City hikes recreation fees

The city of Plymouth wants to hike its recreation fees to non-residents. That means Plymouth Township residents who use the services will be paying for the privilege.

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

A hefty recreation fee increase is proposed for Plymouth Township residents and others who live outside the city of Plymouth.

City commissioners on May 23 agreed to include the fee increase for all non-city residents in the proposed city budget. They're scheduled to vote on the budget June 3.

City Manager Steve Walters said the fee increase for non residents "will offset what had been subsidized in the past with city property taxes."

"At this point it does not have a lot of impact on existing programs, if they're already registered, but it will have an impact on fall registrations and June soccer registrations," Walters said.

Soccer registration is proposed to be $40 for city residents and $60 for non-residents.

City officials propose to raise $180,000 in budget year 1995-96 by raising the fees charged to non-residents, Walters said.

"One third of the participation in our recreation program is outside the city," Walters said, adding, "We're still putting $112,000 of property tax subsidy into the pro-

In considering the move earlier, some officials said they were hesitant because a fee hike could cause some not to register _ and the city could lose money.

But at the May 23 meeting, Walters said, "The commissioners were in agreement they had to do this even if there was some adverse impact in the short run."

"We can't afford to be providing for whole community's recreation program when we in the city make up just 20 percent of the taxpaying base," he said.

Walters said city officials now face having to pay for a street repair program, or asking taxpayers to

County puts park millage on Aug. 6 ballot

BY BOB NEEDHAM STAFF WRITER

Wayne County will make improvements in several local parks – and play a role in running some city of Detroit facilities – if voters OK a quartermill tax increase on the Aug. 6 ballot.

On a 9-3 vote Tuesday, the Wayne County Commission approved ballot language for a new five-year tax dedicated to parks, on the condition that the county continue to appropriate parks money from its general fund at the current level of $2.78 million. If approved, the new levy would generate nearly three times that amount – an estimated $7.92 million next year.

The cost to homeowners would be 25 cents a year per $1,000 of taxable property value.

The ballot language, developed by the Ed McNamara administration, specifies that some of the money would be spent at Hines Park, Elizabeth Park in Trenton, Fort Wayne in Detroit and Chandler Park in Detroit. The last two are owned by the city; the county does not own any park facilities in Detroit.

Deputy County Executive Michael Duggan suggested the commission quickly approve a detailed plan for use of the money if the tax passes. A tentative list includes improvements to the Holliday Nature Preserve and Nankin Mills in Westland; Bell Creek and Lola Valley parks in Redford; Lower Rouge Park in Canton, Westland, Wayne and Inkster; Cross Winds Marsh in Sumpter

Music to flow on Plymouth streets

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

A new early evening music series downtown on Fridays opens June 7 with Motown session flutist Larry Nozero performed on Marvin Gaye's "What's Going On" and other Motown classics and served as orchestra director of the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island.

For music fans, the "Freebee Friday" downtown music series adds to the already growing list of music events. In recent years, that list has included the weekly Music in the Park series geared to kids and the three-day Plymouth Music Celebration.

The new series is paid for by the Downtown Development Authority. "I think the idea is to try to create some traffic downtown on the weekends at night," said DDA Chairman Lee Harrison. "We did it twice in the fall and it had a real positive response."

Fred Sanderson, owner of the Plymouth Guitar Gallery on Penniman, has taken advantage of his contacts made on the road as a jazz musician in booking the music series.

Parents, teachers concerned about class size

BY M.B. DILLON

It's been three years since a group of parents organized to try to help lower class size in Plymouth-Canton schools, but the problem is far from solved. In fact, growing numbers of parents and teachers are concerned about staff being spread too thin.

"We realize we have one pocket and many hands reaching in," but kindergartners, first-graders and high school students for that matter can't really advocate for themselves, said Lucy French of the Class-Size Action Partner-

French and Judy Mardigian of CAP presented to the Board of Education a plan to save $767,000, enough to hire 17 teachers. CAP studied the proposed 1996-97 budget and suggested rebidding dental coverage, and implementing energy management and drug cost management programs to save

CAP said the district could save $300,000 by providing $600 bonuses only to teachers at the top step of the salary schedule $299,400). "Teachers not at the are going to have the status top step would also receive a salary increase through a step increase of approximately 2.5 percent," said Mardigian.

An added $170,000 could be realized by reducing the projected increase in the district's rainy day fund, she added.

We should review in detail the requests for increases in athletics and PCEP Marching Band, Social Studies budgets," Mardigian said. "Athletics already has $900,000. If it's safety equipment, we can't do anything about it. But if not, they are 499 teachers, for a total of going to get something, and we > Teachers at Canton and Salem high schools also are asking administration to do something about burgeoning classrooms.

Plymouth-Canton Educational Superintendent Charles Little a few weeks ago, expressing concern about "many course sections with initial class sizes of 35-37 students" next year - an increase of up to eight students.

Signed by 26 teachers, the letter said: "Class sizes of these proportions are unprecedented and compromise our efforts to promote high quality teaching and learning at every level. It's not that we can't survive under these conditions, but this community needs opportunity resources that aim for excellence, not mere survival." Social studies teachers learned that PCEP has been allocated two additional teachers who are being assigned to math and sci-

"The decision to cut social studies staff and increase class size can only undermine the Park's social studies staff wrote spirit of cooperation and willingness to change exemplified by our department," the teachers said. "Retaining quality people and supporting their development is an essential feature of all successful organizations. As a result, the loss of staff is more than a personal tragedy, it undermines the motivation and morale of all employees. This is especially true when there are no compelling reasons to support Little's response was less than encouraging. "You should know that I have on several occasions verbalized my concern about the continual cut in programs," he wrote. "Our school district is in a very poor fiscal position. We simply do not have enough funds to operate a school district at an expectation level commensurate with what our staff, parents, community and board might expect. Obviously, the board and I will be working very hard to fine tune every fiscal area

Close Up government teachers foresee the added problem of not having computers for the projected enrollment of 66. There are a total of 56 computers, 28 in each lab.

Class sizes in science are projected to average well under 30 students, the staff noted.

The situation will be even tougher given the new state social studies proficiency test and its emphasis on writing.

'We've done everything possible to restructure the curriculum. But with 34 kids in a class, how much writing do you think we're going to do?" asked social studies teacher Deb Teichman. "We'll still do everything we can, but it's very burdensome to have so many kids."

Plymouth community paid tribute to its war dead with a well-attended Memorial Day parade Mon-

Marchers, bands and floats made their way from Wing and Main streets north to Central Middle School, where Plymouth-Canton school board president David Artley addressed the crowd.

Veterans remembered their fallen comrades with a rifle salute and wreath-laying ceremony at the new Plymouth Veterans Memorial Park in front of the school. Taking part were Plymouth Township American Legion Beasley-Zalesny Post 112, its Auxiliary Unit 112 and Sons of The American Legion Squadron 112; the American Legion Post 391 of Plymouth; Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter 528; VFW Post of Canton; and new participant AMVETS Post 171 of Westland.

Floats and military vehicles representing various branches of the armed forces also took part.

Marchers included government officials, Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts, Brownies, Girl Scouts, and bands from Central Middle School, East Middle School and Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

A Plymouth Police Department escort, followed by a motorcade of public service vehicles from the city, Plymouth Township and Canton Township led the parade.

John Pappas of Plymouth, this year's Memorial Day parade chairman, said "with the change in the parade route — along with the new Veterans Park having been approved and the participation of new veterans and patriotic groups — we were very excited about the parade and ceremonies." Pappas is the junior vice commander of American Legion Post 112.

Wilcox, who served in the Navy for 32 years reaching the rank of captain — wore his white cofficer's uniform and his Navy dress shoes, issued

"Most people didn't even know I was in the Navy," said Wilcox, who received a commendation award, the Navy's highest honor. "I enjoyed my 32 years. My only regret is that I didn't join sooner." Stationed in Norfolk; the Philippines; Hawaii; and throughout the Pacific in World War II, Wilcox worked in purchasing. "I spent a million dollars a, day, and didn't have enough for dinner," joked Wilcox, who during the Vietnam War did classified work at the Pentagon. Wilcox was surprised to see at the parade "some of my enlisted men from my reserve unit 50 years ago on Grosse Ile. They appeared here, each one; holding a "Wilcox VR 732" squadron banner.

"When you get to the end, you look back to see what you've done. I'm satisfied. I had a good time," said Wilcox.

The only downside was seeing too little of the parade. "I was in the second car. So I didn't get to see it," he said.

approve a street millage. "It's just not acceptable to go to city taxpayers and ask for a street millage while they're contributing two-thirds of a mill to subsidize non-city participation in our recreation program.

Walters said officials hope Plymouth Township will contribute to the recreation program. But Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy said this is unlikely.

"I know that the city is facing increasing costs, they keep going up and they have to address that in ways they see fit," she said.

McCarthy said she has been approached by city officials about the township contributing to the recreation program. "My situation is we provide a basic level of services. I don't have a budget for recreation," she said.

"Whether or not that's something we can look at in the future, that may be," she said. McCarthy noted that at Hilltop Golf Course in Plymouth Township, city residents pay the same lower resident rate as township residents. McCarthy said she hasn't considered having city residents pay higher non-resident rates.

Walters said city officials may continue to ask Plymouth Township to contribute to the recreation program, adding this has been done for years in greater Northville.

"We're only going to be asking them to do what all the neighboring communities are doing for their residents," Walters said.

Costume day

Looking backward: Students at Plymouth Canton High School found out first hand what it was to live in the past and how actors cope with wearing historical costumes. Students in the ninth grade dressed in Elizabethan-era clothing to study Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." Julie Espinoza of Meadowbrook Theatre visted the classes and brought the costumes. She talked about the art of costume design and the theater. Modeling costumes were Cindy Collins, Jenni Duzubay, Chris Ferraro, Liz Gable, Lark Haunert, Garth Heilman, Maureen Kearney, Kathy Bak, Cheri Patterson, Michon Andrews, Kristy Peters, Sara may, Chad Faust, Jason Bedoun, Latoya Allen and Gene Diamond.

Priest marks 50th year

On Sunday, June 9, the parishioners of St. Valentine Church in Redford Township will salute their former pastor, Monsignor William Sherzer, who is celebrating 50 years in the priesthood.

A reception in honor of Sherzer's jubilee will follow 11 a.m. Mass in the parish hall. Born March 10, 1920 in Oswego, N.Y., Sherzer is in residence at St. Owen's in Birming-Sherzer served as an assistant at the Detroit parishes of St. Theresa (1946-51) and Ephiphany (1951-54).

He was a faculty member at Sacred Heart Seminary from 1954-69, where he was held in high esteem. Sherzer commanded such respect that many of his colleagues contend he should have been named a bishop.

Sherzer was appointed pastor of St. Mary's of Redford parish in Detroit (1969-77). He served as the vicar of the Grand River Vicariate from 1976-78, and coadjutor from 1977 to 1978 of St. Valentine Parish Republicans on the Wayne County Commission introduced a plan to limit terms of elected county officials Tuesday.

Led by Thaddeus McCotter of Livonia, the commission's three Republicans proposed limits of eight years in office for county commissioners, the county executive, sheriff, prosecuting attorney, clerk, treasurer, and register of deeds. The limits would not include special circumstances like partial terms.

Tuesday was the deadline to place proposals on the Aug. 6 ballot, which McCotter sought for his plan. Instead, commissioners sent it to their legislative research committee for consider-

"What this would do is allow the people of the county to make up their own minds," McCotter said in introducing the plan. "I would be for it," he added. Commissioner William O'Neil, D-Allen Park, said he opposes term limits but not giving voters their say. However, he said it would be more appropriate for the November general election.

"In the primary all we're really getting out of the deal is the opinion of the few," he said. Very few people go to the polls in the primary.'

McCotter - whose district includes most of Livonia, Plymouth, and Plymouth Township said he hoped to get the proposals on the August ballot because it will include fewer races than the November general election. However, he said he does not expect the Democratdominated commission to put it before voters at all. "I cannot envision my colleagues putting term limits on the ballot," he said after the meeting. "They didn't even want to consider it. In addition to O'Neil, however, Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, said after the meeting she favors putting term limits before voters, even though she thinks they're a bad idea.

"I think the people should have the opportunity to decide. I have no problem putting things on the ballot," she said. Beard's district also includes Garden

McCotter said he will pursue the plan at the commission level, but at the same time plans to recommend to term-limits activists that they begin a citizen petition drive to get the ballot questions before voters that way. He added that he will provide them with the ballot wording he developed to help their

"There are people out there who want to do a citizen initiative," McCotter said. "I believe they will be successful ... Why should county government try to impede putting it on the ballot?"

Beard said term limits means a significant loss in experience and institutional memory, and added the democratic process makes them unnecessary

The voters have term limits in their hands every time they go to vote. I think that's the ultimate term limit ... I've never understood why people want to limit their own ability to vote."

McCotter's term-limits plan would take effect Jan. 1, with no retroactivity. It covers three separate proposals: •To limit county commissioners to four full, two-year terms.

•To limit the county executive to two full, four-year terms. •To limit the sheriff, prosecuting attorney, county clerk, treasurer, and register of deeds to two full, four-year terms The proposals went to committee on a voice vote. Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford and part of Livonia, was absent.

I 'I cannot envision my colleagues putting term limits on the ballot. They didn't even want to consider it.'

Move is an opportunity

For the first time in recent memory, the Plymouth District Library will be closed for nearly

But instead of seeing the closing from June 4-20 as a problem, Plymouth readers should see it as an opportunity to visit nearby libraries and possibly discover something new

And there are plenty of libraries close to Plymouth. Livonia, Canton, Ann Arbor, Northville and Detroit all sport good libraries.

Here's a list of some of the closest ones:

Canton's Public Library on Canton Center Road near Cherry Hill is worth a visit. It's open 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday during the school year.

Livonia's Civic Center Library at Five Mile and Farmington roads is worth a visit, just to see the building. Its hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. It's closed on Sunday for the summer

Patrons can also check out the Northville Public Library at 215 W. Main. It's open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday. It's closed on Sunday for the summer.

■Visiting nearby libraries will also give Plymouth residents a chance to appreciate the work being done on the Plymouth library.

Visiting nearby libraries will also give Plymouth residents a chance to appreciate the work being done on the Plymouth library. Voters approved a millage to rebuild a new building on the current Main Street site. But meanwhile, library patrons will spend about two years using the Farmer Jack site on Main Street south of Wing, while the work is being done.

We're sure the temporary library at the Farmer Jack site will work fine for patrons on a short-term basis. But using it and having to travel to nearby communities to use other libraries will make residents realize the value of having a good local library.

June 4. A temporary site in the former Farmer Jack store on Main near Wing will serve as a library while the library is renovated.

