Write-in candidates must file notice

Under a new law, now applicable to school board elections, write-in candidates must file a notice with the school board secretary or official responsible for conducting the election prior to the Public Act 461 of 1996 took effect March 31 and is in effect for the June 9 school election. The public act requires the write-in candidate to file a declaration of their intent to be a write-in candidate to file no later than 4 p.m. on the Friday preceding the election. In the case of the June 9 school board election, declarations must be filed prior to 4 p.m. June 6, 1997.

A supply of declaration of intent forms are available in the Election Clerk's Office, located at the E.J. McClendon Education Center, 454 S.

Harvey Street, Plymouth.

Write-in votes for a school board candidate who has not filed a declaration of intent do not count. The only exception from this requirement applies if a candidate appearing on the ballot dies or is disqualified on or after the Wednesday preceding the election.

July 4 picnic

More volunteers are needed to help make the July 4 picnic at Plymouth Township Park a success for kids and families.

Planned activities, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., include hot dogs, refreshments, games, tug-ofwar, a bike contest and plenty more.

"We welcome homeowners groups to participate," said event organizer, Plymouth Township Treasurer Ron Edwards. To help out, call 453-3840 and ask for either Edwards at extension 214, or Plymouth Township Clerk Marilyn Massengill,

Martial arts camp

A Martial Arts Camp developed by Robert Skinner and sponsored by the Plymouth Parks & Recreation Department opens June 16 and runs through July 25.

There are five separate classes, Ninja, Judo, Karate, Aikido and Tai-Chi. Skinners background includes four years of military training in combat techniques and 39 years of martial arts training.

The programs allow a range of age groups to participate. The classes are for males only unless there are enough girls or women to establish a separate class. Each participant must be able to do 20 push-ups and 20 sit-ups. Mandatory testing will be 6-9 p.m. June 5.

For more information call 455-6620 and ask for

Fireworks donations sought

The Plymouth Canton Jaycees are currently eking donations to have July 4 fireworks at Don Massey Park.

The Jaycees have collected $2,400 so far, but need $15,000 to make it a success.

Student tests split school candidates

Carol Bollman, Suzanne Dershem and Roland Thomas have differing views on standardized testing and Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' curriculum.

Vying for a four-year seat on the Board of Education in the June 9 election, the candidates discussed the subject in recent interviews with the

The three were asked about the Michigan Educational Assessment Program, or MEAP test, and the High School Proficiency Test.

Stanley Cup fever

Plymouth fans have faith in Red Wings

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Detroit Red Wing fever is back, and this time they're going all the way, say Plymouth fans.

At least most of them. "I kind of doubt it - I wish they would," said Elwood Schaff of Plymouth. "I think they're dealing with a lot more aggressive teams. But an unscientific poll of fans around town reveals that 99 percent believe firmly that this is the year.

"The whole team is improved. They corrected their deficiencies from last year," said Donald Soderholm

John Kwiecien, owner of Trader Jack's Sports Collectibles on Forest Avenue, said Tuesday - after the Wings knocked off Colorado -"Everybody's really excited

"It was just a phenomenal game last night, the electricity has carried over," he said.

Popular sellers include jerseys, especially replicas of those worn by Red Wings Brendan Shanahan and Steve Yzerman. "We've actually started selling quite a few Kirk Maltbys, actually the whole team," Kwiecien

The really big seller has been car flags. "We get 100 and they'll be gone that day," Bollman said "the MEAP doesn't tell you why children are performing the way they are, or how to change the process of teaching. If parents want to know how a kid is doing, all they have to do is talk to the teacher.

According to Dershem, "there needs to be some type of testing that measures how well children are doing. The problem I have with standardized tests is that we tend to teach children to the test. That's okay; it's teaching them something, but I don't necessarily think that is the way we should have to teach our kids. I've gone over and over this, trying to figure out a better way to do this.

Commenting on the teaching of phonics versus whole language, Dershem said, "I think we should be teaching the same style in every school. We should have a structured curriculum and a set of goals to be reached by the end of the year, so that at any given time, a given class of students is not going to be different.'

Dershem said MEAP scores can't be compared year to year because they reflect the performances of different students.

Dershem said she has no opinion on the proficiency test. "I'm not qualified to comment on it,"

Thomas said standardized tests primarily reflect socio-economic status. "That doesn't mean there aren't exceptions,"

"Education is complex, with the home, teachers, parents and the school all playing roles. We need to step back and ask what is it schools can control?".

"While I think you can coach, the knowledge a child needs is much broader than what is on the test. We don't spend enough time in elementary school on the arts," said Thomas. "There is so much for children to learn. We need to focus on things that are important for their lifelong jour-

What I find in large organizations is that we tend to go this way and that way. We don't stay focused. No one makes sure the educational needs of kids are being met."

Being able to compare scores among districts and say, "We are number six, bravo!" isn't good enough. "I don't buy that philosophy," said Thomas.

Two teens nabbed for graffiti

Many teens spent Memorial Day skateboarding, in-line skating, or barbecuing - but not the two 17-year-old Northville Township youths arrested by Plymouth police shortly after 4 p.m.

Equipped with 30-40 cans of paint and spray nozzles and working from design kits, the youths were painting early 1930's German murals on the outside walls of the abandoned Stahl Manufacturing building at 800 Junction, said Plymouth Sgt. Ed Ochal.

Ochal and Officer Mel Meck arrested the vouths for malicious destruction of property. The two were released after posting $100 bond each.

The teens told police they've painted bridges and underpasses in Farmington and Northville Township. "They said they like to paint abandoned buildings the best, because they think their work will last longer," said Ochal.

Parade-goers stop to honor war heroes

he Plymouth Memorial Day Parade on Monday featured bands, color guards, speakers and some poignant tributes to those killed in battle defending the United States.

City Commissioner Dennis Shrewsbury - a retired U.S. Coast Guard officer - served as master of ceremonies from the stage at Kellogg Park. Guest speaker for the event was Cmdr. Vicki L. Kianz, commanding officer of Naval Reserve Readiness Center in Detroit since June 1996.

The parade sponsor was the Plymouth-Canton Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter 528. This year, grandkids and young children of veterans were encouraged to join them in the parade.

After stopping at the newly created Veterans Memorial Park near Central Middle School, the parade ended at the war memorials now at Kellogg Park.

There were remarks from Past Plymouth VVA President Shrewsbury, an invocation by Newburgh United Methodist Rev. Ed Coley, the playing of the National Anthem and presentation of colors by the Plymouth-Canton VVA Chapter 528 Color Guard.

The pledge of allegiance followed, along with a moment of silence for prisoners of war, missing in action soldiers and active duty military personnel. Plymouth-Canton High student Sarah Carson read the poem "Flanders Field."

Also giving remarks were Plymouth Mayor Pro Tem Jon Vos, Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy and representatives of participating vets groups including Plymouth VVA President Buzz Rivera.

Also represented were VFW Post 6695 of Plymouth and it's auxiliary, American Legion Post 391 of Plymouth, and VFW Post 9697.

Also participating in the parade are the Plymouth Police Department and Plymouth Community Fire Department.

The laying of memorial wreaths at the Korean-Vietnam and Plymouth Rock memorials culminated the ceremony, along with a rifle salute, "Taps" and a benediction.

"St. Mary Hospital's Emergency Center now provides the convenience of Prompt Care."

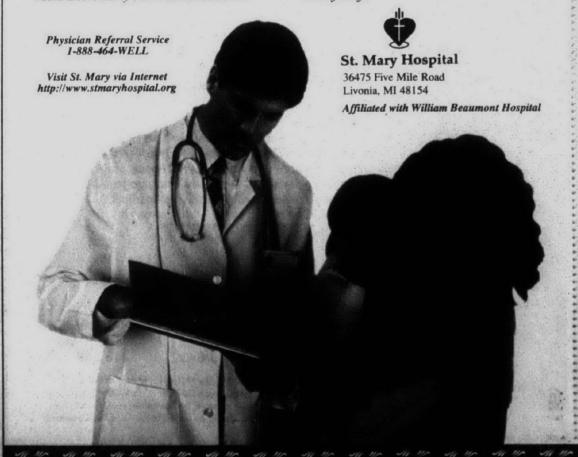

My daughter fell off the jungle gym a couple of weeks ago and broke her arm. I'm so glad we chose St. Mary Hospital's Emergency Center, where she was treated in the new Prompt Care area. We didn't know it, but Carly also hit her head. The doctors — board certified in emergency medicine — were able to detect her minor concussion in time to prevent further damage.

St. Mary Hospital's Emergency Center has dedicated x-ray equipment and a casting room where Carly's arm was taken care of quickly. While waiting, we appreciated the private Prompt Care area which shielded us from other people's emergencies. And, the staff was professional, kind and compassionate.

It was also comforting to know that if Carly's injury was more serious, or she needed to be admitted, we were already at our hospital of choice. Close to home.

Convenience in an emergency. That's why St. Mary Hospital is our hospital.

St. Mary Hospital's Emergency Center is open 24 bours a day, 365 days a year. Prompt Care bours are 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. every day.

Look for a battle of rhetoric when a bill to regulate public school academies - so-called "charter schools" - hits the full House of Representatives. Charter schools are tax-supported, specialized, self-organized schools operating under grants of authority from universities and the state Jobs Commission.

You will have trouble detecting that the warring factions are talking about the same measure, House Bill 4395, as reported out of the House Education Commit-

"We need accountability measures in place to ensure the education needs of children are being met," said the sponsor, Rep. James Agee, D-Muskegon, a former school superintendent, a one-time finalist for state superintendent and a gubernatorial hopeful.

Agee's bill:

Requires each charter school to submit an annual report on oversight activities, non-compliance with the charter, areas of performance that need to be improved, assurances the school has no religious affiliation, and a plan to improve per-

■ Allows the State Board of Education to revoke the charter if a charter school fails to provide an annual oversight report.

■ Specifies that, if the school closes, its real estate and personal property become the property of the state.

Opponents say charter schools already are heavily regulated since they must comply with the federal Americans with Disabilities Act, Open Meetings Act, their performance contracts with the authorizing agency and "the microscope of the media."

Senate majority leader Dick Posthumus, R-Alto, and House minority leader Ken Sikkema, R-Grandville, say Agee and allies are "enemies of charter schools who, unable to strangle this infant reform in its crib, have done their utmost to keep it from growing big and strong.

Too public records

There's danger in the brief amendment to the Public Health Code, said Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester, who was on the short end of a 95-2 vote on House Bill

The bill allows county clerks to act as registrars for cities of 40,000 or more for "vital" records such as birth, death, marriage and divorce. Kaza said it has the "potential to invade the privacy" of individuals.

The state Department of Community Health supports this legislation because 'the use of computer software to generate vital records documents as part of an ongoing business practice could be more convenient and less costly for those responsible. . " said Kaza.

But he warned that "security ssues are raised by the possibility that unauthorized persons may secure access to computer hardware and software for malicious purposes." The bill, on its way to the Senate, should be repaired as it affects computer data bases. "Do we really want to place the birth certificates of the children of our constituents on the computer Internet?" Kaza said in a formal protest.

Tobacco ads hit

The full Senate is due to take up a bill banning tobacco ads on billboards after it was reported out of the Local Government, Urban and State Affairs Com-

Sponsor Loren Bennett, R-Canton, said, "These offensive forms of advertisement should no longer be permitted where they can be viewed by thousands of children every day. It is painfully clear that these ads with their slick youthful messages are aimed directly at young people. .

Radio and television ads for tobacco products have been banned since the early 1970s,' said Bennett. "It's a public health issue."

Parks oversight committee formed

Wayne County Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, whose district includes Redford Township and part of Livonia, has established a subcommittee to oversee a five-year capital improvement plan of Wayne County parks.

The subcommittee was created to ensure that money from a 1/4 mill approved by Wayne County voters last year will be dedicated to the improvement and mainte-nance of the Wayne County parks division. Plawecki is chairperson of the Committee on Roads, Airports and Public Ser-vices, which has oversight of the parks division. Plawecki, Commissioner Robert Blackwell, D-Detroit, and Commissioner Chris Cavanagh, D-Grosse Pointe will serve on the subcommittee.

Plawecki said the parks system has a dedicated source of millage will generate $31 million over the next five years for county parks.

"In the past, all programs or maintenance costs related to the parks were paid for by the general fund," Plawecki said. "This new revenue, which can only be used for the parks, will provide for an increased level of service, as well as implementing new programs and construction."

Plawecki believes that oversight is important and taxpayers serve to know how the money

Plawecki said the subcommittee will meet monthly and review project and building plans, design and cost calcula-tions, as well as the projected schedule for the projects. Plawecki believes the oversight will ensure that what happened to the public safety millage money approved 10 years ago doesn't happen again.

"In 1988 voters approved a millage increase which was sup-posed to be used specially for the construction and operation of a county jail and a youth home. As of today, the jail is up and running, but the youth home has yet

Nice, bright doctor seeks caring relationship....

Ok, so maybe you weren't thinking what we were thinking. But here's a great opportunity to meet the health care provider of your dreams. There's no better place to look than the Center for Specialty Care in Livonia.

- We're in your neighborhood, so getting here is a cinch.
- You'll receive the same world-class care that you'd get if you went to our U-M Medical Center in Ann Arbor.

 We have plenty of providers, so making an appointment is a breeze.

You don't even have to lift a finger to find a doctor that suits you. Well, maybe just a finger. All you have to do is pick up the phone and call our physician referral line to find exactly the doctor you want. We can even schedule your first appointment.

Golf outing benefits SC scholarship funds

Bob Hope once said: "If you watch a game, it's fun. If you play it, it's recreation. If you work at it, it's golf."

Participants in Schoolcraft College's 14th Annual Golf Outing can have fun, get some ecreation, and work at raising scholarship funds for students. The tournament is scheduled for Monday, June 16 at the Washtenaw Country Club. Proceeds help provide scholarships for Schoolcraft College students in all areas of study.

Golfers can opt for a morning package, an afternoon package, hole sponsorship or a President's Club-level participation, each including lunch and a pro clinic. Tee-off time for morning rounds beginning at 1:30 p.m. A steak dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

People also can participate in a raffle and auction, including several rounds of golf at area and northern courses, a Buffalo Bills jersey signed by Chris Spielman, theater tickets and a 1997 Pontiac Grand Am for any golfer scoring a hole-in-one.

To reserve a spot on the green

To reserve a spot on the green, call the Office of Marketing and Development at (313) 462-4417. There is still time to sign up for a hole sponsorship, place an ad in the banquet program or donate a raffle prize by calling Marketing and Development.

County establishes new hotline for environment

vides residents with phone access to the Wayne County

Department of Environment. The department consists of the air quality division, land resources division, division of public works, and watershed management division. Should any resident have a question or a complaint regarding any service or problem in Wayne County relating to any of these divisions, or to report any illegal dumping activity, they should call 1-888-223-2363 and they will receive assistance.

