Worker kills supervisor, self at plant

BY KEVIN BROWN

Two men were dead Sunday after an angry employee shot and killed a security supervisor at the Ford Motor Co. plant on Sheldon Road, then killed himself.

Dead at the scene was the shooter, Stephen Cox, 58, of Ypsilanti, a 30-year employee at the plant; and Donald Jagod, 57, of Dearborn, a security supervisor at the plant.

Plant employees said there were tense feelings between the two men, as Cox had been reprimanded for allegedly stalking Jagod's daughter.

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry said Monday police were still trying to determine the motive, adding he could neither confirm or deny the stalking accusation.

"I do know it had something to do with the daughter," Berry said. "We're going to send teams to the plant today to find out exactly what was going on."

The shooting happened just after 5:30 a.m., after Cox arrived at a small security office attached to the south side of the plant. He brought with him a 9 millimeter Sig handgun.

"He fired several shots into the security supervisor," Berry said. The victim was unarmed.

Police said Cox, a custodian, then approached a second security guard and threatened him. Meanwhile, another security guard came into the office, saying he thought he heard some shooting, Berry

Suspect charged in holdup

Robert Edward Fawley of Detroit was remanded without bond to Wayne County Jail after his arraignment on armed robbery charges before 35th District Judge Ronald Lowe Friday.

Fawley, 32, is charged with a robbery at the Total gas station, 1066 N. Mill in Plymouth, the night of July 22. During that incident, a cashier was robbed at knifepoint and the robber escaped with an undisclosed amount of cash over $100.

Armed robbery carries a prison term of up to life. Fawley is being charged as a habitual offender, "which allows the court to assess one and a half times the maximum sentence," Lowe said.

The suspect, who has long brown hair and multiple tattoos, reportedly asked the cashier which cigarettes were the cheapest. He then asked to use the bathroom, said Plymouth Police Lt. Wayne Carroll. Wielding a knife, the suspect walked behind the counter and told the 44-year-old male employee, "Open it; just open it and don't give me any trouble."

The robber removed cash and phone calling cards from the drawer, and fled north on foot.

It's unknown whether a customer about 21 years old was involved.

A videotape showed a young man leaning down and grabbing his foot "just prior to the suspect entering the building," said Carroll. The 21-year-old bought $7 in gas with a $50 bill, and asked for a receipt.

While at 35th District Court, Fawley waived his preliminary examination on another case. Fawley was charged with larceny from a person after an unarmed robbery at the Sunoco gas station at Joy and Lilley roads in Canton Aug. 2.

He'd been held in the county jail on $75,000 on that charge.

After the Canton robbery, police pursued the suspect and his female companion, who eventually crashed their getaway car into a taxicab at Lahser and Fenkell in Detroit. A total of $206 and a carton of cigarettes was stolen from the Sunoco station.

Whalers team nets a new home

The Detroit Whalers' new hockey home in Plymouth Township is almost ready.

"We're still shooting for Sept. 1. At the latest Sept. 8, we plan to be open," said Kerry Kerch, Whalers assistant general manager.

The first home game for the Ontario Hockey League's Western Division champs is 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5, against the Kingston, Ontario, Frontenacs.

And it's going to be a night to remember.

"We won the Ontario League western division last year so we will be raising a banner that night," Kerch said. "We plan on having a carnival-like atmosphere, face-painters for kids and different things like that."

There will also be a tailgate party for VIP season ticket holders. So far, there are 788 season tickets sold for the 4,000-seat arena.

Of the pace of construction - the two-rink arena was started this spring - Kerch said, "For the most part everything's been pretty smooth, it's amazing a building of this size can go up as quickly as it did."

The construction firm is A.J. Etkin. "There's still some finishing work in the lobby that has to be done, all the seating is going in and all the boards are going up," Kerch said. "Hopefully by end of month we'll put in the ice."

The Whalers have already signed up several local business advertisers, who'll display their company names on the boards, in illuminated signs on concourse walls, and even on the ice.

"To be honest I'm really excited how much the business community has gotten involved," Kerch said.

Fran Toney, executive director of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, agreed that local business people are excited about the team coming to town. "People coming from outside the area need hotels and restaurants," she said.

At their Fall Festival booth, the chamber will sell Whalers tickets and other team items. "We'll be

Survey to review community needs

A tiff over recreation fees between the Plymouth city and township governments has sparked an idea: to do a survey to find out what residents really want in recreation opportunities.

"Let's get something accurate and scientific as opposed to getting the answer you want," said township Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy.

She said that in talks between committees representing the city, commission and the township board of trustees, both sides agreed on doing a survey.

"We want to go with someone who knows what they are doing, and get the most effective results," McCarthy said.

"And we're not talking about spending thousands and thousands of dollars. We're looking at a small survey to establish a snapshot," she said.

McCarthy said the committees, which have already met twice to discuss recreation concerns, could meet again this month.

On the city side are Mayor Ron Loiselle, City Manager Steve Walters and Commissioner Doug Miller. On the township side are Trustees Charles Curmi and Ron Griffith and McCarthy.

Both sides agreed to meet and talk about recreation issues after the city commission in June approved a move to help balance the city budget by increasing recreation fee rates at the Plymouth Cultural Center for non-city residents - including Plymouth Township residents. Rates were not increased for Plymouth city residents.

Art Show caps summer

D&M Art Studio, in cooperation with the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department, will hold a Children's Art Show to cap off the summer art camp experience 3-5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 25, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer.

Students from all the summer camps have submitted more than 400 art pieces to be displayed at the exhibition. This year's theme is "The Painted Desert."

PLYMOUTH PIPELINE

Students have painted individual panels of a desert backdrop to create the right atmosphere. Because campers have worked on individual panels, the entire scene will be a mystery until all the pieces have been assembled at the show.

The exhibition will also include watercolors, sand art, oils, acrylics, and pastels. Students range in age from 3-18. They will receive ribbons and awards for their creativity, imagination and expression. The public is welcome to attend.

Music in the Park

Guy Sflerezza's Chautauqua Express performs for kids at noon Wednesday in Kellogg Park in the final Music in the Park

Golf classic tees up

The Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce Annual Golf Classic will happen Sept. 10 at Fox Hills Country Club. Sponsorship cost is $600 for a foursome, $440 for a twosome and $175 for individuals.

The price includes golf, cart rental, breakfast, lunch, steak dinner, open bar and tee sign.

And this year, all are eligible to win two season tickets to the Detroit Whalers Ontario Hockey League home games, to be played in Plymouth Township.

To register, call the chamber at 453-1540.

Denial dilemma

Whalers search for schools for young players

By M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

A request from the Detroit Whalers hockey team to enroll players in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is being denied, unless their host families can obtain full guardianship.

The Detroit Whalers open camp Aug. 28 at the ice arena they're building at Beck and Five Mile roads in Plymouth Township. On the team will be approximately 22 young men ages 17-20. The majority will be high school seniors this fall. They hail from New York, Massachusetts, Canada and Europe.

"Anywhere from one to four or five boys will go to Redford

'Apparently, they have a closed-door policy in the school district. We've never run into these problems before. We want to work with the school board, but it is a strange situation.'

Catholic Central; four will go to school in Windsor, and five to seven we'd like to get into the Plymouth-Canton school district," said Fred Shefsky, the Whalers' educational coordinator. Older players will attend Henry Ford Community College, the University of Michigan-Dearborn, and Schoolcraft Community College.

"We've found some wonderful host families in Plymouth-Canton who will put the boys up," said Shefsky. "We want the kids to be part of the community. The best way to do that is to mingle with kids in the neighborhood."

"Apparently, they have a closed-door policy in the school district. We've never run into these problems before. We want to work with the school board, but it is a strange situation."

Shefsky pleaded his case again at Monday night's school board meeting.

"The Whalers would like to do anything we can to work things out. We don't want to be a business that takes money out of the community," he told the board. "I know not all of these kids are going to play in the National Hockey League. They need to get their education."

Superintendent Charles Little said granting the request would mean enrolling "kids from all over the world, not just this country. The Whalers' request was denied. Students aren't enrolled unless there is full guardianship. We appreciate the community spirit the Whalers have shown."

The district receives $5,832 per year from the state for each student residing with his or her parents or guardians in the district. Plymouth-Canton recently opted not to be a "school-of-choice" district. Unless they are interested in adult education, students from outside Plymouth-Canton will not be enrolled.

"Usually we pay tuition at a parochial school, but there isn't one in the Plymouth-Canton area as of right now," said Shefsky.

"I realize what their problem is with overcrowding, but we feel in a way that we create a unique situation. People get a better idea that these kids don't think they are more special than any other kid."

Whaler players often assist schools with their DARE programs, and even teach foreign languages to younger students, Shefsky said. They stay for the entire school year.

Shefsky also asked whether players could be enrolled as exchange students. "They told us they only work with agencies that deal with exchange students," said Shefsky.

"The hardest thing about playing in this league is that it's the only sport where you have to leave home at 15, 16 or 17 years old, unlike football and basketball where you can play in high school and go onto college. Hockey isn't set up that way."

Shefsky said at the school board meeting, "Five or six people came up and said they couldn't understand why the boys couldn't be in school. We just figured with the commitment the team has made, there shouldn't have been too much of a problem."

The Whalers have offered to help the schools set up their own hockey program. "We would be willing to sit down with them and take a look at the schools," said Shefsky.

Even though it means lots of red tape, the Whalers' attorney has spoken with a judge to pursue guardianship, said Shefsky. "Our attorney is hoping to meet with Mr. (Errol) Goldman and Mr. Little. This isn't a case of us wanting to take from the community. We just want an education for the boys. We will be here a long time and want to be part of the community."

The Whalers are still looking for host families. "We're looking for a few more beds for kids in Plymouth," said Shefsky, a Southgate resident who's hosted nine players over the years. "We'll do whatever it takes. We just want to work it out to everyone's satisfaction."

Interested families may call the Whalers at (810) 737-7373.

The dog days of summer just got a whole lot cooler.

YMCA to make way for new library

BY KEVIN BROWN

The Plymouth YMCA is looking for a new home, as the Union Street building which serves as its offices will be razed to make way for library construction.

The Plymouth District Library Board of Trustees recently identified the property as a fifth house requiring demolition to make way for the new library and for expanded parking on the site of the former library.

Joanne McCarthy, YMCA executive director, said the Y's board of directors views this development as potentially positive.

That's because Plymouth, compared to some towns, lacks recreation facilities. "If we did get some land donated, we could start right away putting up a trailer and ball fields," McCarthy said, adding there are about 2,500 Plymouth Y members. She said the YMCA would like 10-12 acres, adding, "15 would be ideal."

"The library's a very needed asset in the community, and the YMCA is also needed; we don't have a lot of recreation facilities in the community," she said.

Anyone wanting to donate land or provide office space for the Plymouth YMCA should call 453-2904.

Library Director Pat Thomas said, "We need it to satisfy all the parking and landscaping required for the site." "When we started looking at the basic floor plan it turned out we needed that much more space. It didn't make much sense to go further north, it just made more sense to continue

Out with the old: The current YMCA offices are being purchased by the Plymouth Library to be demolished as part of the library's expansion plans. The "Y" is looking for a new space.

one more south."