The people involved in the annual Rouge Rescue cleanup of our neighborhood river are not the ones who use it as a substitute landfill. They're not the ones who - through foolishness, ignorance or simple malice - junk up the Rouge River and its tributaries with broken furniture, old firewood and bald tires.

But in less obvious ways, everyone in this area has contributed to the degraded condition of the Rouge, through the careless use of lawn fertilizer, by being tied in to a combined sewer system, or by living with a failed septic field. Even if we were completely innocent concerning the river, though, we would still have a responsibility to help clean it up.

As residents of the Rouge River Watershed, we need to realize that the river is part of our community, and we need to care for it. If we don't do it, it won't get done. And that, in large part, is where Rouge Rescue comes in.

After more than a decade of annual cleanups, the worst of the job is over. The rescue effort has been a resounding success, in many cases solving problems which had existed for years. New ones always crop up, though, from both human and natural causes. Someone tosses a grocery cart into the river, or a storm brings down a dead tree limb. The river requires constant care, and Rouge Rescue is an ideal way to give it.

Of course, the rescue alone won't solve all the river's problems; it's not designed to do so. But it's a critical component in the overall cleanup/recovery strategy which has begun to make considerable headway.

Our thanks and appreciation go out to the organizers and volunteers of Rouge Rescue. The cleanup is this Saturday; we strongly encourage participation. It's our river, remember, and it's up to us to take care of it.

your reporter Kevin Brown, called my home to request an interview. Realizing that he was only "doing his job," and feeling that talking about my terrible loss might actually help my distressed mental and emotional state, I agreed to be interviewed.

I would like to inform you that Mr. Brown showed great sensitivity and compassion during the time spent in my home. His genuine concern for the feelings of myself and all my family members present at that time were very apparent. The photographer who accompanied him also showed the same genuine feelings while doing his job.

Both your reporter and photographer should be commended for their actions during this very sensitive situation, as their actions were far above what one often thinks of the news media's handling of face-to-face interviews. Please thank them both for myself and my family.

Thank you, WSDP!

On behalf of everyone at Community Hospice Services, but most of all our patients and their families, we would like to publicly express our sincere gratitude to the entire crew at the WSDP 88.1 student radio station at Plymouth-Canton Centennial Park.

Due to their very successful auction this month, which was supported by the Plymouth/Canton community, the students selected Community Hospice Services as the recipient of a $550 donation. As the hometown hospice in the Plymouth area, we are very honored to have the talented young people at the radio station, as well as the station manager Bill Keith, recognize and validate the work we do caring for the incurably ill and their families. Our hats are off to everyone associated with WSDP 88.1 FM!

A matter of trust

At the school board meeting of May 20 I learned that the members of the administration team who are currently negotiating a new contract with the teacher's union all have wives or daughters who are teachers in the Plymouth-Canton school district. This presents an inherent conflict of interest and is

In the past, the Plymouth-Canton school board has used third party negotiators, just as the police and fire departments do. We should return to this system.

Over the past two years I have spoken to many people in the community, urging them to support the school millages and have been dismayed at the widespread mistrust people feel toward the school board and the administration. Resolving this issue is a necessary step toward regaining that trust. The school board members should remember that they have a fiduciary responsibility to the district and to the public.

Death penalty urged

In May 1995, I thought about the Michigan Militia at breakfast on a beautiful Sunday morning while in a restaurant on a corner in Wayne city in Wayne County, Michigan.

Well, "Mad Anthony" Wayne was not mad at all. In fact, he was a true patriot and general in the war with England that freed America and its citizens.

After the pathology of pus overflowed from Michigan to Oklahoma City and children died. parents died, grandparents, and great-grandparents died - all innocent of any personal wrong and in no way involved with the bomber(s) ...

Training helps ensure everyone gets access

Access. In order to do anything, you must have access. It's a universal reality.

In some cases, accessibility is a convenience or luxury. We now have 24-hour access to our bank accounts thanks to the clever people who invented ATMs. The Internet gives those with a personal computer access to a world of information. Some $250,000 gave access to a private breakfast with House Speaker Newt Gingrich and Sen. Majority Leader Bob Dole at a Republican fund-raiser.

For people with disabilities, the simplest forms of accessibility are necessity. Some are obvious, like ramps. Others are not so obvious, like specific measurements for door clearance space. Lack of accessibility can be a form of isolation and even discrimination.

To standardize building codes and to protect people with disabilities from discrimination, laws like Michigan's barrier-free design law and the federal Americans with Disabilities Act were passed.

These laws provide the answers to a lot of common questions. Does a restaurant have to have a large bathroom stall for wheelchair users? Does a building need to have an elevator? Is the local mall required to have a telephone device for the deaf?

The answers to questions like these are spelled out by barrier-free design codes and ADA guidelines. The law takes into account a building's age, renovations, how much accommodations for accessibility would cost in relation to the financial resources of a business, and more considerations.

In general, new construction must conform to all these specifications. Older buildings need to be made accessible to the "maximum extent feasible" where "readily achievable" and as not to cause an "undue burden" on the owners.

It is the responsibility of those who issue building permits to see to it that GUEST COLUMNIST

all barrier-free design cases and ADA guidelines are followed. It is not uncommon for the local building inspector to miss a transgression. It is common for older buildings to be out of compliance. Building inspectors have plenty to keep them busy with new construction so it is unlikely that would find the time to investigate existing facilities unless for some reason it was brought to their attention.

Those who need accessibility need to be watchdogs for it. To this end, Michigan Protection and Advocacy has created the Michigan Access Project. Project trainings are going on in counties all over the state.

The trainings, which last about five hours, will cover Titles II and III or ADA, which pertain to accessibility, and Michigan's barrier-free design law. Afterward, participants will know how to be sure that a place meets accessibility requirements. And they'll know what to do if it doesn't.

To participate in the Michigan Access Project, contact Carolyn Fowler of Michigan Protection and Advocacy at 800-288-0261.

Many Republican congressional members want to repeal ADA as an unfunded mandate. Yet most accessibility accommodations are inexpensive and many are useful to those without disabilities. Consider the automatic door during the holiday season, or curb cuts when bicycling. One friend tells me how women prefer the larger wheelchair accessible stall. to the smaller standard stalls in public restrooms. And I know that people who aren't fortunate enough to have television in their bathroom sometimes activate the closed captioning option on their TV when nature won't wait for a commercial.

Conquering accessibility obstacles has led to technological advances like voice-controlled computers. Who knows what the future will bring? We could all end up in a very accessible world with driverless vehicles, automated housekeepers and anti-gravity belts, just like the Jetsons.

(There will be a disability dialogue for people living in western Wayne County 7-9 p.m. June 12 in Livonia. Anyone interested in discussing disability issues is welcome. For more information, call Scott Heinzman at (313) 462-2423 after 11 a.m.)

Scott Heinzman is active in advocacy groups for people with disabilities. He lives in Livonia.

The mid-term exam will come after Oct. 1, the start of the new fiscal year. Let us ponder the Senate Fiscal Agency's analysis of Gov. John Engler's proposed budget for fiscal 1997:

"Charter Schools Performance Study - $300,000.

"The Governor recommends a general fund increase of $300,000 to evaluate the performance of Public School

PSAs, or charter schools, are in the second year in Michigan. Two-thirds were private schools that got a piece of paper from Central Michigan University's charter mill.

There is little to no hard evidence to suggest charter schools are doing any better or worse than real public schools, where people elect the school board and vote on bond issues.

There is no evidence to suggest that charter school graduates do better in the outside world; no testimony from employers that their grads are better on the job; no methodical accounts from universities to inform us their graduates are better or worse prepared for higher education.

And yet their adherents propose to "celebrate" May 29 — this year! — at a Charter Schools Expo in Lansing. "Celebrate" is their word, or at least CMU's. I quote from its news release:

"Michigan's 43 public charter schools will celebrate their varied programs in the first annual Michigan Charter School Expo on May 29 in

TIM RICHARD

"The event is sponsored by the Michigan Resource Center for Charter Schools and co-sponsored by the Michigan Association of Public School Academies and the Michigan Department of Education. The Resource Center is located on the campus of Central Michigan University and serves all Michigan charter schools.

"The response by the public charter schools has been very enthusiastic," said Mamie Thorns, coordinator of the Expo. "They can't wait to come to Lansing and tell about the exciting contributions they're making and the pride they feel as pioneers in this growing area of public education."

Some questions come to mind:

· Why is the state Department of Education supporting this? It hasn't organized an exposition for real public schools. Do you suppose the malignant influence of State Board of Education President Clark Durant, whose previous experience was in private schools, came to bear?

• By what stretch of the ego can a new phenomenon - admittedly in the "pioneer" stage - stage an exposition, which is usually to demonstrate accomplishments?

The answer, I suspect, is that the goal of charter school supporters has been realized. It is not to offer a brand of specialized education for the global economy. It is to get state money with almost no strings attached.

By now, everyone who has seriously studied charter schools has seen the TV news film about the New York City district whose superintendent allowed local teachers to set up specialized academies for the performing arts, sciences, engineering and the like. Existing schools and tenured teachers were allowed to specialize. Parents and kids could take their pick. There were waiting lines.

Those were real charter schools, not private schools lining up for a new brand of welfare with no state standards attached.

Michigan is tearing up its standards and replacing them with "suggested" benchmarks. If there are no standards, parents can't compare one school to another.

And that's the whole idea. Charter school supporters don't want comparison. They want an exposition. Before the mid-term exam. At state expense.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of regional events.

Southeast Michigan might be poised for a fantastic future

Two events last week will shape the future of this region for many, many years.

 Wayne County and Northwest Airlines finally cut the deal to build a giant new terminal at Metro Airport.

 General Motors bought the Renaissance Center and plans to use it as a showpiece corporate headquarters in downtown Detroit.

The new terminal, featuring a new $786 million midfield terminal and 5,000-space parking deck, puts Southeastern Michigan firmly into the world of international travel and transport.

Dan Washburn, Northwest's lead voice in negotiations with Deputy County Executive Mike Duggan, said it right: "Detroit has become Northwest Airlines' most important international launching pad in North America. ... When our customers of the future come to the United States from Europe, Japan, China, Mexico and Canada, most will arrive in Detroit, and their port of entry will be an impressive and dignified new terminal building."

As someone who has done my share of flying in and out of dowdy old Metro, I sure hope Washburn is right. Maybe Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara should visit the new Delta hub in Cincinnati to see what "impressive and dignified" really means before he puts the shovel in the ground. Anything less would be a real shame, not to mention a waste of money.

As to GM and Ren Cen, two things are clear to me:

First, the General Motor Corp. that did the deal in something under two months is decidedly not the organization that used to take years to decide to repaint an executive bathroom in the old New Center Building. Maybe things really are different at GM.

Second, even though there's a lot of cynical talk about how GM can use the Ren Cen move as a smokescreen to hide wholesale relocation to the Auburn Hills Tech Center, I don't believe it. I think GM has chosen to put its footprint right in the middle of Detroit, thereby giving the effort to revitalize the center city a giant boost.

By the time the year 2000 rolls around, I wouldn't be surprised to see a Southeastern Michigan in which:

· Detroit, previously the (sink)hole in the center of the doughnut, is beginning to come back as a real city and an asset to the region.

· A world-class airport is linking the region easily and quickly to the rest of the world. · Giant corporations are taking advantage of transportation and technology to gain enormous competitive advantage and stimulate economic growth. • World-class cultural activities (assuming for a moment that baseball and football games qualify as "culture") are running the gamut from the newly-renovated Detroit Opera House to the music and theater in Ann Arbor.

• Outstanding universities - the U of M in Ann Arbor, Michigan State in East Lansing, Oakland in Rochester and Wayne State in Detroit - are marking the four corners of a region that, per capita, has more education, research and economic development potential than anywhere in the country.

For years I've been impressed by - and more than a bit jealous of - North Carolina's Research Triangle, the region between Chapel Hill, Raleigh and Durham. It has three pretty good universities, some seriously good corporations, lots of research and technology transfer, admirable economic growth. And a terrific PR

But I believe that as of now, all the essential factors are present for southeastern Michigan to challenge - heck, exceed! - the Research Trian-

All we need now is a catch name. Somehow, "Research Quadrilateral" doesn't quite do it.

Proper answer for Joe's 'why'

I was driving along the highway a few days ago when 4-year-old Joe pointed out the window and said, "Look at the water tower. It's big. I wish I could climb all the way up and see everything. That'd be fun."

I looked. I didn't think it'd be fun. It's too high up and I'd be afraid of falling. And a policeman would probably arrest me anyway for climbing water towers, I'm sure there's some sort of rule about that.

We drive along. And I started thinking. I realized, suddenly and silently, that I didn't know beans about water towers. But it didn't matter. I wasn't in the market to buy a water tower unit at the time. I wasn't taking class in "Modern Odd Structures" and studying the water tower unit at the time. I was just ignorant and no one needed to know it. But then the inevitable happened; Joe asked why, why are there water towers. He wanted to know. I had to say something.

"Hmmmm," I began. "Let's see," I added. And then, "Water towers store water. In the tank. Way up high. And then water comes back down through pipes and goes in the ground.

I thought to myself, how dumb. Why make water go against gravity like that to get from the ground up to the tower and use all that energy when it'll just be coming back dewn again real soon anyway. That's not storing water, that's just making water do busy work.

I didn't get it. My explanation was, at best, lame; it didn't hold water

No. 5 proves to be a lifesaver

■ Kathie Tuyo has many things to be grateful for. She has her health and her family and her special delight, two-monthold daughter Michelle who helped save her then pregnant mother's life.

BY DIANE GALE

Kathie Tuyo takes a special delight in her daughter's Michelle's thick, dark hair. It's a sign that the chemotherapy she had while she was pregnant didn't affect the baby.

Sitting in the den of her Livonia home, Tuyo's hair is also thick and has grown back after the cancer treatments made her bald. Her face bursts into smiles as she looks at the baby she fought to have and who likely saved her life.

Tuyo was 42 when she went to her gynecologist, because she suspected she was pregnant. That's when the doctor found a lump in her breast. She had a mammogram and biopsy A week later, she learned she had breast cancer.

The cancer had grown to two centimeters even though only 18 months earlier she had a mammogram that showed nothing. So, Tuyo believes that if she hadn't done to the gynecologist, the breast cancer probably wouldn't have been detected until it was much larger and more life-threatening.

"We attribute Michelle to probably saving my life," Tuyo said. "I'm sure I wouldn't have found it

Meanwhile, Tuyo did everything she could to preserve Michelle's life. Doctors told her to abort the baby.

