Police chief to retire in June

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry told township trustees on Tuesday he is retiring.

Berry, 56, the township's first police chief who formed the township department in 1983, said he would retire sometime before the end of June. "I will be working with you to establish a selection process for the next chief of police and to ensure a smooth transition in the police department," he said in a letter to trustees. "Starting the police service, working with township residents, police officers, township employees and watching the township grow has been one of the highlights of my life," he said.

"Finding myself in conflict between spending time as a police officer providing service to residents and accomplishing a personal goal indicates it is time to make a decision," he said.

Berry told the township board Jan. 28 he was becoming a partner in a Harley Davidson motorcycle business, on Telegraph Road in Taylor. He said Tuesday he'll start that job July 1.

Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy told board members Tuesday, "We are in the process of putting together a list of search firms that specialize in police searches."

She said once the list is made, a report will be presented to the board.

"The chief has graciously agreed to be flexible with us so he can assist with the search process," McCarthy said, adding Berry will stay as late as the end of June, if needed.

"I will work with the board and the township, it's been my first priority, it always has and always will be," Berry said. After serving in the military police in the U.S. Air Force, Berry joined the Plymouth city police as an officer in October 1962. Rising through the ranks, he served as city police chief from 1980-83, when he accepted then- township supervisor Maurice Breen's offer to create a township police department. Johnson Controls closes plant; strike continues

Here's one way to avoid labor strife - close down the plant and move production equipment elsewhere.

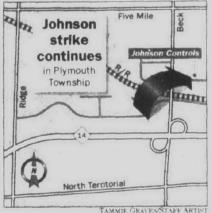

That's what some observers said began happening Monday, after Johnson Controls in the span of roughly 24 hours loaded and sent packing about 20 semi-trailers from its car seat plant off

Could Northville's popular Genitti's Hole in the Wall restaurant and dinner theater be coming to Plymouth?

"Tve had some contact with John Genitti. He may be interested in expanding in the city in the future," Downtown Development Authority Director Steve Guile told DDA members at their monthly meeting Thursday.

DDA members said some potential building sites around downtown Plymouth could include the lot west of the post office on Penniman; the parking lot across the street from this site, now used by a law firm; or the empty lot just east of Venture Outdoors on Penniman.

"We talked about all those sites in the city," Guile said.

"I don't think he's that active in the sense of acting right away," Guile said, adding, "It was more of an exploratory meeting."

"That is the type of business we'd like to see in the downtown," Guile said. "It offers entertainment as well as dining."

But there could be stumbling blocks to establishing such a restaurant here.

DDA officials agreed that existing vacant or soon-to-be vacant sites downtown were probably too small.

But some downtown landlords say they don't want restaurants on their properties - even though downtown business leaders say having more restaurants is crucial for a long-term healthy downtown.

Genitti's Hole in the Wall features seven-course family-style dinners with soup, bread, antipasto salad, chicken, Italian steak, Italian sausage vegetables and dessert.

Diners are seated at large tables, sometimes joining other parties, and dinner theater or comedy shows are presented on weekends.

Some DDA members said the rent for Genitti's current Main Street location is going up, and they speculated he could be seeking to move elsewhere.

Some Plymouth and Canton classic car buffs say there's plenty of reasons to love the Autorama, running Friday through Sunday at Cobo Center.

"We have a lot of fun just hanging out and partying, going down to Greektown," said Rick Bracken of Plymouth. He'll be showing his 1969 Shelby Ford fastback.

"I don't even know what the prizes are going to be, I just want to show my car," said Fred Kirschweng of Canton. He'll show a 1956 Chevy sedan.

The show fet ures "Baywatch" TV star Gena Lee Nolin from 1-4 and 6-9 p.m. Saturday and NASCAR Winston Cup champion driver Brett Bodine from 7-9 p.m. Friday.

David Norgrove of Plymouth said this will be his first Autorama. He's showing a hand-built 1955 Porsche Spyder.

Cafe Bon Homme listed in the top five

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

It's only fitting that as Cafe Bon Homme proprietors Greg and Susan Goodman celebrate their 11th year in business, the restaurant is highly recognized for the second consecutive year in one of America's most definitive guides for restaurants.

The Zagat Survey of America's Top Restaurants, lists Cafe Bon Homme on Penniman in the top five eateries in Detroit. Bon Homme shares the bright lights with some of the Detroit area's most revered restaurants including, The Lark, Golden Mushroom, Opus One and Zingerman's Deli.

"I think it solidifies our position in the industry and within the region," said Greg, former owner of McKinnon's restaurant in Northville. Cafe Bonne Home was started in 1986.

The book represents a compilation of the best restaurants selected by thousands of local Zagat Survey participants. The Zagat Survey describes Cafe Bon Homme, which features French cuisine, as:

"The 'lovely' country French ambiance of this Plymouth 'special occasion' place is matched by classically based Contemporary French cooking that most judge 'outstanding.'" Zagat's also lists Cafe Bon Zagat's also lists Cafe Bon Homme's food as extraordinary to perfection; its decor as very good to excellent and its service as very good to excellent.

Zagat bases its ratings on surveys that are sent to diners. "This is supposed to be much more objective," Goodman said.

If Zagat sends diners to restaurants around the country for its rating, "they wouldn't tell us. But we kind of hold our breath when the new edition comes out. Throughout the industry, it's recognized as a premiere survey," he said.

Strategies eyed to improve scores

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITE

Monitoring classroom teachers and integrating computers into the curriculum are two of the strategies Plymouth-Canton chool officials are recommending to help improve scores on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test

Scores were down from last year on the standardized math and reading tests taken by tourth- and seventh-graders.

"We've exceeded the state averages, but we believe we can do better, and that is our goal." said Patrick O'Donnell, assistant uperintendent for instruction. We just need to figure out what the missing links are. It's going to require the involvement of vervone

O'Donnell and Verna Anible. director of instruction, gave the Board of Education their assessment of district scores and the 180 pages of MEAP data they received from the Michigan Department of Education

Among fourth-graders, 66.6 percent of students achieved a satisfactory rating in math; while 57.1 percent were ranked satisfactory in reading. Last year,72 7 percent of fourthgraders were rated satisfacory in math, and 58.2 percent in reading

Among seventh-graders, 65.3 percent of students scored in the satisfactory range on the math test. In reading, 50.3 percent of seventh-graders were rated satisfactory In 1995, 70.6 percent of seventh-graders were rated satisfactory in math, and 54.2 percent in reading.

O'Donnell and Anible want to focus on specific schools, namely Hulsing. Smith and Tonda elementaries, where scores dropped 10 points or more in math and//or reading.

"The state says we should pay attention to ranges (from one

"We'd like to see something more like Fiegel" where scores changed little from 1995, he said

Anible and O'Donnell pointed out that comparisons aren't always valid, because the test changes "From year to year, kids read different stories and solve different problems," said Anible.

We're trying to make comparisons with different kids and different cut-off scores," said O'Donnell.

"We need a method of compiling data to give us much more than we can extract from this test," he said. "We're encouraging districtwide assessment. We're woefully short on diagnostic and achievement data to assist us in planning academic programs for some students.'

Said Anible: "We don't mean to criticize those who decided to get away from standardized testing, because they were testing basic recall information. At the time, it was an appropriate decision. Recently, however, "test companies have been scurrying to develop better tests," she said.

The good news, said Superintendent Charles Little, is that this year's seventh-graders test-

Waiting game: At 6:15 a.m. Sunday, strikers try to stay warm and wait for the arrival of trucks that moved production equipment from the plant to another site.

The strike forced Ford on Friday to shut down truck assembly lines in three plants - the Michigan Truck Plant in Wayne and two Ohio plants.

Ford spokesman Bert Serre said Monday that Ford had decided to have the Johnson Controls parts moved to Ford's Chesterfield Township trim plant, and to Lear Corp., another seat maker. Both facilities employ UAW workers.

"Chesterfield is already building front seats, JCI will be supporting Lear and Ford as we build seats, Lear will be accepting the Johnson Controls parts," Serre said.

The drivers swung trucks past about 30 striking UAW members Sunday at 2 p.m. Looking on were 20 police in riot gear brandishing batons.

As the trucks got ready to leave the Johnson Plant, strikers circled in the driveway, holding picket signs and shouting "No scab seats" and "UAW."

But after a few minutes, union members used lengths of wood to move aside barrels where fires burned to warm picketers. Men and women on the picket line also moved aside to let the trucks pass

Eying riot police, UAW Local 845 President Roger Caldwell said, "We did what we had to do, we're totally outnumbered."

One Plymouth Township official said the company was moving production equipment from the Plymouth Township site and closing the plant. Caldwell said, "That's the rumor, I can't see Johnson Controls being that stupid, it jeopardizes their relations with Ford Motor Company."

(P)A3

Johnson and the UAW met briefly Monday, their first meeting since a negotiation session Thursday. On Tuesday morning, no further talks were scheduled.

With the strike at Johnson now in it's 10th day, Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy said police overtime costs are not yet a concern, as the officials anticipate this when preparing the annual budget.

She said police costs related to the strike would be reviewed with monthly department reports.

"I'm sure there's a lot of mind games being played, we don't know what the intention is," Caldwell said Sunday, as the red and white CFI trucks left the Johnson facility.

"The biggest misconception out there is that we forced Johnson Controls workers to join the union," he said. "What we asked is to allow workers to vote yes or no, this is still America. If they vote 'no, I don't want a union,' then have a nice life,' he said.

Industry observers say the Johnson Controls strike here has national implications for the UAW and its ability to organize the growing number of suppliers to the auto industry.

Some Plymouth plant workers said the union is seeking hourly pay increases to $14 from the current $9.50 to $10.50.

Getting ready: Police officers in riot gear march to the plant entrance. They stood by while truck, loaded with equipment, left Johnson Controls.

Picketing: Trucks loaded with production equipment wait to leave the plant as UAW members demonstrate.

Congressional agenda

Budget, campaign reform key issues for Rivers

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK

Congresswoman Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, believes balancing the budget and reforming campaign finance top the 1997 Congressional agenda.

Rivers began her second twoyear term in January, representing Canton and Plymouth townships, Garden City, Plymouth, Westland, a portion of Livonia and 15 other communities in Wayne and Washtenaw coun-

Rivers met with reporters Friday at her office in Wayne to discuss Clinton's State of the Union address he gave three days earlior. Rivers expects to focus on ampaign finance reform with the public at a yet-to-be-schedaled "issues roundtable."

"I think (campaign finance reform) will be one of the biggest issues in Congress," Rivers said. Last year Rivers opposed a bill introduced on campaign finance reform and cited last week by President Clinton.

"But I made a decision to support it this year, because I think we need some changes," Rivers said. "I think it will take a compromise from all parties.

Rivers wants to see Congressional members end the use of staff people for campaigns.

Balancing the budget is another goal of Congress, Rivers said. Changes in the tax laws will be discussed. Rivers expects legislation will address economic dis-

Rivers has added the "issues roundtables" and gatherings at coffee shops to meet with the public and help her constituents. Rivers said her caseload increased from 423 in 1995 to 648 in 1996.

The roundtables will feature officials representing both sides of an issue to discuss and exchange ideas. Another "roundtable" may focus on air bags

The Michigan Congressional delegation also will be watching landfill issues, particularly with Michigan landfills designated to accept trash from Canada.

Meeting set on budget issue

U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, has scheduled a meeting to discuss the issue of a balanced budget amendment from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday, March 1 in Sterling Silver Restaurant, 62 Ecorse Road, just south of Michigan Avenue in Ypsilanti.

Anyone who has questions or concerns about a balanced budget amendment is welcome to attend. Anyone who would like to receive information that has been prepared should call or stop by Rivers' district offices in Wayne at 3716 Newberry (313) 722-1411, or in Ann Arbor, 106 E. Washington (313) 741-4210.

said trash is international trade and (the ruling says) states can't infringe on international trade,' Rivers said.

Congress is expected to discuss the issue, but "for reasons I don't understand, there has been a reluctance to do that," Rivers said

Congress has started slowly, Rivers said, with only three or four sessions conducted since Congressional members were inaugurated Jan. 7.

"While there is a lot of talk of moving beyond bipartisanship and working together, there still are some lingering battles. I thought the battle with (Speaker of the House Newt) Gingrich created more." Rivers expects to attend a bipartisan retreat in March, as Democrats and Republicans are scheduled to discuss their differences and how they might work on getting along better.

Rivers discussed other national and international issues:

On Clinton's plan to increase aid to $2 billion to Bosnia, Rivers remains skeptical about U.S. involvement in that region.

Rivers opposed sending troops to the war torn region last year because she feared U.S. troops would remain for an indefinite period and lives would be lost while no peace was negotiated.

While peace still remains elusive and free elections have not been conducted yet, American troops have not been involved in battles and peace is cautious and tentative, at best.

"That didn't happen so far," Rivers said. "I'm not sure if it will continue, but I was pleased that I was wrong. But I don't know if that (area) won't erupt."

On the Republican's Contract with America: "We may see an incremental provision of that (contract)," probably focusing on torte reform

airport noise programs BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

President Clinton has proposed that $143 million for noise mitigation programs at U.S. airports should be slashed to $23 million, a move that may affect a similar program at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport.

Lawmaker opposes

Clinton cuts to curb

Clinton outlined the cut in his proposed budget in a move directed toward curbing federal spending and ultimately balancing the budget by 2002.

But the cost-cutting measure certainly could affect a $133 million noise mitigation plan, a program designed to curb noise through the purchase of property and insulating homes to soundproof them.

Wayne County obtained a letter of intent last year from the Federal Aviation Administration that guaranteed $5 million each year for the next seven years for noise mitigaa Congressional spokesperson said.

That will give it some weight during Congressional budget hearings. The president's proposals are preliminary, and much of what he proposed will be revised by Congress before this year's budget is approved.

The cut could be offset by increases in taxes on airline tickets.

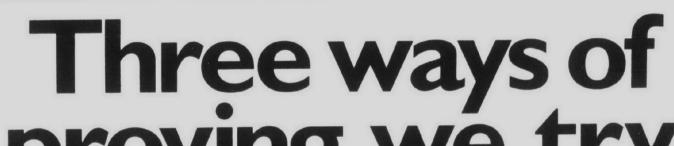

The noise mitigation cut concerns Congresswoman Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor. Her district, the 13th, includes Canton and Plymouth townships, Garden City, Plymouth, Westland, a portion of Livonia and 15 other communities in Wayne and Washtenaw counties.

"That is completely unacceptable," Rivers said.

As of January 1996, Wayne County has spent more than $23 million on noise mitigation with 80 percent coming from the Federal Aviation Administration and 20 percent from a building, and establish policies and procedures and hiring practices, a basic philosophy. We had to go out to do all training of officers," Berry said.

The department opened in August 1985 with 10 fulltime and 12 parttime officers. Now there are 24 fulltime officers.

On advice for a new chief, Berry said, "You should always keep the community and the people in the community first, always listen and be open for what they say.'

'I've always been very proud of officers in both departments, when there has been a crisis they have responded with the utmost professionalism," Berry said.

Asked to detail any scary moments on the job, he said, "It's hard to pick one out, guns have been pointed at me over the years.

Berry recalled one time in the late '80s when he was called to deal with an oversized German shepherd that had been attacking people in a township mobile home park.

"It had to be disposed of, I won't say how I did it, it's gone it will never testify against me," he said.

The township department in the late '80s also investigated reports that a panther had been spotted near mobile home parks on the township's west side. We did have prints of where the cat had been out there, a gentleman from the National Federation of Wildlife told us it was here," he said. The panther was never found.

"I've been riding motorcycles most of my life, I always wanted to get involved in a dealership.' Berry said. "It's a challenge and I love challenges." Township developer Bob DeMattia is his partner in the venture.

Berry also thanked his wife Lucy and their three children for their support during his police career.

Deal made for elementaries

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

After weeks of haggling, a compromise has been reached concerning overcrowding at Bentley and Hulsing elementary schools

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education voted to buy or lease six portable classrooms for the coming school year - one for Bentley; four for Hulsing; and one for Gallimore Elementary School.

Under the one-year plan, enrollment at Bentley and Hulsing will be on a first-come, firstserved basis. When enrollment exceeds the target at Bentley, students will be sent to Hulsing. When Hulsing is full, sutudents will be sent to Gallimore.

Because of greater-than-anticipated enrollment, siblings have been separated and assigned to Bentley and Hulsing, which has upset many parents.

Dave Rodwell, executive director of research and technology, said the citizens' housing committee approved administration's recommendation with one change. Instead of placing two portables at Hulsing and two at Gallimore, the committee suggested placing four at Hulsing and one at Gallimore. The arrangement would allow families to keep siblings together at Hulsing only.

Students in new subdivisions Central Park and Fairways West south of Cherry Hill and west of Beck Road - will be reassigned from Hulsing to Gallimore Ione Skaggs of Canton is among the parents whose children are separated, but will be reunited next year.

"I thank you for not increasing class size," she told the board. That is the last thing anyone wanted. Now that these proposals have been accepted, can we take this to the bank? We have been made promises in the past that have been reneged upon.'

Board president Mark Horvath said, "It's as certain as any other board decision. It would take board action to change it.'

Should the $79.7 million bond issue pass in March, the attendance boundary changes will remain in place.

The bond issue would finance the building of a new high school and a new elementary school.

Robert Jones, finance committee member and former Plymoth mayor, asked about contingency plans. "This is just a one-year fix. We need a two-year fix. Heaven forbid the bond doesn't pass. Do we have a plan or the beginnings of a plan as to how we'd proceed without a new high school and without an elementary

If the bond proposal passes, said Superintendent Charles Little, "It will be at least two years until an elmenetary school opens and three years until the high school opens." said Little. "There will be some rough times ahead for everyone.

If the bond fails, a stakeholders' committee would be formed after the election to help decide what to do, added Little.