Because the YMCA house would be needed for parking and not to make way for actual library construction, Thomas said it could continue to operate as an office well past the fall, when library construction is expected to start.

The two sides have yet to agree on a selling price. Homes that the library has purchased - they've reached agreements to buy two of the five houses so far - have sold in the $150,000 range.

The Plymouth YMCA has been operating for 35 years, and has been in the Union Street office since 1982. "Maybe this is the nudge that's needed to get the support of the community to donate land, or whatever," McCarthy said.

The Plymouth Y has no recreational facilities, and rents them or has them donated through the Plymouth Grange, local schools, churches and private pools, and the Plymouth Township Park.

The Y is non-profit, and pays for programs through fees charged to members and from grants from United Way.

Mark Oppat, who served on a city committee that recommended creation of a Plymouth Kellogg Park Historic District, has joined some Union Street residents in criticizing the house demolitions.

The YMCA house, built about 1905, is in the Frank Lloyd Wright-derived, arts-and-crafts cottage style popular in the early part of the century.

"This whole thing on Union Street just stinks," he said, adding nearly half of the residences in the district are slated for demolition by the library.

"To go after this much parking on a historically designated street - my solution is close Church Street. That would preserve this street rather than destroy five homes and ruin the character of a historic street all in the name of parking," Oppat said.

Want a home? Only a buck

Want a house for $1? If that sounds like a good deal, you'll have to act fast.

And there will be a few extra costs, because you'll be hiring someone to move the house.

The Plymouth District Library board is offering houses at 226 and 236 Union St. for sale. The houses were both bought by the library board, as part of the plans to build a new library and create sufficient parking space.

Library Director Pat Thomas said there have been eight or 10 calls on the houses, since the library board advertised their availability in early July.

"It's been mostly people that have never done this before," she said, adding none want to pursue the house buy when house moving costs are raised.

According to Joe Terrio of Atlas Construction of Southfield, the cost can range from $5,000 to $50,000. The cost goes up if one is moving a house in a city or urban area, as the homeowner must pay utility companies to take wires out of the way.

Also, the cost to move a house is cheaper for ranch-styles than two-story houses. Terrio said the man who handles the moving of homes for his firm, Jim Durst, can move a house 20 miles "and he doesn't even crack the plaster."

Thomas said it takes several months to contact utility companies and zoning or planning commissions where the house is being relocated. And because the library board plans to start construction this fall, "At this point it's getting pretty tight," she said.

"We're targeting Oct. 1 so we can get in the ground and avoid winter conditions as much as possible."

Team addresses domestic assaults

Recognizing the rise in domestic assaults in the Canton, Plymouths and Northvilles, the judges of the 35th District Court began a comprehensive program in May 1995 to address the dilemma.

The objective of the program was to implement a broad-based community response that recognizes domestic violence as a societal problem, according to a press release issued by the court.

To achieve this goal, Chief Judge John MacDonald commissioned Judge Ron Lowe to lead a team of court administrative personnel, treatment providers and others who have a vested interest in the issue.

Intervention is now provided by two local counseling services for both batterers and victims in order to educate and ensure the safety of both parties.

First Step is providing advocates in order to make the victim's experience with the criminal justice system less intimidating and explain how to develop a safety plan.

Education Training Research Services offers the Domestic Violence Early Intervention class for batterers, required as a condition of bond, to explain the court process and avoid further occurrences of this type of behavior.

Following sentencing, people convicted are ordered into the Domestic Abuse Intensive Weekend treatment program with follow-up sessions, also provided by ETRS. Victims may receive additional counseling and services through First Step.

By taking strong, pro-active measures at all levels of the judicial process, the 35th District Court has acted as a leader in the fight against domestic abuse while still maintaining the rights of the accused, according to the judges.

Plymouth streets to be barricaded

In about two weeks, temporary barricades will close off York and Holbrook streets at the railroad tracks in the city of Plymouth.

The 30-day closings will give city officials a chance to see how such closings affect traffic and nearby residents.

The action was sparked by an order from the state transportation department more than a year ago. The state has told the city of Plymouth it must close the two crossings, or pay thousands of dollars for improved crossing gates and other signaling equipment there to meet new regulations.

At public meetings on the issue, some residents have told city commissioners they favor the closings as that would be safer for kids and reduce noise from crossing signal bells.

But some adjacent business people and residents said they want the crossings left open for convenience.

City Manager Steve Walters said officials will look at findings after 30 days, to see if a solution is indicated. "If it isn't clear, we could go another 30," he said.

Walters said that if the temporary closings are successful, the commission could decide to leave the temporary barriers in place until permanent ones are installed.

Residents up to one block away from the railroad tracks living on York or Holbrook will be notified by mail of the crossing closings, Walters said.

At the booth, season tickets will be discounted. "We're also going to have players in uniform signing autographs, selling Whaler caps," Toney said. "They'll have a new mascot; it's supposed to be ready in time for our booth."

Whalers posters can be spotted in some downtown business windows, and a team pennant hangs on the wall at the chamber's main street office. The chamber is also trying to put together a deal where fans can share a season ticket.

"They're very cooperative, I don't look for any serious problems," Berry said. While there will be spaces for 2,500 vehicles, Berry said most games are during evening hours so traffic coming from nearby industrial parks shouldn't be affected by game traffic.

"We're also working on security. They're getting security companies involved to make sure township patrol officers and police officers continue their duties elsewhere in the community," Berry said.

The suspect succeeded in driving away and exited the freeway at Beech Daly. He re-entered it and drove eastbound at speeds of up to 85 mph, with police in pursuit. The station wagon left the freeway at Outer Drive and headed north at about 65 mph. Police said the suspect ran several red lights and still had his foot on the gas when the station wagon hit the cab.

Both the suspect and his companion were taken to St. Mary Hospital by Livonia police. The man refused medical treatment. The woman was treated for injuries. The driver of the Checker cab, a 38-year-old man, was transported to Grace Hospital in Detroit. His passenger, a 58-year-old male, was uninjured.

Fawley was ordered to appear at 35th District Court Aug. 23 for his preliminary exam on the Plymouth charge. He is due in Wayne County Circuit Court Aug. 30 for arraignment on the Canton robbery.

Some township officials said they weren't happy about that, and some noted that city residents are given the same discount given to Plymouth Township residents at the township-owned Hilltop Golf Course.

"There's been no decision to change the budget commitment at this point," Walters said.

"The township did ask to look at postponing those. It's a real financial question," he said.

While the two sides haven't been able to resolve the fee increase issue, they have been talking about other recreation-related subjects.

"It seems there are a lot of different sources of recreation; we don't need to reinvent the wheel," McCarthy said. Those sources of recreation include church groups and Schoolcraft College just east of Plymouth Township, where programs are paid for partly by taxes on greater Plymouth residents.

"Let's make sure the citizens know what's available for them," she said.

"We've just talked kind of philosophically. We both have concerns that services being provided are the services that the community wants," McCarthy said. "We've both acknowledged we really don't know."

said.

Cox told the guard no, and the guard left. The other guard "asked for his life," Berry said, and Cox let him go.

The shooter then walked out the door and shot himself in the head, Berry said.

Both men died at the scene from gunshot wounds.

Police learned of the shooting at 6:06 a.m., as the guard who fled the office ran south on Sheldon Road, and used a phone at the Office Depot office — formerly the Highland building — to call police.

It was the second fatal shooting at the plant within two years. In January, 1995, an estranged husband shot and injured his wife and killed her boyfriend, before turning the gun on himself.

Ron Poland, assistant plant manager, said Monday, "There's a lot of disbelief. There's 1,800 different people who work here, there's that many different emotions about what happened."

Poland said there were about 30 workers on duty at the plant at the time of the shooting, mainly maintenance personnel. The next shift was to start at 7 a.m.

Within a half hour of the shooting, counseling was made available for employees troubled by the incident. Poland said counseling will continue to be offered this week, to Ford employees and to their families.

Both Cox and Jagod were married with families. Jagod, a four-year employee at the plant, was a retired Dearborn policeman.

Ford Motor Co. officials have said they've considered putting metal detectors at plants to check for handguns, but because workers often bring in tools and other metal objects this idea was rejected.

"It isn't a mechanical problem, it's a human problem," Berry said.

"It's just one of those things out of the blue. There's no reason for it happening and there's nothing you can do to prevent it," he said.

The plant makes air conditioning and heating units for Ford automobiles.

Of those who called library officials so far to ask about the $1 houses, Thomas said, "One man called looking to put a house on a piece of property for his kids. A couple others had lots in the community and they were looking for easy ways to put a house on a piece of property."

"Both of these have been rental properties, one is a two-unit and one is a three-unit," Thomas said, adding that to convert them to single-family houses will take plenty of work.

Commissioners OK Newburgh Lake project

A contract for $1.85 million to provide engineering services to restore Newburgh Lake was approved Thursday, but questions were raised about plans to landfill the contaminated material in Westland.

Wayne County Commissioners approved the contract with Environmental, Consulting & Technology Inc., with local Commissioner Bruce Patterson, R-Canton Township, voting no.

The project involves removing PCB-contaminated sediments from the lake and dredging to increase the depth of the lake.

Patterson questioned where the PCB-contaminated sediment would be landfilled.

That hasn't been decided, but some portion will go to the former Nankin landfill near Holliday Park in Westland and some to the Cooper School site also in Westland, Hugh S. MacDonald, chief of staff of Wayne County's Department of Environment, said.

Clean material from the lake would be used to cap the Cooper School and Nankin sites and then the sites would be closed permanently, MacDonald said. Contaminants have already been identified at both sites, and both sites have been fenced off and closed to the public.

The county has $10 million from the National Wet Weather Demonstration Project to remediate the problem at the lake, and this is less expensive than alternatives, MacDonald said.

Patterson questioned why the cheapest method would be used.

The contract approved Thursday was for engineering; the commission will look at the dredging and landfill plans at a later commission meeting.

On the road again

Some help is on the way for Seven Mile Road.

Commissioners approved a $891,550 contract between Wayne County, the Department of Transportation and the city of Livonia for work on Seven Mile Road.

The project would include concrete pavement reconstruction of Seven Mile from Interstate 275 to Newburgh Road and the construction of sidewalks from Blue Skies to Newburgh Road.

The cost is divided: $704,319 federal, $88,205 county and $99,026 Livonia.

Gardens a go

A senior citizen gardening program, which began in May 1995, got the green thumbs up Thursday.

Commissioners approved a contract with Ford Motor Land Services Corporation of Dearborn for $1 for the license to use a piece of land south of Michigan Avenue between Merriman and Henry Ruff roads in Westland for small garden plots.

The agreement is part of the county's senior center gardening program.

The contract runs through April 30, 2000.

Commission weighs stadium tax plan

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

A proposal to put an excise tax on car rentals and hotel rooms in Wayne County to raise money for new downtown stadiums drew a mixed response from county commissioners Thursday.

