Costumed children — and some grown-ups, as well — welcomed the Halloween season Sunday in downtown Plymouth during the fifth annual Pumpkin Palooza.

The event, organized by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and local business owners, featured costume contests, games and treats, entertainment by a magician and a ventriloquist and visits by critters from the Les-

Man's body found at school; no foul play suspected

Matt Jachman Staff Writer

School officials and police moved quickly to shield students and maintain a sense of normalcy Monday morning after the discovery of a man's body outside Smith Elementary School.

No foul play was immediately suspected in the death of the man, a Plymouth resident, and an autopsy was to be conducted by the Wayne County medical examiner's office, police said.

A Smith employee spotted the body, lying in a playground area, about 8:20 a.m. Monday and first-responders were called, said Nick Brandon, the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools communications director. Smith is on McKinley in the city's southwest corner; its school day begins at 8:55 a.m.

Police used emergency blankets to set up a makeshift screen, arriving students and parents were guided away

Local leaders see trouble with student retention

Joanne Maliszewski Staff Writer

Plymouth-Canton school district leaders are disappointed - to say the least - that the Michigan House approved a week ago a controversial bill that would require students to repeat the third grade if they're not proficient readers.

The bill passed on a vote of 57-48, after impassioned pleas from lawmakers on both sides. It now goes to the Senate for consideration. In a second bill, the House approved a bill updating the state's rules on evaluations of teachers and administrators.

But it was the third-grade reading bill that sparked the big debate. "I certainly understand the problem and the need to address the problem. But this bill does not do it. The threat to hold back a third-grader is not the way to solve the problem," said Rep. Kurt Heise-R-Plymouth. "It does more to punish kids and belittle them. The bill requires school districts to intervene early with struggling readers and employ early literacy coaches who would assist students and teachers. 'The hot button is the idea of retention," said Nick Brandon, P-CCS community relations director. The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education had a adopted a resolution opposing the measure. "It takes the discretion away from teachers and parents and makes the retention mandatory," Plymouth-Canton Trustee Kate Borninski said. During the 2013-14 school year, 30 percent of Michigan fourth-graders who took the now-defunct MEAP exam failed it. The fourth-grade exam tests third-grade material. Meanwhile, on a more rigor-may have noticed yellow caution tape.

Indoor recess had been planned, Brandon said, but the police response "was so quick and so effective," students were able to go outside for recess, he said. Actions by police and the school, he said, "turned it into a rela-honored to fill out the remainder of Trustee Arnold's term.

Trustee Bob Doroshewitz, however, said he respected Mann, but leaned toward naming the fifth-place finisher in the trustee race in the August 2012 Republican primary "That's better than somebody being appointed who nobody voted for," Doroshewitz said.

The fifth-place Republican finisher in 2012 was Jennifer Mann, who was motivated by opposition to cuts in fire department staffing that had been made earlier that year. Steve Mann and Jennifer Mann are not related.

Price asked why, under the process Doroshe-witz suggested, the board shouldn't go back to the November 2012 general election results. Doroshewitz replied that the vacancy should be filled by a Republican, the party of Arnold and all board members.

'Republican seat'

"It's a Republican seat. It's unambiguous," Doroshewitz said later. The fifth-place finisher in the November 2012 election was Alanna Maguire, one of two Democrats in the trustee race that year.

Price later said he would contact also-rans in the 2012 trustee race to find out if they were interested in the spot.

Clerk Nancy Conzelman asked whether Doroshewitz would support Steve Mann.

"Not tonight," he replied, saying the board should take more time. "It's an important decision."

Conzelman said she believed the board should take action this week.

"We're always being pressured to do everything right now," Trustee Chuck Curmi said, drawing applause from people at the meeting.

The board also discussed choosing a member of the Planning Commission — Arnold was a longtime commission member — or the Zoning Board of Appeals. Members also discussed asking for applications from interested citizens. Doroshewitz said he would want the latter process to be fair and referred to the appointment of Price to the supervisor's office in April. The board had interviewed several hopefuls at that time, but the selection of Price was heavily criticized as predetermined.

"Eight people came out here — you know exactly what I'm talking about — and they put their resumes before the public and they never had a chance," Doroshewitz said.

Later, during public comments at the end of the meeting, several residents said they'd like to see Don Schnettler, a longtime board-watcher and a critic of the current board, replace Arnold.

Schnettler, who has previously run for supervisor and trustee, later said he would accept the appointment and that he plans to enter the trustee race in 2016.

Some students would be exempt from the retention mandate. Calling HB 4822 "a peals to more conservative Republicans, Heise parts in Lansing know he would not support the measure. "I really don't think it will address the problem," he said.

In fact, Heise made it clear that children who don't achieve a certain level of reading skills is not just a teacher or school district problem, but includes family and cultural issues, as well. Referring to research, Heises said that the prospect of flunking at ages of 8 or 9 "is tantamount to losing a parent." State Rep. Kristi Pagan, who also voted against the bill, said, "while this bill has many positive provisions, such as identify students' reading difficulties early, develop individual intervention plans, employ research-based literacy improvement strategies and increase training and coaching for teachers in literacy instruction, I could not support a bill that includes mandatory retention for third-graders who are unable to

"There is nothing that specifically funds this (retention)," Heise said.

Brandon expressed concern about the financial impact: "It absolutely has an impact on finances and in terms of time. We would have to administer a whole new system.'

Pagan offered similar comments: "There is no guarantee future budgets will include such funding resulting in an unfunded mandate for early literacy intervention.'

An accident on westbound Interstate 696 at the northbound I-96/I-275 exchange Oct. 15 left two dead.

Speeding teen driver jumps curb, plows into garage

A Canton teen speeding in a residential neighborhood apparently lost control of the new Chrysler 300 he was driving hitting the curb, going airborne and hitting a parked car before plowing into a garage, a police report said.

No one was injured. Police arrested the 18-year-old suspect for reckless driving, but he was released after his mother posted bond.

The incident unfolded about 6:45 p.m. Saturday in the 1500 block of Rustic Ridge, northeast of Palmer and Lilley, when witnesses watching the football game between the University of Michigan and Michigan State University heard an engine revving and saw the 2015 Chrysler 300 speeding.

Witnesses told police the car jumped the curb, struck a 2003 Dodge in a residential driveway and then hit a roll-up garage door, also damaging the frame of the garage, the report said. An ornamental light post in the yard also was broken at the base.

A 2009 Honda parked inside the garage also was damaged.

According to police, the teen motorist initially said he was driving 60 mph through the residential neighborhood, but then changed his story to 50 mph — still well above the speed limit. He reportedly blamed the incident on brake failure, though police said there appeared to have been no attempt to stop the car. He told police he was going to a friend's house.

A couple inside the house told police they had been watching the football game when their garage was struck. Some of their neighbors — also watching the game — actually were looking out their window when the crash happened.

The teen is now facing a court case in 35th District Court for the reckless driving charge.

Drug arrest

Police arresting a 28-year-old Livonia man for driving while his license was suspended found that he was carrying Suboxone, a drug that can be used for treatment of other drugs such as heroin.

Police searching the man during his arrest found he had seven Suboxone file strips in his wallet. He said he had a prescription for it from a nearby pharmacy, but police checked out his story and learned he did not.

He was cited for possession of a controlled substance.

Money scam arrest

An employee of a Speedway gas station in Canton was arrested after police say she used a Green Dot card to withdraw $350 from the cash register and also stole $264 in lottery tickets, a report said.

Police went to the Speedway, located southeast of Ford and Lilley roads, about 6 p.m. Oct. 13 after receiving reports the thefts had been captured by a video surveillance camera.

According to police reports, the 31-year-old female suspect denied stealing any money from the Green Dot card, but admitted taking the lottery tickets. She was fired on the spot and arrested.

Back at the Canton police station, the Green Dot card was found in her purse during a search, the report said.

Marijuana grower

Police found 16 marijuana plants growing just east of the Stoneybrook apartment complex, southwest of I-275 and Joy Road, a report said.

Police were called to the complex about 10:30 a.m. Oct. 13 by a manager who said the plants had been spotted growing in a wooded area near the apartment property

The manager said the plants had been covered by white bags and even had a makeshift underground sprinkler system, including a black plastic line. The source of water wasn't immediately known, however, because the report said the plastic line didn't come from the apartment building.

The marijuana plants were confiscated so they could be destroyed.

Man regrets using 'n-word' in road argument

A Plymouth Township man in his 20s told police he regretted calling a woman the 'n-word" during an argument in a township residential area Friday morning.

