Mayflower seeks tax brea

The owners of the Mayflower Hotel want the city to give them a $50,000 tax break so they can go ahead with a $2 million renovation project.

BY KEVIN BROWN

The Mayflower Hotel's new owners are asking the city government to waive some back taxes to win bank financing of a $2 million renovation project.

At the Monday city commission meeting, commissioners talked of the merits of the request, which would trim the hotel's back tax payment to the city by about $50,000.

Commissioners were presented a resolution to approve the request, as the lowered taxes could benefit the downtown business community and the city in the long run. While most said they agreed, they deferred a vote until the next commission meeting July 15.

Commissioner Joe Koch said it was important to try to resolve a related issue before voting to approve the tax break. That issue involves pinning down a lease agree ment concerning the city owned parking lot adjacent to the hotel.

City Attorney Donald Morgan said neither the hotel owner nor the city administration can locate a copy of the lease, and a title search has been launched to find one Commissioner Dennis Shrewsbury said that while he wants the hotel to be successful, "Why does it become our responsibility as the city government to give them something to help them along? It doesn't seem to me to be fair to the rest of the city residents. This is what their business plan should have told them.

"I'm definitely in favor of the hotel being successful," Koch said. "If it takes a little bit of forgiveness on our part I'm willing to do that," he said, but added it should be tied to the parking lot lease.

City Manager Steve Walters said the city offers tax breaks to industrial businesses that seek to upgrade. "I think the theory is very much applicable here, it's better in the long run," he said, adding the long-

Shady garden a delight for couple

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

You'd think that in creating their stunning flower garden, Joan and Archie Moore had spent a handsome sum on a professional's help.

Instead, the Plymouth Township couple put to work their own know-how, and let individual tastes and Mother Nature dictate the design of their summer showplace. Flower beds in sunny spots are a riot of color, laden with robust Shasta daisies, black-eyed Susans, ladies mantle, geraniums, Gerbera daisies, Jacob's ladder, and annual salvia. They sprout from enriched soil blanketed with fragrant "cocoa chip"

Even the low-lying, shady areas are lush with plant life, pleasing to both the eye and soul. The end result is a yard that beckons with tranquility, color, and

The couple went to work. "With the hose, we laid out the shape" of the curved flower beds along the property line, recalled Joan. "We had always Archie sprayed Round Up on the portion of the yard where the lawn was struggling, and in two or three weeks, they removed the dead grass.

Residents complain about library action

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Some people who own houses slated for demolition by the Plymouth District Library Board are complaining of rough treatment by board representatives.

Marie LaGrow of Union Street said a library board representative "came to us two weeks before Christmas and told us he wanted it closed out by the end of the year, that's how thoughtful they are.

"We've been lied to by the library board, all they do is harassed us, said another Union Street home

The comments came Monday before Plymouth city commissioners at their Monday meeting at city hall.

While city commissioners explained to the residents the library board is a separate elected government group, some said they didn't know

And while city commissioners said this was a matter best raised before library trustees, some commissioners said they were concerned if city residents are being treated roughly.

"I would like to see the letters they were sent," said Commissioner Dennis Shrewsbury. "If citizens are being harassed, even if it's by a part of government we don't have control over, I'd like to know.

Commissioner John Vos said, "I don't like the idea of you getting letters like that, as a commissioner I'm Library Director Pat Thomas said Tuesday, "If people have a concern about what the library board has or hasn't done, it's really difficult to respond to secondhand information."

Our meetings are public, we have conducted the development of the project in open session in open meetings," Thomas said.

The library board meets at 7:30 p.m. the third Tuesday of each month at the library, now in its temporary site on Main Street. The July meeting is on the 16th.

"We've looked at alternative sites, explored the parking deck option with the city and determined it was a heck of a lot more money," Thomas tive sites to build. That opposition went away when board members said they'd stick with the original plan to build on the Dunning-Hough Library site and demolish the four houses, a plan approved by voters.

The Dunning-Hough Library is slated to be torn down this fall and a new two-story building will be erected on the site. One house purchased by the library board sold for $149,500. Thomas said an agreement has been struck to buy a second.

Voters in November 1994 approved spending nearly 1 mill to build and equip a new library, as the old library had become cramped.

Thomas said the library board is trying to wrap up negotiations on the sale price of homes to be demolished, as the library can only stay so long in its temporary home. The lease on the former Farmer Jack site is scheduled to expire in March 1998.

Also speaking before commissioners was Mark Oppat, who served on a study committee that urged formation of a Plymouth Kellogg Park Historic District.

Oppat said the district only has eight residences _ and the library board intends to demolish half of them. "Look at the bottom of the city stationary. This is a 'City of Homes,' not a city of parking lots," he said.

He urged commissioners to discuss the matter with library board members. Oppat suggested leaving the houses intact, and building a parking deck or seeking other parking solutions.

He criticized the library board for not seeking historic district approval or planning commission approval for the home demolitions. Thomas said the library board determined it was more proper to wrap up negotiations on house sales before seeking such approvals.

Liberty Street in Plymouth's Old Village area is likely to get its biggest boost in years.

In the next few weeks, the Lower Town Grill is scheduled to open on the southeast corner of Liberty and Starkweather streets.

We're anticipating our opening date will be the second day of August, that's what we're shooting for," said co-owner Kim Guenther.

Guenther is a former resident of the north end of town near the railroad tracks _ a section he prefers to call by it's old name, "Lower Town."

The antique store that had occupied the corner was out by early June, and workers have since been trying to whip the old building into shape.

"We've completely redone the interior, put in dry wall and refurbished all the interior walls and the ceiling, it's been completely rewired," Guenther said. "I anticipate the heating and air conditioning will be on line in two weeks."

Workers are also building an addition to the rear of the building to house the restaurant's kitchen. A room on the north side of the restaurant will house the Drooling Moose Saloon.

Have workers run into any surprises renovating the turn of the century building? "Everything is a surprise. It's a much bigger area than we anticipated," Guenther said.

"The best thing that's happened to me is the help the city has given me in working it through. There's always questions concerning structural things, I'm not a builder and a lot of questions need to be answered as they went along," Guen-

He and partner Tom Prendergast plan no exterior renovation of the building, as they're into a historic theme. "We'll do some cleaning and brightening up, it will stay within the period, that's the whole intent," Guenther said.

The restaurant menu will feature steak, beef, fish, chicken and other basic fare. In the saloon there will be exposed ceiling beams and a mounted moose head, to suggest an up north feel. Both the bar and restaurant will have enlarged, framed historical photos. There will be an upstairs room for small parties, and there's the potential for the restaurant to expand.

The big thing is going to be service, that's Tom's background," Guenther said, adding Prendergast has managed restaurants in Chicago, Cincinnati and Florida.

Guenther, who recalls Liberty Street as being more of a commercial center when he was a kid in the '60s, said he hopes the Lower Town Grill will spark some business rejuvenation downtown. "There's been some controversy over the 'Lower Town' name but the support has been very strong,"

The Old Village or Lower Town area, known in recent years to be a bit run down, "was a good solid community to come from," Guenther said. "There was retail property, commercial property down there, they all kind of went by the way. It certainly wasn't a place you apologized for being from," he

"When it opens we'll have three or four grand openings, the most important one will be for the people who live and do business in Lower Town,

"It's a matter of getting it up and running and get it on line and let's see what can happen.'

Nine charged in fireworks sting

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Canton police arrested nine people Sunday in connection with the sale of fireworks to undercover officers at three locations.

The people include Don and Patricia Linn, owners of Tri-City Fireworks, their daughter Dawn Linn, Efim and Elissa Burda, owners of Burda Bros. and their employees Oleg Burda, Rena Turbovskaya, Lauralee Lambert and Eldar

The defendants were arraigned Monday in Plymouth before 35th District Court Judge John Mac-Donald and charged with conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor (which carries a maximum sentence of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine) and two to four counts each of possession of fireworks (90 days and $100). Efim and Oleg Burda were also charged with obstructing a police officer in the performance of his duty. Everyone was released on $5,000 personal recognizance bonds pending a July 26 preliminary examination before Judge MacDonald.

"All they'll make is some headlines, and we'll win in the long run," said Linn last week on the prospect of being arrested or raided by police. "Im not changing any activities here. They don't scare

The arrests came three days after Michigan Court of Appeals judges voted 3-0 to stay the May 6 decision of Wayne County Circuit Court Judge John Murphy, who had ruled that the state fireworks laws are invalid because they don't employ a classification system similar to that of the federal

The appeals court's stay didn't reverse Murphy, but halted enforcement of his decision. This had the effect of exposing Canton fireworks merchants to state fireworks laws again. Appeals court judges have yet to decide finally on this issue.

Judge MacDonald said he hopes they hurry. There's some uncertainty as to what the law really is," he said.

"We're back in total unfettered business," said Wayne County assistant prosecutor Ray Walsh, who coordinated strategy with Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro, the state fire marshal and the state police in a long meeting Friday.

Police officers hand-delivered warning letters to Burda Bros., Tri-City and King Video on Friday. Two days later undercover officers purchased fireworks from Burda Bros. Tri-City, King Video and a flea market on Michigan Avenue. The Red Dragon was also targeted, but it was closed Sunday.

King Video was determined to be selling legal fireworks, Santomauro said.

Walsh wrote arrest warrants that afternoon, which were faxed to 35th District Court where Judge John McDonald signed them.

Officials have changed their tactics from last year, when they charged the Burdas and the Linns with misdemeanor charges for possessing fire-

Some 525 cases of fireworks were seized from Tri-City on June 22 last year. Linn was charged with 525 counts of possessing fireworks. The Burdas were charged with selling fireworks to undercover officers

The fireworks dealers went to court against Wayne County and Canton Township and won.

On April 29 this year 35th District Court Judge Ronald Lowe determined that the search warrant he signed last year was invalid because Tri-City operated legally under an Ingham County Circuit Court injunction that permitted Linn to possess fireworks that were then illegal in Michigan as long as he sold them out of state.

The 525 charges against Linn were dropped once Lowe determined the fireworks were illegally

However, the fireworks were returned to Linn on open trucks while it was raining. Linn said the fireworks, worth more than $100,000 retail, were destroyed by the water. Canton government may ultimately have to compensate Linn for the loss of these fireworks, Linn said.

The charges against the Burdas were dismissed by Judge Lowe after Murphy's May 6 decision invalidating state fireworks law.

The Burdas and Linn are represented in court by fireworks law specialist Hugh "Buck" Davis Jr. Davis said that police purchased "mines and shells" Sunday and prosecutors hope to convict defendants by arguing that the items purchased qualify as illegal under the "like construction" clause of the statute.

"They've drawn the line exactly where I've been trying to get it drawn," Davis said. "The phrase of like construction' is unconstitutionally vague. It's a meaningless phrase. You cannot put people in penal jeopardy over a phrase like that. You can't criminalize the unknown.

Davis characterized Sunday's arrests as an "arrogant exercise of power" by Santomauro and

"These two guys are just rogues, and they can't contain themselves," Davis said. "In their Neanderthal brains they've now cured all the problems."

term impact on downtown could outweigh the value of collecting all the back taxes.

"I think this is one of those issues where you're damned if you do and damned if you don't," said Commissioner Doug Miller. To collect the amount intended to be abated would provide the city government with some money it didn't count on, he said

"On the pro side you're going to get a hotel," Miller said. "When they declared bankruptcy a few years ago, there was a lot of hair pulling and teeth gnashing. If they're there, you can still bring somebody into town to buy a room for the night."

Miller said there were examples around the state of city governments helping to keep local hotels going. But he said that to help the hotel will likely draw some criticism from other taxpayers.

"I'm leaning in favor of trying to do something," he said, adding the city government should first try to determine what's happening with the parking lot lease.

Walters said the tax break is not to be credited toward actual property taxes. Rather, it is to be credited toward interest and penalty fees assessed against taxes on hotel equipment levied before the new owners took over.

Todd Wilson of Mill Street told commissioners, "You should consider tying this to the parking situation.'

A visitor's eye is drawn to the tall, yellow heliopsis, deep blue and lavender delphinium, lilies, butterfly houses and bird houses, snapdragons, foxglove sand viburnum in the perennial garden. The area backs up to the Abicks' yard, a showcase of plants and trees that thrive in shade. In spring, the woodsy backyard is ablaze with wild-

Year round, birds flock to their choice of bird houses and feeders. A large oak-leaf hydrangea hides an air conditioner that sits outside.

"We all started gardening at the same time," said Joan. "We enjoy their garden, and they enjoy ours. We're fence hoppers.'

The middle of Moores' yard is so shady and low that the grass had a tough time, said Joan. It's now a lovely area where you can curl up with a book in a twig chair under a tree and gaze upon thick-leafed hosta (which is both pretty and slug-proof); pachysandra; astilbe; ivy; Alaskan fern; white impatiens; holly bushes; and trollius, a tall, orange-blossomed globe flower. The bleeding heart plants — a gift from the neighbors — grace an area the Moore's call "David's Garden," in memory of Archie's late son.

