School bond heads to appeals court

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

Remember the $79.6 million bond suit? It's still around and heading for a second line of defense...or offense, depending on which side you're on.

Plymouth resident Jerry Vorva has vowed to take the school bond issue to the highest court in the land, if necessary. The next step is the state Court of Appeals likely in late January.

A Plymouth-Canton school district spokesman told an inquiring citizen at the district's Dec. 9 board meeting that the suit will resurface in the Michigan Court of Appeals in Detroit sometime in late January.

Remember Jerry Vorva? The former state representative and Plymouth resident who brought the bond sale to a halt when he filed a suit against the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools shortly after the March 22 special bond election. The bond request passed by 96 votes.

Vorva claimed that 716 voters were denied their fundamental right to vote because the district's new touch-screen voting machines failed to register their ballots.

Close to 12,000 ballots were cast. Vorva remains passionate about the suit even though Wayne County Circuit Judge James J. Rashid ruled in favor of the district Aug. 22. Vorva and Plymouth attorney Stephen Boak appealed shortly afterward.

"I think we're right. Even if for some reason the Appeals Court rules against us, I'm going to the Michigan Supreme

Cheer Club

A big thanks to all our donors

Thanks so much for donating to the Plymouth-Canton Observer Cheer Club!

Our deadline for accepting donations was 3 p.m. Friday. That's when the Salvation Army truck rolled up and collected your contributions, for distribution at the Plymouth Salvation Army facility.

Just a few hours before the deadline, however, 27 first-graders in Carol Carr's class at Bird Elementary School arrived by bus to deliver 111 cans of food at the Observer.

The students collected the food over three days.

"They have worked very hard," said Carr. "They have truly given from their hearts."

To make the event even more festive the students decorated a tree in Kellogg Park with decorations they made and also donned Rudolph antlers, which they also made themselves.

Over the next week, they'll distribute the items to needy people in Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

Court opens today

BY KEVIN BROWN

First you had temporary employees. Next came a temporary library for Plymouth.

And now we've got a temporary courthouse.

Until the new courthouse is finished in 18-24 months, the 35th District Court will be in modular, bolted-together facilities on Plymouth Road.

TEMPORARY QUARTERS

The temporary court is just across the street from the former Dunbar Davis Hall of Justice, destroyed by fire July 2.

The site of the former court will also serve as site for the new court.

On Tuesday, the Court Advisory Board hired Southfield architects Coquillard, Dundon, Peterson and Argenta to design the permanent court building.

Court Administrator Kerry Erdman said the new court will likely be three stories, housing around 33,000 square feet.

Administrative and clerical offices would be on the first floor and court-

Guile: Downtown won't be a Royal Oak

BY KEVIN BROWN

He's helped direct some big changes downtown in the last few years. And more changes are coming.

First came the downtown streetscape project. And now, the effort to draw more restaurants downtown - boosted by the state Legislature's release of 50 free liquor licenses.

Those licenses are to be distributed statewide to developing downtowns like Plymouth's.

Steve Guile, hired five years ago to be the director of Plymouth's Downtown Development Authority, has encouraged downtown restaurateurs to apply for the liquor licenses.

He's also advertised their availability to those planning or thinking about opening new restaurants.

One downtown restaurateur, Cafe Bon Homme owner Greg Goodman, has decried the liquor license requests.

He's warned city officials that if several are approved, Plymouth could turn into Royal Oak.

There, some residents are complaining to city officials about noise from patrons exiting clubs and bars.

Guile countered that Plymouth is not seeking "the type of restaurant that would cause screaming, drunk people on our streets."

For example, he said restaurants attracted to Plymouth by the prospect of a free liquor license include Tom's Oyster Bar, which plans to open on Penniman. Tom's has several Detroit locations. "It's very well-

It might be insensitive to say, but there are plenty of people who would secretly admit they're glad Sharon Holroyde couldn't get a teaching job.

"Teachers were a dime a dozen," said Holroyde, who is celebrating her 20th year working at the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

In 1977, Holroyde graduated from Michigan State University with a degree in elementary education. And so did plenty of other people.

Don't forget to dial the new 734 area code

Don't forget that as of Saturday, greater Plymouth's area code changed to 734.

Other affected Wayne County communities include Canton Township, Garden City, Livonia and Westland. The change also affects most of Washtenaw County, including Ann Arbor.

Greater Detroit will retain the 313 area code, including Redford and portions of Westland. This area includes Hamtramck, Highland Park, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, the city of Detroit, Melvin-dale, Allen Park, Lincoln Park, Ecorse, River Rouge, Harper Woods, the Grosse Pointes and portions of Inkster, Taylor and Romulus.

With hopes of minimizing confusion, Ameritech will initiate a seven-month optional dialing period in which the new and old area codes will work. Starting July 25, 1998, the 734 area code must be used to complete calls.

Lincoln collection will call historical museum home

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth Historical Museum is about to become a prominent regional tourist attraction. That's because the Lincoln collection amassed by Dr. Weldon Petz is coming to the museum for permanent display.

A grand opening for those who donated money to buy the collection is scheduled for Feb. 12, Lincoln's birthday, at the museum.

Then on Feb. 14-15, community events will be scheduled. "We would like to involve the whole community in celebrating this major event," said Beth Stewart, museum director.

The collection includes 10,000 items, including brass molds of Lincoln's face and hands, one of his law books, a lock of his hair and prints and statuary from Lincoln's time.

She said the museum plans to produce a brochure listing events, under the theme "Lincoln Comes to Plymouth."

In a letter to community business and cultural leaders, Stewart suggests newspapers and magazines could feature articles about Plymouth during the Civil War, and bookstores and libraries could feature books on Lincoln and the Civil War.

Stewart said restaurants could even offer specialty items for the month of February. "Abraham Lincoln was also an avid coffee drinker and a special coffee in his honor would be great," she said.

Some items from the collection are already housed at the museum, packed away in boxes.

Stewart said the museum is still seeking contributions to complete the $150,000 purchase. Checks can be made payable to The Plymouth Historical Museum-Lincoln Acquisition Fund and mailed to the museum at 155 S. Main, Plymouth 48170. Contributions are tax-deductible.

The museum is saving some money on display cases, as they're obtaining cases formerly used at Minerva's-Dunning's women's wear shop on Forest Avenue, soon to close.

"Now we can actually put more money into designing displays and some real interesting permanent exhibits," Stewart said.

"Our hope is to make the lower level into an education center, with a large permanent display on Lincoln and the Civil War," she said.

But that's down the road. Stewart said that when it was determined to try and buy the collection, it was also decided to take an approach of one step at a time, toward displaying it and publicizing its availability to school groups and Lincoln scholars.

"Our membership wanted to make sure we take care of everything we already have properly," she said.

Increased museum traffic to view the collection is sparking consideration of increasing museum hours and staff. Museum staff are also considering adding a mezzanine area to properly store archival material.

Stewart said a marketing plan to publicize the collection is also being planned. "Interest in the Civil War in this area is really high," she said, adding that the state's school curriculum also calls for students in grades five, eight and 10 to study the Civil War period.

At the grand opening Feb. 12, Ford Motor Co. is to present a $50,000 check toward acquiring and displaying the collection. "We're hoping William Clay Ford Jr. will come back to help to present the check," Stewart said.

The free grand opening weekend will also feature musical events, lectures, Lincoln impersonators, free admission and extended hours.

"Research requests are already coming in," Stewart said.

Pennies from Heaven

Students at Gallimore Elementary have been collecting pennies during December in an effort to help the Goodfellows. Each classroom competed. Goodfellows will be on hand at 1 p.m. Dec. 18 during the Gallimore Holiday Sing to receive a check as a donation to their cause. Gallimore is hoping to surpass last year's total of $1,100.

Making a difference

Students in Jodi Ring's classes are keeping the 1997-98 West spirit alive, "Making a Difference." With a twist to the routine, they are collecting food items for the Salvation Army during the holiday season.

Instead of just placing the collection into boxes, they will demonstrate "fine architecture" and build with the items.

Each class will construct an object such as a building, bridge or whatever the groups determine with the food and cleaning products gathered.

Members of the Salvation Army board will serve as judges on the constructions, which will be judged on height, variety, stability, creativity and color.

Students will construct their objects Dec. 15 and Salvation Army board members will judge them at 3 p.m.

Nominated

Julie Price, a Canton High School senior, has been nominated to compete in the national Principal's Leadership Award Scholarship Program (PLA), sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP). The Principal's Leadership Award Program is funded by Herff Jones, Inc.

Patricia Patton, Canton High School principal announced the nomination, which places Price in the national competition. "Julie leads by modeling her caring and concern for others." One hundred fifty national PLA winners will be chosen this spring to receive $1,000 college scholarships.

Principals in high schools throughout the country could nominate one of their student leaders. Winners were selected based on their participation in service organizations, clubs, and athletics; achievements in the arts and science; employment experience; and academic record. They were also required to write an essay.

Price has been co-president of Student Senate and Students Against Drunk Driving, member of National Honor Society, Student Council Representative, Delegate of Civitan Youth Seminar, D.A.R.E. Role Model, member of C.O.R.E. Committee, member of Technology Guidelines Committee, member of Student Television Show Production, and member of swimming, volleyball and softball teams.

In November, the Educational Excellence Foundation (EEF) awarded six Innovation Grants promoting academic quality for Plymouth-Canton students. The grants for fall 1997 include:

- Weather and Magnet Materials from Beverly Valentine to Eriksson Elementary

- Michigan Opera Theater Performance from Barbara Young to Fiegel Elementary
- Computer Literacy Videos from Elaine Bain to East Middle School
- Exercise Bicycle from David Gerlach to Plymouth Salem High School
- "Girls Excel in Math and Science" conference from Mary Lou Homer and Curt Perry

Schools adopt 'opt-out' guidelines

The Plymouth-Canton school district has adopted a set of guidelines for those wishing to change schools within the district.

but no coordinating guidelines," said Superintendent Chuck Little.

Although requests can only be accommodated if space is available, "the district does accommodate the majority of requests," he said.

The process was allegedly dubbed "opt-out" after a parent said he wanted the option to put his child in a different school and used the term "opt-in" to describe what he wanted.

The requests become "a high-volume item two weeks before school opens," Little said. Opt-out is usually done when a school is out of classroom space.

Patrick O'Donnell, assistant superintendent for instruction, said his office sees about 250 "opt-outs" per year. He said the word "transfer" has a different connotation and so is not used.

Among the highlights of the guidelines, which are available from the school district's office, are that requests received before July 13 will get first consideration; decisions will be based on either enrollment figures per building by grade level or total building enrollment, or both; and that transportation is not provided to students who opt-out.

moved to Arizona and I was engaged and didn't want to leave here," Holroyde said.

That led her to the chamber of commerce. "Back then I don't remember what my title was. But I basically did clerical," said the Canton resident.

When Holroyde started at the chamber she was determined to move on. "It was supposed to be temporary. It was just a stepping stone."

That was 20 years ago. "I enjoyed it so much. The people are wonderful. I saw what a commitment everyone has to the community and the chamber. It's amazing. And it's a fun job."

Today, Holroyde indeed has a title. She is the administrative assistant to chamber executive director Fran Toney, who considers Holroyde "my partner" and irreplaceable.

"There is no one like Sharon," Toney said. "She brings history, yes ... she knows the community and its background ... however, more importantly Sharon can and does go with the flow. New ideas? No problem. Changing directions several times in a day when necessary - she just keeps smiling."

Indeed, Holroyde has seen a lot of history in her 20 years at the chamber and in the heart of Plymouth. For example, she has worked with eight chamber executive directors. "There's not another person in the country who can say that," she said.

Asked if she had anything to do with the turnover of executive directors at the chamber, Holroyde said, "I wonder ..."

Holroyde's love of children, however, prompted her to return to school in the early 1980s and update her teaching certificate. But "it then expired," she said. "I have always loved children but I never really got into teaching and never had any children of my own," Holroyde said.

Anyone who attends anything in Plymouth - or just walks down Main Street on a regular basis - is sure to catch a glimpse of Holroyde either in the chamber office or in the community.

In fact, a number of years ago when the state bought Mettetal Airport, she served as the recording secretary to the advisory board, which includes representatives from the local communities. When some of the board members' terms were up, Holroyde was talked into serving on the board. After all, who knew more than the person taking notes month after month?

In her 20-year tenure, Holroyde has watched Plymouth and the chamber grow. "There's been a lot of changes in the stores, businesses; a lot of physical changes down here, especially with the streetscape, and the industrial parks."

Witnessing the growth of the chamber goes without saying. "In the beginning it was mainly men. Now at least half, if not more, are women. In fact there's a lot of women who are now own or are running the businesses," Holroyde said.

Consider all the activities, events and functions sponsored by the chamber. Along with Toney, Holroyde is planning and attending all of them. Consider also there are 12 chamber standing committees, not to mention the subcommittees. The two main fund-raisers are the golf outing and the annual auction. She's right there for those.

Business people being who they are they seem to have to start meetings long before the rest of the world is out of bed. At those 7 a.m. breakfasts and meetings, you will also see Holroyde.

"It always amazes me the commitment these people have," Holroyde said. "It makes a for a long day."

PLYMOUTH PIPELINE

Clinic coming

A Henry Ford Hospital Medical Center with 42 staff is planned for the northeast corner of Beck Road and M-14.

The Plymouth Township Planning Commission on Wednesday approved a site plan for the center. It will house 20,639 square feet at 14300 Beck Road.

Plans for the Henry Ford Health System facility were prepared by Neumann and Smith Associates architects. A construction completion date was not provided to planners at the Wednesday meeting.

Saturn to expand

Township planning commissioners also approved a tentative site plan to allow the planned expansion of the Saturn of Plymouth building at Haggerty Road and Massey Drive.

They also approved plans for a building to house used cars at the site.

Phone store

Ann Arbor Cellular, which offers cell phones and accessories, is expected to open this month or possibly in January at the southwest corner of Main and Wing Streets.

Work to refurbish the former brake shop building that will house the business is likely to be wrapped up this month, according to the city building department.

Safe and sober

For the 12th straight year, the Plymouth Police Department and Mothers Against Drunk Driving have joined forces to encourage motorists to drive safe and sober.

This month the police department is promoting the "Tie One On For Safety, Plymouth" campaign in which supporters tie red ribbons to vehicle antennas and mirrors. The ribbons remind others of a commitment to safe and sober driving.

The red ribbons are available at the police station front desk. Officers on patrol will also have ribbons in their police cars, to give to folks who ask.

New appointees

Plymouth Mayor Don Dismuke has announced the following appointments, to fill vacancies on city boards and commissions:

Richard Foersterling and Doug Miller were named to the city Board of Zoning Appeals through 1998 and Miller was also named to the city Planning Commission for a three-year term.

Also appointed were Kevin O'Keefe, to the board of Zoning Appeals for a three-year term; and Graham Laible, reappointed for a three-year term on the city Board of Review.

Hockeymania contest

MediaOne and ESPN, have joined forces to bring the Hockeymania Contest to Michigan residents. The contest runs from Dec. 4 through March 27, 1998 and will include a series of five drawings to raffle hockey and Red Wings related prizes.

Complete contest details and entry forms are available at all Michigan MediaOne payment locations.

Court. If they rule against me, I'll go the U.S. Supreme Court," said Vorva.

Vorva said he and Boak received the suit's transcripts at the beginning of December and have 28 days to respond. "There's a possibility we'll submit it before Christmas."

The district then has three weeks to reply to the brief. "We will reply in a short number of days, very quickly," said Superintendent Chuck Little. "The needs are not diminished. The one part of our enrollment projection that was correct was the high school. I'm fully confident that the appeals court will reach the same decision as four other entities."

Little was referring to the administrative and judicial route pursued by the district: local canvassers, Wayne County canvassers, Secretary of State, and Wayne County Circuit Court.

In response to Vorva's intention to take the suit all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, Little said: "If he has confidence in his case, why is he talking about the Supreme Court?"

Vorva's hopes remain high. "They (the U.S. Supreme Court) are big on taking on election things because it's a fundamental right." He added that he "has seen them take several years" to process such cases.

Vorva also has more on his agenda than winning the appeal. He intends to begin a drive to recall the board of education after the first of the year.

"There's a lot of support for that," he said.

He also plans to take the state bar exam in February with the hope of becoming a practicing attorney by early summer. "If I'm sworn in by June, I'll take the case over so it costs less money. He said Boak is a good lawyer, "but expensive."

When asked about the status of his legal fund, for which Boak is handling donations, Vorva said: "It's great. We're still paying our bills. But now that we're in the appeals process, we need more money."

rooms on the second and third floors," Erdman said.

Erdman said the advisory board hasn't set a budget for the new building. He estimated it will cost $4 million, paid for from an insurance settlement over the former court.

Small claims cases were the first official business to take place in the temporary court on Friday. The court, with 35 staff, will be open for all court-related business Monday.

"I think it's going to do us real well, the courtrooms are huge," Erdman said. While lower ceilings lessen some of the majesty suggested by a typical courtroom, "we're going to make every effort we can to maintain proper decorum," Erdman said.

Stackable plastic and metal chairs will be used throughout the building. Six 12-foot wood benches have been donated by the Detroit College of Law for use in hallways.

The price tag for the temporary courtroom is $500,000. The modular units are four years old. They come from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton, Ohio, where they served as offices.

The temporary court facility will have 16,800 square feet of space, compared to 20,000 square feet in the former court.

"The old court had three sets of bathrooms, there's only one set of bathrooms" in the temporary court, Erdman said. There will also be less hallway space than previously, and courtrooms and administrative offices will be smaller.

On the positive side, Erdman said, "it's a familiar area for those who are coming to court," as it's just across the street from the old court.

Also, there is nearly unlimited parking at the site, a former Unisys parking lot. While 360 spaces will be striped for parking, there is more paved area for parking if needed.

The facility's temporary nature is suggested by a slight bounce one can detect while walking through some hallways and by lower ceiling heights, around seven to eight feet.

Since the old courthouse was destroyed, the court operated out of Unisys, Plymouth City Hall, Plymouth Township Hall, Canton Township Administration Building and courts in Redford, Livonia, Westland and Romulus.

"It's going to be nice to have everyone under one roof again," Erdman said. "It will be a lot easier to communicate with everybody."

"It was really a struggle but the staff did an unbelievable job, they kept their spirits high," he said.

change as a result of the new 734 area code. Ameritech officials said Ameritech's rates will not be affected by the area code change.

The area code was changed because southeastern Michigan has experienced what Ameritech calls an "explosive" demand for telephone numbers for several telecommunication services, including fax machines, cellular phones, pagers, voice mail, computer modems and additional phone lines.

The region would literally run out of phone numbers, if the change were not made, Ameritech officials said.

Most of Livonia switches from the 313 to 734 area code, but the 248 area code remains in an area of the city roughly north of Curtis. The northeast corner of Livonia will switch from 313 to 248 next March.

Everything south of Curtis will be within the 734 area code.

In Westland, the 313 area code will remain in the southeast corner of the city in an area bounded by Annapolis, Harrison, Inkster and Van Born. The remainder changes to 734.

Ameritech cellular users will have the option to decide whether they change their area code. Users of cellular phones from other companies should contact those companies about the changes.

Business owners also should contact their telecommunications vendor about changes needed in software or default functions in their computers to communicate with the 734 area code, Snyder said.

For information, call Ameritech's information hotline at 1-800-831-8989.

known and respected," Guile said.

Also coming to town, on Forest Avenue, is E.G. Nicks, run by a family with several similar and successful family restaurants.

Goodman's criticism hasn't been echoed by other downtown business owners. But some city commissioners agree that the granting of more than just a few liquor licenses could be a problem. Some have raised the notion of ranking liquor license requests. Guile rejects this, saying this could cause a liability problem.

Downtown Plymouth must become an entertainment district to be successful, he said - especially considering growing competition from planned retail centers at Five Mile and Sheldon roads and Five Mile and Haggerty roads.

