District looking at 'every inch' of budget to reduce costs

TONY BRUSCATO OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Plymouth-Canton Schools Supt. Craig Fiegel promised the Board of Education he would inspect the budget line by line, and that's what will happen as trustees soon begin the process of looking at where potential cuts will be made.

"We're trying to look at every line item to determine what's really in the budget and determine if there are any chances for reductions," Fiegel said. "The board has done this so long there's just not much to cut without affecting programs and services to students. We try to stay away from those as much as possible, but you can only do that for so long without funding.

"There is some indication the state isn't going to take away money, so at least we can maintain where we're at,' he added. "But things are very tough and the economic news isn't very good, so you don't anticipate there will be any new money next year. One of the difficult things in not getting new money is where are we going to be with union negotiations and salary. That's always a touchy subject."

Board President Judy Mardigian said "every inch" of the budget needs to be analyzed. "That's the goal," Mardigian said.

"We have to reduce the structural deficit and have an amount in our budget set aside for contingencies. And we have to have an adequate fund balance." The district's annual structural deficit — expenses exceeding revenues - had been about $7 million a year. Mardigian said progress has been made in reducing it, but there's still work to be done.

The district has made over $12 million in cuts over the last five years," Mardigian added. "The money we get from the state doesn't keep up with the rate of inflation — fuel, health care and utilities. Everybody knows those things go up in their household as well as the school district.

"It will take a lot of creativity and a lot of ideas," she added.

Group moving forward to fix historic wall despite protests

BY TONY BRUSCATO OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth Preservation Network has begun fund raising to repair the stone wall that sits on the northwest side of the Plymouth Community Veterans Memorial Park.

built more than 70 years ago by stone masons during the Great Depression and needs to be preserved. However, members of the Plymouth Community Veterans Memorial Park committee — who want to demolish the 161-foot wall in favor of a new cultured stone wall to match the entrance to the park — claim the stone wall may be old, but has been repaired several times with stones that have no historical sentiment.

PPN president Wendy Harless told city commissioners Monday night they've selected Salem Farms' bid of $5,600 to complete the repairs.

"His bid was the lowest and came very highly recommended," said Harless. "They say he's an artist with the way he will choose the stone to match up with the existing stone."

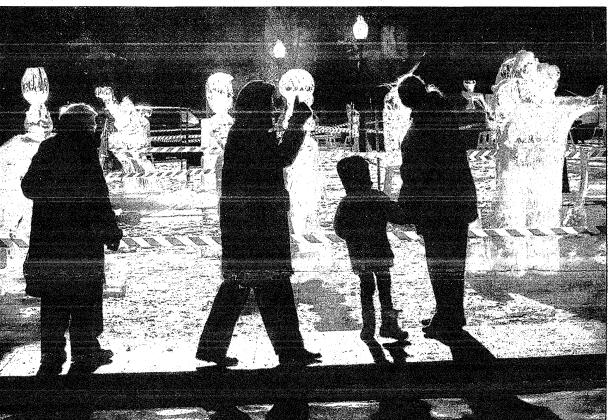

Harless said the bids to repair the stone wall ranged from $5,600 to $25,000.

"The amount we need to raise is $2,600 to get the essential work done," said Harless. "Replacing missing stones, repair areas where there are holes, removing and repointing all loose mortar. The other work can be performed for additional money at a later time."

The remaining $3,000 would cover costs to preserve and improve the look of the wall.

Bob Zaetta, president of the Plymouth Community Veterans Memorial Park committee, still believes his group's plan to replace the stone wall with a solid concrete structure covered by Michigan River Stone with a limestone top is a better option. The veterans' group has a donor ready to give $100,000 for the new stone wall.

"The $2,600 won't do anything," Zaetta said. "Our guy said he could fix the wall for $30,000, but it wouldn't be done properly or permanently. Next year it will come apart again, the city won't want to fix it and our money will have gone somewhere else."

Organizers of the annual Plymouth International Ice Spectacular are expecting larger crowds this year because of the down economy.

Festival organizers ready to turn Kellogg Park into icy wonderland

BY TONY BRUSCATO OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Despite less cash and a little less ice, the Plymouth International Ice Spectacular won't be noticeably different from last year's event — except with different carved sculptures.

"There may be a few less blocks of ice in the displays, but nothing people will notice," said Ron Loiselle, president of the festival board. "We'll be able to have the same number of displays.

"Fortunately, we had some money left from last year, and that's helped us out," he said. "All in all, it will be a nice festival."

Loiselle said this year's budget of $70,000 is about $10,000 less than last year.

The Ice Spectacular is scheduled for Jan. 23-25 in Kellogg Park. Students and professionals from the U.S. and as far away as Japan will carve the 350pound ice blocks. The festival will feature 100-150 sculptures, ranging from a single block of ice to the featured statue with 90 blocks.

A new twist to this year's event: hot soups made by E.G. Nicks restaurant being served in the park.

"It will be served on Sunday and be a potential fund-raiser for the Ice Festival," Loiselle said. "We'll make it like the Chili Fest, where a sample is $1 and a bowl is $4. I have a suspicion it will take off and next year we'll expand it to create a challenge with culinary arts students competing against each other, and cooking clubs and restaurants competing.

Organizer Mike Watts of Plymouth Township said the ice has been in the making since August.

"It's specially made ice, that's why the sculptures look so pretty," Watts said. "It's a special process whereby as it freezes the air — which makes it cloudy - is extracted. That's why it's so clear."

Watts said the event will use approximately 150,000 pounds of ice, which will cost nearly $15,000.

As a result of the spiraling economy, Loiselle is confident crowds will be up this year.

With a lot of people being unemployed, many will be looking for things to do that are less costly," Loiselle said, "and the Ice Fest provides that."

Local man's labor helped set stage for Winter Classic "\"

BY TONY BRUSCATO OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Ron Baase, the facility operations manager at the Plymouth Cultural Center, said going to Chicago for the winter Classic takes the cake.

Baase wasn't at the hockey game between the Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Blackhawks on New Year's Day. He was there for two days beforehand to help set up the rink for the outdoor game at Wrigley Field.

"I was called at the last minute, two days before the event," said Baase. "They needed extra guys to paint the ice and other grunt work."

Baase is friends of members of STAR — Serving the American Rinks — a membership association that provides education and training for rink members. When the call came, Baase was ready.

"I've always harassed them on a daily basis, asking if they need help to give me a call ... and the call came through," Baase said. "It was two days of hard work, 16-hour days. When I left they were still putting the finishing touches on and getting the ice built up for the teams to skate on.

"The nostalgia was certainly there, and to say you've been there is huge," he said. "It's another accomplishment and nice to say I've done it."

VEGETATION MANAGEMENT NOTICE

Trees and high voltage power lines are a hazardous combination. Trees that come into contact with transmission lines can cause serious system outages and pose a significant safety threat to residents and the public. Even when there is no direct contact, electricity can arc from transmission lines to nearby tree branches, posing personal safety and fire issues.

ITC Holdings Corp., through its subsidiaries ITC Transmission and Michigan Electric Transmission Company, LLC. (METC), owns, operates and maintains more than 8,100 miles of high voltage transmission lines in Michigan's Lower Peninsula. ITC is federally required to maintain its utility corridors to prevent all vegetation-related electrical outages.

ITC has begun vegetation management in its corridors in Livonia, Westland and Canton. Where permissible, the following will occur:

- In areas directly under the transmission line or 10 feet outside of the line, trees will be removed.
- Outside of this area, trees that threaten safety or reliability will be targeted for removal.
- If ITC lacks tree removal rights or permission for removal is not obtained, trees will be pruned to the extent easements permit.

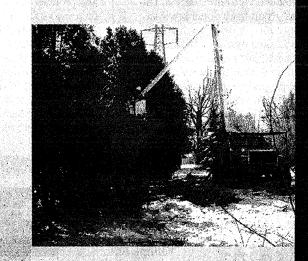

If you have questions about ITC's vegetation management practices, please call 1-877-ITC-ITC9 (1-877-482-4829).

The Blackout of 2003

Nothing brings a halt to daily life faster than the loss of power. Outages and blackouts are inconvenient, costly and potentially dangerous. The Blackout of 2003 left 50 million people in the Northeast, Midwest and Canada without power for days. Hospitals, nursing homes, police and fire departments and schools were just a few of the critical services heavily impacted by the Blackout. The underlying cause of the Blackout, tree contact with power lines in northern Ohio, is well documented. ITC is responsible for protecting communities and residents from outages and safety threats like the Blackout of 2003.