Jeff Good from Goods Nursery lent the Moores a little assistance with the shade garden.

Basically, though, it was the couple's creation. It was the Moores' idea to create outdoor "rooms" in various areas.

Shaded by a beautiful white crabapple tree, the Moore's stone-and-brick patio has become affavorite spot for breakfast, coffee, or an ice tea. Walkways of brick and ledge rock wind into the gardens from the

The Moores are quick to share the gardening tricks they've learned, both on their own and in a master gardening course they took through the Wayne County extension service.

·Prepare the soil: "The soil in this area is mostly blue clay," said Joan. "We compost our eaves and dead plant material. We add to it all summer. By next spring, when we want to amend our soil, we put it around the plants. It's so inexpensive, and it adds nutrients.

"Archie is a big believer in Canadian peat," she added. "He works it in in the fall, turning it over a couple of times with a pitchfork. We have wonderful light soil now that holds the moisture."

· Fertilize: "A week or two after we plant, we buy a bulk bag of fertilizer and sprinkle it around the flowers, and work it into the soil. We don't even get a name brand. If you've amended the soil, you just watch the flowers bloom."

•Plant yellow and white flowers: "Every garden needs yellow. We feel it adds zing to any garden," said Joan. "Whites and yellows add sunshine even on cloudy days.'

New area codes planned for fall 1997

Western Wayne County communities will see new area codes in the next two years.

The changes will mean Livonia will have three codes and Westland two.

Detroit, including most Observer communities, will receive a new area code to replace 313 in mid-1998, a Citizens Advisory Committee announced Monday. The committee has responsibility for determining area code plans for southeastern Michigan.

Redford Township will remain in the 313 area code along with Detroit, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Lincoln Park, Ecorse, River Rouge, Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes.

Livonia, which now has two area codes, will have three, as a small portion of Livonia at Inkster Road bounded by Vassar, Lathers and Curtis in northeastern Livonia, will stay in 313 while the rest of Livonia except the portion currently in 810 will get the new area code.

Road, Annapolis and Harrison, which will stay in 313.

The remaining communities that are now in 313, including most of Livonia, most of Westland, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township, as well as Washtenaw and Monroe counties will receive the new area code. The new number has not been determined yet, but will begin in spring

The northern area of Livonia which is now in 810 will also receive a new area code along with Oakland County: 248. That section of Livonia south of Eight Mile is bounded roughly by Meadow View, Bretton, Fitzgerald, Curtis Street, Lathers Street, Vassar Street and Inkster roads.

The Citizens Advisory Committee found that customer preference was for giving Oakland County its own area code, but northern Livonia is included with Oakland County because

SC board eyes future needs of college

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN STAFF WRITER

Bookstore and Waterman Campus Center renovations, a Radcliff expansion or acquisition, lab renovations and a conference center were among the future needs presented last Wednesday at a Schoolcraft College board meeting.

Trustees and college administrators were looking to the future last week as they took up the master plan, the facilities master plan and the president's Kiosks for student enrollment and other course information are planned for later this year, according to Conway Jeffress, vice president of instruction at Schoolcraft College. Jeffress made a presentation of the master plan along with last year's highlights.

Among the highlights from last year were increasing enrollment, completing the Children's Center, renovating the student services building and moving Continuing Education Services into it, creating the Michigan Community College Journal, receiving increased grant revenue, being named "trainer of the year" by the governor, implementing a customer service model for students, seeing growth in the distance learning programs, and approving new programs in fire science and

"The year has been good to us in a lot of ways," Jeffress said. "The college continues to be one of the most technically advanced," he said.

Technology has been added in all classrooms, Jeffress said.

Instructors no longer have to roll media equipment down the sidewalks from building to bui

"Are we looking at registration by computer?" Trustee Stephen Ragan asked.

Jeffress said yes and that the college is also looking at setting up four or five kiosks for registration, as well as catalogue and course syllabus information, on campus this year.

"These kiosks are just fantastic. That's very cutting edge," Ragan said, adding the kiosks are student friendly.

New trend The action is outside

Summer has finally arrived in Plymouth, just in time for the opening of the American Pie ice cream shop, on Ann Arbor Trail across from Kellogg Park

To us it is one more signal of the continuing revival of downtown Plymouth, following the . completion of the streetscape project.

If there is a new theme for downtown, it's simply being outdoors. Just take a look around Kellogg Park. There are folks sipping coffee on a deck at a nearby coffee shop, others enjoying ice cream at the new American Pie shop, and outdoor art offered at the Wild Wings gallery at Main and Ann Arbor Trail.

What's developing should be noticed by Plymouth business people. People are focused on being outside and enjoying themselves.

Even off of Kellogg Park, there's the same focus. One of the new business success stories has been Venture Outdoors, located on Penniman. The store sells outdoor clothing and Another popular store is Backyard Birds. And a look into the display windows at Little Professor on the Park book store reveals books on gardening and landscaping.

Even the arts go outside. Some of the most popular events hosted in the Plymouth Community are in and around Kellogg Park.

There's Art in the Park July 13-14, the weekly Plymouth Community Arts Council music performance at noon Wednesdays, the art walk in the fall that links walking from art side wall.

gallery to gallery with musical concerts in the park.

On Thursday nights, the Plymouth Community Band performs in Kellogg Park. But back to ice-cream, the quintessential summer snack food.

The new shop is the dream-come-true of Realtor Joe Van Esley, who has long used the building as an office, but has dreamed of turning it into an ice cream parlor.

It's a labor of love for Van Esley, who has been looking for a place to display his collection of antique Coca-Cola signs, historic newspaper headlines, Purple Gang members' fingerprints, and autographs.

The restored building and the attraction it will provide for the community should be appreciated by members of the Plymouth com-

Business and political leaders in both the city and Plymouth Township should make efforts to become aware of this move outside and give businesses looking to locate in the community advice about the change

On the top of that list should be the Mayflower Hotel, which has announced plans to renovate. An outside facility at the corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Main Street would go along with what people in the community are looking for.

The move outside has been helped along by Van Esley. Let's just hope the owners of the Mayflower read the handwriting on the out-

Perfect? We're working on it

Perfect? No. The best? We may still be. The reference is to the United States of America, which turns 220 years old this week. That is a distinction, for ours is the oldest democratic republic on Earth. But the greatest distinction is that the U.S. is free as well as stable

The Fourth of July is the anniversary of our nation's 1776 declaration. Even after that, Americans had to fight two wars, 1776-1781 and 1812-1815, to secure that freedom.

For most of us, the Fourth of July is just a day off work - a picnic, yard work, lounging. Looking at last week's news, however, we need to renew our appreciation for Independence Day. Consider:

• Afghanistan - "Rebel rockets pounded central Kabul, killing 30 people and wounding more than 120 others, doctors and defense officials said. The attack came hours before former government foe Gulbuddin Hekmatyar was sworn in as prime minister."

Think: We've had some dirty and even crooked campaigns in America, but never a rebellion at the changing of administrations.

• West Bank - "Palestinian militants killed three Israeli soldiers near the border between the West Bank and Jordan. A rebel faction of the PLO claimed responsibility and said it was to protest peace accords ...'

Think: After 48 years of independence, Israel must fight fervently for its life against people who insist just as fervently that they have been dispossessed.

 New Delhi – "More than one-fifth of the world's population - about 1.31 billion people - lives on less than $1 a day, according to a World Bank report on poverty.'

Think: America has had dreary times, but never that bad.

 South Korea – "Japanese Prime Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto apologized Sunday for forcing South Korean women to serve as prostitutes for the Japanese army during World War II ... Historians say up to 200,000 women - mostly Koreans - were forced into sexual servitude in front-line brothels as Japanese forces swept through eastern Asia."

Think: Except for a barren spot on the Aleutian Islands, the U.S. hasn't been invaded for 182 years. Our troops sometimes have erred, but never to that extent.

· Beijing - "China has ordered 2,000 businesses to change their names, saying the names are undermining national culture. 'Names containing vulgar, feudalistic, bizarre and absurd content and Western-sounding color must be banned,' a government official

Think: We pushed around some Germanpeaking Americans in World War I and some Nisei in World War II, but not on the basis of business names.

Instead of a day off, the Fourth of July could be a chance for us to renew our spirits by attending a parade such as the one at 1 p.m. July 4 that is organized by Plymouth-Canton Jaycees, by thanking God for the blessings of peace, national strength and comparative liberty.

If nothing else, let's reflect when we cheer a fireworks display - red for courage, white for purity, blue for valor. Remember the gutsy resolution which the Continental Congress passed July 2, 1776, in Philadelphia by 12 to 0 with New York abstaining.

"Resolved: That these United States are, and of right ought to be, Free and Independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved."

The best? We may be. Perfect? Well, we're working on it.

If I were a betting man, it's a safe bet that 1996 must be an election year. Since late spring, my mail box is on the receiving end of a lot of political propaganda.

The politicians are letting me know what a great job they are doing on my behalf.

Basically, the people in office, using my taxes, are using their respective franking privileges in a wasteful manner.

An area candidate, Jerry Vorva, when in office as a state representative tried to curtail this practice by introducing a bill which would have eliminated this unsavory practice.

The bill got no where.

Please consider a vote for Mr. Vorva as your state representative. I know him to be weary of participating in either taxpayer waste or perceived abuse of office.

Common sense demands a change in the law and a replacement of Gerald H. Law.

This letter is to say thank you to the Plymouth community and two special members Gid and Lynne Levenbach who made the experience of a lifetime possible for a handful of foreign exchange students.

Environmental concerns

We are writing to you about a pollution prob lem we have witnessed on our playground.

We have often seen many animals visit our playground. The animals were eating litter scattered around out playground.

We think that if a duck has to eat litter and live on a school playground, there must not be any other good habitats where animals can live

Another environmental problem is water: Three things we need to do to help our water is recycle more, put trash in its place, a trash

That's why we think we should clean up our act.

As long as the icebox rolls at sporadic speeds you can't help but create the discordant calliope soundtrack to accompany some low-budget killer clown movie. I suppose most mortals my age recall their neighborhood ice cream person, but, depending on your neighborhood the memories range from charming to chilling.

As the years have passed, I realize that I may have exaggerated these 10 cent errors because of the time and circumstances. We were a fatherles brotherless gaggle of gals struggling to survive the '60s on the streets' where the Boston Strangler had already snatched the lives of several and had thrown a sweaty blanket of fear over even the toughest towns.

As girls we were taught to engage every instinct and be wary of everyone. Simmering suspicions had parents keeping their kids close to home and sweltering storms seemed to suck away all the sunshine that following

Although we lived on the ocean, summer was a mean season. At one end of the beach, violent older teens caroused and didn't care for any living witnesses - especially younger siblings. At the other end, incredibly irritable parents threw daggers with their eyes at any unsupervised youth while shrieking non-stop over scratchy AM transistors at their own toddlers. The real ice cream was at the end of the long flaming strip of held the heartbreaking possibility of having to hysterically surrender your cone to a foaming six-pack of mad dogs. For many of us, frolicking at the beach was best enjoyed in the offseason. So TV shows of the day dictated we spent that vacation skulking about swathed in smelly old trench coats acting out all the secret agent spy scenarios.

One of the eeriest of my politically incorrect mysteries was the Mad Ice Cream Man. The Strangler alert kept many kids from going to the store for even the blandest and bluest of Popsicles, but the novelty of the truck's soft-serve and more exotic concoctions were horribly expensive for kids who relied on hunting for 2-cent empties.

The financial frustration was nothing compared to the madman who made the huge Dairy Whip head with a freaky face bobbing about on his hood seem human. His jangling jalopy, which he drove recklessly and ruthlessly, had a giant red sign warning the world that the operator was a deaf mute. He looked like the scariest rendering of the Nutcracker and his temperament was outrageous. He'd screech over, always just far enough away to make us stand in the gutter, and would slam down a great wooden placard with pictures and prices that we were to point at while fast disappearing in a poisonous cloud of sickening black exhaust. Small children could not grasp the problem and asked a million questions while jittering with excitement. The older kids tried their best to help, most being taught to respect our elders without question even if they were unbelievable crabs. The ogre nonpareil needed no words, having a wealth of obscenely vicious gestures.

It was apparent after some time that if you were fifth in line you stood a good chance of him barely choking back his obvious Loathe for Life and peeling away with your coins on his counter while you stood trembling with confusion and fear, rubber thongs stuck in a pool of melting road

Sorry, there is no tender moment nor touching moral, just a spine-tingling memory of summer that lends delightful contrast to my pleasant present. I think I'll chase the truck in ... my new neighborhood today. You might think I am venturing on my second childhood a bit early, but I really feel this may be my first childhood just a wee bit late.

"Children are not a priority." That's the message sent by Congress as it slashes the federal budget.