Publish February 13, 1997

Board vice president Michael Maloney expressed concern about how the recommendations were brought to the board. "The (superintendent's) cabinet (of administrators) changed the recommendations of the citizens housing committee. In the discussion at the last meeting, I was under the mistaken impres sion that a consensus had been reached, when it fact it hadn't. I don't think it's inappropriate for staff to change recommendations, but we should have circled back to the committee prior to coming back to the board."

The only other change school officials made to the committee's recommendations was to substitute the words "target enrollment" for "enrollment caps" in the policy.

"When you have firm caps, you take away any flexibility to put students where they will best be served educationally," said Errol Goldman, assistant superintendent for employee relations. What we have are targeted areas, but not firm caps.

Little supported the idea. "If you take the policy of capping buildings to the 14th degree, you will run out of room for students.

Agreed Horvath: "Whoever is last on the train will end up with classes of 40 kids.

Administrators and board members commended the housing committee for its hard work and expressed concern about the several members who've resigned. "The whole committee, with just a few exceptions has been very active. They've dedicated a lot of time and effort to this process, conducting hearings and listening to the community." said Rodwell

"We would like to have from the board the opportnity to have other citizens volunteer" to fill vacancies.

Engler budget diverts money for road repairs

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Some common .questions on Gov. John Engler's budget proposal for fiscal 1998:

Q. A reporter colleague, working on a story on counroads, asked: "Gov. Engler, in his State of the State, asked $70 million more for roads - $40 million for local and $30 million for state trunklines. Did he say where it's coming from, if we don't have a fuel tax increase?"

A. Engler didn't say on Jan. 28, but budget director Mark Murray did on Feb. 6 when he unveiled the $8.5 billion general fund budget.

■ The 15 state universities would get just a 2.5 percent increase for operations (same as the rate of consumer price inflation) versus the 5.5 percent they got in fiscal 1997.

The 28 community colleges also would get 2.5 percent more for operations.

That's where Engler will save in order to put more money into state roads capping unrestricted grants to local units at 2.5 percent and giving back the rest as road aid $18 million to counties, $12 million to municipalities.

Q. How did that go over with legislative Appropriations Committee members? A. Badly. Rep. Morris Hood, D-Detroit, House panel chair: ■ On local roads, he intends to "For higher ed, 2.5 percent is tap the revenue sharing pot, inadequate and unacceptable.

For community colleges, Engler is adding in technology money, building authority money and "renaissance zone" tax reimbursements to get the 4.6 percent. The college presidents have yet to react, but they are likely to be dismayed... but colleges really operate on the Higher Education Price Index, which is higher.

(legislators) put more money in higher ed, we're going to be held responsible for every pothole in the state. We're gonna get tagged 'the pothole Legislature."

Rep. Tom Kelly, D-Wayne, in his first term on Appropriations: "I think they (Engler administration) are crazy." He disliked the idea of the state's tapping revenue sharing and earmarking it for local roads. "If it's available, just send it to the locals. They'll know what to do with it."

Gesturing toward Gast, Kelly added: "I like this guy."

Kelly will be a key player vice chair of the transportation appropriations subcommittee.

Q. Hold it. You're saying state aid to higher education and community colleges would rise just 2.5 percent, but others are saying there's 3.5 more for higher ed and 4.6 more for community colleges. Straighten this out.

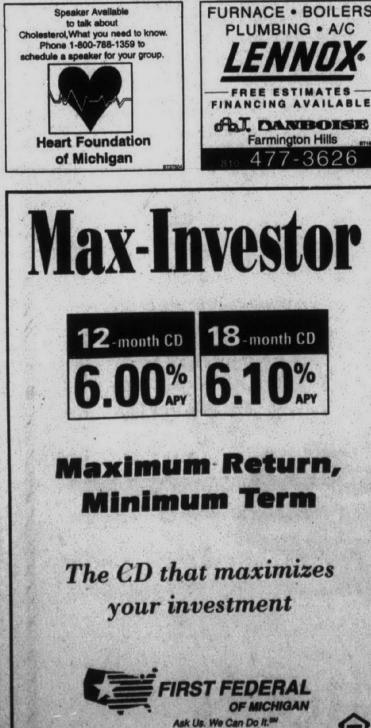

A. Sure. There's 2.5 percent more for operations. In addition, Engler is adding in debt service for university building costs and tax credits for families paying tuition and counting it as part of the higher ed budget.

For community colleges, Engler is adding in technology money, building authority money and "renaissance zone" tax reimbursements to get the 4.6 percent.

Technically, the accounting change gives a clearer picture of where state resources are going. But in order to make a year-toyear, apples-to-apples comparison, the 2.5 percent hike for operations is a better number.

The college presidents have yet to react, but they are likely to be dismayed. Reason: Engler wants to give them 2.5 percent, the increase in the Consumer Price Index, but colleges really operate on the Higher Education Price Index, which is higher. Families and colleges buy different market baskets of goods. Colleges pay health and retirement benefits, which are more inflationary than groceries and clothing.

Q. Rep. Jon Jellema, R-Grand Haven: "We're taking the unprecedented step of using the general fund to fix roads." He referred to the $8.5 billion general fund budget and the $30.9 billion total of all the budgets - general fund and restricted. Is that corre

A. Murray said Michigan dipped into the general fund for roads in the 1980s, but otherwise Jellema was correct -Michigan has long supported roads from a restricted transportation fund fed by gasoline and weight taxes, and few oth-

Murray is boosting the road money with something called "securitization" of child care arrearages - collecting overdue child support payment and plunking $10 million into roads.

Q. Democrats protested vehemently last year when Engler and the Republicans cut adult education from $185 million to $80 million. Now that Democrats have regained control of the House, what do they plan to do?

A. Kelly: "We'll try to bring it back to the former level of $185 million. Rep. Kirk Profit (D-Ypsilanti) has a bill on that.

Senate minority leader John Cherry, D-Clio, said the same thing announcing the Senate Democratic Caucus agenda. "Adult ed. . . must be restored," said Cherry, whose district stretches to northern Oakland County.

Q. Where will the battleground be?

A. Watch the Jobs Commission - it's Engler's favorite department, just as Commerce was Gov. James Blanchard's favorite in the late 1980s.

Engler has packed in all sorts of programs that used to be in Labor and Education. Look for Democrats to try to raid the Jobs Commission, and maybe get help from Republicans.

Q. You didn't report much last week on Engler's plan to set up "a statewide framework for career preparation," a term he prefers to "vocational training."

A. Under pressure of deadline, it was overlooked, but it's likely to be a big issue.

Engler's speech gave credit for the idea only to Rep. Glenn Oxender, R-Sturgis. In the Senate Democratic news conference, Dianne Byrum, D-Onondaga, gave credit to former Rep. Bill Keith, D-Garden City.

Both were right. Keith and FURNACE • BOILERS

PLUMBING . A/C FREE ESTIMATES FINANCING AVAILABLE

Oxender worked on it together. Their bills twice passed the House and died in the Senate.

They got a lot of flak from upscale suburban parents who want to think only in college terms for their offspring.

Perhaps career preparation is a bipartisan idea whose time has come. Engler noted that "better than seven out of 10 jobs in America today don't need a col-lege degree. But more and more high school graduates are attending college - about two out of three do enroll in a college program, (but) only about half ever earn a degree.'

Q. Let's see - your newspaper group has another repre-sentatives on Appropriations besides Tom Kelly. Any comment?

A. Lame duck Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, praised the administration for addressing women's care in the community health budget. In the welfare reform movement, she urged attention to child care and transportation needs of people seeking to get into the labor market. Bankes will serve on the community health, welfare, retirement and transportation subcommittees.

Q. Rep. Hubert Price, D-Pontiac, was fuming about the mental health budget. Why?

A. "The continued downsizing of state operated facilities with consolidations slated for Pheasant Ridge, Detroit Psychiatric Institute and Clinton Valley Center," according to the budget text.

Translation: "Consolidation" means closing CVC and the Detroit institute. Murray told Price "state facilities are costly to maintain, and CVC (in Pontiac) is one of the older ones.

Price objected 1) that 600 jobs will be affected and 2) "we're transitioning to a lot of private facilities with no assurances of quality of care. . . Sometimes they (private hospitals) throw

DNR seeks public comment on Rouge watershed plan

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources will hold three meetings in the area next week to gather public comments on a draft of the Rouge River watershed assessment.

The first hearing will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Livonia Civic Center Auditorium, 32777 Five Mile Rd., in Livonia.

The assessment identifiesproblems and opportunities for fisheries, water quality and recreational issues associated with the Rouge River basin. The fisheries division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources completed the draft as one of a series of documents on Michigan rivers.

The DNR's report aims at developing a better understanding of aquatic ecosystems, an appreciation of the river's history and understand changes to the system.

River assessments help identify opportunities to improve the river and solve problems. They provide a mechanism for public involvement in decisions affecting the Rouge.

Jeff Braunscheidel, a biologist with the fisheries management division of the state Department of Natural Resources, spent two years working on the assessment draft. Much of the report was written by Jennifer Beam, also a fisheries biologist.

Written comments

Public comments will be collected at the meetings or can be submitted in writing to the DNR. Once these are collected, the DNR will decide on appropriate comments for inclusion in the final draft, Braunscheidel said

"We hope the report will be used by various groups in the watershed," Braunscheidel said. Those groups will include city and county governments, parks and recreations departments and the Rouge River Remedial Action Plan Advisory Council.

The report does not include any costs because some of the recommendations include a range of activities with a wide range of costs. That responsibility of choosing recommendations is generally left to local govern-mental units and their elected officials to decide whether to spend money on these expenses, Braunscheidel said.

"Some of these options can be done at different levels," Braunscheidel said.

Fish stock

Braunscheidel's portion of the report researched fish. Much of it drew the same conclusions reached by University of Michigan adjunct professor and DNR researcher Paul Seelbach, who told RAP council members in December he believed the river's water temperature could maintain several species of game fish if the water's quality could improve.

Braunscheidel echoed those findings.

"One of the big surprises during the research is the temperature range evident in the river," Braunscheidel said. "The river is a lot colder than you would expect for this region.

The habitat and general environment is not that bad, if the water quality comes back.

Braunscheidel said before any improvements occur in the fish habitat, the water quality and flow fluctuations must also be improved. Water quality remains poor except in upstream areas and in headwater areas of the Rouge

New retention basins, some opened only a few months ago and some still under construction, will hold discharges from combined sewer overflows of raw sewage and stormwater.

Stormwater remained a problem for water quality during his research over the last two years, Braunscheidel said.

"Nutrients from fertilizers, contaminants from off the roads and sediment from erosion all work their way into the river," Braunscheidel said.

Copies of the draft can be obtained from Jeff Braunscheidel, fisheries division, Michigan Department of Natural Resources, 38980 Seven Mile Road, Livonia, MI 48152-1006. Braunscheidel can be reached at (313) 953-1481. Written comments can be sent to Braunscheidel at the same address.

Written comments from the public will be accepted through March 28.

Endorsement Bond still prompts questions roponents of a $79.7 million bond issue for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools got a boost last week when Canton Supervisor Tom Yack endorsed the plan and issued a strong call for community support.

That's encouraging because the sense here is backers will need all the help they can get. At least as of this week, elected officials in the Plymouths had not taken a public position on the bond issue.

The bond issue, which goes before voters Saturday, March 22, would pay for a new high school and elementary school; school buses; remodeled school facilities; enhanced classroom technology and computers. If passed, it would add an estimated $176 annually in property taxes for the owner of a $200,000 home

Yack said he endorsed the bond issue for two reasons: It would ease school overcrowding and ensure high-quality educational opportunities are available in coming decades; and maintain the steady increase in property values throughout the district. He said he fears the district's past attempts to accommodate enrollment increases in existing buildings would be disastrous if repeated.

"(Local) property values, the neighborhood school concept and quality of life - all that's in jeopardy. Regardless of where you live (in the district), the bottom line is you've got a stake in this issue," Yack said.

Let's acknowledge that Yack has a somewhat parochial stake in the issue. The proposed new schools would be built in Canton. Also, Yack has plans for a performing arts center at the new high school. How a center will be financed has not yet been revealed. It's unknown what role, if any, the Plymouths would play in creating a performing arts center.

Yet such a strong public endorsement on a school tax issue is unusual for a municipal leader. A community's tax burden is a finite commodity and local officials hesitate to support a tax increase that won't directly benefit municipal coffers. And yet others just don't want to get involved with another jurisdiction's problems.

Before Proposal A, some elected leaders reminded their constituents that the majority of their property tax bill paid for local schools.

Taxpayers have faced an onslaught of local and countywide millage proposals since approving school finance changes in March 1994. And only three of 10 households in Plymouth-Canton have a child in public school.

Yack's resounding endorsement, however, does not eliminate concern about the bond issue

School officials have left some important questions concerning the bond proposal unanswered and have provided vague, or inconsistent answers to others.

For example, Superintendent Charles Little says the district will accept students from other communities under the "Schools of Choice" law if it becomes necessary to find additional operating revenue once new schools are built. But the superintendent and Plymouth-Canton board members were opposed to becoming a "Choice" district as recently as last spring.

Having municipal leaders like Tom Yack on board should in no way imply to voters that they should cast their ballot without getting thorough answers to their outstanding questions.

New agenda demands input he new Federalism - a broad shift in power from the federal government to Michigan and other states - has yet to materialize and may never take root the way leaders in Congress envisioned just two years ago. The philosophy, largely a byproduct of the Republican takeover of the U.S. House, faces roadblocks ranging from a second-term Democratic president to state lawmakers' skepticism over movement by the federal bureaucracy. But incremental changes are occurring, particularly in welfare and government-funded health care. And a recent survey by the National Conference of State Legislatures shows other issues once thought to be strictly the federal government's domain are increasingly becoming state issues as well. The deregulation of the telecommunications industry and other utilities are examples of areas where Michigan lawmakers have increased clout.

nia) and Deborah Whyman (Canton). The state senators are Robert Geake (Livonia. Redford, Plymouth and part of Canton), Loren Bennett (part of Canton and Westland) and George Hart (Garden City).

In Michigan, the governor's office has been the focal point for state government for decades. That's partly because a number of strong personalities - from "Soapy" Williams to John Engler - have occupied the chair. The legislative branch tends to function as a lowlevel blip on most people's radar screens. With term limits coming into play next year, turnover in the legislature will be even greater.

Bus story response

The Jan. 30 article regarding problems with school bus routes could have been an investigative story about the relationship between field trips and bus tardiness. Instead, it turned into an article of misinformation and misquotes attributed to me. I would like to straighten out the following facts:

The East Middle School bus was a half-hour late, not one hour.

When the children from Allen were late the first time, the calls that went unanswered were to the school, not the bus yard as stated in the article.

The quote that begins: "We have substitutes a lot ..." was never made by me. That must have been a quote from some other parent. I do not even go to the bus stop with my son.

The quote: "This is happening all over the district ... " is inaccurate. I said that if there were this many problems in three weeks with just our neighborhood, I wondered how often it was happening all over the district.

The reporter was given my name by another parent and called me for some information about the bus incidents. I talked to her with the assumption that she would do some checking into how often buses are tardy picking up children from school throughout the district. Instead, she wrote an article using my name and inaccurate quotes. She also failed to mentioned that I had spoken with LuAnn Grech (district transportation director) at the bus yard. LuAnn was prompt in returning my call, extremely friendly and followed through on getting answers to my questions.

I have learned my lesson on talking with transportation director. Two messages were left on Jan. 27. On Jan. 28, the transportation director was reached with a third call and told of our questions. She responded Wednesday, Jan. 30, and her comments were included in the story. Calls also were placed to the community relations director and the superintendent.

Something is wrong

The Plymouth-Canton school district has become a three-ring circus. The major attractions continue to be the teacher cartel, a clueless superintendent and a spineless board of education.

A position of leadership is typically charged, or should be, to lead and have a vision of the future. Unfortunately, our leaders (Dr. Charles Little and board of education) are unwilling or possibly not qualified, to accomplish this task. Can our leaders make any decisions without setting up a committee? A superintendent must have the willingness to make decisions and quit hiding behind committee after committee after committee.

This school district has a proud history. Unfortunately this past year has resulted in teachers unable to fathom the realities of health care alternatives, nepotism on the negotiating team with regard to the teachers' contracts, constant whining from all parties in the circus regarding funding (quit whining and deal with it!), consultants being brought in to show adults how to get along (at our expense), demographic studies of our community (doesn't anyone even slightly conscious know or understand where the growth is?), a bond proposal that doesn't address the need for a new middle school or facilities to go along with a new high school, and last but not least, the inability to lay out exactly where all monies from a new $80 million bond proposal will go. Without this, and the lack of credibility that now exists, who in their right mind would vote yes? Before proceeding with the above mentioned bond proposal, the superintendent and the board of education need to get out from behind their array of committees and give this community a vision and a specific road map along with specific recommendations and dollar allocations regarding the bond proposal. My two children are two and three. My wife and myself were educated in public schools. My father was a lifetime public school elementary teacher and principal, and my wife's mother currently is a public school assistant superintendent for curriculum. When people like us start contemplating educational alternatives for our children, something is wrong! T.A. Gardiner Canton

These new responsibilities are being added to an agenda filled with traditional state obligations such as roads and public education.

What does all this mean to western Wayne County residents? Plenty, if you think about it. But how may people even know the name of their state representative or state senator?

Here's a quick primer. The representatives in the Observer area are: Lyn Bankes (Livonia and Redford), Bob Brown (Redford), Eileen DeHart (Westland and part of Canton), Thomas Kelly (Garden City), Gerald Law (Plymouth, Plymouth Township and part of Livo-

The people we send to Lansing every few years will play a fundamental role in how we live our lives. Collectively, they will map out our priorities - whether government's primary purpose is ensuring a fair and equitable life for all, or providing services to those who foot the bill with tax dollars and campaign contributions.

The current split in party control - Republican-controlled Senate, Democratic majority in the House - may make things even more difficult. Partisan gridlock tends to slow government and creates unnatural compromises, particularly at the state level. (Proposal A is a good example.)

With state lawmakers delving into broader and deeper issues, residents need to make their state representatives and senators aware of their views.

the media.

