Residents can feel safe around here

Plymouth Township among those listed as most safe

Laura Colvin
Staff Writer

Whether it's the best of the best or the worst of the worst, increasingly, Internet-based companies are compiling rankings to help sell products and information.

One list, released July 13 by valuepenguin.com, a personal finance website, puts numerous metro Detroit communities among the 2016 Safest Places in Michigan.

Among those, Bloomfield Township (second), Birmingham (fourth), Plymouth Township (fifth), White Lake Township (sixth) and Northville Township (seventh) made the top 10 for communities with a population more than 20,000, while Milford (second), South Lyon (fourth) and Farmington (10th) are listed in the top 10 for medium-size communities with a population of 10,000-20,000.

To compile the rankings, valuepenguin.com says it analyzed the most recent FBI crime reports from 193 communities with a population of 5,000-plus, taking into account violent crime and property crime and adjusting for population size.

Policing

In the communities which made the list, local police held several ideas in common: High expectations from the community, interaction with residents, a focus on crime prevention and a governing body who supports the community police department.

In Birmingham, Police Chief Mark Clemence said, each of the city's 31 officers now works a 12-hour shift, increasing the number of police on the street at any given time.

And they're not just patrolling in cars - most Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights during the summer, officers are doing foot patrols downtown.

"With all the downtown activity, all the bistros and the nightlife, it's busy to the wee hours of the morning," he said, noting Birmingham also has

Jazz concert series off to 'great' start

Darrell Clem

Despite a storm that threatened the first concert - but didn't stop it - Canton's jazz series along the community's core shopping district has had a successful start, officials say.

"It has been great," said Amy Hamilton, Canton Downtown Development Authority coordinator.

A storm slightly delayed the debut concert July 8 by Demetrius "Krayon" Nabors outside IKEA at Ford and Hagerty. But it didn't dampen the enthusiasm of about 1,000 people who waited for the bad weather to pass, Hamilton said.

She estimated more than 1,000 people attended a July 15 performance by Althea René near the Super Bowl, on Ford

FIFE AND DRUM CORPS OPEN HOUSE PLANNED

Have you ever wondered what the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps is all about? Now is your chance to find out, 7-8:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 15, at the PFDC's open house. The open house - a chance to see the Corps in rehearsal - will take place in the bus loop behind Salem High School.

In its 45-year history, the PFDC has never before opened a rehearsal to the public. People of all ages will have an opportunity see the Corps in action Aug. 15. Members will be available to demonstrate their fifes, drums, guard equipment and uniforms and instructors will be on-hand to answer questions.

The Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps consists of students ages 12-18. It's a non-profit group of young musicians and performers who parade, dressed in Colonial-era garb, while playing live the fife and drum music of

Work crews finish paving 'all lanes' on Lotz Road

Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Work crews have mostly finished paving a dirt-and-gravel section of Lotz Road that harkened back to Canton's rural past, long before the population spiked beyond 90,000.

Wayne County officials couldn't yet say when the one-mile stretch of Lotz, between Ford and Cherry Hill roads, might reopen to traffic.

The project, being done by Toebe Construction Co. of Wixom, involves constructing a three-lane concrete road that includes a middle turn lane. Water mains and sidewalks also are part of the project.

officers engaged in a special investigations unit, the Oakland County Narcotics Enforcement Team, the South Oakland County Crash Investigation Team and is sending an officer to the FBI Financial Crimes Task Force.

"We're looking at, not only how things affect Birmingham here, in the day-to-day, but also how we can better serve our residents in the bigger picture to make sure we're in tune with what's going on around us," Clemence said.

FILE PHOTO

Kids play at the Plymouth Township Fire Department open house. The township was recently named the fifth safest large community in Michigan by Value Penguin.

In South Lyon, Chief Lloyd Collins said his officers work hard to prevent crime, in part, by being highly-visible in the community.

Every school day, at each of the city's six public school buildings, officers are on-site during arrival and dismissal and also do a walk-through of each building at least once every day. "It's quite an effort, but we get a lot of positive comments from parents, students, teachers and administrators," he said. "Hopefully, we're... sending a message: It wouldn't be a good idea to attempt anything, because we have the officers right there to take care of it."

Eyes and ears

Plymouth Township Police Chief Thomas Tiderington also said residents play a key role.

"I don't care how many police officers you have, if you don't have the support and cooperation of the community, you're not going to be successful and you're not going to be considered a very safe place to live," Tiderington said. "Residents here care about what is happening in their community; if they see something out of place, they're going to call. That's something we encourage."

An officer, he added, is assigned to every homeowners association; if residents have a non-emergency concern, they can call that officer directly.

"That also gives the officers ownership in those areas," Tiderington said.

Making the list

Although the chiefs agreed it's nice to see their community show up on "safe cities" lists, they all take it in stride, especially as more and more companies produce the rosters.

"For every study that says we're No. 4, there could be one that says we're not even in the top 10," Clemence said in Birmingham. "All I know is I hold myself and my officers to a very high standard; serving our community is of the utmost importance to us."

In Plymouth Township, Tiderington agreed.

"When I talk in front of groups they always ask, 'How safe are we?'" he said. "I turn the question around and say, 'How safe do you think we are? Do you let your kids go out at night, do you sometimes forget to lock your doors?'"

"I don't know that we need any statistical information to tell us how safe of a community we are," he added.

And in the smaller communities, Collins in South Lyon and Lindberg in Milford both agreed: One or two incidents can drastically change a community's spot on the list from year to year.

The 2016 Safest Places in Michigan report can be viewed in its entirety on the valuepenguin.com website.

Road between Canton Center and Sheldon.

It marks the 11th year for the Canton Color Tour Jazz Series, which takes its name from color-coded streetlight banners along the Ford Road shopping corridor. One concert might occur in the so-called orange block; another in the purple block.

The six-week series continues through Aug. 12. All concerts start at 7 p.m.

Organizers aim to offer a quality jazz series while bringing visitors to the Ford Road shopping district. Concert-goers are encouraged to bring chairs and coolers — but not alcohol — and some bring carryout meals from local restaurants.

Admission is free. Here's the remaining lineup:

» July 29, Randy Scott, near the JC Penney store on Ford, between Sheldon and Morton Taylor, in the green block.

If inclement weather occurs, concerts will be moved indoors at the Super Bowl, 45100 Ford road.

"All lanes on Lotz Road have been paved," Tiffani Jackson, Wayne County Department of Public Works spokeswoman, said Thursday.

Work crews still have finishing touches to complete in places such as the northwest and southwest areas of the Cherry Hill-Lotz intersection, Jackson said.

"The project is on schedule," she said.

Charles Larocque, Canton Township staff engineer, said work crews have made steady progress on the Lotz Road project because of few weather-related delays.

"The weather has cooperated," he said.

Jackson said work crews late in the week were still doing some paving work at Lotzford, a side street, and on side-walks and driveways.

Work crews closed Lotz Road to through traffic earlier this year, but made accommodations for local residents to reach their homes. The project marks a $5 million effort to transform the pothole-plagued road into a paved artery between Ford and Cherry Hill.

Canton officials have said the long-awaited project should pull some motorists off Ford and Haggerty roads and ease traffic congestion near the I-275 interchange on Canton's east side, particularly during rush hour.

It marks Canton's biggest road project this construction season.

"We believe it will change the traffic patterns and certainly affect Haggerty," Bill Serchak, Canton engineering services manager, has said.

Wayne County spokesman Ryan Bridges has said the project would be completed by November, but there was no word Thursday on how much sooner the road could potentially open.

Serchak has described Lotz as "a very old road dating back to the 1830s." Funding to improve it came from the Michigan Department of Transportation, which already made nearby Ford Road improvements by adding a continuous third lane from Lotz west to Lilley, lengthening turn lanes and improving I-275 ramps.

Local officials have said the project will improve property values along Lotz and likely become a catalyst for new development.

Central City Dance students, ages 6-19, competed against 50 other dance studios from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Texas, Virginia and Indiana.

The competition spanned five days and lasted more than 75 hours. Many different styles of dance were performed, including jazz, tap, hip-hop, lyrical, clogging and modern, among others. The competition was divided into solo, duo/trio, small group, large group and line and production categories.

Students from Central City Dance Center won the following awards: four Diamond Awards, 42 Platinum Awards, 21 High Gold Awards and 67 Overall Division Awards in a particular category.

Students began conditioning in September, but didn't begin working on the competition choreography until January. It took about 12 weeks to create the choreography and get it ready for competition.

"I was so proud of how well our kids did. They worked so hard all year," said Erin Kearney, one of the studio's dance instructors. "They really stepped up and danced their hearts out. It was so exciting to make it into the Standing Ovation Championship. The whole audience was standing and cheering for our students. That was a proud teacher moment for me."

awards were given to students of Central City Dance Center for stand-

» The Fred and Ginger Award was awarded to 11-year-old Giovanni Succuro and 10-year-old Makaila Barker, both of Canton, for performing a duet to "Hallelujah, I Love Her So" by Ray Charles.

» Central City Dance instructor Shannon McHale-Johnson accepted the award for Best Choreography for her inquisitive dance "The Cello Song" featuring a 16-foot golden see-saw.

» Brownstown resident Parker Brudzinski, 14, was the recipient of a scholarship to Broadway Dance Center, providing him the opportunity to study in New York City this upcoming season.

» The studio's production of "The Last Dragon," featuring 64 students, was nominated for the Standing Ovation Championship Award.

Bethany Amann, one of the studio's dance instructors, described the moment: "My favorite part of the week was looking out into the audience and seeing all of the supportive parents, family members and friends standing up and cheering so loud for our dancers. ... The energy in the theater gave me chills."

Tim Smola, studio owner and director, called the competition in Charleston "very tough." "We are proud of the accomplishments of all of our students and are proud to represent Canton Township," he said.

Central City's Summer Dance Jam began July 12 and runs through Aug. 18. The studio is currently accepting students into its six-week Summer Dance Jam and three-day dance camps. Barbecue contest is all about having fun at the grill

Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Season your grill. Prep the meat by trimming fat, marinating or rubbing with spices. Invite friends and family to lend a hand and don't take your barbecuing too seriously. Follow that advice and you're set for a tasty, good time competing in the "backyard" grilling category at Westland Area Jaycee's second annual All American BBQ Throwdown, set for Friday and Saturday, Aug. 5-6, at Thomas H. Brown Central City Park, located on Ford Road, between Newburgh and Wayne Road, in Westland.

The Throwdown, which will take place during Westland's Blues, Brews and BBQ festival, will offer two levels of barbecue competition this year. The Kansas City Barbecue Society portion of the event is new and likely to draw serious pit masters from across Michigan and beyond to vie for championship titles and $500 to $1,500 in prizes as they barbecue chicken, ribs, brisket and pork. Registration is $200 and due Aug. 1. The Backyard Series will award $50 to $100 and costs $30 to enter. Register by Aug. 4.