Since the 1994 elections, the congressional approach to balancing the budget is disproportionately harmful to our nation's most vulnerable population - children.

It is unjust and shameful that programs providing health care, nutrition and food assistance, education, and housing to millions of povertystricken children are facing devastating funding cuts while military spending and defense budgets are increasing beyond even the Pentagon's requests.

As a member of the United Methodist Church, I am concerned about the impact budget cuts are having on those most in need. Our church is one of the many religious groups that has heeded God's call to care for the needy and embrace the poor and homeless in our midst.

If the federal government turns its back on the poor, the demand for church-sponsored services will far exceed our capabilities. We will not be able to meet the needs of all those who will be forced into poverty. Where will hungry women and children go?

Our national leaders must reassess budget priorities and consider the fate of thousands of families struggling to escape poverty. The government cannot ignore the needs of the people and balance the budget on the backs of the poor, especially poor children.

I attended the June 1 "Stand for Children" day in Washington, D.C. The following facts are provided to give all readers an understanding of what is happening in our country. This has nothing to do with party politics; it has everything to do with our nation's most valuable and fragile resource - our children.

More than 1.3 million children live in grandparent-headed households without a parent present, while more than 3.7 million children live in grandparent-headed households with or without a parent present.

I respectfully ask all voters to consider the issues important to their families and to vote for only those candidates who make the issues affecting the health, welfare and education of our children a clear priority. Our elected representatives vote according to what they perceive to be the voice of the electorate.

Let's make our voice clear: We want a safe, healthy, less violent world for our children. We do not support budget cuts which create more poverty, but budget plans which distribute funds to assure education and training to enable the existing poor to work their way up in our world.

"A hundred years from now, it will not matter what my bank account was, the sort of house I lived in, or the kind of car I drove ... but the world may be different because I was important in the life of a child." Children deserve our support. What we do for our children is an investment in the

Ethics: more than do's and don'ts

Some parents are perturbed when public schools teach kids "ethics." Yet there is a wide movement in America to consider the ethics of human decisions by a rational process.

Fundamentalist parents don't believe in ethics as a process. A kid with a problem is supposed to "Ask your parents" or "Ask your pastor." Black and white. You don't need to understand God's will - just obey.

Thang out in the Society of Professional Journalists (SPJ) and cover the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments. Quite a contrast, eh? Not as much as you might guess, because both are delving into "doing ethics" as a process.

You deserve a quickie overview because your quarters pay journalists' salaries, and your taxes pay your local public officials'

Ethics isn't just a list of Do's and Don'ts. These principles are not the kind of thing that can be settled by fiat, government or by authority," says a quote from the SPJ-published "Doing Ethics in Journalism" by Black, Steele and Barney. In other words, you don't just ask an authority figure like the editor or the pastor.

"Ethics is not the same as law ... Ethics articulates what we ought to do in order to be moral individuals and professionals, while law concentrates on the bottom line below which we should not fall," we learn.

tight union rules is asked by an essential, but low-seniority, employee for a night off to take a college exam that will advance his work skills; safety regulations demand someone be on the job; the finance man says "no overtime"; the other employees have tickets to a playoff game.

I won't mess up Hirshorn's script by revealing details. What was interesting was that different groups came up with different answers to even the first question: "What principles are involved in this case?" The six principles are:

 Respect and appreciation for the public – including "the media (who) act as surrogate for the public.'

· Respect for elected officials and the democratic process

· Respect for diversity - racial, religious, cul-

 Respect for peers and subordinates — + including training, retraining and coaching

Respect for the ecosystem.

Amberger cautions against relying on legal ounsel for anything but legal advice. He drops this pearl of wisdom: "Small communities often get bullied by the threat of a lawsuit."

SEMCOG, with 130-plus local governments as members, will offer an ethics seminar at its Oct. 17 General Assembly meeting. Hirshorn is putting together a package for public administration schools, educators and companies.

Adults are learning that ethical problems are multi-faceted and have an impact on many people. School kids should learn that, too.

4th of July now and then

Happy Fourth of July!

I love this holiday! Everything about it is so well, you know - so American! The music, the parade, the fireworks, the hot dogs and hamburgers, the sparklers, the flags waving everywhere, the red, the white, the blue.

And I like the fact that this holiday gets going days before the actual day. For instance, the Sunday before when the choirs and organs in churches across America sing out the patriotic hymns, and everyone knows the words by heart.

I don't know about you, but when the choir and parishioners in my church raise their voices on that early July Sunday morning and the summer breeze is blowing in through the opened windows on the sides of the church and no one has to look in the hymnal:

"O beautiful for spacious skies, for amber waves of grain. For purple mountain majesties above the fruited plain. America! America! God shed his grace on thee, and crown thy good with brotherhood from sea to shining sea.'

I can't-quite make it through the song, the throat lump gets in the way. Maybe it's the unity of many voices rising up in song, maybe it's that we all believe in the same thing for that moment, that living in America is something good, good enough to sing about... Sometimes I think, if we could just all keep

■ John and Florence Lyall admit that when they first met as teenagers it pretty much was love at first sight. But when asked the secret to their 70 years of wedded bliss, they credit their faith and patience.

John Lyall "supposes" it was love at first sight, although his wife, Florence, points out that initially she thought of John as "just a friend of my brother." That's how I was accepted? As just a friend of your brother?" says

John. "I didn't know that." Florence laughs at John's feigned surprise. There is little, if anything, they don't know about each other. John proudly admits he loves his wife just as she is; Florence says John is "just wonderful." Together, they admit that they are not only husband and wife, but best friends.

We adhere to the Scriptures quite a bit," Florence added. "We're both saved and we're happy.'

They meet in their teens and after four years of dating - "It wasn't a very long courtship," John says they decided to tie the knot before taking a trip to England.

"Did I propose or did you, Mum?" John asks Florence.

"We were sitting in the park," she answers, drawing an "Oh, we were?" response from John. "I said, 'It's about time we got married,' and we

It was a quiet ceremony, much like the celebration they plan to have to observe their 70th wedding

"We'll have a couple of hamburgers here, I suppose," said John, a chuckle blending with his Scottish accent. "Actually, our daughter, Frieda, was born on our second anniversary, so we'll go to her house in Canada.

Love at first sight

They were in their teens when they met. He would visit her at her father's hotel and she would visit his family home on Sundays.

"I would visit often with her brother in the hotel her father owned," John recalled. "I'd hang around the kitchen and her stepmother would come down and say, 'Don't you think it's time to go home?' A polite way of giving you the boot, huh?"

While Florence worked for her father at the hotel, John did a six-year apprenticeship in the coal pits that his father managed to become an electrician. After they married, they stayed with John's parents for six months until they could "get going." It wasn't long after that the Depression hit and the lack of work forced the couple to leave Scotland. With the government offering assisted passage, they at first selected South

A fondness for order, system and organization is evident. She is a self-starter who knows what needs to be done. And she has the "go power" to accomplish it.

She takes pride in her work and values accuracy and the opportunity to produce high quality work. She works for perfection in all she does.

Africa as their destination, but sent back, and I said twice," that fell through and so they opted for Canada

John immigrated in 1930, leaving Florence and Frieda with his parents in Scotland. They ollowed three months later, a rip that was anything but a big adventure for the seasick Flo-

"I never want to do that again," she recalled, "I was sick all the time. It was a small ocean liner and it hit every wave. I was seasiek until we hit Quebec.

While they had hoped for something better in Canada, they found more of the same. John headed for Windsor and found work helping a truck driver for the Walkerville Hydro people.

He still remembers the look on Florence's face when she arrived in Windsor after the train ride from Quebec.

When she saw the station in Windsor, her face fell," John said. "It wasn't at all what she expected. There was no work and about all you could do with the paper money you got was cash it in at the grocery store."

On the move again John worked for the Hydro plant until Ford Motor Company opened a plant in Canada where he worked until the family moved to the United States.

Under the terms of the assisted passage, the Lyalls had to stay in Canada one year, but after just nine months, they were able to make their way across the border to Detroit, but not before being deported at least three times.

"When we came with our furniture, the border guard asked how many times we had been them," John said.

John said. " He checked the records and said it was more like three times. When we came with the furniture that time it was within the time of being able to cross, so he let us in."

The Lyalls lived in Detroit and in 1940, John eventually landed job as an electrician at Chrysler's Highland Park plant. He stayed with the automaker for 31 years. He also had his own electrical business, Telten Electric, for awhile but gave it because of too much competition:

They lived in Detroit, adding Doreen, John Derrick and David to the family. In the summer, Florence and the children would spend 10 weeks in a cottage at pperwash Beach, Ontario. John, driving a junker loaned to him by a friend, would visit on weekends. The rent was a mere $9 a

"I had to work to keep them there," he said with a laugh.

They moved to Livonia some 29 years ago and stayed there 15 years before moving to a townhouse in Westland in 1982. Over the years the family has continued to grow with the addition of 16 grandchildren and 26 greatgrandchildren.

Life has been good for the Lyalls, who credit their marital longevity to their faith and following a portion of the 23rd Psalm that reads, "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life."

"We've had a grand life together," Florence said. "I could say why in one word - patience."

It's funny, from sea to shining sea. Our neighbors to the north, our neighbors in Canada who are also American, North American, are celebrating freedom right along with us. The hands of those living in the two countries literally reach across the water in celebration of freedom. And that's something to consider and get a lump in the throat over. Not just one country, uniting within itself, but another, across the border, fireworking and singing, too.

I've only seen the spectacle on TV when the fireworks go off over the Detroit River, but I get that same amazing impression of bad things being not possible when lightness fills the sky and celebration fills the night over two countries.

And when I was very young, even before I could hold a sparkler in my hand, I lived elsewhere in America. And even though the time and place were so different, other things were very much the same. Independence. July. Freedom. Summer. America. From sea to shining America than what I live in today. As a matter of fact, it was in an America where English wasn't even the native language, Spanish was. And the flag that flew over head was not red, white and blue.

The country was Venezuela and their Fourth of July was actually the Fifth of July. And since we were United States citizens living in Venezuela, we had 48 hours of freedom celebrations.

I was only 2 when we moved to Venezuela on account of my Dad's work with Ford Motor Company and 6 when we moved back to the United States so, of course., being so young only the brightest and loudest images survive. And there were plenty of them during those two days in

I remember fireworks everywhere; even inside the odd neighbors' house across the street. Inside the house. My Mom and Dad were appalled. I, on the other hand, thought it would be kind of neat to try the same thing in our house. Then again, I was 3 when I had that thought.

And water balloons figured into the Fifth of July celebrations there. Water balloons everywhere. Again, even inside 48150.

the odd neighbors' house across the street. But for some reason, this I didn't think was neat. Not at all. Unlike the fireworks, water balloons were tolerated on our side of the street, at my house, not in my house, of course, but in the back yard, and, being the youngest in the family, well, I was the obvious choice for the target of those fat, squishy, water-filled balloons.

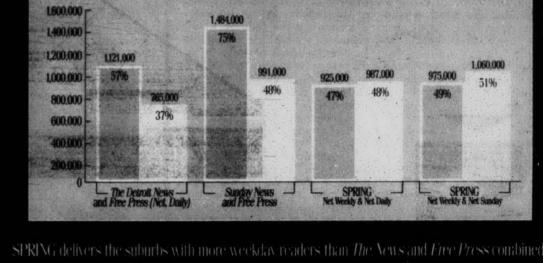

Mom and Dad thought the screams from the yard were all part of the merriment and celebration of freedom in July. I suppose it was. For some.

No matter. The memory is vivid. All those memories are of early July days, and American, and summer breezy, from sea to shining sea, from days long ago and far away.

Things have stayed the same more than they have changed in this instance.

God bless America! And Happy 220th Birthday to our United States of America!

Detroit's music a hit at Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

That's what Motown means to Cleveland's Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum.

Detroit music ranging from Motown to Madonna pop to Iggy Pop punk is well represented in the 150,000-square-foot facility.

A symphony of Detroit musicians -including The Four Tops, Smokey covers and video clips from a variety of acts, as well as mannequins of the five Temptations dressed in blue tuxe-dos, and the Temptations' micro-phone are housed in the display.

The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum goes beyond Motown with an impressive collection of Detroit memorabilia. The ground level is home to most of the museum's displays including an area dedicated to costumes. Realistic-looking mannequins are dressed in George Clinton's fur wrap, Alice Cooper's leopard skin boots, and Madonna's gold stage costume designed by Jean-Paul Gaultier from her Blonde Ambition tour. A collection of U2 paraphernalia includes a backstage pass from the band's Royal Oak Music Theatre show on Dec. 4, 1981.

'Harriet' star intrigued by her celebrity

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

Michelle Trachtenberg is loving the good life.

Sitting indian-style in her suite at the Ritz-Carlton hotel in Dearborn, she anxiously asks, "Did you see all the food when you came off the elevator? There's cookies and candy and food. I don't eat cookies or candy," Trachtenberg said lowering her voice to a whisper, "but I'm liking this."