It's an approach that's backed by the Downtown Development Authority and Downtown Business Association.

"Just because you have a downtown that looks nice doesn't mean you have all the pieces in the puzzle to guarantee a successful downtown," he said.

While eight businesses have stated their intention to apply for liquor licenses, Guile said it's logical the state will choose to issue no more than three or so in Plymouth, as the Liquor Control Commission has to serve downtowns statewide.

While Royal Oak is an example of a prime downtown entertainment district, Guile said that the business mix is unbalanced, with too much retail giving way to restaurants.

"We want to have an adequate mix of both," he said, in a style more like Wyandotte or Dearborn.

The idea that Plymouth needed more restaurants was also a recommendation of downtown business consultants Hyett-Palma.

Earlier this year, Guile applied for the Southfield DDA director post, then decided to withdraw his application.

"I'm pretty much settled in here. I enjoy Plymouth, it's a challenge. There's a lot of opportunity for growth and commercial development," Guile said.

Road improvements scheduled for western Wayne County

Gov. John Engler last week said MDOT "would put our tax dollars to work" with $26 million in road and bridge improvements as soon as the winter weather breaks.

Among projects scheduled for southeastern Michigan:

■ Garden City and Westland - Warren Road traffic signal modernization at seven intersections: Henry Ruff, Middlebelt, Helen Floral, Fairwood, Berwyn Gulley and Fenton; $294,380. Contractor is Rauhorn Electric Inc. Completion: late summer of 1998.

■ Westland - Resurface one-fifth of a mile of Reuther Drive on the grounds of Walter Reuther Mental Health Center; $138,000. Contractor is ABC Paving. Completion: 20 days from start.

■ Plymouth - quarter-mile access road to Western Wayne Correctional Facility; $338,000. Contractor is Richter's Contracting. Completion: 40 days after start.

■ Livonia - Schoolcraft Road traffic signal modernization at nine intersections from Haggerty to Fenton.

■ Livonia - Seven Mile Road traffic signal modernization from Purlingbrook to Woodworth; $700,000 (including Schoolcraft Road projects). Contractor is Rauhorn Electric Inc. Completion: early winter of 1998.

tee's Dec. 12 meeting in Detroit.

Petko added MDOT has had "some positive response" to what MDOT director James DeSana called a "rationalization plan" for state jurisdiction. But she declined to name communities.

"They're asking questions about how many times will you snowplow, and how many times will you mow?" Petko said.

"There's a real desire to get into a dialog," said SEMCOG executive director John Amberger, summing up the reaction from local meetings. SEMCOG had sponsored meetings in every county - Wayne, Oakland, Livingston, Macomb, Washtenaw, Monroe and St. Clair - to hear responses to the Engler-DeSana plan.

SEMCOG's Executive Committee unanimously passed a resolution asking MDOT to join it in "a comprehensive needs study as a necessary precondition to any discussion of road jurisdiction transfers."

Rochester Hills Mayor Kenneth Snell won approval of an amendment to make SEMCOG the negotiating focal point for the seven member counties.

Specifically, SEMCOG members are asking about:

■ A specific funding formula. If jurisdiction is changed, the state Legislature will have to revise the complex formula contained in Public Act 51 of 1951.

■ Agreements covering repayment of county and municipal investments and debts for roads taken over by the state.

■ Agreements for covering local obligations for tort liability.

■ Plans for levels of service the state would maintain and improvements the state would make.

The administration's plan, as outlined by DeSana on Oct. 2 but never formally given to SEMCOG, is to take over 9,600 more miles of roads. As Engler put it during an October forum in Southfield: State government controls only 18,000 of the 118,000 miles of roads, "but we get 90 percent of the calls."

Engler's showcase exhibit: the Davison Freeway in Wayne County, which MDOT took over, rebuilt and reopened in October. "The Davison is fabulous. It was a county road all these years (about 50). We took it three years ago and fixed it," Engler said.

Engler first floated the idea in May when he unveiled his gasoline tax hike plan to improve roads and bridges. Legislators passed the tax but balked at the administration's effort to take over more local roads.

Local officials had been miffed that MDOT showed them only the takeover plans for their cities and villages; that they weren't shown maps for neighboring communities; and that townships were left out entirely.

Act 51 money directly from the state, the township's share goes into county coffers.

"We passed a resolution at our last board meeting that we would like to be considered when Act 51 legislation comes up, that townships be considered in the process," Kelley said. "We are looking at legislation proposed by (state Sen.) Loren Bennett (R-Canton) that would turn funding back to the township and we could decide what to do with it ... continue with the county or hire a private contractor."

"I'm open to anything that's going to improve roads for our citizens."

Act 51 legislation is set to expire next September, although at least one local leader doesn't expect the issue to become a political football, at least right away.

"The legislation can be extended, and that's what I think will happen," said Tom Yack, Canton Township supervisor. "The earliest that issue will be dealt with is the fall, and more likely after the '98 elections. Neither party wants it as a campaign issue."

"We've got lots of time to get information from the state so we can come up with our own conclusions."

Yack, whose township's roads are owned and maintained by the county, says if the state could give a better deal, he might take it.

Yack has an ongoing battle with county officials over road maintenance and construction funding for Canton.

Yack also knows there could be a downside to the state taking over any roads.

"The biggest thing for any community is being involved in the decision making when it comes to roads," said Yack. "There's always a suspicion that the further away government is from you, the more difficult and less likely it is to respond to your needs. Besides, the history of MDOT is not very responsive."

Garden City Councilman Mike Wiacek says his biggest concern is money.

"I want to know what effect it's going to have on our local revenue," said Wiacek. "We want to make sure, for our taxpayers, that we get as much funding as we can."

"In reality, Garden City is an older community with lots of neighborhood roads, and I doubt the state would want to take over many, if any, of them."

Currently, the state gets 39 percent of the roads budget, Michigan's 83 counties share another 39 percent of monies available for roads, while cities split 22 percent. Local governments are concerned about how much less they will get if the state takes control of some of their roads. Many CWW members voiced some doubt, saying their current allocations aren't anywhere near enough.

Dear Customers

In our most recent circular, three prices for Aquarium Starter Kits were transposed.

We featured the Top Fin 10-Gallon Aquarium Starter Kit. The price should be $49.99 and not $119.99.

We also listed the Top Fin 20-Gallon Starter Kit and the Top Fin 29-Gallon Starter Kit. The prices for these items should read $74.99 and $119.99 respectively.

We apologize for any confusion this may have caused, and thank you for your understanding.

PREMISES LIABILITY

When an accident caused by a defect or a dangerous circumstance leads to injury inside or outside a building, it is termed a "premises liability" accident. The building's danger may lie with its poor construction, shoddy materials, faulty design, or lack of maintenance. An accident on commercial, private or public property may prompt legal action. A determination of who is legally responsible is based on two factors. First, did the property's owner or occupier subject the victim to an unreasonable risk of injury due to the design, construction, or condition of the property? Secondly, it must be decided whether the victim's conduct contributed to the accident.

Call the LAW OFFICES OF STUART M. FELDHEIM at toll-free 888-505-4900 or 248-932-3505 to schedule a free consultation. We're located at 30300 Northwestern Hwy., Suite 108, Farmington Hills.

Bill OK'd to permit lawsuits against corporations for punitive damages

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

A key Republican crossover gave House Democrats a barebones victory in their effort to allow plaintiffs to sue corporations for punitive damages.

"Sometimes you have a crook who has a lot of money," said Rep. Alan Cropsey, R-DeWitt, who gave Democrats the 56th vote they needed Dec. 3 to pass the punitive damages.

House Bill 5373 is probably dead on arrival in the Republican-controlled Senate, which has made a 13-year effort to reduce the costs of doing business in Michigan.

Product liability is one of the Democrats' key 1997 legislative initiatives; the other is restoring unemployment benefits to 1995 levels.

"A political outcome took precedence over a policy outcome," said Rep. Frank Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge, summing up the case for the GOP. "This will have a chilling effect on the business climate without doing people any good."

The House passed the bill 56-51 with three absent. All area lawmakers but Cropsey voted with their parties. Voting yes were 54 Democrats and two Republicans. Voting no were 49 Republicans and two Democrats.

The Democratic leadership had to hold the voting board open 10 minutes to round up the necessary votes. Leaders worked hard on Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti, and Ed LaForge, D-Kalamazoo, to get their green (yes) lights.

Corporate felons

The sponsor, Rep. Ted Wallace, D-Detroit, likened punitive damages against corporations to a prison term for violent felons. "If you injure someone, you go to prison," he said, "and it costs the state $25,000 to $40,000 a year. Here the wrongdoer would pay the cost."

Thirty-five other states have punitive damages. You hear of large awards of $270 million. Those awards are usually reversed by the appellate courts," said Wallace, adding that only 5 percent of plaintiffs ever win any damages at all.

But Wallace said a punitive award against a corporation, even if reversed on appeal, would result in greater safety for consumers.

Fitzgerald noted Wallace introduced his bill Nov. 13, reported it out of his committee on the first day of session (Dec. 1) after the hunting season break, and was seeking to push it through second and third readings in a single day.

"What's the rush?" Fitzgerald asked. "It's not an issue that needs to be taken all the way in one day. I for one heard no compelling testimony in committee."

Backing him up, Rep. Mike Nye, R-Litchfield, said consumers can sue for economic, non-economic (pain and suffering) and exemplary damages. Adding punitive damages to the list, he said, would make Michigan "one of the few states with all four types of damages."

Rep. Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe, got hoots from the Democratic side when he said, "These punitive damages will not go only to our friends (consumers) but to the trial lawyers." The Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, the plaintiffs' bar, is a major contributor to Democrats.

Three more bills are in the Democrats' package. HB 4048 would cover pharmaceuticals; HB 5371 would cover defective products; and a third bill is still in committee.

Much comment

Interest groups flooded the House press room with news releases.

■ "Threatens to wreck Michigan's positive small business climate ... an anti-business agenda" - Small Business Association of Michigan.

■ "Whether it's hiding research about defects, cutting corners on the assembly line, or lying about product safety, it should be punishable under the law for companies to sell products they know could injure or kill" - Rep. Laura Baird, D-Okemos.

■ "Most of these bills are an obvious effort by plaintiff's attorneys to repeal or roll back products liability reform legislation that was approved last session (controlled by Republicans). The Michigan Chamber will fight to retain the current law" - Michigan Chamber of Commerce.

Countdown the 12 Days to Christmas

It was the night before Christmas and all through the house not a creature was stirring not even a mouse. Wrong! Usually, with onset of the most wonderful day of the year, we are frantically dashing about, polishing silver, counting plates, and uncovering the dusty card table from years past. Then you start the long food journey and by Christmas day you're missing out on all the holiday cheer in the next room because you're too busy dicing, chopping and slicing. May I suggest this year be different; a little planning can make a world of difference.

The Twelve Days of Christmas - Don't forget to start today

Day 12 - Master Checklist
Every great event has great beginnings. A master plan and checklist is the key to success. Your list may include rentals, inventory of china, linen, serving pieces, time line for tasks to insure no last minute running.

Day 11 - Menu Planning
The most crucial part of a holiday feast is, of course, the food! In addition to family favorites this would be the time to gather recipes you've wanted to try, and if necessary, experiment. When menu planning, it is essential to have a good mix of items to fit everyone's needs including a few selections, which are on the lighter side. Try to make some things in advance. Many items, including baked goods and chutneys, can be made well in advance. Don't forget to place any special meat or bakery item orders well in advance so you're not disappointed on your last minute shopping trip to your favorite market.

Day 10
Purchase all your beverages. Remember to buy beer and wine at room temperature and then just ice down an hour prior to guest arrival in coolers or party tubs. It is hard enough fitting all the extra food items in the fridge without having to work around cases of pop, beer and wine.

Day 9
It is close enough now to the date of your event to make any reminder calls to family and friends about times and such. It's also a great time to assign tasks for family members to help with the preparation.

Day 8
It's a great day for holiday baking. Cookies and breads freeze great. Bring out your special holiday tins. Sweet filled tins make great gifts.

Day 7
Beat the last minute grocery store frenzy and pick up all your dry goods such as paper products, coffee, tea, canned and frozen items also. Make any last minute purchases you may need for your table.

Day 6
Plan your holiday table top. You can use phone books, boxes turned upside down placed on top of a base line tablecloth. Arrange rises on table and cover with additional pieces of festive holiday linen thus creating different levels as a stage for your platters, bowls, etc. Give some thought to your centerpiece, how about some fresh pine branches placed in between rises? Holiday ribbon cascaded about? Candles are always a nice touch. Colors and textures will lend to your festive holiday tables. Think of your table as the stage and the food as the actors.

Day 5
Gather your china, serving pieces and linen. Double check for cleanliness and don't forget to polish the silver. This is also a good day for starting some cleaning, and to find your favorite Christmas CDs, cassettes, and records.

Day 4
The last place you want to be stuck on Christmas Eve is the grocery store.

ON YOUR MARK GET SET FOR HOLIDAY EATING

BY PEGGY MARTINELLI EVERTS
SPECIAL WRITER

The holiday season brings challenges and opportunities. Many of us look forward to spending time with family and friends, dressing up our homes and offices, and eating wonderfully prepared meals.

We need not look at holiday meals as a chance to "pig out" or worry that we'll lose control with all of the additional pressures that we face during this time of year.

I prepare for holiday eating the way a long distance runner prepares for a race.

Before the race, a runner needs to practice, practice, practice. The same is true before the holidays; practice eating sensibly. Build up your arm muscles so you have enough strength to push yourself away from the table. Practice eating wonderfully seasoned vegetables and new combinations of fruits, beans or grains.

The runner must prepare mentally for the race. She will think about how she will feel running during the competition. Before a holiday party, imagine yourself eating with restraint, enjoying each delicious mouthful and having lots of wonderful conversation.

The runner will choose clothing that is comfortable and makes her feel like a winner. For the holidays choose clothes that fit you well rather than the biggest, baggiest ones. If you wear clothes that are too loose, you won't notice your belly expanding from over eating.

The day of the race, the runner chooses her food carefully. Before you go to a party, eat a good meal so that you're less likely to graze uncontrollably all evening.

During the race, the runner will drink plenty of water to keep well hydrated. The same is true for the holidays; never underestimate the power of water. Enjoy plenty of cool, clear water before, during and after the party. Water keeps your skin clear and helps flush impurities from your body. Drink water liberally throughout the party, especially when you're indoors in dry, heated places. Find the biggest, tallest glass you can, fill it with ice water, and sip and crunch your way through any holiday get together.

The runner puts her whole heart and soul into the race; always aware of her body and what it's doing. During a party, think about what you've been eating and how much. Listen to your body's internal signals. Breathe deeply and maintain control. Move yourself away from the food source, help with dishes, play with the children or take the dog for a walk.

After the race, the runner evaluates what she did right and where she may need to intensify her efforts. After the party think about what you ate that was especially satisfying and whether you feel you successfully "managed" your food intake. Congratulate yourself for eating vegetables, fruits, grains and for drinking water.

Relax, and then, prepare yourself for the next "holiday" run.

Company's Coming

Here are some holiday entertaining tips from the American Dietetic Association/National Center for Nutrition and Dietetics.

Appetizers

- Serve hummus with pita wedges
- Make fruit kebabs with pineapple chunks, melon balls, and ripe strawberries
- Create a cheese board with some newer low-fat varieties and an assortment of crackers and breadsticks
- Spread reduced-fat or nonfat cream cheese on reduced-fat or nonfat crackers. Garnish with: sun-dried tomatoes; cucumber slices and pimento; or smoked salmon and dill
- Rely on low-fat or nonfat varieties of plain yogurt, ricotta cheese, or sour cream for dips. Flavor them with dry onion soup mix, salsa, chopped cooked spinach, chutney, or other flavorings
- Bake miniature vegetable quiches using lower-fat cheese and egg alternative

Side Dishes

- Marinate red and yellow pepper pieces, onion slices, baby carrots, and whole mushrooms in reduced-sodium soy sauce, ginger and a little olive oil. Gently cook
- Sauté onions, mushrooms, and red pepper in a moderate amount of margarine. Add this mixture to prepared wild rice, barley, couscous, or buckwheat (kasha)

Fat-reducing Tips

- Use reduced-fat or nonfat dressings or spreads for vegetables instead of butter, cheese, and cream-based sauces
- Skim fat from meat drippings before using for gravies or to flavor grain and vegetable dishes
- Cook stuffing and roast vegetables away from the bird to avoid contact with dripping fat
- Baste with fruit juice rather than meat drippings
- Choose lean cuts of meat, remove visible fat
- Broil, boil, poach, or steam instead of frying

Hurry-up entrees are faster than take-out

MURIEL G. WAGNER

REGISTERED DIETITIAN

If your holiday schedule of shopping, entertaining and party going has turned the season from "ho-ho" to "oh, oh," I've got an early Christmas gift for you. I'm going to share three of my secret recipes for main dishes that will keep your energy up and satisfy your taste buds. These dishes are faster to prepare (5 to 10 minutes) than "ordering in," lower in fat and saturated fat, and higher in fiber than anything you could have delivered, or pick up at the deli.

The first recipe is made from ingredients that you can keep on your pantry shelf. There's absolutely no chopping or extraordinary ingredients. On days when you get home too tired to even think of cooking, reach for this recipe instead of the phone. Use a prepared low sodium salsa to reduce the sodium content by 75 mg. Pritkin makes a good-tasting one.

ABSOLUTELY 5-MINUTE CHILI WONDERFUL

- 1 can (14.5 oz.) Brook's Just for Chili Diced Tomatoes
- 1 can (15.5 oz.) Brook's Mild Chili Beans
- 1/2 cup salsa
- 1 can (8.75 oz.) whole kernel corn, no salt added
- 3 ounces shredded fat-free Cheddar cheese

Mix beans, tomatoes, salsa and corn in a 2-quart microwave-safe dish. Cook on high for 4 minutes. Portion into four microwave-safe bowls. Divide cheese among bowls and return to microwave to melt cheese (about 1 minute). Serves 4.

Nutrition Facts Per Serving: Calories: 209; Total Fat 0g; Saturated Fat 0 g; Cholesterol 0 mg; Sodium 860 mg.

Food Exchanges: 1 Lean Meat; 2 Breads

The next two recipes are for fish - "regular" fish and everyone's favorite - tuna fish (but with a flavor twist). It's no secret that substituting fish and shellfish for meat helps to lower cholesterol. If you make your fish choice a fat fish like salmon, whitefish, sardines, lake trout or albacore tuna, your triglycerides will be lowered as well.

The problem is a lot of my patients think cooking fish is a big smelly chore. But if the fish is fresh, it has no fishy odor. Frozen fish can be freshened by soaking it in milk before cooking.

Here are two fish dishes that I use to convince my patients that fish is one of the simplest and best-tasting dishes to prepare. Remember, even if it is fish, it does have cholesterol, fat and calories. Use discretion in the portion size.

My patients usually approach the oven fried fish recipe with strong doubts - until they taste it. It's really crispy and crunchy. Apple and red pepper add a sweet tart accent to the tuna, revitalizing an old favorite.

OVEN FRIED FISH

- 1 pound fish fillet (catfish, cod, sole)
- 1/2 cup reduced fat buttermilk
- 1/2 cup cornmeal, white or yellow

Preheat oven to 400°F. Coat baking sheet with non-stick spray. Cut fish into four pieces.

Dip in buttermilk and then in cornmeal. Bake for 10 minutes per inch thickness, turning fish as fish browns.

Serves 4.

Nutrition Facts Per Serving: Calories 127; Total Fat 1.3 g; Saturated Fat 0.4 g; Cholesterol 51 mg; Sodium 264 mg.

Food Exchanges: 3 Lean Meat; 1/2 Bread

TUNA, RED PEPPER, RED APPLE AND RED ONION SALAD

- 2 cans (6 oz.) white albacore tuna, water-packed, rinsed, drained and chunked
- 1 red pepper, cut into strips
- 1 unpeeled Red Delicious apple, cubed
- 1/4 cup red onion, coarsely diced
- 1/3 cup nonfat mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard

Combine nonfat mayonnaise and Dijon mustard. (Increase or decrease the Dijon mustard according to taste). Add tuna, red apples, red peppers and red onions. Serve on lettuce leaves or use as a sandwich filling.