"There are very strict rules at KCBS," said Sarah Austin, Westland Area Jaycees president. "Everything has to be cooked on-site. Everything has to be prepped on-site. It's like a barbecue camp for a weekend.

"The backyard event allows any method of cooking — gas, wood pellets, charcoal," she added. "It's more laid back and less competitive. The backyard barbecue is very relaxed."

Social outing

That's why Brian Markonni of Garden City enjoyed competing last year with his son Blake. He'll expand the team to include two sons this year.

"I could never compete with the Kansas City barbecue guys. They take it too seriously," said Markonni, who uses a grill that has both propane and charcoal capability. "It's something we do for fun. Everyone on the amateur side, we're talking and having a good time. You don't need a lot. You can come out with your hibachi grill, sit back, laugh and enjoy."

He grills at home and prefers the smoky flavor of charcoal barbecue to other cooking methods.

"I love doing ribs a lot," he said. "I love it when everything falls off the bone."

Markonni recommends removing skin, some fat, marinating the ribs and barbecuing slowly to ensure the meat is fall-off-the-bone tender.

"Give yourself enough time, cook at a slow even heat and make sure if you're going to do a competition, get an idea of what you're doing and try it a week or two in advance," he said.

Sweet ribs

Markonni likes to wing it with a little improvisation at the grill. He adjusts spices as he cooks, tasting along the way. He flavored his ribs with cinnamon, apple and Jack Daniels Tennessee Fire, a blend of cinnamon liqueur and whiskey, at Throwdown last year.

"I wanted to think outside the box," he said. "It turned out more like a candy taste than barbecue — like ribs for Christmas. It was really good. We'll try something different this year. I'm thinking Asian."

James Hart, former Westland Area Jaycees president, tends to the barbecue during the organization's inaugural All American BBQ Throwdown last year.

Brian Markonni and his son Blake get ready to barbecue at the All American BBQ Throwdown last year.

Markonni hopes to incorporate a smoker into his barbecuing someday, but has a lot of questions about the method and equipment. He plans to ask around at Throwdown for recommendations and cooking tips.

James Hart, former

Westland Area Jaycees president, suggests seasoning a new smoker before using it in competition. It's a lesson he learned when he brought a new smoker and a grill to Throwdown last year.

"Cook on it a few times before you cook on it competitively," he said. "I had never smoked anything before."

Great steak

He'll return to Throwdown's Backyard Series next month with his 2015 team. His father Richard and his son, also named Richard, handled the team's barbecue pork, chicken and ribs last year, while Hart took a "big old porterhouse" steak from raw to medium rare. The pork and ribs went into the smoker and the chicken and steak cooked on a gas grill. The Backyard Series allows contestants to substitute steak for brisket.

"When it comes to my steak, there is a family marinade I use," he said. "It has proved to be very successful. It's not uncommon for friends to say, 'We'll bring a steak and you cook it.' My wife can't even go to a steakhouse anymore. I'll give you one ingredient in it and that is teriyaki."

His advice for barbecuing steak includes trimming unnecessary fat, marinating meat and a medium cook or less.

"If you make a good steak, it doesn't need sauce," he added.

Week-long camp challenges 'Kidney Kids'

Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

Like many first-time visitors to the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan Kids Camp, 9-year-old Antonio Casey of Redford found some new and exciting things to do.

As it is for so many of the visitors sponsored by the NKFM, the Kids Camp is about the only place Antonio, the son of Mark, is going to be able to get some of the excitement "normal" kids find regularly.

Antonio, one of 22 Kidney Kids (as they're affectionately referred to in camp) in the NKFM's annual week-long adventure at YMCA Camp Copneconic in Fenton, came into camp Monday with a big smile on his face and it only got wider as the week went on.

"I've had lots of fun," Antonio said, while taking a break following a free-swim session. "I get to make a lot of friends. They have a lot of special things here that you can do."

His favorite? The zip line through the woods camp officials have labeled "Freak Creek."

"It's fast and exciting!" Antonio said with a grin.

'Freak'ing out

Freak Creek is just one of the many activities at Camp Copneconic that allow Kidney Kids to feel like other, non-medical campers. The Kidney Kids are mixed in with the other campers and treated the same way, except for the fact many of them have to stop to get their weight and blood pressure checked or take their medication or, even in some cases, take a dialysis treatment.

The kids are all kidney patients, most of them from one of three hospitals in the state: Children's Hospital at the DMC in Detroit, C.S. Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor and the Helen DeVos Children's Hospital in Grand Rapids.

The idea, according to camp director Bob Meyer, is to allow these patients — whose activities are often restricted by their disease — to "be kids" for a week.

"Their day-to-day lives can be pretty involved with all the medical challenges facing them," said Meyer, an Ann Arbor resident who's been the camp director for 13 years. "We want them to be regular kids. (Camp) lets them challenge themselves to do things they never knew they could do."

In addition to mastering the 200-yard zip line, they challenge themselves with activities like a climbing tower, horseback riding, archery, hikes and catching frogs, all leading to the campfire that ends their stay.

Bonding experience

The Kidney Camp is in its 30th year, during which the NKFM has sponsored nearly 1,000 campers. The kids stay in cabins on the camp-ground, have their meals together and make their way through the week in groups that let them not only "bond with their fellow kidney patients," according to Meyer, but also with other non-kidney campers.

Their medical needs are constantly monitored and met. In fact, in summer 2014, the camp opened a new Health and Wellness Center opened to provide care to campers. The medical staff — nearly all of whom are volunteers from one of those same three hospitals — meet every medical need from handing out oral medication to running IVs.

born Heights, a nurse at Children's Hospital in Detroit, first came to Kidney Camp in 1987. She figures she's been there for 10 of the 30 years, with time out in between to raise her own family. She knows what the medical staff does provides first-rate medical care for the campers and provides their parents, who are often leaving their kids for the first time, with reassurance. "Our goal is to keep the kids integrated with the rest of camp as much as possible," Elm said. "It can actually be a respite (for parents). Most of the staff comes from one of the home units, so we know a lot of the kids already. We can reassure (parents) because they know us."

Coming back

The camp is for Kidney Kids ages 8-16 — applications and more information are available at nkfm.org or at 800-482-1455 — and many of them return year after year. Meyer said the camp this year has two such campers, both of whom want to come back as counselors-in-training next year.

Like the kids, many of the counselors also come back year after year. The counselors actually work for Camp Copneconic and are integrated with the Kidney Kids just like the campers.

Many of the counselors come from faraway places, particularly Britain. And many (maybe all) of them pay for the privilege, like 20-year-old Finn Shepherd, who lives and goes to school in London, but comes to Fenton every summer to work with the kids.

"I spend my days swimming in a lake, making sure kids have fun and climbing the high ropes with them," said Shepherd, who got the gig after attending a kind of "camp job fair" in London, where officials from similar camps recruited counselors. "It's a place where you get to be a kid all over again."

Miracles happen

While the week is filled with regular activities, occasionally a miracle occurs. One such event took place at the beginning of camp this year. A camper from Southfield the counselors affectionately dubbed "Mr. T" was awakened on the first day of camp to the news that the transplant he'd been hoping for was finally going to happen.

It was Shepherd — with two other counselors who'd worked with Mr. T — who got to help deliver the news. The three woke Mr. T up and

KIDNEY FACTS

According to statistics provided by the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan:

- » More than 900,000 people in Michigan have chronic kidney disease (permanent kidney damage or decreased level of kidney function for three months or more).
- » Diabetes and high blood pressure are the two leading causes of kidney disease.
- » As the incidence of obesity in children increases, so does the rate of type 2 diabetes, which is a leading cause of kidney failure. One in three kids born in 2000 will develop diabetes.
- » Nearly 2,900 people were waiting for a lifesaving kidney transplant in Michigan in July 2016.
- » In 2015, the generosity of Michigan's 285 organ donors resulted in 800 life-saving organ transplants.

delivered him to the doctor, who gave the still-groggy camper the good news while the counselors peeked from around a screen.

"He was actually calmer than we were," the British counselor said. "We were like three mums, kind of peeking while the doctor told him. It was such a great moment. I was very privileged to be a part of that."

Meyer said parents are rightfully careful with their kids when they're at home, but at camp the counselors challenge them a little more. Parents, he said, "kind of protect them," but at camp "we're like, 'Hey, c'mon, let's do this.'"

"Their day-to-day lives can be pretty involved with medical stuff," he added. "Here they learn things, they grow, and they challenge themselves. It let's them be in control."

Four township board hopefuls answer questions

There are 10 Republican candidates in this year's primary for the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees.

All are running for the party's nomination for board seats; the top four finishers will move to the November election, where they will face one announced opponent, Libertarian Joseph H. LeBlanc, who was nominated through a convention process. There are no Democratic candidates in the board race.

All primary hopefuls recently answered questions from the Plymouth

Observer and we are publishing their answers, continuing today with candidates Michael Oliansky, Thomas Parelly, Alexander Roehl and Don Schnettler.

The other candidates are incumbent Chuck Curmi and Jack Dempsey, whose answers were published in the July 17

Observer, incumbents Bob Doroshewitz and Mike Kelly and Gary Heitman, whose answers were published in the July 21 Observer and Theresa Somercik, whose answers are scheduled to be published July 28. The primary election is Tuesday, Aug. 2.

Oliansky: A method to making good decisions

Michael Oliansky, 59, is making his first run for the Board of Trustees; he has served as a Republican precinct delegate. Oliansky is a vice president and director of consumer analytics for GTB, an advertising agency that handles Ford Motor Co. advertising. He has a bachelor's degree in psychology and a master's degree in industrial psychology.

Oliansky

Q: What skills have you gained from your career and personal experience that would help you as a trustee, and how would you apply those skills to working in township government?

A: Much of my career has been about helping business people make good decisions. We define our goals, develop and execute a plan to meet the goals, and then evaluate the results of our program.

This method of defining goals, developing a plan, and measuring the results is a great framework for making decisions on the board and gaining information to guide future actions. We need to continually evaluate the benefit to the taxpayers when we spend their hard-earned dollars. When I am on the board I will help guide the process to assure good decisions.

Q: Much has been said

about the current board's relationship with some elements of the community, and about poor relationships between some board members. How would you, as a trustee, work toward being able to disagree more agreeably, and toward gaining the respect of all voters, even those who speak up to oppose board actions?

A: More transparency will help. Often board meetings have enough business items that a thorough explanation of each decision is difficult. The township could consider publishing background and position summaries on the township website in addition to the usual board packet. It seems when people do not have all the facts behind a decision, they often infer the worst.