Proposed ballot language was sent to a commission committee Thursday, while three out of four local commissioners said they couldn't support putting it on the Nov. 5 ballot.

Proposition S, which would bring in about $4 million a year, is part of a plan for the county to get involved in the Detroit Tigers stadium project with an additional proposal to build a Detroit Lions stadium. Details of the county's involvement in the stadium proposal and whether the Lions have definite plans to move from Pontiac were sketchy at deadline.

But the tax proposal, which the commission has called a special meeting on Aug. 22 to consider, would be 2 percent of the rental receipts on rental cars less than 30 days and 1 percent of the room charges at hotels and motels in Wayne County. The deadline to put it on the November ballot is Aug. 27.

The proposed ballot language commissioners saw Thursday said the money would be used "to principally secure and fund county rentals" for a new professional baseball stadium to be developed with a new football stadium. The proposal also calls for the county to lease the baseball stadium from the stadium authority and then lease the stadium to the Tigers.

Wayne County Corporation Counsel Jennifer Granholm, who was taking calls on the proposal on behalf of the county last week, said no other details could be released as "negotiations are ongoing as we speak."

While some commissioners called it a "tourist tax," others raised concerns that such a tax would send visitors to neighboring counties to rent rooms and cars.

COUNTY NEWS

"I have no problem with putting the issue on the ballot to allow the people to decide," Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, said. The commission can put it on the ballot and then oppose it, she said.

"I think we're remiss if we don't allow the voters their right to decide if this is good public policy or not good public policy," she said. Beard also represents Garden City.

But the voter stands alone and can be overwhelmed by the forces that will come out in favor of the proposal, Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, said.

Wayne County doesn't attract too many tourists, but it does attract business people, he said. Communities such as Livonia, Northville and Northville Township, which are on the county border, could lose business to neighboring counties, he said. McCotter's district includes those communities and Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Commissioner Bruce Patterson, R-Canton Township, called the proposal another way to put up a barrier to visiting Wayne County. This type of tax sends the messages: "Don't come here unless you are prepared to pay a penalty," and "Come on over here so we can pick your pocket again," he said.

Commissioner Michelle Plawewski, D-Deerborn Heights, said she couldn't support putting it on the ballot in its present form. "I don't think raising taxes is the way to revitalize..." she said.

She said she would like to see information on how it would affect out-county hotels before voting on it. Plawewski's district also includes Redford Township and Livonia east of Middlebelt.

This isn't the first time the Lions issue has come up. In December commissioners approved a resolution supporting negotiations between the county executive and the Detroit Lions football team on a plan to build a new stadium in downtown Detroit.

BRIDGE WORK
The fixed restoration known as "bridge" may be used to fill in the gap left by missing teeth when no more than four adjacent front teeth or two adjacent side teeth are present. As its name implies, this restoration is patterned after a highway bridge in that it is supported by abutments, the healthy teeth on either side of the gap that anchor the bridge by virtue of crowns. Between them is the span of artificial teeth, or pontic. Both these artificial teeth and the abutment crowns should not only match the natural teeth in terms of shape and color, but they should also appear as if they are rising out of the gums. As a point of fact, though, the pontic should be barely touching the gums, allowing enough space beneath the pontic so that dental floss can be passed along its underside to keep it clean.
At LIVONIA VILLAGE DENTAL ASSOCIATES, we provide the best care possible by evaluating your needs individually. We'll explain our findings and recommendations, and together we'll choose your best treatment plan. Miller's work draws praise from Dole

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

SAN DIEGO — Four years ago, Candice Miller was an obscure suburban township supervisor running an uphill battle for treasurer of Macomb County.

This time Miller, now Michigan's secretary of state, spent an hour and a half watching convention proceedings on TV with presidential nominee Bob Dole and six other invited guests.

"I got word that the senator wanted us to join him at the Hyatt. It was a terrific honor," said Miller, who with her husband joined Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico and several assorted officials from across the country.

"He said, 'I heard you (deliver part of the platform), and it sounded good.' I chaired the part on environment and agriculture. I said, 'You wanted us to pass language about freedom to farm.'

"I got word that the senator wanted us to join him at the Hyatt. It was a terrific honor."

Candice Miller
secretary of state

"He really responded to Ford (former president) and to Colin Powell. I said we'd like to have him in Michigan." Dole replied, "He has promised to do that."

Miller credited Dole with a "laser focus" on issues and introduced her to the others as coming from "Reagan Democratic" country. Macomb County, though heavily Democratic, has responded to such social conservatives as Reagan and Pat Buchanan.

Miller's platform subcommittee produced a plank called "A Cleaner, Safer, Healthier America," opening with a 1995 quote from Dole on "love of God and country and family. Commitment to honesty, decency and personal responsibility. Self-reliance tempered by a sense of community."

It cited the agricultural and environmental achievements of previous Republican presidents: Lincoln and land grant colleges, Grant and the national park system, Teddy Roosevelt and the national wildlife refuge system.

The plank credited states for developing "brownfields" programs to return contaminated sites to productive use. It opposed diversion of Great Lakes water outside their watershed. It promised incentives rather than bureaucratic regulations to save endangered species.

It promised compensation for governmental "takings" for environmental legislation, equating regulations with socialism and communism.

It took the side of the timber industry and "families and communities in rural America who rely on public forests for the livelihood" and against environmental "elite special interests."

For farmers, the GOP plank:

- Took credit for Congress' "Freedom to Farm" act allowing world trade conditions to let farmers rather than federal regulator decide what they will grow.

- Pledged curb on federal debt, which soaks up scarce capital needed by farmers.

- Predicted environmental benefits. "The new law allows farmers to rotate crops, thereby reducing use of pesticides, herbicides and fertilizer."

at a "gala reception" of the Arab American Institute. Its purpose: "to promote community involvement in all phases of the presidential elections."

Those registering in the Republican State Committee office got a Northwest Airlines tote bag containing:

An Ameritech coffee mug with levered lid, a plastic soap jug, a bottle of Nature's Glo sunscreen, a Detroit Lions' key ring, Lions' decals from Big Boy, a stick of Stain Stick stain remover, three 10 percent coupons from Macy's, a box of Ryba's Mackinac Island fudge, cookie cutters in the shape of Michigan's two peninsulas from Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld, a convention souvenir tee shirt, a Detroit Tigers pin, and a penlight from MCI.

Also a Michigan Retailers Association beach bag with a Home Depot drink cup, Toys 'R Us coloring books, a Rite Aid tooth brush and disposable razors, Amway hand and body lotion, an Electric Ave. jackknife, two bottles of Arbor aspirin and a package of Maalox.

The media got their own goodies bags, at the convention headquarters, with an emphasis on printed matter:

Copies of Congressional Quarterly, New Republic (a liberal magazine with a highly unflattering caricature of John Engler in a gorilla suit on the cover), Investor Business Daily, the American Spectator, The Hill (a Washington paper), Human Events, two packages of Dole raisins, a Kraft macaroni and cheese dinner, a box of Hefty "one-zip" storage bags, a Budweiser beer mug, a vegetable and fruits cookbook for kids, three promotional floppy disks.

And a guide for reporters on what to do and how to get help if arrested.

General Motors provided a whole lot of vehicles, but the sheet of paper with the exact number got lost in the shuffle. GM was allowed to display a vehicle, with a sign denoting its official sponsorship, on the convention center tree lawn.

SHOPPING CENTERED

Behind the scenes: Somerset Collection manager Tom Miles (left) describes the action shoppers will find on the North side's third level - the family floor, while Malls & Mainstreet editor Susan DeMaggio takes notes.

Why all the fuss over the new Somerset mall?

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Have you been? Will you go back? What did you buy?

I've been covering the Coming of The Mall, since the ground-breaking two years ago. And whether you care to admit it or not, EVERYONE'S talking about it. You'd have to be from Mars if you didn't know that the city of Troy was getting Nordstrom, Henri Bendel's, a moving sky walk, and a new Hudson's that would be "just like the old one downtown."

Watching a modern tri-level shopping center rise from the cornfields and Christmas tree lots that once occupied the northeast corner of Big Beaver and Coolidge roads, has been an amusing curiosity for motorists and area residents.

I've overheard teens talking about crossing the sky walk, doctors inquiring about clinic space nearby, and transferees from the west coast counting the days 'til their beloved Nordstrom opened in Michigan.

I've listened to independent retailers voice concerns about the new shopping center's impact on their local business. I've reported on the "counter moves" by other malls to remain vibrant and competitive - Twelve Oaks' $10-million renovation over the summer, and Oakland Mall's new freeway pylon, due to debut on Aug. 28.

I've donned many a hard hat to check on construction progress at Somerset North. I've attended dozens of press conferences hosted by the developers, Forbes-Cohen of Southfield.

Why?

Why all the fuss about another mall? Because it's more than a mall.

The Somerset Collection is an architectural delight. A public town square. A new place to visit. Be seen. Acquire the finer things in life. Sample new tastes. See the latest innovations in the marketplace. View the creative work of designers and artists in galleries like Tiffany's, Neiman Marcus, Warner Bros. The Disney Store, Mont Blanc, Pottery Barn and Hear Music.

At the Somerset Collection you can walk. Work. Meet a friend. Slip away from the cares of the world in a climate-controlled, protected environment. Buy a comfortable, cool pair of shoes - on sale. Rejuvenate at a spa. Spend an afternoon with your sister.

Dare I go on?

During a recent promotional visit to Saks Fifth Avenue at Somerset Collection South, menswear designer Alan Flusser of Wall Street fame, strolled through the center amazed. The sky lights, 40-foot palm trees, mankato stone columns and marble floors are not your average mall building blocks.

"This is truly one of the most elegant, beautiful shopping centers I've ever seen, any where in the world," he told me. "I'm awed."

Wow.

I, too, as both a consumer and retail reporter, see the Somerset Collection as an inspiration.

The attractive homewares in stores like Crate & Barrel and Williams & Sonoma tempt me to expand my culinary abilities. The exquisite writing papers at Crane & Co. make it fun to surprise old friends with a letter. The special events that the mall schedules, plus the designer visits that the mall hosts, provide good copy for these pages. And the view from Nordstrom's Cafe over the bustling cityscape three floors below, simply makes me smile.

Oh, I know there's the money issue. After all, the mall was built to be profitable for its owners and tenants. But then again, I've inherited a wonderful attitude from my mother...

Whenever she bumped into dad with her arms loaded with packages from a day of shopping, she'd cut short his budget speech with the line:

"I'm doing my part to support the economy, dear."

You can borrow mom's line when you get home from the new Somerset Collection.

I did.

Nordstrom Troy: high expectations for store's success

Dan Nordstrom came to Troy last week to attend the opening of his family's first specialty fashion store in Michigan.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Dan Nordstrom, 34, co-president of Seattle-based Nordstrom and great-grandson of the company founder, told the Women's Economic Club, Monday night, that the new Troy store would become a "hometown store."

"We've got 40 underpaid buyers in this store who are forced to work on the sales floor on commission. They make sure they buy right for their Troy customers," he joked. "Other retailers have just a handful of buyers in a central location. We want this store to become a hometown store."