The woman, who had filed an ethnic intimidation complaint after the incident that occurred about 7:45 a.m. Friday, later told the reporting officer that she didn't want charges pressed, but wanted police to talk to the man, according to a Plymouth Township Police Department re-

It was unclear what precipitated their argument, which took place in a neighborhood in the area of Beck and North Territorial. The complainant told police she was turning her vehicle from Braeburn Lane onto Latheron Drive when the man stopped his car in front of her, called her the "n-word" and told her to "get out of here." She said she was concerned because her 6year-old son was in her vehicle. She was able to get a license plate number.

The car the man was driving was registered to his mother and, when an officer spoke to the man at his home Friday afternoon, he said the complainant had told him to "kiss my ass" and that he had responded with the "n-word." The man said he regretted using the term and would handle the situation differently in

Disorderly arrests

Two men, 24 and 25, were arrested for disorderly conduct the night of Oct. 12 after reports of a loud argument in the area of Canton Center Road and Partridge Drive.

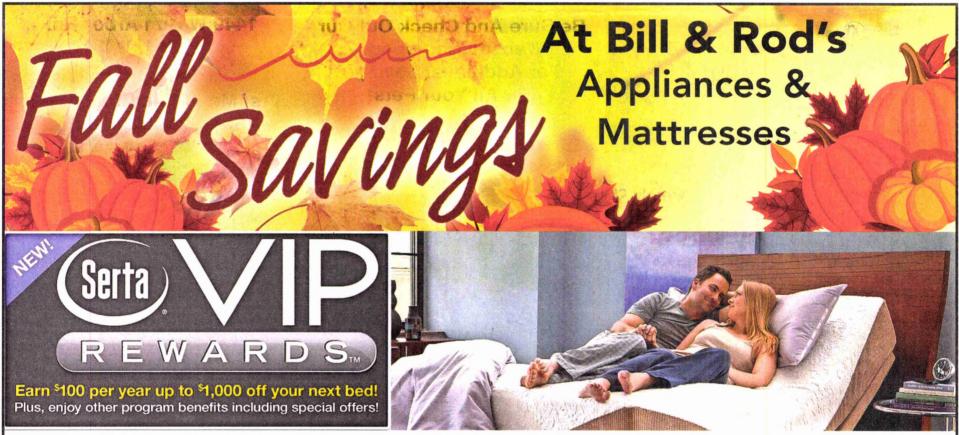

The complainant told police a gun was mentioned during the argument, but neither arrestee was armed and officers who combed the area couldn't find a gun, a police report said.

One man ran when a police car pulled up to the scene shortly after 11 p.m.; a city of Plymouth officer later located him nearby and he was taken to St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia after a breath test showed he was extremely intoxicated, the report said.

The second man was argumentative and uncooperative at the scene and appeared intoxicated, police said, and gave officers a false name. He was eventually identified and charged with giving police a phony name.

The man who ran from police later said he did so because he was wanted on a warrant from Westland on a marijuana possession charge. He said the argument had started while they were on their way to buy crack cocaine, but that no drugs had been obtained.

Local personal trainer aims for national figure competition

Pamela A. Zinkosky Correspondent

Mel Weldon stands 5-foot-3 and weighs 115 pounds. One look at her will tell you those pounds come from muscle, not fat. She has less than 6 percent body fat - far below the 21 percent to 24 percent measurement that's typical for fit women.

Weldon's physique is no accident. The 32-year-old personal trainer at Life Time Fitness in Canton is in training for the women's figure competition in this Saturday's National Physique Committee Central States at Lincoln High School in Ypsilanti. Central States will also include physique, bodybuilding, fitness and bikini competitions.

Weldon, a Livonia resident, has been a personal trainer for four years and a lifetime athlete. She played volleyball and softball and was the top long jumper and sprinter on the Churchill High School track team.

"In high school, they called me 'Miss Fitness," she said.

The mother of a middleschool daughter and a 9-yearold son has just one other NPC competition under her belt the June 2015 Michigan State novice competition. Weldon entered the competition with friends who backed out at the last minute, but she stuck with it and ended up taking fourth place.

Saturday's Central States competition is a national qualifier. The top five in each category will compete at one of several national competitions. For Weldon, that would mean competing in Chicago next Mel Weldon of Livonia is a personal trainer at Life Time Fitness in Canton.

"It's a stretch, but that's my goal," Weldon said.

Nutrition

Since July, Weldon has been on a strict diet. "A lot of it is nutrition," she said. "I calculate and measure everything. It really comes down to a science.

Through September — a month away from the competition —Weldon was allowing herself one weekly cheat meal where she could eat pizza or whatever else she wanted. But with the competition so close, she's sticking to her tried and true foods.

What does she eat? Complex carbohydrates like quinoa and whole oats, cage-free chicken and egg whites for protein and organic vegetables like asparagus. She's cut out sugar - even natural sugar found in fruit as well as dairy. Her lab work yes, she has blood taken regularly to see how her body is breaking down food showed that she does not break down dairy well.

This type of eating can be boring, but Weldon said she simply does not dwell on it. "You learn not to focus on the food," she said. "I stick with the same foods because I know what works. I eat every two hours. It's just fuel to me.'

She does cook "regular" food for her family, she said, but she'll make herself a plain piece of chicken on the side. Her family already eats healthy, she said, so she doesn't impose her diet on them.

"I do go out to eat with friends," Weldon said. "I eat my own chicken ahead of time and I order a side of vegetables and a water or black coffee. I'm very social. I focus on the people, not the food."

Peak fitness

Weldon said NPC figure competitions are all about overall muscle tone, muscle symmetry and a "V taper" body that starts with wide shoulders and angles into a small waist. Muscles have to not only be developed, but equally developed, she explained.

Every week, Weldon's professional trainer closely examines her body to determine which muscles need more work and which may be too developed. She creates her workout plan based on that. These days, she's doing six lar workouts twice a day to get lean for the competition. She also does three days a week of strength training with weights for 30-40 minutes.

In these last days before the competition, she'll load up on complex carbohydrates and cut down on water so the muscle pops through more, she said.

"As I get closer (to the competition), I'm looking at my body daily," Weldon said. "Everything is about timing it, so you peak on that one day.

Weldon puts this "peak fitness" principle to work in her personal training as well. "I like to train people for events," she said. "Maybe someone's getting married. I can take them through a similar training program so they look their best on that day."

Leading by example

Weldon sees figure competitions as an extension of her love for fitness. "It's taking my hobby and putting it towards my body," she said. "It's fun to see what changes my body will make. It's good for my kids to see and it makes me feel good."

Learning the discipline of nutrition and exercise also benefits her business. "I try to lead by example and I don't push the healthy eating on my friends and family," she said.

Weldon said she used to enjoy eating whatever she wanted and never thought she could be this disciplined about nutrition. "It's possible," she said. "I didn't think it would be. If I can conquer this discipline, then I can teach it. I can help other people.'

One thing she uses to help people maintain a healthy diet is to have them think about how they'll feel after eating or drinking something unhealthy.

Weldon does this herself. She stopped drinking alcohol at age 30 because it led to poor food decisions, she said. "I think, 'If I have that drink, it's going to lead to another one. And then I'm going to eat something unhealthy. And then in the morning I may have a doughnut.' I play the whole tape through."

Competition

The competition itself is just a culmination of all the prep work, Weldon explained. For the fitness competition, the day consists of getting spray tanned, putting on makeup, donning a skimpy bikini and five-inch stilettos and doing 10-second poses on stage.

"It almost feels like you're an actor getting ready back stage, but then it's mixed with fitness and exercise," Weldon said, noting that she was an actress and vocalist in high school.

The nutrition and body work ahead of time is what gets you to those moments of showing off your top-shape body on stage, she said. "The hard part is all the prep," she said.

After the competition, Weldon said she'll take some time off from the strict diet, but she'll add in carbohydrates very slowly so she doesn't bulk up, especially if she's set to compete in nationals next June.

Task force's vehicle helps fight mortgage fraud

The Wayne County Mortgage and Deed Fraud Task Force has received another tool to combat mortgage and deed fraud in Wayne County.

Since 2005, when the Wavne County Register of Deeds, prosecutor and sheriff created the first of its kind Joint Mortgage and Deed Fraud Task Force, the investigators in the unit have driven their personal vehicles in the course of their duties: fraud investigations as well as transporting suspects to and from court proceedings.

This month, the Fraud Unit received a new vehicle that has signage that identifies the telephone number for the Fraud Unit's hotline (313-224-5869) where they can report mortgage or deed fraud. It also provides the website where individuals can check for fraudulent documents that may have been recorded against their property (www.waynecountylandrecords.com).

It's a great benefit to citizens of Wayne County who may not be aware of these resources that are used in the fight against mortgage and deed fraud, according to Bernard J. Youngblood, founder of the Task Force and Register of Deeds.