On the board, some of the trustees have served a long time and caused long-standing animosities. It is time for a group of principled conservative trustees that will work together to keep taxes low and government efficient. Elect me - Mike Oliansky, Mike Kelly, Tom Parrelly, and Theresa Somercik; we have the experience in government and business to guide Plymouth Township to a successful future.

Q: What is your view of the Plymouth Arts and Recreation Complex becoming a public, taxpayer-supported entity for Plymouth and Plymouth Township residents? What is your view of recent improvements to township recreation facilities, especially Plymouth Township Park?

A: PARC claims they want to tax the homes of residents of the city and Plymouth Township up to $25 million to "fulfill their vision." Some estimates of the costs require $40 million. PARC has not provided a business plan or feasibility study to the township. The township portion of $25 million would be about $19 million - more than the township's annual operating budget. Given the lack of a plan, lack of documented benefits and

Parelly: Show respect and restore collegiality

Thomas Parelly, 38, a Plymouth Township Board of Trustees candidate, is making his first run for public office. Parelly is the chief operating officer for a logistics company and has a bachelor's degree from Eastern Michigan University, where he majored in history and political science. He is vice president of the Trailwood Homeowners Association.

Parelly

Q: What skills have you gained from your career and personal experience that would help you as a trustee, and how would you apply those skills to working in township government?

A: My career has been rooted in business development, where listening to the customer is paramount in being successful. Being a successful trustee is similar. You have to listen to your fellow residents, professionals working in the government, and the other elected officials to come to the best decision that is the least intrusive.

I've also been active in the community since I moved to Plymouth Township, and have been vice president of the Trailwood homeowners association for the past two years, which has motivated me to serve the entire township.

Q: Much has been said about the current board's relationship with some elements of the community, and about poor relationships between some board members. How would you, as a trustee, work toward being able to disagree more agreeably, and toward gaining the respect of all voters, even those who speak up to oppose board actions?

A: As I stated in the previous question, listening is a good place to start. Listening respectfully to each other will work even better. This doesn't mean you can't have a vigorous, passionate debate about a topic. It does mean however, that you don't resort to going into a private Facebook group for support that does nothing but put out negative personal attacks. The animosity that has been building over the last eight-plus years has spilled over into nothing but personal attacks. Most residents don't even know about the issues, just the personal animus that some board members have towards others in the township.

Q: What is your view of the Plymouth Arts and Recreation Complex becoming a public, taxpayer-supported entity for Plymouth and Plymouth Township residents? What is your view of recent improvements to township recreation facilities, especially Plymouth Township Park?

A: My view about such projects, whether it be a stadium for a pro sports team, or a private entity such as PARC, is that if you have a viable business model, and are not sharing the profits with the taxpayers you're asking to pay for your projects, then you need to pay for it yourself.

In regards to the public recreation facilities, we should be constantly looking at improving facilities that bring young families into our community. Philharmonics may be cultural gems, but I don't know many 3-year-olds that like going to them all the time. Swing sets, play structures, and sledding hills cost, PARC is not good for Plymouth Township.

The improvements in Plymouth Township Park, the pavilions and the snow machine, are used and appreciated by township residents. Future plans for Township Park need to be based on an open-space plan that should include a survey of our residents.

Q: Name your top two priorities for Plymouth Township and briefly describe how, as a trustee, you would go about addressing those priorities.

A: Keeping the lowest tax and water rates in Wayne County is the first priority. This is important to our many retirees, living on fixed incomes, and our young families. This gives the township an advantage in attracting businesses, which increases our tax base and contributes to keeping our rates low.

General quality of services in the township are a complementary concern. We need to live within our budget and use debt financing with care so we are not put in a bad position by an unexpected economic downturn. This year, we have an expected budget surplus of a half-million dollars, with an expected surplus next year as well. We can consider using this to expand public services in a sustainable way.

though are things that families enjoy, and make them want to move here.

Q: Name your top two priorities for Plymouth Township and briefly describe how, as a trustee, you would go about addressing those priorities.

A: My top priorities are bringing collegiality back to the board and making Plymouth Township more attractive to young families.

For my first, I think it's obvious that having a government that isn't rehashing old grievances will be best for everyone. Settling old scores may be personally gratifying, but they do little to move Plymouth Township forward.

For the second, we need to realize our community is aging. The school district is losing revenue because we don't have as many children attending. We need to make use of our great park infrastructure, and expand it. I'll push for more bike lanes and bike paths, so that residents can get around without driving. We need to continue adding sidewalks and do more activities like the 4th of July picnic to encourage our community to come together.

Roehl: Business prepared me for leadership role with township board

Alexander Roehl, 46, is making his first run for public office as a candidate for the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees. He is a full-time father and home-maker and previously owned an e-commerce business. He has a bachelor's degree from Ferris State University, where he majored in graphic arts.

Roehl

Q: What skills have you gained from your career and personal experience that would help you as a trustee, and how would you apply those skills to working in township government?

A: Owning and operating my own business has prepared me in many ways for a leadership role in our community. These include, but are not limited to, sound decision making, problem-solving, organizing skills, action planning, budgeting, and working with a diverse group of people. Although the endgame is different when running a business, having three generations of my family living within the township will give me a unique perspective when applying these valuable qualities.

Q: Much has been said

about the current board's relationship with some elements of the community, and about poor relationships between some board members. How would you, as a trustee, work toward being able to disagree more agreeably, and toward gaining the respect of all voters, even those who speak up to oppose board actions?

A: I'm all too aware of the current board's relationship with both itself, and with the community. In fact, it's the reason I decided to run for a position. I'm embarrassed and very concerned. The root of the problem is that two of the board members weren't elected to their positions. Once the voters have spoken, I believe it will alleviate part of the problem. Reopening Fire Station 2 would also put out both real and proverbial fires within our community. The other solution is to bring much more transparency to our government. The people of Plymouth Township want to know how all of their money is being spent, and where it is being kept.

Q: What is your view of the Plymouth Arts and Recreation Complex becoming a public, taxpayer-supported entity for Plymouth and Plymouth Township residents? What is your view of recent improvements to township recreation facilities, especially Plymouth Township Park?

A: I would like to close the money-hemorrhaging Hilltop Golf Course and make that entire area part of Plymouth Township

Schnettler: Us-vs.-them mentality among board members, residents has to stop

Don Schnettler, 57, is making his second bid for the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees; he has also run for township supervisor and for the state House of Representatives. Schnettler is a building and electrical inspector in Washtenaw County and an aikido instructor, and has an associate's degree in industrial technology.

Schnettler

Q: What skills have you gained from your career and personal experience that would help you as a trustee, and how would you apply those skills to working in township government?

A: I have been a building official, electrical and building inspector for Washtenaw County, and the city of Plymouth for 19 years. I have served on the board of directors of my church for 17 years, and have been a small business owner for 30 years. In those capacities, I have managed budgets, served on hiring committees, negotiated contracts, supervised various municipal departments, and in a voluntary role

Q: Much has been said about the current board's relationship with some elements of the community, and about poor relationships between some board members. How would you, as a trustee, work toward being able to disagree more agreeably, and toward gaining the respect of all voters, even those who speak up to oppose board actions?

A: The us-against-them mentality towards fellow board members, and more importantly, our taxpayers, has to end. While it begins with the supervisor, I will work as a trustee to bring an end to the animosity. Communication and civility is the key to ending the confrontation that we so often see. I will immediately make the effort to build relationships with all board members, not just those who share my views. I will push for study sessions in an honest effort to reach consensus, before hot button issues are brought before the board for votes. I agree with Rep. (Kurt) Heise, that there should be

Check out 2016 Maxima at Nissan of Canton

The redesigned 2016 Nissan Maxima is a powerful, good-handling sedan that stays true to the nameplate's performance-oriented heritage and features an upscale interior that befits its price. You can view and test drive one at Nissan of Canton, 42175 Michigan Ave.

"Maxima" is Nissan's longest continually-in-use nameplate, and the eighth-generation car is a boldly styled sedan that draws heavily from the Nissan Sport Sedan Concept.

Ever since the Nissan Altima grew into a mid-size family sedan in the early 2000s, the Maxima hasn't fit neatly into a segment. Nissan says the 2016 Maxima is designed to compete with larger, traditional full-size sedans like the Chevrolet Impala and Toyota Avalon, as well as appeal to buyers looking to move up to a luxury car, like the Acura TLX.

The 2016 Maxima is offered in five trim levels — S, SV, SL, SR and Platinum — that determine the level of equipment; accessories are available, but there are no option packages. We drove an SL, which is priced at $37,715, and the $38,495 SR. That one is the most performance-focused model, with unique suspension bushings, springs, shocks, front stabilizer bar and chassis bracing, in addition to 19-inch alloy wheels with stickier Goodyear tires (prices include an $825 destination charge).

Exterior and styling

The Maxima brings Nissan's Energetic Flow design language to its sedan lineup. Signature cues include a plunging grille bordered by LED daytime running lights and gloss-black pillar finishes that give the roof a floating appearance — something Nissan says is inspired by a fighter jet's canopy. The front end is aggressive — the car looks menacing when you see it coming up on you in your rear-view mirror — and also memorable. It's a design that demands a reaction, good or bad.

How it drives

Large cars may be known for a forgiving, comfortable ride quality, but that's not the Maxima formula. Compared with a Chevrolet Impala or Chrysler 300, which both do a good job smoothing out bumps and cracks in the road, the Maxima is a much more connected, tighter-handling car. There's remarkably little body roll when driving quickly through a corner. You feel bumps, but they're dealt with in a refined way.

The SR trim level's unique suspension is considerably firmer and busier; you feel more road imperfections, even smaller ones, and the impact is harsher when you hit a big pavement crack. It's a little too rough-riding for me, especially considering the good ride-and-handling balance the regular suspension provides.

You'll want the SR trim if you really care about steering feel, as it offers the best of the bunch. Press the Sport button in an SR, however, and the steering wheel gains a nice, firm left to it and some feedback through the wheel. It feels right in this performance-focused trim.

All trim levels benefit from the performance of the standard 3.5-liter V-6 engine, which provides smooth, effortless acceleration. Rated at 300 horsepower, the V-6 still has power to spare for a quick pass at highway speeds. It pairs with a continuously variable automatic transmission that's programmed to act like a conventional automatic at low speeds for a more traditional driving experience, according to Nissan.

The Maxima shows how far CVT technology has come recently, at least when paired with a powerful engine. It's mostly unobtrusive, with only a hint of the droning that's associated with this type of transmission when you accelerate hard. If you've been driving a car with a conventional automatic, this CVT won't seem strange or different.

One of the benefits of a CVT is that it's able to quickly increase engine speed when you want more power because it doesn't need to shift to a lower gear. The Maxima's CVT is very responsive; nudge the gas pedal and engine rpm immediately increases, providing more power.

