District eyes next steps in solving budget crunch

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

After making its latest round of cuts in an effort to reduce a projected $18 million deficit in the 2011-12 school budget, the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education remains some $10 million

The board's decision Tuesday not to close Fiegel Elementary School, a move that would have saved an estimated $1.4 million, and to leave class sizes where they are (a $4 million decision) left administrators scrambling to replace not only that money, but to find the other $5 million or so to cut.

"We're going to have to go back to the staff and figure it out," said James Larson-Shidler, the district's assistant superintendent for business services. "We're still looking at everything."

Trustees did approve some $7 million in cuts Tuesday, among them: • Cutting 17 elementary school teaching positions because of a drop in elementary enrollment. The move is expected to save $1.2 million.

· Budgeting for 150 schools-ofchoice students, which brings in just over $1 million in revenue. Still to be decided is whether they'll be children of district employees or whether to allow students from contiguous school districts

 Saving some $945,000 in the custodial budget, perhaps with the elimination of some 21 jobs.

 Cutting out noontime busing for kindergarten students, a move that is projected to save some $488,000.

Decisions board members could have made but didn't included not closing Fiegel, which also means Starkweather Education Center remains open (another $183,000). Trustees also didn't increase class sizes, which means most of some 80 teachers the district expected to cut will remain employed. That's a $4 million move. Also saved was WSDP 88.1-FM, the student-run radio station.

Administrators are counting on some legislative help. For instance, new legislation requires employees to pick up any health-care cost increases once their contracts expire. There's also legislation being debated that would force public employees to pay 20 percent of their health care beginning Jan. 1, 2012 (Plymouth-Canton staffers currently don't pay anything).

Larson-Shidler said that move alone would save the district some $5 mil-

He also said a new law prohibits districts negotiating new contracts from paying anything above the previous year, including step increases

It was May 1945, and the commander of the 11th Panzer Division was goose-stepping past his defeated troops, a last bit of pomp before his surrender in Czechoslovakia to representatives of the U.S. Army's 90th Pfc. Henry Malec of Detroit, 19, had had enough.

As the assembled German soldiers looked at their general, Wend von Wietersheim, with awe, Malec's thoughts turned to the frozen bodies of American soldiers he had seen on his way to the front in France, to the comrade who died from a shrapnel wound, resting his head on Malec's shoulder as the blood flowed from his back, and to others he'd known who had died confronting Nazism.

"That's flashing through my mind," Malec, now a chiropractor in Plymouth, recalled during a recent interview. "I couldn't take it. I jumped off the tank. I ran up to him. I stopped him."

The general, who towered over even the strapping American private, was flabbergasted. "I took his gun," Malec said.

Local elected officials don't like education bill

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Republican Kurt Heise of Plymouth Township and Democrat Dian Slavens of Canton vote from opposite sides of the political aisle in the state House of Representatives. But Thursday, they found an issue on which they could Neither one likes Gov. Rick Snyder's budget to fund public education.

While the bill passed the House with a 59-50 vote, both Heise and Slavens voted against it. And their reasons are essentially the same: Neither believes the package has the best interests of students at heart.

Heise voted against it when the original House bill contained a 3.5-percent cut in the per-pupil foundation allowance for public schools. Even though the cut was reduced to 1.8 percent in the final bill, which included a $100 per-pupil incentive for districts meeting four of five established criteria, Heise still voted against it

"Advocates would say the $100 incentive reduces the per-pupil cut and, although that was certainly helpful, the incentive plan and the pension plan had a minimal impact on per-pupil student cuts, in my opinion," said Heise, whose 20th House District includes Plymouth-Canton, Northville and Wayne-Westland Schools. "I was also opposed to the mandate for allday kindergarten, which is going to be an additional unfunded expense to Slavens said she's "extremely disappointed and frustrated" the governor and legislative leaders went ahead with what she called "an undeniably flawed plan" she believes cuts vital funding to schools.

"(The bill) endangers our children's ability to get the education they need to succeed in life and in the workplace," Slavens said. "By passing the largest per-student cut in nearly two decades, the governor and leaders in the Legislature are setting our schools and our children up to fail. That is unacceptable. As a mother and a grandmother, I implore them to abandon these cuts and invest in a better future for our children and a stronger economy for Michigan."

The all-day kindergarten mandate would take effect in the 2012-13 school year. Currently, school districts which offer half-day kindergarten, as Plymouth-Canton does, still get all-day per-pupil funding. Under the new mandate, that funding would be

Plymouth drying out after very wet week

BY MATT JACHMAN
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, May 29, 2011

Torrential rains throughout the day Wednesday flooded streets, back yards and basements in Plymouth and Plymouth Township, stalling vehicles, prompting police to close stretches of road and sending homeowners scrambling to rescue possessions and dry out soggy carpeting.

More rain came later in the week, too; the area spent a good deal of time under a National Weather Service flash-flood warning. Drivers across the region felt the frustration as they encountered flood conditions.

"It was probably raining an inch an hour for a couple of hours," said Plymouth Township Supervisor Richard Reaume, explaining that 10 to 12 vehicles had to be towed from the area of Sheldon Road at Ann Arbor Road due to street flooding on Wednesday. Catch basins clogged with seeds, trash and other debris prevented water in the area from draining properly, Rain waters lifted Tonquish Creek into the back yard of Plymouth City Commissioner Gerald Sabatini.

Reaume said, and water went over the curb and up to sidewalk level.

"People were going through so fast they were flooding their engines," Reaume said.

High water also closed a stretch of Ann Arbor Road east of Lilley, where the road dips as it passes under a railroad bridge, Reaume said.

"It has to be pumped back up to the level of the street ...
pumped into a new drain," the supervisor said. It was not clear what time the stretch reopened.

On Wednesday evening, the Michigan State Police closed M-14 in both directions near Sheldon because of high water. The freeway had reopened by Thursday.

In Plymouth, backyard flooding was reported at properties near Tonquish Creek. Gerald Sabatini, a Plymouth City Commission member, had about three feet of water in his back yard, as did three of his neighbors.

The flood sent about two inches of water into the walkout basement of Sabatini's house on Coolidge. The family was able to move most of the items in the basement to a higher level before the flood.

"The lawn is back, and I'm just Shop-Vacuuming (wet carpet) and I've got two dehumidifiers going," Sabatini said Thursday morning. Tonquish Creek runs adjacent to a next-door neighbor's property, he said.

The neighborhood was hit with flooding during storms in 2007 and 2008, but Wednesday's was the worst he's seen, Sabatini said. And the creek has seemed deeper recently even during lighter rains, he said.

"Our observation is that there is more water being channeled into the creek due to all the construction upstream and all the paved surfaces," he said.

Elsewhere in Plymouth, some side streets were under water for brief periods on Wednesday, said City Manager Paul Sincock, and the city received numerous calls about flooded basements. City Department of Municipal Services Crews were sent out to keep storm sewer catch basins clear of debris.

Workers also continuously monitored and cleared the culvert, in the area of Harvey and Ann Arbor Trail, through which Tonquish Creek passes through the downtown area.

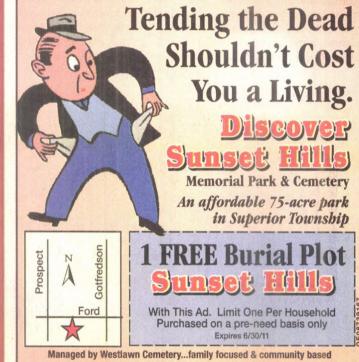

"We took several small truckloads of debris out" during the day Wednesday, Sincock said.

Plymouth native up for writing prize BUDGET

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Gail (Archer) Barrett, who learned all about writing in the classroom at Our Lady of Good Counsel School in Plymouth and yearned to be a author since the age of 7, has won numerous awards for her writing.

But she admits none are as big as the one for which she's nominated now. Barrett, a Plymouth native now living in Maryland, is a finalist for the RITA award, the top award given by the Romance Writers of America. And she's among some of the industry's elite: Nora Roberts is also a finalist.

Barrett, whose parents and various aunts and uncles all lived at one time or another in Plymouth, downplayed her chances. at winning the RITA, the RWA's highest honor named for its first president, Rita Clay Estrada.

"Winning the RITA is a long shot, but of course, it would be an enormous thrill," Barrett said. "The judges are other professional writers, so it's a huge honor to get nominated, let alone win."

Barrett, whose 10th book will be published later this year, is nominated for her book, "Meltdown," which deals with a woman who only has hours left to rescue her famous grandfather and stop a deadly terrorist attack.

The life of a writer is what she always wanted, though she didn't attain it right away. During college Barrett, who loves everything Spanish, headed to Spain. After four years in Madrid she came home, started teaching Spanish, got married to a Coast Guard officer, and had a couple of children.

She still wanted to write, and there was no sense wasting the lessons pounded into her by the English teachers at OLGC.

"I think those teachers were my greatest influence," Barrett said. "Not only did they give me the skills I needed to pursue my craft, but they made me believe that I could do it. That belief helped me persevere during the many years it took to get published."

Barrett said once she decided to get serious about writing, she had to decide exactly what she was going to write. The answer: Write what you

"I sat down and analyzed what I liked to read, and I realized that I was always attracted to the romantic elements in stories, as well as mysteries," Barrett said. "That's how I settled on romantic suspense."

The RITA is expected to be announced in June.

currently part of the Plymouth-Canton contracts. All of the district's contracts, he said, expire June 30, except the teachers union contract which runs through

"We have no employee contracts signed for next year, so there is still a possibility of getting concessions from them," Larson-Shidler said.

While Gov. Rick Snyder didn't do the district any favors by leaving in the $470 cut to per-pupil funding in his final budget, passed Wednesday, there may be a little hope. According to Larson-Shidler, districts could qualify for a $100 supplemental payment per student if they meet four of five criteria:

• District pays no more than 90 percent of health benefits cost for employee. Plymouth-Canton currently doesn't qualify for this item.

 District is the "policy holder" for employee health insurance policies. Plymouth-Canton meets this requirement.

· District develops or continues sharedservice or consolidation plans. Plymouth-Canton officials are checking to see if their partnerships with Wayne RESA meet this one.

 District obtains competitive bids for at least one non-instructional service over $50,000 in value. Plymouth-Canton expects to meet this one.

 District provides report card or dashboard with financial and performance data on website. Larson-Shidler said the district is waiting for a model from the state, but will meet this requirement.

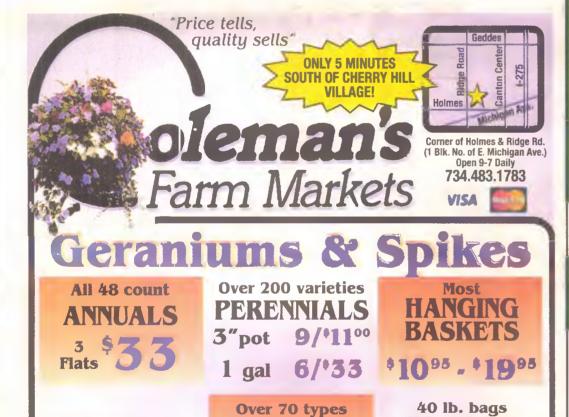

If Plymouth-Canton complies, the district could be in line for nearly $2 million.