"This type of criminal activity is not unique to Wayne County, but our task force is," Young-blood said. "Ten years of creating the nation's model for this challenging work has culminated in closing 1,450 cases and, more importantly, returning 174 homes to their rightful owners here in Wayne County.

'Often it is painstaking and tedious detective work to identify perpetrators, but extremely rewarding to return a family's most valuable asset. I am most grateful to our other elected officials who contribute the talented staff for the success of this unique team," he added.

Vote for Dalton, Pobur, Wright and Deal

It's not exactly been an edgy or boisterous campaign to fill four seats on the Plymouth City Commission in the general election Nov. 3. Certainly candidates disagree with each on certain issues, but overall the race has been mild.

Still, it's an important race for Plymouth residents because whomever is elected – the top three winners will be seated for four-year terms and the fourth will earn a two-year term – will determine the city's immediate and, perhaps, long-term course.

That's why voters Nov. 3 should cast their votes for the commission's three incumbents – Daniel Dalton, Colleen Pobur and Michael Wright. To round out the mix with a newcomer, Suzie Deal should be voters' fourth ground and is willing to listen to residents and business owners. Deal is conscientious and embraces the need to foster and improve communication between residents and officials. Above all, she has a keen love of the community and, as a business owner, realizes the local economy is beyond instrumental in maintaining the city's health.

The incumbents have worked well with sitting commissioners. Each brings their own strengths to the job and undoubtedly has the good of the city in mind when they sit in commission chambers. There is no doubt they are committed to doing what's right for the city and of creating progress.

Yet they are indeed a quiet bunch. The city commission isn't as colorful or filled with as much dissension as many other communities' governing bodies. Sure, disagreement makes life interesting. But their even-keeled discussions and processes don't mean they aren't committed to doing what's right.

For the primary, the Observer also endorsed challenger Jack Wilson, a newcomer to the commission race, but, nonetheless, a resident who has definite opinions and who is willing to dig for information on issues facing the city.

His interest and dedication should not be wasted. Based on his individual research, he has certainly disagreed with the commission and the incumbents on a number of issues, particularly the quiet zones. That's why Wilson should play a role in the city, perhaps being appointed to the planning commission, where his analytical abilities may be useful. Certainly not a back-handed compliment to Wilson, but every person who is interested in the governing of a community can and should be an asset.

At the polls Nov. 3, voters should choose the three incumbents — Daniel Dalton, Colleen Pobur and Michael Wright. To balance the mix, voters should also pick planning commissioner Suzi Deal.

They are the right choices to move Plymouth forward in a balanced manner.

Talk to your teenagers about safe driving habits

Everywhere you look, people are texting, talking, watching movies or catching up on their favorite TV show from mobile devices. At work, at home, at school, at play, cellphones have become our constant companion.

But that constant companionship comes with danger – distracted driving. We're all guilty of some form of distracted driving. It seems to get the most attention when it involves a young driver and cellphone use, specifically texting.

This week, Oct. 18-24, is National Teen Driver Safety Week, seven days dedicated to raising awareness and solutions to preventable teen deaths and injuries on the the road.

According to the Stop

According to the Stop Texts Stop Wrecks website, 10 percent of all drivers ages 15-19 involved in fatal crashes in 2013 were reported as distracted at the time. That age group had the largest proportion of drivers who were distracted, 15 percent of whom were distracted by the use of cellphones.

A survey by State Farm Insurance of drivers ages 16-19 revealed that more than 90 percent said they understand texting while driving is distracting, yet 44 percent said they do it. When asked to choose the top three things that would deter them from reading or responding to text messages, concern about crashing was the No. 1 answer (51 percent), followed closely by getting caught by the police (50 percent).

Other common responses included arriving safely at their destination, knowing someone who has caused a crash while texting, stories about crashes caused by texting, getting caught by parents, friends who encourage safe driving and parent/teen safe driving contracts.

While young drivers should be focusing their attention on their drive, they admit that cellphones aren't their only distraction. The top three distractions were talking with a passenger, listening to a navigation system/GPS and searching for music. Cellphone usage for accessing the Internet, reading social media and taking pictures with their phones were third, fourth and fifth on the list.

Michigan is one of 43 states that have banned texting while driving. For a first offense, motorists are fined $100. Subsequent offenses cost $200. But the consequences can be even more when distracted driving results in an accident or fatality

This week is dedicated to raising awareness and seeking solutions to preventable teen deaths and injuries on the road. It's a good time to start the conversation about safe driving with teens.

Teens may not want to hear it, but they need to be told to not take their eyes off the road, their hands off the wheel or their mind off what they are doing. Distracted driving can kill.

Pagan: Pay equity for women battle continues

s a young elected official, I am immensely proud of the advances past generations have made toward equality for women. Each day I take to the floor of the Michigan House of Representatives, I am reminded of the shoulders I stand on from the women who have come before me. From earning the right to vote to fighting social injustice to dying on a picket line, we have come a long way.

Unfortunately, some of the same struggles that our foremothers fought are still issues today and one of those issues threatens our entire family structure and the economic security for women. Equal pay for equal work seems by now to be a value our society holds true — that by the year 2015, both men and women working the same job, with the same educational background and work experience, with identical in resume and job title and description, should make the same salary, regardless of gender.

To make this point even more engrained in our moral fabric, in 1963 President John Kennedy signed into law the Equal Pay Act, prohibiting any employer from pay discrimination based on gender. Yet, 52 years later, little progress has been made to close the wage gap.

Wage discrimination is an issue across the nation, but here in Michigan, the problem is worse than in most other states. According to data from the Institute for Women's Policy Research, Michigan ranks 36th in pay equity in the nation. White women who work full time in Michigan earn nearly 30 percent less, on average, than their male counterparts. That equates to roughly $13,000 in annual earnings lost.

The statistics on the wage gap for women of color is striking. The institute reported that African-American women earn just 67 cents to every dollar to what a white man makes. For Latinos, the figure is 58 cents on the dollar. This is simply unaccentable.

simply unacceptable. These infuriating pay gaps are why my colleagues in the Progressive Women's Legislative Caucus and I have introduced a package of bills to combat wage discrimination. My bill, House Bill 4489, would require businesses to post information about pay equity laws. Another bill would require employers, on request, to disclose certain wage information. Other legislation in our package of bills would create an Equal Pay Commission to study the issue of pay equity and increase penalties for companies that unfairly discriminate against their em-commitment to equal pay. Our bills have languished in committee for six months without a hearing. I cannot think of a single reason why we have not taken any action on this legislation. The problem is clear, it's bipartisan and the solution is straightforward.

The issue of pay equity goes beyond simple fairness. While paying two people with the same job and same qualifications the same amount is common sense, we also have to think about the broader implications.

In many families, a woman is the primary breadwinner. When women are unfairly paid less, their partners and children also suffer. On the other hand, when families have more money — especially low- and middle-income workers — they tend to spend it. They have cars to maintain, food to put on the table and other necessary expenses. When people spend more money, it stimulates the local economy, helping small businesses create jobs. Pay equity is a win-win.

Although I am frustrated to be fighting some of the same battles that my mother's generation fought, I am proud to follow in their footsteps. I will continue doing whatever I can to get a hearing for pay equity legislation and I will continue to be a voice for issues that matter most to the men, women and families of Wayne County.

Giving Hope: Women philanthropists say giving here keeps the HOPE here

The 2015 annual meeting of Giving Hope, Women's Giving Circle earlier this month focused on the building blocks of the organization: help, opportunity, philanthropy and education - HOPE

The group hosted Wayne County Prosecutor Kym Worthy, who outlined the progress that has been made testing the thousands of rape kits which had been discovered in 2009 in a Detroit Police storage lab.

Worthy addressed nearly 150 women Oct. 7 at the Village Theater, reporting that tests of the some dating 35 years - have helped authorities identify 2,616 criminal suspects, including 549 serial rapists.

Giving Hope chairwoman Cynthia Kabza Vercruysse said the group invited Worthy because of "the significant importance of the Enough SAID campaign in not only identifying and prosecuting the perpetrators of previously unsolved rapes, but with the knowledge that the Enough SAID campaign, under Worthy's leadership, shines a light on the incredible and unacceptable extent of the backlog of unsolved rapes. 'Thus far, the crime lab has matched Detroit rapists to crimes committed in 38 different states. That is an astounding fact," Vercruysse added. Enough SAID (Enough Sexual Assault in Detroit) is an independent collaboration between Michigan Women's Foundation, the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office and the Detroit Crime Commission. The goal is to raise private sector funding to test the more than 11,000 forgotten rape kits, investigate the crimes and prosecute the resulting cases in an effort to securing justice and closure for victims.

The Oct. 7 event raised some $4,000 for Enough SAID.