CVTs usually enhance gas mileage, and the Maxima's EPA-estimated 25 mpg combined rating tops most V-6 competitors by a few mpg or so.

Interior

Overall quality and attention to detail is very good. The standard leather-wrapped steering wheel feels great; it's even better in the SR, which has Alcantara simulated-suede inserts.

The upper sections of the doors are finished with soft-touch material that's a comfortable alternative to the door armrests.

The center console has a padded section to rest your knee against, and there's real stitching on the doors, console and dashboard. One element that doesn't look premium, however, is the simulated metal finish on the dashboard, doors and center console. It doesn't look real.

Fighter jets also informed the layout of the cabin controls, according to Nissan. The center dashboard control panel is angled 7 degrees toward the driver, and center console controls are close at hand.

The new Maxima's roofline is 1.3 inches lower, which contributes to the sedan's hunkered-down look.

The Maxima has the latest version of Nissan's NASA-inspired Zero Gravity front seats. They're finished in cloth (S), leather (SV and SL), premium leather with quilted Alcantara inserts (SR) or premium leather with quilted leather inserts (Platinum).

Ergonomics and electronics

Digital screens are rapidly taking over the dashboards of modern cars, and there are two in the Maxima: a 7-inch screen between the gauges and an 8-inch touch-screen in the center of the dashboard. The gauge cluster screen lets you cycle through different modes to see information like speed and heading, trip data, tire pressure and active safety features.

The dashboard screen is the primary display for the standard navigation system and multimedia functions. The Display Commander control knob on the center console can also operate the dashboard touch-screen.

Cargo and storage

The Maxima's 14.3-cubic-foot trunk is nicely shaped, and the trunk lid's support arms move within an enclosed area, so there's no risk of them crushing your cargo. The release straps for the 60/40-split folding backseat are in the trunk. The rear seatbacks fold flat with the trunk floor.

The Maxima has a media bin just ahead of the center console cup-holders. The bin is large enough for an iPhone 6 Plus, according to Nissan, and it's also where the car's two standard USB ports are located.

Safety

Most of the Maxima's active safety features come on SL and higher trims. These models have standard blind spot warning, rear cross-traffic alert, adaptive cruise control, forward collision warning with autonomous braking and predictive forward collision warning. Predictive forward collision warning uses low-mounted radar to "see" under the car directly ahead of you to the next one in line. The system can issue a warning if it senses that car slowing suddenly — even if you can't see it yourself.

The top-of-the-line Platinum trim adds a surround camera system with moving-object detection and a drowsy-driver warning system. Drowsy-driver warning compares steering inputs at the beginning of a drive with ones later in the trip to determine if the driver is getting tired and needs to take a break.

Value in its class

Years ago, Nissan dubbed the Maxima the 4-Door Sports Car. It's an ambitious tagline, but it reflects the fact that the car caters to a specific type of buyer: the driving enthusiast who still needs sedan practicality. The 2016 Maxima is no different from its predecessors in this regard, but its new level of luxury — both in terms of cabin materials and features — now makes it a credible alternative to entry-luxury sedans. If you're shopping sport sedans, it's worth a test drive.

Price explains township's stance on PARC

Recently, PARC's plans to renovate Central Middle School into an arts and recreation center, including a 600-800 seat theater, have taken center stage. Plymouth Township administration has been accused of meeting the plan with "resistance." The majority of the board did meet the proposal with less enthusiasm than Trustee Bob Doroshewitz, a founding member, partner and general counsel to PARC; however, the board researched enough about PARC to know members have questions that should be answered before proceeding.

I, personally, met with Don Soenen, PARC's president, on several occasions, including a comprehensive tour of PARC and participation in a public forum where we discussed PARC in detail. In fact, I have met with him more times than TDM, Federal Mogul, Bosch and developers of the Kmart property combined - companies bringing thousands of jobs and millions of dollars of investment into our community.

Shannon Price

I have serious questions about PARC. PARC is asking for significant investment from our community and there are several issues which are not clear. The issue is not as simple as "putting it on the ballot and letting voters decide." PARC organizers admit this requires the creation of "a joint Plymouth-Plymouth Township public taxing authority that would raise money... and run it ... for both communities" (Detroit Free Press, Feb. 22, 2015). It would be irresponsible to surrender our financial destiny to a PARC authority before knowing what we are asking taxpayers to consider.

Until these questions are answered, I won't be supporting PARC. Just to be clear, talks stalled with the known scope of the plan - renovations and building a theater. PARC estimates this will cost $25 million. P-CCS's estimated renovation cost was "in excess of $26 million" (Plymouth Eagle, Jan. 9, 2013).

The township board has been accused of "fabricating numbers to scare voters," yet P-CCS's projected cost did not include the addition of a theater. In 2003, the 400-seat Village Theater in Canton cost $11.5 million. Plante Moran estimated that doubling the size of the theater would more than double the cost. If construction costs have not increased and PARC's theater cost $23 million today, how can the entire project cost $25 million? The actual cost is closer to $40 million.

There are additional concerns, like parking issues. There are also questions about whether area theaters in nearby communities are viable. For example, the Village Theater in Canton loses $400,000 each year. Dearborn's 1,200-seat theater loses more. Future costs are an issue. It took five years for the city to come to a partial agreement on legacy costs with the township. Yes, this makes many on the township board skeptical about entering another financial agreement, an unfortunate by-product of the township being left with a $4 million financial burden. Are we "bad neighbors" for protecting the well-being and financial future of the township, a core responsibility of township officials?

Recently Soenen said "a substantial portion of the cost" could be privately funded, but in a Plymouth Observer article April 1, "Soenen said total restoration and other projects" suggest a need for "a property tax to raise that money."

One aspect we agree on is that PARC could be grant funded. Recently, the Michigan Municipal League featured communities across the state which built their versions of PARC without taxpayer dollars. Can we follow a similar model? Certainly. But how do we request grants when the cost of PARC is guesswork? Is the lack of funding our fault or do "potential funders" have similar concerns? Since the onset of discussions, I have asked for a business plan addressing the known goals - renovations and the theater. How do we move forward without this research?

Soenen says a business plan will be provided - after the election - and characterizes the township as "trashing PARC" for asking reasonable, fiscally responsible questions. He tells civic groups this election is about PARC and his goal is to elect candidates that support PARC. Are we being punished for asking questions instead of blindly supporting PARC?

Shannon Price is supervisor of Plymouth Township.

P-CCS remains the first, best and only option for students

Over the past seven months, I have been reminded of a simple question that drives everything we do. It is the reason why our teachers teach, why our students learn and why our community continues to have high expectations of our schools: "Why P-CCS?" The answer to that question continues to be abundantly clear; it is because of the strength of our schools and the power of our communities.

Community is an essential ingredient in sustaining a strong school system. I am proud to report that with all of the challenges we've experienced this year, our dedicated teachers, administrators and support staff kept their eyes on the prize and delivered an outstanding year of educational opportunities for our students. This success would not have been possible without the continuous support from our community. Thanks to your investment and trust in this district, the road ahead for P-CCS is one paved with incredible promise and opportunity.

As I continue leading this district with a student-focused vision, we must be sure that, as a district, we relentlessly reach out and tap into the diverse and impressive resources of our community to help P-CCS remain the first, best and only option for students and families.

We are incredibly grateful for the way you, our community, got behind our district and overwhelmingly passed a $114 million bond that contributed to the finalization and premiere of STEM Labs at all five of our middle schools, as well as the continued rollout of the 1:1 Technology Plan, putting a computer device in the

My vote to Morrow

With 21 candidates on the ballot for Wayne County Circuit Court judge, it can seem overwhelming to figure out which candidates are worthy of our support. Brian Morrow has the experience, expertise and demeanor to serve on the bench.

As deputy chief of the Juvenile Division of the prosecutor's office, Brian initiated "Teen Court" which is a juvenile diversion program allowing certain juvenile offenders who have committed relatively minor, first-time offenses, to avoid having a juvenile record if they comply with the terms of the program.

Due to Brian's exemplary work, he was awarded the "Champion of Justice Award" by the State Bar of Michigan, an honor given to, at most, five attorneys across the state each year. The Detroit Metropolitan Bar Association and Wolverine Bar Association have given Brian Morrow the rating of "Well Qualified" to be a judge in the Wayne County Circuit Court. In addition to those honors, he's been endorsed by Wayne County Prosecutor Kym Worthy, the Police Officers Association of Michigan, the Wayne County Chiefs of Police and several sitting judges.

On Aug. 2, my vote goes to Brian Morrow for Wayne County Circuit Court judge and I hope yours will, too!

Trust an issue

We have been bombarded with mailings that come from or are affiliated with the township administration as well as from out-of-town PACs. The one that I want to talk about says "Vote For the Trustees You Can Trust" and lists Mike Kelly, Teresa Somercik, Mike Oliansky and Tom Parrelly.

Trust is defined as the constant expectation of something, the reliance on the integrity, strength, ability, surety of a person or thing, confidence.

Trust is earned. I have never met Teresa Somercik, but I know she worked for Ron Edwards, I know he circulated at least some of her petitions and I know he told another candidate not to bother campaigning because it was a lock for "his girl," referring to Teresa, despite the fact that she has not participated in one candidate forum. No trust earned there - maybe some guilt by association.

The only thing I know about Tom Parrelly is that he was brought into the lawsuit, or an attempt

VegMichigan plans fun, meatless, dairy-free festival

Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

VegMichigan's new outdoor festival will serve up everything you'd want in a summer party — grilled burgers, food trucks, live music and kids' activities — without meat and dairy products.

"Our goal is to let people know there is a whole variety of vegan food available," said Tom Progar, a Westland resident and VegMichigan board member. "We wanted to have a fun event. We wanted to create a free event so people could bring their friends."

VegMichigan promotes a vegan diet, which includes fruits, vegetables, legumes, nuts, grains and seeds and excludes all animal products, such as meat, fish and dairy foods.

The festival will run from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 7, at Madonna University, located at Levan and Schoolcraft Road in Livonia. Food and beverages will be available for purchase.

Unlike VegFest, the organization's annual spring event, the new Chive Kitchen, a vegan restaurant in Farmington, will grill burgers at VegMichigan's Summer Festival.

John Rush will take requests when he sings at VegMichigan's Summer Festival.

Ben & Jerry's non-dairy ice cream will be available at VegMichigan's Summer Festival in Livonia.

summer gathering will focus more on fun than on health and cooking presentations. Progar hopes festival-goers will visit vendor booths featuring animal causes, vegan cosmetics and other products, in addition to playing carnival games and listening to singer John Rush and indie rock band Once United.