Cathy Donaldson Canton

Editor's note: The Observer learned about the delays in a phone call from a parent, who asked that her name not be used in the story. She supplied the name of Cathy Donaldson, who also spoke of her concerns.

The reporter erred in attributing the comments regarding substitute drivers to Donaldson. They were made by the mother who asked not to be named. She stands by her quote.

It was the reporter's understanding that calls Jan. 7 were made to the bus yard, not to Allen. We apologize for the mistake. The Observer asked Grech about this, and included her response.

In her interview, Donaldson said the East bus was 45 minutes to an hour late. We stand by the quote: "This is happening all over the district." Donaldson said recently that she originally said if delays occurred three times in three weeks, "it must be happening all over the district. I can't believe it's just us." In fact, we have heard from parents elsewhere in the district about delays occurring at their children's schools.

POINTS OF VIEW

Hunt begins for cuddly Beanie Babies

'm'going to skip the candy, bypass the flowers, forego the cards. Because to win the hearts of those I love this Valentine's Day, nothing but a Beanie Baby will do.

The cuddly, sweet-faced, pocketsized bean-bag animals are sweeping metro Detroit, collected by preschoolers as well as great-grandparents. Each sports a name, birthdate and poem printed on a heart-shaped tag.

And, according to Lois Levenson, whose West Bloomfield shop Guys N' Gals is just one of many Beanie Baby hubs, "the boys like them as much as the girls."

Oakland University graduate student Kim Goldstein, 24, owns 50.

Teacher Andrea Lewiston keeps them in her West Bloomfield High School classroom, lending them to students who are having a bad day. Lee Feldman, 5, gave Bones, a cuddly-looking brown dog, to his Great Aunt Natalie when her husband died "so she feels better."

Last time I checked, nearly 600,000 people had visited the manufacturer's extensive Internet website. They're both everywhere and nowhere – from a Farmington Hills floral shop to Nordstrom. But new shipments don't last long.

"We're on a Beanie Baby hunt," Mary Beth Rice, an articulate almost 4-year-old from Walled Lake told me, as she and her aunt scouted the Hallmark store at Maple and Telegraph one day last week.

"Twenty years from now, they're going to show them to their kids," says Don Payne, who in January sold

JODITH BONEN BERNE

$75,000 worth of Beanie Babies among his Rochester, Farmington Hills and Livonia Family Buggy restaurants, each with a small kids'oriented store. He equates it to collecting Barbie dolls and says there's already a huge market for those animals that have been "retired" by the savvy Ty Inc. that manufactures them. "Something like this doesn't come along very often," he postulates.

Anne Nickels, spokeswoman for the Oakbrook, Ill. manufacturer, is in complete agreement. Her boss Ty Warner designs them all. The surge started in the summer of 1995 in the Chicago area, she reported. "Then last year just at this time of year, it went kaboom. Detroit's getting big now," she affirmed.

By the time you read this, Jordyn Beckwith, 10, and her 6-year-old brother Bradley most likely will have captured Floppity, a lavender bunny that is the only one of 87 Beanie Babies the Farmington Hills youngsters are missing.

They, of course, already have Valentino, the white bear with a red heart sewn on his chest, whose birth-date is Valentine's Day. His message: "His heart is red, and full of love He cares for you, so give a hug. Keep him close, when feeling blue Feel the love he has for you." You, no doubt, will have to go on a major Beanie Baby hunt for him. Happy Valentine's Day.

Universities aren't free to pick laws to obey ne can almost hear the snarling and gnashing of teeth in East Lansing and Ann Arbor.

Michigan State University lost a big decision Jan. 14 in the State Court of Appeals. The state's second highest court ruled firmly that MSU's board violated the Open Meetings Act in 1992 with its "search committee" machinations when it hired Peter McPherson as president.

The Legislature has legalized secret search committees, but here is what most reports missed: The court rejected MSU's argument that a university established by the state constitution is somehow exempt from the state Open Meetings Act (OMA).

The University of Michigan, which filed a brief on its kid sister's behalf, long has held, in the imperious words of former President James Duderstadt, that it is a "coordinate" branch of government, with the president equal to the governor and the board equal to the Legislature. In a 2-1 decision, Appeals Judges E. Thomas Fitzgerald and Janet Neff wrote: "We therefore hold that the Open Meetings Act may be constitutionally applied to constitutionally established universities in their selection of a president."

It's an old, old argument the universities have lost before.

In 1895, the Legislature passed a law requiring U-M to set up a college of homeopathic medicine in Detroit. U-M refused. The Supreme Court ruled for U-M: "The Legislature, therefore, does not possess the power ... to compel the discontinuance of the existing homeopathic medical college at Ann Arbor, and its re-establishment at Detroit." It was the board of regents' job, under the constitution of 1850, to run the university.

U-M and MSU tried to take that narrow victory to extremes, and lost. In 1948, an MSU employee named Peters sought workers' comp benefits for an injury. MSU argued it wasn't subject to the workers' comp laws. The Supreme Court ruled against MSU because: "The Workers' Compensation Act does not undertake to change or disturb the educational activities of the defendant board." (Italics added.)

In 1969, a group of interns, residents and postdoctoral fellows at University Hospital sought collective bargaining with U-M, which declared it would unilaterally determine their pay. A state labor board said no, U-M must observe the Public Employees Relations Act and bargain.

The Supreme Court ruled 7-0 against U-M. Justice John B. Swainson noted that in the 19th Century, it was "comparatively easy to isolate the university and keep it free from outside interference. The complexities of modern times make this impossible." Swainson quoted an appeals court decision in a similar case that said:

"The U-M is an independent branch of the government of the State of Michigan, but it is not an island. Within the confines of the operation and the allocation of funds of the university, it is supreme. Without these confines, however, there is no reason to allow the regents to use their independence to thwart the clearly established public policy of the people of Michigan." (Italics added.)

Citing those cases, the 1997 Court of Appeals ruled the Open Meetings Act doesn't interfere with the MSU board's constitutional status.

"Although it requires that much of the process of selecting a university president be done in public, it does not tell the board what the criteria should be for that selection, how to select a candidate, or whom to select as president." The law merely requires open interviews.

Dissenting, Jackson Circuit Judge Charles A. Nelson, sitting on the appeals court by assignment, said the OMA's public policy interferes with the universities' constitutional duty to select a president "because it results in good candidates withdrawing their names from consideration."

As Attorney General Frank Kelley said in a similar case against Western Michigan University, a university isn't free to pick and choose which laws it will obey.

Our universities are quick to obey the appropriations act. Let them obey the "sunshine" and labor laws, too.

n addition to this dictionary definition, consider the practical meaning of this important political noun as displayed in the post-election behavior of one former Michigan congressman, Dick Chrysler, R-Brighton.

Elected to the U.S. House in 1994 as one of Speaker Newt Gingrich's hard-charters, Chrysler became one of the most vocal budget hawks in Washington. Newspapers in his district were regularly informed via press release of the congressman's unwavering opposition to governmental waste and spending. Chrysler called repeatedly, for example, for the complete elimination of the Department of Commerce as well as scores of other government programs.

Chrysler's hard-right positions turned out to be inconsistent with the views of a majority of voters in his district, which includes Livingston County, part of Ingham County and some communities in western Oakland County. He was defeated last November by Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing.

Imagine my surprise last weekend when I read the lead in an Associated Press story: "Lame duck Rep. Dick Chrysler took a trip to Florida at taxpayer expense to ride on a Navy jet fighter a month after Michigan voters had turned him out of the House."

Evidently Chrysler was flown last Dec. 9 at the Navy's expense from Washington to Jacksonville. He took off from Cecil Field in a Navy FA-18 fighter for a three-hour flight that included touch-and-go landings on an aircraft carrier and in-flight maneuvers, according to naval officials, after which he was flown back to Detroit.

The AP story continued: "Chrysler billed the military $323 for his plane tickets, $110 more for two nights' lodging, $21.50 for meals and $2 for baggage handling."

Who knows how much aviation fuel costs for a three-hour jaunt in a FA-18, not to mention the three hours of pay for the fighter pilot and the other costs associated with caring for, feeding, briefing and influencing the lame-duck congressman? (Congress was out of session last December; the new Congress took office Jan. 7.)

Lt. Cmdr. Scott Harris of the Naval Office of Legislative Affairs was quoted by the AP to the effect that "Chrysler's trip was set up 100 percent within Pentagon guidelines. We're here to let members of Congress know what the Navy PHILIP POWER is all about." One wonders whether the Naval Office of Legislative Affairs shouldn't be one of those governmental programs that ought to be eliminated.

Certainly, hypocrisy in politics is nothing new, although former U.S. Rep. Chrysler's behavior strikes me as particularly galling. "Character," as the guy who responded to President Bill Clinton's State of the Union speech said, "is what you do when there's nobody watching."

On and off again, I've been in the newspaper business for nearly 40 years now, and I have been struck over and over again at the stark contrast between the public posture and the private behavior of certain politicians who affect the role of strident moralist.

Up to l'affaire Chrysler, my best example of this phenomenon was Charles Keating, the banker who got caught and convicted in the S&L scandals of the 1980s and who got former Sen. Don Riegle into trouble with campaign contributions. Keating first made his political mark in his native Cincinnati as the moralistic and virulently outspoken leader of a citizens antipornography campaign.

Dick Chrysler certainly isn't the first politician to get caught looking like an advanced hypocrite, and he surely won't be the last.

But tawdry episodes like this one reinforce the skepticism bordering on cynicism that most old reporters have baked deep into their being. And surely they reinforce public concern about the kinds of deep-seated psychological needs that impel certain people to pursue a political career.

Language has place as art form here is a subject taught in local schools called language arts. Tony, my seventhgrader, knows all about this; he's in a language arts class.

I asked him the other day, "Tony, what is language arts?"

"Mo-om. Whaddya mean? Language arts! It's, y'know, language arts."

"Oh, I see," but I didn't. I thought I should know; I'd taught English and composition and essay writing classes back when I was a school teacher. But I never taught language arts. What is that?

Not knowing this bothered me. Why, "language arts" could mean any number of things. It could mean the art of language. Or the language of art. Or all art forms that use language. And there are a lot of those, too many to cover in one class

I asked Tony about all those possibilities. He looked at me as though I were an alien, a very dangerous green one, I might add. So I tried this: clamming up about the whole matter until I'd finished the dishes and had a chance to think more about this.

"So, so, so," I thought and rinsed. "You have industrial arts, martial arts, culinary arts, language arts. All 'arts,' they must all be arts. As opposed to sciences. So, hmm. That must be it ..."

Just as I was going to think of the exact "it" it must be, the phone rang. Joe tripped Jack. The dryer full of Ron's permanent press shirts buzzed. So I had to stop thinking for a bit and just do.

Dealing with the 'arts'

Since there was a bunch of doing left that evening, it was pretty late by the time I got back to thinking again. But I had to figure this out because the next day I was to make a presentation to Tony's language arts class. I just couldn't do that without knowing what the deal was with language arts.

As I thought, I thought more about industrial arts, martial arts, culinary arts, language arts. Wasn't industrial arts "shop class," where you put goggles on and learned safety rules and operated big noisy machinery and came out with a cool project with miters and varnish? Rules and directions came first in there and THEN the creativity - the art. Is that how it was?

Natural beauty Supporters find merit in children's pageants

The Observer[®]

COMMUNITY LIFE

Some pageant organizers and parents say not all children's pageants are bad, that children are made up to look far older than their years. But they also admit that there are those parents who have "tiara fever" who will stop at nothing to get a crown for their daughters.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

Costume designer Riley Carney calls it "tiara fever."

The symptoms are obsessive parents who take their daughters anywhere in the United States to participate in pageants, enroll the girls in multiple courses in modeling or dance, and dress their children like adults.

It seems to have swept the nation. "There seems to be two kinds of people - the novice first-timer, that's usually enough for them right there; and there's those people who have what I have coined 'pageant fever' or 'tiara fever,' " Carney said. "The only cure for tiara fever is a tiara. There are people who will walk on hands and knees across broken glass to get into a pageant."

The pageant phenomenon is a result of the glamorization of the events, said Riley, who owns Sassy's Custom Costumes in Redford.

"Each year when I do pageants, people are spending more and more money," he said. "It's getting to be people who have the $500,000 houses or the people who have the houses on Sylvan Lake."

Pageant contestants make up about 20 percent of Carney's business. He used to do more, but Michigan's not a big pageant place.

Pageant people

"Some states really live, breathe, eat and think pageants, like the South especially," he said. "I've had so many mothers come through with their daughters pushing, pushing and pushing. "I've seen so many pushy mothers that make Joan Collins look like a Sunday school teacher." Those mothers are like steam-explained and in which JonBenet Ramsey, the little beauty queen who was found dead in her affluent parents' home, participated.

Susan Franceschi, a pediatric nurse, and executive director of the Renaissance USA World and Little Miss Renaissance, has spent the last 10 years evolving the pageants into something that's positive for children.

The Livonia resident's experiences with pageants were, for the most part, anything but positive. She entered them because she wanted to meet all the people she could. But there were women who really wanted to win for the reason of winning. They would cut up people's dresses and sabotage other people for winning. They were "poor sports backstage.

"I thought 'Why can't someone run a pageant that you can feel really good and feel like a celebrity, feel that you're worth a million without it being rigged or fixed?" " she said. "That's what I set out to prove. I ran a children's pageant to prove a point. It kept snowballing."

And martial arts - that's karate and judo and such like. Specific kicks, certain spins, controlled chops, respectful bows, and readiness to confront any situation. Again, rules and techniques first, THEN creativity

And then, culinary arts. Although following recipes, using certain basic ingredients, and cooking at specific temperatures are part of it, it's the creation beyond that that makes it an art

And so, language arts. I ironed it all out after the last story was read and the last good night said. Here's the way it works. Start with the rules, techniques, directions, basic ingredients like spelling, punctuation, and grammar. Master those. Become a good technician of language, then create art with it.

When you become a language artist, THEN you try out new things. You create, break rules (but only break rules, if you know you are breaking them and only if you remember what the original rules are), and play

Remember, work THEN play.

Learn the rules, then do the art.

Especially (most espeshully) learn how to spell. Learn how to spell and how to use a dictionary. Otherwise it could mean, and I am not making this up, the difference between life and death. A misspelled medical term on a chart has killed before.

A window on abilities

And then, not as critical, but right up there, a misspelled word can mean the difference between landing a job and getting dismissed out of hand, without a second thought. Those job applications are a window into your abilities You mess up with a misspelling right off the bat, it's bad news

You see, whether you like it or not, you're judged not only on what you write on those judged not only on what you write on those applications, but how you write it. And people make judgments (not judgements) on whether to hire or not hire based on spelling errors. And if it seems unfair, it probably is, but it's fact. Spelling correctly is like having good manners, only on paper. Just as you would say, "Please" and "Thank you" and take your place at the back of the line when you're out and about, you must take care and show some manners with your spelling. You don't burp in church, you don't leave your dirty tray on the table in the cafete-ria, you don't walk through the house with muddy boots, you aim, and you don't misspell See FAMILY ROOM, B2 rollers, according to Carney. They have molded the child that "by the time she comes here she's like this little wind-up doll that performs on cue."

"They have usually no opinion; they look at their mother," he added. "That's my clue that the mother is in charge and the child has no thoughts, no feelings. I'm sure she does but she doesn't have a chance to express it."

While there are "pageant mothers" in the area, all the mothers in this story stressed that it was their daughters' decisions to enter pageants. Most of the events are low-key compared to those Riley

"We don't allow makeup in our pageant; the makeup issue is a big thing," Franceschi said. "I looked at that pictures of JonBenet and it makes me cringe. I almost think they look like call girls.'

BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

As Mae Yong Ogletree explains it, she got bitten by the figure skating bug the first time she strapped on skates. Lessons quickly gave way to a private coach and competition.

Her first skates were inexpensive and off the shelf. Nine months later, she paid $350 for Reidell boots and blades. "I had no plans of learning to skate," said

Ogletree, sitting on the top bleacher of the Westland Sports Arena after a one-hour practice. "I was shocked how the skating just reached out and grabbed me."

Ogletree isn't your typical youngster with aspirations of Olympic gold. Far from it. She was introduced to the sport two years ago at age 42. Her daughter, Robyn, then age 8, expressed an interest in figure skating.

She signed Robyn up for lessons and enrolled herself in an adult class at the Eddie Edgar Arena in Livonia. Now she's skating "against" the book" and winning medals in Ice Skating Institute of America competition. "I never planned to skate, I just found myself on this path," the Livonia resident said. "(Per-sonal coach) Kim Herbert) strongly recommended I compete and something inside wouldn't allow me to turn away.

allow me to turn away. Ogletree started group lessons in November 1994 and stuck with them until March 1995 when she switched to private lessons with her then-instructor Kathy Henning./She switched to Herbert that fall before moving to her current coach, Dawn Popejoy, last spring. It was under Henning's tutelage that she competed for the first time. It was an ISIA state competition held in Southgate.

"I was very, very new and didn't know what to anticipate," said Ogletree. "This was uncharted waters for me. I was the only adult in a skating outfit and I felt very singular.'

Her family wasn't there to see her walk away with a silver medal in the Gamma program. Husband Rob was at home, caring for Robyn who had eye surgery a day earlier. However, a girlfriend had accompanied her to offer moral support. "I'm glad because without her, I would have been the only adult in the award room," Ogle-tree recalled, adding that "my goal wasn't to win or medal; it was to get through the program without falling on my face." Gamma is the third of four levels (Alpha, Beta, Gamma and Delta) of beginning skating. After that, skaters move into freestyle which has 10 levels.

In the Gamma program, Ogletree had to show her mastery of a left three turn, a right three turn, hockey stop, left open mohawk and right open mohawk done to one piece of music. She managed to do it all with only one two-footed maneuver.

In Freestyle I, Ogletree started learning umps. She was introduced to the waltz jump last May and admits that she wasn't comfort-able with it until last October. Part of it was her fear of falling.

see the look on the people's faces. I have to defend myself and defend her.'