Giving Hope also announced the following grant awards at the event:

» $3,000 grant to The Plymouth/Canton Community Literacy Council

» $8,000 grant to the Students Helping Homeless Students organization through the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools

» $250 grant to the Michigan Philharmonic Youth Orchestra for its participation at the 2015 Giving Hope Annual Event

The grants are a part of Giving Hope's mission to address the needs of women and families in the grater Canton and Plymouth area. Giving Hope, in its ninth year as an endowed fund of the Canton Community Foundation, has granted more than $59,000 to area groups, individuals and organizations.

In addition, a collection called "Pass the Purse" is made at each meeting for a local group needing immediate assistance. More than $11,600 organizations including the Detroit Area Diaper Bank, which serves Wayne County, the Salvation Army's "Back 2 School Blitz" and personal care products for women receiving assis-

Novi struts No. 1 stuff

Canton spikers unable to stem tide against top-ranked Wildcats

> Tim Smith Staff Writer

So that's what a No. 1 team looks

From the opening serve through three rapid-fire sets, Novi's varsity volleyball team dismantled host Canton in Tuesday's KLAA Kensington Conference championship contest.

Novi, now 37-2 overall and the top-ranked team in Class A, dispatched the Chiefs with lopsided 25-8, 25-16, 25-9 scores.

"We've been working really hard to defend better in practice the last week or so, because our schedule has slowed down a little bit," Novi head coach Jennifer Cottrill said. "I think we did a really good job of defending at the net and behind our block.

"Our libero, Claire Pinkerton, and Victoria Iacobelli did a great job (on defense)."

According to Canton senior outside hitter Emma Clark, the Novi attack was tough to defend because it comes from different points on the

"They were a really good team," said Clark, who led the Chiefs with eight kills and 12 digs. "They kept hitting hard at us, they had a really great defense and we didn't play to the best of our abilities."

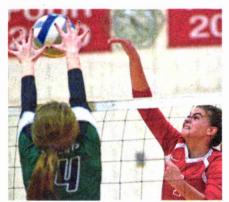

Canton head coach Irick Gardner, whose KLAA South Division cochampions fell to 24-14-1 overall, lamented the lack of competitive fire against Novi.

"They did what they were supposed to do, play hard and aggressive and play like they're the No. 1 team in the state," Gardner said. "They did that, but we didn't do our end of the bargain, which was at least be competitive. Give yourself a chance to succeed.'

Plymouth advances with 5-4 double OT triumph over Stevenson

Two-goal leads proved to be about as safe as a visit to Jurassic World during Monday's night's Division 1 opening-round boys soccer district thriller featuring Plymouth and host Livonia Stevenson.

In a classic clash that saw momentum being blown around like a leaf in the 30 mph wind gusts that swept through the Spartans' stadium, the Wildcats survived an improbable Stevenson rally to win 5-4 in double overtime.

Plymouth was scheduled to play in Wednesday's district semifinal against campus rival Salem, while the hosts' season ended with a 10-6-3 record.

Playing with the wind at their backs in the first half, the Spartans surged to a 2-0 lead in the opening 30 minutes, only to succumb to a fourgoal barrage by the Wildcats, who led 4-2 with just 24:28 to play.

To make matters worse for the home team, a Spartans player was red-carded for excessive arguing with an official with 13:42 to play in regulation, forcing Stevenson to play the rest of the way with just 10 players -

Plymouth lineman Jordan announces he'll enroll early at Ohio State

Evan Paputa Correspondent

Michael Jordan was ready to become an Ohio State Buckeye and didn't want to wait until National Signing Day in February. The senior offensive lineman from Plymouth High School announced Saturday morning that he intends to enroll at Ohio State University in January and play in the U.S.

Army All-American Bowl in San Antonio, Texas. He will graduate early from Plymouth.

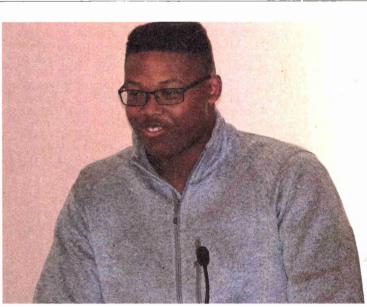

"Today, I want to confirm that I am going to the Ohio State University," Jordan said during a press conference held at the Plymouth Cultural Center. "I will be going early in January, because I feel like that will help me be the best player I can be.

'As a bonus, I will be playing in the U.S. Army All-American Bowl."

That "bonus" turns out to be an honor that only few high school seniors in the country get to experience. The game will be played Jan. 9, 2016, and Jordan understands the honor in playing in it.

"It's a very honorable moment for me," Jordan said.
"Only 90 players in the country get to go to it and I feel

CANTON ATHL

Veteran Canton football coach Tim Baechler and his team must travel nearly 450 miles this week for a Week 9 contest.

PREP FOOTBALL

LOST IN THE SHUFFLE

P-CEP football teams need to unite, renew rivalries, make sure players' voices heard above all else

he long road — 443 miles, to be exact — awaits the Canton varsity football team, finishing the 2015 regular season with Saturday's game in Galesburg, Ill., of all places.

Looking to 2016 and beyond, however, the three football programs at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park need to get together with administrators and take the high road.

That means getting those teams together on the football field, at least in semi-regular fashion.

For background purposes, the Park features two perennial powerhouses (Canton, Plymouth) and a third team (Salem) that is working hard to get to that level of excellence.

At the heart of the matter is a desire by Salem officials to level the competitive playing field and bolster a program trying to finally end a long playoff drought.

Nobody blames them for wanting to build something great, but there is no reason why the two oldest rivals at P-CEP (Canton, Salem) can't crack helmets in the name of tradition.

To make the playoffs, six victories are required. But Salem folks lamented being forced to automatically face the Chiefs and Wildcats every year.

Missed opportunity

But now, the Rocks aren't playing their neighbors and the Chiefs have to travel virtually to Iowa, a trip that will cost several thousand dollars during a time when public school districts are bleeding money.

Plymouth opened the 2015 schedule in Macomb County, against Utica Eisenhower. That's not a short trip, either.

"The fact that Plymouth and

Friday, Oct. 23

Canton (are) having to travel for their games has nothing to do with Salem not playing them," Salem athletic director Brian Samulski wrote in an email to the Observer, "but with the fact that they struggle to find teams that want to play them because of their historical success on the field."

By the way, Salem didn't win enough this year to join the playoff party — even with a schedule not including Canton and Plymouth.

Lost in the shuffle are the players and other studentathletes at the Park.

Ask any Salem player if he wants to go up against the Chiefs, against kids he goes to class with. Bragging rights are pretty big for 16- and 17-year-

Of course he would want the chance. But in recent years, the opportunity hasn't been there.

Earlier this year, Salem officials decided to not honor an apparent verbal agreement for the Rocks and Chiefs to square off in the opening game of the 2015 and 2016 seasons.

"In the eyes of administration at Salem this was an equity issue that was resolved by allowing Salem to always schedule an open opponent just as the other schools do for week 1," Samulski wrote. "This will continue next year, as we open with Belleville week 1 and will be in a week 9 rotation with the KLAA."

The latter is new for 2016, as a second KLAA crossover contest is being added to the scheduling mix.

And two years earlier, the longstanding Sandman/Cummings game between the Chiefs and Rocks — a tradition for Week 9 — was scrapped at Salem's request.

The last time the Chiefs and Rocks got together in the game honoring two former Park athletic directors was 2012. Although the Rocks lost 28-27, they were a field goal shy of knocking out their rivals and in turn keeping Canton from the six-victory plateau.

Never again

Then and now, Canton-Salem match-ups are a win-win for kids, families and the schools. So are meetings between the Rocks and Wildcats.

Since the Sandman/Cummings series was yanked in 2013 by a former district administrator, the Chiefs were forced to scramble more than Matthew Stafford for Week 9 opponents.

One year it was Ann Arbor Pioneer, another it was Detroit Western.

This year was a nightmare for Canton athletic director Vernon Crump and head football coach Tim Baechler, trying to come up with a dance partner.

By February, there was nobody left anywhere near Canton Center and Joy roads.

Finally, during the spring, with the possibility of an eightgame season looming, Canton hooked up with Galesburg.

That's a long way to travel. It's something that shouldn't have to happen again.

10-minute extra session.

Never say die

Stevenson head coach Ken Shingledecker was highly complimentary of how his one-down warriors nearly pulled out a backs-against-thewall triumph.

"The 10 boys we had out there at the end never quit – that's the part I want to remember from this game," Shingledecker said. "Obviously, it didn't end the way we wanted it to, but the effort was there."

The game was scoreless until the 25th minute, when Stevenson's Ian Henzi alertly knocked down a clearing effort by Plymouth goalkeeper Damon Favero about 12 yards from the goal line, then rocketed the ball into the back of the net.