Special delight:Twomonth-old Michelle Tuyo yawns as if to say "I've heard this story before" as her mother Kathie recounts how her fifth pregnancy proved to be a lifesaver. Diagnosed with breast cancer early on in her pregnancy, Tuyo decided to have chemotherapy and keep her baby, both with positive results.

remove the breast, and get radiation. But as a Catholic, she knew the church said it was wrong to abort. And even though she follows her religion faithfully, the decision wasn't that easy.

My mother was an officer in the Huron County Right to Life group and it was something that was really ingrained in us," she

Suddenly, philosophical questions about abortion became real. Tuyo and her husband, Gerald, had to think about the entire family

"I would be leaving my husband with four children and possibly one more," Tuyo said. "But the church was firm on it. There was no way I could have an abortion. We had to consider it. I would never have thought we would struggle, because my views on abortion is that it is terribly wrong.

Difficult decision

She decided to continue the pregnancy and fight the cancer. Tuyo turned to William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. She was 11 weeks pregnant when she had the mastectomy. Chemotherapy treatments began five weeks later.

"My mother died of lung cancer and I wanted to do what I thought would take care of it," Tuyo said. "Truthfully, I cried once during it all. My husband took part in all the decisions, but he said that ultimately it was mine to make. We had four children at home and we tried not to make the cancer a focus of our lives. But once we made the decision to go ahead with the pregnancy, it was made.

Naturally, she worried about the risks to the baby and possible birth defects. Tuyo said the doctors weren't sure what kind of problems would result from the baby being exposed to chemotherapy or whether the baby would be exposed at all. "It used to be done, frankly, not at all 10-15 years ago," said her physician, Dr. David Decker of Beaumont Hospital. But cases of pregnant women who received chemotherapy and delivered healthy babies have began making medical history.

In the past 18 months, Beaumont has treated three pregnant women with chemotherapy, Decker said. The procedure is rare and having three patients in a short time was extremely unusual.

'There's different feelings in the medical field," Decker said. "You find doctors who say it's not safe for the mothers or the babies. But some of those opinions are outdated."

Previously, it was thought that estrogen, which is produced abundantly by pregnant women, stimulated cancer growth.

"The survival of pregnant women with breast cancer is the same as women with breast cancer who are not pregnant," Decker said. "There are pretty minimal risks for the baby once the organs are formed in the first trimester. No research shows that chemo is harmful to the mother or baby, when it's given during the second or third trimester.

"Practically, it works, but we can't explain how or why. Essentially, it appears safe."

Tuyo's second During trimester, she received four doses of chemotherapy. After the first dose, Tuyo lost all her hair. But, her biggest concern was whether the chemotherapy passed through the placenta to her baby. Feeling the baby move comforted her.

Plenty of support

"My husband and I really have a deep faith and that helped a lot," Tuyo said, adding that the outpouring of concern from friends, family members and strangers was overwhelming. She even received letters of support from people in her hometown, Bad Axe, whom she hadn't heard from in 25 years.

Meanwhile, friends and neighbors organized a dinner-making campaign that lasted three weeks. Every night someone came over with a hot meal for the family.

"Everyone was telling us that they were saying prayers and it helped a lot that so many people were behind us," she said.

She paused briefly as she took Michelle to the basement where two employees were caring for children in her day care business Kathie's Kids Child Care The business thrived through the entire pregnancy and even

During the roughest times while she was receiving the chemotherapy, Tuyo's two children from a previous marriage, John, 15, and Laura, 14, pitched in, doing laundry, cooking and caring their siblings - Michael, 5, and Steven, 3. Gerald has a son from a previous marriage, Gerald, 21, who lives in Colum-

"Michelle was not planned, but she obviously came for a purpose," Tuyo said. The hardest part, she added, was waiting to give birth and see the baby. A Caesarean section was scheduled for March 11. "As the time got near, the anxiety mounted," Tuyo said. "I would sit on the couch and think, 'Please, God, let it be tonight."

On March 6, almost a week early, Tuyo delivered 8-pound, 10-ounce Michelle Nicole. Her robust size and thick, dark hair were signs that the chemotherapy didn't pass through the pla-

"When they put her on my stomach and she was crying and she had a lot of hair, you could tell everything was fine," Tuyo said. "We said, 'Thank you, thank you, God. "The next day the pediatrician examined Michelle and said: "I examined the baby and she's perfect. Then I read your chart and I rechecked her and she was still perfect.' She's been to the pediatrician twice and everything is fine."

As for Tuyo, even her doctor was impressed by her emotional strength.

"Here was a woman who was pregnant and looking to lose her breast and her hair," Decker said. "It's a very brave thing to do. I admire her. She didn't want to abort. I understand, because of her Catholic religion. Talk about standing by your convictions.

While Tuyo's doctors won't use the word "cured," they do say her treatment is complete except for a series of follow-up visits.

"The bottom line is you have to have your faith, family and friends," Tuyo said. "That's what got us through.'

And now, regardless of solid advice from pediatricians to let infants sleep alone, Tuyo said: "For the first six, weeks I let her sleep with me every night. I wanted to hold her near.'

Organizational skills help her use her time wisely

Dear Ms. Green,

I am a 53-year-old woman who is married and has three children. My husband will be retiring in four years so we are thinking about the future and how our life will change. Many of our friends are retired or retiring. It is interesting to see how they are handling it. I am right-handed. I will be watching the newspaper for your analysis. This has been something I've wanted to do for two or three years.

Rochester Hills

The most pervasive trait in this neat handwriting is her organizational skills. They are use of her days. Things in her life do not just happen but are the result of her planning. She loves order and system and is neat and consistent. She has an aversion to clutter.

She wants to be in control of her own destiny. She is goal-oriented and a productive worker who can probably do many things well. A strong sense of pride inspires her to do a commendable job as well as live up to other's expectations.

There is maturity of both outlook and action here. Her values are well defined. At times she may look through rose-colored Seemingly, she has a need to be right. This can cause her to fret over small details.

She has been influenced by a traditional upbringing. She is a rather serious person, but not without a little humor.

Whether happy, sad, excited, calm or angry, she finds it difficult to conceal her feelings. She tends to be quick in responding to emotional appeals and often

It seems quite possible she does not always learn from past mistakes. As a result she may be inclined to make them again.

Currently, whatever she is doing is not fulfilling to her.

This woman is friendly, amiable and empathic. A kind heart has her reaching out to others with a helping hand and compassion. Social interaction with others is a source of pleasure for Community Hospice Services is on the receiving end of a $750 award from Farmers Insurance Group through its Agent Community Sponsorship Fund.

Michele Schmidt, of Schmidt Insurance Agency, Inc., is the agent who submitted the fund request and is responsible for the award.

"Michele and her husband Ray Schmidt, are exceptional advocates of hospice and have given generously to fund raising events to benefit Community Hospice Services, " said Lori George, CHS marketing and development representative.

The award was delivered by Jack Hagerty, district Manager at Farmers Insurance Group. Community Hospice Services will use the award for its children's bereavement programs, purchasing literature and "keepsakes" for the children.

"These items benefit participants in that they are a reminder of the grief work they started and give them permission to continue to heal," George Community Hospice Services will offer its six-week grief support series for children, beginning May 28. It is also accepting registration for Camp Phoenix, a three-day camp for children ages 6 years and older who have experienced a significant loss.

Colon cancer facts

By Ganesh Deshmukh, M.D.

Colon and rectal cancers are curable with early diagnosis and treatment, however they are also the most common causes of cancer-related deaths.

Virtually all colorectal cancers begin in growths in the colon, called polyps. Although the causes of polyps and cancers are not known, a diet high in fat and meat increases the risk of developing both conditions.

Less than 10 percent of colon cancers occur as a result of heredity. One form of inherited colon cancer, called familial polyposis, may be detected by a genetic test. Other inherited colon cancers can be detected by examination of the

The majority of colorectal cancers are not inherited and the American Cancer Society recommends that everyone over age 50 be screened annually. Screening includes a test for blood in the stool and periodic sigmoidoscopy (examination of the rectum and

Today the management of colorectal cancer is both surgical and non-surgical. The cancer is diagnosed by colonoscopy and biopsy which involves inserting a flexible instrument (colonoscope) into the rectum and colon to obtain a sample of the cancer. This procedure occurs while the patient is under sedation. Further testing by CAT scan and ultrasonography determines the extent that the cancer has spread.

These cancers are treated by surgical removal. Early cancers are often cured by surgery alone. The treatment of larger, and more advanced, cancers requires surgery combined with chemotherapy and radiation.

Today, many rectal cancer surgeries do not require the creation of a colostomy ("the bag"). The removal of small rectal cancers does not require incision and only an overnight hospital stay. Larger rectal cancers are removed by abdominal surgery.

In summary, most colon cancers are curable if detected early on, and the best approach to treatment includes surgical and nonsurgical measures.

Dr. Ganesh Deshmukh, board certified in colorectal surgery, is a member of the surgical staff and a surgical educator at Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center-Dearborn. He is a clinical assistant professor of surgery at the University of Michigan.

Teacher celebrates 40 years of service

Lutheran Church and School in Livonia will be celebrating a very special anniversary on Sunday, June 2.

The congregation will gather at 4 p.m. for a special service of thanksgiving in honor of Carolyn Smart who is celebrating her 40th year in the teaching

Born in Montell, Wis., Smart graduated from the Dr. Martin Luther College in New Ulm, Minn., with a bachelor of arts degree in elementary education. She began her teaching career at St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Plymouth in 1956, leaving in 1961 to accept a call to teach at Grace Lutheran in St. Joseph.

She returned to the area in 1966, when she joined the staff at St. Paul's in Livonia, where she has remained for the last 30 years, now teaching some of the children of the children she first taught at the school.

She has taught grades one through five during her career . She also enjoys music and can often be found at the console of St. Paul's church organ during worship services. She also has helped develop and train various school choirs.

The special service, which will acknowledge Smart's extensive contributions, will be followed by a reception and dinner. For more information, call the church at (313) 261-1360.

11th DAY OF June, 1996.

Publish: May 30 and June 6, 1996

Lame explanation aside. I had a story about a water tower. It involved a controversy that bubbled up in my old hometown a long time ago when I was growing up. The way I remember it is that our town had an old water tower, a gray, weather-beaten wooden thing at the north end of town, by the creek, and it was being replaced with a modern, white one outside the town lim-

Whatever, Joe wasn't interested in some old story about underwear on water towers. He wanted to know, basically, what went on under the underwear.

So I turned to him and said, "I'm not sure about water towers, so how about we find out? Together?" I figured it'd take a few minutes, if that, once we got home to look up "water towers" in the encyclopedia.

'Water tower" isn't listed in the encyclopedia. I did find something, a very little something in there about, "elevated holding reservoirs" under "water resources." I gave a watered down version of the encyclopedia information to Joe. He gave me a "that's kind of dumb" look.

I didn't like that look one bit. So off to the library we want a few days later, right after Tony's Tuesday evening baseball game. We were going to the library anyway to return some books. We got so far as the parking lot. Jack started screaming and baby Steven was fussy and Carmen had homework to do at home and Joe needed a bath so all I managed to do was rush in the library, return books, and rush out. The notion of researching water towers had gone down the drain in a big hurry.

I'd never intended on making this such a big deal, and I was willing to forget all about it, but when Joe crawled in the bath that night, he brought the subject up again. And I couldn't just say to him, "Just leave it alone. I don't know about water towers. They just are there, Joe, and they do whatever they're supposed to and that's that. End of subject." This type of answer would warp him for sure, according to respected child-rearing experts everywhere.

I had to pursue this. To be a good mom, I had to pursue this.

The next morning I called the city's water department. I felt sheepish. These people are busy and not in the business of answering questions a 4-yearold asks his mom that she can't answer because her encyclopedia lacks information and her children are too noisy or wet or tired to bring in the library on a Tuesday night. But guess what? My question and I were treated with great respect. I learned so much and once my phone conversation concluded I told Joe everything.

I was extremely impressed with myself for having gone the extra mile, having answered my children honestly and accurately and respectfully. The experts would applaud. I'd done my job and done it well. My child would be so much better for it.

My child, it turns out, responded with, "Jack squished a Pop Tart into the carpet while you were on the phone. Can I play on the swings now?"

TOWNSHIP OF CANTON

CHANGES ARE MADE IN DETERMINATIONS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CANTON, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, BASE (1% ANNUAL CHANCE) FLOOD ELEVATIONS UNDER THE NATIONAL FLOOD

On September 2, 1981, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) identified Special Flood Hazard Areas in the Township of Canton, Michigan, through issuance of a Flood Insurance Rate Map.

The Associate Director for Mitigation, has determined that modification of the elevations of the flood having a 1% chance of occurrence in any given year (base flood) for certain locations in the Township of Canton, is appropriate. The modified base flood elevations amend the FEMA Flood Insurance Rate Map for the community.

This modification to the effected Flood Insurance Rate Map reflects channelization and placement of fill along Tonquish Creek. This revision also deletes the nonexisting roads, Production Drive, Enterprise Drive, and Commerce Drive, and adds the existing Koppernick Road. As a result of the channel modifications, there are increases and decreases in the base flood elevations, 1% and 0.2% annual chance floodplains and floodway. The revised base flood elevations for Tonquish Creek are as follows: Base Flood Elevations (NGVD)* Revised Effective Location 674 Approximately .6 mile downstream of Lilley Road 682

At downstream side of Lilley Road Elevation in feet National Geodetic Vertical Datum

The changes are made pursuant to Section 206 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (P.L. 93-234), and are in accordance with the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended. (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, P.L. 90-448) 42 U.S.C. 4001-

Under the above-mentioned Acts of 1968 and 1973, the Associate Director for Mitigation, must develop criteria for floodplan management. In order for the community to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program, the community will be using the new base flood elevations to administer the floodplain management measures of the National Flood Insurance Program. These modified base flood elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their

Within the past year, Orchards Children's Services has helped five families in the metro Detroit area bring back children from Poland. Currently, the agency is assisting about 10 other couples who are in the process of adopting.

One of the couples is adopting a sibling group of three children.

"It takes a lot of adjustment," said Presley. "When there's a language barrier, it makes things more difficult.'

Parents need assistance explaining to a child about the first day in school, for example. Or if there's a medical problem, which is a certainty with these children since all are "certified unhealthy," according to Presley, with ailments ranging from chronic ear infection to a necessity for surgery.

"It would be helpful to the parents to have someone explain to the child in his or her own language just exactly what is going to happen at the doctor's office or in the hospital,' said Weiss.

Every effort is made to keep alive the child's Polish heritage.

"We could use someone who could communicate with both parents and children about Polish customs as well as American traditions," added Weiss.

Walkathon benefits DRIS

You can help the blind and print-impaired residents of southeastern Michigan "read" The Observer and more than 100 other publications by participating in the annual "Walk with Art" Walkathon Saturday, Sept. 21.

