Vets invite

State Sen. Patrick Colbeck, R-Canton, is extending an invitation to all 7th District veterans to attend the Michigan Senate's 17th annual Memorial Day service in the Senate chamber on Thursday, May 26.

"Without the service and sacrifice of the members of our armed forces we wouldn't be able to enjoy the freedoms that we so often take for granted," said Colbeck. "It is an honor and privilege to take part in the Senate's Memorial Day Service, and I invite local veterans to join us in remembering our fallen heroes."

Lawmakers will honor soldiers from their districts who died during the past 12 months. Families who lost loved ones will also be recognized by the Senate.

Local veterans interested in attending the May 26 ceremony, scheduled for 10 a.m., should RSVP to Sen. John Pappageorge, who is coordinating the event, by calling his office toll free at (877) SEN-13TH.

Salem High School juniors Peter and Scott Su each scored a perfect 36 on the ACT college admissions exam. Peter also earned a perfect 2,400 on the SAT; Scott earned a 2,340.

Twins reach perfection on college prep exams

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Xiang Ying Su believes basic areas of academic study such as English and mathematics are necessary fundamentals, no matter what students decide to do in life.

That's why Su encouraged his three sons from an early age to push themselves and learn those basics, especially math, in which Xiang has earned a Ph.D.

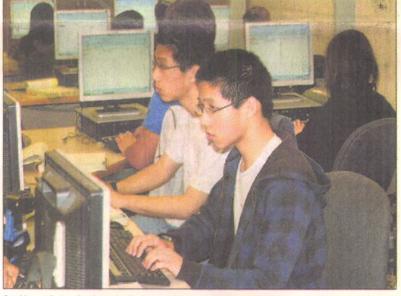

The extra work is apparently paying off for Su's two youngest sons. Salem High School juniors Scott and Peter Su were among four Plymouth-Canton Educational Park students — Steven Marion of Canton High School and Todd Maslyk of Plymouth High School were the others — who scored a perfect 36 on the ACT college admissions and placement exam.

For good measure, Peter earned a perfect 2,400 on the SAT, while twin brother Scott nearly aced it, too, scoring 2,340.

"I think math and English are fundamental subjects for kids, especially when they're young," Xiang Su said. "No matter where you go, when you go to college, no matter what you're going to study, it's the fundamentals."

the SAT back in January, then aced the ACT in March. Leading up to both tests, the twins - who do their homework separately unless they have questions for each other leaned on each other to prepare.

"We study together a bit," said Scott, a straight-A student. "If we don't understand something, we ask each other. We bounce ideas off of each other a lot."

As one might expect of students who aced the test, they didn't find either the SAT or ACT particularly difficult, although each test had its challenges. The brothers cruised through the math and science portions, and the writing portions came easily enough.

"The reading section was a little harder, but it wasn't too bad," Peter said. "The writing wasn't hard, although the essay was a little

Legislators weigh in on Snyder's plans

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Gov. Rick Snyder has the overall support of local legislators in places where you'd expect it - Republican state Rep. Kurt Heise of Plymouth Township and Republican Sen. Patrick Colbeck of Canton. And he's got opposition from just as likely a source: Democrat Dian Slavens, the state representative from Canton.

But the support he's getting, even from local Republicans, isn't unwavering. Both Heise and Colbeck had issues with some of Snyder's overall plan. Heise was critical of funding for public education, while Colbeck thinks Snyder's plan to expand the tax on pensions could face a constitutional chal-

Heise, while voting in favor of Snyder's tax reform package and supporting his efforts on the overall budget, is critical of his handling of the state School Aid Fund, even after Snyder announced he'd dump another $310 million into the fund.

"I feel better about it, but we still don't have all the details," Heise said of the governor's latest announcement about the School Aid Fund. "We want to look over the numbers and see what goes into it. How much goes into K-12 immediately? How much is tied into incentive programs?

"Clearly the governor and the Senate have been listening," Heise added. "I think the message myself and others has conveyed definitely got through. The cuts are certainly not as bad as they could have been. The question now is, is it something the schools can live

Snyder narrowly got his tax policy through the Legislature last week. Both the House (56-52) and the Senate (20-19) passed the package, which ends the Michigan Business Tax in 2012 and put an end to most refundable tax credits, including the film incentives.

City budget plan up - slightly - after drop

BY MATT JACHMAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

With a recession-related decline in revenue starting to level off, perhaps Plymouth's budget outlook is leveling

City officials are considering a general-fund budget of $7.185 million, up nearly $39,000, for the fiscal year that begins in July. That's a marked difference from a year ago, when the 2010-11 budget called for spending of some $400,000 less than the previous year.

Plymouth City Commission members say management foresight, and a conservative approach to spending, prevented them from having to make the drastic cuts in service now being seen in some area communities, or going to the voters to ask for a tax increase.

"We've pared back," Commissioner Ed Hingelberg said. "We're a lean, mean machine right now, but all the staff has stayed together."

The city has made cuts to staffing gradually, through attrition, with the remaining staff taking on more work and seeking efficiencies. The budget plan shows about 57 full-time-equivalent city employees now, about 16 less than in the 2001-02 budget year.

"Just to be able to have another municipal budget without reductions in service or furlough days is pretty incredible," Mayor Dan Dwyer said.

"They saw the storm coming many years ago and they have done due diligence, I think, through all of this," Hingelberg said. "We're faring the storm quite well, and we're all hoping to get more of a rebound."

In a continuing search for savings, however, the commission voted in February to partner with the city of Northville for a shared fire department and emergency medical service beginning in January. Startup costs of at least $1 million are anticipated, but savings of $400,000 or more a year are expected.

The arrangement means the city will leave the Plymouth Community Fire Department, which also serves Plymouth Township, after this year. The city paid about $1 million a year toward the PCFD in recent years. The

Restaurateur branches out with Blue Margarita II

BY MATT JACHMAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, May 22, 2011

Joyce Ramirez was scouting the area a year ago, looking for a building in which to open a small Mexican takeout place, when the owner of a closed restaurant building in Plymouth Township phoned the real estate agent who was showing her around.

The owner convinced them to visit his building, now the Blue Margarita II, a 210-seat, full-service Mexican restaurant on Ann Arbor Road.

"We got more than we bargained for," Ramirez said with a smile Thursday at her new restaurant.

Not to worry — Ramirez can handle it. She's got 40 years in the restaurant business, runs the original Blue Margarita in Woodhaven, and has family members who also own restaurants.

She picked the Plymouth area for her latest venture because of what she said is its shortage of larger Mexican restaurants.

"We figured we would do very well if we opened up a really nice place here," she said. Ramirez is business partners with her husband, Carlos, and a grandson, Ricardo Galan II.

salads and drinks. There are also extras she says aren't found at many Mexican restaurants, such as pollo en mole, chicken cooked in a chocolate sauce; pollo con nopalitos, chicken with stir-fried cactus and other vegetables; and coctel de camaron, a shrimp cocktail with avocado and cilantro in a tomato base.

here," said Ramirez. The reception so far has been "very positive," she said.

The building has undergone extensive interior remodeling — Ramirez and her family did much of the work themselves — and has a distinct Southwestern feel to it, with bright colors and Mexican wall-hangings. Many of the fixtures and decorative pieces, for both of her restaurants, were purchased in Arizona.

"We flew down there, we rented a one-way truck and we drove everything back," she said.

Blue Margarita II had a quiet opening last month, and Ramirez is planning a grand opening for midJune, with a disc jockey, drink and food specials, and a tent outside. She has a staff of about 30, and is spending a lot of time at the new location in order to help everyone

"The line cook, when it gets busy, I'll jump on the line and help him,"

Originally from Canada — her father was a Mohawk Indian who worked as an ironworker on skyscrapers, including the Empire State Building, while her mother was of Polish descent — Ramirez started in the restaurant business at age 16, cooking at Armando's, a Mexican restaurant in Detroit. "I just happened to stick around and I got good at it," she said.

Ramirez said she's motivated by the bustle of the restaurant business. by the interaction with customers and employees.

"I like to be on the go all the time. I'm a very active person," she said. "I like to keep people happy. I love cooking."

Blue Margarita II is at 39500 Ann Arbor Road at Eckles, east of 1-275. The phone number is (734) 454-1969. Reservations are accepted for any size group, and a 120-seat banquet room is available for large gatherings.

2011-12 budget plan shows a fire department budget of $845,000.

The plan also budgets $3.1 million for the Plymouth Police Department, just over $1.3 million for city administration, $640,000 for public works, nearly $415,000 for buildings and grounds maintenance and almost $459,000 for transfers to other city

The general fund and the $4.4 million water and sewer operating fund are the city's biggest, but Plymouth also has a $1 million recreation fund, an $830,000 Downtown Development Authority operating fund, a $432,000 DDA capital improvement fund and several bond funds used for infrastructure improvements, plus other, smaller funds.

Major revenue sources for the general-fund budget include property taxes (estimated at $4.8 million), state shared revenue (nearly $729,000) and fees for ser-

"There are more people drawing a pension right now than there are employees," he said. The city moved to definedcontribution-style retirement plans a few years ago, rather than guaranteed pensions, but many former employees retired under the old system.

Dwyer said he's pleased with the city's incremental approach to staffing cuts. But "there may come a day when all of these changes weren't enough," he warned.

"If the economy doesn't improve in the next couple years, we will have to do something dramatic," he said. "I don't know what that would

Culinary team places fourth at nationals

A team of hospitality management competitors from the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park took fourth place in the recent management competition at the National ProStart Student Invitational.

Competing for adviser Diana Woodward's team were students Brianna Dobson, Kristina Kapedani and LeSaesha Pollard.

The national invitational was comprised of two distinct disciplines: culinary and management. The Plymouth-Canton team earned the right to compete at the national invitational by winning the management event at the Michigan contest in Lansing in March. Earning fourth place in a national competition against the very best teams from around the country is a tremendous accomplishment, and the team members were awarded with $1,000 scholarships for college, industry equipment and cookbooks.

The P-CEP management team developed a business and marketing plan for a new restaurant concept, delivered a verbal presentation about their concept as though they were approaching potential investors and applied critical thinking skills to operational challenges that managers face day to day.

The fourth-place finish left the Plymouth-Canton team behind teams from California, New Mexico and North Carolina.

Parents urged to pressure legislators

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

There weren't as many people around as she would have liked to have hear it, but

Sheila Paton's message was still the same.

The state Legislature needs to do something about funding public schools prop-

Paton, who co-chairs Plymouth-Canton's Legislative Action Network, gave one of the keynote speeches last week at a rally in Lansing designed to let legislators know parents are concerned about the direction in which school funding is Paton said some 200 people showed up for the rally, including several Plymouth-Canton representatives.

"The rally went well, although attendance was much lighter than we would have liked," Paton said. "With the ... understanding that revenues are coming in better than expected, it is our hope these funds can be used to alleviate some of the cuts or pension increases."

It might be that someone is listening. Gov. Rick Snyder this week announced he's adding some $330 million to the school aid fund, based on better-than-expected revenue projections.

Paton is concerned that Snyder's hopedfor education reforms are coming without the funding necessary to implement them. She pointed out at the rally that Plymouth-Canton, the state's third-largest district, is having to cut some $18 million out of its budget this year.