Serves 4.

Nutrition Facts Per Serving: Calories 169; Total Fat 2.8 g; Saturated Fat 0.4 g; Cholesterol 32 mg; Sodium 399 mg.

Food Exchanges: 3 Lean Meat; 2 Vegetables

SIMPLY SPECTACULAR ALMOND POPPY SEED BREAD

- 3 cups flour
- 2 cups sugar
- 3 eggs
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 2 tablespoons poppy seeds
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 3/4 cup vegetable oil
- 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1 1/2 teaspoons almond extract
- 1 1/2 teaspoons butter extract

Preheat oven to 350°F. Combine all ingredients in a large mixer bowl. Beat at medium speed for 2 minutes. Divide batter into two greased 9-by-5-inch loaf pans. Bake for 50-60 minutes. Remove from pans and cool completely.

SUGARED PECANS

- 1 egg white
- 1 tablespoon cold water
- 1 pound whole pecan halves
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon salt

Preheat oven to 250°F. In a large bowl, beat egg white and water until medium peaks form. Stir in pecans until thoroughly coated. In a small bowl, combine sugar, cinnamon and salt. Add to pecan mixture; mix thoroughly. Spread coated pecans on lightly buttered cookie sheet.

Bake 1 hour, stirring every 15 minutes. (Pecans will separate).

Remove from oven; cool. Store in

WHITE CHOCOLATE VERY BERRY NUT BARK

- 1/4 pound dried cranberries or cherries
- 1/4 pound dried blueberries
- 1/4 pound dried apricots, chopped
- 1/3 pound pecans, chopped
- 2 1/2 pounds white chocolate, chopped

Prepare a large baking sheet by lining with parchment paper or waxed paper. Melt white chocolate over a double boiler with barely simmering water. All the chocolate should be melted and smooth.

Stir dried fruits and nuts into white chocolate. Pour onto baking sheet and allow to harden. Break into pieces.

Day 3

Pick up your fresh meats and any special orders for cakes you may have placed. Start processing vegetables, pick your green beans, cut your carrots, parsnips, etc. If you peel apples or potatoes in advance make sure you store them in water with a little lemon juice.

Day 2

OK - let's get cooking! go ahead and blanch your vegetables and place them in reheating pans with a little salt, pepper and butter so that on Christmas Day all you need to do is reheat in oven or microwave and serve. You could also put a little water in the bottom of the pan and steam it on the stove top for a few seconds. Boil, mash, stir and bake! Get all your side dishes ready to go. If you can make sauces ahead of time - go for it!

Because you were a planner, you can leisurely roll out of bed to enjoy the spirit of Christmas. It's really not about food - it's about enjoying your family and close ones.

Clean lettuce and greens and store with a wet towel covering them. Clean meat and season so it will be oven ready. Set the table.

Day 1 - Merry Christmas!

Because you were a planner, you can leisurely roll out of bed to enjoy the spirit of Christmas. It's really not about food - it's about enjoying your family and close ones. Since your table is set, your side dishes are ready to go, your silver clean, plates out, beverages to be iced one hour before. The only thing left to chance is to meet with family, and coordinate your meat preparation with meal time so that all runs smoothly. Make sure children non-kitchen participants do the clean up.

The 2 Unique family and myself wish you health, happiness, prosperity, tranquility and kindred spirit for the new year! And to all a good night!

Celebrate Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights

Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, is celebrated by Jewish families for eight days to commemorate the rededication of the ancient temple in Jerusalem, when the last remaining container of undefiled oil miraculously lasted for eight days. This year Hanukkah begins at sundown on Tuesday, Dec. 23.

The Menorah, a candle holder used during Hanukkah, is lit each night by different family members. After the candles are lit, it is traditional for families to sing and celebrate with a light meal. The most popular meal during Hanukkah is latkes (potato pancakes) served with sour cream or apple sauce.

While tea is not a traditional part of a Hanukkah celebration, it certainly complements this special day.

APPLE-CRANBERRY SPARKLER

2 cups water
4 cup size tea bags
1 cup chilled cranberry juice cocktail
1 cup apple juice
2 teaspoons sugar

In medium sauce pan, bring water to a boil. Remove from heat and add tea bags; cover and brew 5 minutes. Remove tea bags. In pitcher, combine tea, juices and sugar; chill. Makes about 4 (8 ounce) servings.

Recipe from The Lipton Kitchens.

Here are some traditional potato latke recipes for Hanukkah from "Everyday Cooking for the Jewish Home: More Than 350 Delectable Recipes," by Ethel G. Hofman (HarperCollins Publishers, 1997, $25).

CLASSIC POTATO LATKES

Makes 24
2 eggs
1/4 small onion, cut into 3 pieces
4 medium potatoes, peeled and cut into 1-inch pieces
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Vegetable oil for frying
Applesauce or sour cream

Break eggs into a food processor. Add onion and potatoes. Process until potatoes are coarsely chopped. Add baking powder, flour, salt, and pepper. Pulse 3 or 4 times to mix.

Heat 1/8 inch of oil in a large skillet over medium heat. Drop rounded tablespoonfuls of potato mixture into skillet; press lightly with back of a spoon to flatten slightly. Cook on both sides until brown, about 3 minutes per side. Continue frying, adding more oil as needed, until all of batter is used up.

Drain on paper towels. Serve hot with applesauce for a meat meal or sour cream for a dairy meal.

GLICK'S COLOSSAL BUTTERNUT LATKES

1 pound butternut squash, peeled and shredded
2 medium baking potatoes (about 3/4 pound), coarsely grated
1/4 cup chopped fresh cilantro
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup matzoh meal
2 teaspoons lemon pepper seasoning
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon salt
3 to 4 tablespoons peanut oil

In a large bowl, combine squash, potatoes and cilantro. Add beaten eggs, matzoh meal, lemon pepper, ginger and salt. Mix well.

Heat 1 tablespoon oil in a 7-inch nonstick skillet over medium heat. Pour in 1 1/2 cups mixture. Cook until underside is browned and latke is firm enough to be flipped over, 5 to 7 minutes.

Reduce heat to medium-low and cook 5 to 7 minutes longer, until underside is browned. Keep warm.

Repeat with remaining mixture, stirring well before transferring to skillet and adding more oil as needed. Serve hot. Makes 4 servings.

PRUNE PORT CANAPE SANDWICH

8 very thinly sliced pieces of Canadian bacon (1/2 ounce slices)
2 cups port wine
1/2 cup dried prunes
1 boneless, skinless chicken breast
16 slices party rye bread
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
1 tablespoon olive oil

Bake the Canadian bacon on a baking sheet at 350°F. until crisp. When finished, drain on a clean towel.

Combine the port wine and prunes in a sauce pan and cook about 15 minutes until the prunes have softened. Remove the prunes and mash to a paste with one tablespoon of the port the prunes were cooked in.

In a sauce pot, simmer the remaining port until thickened and reduced to approximately 1/4 cup, set aside.

Season the chicken breast with the salt and pepper and then grill until done. Slice the chicken breast on the bias into eight pieces. Brush the bread with olive oil and place under broiler until lightly toasted. Spread the prune mixture on half the bread slices on the oiled side. Place a slice of chicken on top. Add a slice of Canadian bacon. Drizzle the port wine sauce over top. Finish with another slice of rye to make a sandwich. Secure with a toothpick. Serves 8.

WALDORF GELATIN SALAD

8-serving size package sugar-free raspberry gelatin
1 1/2 cups boiling water
2/3 cup apple juice
Ice cubes
2 small apples, cored and finely chopped
2 medium bananas, chopped
1/2 cup chopped celery

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Combine apple juice and enough ice cubes to measure 2 1/2 cups. Add to gelatin and stir until slightly thickened. Remove any unmelted ice. Stir in apples, bananas and celery. Pour into serving bowl. Chill until firm, about 2 hours. Makes 8 servings.

Gifts of gold: Care facilities encourage gifts like frames and potpourri for their residents. These come from Hudson's.

Older folks need very special gifts

If your holiday gift list includes someone in a nursing home or long-term care facility, here are some ideas.

Mike Connors, program director of the Southeast Michigan Office of Citizens for Better Care, said the best gift is simply your presence.

"But don't just visit during the holidays," he urged. "Make a commitment to visit that person regularly throughout the year and stick to it. If it's not an ongoing thing, it's not as meaningful."

Founded in 1969, Citizens for Better Care is a private, non-profit citizen advocacy organization that strives to improve the quality of care and life for people in long-term care facilities. 1-800-833-9548.

Connors also suggested giving things to help personalize the resident's living space — things like calendars, pictures, and albums of family photographs.

Don't let the fear of theft deter you from giving gifts you know your loved one will enjoy, he said. "If you stop bringing in everything for fear of it getting stolen, the person has no life left," he said.

Nursing homes and long-term care facilities are required by law to keep an inventory of each resident's belongings and if something on the list gets lost or stolen, they must try to find it, Connors said.

Before giving anything edible as a gift, make sure that it doesn't violate any dietary restrictions that the resident may have. Also, audio recordings of books make great gifts for people who have failing eyesight.

Talking Book World, which has locations in Birmingham, West Bloomfield, Southfield, Lathrup Village, Livonia, Dearborn, Waterford and Roseville, is an excellent source for books on tape, with more than 5,000 titles in each store. For more information, call (248) 945-9999.

Lisa Gigliotti said listening to cassette tapes of soothing and uplifting music helped her when she was a nursing home resident.

As a young woman, she was diagnosed with rheumatoid arthritis and became bed-ridden. Her mother and grandmother lovingly cared for her at home, but after they were killed in a car crash, she went to live in a nursing home.

She made a remarkable recovery. Now in her mid-30s, she is a policy advisor for the Senate Majority Policy Office on issues of mental health, assisted suicide (which she's against), families, and human services.

Besides cassette tapes, she told me that she recommends giving the following gifts to nursing home residents: non-slip slippers, which are invaluable because the floors are usually cold; robes, lap robes and bed jackets for warmth and privacy; and potpourri and scented soaps and creams, to help mask the unpleasant odors that are often in nursing homes.

Magazine and book-of-the-month club subscriptions are also great, because they give the recipient something to look forward to, she said.

Other items she suggested can be found at stores that sell medical supplies. Beyers Friendly Drugs, 1100 W. Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth, carries a lot of them, including: 2-foot-long shoe horns, about $9; grabber extender poles for picking up items without bending or reaching, $9; sock pulls to help put on socks, $9; and full-page sheet magnifiers for reading, $3.99.

For more ideas, contact Visually Impaired Information Center Inc. in Livonia, a non-profit organization that has put together a directory of merchandise catalogs and services designed to help visually impaired people, (313) 421-8599.

Also, you can pick up a free copy of JC Penney's "For Your Special Needs" catalog, which includes Velcro clothing and other helpful things, in the catalog department of JC Penney stores.

Exploration Station

Mall exhibits teach computer innovations

Twelve Oaks and Lakeside malls are a classroom of sorts this holiday, introducing kids to the wonders of new computer technology based on themes from the shopping centers' holiday decor packages.

BY BARB PERT TEMPLETON
SPECIAL WRITER

Shopping for computer gadgets to please all the techno fans on your Christmas list may seem overwhelming, but a stop at the Holiday Exploration Station at Twelve Oaks Mall, or The Peanuts and Popcorn Place at Lakeside Mall, should ease most concerns.

The exhibits boast computers and other hi-tech equipment that can introduce shoppers to the latest technology packages, tied into Lakeside's Charlie Brown Christmas theme and Twelve Oaks' Crystal Forest.

Instructors from TechnoMasters, a Birmingham-based technology organization, double as station masters providing guidance and assistance to shoppers of all ages. Offering tips on the newest technology to holiday shoppers free of charge was part of mall managements desire to offer something extra to its patrons, said TechnoMasters Vice President Tom Cleavinger.

"We have a contract with the malls to give shoppers some real computer experience using just 15 or 20 minutes of their time," Cleavinger said. "And we don't sell anything, we just help with the educational experience."

The exhibits are open to the public on weekends during regular mall hours. During the week the station is available to school groups, from preschool through eighth grade, for a nominal charge per child.

A recent Sunday afternoon found a steady flow of interested shoppers dropping into the Twelve Oaks exhibit. Assistants from TechnoMasters greet visitors at the door offering a mini-tour or welcoming families to browse on their own. A brief explanation of each station and simple instructions for operating the computer are available at every terminal.

One of the most popular areas among the younger set is the Robotics Zone. That's where simple clicks of the keyboard give the users information so that they can dictate the moves of Lego blocks placed in the center of the station table.

"The kids really like getting that information off the screen and then being able to control something outside the computer with it," said Cleavinger. The Internet Zone is a station that allows visitors to journey around the world to learn all about holidays in different countries. The user can select the country and the holiday such as Christmas, Hanukkah and Kwanzaa.

The Gadget Zone gives the latest look at video and digital camera technology. Visitors can stand at opposite ends of the room and conduct a video conference while typing messages to one another.

"The fun part of this is that all of the stations are at a pretty basic level but it's still the coolest technology using the newest equipment," Cleavinger said.

Laughing and giggling were most prominent at the "Gooing" station whose software set-up allowed visitors to select a picture of someone and then manipulate their faces to hilarious poses with a simple click of the mouse. Users could also take their own picture and have it appear for re-design on the terminal.

"The face morphing is the same technology utilized in movies like Roger Rabbit and Mask," said Cleavinger.

A pair of teen shoppers from Farmington Hills were enjoying a nice break from the mall crowds inside the station. Elizabeth Jackson, 13, and Jessica Levers, 13, really enjoyed the "Gooing" station.

"Is this the coolest or what?" Jackson asked Levers as she twisted the face of the Mona Lisa into a rubberized mess. Other faces on hand to re-mold included that of President Bill Clinton, Senator Ted Kennedy and England's Prince Charles.

Seeing visitors enjoying the station and not shying away from utilizing the computers pleased Cleavinger and his instructors. Shawn Maxwell, of Farmington Hills, has worked for Techno Masters for several years and enjoys the chance to bring the computer technology closer to the community via mall settings and school programs.

"This has really been a good experience and the kids have a great time," said Maxwell. "I'd say the Gooing and Lego stations are most popular."

"Hands on displays are a big plus because you can walk in and quickly see the programs and grab some information," added Cleavinger.

The Holiday Exploration Station and the Peanuts and Popcorn Interactive Kids Place will be at the malls through December 28. The next technology exhibit by TechnoMasters will begin on January 24 at the Briarwood Mall in Ann Arbor in conjunction with the University of Michigan Museum of Art's Monet exhibit. To contact TechnoMasters regarding visits or school technology education programs call Cleavinger at (248) 258-9075.

Sisters open Pagetec Store

Patty and Michelle Gillissie of Canton opened a Pagetec franchise in downtown Walled Lake offering cellular phones, pagers and accessories at 103 E. Walled Lake Drive. Patty has had a similar shop in Canton for the past five years. They welcome inquiries at (248) 455-5100.

Gift idea warms the heart

Teddy WarmHeart generates "warmth" for four hours. After a short nap in the microwave he non-toxic clay heart (a thermal ceramic patented by a NASA engineer) gives off gentle heat. Developed for hospital use, he is hypo-allergenic, non-toxic and will not exceed a pre-determined temperature according to marketers. It's $39.95 by special order only 1-800-728-0294.

Personalized books for children

Topics include: your child solving a mystery at his/her own birthday party; Your child becoming a hero at the circus by saving Chuckles the Clown; Your child saving the ballet with her performance when the star can't appear - to name a few.

Three easy pieces make dressing up a snap

Nobody wants to spend dollars on outfits that can only be worn once, so Kevin Quinn, fashion coordinator for Nordstrom Somerset Collection, suggests key pieces that may be the best gifts your closet receives all year.

An embellished top.

The beautiful, feminine layering pieces that many designers showed under menswear-inspired suits in tweeds and pinstripes for the workplace also look great as stand-alone special occasion tops. Choose sheer or luxury fabrics such as burnout velvet or cashmere and look for details such as beading or touches of embroidery and lace.

One great 'luxe' wrap.

Wraps are a dramatic and versatile cover-up that can make a fashion statement in their own right. One of the newest options is an oversized scarf that can be wrapped or draped like a shawl — try cashmere, faux fur or wool for day and something more ornate (such as a beautiful embellished velvet scarf) to set off evening ensembles.

A faux-fur chubby is ideal for those seeking more substantial coverage; and a boa is a whimsical choice for the more fashion-forward.

One ethnic-inspired piece.

An Asian-print slim pant or skirt in a beautiful brocade is festive and not overpowering when paired with a simple top.

A cheongsam-inspired brocade dress or separates such as a tunic/pant combination are at once casual and elegant. Both are great options for home entertaining during the holidays and year 'round.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Pearle Vision hosts holiday food bank

The annual food drive launched five years ago by nuVision Optical Stores will continue to aid local needy families this year under the new name of Pearle Vision. Customers who bring in a can of food to participating stores from now until Dec. 24 will receive a certificate for $15 off an eye exam and those who donate a case of non-perishable food items will be given a free exam. To underscore its commitment to supporting the communities in which it does business, Pearle Vision will match its customers' donations pound per pound. And to encourage employees to go the extra mile, Pearle Vision will offer a day off to one employee at each store who personally donates the most food.

Customers are urged to bring non-perishable food items to any of the sixteen local nuVision/Pearle Vision stores including: Laurel Park Place Mall - 37690 West Six Mile Road, (313) 464-7010; Livonia Mall Shopping Center - 29642 Seven Mile Road (313) 473-0806; Westland Shopping Center - 35000 West Warren (313) 525-5907; and Wonderland Shopping Center - 29661 Plymouth Road (313) 261-3220.

Stop smoking clinic

The city of Livonia is sponsoring the Stop Smoking Clinic conducted by Dr. Arthur Weaver. The seven night program will be held at Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile Road, just east of Farmington Road. No set fee is charged, although donations are accepted. Dates will include: Thursday, Jan. 8; Monday, Jan. 12 through Friday, Jan. 16; and Tuesday, Jan. 20. All sessions begin at 7:30 p.m. and end at 9 p.m. For more information, call Livonia City Hall at (313) 466-2535 weekdays.

Breakfast with Santa

Get into the holiday spirit at a jolly breakfast with Santa and Mrs. Claus.

Attend a "Breakfast with Santa" from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 13 in Henry Ford Health System's corporate headquarters at 1 Ford Place in Detroit's New Center area. All monies raised with benefit the Hospices of Henry Ford Health System.

This year's event will include a pancake breakfast, treats for the kids, a special pee-wee boutique where kids can shop for mom and dad and a holiday bake sale. Photos with Santa also are available for a nominal fee. The cost for a jolly good time is $12 for adults and $6 for children under 10.

For more information or to order tickets, call (313) 876-9259.

Institute names director

Kathryn St. Onge has been named director of the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute's west region outreach efforts. St. Onge will oversee the Institute's community outreach programs in western Wayne and Monroe counties, including patient services and health education activities. ## MASSAGE THERAPY HAS POSITIVE BENEFITS

THE POWER OF TOUCH

By DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

As Barbara Klipa emerges from the massage room, her cheeks are pink, there's a peaceful look on her face; her eyes are moist and twinkle in an obvious state of deep relaxation. A few minutes earlier, Celeste A. Hamilton, owner of Healing Arts Clinic Massage Therapy Relaxation Center in Plymouth massages the Westland woman's neck, rotating her jaw to one shoulder, then the other.

"Tell me, Barbara, if this hurts," Hamilton said, explaining that Klipa had neck surgery and she wanted to make sure she wasn't causing pain. A few minutes later, with Klipa on her stomach and draped in sheets and towels, Hamilton looks as if she is kneading bread dough as her hands move up and down Klipa's back. Occasionally, Klipa releases a sigh, as if she finally found a repose after a long journey.