Food trucks will be stationed at the festival, along with booths from El Cardenal Vegan Tamales, Tumerican Indian Restaurant, Crushed Health Smoothies, Mi Little Sweet Tooth Baked Goods, Mitten Munch Trail Bars, Tower Garden Juice Plus and Violife Dairy Free Cheese.

Vegan burgers

Chive Kitchen, the new vegan restaurant in downtown Farmington, will fire up the grill.

"We wanted to make it a real summer festival," Progar said. "They will grill burgers in the open.

We wanted the smell of the burger."

Suzy Silvestre, Chive Kitchen owner, said her vegan burger is one of her most popular menu items. She makes her patties from scratch, using seitan and cannellini beans, mixed with herbs, spices and sunflower seeds, all topped with a creamy tomato-based sauce, pickles, dill and caramelized onions.

Her reuben sandwich and jalapeno burgers also are top sellers.

"We like taking anything and making it vegan," she said, adding that she incorporates European, Mexican and Portuguese food flavor profiles into her cooking. The Portuguese influence, which is part of her family heritage, can be a little tricky when maintaining a vegan diet.

"It's seafood, meat and egg-driven," she said, describing the culinary style. "It's difficult, but in turn we focus on red pepper, tomato, parsley, garbanzo beans and potatoes."

Her menu, which changes daily, often includes acorda soup, a traditional Portuguese bread and garlic soup with Swiss chard.

"I grew up eating it with a poached egg on top," she said. "It's a soul-satisfying soup and we made it vegan."

Silvestre isn't certain what she'll serve at the festival in addition to vegan burgers. She aims to serve dishes that appeal to a wide range of tastes.

"For me, that's texture and flavor ... making a dish taste, feel and smell good," she said.

Cemetery attracts Pokémon Go players, police

Susan Bromley
Staff Writer

Local cemeteries are getting lively. Pokémon Go, the new game craze sweeping the nation, has brought hordes of players — and police — out and about, including at Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens. “Every single night since Pokémon has come out, dozens and dozens of people are in our main cemetery at 12 Mile and Novi Road and we have received complaints during the day that players are showing up,” Novi Police Chief David Molloy said, adding that Oakland Hills is the only cemetery affected in his community. “Family and friends are in there visiting grave sites and mourning and these players are creating a disruption running around trying to catch Pokémon via their smart phones.”

Players of Pokémon Go, the app for Apple and Android devices, was released July 6 in the U.S. The new portable game from Nintendo uses a technology called augmented reality, which allows a player to interact with the real world instead of just the screen. Players pursue game creatures that appear in real-world locations via GPS technology, with the goal of capturing them for training and battle.

The characters in the game can be found virtually anywhere, but they abound in the Oakland Hills Cemetery, where a woman was kneeling at a grave Friday afternoon. Less than a mile away, Liz Bauman, 24, and Wixom roommates Sam

Marson and Matt Sharp, both 29, were out hunting Pokémon. The trio skirted grave markers on the perimeter of the cemetery before veering toward a sculpture close to a memorial bench, where they stared down at their hand-held phones and swiped the screens. “There are a lot of PokéStops here,” Bauman said, explaining that these are locations where Pokémon Go players can obtain items for the game. “The graveyard has a higher ratio of PokéStops; that’s why there are so many people here.”

Told that the game has caused some problems at the cemetery, including the police being called there July 11 after it was reported that about a dozen people playing Pokémon Go were disturbing people visiting graves, Marson acknowledged she feels some discomfort. “I am a little reluctant to be here. I worry about being disruptive to those who are grieving,” she said. “I think it’s OK as long as we’re quiet and respectful.”

She and her friends noted that the cemetery has the most PokéStops they have found in the city, far more than Twelve Oaks mall or Fountain Walk, although they agreed those places would probably be more appropriate.

The game’s popularity prompted the cemetery to post a new sign that features the Pokémon Go logo and welcomes players, but with a few caveats, asking them to be respectful, to not disturb items on graves and to not play after dusk. “We welcome all guests, but we want them to be respectful and mindful of families that might be attending services,” said Donna Campbell, vice president of legal/human resources for Midwest Memorial Group LLC, which owns and operates Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens. “If there is a graveside service, stay away, do not sit on monuments or take anything off gravesites, be quiet and respectful as you walk around other people visiting gravesites.”

While Bauman, Marson and Sharp were observing the rules, dozens of players were breaking them Friday night. As a police patrol unit drove through the cemetery around 10 p.m. amidst at least 30 cars parked along paths, oblivious players stared down at their phones, only looking up as Officer Brian Tillman told them the cemetery was closed.

Local ordinance prohibits entering any of the city’s cemeteries after dark. Trespassers can be charged with a misdemeanor, although that has not yet occurred. “We have provided warnings, but haven’t taken enforcement action,” Molloy said. “We don’t want to write tickets and give a misdemeanor for trespassing and occupying a cemetery after hours for playing a game. Use common sense and caution.”

Police have taken action that may stop the flow of players to the cemetery altogether. An officer submitted an online request to the game developer, Niantic, to have Oakland Hills removed as a Pokémon Go location, although it is unknown when or if the developer will honor that request. There have been several interesting news reports in the past week related to Pokémon Go players. A Milford man wanted on an outstanding warrant was spotted right outside the police station searching for a character. A 10-year-old dog’s life — and the house — was saved in Royal Oak when a couple hunting Pokemon saw flames and called 9-1-1. In New York, a driver totaled his car after crashing into a tree while playing.

Matt Sharp (from left), Sam Marson and Liz Bauman, all of Wixom, play Pokémon Go at Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens in Novi on Friday. The cemetery welcomes players during the daytime, as long as they are respectful. After dark visits are against the law and have prompted nightly police warnings since the game’s release July 6.

Ask Dr. Stewart

Dr. James Stewart offers treatment for sleep apnea and chronic snoring from his practice in Livonia, MI. Today he discusses modern day tips for Sleep Apnea Treatment:

Benefits of Combining CPAP and Oral Appliance Therapy

Dear Dr. Stewart: Can I use my CPAP and oral appliance together?

Dr. Stewart: Great timing with your question! I recently returned from the annual meeting of the American Academy of Dental Sleep Medicine and one of the topics that came up several times during the scientific presentations that I attended was the concept of using these two therapies together.

The main advantage of using a CPAP and an oral appliance together is that it generally drops the CPAP pressure needed to keep the airway open. This can make the CPAP much easier and more comfortable to wear. They can be worn independent of each other or the CPAP can be attached to the oral appliance, eliminating the straps needed to hold the CPAP in place. A dentist can also take an impression of the face so a custom mask can be made and attached to the oral appliance. Custom CPAP masks are ideal for patients who can't wear a stock mask. Custom CPAP masks also prevent air leaks.

Finally, some patients are unable to get their sleep apnea under control with one therapy alone. Combining the two often makes the difference and allows them to feel better and live a healthier life.

If you have questions about your sleep difficulties contact Dr. Stewart by calling 734-425-4400 or visiting sleepbettermichigan.com.

WAYNE COUNTY PROPOSAL PROPOSAL P PARKS MILLAGE CONTINUATION

To continue the millage authorized in 2010, shall Wayne County levy this millage at the estimated 2015 rollback rate of .2459 (about 25 cents per $1,000 of taxable valuation) for five more years (2016 through 2020) to continue to improve and operate several parks, and related facilities, including Hines Park, Elizabeth Park, Chandler Park, and improvements to municipal parks in the 43 communities as provided in an implementing ordinance through an annual allocation by commission district of the greater of $50,000 or 15% of the total funds generated from that district, on the condition that, for any year for which this continued levy would be imposed, Wayne County must budget from other sources an amount equal to its 1995-1996 fiscal year appropriation for parks? This renewal is projected to generate $9,865,514 in 2016.

WAYNE COUNTY ZOOLOGICAL AUTHORITY RENEWAL MILLAGE

The Wayne County Zoological Authority was established pursuant to Public Act 49 of 2008 and formed to allow for continuing zoological services for the students, residents and visitors of Wayne County. The law allows the Authority to seek authorization from the electors to levy a tax on real and personal property to provide revenue to an accredited zoological institution for this purpose. According, as a renewal of the previously approved millage authorization which expires with the 2017 tax levy, to continue providing zoological services to benefit the residents of the County, shall the 0.1 mill (10 cents per $1,000 of taxable value) on all the taxable property located within the County continue to be imposed for a period of ten (10) years, being years 2018 through 2027? It is estimated that if approved and levied, this millage would generate approximately $3,940,066.55 in 2018.

Shall this proposal be adopted?

hands of our more than 17,000 students. These transformative changes for teaching and learning are preparing our young people to be successful in a technologically-driven society.

As I drive around our community every day, I am reminded yet again of your support as I see the capital improvements being made at our elementary schools. Our classrooms continue to be transformed with even more upgraded technology for our teachers to enrich our students every day; our building and grounds are also receiving a much-needed update, improving the learning environment for our students; and 14 new buses have been delivered this week to get our students to and from school safely and ready to learn. Liberty Middle School opened its doors this past September to a brand new home for hundreds of students and staff, now known as Liberty Lions, who are building a fantastic culture within this new educational center.

All of these incredible opportunities to enhance the educational experience for our students are possible because of the power of our community. Why P-CCS?

Guided by principles of inclusion, high academic achievement and culturally responsive practices, P-CCS programs meet the individual needs of all students. Our students consistently exceed the state average for proficiency on standardized tests and are prepared for college and career readiness with an impressive 90-percent graduation rate. Our district offers an unmatched and diverse set of educational opportunities in which all students can thrive.

» P-CCS just received the honor of being one of 58 districts in the state (and one of three in Wayne County) to be named as a "Notably Successful" district — the highest measure given — in the recently released Michigan Education Finance Study, recognizing how financial resources are used to increase academic achievement. State Superintendent Brian J. Whiston said of P-CCS, "The achievements of your school district is a testament to the focus, hard work and commitment of your team, school board, teachers, students, parents and community to sustain a rigorous, high-quality learning environment."

» Where else can you find three high schools on one campus providing personalized learning experiences for more than 6,200 students? In fact, our P-CEP buildings were recently recognized in the Newsweek "Top 500 High Schools in the U.S." list, honored by the College Board with placement on the sixth Annual AP District Honor Roll for increasing access to AP coursework, while the Class of 2016 received more than $20 million in scholarship funds.

» Five of our elementary and middle schools were recently released from the Michigan Department of Education Focus Schools list, thanks to the hard work and dedication from building administrators and teachers. This proves that we are "practicing what we preach" in terms of working to close achievement gaps.

» P-CCS continues to have incredible performances from our athletics and activities groups at both the middle and high school levels. There is something for everybody during the P-CCS educational experience, including more than 200 extracurricular clubs and 34 sports.

» Instrumental in our preschool expansion, as well as other enrollment initiatives, is the P-CCS Blue Ribbon Panel, a group of community leaders dedicated to helping P-CCS grow and thrive.