The club was invited to hear Nordstrom's comments during a pre-opening shopping event, the first for the new store, which doubled as the club's membership night, Aug. 12.

Nordstrom charmed the audience with tales of how the retail giant came to be, why Nordstrom plans to expand across the country, and how it succeeds, with sales of $4-billion in 1995.

"We have been working on coming here (Somerset Collection) for years and years before that moving escalator was invented that could link both sides of the mall together," he teased. "We're a family business which we keep growing and growing so all members can be a part of it."

Nordstrom said the business's success "is a classic immigrant story." His great-grandfather came to America from Sweden in 1901 with $5 in his pocket. He became a Minnesota coal miner and logger, then moved to Seattle to become a farmer.

"After a few weeks of moving dirt and clearing the land, he decided that he really hated it," Nordstrom laughed. "And took off to Alaska and the Gold Rush."

He returned to Seattle a few years and $20,000 richer, met up with his old friend the town's cobbler and the two decided to pool their resources in a shoe store. By the 1950s, Nordstrom had the largest shoe store in the nation.

In the 60's, looking to grow, the company bought Best Apparel across the street. Nordstrom was now a specialty fashion retailer. At the end of the 1970s, Nordstrom expanded into southern California and the rest is retail history.

"Now our growth is in the Midwest, in places with family and traditional values which mirror our company philosophy," he said. "We are an accountant's nightmare. We have far too much inventory for our stores and far too many buyers."

"We just have two rules - no gum; no stealing. We feel the freedom we give our sales associates stimulates creativity to serve the customer. Our service stories are legends. We hire the best people, then get out of their way."

Nordstrom said the company deals with 15,000 different vendors, compared to other retailers who may have 1,000 vendors at most. He said Nordstrom realizes that shopping "is a fun, social and recreational experience."

When asked how Nordstrom can expand and build new stores while other retailers are closing or merging, he responded, "We have a very conservative capital structure that has kept us stable in changing retail times."

He questioned the audience, "Do you have any idea how much a store like this costs to build? Well, it's lots and lots! So please, please, please shop here."

Club president Barbara Rom said while the Women's Economic Club does not endorse or recommend businesses, it was supportive of a company like Nordstrom that "recognizes women as full partners in business."

Maureen Monte, a club member, said Nordstrom left her with a positive feeling about the store.

"I'll be more likely to shop here because I enjoyed his sense of humor," she said. "He was fun."

Wallpaper library: Choices and designs by the thousands are at shopper's fingertips at the new American Blind and Wallpaper Factory in Plymouth. There's even a place for the kids to play while mom and dad peruse all the books and charts. New products and samples make retro looks in home decor stunningly modern.

New factory showroom springs from mail order decor business

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

It's been 10 years since Steve Katzman and his father Paul started their mail order American Blind and Wallpaper Factory in Farmington Hills, so the younger businessman decided to expand operations with the addition of a 30,000-square foot showroom at the company's headquarters in Plymouth.

Nearly 1,000 samples of blinds and a library of special order wallpaper books allow customers to choose from one of the largest selections of discounted name brands around.

"By listening to our customers after years of having 10 to 15 people a day visit the factory in hopes of seeing the merchandise first hand, we decided to open a factory showroom outlet. We also have a strong designer/builder trade who encouraged us," said Katzman, a third generation retailer whose grandfather founded Kay & Kay Tile with a staff of two people, two telephones and one 800 number in 1965.

A place to think

Visitors to the factory outlet, which opened in July, must sign in with the second floor receptionist and receive a name tag before proceeding to the showroom. Once inside, customers find wall coverings sporting styles from neoclassical to contemporary, and even some Amish-inspired. New self stick borders turn a child's room into a zoo, jungle, sports gallery or road rally, in a matter of minutes. Here, blinds aren't just hard window treatments, but fabrics that look like sheer curtains.

"New innovations keep blinds fresh. Materials are changing. Most of the new products are softer materials and they're very energy efficient because it's a honeycombed fabrication," said Katzman.

Quality/Discount Prices

Blinds manufactured by Levolor, Bali, Kirsch Del Mar, and Hunter Douglas, to name a few, and wallpaper lines by Brewster, Forbo, Gilman, Imperial, International, Rosedale, Wall Trends, Sanitas and Vymura provide customers with a vast array of brand name decorating materials.

As far as customer service, supermarket style home stores are no competition for American Blind and Wallpaper Factory staff who undergo three weeks of training in all aspects of buying blinds and wallpaper including whether to install blinds with inside or recessed mounts and how to choose coordinating wallpaper patterns and styles for interiors.

Phone help is available 18 hours a day from customer service representatives who handle more than two million inquiries annually. For those who want to do it themselves, American Blind and Wallpaper offers a free blind sample kit and wall covering catalog at the showroom or by phone request.

A brochure tells homeowners where and how to measure for blinds and wallpaper. Three to 14 days later merchandise, made to specifications, arrives at customers' homes.

"Deciding on and then ordering blinds and wallpaper is confusing for a lot of consumers. Instead, they hold off purchasing. We enjoy being able to fulfill this need in the marketplace."

Heir apparent

Katzman knows about home decorating. The 33-year old White Lake resident grew up in the family business. From the time he was old enough to calculate the number of tiles a customer would need to cover a kitchen floor, he was helping his grandfather and father at their stores.

In 1986, he and his father formulated the concepts for Mrs. Kay's Wallpaper, Blinds and More stores and the mail order American Blind and Wallpaper Factory when they recognized a boom in homeowners wanting to do it themselves. Although Mrs. Kay's is no longer in existence, American Blind and Wallpaper Factory survives in Plymouth. Paul Katzman serves as a marketing and advertising consultant for the company formerly located in Farmington Hills. Steve Katzman is president.

"I love the business and the interaction with customers," said Katzman who earned a degree in business from the University of Michigan and a law degree from Wayne State University.

An on-site research and development department tracks popular styles and home decorating trends.

Sante Fe Style

"Southwest is our best seller in earth tones and pastel colors. Customers are putting it in family rooms, living rooms, kitchens and bathrooms. In children's rooms it's used mostly as borders," said Katzman.

"The latest trend in windows is softer treatments with cellular pleated shades. And what goes around comes around. Back in the 20's and 30's two-inch Venetian wood blinds were popular. Now, they're back with sand-blasted finishes and decorative fabric tapes that enable you to accent blinds with a color matching your decor. Customers picking up on the Southwest theme are buying wood blinds."

Home Sweet Home

Just as trends recycle themselves, they also decline in popularity. Is Katzman worried that blinds and wallpaper will lose their appeal in years to come?

"People are doing more cocooning and putting more into their home. They're more into making a fashion statement and warming up the environment of their home. Draperies are not user friendly. Blinds, vertical or horizontal, allow you to let light in and control privacy," Katzman said.

The American Blind and Wallpaper Company is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Thursdays to 9 p.m.; Sundays noon to 5 p.m.

Look for the business at 909 Sheldon Road, just south of M. 14. Inquiries are welcome at (313) 207-5800.

Michigan blueberries are sweet as candy

The first time I picked blueberries was about 20 years ago. I was visiting friends in Muskegon, and was introduced to a relative of said friends, and noticed that his hands were dyed a glorious shade of blue. Upon further questioning, I was told that he had spent the morning picking fresh blueberries on Michigan's blueberry coast, the area between Benton Harbor and Muskegon.

He invited me to join him the next day, and I was amazed at how easy the blueberries were to pick. Prior to that trip, I had harvested blackberries and raspberries from their thorny canes, and had picked strawberries while crawling around on my knees. Blueberries, in comparison, were quite simple to harvest since most of the berries fall off their upright bushes easily when stroked with fingers.

Poor pickings

Unfortunately, there is good news and bad news for this year's Michigan blueberry crop. The good news is that the blueberries are as sweet and tasty as ever, but the bad news is that there aren't quite as many of them to go around this year.

Michigan growers are pointing their stained blue fingers at last year's nasty heat wave and drought, and this year's cold, wet spring. And, wouldn't you know it, Mother Nature's temperament is resulting in a 20-25 percent increase in retail prices. Michigan's crop is expected to be down more than 40 percent, compared to the five year average of 60 million pounds. Even though blueberry season will continue through Labor Day, expect to pay about $14 for a 10 pound lug compared to about $11 last year.

While my friend and I were out combing the bushes in search of the sweet blue globes, I couldn't help but quench my thirst of more blueberry knowledge. I was surprised to learn that backyard blueberry bushes invariably offer up a sweeter berry than those marketed in green grocers and supermarkets. The facts prove that blueberries, much like other fruits, are commercially picked and harvested when they just turn blue and are still firm. This is important to commercial harvesters in order to prevent damage to the berries during mechanical picking and transport. While you and I would think that a dark blue blueberry is fully ripe, blueberries usually turn from green to reddish blue to almost a deep blue-black two to three days before they develop maximum sweetness. Unripe blueberries do not continue to sweeten once they are picked. Backyard blueberry fanatics therefore are afforded the opportunity to allow the berries to ripen and sweeten on the bush for a few added days.

Like their cousins the strawberry, raspberry and blackberry, blueberries can be a bit finicky and should be washed and stored properly. I prefer to take fresh blueberries and place them in a colander and then immerse the colander in a sink of cold water. Leaves, unripe berries and debris float to the top. The berries float too, and can be scooped up by hand and given the once over for small little stems. Washed and picked over blueberries can then be placed in another colander to drip dry. Here's where potential problems begin.

Storage tips

For maximum storage, blueberries should be fairly dry, kept in a colander and placed in the vegetable crisper of the refrigerator. Air needs to circulate and placing them in a bowl or plastic bag will only increase their chances of getting moldy. Berries will keep for 3-4 days this way.

When I purchase a lug of berries, I wash, pick them over, allow to drip dry in a colander and then pour them onto a cookie sheet or baking dish. The entire tray then goes into the freezer and the berries are individually quick frozen and after three or four hours, can be dumped into a plastic freezer bag for labeling and extended freezing. These make great frosty treats for healthy lifestyles, and I've been known to grab a small bag from the freezer and enjoy them frozen while trying to keep cool on a sultry summer's eve.

The main reason I love them is that blueberries contain only about 40 calories per half cup serving and are rich in Vitamin C.

RIB-TICKLING SECRETS

Rub, Roast & Relax

BY LARRY JANES
SPECIAL WRITER

Last summer after I wrote about the secret to making great ribs, I received an inordinate amount of responses, indicating that you are indeed very hungry for more rib secrets.

Well, roll up your sleeves and pass the napkins because I'm going to explain the three R's for perfect ribs: Rub, Roast and Relax!

First off, to make good ribs you have to begin with good ribs. The folks at the Michigan Pork Producers Association claim that the best ribs are pork baby backs.

These ribs are cut from the blade and center sections of the loin and are known for having the most "finger meat" between the rib bones. Spareribs, which come from the underbelly or side of the hog, are the least meaty of all ribs, but they spare nothing in taste.

On the other hand, the meatiest type of rib are country style ribs, which are cut from the rib end of the loin. These pork ribs are favorites of rib fans who want enough meat to use a fork and a knife.