Trachtenberg, 11, is getting the star treatment thanks to her role as Harriet in the Nickelodeon Movies' "Harriet The Spy." In the movie, which opens Wednesday, she plays a fearless sixth grader who travels her spy route daily observing the happenings at places like the corner market "Hong Fats," and a

She enters everything that she sees as well as honest observations about her friends into a notebook marked "private." An aspiring writer, Harriet is motivated by her nanny and mentor Golly, played by Rosie O'Donnell.

But trouble starts for Harriet when her classmates find her notebook and read its contents out loud. In retaliation for what Harriet has written, her classmates - including her best friends Sport and Janie form a spy catchers club to harass her.

"Harriet The Spy" is based on Louise Fitzhugh's best-selling young people's novel by the same name which was published by Harper in 1964. Since then, about 2.5 million copies of the story about the curious tomboy have been sold.

Trachtenberg, whose favorite book is "Harriet The Spy," said it was fun to play Harriet because she and her character have a lot in common.

"I always thought that if they made 'Harriet the Spy' into a movie, they should cast me as Harriet because we're so much alike," said Trachtenberg who's donning a backward baseball hat, and matching T-shirt and

"We both dress alike except sometimes I wear dresses and long dresses some time but usually shorts and jeans. We both like to read and write, and we both love tomato sandwiches," she said.

Anxiously bouncing on the couch, Trachtenberg gets more and more excited as she talks about her beloved

"Harriet puts tomatoes on white bread and makes the tomatoes squishy, that was my idea. I don't like white bread because it's sticky and it gets stuck to my palate. I get the bread, maybe a hero or a roll or bagel, slice the tomatoes and use a lot of salt and a lot of vinegar."

By now she's a little Mexican jumping bean; food is definitely on her mind. After detailing her tomato sandwich recipe, she sings the praises of her mother's baked ziti.

A New York native, Trachtenberg resides in Brooklyn with her parents and 17-year-old sister Irene ("I love her," Trachtenberg said in a baby voice hugging herself), and their cat "Casey."

She began her acting career at age 3 when she appeared in a commercial for Wisk detergent. From there she filmed about 100 other commercials and guest starred on episodes of "Clarissa Tells It All" and "Law and Order." She also screen tested for the movies "When A Man Loves A Woman" with Meg Ryan, and Steven Spielberg's "Hook." Trachtenberg didn't get either role, but Spielberg did ask her if she'd be his son's girlfriend.

Film debut: Michelle Trachtenberg and Rosie O'Donnell in "Harriet the Spy."

Building in Washington, D.C., the John F. Kennedy Library in Boston, the Museum of Modern Art in Athens, and the expansion of the Louvre in Paris.

Since its opening in September 1995, the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum has played host to an average of 3,000 people per day including VIPs Art Garfunkel, Kansas, The Temptations, Natalie Merchant, Jimmy Page and Robert Plant, Trent Reznor, White Zombie, Marilyn Manson, Blues Traveler and Joe

There are two parts to the campus. The fifth and sixth floors pay homage to the members of The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Continuous glass walls contain illuminated panels in which the names and signatures of the honorees are etched. Television screens tell the artists' stories.

The rest of the building looks at the history of rock 'n' roll through a variety of exhibits that are shown on a rotating basis to keep the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum's displays fresh. Besides traditional museum displays, the world of music is shown through a combination of high-tech wizardry and film and video. "Video Killed The Radio Star" is a hypnotic look at the videos that push the boundaries of traditional marketing techniques - "Sledgehammer" by Peter Gabriel, "You Might Think" by the Cars, and "Thriller" by Michael Jackson are among them.

Other exhibits include a threedimensional display that explores the relationship between rock 'n' roll music and style, and an interactive database featuring "The 500 Songs That Shaped Rock and Roll." In mid-April, WRIF FM (101.1) took advantage of the working studio from which DJs can conduct live broadcasts.

Exhibits highlighting regional music scenes throughout the world trace the explosions of rock 'n' roll in cities like Memphis during the heyday of Sun Records, Detroit during the Motown era, San Francisco's psychedelic scene, the genesis of punk rock in New York and London, New York rap in the early '80s, and the advent of grunge in 1990s Seattle.

A series of exhibits of the first floor charts the evolution of rock 'n' roll from its roots in the early part of the 1900s, through its. birth in the '50s, the psychedelic '60s and straight through to grunge. It kicks off with "'48-'59: A Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On"

with Elvis Presley memorabilia, '50-'63: Mardi Gras Mamba with artifacts from Fats Domino and Irma Thomas, " '65-'69: Somebody to Love" traces the '60s with memorabilia from Steve Miller, Jefferson Airplane and the Charlatans. The " '75-'80: The Blank Generation" display taps into the Detroit's musical vein by honoring Patti Smith and her fellow punk rock innovators The Clash, Debbie Harry and the Ramones. The history of rap from Afrika Bambaata to

The Message.' The grunge years are remembered in "'85-'95: Smells Like Teen Spirit," which includes the Claymation dolls from Alice in Chains' eerie video for the song "I Stay Away," Nirvana concert posters, and memorabilia from Soundgarden and other Seattle grunge bands.

Salt 'n' Pepa is traced in " '79-'91'

More "youngsters," in Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum terms, are honored in the 'All The Young Dudes' exhibit. David Bowie, Iggy Pop, L7, Marilyn Manson, the Dopes, and Lollapalooza mainstagers Psychotica, are joined by a mudencrusted Trent Reznor (a scene from Woodstock made famous), and Shannon Hoon, Blind Melon's lead singer who died of a drug overdose last year.

The most impressive part of the museum is the on-going film presentations shown throughout the museum. The 20-minute film "Rock Is," shown in the "It's Only Rock 'n' Roll Cinema" on the fourth floor, looks at different aspects of rock history and culture and its impact on society. Patrons waiting in line to see the film are greeted by characters from Pink Floyd's "The Wall" who loom overhead.

The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum's mission is to teach the public about the impact that rock 'n' roll has made on society. To carry on this mission, the foundation is also hosting a series of concerts, lectures, films, and seminars for teachers.

"The mission of the museum is to provide insight into an artist who made rock 'n' roll what is it today and what those artists meant to rock 'n' roll," Santelli

"As people walk through the museum, they make a very personal connection with the music. .. Anyone born after 1945 has an emotional relationship to rock 'n' roll so it behooves us to help people learn about it."

BY HUGH GALLAGHER

"Miss Saigon" has returned to Detroit with an outstanding cast and top-of-the-line production.

ing are several duets, trios and multi-voiced ensembles. "Miss Saigon" is always at a high pitch, fraught with either intense longing or ribald action. "Miss Saigon" is part recent history, part tribute to Puccini's "Madame Butterfly." Composer

The story and lyrics by Boublil, with additions and adaptations by Richard Maltby Jr. for Claude-Michel Schonberg and lyricist Alain Boublil followed the English version, tries to contheir success with "Les Miserdense a lot of character motivaables" with this equally intense tion, past history and plot into love story. As everyone must musical speech. Sometimes this know by now, "Miss Saigon" is works perfectly, other times it the story of an American GI who seems forced and even tedious. falls in love with a Saigon bar-This is closer to opera than girl but is forced to leave her musical with very little spoken behind in the dark closing days dialog. But there are several traditional songs and some of them The musical takes on special are quite winning especially resonance because of its Viet-"The Movie in My Mind," "The Morning of the Dragon," "I Still namese setting and because, except for the details, it was a Believe," "Sun and Moon" and story repeated in real life. Schonthe bitter, ripping "The Ameriberg's music is" often soaring can Dream.

> "Miss Saigon" is noted for its spectacular production values and this company doesn't disappoint. Nicholas Hytner's staging is spectacular and John Napier's design is riveting. The famous helicopter rescue scene captures all the fury, anger and terror of those final American moments in Vietnam.

Deedee Lynn Magno gives rich, full voice and a sweet, naive look to the girl Kim who grows, visibly, more assured as she fights for the man she loves and his child.

Will Chase as the all-American Chris is burdened by some of the weakest lyrics and most overwrought music, but he sings excellently and projects the right conflicted agony at the core of this drama. He and the music tend to go over the top on occa-

In addition to the lovers, the other central character is the Engineer, a bitter Eurasian pimp, hustler, lounge lizard with vivid dreams of an America that is Vegas from coast-to-coast. He is the sad product of foreign exploitation. Thom Sesma moves snakelike across the stage, biting and chewing on every irony and ripping declaration. His "American Dream" is brilliantly performed.

This cast is uniformly excellent including C.C. Brown as Chris' friend who sings for the misbegotten "Bui-Doi" children; David Kater as Thuy, Kim's betrothed and a Communist officer and Anastasia Barzee as Chris' wife who faces doubts when she learns of his past love. Also noteworthy is tiny, lovable Mark Dongon as the silent but very expressive little boy Tam.

Dramatic: Thom Sesma as The Engineer and Deedee Lynn Magno as Kim in a scene from "Miss Saigon."

'Independence Day' makes end of the world entertaining

career out of people screaming and scurrying as various acts of God and nature threatened to wipe out civilization as we know

"Earth-

The impending doom here comes from a fleet of massive alien ships, one to blanket each major world city. Their intentions are unclear until a computer expert (Jeff Goldblum) discovers that the code they are transmitting is actually a countdown to Armageddon. Soon the blue light that emanates from the core of each ship destroys entire cities in a flaming mushroom' cloud.

"Independence Day" sets the doom up well. In fact, part of the fun of the first half hour is anticipating what national monument will show up (and then blow up) next. Only Mount Rushmore fails to make an appearance with the Lincoln Memorial, Statue of Liberty, Empire State Building, and The White House.

By now, we've also met our cast of characters, each one a familiar face, usually a character actor or television star. So while we don't have a Tom Cruise or even a Charlie Sheen on board, we do have the likes of Goldblum, Will Smith, Randy Quaid, Judd Hirsch, and Bill Pullman. Yes, that scientist with the long hair is Brent Spiner, Data on TV's "Star Trek: The Next Generation.

While Goldblum again risks typecasting as a heroic computer nerd, Pullman fares best as the beleaguered and truly heroic president. A combination of Clinton's youth and Bob Dole's war record, he's not afraid to climb into the cockpit when his country needs him to battle the alien onslaught.

Of course there are some characters you'd just as soon see vaporized. Harvey Fierstein exits mercifully early, but not Judd Hirsch, whose cranky old Jewish father is the kind of guy, tagging along while son Goldblum tries to explain to the president, who asks where he can get one of those White House souvenir pens.

What sets "Independence Day". apart from Allen and the countss alien invasion movies that preceded it are the eye popping special effects. We can only gape along with the characters on screen as the ships, which measure some 15 miles in diameter, place entire cities in shadow.

There's also a "Star Wars"style dogfight through Grand Canyon that make us both long for the original and appreciate how far visual effects have grown in the past 20 years.

Don't expect the character and personality that pervaded the films of George Lucas and Steven Spielberg, though. Directed by Roland Emmerich, "Independence Day" looks not so much orchestrated as assembled. like one of those spaceship model kits you made as a kid.

But who can knock success? It's been a long time since a movie has caught the audience on such a visceral level. The applause that concluded "Independence Day" leads me to believe that, while "Twister" dominated early in the summer, this will be the one everyone will still be talking about at Thanks-;

'The Underneath' full of clever twists

There's a commercial that suggests getting a job as fall back if your game plan relies on winning the lottery. That's the kind of advice someone should have given Michael, the main character in the 1995 film "The Underneath.

Played by Peter Gallagher. Michael has returned to his Texas hometown to attend his widowed mother's wedding. He is coming back after a couple years absence - having squared away a pile of gambling debts and apparently having spent some time in jail. Michael seems pretty unfocused. He accepts an offer from his soon-to-be stepfather and ends up working as a guard for an armored car company. He looks up his former wife, who was pretty ticked about him leaving her to deal with the gambling debts.

The ex-wife, played by Alison Elliott, is dating and soon marries a violent club owner who is involved in a variety of criminal activities. The club owner is also hot-tempered and extremely jealous - especially of Michael.

In short order, Michael has planned the robbery of the armored car enlisting the assistance of his ex-wife and her abusive new husband. Of course Michael plans to cut his partner out of the deal, for both the money and his ex-wife. And, of course plans don't go as Michael expected. Director Steven Soderbergh, who also directed "Sex, Lies and Videotape" and "King of the Hill," puts some different spins on what might have otherwise been a pretty tradition film noir. There isn't a lot of violence - this is a character driven story. Gallagher's Michael is a rather low key type of character. Initially, he seems to have an at least friendly with his police officer brother.

That deteriorates rapidly to the point that the brother might just be a complete psycho, depending on who you believe.

Unlike the usual femme fatale of film noir, Elliott's character isn't overtly manipulative despite being largely motivated by a desire for money.