The air quality division protects the air quality within the county and in turn protects the public health and welfare. Citizens with complaints about odors or other observed emissions from industrial can obtain assistance here

The division of public works maintains and operates drainage systems and wastewater management.

The land resources division protects Wayne County land resources through the prevention of land contamination, soil erosion control and solid waste management.

The watershed management division develops a coordinated watershed basic approach based on hydrologic boundaries for the protection, restoration and stewardship of the county's streams, rivers, lakes, ponds, wetlands and ground water.

Squadron storms Willow Run

o matter what my knees were doing, when the offer came to ride with the Red Baron Stearman Squadron - Four Ship Aerobatic Team, my mouth piped up "I'll do it!"

Aerial showmanship or "barnstorming" began prior to World War I but flourished in the 1920s when thousands of surplus military planes became available at bargain prices. Traveling across the countryside dozens of barnstorming pilots earned money by performing at fairs and taking adventurous passengers for Continuing the tradition, the Red Baron Squadron is flying for charity at the Wayne County Air Show this weekend with proceeds going to the American Cancer Society with the focus on children.

At 8:30 a.m. Wednesday morning I arrived at Willow Run Airport to preview the activities. Having been somewhat shaken on a simple Ferris wheel a few days earlier, I realized this could be trouble.

A tall, dark man came into the room wearing a Red Baron jumpsuit with the name John Bowman printed on his lapel. John is the lead pilot of the formation aerobatic team and has flown for the Red Baron's since 1982. Although he has more than 10,500 hours flying time to his credit he confesses to a fear of falling off a ladder while cleaning his plane.

doggie,

The four bi-planes were walked from the hanger and arranged in a row. John instructed me on how to get into the plane and carefully explained the procedure to follow in case of an emergency. Of course, I wasn't paying too much attention as he was strapping me into my parachute and headgear with earphones and microphone. Through the headset John explained every movement as we were positioning for takeoff. The plane engine was loud and rumbled as we bounced down the runway.

We were in the air in a flash. The ride was a bit bumpy though John said it was a pret-ty decent day for flying. Hav-ing only a small windshield for protection, I was surprised to learn I didn't need my goggles. We were up in the air approxi-mately 2,200 feet (aerobatics need to be performed at least 1,500 feet in the air).

Of the four bi-planes, John and I took the lead formation and it was difficult to see what the others were doing. John's voice came through my headset and said "Tammie, are you ready for a little aerobatics?" I said, "go for it!"

Having never flown in this type of plane, I barely knew what to expect. I'm not quite sure what we did but I saw the horizon line every which way and the G-forces gave me an instant facelift and pressed me backward into my seat. All I could do was laugh and yell "wo-o-o doggie!"

"You'll notice we don't talk to each other a whole lot up here," John said.

"Most of the communication is with head and hand signals. Sometimes I have both hands and feet on the controls and it's hard to give hand signals so I e my nead to indicate a turn or when we're rolling out of a

We did the "loop," "hammer-head turn," "barrel roll" and "quarter clover." Then indicating that we were heading for home, he did a sharp turn to the right and came in for a very smooth landing.

Unable to see in front of the plane, John shimmied back and forth along the runway to gain a better view. It was over

Media ne This is Broadband. This is the way.

Whatever the future may bring, this is what will bring it. The fact is no one really knows for sure what the future will bring. It's the reason 1984 wasn't like "1984." And why 2001 will be nothing like "2001." But there is one thing we do know - in the future, our entertainment, our information and our communications will all come from Broadband. OK, so what is Broadband? Simply put, it's a wire with enormous capacity, a wire with two-way capabilities. The wire you now think of as bringing you cable TV is being transformed into something that can literally bring you the future. Broadband will give your computer the power to be as entertaining as your TV. Your TV will become as smart as your computer. And you will be able to communicate in ways you never imagined. Right now, in communities around Boston, Detroit and Jacksonville, where our networks are already in place, Broadband is allowing people to download from the Internet up to 50 times faster, providing the fastest Internet connection to the home. A supersonic speed that is changing the way people are using the Net. Broadband is making ideas travel faster. The exchange of knowledge is increasing exponentially. Once you are connected, you will no longer merely be entertained; Broadband's unique twoway capabilities will let you send home videos through your computer, entertaining others. You won't just sit back and be informed. You will inform. Nothing will remain static. Over the next few years, a whole new culture will emerge. Not just through our computers, but through our TV as well. Broadband is about a new level of involvement and interactivity. You will no longer be strictly on the receiving end of genius. And once your big idea connects with your friend's amazing inspiration,

Roadwork

Everyone wins with upgrades

oday, you'll hear just as many – if not more – complaints about our roads than the weather.

Especially when everyone complains about the state of our roads and fixing them is stalled by political debate, it's refreshing to know that at least in Plymouth streets will take on a newer and fresher appearance by the start of fall.

It was no small feat that Plymouth voters in November 1996 overwhelmingly approved selling up to $12 million in bonds to pay for two 10-year street improvement programs.

The Observer applauds and approves how the city tackled its need for street improvements.

That's especially true when you look around at nearby communities whose roads are probably in worse shape.

City officials saw a need and took the bull by the horns. What they did right was present voters with a list of what road improvements would be done and how much the package will cost. There should be no surprises.

With or without a passing vote, city officials planned to make the street improvements. But they wisely chose to spread the costs across all property owners by assessing them 2 mills or less over 20 years.

That's definitely better than levying special assessments on homeowners living on affected streets. After all, we all use the streets and should share the burden of fixing them.

As other communities continue struggling with Wayne County and the state, Plymouth – often viewed as a sleepy little town – took decisive action and within two years will have some nicely repaired streets for its residents and businesses.

We urge city officials to let Gov. John take part.

The Observer applauds and approves how the city tackled its need for street improvements.

Engler know that his "Build Michigan II" plan as initially proposed will do little to help, and could even mean less money to maintain city roads.

Let's be honest, if Engler's plan is to help more with local roads, take a look at Ann Arbor Road, which is currently maintained by the state. City and township officials have every reason to balk at yet another state plan if the poor condition of the business corridor is any indication of what the state can do.

Locally, efforts are moving ahead to fix what can be fixed. Improved streets will go along just fine with repaired sidewalks; also a city program that should get under way anytime now with the recent award of a contract.

What's neat about this program is that homeowners with sidewalk repairs required on their property have the option of seeking their own firm to complete the work, or using the contractor hired by the city, which is likely to be less expensive.

Some of the work conducted by the city will include repair of city water lines under the sidewalks.

When all is said and done, the street and sidewalk improvements will improve the city's appearance, not to mention safety and liability, while maintaining property values.

The city's plan to make street improvements and sidewalk repairs can serve as a catalyst, prompting homeowners and businesses to follow suit by beautifying their property.

We're seeing a cooperation now between local communities, federal, state and county agen-

management. Communities were encouraged

am writing in response to your recent article, "Concern focuses on PCEP." This article, written with quotes from a Canton teacher, Ken Smith, negatively portrays PCEP students as tardy smokers, swearing and littering the halls of PCEP. Of course, that is when they are not constantly skipping school, violating the dress code, eating where they please, and when they "use undue familiarity with each other."

This article is just another in a series of stories portraying PCEP as an anarchist school with students doing anything they want. I am very disgusted with not only Mr. Smith, but also the writer of the story, M.B. Dillon, for writing this biased article. I am not upset because my opinion differs. I am upset with the way the students are portrayed without proper defense. So, let me take this time to quote the points from your article, and defend the students against these accusations.

First there is the source, Mr. Ken Smith. In the article, some of the rules and regulations of the park were quoted to display how the students broke the rules. It was brought to my attention Mr. Smith decided not to follow rules and regulations when he brought an unnamed reporter into school last week. With those actions, I hardly think the reporter or Mr. Smith has any right to quote the rules of the school when they go and stomp all over them. The term coming to mind is hypocrite. I am not saying Mr. Smith is a bad person: I have never met him. The same goes for the reporter. The information I obtained could be wrong. On the chance it isn't, I want people to know the truth about the article.

Then there is the manner the article was written. I find it odd the reporter could not find any room on the front page to put a positive defense of the students. It surprises me the defense by the honorable Canton Principal, Mrs. Patton, could not fit on the front page. I will give the reporter credit. The reporter did manage to fit two sentences of positive input about the students on the front page.

Now, the issues of the article. The first, and main point of the article is about attendance. Why does it take eight total absences for the school to notify a student's parents? Depends on the teacher you have. One of the teachers I had last year, called after two. It takes eight for the school to notify parents, but it is an individual teacher's policy when they decide to call a student's parents.

Another reason you can't call after every absence is teachers can make mistakes. I have been marked absent several times by teachers when I was in class. I don't need the school calling my house, telling my parents I was absent when I was in class.

Teachers can make mistakes and I don't blame them for it just as long as my house is not called because of their mistake. Another attendance issue is skipping. The only defense I can give for skipping is most people skipped at least once in high school. There is nothing anyone can do to stop it. Our parents skipped school and their parents probably skipped once or twice. I don't see the problem just as long as it doesn't become habitual.

Another issue in the article was brought up by Mrs. Pat Sarna. Apparently when she disciplines students, her fellow teachers think those students will vandalize her car. It was never stated whether or not Mrs. Sarna believes this, but I have my own take on it. Everyday, students in the auto department repair teacher's cars and I have not heard one complaint. Nor have I heard of an incident where a student vandalized a teacher's car at all.

To be honest, the students probably don't have the time or the inclination to vandalize a teacher's car. If Mrs. Sarna believes the comments spoken to her by her fellow teachers, don't bother disciplining the people she sees violating the rules. But if she believes the truth, speaking from a student's point of view, go ahead and discipline us. I think we can maturely handle it.

Let me take this time to applaud the efforts of Mrs. Patton, Dr. Little, and the supervisor of attendance at PCEP, Mrs. McGuire. They told the truth about PCEP; a thing not easy to do when the article is written to destroy the credibility of the park. I can only hope their opinions are valued as much as Mr. Smith's.

Once again, for the third time, I ask the editor of the Observer to consider writing an article from a student's perspective. If the paper wants to appear as non-biased, it is the only course of action to take.

Thank you for your time.

Spring is in the air and in our actions

pring fever - it isn't always pretty. I prefer to think of it as quietly exciting, a hopeful air of expectation for both the earth and our own renewal.

Surprisingly, I find myself in a state nearer to agitation. We might observe creatures coming out of hibernation and delight in the wacky ways they jump-start their comparatively short lives, but depending on our own routines, humans might find themselves spinning our wheels in a sillier

Having celebrated what I choose to think of as my first annual 39th birthday not too long ago, I wonder if my uncharacteristic impatience is somehow connected. Like anyone whose name must be irretrievably emblazoned on a monster mailing list floating throughout the universe I receive some pretty weird catalogs. I was bemused by one touting herbal remedies, books and clothing for women going through The Change.

As if women are not terrorized constantly by their bodies and the even moodier medical research, this catalog even has suggested that feeling as if you have non-stop PMS is an indication of preparing for this change that might take 15 years prior. I can

After wisely deciding to rule out the all-too convenient raging hormonal excuses women tend to blame their plain perpetually bad manners on, I twisted my thoughts with no mean effort back once again to the more alluring phenomenon of spring fever.

I try to concentrate on plans to garden that with little practical skill turn into a foolish scheme where pineapples grow among lotus flowers with a small cranberry bog just off the sidewalk. At the market this year, we have apologies for produce prices so high scallops are cheaper than salad. I flew out to the yard when a delusion had me thinking I saw a flower and once again had to stifle my sulking when it turned out to be a bright bit of trash.

I am anxious to tackle spring cleaning, to wash and open every filthy window and invite those stiff winds to blow this gray away.

I have noticed the restlessness in others also. The cashier at a busy market who simply stopped working when her grandkids suddenly appeared. A man near tears in frustration holding a royal flush of rainchecks in a huge store that once again for the past five years had not a pair of pants in his size. Not far from him I saw a woman speaking ever so softly to a stack of dungarees. Could it be the solar interference that actually incapacitates the satellites in space for a time each spring?

Some signs appear. Kids are playing street hockey. Tiny tips of the iris blades are showing. The cats that I have had to poke daily just to see if they are alive are now sailing about the house like paper kites. While I was washing the floors Barnabas came ricocheting by, slipped on a puddle and his back paws flew out from under creating a shrimp-like posture that sent him bouncing down the basement stairs on his bottom. After whooping long and gleefully at his expense, I believe I shall survive my own bad case of spring fever.

Freedom of information laws need repair

henever politicians try to hide something, it's usually because they have something to hide."

So goes Richard's First Law of Gov-

One brave soul bucking the tide of official secrecy is Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills. When last we checked in with him, he was working on re-amending the Freedom of Information Act to say we slobs in the public are entitled to "full and complete information regarding the affairs of government and the official acts of those who represent them as public officials and public employees."

You will recall that last December, in the dead of night, the Legislature conspired with the darker elements of the Gov. John Engler administration to cripple the FOIA to limit our access to "decisions" of government.

Kaza got the damage repaired, and last week Engler signed the good amendment, though without fanfare.

Our "sunshine laws" - FOIA and the Open Meetings Act - have few champions in the Legislature these days, and they are far between. One is Kaza, a Republican of free market and libertarian bent. Another is Rep. Laura Baird, D-Okemos.

Kaza is working on two more bills

■ House Bill 4758, which requires partisan caucuses of the Legislature to follow the Open Meetings Act. When OMA was written in 1976, the Legislature carefully exempted itself.

Clearly, Kaza doesn't mind wrestling with a chain saw. He will be cut up badly. But I wish him luck. As far as I can tell, the two parties' caucuses in Lansing are devoted to political strategy designed to make a) themselves look good in the public eye and b) the other party look bad. They should be concentrating on good public policy rather than publicity.

TIM RICHARD

I have watched the Republican and Democratic caucuses in the Oakland County Board of Commissioners. They have healthy discussions of policy. One learns the intricacy of issues.

■ A just-drafted Kaza bill raises fines for violating the FOIA from $500, where it has been for 21 years, to $5,000. It also allows the plaintiff (John Q. Public) to collect "actual attorneys' fees" instead of "reasonable" fees.

The fines do need to be raised. As many police departments will tell you, it's worth the risk to deny you information because, if you sue, it costs them only $500. Our public officials need to be punished much more severely for their planned sins of

Good as those changes are, I have others in mind that may be more important.

The first has to do with committees. The Open Meetings Act says a public body's committees and subcommittees are also public bodies and subject to OMA.