Klipa first tried massage to counter on-the-job stress from working as psychiatric nurse. She was also injured by a patient once and wanted an alternative medical solution that didn't involve medication or surgery to relieve the pain. Klipa not only gets massages, but over the years took courses and became a massage therapist herself.

Benefits are numerous

Klipa's not alone in her discovery of the power of touch. Researchers at the Touch Research Institute

Stiff neck: Barbara Klipa of Westland finds repose in the results of a neck massage she receives from Plymouth massage therapist Celeste A. Hamilton, owner of Healing Arts Clinic Massage Therapy Relaxation Center of Plymouth. Klipa finds the massage beneficial to the muscles of her neck that were operated on in recent months.

in Miami, a scientific center devoted to studying the effects of touch on physical and mental health, have found that massage has helped people with a number of conditions from diabetes to hyperactivity and boosting the immune function in HIV-positive patients.

But massage isn't a new idea or a trendy new fad. The first known use of massage was 3,000 years ago in China. And Hippocrates, the father of all doctors, talked about the need for physicians to know what he referred to as "rubbing." Over the years, researchers have documented physical changes resulting from massage; like lowering heart rates and blood pressure; improving circulation; raising skin temperature; heightening the client's sense of well-being and causing anxiety levels to drop.

Today, however, massage therapy is sometimes confused with massage parlors or as a front for prostitution. While the state of Michigan doesn't require massage therapists to have licenses, most therapists support licensing as extra documentation to add validity to their profession. "People are starting to become aware that there is therapeutic massage and that it's not a massage parlor," Hamilton said.

When she started working as a massage therapist 18 years ago that wasn't the case. In fact, it was common for people to misunderstand what she was offering. People looking for massages often wonder how to find a reputable therapist. If you use the Yellow Pages, look under massage therapists; or get a referral from a health store, chiropractor or doctor, Hamilton advised. Oftentimes, townships and cities use strict ordinances to weed out disreputable massage shops.

In Plymouth, Hamilton found that the city ordinance was 20 pages long. On the last page, however, the guidelines say that if the therapist is a member of The American Massage Therapy Association or a graduate of a state license school, the business would be approved. Hamilton is a member of the AMTA and also is a graduate of a state-licensed school. The AMTA was founded in 1943 and is the largest and oldest national organization representing the massage therapy profession. Membership is limited to therapists who Studies show that massage has a tremendous affect on our minds and bodies: The Touch Research Institute has found that massage:

- Affects weight gain and temperament in infants of depressed mothers or who were born prematurely
- Enhances immune function in AIDS and cancer patients
- Helps women with bulimia
- Reduces job stress and improves performance
- Provides pain reduction during invasive medical procedures.

Other research shows evidence that massage therapy helps infants with colic and sleep disorders; and reduces pain among arthritic patients. In another study, senior citizens acting as surrogate grandparents gave massages to abused children. The babies responded by sleeping better and were more sociable when awake. The seniors benefited, too. They had less anxiety and depression and were more sociable. Other studies are looking at the effects of teaching parents to massage their diabetic children; pain in arthritic patients and the role of touch in modifying body image and alleviating eating disorders in adolescents.

have demonstrated a level of skill and expertise through testing and/or education.

Injury, stress reliever

About 80 percent of Hamilton's clients are looking for some kind of stress release; others want help dealing with pain; for instance, with their lower backs; rotator cuffs or stiff necks. Some clients have stress and physical problems.

"With therapeutic massage, we blend therapeutic techniques of acupressure and trigger point therapy along with the relaxation techniques," Hamilton said.

One of the most commonly asked questions for novice clients, Hamilton said, is whether or not they have to take their clothes off. The clothing is removed, but clients are covered with sheets during the massage. The only part of the body that is exposed is the area the therapist is working on. Sessions last anywhere from 10 to 90 minutes. After a session, clients usually feel great, but the next day they might feel some muscle aches if they had a therapeutic massage. But Hamilton refers to this as working out the problem area. The next time, the client will be less tight and may ask for a deeper massage.

Low Vision re-opens world for the near-blind

By KIMBERLY A. MORTSON
STAFF WRITER

There's life after blindness, says Nancy Simmons, owner of Low Vision Solutions of Livonia. Simmons, legally blind, was diagnosed at the age of 10 with retinitis pigmentosa - a disease that progressively deteriorates the retina.

Her vision problems, however, haven't stopped her from functioning as any normal sighted person would, but in fact, have had a dramatic effect on her career as a new business owner. "I think I offer an inspiration to persons who are having a hard time coping with their vision loss."

The Redford resident runs a company that sells equipment such as video magnifiers and daily living aids to people with extremely low vision, "like myself," says Simmons. For the past 11 years, she's been running the business out of her home but recently made the leap to purchase a storefront business on West Seven Mile near Middlebelt Road.

"My clients were always asking me if I had a place they could come and view the equipment instead of me coming to them because I could only bring two or three machines with me at a time."

The new, 800 square foot store enables her to display approximately eight to 10 machines including hand-held magnifiers, daily living aids, large print software and devices that read print to a blind person. Despite the fact that Simmons recently opened the new Livonia store, she said she will continue to provide at-home viewing services for persons who are unable to travel because of vision or other mobility impairments.

The black and white and color video magnifiers (brand names include Xerox, Magnisight, Optelec) aid persons who have lost their ability to read or write due to limited range of vision and focus. Simmons currently sells new equipment ranging in price from $1,800-$3,500 that magnifies written words and photographs up to 70 times their normal size.

Users have the ability to enlarge and focus material in the positive and negative such as black letters on a white background and white letters on a black background.

She said there's a large population of people who are unaware of products such as video magnifiers and settle for a life that is limited due to their vision impairment. "You can't imagine the satisfaction I get from being able to provide a product that restores a person's ability to read a book, write a letter or look at pictures of their grandchildren," said Simmons.

Low Vision Solutions will also sell used equipment from $500-$1,500.

Other visual aids and daily living devices include talking watches and calculators, large

Beanie Bear auction benefits diabetes research

The Susan B. Ashlee Company in Livonia, known for its gourmet gift baskets, has planned a silent auction to raise funds for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation and the cardiac unit of Children's Hospital.

According to owner Susan B. Ashlee, her five-year-old son, who was born with a congenital heart problem, had extensive open heart surgery at Children's Hospital that saved his life. "Miracles happen at Children's Hospital," said Ashlee.

The Livonia business owner was also diagnosed at the age of 12 as a juvenile diabetic. Having had the disease for 25 years, she hopes to utilize her position in the business community and the appeal of Beanie Babies to benefit the diabetes foundation and the hospital.

"I sell so many Beanie Babies a day that I could not imagine trying to control the shoppers searching for Princess Di," said Ashlee who learned she will only be receiving one dozen Princess Di Beanie Baby Bears. She was motivated to host the auction to accommodate requests while furthering research to find a cure for diabetes.

Individuals and companies interested in placing a bid for a Princess Di Bear Beanie Baby or a crystal "Princess" ring (one of the most popular sellers at the Susan B. Ashlee Company Christmas) should mail their bid to: Beanies to Help Children, P.O. Box 51743, Livonia, Mi. 48151 or call (313)

LOCAL FUND-RAISER

422-8700.

The bear, named "Princess" is described as sitting bear, dark purple in color with a purple ribbon and black eyes. Stitched on the front of the bear is a single white rose with a green stem.

A Susan B. Ashlee spokesperson said the Beanie Baby comes attached with a poem describing Diana, Princess of Wales, as an angel that came down from heaven to teach and reach.

Mailed bids should include your name, mailing address and phone number as well as the item you are wishing to place your bid on. Children and adults who would like to help out the cause on a smaller scale may send $5 (payable to: The Juvenile Diabetes Foundation) with their name, address and phone number for a Beanie Baby giveaway. Five lucky winners will receive a retired Beanie Baby and will be notified Christmas Eve.

"Individual donations, big and small, are also appreciated and will be forwarded to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation or Children's Hospital."

The company expects to host the drawing during the week of Dec. 15-21 just prior to Christmas so you are encouraged to send bids as soon as possible.

"If you have an old injury, the therapist is trying to rehabilitate the area," she said. "The client may hurt in the short run, but their health is improved in the long run. People who want stress release will get a relaxing pain free massage." When clients leave the office, Hamilton said, they look so much more relaxed, they say they have more energy and have an overall sense of well-being.

"If you nip stress in the bud a lot of physical problems won't occur," she added. "It is so important to try to find alternative ways to keep your body strong and healthy, including regular massage treatments and a good exercise program. They're responsible to take care of themselves so they don't wind up having to be treated with drugs or surgery."

Hamilton also offers classes on therapeutic massage, Hatha yoga, Tai Chi and toning for the body and mind at her Healing

Arts clinic. More and more people are getting massages. Some 25 million Americans make 60 million visits to 85,000 massage practitioners annually. The interest is growing, with 10,000 parents learning baby massage every year. Some employers, even the United States Department of Justice, are seeing the benefits for their workers and bringing therapists to the workplace.

Massage, more than a trend Research by the Touch Research Institute has found that workers who get massages have less job stress and are less depressed than other employees. The study also found that employees who receive massages are more alert. In a society where touch is often construed as having sexual overtones or as invading someone's private space, many times people, even including doctors and other medical professionals, avoid the simple act of holding a hand, or gently stroking a patient's back, which is a clear demonstration of compassion and care.

Studies have shown that elderly hospitalized patients are the least likely to be touched. But, young or old, touch has proven beneficial. The results of a TRI study of premature babies showed that infants who received three massages a day for 10 days were more alert, active and responsive than babies who didn't get massages. These babies were more calm, slept more soundly and had fewer instances of sleep apnea, which is short periods of breathing cessation. Babies who get massages are also released from the hospital an average of six days sooner.

Beyond the medical affects, a simple touch can even pay off, too. One study showed that waitresses who touched their customers on the hand or shoulder got bigger tips than those who didn't touch.

print playing cards and clocks, speech synthesizers for computers and handheld magnifiers that cost approximately $20-$30. Mobile devices such as the magnifiers offer a convenient alternative for persons on the go to read menus or price labels in restaurants and stores where it would be impossible for a video magnifier to access considering they are the size of an average computer monitor or 19-inch television screen and are comparable in weight.

"Persons should not be intimidated by the video magnifiers," said Simmons, "they're actually very easy to use. Senior citizens, who make up a majority of my clientele, may view the devices as computers. They are not computers and have at the most three buttons - the on/off switch, enlarge and focus." Unfortunately, says Simmons, none of the low vision aids are covered by insurance or Medicare but many options exist, such as used equipment, if you are on a limited budget. "We offer something for every-

Garden City Hospital screening newborns' hearing

Garden City Hospital recently began to screen the hearing of all babies born in its newly renovated Labor, Delivery, Recovery and Post-Partum suites. This program is being implemented in order to identify hearing problems at an early age with allows for early intervention and a richer and fuller opportunity for development through the amelioration of the effects of hearing impairment.

Nationally, one in one thousand children is born deaf and five in one thousand children are born with significant hearing impairment. Approximately 24,000 babies born in the United States, including 840 in Michigan, are born with hearing impairment each year. The federal government's plan for the wellness of the nation - Healthy People 2000 - sets an objective to reduce the average age of identification from the current average of 24-30 months to a more ideal age of 12 months. For those children born at Garden City Hospital, identification will occur in their first few days.

Universal newborn hearing screening is mandated in six states and it is being done voluntarily in other states. Michigan is joining the national trend. Of 120 birthing hospitals in our state, Garden City Hospital is the 14th to voluntarily implement universal newborn hearing screening.

"Development of Otoacoustic Emissions (OAE) automated audiometry and advancements in other screening techniques have made hearing screening of every newborn possible at Garden City Hospital," said Virginia Schroeder, Certified Clinical Audiologist in the department of Speech Pathology and Audiology. Prior to the acceptance of non-invasive, quick and easily administered tests, only infants with risk factors for potential hearing impairment were screened. This resulted in the identification of only 50 percent of children with congenital hearing impairment.

"Early identification of hearing impairment is extremely important," said Schroeder. "There is a critical period for language and learning which occurs during the first two years of life. Reduced auditory input affects the developing auditory nervous system and has harmful effects on social, emotional, cognitive and academic development. There is sufficient evidence that early identification and early intervention in the management of hearing impairment in children are essential for the development of normal speech, language and educational progress."

Once a positive screening has been made, the Michigan State Department of Community Health will assist in follow-up. GC Hospital, in conjunction with the Division of Children's Special Health Care Services, can accomplish appropriate referrals for diagnosis, treatment and expedite enrollment with local educational systems.

Internet mailing lists help families stay in touch

This is the time of year our holiday mail is filled with "brag letters," those "here's-what-our-family-has-been-doing" letters sent along in Christmas cards.

This year, I've seen a new twist. . . holiday mailing lists, sent by e-mail to friends and relatives. I've already received two of them and there are even entire Web sites now set up to electronically post such things for all the world to see, complete with pictures of the kids.

While such holiday use may be new this year, mailing lists are an old staple of the Internet. Think of a mailing list as an e-mail party line on which everyone is discussing the same thing. At last count, there were over 75,000 of them, devoted to everything from the anti-abortion movement to zoology.

Mailing lists utilize a centralized computer called a list server that receives an incoming "post" or piece of e-mail related to the lists concern. The list server automatically forwards a copy of that post to everyone who has subscribed to the list and any member can then reply or append or comment on the "post."

You don't need special software beyond your e-mail program to take advantage of electronic mailing lists.

MIKE WENDLAND

PC TALK

But you'll definitely want to check out the lists that match your interests.

The best source for information on mailing lists is a World Wide Web site called, Liszt (www.liszt.com/). It's an interactive directory of every mailing list on the Internet, arranged by category and it is can be searched by keyword.

There are also several hundred real family lists. . . mailing lists set up for members of a particular family like "the Brown family discussion list" or the "Davis family discussion list."

These information age extensions of those photocopied update letters that we all get from far off relatives number in the hundreds. Instead of once-a-year letters folded into Christmas cards, these ongoing lists dish out the instant e-mail updates and ongoing correspondence about how Uncle Fred is feeling after his surgery or how young Zachary likes school.

To set up a list requires special automatic software and a central server computer that receives and forwards the posts. Often, the server is located at a university or a large business. The system administrator is the person to see about setting one up, but don't even think about it if all you have is a half dozen or so people. You can easily handle that with most e-mail programs, through a feature that let's you send group mailings. But if you have several dozen or, for that matter, several thousand people you'd like to keep in close contact with, mailing lists are the answer.

Got a list you want to join? It's easy. Just send a subscription request by e-mail. Make sure, though, you send it to the right place. Most mailing lists have two addresses, one for administrative purposes such as handling requests to subscribe or be taken off the list, the other for the general membership as a whole. One sure way to get yourself a reputation for being a Net klutz and undoubtedly a stack of angry "flames," or e-mail rebukes, is to clog up the mailboxes of list members with messages meant for the administrator. To subscribe or remove yourself from a list requires you to e-mail the administrator.

Don't rush in and sign up for every list you see because some lists kick out an amazing amount of information. Choose carefully. It's not unusual for some lists to post as many as 200 messages a day.

Once you decide you want to join, send a note to the administrative address listed as the contact. Carefully follow the subscription format. Some lists have you simply type "subscribe" followed by the name of the list in the message subject line. Others want you to leave the subject line blank and in the body of the message type in "subscribe" followed by your name. If your e-mail program automatically adds your signature to every message you send, uncheck that option or make it "no signature" when sending to an administrative server. That's because the list server is totally automated and only looks for certain words like "subscribe" in certain places. Thus, your e-mail signature lines are unrecognized and your mail will probably be bounced back.

How do you know you've successfully subscribed? The server will send you a confirmation and welcoming message. With that confirmation will be detailed instructions on how to sign off the list or to hold your mail while on vacation or away from your computer. So save that note somewhere for future reference.

Here's five of my favorites to get you started:

A word a day

This is a free vocabulary-builder, a mailing list that sends out a new word every day to subscribers. Often the words are built around a particular theme that lasts for several weeks.

To subscribe, send a message to: wsmith@wordsmith.org. Leave the body of the message blank and make the subject line as follows: subscribe your name

Consumer forum

This is a national forum where consumers everywhere can talk to each other about buying, selling, shopping, malls, recalls, consumer protection - anything that relates to consumer issues.

To subscribe send e-mail to majordomo@igc.apc.org and in the body of the message type "subscribe consumer-forum"

Edupage

This is a twice-a-week mailing list that contains the latest about information technology, the Internet, business and industry. It is made up of short story summaries taken from various publications. It's a great way to monitor trends and information. Each notice also includes the source of the original material.

To subscribe, send a message to: proc@educom.unc.edu with the message subscribe edupageyour first name last name

Family Success! Mailing List

The list provides a family and community discussion group about health, finance, lifelong learning, social networking, spiritual journey, career and productivity, safety and environment, and home management.

To subscribe, send e-mail to majordomo@intelli-source.com and in the body of the message, type "subscribe fs"

Handyman

This is paradise for the do-it-yourselfer and a great way to save money and get things done the right way. You name it, someone on this list can fix it.

To subscribe send e-mail to majordomo@cedar.cic.net and in the body of the message, type "more info"

Company sells commercial Web site addresses, supply of 'good' names low

Websitenames.com has established the Internet's first trading center for commercial Web site addresses.

The demand for simple Web site names steadily increases as American businesses scramble to go online. Companies covet names that are descriptive and easy-to-remember. A memorable Net address or domain name can greatly impact a firm's online accessibility and image.

Supply is low and good commercial Web site names are exceedingly difficult to find.

The new agency has positioned itself as a trading center for prestigious Net addresses that are realistically priced. The first transaction on the new exchange was iceskating.com which sold for $2,750 to a Louisville, KY company. There are currently 850 available listings on the www.websitenames.com

Some interesting facts about Internet Web sites:

■ A Web site name consists of up to 22 letters, numbers and dashes. That is: 31,700,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 possible .com names, yet there's a shortage of desirable addresses.

■ More than 125,000 Web site names are registered per month. Two years ago the rate was only 200 per month.

■ The details of most Web site name sales are not made public. Some reported sales include: $150,000 for business.com and $100,000 for Internet.com. The owner of television.com turned down a $50,000 offer.

■ It is common for a company to point multiple names to one Web site. Some corporations have taken this to an extreme. Procter & Gamble's Web site can be accessed via: pimples.com, headache.com, badbreath.com, diarrhea.com, underarm.com and over 100 others.

Websitenames.com will donate certain Internet addresses to qualified public service organizations. These include: Bigotry.com, DrugAbuse.com, SafeSexInfo.com, FamilyValues.org. The company accepts brief letter-proposals describing the group's plans for the name. Inquiries should be sent to awards@websitenames.com

BUSINESS MARKETPLACE

Marketplace features a glimpse of suburban business news and notes, including corporate name changes, new products, office openings, new affiliations, new positions, mergers, acquisitions and new ways of doing business. Items for Marketplace should be submitted to Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. The fax number is (313) 591-7279.

E & E QS-9000 certified

E & E Manufacturing Company, Inc. of Plymouth received the Certificate of Registration for QS-9000. E & E was assessed by NSF International Strategic Registrations, which found the company compliant. NSF observed only one minor non-conformance, which was corrected before it could be written up.

E & E is a premier niche supplier of progressive die metal stampings. By joining cold heading and metal stamping technologies, it specializes in heavy gage stamped metal fasteners, supplying over 200 million female fasteners a year.

Established in 1962, the Plymouth and Farmington Hills facilities are soon to be over 110,000 square feet, employing over 200 people on a three shift basis.

HFCC awarded grant

Henry Ford Community College, in partnership with Eastern Michigan University, has been awarded a two-year, $779,000 grant from the National Science Foundation to support programs in Geographic Information Systems at HFCC and EMU, as well as select local high schools.