If you're planning on serving the gang, figure on a pound of baby backs or spareribs per person and no more than 3/4 pound of country style ribs to feed even the heartiest appetites.

No matter which ribs you rate as tops, the use of dry rubs that blend herbs and spices is the hottest grilling technique to come up from the South. Nearly unheard of five years ago, dry rubs add an incredible flavor without adding fat (and) calories. Rubs also allow the backyard barbecuer to go beyond traditional ribs and into a world of regional and international flavors. By combining favorite herbs and spices, you can create endless options for ribs.

Personal dry rub favorites include a Southwestern rub with a mixture of cumin, chili powder, garlic powder and oregano and a French flavor made by crushing together rosemary, thyme, pepper, bay leaf and all-spice.

If you don't own a mortar and pestle or a spice grinder, a small electric coffee grinder can be used; just remember to add a slice of white bread to the grinder after grinding the spices. When grinding up the white bread, the grinder will clean itself and will absorb 99 percent of the spice's flavor, therefore not affecting your morning brew.

The pros use dry rubs about two to three hours before the ribs even begin to hit the grill and then just before serving, the ribs can be doused with vinegar or other prepared sauces that add just the right amount of moisture. The dry rubs literally infuse into the ribs while roasting; if you think dry rubs are great on ribs, just wait till you try them on chicken, poultry and wild game.

The second and final secret the folks at the Pork Producers Association recommend

MICHIGAN PORK PRODUCERS ASSOCIATION

Take it slow: For the best flavor and tenderness, cook ribs slowly over low heat, and wait until the last 30 minutes of cooking to add sauce.

is to learn to Relax and to slow Roast the ribs. When cooking over coals and hardwoods, it's best to cook the ribs over indirect heat by banking the coals or wood around the edges of a covered grill. Gas grill owners should heat up only one side of their units and once again, slow roast indirectly.

Even if you have a grill, you can make these lip-smacking ribs in a standard oven. Just cook them in a roasting pan on top of a layer of vegetables at 350 degrees F. Grilled or roasted ribs will take about 1 hour and 45 minutes to cook.

You'll know the ribs are done when the meat wiggles from the bone when rattled by hand. Country ribs should cook about 15 minutes longer because they are meatier. Personally, I love to slather on some plain white vinegar with a small mop just before taking the ribs off the grill.

The ribs then should be wrapped in foil and placed in a heavy brown paper bag to sit and allow their juices to form for about 10-15 minutes before serving. If you love a sweetened homemade or bottled sauce, slather it on about 15 minutes before removing the ribs from the grill. The heat should caramelize the sugar in the sauce and make for great albeit sloppy dining ecstasy. Remember that sauces containing sugar will burn and are best slathered on last and then passed separately at the table.

So take some time to enjoy the day as the ribs slowly roast. For more ideas for great ribs, the Michigan Pork Producers Association offers a free brochure: Rib Revelations — A Guide to Heavenly Ribs. DOCTORED BARBECUE SAUCES

While rubs provide an easy way to add flavors, topping ribs with barbecue sauce is still a favorite among rib connoisseurs. Jenni Gordon, Program Director for the Michigan Pork Producers Association, recommends a simple approach to saucing up — doctor up your favorite store-bought bottled sauce with a variety of flavorful ingredients.

"By using bottled sauce as a base and adding ingredients like chili powder, orange marmalade and ginger root, you can build a better barbecue sauce," said Gordon. "You can also easily transform barbecue sauce into a glaze or dipping sauce."

Some spiced-up sauces Gordon recommends are:

- Ginger-Peachy Barbecue Sauce — In a blender container, blend thoroughly one 1 (16 ounce) can peach slices, drained, 1 cup of your favorite bottled barbecue sauce, 2 tablespoons grated fresh ginger root and 2 teaspoons ground black pepper.
- Orange You Glad You Tried It Barbecue Sauce — Mix together 1 cup of your favorite bottled barbecue sauce with 1 cup orange marmalade and 2-3 tablespoons prepared horseradish.
- Berry Good Barbecue Sauce — Mix equal portions of your favorite bottled barbecue sauce with whole-berry cranberry sauce.

BENZIGER FAMILY WINERY

Imagery Series links wine & art

If you've discovered Benziger Family Wines, but not their Imagery Series, then you've missed the most innovative and creative work from the winery, in California's Sonoma County. While wine-making is a craft, it is often void of inventive freedom.

Not so with the Imagery Series that doses the pleasures of premium wine with art's visual satisfaction.

"The Series is a coalescence of the arts," managing partner Mike Benziger (founder with his father Bruno of the Glen Ellen wine brand which he sold a few years ago) maintains. "It represents the grower, winemaker and visual artist." Tim McDowell, one of the Imagery Series artists, expressed his feelings by saying, "The art on the outside is best appreciated after consuming the art on the inside."

The Imagery idea ran upstream to spawn in 1986 in a serendipitous meeting between

See IMAGERY, 2B

Associate Professor of Art and Director of Sonoma State University Art Gallery's Bob Nugent and Joe Benziger, director of winemaking and also a managing partner.

Early on, the concept was to offer consumers an opportunity to purchase small lots of unusual wine with labels created by nationally-known artists. Nugent's own chalk pastel triptych of chardonnay grapes graced a three-bottle series of 1984 Imagery Chardonnay.

An "Acropolis Collection" represented the work of winemakers and 12 artists on the 1985 Imagery Series Cabernet Sauvignon and 1986 Imagery Chardonnay.

The Acropolis theme inspires all current artwork on Imagery Series bottlings. The idea and name originates from a Greek-style structure the Benziger's found dominating a hill on the ranch when they bought it. They have refurbished the amusing structure that they regard with great affection.

After the death of Bruno Benziger in 1989, Imagery Series took a new direction to focus on unique, esoteric and endangered grape varieties. Aware of small parcels of uncommon varieties such as inzolia, la grein, valdeguis, trousseau, grillo, viognier, aleatico and sangiovese, Benziger purchased these grapes and utilized them in the Imagery Series in the early years, rather than have them disappear in large blending batches.

These offbeat varieties targeted consumers with experimental tendencies who wanted something akin to a passport for exotic wines and their origins which either got lost or were replaced by chardonnay and cabernet sauvignon in the California wine boom of the 1970s.

Viognier and sangiovese are emerging varieties in the U.S. and no longer considered esoteric. But they remain part of the core wines in the Imagery Series along with malbec, cabernet franc, gewurztraminer, white Burgundy, petit verdot, nebbiolo, petite sirah, syrah, a late harvest riesling and zinfandel portfolio wine.

During the latter years of the Glen Ellen brand era, Imagery Series was a way for Benziger marketing to talk about something new, but sales personnel and restaurant wine buyers had difficulty with the unknown wine names and the continual label changes for each varietal.

It is interesting to note that Bruno Benziger did not like the Imagery Series.

He referred to it as "imaginary wines with imaginary sales" and is quoted by his son Mike as saying, "That program won't sell enough wines to physic a canary."

But Mike, convinced of the merit of such wines, stuck with the idea believing that there was a growing consumer base in the ABC (Anything but chardonnay or cabernet) Club.

Wines were made available through the winery for direct shipment. Today 5,500 cases of Imagery Series wines are on strict allocation and are in demand in savvy wine markets across the United States. Plans are to increase production to 20,000 cases over the next five years.

In 1993, Bob Nugent assumed Imagery collection curator duties. "It has been fun working on the series with the Benzigers," he said. "The project has been terrific for me because I enjoy working with the artists, and I am particularly pleased that the Benzigers decided to fund a travel collection."

Each piece in the collection has a crate and we will lend it free of charge to prestigious galleries or exhibitions in the United States.

Imagery Series Art-on-Tour is the largest show in the world with the single theme of wine. Some 45 to 60 works have traveled the U.S. and prints of selected works are available.

"As the Benziger Family Winery business grew, Imagery has become a bigger part of the picture," Mike Benziger concluded.

Add some zip to tasty, low-fat summer dips

Summer fruits and vegetables, fresh from the fields and orchards, are at their tastiest and most nutritious when eaten out of hand with little preparation and cooking. You can add new flavor and fun to nature's finger foods, without scrimping on nutrition, by supplementing nature's bounty with tasty low-fat dips.

Not only do kids and adults enjoy dipping and dunking food, but it's also an easy way to reach the minimum five daily servings of produce recommended for a healthful diet.

Cheese dip is a universal favorite that can be made rich-tasting without high-fat ingredients. Blend a cup of low-fat cottage cheese, a half cup of low-fat yogurt, a quarter cup of finely chopped red onion, 1 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin and 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon hot pepper sauce (to taste) for a smooth, creamy dip to serve with fresh vegetables like broccoli, cauliflower, mushrooms, peppers, carrots or celery.

Salsa is traditionally low in fat and chock-full of the phytochemicals and vitamin C found so abundantly in tomatoes. Make your own version by finely chopping the pulp of 2 tomatoes (seeds and juice removed), and mixing them with 5 finely chopped scallions, 2 very finely chopped hot peppers, 3 tablespoons fresh parsley, 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin and 1 teaspoon lime juice. Chill for three hours and serve with baked tortilla chips, low-fat crackers or celery sticks.

Plain low-fat yogurt makes a great base for creating dips, and curry adds a subtle flavor that complements many vegetables. Sauté a bunch of coarsely chopped scallions in 2 teaspoons oil with 1 crushed garlic clove and 1 teaspoon peeled, grated ginger root. When the scallions are limp, stir in 1 tablespoon curry powder and 1/4 teaspoon each of marjoram and thyme and cook for 1 more minute.

In a blender or food processor, mix 3/4 cup plain low-fat yogurt, 1/4 cup low-fat mayonnaise, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, and the scallion mixture until smooth. Refrigerate at least two hours in a covered bowl before serving, allowing the flavors to blend.

Humus, the popular Middle Eastern dip, can be served with raw vegetables or wedges of pita bread.

Mash the contents of a 15 1/2 ounce can of chick peas (garbanzo beans) and combine with 1/4 cup Tahini (sesame butter), 2 tablespoons low-fat plain yogurt and 1/4 cup chopped onion.

Season the mixture with 2 to 4 crushed garlic cloves, 1/2 teaspoon dried dill, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons water and pepper to taste. The dip should be thick, but you can add more water to achieve the desired consistency. The humus should be chilled and garnished with minced fresh parsley before serving.

HORSERADISH DIP

- 1 cup low-fat cottage cheese
- 1-2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 2 drops Worcestershire sauce
- 1/8 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

Puree all of the ingredients together in a blender or food processor until smooth and thoroughly mixed.

Serve immediately or refrigerate 5-10 minutes before serving.

Pair sizzling steak with vegetable kabobs

"Steak" your claim and taste what's heating up backyards this summer — versatile, delicious beef! Start a summer night sizzling with Steak 'N Seasoned Vegetable Kabobs.

In 30 minutes or less, discover a gold mine of flavor with nuggets of garden fresh vegetables grilled with tasty rib eye steaks. It's a rich find any forty-niner or family will love.