Salem High School senior Tommy Halewicz is a bell-ringer for the Red Kettle campaign, he does the Mystery Zone at Pioneer Middle School, he volunteers to clean up a the Canton Cup soccer tournament, and he tutors other students.

And while doing all that — and getting ready to take college exams — Halewicz managed to organize what turned into a huge fundraiser that raised some $35,000 for the family of Canton High School sophomore Jesse Lindlbauer, recovering from a brain abscess rupture, which left him without speech or movement.

For all of those efforts, but especially for his efforts organizing the 5K run, Halewicz was honored this week by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education with its Students with Tenacity Achieving and Reaching Success award.

"I really don't have words to describe what he did," said board member Nancy Eggenberger, who presented the award to a surprised Halewicz, who didn't know it was coming. "The run was a huge, huge success.

It was first thought the race would draw between 300-500 runners, but wound up with 1600 kids. Plymouth-Canton Educational Park Principal Bill Zolkowski, who said in a previous life he used to organize such events, said it was flawless.

"It was all due to the wisdom of Tommy," Zolkowski said.
"Tommy took it all in, decided what needed to be done, and it was picture-perfect."

The board also honored Maria Panek, who runs the scheduling process for the park's 6,200 students, with the Mary Beth Carroll Award. Zolkowski lauded her for her willingness to train others, keeping the staff up-to-date and bringing the scheduling process into the 21st Century.

"When you think about 6,300 students with six classes that's a whole lot of kids to have in a whole lot of places," Zolkowski said. "Having Maria here clams me down. Of all the people who work at the park, when you think about going above and beyond the call of duty, Maria's the first person who comes to mind."

Like Salewicz, Panek deflected credit to others.

"I am very fortunate I get to work with a lot of people across the district," Panek said. "There are a lot of great people across the district, and I'm grateful I get the chance to work with them."

'IT CHURNS UP MEMORIES'

His World War II service is something Malec hadn't spoken much of until recent years, even to his family. "My mind was on my work," he says.

And the stories don't always come easily.

"It churns up memories that basically he doesn't want to go into in any further depth," said Roger Kehrier of Plymouth Township, himself an Army veteran who was wounded in Vietnam.

Kehrier befriended Malec a few years ago after noticing his car's license plate indicated he was a wounded veteran. He prompted Malec to join the Military Order of the Purple Heart and the Polish Legion of American Veterans, and has been urging him to tell his story, on behalf of the ones who didn't make it. In addition, a Westland resident, Susan Trinka, has helped Malec research the war.

"Those are the types of stories that make America feel good about America," Kehrier said last week ahead of Memorial Day, which is silence, Malec is ready. He was born in Detroit to Joseph and Stephanie Malec, and grew up with sisters Elizabeth and Gertrude, who was called Gerry. He went to St. Hedwig for elementary school and then to Chadsey High School, and by the age of 16, in 1942, was working in a Chrysler Corp. factory, making parts for the B-26 bomber. He was quickly promoted, achieving shipping and receiving foreman.

After decades of near

"The guys were getting drafted one after the other, and even though I was 17, that was the job I had," he said. His own draft notice came as no surprise.

"Soon as I turned 18, boom, they got me," he said. After four months of basic training ("They needed meat out there, so they rushed us through,"), Malec found himself on a boat to Liverpool, England. From there, the soldiers shipped to France, then traveled by railroad boxcars, and then on the beds of open trucks straight to the front. It was on that bone-chilling ride — the truck driver had stopped to clear some barbed wire — that Malec saw those frozen U.S. casualties.

'They were picking up these bodies, straightening them out and stacking them neatly on the truck," he said.

WAR UP CLOSE

Nearer to the fighting, Malec and two other soldiers were in a foxhole one night, watching a barn where it was thought there might be German troops.

"Suddenly, bullets all over the place," Malec said. "An awful lot of firing." A soldier sitting outside another foxhole was killed with a bullet to the heart — a case of friendly fire.

"An American patrol thought we were Germans, and they were trying to kill us," Malec said. "That was my initiation."

There are plenty more combat stories, including:

· The night Malec sur-

"He was losing his life slowly," Malec said. "He just put his head on my shoulder and he went to sleep for good. And that's how he died.'

had been hit in the back.

Malec himself spent some time recuperating in a hospital in France, where he was told the shrapnel couldn't be removed, and was sent back to the front.

· An approach on the Bavarian city of Regensburg, during which Malec was walking an arm's length from a U.S. tank. Suddenly, two German soldiers popped out of a hole just a few feet ahead of him and fired an anti-tank weapon. Malec heard the round hit the tank, and then it was lying at his feet, a dud.

But the Germans had a Plan B. When Malec looked up, they were holding a white sheet of surrender.

"I want to shoot through the white sheet but I can't," Malec said. "They were trying to kill me and the guys in the tank."

Decades later, Malec is watching the movie Schindler's List, based on the true story of a sympathetic German civilian who rescued Jews from the Holocaust, and takes special note of the scene in which Jews forced to work in a German factory sabotage the ammunition they're making. "It's because of them that I'm alive," he said.

'HAPPY THE WAR'S OVER'

There are lighter stories, too, such as during the Panzer division's surrender, when the German soldier next to him gave him a big smile and a tin of chocolates. Malec reciprocated by giving the German a D-ration, which was like an energy bar, and the German smiled again.

"He's happy the war's over," Malec said. "So am I."

After the fighting, Malec became an MP, or military policeman, in the 1st Division.

At Nuremberg, he guarded some of the top Nazi leaders and military officers during their trial; his first assignment there was to guard the exercise yard where Hermann Goering, who had been commander of the Luftwaffe, or German air force, and also a political leader, was walking.

Goering stopped in his tracks, Malec said, when he heard the approach of a distant plane, long before Malec could hear it.

"When it passed, he continued walking," said Malec, describing the scene. "When he passed, I saw he had tears in his eyes. Big tears."

Another time, Malec sat in on a meeting between Goering and his lawyer, and when Goering pulled out a pipe, the lawyer pulled out a tobacco pouch and began to hand it to

"I was amazed that he had a pipe," said Malec, who grabbed the pouch and sifted through it before giving it to Goering.

(Goering's suicide by cyanide capsule, on the night before his scheduled hanging in 1946, caused Malec to wonder if the next guard hadn't searched that pouch. Malec was back home by then.)

BACK TO HOME, WORK

Honorably discharged in June 1946, Malec made his way to Detroit, not wanting to go back to the factory, even though he was promised a job there. He wanted to go to school, he said.

One day, he ran into his future sister-in-law - Malec's sister would later marry the woman's brother - and she told him she had just been to her chiropractor. He had never heard of chiropractic medicine, and when she described it, he decided to go himself. He'd had nagging back pain since suffering the shrapnel wound.

"After about three, four adjustments, no more pain," Malec said. It was the fall, after being hit by shrapnel, that threw his pelvis out of alignment, he said.

He decided, "My God, this is something people can really use," and, taking advantage of the GI Bill, went to the Palmer College of Chiropractic in began practicing with a chiropractor in Hamtramck and later opened his own office, and practiced for many years in Detroit. He also married - Malec eventually outlived three wives — and raised a daughter and a son.

Malec now practices one day a week at a chiropractic clinic on Main Street, and consults with other chiropractors on their difficult cases. He's been in practice so long, he explained, he's seen every-

MEMORIES, MEMORABILIA

In a burglary at his office about 15 years ago, many of Malec's medals and war memorabilia - even the shrapnel taken from his leg 30 years after the war - were stolen. But he has his Purple Heart, plus the documentation for other medals, along with photocopies of the signatures, obtained at Nuremberg, of Goering, Gen. Alfred Jodl, the naval commander Karl Donitz and other top Nazis.

And he still has the pistol he took from von Wietersheim, a Walther PP semiautomatic. When he registered it with police in Detroit in 1946, he said, they were envious, and he was offered $80 for it, a lot of money then, on the spot.

Malec is proud of his good record and his Army service. "Every day was an adventure, and that's my philosophy anyway," he said.

And what are his thoughts on war, the one he fought in and those in the present? "War is stupid," Malec replied. "I would say war sucks, but I don't think you'd print that." Still, with Nazi Germany conquering much of Europe, and putting millions to death,

"it had to be done," he mused. His thoughts return to those who fought by his side, and those who died.

"We wouldn't have the good life that we have if it wasn't for these veterans," he said. "That's what people have to

Canines finally can take a walk in their park

BY DARRELL CLEM
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, May 29, 2011

Every dog has its day. It might take years of whimpering and waiting to escape the house arrest enforced by overbearing human owners.

It could take decades in dog years — decades spent napping at home, playing alone in a back yard, going for an occasional walk while tied to one of those confounded leashes.

But every dog has its day. That day came on a fogshrouded Friday morning in Canton, when dogs of all shapes and sizes made new friends, wagged their tails, barked happily and chased each other inside a six-acre, fenced-in dog park that opened on Denton Road north of Cherry Hill.

Canton resident Sharon Brown brought her 5-year-old pooch Sam, a part-pug.

"I think this is great. It's going to be fun," she said. "I think Sam believes he can rule this place on his own — in his mind, anyway."

NO LEASH REQUIRED

Kim Guy brought 4-yearold shih-tzu Tango from their Cherry Hill Village home.

"I think it's awesome that dogs will have a place to play without a leash," she said.

BILL BRESLER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Mary LeMerise offers a drink of water to Sunny, her golden retriever.

Tango kept his distance as a few other dogs played tag. It's not that he's conceited.

"He's a little shy," Guy said.
"Maybe coming here will bring him out of his shyness."

Tango watched, just as curious as a cat, as an Afghan hound, an English bulldog and a golden retriever dashed by.

Then, there was a small

Then, there was a small Maltese, 10-year-old Niles, whose owners, Lee and Noel Bittinger, let him play with the big dogs, even though the park has separate, fenced-in areas for large and small dogs.

"He wanted to come to the big-dog park," Lee Bittinger said. "He was bored in the little-dog park. He's small — but mighty."

The dogs limited their comments for this story to a bark or, in Niles' case, a slight growl, yet they seemed pleased with their new park, which culminated a dream that began nearly three years ago for Friends of the Canton Dog Park and township employees.

"We really needed this in Canton," said Friends member Debi Greene, who has three dogs — Champagne, Ginger and Jazz. "This has always been a dream. Hopefully, everybody will use it."

PAY TO PLAY

Dogs have to be registered and licensed through the township clerk's office, Greene said, and annual memberships are $25 for Canton residents and $50 for non-residents. The fees cover up to three dogs per family.

The dog park, open from dawn to dusk, was developed using $70,000 in Wayne County parks funding and $37,000 raised by the Friends group. A formal grand opening will occur later this sum-

"It's another valuable recreational amenity for the community, and it's certainly good for our four-legged friends," Canton Leisure Services Director Debbie Bilbrey-Honsowetz said, adding that an off-leash dog park was identified as a need in the department's community surveys in 2005 and 2009.

The park has a few benches where owners can sit and make new friends of their own. Abe Vinitski, parks and golf supervisor, said organizers still have to add landscaping, more benches, dog-agility amenities, a water source—and next year, they plan to install an electronic entry device allowing dog park members to swipe a card to enter

For now, those using the park are on the honor system, though members expect to self-police and enforce rules. Township employee Mary Kahanec said nearly 300 people already have bought memberships.

