cedar Point ride, isn't it? Shrieking and hanging on for dear life sems like a smart thing to do, but that would cause a ruckus and be really embarrassing. So we do what we do, and for me that's pretending to be calm and in control. It usually works. But I'm only pretending. Inside, I'm shrieking and hanging on for Anyway, this anniversary of sorts, this 100th episode of the "Family Room" coming in two weeks is worth a celebration. Heck, why not? I've celebrated a lot less momentous things. Why just the other day all the socks matched in my folding pile and I ran downstairs and had a cup of coffee. It was one of those fancy brands, that celebrates the ebrations are good most any celebrating 100 weeks.

For 100 consecutive weeks, I've been here, talking with you. And you've been wonderful, faithful listeners and readers. You've cried with me and laughed with me. You've agreed and disagreed with me. You've offered some advice along the way. You've let me pass a few minutes of the week with you during many of those weeks.

So let's celebrate 100. The column in two weeks will be a "Family Room Salutes 100." And I'm inviting you all to tell "Family Room" readers something about your family, your life in your family, in about 25 words. Or, if you're not in a saluting kind of mood, you may complain about them. Or just plain tell about them and let everyone else figure out if it's good or bad.

You must mention the number 100 somewhere along the way; that's a requirement, since the whole thing is a salute to 100. Here's just an example: Jack had 100 crayons until today. He shoved a handful down the furnace vent. He said we'd have rainbows blowing out soon.

It's a twister: Helen Hunt and co-star Bill Paxton run for their lives as a tornado bears down on them in "Twister" which opens in theaters Friday, May 10, and will usher in a benefit for the Red Cross at the Laurel Park AMC Theaters in Livonia.

Theater uses 'Twister' to help RC

It's a given that, sooner or later, Hollywood is the master of disaster when it comes to films with a penchant for destruction.

For aviation, there was the string of "Airport" flicks, high rises had their "Towering Inferno," and the cruise industry its "Poseidon Adventure."

Well, Mother Nature gets her shot in Hollywood's latest disaster flick, "Twister," that opens in theaters on Friday, May 10.

Now before you conjure up images of that tornado that swept Dorothy to the Land of Oz and sent Sally Field and her hired hands to the root cellar in "Places in the Heart," this flick is more realistic, more '90s, if you please.

The largest storm to hit Oklahoma in more than a half century is brewing, and it promises to drop multiple twisters into Tornado Alley. It's the storm that two rival groups of scientists want to be the first to launch their own equipment in a twister to transmit data about tornado behavior.

There's also another group waiting . . . for the flick , not the tornado . . . that's the folks at the Laurel Park AMC Theaters who have big plans for the movie's opening . . . and the American Red Cross.

When you have something like a tornado hit, the Red Cross is called out to give blood and disaster relief," said Wendy Sue Sailor, manager of the Laurel Park AMC Theaters in Livonia. "So with this movie, we wanted to do a big promo that would tie in with the Red Cross."

The big promo is twofold: a blood drive from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the theaters' lobby on Friday, May 17, and a blanket drive that will run through Friday, May 24.

Blood donation appointments will be scheduled every 15 minutes and as an incentive to give, donors will receive two free movie passes. Walk-ins also will

"AMC has done blood drives in the past and they've been very successful," Sailor said. "They seem to go over pretty well and each time they do it, they get more successful."

The blood drives generally are held during the summer, when donations are low, but Sailor hopes that by tying it in with "Twister," they will be able to collect at least 60 pints of blood.

"People need to know that one pint of blood can help four people," Sailor added

Patrons who donate a new bed or crib blanket will receive a coupon for a free popcorn.

The Red Cross began the blanket drive in 1989 and collected 300 blankets that were distributed to shelters in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. Last year, the total was 6,900 blan-

"The main focus of the blanket drive is usually in fall,' Sailor said, "but the Red Cross needs blankets year-round.'

In addition to the blood and blanket drives, there also will posters providing facts about tor-nadoes in Michigan and the United States "to get people in the mood."

Mixed in with the serious stuff will be some fun and games. The staff will dress as characters from the "Wizard of Oz," Hollywood's best known film with a tornado in it, and there will be games for theatergoers to try their hand at.

"We may even get the "Twister' out; people love it," Sailor said. "We also hope to do mini twisters with ice cream with Y Not Yogurt in the mall."

There also will be prizes like posters, CD soundtracks and dinner certificates.

When the movie opens on May 10, there also will be giveaways "on the spot" of T-shirts at the twilight and first evening show of "Twisters," and that may spill

People interested in participat-ing in the blood drive can call 462-4933 for more information, including the criteria for donating blood. The theaters are at

and Six Mile roads, Livonia.

For those waffling about joining in, Sailor has yet another tidbit to offer: "There also will be a few other surprises, too."

Big Bands big draw at Town Hall

What song did Glenn Miller think was a "bad tune," but became one of the most remembered songs of the Big Band Era?

Who was the lead singer of The Pied Pipers, which provided vocals for Tommy Dorsey? What Big Band leader quit performing in the mid-1940s and made lamps out of his clarinets because he didn't like the way the industry was going?

For buffs of the Big Bands, the answers come quickly. The "bad tune" was none other than "In the Mood," The Pied Pipers' lead singer was none other than Frank Sinatra, and the band leader with clarinet lamps - and only Big Band leader still living is Artie Shaw.

Those are but a few of facts Dr. Weldon Petz tosses out while talking about a subject near and dear to his heart. And with good reason. Between the time he graduated from Wayne Universify in 1943 and 1947, when he signed on with the Detroit Public Schools as an instrumental music teacher, he played trombone for Jimmy Dorsey, performed in radio theater, and recorded with Ella Fitzgerald.

He also had his own group, the Tommy Band, which performed throughout Michigan, Indiana and Ohio until 1952, and used the first name of his idol, Tommy Dorsey, as part of its moniker.

"The Dorseys, out of Pennsylvania, were two Irish brothers who couldn't agree," said Petz. "Tommy was my idol, Jimmy was my boss."

The recollections were part of Petz's presentation as the closing act of the 1995-96 Livonia Town Hall season and people who came to hear the music of such greats as Benny Goodman, Harry James, Johnny Long, Les Brown, Miller and the Dorseys were not disappointed.

Folksy roots

The Big Band sound can trace its roots back to folk singers who would talk they lyrics. But it was the likes of Huddie "Leadbelly" Ledbetter who began to change the talk to singing and musicians in the south who played what sounded like jazz from

Added to the mix were jug bands, so named after the base who blew across the top of the jug and might even feature a washboard solo, and Dixieland

By the 1920s, the music was gaining popularity. Bands from the south, with five or six members, began traveling up the Mississippi River on the riverboats, bringing the sound north, bands like the Hot Five with Louie Armstrong and his wife who played the piano.

"The sound started catching on with white bands," Petz said. "(Loring) Red Nichols and the Five Pennies played the Dixieland sound that was cleaner and crisper than the bands coming out of New Orleans."

The growing interest in the music prompted the opening of the first great ballroom in New York. Harlem's Cotton Club opened with a piano player by the name of Duke Ellington and McKinney's Cotton Pickers.

"Duke Ellington was the only one who could read music, so he would teach the band," Petz pointed out.

The interest in hot jazz or swing took off with the 1930s with the help of radio. Leading the charge was Paul Whiteman who "hired the best musicians." Dorsey and Goodman were in the band at the same time and an up and coming piano player by the name of George Gershwin. Whiteman added wind and base to carry the long sound and Bing Crosby as vocalist.

"Big band was very specialized," Petz said. "There were only 2,000 musicians who played in the big bands. It was very, very competitive, and there was always someone waiting for a

Only the best

Among the early swing bands was one led by drummer Ben Pollack, who like Henderson, hired the best musicians, including a clarinet-playing teenager by the name of Benny Goodman.

And it was pianist Fletcher Henderson who would make a name for himself as an arranger and eventually break up his band to arrange for Goodman, according to Petz.

The arranger was the brains and the heart of an orchestra." Petz said. "He would make the sound of the band. I have great respect for the arranger."

As for Goodman, he planned to break up his band after performing in New York because no one danced at the ballrooms where he played.

"At the Paramount Theater, when he played his theme, the young people began dancing. Swing was born and he became the King of Swing," Petz said.

Jimmy Dorsey took his theme song from "Oodles of Noodles" and had Ellen O'Connell as a vocalist. He was, according to Petz, "a marvelous man to work for and had a marvelous band."

His brother, on the other hand, had "Getting Sentimental Over You" as a theme song and the ability to play 32 bars of music

But the "greatest influence" probably would have to be Glenn Miller, who exercise to warm up on the trombone turned into his them song of "Moonlight Sere-

Miller disappeared whilecrossing the English Channel en route to France to entertain the troop during World War II.

"A captain found his briefcase floating in the Channel on a battery that had shot the plane down," Petz said. "He had been killed by friendly fire.

"It was an honor to know Glenn Miller and his music would have been better had he returned from the war."