But suburban government and universities slither around the law by appointing committees that include elected officials, administrators and the public. The Ionia school board appointed a committee to look at athletic standards that included stu-

Any committee that deliberates public policy, even for a mere recommendation, ought to meet in public.

Shunning daylight, Ionia shut the doors on its committee, and Attorney General Frank Kelley upheld the Ionia tactics - a bad ruling.

Any student of government will tell you that the real work is done in committees. Anyone who suggests that a committee can be closed because its decisions "aren't final" is joshing you, as well as proving Richard's First Law of Government.

The law needs to be repaired to cover any committee appointed by a public body.

Another change would be to cap fees that public agencies may charge under FOIA. When (for example) police departments want to hide their ineptitude, they don't deny access but delay their responses and discourage you with atrocious copying fees. Governmental price-gouging should be stopped.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state events.

Welcome change: State's a secure place to work

don't often listen to broadcast news programs, but because this newspaper's Tim Richard is a panelist on the June 1 "Spotlight on News" on Channel 7, I listened with care.

Featuring a group of local experts including Oakland University's distinguished retired professor of business administration, Karl D. Gregory, the program focused on prospects for the economy in southeastern Michigan.

The panel's conclusion: It's good now and likely to remain so. Of course, Michigan still depends heavily on the auto industry. But the structure of the industry is very different from the 1980s, when we experienced a recession every three or four years. Gov. G. Mennen Williams used to complain that, when the nation caught a cold,

Michigan came down with pneumonia. First, the industry seems finally to have learned a lesson from its "boom and bust" past.

Each of the Big Three has downsized, substantially improved productivity, pounded down the break-even point and accumulated gigantic cash reserves - all in realization that today's prosperity has hardly repealed the business cycle. Demand for cars and trucks seems to be tailing off a bit, but the auto companies are in much, much better position to ride out the tough times.

Moreover, the composition of the auto work force in Michigan has changed significantly over time. While auto assembly remains an important part of the economy, the auto industry has built lots of assembly plants around the country, leaving at headquarters in Michigan a disproportionate share of white-collar labor force of engineers and managers, folks who are unlikely to get laid off when a downturn comes.

Indeed, the bigger problem appears to be finding enough folks with suitable skills to meet what looks very much like an absolute labor hortage. Kurt Metzger, director of Wayne State University's Michigan Metropolitan Infornation Center, predicts 52,000 new auto-related jobs in Oakland County alone by the end of

The problem here is what economists call a mismatch in local labor markets. While ployers are crying out for skilled workers, the supply from area schools and apprentice opening up in suburban locations.

Indeed, according to the experts on the program, it now appears that the very meaning of 'local labor market" is changing. Instead of thinking about a labor market defined by the city of Livonia, for example, or even Oakland County, it appears that the entire area from Port Huron to Toledo to Howell to Ann Arbor is becoming a regional labor market, with complicated patterns of supply and demand working throughout the area.

One expert remarked that while "two stadiums and three casinos do not make a world class city" (referring to Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer's boast that Detroit is "on the verge of becoming a world class city"), it may well be we are seeing the creation of a world class region.

Flies in the ointment? Sure. We could see a recession in the next year or Worse, many banks that used to have their corporate headquarters in Michigan have been bought out - NBD is now headquartered in Chicago, Michigan National has been bought by an Australian bank holding company and Standard Federal's takeover by a Dutch concern has just been finalized. Although there is little current evidence this change of focus has had much effect, I cannot believe that we will see in the foreseeable future the sort of local focus and concern that existed while ownership was firmly rooted in the state.

But, according to the experts, Michigan has become a pretty secure place to find work and raise a family. For those of us who remember the 1970s and 1980s, that's a big and welcome

Head of anti-tax group raps fuel tax hike plan

State budget makers got $83 million of good news when the House Fiscal Agency reported a rosier-than-expected revenue

The agency told lawmakers the state was $1.2 billion below the limit of $21.7 billion imposed by the 1978 Headlee amendment to the Michigan Constitution.

That failed to stop Bill McMaster, chair of the gadfly Michigan Taxpayers United, from blistering the "ambush plan" of top Republican officials to raise fuel taxes about $200 million. "Any increase in gas(oline) taxes will have to be decided by taxpayers and not the governor or state legislators," McMaster said at a May 20 news conference in Pontiac.

He blistered Gov. John Engler, Oakland Executive L. Brooks Patterson and Brent Bair, managing director of the Oakland road commission, for seeking the fuel tax increase as part of what nce upon a time, a week ago Wednesday, a schoolgirl walking past our house called out, "There's a sick bird over here, in the bushes, I think it's hurt or something, it's not moving. Carmen, my 10-year-old, just minutes home from school herself, heard this cry for help. She burst out the door, ran across the street to the grassy boulevard where the other little girl stood. I saw the two talking, I saw their hands expressing concern and helplessness.

And then Carmen came running back home and asked if she could have the towel hanging in the bathroom. A cold May drizzle had begun to fall. I said, "OK." Away she dashed, with towel in hand. Her older brother, Tony, and the three little ones looked on as she scooped the bird up, carefully, and brought it into our home. It was a robin, a quite fat and healthy looking robin except it was lying quite still on its side on the

I'm not an ornithologist, I don't know from birds, but this, to me, did not look good at all. No matter. My children wanted things to be right for this creature. A small dose of comfort and care would help.

I choked back my skepticism as those five pairs of eyes met mine. A box was found and Carmen very gently laid the bird, still wrapped in the towel, inside the box.

I shook my head, it was a subtle shake, one that spoke of futility. Carmen saw it; I didn't mean for that to happen. She began crying. I told her we'd keep the bird dry and warm and safe, we'd put the box up high enough so our cat ne nosy curious younger brothers wouldn't bother. And then she got ready for her gymnas-

I took Carmen to her practice and returned home. While I was gone, Tony had set up a warming light over the bird box. I looked inside expecting to find the limp form of a near dead bird. Instead, I saw a robin standing up, on its own two feet and making a cheep noise.

I couldn't believe it, I called the little boys and Tony over and said, "Look! She's feeling much better! Look how she's standing there!" They

Permanent makeup offers long-lasting looks

It's as permanent as a tattoo, but without the bold, colorful images. Today, people are turning to permanent makeup artists for smudge-proof lip and eyeliner and to repair the damage caused by accidents.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

Carrie Settino, mother of 10month-old Lucas, was tired of battling with the "new mom syndrome." She looked and felt tired all the time and putting on makeup became a time-consuming chore.

To enhance her look, Settino sought help from permanent makeup artist Jacqui of Artistic Permanent Makeup at That's My Color Salon in Plymouth.

Jacqui, who prefers to go by her first name only, applied color to Settino's eyebrows and liner to her upper and lower eye lids to give her the made-up look 24 hours a day.

"I was a little apprehensive because I have a couple of other tattoos, I know what those felt like," said Settino, a Belleville resident. "But it's so different. There's no comparison. Jacqui has a really gen-

Permanent makeup has become a booming industry in the past 10 years. In the 11 years she has been doing permanent makeup, Tamara Friedman of the Tamara Institute de Beaute in Farmington Hills has seen 7,000-10,000 clients.

According to Friedman, she was the first one to bring permanent makeup to the United States. A man from Hong Kong whom she met at a trade show in New York 11-12 years ago told her about the procedure. He did it manually - with a bamboo stick and needle - instead of using modern tattoo equipment.

"When I talked to him, he told he was surprised it's not popular here, but the manual method was more on the painful side," she said. "Not a lot of people would enjoy or appreciate this. I said I would like to learn about it if they came out with some treatment that we can do that's less painful and faster and more professional. He called me back, he told me how to do it."

Jacqui explained that the popularity of permanent makeup has been Made to last: Carrie Settino decided to have Jacqui of Artistic Permanent Makeup at That's My Color Salon in Plymouth do her eyebrows and eyelids when, as a new mother, she found applying makeup was becoming a time-consuming bolstered by the mainstream acceptance of tattoos.

Negative connotation

When I first got into the business, the word 'tattoo' had a negative connotation," she said. "But I think over the years people realized that it can have wonderful applica-

Eyebrows and eye and lip liner can be permanently inked into the skin. Lips can also be reshaped.

Jacqui lined Plymouth resident

Desiree Dew's eyes and lips so she wouldn't look so "washed out."

Being as fair as I am, when I heard about the permanent makeup, I knew that this was something that I wanted," Dew said. "Without makeup, I look pale, washed out. With the permanent makeup, you wake up and have a face. All I do now is put some mascara on and foundation, only if I need it."

Like Settino, Dew said the procedure was virtually painless.

'It was like a very picky feeling but that only hurt as it was being done," she said. "She does apply an anesthetic but you can still feel through it because it's a very tender

Jacqui suggests that clients add traditional makeup to look fresh, like Dew does.

The permanent makeup is only as good as the person's skin," she said. "If you want a really shiny moist look you have to put lipstick over it. It's not going to look like you have shiny lipstick on. It's going to look like skin with color.' The procedure isn't limited to make up. It can also be used to camouflage wrinkles, stretch marks, scars and burns. A Westland woman who wished to remain anonymous had permanent makeup applied to cover the scars from burns she sustained as a child. She put it off for years to save up for the procedure which was not covered by

"I had the lip liner and I had the eyebrows done" said the woman, who had the procedure done at Tamara Institute de Beaute. "The reason for that was I had so many scars there that I only had half a brow. That (the procedure) gave me the full brow and I didn't have to worry about when my makeup

"The lips weren't formed correctly either. I had a one-sided lip and not enough on the other side. Again I didn't have to worry about the lipstick or liner which I had to wear all the time.'

Initial consultation

When a person who is interested in permanent makeup goes into a salon, the artist's first objective to analyze the person's look, Jacqui explained. The client's character, body proportions and facial features

New addi-

Washington's newest memorial honors women in military service

BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

Like the E.F. Hutton advertisement, when

Wilma Vaught spoke, Congress listens.
In 1986, the retired Air Force brigadier general went to Capitol Hill to ask for a lasting tribute for women veterans. Congress listened and came up with three different sites for the memorial. Two were unsuitable, but the third – the gateway to Arlington National Cemetery - was just right.

Eleven years later, women around the country are literally beating the bushes to get information on the estimated 1.8 million women who have served - and are serving - in the military since the Revolutionary War.

"It's fun; it's like throwing a rock in the pond," said Dorothy Dabe, fresh from working a booth at the Women's International Expo in Novi. "It's the way women have been passing the word around."

The Clawson resident is one of 82 women across the state who serve as field representatives for the Women in Military Service for America Memorial. Across the country, field reps are helping to raise the money needed to construct and maintain the memorial and to find and encourage women veterans or their families to participate.

When completed, the memorial will be 272 feet wide, the largest memorial in Washington, D.C., dedicated to the military. Unlike the black granite walls of the Vietnam War Memorial or the towering statue of Abraham Lincoln in the Lincoln Memorial, the WIMSA memorial is a complex, using the cemetery's hemicycle wall, built in 1933, as its facade.

Education center

The memorial will house an education center with a display of uniforms, theater, chapel and Hall of Honor which will have a computerized registry of women who have served in the armed forces, past and current. The database will include color is chosen next. "You need to know coloring, face shape and how to enhance that person's natural look," she said. "That's another thing I strive for is to look natural. For the person that comes to me that wants to look heavily made up, I will always suggest we go a little softer. They can use pencil (or additional makeup) for that party they're going to once or twice a month, where they want to look really made up.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE Chris Knight

BRIGHT IS BETTER

Sometimes Realtors walk into a home that is basically attractive, but lacks something that they can't quite put their fingers on. Then they notice that all of the drapes are closed, and there is a lot of overgrown shrubbery blocking the sun.

A dark house is not as appealing to most buyers as one that is flooded with light. As a part of your preparations to market your home, try to maximize the light in your home. Make sure that all the windows are clean, and open the drapes when the house is being shown. A fresh coat of light paint can do a lot to brighten up the interior. If your house has very dark paneling, and there is not a lot that you can do about it, you may want to consider adding additional lamps. Your Realtor may be able to provide other simple and cost-effective ideas about how to maximize your home's appeal.

For solid advice when buying and selling real estate, consult Chris Knight at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate, 313-453-6800.

She also steers people away from trendy looks and those that match the color of the client's

"We want a look that they're going to be happy with not only today but five, 10, 15 years down the road," Jacqui explained. "We want to go with colors that are natural that will never go out of style. I pick classic looks and classic colora"

Clients who decide to have the procedure done undergo a patch test to detect a possible allergic reaction. If everything goes well, the client returns to the salon for the procedure which ranges from 20 minutes to cover beauty marks to 1 1/2 hours for eyeliner. Clients will see some swelling after the procedure but that usually goes away within seven to 10 days.

"If you have your eyes done, they're going to swell a little bit; you have to use ice packs."

Friedman said. "Your eyebrows basically would look a little bit more darker than usual. In three to four days, it usually lightens up and looks wonderful."

After two to three years, Jacqui explained, clients may need a touch-up because most colors will fade as the body sloughs dead cells. Other clients prefer the lighter look

"Some women as they get older maybe they don't want that definition they had when they were younger. The coloring's getting softer and they're perfectly happy with the lighter browns," she said.

Dr. Vigen Darian, a plastic surgeon at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit, believes that permanent makeup isn't a good idea, if a person is completely healthy and is having it applied for aesthetic reasons

"Nothing that you do permanently to your body do I think is I'm not saying all tattooing is a good idea," Darian said. "If you're doing this for aesthetic reasons and for no other real reason, it doesn't make much sense. What if fashions change or you change your mind about color? Removal of these things, especially the eyeliner, is extremely difficult, if you can do it at all. You are kind of stuck with whatever the result is.

"I have lasers to use and I'm pretty good with a knife, but I'm not going to be able to get something out of that spot."

For accident victims or patients with chronic diseases, he's all for it.

"If you were involved in an accident and you don't have eyebrows or eyelashes, that's a different issue," he said. "If you are a rheumatoid patient and you have difficulty putting makeup on, then there's a good reason to do that and it serves a purpose.

At Jacqui's Artistic Permanent makeup, prices run the gamut of $75 to cover beauty marks to $700 for a full lip treatment. Coloring eyebrows costs $600. She charges by the hour for scar camouflage or corrective work -$200 for the first hour and $150

Friedman said her prices depend on what a person needs to have done and how he or she would like to have it done. Generally, she charges $350-$700 for eyebrows and $800 for eyeliner.

House of Tattooing's Duane Fager, who learned permanent makeup procedures from two eye doctors in San Diego, said although his prices are on the low end - $200 for eyebrows and $450 to line the top and bottom eyelids - it doesn't mean the quality is lower.

"I will beat the quality of any doctor that does it," said Fager who works on about 20-25 clients a year at his Westland

Friedman said it's important for potential clients to base their choice of artist on experience, not necessarily price. In Michigan, there are no licensing requirements for tattoo artists.