Dog owners can use on-site plastic grocery bags to clean up when dogs do what dogs do, and Vinitski said visitors are asked to bring extra bags for the park's bag dispenser.

Anyone who wants to donate to the dog park's ongoing efforts may stop by or send checks to the Canton Township Clerk's Office, 1150 S. Canton Center, Canton, MI, 48188. Any checks should include a notation for the dog park. Other options for the dog park and additional information are online at www.canton. mi-org. Just look for the dog park icon and link.

Heise said that was among the factors he thought had a negative effect on the districts he represents.

"Plymouth-Canton and Northville are the last two 'destination' districts in Wayne County, in my opinion," Heise said. "People come there because of the schools. It's an important component of the quality of life and in property values. Overall, I just didn't feel it was in our students' or our taxpayers' best interests."

The bill did find some local Republican support in the state Senate, as 7th District Sen. Patrick Colbeck of Canton voted in favor of it. He said the funding level cuts were low enough, and he believes the bill demonstrates fiscal responsibility.

"(Districts) have a sustainable, stable funding level to work with ... for the first time in 30 years we have a state budget done in time to support (school districts') final budget work in June," Colbeck said. "Overall, I think it's a big win for Michigan."

Heise joined others in calling the state budget package "historic" because it balances the budget "witout any gimmicks or one-time fixes" and "it's a two-year budget." And while the state Constitution doesn't actually allow an "official" two-year budget, according to Heise, this one will be

"To have a balanced, twoyear budget in place is historic," Heise said. "It's going to restore confidence in Michigan around the country. The improved credit rating will save us millions in interest payments."

"treated like one."

Predictably, Slavens continued to vote against Snyder's budget, largely because she doesn't believe simply eliminating the Michigan Business Tax was the right way to go, nor does she approve of taxing pensions.

"We needed to get rid of the MBT, there's no question about that," Slavens said. "We want to help businesses out, but not on the backs of our seniors, the working poor or the schools. I think if he had phased it out, that would have been better."

Colbeck voted in favor of the larger state budget package.

He said it's important to point out the bill cuts $1.2 billion while eliminating the budget deficit, cutting taxes for small businesses and encouraging job growth. "In short, the Legislature ande the tough decisions to fix Michigan," Colbeck said.

'Economic development only happens when streets are safe'

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

Attorney General Bill Schuette said public safety is job No. 1 and the first priority for his office.

Schuette highlighted his first 150 days in office since he took over Jan. 1 after being elected in November 2010. The former Michigan Court of Appeals judge, U.S. congressman and state senator told the Wednesday luncheon crowd of the Livonia Chamber of Commerce that the importance of public safety can never be underestimated.

"Economic development only happens when streets are safe,' Schuette said. He spoke of joining with county prosecutors statewide to ensure that the state does not return to early releases of prisoners, which would jeopardize the safety of residents. Schuette said.

With a tight budget facing the state. Schuette suggests that the state needs to run prisons in a "business-like fashion." Schuette said, bidding correctional services, such as food services, laundry and health care. "We need to bring these costs down instead of releasing prisoners early," Schuette said.

A new public integrity division of the Attorney General's office has filed 56 criminal charges against individuals since its creation in January, Schuette said. Schuette vowed to the audience that there would be "no Kwame Kilpatricks" on his watch. Schuette also vowed to continue to help crime victims. "They need advocates; they need a voice," Schuette said.

Schuette said he would continue to fight against the spread of Asian carp into the Great Lakes, blaming the problem on President Obama's administration. "They are refusing to close the canal in Chicago," Schuette said. Schuette also will continue to fight against Obama's health care plan and will support Arizona's immigration laws in

Dan Lis, a chamber member, asked whether Schuette thought Michigan State Police would increase its presence in Detroit and Flint, which the FBI named as the top two dangerous cities in the United

"The governor and I have talked about it and will be working with local law enforcement agencies," Schuette said.

Schuette said Flint voters rejected a millage that would have opened a jail there. "We're working on this issue and working with local officials there," Schuette said.

Local law enforcement should be the primary agency in handling local crimes, Schuette said.

On the state's budget, Schuette commended Gov. Rick Snyder for his work to get communities to "tag-team" or consolidate services.

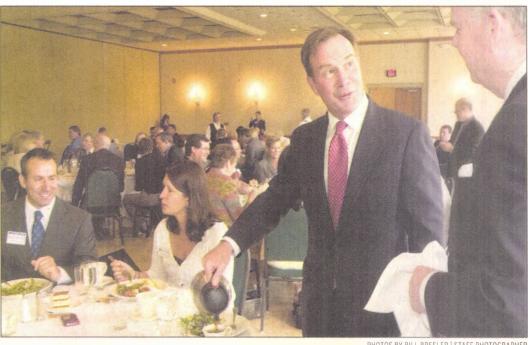

"Leaders in any locality will have to look at how can we deliver the best services at the lowest cost," Schuette said. "If one does it, they get more revenue sharing. I like it because it says we have a plan."

Lis, a certified public accountant with Lis & McEvilly, later said he liked what he heard from Schuette. "I was glad that he brought up the two major cities (Flint and Detroit) on the FBI list," Schuette said. "He recognizes how important that is.

Lis also liked Schuette's public integrity unit.

Kevin Whitlock, a CPA with Tedder Whitlock Consulting, also liked what he heard from Schuette. "We have to keep our cities safe," Whitlock said. "Without safe cities, where do we go, what do we do?"

kabramcz@hometownlife.com | (313) 222-2591

Schuette explains that his practice of serving coffee to guests at events like this probably helped him beat an incumbent in his first race. Sitting at the table are Brandon Kritzman and Dawnne Toppa. Standing, at right, is Jim McCann.

Irish eyes are ready to smile at festival

BY JILL HALPIN CORRESPONDENT

Irish eyes will certainly be smiling when the second annual Motor City Irish Festival rolls into Redford Township June 3-5 drawing an estimated 5,000-7,000 people eager to celebrate in the Celtic tradition.

With more than 20 local Irish bands lined up to perform, the family-friendly festival will showcase some of the best that the area has to offer in Irish music, dancing and culture on the grounds of St. Valentine's Catholic Church.

Local acts will perform in two tents, the Claddagh All Ireland Tent and the Dunleavy's Ceilidh Tent. Organized by Wayne County's Stephen Walsh Division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, proceeds from the festival will benefit St. Valentine's as well as the Redford Interfaith Relief and other local charitable organizations

The event offers area residents an excellent opportunity to celebrate the Irish heritage, festival co-chair Charlie French of Livonia said.

"This is a feel-good festival. Detroit has such a rich history with the Irish culture; this is a great chance to recognize that," French said.

Festival planners focused on creating a fun, family event and activities appealing to all ages are planned throughout the weekend, said Kevin Murphy, a co-chair of the festival. Murphy is a Livonia resident and owner of Redford's

A children's area featuring games, face painting and an inflatable bounce house will offer fun for young festivalgoers and a vendor's area featuring Irish food and merchandise will give folks an opportunity to purchase everything from Celtic crosses and T-shirts to Irish soda bread and shortbread. In addition to beer and whiskey tasting, food will be available from St. Valentine's and Claddagh Irish Pub in Livonia, a festival sponsor. Dunleavy's Irish Pub of Allen Park is also a large event sponsor.

IRISH MENU

Menu items include Irish fare such as "bangers and mash," also known as sausage and mashed potatoes, shepherd's pie and fish-n-chips, we well as more traditional festival eats like pizza, hot dogs and hamburgers.

According to Murphy, there are currently 22 local Celtic bands scheduled to perform on two different stages and include well-known performers such as The Kreellers, Blackthorn and The Diggers. He said he is pleased that the festival offers a chance to highlight local Celtic musicians.

'We have phenomenal talent here in Detroit. We could have hired at least 10 more bands," Murphy said.

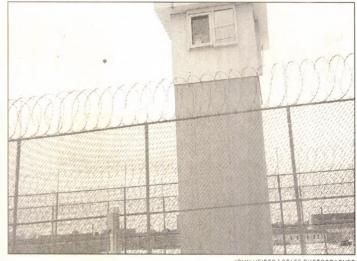

For French, longtime coowner of Livonia-based business The Irish Baker with Jack Derrig, the Motor City Irish Festival is long overdue.

He and festival organizers have wanted to organize a large event that gives metro Detroiters a chance to celebrate their culture and the traditions of Ireland.

After attending Irish festivals around the area with partner Derrig, it quickly became evident that "Detroit is the only major city without an Irish festival. There are festivals in Chicago, Muskegon ... even Toledo," he said.

"There is such nice Irish community in the area. We need to celebrate that," French said. He and friends within the AOH organization decided the time was right for such an event. The first festival was held last year at the AOH in Detroit. A larger venue was necessary for this year's celebration, and they settled on the Redford location after recognizing the township's community spirit.

"The township has just embraced us," he said.

A new bill would allow Northville Township to sell the shuttered Scott

Bill would allow sale of Scott facility

BY LONNIE HUHMAN CORRESPONDENT

Northville Township officials will most likely have their wishes fulfilled regarding the Scott Correctional Facility property after Rep. Kurt Heise (R-MI 20th District) announced a bill to move the future of the former women's prison forward and work with the township so it can be sold for sensible development.

Heise said Thursday he is sponsoring a bill to allow the state of Michigan to sell the vacant Scott property to allow for the land to be used for public or private development in Northville Township.

"Instead of allowing these buildings to continue to deteriorate and become even more dangerous and unproductive, it is time for the state to move forward and work with Northville Township to sell this valuable piece of property and put it to good use," said Heise, of Plymouth.

Northville Township Supervisor Mark Abbo said he is pleased with this develop-"Anytime the state is willing to work with us on something like this it's good," he said. "We want that location to be taxproducing."

In April, the Northville Township Board of Trustees approved a resolution urging Gov. Rick Snyder to sell the Scott property to private interests so it can be developed with a creative and useful economic activity.

The 35-acre site is located at the northwest corner of Five Mile and Beck roads, but it closed over a year ago. Michigan's Department of Technology, Management and Budget recently designated it as surplus, or for sale.

At that time Kurt Weiss, public information officer for the management and budget department, said they were waiting on legislation to move things forward.

House Bill 4689 would allow the state to sell the property to Northville Township, or to work closely with the township to sell the property at market value for private development.