Man earns top honors with Special Olympics

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

David Foust spends his days on the job at Holiday Market in Canton, but he finds time to compete as an athlete with Special Olympics.

The 31-year-old Canton man has been participating in Special Olympics sports for 18 years. Recently, he was tapped as Outstanding Athlete of the Year, honored at a Special Olympics Hall of Fame banquet.

"I was surprised and very honored," said Foust, who remained calm upon receiving his award.

"He was very thrilled," said mom Jackie. "It meant a lot to him."

David Foust, who lives at home and has a sister, 29, enjoys participating in the program for mentally challenged athletes.

"He just needed an outside activity to interact with other athletes, his peer group," said Jackie Foust, a single mom.

David participates in floor hockey, basketball, swimming and softball, though he doesn't have a favorite

"I kind of like them all I do." he said. Jackie had been the area coordinator for Special Olympics for 15 years for Plymouth-Canton, having given that up due to demands of her job at Yazaki North America in Canton.

"He certainly gets a positive attitude or belief in himself," she said of the interaction with teammates.

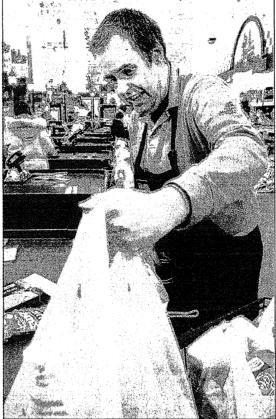

David, Foust has also been a Global Messenger as well, speaking about Special Olympics to civic groups, something he enjoys as long as it doesn't conflict with his job.

"I'd have to say kind of like meeting new friends," he said of participating in Special Olympics. "You basically have fun doing it."

David spent four years on the Michigan Board of Directors as an athlete representative, recently having gone off that board as his term ended. Jackie Foust is with him as a member of the Wayne County Management Team for the sports organization.

Last March and again this coming March, David Foust and his mom will travel to Washington, D.C., to lobby on behalf of Special Olympics, speaking to legislators, "just so they can put a face to the program," she said.

Foust, who works as a cashier/ bagger at Holiday Market, recently earned a special education diploma through the Plymouth-Canton schools at Plymouth High School.

Dreamer: He turns box into upright bass

BY SUE MASONOBSERVER STAFF WRITER

In no way is Chris Badynee a shy person. Give him an opening and he'll gladly talk and talk and talk about his dream musical instrument.

You won't hear about the legendary Fender guitar or the famous Stradivarius violin. No, Badynee conversation revolves around some strings and a box that he and his cousins have turned in the Bogdon Box Bass, an upright bass made out of a cardboard box.

"We have no competition in the whole world," said the Westland resident. "Nobody makes an acoustic upright bass on the cheap."

Badynee has been the pitch man for the bass that bears his father's middle name, for twothree years, according to Alan Eden, Badynee's cousin who helped turn the vision into an actual instrument.

"It was really his idea, we just made it sound like the real thing," Eden said. "We went through a lot of trials and errors to get the bridge piece so it sounded just right."

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, January 11, 2009

Badynee has shown off the cardboard box bass at Pine Knob and Nashville and made the circuit of music conventions, landing a best in show for innovation in 2008 from NAMM, the trade association of the international music products industry.

A mailman by day and a entrepreneur by night, Badynee has gone so far as to sing the praises of the instrument in an elevator for MSNBC's Elevator Pitch. Badynee was hoping the three-minute performance would find investors willing to provide $500,000 in capital to take the instrument to a new business level.

"I was so on, it was so great," said Badynee, who traveled to New York City with Eden to tape the segment. "I started playing a lick from the Cosby Kids show."

while remodeling the bathroom of his home following a fire. Alan Eden got drawn into the dream by his father, Dave, who called him to say "I think Chris's got something here."
What he saw was a crude version of the box bass, but "it looked like he did have something," Eden said.

Joining Eden, an acoustical engineer, on developing the box bass was his brother, Mark, a electrical engineer. They spent six-eight months developing the box bass, taking into account the shape of the box, the thickness of the bridge and assembly. Mark Eden helped to come up with the hardware so that the box bass can be plugged into an amplifier.

"An instrument can be very expensive, but it doesn't matter what they're made of," said Alan Eden. "If they're properly engineered you can make a box sound like an upright bass."

What the trio came up with is three box basses — a two-string bass with assembly required for $93.80 and two three-string basses for $119.50 and $134.50. They've sold about 1,000 of the instruments. Thirteen retailers around the country and one in Mexico City carry the box bass and it's also available on the Bogdon Web site at www. bogdonmusic.com.

They've also mailed the box bass to Uruguay, the United Kingdom, Finland and the Swiss Alps.

"We sell about 30-40 a month," said Alan Eden.
"Interest spiked a little after the show, but our sales have been steady even with the downturn in the economy."

Admittedly, no one is ready to quit their day job, but Badynee is enjoying himself, pitching the product. His dream is to do it on The Tonight Show.

"My competition is a $1,000 introductory bass. There is no $100 introductory bass, the customer who spends $4,000-$5,000 on a base is buying it," Badynee said. "I'm still hoping an investor will see it. Every sale makes my pitch all the more solid."

With the help of his cousins, Alan and Mark Eden, Chris Badynee has seen his vision of a cardboard box bass become a reality. Now he's looking for an investor to take it to the next level.

Conference of Western Wayne taps Wild to serve as chairman

Members of the Conference of Western Wayne have elected Westland Mayor William Wild to serve to chair the executive committee for 2009 and 2010.

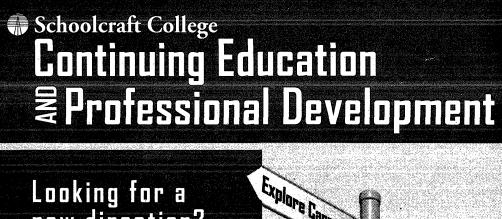

The CWW represents 18
Wayne County communities that have collaborated for nearly 30 years to improve public service and create efficiencies by working in a bipartisan manner.

"Due to our region's declining tax revenues, it will be even more challenging to maintain the level of quality services for our residents," said Wild. "Therefore, the biggest charge of the CWW this year is to work collaboratively to share and consolidate municipal resources so that we can not only protect vital city services, but also stimulate economic development to spur job growth within our region."

The CWW Board of Directors is made up of the mayors and supervisors of all member municipalities.
Also elected to the Executive Committee were Wayne
Mayor Al Haidous, vice-chair,

River sleuths

Forget the skates, sleds and come outside to hunt for bugs

BY SHARON DARGAY OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Tom Elliott will look for larvae in the frigid outdoors this

"On the face of it, it sounds like the silliest thing a grown person can do," he admitted. "Actually, it's a badge of cour-

That's because his search for the pre-hatched insects will include a walk into the freezing Rouge River and several hours at water's edge, sorting through earth samples.

"Over the years the January search has encountered some of the worst weather the state has thrown at us."

Elliott, a Birmingham resident and an accountant by trade, calls the amateur entomology "a lot of fun," but he wouldn't mind a little sunshine when he and other volunteers gather for the seventh annual Friends of the Rouge Winter Stonefly Search from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 24, at University of Michigan-Dearborn's Environmental Interpretive Center, 4901 Evergreen, in Dearborn.

Families, individuals and children accompanied by a parent, can sign up to take part in the hunt — which helps the organization collect data about the river's health — by calling (313) 792-9621, by Jan. 16. No experience is necessary, although warm clothing is a must.

SAMPLING THE MUCK

Elliott and other team leaders will don waders and walk into the water at various points along the Rouge, scooping up river bed that volunteers on shore will examine for stonefly larvae. The pollutionsensitive bugs live in healthy creeks and rivers, and hatch into adult insects in the winter. The more bugs there are. the better the water quality.

Teams will work on sites in Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Farmington Hills, Farmington, Salem Township and Superior Township. Volunteers have never found stoneflies in the main branch that runs through Birmingham.

"But we have found them in the upper branch, in Farmington and Farmington Hills," said Sally Petrella, Friends director. "They're basically the only insect out in the dead of winter.

"I think they are beautiful. Basically the more of them we find, the better. We hope to find them at a lot of different sites. No one has reported seeing the flying insects," she added, stressing that volunteers will retrieve larvae from the river muck.

COLLECTING DATA

The organization will share its results with the Department of Environmental Quality and communities along the Rouge.

"It helps them to track change over time and evaluate projects to improve the river, to see if they are having an impact."