There are some very funny moments in the film which is shot with a distinctive style.

There is one scene where several people are talking to Michael, the camera holding tight to Michael's perspective making you wonder what shape Michael is going to be in.

There are enough twists and unusual narrative flow to make this well-done film very watch-

'Mario's' has warmth of Little Italy

BY KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER

A taste of the Big Apple is closer than you think - Livonia. Rochester Hills, and now Southfield, home of the newest East Side Mario's.

Multi-colored lights create a Christmas-in-July atmosphere, everything is festive and fun in this restaurant designed to look like New York's "Little Italy." A replica of the Statue of Liberty welcomes you at the door, menus are displayed in a "New York Times" newspaper rack, vintage store fronts with awnings and signs, 1950s street lamps, billboards, and a cart filled with fresh vegetables, help create the feeling of being on the corner of Canal and Mulberry Street.

East Side Mario's will be open Fourth of July, and menu specials will include barbecued ribs and other holiday favorites.

"The minute you walk in the door, it's exciting and fun," said local restaurateur Norman LePage, who operates the family restaurant, featuring Old World Italian dishes. "It puts you in a happy mood." Corporate chef Dave Manno goes to Italy once a year, and works at making sure everything tastes and looks authentic. "It's almost like Uncle Mario's in the kitchen stirring the pot," said LePage. Each item is individually prepared - you can taste the fresh basil, oregano, and garlic in every bite. Start dinner with an appetizer - the Calamari Al Diavolo is spicy, but not too spicy, and. tossed with hot cherry peppers, bell peppers, fresh garlic, white wine and lemon. Sicilian Stuffed Eggplant and Bruschetta are other specialties, along with Buffalo-Style Chicken Wings and Mozzarella Sticks. The Brick Oven pizzas are also good as an appetizer, or light dinner with a side of Mandaro's Garden Salad or Mario's Minestrone Soup. The Cantinata pizza is topped with marinated chicken, garlic-sauteed spinach, sun-dried tomatoes, caramelized onions, Calamata olives and Italian cheeses. Popular menu items include Garlic Mushroom Rigatoni; Linguini Chicken Tettrazini; and Lasagna Al Forno. All pasta dinners include freshly baked garlic homeloaf and choice of unlimited salad or Minestrone soup. Mario's Rotisserie Chicken is marinated for a minimum of 24 hours in Italian herbs and seasonings and slow-roasted to seal in juices. The Grilled Vegetable Focaccia Sandwich is made with "marinated fresh eggplant, zucchini, yellow squash and bell peppers, grilled and seasoned with fresh garlic and basil pesto. Then baked in a skillet with asiago cheese and served with seasoned Italian flat bread to build as you like."

To pick out dessert you look at the offerings in a Viewmaster. It's hard to decide - Tartufo, Tiramisu, and Turtle Cheesecake are tasty options.

"Everything has a personal touch, and it's a good value," said Ray Lance, East Side Mario's vice president of operations. "The basic East Side Mario's concept is to create a place where people of all ages and tastes can feel relaxed and enjoy a good

"This restaurant is kid-friendly," said LePage. "Kids don't have to run around to be entertained. There's a lot for them to look at." Bambino Meals, a menu for children 10 and under, offers kid-favorites including spaghetti, chicken fingers & fries, Bambino pizza, and rotisserie chicken with fries. All entrees are served with a free dessert and free bottomless soda.

New at the Southfield location is "Mario's Family-Style Dinner," for $9.99 to $10.99 per person. Dinner begins with salad and garlic homeloaf and Mario's Pasta of the Day. Then choose one dinner per person - Chicken Parmigiana, Veal Parmigiana, Eggplant Parmigiana, Peppered Chicken Marsala, Seafood Manicotti, Mario's Rotisserie Chicken, Calamari Al Diavolo, or Grilled Sausage & Peppers. The food will be served on big platters, family style, with Mandaro's Baked Vegetables and Mario's Italian Potatoes so you can sample what each other ordered. Look for the Family-Style Dinner on the menu in Livonia in July, and in August at the Rochester Hills location.

There are six large TVs in the lounge area, and NTN, an interactive TV game featuring QB1, trivia and sports games. Diners compete against others at over 1,600 subscribing restaurants, nightclubs and bars across the country by answering the questions in the allotted time.

Besides drink specials and appetizer specials, the lounge offers karaoke 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Tuesdays, and 10 cent Buffalostyle wings on Wednesdays. There are little buckets of peanuts on the tables, and you can toss the shells on the floor.

"The appeal of East Side Mario's is universal," said LePage, who with his wife Bonnie, also owns Norman's Eton Street Station in Birmingham. "Families, seniors, and 'twenty-somethings' now have a new place to gather for a comfortable, extended meal or grab a quick bite to

East Side Mario's Southfield location is the 40th nationally for the growing East Side Mario's chain, which started in 1988 in Miami.

Cleveland improves its image, no longer the mistake on the lake

BY HUGH GALLAGHER

It was the mistake by the lake. "Laugh-In" and Johnny Carson spent years getting laughs by just mentioning its name. The most famous song about the city was Randy Newman's "Burn On, Cuyahoga, Burn On." All of this was despite the many fine things Cleveland had to offer for its residents and visitors alike. The Cleveland Orchestra is arguably the best in the United States. The Cleveland Playhouse is one of the longest existing repertory theater companies in the country. The Cleveland Museum has one of the world's finest collections, especially in 19th century French art. Case Western Reserve is an outstanding urban university. The city's theater district has several comfortable theaters for live stage productions

The recent events, of course, are the opening of the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame and Museum and the success of the Cleveland Indians baseball team in their superb new stadium, Jacobs Field. Whether these things will be a catalyst for renewal is still to be seen.

Having once lived near Cleveland, I was aware of its many positive assets. When I left the rea 20 years ago, the city was a long way to go to be visitor chaffing under all those jokes. It friendly, but Cleveland has was also tentatively beginning to make its city more inviting.

A recent visit left mixed feelings about Cleveland as a place to visit. It is much more inviting than downtown Detroit. It has none of Detroit's war-zone atmo-

But like Detroit, downtown Cleveland seems to be a place that clears out after dark and on weekends except at specific attractions. Unlike Detroit, Cleveland is spotlessly clean, which gives its nighttime emptiness a spooky movie set quality.

Still, Cleveland has a lot to Jacobs Field is an outstanding baseball park. It is located on the south end of the downtown at the entrance to the major east-west freeway. The park is a modern take on the traditional ball park. Unfortunately for baseball fans from out of town, the Indians are sold out this season, including bleachers and general admission. (That's enough to give Mike Illitch Drive through a beautiful parkway east from the downtown and you arrive at the city's cultural center which is home to the museum, Orchestra and Case Western.

The Flats which began 20 years ago as a modest reclamation of old warehouses along the river, has blossomed into a major operation. Dozens of bars and restaurants hug both sides of the Cuyahoga. You can sit out on patios and watch freighters go by. Water taxis transport customers back and forth. Thousands of people, most of them in their '20s, jostled along sampling the music and the atmosphere.

So Cleveland bustles if you find the right places.

Seniors coming

Come September, folks around these parts may figure we've been invaded, that maybe we'd better start thinking up ways to plot our Independence Day.

After all, see a bunch of ol' potbellied, grayhaired fellas wandering around Canton dressed in baseball uniforms and swinging bats, and each and every one of 'em grinnin' ear to ear, and some sort of invasion would be the first thing to come to mind.

Well, chill out, younger generation. From Sept. 13 to the 22, the Canton Softball Center will be host to the National Association of Senior Citizen's Softball World Series.

And this is one BIG event.

We're talking 125 teams and better than 5,000 senior softball players, all 50 years old or older.

Fun? Sure it is. But don't for a second think that's what this is all about. As Ken Maas, president of NASCS, explained: "This generation of seniors is more active than any before and events like these give them the opportunity to get out and compete.

And is that something they relish? "The NASCS events are loaded with former major and minor league baseball players, including former stars like Bert Campaneris and Al Moran," Maas said. "But all of our players play hard and want to win, so the level of competition is no joke."

This is the second time the NASCS World Series has visited Michigan (the first was 1992). Since the inaugral NASCS World Series in 1989, team participation has nearly doubled.

More than 5,000 out-of-town visitors are expected to visit for the Series. General Motors, Kmart and Blue Cross/Blue Shield are among this year's sponsors.

The road to the Series won't be easy. There are 15 qualifying tournaments (14 national, one Canadian), with more than 15,000 players participating in qualifying games between April and September. Teams that place first or second in the qualifying tournaments are invited to the Champions will be decided in six age brackets: 50 and over, 60 and over, 65 and over, 70 and over, and 75 and over. A Women's Division has also been introduced.

Hubenschmidt's scoring spree carries Falcons

It was a one-man show Monday when the Falcons faced off against the Wildcats in a Metro Summer Hockey League match at Plymouth Ice

Fortunately for the Falcons, that one man -Jesse Hubenschmidt, a Redford-Detroit Catholic Central graduate - was on their side.

Hubenschmidt burned the Wildcats for five goals and assisted on another to lead the Falcons to a 6-4 triumph.

Hubenschmidt was aided in great part by Dan Hunt, who drew four assists. David Scott contributed a goal and an assist for the Falcons.

The Wildcats, who twice pulled to within a goal in the third period, got a goal and an assist from Bobby Davis; three assists from Antoli Buliga; and single goals from Bob Nagy, Joe Joseph and Jody Serecky.

Nagy's goal with 4:42 left in the last period trimmed the Falcons' lead to 5-4, but Hubenschmidt's fifth marker with 2:39 left iced it.

Bulldogs 9, Wolverines 4: Brent Thomas netted two goals and two assists, and both Brian Tarsin and Kyle McNielance added two goals and an assist in the Bulldogs' win Monday at Plymouth.

Six players scored goals for the 'Dogs, who led 7-2 after two periods. John Brodhun chipped in with a goal and four assists, Dustin Sventy had a goal and two assists, and Dave Bavol scored a Brandon Strom and Vic Decina did much of the damage for the Lakers, combining for five goals and three assists. Strom scored all three of his goals by the eight-minute mark of the second period; he later added an assist.

Decina scored twice in the opening period as the Lakers took a 4-3 lead. He finished with two goals and two assists.

Bobby Jones, Steve Jones and Jason Wilson also scored goals for the Lakers. Jim Pietila and Dave Daavettila contributed two assists apiece.

The Broncos got two of Bill Trainor's three goals in the game in the last 8:14, trimming an 8-5 deficit to 8-7. Dan Trainor assisted on both.

Eric Evans added a goal and two assists, Brian Consolino had a goal and an assist, and both Jeramie Murray and Darren Hands scored goals for the Broncos. Brent Bessey had three assists and Scott Hands got two.

A master: Jimmie Vlcek, a 7-year-old from Plymouth, showed his contemporaries how it's done by hooking this prize 21-inch brown trout on a recent family fishing excursion near Frankfort. Vlcek's story, plus plenty of other seasonal fish stories - including a couple of contest winners - are highlighted in Bill Parker's Outdoor Insights column. Also, lots of other fun things to do outof-doors can be found in the Outdoors Calendar. Both are on 2C.

Shamrocks hire former standout to coach team

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

As quickly as Dana Orsucci has risen as both a teacher and coach at' Detroit-Redford Catholic Central, it's hard to believe he'll only be attending his 5-year high school reunion in November.

The 23-year-old Orsucci just finished his first school year as a fulltime history and spanish teacher at his alma mater. Last week, he was named the Shamrocks' varsity boys soccer coach after one season as the freshman coach.

It's the kind of stuff someone would talk about at a 10 or 15-year

"I learned a great deal there and it's nice to give back," said Orsucci, a Livonia resident who graduated from CC in 1991. "Sometimes I walk down the halls, pass my old locker thinking I'm still a student. It seems like it was just yesterday, but then I realize I'm on the other side now.

"A big part of why I'm a teacher is because of the teachers I had there. They exemplify dedication to the profession. How they yearn for their students to learn, learn, learn."

Learning is something Orsucci is anxious to do as a first-year head

Orsucci started four years at Kalamazoo College after earning All-

Observer first team honors as a senior at CC. His playing career spans 18 years and he has coached for several more at various levels in both metro Detroit and Kalamazoo.

He captained the Kalamazoo College team his senior year when he was named to the Michigan Intercollegiat Athletic Association second team. During his four years at Kalamazoo, the Hornets won the MIAA twice and finished second twice.

Orsucci replaces Phil LaJoy, who resigned after five seasons because of business reasons.

"I figured if not now, when? What else am I waiting for?" he said. "It's going to be a learning experience."

Orsucci said Kevin Tuite, a varsity assistant under LaJoy, plans on remaining in the same capacity. Also expected back is junior varsity coach Aaron Brown, who played on Livonia Stevenson's Class A state champion team in 1988.

