City parade kicks off July 4 festivities

Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

The Good Morning USA Parade, a "variety show in motion" that features marchers, musicians, entertainers and floats from near and far, marks Independence Day in downtown Plymouth.

The show begins at 9 a.m. Monday, with the parade stepping off at Main Street and Theodore and proceeding southwesterly through downtown to Hartsough. Thousands of spectators are expected to line Main Street.

It's the 20th annual parade with the Good Morning USA monicker, though the city has had a Fourth of July parade for much longer.

There will be more than 80 entries, with highlights that include the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, the Cabar Feidh Pipe Band and the award-winning marching band from Plymouth-Canton Educational Park, which appeared in the Tournament of Roses parade in California in January.

"We like to refer to it as a variety show in motion," said Scott Kappler, parade coordinator with the Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth, which organizes the event. "It's intended to be a fun time for all."

Returning this year will be the Polish National Alliance Centennial Dancers, who did not perform in last year's parade, and the Windsor Opti-

'FIRST LADIES' HELP LAUNCH NEW EXHIBIT

Members of the Plymouth Living History Troupe portrayed several of the nation's first ladies, as well as some presidents, during Tuesday's opening reception for the new exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum.

The event was a first look at the new exhibit, "First Ladies — Fashion Setters," which features a dozen recreations of dresses worn by first ladies throughout history.

"They will be more historically accurate than anything we've had before," said Liz Kerstens, the museum's executive director. Two original dresses actually worn by first ladies, on loan from a private collection, are also in the exhibit.

In the past, the museum rented dresses from outside sources for such displays, but each recreated dress in the new exhibit has been carefully researched by museum volunteer and past Plymouth Historical Society president Pam Yockey, who is also a costume historian and seamstress. Yockey handmade 12 of the dresses based on details gleaned from a lifetime of research.

For example, when Florence "Flossie" Cleveland was a young bride in the White House, photography was widely available, so photographs of her dress exist. This made recreating the dress easier.

"We have front and back photographs," Yockey said. "We chose not to do her inaugural gown, because it had been altered. That's true of a lot of the gowns back then. Mary Lincoln's dress, for example, had been given to a niece

Township picnic marks its 20th year

Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

Plymouth Township's Fourth of July picnic is back for its 20th year.

The picnic — this year's edition is from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday at Plymouth Township Park — was begun in 1997 by then-freshman township Treasurer Ron Edwards and Marilyn Massengill, who was township clerk.

"The idea behind it was to have an event in the township," Edwards said Tuesday. "Back then, there was not a single event the township put on for its residents."

About 350 people attended the first picnic — compared to thousands who show up annually these days — and about 10 volunteers helped Edwards and Massengill stage the event, Edwards said.

There was a fishing contest, a pie-eating contest and games for children, while the menu consisted of Ballpark hot dogs, pop, water, chips and Guernsey ice cream — for 25 cents each.

By its second year, it was called the Good Old-Fashioned July 4 picnic and it drew about 70 volunteers and 800 attendees. Prices dropped to a nickel per item — possible because of fundraising and the many donations of food items by local businesses, a tradition that continues to the present.

Past picnics have featured a magic show, hot-air balloon rides and an appearance by a monster truck that was fresh from Plymouth's Good Morning USA Parade, Edwards said.

Attendance grew steadily and, for the year 2000 event, Edwards said, about 4,000 people showed up on a 90-degree day.

"We've had some good crowds," he said. "We've had a lot of people come out and work it."

Edwards said some picnic volunteers who started working the event as young people, when their volunteering parents brought them along, are now volunteering and bringing their own children.

Edwards organized the picnic for its first 13 years; it's now managed by Kelly Latawiec, who works in the township's Division of Public Services, and her husband Dave.

The Latawiecs have enlisted about 40 volunteers, but could still use more help; anyone interested in volunteering should call Kelly Latawiec at 734-414-1445.

This year's picnic will feature live music (rock and pop) by the Icemen, the Grand Traverse Pie Co. pie-eating contest, games for children, a craft area, a bike-decorating contest for children, an obstacle-course bounce house, a fishing contest, a children's train ride and more.

The bike-decorating contest — with a parade to give the kids "a little bit more pomp and circumstance," Latawiec said — will start at about noon; signs will tell cyclists where to gather.

The fishing contest, at the fishing pond, will also start about noon and last until about 1:30 p.m. There will also be mem-

"It's become a tradition in the township and Kelly and Dave are carrying that tradition on," Edwards said.

Independence Day in Plymouth Township, of course, begins the night before, about 10:15 p.m. Sunday, with the free Plymouth Community Fireworks Display, with viewing at Township Park.

mist Youth Band, which made its parade debut last year.

"We're proud to have them back this year," Kappler said of the band. "It got a lot of good feedback from the crowd last year."

Military veterans from World War II and the Korean and Vietnam wars will also participate, with a military color guard made up of members of Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter 528.

Classic cars, fire performers, unicyclists from the Redford Unicycle Club and, of course, clowns will round out the parade.

Children (and their parents) are invited to bring their decorated bicycles (no political messages, please) to cycle the parade route a few minutes before the official start. It's a sort of warmup for the bike-decorating contest later Monday during the Good Old-Fashioned July 4th Picnic at Plymouth Township Park. Cyclists (who must wear helmets) should gather in the strip mall parking lot at Main and Union by 8:45 a.m. Parents whose children are cycling the route without them can meet their children outside the Dairy-Go-Round at Main and Ross.

The Good Morning USA Parade is produced with the help of many sponsors: the Wilcox Foundation, Burroughs Inc., the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, Community Financial Credit Union, Hines Park Lincoln, Dick Scott Chrysler Dodge Jeep Ram, Plymouth Dental Associates, Monroe Bank & Trust, Pure Barre Plymouth, Plymouth Physical Therapy Specialists, DJL Builders, Great Clips of Plymouth, Caviston Insurance, Morse Dental Group, Bank of Ann Arbor, the Post Local Bistro, Horton Plumbing & Remodeling, Jazzer-cise of Plymouth and Christensen's Plant Center.

New app will help township log non-emergency issues

People can now use their smart phones to quickly notify Plymouth Township officials about non-emergency issues in the township, such as missed trash pickups, fallen trees, property maintenance, broken sidewalks and water and sewer problems.

A new free smart phone app, PT Link, lets users on both Android- and Apple-based smart phone systems report problems, pinpoint their locations using global-positioning technology and attach photos to illustrate them.

The app will also give its users status update notifications as their reports and requests are processed.

Links for downloading the app can be found on Plymouth Township's website, www.plymouthtwp.org.

CANTON CRIME WATCH

Woman pretends to pass out to end choking attack

A Canton woman being choked by her ex-husband pretended she was unconscious to stop the attack, after she already had been thrown against a wall, punched in the ribs and knocked to the floor, a police report said.

The 47-year-old woman gave her account of what happened after she went to an urgent care center for injuries she sustained during an assault that allegedly occurred about 1 p.m. June 19.

Weeping as she sat on a hospital bed, she told police the assault occurred in the 44400 block of Savery, near Sheldon and Ford.

The woman told police she had married her assailant when she was 19, had a daughter 28 years ago, though she said they have remained in touch. She said he has a problem with drugs and alcohol.

She told police her ex-husband, a 48-year-old Westland resident, often visits her Canton home to let her dogs outside while she is working. On the day of the assault, she said, an argument ensued and he became enraged after she asked him to leave.

She said he threw her against a wall, causing her to hit her head, then punched her in the ribs with a closed fist and knocked her down before he started choking her.

The woman told police she pretended to lose consciousness to end the assault. She also said there have been previous assaults, but none as serious.

Police put the woman in touch with First Step, an agency that helps victims of domestic violence. Charges were pending against the accused assailant.

Warrant arrest

An 47-year-old Inkster man involved in a two-vehicle accident Friday was arrested, even though he had nothing to do with the crash.

He was a passenger in a vehicle involved in a minor accident that occurred about 2 a.m. Friday at Michigan Avenue and Haggerty. Police, during an investigation at the scene, learned that the passenger had warrants for his arrest in Canton and Westland for possession of marijuana, making an illegal turn on a red light and not wearing a seat belt.

Police took the man into custody, but he posted bond and was given a date to appear in court.