Blg thanks: Walter Burger of Livonia had a "thanks for the memories" handshake for Weldon Petz following his Big Band presentation. Joining in the kudos was Bob. Budnik, also of Livonia.

Expo show focus: for, about women

When the first Michigan International Women's Show comes to the Novi Expo Center Thursday through Sunday, May 2-5, area florists won't be letting any grass grow under their feet.

The show will feature a cornucopia of products and services of interest to women, including financial and investment services, health care, automotive, cosmetics and beauty, food and fashion. But the tone will be set by elaborate, contemporary floral displays, reflecting current interest in a mix of the traditional and contemporary.

"We see this as a great opportunity to demonstrate to today's busy women the joy - and ease of using fresh flowers and how to take care of them, so they can enjoy them longer," said Betty Harran of Troy's Professional Allied Florists Association of Metropolitan Detroit.

"We're going to show visitors how to use flowers for special occasions and to enhance the home to make things brighter," said Ray Mierzejewski, chairman of the floral display and owner of Piccadilly Petal'er in Canton.

The theme of the floral display is French Chateau with a contemporary flavor, using arbors, doors, a gazebo, pond, shrubbery and trees in tones of blue and coral, according to Mierzejewski.

"They're going to be hit by this blaze of color – a 65- by 100-foot wall - right when they walk in,"

Seminars and displays will show how to say it - and what's new - with flowers. A bridal display will showcase the latest in

The seminars will be offered throughout the four days of the show, run by Southern Shows of Charlotte for the past 14 years. The topics include "The Hows, Whys and Whens to Use Flowers," "Easy Tips on Bringing Your Flowers Home," "Garden Flowers: How to Use the Things You Have in Your Yard Indoors," "Ribbons and Rows: Simple Touches Anyone Can Do to Accent Their Home Any Time or for Special Holidays' and "Silk Accents in the Home.

Deckers Flowers and Gifts in Westland will be participating in two different seminars - silk accents in the home and door arrangements. It also is handling the gazebo and fountain for the French Chateau.

"It will create a garden effect with spring colors," said Judy Decker, adding that the personal touch is important to the florist. "We try to keep an eye on the quality and treat each order as if it was going to our friends."

"We get a lot of special orders," added Buzzy. "We want to show how easy it is to have those personal touches and that we're there to make it easy for the customer. We're professional women, so we understand time constraints.

The show hours are until 9 p.m. tonight, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $7. The Novi Expo Center is just south of I-96 at the Novi Road exit hildren understand the suffering of other children even if those children are a half a world away. The proof is an art exhibit in which children of Ukrainian descent from throughout metro Detroit express their thoughts about the disastrous Chornobyl, this is the Ukrainian spelling, nuclear explosion on April

From a painting of a Ukrainian flag splattered with blood to an assemblage featuring a small plant barely surviving among the rocks of a Ukrainian landscape, the exhibit focuses on the more than 125,000 people who died as a result of radiation poisoning and the untold number of children already afflicted, or about to become ill with thyroid cancer and leukemia.

According to Bozhena Olshaniwsky, president of Americans for Human Rights in Ukraine, radiation affected more than 1 million children. The world's worst nuclear accident produced 300 times the radiation released from the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima in 1945. The coverup and silence of the Soviet government for two weeks afterward cost not only lives, but illness for generations to come.

Skulls and mountains of bodies permeate the paintings, drawings, sculpture, fiber art, and photography in "Chornobyl - 10 Years After Through the Eyes of Children." While some chose to illustrate the flawed Soviet RBMK reactor, children of the Ukrainian American Youth Association assembled a fabric wall mural of the countryside before the accident. Black and red radiation symbols hang from the ceiling throughout the exhibit, the idea of Taras Hayda, a student of the Eaton Academy in Birmingham. As viewers walk through the exhibit, the hazardous material signs heighten sensual awareness that Ukrainian air is filled with poison.

Since this is the 10 year anniversary of the disaster we wanted to know what Chornebyl means to them, how they perceive it and the leukemia and cancers related to radiation," said exhibition coordinator Dzvinka Hayda.

"One tragedy seems to happen and we go on to the next one. We wanted people to become aware that this is an ongoing tragedy. There are a great many children in Ukraine and Belarus who are ill.

When Chrystyna Nykorak delivered medical supplies to Ukraine in 1992, she could feel the burning of the radiation in her eyes. At an opening reception for the exhibit on April 21 Nykorak, membership director for the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, reiterated Hayda's concerns that the world has forgotten Chornobyl, and the lingering effects it left on all forms of life. Thousands of acres of agricultural land and forests are contaminated with radiation. The strontium and plutonium will remain forever in the bodies of the victims, dead or alive.

"People want to forget. It's important for remember. We're doing the exhibit because the planet is not safe. I don't think humanity knows the side effects of something this dangerous," said Nykorak, a West Bloomfield Township resident who created large-scale batik paintings inspired by her trip for the first Chornobyl art exhibit five years after the disaster.

"Some of the artworks have hope, but most of them are like the clay sculpture of the cow with three front legs. We placed a broken egg in the case because the egg is very symbolic in Ukrainian culture. The radiation is affecting human structures and genes. If the egg cracks you no longer have the life force.'

Tanas Hayda, a student at Cranbrook-Kingswood School in Bloomfield Hills, tells of the destruction rent by Chornobyl in a weaving. Strips of black and white photographs focusing on the emptiness of the streets are woven into

The real tragedy is that four of the five reactors at the Chornobyl nuclear plant are still operating. According to Olshaniwsky there were 109 nuclear accidents at the Chornobyl plant in 1994. There is a ray of hope for the people of Ukraine in the form of the Children of Chornobyl Relief Fund. The outpouring of generosity has helped to ease the suffering with 15 air transports and five by sea of donated medical supplies and clothing.

"For the last six years we've been collecting funds, clothing, food supplements, vitamins and over-the-counter drugs. These we ship to orphanages, hospitals and sanatoriums," said Roma Dyhdalo, director of the relief fund's Michigan chapter. "We're trying to convince the American public there is a need. It's not hysteria; this is the fact. On a visit to an oncological clinic there when we delivered supplies, I spoke with a mother of two children who have thyroid cancer and another mother with three children all with thyroid cancer. People do not have enough money for expensive cures or traveling. People don't realize what kind of life people have there. The reason we're always asking for vitamins is because the children are malnourished. There's no fresh fruit or vegetables."

Livonia Symphony Orchestra wraps up its season Saturday with a concert dedicated to the memory of those who suffered, and continue to suffer, as a result of the nuclear tragedy in Chornobyl 10 years ago. Livonia's Mayor Jack Kirksey will introduce the symphony, and Dr. George Figacz of the Ukrainian Medical Association, a radiologist, will present a historical overview of this incident that changed the world's perception of the effects of nuclear fall out. A taped chronicle of the disaster will be shown before the concert, and during intermission. There will also be a display of photos loaned from the Ukrainian Consulate in Chicago and the Ukrainian Embassy in Washington, D.C. "The question is not closed," said Volodymyr Schesiuk, LSO music director and conductor. "Both of my daughters were 500 miles away, but for many kids it was very bad. It was a rainy spring day. No one knows the long-term effects."

Schesiuk, his wife Luba, and their youngest daughter Maria emigrated to the United States in 1991 and live in Garden City. Their eldest daughter still lives in Ukraine.

For him, the concert is an opportunity to express both his sadness over what happened, and to rejoice in the promise of a brighter future. The pieces he chose for the program express these mixed emotions. "I try not to only present a concert, but to present a production," he said. Special theatrical lighting will help set the mood.

"Elegy for Strings," written by former LSO violinist Christopher Tew to commemorate the assas sination of President John F. Kennedy, is a tragic melody. "Double Concerto for Clarinet & Trumpet, and Strings" by Gordon Jacob features soloists Colin Lord, clarinet, and Brian Moon, trumpet. "This is a newer." piece, and it's been a goal of mine to feature outstanding soloists," said Schesiuk. "It was written a few years ago. I like to do new pieces for me and the orchestra.

It challenges them.' "Ballet from the Perfect Fool" by Gustav Holst is a serious piece about natural elements the spirit of earth, water and fire. "It relates to Chornobyl because it was a beautiful place, and only a fool would build a nuclear plant in such a place,"

"Symphonic Sketches," by

George W. Chadwick, is a joyful piece. "It celebrates spring, and the hope that the future will be nice" said Schesiuk

OPENING RECEPTION

Doing an art project side by side with someone with special needs or watching someone performing, you're not looking at their disabilities. We invite people of all ages to come and enjoy the festival. There will be an information table so a parent or teacher can find out how they can find art services or bring art into their school. And also an arts project area where people are welcome to come by and make something."

Very Special Arts was founded for individuals who could not participate in the sports of Special Olympics because of their disabilities. An international organization begun in 1974 by Jean Kennedy Smith, VSA enriches the lives of the disabled by encouraging creativity through music, drama, dance, and visual arts programs that provide opportunities to develop through the arts.