The five-kilometer walk route weaves through the 10th annual Detroit Festival of the Arts site in the University Cultural Center and Detroit's New Center area.

"Each year, between 150,000 and 260,000 new cases of psoriasis, are diagnosed," said Gail Zimmerman, executive director of the National Psoriasis Foundation. "And although such a significantly high number of Americans are affected, psoriasis is neither well-known nor wellunderstood. However, one thing is certain: while there is no cure, more research activity is being done today than ever before and new discoveries are on the way."

PSORIASIS CONTROL! will feature a medical panel, which includes local medical expert Dr. Margaret Douglass, staff physician in Department of Dermatology at Henry Ford Hospital, who will offer an in-depth look at the various types of psoriasis. In addition, a local rheumatologist will provide key information on psoriatic arthritis.

Psoriasis is a chronic skin disease that affects from 1-3 percent of the population in the United States. Its cause is unknown. While there is evidence that the disease is inherited, there does not seem to be a specific hereditary pattern. It may skip one or more generations, then reappear.

Psoriasis seems to be most common among Caucasians and people of East African descent. Although it usually develops between the ages of 15 and 35, it can appear at any age. Males and females are equally affected. There are several types of pso-

Original programming

The Ann Arbor Summer Festival, held at the Power Center, wins the prize for the most original programming. Pop singer Lisa Loeb ("Stay" and "Do You Sleep?") will perform with an orchestra of high school and local professionals led by her brother Ben at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 29. (Ticket prices range from $33-$23.) Her label Geffen Records is expected to come into town to film the event, said festival spokeswoman Rachel Francisco.

'The Sisters of Glory' concert is another one of the unique things. Ce Ce Peniston is a pop star and Albertina Walker is a gospel star and they come together to celebrate gospel. They do it in different styles. They'll do a country gospel song then something traditional, then maybe an R&B song. That's a really exciting one," Francisco

R&B diva Thelma Houston, Phoebe Snow and Lois Walden join Walker and Peniston for the show. Johnny Cash, Soupy Sales, Maynard Ferguson, and The Mavericks are also slated to appear during the three-week long festival.

Besides The Mavericks, a number of country acts will visit the area during the summer. Country star Holly Dunn chose an intimate venue for her Detroit-area summer show. She'll play the Lakes-Area Hoedown, an all-day family event hosted by the Multi-Lakes Conservation Association, at 1 p.m. Saturday, June 8, at the Multi-Lakes club, 3860 Newton Road, Walled Lake. The $10 tickets are available at Ticketmaster outlets or by calling (810) 645-6666 or (810) 363-9109.

Recent winner of the ACM's 'New Male Vocalist" award, Bryan White, returns to the area to play the Michigan TasteFest on Thursday, July 4. Kathy Myers savors the history of the grist mill two doors down from her Westland home. Her grandfather Floyd Bassett sold Henry Ford the mill in 1918. Built in 1863, the year Henry Ford was born, it is the second mill built on the site. The first mill is said to have been a hiding place for escaped slaves traveling on the Underground Railroad.

Myers' father worked as a vardman and watchman at the mill for Henry Ford. The craft show, for which Myers volunteers many hours, is one of two fund-raisers to help fund the interpretive center. Formed in 1989, the Friends of Nankin Mills, due in part to these fundraisers, were instrumental in bringing about renovations of the mill that housed the nature center from 1957 to 1980. Wayne County Parks acquired the mill from Henry Ford in 1948. Today, the park systems' offices are in the new addition to the mill. "I became a member of the Friends of Nankin Mills six years ago after I saw how the mill was going to pieces and the roof was falling in," said Myers, who is co-chair of the craft show and vice president of Friends. 'Mary Ellsworth was a good friend of our family. Of course, in this modern age of technology, there will be computers instead of a naturalist so the kids will learn hands-on about the history of the area surrounding the mill along with the animals and plants in the area." Friends president Denis Johnston says the interpretive center's history timeline will begin with Native Americans, continue on through to the arrival of European settlers followed by the years when Henry Ford turned the Civil War-era mill into one of his water-powered village industries. The mill has a lot of history. Nankin Mills became the center of a community called Pike's Peak that grew up in the 1850s. One of the earliest settlers was Marcus Swift, an abolitionist, so outspoken his house was burned down by people who disagreed with him.

"Nankin Mills was where Ford and Thomas Edison experimented in the 1920s with fossil fuel and steam, and built the first battery to generate electricity for times when the river dried up," said Denise Johnston.

"The time line will continue to where we are today, some of the problems today. It will heighten the awareness that we're also responsible for the condition of the river. There will be a hopeful look at the future which involves all of us," said Denise Johnston.

"A lot of animals, here when the Native American tribes used to meet on the banks of the river, have ceased to exist. Let's not let anymore animals disappear and save what we've got."

The show will feature a variety of crafts including terra-cotta wind chimes and bird feeders, wreaths, wood shelves and quilt racks, and three dimensional paper sculpture by Hazel Owens of Garden City. Jill Zimmer of Westland will be selling her Christmas bulbs made by swirling acrylic paints inside glass ornaments. The result is a marbled effect. Zimmer, who earned a bachelor of fine arts from Eastern Michigan University, will also have earrings. Prices for the ornaments are $10 each or $3 for $25.

If you're looking for a traditional Raggedy Ann doll made from muslin an with embroidered face, don't miss Maureen Pomaranski and Beverly Jovan's booth. The two Livonia crafters will be selling five sizes of the dolls from 10 to 36 inches in height priced between $15 and $50. A heart on the doll's chest says "I love you." Pomaranski and Jovan will personalize dolls with a child's name and birth date for gift giving. According to Pomaranski many women buy the dolls for themselves.

There will also be Raggedy Andy dolls. Pomaranski says, the work that goes into the dolls "is a labor of love."

Looking for designer clothes for your cement goose? From ceramic replicas of historic Michigan homes and buildings to metal sculpture and pottery for the garden, the 20th annual Livonia Arts & Crafts Festival, on the grounds of Greenmead Historical Village, has something for everyone including entertainment by Blooper the Clown, jazz and blues fusion by Blue Metro, and ethnic music by two Ecuadorian groups.

"It's a fun afternoon to come with the family," said Stephanie Skaggs, festival co-chair with Dave Gerczak.

Besides being an art show, it's a festival with sand art for the kids and seven or eight food booths with hot dogs, ice cream, lemonade, roasted almonds and bottled water," added Gerczak. "This is going to be the biggest and best arts and crafts fair ever. Close to 400 artists applied for the show. We tried to select the cream of the crop."

Presented by the Livonia Arts Commission, the juried show features more than 225 artists and crafters from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Florida, Missouri, and Maryland.

Marianne Akers' booth is always a favorite spot with its

20th annual Livonia Arts & Crafts Festival

What: An art fair featuring more than 225 exhibitors of folk art and country, pottery and ceramics, glass, wood, jewelry, photography, metal, textiles, floral, and fine arts. Free admission, parking and shuttle bus service. Live musical entertainment, a clown and sand art booth for kids. Food, drink and ice cream available on the grounds. The historic Hill House Museum will be open for tours. For more information, call Suzanne Montambeau in the community resources department at Livonia City Hall (313) 421-2000

When: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, June 8-9. Where: Greenmead Historical Village, 20501 Newburgh Road at Eight Mile in Livonia. Enter off Newburgh Road.

angels, Old World Santas, carolers, snowmen, shop-till-you-drop doll, witches, and Boo Kids (dressed as ghosts). The innovative crafter recycles children clothes and shoes purchased at garage sales, thrift and resale shops to make the life-size little people. The soft sculpture characters are sure to create smiles at the 50 shows Akers will do this spring and summer.

"We have a whole new line of Santas and 15 new angels including a blue jean angel and a gardening angel in a work dress carrying a basket of flowers and vegetables," Marianne Akers

Akers' little people are so popular that an army of ghosts and witches awaiting shipment to the mail order catalog Pot Pourri frequently stand in the dining room of her Livonia home. Prices for the little people range from $6.50 to $125 with most costing between $20-$25.

Fair goers seek out Rick Denomme's booth for photographs of wolves, birds, and wildlife. The Northville resident spent the entire month of January in Africa. Look for his photos of cheetah, lions and giraffe captured on the plains of Kenya and Tanzania. Denomme watched a baby giraffe being born there.

"It was so exciting. We watched the baby giraffe take his first steps. It took an hour for him to stand," said Denomme who works with his wife Connie as a team in their wildlife photography business.

Twice a year they travel to locations around the world including British Columbia for killer whales, Montana for wolves and lynx, and Alaska for grizzly bear.

"It's not as easy as it looks," said Denomme who spent four days watching one bear to catch him with mouth open about to snag a fish for lunch. Basically a self-taught photographer, Denomme prints all of the images. He will do 25 shows in eight states this year. His best seller, by the way, are the wolves. Prices start at $12 for a matted 8 by 10 inch to $200 for a framed, ready to hang 24 by 30 Preview Denomme's wildlife photography at his one man show at Livonia City Hall

June 3-27.' Nancy Guido's handmade ceramic tiles, similar to those made by the historic Pewabic Pottery, are sure to be popular with fair visitors for use as accent pieces in home decorating. A member of the Village Potter's Guild in Plymouth where she teaches the art of making tiles, Guido recently did a backsplash for a friend.

The tiles are totally functional. You can put them in counter tops or frame them for the wall as art work in the kitchen," said Guido, who earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts from Eastern Michigan University. "There are so many ways the tiles can be book tiles. Just in time for the art fair, Guido is working on tables with Dennis Magyar, who makes wrought iron furniture. Maygar's 16-inch round table will be inset with Guido's handmade Maygar, also an exhibitor in the show, will offer large wall mirrors, tables with inset glass tops, candlestick and platter holders, patio tables, lamps and benches. He began making the wrought iron furniture five years ago. In 1994, he won First Place in the metal category at the LAC festival. While this is the only show he will do this year, work from Maygar's Iron Den is on display at the Countryside Craft and Antique Mall in Walled Lake. Prices: $13-$325.

Fine crafts in the show include pottery by Kathy Sandberg of Plymouth and weavings by Nanette Wiecek of Canton. A member of the Village Potter's Guild, Sandberg will exhibit vases, large bird baths, mirrors, new chip n' dip serving dish designs, and a flowing abstract sculpture of a female figure.

Wiecek, an elementary teacher in Wayne Westland Schools, will. bring table runners, place mats, throws, pillow and shawls woven on one of her four floor looms, A weaver for 25 years, she was inspired to learn the craft by her 99 year old grandmother. Prices: $22-$60.

"I grew up in Kansas where everyone quilted and knitted. I was five when I made my first quilt. Originally, I got into spinning and dyeing wool after listening to my grandmother's stories about washing out her wool on the rocks in the river," said Wiecek

Observer area artists and crafters in the show include Livonia residents Peggy Lewis, basketry; Debbie Krompatic, porcelain dolls; Rose Stebbins, florals; Canton: Paul Kowalczuk, wood; Charlotte Potes, textiles; Marge McVicar, country dolls, bears, cows and rabbits; Louis Winek, Wood; Cheryl McCleay, air brush clothing; Farmington: Bob Mineweaser, fine wood furniture and toys; Dearborn: Paul Gilbert, antique photos of Michiyears as lead singer for the anthemic rock band the Cult. "I wanted to change the band into a more progressive band," Astbury said via telephone from his California home. "I felt my roots were back in the alternative scene. My friends were people in the alternative community rather than the rock community. ... I tried to pull the Cult in that direction.'

Testosterone rock got a little

For the 1994 self-titled Cult album Astbury recorded the song "The Witch" which was based more on rhythm than lead guitar. Astbury saw the Cult going in that direction but guitarist Billy Duffy wouldn't have any of it. After a fistfight in Brazil, the singer called it quits.

"I didn't want to do (the hit single) "She Sells Sanctuary" anymore. I wanted to do something real, organic and authentic so I came back to LA, got on a plane and went to England to see a lot of my friends."

The reactions he got confirmed that he did the right thing.

"They said, 'Glad you got away from that. Good luck to you," Astbury recalled.

As a result, Astbury formed the Holy Barbarians, an alternative rock band that takes a more organic approach to music and uses the ingredients found in

The songs found on the Holy Barbarian's debut "Cream" (Reprise) reflect the "real" Astbury, not the one that Cult fans created in their minds.

"The sexual harassment I used to get (with the Cult) was insane. They wanted me or they wanted the pinup of me. I'd start talking about things I was into like (beat poet Jack) Kerouac but they wanted me to be a rock male bimbo - not someone who's completely obsessed with Kerouac.

Astbury said he hopes to be successful at his solo outing like Lou Reed after he left the Velvet Underground and Iggy Pop in his post-Stooges days.

"I'd rather think of myself in that school than do something third rate. The only Cult song we do is 'The Witch.' Some Cult fans will be disappointed in that, but that's the way it is. This is not

"We just switched to new management. Nettwerk is a multimedia developer and we had a keen interest in developing something like that. It was cool because we could make something in house that was of really good quality with tons of infor-mation. We could put something out that wasn't $28.99 because we hadn't paid some development company anything to do it

· The single "Shoe Box" is found on the November released "Born on a Pirate Ship," the band's first release since the departure of keyboardist Andy Creeggan. As a consequence the album has a more guitar-driven sound.

"From the songwriting to the actual recording, the whole process was much more collaborative this time around," said the Ladies' lead singer Steven Page. "We seemed to come together in a new way as a quartet, and got back to what it is that we really enjoy doing. Playing live has always been a key component of the band and what we wanted this time around was to get some of that live energy on tape.

Fans of the Barenaked Ladies can see the band live at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, June 1, at Pine Knob Music Theatre in Independence Township. Tickets are $25 pavilion and $12.50 lawn. For more information, call (810) 377-0100. The Barenaked Ladies' official World Wide Web site is · Family Funktion, the acid jazz party held Wednesdays at Alvin's in Detroit, just finished celebrating its first anniversary with guest DJs and special promotions. Acid jazz is a collage of soul, jazz, funk, R&B and hiphop music.

The night was started by a collection of DJs - Papa Ron, Brian Gillespie, Munk, and Jim Stone who go by the name Family Funktion. Knowing that clubgoers "get sick of things very easily" the group spices up the weekly event with guest DJs, eclectic music, giveaways, food, and CD release parties.

"We try to keep the program very fresh and innovative. It's not like you could come on a Wednesday and hear the same songs as last week. That's what keeps a lot of people coming back. Everyone spins different

'Horseman' delivers romance

BY JOHN MONAGHAN SPECIAL WRITER

"The Horseman on the Roof" has a mix of romance, adventure, beauty, and economy of style rarely achieved since Douglas Fairbanks and the silent era. Even moviegoers who usually cringe at the mere thought of subtitles will be swept away by this engaging French epic.