Restaurant brouhaha

Two cousins, accused of fleeing a restaurant without paying their tab, were caught after returning to get a cell-phone that had been left behind, a report said.

The incident unfolded about 11:30 p.m. June 22 after a man, 21, and a woman, 22, went to the Applebee's restaurant on Ford Road, near Morton Taylor. An employee said the pair ran up a $32.77 tab, stayed more than an hour and said they were cousins celebrating a birthday.

The pair fled the eatery when an employee went to get their bill and police were summoned. The male suspect, apparently hoping not to be recognized, was confronted when returning to the restaurant to pick up a phone that had been left behind, the report said. He already had called to say he was coming to get the phone.

The suspect was confronted by an employee when he returned and then fled again to an awaiting car, but Canton police spotted the vehicle on Ford Road and initiated a traffic stop. The suspects claimed they had paid for the food, but police ticketed both for defrauding the restaurant.

Veterinarian says prevention is best remedy for ticks

Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Tick season is here and the population is growing in Michigan, according to the Humane Society of Huron Valley.

These wingless blood-sucking insects frequent moist, wooded and grassy locations and can transmit disease to you or your pets if they bite. You'll find them on small animals, in addition to deer, and sometimes in brush and leaves — possibly in your own backyard.

Sarah Marsh, HSHV clinic manager and a licensed veterinary technician, and Courtney White, HSHV clinic director and a veterinarian, put their heads together to answer a few questions about ticks and what you can do about them.

Q: Has HSHV seen an increase in tick bites on pets?

A: The last several years, we have seen an increasing number of ticks found and reported on pets.

Q: How do dog and cat owners know their pets have been bitten? What are a fewsigns?

A: The most common tick-borne diseases are Lyme disease, anaplasmosis/ehrlichiosis babesiosis and Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Symptoms for tick-borne diseases in animals are typically non-specific. They can include fever, weakness, lethargy, lameness, lack of appetite, vomiting and diarrhea. A lot of focus tends to be on dogs, however, many species (including cats and horses) are also susceptible. Prevention, identification, diagnostic testing and early treatment for infection are keys to decreasing the incidence of severe illness.

Q: Should a pet owner attempt to remove a tick?

A: Owners comfortable with tick removal can remove ticks by grasping with tweezers firmly at the skin and slowly pulling straight out. Do not twist or jerk the tick to reduce the chance of breaking and leaving behind tick remnants. The chance of disease transmission is greatly reduced when ticks are removed less than 24 hours after attachment.

It is best to have the tick identified by an experienced professional to determine the risk to your pet. The Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development provides tick identification at no charge to Michigan citizens. However, testing for disease is not included, and fees apply.

Q: What kinds of ticks areyou seeing?

A: Michigan has over 20 species of ticks, however the top three ticks found in Michigan are American dog tick (wood tick) — 75 percent found on people and companion animals — blacklegged tick (deer tick) and Lone Star tick.

Q: If a pet owner fails to notice the tick, how will it affect their pet?

A: Medical treatment should be sought if illness occurs after a tick bite. Not all ticks carry disease. Early diagnosis and treatment are key to improved patient health. Lyme disease, tularemia, Rocky Mountain spotted fever and anaplasmosis/ehrlichiosis are treatable with antibiotics and, when treated early, pets and people can usually recover rapidly and completely.

Q: Can dogs get ticks from their own backyard, even if they don't live anywhere near deer population?

A: Yes. Extra awareness in warmer months is needed when ticks are more active. Avoid contact with overgrown grass, brush and leaves. Check your pets for ticks daily. Putting your pet on flea/tick preventative, especially during the warmer months, is the most effective way to reduce the possibility of tick bites. If ticks do bite your pet, the preventative works to kill the tick. The speed at which the tick will die after biting your pet varies by manufacturer. Vaccinating your dog against Lyme disease is recommended if you live in an endemic area.

Q: Some heartworm medications offer tick prevention and some don't. Should dog owners add a topical liquid flea/tick preventative to their monthly regimen?

A: Unfortunately, there is no single product on the market that covers absolutely everything. One product, Revolution, covers fleas, heartworm prevention and protects against the Lone Star tick — the least prevalent disease-spreading tick in Michigan. Therefore, protecting your pet requires a multi-modal approach.

Worldwide ukulele popularity hits home

Julie Brown
Staff Writer

Retired men from the Plymouth Ukulele Group like to go out walking — and share their gift of music.

"We stop at coffee shops every morning," said Jim Malinowski of Plymouth. Informally, a couple of men play for staff and customers at places like Edwards Cafe on Main Street in Northville, the Plymouth McDonald's on Ann Arbor Road and the Grand Traverse Pie Co., also on Ann Arbor Road.

"We get our walks in and our music all in one fell swoop. We're not intrusive," said Malinowski, who regularly walks to coffee shops and plays with Dave Adair of Novi. "We've played a lot together."

Sometimes, a third person from the Plymouth Ukulele Group will join in; they aim to keep the groups small at coffee shops to avoid disturbing people.

Dick Groen of Plymouth Township was with Malinowski at the Plymouth District Library one recent Monday morning. The men meet there to practice at 9:30 a.m. each Monday and agreed listeners can stop in if interested.

"Oh, my God, it's exploded," Groen said of the past decade or so and ukulele music. As the men practiced, song books full of music rested on tables in the library's Dunning Room.

'Just a bunch of guys'

"Just a bunch of guys that meet," Malinowski said of the Plymouth group, which has been at the library each Monday morning for several months. The men like the acoustics and praise the library staff.

"It all worked out pretty good," Malinowski said. His wife is in a library book group and they also have a librarian neighbor who works there.

Adair was at a grade school that recent Monday, performing with Puppet Pals. Andy Kronk of Dearborn and Ron Masino of Livonia are also regulars.

They use a Meetup page on the Internet, which has many ukulele groups listed. "You can play almost anything on the ukulele," Kronk said.

"It's branched off into jazz, rock and roll, everything," Malinowski said of ukulele music. Groen said, "It's small, it's portable, it's fun. If you can sing great," but if not that's fine, too.

"It's four strings and it's easy to learn," Groen said. "A lot of ex-guitar players love them."

Listeners do as well. "The summer's loaded. There are festivals all over the country," Groen said.

Malinowski is just back from the Ukulele World Conference in Needmore, Ind., the eighth annual such gathering. "There were people from all over the world," he said.

The men praise the Ukulele Orchestra of Great Britain, encouraging a check-in of them on YouTube.

"They've been performing for many years," Groen said of the U.K. group. The Beatles also used the ukulele in their music.

They praise Jake Shimabukuro for his musical prowess with the ukulele. Shimabukuro was born and raised in Honolulu, Hawaii. He does original compositions and also performs others' work.

His cover of George Harrison's "While My Guitar Gently Weeps" went viral on YouTube, establishing his name. Shimabukuro also travels to schools to share a positive message on living drug-free, the artist's website notes.

The local men also cite Canada's James Hill as a great ukulele musician. They're not fans of Tiny Tim's late 1960s TV "Laugh-In" strumming.

"He probably set ukulele back 20 years," Malinowski said, with Groen adding, "He's outdated." The men agree Tiny Tim was primarily a comedian.

Variety abounds; easy to learn

The instrument comes in varied shapes and sizes, as well as sounds. They had a tenor, a soprano and a concert ukulele for practice that Monday.

Kronk said, "A lot of people have no music background coming into this. It's an easy instrument to learn," he added, with plenty of helpers around.

All five regulars are retired. Kronk noted the Motor City Ukes meet monthly at a Farmington Hills business. The Tree Town Ukes of Ann Arbor meet monthly at Oz's Music and have been around about a decade, they said.

The Ann Arbor-based group is set to perform in that city's Fourth of July parade this year.

Added Groen with a grin, "It's big. It's almost as big as beer drinking — not quite."

MDOT to host update concerning I-275 project

David Veselenak
Staff Writer

Could motorists learn the date when the Interstate 275 construction project flips-flops later this week? It's possible, but nothing has been announced yet.

The Michigan Department of Transportation will hold another public meeting on on the I-275 construction project from Five Mile to the I-96/I-696/M-5 interchange this week to provide updates on the project.