Kroger/ComerMART

Comerica Bank will open a supermarket banking location in Canton located inside the Kroger at 1905 Canton Center, near Ford Road.

ComerMARTs allow customers the convenience of banking and shopping in one location. The branch is equipped with four teller stations, an automated teller machine (ATM), safe deposit services, and a private office. Susan Roehl will manage Comerica's new Canton Center ComerMART.

The new ComerMART is open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Saturdays. The new ComerMART is Comerica's second Canton supermarket branch.

A thousand little ways to show we care

A reassuring smile. A good ear. A kind voice. Caring has always been essential to curing, and that is especially true when it comes to our young patients. We care about children so we know how to care for them. At the University of Michigan Health Centers, we believe the only way to know your child and understand all of his or her health needs is to be in your neighborhood. It's the easiest way to help your child the most. Here's what else makes us ideal for your whole family:

- We have plenty of pediatricians, ob/gyns, family practice physicians and general internists in your community.

- Many sites offer extended hours, including Saturdays.
- We have all the services you need to stay healthy. Many locations offer laboratory tests and X-rays, too.
- If you ever need a specialist, you're already linked with the U-M Medical Center and our hundreds of experts.

Author puzzles over pumpkins

Marian Nelson, a former special education teacher for Redford Union Schools, is a little worried about storing 5,000 copies of "Priscilla's Patch" when they arrive on her doorstep on Dec. 22. The early Christmas present is a children's book Nelson wrote and self-published through Proctor Publications in Ann Arbor. Plymouth artist Jennifer Riopelle created the brightly colored pictures of pumpkins in the center of the cutting dilemma.

"Priscilla's Patch" will be available at Santa's Holiday Gift Show 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today at Novi Expo Center. Riopelle is exhibiting her contemporary Ukrainian eggs, hand-painted furniture and home accessories, along with the books, in a booth located in the Santa's Workshop and Crafts section.

"I don't have a clue as to where I'm going to put them," said Nelson. "I hadn't really thought about it with the excitement of getting the book published."

True-to-life

"Priscilla's Patch" is a story about a young girl and her dilemma in a pumpkin patch. According to Nelson, the scenario is reminiscent of an incident in her own life. After carving jack-o-lanterns from all of the pumpkins, Priscilla realizes she must dispose of them quickly after mom cries "what have you done?" Usually, the 7-year-old's family sells the pumpkins and other produce at a roadside stand. Nelson ties the story together with a vine and caterpillar, who's more of a stand-up comic than a garden pest.

"I designed the book so it would be something that people can identify with," said Nelson. "It was really important to me that I wasn't block writing; it's a panorama. That's the purpose of the vine; it grows from page to page. The vine is continuous so the story is continuous."

"There's a flow going on. The caterpillar is on every page and you can see his reaction to what's going on. For instance, the caterpillar is having his dream of becoming a butterfly when she is dreaming about dressing up for Halloween and collecting candy. The kids think it's fun to find the caterpillar every time they turn the page. I think this book is marketable to just about everybody. It's about gardening and children, the life cycle of a butterfly."

Nelson also made sure to limit distractions.

"Too many words on a page will turn children off, too small of print," said Nelson. "If a scene's too busy, it will turn people off."

Long and winding road

Nelson wrote four stories, one of which was "Priscilla's Patch," 12 years ago, then stuck them in a filing cabinet. She became serious about publishing after deciding, "writing is what I wanted to do for the rest of my life."

The Message is in the Art

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

"Change is inevitable - open the heart to let it occur gently, sweetly."

Those are words of wisdom from Nancy Pitel who placed the text next to one of her mixed media paintings on display in the Livonia Civic Center Library Fine Arts Gallery. Visitors to the one-woman show will find 29 more of Pitel's philosophies about life, love and children along with the art. The words lead viewers to pursue their imagination as they view the scenes before them.

In her work as in her personal life, Pitel welcomes new ideas and always seems to be searching for a better way. Maybe that's why, nearly all of the works question and comment. "Dream Maker" asks "who really creates your reality?" as a man blows bubbles underneath an eerie purple moon. The faces in the bubbles are a reflection of Pitel's introspective nature.

"Mallory in Wonderland," is a fantasy scene of fairies and tortoises hiding in the landscape. Look for the larger-than-life rabbit perched behind the girl then read Pitel's words - "children live in the true reality."

Pitel instills a sense of wonder in each of the works by including objects out of context. What does the rabbit lurking behind the little girl mean? What does a Viking ship, reflected in a man's eyeglasses, symbolize? Each makes you wonder.

"The exhibit is fun; it's relaxing," said Pitel. "Everything here has a lot of images in them. It's kind of fun discovering them. It's like a game to relax; you unwind."

But the exhibit is deeper than that. Is Pitel using the characters in her watercolor and colored pencil paintings to invoke thought in the viewer? The fact, that nearly all of the works were rendered from slides taken at the Renaissance Festival sets a perfect ground for Pitel to pose questions in the viewer's mind. Pitel has taken more than 300 photographs of these Renaissance players in costume.

"People are in costumes and everybody's playing a role," said Pitel. "They let down their hair."

Later in the interview Pitel added, "people are in costume all the time. Every time you get dressed you're in costume."

Every aspect of Pitel's life relates to art from her position as a layout artist for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers to maintaining membership in the Garden City Fine Arts Association and the Scarab Club in Detroit, and serving as a juror for the Wyandotte Street Fair.

"I always look at things in terms of art," said Pitel. "It's always been that way. As a child when things were kind of tough I could create my own world by drawing and painting."

"I see the colors and shapes and images that are all around, if you just take time to look," Pitel said. "The colors, the sunsets: people look, but they don't see. I like to have things in the painting so people will really look."

Gazing into a crystal ball, "Cosmic Clown" in a bright red wig and white face illustrates "life is too important to take so seriously. Some days you just know it's all a joke."

"Sorrow" takes earthlings to task for the destruction of the environment. A white dove with a bloody wound attracts the eye to this dramatic black and white portrait. "Whose responsibility is it to end it?" asks Pitel.

"I don't think people realize what they're doing to the planet," she said in an interview at the gallery. "I made the planet bright because there's still hope."

Pitel's show came about when Livonia Arts Commissioner Robert Sheridan saw her work in the "Art in the Village" exhibit at Greenmead Historical Village. The mother of four adult children, Pitel only began exhibiting her work earlier this year but already has a one-person show at Urban Park-Detroit Art Center in Greektown's Trappers Alley to her credit. She's also shown work at the Ann Arbor Art Association and the Rivers Edge Gallery in Canton.

Even though she taught art at the YWCA and privately in her home for 18 years, Pitel did not consider herself a serious painter until a year ago when she realized its importance in her life. It wasn't that Pitel didn't have the talent before, after all she sold her first painting at age 12. Fear of rejection held her back.

"I could have done my work while raising my family, and I could have used them as models," said Pitel.

Troubadour: Nancy Pitel portrays Gibbon, an entertainer at the Renaissance Festival in this mixed media work. Gibbon is really Garold Amadon, father of the harp player in "Mallory in Wonderland."

"But my vision was too limited and my fear of rejection too great for me to see that, so I used the kids as an excuse not to try. I think that is what a lot of us do, especially women, to keep us from taking the chance at being successful. It's too bad I didn't realize this earlier in life."

YOUTH THEATER

Kids act up for a 'Holiday to Remember'

STAFF WRITER

The clown, the doll and the orphan waited for Clarenceville Youth Theatre director Nancy Florkowski to begin rehearsal. From 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. about 50 kids would gather to perfect their singing and acting skills in sessions aimed at producing a mini-musical and two one-acts.

Just in time for the holidays, the Clarenceville Youth Theatre, formerly the Redford Youth Theatre, will present "A Christmas Wish," a scene between little Cosette and Father Christmas from "Les Miserables," and the Hanukkah scene from the "Diary of Anne Frank" in a "A Holiday to Remember" Saturday, Dec. 20, at Clarenceville High School Auditorium.

A Holiday to Remember

What: The Clarenceville Youth Theatre presents "A Christmas Wish" and two one-acts for the family.

When: 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 20.

Where: Clarenceville High School Auditorium, 20155 Middlebelt, (between Seven and Eight Mile Roads), in Livonia.

Cost: Tickets $5 and available by calling (313) 535-8962.

Family entertainment

"It's a great family show because there's something for everyone," said Florkowski, who began teaching drama at Pierce Middle School in South Redford Public Schools in 1987. "It's in the afternoon, it's close to Christmas and it adds a nice touch for Christmas."

Florkowski wrote the script and music for "A Christmas Wish," a children's story about an orphan (Ivy played by Becky Roberts, Livonia) looking for a grandmother who doesn't exist. In a toy shop scene, Holly (Carolyn Lusch, Redford) is the doll not sold for Christmas and eventually ends up in the arms of Ivy, who is adopted by a policeman and his wife. Erin Felix, a 12-year-old student at B. Beck Elementary in the Redford Union Schools, plays one of the unsold clowns in the toy shop.

"I play Abra (as in Abracadabra), a mean clown who's mad because the clown next to him was sold," said Felix.

Members of the Youth Theatre began rehearsing their parts the first week in November. On a Saturday, when other kids enjoy their free time playing in the snow, Felix works on her lines inside the Tinderbox Theatre at Clarenceville High School.

"I'm here because I like to act and sing," said Felix. "I get to express myself. You get to go different places when you act and it's especially good when you don't want to go to school and can act sick."

In the next few days Fred Florkowski will begin designing and crafting the toy shop, policeman's home and village. Florkowski is an old hand at designing scenery. A second-year student in scenic design at Wayne State University, Fred created the sets for "The Lady's Not for Burning" at the Hilberry Theatre and is currently working on "Of Mice and Men" scheduled to

FINE ARTS

Changes at the DIA stabilize the road ahead

BY FRANK PROVENZANO
STAFF WRITER

Seven years after the Detroit Institute of Arts faced reduced hours, trimmed its staff and held fewer exhibits because of state funding cuts, the road to the next century seems much clearer and smoother than just six months ago.

At the end of 1997 — the year when its executive director resigned, when the "Splendors of Egypt" exhibit experienced unprecedented success, and when day-to-day operations were transferred from the City of Detroit — the Detroit Institute of Arts stands at a watershed moment in its nearly 80-year history, according to Maurice Parrish, interim director.

With the Detroit City Council's decision late last month to transfer the management of the museum to the Founders Society, the initial step has been taken to reinvent the perception and stabilize the financial condition of the museum, said Parrish, who assumed the top post after former director Samuel Sachs II resigned in September.

For the past year, the council vacillated over transferring control of the museum. The majority of the nine members were concerned about honoring the city's contract with the union employees and maintaining a residency requirement for museum employees.

Behind the scenes, however, the issue seemed to be the perception that by yielding control of the museum, the council would be giving away the city's cultural treasure to "outsiders."

Apparently, financial and political realities have prevailed. "We're now in alignment with the most typical way art museums operate," said Parrish.

Before the council's move, the DIA was jointly operated by the city and the Founders Society. The new agreement calls for the Founders Society to handle the daily operations. The city's arts commission, a mayoral appointed board, retains its oversight duties.

"We now have a single organization with the ability to get public funds, but not necessarily dependent on them."

Short-term/long-term

In the short term, visitors to the DIA will not notice any changes in hours, admission, exhibits or facilities.

The actual transition of management responsibilities from the city to exclusively the Founders Society — a private nonprofit organization founded in 1920 to support and raise funds for the museum — will take about six months.

Approximately 70 percent of the DIA's $30 million budget is raised by the Founders Society.

Most recently, the St. Louis Art Museum and the Philadelphia Museum of Art made similar management changes. Like the DIA, these museums are publicly owned, but rely heavily on corporate and individual donations for funding.

In the near future, the most pressing concern for the DIA is to make up the $10 million deficit for the current fiscal year. Once that shortage is covered, said Parrish, the museum will establish a long-term plan to identify private funding sources.

"There's a perception that when a museum is 'public' that it doesn't need as much philanthropy. While the DIA is still publicly owned, the public funding just isn't there," said Parrish.

"The private sector has accepted a strong responsibility for providing operating support for the museum."

Besides the Founders Society, the Friends of Modern Art also raises money for acquisitions and programs at the museum.

Some donors grew reluctant because of what they perceived as the inefficient and highly politicized management of the museum. Parrish believes that with the Founders Society controlling museum operations, donors will not only be encouraged, but even more philanthropists will be attracted to the DIA.

In the long term, an economically healthier and more autonomous DIA will mean all the galleries will be reopened and much-needed improvements will be made to the physical museum.

But perhaps the most striking improvement will be to the DIA's reputation.

No longer will other museums wonder about the DIA's future, said Parrish. The result could be that high-profile international exhibits will, once again, look to the fifth largest US population area as a major venue.

In the upcoming year, a more aggressive fund-raising strategy and new executive director are expected to be in place.

A familiar vision

In the past month, MaryAnn Wilkinson has become the curator of 20th century art at the DIA.

Wilkinson became acting curator when Jan Vander Mark was dismissed for allegedly violating the residence requirement in August 1995.

Coincidentally, several weeks ago, Vander Mark was reinstated by a court order to his former position. Vander Mark is challenging the legality of the residence provision in district court.

The 20th-century art department is not alone with two curators. The ancient art and the African oceanic and world culture departments also have two curators.

During the last two years as acting curator, Wilkinson has overseen the highest output of exhibits, lectures and programs of any of the eight curatorial departments at the museum.

By late spring, she expects the modern art galleries will be reinstalled. Currently, those galleries are home to the "Splendors of Egypt" exhibit.

For years, some have criticized the DIA for a lack of contemporary art exhibits. With a healthier financial condition that may change, said Wilkinson. But the DIA's mission, she said, is to serve as an encyclopedic resource, not as a contemporary arts museum.

"Without the groundwork of modern art, you can't understand contemporary work," she said. "We've been limited by funding."

"Changing Spaces," a current contemporary art exhibit at the DIA, reflects Wilkinson's curatorial vision. The free-standing sculptures and installations offer an innovative look at a group of artists who do not typically work with fabric.

"My goal is to try to balance art from the early part of the century along with decorative art, contemporary art and new mediums."

Nelson was working in a bookstore in Northville, when Riopelle walked in the door. The two began work on the book last February. After experimenting with different mediums, they decided colored pencil provided the bright and happy setting in which to tell the story. Riopelle rendered the scenes in a 16- by 24-inch format so as not to lose detail when the art was downsized.

"It's so colorful," said Nelson. "I loved working with Jennifer. We'd talk and talk and Jennifer just knew what I wanted and how to put it on paper."

At one point however, Riopelle found Nelson's incessant phone calls distracting: could she do her laundry or anything else to hurry the process along? That's when Riopelle went up north to work on the illustrations in peace.

"Marian pretty much told me what she wanted, and I took it from there," said Riopelle. "Because if an artist gets distracted by other people's ideas, they lose their momentum."

Nelson learned to have patience and Riopelle completed the art works.

From a book that Nelson began writing on the back of a bank envelope, "Priscilla's Patch" developed into a dream come true. Nelson's 11-year-old daughter Laura was the model for Priscilla in several of the scenes because mom "thought it would set a good example" if Laura could watch the progression of the project first hand.

"I've shown my daughter that if you want something it can happen," said Nelson. "My daughter's been with me on this from the first day. The message for her is, it's good to dream and dream, but you can make dreams come true."

open in the Detroit campus in mid-January.

"This is about two weeks from production," said Fred Florkowski, co-founder of the Youth Theatre with wife Nancy. "Next week they'll have to have their lines and songs memorized. Then you will see character changes. That's part of the fun. They'll become the characters."

The performers, ranging in age from first to 11th grade and living in Livonia, Redford, Farmington, Westland, Garden City, Novi and Detroit, lack the same opportunities as adults when it comes to acting.

"There's not a lot of live theater for kids," said Florkowski, who is acting in the Livonia Redford Theatre Guild production of "Nunsense" (which runs through today). "I wanted to offer children something they couldn't get in school. The Youth Theatre is more of a turning ground. The kids stay. I don't think people realize how important this art is."

Fred does. "Our kids are regulars," he said. "They consistently come back and that's the point because we can build on their knowledge and talent."

Felix continues to benefit from the training, rehearsing and performing in a number of ways.

"Almost everyone here is my friend," said Felix. "Acting in the Youth Theatre has taught me to be more responsible. It helps my memorization."

Tim Amrhein teaches acting and character development and will direct the scene from "Les Miserables." He and other Clarenceville Youth Theatre teachers will play the adult roles.

"It gives them a lot of skills not just acting but articulation, the skills to get up before an audience and speak," said Amrhein, who received a bachelor's degree from Washington State University and is pursuing a master's degree in scenic design at Wayne State University. "It's teaching them to open up and be self-confident. Watching the growth of the kids is most important to me as a teacher."

The Redford Youth Theatre began with 20 children and now trains about 200 students every year. This fall, they moved to Clarenceville because they were frustrated by the shortage of space, but the Clarenceville Youth Theatre's goals remain the same.

Students such as Blake Saleh are proof of their effectiveness. Sandy Saleh enrolled her 9-year-old son in the Youth Theatre after urging from others. She credits Blake's growth to participation in the theater.

"He's always been the class clown," said Saleh. "He dressed up as a girl for Halloween and everyone said he should be in acting. Being in the Youth Theatre has brought up his self-esteem. In a family of three (children), this is his own thing. My older son and daughter were in the Nutcracker a few years ago and he watched from the sidelines. Now it's his turn. I want him to continue because he likes it and to help him not be so distracted and focus more."

The Florkowskis practice (with their own children), what they preach. They've encouraged Jenny, their 15-year-old daughter, and son Jody, 19, to study in the Youth Theatre then pass on their knowledge. Jenny, a student at the Detroit High School for Performing Arts, teaches acting skills at the Youth Theatre. Jody, a sophomore at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, will direct the Anne Frank scene.

Since its founding in 1990, the Clarenceville Youth Theatre has grown beyond its original intent of training young actors. Because of this, Fred and Nancy developed Timberbox Productions as a touring company and affiliate of the theater so students could put their performing skills to use.

The Timberbox Show Choir, directed by Ray Schmidt and formerly known as the Redford Youth Theatre Choir, is an offshoot of the youth theater as well. The choir, which has performed in the Festival of Trees and in "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" at the Fox Theatre, joins the Livonia Civic Chorus in "Making Spirits Bright," a holiday musical directed by Jim Whitten at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 21, at the Clarenceville High School Auditorium in Livonia. Admission is free. For more information, call (313) 525-1447.

Art Beat features various happenings in the suburban art world. Send news leads to Linda Ann Chomin, Arts & Leisure reporter, Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150, or fax them to (313) 591-7279.

HOLIDAY PICK-UP

By the time you've trimmed the tree, addressed your last card, had the kids' pictures taken with Santa, and wrapped all the gifts, you could find your holiday spirits dragging.

The Livonia Civic Chorus comes to the rescue with a musical pick-me-up 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 21 at Clarenceville High School Auditorium, 20155 Middlebelt, south of Eight Mile, in Livonia. And it's all free.

Chorus members have made sure to include something for everyone as the chorus blends new and traditional music along with specialty ensembles and soloists. This year's featured guests will be the Tinderbox Children's Choir, and there's even a surprise visit from Santa. Be sure to bring the entire family.

The chorus began delighting audiences in and around the community more than 30 years ago. At the core of their success is the talented team of Jim Whitten, director and Christine Gach, accompanist. The chorus is featured annually at Greenmead Historical Village, Laurel Park Place, Wonderland Mall, and at a variety of civic functions. Proceeds from these concerts help to sponsor area high school students at the Interlochen International Music Camp. The chorus also presents a Spring Musical at Clarenceville High School in early May.

For more information, call Dick and Ann Ruel at (313) 525-1447.

FINAL DAY FOR HANZEL AND GRETEL

Susan Ann Greenman, a graduate of Livonia Stevenson High School, plays the role of Gretel in the Western Michigan University production of Engelbert Humperdinck's opera "Hanzel and Gretel" 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 14 at the Miller Auditorium in Kalamazoo.