Friends of the Rouge also conducts a spring and a fall search of the river bed for macro-invertebrates. The winter hunt can be more challenging because of the weather - last year leaders had to hack through the river's frozen crust

- but equally as entertaining as its mild weather versions. "There aren't a lot of opportunities to be outdoors and do activities like this in January,"

Petrella said, explaining why the winter search draws eager participants. "In January there isn't much going on. People start to get stir crazy.' It's also just plain fun in the middle of winter, says Jeremy Geist, program coordinator for the Clinton River Watershed Council. The organization also plans a winter stonefly search on Saturday, Jan. 24. Hours are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Volunteers will meet at Yates Roadside Park, along the north side of Avon, between Whoever wants to get into the water can," said Geist. "By no means will we be in a fast current. We'll make sure the area we're sampling in will be safe. If people are eager to get in there, we'll give them a net and waders.'

Most of the volunteers are likely to stay on land, lending a hand with the sorting process.

"You'll see lots of life. It's a funny thing, they are bugs and people are kind of creeped out by it, but it's a good thing to have in our water," he said.

Geist also is offering an aquatic insect identification class from 6-8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 27, at the Auburn Hills Community Center. Participants will look at preserved specimens, unlike the river sleuths who will see

IRA distributions may be reinvested in a Roth IRA

Q: Dear Rick: I'd like to find out if a person can take a distribution from a traditional IRA and add it to an existing Roth IRA. Would you suggest not taking a distribution this year?

A: The answer to your first question is yes. A person can take a distribution from a traditional IRA and add it to an existing Roth IRA. All you need to do is to follow the rules for a Roth conversion to perform the transaction.

The first issue when deciding whether to take a distribution is do you need the income. If you need the income continue taking distributions. Those who do not need the income, have another option. It is important to note where you stand with regards to taxes. If withdrawing the money puts you in a higher tax bracket, it may not make sense to take a distribution.

If taking a distribution does not put you into a higher tax bracket, take a distribution, pay your taxes and then reinvest the money either in a Roth IRA (by means of a conversion) or invest the money outside of your retirement account.

It is important to understand the tax consequences of distributions from retirement accounts. When money is withdrawn from a traditional IRA or a traditional 401(k), it is subject to ordinary income taxes (typically the highest bracket). Money invested outside of a retirement account can be subject to the more favorable capital gain tax bracket. The maximum capital gain tax bracket is 15 percent and many taxpayers find themselves in a 5 percent bracket.

Ordinary income taxes for the average individual are 28 percent and above. The tax bracket for withdrawals from Roth IRAs is zero as Roth IRAs are not subject to income

In a normal tax year, required minimum distribution from a retirement account is not eligible to be converted to a Roth IRA. However, 2009 is not a typical tax year. Any withdrawal from a retirement account in 2009 can be potentially converted into a Roth IRA. The only requirement is that a taxpayer's adjusted gross income be less than $100,000.

The suspension of required minimum distributions for 2009 also affects individuals who have inherited IRAs. When someone inherits an IRA they have a number of different options as to how that money can be withdrawn. One of the more popular ways is to take a distribution over a five-year period. However, because required minimum distribution rules have been suspended for 2009, an individual can stretch that five-year period over another year.

Like everything else regarding tax laws, there are some potential minefields. One of these affects people who turned 70½ in 2008. In the year that you turn 701/2 you do not necessarily have to take a distribution that year. Rather, the law allows you defer the distribution until April 1 of the next year.

For example, someone who turns 70½ in 2008 technically does not have to take their tribution until April 1, 2009. If you are in that situation, you still are required to take your distribution by April 1. The reason is that although the law says that you can delay the distribution until April 1, 2009, it is still considered a 2008 distribution. Because the new law only deals with required distribumake a 2008 distribution

No matter what advice is given in regard to taxes, the key is to make sure it applies to your situation. In addition, don't let the tax tail wag the money in your pocket. Good hey say the only thing constant in life is change.

Covering Plymouth has been an incredible ride

For me, the past 10 years has consisted more of consistency than

In fact, the biggest changes for me during that span as the reporter for the Plymouth Observer has been the move of our offices from Plymouth to Livonia to Detroit. However, that hasn't affected the job I love doing most, reporting in the Plymouth community. Despite the moves, I've still been able to go about my business of reporting on those stories I thought would be most interesting to you, our readers.

Along the way I've developed some great friendships with people, many who started off as sources. In fact, I believe I now have more friends than sources, evidenced by the welcoming I get while meeting and seeing people along the way. You've not only trusted me to report the information you gave factually in a fair and balanced way, but have also welcomed me into your home.

That consistency was broken this week when I was informed that "change" would become more of a constant as I will be changing beats Monday to become the reporter for the Canton Observer. After a decade of reporting in the Plymouths, I have to admit I was shocked and disappointed. While I live in Canton, Plymouth has become as much home as anywhere I've ever lived. It's really true Plymouth is a special place, and I feel blessed to have had the opportunity to be a part of your lives for so

In reality, most reporters don't generally get the opportunity to work the same beat for 10 years, so I've been very fortunate. If the truth be known, reporters aren't supposed to become so attached to the people they cover. It can lead to conflicts which can both affect reporting and friendships. But that has never been the case in Plymouth. In fact, those I covered always knew that while we were friends, if any "dirt" surfaced I would be the first to report it. Fortunately, it's only happened a few times. But, surprisingly, despite those instances the people I had to take to task still remained friends. I hope it was because I treated them fairly in what I wrote. While I'm saddened to leave a community I've become invested in, I am looking forward to the new challenge in Canton covering people I also know. I hope they will get a chance to know me like you do and I will develop the same kind of relationships I've had with you. I know that the friendships I've grown in the Plymouth community won't go away. I only live three miles down the road, and I will be visiting often and attending the hundreds of events in downtown Plymouth. I wish I could say goodbye to each of you individually, but you've got my email address (tbruscato@hometownlife.com) and I invite you to keep in touch.

It's been a great ride, one I will forever cherish.

Learn How To Send Your Children To A Top College Without Going Broke

Local Workshop Teach Parents How to Avoid Mistakes and Save 20% on College Cost area parents will have five scholarships and 529 plans

TROY-Metro Detroit area last 10 years ranging from parents that are planning on single moms to corporate sending a child to college in the next few years, but aren't quite sure how to pay for it, can now rest a little easier.

College Planning Coach has been educating parents in the community about what to do if they haven't saved enough for

"It's really sad, but most parents that we talk to have done real well financially, but never found the time to save for college, and now they're facing a bill of $18,000-$45,000 a year, and they don't know who to turn to," he says. "Furthermore, most of the time all they hear is to not even bother applying for any aid because they make too much money. However, most of the time, that is simply not true...even if they make a sixfigure income.

Mike and the College Planning Network would know, because they've worked with over 1400 families in the CEO's, and he swears he can help anyone get through the process and bundle....no matter how good of a student they have or how much money they make.

"I got started in this because I graduated in the top of my high school class, but no one told us anything about how to access money for college, or even how to pick a career...so I didn't go right away. But, I vowed that I would learn the process and devote my time to helping families not fall into the same trap that we did.

Simply put, we show parents the truth that they aren't hearing anywhere else about how the college process really works, and how they can get their child into a top school easily, help that student pick a career that will suit them and pay them well, and save thousands of dollars in the process." "We'll discuss everything from the greatest myths about the college process, to how to send your student to a fancy private school for less than the cost of a junior college... it'll be like learning how to get a brand new Cadillac for the price of a used pick up truck," he grins. Topics will also

The core group of sophomores on Canton's girls basketball team have played 26 high school basketball games without losing one.

The first 20 came last year at the juniorvarsity level, but that doesn't discount what the super-sophs have accomplished this sea-

The 26th straight triumph was racked up Friday night when the Chiefs raced to an 17-point halftime lead before taking down host Northville, 49-35, to raise their record

Kari Schmitt — one of the those talented, yet-to-taste-defeat-in-high-school 10thgraders — led the way with 23 points and 10 rebounds. Sophomore CarolAnn Sexauer added eight points while junior guard Lindsey Winters chipped in with six. Northville was paced by Katherine long leading scorer, Chelsea Atzinger, was held to six by Canton's Sara Schmitt and Kayla Bridges, who took turns checking the Mustangs' explosive forward.

"I thought we played a very solid first half." said Canton coach Brian Samulski. "We jumped out to a good start. In the second half we were just O.K. We're very young, so that's understandable.'

The Chiefs sank 7-of-16 free throws. Northville was 8-of-10 from the line.