The memorial also has the "They Also Served" Registry for women who served in the Red Cross, USO and Special Services during conflicts overseas, and U.S. Public Health Service uniformed women, Coast Guard Auxiliary and Civil Air Patrol can also register.

"What's wonderful about this memorial is that it is a living memorial," said Dabe. "It will be an ongoing project to maintain and to add names to the database.

Ground was broken for the memorial in June 1996 and its dedication is set for Oct. 18. The WIMSA Memorial Foundation Inc., is looking to raise $20 million to finance the construction and maintenance of the memorial, expected to attract 4 million visitors a year.

To date, it has received a bequest of $9 million from the U.S. government as well as contributions from the governments of Kuwait and Saudi Arabia to honor the women who served in Operation Desert Storm, and from many of the 50 states, said Lorraine Dieterle, state WIMSA

To date, 130,000 women have registered for the memorial, which might explain why finding out from their great-granddaughters about two women who served during World War I was a cause for celebration at the expo.

"At first, the women who registered were predominantly from World War II," Dieterle said. "Now, we're starting to get young women; we're starting to get a good sampling.

Dabe and Dieterle both served during World War II. Dabe enlisted in the U.S. Navy's Women Appointed for Voluntary Emergency Service and served for two years. Dieterle enlisted in the U.S. Coast Guard's SPARs, a name derived from the Coast Guard motto of "Semper Paratus, Always Ready."

Dabe's father had always told his children to get an education and then go see the world. Dabe gave up a $100 a month job at Murray Corporation to do that, seeing the worldly likes of Hunter College in New York and the dormitories and classrooms of Oklahoma A & M before being stationed in Cleveland, Ohio.

Good experience

A yeoman first class, she worked in the Bureau of Supplies and Accounting producing allotment checks for the families of servicemen.

"I don't know if it was purely patriotic or because I wanted to be a part of it, but it was a wonderful experience," said Dabe. "I met a lot of people and I learned a lot. And I fought the 'battle' of Euclid Avenue in Cleveland."

The military needed photographers and Dieterle had the experience. As photographer's mate third class, she worked at photographic laboratories in New York City, primarily training servicemen in combat still, aerial and film combat photography.

"World War II really expanded the military and women's role in it around the world," said Dieterle. "The nurses did a fantastic job and were out there on the front lines. A young Coast Guarder who told me, 'You ladies were on the ground flour and made it easy for us." Women who served or their families can get more information about registering for the memorial by writing to the Women in Military Service for America Memorial Foundation at Department 560, Washington, D.C., 20042-0560 or by calling 1-800-222-2294.

"I know most of the women enjoyed their experiences," said Dieterle. "They were proud of their services and the job that care. It seemed to have made a difference, a good difference. Perhaps this would turn out OK after all. The drizzle turned to rain, I decided the bird should stay inside for a bit longer. She was safe, dry and mending. Tony went on a brief worm run in the backyard. He came back with a couple and put them in the box. The first one the robin didn't even seem to notice. But the second one, she JUMPED! Her wings flapped a little and she jumped. And she cheeped.

Jack wanted to know if she could become our pet, Joe was thinking of names and Tony, in his reserved way, let a smile spread across his face. This bird was going to be OK.

The rain let up and we decided to take the box out to the back yard and place it on its side so the bird wouldn't have to jump, but rather, just hop out.

The bird stayed in the relative comfort of the box for just a few minutes, then suddenly she flew, she didn't hop, she flew out of the box. Right smack into the neighbor's tree.

The robin hit hard and fell straight down to the pine needles below. Just as she hit the ground several birds swooped down from the pine boughs.

They attacked her. Viciously attacked, pecking and pecking and making a hideous racket. The attackers were fellow robins.

The scene was raw, ugly. And much, much too familiar, to me. I shooed my young onlookers back inside. I distracted them, getting them ready for their soccer practice.

Before we left, I found the bird, not under the tree, but a few feet away in the open grass. She was still breathing and blinking her eyes. There were bare patches, devoid of feathers, on her torso. I didn't see any

As we drove up the driveway after soccer, Jack insisted on seeing "his bird." He's newly 3 and still has hope and innocence brimming within him. When I opened the van door for him, he scooted past me and went to the back yard.

"Mommy," he yelled, "my bird flew away to heaven.

I was afraid to see what he was talking about. What I saw was nothing, The robin was gone. No signs anywhere.

And so the story ends. But how? That I can't tell you for sure, 'cause I just don't know. But as a friend of mine once said, "We see things not as they are, but as we are."

So my ending to this story has to do with the bird being a fighter. And a survivor. And, finally, gentle victor.

A divorce in the family almost inevitably means disruption for everyone. Disruption, however, implies things will return to normal, and the family will work through the experience, says Maggie Conger, instructor in a Schoolcraft College class on helping children cope with divorce.

"This is a time to role model to your children how you solve problems and deal with life when it is not at its best," Conger said.

Divorcing parents should focus on the issues that will make their children's lives secure, she said, starting with where and with whom they will live and the fact that they will be fed and well cared for. In Conger's case, she and her ex-husband kept the children in the family home, and the parents took turns moving in and out on a weekly basis. The children retained the same address, the same phone number and the same friends.

Conger, a counselor at Wylie Middle School in Dexter, does not advocate that solution for everyone. However, she said if the divorcing couple is aware of several choices for getting their children through the divorce, something will be right for the family.

Conger said the seminar will focus on the 70 percent of children who successfully manage the transition to their parents' divorce, but need extra understanding. The seminar will include discussion periods, and is for adults only, including grandparents who may worry about their

Scouts and Head Start host summer programs

Huron Valley Girl Scout Council and Head Start will once again offer a summer program for Head Start students who will attend kindergarten in the fall.

The free program will continue readiness activities learned in Head Start as a "bridge" to kindergarten and to Daisy Girl Scouts

Both boys and girls are welcome at five sites in Ypsilanti, Willow Run and Westland, including a brand new site at Van Buren Head Start.

All programs run from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays

At Jefferson School Head Start, 1036 Jefferson, and Fletcher School Head Start, 1055 Cornell, both in Ypsilanti, the Daisy/Head Start summer program will run for three weeks July 21 through Aug. 7.

At Thurston Early Child

Development Center, 181 Oregon, Ypsilanti, the program will run for three weeks June 23 through July 10.

At Stottlemyer Early Childhood Center, 34801 Marquette, Westland, Daisy/Head Start will run for two weeks June 30 through July 10.

At Van Buren Head Start,
2060 Mary Catherine, Ypsilanti, the program also will run for two weeks June 16-26.

Children will explore the five Worlds of Girl Scouting through stories, skits, puppet shows, songs, dances, scrapbooks, crafts and games. They receive lunch and a snack each day.

Parents are welcome to serve as volunteer assistants in class. Some stipend positions are also available.

For more information, call (800) 49-SCOUT or (313) 971-8800, Ext. 217.

Hospice conference will focus on AIDS care

Hospice of Michigan is inviting health care professionals and people caring for a loved one with AIDS to a conference, "Hospice as an Integral Part of AIDS Care: Grief and Loss," set for Friday June 6, in Fisher Auditorium of Providence Hospital in Southfield.

The speakers will be Sister Sheila Flynn, an Adrian Dominican sister, and Colleen Miller, facilitator of Grace Hospital's Parent Center.

Sister Sheila is spiritual care and bereavement counselor at Hospice of Michigan's Hospice Home at Franklin Care Center in Detroit, where she cares for many Hospice patients with AIDS. As a counselor, Miller helps families deal with issues, including grief and terminal ill-

for a smoother future

This year the state will spend $110 million repairing bridges and $180 million maintaining roads. A major priority is 1-275; various segments totaling 31 miles of construction on the freeway will be improved beginning

The four construction areas include the following sections of 1-275:

- From the beginning of I-275 to Telegraph Rd., Monroe County
- ▼ Telegraph Rd. to Newberg Rd., Monroe County
- Newberg Rd. to Northline Rd./1-94, Wayne County
- Northline Rd., 1-94 to Five Mile Rd./1-96, Wayne County

Northbound traffic will be detoured as follows:

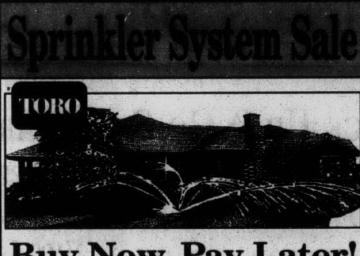

- Travel I-75 North to Exit 35 (US-24 Telegraph Connector) in Taylor
- Follow Telegraph Rd. (US-24) North to I-94 West to reconnect with I-275 North.

Construction staging was designed with motorist and community needs in mind. These construction projects represent MDOT's commitment to invest in 1-275. Please excuse the short-term inconvenience caused by an investment in our road system.

Canton clips Blazers in state tourney opener

Really, what happened in Tuesday's Class A pre-district softball qualifying game between Plymouth Canton and Livonia Ladywood wasn't shocking.

Or jolting. Not even stunning.
That lack of surprise didn't lessen the drama, however. When two league champions face off in a qualifier, one anticipates a high qualifier, one anticipates a high degree of tension.

And that's what Ladywood and Canton supplied in quantity Tuesday at Ladywood. The Blazers struck first, but the Chiefs answered their one-run rally in the bottom of the second by pushing across two runs in the top of the third, and that's all that was needed.

Canton's 2-1 victory completes Saturday's district bracket. Can-ton, now 29-5, will play Livonia Churchill at 10 a.m.; Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Salem

The winners of those games will meet to decide the district title at approximately 2 p.m. All the games will be at Ladywood.

Arnold's final sentiment was echoed by Ladywood first-year coach Bob Lulek, who resigned himself to the early meeting of the two championship teams. Canton won the Western Lakes Activities Association title; Ladywood was best in the Catholic League.

"We were going to have to face them sooner or later," he said.

"That's the way it goes. Someone's got to win, someone's got to lose.

"This game could have gone either way. It was just a matter of who got the breaks."

At first, it seemed that honor would go to Ladywood. An error by Canton' shortstop Nikki Kovachevich allowed Sara Thiesmeyer to reach first base to open the Blazers' second inning.

Pitcher Mike Allison had the best of both worlds in Tuesday's Class A predistrict baseball encounter with Plymouth Salem.

Two weeks ago, in winter weather conditions, Livonia Stevenson dominated Plymouth Canton in the Western Lakes Activities Association soccer final.

Despite their mastery, the Spartans had to settle for a 1-0 victory.

Last night in a Class A regional semifinal played on Southgate Anderson's smaller field, but in perfect weather, Canton turned in a better game against their nemesis. The Chiefs got more scoring opportunities and didn't allow Stevenson ownership of the mid-field.

The result: worse, at least for Canton. Stevenson pumped in three goals in the first half, two coming off of corner kicks, and although the Chiefs had more chances, they didn't capitalize on any of them.

Stevenson's 3-0 victory, in a match played at Southgate Anderson, makes for an all-Livonia regional final. Livonia Churchill routed Woodhaven 9-1 in Wednesday's first game at Anderson.

Churchill and Stevenson play at 11 a.m. Saturday at Anderson. The winner advances to the state semifinal, which will be at Jackson's Mehall Field at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The state final will be 1 p.m. Saturday, June 7, at Plymouth Canton's field.

"They took it to us," said Canton coach Don Smith, his defending state champions finished for the season with a 14-2-2 record: "If we could have got one in early on, it might have changed the complexion of the game."

Of course, getting one in the net against Stevenson is no easy chore. The Spartans' incredible streak continues - they have surrendered just one goal in 20 games (they are 18-0-2) this season, that coming in a 3-1 regular-season triumph over Northville. The Chiefs have had their shots at Stevenson, that's for sure. Wednesday's match was the third time the two have met this season Stevenson has two wins and a tie.

Cougars jolt Franklin

Livonia Franklin, playing four days sooner than it originally anticipated, lost to Garden City, 4-0, in a Class A predistrict game Tuesday hosted by the Cougars at Garden City Park.

The game originally was scheduled for Saturday, but the draw was re-done after the late addition of Detroit Cody to the district field following some confusion about an eligibility list.

The new draw had the Patriots and Cougars meeting Tuesday, instead of Saturday as originally Neither coach complained about the new setup, which changed the practice schedule for both teams.

'It was kind of hard going through school today knowing you had to play the game," Franklin coach Linda Jiminez said. "But if we had won, it would have been fine.'

Garden City coach Barry Patterson asked his players to set aside some of their time over Memorial Day weekend to prac-

It turned into a wise investment.

"It was equal for both teams, one of those freak situations," Patterson said. "I was upset at first. We had Franklin anyway but we had a whole week of practice scheduled made out to work on some things we'd need against Franklin. Some had to cancel plans to go out of town. Right now it's well worth it."

The win sends Garden City, 14-17 overall, into Saturday's district semifinal. Cody plays Dearborn at 10 a.m. followed by the Cougars against Dearborn Edsel Ford at noon.

The championship game is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday. Patterson laughs at the irony that his team could be a district champion and still have a sub .500 record. It's a testament to the Cougars' competition in the Mega Conference Red Division.

"We knew the winner of today's game would be the favorite," Patterson said. "But you've still got to come out and play every game."

"We could have used a base, hit there, eh?" said Jiminez, whose team had a .328 batting average through the year.

The other three Franklin hits came by Jackie Ziem, Schultz and Kelly Young.

Garden City scored two runs in the third inning, one in the fourth and one in the sixth.

Sylvester led off the third with single. Lewis ground out sent her to second base and a passed ball to third. Danielle Biegas's single scored Sylvester with the first run. Missy Bako singled to get Biegas to third and Biegas came home on a ground out by Brandy Mulvaney.

In the fourth, Katie Kendrick reached base on an error. She got to second on a passed ball and scored on a double by Sylvester for a 3-0 lead.

Talbot's triple in the sixth was followed by Lewis' bunt single that gave the Cougars a 4-0 lead.

Patterson said the play of Sylvester and the breaks the Cougars are now receiving are welcomed at this time of year.

"It's only the second game she started for us," Patterson said. She's been swinging the bat good of late, gotten an opportunity to start, and will probably get another one.

"I've been telling the girls all year be patient and those breaks will go our way. We had three little 'nubbers' go our way today and those type of plays have been beating us all year.

CC bounces Farmington

Redford Catholic Central broke the game open early by scoring 12 runs in the inning to knock out starter Dave Viane and his Farmington team, 14-0 Tuesday in a non-league baseball game.

Ryan Kolb (4-0) pitched the first three innings in the fiveinning mercy. He struck out two, walked one and allowed only one

Casey Rogowski provided much of the offense, going 3-for-4 with four RBI. Chris Woodruff knocked in three runs with a pair of hits and Pete Broccoli added two hits and one RBI.