The meeting will take place starting at 5 p.m. Thursday (June 30) at Davenport University, 19499 Victor Parkway, in Livonia. The presentation is expected to last an hour and will be repeated for another audience at 6 p.m.

MDOT spokeswoman Diane Cross said a lot of work would need to happen to announce a hard date for when the southbound stretch of the freeway would open and when the northbound side would close and could not say Monday if it would be announced at the meeting. She said MDOT will go over procedures for when the northbound stretch will close, such as detours.

The meeting will be the second public meeting held at the school regarding the project: MDOT met with motorists and area residents about the project about a month before major work took place, answering questions from scores of attendees.

The $75 million project has left half the freeway shut down since the beginning of May so workers can complete construction along the road. There have been some dates for the switch that have been thrown out, including as early as Friday in a video posted by the city of Novi, and as late as July 15, the date Cross gave earlier this month as a more likely date the switch could take place. The entire project is expected to be done by sometime in September.

More information on the project can be found at revive275.com, a website that states the project is roughly 39 percent done as of June 22.

We've reached peak technology status. Remember how the emergence of cellphones helped us downsize the number of necessary digital devices? The cellphone became not only your phone, but your MP3 player, camera, video camera, key ring, wallet and more. But the rise of the Internet of Things has seemingly reversed that trend and helped the electronics market shift from entertainment devices to useful productivity devices. That's not to say that the TV, radio or your 1995 desktop computer wasn't useful — new unitasking devices are simply more functional and affordable and have pushed more tech devices into consideration.

Digital thermometers

Advanced and enhanced summer grilling is as easy as a digital thermometer. And that doesn't mean your standard meat thermometer with a digital display. Bluetooth and WiFi-enabled temperature gauges are available for the professional smoker to the novice griller. And while nobody needs a digital thermometer that connects to their phone, it certainly saves you unnecessary trips to the grill, smoker or oven. The Weber Style for instance, offers two prongs (which is what you want) to measure the air temperature as well as internal temperature. A two-prong meat thermometer can run $40 to $100. Of course, if you think this is a waste of money, then I don't need to tell you about the more than $200 solar-powered beach tote that has been developed by a company called Earth Beach Products.

Security cameras

Previously, a homeowner who wanted peace of mind could sign up for an expensive monthly or yearly contract with a home security company. Expensive top-end video monitoring systems were also available for the 1 percent. Today, you can secure your home as easily as an add-on package from your cable provider or a wireless self-install device.

Nest, the famous smart thermostat provider, offers a home security camera for as low as $150. Any homeowner and renter can grab one for less than the cost of an upgraded phone and install it in less than an hour. For those with larger homes, you can grab a three-pack of cams from Nest or other manufacturers like Arlo for $500 or less. With both Nest and Arlo, buyers receive access to the cloud, where they can store 24 hours of video coverage. Owners can purchase more space for a monthly fee. It is the perfect solution for the business traveler, snowbirds or summer vacationers. Arlo, D-Link and others offer motion-activated cameras. Some brands such as NetAtmo offer facial recognition and can send text alerts when something is up.

Mosquito repellent

Some mosquito deterrents like citronella candles are hardly considered technical. But a trendy, synthetic lantern might be. Thermacell offers a $29.99 lantern that will keep a 15 by 15 area free of those pesky bugs. At that price, it makes sense on a patio, porch or deck to help keep us outdoors longer.

Watershot pro

Finally for the travelers, outdoor enthusiasts and photography pros, the Watershot pro can help you capture shots in and around water without worrying about your phone insurance coverage. Retailing for $139, the Watershot Pro is safe to use up to 195 feet — which should be considered "extreme waterproof."

Notebook

Just when you thought it was safe to buy video games, Microsoft and Sony announced updated versions of their respective Xbox and PlayStation devices. In June at E3, Microsoft announced a virtual reality and 4K-capable Xbox that is expected to hit the market next year. Sony also recently announced updates with 4K, but may not have virtual reality capabilities.

Only sure outcome of Brexit vote is uncertainty

The financial world was shocked last week as Great Britain decided to leave the European Union. The vote, known as Brexit, was close, but a clear majority voted to leave the European Union. Most of the so-called experts had predicted Great Britain would vote to remain; they were wrong.

The question on most investors' mind is how this will affect the markets and, more importantly, how it will affect their individual portfolio. If you listen to 20 experts, you'll get 20 different opinions. Some of the so-called experts are predicting a worldwide recession, while others are saying the Brexit will be good for America in the long run.

My opinion is quite simple and something the so-called experts never like to admit: I don't know. If the so-called experts were truly honest, they would admit that all they are doing is speculating because, in reality, what Great Britain is doing is unprecedented and there are really no comparable examples from which to draw. Of course, in today's world of 24-hour news where everything is put into crisis mode, admitting the experts don't know does not make for good TV. That's why I always caution investors from making moves on their portfolio solely based upon what they hear and see in the media.

I am amazed that the same people who predicted the Brexit would go the other way are now giving opinions as to what will happen because of the vote. I am not saying these are not smart people; what I'm saying is that many of the so-called experts are not in the media because they know more or have any unique insights, but because they look and sound good on TV. I am not sure that's who you want to take advice from when it comes to managing your portfolio.

I don't know what is going to happen and neither does anyone else. One thing I do know is that markets do not like uncertainty and Great Britain's vote to exit the European Union creates uncertainty. The volatility we experienced immediately after the vote was not unexpected. It also would not be surprising that, as the process of Great Britain's exit proceeds, there will be more volatility. Just because there will be volatility, doesn't mean investors should panic or rush out and liquidate their portfolio. As I've always said, fear is one of those emotions that ruin investors' portfolios. You cannot let fear dictate how you invest your money.

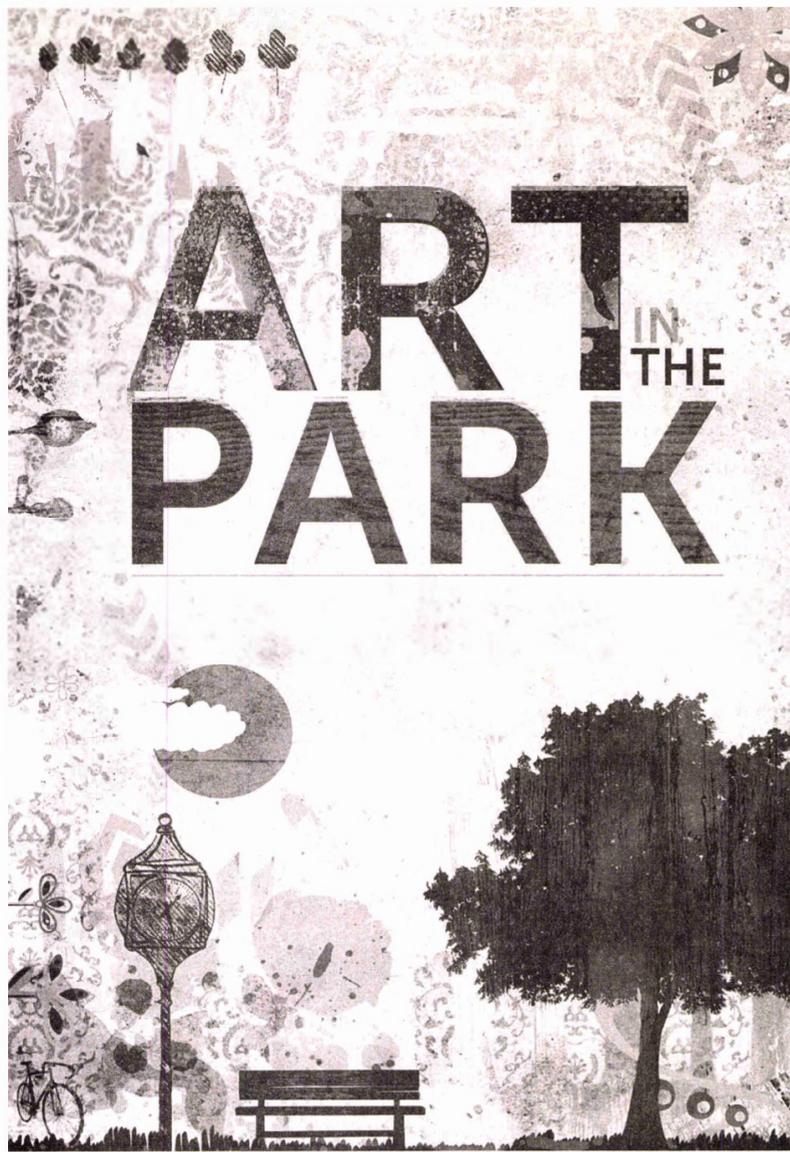

In the last number of years, we have seen other unprecedented events. It was only a few years ago the United States lost its AAA credit rating. At that time, the so-called experts predicted doom and gloom for the U.S. economy. After the initial volatility, markets returned to normal over a relatively short period of time.

