Farrow, Givens win board slots

A victory on Monday by Elizabeth Givens in the Plymouth-Canton school board election now gives Canton a major say on the board. Turnout was light in Monday's

BY M.B. DILLON

For the first time in the history of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, a majority of Board of Education members will be Canton Township residents.

Political newcomer Elizabeth Givens of Canton was the top votegetter in Monday's school election, outpacing incumbent Jack Farrow of Plymouth, who was re-elected.

Givens joins Canton residents Mark Horvath, Sue Davis and David Artley. Besides Farrow, Plymouth trustees are Carrie Blamer and Michael Mahoney

The winners - both of whom were endorsed by the Plymouth-Canton Education Association - received 1,207 votes and 1,085 votes respectively. Givens captured 12 precincts;

Farrow seven. Their terms expire in the year 2000.

Paul Schrauben of Canton was third with 892 votes. Jeff Phillips of Plymouth was close behind with 811

Election night wasn't very festive for the victors. Both attended a marathon school board meeting that ended after midnight.

Givens, a freelance writer for SEND International of Farmington Hills, received the good tidings from Phillips, who called Givens out of the meeting to give her the totals and congratulate her.

Givens said the numbers didn't arrogant, but I think that - despite the lack of the newspapers' endorsement - I am well-known in the district. People know what I stand for."

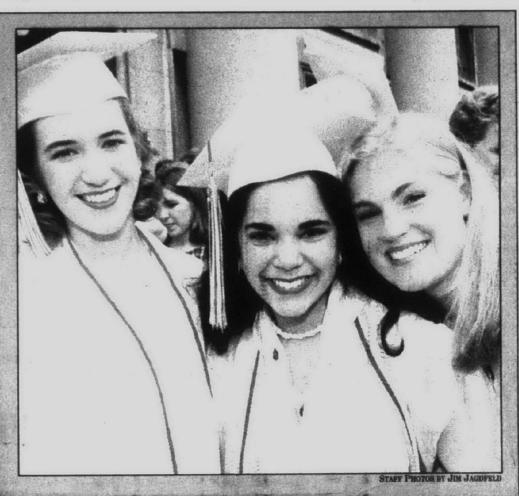

Givens said her strongest support came from the Community School Council, and was districtwide.

"I've been building bridges for 15 years, working side by side with people," she said. "Those are the ones who come out and vote."

Like Givens, Farrow said he didn't mind dedicating election night to school business. "It was easier on

Graduates celebrate end of an era

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education, administration, faculty, parents, friends and community congratu-lated some 860 students from both Plymouth Canton High School and Plymouth Salem High School at two commencement ceremonies at Hill Auditorium, in Ann Arbor.

Charles Little Superintendent said: "Graduates, the future is now as you many have seen today the torch is passed. Carry from that flame into the future with courage, optimism and a strong work ethic."

The speakers at the Plymouth

Canton graduation were Steve Marsh, Canton teacher, Melissa Anne Lomibao and Dante L. Tucker, senior class co-presidents; Erica A. Pendergrass, senior class speaker, and Patricia M. Patton, Principal. Board members David Artley, Susan Davis, Jack Farrow, and Barbara Graham presented the

Mark Horvath, Michael Maloney, and Carrie Blamer presented the

In his presentation, Salem Principal Gerald Ostoin said: "Those timid nervous days of kindergarten are now replaced with concerns for the adult world. A voyage that began 12 years ago is coming to an end. Believe it or not, this is one of your shorter voyages. Your ulti-mate evaluation will come some 60 years or so from now when you are judged by how you responded as a family member, by your job performance in the work place and by how you treated other people."

"There are things that never change like honesty, and character. Character is a combination of your attributes including ethical strength, integrity and fortitude these distinguish one person from another," he added.

He concluded with a quote from Barbara Bush: "Your success as a family, our success as a society depends not on what happens in the White House, but what hap-pens inside your house."

Plymouth Jaycees make membership gains

BY KEVIN BROWN

After some years of slow growth, the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees and Jaycee groups around the country are rebounding.

The Jaycees also put on the July 4 parade and fireworks, and they plan some changes this year, said Plymouth-Canton President Kathy Pumphrey.

"We're having the Plymouth-Canton high schools' band in there for the first time in years," she said, adding the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps and a drum corps alumni group will also perform.

She's also talked with the Detroit Whalers hockey team to organize a float for the parade.

Of Jaycee membership here and around the country, "It is starting to come back," Pumphrey said. Some have speculated that the rise in the number of working women could have had something to do with a decrease in Jaycee membership.

There are 140 Plymouth-Canton Jaycees members. A new board of directors was elected in mid-May and Pumphrey said some changes are happening.

"We've taken a new direction, before we had so many projects running but the attendance and how they were done is not as good as what we liked," she said. "We decided to slow it down and make sure we have quality.'

"I think the Fourth of July parade will be a good example of that, I think the parade and the fireworks will be the best we've had in a long

Township Playscape volunteers to be honored

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Just over a year ago, parents used to complain about a lack of outdoor play areas in Plymouth for their young kids.

That was before Kim Mizzi and Marybeth Yanik organized the Plymouth Dream Playscape project. Built by 2,500 volunteers in May 1995, the wooden structure at Plymouth Township Park gives kids an opportunity to climb, swing, slide and do plenty more.

To honor their work in organizing the effort to build the structure, the township government is honoring Yanik and Mizzi at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the park. "They saw a need and rather than come in and gripe to government they went out and raised a great deal of money and got a lot of people organized. They need to be recognized for that," said Jim Anulewicz, township public services director.

From May 17-21 last year, volunteers cut and carried lumber, sank support poles into the ground, fastened together finished sections, provided meals for workers and more. But those building days were preceded by months of planning and fund-raising to pay for materials and the consultant's services.

Now, the former dirt areas trampled by the muddy boots of volunteers are covered in green grass. And ever since kids were turned loose to play on the structure, it's been a popular place for play and for parents to meet.

Mizzi said one offshoot of the project is the friendships that have formed. A few months ago, the 13 playscape committee members got together just to see each other.

Police catch suspect after high-speed chase

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

A Canton police stakeout of a township golf shop paid off Monday as a man was caught with arms full of golf clubs and captured after a high-speed chase down Joy Road and I-96.

Police had been watching Pro Golf on Lilley just south of Joy because it was broken into three times recently, said Canton Detective Leonard Wolons.

At 2:54 a.m. Monday Canton officer Mike Steckel watched the business from the Mettetal Airport driveway when he noticed two men on the sidewalk.

Steckel said one man threw something through the golf shop's window

Sgt. Bob Antal of the Plymouth Township Police Department arrived to help and saw a man running with three sets of golf clubs.

The man ran north into the woods as Antal radioed another Plymouth Township officer, Bill Fetner. He saw a man get into a 1991 Buick Skylark and drive

Fetner gave chase, as did Plymouth Township officer Mike Lego and a Wayne County Sher-

The suspect drove east on Joy Road, but police lost him in the vicinity of Wayne Road.

A citizen called Canton police from his vehicle to say the man they were chasing was in front

Livonia police joined the chase and the suspect, a 35-year-old Detroit man was eventually arrested after his car struck a street sweeper in Livonia.

Township police lose shotgun from vehicle

Police shotgun was lost briefly near the township department of public works yard on Monday, before a citizen turned it

While transferring equipment from police vehicles the loaded shotgun was left on the trunk lid of a scout car, police said. It turned up missing after the car was driven away at about 1 p.m., and an extensive search of the area failed to turn up the gun.

Police said the Remington 870 shotgun was found a few minutes after 1 p.m. by a resident, who called police to turn

Cash taken

The thief who broke into a restaurant at 413 N. Main and stole cash, a phone and an adding machine pilfered a couple pies while he was at it.

The pies, valued at $5 apiece and missing from a glass cooler, "were identified as one blueberry, and one cherry," Plymouth police reported.

Also missing is $600 in cash.

The owner of the Grecian Corner restaurant noticed pry marks around the door upon returning to his building early

The Casio adding machine was valued at $75, and the Panasonic speaker phone at.

Desk drawers in the office and the cash register were left

The light outside the restaurant had been tampered with.

A Plymouth Township The loosened bulb was turned over to police.

There are no suspects at this time.

Gas theft

The driver of a green, fullsized van who pulled into the Hop In gas station at about 2 a.m. June 4 hopped out after filling up with unleaded gas. The motorist pumped 13 gallons of fuel and owed $17.

The clerk on duty couldn't describe the suspect.

Impersonation

Plymouth police arrested a 33-year-old Detroit woman after a traffic stop near Ann Arbor Road and Main Street.

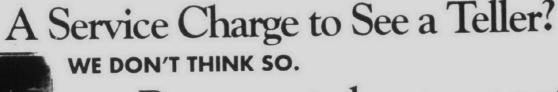

Police said her 1981 gray Buick was very loud, and that her brake light wasn't working. The driver claimed she had no identification or driver's license, even though she carried a large purse, officers

After the woman gave four false names and failed to produce a driver's license, she was arrested and handcuffed. Police found a half-full Seagrams whiskey bottle in a paper bag on the front seat. A crack pipe was on the floorboard, and three more pipes were in her purse, police said.

Attempted burglary

Central Middle School officials reported that someone tried to break into the school at Main and Church streets on May 31.

The assistant principal noticed a screen in the back of the school was bent.

That pack of wild dogs reported in Plymouth Township is apparently down from four dogs to two, but they're still wrecking havoc.

On June 1 two dogs in an open area behind the Assembly of God church on North Territorial Road attacked a yellow Labrador owned by a Plymouth Township couple, the dog's owner said.

Therese Gall said she was running her dog Meg in the area. "One of the dogs stuck their head out of the woods and then disappeared," Gall said.
"We continued our walk towards the creek and then two doe showed up in the field and the two dogs came out of the woods," she said.

"Meg started to chase the deer, then she decided to go play with the dogs and they turned on her," Gall said.

"All I heard was the noise. They had run over the hill toward the creek, I heard these dog screams and they were Meg's dog screams."

Therese Gall

She described one dog as lean, black and shep-herd-like. The other was a motley brown and black mixture.

"All I heard was the noise. They had run over the hill towards the creek, I heard these dog screams and they were Meg's dog screams," Gall

"As I went toward that area she came running back and couldn't wait to get home. She had probably six or eight puncture wounds, I cleaned her up myself," she said.

"I think people should be warned especially if they tie their dogs," Gall said.

"I called the township police and they said they are still looking for them," Gall said, adding a neighbor spotted the dogs standing in a driveway.

Police Chief Carl Berry said that since the dogs were first known to have attacked and killed a cat near the public services yard in Plymouth _ they're also suspected of killing a deer _ the town-ship police have killed one of the dogs.

He declined to elaborate on how the dog was killed, Berry said that while township police aren't making special runs to find the dogs, "Our officers while on general patrol are looking out for these animals."

Asked if she favors killing the dogs, Gall said, "I don't know what they should do, it's not my deci-

Berry said his department "has only had a cou-ple of calls in the last two or three weeks" from people sighting the dogs.

Recent callers have spotted the dogs in a range of locations on the township, from the Five Mile Road-North Territorial area to Beck Road.

Parents make plea for alternative education program in high schools

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

The community can expect more young people to turn to drugs and alcohol and to drop out of school if an alternative high school program called Journey isn't continued and expanded, parents and students told the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education Monday night.

The program, with a student-teacher ratio of 12-1, was piloted this year for 50 ninth-graders at Starkweather Center.

More than 200 people signed a petition, reiterating their request that the board extend Journey into 10th grade. School officials say there's not enough money to do so.

Dozens of Journey students and parents attended Monday's meeting. Among them was ninthgrader Stephani Hootman, who told trustees that Journey has turned her life around.

"This school has meant so much to me. My grades have went up. I have taken an interest in my work. Those things seemed like a curse to me just last year. I never did my work. Now you wanna shove us back with the crowd and uncaring teachers? I don't think so. No way. I want to stay, if I have to redo the ninth grade and flunk to come back. I love this school." An emotional Hootman said the kids and teachers at Journey are "like a family. We're staying as far away from trouble and drugs and cigarettes as Steve Queen, a parent on Journey's advisory board, said an expanded Journey "can stem the tide of dropouts.

"What makes it work is each student is made to feel valued. What greater thing could be taught? To throw them back into what they consider an educational abyss (Plymouth-Canton Educational Park) is wrong. To reduce a child to a statistic is wrong. Lip service doesn't save kids; action does."

Dennis Marquess said Journey parents are getting the run-around from the administrators and the board. "We need someone to take some leadership. We are going to promise to keep pushing. We are not going to go away." Parent Leslie Queen said, "These kids deserve an answer. No one has told them what is going to happen to them. They deserve nurturing and understanding from all of us."

Adele Aichler said Journey rescued her son. "I had started planning for his early death or jail; that's how badly things deteriorated. He's changed so dramatically I hardly believe it's my Another parent urged the board to place the issue on its June 24 agenda. "You need to address this. Other districts across the state and nation Superintendent Charles Little said the district simply can't afford another Journey class, nor is there space. "On Wednesday, administrators are meeting at the Park. They're looking for ways to smooth the transition. That's where it is at this Board president David Artley said, "The solution has to come from the Park. They are the adminis-

Board treasurer Mike Maloney commended those who've made Journey a success

"Unfortunately, we are strapped for resources in terms of space. I challenge you all to try to look for solutions within the system."

Trustee Sue Davis said, "I'm a little bit amazed people are asking us for direction. I was under the impression someone was directed to solve this

"The reason this program was successful is that it was a 'bubble-up' (staff-conceived) program,' said Little. "That's where the solution lies.

Trustee Barbara Graham said, "This concerns me. We've recognized special needs for special education and talented and gifted students. We've always had kids drop out, but we haven't been able to address it. I do believe this has to be a priority. I would be happier with a Journey program that is successful than with another brand new high

"If kids don't get the help they need now, we'll be spending two, three and four times more when they're on drugs and everything that goes with it,"

Trustee Jack Farrow suggested taking the perpupil revenue of $5,270, multiplied by 50 students, and handing it over to Journey for a 10th grade. Little said the money wouldn't come close to covering costs, nor would it be fair when class sizes at the high schools are in the thirties. "That's the cold bucket of water we are dealing with," Little said.

Senate votes to ban 'partial-birth' abortions

The state Senate on a 28-8 vote followed the House's lead by adopting a bill to ban so-called "partial-birth" abortions.

"The bill has more to do with politics than policy," objected Sen. Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township. Peters offered an amendment which contained a medical definition that was more narrowly crafted, but it was voted down

Sen. Dianne Byrum, D-Onondaga, opposed the bill saying "it has never been done in

"How do you know?" demanded Sen. Joe Gougeon, R-Bay City, the bill's floor manager. There are no reports. The statistics aren't sent in."

Area senators voting yes included all Republicans plus seven Democrats, including John Cherry of Clio and George A. Hart of Dearborn. Eight Democrats voted no, including Peters and Alma Wheeler Smith

The Senate completed work on a two-bill package proscribing same-sex marriages. approved, 31-2, a House bill by Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, under which Michigan would refuse to recognize samesex marriages performed in other states.

Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith, D-Salem, was the only area law-

Whyman sees the package as a 'pre-emptive" strike against Hawaii, which is expected to allow such marriages. Without her bill, Michigan might be forced to recognize them. Smith, however, argues the Whyman bill violates a section of the U.S. Constitution requiring states to give "full faith and credit" to each other's laws.

The bills go to Gov. John Engler for his signature.

Belts secondary

The Senate passed its version of a speed-limit law after rejecting a hotly-debated seat belt amendment.

Senators rejected, 8-25, an amendment making failure to use seat belts a "primary" offense. Since Michigan passed its seat belt law a decade ago, a police officer may issue a noseat-belt ticket only after stopping a driver for another reason.

"Every one of you has lost constituents due to not wearing seat belts," said Sen. Joel Geugeon, R-Bay City, sponsor of the amendment. "Secondary enforceCAPITOL CAPSULES

Opposed besides Bouchard were Sens. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, Mike Rogers, R-Brighton, Alma Smith, D-Salem, and John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek.

Gougeon sought to attach the seat belt provision to House Bill 5123 (S-4), which would raise speed limits on freeways. The Senate passed the bill and sent back to the House, which concurred in amendments. As enact-

Low voter turnout plagues school board election

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

There were far fewer "haves" than "have nots" in Plymouth-Canton Monday.

June 10 was election day, and an informal poll of residents found just a tiny percentage of folks who said "I've voted today."

Of the district's 60,000 voters, just 3.6 percent, or 2,182 people, cast ballots.

Some theorized turnout was unusually low because only Plymouth-Canton school board candidates were on the ballot. There. were no other races, and no millage or bond proposals to decide. Others said this is such a hectic time of year there just isn't time to go to the polls.

What are we voting on today? I do care about the school district; it's silly for me not to care. It just slipped right by me," said Rick Wilsdon, a Canton resident visiting the Heritage Park playscape with his kids. Wilsdon said he sends his two sons to a private school that teaches phon-

Itcel Mostert, a mom also at the playscape, just moved to

Canton from Mexico and said she isn't registered yet.

Monica Pecoraro, coordinating a clean up of the playscape Monday afternoon, said she didn't vote - but not because she doesn't care about the schools.

"I'm usually pretty up on things," said the young mother. "I'm thinking of moving because of the schools." Pecoraro said she'd like to see smaller class sizes. "I think we need some new schools, new technology and more computers to be more competitive with other school districts," she said.

"I just forgot about the election to tell you the truth," said Fran Duvall of Canton.

"I didn't vote. I'm embarrassed to say I didn't realize there was an election today," said Cindy Agathocleous, who brought her two toddlers to the playscape. "I don't follow local politics; I do vote in the national elections."

Chuck Steiner of Plymouth took time to vote because he wanted to support candidate Jeff Phillips, who coaches his 7-yearold in indoor hockey. "He's the best of the bunch," said Steiner. "He helps out a lot with the kids.

Phillips noted that six of the seven board members will be individuals who were either endorsed, or rated qualified, by the teachers' union. Phillips said both he and

House bills address chronic pain

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

A group of suburban legislators has introduced a package of pain management bills aimed at cutting the market for Dr. Jack Kevorkian's services.

"People not able to have their illnesses treated adequately or who are in chronic, intolerable pain may seek out people such as Dr. Kevorkian out of desperation," said Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, referring to the retired West Bloomfield pathologist who has attended 28 suicides.

Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloom-field Township, sees pain management as a key method of cutting the assisted suicide market. The Legislature's law making assisted suicide a felony has expired. Prosecutors in two counties have been unable to persuade juries to convict Kevorkian of anything under either statute or common law.