At the rally, she pointed out Michigan has relied on federal stimulus money to maintain school funding the last couple of years. Indeed, that was a big lift in Plymouth-Canton, where the board has been making millions of dollars worth of cuts for years.

But that money stream has dried up, Paton said, and the state isn't doing much to replace it.

"Over the last two years Federal Stimulus funds have allowed the state to maintain school funding at a level equal to that of about 2008," Paton said in her speech at the rally. "Districts across the state have been cutting where ever possible in an effort to minimize cuts to the classroom."

Districts have been asked to do more with less for years, Paton pointed out, and "enough is enough." She and cochair Denise Zander have been making this case to anyone who would listen for months now. They made it last week at a town hall meeting in West Bloomfield/Walled Lake, and Paton was at this week's Plymouth-Canton Board of Education meeting to urge parents to let their Legislators know what they're

"We're urging parents to write to their Legislators urging them to use the additional revenue to fund schools," said Paton, just a couple of days before the governor did just that. "We're urging people to write as soon as possible, because things are happening very fast in Lansing."

Coming state tax changes praised, dreaded LEGISLATORS

BY MATT JACHMAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Roger Runyon is cheering the elimination of the Michigan Business Tax, part of sweeping changes to the state tax code that will be ushered in with Gov. Rick Snyder and the Michigan Legislature's new budget plan.

"This will be the biggest and best change that we've seen in a long time," said Runyon, the chief financial officer at Frazo Forklifts, headquartered in Plymouth Township.

But Darryl Duwe of Plymouth Township is dreading the changes. A former autoworker on a disability retirement, Duwe is likely to be among those hit by the coming changes in tax exemptions, for retirees under age 67, that now apply to pension income.

"I'm just barely making ends meet now," said Duwe, who is 53 and worked as a skilled tradesman at General Motors Corp. for 26 years. "Now they're going to tax me some more."

Runyon and Duwe are at opposite ends of the spectrum of individuals and businesses affected by the tax changes, which supporters say will lower the tax burden on businesses and allow them to expand and hire more employees. Critics of the plan say business taxes are being cut at the expense of retirees and low-income workers.

TAX SHIFT

"Michigan's complex, unwieldy and unfair tax structure has been a major impediment to economic growth," said Snyder in a press release after the plan was approved by the Michigan Legislature on May 13. "By bringing greater fairness and simplicity to the system. we are correcting longstanding inequities, protecting lowincome families and paving the way for economic expansion."

The MBT, often criticized as overly complex, is being replaced by a 6-percent corporate tax, and many smaller businesses that don't have stock will be exempt from it, with those companies paying through their owners' personal income taxes. The changes represent a business tax cut that's estimated at $1.7 billion for 2012.

The plan does eliminate many of the tax credits and incentives some businesses enjoy, the most prominent of those being the incentives for the film and television industry.

Retirees under age 67, on the other hand, will be subject to the state's 4.35-percent income tax on at least some pension income. Currently, income from private pensions of less than about $45,000 a year (double that for married couples filing jointly) is exempt from state income taxes. Income from Social Security and military pensions will not be subject to the state income

'ANOTHER HIT'

It's the looming pension tax that worries Duwe, who said he gets by on a GM pension of just under $15,000 a year.

"I can't hardly take another hit of any sort," he said.

When he retired in 2001 with a lung disease, and after his wife died, Duwe had a Social Security disability benefit of about $27,000 a year, plus his GM pension, he said. But the disability payment was taken from him in 2008, he said, and the Social Security Administration has refused to hear his appeal.

'They're saying the health is better, and I have data from a doctor, a pulmonologist, that says otherwise," he said.

His income cut by about twothirds, Duwe lost his house in Plymouth Township last year. "Now I'live in a small one-bedroom apartment," he said.

He also canceled his medical insurance when GM imposed a premium co-pay of $260 a month, he said. He's signing up for a cheaper plan, he said, but one that will provide much less coverage. "At least it's something," he said.

Duwe, whose father and grandfather also retired from General Motors, said he's uncertain how he's going to budget once the pension tax kicks in. He's downsized to a smaller car, he said, has reached out to the Salvation Army for food and has applied for a state Bridge Card for food assistance.

"I really don't know what I'm going to do," he said.

HIRING EXPECTED

At Fraza Forklifts, which employs about 70 people at its Plymouth Township headquarters and has four other locations in the state, Runyon said the company's effective tax rate should be cut from about 28 for 2010 — he wrote a tax check just weeks ago - to 6 percent. Runyon cautioned he's not yet sure what exemptions will be allowed for corporate taxpayers, but that the net result should be a dramatic tax decrease.

'We think that this change is going to allow us to add two to four people," he said.

Fraza is a forklift sales and servicing company, offering Caterpillar and other brands, and Runyon said the company is in need of support workers in areas such as administration, accounting and service management.

Furthermore, Runyon said, the simplification of the formula will save time spent on tax preparation and money now paid to an outside accounting firm for tax work. He estimates the tax accounting bill will go from about $3,000 a year to $400 or $500 a year.

• Dumps the MBT and replaces it with a 6-percent corporate income tax.

 Includes a tax on some pensions, though Snyder and legislative leaders agreed to continue the exemption as is for those who will be 67 and older in 2012.

 Restores the state Earned Income Tax Credit for working poor people to 6 percent of the federal credit; it is 20 percent currently.

Slavens wasn't the only critic of the plan. Not a single Democrat in the House or Senate cast a vote for the plan. Lt. Gov. Brian Calley was forced to cast a tie-breaking vote in the Senate.

"We need to get rid of the MBT, there's no question about that," Slavens said. "We want to help businesses out, but not on the backs of our seniors, the working poor or the schools. I think if he had phased it out, that would have been better." Heise said the tax package was necessary to bring back jobs to Michigan. He said the pension tax was the result of a compromise that would leave elder Michiganians unaffected.

PLAN CONSTITUTIONAL?

"If you're 67 or older you see no impact ... there are caps if you're in the 59-67 age range, and Social Security isn't taxed," Heise said. "You had to look at the overall package. That, to me, is the centerpiece of why we came here. That tax package is what's going to bring back jobs to Michigan."

But Colbeck, while "strongly supporting elimination of the MBT," thinks the changes to the pension tax structure could be constitutionally challenged.

"While I support the repeal of the Michigan Business Tax, I oppose several other elements of the tax policy that passed the Senate today and voted no on the legislation," Colbeck said. "The removal of pension tax exemptions is very likely to face constitutional challenges. These challenges hold the risk that the revenue projections forecast will not be realized. If the risk becomes a reality, we will have failed to balance the budget, thereby continuing our structural budget deficit.

Colbeck acknowledged he voted in favor of the legislation in committee before voting against it on the floor.

"I disagreed with the proposal, but I wanted to get it onto the floor," Colbeck said. "I voted to report it out so we could get the process moving. I'm strongly against the pension tax. People who know me know that."

The governor wants his budget passed by the end of the month. That means anyone hoping to get the governor's ear, or the ears of legislators, particularly on school funding, better move fast.

Just how much money will be cut from school aid is still being worked out, said Bill Ballenger, publisher of Inside Michigan Politics, the legislative news letter. But if somebody is going to contact legislators about the budget, he said, "they'd better do it soon."

computer applications class, said that kind of ability starts at home.

"It speaks very highly of them and of their parents," Rutecki said of their academic success. "They're so fast at picking things up. Anything I introduce, they're both right there."

COMPUTER STRATEGY

When they're not excelling in school, the twins acknowledge a lot of their fun comes on the computer, playing realtime strategy games such as Age of Empires. They haven't been much for competitive sports — "We've done mostly academics our whole lives," Scott said — but when they want something a little more physical, they hit the ping-pong table. So who's better? The twins just smile at the question.

"We've played each other so often, it gets pretty intense," Peter said. "It's a little different when we play other people."

They've reached a level of success few students hit, according to district officials. When ACT officials told the district of the four perfect scores, they said less than one-tenth of 1 percent of all test-takers earn the perfect score. In the current class, for instance, 1.6 million students took the test nationwide and only 588 earned the perfect

What sets the twins apart, according to their teachers, is the brilliance they display without "acting the part."

"They have the kind of personality you'd want them to have," physics teacher Angela Brown said. "It's a brilliance without the arrogance that sometimes comes with it. They're helpful with everybody in class. They gladly help without pushing themselves on people."

Brown said hard work is the key to the twins' success, although she points out that their style isn't necessarily an academic process she'd normally push.

"I almost hate to say it, but they ace everything without having to take a note," she said, smiling.

The brothers aren't in a rush to figure out what they want to do with their lives: They don't know where they want to go to college — "MIT is always a target," Peter said — but figure they have time to worry about that. They're excellent at math, but science is their favorite subject, and they figure they'll do something in that realm. "There's such a nice ability to solve everyday problems,"

Scott said. "The labs are pretty fun to do."

For now they have their senior year to worry about. So far, though, they've provided some inspiration.

"In this day and age, it makes you feel good," said Brown, who has the twins in her honors physics class. "When there's so much about education that's bringing you down, it makes you feel good. It helps you remember why you went into education."

Area students and their families were honored Thursday morning at the Observer & *Eccentric Newspapers*Academic All-Star Awards
Ceremony at Birmingham's
Townsend Hotel.

Students, parents, sponsors and OSE staff members were treated to an elegant breakfast buffet at the Townsend, a long-time partner of the Academic All-Star Awards Program.

Students received special awards and gifts to mark the annual team, which highlights academic excellence in western Wayne and Oakland counties. The all-star team is selected based solely on academic credentials (grade-point average in academic subjects and national test scores - ACT or SAT). Each public, private and parochial school in the O&E coverage area is invited to nominate two students. Students named as runnersup (53) also are profiled in the special print section published May 15.

Joining in honoring the 25-member team of students was Karen Sanborn, director of marketing at Madonna University. The Livonia-based university is a longtime supporter and sponsor of the program. Also attending was Lori Mouton, vice president of marketing for DMC Children's Hospital. The hospital, a member of the Detroit Medical Center, is a new partner of the all-star program.

Principals who served as judges for this year's team also attended — Terry Piper of Seaholm High School (who is retiring in June after 41 years in education), Carolyn Witte of Mercy High School and Charlie Hollerith of Lahser High School.

Other principals attending to support their students named to this year's team included Fred Proctor of Groves High School, David Kozlowski of Brother Rice High School, Randy Gawel of Berkley High School and Robert Dureka of Andover High School.

"This team marks the 26th year that the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers has honored and celebrated academic excellence in our hometowns. At the core of our mission as a local company is 'enhancing the lives of our readers and nurturing the communities we serve," said Susan Rosiek, publisher of the Observer & Eccentric.

"We can't think of a better way to fulfill this mission than to profile the best and brightest of students in area schools and show the residents in our communities what is good and right with young people and education today."

Career Tech students honored by state for 'Breaking Traditions'

Two students at the William D. Ford Career-Technical Center in Westland are have been recognized by the state for "Breaking Traditions."

Megan Redmond and Jacob McFalls were among 23 students from across the state to receive honors. The awards were presented by the Michigan Department of Education through its Office of Career and Technical Education, at May 12 ceremony at the Library of Michigan in Lansing. Presenting the awards were Patty Cantu, director of the Office of Career and Technical Education; Dr. Joanne Mahony, office supervisor, and Norma R. Tims, the office's Gender Equity/Title IX Coordinator.