On Saturday, the Shamrocks (18-13) advanced to the semifinals in the Madonna University Tournament with a pair of victories. CC was eliminated from the tournament on Sunday, however, as the Shamrocks lost to Alpena 8-0.

Alpena, the No. 2 ranked team in Class A went on to win the championship with a 4-0 victory over Warren DeLaSalle as two pitchers combined on a no-hitter. CC opened tournament play with a 5-2 victory over North Farmington. Trailing 1-0, the Shamrocks took control of the game with a four-run third

In the fourth-inning rally, CC combined two bunt singles, one Raider error and two walks to manufacture its runs.

Tony Nozewski improved his record to 5-1 with the complete game performance. He struck out seven and walked three.

Jeff Trzos took the defeat for North, despite fanning eight. He scattered five hits and walked

Mike Haller (4-3) recorded his first shutout of the season as the Shamrocks blanked Allen Park

Clinging to a 1-0 lead in the seventh inning, the Shamrocks provided Haller with some breathing room with two runs. Ryan Ossenmacher's double gave CC a 2-0 lead. Ossenmacher later scored on a suicide squeeze bunt off the bat of Broc-Rogowski collected three of CC's eight hits. Dave Lusky added two hits.

Rogowski's fourth-inning sinle proved to be CC's only hit in their tournament-ending loss against Alpena. The Wildcats, who scored three runs in each of the first two innings, received a gem from Aaron Sobek, who struck out three and walked one. Alpena, who had earlier shutout Birmingham Brother Rice 1-0, faced DeLaSalle, a 12-2 winner over Farmington Hills Harrison in semi-final action.

Tuesday, Westland John Glenn assured itself of another encounter with its neighborhood

The Rockets routed Romulus in a five-inning mercy in a predistrict match-up at Belleville, to advance to Saturday's action where they will face Wayne Memorial. The game will begin at 10 a.m. at Belleville.

After spotting Romulus a 2-0 lead in the first inning, the Glenn bats came alive spanking

Tim Reeves carried the biggest bat, going 3-for-4 (single, double and triple), scored a pair of runs and drove in one run. Chet Rees knocked in three runs with a pair of hits while Steve Paling collected two hits and scored two

The Rockets (15-13) ended the game in the sixth when Josh Utley recorded his second hit two-run, inside-the-park

Greg McCollum hurled the first five innings for Glenn for the win. He scattered four hits and struck out four without allowing a walk. Brian Ault allowed an unearned run in his one-inning of action.

Sean Dick survived the first five innings and took the loss for Romulus (6-17).

Westland John Glenn softball coach Ron Staples hopes that his team has been saving its best performances for the end of the

"I've told the team that it's now a new season," he said Tues-day following Glenn's 16-6 fiveinning mercy of Romulus in a pre-district game at Belleville. The Rockets (6-13) will play

The Rockets (6-13) will play Wayne Memorial at noon Saturday at the Belleville district.

"We got a good draw and now we have new life," the Glenn coach said. "Today's win was a good way to go into the districts."

The Rockets seemed to do everything right as every Glenn starter recorded at least one hit and one RBI. As a team, the Rockets stole seven bases and Rockets stole seven bases and the bottom four batters in the lineup went 8-for-16.

Leading the way was shortstop Samantha Crews who was 3-for-

Megan Brady and Stacy

Stevens added two hits and three RBI each; Kathie Suda had two hits and two RBI.

Jessica Beach struggled early, but recovered to record the win. She struck out five and walked two in her five innings of work.

Chargers struggle

Livonia Churchill's softball team won one out of three games at Saturday's Novi Tournament.

The Chargers (15-13) began the day by being blanked by the eventual tournament champion
Montrose, 12-0.

Raegan Tisher suffered the defeat, scattering five hits, walking six and fanning one.

Jessie Jenkins had two of the three Churchill hits.

The Chargers bounced back to rout Auburn Hills Avondale 13-3 in a six-inning mercy. Churchill ripped 13 hits in the onslaught.

Jessica Schuette, Tina Naif and Kristin Derwich each collected two hits and two RBI. Christine Fones and Jenkins added two hits and each drove in a pair of runs. Sarah Stiles also chipped in with two hits.

Adrienne Doyle took advantage of the offense to record the win. She allowed five hits, struck out four and walked one.

Churchill bowed out in the

"Mike's always been a control pitcher and today his fastball vas working," Stevenson coach Mike Keller said. "Today we got a little hitting, a little field, good pitching and good defense. It was a combination of things."

Stevenson scored four times in the opening inning off Salem starter Tom DeMetsenare, who had beaten the Spartans in an earlier Lakes Division meeting this season, 7-5.

Kevin Marvin's two-run double keyed the surge.

The Spartans also added two in the top of the fourth and two more in the fifth to put it away.

Dale Rumberger Salem baseball coach

Mark Dietrich and Roy Rabe led Stevenson with three hits

Rabe had a pair of doubles, while Dietrich added one.

Tony Dattilio and Justin Kerr each added two hits.

DeMetsenare (5-3) gave up four runs on six hits in the opening inning before giving way to Kurt Berlin, who worked the final five innings, giving up four runs on six hits.

"Stevenson hit the ball from the beginning and played well," Salem coach Dale Rumberger said. "You can't win with one hit in any game. That's tough to do.

"I thought we'd come out and hit, but that's been the story of our season. We have not been consistent with the bats all season long. We've been very hot

Canton, one of four hosts for Saturday's opening round, started with a 4-2 victory over Monroe. Jason Mortiere pitched "by far his best outing of the year," said Dickey; Mortiere allowed two earned runs on six hits and

He also figured prominently in all the Chiefs' scoring. In the third inning, with Monroe up 1-0, Mortiere walked and was replaced by a courtesy runner. A Wildfong single left runners at first and third for Nate Copenhaver, who delivered the tying

In the WLAA final two weeks ago, the Spartans had plenty of chances. Problem was, they did-

They did Wednesday. "Execution was the key tonight," said Stevenson coach Jim Kimble.

It didn't take long, either. With just 5:18 elapsed, Sarah Wittrock angled her corner kick into the middle of the box, in front of the Canton goal.

Allison Campbell, the key to the Spartans' offense, headed the ball to the far corner of the net - right where Brianna Roy was positioned for the tap in.

The second goal looked simi-lar, only from the other side of the Canton net. Melissa Jacobs took this corner, putting the ball into a spot populated by Canton

But Campbell charged through the tangle of players, chested the ball to the ground and poked it past Chiefs' keeper Kristin Lukasik, making it 2-0.

"Surprisingly enough," said Kimble, "we worked on corner kicks for two days after our last game with them. It was one area we felt we could be better at. "Sometimes things work."

The 2-0 lead, considering the defensive work turned in all season long by Stevenson's Stacey Nastase, Andrea Sied and Jacobs in front of keeper Jenny Barker, must have seemed insurmountable to Canton.

It soon expanded further. Jacobs got control of the ball late in the first half and took it toward the corner, to the right of the Canton goal. She unleashed a shot that somehow squeezed between Lukasik and the post, and into the net, to make it 3-0.

"I can't say we didn't lose some heart," Smith admitted. "When you're down 3-0, it can be hard to stay enthused.

"But we were. We came back in the second half with enthusiasm. We didn't lay down."

However, the Chiefs could not solve the Stevenson defense. The shutout string, now at nine in a row, is "a pride thing now," Kimble added. "We work on a few things as a team, but as far as those three (Nastase, Jacobs, Sied) are concerned, no one will

It's a pledge the Spartans just might carry all the way to a title.

• Churchill 9, Woodhaven 1: It can be an uneasy feeling, coming into a state regional semifinal as Chad Campau did Wednesday against Woodhaven.

"I didn't know what to expect coming in," he admitted. His Livonia Churchill team had never seen Woodhaven, nor dis-they have much information the Warriors.

"I got a scouting report from a friend whose team had played them, and he said they like 10 push the ball up hard to the forwards," Campau explained "So we played a little defensive at first, until I saw we could move it around on them."

The Chargers moved it around, over and through their opponents in this game, played at Southgate Anderson. They scored five first-half goals, the last two by Andrea Galindo, to move into Saturday's regional final opposite Stevenson.

Stacey Supanich also had two goals for Churchill, one in each half. Kersten Conklin and Andrea Will had the other two first-half goals for the Chargers; Karrie Bewersdorf, Luba Steca and Tina Fischer scored in the econd half.

The victory pushes Churchill's record to 13-3-4 and sets up a rematch with Stevenson. The two teams played to a scoreless tie during the regular season.

Bass season opened Saturday and a couple local anglers wasted little time in finding a successful pattern. Southfield's Terry Sanders and Livonia's Byrum McBride teamed with their partners to place second and fourth, respectively, Saturday in the 1997 Oakland Bass Master's Kent Lake Open.

Sanders and his part-ner, Terry Abfalter of Howell, caught an eight-fish tournament limit which tipped the scale at 21.51 pounds, less than a half-pound short of the winning catch of 21.94 pounds, caught by Fred Malmquist (Milford) and Jim Indreica (Flint). For their success Sanders and Abfalter each received a plaque and they pocketed $929.25 in cash, $20 in

Sanders also just missed big bass honors with his 5.16-pound largemouth. Fenton's Tom Holda had the big bass of the tournament, a 5.26-pound large-

McBride and his partner, Al Fazakas of Dearborn Heights, placed fourth with a catch of 17.54 pounds. They earned $442.50 cash, $20 in Big Boy Cash and two Gander Mountain hats.

Despite cool rainy conditions through-out a major portion of the tournament 40 two-man teams weighed fish out of the 75 teams entered in the tournament. The 40 successful teams combined to land 143 keepers which weighed a tournament-record 400.52 pounds. That's an average of 2.80 pounds per fish. Every fish weighed was alive and released back into the lake.

The next event on the Oakland Bass Master's schedule will be the Orchard

Big Boy Cash and two Gander Mountain hats.

Lake Open on June 8. There is a 50-boat limit so preregistration is advised.

Sanders also just missed big bass honFor more information contact Oakland Bass Masters at 838 N. Maple, Royal Oak, MI 48067 or call (248) 542-5254.

Greene ends season

While the bass season in Michigan is just starting, the season on the BASS-MASTER Tournament Trail has come to a close. First-year pro Kyle Greene of Bloomfield Hills had a very respectable year and ended up 50th in the Eastern Invitational point standings with 833 points. The top five in the Eastern Invitational standings receive an invitation to the prestigious BASSMASTER Classic. Greene, who had a tough outing in the final event when he placed 170th (seven fish, 13.03 pounds) in the Alabama Eastern Invitational on May 8-10, fell just 221 points shy of an invitation to the Classic.

Waterfowl stamp winners

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has announced the top finishers in the 1998 Michigan Waterfowl Stamp design competition and several local wildlife artists placed in the top

For the third time, Manistique artist Dietmar Krumrey won the competition this year with a painting of pintails. His winning work will appear on the 1998

Michigan Waterfowl stamp.
Livonia's Ken Bardel placed second with his painting of a buffleheads and
Rochester artist Larry Tucci placed third with a painting of mallards.
Paul Butala of Southfield, and Heiner

Hertling of West Bloomfield, both placed in the top 10.

Help promote fishing

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is looking for anglers to help with its successful "Fishing in the Parks" program at Pontiac Lake Recre-

If you love to fish and are interested in helping others learn the sport, the DNR is seeking your help.

The program is run by DNR staff. Volunteers will assist new anglers with knots, baiting hooks, casting and removing fish. The program begins at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday evenings, June 17-Aug. 2. Volunteers can work as many Tuesday's as

To volunteer or for more information call the Pontiac Lake Recreation Area at (248) 666-1020.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Knowledge aids design

NAOMI STONE

When writing this column, very early on, I stressed the need of knowledge – in every phase of design.

I reiterate that ever-important factor. Learning should be a continuing goal. It is the key that opens doors.

Expose yourself to all the information you can garner, because you cannot buy good taste.

Acquiring this knowledge should be fascinating. I have never tired of pursuing it; whether through current or outdated magazines; whether through books on related subjects; whether visiting museums; or whether attending lectures by knowledgeable people.

Our local Detroit Institute of Arts has remarkable displays of interiors for your edification. You will love it! What you learn will depend on how you relate to the objects, and how they relate to your needs

Early American, Colonial, 17th century Spanish or English or German, and 18th century and 19th century and 20th century etc., etc., etc. Endeavor to learn a little about each era. Your knowledge will pay off if you make fewer costly errors when assembling your interiors.

It is hoped, if you have retained an interior designer, he or she has also accumulated cultivated taste. If this sound pretentious I regret it, but too many of us aren't thoroughly educated.

There are many styles of furniture and accessories that are eclectic, and happily mix together. There are a few that don't.

As an example of "don'ts," the formality of Sheraton Fabrics wouldn't be tasteful with rough-hewn Early American. Fabrics offer their own diversity. Not esthetic would be the combination of satins and formal brocatelles with rough-surfaced cotton burlap.

The history of each facet of interior design is part of the knowledge that should become your best friend. Furniture styles are a mere touching point. Do you know the difference between a 17th century Windsor chair and a 17th century French bergere? Who was Thomas Chippendale? Necessary information.

Acknowledging architectural detail is another element needed to execute an inordinate job. Crown moldings, dentils, columns and pilasters are a few of the items you should be able to recognize.

Execute your interior with accounterments that are harmonious with all of the foregoing. You will be so proud of the final outcome.

Naomi Stone Levy, a Franklin resident, is an interior designer and a former secretary of the American Society of Interior Designers. You can leave her a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then her mailbox number, 1897.

Pictures in bloom

Faces and vases:

Bloomers are unusual frames and vases all in one. They come in four different designs and cost $20. Available at Hudson's.

Zesty decor

Juicy look: What has traditionally been considered the color of autumn is coming out of hibernation this spring. Two new decorative pieces by Kosta Boda unite the zest of orange with bright spring colors. The orange pinstripe candlesticks retail for $125 each. The orange centerpiece bowl retails for $300. The candlesticks and bowl are available at Heslop's at The Colonnade in Ann Arbor and Orchard Mall in West Bloomfield.

Crystal setting

Clear choice: Marie-Howard Interiors Inc., a showroom at Michigan Design Center in Troy, introduces a special group of handcrafted crystal tables from Drumm Furniture of Limerick, Ireland. The flexible table sizing is available in combinations of brass, antique bronze or stainless steel, along with a choice of various leg styles based on designs by Carlton Varney and other international designers. The precision cut, high percentage lead crystal is combined with the technology of modern Ireland to produce a table that is both beautiful and strong. Call (810) 649-3222.