CANTON AGAPE 50, LUTHERAN SOUTH 44: On Friday at Lutheran South, the Wolverines registered their first victory of the season thanks to a pair of double-doubles.

Sequoia Hood, playing in just her second game of the season, notched 12 points and 12 rebounds while Avanna Martin chalked up 16 points and 11 boards.

"It was back and forth most of the game," said Agape coach Dan DeWitt, whose team improved to 1-5. "We led by one at the half. We took care of the ball at the end of the game and that was the difference."

D'-licious first victory

Defense, Brotz's jumpers spark Salem's first win

BY ED. WRIGHT OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Starving for its first win of the season, Salem's girls basketball team ordered a red-hot Brotz late in Friday night's KLAA cross-over game against Livonia Franklin.

Fortunately for the Rocks,

Victoria Brotz's jumper was cookin'. In a defensive struggle that barely needed a score-keeper, Brotz buried a pair of big shots during the game's waning moments to lift Salem to a 26-23 triumph.

The victory was the first in five games for Salem while the setback was the Patriots' first in six con-

Brotz's first clutch "J" came with 3:40 remaining when she drained 'a long triple from the left wing to bring Salem to within 23-21.

She struck again with 2:00 left, swishing a 15-footer to give the Rocks the lead for good, 24-23.

The game-winner almost never launched as Brotz looked initially to pass the ball to a teammate. However, Salem coach Fred Thomann, who was seated only a few feet away, implored the unselfish Brotz to fire away.

"I reminded her that that was her shot," said Thomann, referring to his pre-shot instructions during the game's pivotal moment. "When she gets her feet set and she squares up to the basket, she can knock that shot down. In fact, for this team to be successful, we need Victoria to

After building a 20-13 halftime advantage, the normally potent Patriots misfired on all cylinders during the final 16 minutes when they managed to tally just three points — a Chelsea Williams free throw and a Briauna Taylor layup,

Canton's boys swimming and diving team opened its 2009 dual-meet season in spectacular fashion Thursday night thanks to robust efforts from a bunch of veterans and a couple of fresh-

The Chiefs outstroked Livonia Franklin, 111-72, in a meet held in the Patriots' pool.

The winners were paced by key returners Robert Goodwin, who won the 200-yard individual medley; Richard Zhang, who touched first in the 100-yard freestyle; Chris Krebs, who earned first-place points in the 100-yard backstroke; Ryan Boes, who won the 100 breaststroke; and Matt Figlewicz, who won the diving competition with 193.65

The fabulous freshmen were Jay Jin, who took gold in the 500 and 200 freestyle events; and Victor Zhang — Richard's young-er brother — who outstroked all of his foes in the 50 freestyle.

"The meet went well for us, especially considering it was our first one after the holiday break," said second-year Canton coach David Le. "The boys worked extremely hard over the break and it showed tonight."

Among the non-winners that Le praised was Brandon Tolinski, who placed second to Franklin's Scott Ansteth in the 100 fly with an impressive clocking of 1:02.60.

Canton also won the 200 medley relay as the foursome of Victor Zhang, Boes, Eddie Koelzer and Richard Zhang combined for a time of 1:51.22, over 15 seconds faster than the Patriots' runnerup quartet.

Ansteth was the Patriots' lone individual winner as he touched first in the 100 fly in 1:01.57.

Whalers swap once-heralded goalie Smith, Lee to IceDogs

Hackett blanks Kingston, See Page B3.

Plymouth Whalers president, general manager and head coach Mike Vellucci announced the trade of 19-year-old goaltender Jeremy Smith and 20-year-old right wing Patrick Lee to the Niagara IceDogs in exchange for second-round and eighth-round picks in the 2010 Ontario Hockey League Draft and a fourth-round pick in the 2011 Draft.

The Ontario Hockey League's final trading deadline was Friday

With Smith moving to Niagara, 18-year-old Matt Hackett and 16year-old rookie Scott Wedgewood will share duties in goal for the Whalers.

"Matt Hackett has clearly stepped up and has taken over the job as the number one goaltender," Vellucci said. "I feel it's time to move Smith so he can be a number one goaltender again. Patrick Lee is a victim of numbers. I never expected to get Brett Bellemore back (from Albany of the AHL on Monday) and Scott Fletcher has been very good for

Smith (from Brownstown, MI) was originally selected by Plymouth in the fourth-round (64th overall) in the 2005 OHL Draft and is playing in his third full season in the OHL. In 96 career games with the Whalers, Smith compiled a 3.15 goals against average, .911 save percentage, seven shutouts and a 49-30-3-4 won-loss record.

Smith was part of the Whalers OHL championship team in 2006-07 and won the Dave Pinkney Trophy with Michal Neuvirth for the best team goalsagainst average in the OHL. Smith won USA Hockey's Dave Peterson Award in 2007 as the best junior goaltender in the United States.

Smith - selected in the second round (54th overall) by the National Hockey League's Nashville Predators in the 2007 NHL Entry Draft - played for Team USA in the 2008 World Junior Championships and has been signed by Nashville.

The trade of Lee reduces the Whalers to the OHL's threeoverage (1988 birthday) limit. Plymouth's other overage players include Fletcher (Haslett, MI) and Bellemore - both defensemen - and center Matt Caria.

Lee - acquired from Erie in October of 2007 - scored 10 goals with 13 assists for 23 points in 37 games played this season with Plymouth. Overall, Lee scored 25 goals with 26 assists for 51 points in 98 career games with the Whalers. Lee was originally selected by Erie in the 6th round (109th overall) of the 2004 OHL Draft and played two seasons with the Otters, scoring 10 goals with 20 assists for 30 points in 119 games.

Chargers outlast Plymouth icers, 6-4

Livonia Churchill made a two-goal lead after two periods hold up en route to a 3-2 boys hockey victory Wednesday night over Plymouth in a game played at Livonia's Edgar Churchill is 3-3-3 overall and 3-1-2 in the South Division of the Kensington Lakes Activities Association.

Steven Klisz scored a pair of first-period goals for the Chargers at 3:36 (unassisted) and 6:55 (from Stefan Kubas). In the second period,

PREP HOCKEY

Plymouth's Chris Merrill scored from Mitch Martin and Ryan Renault at 3:47 on a power play, but Churchill's Ryan Cioch responded at 12:33 on a power play from Drew Sieber.

Plymouth cut the deficit to 3-2 with 4:28 remaining in the game when Renault scored from Kyle Callahan and Luke Merandi, but the Wildcats couldn't get the equalizer on Charger netminder Adrian Motta (15 saves).

"Once again we were able to jump out early," Churchill coach Pete Mazzoni said. "I think we are starting to figure out what we need to do to be successful.

Unfortunately - the things we did in the first period we did not do in the second and we took too many penalties. We regrouped in the third period and got the 'W.' It was good to get back to back wins in the division."

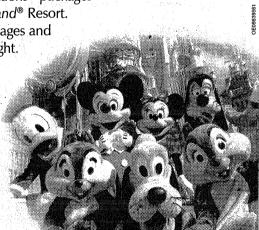

Mike Justus made 14 saves for the Wildcats.

Canton closes out Salem with strong fourth quarter, 36-32

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Alyssa Cottrell doesn't start for Canton's unbeaten girls basketball team, but she sure can finish.

With the Chiefs trailing 30-29 and three minutes left in Wednesday night's cross-campus match-up against Salem, the junior guard reeled off five straight hustle-generated points to spearhead Canton's 36-32 triumph.

The state-ranked Chiefs improved to 5-0 and moved within one win of matching last season's entire victory

The Rocks slipped to 0-4. "I try to give the team energy when I come in, especially defensively," said Cottrell, who is one of five juniors on Canton's senior-less roster. "My offense is O.K., but defense is kind of my thing. Brian (Samulski) likes me to try to slow down the other team's offense."

Cottrell filled that role perfectly on Wednesday, particularly during the closing minutes when she stepped in front of a Salem pass, dribbled coastto-coast and banked in a layup to put her team ahead for good, 31-30.

Fifty-one seconds later, she converted an offensive rebound to extend the Chiefs' lead to 33-30.

Nineteen seconds after that, Cottrell drained a free throw to cap a 7-0 Canton run.

The nice thing about this team is that you can bring anyone in off the bench and they can spark us like Alyssa did tonight," said Samulski. "She came in and got a couple steals, a couple lay-ups and a free throw. That's typical of how this entire team plays with energy and really gets after it."