With Brexit, we don't know how the markets are going to react and we don't know if in two to three months from now everything will be back to normal. As I've always told investors, you should not invest based upon what is happening in the market, but based upon your goals and objectives. Investors who try to invest based upon the market are constantly buying and selling and, in the long run, are going nowhere.

Being an investor is not easy and it's difficult to see our portfolios go in the wrong direction. To be a successful investor, you must have discipline, particularly in times such as now. My advice is to take a wait-and-see attitude and, ultimately, make decisions based upon what you are trying to achieve in your portfolio. If you focus on your individual goals and objectives and not on the market, in the long run you will be a successful investor.

Annual dog show in Novi draws fewer breeders, canine lovers

Daniel Bethencourt
Michigan.com

Mary DiPerna came prepared for the Detroit Kennel Club's annual dog show Sunday.

A longtime breeder and competitor, she helped bring no fewer than 10 pugs that would appear in competitions. She even helped design a booth that stood more than 5 feet tall in the shape of an ancient Chinese building facade, with the sign "Exquisite Chinese Pugs." There were balloons in the shape of pugs and even more balloons that spelled out, one letter at a time: "PUGS."

"We just like to educate people about the breed," DiPerna of Fowlerville said. "I enjoy it. I've been doing this all my life. If we don't do it, how are you going to educate the people?"

DiPerna was one of hundreds of dog owners and breeders who came to the All-Breed Benched Dog Show & Obedience Trial at the Suburban Collection Showplace in Novi. Two separate shows Saturday and Sunday marked the 100th anniversary for the event's host, the Detroit Kennel Club.

The show felt more like a convention than an arena-sized contest. There was a ring where handlers jogged in circles with their pets to the sound of polite, scattered applause — but there were also many booths where owners and breeders groomed their dogs and answered questions from passersby.

Organizers noted that attendance was sparser than in past years. During one round of competition Sunday, only a few dozen watched.

"When it was downtown, it was packed. You couldn't even move," DiPerna, the longtime breeder, said while watching a judge assess a group of "toy" breeds like Yorkshire terriers and Chinese crested dogs.

Some attendees said that could be due to the show's relocation from Cobo Center to a convention hall in Novi starting last year. Phil Booth, assistant show chairman, said he didn't have specific attendance figures for the weekend. He did express some concern with the format, though, which requires competitors to stay all day even if they lose. Increasingly, breeders just don't want to stick around.

"The point was originally to educate the public about purebred dogs," Booth said. "Things have just changed."

He added: "We're working very hard to re-establish ourselves here. We have lots of things to offer."

Before the final rounds of competition Sunday, dog owners seemed to be having fun while also saying they regretted the low turnout.

One of those was Pauline Sabatini of Chesterfield Township, who was grooming her border collie named Dutch before a "best of breed" competition Sunday.

"It's kind of sad that it's a little small," she said.

OUR VIEW

Flying our flag on the Fourth shows respect

There are a variety of times during the course of a given year the American flag moves front and center as citizens pay tribute to their country, its freedoms and the men and women who fight for them.

There's the recent Flag Day, Memorial Day, Veterans Day and, Monday, Independence Day — all designed to allow American citizens the opportunity to pay their respects not only to their country, but to its most visible symbol.

And when they do, it's important they do it properly. If you're displaying an American flag, Public Law 94-344, The Federal Flag Code, contains some guidelines. (If you're worried about how deep the federal government is getting into our lives, know this: The code contains no penalties, though some states have their own codes and may impose penalties.)

Traditional guidelines call for displaying the flag in public only from sunrise to sunset. However, the flag may be displayed at all times if it's illuminated during darkness. The flag should not be subject to weather damage, so it should not be displayed during rain, snow and wind storms, unless it is an all-weather flag.

It should be displayed often, but especially, on national and state holidays and special occasions.

When flags of states, cities or organizations are flown on the same staff, the U.S. flag must be at the top.

FILE PHOTO

This one seems to be "violated," for lack of a better term, more often. During the hoisting or lowering of the flag or when it passes in parade or review, Americans should stand at attention facing the flag and place their right hand over the heart. Men not in uniform should remove any headdress and hold it with their right hand at their left shoulder, the hand resting over the heart.

Here's one that gets violated occasionally in school gymnasiums or football fields: When the flag hangs from a staff in a church or public place, it should appear to the audience on the left, the speaker's right.

When the flag is worn out or otherwise no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning.

Here are a couple of things not to do with the American flag:

» Do not let the flag touch anything beneath it: ground, floor, water, merchandise.

» Do not place anything on the flag, including letters, insignia or designs of any kind.

» Do not use it as apparel, bedding or drapery. It should not be used on a costume or athletic uniform. However, a flag patch may be attached to the uniform of patriotic organizations, military personnel, police officers and firefighters.

» Do not use the flag for advertising or promotion purposes or print it on paper napkins, boxes or anything else intended for temporary use and discard.

There are more and you can find them on the website of the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. But these guidelines give you a good idea of ways to treat the American flag with respect.

As the Fourth of July approaches, it's important to remember the American flag, the symbol of our country, deserves the same respect.

Friendships give life value, whether they're old or new

Arlene Funke
GUEST COLUMNIST

It was a sight for sore eyes, gazing on the faces of longtime friends from our now-closed St. Hilary Catholic Church of Redford. We gathered for an informal lunch at Sandy's By the Beech.

"We should do this more often," said Joseph Gies of Redford, who attended with his wife MaryLou. Also there was Sister Marie Miller, the heart and soul of St. Hilary, especially after our pastor, the Rev. John Nowlan, suffered a stroke, retired and later died. Rounding out our lunch group were the church's office manager Chris Saladin, Loretta Gasiorek, Irma Calvisi, Laurie Ruszkiewicz and Donald Burkholder. We ate good food and caught up. I relished the time spent with these folks.

I have struggled to find a new place to worship. Many members had been at St. Hilary since the doors opened in the 1950s. The church was small compared to many other Catholic churches. It was easy to get to know people. We prayed together, celebrated holidays and weddings and mourned when friends died. We feasted on Polish dinners and pancake breakfasts. There are many churches in Redford and surrounding communities, but I still have not joined another, two years after St. Hilary closed.

Some of our members have stayed together. The Goldenaires, St. Hilary's senior club, now meet monthly for lunch and card-playing at St. Robert Bellarmine Church at West Chicago and Inkster roads. Several of St. Hilary's members now attend services at Our Lady of Grace Church on Joy Road, east of Telegraph, in Dearborn Heights. Grace will host a St. Hilary reunion Mass at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, July 10. All former St. Hilary members are invited. A time of fellowship will follow.

Friendships enhance our well-being. Some endure, others fade. I enjoyed working with many people over the years, but seldom see any of them now. When my children were young, I spent time with the parents of my kids' friends. Neighbors, once close, move away. These days, I enjoy spending time with folks I've met in my apartment building.

Some of my dearest friends I met on the first day of kindergarten in southwest Detroit! Others joined this group in high school. Back at Western High School, the elites — athletes, cheerleaders and other beautiful people — were called "cakes." My friends and I called ourselves the "crumbs," happy, but not members of the "cake" world. We get together for lunch several times a year. Sadly, we gathered recently for the funeral of one of our "girlfriends" who died unexpectedly on her 51st wedding anniversary. That one hit me hard.

Many people can't believe that I once was painfully shy. I wised up when I realized how much fun I was missing.

Friendships, old or new, make life worthwhile.