Finishing touch

Make if personal: Personalize your gift for the bride and groom with "their" colors by painting it yourself at You're Fired in The Boardwalk shopping center at 6925 Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield. Make your selection from shelves of unfinished dinner ware, serving pieces, mugs, trays, pitchers, vases, tiles and more. Then paint your piece in a comfortable studio setting where instructions, glazes, supplies, design ideas and firing are included for $8 per hour. Prices of individual pieces range from $2 to $80. With special group rate prices, you can paint an entire set of dinner ware for the couple by gathering their friends for a painting party at You're Fired. Call (248) 851-5594.

reating our national parks system and vas a founder of the Sierra Club.

The book includes a collection of ome of his best-loved compositions. beginning with "The Story of My Boyhood and Youth" in which he relates his young boyhood in Scotland, the family's nove to America and his enthusiasm for the wilderness of nature.

In "My First Summer in the Sierra," he shares his experiences of being in central California, and in "The Mountains of California" his lyrical words evoke the beauty that he found there. "Stickeen," his most popular book, is the story of his Alaskan adventures while accompanied by a faithful dog.

Some of the essays that are included reveal highlights of his long, fascinating and varied career.

Specialty gardens

"The Self-taught Gardener: Lessons From a Country Garden," Sydney Eddison (Viking, $24.95), is a down-to-earth book for both novice and experienced gardeners. It is a no-nonsense approach to this popular activity and she makes it sound easy.

Eddison gives information (such as what deciduous means) and other advice she couldn't find in other books when she began gardening, and covers all aspects: tools, division, basic design, paths, winter interest, soils and more. She describes her 10 favorite plants for sun, shade and other situations and suggests companion plants to carry the garden through the season.

Eddison lives in Connecticut and writes from experience covering questions that gardeners (especially new ones) need to know and often don't know who to ask

The small book "Catfish Ponds & Lily Pads: Creating and Enjoying a Family Pond," Louise Riotte (Storey, $12.95), tells all about the subject and the Riotte

"Japanese Gardening in Small Spaces," Isa Yoshikawa (Joie/Japan Publications, distributed by Kodansha America Inc., $28), is the definitive book for those who want an authentic Japanese garden.

The author explains the principles behind each style of garden, how to place the stones, water basins, lanterns and accents to best interpret the designs. He also discusses the use of trees and shrubs, stones and gravel.

The directions for constructing a kinkakuji-gaki (bamboo fence) are verv complete, with excellent illustrations. Line drawings of detailed explanations will result in an authentic garden of which the owner can boast.

Family values

"Landscaping Makes Cents: Smart Investments That Increase Your Property Value," Frederick Campbell and Richard Dube (Storey, $16.95), is an invaluable guide.

The authors explain in great detail about the value of landscaping, perceived and real. If you are planning to improve your property, buy or sell, this book is an important tool that will help in many decisions.

"Green Fun: Plant as Play," Marianne Haug Gjersvik (Firefly, $7.95 soft, $19.95 hard), is the perfect book for youngsters as summer vacation begins.

The author shares how to make playthings with leaves, flowers and weeds, using just your hands. No other equipment or supplies are required.

Color photos of each project illustrate just what to do. Tuck this into a picnic basket and enjoy the experience!

House given special treatment

"If these walls could talk..." the expression goes.

You could say the walls, treated with luscious colors and fabulous faux finishes, almost sing in the Mark and Lisa Sanderson home in Plymouth.

The house is one of 10 in the Plymouth-Canton-Northville area that will be featured on the Symphony of Homes tour sponsored by the Plymouth Symphony League. The tour will take place 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday, June 6, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 7.

Each house on the tour has something unusual to offer, such as historical value, creative decorating or beautiful

In the Sanderson residence, the walls often draw attention, Lisa Sanderson

"They're all different colors," she The shades include soft gold and gentle peach. The hues - from a warm, appealing palette - and open, beckoning archways contribute to the welcoming flow between the rooms.

Lisa, who does faux finishes professionally, gave special treatment to various walls

The house was built in 1927; Mark and Lisa think it is possibly a kit house as they discovered all of the boards in a room were numbered.

The couple has lived in the house for three years and did renovation work that brought out or enhanced its beauty. Leaded glass doors and cove ceilings are among its style.

"It's been a lot of fun," Mark said. The work included removing the acoustic tiles from the living room ceiling. The living room features a brick fireplace, a large armoire and a rose sofa on an area rug; the walls have a European distressed plaster finish. As elsewhere in the house, the wood floor has a natural finish. Raised designs form a border around the arch outside the adjoining sun room.

"The sun room is where we hang out," Lisa said.

Walls in the sun room have a Venetian plaster finish, a touch of Old World charm.

The walls in the dining room had been covered with dark paper. The Sandersons removed the wallpaper and painted the walls sage.

Shutters along the bottom of the windows bear floral fabric that matches the backs of the slipcovers Lisa made for the chairs. The slipcovers also have offwhite skirts.

The kitchen, which the couple enlarged, includes a fan on the white wood ceiling and green tiles on the counter space. Painted bunches of grapes accent one wall. Lisa Sanderson has decorated rooms in three showhouses in the last three years, including this year's Detroit

Symphony Designers Showhouse in the Boston-Edison District of Detroit. Her work may be seen in the breakfast room

For the first time in the Symphony of Homes tour, a boutique will be at one of the houses. It will feature items from The Velvet Plum, Traditions, Friends, Debbie Malek, Carolyn Still and more. Station 885 will be there with beverages, light lunch food and desserts available for purchase.

Many area businesses - including Sideways, Ribar Florist, The Velvet Plum, The Ritz Carlton, Heidis, Emerald City and Jewel - have donated raffle prizes, floral arrangements and other details. Local musicians will perform in Pre-sale tickets are $15 and available at Frameworks, Beitner Jewelers, The Velvet Plum, Friends and Coldwell-Schweitzer Realtors. Tickets will be available tour days at any of the houses

I replied, "I work for the best radio station in this country and they pay me much more than I'm deserving. I enjoy helping consumers become more aware and saving a lot of money, and I constantly want to reach more people."

You know how it feels to do something good for someone else, well, imagine how it must feel to do it for several hundred thousand people. Now, you can understand the happiness that I feel.

Bill's conversation went a lot further until he brought up a good point. "Why don't you become a total appliance expert by expanding into the field of small appliances like irons, toasters, breadmakers etc.? Imagine how many people you will be able to help with

It seems that his majesty King Arthur has temporarily moved his monarchy, Camelot, to a very enchanting, prime piece of real estate

- the Greek Theatre in
Bloomfield Hills. Located at 400 Lone Pine Road, behind St. Dunstan's Playhouse on the grounds of Cranbrook Educational Community, the 600-seat Greek Theatre has been the site of St Dunstan's Theatre Guild's summer show for 59 of St. D's 65 seasons

One of only six outdoor amphitheaters of its type in the country, the Greek Theatre will be home to Alan Jay Lerner's and Frederick Loewe's musical "Camelot" when it opens May 30 for a five-performance run. Directed by Birmingham resident and 28-year St. D's member Nancy Brassert, "Camelot" reunites several cast and crew members from another Lerner and Loewe musical that Brassert also directed at the Greek Theatre in 1991. "My Fair Lady."

Among those are Birmingham residents Richard Hartle as King Arthur and Edgar A. Guest III as Arthur's trusted advisor Pellinore; and Bloomfield Hills resident Marlene Loucks as music director.

"Camelot" pits chivalry against deceit and revenge when King Arthur's bride Guinevere (played by St. D's newcomer Jan Casai of Bloomfield Hills) falls in love with Lancelot (Chris Steinmayer of Bloomfield), a knight of the Round Table. Their affair is exposed by Arthur's illegitimate son, Mordred (John Marshall of Pleasant Ridge) who attempts to dishonor King Arthur and overthrow the throne. That "one brief shining moment" is shattered forever. "'Camelot' is a show of dreams and hopes and human frailty," said Brassert, who worked very closely with set designer Bob Raisch of Lathrup Village to ensure an authentic backdrop to the musical, which Brassert has set between 1250 and 1300 A.D. "I think it's a show that displays forgiveness and tol-erances for human mistakes. Look at this day and age. There's so much nastiness going on," adds Brassert, who's directed five outdoor shows for the Greek Theatre and worked on more than 80 sets in her 20 years as chair of the Set Production Committee. There's a feeling of compassion between Lancelot, Guinevere and King Arthur. Arthur loves Lancelot as a son. He also loves

Guinevere and doesn't want revenge on them. He wants them to be safe. But, at the same time, Arthur knows that his Round Table fell apart because of Guinevere and Lancelot. So he's forced to go to war because of tra-

Now, you can't exactly go to war without the proper gear. And it's just so hard to find comfortable armor these days. So, St. D's Wardrobe Mistress and "Camelot's" costume design-Bloomfield Hills took a very 1990s approach to a very medieval problem: She surfed the net. Her detec tive work uncovered that there was a way to knit chain mail, a flexible armor made of linked metal circles. Ultimately, Basherian was led to Tobin Lakes Studios, a theatrical supplies distributor, in Brighton.

"I commandeered my mother to follow the directions in the kit and knit a chain mail set out of cord to see if it would work" says Basherian about the costume dilemma ably solved by her 82-year-old mother, Margaret Melikian, a St. D's season subscriber and for-mer professional dressmak-er. Basherian wanted her mother to knit with the nylon cord because Basherian felt cord would be more realistic looking than yarn. "Then, I ran an ad in St. D's newsletter: 'Join the chain mail gang. Chain mail knitters wanted."

That led Basherian to a knitters group within Birmingham Area Seniors Coordinating Council), including one 90-year-old nimble fingered woman. Four BASCC members and several St. D's volunteers produced 12 sets of chain mail. With six pounds of white cord per hood and tunic set -that's 36,864 feet of cord for all the costumes the knitted chain mail was then spray painted with a black matte finish and finally shaded with silver metallic paint to create a genuine armor effect. In addition to their hoods and tunics, Arthur, Lancelot and mail leggings. "The biggest challenge when costuming a show is to bring about a look that's in synch with the director. I'm very fortunate that Nancy [Brassert] and I were on the same wavelength," says Basherian, whose art history and research librarian ackground proved very helpful on the project.

Pellinore wear knitted chain

"Nancy kept asking 'How are you going to do this?"
Basherian laughs. "But, actually, it turned out to be the easiest thing becau the kit worked and I had so much help. The knitters were so enthusiastic, and the guys love wearing the

"The most interesting spect of creating the chain mail was bringing to life something that's supposed to be centuries old, but using modern means to accomplish the task."

Original Lancelot returns to star in 'Man of La Mancha'

Robert Goulet who made his debut as Lancelot in the 1960 original production of "Camelot," stars in "Man of La Mancha," opening for a three-weekend engagement June 3-22 at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit. The show by Dale Wasserman and songwriters Mitch Leigh and Joe Darion opened on Broadway in 1965 and became one of the biggest hits in New York history. It played in New York for seven years and won five Tony Awards.

The story of Don Quixote is told by its author Miguel de Cervantes to prisoners in a dungeon during the Spanish Inquisition. It is a tale of a man striving to pursue the dream of his attaining his ideal – "The Impossible Dream." The show captures the bold spirit and gallant absurdity of its hero

Don Quixote.
Goulet received a Tony nomination for his role in "Camelot," and a Tony Award for best actor in the musical "The Happy Time." He returned to the musical "Camelot" in the role of King Arthur which played at the Fisher Theatre during its national tour in 1992.

In "Man of La Mancha," Goulet becomes the ultimate idealist, the deluded Don Quixote de la Mancha who, with his faithful squire, Sancho Panza, crisscrosses the Spanish countryside in pursuit of "The Impossible Dream."

"Man of La Mancha," opens 8 p.m. Tuesday, June 3, and closes Sunday, June 22. Performances 8 p.m. Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays; 7:30 p.m. Sundays; and 2 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. Tickets range from $22-$52; Friday and Saturday evening performances $26-$58, call (810) 645-6666, or (313) 872-1000 for information.

Frank Provenzano, Observer & Eccentric arts reporter, was scheduled to interview Robert Goulet on May 28 after we went to press. Look for his story in the June 5 edition of Entertainment.

Peter Spivak recalled the setting 25 years ago in London's Brompton Square, an unforgettable night of camaraderie and spontaneity. He and his friends traveling abroad, including writer Joyce Carol Oates, placed stereo speakers in their second-flat window, then went to the square where they danced into the early morning hours.

As told by Spivak, a retired Wayne County Circuit Court judge, it's as if they stood alongside the bohemian ghosts of Hemingway and Fitzgerald, bullfighters and

On Friday, Spivak and 28 other members of Village Players of Birmingham will conjure up the literary worlds of writers living and past in the fourth annual "Authors on Stage"

The two-act dramatic presentation includes works of several American literary legends along with contemporary Michigan writers Loren Estleman, Elmore Leonard, Mitch Albom, Jim Harrison, Jane Smiley and Oates, both of whom taught at the University of Michigan.

group that includes 270 members from the metro area. The production is cosponsored by the Cranbrook Writers Guild, a group founded in 1966 by the former head of the English department at Cranbrook and Henry Booth. The Guild holds an annual writer's conference for college-age students along with workshops throughout the year.

"From childhood, my best friends were always my books," said Spivak. "There might be some people who believe the 'written word' doesn't have passion in it."

Pasternak has been involved in several aspects of film production. As a writer, he adapted the French comedy "Cousin, Cousine" into the American "Cousins," starring Ted Danson and Isabella Rosellini. He has worked with Robert Redford, Dennis Hopper, Sydney Pollack, Jeff Daniels, Otto Preminger and Jean Renoir, and even directed his own feature, "Bonaparte, Private Investigator."

He encourages students who excel in the seminar to take his extensive 16-week program in Los Angeles. His workshop has developed into what he calls a "mini-studio," responsible for launching such high-profile films as "Feeling Minnesota" with Keanu Reeves and "White Man's Burden" with John Travolta and Harry Belafonte.

The seminar is sponsored by Hollywood Literary Retreat, which brings a taste of tinsel-town to the Detroit area on an almost monthly basis. President Lynn Isenberg of West Bloomfield, a University of Michigan graduate who began the program in 1990, considers Pasternak one of her most respected speakers. "He's truly one of the most inspiring and supportive mentors in this industry, which is a very cutthroat environment," said Isenberg, a former student of Pasternak's. "He really gives you the tools to become an accomplished director."

Isenberg hopes another of her filmmaking friends, "Austin Powers" director Jay Roach, will address the June 7-8 seminar group as an added speaker.

"If there's a theme, it'd be that all of the material is from topquality writers," said Frank Angelo of the Guild, a former associate executive editor at the Detroit Free Press.