STEAKS 'N SEASONED VEGETABLE KABOBS

Total preparation and cooking time: 30 minutes
3 beef rib eye steaks, cut 1-

BEef INDUSTRY COUNCIL

Sensational steak: Steaks 'N Seasoned Vegetable Kabobs pairs steak with seasoned red potatoes and yellow squash.

1/2 inch thick (approximately 2 pounds)
2 teaspoons minced fresh oregano leaves
1/4 teaspoon ground red pepper
Salt and pepper to taste
Vegetable Kabobs:
6 small (approximately 1 pound) red potatoes, halved
2 medium yellow squash, cut into 1-inch thick slices
3 tablespoons butter, melted
2 teaspoons minced fresh oregano leaves

1 large clove garlic, crushed
Place potatoes and 2 tablespoons water in microwave-safe container. Cover, venting one corner, and microwave on HIGH 6 to 7 minutes or until barely fork tender, stirring once. Alternately thread cooked potatoes and squash on six 8-inch skewers. Combine butter, 2 teaspoons oregano and garlic; brush half of mixture over vegetables.

Meanwhile in a small bowl, combine 2 teaspoons oregano and red pepper; sprinkle on both sides of beef steaks; reserve.

Place steaks and kabobs on grid over medium ash-covered coals. Grill steaks uncovered 12 to 14 minutes for medium rare to medium doneness, turning occasionally. Grill kabobs 10 minutes, turning occasionally and brushing with remaining butter mixture.

Season steaks and vegetables with salt and pepper as desired. Carve steaks crosswise into thick slices; serve with vegetables. Makes 6 servings.

Recipe from the Beef Industry Council.

Olive oil enhances chicken

AP — Put away the frying pan! In the following recipe for Southern Oven-Fried Chicken, the chicken is baked, not fried. And for outdoor barbecues, Spicy Grilled Chicken is marinated in a white-wine sauce and basted while cooking.

SOUTHERN OVEN-FRIED CHICKEN

2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon onion powder
1 tablespoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon ground cayenne pepper (optional)
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
1 tablespoon honey
2 teaspoons salt
2 1/2 pounds chicken pieces
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
4 to 5 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
Preheat oven to 350 degrees F.

Beat eggs; add onion powder, paprika, cayenne powder, if using, vinegar, honey and salt.

Dip the chicken, one piece at a time, first in the flour, then in the egg mixture, then in the bread crumbs, then in the olive oil. Try to coat each piece evenly with all ingredients. Place coated chicken pieces in a baking dish. Bake in a 350-degree F oven for 45 minutes, turning halfway through baking. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Sights set high

Madonna has team capable of national title challenge

■With a formidable crew of returnees and a strong group of recruits, the Lady Crusaders could very well attain new heights.

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

The concluding week of the 1996 volleyball season could have been better for Madonna University's team, sure. But all things considered, the season was a spectacular success.

After all, the Lady Crusaders reached the NAIA National Tournament (where they were 1-3) for the second time in three years. And they did it despite a spate of injuries that would have crippled most other teams.

A shoulder injury that offensively strapped one of their best front-row players; a setter struggling with a knee brace while recovering from an injury; and two outside hitters sidelined for parts of the season with knee problems.

Still, Lady Crusaders' coach Jerry Abraham -- now entering his 10th season as coach -- was able to guide his team to a 44-14 record and Great Lakes Independent Sectional and Regional championships.

So here's the deal. If Abraham and his Crusaders could accomplish that last season, with all those problems, what will they be able to do with a healthy team that returns its 10 best players, including both the top blocker in the nation statistically and a first-team All-American?

It hardly need be said, but for the record, let's just say hopes -- and expectations -- are running high. The rest of the NAIA shares that feeling; the Crusaders are ranked 12th in the preseason national poll.

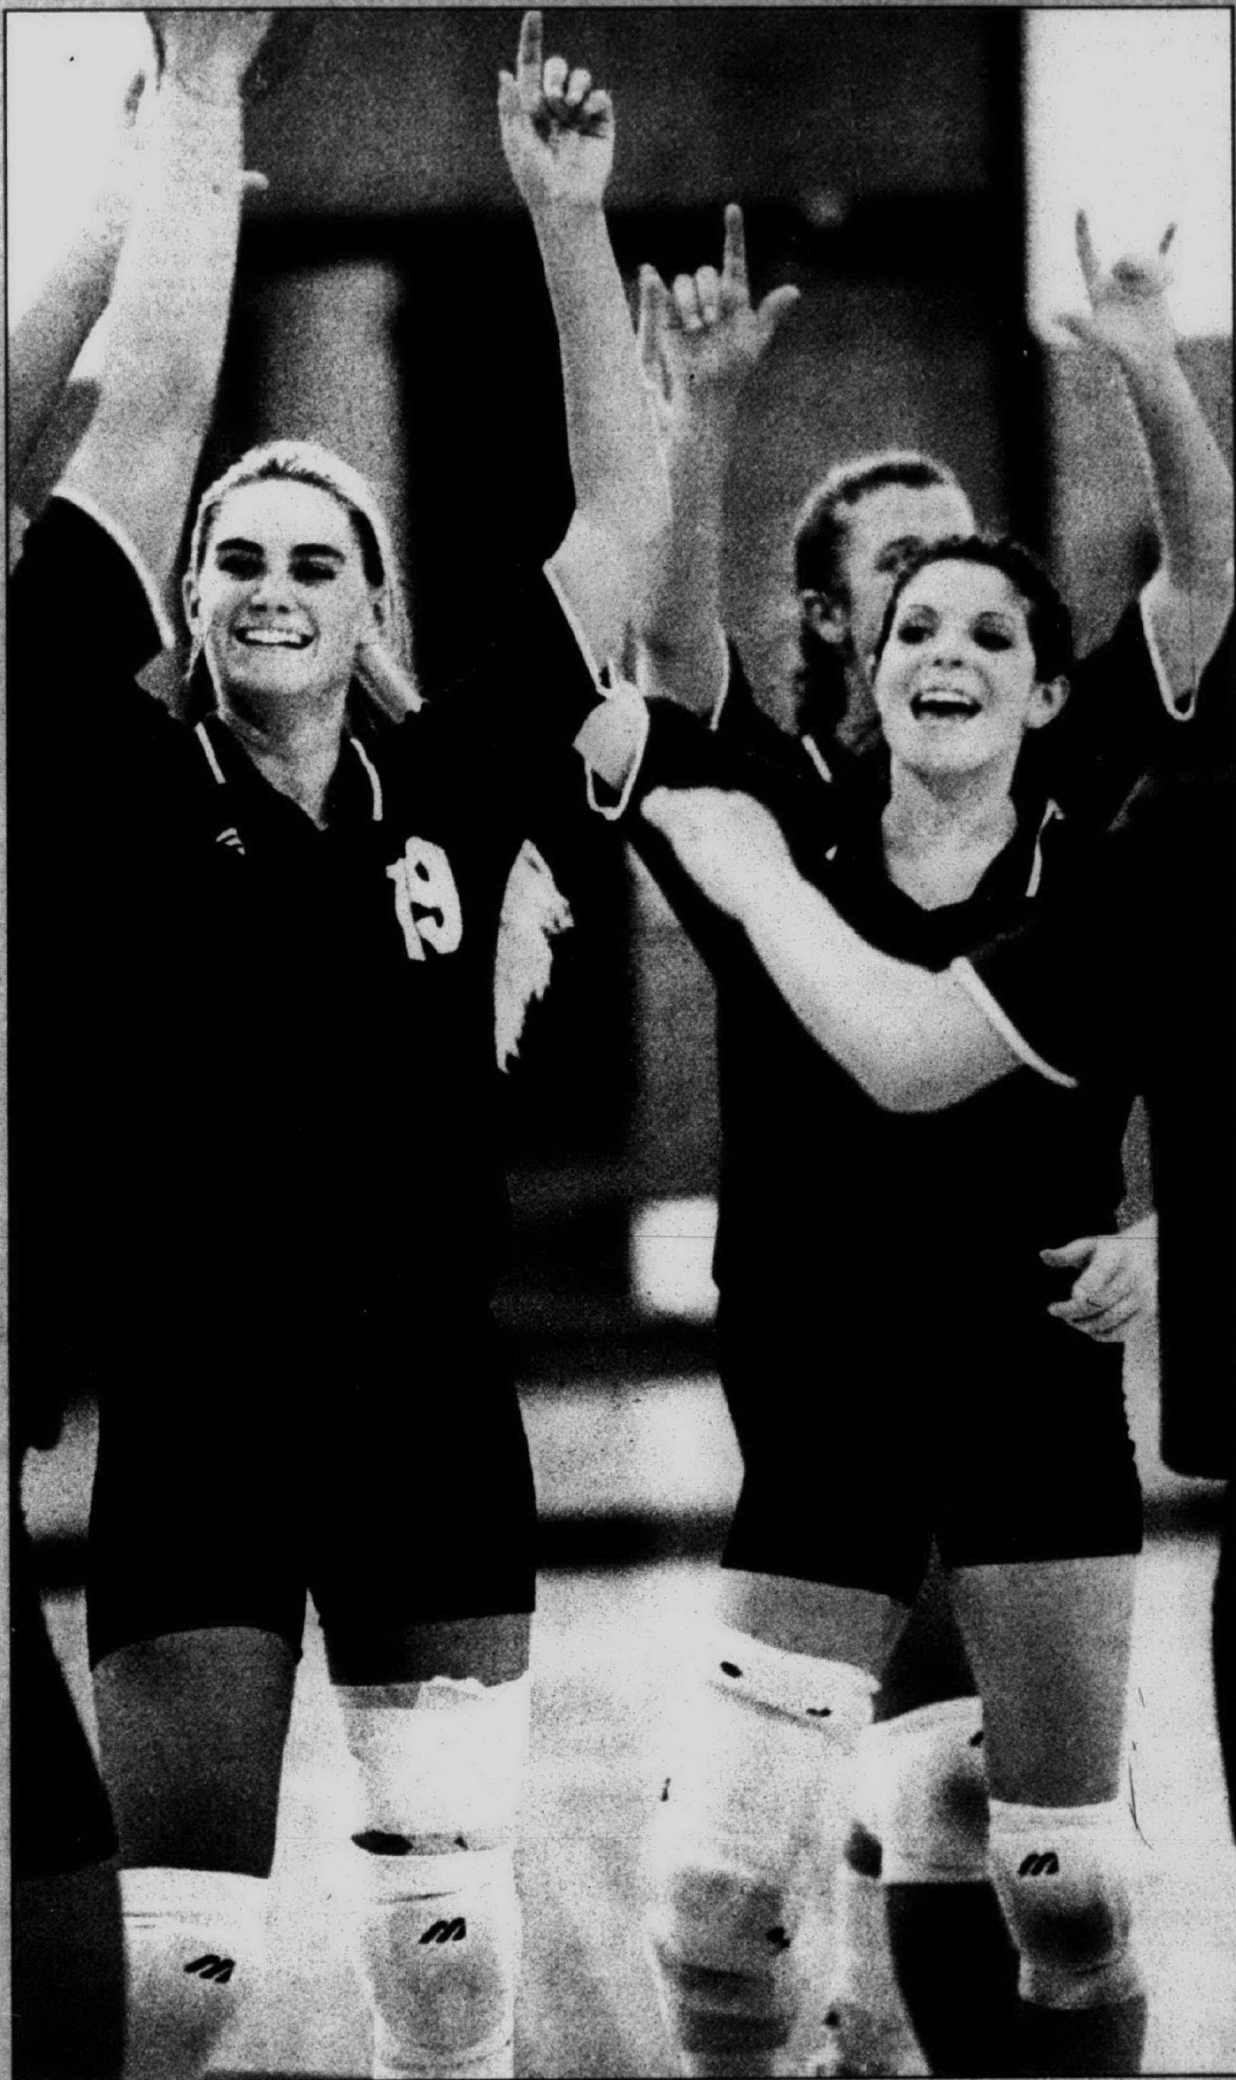

"I'd take this kind of team here any time," said Abraham, even after noting some of the outstanding squads (354-130 record in nine years) and players he's put on the floor. "We've had players as good, or better. But as far as flat-out depth at every position, this is our best team ever."