The year is 1832 when a dashing young cavalry officer (Olivier Martinez) embarks on a treacherous journey to his native Italy. Though hunted by Austrian assassins, he returns the kindness of a spirited noblewoman (Juliette Binoche) by helping her reunite with her husband.

If it sounds a bit like one of those tacky romance novels, then so be it. With this and his recent adaptation of "Cyrano," director Jean-Paul Rappeneau proves himself unabashedly romantic, serving up the kind of passion that the Merchant-Ivory period films often cry for.

"Horseman" also has a macabre side, setting the action amidst the plague-ridden French countryside where cholera has taken its toll. Red-coated soldiers keep the populace under quarantine and burn the dead on eyeball-plucking crows don't get to them first.

Newcomer Martinez shines in his role as the perfect gentleman. He looks away when his traveling companion lifts her skirt to don wool stockings. He gallantly allows himself to be arrested when she ends up behind bars.

She's no sissy either. Played by Juliette Binoche (star of "Red" and France's most captivating young actress today), she proves an excellent horsewoman and handy at firing a musket. She marvels at his efficiency and manners, the product of the army's discipline and his mother's good grooming.

Maybe the foreign subtitles make the whole thing easier to swallow, but I liked "Horseman" far better than the schmaltzy "Last of the Mohicans" of a few years back. Though both have the sort of love-at-all-costs quality, this one showed some melodramatic restraint.

Even in its swashbucking swordfights and running leaps on horseback, the movie has a lack of showiness. There are also genuinely funny moments when she visits acquaintances who fall funeral pyres - that is if the all over themselves until they find out that she has been in proximity of the plague.

Cinematographer Thierry Arbogast makes ample use of the wide screen, painting powerful images in muted colors and silhouettes. So great are some of these shots that the subtitles even move over to one side so as not to compromise the composi-

For the first hour-and-a-half, "Horseman" has the kind of repressed sexual energy that seems almost standard in films of this type. Things get a little weird near the end, however, in a love scene of sorts whose explicit nudity and bizarre situation make it among the most perversely titillating ever filmed. Ah, the French.

Playing exclusively at the Main Art Theatre in Royal Oak, 'The Horseman on the Roof' returns my faith in things many of us hold dear: true love, chivalry, and French cinema, all of which have been noticeably absent from moviehouses in recent years.

Sophisticated Tribute offers ambiance, fine food

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE

SPECIAL WRITER

It might seem an unlikely place for a restaurant that aims to take its place among the top restaurants in the country.

Tribute, opened earlier this month, is tucked between a Marathon service station and Best Western hotel on 12 Mile Road in Farmington Hills on the site of the former JW's Saloon.

But once inside, you enter another world.

In an eclectic setting worthy of nearly as much attention as the food, Chef Takashi Yagihashi (plucked from Ambria in Chicago) and manager Mickey Bakst (persuaded to leave Tapawingo in Ellsworth) are overtly out "to create the most upscale, sophisticated restaurant Detroit has ever seen.'

That is the charge of the Wisne family (Progressive Tool) which spent a reported $2 million to develop Tribute on land they own. "It is the Wisne's tribute to food, wine and service," Bakst says.

The restaurant, devised by Victor Saroki & Associates (Birmingham Theatre restoration), combines classical, Art Deco and contemporary furnishing and design elements while the food reflects Chef Takashi's training in classical French, his native Japanese and nouvelle

"We want to offer the most innovative, creative food unlike Detroit has seen," the ponytailed, 40-something Bakst said. "It is not so fancy, but full of flavor." Bakst, a veteran restauraTribute

The chocolate banana dessert, wrapped in a paper-thin pastry shell and accompanied by a dollop of sassafras ice cream, was excellent, Karson said.

Food temperature and service must contend with having to be delivered from the sleek, elongated, lower-level kitchen which soon will host a Chef's Table. The table, which must be reserved in advance, will feature tastings from the menu ($70 per person) plus suggested wines.

Tribute's kitchen is fully visible to guests who descend the staircase to use the stunning restrooms or small dining and garden seating area.

Chef Takashi said he was lured from his Ambria post by an opportunity to create fine dining in an atmosphere of fun.

"It's a beautiful restaurant. This is still fine dining with serious food, serious service, but more fun," said the executive chef, who now lives in Beverly Hills with his wife and two young children.

"I don't want stuffy service. I want good service," Bakst confirms. And, "I don't want formal attire in this dining room. It's Indeed, the high-ceiling, triangular-windowed dining room lined by asparagus-colored banquettes and overseen by a mural depicting a tribute (get it!) to Ulysses' wife Penelope by West Bloomfield artist Robert Schefman was not lost on William Wolf from Bloomfield Hills.

Wolf, accompanied by his wife Eleanor and another couple, said he was "extremely impressed by

Madonna's coach leaves job he loves

As trivial as it may sound, every beginning must have an end.

For Madonna University, Mike George was the beginning, the end and all that lay in between in what has become a nationally-prominent baseball program. He transformed a clublevel group of walk-ons into a team that challenged for a berth in the NAIA World Series year

Now it's all over. On Tuesday, George gathered what players he could from last season's team, 22 in all, into a small classroom at Madonna and in a short, to-the-point speech, told them he was resigning. It was not what they expected to hear - that was obvious. Throughout the 10-minute address, only one person made a sound: The man everyone knew as "Skip." It was a title George relished, and it's something he won't forget.

"Next to the day my dad died, I've never felt worse," George said.

He leaves reluctantly, certainly with sadness. But it was a decision he had to make, and when broken down to its simplest terms, it was the only one he could make.

Financial gain?

Small college athletics is not a money-making proposition. Coaches are part time - or, as Madonna assistant athletic director Bryan Rizzo eloquently described it, the pay is part time, the position is full time.

And that defines George. He put his all into developing the baseball program at Madonna, for a grand total of $10,000 a year.

Until two years ago that was enough, because George worked for the school as director of intramurals. But when Rizzo was hired, that position became one of his titles: sports information director/assistant athletic director/director of

For the past two years, George has tried to juggle his finances, tried to make things work. He finally realized he couldn't.

Small college means small pay. It's the way things are "I tried to stay on here as long as I can financially," he said. "But I'm 35 now . . . I have to look down the road. George has accepted a position in management training for Cooker's Restaurant.

It wasn't really what he wanted. He searched for ways to work at the university, where he spent much of his time.

No other choice

But he did not have his college degree, which limited his options.

"I was hoping (the administration) would do something," George said. "It's going to be hard to leave here. My heart and soul went into this pro-

"I am somewhat disappointed a position isn't available to me, but I understand it is a busi-

It's impossible to downplay what George did for the university through his baseball team. He did not just coach - not hardly. "The easiest part of coaching baseball here was coaching baseball," he said. "That was (comparatively) a no-brainer." George spent "24 hours a day, 365 days a year" on Madonna baseball. When not recruiting players, he was lining up sponsors or conscripting boosters. Or working on Madonna University Park, the baseball field at the former Livonia

Bently HS that George virtually rebuilt. "I was like a drug addict," he admitted. "I was hooked on baseball. And like a drug addict, I'm sure I'll have my withdrawls.'

Disappointed and burned out

He isn't planning on coaching again. At least not in the forseeable future. Part of the reason is the disappointment in leaving the team he built from the ground up, certainly. But, he added, he feels "a bit burned out.

"It is a lot of work. I don't think anyone realizes how much work goes into this. I've been at it for 17 years."

Prior to coming to Madonna in 1989, George served as head coach at Redford Bishop Borgess for three years

But burnout? For Mike George? That's oil and water - an impossible mixture. It's equally as difficult to imagine Madonna baseball without him, the guy who started it all and built it, base by base if you will, into a formidable program. And yet the George era, which always seemed never-ending, has reached its conclusion. But as any philosopher would tell you, it isn't the beginning or the end, or even the length of time between the two, that matters.

It's what was accomplished during that span that counts.

Rocks gain district semifinals

Ryan Andrzejewski picked up the slack in coach Dale Rumberger's absence, scattering five hits Tuesday to lead Plymouth Salem to a 10-2 victory over Livonia Churchill.

Rumberger missed the game due to kidney pain. He is facing surgery in the near future for the removal of a defective kidney

The victory put Salem into double digits in wins with a 10-18 record and gave the Rocks a little momentum heading into the state tournament this weekend.

Rumberger said Andrzejewski would pitch the tournament opener Saturday against Livonia StevenBASEBALL son. Should the Rocks win, Keith Boughner would go in the second

"We're in good shape, pitching-wise," Rumberger said. "If we can pick up the ball, we'll be all right. That's been our problem all year

Salem piled up eight runs before the game was two innings old. Andrzejewski took it from there, striking out eight, walking two and hitting one batter in seven innings. He also went 2-for-3 with two RBI.

Churchill loaded the bases with nobody out in the first but Andrzejewski struck out two and got the third out on a popup to catcher.

The Rocks then went to work. An error, Kevin Niemiec's double, a Ryan Rumberger double and a single by Andrzejewski made it 3-0.

Niemiec went 3-for-4, scored a pair, drove in two and had a double. Rumberger had two hits, including a double, and drove in two.

"We told them to treat it like it was like a re-start for us," coach Rumberger said, "with the tournament season and everything. And they did."

Salem coach in need of surgery

Plymouth Salem baseball coach Dale Rumberger is facing surgery to remove one of his kidneys in the near future.

"My doctor said he knew it was serious when I told him I couldn't make the baseball game," Rumberger said Tuesday after Salem defeated Livonia Churchill, 10-2, without its coach in attendance.

Rumberger was hospitalized for two days with excruciating pain, but got out of St. Joseph

Chiefs rout Pioneer

After two straight rough encounters in the state district tournament, Canton went up against an Ann Arbor Pioneer team that could not match its ability. That became apparent by halftime.

BY C.J. RISAK

Call it a preliminary. After what Plymouth Canton's soccer team went through in the districts, a game like this one was most wel-

No, it wasn't against a ranked opponent (again). No, there was no last-second heroics, no disputed overtime, no need for breath-taking defensive play.

In fact, Canton keeper Sarah Warnke could probably have gone home early - say midway through the second half - and no one would have noticed. That's how lopsided Canton's 4-0 triumph was over Ann Arbor Pioneer in Wednesday's Class A regional semifinal at Warnke was the savior in the Chiefs' 2-0 victory over Plymouth Salem in Saturday's district final. Against Pioneer, she was virtually untested.

"We needed this game," said Canton coach Don Smith. "We were getting a little tired." The rest will come in handy. On Friday, the Chiefs (now 15-4) go up against top-ranked and unbeaten Brighton, which defeated Livonia Stevenson 3-0 in Wednesday's other regional semifinal. Game time for the regional final, hosted by Western, is 7 p.m. Anyone analyzing the Pioneer team would probably say the talent is decent. And yet it still cannot match the ability found in schools in this area.

For 23 minutes the match was even, and that did concern Smith. "In the beginning I was a little bit (concerned)," he admitted. "I thought we were lying around . . . all you have to do is let them score, they get all fired up and we can't put one in."

That didn't happen. With 16:22

left in the first half, the Chiefs got a corner kick, taken by Lisa Tomasso. It couldn't have been diagrammed any better; Tomasso's line drive went to Jessica Bradley, and her perfectly-placed header went over Pioneer keeper Eva Bower to make it 1-0.

That was the first pebble in the the avalanche. Canton scored twice more before the break, thoroughly demoralizing the Pioneers.

The other two first-half goals came from Jenny Parviainen, both on quick counters. On the first, Melissa Marzolf raced down the right wing, drawing two defenders with her, then crossed the ball into Parviainen for the second Chief goal with 8:16 left.

Another quick Canton counter esulted in Jennell Cobor speeding down the wing. Her cross in to Parviainen forced Pioneer keeper Bower to come out to challenge. The Chiefs' junior put it past her, and with 2:41 to play in the half the lead was 3-0.

That proved far too big a deficit for Pioneer, which ended its season with a 10-3-5 record. "We weren't sharp offensively today," said coach William Browning. "When our best player (Kendal Willis) did get in the box, she didn't even get off the That didn't occur too often in the second half. The Chiefs controlled the action and, although they scored just once more, their play was far more dominating.

The last goal came with 23:00 left, after the ball bounced around inside the Pioneer box. Cobor finally got possession, and put a short shot into the net.

But if this was a break, it's over. Like last week, when the Chiefs beat two state-ranked teams (Livonia Churchill and Salem), another major challenge awaits in Brighton.

Producing: In the first half, it seemed Canton might struggle against Pioneer. But three goals late in the half, one on an assist from Melissa Marzolf (above), altered that.

Close again Canton edges Salem in 10th

BY C.J. RISAK

What happened Tuesday in the Class A pre-district softball game between Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem was nothing special, really.

Clutch hits, superb base-running, sparkling defense, and - of course - extra-inning heroics. Ho-hum.

Point is, it's never boring when Canton and Salem meet on the softball diamond. And it wasn't Tuesday at Canton. The Chiefs rallied for a run in the sixth to tie it, then withstood a couple of Salem rallies to post a 3-2 win in the 10th.

There were two out when freshman pitcher Gretchen Hudson slugged a long fly over the rightfielder's head to score Tara Biro with the game-winning run.

"We do it every time," said Canton coach Jim Arnold as his team looked forward to the district semifinal, Saturday at 10:30 a.m. against Livonia Stevenson. "Last year, it was the same way. No matter what our records are, it's always a rivalry between the red and blue."

The two teams met once in '95, with Canton emerging with a 1-0 regular-season victory. In '94, they met in the district semifinal, and the game went 13 innings before the Chiefs could collect a 4-3 triumph.

"It's an ongoing battle," agreed Salem coach Bonnie Southerland. "It's just too bad we had to play each other in the first round of the districts."

It was a tense, drama-laden game throughout. Canton scored first, getting a run without the benefit of a hit in the third.

Salem countered by pushing across two runs in the fourth. Back-to-back doubles by Carah Best and Stefanie Volpe got one run in. A ground out by Jenny Trott moved Volpe to third; Terri Walters' single delivered her with the second run.

It stayed that way until the bottom of the sixth. Amber LaGrow started Canton's rally with a lead-off walk. Biro followed with a sacrifice bunt, on which LaGrow raced to third after some indecision by the Salem infield.

Jenny Sikora then hit a one-out grounder to Salem's Best at shortstop. Best fired home, but it was too late to get LaGrow.

The Chiefs put two more runners aboard with one out in the seventh, but Trott - Salem's pitcher defused the rally by getting the next two bat-

Game-winner: After surrendering two fourth-inning runs, Canton's Gretchen Hudson stopped Salem cold - then drove in the winning run in the 10th.