Tickets are available at the box office or by calling (800) 228-9858.

Greenman is a vocal performance major at Western Michigan University.

Other Livonia cast members include Renee Carriere, a Livonia Stevenson High School graduate majoring in vocal performance. Carriere plays Hanzel's and Gretel's mother. Kevin Barton, a Churchill High School graduate and music education major, plays the part of Hanzel's and Gretel's father.

ARTRAIN'S LAST STOP

its home state with a special treat before beginning its 1998 tour of the western states. As a gift to community, Artrain will not charge a fee to bring the train to Ann Arbor today (10 a.m. to 5 p.m., 1100 North Main Street), nor will it charge an admission fee. The event celebrates the close of the 1997 tour and the kickoff of the 1998 tour.

For information, call (800) ART-1971.

"Art in Celebration" is an exhibition featuring The Smithsonian Associates' collections of commissioned art works. Organized by Artrain, The Smithsonian Associates and The Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service, the exhibit has successfully completed the second portion of a three year tour sponsored by the Chrysler Corporation. So far, 175,384 visitors have viewed the exhibit.

In 1997, Artrain made stops in 40 communities throughout the south and midwest including Port Royal, South Carolina and Cotter Arkansas.

RISING STAR MAKES HOLIDAYS BRIGHT

The Rising Star Singers, a 27-member chorus under the direction of Norma Atwood, a voice teacher at Arnoldt Williams Music in Canton, bring a musical touch to the Spirit of Christmas Light Display 6:30-9:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 21 at Domino's Farms in Ann Arbor.

Admission to the light display, continuing 6-10 p.m. nightly through Dec. 31, is $5 per car Monday-Thursday, $7 per car Friday-Sunday. Admission includes the performance by Rising Star Singers in Lobby B of the warehouse where visitors are treated to a winter wonderland, gingerbread house, mini-electric trains, creche display, and Celebration of Trees, 35 trees decorated by area designers.

"It's really nice," said Randy Lee of the events department. "Every year we try to change it and the choirs are a nice addition."

In the last five years, more than 200,000 vehicles have driven through the display raising more than $400,000 for 350 charity organizations in the area.

The light display is a 12-15 minute drive through featuring more than 900,000 lights, several sets telling the Christmas narative, snowflake tunnels, a live Nativity, and holiday trees wrapped in lights on over 300 acres.

Other choirs performing are the Plymouth Church of the Nazarene as a 60 voice living tree (Sunday, Dec. 14), Ladywood High School, Livonia (Friday, Dec. 19), St. Kenneth Church Choirs, Redford (including bells, Saturday, Dec. 20), and Our Lady of Sorrows, Farmington (Monday, Dec. 22).

To reach Domino's Farms take U.S. 23 to exit 41 then follow the signs 1-1/2 miles east on Earhart Road, north of Plymouth Road. For more information, call (313) 930-4430.

Also of note:

The Rising Star Singers hold auditions for youth eight to 18 years 7-8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 14 at Arnoldt Williams Music, 5701 Canton Center Road, Canton. Bring prepared song to sing; accompaniment provided. For more information, call Norma Atwood at (313) 453-7590, ext. 223.

"It's more than a chorus; it's a showcase for talent," said Atwood.

Trinity House Theatre serves up a double bill of holiday one-acts with their performance of Thornton Wilder's "The Long Christmas Dinner," and "The Sheep Thief," a comic adaptation of Ford Ainsworth's "The Second Shepherds Play." Between plays the cast and crew served up bread bowls of delicious soup and mugs of refreshing cider.

The plays are presented through the support of the City of Detroit Cultural Affairs Department, and the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs. One note of warning: as part of the ambiance, some of the audience is seated on bales of hay - so if you suffer from allergies, be advised!

Guest director Thomas Mal-

colm Olson of St. Paul, Minn., has one hit and a miss on his hands. As beloved as Thornton Wilder's plays are, they don't always click. In "The Long Christmas Dinner," the actors cover 90 years and five generations of a family through a series of Christmas dinners that flow non-stop into each other. It was difficult for the audience to determine when one year's dinner ended and another began unless a character exited through "death's door" on stage right. The pacing suffered, and the conversation among the players was painfully slow in a misguided attempt for realism. Done in Thornton Wilder fashion with minimal props and extensive pantomime, the play dragged.

There were some outstanding individual characterizations in the first show - Anessa Thompson as Genevieve, Colleen Hayes as Leonora, and Laura Gumina as Ermengarde.

Once fortified with soup and cider, the second play "The Sheep Thief," picked up the pace and injected some much needed humor into the evening. Scott Martin, P.W. Henry, and Joseph Garreffa were garrulously funny as the three bumbling shepherds, and husband and wife team Dan and Laura Gumina were so much fun as the bad guy sheep thieves that one was almost tempted to cheer them on in their larceny. Beth Temple provided some comic moments as Dame Snap.

Once the sheep rescue was effected and the beleaguered shepherds finally get to sleep, the Angel of the Lord appears in a burst of light, and the disoriented shepherds look like deer caught in the headlights. They do, however, symbolize the reverence and awe of ordinary men when they stumble upon the miracle of the Christ child's birth.

Unfortunately, Trinity House interjected some disturbing symbolism into the peaceful Christmas manger by revealing to audience members invited up to the manager a startling scene: a cradle with a dismembered baby doll juxtaposed against a rough-hewn cross. The foreshadowing of Easter is not the disturbing component; it is the violence embodied in the innocent visage of an infant. While thought-provoking, the symbolism is an unwelcome intruder forced against the joyful vision of Jesus' birth.

HORSES ON BOARD

Carnival Cruise Lines MS Holiday recently became the first cruise ship to offer live video simulcasts of horse races via satellite from some of the world's top thoroughbred tracks. The races are broadcast in the new "Ocean Turf Club," which is located in the ship's casino on Promenade Deck and operates much the same as a pari-mutuel track on land. After selecting the horse of their choice, guests' wagers are transmitted via satellite directly to the host track and confirmation in the form of a betting slip is received in a matter of seconds. Racing odds and payouts are identical to the host track on shore and winning bets are cashed at the ship's casino window.

WINTER ACTIVITIES

Holiday travel to go through the roof

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 /PRNewswire/ -- Santa and his reindeer may have trouble navigating the highways and skyways this holiday as a record 44.5 million people expect to travel 100 miles or more from home during the Christmas-New Year's period, according to AAA.

"In the last five years, Christmas-New Year's travel has increased 26 percent, telling us that the holiday period has become more than just a time to get together with family and friends -- it's a time to vacation, as well," said Graeme Clarke, senior vice president, AAA Travel Related Services.

This year's travel volume is up a healthy 5 percent compared to 1996's 42.3 million holiday trips. Last year's holiday period had the second-highest increase in AAA's 13 years of holiday forecasts -- up 10 percent.

For the 1997 holiday, an estimated 34.9 million people will travel by automobile, light truck or recreational vehicle, up 4 percent compared to 33.6 million the year before.

Holiday travel by airplane, bus, rail or ship is expected to jump 10 percent, to 9.6 million, compared to 8.7 million in 1996.

The greatest number of auto travelers will originate in the West, with 9.1 million people, followed by the Southeast, 9 million; Northeast 5.7 million; Midwest, 5.6 million; Great Lakes, 5.5 million.

Travelers expect to visit the following destinations during the Christmas-New Year's holiday: city, 40 percent; town/rural area, 27 percent; ocean/beach, 13 percent; mountain area, 10 percent; lake area, 2 percent; theme/amusement park, 2 percent; state/national park, 1 percent; other and undecided, 5 percent.

Overnight plans for holiday travelers include: family or friend's, 53 percent; hotel or motel, 34 percent; cabin/condo, 5 percent; camper/trailer/RV/tent, 2 percent; boat/ship, 1 percent; bed & breakfast, 1 percent; other, 2 percent. Four percent were undecided or didn't expect to stay overnight. Statistics exceed 100 percent due to multiple responses.

AAA's holiday travel projections are based on a national travel survey of 1,500 adults conducted by the Travel Industry Association, which does special research for AAA.

AAA is a not-for-profit federation of 97 clubs with more than 1,000 offices providing its 40 million members in the United States and Canada with a full range of travel, insurance, financial and auto-related services.

10 tips for a hassle-free winter getaway

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11 /PRNewswire/ -- If a long car trip this winter to visit Grandma sounds overwhelming, think again. By following AAA's 10 tips for auto travel, your winter getaway can become a vacation to remember.

Make your hotel reservations well in advance. AAA travel agents can help you find the best deal for your budget and itinerary.

Don't leave home without your hotel confirmation number. You may be asked to present it when checking-in. This proof of reservation will come in handy if the property is over-booked.

Plan your route ahead of time. AAA members can visit their local AAA office to receive a Triptik routing, which includes customized directions, related maps and valuable tourism information.

Contact your local police or sheriff's office to inquire about a house watch. Many agencies provide a perimeter check of your home -- such as doors, windows and fences while you are away. Remember to put a temporary hold on your mail and newspaper delivery, or ask a neighbor to pick them up.

Make sure you are well-rested before you leave. Stop every few hours to re-energize -- especially if you are traveling with kids.

Dress in comfortable, loose clothing. Consider dressing in layers to accommodate changes in temperature.

Verify that all passengers are buckled up. Children 12 and under should travel in the back seat and he properly secured in a child safety seat or with lap and shoulder belts.

Pack an emergency kit in your car. The kit should include jumper cables, a flashlight with fresh batteries, blankets, flares or a reflective triangle, an ice scraper and a small shovel.

If you are traveling with your children, pack books or small toys to occupy them during the trip. Let them choose the radio station, or bring along a tape or CD player with headphones.

Travel with a cellular phone -- especially if you are traveling off the beaten track.

The AAA affiliate for Northern California, Nevada, and Utah serves nearly 4 million members with an array of automotive, travel and insurance services.

Ski resorts ready for record-breaking snow

NEW YORK, Dec. 11 /PRNewswire/ -- Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow will likely be the refrain this year as ski resorts in the Rocky Mountains and along the East Coast prepare for record-breaking snowfalls and attendance, Travel Weekly reports.

Thanks to the weather phenomenon El Nino, forecasters and ski resort officials are predicting that winter sports enthusiasts will have a superb season -- especially as early spring approaches.

In a survey of ski resorts, Travel Weekly has learned that:

■ Colorado Ski Country, a non-profit trade association for 24 Colorado ski resorts, is anticipating a "record-breaking ski season."

■ Taos Ski Valley in New Mexico has been the happy recipient of more than 77 inches of snow since mid-October, which prompted the resort to open Nov. 22, the earliest ever.

■ Sunday River Ski Resort in Maine has posted record attendance numbers every El Nino winter since 1980, and they're expecting to do the same this year.

■ And, during the 1986-87 ski season, another El Nino year, Vermont's Mount Snow and Killington resorts broke their attendance records.

According to Travel Weekly, sources speculate that precipitation will likely be concentrated on the second half of the season. If so, it would be a boon for spring skiing, with a longer-than-usual season extending into April and providing skiers with warmer temperatures, uncrowded slopes and late-season specials.

While admitting that El Nino is a bit of a wild card, forecasting services generally agree with the ski resorts' predictions. A meteorologist says, "Trends in the West indicate warmer and snowier winters in the Sierra Nevada."

Michigan ready for wintertime fun

STAFF WRITER

Michigan is the water-winter-wonderland. Michiganders don't get frozen in place when the weather outside turns frightful. They find a growing number of activities based on ice and snow to keep them amused and physically fit.

Up North, the Traverse City area and the Boyne resorts are open for ski enthusiasts - downhill and cross-country, snowmobilers, ice fishermen, snowshoe hikers, snow boarders and dog sled mushers.

And, oh yes, warm fire lovers. Wendy Dwoskin of Farmington Hills admits she doesn't ski, preferring needlepoint and knitting to moguls, but she loves going to Shanty Creek in Bellevue.

"It's the happiest place to be. I've been going since I was 18 years old," she said. "The first time I was there I said to my girlfriend, someday I'll come back and I'll bring my husband."

Wendy and her husband, Mark, a Farmington Hills dentist, make it up to Shanty Creek, winter and summer, seven times a year.

"But I won't buy a condo," she said, "because I have to be in the lodge, that's home. We have a suite named after us."

Though Wendy doesn't ski, her husband and her three adult children, Jeffrey, Jonathan and Jacki, enjoy skiing there, even though they've been to the more demanding slopes out West.

This year the Dwoskins will be celebrating Hanukkah there.

"It's the warmest place to be. Everybody knows you," she said.

Shanty Creek/ Schuss Mountain

The resort is building a new golf course, designed by Tom Weiskopf, and someone got the idea that with all that earth being moved, maybe it would be a good idea to place it on top of Schuss Mountain and increase the vertical for skiers.

So, 300,000 cubic yards of dirt have been moved to the peak to create an additional 40 feet of fun, or about six more turns down the mountain for slalom fans. Also new this winter: four quad chairlifts, 12 additional ski runs, night skiing at Schuss Mountain and quadrupled snow-making capacity.

Shanty Creek has 41 runs total, with the longest run at 5,280 feet. It welcomes snowboarders and also features 30 kilometers of cross-country trails.

Lift tickets for adults range from $26 for a one-day midweek to $88 for a three-day weekend pass. Night skiing is available at Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays for $10 after 5 p.m. and $8 Sundays-Thursdays.

The resort offers a variety of getaway packages from a one-day midweek getaway for $69 to a four-day holiday package for $474. For reservations and information, call 1-800-678-4111.

Crystal Mountain Resort

This 1,500-acre, year-round resort is 28 miles southwest of Traverse City in Thompsonville. It features 25 downhill slopes and 35 kilometers of cross-country trails.

This year it will host the third annual National Women's Ski & Snowboard Festival, Feb. 2-8. Designed for both novice and veteran women skiers and snowboarders, the festival includes instructional clinics, equipment demonstrations and other informational activities.

Crystal Mountain features the new Inn at the Mountain, which opened in October with 29 new suites at the base of the slopes. The Inn is adjacent to the original lodge.

Lift tickets range from $15 for two-hour, after 5 p.m. tickets to $37 for all-day tickets for adults. Cross country trail passes are $10 for all-day. Ski packages range from $69 per person for one-night in a studio to $285 a night for a weekend in the 1-bedroom condo. For reservations and information, call 1-800-Your-MTN.

Sugar Loaf

Sugar Loaf in Cedar offers seven ski lifts, 24 slopes, 24 kilometers of groomed cross-country trails, slopeside lodging, indoor and outdoor pools, snowboarding and tubing.

For the 1997-98 season, a weekend, two-day lift ticket will be $55 per person, with an all-day daily pass (midweek) priced at $28. Tickets are $10 for night skiing after 4 p.m. Sunday through Friday. Lodging and lift tickets are $69 per person for one night of lodging and a lift ticket from 4 p.m. on day of arrival and midweek ski packages that include one nights lodging, one dinner and breakfast and a lift ticket beginning at 4 p.m. on the day of arrival are $79 per person based on double occupancy.

For reservations and information, call 1-800-952-6390.

Boyne

This is the granddaddy of Michigan ski resorts, operating Boyne Mountain in Boyne Falls and Boyne Highland in Harbor Springs. This year it is celebrating its 50th anniversary. For the 1997-98 ski season, the resorts are offering a gold season pass to every 10-year-old child. This season pass affords the children unlimited skiing or snowboarding at both Boyne Highland and Boyne Mountain. To start the kids off right, a specialized "learn to ski" will be offered at $19 for 90 minutes of instruction in skiing or snowboarding and equipment rental.

New this year at Boyne is 10,000 additional feet of snow-making capability and 50 new snow guns.

Boyne Mountain has 41 runs, a 500-foot vertical drop, four quad chairlifts and 35 kilometers of cross-country trails. Boyne Highland features 42 runs with longest more than 5,200 feet and 25 kilometers of groomed cross-country trails. Lift tickets start at $33 for midweek to $187 for a five-day holiday ticket. Ski packages including lodging begin at $88 for a one-day Sunday-Thursdays ski packages up to $830 for a weekend ski package in a luxury suite.

For reservations and information, call 1-800-GO-BOYNE.

Grand Traverse Resort

Grand Traverse doesn't have a mountain, or even a hill, so it's winter emphasis is on cross country.

The resort, recently purchased by KSL Recreation, is offering two wintertime packages. The Winter Escape and the Romantic Escape packages will be available through April 30. The Winter Escape is priced at $139 per person and includes two nights lodging, dinner one evening, breakfast on two days. The Romantic Escape includes champagne at $159 per person.

Grand Traverse includes cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, horse-drawn sleigh rides and ice skating. It also sells lift tickets for nearby Crystal Mountain and Shanty Creek.

For information and reservations, call 1-800-748-0303.

OBSERVER SPORTS SCENE

Whalers on top

The Plymouth Whalers' rookie sensation, David Legwand, ignited a three-goal outburst in the second period that lifted the Whalers to a 5-2 victory over the North Bay Centennials Thursday in North Bay (Ont.).

The win also put Plymouth into a tie for first place in the Ontario Hockey League's West Division with the London Knights. Both teams had 37 points going into the weekend's games; the Whalers (17-8-3) had played one fewer game than London (18-10-1).

Legwand, the OHL's third-leading scorer and the top rookie scorer, scored his 32nd goal of the season with an assist from Yuri Babenko 7:35 into the second period, breaking a 1-1 tie. Just 35 seconds later, Legwand and Babenko assisted on Andrew Taylor goal, his 14th, to put Plymouth up 3-1.

Legwand netted his second goal of the game, and 33rd of the season, at 14:36 of the second period with Babenko drawing his third-straight assist to make it 4-1.

Wildcat tryouts

The Western Wayne Wildcats AAU girls basketball teams will have a series of open tryouts next month for all those interested female players.

•16, 17 and 18 and under players: Tryouts for all three will be from 7:30-9 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 6 at Pioneer Middle School in Plymouth.

•15-and-under: Tryouts will be from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 6 at Pioneer MS in Plymouth.

•14-and-under Blue: Tryouts will be from 7:30-9 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 7 at West Middle School in Plymouth.

•14-and-under Red: Tryouts will be from 7:30-9 p.m. Monday, Jan. 5 at Pioneer MS in Plymouth.

•13-and-under: Tryouts will be from 7:30-9 p.m. Monday, Jan. 12 at Pioneer MS in Plymouth.

Tryouts for 10-and-under, 11-and-under and 12-and-under teams will be announced later. For further information, call Fred Thomann at (313) 459-7315 or Bob Blohm at (313) 459-1763.

Soccer refs

New soccer referee training will be held from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Jan. 31, Feb. 7, Feb. 14 and Feb. 21 at the Canton Township Hall. Those interested in becoming a soccer referee must attend all four sessions.

You must be at least 12 years old to take this class. To register, send your name, social security number and a check for $43 made payable to the Michigan Referee Committee to: P.O. Box 700260, Plymouth, MI, 48170-0945.

Hockey contest

Red Wing fans, take notice. MediaOne and ESPN have joined forces to bring the Hockeymania! Contest to Michigan. The contest runs through March 27 and will include five raffles for hockey and Red Wings-related prizes.

There is no purchase necessary, but the contest is only open to Michigan residents 18 and older. Complete contest details and entry forms are available at all Michigan MediaOne locations.

Prizes include a trip for two to Chicago for the Wings/Blackhawks game Dec. 11; a trip to Vancouver to see the 1998 NHL All-Star game; a bundle of prizes on Jan. 19, including three ESPN2 NHL jackets, 24 "Fire on Ice" T-shirts, and 24 ESPN2 hats; a trip for two to the ESPN world headquarters in Bristol, Conn. Feb. 19; and a trip for two to a 1998 Stanley Cup championship game April 1.

Salem should be a title contender

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

The high school volleyball season is off to a bad start.

But let's not dwell on the negative, without the first kill having been attempted or ace being served. Instead, let's just look for something positive to emphasize.