Collectively, the staged reading of 24 famous anecdotes, essays, short stories and passages from novels have been worked into a well-paced format of moving spotlights and different tempo dramatic presentations. Actors will be "on script" for the twohour production, which includes a dramatization from Russell Baker's "Growing Up," a multivoice reading of Edgar Alan Poe's "Tell Tale Heart," and a contemplative interpretation of an excerpt from Thomas Wolfe's

> "In theater, you can't try peo-ple's patience," said Bob Carington, director and co-producer with his wife, Jerri, both of Bloomfield Township. "The work must communicate the first time. There aren't many second chances with audiences. We've sharpened our delivery over the past four years,"

> Carington likens "Authors on Stage" to a series of one-act radio plays whereby the drama is built through implication and imaginative storytelling. The production also provides a practical value to authors who'll attend the reading.

"Exposing your work to a (live) audience gives you a different perspective. You're introduced to things that weren't there before," said Estleman, a local bestselling author who is currently on a Midwest book-signing tour for his latest release, "Never Street." An excerpt from the novel will be dramatized at the close of the

Having the authors in attendance offers a rare opportunity to explore the original intent of the piece, said Del Moore, past president and a regular cast member in many of Village Players' comedic plays. Sometimes when you read the work you get the wrong idea," she said. "But when the author can tell you exactly how they envisioned it and you can interpret it that way, it's so reward-

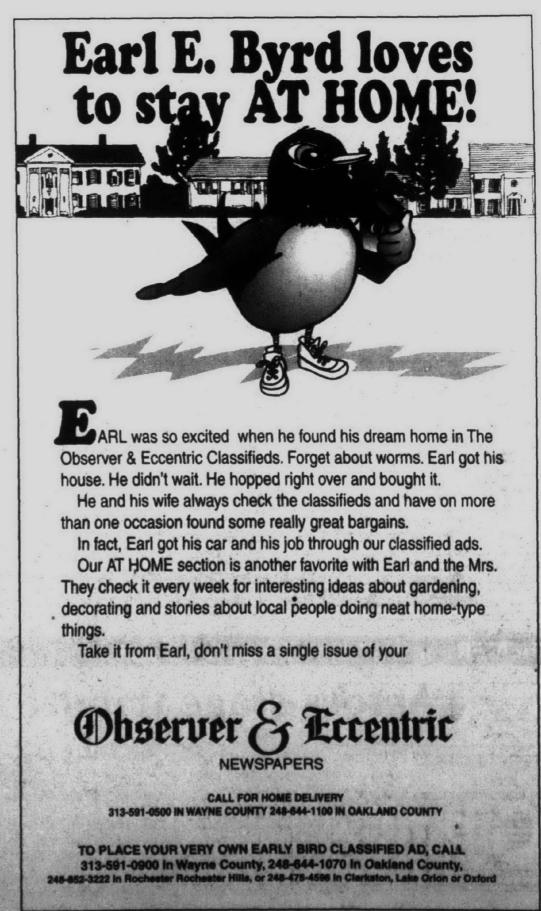

According to Carington, the "Authors on Stage" production is the "most relaxed" of the season, which typically includes five plays open to the public and three shows presented exclusively to members.

After three years of playing to half-filled theater, Village Players and the Guild expect a sell-out in their 200-seat playhouse for Friday's performance. That's good news since both groups will share the proceeds from the event.

For Village Players, Friday's performance will have a touch of nostalgia. Days after the event, the roof and walls of the theater will come crumbling down. Completion of a new auditorium and lobby will be ready by the opening of next season in mid

Part of the proceeds from "Authors on Stage" will pay off the $500,000 reconstruction cost of the playhouse. To date, Village Players has raised nearly half of the total. Meanwhile, the Guild has earmarked proceeds for its annual writer's conference held in August.

dinosaurs, Steven Spielberg's Lost World" is a brilliantly engineered, lumbering monster that eventually gets out of control. It preys on dinocrazy moviegoers who will inevitably make it the biggest attraction of the summer. Don't get me wrong - the $80 million special effects fest is often a blast. It's also a sequel so, though set on a neighboring island from "Jurassic Park," it takes much of its running time to cover any new ground.

Jurassic Park, it turns out, was only a display for the real dinosaur show room. Without fences, this new island allows several species of the geneticallyengineered reptiles to roam freely and multiply.

Jeff Goldblum, who returns as Dr. Ian Malcolm, reluctantly joins a photographer and a tactical expert who are hired to document the island in the hopes of preserving it. Malcolm just wants to protect his girlfriend (Julianne Moore), a dino-Jane Goodall who has been known to put herself in harm's way to talk to the animals.

They are pitted against another, better-outfitted group who want to hunt and trap dinosaurs and bring them back for display on the mainland. While the environmental team worries about disturbing even a blade of grass, the hunters turn the island into a cross between a monster truck show and a rodeo.

So politically correct is "The Lost World" that even the loathsome T-Rex comes off misunderstood and even cuddly. A pair of the great beasts are only trying to protect their young, though they stomp and chomp a number of human victims in the process.

Of course, we still have the elociraptors, long-necked lizards who travel in packs and whose strategically designed claws and teeth help tear prey to Spielberg spares us the gruesome details of an attack that opens the film, a "Jaws"-like encounter between a little girl on the beach and a pack of young raptors. The little creatures look at first like undernourished birds and then swarm around their victim.

It's easy to see Spielberg paying tribute to the monster movies he was weaned on. Despite Michael Crichton's '90s reworking, "The Lost World" employs the same dopey storyline as the two previous movies that bear its name (1925 and 1960), just with better special Spielberg even gives a nod to Godzilla when a group of Japanese men run, point and scream when the monster hits the San Diego suburbs.

Jeff Goldblum, the best human character in "Jurassic Park," makes a welcome return here. The only one who knows the ship is sinking, he has the world-weary look of a man who has strange. It just seems like whenever we turn around something really bad is happening. It kind of helps us bond together and know that it's going to be a really rocky road," said drummer Jeff Moehle, a former Troy resident and 1990 Avondale High School Upon arriving in Ann Arbor for its first CD release party for its latest effort "Intuition," the band noticed that all its fliers posted around town were taken down. That night an ice storm blasted the city.

A recent review of "Intuition" erroneously, according to Moehle, called Knee Deep Shag a Christian band that was trying to sneak a message through its

"I'm a Christian. I think most of us are. Matt (Gross, lead singer) is definitely inspired by that. But we're not a Christian band," he explained.

The music itself and the words are really positive. What Matt talks about is just basically good stuff. In a nutshell, it's not angst-filled. There isn't many negative vibes. It's focusing on the good stuff that's around you."

Fans can hear for themselves on Friday, May 30, when the band opens for Thornetta Davis at the Magic Bag in Ferndale.

"Intuition," Knee Deep Shag's second release, is a musical hybrid singer Matt Gross' soulful voice, and roots rock ("Delivery"), dreamy pop which escalates into funk ("Up All Night"), straightahead funk ("Bottom of the Well"), rock ("Balance"), and twinges of blues music.

Although its members are rooted in blues-based music,

Knee Deep Shag - which also includes guitarist/vocalist Phillip Barry, and bassist/vocalist Troy Stansberry - primarily focuses

With "Intuition," the band dropped its tendencies to jam found on its debut, and began concentrating on songwriting and harmonies.

"(Gross) has a different-sound voice than the other bands that are on the scene with us. He's got that 'white boy with soul' kind of thing going on. It's kind of interesting to have our voices blend with his," said Moehle, who earned a bachelor of arts degree in music performance with a minor in business management from Western Michigan University.

Recently Knee Deep Shag added a fifth member - keyboardist Rob Cookman - which Moehle said adds to the live

"Having a fifth member has kind of helped the stage energy. It's like 'Hey, there's the new guy.' There's this little organ where it wasn't before. We're really one of those kind of bands where the audience is as much a part of the show as we are," he

"It's really hard for us when an audience isn't with us. I think that's probably hard for anybody. At our shows, once we play a couple of songs and people are up and dancing it's fun on both sides."

Knee Deep Shag opens for Thornetta Davis at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 31, at the Magic Bag, 22920 Woodward Ave. Ferndale. Tickets are $6 in advance for the 18 and older show. For more information, call (248) 544-3030; The band will headline a show at 10 p.m. Thursday, June 26, at Rick's, 611 Church St., Ann Arbor.

Riding the wave of the popularity of its single "The Freshmen," The Verve Pipe will appear on "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno" on Thursday, May 29, and on VH-1's "Hard Rock Live" on Sunday, June 8. If that isn't enough, "Drive You" Mild" off of "Villains" will be used in the movie "Fall," written, directed and produced by Eric Schaeffer. "Fall" will be in theaters on Friday, June 20. On Tuesday, July 1, the band will embark on a 40-45 date tour with Tonic and K's Choice. A Detroit date has not been booked reality would be to maintain a sort of controlled loopiness. Now, you may think that's a cavalier approach to art and artists, but I'm married to one, so you have to cut me some slack.

The fact is, I have tremendous respect for the gifts of insights, context and perspective given to us by the talented people in the v husband. ed!) And this week's Backstage Pass demonstrates the hold artistic images have on our emotions, as well as the healing power of art, both for individuals and for entire communities.

A moving segment of tonight's show depicts how personal experience can influence an artist's entire oeuvre. The Backstage Pass cameras went to the Susanne Hilberry Gallery in Birmingham to experience the Abakanowicz. Magdalena Magdalena has been exhibited all over the world and, according to Backstage Pass art correspondent Marsha Miro, is considered one of the great sculptors work-

'Magdalena came from an aristocratic Polish family," Marsha explained. "During World War II like so many people, she was subjected to any number of traumatic experiences. In one particular incident she and her family were being herded in a large mass and a soldier fired into the crowd, shooting her mother's hand off. It was a seminal experience, and crowds remain very important in her work - the masses of people, the power of the group."

As is so often the case, the stories behind the work edify the impact of the images. Marsha ribed to me how that personal trauma informed the more universal themes in Magdalena's work. "There are certain universals that experience leads you to - we each feel the suppression of the group - but we're not faceless individuals. Her work is really trying to touch us, to speak to that basic duality."

Besides showing us the work, Marsha will welcome to the Channel 56 studio Gerhardt Knodel, also a fiber artist and

And in a story about the arts pulling communities together, Backstage Pass music correspondent Kim Hunter brings us the story on the Concert of Colors. The Concert was started five years ago by the Cultural Exchange Network, a subcommittee of New Detroit. The network is comprised of representatives from 30 different ethnic groups in support of the five broad communities of color: African-American, Latino, Arab, Native American and Asian.

But the Concert isn't just for the communities throwing the party. The whole idea is for ervone to get involved. Like Kim told me, "This concert represents a celebration of diversity. As opposed to using cultural differences as barriers, we're using them as gateways to understanding. Right now, there are a lot of ethnic conflicts going on in the world, and this is an opportunity of understanding rather than auspices of conflict.

You know, America is often called the 'melting pot," Kim continued, "I like to think of it as more of a tossed salad, where we can call work together while maintaining our identities and cultures." We'll get an in-studio performance from Padma Lall, whom Kim calls "the mother of Indian music in this area." Rounding out the Big Show, our theater correspondent, WSU's Blair Anderson, reports on the final show of the season at the Detroit Repertory Theatre, "Amazing Grace. Yolanda Fleischer, a faculty member from the University of Detroit-Mercy, guest directs this Michigan premiere of Pulitzer Prize-winning Cristofer's script. We'll also get an in-studio performance from perennial Detroit Music Award winner for Best Jazz Vocalist, Sheila Landis. That's on Backstage Pass, tonight at 7:30, rebroadcast Friday night at

New owners give historic mill breath of fresh air

BY ELEANOR & RAY HEALD SPECIAL WRITERS

Paint Creek Cider Mill has long been a late summer and early autumn destination for lovers of fresh cider. Now, this historic mill, built in 1835, has been given new life by restaurant owner Ray Nicholson and his wife, Mary. Under the management of Norman and Bonnie LePage and after extensive renovations, Paint Creek has reopened its restaurant for yearround dining in a scenic "Up North" atmosphere. There's nonsmoking only seating for 100 indoors and smoking permitted for about 60 on the deck with its creek view.

The Nicholsons explained that Paint Creek is one of the historical spots to which they brought their children when they were growing up only about a mile away. When the property came up for sale, they wanted to preserve it for their grandchildren and made the decision to purchase in 1996. Last November, the cider mill reopened with new equipment. Efforts then concentrated on the restaurant which had a soft opening mid-April. Despite this, locals have found the bar areas a place to meet friends after work and Oakland County foodies are filling up tables on weeknights and week-

"While the mailing address signals Rochester, Paint Creek Cider Mill Restaurant is technically located in Oakland Township," Ray Nicholson pointed out "The Township is 36 square miles with a population of 10,200 and 3,800 homes. We own the only restaurant and the community has received us well." While the menu is modern American, prominently displayed area historical artifacts have been worked into the "preservation" decor as a local history exhibit. A set of logging wheels beneath the sign in front of the mill were used to haul logs from area woods. Standing guard at the restaurant entrance is the wooden figure Chief Pontiac, in the same employ he had at Hedges Wigwam when it was attracted to a May fly and the 300-gallon trout-stocked aquarium located inside the main entrance point out that Paint Creek is a significant area trout stream. Behind the aquarium, is a small English-style pub. On route to the airy dining room, Rochester Hills artist Jim Jeffries' murals depict more area history. Images of fly-fishing and a realistic-looking fly fisherman complete the greeting. Diners are offered either a view of the mill's working water wheel and its three waterfalls or the general feeling of being outdoors, creekside in the woods at an upscale fishing lodge.

A bike rack out front signals welcome to walkers and bikers using the 10-mile long Paint Creek Trailway running alongside the property. Not only is their attire appropriate, but the menu reflects healthful choices for trail people.

An extensive menu is capably engineered by corporate chef Jeff Baldwin, Culinary Institute of graduate America Commerce Township native, who has been with the Nicholson-owned and LePage-managed restaurants for more than 10

"I created the Pecan Trout (pecan herb-crusted boneless rainbow trout topped with apple brandy sauce) $14 for this restaurant," he said. Broiled Planked White Fish $13 and tender, tangy Beef Short Ribs $10 are also Baldwin signatures.

Keeping an eye on diner pref-erences, Nicholson said the most popular starters are fried calamari, spicy chicken quesadilla and smoked rainbow trout. Paint Creek Apple Bounty Salad, a generous $9 dinner salad is accompanied by marinated and grilled, tender chicken breast, sliced apples, Michigan sundried cherries and pecans topped with flavorful raspberry vinaigrette. Falling-off-the-bone Bar B Que'd Spare Ribs (half slab $10 and full $15), Baked Vegetarian Lasagna $9 and Smoked Turkey Penne Pasta tossed with fresh basil, artichokes and roasted peppers topped with gorgonzola and Parmesan are also favorites. He's also noticing that many diners are opting for wine and the short but savvy list will be expanded.