Jamian chairs the House Health Policy Committee, which will work on the bills during the summer and hopes to have them ready in September.

Other bill sponsors are committee members Penny Crissman, R-Rochester, Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti, and Michael Griffin, D-Jackson. The bills were unveiled at a June 5 news conference during the closing week of the regular legislative session.

Meanwhile, Gov. John Engler signed Law's House Bill 5490, a separate license measure for hospices. The measure exempts them from nursing home rules, such as types of care and limitation on visiting hours. Engler praised the bipartisan support for the new law.

"These are options," Law said of the package. "There are many experts in Michigan who can alleviate pain and make living more tolerable and less depress-intractable pain can be helped. The Pain Commission will help advise and will provide input from the various important organizations and players."

Here is an outline of the pack-

 House Bill 5939 – recognizes that intractable pain requires coverage under health care contracts and policies, and that use of controlled substances is appropriate in its treatment.

 HB 5940 - requires a physician treating a patient with intractable pain to advise the patient about the option of referral to a center for advanced care.

• HB 5941 – requires health insurers to cover evaluation and treatment of intractable pain at centers for advanced care.

• HB 5942 - same requirement for health maintenance organizations (HMO).

• HB 5943 - same for health care corporations.

• HB 5944 – defines "center for advanced care" as an accredited facility with pain management specialists; defines "intractable pain" as severe and persistent pain that is disabling and cannot be reduced by reasonable treatment efforts; and creates a 22-member "Michigan Commission on Pain" within the state Department of Community Health

In related business, Rep. Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak, praised passage of an $8.1 billion budget for the Department of Community Health. Key improvements, she said, are increases for mental health respite care and AIDS reduction.

Respite care is temporary relief for families with children afflicted with serious emotional disorders. Johnson called the bill a significant focus of the House.

County wins road contract

Wayne County's roads division was awarded the maintenance contract for Interstate 94 through most of Wayne County for the second time recently.

That contract includes patching, plowing, salting, sweeping and mowing. Wayne County has maintained I-94 for the past 50 years, but wasn't required to bid for the work until 1992.

The new contract runs through April 30, 1998.

The county's bid of $4.2 million was 30 percent lower than that of the private company vying for the work at $6.1 million.

"We've been able to make a lot of improvements," said Wayne County's Director of Road Maintenance Bob

Mahoney. "We've eliminated a lot of duplication of effort, we've privatized services and used technology to become more efficient and effective."

more efficient and effective."
Since 1984, Wayne County has cut its construction overhead costs in half and its maintenance overhead by 40 percent, Mahoney said.

"That's freed up a lot of money that has gone back into fixing bad roads," he

"Sometimes it's the big-ticket items like the I-94 contract. But most of the time it's the little things, such as a simple idea two of our bridge workers had for better bridge-forming braces that is saving us at least $22,000 per year in parts and labor," Mahoney said.

Several Wayne County projects on the construction schedule have already been started are scheduled to be completed by the beginning of July.

The county projects that are under way locally include:

· Beck Road from Cherry Hill to Geddes in Canton Township. This project involves the surfacing of a gravel road. The contractor is working on the ditches, and the road is closed to traffic. A detour is set up. Work on the project began in 1995 and is scheduled for completion July 1.

· Five Mile Road from Beck Road to Sheldon Road at the boundary between Plymouth and Northville townships. Crews are working on ditching and grading. Some temporary partial lane closures could occur. The project began about May 1 and is sched-uled to be completed by July 1.

· Merriman Road from Schoolcraft Road to Plymouth Road in Livonia. Traffic on the north side of the railroad tracks is limited to one lane in each direction. New pavement with widenings is scheduled to open to traffic soon. The project began in 1995 and the estimated completion date is Nov. 15, 1996.

The annual awards banquet recognizes individuals for outstanding service and dedicated support in the fight against motor vehicle thefts.

Liddane, a Livonia resident, has directed H.E.A.T., Michigan's statewide auto theft prevention program since its inception in 1985. As the program's chief advocate, he is a spokesperson to the media and law enforcement agencies on behalf of H.E.A.T. Liddane also sérves as general manager of the Michigan Automobile Insurance Placement Facility. He joined the facility in 1983 after a career in the insurance industry.

H.E.A.T. coordinates citizen action with law enforcement agencies through a toll-free tip line (800) 242-HEAT. "The involvement of the community has been overwhelming. People realize motor vehicle crimes affect all of us, threatening our personal safety and ultimately increasing insurance rates," Lid-

H.E.A.T. tip callers are rewarded up to $1,000 if their tip leads to the arrest and prosecution of a suspected car thief. Up to $10,000 is rewarded if the tip results in the arrest and binding over for trial of suspected theft ring members and/or chop shop operators. H.E.A.T. also awards $2,000 for information leading to the issuance of a warrant for a carjacking suspect.

The program's success is attributable to Tom Bowman's vision," Liddane said during the ceremony. Bowman, now deceased, was a founder of the ACT Campaign Committee. "This award should be shared with everyone here tonight: law enforcement, the insurance industry, and everyone devoted to the fight against auto theft," Liddane said. The H.E.A.T. program is funded by the Michigan auto insurance industry through the Michigan Auto Insurance Placement Facility and has awarded $1.3 million to tip callers since 1985. The value of recovered vehicles resulting from H.E.A.T. tips increased from $1.5 million in 1985-86 to $4.3 million in 1988-89. This year, the H.E.A.T. program is expected to award an all-time high of $300,000 to its tip line callers. For more information about receiving H.E.A.T. materials call LovioGeorgeInc. at (313) 832-2210.

Helpful staffers

I would like to bring to your attention four individuals at East Middle School who deserve recognition for their superb service and dedication to the students at their school.

The first two individuals are Mrs. Denise Gherrish and Mrs. Karen Massey. These two women are secretaries in the main office at East. Their warm, uplifting and truly friendly personalities shine when you enter the office.

They really enjoy their jobs and love the students. They are the substitute "moms" for the students who are with them for seven hours every day.

They have made my children feel loved and cared for and treated me like an old friend every time I have visited the school. They have created an atmosphere in that office that leaves a lasting, positive impression on all

The next two individuals are Mrs. Nanci Kline and Mrs. Kari Miller. Mrs. Kline is one of East's counselors and Mrs. Miller is the school nurse assigned to East. Mrs. Kline and Mrs. Miller have taken the opportunity for the last three years to develop a support group for middle school students with diabetes.

These students have a disease, with treatment that includes a minimum of two injections per day of insulin, blood testing, three, four times daily, special medical needs that sometimes have to be treated as school and are dealing themselves with the fact that they have a disease and it makes them different in some ways from their peers. Starting a support group for these students so that they can express themselves in a group of their peers is not something that is on the job description for these two women.

Field trips have been taken after school, on their own personal time, as they developed a relationship with this group.

And regular meetings during the school day with these students is not something that is required of their schedule. Yet, each of these women have given of their heart and their time to make the lives of these students rich-

These four women are fine examples of the kind of people who should be working in the public school system.

They have the vision to make this world a better place by encouraging and supporting it's youth.

The staff and students at East Middle School are blessed to be able to claim these women as part of their staff.

Neighbors pitch in

On June 1, the homeowners of Meadowbrook subdivision agreed to do a major clean up in their subdivision. Earlier this year the builder in the sub, Hilton Homes of Farmington, abandoned the work site leaving 55 families to fend for themselves and upkeep the properties. Approximately 25 families showed up to plant flowers, clean up abandoned building sites, spread mulch around many of the subs trees, dredge a pond, and store building materials.

Canton Township's Chief Building Inspector John Weir has been working closely with the sub and the township is carefully watching issues within the sub.

A formal homeowner's association cannot be established in the sub until a certain percentage of sites have been built on. In the meantime, many acres of common areas are being maintained by a fleet of lawn mowers.

Various local merchants helped out. Mac-Donalds on Ford Road donated orange drink to quench the thirst of workers. A backhoe was donated to move stacks of bricks and grade piles of sand and pea gravel. Many yards of mulch and a dumpster were also pro-

Poor choices

Bill Clinton is a symbol of the sad quality of our contemporary politicians. We have only ourselves to blame. We overreact and present ourselves with a more serious problem than we had earlier. Clinton had 5,000 appointments when he took office. You can imagine the downgrading our government took when he finished appointing his friends.

Having his wife control 500 government workers gives you an idea how disconnected he is when he tries to put his negative ideas into place. Back in history, the acceptable premise was that a leader and his family cannot even appear to have done anything wrong, before or after taking office. Considering this. I think this would disqualify the president from being dog catcher.

Father's Day is still in vogue

Enjoy summer: Swim safely

Sunday is Father's Day and dads are definitely "in."

Their importance in the development of children has been documented through the

Researchers at the University of Michigan note that in the colonial period, fathers were responsible for the education and moral development of their children but after the American Revolution, patriarchal authority was viewed as a threat to the emerging republican

Rhetoric aside, however, "fathers never really went out of style," says Stephen Frank, a recent doctoral graduate in history and collections curator, National Museum of American Jewish History. "For instance, in the 19th century and the Victorian era, the capacity to love and show kindness and affection to family members was a very important trait related to manhood." So 19th century fathers lavished attention and affection on their children.

Frank adds: "Fathers today are beginning to rediscover the joys of fatherhood and its emotional connections - something that 19th century fathers knew so well."

POINTS OF VIEW

New Old Village resident gets warm welcome

At the risk of seeming a complete and utter cornball, I must say Old Village is one swell neighborhood. Of the many trepidations one might have about moving, perhaps the worst would be getting the cold shoulder, or as New Englanders say, the fish-eye, from your neighbors.

The Friday evening when we got the keys and news that the former owner had relocated, we decided to move the next morning at warp speed. I stayed behind packing and cleaning while Mr. Matsu and our fine friend Danny made with the old heave-ho.

Even before I dared to make an entrance, Terry next door dropped off a batch of chocolate chip cookies for the sweet touch that makes a house a home. Dear Doris across the way sent superb jars of homemade preserves. Now that's what I call soul food!

The folks in the little party store greet me by name and never fail to exchange genuine pleasantries. We had joked that we would've bought the house just to be near the Plymouth fish market as their fish and chips were superior to most that we had back along the North Shore of Boston.

I often found sentimental comfort with this meal in spite of the jarring journey it had to endure on my bike, but it reached something akin to epicurean ecstasy when savored piping hot after merely skipping across the road.

The cheery proprietress even snipped a cutting from a terrific plant in the store for me. Jeanine from the Welcome Wagon stopped by with lots of great information and knick-knacks. When I went to Beyer's Drug wondering if a person could die of chapped hands, Bill the pharmacist came right out from behind his counter to assist me.

GUEST COLUMNIST

Gee, even the trash collectors didn't snub us when we had no town tags on our barrels! I half-expected to find myself snapping off a gingerbread shingle for a snack as I stroll about. I'm not sure if I am maudlin or merely maturing, but these things strike me as exceedingly pleasant.

New Englanders are often described as puritanical, crusty or salty, but I can't help but think it is often just plain rude. We grow up taking everything with a grain of salt quite literally and often find ourselves codgers before our time. I believe tourism contributes to this. I can recall a popular T-shirt in Salem that read "Don't bother me, I'm not a tourist — I live here." Another ad for the Lobster Shanty read "Warm beer, rude waitresses" and they weren't kidding.

Being surly seemed something of an art form, but let's just say there were a few too many tortured artists about and you'd best have the shell of a crustacean to tolerate this charming absence of manners. "Please" and "thank you" often receive suspicious looks and "How are you?" normally launches a litany of bitter complaints that makes you sorry you asked, not to mention feeling as if you had just been slapped in the face with a flounder.

I often feel that if not for my life in the martial arts I might never enjoy the mutual benefits that a touch of sincere etiquette brings to our existence. Even if one must dash a fellow to the ground there is never an excuse for bad manners. I certainly am one happy lady here and we thank you all for your kindness.

Photos bring back memories of a father's help

I had occasion recently to view two sets of family pictures.

One was taken by a dad, now divorced, of weekend trips to the sand dunes of western Michigan. Most of the videotape was of the men on dune buggies, zooming up and down the dunes, burning lotsa gas. Even the kids had motorized vehicles. If the kids used the swings or swam, I missed it.

The other was of my own growing up. Mom died just before last Christmas, so this winter's obligatory trip to Florida involved helping Dad, now 86, pack a lot of her things and resurrecting old Hudson's boxes full of blackand-white snapshots.

There were the usual wedding, baptism, graduation and front porch snapshots of three generations. But there was more. I learned how they raised me, particularly Dad's role.

Belle Isle was prominent. I fed squirrels, rode ponies, climbed monuments. Island Lake, which we reached by old Grand River Avenue because there was no I-96, and which had a campground, was the scene of many shots: Dad teaching me to float in the lake, me pumping water at an old-fashioned pump, me climbing a tall tree (Mom went ballistic when Dad brought that home from the drug store).

We didn't take the camera into the boat, but I recollect pulling in my share of bluegills with a cane pole. Kids in those days didn't have Mickey Mouse spinning rods. An adult rod and reel came later, when you knew how to handle them and remove snarls yourself.

I used a bamboo cane pole. Even today, when I own a fly rod and several spinning outfits, I favor a cane pole for deep-water, late-summer, inland lake angling for panfish.

Most revealing is Dad teaching me to row a boat. Few anglers on inland lakes used outboard motors. There had been a Depression, gas was rationed in "the real war," and families paid their own medical and dental bills without insurance.

There were two rowing strokes — pulling both oars at once and alternating oars. Pulling with the left hand made the boat go left (you faced backward), the right oar to turn right. You took along a dented can to bail, because those boats always leaked.

In later years, Dad acquired a small outboard motor. A "rite of passage" was when I got to operate it. He taught me to cut the speed when we passed other fishermen so our wake wouldn't disturb them. We didn't have Coast Guard Auxiliary classes. What boating manners you had, you learned from a father or uncle or grandpa.

This, by the way, was probably a 4 hp outboard, not the 75 or 100 hp behemoths guys use now. Today on Lake St. Clair, guys in cabin cruisers as tall as a two-story building will come within 40 feet of anglers at full throttle. It's so bad that the Michigan Senate has passed bills outlawing the harassing of anglers. Too bad a state law is necessary. Those guys' dads should have taught them manners.

Since those days, I have been in some pretty tight spots in boats and canoes on the Great Lakes and swollen rivers, but always was able to handle them. Good training.

This is not to say I'm a great person. It is to say that I learned to enjoy our natural resources without abusing them, and I got most of that instruction by following the example of one man.

Penalty out

Last week, I wrote about Rep. David Jaye's amendment to the school aid bill to take away $10 of state aid for every $1 a school district squandered on chauffeuring its officials.

That was a Senate bill. Jaye's amendment was added by the House. Since the two versions were different, the bill had to go to a joint conference committee. These conference committees are called "the third chamber" of the Legislature because the big decisions are made there.

Guess what? The conference committee scrubbed the Jaye amendment, and the school aid bill had to be passed without it.

Result: Detroit will continue to lose only $1 in state aid for every $1 it blows on the superintendent's chauffeuring. That's too small a penalty. Detroit hasn't learned its lesson.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

School choice amounts to another phony silver bullet

If I've learned one thing in my years as a newspaperman, it's to be suspicious of the silver bullet – the one, simple act that by itself will resolve a complicated and difficult problem.

Some examples of silver bullets: For careerist politicians, term limits. For profligate spending, a constitutional amendment prohibiting deficits. For high crime rates, more prisons.

Politicians are irresistibly attracted to silver bullets. They make good, simple sound bites. Moreover, concentrating on the silver bullet avoids the messy and difficult task of actually figuring out what to do about a multi-faceted problem.

"Schools of choice" is one of those silver bullets favored by lots of school reformers. The idea is that giving kids and their parents the freedom to choose to attend any school they wish, with the per-pupil state grant following the kid from school to school, probably makes a whole lot of sense. But it is sheer silver bulletism to think that schools of choice, at least in the form adopted by the Legislature last week, will itself result in sustained, serious school improvement.

The legislation allows parents to enroll their children in any public school within the intermediate school district where the family lives. Oakland, Wayne and Livingston counties, for example, are intermediate school districts, so kids who live in Pontiac could enroll in Birmingham, or kids from Romulus could go to Livonia.

For this to happen, local school districts inside the larger intermediate district would have to open their borders. But local school districts no longer must approve a student's departure for another school, together with the $5,300 state grant attached.

As in most other silver bullets, with schools of choice, the devil is in the details.

First, the evidence so far is that most parents and kids are going to school in their own neighborhoods. In the St. Clair Intermediate School District, for example, where the state has allowed an experiment in cross-district choice for the past two years, fewer than 100 of a total of 28,300 students moved to schools outside their local districts.

Second, for choice to work as the hypothesis predicts, parents and children will need a lot of information about educational quality in various districts. At present, this is largely lacking, in part because many choice advocates object to uniform state assessment of what kids learn. Absent hard information about academic outcomes, parents and children in a choice environment will make their choices on other factors—athletics or race, for example.

Third, if you think that adopting schools of choice legislation marks the end of the process, better think again. Some of the people pushing choice see it as little more than a way station to a full-blown voucher plan which will reimburse each family of a school-age child with a voucher to be used at any school whatsoever, public or private. This is, of course, aid to parochial schools by another route. Once this particular consequence of schools of choice becomes clear, watch out!

Fourth, if the entire choice thing is not very carefully handled, it will result in a rerun of the cross-district busing controversy that paralyzed Michigan politics in the mid-'70s.

Suppose, for example, that a family chooses to enroll a child in a school far away from home. And suppose further that the family, unable to drive their kid to that school, goes into court to demand that the state provide support. What's the judge going to do?

The American philosopher George Santayana observed that people who do not remember their history are condemned to relive it. That's only one of the problems with relying on silver bullets like schools of choice.

Phil Power is chairman of the company that owns this newspaper. His Touch-Tone voice mail number is (313) 953-2047, Ext. 1880.

Bankes joins Democrats in vote against state school aid bill

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Republican legislators, with token Democratic help, passed an $8.6 billion school aid bill on the last scheduled day of their session and sent it to Gov. John Engler for signing.

They split the difference on the most controversial issue, allocating $102 million for adult education. Engler had wanted to zero out that program. Democrats held out for $185 million, same as in the current year. A House vote late at night on June 6 clinched it. The House gave the bill a bare majority, 56-49. Supporting it were 54 Republicans joined by two Democrats -Maxine Berman of Southfield and minority leader Curtis Hertel of Detroit.

Opposed were 47 Democrats and two Republicans - Lyn Bankes of Redford and Sue Rocca of Macomb County.