Music therapist Elizabeth Sands of Canton has seen how a VSAMI mini-grant to the Bryant Center in Livonia helped her severely mentally impaired, severely multiple-impaired and hearing impaired students. Through the use of drums, tambourines, maracas and scarves for movement, students have increased attention spans, improved motor skills and learned socialization and communication skills. Although Bryant Center won't be participating in the festival this year, Sands' pre-primary students with developmental delays and visual impairments at Carr Elementary in Lincoln Park will kick-off Friday's program. The 15 three to six year olds will also do sign language to a song titled

"Love Grows." "The music therapy addresses developmental skills. They learn to follow directions and impulse control," said Sands, a graduate of John Glenn High School in Westland.

"Performing is really great for them. They feel really proud about what they accomplished."

Up next on Friday are the 33 students from Pontiac junior and high schools under the direction of music therapist Maraget Hull. They begin their "Proud to be an American" repertoire with Bruce Springsteen's "Born in the USA." Boyz II Boyz, a duo from Herrington Elementary, will perform Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Getting to Know You."

In addition to the live performances, the festival offers a VSA art exhibit fresh from a showing at Urban Park-Detroit Art Center in Trapper's Alley in Greektown, and a hands-on art activities area.

There is nothing more rewarding than helping a disabled child make art. The smile you receive in return sends the heart soaring. For the last two years, I've received more than I've given by volunteering to work in the art activities area. I've learned that we all have abilities when it comes to art, it's only a matter of degree. For some the finished product is everything. For others it's not the art you make that counts, but participating to whatever degree possible.

Trinity House presents chilling tales

Trinity House Theatre presents "The Edie and Elmira Show" and "263" two one act plays by Paul Patton, 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through May 18 at the theater on the northwest corner of 1-275 and Six Mile Road in Livonia. Tickets $8. Call (313) 464-6302.

BY SUE SUCHYTA SPECIAL WRITER

Human suffering and pessimistic views of the future are nothing new to the stage. However, local playwright Paul Patton has juxtaposed time and space in both his plays to paint a chilling reminder of the savagery that lurks below the surface of mankind's civility.

In "The Edie and Elmira Show," two tales of human suffering, are 130 years removed from each other. They alternate onstage until their common tragedies inevitably collide under the watchful eye of the voyeuristic TV cameras, fueled by an insatiable public. Set in Elmira Federal Prison during the Civil War, and on a modern day talk show, they share the common thread of human suffering as a spectator sport.

Dan Gumina as Lionel Stubbs and P.W. Henry as Elton Crimmins turned in outstanding performances as the two imprisoned Confederate soldiers. The talk show cast, while earnest and well-meaning, was plagued by technical glitches and at the mercy of unseasoned actors. In the right hands, the talk show portion of the script could be a real tour-de-force.

"263" takes a look at a grimly efficient future society where "flat line sleep" enforces the population control goals. The script has great potential. However, great dialogue is lost if it's not well-delivered, and clever costumes don't make up for uninspired acting. The adults in the cast failed to discover that unemotional characters need not be one-dimensional and boring the best known example being Leonard Nimoy's Spock. the one significant exception was the Narrator, played by Robin McCutcheon, who exuded warmth, talent, and most importantly, believability. The Narrator also proved to be the surprise link to another era. Young Jenna Vanden Brink, as Emily, had some touching moments with her. The children in the cast con-

The Farmington Players current production of "Isn't it Romantic" isn't very. But it is entertaining nonetheless. A in the most unlikely of places

Directed by Jan and Bill Salisbury, Wendy Wasserstein's comedy explores that nagging, modern-day question: Can a woman really have it all? Set against an early 80s New York backdrop, the play centers around two notgetting-any-younger women friends (one a writer, one mired in the business world) who discover that, when the chips are down, priorities can prove surprising indeed.

As the friends, Janie and Harriet, Lisa Muscio and Sarab Kamoo turn in generally good performances, although you may find yourself wishing that Muscio would inject just a bit more zest and comic edge into her performance.

The same might be said of Michael Megerian, who plays Janie's love interest, Marty Sterling. If he could have more fun with his role as the nice-butflawed nephrologist, we'd have more fun with this play.

Judie Rosati as Janie's irrepressible, button-cute mother is riot. If actress Shirley MacLaine had a sister who was an elf, that sister would be the red-haired Rosati. Her smile seems energetic enough to light up a small town. Certainly, it Actually, they almost complete an able supporting cast. Toby Booker plays a confused Russian cab driver with an endearing, oafish charm. And a cop. And a macho moving man. And a jog-ger. And a waiter. And much of it he plays between scenes, along with fellow scene changer and utterly delightful mime-dancer, Barbie Amann. This production may be one of the very few you'll ever see in which the scene changes are every bit as entertaining (sometimes, even more so) as the play itself. Cleverly choreographed and set to pop tunes that reflect the previous scene, they're charmingly executed by both players. None of it ever seems intrusive, although "Isn't it Romantic" contains around a dozen such changes model/singer Donovan Leitch admits that his band Nancy Boy is a prime cal music listeners, and fellow bands, who look for superhate a group.

Singers' sons form band with a fashionable focus

Every time I had a modeling ob, I would push the band. That's when we started working out our whole style and everything. Then photographs started floating around but nobody had heard any music yet. That's not a good thing. (But the promotion) made us prime candidates for people looking for any excuse to kind of hate somebody,"

Leitch's plan worked. Nancy Boy has a head start on other fledgling bands struggling to get noticed by the press, radio, and fans. He bolstered his band's image through runway assignments, photos in the social pages of fashion magazines, and television appearances. The British music magazine Melody Maker calls them the "Godfather of RoMo" or the romantic mod sound.

Mulholland' lacks flair

It's designed to make you ecall the classic post-war detecmovies, new and improved the added frankness of the 90s. But "Mulholland Falls" only serves to remind you what Holly-wood knew then and still knows now: even with a stellar cast, set design, and cinematography, your movie can still be a turkey.
You see, "Mulholland Falls" sn't about a captivating story. It's about lighting and smoking tigarettes, wearing fedoras and baggy suits, and conducting investigations in impossibly long sedans. It's about the scenery, decor, and detail that were naturally in the films of the 1940s. Max (Nick Nolte) leads the legendary "Hat Squad," an elite Los Angeles police unit that works outside of established legal boundaries. Whenever a dirty job needs doing, they search without warrants, rough up suspects, even kill a scum bag or two with virtually no questions asked. Their favorite dumping ground is the steep hillside below Mulholland Drive, the Falls of the

When the corpse of a beautiful woman turns up in the desert, Max turns white. We soon discover (in gold-hued flashback) that Max had an affair with her without telling his wife. The resulting investigation reveals that the woman's next door neighbor took movies of her dallying which have now disap-

Somehow linked to all this is the head of the Atomic Energy Commission, a weasand general played by John Malkovich. He too had an affair with the woman, was also filmed, and is andeus to retrieve movies that place him near the time of the murder.

As any mystery fan knows, neriminating pictures are the favorite trump cards of a good gumshoe and Max is no exception. He hides the film canister beneath the boards in his basement so well that even the FBI an't find it.

Crime drama: Katherine (Melanie Griffith) and Max Hoover (Nick Nolte) are a happily married couple until the details surrounding Max's murder investigation force them into facing a hidden truth in MGM's "Mulholland Falls.'

Even the action scenes drag, with a climax so lame that we're sure some twist must follow. It never does.

Lee Tamahori (his first film was the acclaimed "Once Were Warriors") has absolutely no concept of pacing. We linger on the lighting of every single cigarette. Those big cars take way too long to park. Even the action scenes drag, with a climax so lame that we're sure some twist must follow. It never does.

Roman Polanski's "Chinatown" is only one of the movies that "Mulholland Falls" pays tribute to (rips off) in atmosphere, story, and even music. The only thing more predictable than the script is the score with its lush blend of strings and piano.

I always imagined that the hard-boiled dialogue of the old "film noirs" must have been a hoot for Bogart and Mitchum. No such luck for Melanie Griffith, Chazz Palminteri, Bruce Dern, and Treat Williams, talented actors saddled with thankless, sometimes embarassing, lines.

Probably the biggest tease was watching Chris Penn and Michael Madsen (old pals from "Reservoir Dogs"), resigned here to playing second-fiddle to Notte's bulldog-faced Max. He wouldn't be so hard to take if we hadn't seen him play this part a hundred times before.

Even at its worst, "Mulholland Falls" allows like-minded viewers to bask in the long-gone clothing and decor of the early 1950s. With the mountains of good detective fiction to work with, it's amazing that the filmmakers couldn't come up with something better than this.

'The Dead of Winter' clever murder mystery

"The Dead of Winter," by Paula Gosling (The Mysterious Press, $21.95, 328 pp.).

"Do you suppose the earth's center of gravity has shifted . . . and Blackwater. Bay is now . . .

where new York used to be and as a result we're all being adversely influenced by Manhattan's stars?'