Former Garden City resident Carolyn Amann of Westland entered her 8-year-old daughter, Ashley, in the Michigan Sunburst Beauty Pageant, a branch of the same one that JonBenet participated in. Until she called the organizers, Amann said she had second thoughts after she saw the photos of JonBenet.

"When I called there they said that that was not the norm for what you would expect in the state pageant," Amann said. "They were looking more for the natural beauty."

Pageant officials told her that making up little girls to look like adults was more predominant in the South.

"It's so different from how I do my girls," Amann said. "I wouldn't put them in makeup or tease their hair up to here. Michigan has not come to the level that they're at in the South.

"I don't know if Ashley did well if we'd go to the national level. I would really check into it more."

Bonnie Bringold's 11-year-old daughter, Rachel, recently competed in the Premier Pageants and Performing Arts Competition. The Garden City resident said the natural look was stressed there as well.

"They reminded me of what most people would classify as a dance recital," Bringold said about the event. "Premier Pageants are a little bit lower key. I can't see getting all dressed up for it."

Like Franceschi, Lottie Grice of Southfield started Premier

Pageants and Performing Arts Competition to build children's self-esteem.

"I feel that by the name of my pageants, I'm giving the children an opportunity to do things with us, to perform with us and to have fun," she said. "The children are there to have fun. It's not to exploit them at all.

"They dress like children, not adults. They are showcasing their talent. They're proud, the parents are proud, and I'm proud of them."

Franceschi said that parents really have to watch the costs of pageants. With some contests, there is a fee for each area of the competitions. Then another is charged for the finals.

Mae Yong

Premier Pageants, like most pageants for girls, charge entry fees. Besides the $10 registration fee, prices range from $40 for duet or trio competitors to $6 each for a production of 16 or more girls. Single events like fashion or formal modeling cost $25-$35. Contest director Grice said she has to charge to make up for her losses.

"I have to rent the building, pay the judges, pay the staff, buy the crown, banners, trophies and prizes," Grice said. "I have to charge otherwise I would have to spend my Social Security check.

"It's not so much making money. I just want to let the kids have fun.

On top of pageant entry fees,

Because she works 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Milford Fabricating in Detroit, she uses open skate periods at the different area arenas for her other practices.

"All the best times are during the day, so I know all the open skate times in the Livonia area,' Ogletree said. "When I first started, I would squeeze in 20. minutes at the Redford arena during my lunch hour. Now, I practice four-six times a week,

"Now, I skate year-round. I go to Plymouth, Westland and Farmington Hills during the summer and take lessons yearround, too."

For her second competition

there's the cost of the costumes. Carney said an average costume is priced between $150-$300. "However, some people will go far above that," he said.

Franceschi has seen pageant dresses go for $1,000. "For little girls, that is a sin," she said. "It's amazing what we have seen.

Dori Matkowski, owner of Dance Dynamics in Northville and Walled Lake which serves the Plymouth area, recommends that kids wait until they're 13 to begin participating in pageants.

"At 13, they understand winning and losing and that pageants are for making more friends; they have more of a sense of reality because when they are older, kids do it for themselves," said Matkowski, who has worked with the Miss America program for 20 years. Franceschi agrees.

"Pageants here are much different than what you see on television," she said. "I don't feel that children are ready for competition per se that involves looks and things that are out of their control. "Basically, there's still that want to children to be looking beautiful and feeling beautiful, wearing and crown and riding in parades."

Gee whiz, I sure went on a tirade today. Sorry about that. Well, no - I'm not sorry about that. It's important. What I said to the language arts class the other day was important. Spelling, grammar, all of it, "language science" IS important, very important. It can mean life will always be the rite of passage into the place where language finally becomes art.

my program, I could look at the audience. That made the program really joyful. Now I know I can find pleasure in competing."

Ogletree has found her family very supportive of her skating. While her husband did take some lessons when he was younger and ferried sister Suzy around, skating isn't his thing.

And Suzy, who was a "fabulous figure skater" and represented the Detroit Skating Club nationally, according to Ogletree, has provided plenty of advice.

Robyn skates a little bit, but spends most of her time watching her mother. Ogletree sees it as a reversal of roles with Robyn as the mom.

As for her future, Ogletree is working on FSII and such moves as a ballet jump, half lutz, half toe wally and forward arabesque. How quickly she progresses is up to her and if she will be able to compete this fall.

"It's slow, but the more I learn the quicker I pick it up," she said. "Things I've learned before have carried over to the next thing.

"I don't know how far I'll go, but I envision myself still skating, maybe in dance, when I retire."

348-9880 REAL ESTATE UPDATE by Chris Knight WHEN SELLERS SHOULD BEWARE You contacted a Realtor to list your home in the Plymouth and Canton areas, and the agent indicates that you might get more for your home than comparable homes on the market. After all, it just takes finding one person who is willing to pay your price-right? Some Realtors approach a listing appointment as if they are bidding for your home. Sellers often start out with an unrealistic opinion of their home's value, and there is often a strong temptation to go with a person who says what you want to hear. A good Realtor will back up their opinion of your home's value with hard data. The agent should give you information about homes that are currently on the market, and recent selling prices of similar properties. The most heroic marketing efforts most heroic marketing efforts won't work on a property that is overpriced. Even if you find a buyer who is willing to pay more than your home is worth, the sale could fall apart when the appraisal comes in lower than the agreed upon price. Listen to everything, but be careful! If you are considering a move, call Chris Knight at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate, 313-453-6800.

Jim White and his family understand the value of time. They waited a long time for a liver donor. However, Jim was fortunate - Every year, an estimated 3,000 people die while waiting for organ transplants.

"When the call came about the organ donation I was shocked and surprised," said Jim. "I looked at Sandy's face (his wife) and she was flushed. I knew the wait was over."

As any transplant patient could tell you, time is not an unlimited resource. One day you might find yourself as one of the approximately 47,000 Americans waiting for an organ transplant. Become an organ donor simply by signing a donor card, and by telling your family. Then, contact the Transplant Society of Michigan. To register your gift,

She can probably appraise a situation quickly and arrive at an answer on gut feeling. It also creates a certain amount of emotional isolation.

Printing also effectively conceals many subtle aspects of one's personality. For this reason it can be one of the many signs of evasiveness.

Outwardly, this young woman presents an aura of poise. She is not impulsive. Before she starts into a new experience, task, or anything significant, she considers the effect it will have on her. In emergency situations, she can remain calm.

The excitement of new horizons thrill her. Perhaps this influenced her decision to move to the U.S.A. for education and the opportunity to play college tennis. The theater also appears to hold a great deal of interest.

Her heavy pressure tells us she has the stamina to withstand stress. She can also handle the discipline to put in long hours of practice necessary to become the number one player on her college squad.

Her astute mind is as sharp as the proverbial tack. She can probably converse intelligently on almost any subject that is mentioned.

Our printer is self-disciplined, goal directed, conscientious and an excellent student. Everything must be done to meet the high standards she imposes on herself. Even the little details are important and carefully handled.

Ideas are often creative and she has the convictions to carry them out. She enjoys companions who are interesting and lively.

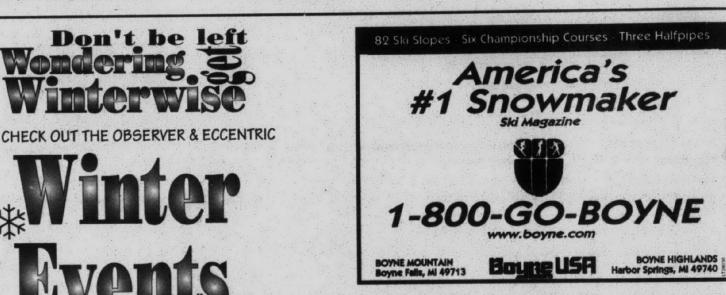

Most of the time she is upbeat and will look on the bright side of life and living. Occasionally, this can change, causing blue moods. At these times a little sarcasm creeps in.

She appears to be a woman of both talents and conflicts. She may have a little difficulty understanding herself on occasion.

Shaloubs mark 25th year

The members of St. Mary's Antiochian Orthodox Church in Livonia are putting the finishing touches on a celebration of the spirit on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 15-16.

The celebration will honor St. Mary's pastor, the Rev. George Shaloub, and his wife, Nouhad, on the 25-year tenure at the church's helm. It also observes the couple's 25th wedding anniversary and the rebuilding of the church, which was devastated by a fire in April 1996.

The weekend festivities include a soldout grand banquet at 6 p.m. Saturday. Some 600 guests expected to attend. A heirarchial divine liturgy, officiated by the Right Rev. Demetri, auxiliary bishop of the Antiochian Christian Archdiocese, will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, followed by a brunch at 1 p.m. Brunch tickets cost $10 for adults and $5 for children.

The Shaloubs exchanged vows on Jan. 28, 1972, in Toledo, Ohio, just nine days before he was ordained as a priest. A week later, on Feb. 13, 1972, he was assigned to lead the newly established St. Mary's Antiochian Orthodox Church.

Under Shaloub's leadership and with the help of the Archdiocese of Toledo, the parish was able to purchase property in Livonia in September 1972 and broke ground for a church in May 1974. Construction began a year later with Shaloub celebrating the first divine liturgy in the new church on March 14, 1976.

In 1980, the church added six Sunday School classes and a social hall, and in 1981, purchased two adjacent acres from the Livonia Public Schools for further expansion.

Ground was broken for St. Mary's Cultural Center in 1988, with construction starting in the fall of 1990, just a few months after the church bought an additional 4.5 acres of land north of its property at 18100 Merriman Road.

Following the church fire, the parish conducted services at St. Michael Russian Orthodox Church for several months before returning to its home church in October 1996.

While tending to his work at St. Mary's Shaloub also continued his studies, earning a bachelor of science degree in sociology and psychology from Eastern Michigan University in 1979, a master of theological studies from St. John's Provincial Seminary in 1987 and a doctor of ministries in pastoral counseling from the Graduate Theological Foundation in Notre Dame, Ind.

Rev. George and Nouhad Shaloub

The Shaloubs have four children – Lila Ann, Alex George, Alexa Marie and Christa Katherine.

For more information about the celebration or to order brunch tickets, call the church office at (313) 422-0010.

However, there is an exception that applies to parents who are separated or divorced or have lived apart for all of the last six months of the year. It allows the custodial parent to treat the child as qualifying for the child care credit even if the other parent is entitled to claim the child as a dependent on his or her tax return. The custodial parent is considered as such if he or she has physical custody of the child for the longer period during the year. These rules apply only if one or both parents provide over half the child's support during the calendar year, and one or both parents have custody of the child for more than half the calendar year. To qualify for the child care credit, a child must be under the age of 13.

Doctors need to educate women about No. 1 killer

Let's face it, if Frank Sinatra had been a woman who suffered a heart attack, she probably would have gone to bed thinking she was just having a really bad case of indigestion - and may well have died.

More than half of women (52 percent) in the U.S., underestimate their No. 1 nemesis, a heart attack, according to a national survey of 1,002 women over age 18 for "Prevention" Magazine by Peter D. Hart Research Associates.

And their doctors aren't helping, even though a third of the nation's women (34 percent) want to improve their health and fitness more than finances, career, family life, romance or marriage.

"Surveys are meant to be helpful. What this one tells us is that women patients - and all of us who care for them - need much more education about what really threatens their lives: ignorance," said Dr. Marianne Lega-to, director of the Partnership for Women's Health at Columbia University. "It is our responsibility as doctors to help women take intelligent care of themselves to prevent the diseases that are killing them."

The "Prevention" survey confirms a recent Gallup poll indicating that many primary care doctors aren't sure of the warning signs of heart disease for women and aren't checking even the most basic risk factors.

The information is based on a nationwide telephone survey conducted among 1,002 women age 18 or older. The margin of error is plus or minus 3.2 percent.

The survey shows that:

 59 percent of women say their doctor has not talked to them about heart disease or reducing the risk of heart attack, and 44 percent of women age 55 or older say their doctor has not spoken to them about their risks. 50 percent of women say their doctor doesn't check che terol, so it's no wonder that seven of 10 women (71 percent) don't know their cholesterol. numbers

 87 percent of women say their doctor doesn't check their hip/waist ratio, a key indicator of potential heart problems.

"This is an important issue for women," said Dr. Bernadine Healy, dean of the College of Medicine at Ohio State University. "They shouldn't wait for doctors to raise the subject of heart disease before they begin taking preventive measures

Survey results show that less than half of the nation's women (46 percent) understand their risk of heart attack. Even though heart disease kills more women than any other single cause, including breast cancer, only 14 percent of U.S. women think it is very likely that they will have a heart attack at some point in their lifetime, and only 32 percent think it is somewhat likely

"The good news from the 'Prevention' survey is that women who are informed about health issues are more likely than others to take the steps necessary to ensure their heart health," said Edwin Slaughter, director of Research at "Prevention" Magazine. "Women need to know that taking on a healthy lifestyle at an early age can significantly reduce their risk of heart dis-

Many women are already taking some steps to improve their heart health. Three-quarters of U.S. women (76 percent) have seen a doctor for a regular checkup. And a majority (83 percent) have had their blood pressure checked.

But 41 percent of the nation's vomen are not eating a low-fat diet, 45 percent are not having their cholesterol checked, and 53 percent are not getting regular

Nearly nine out of 10 women (87 percent) reported feeling happy in the two weeks prior to being interviewed for the survey. However, three-quarters (75 per-cent) of the nation's women felt stressed in the past two weeks and more than half (53 percent) reported being angry and upset. In addition, a third of women (34 percent) reported that they often or occasionally felt depressed in the two weeks efore being interviewed, and 31 ercent said they experienced feelings of loneliness.

Anger and depression are key Anger and depression are key indicators of coronary disease in men and women – as much as cholesterol, smoking, high blood pressure, and a sedentary lifestyle, according to Dr. Red-ford Williams, professor of psy-chiatry and director of the Behavioral Medicine Personal Behavioral Medicine Research Center at Duke University Medical Center.

SPORTS Salem blasts past Canton

The Plymouth Stingrays proved to be too much to handle at the Midget AA District 4 hockey championships, played Feb. 1.

OBSERVER SPORTS

SCENE

The Stingrays advanced to the state tournament, which will be next month in Battle Creek, by beating the USA Cobras twice, by 3-1 and 7-1 scores.

In the first game, goals by Jeff Lang, Jason Perino and Heath Marnon gave the Stingrays the win. Assists were credited to Austin Meibers and Brett Reinhart.

Marnon did in the Cobras almost single-handedly in the rematch, scoring three times and adding one assist. Other goals were credited to Clint Bonkowski, Ryan Ward, Brad Feiler and Reinhart; Reinhart also had two assists. Other assists went to Lang, Nik Derouin, Don Klacking, Matt Church, Ryan Ossenmacher and Meibers.

Last month at the International Silver Sticks Tournament in Sarnia, Ont., the Stingrays reached the final before losing to the only team that could beat them in the tourney, Long Island, N.Y.

The Stingrays lost to Long Island 3-2 in their opener, getting goals from Reinhart and Lang. They regrouped for their second game against Brampton, Ontario, recording a 5-0 victory. Ward scored twice and Ossenmacher, Reinhart and Lang added single goals.

Game No. 3 was against a completely outmanned Steel City, Pa., with Plymouth scoring a 9-0 triumph. Lang netted three goals in the win and Marnon added two more, with Derouin, Bonkowski, Perino and Reinhart getting single scores.

The win advanced the Stingrays to the semifinals against North Bay, Ontario, and this was nothing like their previous two games. After three periods, the game was tied at 1-all, with Klacking accounting for the only Plymouth goal.

After a scoreless first OT period, the Stingrays got the game-winner from Feiler in the second, with assists from Reinhart and Meibers.

Other team members are Ryan Safran, Marc O'Keefe, Gordy Smith and Justin Lilienthal. The team is coached by Fred Feiler, Paul Safran and Chris Manery, with Jim Reinhart serving as team manager.

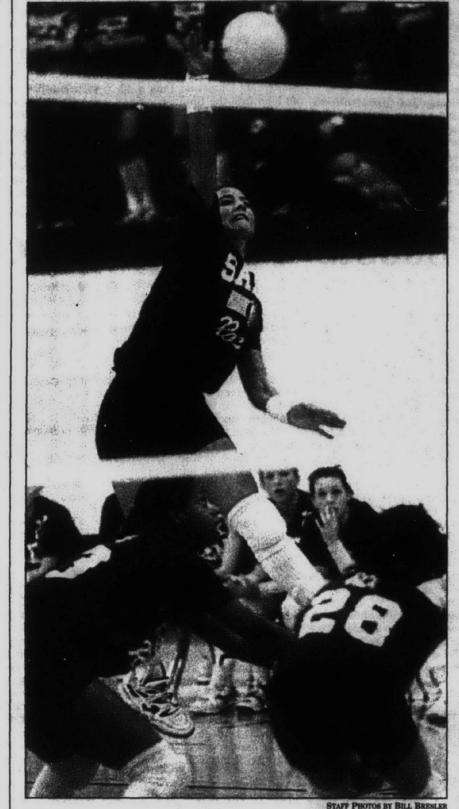

Good backstop

Bob Petrie, a senior goalie on Bowling Green State's hockey team from Canton, collected 30 saves and player of the game honors in the Falcons' 2-2 tie with Miami of Ohio on Jan. 31.

Four of Petrie's saves came in overtime.

The following night against No. 1-ranked University of Michigan, Petrie faced a virtual barrage in BGSU's 6-1 loss. He collected a careerbest 43 saves in the game, including 23 in U-M's three-goal second period.

For the season, Petrie was 9-6-2 through Feb. 1 with a 3.67 goals-against average and an 87.0 save percentage. Petrie was 6-6-2 against Central Collegiate Hockey Association opponents; the Falcons were 13-12-3 overall, 8-10-3 in the CCHA

Pounding it home: Salem's Jenny Trott lets fly a kill attempt, something she did well against Canton — she led the Rocks with 12 kills.