The "Breaking Traditions" awards were established to recognize students who have shown excellence in their Career and Technical Education program in programs that are nontraditional for their gender.

Redmond, a Culinary Arts student, was selected for the merit award and received a trophy. Her instructor, Chef Anthony Paquette had nominated her noting that she embraced the philosophy of hospitality where taking care of others needs are foremost.

In her application, Redmond said that her grandmother inspired her to prepare food professionally and pursue a career in this field. Some of the activities she has participated in that earned her this award were being an active member of SkillsUSA competitions, serving as a tutor and mentor to younger students in the culinary program, and assisting with the Thanksgiving Family Resource Center Charity Luncheon where she helped earn $4,000.

Jacob McFalls practices bandaging during his Health Occupations class.

She has offered her time to participate in other extracurricular catering events, including the Westland Chamber of Commerce's Taste of Westland, helping the culinary program earn first place two years in a row in competition with other community food and catering businesses.

Redmond has received perfect attendance awards, has been a role model in the Positive Behavior Support program and earned a Civic Leader Certificate for completing 40 hours of community service. She recently found out she was the recipient of the Westland Community Foundation scholarship which she will use to continue her culinary education at Schoolcraft College.

McFalls received a certificate recognizing his accomplishments in Health Occupations where he specialized in Diagnostic Services with the college career goal of sports physical therapy. He was nominated by his Health Occupations instructor Ruth Ann Petres, who noted that he demands excellence from himself yet is humble and quiet as he works with a positive attitude helping others.

"There are several benefits to being a part of a nontraditional career field, all of which are amazing, not only have I learned skills about nursing and sports medicine, but I also learned how to interact with others, giving me a head start communicating with patients," he said in his application. "I find that the students in class, though, primarily female, look to me now as a role model."

McFalls has been on his high school honor roll all four years, plus two years in the National Technical Honor Society and Health Occupations Students of America (HOSA), competing both years at regional competitions. He is certified in AHÂ and BLS for Health Care Providers and National Safety

He has also been a classroom mentor, tour guide for visitors, participated in fundraisers for homeless shelters and "Christmas Angels," buying gifts and clothing for needy children, worked in Red Cross blood drives and held clinical placements at a convalescent center and sports rehab facility.

"These outstanding students are preparing themselves to enter a career that will benefit them individually and benefit Michigan by increasing diversity in our state's workforce." State Superintendent of Instruction Mike Flanagan said. "By their determination and dedication to pursuing careers in an area nontraditional for their gender, they are role models for peers who may be considering such a career path."

In addition to being nominated, each applicant was required to provide two letters of support and write a brief narrative explaining his or her choice of career, obstacles faced and key accomplishments.

Budget deal has some financial relief for W-W

BY SUE MASON OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Finances for the Wayne-Westland Community Schools will still be a challenge for fiscal 2011-12, but it's looking a little bit better following Gov. Rick Snyder's announcement about a budget deal Thursday.

"In order to hit our bottom line, we're still going to have to do significant belt tightening, but it looks a little bit brighter than a few days ago," said Gary Martin, deputy director for administrative and business services.

The district has been facing a potential $14.5 million revenue loss, but the budget deals brokered between the governor and state lawmakers could reduce that figure to roughly $8.9 million, due in part to a partial restoration of the districts equity funding it has been receiving en lieu of millage disallowed with the start of Proposal A in 1994.

The district had been receiving $6 million in equity funding, however, Snyder labeled it a categorical and axed it from his proposed budget, school officials, including Superintendent Greg Baracy, have been lobbying lawmakers to get the money restored. Coupled with a $300 per pupil cut on school aid and an almost 4 percent increase in retirement costs, Wayne-Westland stood to lose the most money - $1,150 per student - under the governor's proposal.

Martin credits State Rep. Kurt Heise, R-Plymouth, with getting the partial restoration, and the work of State Sen. Glenn Anderson and State Rep. Richard LeBlanc, behind the scenes on behalf of the district.

'Kurt Heise was especially helpful in working diligently with a majority of the folks on the committees, he gave it enough oomph to get it through, but we're not quite to the finish line," he said. "It wasn't a very popular subject to consider, but it was an equity issue not pork barrel. They all worked very, very hard on our behalf, they were very helpful to us."

The equity funding as signed into law by then Gov. John Engler represented 40 percent of what the district lost under Proposal A. The new agreement, if it makes it through to the governor's signature, will be just 20 percent. No matter, "we're happy about it," Martin said.

Under the agreement, K-12 schools will receive $330 million more for funding for 2011-2012. Of that amount, $150 million distributed to districts which adopt best practices and $160 million to defray rising teacher retirement costs.

Martin isn't sure how the money for retirement costs will be dispersed. It represents $100 per student and offsets what would have been $205 per student cost.

Trail unveiling part of River Day activity

BY DARRELL CLEM
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

A twofold milestone awaits bicyclists, joggers and other outdoor enthusiasts as organizers prepare to formally unveil a newly restored of the I-275 recreation pathway from Canton to Novi and the improved Lower Rouge River Recreation Trail, now connected by pedestrian bridges from the interstate west to Canton Center Road.

The celebration occurs 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 4 — coinciding with River Day — and dozens of events are planned, rain or shine, across communities such as Canton,
Plymouth and Livonia.

Jubilant recreation leaders say the official opening of the two recreation trails marks the culmination of hopes and dreams that began more than a decade ago.

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, May 22, 2011

"We've been working on it for 11 years," Bob Belair, assistant township engineer for Canton, said, referring to plans to connect the Lower Rouge River Recreation Trail with a series of eight wooden pedestrian bridges.

Belair estimated the entire project, mostly paid for with county and state grants, cost some $2 million.

John Bailey, spokesman for the I-275 Metro Trail, estimated that project cost $4 million — primarily, he said, using federal grant dollars.

BIG IMPROVEMENT

Planners say the projects signal a vast improvement for recreation offerings in western Wayne County, using dollars set aside prior to a sharp economic downturn.

Bailey said the I-275 trail has been "completely rebuilt" between Michigan Avenue and Hines Drive, with smaller-scale repairs made along the stretch that continues north to Meadowbrook Road in Novi.

"It's a major milestone because that trail had been falling into serious disrepair," Bailey said. "I think we've got the momentum (and volunteers) now to keep that trail in good shape."

A section of trail south of Michigan Avenue remains closed for repairs, but Belair said it is expected to open later this year. It's all part of a 40-mile recreation trail that runs through communities such as Canton, Plymouth, Livonia, Farmington Hills, Northville Township and Novi.

The trail improvements mark one of the biggest facelifts the I-275 trail has witnessed since it opened in the 1970s. It couldn't be more welcome news for people like Bailey, who rides his bike along the path three or four days a week, as much as 15 miles weekdays and 25 miles

Belair said more and more bicyclists, hikers and other nature enthusiasts also are starting to use the Lower Rouge trail, which can be accessed from Canton Center near Palmer and followed all the way to I-275. It's a pristine trail that users say provides a peaceful escape from the bustling township it intersects.

Audience grills Walsh about Canton Cup kicks back taxes at town hall meeting

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The president of the Citizens Research Council believes new lower taxes on Michigan businesses should increase the return on capital invested in Michigan leading to greater investment and economic growth.

"Dollars appropriated for economic development will spur investment," said Jeff Guilfoyle. Guilfoyle, who leads the Livonia-based nonprofit, nonpartisan CRC, highlighted the state budget at a Town Hall meeting Tuesday at Schoolcraft College, hosted by State Rep. John Walsh, R-Livonia.

But Guilfoyle also added a caveat: that the overall tax change in Michigan is "revenue neutral" - that the tax increase on seniors and lowincome workers will reduce their consumption, which has a negative impact on Michigan's economy.

That fact wasn't lost on some of the audience members, who questioned Walsh on the proposed cuts in the school aid fund and proposed taxes on some pensions, proposed increases in state employee contributions to pensions and more cost burdens falling on school employees for health insurance.

GUILFOYLE: 'THINGS AREN'T GREAT'

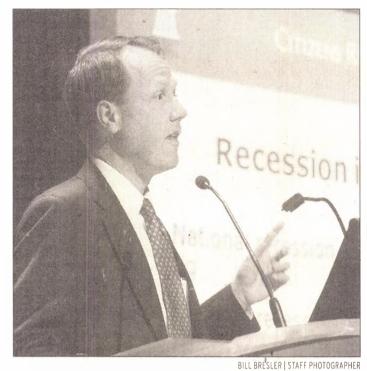

Guilfoyle highlighted several items about this year's budget and the economy:

• The stock market hit a low point in March 2009, but has doubled since then. It is still down 7 percent from January 2008, Guilfoyle said. "Things aren't great," Guilfoyle said. "They are just better than the low point."

 In Michigan, employment has dropped 17.4 percent or one in every six jobs was lost in the past decade. "There is nothing good to say about the last 10 years in Michigan except that it's over," Guilfoyle said.

 Transportation equipment manufacturing jobs fell dramatically from 346,000 in 2000 to 131,000 in 2010. But that number is showing signs of rebounding slightly.

• Unemployment fell in Another audience member

Michigan from 14 percent to 10.3 percent. While that number isn't great, Guilfoyle said, it appeared the number is improving as the economy slowly rebounds. "A 2 percent employment growth is noticeable," Guilfoyle said. "You will notice it, and things will feel a lot better."

• While significant budget cutting has occurred, it has not matched the dramatic decline in revenues — the gap has been filled with stimulus aid and other one-time revenue. To address the $1.4 billion budget gap, the state is looking at $180 million in employee concessions, including pension and health care

AUDIENCE CRITICAL

Terry Cannon of Livonia asked why the state didn't wait to get the revenue figures on the budget released on Monday before proposing next year's budget. Walsh told him that many school districts wanted the state to finish that process before May 31 so that school officials knew their anticipated revenue before they completed their budgets.

One member of the audience told Walsh that seniors are on a fixed income. "They can't afford when they pay now," he said. Even with the phase-in tax program, credit was cut. Walsh said the state could not afford the program in its entirety, but added that $100 million was still there. "We cut that because we can't afford it, but we didn't want to completely abandon it either," Walsh said.

Another audience member wondered why anyone would enter the teaching field as salaries fall and they would pay more for health insurance. "If you want a solid state, you need to have a solid education system," he said. "Why would anyone come to this kind of state?"

Walsh said teachers still made "more than average" salary. Walsh admitted he wasn't making these decisions happily. "The public sector is the last one to go through this (pay cuts and concessions)," Walsh said. "The private sector already went through it."

New Marine drops 130 pounds to join Corps' ranks

One of the Marine Corps' graduates this month began his journey to become a Marine long before he stepped on the Yellow Footprints in December.

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, May 22, 2011

At one time, all it took was a flight of stairs to tire out Pfc. David Bessey, with Platoon 2038, Echo Company, 2nd Recruit Training Battalion. When the Livonia resident first attempted to join the military in November 2009, he said he weighed 307 pounds and was turned away by every recruiter he visited.

"I always wanted to join the military," said Bessey. "I wasn't able to for a while because of my weight."

A year out of high school, he took up a job that funded a gym membership for him.