A concerned character voices this concept early on in this cleverly-titled, usually clever murder mystery - and it's no wonder. Unpleasant events are occurring with increasing frequency in Michigan's fictional Blackwater Bay area, disturbing the usual calm enough to make inhabitants question if the planet itself hasn't gone a bit wobbly.

Begin with the frosty morning when ice fisherman Frank Nixey discovers a fish-ravaged corpse bobbing up through a hole in the ice "like a dumpling in the stew." Bad enough in itself, but this corpse has a hole in its head, too.

This is the third violent death to occur in the resort area recently, and things are going to grow considerably worse (we soon learn) before they start to get better. By the time our tale ends, two other bodies will turn up, neither of which will make a pretty picture on discovery. A model high school student and Homecoming Queen will disappear under highly-mysterious circumstances. And, this being January and Michigan, wouldn't you just know that a monumental blizzard will play a major role in the chilling drama?

At the center of the story is a home economics teacher, Jess Gibbons, determined to turn over a new leaf in her humdrum life as the story begins; the amiable hard-working sheriff, Matt Gabriel (add a Southern accent, and he could be Sheriff Andy Taylor); his sidekick, George Putnam ("energetic as a puppy and with about the same amount of . . . sense"); Jess' long-time friend, Tom Brady; and Jason Phillips, a kind of odd-man-out who teaches chemistry at the local high school. (Jess shares her sprawling lakeshore home with Tom, Jason, and several other teachers, by the way).

A large supporting cast enlivens the action and adventure. And, though no player major or minor - is especially three-dimensional, just about every single one of them is colorful and engaging in his or her

There's an Ice Festival before our story is over, and an almostlethal Ski-doo race, and Jess falls through the ice, but not before she falls for the gorgeous new veterinarian in town, and not before we begin to suspect a possible mob connection in all the trouble, and not before the roof literally collapses at the local high school, and a couple of house cats start acting peculiar, and some "designer drugs" show up. And then there's a whole bunch of other stuff afoot. The requisite suspicious characters make an appearance, along with the handful of red herrings. Oh, and Jess finishes the artful quilt she's making for an international show coming up in Houston.

Along with her careful detail (right down to the minutiae on Jess' imaginative quilt design), Gosling's pacing is as crisp as a glittery January morning.

Some readers may feel at odds

a character who might seem to deserve a better fate. This part of the novel complicates even further a sufficiently-knotty plot, and with it, a kind of terrible tragedy seems suddenly to spill over into something that felt essentially much lighter, slightly blurring the grand design of this particular story.

Correction

In last Thursday's Observer sports sections, it was reported that Redford Catholic Central's Justin Hoener had signed to attend and play basketball at Schoolcraft College. It further stated that Hoener's roll at CC this past season was as a sixth man.

That is inaccurate. Hoener started 20 of 24 games and led the team in assists (4.0 a game). He was also second among the Shamrocks in scoring (14.1 points) and rebounding (nearly five per game).

CC finished 19-5. Hoener was a three-year varsity player for the Shamrocks, although he missed most of his junior season after breaking

Aggressive Rocks stun Chiefs, 3-0

Expect the unexpected? Always, but more so when Canton tangles with Salem. And Wednesday's result, between two of the state's premier teams, was certainly unexpected.

BY C.J. RISAK SPORTS EDITOR

Taking 'em to school.

That's what Plymouth Salem's soccer team did to its greatest rival, Plymouth Canton, last night taught them a lesson.

No other way to put it when one team dominates play like the Rocks did in posting their 3-0 victory.

Canton never truly had a chance. The Chiefs, coming off their biggest win of the season - a 1-0 triumph over Livonia Churchill Monday - had few good scoring chances until the final 10 minutes, when most of Salem's regulars were on the bench. But the Rocks got their shots in, a lesson they probably learned themselves just a few days earlier. Last Saturday, Troy Athens put on a ferocious attack from the start, scoring twice in the first 15 minutes and cruising to a 2-0 victory over Salem. The Rocks were only too happy to pass the lesson along to Canton. After all, the Chiefs hadn't dealt much with goal-scoring - going into -Wednesday's game, they had posted eight-straight shutouts.

That streak came quickly to an end with a pair of "hustle goals," as Salem coach Doug Landefeld referred to them.

Jodi Coyle figured on both. Coyle, a junior, scored the first with an assist from Jenny Storm, squeezing the ball past Canton keeper Sarah Mia Sarkesian made it 2-0 in Salem's favor before the half was half over, with an assist from Coyle.

The hard-charging, aggressive style was a bit different for Salem actually, it looked more like a Canton tactic. But it was something Landefeld wanted to see.

"We talked before the game," he said, referring to a conversation he had with his offensive players, "and I told them, 'When you're in the final third (of the field), you've just got to go hard to goal.' "Today, all three goals were hustle goals. It's nice to see that."

Janel Davis concluded the scoring eight minutes into the second half powering a cross from Mari Hoff over Warnke.

"We never got out of our defensive mode," said Canton coach Don Smith. "They played well. I don't know if they wanted it more than we did, but we just didn't have enough to take it away from them."

Canton fell to 8-2, while Salem improved to 9-2.

The result may nullify the gains Canton made in the Western Lakes Activities Association title race with Monday's win over Churchill. If the Western Division ends in a three way tie - Canton, Churchill and Northville each have a loss Churchill would have the upper hand in the tiebreaker.

Canton still in title hunt

BY C.J. RISAK SPORTS EDITOR

What's that adage about turnaround and fair play?

Livonia Churchill's girls soccer team should know it by now. The Chargers received a lesson in it Monday at Plymouth Canton, when the Chiefs scored the game's only goal with 10:47 remaining to hand Churchill its first Western Division loss.

A year ago, it was the Chargers who clipped the Chiefs by the same 1-0 margin. That win all but assured them of the divisional crown and a berth in the Western Lakes Activities Association's championship match. Two years ago it was Canton that beat Churchill 1-0 to advance to the

On Monday the stakes were the manding position. A win or a tie would have made the Chargers almost uncatchable in the division. They had already beaten Northville, the team that had defeated Canton in the Chiefs' season-opener.

A win or a tie over Canton would make Churchill either 3-0 or 2-0-1 in divisional play, with Northville and Canton both having one loss. With only Walled Lake Western and Farmington Harrison, two of the league's weakest teams, left on their divisional schedule, the Chargers would be in.

But it was not to be. Canton's constant pressing finally forced mistakes by the Charger defense and presented the Chiefs with some scoring opportunities.

The initial opening came with just under 12 minutes left in the match on a pass misjudged by the Churchill defenders. Jenny Parviainen broke toward the ball, but Charger keeper Crystal Wright beat her to it and with a sliding kick save cleared it out of danger.

However, the Chiefs were relentless. They quickly reformed their Picking it up: Canton's Jenny Parviainen outmanuevers the Churchill defense, not an easy task. But the Chiefs did it well enough to gain a major regular-season victory.

Crusaders start NAIA title quest

BY C.J. RISAK SPORTS EDITOR

The snow hasn't even stopped falling and it's playoff time already.

I'm not talking Red Wings hockey here. I mean college softball - in particular Madonna University, which opens the defense of its NAIA Sectional Tournament title this afternoon.

The Crusaders, 26-12 through Tuesday, will host the College of Mount St. Joseph's (from Cincinnati) in a best-of-three series, starting today with the first game at 2 p.m. at Massey Field in Plymouth.

The two teams haven't met this season - Mount St. Joseph's had a 17-6 record through Monday - but last year, Madonna eliminated St. Joseph's in the Sectional final.

The bady Crusaders are in the proper form for a tournament run. Since a 2-0 loss to Northwood University April 13, they have won 10

Salem, Harrison and CC should contend for Observerland honors

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

The running-event finals for the Observerland Boys Track Relays start at 7 p.m. Saturday, but fans might want to arrive four hours earlier to truly appreciate the 26th annual event.

That's when the day begins for two of the meet's more versatile performers - Livonia Franklin junior Paul Terek and Westland John Glenn senior Jason Baker.

These two would feel just as comfortable running with a baton as they do with a pole.

Westland John Glenn will attempt to defend its team championship at Livonia Churchill with strong challenges expected from Plymouth Salem, Farmington Hills Harrison and Detroit Catholic Central.

The Shamrocks' odds seem long with distance standout Joe Leo, the state Class A team cross country champion and key relay runner, still out with a sore knee.

Southfield Lathrup and its versatile standout Everett Edgar also are among the 17 teams competing. The field events start at 3:30 p.m. followed by the running preliminar ies at 6:30 and the finals at 7 Admission is $3.

Terek has already cleared an eye popping 15-feet in the pole vault, by far the best in Observerland, and ranks second in the long jump (20 feet, 2 1/2 inches) and 400 meters

He also can run among good com pany in the 100 dash, recording personal best time of 11.3.