Orsucci said he learned a lot from watching LaJoy, whose teams won two Catholic League championships. The varsity was 10-5-3 last year, while Orsucci's freshman team had a 4-6-3 record and the junior varsity was 11-1-2. He's an unbelievable man, patient, understanding, and had a great will to win," Orsucci said.

Fish stories: 7-year-old lands a prize

weeks ago I wrote a column about a Livonia senior who, at the age of 79, caught a Master Angler 53-inch muskie. Well, I didn't mean to mislead anyone. You don't have to be a seasoned veteran to land a trophy fish. Just ask seven-year-old Jimmie Vlcek

The soon-to-be second grader at Isbester Elementary School in caught meal.' Plymouth showed the old-timers how it was done on a family trout-fishing trip earlier this year in Frankfort. Three generations of Vlceks, Don Sr., age 70, couple Don Jr., age 46 and young Jimmie, ventured up to the Betsie River and were fishing near the M-32 bridge without much success. After two hours and no fish, Jimmie finally broke the jinx by landing a beautiful 21inch brown trout.

"It was just a few days after his seventh birthday and he single-handedly hooked, fought and landed this 21-inch brown trout, which brought cheers from a dozen adult anglers who had gone fishless for two hours," explained his father, Don Jr. 'Jimmie was happy he could supply his family with a fresh-

Red Man results

Art Ferguson III placed fifth in the recent Red Man Michigan Division qualifier on Saginaw Bay. Fishing Bull Dog lures in the main lake, the Livonia resident landed a limit of five fish which tipped the scale at 17pounds. Ferguson earned $498 for his effort, but more importantly earned points toward qualifying for the Red Man Regional.

At the conclusion of six Michigan Division qualifying tournaments, the top 30 anglers, determined on a basis of pounds and points, will advance to the Red Man Regional. From there, they will compete for a spot in the Red Man All-American, where the winner takes home $100,000. The next Michigan Division qualifier will be held July 14 on Lake Muskegon at Fisherman's Landing.

Ferguson's roommate Ed Dietrich finished 23rd in the 1995 Red Man All-American, which was held in June in Pine Bluff, win a $10,000 scholarship Arkansas.

Troy angler in lead

Troy's Kevin L. Gerback is the current leader in the 1996 Plano Big Bass Junior Championships with a whopping 4.38-pound largemouth. The fish was taken in Buckhorn Lake on a Casey's Competitor lure.

If Gerback's fish holds up through August 15, he will win a cash stipend and a chance to win a college scholarship.

The Big Bass Junior Championship is a unique nationwide tournament which allows anglers to fish on their own time and on their favorite bass waters. The junior anglers (age 10-17) who catch the heaviest largemouth bass among BBJC competitors in each of 49 states win $250 cash and a chance to State winners in the Exide Nautilus Big Bass World Championships (a similar tournament for adults) will represent the junior winners from their state at the 1996 Big Bass World Championship, Oct. 18-19 in Oklahoma. The winner of the BBWC wins cash and merchandise worth nearly $100,000 and a $10,000 scholarship for the BBJC champion from his state.

The last three soccer coaches at CC, Paul Scicluna, John Boots and LaJoy, didn't work at the school. Being employed as a teacher at CC adds to Orsucci's impressive resume, according to athletic director Bob Santello.

"He is a young man full of enthusiasm, knowledge of the game, with a Catholic Central background," Santello said. We are very excited that he will take the reigns as head coach and also that he will be in the building."

Orsucci, a midfielder when he played, said he favors a short-passing game. He also is open to listening to ideas from his players, much as he does while in the classroom.

"I love input from the kids," he said. "I feel I'm very question out, I want them to ponder what is being asked. Not a yes or no answer, an explanation."

A short-passing game is important for players who want to play beyond high school, according to-Orsucci. "I've seen some high school soccer, and a lot of it is just boot ball," Orsucci said. "Get the fastest guys, throw them up front, chase every ball down. I want to get away from that style."

Returning for their senior years will be standouts Mike, Martin and Tony Mouccoulis, while goalkeeper Matt Kessler leads an impressive junior

The Shamrocks have to replace All-Area players Chris Kennedy and Tom Derhake, who graduated.

"I can't wait to get going," Orsucci said.

Unique school choice offered in Orion sub

phase at Silverbell Oaks, a single family site condominium community in Orion Township, have a choice, between which public school district to send their children.

About half of the 121 lots in the subdivision off Silver Bell Road east of Lapeer Road are in the Lake Orion district, half in Rochester.

Beyond that, buyers can choose from among three floor plans offered by Tri-Mount.

Prices start at $249,900 for a 2,800-square-foot colonial with four bedrooms, $263,900 for a Cape Cod of 2,700 square feet with the master on the first floor and two bedrooms upstairs, and $284,900 for a 3.100-square-foot colonial with four

A fourth plan, a smaller, four-bedroom colonial, is on the drawing board.

"We especially liked the location and proximity to the park (Bald Mountain Recreation Area) ... and the fact lots are so large," said John Vincenti, Tri-Mount president.

"We wanted to be established in the area because it's such a fastmoving area," he said. "It's a sub we wanted to get in some six to eight months ago but, due to weather and trade delays, it pushed us back.'

Explosive business growth along the I-75 corridor in northern Oakland County makes this a good time for residential builders there.

"I think the Lake Orion area is very strong, one of the strongest in Michigan," said Gary Coogan, Tri-Mount sales rep. "We're in close proximity to I-75 and high-tech businesses. We're close to the Chrysler Tech Center and large companies moving in. We're close to where a lot of people

"I think it's going to be move-up buyers from areas like Rochester Hills, Troy, Sterling Heights," Coogan said. "We're anticipating a pretty good percentage of transferee buyers, maybe as much as 35 to 40 per-

Coogan projects that half of the buyers in Silverbell Oaks will have built before, while it will be a new experience for the other half. Visitors love the site, he said.

"The like the location, the fact it's a rolling terrain, that a great deal of lots have trees," Coogan said. "And the size of the lots. The smallest is 110 by 150. Rolling terrain gives us the ability for walk-out basements and daylight basements."

The on-site model, a 2,800-squarefoot colonial, features a library, living room, dining room, family room and kitchen/nook with island.

The master, with cathedral ceiling, has a separate tub and shower, dual sink vanity, walk-in closet and closed-off toilet.

Three other bedrooms and a full bath with dual sink vanity also are upstairs.

Included at no extra charge are such features as a curved wall in the half bath, tray ceiling in the dining room, built-in desk in the kitchen, linen closets in each full bath and a two-year warranty.

"Aside from being a market innovator with our product, we also try to keep our margins lower," Vincenti said. "We like to offer more value for the money."

Florida and enjoyed that concept down there," he said. Cheryl and Ken Frey also like the Cape Cod. "We've lived in a quad level now for 25 years. The children are gone. I didn't want steps any more," Cheryl said. "Everything on that house plan was everything I want-

Lot size and spacing between residences initially drew their attention, Cheryl added.

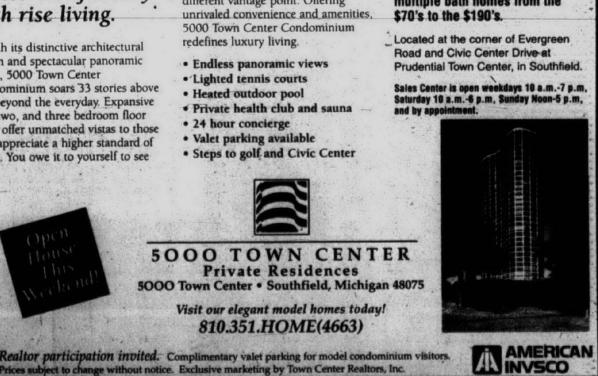

"We didn't want to move into an area where houses are piled on top of each other," she said. "Plus, it's so beautiful out there. Every time we go out to the property we see some type of wildlife."

As the heat rises, so do home cooling costs. The average annual operating expense for a house built in the 1990s is $1,874, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. In a house built before 1960, that number jumps to $4,384 a year, with utility costs representing a large percentage of that total.

Today's smart homeowners are looking for ways to reduce their operating expenses. A consumer survey conducted by Professional Builder magazine found that 66 percent of people surveyed would spend $2,000 extra addition to glass features, it is also importo save $250 a year in energy costs.

"Homeowners are looking for options to improve energy efficiency in the summer," says Bob Kerr of Pella Window & Door Co., the local representative of Pella Windows and Doors. Replacing inefficient all-aluminum windows with the latest wood window technology can be very effective/ In some cases, homeowners see utility costs reduced by as much as 25 to 30 percent, even in mild climates.

The most advanced wood windows feature multiple layers of low emissivity (low-E) coating, which allows them to perform better in milder climates. The low-E coating reflects a high percentage of the sun's heat rays, keeping them from entering the home and causing heat gain.

Features other than glass can also be considered for energy efficiency, Kerr adds. "In tant to consider framing materials," Kerr says. "Wood windows are more energy efficient than aluminum because wood is a natural insulator." The Wood Products Promotion Council reports wood is 1,770 times more efficient as an insulator than alu-

Homes sales expected to level off

By JOHN D McCLAIN ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) _ Sales of previously owned homes tied a record in May, but analysts expect both new and existing home sales to cool slightly this summer.

Sales should fall some in the second half of the year, but ... still will be stronger than last year," said David Berson, chief economist for Fannie Mae, the nation's largest source of home mortgage funds.

Q: The concrete walk in the corner of our L-shaped house has settled to a slope of 3 or 4 inches. The slope causes rainwater to seep into the crawl space. Can we top this walk with a thin layer of concrete, or will it crumble?

A: You have three choices: replace the slab, top it with a layer of concrete, or lift it up and fill in under it. There are two ways a homeowner can lift a slab. If the edge of the slab is accessible, you can use a pry bar. If the edge is not accessible, or it's too big to pry up, you can jack it up.

Span across the slab with two 2-by-4s placed on edge. Bore holes through the 2-by-4s and through the concrete slab (rent a hammer drill if need be). Take some threaded rod (known as all thread) and put a spring-loaded wing on the end of each. Push the rod through each hole in the 2-by-4s and into the holes in the slab. Put a washer and nut on top of each rod and thread the nut down. Drive the rod down, with a hammer if necessary, until the wings open under the slab. Be sure to put the nuts on the threaded rod before driving the rod down. Driving the rod will mushroom the threads and make it difficult to thread the nuts on the rod.

Tighten the nuts against the 2-by-4s to jack the slab up. Then pour a slurry of cement, sand and water through the open holes in the slab to fill the void underneath. Turn the rod out of the nuts when the filler under the slab has set up a little. Patch the holes, and the job is done.

Q: What's the best way to store partly used cans of paint without having them develop a skin on the sur-

A: Here are several solutions that have worked for us: 1. Store the can upside down. 2. Cut a piece of wax paper the same diameter as the inside of the can and drop it down on top of the paint. When you are ready to paint again, simply remove the paper and the paint under it will be ready to stir up and use without lumps or pieces of dried paint skin to strain out.

3. Blow into the can before you put the lid on it. The carbon dioxide in your Berson predicted a dip first in new home sales reports, which are based on contract signings and thus reflect current mortgage rates. That will be followed by a slowing in existing sales, which are based on actual closings and reflect lower rates that existed a month or two earlier.

"As recent upticks in interest rates impact the market, we expect (existing) sales will cool off some during the summer months," agreed Art Godi, president of the National Association of Realtors. "But the market's health is not in any jeopardy."

The Realtors reported Tuesday that sales of previously owned single-family homes rose 1.4 percent to a seasonally adjusted 4.26 million annual rate in May, matching the record set in December 1993.

The advance was the third in four months. Sales were unchanged at a 4.20 million rate in April. Many analysts had expected a decline to a 4.13 million rate

Sales in May were up 17.7 percent from the May 1995 rate of 3.62 million. That left an inventory of just 2.12 million, representing a sixmonth supply at the May sales rate.

The median price of an existing home was $117,400, up from $116,500 in April and $109,100 a year earlier. The median is the midpoint, meaning half of the homes cost more and half less.

Regionally, sales jumped 6.7 percent in the Midwest to a 1.12 million annual rate. The median price there was $99,200. Sales also rose in the South, up 2.6 percent to a $1.57 million rate. The median price was $102,000.

Tour parks sites on-line

One of the newer Web sites locally to be launched on the Internet is the site belonging to West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation.

The page was designed to be an informational page for West Bloomfield residents. The top of the page has an attractive logo featuring a Blue Heron (West Bloomfield's adopted bird) in a wetlands setting.

Underneath the logo and title is a horizontal row of trees followed by the label "A Guided Tour of

Our Park System. And that's exactly what the Web site is, containing links to maps of the township's seven parks, including Bloomer, Marshbank, Bloomfield Knolls, the nature preserve, Meadow Haven Nature Trail, and Sylvan Manor.

You can access the site by pointing your browser Web http://metronet.lib.mi.us/WEST/PARKS/wbp home.html.