"I don't think there's any question about that."

The three players that assessment starts with are seniors Kelly McCausland, a 5-foot-11 middle hitter; Julie Martin, a 6-2 middle hitter; and Meg Paris, a 5-6 setter.

McCausland, a Redford Union graduate, was the team's glue last season. While Martin (from Livonia Stevenson) struggled with a shoulder injury that limited her effectiveness on offense, McCausland absorbed more and more of the load -- and did it well enough to earn first-team NAIA All-American honors.

Abraham said that Martin has returned to the form that made her

Skating club plans move to new arena

The Plymouth Figure Skating Club will relocate to the new Computware Arena in Plymouth Township on Tuesday, Sept. 3.

The club hopes to add programs to the private lessons in figure skating it now offers.

According to PFSC officer Carl Modetz, the club wants to install a wood dance floor and offer off-ice classes in conditioning, ballet, aerobics and weight training.

The increased offerings will include group lessons in basic skills (hockey and figures) to be taught by certified United States Figure Skating Association professionals.

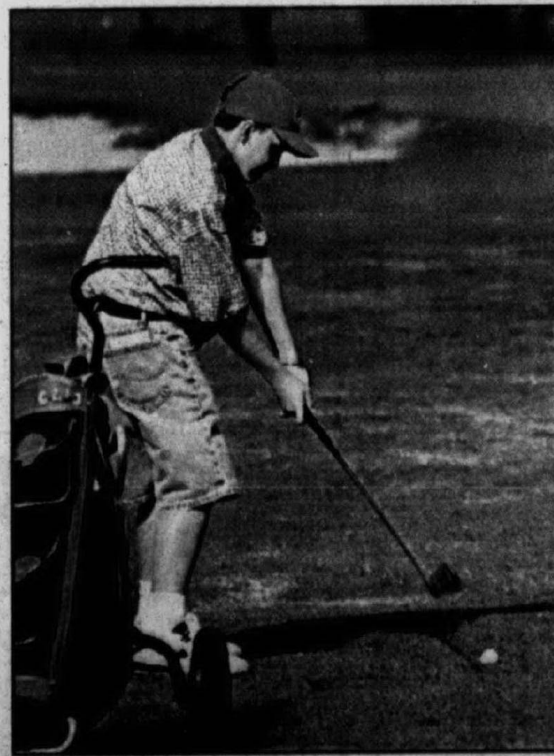

The club also hopes to bring the 1998 Midwestern Precision Figure Skating Championships to the new 4,000-seat arena.

"The facility gives us an opportunity to bid for those type of competitions," Modetz said. "The only other (arenas of that size in the country) are NHL and some college rinks."

The basic-skills class consists of one session per week for seven weeks at a cost of $35 overall.

The class will meet on Wednesday, but Steady play leads to tourney crown

Chris Tompkins counts Phil Mickelson as his favorite on the PGA Tour.

And judging from his performance Friday, Tompkins showed a Mickelson-like feathery touch around the greens en route nine-hole low round of 33 to lead the Boys 15-16 Division and all 132 competitors in the 17th annual Burger King Junior Tournament at Westland Municipal Golf Course.

"We're both left-handed and he seems like an easy-going guy who would be fun to play with," said the 6-foot-3, 180-pound Tompkins, who will be a sophomore this fall at Westland John Glenn High School.

He parred the first eight holes before putting a red mark on the 309-yard ninth, a birdie, to finish 1-under.

And although he is familiar with Westland Municipal, it was his first appearance on the course this summer.

"I was chipping well and making putts," said Tompkins, who counted only 12 strokes while on the green (with no attempt farther than five feet). "I generally use a gap wedge, which is in between such an offensive force at the net two years ago. Which can only be good news for Madonna and bad news for everyone else.

"She's really dominating at the net, really letting it go," he said of Martin. While the former Spartan struggled on offense last season, her defense was formidable -- she led the nation in total blocks.

Helping them reach their vast potential will be Paris' job, something Abraham is confident she is capable of doing.

"I can't say enough about her," he said of his second-year setter. "She's a great leader, great court sense, and also plays great defense. She's one of the best setters in the nation, no question."

"It's a coach's dream to have a setter and two middle hitters like this. And they have a great work ethic, too. Next year it's going to be tough to replace them."

That threesome gives Madonna a solid starting point. But what makes the Crusaders a national title contender is the remainder of the cast.

Others with experience that Abraham will be counting on are outside hitters Heather Steinhilber, a 5-10 senior, and three Monroe St. Mary's graduates: 5-10 junior Erin Comment, 5-8 junior Erin Gregoire, and 5-9 sophomore Karin Sisung.

"She has excellent hands, and is our best block on the outside," Abraham said of Steinhilber. As for the St. Mary's trio, "They're all competing for the two left outside hitter spots. They all give us great defense, and they're excellent all-around athletes."

Two others with some experience are Emily Marlowe, a 5-11 junior middle hitter who red-shirted last year and has sophomore eligibility, and 5-7 sophomore Jennifer Russell, a walk-on last year who ended up playing extensively as a defensive specialist.

Even though the Crusaders have lost three players Abraham had hoped would contribute this season -- junior outside hitters Vicki Toth (from Redford Union) and Nicole Scharrer, both recovering from knee injuries, and sophomore middle hitter Jaclyn Deane (Livonia Franklin), who quit for personal reasons -- the team's depth is still awesome.

The reason is three newcomers. First, there's Paula Dombrowski, a 5-10 sophomore middle hitter from Plymouth Salem who played last year at Henry Ford CC. "I can't tell you how happy we are with her," said Abraham. "She's a solid all-around player."

There's also a pair of promising freshmen who are capable of stepping in immediately and contributing: 6-1 middle hitter Stephanie Uballe (from Highland Lakeland HS) and 5-7 setter Deanne Helsom (from Grand Blanc).

Uballe brings a much-needed commodity: left-handed hitting, something Madonna has lacked. Helsom "has the ability to step in and play now. Meg's our starting setter, but (Helsom) is not a project, not at all."

It appears nothing on this team could be relegated to that category. With such an abundance of talent, most of it experienced at the college level, the ingredients are all there.

"This is an experienced team, with good balance," said Abraham. "We have the makings of a very special season."

Of course, as Abraham duly noted, his top regional competitors (College of St. Francis, Taylor University and Grace College) have strong squads, too.

"We have the kind of team that can do that," he said, referring to a trip to the national tournament. "But they have the kinds of teams that can do that, too."

Maybe. That's the difference between Madonna and its regional competitors: The opposition is reduced to hoping they'll catch the Crusaders on an off-day.

Instant help: Paula Dombrowski, a 1995 Salem graduate who played last year at Henry Ford CC, could help Madonna right away.

SC loses CC grad Hoener, but adds DePorres forward

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

It looks like Justin Hoener will get to bypass the junior-college ranks en route to his goal of playing basketball for a four-year college.

Hoener, a Livonia resident and recent Catholic Central graduate, was all set to attend Schoolcraft College until West Liberty State College in Wheeling, W.V., came calling.

Schoolcraft coach Glen Donahue released Hoener from his letter of intent so he could accept the offer from West Liberty State, an NCAA Division II school that finished 17-10 and in second place last year in the West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

All of the news on the recruiting front isn't bad, however, for Donahue. He has announced the signing of Detroit DePorres' 6-foot-5 forward Tymon Marshall, who played on Detroit DePorres' Class C state champion team.

Hoener was virtually ignored by Division I and Division II colleges after missing most of his junior year because of a broken leg and having an up-and-down senior season. But because of his above 2.0 grade point average and a 21 on his ACT test, he was eligible to play right away at a Division I or II school.

He was unavailable for comment Tuesday night.

West Liberty State assistant coach Dale Kuhl, interviewed over the phone Tuesday, said he heard about Hoener by accident about three weeks ago. The school is located near Wheeling, W.Va., about 5 1/2 hours from Detroit.

"I ran into an Akron assistant coach who saw him play when he was looking for someone else and he thought Justin was still available," Kuhl said. "He gave us his name and phone number, it was kind of a freak thing."

The West Liberty State staff was impressed with the five game films that Hoener's father sent and with Justin when he made an official visit shortly after their first phone conversation.

Hoener is 6-foot-2 and has the ability to play either guard spot, but he'll be used at the point, according to Kuhl.

"He's a very nice player, fortunately he was still available," Kuhl said. "He's a point guard that fits our system. Our head coach (Dan Petri) likes bigger point guards. We run a motion offense and our guards need to shoot the three, and he can do that."

Donahue is happy for Hoener and knew this could happen when he signed.

"When I signed Justin, I told him, 'You're a predictor (eligible to play right away). I feel you're a quality player and wouldn't stand in your way. But if you're going to a JC, I want you to go to Schoolcraft,'" Donahue said. "I left it in his hands. He obviously feels they're in a good situation."

"I thought he was a real good prospect. I'm from the school where a kid's really got to be happy, and wants to be there. I wish him the best. He's a good kid, got ability to play at high level Division II or Division I."

The loss of Hoener leaves Schoolcraft with four guards for the upcoming season: Returnee Dwaun Worrick, freshman recruits Pete Males (Garden City) and Tykie Reeves (Willow Run) and Stan Cavin (Dearborn Heights Crestwood), who sat out last year with a broken leg after playing the 1994-95 season for the Ocelots.

Donahue is excited about adding DePorres' Marshall to the Schoolcraft roster. He should especially help in the rebounding department for the Ocelots, who finished 9-21 overall.

"He made a lot of key plays through the years, was the glue that held them together this year," Donahue said.

He hopes to sign one or two more players before classes start.

"We're probably down to getting either a great player or a big man," Donahue said. "A couple kids are available that we're talking to. We've really got a good roster, we're strong."

details are being worked out for Saturday morning and afternoon sessions, too.

The program offers a small-class setting with a professional and additional practice time, according to Modetz.

a pitching wedge and a sand wedge.