Baker has cleared 12-0 in the pole vault, which in most years would rank as Observerland's best. He als ranks second in the high jump (clearing 6-4 1/2) behind Farmington Hills Harrison's Doug Brodoski (6-5) and is among the top five in the 11 hurdles (15.7) and 300 hurdles

"I saw him at the indoor meet at Eastern Michigan and there was no fear in him coming down that runway," CC coach Tony Magni said. "He's not afraid to get upside down and go after it."

A state qualifier as a sophomore, Terek's goal is to win a state champioinship and break the state finals mark of 16- 1/2, set in 1993 by Midland Dow's Steve Hill.

Terek carries a 3.86 grade point average and scored a 27 on his ACT test, which seems to make him a contradiction when it comes to describing his craft.

You almost have to be stupid to do it," said Terek, a bronze medalist in the pole vault at the Junior Olympics last summer. "When you think about it, you bend a pole that could break at any time, you go upside down and hope you don't hit the bar and land on a mat. I don't think of myself as exceptional, I just do what they want me to do.'

As good as he is in the pole vault, clearing 20 feet in the long jump was even more remarkable considering it was his only attempt this year.

Could the discus and shot put be far behind? Maybe his sister, ChristyTerek, a Franklin girls shot put and discus thrower, could teach him.

"He's a heck of a team leader, encourages all his teammates,' Franklin coach Dale Lee said. We had a ninth grade meet today at Livonia Stevenson and there's Paul up in the stands, cheering them on. If we get the weather to cooperate, he'll start knocking on 16 feet."

"Baker has been scoring in three, four events and is a very valuable member," Glenn coach Jess Shough said. "The key last year was we had a lot of depth spread all the way through. The field and sprints will be our strength again. There are a lot of good distance teams and that's not our strength."

"John Glenn appears real strong in the field. Salem is real strong in the distance, CC looks real strong, too, in the shot put and distance, and Northville could surprise some teams. They're real strong in the 400 and 800 areas."

The play had been fairly even until the Canton breakthrough, with each side getting a few scoring chances. Solid keeping by both Wright and Canton's Sarah Warnke - who recorded her eighth-straight shutout - kept the game score-

"We played much better in the second half than in the first," said Smith. "We controlled play better. In the first half, we didn't control the glay at all.'

In the end, though, they controlled the outcome.

Also, coach Jerry Abraham has shown no reluctance to rotate his four pitchers. Shanna Streng continues to be the staff ace; she has a 12-7 record with 18 starts, 121 1/3 innings pitched and 53 strikeouts, all team highs. Her earned run average of 2.89 is second to Janell Leschinger, who's 7-1 with a 2.01 ERA

The rest of the mound crew: Angie Van Doorn (4-4, 2.89 ERA) and Lynda Weichel (3-0, 3.18 ERA). All of them have at least 28 innings of work this season.

Last weekend, the Crusaders won three-of-four games, sweeping Heidelberg College Sunday12-4 and 14-8 and splitting with Siena Heights Saturday, winning 1-0 and losing 5-4.

In Sunday's wins over Heidelberg, Madonna collected 16 hits in the second game and 17 in the first. Jamie Heins led the attack in the second game, going 4-for-4 with a home run and five runs batted in.

Jeanie Baxter (from Redford St. Agatha) added three hits and three RBI, Jennifer Pinter had two hits and an RBI, Dawn Shaffer and Michelle Birchmeier (Redford Thurston) each had two hits, and Stacey Piontkowski had a two-run double.

In the opener, everyone contributed. Pinter and Baxter each drove home three runs. Pinter going 3-for-3 and Baxter getting two hits. Madonna got its only run of two hits. Rocks rebound DISCOUNT TIRE CO. with 4-1 victory

When is a loss a win? Well, hardly ever, but a defeat by the top-ranked girls soccer team in the state comes close.

Plymouth Salem rebounded from a 2-0 loss Saturday at Troy Athens by recording a 4-1 victory Monday over Livonia Franklin.

It set up a midweek showdown with neighborhood rival Plymouth Canton.

"In between Athens and Canton, the last thing you want to do is play (at) Livonia Franklin in the rain," coach Doug Landefeld said. "We were lethargic. Our concentration was a little rusty.

"It was difficult. I don't like not having a practice between games. We were a little rusty."

Mia Sarkesian and Mari Hoff scored a pair of early goals for Salem, 8-2, while Sarah Ouellette countered late in the half for Franklin.

Hoff scored with 15 minutes to play to up the Rock lead to 3-1 and Julie Katcherian scored with about eight minutes to "I think this is the first game where we haven't played well," Landefeld said. "It's disappointing, considering some games we've had.

"But Franklin hustled and played well. I'm happy to get out of there with a win.

Saturday, Salem was stunned early by Troy Athens' ferocious attack before lifting the level of its play.

Athens scored twice in the first 10 minutes of the game then held off Salem's counterattacks. "The rest of the game, we had as many if not more scoring chances as they did," Landefeld said. "We were shell-shocked. We haven't faced that much pres-

"Athens was all over the place. We turned the ball over. But we adjusted to the pressure pretty well. And against Canton, they'll put pressure on us."

Salem had a pair of good scoring opportunities at Athens, one in each half, and Landefeld felt "if either one would have gone in, it would have given us a little more confidence.

"You never enjoy losing. But if you lose to the No. 1 team in the state, I guess you could call it a good thing."

Good, anyway, if you feel you can turn it to your benefit.

It would have been appropriate for Madonna University's baseball team to celebrate the completion of its pair of doubleheaders with St. Francis (Ill.) with an ice cream sundae. Say, a banana split.

The Crusaders divided the four games, winning the second of each doubleheader after the losing the first. They finished the weekend 24-19.

Mark Serra's fine relief work, 4 2/3 innings of two-hit ball that raised his record to 3-1, in the second game Sunday helped

Madonna record a 10-6 victory. Saturday's win went to Jason

MADONNA

Dubey, 2-1, who gave up a run in the only inning he worked but was the beneficiary when Madonna scored twice in the bottom of the eighth to take a 6-5

Madonna scored eight in the first to grease the way to Sunday's win and Serra came on when starter Eric Butler was touched for three runs in the second and third innings.

Pete Quinn had a pair of singles and drove in two runs while Aaron Shrewsbury drove in two with a single plus a sacrifice fly. Dan Taylor went 3-for-3 with a double and an RBI.

Madonna was held to seven hits in the first game Sunday, a 4-1 loss that dropped starter Joel Hillebrand to 4-3

Quinn had a pair of hits, one his 10th double of the season, while Shrewsbury accounted for the Crusaders' lone run with his eighth home run. Taylor and Delano Voletti also had two hits.

Starter Craig Benedict was removed in the sixth inning of the second game Saturday. Joe Fabris and Eric Crawford came in to start the eighth.

Left fielder Tim Kasubowski went 3-for-4 and needed just a single to hit for the cycle. His only RBI came on his second home run.

Catcher Voletti drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly plus a two-run home run. First baseman Jeff Gutt had a pair of hits and drove in a run.

Four errors contributed to Madonna's defeat in Saturday's opener. Starter Dan Pydyn, 4-2, was nursing a 2-1 lead into the seventh but couldn't get that final out as St. Francis erupted which were charged to reliever

Madonna came back with two in the bottom of the seventh but it wasn't enough

Taylor and voletti each had a pair of hits for the Crusaders while Kurt Wilczynski, Quinn and pinch-hitter Daryl Rocho drove in the runs.

·Butler's five wins leads Madonna pitchers. Hillebrand and Pydyn each had four. Butler and Benedict shared the team strikeout lead with 29, three more than Hillebrand. Benedict led the staff in innings, 50, while Butler had 48 2/3. Butler and Benedict each

Fabris had a staff-low ERA of 0.00. Butler's was 2.22, Hillebrand's was 2.46, Dubey 2.52, Serra 2.81, Pydyn 2.95 and Benedict 3.96. Fabris' four saves led the Crusaders swollen creek rolled hurriedly

The morning sunshine was playing peek-a-boo from behind some threatening gray clouds, but offered just enough sporadic warmth to keep the chill from consuming me.

I'd been at it for close to an hour and was about ready to move along when I felt a familiar tug at the other end of my line. I quickly set the hook and a battle

A passer-by on a mountain bike was talking to a fellow angler just down stream from me where the creek curves out near a dirt road. I really didn't want to attract any unnecessary attention, but was finding it hard to contain my excitement.

The battling brown trout had emerged from the shadows of his catch a glimpse and realize I was fighting a worthy opponent.

The perfect remedy

Suffering from a bad case of Cabin Fever for the past few weeks, Saturday's trout opener offered the perfect remedy, even though it was unseasonably cold. The ideal outing would have taken me up to the AuSable, Pere Marquette, Manistee of any one of northern Michigan's other famed trout streams, but unfortunately time would not allow for such a trip.

So here I was, bundled up in thermal underwear, wool socks, flannel shirt and rubber boots, wading the chilly waters of Paint Creek, near Lake Orion.

cover long enough for me to into the middle of the stream and made a run for the other shoreline and a maze of tangled branches.