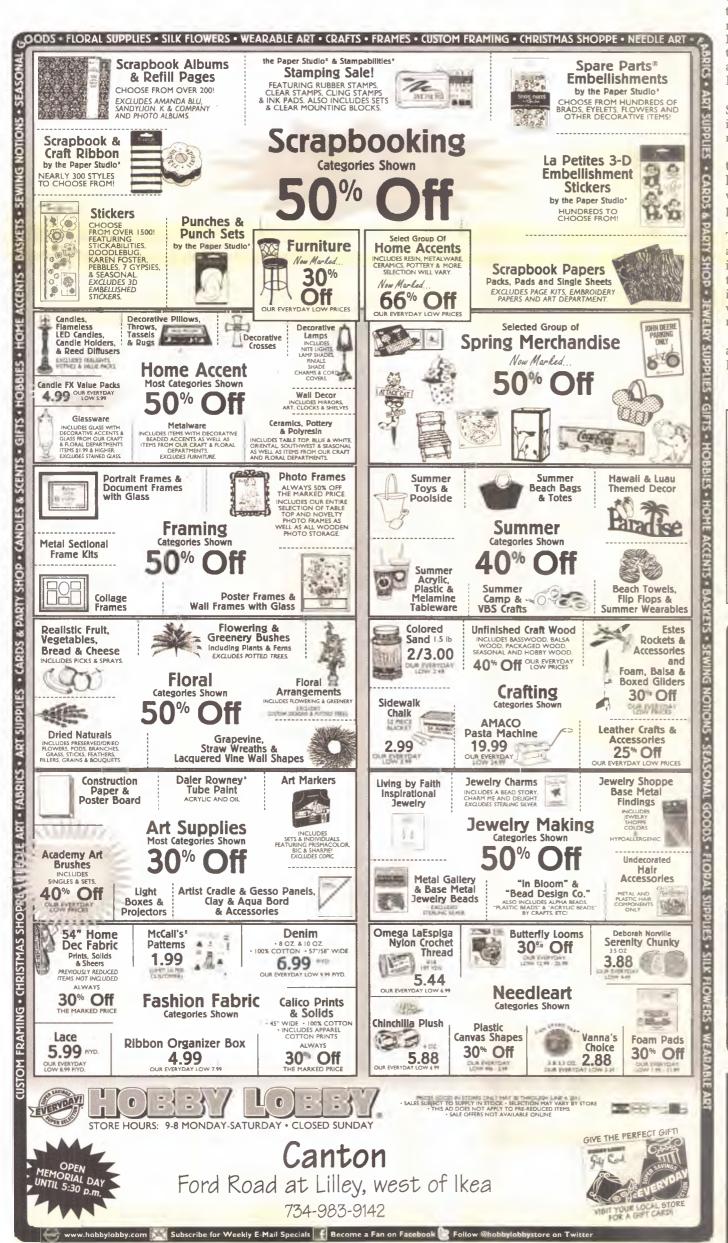

Heise, who is also a lawyer, met with Northville Township officials and personally drafted a provision in the bill that would force the state to properly maintain the site while on the market, and make it presentable by removing the barbed wire and guard towers as requested by the township.

This location is well-situated to have a very positive economic impact, and lead to more jobs," Heise said. "The state no longer has a need for this property, and should be able to work closely with Northville Township to sell it for development."

For the township the bill now needs to be passed so they can begin having meetings with the state, Abbo says. That's when they can start implementing the intentions of the bill.

"It has always been the township's motivation to have properties developed so they are consistent with adjoining, neighboring properties."

Adjacent to and across from the location there is commercial development.

Byron MacGregor's 'The Americans' stands test of time

BY LEANNE ROGERS
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Detroit radio traffic reporter Jo-Jo Shutty-MacGregor stopped by Westland Shopping Center Thursday to help local veterans with their fund-raising efforts.

One of items being sold by the Westland Veterans Association has a personal connection to Shutty-MacGregor — it's a spoken word CD by her late husband, Byron MacGregor. Included is MacGregor's chart-topping recording of The Americans which has already raised $4 million for the American Red Cross.

"It was (recorded in) 1973, that's what makes it so incredible and amazing. That message of The Americans stands the test of time," said Shutty-MacGregor. "The message transcends time."

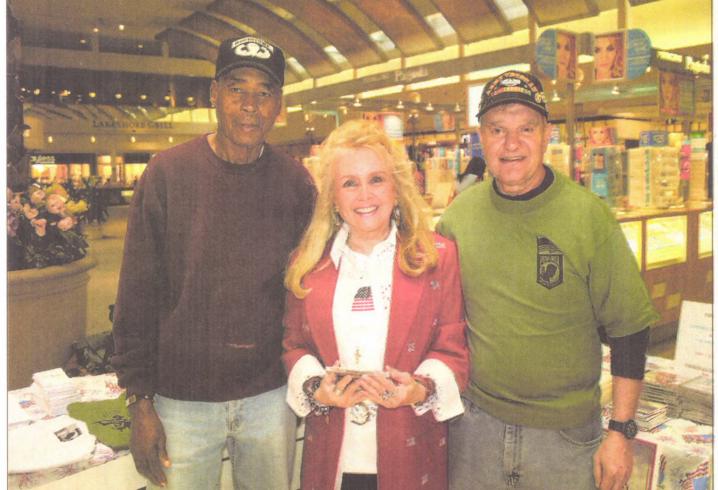

Recorded with America, the Beautiful performed by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra as background music, The Americans reached No. 1 on the Billboard Hot 100 chart and sold more than 3.5 million copies.

"It's not the precise words
— it's the presentation. Byron's presentation is to lift you up," said Shutty-MacGregor.

Proceeds from the sale of The Americans CDs, along with two other CDs, the Remember the Other Side which is music and the Military Americans, narrated by Lee Alan, will benefit the Westland Veterans Memorial project.

More than 35 years after it was recorded, The Americans sends a clear patriotic message, Shutty-MacGregor said, especially coming from her husband, a Canadian who later had dual citizenship.

VETERANS GROUP FUNDRAISER

Members of the Westland Veterans Association will be fundraising throughout the Memorial Day weekend.

The veterans will be selling three CDs with proceeds going towards the construction of a new Westland Veterans Memorial in Central City Park. The first phase is projected to cost $150,000 and the vets hope to have it dedicated on Veterans Day 2012.

The CD featuring The Americans and other recitations by Byron MacGregor with background music and a musical CD, Remember the Other Side, are being sold for $15 each or both for $25.

A third CD called The Military Americans, narrated by former disc jockey Lee Alan, is available for $7. All three CDs can be purchased for $30.

The veterans will be in the east court of Westland Shopping Center through Memorial Day selling the CDs. T-shirts which benefits the Vietnam Moving Wall visit to Westland July 21-25 are also being sold at the mall

The T-shirts sell for $15 for sizes small through extra large, $18 for 2X and $22 for 3X.

Members of the veterans association also will be selling T-shirts during the Memorial Day Parade, sponsored by Wayne-Westland Veterans Parade Council. The parade will be at 1 p.m. today, May 29. It begins at the Wayne-Ford Civic League, 1645 N. Wayne Road, heads north on Wayne Road, then west on Ford to the Peace Memorial at Westland City Hall.

The shirts will be available during the parade at the Wayne-Ford Civic League and Westland City Hall.

Shutty-MacGregor hadn't met her future husband when he recorded The Americans, which he originally read at the end of a public affairs program that aired on CKLW (800).

MacGregor was news director at CKLW which had the 20/20 news department in addition to being a top 40 music radio powerhouse.

MacGregor came up with the idea of adding a traffic reporter delivering reports from a helicopter and ended up hiring his future wife.

Currently heard on radio stations WOMC (104.3), WWJ (950) and WJR (760), Shutty-MacGregor and her husband, who died at 45 in 1995, worked at CKLW during its heyday.

"The Americans is continuing to help out and what better than to help out our service people," said Shutty-MacGregor. "Talk about our treasures. They fight for our country and our personal freedoms. So many people take that for granted."

Vietnam vet dedicates book, meets family of fallen Livonia soldier

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, May 29, 2011

Over the years, Livonia native Debra Braden often wondered about her brother, Arnold Sarna.

She never really knew him as a child. She was only 4 when Arnold, the oldest of eight Sarna children, left for Vietnam. When she was 7, her family received the horrible news that Arnold had been killed by a rocket in a strike by the Viet Cong in March 1968.

Debra grew up with her siblings in a home on Wayne Road in Livonia, and attended Ladywood High School before the family moved to San Jose, Calif., in 1976. She eventually married and moved to Hillsborough, N.C., always wondering about Arnold. As many transplants do, she was homesick and missed her family, a feeling that made her long even more for personal details about her brother.

She left a note on the Virtual Wall, a website devoted to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial. At the site, relatives and friends can place letters, poems and photographs.

"I wanted to know if anyone was stationed with him, who knew him and what he did for fun," Braden said.

The note drew occasional responses from Vietnam veterans, none of whom really knew Arnold.

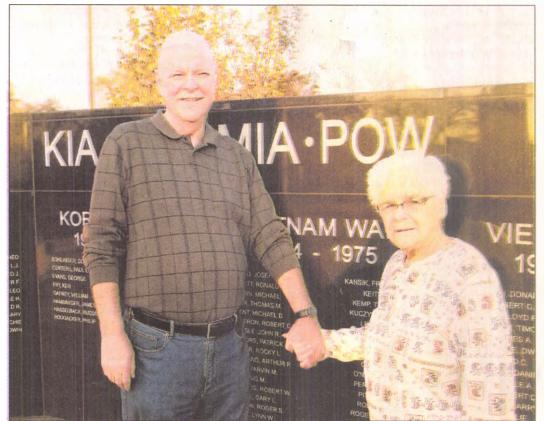

The note sat in cyberspace.

FINALLY, A RESPONSE

Then one day, Braden received an e-mail from someone who said she knew of someone who had written a book about Vietnam and dedicated it to her brother. Braden remembers her reaction.

"Oh, yeah, right," Braden said.

The woman followed up with a second e-mail and sent information about the book so Braden searched for it on Amazon.com. "I looked it up and saw my brother's name, and I just gasped," Braden said. "Here was my brother's name just staring me in the face.'

The dedication in Fortunate Soldier read: "This book is dedicated to Arnold P. Sarna. I didn't forget."

It turned out Braden was corresponding with a friend of Pat Moffett, an author and Vietnam veteran.

Oddly enough, Moffett never met Arnold Sarna. Moffett dedicated Fortunate Soldier, a book about Moffett's Vietnam experiences, because Moffett had an opportunity to live his life when he returned home from Vietnam, enjoying a successful business career, family and a grandchild. Moffett was with the 101st Airborne Division in 1968. Moffett was sent out on reconnaissance, but was called back because the division needed someone to type up "morning reports," which highlighted soldier counts, accounting for R&R breaks to ensure minimum counts of soldiers. Moffett could type 80 words per min-

One of his first assignments was to type up information on Arnold Paul Sarna. Moffett asked what happened to Sarna. "He was killed when a rocket hit his tent," Moffett said he was told.

"When he was killed, I got his job," Moffett said.

Weeks later Moffett learned that his former company where he had served in the field had been overrun and everyone was killed. Moffett believes that Sarna's death spared his life.

Moffett went back to the United States, married, raised a family and today he is vice president of logistics for Audiovox Electronics Corp. He lives in Great Neck, N.Y.

Years and decades passed. Moffett wrote the book and dedicated it to Arnold Sarna in 2003. Then Moffett heard about and read Braden's note on The Virtual Wall. Braden received the e-mail and later Braden and Moffett spoke. "It was an amazing, overwhelming experience," Moffett said.

REMEMBERING ARNOLD

Moffett met the Sarna family on the weekend of Veterans Day 2010. Moffett flew into Detroit, then traveled with Sarna family members and met Arnold's mother, Cecilia Sarna, at St. Hedwig Cemetery in Dearborn Heights to visit Arnold's grave.

Moffett said the grave visit represented closure "because I knew he was home with other family members at the cemetery, and I didn't know that," Moffett said.