"I couldn't afford a trainer so I would get people to show me things and research different workouts to do," he said.

Bessey said he would work out for up to 10 hours a week, and after the first nine months, he had lost 60

Once his friend Lance Cpl.

Ron Mitchellfoster came home from training, he and Bessey saw a recruiter, and for the first time he was taken seriously and permitted to join the Delayed Entry Program. The journey to shipping out was not finished. After nine months in the DEP, Bessey lost an additional 40 pounds.

"It was tougher this time," he said. "I began to backslide because the weight was harder to lose. My recruiters did not give up on me. They stayed with me when it got difficult.'

After more than a year of working toward his ultimate goal of joining the military, Bessey arrived at Marine Corps Recruit Depot Parris Island in December with Lima Company, 3rd Recruit Training Battalion.

His journey to become a Marine was sidetracked when one of his lungs collapsed and he developed pneumonia. The illness removed him from active training for six weeks.

He said thinking about his parents motivated him through training. They really wanted to see me graduate," he said. In February he picked up with Echo Company on Training Day 4, dropping back nine days in training.

After recovering from pneumonia, Bessey continued pushing himself.

"My main motivation is: I just want to finally make it through," Bessey said. "I put too much effort in now. I had to fight just to stay in training, and I've struggled after coming back to training and getting my strength back up. I'm just really excited to start my tour."

After more than five months on the depot, Bessey had shed another 30 pounds.

To date, Bessey has lost 130 pounds since he began the life-changing journey to earn the title of Marine. He has completed hikes, grueling obstacle and endurance courses, long runs and the Marine Corps Martial Arts Program training during his time on the depot. Those flights of stairs shouldn't bother him anymore.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Many people are wrongly rejected when they apply for Social Security Disability benefits. Money was taken out of their paychecks for Social Security taxes to ensure that they would receive disability benefits if they could no longer work full-time. Sadly, the government denies approximately 60% of those who apply for disability benefits.

Attorney J.B. Bieske can often make a winning difference at the application stage. And, if an appeal is necessary Bieske has won several hundred cases before a court date is

Those denied can appeal on their own but statistics for many years reveal that those represented by attorneys win a much higher percentage of appeals. And attorneys who specialize in Social Security Disability cases win a much higher percentage yet.

Attorney Bieske has represented only Social Security Disability clients for over 27 years. That is the only type of law he practices. And, he personally meets with all clients and appears himself at all court hearings. Many large firms assign clients to young associate attorneys with much less experience; and often these firms aren't even based in Michigan.

In addition to practicing only Social Security disability law Bieske has written a book for attorneys about the subject, He also has been interviewed on various radio and television programs and has given speeches to many groups.

Attorney Bieske welcomes you to call him to determine if you may be eligible for these benefits. He offers a free phone or office consultation. If Bieske represents you, there will be no fee charged until after the case is won. The fee is a percentage of retroactive benefits.

In a recent radio interview attorney Bieske explained that many people are not even aware that they are eligible for Social Security Disability benefits. You may be eligible even if you have retired and are receiving a pension. If you have an illness or injury (whether or not related to your work), are under 65 and unable to work fulltime you may be eligible. Social Security Disability benefits are based on your work record or your deceased spouse's work record (Widow's/ Widower's benefits).

It's never too early to begin saving for retirement

Q: Dear Rick: I just graduated from college and I'm starting my first job. My dad has strongly recommended that I take advantage of the company's 401(k) Plan. The company offers a traditional 401(k) and a Roth. My dad recommends the Roth. Do you agree? The company uses Vanguard and I basically can use any Vanguard fund. Any suggestions? A: Congratulations on graduating and getting your first job. There is no greater investment than a college education. Although a college education does not necessarily pay dividends immediately, it does pay off in the long run. Hopefully, as you begin your career you'll begin to reap some of the rewards of the investment you made in yourself. On saving for your retirement, I agree with your father. I cannot stress enough how important it is to begin to save for your retirement the day you start working. Someone like you will probably be retired for more years that you

ing to save for your retirement. I recommend saving the maximum amount possible. You cannot have too much money in retirement. The sacrifices you make today will pay tremendous dividends down the road. Consider your parents' generation. The baby boomer generation, which is beginning to retire, has done a miserable job of saving for the future. There will be many baby boomers who will have to work for the rest of their lives. They will find that retirement is not the reward they had hoped for. By beginning to save for your retirement now, you'll assure yourself of options and opportunities in the future — something that many in your parents' generation will never have.

With regards to the Roth or the traditional options, once again, your dad is right on. For you, investing money that can grow on a tax-free basis is a huge opportunity you should take advantage of.

As I have said many times, retirement is a brand-new concept in the history of mankind and it's not something that past generations had to be concerned with. In today's world, it is something that everyone must plan for. Good luck!

Pastor fulfilled lifelong dream in publishing short-cut to Bible

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The Rev. Edward H. Einem of Livonia, who published his first-ever book last year at age 82, died May 5.

The book, titled Did Jesus REALLY say THAT? The Unpopular or Little Known Sayings of Jesus, was a lifelong dream of his, said his daughter, Sandy Kratzer of St. Louis.

He was working on a sequel when he died of complications of prostate cancer at University of Michigan Medical Center in Ann Arbor. He

"You asked if he was proud of finishing his book," Kratzer said. "Had you asked him, I think he would have used the words 'deeply fulfilled,' as he was always giving glory to God, and wanted all attention pointed to Him."

The Rev. Einem was founder and executive director of Detroit-based Project Compassion Ministries, which works to improve the quality of life of nursing home residents,

The Rev. Edward Einem of Livonia died May 5. He was on the board at Livonia Woods Nursing and Rehabilitation and published his first book at age 82.

before retiring in 2002. Through that ministry and as a former chaplain for Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn, Einem had bedside chats with many people, including nonbelievers and members of various Christian churches, who lacked a real understanding of Jesus' teachings.

That's what motivated him to write the 57-page paperback, a short cut to understanding who Jesus really was, based on the Bible. An accurate understanding means the difference between a person's spending eternity in heaven or hell, Rev. Einem said at the time of the book's publishing.

The book is being translated into German, and the Rev. Einem was planning to take copies of it to Germany in October, Kratzer said.

He was battling prostate cancer in December when the Observer profiled him and his book in its pre-Christmas edition. The week before Easter, he got pneumonia, and he was in and out of the hospital after that, Kratzer said. "Until the very end, he was very active."

The Rev. Einem was born and raised in Milwaukee, Wis. He served two years in the Army before receiving an honorable discharge. He and his cousin founded a construction company before the Rev. Einem enrolled in Concordia Seminary,

Springfield, Ill., in 1957 to begin five years of study for the Lutheran min-

After ordination, he established a mission congregation in Waukegan, Ill., then accepted a call to the Lutheran Home and Services for the Aged in Arlington Heights, Ill., as chaplain and assistant administrator. During this time he directed the development of a lay-visitation program for the Chicago area known as Project Compassion. In 1972, he accepted a call to Detroit to serve as chaplain at Oakwood Hospital and director of Project Compassion in the greater Detroit area.

In addition to his work with Project Compassion and Oakwood Hospital, the Rev. Einem served as the vacancy pastor at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Westland, as well as various other congregations. He served on the Synod's Board for Jewish Evangelism and as the chairman of the Lutheran Institute for Jewish Evangelism. He also authored several tracts published by Concordia Publishing House.

Pastor Einem was preceded in death by his wife of 57 years, Marion. In addition to his daughter, he is survived by two sons, Mark (Jane) of Northville, who is pastor of Christ Church of Redford, and John (Brenda) of Augusta, Kansas; five grandchildren and beloved friend Helen Barger.

Intensity rules at D1 track regionals

BY TIM SMITH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Livonia Stevenson's place in the MHSAA record books as 2011 Division 1 boys track and field regional champions had been secured much earlier than Friday's final event.

But there was Spartans senior Matt Williams - anchoring his team's 4-by-400 relay — busting it to the very end to outpace Canton's Kevin Buford and Salem's Dan Martin.

Thanks to that final push, Stevenson's relay team of Pat Smith, Adam Chludzinski, Zaid Shareef and Williams qualified for the state meet with a time of 3:26.1.

That was enough to edge Canton's group of Matt Schacht, Tyler Winningham, Scott Piwowar and Kevin Buford (3:26.23) and Salem's third-place unit (3:26.77).

And that was the kind of day witnessed by spectators at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park, who got much more than their five dollars' worth.

Solid depth across the board sparked Stevenson, which led the field with 106.5 points.

The Spartans won with room to spare, despite only winning in the 800, 1,600 and 3,200-meter relays.

Stevenson's Chludzinski, Joe Urso, Shareef and Williams also broke a school record in the 3,200 relay with a time of

"We took points in 15 out of 17 events," Spartans head coach Scott Shaw said. "So when you score in just about every event, that's pretty key."

Also key was Williams, who captured the 800 run with his best-ever time of 1:57.5. "He's a good athlete for us," Shaw

SLIDING INTO SECOND

Placing second with 80 points was Canton, passing Dearborn (77 points) in the 4by-400 relay.

"I thought going into the meet that we'd be one of the top three teams," Canton head coach Bob Richardson said. "And as it came down to it we were tied for second with one relay to go, and the kids came through."

For the Chiefs, Ben Spreitzer placed first in the high jump, with his 6-foot, 5-inch tally nipping second-place Tre Goynes of Redford Union (6-Spreitzer also won the 300 hurdles in 40.26. Also qualifying in that event was Joe Amado of Salem (second, 40.27), who also qualified by winning the 110 hurdles (15.66).

Among those joining Spreitzer at the D1 state meet will be teammates Rvan Jones (first, 100 dash), Nick Alaniva (first, pole vault) and the 400meter relay team of Piwowar,

Canton Cup Soccer

The 29th Annual Canton Cup Soccer Tournament will take place Friday through next Sunday on over 68 fields in Canton - with Independence Park at Cherry Hill and Denton roads being the main hub.

It is deemed the largest such tournament in Michigan, and will draw over 750 teams from the state and all over the Midwest. Teams will be comprised of boys (ages 8-19) and girls (ages 8-14) with each team slated to play at least three games and reach the playoffs.

The tournament is presented by the Canton Soccer Club and is sanctioned by Michigan State Youth Soccer Association and the United States Youth Soccer Association. More than 50,000 spectators are expected.

Kicking off the tourney will be contests from 5-to-9 p.m. on Friday. Action continues from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and concludes with final games and award presentations from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Chiefs win share of division, to vie for conference title

BY TIM SMITH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

It was almost dark Thursday before light was shed on the question as to whether Canton or Livonia Churchill would prevail as KLAA South Division baseball champions.

And even then it was rather murky. Both teams divided a doubleheader, with the Chargers winning 7-4 in the opener but falling 5-1 in the nightcap which ended at 8:53 p.m.

That meant the teams officially won a share of the KLAA South title with 13-3 records. It is Churchill's first division championship (albeit a co-title) since 1976, head coach Ron Targosz

The games were played at Churchill, although they were originally slated for Canton. On Wednesday, rain forced action to be halted in the second inning.

Early Thursday, with the Chiefs home field still unplayable, it was decided to switch sites.

"I wasn't happy about it but you still got to play the games," Canton head coach Mark Blomshield said.