"My short game had been so-so, not the best. But I've worked on my putting and chipping the most. I've been going to the driving range and I have a putting green in my backyard."

It was the third win out of 17 tournaments this summer for Tompkins, who finished three strokes ahead of Wayne Memorial's Jamison Beavers in the Boys 15-16 age category.

"I've shot 35 here a couple of times in practice rounds," Tompkins said. "It's probably the best nine I've played all summer. Sometimes it just happens. And once you get it going, you just get into a groove."

"The fifth hole (342-yard par-5) was tight. But once you get by that it was clear sailing."

This summer, Tompkins captured the Herb Fowler Memorial at Huron Hills in Ann Arbor and took the state Max-Fli Junior Qualifier at the Woodlands of Van Buren Township. Another highlight was an eagle when he chipped in from 40 yards out during a junior event last month at the Riverwood Resort in Mount Pleasant.

Tompkins' success can be attributed to slightly different mental approach to his game.

"A lot of kids my age aren't thinking about course management," he said. "You have to hit irons on certain holes whereas a lot of kids just think about hitting the driver all the time."

Tompkins is interested in a golf career.

"I'd like to try to get a college scholarship and get a good college education and go from there," Tompkins said.

Tompkins has already begun fall practice at Glenn. The Rockets are expected to be competitive in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"If (teammate) Craig Piscopink comes back we'll be a lot stronger, but he plays a lot of hockey for Computware," Tompkins said.

The Boys 13-14 winner, Ryan Shamrock of Westland, should also help Glenn immensely this fall.

He was tied with four others for first place at 39. The others included Tim Martin, Brandon Lombardi, Tony Fotiu and Jonathan Skope.

Shamrock won the tiebreaker based on the top two handicap holes, Nos. 5-6.

He and Fotiu each carded 4s on the par-4 fifth, while Martin, Lombardi and Skope each had 5s.

Shamrock, playing his first summer on the state Power-Bilt Junior Tour, won his first tournament when he took a 4 on No.

6, while Fotiu had a 5.

Westland golfers finished one-two in the Boys 11-12 Division.

Rich Sudak led the way with a 41, while Jeff Drys carded a 43. Only four girls participated in the tournament with Sandra Pavlo of Canton shooting a 50 to pace the field.

Winners received golf umbrellas and trophies. Runner-ups were awarded golf towels and trophies.

The annual Burger King Junior Tournament is put on by Stephen Polsinelli.

Tune-up time

Now is a good time to make certain of your equipment

TEN PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

Here comes the new bowling season. Are you ready for it? Most leagues will be getting under way within a few weeks. If you have not used your equipment over the summer, it would be a good idea to check its status.

If the ball doesn't seem to fit right, it sometimes is due to lack of your hand being used for this purpose for a couple of months. After a few games, your tendons will stretch out again and the slightly tight finger holes will loosen up (no, the ball did not change, your hand did). After a couple weeks of bowling, if the fit doesn't seem right, it's time to visit the pro shop.

It would be a good idea for all league bowlers to get out at least a few times to throw some practice games. Don't worry about the scores, the lane conditions could be totally different right now.

Just get yourself "tuned up" again for bowling, especially with the bargain rates you can find during August.

Look at the shoe situation, for if the sliding sole is worn out, it's time to get replacements. Better to do so in the pre-season than the middle of the season.

Another suggestion is to call your team members and make sure they are planning to bowl again. Some people just seem to disappear and then the team is left short-handed. Money-wise, sanctioning fees have gone up $2 more for men. The ladies stays the same at $10.50 per year while the men will be paying $12 this season.

•Expo Report: The 1996 edition of this event at Gibraltar North last weekend was not very good.

I would not go so far as to call it a "flop." Many consumers did attend, mostly all from the east side suburbs.

The numbers were down, there were few interesting attractions, just a few new products, and it has become pretty much a clearing opportunity for close-outs.

Ebonite's new ball, the "Wolf" looks like a winner. Storm Products displayed its line of balls including one called the "spare" which is designed to "go long, then go straight," according to Bob Hart of Storm.

Many of the older bowlers will remember Hart from his time in Detroit when he was one of the All-Stars and had won his share of titles locally and on the Pro Tour.

Storm also features some high-performance balls including the "Pacific Storm." DiLaura Brothers introduced a couple of new items to take away those pains from sore knees and elbows called "Band-it" and "Knead-it."

They will be available in most pro shops soon. The "Expo" itself needs some fresh new ideas and creativity to keep it going in the foreseeable future.

RUNNING

A dribbling fascination: Road race draws crowd

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

College basketball coaches might consider recruiting Dave Thurston.

All Thurston did was dribble a basketball for a 5,280 feet in 5:32 in the inaugural Main Street Mitral Mile held Aug. 11 in Ann Arbor.

On Thurston's heels in the basketball dribble was Jim Zander (5:33) and Wally Poupore (6:09).

The event, staged by well-known, highly-ranked runners Ann Boyd and Karen McKeachie, drew a field of 280. Runners competed in an age-graded and gender-graded mile, starting near the University of Michigan Stadium. Separate heats were held for 13 age groups, and all went off on time.

Overall winners in the prize-money race were Chris Lett of East Lansing for the men in 4:05, and Jasmin Kelly of Knoxville, Tenn. in 4:36.

Billed as a "Post-Olympic Party Dash," the event drew several Olympians; basketball players from U-M and MSU; and a big number of youngsters. That was the whole idea, said Boyd and McKeachie.

"We wanted to introduce kids to elite runners and to the sport of road racing," said Boyd. "Half our field was 14-and-under. We had a 3-year-old who ran a 10-minute mile, and a 91-year-old who finished in 17:30."

While Olympians including UM runner Kevin Sullivan of Canada and track's Keith Smith from the Virgin Islands participated and signed autographs, "It wasn't a race geared toward elite runners," said McKeachie. "The idea was to try to keep the everyday runner from being intimidated about running a mile. We wanted to make it a big, festive event, and it was."

Second in the Male Marquee Mile was Michael Michno of Ohio in 4:06. Third was Guy Murray, University of Detroit-Mercy cross country coach, in 4:08 followed by Kalamazoo's Brad Kirk in 4:09 and Ian Forsyth of Ann Arbor in 4:11.

Runner up in the Female Marquee was Karen Harvey of Ontario in 4:51, followed by Jenny Goodpaster, of Holland, Mich. in 4:55; Laurel Park of Ann Arbor in 4:55; Serena Fraser of Ann Arbor in 5:03; Mireille

Smith of Warren in 5:08, and Martha Piper of Jackson in 5:09. All won prize money.

In the age-gender handicap race, 51-year-old Wally Herrala was the champ in 4:07. Runner up was Kenneth Rowe, 49, in 4:19, followed by Andrew Godward, 20, in third in 4:29.

Sue Parks, 40, was fourth in 4:35, followed by Patrick Benedict, 30, in 4:37; Doug Andrews, 23, in 4:42; Harlan VanBlaricum, 56, in 4:42; James Bryant, 20, in 4:43; Manny Sanchez, 38, in 4:43, and Robbie Linkner, 19, in 4:43.

CARReport

Miata is for those who crave fun, excitement

By Anne Fracassa
Avanti NewsFeatures

I look forward to one special week every summer. The week is usually filled with lots of sunshine and perfect weather.

It's also the week I do a lot of driving — and smiling. It's the week I schedule a drive in the Mazda Miata.

I smile a lot because that's what this car makes me do.

The exhaust tone. The open-air driving. The headrest-mounted speakers.

The way it can just whip around corners, take off from a dead stop in a flash and how the thing just seems to shift itself.

This is a car from heaven. This is a car I would buy in a heartbeat.

The problem is, it's not practical for me, a married gal with a couple of kids. It would be too hard to explain to the second child why you're leaving her behind all the time.

When I pulled into the drive, my 4-year-old screamed, "Mommy's got the Miata!!!" Even she knows how much I love this little marvel.

For 1996, Mazda added a bit more power to the MX-5 Miata, increasing its horsepower to 133. With the added horsepower comes more torque as well — 114 foot pounds.

ROAD TEST
By

still came out to under $24,000. Base price is just $18,450. No wonder it's the best-selling sports car on the market.

I can't get past the fact that this car is so much fun to drive. Its rear-wheel-drive format puts this 2-seater in a class by itself.

The Miata is outfitted with a race-bred 4-wheel independent double-wishbone suspension that puts each wheel in contact with the road surface. That allows superior roadholding and stability. Front and rear stabilizer bars are incorporated to reduce body roll during quick cornering.

Standard this year are dual airbags. That means an infant in the passenger seat is a no-no and all kids must be belted in securely. There isn't an on/off switch for the passenger airbag — yet.

Also standard this year are an AM/FM/cassette/stereo, rack and pinion steering and 4-wheel disc brakes. The front discs are ventilated for superior heat dissipation and a 3-channel anti-lock braking system is available as an option. Power assist is also on the optional equipment list this year.

New for 1996 are door-mounted armrests, overhead interior lights and a cargo area light. The trunk space is very limited. Little more than the tonneau cover fits back there.

There are only three packages available on the Miata: The performance-oriented R package, the Popular Equipment package and the Leather package.

The R package gives you a limited-slip rear differential, alloy wheels, sport suspension and an aero kit featuring front and rear spoilers and a lower rear skirt.

The Popular Equipment package includes power steering, leather-wrapped steering wheel, power mirrors, power windows, cruise control, headrest speakers, power antenna, alloy wheels and limited slip differential.

The luxurious Leather package adds a tan interior, leather seating, tan vinyl top, premium sound system that includes a compact disc and upgraded speakers.

One thing happened that wasn't expected during the 1996 test drive. On one particularly bumpy paved road, the headrest speakers cut out. I consider it an isolated fluke.

There's some really frivolous stuff you can get on the Miata, like racing stripes, rear deck rack, front mask, rear spoiler, aero kit, tonneau cover, CD changer, fog lights and stainless-steel scuff plates.

If you truly crave fun, open-air driving and a really quick puppy to get you around town in style, the Miata is your car. What a great car.

1996 MX-5 Miata

Vehicle class: Two-seat convertible.

Mileage: 23 city / 29 highway.

Where built: Japan.

Base price: $18,450.

Choosing a Repair Shop A Checklist

Here are some tips from the non-profit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) on finding a good repair establishment:

- Start shopping for a repair facility before you need one.
- Ask friends and associates for recommendations; consult local consumer organizations.
- Arrange for alternate transportation in advance so you will not feel forced to choose a shop based solely on location.
- Look for a neat, well organized facility, with some vehicles in the parking lot equal in value to your own and modern equipment in the service bays.
- Look for a courteous staff, with a service writer willing to answer all of your questions.
- Look for policies regarding labor rates, diagnostic fees, guarantees, acceptable methods of payment, etc.
- Ask if the repair facility specializes or if it usually handles your type of repair work.
- Look for signs of professionalism in the customer service area such as civic, community, or customer service awards.
- Look for evidence of qualified technicians: trade school diplomas, certificates of advanced course work, and certification by ASE.