The Rocks appeared well on their way to earning their first victory of the season early in the fourth quarter when a Chelsea Davis jumper put her team up 29-20.

However, the combination of the Chiefs' full-court pressure defense and a relentless display of offensive rebounding by sophomore twin sisters Kari and Sara Schmitt fueled Canton's game-closing 16-3 run.

"We didn't handle their press very well and when we did break it down we tried to score too early at the other end," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "Consequently, we didn't get as good of shots as we needed to get and we didn't get the time of possession that we needed to get.

"Our number one goal tonight was to make sure we walled them off from getting offensive rebounds because we knew they were going to attack the rim. We did a pretty good job of that until about the three-minute mark when we broke down a little and they took advantage of it."

Led by Kari Schmitt's six, the Chiefs yanked down 15 offensive rebounds, which was the primary reason they shot 27 free throws (mak- with a 7-1 run to extend their 15-12 ing 16) compared to Salem's three.

Kari Schmitt finished with 12 points, 11 rebounds and two steals while twin sister Sara recorded 11 points and seven boards.

Junior point guard Sara Stone sparkled in defeat for the Rocks, notching 17 points and 14 rebounds. Senior forward Tracy Whalen added seven points and four caroms.

Stone's value to the Rocks was confirmed during Canton's fourth-quarter surge when she had to leave the game for 90 seconds with an injury.

The Stone-less Rocks were outscored 4-0.

"I thought Sara Stone played outstanding tonight," said Thomann. "She is clearly emerging as one of the best players in the area. She's a very, very good player."

The biggest lead either team built in the tightly contested first half was

The Rocks opened the second half halftime advantage to 22-13. With Sara Schmitt serving as the catalyst, the Chiefs trimmed their deficit to 25-20 at the end of the third quarter. With Canton trailing 29-20, Kari Schmitt scored six of the game's next seven points in just 70 seconds. The most impressive two came with 4:18 to play when she snared three consecutive offensive rebounds, converting the third to make it 29-27. Even when his team faced a near double-digit fourth quarter deficit, Samulski kept the faith.

"One thing I know about this team is that they're never going to fold," he said. "That's just their nature.

"Even when we're down a lot, I just let them keep plugging away and eventually they'll get rolling - hopefully before the clock runs out."

Cottrell and her never-say-die teammates made sure it didn't run out too soon on Wednesday.

both of which came in the third quarter.

"We stood around too much on offense in the second half," lamented Franklin coach Dave McCall. "And we didn't rebound on the offensive end. We got one shot and that was it.

"Salem has a very good team, so I knew it wasn't going to be easy and I knew they'd make adjustments at halftime, which they did."

Thirty seconds after Brotz put the Rocks up by one, Franklin nearly regained the lead, however, a breakaway layup rolled off the rim and into the hands of Salem's Sara Stone.

A Brotz steal with 24.5 seconds to play led to a pair of Chelsea Davis free throws that extended Salem's lead

Hounded by the scrappy

Franklin's Briauna Taylor led all scorers with 10 points. She also hauled twin sister, Brittany, added six points and nine boards.

Brotz paced Salem with nine points. Davis added five points — she was 5-of-6 from the free throw line in the second half - and six rebounds.

Stone managed just four points for the Rocks, but she grabbed a team-high eight rebounds.

Salem's Tracy Whalen also played well, providing stellar defense on the Taylor twins while chipping in with four points and six rebounds.

Sparked by its trapping 2-1-2 zone, Franklin bolted to an 8-0 lead as Salem committed nine turnovers in the game's opening five minutes.

However, a Brett de Bear triple with 1:31 left in the first quarter seemed to calm the Rocks' nerves.

Thomann said it was a relief to finally get the icebreaking victory.

"I was especially happy - not for me - but for the players because they've been working so hard," said Thomann. "And we did it against a very, very good team.

"To close out the game like we did in the second half was awesome. The girls did a great job."

Franklin hit 10-of-37 field goals (27 percent) - and just 1-of-16 in the second half.

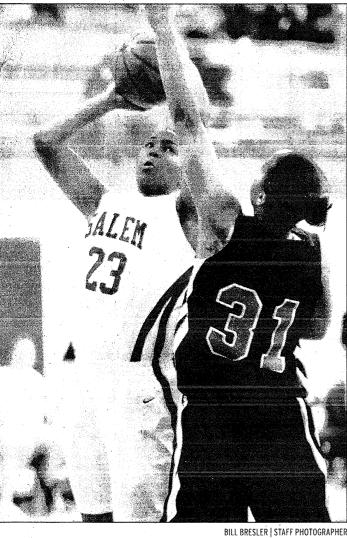

The Rocks were even colder, sinking just 8-of-31

Hackett white-washes Frontenacs, 2-0

The Plymouth Whalers' evergrowing confidence in goal-keeper Matt Hackett paid big dividends Friday night in Kingston, Ont.

Less than a day after the Whalers traded former No. 1 goalie Jeremy Smith to Niagara, Hackett justified the move by shutting out the Frontenacs, 2-0, before a numbed crowd of 2,582 at the K-Rock Centre.

Hackett turned away 24 shots to help the Whalers even their record at 18-18-4-0. The hosts slipped to 8-28-4-2.

Go Red for women

Campaign raises awareness about women, heart disease

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN O&E STAFF WRITER

Dr. Joan Crawford has never been busier as a cardiologist. The Bloomfield Hills physician blames the increase on the crisis in the economy. As a result, women and men have come to her complaining of chest pain, making this year's Go Red for Women Luncheon on Wednesday, Feb. 25, more important than ever.

For the sixth year, the American Heart Association event educates women about heart disease and the difference in symptoms for the sexes. Instead of pains in the chest and left arm as in men, women need to question the reason behind shortness of breath, fatigue, palpitations, and lightheadedness.

We have an opportunity to impact 700 to 800 people to make sure they're aware heart disease is the No. 1 killer of women," said Crawford, chief of cardiology at St. John Oakland and Macomb hospitals, director of St. John Macomb women's services, and medical director of the Go Red campaign which culminates with Wear Red Day on Friday, Feb. 6.

"Anyone with a new set of symptoms needs to be checked out. Detroit's going through a rough time. I have a lot of people coming in panicked because they're going to lose health care, lost a job, taken a pay cut, and get chest pain. They might be nervous but don't make that assumption. Many are younger, prettier, fitter than you think but if mom, dad or a sibling had an early heart attack, congenital heart defects, a doctor's visit is not that expensive. What is expensive is having a heart attack and having an $80,000 hospital bill."

EQUALITY CONCERNS

Although Crawford is less concerned than a decade ago about women's symptoms going unrecognized, she still believes not all of the medical community treat women equally with men. Crawford recently came in contact with a University of Michigan student who had just finished a rotation in the ER and said he couldn't believe the hysterical women who come in complaining.

"Physicians are being informed, but we have to keep re-educating," said Crawford who's equally concerned about patients who can't afford medication for high blood pressure, a major cause of heart attacks and stroke. She receives about 20 calls a week and warns them not to stop their medicine.

"There are programs out there

More than two dozen health care professionals, executives and media members took part in a photo shoot at the Detroit Institute of Arts in August for a calendar to promote awareness of heart disease in women.

through Wal-Mart, Target, Kroger for pills that only cost $4. Tell your doctor. We still have closets with free pills."

In addition to a healthy lunch and blood pressure screenings, guests can once again learn about topics including staying fit to prevent heart disease. The fashion show returns as well with designs, red, of course, by students from the International Academy of Design & Technology in Troy. As a special treat, everyone coming through the door receives a calendar featur-

GO RED LUNCHEON

What: Go Red For Women Luncheon features a fashion show, keynote speaker Dr. Annabelle Volgman, and a silent auction including celebrity purses donated by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers When: 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Wednesday, Feb. 25 Where: Detroit Marriott at the Renaissance Center, 100 Renaissance Center

Details: Tickets are $250 and available by calling Tasheena Young at (248) 936-5806. Proceeds benefit education and research on women and heart disease ing photographs of local health care professionals and media taken at the Detroit Institute of Arts in October by Nancy Swearingen. One of the highlights of the event is sure to be the silent auction of items including celebrity purses donated by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Luncheon chairman Lin Cummins is especially excited about the keynote speaker, Dr. Annabelle Volgman who's probably best known to the public as Oprah's cardiologist. Cummins still gets a thrill every time she enters the room at the Detroit Marriott at the Renaissance Center where the women assemble for the luncheon.