Other links include links to "History of Our Parks," "What's New," and "Our Parks Staff." "I designed it as an informational page for West Bloomfield residents and show a map of each of our seven parks, plus a text page showing all upcoming recreation events like our golf outing, concert in the park, etc.," said Tom Haworth, West Bloomfield Parks commissioner. As you probably discern from the URL, the site is linked from the West Bloomfield Library's portion of the Metronet, the Southeast Michigan Library Consortium's presence on the Internet.

Haworth said the aim is to update the each month. Future hopes are to add a section so residents can register on-line for activities they are interested in. Pretty interesting stuff the folks in West Bloomfield are doing. There's another interesting governmental agency site in Oakland County, but I want to visit it again before writing.

A few weeks ago I mentioned a future column might be devoted to the success an area business has experienced on the Web.

I am now ready to write about that venture, which is really pretty exciting, but may write a news article instead of using this column. Hang loose.

The on-line appearance on June 27 featured live discussion and user questions about the fall's race between Bob Dole and Bill Clinton CUSTOM CALLING: The Dimango Products Corporation of Brighton has introduced four wireless doorbell I door chime models that allow do-it-yourselfers to match the doorbell or chime housing with a room's decor. The patented units feature a snap-out front panel that can be painted or wallpapered to match surrounding walls. When the panel is snapped back in, the finished units have a custom, decorator look. All of the models offer a 150-foot operating range and different ding-dong and dong sounds to distinguish front and back doors. Two models also let users choose from 11 additional sounds and songs ("Westminster Chime," "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," "Happy Birthday," "Auld Lang Syne," "Joy to the World" and six other popular songs for special occasions or holidays). The sound is selected on the front of the button, allowing users to change to a different sound any time, in seconds, and identify each door with a special sound. Dimango's doorbell/door chimes are sold at home center chains and other major retailers. Prices range from $24.95 to $44.95. For more information, call (800) DIMANGO.

Mallets ready for croquet on the 4th

pegs and mallets - and prepare yourself for oquets and rolls this 4th of July. The picturesque, mild-mannered game of croquet is often long forgotten. With complete sets in holders left to collect dust in the attic, or set outside tagged for the on almost anything that's edible upcoming garage sale - pull the tags and get out the dust cloths, it's time to revive this old classic.

Combine a day of croquet with a berry filled luncheon - perfect festive summer combination. Embellish your outdoors (backyard, patio, gazebo or porch) with red, white and blue 4th or July decorations. Ribbon, flags and streamers all make for a festive look. Develop your luncheon menu with lots of berries. While your own fruiting plants may not yet be fruiting, there will be many choices in your local fruit markets. Strawberries, blackberries, raspberries and blueberries are not only the perfect summer flavors but also the ideal colors (from crimson red to deep blue-purple) for Independence

A berry flavored yogurt makes for a

BERRY BUCKLE

A common dish found in New England - this can be made with raspberries, blackberries or the dewberry (a relative to the blackberry). Ingredients for the batter; 1/2 stick butter or margarine

1/3 cup sugar

1 large egg

Pinch of salt 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder

1 cup flour

1/3 cup milk

Ingredients for the filling 1 3/4 pounds berries (any type)

3/4 - 1 cup sugar

1/2 teaspoor cinnamon 1/2 cup sugar

In a large mixing boot, mix the 1/2 stick butter or margarine with the sugar until soft. Add the egg and mix well. Sift together the dry ingredients (salt, baking powder, and flour) and add to the butter mixture. Add the milk and mix thoroughly. Place this batter in a well greased oven-proof dish. Mix together the berries of choice and the sugar - use a rubber spatula, as to keep the berries in tact. Spread the berries over the batter and sprinkle with cinnamon.

In a separate bowl mix together the topping ingredients - mix until consistency appears crumbly. Sprinkle the topping over the filling. Bake the buckle at 350 degrees for approximately 30 minutes or until the topping is slightly browned.

*Cook's note: The cake-like mixture below the berries "buckles" upwards during the baking process.

CREME FRAICHE

shake for at least 8 hours. Make sure the

POACHED/GRILLED) CHICKEN-FRUIT SALAD WITH BERRY/YOGURT DRESSING

This recipe is basic - prepare as desired amounts are discretionary. Poach or grill chicken - use white or dark meats, or a combination. Set aside the meat. Cut up fruit - as many types as desired. I usually use apples, grapes and bananas - sometimes I will do just tropical fruits, let your mood and theme guide your choice. Wash different types of lettuce (romain, bibb, leaf) and other salad ingredients such as cucumbers, jicama, celery. In a separate bowl mix together plain yogurt (low fat or no fat if you choose) and pureed berries you can also place the yogurt and berries berries as you desire, to taste. Toss your salad greens, vegetables, fruit and chicken - toss lightly with the berry-vogurt dressing. Serve well chilled.

Concerns over asbestos hit home

Asbestos is a mineral that has excel-lent binding qualities. It s a long-last-ing, dependable material that isn't soluble in water and has been used successfully in building products, components and insulations for many decades. Asbestos was used in more than 2.500 different products.

In the 1960s, concerns surfaced about asbestos and its relationship to some cancers. Workers in some industries as well as miners were developing cancers caused by asbestos in the air they were breathing. These cancers affect the lungs and respiratory system. Once it was determined that asbestos could have a negative impact on the health of people who are exposed, the production of asbestos was banned for use as building materials, insulation, etc. Production of asbestos ceased in 1973 and its installation was banned after 1978.

The main concern with the ACM is its condition. If the material is friable, which means the asbestos fibers can become airborne, it should be mitigated. Mitigation occurs in two forms: removal and encapsulation. Encapsulation involves sealing the asbestos off. The mitigation process is very specific and the cost isn't much higher for removal than it is for encapsulation.

Removal requires the following: 1. Prepare the area with positive airflow to the exterior to capture and dis-charge airborne particles to exterior. Small asbestos particles can remain airborne for days in still air.

2. Wet down the ACM as well as adjacent areas of concern, such as the floor.

3. Isolate the areas and the ACM. This is typically accomplished by building a plastic tent around part of the subject area. The tent is moved to isolate other areas with ACM as needed.

4. A proper respirator should be worn to capture the smaller ACM particles. Goggles and disposable coveralls should also be

5. Removed ACM is captured in bags, transported in trucks designed for this use, and disposed of at designated hazardous

6. The mitigator removes coveralls and then showers in a plastic tent in the mitiga-

7. Air testing is performed after removal and cleanups to determine if there are asbestos particles in the air.

The cost for removal is specific to the contractor. However, in a residential situation, removal can be accomplished for $500 to $2,500 in most instances play: The tropical section of Jerry DeBusschere's garden contains two ponds. The garden is one of six featured in the Troy garden walk, "Stepping Out With Flowers."

GROUNDS FOR DISCOVERY

he first thing you'll notice as you approach Jerry DeBusschere's garden is the riotous colors of marigolds in front of white blooming yucca plants.

His is just one of six gardens open when the Troy Branch of the Woman's National Farm & Garden Association presents its 22nd annual garden walk, "Stepping Out With Flowers," Wednesday, July 10.

Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 6-8:30 p.m. There will also be a craft boutique, and refreshments at each location. Proceeds are donated to various public horticultural activities.

Tickets may be bought on the day of the walk for $10 at 2692 Coral, between John R and Dequindre in Troy. (Take Marble south off Square Lake to Coral.)

DeBusschere has gardened at this location for 10 years. It was formerly an orchard and has absolutely no resemblance to that.

The back yard is filled with 300 plants in pots. Every year each is taken into the small greenhouse for the winter.

"It's the ultimate pot garden," DeBusschere said. "The focus of the garden was to separate the garden into a tropical rain forest and a

As you stand on the bridge and walk down into the garden, white peonies and red geraniums line the steps and on either side are 40 different species of tiger klies. The steps lead to a brick patio that provides a visual and actual barrier between the two areas. In the center of the patio, bougainvilleas stand tall and are surrounded by miniature dahlias and pink carpet roses. A sundial is a reminder of the passing hours.

Many of the plants in the gardens were col-lected in the wild; others were air-freighted from other countries. They have come from all the continents. Some are endangered species and DeBusschere carefully tends them and takes cuttings to the Mojave Desert in southern California, where he is reestablishing them to their native habitat.

The plants in the desert include yucca plants and yucca trees, occitillo (tall and skinny) cinnamon beaver tail, giant saguaro and many varieties of palms. The hundreds of plants are artfully placed in island beds amid 34 tons of

The desert is never watered. DeBusschere fashions a hard plastic collar over the plant pot to divert rain water. Fertilizer is applied once a month. DeBusschere's favorite in the desert gar-month. DeBusschere's favorite in the desert garden is a blue agave (a century plant) that is 28 years old and weighs 300 pounds. "Arthur" is grown in a huge 22-inch pot.

The tropical garden contains two ponds with Koi swimming gracefully in them. Many kinds of palms grow here: Blue, sago, date, Mexican and Chinese fan palms and a Mediterranean palm as well as other tropical beauties. DeBusschere hand waters the rain forest as required there hand waters the rain forest as require and fertilizes these plants every two weeks.

DeBusschere, who has degrees in botany and biology, uses standard potting soil and compost-ed manure, which "just knocks them out." All the plants in the garden receive Miracle-Gro, Muiracid and orchid food.

And this isn't all you will find in the garden. A back wall of the bridge will contain a large grouping of orchids. In mid-April canna bulbs were put in pots and when they were 12 to 18 inches tall, DeBusschere set them outside to bloom in time for this garden tour.

A shady side yard has been transformed into a peaceful garden with hostas, tiger lilies and Bergournia, the beds separated by winding chip paths.

When you plan a path for your gar den, make it wide enough so that it is a comfortable "fit." Draw a design on paper, or lay newspaper on the ground to define the path. Black plastic under your chosen material (bricks, stones, gravel, wood planking, or wood chips) will deter weeds. Be aware of the style and colors of your home so that the material harmonizes. An edging, especially if the path is to be mown grass, will help keep plants from growing into the grass or grass from infringing on the plants' territory.

Selection

Plants grown along the garden path will soften the look and also guide garden strollers. There are many interesting plants from which to choose, from annuals and bulbs to perennials

Provides a degree of shatter resistance to If the area is shady, begonias are suitable, as are small hostas, ferns (especially purple flowered lobelia and caladiums or astilbes. Herbs such as lady's mantle or sweet woodruff also are good choices. Bulbs are fine for early spring color and a shady path can be brightened at that time by their use. When the bulbs finished blooming, annuals can replace the bulbs and continue the color. Begonias

Lining looks

A fun idea might be to line a path to a vegetable garden with lettuces and flowering cabbages and kales. Lettuce is easily grown from seed and the many varieties on the market today will provide much interest during the season. As one crop is used up another one can be sown for a different color picture. The cabbages and kales will keep their color throughout the season well into fall. Annual basils, both with green and purple foliage, would add spice.

If a more formal look is desired, you may want to consider grey santolina or lamb's ears, both are perennials. Santolina can be clipped into a hedge-like form, as can green-leafed boxwood. The look of boxwood left in its own normal growth pattern rather than a trimmed hedge is an

Keep in mind that annuals can be changed the next year if you didn't achieve the look originally intended. Gardening is always changing and even though an edging of perennials isn't exactly to your liking, they can always be moved to another place in the garden and you can always try another type of plant.

Gardening is a constant learning experience. The reward is when something really works. There is a wide choice of suitable

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Oh, deer, deer, deer!: Shooting against a dramatic sunrise near Blanding, Utah, provided Monte Nagler with this impact-filled picture of three silhouetted deer.

Sunrise/sunset shots?

table images awaiting your camera are sunrises and sunsets. They can be dazzling in color, rich in tones, striking in composition and easier to obtain than you might think.

Here are some hints to help you capture drama and impact in your sunrise/sunset pictures.

• Use a long telephoto lens when you want to make the sun appear like a giant ball of fire, and a normal or wide angle lens when you wish to accent a colorful sky or a vast cloud formation surrounding the sun.

• Place foreground subjects in the viewfinder to "frame" your picture and give it foundation. Subjects can be trees, buildings, boats or even people. Because you meter off the sky, all foreground subjects will appear as black silhouettes that in turn will add a dramatic quality to your shot.

• Remember to take your exposure reading off the sky next to the sun. Make an exposure at this setting and take a couple more at progressively smaller apertures. You'll find that by underexposing in this manner, your pictures will have deeper, bolder and

 Try using color slide film instead of color negative film. You'll be pleasantly surprised at the more saturated colors you'll obtain. Then, you can have enlargements made from your favorite

• Pay close attention to your horizons. Make absolutely certain that they

Among the most are running horizontal across the beautiful and unforget-viewfinder. A tilting horizon can be very distracting.

· While sunrise/sunset photographs in themselves can be excitingly colorful, the use of a colored filter will further enhance your shot. Imagine,a descending sun surrounded by a dramatic cloud pattern photographed through an orange or red filter. You'll be delighted with the results.