"I'm a no vote on anything with schools of choice in it," said

Bankes, citing opposition to that program from her Livonia and Redford Township districts. The bill provides for schools of choice within an intermediate (county)

The Senate vote was 19-17, also a bare minimum. Voting yes were all area Republicans. Voting no were all 16 Democrats and one outstate Republican. One outstate Republican was absent.

Engler didn't seek to cut adult ed entirely but to shift much of the money into work-related programs run by his Jobs Commission Department. He was bitterly denounced by Democrats in

The bill raises per-pupil spending 3.3 percent to $5,308 next fiscal year.

Rick Simonson, lobbyist for Oakland County schools, found good and bad points in the compromise version:

· Good: "Schools may set aside up to 20 percent (rather than the current 5 percent) of revenues for capital projects."

• Bad: "Schools of choice begins next month," allowing insufficient planning time in the

• Good: "At-risk categorical remains at $230 million, but language is added indicating these funds may be used for adult ed over and above Sec. 107 adult

· Bad: "Professional develop ment would be $3 million statewide, requiring a 2 for 1 match." The House version would have put up $5 million.

• Better than expected: "Adult" ed would be $102 million."

At one point, the bill appeared doomed to be sent to a second conference committee to iron out differences in the House and Senate versions. Democratic caucuses in both chambers took "no" positions. Republican Geral outh disliked the "choic tions but was somehow persuaded to vote yes after a lengthy caucus and a dinner break

Mid-June: time to celebrate life

Celebrations - that's what the middle of June is all about! Celebrations for this and for that, for all kinds of things really

The children come home from school for the summer. Old Glory goes out on front porches and storefronts. Strawberries are ready in gardens and fields. Graduates march down long aisles. Newlyweds, too. The sun shines. And fathers too, on their day in the middle of June. Seize these days! Make celebrations!

I'm going to. Starting today. My children will be bursting from the school doors into the summer sunshine this very day, and from here on, they'll be home free! Summer vacation begins. And hammocks and ball games and bike rides and lemonade stands and campouts and firefly collections and sprinklers beckon.

Summer is pure magic for children, wouldn't you say? School, though, is probably not pure magic to them. The smell of a four-hour-old tuna sandwich in a stuffy locker is not magic. The feel of a back pack, loaded with homework books, is not magic. A spelling test and term report and a busted pencil lead, those are not magic. For nine months straight, it's work and it's toil and it's schedules that feel like cages. But today it's summer. Today starts magic. Today children come home. Celebrate!

And tomorrow is Flag Day. Definitely an occasion to celebrate. Many'll run Old Glory up the pole. They'll fly the banner from porch or window. Me, too. I'm very proud of that bit of cloth with the stars on it, proud of my little corner of America where my family stands by our flag. We'll celebrate that tomorrow, the middle of

And Sunday - Father's Day. Dads all over will march into the limelight and receive the praise and honor due them, yet so long overdue.

Typical Dads, mine included and my children's too, go unsung for too long. But there they are, each one a man of the house, leaving that house for many hours each day in order to "make a living." And the reason for all that work and all that time at work and away from home is actually back there, at home. It's the children. The typical Dad works hard on their behalf to keep clothes on their backs and food in their stomachs. And a roof over their heads. And a hammock in the yard. And lemonade at their stand. And a glove for the ball game. And a blanket for their camp out. And water for their sprinklers. Typical Dads provide all that.

And typical Dads don't get to enjoy most of the stuff they work hard for and provide their children with. That's sacrifice. That's Dad.

And that's Dad, the one who's amazed at times by his title of Dad. He thinks of Dads as being like that tall guy from back when who had a deep voice and threw the baseball to his kids in the vard or fixed broken bicycle chains in the driveway without even first taking his suit and tie off after a long day's work. And he thinks of the typical Dad as the one who read newspapers and drank coffee and knew answers to most everything. And the one who could open any jar and fly the highest kite

Now that's a Dad, he insists. It's up to the rest of us to insist right back that the apple didn't fall far from the tree. That he now has become that Dad. And that title of Dad suits him just find.

And here's something else about typical Dads, their ability to memorize their children's voices. When these Dads are away, making that living, they can pause in mid-work and hear the conversations from last night around the dinner table all over again. And hear, too, the laughter that accompanied the conversations. And they'll smile, in mid-work, far from home. Typical Dads hear their children, even from a distance. Even

Now, of course, a Dad occasionally has a really bad day. And when he does he's likely to throw his arms up in the air and ask, "Why do I even bother?" And then he recalls those voices and that laughter from the night before and he knows why he bothers. He remembers what's important, who's important.

And when he comes home to join his family at the end of a day, even a rough one, he'll sit tall in the saddle. That's because his children are waiting for him, and he knows he's taken care of them, from the clothes on their backs to the roof over their heads to the food cooking on the stove. And because of that, even on bad days, the typical Dad feels like a millionaire - a millionaire in matters of the heart.

And we should all celebrate that! I'm going to. Let's all celebrate this middle of June! Celebrate the children. Celebrate the flag. Celebrate the sunshine. And celebrate Dad!

> The series includes "Zoovival Instincts," which shows children the many tricks and skills that animals use to survive, and "Zoo Sleuth," which kids work as detectives to discover the secrets of the animal world. Both programs are for children ages 4-9 years old.

> Other programs for 4-5-year-olds include "Chimp Chat," which examines the lives of chimps and explores the Chimps of Harambee exhibit, "Not So Creepy Crawlers" which teaches children that sometimes spooky insects, spiders and snakes are fascinating, "Dino Digs," an expedition to search for ancient animal life and visit some of the dinosaur's modern relatives at the zoo, and "Whose Habitat?" in which campers explore the many interesting homes found in the animal world.

For 6-9-year-olds, the series offers "Monkey business, exploring animal behaviors, "Animal Speak," which teaches children to recognize the distinct communication messages in the animal world, and "Junior Zoologist," in which children experience many different facets of animal life and behavior.

For 10-12-year-olds, there's "Who in the Zoo" about the animals' special grocery shoppers, doctors and dentists, and "Winged Wonders," an exploration of the new wildlife Interpretive Gallery to discover hummingbirds and butterflies.

For 8-10-year-olds, there's "Zoo Snozzz...," which gives children the experience of sleeping in an oldfashioned log cabin and hiking through the zoo at night.

Fees for the programs range from $20 to $75. Registration forms are available by calling the 541-5717.

Theater workshops

Trinity House Theatre in Livonia is presenting two workshops, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Musical Theatre," as its sixth annual summer apprenticeship programs in theater for children ages 10 years and older.

The programs allow hands-on experience in a theater as well as professional instruction in acting and all facets of theater

The first three-week workshop is June 24 through July 16, with children performing in Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" as the final project. Laura Gumina, a teacher of professional training and experience, is directing the young people in the show including them in the costume, set and prop

The second workshop runs July 29 through Aug. 16 and is designed as both a musical theater workshop, exposing the student to musical direction and choreography as well as providing scene work in a non-musical setting. Instruction in song and dance also is available.

The class is focusing on individual solo work as well as group work, culminating in a final performance on Aug. 16. Trudy Mason who has many musical theater credits is the instructor.

For more information about the programs, call Gumina at (313) 533-8645. Trinity House Theatre is at 38840 W. Six Mile Road,

Our writer is a people person par excellence! He has great rapport with his fellow man and is popular with all he meets, People play an important role in his life and his happiness.

Interpersonal relationships are amiable, animated, pleasant and enthusiastic. His warmhearted temperament blossoms forth like a beautiful summer

This is a mature, well-rounded man. He knows how to efficiently manage his time, energy and living space. Order and structure in his life are important.

He is a sincere individual. He knows the rules and he lives by them. High standards are much in evidence here. Nothing less than his best effort is acceptable to him. Early in life a strong sense of responsibility was impressed upon him. He probably heard lots of "should and should not."

He has also learned to be a gentleman and do what is expected of him. He is not a stranger to refinement. I am inclined to believe the formative years were marked with happiness and little financial concern.

Old-fashioned virtues are firmly rooted in his personality. And he continues to be guided by them. He cares what others think of him and always wants to create a good impression. A sense of duty is alive and well. If he doesn't do what he knows he should do, he probably experiences guilt feelings.

The writer has a good capacity for purposeful work. He can be depended upon to follow instructions and perform a task with care and precision. He invests time and energy and strives for error-free performance so that no cause for criticism will exist. Mediocrity has no place in his work. It appears that a perfectionist abides in this handwrit-

He scores high is self-disci-pline and is goal-oriented. Augmenting this is his sharp mentality. His thinking is probably more logical than intuitive.

The date commemorates Fluegge's 50th anniversary of his ordination in the ministry (July 14, 1946) and his 50th wedding anniversary (June 8,

To celebrate the anniversaries, there will be a service of praise and thanksgiving at 8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. Sunday at the church, 14175 Farmington Road, followed by an afternoon dinner reception at the Laurel Park

The Rev. Fluegge, son of Alvin . and Elda Fluegge, was born on Sept. 26, 1922, in Gordonville, Mo., and baptized at Christ Lutheran Church. After completing his elementary and high school education in Gordonville, he attended Southeast Missouri State University for one year, then enrolled in Concordia Seminary in Springfield, Ill., graduating from there in 1946. He was subsequently ordained on July

While at the seminary, he did is year of vicarage was spent at mmanuel Lutheran Church in daughter of the Rev. Herman and Selma Schumacher. The couple was married at Immanuel Lutheran on June 8, 1946, immediately after his graduation Pastor Fluegge's first call took he and his wife to St. Paul Lutheran Church in LaPryor, Texas, where he also started a mission at Uvalde. In April 1950, the family moved to Windsor, Ont., where he became pastor of Peace Lutheran Church.

On May 5, 1955, he was installed as pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church in Warren, which he served until he retired in October 1987. In November of that year, Pastor Fluegge began serving as a pastoral assistant on a part-time basis at Christ Our Savior.

The couple has five children and eight grandchildren.

Pastor Fluegge has also served the Lord in the church at large pastoral advisor to the Walther League, board of directors of the Lutheran High School Association, board of directors of Lutheran Special Education Ministries and board of directors of Lutheran Homes of Michigan.

Rev. and Mrs. Wilton Fluegge

He also has served the Michigan District of the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod as circuit counselor, board of Christian Education, and the District Board of Directors.

Combined colorectal cancer treatment methods

By Oscar R. Signori, M.D.

When cancer cells originate within the tissues of the last six feet of intestine (the colon and rectum) the condition is referred to by doctors as colorectal cancer.

There are several treatments for patients with this disease; surgery, radiation therapy, and medications (i.e., chemotherapy). These treatments can be used by themselves or in combination (combined modality therapy).

When doctors perform surgery, they commonly cut out the cancer along with healthy bowel and lymph nodes that are near it. If the lymph nodes contain cancer cells then chemotherapy (medications, which are administered orally or intravenously) is usually given, resulting in an approximate 80 percent reduction in mortality.

Similar, positive results are obtained when radiation (high dose energy) is given along with chemotherapy and surgery, in cases of cancer of the very last portion of the bowel (the rectum). In some situations of cancer of the anus (the end of the bowel)

surgery is not needed and the disease can be cured with chemotherapy and radiation. If the cancer reoccurs, surgery, chemotherapy, and radiation are again combined to retard the growth of the cancer and/or alleviate symptoms Sometimes, another option may be to participate in a clinical trial sponsored by the National Cancer Institute. These trials test new drugs, surgical techniques, and radiation schedules.

By consulting with each other, surgeons, medical oncologists, and radiation therapists are able to work as a team when recommending the appropriate therapy for the disease. This is known as the multimodality approach to t seems an odd concert combination - a superstar country singer and a big-city symphony at the top of the classical music world.

But with the help of a composer, arranger and conductor whose resume reveals a wide repertoire, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's shows with country singer Trisha Yearwood promise to be prime musical events with broad appeal.

Yearwood and the symphony will perform at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Orchestra Hall. Mark Watters, who has arranged for orchestra the songs Yearwood will sing, will be the guest conductor.

Willa Walker, the DSO's artistic administrator credits Watters with providing the ingredient that will make Yearwood's appearance with the DSO special.

"There are not that many country artists who have symphony arrangements," said Walker, of Birmingham.

"He (Watters) really came to us with some great ideas. ... It's a real collaboration."

Watters, a two-time Emmy winner, composes music for film, television and the stage in addition to his work as a conductor and arranger. He is the music director of this summer's Olympic games in Atlanta, meaning he will compose, arrange and conduct music for the opening and closing ceremonies. Yearwood is an acclaimed singer whose first two albums, "Trisha Yearwood" and "Hearts in Armor," both went platinum (at least a million copies sold). Her interpreta-

Yearwood's career on Nashville's Music Row started with an internship at a record company's publicity department. She later sang demos and background vocals and signed with MCA after a showcase for the Nashville record industry.

Yearwood is currently on an orchestral concert tour that includes shows with the London, Nashville and Atlanta symphonies and the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

Watters is the music arranger for that tour and arranged some of the songs on Yearwood's newest recording, "Thinking About You." This will be the first time in Walker's eight years as artistic administrator that a country star has performed with the DSO, and she thinks the shows will draw concertgoers who don't normally go to the symphony.

But news of Yearwood's appearance was well-received by DSO subscribers too, she said. Planning for the shows started last fall.

Kelly Sauter-Dobson creates surreal paintings of carnivals and architecture using Time Zero film and a Polaroid SX-70 camera. The Livonia resident is one of more than 70 exhibitors in a fine arts and crafts show June 22-23 held in conjunction with the fifth annual Canton Liberty Fest June 20-23. Although the fine arts and crafts show remains a two day event, the fest expands to four days of fun for the entire family. Some of the highlights include a classic car show, fireworks, food, free concerts, children's rides and games, a showing of the Disney film "Pocahontas," and demonstrations by Canton's Public Safety SOT and K-9

"We're excited to showcase such wonderful artists and fine craftsmen in a beautiful setting," said Sharon Dillenbeck, co-chair of the fine arts

The show will feature painting, pottery, jewelry, children's wood toys, decorative painting on antique furniture, bird houses, hand-painted clothing, demonstrating artists, face painting, and a booth of artworks made by Plymouth and Canton middle and high school students.

"The entire weekend is a family affair. There are things for everyone from music to art to children's entertainment, and sand art and candle art for

"Time Zero photography is an immediate medium. You basically have only 2-3 minutes to manipulate the surface and complete each print before the dyes in the Polaroid are completely hardened. You can soften edges, introduce texture and even rub out unwanted details but you have to work quickly," said Kelly Sauter-Dobson, a freelance photographer for The Observer Newspapers and The Crier in 1986-87. "Time Zero is a great way to create small pictures that look like paintings. It's great for me because it's one more way to use my photography in a new imaginative way. The most difficult thing about photography is the need to find fresh ways to capture subjects that have been done over and over.I'm sick of lighthouses and flowers.

Sauter-Dobson's first camera, an Olympus, was a gift from her father at age 16. The 28-year-old mother of three, who works in a home darkroom after her children are in bed, now uses a Mamiya 645 medium format, a Nikon 35 mm, and a Polaroid.

"Dorothy's House," an 11- by 14inch black and white image of a dilapidated Canton farmhouse, was hand colored with oils made especially for photographic work. Sauter-Dobson immortalizes the two-story structure, since torn down to make way for new construction, transforming it with subtle coloring into Dorothy's house on the other side of the rainbow in the land of Oz.

"For the hand-colored photos, each print is also unique because even though I may use the same image, you can't paint it the same way twice.

A bill to allow groups of communities to raise additional money to support cultural and recreational programs has passed the Michigan State Senate and is before the House Taxation Committee.

Since 1988-89, adjusting for inflation, state funding of the arts has been cut 50 percent," said Sen. Michael J. Bouchard, R-Birmingham, sponsor of Senate Bill 1053.

This bill allows communities to come together, if they want to, to raise money for a broad spectrum of cultural and recreational activities including the Detroit Zoo, the Detroit Institute of Arts, PBS, Cranbrook, Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum."

The bill excludes funding for professional sports arenas or stadiums, labor organizations, political organizations, libraries, or public, private, or charter

Under the bill, approved on June 4, metropolitan areas such as the City of Detroit, with at least 900,000 people or counties like Wayne, Oakland or Macomb, with at least 700,000 people; or a combination of two or more local units in a metropolitan area with a total population under 1.5 million, could form a "metropolitan area"

Members of the council would be appointed by the mayor or county executive.

The council could decide to provide funding, supplemental to funding received from other sources, including the state, for tax-exempt arts and cultural "facilities and programs," located within the metropolitan region served by the council.

This could include zoological, botanical, or other science centers, a public broadcast station, museums or historical centers, tras, choruses, chorales, opera theaters, and ballet, dance and theater companies.

"Through their charter, the metropolitan council would create the protocol for a local decision," explained Bouchard.

The bill permits a metropolitan council, with voter approval, to levy a .5 mill on all taxable real and personal property within the council area. On a house, with a taxable value of $50,000, a .5 mill tax would cost the homeowner an additional $25 a

Money generated by the tax would be disbursed to various cultural and recreational programs by a vote of the council

For example, Bouchard explained if the City of Detroit, Wayne and Oakland Counties formed a metropolitan council, each entity would have four voting members for a total of 12 funds would require a majority vote, 7 votes, but at least one vote would have to come from each community. For example, if the City of Detroit and Oakland County each cast four votes for Detroit Symphony funding for a total of eight, the measure would not be approved because no one from Wayne County voted for it. Ten percent of the money raised by the levy stays in the local community that raised it, to be used for what they choose," explained Bouchard.

This bill does not impose activities; it redefines an existing act and allows people to make their own decisions about how money will be spent," said Bouchard.

Sen. Art Miller, D-Warren, voted no. "If we want to have all these great cultural events, believe me, I think they're great," said Miller during the discussion of the bill. "I think that the ticket holder should pay for them. I don't think my taxpayers should have to pay to build some new Taj Mahal or to go see Pavarotti when the taxpayer can't even afford to buy the ticket to see Pavarotti. That's what this is all about.

"We get asked to pay for these particular programs and the taxpayers don't even get the chance to buy the tickets to go see the entertainment. It's bad enough we pay for the show, but we don't even get a chance to see the show." Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, also voted no. "I think what we're doing is incorrect, plus there's not, in my opinion, fair representation," he said.

Bennett, who amended the bill to keep 10 percent of the money generated by a tax levy for arts in the community that raised it, said he supports the concept of regional support for arts, and believes we need to build grassroots support for arts through communities. "But I felt that without better representation of Western Wayne County I couldn't support the bill," he said. "Under the make-up of the council, Detroit could receive 16 votes - four from the City of Detroit, and four from Wayne County.