Kolessov started out with a most unusual two-handed style then he quickly adapted to the more conventional delivery.

As for Shitarev, he worked at it a while and finally threw a strike.

I tried to explain the scoring system to some of the bowlers but my Russian language skills are lacking and every time they asked a question, I would simply nod and say "Nyet," the only word I know.

The language barrier also proved to be challenge at lunch. Waitress Debbie Blanchard tried to explain to Bessenov what lasagna is and to Vakulenko that the only meat dish on the menu was a hamburger. And how does one explain Vernor's? Robinson's guests opted for orange juice, instead.

The group left Merri Bowl with a favorable impression of the American bowling scene and they couldn't have chosen a better place, Robinson was a super host. He explained bowling to them clearly and made sure they enjoyed themselves.

But they won't have a chance to practice when they get back home - at least not yet. Russia is one of few nations where bowling centers don't exist. Bowling is taking off in a big way in parts of Asia and Europe.

Pay attention AMF and Brunswick, for there lies an untapped market. And from what we saw recently at Merri Bowl, the Russian will love the people.

Mercy Hospital in hopes of coaching his team Tuesday.

"By the time I got home," Rumberger said, "I was too pooped. "I don't know if I'll be able to coach in the tournament. We'll see how the pain goes. And when they decide to do it."

(Physicians take note: this was just Rumberger's way of making light of a serious situation.)

As the pain increased, Rumberger had begun making plans for others to coach Salem's team in his absence.

He called up junior varsity coach Joe Bonnett to run the team along with assistant Mike Saneker. "It was coaching by committee," Rumberger joked. "I even got (ex-)coach John Gravlin to come out of retirement." After examination ruled out kidney stones, it was discovered

Rumberger is suffering from a congenital kidney defection. "After all these years," he said,

"it's caught up with me. After two days in the hospital I got them to let me go. I wanted to coach the game but after I got home the pain was so bad I just couldn't do it.

"My other kidney is fine. It's kind of like a birth defect."

The way it was explained to Rumberger, the tube that drains the kidney is under sized and is now causing the organ to swell.

doubled with one out, then moved to third on Best's groundout. Volpe followed with a hard drive -right to the rightfielder.

Biro started a Chiefs' rally in the eighth with a bad-hop single to lead off the inning. Two outs later, Biro was still at first, but she stole second and came racing home on Nikki Kovachevich's base hit to center.

Salem centerfielder Kristen Los throw to home was on the mark, however: Volpe applied the tag to end the inning.

After an uneventful ninth, Salem put two runners aboard in the 10th, reaching second and third with two out. Best grounded out to third to two-on, two-out challenge. Hudson

In their half of the inning, the Chiefs collected consecutive singles by Michelle Butske, LaGrow and Biro to load the bases with no one out. "a bit burned out."

That, certainly, was understandable. George dedicated himself to Madonna baseball, all out, in every facet, from plan-ning the initial media guides to finding financing for and planning spring trips south.

He increased the baseball program's budget with sponsorship dollars and worked out a deal with the city of Livonia to use departure. After 17 years of the baseball field at the former coaching baseball, he said he felt Livonia Bentley HS, where he oversaw the construction of Madonna University Park. With the help of neighbors and boosters, the Park has been built into one of the top fields in this area.

With such tireless energy, it seemed unlikely, if not inconceivable, that George would ever leave. When he told the 22 players from last season's team that were still in town of his decision at a special meeting Tuesday, the effect was unanimous shock.

"I had no idea," said a stunned Craig Benedict, a three-year starting pitcher for Madonna from Plymouth Canton HS. "I thought he called the meeting to talk about summer workouts.

"It's a sad day. Basically, he was baseball here."

In his eight seasons, George compiled a 251-172 record. Last season the Crusaders went 29-26 with a senior-less team; in '95, Kyle Green, of Bloomfield Hills, placed 54th among 254 anglers. Greene landed eight fish over the three-day tournament and finished with a total weight of 25-pounds, 2-ounces. He pocketed $1,000 for his efforts.

Chuck Economou, of Lake Orion, placed 77th with seven fish weighing 21-pounds, 5ounces, and Plymouth's Patrick VanTiem finished 117th with five fish totaling 15-pounds, 2-

In all, 13 Michigan anglers competed in the tournament with 1996 B.A.S.S. Angler of the Year Kevin Van Dam of Kalamazoo leading the way with a secondcatch of 15 fish which tipped the scales at 66-pounds, 1-ounce. He collected $22,000 for placing second. Bobby Padgett, of Columbus Georgia, won the tournament and set a new BASSMASTER record for the heaviest three day (five bass per day) catch at 77-pounds, 9ounces. He earned $36,000 for winning the tournament. Economou, the busiest of the local anglers competing in the BASSMASTER Tournament Trail, finished 26th overall in the Eastern Invitational standings out of 459 anglers. Patrick VanTiem finished 87th, Greene was 108th and Rick VanTiem, of West Bloomfield, was 156th. Economou also finished 60th in the Central Invitational standings. (The top five anglers in the Eastern place finish. VanDam had a limit Invitational standings, the top five anglers in the Central Invitational standings plus the top 25 anglers in the Top 100 circuit advanced to the BASS Masters Classic, Aug. 8-10, in Birmingham, Alabama.)

Nurses get accolades

Four nurses at the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Ann Arbor have been recognized by their peers and supervisors for their professionalism and compassion, receiving both national and local awards.

Medical Center Director Edward L. Gamache presented the VA Secretary's Awards for Excellence in Nursing to: Dawn Guswtitus, Medical Intensive Care Unit and a Redford resident; Shirley Freshney, from the medical/neurology unit 5 North and a Pinckney resident; and Nancy Gray, a nursing care technician in the operating room and an Ann Arbor resident.

Nominated by their co-workers, the national award-winners are recognized for effectively putting current nursing standards into practice, working positively with their co-workers to provide excellent care to patients and for keeping up their nursing skills through continuing educa-

The medical center's Chrysalis Award was given to Gary Curry, head nurse of the inpatient substance abuse treatment unit and a Garden City

He received the award for positively demonstrating behavior which reflects the art of nursing.

Mercy CEO honored

Brenita Crawford, president and CEO of Mercy Hospital-Detroit, was honored Saturday, May 18 as Community Leader of the Year by the National Council of Negro Women-Detroit Section at the fifth anniversary of the Tribute to Black Women Community Leaders breakfast.

She was nominated for her work in transforming the financially strapped Mercy Hospital to one showing profitability and a broad interest in community based programs.

Four individuals from seven states, including Michigan, will be selected by a distinguished panel of judges in Washington, DC as the 1996 national honorees at a celebration hosted by the national NCNW this fall.

Award given

Wayne State University professor Gabriel Lasker is the recipient of the first annual Franz Boas Distinguished Achievement Award of the Human Biology Association.

The award was established to recognize the contributions of an outstanding human biologist.

Boas taught physical anthropology at Columbia in 1896 and was a major figure in the history of American Anthropology. Margaret Mead and Ruth Benedict were among the many notable students of Boas'.

He joined Wayne State in 1946. As a professor emeritus of anatomy/cell biology and adjunct professor of anthropology. Lasker has taught generations of medical students.

He has served as a founding member of the International Association of Human Biologists, president of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists and president of the Human Biology Council.

Four honored by peers

Four doctors were recognized by the School of Medicine Alumni Association, which presented the 1996 Distinguished Alumni Awards to Dr. Lawrence Crane and Sen. John J. Schwarz, also an MD and Lawrence M. Weiner Awards to Dr. Eugene Perrin and Dr. Joseph Dunbar.

The Distinguished Alumni Award recognizes School of Medicine graduates who have been selected by their peers as having substantially contributed to humanitarian causes; whose contributions to the health field in a broader sense are outstanding or for service to the school.

The Weiner Award honors exceptional contributions of nonalumni to the school through excellence in teaching, research, and/or administrative duties. These individuals have met the high standards created by Dr. Lawrence Weiner's exemplary record of service to the school.

Ceresnie joins staff

Gary Ceresnie, DPM, joined the Southfield and Detroit Podiatry staffs of DMC Health Care Centers last month. The Southfield Center is located at 27207 Lahser Rd., Ste. 200 and the Detroit Center is located at 22341 W. Eight Mile. DMC has locations in Southfield, Northwest Detroit, Novi and Livonia and is a member of the Detroit Medical Center.

Previously, he practiced in Coral Springs, Fla. He received his Doctor of Medicine degree from the William M. Scholl College of Podiatric Medicine in

Century Oaks offers spectacular setting

The topography at Century Oaks, with swales, trees and creeks, is spectacular.

It's on Gunn Road just west of Adams in Oakland Township, backs up to Bald Mountain Recreation Area but is fairly close to I-75, M-59 and access to city amenities.

Mix in Rochester schools and you have an attractive 224acre residential subdivision developed by Frankel Associates of Troy.

Buyers may purchase a lot, priced at $109,000 to $149,000, and bring in their own builders. Or they can buy from John Scaccia, a Rochester custom builder who has acquired eight lots.

"I live out here," Scaccia said.
"This is country living at its finest."

"Rolling hills afford a lot of opportunities for walk-out lots," said Mark J. Erickson, spokesman for Frankel. "There's lots of wooded areas."

While buyers can bring in their own builders, strict architectural controls will be enforced.

"We have a very unique site," Erickson said. "We want to be sure houses built are consistent with the nature of the site and the surrounding area. Our purpose is to maintain property value"

Only brick, wood siding and stone will be allowed as exterior materials. Ranches must be a minimum 2,700 square feet, two stories, 3,000.

At this price point, must buyers in Century Oaks will have built new before.

"They will be relocating executives from Chrysler and other auto-related companies," Erickson said.

"What we'll get mostly is people who know the area and want something better for their family," Scaccia said.

"We'll be seeing people from the Rochester area looking for a bigger lot, more privacy, nicer landscaping," said Al Neal, sales rep for Scaccia.

"This sub gives you neighbors so you have community, but at the same time you have a great deal of privacy," Scaccia added.

"To some people, this may seem further north than they want to go," Neal said. "A few years from now, there won't be anything south of here."

Buyers shouldn't wait until the very last minute if they have a specific kind of lot in mind, Neal said.

"Now, at another place I'm working, I have people say, 'What do you have with lots of trees' and 'What do you have that backs up to a park," he said. "You don't come into the last stages and get that."

Scaccia said he plans to construct 3,800-square-foot colonial as his on-site model.

The house will feature a family room with two-story ceiling and fireplace, study, living room, dining room, kitchen/eating nook, half bath and laundry on the first floor.

first floor.

The upstairs master will have a separate shower and whirlpooltub, dual sink vanity and walkin closet.

Two upstairs bedrooms will share a jack-and-jill bath and the fourth upstairs bedroom will have its own bath.

Scaccia's model, the Huron, will include two furnaces and two air conditioning processors, two staircases to the second floor, three-car garage, basement, and double oven, cooktop, microwave and dishwasher in the kitchen.

Lap of luxury: John Scaccia plans to build this house, a 3,800-square-foot colonial with two furnaces, two air conditioning processors and two staircases, as a sales model at Century Oaks. Estimated price with lot is $449,000.

"It's a very, very fine floor plan," Scaccia said. "It's worked very well for us. It's traditional, open. The master will have all the bells and whistles."

Estimated price including lot - $449,000.

"We will have other plans where the master is on the first floor," Scaccia added. "We do custom designing ourselves and modify any of our existing plans."

Erickson said he anticipates that most of the houses in the sub will be custom designed and built. "They will start in the four hundred thousands and go up from there."

"Don't be surprised if you see them over $800,000," Scaccia added.

Century Oaks will be serviced by a community water well and city sewers. There will be no sidewalks.

The property tax rate currently is $23.19 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $450,000 house in the sub would pay about $5,200 the first year.

Greg and Madeline Turner were among the first buyers to put down a deposit.

"It's kind of nice to have 4,600 acres of state land in your back yard," Greg said. "It's not going to be touched. It's quiet. Another reason we liked it is lots were very generous in size. In our particular lot, the sun sets in our back yard."

Turner said they're thinking about building a two-story of 3,300-3,500 square feet with four bedrooms including a first floor master and a walk-out.

"The quality of homes they're putting up back there is what we're looking for," he said.

Flashing is prime location for leaks in the roof

(AP) - Flashing is used to prevent moisture from entering under the roof covering wherever two or more planes of a roof meet or wherever the roof meets a vertical surface. It is also used along edges of roofs and other windows or doorways to direct moisture away from the house exterior and structural framing.

Roll roofing material is widely used for flashing, particularly along ridges and hips, and at valleys. However, the most durable flashing materials are sheet aluminum, copper or galvanized steel. All are sold in rolls especially for the purpose.

in two parts: the base (or step) flashing, which wraps completely around the base of the chimney and extends several inches under the roof covering, and the cap (or counter) flashing, which covers the top edges of the base flashing. Sometimes roofing felt extends up the sides of the chimney, taking the place of metal base flashing.

Flashing should be inspected at least once a year, as it is a prime location for roof leaks. Look for cracks and separations where the flashing meets the chimney, vent stack, dormer and abutment walls, and where roof times damaged flashing is discolored. Very old flashing sometimes develops pinholes which are hard to see. So if possible, check the roof from below for

To maintain and repair flashing, coat all flashing seams periodically with asphalt roofing cement, especially at chimney and vent stack seams. Apply the cement using a small mason's trowel and smooth the contours of the cement so that it does not form hollows and ridges where water may collect and eventually lead to leaks and damage.

Where you find holes of 1-square-inch or more in the flashing, cut a patch from the same material as the flashing, 1-inch larger all around than the hole. Apply cement to the damaged flashing, press the patch in place, then cover the entire area with cement and smooth the sur-

Where flashing meets brickwork it is usually embedded in mortar. Separations here require immediate repair since the loose flashing actually collects water and funnels it down beneath the roof where it may spread and do considerable damage

To repair, provided the flashing itself is sound, rake out the old mortar from the seam to a depth of about three-fourthsinch. Press the flashing back into place, wedging it if necessary with small stones, then fill the seam with fresh mortar, using a trowel. Smooth the seam carefully. Seal the flashing with asphalt roofing cement after the mortar has fully cured. If the flashing is corroded or damaged, you will have to replace it.

Metals touching each other react when wet. As a result, metal flashing must be fastened with nails made of the same metal as the flashing. Otherwise one or the other will corrode, often quickly. If it is impossible use neoprene or asphalt washers with the fasteners to prevent direct contact between the two different metals.

you can fix it yourself, you can definitely save a lot of money.