Running out of line, he circled back toward me and gave one last ferocious effort to shake the hook before succumbing to the green mesh of my landing net.

It was a beautiful 14.75-inch brown, and taken right here in southeastern Michigan.

"(Paint Creek) offers a good opportunity to go trout fishing, and there are some nice fish in here," said Lake Orion's Bill Cullum, who has been fishing the creek for the past six years.

"If you can't get up north this is great. The only down side is all the people.'

Join the crowd

True, the 14-mile long creek, which originates at Lake Orion and runs southeasterly into Rochester where it empties into the Clinton River, was overflowing with anglers Saturday, but the fishing was pretty productive as well. "I've run into a lot of people today and most of them had fish," Cullum said. "If it gets any more crowded, the DNR might have to think about a daily permit system or something. Some of these holes have already been fished pretty hard. Despite the crowds and competition for the "hot holes," Cullum was able to land a couple nice brown trout before his day had

So did Oxford's Richard Warren, who netted three fish before going home to "dry out."

"I think this opportunity is excellent, but I'm not seeing as many fish as in the past," said Warren. "Paint Creek is convenient if you can't go up north, but I think it gets a little too much pressure. It's too bad there aren't several more Paint Creeks around."

Taking stock

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources annually stocks brown trout in several southeastern Michigan rivers to provide a spring and summer trout fishery in rivers and streams that get too warm to sustain a naturally reproducing population.

Paint Creek annually receives between 5,000-6,000 brown trout. Kearsley Creek near Ortonville receives 3,500-4,000, Johnson Creek in Wayne County gets 3,500-3,600 and the Huron River at Proud Lake receives about 1.200.

Upwards of 2,000 rainbow trout are also stocked in the Huron River, thanks this year to the financial support of the Livonia-based Michigan Fly Fishing

Additionally, 18,000-20,000 brown trout are stocked in the Black River near Port Huron, and the St. Clair River receives 46,000-50,000 browns.

Granted, the banks of southeastern Michigan's trout streams are often crowded with anglers, but the opportunity to battle a feisty brown trout does exist. But be prepared to work a little for your catch.

"The one thing is that you really have to work for them," added Warren. "The trout is a wary fish, and you have to wade against the current, which is sometimes tough."

"Plus, there's very thick brush along the shore. I got my foot hooked on a log this morning and fell in up to my shoulders. It's not like fishing for bass or blue gill in a big lake, but it makes it worth while if you catch

Funeral home offers seminar

As part of its commitment to families in the Canton area, McCabe Funeral Home is sponsoring "New Morning: Coming to Terms with Grief," 7 p.m. Thurs-day, May 9, at the Canton Public Library, 1200 S. Canton Center Rd. Cathy Clough, director of bereavement services for Arbor Hospice, will facilitate the free seminar.

"We're in a position to see how devastating it can be to lose one," said Kevin McCabe, chief executive officer of McCabe Funeral Homes. "It's important to us to provide relief to families during these tough times when we can.

"Helping people work through grief after the death of a loved one is the most rewarding part of my job," said Clough, who is a widow of 12 years. "Our programs have helped hundreds of people over the years."

Clough will explain common symptoms and effects of grief, and she will explain how people can continue to remember the deceased as they learn to live without them.

Clough developed the Arbor Hospice bereavement program more than 10 years ago.

Mac says get to work for consumers months ago at the request of this newspaper (very smart people these editors are) and I must tell you that it is still exciting each time I sit down with my Macintosh. I say "Mac," I haven't thought about what I should write for this column, let me look into your screen for a few minutes and something will come to mind. And then it happens, and away I go on the keyboard as fast as my thoughts can race.

Mac says - you know how busy it is in the service industry from May through September, why don't you tell consumers why and how they can save money by preventing needless service on major home appliances. I say, good idea, let's go.

1. Consumers are already bringing their dehumidifiers to my shop for repairs or calling me to ask why the front coil is covered with snow when they recently turned it on. Folks, the dehumidifier is your basement will not work properly during temperatures and

Make sure the components are dry before you plug it in.

2. Spring and summer storms bring to our homes and neighborhoods some weird electrical happenings. Power surges are the most frequent, which cause serious damage to out appliances and electronic equipment. Purchase a surge protector from your local hardware store and install it where you think necessary. You might even think about shutting off the main circuit breaker during power outages and turn it back on after power has been restored in the surrounding area.

3. Refrigerators which ran find all winter will begin to break down in large numbers and people will wait days for service because the service industry is busy cleaning dirty condensers. Get a long handle brush from your hardware store and using your crevice tool, clean the condenser, under and in back of the refrigerator. This is

4. The clothes dryer vent line needs to be taken completely off and cleaned out. The hinges on the flapper outside building an alarming amount of nests this year and you can guess where. 5. The hoses to the washer should be checked where the metal pieces are at the ends. Any corrosion appearance means the need for new hoses. A ruptured hose to a clothes washer can cause a ton of damage to a home. Stop by my store sometime and I will show you what a hose looks like that caused thousands of dollars in damage to a home. While you're checking the hoses, adjust the temperature to the washer equals 100 degrees. The whites will be

LET'S REMODEL

Charles erised?

The Observer/THURSDAY, MAY 2, 1996

the work

Be careful when choosing a remodeler

As dependable at the coming of spring, so is the information put out to the public on selecting a remodeling contractor. And although many associations and businesses attempt to educate the homeowner on their responsibility in their selections, we unfortunately get calls after it is too late. As NARI celebrates National Home Improvement Month in May we find that it is still necessary (at least twice each year) to publish our suggestions on how to go about selecting a remodeling contractor.

The process of finding a qualified and professional contractor does not need to be difficult. by following some basic guidelines you will be prepared to make an informed decision that best suits your needs.

· Employ a contractor with an established business. Local firms can be checked through past customers. They are tax-paying members of your community and are compelled to perform satisfactory work for local homeowners in order for their business to survive.

· Ask to see the contractor's state builder's license. If you have questions you can contact the state licensing departments to ensure they meet all requirements

• Ask to see a copy of the contractor's certificate of insurance. You can also call his or her insurance agency to verify coverage for worker's compensation and personal liability insurance. To be ask specific questions such as: "Did the imum requirements you can contact the Department of Labor at 517-322-1195.

•Contact the Better Business Bureau or government Consumer Affairs Office to ensure there is no adverse file on

·Check credentials with professional organizations. If the contractor has an affiliation with a professional organization and uses an acronym such as C.R., C.K.D. C.B.D. or C.G.R. after their names, contact the association to be sure they are a member and in fact have been given these credentials which can certify that the contractor has met certain criteria for experience, commitment to ethical conduct and pro-

Was the job site kept neat?" "Did the contractor stay in touch throughout the project?" "Were the fine details finished in a timely manner?" and Would you use this contractor again without hesitation?" Ask to see the finished project if possible. Make sure you are satisfied with the quality of

•Do not blindly accept the lowest bid. If you elect to solicit bids from several different contractors, be sure they are bidding on the same scope and quality of work. Discuss variation in bids and beware of any bid that is substantially lower than the others. Low bids could suggest poor workmanship or inferior materials. Make sure that you have a thorough understanding of all materials to be used.

•Get it is writing. A well-written contract is essential when doing remodeling. Although there are many issues to be covered in a contract be sure the following is included:

1. Contractor's name, address, phone number and license numbers.

2. Details of what the contractor will and will not do _ such as protection of your household goods and daily

3. Specifications for all materials to be used, including size, color, model, brand name and product.

4. Approximate start date and substantial completion date. 5. Financial terms including total

6. Changes to the original agreement should be in writing and signed by both

If you would like more information on contracts contact our office. Be sure to protect your investment by selecting a reputable contractor and avoiding a disappointment or mistakes that you could end up paying for.

But if you're speaking of "modern times" as in the modernism style, the reaction in real life is different from that in Chaplin's reel life. People are comfortable with modernism and its wide variety, from the lava lamp to art deco pieces to sleek furniture designs.

"I'm sure everybody has something (of modernism) in the house," said interior designer Tom Verwest.

Modernism style is free of ornamentation. It runs the whole gamut of furnishings, including furniture, wallpaper, glass, ceramics and silver; and is considered more affordable and accessible than other styles. Famous names are among its designers -- such as Frank Lloyd Wright, Louis Comfort Tiffany, Salvador Dali and Gustav Stickley, founder of the American arts and crafts move-

Modernism has the ability for people to live with it easily, said nterior designer David Weiss.

"It's nice and clean and sleek looking," he said. "It's a classic." "It's really really very timeless," said interior designer Linda Golden.

"People relate to it."

Verwest's living room is an attractive arrangement of modernism elements. It features purple Arne Jacobsen egg chairs and pillows with a vibrant Alexander Girard design. It can be mixed with any style in any room, Verwest said.

"Good design is good design." One of Golden's showrooms

Charles Eames and Eero Saarinen were two young architects with the Cranbook Academy of Art when they won top honors in the Organic Design in Home Furnishings competition in the Museum of Modern Art in New York in 1940. Their designs set the tone for style in the 1950s and 1960s.