Instead, Bennett said he would suggest that the Wayne County Council be composed of one person appointed by the county executive, one by the Conference of Western Wayne County, one by the Down River Area Conference, and one by the Eastern Community Conference. "I'm also concerned about rising Horsepower has been tagged a gloom and doom band. Jean-Yves Tola, drummer for the Appalachian hillbilly band, doesn't see his band that way.

"What it does is it touches people in some spots," Tola said of his band's debut release "Sackcloth 'n' Ashes" (A&M). "It's soulful. There are some dark songs but they're not all dark. Some people say it's bleak but we just talk about real life. That's the

'Michigan Family Adventure Guide' useful

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER

Bill Semion begins his "Michigan Family Adventure Guide" with the observation that Michigan is such a great place that many Michiganders spend all their vacations in their home

Semion, a senior editor for AAA's Michigan Living magazine, has written an informative, lively and reader friendly guide to Michigan attractions that will appeal to the entire family. The guide is part of Voyager Book's Family Adventure Guide Series and is published by The Globe Pequot Press, Old Saybrook, for $9.95.

The trip "Up North" is an annual pilgrimmage for residents of Southeastern Michigan and Semion covers all of northern Michigan's high spots and many of the obscure areas as well. But he also reminds us that there are many enjoyable attractions in our own backyard. So for weeklong vacations, weekend jaunts or day trips, this is a valuable reference

Semion divides the state into eight zones, including dividing the Detroit area into three zones that reach as far south as Monroe, west to Chelsea and north to Clarkston. He gives some inter-

Conn., available at bookstores esting information about each child, especially the hall of they have a rich Michigan tradiattraction, including times and phone numbers. And the variety of places he covers is refreshing, from the Calder Dairy Farm in Carleton and its store in Lincoln Park where you can get great chocolate milk to the annual madness known at the Ann Arbor Art Fairs.

> The book is primarily aimed at attractions or events that will appeal to children but it also takes time to suggest that some places that might not seem children friendly actually are.

Semion describes just how enjoyable a trip to the Detroit Institute of Arts can be for a armor, the Egyptian exhibits and the American House.

The book also covers special events such as the Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular and the Northville Folk and Bluegrass Festival. Semion covers the big sights such as Cranbrook and Meadow Brook Hall but also stops off at Mickey Lolich's Donut Shop in Lake Orion. Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village are here, of course, but so are the Lafayette and American Coney Island restaurants, a downtown tradition for generations.

Semion doesn't shy away from tourist traps either, as long as tion such as the Irish Hills Stagecoach Stop USA.

The sections on the northern atttractions range from a quarry in Rogers City on the state's quieter east side to Macinac Island and Mackinaw City, the Sleeping Bear Dunes and Tahquamenon Falls, the Soo and Coppertown USA. Each item gives a little of the flavor, history and special appeal of each town or attraction.

Of course, this is a subjective guide. Except for the must includes, Semion shares his own special favorite Michigan places. He also presents an upbeat view of Detroit that is admirable but not totally fair to out of town visitors who might find the downtown's boarded up business district disconcerting.

This is also not a guide that can be used alone. Semion mentions a few unusual lodging and eating facilities, but this is not a thorough guide to where to stay or eat. For that you might check out AAA's travel guides or similar books.

But used with other guides, this is a good overview of why Michiganders make Michigan their No. 1 vacation spot and why out-of-staters keep coming

By popular witty Georgia Skeffington.

Manipulative and predatory, Georgia is the woman Amerinet leads a cans love to hate. Enjoying instant recognition and She's captured applause, ready entree into the the heart of the world of the rich and famous, and a designer wardrobe to drama audience grace her gorgeous face and figwith her por- ure, Katherine is the envy of soap-opera fans throughout the

But wait! That's only half the story in best-selling author Joan Collins' third novel "Infamous" (Dutton, 1996, $23.95). The other half - Katherine's private life - would make her dysfunctional TV family look like "Ozzie and Harriet." A messy divorce, a self-destructive teenage son, a host of financial leeches that drain her bank account, and a 16-hour workday leave her vulnerable and exhausted. "It's always time to go to work," she sighs, as she dashes to her Hollywood studio for a 6 a.m. shoot-of Lala Land. After all, she played the spicy role of the sensual and manipulating Alexis Carrington in the 1980s highly successful TV drama "Dynasty." One person's fantasy, she implies, is another person's hard work. Endless fittings for costumes that pinch and poke, retakes in hot, cramped quarters, petty jealousies among the actors, constant anxieties over the ratings, and the steady stream of lies from the press reveal the seedy and stressful side of show business. Like her fictional character, Collins knows that all too often the dence over private life.

So when Jean-Claude Valmer enters Katherine's life, she can hardly believe her good fortune. Sensual, sophisticated, and ohso-sensitive, he's the answer to a poor little rich girl's dream. A self-professed hotelier, the elegant and confident Frenchman first charms Katherine and then takes charge of her life, from the bedroom to the boardroom. How wonderful, the 43 year old actress is told repeatedly, that she's found the perfect spouse, a gorgeous man who's totally committed to her welfare.

At first Katherine is so in love pressures of work take prece- that she ignores the occasional mood swings of her usually gentle lover. What's a little unpleasantness when her nights are filled with passionate embraces? But soon the Jekyll and Hyde transformations become more frequent. Gradually, Katherine's implicit trust turns into suspicion and fear. The action culminates in Venice, the perfect setting for a novel of passion and betrayal.

Over the soft clatter of dinner dishes and conversation you'll hear classic music from the 1940s and 50s. The best of the old and new come together at Carvers to create a contemporary urban setting with a warm, hearty club-like atmosphere. There are six different dining rooms of varying sizes each with a different atmosphere including "The Library" and "Tasting Room.

Linger in the lounge which has a hardwood floor and TV. Sip your favorite cocktail, cappuccino or espresso, made with freshly ground beans, and have a cigar if you're in the mood.

"At Carvers, we focus on quality from the moment you walk in the door until you leave. We take pride in everything we do," said Don Madalinski, general manager. "Carvers serves some of the highest quality beef available. We have included a variety of other delicious entrees on our menu + such as Grilled Shrimp and Pasta, Australian Lobster Tail, and Roasted Duck Breast

- to satisfy everyone's tastes." Working with chefs at some of the nation's premiere wineries, Chef Ken Pipok of Redford prepares special entrees daily that most popular according to

All entrees are served with choice of soup, Caesar Salad or Honey Mustard Spinach Salad; basket of fresh baked bread; baked potato, almond rice, or roasted vegetable medley.

Prime rib is a house specialty, and available in the Chef Cut (half pound), Classic Cut (three quarters of a pound), and House Cut (a pound and a quarter, served on the bone).

Carvers' prime rib of beef is seared in an herb crust to ensure flavor and then slow roasted for seven hours.

Among the steaks offerings are Roast Sirloin with Wild Mushrooms, Chili-Grilled Rib Eve. Filet Mignon, and a stuffed filet filled with mushroom stuffing and topped with fresh mushrooms sauteed in Chablis butter. Top off your steak with a trio of mushrooms caramelized onions for an additional $1.95.

Besides beef, the dinner menu offers Fresh Herb-Roasted Chicken Breast, Fresh Atlantic Salmon brushed with a mustardbasil glaze, Roasted Vegetable Pasta, Grilled Swordfish, Rack of Lamb, Grilled Veal Chop and BBQ Baby Back Ribs.

Torch carrier

It's every amateur athlete's dream: To make it to the Olympics.

For Canton's Kristin Lukasik, that dream was realized - at least in part. Lukasik was able to carry the Olympic Torch part of the way to Atlanta.

She earned the honor through a Coca Colasponsored contest, in which nominations were taken for people worthy to carry the Torch, people who exemplify the Olympic spirit.

Kristin and her sister, Megan, were both nominated in secret by their father, Pat. Kristin was selected and last Saturday did her part in getting the Torch to Atlanta by carrying it through part of Dearborn.

Kristin's selection came from her athletic and academic achievements. A sophomore-to-be, she competed on the varsity teams in basketball and soccer at Canton, even though she's afflicted with asthma.

All members chosen for the local Olympic Torch Relay were honored last Friday at a press conference and reception at the Fox Theater. Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer was among the guest speakers.

It all made for a memorable experience.

Junior Olympic hopeful

Jason Wright, a 13-year-old Canton resident, will be traveling to Orlando, Fla., for the 16th U.S. Junior Olympic Taekwondo Championships

Wright certainly earned his way. After taking a first and a third at the Michigan State Championships earlier this year, Wright has just kept succeeding.

In his last three tournaments, he has collected two firsts and a second in forms and has a first and two seconds in sparring.

Salem's Rabeau signs

Amber Rabeau, a three-year starter as a defender for Plymouth Salem's girls soccer team, has signed with Western Michigan University.

A three-year varsity player at Salem, Rabeau twice has earned honorable mention all-Western Lakes Activities Association status.

Also signed by WMU coach Katie O'Shaughnessy was Livonia Franklin standout defender Lisa DeShano.

This will be the Broncos' first-ever season in women's soccer.

Divine Child coach to lead Madonna work of friends there.

Bill Potter's replacement as coach of Madonna's women's team has all the right stuff and all the proper connections to carry the Lady Crusaders to the next level, and hopefully beyond.

BY C.J. RISAK

The choice seems a perfect match. Madonna University has found the ideal person to continue to develop its young women's basketball team: Marylou Jansen, the Dearborn Divine Child girls cage coach. She takes over for Bill Potter, who resigned for personal reasons in Jansen has nearly all the proper credentials. She's been highly successful at DC, winning Class B state championships in both 1993 and '94.

And while she has no collegiate coaching experience, she does have a vast, in-place source to aid her recruiting efforts.

"I've been coaching for 12 years in the Catholic League," the 35 year-old Jansen said. "So I have a net-

Sounds great, right? Well hold on it actually gets better.

Jansen is a Divine Child product herself, graduating in '79. She got degrees in microbiology and public health from Michigan State in '83.

And once out of college, she jumped right into coaching, becoming a freshmen coach at DC in 1984. Her full-time job is as a guidance counselor at Grosse Ile HS.

What made her want to coach? Well, it's a family thing.

For herself and her four brothers and three sisters, sports were a constant companion. "I always wanted to coach," she said, "although I guess I never really knew it until I got out of college.

"I grew up with my brothers strategizing in all sorts of sports. My

Coach Don Smith (below) was also critized, even though he's guided Canton soccer teams to three state titles.

Or is it? Plymouth Canton's quest for a Class A state championship in girls soccer ended with a victory in last Saturday's final. It was a triumph the Chiefs earned.

And deserved. Unfortunately, that sentiment is still not acceptable to all. For a variety of reasons, Canton has not been embraced as the state champion by many. The last match of the 1996 girls season was last Saturday. The debate that was spawned during the state tournament, however, continues still.

Never have I been so bombarded with negative reaction to a team during its playoff run. Not just at the end of the playoffs, either; at every step, the questions about, and criticisms of, the Chiefs grew.

*They're lucky.

· Poor officiating got them where They don't play true soccer; it's a track meet. • IThey play to destroy, not to Much, but not all, of the negative response originated from the Livonia Churchill match. A district semifinal, Canton emerged with a 3-2 victory in double-overtime.

Wrong decision and culprit

Problem was, it never should have gone that far. By rule, sudden death is the proper format for over-time in the Michigan High School Athletic Association tournament.

But officials had told both coaches before the start of OT that they would play two 10-minute sessions (not sudden death).

Churchill scored first. No protest was filed; instead, play continued

according to the format outlined by the officials. Canton scored before the first 10-minute session ended to re-tie the game, then got the game-winner midway through the second 10-minute session. That period was also played to its conclusion, but Churchill could not score again.

Game over. Canton wins. It wasn't until an hour later that the mistake was discovered. Controversy swelled, but the MHSAA ruled quickly the following day: No protest allowed on an official's ruling. A coach may challenge an official's interpretation, but however an official rules is final.

That is part of the MHSAA rule book.

As one might expect, none of this mattered to Churchill fans. They felt cheated. Canton's winning the state title did nothing to diminish

Never mind that the Chiefs also beat two other state-ranked teams, Plymouth Salem and No. 1-ranked Brighton. They never should have been there in the first place.

The Livonia Board of Education members made their stand on this issue, of course. They were outraged. They were incensed. How could the MHSAA do this to the Churchill kids, and then refuse to even discuss the matter?

All this surfaced at their meeting two days after Canton had played the next round of the state tournament. In other words, by that time it was too late to do any good, but it was politically correct. And I'm sure the anger and fist-thumping displayed by the school board was convincing.

Critically disclaimed

It made for a tough route for a team to take through a pressurepacked tournament. A lot of baggage, if you will. And mind you, Canton actually had nothing to do with what happened. The Chiefs were playing by the same rules, as outlined by the officials, that Churchill was.

But that wasn't the end of the garbage-tossing.

Brighton coach John Boots said he was embarrassed by his team's 1-0 loss to Canton in the regional final. He didn't like the way the Chiefs played, their style, which wasn't true to the spirit of the

It wasn't the first time Canton coach Don Smith's technique was openly challenged. He doesn't teach the finer points of the sport, it was said; consequently, his players don't develop enough to play at the next level. Boots hated Smith's substitution pattern, his use of 20 players to just run up and down the field for five-minute stints, without apparent aim or pattern. It's not the way the game is played at other levels, Boots said. "That's the rules in high school," was Smith's reply. "And all these girls get to play so much, they get better. And we get better as a

In other words, while Boots and his compadres may concentrate their efforts on improving their top dozen players, Smith goes a step further and tries to develop all his players.

It works for Canton

That's the method he's used throughout his coaching career. And it's worked - Smith has one boys and two girls state championships to show for it.

"Your good players are always going to be there," he explained.
"It's your other players . . . you have to bring them up a notch. That's the key.'

The argument is as old as the coaching profession itself. Do you coach to win? To teach? What takes precedence, learning how to win or learning how to play?

Don Smith coaches basics. He runs intense, 90-minute practices during which, he says, they concentrate on game situations.

Others say Smith's style is centered around destroying what opponents are attempting to build rather than teaching his team to build something of its own. And since it's easier to coach a team to destroy than to build, Smith's taking-the-easy-path approach often works better.

On the scoreboard, anyway. It's as if teaching a simple, successful, straightforward defensive approach to the game isn't enough Some coaches argue that players need to be exposed to much more if they are to reach their full poten-tial. They need the mental challenges to expand their game. Simple but effective

Perhaps that's true, for some. But how many? By working to

Blue Devils defy CC to gain region crown

Grosse Pointe South baseball coach Dan Griesbaum says his team has lost "five or six games" this season in the last inning.

Thomas kept the Shamrocks'

Thomas showcased his strong arm in center field as well, throwing out a runner at home plate and third base in the fourth inning when the Blue Devils scored the eventual winning run and were threatening to score more.

"I heard Daguanno was the guy we're supposed to worry about the most," Schroeder said. "The only other person I know about is Kevin Thomas. He's unbelievable and he showed it in the last few innings."

With the score tied 2-2 in the third, CC's Chris Misiak was thrown out at the plate in a controversial call, negating the Shamrocks' chance to go ahead.

South, which never trailed, went ahead 3-2 in the top of the fourth on an RBI single by leadoff batter Terry Brennan.

Dave Viane had an RBI single and Thomas drove in a run with a sacrifice fly when the Shamrocks scored their only runs in the bottom of the second.

The Blue Devils scored twice in the second inning with three singles off starting pitcher Marty Wilk. O'Connor, the winning pitcher against Kennedy, entered with one out in the fourth.

And should Smith be criticized for his style? Maybe he doesn't extend his players' knowledge of the game enough. But he teaches them to play as a team and to play hard.

As simplified as his approach may be, consider this: Those who criticize him have a heckuva time beating him. If their coaching philosophies are so advanced, why can't they find a way to win against Canton?

Guess that's one for "Unsolved Mysteries." So is all this trash-talk about the Chiefs and their run to the title. They gave up two goals in their last 10 games (both to Churchill) and nine all season.

That's how champions are made. And that's something Don Smith knows something

Angler keeps hauling in the big catch

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Bernie Noffert is at it again. Regular readers of this column may recall Noffert's name from a 1993 article about the Livonia angler catching a Master Angler steelhead that weighed 18.82 pounds. Well, the 79year-old Noffert was fishing on Lake St. Clair recently and landed another beautiful Master Angler fish. "Just because you're nearly 80 years old doesn't mean you have to quit fishing, and Bernie is living proof of that," Noffert's fishing partner, Paul Wolfe, said. The two anglers ventured out into Anchor Bay on May 30 in hopes of catching some spring northern pike. "We didn't catch any pike and had only caught one sheephead all day," Wolfe said. "I was thinking the day was a real bomb but decided to troll on the way back to the dock.

"We're trolling along and all of a sudden Bernie says 'Stop, I think I'm snagged.' Then he said 'Oops, it just moved,' and we knew he had something."

Noffert was rigged with eightpound-test monofilament fishing line with a William's Wobbler (Canadian spoon) attached directly to his snap swivel.

He didn't have the luxury of a steel leader, so he had to play the fish. After a patient, 20minute fight, the fish surfaced. It was a 53-inch muskie!

"It took me five or six tries to net the fish," Wolfe said. "I'd get the front half in, and the back half would fall out. Then I'd get the back half in, and the front half would fall out. Finally, I netted it in the middle, and it kind of folded into the net."

The only down side to this story is that muskie season wasn't open.

Although pike, walleye and sauger seasons are open year round on Lake St. Clair, muskie season didn't start until June 1 this year. The fish was caught two days before the season opened.

After a quick measurement and a couple pictures, it was returned to the water to offer another unforgettable adventure to another angler on another

Catch-and-Release Master Angler awards are based solely on length. One witness is needed to verify the length. Each entry must also include a photo of the fish and/or the signature of a biologist to verify the species.

Dietrich does well

The experience was one he won't soon forget, although the results were a little less than desirable

Livonia's Ed Dietrich finished

Red Man All-American Bass Fishing Championship June 1-2 on the Arkansas River in Pine Bluff, Ark. He finished the twoday event with seven fish, which totaled 10 pounds, seven ounces.

"I think the biggest mistake I made was not spending both practice days in the area I was fishing," explained Dietrich, who placed seventh in a regional tournament to qualify for the 47man All-American field. "All the fish I caught came in the final 15 minutes of two days of fishing."