Why P-CCS? Just think about it: When you see an Apple on a piece of technology, that represents something strong, something identifiable — and, above all, symbolizes an idea that you know what you are going to get from that brand. As a community, we can all work as a team to build the same identity for P-CCS — one of quality, innovation and tireless effort to be at the top of our game. Let's vow to do this together and make sure that when people see P-CCS, they know the product we will deliver — the greatest and most complete educational experience a child can have.

I want to sincerely thank our community for your continued support to make P-CCS such an incredibly strong, successful learning environment for students. Our team will focus our efforts this summer to strategically plan and prepare for the return of our our students, teachers, administrators and support staff. Working together, we will ensure that our students will continue to learn, prepare and thrive during the most important years of their lives.

was made to bring him into the lawsuit, as a plaintiff, to get Kurt Heise and Don Schnettler off the ballot and he appeared at a candidate forum and refused to participate because Heise and Schnettler, both declared candidates, were allowed to participate.

Mike Oliansky at least took the time to attend the League of Women Voters forum and he participated. He also worked on the committee, as did others, bent on destroying our fire department. I believe he was misled by those who sought revenge, Richard Reaume and Ron Edwards, but I don't know him.

Mike Kelly is a trustee, so we know him. We've wondered why we didn't attempt to recall him after he started referring to the citizens who stood up at board meetings as malcontents. He has not been a standout trustee by any stretch, commonly letting people know they don't know what they are talking about. Has he ever demanded accountability from the current administration on things that matter? He is known among citizens who attend meetings as the guy who goes with the wind — you never know what he will do.

Trust ... the constant expectation of something ... the reliance on integrity, strength, ability, surety of a person or thing, confidence. If you are looking for that in a trustee, you need look no further than two trustees who have proven over and over again what that is: Chuck Curmi and Bob Doroshewitz. Vote wisely! Vote for trust!

Plymouth Township

Edwards a positive voice

Some time in 1995 or '96, I had my first conversation with Ron Edwards, the gentleman who would soon be the elected treasurer of Plymouth Township. He was campaigning outside the Little Professor bookstore in downtown Plymouth, a spot that always reminded me of Floyd's Barbershop, a place where locals gathered to figure out which way the wind was blowing. I had one question for him: Why do you want this job? His response: "I want to see the township grow in a way that keeps it high in the minds of people looking for a friendly, positive community to live in while maintaining the lowest tax rates in the county."

Since that day, I have moved twice to other homes in Plymouth Township and have enjoyed the positive spirit of the community and its elected officials. Ron Edwards has been one of the positive voices at Township Hall helping to attract numerous new businesses to our community in the same way he wanted to attract citizens searching for a positive and vibrant community. The current board has maintained a low tax rate, provided strong community services and helped to keep us named as one of the top communities to live, not just in Michigan, but in the nation.

Volunteering seems to be a way of life for many in our community. Over the years, as my family grew, we volunteered at many events in the community including the Good Old-Fashioned July 4 Picnic, an event initiated by Ron Edwards, and came together through that great spirit of volunteerism. It is one of many community centered events that we've enjoyed that will be sorely missed if some of the current crop of social media nay-sayers have their way.

I continue to find my township a positive place to live and work and wish that for all my neighbors.

a citizens advisory council, which would give a voice to our community, that would benefit us in our decision-making process.

Q: What is your view of the Plymouth Arts and Recreation complex becoming a public, taxpayer-supported entity for Plymouth and Plymouth Township residents? What is your view of recent improvements to township recreation facilities, especially Plymouth Township Park?

A: What I feel about PARC is inconsequential. What our taxpayers feel about PARC, is what matters. The current board made a horrible decision when they chose to remove themselves from any discussions on this issue in particular, and on any issues with the city of Plymouth in general. PARC is up and running, and our taxpayers will soon see how well their business model is working, and at that point, we can make an informed decision on the future. Improvements at our park are great, but it was not prudent to borrow 2 million dollars for pet projects when Lake Pointe Fire Station is closed and our police have not had a contract in over a year. We must have better fiscal priorities.

Q: Name your top two priorities for Plymouth Township and briefly describe how, as a trustee, you would go about addressing those priorities.

A: I feel that safety, and fiscal responsibility should be the top priorities for Plymouth Township at this point. Lake Pointe Fire Station must be opened, and we must have a fully staffed fire department, without depending upon government grants. Our police deserve to have open, honest, contract negotiations. To have them working without a contract for well over a year, is simply shameful. We need to get our fiscal house in order. We need a transparent audit of everything, from our underfunded legacy costs, to our ownership of Hilltop Golf Course. There are simply too many unanswered questions about Plymouth Township's financial stability that need to be answered. We cannot plan for the future until we have a clear understanding of our current financial situation.

Park, including a community pool. This would provide use to the entire community, and not just the 2 percent that use the golf course.

I'm open to the idea of a Plymouth Arts and Rec complex, but not until sound cost estimates are in. Too many communities in metro Detroit have gone way over budget on similar types of projects. Also, there are too many widely varying cost estimates being thrown around at this time to give a simple answer on this proposed project.

Q: Name your top two priorities for Plymouth Township and briefly describe how, as a trustee, you would go about addressing those priorities.

A: Maintain low taxes by using innovative ideas. One of which is to prevent any more homes to become rental properties. Too many rental properties hurt home values which in turn effects our tax revenue.

Secondly, I would like to bring more transparency to our government. This can be done in a number of ways, including a code of ethics for the Board of Trustees, live broadcast of the board meetings, and making all financial spending (records) easily available to our citizens.

Scheidies chases new world title

Former Farmington resident plans to rebound from previous Paralympic disappointments

Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

Aaron Scheidies is on his way to what he hopes will be his 12th world championship in the sport of paratriathlon.

When he competes Sunday in the Netherlands, the Farmington native likely will do so with extra vigor in the wake of recent disappointments.

Scheidies, who now lives in Seattle, had hoped to be going to Rio de Janeiro in September for the 2016 Paralympic Games, but that was dashed by a series of events.

"I guess I've moved on as much as I can," Scheidies said. "I think having the paratriathlon world championships so soon afterward is probably a good thing."

Johnson captures Publinx golf title

Former Canton High School golfer claims state match-play crown

Greg Johnson

Chad Johnson trailed Leo Daigle of Wixom throughout the day but stayed close.

Close enough to win three of the last five holes to emerge with a 1-up victory and the Michigan Publinx State Match Play Championship on Tuesday at Twin Lakes Golf Club.

"I was fortunate," the 30-year-old medical salesman said of his first major state victory. "My short game saved me all week, and it was the reason I was even in this match."

Johnson, who played golf at Canton High School, is a Monroe resident who was raised in Plymouth and lived there until two years ago.

Daigle, 52, lamented some missed putts on the front nine that might have turned his 2-up lead through 13 holes into something larger.

"I had a few putts to bury him, but I didn't make them and let him hang around," Daigle said. "We played just long enough for my age — he had 22 years on me — and being tired from all the golf this week to wear on me."

"I hit a few loose shots coming in and it really cost me, but he outplayed me and deserved to win. He made three sand saves on the front nine. He just kept grinding and hanging in there."

Johnson hit a shot on the 182-yard par-3 No. 14 hole to two feet for birdie to pull within one hole, and he chipped to 18 inches to save par at 17 while Daigle played to bogey.

KICKING IT!

Area courses doing double duty as footgolf brings soccer to the links

Tim Smith
Staff Writer

The teenagers walked onto the west nine at Fellows Creek Golf Course wearing huge smiles of anticipation and carrying soccer balls.

Huh? Canton 13-year-olds Nathan Anton and Carson Stoneburg, accompanied by Nathan's dad Steve Anton, were getting their first taste of a relatively new recreational craze — footgolf.

Nathan and Carson eagerly flipped regulation-size soccer balls in the air as they made their way to the first tee box. There was no sign of players with golf clubs at Fellows Creek, a public course in Canton.

"This is the first time attempting footgolf or at least witnessing these guys trying to attempt it," Steve Anton said. "It's very interesting. My son and I play a lot of golf, so I can see it's a completely different mindset from golf, even though it's played on the same platform."

As Nathan launched into his opening salvo on the west nine-hole course at Fellows Creek (which has been retrofitted for footgolf, complete with 21-inch cups, enough room to squeeze in three soccer balls) he approached the ball from right behind it and kicked it the way an old-school football field-goal kicker would. "I stubbed my toe," he said with a big laugh.

Soccer style

Carson, his pal from Pioneer Middle School, took the sidewinder's approach when teeing off. That made perfect sense, because he is a travel soccer player for the Plymouth Reign.

"It's working so far," Carson said about hitting the ball with his instep instead of toes. "I haven't had any problems."

The trio walked the virtually flat 1,195-yard front nine,

RUNNING

Former Mercy star wins Founders race

Allysen Eads top women's runner in Farmington event

Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

Allysen Eads' decision to enter the Farmington Founders Festival road race was almost an afterthought. When it was done, she was glad she had.

The 19-year-old Northville resident easily won her age group and was the overall women's winner in the four-mile event July 16.

It was the first time Eads, a former star runner at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills, had ever done a road race.

"I never really thought I needed to," she said. "I guess it makes all the training I do in the summer worth something. It breaks it up. I thought it was really fun."

Eads, who completed the course in 24:16.5, ran most of the race with the leading male runners.

She was way ahead of the other women, finishing a good two minutes in front of the next competitor and placing 11th among all entries.

"I didn't know really what to expect," Eads said. "I wasn't looking to win or do anything else. I wanted to see where I was in my summer training."

"About a mile into the race, I turned and looked behind me, and I didn't see any girls. I thought, 'Oh, cool, I guess I will win something.'"

"I know a guy who finished two spots in front of me who has run a 29-minute 10K. That was pretty good. Some of those people are pretty serious runners."

Eads, who runs cross country and track at Hillsdale College, entered the race at the suggestion of the manager at the New Balance store where she works.

It was the first time Eads ran a competitive race since the end of the collegiate track season. She had been averaging six to seven miles a day and 44 per week in her training.

"I had been doing base runs, normal runs," she said. "I've been training since the end of May and beginning of June for cross country. For my first workout back, I thought it was pretty good."

"I was doing interval workouts during the race. I'd do a minute of sprinting, run for a minute and sprint again. I didn't wear a watch like I usually do, which helped because it went by really fast. I had no idea what my time was."

Eads liked the course, which winds through the neighborhoods of Farmington and Farmington Hills, and especially the finish.

"It was a really fun atmosphere," she said. "I liked running down Grand River (in front of the crowd waiting for the parade). It was all roped off."

"There was one slight uphill at the start. After that, it was rolling hills, nothing too big, and the last mile was pretty much all downhill."