Cecilia said the first time she saw Moffett at the cemetery, "it was like Arnold was reaching down to me.

'This man is very sensitive and feels a closeness he had with Arnold even though he never met him," Cecilia said. "He said he always said a prayer for Arnold, and that he would never forget and he Moffett and Sarna family members visited the Veteran's Park Memorial Plaza at Five Mile and Farmington Road, where Arnold's name is etched on the wall. That weekend Moffett visited and learned all about the Sarna family, enjoying a Polish meal of kielbasa, sauerkraut and beer with the family in Northville. "I didn't know Sarna was Polish," Moffett said.

Moffett gave Cecilia a leather-bound copy of his book, writing in it: "Your son gave his life for his country on March 13, 1968, and through a twist of fate, my life was spared. I will be eternally grateful to Arnie and the entire Sarna family for his supreme sacrifice that day. He will always be my hero."

Moffett called Cecilia on Mother's Day and Easter, Cecilia said. "He calls me 'Mom'; he's adopted me," Cecilia said.

Other Sarna members who grew up in Livonia included Tom Sarna, now in Portland, Maine; Deb Braden, Hillsborough, N.C.; Judy Sarna, Salem Township; Tina Michelski, Farmington Hills; Maryann Concertino, San Jose, Calif.; and Bill Sarna, Port Angeles, Wash. Another brother, James, is deceased.

Arnold graduated from Franklin High School, while Judy graduated from Churchill. Their father, Adolph Sarna, died 30 years ago. Their mother, Cecilia, is 85 and lives with Judy in Northville.

'A VISIT FROM HER SON'

Sarna family members were moved by the entire experience of meeting Moffett. "She actually felt like she got a visit from her son." Judy said of her mother. "After all these years, he feels like he owes his life to Arnold. We've kind of adopted

"It's just awesome, after all these years."

Moffett points to the life he's had as the reason for his deep appreciation, respect and honor for Arnold and the Sarna family. He's experienced tragedy, too, as he lost his wife last year at the age of 53 to Alzheimer's disease. He wrote a book about that, too, called Ice Cream in the Cupboard.

Moffett enjoys a successful career in the business world and reflects on his life today and the blessings of his 64 years of life.

"None of this would have happened," Moffett said. "My first grandchild was born last year and all those moments would not have happened, everything I've done over the past 40 years."

Braden said she believes that the experience leaves her thinking that the world "is not as big as we think.'

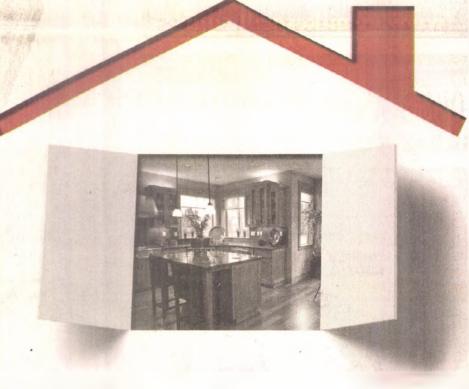

Braden believed that her brother would be fascinated and amazed by the family's connection to a soldier he never knew.

"He would be happy to know that my mom was able to touch him many years later," Braden said. Though the family lost Arnold years ago, "we are close to him," Braden said.

"So many people can touch one point in history. And at some point, you touch again, and he (Moffett) has a whole new group of friends now," Braden said.

"Something good has come out of something horrible."

Many things to consider when withdrawing funds

Q: Dear Rick: I retired about five years ago and between my pension and Social Security, it has covered my living expenses. I'm in the situation now where I'll need some extra money and I'm not sure exactly where I should take it. I have money in a traditional 401(k), a Roth IRA and money outside my retirement account. I am 67 years of age, so I don't have to take anything out of my retirement accounts. I recognize that everyone's situation is a little different, however, I would like your thoughts as to what I should consider when it comes to my income needs.

A: Generally, when it comes to investing, age is not something that I consider very important. However, when it comes to income needs for someone over 70, then age does enter into the equation because when one reaches 70½, they have mandatory distributions.

Many people believe that you should wait until 70½ to take money out of your retirement account. The general theory is that you should first retirement accounts and then use your retirement accounts. I don't subscribe to that Money Matters theory because its based on the fact that traditional

on your non-

IRAs grow on a tax-deferred basis. The theory being the longer you can let money grow tax-deferred, the better it is, however, that's not always the case. Remember, non-retirement money receives the favorable capital gains treatment, therefore, sometimes it makes sense to withdraw money from a retirement account prior to 70½ and let the non-retirement accounts grow at a more favorable tax rate.

I believe you should never let the tax tail wag the dog, meaning taxpayers should not make a choice just for the tax benefits. However, that doesn't diminish the need to take taxes into consideration. My general view is when someone over 591/2 needs income, he/she should first withdraw money from the traditional IRA. However, they must be sure that withdrawing the money won't throw them into a higher tax bracket. For example, if I'm in the 15-percent bracket and I need $10,000 of income, I would take an amount from the retirement account that would still keep me in the 15-percent bracket. In other words, if I can only withdraw $7,000 and stay within the 15-percent bracket. I'll take $7,000 from the retirement account and the remaining $3,000 from the non-retirement account. My theory is that by withdrawing from the retirement account prior to 70½, I am lowering my overall taxes and giving myself the most flexibility by eventually lowering my required minimum distribution.

One additional issue needs mentioning. Just because you are an income investor does not mean your entire portfolio should be invested for income. You're only 67 years old which means you will, more than likely, be around for many more decades, so it is important to have a growth element in your portfolio. My recommendation is to keep your growth side (mostly equities) of the portfolio invested in your nonretirement account. Keeping those outside of your retirement account will preserve the favorable capital gains treatment available to you. For most people, the capital gains bracket is less than half your ordinary income bracket. By having an effective strategy, you can reduce your taxes and at the same time remain economically smart.

Good luck!

You'll never see Ben Wohl tooting his own horn, er, trombone, which he plays for Plymouth High School's marching band.

But the 18-year-old senior always is in tune whether playing in the band, helping others through the National Honor Society or playing varsity baseball for the Wildcats.

"I'm not a real loud guy, I just keep on doing my thing," said Wohl, during a recent baseball practice. "I sort of just mesh with whoever I can and try to be everybody's friend, no big deal.

"And I have all my interests, just whatever I can get into."

TEEING OFF

As much as Wohl relishes his music, academics and extracurriculars, what he really loves the most is being a hard-nosed base-ball player.

Consider that he took 120-to-200 swings a day off a basement tee during the past winter to improve his hitting.

Or that it's routine for him to take extra ground balls to sharpen up at his shortstop position.

He does all of that because being he wants to be a complete player — first for his high school team, and hopefully beginning next spring at Calvin College in western Michigan.

All of that extra work is doing just that. Plymouth head coach Bryan Boyd loves the way Wohl is competing and hitting this season (.415 average).

"He put in the time in the off-season to be a better hitter, and it has paid dividends," Boyd

Maybe they should have called it "Soccerstock," what with all the mud at Independence Park for opening day of the 29th annual Canton Cup Soccer Tournament.

When a handful of players from the Canton Soccer Club's Canton Celtic '95 Gold team waited to re-enter their game against Rochesterbased Waza Kelly East, there was mud splattered all over their uniforms, limbs and shoes.

It became trickier and trickier to see the muddied ball during action.

Chiefs perform well at KLAA association meet

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Bob Richardson knew before the season that it would be a very good one for his Canton varsity boys track and field team. The evidence keeps pouring in that he was spot on.

Last Tuesday at Howell High School, the Chiefs finished fifth out of eight boys teams at the KLAA Association Team Championship Meet, which is attended by the top two teams from all four divisions in the association.

Richardson said his team performed very well, trailing only the four division winners (Milford, Walled Lake Central, Grand Blanc and Novi).

"We didn't even run everybody," Richardson said. "But we had a real good showing and the kids that participated all did a fantastic job."

Many of those same athletes aren't finished for the season, either. On Tuesday, 26 members of the team will take part at the Ypsilanti-hosted Larry Steeb Meet of Champions (representatives from other Plymouth-Canton Educational Park teams also will be on hand).

And the Division 1 state meet follows on Saturday in Rockford.

GOOD TO GO

At the Meet of Champions, participants must reach qualifying standards to be invited. Those standards aren't quite as lofty as those for the state meet.

"It's like a mini-state meet," Richardson said. "You have to meet qualifying times to be there."

Canton tallied 73 points at the KLAA team meet, with the top teams including Milford (142), WLC (105), Grand Blanc (103) and Novi (77).

In sixth place with 66 points was Livonia Stevenson, with Walled Lake Northern and Livonia Franklin rounding out the standings with 52 and 43 points, respectively.

Senior Nick Alaniva captured two association championships, finishing first in the long jump (20-feet, 7.5-inches) and pole vault (14-1) while senior Ben

The bonus round didn't quite go Plymouth's way.

Mustangs pitcher Laura Pond gave up just one hit and struck out seven Plymouth batters to curtail the Wildcats' hopes of playing for the association title.

Successful Lady Ocelot coach off to WSU

BY BRAD EMONS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Karen Lafata is taking her coaching talents to the next

The winningest women's basketball coach for the past decade in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association is leaving Schoolcraft College after 13 seasons to become an assistant at Wayne State University.

Schoolcraft athletic director Sid Fox also named Kevin Brathwaite, an assistant under Karen Lafata for the past four years, as the Lady Ocelots' new head coach on Friday.

"Kevin has a deep passion for the game," Fox said. "He has been instrumental in the recruitment process and has helped to bring quality student-athletes to our campus during a very successful run for our program."

Lafata compiled an impressive overall record of 326-77 with the Lady Ocelots, an .808 winning percentage, which also included two trips to the NJCAA Division II National Tournament resulting in a second-place finish in 2009 and a third-place finish in Lafata will serve under Carrie Lohr, who was named the WSU's 12th head coach in school history on May 11 after a nine-year stint at rival St. Clair County Community College.

"It's just a perfect time for me," said Lafata, who recently retired after teaching after 36 years at the Macomb Juvenile Justice Center. "Maybe five or six years ago I wouldn't have jumped on it. But with Carrie getting the job, and because of our special relationship, I thought this was right. I admire her and she's dynamic. I wanted to join her and put Wayne State on the map. She's got it all."

Schoolcraft, which finished 28-4 last season, has a veteran squad returning and Lafata already had lined four new recruits.

"It's difficult to leave Schoolcraft and the kids," she said. "I felt bad, but this is something I always wanted to do. Once I retired, I wanted it to be local and be a part of a four-year college program."

Lafata said she met with the Schoolcraft players last Monday.

"It was a cryfest, but we're in good shape," she said. "A lot of kids are coming back and it's a strong team. I really enjoyed Schoolcraft, everybody in the athletic department and the school. I was totally happy working all these years and I experienced tremendous success. It was an honor to work there."

At Schoolcraft, Lafata's teams were MCCAA Eastern Conference champions eight times, MCCAA state champions six times and NJCAA District winners three times.

Schoolcraft also placed sixth under Lafata at the 2001 Nationals.