Dietrich, 32, earned $2,000 for his efforts, but the experience of participating in such a prestigious event was worth much

"The whole experience was just unbelievable," he said. "Anyone who fishes the Red Man Trail should go for it. It's a total

"They had a half-million dollars worth of brand new bass boats for the contestants to use. Everyone was just great. They really take care of you, and the Arkansas River is such a beautiful place to be -- a bass fisherman's paradise."

GRINDING TO A HALT

Drivers will hear grinding noises upon applying their brakes when the brake linings are worn down to their metal backing plates (in the case of bonded linings), or to the rivets (in the case of riveted linings), locating the problem may simply be a matter of listening carefully to where the grinding noises originate. The front brakes are usually the fastest to wear out because they shoulder most of the responsibility for stopping the car. Correcting the source of grinding noises promptly is necessary if damage to the brake discs or drums is to be avoided. If the damage is minor, discs and drums can be machined to render the surface that contacts the pads or shoes smooth and serviceable. If the damage to the discs and drums is severe, these parts will have to be replaced as part of a brake job.

Observerland's brightest include state standouts

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton's girls track team won its third-straight Western Lakes Activities Association meet this season, a feat never before accomplished in the league's 13 seasons.

What made the three-peat more impressive is the Chiefs did it without many individual standouts as only hurdler Nancy Hoffman and their 1,600 meter relay team of Tiffany Williams, Mary Anderson, Hoffman and Becky Uryga secured berths on the 1996 All-Observer Girls Track Team.

Depth was the Chiefs' strongsuit as well as the guidance of coach George Przygodski, who was selected Observerland's Coach of the Year for 1996. Under Przygodski, a former football standout at Grand Rapids Catholic Central and the University of Michigan, the Chiefs have won every Western Division championship in the WLAA.

Lutheran Westland had the area's only state champion. The Warriors' 800 meter relay team of Rebekah Hoffmeier, Amy Clark, Hana Hughes and Laura Clark, not favored after finishing second at the Class C regional, surprised the field with a first-place finish at the state meet.

The other strong showing at the state meet came from Livonia Stevenson's 3,200 relay of Kelly McNeilance, Kelly Travis, Jeannette Stojcevski and Danielle Harris, which placed fifth.

Introducing the 1996 All-Observer Girls Track Team as selected recently in a meeting of Observerland coaches.

FIELD EVENTS

Danielle Wensing, shot put, Livonia. Franklin: The versatile sophomore was a Western Lakes Activities Association and Class A regional meet champion in the shot put. She also placed fifth in the 200 meter race at the conference meet. Wensing finished 11th in the state meet in the shot put and her personal best throw of 36-feet, 7 1/2 inches earned her the third-best toss in school history.

She holds the Salem school record, clearing 5-6 1/2. As a senior, she placed first in 12 of 18 meets, including tournaments and invitationals, with her best effort being 5-2. She also excelled in volleyball and basketball.

"Nicole is extremely competitive and She also carries a 3.8 grade point · takes great pride in her performances," coach Mark Gregor said. "As a threesport athlete in all four years, she has accomplished a great deal, including eighth in all-time scoring.

HURDLES EVENTS

Amy Buhl, 100 meter hurdles, Farmington Hills Mercy: Buhl was a Catholic League champion in the 100 hurdles three straight years and a two-time state qualifier. She also helped the Marlins' 400 meter relay team win a Catholic League crown.

The two-time Mercy Most Valuable Player was first at the Jackson Invitational and second at the Oakland County, Operation Friendship and regional meets. Her time of 15.1 at the Oakland County Meet is a new school record.

As a junior, she set the Mercy singleseason points record with 197. Buhl, who averaged better than 100 points per season, is Mercy's scholar-athlete award winner for track.

"Amy steadily improved her whole career," coach Gary Servais said. "She ran cross country, whatever it's taken, she's done it to be a better athlete.'

Nancy Hoffman, 300 hurdles, Plymouth Canton: A Class A regional champion. Hoffman had the area's best time in the 300 hurdles at 47.5. She finished third at the WLAA meet and also participated on the Chiefs' successful 800 and 1,600 meter relay teams.

Becky Couyoumjian, 100 meter dash, Livonia Churchill: A captain and fouryear letterwinner, Couyoumjian led the Chargers with 130 points. She always challenged for first place at the high-profile meets, taking second at the WLAA, Class A regional and Belleville Relays and third at the Clarkston Invitational. Her personal best time was 12.7.

Throughout the last four years, Becky has turned into a very tough, respected sprinter," coach Kelly Graham said. "She peaked at the right times these last two years, qualifying for the state last year and barely missing out this year. Her accomplishments in the 'big meets were great. She had great dedication which showed in her hard work to achieve the goals that were important to her. She will truly be Devron Kennedy, 200 meter dash, Farmington Hills Harrison: The senior not only set a school record, but a WLAA meet record, in the 200 meterrace with a time of 26.0 seconds. The Class A regional champion finished third at the Oakland County Meet. She is a three-time WLAA meet champion.

*Devron has really matured into a fine athlete." coach Mark Babcock said. "I'm very proud of her. She works hard in practice and is a fine student."

Heather Burcar, 400 meter dash, North Farmington: Burcar placed at the state meet in both the 400 meter dash and long jump and leaves North with school records in both: 16-1 3/4 in the long jump and 58.4 seconds in the 400 meters. She also was a member of the Nancy had a great season, she was 1,600 meter relay team that set a new school mark (4:08.7).

Burcar scored more points in the 400 coach George Przygodski said. "Nancy's meter dash, winning the WLAA and Oakregional and ninth at the Class A meet.

In the long jump, she placed second at the WLAA meet and third at the West Bloomfield Invitational. She was fifth at the regional, eighth at the Oakland County Meet and 11th at the state

"Heather has been a consistent performer the past four years," coach Bill Pinnell said. "She has been an integral part of our successful 800 and 1,600 meter relays.'

Kate Adams, 800 meter dash, Farmington: The sophomore is only .03 off a school record, establishing a personal best time of 2:22.5. She placed second at the WLAA Meet, third at the regional and fifth at the Oakland County Meet.

"Kate is an outstanding student as well as a gifted athlete," coach Bruce Brown said. "Her times this spring were amazing considering she was the4 goalie on the soccer team as well as playing hockey. If she ever focuses on track she could be truly amazing."

Jodi Werman, 1,600 meter run, Lutheran Westland: The junior had a memorable Class C state meet, setting new school records while taking fourth place in both the 1,600 run (5:19.33) and 3,200 run (11:57.4). She also ran a 2:24.6 split on the 3,200 relay team.

She was a regional champion in both the 1.600 run and 3.200 run at the regional and also ran on the 3,200 relay team that took second place. Werner won the mile run (5:45.3) and the 880vard run (2:30.0) at the Metro Conference Meet Kelly Travis, 3,200 meter run, Livonia 1,600 and 3,200 races and took second place in both events at the WLAA Meet.

"Kelly is one of the elite distance runners in the state," coach Paul Holmberg said. "She started the season injured and worked extremely hard to catch up but never reached her top form. Her best times are still in the future. She will break the school records in both the 1,600 and 3,200 races before she graduates.'

RELAY TEAMS

Farmington Hills Harrison, 400 meter ralay (Devron Kennedy, Clerra Colbert, Emily Mayberry, Mahogany Fletcher): The Hawks' quartet were WLAA meet champions and regional runners-up. They placed eighth at the Class A state

"These girls stayed together all season and it really paid off," coach Mark Babcock said. "Three of these girls are rookie tracksters and really developed into a nice group. Devron is the only veteran of the group. They had a great season and we are really proud of them."

Lutheran Westland, 800 meter relay (Rebekah Hoffmeler, Amy Clark, Hana Hughes, Laura Clark): The Warriors were Class C state champions with a time of 1:47.53, which is impressive enough. But accomplishing such a feat after taking second at the regional is even more

They showed their potential by taking first place at the Metro Conference Meet. They showed steady improvement after being disqualified in their first dual

She coach John Gerlach said. "Laura's and was a regional champion in both the Amy's experience and focus and Hana's and Rebekah's amazing 'freshman' speed equaled a great relay combina-

Plymouth Canton, 1,600 meter relay (Tiffany Williams, Mary Anderson, Nancy Hoffman, Becky Uryga): The foursome of all juniors ran together at five meets, capping the season at the Class A state

They won two dual meets, finished second at the Class regional and Cougar Invitational in Grand Rapids, Williams was the Chiefs' relay specialist and Hoffman, Anderson and Uryga were strong in the middle distance and or hurdles events.

"This relay team was sucessful not only because of the outstanding talent of all four girls, but it was also their close friendship, which they shared." coach George Przygodski said.

Livonia Stevenson, 3,200 meter relay (Jeannette Stojcevski, Danielle Harris, Kelly McNellance, Kelly Travis): The foursome that includes three sophomores and one senior (Stojcevski) had a personal best time of 9:37.41, breaking a school record that stood for 10 years.

They were first in the WLAA and regional meets and took fifth in the Class A state meet.

"This relay team did not have any weak links," coach Paul Holmberg said. "All four girls are very capable 800 meter runners, as pointed out by their state-meet splits (2:23, 2:25, 2:22, 2:25). They are great competitors who wanted a new school record and worked, hard to get it."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING PLYMOUTH CHARTER TOWNSHIP PLANNING COMMISSION

TO AMEND TEXT:

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND PLYMOUTH CHARTER TOWNSHIP ORDINANCE NO. 83 BY AMENDING ARTICLE XXXII DEFINITIONS, OF SAID ORDINANCE RELATED TO LARGE SCALE INSTITUTIONAL USES, CHURCHES AND LARGE SCALE CHURCHES, AND TO AMEND OTHER ARTICLES TO PROVIDE FOR LARGE SCALE INSTITUTIONAL USES AND LARGE SCALE CHURCHES TO BE LOCATED IN THE PL, R-1-E, R-2-A, OS, C-1, C-2, MR, IND AND PUD DISTRICTS, SUBJECT TO SPECIAL CONDITIONS.

DATE OF HEARING: June 19, 1996 TIME OF HEARING:

7:30 p.m.

PLACE OF HEARING: PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP HALL 42350 ANN ARBOR ROAD

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Commission of Plymouth Charter Township proposes on its own motion to amend Article XXXII. Definitions; ARTICLE IV, PL Public Lands District; ARTICLE V, AG Agricultural District; ARTICLE VI, R-1-E, R-1-H, R-1-S, R-1 One Family Residential Districts; ARTICLE VII, R-M Mobile Home Residential Districts ARTICLE VIII, R-2 Two Family Residential District; ARTICLE IX, R-2-A Multiple Family Residential District, ARTICLE X, OS Office Service District; ARTICLE XII, C-2 General Commercial District; ARTICLE XIV, MR Mid Rise District; ARTICLE XV, IND Industrial District; ARTICLE XIX, PUD Planned Unit Development District; and ARTICLE XXIII, Special Provisions, as follows:

Section 32.2., Definitions, presently has no definition of large scale churches or large scale institutions.

Section 32.2.18., is hereby proposed to be amended to read as

18. CHURCH. A site used for the regular assembly of persons for the conducting of religious services and accessory uses therewith. Such accessory uses may include rectories, living quarters for church ministry and other members of the religious order who carry out their duties primarily on the site, religious education classes, day care, outdoor recreation facilities (unlighted), religious office space, youth centers and others. Rescue missions, tent revivals and other temporary assemblies are not included in this definition.

Section 32.2. is hereby proposed to be amended to add a new definition as Section 32.2.18.a. as follows:

18.a. CHURCH, LARGE SCALE. A religious institution with a seating capacity of 1,500 people or more in its sanctuary or main area of assembly. A large-scale church may also be characterized by any one or more of the following features: region-serving accessory facilities such as high schools, colleges and seminaries; parking for 500 passenger vehicles or more; one or more buildings 100,000 square feet in floor area or greater; or other features. Large-scale churches are distinguished by such features as: large size of assemblies and resultant traffic surges, large off-street parking lots, retreat and conference centers, or major institutional character. Large-scale churches have negative impacts on single family residential areas because of scale of buildings, parking, traffic and frequency of use, which are different from smaller churches which have traditionally been compatible with single family areas. Because of these impacts, large-scale churches are more compatible with non-residential districts, subject to conditions, which minimize the impacts.

Section 32.2. is hereby proposed to be further amended to add a new definition as Section 32.2.58a. as follows:

58.a. INSTITUTIONAL USES, LARGE SCALE, Public, parochial and private schools including nursery schools, churches, libraries, community buildings, hospitals, convalescent homes, municipal facilities or mortuaries which have either one or both of the following characteristics:

> a) Five hundred (500) or more parking spaces are required based on the parking requirements in the Zoning Ordinance. b) The seating capacity of the main area of assemble is one thousand five hundred (1,500) or more. II. Section 4.1.1., PL Public Lands District, Principal Permitted Uses,

Each large scale use permitted as a Use Permitted Subject to Special Conditions (as indicated in the preceding table) shall meet the following conditions, in addition to all other provisions of this Ordinance. These standards are intended to restrict large scale uses to suitable locations and mitigate adverse impacts of the uses on the community.

1. The site shall have at least 150 feet of frontage on a major thoroughfare with an existing or planned right-or-way of not less than one hundred twenty (120) feet. All ingress and egress to the site shall be directly onto such major thoroughfares.

2. The site shall be located within one-half (1/2) mile of interchange access to M-14 or I-275, as measured along major thoroughfares.

3. All buildings, structures, and parking and loading areas shall be set back a minimum of one hundred (100) feet from any abutting residential zoning district. Such setback area shall be heavily landscaped so as to create a complete visual and physical separation between the two unlike land uses, forming an effective screen in compliance with the provisions of Article 22 of this Ordinance.

4. Traffic from events (including church worship services) and other large assemblies shall be controlled by the institution or church or by its agents so as to not create congestion or unreasonable delays on the public street. A schedule of expected frequency of events (including church worship services) and assemblies, a description of the method(s) of traffic control, and a traffic impact study and shall be presented to the Planning Commission for approval after review and comment on the plan by the Township Police Department.

Community College looking for Plymouth, Canton students

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

Wayne County Community College officials will give it to you straight - they are trying to improve

"Indeed there were some problems," said Russ Tuttle, college community outreach consultant. "That is regrettable. But there is now a new administration. There is new blood. We accept what happened before.

That's why Tuttle and George Davis, college regional director of public affairs and community outreach, are seeking out new students and community support.

"We have started making inroads in Canton," Davis said, adding that efforts are underway to talk with graduating seniors about attending

The closest campus is at 9555 Haggerty in Belleville. But altogether the college has five campuses throughout Wayne County.

What Davis and Tuttle want Canton residents to know is that high school seniors can obtain a dual enrollment and take college credit classes at WCCC while completing high school.

On the other hand, WCCC is what is considered

■ 'Indeed there were some problems. That is regrettable. But there is now a new administration. There is new blood. We accept what happened before.

an open door college. That means you don't need a diploma or GED to attend classes

Senior citizens, 60 years and older may attend WCCC free. "They just have to buy the books," The college has full North Central accreditation through the year 2000. All credits from WCCC are transferable to other colleges and universities. Tuition is $54 per credit hour, Tuttle said. Other offerings at WCCC include a Saturday

"The success rate has been that 85 percent of them end up going to college," Tuttle said. The college also offers a day care center that is open 24 hours a day, six days a week.

Academy for students who are considered at risk.

In fall 1996, students may sign up for training on the Novell computer system and study to become a certified Novell administrator or engineer. "A lot of police departments are now going to this. They can talk to anyone from their patrol cars." Davis said

Also in the fall, the college will hook up on the Internet. "We will be able to get people on it from home. Eventually this will allow us to do registrations from home," Davis continued. The college also provides televised courses.

We are probably the best kept secret in the world," Tuttle said, adding that the college offers such a varied curriculum as nursing and trucking. The college also provides corporate training.

WCCC also offers community service continuing education courses. "They are a one-shot deal," Turtle said, referring to classes such as softwares, prepatory courses for taking licensing test forbuilders and real estate sales.

Anyone who remembers WCCC's troubles will remember millage. The campus in Belleville was closed in 1992-93 because the state cut its $10 million allocation.

"They told us that if we don't get a millage of our own passed, we don't get the $10 million," Davis

In 1991, a millage request failed. Finally in 1994 voters gave the college 1 mill. The campus reopened in 1994.

"The financial problems have been resolved," Davis said. "We have the 1 mill until 1999."

Voters in Canton who pay that 1 mill are in precincts 15, 2 and 20 - all at the southern end of Canton. "They are paying for it whether they are using it or not," Tuttle said.

NEW HOMES

Silverman condo site has plenty of draws

If the model at Glens of Indianwood in Orion Township doesn't impress you, maybe you'll be taken by one of the other five floor plans offered by Silverman Homes.

Maybe you'll like the prices from $189,900 for a 1,700-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms and two baths to $219,990 for a 2,500--square-foot two story with four bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths.

Then there's the 14-acre nature preserve on the western edge of the site with a retention pond, trees and a walking path covered with wood chips.

A couple holes of Indianwood Golf Course border the northern edge of the single family site condominium community.

And how about the location off Joslyn Road four miles north of I-75 and within an easy drive of the Palace of Auburn Hills, Pine Knob, Canterbury Village, Bald Mountain Recreation Area and Lake Orion with its public access.

"One reason people move further out to an area like Lake Orion is they're attracted to the schools and owning a little bigger piece of the planet," said Gilbert "Buzz" Silverman, a third-generation builder.

"This site was kind of an open meadow with mature trees scattered through. It feels like you're living in a state park. There's no road noise. We developed this without clear cutting trees.

"You're not driving past where everyone else lives. You're right in the middle," Silverman said.

The sales model, nearly completed, is a colonial of 2,400 square feet carrying a base price of $209,990.

The main living area features a living room and family room with fireplace connected by French doors, a kitchen/nook with a half wall leading to the family room and a formal dining room.

Four bedrooms are upstairs.

The master, with sloped ceiling, has a separate tub and shower, dual sink vanity with sitting area and a walk-in closet. Three other bedrooms and a full bath are upstairs.

Cost of the model with extras including air conditioning, skylight, and upgraded cabinetry is about $219,000.

All the floor plans at Glens of Indianwood include at base price a fireplace, two car garage, first floor laundry, basement and dishwasher.

Silverman also likes to personally point out a couple standard touches other builders might not offer.

"We put windows on all sides of our homes," he said. "We put 6-foot windows on the first floor. We're very into windows. It's a quality issue. People, if they could have their way, the whole house would be glass.

"There's a flower box outside the kitchen sink on every home in every Silverman community," he said.

Vinyl siding is the primary exterior material.

More than half of the sites have sold. The typical buyer has kids and is building new for the

"They like the fact they're on a bigger site (half-acre minimum lots) and reputation - everyone has heard of Silverman," said Sherry Jordan, sales rep. "It's basically knowing they're getting a great value."