Six minutes later, Spartans forward Ryan Theisen was fouled in the box while attacking from the left side, setting up Valjon Qejvani's successful penalty kick to expand the hosts' advantage to 2-0.

Theisen came within a razor's edge from making it 3-0, but his rebound shot following a corner kick rammed into the left post.

The Wildcats countered quickly, scoring a crucial goal with six minutes remaining in the half when Jaden Huxtable roped a sizzling bender through the wind and into the left corner of the net to cut his team's deficit in half.

Step it up

Plymouth didn't score off the second-half restart, but it set the tone for things to come when Anthony Iacopelli blasted the midfield kick on a trajectory toward the top of the Stevenson net, but goalkeeper Turner Miller, who replaced starter Austin Kaczmarek after the break, secured the ball to protect Stevenson's lead – but only momentarily.

"At halftime, we told the boys to play with more urgency, especially knowing we had the wind going with us," Plymouth head coach Jeff Neschich said. "What an exciting game, back and forth all the way. Just when we thought we had them put away, back they came. And early on, when I thought they had us put away, but rallied."

The second half started in bizarre fashion. Just 22 seconds in, Plymouth's Michael Blake was fouled in the box and lasered home the ensuing penalty kick to even things up at 2-2.

Just 23 seconds later, an onfield official ruled that Miller fouled Blake as he pursued a wind-blown pass that was just a couple of revolutions away from crossing the end line.

In addition to Miller being issued a yellow card – an infraction that necessitated putting Kaczmarek back in the game – Blake was awarded another PK.

Kaczmarek was up for the challenge, however, as he stoned Blake's low liner while diving to his left.

Just perfect

Stevenson couldn't dodge Plymouth's next bullet – a well-struck header by Huxtable off a cross from Blake to put the visitors up 3-2 with 34:02 on the second-half clock.

Plymouth appeared to score an insurance goal at the 24:28 mark, when Andrew Liakos finished a sweet pass from Blake.

The daunting deficit seemed to pump up the desperate Spartans, who pulled to within 4-3 with 10:12 left on goal off the right foot of Tyler Gregory.

Four minutes later, Theisen took advantage of a Wildcats defender's misplay about 35 yards out, dribbled the ball inside the 18 before juking Favero with a stop-and-go move and poking in the gametying goal.

The first 10-minute overtime was scoreless thanks largely to Kaczmarek, who denied Huxtable from pointblank range with 10 seconds left.

The second 10-minute segment was highlighted by Saunders' goal, followed by eight minutes of victory-protecting defense by the Wildcats.

The third set was more of the same, with the Wildcats riding hot streaks at the stripe to the one-sided win.

"We've got a great setter dishing out the ball," Cottrill said. "That's what we think our strength is. If someone starts shooting one way, we've got something going the other way. We like to have a balanced attack."

Work to do

For the Chiefs, the telltale stat of the night was setter Alyssa Burke's nine assists in 40 attempts. That meant either passes were off the mark or not put away at the net.

Of course, Novi's blocking defense had a lot to do with that.

Defensive specialist Emily Meredith (10 digs) and outside hitter Gabrielle den Boer (three kills) had some nice moments for Canton, but there weren't nearly enough of them.

After emerging from a long post-game meeting, Clark said the seniors on the team talked about not going out on such a bad note.

"We need to learn how to play as a team better and we need to find a way to just find the desire to win," Clark said. "Especially for the seniors, we were talking about that. This is our last season and we don't want it to end with a big loss.

"We want to at least fight as hard as we can."

They'll get an opportunity Saturday at Milford High School, in the KLAA tournament. Districts then open Nov. 3 at Northville.

D1 GIRLS GOLF FINALS

Adversity doesn't stop Wildcats

Plymouth shows resiliency on Day 2 at Meadows; Salem duo draw kudos

> Tim Smith Staff Writer

The final team standings showed Plymouth down in the pack at the Division 1 girls golf state finals.

At the top after two 18-hole rounds at The Meadows at Grand Valley State University were Traverse City West and Rochester, each with 685 (West won the tie-breaker). In 12th out of 15 teams with a 745 score was Plymouth.

But as far as Wildcats head coach Dan Young was concerned, his team showed championship skill and mettle Day 2, after a rough-and-tumble opening session.

"After having arguably our worst day in four years on the first day, these girls bounced back like the champions that they are," Young wrote in an email to the Observer. "Team unity and compassion for one another (concerning) an honest, unfortunate mistake on Friday, led to the fifth-best team score of all the teams on Saturday.'

Weather was miserable both days, with wind, mid-40s temps and even snow flurries.

Young was referring to the disqualification Friday of senior stalwart Katie Chipman, who was coming off an individual championship at the D1 regional at Fox Hills

Plymouth's varsity girls golf team members, including (from left) Erin Johnson, Alaina Strzalka, Katie Chipman, Ariana Strzalka and Heather Muir, finished fifth among teams on Day 2 at the D1 finals.

Following through on a shot Saturday at the girls golf state finals is Salem junior Darby Scott.

During the opening round, according to a Young text message, Chipman "lost a ball, hit a second, then someone found her first and she thought she could still play the second because (it) was playable. It was an honest mistake.

With Chipman's opening round deleted, the Wildcats finished with 400 Friday, second from last. On Saturday, however, Chipman registered a splendid 79 as Plymouth tallied a 345 score

"This group had nothing but pride to play for our last day together," Young wrote. "But they fought and competed like the champions they are. Very proud.

Senior twins Ariana Strzalka (97-88-185) and Alaina Strzalka (100-88-188) showed some moxie, particularly during Day 2. So did Erin Johnson (94-92—186) and Heather Muir (109-90—199).

Salem golfers solid

Salem had two golfers competing at The Meadows, individual qualifiers Darby Scott and Hope Warkoczeski.

Scott, a junior, finished 29th with a score of 87-87—174; senior Warkoczeski placed 32nd overall with a 88-87—175 scoreline.

"Both girls handled the elements very well and played pretty consistently throughout the day," Salem head coach Ryan Nimmerguth said. "On Saturday, we even saw some snow flurries; that tended to lighten the mood a little bit.

"But both had some stretches where they played some pretty good golf. It was just a very difficult course and it's a course where it's hard to avoid a blowup hole or the big num-very honored to play in it." Deciding to enroll early at Ohio State was easy for Jordan. The chance to get an edge on his future classmates by taking a semester of college classes and to compete in spring football sold him on it.

"I plan to enroll in January to get acclimated to the college life. So when the season starts, I'll be into college and I want to get a head start in my studies," Jordan said.

On the field, Jordan is projected to be an offensive tackle for head coach Urban Meyer, the same position he plays for Plymouth (in addition to defensive tackle). At 6-foot-7 and 293 pounds, Jordan has all the makings of a prototypical Big Ten offensive tackle.

Early playing time is something that "appeals" to Jordan and Ohio State provides a good opportunity after it loses two starters who are both

"It (my mindset) is to go into practice mentally prepared and be focused," Jordan

Plymouth pipeline

Plymouth has produced Division I college football players like Brennen Beyer, Kyle Brindza, and Brent Zuzo during head coach Mike Sawchuk's tenure as head coach.

Jordan gave Sawchuk credit for being the reason he was ever on college coaches' ra-

"It all started when Michigan State came down to school and asked coach Sawchuk if there was any players they should look at," Jordan said. "Coach Sawchuk vouched for me and said that Michael Jordan is a good athlete and you should take a look at him.

'So I went to Michigan State's football camp and they said I did very well, but (I) didn't get offered.'

As for Jordan and Plymouth High School, he will defer his senior seasons on the Wildcats' wrestling and track and field teams. He is happy about his time at Plymouth and the foundation for his life he has formed.

Jordan credits Sawchuk for his development as a person, not just a football player.

"It's been a great four years playing for coach Sawchuk," Jordan said. "He has taught me a lot about the game of football, a lot of life lessons — to always persevere and get through adversity.

They helped me develop personal skills like how to be a great young man."

Long process

The recruiting process is notorious for taking its toll on players and Jordan is just thankful he got his dream offer and that it is now officially over.

'College recruiting is done," Jordan said in relief.

Jordan endured one of the most unique recruiting processes of any highly touted player in recent history. He committed May 7 to Ohio State over eight other offers, including Michigan, Notre Dame and Michigan State.

After playing varsity as a sophomore during the 2013 season, Jordan stayed under the radar. He continued to stay under the radar until camping at the University of Michigan's week-long camp and left with his first scholarship offer.