BY C.J. RISAK SPORTS EDITOR

Forget the plots and the plays, the diagrams and the strategies. Even the intangibles can't be trusted.

Example: Plymouth Canton vs. Plymouth Salem volleyball, a match played Monday that paired not just schoolyard rivals but two Western Lakes Activities Association powerhouses

The tangibles favored Salem superior size and hitting power, a long legacy of success that includes a league winning streak stretching over three years, and a very deep (and talented) bench.

The intangibles, however, favored Canton - more experience (eight seniors to Salem's four), a better record against shared opponents (Canton beat Livonia Churchill and Livonia Franklin in three-straight games; it took Salem five against each), and no additional pressure (like Salem's 42-match WLAA win streak).

What an ideal setting for a match. Add into the mix that the two teams are at opposite ends of the volleyball spectrum - Salem relies on power, Canton on defense and serving and that the winner will remain in the hunt for the WLAA title, and you have competitive perfection.

Then you play the match. Five games, right? Overtime in each, no?

No. Salem showed its championship form, rallying to win the first game 15-13. After that, there was no need for a rally — the Rocks never had to, winning the final two sets 15-5, 15-5 to sweep past the Chiefs. With the win, Salem improved to 27-6-4 overall, 9-0 in the WLAA (prior to Wednesday night's match at also undefeated Walled Lake Central). Canton is 31-6-2 overall, 7-2 in the conference.

"They grew up today," said Salem co-coach Brian Gilles of his team. "The way we played tonight is the way we're capable of playing, only we've only done that a couple of times.

Analyzing this match wouldn't take a mastermind. Canton's strengths were effectively neutralized; Salem's weren't.

That became clear at the end of the first game, which certainly set the tone for the rest of the match. The Chiefs had a 13-11 lead with three chances to add to it and close out the game.

They failed on all of them. Which proved to be too many chances to give the Rocks: An Angela Sillmon kill narrowed the gap to one, and three successive points by Amanda Abraham (two kills, one block) gave Salem the win.

After that, it just got worse for the Chiefs.

"First our serve-receive broke down," said Canton coach Steve Anderson. "Then our serving went out the window. And if we aren't serve-receiving and serving well, we lose our two greatest strengths and we're in trouble."

Striking back: Stephanie Chefan was one of Canton's top attackers with six kills.

Which defined Canton's predicament well. The second game was close for a while, the Chiefs as close as 6-5. Then, with Salem holding a 9-5 edge and Jenny Storm stepping up to serve, Gilles yelled in some insightful instructions:

"Take it home, Stormy, take it

Salem can't catch Stevenson, Central

The Spartans are back on top.

got open. "We knew this was a big game and coach (Dan Robinson) told us that all week. We had lost some disappointing games, but we needed this

He was 14 of 22 from the floor, including a three-pointer. He also grabbed nine rebounds and blocked five shots.

"He (Bauman) played well," Saler coach Bob Brodie said. "We tried everything defensively against him. We tried the whole bag of tricks and he still scored, no matter what w tried."

Canton defense throttles Rockets

For the first half of the Western Lakes Activities Association basketball season, both Westland John Glenn and Plymouth Canton - the WLAA's last two champions - were title contenders.

By the time they met Tuesday at Canton, both were trying desperately to get back on track. Canton had lost two straight in the league; Glenn, after a 5-0 start in the conference, had dropped three of their previous four Canton improved to 10-6 overall, while the Rockets fell to 7-8. Both are 6-4 in the WLAA.

"It was real nice to see," said Canton coach Dan Young. "We were consistent, we got balanced scoring and we played great defense.

The Chiefs were paced by Nick Hurley with 14 points; Matt Ammons with 13 points, five assists and four rebounds; Rob Johnson with 11 points seven boards and four assists; and Joe Cortellini with 11 points, five rebounds and four steals.

Canton led 10-4 after one quarter and 22-13 at the half. That nine-point bulge was maintained through three quarters, the Chiefs up 34-25.

But nearly as gratifying as the win — and a major contributing factor for it - was the return of Donte Scott. Scott had injured a knee a month ago; it was feared he might miss the remainder of the season.

But the knee responded to treatment and rest, and Scott had no trouble playing 22 minutes against Glenn. He scored just three points, but had three assists and, together with Johnson, helped limit the Rockets' leading scorer, David Jarrett, to three points.

Jon Becher led Glenn with 13 points. Next best was Eric Jones with nine.

Jarrett had suffered a hip injury against Walled Lake Central last Friday and was unable to start against Canton.

The Shamrocks, 17-1-1 overall, outshot the Falcons, 40-13.

Last-second basket boosts Belleville over Shamrocks gave the Shamrocks a 32-31

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Everyone likes to be a hero, but Joe Jonna's time to shine for Detroit Catholic Central came a few seconds sooner than he would have hoped.

Jonna's reverse layup with four seconds left tied the score at 74, but that was way too much time for Belleville's star forward Rob Griffin to operate.

After a timeout, Griffin made a running three-point shot from about 22 feet out before the buzzer sounded to give Belleville a stunning 77-74 non-league victory Tuesday over host Detroit Catholic Central.

"It was something I had to make," said Griffin, whose winning basket gave him a teamhigh 24 points to go with 11 rebounds. "Earlier in the year versus Romulus that's what it came down to and it went in and out. I practice that shot every day.

CC's 6-foot-10 junior center Chris Young scored a careerhigh 34 points and grabbed 17 rebounds. Senior guard Marc McDonald added 25 points, but the rest of the team combined for only 15 points.

Belleville, a member of the Mega Conference Red Division, improved to 8-7 overall. The Shamrocks dropped to 11-6.

Despite the fast pace, each team committed only five turnovers in the second half.

"Belleville played awful good defense, better than we've seen in the last few weeks," CC coach Rick Coratti said. "We'll see the same thing Saturday."

The loss was especially agonizing for the Shamrocks since it appeared they were headed for overtime after erasing a six-point deficit in the last three minutes

Belleville looked to have a safe 74-68 lead after Kevin Edwards hit his second-straight threepoint shot from the wing.

But Jonna scored four points and Young two during a 6-0 CC run that tied the score at 74.

Young's dunk with 1:08 remaining cut the deficit to 74-72. Young stole an in-bounds pass with 45 seconds left, giving the Shamrocks a final chance to force overtime.

CC missed a shot in the paint but regained possession when the referees ruled Belleville touched the ball last with 16 seconds left. The Shamrocks missed three straight shots during a scramble under the basket before Jonna ended up with a rebound and reverse layup to tie the score.

Problem was, :02 showed on the clock. The referees added two seconds to the clock because they ruled Belleville called timeout as soon as the ball came through the net.

nicer if time ran out," said Jonna, who finished with seven points and six rebounds after battling first-half foul trouble. "There were still a few seconds left, unfortunately."

After a Belleville timeout, Griffin raced through the CC defense untouched before launching his winning shot.

"The idea was to get the ball to him in the middle and have guys on both sides of him," Belleville coach Rod Fisher said.

"I thought we were headed to overtime," Coratti said. "But as soon as it left his hands and I saw the flight of the ball, I felt, 'Oh man.

quarter, but Salem, behind 10 second-quarter points from guard Matt Mair, tied it at 33-all at intermission.

The Rocks forged ahead by two after three quarters, 49-47, and appeared to have the upper hand with 2:11 to go after Bhavin Patel converted a three-point play for a 60-57 Salem advantage

But Salem couldn't close the deal in the final 35 seconds, missing the front-end of a oneand-one twice.

Franklin then called timeout with 13.2 seconds left to set up a final three-point attempt. The ures were sophomore guards John Edwards and C.J. Grantham, who had 14 and 12, respectively, and Edwards, who had 11.

The Tigers finished with nine three-point baskets, including four from John Edwards.

Belleville jumped to a 13-4 lead despite having Griffin on the bench to start the game. Griffin missed a recent practice while out of town on a recruiting visit so Fisher didn't start him.

"He still played as many minutes, if not more, than usual," Fischer said.

Young dominated the second quarter, scoring 11, including a dunk with 40 seconds left that lead Belleville led 36-32 at the half and 59-43 after three quarters but couldn't get comfortable with McDonald launching bombs and Young dominating the paint in the second half.

The Tigers managed to contain CC's talented sophomore point guard Nick Moore, who was held to four points while grabbing eight rebounds.

They just wouldn't go away," Fisher said. "We planned to stop those two (Young and McDonald) and try to contain Moore. A couple times Young beat us down the court and a couple times he outscrapped us to the ball."

In the first four-minute overtime, Mike Klisz scored inside to give Franklin a 65-64 lead with 29 seconds left, but Salem senior point-guard Andy Power, who ed the Rocks with 16 points, split a pair of free throws nine seconds later to knot the score at 65-all, forcing another OT. Biga then put the Patriots ahead for keeps, 68-65, when he grabbed a rebound inside and scored while being fouled with 3:37 to go. He made the free throw and converted three more pivotal jumpers to give Franklin the win.

"We had more than one person step it up tonight," Franklin coach Dan Robinson said. "I

"We played with a lot of heart and they always believed. We dug in at the end and executed our offense well. We knew Matt was hot, and we kept going to him. We were patient.

Andres Lopez, a 6-4 senior for-ward, scored 12 of his 14 points during the final 16 minutes of action. Mair finished with 10, while Jeff McKian had eight.

"We had some kids come off the bench and play well," Brodie said. "Maybe I should have stuck with those guys a little longer.

"We've been playing on the edge the last four or five games. There are no 'gimmees' right now in this league. There are still some good teams at the top, thought our guards played well. but from top to bottom, anybody Pete Sosa didn't score, but he did can beat anybody on a given night."

"It would have been a little smoking.' Franklin led 18-13 after one

The Spartans finished with two champions in 103-pound junior Katsuhiko Sueda and 145pound senior Nick Petryk.

Sueda improved to 32-5 as he posted three victories en route to repeating as the WLAA champion at 103. He earned a technical fall over Northville's Ben Ashby in the final.

Petryk, who boasts a 35-3 record, also repeated as the WLAA champion with an 8-2 victory over Central's Randy Morgan in the final.

"I was looking forward to wrestling Morgan in the finals," Petryk said. "We hadn't wrestled before today, but he's beaten a lot of good wrestlers and I knew it would be a tough match.

"He took me down in the first period it kinda woke me up, and I got back to my game plan.'

Five wrestlers placed second for Stevenson and two grabbed third-place honors.

Richard Bramer (275), Chris Goins (112), Jeff Brach (125), Dan Seder (130) and Mike Allison (160) finished second while Brian Barker (140) and Derek Wieland (215) placed third.

"When we came in here, we wanted to win because we've won it the last three years and we didn't want to give it up," Petryk said.

"We lost to Central by a point and lost the dual meet title, but we felt we could beat them.

"As a senior it's great to win the team championship and go out as a champion. Everybody stepped up and nearly everybody placed. That was the difference for us.

Central went head-to-head with Stevenson in three championship bouts and won two. The Vikings finished with three champions - one more than the Spartans - but couldn't overcome Stevenson's depth.

Brothers Corey (sophomore) and Derek Vos (senior) paced the Vikings by winning back-to-back championships at 160 and 171, respectively.

Dan Aubry (130) won Central's other championship in one of the more exciting matches of the day.

Trailing Stevenson's Seder 3-1 entering the third period, Aubry scored a reverse with just 33 seconds left in regulation to tie the match, 3-3.

In overtime, Aubry got the takedown in 18 seconds to clinch the title. Seder had beaten Aubry 9-5 in a dual meet Jan.

"I wrestled him before and knew he had me beat on my feet." admitted Aubry, who improved to 31-6.

"I knew what he wanted to do, and I didn't let him have it.'

Corey Vos earned a 7-4 decision over Allison in the finals, and Derek followed with a 3-0 victory over John Glenn's Tim Reeves in a match pitting two defending league champions.

Reeves was the WLAA champ at 171 last year, and Vos was the league champ at 189.

"It feels good for us to win back-to-back like that," said Corey, who stands 30-4 on the year. "We stand behind each other whether we win or lose. We back each other up and help each other out."

Salem and Glenn were the only other teams with multiple champions.

Anwar Crutchfield (152) and Teono Wilson (189) won an individual championship for the Rocks. Glenn's winners included John Fedulchak (140) and Marc Dugas (275).

The other champions were Livonia Churchill's Bob Fowler (215), Northville's Rick Torrence (112), Walled Lake Western's Steve Atwell (119), Livonia Franklin's Aaron Haddad (125) and Farmington's Charlie Jaeger (135)

Shamrocks rule in league

Detroit Catholic Central finished 20.5 points better than its nearest competition t Saturday's Catholic League Wrestling Meet, but it didn't look so promising in the early rounds for the Shamrocks.

Orchard Lake St. Mary's was in first place through two rounds, recording 117.5 points to CC's 101.5.

The Shamrocks took command, however, and won their 17th Catholic League crown in the last 20 years. CC finished with 179 points and St. Mary's placed second at 158.5.

Birmingham Brother Rice was third (137.5), followed by Harper Woods Notre Dame (110.0) and Dearborn Divine Child (107.0).

"At first I thought they forgot about the tradition and pride," CC coach Mike Rodriguez said. "The fourth and fifth round they kicked in."

The Shamrocks won without Mitch Hancock, their 119-pound freshman sensation who has a bruised heel.

Hancock, CC's best chance to win a state title according to coach Mike Rodriguez, is questionable for Saturday's Division I individual district at Ferndale.

"I'm praying that he can make it," Rodriguez said. "I know he can win it. We run five miles a day in practice. It might be a stress fracture.'

Petersen beat Birmingham Brother Rice's Eric Steckling, 7-2, in the finals. The key match came in the first round where Petersen decisioned St. Mary's Nick Temples, 4-3, after falling behind 3-1.

Petersen took advantage of Temples relaxing after turning his back to him.

"To get into the finals was exciting for him," Rodriguez said. "He was getting beat badly, but turned it around, took the kid down. Temples walked away from Petersen, thinking he heard the whistle, started walking back to the center like the wrestling had stopped. Peterson took him down and beat him. He's on fire and with some luck might make it out of the (individual) district."

The Shamrocks won the 171, 189 and 215 pound divisions.

John Abshire took the 171 title with a 12victory over DC's Nick Phillips. Casey Rogowski won the 189 division with a 12-4 decision over St. Mary's Andy McDonald and Brocc Naysmith pinned Andrew Tip-pins of St. Mary's in 4:11 to win at 215. Seniors Jeff Bracken and Mike Zelenock each finished second.

Bracken was pinned by DC's Matt Osinski in 1:34 in the heavyweight finals. Zelenock lost to St. Mary's ryan Tyler 19-7 in the finals at 119.

Rodriguez predicts Abshire, Rogowski, Naysmith, Bracken and Hancock, if healthy, can advance out of the district.

He said 152-pounder Jeff Pascoe and 160-pounder Rob Wentworth have a decent chance as well.

Rodriguez expected the Shamrocks to win their team district (Wednesday at Southfield Lathrup) and to have a chance at winning next week's regional at Hazel Park.

"We're so young, it would be nice to get there (to the state meet)," Rodriguez said. We've got a shot to get up there. We'll probably have to get by Roseville."

Canton got six kills apiece from Jessica Orleman and Stephanie Chefan, with Orleman added 11 digs. Courtney Wells totaled 13 assists to kills, Jenny Sikora got 11 digs and Nikki Kovachevich had 10 digs.

"There's no way we can contend at the net with Salem," said Anderson. Then he summarized, "We just played bad, and they played good."

Which left the Salem JV and freshmen volleyballers screaming delightfully from the bleachers: "43! 43! 43!"

Crusaders fold in 2nd half; Cushman feted

Katie Cushman, Madonna University's sophomore guard, was named the NAIA's Great Lakes Sectional women's basketball player of the week for the period ending Feb. 9.

Cushman, a 5-foot-5 starter from Flint Powers HS, averaged 30.5 points, 3.5 rebounds, five assists and three steals in wins over Concordia College (80-65) and Spring Arbor (103-58).

Siena Heights 88, Madonna 75 (women): Well, Madonna University's women's team was hot.

The Lady Crusaders, winners of their previous three games, stayed that way through the first half of Tuesday's game at Siena Heights, building a 17-point advantage.

Then came the turnaround.

Siena Heights ravaged the Crusaders for 56 second-half points, while surrendering just 26. The loss left Madonna at 11-13; the Saints improved to 7-18. Dawn Pelc and Mary Murray

each scored 15 points and

grabbed eight rebounds to lead the Crusaders. Murray also had two steals. Katie Cushman added 14 points, five boards, five assists and two steals, and Chris Dietrich had 10 points.

Leaders for Siena Heights were Bevin Malley with 21 points and 11 boards; Jessica Spiegel with 16 points and four steals; Iwona Wojno with 13 points; and Christi Duminie with 12 points.

Siena outshot Madonna from the floor (31-of-58, 53 percent to the Crusaders 31-of-75, 41 percent), from three-point land (7of-13, 54 percent to 7-of-25, 28 percent) and from the free-throw line (19-of-28, 69 percent, to 6-of-8, 75 percent).

Madonna 86, St. Mary's 61 (men): Madonna University blitzed St. Mary's College in the first half, outscoring the Eagles 51-22, to build an insurmountable lead Friday at Madonna.

The victory boosted the Fighting Crusaders' record to 8-18. St. Mary's fell to 6-20.

John-Mark Branch and Brandon Slone each poured in 20 points to pace Madonna. They also had five rebounds apiece. Mike Maryanski added 19 points (including five three-pointers), eight boards, seven assists and two blocked shots.

Christian Emert also had a superb game with 10 points, 10 assists and three steals.

St. Mary's got 16 points from Kevin Spencer and 14 points and 12 rebounds from William Chesternut.

The difference was shooting. Madonna made 30-of-55 from the field (54.5 percent), 10-of-22 from three-point range (45.5 percent) and 16-of-25 from the freethrow line (64 percent). St. Mary's was 22-of-67 from the field (32.8 percent), 4-of-18 on triples (22.2 percent) and 13-of-30 on free throws (43.3 percent).