GOING FOR IT

Canton (20-4, 13-3) led 4-1 entering the bottom of the sixth, needing to score one run to gain the edge in run differential.

A pinch single to center by senior Jason Lynch opened the frame and junior courtesy runner Greg McCurry scurried around to score on a two-out single to left-center by senior catcher Seth Tschetter.

"We were fortunate enough to scrape out a run," Blomshield said. "Seth came through with a big two-out hit as he's done many, many times."

Tschetter, who hit the ball on the screws but with little to show for it all day, smiled about finally getting one to

Wet spring can't dampen spirits of golf rivals

BY TIM SMITH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The weather this spring, to put it bluntly, has been pretty lousy for golfing. But the Plymouth and Canton varsity boys golf teams didn't care last week about the rain or soggy terrain either at Fox Hills or Hilltop golf courses.

All that mattered was being able to compete against each other.

The Wildcats did get the best of the Chiefs on back-to-back days, however. On Tuesday at Fox Hills (Plymouth's home course), the Wildcats won by a 158-170 score and followed up Wednesday at Hilltop with a 160-169 triumph.

"It's fun, cross-campus the kids know each other so well," Wildcats head coach Chris Moore said. "It's just fun, one way or the other, win or lose it's just fun to play against those guys."

Canton head coach Tom Alles agreed, noting that the back-to-back matches is becoming an annual centerpiece for the teams.

"We typically schedule it this way amongst ourselves," Alles said.

Chiefs clinch title with 7-0 rout

Ally Krause and Janine Kozlowski tallied two goals apiece Thursday as host Canton wrapped up the KLAA South Division girls soccer title with a 7-0 victory over Livonia Franklin on the varsity turf field at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

Kayln Berinti, Robyn Mack and Melanie Pickert also scored goals for the victorious Chiefs, who improved to 8-4-1 overall and 8-2 in the KLAA South.

Canton will travel Monday to face KLAA Central Division champion and top-ranked Novi for the Kensington Conference title. (Game time is 7 p.m.)

Franklin (5-10-2, 4-5-1) got a sterling effort in goal from Alexis Smith, who finished with 18 saves.

Northville jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first half, and the Rocks (7-6-2, 5-4-1) tried to fight back, but to no avail.

PITCHING IN

Earlier in the game, the Chiefs (who were the home team even though the games were at Churchill) went up 2-0 on RBI singles by senior first baseman Robby Golematis and junior right fielder Mitch Clinton off Chargers starting pitcher Ben Matigian.

Churchill sliced that lead in the third to 2-1 when shortstop Alex Tsakos hit a sacrifice fly to score junior Brent Ochodnicky (who doubled).

Canton answered in the bottom half with two more runs, both on a home run to left-center by senior shortstop Chris Perkovich.

"He owes me for that one," Blomshield chuckled. "We were trying to work on a hit-andrun, to get things going.

"He stayed back on that curve ball. ... I forced him to swing and he put a good barrel on it and he just hit it over the fence."

The lead held up thanks to the outstanding pitching of Stafford, who allowed only three hits and struck out four.

It was his first complete game and it couldn't have come at a better time for the Chiefs.

"To get to where we want to go you need a couple guys," Blomshield said. "He's a lefthander who can throw lowto-mid 80s with good stuff, but he's been having trouble getting later into games.

"I just told him 'We need you to go the game today."

In the much-delayed first game, the Chargers picked up where they left off on Wednesday.

Churchill had loaded the bases with no outs against Canton senior pitcher Ryan Bazner when the game was stopped.

The first batter he faced on Thursday after play resumed was Rybinski, who singled to make it 1-0. But Bazner got tough and struck out the side to limit the damage that frame.

Churchill took a 2-0 lead in the third on an RBI hit by Stephen Foster only to have the Chiefs score twice in the bottom half on hits by Perkovich and Bazner.

Both teams scored two runs $\,$ in the fourth, which began with a 45-minute rain delay and ended 4-4.

Churchill scored on RBI singles by Connor Dwyer and Matigian; the Chiefs answered on run-scoring singles by senior second baseman Bernabe Salinas and Perkovich.

GIVE HIM THE BALL

The Chargers then scored three times in the fifth against junior reliever Vaughn Birchler.

An error broke the tie and two insurance runs came in on a clutch single to right by Dwver.

Meanwhile, starting pitcher Ochodnicky settled down and gave up just one walk and one hit the rest of the game.

"I felt bad for him (Ochodnicky) too, just the way how screwy it was," Targosz noted. "He threw 30 pitches yesterday, and I asked him to make sure he was alright to come back because if not we were going to come with Ben (Matigian) in the first game

"But he said he was alright. Then we had the rain delay and he came back again. He battled, he kept wanting to go."

Churchill will play the second-place team from the KLAA Central on Monday, either Novi or Northville.

"They played hard, I can't fault them for anything," Targosz summarized. "Canton's a good team, we knew that. ... We just needed to score more runs, one run's not going to do it many days."

77 for 18) said playing matches on back-to-back days against Canton or any other team is good practice for upcoming tournaments.

DEALING WITH WEATHER

"It's fairly easy because they're nine-hole matches," said Heinze, about the dual meets. "But if there were 18hole tournaments you'd have to prepare before the match and just go out and play." According to Heinze and Moore, the soggy, chilly spring weather has been challenging. But golfers just have to take it in stride.

"We haven't been able to play a lot," Heinze said. "It's been kind of up and down. "One day you'll get out and play, the next day it's too cold or too windy to play." He added that the biggest impact of this year's weather has been on tee shots.

"You just hit your drive and then you get no roll on it," Heinze said. "And you could probably lose it because the ball plugs (gets buried in the turf)."

Moore said golfers are compensating for the loss of distance by hitting longer iron shots if necessary.

Hilltop (Canton's home course) apparently has been the more water-saturated of the two courses.

"We've just been playing mark, lift, clean and place,' Alles said. "That's what we do at Hilltop because it's so wet."

MATCH RESULTS

In Tuesday's meeting, Plymouth's Bauer and sophomore Ryan Rieckhoff were co-medalists (39 each) while Canton's top performer was sophomore Alex Champagne with a 39.

Other Plymouth results were: May, 40; CJ Thompson, and Steven Kirsch (44 each) and Mark Thompson, 47.

For Canton, trailing Champagne were Frank Parzynski, 40; Brent Perry, 44; Josh Maxam, 47; Brandon Laabs, 48; and Marty Peck, 50.

On Wednesday at par-35 Hilltop, Heinze was the medalist for the fourth time this season. He shot a 38.

Bauer followed with a 39 for the Wildcats (6-1) with other scorers including: John Tatti, 41; Rieckhoff, 42; Kyle Rodes, 43; and Craig Whatley, 48.

Canton's top golfer was Parzynski, with a 39 score. Rounding out the card for Canton were the following: Champagne, 40; Maxam, 44; Justin Legel, 46; Sal Ventura, 51; and Brent Perry, 53. On Thursday, Canton dropped to 2-6 overall with a 173-174 loss to Westland John Glenn at Hilltop.

The medalist for the Rockets was Josh DuPrie (39), with Canton's Parzynski next with a 40.

Champagne registered a 44 while Maxam and Legel tallied scores of 45 each. Chandler Berlin and Brian Galm finished with tallies of 47 and 48, respectively.

The three host schools - Plymouth (78.5), Salem (71) and Canton (56) — took fourth through sixth, respectively, just ahead of seventh-place Livonia Stevenson (53).

Redford Thurston, bolstered by Domonique Smith's firstplace showing in the 200-meter dash, placed eighth with 30 points.

The champion Chargers appear to be peaking at the right time after placing second at last week's KLAA Kensington Conference Meet.

"I think we out-willed a lot of people today," Daughtery said. "I couldn't have asked for anything more from the kids. It's the best we've been all year. Novi dominated the conference meet last week and we were second. Winning today makes up for that and for not winning the division meet."

Churchill scored in every event with the exception of the long jump.

Mahogany Miller got things rolling for the winners by winning the shot put. Miller's triumph proved to be the Chargers' lone first-place effort in the individual events, but the Chargers are so deep, it didn't

The Patriots placed second at the regional meet for the third consecutive year.

"I'm proud of the girls and how we finished the season off these last two weeks," Franklin head coach Dave Bjorklund said.

"I was hoping to score around 90 points. I thought that would maybe put us in a position to be up there and we were pretty close to that. Everybody we thought would qualify did, we were just hoping for one more. I'm real happy."

The Rockets launched one of their best regional finishes in recent memory, missing runnerup status by just one point. "The girls performed very well," John Glenn head coach James Fitzgerald said. "We had a great start, but we didn't finish as well as I would have liked. It's been a great season, though. We've gotten a lot out of these girls."

BEST FINISH

Plymouth was led by sophomore speedster Madi "The Missile" Lewis, who won the 400 and anchored the Wildcats' winning 800- and 1,600 relay foursomes.

But it was the Wildcats' depth that paced their best regional linish in school history

"It was a big meet and a lot of girls stepped up big time," Plymouth head coach Ricky Styes said. "This week, our coaches sat down and we talked about who had a chance (to qualify for the state meet). We talked about, in a perfect world, how many girls can we get out. And everybody on our list made it. The girls stepped up and ran their best races when we needed them to run their best races."

Salem's point barrage was sparked by freshman sensation Kayla Kavulich, who won the 1,600 and placed second in the

"We knew what Kayla was going to do, and she came through," Salem head coach Dale Maskill said. "But I'm impressed not just by our state qualifiers, but by the girls who scored points for us that we weren't necessarily expecting."

Maskill gave special props to pole-vaulter Nancy Krutty, who qualified for the state meet with a second-place effort of 10 feet, 1.5 inches — a whopping 14 inches higher than her previous personal best.

Smith stole the spotlight for Thurston with her incredible showing in the 200.

"Domonique is a very focused kid and a great athlete," Thurston head coach Al Chambo said. "Our relays didn't do as well as we would have liked, but she rebounded nicely and ran a tremendous 200 final.

"Now that she's able to just focus on one race the next two weeks, I think she has a good chance of scoring in the state meet. A lot of it just depends upon how deep the rest of the field is."

The conditions of the meet were close to ideal, especially considering last year's event was marred by sporadic thunderstorms that pushed the conclusion back to Saturday morning.

Chiefs win pair to nab Rookie share of title with 'Cats Whalers to showcase

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Two Plymouth-Canton Educational Park softball rivals will enjoy a share of the KLAA South Division championship but only one will have a crack at the conference and association titles.

Both Plymouth and Canton finished 9-1 in the division, following the Chiefs' doubleheader sweep of Livonia Churchill that began Wednesday and ended Friday after the game was suspended on back-to-back nights due

The Wildcats (17-6 overall) will face KLAA Central champion Northville on Monday because they won the tie-breaker (run differential within the division), coaches from both teams confirmed.

Canton (25-3) takes on South Lyon East, the second place team from the Central.

Canton won the opener against Churchill 7-5, riding the wave of a six-run first inning and outstanding relief pitching by freshman Hannah Warren. She struck out eight and gave up just two hits over the final four innings in relief of starter Alyssa Boucher.

CarolAnn Sexauer, Sam Partain and Heidi Lucke each had two hits in the win which was not concluded until Friday afternoon.