"The Schoolcraft college community recognizes the outstanding women's basketball coaching career of Karen Lafata, whose numbers reflect her loyalty and dedication to the college and the student-athletes she served," Fox said. "Karen epitomizes the very best of what college educators provide on a daily basis, that balance of academics and athletics. We wish her the very best at Wayne State University."

The 39-year-old Brathwaite played two years of basketball at Moraine Valley Community College (Ill.) and did his undergraduate work at Chicago State University. He coached at Our Lady of Angels in Chicago and Detroit Old Redford Academy in Detroit.

Brathwaite is a former Detroit police officer who currently resides in Detroit.

"I'm really happy and it will be a smooth transition," Lafata said. "The kids love him. I feel good about that and he's a big part of our success the last four years. They should keep rolling."

Ladywood netters finals-bound

BY BRAD EMONS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Linda Brennan got an unexpected surprise in her first season as varsity tennis coach at Livonia Ladywood.

The Blazers earned a Division 3 state finals qualifying berth as a team after a runner-up finish May 20 in the Grosse Ile regional tourney.

Host Grosse Ile won the title with 26 points, while Ladywood claimed a runner-up and automatic bid next weekend to Kalamazoo with 17.

Riverview (15), Dearborn Divine Child (14) and Chelsea (12) rounded out the top five team finishers.

"These girls deserved to go to 'state' after the way they came on as a team," said Brennan, who spent the previous six seasons as the Blazers' JV coach. "I never dreamed we'd take second and I think we surprised a lot of coaches."

Ladywood finished 7-8 during the dual-meet season and fifth out of six teams in the Catholic League Tournament. They also had runner-up finishes at the Monroe and Howell invitationals.

"The Catholic League was very tough and we also had matches with (Beverly Hills) Detroit Country Day and (Bloomfield Hills) Cranbrook," Brennan said. "We started the season a little slowly. Our singles were strong all year long, but then our doubles came around because of the way they worked together and came together." The biggest surprise came at

No. 1 doubles when juniors Kenzie Kettner and Jenny Rhodes, seeded fifth going into the regional, won the title with a 6-1, 6-2 win over Grosse Ile's duo of Marissa Nazareno and Montana Pruett after knocking off the top-seeded duo from Trenton, Liz Sheeran and Molly Wilkie, 7-5, 6-4.

Kettner and Rhodes, starters on Ladywood's Final Four volleyball team last fall, went 3-0 on the day and improved their season record to 12-10.

"Those two played No. 1 for me last year on JV and they've really come on," Brennan said.

Ladywood's other regional title came at No. 2 singles when third seed Erica Lay defeated Grosse Ile's Ania Latala, the top seed, 6-2, 6-1, in the finals. Lay, a junior, also ousted second seed Felicia Kollias of Riverview, to improve to 15-7 on Ladywood's No. 3 singles player Megan Glowacki (13-7) also earned a spot in the semifinals before falling in three sets to Grosse Ile's Mary Kate McShane, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5.

The Blazers' No. 1 singles player all year has been Stephanie Petrusha (13-8), while sophomore Nicole Salter holds down the No. 4 slot.

Ladywood's No. 2 doubles team of Mary Beth Rouna and Courtney Doenitz got to the finals before falling to Riverview's topseeded duo of Emly Bow and Bianca Korkis, 6-2, 6-4.

Also headed to Kalamazoo to represent the Blazers at the Division 3 finals are No. 3 doubles team Maura Motta, a senior, and Mia Kudron, a junior, along with No. 4 doubles players Allison Franz, a senior, and Shannon Butwill, a junior. Brennan was an assistant under Joe Stafford when the Blazers qualified as a team in 2009.

"It's exciting to coach these people," Brennan said. "They're great group. Even in a tough Catholic League they played their hearts out. They're coachable and so respectable.

Warming up at halftime of their game is the Canton Celtic Gold, under the watch of coach Amy Dorogi (right).

HE'S SMART

"Smart refs like me don't fall down, don't make sharp turns," Vandenheuvel said.

That drew a laugh from Team Canada ref Francis D'Souza of Kitchener, located a few miles from Waterloo and about 200 miles from Detroit.

D'Souza, 72, then turned more serious when talking about how they enjoy officiating such a well-run tournament as the Canton Cup.

"We have been doing these kind of games and these kinds of tournaments," he said. "We are experienced, and it is exciting to see they are playing good soccer in the states."

As for working a tourney that has 781 teams and about 12,000 players, D'Souza emphasized that "bigger and bigger" doesn't affect refereeing.

Whoever comes on the field, they're all experienced teams, well coached and well disciplined," D'Souza said. "And that's what we like here."

All of the action Friday was at Independence, the main hub of the tournament, while other sites dried out from the heavy rainfall that pounded metro Detroit.

Not too far from the referees' tent was Field No. 7, where CSC Canton Celtic '95 Gold and Waza Kelly East played two 35-minute halves.

The home team got off to a quick 2-0 lead, capitalizing on an own goal put into his own net by the Waza keeper. Instead of pushing the ball over the crossbar and out of traffic, he inadvertently directed it into the twine.

BIG EVENT, BIG FUN

Those teams and all others in the tourney will play a guaranteed three games with the finals now set to begin 8 a.m. Monday.

However it turns out, players, parents and coaches get a kick - literally - out of such a mammoth weekend event.

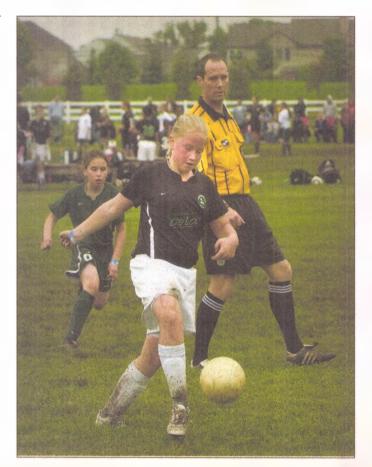

Nate Stovall, who coaches the Canton Celtic '99 Black team (which just defeated the Ann Arbor Strike Force by a 6-0 score), said it is a tournament he looks forward to.

"There's just lots of things to do," Stovall said. "With six or seven divisions per age group, from rec all the way up to the Select and Premier levels.

Scoring two of his team's goals in the victory was 12-year-old Canton resident Lauren Jankowski, who simply described it as "fun competition. This is like a home tournament, and it's big."

Teammate Hannah Lepko, 12, from Canton, concurred with Lauren's assessment.

"It was really fun, it's really good competition," Hannah said. "So it's

WORTH WALKING FOR

Southfield's Johnny Weidman of the South Oakland Force 14U team played his first Canton Cup game Friday, a 4-3 loss.

"I did decent, I could have done better, I think," Johnny said. "My team went here last year, but I just joined this team, so this is my first year at the tournament."

What did he think of it? "It's intense," he added. "I was kind of nervous when I started because there were a lot of people watching. I didn't want to make any mistakes.

His dad, John Weidman, shook his head about the size and scope of the Canton Cup.

"I've never seen anything like it in my life," Weidman said. "... I assume there's been a lot of people working hard for many, many years to bring it (the tournament) to little kids all over the place." Weidman won't forget the tourney for another reason. "I had to walk a whole mile from where I parked."

His mud-caked shoes were proof of that trek, undoubtedly something he and many others don't mind making in order to soak in all the soccer they

The show goes on - until Monday

The Canton Cup Soccer Tournament began on time 5 p.m. Friday with a slew of games at soggy Independence Park.

But with the loss of 15 fields due to the torrential rains Wednesday and Thursday, the finals will be played Monday instead of Sunday.

Finals will start at 8 a.m. on Memorial Day with the last contests slated to begin around 2 p.m., tournament director Darryl Noel said.

"Independence (Park) has 100 percent of the finals," Noel said. 'The website (www.cantoncup.net) will have the times."

Everything else is ready to go for the 781 teams and estimated 50,000 people who are visiting the Canton area for one of the Midwest's largest club-based tournaments.

ANSWERING THE CALL

Noel said he was "amazed" at how more than 200 Canton Cup volunteers switched gears after the downpours turned much of the tournament footprint to muck.

"It's been a major challenge," Noel said. "We've had a really good opportunity for our team to come together.

"And honestly, to a person, they've amazed me with ... the way everyone is pulling together, to be able to accommodate losing over 15 fields."

There now are 53 fields (down from 68), and all contests scheduled for field No. 23 at Independence are being shifted to Livonia Churchill on Newburgh Road north of Joy Road.

All of that forced a reshuffling of the deck.

"We have the full schedule re-done, we honored all coaching conflicts," Noel said. "We were able to make sure to just maximize the experience for our guests."

The "100-year rains" also soaked available parking areas, resulting in the use of shuttle buses in the vicinity of Independence Park.

Volunteers are directing traffic to those shuttle buses, which will help take some of the burden off of the Independence parking lots.

Volunteers are directing traffic to shuttle buses, which will help take some of the burden off of the Independence parking lots.

"We lost probably a third of our parking," Noel said. "So what we've done is contracted shuttle buses.'

Those buses will move spectators to and from Workman Elementary School (250 Denton Road) and IHA Internal Village (49650 Cherry Hill).

For those who opted to drive themselves to Independence Park, well, ... there were two tow trucks pulling vehicles out of the mud on a regular basis on Friday.

Net presence: Whalers ink goalie Patterson

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, May 29, 2011

The Plymouth Whalers last week announced the signing of 16-yearold goaltender Jake Patterson, who was selected by in the seventh round (135th overall) of the 2010 Ontario Hockey League Priority Selection.

Patterson — 6-foot-1 and 176 pounds - played last season for the Hamilton Red Wings, where he posted a 3.49 goals against average.

"We've always liked Patterson, going back a couple of years ago when our Sault-area scout Mike Oliverio started to watch him," Whalers GM-Coach Mike Vellucci said. "Jake's is a hard worker with talent. We think he'll continue to improve as he works with (Plymouth goaltending coach) Stan Matwijiw.

"With the possibility of injuries or call-ups to pro camps or the World Junior Championships, it's good to have another goaltender available."

The Whalers have excellent depth in goal for 2011-12 with Scott Wedgewood (a New Jersey Devils draft), Matt Mahalak (rated eighth among North American goaltenders for this summer's National Hockey League Entry Draft) and now Wedgewood rates an excellent chance of receiving an invitation to try out for Team Canada for the 2012 World Junior Championships, which will be held Dec. 26, 2011-Jan. 5, 2012 in Calgary and Edmonton.

"I'm very excited to be part of the Whalers," Patterson said in a telephone interview. "I feel I can learn a lot from watching Scott and Matt and working with Stan Matwijiw. I really like what I've seen of Plymouth."

Patterson, who turns 17 next month, participated in the Whalers' last two rookie orientations and played in Plymouth's 2010 training camp. He'll attend school next season at the Plymouth-Canton Educational Goalie Jake Patterson, shown at the recent Plymouth Whalers rookie orientation at Compuware Arena, signed a contract with the Ontario Hockey League club.

Redford costume designer dresses actors in authentic style

BY SHARON DARGAY O&E STAFF WRITER

Bernadine Vida amassed approximately 10,000 clothing items — including jewelry, hats, purses, dresses, shirts and ties to tell a story this month.