"There are 500 women dressed in red," said Cummins, a Rochester resident. "It's the most amazing thing you've ever seen to see so many people in the room at one time cheering for the same cause and to learn more about what you can do to save your life from not only heart disease but stroke."

Cummins became involved with the American Heart Association after her mother died of heart disease. Initially, she was executive leader of the annual heart walk in Southfield and the No. 1 fund-raiser. As a busy professional woman, Cummins knows it's usually her who comes last.

"I've been a career woman for over 30 years and with the kind of work schedule professional women have we don't take care of ourselves," said Cummins, executive vice president of communications for ArvinMeritor in Troy. "I haven't had a physical in almost two years because I didn't have the time. If we don't speak about this we won't be around to take care of everybody else.

"It's good as a career woman to see how many professional women have joined in this campaign for this disease. Most research is done on men and women don't know symptoms like a sore jaw, nausea should be checked out. My mom was feeling nauseated before her heart attack."

Trinity church sponsors mobile food pantry rinity Evangelical Presbyterian Church is more than just a place to pray. The Plymouth house of worship is composed of members and staff who care about the community, which is why they're partnering with Gleaners Food Bank Saturday, Jan. 17, to provide food for those in need in western Wayne County and Ynsilanti

Hugh Gallagher, editor . (734) 953-2149 . hgallagher@hometownlife.com

This is the second time the church has arranged for the mobile food pantry. In November the refurbished beverage truck arrived with 2,500-3,000 pounds of food. Between 450 to 500 families showed up then in the parking lot at Kmart on the corner of Haggerty and Ann Arbor Road. On Saturday, a hot lunch will be served as well, this time at the church by members who come not only from Plymouth, but Livonia, Westland, Canton, Ann Arbor, Novi and Northville.

"We purchase food from them and distribute to folks in need," said Ellie Schupra, director of outreach at Trinity church. "There's enough food for five to seven days for a family of four. We want people in Plymouth and Canton and nearby communities to benefit. We certainly aren't going to turn people away. The reason we instruct people to call a certain number is to reserve a time is to avoid pandemonium."

Trinity's Team Mission is always looking for ways to serve people in the produce.

Last summer members helped Central Detroit Christian renovate a former dry cleaners to open the Peaches and Cream market so inner city residents could eat fresh fruit and produce.

"It seemed obvious for us to host the mobile food pantry given our economic times," said Schupra. "We have families in need at Trinity. We're meeting the needs of our own family here as well as outside. We've organized volunteers for Grace Centers of Hope in Pontiac, helped distribute food at Hope Clinic in Ypsilanti, and when gas prices were high went into service stations to buy down people's gas 20 cents and wash their windows.

"It's a matter of looking at the needs and plugging in. At Sherwood Village we gave turkeys and food at Thanksgiving. November was phenomenal. We had some seniors, but the bulk was mostly people with families. We gave chickens, eggs, sausage patties, fresh fruit and bread. It was a beautiful picture of the community coming together to help others. One person brought all the workers pizza, Others brought food and donated it. People were very appreciative. There were tears of gratitude."

The team at Trinity hopes to offer at least two more mobile food pantries during these trying economic times. Schupra is hoping families with young children are attracted to the effort. The church, which first held services at Isbister Elementary in Plymouth nearly 30 years ago, is always looking for new members to join the 650-700 worshippers on Sundays.

"We have a lot of young families attracted to Trinity," said Schupra. "We have a great children and youth ministry with youth and children involved. We're very intentional about some of the things we choose to do so children can learn about helping others."

A time for children

Kids Hope USA mentor Norm Sorensen enjoys the time he spends with Coolidge Elementary School third-grader Cole Custer.

Coolidge Elementary School third-grade teacher Ann Brady talks about the impact the Kids Hope USA mentoring program has on students such as Brian Smith.

Mentors make a difference for students

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN O&E STAFF WRITER

Cole Custer never cared much about reading until Norm Sorensen began volunteering as part of Kids Hope USA at Coolidge Elementary in Livonia. The pilot program is proof that mentors make a difference when it comes to instilling a love for books and school in children.

and school in children.

Sorensen, as a member of Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Livonia, spends one hour weekly with Cole in the program that unites volunteers with first- to fourth-grade students in need of one-on-one attention. Sorensen craftily used his interest in paper airplanes to form a bond with the boy who's nearly 9. In return, Cole draws a dragon for Sorensen on this Tuesday afternoon.

The first 20 minutes of the program focuses on academics. The rest of the time is for playing games and talking.

"He taught me how to make airplanes, how to read and write more. I hadn't been reading a lot," said Cole, a third-grader.

Sorensen, on the other hand, is able to spend time with a child.

"My son is 52 and doesn't want to make airplanes anymore," quipped Sorensen. "I get the fun of hanging out with a young person and hear stories from teachers about positive changes in Cole."

INFLUENCING CHILDREN

Rickey Amstutz was looking for a way to influence a child's life when she organized the local program with the help of the national organization begun as a research project in 1993. Holy Cross pastor Dana Runestad learned about Kids Hope USA from a college friend. She wants the public to understand there are no strings attached, only a hope that children "feel loved" by mentors from the church.

"One of the big things at Holy Cross is to reach out to the community," said Amstutz, director of the program that started Oct. 1, at Coolidge. "We have 16 mentors including myself to work with at risk children who may have learning problems or can't get along. We need 15 more mentors from the congregation, but have seven new mentors joining in January. Twenty percent of the congregation is involved. We're starting to make a difference. We hope other churches come in. Although faithbased, church and state are kept totally separate."

Principal Ann Kalec has embraced the program with open arms. She has a waiting list of children who could use help from the volunteers trained last fall on the importance of confidentiality.

Boot camp builds healthy bodies, minds, spirits

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN O&E STAFF WRITER

Edwin Petty runs through the drill designed to build not only a healthy body, but mind and spirit. The format offers a way to get or stay in shape without a military environment.

As troop leader, Petty won't be yelling commands in the faces of those participating in the Michigan Transformation Boot Camp. Instead the certified personal trainer uses encouragement as motivation in the metabolic boosting workout, incorporating exercise and information about fitness and nutrition.

Petty lives what he preaches. At age 48, he's slim and moves through the squats without missing a breath while speaking about the Monday through Friday program at Boliard's Martial Arts Studio in Canton. Petty first started studying for a black belt at age 12, so he was attracted to the camps founded by fitness expert Mike Thornton in Texas. The routines combine karate kicks with army exercises like pushups, free weights, and yoga. The matted area is set up with stations at which campers perform tasks including jumping rope.

"There are two separate drills to increase heart rate and re-energize you," said Petty.
"Everyone is not ready for a boot camp. They can go at their own pace. Someone may be an athlete. Another may not have exercised for years, We can regress or modify each exercise. Basically, nobody gets left behind. I've trained people 100 pounds overweight. They can walk instead of run."

Boot campers, no matter their fitness level or age, warm up by jogging around the room then doing jumping jacks and stretches. In summer Petty plans to move the camps outdoors.

SECOND CAREER

These are the first camps Petty is holding so he's learning as he goes, just like participants. Petty took an early retirement from Blue Cross/Blue Shield last year to offer the program for men, women and families. He and his wife, Patricia, son Sean, 23, and daughter Brittany, 19, work out together. For years, he and Sean have taken martial arts classes on-one relationship. They can teach them to read and write and to believe today may be dark but tomorrow will be better," said Kalec. "I've been talking it up with other principals and hope to present to the board in spring. It's been fantastic. The most important thing we need is relationships. All children don't have good relationships. Research shows at risk kids made it because they had a mentor."

SHOWING APPRECIATION

Livonia Public Schools Superintendent Randy Liepa is just as supportive of ensuring success in students.

He recently spoke at a spaghetti dinner put on by teachers and staff to show appreciation for the volunteers.

"The concept is wonderful to have mentors working with children," said Liepa. "Any kind of support for a child supports the teacher. We're thankful for the organization.'

As student assistant provider, Loretta Zimes has seen the benefits first hand, She works with children with social, behavioral, and emotional problems including grieving the loss of a loved one.

They glow when mentors come in. They get a little extra boost," said Zimes, a social worker, "It's made a difference behaviorally." Brian Smith probably doesn't realize the progress he's made since Gail Cebelak began devoting time to the third-grade student. This day he was learning to follow directions for building a race car.

"He's starting to be more himself," said Cebelak. "He was very quiet, only spoke when spoken to, now he's willing to state what he wants. He's come out of himself some. I heard last year he had trouble focusing and staying on track. This year he's good at math and numbers."