Then in Game 2 Friday, needing a victory to catch Plymouth, the Chiefs broke a 3-3 tie with three runs in the fourth to go on to a 6-3 win.

Getting things started with a double was Lucke and she scored on an infield single by Catherine Porter.

Central Michigan-bound Sexauer then launched a towering two-run homer to rightcenter, her fifth round-tripper of the year and fourth to clear the fences.

The 6-3 cushion was plenty for Warren, who again relieved Boucher and earned the save.

Homering for the Chargers (7-7, 5-5) was pitcher Natalie Hiser, a shot to left in the top of the third.

'CATS TROUNCE WAYNE

The Wildcats, meanwhile, finished divisional play as strongly as possible on Wednesday.

Sophomore pitcher Elaine Gerou threw two no-hitters (one being a perfect game) in 18-0 and 21-0 shellackings of host Wayne Memorial.

In the first game, Gerou struck out eight of the 10 batters she faced, allowing one walk and a foul out. The Wildcats scored seven runs in the second inning and 11 more in the third with big hitters including Bre Giordano (3-for-3), Brooke Senkbeil (2-for-4) and Allison Raylean (2-for-2, three runs, two RBI). Contributing a big triple and knocking in four runs was Kayla Rebain.

In Game 2, Gerou was perfect, striking out seven in another three-run mercy victory.

Senkbeil again had two hits, while Karen Rebain (1-for-2, three RBI), Cristy Pattison (1-for-1, three runs) and Gerou (1-for-2, two RBI) sparked the attack.

College Football Hall of Fame awaits Carr

BY BRAD EMONS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Retired Michigan football coach Lloyd Carr has never forgotten his

Just ask Chuck Gordon, who spent three seasons as an assistant at Westland John Glenn High under Carr.

On Tuesday, Carr was one of 16 inductees named to the 2011 College Football Hall of Fame announced by the National Football Foundation and College Football Hall of Fame.

The announcement was made Tuesday at the NASDAQ MarketSite in New York City's Times Square. The induction ceremony is scheduled for Dec. 6 at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

"We still talk every couple weeks," Gordon said. "One of the things people don't know is that he was a friendly and outgoing guy. And another thing you have to respect is the guys he met on the way up, he kept in contact with. We remain good friends and talk regu-

Gordon also knows a side of Carr that many haven't seen.

"One of the things people don't know, too, is that he has sense of humor," Gordon said, "He's funny and fun to be around. He wouldn't necessarily let that out with all the press and stuff, but behind the scenes, with the coaches and players, he was totally different. But he always knew when it was time to go to work. And when it was time to have fun, he was a fun guy to be around."

Carr and Air Force coach Fisher DeBerry are joined by 14 players, including Deion Sanders and Eddie George, that will be enshrined as members of this year's class.

John Glenn was Carr's first head coaching gig and Gordon, who had just been hired as a physical education teacher at Stevenson Junior High, applied for a varsity position on the new staff.

"I had coached the freshman one year at Blissfield," Gordon recalled. "I got hired in May of 1973. I expressed interest in coaching and there was a new guy at Glenn in Lloyd Carr and he hired me to coach the DBs and wide receivers.'

The two spent three seasons together as Glenn went from 2-6 in 1973, to 5-4 in 1974 and 8-1 in 1975 (as Carr earned Class A Regional Coach of the Year honors).

"The thing I remember is that he really had a passion for kids," said Gordon, who later became Glenn's head coach and went on to a Hall of Fame career himself with more than 200 victories with the Rockets. "He could motivate kids to play hard and play together. He cared about kids, not just as football players. He took an interest academically and the way they were behaving socially. All the things you're supposed to do in coaching.'

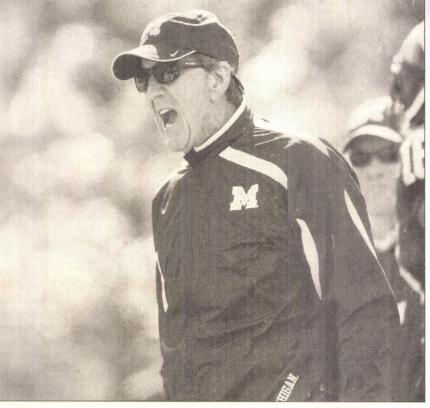

Carr's first collegiate coaching experience was 1976 as an assistant at Eastern Michigan University. He later coached with Gary Moeller at Illinois before returning to coach as an assistant under Schembechler at Michigan.

"You could tell one of his goals was to coach at the college level, but it's not something he made known every day," Gordon said.

Carr is the sixth Wolverines coach to be inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame, joining Fritz Crisler, George Little, Bo Schembechler, Elton "Tad" Wieman and Fielding H. Yost.

A native of Riverview, Carr's coaching career began as an assistant at Detroit Nativity High School (1968-69) and Belleville High School (1970-122-40 record, five Big Ten Conference titles and the 1997 national championship. He led the Wolverines to six 10win seasons. Carr trails only Yost (165-29-10) and Schembechler (194-48-5) in career victories at Michigan.

Carr was dominant in Big Ten play, boasting the conference's third-best overall winning percentage at 77.9 percent (81-23).

He trails only his mentor, Schembechler (.850), and Yost (.786), in all-time winning percentage.

He is just the eighth coach in league history to claim five or more championships. Carr was a part of 13 Big Ten championship teams during his U-M tenure, eight as an assistant and the five as head coach (1997, 1998, 2000, 2003 and 2004).

Carr led the Wolverines to the 1997 national championship, the school's first title in 49 years, with a 21-16 victory over Washington State in the 1998 Rose Bowl. He was named the national coach of the year by six different organizations following Michigan's climb

"It's an unbelievable honor," Carr told the Detroit Free Press. "If you're a college football coach and you have the great fortune to have the players that I had, that's really how I got there. You don't win games, you don't do the things this program's done unless you have not only great athletes, but great people who are willing to be part of a team and play a role.

"Their unselfishness is really the key. So we've had the great fortune of having so many great people and coaches. I owe a great deal to coach (Bo) Schembechler, coach (Gary) Moeller because they mentored me. That's how you get in to the Hall of Fame. I give them the credit and I'm honored."

Carr, who will also be inducted into the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame this fall, has been instrumental in the community, serving as co-chair of the capital campaign for the new C.S. Mott Children's Hospital.

theater camps

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN CORRESPONDENT

The next Glee star could be singing the summer away in Farmington Hills if Rachel Timlin has anything to say about it. The cultural arts coordinator is expecting the newest offering in a series of theater camps presented by Farmington Hills Special Services, Cultural Arts Division to be a hit.

One- and two-week camps run from June through August for grades 1-3 (one week) and 4-9 (two weeks) and cost $250 for residents, $265, nonresidents (one week), $450 and $465 (two weeks). A four-day intensive acting camp will take place Aug. 29-Sept. 1, and will focus on auditioning skills and character-building exercises for grades 4-6 and 7-10. Cost is $175 residents, $185 nonresidents.

The Next Stage helps singers build confidence and professional performance techniques (grades 6-12) June 27-July 1. The Aug. 1-6 Glee camp (grades 6-12) is designed for kids who love to sing. Each session runs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and costs $180 residents, $190 nonresidents.

"The Glee camp is a new program after the TV show and works with kids on how to sing and dance on stage. They'll be working toward performance at the barn in

Kids gain confidence, experience in the style of the television show about the high school choir," said Timlin. "We have three really good instructors: Brian Christian, director of the Farmington Hills Youth Choir, for singing; Bruce Pooley, a local performer in the group Rock n' Soul, on stage presence and fright, and Tumija Banks, dance instructor at Harrison High School, whose students have won awards." All camps are held at the Farmington Players Barn. Call (248) 473-1859, or visit www. fhgov.com.

IN LIVONIA

Emily Patton will tackle Greek plays this summer at Trinity House Theatre, 38840 W. Six Mile, Livonia. The camp runs 9 a.m.-3 p.m. July 18-22 for ages 9-16, with a performance at 2:30 p.m. Friday, July 22. Cost is $150, with a $25 discount for second child in the same family. Call (734) 464-6302 or send an e-mail to mail@trinityhouse.org or emilydpatton@yahoo.com.

Patton graduated in April from Eastern Michigan University with a master's degree in drama and theater for the young.

"I've done Greek theater in the past with youth," said Patton. "It's a challenge, a different language, not our everyday conversational speech, but still has stories that are powerful and meaningful to people today. One is about a young girl who stands up for what she believes in. I think that's good for youth to think about.'

Patton will combine rehearsals for the ancient plays with morning sessions including games and improvisation that focus on process. She also plans to bring in guest artists.

"I hope it's just a fun experience for them," Patton said. "I see theater as a way for youth to communicate and express themselves through voice and body in a creative way. I was a shy child. Theater helped get me past that."

Patton's father, Paul, founded Trinity House Theatre before she was born in 1983. By age 6 she was on stage. Along with the summer camp, Patton is teaching at Wild Swan Theater and performing at Shakespeare West in Ann Arbor through Blackbird Theatre.

CANTON CLASSES

The Village Theater at Cherry Hill, 50400 Cherry Hill at Ridge, Canton, is a 400-seat state-of-the-art performance center offering youth theater camps by resident companies this summer.

Spotlight Players presents drama camps (ages 5-18) 10 a.m.-2 p.m. July 18-22 and Aug. 15-19, and musical theater Aug. 1-5. Cost is $150. Call, (734) 480-4945 or send e-mail to youth@spotlightplayersmi.org. Information is available at www.spotlightplayersmi.org, click on Spotlight on Youth. All camps are divided by age.

"We always divide for individual attention," said Barbara Bloom, managing director, and a Novi resident. "We'll be playing theater games, doing improv, scene study, and culminate the week with the performance of a short play. They'll be required to learn some lines. It's for kids who have never done this to very seasoned. They learn from each other and help each other."

Bloom lets students cast the show. Everyone votes and is part of the selection process.

"It's amazing because they usually come up with the person who is the best performer for that role," said Bloom, who has directed more than 80 shows with companies like Birmingham Village Players and Stagecrafters in Royal Oak. Her career as a performer includes touring theater, movies, commercials and of late, Spotlight in a Trunk productions, that visit elementary and middle schools.

IMPROVING SKILLS

Forever After Productions focuses on creative movement, beginning and advanced acting, and musical theater productions of Mary Poppins and Beauty and the Beast during six weeks of camps that run July 5 to the end of August at The Village Theater. Camps range from $50 to $150 for kids ages 3-19. Call (734) 377-1639 or visit www.foreverafterproductions.com.

The live theater experience even includes an Aug. 22-26 camp for students to become their favorite Star Wars characters (ages 7-15).

"We hope to attract kids that want to improve acting skills, just have fun or have an introduction to theater," said Kyle Kaufmann who began working with the youth theater in 2004.

Forever After Productions plans to offer technical theater camps next summer. In the meantime kids learn about what goes on behind the scenes in the Explore Theater camp July 25-29.

"We're going to explain the technical aspects, tour the theater so they get to see where things happen," said Kaufmann.