"I went to Michigan's camp (June 2014) for four, five days and at the end of that camp, I got a scholarship (offer). After Michigan, the scholarships started to pile up," Jordan

Less than a month later, Jordan camped at Ohio State's "Friday Night Lights" camp and earned his second scholarship offer. The Ohio State offer was a dream offer. 'To be honest, (the Ohio State offer) felt like a dream come true. I've wanted to play for Ohio State since I was six years old," Jordan said. With no offers as a sophomore and an under-the-radar player, Jordan has been humbled by his recruiting process and gave a little bit of advice to players of all ages that don't have offers. 'My advice is to keep working hard and show on the field. Also, don't let anyone say you can't do anything. Go to football camps. If you want to get recruited, go to that specific school's camp," Jordan said.

D1 BOYS SOCCER DISTRICT

Canton flattens Rockets in opener

Tim Smith

The first step in what Canton's varsity boys soccer team hopes will be a long postseason march was quick and sure, with the Chiefs routing Westland John Glenn,

Canton opened the Division 1 district Monday night at John Glenn with a pair of early goals (by junior forward Luke Kurili and senior midfielder Jimmy Walkinshaw) and the Chiefs built a commanding 5-1 lead.

Scoring two goals and assisting on two others for the defending D1 champions was senior forward Hunter Olson, who now has 20 goals for the season.

"It's playoffs, we're going into it and we knew we had to win (Monday) if we want to go far," Olson said. "We plan on winning states again and so we were fired up to start playoffs."

According to Canton head coach Mark Zemanski, whose team (15-5-3) was scheduled to play Wednesday against Livonia Churchill in a district semifinal match-up, it was a good all-around team effort.

Key contributions came from expected and unexpected sources, he added.

Stepping up

'We had a lot of guys step up," Zemanski said. "We had two starters that couldn't go today (Sam DeLoy and Jason Ren) and two other guys stepped up.
"Luke Kurili got to play and so did Jordan Forney and both of them scored a goal. That was big time. It helps to have guys that can come off the bench and score goals for

About Olson, the coach said, "Hunter's always working hard. He's had a really good season, but he's not the only one. Jimmy Walkinshaw in the middle did a great job of winning the ball and distributing it."

Senior Walkinshaw had a goal and two helpers with junior Kurili (two goals); both sophomore Forney and senior Pri Yank Patel collecting one goal and an as-

Another senior, Jordan Percy, scored a goal on a penalty kick with 4:29 to go in the first half to put the Chiefs up 5-1.

For the young Rockets, who ended the season 4-12-1, freshman forward Cameron Simpson and freshman defender Blake Grove both scored a goal. Drawing two assists was senior midfielder Brendan Murphy.

"I'm really proud of the way the guys continued to battle through," John Glenn head coach Jeff Parrish said. "We gave them a little scare early on when we made it 2-1 (on the Simpson goal at 10:46).

Losing steam Parrish said he thought the Rockets might be able to rally after intermission, with the wind behind them. Unfortunately, that plan lost steam quickly when Olson got on the end of a bouncing ball inside the 18yard box, spun and rifled a shot into the top-right corner iust 2:41 into the second half for his 20th of the season.

About five minutes later, it was a 7-1 game after the rebound of an Olson free kick was buried by Kurili.

John Glenn got one back with 28:38 to go. Murphy chipped a through ball into the box that Grove drilled into the Canton net past sophomore goalkeeper David McGrath.

Closing out the scoring was Forney, completing a nice play by Patel.

While the future looks bright for the Rockets, who lost promising players Mitch Richter and Alfredo Vivar to injury most of the season, the postseason beat goes on for the Chiefs, looking to match the magical run of last au-

"It's going to be a battle; nothing's going to be easy, Zemanski said. "The boys realize they got to keep working, because it's one and done. Whichever team manages to get out of the district has an excellent shot at having a lengthy stay in the tournament.

Provided Canton gets past Churchill, it will either play Salem or Plymouth in Thursday's district final.

On Friday night, USA Hockey's National Team Development Under-17 team suffered an 8-1 setback against the Madison Capitols.

Those teams were back at it again Saturday and it was a much different story, despite the Capitols still emerging victorious — this time 3-2 in a shootout at USA Hockey Arena.

But for U17 head coach Don Granato, even a tough weekend against a United States Hockey League opponent is a worthwhile one. That's because, as depicted by the program's name, it's about "development" more than victories and losses for 16-year-old kids facing players four and five years older.

'We've got what we feel are the best players in the country that we select," Granato said. "It wouldn't be conducive for us from a development standpoint to put them in a league that they're going to win all the time.

"So we need to find a league, that challenge, where they're not going to win all the time."

The USHL is the perfect vehicle for

"And that's playing against players that are three, four years older than them," he said. "So now they have to learn the game, learn details of the game and how to use their teammates

Saturday's contest featured outstanding goaltending at both ends. Team USA goaltender Adam Scheel made 42 saves — including a couple pf sensational glove stops during the seven-minute overtime (which at the fourminute mark goes to a three-on-three

"(Scheel) is so calm in there," Granato said. "He just sees things and feels things. He makes it look easy.'

Caps goalie Ryan Edquist turned aside 33 shots, but got lucky during the shootout. He got a piece of a Josh Nor-ris' shot, but not all of it. The puck then bounced off the right post.

Scoring the Team USA goals were Graham Slaggert (from Grant Mismash and Phil Kemp) and Evan Barratt (from Max Gildon and Randy Hernandez). The goals came 5:37 apart late in the second period to briefly put the home

Madison scored the equalizer at 2:24 of the third when Guillaume LeClerc put one past Scheel.

Meanwhile, Granato said the threeon-three portion of overtime was another situation where his young players

What I try to do is use the whole bench, just to get some film on guys," he said, "so you can start working on tactics with respect to that, because we haven't had that yet.

"But this is an older players league, typically, and we've got a U17 team, which means all the kids are 16. It's a challenge every day. I thought the OT was no different. They'll learn fast, which is why I wanted to use the whole bench and I was able to do that.

With the shootout loss, Team USA's combined record in the USHL (including both the U18s and U17s) is 3-2-0-1. The older squad also plays against college and international teams.

The U17s will return to USA Hockey Arena for games Friday and Saturday against the Lincoln Stars. Both games will start at 7 p.m.

Under-18 recap

The NTDP U18s had a successful weekend against collegiate opponents.

On Friday, the U18 squad defeated Boston University, 7-4. Scoring two goals each were Kieffer Bellows and Trent Frederic, with goalie Jake Oettinger making 41 stops.

Bellows and Clayton Keller scored two goals Saturday night to lead the U18s to a 5-4 victory over Dartmouth College.

GIRLS SWIMMING AND DIVING

Canton seniors make winning splash

Senior night includes victory for Chiefs; Salem topples Novi

Tim Smith

Once again, Canton's varsity girls swim and dive team is entering its victory lap as the quest for another KLAA South Division title is reaching a culmination.

During the senior night meet Oct. 15 against Wayne Memorial, the Chiefs kept the positive flow going with a 94-83 victory over the Zebras.

Head coach Ed Weber said 16 seniors were honored during their final home meet of their prep careers.

That list included Madelaine Brownley, Arianna Bruglia, Stephanie Cox, Sydney Darnall, Danielle Drechnowicz, Kelly Hansen, Alyssa Jacobsen, Rachel McGue, Emily Osika, Adrienne Paton, Federica Russo, Ally Schwinke, Danya Raza, Ruoxuan Shi, Andrea Simons and

Brenna Wayne. The evening concluded with (a celebratory) event of pictures, senior bios and the traditional splash off the diving board," Weber said. "Our seniors will be truly missed next season, but their leadership and team commitments will be noticed for years to come as our underclassmen continue their swimming careers. The seniors made the most of their night, with an all-senior exhibition heat in the 100 butterfly with Osika, Darnall, McGue, Jacobsen, Brownley and

In the 200 free relay, doing the honors was the quartet of McGue, Darnall, Brownlee and Paton.

Some underclassmen had their moments. In the 100 backstroke, junior Meghan Mans swam a time of 1:00.33, which bettered Allison Schmitt's pool record of 1:00.61.

Canton senior Emily Osika competes during a recent race. She was one of 16 seniors honored Oct. 15 after the Chiefs defeated Wayne Memorial.

» On Oct. 13, the Chiefs dropped a 118-67 decision to KLAA Central frontrunner Northville.

Kristen Wiseman (200 free) swam well, as did Osika and Russo in the 200 IM. Weber said Ellie Caruso dropped the most time, shaving off eight seconds in the event.

Other solid performances included Stephanie Cox (diving), Jessica Clark (PR in 100 fly), Caitlyn Marsac, Mans (500 free with a state cut time) and Camille Carpenter.

Canton's 'A' relay pulled off an impressive win in the 400 freestyle relay with Clark, Mans, Russo and Osika.

Rocks down Novi

Also Oct. 15, Salem defeated visiting Novi 100-86 in a KLAA Central Division match-up.