But just as there's landmark preservation at Paint Creek Cider Mill Restaurant, there's family recipe history in the mak-Ruth Carrick, Mary Nicholson's mother, has been honored with Grandma Ruth's Meat Pie $9, melt-in-your mouth tiny meat loaves in pastry and served with Ruth's tomato sauce. Arleen Yerant of Bloomfield Hills and friend Paulette Addelia of Rochester sensed a family spirit as first-time diners. They had praises for the perfectly seasoned food, hot fresh rolls, fresh vegetable garnishes and the friendly, top-notch service. While both would like to see fresh flowers on the table, on a 10-point scale, Yerant said nine and Addelia gave it a perfect 10.

OAKLAND GRILL TAKES OVER AMERICA ON WOODWARD

Birmingham's Townsend Hotel will have a change at the kitchen helm as its executive chef Louai Sharkas launches out on his own. After seven years at The Townsend's Rugby Grille and. Gallery dining areas, Sharkas has developed a loyal following who will miss him after June 6.

"I'm 34 years old now and it's time for me to branch out on my own," he said.

Capitalized by partners who wish to remain silent, Sharkas is remodeling the former America restaurant at 4616 Woodward Avenue in Royal Oak and changing the name to Oakland Grill.

Sharkas predicts the new sign will rise above Woodward in about three weeks. Planned opening is early to mid July.

Chef Louai who always attaches the word "fun" to his cooking promises that diners at Oakland Grill will experience his style at moderate prices in a casual atmosphere.

Q. I live in a small condominium. One of the problems we have is that the association has been penny wise and pound foolish for many years, has not built up adequate reserves and is now hitting association members with substantial additional and special assessments. Moreover, the association refuses to take care of problems of the units, if they have any excuse to avoid it. It seems like you almost have to be on the board to get any. thing done since those are the only people the management company plays up to. What can I do?

A. At the risk of sounding factitious, you can run for the association's board of directors and try to change their ways in a positive fashion. As many condominiums are coming of age after 20-25 years in existence, the concerns that many of us in the community association field have expressed are coming to fruition in connection with the unavailability of adequate reserves to meet the needs of these associations.

Associations should undergo reserve studies and build up adequate reserves from the beginning.

Boards should meet their responsibilities in terms of maintenance and repair to the common element in an honest and forth-

Management companies should discharge their fiduciary responsibilities, which they own to the association and their members, not showing favoritism to one merely because he or she is on the board of directors.

Courts should look to these abuses and provide stern penalties to the associations and their board members who partake in these acts or omissions.

Talk to your neighbors and take political control of the association and the try to straighten things out.

AUTHORS URGE HOMEOWNERS: Dress your house for success

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Realtors agree that a well-presented house is a quick sale.

Sarah Parsons Zackheim, a writer and Birmingham native who now lives in Connecticut, and Martha Webb, a marketing consultant and former film producer, have taken presentation to a higher level with their book "Dress Your House for Success."

Although neither is a Realtor, they offer a five-point plan for prepping a house, which they say will blow away the competition and bring offers thousands of dollars higher than a typical, as-is listing.

"When you have a house for sale, it has a completely different purpose than a home for living," Zackheim said. "Its function is completely different. It's a product. It should be packaged and presented in the best possible light."

The Webb/Zackheim plan is relatively simple - uncluttering, cleaning, repairing, neutralizing and dynamizing.

Sellers don't need to spend a lot of money. But they should plan on spending elbow grease and a great deal of attention to detail. They want neat, clean and a state of repair they may never have experienced before.

"Unfortunately, most people ... do superficial cleaning," Zackheim said. Here's what "Dress Your House for Success" advises:

■ Take everything out of every drawer and cupboard, wash them inside and out, then re-arrange things in perfect order. Throw things out.

■ Dust or replace light bulbs in lamps. Polish plumbing fixtures, even those hidden behind vanity doors. Organize the garage and laundry. Sweep the attic. Throw things out.

■ Wash windows inside and out. Scrub walls and apply scratch cover to wood, if necessary. Paint closets. Tighten all doorknobs and oil squeaky hinges. Throw things out.

■ Get rid of accumulated newspapers and magazines. Pull weeds between cracks in the sidewalk. Throw things

The authors go so far as to suggest replacing a tattered net on the basketball rim with a fresh one.

What happens when prospects push the doorbell as they enter the front door and nothing happens, or they see the kitchen faucet go drippity, drippity, drippity,

"The fear is this house hasn't been taken care of and there's major, major problems," Zackheim said. "That might not be, but that's the impression. Buyers come in looking for reasons not to buy a

"You're talking visually when people come to look at your house," Zackheim said. "You want to speak in a way that will make life easier."

Steve Larimore manages Century 21 Towne Pride in Westland.

"A lot of people don't realize that little things do make a difference," he said. "A lot of it is minor painting around windows, cleaning the carpet. Curb appeal just how nice do they keep their yards?"

Gordon E. Fox, a Realtor with Hall & Hunter in Birmingham, has been in the business for 27 years.

"Most houses need some kind of work," he said. "There's an awful lot of clutter under almost all circumstances. Magazine racks are overfilled, dishes on the kitchen counter, throw-blankets on a couch, too many knick-knacks, too many pictures on the wall."

Dynamizing - staging scenes, getting prospects to linger, visualize and actually talk about living in this house - is the final step in the Webb/Zackheim plan.

Examples include setting up a board game in the family room, draping a luxury towel over the tub and placing bath oils and a lighted, scented candle on the

You might set a cookbook, a loaf of bread on a cutting board or a tray of vegetables on the kitchen sink. Place an afghan over a chair, book open, lamp illuminated on a nearby table in the living room or family room.

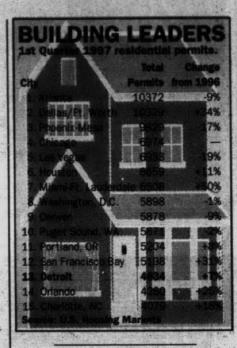

Dynamizing is the icing on the cake. But uncluttering, cleaning, repairing and neutralizing come first. And if you choose to do just one thing, the authors say, attack the clutter.

Remove family pictures from walls, furniture that crowds rooms, collectibles, toys. Clear counters. Weed out closets, pantries, cupboards and bookshelves. Take magnets off the refrigera-

Don't just move clutter to the basement, attic or garage - throw it away.

Get ideas about how your house stacks up - and how it can be improved - by visiting open houses and new models at subdivisions under construction. Read decorating magazines.

"People are willing to pay a premium for the best," Zackheim said. "People are intelligent. They're really out there

Lock-ins, Part III

This is the third column on the topic of mortgage lock-ins. See the Editor's note at the end if you'd like to look up the first two part, which ran in the last two issues of the Observer & Eccentric.

When you're ready to settle on your loan, you'll want to get the loan terms that you've locked in. To increase that likelihood, it is important to learn as much as you can about what the lender is promising you before you apply for a loan Ask for the following information when you shop for a loan:

Lock-ins and fees

· Does the lender offer a lock-in of the interest rate and points?

· When will the lender let you lock in the interest rate and points? When you apply? When the loan is approved?

Will the lock-in be in wiring? If the lock-in is not in writing, you will have no record of the lender's agreement with you in case of a dispute.

 Does the lender charge a fee to lock in your interest rate? Does the fee increase for longer lock-in periods? If so, how much?

If you have locked in a rate, and the lender's rate drops, can you lock in at the lower rate? Does the lender charge you an additional fee to lock in the lower rate?

· Can you float your interest rate and points for now, and lock them in

Loan processing time · How long does the lender expect to take to process your loan? · What has been the lender's average time for processing loans recently?

· Has the lender's loan volume increased? Heavy volume might increase the lender's average processing time.

Expiration of lock-ins

· What rate will be charged if the lock-in expires before settlement - the rate in effect when the lock-in expires?

· If you don't settle within the lockin period, will the lender refund some or all of your application or lock-in fees if you decide to cancel the loan applica-

· If your lock-in expires and you want to get another lock-in at the rate in effect at the time of the expiration, will the lender charge an additional fee for the second lock-in?

Complaints about lock-ins

Knowing what to look for puts you in better position to decide whether, when, and how long to lock-in mortgage terms. Also, by helping to keep the loan process moving, you can lessen the chance that your lock-in will run out

before settlement
But what if your lock-in does lapse? If you believe that the lapse was due to delays caused by the lender or someone else involved in the loan process, you should try first to reach a mutually sat-isfactory agreement with the lender. If that effort fails, consider writing to the appropriate state for federal regulatory

Roof can improve home's appearance

BY POPULAR MECHANICS FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Most people give little thought to their roof until one of two events occur: it starts to leak or it looks so shabby it needs to be replaced.

In one sense, this is how it should be. There's enough to maintain in a home without worrying about your roof. In another sense, it overlooks the fact that a roof can go a long way toward improving or changing your house's appearance, and this has never been more true than today. There are more roofing materials than ever - you don't have to settle for standard black shingles. You have your choice of color, texture and, of course, price. Furthermore, there's no reason your roof can't be worry-free. Today's roofing products combine durability with good looks.

OK, so we've settled the fact that you need a new roof. With a little research, you can install an asphalt shingle roof yourself. On the other hand, it's hard work. Besides, other types of roofs require professional installation, so you may have to hire someone. Picking a contractor is as important as choosing the right roofing. Here's a few words of

Ask for as many references as you can get. Check that the contractor has a license if you live in a state that requires it (not just a business license but a license for the trade). Ask to see insurance and bonding certificates.

Review the contract carefully. Any home-improvement contract should be specific. It should cover when the work will start and when it will be completed (depending on weather), the complete cost (including the disposal of roofing debris), and the type and color of roofing should be specified in detail. Incidentally, the word "square" will probably come up in the contract or in your discussions. A square is 100 square feet

Ask the contractor if the existing roofing needs to be torn off because some communities allow no more than two layers of shingles on a roof. Also ask if the deck or portions of it need to Finally, ask about the roofing's fire rating (Class A is most resistant to flame spread, Class B is next, followed by Class C). Some communities permit only Class A and B roofing.

All this makes the process sound more complex than it is. It all boils down to this: if you are going to go through the expense and the mess of having your house reroofed, you want the job done right.

Speaking of mess, make it clear that the job site be as clean after the job as before it. This includes using a magnet-ic sweep or dragging a magnetic bar over the driveway to catch roofing

BY COUNTRY LIVING A HEARST MAGAZINE FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Collectors and homeowners are discovering that architectural fixtures and other details can be rescued from historic dwellings to serve as offbeat indoor furniture - everything up to and including the barn

Many are choosing to recycle vintage mantels, doors, lighting fixtures and windows, Bruce E. Johnson wrote in the current issue of Country Living, for use in their homes.

The concept of salvaging architectural details has become so popular that many antiques dealers who once devoted their floor space to furniture and folk art now trade in such items as fireplace mantels and pedestal sinks. A number of firms specializing exclusively in architectural salvage are springing up all over the

"Thousands of buildings are destroyed every year without an attempt to salvage anything out of them," said Beau Kimball, general manager and partner in Salvage One, a Chicago-based source for rescued architectural artifacts. 'Anything we can get out of a building before it is demolished can be put to new use in another structure.

Heather Atwater, of the Vermont Salvage Exchange, a New England-based company that began as a communal partnership and evolved into a national network with warehouses in three states, said:

Salvage warehouses are idea emporiums, a visual brainstorm for people who are restoring houses. Ours is a user-friendly environment where we collect, sort, measure and display everything we salvage. A good part of our time is spent teaching people how to recycle old parts.

Cast-iron balustrades and newel posts have been transformed into floor lamps. Old doors can be used to construct new wardrobes. When used sideways doors make impressive headboards.

A four-panel interior pine door can be had for $35 or $50. Comparable doors made of such hardwoods as oak or birch command about $50 to $75, depending on their condition and level of craftsmanship. French doors are in particularly high demand.

"We sell every pair of French doors we can get our hands on," Kimball said.

With the exception of Palladian-style windows or those with unique pane configurations, double-hung windows are avoided by most experienced shopkeepers. Homeowners have found old windows difficult to install.

Stained-glass windows continue to find new homes without a hitch, selling anywhere from $100 to $1,000, depending on age and intricacy of pattern. Rick Fehrs, an architect and partner in Artefact shop in Furlong, Pa., that specializes in architectural salvage has noticed the steady demand for high quality Victorian-era

"People are looking for three things, color, design and quality," he said.

For years, stained glass all but eclipsed the market for other leaded glass windows. Of late, however, collectors of Arts and Crafts works and renovators of early 20th-century bungalows have created a demand for geometric patterns inspired by such architects and designers as Frank Lloyd Wright, Louis Comfort Tiffany and Gustav Stickley.

The same trend holds true for other areas of architectural

"Five years ago, anything with ornate carvings sold quickly," Kimball said. "Plain but well-made pieces like bronze light fixtures didn't sell well, but now people are becoming interested in the looks of the early 20th centu-

Free booklet helps homeowners fight allergies

(NAPS) - Environmental control is one treatment option available to the millions of Americans who suffer from allergies and asthma.

]While little can be done to control the outside environment, a great deal can be done to control the environment in

A new booklet, now available from Nilfisk of America, provides home improvement tips for allergy and asthma control.

Recommendations in the booklet, written in consultation with The Physicians Association for Patient Education, are:

· Vacuum with a HEPA-filtered vacuum - Most conventional vacuums simply blow dust and dust mite particles around the room. HEPA (High Efficiency Particulate Air) vacuums, like the Nilfisk GS90, trap and contain these parti-

· Focus on the bedroom -Since the average person spends one-third of their life in their bedroom, purifying this part of the home can be very beneficial for the allergy or asthma sufferer.

· Eliminate dust catchers -Any item that has a surface area has the ability to catch dust. Consider hanging clothing in zippered garment bags and putting ornaments in glass Encase mattress and box spring in allergy-proof covers Dust mites, a highly allergic component of house dust, can't penetrate these encasings. Make sure to vacuum them regularly.

Interest on fixed-rate mortgages under 8 %

WASHINGTON (AP) - Interest rates on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged just under 8 percent for the second consecutive week, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said.

The average edged up to 7.92 percent this week from 7.91 percent, leaving it about a quarter percentage point below a sevenmonth high of 8.18 percent the week ended April 3. That was the week after the Federal Reserve tightened monetary policy for on fees known as points.

the first time in two years.

Fifteen-year mortgages, a popular option for those refinancing mortgages, averaged 7.45 percent this week, up from 7.44 percent a week earlier.

On one-year adjustable rate mortgages, lenders were asking an average initial rate of 5.80 percent this week, up from 5.78