"We got one," he said after his Ocelots pounded Macomb CC Saturday at SC. The win improved SC's record to 6-17 overall, 3-8 in the Eastern Conference.

Thomas has had to utilize all of his shrinking bench in recent weeks, and against the Monarchs he had all sorts of contributors. Five Ocelots scored in double figures: Jose Bru (21), Naron Burks (19), Tymon Marshall (16), Dwaun Warmack (14) and Bruce Goode (13).

"The monkey's off my back," Thomas said. With Oakland CC and Henry Ford CC still to come, the question now is can Thomas keep it that way?

Falling short Raiders edged by 6th-ranked Mott in OT

Sophomore Thomas Henry continued his strong play with a team-high 25 points Saturday, but the Oakland Community College men's basketball team fell shy in its bid to upset nationally ranked Mott, losing 85-82in overtime.

'Mott, ranked No. 6 in the National Junior College Athletic Association Division II poll, held a 66-58 lead with 4:31 remaining in regulation.

The visiting Raiders roared back within 69-66 with 37 seconds left, and Henry drilled a three-pointer from the top of the key 25 seconds later to force overtime tied at 69.

Trailing by three in the extra session, The Raiders missed a potential game-tying triple at the buzzer.

Henry grabbed nine rebounds and just missed a double-double.

Sophomore forward Derrick White finished with 21 points and eight rebounds. Freshman guard Tom Walker (Southfield-Lathrup) had 19 points, seven assists, three blocks and three steals.

Dionte Harvey led all scorers with 29 points for Mott, 19-4 overall and 8-3 in the MCCAA Eastern Conference.

OCC entered the game coming off last Wednesday's 69-56 triumph over visiting Alpena."

The Raiders scored the game's first 14 points and led 18-1 at one stage.

Henry led four players in double figures scoring with 15 points, nine coming on three-pointers. Walker had 14 points and five assists, White 11 points and eight rebounds and Isaih Carter 10 points and 10 rebounds.

The Raiders, 6-5 in the conference and 11-10 overall, traveled to Macomb CC on Wednesday and will host Schoolcraft at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Orchard Ridge Campus.

Talk to your doctor about prostate cancer. Your prostate is a small gland located at the base of your bladder. Many men don't even know they have a prostate or that prostate cancer is common, especially among older men. In fact, prostate cancer is the leading form of cancer in Michigan.

What should you do? If you're between 50 and 75 years old, ask your doctor if you should be tested. Have this talk when you turn 40 if there is prostate cancer in your family or if you're African American. And if you experience pain or discomfort when you urinate, see a doctor right away.

'The Kiss'

Embracing art: There is no better way to capture the heart of an art enthusiast than with "The Kiss" sculpture. It embodies passion, romance and love - the very essence of Valentine's Day. Artist Auguste Rodin first made a model of this now famous embrace in 1886. This sculpture is an authentic reproduction of the original in the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. Made of white alvastone, the sculpture rests on a black square base and measures 12 inches high. "The Kiss" retails for $140 at DIA in the Somerset Collection, on Big Beaver Road, one mile west of I-75 in Troy.

celebrating families for two at a trés chic restaurant? How much one dozen roses have gone up in price over last year's order? What time the children go to bed so you and your spouse can have that candlelight dinner for two?

Did you ever think about how much you can show the rest of the family you care? Valentine's Day may be billed as the day for lovers, but who said you must stick with tradition? Valentine's Day is a wonderful opportunity to strengthen family ties among loved

Set aside a portion of the day to do something special as a family. Schedule a family portrait sitting for early evening if you can still find one available. If you have to schedule one for a later time, take the opportunity to talk about what everyone wants to wear while seated at dinner Friday evening.

My sister, Julie, did something very special for me for my baby shower several years ago

She found old photographs of the two of us in our early grade school days. We were dressed up in my grandmother's dresses, costume jewelry and high heels. Julie had the photographs enlarged, matted and framed. Upon my opening them, tears of joy and years of nemories overcame me.

Why not dig up some precious mementoes to wrap and present to your family? Heartfelt memories found in a worn Teddy bear that your daughter away at college forgot about, a love letter your spouse gave you while you were dating, or a batch of your 6-yearold's favorite cookies each hold special meaning to you and your loved ones.

Start your own Valentine's Day family tradition. Begin a family journal, if you haven't already, and jot down special moments you don't want to forget over the years. Leave the journal in an easily accessible place where anyone in the family can create a new entry when the time calls.

Each Valentine's Day, set some family time aside to sit together and read one or more entries aloud. Maybe everyone will have a good laugh - or more importantly, remember what it is that makes your family so special.

"Rx for Houseplants" is the Feb. 27 class. This is a difficult time of year not only for people but for houseplants as well. The dry air and lack of sunshine is a real problem. Charmer: Marilyn Capelli-Dimitroff "found" this charmina Cotswold cottage on a photography trip to England.

Inspired photos are everywhere

There are many places where good pictures can be found, but it is easy to overlook them. Often, they are camouflaged by their surroundings or they need to be looked at from a dif-MONTE NAGLER ferent angle or in a different light.

But if you begin to think in terms of making photographs," not taking snapshots, and begin to look through what I refer to as "square eyeballs," you'll be able to find many terrific photo opportunities

Simple and apparently uninspiring things can often be the basis of a great shot. It could be a wall, a door, the texture of peeling paint or a rusted piece of farm equipment.

To find good photographs, constant awareness is required. You must learn to really "see" and be able to zero-in and isolate subjects from their surroundings.

Sometimes a picture is waiting to be taken but may not be apparent from normal eye level. It may need a high or low viewpoint or require a different field of view given by a wide angle or telephoto lens to fit the composition in the frame

So take time to evaluate the surroundings. Look at them selectively. With practice, even the most ordinary places and objects can be made to yield impact-filled images that most people simply overlook.

On a recent workshop in England, one of my best students, Marilyn Capelli-Dimitroff, went wandering in the charming Cotswold village of Chipping Camden. She got the photographic payoff with this delightful shot of an unusual thatched roofed cottage. Careful composition helped Marilyn to add impact to her shot.

Learning to find pictures can be very rewarding indeed and will add memorable shots to your picture portfolio.

JALIN,

Bring out the romance all year long

We are always eminded to express love on Valentine's Day - what about the rest of the year when we don't have Hallmark to prod us into doing something thoughtful. Romance and those little expressions of love can, and should go on, throughout the year - not just on one designated day. I'm not knocking Valentine's Day - I'm sug-

.111

When love is new and fresh, it's easy to be romantic. When relationships become comfortable, 'old hat' or just plain in need of a "jump start" - we need to be creative to regenerate that "old feeling." Plan some romantic interludes, make them all different - from a cozy evening for two to a special "afternoon delight." Pick out an array of romantic music, choose a movie that will be just right, plan a picnic (indoors, this time of year), write a special little handwritten note to include in a packed lunch, or one left coyly under a dinner

If planning a romantic rendezvous for two at dinner, bring out the candles (not scented ones, they interfere with the food), fine china, linens, and champagne. Serve a delicious menu; perhaps an artichoke to share, some chilled Carrot-Orange Soup, or some warmed chèvre cheese in a light tomato sauce, and onto an entree of juicy Prime Rib, Bison Bolognese, or Stir-Fried Tofu and delicate, crisp vegetables.

Accompaniments should be favorites, and desserts can be sinful, or delicate and light. A sweet for your sweet can be vanilla or chocolate - sensual sweets are an easy task; a special piece of fine chocolate, a delicious Crème Brûlèe, a warmed bread pudding with either vanilla or chocolate sauce, a light chocolate mousse or a delicious ice cream drink with some shaved chocolate on top.

A picnic is always romantic - your setting this time of year is left to lots of creativity. Have your picnic in front of the fireplace with a crackling fire aglow, a picnic in place of breakfast in bed, a midnight picnic for two, or a luncheon picnic in your library or den with an open book of Shakespeare's Sonnets, or your favorite romantic prose.

Be creative with your setting, your background music, your menu, and those little extras (give a try at writing a poem). Remember, a little love note

BISON BOLOGNESE

Yield: 12 servings

ann mar

This recipe is a takeoff on a tradition al Italian Bolognese, minus the fat, it's lo-cal and delicious. You can certainly replace the ground bison with ground beef. If you want to make it a truly traditional Bolognese recipe use beef chuck ground twice and add a small bit of chopped pancetta. Serve this flavorful sauce over the pasta of your choice - I usually prefer it over spaghetti.

2 tablespoons light olive oil

6 medium onions, chopped

2 small carrots, peeled (scraped), and shredded

1 rib celery, trimmed, and finely chopped

2 pounds ground buffalo/bison

1 cup dry white wine

1-2 cans (should equal 2 pounds) seasoned diced tomatges (Dei Fratelli if possible)

2 tablespoons tomato paste

4 cups chicken stock (home made or prepared)

1/2 cup 1/2 percent milk

Sea salt and freshly ground black pep-

Spaghetti (or any type of pasta) or Freshly steamed crisp green beans

Heat the light olive oil in a heavy French or Dutch oven over medium heat. Add the onions, carrots, and celery for 15 to 20 minutes or until the vegetables are sauteed but not browned. Add the ground bison meat and simmer and stir frequently, until lightly browned, remove and discard any excess liquid in the pot with a baster.

Add the wine and let evaporate for 5-6 ninutes.

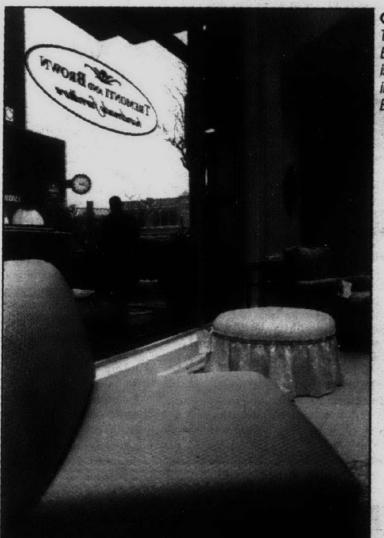

In a food processor or blender, puree the canned tomatoes along with the liquid contained in the can. Add the pureed tomatoes to the meat, add the tomato paste. Bring the mixture to a boil and add 1/2 cup of the chicken broth. Bring to another boil, then lower the heat and gently simmer partially covered, for 5 hours, adding the remaining chicken broth in 1/2 cup increments until the chicken broth is gone.

When the cooking time is up, stir in the milk - season to taste with the sea salt and freshly ground black pepper. Mix well and remove from the heat source. Serve hot and over pasta or freshly steamed green beans.

Cooks note: this sauce keeps well for several days in the refrigerator - freezes

Custom furniture fits in many ways

BY MARY KLEMIC At Home Editor

"I like interesting, eclectic things," former Birmingham resident Michelle Silberstein said.

Silberstein loves to window shop for such items in New York, where she lives. A recent visit to downtown Birmingham turned her fantasizing about furniture into reality.

Silberstein stopped in at Tremonti and Brown, 280 Merrill, and ordered two couches made to order for the apartment where she and her and her husband live.

"Really cool," she said of the finished pieces. "They fit perfectly."

The couches fit in every way - with the couple's individual styles, in the apartment and even through the narrow hallway that had hampered furniture deliveries to other residents.

Susan Tremonti and Andrea Brown opened their custom upholstered furniture business last year. It offers a variety of styles and furnishings, including about nine different sofas, seven different chairs and six different ottomans. Headboards, lounges and daybeds are also available.

"Basically what we are is a showroom of samples, styles and sizes," Brown said.

"What you see can be altered. A loveseat can be (modified) - 60 inches can become 65 inches or 62 inches."

"(Pieces are) functional as well as comfortable and elegant," Tremonti said.

The two women are longtime friends, and it shows in their cheerful manner and in the pleasant atmosphere of the showroom.

The lyrics "Our house is a very very very nice house" come to mind as you enter the shop, which features a large mural by artist Mike McCath. Finished furnishings are everywhere, along with accent pieces. Such elements as a fireplace at one wall and a bookcase at another make sections of the showroom like mini rooms, helping give the idea of how a furnishing would look at a home.

Fabric samples are displayed in large rolls along one wall. The samples are cut in yard sizes, plenty to drape over furniture, another feature that helps customers visualize something done in the material.

"We specialize in our fabrics," Brown said.

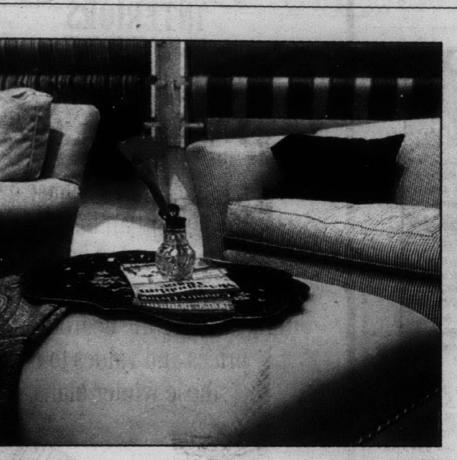

Frames are handcut from kiln-dried hardwoods. Springs are heavy steel coil, tied by hand eight ways into wide bands of interwoven jute webbing. Arms and legs of furniture can be mixed and matched.

An order takes eight to 10 weeks, from the day it is placed to delivery. The construction is done at a workshop in North Carolina. Finished pieces are shipped to a warehouse, from which they are delivered to the customer.

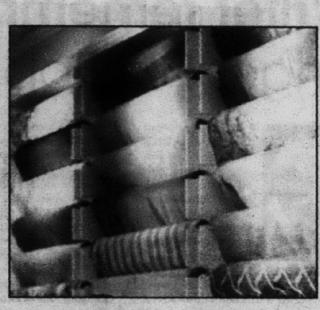

Tremonti and Brown has filled orders for office lounges as well as for residences. The women estimate that their customers have ranged in age from 27 to 60s.

"It's different with each person," Tremonti said. "Sometimes they come in knowing exactly what they want."

Tremonti and Brown offers design consultation as well Asked about trends they have seen, Brown and Tremonti replied that large, firm ottomans used as coffee tables are popular. Brown's background is in interior design, Tremonti's in psychology. They researched what the business would present. After Silberstein selected the style of furniture for her order, Brown and Tremonti worked with the paint, molding, rug and colors in the couple's apartment and sent fabric cuttings for approval. They incorporated the size of the hallway in the measurements so delivery would be more easily accommodated.

One of the couches, in an art deco style, featured a linen fabric that had an off-white background and a colorful pattern. Brown and Tremonti came up with peacock blue throw pillows as accents. The other piece, a loveseat in green velvet material, fit the requirements of Silberstein's husband.

"He wanted something a little squishier," Tremonti said.

drama. Last Thursday I attended a function at this school and was thanked by many people for doing what has been done. The raising of more than $28,000 is no small feat for anyone, but with the help of his widow, Carole Taylor and the blessing of WJR, we have accomplished this dollar figure and will continue to go for more.

It is to you the public that I say thank you. I say it because it comes from Robert Edward Taylor himself.

William Shakespeare once wrote, "What's in a name?" In the case of Fat Bob, The Singing Plumber, the "what's" . are many.

Fat Bob was a multi-talented performer whose "act" spanned all facets of the musical scene. In the night clubs or on the banquet stage his routine would take the audience from musical comedy to opera to country western to pop with an easy comedy background. Over the years, Bob had developed a sharp, clean, comedy delivery that helped him present his musical talents in an unusual, original and exciting manner.

This rare ability had made him a much sought after MC and after dinner performer. Bob was born in Learnington, Ontario, Canada, and moved to the United States with his parents and completed high school in east Lansing. He joined the Air Force and was assigned to Special Services, putting on shows, performing on television and he wound up as the program director of the base radio station. He also was the staff vocalist with WOIA-TV in San Antonio, Texas. After the service, he spent some years in the plumbing business, after which Bob decided to study music seriously and spent two years in the drama and music department at EMU. He then transferred to the University of Michigan and started a serious opera career. He won the Metropolitan Opera Contest for the Great Lakes Region and went to New York, where he performed at the "Old Met." He was offered a position with this company and returned to Ann Arbor for further study.

He intended to join the Met but this never happened. That all, Bob happened to be listening to WJR one morning while working as a plumber on a construction project. (He did this between semesters to pay for his schooling). The D.J. was the well known and popular J.P. McCarthy, who was claiming that the recording of the "Vesti La Guiba" he was playing has been sung by himself. As a joke, Bob called J.P. and told him on the air that he was flat. J.P. challenged Bob to sing the aria on the phone. Bob sang the first line and WJR went off the air for five seconds. The amazed J.P. came back with "What's your name pal?" Off the top of his head Bob said, "I'm Fat Bob the Plumber from Ann Arbor." J.P. retorted, "You're now Fat Bob the Singing Plumber from Ann Arbor."

To be continued next week. More on Fat Bob, who he was, how he halped so many and why the writer of this column will keep his memory alive.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor. will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appli-ances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area book

O: Last year we hired an architect to design an addition to our home. To make a long story short, after months of planning and many meetings we found we could not have the addition built with all the items we wanted for a cost we could afford. While we really need the added space, we are not sure we want to pursue the project as currently planned. Should we get more quotes on the plans we have (we currently have six quotes). Where can we on from here?

A. First of all, I wouldn't pursue more quotes. I think it would be grossly infair for you to call any other contractors to present a quote on a job that could not be built as planned for your budget by any of the six contractors who had bid the job. The problem is not the contractor.

match your budget. You may want to consider using a Design/Build contractor to help you. Design/Build contractors tie design, needs, wants and budget together from the get go. Everything, including your budget is laid out in the first meeting to see if it is possible. If the space you are planning doesn't meet your budgetary constraints then there has to be an honest conversation about what compromises can be made to keep your remodeling project in budget while it satisfies our "needs."