"We're very much into being neighborhood developers as well as builders," Silverman said.

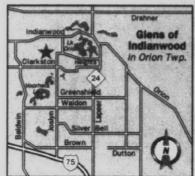

"This is a protected, special little site. It's all cul-de-sacs, another customer preference item we designed to."

The Glens at Indianwood is serviced by city water and septic tanks. There are no sidewalks.

The property tax rate is currently $27.76 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $200,000 condo in the first year.

An annual association fee of $150 is projected.

Steven and Jane Brumfield are buying a 2,500-square-foot colonial. It's their first new

"It's so country," Jane said.
"We have a lot with a lot of trees.
The lots are bigger so you're not on top of one another.

"We bought the Sheffield. It was the biggest. We have four children and it fit out needs perfectly. One thing we really liked was the family room and living room were right next to each other. We loved the master suite," Jane said.

David and Elizabeth Greene, along with son Zachary, will move into a story-and-a-half with the master on the first floor. They, too, are building for the first time and were attracted by the lot sizes.

"I like that it's going to be a small, little community with wetlands in back so there will be no building going on behind us," Elizabeth said. "We wanted to live in an area that wasn't right on top of the highway. Access to I-75 is very convenient.

"The sales girls are wonderful and very helpful," she added. "They've made it very easy for us. Sherry gives us weekly updates."

ket value. That means the owners of a $200,000 condo in the sub would pay about $2,776 the The sales office at Glens of Indianwood, (810) 814-8724 is open 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Today, homeowners are faced with as many solutions as they are potential problems for their wood decks. With no shortage of options on how to care for a deck, the question remains: "Who has the right answers?

"The confusion in the marketplace is justified. If you ask 10 people how to care for a deck, you'll get 11 answers," said Debbie Joseph, senior brand manager for Cuprinol Wood Care Products. "Everyone has his or her own opinion on when to waterproof, how often to stain, etc. The truth is, caring for a deck is actually quite simple.

With 2 million decks being built each year, it's no wonder there are a

To stain or not to stain. Sealers versus slew of products - and even more advice - being offered for every conceivable deck-related problem.

With clear sealers, semi-transparent stains, wood toners and solid stains to choose from - not to mention those that have every conceivable combination of UV protection, mildewcide and waterproofing - it's easy to see how consumers can find themselves getting "decked" by an overload of choices.

The mistakes homeowners make in caring for their wood decks are equally divided between buying the wrong products and not using them properly.

'Too often, homeowners are using the right product at the wrong time, or they're using a product that doesn't feature the proper protective elements," Cuprinol's Joseph said.

Joseph finds that most homeowners go to extremes when it comes to deck care: they either do too much or too little in caring for their wood. Some err in the face of caution, while others, especially those with pressure-treated wood, are under the impression that the wood will take care of itself. Either way, both are the recipe for a damaged

Her list of do's and don'ts include:

■ Do conduct a simple "water test" on a new piece of wood. If drops of water bead up, don't do anything. If they are absorbed into the wood, apply the treatment. n Don't use siding products on decks (they don't have the durability for foot

■ Don't be misled thinking pressure-treated wood doesn't require maintenance; it may not meet protection from rotting, but it does need to be cleaned, stained or sealed to prevent splitting, drying, cracking and

Don't think paint will work better than stain. Stains don't require as much surface preparation, and the fading of stain is less noticeable than the cracking and peeling of paint.

■ Do wash with special cleaners as needed (usually once a year) to remove mildew and dirt. Deck cleaners also enhance the natural wood tone. Use either a liquid deck cleaner or a more environmentally friendly, biodegradable crystals.

Joseph points out that the keys to caring for a wood deck are protecting it from the elements and keeping it looking fresh and clean.

"It's true that some woods are better equipped to battle the elements than others, but the fact remains that all wood surfaces need a little TLC," she said.

But therein lies much of the mystery of deck care; how much care, how tender should it be and does anyone really love doing it?

Like any home improvement project, caring for one's deck does not have to be time consuming, nor strenuous. Many view fixing up an old deck an enjoyable and satisfying experience; and the payoff if preserving an eye-pleasing, heavily used addition to house.

Joseph offers a simplified timeframe for homeowners that addresses whether your goal is aesthetics, protection or a combination of both.

■ Clear sealers and preservatives are colorless and are normally

According to the Simmons Market Research Bureau of New York, in 1994 there were 25.4 million mail-order transactions for curtains, bedspreads and linens; furniture, cookware and kitchen items; stereo equipment, small appliances and gardening items. The figures compare with 23.3 million in 1990.

Of the home furnishings bought by mail, home accessories seem to dominate, perhaps because no exact measurements are required and the selection is bled. And for those that have to be measured, such as window shades and blinds, there's the potential for costly buyer error.

Despite the obvious pleasures of catalog shopping, there are issues to consider before picking up the telephone.

Measuring for window treat-ments is, indeed, an aspect of mail order that customers don't like. Another is selecting fabrics, according to Irene Wilson, vice president of the Spiegel catalog in Downers Grove, Ill.

To at least partially address these concerns, some mail-order houses include detailed measuring guides in their catalogs and offer fabric swatches for free or for a nominal fee deducted from future orders.

If an item arrives damaged, most catalog companies will pick it up and replace it or offer a refund. But if you're an impulse shopper who orders something and later decides against it, mail-order isn't for you.

"You have to be a confident shopper to buy from a catalog," Hure says, "because the process of returning things is irritating and time-consuming, which defeats the whole purpose.

With a little imagination small can be beautiful

Every man's and woman's home should be his or her castle, but not everyone has a home with castle-like proportions. If your home's scale is one the diminutive side, here are some tips from the design experts at Laura Ashley to give those small rooms a large dose of spaciousness and charm:

Use double-duty furniture to save space. Choose versatile pieces, like Laura Ashley's overscaled Cressford ottoman that provides extra seating but also serves as a coffee table. Upholstered dining chairs can function equally well in a dining room and as extra seating when pulled into a living room.

■ Keep the color palette sim-

■ Reflective surfaces can "fool the eye" into thinking that a works. So does putting glass doors on cabinets and bookshelves.

■ Don't automatically put all of your furniture against the walls to try to make a room look bigger. Creative placement of furniture - like floating it in the center of the room - often makes small space look larger.

■ Take advantage of irregularities in the room's proportions for efficient furniture placement. For example, a bay window makes a lovely spot to nestle a small sofa or chair. An awkward wall niche may be just the place to put a desk and chair or a small table. The end of a room, particularly it the ceiling slopes down, can be a cozy nook for a

■ Instead of space-grabbing furniture, utilize space-saving options, like shelves. For example, if there's no room for a night stand, add a long shelf behind the head of the bed or along the adjacent wall. Or, choose furniture that also can provide hidden storage. A skirted round or square plywood table can hide a

If certain rooms, like formal dining rooms, are rarely used, consider temporary furniture. A folding table covered with a colorful table cover, for example, can accommodate a dinner party, then be tucked away do the room can be used for other purposes.

Avoid elaborate, heavy window treatments that may overwhelm a small room. Choose simple window treatments, preferably ones that are installed within the window frame, like Roman blinds or shades, and make sure they let in lots of light to visually expand the room.

■ Use wallpaper creatively to make rooms look larger and also taller. Wallpaper borders also create the illusion of width.

Keep the floors understated. Opt for plain carpet, like sisal, or bare wood floors with small accent rugs rather than busypatterned carpets.

Down payment, income obstacles to buying a home

By JOHN D. McCLAIN ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) _ More Americans are willing to make major sacrifices to become home owners, such as delaying retirement and cutting back on vacation, according to a survey released last week.

The Federal National Mortgage Association said its nationwide poll of more than 1,800 people found that raising money for a down payment and earning enough to meet monthly mortgage payments increasingly are obstacles Americans face in buying a home.

The survey found 52 percent citing down payments and closing costs as a major barrier, compared with 51 percent a year ago. And 50 percent said having enough income to pay their mortgages was a major hurdle, up from 44 percent in 1995.

Other major roadblocks were job security concerns, 48 percent, and finding the proper neighborhood, 43 percent.

To try to overcome those hurdles, the survey found:

Ninety-one percent of Americans would pass up owning a more expensive car, up from 81 percent in a 1992 sur-

_Sixty-seven percent said they would put off retirement for 10 years in order to own a home, up from 59 percent.

Eighty-five percent said they would forgo an extra two weeks of vacation each year if necessary to buy a home, compared with 71 percent in 1992.

> And 86 percent said owning a home is a good investment. In fact, 74 percent reported they would recommend a 30-year-old friend use $10,000 in savings on a down payment rather than invest in stocks.

The survey of 1,857 individuals was conducted April 8-16 by the survey research firms of Peter D. Hart and Robert Teeter. No margin of error was given.

The mortgage association, also known as Fannie Mae, is a congressionally chartered, shareholder-owned company and the nation's largest source of home mortgage funds.

New products aid perennial care

Unlike flowering annuals that must be planted anew each spring, perennials come up every year, growing stronger and more lovely each spring.

When it comes to raising such perennials as peonies, iris, core-opsis and daylilies, good old tender, loving care will come in handy, but many avid gardeners are also turning to new technologies and products to help them.

■ Toners provide slight color to the surface, but they also protect the outer surface from warping and splitting, as well as offering some UV protection. Toners should be applied every 1-2 years.

 Semi-transparent stains impart color, but the texture and natural grain of the wood continue to show through. With solid color stains (great for older, aged wood), the texture shows through, but not the grain.

Good examples of innovative products include weed-deterring landscape fabrics and antitranspirant sprays, which help plants maintain optimum moisture lev-

Professional landscapers have long relied on both products to keep plants healthy and reduce maintenance. And, in recent years, these and other high-tech aids have become more readily available - and affordable - to the consumer.

Perennial plantings offer the gardener a lot of return for a small investment in time and money, said Boyd Thomas of Easy Gardener, manufacturers of

"Perennial plants generally cost between $5 and $10 each," Thomas said. "An investment that size merits the use of landscape fabrics and antitranspirant sprays."

Thomas offers the following specific tips you can use to buy the perennials you want and

• Buy small specimens — With few exceptions, perennials grow very fast; most double in size each of the first few years. Your $3 pint-sized hosta is tomorrow's $10 prize-winning specimen. The greatest spurt of growth comes the second and third springs after planting. Landscape fabrics — Fabrics, such as WeedBlock from Easy Gardener, are especially useful early in a perennial's life. They block weeds and help the soil stay cool and moist, thus encouraging robust plant

The fabric is easily installed. Spread the material on the soil surface, then cut oversized X's with a pair of scissors (allowing room for the plant to spread) and put the plant through the fabric.

Thomas recommends that the fabric be covered with a threeinch layer of wood chips, stone or a similar mulch. The mulch helps insulate the soil and adds beauty to the planting. As an added bonus, WeedBlock slows the natural deterioration of the bark mulch so that you won't have to reapply it so often.

· Buy standard varieties -New or hybrid varieties cost more than older varieties. While hybrids sometimes offer improved color, pest resistance or other variables, old-fashioned varieties have stood the test of time and are priced less expensively. They are an excellent buy for the beginning gardener.

New variety or old, any newly planted perennial and especially those with a large leafy surface (hosta, peony, poppy and others) will benefit from an application of an antitranspirant spray, such as CloudCover from Easy Gardener, after planting.

It forms a thin, flexible film that reduces water loss from the leaf but still lets the leaf breathe normally. Such treatments are especially beneficial for new perennials because their roots haven't become established sufficiently to search for water.

· Shop farm markets -Small, local growers often sell perennials at seasonal markets and, typically, quality is very high while prices are generally between those of a discount store and a nursery. The person selling the plant is likely to be the same one who raised it from infancy and is a good source for answers to your questions. Choose plants that are robust and compact; avoid those that are off-color and leggy, or those that have shown undue wear in getting to market.

· Trade with neighbors -Most perennials are energized by dividing their roots every four years or so.

Ask a neighbor to save you a few root divisions the next time the plant is lifted from the ground and its roots are divided. There's usually plenty to go around. Most gardeners divide their perennials in the fall.

"Dividing time" is another good opportunity to use an antitranspirant spray to reduce moisture loss from leaves. Apply it to foliage before the plants are dug back in. Reapply a few weeks after planting.

(MPS) - A natural beauty that can be enjoyed within the home is ornamental fish. The fascinating movements, bright and distinctive colors, and various shapes of ornamental fish are a delight for the whole family.

Enclosed porches (California or Florida rooms) are ideal locations for goldfish aquariums. Goldfish, unlike tropical fish, do not need a heated aquarium and are a great addition to spring and summer living.

Wild about resale

Many pick Children's Orchard

A former General Motors secretary, Kay Suffron turned town Roger Smith's offer to be his personal secretary.

Now she's a partner with her husband, John Suffron, at the Children's Orchard, a children's used clothing store in Coventry Commons at Joy and Morton Taylor in Canton Township. Children's Orchard sells "high-quality" used clothing for children and some used furniture, toys, swings, books, shoes, boots and belts.

It was recently voted number one resale shop by Metro Parents magazine, Kay Suffron said.

After recuperating from a serious illness this spring, Kay Suffron is back on the job. "I enjoy it very much. It's hard being away from it," she said.

John Suffron is the main buyer of used clothing. Kay Suffron handles the finances and advertising. She also works on the sales floor, along with her

Founded in 1980, the company has more than 50 franchise locations in the United States. It is headquartered in Ann Arbor and started in New England, where resale has historically been an important part of the local economy, John Suffron said.

The store buys all seasons of clothing, all year and will make home visits for larger items such as cribs.

If an item is chosen for resale, Suffron makes an offer and pays cash up front. About 4,000 people sell to the store on a routine basis, Suffron said.

The store has a "very good clientele," he said.

Even people who used to live in the area make it a point to come back and bring clothes for resale because they feel comfortable, he said.

Clothing is inspected, steamed and priced. It is also color-coordinated on the racks and ranges from newborn to size 8.

Older children's clothing isn't carried, because styles change so rapidly, he said.

"Kids influence the marketplace more at that age," he said. "We buy things we have confidence in," he said.

Michigan employers who operate seasonal businesses can now apply to the Michigan Employment Security Commission for a seasonal designation that could potentially lower their unemployment costs. "We have opened the application process for businesses that are interested in being designated as seasonal employers," MESC Director F. Robert Edwards said. "By calling our employer customer relations office, employers can receive a complete information package plus an application form." MESC's employer customer rela-1" tions office can be reached at (800) 638-3994. Beginning in July, workers with seasonal employers may be disqualified from receiving state unemploy- 213 ment benefits while they are off the job between seasons. Employers must complete and mail their applications for sea-sonal designation to MESC no fewer than 20 days before the expected start of their normal work season. The agency is accepting applications from employers with seasons beginning on or after July 1.

SPRING delivers the suburbs with more weekday readers than The News and Free Press combined

Now there are more reasons than ever to go home with SPRING Newspapers. SPRING continues to be the primary weekday newspaper for suburban residents of this suburb-driven market.* For example:

- 48% of adults in the SPRING survey area read SPRING weekly and daily
- SPRING delivers, on average, 1,060,000 total readers every week.
- That means SPRING delivers 1,167,000 gross impressions for an entire week.

Compare these numbers to your other media alternatives: only 37% of adults in the SPRING survey area read the weekday Free Press or The Detroit News.

More suburban Detroit readers turn to SPRING.

· SPRING delivers more weekday suburban readers with household incomes over · SPRING delivers more suburban homeowners (51%) than any other weekday newspaper.

Taos touch

IN STYLE: Designer Teresa Swayne of Taos, N.M., personally brings her fine collection of handcrafted furniture to Mesa Arts, 32800 Franklin Road, Franklin, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, June 14, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 15. Swayne's hand wrought tables, credenzas, cabinets and trasteros (armoires) are embellished with hand punched tin and folkloric carving, which is typical of the Chimayo and New Mexico Antique style. The Chimayo pieces are reminiscent of Shaker designs, handcrafted of most frequently used pine or alder and available in a variety of finishes. Swayne also uses mahogany. Because of their simplicity, elegance and warmth, the furniture pieces adapt to any decor. The iron work stands and pulls are hand forged in Taos, and the copper and tin panels affixed to the New Mexico Antique designs are punched, patinaed and hand painted. The decorative painted or punched tin, distressed or painted finishes on the furnishings look comfortable with contemporary or traditional homes. Custom orders available. "This furniture is not made in a factory," Swayne said. "It looks as if it has a past. Each piece is a little different ... They are the heirlooms of the future." Call (810) 851-9949.

ON 'TRAC: The new Easytrac Power Outlet Kit from Intermatic lets you add electrical outlets in workshops and other locations, without any wiring. Designed for quick and easy installation, the kit also eliminates jumbled masses of tangled wires, extension cords and overloaded outlets around the home or office. The system, which can be easily expanded when more outlets are needed, features a special pre-wired track that can be installed in minutes. Everything needed for installation is in the kit. The system is UL listed, CSA certified and completely childproof, and won't operate unless all components are installed correctly. Available at hardware stores and home centers, including Home Depot, the kits carry a suggested retail price of $39.95. Good gift for Father's Day. For more information, write Intermatic Inc., Intermatic Plaza, Spring Grove, Ill. 60081-9698.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Know what is lurking in water

Well owners, have you ever wondered what might be lurking in the water you're drinking?

There are millions of different bacteria, chemicals, minerals and toxins in the water we drink. However, they are at trace levels and are, for the most

Your best protection is to learn about your water and test it regularly. Water labs will be able to give or direct you to a source that will outline the acceptable parameters or tolerances of the compositions or conditions that may be found in your tap water. A local lab should also be a good source of information for the most common problems found in your area.

Here is an overview of a few of the dangerous concerns found in some

• Coliform bacteria - This is waste from animals or humans. This situation can develop in areas where there are large populations of humans or animals. Surface water may be washed into wells or their underground aquifers. In older communities, cesspools were much deeper in the ground and closer to water tables. New community requirements put on-site water systems closer to the surfaces and farther from the water tables. There is no acceptable coliform bacteria level for water that is to be consumed.

• Nitrates — These chemicals may cause neurological problems.

· Pesticides - These are found in areas where foliage is sprayed or dusted. Rain washes the pesticides to the surface and possibly to wells or underground aquifers.

Proper balanced water is 7.0 PH. When the PH is below 7.0, the water is acidic. With levels above 7.0, the water is alkaline, or base. It is very common to see water with low or acidic PH. especially in municipal water supplies or densely populated areas.