Brian's teacher Ann Brady has noticed "a big change."

"It builds his self-confidence, gives them an opportunity to shine with an adult, to find success," said Brady. "Sometimes parents don't have the time.'

Third-grade teacher Kristina Collyer says the program has helped two of her students.

"My students need more emotional support," said Collyer. "Kids look forward to mentors coming. For them to be excited about coming to school is a big deal."

WORKING TOGETHER

Frank Stenrose was having trouble completing assignments when Bill Coughlin became a mentor to the fourth-grade student who will be 10 in April. Coughlin is still working on Frank's favorite subject being

"We talk about football," said Coughlin. "Frank and I are building a good relationship, focusing on academic needs, playing multiplication baseball. Frank plays left guard on the Livonia Eagles whose coach tells him school comes first."

Dr. Shildberg recommends pouring some Hydrogen Peroxide into the pan to kill off the bacteria before replacing.

Drain pans are made of very flimsy materials; therefore they tend to crack easily. If you spring a leak, you usually don't have to replace it. Just line the pan with aluminum foil. This fix should last for about ten

For 30 years before I wrote this book and many years after, I visited many American homes and worked on refrigerators where there was an odor in the kitchen that was not traceable by the homeowner. Odor comes from bacteria and when I pulled a drain pan out and placed it in the customers kitchen sink and showed them what it looked like, I'm sure they kept it cleaned from then

Back in those days the refrigerator manual you received also had instructions telling you to clean the drain pan. Isn't it rather scary to realize that your flu and cold symptoms or worse could be caused by that Now let me give you some more alarming news. The majority of today's modern refrigerators don't allow you to pull out the drain pan and clean it.

Yes, you just read this correctly. You can't pull it out because it is welded in place under the refrigerator and is very difficult for you to get a wet rag inside it to clean it. In my view the manufacturers redesigned the product to save on the cost of a replaceable drain pan without any consideration whatsoever of the health factor involved. They couldn't care less whether or not you get sick from using their product, just so long as you purchase it. I personally think that these corporate heads should be locked up in a combined out house some place. Stay tuned.

ACID DRINKS AND ENAMEL LOSS

Nationwide, dentists have noted an increase in denta erosion (tooth enamel loss), which has now been confirmed by a recent study. When researchers examined 900 middle-school students (aged 10 to 14), they found that nearly a third of them displayed eroded tooth enamel. When searching for possible causes, researchers had to look no farther than many of the popular soft drinks, sport drinks, some fruit drinks, and herbal teas that many of us consume. Some these beverages have sufficient acid content to strip teeth of their enamel, causing brittleness and sensitivity. It is the dentist's job to make patients aware of this problem so they can make the adjustments necessary to prevent or stop it.

Preventive techniques of all kinds are they keystone of our practice. Whether it's as simple as cutting down on beverages loaded with enamel-eating acid and brushing and flossing daily, or more complicated like replacing lost fillings, repairing a broken crown or wearing a custom mouthguard, we urge you to keep on top of your dental healthcare needs. We'll help here at 496 W. Ann Arbor Trail; Ste. 201, Plymouth, with complete, compassionate dental care, including cleanings and checkups, restorative work, and cosmetic dentistry. Please call 734-453-9413 with Grand Master Greg Boliard. Last summer Petty helped Brittany strengthen her core muscles with simple exercises to run track and field at the University of Michigan where she is a student.

"There's no magic about working out on machines. It's about movement," said Petty. "If we just started moving we'd be a healthier nation."

SAME PHILOSOPHIES

Petty is doing everything possible to transform everyone's health including writing the Christian-based e-book, Organic Brain and Body Fitness.

He and Boliard believe the brain needs exercise as much as the body. A physical education teacher at Marshall Elementary in Wayne-

Westland Schools for 34 years, Boliard holds many of the same beliefs about fitness so he welcomes Petty and the camps to his studio, which has offered classes in martial arts, weaponry and self-defense since 1988 in Canton. Boliard began teaching martial arts through continuing education at John Glenn High School in 1973. He coached volleyball for 29 years.

"My martial arts movements can be seen in everyday life and sports," said Boliard of Canton. "I begin the year teaching my middle school students about muscle groups and the importance of movement which is the same whether it's a volleyball block or a basketball throw or a tennis serve. It's all repetitive and exercises the brain. The brain loves to be challenged. I like to work on sequencing, constantly activating the brain not to atrophy."

Arthritis Today

JOSEPH J. WEISS, M.D. RHEUMATOLOGY 18829 Farmington Road Livonia, Michigan 48152

Physicians understand that the pains of arthritis can become intense, and if conventional medical therapy fails, you may feel driven to look elsewhere for relief.

However, stay away from newspaper or Internet ads, and put little faith in what you see in television commercials or even newspaper reports about "breakthroughs" in medical care. The medical community skepticism does not come from disappointment at not finding the "right" treatment. Rather, distrust of commercial claims of success comes from medical experience in seeing how difficult is the road to prove that a therapy works. The first problem is the false claim. A testimonial is suspect because you don't know if it is made up or if the pain relief obtained, was short lived. The second problem is the medication's incredients. Wonder cures in arthritis have a history of being laced with steroids; such medications, when taken over months, will lead to serious side effects.

The third problem is lack of a clinical trial. A properly designed drug trial will take into account differences in individual metabolism, the chance of spontaneous cure, and will compare the new medication with what drugs are already available. The clinical trial will also bring to light side effects of the new therapy.

Finally, these unproven cures are often costly. You can laugh at the people taken in by phony stock market gains, but don't turn around and be fooled by hucksters pushing drugs of dubious merit. The saying holds for drugs as well as stocks: if it is too good to be true, it isn't. www.drjjweiss.yourmd.com

AGE DISCRIMINATION: PROMOTIONS AND ASSIGNMENTS

WORKWISE Discrimination in

bv Mildred L.

Employment Act (ADEA), you don't have to be white-haired to experience age discrimination Cincinnati's Timothy Davis, who practices on behalf of employees

through The Lawrence

rum r.s.c., states that a company acts illegally "any time (it) treats workers 40 and over differently from younger workers. Termination is not required for a valid claim." How can you be certain you're experiencing age discrimination in a promotion or assignment? How should you respond?

OTHERS

Kira Fonteneau of The Fonteneau Firm in Birmingham, Ala., whose employment law clients are almost exclusively employees, says that some of the most subtle discrimination occurs in promotions and assignments. To gather data, she advises:

-- listening, observing and analyzing.
-- being alert to "code words, such as 'fresh appeal' and 'new perspective.'"

-developing and documenting your findings to suggest an age-related problem. (For example, if management is under 40 and well-qualified older people -- watching for "obstacles, such as a new restriction being put in your way, like a college diploma or, in a job description, the omission of requirement X, which only you

-- determining whether you have every qualification the younger person has but a different outcome.

-- "noting whether older workers are penalized for being late, while younger ones aren't."

-- "being intuitive when things just don't seem right."

If an employer hands your job to a younger employee to increase your discomfort with the idea you'll resign, you're facing age discrimination, according to Fonteneau. The same kind of discrimination, termed constructive discharge, is possible if younger employees receive encouragement and support but older ones don't, adds Davis. Fonteneau asks, "How much do they turn up the heat on the individual? Be able to prove that the situation was unbearable.

Martin Gringer of Franklin, Gringer & Cohen P.C., in Garden City, N.Y., who represents management in labor and employment law cases, cautions against concluding that you're privy to every factor behind a company's decisions of practices. In addition, excellent performance reviews might be irrelevant if the company has new management.

If you remain silent, you waive the employer's right to redress the situation. "Under the law, you're required to follow the complaint route," Gringer points out. "If you don't \dots the company is not required to act on (the discrimination).

How can you cautiously take action? Donna Ballman of Ft. Lauderdale's Donna M. Ballman P.A., for whom about 90 percent of clients are employees, says, "Make sure you apply for positions. Don't take yourself out of the running. If you apply and a younger person is put in, don't assume you're out of the running for promotions."

Former middle manager Scott Barer of Los Angeles The Law Offices of Scott I. Barer serves frequently as expert witness for employees. He mentions that accurate, succinct documentation is essential should an investigation take place. "It's very frustrating for investigators to ask about the employee's allegations and (see) the employee have difficulty recalling details," he comments.

Who should hear your complaint? Barer recommends bypassing your immediate supervisor in favor of HR. "If the supervisor is doing the discriminating or knows the person involved," he remarks, "you risk him circling the wagons. If HR does nothing, and you know the company's attorney, go there. He'll then . . . call HR. I've worked with a lot of HR people. I think the vast majority of them really want to do the right thing."