What you need, and what you want, are often two different things. Developing a plan that addresses your spatial, physical, aesthetic and monetary needs

Unfortunately, your plan does not first may help. After developing your "needs" list then, if your budget allows, move on to your "wants" list. I would suggest you interview no more than three design/build contractors. Pick the one you like and trust, check his or her references and lay out a plan and bud-

If everyone is in agreement, you can move forward with the project. Keep in mind that with the design/build contractor, a budget is always monitored and discussed, through all phases of planning and buildings. Be aware of the fact that committing to a Design/Build contractor will mean you are gaining his expertise in tying budget to design. They also are able to listen to your wants and needs and put it together in a building package that is affordable.

In Design/Build expect to pay fees to the contractor ahead of time to help develop plans and specifications that can be developed to meet your needs. A well thought out plan with specifications can take up to 80 hours of working time for a Design/Build contractor to research, plan and price the project. If you are serious and you would really like to move forward with the project, I suggest you forget about getting any more quotes but instead interview Design/Build contractors. Good Luck!

Take heart: Make Valentines last

Tomorrow is Valentine's Day and I'll bet the florists are busy getting beautiful and meaningful bouquets ready for delivery. There are some things you can do when the gift arrives to prolong the length of time you can enjoy the flowers. Before putting the bouquet in a container, cut an inch off the bottom of the stems, at an angle. If a packet of flower preservative is included, follow the directions and use it, unless you put the flowers in a metal container (which can change the chemical balance).

A piece of charcoal will keep the water sweet, some people rely on aspirin or a few drops of chlorine bleach, others think a small amount of sugar is beneficial. I believe the preservative is the best.

Heat and low humidity aren't good for flowers. Put them in a place where you can enjoy them although it's best not to set them in direct sunlight or on a television, which can get warm on the top. Place them in a cooler area where the temperature drops to the 40s or 50s at night.

Keep the water level "topped up."

Love-ly present: Cut flowers are a perfect valentine's gift. These are carnations.

Flowers can drink an amazing amount of water in a day. If you can, change the water every couple of days and when you do, recut the stems so that they can absorb more water

After doing this a time or two you might want to use a shorter container to conquer the subtleties of orchid grow-keep the arrangement in proportion. I often end up with two or three of the longer-lasting flowers in a small vase to enjoy the blooms as long as possible.

Hints for buyers

Now, here are some hints for you who are buying the flowers.

When you choose them, remember that strongly scented flowers such as hyacinth, jasmine and the Casablanca lily should be mixed only with unscented flowers or foliage because their fragrance alone is enough.

To make the gift even more special, buy a wonderful container, perhaps a tall crystal vase, a short, fat terra cotta or clay pitcher, something made of hammered brass or an antique silver piece. Present it with the flowers, or take it to the florist so that the flowers you choose will complement the container.

Perhaps the flowers will be arranged in their own basket or bowl. Care is the same except it won't be possible to recut the stems. Remove the flowers as they fade and eventually you may want to transfer the remaining ones to another container. Keep the oasis moist.

Cactus auestion

Don Hodges of Farmington Hills and Kerry Krivoshein of Troy have solved our question about the cactus I wrote about Jan. 23.

They tell me the "growth" on the top isn't a bloom at all but is a Gymnocalycium (a desert) cactus that is grafted onto a Hylocerues, a jungle cactus. The species is Mihanovcchii. There is no chlorophyll in this top plant so it needs to be grafted to another plant that contains chlorophyll, so it will grow.

With the absence of chlorophyll, the colors range from red, orange, yellow. This cactus, native to South America, needs cooler temperatures than the Hylocerues, which likes warmer conditions

These plants are considered novelty items and aren't very long-lived because of their different temperature requirements. Hodges told me he had kept one for four or five years. I think that's a pretty good record. Many thanks to you both for the information.

many phone calls to home inspection companies. Radon is a naturally occurring radioactive gas that is found outdoors as well as indoors. Radon is formed as a part of the decay chain of uranium found in the Earth's rock and

Outdoors, Radon is of little concern, as it quickly dissipates and levels are almost always low. Indoors, Radon can concentrate in high levels and thus become a health concern. The EPA ranks Radon gas behind smoking as the second leading cause of lung cancer. Radon is estimated to contribute to between 7,000 and 30,000 lung cancer deaths each

While most residences don't have significantly elevated Radon levels, enough do for the EPA to recommend that all homes be tested. The EPA estimates that nearly one out of every 15 residences in the United States has Radon levels above the recommended action level.

Testing is inexpensive and correction of elevated Radon levels isn't difficult. The EPA's efforts are directed at finding the residences with high levels and encouraging remediation of them.

In our next column, we will discuss common Radon test technologies and their advantages and disadvantages. It is important that only EPA listed laboratories and test companies be hired for Radon testing. For a list of approved companies, contact one of the resources listed at the end of this column.

How does Radon get indoors?

Radon is the only step in the uranium radioactive decay chain in which a gas is formed. As a gas, it is colorless and odorless and can move easily through soil and can be absorbed by water. It can also easily move into structures, through the normal cracks and building component penetrations found in nearly all dwellings.

Because soil gas is usually under higher pressure than air pressure in the residence, particularly on lower levels, Radon-containing soil gas is driven into the structure to equalize air pressure. Radon can be found in houses of all ages and construction styles. Historical houses are no less likely to have elevated Radon levels than new construction. Houses on slabs or crawl spaces are no more immune than houses with full hasements

Certain home construction techniques can reduce the risk of elevated Radon, if planned in advance of construction. If you are having a home built, contact one of the information sources below, for more information on Radon-resistant building techniques.

Is it really a hazard?

Flore Plan is class sourced

As Radon decays, it turns into radioactive lead, polonium and bismuth solids. These decay products attach to dust and smoke and can then be inhaled. Extended exposure will cause lung tissue damage, potentially leading to cancer.

Smokers are at greater risk than nonsmokers, due to smoking's damage to the naturally protective lining of the lungs. There is little scientific dispute that prolonged exposure to elevated Radon gas is a health hazard.

There is, however, scientific debate over what level Radon should be mitigated (reduced). The EPA and the Amera ican Lung Association have established four picocuries per litre as the recommended action level for this country. This is considered to be about the same probability as drowning.

This isn't so much a health-based number as it is a technology-based level. Most residences have Radon levels reduced to levels below four with little difficulty.

Some scientists believe that the level is artificially low and that homeowners without significant cost. shouldn't be concerned until levels are higher. Other countries have action levels ranging from four to 22. Some recent els below four show no signs of significant added health risk.

The EPA, American Lung Association and World Health Organization all say that the best scientific evidence suggests a strong link between prolonged exposure to elevated Radon and lung cancer.

As a means of prevention, EPA and the Office of the Surgeon General recommend that all homes below the third floor be tested for Radon.

Romantic comedy: Matthew Perry stars as Alex Whitman, an east coast fish-out-ofwater who discovers Isabel Fuentes (Salma Hayek) the love of his life in Las Vegas in "Fools Rush In."

In Hollywood opposites attract

BY JOHN MONAGHAN . SPECIAL WRITER

At theaters:

he love impulse in man frequently veals itself in terms of conflict." It sounded silly when she said it, but when Katharine Hepburn quoted her psychiatrist to a bewildered Cary Grant in "Bringing Up Baby," she was touching a fundamental cornerstone of Hollywood romance.

If there really are only variations of seven basic stories, the idea of love arising from a good battle comes in at least three of them

Woody Allen has always been a master of the mismatched. It's strange enough to see him jogging after Julia Roberts through the streets of Venice. Things get really weird when Tim Roth's death row inmate starts flirting (and scoring) with Yuppie Drew Barrymore.

♥ "Fools Rush In" - Matthew Perry plays a strait-laced Manhattan corporate type whose one-nighter with a Las Vegas dancer (Salma Hayek) turns into a long-term romance. "Hamlet" - Talk about conflict. Not only does Shakespeare's great Dane drive true love Ophelia to the drink, there's also that weirdness going on between Hamlet and his mother, though Kenneth Branagh has apparently toned this down in his four-hour version. "In Love and War" - According to literary legend, Ernest Hemingway had his first affair with an older woman, a nurse who cared for him during his Doughboy days in World War I. Her refusal to take him seriously (she called him "Kid") supposedly resulted in wounds of the heart from which the writer never quite recovered. • "One Fine Day"- In classic screwball comedy style, Michelle

Pfeiffer and George Clooney play single parents thrown together on one chaotic day. The only thing they have in common is their fear of falling in love again. Guess what happens

"The Whole Wide World"

Schoolteacher Novalyne Price (Renee Zellweger) was the only woman to experience some degree of intimacy with Robert E. Howard (Vincent D'Onofrio), enigmatic creator of the Conan the Barbarian pulp stories. The offbeat love story bows Feb. 14-16 at the Detroit Film Theatre.

For Dalton, romance begins with respect

BY JOHN MONAGHAN SPECIAL WRITER

For the actor formerly known as James Bond, truly romantic movies are the ones in which true love arises out of difficulty and that bring together polar opposites in search of common ground.

Good relationships in life are those that are earned, where you actually have respect for each other ... All of those ones where you fall in love with a pretty face end up in disaster because they're superficial," said Timothy Dalton, in town recently to promote his new movie "Beautician and the Beast."

The concept has been ingrained in him since his first movie, where he played the youngest son to the fighting king and queen in 1968's "The Lion in Winter.'

"That movie is about two extremely powerful people who were fighting each other all the time," he said, "but in a way that fueled their passion.

"I suppose "(Who's Afraid of) Virginia Woolf" is a great romance in a way because the characters loved each other, yet tore each other apart." "Beautician and Beast" follows a similar story. It stars Fran Drescher (TV's "The Nanny") as a cosmetology school graduate who arrives in a tiny Eastern European nation as teacher to the children of a Stalin-like dictator. Through the course of the movie, she charms his kids and eventually him.

"We start with two people completely opposite who don't even like each other - he certainly doesn't like her," Dalton said. "Yet through some kind of struggle, through getting to know what each other is really about, a certain kind of love and respect is gained."

Rodeo showman: S.L. Pemberton is a multi-talented showman. He's an accomplished trick and fancy rider, and top notch trick roper for the Longhorn World Championship Rodeo.

While Rick and Ilsa, Bonnie and Clyde, and Romeo and Juliet exist as star-crossed lovers who simply meet at the wrong time, many people relate more to this notion: the person you'd least expect to be with at the beginning of the movie is standing next to you on the altar as the screen fades to black.

The idea of mismatched couples kindles our imagination. Would the marriage of Julia Roberts to Lyle Lovett have been such a big deal if Hollywood's most eligible bachelorette hadn't married a guy that much of the world thought looked like a geek?

According to Hollywood, love makes no sense. It's a good screenwriter's job to some how work it all out.

There's a 'trick' to their happiness

BY KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER

They can't imagine not being together, or working behind a desk - trick riding's the life for S.L. and Loretta Pemberton who have been married a year and travel with Longhorn World Championship Rodeo. "It's wonderful. We enjoy each other's company," said Loretta. Their son Cy Aubrey was born in November, and travels with them.

"Our family is our number one priority," said Loretta. "Then work. For awhile we just had us and the horses to take care of. Now I feel like I ain't doing noth-ing. I take care of the baby, and he saddles and unsaddies the horses. I feel like he has the harder part. Sometimes I take care of the horses, and he takes care of the baby While she was expecting Cy Aubrey, Loretta took a break from trick riding. Getting started again in January wasn't easy. "For awhile I was a couch potato," she said. "I was carrying extra weight. During practice I would vault off the horse and couldn't get back on. The horse would run me over. It took me a couple of falls to get aggressive again. I said 'I can do this.' Having a baby brought a new challenge to trick riding.

"It's been different," said S.L. about life in the rodeo with baby. "Having a baby adds a lot more luggage.

Getting back on a horse after you've fallen off, gotten kicked and bruised takes patience and a can do attitude. S.L. and Loretta have both.

Trick riding used to be a competitive event, but now it's just for show, explained S.L. who describes the event as gymnastics on horse

He started at age 10. "We lived in Milan, Tenn., on a 100 acre farm. My dad had seen it done before and he suggested trying it. I started roaming - riding by standing on ponies. I practiced four hours a day until I was standing up while everybody else rode sitting down."

Loretta started trick riding at the age of 12. A family friend/retired trick rider, began showing her some of the fundamentals, and she made it her life's work. "We had an old trail horse that I started on," said Loretta. "He was a big old lug, and treated me good."

"It takes about three to four years of training to get the horse to where you can trust them," said S.L. "We spend our off time working with the horses. You want to have a good level-headed horse with a good disposition who won't mind you hanging all over him.

There's a lot of trust between horse and rider. "You just can't get up on any horse and trick ride." said Loretta. "You have to learn how to read each other. You don't want a wild horse, but one that will tolerate what you're doing.

You've got to get along with your Pemberton is a multi-talented

"She's one of the best trick riders to come along in the past quarter century or so," said W. Bruce Lehrke, Longhorn president about Loretta. "She can do things with ease and grace that other riders won't even attempt."

S.L. and Loretta both enjoy performing. "Once you start doing it and get the first applause, you want to keep doing it," said S.L. "The audience plays a major role in it," adds Loretta. "They give you the energy."

Encouraging new writers is one of the most important missions of a theater. Few community theaters attempt public performances, because of uncertain results. Over the years, no one can say that The Theatre Guild has ever lacked theatrical courage, however. Their audiences have come to expect the unexpected and look forward to unique experiences- like seeing a playwright's ideas take shape on the stage

There are no polished gems and the acting is a bit spotty, but overall the Guild's "Festival of One-Act Plays" is an enjoyable evening of theater.

David MacGregor writes and directs the first offering, "The Adventure of the Elusive Ear." Sherlock Holmes (Thom Griffin) and his sidekick Dr. Watson (Mark Flanders) are visited by, who else with "ear" in the title, Vincent van Gogh (Keith Prusak). It's a clever idea, that could use a bit more complicated sleuthing, before Holmes deduces that the ear in question is in the cuff of van Gogh's pants. Actually, news accounts of the day report that van Gogh gave his ear to a girl at a nearby brothel after a spat with fellow painter, Paul Gauguin.

The next play, "Tired of Mama" needs some work. The short scenes do not fully develop the plot or give us a chance to learn much about the characters. The present form is more like an outline. A daughter (Lisa Curry) with an elderly mother (Helen Weiss) in a nursing home considers paying an orderly to take the mother out of her misery. The story of how the daughter reconsiders would flow better if playwright, James Bogner, gave us more fully developed characters.

Del Johnston, writer and director of "Between The lines" does a much better job of a finished work. Though the narrative portion goes on a bit too much, Johnston conveys the idea that there is more to a life than a few words in an obituary. Barbara Young and Bill MacKenzie are effective as the grandparents, who once were children, newlyweds and parents. Dan Glomski, Marie Majewski, Nancy Florkowski, Ed Howell, and Robyn Lipnicki play them and assorted relatives in earlier

"The John Doe" show is perhaps the most theatrical piece of the evening. Written by Justin LaBond and directed by Danny Ratke, the show features Keith Prusak in a casket (standing upright with a single light above his head). The setting is eerie and the jokes a bit sick at times, but we learn that our actions can have dramatic effects on the people we love. Especially, getting ourselves drunk and killed in an automobile accident.

The finale is called "Tag." Written and directed by Tony Lawry, the play concerns a young couple (Kelly Ludtke and Matthew Tobey) who live together, but date others. As we meet them, they're coping with our modern techno world. Phone messages from mother, and a series of phone calls to new dates about where to meet, what movie

Enthusiastic young cast shines in 'Hello Dolly'

Westland All. Stars Youth Theatre presents "Hello Dolly," 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Feb. 14.15, Wayne Memorial High School, 3001 Fourth Street, Wayne. Tickets $5, (313) 722-BY LIBBY PRYSBY SPECIAL WRITER

As the curtain opens to the well-known musical "Hello Dolly." children of all ages are seen in their places ready to sing "Call on Dolly,' the opening number in this production by the Westland All-Stars and Westland Parks and Recreation Department. The young thespians, grades one through 12, sing with smiles and expression, showing how many hours they have rehearsed for this production

The talented actors, nice costumes, and simple but effective sets add to this entertaining performance. The natural antics of the youngest players also steal the audiences' hearts.

B. Buddington, who is in the seventh grade at Stevenson Middle School, portrays Dolly Levi. A very talented actress and singer, Buddington entertains the audience with her exuberant body gestures while teasing us with her playful mannerisms. Buddington is ideal for the role. Another actress of note is Bree LaFortune, she plays Mrs. Rose, an old lady. Her fantastic "Yonkers" accent and well-developed moves, the way she hobbles across the stage is so believable, make this chorus member a show stopper. LaFortune proves us wrong in believing that she is very old when she does a cartwheel across the stage. LaFortune is truly a talented young woman.

Robert J. Harris, as Barnaby Tucker, is another fine performer. This 12-year old employs outstanding facial expressions and body gestures throughout the musical. Various funny lines said by Harris add humor to the production and the somewhat boring lives of Barnaby and Cornelius Hackel, played by Ian McGuire.

Other actors who add to this production are Erin Lulek (Minnie Fay), Matt Balla, who plays the court clerk, Rachel Lulek (Ernestina Money), and Bryan Smith, who plays the judge. The chorus also does a great job dancing the polka, walking the city streets of Yonkers, and serving guests at the Harmonica Gardens.

The costumes are nicely done. Townspeople can be seen wearing different colored skirts and hats, comparable to those worn in the 1890s. Male cast members are dapper in their dress with caps, hats and suspenders.

Dolly's outfits, especially the would be lost if some of the dancdress worn at the Harmonica Gardens, gives a sense of style and elegance, certainly something that mark a person like Dolly Levi.

The sets for the various scenes are simple, but creative. The Yonkers Railroad Station even has a "trolley" that is pulled across the stage. The Harmonica Gardens (a restaurant) is enhanced with the use of curtains pulled open and closed by the characters to focus attention on specific words and actions.

While the production is mostly delightful, some of the musical numbers go beyond what is needed for enjoyment. Nothing ing numbers and reprises were shortened.