The first step to fixing a leak from a crack is to enlarge the crack with a mason's or ball peen hammer and a cold chisel, making sure to wear protective goggles, Paul said. Make the inside of the crack larger than the surface to secure the cement in place, but don't go deeper than three-quarters of an inch. Next, clean the area with a stiff brush, then vacuum the crack to make sure there aren't any loose particles. Moisten the crack lightly with a sponge or damp cloth and fill the area with hydraulic cement, using a trowel to press the cement into the crack. The cement will harden in a few minutes and expand when it dries, bonding tightly with the existing cement. Apply a second coat hardens to ensure the crack is sealed tightly.

"Once it hardens, the leak should stop. Obviously, more severe problems would require contracting a company that specializes in repairs of basement leaks, but it's good to try and fix it yourself if you can."

Paul's company, Home Advantage, is a free referral service that specializes in referring honest home improvement contractors in metro Detroit. His company has developed a network of local contractors, and Paul screens and checks their references, licenses and insurance and continually monitors their workmanship to ensure they are honest and reliable.

Following some simple rules can help homeowners avoid the pain of using a dishonest contractor. Paul said. He offers these seven steps to help protect home-

1. Ask for references. By doing this, homeowners receive valuable information about the contractor's workmanship. Ask the references questions such as, "How was the quality of the work?" and "Would you use the

2. Check for insurance. Make sure the contractor has valid insurance. If the contractor doesn't, and one of the workers is injured on your property, you could end up paying the medical contractor again?"

3. Ask for a written guarantee. This step is very important in case there is a discrepancy regarding workmanship or cost overruns. Get a written, detailed cost analysis before your project begins to prevent problems between you and your

4. Request a project completion schedule. Asking the contractor for a schedule that explains the tasks and timeframes for the project will help minimize construction delays.

5. Don't pay everything in advance. The only time a contractor needs money in advance is when he orders a custom, nonrefundable item for your project. Never pay more than 20 percent up front. Paying for work as it is completed helps ensure the work will be completed to your specifications.

6. Don't pick up the permit. Having the contractor pick up the building permit from your city or township serves two purposes. First, when the contractor picks up the permit from the city, it is proof that the contractor's building license is valid. Second, if there is a problem with the quality of the workmanship, you can track the company by its

7. Make your last payment after you receive a waiver of lien. A waiver of lien is a document from the contractor's supply company indicating that all your materials have been paid. If your contractor doesn't pay for your materials, then you could be held liable for the debt.

Sheds provide weather resistant storage for garden tools

(MPS) - More than ever, experts are recognizing the growing interest in gardening and a virtual explosion in outdoor living. Easy assembly is important. People who spend a lot of time outdoors don't want to spend even more time assembling things. So manufacturers like Rubbermaid have made assembly easy for the consumer. All of Rubbermaid's storage sheds are assemsystem of snap-together, interlocking panels - assembly time is estimated at less than 15 minutes.

There are four sizes of Rubbermaid's storage shed. Two vertical sheds are sized right for long handled garden tools or water skis and, with the addition of shelves, can easily be converted to a potting shed. Two horizontal sheds have top access, as well as front-door access, for easy storage of push mowers, ferbled without tools. Thanks to their tilizer, pool supplies and firewood.

Choose a lawn mower that's right for you

With spring in the air, it's time to pack up the snowblower and crank up the old lawnmower. But will your old mower make it through the spring and summer, or is it time to consider buying a new one? For many consumers, the thought of choosing a new lawnmower is intimidating. With all the different kinds of mowers on the market, how do you know which one is right for your lawn?

Size up your lawn. For large lawns of half an acre or larger, you may want to consider a tractor or riding mower. Riding mowers have an average width cut of 30 inches and 11 horsepower and cost $900 and $2,000. These tractors can be adapted to plow snow

brands include Murray and

If your yard is less than half an acre, chances are you'll be better off with a push mower. There are two types to consider: standard and self-propelled. Both range from 20 to 22 inches in width cut and have 3.5 to 6 horsepower. A self-propelled model lets you steer without straining to push it, as it virtually moves itself. This mower is ideal for hilly lawns. Standard push mowers range from $129 to $227, while self-propelled push mowers are $268 to $530.

Power it up. Next you'll need to decide on either a gas or elec-

> There are two kinds of gas mowers: a two-cycle and a fourcycle. A two-cycle mower mixes the gas and oil in one tank. The fuel is better distributed as you mow, but you must make the mixture yourself. A four-cycle gas mower places the gas and oil in two separate tanks. You'll still have to put the gas and oil in yourself, but you won't have to measure them. A four-cycle mower won't always distribute the fuel evenly on hills and may

Gas mowers are traditionally thought of as the American lawnmower of choice, but electric mowers are gaining in popularity. They don't emit exhaust fumes and won't pollute the air. Electric mowers can be either cordless or rechargeable or may come with a cord to plug into a household outlet. The cords will usually only stretch 100 feet. A cordless model only needs to be plugged in overnight, and the next day it will cut for 1.5 to 3 hours, or up to a half acre. Cordless models use less electricity than the mowers with plugs.

maintenance free. You won't need to add gas or oil. They are also very quiet. Popular brands of electric mowers include Black and Decker and Ryobi.

To mulch or not to mulch. Mulching is a process that uses grass clippings to refertilize the lawn. Mulching is easy, good for the environment and is the best source of nitrogen for the plant

To avoid the mulch leaving lines in your grass, mulching should be done on a dry day rather than when the grass is wet and heavy.

Mulch mowers are available in both gas and electric models, and almost all mowers can be adapted to mulchers with an easy to install kit.

New products for gadget gurus. Like most products today, constant improvements are making mowing easier and more enjoyable. Many mowers have a release bar which automatically shuts off the mower if you need to step

Some newer models also have a "blade brake clutch" which lets the engine run while the blade stops. This stops your from restarting the mower every time.

Some lawn mowers even come in three-speed models, allowing people of different sizes and abilities to use the same mower.

Electric mowers are generally Here's how to make your home environmentally friendly

Aside from blooming foliage ily's health and pocketbook. and drifting pollen, one of the rites of spring is a greater awareness of our fragile environment. While no one can personally stop global warming or save the ozone layer, homeowners can create "greener" surroundings with a few smart cost-saving improvements around the house.

Making a difference can be as simple as forming new habits, like recycling and composting or selecting materials that place less burden on our planet and have a positive effect on the fam-

"Wasted energy is one of the largest factors affecting our environment, with the most potential for conservation as well as costsavings," says Mark Eisen, director of environment marketing at the Home Depot. "Most houses can be made much more energy efficient with a few simple, one-time improvements, such as installing insulation, ceiling fans, thermal windows and programmable thermostats." Here are 10 simple ways to help the homeowner get started on environmental improvements around the house

Lower the flow: Just one dripping faucet can waste as much as 700 gallons of water a year. Low flow shower heads and low flush toilets (now required by law in new products) can save thousands of gallons a year in the average household.

Reduce the runoff: Soaker hose and drip irrigation systems can lower your water bills by delivering water directly where den of fertilizers and pesticides on our lakes, streams and Give nature a break: Stay in control by starting with nature's own methods to beat the bugs. Attract birds with birdhouses, feeders and natural backyard wildlife habits to help reduce pests. Bug lights, screening, citronella candles and insecticidal soaps are other less-toxic alternatives that will keep visitors

Try branching out: For an all-around environmental boost, plant a tree. When properly sited, trees and other landscaping can save up to 30 percent in home cooling and heating costs.

Down the drain: Install a kitchen garbage disposal to rinse away bones and other food wastes that are not suitable for composting. Keep all of your drains flowing with biodegradable enzyme products that are safer to more comfortable while you save on heating and cooling costs. Upgrading and properly maintaining your home air filters is easy and helps improve indoor air quality. Vented range hoods and room exhaust fans also help remove smoke, moisture, airborne bacteria and other indoor pollutants.

Clear the air: Tune up your systems to make family

Get the lead out: It is believed that more than 58 million homes built before 1978 in the United States and Canada contain lead-based paints. To reduce lead hazards in your home and protect your family during any home renovation, Home Depot is offering a free information sheet "Reducing Lead Hazards When Remodeling Your Home."

Why wait to insulate: Upgrading your insulation to a higher R-value can lower energy costs dramatically. Start with insulating the attic and unheated crawl spaces. Sealing ducts, caulking and weatherstripping reduce energy loss even more. A "Smart Choice" flier, which outlines additional ways and products to make the home greener, is available at Home Depot.

Valassis starts work on new site

Valassis Communications Inc. broke ground for its new corporate headquarters on May 15.

The ceremony was at the construction site, at I-275 and Seven Mile Road, in Victor Corporate Park, Livonia.

"This is an exciting project for our organization. We have grown from an entrepreneurial company which began out of our founder's home over 25 years ago, to one of the largest sales promotion companies in the world," David A. Brandon, Valassis' president and chief executive officer, said. "As the lease for our current facility was approaching expiration, we began researching the most efficient and effective facility plan for our corporate headquarters. We researched options in Plymouth, Ann Arbor and Livonia. We have chosen Livonia _ an area in which most of our employees live, and an area Valassis has been proud to call home for 18 years.

"I am very pleased that Valassis Communications is locating its new corporate headquarters in Livonia's Victor Corporate Park," Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey said. "Valassis is a valued corporate citizen, involved in the city, schools and community in many ways. Valassis has sponsored scholarships and has welcomed student co-ops in their business. CEO David Brandon is also active with the St. Mary Hospital board of directors.'

Cedar lookalikes are in many styles

Q: My husband and I are going to be reroofing and we keep hearing about shingles that look like cedar or slate. How do these differ from the standard shingles that we have on our home now?

A: Shingles that look like cedar or slate are sometimes referred to as dimensional shingles or architectural shingles. They have either a fiberglass or an asphalt base and are usually laminated together which gives the effect of the real thing without the high price sticker. The warranties on these "dimensional shingles" vary from 25-40 years. There are many manufacturers with a wide variety of color options also. Some brands are very rustic looking, such as a cedar shake, while others have more of a uniform appearance such as cedar shingle. Depending on the color selected, a person can choose between an old weathered shake or a brand new looking shake. There is even a color that has gray and red tones to simulate an old slate roof. It is rather difficult to select a color from a few shingles and therefore it is best to ask your contractor for a few references in your neighborhood where you can see the complete finished project.

perfect time for having Sandwich Soirees. What qualifies as a sandwich? A sandwich s combined with bread "sandwiched' between slices, or put in a pocket (pita bread)

Tramezzini and Muffaleta may be two fairly new ones in the forefront - not really new, but new to many Americans. Both Italian in origin, both unique and different in their approach Tramezzini are small Italian sandwiches made with a highquality crustless white bread - many times filled with pesto and cheese. Italian Muffaletta is a traditional sandwich made from a whole round loaf of bread filled with wonderful stuffings of cheese, meats, vegetable and drizzled with a vinaigrette

The Earl of Sandwich is attributed with the invention of the sandwich, whilst in the midst of a long gambling session, he would not leave the gaming table for a meal, and requested his manservant to bring him a hunk of beef between two slices of bread.

Here are some suggestions that can

BLACK AND WHITE TRAMEZZINO

Ingredients for Black Olive Pesto: 1 cup black olives, in brine

2 cloves garlic, peeled

Olive oil 2 teaspoons lemon zest

Capers, drained Directions for Pesto:

Drain the olives and stone them - place them in a blender or food processor - add the garlic and process. Continue to process until it is the desired texture you want, either coarse or smooth, adding enough olive oil to make the pesto dense. Scrape the bowl with a rubber spatula and place the olive mixture in a clean bowl - adding the lemon zest and as many capers as you desire (1 tablespoon or more). Cover the bowl and refrigerate until needed - this recipe will keep for several weeks Ingredients for sandwich:

MUFFALETTA

Ingredients:

3 tablespoons of olive oil

1 eggplant (weighing approximately) pound), cut into inch thick slices)

Salt and freshly ground black pepper 1 Italian loaf of round bread (weighing approximately 1 pound) Vinaigrette (any type of your choosing-homemade or prepared)

6 ounces mozzarella or provolone cheese

Seedless cucumber sliced thin (the long English type)

Preheat the oven to 425 degrees and generously grease a baking sheet with and place them in a colander and let drain for one half hour, Rinse the eggplant under cool running water, drain and Brush the eggplant slices with olive oil and place in a single layer on the greased baking sheet. Bake until the eggplant is soft and nicely browned (approximately 20 minutes). Remove eggplant from the oven and let cool.

While the eggplant is cooling, take the round loaf of Italian bread and cut off a lid. Remove the inside bread and hollow out leaving approximately inch of bread attached to the crust.

Brush the inside of the bread loaf generously with your vinaigrette. Fill the inside of the loaf with the slices of cooked eggplant, slices of meats, cheese, and cucumber slices - when all of the ingredients are used, season with salt, pepper and drizzling of vinaigrette - repeat the process until the entire loaf is filled and is brimming over the top - place on the lid and press down to join the lid with the bowl of the bread. Cover the entire bread bowl with plastic wrap and then cover in foil. Refrigerate 18-24 hours.

Unwrap and cut into wedges for serving. Yields 4 servings.

HOME SPAS: WATERS WORK WONDERS

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

Imagine yourself soaking in a tub of hot whirling water without a care in the world. No need to plan a vacation to a far-away resort in order to enjoy a half-hour lounging in waters hovering around 104 degrees. As more and more people realize there's nothing like a hot soaking to rejuvenate the mind and body at the end of the day, sales of home spas continue to surge.

For thousands of years, man has known about the benefits of soaking in hot waters. Ancient civilizations such as the Greeks, Romans, Chinese and Japanese valued the therapeutic and restorative properties of hydrotherapy so greatly that thermal baths became an essential element of daily life. In more modern time although still centuries ago in Spa, a resort in Belgium, people used the town's hot springs to renew themselves alleviating stress, fatigue and depression through the wonders of waters.

Today even European governments, with the exception of the British, believe in the benefits of spas. A national health insurance system enables almost anyone with a signed form from their physician not only to visit a spa for a cure, but be entirely reimbursed for expens-

Livonia couple installed a spa in their patio, then enclosed it with glass for winter and screens for summer, when it doubles as a pool.

"It's so therapeutic. What makes it so nice is that it has jets and recliners. We can lay down and get a massage on everything from your back to your feet if you have stress or sore muscles," Lee Alanskas said.

"But the best part is it's totally relaxing. When you get out all your cares seep away."

Steve Bishop, owner of Pools-a-Go-Go in Berkley, uses his outdoor spa in the dead of winter for the same reasons as the Alanskases. During a recent same reasons as the Alanskases. During a recent snowstorm, which dumped nearly six inches on the metro area, Bishop and his wife invited another couple to take a dip after work. The ideal 104-degree temperature eliminates any chill one feels once submerged in the water.

good. I go nome and de-stress but a lot of people like to entertain," Bishop said.
"Our sales (of spas) are increasing every year.
They've been around for 20 years but they aren't what they are today. Today, they're portable with multi-hydrojets and LCD readouts. If you're moving you can take them with you."