Low PH can be recognized at sinks and tubs after a few years by the greenish stain at the drain. This stain is caused by the chemical reaction of the acidic water and the copper piping. The acidic water causes copper to be depleted from the pipes to the point of failure, or leaking. Advanced stages of this activity can be evidenced by small. round, green stains on the pipes. This is an indication that the pipe is newspaper-thin and will leak at any time.

Legal limits of acidic PH are typically 6.2 to 6.5, depending on geographic location. The levels are measured on a ogarithmic scale. High levels of minerals will manifest themselves by leaving brownish stains at the sink and tub drains and in the toilet tanks.

Here is a partial list of maximum contaminant levels (MCLs) set by the U.S. Safe Drinking Water Act:

COVER STORY

Personality plus: This living room with sofa by Marge Carson is made comfortable with the addition of assorted sizes and shapes of pillows. A torchiere shines dramatic lighting on the setting. Accessories such as the greyhound add a personal touch as does the carved eagle coffee table with glass top. A potted palm behind the sofa gives life to the room.

On the Cover: This Gorman's setting, created with pieces from Interior Crafts of Chicago, is reminiscent of an art deco salon. Special paint treatment creates a striking black and white background. The diamond pattern was produced with a grosgrain ribbon and nailhead tacks. A tuffed upholstered screen and hand painted pillows add texture and warmth.

ROMANCING THE HOME

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Infuse romance into your home environment with the proper balance of intense colors, luxurious fabrics, fresh flowers and candles.

By adding just the right mix of design flair and softer, more romantic home furnishings, every home can be a year-round romantic retreat, said Scott Bartsche, director of design at Gorman's Studio of Interior Design in

"People are staying home more. We're starting to see a return to the traditional. The harsher, more cold our outside world becomes, the more we want to go home to a soothing place where a spouse or significant other is waiting for us," Bartsche said.

"The art deco pieces to me have soft, flowing, romantic kinds of lines to them. The finishes are warmer and richer and easier to live with. There's an emotional attachment to this kind of furniture," Bartsche said. "It's

Bedrooms should be a retreat from the rest of the house so bring in a fresh flower, even one or two blossoms, from the garden. Fields recently designed table arrangements for an American Lung Association luncheon using only lily of the valley and ivy from her backyard.

"If we're talking about romance, the scents of plants or flowers are real important. It's amazing the difference that scents make whether it's lavender potpourri or cooking smells. Boil a few cinnamon sticks or a drop of vanilla. Cooking smells are very positive, especially pumpkin pie. You know what they say, 'The way to a man's heart is through his stomach."

One last tip from Fields for adding a romantic look to summer decor is an novative trick she does with a ttenburg lace tablecloth bought for bout $20 from local retailers.

"Especially at this time of year bring the freshness of outside indoors with Battenburg lace made into pillows or tacked up as draperies. The light filters in ever so softly. It's an interesting window treatment and it's

Gardener's 'labor of love' helps feed hungry

"My whole garden is for the needy," said Bob McGowan of Clarkston.

He was familiar with the Empty Bowls organization and had an idea.

"Four years ago we started with a group and formed the Town and Country Gardeners to meet socially as well as to have a sharing experience."

The initial members were Carolyn Bailey, Carol Campione, Maryann Devans, Gail Reading, Katherine and Les Reeve, Mary Helpern, Sara Hillman, and McGowan and his wife, Barbara Hamilton.

The McGowans live on the old Bittersweet Dairy Farm in Clarkston.

"We needed to create a new function for it - potentially an important way to use this nice resource.'

Preparations

The club members worked very hard in the chosen 90-by-110-foot garden site. They first plowed the land to break up the sod, and went over the area with a disc and then with a harrow ("which can do much the same thing as a rototiller in home gardens").

After the soil was prepared they laid out and planted the rows, then mulched between the rows with two layers of newspapers topped with grass clippings and leaves to control the weeds and to enrich the soil. After the harvest the ground for another season.

All the members had their own vegetable gardens to attend but found time to work in this special garden. "It really was a labor of love and

Special regimen

McGowan has been maintaining this garden on his own since that time and has discovered how to garden on a lowmaintenance regimen. Although he still gardens organically, he now uses a dark-colored landscape fabric as a mulch that blocks out light and absorbs heat, is porous and allows water and air movement. This does save time and labor, but it is expensive and doesn't produce organic matter.

This rural area has its share of deer, raccoons, rabbits and groundhogs and McGowan uses live traps and then relocates the animals. He uses pears from a tree on the property as bait. A fence around the garden deters the deer.

Much produce is harvested from this garden, all of it given away. He grows tomatoes, hot peppers, cucumbers, squash (summer - zucchini, yellow; winter — hubbard), beans, peas, potatoes (they do very well), varieties of lettuce, snap peas, beans and beets. Last year Bordine Nursery donated many flats of vegetable plants to the garden. Because distribution of the food was difficult after the club disbanded, an employee of the Oakland County Food Bank who lived in Flint picked up boxes of food that McGowan had ready. More than 250 pounds of produce were distributed in 1994 and last year he gave away 30 pounds in one day alone!

Invitation

A 1996 graduate of the master gardener program, McGowan would like to invite fellow master gardeners to help in this important undertaking. Work hours qualify for master gardener cred-

To help in your own community is easy. Grow an extra row of vegetables, gather a group together as McGowan did and work as a team. Involve the children. remodeling decision we recently made. INTERLOCKING BRICK PAVERS RETAINING WALLS RENTAL EQUIPMENT My husband and I moved into an 11year-old home this past fall. The one room screaming for attention was the kitchen. The idea of a creative endeavor always gets me going . . . hence a plan. We would do the following: Paint the cabinets white; purchase new hardware, pick out sink, faucet and appliances; install kitchen lighting. (It is important to keep in mind that we both work and have a 4-year-old daughter.) We decided to hire someone to do the new countertops and install an island.

So the day came to start taking down the cabinet doors (three weeks after moving in). I just sort of pushed the unpacked moving boxes off to the side. The last time I counted there were 40 cabinet doors and drawer fronts to be done. I contacted a cabinet maker for instructions on sanding, painting and the type of paint to use. We began by using an orbital sander and taking all the finish off the cabinets. Yet to come were two coats of primer and two coats of paint. The last coat would be applied by our newly purchased spray painter. After one week of sanding in the basement the first problems surfaced.

It started to get cold at night and we had to turn on the furnace. I never though I would see the day that I would have to dust twice a day. My daughter and I both have allergy problems and they lasted several weeks. Just when I thought they were clearing up the paint fumes hit us. It had now become too cold outside to do the painting so we set up an assembly in the basement. Twelve weeks later we began putting the cabinets back up. We decided the last coat with the spray painter would take place in spring. (We actually missed painting one or two cabinets and the primer has a dull finish under out new kitchen

Next the knobs. This seemed to be one of the easiest decisions we made. A quick trip to the hardware store and we put them on all the drawer fronts. We didn't like the old brass hinges do we ordered white hinges that we thought would look great. When they arrived we discovered our cabinets were elite enough to use one type of hinge (after several phone calls) and it did not come in white. Well we were still determined. The knobs we had already placed on the drawer fronts would look hideous with a chrome hinge. Back to the hardware store.

The new microwave and stove arrived. The stove went in easily. The microwave was another problem. It took some time to figure out how to fill ASSOCIATION the gap above the microwave and it ended up being at least five inches higher than we would have liked it. This installation would have cost us about $70, but no we had to do it our-

And finally . . . the countertops. We hired this work and guess what? It went without any problems. The contractor even found a plumber to get my sink and faucet installed.

The outcome of the kitchen is vet to be seen - eight months later. We still haven't put the hardware on the island cabinet and spring has come without a whisper from our spray painter. We have an almond refrigerator begging to be painted white but the idea of a new one is ever increasingly sneaking into our thoughts. This is not to mention that the walls need painting in the kitchen. Oh, and I can't forget the lighting. The light fixtures are beautiful but don't give off enough light for the work

So, did we save money? Yes. Is it the kitchen we wanted? Not vet. Could we have our kitchen done to our satisfaction (in eight weeks or less) by hiring it done? Absolutely. And it wouldn't have cost that much when we look at the time we spent on the project and them time it has taken away from us as a

Victorian settee has suite value

Dear Nancy and Frank:

I have recently purchased this settee. It's in excel-lent condition. Will you please tell me its origin and worth? Thank you.

Dear Vanee:

We believe you have a late 19th/early 20th century American settee, probably in walnut, as most Victorian furniture was made of that wood.

It was made approximately between 1875 and 1905, which was a period of time when improved mechanical techniques allowed for acceptable quality products that and be afforded this group of furniture couldn't be identified as antique, it has a rightful place in the American culture and it is already being copied.

We think your settee is actually part of a parlor suite. As the standard of living of middle America rose, the workday decreased to about nine or 10 hours and there was more time for leisure. Consequently, more comfortable upholstered parlor suites were produced and bought to evidence that fact.

We couldn't identify the manufacturer of your piece from

It's our opinion that your settee would be approximately $1,000 in a retail shop. Let's suppose it's part of a suite consisting of three similar pieces. The three pieces together would probably be worth more than $3,000 because this would be a case where more is better.

Settee pretty: This style of furniture has a rightful place in American culture.

To explain by another example, if you had a one-carat diamond ring worth $1,000, then three one-carat diamond rings of equal quality would be worth a total $3,000. Correct. However, if you had one three-carat diamond ring, it would probably be worth $6,000 or more. In the personal property world, the whole doesn't equal the sum of the parts.

Swayne's hand wrought tables, credenzas, cabinets and trasteros (armoires) are embellished with hand punched tin and folkloric carving, which is typical of the Chimayo and New Mexico Antique style. The Chimayo pieces are reminiscent of Shaker designs, handcrafted of most frequently used pine or alder and available in a variety of finishes. Swayne also uses mahogany. Because of their simplicity, elegance and warmth, the furniture pieces adapt to any decor. The iron work stands and pulls are hand forged in Taos, and the copper and tin panels affixed to the New Mexico Antique designs are punched, patinaed and hand painted. The decorative painted or punched tin, distressed or painted finishes on the furnishings look comfortable with contemporary or traditional homes. Custom orders available. In 1994 President Bill Clinton added "the right to service" to the Consumer Bill of Rights originally put forth by President John F. Kennedy. The importance of this right to service has been demonstrated each time an expose is shown about the unethical behavior of the appliance service industry.

President Clinton believes, as I do, that customer satisfaction can be achieved by those of us who represent the service industry. This year National Consumers Week in October will have the motto "Service signals success" which will bring forward the theory that fairness, courtesy and honesty leads to customer satisfaction. The acting director of the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs, Ms. Bernice Friedlander, was recently quoted as saying, "Service is an issue that has a direct impact on every American."

That, ladies and gentlemen, is exactly why I am here today. I am extremely aggravated by the negative impact created by some in my industry who treat consumers in such a dishonest manner with the stroke of a pen on a service invoice they rip them off without guilt

In this era of deregulation it seems strange to see an industry asking for help from our government, but I believe that it is the only way to put a stop to the perpetual fraud that is perpetrated on the unsuspecting consumer. AROUND THE HOUSE Know what is

lurking in water

Well owners, have you ever wondered what might be lurking in the water you're drinking?

There are millions of different bacteria, chemicals, minerals and toxins in the water we drink. However, they are at trace levels and are, for the most part, tolerable.

Your best protection is to learn about your water and test it regularly. Water labs will be able to give or direct you to a source that will outline the acceptable parameters or tolerances of the compositions or conditions that may be found in your tap water. A local lab should also be a good source of information for the most common problems found in your area.

Here is an overview of a few of the dangerous concerns found in some · Coliform bacteria - This is waste from animals or humans. This situation can develop in areas where there are large populations of humans or animals. Surface water may be washed into wells or their underground aquifers. In older communities, cesspools were much deeper in the ground and closer to water tables. New community requirements put on-site water systems closer to the surfaces and farther from the water tables. There is no acceptable coliform bacteria level for water that is to be consumed.

• Nitrates - These chemicals may cause neurological problems.

• Pesticides - These are found in areas where foliage is sprayed or dusted. Rain washes the pesticides to the surface and possibly to wells or underground aquifers.

Proper balanced water is 7.0 PH. When the PH is below 7.0, the water is acidic. With levels above 7.0, the water is alkaline, or base. It is very common to see water with low or acidic PH. especially in municipal water supplies or densely populated areas.

Low PH can be recognized at sinks and tubs after a few years by the greenish stain at the drain. This stain is caused by the chemical reaction of the acidic water and the copper piping. The acidic water causes copper to be depleted from the pipes to the point of failure, or leaking. Advanced stages of this activity can be evidenced by small, round, green stains on the pipes. This is an indication that the pipe is news-paper-thin and will leak at any time.

Legal limits of acidic PH are typically 6.2 to 6.5, depending on geographic location. The levels are measured on a logarithmic scale. High levels of minerals will manifest themselves by leaving brownish stains at the sink and tub drains and in the toilet tanks.

Here is a partial list of maximum contaminant levels (MCLs) set by the U.S. Safe Drinking Water Act:

ROMANCING THE HOME

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

Infuse romance into your home environment with the proper balance of intense colors, luxurious fabrics, fresh flowers and candles.

By adding just the right mix of design flair and softer, more romantic home furnishings, every home can be a year-round romantic retreat, said Scott Bartsche, director of design at Gorman's Studio of Interior Design in

"People are staying home more. We're starting to see a return to the traditional. The harsher, more cold our outside world becomes, the more we want to go home to a soothing place where a spouse or significant other is waiting for us," Bartsche said.

Bedrooms should be a retreat from the rest of the house so bring in a fresh flower, even one or two blossoms, from the garden. Fields recently designed table arrangements for an American Lung Association luncheon using only lily of the valley and ivy from her backyard.

"If we're talking about romance, the scents of plants or flowers are real important. It's amazing the difference that scents make whether it's lavender potpourri or cooking smells. Boil a few cinnamon sticks or a drop of vanilla. Cooking smells are very positive, especially pumpkin pie. You know what they say, 'The way to a man's heart is through his stomach."

One last tip from Fields for adding romantic look to summer decor is an novative trick she does with a Battenburg lace tablecloth bought for about $20 from local retailers.

"Especially at this time of year bring the freshness of outside indoors with Battenburg lace made into pillows or tacked up as draperies. The light filters in ever so softly. It's an interesting window treatment and it's

Gardener's 'labor of love' helps feed hungry

BY MARTY FIGLEY SPECIAL WRITER

"My whole garden is for the needy," said Bob McGowan of Clarkston.

He was familiar with the Empty Bowls organization and had an idea.

"Four years ago we started with a group and formed the Town and Country Gardeners to meet socially as well as to have a sharing experience."

The initial members were Carolyn Bailey, Carol Campione, Maryann Devans, Gail Reading, Katherine and Les Reeve, Mary Helpern, Sara Hillman, and McGowan and his wife, Barbara Hamilton

The McGowans live on the old Bittersweet Dairy Farm in Clarkston.

"We needed to create a new function for it - potentially an important way to use this nice resource."

Preparations

The club members worked very hard in the chosen 90-by-110-foot garden site. They first plowed the land to break up the sod, and went over the area with a disc and then with a harrow ("which can do much the same thing as a rototiller in home gardens").

After the soil was prepared they laid out and planted the rows, then mulched between the rows with two layers of newspapers topped with grass clippings and leaves to control the weeds and to enrich the soil. After the harvest the ground for another season.

All the members had their own vegetable gardens to attend but found time to work in this special garden.

"It really was a labor of love and

Special regimen

McGowan has been maintaining this garden on his own since that time and has discovered how to garden on a lowmaintenance regimen. Although he still gardens organically, he now uses a dark-colored landscape fabric as a mulch that blocks out light and absorbs heat, is porous and allows water and air movement. This does save time and labor, but it is expensive and doesn't produce organic matter.

This rural area has its share of deer. raccoons, rabbits and groundhogs and McGowan uses live traps and then relocates the animals. He uses pears from a tree on the property as bait. A fence around the garden deters the deer.

Much produce is harvested from this garden, all of it given away. He grows tomatoes, hot peppers, cucumbers, winter — hubbard), beans, peas, pota-toes (they do very well), varieties of lettuce, snap peas, beans and beets. Last year Bordine Nursery donated many flats of vegetable plants to the garden.

Because distribution of the food was difficult after the club disbanded, an employee of the Oakland County Food Bank who lived in Flint picked up boxes of food that McGowan had ready. More than 250 pounds of produce were distributed in 1994 and last year he gave away 30 pounds in one day alone!

Invitation

A 1996 graduate of the master gardener program, McGowan would like to invite fellow master gardeners to help in this important undertaking. Work hours qualify for master gardener cred-

"Come and lend a hand, it's fun!" You can reach him at (810) 620-0123.

McGowan's experience with his garden may inspire others to Plant a Row For the Hungry, a program sponsored by the Garden Writers Association of America and initiated in 1995. This program eliminates the red tape that netimes thwarts such a project.

If you are traveling and visit a Hard Rock Cafe restaurant, ask the wait staff pledge to donate produce, and you will receive a free package of vegetable seeds, compliments of Ferry-Morse seedsmen; or call them at (800) 283-3400. Shepherd's Garden Seeds will also send free vegetable seeds. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Plant a Row For the Hungry, 6116 Highway 9, Felton, Calif. 95018.

To help in your own community is easy. Grow an extra row of vegetables, gather a group together as McGowan did and work as a team. Involve the children. If you can't grow vegetables, perhaps you have a fruit tree that produces an abundant crop. Contact your local food bank, soup kitchen, social agency, Salvation Army or church or call Second Harvest, the nationwide network of food banks, at (312) 263-

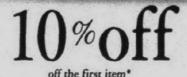

When you donate your produce, if possible, have it weighed and let me know. I will be happy to send a Plant a Row For the Hungry row marker to you. It was these factors that took priority in a remodeling decision we recently made.

My husband and I moved into an 11year-old home this past fall. The one room screaming for attention was the kitchen. The idea of a creative endeavor always gets me going . . . hence a plan. We would do the following: Paint the cabinets white; purchase new hardware, pick out sink, faucet and appliances; install kitchen lighting. (It is important to keep in mind that we both work and have a 4-year-old daughter.) We decided to hire someone to do the new countertops and install an island.

So the day came to start taking down the cabinet doors (three weeks after moving in). I just sort of pushed the unpacked moving boxes off to the side. The last time I counted there were 40 cabinet doors and drawer fronts to be done. I contacted a cabinet maker for instructions on sanding, painting and the type of paint to use. We began by using an orbital sander and taking all the finish off the cabinets. Yet to come were two coats of primer and two coats of paint. The last coat would be applied by our newly purchased spray painter. After one week of sanding in the basement the first problems surfaced.