English reformists William Morris and John Ruskin were among those at the end of the 19th century who founded workshops and guilds to elevate the status of the worker and the work. They had been appalled at the dehumanization of the worker by the machine. Their reaction led to the decorative arts

Stickley introduced these ideas in the United States. The movement was called art nouveau in France and was more fanciful. Tiffany brought art

The Detroit Area Art Deco Society, a private, not-for-profit corporation, is going strong in its 10th year. Quakers, followers that found solace, contentment, productivity, and a fervor for god in their cloistered communal settings. Here in these enclaves, where all men and women lived like brothers and sisters, not husbands and wives - seems a funny setting for the perfect Mother's Day, but

Kentucky is beautiful this time of year - a few weeks ahead of us in greenery - it's warmth, blue grass, dogwoods, redbuds, and stone fences seem to go on forever Besides the beauty the historic component, and the fabulous Shaker antique collection, guests experience actual lodging in this museum. Three meals a day are served in the 19th century Trustees' house - family

The Shaker breakfast buffet includes an assortment of fruit juices, fresh fruits, warmed fruit compotes, cold cereals, grits, scrambled eggs, sausage patties, bacon, hot biscuits and squash muffins right out of the oven. All of the recipes are traditional. If going to Shaker Town in Pleasant Hills sounds like a great weekend getaway, call (606) 734-5411 to make your reservations. If going for a seven hour drive each way in the car with your kids is not your idea of the ideal Mother's Day, how about a gourmet Shaker breakfast in bed. It can be prepared by dad or the kids - it can even be done for a special aunt or beloved grandma.

Prepare a tray or lap board by covering it with a simple white place mat or make a place mat and decorate it with the Shaker Tree of Live. You could use markers, paints or construction paper. Add to your bed tray a clean, crisp, white linen napkin. As the Shakers used simplicity as their foundation. keep the decorating down to a mini-

You can virtually garden on computer

BY JACK GLADDEN STAFF WRITER

You won't be able to smell the roses, but if you have a computer and a modem, you can tour the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, stroll through classic gardens in Poland or Australia or just about any place else in the world.

You can browse through seed catalogs, download plans for a new deck, get software that will let you plan your own garden, consult gardening encyclope-dias or check in with the local extension service to get the latest bulletins on garden pests and expected weather conditions in your area.

All you need is an Internet account and a sizeable amount of patience. There's a world of information _ make that a World Wide Web of information available on the Internet for home gardeners and professional farmers alike. And most of it is free for the taking.

Just why gardening is one of the most popular topics on the Internet is something of a mystery. When you're staring at a computer screen eight hours a days, when do you find time to go grub in the dirt? Or vice versa? Nevertheless, gardening sites abound on the 'net. One of the best places to start is The Virtual Garden, a commercial site sponsored by media giant Time-Warner Inc. You can access it at http://pathfinder.com. When you connect, just follow the roadsigns until you find The Virtual Garden. Along the way, you can browse through Southern Liv-Burpee, one of the oldest companies ing and a host of other publications.

At The Virtual Garden, you can access a complete gardening encyclopedia, plant index and a projects site where you can download plans for a variety of home and garden projects. Many of the files at this site are in Adobe Acrobat (PDF) format, so you'll need the Acrobat Reader in order to view them. Fortunately, you can down-load it directly from the site, and it's Another site with many links for gardeners is the GardenWeb, address http://www.gardenweb.com/. From here you can take virtual tours of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden and other botanic gardens around the world. You can enter the GardenWeb Forums and ask questions of other gardeners or provide ome answers of your own. The Cyber-Plantsman is an on-line magazine for gardeners. In The Garden Exchange area, you can post requests for unusual seeds or plants or search the database to see what is available.

The Garden Gate, address http://www.prairienet.org/ag/garden/, offers links to many other gardening sites plus reviews of gardening software and some gardening shareware programs that you can download. For people who like browsing through seed catalogs on a snowy winter night, there

Stokes, another veteran seed company, has a site at http://www.stokestropicals.com/. As the address implies, it deals with tropical plants only. (For the experienced net surfer, this site is Netscape 2.0 enhanced and uses frames. It's sharp. And Stokes is apparently planning some other sites.)

These are among the more unusual cultivars of the more than 32,000 named varieties of the daylily. This lavender daylily was developed in 1970, and is still sought after for its bluish halo or eye. Grandmother's lamp is an art glass copy

Frank:

Dear Georgia:

The time around the turn of the century nurtured creativity, spawned many new art forms and allowed for the expansion of numerous others. It was truly the Golden Age for decorative arts, especially glass making. Some of the most notable and expensive of the manufacturers of artistic glass lamp shades are known names like Tiffany, Handel and Pairpoint.

However, not everyone could afford those wares and there were many imitators and manufacturers of less costly art glass products. Your lamp falls into the latter category.

In the most desirable situations, these glass lampshades and bases are signed, the shade often on the inside of the glass or on the interior metal rim and the base along the outer edge or underneath and to a person decided that your lamp looks very much like the products made at a little-known company called the Jefferson Glass Company, which produced handpainted, molded (not blown) glass shades in the early 20th century in Follansbee, W.Va. It sometimes signed its lamp bases with a fired on signature, "Jefferson Lamp Co.," in script. Unfired thin line script signatures are reported to be forgeries.

We feel that the metal on your lamp is spelter rather than bronze, both because of its appearance in the photo and because these lesser quality lamp manufacturers didn't usually use bronze as it was more costly. If all is in original and good condition, we feel that your lamp, being American, antique and very decorative, could be found in a retail shop priced somewhere around $1,200 to $1,600.

You've got to keep it clean if you want to sell a house

Sellers can have a difficult mechanically." time looking at their houses in an objective way. Ingrained lifestyles can cause problems when it comes to putting a house on the market. Ignorance isn't bliss.

BY DOUG FUNKE

Prospects sometimes make a decision to buy even though the size of the house or its floor plan isn't exactly what they want.

Purchasers have a more difficult time getting beyond filth, clutter, odors and unkempt exteriors, Realtors say.

The Westland couple still recalls the shock a decade ago of opening the door of the built-in oven during a house-hunting excursion and finding the appliance filled with dirty dishes.

Something like that kind of makes purchasers wonder what major problems really lurk below the surface, said Barbara Schultz, a Realtor with Century 21 Today in Farmington

"If you walk into a gorgeous house, you assume everything is fine," she said. "If it's a mess inside, you assume anything could be wrong in Livonia, recalled taking a prospect into a house that had ashtrays in every room and a mountain of clothes strewn about one of the children's

"There was nowhere to walk," Bailey said. "They turned around and we walked out. We still talk about it."

Then there was the almost perfect house that wasn't as described by Tom Nolan, a Realtor with Cranbrook

Associates in Bloomfield Hills. "I have a client who loved the house, who should have bought it,' Nolan said. "They couldn't get beyond the smell of animals. On paper, it looked like the right house for them." Realtors are almost unanimous in what really bugs buyers. "Probably houses that aren't picked up, aren't tidy, aren't clean," said Ann much furniture, too many knickknacks so you can't see the house." "I've been in houses where the dog has gotten into garbage, where the people aren't home and they've left dirty, personal things all over the house," Schultz said.

"I tell people you cannot get the same price for your house your neighbor got if it's a pigsty," Bailey said. I've had some with holes in the wall, doors off hinges.

Part of the problem is people get used to clutter and therefore lose sight of the forest for the trees.

'I had one seller whose kids' toys were still outside cluttering the yard in the middle of winter," Bailey said. "When I pointed that out to him, he said it wasn't important. I say it is to the buyer."

Schultz echoed that sentiment.

"People who live in houses don't smell it," she said. "Some of them don't see clutter, either."

Agents, shouldn't hesitate to call for a major clean-up effort if needed, Stanzel said.

"Wash the windows. Get the car-pet cleaned. Paint. Put furniture in the basement or store it. Make the house light and bright," she said.

"One of the most important things curb appeal. "If the lawn hasn't been kept up and the hedges are overgrown, that's a big turnoff," he said. "A few dollars worth of geraniums and annual flowers can go a long way." Sellers, themselves, can become a pain in the posterior if they decide to cast themselves as major stars in the sales production, Schultz said; There's a fine line between a helpful presence and hovering solicitousness. The seller that follows you around talking constantly so you can't even think - that's a real turnoff," Schultza said. "Sometimes, people just want to get out of there."

The potential to become overbear ing, and overzealous is one reason. sellers are often counseled to hire an agent to represent their property and to take a hike if the marketing strate. gy includes open houses.