The Redford costume designer used the authentic 1960s vintage clothing to build wardrobes for each character in Margarine Wars, a film comedy about anti-oleo laws and margarine smuggling in the Midwest. The film, which recently finished shooting in Armada, tells the story of a New York hippie whose van breaks down in rural Illinois en route to California. He ends up smuggling margarine across state lines for women in the community, trying to earn the $500 he needs to fix his vehicle.

Vida outfitted actors in clothing that will help tell the story, enhance their characters, and accurately interpret the 1960s time period. Many of the pieces came from her own collection of vintage outfits and accessories. Others were bought with the film's costume budget or sewn.

"I wanted this film to have a real authenticity. To be true to the story and the characterization, you've got to be true to the sociological aspects of the film. What were people doing, what were they thinking? It's all reflected through their ward-

Bernadine Vida of Redford on set of the "Margarine Wars," in Armada.

COSTUME HOUSE

Vida, who has costumed nearly all the major feature films that have been shot in Michigan, worked for several weeks this spring in a rented vacant ranch house 15 minutes from the Margarine Wars set on an Armada farm. For three of those weeks, she lived in a nearby condo, miles from her Wayne County home and studio.

Assisted by five interns, she stored and organized racks of clothing, boxes of hats, purses, earrings, pins and necklaces. She adjusted and fit costumes and kept track of the costume budget and receipts.

"To be successful in this industry, you've got to have an even mind, be flexible and be a jack of all trades," Vida said. "I can build, I can sew. Whatever goes through my mind I can make an actuality. I've always been proud of that."

She has clothed dancers, musicians, opera singers and actors on the theater stage, in commercials, television shows and industrial promotions and events.

MEMORABLE JOB

She's most proud of her work with the Lincoln presidential library and museum in 2001.

"When I go into the rotunda and see John Wilkes Booth and realize I built his entire costume, tailored it, dressed it and everything, it's one of my favorites. I'm proud because it will live beyond me."

Lately she has designed costumes for a teen television sitcom, The Wannabes, and for characters involved in promoting a new injection pen for diabetics. She's also busy with made-in Michigan movies.

"I'm happy I'm getting the kinds of movies that are socially important. They aren't fluff and junk," said Vida, who began work this week on The Citizen, a film about a Lebanese Immigrant becoming a U.S. citizen.

"Big studio features will always go to what is stereotypically desirable to American masses. The big (Los Angeles) features want to hire designers out of L.A. I don't get a chance to do that because I never made the L.A. exit."

HOMETOWN GIRL

Except for a brief stay in California years ago, Vida has lived locally since childhood. After graduation from

JOINT INJECTIONS, MORE THAN ONE? The place of joint injections in the treatment of arthritis is on firm footing. Not only well organized studies, but the individual physician's own experience provides evidence for the ability of a steroid injection into a joint such as the knee or shoulder to provide a patient with pain relief and better movement.

This column has dealt in the past with the question of how often a person can receive a joint injection, the answer being: as often as the injection confers benefit. But another related question is: at any one time, how many joint injections can a patient receive? Physicians cannot turn to the medical literature to answer that question as investigations are lacking on that aspect of medical therapy. However, by custom, two injections at one time are considered as acceptable treatment.

The answer really depends on the condition of the patient. If the individual is elderly and has 2 swollen knees and a sore shoulder, then the doctor likely will inject only the 2 worse joints. The amount of anesthesia needed might cause the elderly person to become dizzy or even faint.

If the patient is not elderly, but is a poorly controlled diabetic, the physician may inject only one joint. Steroids antagonize insulin and 2 or more injections may cause the diabetes to go out of control. If a knee or shoulder joint shows far advanced arthritis, the physician may not inject any joint. The injection may give temporary relief and weaken the patient's resolve to seek an orthopedic surgeon for a replacement knee or shoulder.

Bernadine Vida keeps photos of movie cast members on the wall of her temporary costume department in a rented house near the set of "Margarine Wars."

DESIGNER

design at Parsons School of Design in New York.

After college she designed clothing for the Harbinger Dance Company, but worked mostly in the political arena, both in Michigan and in San Francisco, Calif., where her now ex-husband was completing a job assignment

Growing tired of politics, the young mother took on a challenge of designing costumes for a San Francisco theater production of Little Women.

That led to an internship and more work in theater, both in San Francisco and later in Michigan. Although she has travelled extensively, Vida has maintained her studio and residence in her childhood home ever since.

Her father helped her raise her son while she juggled motherhood and a growing costume design business.

"I wanted my son to go to the schools I went to. My brothers and I went to Redford Union and so did my son."

Last summer she turned the garage into a second studio. She suspects she is the most longterm resident in her neighborhood, which she describes as "a village."

She doesn't plan to stray far from her roots.

"I've been fortunate. I haven't made a million dollars but I've amassed quite a career. And the real joy for me is being able to teach, mentor and pass on my skills to others."

In addition to working with costume interns on films, she teaches at the College of Creative Studies and has lectured extensively.

BORA CLAMP EDGE

Lon Grossman

Affinity Tool Works, LLC recently introduced the Bora Clamp Edge.

Honestly, I thought it was going to be just another gimmick tool that I'd never use. Wrong!

The Bora Clamp Edge is a quick guide tool that provides a perfectly straight and secure straightedge for accurate cuts through all kinds and types of wood. You can use it with circular saws, jigsaws, routers and biscuit jointers as well as with other tools or just as an accurate guide to scribe.

The company manufactures three sizes of clamps to handle a complete variety of woodworking projects. The small, 24-inch model is commonly used as a fence on table saws, router tables and small cutting projects. The 36-inch clamp edge is perfect for remodeling jobs such as trimming doors and cabinets.

They also make a 50-inch clamp edge, which is the one I've been testing. It's designed for 48-inch cuts. The design, engineering, integrated clamps and ease of use are all impressive.

The Bora Clamp has ergonomic handles, easy and simple lever locking mechanisms, unique swivel clamps (which also permits the user to do some slight angle cuts) and was designed for professionals, handymen and homeowners in mind.

The clamps are made from aircraft grade extruded aluminum and come with a lifetime warranty.

Affinity Tools also has an enviable line of pistol grip clamps, multi-angle adjustable squares and an angle master miter duplicator.

If you or someone you know works with wood, check out Bora Tools at the following websites: Woodcraft (www.woodcraft.com); Rockler (www.rockler.com); Sears (www.sears.com).

SPORT BRELLA CHAIR

Now that great weather is almost upon us, I'm sure everyone, including myself is looking to the outdoors as well as outdoor projects and events.

I recently came across the Sport Brella Chair. It is a unique, new portable garden and patio chair. Yes, we've all seen portable outdoor fold-up chairs. People take them from their patios to the Woodward Dream Cruise, beaches, parks and concerts.

What makes the Sport Brella Chair unlike other foldout sport chairs is that it has an attached, 360-degree swivel umbrella, which can be moved from side to side, and can be swiveled at three different points with the push of a button. The umbrella opens out to 46-inches, which provides complete coverage from the sun and wind at any conceivable angle.

The lightweight Sport Brella Chair also has a built-in cup holder, bottle opener and even a zippered pouch for personal items. The chair easily folds up and fits into a compact carry bag that has a comfortable carry strap.

The M.S.R.P. is $39.99 and is available at www.sportbrella.com. I recently found it at Costco for $35.00.

WHISPERSENSE VENTILATION FANS

Panasonic recently introduced its new Whisper Sense Ventilation Fans at the 2011 kitchen and bath industry show in Las Vegas.

Panasonic claims the WhisperSense bathroom exhaust fans are the only vent fans on the market to incorporate dual-motion and humidity sensors. That makes perfect sense, since the fan will only operate when necessary. The motion sensor has a delay shut-off timer that activates when a person enters the bathroom and automatically shuts the fan off 20 minutes after the occupant has left.

If the tub or shower is used, the built-in humidity sensor overrides the delay timer and continues to exhaust moisture until the humidity is back down to a pre-set level.

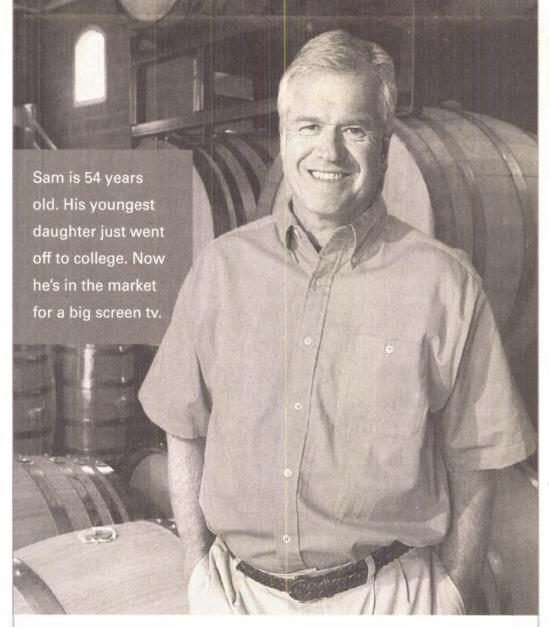

All that is well and good, but my favorite feature is the noise level. It has an incredibly quiet level, as low as 0.3-sone. One-sone is the sound of a quiet refrigerator operating at night. The 0.3 would be the quietest ceiling mounted fan I have experienced.

Panasonic WhisperSense ventilation fans have an average suggested retail price from $289 to $412 depending on the model (some have lights) and are available at Panasonic dealers and wholesalers. Check out the WhisperSense fans when they come out in June of 2011 at www.panasonic.com/vented-fans.

Q: While a rolling stone may gather no moss, our shaded, shingle roof is. What do people do if their roof is susceptible to fungus or moss?

A: You don't have to raise the roof to correct it. For all types of roofs there is a product called "Shingle-Shield" from Chicago Metallic. It is a maintenance-free roof moss/fungus protector. It is easily installed along the ridgeline and releases zinc oxide. The manufacturer claims it will last the life of the roof. Chemicals such as zinc oxide or chloride in metals are carried down the roof when it rains. These chemicals discourage the growth of moss. Also trim any overhanging trees and keep the roof clear of leaves and debris. With a cedar shake roof, remove as much of the moss between the shakes as possible. Use a piece of wire, then hose off the tiles.

A GANNETT COMPANY

A Georgia O'Keeffe-style pillar painted by Marilyn Meredith will be on display at Canton's Liberty Fest next month.

Cathy Vettese works on her pillar during Relay for Life in Canton.

Painting adds creative touch to annual relay

Sharon Lee Dillenbeck earned the "People's Choice" award for her painted pillar version of Herbert Badham's "George Street" painting during the annual Relay for Life earlier this month in Canton.

Dillenbeck, owner of D & M Art Studio of Canton, came up with a creative, artistic way to help the cause by asking artists to donate their time to paint famous artwork on four-sided pillars with acrylic paint. The artists painted during the Relay.

Local businesses and philanthropists sponsored the short pillars for $50, large pillars for $100 and those attending the Relay voted for their favorites at $1 per vote.

Artists included Marilyn Meredith, Elizabeth Gullikson, Megan Flynn, Megan Miner, Deana

Salhaney, Rachel Bissonnett, Cathy Vettese, Bethany Grysko, Ryan Rockov, Megan Vance and Mary Elizabeth

The pillars will be displayed during Canton's Liberty Fest next month. The short pillars are for sale at $125 each. Large pillars are $250. Call Dillenbeck at (734) 453-3710 for more informa-

Camp featuring acting coach teaches teens to act for film

Film Acting Camp for Teens, taught by acting coach Gorlon Michaels, will run 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. June 20-24, at Genitti's Little Theatre, 108 E. Main, Northville.