The young actors in "Hello Dolly" show much enthusiasm and love for the theater. This of course, adds to the performance and makes this production enjoyable and entertaining. If looking for a play with laughter, happiness, and a lot of talent, "Hello Dolly," performed by the Wayne All-Stars is perfect.

Libby Prysby, a 10th grader at Birmingham's Groves High School, has been involved in children's and community theater productions for more than 12 years.

He can also appreciate oldfashioned romances, especially with Spencer Tracy, whose pairings with Katharine Hepburn remain favorites.

MOVIES Latest Elmore Leonard movie has 'the Touch'

BY JOHN MONAGHAN SPECIAL WRITER

E6(OF*)

For Juvenal, the monk-turnedsocial worker, having "the touch" means the laying of hands on the sick. A second or two of blood flowing from his palms and the blind see, the leukemia patient grows hair, the emotionally barren find some meaning in their lives.

For Bill, the tent evangelist down on his luck, "the touch" is his meal ticket to the big time. His slickly negotiated book deals and talk show appearances for Juvenal will net him a modest 90 percent for his efforts.

For writer Elmore Leonard and director Paul Schrader, "Touch," which opens Friday, is an equally lucrative collaboration. For the second time in as many years, Hollywood has figured out how to adapt the work of Detroit's most famous writer for the screen.

The formula, shown in "Get Shorty," is simple: the story is the star. Hire a charismatic actor (Travolta in the last, newcomer Skeet Ulrich here) and make talented character actors.

Ulrich, currently on screen in Wes Craven's "Scream," has a winning blend of naivette, sex appeal, and charm. With his penetrating brown eyes and easygoing personality, he is the perfect embodiment of a modern saint. He is intensely calm, even when it's obvious that he's being taken advantage of.

"How can I be exploited when I'm allowing it to happen," he tells Lynn, the woman sent to investigate his powers but who ends up falling in love with him

The casting here is so offbeat that you barely recognize the familiar performers. Bridget Fonda underplays Lynn as a woman who finds in Juvenal's touch a meaning in her life. And while I usually can't stand Tom Arnold, he's near-perfect as the clueless leader of Outrage, an ultra-conservative religious organization.

In one hilarious scene early on, he's in court for disrupting the musical portion of a Catholic mass (he thinks it should be spoken in Latin, not with guitars). He tells the presiding judge that he is unworthy to try this case because divorce makes him unclean in the eyes of the Lord. Christopher Walken, who has spent the better part of his career playing memorable villains, has one of his best roles in years as Bill, the shiny-suited evangelist responsible for the world's tallest illuminated Jesus. You could see its blue neon light from the highway, he says, "sort of like Stuckeys.

These typically eccentric characters (the stock-in-trade of acclaimed novelist Leonard) are well-served by writer/director Schrader, another native Michigander still best-known for his work with Martin Scorsese. As scriptwriter on "Taxi Driver" and "Raging Bull," he showed an amazing depth of character that comes in handy here.

"Touch" is a little film (made on a miniscule $5 million budget) but it's also heartfelt and surprisingly, almost offhandedly, moving. Though written 20 years ago, the story has relevance today about how something as genuine as Juvenal is almost invariably turned into a media circus.

Expect to see more Leonard on the screen soon. Quentin Tarantino has optioned no less than four of the author's novels (the first, "Rum-Punch," begins shooting soon) while Danny DeVito, who produced "Get Shorty," has another one in the works, which rumor has it will be filmed partially in Detroit.

"Touch" is proof positive that Leonard possesses something that most modern movies lack. There's something satisfying about Hollywood having to reach all the way to the Motor City to find someone who can pen a decent character for the screen.

John Monaghan welcomes your calls and comments. You can listen to him on Dave Dixon's Radio Show AM 1270, 8 p.m. to midnight Saturdays. To leave John a voice mail message, dial (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, mailbox 1866.

We asked readers to write to us about the most foolish thing they've ever done for love to receive two tickets to a preview screening of "Fools Rush In" on Feb. 11.

Visa & Mastercard Accepted

"Fools Rush In," a romantic comedy about a straight-laced corporate type from Manhattan who falls in love with a Las Vegas dancer, opens Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters.

The stories we received were heartwarming and fun, here are some of our favorites:

"I had planned to surprise my girlfriend with an engagement ring in her popcorn at the movies," wrote Don Steele of Waterford. "We got to the movies. I asked 'do you want any popcorn?' 'No,' she said. 'do you want anything?,' 'No,' she said. 'Are you sure?' I said 'I think I'm gonna get some popcorn.' She answered 'ok.' When I got back I said 'would you like some?' 'No,' she answered. 'Are you sure?' Then I got mad and said 'eat some.' She found the ring in the first handful."

Cindy Pauly of Waterford gave up a free cruise to the Bahamas with her office to throw a surprise 40th birthday party for her boyfriend who lived in Traverse City.

"He made me promise to call him at 4 a.m. before my office left for the airport," she wrote. "I'd been up until 2 a.m. wrapping, packing and planning for the trip up north for the big surprise. Then I pretended to be calling from the airport leaving him a message on his answering machine. My friends got him to the party, he was surprised. I vas dressed as the Grim Rearer and everyone thought for sure he'd guess who I was, but he just hook my hand and walked by. I handed him an invitation to read - he still didn't get it, and finally a card that said 'Some Buddy oves You.' He knew."

"One of the most foolish

things I've ever done for love was attempt to steal a statistics exam for my boyfriend (now husband) when we were in college, circa 1958-62," wrote Anna Levin of Southfield. My boyfriend wanted the exam and he convinced me to go into the lecture hall, sit by the door, and when the exams were passed out I could just exit quickly with the goods. He said I wouldn't be noticed. Foolishly I tucked my honesty away deep in the cav-erns of my body, entered the lecture hall, and sat by the door. Everyone kept looking at me -even the professor! Ten minutes went by and I was beginning to glow like a light bulb. I looked around and realized how conspicuous I was; this was a lec-ture hall filled with guys; I was the only girl. I made a fast getaway without completing the deed. My boyfriend was disappointed and apologetic. He said that's what you get for sending a girl to do a man's job. My boyfriend and I married on June 16, 1963 and I am still doing lots of things for love even now some foolish, some not!"

The most foolish thing I ever did for love was follow a girl I was dating when she was picked up for a date by another guy," wrote Rick Lepsetz of Southfield. "After following them at a discrete distance, I watched as they parked the car and walked to a theater. I then got out of my car and let the air out of his tires. I talked to her the next day and asked how the date went. She told me the movie was ok but the evening ended quickly because the other guy was tired and dirty after spending a late night changing his tires on a wet, muddy street. Poor guy. I ended up marrying the girl." Ed Burnett of Royal Oak

"rushed out to buy two tickets to a concert to impress my girl-friend. We started the night with dinner at a restaurant. When we realized the show was about to start, we rushed to the arena, paid the parking attendant, found a parking spot two miles to the entrance, then raced for the doors. The foolish thing -1forgot the tickets. The second half of the show was really great."

Braxtons follow the lead of sister Toni to musical success

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

Tamar, Towanda and Trina Braxton remember their childhood as filled with song. The trio, along with sisters Toni and Traci, and brother Mikie, gathered around the piano and practiced every Saturday morning without fail.

"My mother (Evelyn) was an amateur opera singer. She taught us how to sing," Trina Braxton said during a recent phone conversation from Oakland, Calif.

"Our father, Michael, was a Methodist minister. The poor baby, he can't sing at all. To give him some props, he did teach us what a bad note was. But we would go from church to church singing, and every once in awhile we would do concerts and competitions."

Sister act: Toni Braxton's sisters Towanda, Tamar and wood," as opposed to platinum or gold.

"A lot of people thought we were a gospel group. We didn't have a lot of say, because we were all minors except for Toni, in what we were doing.

LaFace Records, which is distributed by Arista, singled out Toni for a solo deal with her sisters, except for Traci, as back-up singers. Soon afterward, the trio signed its own deal with LaFace Records. The Braxtons moved to Atlantic Records after the man who signed them, Brian Reid, went on to become vice president of black music and artist and repertoire at Atlantic Records.

In mid-August, The Braxtons' debut album "So Many Ways," which mixes pop grooves, ballads, harmonies and soul, hit the stores. The first single "So Many Ways" appeared in the movie "High School High." Their family couldn't be more thrilled.

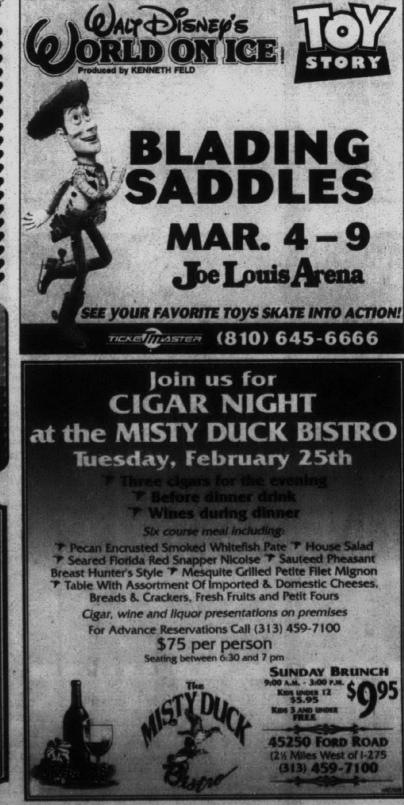

"Our father's our No. 1 fan. You wouldn't believe it. He has posters and pictures and memorabilia of every single thing covers, newspapers clippings and calendars. My mom, she goes to every show that she can. Right now she's with Toni. She's trying to spread herself around."

For the next record, Trina Braxton is hoping her sister

Traci will come aboard.

"We're trying to coerce her to get her back in. It's just not the same without her. She's like a missing link.She just recently got married and had a baby. She's a counselor for delinquent children. We're hoping maybe by second album she'll come back.

The Braxtons open for Luther Vandross, 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 14-Saturday, Feb. 15, at the Fox Theatre, 2211 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Tickets are $40. For more information, call (810) 433-1515.

It's since paid off. Big sister Toni has gone on to sell millions of albums. Now it's Tamar, Towanda and Trina Braxton's turn at the plate. After honing their skills as Toni's back-up singers, they've gone out on their own and released their debut album "So Many Ways" (Atlantic).

Possessing the same doe-like features as Toni, 21-year-old Trina Braxton said the similarities end there.

• "We just have a younger feel as opposed to Toni's music. Toni's ery adult contemporary, very meloncholy," Trina Braxton said. "We could most definitely headline together. We wanted to do some songs on the album together but we were working on our albums at the same time. We didn't get a chance to do anything together. We're hoping we would be able to collaborate in the future'

Working on music together was the original plan for the Braxton children. In 1989, Arista Records signed Tamar, Towanda, Trina, Toni and Traci Braxton to Talent collector: Terry B. Schwartz, an executive with Village Green Management, compares himself to the director of player personnel for a sports team.

Exec explains winning ways

BY DOUG FUNKE

Here's the gospel on the world of work according to Terry B. Schwartz, chief executive officer of Village Green Management Co. headquartered in Farmington Hills.

The firm owns and/or manages 26,000 apartment units,105 properties, throughout the Midwest.

"If you don't set the bar high, the likelihood of receiving high results is non-existent. I "I believe there's a please and thank you in everything you do. "It's a sacrifice to be more successful in your field. You sacrifice, personally, some long hours. You do deals others shy away from because they're too tough. You take on adversity others walk away from. "I believe in giving more than just what's expected.

They're comfortable with their own intuitive skills and perception skills. They hear a quack and know it's a duck. They don't have to see it."

Schwartz, 45, a West Bloomfield resident, was selected 1996 Executive of the Year by Multifamily Executive, a bimonthly magazine geared to developers, owners, managers and investors of multi-family housing. Schwartz was honored as a trendperformance to our partners and residents needs to be constantly improved." It doesn't take much to get Schwartz talking and, when he does, you better listen carefully The words come quickly.

"I'm the organization person," he said. "I'm the chief motivator, long-range planner. I consider myself director of player personnel.

"I look at how we're structured, how e recruiting. I'm the budget guy.

we can't provide great service, and if we don't provide service to customers, we probably aren't going to be able to provide financial expectations clients have.

On how to make a good impression on the job:

"I would tell young people to perform. Perform at a standard above everyone else. If a report were due Friday, I gave them on Wednesday. If a minimum goal was 92 percent, I made sure we gave 94. If you - exhibit talent, work ethic - you will get recognized." Susan Schwartz has known her husband, Terry, since their middle teen-age years. "He's always, since the day I met him, had ambition," Susan said. "He has a lot of pride. Whatever he does, he has to do his best. He has to put his all into it. When he cleans the garage, he pulls everything out and brings out the disinfectant.

"Here, there are no superstars. People in the field are more important than me. Front line people make or break an organization.

Getting there (high achievement) is probably easier than staying there. You get complacent, everyone tries to knock you off, steal your people. You can't be so caught up in success you can't improve.

"In life, you have to be a student and a teacher.

Successful people are in command of all information necessary to make a good business decision. They don't need all the information.

REAL ESTATE

"His professionalism service and heights to which he has taken Village Green were reasons for choosing Terry executive of the year," said Jodi Bromberg, managing editor for Multifamily Executive.

setter in the industry.

"He's our first one, and I think he'll be the benchmark we'll use to choose our future executives of the year," she added.

Schwartz has worked in property management nearly his entire career, joining Village Green in 1984.

"An executive recruiter contacted me. I interviewed with Jonathan Holtzman (Village Green chairman). The next weekend, he invited me to his house. I spent a couple days. We hit it off. We talked about our dreams. It was a match."

Holtzman said Schwartz was one of his first key hires when the decision was made to become more than just a family business.

"I think we share the same vision," Holtzman said. "We care that growth shouldn't sacrifice quality and that focus on what it takes to keep moving ahead. Every week, I meet with department heads. We have on-going agendas," Schwartz said.

On what it takes to successfully manage apartments:

"You need common sense, good judgment, good problem-solving skills. It's a business of problems. We call it conflict resolution. You're good with people."

On how to deal with tenant complaints:

"We're in a service business. Bottom line, that is our responsibility. In talking with customers, it isn't that something wasn't done. It's that we didn't communicate properly. If there's going to be a delay or you have to order a part, no one told them. Communicate more than less."

On who's most important in the employee-tenant-investor relation-

"I think all their destinies are inter-

STATES.

"It funny, he's a totally different person at home," she said. "When he comes home, it's playing with the dog, throwing the ball, having fun. When he comes home, he doesn't discuss business.'

Terry Schwartz credits his wife and children, Michael and Melissa, for keeping his life balanced.

"They have a great sense of humor," twined. If we don't have great people, Terry said. "We entertain each other."

Tenant can't get lien for improvements he made

Q. I am a tenant and have expended a great deal of money to improve the property which I am leasing. However, I am on a month-to-month lease and want to know if I can put a lien on this property after I have completed my lease arrangement.

Do you have any suggestions as to what I could do?

A. What I believe you are talking about is a common law lien, which in Michigan is the right of detention in persons who have bestowed labor upon an article or done some act in reference to it, and who have the right to detention until reimbursed for their expenditures and labor. This lien always involves the possession of a chat-tel, that is personal property and typically arises in the present day in the context of the repair of goods, particularly automobiles.

Since you are not possessing a chattel, but real property to which you have made an improvement, you cannot assert a common law lien against it.

Q. About 10 years ago I invested a substantial sum in a New York limited partnership that was to buy land and to build above-averagecost homes. It was originally projected that the limited partners were to receive their investments plus profits within four years. No returns have ever been received to date.

Although the partnership agreement stipulates that the general partner is to provide financial and activity reports on a semi-annual basis, none has been received. In response to numerous complaints and requests from the limited partners, the general partner has provided generalized letters on three occasions, and the K-1 tax reports are provided on an annual basis.

The limited partners are suspicious as to what has happened. Do we have recourse to the federal government agencies and other legal remedies?

A. You clearly have a private legal remedy against the general partner in the event that he has in any way breached his fiduciary duties owed to the part-nership and has otherwise failed to comply with the terms and obligations of the partnership agreement.

Whether you have recourse through any state agency in New York depends upon New York securities law. Whether or not the SEC has any jurisdiction again would depend upon the nature of the "security" offered to you by way of a limited partnership interest. The same may be exempt from Federal jurisdiction

You are best advised to consult with an attorney of your choosing to advise you of what your remedies are, which, at a minimum, should include demanding an accounting from the general partner of all monies received and expended in behalf of the limited partnership.

• Use small hooks to hang cooking mitts or potholders from a cabinet door. Or, install hooks underneath shelves to hang china cups. · Add plastic or wire racks to the inside of a cabinet door. Epoxy-coated wire racks are available in sizes to suit your storage needs.

Gas heaters provide more hot water, A.G.A. says

Natural gas water heaters provide more hot water faster and less expensively than electric water heaters, according to the American Gas Association.

Comparing the annual operating costs before buying a water heater can pay off in substantial savings, A.G.A. says, because the water heater is the second biggest energy user in a typical home, after the heating and cooling system.

Water heaters are required by federal law to carry an EnergyGuide label that shows the average annual cost of energy for the unit. Although electric water heaters are often less expensive to buy, operating a gas water heater will cost about half as much as operating an electric water heater, depending on local utility rates.

To select a unit to meet a home's hot water needs, look at the first hour rating on the label. This shows the most hot water that can be supplied in a one-hour period. To get maximum efficiency from a water heater: Drain a pail or two of water from the faucet located at the bottom of the heater several times a year.

Set the water heater at "normal," or about 120 degrees, in order to save energy. However, you may wish to set the water heater at 140 degrees if your dishwasher does not have a water heating booster as part of its automatic cycle; the hotter water will sanitize dishes.

Keep the burners clean.

If the pilot light goes out, follow the appliance instructions and relight it. If any difficulty occurs, however, turn the controls off and call a plumber or heating dealer. If you smell gas, call your local gas company.