Siblings disagree about summer property

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q: I have a number of brothers and sisters who are in their 60s and 70s. We all share the use of a summer home together. Two of the six of us have our names on the deed, with the understanding that all of us would be equal owners. We have all shared the expenses and bills for many years. Three of the six would like to sell our their share of the property and three would like to hang onto it. How can we handle this to avoid any unnecessary property gains tax. It seems that there must be a way to transfer ownership to the three interested people. Do we need to first get the names of all six names on the title to the property before anything else

A: You have raised a number of issues regarding the ramifications of your present legal situation, including the income tax ramifications, the state tax ramifications and real estate ramifications. First, if only two of the six siblings own the property, arrangements will have to be made to either transfer the property to those six persons with proper ownership interest or, prerferably, to reach an agreement between the six, independent of the ownership of the property as to the division of proceeds from that property. Perhaps you have run a partnership, in effect, over the years, while two have been the designated representatives of the partnership. You will need to get an attorney to advise you as to the best way of handling the matter, as the interest of some of the siblings appears to be different from the others as the best means of cleaning up the situation. Obviously, you want to insure that everyone who claims an interest to the property agrees to the arrangement, whatever it may be, with respect to the disposition of the property, so that there are no "dangling" claims that may be asserted against some subsequent purchaser in the future. You are best advised to seek a competent real estate lawyer.

Q: I have a building and hired a general contractor. The general contractor hired a subcontractor who was injured when a platform built by the general contractor collapsed at the work site. The subcontractor is claiming that we are liable for his injury because we controlled the work environment. We did not control the general contractor's work or his activities. We have notified our insurance carrier, but are wondering whether you think we have any liability.

A: Generally, property owners are not liable for a general contractor's negligence unless the property owner retains control of the work done and the contractor's activities. The test is whether the property owner has retained such a right of supervision that the contractor is not free to work his own way. If in fact you can establish by the evidence that you did not retain control over the specifications of the work and how the work was to be completed, chances are you will not have the liability.

Once you're ready to apply for a mortgage, there are a number of factors for you to consider in your search for a mortgage lender. What are the current interest rates? Can you "lock in" that rate and, if so, for how long? What is the cost of obtaining that rate lock? What are "points" for your mortgage? (One point is equal to 1 percent of the loan amount.) Can you pay fewer points in exchange for a higher interest rate? What other fees will be assessed at the time of application or closing?

Don't forget to consider convenience in selecting your mortgage company. Will the lender meet with you when and where you want? How frequently will you need to meet? Will your application be submitted immediately or does your lender have to carry your application back to his or her office? How long will it take for your application to be processed?

If you are a first-time home buyer or are concerned about being able to afford a home, ask about special lending programs that may be available. Affordable mortgage programs are available to reduce the upfront costs associated with mortgages and make the dream of home ownership a make one payment a month, or 12 payments a year. However, you almost always have the option to make additional principal payments that will shorten the amount of time it takes to fully repay your mortgage loan. In fact, most lenders have a place on the payment card marked "additional principal payments." If you make just one extra monthly payment each year, you would pay off your mortgage years ahead of schedule and save a considerable amount in interest payments. For those who want to set up a more frequent payment schedule when applying for a mortgage, you should know that some lenders offer biweekly payment plans that require a payment every other week, or 26, sometimes 27 payments a year. You may find that making payments more often is a better match with your paychecks. It will also save you a considerable amount of interest over the life of your loan and help pay off your mort-

Large garage, windows highlight models

Palmer Lake Estates, an S.R. Jacobson residential community in Wixom, entices buyers with a small-town atmosphere, easy freeway access to all compass points and boating privileges on a private lake nearby.

Prices start at $208,000 for a two story of 2,045 square feet and rise to $234,000 for a two story of 2,778 square feet, each containing four bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths

About a third of the 36 lots in the subdivision off Wixom Road north of Charms, have been

"We're aiming at people who want to live in an area of lakes at affordable prices and value," said Scott Jacobson, builder. "We're selling what we think is an exceptional value."

"One of the attractions is Loon Lake, 78 acres, an all-sports lake," said Colette Scholten, marketing director. "The three-car garage is another big draw in this price range.

"We call it a two-car, one boat garage," Jacobson added.

"We have great street appearance with side-entry garages and maintenance-free exteriors.' Scholten said.

"You have recreational facilities, campgrounds, lakes," Jacobson said. "If you study the area, there's so much to do. You don't have to travel far."

Loon Lake is within walking distance. Proud Lake and Kensington Metropark are an easy drive. The I-96/Wixom interchange is four miles away. "We have people coming from Detroit, working in Flint and Ann Arbor," Jacobson said. "If you look at those three locations, you're right in the middle.' He identified the typical buyer as a young professional person with one or two children. But that's not all. "I have empty-nesters who buy because they want the space and very young families because there's a lot of house for the money," said Ida Lucas, sales rep at Palmer Lake Estates.

"They like the big kitchens and family room," Lucas said. "They like the openness. Scott puts a lot of windows in his houses. Even on dull days it's bright."

Five floor plans are available. Standard features in the base price of all include three-car garage, oven and dishwasher. fireplace, first floor laundry and basement.

Two models have been constructed. Each features a twostory foyer and a large planter ledge over a closet at the front

The Muirfield, the largest plan, showcases a formal dining room, living room, kitchen/nook and family room on the main floor. The kitchen sink on an island has been oriented with a view to the family room

The upstairs master has a separate tub and shower, dual sink vanity and walk-in closet.

Three other bedrooms and a second full bath also are upstairs

Base price is $234,000.

The Canterbury has the same basic layout except the kitchen has a large island and the master has two walk-in closets.

A bedroom upstairs has been designed with an open loft-like appearance to be used as an exercise room, office, entertainment center. The room could also be totally enclosed as a fourth bedroom at no extra Muirfield plan: This model at Palmer Lake Estates features a dining room, living room and great room on the main floor, four bedrooms upstairs.

The Canterbury, about 500 square feet smaller than the Muirfield, carries a price of $219,000.

The Fairfax, a story-and-a-half of 2,130 square feet, places the master on the main floor, two bedrooms and a full bath upstairs. Cost is $217,000.

Palmer Lake Estates is serviced by city sewers and a community water well. It's within the Walled Lake school boundaries. Sidewalks aren't planned.

The property tax rate is about $30 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $219,000 house would pay $3,285 the first year.

Jim and Juli Simpson, along with children David, Carrie and Tim, have purchased a Canterbury. They were the first to buy in the sub.

"We wanted the same size house on smaller property in the Wixom area," Jim said. "We saw the sign, drove in, walked in the first model and it was the perfect floor plan. We did the numbers. Now, all we have to do is sell our house and move in.

"There were a couple of things we wanted them to change. They were very accommodating, Simpson said. "It all flows together. We like that three-car garage, too. Now, we have some-

Steve and Janis Winters, along with kids Steven, Ashley and Jordan, are moving two blocks away into a Muirfield.

"The basic attraction is a larger home," Steve said. "We didn't want to lose our neighbors. We didn't want to lose lake access. It's a great location with freeway access, close to shopping centers.

I'm only five minutes from work, my wife 15.

We like the larger bedrooms, especially the master suite, Winters said. "We also wanted a family room."

We thought the condition would eventually clear up but it hasn't. The pump rebuilder claims that oil from the broken pump contaminated our water, and can offer no solutions to the problem.

Is there anything we can do short of drilling a new well to get clean water?

A: It sounds as if you have a "weak well" rather than a "strong well." In the latter case, the water level doesn't rise and fall and, consequently, if oil does

(AP) - Q: About two years get into the well, it floats on top of the water and doesn't get down to the pump. In a weak well, the water level rises and falls frequently and so the well components become coated with

> The oil condition has lasted for two years (an excessively long time, when you consider that there is only about a halfcup of oil in the pump) and, under normal use, it should take only a few weeks to flush out the

It's possible that the oil is from a leak in a buried fuel oil tank. I suggest you have a water sample tested to determine if the contamination is fuel oil or lubricating oil. If it's fuel oil, you'll have to find and repair the leaking

If it's pump oil, you should check further to see if the water is contaminated with PCBs, a known carcinogen. Apparently, some well pump motors made prior to the mid-1970s had starting capacitors that were immersed in an oil that contained PCBs. Possibly your old pump was one of these Removing oil from the well is difficult and not a do-it-yourself job. It should be handled by a professional pump installer or well driller.

Q: My fibershower enclosure has become dull and film-coated. I've been told not to use an abrasive cleaner. What do you suggest?

A: Abrasive

cleaners or cleaning pads can scratch fiberglass finishes so they are difficult or impossible to repair. We've had good luck with a cleaning product called "Gel-Gloss," which is available at most supermarkets. Once clean, you can make the fiberglass easier to clean, and more stain resistant with an application of automotive-type wax or polish.

Bear in mind, however, that the floors of shower base units or the bathtub bottom may become slippery if waxed, so only wax the surfaces you do not walk or stand on.

If mineral buildup is heavy, consider doing something about your water quality. Water-treatment experts can install filters in water lines to remove lime, rust or other potential stains. Installing a water softener will usually end stains from most water-borne minerals.

If soap scum is the problem, soft water will leave less soap residue. Also, consider using an alternative brand of soap that may produce less soap film buildup.