Dunworth leaves Mercy, CC swim coaching posts

Marlins won six state titles under his leadership

Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

Shannon Dunworth isn't retiring and doesn't rule out a return to coaching at some future date, but one of the area's top swim mentors is leaving the sport.

The highly successful coach of the Farmington Hills Mercy girls and Detroit Catholic Central boys recently moved to Texas to work with his brothers in their business.

"I love coaching dearly," Dunworth said. "To me, there's no better job. Unfortunately, it was difficult for me to continue coaching and still make a living.

"If not for coaching, I would have been here 10 years ago. The opportunity came up, and the timing was right. They had a position that really needed filling, and they're trusting me to fill that void."

Dunworth, 59, has a solid

business background, having owned and operated his own company – Different Strokes Swim Shop with stores in Livonia and St. Clair Shores – for 38 years.

His brothers own Celling Biosciences, which deals in the research, development and manufacture of a variety of medical devices. Their business is a leader in making devices used in orthopedic procedures and the procurement of adult stem cells, according to Dunworth.

Farmington Hills pitcher and Nationals draftee gets start in Gulf Coast League

Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

After being drafted earlier this month by the Washington Nationals, Sterling Sharp has moved to the next stage of his baseball career and is living the life of a minor leaguer.

The Farmington Hills

resident was assigned to the club's rookie team in the Gulf Coast League and is based at the Nationals Training Center in Viera, Fla.

"I love it down here," Sharp said, adding each day begins at 7 a.m. "It's just like going to school, but it's baseball.

Sharp

he wants to have a simulated game or not."

Sharp, a former all-Observer pitcher at North Farmington High School, and his new teammates were scheduled to play their first game Friday against the GCL Mets. In addition to their training, the rookie Nationals had played three three-inning, intrasquad games since reporting to camp June 15.

The right-handed Sharp pitched one inning of one game. He faced four batters — the results being a strikeout, groundout, teammate error and walk.

Blazers had successful run during Combs' era in softball

Brad Emons
Staff Writer

The Scott Combs softball era is over at Livonia Ladywood after the nine-year coach announced his resignation Tuesday.

Combs, who guided the Blazers to one MHSAA Division 2 championship (2012), two state runner-up finishes (2014 and 2009) and six final fours, finished with a 284-85 overall record.

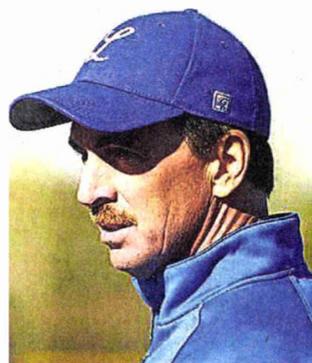

He cited increased commitment to coaching the University of Michigan Dearborn women's program, along with being president of Computware Girls Fastpitch organization, as reasons for stepping down.

Combs, who lives in Northville, informed Ladywood principal Tracey Mocon of his decision.

"It's been a great nine years," Combs said. "I can't thank the families and the coaches enough at the school. It's just time to move on. I'm far, far too busy doing college and high school. It was just a decision my family and I made."

In his final season at Ladywood, the Blazers finished 32-13 overall and reached the state semifinals before losing to Vicksburg, 7-5. Ladywood loses six seniors to graduation including Erika Selakowski, Rozlyn Price,

RUNNING

NYC Marathon – former sprinter going long, longer

Koback running polar opposite lottery events

Running has treated Bradley Koback, 29, of Royal Oak very well in 2016.

From the grueling scenic vistas of the Sierra Nevada Mountains in July for the 274-participant Tahoe Rim Trail 50 Mile Endurance Run to the 50,000-plus entrants in the world's largest marathon through New York City in November, Koback is making the most of his two lottery-accepted races in 2016.

And a special honor in October makes for a banner year for the former Wisconsin high school and college sprinter.

"Is it feasible when I finish a marathon, could I get to the finish line and then turn around and go all the way back to the start?" It is a question Koback started asking himself after completing his first marathons in 2013-14.

"Why not give it a shot?" He said leading up to his first ultra in April 2015. "So I signed up for the American River 50. ... When I did all my research, that was the most beginner-friendly course — even though after doing it, it was really not easy by any means."

Running 400 meters very fast was Koback's specialty in high school and college. After graduating from Amherst High School in Wisconsin, he attended and ran track for the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, where he was part of the 1,600-meter relay team that won a Division III national championship in 2008.

However it was a ruptured Achilles, along with fellow high school running buddy Tim Olson, that eventually got Koback running 40,000-plus meters instead of 400.

After graduating from college, moving to Los Angeles and following ultra-marathoner Olson's career, Koback ran his first marathon in 2013.

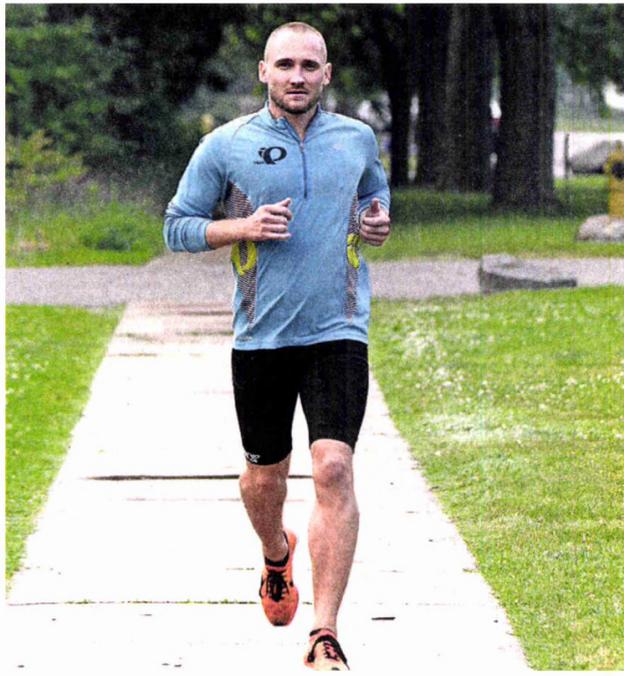

"I needed to get competitive again. ... As far as racing, I couldn't do sprints anymore," he said. "I had done 10Ks and upwards of half-marathons before so I was, like, OK, let's try something longer, so I did the L.A. Marathon."

Koback, a lab technician at Royal Oak Beaumont Hospital, talked as we dodged light rain under a Market Fresh store canopy at 13 Mile and Southfield roads, interrupting a recent run through the Birmingham area.

Fueling his competitive nature and a new-found way to experience places he had never been, Koback followed his first L.A. Marathon by running it again in 2014, along with the San Diego and San Francisco marathons.

"It is an amazing thing. I had never been to any of these places," he said. "It gives me the perfect opportunity to go visit and actually immerse myself and run through all these areas that a lot of people even when they go and visit never get a chance to."

Immerse himself he will July 16, when he attempts his second 50-miler in Nevada. According to the race website, the event is located on the Running Group/charity: Team RWB and Project Purple. Koback decided to team up with Project Purple for New York because "they are not only one of the main charity sponsors for the NYC marathon, but also my uncle has just been recently diagnosed with pancreatic cancer and I promised to run in his honor, as well as bring awareness to the disease and all others affected by the illness."

northeast side of Lake Tahoe, with the highest point of the run just below the 9,214-foot Snow Valley Peak.

The 2016 TCS New York City Marathon is about as opposite an experience one could find compared to the running events at Tahoe.

"I got an email for it. I thought, well, I have never been to New York, I will give it a shot," he said. "I got the email and it said congratulations you got in. I was just amazed, I didn't expect to get in. I knew I did not qualify, but it was amazing. I am super-stoked."

Before heading to New York in November, Koback has some business to attend to in Wisconsin. On Oct. 15, he will skip his planned running of the Detroit Free Press Talmer Bank Marathon and will instead reunite with his collegiate 1,600-meter relay teammates as they are inducted into the UW-Stevens Point Hall of Fame, honoring the foursome's national championship.

If you are in a runner signed up for the TCS New York City

Marathon, drop me an email. I would love to profile others from Michigan and maybe even go for a run together as we prepare for this iconic event.

"It's really cutting edge," he said. "They have a huge team that works down here, and they have sales reps all over the country."