Lodge your complaint formally. Ballman directs you to write it up: "To preserve your protected status, say that it's a 'formal complaint of age-based harassment' or 'formal complaint of age discrimination. These are the powerful (phrases), which will protect you from retaliation. She says to omit words like "longevity, harassment and hostile work environment," which won't.

My Sarona offers comfortable lifestyle, room to grow

The Sarona (D8526) mixes traditional siding with rock accents to form an attractive façade. The three pillars for the porch along with the rock cornices on the garage add eye appeal. Numerous windows and a large dormer bathe rooms with light as well as adding character to the home. The Sarona has 2,061 square feet of finished living area and an unfinished basement of 1,025 square feet of area to be developed later.

Entry into the Sarona faces the great room in the rear and has the dining room on the right. A coat closet is tucked between the stairs and the door. The great room has a fireplace on the left wall, with large windows and a window seat in the rear. Opening off the great room is the nook and kitchen. Sliding doors open off the nook to the back yard.

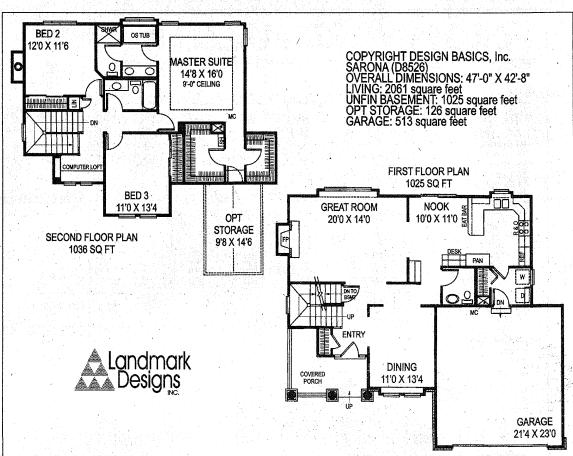

The kitchen runs down the right and rear walls with an eating bar facing the nook. A desk as well as a pantry is opposite the nook. The utility is at the front part of the kitchen, with doors from the kitchen to the two-car garage. This is easy access to the pantry for storing groceries. Beyond the nook is a half bath. The dining area is in the front of the home and has large windows that look out over the street.

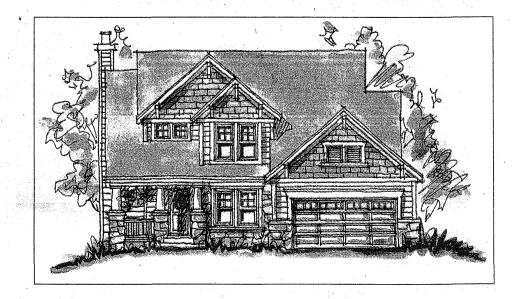

Upstairs is the sleeping area. There are two bedrooms with wall closets and large windows. A linen closet and a full bath with a tub is adjacent the rooms for convenience. A computer loft is located next to the stairs, ideal for homework or for Mom and Dad to use for work or fun.

The master suite takes up the balance of the upstairs. The main suite has a coffered 9-foot ceiling with a set of corner windows. There are two large walk-in closets that can be used as "his and hers." A door opens between the two closets into an option storage room. The master bath has an oversized tub and shower as well as dual sinks.

The entire layout of the Sarona is quite open and would be ideal for a family with smaller children that need to be close to Mom and Dad.

The Sarona (D8526) is our plan of the week. For a limited time, we are offering up to 50 percent off construction plans for this design. Call us at (800) 562-1151 or visit us on line at www.ldiplans.com for details. A $25 study plan is also available consisting of: an artist rendering, elevations, floor plans, and cross section. Order online or search hundreds of other designs including garages, multifamily, and standard and luxury homes at www.ldiplans.com. Order this week to save up to 50 percent off construction plans using the discount code (LOE48) or send payment to Landmark Designs, Inc. CAReport

I normally find driving to be kind of a pain in the neck. Ironic, I know, considering what I do. I don't mind the wideopen spaces of the highways (once you get out of the city), but stop-and-go, bumper-to-bumper, I-need-stuff-from-the-store type driving is never a pleasure. Most of the time, anyway.

Some vehicles, though, can even make this kind of bumpand-grind driving much more bearable. The 2009 Lexus GS 350 is one of those. Its combination of power, smooth ride and fancy toys will make you look for excuses to go driving even with gas still hovering around $4 a gallon.

The GS 350 is a midsize four-door with a 112.2-inch wheelbase and rear-wheel drive (AWD is optional). Four independent headlamps surround the grille, which includes the Lexus logo. The GS 350 comes with fog lamps, 17-inch alloy wheels (18-inch wheels are optional), dual heated outside mirrors and high-density discharge headlamps. The long hood, pulled-back cabin and short rear deck make for a nice package; elegant without being overwhelming.

The GS 350 is powered by 3.5-liter, DOHC 24-valve V6 rated at 303 horsepower and 274 lb.-ft. of torque; plenty of power for quick acceleration and passing (0-60 in 5.7 seconds). It's EPA rated at 21/29 mpg and it does require premium fuel.

It's mated to a six-speed automatic transmission that features a sequential manual-shift mode. You can also select from three transmission modes - Normal, Power and Snow depending on your driving environment. The best luxury transmissions are like a sports referee; the less you notice it, the better. And you really don't notice the shifting on this one, unless you're really trying to pay attention.

Which might be hard to do if you look around the cabin. The GS 350 is full of goodies, most of them standard. The car comes with dual-zone automatic climate control, power moon roof, power windows and locks, rear window defogger, Bluetooth technology, memory settings and cruise control. The audio system, climate control and navigation system are all controlled via a touch-screen.

The standard audio system is an AM/FM/cassette (why cassette, Lexus?) system with a six-disc CD changer, 10 speakers and 134 watts of power. You can upgrade to a Mark Levinson audio/navigation system that adds four speakers, ups the power to 330 watts, and includes a rear back-up camera and easy-to-use navigation system. It's just too bad that the only way to get the back-up camera is to add this expensive system because the camera is a great feature, particularly if you live in a neighborhood with a lot of small children. The audio system itself is excellent, and you can add satellite radio to the package, as well.

Inside the cabin, you'll find comfortable seats, an attractive instrument cluster and plenty of room. The cabin is trimmed in wood and leather. The GS 350 comes with heated 10-way power adjustable power seats for both driver and front passenger. You can get ventilated seats ($200) as an option. The seats are comfortable and provide good support.

The attractive instrument panel features three pods that include a tachometer and a coolant temperature gauge, in addition to the speedometer and fuel gauge. There's a multifunction touch-screen display in the center, which is where the video monitor for the back-up camera and the display for the navigation system will be, if you order it. I'm still not sure if I like all the functions for navigation, climate control and audio combined into one screen. You have to touch a button to get to the right screen before you make the desired adjustment and that's an extra step.

Another interior feature I'm not crazy about is the GS 350's drop-down box that contains several controls including fuel door, power mirror adjustment, trunk release, headlamp washer, rear sunshade and interior lamps. I see what Lexus is trying to do by putting the less-used controls out of the way, but, again, it's an extra step. It may be just me but I like everything in view where I can get to it. That, however, is a minor quibble.

There's plenty of room in the GS 350, front and rear. The trunk is large enough to hold your grocery shopping.

The GS 350 gives you a comfortable ride, without turning into a couch on wheels. The front suspension utilizes double wishbones with high-mount upper arms, coil springs, gasfilled shocks and stabilizer bar. In the rear, it's a multi-link system with high-mount upper arms coil springs, gas-filled shocks and stabilizer bar. Traction control and vehicle stability control are standard. The speed-sensing powerassisted steering makes handling a breeze and the GS 350 easy to maneuver. The four-wheel power-assisted ABS brakes are excellent.

GS 350 comes with front and rear side curtain airbags, seatmounted side-impact airbags for the front seats and driver and front passenger knee airbags. The optional Pre-Collision System can help you avoid an accident.

front of the car, while vehicle speed, steering angle and yawrate inputs help to determine whether a collision is unavoidable. If that's the case, PCS switches the Adaptive Variable-air Suspension to sport mode for optimal chassis response, preemptively retracts front seat belts, and preinitializes Brake Assist so that increased braking will be applied the instant the driver depresses the pedal. The activebraking feature will automatically apply the brakes up to a deceleration rate of 0.3 g if the driver fails to react to system