• If you want to eliminate lens flare, make sure you use a lens shade. However, don't overlook the possibility that lens flare can, at times, add an esthetic dimension to your photograph.

• You don't always have to place the direct sun in your picture. Wait until the sun dips behind a dark cloud and then capture the sunbeams as they spill to the ground below. Or wait until the sun has totally descended and see how the sky and clouds invite your camera with their gradually deepening color hues.

A caution: For your eye's safety, avoid looking directly at the sun through the viewfinder. With a little practice, you'll find it easy to place the sun where you desire in your composition without having to look straight at it.

Sunrise/sunset pictures are easy to take. The results will make you feel proud of your photographic abilities and will also give you a sunny disposi-

Forging links: Jim Preston and Jim Courtney, founders of Remerica, have a plan to grow into a national real estate franchise operation.

Remerica sows seeds for growth

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

The founders of Remerica Real Estate in Plymouth enjoy the chal-lenge of bucking a trend.

As more independent offices affiliate with well-known national franchisers, and more national franchisers come under common corporate ownership, Jim Courtney and Jim Preston go about the work of growing a regional firm into a national player from scratch.

They say they have a lot to offer. "It's more inexpensive to get into it with us, less expensive to stay in," Courtney said. "We expect to franchise like they (the big boys) have, but be run by real estate people "If there isn't a company like us that comes along, a lot of smaller and mid-size companies are going to be left by the wayside because they're not making an affiliation," Courtney

Remerica currently has about two dozen franchise offices, all in the metro Detroit area including Plymouth, Westland, Canton, Livonia. Redford and Orion Township. All are individually owned.

Each Remerica franchisee currently pays a start-up fee of $5,000 and 6 percent of gross sales up to $30,000 annually as a service fee and 2 percent of gross sales up to $6,000 per year for advertising.

"They get the right to use our name, on-going television and newspaper advertising, training sessions, pre-licensing school," Courtney said.

"We can take a new broker and get them up and running in a couple of months," Preston said. "We can help pick a location, computerization. We do a lot of recruiting for our fran-

Typically, franchisees pay a start-up fee between $20,000 and $5,000 to affiliate with a major real estate franchiser and there are no caps on service and advertising fees, Courtney

But he admits it can be difficult persuading potential franchisees to cast their lot with Remerica.

What we stress is we are more locally involved people like they are,"

We talk to existing independents, disgruntled franchisees from other organizations and start-ups. We know a large part of our business is the independent who's held out (affiliating) and realizes this is passing me

" Courtney said. Remerica plans to grow in two ways recruiting individual franchisees in Michigan and selling master franchise rights to real estate brokers or companies who would pay a $100,000 fee to own franchise rights in their

Courtney and Preston have experience in both areas.

Courtney purchased master fran-chise rights in Michigan from Centu-ry 21 in 1974 and opened 230 offices before selling back to the company in 1980.

Courtney and Preston acquired and perated three Century 21 franchise offices of their own during the mid 1980s before selling those to Coldwell

They opened their first Remerica office in 1988 and sold their first Remerica franchise in 1990.

John McArdle, one of the first said. "The support they give you is agents to go to work for Preston and Courtney as an agent, bought a franchise with Elizabeth Chuba and Tim Haggerty about 16 months ago.

McArdle said he was impressed to learn about Courtney's accomplishments with Century 21 and Coldwell Banker and his straightforward attitude when they met.

"This company is run by real estate people and owned by real estate peo-ple," McArdle said. "It was locally owned. They're not owned by another great conglomerate where real estate is just part of their holdings.

"They understand when you have a question it's important to you. There's not a lot of bureaucratic red tape," McArdle said.

Carol Bird, an independent since 1988, affiliated with Remerica about three years ago.

"I was burned out training. The support of other offices is important. As an independent, you are there by yourself," she said.

"I did look at national ones. They had training, but you had to go to Lansing, Chicago for the day or Benton Harbor. Remerica has training all "I think I like some of the independence I get from Remerica," Bird said.

"They don't stand over you and dictate, but if you need help or support, they're there. They're big enough to do service, but small enough to be family and care."

Tom Mitchell, an owner with Mike Village of Remerica Showcase Real-tors, is one of the newest franchisees. "Jim Courtney has been around.

He knows what he's doing," Mitchell right here. In our business, you have to give agents an opportunity to make a living. I see it more with Remerica. They're not digging into your pockets all the time."

Corporate's short-term goal is to open one franchise office per month. Longer term, it's to sell master franchise rights in high-volume sales states like Ohio, Illinois, Texas, California and Florida

Master franchisers will be the local link between their franchisees and

A public stock offering for part of the company is contemplated a few years down the line to fuel further expansion, Courtney said, with he and Preston maintaining controlling

"We struggled the first few years," Courtney said. "Our revenue stream was more than half a million dollars last year. Now we're able to open a regional office. We're profitable from the sense we're not losing money. We're in the black."

"I used to be in the construction field then got into a car accident," Preston said. "A friend said, "Why not try real estate?' After a year in the business, I became a manager. I loved to help people become successful."
"I found real estate through trial and error," Courtney said. "I liked the ability to work as much as you wanted. I liked the independence. When I was growing up, the home was the most important thing to people."

And what of the name Remerica?

"It's simplistic - real estate in America," Courtney said. "It's what we do and where we do it."

Seek legal advice when buying downsized house

Q: We are interested in downsizing our home. We are in our early 40s with one child in college and one with four years left to graduate high school.

If we sell our principal residence with about $50,000 in capital gains and are in the 28 percent tax bracket, what would we be up against in taxes? What would you suggest?

A: Obviously, it is difficult to give you any specific tax advice without knowing your entire set of financial circumstances. However, you should be aware of the fact that if you purchase a new principal residence within two years prior to or subsequent to the sale of your old principal residence, you may not have to recognize the capital gain for an indefinite period of time, as long as the purchase price of the new residence exceeds the selling price of

Q: Recently, a unit sold in our condominium and the seller had a large dog. When the new buyer inspected the unit prior to their closing, they reported no problems to the association's managing agent. After moving in, they reported all kinds of damage to the rear doors and walls, including dog claw marks and teeth marks.

Is the association responsible?

A: Most of the time, the condominium documents will require that the co-owner who damages the common elements (assuming that the property is question is a common element), is responsible for reimbursing the association for the damages incurred as a sult of such a situation.

In this tase, the seller, who is long gone, is no longer readily available to meet its responsibilities.

sue the seller for the damages which it may be required to pay to reimburse the association, although there is no guarantee that the association will be successful in pursuing the purchaser for damages by his predecessor in interest.

Again, it would require the need to review the condominium documents and examine all of the facts to determine what recourse the association has, if any, both in defense of the claim that may be brought by the purchaser against it for repair of the common elements, and whether the association in turn has a claim against the seller and/or a legitimate defense against the purchaser who bought presumably with his eyes open.

Hot water heaters could be dangerous (AP) - Q: I have been con- bined can weaken a tank and sidering buying an older home. The building inspector has told me that the water heater in the house that I like the best is improperly protected. Does this mean that it will blow up or otherwise create a dangerous condition? How do I find out just what is wrong with it and what do I do to correct it?

A: One problem that building appraisers run into is an improperly protected domestic hotwater heater. To answer your question, your concern about a water heater explosion is correct.

Live steam from the explosion of a tank-type hot-water heater could cause severe damage or, if someone happened to be nearby at the time, serious injury or death:

All tank-type water heaters, whether they are electrically heated, gas fired or oil fired, must have a relief valve that is both temperature and pressure sensitive. Unfortunately, many relief valves are pressure sensitive only and this will not provide you with the needed protection against an explosion.

Should the water heater's thermostat malfunction, the water in the tank could become superheated, meaning it's heated beyond the temperature of 212 degrees Fahrenheit at atmospheric pressure. As the boiling point of water increases, its pressure increases and both comexceed its yield strength. If this happens, the water pressure immediately drops to cause it to rupture, or simply atmospheric pressure. The superheated water instantly flashes into steam, increases its volume and liberates an amount of energy that can be greater than a pound of nitroglycerin. If the water had not been heated above 212 F, it would not flash into steam and an explosion would be impossible. onsequently, pressure- and temperature-sensitive relief valves are designed to prevent the water temperature from exceeding 210 F.

It does this by discharging the overheated water and allowing cooler water to enter the tank. safely lowering the temperature.

It's also important that the BTU-capacity of the relief valve exceed the BTU input of the water heater. If the capacity is less, the relief valve will not be able to discharge the overheated water at the same rate it's produced, resulting in an unsafe condition or possible explosion.

So, you can see that installing a correct relief valve is important, but it should not be too difficult or expensive. Once this is done, you don't have to worry about an explosion.

Bank recently announced its new NO MI Mortgage. With an Old Kent No MI Mortgage, mortgage insurance required, saving you time and usually money, according to Patrick Berns, Old Kent assistant vice president. It saves time because you can close your loan faster without having to get approval from an MI company. It saves you money by typically resulting in lower monthly payments and, depending on your tax situation, you could enjoy substantial after-tax savings. Plus, by eliminating expensive MI closing costs, you'll start saving money the day you close. Lenders, including Old Kent until recently, have priced mortdownpayment of the value of the home. If a customer elects to obtain a mortgage with less than 20 percent down, "private mort-gage insurance" will be required (in some instances MI is required at even lower LTV's). This insurance premium is paid by the borrower to secure protection in the event of borrower default. Typically, the mortgage insurance premium is added to the borrower's monthly payment. Old Kent's program results in a lower total monthly payment.

The No MI product is available on fixed-rate 10-, 15-, 20- and 30-year loans and 7/23 and 5/25 balloon loans.

While interest rates on other loan offerings may actually be lower, you need to consider the total mortgage payment before deciding which program is better for you. By adding the principal and interest payment plus the mortgage insurance premium together you can see which program is more beneficial. The fol-gages assuming a 20 percent lowing compares the two programs.

Consider a $90,000 loan with 10 percent downpayment. On a traditional mortgage the interest rate would be 8 percent, a monthly principal and interest of $660.39, with a monthly MI premium of $39, a pre-tax total payment of $699.36 and average after-tax monthly payment of $531.39, assuming a 28 percent tax bracket. With the No MI program you would have an 8.5 percent interest rate, $692.02 monthly principal and interest, no MI, a total pre-tax payment of $692.02 for a savings of $7.37 a month and a total after tax payment of $513.52.

As you can see, even though the interest rate on the Old Kent program is higher, when the total payment is considered you would save about $7 each month. While the amount you save is not large, it is certainly better than paying an extra $7. In addition, when tax consequences are considered, you realize even greater savings.

While traditional mortgage insurance can be canceled when the loan to value reaches 80 percent, your interest rate will not be lowered when this happens. However, it is important to realize just how long it will take to pay your mortgage down to an percent loan to value. In a typical example with a 10 percent downpayment it would take 165 months (nearly 14 years) to pay the loan down to 80 percent. Even if you intend to stay in you home for the full 30 years, it is likely that you might refinance your mortgage sooner than 14 years. In addition, by the time you have reached the 80 percent level you will have saved $7.37 for 165 months or over $1200 on a pre-tax basis.

As shown above, after tax savings are even greater with the No MI loan. The private insurance you pay is not taxdeductible. With the Old Kent program you are essentially paying for the increased risk by having a higher interest rate. As you probably know, mortgage interest is your tax adviser for advice on your specific financial situation). Continuing with our example, you would save nearly $18 each month or $214 each year. By the time you would be able to discontinue traditional mortgage insurance in month 165, you would have saved nearly $3,000 after Lastly, there is another way you will save with the Old Kent No MI Mortgage, explained Berns. Traditional mortgages with mortgage insurance typically require a deposit at closing equal to two monthly premium payments (2x39=$78 in our example). "Our program will not require that deposit," said Berns.

So, when reviewing all your mortgage options, include the new No MI Mortgage from Old Kent in your considerations. Call me at the number below if you have questions about this or any other mortgage program.

"The hardest thing in the world to understand is the income tax"

Personal Scene Ads in The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers allow you to record a message in your own voice over the phone. That way when people see your ad in the paper, they can dial your code, hear your message and leave a message of their own. You can call, day or night, to get your messages. It's fast, it's easy, and it helps people find out more about each other. Look in today's classifieds or call your Observer 8 Eccentric ad taker and ask about our introductory offer. You might find a friend who will do your taxes. One who is, in theory, relatively intelligent

WRITE ITAND REAP!

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

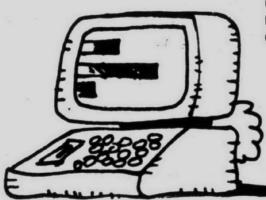

. Include the price. Don't vaste your time or a potential puyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond o your ad will be those who are jenuinely interested. Surveys how that readers are more interested in those items and ervices they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