Dunworth, who was hired to fill the role of chief operating officer, said he will be coaching the people around him.

"I'm hoping to find the same semblance of coaching people in the business world as I have in the pool," he said.

"When you own the business, you're the guy who opens the doors and takes out the garbage. Even though I have zero medical background, I do know the business end of it."

Dunworth said the decision to leave coaching was tough. He was fortunate to work with "great people, great kids and great administrators" and hasn't closed the door on coaching again.

"For the time being, I have to get my ducks in a row and make a living," he said. "My business in Livonia is still doing fine. I made a decision to broaden my horizon and take on other responsibility."

First coaching stint

Dunworth coached the boys and girls teams at his alma mater, Dearborn High School, for 15 years until he gave that up in 1995 to concentrate on running Different Strokes.

He has had a management team running those stores since he returned to coaching in 2004, replacing Jim Downs at Mercy. He started coaching at CC the following year.

"When I came back, that's when I realized what a cherished time in my life it is and how fortunate I was during that period," Dunworth said.

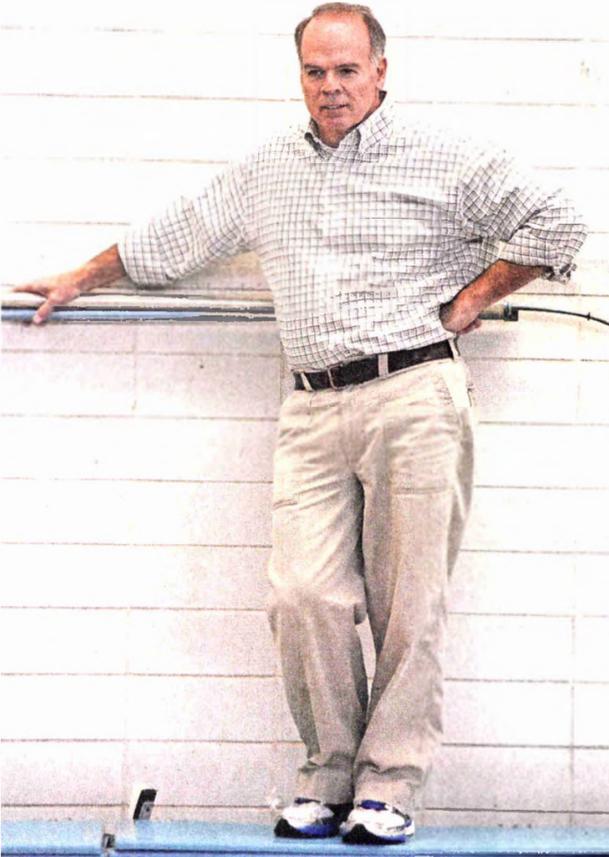

"I want the kids to know they're not going to miss a beat, and I'll still be engaged in what they're doing from afar. My heart will be there for a long, long time."

"That has to do, not with the sport of swimming, but the people you get to work with. If I was a hockey coach, I'd feel the exact same way."

Teams among best

Dunworth had great success at Mercy during his 12 seasons (2004-15) at the school, winning the Catholic League every year and six state championships.

The Marlins won four straight titles in Division 2 (2007-10) and two in Division 1 (2011 and 2013). He also coached Mercy to four state runner-up finishes.

"Coaching is fun and rewarding," Dunworth said. "Winning is the result. You aim for that result, but that doesn't change. I loved coaching at CC as much as I did Mercy. The results there, in my eyes, were equally successful."

"In the moment, it's fun to be successful. When the moment is over, it's over. You're just wanting that moment again. You're always craving the next fix."

Enjoys the process

The fix for Dunworth is the day-to-day process of training, striving to be better and working toward a goal. He's never been interested in the tally, he said.

"Some people like to hunt, and some people like to hang trophies of what they hunted," he said. "I'd like to just be hunting instead of thinking, 'Where is this going to go in my living room?'"

While he was out of coaching, Dunworth said he had several phone calls from people trying to coax him back into it.

"One day, I said, 'Why am I saying no?' One day, I said,

'Sure, why not?' and it was the best decision I ever made," he said.

Didn't plan to leave

When the boys season ended in March, Dunworth said he had every intention of returning to Mercy and CC. It was shortly after that the discussions about going to Texas intensified, and he had to make a decision.

"I was kind of glad it took me by surprise," he said. "The last thing I wanted was a parade year."

Dunworth sent each swimmer a letter, informing her/him of his decision and thanking them for their contributions to the program and for being an important part of his life.

"Some kids were disappointed," he said. "Some came to see me and expressed their appreciation. The last thing I was looking for was to generate some kind of response."

"The response I did get was a lot of maturity in their approach to it. It's nice to know they're going to miss you, but it's also nice to know you prepared them well enough for the next page."

"Honestly, it's like summer ball, but we're getting paid and competing for spots," Sharp said. "They treat you like professionals. The coaches aren't breathing down your back and telling you what to do."

"The practices are 75 percent making sure things are under control and you're perfecting what you already do. You do what got you drafted."

"If there are little things we need to tweak, they'll address that and we'll work on it. But they drafted you for a reason. They stress that a lot."

The majority of the players are recent draftees and free agents, but there are a few extended spring-training guys and Major Leaguers doing rehab work, Sharp said.

After playing for three college teams in three years, Sharp, who turned 21 two weeks ago, figured it was time to go to the next level when he was picked in the 22nd round of the Major League Draft.

He began his collegiate career at Eastern Michigan, but a coaching change at the end of his first year caused him to transfer to Darton State College in Albany, Ga.

After one season there, Sharp followed Eric Peterson, the former pitching coach at EMU, to Drury University, an NCAA Division II school in Springfield, Mo.

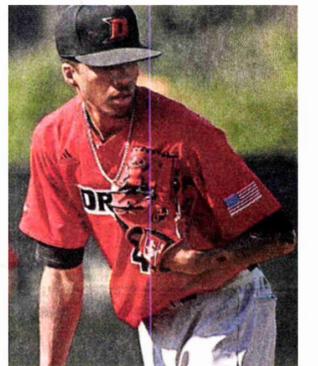

"It was a rough junior year," Sharp said, adding he was pleased to have the chance to get into pro ball after a "not-so-good year. It was best for me to get in and not worry about going through another good or bad season of college."

"When you look at the numbers, they weren't the numbers that get people drafted, usually. Throughout the season, the Nationals stayed in contact, and my agent kept saying they were interested."

Sharp, who was 2-5 with a 5.90 earned run average, 43 strikeouts and 21 walks in 50 1/3 innings, performed well during a pre-draft workout with the Nationals in Washington, D.C.

"I think that helped a lot because they could see the potential and the frame I have, the way my arm works with my body," Sharp said. "It was a good bullpen opportunity. I threw 20 pitches in front of the GM and front-office guys."

Sharp, who also was an all-Observer basketball player at North Farmington, had heard all the stories about life in the minor leagues and the long bus trips.

It shouldn't be too bad in the GCL. All the games start at either noon or 1 p.m., and Sharp doesn't anticipate any trips longer than four hours. All the rookies are housed in a hotel at the team's expense.

"Some ex-teammates and guys I played against told me how it would be, and it's pretty much how they explained it," Sharp said.

"The road trips are just like summer ball the past two years up north in Madison, Wis. They won't bother me; I'm used to that."

"The second language is the thing I was most unprepared for. We have a lot of Spanish-speaking players in the clubhouse. We're learning Spanish, and they're learning English, too."

It's too early for Sharp to know what plans the team might have for him in the short term, but that will depend a lot on how he performs as the season unfolds.

"They just want us to get the feel of throwing every day like a professional does and to see that our arms are taken care of before they start putting the pieces together," he said.

Like any draftee and player with a shot to make it, Sharp has the dream of one day making it to the Major Leagues.

"I know it's a long process," he said. "I have to stay confident and have a belief in myself."

"Making it in three years is still pretty fast for guys to go from rookie league to the bigs. I just have to stay on the right path and keep working toward it."

"I believe I have some of the best stuff in the minor leagues. I have to keep going out there and putting up zeroes. Hopefully, I'll get a chance to move up and perform at the next level."