"I went to school at Mercy, so I knew a lot of the people who were on the side of the road. I said 'hi' to them; that was really cool."

Eads had a good freshman year at Hillsdale. In the NCAA Division II championships, she contributed to teams that finished second in indoor track and third in both cross country and outdoor track.

Eads, who said she has "improved a ton" since high school, runs the steeplechase as her primary event in outdoor track. She focuses on the 1,500 meters during the indoor season.

Allysen Eads runs the steeplechase for the Hillsdale College women's team.

"I was doing interval workouts during the race. I'd do a minute of sprinting, run for a minute and sprint again. I didn't wear a watch like I usually do ..."

ALLYSEN EADS

"I did pretty well in cross country," she said. "I ran fifth on the team and traveled to all the meets."

In the steeplechase, the top 23 athletes were invited to the national meet. She was ranked 24th.

"Two days before the competition, my coach called and said someone had scratched," Eads said. "I had started my (postseason) break and hadn't run in nine days. I didn't run that well, but I got the experience as a freshman, which was really important."

Eads plans to do at least one more road race this year and to get an earlier start on doing a lot more next year.

"I train for three months straight in the summer," she said. "When you're training during the year, you always have a race to look forward to. I like doing a road race and breaking up the training routine."

The men's overall winner was 27-year-old Hunon Cjutak, with a time of 20:28. Connor Naughton of Northville, 19, who was the 2015 winner, was second in 20:41.3.

The runner-up in the male 15-19 age group and third-place overall finisher was Farmington High School junior Nick Trevisan, 16, with a time of 20:45.

The women's runner-up was 26-year-old Olivia Juntilla, who finished the race in 26:12.4 and won the 25-29 age group.

JUNIOR GOLF

Area youths score well on tour

M.B. Dillon

Andrew Lack of Northville fired a 3-over-par 74 to win the Kensington Junior Golf Tour's Bay Pointe Open on July 15 in West Bloomfield Township.

"I was making a lot of putts, and I got the driver going," said Lack, a 16-year-old incoming junior at Catholic Central High School. "I hit it pretty good, and I had a bunch of birdies."

Tyler Fuelling of White Lake took runner-up honors, carding an 80. Waterford's Katie Boyd won the girls 15-18 division with a 91.

For Livonia Stevenson senior Madison Maurier, who finished second with a 96, the day was similar. She hit some of the hazards as did Boyd.

"It was a struggle," she said. "I had some unplayable shots. I was striking the ball well; it just didn't go where I wanted it to go."

"It's hard to hit your driver because of all the water. The course is interesting to say the least."

Bay Pointe borders Middle Straits Lake; and numerous holes require shots over inlets and waterways.

In its 11th year, Kensington hosts 27 tournaments in Oakland, Wayne, Livingston and Washtenaw counties.

The tour makes a stop in Livonia on Tuesday, July 26, for the Whispering Willows Junior Open. To register and

In an effort to support junior golf, the Livonia-based charitable Dinan Foundation is offering five $1,000 scholarships to 2016 high school graduates. Aug. 1 is the deadline for high school coaches to nominate student-athletes.

In the boys 12-14 age division, Westland's Troy Watson, 10, played up and won with an 88.

"I had some messed-up holes that cost me a bit," he said. "The course is pretty curvy, and there's a lot of water out there — and bushes and trees. It's quite a walk and a very long course. I made sure I kept the ball going straight."

Vincent Levesque of Detroit finished atop the leaderboard in the nine-hole, 11-and-under division with a 50. Damo Watson of Westland shot 51 to take second.

Lack's 74 was noted by Bay Pointe head pro Danny Zywick.

"That number is impressive for an adult, let alone a 16-year-old," he said. "It's a number you don't hear too often at any golf course. Obviously, Andrew's got game. I imagine some colleges are looking his way."

"Competing out here, the Kensington junior golfers know the rules and golf etiquette. Participation is increasing every year; the Kensington Tour is upward trending."

Rams stay hot, edge Hurricanes

The Michigan Rams' heat index has been off the charts this month.

On Thursday at Ford Field in Livonia, the red-hot Rams overcame an early 2-0 deficit to post a 5-3 victory over the Hurricanes in a Livonia Collegiate Baseball League showdown.

The Rams' fifth consecutive win improved their record to 24-8-1. The Hurricanes slipped to 17-15-3.

Justine Steele was the winning pitcher after tossing 4 1/3 strong innings, during which he surrendered just one hit and two runs. Steele struck out three and walked five.

Zack Schmidtke earned the save after allowing just one base runner over the final inning and change.

Five pitchers toed the rubber for the Hurricanes.

Patrick Downing was the only player in the game to record two hits, one of which was a double. Downing, Tyler Lowe, Craig Wilson and Jack Ferguson knocked in runs for the winners.

Travis Harvey roped a triple and knocked in a run for the 'Canes.

which features holes ranging in distance from 93 to 193 yards. The longest hole is the 10th, the first of the back nine; it is a daunting 230 yards.

"If you only play nine holes (in footgolf) you're only walking five holes," Fellows Creek's Dan Turner said, explaining that the course also is used by regular golfers during other times of the day. "On the west side, the course is flat. People enjoy the walk. It's definitely good for exercise."

For now, footgolf is offered as a drop-in activity during twilight hours, so as to not interfere with regular golfers.

So far this year, the second the hybrid sport has been offered at Fellows Creek, Turner said the number of rounds has bumped up from about 500 to 800, with plenty of youth and high school soccer teams coming out to play. Including footgolf, the course has had more than 20,000 rounds over the first half of 2016, up from 17,000 over the same span last year.

"We have a lot of golfers that come in (and) they see the flags out there," Turner said. "They see the size of the holes and inquire about what it is. We tell them and a lot come back and try it and they enjoy it."

Curiosity might bring some to the course. But nothing beats word of mouth.

"A lot of it is kids around here that play soccer," Turner said. "They're on soccer teams. Maybe one of the kids comes out, goes out and plays it and we end up getting their whole soccer team coming back."

Similar lament

Throughout their first-ever footgolf round, Nathan and Carson walked the course and took turns kicking from between two wooden spikes (which mark the tees), then ripping shots from the fairway toward the green.

It worked the same way as regular golf, although putting proved a bit challenging — even with the huge holes to aim for. The ball tends to pick up speed as it rolls across the green.

"I kind of kick it," Nathan noted. "Wherever I kick it, it's going to go somewhere else."

Spoken like a true rec golfer.

But both Nathan and Carson said they wanted to come back and play footgolf again, bringing more friends with them.

"It's a little different, so you got to think differently, like how far it's going to go," said Nathan, a travel baseball player and regular visitor to Metro-parks golf courses with his dad.

Enthusiastically endorsing footgolf as an addition to recreational pursuits was Steve Anton.

"It gets kids up off the couch and out running around kicking the ball, so it's better than playing video games," he said. "Plus, it's a great introduction to a golf course. If they are at all fans of nature, they come out and see all the wildlife on the golf course; that can be an attraction (for) them."

"They might want to check out (regular) golf after a while, too, if you're out here enough."

Not Carson. He said it was fun to get out on the golf course, but he probably won't be persuaded to attempt actual golf: "I tried. I'm pretty bad at that."

Several other metro Detroit golf courses offer the hybrid sport, including Fox Hills and Hilltop in the Plymouth-Canton area.

According to Tami Bealert, PGA teaching pro at Hickory Creek Golf Course in Superior Township, she has friends who have gone to various

WHERE ELSE CAN YOU PLAY?

HILLTOP GOLF COURSE: Located on Beck Road near Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth, the very name of the course itself promises a bit more of a challenge than Fellows Creek. Pricing for nine holes is $7; soccer ball rental is $3 and cart rental $5 (per person). Call 734-453-9800.

FOX HILLS: Yet another nearby footgolf venue for Wayne County residents is Fox Hills Golf & Banquet Center on North Territorial in Plymouth Township. Footgolf is played on the Strategic Fox Course, located near the main entrance. All ages are welcome to play. Tee times can be reserved online at foxhills.com or by calling 734-453-7272. It costs $15 to play nine and $20 for 18.

LOWER HURON METROPARK: Another nearby option is Lower Huron Metropark at 17845 Savage Road in Belleville, where the par-3 course is open for footgolf business. Call 734-697-9181 for more information.

LITTLE MYTH PAR 3: Footgolf at the Little Myth Par 3 near Rochester and Lake Orion in Oakland County is open to the public. This season, holes have been added to the nine-hole course. Prices are $9 per person. If you need to rent a soccer ball, it is $5, plus a $15 deposit. Footgolf is becoming a very popular sport for families, teams and even footgolf leagues. Call 248-693-7170.

RED OAKS: This course at 29600 John R in Madison Heights is another option, one of 15 Michigan courses accredited by the American Footgolf League. It costs adults $14 to walk nine holes and another $11 for an additional nine holes; for those ages 17 and under, prices are $11 and $9, respectively. Call 248-541-5030 for more info.

courses to check out the interesting game.

But Bealert said the rec endeavor (sanctioned by the American Footgolf League) might gain even more traction with a simple name change.

"Personally, I really think it should be called soccergolf," Bealert said. "I think more people would have a better understanding about what this recently new sport to America is all about."

To check out footgolf at Fellows Creek Golf Course, 2936 S. Lotz Road, north of Michigan Avenue in Canton, call 734-728-1300 or send an email to info@fellowscreekgolf.com.

about that and to refocus on something else a little more positive."

The 34-year-old Scheidies had been training for a spot on the U.S. paratriathlon team, but his category of disability — PT5 for the blind and visually impaired — was deleted from the Paralympic lineup at the end of 2014.

"That day I was absolutely in shock and heartbroken," he said. "That was the dream I had been getting ready for ever since I started doing triathlons 15 years ago."

"My category was one of the most competitive. It didn't make sense to cut mine for a less competitive category."

Scheidies, who was a swimmer and distance runner at Farmington High School, tried to find another sport in which he might make the team.

He began training for the marathon, but he realized his chances of medaling in that event were pretty low. He decided his best opportunity was in cycling.

He won his first two races at the national championships in 2015, was selected for the U.S. national team and started going to World Cup events.

Scheidies spent 50 days racing in Europe and training with the U.S. paracycling team. He won two silver medals and moved up to No. 6 in the world rankings.

"From talking to everyone in the paracycling world and USIOC, there was a very high likelihood I would be on the team for Rio," he said.

More setbacks

In an attempt to balance the representation among disabled athletes, the Union of Cycling International reduced the number of qualifying positions on the U.S. team from nine to four.

"They consider my category less disabled and to be highly represented," Scheidies said. "They said, 'You have to bring somebody in this category and this category.' That goes against the allocated slots for your country."