The Gordon Michaels Actors Workshops have been housed at Genittis Little Theater since the first time his classes were made available in Michigan in 1999. They have grown into what is now The Gordon Michaels Acting Studio. The studio provides actors of all ages with a place to grow artistically while at the same time gathering insight in the business of film, television, and theatre.

Michaels says that "any person who has that dream in their heart and truly believes in their heart that they want to become an actor must be true to themselves, and move forward with every ounce of effort to make that dream come true.'

"I believe a person with these desires has a responsibility to honor that dream which is born in their heart. I have witnessed many successes in the entertainment business of people doing exactly that. It's not always easy for a person with the desire to become an actor to just throw themselves into that area but the most important thing is to take that first very important step, begin to get training."

Cost of the teen camp is $225. Register at gordonmichaelsstudio.com or call (248) 262-6805

Annual run/walk focuses on prostate cancer

Prostate cancer is the most common type of non-skin cancer found in American men, affecting one in six, and is the second leading cause of death, according to the American Cancer Society.

More than 217,000 new cases of prostate cancer were diagnosed in the United States in 2010, with more than 32,000 men losing their fight with the disease.

Because the best defense against prostate cancer is early detection, the Michigan Institute of Urology (MIU) will present its Third Annual MIU Run for the Ribbon at 8 a.m. Father's Day, Sunday, June 19 at the Detroit Zoo, in Royal Oak. The MIU Run for the Ribbon 5K run/ walk is led by MIU CEO Dr. Alphonse Santino, and coordinated by MIU urologist Dr. Michael Lutz. MIU developed the run to increase awareness about prostate cancer and educate the public about the disease, including detection, prevention and treatment.

"By tying prostate cancer awareness to the MIU Run for the Ribbon, we hope men, supported by their families, will be inspired to be proactive about their health. The risk of developing prostate cancer increases as a man ages, so men need to choose to know about their health with appropriate screenings. If you're going to 'fight like a man,' you need to know everything you can, as early as you can, about your opponent," Lutz stated. "We hope to see more runners than ever this year as this event grows, along with awareness of prostate can-

MIU Run for the Ribbon is in partnership with the American Cancer Society, The Prostate Conditions Education Council and Prostate Awareness and Cancer Education (PACE) Race Series and is one of only 18 sanctioned PACE races across the country.

The cost for early registration, made by May 30, is $20 for adults and $10 for children. Registrations made from May 31 to June 18 are $25 for adults and $15 for children. Race day registration is $30 for adults and $20 for children. Online registration at MIURunForTheRibbon.org is available until

Sinus Care 101: Spring cleaning for your allergies

With the departure of the winter chill comes allergy season with all of its runny, scratchy, sneezy annoyances.

Stuffy nasal passages and plugged up sinuses are a common complaint and remedies can range from over-the-counter medication to sinus surgery

Doctors at the Michigan Sinus Center offer the following tips to keep you breathing easier:

Before you consider other measures, one of the simplest things you can do is cut down on your exposure to allergens.

"Allergy avoidance is the key for patients with allergies," stated Dr. Jeffrey Terrell, director of the Michigan Sinus Center and professor of otolaryngology at the University of Michigan Medical School. "It's the real first step, because if you can avoid the allergies you can avoid the symptoms." If pollen bothers you, keep your windows closed, change clothes and shower after doing yard work, and consider investing in an air purifier with a HEPA filter for your home.

Reducing your exposure to non-seasonal irritants can help, too.

Most people spend more time in their bedrooms than in any other room in the house. Putting allergy covers on your pillows and mattress can help cut down on allergies to dust mites, which feed on skin flakes

Fido and Fluffy may love sleeping in the bed with you, but keeping them out of the bedroom will keep their dander out, too. And if your basement smells too much like a basement, you may have a mold problem, which can exacerbate aller-

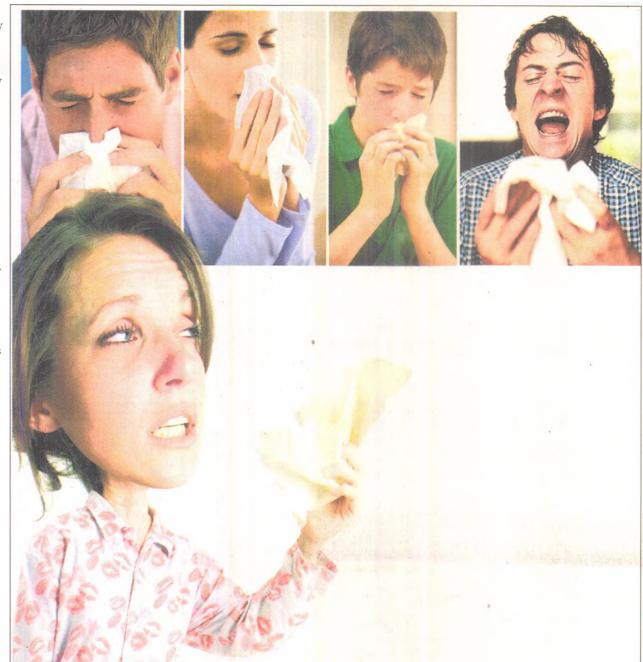

If you have chronic sinus stuffiness or discomfort, testing for and treating underlying allergies is a critical step, said Dr. Melissa Pynnonen, associate professor of otolaryngology at U-M.

"Treatment options can include medications, allergy avoidance and allergy shots," Pynnonen said. "Many medications for allergies are available without a prescription, including antihistamines like Zyrtec, Allegra and Claritin, while other medications, such as nasal steroid sprays, require a prescrip-

One simple, cheap and effective weapon against sinus troubles is a salt-water rinse, said Dr. Mark A Zacharek, associate professor of Otolaryngology at U-M.

"They come in two varieties — a neti pot, which is like a little watering can — and a plastic squeeze bottle, which introduces the water with more force," Zacharek said.

"The rinse helps to clear the nasal passages and keep them

If you've already been prescribed a steroid nasal spray, Terrell suggests you lean over the bottle while holding it straight, rather than tilting it up into your nostril. The technique ensures the medicine gets deep into the nose. The Michigan Sinus Center is located in Livonia. For

Diabetes and Erectile Dysfunction: Take Control

Erectile Dysfunction (ED) may be the nost important diagnostic tool when it comes to general health in the baby-boomer population! Often times, it's the first symptom that men may notice and the one that leads them to the doctor. If a man is experiencing E.D., it is suggested that he be screened for more serious health conditions such as heart disease, hypertension, and diabetes

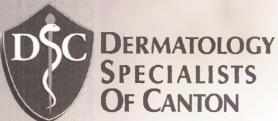

Erectile dysfunction is a common complication of diabetes. Up to 85 percent of men who have diabetes may experience E.D. The longer you've had diabetes and the more severe it is, the more likely you are to have trouble with erections. High blood sugar can permanently damage the nerves and blood vessels responsible for erections. Recent advances and treatment methods have changed the way both diabetes and E.D. are now treated. With regard to E.D., some treatments offer a temporary solution; others provide a more permanent way to esolve the problem. As a urologist specializing in the treatment of E.D., my goal is to provide men with the information they need to find the solution that's most satisfying for them—and their partner! Schedule Your

What Employers Think When They Read Your Résumé

Robert Half International

If you're like most job seekers, the hiring process can sometimes make you scratch your head in confusion. For example, how many times have you come across the "perfect" position, quickly submitted your resume and eagerly anticipated the hiring manager's call... only to hear nothing from the company?

Unfortunately, the frustrating reality is that the majority of resumes you submit will elicit little or no response from potential employers. Much of the time, the situation is out of your control: The position may have already been filled by the time you inquired about it or simply wasn't as good a fit as you thought. That doesn't mean, however, that there's nothing you can do to improve your odds of being called for an interview. Following is an inside peek into the questions hiring managers ask themselves when evaluating resumes. By understanding potential employers' thought processes, you can craft stronger application materials.

Can the applicant fill my need?

After all, a firm looking to hire a computer programmer isn't going to call you for an interview if you only have a background in human resources. But even if you possess the necessary experience, if your resume isn't targeted to the specific company and opening, your qualifications could seem equally unrelated.

Tailoring your resume to the position experience in a way that shows the hiring manager that they align perfectly with the opening. So, rather than submit the same generic resume for every job you pursue, look at each opening and create a customized resume. Sure, it takes a little more time, but it's worth it.

If you are applying for a programmer position, for example, the company will want to see previous employment in the information technology industry; knowledge of Java, XML or other computer languages; and evidence that the applications you've helped develop have benefited former employers. In this case, you would downplay your three years as a busboy in college as well as your brief stint as a telemarketer.

Throwing everything against the wall and seeing if something sticks isn't the right approach; a hiring manager is more likely to discard your resume than wade through it in hopes of finding relevant information.

Use numbers -- perhaps by pointing out that your program enabled the sales team to collect more than 5,000 leads per month -which are likely to stand out in a sea of words and grab a hiring manager's attention. Research the company and reread the job description several times to make sure you are stressing all of your most relevant qualifications.

Will the applicant remain with my firm for the long term?

The hiring process is lengthy, complicated and expensive. An October 2004 study by the Employment Policy Foundation found that replacing just one worker costs businesses an average of $13,355. Because of high turnover costs, hiring managers seek employees who are not likely to leave the company soon after accepting an offer. They'll look to your resume for proof of a stable work history.

If you have job-hopped in the past, consider submitting a functional, rather than a chronological, resume. A functional resume is organized around your skills, experiences and accomplishments, not the > specific roles you have held at various points in your career. You also can use this format to downplay employment gaps; but be prepared to explain them during an interview.

In addition, hiring managers look for assurance that you are dedicated to your profession. If you belong to a professional association, possess certifications or take professional education courses, list this information on your resume. But make sure everything is relevant and current. You may have a certified financial planner designation, but it means little if you have not renewed your certification in four

Is the potential employee professional?

Imagine trying to convince someone to buy a product by providing them with a description of it but not allowing them to see or test it. Sounds hard, doesn't it? In essence, that's your challenge when submitting a resume. A hiring manager will use just a few sheets of paper to determine if you are professional and can communicate well. So, make sure your resume is free of typos and grammatical mistakes and that it is easy to understand. Because hiring managers may receive hundreds of applications, they'll eliminate you from contention for the slightest infraction. And if they have a question about your work history, they don't have the time to call you for clarification.

Have a friend, relative or member of your professional network read through your resume with a sharp eye to spot any errors you might have missed. Afterward, ask the person to summarize its contents. Can he or she accurately recall your past positions and responsibilities? Can the individual name your career highlights? Is the person able to tell the type of job you seek? If not, you're probably not getting your message across as clearly as you can, which means a hiring manager may not be as impressed with your application as you'd hope.

The hiring process can be opaque, but one thing is clear: A well-written, targeted resume gives you the best chance of being called for an interview and, ultimately, landing the position you desire. Before you submit your next application, think like a hiring manager to ensure your resume doesn't get lost in the crowd.