When talking volleyball and Plymouth Salem, such a search takes no time at all.

Everything — except the number of league games expected to be played — is on the upswing at Salem, according to co-coach Brian Gilles.

"On paper, this team should be the best we ever had — on paper," said Gilles.

Now that's going out on a limb, considering that in the past four years, the Rocks have one — that's right, just one — dual-match loss in the Western Lakes Activities Association. They have constantly been a powerhouse in the league.

But winning the WLAA, while still a major objective, won't be good enough for Salem this year.

"Our goal is to be in the state final, to win the state championship," Gilles declared bluntly. "We've never had that goal here before."

That's because Salem hasn't been able to get past Livonia Ladywood in the state regional tournament before. The Blazers figure to remain as the Rocks' main obstacle between them and a state tournament run — but that's down the road a spell.

First things first. And first on Salem's list is regaining the WLAA championship, which was captured by Walled Lake Central last season.

The Rocks, who finished 40-9-5 overall in '96 and were 10-1 in the WLAA, losing only to Central, have lost just two key contributors from that team: Jenny Storm and Kristie Giddings. Both were solid players, but the Rocks have a lot left.

"The heart of our club is back," said Gilles, who shares Salem's coaching duties with Allie Suffety.

The biggest of the returnees are a pair of seniors, both fourth-year varsity players who were all-WLAA last year: 6-foot-1 middle hitter Amanda Abraham and 5-9 outside hitter Jenny Trott.

Abraham and Trott were instrumental in Salem's success in '96, to be sure; both have ability enough to play at the NCAA Division I level. Indeed, Trott has already signed with Central Michigan, while Abraham must decide between playing basketball and volleyball.

And yet, if there is one particular quality that separates Salem from its WLAA competitors, it's the depth of its talent and experience.

There are six other seniors on the team, and four of them are entering their third year on the varsity: 5-6 setter Kari Flynn; 5-10 outside hitter Kelly Street; 5-6 defensive specialist Jenny Matthews; and 5-9 outside hitter Ellen Stemmer. All four have starting experience.

So, too, do seniors Karen Prosyk, a 5-9 defensive specialist, and Jill Peterson, a 5-9 outside hitter.

Those eight alone would bolster a team's hopes. But Salem has even

A reason to cheer: With such standouts as Jenny Trott (left) and Angie Sillmon (right) returning, Plymouth Salem should challenge for the WLAA title again.

Slicing games: Easier for who?

C.J. RISAK

Really, it's not that big a deal. Anyway, who really cares whether Western Lakes Activities Association volleyball teams play best-of-five games or best-of-three games in their matches?

Any of the WLAA school principals who adhered to that theory and voted for the shorter matches obviously did not put much faith in the "acorn" policy.

You know what I mean: From the acorn grows the mighty oak.

The "oak" in this instance is the maelstrom created in Plymouth and Canton following the seemingly abrupt switch from five-game to three-game matches.

Certain WLAA coaches are upset, and the reason is simple: Their players won't get a chance to play as much.

Plymouth Salem coach Brian Gilles is leading the opposition. "I'm getting madder by the day," Gilles said last Thursday.

What has upset Gilles isn't the change to a best-of-three format. "I don't have a problem with that," he insisted.

What bothers him is the timing. "Why didn't they let us know in August so we could adjust our schedules?" he asked.

Big swing: Stephanie Chefon, one of four returnees for Canton, figures to be their strongest hitters.

Chiefs' coach has big plans

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

A lot has changed with Plymouth Canton's volleyball team.

Let's start at the top: Gone is coach Steve Anderson, who was forced to resign after just two years due to commitments in his full-time job at the Plymouth Parks and Recreation department.

It was a decision Anderson regretted having to make, particularly after guiding the Chiefs to the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division title and a 34-10 record last season.

His loss is substantial. But so is the loss of eight seniors, including Jessica Orleman, an all-conference selection, Nikki Kovachevich, Jenny Sikora, Donna Logsdon, Brandi Bernard, Megan Weller, Jessica Bradley and Courtney Wells.

Which means first-year coach Cynthia Montgomery faces a bit of a rebuilding job. She does, however, face it with great optimism.

Indeed, despite the losses to graduation and Canton's previous reputation for futility, Montgomery believes her team at least possesses the ability to challenge for the division title once again.

"My goal is to reach the state finals," she said. "Realistically, I would like them to accomplish what they did last year."

Montgomery has no head coaching experience, but she knows the game. A Detroit Cass Tech graduate, she attended Wayne Memorial as a sopho-

BASKETBALL

A valiant Plymouth Canton comeback was derailed in the final seconds of Friday's basketball game when Monroe's Jeremy Griffin drained a three-pointer with about 12 seconds to play, giving the Trojans a 43-41 win at Canton.

"It was a great basketball game. We played hard," said Canton coach Dan Young, his team now 0-2. "I'm proud of our kids — they gave a great effort, they didn't give up."

"They played their butts off."

Free throws ended up playing a major role in the Canton defeat. The Chiefs opened up a 13-6 lead after one quarter, but foul problems — Eric Larsen and Scott Samulski each had three in the first half — helped Monroe (now 2-0) to a 14-3 second-quarter scoring advantage and a 20-16 halftime lead.

The Trojans' cushion grew to 11 in the third quarter before Canton rallied, narrowing the gap to 34-29 entering the final period.

A three-pointer by Joe Cortellini — he led the Chiefs with 20 points — tied the game at 35-35, setting the stage for the dramatic finish. Larsen made 1-of-2 free throws with just over a minute remaining to put Canton up, 41-40.

The Chiefs then got what they wanted: a defensive stop. On their next possession, Samulski was fouled, but he missed both free throws. The Chiefs made just 7-of-14 (50 percent) from the line in the game; Monroe hit 9-of-18 (50 percent).

Griffin, who led Monroe with 14 points (including four three-pointers), didn't miss, although his game-winner was contested.

Dan McLean added 15 points for Canton.

"I'm glad we're playing these tough teams now," said Young. "It'll only make us better later in the year, when we really want to be."

A.A. Huron 60, Salem 54: Everything was going Plymouth Salem's way Friday at Ann Arbor Huron — for three quarters.

Then the wheels fell off. The Rocks took a 50-39 lead into the final period, then took just six shots at the basket as the host River Rats outpointed them 21-4 over the last eight minutes to win going away.

"We folded, we didn't play very well, we threw the ball away," said Salem coach Bob Brodie. "We didn't handle the pressure very well, and we didn't finish."

The loss left the Rocks winless after two games. Huron is 2-0.

The game didn't start that way. "We played better (than in the season-opening loss at Monroe) for the first 26 minutes," said Brodie. "I was happy. We were inspired, for three quarters anyway. Then we got tentative."

"In the fourth quarter, we looked like we did against Monroe."

Andy Power, who led the Rocks with 19 points, got them off quickly, scoring nine points in the first quarter as Gilles wanted to postpone the change until next year; that would allow him to alter his schedule, perhaps add another tournament or two.

Here's the root of the problem: The Michigan High School Athletic Association allows 18 playing dates in volleyball. A team can play five matches in a tournament on a Saturday or a single match on a Wednesday — it wouldn't matter. Each would count as one playing date.

Teams competing in the WLAA have 11 of their playing dates absorbed by league matches. Last year, when matches were best-of-five games, a team was guaranteed at least 33 games (that's if a team played the minimum number of games in every match).

With the format altered, at least 11 games are trimmed from each WLAA team's schedule.

That means fewer opportunities for players to see action. And as Gilles pointed out, "Shouldn't we be doing what's best for the kids?"

Tom Johnson, the principal at Northville HS who serves as chairman over the WLAA, disputed Gilles on several counts. The issue has been researched, Johnson maintained.

"The motivating factor behind this was that we were not consistent with the state, which is best-of-three," Johnson said.

True, in the state tournament matches are best-of-three. But gaining experience for a successful run in the state tournament is a necessity, and the only way to gain playing experience is by playing.

When asked if he thought playing opportunities would diminish with the reduction in games, Johnson said, "We did a study on this and found the best players kept playing."

It didn't matter if it were a best-of-five or best-of-three, for the majority of the WLAA schools lineups and substitution patterns did not change substantially, he said. Johnson added that none of this should have come as a surprise; coaches knew of the study, which had been ongoing for more than a year.

Which is why he found no reason to delay implementing the switch in formats: "What would be the wisdom in putting it off for a year? It has no effect on the current schedule."

The study's been done, Johnson said. The votes have been cast. Case closed.

"That's a lie," was Gilles' response. "I want to see his documentation. That's just not true. There was no study done."

Understand, Gilles has a rare opportunity confronting him. His Salem teams have won three of the last four WLAA titles, and had a streak of 43-straight league match victories snapped by Walled Lake Central last season.

He returns most of a team that went 10-1 in the league in '96. The Rocks are heavy favorites to win it again. But Gilles and his team are eyeing bigger prizes.

"My goal is to be a state champion," the Salem coach said. His current team has the potential, but now will it be properly prepared?

Gilles said state title contenders like Portage Northern and Temperance Bedford play 25 more matches a year than Salem does. That's 25 more chances at improvement.

Whatever Johnson thinks, this isn't the end of it. Parents of players at both Plymouth Canton and Salem have sent letters protesting the switch; before a reason for the change was presented by Johnson, those parents had been led to believe time was a determining factor.

Matches were taking too long. Players were getting home too late.

The parents disputed that. Best-of-five matches didn't end any later than boys basketball games, they insisted. Besides, starting times had been moved up 30 minutes to address any potential problem.

So if time were the reason for the change, if it was because some felt the girls were getting home too late, then this becomes a Title IX issue.

A stretch? Perhaps. But know this: According to Gilles, legal action to prevent the change, which won't go into effect until the first WLAA matches are played Jan. 12, is a definite possibility.

"Two-out-of-three can be solved," the Salem coach concluded. "But why do it now? Why not wait so we can come up with a plan where we can still be competitive in the state tournament?"

Why not indeed?

more, then played in college at Jackson State in Mississippi, where she was an all-conference player for two years.

"I think the potential is definitely there," Montgomery said of this year's Chiefs. "We've got some great hitters — the hitting is there, the serving is there, the passing is getting there."

Even with the substantial losses, Canton has four seniors returning with considerable experience.

Amy Plagens, a 5-foot-10 middle/outside hitter, is "one of our best all-around players," according to Montgomery, and Stephanie Chefon, a 5-11 middle hitter, "is our best hitter." Christy Even, a 5-8 outside hitter, and Robin Hamilton, a 5-6 setter and all-around player, figure to fill key roles on the team.

The rest of the team, while not as experienced, has potential promising enough to keep Montgomery's hopes high.

Angie Germain is a 5-4 sophomore setter; Elizabeth Elsner is a 5-7 junior middle-hitter; Carrie Kovachevich is a 5-8 junior outside hitter; Jennifer Currier is a 5-8 junior outside hitter; Robin Devos is a 5-6 junior defensive specialist; Erica Hancz is a 5-5 senior defensive specialist; Camille Lynn is a 5-9 junior middle hitter; and Jennifer Sciberras is a 5-9 junior outside hitter.

"If there is something they need to work on, it would be their defense," said Montgomery. "Their coverage on blocks and the opposition's hitters . . . Everything else is there, or is getting there."

While the outlook seems promising, Montgomery admits she isn't all-that-familiar with the WLAA. Plymouth Salem is the team everyone is picking to win the championship, with defending champ Walled Lake Central and Northville also in the hunt.

And Canton? Will the Chiefs surpass last year's accomplishments and challenge for the league title?

"I think so," replied Montgomery. "We'll know more on Saturday (Canton opened its season yesterday at the Allen Park Tournament; the Chiefs are the defending tournament champs)."

Should Montgomery's coaching skills match her playing ability, it's a good bet Canton won't even miss a step.

Salem volleyball from page E1

Angie Sillmon, a 5-10 junior middle hitter, was all-Lakes Division last season. Laine Sterling, a 5-2 junior setter, started as a sophomore. And Andrea Frum, a 6-2 junior outside hitter, provides great hitting and blocking potential.

Then there's Chris Philips, a 6-foot junior middle/outside hitter, and Wendy Donica, a 5-6 junior back row player with a "tremendous serve," according to Gilles. And Amanda Suder, a 5-6 sophomore outside hitter who also has a great serve and was a letterwinner as a freshman.

"We expect great things from this team," said Gilles. "They've been (on top) before. The question is, do they want to be there again?"

Competition within the league is expected to come from Northville, Livonia Stevenson, defending-champ Central, Livonia Franklin, and defending Western Division champ Plymouth Canton.

Can any of them keep Salem from reclaiming the WLAA crown? Perhaps. One thing for sure — the Rocks will give them a goal to shoot for.

Salem opened up a 21-13 lead. Huron closed to within 29-24 at the half, but a 21-15 Salem advantage in the third period made it an 11-point game entering the final period.

Free throws again played a significant role. Huron, despite trailing most of the game, was 13-of-21 from the line (62 percent) to 3-of-5 (60 percent) for Salem. In the fourth quarter, the Rams made 6-of-11; the Rocks were 0-for-1.

In two games thus far this season, Salem is 14-of-19 from the line (74 percent); the Rocks' opponents are a combined 32-of-46 (70 percent).

Salem's 22 turnovers against Huron — which had 13 — didn't help, either. The Rocks were also outrebounded, 27-23.

Bhavin Patel added 11 points to Salem's cause. Matt Mair totaled eight, with Jeff McKian getting four points and a team-high six rebounds.

The Rams were paced by Levar Sommerville's 17 points, seven of those coming in the fourth quarter. Ramal Hunter finished with 14 and Nate Johns scored 11, six in the fourth.

PCA 72, Academy of Detroit 69: Scott Carty and Chris Brandon scored 19 points apiece to lead Plymouth Christian Academy into the final of its own Eagle Kickoff Classic Friday.

PCA, now 2-0, met Southfield Franklin Road Christian for the title Saturday.

The Eagles took a 51-46 lead into the fourth quarter against Academy of Detroit, thanks to three free throws by Jordan Roose in the closing seconds of the third, then held on with some solid free throw shooting.

PCA was 22-of-31 from the line (71 percent) for the game, including 11-of-13 (85 percent) in the final period.

Derrick Isensee added 16 points and 11 rebounds for the Eagles, and Nick Brandon totaled 10 points. For Academy of Detroit (1-1), Jermaine Coleman scored 16 points and Anthony Paige had 14.

Dearborn 70, Franklin 62: Highly-regarded Dearborn held off a late Livonia Franklin rally to earn the victory Friday at Franklin.

The visiting Pioneers, now 2-0 overall, roared out to a 19-4 lead and hung on for the win.

Franklin, which slipped to 1-1, pulled within four during the final quarter but couldn't get any closer.

"Their defense had a lot to do with it," Franklin coach Dan Robinson said. "They came out and really overplayed us. I think we were trying to be too perfect in our offense instead of just being players."

Junior guard Colin Wilkinson led the winners with 19 points, while Jason Herrick contributed 12 (including three dunks). Colin Point-producer: Finding scorers has been a problem for Canton, but Dan McLean has done his share — he scored 15 points against Monroe.

O'Donnell added 11.

Eddie Wallace, who was six of six from the free throw line, led Franklin with 14 points. Nick Mongeau and Jay Fontaine each chipped in with 12.

Lakeland 80, Churchill 71: Down 15 heading into the final quarter Friday, White Lake-Lakeland (1-0) surged back with a 35-11 run to earn the non-league victory at Livonia Churchill (0-2).

Don Bohr led the winners with 22 points, while 6-foot-8 Chris Martin added 13 and 6-6 Jason Macs contributed nine.

Corey Cook led Churchill with 14 points, while Justin Jakes and Randall Boboige added 10 apiece.

"The kids worked their tails off and played much better as a team tonight," said Churchill coach Rick Austin, whose team lost Tuesday in the season opener to Dearborn, 78-54. "But give Lakeland credit, they kept coming and never quit."

"And we couldn't slow the tempo down to put the game away."

Fordson 53, Stevenson 36: Renault Arseneau notched 12 points and Ryan Joyce added 11 Friday to lead host Dearborn Fordson (2-0 overall) to the non-league triumph over Livonia Stevenson.

Mike Voutsinas scored nine points for the Spartans.

Annapolis 68, Lutheran Westland 54: On Friday, Lutheran Westland couldn't hold a one-point halftime lead as host Dearborn Heights Annapolis scored the non-league win.

The Warriors, who dropped to 0-2 on the season, led 30-29 at intermission but the Cougars poured in four 3-pointers to highlight a 22-13 third-quarter run.

Lutheran Westland, minus four players (three because of disciplinary reasons), could not get any closer than eight points the rest of the way.

"We ran out of gas," Lutheran Westland coach Dan Ramthun said.

Brad Woehlke scored 20 points in a losing cause. Teammate Scott Randall added 11.

Mike Gierucki led Annapolis with 20.

Lady Crusaders nip Tartars

What Madonna University's women's basketball team had accomplished the past few weeks, winning five of its first seven games, was impressive to say the least.

But win No. 6, last Thursday at Madonna against Wayne State, was perhaps the best of the bunch.

The reason: There wasn't a single star lighting the fire for the Fighting Crusaders. Indeed, the player who had led them through the early portion of their schedule had been point guard Katie Cushman.

But one player does not make a championship-caliber team, and in its 78-75 triumph over WSU Madonna proved it wasn't a one-person team.

Indeed, Cushman wasn't on her game most of the night. She took just one shot from the floor, scoring seven points and dishing out four assists in less than 18 minutes of playing time (she had just two fouls).

Others, notably Michelle Miela, picked up the slack admirably. Four Crusaders reached double-figures in scoring, with Dawn Pelc leading the way with 17 points (on 8-of-12 shooting) and six assists.

The Tartars (4-4) took a 73-72 lead with 1:42 left in the game on a Shay Lewis layup. But Madonna retaliated, with Lori Enfield — who came off the bench to net 14 points and grab 13 rebounds — scoring a basket with 1:24 remaining.

The Crusaders repelled WSU's ensuing counterattack and, in the final 37 seconds, three free throws from Chris Dietrich and another from Mary Murray iced the victory.

Dietrich and Murray each scored 15 points, with Murray getting 10 rebounds and two steals and Dietrich making three steals.

The Tartars were led by Lewis' 19 points. Britta Anderson, a Plymouth Canton graduate, contributed 15 points and eight rebounds, and Fawne Allossery had 14 points and eight boards. Sarah Warnke, another Canton grad, chipped in with eight points and seven rebounds. Shooting proved paramount in the game. Madonna made 29-of-51 from the floor (56.9 percent) while WSU was 29-of-74 (39.2 percent).

Wayne St. 101, Madonna 61 (men): Examine the totals from Wednesday's game at Wayne State, and you'll see that Madonna was outplayed in every facet.

The Tartars shot better, rebounded better, had fewer turnovers, more assists and fewer fouls as they pushed their record to 5-4. Madonna slipped to 1-10.

Kevin Tate hit 9-of-11 of his floor shots to lead WSU with 22 points. Tony Goins (from Westland John Glenn) added 18 points and four assists. Terrance Porter notched 14 points and five assists and Tim Herron totaled 13 points.

Madonna's only double-figure scorer was Nick Hurley (Plymouth Canton), with 13 points. Hurley also had four steals and three assists. Eric Giovannini (Livonia Stevenson) and Mark Hayes added nine points apiece.

Shooting woes

Zebras reign despite errant aim

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Wayne Memorial won the battle of the guys who couldn't shoot straight.

The host Zebras improved to 2-0 on the young boys basketball season with a 56-50 Friday over rival Westland John Glenn.

Wayne won despite hitting only 18 of 54 shots from the floor (33 percent).

Glenn, however, found the rim with less consistency, making just 11 of 52 shots (21 percent).

"It's always nice to win even though we had to slug it out," Wayne coach Chuck Henry said. "Neither team team executed their offense, but both teams played hard and we were fortunate to have that little lead and they weren't able to catch us."