It started to get cold at night and we had to turn on the furnace. I never though I would see the day that I would have to dust twice a day. My daughter and I both have allergy problems and they lasted several weeks. Just when I thought they were clearing up the paint fumes hit us. It had now become too cold outside to do the painting so we set up an assembly in the basement. Twelve weeks later we began putting the cabinets back up.

We decided the last coat with the spray painter would take place in spring. (We actually missed painting one or two cabinets and the primer has a dull finish under out new kitchen

Next the knobs. This seemed to be one of the easiest decisions we made. A quick trip to the hardware store and we put them on all the drawer fronts. We didn't like the old brass hinges do we ordered white hinges that we thought would look great. When they arrived we discovered our cabinets were elite enough to use one type of hinge (after several phone calls) and it did not come in white. Well we were still determined. The knobs we had already placed on the drawer fronts would look hideous with a chrome hinge. Back to the hard-

The new microwave and stove arrived. The stove went in easily. The microwave was another problem. It took some time to figure out how to fill MICHIGAN REMODELING ASSOCIATION

the gap above the microwave and it ended up being at least five inches higher than we would have liked it. This installation would have cost us about $70, but no we had to do it our-

And finally . . . the countertops. We hired this work and guess what? It went without any problems. The contractor even found a plumber to get my sink and faucet installed.

The outcome of the kitchen is yet to be seen - eight months later. We still haven't put the hardware on the island cabinet and spring has come without a whisper from our spray painter. We have an almond refrigerator begging to be painted white but the idea of a new one is ever increasingly sneaking into our thoughts. This is not to mention that the walls need painting in the kitchen. Oh, and I can't forget the lighting. The light fixtures are beautiful but don't give off enough light for the work

So, did we save money? Yes. Is it the kitchen we wanted? Not yet. Could we have our kitchen done to our satisfaction (in eight weeks or less) by hiring it done? Absolutely. And it wouldn't have cost that much when we look at the time we spent on the project and them time it has taken away from us as a

Cabinets are actually very affordable when you think of the time you take away from your family and personal life to engage in projects of such magnitude. We have now decided to hire contractor to begin a basement remodel in the fall. The thoughts of drywall being stored in my basement until 1998 give me nightmares.

Victorian settee has suite value

BY NANCY AND FRANK BOOS SPECIAL WRITERS

I have recently purchased this settee. It's in excel-lent condition. Will you please tell me its origin and worth? Thank you.

Vanee, West Bloomfield

We believe you have a late 19th/early 20th century American settee, probably in walnut, as most Victorian furniture was made of that wood.

It was made approximately between 1875 and 1905, which was a period of time when improved mechanical techniques was a period of time when improved mechanical techniques allowed for acceptable quality products that could actually be afforded by the average family. Although this furniture was circulated nationally via catalogue, handbills and traveling salesmen called drummers, its popularity waned.

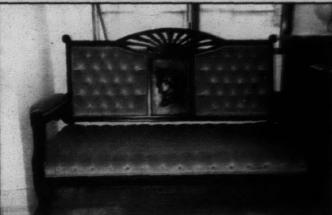

Although this group of furniture couldn't be identified as antique, it has a rightful place in the American culture and it is already being acid.

it is already being copied.

We think your settee is actually part of a parlor suite. As the standard of living of middle America rose, the workday decreased to about nine or 10 hours and there was more time for leisure. Consequently, more comfortable upholstered parlor suites were produced and bought to evidence that fact.

We couldn't identify the manufacturer of your piece from

It's our opinion that your settee would be approximately $1,000 in a retail shop. Let's suppose it's part of a suite consisting of three similar pieces. The three pieces together would probably be worth more than $3,000 because this would be a case where more is better.

Settee pretty: This style of furniture has a rightful place in American culture.

To explain by another example, if you had a one-carat dia-mond ring worth $1,000, then three one-carat diamond rings of equal quality would be worth a total $3,000. Correct. How ever, if you had one three-carat diamond ring, it would probably be worth $6,000 or more. In the personal property world, the whole doesn't equal the sum of the parts.

Mini-blinds and venetian blinds: To vacuum: Use the brush head attachment and tilt the slats first up, then down (but not entirely closed) to reach the entire top and bottom surfaces. To dust: Use a soft, clean dust cloth or a chemically treated dust cloth and tilt the slats up and down as well. To wash: Use a damp cloth or sponge and mild detergent with warm or cold water (not hot water), tilting the slats as indicated above. The blind also can be taken down, placed in a bathtub of mild soapy water and rinsed clean, wiped down or allowed to dry completely in the open

Wood blinds: Do not wash wood blinds. Although the wood is sealed. water or even excessive dampness may cause warpage and/or discoloration of the slats. Nichols holds annual Peony Party

The third annual Friends of Nichols Arboretum Peony Garden Party has something for everyone.

Celebrate Father's Day Sunday, June 16, by viewing the peonies, listening to Mother Goose's stories, buying potted peonies, eating homemade cookies and brownies, and listening to jazz under the pines. Children can have their face painted or make nature crafts at the ArtVentures tent. Everyone can visit with Ann Arbor Mayor Ingrid Sheldon, this year's honorary chair of the event.

For more information or to obtain the Guide to the Peony Garden ($5 each), call Gwen Christensen at Nichols Arboretum, (313) 763-4033. The hours of the party are 2-5 p.m., rain or shine.

Several features have been added this year, including the Children's Art Tent organized by Ann Arbor Art Center's ArtVentures program. Volunteers and ArtVentures staff will help children make insect masks, floppy flower hats and hopping frogs on lily pads, as well as offer face painting.

The Dan Bennett Quartet from the Community High Jazz Band will feature easy listening music by Dan Bennett, Ben Blackmer, Nick Collins and Zach Wallace. Stories for the young and young-at-heart will be told by the Arboretum's own docent and board member, Trudy Bulkley, who is also known as Ann Arbor's Mother Goose.

The potted peony sale will feature the following cultivars (cultivated varieties for the most part represented by plants in the Arboretum's collection): Sarah Bernhardt, Walter Faxon, Mrs. F.D. Roosevelt (pink); Festiva Maxima (white), Carl Rosenfeld and Longfellow (red) and Felix Crousse (brilliant red). Carl Rosenfeld isn't in the Arboretum collection but is an old favorite. The supply is limited to 200 and the sale price is $15 each. Come early for best

Walk displays garden palettes

Eight public and private gardens will be at their best during the Farmington Garden Club's biannual garden walk, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, June 22. The theme is "Garden Palette," which will showcase a variety of design techiques using color and shape.

Tickets are available at the Spicer House in Heritage Park, west of Farmington Road and between 10 and 11 Mile, on the day of the event for $5 (free for children 12 and under). Tickets are also available in advance at McFarland's Florist, Grand River; The Longacre House, Farmington Road; the Vines Flower & Garden Shop, Grand River; Springbrook Gardens, Powers Road: Schroeter's Flowers & Gifts, Orchard Lake Road; Backyard Birds, Grand River; Farmington Florist, Grand River; and Hearts & Flowers, W.

Garden related items will be sold at a special boutique and area quilters, artists and weavers will be displaying their crafts, weather permitting. Refreshments will be served. For more information, call Jan at (810) 553-0986.

The variety of gardens on this tour will enable visitors to find many ideas to take back into their own landscapes. Included is an English Cottage garden, a 1995 Farmington Garden Club award-winner containing both shade and sun gardens nestled around a Cape Cod home. Stone pathways lead visitors to a combination of roses, perennials and annuals that will be in full bloom.

The landscape surrounding a contemporary home features a hillside rock garden that rests among the beautiful perennial and rose gardens. A small grotto allows one to enjoy unusual specimen shrubs while the sound of brook surrounding the grounds plays its melody. This large garden will surprise with its multi-tiered acreage

The gardens of a Centennial Farmhouse are sure to please as visitors view the 100-foot hedge of Simplicity Roses, and walk through a rose-covered arbor past a charming gazebo. A small, intimate pond will invite you to pause and rest. Colorful perennials, herbs and shrub gardens are designed in keeping with the rural-like ambiance.

If Hostas are to your liking, you won't want to miss the quiet beauty of another of these gardens. Containers filled with annuals add a colorful note on and around the multi-level deck and patio

Still another landscape contains a variety of gardens. Bog, vegetable, perennial and rose gardens surround the home and small greenhouse. It is evident that the love of gardening is high on these homeowners' list. Hybrid experimentation is being done on various types of plants. Blooming potted plants are often placed in various areas of the gardens to enhance the whole

Fresh new ideas are blossoming at Sterling Furniture, where beautiful rooms begin. New additions in the country tradition, southwest savvy, classy contemporary. Rich fabrics, finest wood finishes and trendsetting silhouettes. At savings that will grow on you!

Children's thoroughfare: Sidewalks are an essential thoroughfare for children, parents, planning officials and landscape architects maintain.

Sidewalks bring down drawbridges

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Once upon a time, in older, cookiecutter subdivisions, folks sat on front porches to watch life unfold on the sidewalk below.

Adults walked and talked. Kids rode bikes, played hopscotch, jumped rope, tossed balls, sold Kool-Aid.

Times changed. People got busier at work. Technology gave us air conditioning and video gadgetry. Cocoon-ing became popular. Some hit the automatic garage door opener when they returned home. The drawbridge came down, the car went in and the drawbridge went back up. Activities were geared indoors and toward back yards - decks, barbecues, patio furniture insulated, in some cases, by privacy fences.

Lots got bigger, a country feeling was coveted. There was no place for sidewalks.

Now, some municipalities including Westland, Troy and Rochester Hills require sidewalks. Others, Oakland Township, Farmington Hills and West Bloomfield, don't.

Waivers may be granted for subs with larger lots in Orion, Livonia and People more often than not don't even think about sidewalks, but when they do, strong feelings surface.

"It's too bad we don't have more of them," said John Klemanski, an associate professor of government at Oak- roads," he said. "We want sidewalks, scaping, open space."

"They probably increase safety, especially for younger children. I wouldn't confer the responsibility for lack of neighborly interaction on a lack of sidewalks, but it probably contributes to it," he said.

Carol Frick, office manager for Ralph Manuel Realtors in Birmingham, said she's become acquainted with only a handful of people on her street, which doesn't have sidewalks, in the nearly dozen years she's lived

"I think they (sidewalks) do lend a feeling of community," she said. "I don't think it's an either/or situation, but they do tend to bring people out."

"I think they're absolutely essential," said William Allen, a landscape architect, professor at Lawrence Technological University and a Waterford planning commissioner.

They're definitely a community builder, a neighborhood builder. Certainly, I'm much more inclined if I'm walking to say hi to people if they're taking care of lawns or playing ball than if I'm driving in a car," Allen

Adults often establish friendships with parents of their children's friends, Allen said. "Sidewalks are an absolutely essential part of children's

"We've gone through the idea of going back to rural America. We've seen the results - kids were playing in

We want kids to be safe." With little kids, it's definitely an issue," said Kevin J. Berry, an associate broker and owner of ERA Quality in Redford. "I sold a house in Novi that was new and did have sidewalks. That was the reason people bought in that sub rather than another one."

Gary and Jennifer Hendrickson, who purchased a house with side walks in Bloomfield Hills several years ago before bringing son, Andrew, into the world, can identify Jennifer really wanted sidewalks. She was surprised when filling out an inventory sheet about what was important in their house search that sidewalks wasn't on the list.

"We lived on a street that didn't have sidewalks," Jennifer said. "In my imagination, I was strolling a child and he was going to get gravel stones in his face.

"I was raised with sidewalks," she said. "It does help with neighborhood feelings. People like to walk in the evening and see what other people are doing with their houses, doing with

But Nosan, developer/builder in Farmington Hills, believes sidewalks become less important in smaller subdivisions geared to empty-nesters.

"When you start scrambling on a small site, there can be too much paving," he said. "They do limit land-kids, if it's two working adults, sidewalks generally aren't a high high priority because they're not home," Rochester Hills, which had a bureoning growth period in the late 1980s to the pre ant, has required sidewalks since 1993.

"City council was getting a lot of complaints on traffic, congestion and cut-through traffic," said Patricia Goodwin, planning director.

"That cut-through traffic began to conflict with people trying to walk, kids playing. From a traffic safety standpoint, council decided to separate motorists from pedestrians," she Nosan said he installs sidewalks in West Bloomfield as a marketing tool, but not in Brighton which has a large right-of-way road requirement.

The reason is expense. Nosan pegged sidewalk construction costs at $2-3 per square foot.

"My preference at this point is I'd probably put them in on one side of the street," said Robert R. Jones, a West Bloomfield developer/builder of luxury houses.

"It achieves the socialization of the community and gives people security to walk," he said. "From an appearance point of view, it establishes another ribbon between the right of way and the property line."

Unlicensed builder risks civil, criminal action

Q: I have just purchased a new home and came to realize, to my chagrin. that developer/builder was not licensed. In a cursory examination at the township, apparently the builder used one of his contractors as the licensee for the home which has now turned out to be a disaster. What recourse do I have?

A: Obviously, to the extent that a builder is required to be licensed, the violation of same may well be a criminal as well as a civil offense. You should report the matter to the appropriate state agency and the county prosecutor in which your home is located. I would also consult with an attorney immediately as to your civil recourse against the builder and not pay the builder any additional funds since he may be restricted from collecting any monies from you if in fact he were not licensed when he contracted with you. This is a more common occurrence than one would expect under circumstances.

Q: I recently sold my condominium. After the closing I requested that my portion of the money held in escrow in a capital reserve fund and a building improvement fund be returned to me. The condominium association refuses to return the money. Am I correct in asking for my money? If so, what course of action can I take other than hiring an attorney which would probably cost me more money than I have in the escrow account.

A: Generally speaking, in the absence of a specific agreement authorizing the return of "capital reserve funds and/or building improvement funds," they are assets of the association which are nonrefundable to the co-owner, but presumably are part of the "equity" in the condominium association which, in a sense, is beneficial to the co-owner selling the unit since the economic viability of the Association is thereby enhanced by those monies available to the Association. There are some purchase agreements entered into between the developer and the first purchaser where the "working capital deposit" or like kind is refundable, but most of the time, it is not. Some associations, however, have a practice of refunding 'reserve amounts" to persons selling the unit, and having the purchaser reimburse the account but, again, it depends on the particular documents as to the legality of this procedure. While I do not usually recommend Small Claims Court, if you have a legitimate claim to these monies, you may wish to seek to recoup it there, although you are well advised to get a legal opinion before even commencing a Small Claims action.

Be systematic when comparing mortgage lenders

mortage search by contacting at least three lending companies by phone or in person to discuss the mortgages they have available. You may also use a computerized search, offered by many real estate firms and mortgage lenders, as a way to quickly see the rates and terms of various mortgage products. Some of these databases are limited to a single lending institution; others include mortgages offered by many firms. Such a computer search should be free or very inexpensive

Because there are so many variables, you'll need a systematic approach. Following is a recommended format for Mortgage Comparison Shopping. These items will help you ask lenders questions about the terms of the mortgages they offer. Use them to get the information you need to make an informed decision on which mortgage lender offers the best deal for you.

number: Write down the name of the loan officer with whom you speak, so you can get back in touch if you decide to apply for a loan at that financial institution.

Mortgage type: Your task will be simpler if you've narrowed your search to the type of mortgage loan you prefer. When comparing mortgages among lenders, compare the same loan among the lender you call - in other words, a 30-year fixed rate to a 30-year fixed rate, a oneyear Treasury ARM to a oneyear Treasury ARM, etc.

Interest rate and points: Interest rates change often, even daily. Make sure you record the date of your rate quote. Try to call all lenders on the same day, so you have an accurate comparison. Another way to evaluate rates is by examining the annual percentage rate (APR). It indicates the "effective rate of interest paid" per year. The figure includes points and other closing costs and spreads them over the life of the loan. While the APR provides you with a common point for comparison, it's important to look at the whole product before deciding which mortgage

Interest rate lock-ins: When

Company name/phone a lender agrees to hold the quoted rate for you, this is called a "lock-in." Ask when can the rate be locked in - at the time of application or upon approval? Will the lender lock in both the interest rate and points? Can you get a written lock-in agreement? How long does the lock-in remain in effect? If there a charge for locking in a rate? If the rate drops before closing, must you close at your locked-in rate or can you get the lower

> Minimum down payment required: Ask the loan officer what the lowest allowable down payment is - with and without private mortgage insurance. If the private mortgage insurance is required, ask how much it will cost. Find out how much is due up-front at closing and the amount included as monthly premiums. Ask if you can finance the closing cost of mortgage insurance. Also ask how long the insurance will be required. In some cases, you may be able to cancel the insurance when your loan balance drops below 80 per-mortgage is 80 percent or less of the new appraised value.

Prepayment of principal: Some lenders charge borrowers a prepayment penalty if they pay the loan off early. If you think you may sell your home before the loan is paid off (most mortgages are repaid early) or plan to make principal payments before they are actually due, you need to know if there will be a penalty and for how long it will remain in effect. Some penalties are in effect only for the early years of the loan.

Loan processing time: Loan approvals can take 30 to 60 days or more. Peak business periods, particularly when rates are dropping and many homeowners are refinancing, can affect a lender's response time. Ask each lending institution for its estimate and see which can promise very short approval times. If interest rates are rising or you have an urgent need to get moved in, these express services may be the answer.

Closing costs: Closing costs are fees required by the lender at closing and can vary considerably from one financial institution to another Ask specifically about the application fee, origination fee, points, credit report fee, appraisal fee, survey fee (if required), lender's attorney fee, cost of the title search and title insurance, transfer taxes and document preparation fee. Next week's article will identify additional questions you should ask lenders if your are shopping for an adjustable rate mortgage.

After you've asked these questions about the same type of mortgage loans offered by three different lending institutions, you can figure out which mortgage lender gives you the best deal. Once you find your best deal, make sure the loan officer will handle your application through to the end and get your deal done. Trust in the company and the loan officer you are dealing with is an important part of your shopping decision, too.

Interest rates in review:

Here are some recent interest rates that may be helpful to you in tracking the direction of rates. These are just a guide. Be sure to call a lender to get current rate quotes.

In Freddie Mac' Primary Mortgage Market Survey, the 30-year fixed rate of the North Central area for the week ended June, 7, 1996 jumped to 8.31 percent (US average 8.3 percent). A week ago, the average for the US was 8.03 percent and 1 year ago it was 7.51 percent. Currently 15-year fixed rate mortgages average 7.82 percent and adjustable-rate mortgages average 5.9 percent for our area of the country.