PERFORMING IN PLYMOUTH

Drama coach, Sharon Belobraidich, will lead three weeks of performing arts camps this summer through Plymouth Uptown Players (PUPS) at the Plymouth Community Arts Council, 774 N. Sheldon. The Plymouth woman has directed the youth theater since 2002. No auditions are required for the camps that take place 10 a.m.-2 p.m. July 11-15, July 25-29, and Aug. 15-19, for ages 5-12. Cost is $135, $120 arts council member. Contact (734) 416-4278 or www.plymoutharts.

"We're going to do simple plays out of books, smaller plays than during the year, let the kids choose," said Belobraidich who taught first and second grade students in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools for 40 years. "We show them how to do costumes, make their own scenery. We'll be drilling lines, learn theater games. It's a nice experience and a great training program for them.'

Confidence building is one of the benefits of theater training. "They're never the same after they've been in front of 100 people," said Belobraidich. "That carries over to school to deliver a speech.'

SHARON BELOBRAIDICH, Drama coach at Plymouth Uptown Players

Dave Cooper couldn't agree more. He and Kimmy Elliott will help children, ages 8-12, explore musical theater 1-4 p.m. Aug. 8-12, and Aug. 22-26, at the arts council. Cost is $100, $90 member.

Cooper, 20 of Canton, has written and directed plays for TLC Productions at The Village Theater ande studied acting for six years. Elliott, a Plymouth High School graduate, has been in theater since fourth grade.

"It really is a wonderful experience," Cooper said. "I can guarantee once your child is on stage they will never be the same. They become confident young people."

SHOESTRING THEATRE

Patsy Durbin has seen the difference theater makes in children's lives as she teaches the drama and musical theater camps at Bailey Recreation Center (Westland Parks & Recreation), 36651 Ford Road. Call (734) 722-7620 or visit ci.westland.mi.us.

This summer Durbin's Shoestring Theatre Company presents half day and full day musical theater and drama camps. The half day camp introduces song, dance and storytelling tools 9:30 a.m.noon, June 20-24 and Aug. 8-12. Cost is $65 plus a $10 supply fee paid to the teacher.

The full day camp with crafts component runs 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m. June 20-24, and Aug. 8-12, and includes making costumes, props and sets. The cost is $120 plus a $30 supply fee. The week concludes with a performance at the Livonia Civic Center Library.

The full day musical theater and drama camp runs from 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m., July 11-15. Students rehearse and perform a short play based on a fairy or folk tale, or myth in addition to learning basic theater skills. They perform at 1 p.m. at the Livonia Civic Center Library on the last day of class. Cost $65 plus $20 supply fee.

For details, call Durbin at (734) 634-5906. All camps are for ages 6-14.

Durbin has a master's degree in drama and theater for the young from Eastern Michigan University. The Livonia woman has been teaching theater for children since 1988.

MotorCity Youth Theatre won't hold drama camps this summer because artistic director, Nancy Florkowski, will be studying in Russia. But children already have been cast for a production of Macbeth Aug. 12-14 at Grantland Street Playhouse, 27555 Grantland, Livonia. For information, contact (313) 535-8962 or www. mcyt.org.

Market CEO takes a bow for supporting ALS patients

Jim Hiller, CEO of Hiller's Markets, recently was honored by ALS of Michigan - Lou Gehrig's Disease and the Hiller ALS Clinic and Research Center.

The awards event also raised more than $90,000 to support programs and services for people with ALS and research into the cause, treatment, and cure of the disease.

Hiller, who owns markets in Plymouth, Ann Arbor, Northville, Berkley, Commerce Township, West Bloomfield and Union Lake, is passionately involved with organizations. His allegiance to the ALS community began when his mother, Harriet Hiller, was diagnosed with ALS. She lost her battle to the disease in 2000.

"When my mother was diagnosed with ALS, I promised

Marge and Jim Hiller attend the recent fundraiser for Lou Gehrig's Disease research and programs.

that I would work to find a cure for this terrible disease. This event is the chance for all of us the crowd. "We have assemthat ALS of Michigan's board bled a powerful partnership between ALS of Michigan, the physicians and researchers at Wayne State University School of Medicine and the Hiller ALS Center. Every bit of support we can muster makes a difference in this fight."

Hiller also was honored with special tributes by L. Brooks Patterson, Oakland County executive; Dr. Richard Lewis, director of the Hiller ALS Center; Sue Burstein-Kahn, executive director of ALS of Michigan; and Linda Hiller Novak, vice-president of ALS of Michigan Board of Directors; and Jim's sister.

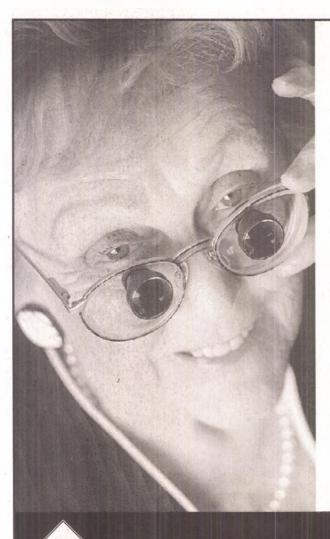

In recognition of his longtime support, Jay Welford, ALS of Michigan's board president and Burstein-Kahn presented unanimously voted to rename their communication center the "Hiller AAC Center at ALS of Michigan." AAC stands for Augmentative and Alternative Communication, and the Center is the only one of its kind in Michigan dedicated solely to helping people with ALS continue to communicate when they lose their ability to speak

> Lou Gehrig's Disease affects more than 30,000 people across the United States. In Michigan more than 1,200 people are currently battling the disease. ALS attacks the motor neurons in the brain and spinal cord that control the ability to move, speak, swallow and eventually breathe, while the mind stays fully aware.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

City of Plymouth NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING 2011/2012 PROPOSED CITY BUDGET

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held on Monday, June 6, 2011, at 7:00 P.M. in the portable band shell in Kellogg Park, or in the Commission Chambers of City Hall at 201 South Main Street in the event of inclement weather, for the purpose of discussing and receiving public comments on the proposed 2011/2012 City Budget.

Proposed 2011 City Millage Rates

The property tax millage rates proposed to be levied to support the proposed budget will be a subject of this hearing. The following statements are provided concerning the 2011 proposed millage levies for the City of Plymouth:

- The 2011 tax rate for City operating millage is proposed to be 11.3834 mills, which is the same as the 2010 operating tax rate. The City Commission has the authority under the City Charter to set the operating millage rate within the maximum allowed rate of 11.3834 mills, as adjusted by the Headlee millage roll-back formula.
- The 2011 tax rate for debt service millage to fund debt service requirements for the 2002, 2004, and 2008 General Obligation Street Bond issues is proposed to be 2.9100 mills, which is .0200 mills higher than the 2010 tax rate.
- The 2011 tax rate for City solid waste and recycling millage is proposed to be 1.7200 mills which is the same as the 2010 tax
- The total City millage for all purposes is proposed to be 16.0134 mills for 4011, which is .0200 mills higher than the 2010 total City tax rate.

Equalization Factors

Wayne County established tentative 2011 equalization factors of 0.9690 for the residential class of property, 0.9940 for the commercial class of property and 0.9411 for the industrial class of property. Since the City has decreased assessments for all property classes for 2011 by the proposed factors, all 2011 equalization factors will be set at 1.0000.

Appliance repair is not all roses and wrenches here are still those technicians employed in the appliance repair business who should be working on a rock pile in an enclosed facility. These these guys take us all back to the days when we suffered a severe image problem. As an example, here's an email I received recently from a consumer. I've left off the company name, but let me assure you that they will know we are talking about them. Deborah ents returned from Florida to discover their 11-year-old stackable washing machine was leaking. My husband writes: My 80

year old par-

suspected the rubber seal had dried out from not being used for five months. They called a repair company which charged $129 to check it out.

After inspecting the washer for a brief moment, the technician wrote down several parts he claimed needed to be replaced, at the cost of more than $350. He then immediately took my mother to the computer and had her go to an appliance dealer Web site and look up the cost of a new washer and dryer set. She decided she wasn't paying $1,200 for new appliances and instead asked him to return to repair her machine.

She had to call the service company several times to ask when he was going to return. They first tried to charge her the $129 again, but she reminded them the man said she had 60 days to decide. She finally got an appointment and the man returned - without the parts. He said she was supposed to order them herself and he said that it was going to take two guys to do the repair. She then had to give him a check for the $350 while he ordered the parts on his laptop. Then he told her it would probably be some other guy that would do the repairs and that if he didn't think she needed all those parts she could just send them back and get her money back. It was obvious that he padded the repair bill so that he could sell her a new washer/dryer. The best part is that she has been using the washer and it doesn't leak. I guess the seal has expanded now that it has been wet and is no longer leaking. I really feel that his man should be reported to someone. I don't know if these practices are condoned by the service company or if this is his individual way of doing his job. I think when they come back she is just going to have him replace the seal. What a shame to try to steal from elderly people

Reply: It sounds like there was a lot of incompetence on display by this particular service technician and the man hasn't even been there to fix the machine yet. I might suggest that your mother contact the service owner or manager and make sure that she is not going to be charged any more dollars after the technician begins his repairs. She might inform the management that there is a law in Michigan called the Joe Gagnon Appliance Repair Act signed by former Governor John Engler in June 2002 that makes it illegal to overcharge on a fixed price for repairs. Please drop me a note and let me know how the repairs went. Stay tuned.

Joe Gagnon can be heard at 8 a.m., Saturdays on WAAM 1600. You can email your problems and questions on appliances to appldr@twmi.rr.com

MEDICAL DATEBOOK

Cover your skin when heading outdoors

Get your sunscreen ready, because the Friday before Memorial Day - May 27 - is "Don't Fry Day."

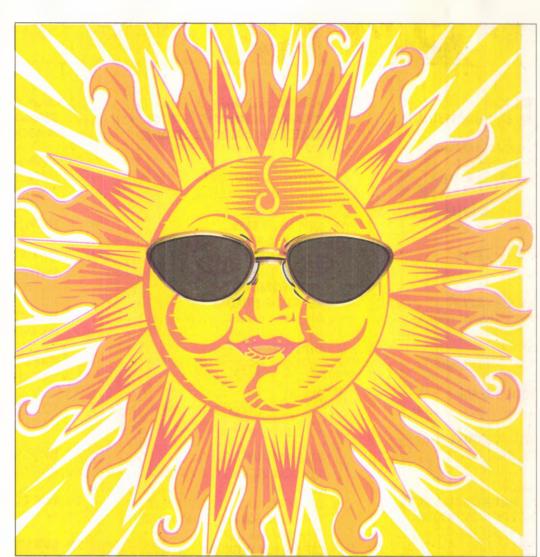

The American Cancer Society, along with the National Council on Skin Cancer Prevention, suggests you wear plenty of sunscreen, SPF 15 or higher, clothing that limits the amount of skin exposed, a hat and sunglasses as you head outdoors to kick off the summer season.

Although late spring usually means a rush to get a tan for the high school prom, graduation or simply to prepare for the beach, there's also a serious threat of skin cancer while basking unprotected in the sun. Skin cancer is the most common of all cancers. According to the American Cancer Society, many of the more than 2 million cases that are diagnosed annually could be prevented by protecting the skin from the sun's rays, staying out of the sun during peak times of 10 a.m.-4 p.m. and avoiding indoor tanning.