"The standard makes it almost impossible to make the team with only one or two spots available for Rio. It was going to be harder to make the U.S. team than medal in the games."

At the U.S. Trials in early July, with three of the five cycling spots already determined, Scheidies and his guide faced a limited window of opportunity.

"We were having the race of our lives," Scheidies said. "With 800 meters

Aaron Scheidies, who was raised in Farmington, hopes to win another paratriathlon world championship Sunday.

to go, we turned right to make a little hill climb. Our rear derailleur broke, and we couldn't ride the bike anymore. We had to run the bike. That pretty much put us out of making the team."

Back to triathlon

With his 'Road2Rio' goal sidelined, Scheidies switched gears in his training and started getting ready for the International Triathlon Union world championship in Rotterdam.

Scheidies won the 2015 event in Chicago, but he hadn't trained in swimming and running for more than a year while he focused on cycling.

"I had to kick my butt into gear and get myself into shape for the world," he said. "I do think I'm in the best shape for all three. In the last three weeks, I've gained a lot of fitness, a feel for the water and rhythm in the run."

Going for the gold

The paratriathlon consists of a 750-meter swim, 20-kilometer bike and 5K run. The best combined time for Scheidies and his guide, who will be Colin Riley of Cincinnati, is around 57 minutes.

"My expectations are to win," Scheidies said. "In any triathlon or competition, I think I have a chance to win; that's my expectation. I would not be satisfied with anything less than winning in this race."

"I'm excited to see and hang out with the other people on Team USA because I've been away from triathlons for a while. They're very supportive of me and know I got a raw deal."

"It'll be nice see them and encourage them on their journey, including some who will be going to Rio."

Scheidies fully expects the PT5 category to be included in the 2020 Paralympics in Tokyo, but he's undecided as to whether or not he'll try to make that team.

"I'm not committing to anything right now," he said. "I'll decide in a couple years whether if I'm going to make a run at it. I got married last year, and my focus is on having a family and my job."

Hall of Fame pick

Scheidies, who works as a physical therapist and also does public speaking engagements, was inducted into the Farmington High School Hall of Fame last year. He was unable to attend the event due to a World Cup cycling event in South Africa.

"It was a super big honor to be selected," Scheidies said. "Some pretty exceptional athletes have come out of Farmington High School over the years."

"Just to be recognized among those names and to be honored as somebody that has made an impact in the Farmington community was an honor and something I didn't expect."

A greater cause

Scheidies, who plans to start coaching athletes as his athletic career begins to wind down, maintains his own website at www.cdifferentwithaaron.com.

"The premise behind it is I see and am able to do anything anybody else in this world can do," he said. "I just have to do it a little differently."

"The goal is to change the perception of people with blindness and visual impairment on what they can and can't do and to help them have the same opportunities I've had."

JOHNSON

"Unfortunately, on the front nine, I hit a few bad shots that made it easier for Leo to win those holes," Johnson said. "On the back nine, I hit seven of nine greens in regulation, making two birdies and seven pars."

On 18, Daigle's second shot on the par-5 found the long grass on the right, and his third shot went into a back bunker, resulting in a bogey. Johnson made par and had the win.

"Leo is a great competitor and the nicest guy you would ever want to meet," said Johnson, a former Wayne State University golfer who recently took four years off from competitive golf to concentrate on his sales career.

"It means a lot to win this. There are so many great players in this, and all of my matches were so tough this week. In match play, you just have to keep grinding it out."

Johnson reached the final match with a semifinal win over Austin Kreger of Harrison Township in 20 holes on Monday. Daigle made his way to the title match with a 2-and-1 win over Andrew Smith of Troy.

Champions were also crowned in Senior and Super Senior brackets. Matt Wiley of Canton beat Steve Sierawski of Sterling Heights 6-and-5 in the Senior title match, and Tom Day of Linden topped Mike Keneally of Bloomfield Hills 3-and-2 in the Super Senior final.

Complete results and the match play brackets can be found at www.mipublinx.com.

Former Plymouth resident Chad Johnson is the 2016 Michigan Publinx State Match Play champion.

Make the transition to manager confidently

BY MATT TARPEY
 CAREERBUILDER

Entering your first managerial role is an exciting step forward in your career. But if managing a team is unlike any of your previous positions, it comes with new and unique challenges.

Here are five of the most common issues for first-time managers, along with tips on dealing with them.

How to give feedback

If you've ever sat through a performance review silently wishing you were on the other side of the desk, get ready for a surprise. Providing useful feedback is often a lot more difficult than first-time managers expect. One of the most common mistakes is not being specific enough.

"Just hearing 'Great job' isn't as effective as 'I really appreciate how prepared you were for that client meeting,'" says Amanda Sowadski, founder of the Institute for Feminine Leadership. "This gives your employee something specific to continue to do."

"The same thing goes when you notice behavior you'd like to change. Start by identifying the situation or task, what action the person took (and) what result occurred, and then offer up a new action and intended results that would occur if they did it differently. These types of specifics will ensure everyone is always on the same page."

When to give feedback

Many new managers also have trouble determining how often feedback is necessary. While you don't want to start micromanaging your team, be sure not to reserve all comments for quarterly evaluations.

"Make sure you are providing feedback all the time, not just during a formal review cycle," Sowadski says. "An employee should never be surprised with the results of a performance review if you've been doing your job and praising your employees or offering ideas for improvement as necessary."

Supervising former colleagues

We spend a lot of time with our co-workers, and when one person from the group is promoted above the rest, it almost always causes a bit of tension. In many of these cases, the best way to deal with it is through direct and open communication.

"In order to address this, have a one-on-one conversation with each person, where you express your gratitude for the opportunity to work with them, ask them to share any concerns, address any concerns you have and share your vision for what it will be like to work together," Sowadski suggests. "Don't dismiss or overlook the fact that these people may have also applied for the position or just feel awkward now that you hold a title that denotes more power. The most effective managers acknowledge others' concerns, even if they don't feel there is a valid concern, and create a collaborative team environment where everyone's input is welcome and appreciated."

How to motivate

Perhaps the most important skill you need to be a good manager is the ability to continually and reliably motivate others. If you were promoted internally, you're probably excellent at performing your team's function. But you cannot do it all on your own. Keep in mind that what motivates you doesn't necessarily motivate everyone on your team.

"One of your main responsibilities will be to improve the performance of your direct reports, but a one-size-fits-all strategy won't work," says Jordan Wan, co-founder and CEO of CloserIQ. "Not all employees learn the same way, and not all of your reports will respond to the same style of feedback. You need to get to know your employees and what drives them. Then you'll be able to better give them what they need to succeed."

How to reward

One of the most effective means of motivating anyone is the promise of a reward. However, while prizes or awards can be useful short-term tools, sustained recognition, credit and praise for good work can be just as effective in the long term.

"You will shine through the success of your team as a whole," says Anna Lundberg, a career coach, author and co-founder of Wolf Leaders Academy, which offers fast-track training and coaching for young managers. "Do not hesitate to praise your team publicly — far from taking the glory away from your own work, demonstrating the maturity to praise and thank your team is a valued characteristic of a leader and will only strengthen your image, not weaken it."

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Mazda Ascends with the Industry's Freshest, Most Fuel-Efficient Lineup and Rising Brand, with Sales Recovery To Follow

By Dale Buss

Its US sales are down this year so far, and frankly the entire American auto-sales picture has flattened out. But under new CEO Masahiro Moro, Mazda North American Operations clearly means to be regarded as a brand on the rise.

That will be increasingly easier for the company because the products it brings to market keep getting better. Exemplary is the new CX-9, the brand's top-of-the-line large SUV. The design, interior comforts, drivability, responsiveness, fuel economy and overall feel of the Signature version of the new vehicle, which I recently drove, are pushing strongly into territory that has been dominated by upscale brands.

Also serving as CMO for Mazda worldwide, Moro crucially sees brand management as the key to long-term success for Mazda in the US and globally.

"We have changed to emphasize brand and product value to customers and to emphasize brand-value management," Moro told a group of journalists in Detroit recently.

Mazda's global share of automotive sales is only less than 2 percent, but over the last few years the Japanese brand has been seeking to punch above its fighting weight by overhauling its entire product lineup, gaining technologically with its new Skyactiv development platform, expanding its offerings in fast-growing SUV and crossover segments and, most recently, casting itself as a near-premium marque.

So far this year, progress isn't evident because Mazda's US sales were down about 8 percent for the first half compared with a year earlier. But much of the reason for the decline was the fact that Mazda was introducing a significantly enhanced new version of its CX-9 flagship SUV and its dealers were without the previous version to sell for most of 2016 so far, explained Robert Davis Sr., vice president of US operations.

Now the new CX-9 has populated showrooms and is gaining a good reception, especially for its Signature trim level of premium materials, amenities and technology, which Mazda is using to try to begin leveraging its brand out of the mere mainstream of the US auto market and into near-luxury territory adjacent to, say, Acura.

Moro said Mazda began moving to emphasize long-term brand equity a few years ago, after the Great Recession brought yet another turn in the industry's historical boom-and-bust cycle and after the company's brain trust closely examined its approach. Its philosophy at that point was heavily based on increasing volume and achieving sales growth at nearly any cost.

"We sold at a discount so the customer didn't see value other than the price deal," Moro said. "We also focused on selling smaller cars" with relatively small profit margins. Customer retention rates were low to match, he said -- less than 30 percent in the United States.

"But we weren't going to

survive that way," he recalled. "So we changed our philosophy 180 degrees. We started from scratch" by developing the Skyactiv platform, which brought weight-saving technologies and improved driving dynamics to all the new models that would be built on it, and also creating a new exterior-design language that Mazda calls Kodo, which suggests forward momentum and dynamism even when the vehicle is standing still.

"It was ridiculous in a way, but we had to throw out convention," Moro said. "And now our philosophy is designed around how to keep customers coming back to Mazda. Everything is customer-focused. We used to be essentially a wholesale producer. Now we are focused on how to take care of the customer throughout the ownership cycle. It's a big shift in mindset."

As a result, he said, despite the 2016 dip so far, Mazda has posted 15-percent sales growth in the US over the last five years, and growth in retail sales is higher as the company seeks to curtail fleet sales that end up retarding the value of used products and eroding overall brand equity. Better prices for their used Mazdas mean that customers can and want to afford higher-priced new Mazdas. "It's a new cycle for our business," Moro said.

"We made the huge mistake in the past of thinking a manufacturer can create a brand image with the customer," he said. "But the customer's own perception is everything, and that takes a longer time ... You have to continue to evolve your technology, product and design for five years in a consistent way, otherwise the customer doesn't believe you."

"So our task now is to convince consumers and dealers through brand value management. And our brand is to be the smart alternative to premium brands."

The new CX-9 is Mazda's flagship SUV.