The Rocks took the top spot in the opening and closing relays. In the 200 medley relay, the tandem of Katie Xu, Linda Zhang, Lisa Zhang and Jenna Chen won with a state-meet cut of

The 400 free relay also went to the Rocks, with Linda Zhang, Lisa Zhang, Patricia Freitag and Xu earning the victory with a time of 3:43.42 (another state cut)

In individual races, Salem victories were scored by Lisa Zhang (200 IM, 2:13.31, state cut; 500 free, 5:28.43), Linda Zhang (50 free, 25.50; 100 free, 54.50), Camille Burt (1-meter diving, 224.35 points), Xu (100 butterfly, 1:01.89; 100 breaststroke, 1:12.01) and Freitag (100 backstroke, 1:01.90).

Jake Visser, equipment manager for USA Hockey's NTDP Under-17 team, is spearheading a Facebook auction of hockey memorabilia. The money will help families travel to be with their son or daughter for Marine graduation ceremonies.

NO MARINE STANDS ALONE

Auction will unite Marines, their families

Tim Smith Staff Writer

Hockey, families and fans are a wonderful kind of hat trick.

Jake Visser, equipment manager for USA Hockey's National Team Development Program Under-17 squad, is banking on a convergence of all three to help future U.S. Ma-Visser organized a Facebook auction of hockey memorabilia to raise money for "No Marine Stands Alone" which continues until 10 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 25.

"My brother (Nate) joined the Marine Corps back in August," said Visser, in his sixth year with the NTDP, now based out of USA Hockey Arena in Plymouth. "He has a graduation date of Nov. 20 in San Diego and, in talking to him, through letters and researching a little bit, we came across No Marine Stands Alone, which helps families financially to attend graduation for their son or daughter.

'We decided that, with our connections in the hockey world, we could get a lot of memorabilia and raise a lot of money to help families.' Visser will travel to California with his parents, wife and two sisters and hopes many other families will be able to have a similar experience thanks to money raised by the auc-

How to help

By going to the Facebook auction page (type https://www.facebook.com/ groups/987583947971831/ in the web browser), participants can click on the photo of an item they want to bid on (such as signed game sticks from former USA Hockey players and current Detroit Red Wings Dylan Larkin and Jimmy Howard).

There also are game sticks signed by Detroit's Justin Abdelkader, Pittsburgh's Sidney Crosby and an official Chicago Blackhawks game puck signed by Jonathan Toews.

"It started off as kind of volunteering to do a sports theme gift basket and I called my buddy at Penn State and he donated a jersey," Visser said. "And I called my buddy with the Pittsburgh Penguins and he donated Crosby, Malkin and Kunitz sticks, so it kind of took off from there. 'Next thing we knew, we had 85 items. So we decided to put them up on a Facebook auction and see how much money we can raise.' The hope is to generate $10,000 from the auction. "There's a couple different ways people can help," Visser said. "The first one is they can go to the Facebook page and click the 'share' button at top, so all their friends on their time line see it.

"The second would be just to bid on items. And the third one, you can actually just donate directly to the website. There's a donate button on the USMC grad website (www.usmcgrad.org)."

Holiday shopping

Visser said he is excited about the endeavor because "in talking to families that have been there in the past, it's heartbreaking to see new Marines huddled together with nobody there.

"These young men and women go through 13 weeks of intense training and little sleep, little food and very minimal contact with their loved ones," Visser added. "And so for somebody not to have a loved one there to welcome them into becoming a Marine is kind of heartbreaking.

"So that's what we're trying to get rid of, so every new Marine has someone there.'

Visser added that "every dollar helps, even if it's only 10 dollars, that helps one family member get out there to see their son or daughter.

"There's a lot of great items on the Facebook auction page, a lot of items you won't find anywhere else, a lot of rare stuff and Christmas season is coming up.'

Yessian reflects on Armenian massacre

Sharon Dargay Staff Writer

Dan Yessian hopes his first classical music trilogy teaches an Armenian history lesson that leaves listeners wanting to learn more.

"Maybe, just maybe having listened to the work, they will be spurred on to dig a little deeper from a cultural perspective and historical perspective to see what it's all about," said Yessian, founder of Yessian Music, Inc., in Farmington Hills.

Yessian's An Armenian Trilogy focuses on the Armenian massacre by the Turkish Ottoman Empire in 1915. He wrote the 13 ½-minute piece for violin and piano, but plans to score it for orchestra next year. Its three movements reflect on freedom, fear and faith..

It will debut at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 29, at the Macomb Center of the Performing Arts, 44575 Garfield, Clinton Township. Violinist Sonia Lee and pianist Shawn McDonald will perform the work during Hope Dies Last, a multidisciplinary program commemorating the 100th anniversary of the Armenian Genocide. The Detroit Chamber Wind and Strings also will play a new composition for chamber ensemble by Alexandra du Bois, which will be accompanied by photographer Michelle Andonian's works. Tickets are $15. Visit macombcenter.com.

Yessian said he was at a concert in church when his parish priest, the Rev. Garabed Kochakian of St. John Armenian Church in Southfield, asked him to write the commemorative music.

"I said yes. It would be a tremendous challenge. It's not in my wheelhouse of music that I'd customarily write. I started in January or February writing. I was writing that music in between writing apple pie, hot dogs and Chevrolet," he said, referring to his commercial compositions. "I've written thousands of ads in 40-plus years of doing music. Although I've written serious music, this is more involved and complex. It was a labor of love."

While growing up, Yessian occa-

I didn't feel like I was writing it myself. I felt like it was writing itself. Maybe God was in control," said Yessian, who composed the piece mostly by ear at his Milford home on a piano formerly owned by Burt Bacharach.

Yessian studied classical and jazz clarinet and saxophone, but didn't formally study piano. After he wrote and recorded the trilogy, one of his staff composers transcribed the work.

Turn mangoes into a comfort food ith cold and flu season knocking on the door, it's time to start preparing your immune system to battle not only that pesky cold, but other chronic diseases as well.

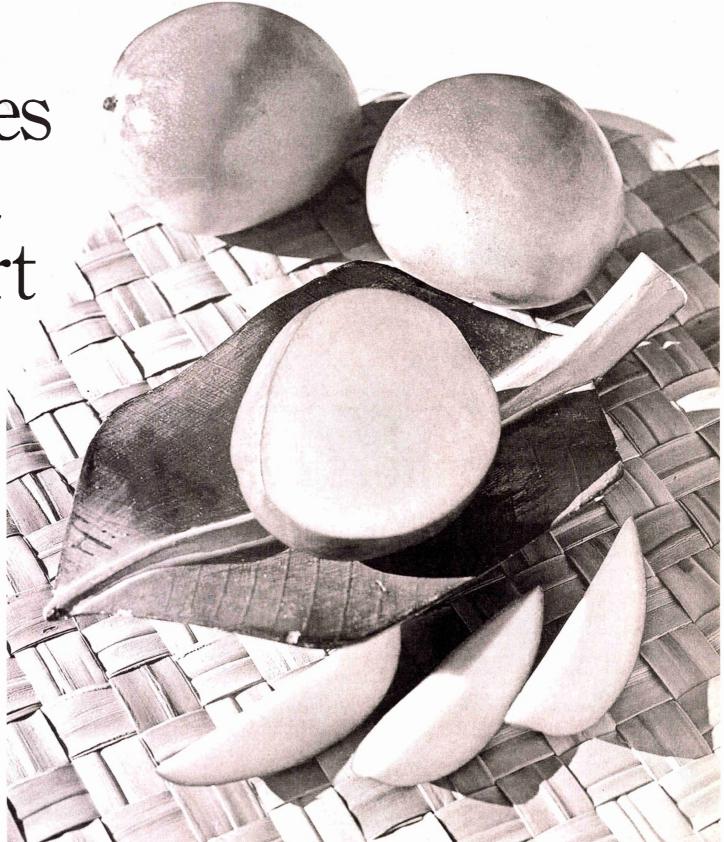

Research has found that a diet rich in fruit and vegetables may provide protection against cardiovascular disease, several cancers and other chronic diseases. Several of the micronutrients associated with diets high in fruit and vegetables, such as vitamin C, have also been shown to support immune function.

Mangoes, which are bursting with antioxidants and more than 20 different vitamins and minerals, including vitamin C and vitamin B6, can help support immune function as part of a healthy

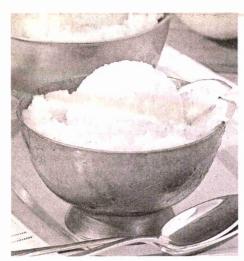

A diet poor in nutrients can reduce immunity and your body's ability to fight off illness; mixing up some of those go-to comfort foods when you're not feeling well and replacing them with healthier options can be both comforting and nutritious.