Despite its frigid shooting, Glenn hung around and wiped out some of the bad memories from last March when Wayne's 24-2 state Class A semifinal team, led by Lorenzo Guess, administered a 92-46 thrashing of the Rockets in the Garden City district tourney.

Glenn has only beaten Wayne twice since 1981, the only victories coming during the 1994 season when Guy Rucker (Iowa's starting center) and Tony Goins (Wayne State's top scorer) scored two wins over the Zebras en route to the quarterfinals.

Senior guard Brian Williams, a key performer off the bench last year for Wayne, led the Zebras with 21 points.

BASKETBALL

"We really don't put any expectations on Brian than anyone else on the team," Henry said. "We just ask him to play hard, play smart and be a team leader. And he as the talents and ability to lead us."

Wayne's only returning starter from a year ago, senior forward Karl Calloway, added 11, while senior guard Reddick Borkins came off the bench to score nine.

Sophomore guard Eric Jones scored 16 for Glenn, while 6-7 sophomore center Yaku Moton added 14.

Without Guess, who led Wayne to 84 wins over the last four years, the playing field appears to be more level this season, but it couldn't prevent Glenn from falling to 0-2 on the year.

"We didn't catch the ball, we missed some putbacks and some free throws," Glenn coach Mike Schuette. "But I'm pleased their pressure didn't give us a whole lot of problems. (The Rockets had 16 turnovers to Wayne's 11.)"

"It's going to be there. I'm pleased with the way we played. We've improved from the first game and all I ask is that we improve each time out. We just have to feel comfortable instead of feeling nervous."

Wayne led 13-9 after one quarter and 26-22 at halftime.

With 2:03 left in the third period, Robert Price's hoop gave Wayne its largest margin of the night, 40-27. The Zebras outscored Glenn 16-11 in the third to go ahead 42-32.

In the decisive fourth quarter, Wayne spread out its offense and held Glenn off by making 12 of 14 free throws. The Zebras were 19 of 27 from the line overall, while the Rockets hit 16 of 25.

"Early in the game we had people shoot that shouldn't have," Schuette said. "We didn't go to the big men soon enough."

"But we're young. Everybody talks about what Wayne lost from last year, but we only have two back and the rest have only JV experience. But eventually it's going to be there."

Glenn returns to action Tuesday at home against Adrian, while Wayne is off until Friday when it begins its brutal Mega Conference Red Division slate at Ypsilanti.

"We're going to battle through and try to get better," Henry said. "But the key problem is our schedule."

Harrison's comeback clips Lapeer East

SCOTT DANIEL
STAFF WRITER

It wouldn't be unfair to say Farmington Hills Harrison stole a 43-38 basketball victory from Lapeer East Friday night.

The Hawks (2-0) trailed most of the fourth quarter and were down by as much as six points. But they closed the game with a 9-0 run to beat the winless Eagles before a large and loud home crowd.

"These guys have been doing this to me for three years," coach Mike Teachman said. "It's called, 'refuse to lose.'"

Harrison trailed 38-32 with 3:25 to go in the game. Ricky "The Truth" Bryant began the Hawks' rally with a basket that was followed by a low post hoop from Andy Burt.

After a Lapeer East turnover, Matt Derocher nailed a three-pointer to give the Hawks a 39-38 lead with 41 seconds left. Dave Pesci and Kareem Smartt each made a pair of free throws in the final seconds to give Harrison its five-point victory.

Teachman pointed to the play of Brian Lewis for sparking the comeback. His hustle in recovering several loose balls "got everyone else started."

Jerrad Johnson led Harrison with nine points while Jared Hopkins and Derocher each had eight. Glenn Pakulak had 12 points for Lapeer East.

Friday's win wasn't a classic for Farmington Hills. Neither team, in fact, played particularly well.

Teachman said the Hawks simply need practice and playing time to get familiar with each other.

"We're still not in condition," he added.

That limited his rotation to about eight players. Teachman said he would like to have a rotation of about 11 players eventually.

The coach also wasn't happy with the Hawks' passing. But he added that Lapeer's defense had something to do with the number of turnovers his team made.

"We were trying to make passes an average defensive team would give us," said Teachman. "But they weren't average."

After an 11-11 first quarter, Farmington Hills offensive woes surfaced in the second. Sloppy ball handling and a few errant passes put the Hawks into 24-19 halftime hole.

"We played right into their hands by taking jump shots and watching," Teachman said.

The coach said he told his team to attack inside in the second half. Harrison did just that and opened the third quarter with a 7-0 run.

Smartt connected on a drive to the basket and Hopkins swished a jump shot to make it 24-23 at the 6:18 mark. A three-pointer from Johnson gave Farmington Hills a two-point lead.

It didn't last, however, as Lapeer rallied to take a 29-28 lead by the end of the period.

A Johnson basket gave the Hawks a 30-29 lead to start the fourth quarter. But the Eagles put together a 7-0 run to take seemingly take control.

With hustle and determination, the Hawks were able to comeback and take the game. Teachman was proud of the effort his team gave.

"It was amazing," he said. "Refuse to lose."

Clutch free throws lead Trojans to victory over Aggies

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Lionia Clarenceville junior guard Albert Deljosevic banked in a desperation half-court shot as the third quarter ended in Friday's boys basketball game at Redford St. Agatha.

The way things had been going for Clarenceville senior center Justin Villanueva, his two free throws with five seconds left seemed just as unlikely.

But Villanueva, who missed five of his first six free throw attempts, sank both ends of a one-and-one to break a 49-49 tie and give the Trojans a 51-49 victory before a sellout crowd.

"I was so nervous my first couple of free throws and my last two I wasn't nervous at all," said Villanueva, who scored 19 points and grabbed a team-high 11 rebounds. "I either made them or I didn't. That wasn't me that won this game. That was Clarenceville High School."

Clarenceville coach Rick Larson must have felt like a year's worth of suspense was packed into this game — the Trojans' season-opener.

The meeting is turning into quite a rivalry. Larson remembers opening the season three years ago here with a 92-90 double overtime loss.

"Nineteen more of these games and I'll be dead," Larson joked.

"You'll be writing my obituary."

Villanueva's heroics came only four seconds after St. Agatha had a chance to break the tie with a pair of free throws. But the Aggies missed both and Villanueva got the rebound and was fouled in the backcourt as he pushed the ball up the court.

After the missed free throws by St. Agatha, the best Aggies' coach John Fenbert could hope for was overtime.

The decisive free throws handed the Aggies their first loss after a 67-50 victory in their season opener three days earlier against Dearborn Heights Fairlane Christian.

"We said not to foul number 4 (Deljosevic) — we didn't want to foul anyone in that situation," Fenbert said.

Villanueva scored 15 points in the first half, staking Clarenceville to a 29-24 halftime lead. Deljosevic had 12 of his game-high 22 points in the second half, including a three-point shot early in the fourth quarter to give the Trojans a 47-45 lead after they had surrendered the advantage in the third quarter.

The rest of the Trojans combined for 10 points, including four by Rick Barack to go with seven rebounds.

"We knew they had a big guy (Villanueva) and they had a good guard (Deljosevic)," Fenbert said. "They were the two that beat us, basically. Hand it to them. We made a run on them and they didn't fold."

Deljosevic made six of 13 shots from the field and none were bigger than his 40-foot heave before the buzzer sounded at the end of the third quarter that cut the Trojans' deficit to 43-42.

The basket came at the end of an 9-0 run by St. Agatha that had given the Aggies their first lead since early in the game, 43-39.

"Al is awesome," Villanueva said. "That was the turning point of the game."

Deljosevic said he thought the shot had a chance to go in. He turned to the crowd and extended his arms in celebration, before falling to the ground like a soccer player does after scoring a big goal.

"Coach wants the ball to me at the end of the quarters to be the decision maker," Deljosevic said. "I looked at the clock before I got the ball and let it fly. I may be a little bit of a showboat but I'm not out there to put anyone down. I'm just for my team."

St. Agatha senior center Ian Wincher, playing despite a hip pointer, had 16 points and 12 rebounds, including seven in the first quarter. Jonny Lomibao and Wesley Shaw added 11 points.

The Aggies had a 33-32 rebounding advantage with Shaw and Eric Jones grabbing six each to support Wincher.

"We're proud of Ian," Fenbert said. "If it was an injury that could have gotten worse by playing we wouldn't have played him. But we could have sat him out easily."

Clarenceville made 20 of 45 shots from the floor and St. Agatha was only 18-59.

Larson wasn't happy with Clarenceville committing 24 turnovers to St. Agatha's 16, but he felt secure whenever Deljosevic touched the ball.

"I'm excited about the team, the electricity out there," Larson said. "As a younger player, Albert didn't always focus his energy in a positive way. He plays with fire and heart."

Old Timers put on great show

Points to ponder: How come every time it snows like last Wednesday, most schools are closed, but all bowling centers remain open?

All men are the same, they just have different faces so you can tell them apart. What makes men chase women they have no intention of marrying? The same urge that makes dogs chase cars they have no intention of driving.

It was not so funny at the 67th Annual Old Timers Tournament Nov. 29 at Thunderbowl Lanes.

It took a few days before the results were in hand, but all kidding aside, Larry Paladino of the Birmingham Eccentric beat me for the first time. Not just once, but all three games.

Once again, this event featured the return home of the great Joe Norris, who at 89, can still outbowl most of us earthlings. Norris considers the Detroit Old Timers event as the best one-day tournament in the nation.

Now a resident of San Diego, Norris holds many all-time bowl-

Joe Sytniak, 56, of Dearborn Heights took the overall championship with games of 226-232-278, a series of 736.

In the under-50 category the winner was Barry Oderfer, 49, of Fraser 206-254-247/707 with 44-year-old Garden City's Rick Eiermann runner-up with a 267-241-174/682. Doug Evens, 49, of Lincoln Park finished third.

In the 50-59 group, Tom Hay, 58, of Detroit prevailed with 224-248-246/718, followed by Lou Ivancik, 56, of Wyandotte and Neil Beckman, 51, of Southfield.

The 60-64 group was won by George McNair (63) 248-236-207/691 followed by Brownstown's Ernie Segura and Hall of Famer Fred Vitali, 60, of Farmington Hills.

The 65-69 bowlers saw Jerry Cole, 68, of Taylor roll games of 223-247-232/702, followed by John Bevak, 66, of Grosse Ile and Lloyd McNabb, 65, of Warren.

In the 70-74 category, it was Gene Merritt, 72, of Jackson who topped Gabe Fazekas of Dearborn and Loren Dean, 72, from Woodhaven.

The 75-79 set featured William J. Rose, 77, of Farmington shooting 222-223-182/627, beating out John E. Bonino Jr., 76, of Warren and Walter Reaume, 75, from Trenton

The top age category is 80-and-over with Hall of Famer Joe Paulus, 80, of Bloomfield Hills taking the top spot with 197-203-210/610, nosing out Larry Murphy, 85, of Allen Park and the "Mechanic" Jarv Woehlke, 84, of Dearborn.

The highest game in the event was a 269 by Phil Insalco of Dearborn Heights and the oldest bowler was Lewis Saad, 94, and going strong.

Give a lot of credit to these old timers.

The lane conditions were dry and difficult as attested to by my own scores, which are not fit to print at this time.

Even Gordon Bickle could have beaten me.

A nice dinner topped off the event and a good time was had by all, including Larry Paladino.

•The third annual Senior/Youth Challenge will be Saturday, Feb. 7 at Mayflower Lanes in Redford.

Known as the "Match of the Ages," it will feature the senior bowlers from the Mayflower Wednesday Senior Classic against top youth bowlers from leagues at Mayflower and Beech Lanes.

Opening ceremonies begin at 10:30 a.m. (open to public). For more information, call Ron Lancaster at (313) 595-1155.

Deer firearms harvest falls

Preliminary deer harvest estimates by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources indicates that the 1997 firearms harvest fell slightly short of last year's total and this year's pre season expectations. The DNR predicted a harvest of 290,000 for the firearms season. The results of an annual survey of southbound hunter traffic during the recently completed 16-day firearms season showed an estimated harvest of 282,000 white-tails. The final harvest numbers, which are determined by a mail survey of licensed hunters, won't be available until July.

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

"We recognized early that the 1997 harvest would be lower than last year and these figures confirm our expectations," said DNR deer specialist John Urbain. "We definitely are encouraged by the harvest in the southern Lower Peninsula. The antlerless harvest of 58,000 deer in this part of the state was up 22 percent over last year."

The buck harvest in the southern Lower Peninsula (Zone III) was down from 74,360 last year to an estimated 72,000 this year. Urbain attributes this decline to the large antlerless harvest in southern Michigan and increased amounts of standing corn in the fields throughout the firearms season.

In the northern Lower Peninsula (Zone II) the buck harvest slipped from 77,350 last year to 68,000 this fall. The overall harvest in Zone II was down from 116,325 in 1996 to 106,000 this year.

Many hunters in the northern Lower commented that there was a lower incidence of buck rubs and scrapes. The possible reduction of buck activity may have resulted in less movement of the deer.

"The herd in this part of the state was also noticeably older than in past years," said Urbain. "There may have been fewer firearms deer hunters afield due to early reports of lower deer numbers, but hunters were seeing deer and hunting longer."

The harvest in the Upper Peninsula (Zone I) was down from a record 85,118 in 1995 to an estimated 56,000 this year, which is a direct reflection of back-to-back severe winters, which caused many young deer to starve to death. There was a significant drop in the number on one-and-a-half-year-olds harvested this year because many deer in that age class were lost last winter.

Despite the drop, this was the seventh largest harvest on record. The top six harvests were 334,940 in 1989, 319,289 in 1995, 316,400 in 1990, 299,319 in 1996, 294,310 in 1988 and 293,710 in 1991.

"Deer season is far from over and we anticipate hunters will use the additional late season opportunities to harvest deer," said Becky Humphries, acting chief of the DNR's Wildlife Division. "A significant number of deer are expected to be taken during the remaining deer seasons, especially antlerless deer on private land in agricultural areas as the corn harvest continues."

Successful hunters

Success reports continue to filter in from Observer & Eccentric readers. If you or a hunting friend had a successful season let me know. My phone and fax numbers and mailing address are listed at the bottom of this column.

• The "bug" is back for Mike Manooogian.

Outdoor Calendar

hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Wednesdays through Sundays. Pontiac Lake Recreation Area is located at 7800 Gale Rd. Call (810) 666-1020 for more information.

ORTONVILLE RECREATION

Ortonville Recreation Area in Ortonville has rifle, pistol and shotgun shooting facilities. Range hours through Dec. 22 are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday through Sunday. The Ortonville Recreation Area is located at 5779 Hadley Rd. Call (810) 693-6767 for more information.

POINTE MOUILLEE

The rifle and pistol range at the Pointe Mouillee State Game Area in Rockwood has been closed due to environmental concerns. Call (313) 379-3820 for more information.

CLASSES

FLY TYING

Bueters Outdoors in Northville still has openings for its fall fly tying classes. Call (248) 349-3677 for more information.

OUTDOOR CLUBS

SOLAR

The School for Outdoor Leadership, Adventure and Recreation, a non-profit organization interested in promoting the appreciation of outdoor activities, meets at 7:30 p.m. on the first Tuesday of each month at the Colony Hall in Southfield. Call (248) 988-6658 for more information.

ARCHERY

JUNIOR OLYMPICS

The Oakland County Sportsman Club in Clarkston offers a Junior Olympic Archery Development Program beginning at 1 p.m. on Sundays. Call (810) 623-0444 for more information.

JUNIOR ARCHERS

A weekly program for junior archers begins at 9 a.m. Saturdays at Detroit Archers in West Bloomfield. Call (248) 661-9610 or (313) 835-2110 for more information.

METROPARKS

Most Metropark programs are free while some require a nomi-

"I was a dedicated deer hunter for many years, but lost interest for the past three years and spent my Novembers surf fishing in Florida," explained the Bloomfield Hills resident. "However, this past year my two sons, Michael and Ralph, begged me to join them for deer hunting up north."

Now, Manooogian is wondering if his sons will invite him back next year since he shot the only buck in camp this year — a "big" 6-pointer.

"The bug is back and I'm already preparing for next season," said Manooogian. "Yes, I'm inviting my two sons."

• Art Duprey has been waiting 24 years to shoot a buck big enough to hang on the wall of his family's cabin. The wait ended this past season as the Livonia hunter shot a beautiful 8-point buck at 7:25 a.m. on November 16th while hunting on the family property in Iosco County.

• Clarkston's Robert Bonham filled his first firearms tag on opening day when he dropped a 3-point while hunting state land in Emmet County. He was hunting private land in Cheboygan County on Nov. 28th when he filled his second tag by bagging an 8-point.

• Darrell Hagen tagged his first buck in 10 years of hunting when he shot a 5-point on Nov. 29. The Troy resident was hunting in a fence row along a cut corn field in Oakland County.

• Lake Orion residents Steve Sims and Todd Carrothers each arrowed a doe on the opening weekend of the bow season while hunting on private land in Ogemaw County.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

OAKLAND COUNTY PARKS

COUNTY PARK REQUIREMENTS

Advanced registration is required for all nature programs at Oakland County Parks. Call (810) 625-6473 to register or for more information.

STATE PARKS

STATE PARK REQUIREMENTS

Maybury State Park, Proud Lake Recreation Area, Bald Mountain Recreation Area, Highland Recreation Area and Island Lake Recreation Area offer nature interpretive programs throughout the year. A state park motor vehicle permit is required for entry into all state parks and state recreation areas. For registration and additional information on the programs at Maybury call (810) 349-8390. For programs at Bald Mountain call (810) 693-6767. For programs at Proud Lake and Highland call (810) 685-2433. For programs at Island Lake call (810) 229-7067.

DATES/DEADLINES

DEER

The second archery season runs through Jan. 1 statewide. Muzzleloading season runs through Dec. 21 in Zones II and III. A special late antlerless only season will run Dec. 20-Jan. 4 on private land only in Zone III.

SQUIRREL

RABBIT

Rabbit season runs through March 31 statewide.

Naturalists changing habits

Throughout the years naturalists have taught people the workings of the natural world. Naturalists learn from personal observation and by reading what others have observed and concluded. As more information is acquired, initial observations and conclusions change.

For years I have taught that the tufted titmouse and the black-capped chickadee are kissing cousins to each other. They were considered by scientists, far more knowledgeable than I, that they were in the same genus, or taxonomic unit.

Tufted titmice were Parus bicolor and black-capped chickadees were Parus atricapillus. This relationship was based on behavior, anatomy, plumage, molt and other characteristics.

NATURE NOTES

TIM NOWICKI

Now, with the advent of DNA testing and other chemical tests to determine relationships, these two species are now in two different genera or taxonomic units.

Based on new findings and weighing the old findings, tufted titmice are now Baeolophus bicolor and the black-capped chickadee becomes Poecile atricapillus. They are still closely related to each other, but not quite as close as before.

Relationships between animals have always involved heated debates. Years ago, before naturalists really spent time looking at their subjects, female mallard ducks were considered a different species from the male mallard duck because they look so different. Just recently scientists shocked many people when they placed the turkey vulture into a group of birds they do not look like at all.

Its hard to believe, but the turkey vulture, which has been grouped with the birds of prey, like hawks and eagles, is now placed in with the herons, bitterns and storks.

A vulture's body shape and structure is very unlike those of the long necked, long legged herons and storks.

Decisions such as these are not made at the drop of a hat.

Ornithologists from around the world evaluate the research and sit down in committees to discuss the results and decide what is the best decision based on the available information at the time.

Science is constantly changing because scientists are constantly learning new things about their discipline.

The Hubble telescope, for instance, is rewriting the textbooks on Astronomy, while DNA mapping has allowed biologists to analyze the building blocks of living organisms.

As time goes on, new techniques will become available and present day information may become obsolete, necessitating new changes.

So, for now, I can't call titmice and chickadees kissing cousins anymore, maybe I'll call them hugging cousins, or hand-shaking cousins.