PDL SOCCER

Bucks jump-start offense against Toronto

Landell notches natural hat trick in 6-0 soccer victory

Brad Emons
Staff Writer

The Michigan Bucks returned June 23 to Ultimate Soccer Arenas in Pontiac and rediscovered their potent offense in a 6-0 Premier Development League win over Toronto FC U23 Academy.

The victory kept the Bucks (6-2-0, 18 points) in second place in the Great Lakes Division of the PDL's Central Conference, four points ahead of the Derby City Rovers (4-2-2, 14 points) and seven points behind Kitchener-Waterloo United (8-1-1, 25 points), but the Bucks have two games in hand on K-W.

Against Toronto (1-6-4, seven points), the Bucks dominated from the opening whistle.

In the 42nd minute, Bucks goalkeeper Drew Shepherd (Ann Arbor/Western Michigan University) launched a 60-yard punt to forward Ben Fitzpatrick, who took a nice touch to bring the ball down and then blew by his defender and ripped a shot from 16 yards out

Bucks leading scorer Andre Landell (England/Tiffin University) kept the attack going by scoring a natural hat trick that included goals on either side of halftime.

In the 44th minute, Landell took a through ball from Tom Owens (England) and used his speed to get past the back line and finished his chance to make it 2-0.

Just a minute later, Marco Charalambous (Cyprus/Butler) found Landell and the English forward made it two for two on his chances and the Bucks took a 3-0 lead into halftime.

The second half started the same way the first half ended, when Russell Cicerone (Bloomfield Hills/University of Buffalo) cruised down the left flank from the opening kick and found Landell sitting in the box, where he finished his third goal on his third shot of the game, all coming in a four-minute span.

Landell leads the Bucks with seven goals this season.

In the 57th minute, Owens launched a corner kick to the back post and found defender Alexi Souahy (France/Bowling Green), who one-timed his shot to make it 5-0.

Cicerone, who played high school soccer at Birmingham Brother Rice, closed out the scoring with the game's best finish when he made a solo run through three Toronto defenders before smacking home his fourth goal of the campaign.

The Bucks were scheduled to play Tuesday at Derby City in Louisville and then Friday against K-W United at Wilfrid Laurier University in their toughest road stretch of the season.

"We gave away points when we played there last week in a game we should have won, so this time we are going to try and get the job done right," said Gary Parsons, Bucks director of coaching. "Three points against Derby would put some breathing room between us and them for the final playoff spot and would really add some urgency to Friday's rematch with K-W."

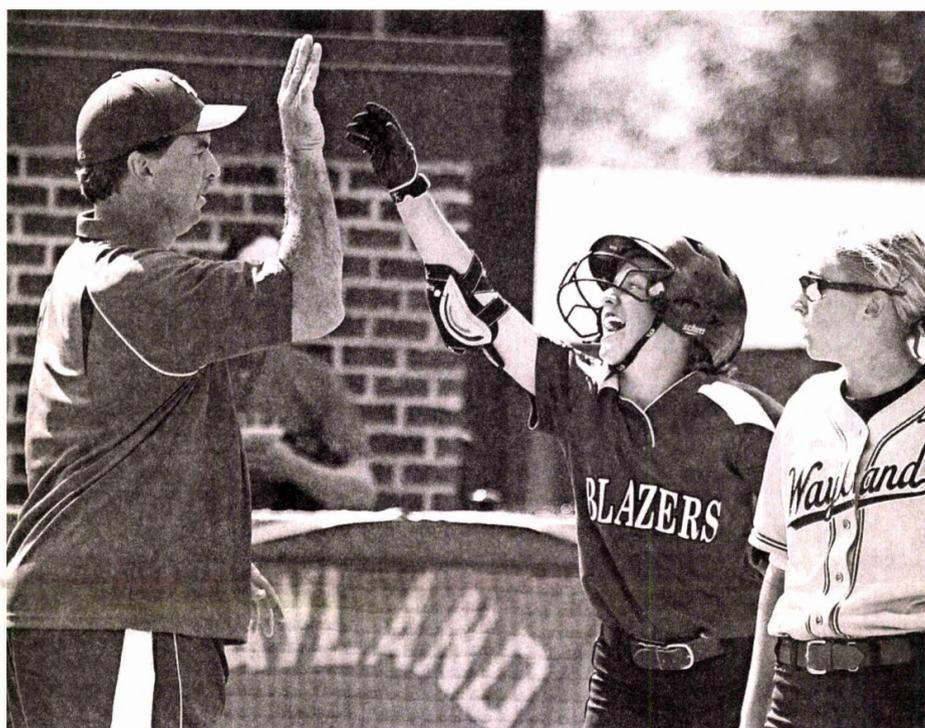

"If we can clean up the mistakes we made on defense and finish a few chances in Louisville like we did against Toronto, I like our chances to keep on track. All of our guys know how difficult this next week will be and I think we are ready for the challenge."

Livonia Ladywood's Scott Combs (left) guided the Blazers to one state championship, two runner-up finishes and six final fours in nine girls softball seasons.

"I wanted to finish out this class," Combs said. "They've been a great, great class ... three final fours. But it was the end of the line, and I wish everyone well. I've got great memories and it will be extremely hard to drive by the field and see it. But all good things come to an end."

Combs, a native of Battle Creek who played baseball at Kalamazoo College, produced over 20 all-state players and sent as many to the collegiate ranks.

His daughter Briana, now at Bowling Green State University, was a standout pitcher for the Blazers who earned Michigan Gatorade Player of the Year and Miss Softball honors in 2012 following the Blazers' state championship run.

In 2013, first baseman Celeste Fidge (Toledo) also earned Miss Softball honors.

Combs led Ladywood to eight straight district titles along with seven regional crowns. The Blazers also captured two Catholic League A-B Division championships (2011 and 2012).

"We had good representation in that tough Catholic League and we were by far the smallest school in there," Combs said of the Central Division. "But I greatly appreciated playing in the highest division. It really got us ready for the state tournament."

Combs, who has his own law practice, has gone 76-71 in three seasons at UM-Dearborn. This spring, the Wolves finished 31-18 overall, including a 12-6 record in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference.

Combs also wanted to spend more time devoted to following his son Scott, who is a standout three-sport athlete entering his senior year this fall at Dearborn Divine Child. His wife Pauline manages his law office.

"It was pulling me and it took so much effort that I really couldn't continue doing that," Combs said of the Ladywood job. "I'm also expanding Compuware a little bit. Something had to give. And with this class going out on such a high note, it was the right time to do it."

Rams win pitchers' duel over Lightning

Michigan Ram Tyler Lowe proved a wooden bat can hit a ball as far as an aluminum bat as long as the swing mechanics are sound.

In a Livonia Collegiate Baseball League game played June 22 at Bicentennial Park, Lowe's first-inning round tripper was the catalyst for the Rams' 3-1 victory over the Southfield Lightning.

The result bumped the red-hot Rams' record to 10-3-1 while the Lightning smoldered to 4-9. It was the fifth consecutive victory for the Rams.

Mike Warner suffered the setback for Southfield after giving up three runs in three innings.

The Rams, who outit the Lightning 4-3, were bolstered by one-hit, one-run efforts from Pat Downing and Nolan Page.

Anthony DiPonio went 1-for-2 for the winners, and Alex Peczynski added an RBI.

Mercy star wins spot on All-America team

Dan O'Meara

Abby Krzywiecki can add another honor to her impressive resume as a softball player.

The Mercy High School star was named to the 2016 FloSoftball All-America first team as an infielder Saturday.

Krzywiecki was selected Miss Softball for position players a week earlier by the Michigan High School Softball Coaches Association.

A Division 1 all-stater and perennial all-Observer honoree, Krzywiecki played first base and was the No. 2 pitcher for the Marlins.

She was a major factor in Mercy winning its first state championship in softball with a 4-0 win over Macomb Dakota June 18 at Michigan State University.

Krzywiecki, who will play college ball at South Alabama, had a .526 career batting average. She had 46 doubles, 48 home runs and 238 RBIs.

As a pitcher, she was 51-5 with two saves, 11 shutouts and a 2.02 earned run average. She had 317 strikeouts and 99 walks in 351 innings.

Krzywiecki set a state record for single-season home runs this year with 20. She also led the Marlins (43-2) with a .558 average and 94 RBIs.