Try switching out that bowl of chicken noodle soup for a bowl of Gingered Mango Soup, or soothe that sore throat with a Tropical Mango Sorbet instead of that big scoop of ice cream.

Local Realtors reach out to welcome veterans home

The Greater Metropolitan Association of Realtors held its fourth annual charity golf outing Monday, Sept. 14. The maximum number of golfers allowed at Plum Hollow Country Club in Southfield, 144, turned out to enjoy a round of golf. Later, attendees were served dinner in the country club's main dining hall as several prizes were raffled off and awarded to the winners of the men's, women's and mixed divisions.

All $3,000 plus raised through the event is donated to The Vet Program (Suits for Soldiers). The Vet Program serves as a one-stop-shop for veterans to get back on their feet and return to gainful employment upon returning from service to our country. They provide veterans with things such as clothing, assistance with resume writing, mentoring, benefits, legal help, IT training, VA loans and job opportunities.

vices Committee planned and carried out the event with support from several generous sponsors and donators. Committee Chair Katie Weaver said, "We really worked hard to top last year's total and we're happy to succeed with the help of all our members and sponsors."

GMAR President Frank Tarala stated: "It was such a beautiful day for golf and the members just had a blast. I love seeing everyone get together and have a good time for a great cause. Proud to be a GMAR member, always!"

The Greater Metropolitan Association of Realtors is also throwing a party at the Hard Rock Cafe in Detroit on Nov. 6. The event is open to the public and tickets cost $50 per person (on sale at www.GMA-Ronline.com/calendar).

"We usually have a Holiday Party each year to get all our members together for a good time before the year ends. We felt that was becoming old hat and decided to shake things up a bit by just having a huge party at a great venue to celebrate our wonderful members, as well as honor our veterans," said Katie Weaver, GMAR Member Services group in charge of planning and coordinating the party.

The ticket price pays for your parking, appetizers, dinner, dessert, midnight Coneys from Lafayette Coney, three drinks, freebie giveaways, raffle prize giveaways, red carpet souvenir photo, and music and dancing. Reasonable transfer standards apply in sale

Q: We are a board of a homeowner association and the seller of a home in our subdivision is complaining about the fact that we will not give the purchaser a letter indicating that certain things will occur if there is a casualty to the home that he is purchasing. Do we have a responsibility to deal with this matter?

A: There are reasonable undertakings that the association needs to take in any sale transfer, but it would appear that what this purchaser and/or seller may be asking is something beyond the reasonable scope of the responsibilities of the association. I have had this type of experience in other communities which has resulted in substantial legal fees being incurred to deal with what appears to be unreasonable requests without recourse against the parties involved. I would contact your lawyer, and make it clear that you will not engage in the utilization of an attorney to deal with the inquiries unless there is a firm commitment to reimburse the association for the costs of it.

Q: I am the sole member of a Limited Liability Company that owns an undeveloped parcel of real estate. A bank mortgage and note were executed during the land purchase process and the existing first mortgage held against the property was satisfied. After my business experienced some financial difficulties, the bank loan was defaulted. The bank conducted its due diligence and then discovered that my business also held a mortgage that was recorded prior in time to the satisfied mortgage, and therefore was never extinguished at closing. ine same attorney repri sented both parties at the closing and later admitted that he neglected to record a release or subordination regarding the prior mortgage. As a result, the prior mortgage still held priority over the bank's mortgage lien. The bank initiated foreclosure proceedings and the trial court held that the bank was equitably subrogated to the original first mortgage that it had satisfied at closing. However, an appellate court reversed on the basis that the bank had actual notice of the prior mortgage because the attorney knew about it. What are the chances that the appellate decision will be reversed if the matter is reviewed by a higher court? A: The principle theory behind the Doctrine of Equitable Subrogation requires that the party seeking its benefit have no actual notice of any outstanding mortgages of higher priority. In a similar case, the Supreme Court in South Carolina ruled that an attorney that overlooked the mortgage priority scheme was acting as an agent for the bank and, therefore, as an agent his knowledge imputed only constructive knowledge to his principal. Specifically, a principal has constructive knowledge of all material facts that become known as an agent who is acting within the scope of his authority. As a result, the principal's constructive knowledge of the prior mortgage did not rise to the level of actual knowledge and was not enough to defeat a claim for equitable subrogation. This is obviously a complex issue which demands advice from an experienced real estate practitioner.

2015 Nissan Murano is a roomy five-seat SUV

Gas price instability and the economic downturn got shoppers rethinking how much SUV they really need, with most deciding a compact SUV was enough. Consumers with a few kids, who needed more room, chose a three-row crossover. That left the midsize, five-seat SUV an unwanted commodity by most.

The redesigned 2015 Nissan Murano — available at Nissan of Canton, 42175 Michigan Ave. - is a quiet, comfortable, roomy five-seat SUV, perfectly executed for empty-nesters or others who prize a spacious cabin and cargo area, but who have no desire for a third row, where kids routinely wind up. These shoppers want a solid road-trip vehicle, not a rally

Exterior and styling

While the Murano delivers on the practicality and electronic wizardry its target buyer may demand, its styling panders to folks who may be more daring than those shopping this segment.

The radical front end has curvaceous fenders and a grille that drops down in a V pattern. It makes the Jeep Grand Cherokee look stately and Ford's upcoming Edge redesign look a bit staid in comparison.

Eighteen-inch wheels are standard and look appropriately sized for the vehicle. The 20-inch wheels on the Platinum model seem a bit too big, visually, but there will likely be plenty of people who opt for them.

How it drives

Nissan's venerable 3.5-liter V-6 remains the workhorse under the hood, producing 260 horsepower and 240 poundsfeet of torque. It's teamed to a continuously variable automatic transmission that uses artificial shift points to make it seem like a traditional automatic. The experience feels more CVT than automatic, but power comes on fast and won't leave drivers wanting much, whether the engine is mated to front- or all-wheel drive.

The brakes are also solidly

predictable, and when it's running on its standard 18-inch wheels and tires, the Murano is one of the smoothest non-luxury SUVs out there. Mileage is 21/28/24 mpg city/highway/ combined for both front- and all-wheel-drive versions. A V-6 Jeep Grand Cherokee gets identical mileage with allwheel drive and 22/30/25 mpg with rear-wheel drive.

The Murano cabin is as quiet as can be.

Interior

In the past, Nissan has made a few interiors that felt close to its Infiniti luxury brand, and the Murano follows suit. In its highest, Platinum, trim, which offers a dark brown leather interior, there are few areas that distinguish it from an Even on the more accessible SV trim, there are still swaths of leather everywhere from above the gauge cluster to on the armrests on the doors. Even if you're sitting in a cloth driver's seat, you're seeing and touching leather.

Space is considerable in the backseat, which Nissan expects to be used for adults on a double date, not preteens being shuttled to soccer practice. The outboard seats are also Zero Gravity types, and on the Platinum trim they're also

Ergonomics and electronics

Nissan should get an award for its center console, a nearperfect mix of physical buttons, four knobs and a touchscreen. Buttons are either piano black with illuminated text and icons, or chromecovered plastic with the labels above.

The 8-inch touch-screen standard on SV trims and higher — has terrific resolution and has been completely rethought from the previous generation of Nissan systems. Luckily, everything is still laid out in a straightforward way that should cause few headaches for the tech-averse.

There are separate screens for music, navigation and various other functions, as well as a home screen that gives brief glimpses of many systems that are active.

The base stereo has good sound, and you can connect two devices via USB — one for front passengers and one for rear. Either can pipe music through the car's stereo.

Cargo and storage

There's a nice covered tray between the cupholders and a cubby in the center console that can do duty as a smartphone bin; otherwise, the driver will have to rely on the door pocket to stash frequently used items like loose change and other miscellaneous things.

There's also a small tray behind the cubby for rear passengers to put items, namely smartphones, into, because the rear USB ports are directly beneath it.

A generous cargo area is another benefit of moving up to an SUV this size. At 39.6

cubic feet, the Murano doesn't disappoint, providing plenty of room for four good-size pieces of luggage or a mix of luggage and golf bags.

The rear seats fold flat via release handles by the lift gate; this expands cargo room to 69.9 cubic feet.

Safety

A backup camera is standard on the Murano, while Nissan's Around View Monitor is standard on SL and Platinum trims. When activated, it offers a bird's-eye view of the SUV by using cameras in front, back and in the side mirrors.

Blind spot warning is standard on SL and Platinum trims, as is a system to detect objects moving behind the car, called Moving Object Detection, and rear cross-traffic alert. Intelligent cruise control, forward collision warning and forward emergency braking are part of an optional Technology Package on those two trims, as well.