CHARLES CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERT

How to choose a spa In the 1950s and '60s creative Californians recycled wooden wine vats into hot tubs. Today the choice of spas overwhelms shoppers. Soft-sided or acrylic? Bishop sells both. But what should you choose? There are a lot of factors to take into consideration. What is your price range? Costs for a spa run from $2,500 for the soft-sided to $10,000 for a deluxe acrylic model with 25 jets.

To determine your needs, ask: Will the spa be used indoors or outdoors? In privacy for its therapeutic value or in groups for enter-

Despite Michigan's cold climate, only one in 100 customers at Fireplace & Spa in Canton opt for an indoor location, said salesperson Gary Novak. Most install the acrylic Cal Spas in decks or on patios.

"As far as safety concerns, make sure the spa is UL listed. The thickness of material is important to prevent cracking and the more insulation the better because water transfers heat faster than air. The better the insulation, the lower the cost to run."

Fireplace & Spa locations in Southfield, Utica and Canton also carry gazebos to enclose a backyard spa. They are designed for privacy and to eliminate such elements as weather and mosquitoes. A Japanese bath house style would fit right in with an Oriental garden in the back yard.

Safety first

Even if you're in good health, never spend more than 1/2-hour in a spa. Because of its effect on the body, people with medical problems should consult their physician first.

"People with high blood pressure should check with their doctor, because the hot water does raise the heart rate," Novak said.

For homes with children, locking caps or covers are available to keep the spa securely covered when not

"The New Gardener: The Practical Guide to Gardening Basics," Pippa Greenwood (Dorling Kindersley, $24.95), is for new gardeners as well as seasoned ones. Ideas for all types of gardens are included and each subject, from lawns to greenhouses, dividing, planting and trellises to patios, is skillfully explained and demonstrated with drawings and photos. Bright, very organized pages are packed full of information that works.

"The Wild Lawn Handbook," Stevie Daniels (Macmillan, $27.95), is the book for those who wish to convert a traditional lawn into more informal style that will attract wildlife and require less water, chemicals and care. This isn't for those who think that by accomplished, but rather for those who stamp decoration, three years or more - and the dedicated energy in order to realize their goal.

Daniels has tackled the subject with some historical facts a realistic attitude and lots of information and interviewed people across the country to find out how they changed their landscapes. She even has cautioned about local ordinances, and given sources for plants and seeds as well as organizations that can give advice. We are in the Eastern Woodlands area according to her map and many, many native plants are available. A very thorough and important book the "lawn" of the future is here.

"365 Days of Gardening," Christine Allison (Harper Collins, $17.95), contains more than 1,000 bits of information that you may find useful: tips from long ago, inspirational thoughts, practical facts - i.e., continuously remove lower leaves of Brussels sprouts, early in the day so they will snap off easiest, to encourage heads to keep forming higher up the stalk. And use holiday wrap cylinders for making biodegradable collars to protect plants from cutworms... All garden subjects are covered from vegetables to ornamentals.

bring home those winning shots. · Make sure you're thoroughly familiar with all the controls and features on your camera. Even reread the instruction manual. Practice with a roll before you leave and become an expert at changing film and lenses correctly · Travel light, but don't leave an important piece of equipment home. In addition to your camera and normal lens, a wide angle and moderate telephoto will cover most picture taking situations. You'll find zoom lenses very beneficial on a trip. A small flash unit and collapsible tripod will come in handy and a polarizer filter will add important impact in your scenic shots.

· Film? Take enough to get you through the trip, usually a roll per day. Decide in advance if you prefer print or slide film and select a minimum speed that will enable you to cope with a vari-

Area contractors and architects played major roles in most of the projects designated as 1996 construction and design winners in an annual program sponsored by the Engineering Society of Detroit.

The winners included a church, house, stadium and factory.

"Every other competitive award program is based on a singular focus," said Karl Greimel, professor or architecture at Lawrence Technological University and chairman of the awards program.

"In this instance, we expect some member of the team to be a member of ESD. Beyond that, the breadth and depth of choice is greater than any other award program I'm familiar

"That's what gives this program such integrity, strength and importance," Greimel added. "Choice is made entirely on quality and satisfaction of criteria.

Criteria included quality of overall design, innovative construction techniques, land use/environment consideration, materials, unique engineering systems, energy consciousness, and social/economic impact.

Judges from the Cleveland Engineering Society designated a record number of submissions, 14, for

This is the first unmanned vehicle durability test facility in North America. It includes a 1.3 mile test track of two surfaces, one of concrete and stretches of unlevel granite blocks, the other paved with diagonal stretches. A 12,000-square-foot building is part of the site.

With no human drivers, increased testing consistency and decreased testing time are great advantages.

Michigan ranks 3rd in floriculture sales

Michigan placed third nationally in value of wholesale sales of floriculture products in 1995, according to the Federal/State Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service. Only California and Florida reported larger sales than Michigan.

Reports from Michigan's 566 commercial growers indicated an estimated wholesale value of over $184 million for all surveyed floriculture crops, up 10 percent from last week. This estimate includes summarized sales data as reported by growers with $100,000 or more in sales plus a calculated wholesale value of sales for operations with sales from $10,000 to $99,999. Crop category breakdowns for Michigan operations with over $100,000 in sales and the percent change from 1994 were as follows:

First, bedding/garden plants with $131 million in sales, up 12 percent; second, flowering potted plants with $26.2 million in sales, up 7 percent; third, cut flowers with $10.2 million in sales, down 6 percent; and fourth, foliage for indoor or patio use with $3.8 million in sales, up 5 percent.

Michigan leads the nation in value of sales for five floriculture crops. They are:

- Potted geraniums (seed) with 18.8 million pots sold, valued at $13.7 million.
- Potted geraniums (cuttings) with 5.7 million pots sold, valued at $9.4 million.
- Potted Easter lilies with 1.4 million pots sold, valued at $4.6 million.

- ■Bedding New Guinea impatiens with 102,000 flats sold, valued at $961,000.
- ■Cut sweetheart roses with 1.5 million blooms sold, valued at $741,000.

Total greenhouse cover for all operations in the state rose 3 percent to 32.1 million square feet. This includes both rigid and film plastic greenhouses as well as glass greenhouses. Only California and Florida have more total greenhouse cover.

Nationally, the value of floriculture crops continued to increase in 1995 but at a slower pace. The total value of all crops at wholesale for all growers over $10,000 of sales is estimated at $3.27 billion for 1995 compared to $3.25 billion in 1994

Area in production for the 36 states totaled 843 million square feet over cover area and 27,155 acres of open ground in 1995. The largest valued products were bedding and garden plants which increased 3 percent in 1995. At $1.32 billion, this category contributed 44 percent of the total wholesale value of production for operations over $100,000 in

Last week we discussed the advantages of fixed rate and adjustable rate mortgages to meet different financial needs. examine other mortgage options.

Two Step Mortgage®

The Two-Step is a special type of adjustablerate mortgage because it adjusts only once - either at seven years of at five years. After the initial adjustment, the mortgage maintains a fixed rate for the remaining 23 or 25 years of a 30-year mortgage repayment term. For example, if your initial interest rate was 8 percent, you would pay that rate for the first seven (or five) years. Then, for the remaining 23 (or 25) years you would pay an interest rate that is indexed to the value of the 10year Treasury security on the adjustment date. This new rate can never be more than 6 percentage points higher than your old rate. There is no limits on self or refinance your home within a few years and how much lower the adjusted interest rate can be. The Two-Step provides the benefit of initial low rates with the stability of longer term financing. If you continue living in your home beyond the loan adjustment date, the Two-Step offers the assurance of a fixed rate for the remaining term of the loan. At the adjustment date, there is no additional refinancing cost, no forms to complete and no requalification necessary.

Balloon mortgages

Balloon loans offer lower interest rates for shorter term financing, usually five, seven or 10 years. At the end of this term. they require refinancing or paying off the outstanding balance with a lump sum payment. Balloon mortgages may be suitable if you plan to sell or refinance your home within a few years and want a fixed, low monthly payment. The advantage they offer is an interest rate that is lower than fully amortizing fixed-rate mortgages, including 15-year mortgages and Two-Step mortgages. For example, your initial interest rate may be 7.5 percent, and you would pay that rate for the first five, seven or 10 years (depending on the terms of your balloon loan). Then, your entire outstanding loan balance would be due to the lender - or you might have to pay a fee to refinance your loan at the prevailing interest rate. However, ask about all the conditions for a refinance option at the end of the balloon term. With some balloon mortgages, the lender doesn't guarantee to extend the loan past the balloon date. If you don't feel you will be able to meet all the refinance conditions or think the balloon term may be up before you are ready to move,

Fannie Mae's Community Home Buyer's Program. These loans allow you to use a greater percentage of your income toward monthly housing expenses (income/debt ratios of 33/28 percent versus traditional ratios of 28/36 percent), and they don't require you to have two months of cash in reserve at closing. In some areas, these loans have income limit restrictions. You may find these flexible mortgage loans helpful because you don't have to rely on a traditional credit history report to demonstrate that you are a good candidate for a mortgage. You can show you have a good credit history using your rent and utility Government-insured loans. You may want to consider the mortgage plans offered by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), the Department of Veter-

Home Administration (FmHA). FHA and VA loans were discussed in my recent columns but to summarize, properties purchased under these programs must meet certain minimum standards and possible loan limits. FHA-insured loans offer very low down payments (3 to 5 percent). VA guaranteed mortgages with no down payment are available to qualified veterans. You must get a certificate of eligibility from the Department of Veterans Affairs for a VA loan. The quaranteed rural housing program offered by FmHA is for people who meet certain lower income requirements and wish to buy a home in a rural area. This government-guaranteed loan requires no down payment. This week's question:

Q: We are selling our home ourselves. What is the best way to make sure that a prospective buyer is qualified for a mortgage?

A: When selling a home by owner, you must wear the different hats the real estate agent usually wears when representing you, one of which is to pre-screen sure they are qualified for the necessary financing. The real estate agent will request a pre-approval letter or a pre-qualification letter (not as strong as a pre-approval letter) from a mortgage lender. After receiving it, she would call the loan officer or lender who issued the letter to verify that the lender is reputable and ask how long it would take to close the loan if they foresee any hitches etc. This is the same approach you should take. Another option is to recommend to the buyers a lender for prescreening that you are comfortable with.

Here's how to fix driveway cracks

Many homeowners discover cracks appearing in driveways, sidewalks, foundations and basement floors for no apparent reason.

"Cracks can occur when expansion joints or reinforcement wire are not used in the original construction," said Mark Wacho, a building materials specialist with Home Depot. "It's important to repair cracks when they're small. If they are not repaired, they can grow longer and deeper. When this happens in a driveway, for instance, water seeping through the crack can erode the soil underneath and cause the slab to Unfilled cracks in driveways and sidewalks also are an open invitation to wild vegetation which can grow in the cracks and make them larger.

Cracks in basement allow moisture to enter the home from soil behind the foundational walls or from underneath the floor. In addition, cracks are an open door into your home for ants and other insects which live in the ground. And, whether inside or outside the home, cracks in concrete are unsightly and pose a danger. Even a slight difference in height between the two sides of the crack on the floor can cause someone to trip and fall. So, if it's cracked, fill it. Here's how.

For horizontal cracks, pour sand into the crack to within half an inch of the surface.

Mix vinyl-reinforced concrete or prepare a Portland cement/water paste with enough sand added to make it gritty.

Trowel the mixture into the crack, overfilling slightly, then feather it out even with the surface.

For the vertical cracks, use the same procedure, except that the first concrete mixture should be troweled in a thickness of one quarter to onehalf inches and allowed to dry.

Then, apply additional layers until the crack is slightly overfilled, then premix feather it out with the surface.

To repair pop-ups, use a ball-peen hammer and masonry chisel to chip out the rocks at the bottom of the pop-up hole.

One important thing to remember throughout the repair process is future prevention. Many problems of concrete cracking, chipping, crumbling and pop-outs, are due to improper installation. Remember to have the proper water-to-concrete mix and a slower drying process is almost always advisable. You can slow the drying process by covering new concrete with plastic.

Board's assessment discount may be illegal provide that annual statements shall be payable by the coowners in 12 equal monthly installments. My question to you is can the board of the association establish a discount for this assessment if paid in January 1996 for the full year. The discount that they are giving is approximately 5 percent. The board claims that they are doing this for the convenience of the treasurer for deposit and investing more funds earlier because of our up north location. However, CDs only pay 3 percent to 3.5 per-

To make things worse, the board has recently increased our monthly assessment to begin in

Q: Our bylaws January to meet budget requirements, but then, somehow, decides that it wants to discount the monthly assessment if paid in advance. In short, we are money short per budget requirements necessitating an increase in the monthly assessments and yet our board offers a discount to be paid up front, losing substantial sums for the year if the monies are paid. I presented this information to the board on several occasions but to no avail. Does this make sense? Is it legal to discount condominium monthly assessments? A:It is an interesting question which you have posed, the answer to which in part depends upon the express provisions of the condominium documents. You have indicated in your question that the assessments are to be paid in 12 equal monthly installments. The board has apparently established a policy, however, that it will provide a discount if the payments are paid early. Presumably, the board has the > of discount for assessments, as long as same is fiscally responsible and authorized, either expressly or implicitly, by the condominium documents. I would suggest that the board would be on firmer ground in providing a discount if the documents provide for same expressly, authorizing the board to do so. Absent such an express authorization, the board's authority to provide a discount for early payment may be questionable since there is no prohibition on a co-owner paying his assessment early, even if they are due on a month to month basis and there is no concomitant obligation on the part of the association to grant such a discount. I have seen situations where boards have levied additional or special assessments with the proviso that it would be discounted if paid early. Of course, that was within the express board's authority to levy the terms and conditions of an additional assessment, whereas your documents may provide more specifically the terms and conditions for payment of the annual assessment on a monthly basis. To say the least, the board's decision may not be fiscally responsible and may be legally impermissible. However, again, it is necessary to review the documents in detail before a comprehensive opinion can be provided.

authority to establish some sort

Q: We put in trees in the back of our house approximately 38 years ago, believing that the trees were on our property. Now we find out, after having a survey, that the trees are actually on our neigh-bor's property. He has only lived there two years. We have maintained these trees all these years. Do we have a chance to retain our trees. The neighbor put up a fence to assert his claim to the property.

A: You may have a basis for adverse possession of the property if you meet the requirements set forth in the law. I would recommend that you consult with an attorney who can gather all of the facts, including the nature of your maintenance of the trees over these years and how far the encroachment is on the property.