"One bottle of sunscreen should not last a summer," Trout says. "For maximum protection, use the highest SPF available, never use sunscreen after its expiration date, and apply it liberally before going into the sun. During sun exposure, one full ounce should be re-applied every hour."

Melanoma is a type of skin cancer that can be deadly. Look for any suspicious or unusual moles using the American Cancer Society's ABCD rule:

Asymmetry - One half of the mole does not match the Border — Edges of the mole are irregular, blurred, ragged. Color — Color is not uniform and may have patches of pink, red, white or black. Diameter — Melanoma moles are usually larger than

1/4 inch, but this is not always the case. "I strongly encourage people to get outside and enjoy the beautiful Michigan weather this summer, but it's critical that we all take the necessary precautions to avoid too much sun exposure without proper protection," stated Martha Trout, a registered nurse and director of Health Initiatives for the American Cancer Society. "There are plenty of ways to enjoy the sun without putting yourself at greater risk for skin cancer.

Other risk factors for melanoma include fair skin with blond or red hair; a family history of skin cancer and a weak immune system.

"Certainly fair-skinned people who burn easily and have a history of severe childhood sunburns are at higher risk of getting melanomas," Trout said. "But the relationship between sun exposure and melanoma is more complicated than you might think and not completely understood. Genetics also plays a significant role in the incidence of

Although melanomas can appear anywhere on the body, the most common place for men to develop skin cancer is the torso. Women find them on their legs. Individuals with dark skin, are more likely to find skin cancer on the soles of the feet and palms of hands, where pigment is

If you find a suspicious mole, talk to your doctor. Nothing increases cancer survival rates more than early detection, and nothing lowers cancer rates more than prevention.

Summer camp

The American Cancer Society offers a camp for children being treated for cancer or for those who are in remission. Cancer survivors, 4-15 may participate in one of two camps offered by the Society's Great Lakes Division. Young Camper's Day is a one-day program offered to children 4-6 on Sunday, June 19. Camp Catch-A-Rainbow is a weeklong summer camping experience, held June 19-24, for children 7-15. Both camps are held at the YMCA Storer Camps near Jackson, where children have access to activities such as swimming, horseback riding, archery, canoeing, arts and crafts. Health care professionals are available at the camp 24 hours a day, so most medical treatments, with the exception of radiation therapy, can be done onsite or at a nearby center. Registration is accepted through May 27. Get an application by calling (800) 227-2343 or by visiting www.cancer. org/camprainbow.

Male Urinary Embarrassing Problem (No Longer)

Springtime has many men thinking about golf. Consistent errant golf shots on the course may not be the only reason some men hang up the clubs. Many men may silently experience the frustration and embarrassment of leaking urine upon exertion with simple activities such as laughing, coughing, walking, swinging a

The inability to control urine is a common problem affecting many men in America. When looking specifically at men over 60, 17% reported having an incontinent episode. There are many potential causes of incontinence in men but most stem from the gland associated with the male reproductive system—the prostate. As many as 30% of men who have undergone treatments for prostate cancer report some incontinence The positive news-male urinary incontinence is a treatable problem. Although pads to collect urine are an option, some medications or a minimally-invasive procedure can provide permanent resolution to most individual's problems.

OSTEOARTHRITIS OF THE KNEE A person with persistent right knee pain visits the doctor. Examination and x-rays reveal that the patient has moderate osteoarthritis of the knee. That the knee problem is osteoarthritis means that the knee cartilage had worn down like the tread of a tire. The finding that the cartilage loss was moderate means that the individual is not ready for a knee replacement. Dealing with a knee that is not good, but not ready for operation poses problems for both doctor and patient. The doctor has no tablet or injection that can reduce or reverse the loss of cartilage. The anti-inflammatory medicines like ibuprofen are not of value because in osteoarthritis of the knee inflammation plays little or no part. The patient wants to remain active, but knee pain stops activity. Usually the doctor first recommends acetaminophen (Tylenol) for pain. If that medication does not work, the physician turns to anti-inflammatory drugs such as Motrin. Naproxan, Feldine, or Lodine for their analgesic effect. If these medications do not help dampen discomfort, then reluctantly the doctor turns to narcotics such as Vicodin. Knee joint injections with steroids often provide a boost to leg strength

At no time should the patient lose sight of the necessity of taking daily exercise that is continuous for at least 20 minutes. The purpose of such a regiment is to keep the leg muscles strong and maintain the individual's weight in respect to body build. Caring for an osteoarthritic knee requires ongoing cooperation between physician and patient as the balance of treatment and activity is always changing.

7 Jobs in Health Care That Require Moderate Training

Anthony Balderrama CareerBuilder.com writer

No job is guaranteed to last forever, but certain industries offer more hope for longevity, an especially attractive quality these days. The health-care industry employed 14 million workers in 2006, making it the largest sector in the nation, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Its outlook is promising, with the potential to add 3 million new jobs between 2006 and

Many jobs in health care require an extensive education that combines formal schooling with on-the-job training. Naturally, you want surgeons to have several years of practice before they begin operating on patients. You might be surprised to learn how many jobs - none of which allows you to perform a transplant, thankfully - you can find in health care with a moderate amount of formal training.

Here are seven jobs in health care that offer plenty of on-the-job training or require less than a bachelor's degree. Not only do these jobs allow you to work in a thriving field, but you also have the satisfaction of helping someone's well-being.

Pharmacy technicians

What they do: Perform administrative tasks in pharmacies and assist pharmacists preparing medication for patients.

Training: No nationwide regulations for a pharmacy technician's education exist, so each state has its own guidelines. Certification and formal training are definitely positives for job seekers, but expect plenty of on-the-job training as well.

Salary: $26,720

other medical staff. The recordings are often of medical reports or notes that need to be formally documented.

Training: Transcriptionists can obtain certification, which helps employment opportunities. Depending on the employer, adequate course work or an associate degree in a relevant field can qualify you for a job.

Salary: $31,250

Clinical laboratory

What they do: Perform various tasks - ranging from collecting blood samples to preparing tissue samples in a clinical lab.

Training: An associate degree or certification is preferred by most employers, but expect plenty of onthe-job training as well.

Salary: $34,270

Medical secretaries

What they do: Work with physicians and scientists to write articles, speeches, presentations and reports.

Training: Requirements vary, but all secretaries should have a strong command of grammar and possess excellent communication skills. Knowledge of medical terminology, procedures and insurance practices also helps.

Salary: $28,950

Medical records and health information technicians

What they do: Ensure that patient records are complete and accurate. They review medical charts and other documents that need to be on file regarding the patient's medical Training: An associate degree is stàndard, although relevant healthcare experience or status as a registered health information technician improves job opportunities.

Physical therapist aides

Salary: $29,290

What they do: Prepare the physical therapy site for a patient's treatment and assist with other duties that a physical therapist or a physical therapist assistant requests.

Training: On-site training is typical, though related education is helpful.

Salary: $22,990

Personal and home care aides

What they do: Help patients live comfortably in their own homes or in a live-in facility that is not a hospital or institution. Their patients can range from elderly individuals to people with disabilities.

Training: On-the-job tra standard, although some states and employers require further education, which you can obtain from a vocational school or community college.

Salary: $18,480

SUDOKU

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put vour sudoku savvy to the test!

Fun By The

4 Level: Beginner

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

CUBE 'MOBILE DEVICE' IS A BOX ON 4 WHEELS

CAReport

Bv Dave Menard For Avanti NewsFeatures Fracassa News Group

I will say this about the Nissan cube (with a small "c") -- I have never seen a car

That's exactly what it is, a box on wheels. Heck, Nissan doesn't even call it car; the company refers to it as the "cube Mobile Device." Now, that's not as boring as it sounds.

that is so perfectly named as the cube.

I actually think the cube might qualify as "cute," in some fashion. But that's exactly what you're going to get -- a car that looks like something you might draw in elementary school art class. It looks like something you could pick up and load onto a shopping cart. Put a square on top of four wheels and you have the 2011 Nissan cube.

Not that it's tiny. The cube has a long wheelbase relative to its length (99.6 inches against a 156.7-inch overall length).

The front end is short, with wide headlights and a wide grille, which give it a more bullish look up front. The rear passenger window wraps around all the way the back of the cube.

The rear features and refrigerator-style door allow access to the rear cargo area, with two different positions.

When space is available, the door opens all the way; when space is limited it has a limited-access position of about 8 inches for loading small objects.

The cube comes with 16-inch aluminum alloy wheels and body-colored power outside mirrors. You can order 16inch gunmetal alloy wheels for $790.

The tall roof line means the cube has tons of headroom, even for tall drivers. and you can see well, too. There's a deceptive amount of room in the rear cabin, as well. Yes, you can actually carry passengers in there. The rear seats recline and fold down to create cargo room. The seats (manually operated) themselves are comfortable, and there's plenty of leg room. The interior features a "floating-pod" instrument panel, with asymmetrical light blue and white gauges that Nissan says are designed to make it easier to distinguish between the speedometer and the tachometer (is this a problem that needs solving?). At any rate, it's an attractive-looking instrument panel.

The rest of the interior is simple, with a little bit of "funky" thrown in. The audio controls are easy to reach and the climate system controls are arranged in a circular pattern in the lower center part of the dash.

The cube 1.8 SL version comes with a leather-wrapped steering wheel, cruise control, air conditioning, multi-function trip computer, remote keyless entry, and power windows and locks.

Standard is an AM/FM/CD audio system with six speakers, auxiliary input, and an interface system for an iPod. For $1,850, you can upgrade to a system that includes an integrated touchscreen navigation system, rear view monitor, XM traffic, a USB connector, upgraded speakers with a Fosgate amplifier and subwoofer and satellite radio.

Fog lights and a Nissan "Intelligent Key" (which includes push-button start) are also part of the package.

For $230, Nissan will give you what it calls the "Interior Designer Package," which includes carpet floor mats, carpeted cargo area mat, front-door bungees and a shag dash topper.

The test car -- excuse me, the test mobile device -- had the dash topper and I'm still not sure what purpose its serves. It's a piece of round shag carpet Velcro-ed to the center of the dash top. It got me so curious, I went online to some Nissan owner Internet forums to see what cube owners think.

Turns out most of them don't know what to do with it, either, though some joked that Nissan should offer a little vacuum cleaner as part of the package.

The cube 1.8 SL is powered by a 1.8liter DOHC 4-cylinder engine. Rated at 122 horsepower and 127 lb.-ft. of torque, its acceleration is not so bad for a 4cylinder. This engine is mated with a Continuously Variable Transmission. The cube is rated at 27 mpg in city driving and 31 mpg on the highway; not bad, but for some reason I was expecting a little more from a car this small.

The cube is small, but the driving experience belies its size. The MacPherson front suspension, combined with its high body stiffness helps to smooth out the bumps. Power-assisted steering is standard, and the cube has a tight turning circle that makes it easy to maneuver and

There are plenty of standard airbags in the cube -- seat-mounted driver- and front-passenger side impact bags, and roof-mounted side curtain airbags. The cube also comes with a tire pressuremonitoring system, anti-lock brakes, vehicle dynamic control and traction

The 2011 Nissan cube 1.8 SL Mobile Device starts at a little under $18,000. Add the upgraded audio/navigation system, Interior Designer Package, and the gunmetal wheels, and you're at almost

And remember, you're not buying a car, you're buying a mobile device.