She was 12-1 in the pitching circle with a 1.66 ERA, 81 strikeouts and 13 walks in 92 2/3 innings.

Allison Schmitt of Canton qualified for the final race in the women's 200-meter freestyle at the U.S. Olympic Team Trials in swimming Tuesday.

Schmitt, the gold medalist in that event at the 2012 Olympic Games in London, was second in her semifinal heat at the CenturyLink Center in Omaha, Neb.

She was seeded third in the final Wednesday evening. Nineteen-year-old Katie Leddecky had the top semifinal time at 1:55.10.

Leah Smith swam 1:56.73, Schmitt 1:57.05 and Missy Franklin, another former Olympian, 1:57.33.

The 26-year-old Schmitt went 1:57.77 and was fourth in the preliminary round earlier Tuesday. Smith and Franklin are 21-year-olds.

On Monday, Schmitt finished fifth in the women's 400 freestyle final and failed to make the U.S. team. The top two make the cut.

Schmitt went 4:06.66 and was third in a semifinal heat earlier Monday. She swam 4:09.25 in the final.

The top two placers and Olympic team members are Lilly King and Katie Meili with respective times of 1:05.20 and 1:06.07.

Tucker, who swims for Indiana University, qualified for the final Monday night with a semifinal time of 1:07.60, securing the eighth and last spot.

The top three swimmers in each semifinal heat are automatic qualifiers for the final. Those with the next two fastest times also advance to the final.

Tucker went 1:08.49 in the preliminary round Monday and swam nearly a minute faster in the semifinal to get into the final.

She swam for Waterford United in high school and is a member of the Livonia Community Swim Club.

GRILLING? BE MINDFUL OF FIRE SAFETY PRECAUTIONS

As summer continues, home chefs everywhere are reaching for their grills, eager to enjoy barbecue season. The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) recommends that grillers pay particular attention to safety in the spring and summer months when home fires involving grilling incidents occur most often.

Three out of five households own a gas grill, according to NFPA's latest "Home Grill Fires" report, which translates to a lot of tasty meals. But it also means there's an increased risk of home fires. In 2009-13, an annual average of 8,900 home fires involved grills, hibachis or barbecues, and close to half of all injuries involving grills were due to thermal burns. While nearly half of the people who grill do so year-round, July is the peak month for grilling fires followed by May, June and August.

Although gas grills contribute to a higher number of home fires overall than their charcoal counterparts, NFPA reminds everyone that all types of grills pose a risk for fires and burn injuries. More than one-quarter (27 percent) of home structure grill fires started on an exterior balcony or open porch, and another 27 percent started in a courtyard, terrace or patio. Eight percent began in the kitchen, according to the report.

"As friends and families prepare for a fun grilling season together, be sure the grill is working properly and review safety tips," said Lorraine Carli, vice president of Outreach and Advocacy for NFPA. "Failing to properly clean the grill or having the grill too close to something that could burn are the leading causes of fires. It's good practice to check for damage before using the grill for the first time each year, and to check the entire grill regularly."

When grilling, NFPA suggests the following:

- » Propane and charcoal BBQ grills should only be used outdoors.
- » The grill should be placed well away from the home, deck railings and out from under eaves and overhanging branches.
- » Keep children and pets at least three feet away from the grill area.
- » Keep your grill clean by removing grease or fat buildup from the grates and in the trays below.
- » Never leave your grill unattended.

For more information and resources, including tips for outdoor cooking with portable grills, visit www.nfpa.org/grilling or download NFPA's safety tips sheet on grilling for easy access. There is information online on checking propane hoses for leaks.

Write legislators on Nonprofit Corporation Act changes

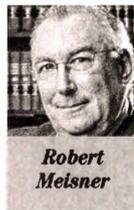

Q: My condominium Board is out of control and has acted totally irresponsibly in terms of the management of our condo and the retention of experts, including our attorney. I want to sue them, but am wondering what effect the new Nonprofit Corporation Act has on it?

A: The new changes to the Nonprofit Corporation Act, which were politically motivated during the lame duck session of the legislature in December 2014, make it very difficult for a member of the association to sue a Board member for acts or omissions which are irresponsible. Under the old rule, only volunteer members of the Board of Directors had various protections under the Michigan Nonprofit Corporation Act which we wholeheartedly supported on behalf of our community association clients. Now, whether or not you are compensated as a Director, and even if you are grossly negligent which is an extremely difficult standard to meet, you are free from liability. In short, it is actually easier to sue a governmental official which has governmental immunity unless they have committed gross negligence than it is to sue a member of a Board of Directors. This is outrageous and community association members who are involved in a nonprofit association should write their Michigan legislators to demand a retraction of this unreasonable provision and you should seek redress with an experienced community association lawyer who may be able to find a loophole that allows you to take recourse.

Q: We live in a condominium community with 42 units on a small lake. They are site condominiums and the pricing is between $350,000 to $500,000. The one entrance/exit is always open and monitored with a surveillance camera. There have only been two attempted break-ins in twenty years. We have recently been told that going to a gated community would increase our condominium values by at least $20,000 per unit. Is there any truth to that?

A: I can only speak from my legal standpoint as to the effect that a gated community will have on the market value of your units. To the extent there is a perception that there is more security in the condominium, then the units may be worth more money, but how much is not known except as may be determined by the market. However, you do incur additional expense in having a gated community and the threshold for liability for security issues may be lower because of that perception. You are best advised to consult with an experienced realtor in your area for his or her opinion.

Industry report: Home sale prices on a climb

Existing-home sales sprang ahead in May to their highest pace in almost a decade, while the uptick in demand this spring amidst lagging supply levels pushed the median sales price to an all-time high, according to the National Association of Realtors. All major regions except for the Midwest saw strong sales increases last month.

Total existing-home sales, which are completed transactions that include single-family homes, townhomes, condominiums and co-ops, grew 1.8 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 5.53 million in May from a downwardly revised 5.43 million in April. With last month's gain, sales are now up 4.5 percent from May 2015 (5.29 million) and are at their highest annual pace since February 2007 (5.79 million).

Lawrence Yun, NAR chief economist, says existing sales continue to hum along, rising in May for the third consecutive month. "This spring's sustained period of ultra-low mortgage rates has certainly been a worthy incentive to buy a home, but the primary driver in the increase in sales is more homeowners realizing the equity they've accumulated in recent years and finally deciding to trade-up or downsize," he said. "With first-time buyers still struggling to enter the market, repeat buyers using the proceeds from the sale of their previous home as their down payment are making up the bulk of home purchases right now."

Added Yun, "Barring further deceleration in job growth that could ultimately temper demand from these repeat buyers, sales have the potential to mostly maintain their current pace through the summer."

Surpassing the peak median sales price set last June ($236,300), the median existing-home price for all housing types in May was $239,700, up 4.7 percent from May 2015 ($228,900). May's price increase marks the 51st consecutive month of year-over-year gains.

Total housing inventory at the end of May rose 1.4 percent to 2.15 million existing homes available for sale, but is still 5.7 percent lower than a year ago (2.28 million). Unsold inventory is at a 4.7-month supply at the current sales pace, which is unchanged from April.

"Existing inventory remains subdued throughout much of the country and continues to lag even last year's deficient amount," added Yun. "While new home construction has thankfully crept higher so far this year, there's still a glaring need for even more, to help alleviate the supply pressures that are severely limiting choices and pushing prices out of reach for plenty of prospective first-time buyers."

The share of first-time buyers was 30 percent in May, down from 32 percent both in April and a year ago. First-time buyers in all of 2015 also represented an average of 30 percent.

According to Freddie Mac, the average commitment rate for a 30-year, conventional, fixed-rate mortgage inched backward from 3.61 percent in April to 3.60 percent in May, which is the lowest since May 2013 (3.54 percent). The average commitment rate for all of 2015 was 3.85 percent.

Properties typically stayed on the market for 32 days in May (39 days in April), which is below a year ago (40 days) and the shortest time since NAR began tracking in May 2011. Short sales were on the market the longest at a median of 103 days in May, while foreclosures sold in 51 days and non-distressed homes took 30 days. Forty-nine percent of homes sold in May were on the market for less than a month — the highest percentage since NAR began tracking.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
